LICENSE TO DO BUSINESS—STATUTORY REQUIREMENTS—CAPITAL STOCK—SUBSCRIBED AND PAID—PREMIUM FUNDS—APPLICATION—INSURANCE ACT, R.S.M. 1913, c. 98, s. 10 (A) AS AMENDED BY S. 9, c. 33, MANITOBA STATUTES, 1915.
Re North Western Life Ins. Co., 27 D.L.R. 729, 9 W.W.R. 1072, 33 W.L.R. 610.

B. FOREIGN CORPORATIONS.

Regulation of foreign companies, license to carry on business, see Constitutional Law, II A—194.

(§ I B—11)—RIGHT TO SUE OR BE SUED.

The provisions of c. 7 of the Companies Act, 1910 (B.C.), will not permit an insurance company organized and having its head office and principal place of business in another province, although registered and having a registered office in British Columbia, to sue or be sued in the courts thereof, except in respect to business transacted therein.

The fact that a foreign mutual insurance company collects assessments from members residing in the Province of Quebec constitutes the possession of assets on its part in that Province; hence the company could be summoned to answer an action entered in that Province.

Hodges v. Commercial Travelers Mutual Benefit Society, 13 Que. P.R. 352.

C. DISSOLUTION; FORFEITURE; INSOLVENCY; RIGHTS OF MEMBERS OF MUTUAL COMPANIES.

(§ I C—17)—COMPULSORY LIQUIDATION OF MUTUAL COMPANY—RIGHTS AND LIABILITY OF MEMBERS.

When a policy of mutual insurance upon the premium note plan contains a stipulation that the company is to "return" a certain percentage of the premium for the unexpired time should the policy be "cancelled," the assured is liable upon the involuntary liquidation of the company to pay the whole of the premium note given in respect of the entire term for which the insurance was contemplated by the contract and not merely the proportion to the date of the liquidation when the insurance ceased by operation of law; any claim which the assured may have in respect of a return of a part of the premium is one to be advanced in the liquidation proceedings and not by way of defence to an action brought in the name of the company by the receiver in the liquidation. The amounts unpaid upon the premium notes of subscribers to a marine mutual insurance company organized under the laws of Massachusetts constitute an asset of the company applicable to the discharge of the company's obligations and recoverable as such in Nova Scotia by the receiver or liquidator appointed in involuntary liquidation proceedings taken against the company under the law of its domicile, although the insurance for which the notes were given had ceased by reason of the involuntary liquidations.

D. OFFICERS AND AGENTS.

Authority of officers, validity of contract, seal, see Companies, IV D—85.

Liability for services of agent effecting reinsurance, see Principal and Agent, III—36.

Adjuster, compensation for services, see Principal and Agent, III—36.

(§ I D—20)—BROKERS—FOREIGN COMPANIES—DUTIES AS TO REMITTING PREMIUMS.

An insurance broker who undertakes with his customer to place fire insurance in foreign companies not authorized to transact business in Ontario, and who is provided by the customer with the funds with which to pay the premium, is under an obligation to procure binding contracts of insurance, and to do all that was necessary on his part to procure them; his failure to pay the premium to one of the foreign companies whereby it was enabled to repudiate liability under the policy delivered will make him liable to the insured for the loss occasioned thereby.

BREACH OF AGENCY CONTRACT—OVERRIDING COMMISSIONS.

An agency contract between an insurance company and its district agent stipulating the forbearance of the company to take on subagents employed by him nor override his commissions paid them does not, upon the breach thereof by the company, entitle the agent to recover the commissions he would have earned on the applications secured by such subagents, where it appears that the agent subsequently agreed to accept from the company a smaller percentage in satisfaction of what he might have been originally entitled to.

BROKERS—COMMISSIONS—REPAYMENT UPON CANCELLATION OF POLICY.

A mandate given to an insurance broker is not gratuitous, and if the broker effects contracts with which he is charged by the insured he is entitled to his commission.

The insured, who under the name of premium pays to this agent a sum equal to the amount of the premium and his commission, and who later cancels the contract, has the right to be repaid by the agent the same proportion upon the commission as the agent can claim from the insurance company upon the premium.

Prévost v. Painchaud, 47 Que. S.C. 505.

(§ I D—21)—AGENTS—ALTERATION OF APPLICATION BLANK BY AGENT—LIMITED AUTHORITY—RESPONSIBILITY FOR ERROR.

Where the written application for insurance is altered by the insurance agent after it is signed and authenticated by the applicant, and, in so doing, the agent fills in the answer to one of the questions submitted to the applicant according to the agent's erroneous view of the appropriate answer, but not in conformity with the agent's personal knowledge of the facts (e.g., negating the use of explosives, although blasting was essential to road-building operations in the locality), the agent is to be considered as acting for the company in that respect, and not for the assured.

Carlin v. Ry. Passenger Ass'ce Co., 14 D.L.R. 315, 18 B.C.R. 477, 25 W.L.R. 706, 5 W.W.R. 387.

(§ I D—22)—POWERS—LEASE—CORPORATE SEAL.

The provisions of the Companies Act (R.S.M. 1913, c. 35), do not apply to a company incorporated under the Mutual Fire Insurance Act, R.S.M. 1913, c. 101, and the powers of its officers and agents to bind the company must be gathered from the latter Act, or as they exist at common law; an agent's authority to make a lease of an office for the company's use or an agreement for such lease, is not within the term "regulations" mentioned in s. 27 of the Mutual Fire Insurance Act; to constitute a valid lease it must be under the corporate seal.

UNAUTHORIZED ACCEPTANCE OF RISK—LIABILITY OF AGENT.

An insurance agent who exceeds his authority in underwriting a risk, at a lower rate than that authorized by the insurance company will, in the event of loss, be liable to the company to the extent of the loss it is made to pay.

Globe & Rutgers Fire Ins. Co. v. Wetmore, 23 D.L.R. 33, 49 N.S.R. 55.

RIGHT TO SUE FOR PREMIUMS.

An insurance agent charged by the insurance company for the premiums of all policies written by him, may sue, in his own name, for the recovery of premiums charged by him against his subagent.

POWER TO BIND COMPANY.

When the application for insurance is prepared by the agent of the company, it should be considered to be the act of the company.

Lacombe v. La Protection, 48 Que. S.C. 531.

AGENT—WARRANT, MODIFICATION OF POLICIES—NULLITY—C.C. ARTS. 1703, 1704.

Unless a general authorization is given by an insurance company to an agent to consent to contracts of insurance, to issue policies and to cancel or alter them, an agent cannot make any change or alteration whatsoever. An insured who permits such unauthorized agent to alter his policy or to change its conditions, does so at his own risk, and in such case would have no redress from the insurance company; his contract of insurance thereby becoming void. The fact of an insurance company receiving from any person applications for insurance, and either refusing or accepting them, and in the latter case of sending to such person the policy for the purpose of being forwarded to the insured on payment of the premiums, is not sufficient to constitute such person an agent of the company with authority to cancel or alter the insurance policies issued.

Courville v. Central Canada Manufacturers Mutual Fire Ins. Co., 25 Rev. Leg. 225.

LIFE—FRIENDLY SOCIETY—DUES OF MEMBER—PAYMENT TO AGENT OF PROPER OFFICER—ESTABLISHED PRACTICE—AUTHORITY TO RECEIVE—MINISTERIAL ACT—FINDINGS OF JURY.

In an action by the beneficiary named in a life insurance certificate issued by the defendants, a friendly society, to recover insurance moneys and funeral benefits, the defendants pleaded that, by reason of the amount of a monthly assessment not having been paid, the assured was not in good standing as a member of the society at the time of his death, and that the certificate was not then in force. At the trial, the jury found that the amount alleged not to have been paid had been paid to K.; that K. had authority to receive it; and that it was so paid and received for the convenience of all parties concerned. W, the financial secretary, was the person designated by the society to receive payments; but for a great number of years members in a certain locality had made their monthly payments to K., who had a book in which the names of the members were entered, and when a payment was made gave a receipt signed by him (K.) as financial secretary. W. called regularly and received the moneys that had been paid to K.:—Held, that payment to K. was, in the circumstances, payment to W.; and, upon the findings of the jury, the plaintiff was entitled to recover. Although an agent may not appoint a subagent to do anything as to which the agent has to exercise a discretion, he may appoint a subagent to do mere ministerial acts, such as the receipt of payments. [Rossiter v. Trafalgar Life Ass'ce Assn. 27 Beav. 377, 383, 384, applied and followed.]

Greenfield v. Canadian Order of Foresters, 45 O.L.R. 136.

AS TO PREMIUMS—SET-OFF.

The authority given to an insurance agent, to receive from the insured the payment of premiums for renewal, does not carry with it any legal presumption that he is authorized to set it off against his personal debt.

Létourneau v. Equitable Fire & Marine Ins. Co., 49 Que. S.C. 15.

(§ I D—23)—PERSONAL LIABILITY OF AGENT—PREMIUM NOTE.

An insurance agent who accepts from a person taking out a policy a note to his order representing the amount of the premium, and by endorsement transfers it to the insurance company which he represents and to whom he is indebted, is liable to the company for the amount of the note in the absence of proof that he had been authorized to accept it or that the company had accepted it in payment of the premium.

Sauvegarde v. Daoust, 48 Que. S.C. 394.

(§ I D—26)—ACTION BY INSURANCE AGENTS TO RECOVER MONEYS RETAINED BY SUB-AGENTS—COMMISSIONS.

Pace v. Peverett, 32 W.L.R. 715.

STATUTORY CONDITIONS—GASOLINE ON PREMIUMS—ILLUMINATING OILS INSURED—NOTICE OF LOSS.

Lewis v. Standard Mutual Fire Ins. Co., 44 Can. S.C.R. 40, reversing 19 Man. L.R. 720.

LIFE INSURANCE—POLICY FOR SIX MONTHS—HOMAN'S PLAN—RIGHT TO RENEWAL.

Ekersley v. Federal Life Ass'ce Co., 19 O.W.R. 507, 2 O.W.N. 1274.

II. Insurable interest.

A. IN PROPERTY.

(§ II A—30)—IN CHATTEL—REDUCTION BY SALE FOR LESS THAN INSURANCE—RE-TENTION OF LIEN—EFFECT OF.

Where an insurance policy for $3,000 insurance on a horse stipulated that in the event of death but two-thirds of the actual value of the animal should be paid, upon a subsequent sale of the horse for $1,500, the insured taking notes, with a lien on the horse for the deferred payments, his insurable interest was reduced to two-thirds of the amount of the notes, and the accruing interest thereon.

OWNER—PARTNERSHIP INSURING BUILDING OWNED BY MEMBER OF FIRM.

Condition 10 (a) of the Alberta statutory conditions (Ord. Alta. 1911, c. 113) applies only to cases in which the insured has an insurable interest less than that of an owner in the widest sense and where such lesser interest was intended by the insurer to be covered by the insurance; and the condition, therefore, does not apply where the insured had by right of occupancy and uses under an agreement with the owner an insurable interest to practically its full value.

"DIRECT LOSS"—HOUSEHOLD—PROOFS OF LOSS—TIME—60-DAY PERIOD—CONDITIONS.

Upon a fire insurance policy issued by the defendants, insuring household furniture, "the property of the assured or of any member of the assured's family," contained in a certain dwelling-house, the plaintiff was held, to have "an insurable interest" and to be entitled to recover the whole amount of a loss by fire, notwithstanding that he owned only a part of the property insured; the remainder being owned by his father, mother, brothers and sisters, all living in the house as one family. The words "direct loss," as used in an insurance contract, are not intended to exclude such a claim as the plaintiff's; they refer to the nature of the loss or damage—it must not be too remote. [Keefer v. Phoenix Ins. Co. of Hartford, 31 S.C.R. 144, followed.] Held, also, that the "proofs of loss" furnished by the plaintiff became the property of the defendants as soon as the letter containing them, addressed to the defendants, was post-dated (which was on January 8th); that was a sufficient delivery of the proofs within the meaning of the statutory condition 18; and, therefore, the period of 60 days, allowed by statutory condition 22 for payment of the loss had expired on the 10th March, when the action was begun, and the action was not prematurely brought; also, that, if the conditions as to proof had not been strictly complied with, the plaintiff was entitled to relief under s. 199, Ontario Insurance Act.

Maldover v. Norwich Union Fire Ins. Co., 40 O.L.R. 532.

FIRE INSURANCE—OWNERSHIP—SALE—RIGHT OF REDEMPTION—LEASE—CIV. C. ARTS. 2475, 2483, 2576, 2577, 1087, 1088—C. PROC. ART. 778.

When the owner of certain furniture sells them and immediately takes a lease of the same movable from the buyer, with a right of redemption at the expiry of the lease, he does not retain in them an insurable interest; and if he obtains a policy of insurance, declaring that he is the proprietor of these movables, the policy shall be declared null and void. The purchaser (adjudicataire) at a sheriff's sale, becomes proprietor of the lot sold at the moment it is adjudicated to him as the last and highest bidder, although the completion of the title is suspended for a time. And from that moment the last proprietor upon whom the sale was made ceases to have any insurable interest in the building sold.

Bacon v. Insurance Co. of North America, 47 Que. S.C. 74.

IMPROVEMENTS BY LESSEE — PAYMENT OF TAXES AND INSURANCE—OPTION TO PURCHASE—INSURABLE INTEREST.

C. A. Paquet Co. v. Mutual Fire Ass'ce Co., 39 Que. S.C. 352.

DEATH OF A MEMBER OF THE FIRM OCCURRING BETWEEN THE APPLICATION AND THE ISSUE OF THE POLICY—UNDERTAKING TO PAY LOSS TO EXECUTORS OF DECEASED PARTNER.

Robert v. Equitable Mutual Ass'ce Co., 59 Que. S.C. 321.

INSURABLE INTEREST — STATUTORY CONDITION—AGREEMENT FOR SALE—CHANGE MATERIAL TO THE RISK—PROOF OF LOSS. Trotter v. Calgary Fire Ins. Co., 3 A.L.R. 12.

III. The policy or contract.

A. IN GENERAL.

(§ III A—40)—ANIMAL INSURANCE—APPLICATION AND POLICY—TENDER—ACCEPTANCE—CONTRACT—TIME.

MISDESCRIPTION OF PROPERTY—AGENT.

A wrong description of the property to be covered by a hail insurance policy, carelessly given by the application to an agent whose duty consists simply in soliciting and receiving applications and forwarding them to the company, voids the policy.

(§ III A—41)—VALIDITY GENERALLY.

Where one who is incapacitated by drink from knowing what he is doing signs an application for life insurance, filled in by the agent of the insurance company, which contains a material misrepresentation, and also a provision that, in the event of any such material misrepresentation in the application, the policy shall be void, and the untrue statement is never brought to the knowledge of, or ratified by the applicant, the application is a fraud by the agent upon both the insurance company and the applicant, and there is no valid contract of insurance.

HOUSE OF ILL-FAME—NOTICE OF CANCELLATION.

A policy of insurance on a house of ill-fame, which describes the risk as a "sporting house," is illegal on its face as facilitating the carrying out of an immoral and illegal purpose and unenforceable though notice of its cancellation had never reached the assured. [Clark v. Hagar, 22 Can. S.

C.R. 510; Bruneau v. Laliberté, 19 Que. S. C. 425, followed; Morin v. Anglo-Can. Fire Ins. Co., 3 A.L.R. 121; Trites Wood Co. v. Western Assur. Co., 15 B.C.R. 405, overruled.]

(§ III A—42)—BENEFIT SOCIETY — BY-LAWS.

A benefit society which has never enforced a rule requiring dues to be promptly paid, but has made it a custom to accept payments from members in arrears whenever they were willing to pay, cannot invoke such rule in order to escape liability under the conditions of an insurance policy.

Belanger v. L'Union Mutuelle des Voyageurs de Commerce, 43 D.L.R. 90, 24 Rev. de Jur. 426.

PREMISES "OCCUPIED AS A SPORTING HOUSE" — PUBLIC POLICY — HIGHER RATE CHARGED — INCREASED RISK — CHANGE MATERIAL TO THE RISK.

Trites-Wood Co. v. Western Ass'ce Co., 15 B.C.R. 405.

(§ III A—44)—INTERIM RECEIPT—DURATION.

An interim receipt for a period of 30 days, issued on an application for a yearly policy, covers a loss occurring after the expiration of the receipt but within the term for which the policy applied for was accepted.

INTERIM ORAL AGREEMENT PRELIMINARY TO POLICY—BINDING EFFECT.

A verbal interim agreement by the agent of an insurance company to protect the insured pending the issuance of the policy is binding upon the insurance company, although the agreement is for a smaller amount than contemplated on the entire risk.

Westminster Woodworking Co. v. Stuyvestant Ins. Co., 25 D.L.R. 284, 22 B.C.R. 197, 32 W.L.R. 802, 9 W.W.R. 418, affirming 8 W.W.R. 187.

(§ III A—46)—RENEWAL RECEIPT—INCORPORATION OF TERMS OF POLICY BY REFERENCE.

The words "according to the tenor" of a designated policy of accident insurance, used in a receipt for renewal of the insurance for another year, are sufficient to incorporate all of the terms and conditions of the policy in the new contract created by the renewal receipt, so as to comply with s. 144 (1) of the Insurance Act, R.S.O. 1897, c. 203, requiring that all the conditions or stipulations prejudicial to the insured or beneficiary shall be set out in full on the face or back of the instrument forming or evidencing the contract.

Youlden v. London Guarantee and Accident Co., 12 D.L.R. 433, 28 O.L.R. 161, affirming 4 D.L.R. 721, 26 O.L.R. 75, 21 O.W.R. 674.

FIRE INSURANCE—INTERIM RECEIPT—DURATION OF—EFFECT OF—ABSENCE OF WRITTEN APPLICATION WITH QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS—MATERIALITY.

Stones v. Anglo-American Ins. Co., 20 O.W.R. 800.

(§ III A—47)—ACCEPTANCE OF RISK.

An application for insurance when duly accepted by an insurance company constitutes a valid contract to insure, and if the property covered by such application be destroyed by fire before the arrival of the policy itself, the insured will be entitled to recover the amount of the insurance.

Anglo-American Ins. Co. v. LeBaron, 2 D.L.R. 877.

(§ III A—48)—POLICY—DELIVERY OF, NECESSARY—INSURANCE ACT (CAN.)

Delivery of the policy or contract of fire insurance completed in other respects is necessary to its binding obligation on both parties, and the illegal issue in Canada of a policy of insurance by a foreign company not licensed under the Insurance Act (Can.) leaves it an incomplete and unenforceable contract, and not available by a licensed company as a breach of a condition of its concurrent policy with the assured that no other insurance should be effected without due notice to such licensed company.

Pacific Coast Fire Ins. Co. v. Hicks, 20 D.L.R. 298, 42 N.B.R. 294.

COMPLETION OF POLICY—TENDER—ACCEPTANCE.

A contract of insurance is complete only when the company has tendered a policy which has been accepted by the assured.

HAIL INSURANCE—DELIVERY OF POLICY.

A policy sent to a company's local agent, countersigned by him, and ready for delivery, is in law delivered as an operative policy, and the parties thereto are bound thereby, the company for the risk assumed, and the insured for the premium.

DELIVERY—AGENT — WITHHOLDING DURING ILLNESS.

Returning a policy by the insurance company to its agent to be delivered to the assured, the application whereof having been approved and the premium thereon paid, but the policy being withheld by the agent, because of the illness of the assured, does not constitute a delivery of the policy as to render it effective within the meaning of a clause, "that the policy shall not take effect until the same has been delivered, the first premium paid thereon, and the official receipt surrendered by the company during the lifetime and continued good health of the assured." [Roberts v. Security Co., [1897] 1 Q.B. 111, distinguished.]

(§ III A—49)—LOAN ON POLICY—CASH SURRENDER VALUE.

The "cash surrender value" clause of a life insurance policy, providing for non-forfeiture in the event of default in payment of any premium if the cash surrender value should exceed the amount of such premium, means the cash surrender value mentioned in the table of guaranteed loan and surrender values followed in another clause in the policy; that the insurer has the right to fix the surrender value for the purposes of the policy at the end of every year; and that the surrender value fixed at the end of any one year continues to be the surrender value until increased at the end of the next year, according to the table.

B. REFORMATION; RESCISSION.

(§ III B—51)—RESCISSION.

Where an agent of a life insurance company, by an innocent error in calculation made at the time the policy issued, represented the surrender value of the policy to be greater than it really was, which correct amount could have been ascertained by insured by reference to a mortality table, in the absence of fraud or evidence shewing that this representation induced insured to take out the policy, rescission on the part of the insured will not be allowed, especially where many years elapsed before action is brought.

Shaw v. Mutual Life Ins. Co., 7 D.L.R. 637, 46 Can. S.C.R. 606, affirming 23 O.L.R. 559.

RESCISSION OF CONTRACT—TERM INSURANCE — "HOMANS" PLAN—FRAUD AND MISREPRESENTATION — CONSTRUCTION OF POLICY—ACTION FOR RESCISSION.

Eckersley v. Federal Life Ass'ce Co., 4 O.W.N. 1598.

C. CANCELLATION; SURRENDER; PAID-UP POLICY.

(§ III C—55)—SURRENDER VALUE—INTERPRETATION OF CLAUSE.

The clause "surrender value in cash" in a life insurance policy means the amount of money or its equivalent which the insurer could afford to pay to be rid of an existing policy, and is synonymous with "cash surrender value;" and the word "available" therein further used does not mean "existing," but contemplates a condition that can be taken advantage of.

STATUTORY CONDITIONS AS TO CANCELLATION.

An insurance company seeking to utilize the power of cancellation contained in condition 19 of the Alberta Statutory Conditions, must follow the terms of that condition.

SURRENDER OF POLICY—HUSBAND AND WIFE—INDEPENDENT ADVICE—LIFE INSURANCE POLICIES ACT.

The Life Insurance Policies Act, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 115, does not require a wife to have independent advice before joining with her husband in the surrender of a policy of insurance taken out by him in her favour, especially where a fund is made of a portion of the premiums paid. Nor unless the circumstances of such surrender bring it within one of the exceptions referred to by Alverstone, C.J., in Howes v. Bishop, [1909] 2 K.B. 390, at 395, is there any rule of law casting upon an insurance company supporting the surrender an onus of showing that the document was adequately explained to the wife or that she had independent advice or sufficient protection.

Moore v. Confederation Life Ass'n., [1918] 2 W.W.R. 895.

(§ III C—36)—NOTICE OF—RETURN OF PREMIUM.

In order to validly cancel its policy of fire insurance under statutory condition No. 19, Con. Ord., N.W.T., c. 113, the insurance company must not only send notice to the assured, but tender him the unearned premium; even if the company's subagent had previously been authorized by the assured to hold the money for the purpose of procuring insurance elsewhere in the event of the company cancelling, the company would not be relieved from the necessity of making the tender or at least of causing him to be notified that the portion of the premium to which he was entitled was held at his disposal.

(§ III D—65)—FIRE POLICY—MEANING OF "RAILWAY."

The word "railway" as used in a warranty by the insured in a policy of fire insurance covering lumber, that no railway ran within a specified distance of the insured property, is not limited to railways opened and used for general public traffic but also embraces railways in course of construction upon whose tracks construction trains and occasional freight trains are being operated to the knowledge of the insured.

FIRE—STATUTORY CONDITIONS — VARIATION —REDUCTION OF TIME FOR BRINGING ACTION
—REASONABLENESS.

A variation of statutory condition No. 22 of the Ontario Insurance Act, (R.S.O. 1897, c. 203, 2 Geo. V. c. 33, R.S.O. 1914, c. 183), on a policy of fire insurance by reducing the time for bringing action on the policy to 6 months next after the occurrence of loss, is unreasonable and void. [Strong v. Crown Fire Ins. Co., 10 D.L.R. 42, 4 O.W.N. 584, affirmed; Eckhardt v. Lancashire Ins. Co., 27 A.R. 373, 31 Can. S.C.R. 72, followed.]

A provision in a policy of insurance that the insurer shall not be liable for loss where it shall be found that the material statements set forth in the application upon which acceptance of the risk was based were untrue or, if the insured misrepresented or omitted to communicate any circumstances which were material to be known to the company in order to enable it to judge of the risk withdraws the effect of a warranty by the insured in the application that his answers therein are true and introduces materiality as an essential of the misrepresentation, which shall relieve the company from liability. [Anderson v. Fitzgerald, 4 H.L. Cas. 484, and Fitzrandolph v. Mutual Relief Society, 17 Can. S.C.R. 333, distinguished.] A misrepresentation of the value of a stallion must be wilful or fraudulent to avoid the policy covering the same, value being a matter of opinion.

THE POLICY OR CONTRACT — CONSTRUCTION OF POLICIES ON PROPERTY—COLLATERAL
INSURANCE—STATUTORY CONDITIONS.

Where a policy of fire insurance was issued to a bank on cotton warp in bales "their own or held by them in trust or on commission or sold but not delivered or in which they may have an interest or a liability" and such insurance was for an amount in excess of the bank's claim for advances to the owners of the goods, recovery cannot be had in respect of the excess over the bank's claim at the time of the loss by the parties beneficially entitled to the goods who held collateral policies of which no notice had been given to the insurance companies but who were not named in the policy as having an insurable interest.

British Columbia Hop Co. v. Fidelity Phoenix Fire Ins. Co., 20 D.L.R. 162, 20 B.C.R. 165, 29 W.L.R. 136, 6 W.W.R. 1539.

Anglo-American Fire Ins. Co. v. Hendry, 15 D.L.R. 832, 48 Can. S.C.R. 577, 50 C.L.J. 75.

CONTENTS OF BARN—SPECIAL CLAUSE.

An insurance company insured the plaintiff to the extent of $1,600 against fire in respect of the ordinary contents of a barn. The barn and contents were destroyed by fire, the loss being admitted to be $850. The company contended that, by reason of a term in the application for the insurance that "not more than two-thirds of the cash value of any building or personal property will be insured by this company," its liability was limited to two-thirds of the value of the property destroyed, the application forming part of the contract. The court held that it was unnecessary to consider whether the application was part of the contract or not. The policy insured against loss or damage to the extent of $1,600 to be estimated "according to the true and actual cash value of the property at the time the same shall happen." The assured having applied for $1,600 insurance and having by his application indicated his acceptance of the condition that the company would not insure more than two-thirds of the value, was entitled to rely on this condition and to treat the contract as based on the fact that the amount of insurance granted was within the two-thirds limit.

Where insured property is assigned without the written permission of the insurance company being endorsed on the policy, the policy becomes void under statutory condition 3 of the Ontario Insurance Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 183, s. 194.

SALE—DEFAULT OF PAYMENT—NULLITY OF SALE—INSURANCE—DEFAULT OF INSURANCE—LOSS OF TERM—C.C. ART. 1024, 1065, 1092.

An insurance policy taken on a house in favour of the vendor is a surety for the latter; and default of keeping it alive, is a diminution of sureties in the sense of art. 1092 C.C. The default of furnishing an agreed surety is equivalent to the diminution of surety mentioned in art. 1092 C.C. The stipulation in bill of sale, that in default of payment or in the fulfilling of other conditions of the sale, the sale shall become null, the sums paid shall be confiscated and the seller shall retake possession of the article sold, does not justify the application of art. 1092 C.C. which causes the debtor to lose the benefit of the term "if he has diminished the sureties which he had given by the contract to his creditors." The failure of the buyer to carry out the obligation which he has assumed towards his seller of insuring and keeping insured the house sold, for the benefit of the latter, does not cause the buyer to lose the benefit of the clause. A buyer of a vacant mill which he covenants to keep insured for the benefit of the seller cannot be considered to have diminished the sureties of the former and to have lost the benefit of the term if he fails in this obligation because no insurance company wished to accept the risk, seeing that the building was unoccupied.

FIRE POLICY — STATUTORY CONDITION 21 — FALSE STATEMENT IN DECLARATION — CLAIM DEFEATED.

(§ III D—66)—COMBINED STORE AND DWELLING—INSURED WHILE OCCUPIED AS A DWELLING—HOUSE UNOCCUPIED—LIABILITY OF COMPANY.

An insurance company issued separate policies insuring a number of houses, the policy in each case containing a clause insuring the building "while occupied by . . . as a dwelling." The houses were not completed or occupied at the time the insurance became operative. The court held that the word "by" should be deleted, and that while the insured may have been entitled to recover if loss had occurred before completion or occupation, that once the houses were occupied the condition attached and that subsequent vacancy suspended the insurance during the time of such vacancy, also that a building occupied as a combined store and dwelling was not occupied as a dwelling within the meaning of the above clause.

(§ III D—68)—MARINE—POSITIVE REPRESENTATION—WARRANTY—PROMISSORY REPRESENTATION—NOT INCLUDED IN WRITTEN CONTRACT—EFFECT.

In marine insurance law a positive representation, which in another transaction would amount to a warranty, is regarded as a promissory representation which may be relied upon notwithstanding that it was made by word of mouth and is not included in the written contract.

(§ III D—70)—OF POLICIES ON PERSONS.

In a policy of insurance stipulating for the payment to the insured's wife "should his death occur within the tontine period, thereof, otherwise to himself, his executors, administrators, or assigns, the sum of $1,000" and further providing that it was issued and accepted under the insurer's semi-tontine dividend plan upon special provisions incorporated in the policy and made a part thereof, one of which was that upon completion of the tontine period, if the policy had not been terminated previously by surrender, lapse or death, the legal holder thereof should have the option to withdraw in cash the accumulated reserve fixed by the policy at $465.70, and in addition thereto the surplus apportioned by the defendants to the policy, and the insured outliving the tontine period, he and his wife agreed to take such option and surrender the policy and accept its entire cash value of $642.70 and there was afterwards a disagreement as to the amount of the option, the insured and his wife were not entitled in an action on the policy to recover $1,000—the face value thereof—but their recovery would be limited to the amount of the option.

Fountain v. Canadian Guardian Life Ins. Co., 19 O.W.R. 273, 2 O.W.N. 1120.

(§ III D—71)—ACCIDENT POLICY—CONSTRUCTION.

A clause in an accident insurance policy, insuring against loss sustained while "riding as a passenger within the enclosed part of any public passenger conveyance provided for the exclusive use of passengers and propelled by steam, compressed air, gasoline, cable or electricity, or while riding as a passenger on board a steam or gasoline vessel licensed for the regular transportation of passengers, and such injuries shall be due directly to or in consequence of the wrecking of such car or vessel," does not include an accident while attempting to leave a passenger elevator in a privately owned building. It is from the words and the context not from punctuation that the sense must be collected.

(§ III D—73) — LIMITATION OF AGENT'S POWER TO MODIFY POLICY.

Where a policy of life insurance contains a provision to the effect that the agent has no power to modify the contract of insurance, or to bind the company by making any promises or by receiving any representation or information not contained in the application for the policy, a false representation by the agent to the insured made at the time of taking out the policy, even if it amounts to a promissory representation will not bind the insurance company.

Shaw v. Mutual Life Ins. Co., 7 D.L.R. 637, 46 Can. S.C.R. 606.

E. WARRANTIES; REPRESENTATIONS; CONDITIONS; DESCRIPTION.

(§ III E—75)—IN POLICIES ON PROPERTY.

A condition of an application for fire insurance to the effect that the applicant's covenant or agreement that certain statements were full and true expositions of all the facts and circumstances, so far as known to him, regarding the condition, situation, value and risk of the property to be insured, together with the diagram of the premises accompanying the application, should be held to constitute the basis of the company's liability, and form a part of and be a condition of the contract of insurance, is not binding on the applicant if not evidenced in the manner prescribed by ss. 169, 170, Ontario Insurance Act, R.S.O. 1897, c. 203. There is no misrepresentation or concealment by an applicant for a policy of fire insurance of the fact that the property was incumbered, where, without being aware that the application called for such disclosure, the applicant signed a blank application, which was filled out several days later by the agent of the insurance company, who, without the applicant's knowledge, wrote the word "none" after the clause relating to incumbrance, and placed a diagram of the premises on the application, since, under the circumstances, there was no intentional misstatement or concealment by the applicant.

Patterson v. Oxford Farmers Mutual Fire Ins. Co., 7 D.L.R. 369, 4 O.W.N. 140, 23 O.W.R. 122.

STATUTORY CONDITIONS — VARIATION — DESTRUCTION OF PROPERTY BY FOREST FIRES—REASONABLENESS.

A condition that a fire insurance company should not be answerable for loss occurring through forest fires, is a reasonable variation of the statutory conditions provided by the Uniform Conditions Act, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 114.

FALSE STATEMENT.

The language of an insurance policy must be read most strongly against the insurance company whose language it is; therefore, a stipulation in a policy of animal insurance that it shall be void if any circumstances shall not have been truly stated "by the assured" will be read as qualifying the statements contained in the application form to the effect that "any false statement annuls the policy," so that where the assured made full and true disclosure to the agent of everything about which he was asked, and signed the application form believing that the agent had correctly filled in his statement, he will not be bound by other statements which the agent had filled in fraudulently, and the company will by reason of the limitation of the condition to statements "by the assured" be prevented from setting up that the policy was void because of an untrue statement contained in the application inserted therein by the insurance agent without the assured being aware of it.

CONDITIONS—REASONABLENESS—NOTICE OF ILLNESS OF INSURED ANIMAL—TIME FOR GIVING.

A condition of a contract of insurance on an animal that notice of its illness should be given an insurance company within 24 hours, as applied to persons living in the country, is unreasonable, if the time for giving notice is stipulated to run from the moment the animal actually became ill, and not from the actual discovery of its illness.

FIRE INSURANCE—CONDITIONS—VALUE.

In the absence of fraud or of actual misrepresentation of value on the part of the insured, a policy of fire insurance to cover stock furniture and fixtures is not avoided for over-valuation of one of the items into which the risk was apportioned by the policy where the company knew the assured had signed the application in blank as regards the amounts to be placed upon each class of goods for the purpose of having the company make an inspection and itself apportion to each class the amount of risk to be carried, and where the company had apportioned the same upon their own agent's report and filled in the application accordingly.

MISREPRESENTATION — HEALTH — TUBERCULOSIS.

It is not a misrepresentation or breach of warranty by an assured that he was in "sound condition mentally and physically," merely because he once suffered with a tubercular affection of the lung which has healed up, no disease being apparent which could not have passed him as sound under any medical examination.

INCENDIARISM — MATERIALITY — NOTICE TO AGENT.

Apprehension of incendiarism is a material fact, and should be made known to the insurer. Notice of such fact to insurers' general agent is notice to the insurer, and a condition to the contrary in the policy of insurance is unreasonable and noneffective.

FOREST FIRE CONDITION.

A condition of a policy of fire insurance that the insurer should not be liable for loss caused by forest fires is just and reasonable.

ANIMAL INSURANCE—MISREPRESENTATIONS—IMMATERIALITY—ONTARIO INSURANCE ACT, R.S.O. 1914, c. 183, s. 156 (6)—"CASH."

DUTY TO DISCLOSE KNOWN FACTS.

The insured is not bound to state facts which the insurer is supposed, on account of their public character and notoriety, to know.

Lacombe v. Protection, 48 Que. S.C. 531.

QUEBEC FIRE POLICIES.

Although arts. 6870 et seq. R.S.Q. 1909, for establishing mutual fire insurance companies in rural municipalities, do not provide for the issue of a policy or other written instrument to evidence the contracts of insurance, such companies are subject to the provisions of art. 7028, and conditions of insurance imposed by by-laws or otherwise, that are not set out on a written instrument delivered to the assured, are not binding upon him.

Chicome v. Mutual Ins. Co. of Roxton, 44 Que. S.C. 100.

ENDOWMENT POLICIES — REPRESENTATION BY PERSON THROUGH WHOM CONTRACT EFFECTED — AMOUNTS OF RESERVE AND SURPLUS.

Shaw v. Mutual Life Ins. Co., 23 O.L.R. 559, 18 O.W.R. 925.

(§ III E—76)—CONCEALMENT.

The defence to an action on a policy of fire insurance of the concealment by and the failure of the applicant for the insurance to state in his application that he feared incendiarism fails where the only evidence on the question was that seven or eight years before a threat had been made to burn him out. The defence to an action on a policy of fire insurance of the nondisclosure by the plaintiff of the fact that the property to be insured was incumbered, rests upon the question whether the insurance company was prejudiced by such nondisclosure. The failure of an applicant for fire insurance to disclose to the insurance company all material circumstances pertaining to the property to be insured, even though the applicant is innocent of wrong intent, will vitiate the contract of insurance where the company has been prejudiced by such nondisclosure.

Patterson v. Oxford Farmers Mutual Fire Ins. Co., 7 D.L.R. 369, 4 O.W.N. 140, 23 O.W.R. 122.

A policy of insurance which contains a condition that the insurer shall not be liable for loss when it shall be found that the material statements set forth in the application upon which acceptance of the risk was based were untrue or if the insured misrepresented or omitted to communicate any circumstances which are material to be known to the insurer to enable it to judge of the risk it undertakes, is invalidated where the insured in answer to questions in the application for insurance on a stallion, replied that he had owned the stallion 3 months and that he had paid $2,000 for it, and where in answer to the next following question he gave the name of the original vendor from whom he had purchased same 2 weeks prior to the application at a price not exceeding $500, although the assured may be shown to have sold the stallion meanwhile for a large price and to have repurchased from the buyer (not mentioned in the application) at the price of $2,000. [Western Ass'ce Co. v. Harrison, 33 Can. S.C.R. 473, followed.] The length of time a person has owned a stallion and the price paid for same are material to the risk and any concealment or nondisclosure in connection therewith in an application for insurance on such stallion in which questions are put to the assured for the purpose of obtaining such information, will be sufficient to invalidate the policy. [Western Ins. Co. v. Harrison, 33 Can. S.C.R. 473, applied.]

Clarke v. British Empire Ins. Co. (No. 2), 6 D.L.R. 353, 5 A.L.R. 99, 22 W.L.R. 59, 2 W.W.R. 958, reversing 4 D.L.R. 444, 21 W.L.R. 774, 2 W.W.R. 682.

WARRANTY — CONCEALMENT — INSURING LIFE OF HORSE — REPRESENTATION OF PRICE PAID — EVASIVE AND INCORRECT ANSWER SUGGESTED BY AGENT.

Bastedo v. British Empire Ins. Co., 16 D.L.R. 244, 18 E.C.R. 377, 4 W.W.R. 905.

INSURANCE OF AN AUTOMOBILE — FALSE REPRESENTATION — FRAUDULENT CONCEALMENT — EXAGGERATED VALUE — PROOF — C.C., ARTS. 1203 2485, 2487, 2488.

There is no false representation or fraudulent concealment on the part of an owner who has insured his automobile in the following declaration: (a) the machine was kept in a private garage whereas at the time of the contract of insurance, it was temporarily in a public garage from whence it was brought some days later to the home of the insured; (b) the assured has declared that the automobile was paid for; whereas he had given, in buying it, 3 bills and had undertaken to pay off certain debts in connection with the auto. When the insurer alleges that the value of the thing has been exaggerated, he must prove it.

Desmarais v. London Guarantee & Accident Co., 25 Rev. Leg. 301.

(§ III E-78)—PREVIOUS FIRES — CONCEALMENT — MATERIALITY TO THE RISK — CONTINUANCE OF OLD RISK.

In a fire claim under a policy of fire insurance, where the insured in his application for the policy had answered in the negative, the question as to whether he had had a fire previously; and where it appeared that some years prior to the application he had a fire loss on other property, on which, however, the insurance was promptly adjusted and paid, and that the risk was continued by the insurer, such nondisclosure in the application was not, under the circumstances, material to the risk.

(§ III E-79)—FIRE INSURANCE — OVERVALUATION.

A fire insurance policy, whereby the insurer undertakes to pay to the assured nothing but the amount of the loss which he may suffer, notwithstanding the amount of the valuation thereof by the assured, is an open policy. A stipulation in the policy that false declarations on the part of the assured in his application for insurance (such declarations being of a nature which might prejudice the insurer), have the effect of annulling the contract, does not apply to an over-valuation by the assured of the thing insured.

Robillard v. Springfield Fire Ins. Co., 46 Que. S.C. 148.

(§ III E-80) — TITLE AND INCUMBRANCES.

A mortgagor of insured property is the sole and unconditional owner thereof within the meaning of a provision of a policy of insurance avoiding the same if the insured is not such owner. [Western Ass'ce Co. v. Temple, 31 Can. S.C.R. 373, affirming 35 N.B.R. 171, followed.] A transfer of insured property as security for a debt is a violation of provisions in the policy avoiding it if the subject of the insurance be personal property and be or become encumbered by a chattel mortgage or if any change take place in the title or interest of the property otherwise than by the insured's death.

MISREPRESENTATION AS TO TITLE.

A lessor's covenant to convey does not give the lessee such an interest in the land as will warrant his representation that he is owner of the property when applying for insurance; his answer to that effect on the application amounts to a material misrepresentation which voids the policy.

Daniels v. Acadia Fire Ins. Co., 35 D.L.R. 601, 51 N.S.R. 133.

CONDITION — TITLE TO PROPERTY — NOTICE BY INSURER — NECESSITY.

A condition avoiding a policy of insurance if the insured is not the owner of the insured property unless his interest is stated on or in the policy, will not invalidate an insurance placed by a partnership, under an oral application, without being called on to disclose its interest, on a building owned by a member of the firm who gave the use of the building to the copartnership in consideration of keeping it insured, at least where the insurer has not given notice pointing out the difference between the application and the policy in the manner required by condition 2 of c. 113, N.W.T. Ordinances, Alberta 1911.

AS TO OWNERSHIP—MATERIALITY.

Notwithstanding the condition in an insurance policy that "any fraud or false statement in a statutory declaration shall vitiate the claim," a representation or statutory declaration by the assured that he was the owner of the property, whereas, in fact, the property was purchased with the funds of the assured's brother but intended for the assured, does not materially affect the risk as vitiating the policy on that account.

Canadian Credit Men's Assn. v. Stuyvesant Ins. Co., 26 D.L.R. 314, 26 Man. L.R. 226.

LIVE STOCK INSURANCE — STATUTORY CONTRACT — STATUTORY CONDITIONS — AGENT — ANSWERS IN APPLICATION FOR POLICY — INSURANCE ACT, s. 193 — VARIATION OF CONDITIONS — "NOT JUST AND REASONABLE" — OWNERSHIP — PROOFS OF LOSS — VALUE OF ANIMAL INSURED — DEDUCTION FROM AMOUNT INSURED.

Scharf v. General Animals Ins. Co., 8 O.W.N. 420.

(§ III E—81) — PREMISES INSURED ADJUDGED TO SURVIVING PARTNER UNDER LICITATION PROCEEDINGS.

The adjudication of property under licitation proceedings is not an alienation that annuls the insurance of it under art. 5307, R.S.Q. 1888.

Robert v. Equitable Mutual Ass'ce Company, 39 Que. S.C. 321.

(§ III E—82)—MORTGAGES.

Where a defence had not been brought within the rule of art. 2487 C.C. (Que.) and that the judgment of the Superior Court against the insurer should not be reversed.

Phoenix Ass'ce Co. v. Morin, 18 Rev. de Jur. 94.

(§ III E—85)—CONDITIONS — "JUST AND REASONABLE"—OCCUPANCY.

A condition in a policy vitiating it if the insured premises becomes vacant or unoccupied, contemplates vacancy or desertion of the building in its ordinary undestroyed condition, and not after it had been rendered untenable and unfit for occupation by fire; otherwise the condition is neither just nor reasonable under s. 72 of the Alberta Insurance Act.

FIRE POLICY — CHANGE MATERIAL TO THE RISK—POOL ROOM AND RESTAURANT.

Morton v. Anglo-American Fire Ins. Co., 19 O.W.R. 870, 2 O.W.N. 1470.

(§ III E—87)—In a contract of fire insurance on a building described in the policy as being "in the course of construction," where the work on the building has been suspended, and owing to financial embarrassment it remained in an incomplete state until destroyed by fire, the term "in course of construction" is ambiguous and must be interpreted not as a question of law but of fact in view of all the circumstances, including what passed between and was within the knowledge of the contracting parties. Under a contract of fire insurance on a building, described in the policy as being "in course of construction," where the work on the building had been suspended, and it remained in an incomplete state until destroyed by fire, the risk remains in force, it being clear that the term "in course of construction" does not mean that construction must be continued from day to day or month to month without interruption but is to be construed in the light of such contingencies as weather, conditions of trade and labour, and inevitable accident, and even financial embarrassment. [Dodge v. York Fire Ins. Co., 4 D.L.R. 465 (a), 2 O.W.N. 571, 18 O.W.R. 241, since affirmed by the Supreme Court of Canada, followed.]

VACANCY.

An insurance policy contained a condition that "this policy will not cover vacant or unoccupied premises . . . and if the premises insured shall become vacant or unoccupied . . . this policy shall cease and be void unless the company shall by indorsement on the policy allow the policy to be continued":—Held, that these were just and reasonable conditions.

Hall Mining & Smelting Co. v. Connecticut Fire Ins. Co., 14 D.L.R. 400, 18 B.C.R. 113.

FIRE INSURANCE — POLICY DESCRIBING AS "OCCUPIED" — FAILURE TO NOTIFY OF VACANCY ON RENEWAL.

Cox v. Phoenix Ins. Co., 20 D.L.R. 980, 23 Que. K.B. 530.

FIRE — STATUTORY CONDITIONS — VACANCY CLAUSE — VARIATION.

That the fire insurance company shall not be answerable if insured premises should become vacant or unoccupied is a reasonable condition to be inserted in a policy as a variation of the statutory conditions under the Uniform Conditions Act, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 114, and such condition is therefore valid if printed in conformity with that act.

VACANCY OF BUILDING — MATERIALITY — PROOF OF LOSS—DELAY.

The vacancy and nonoccupancy of a building insured against fire, without the consent or the knowledge of the insurer is material to the risk and renders the policy void. Where a policy requires that the insured must furnish proof of loss within 60 days after the fire, in the manner and form therein provided, the compliance with these provisions of the policy is a condition precedent to the right of action to recover the loss.

Anderson v. Norwich Fire Ins. Soc., 53 Que. S.C. 409.

(§ III E—91)—FIRE INSURANCE ON GOODS —CHANGE OF LOCATION.

Antedating a consent to a transfer, of a fire insurance policy covering a stock of goods on their removal from one warehouse to another, will not operate to bind the insurance company, when obtained after the fire, but without disclosing the fact, in the knowledge of the insured but not known to the insurance company, that the fire had already occurred.

CHANGE OF LOCATION — NOTICE — KNOWLEDGE OF AGENT—ESTOPPEL.

In an action to recover a loss on a stock of merchandise the defendant company refused to pay more than its pro rata proportion of the total insurance which had been effected on the property, including 4 policies effected by companies that refused to contribute on the ground that such policies had been avoided by a change of the location of the goods insured, to which change they had not assented, and of which they had had no notice. Held, that a change of the location of a stock of merchandise insured under policies which assume the risk only when contained in a specified building from the building specified to another avoids the policy absolutely. Such a stipulation is part of and of the essence of the contract, and is not a condition limiting the liability of the company assuring, which is not binding unless set forth in the policy in the manner required by the Insurance Act. The fact that the agent of the companies claiming their policies were avoided by the change of location was aware of the change of location, and that another agent, not having authority to consent to the change, took the policies from the assured with the intention of having the consent of the assurers to the change indorsed thereon, but neglected to do so, will not operate as an estoppel against the assurers claiming that the risk had been avoided.

Arnold v. British Colonial Fire Ins. Co., 45 N.B.R. 285.

(§ III E—92)—STATUTORY CONDITIONS.

Fire insurance is subject, in Quebec, to certain statutory conditions, and it is required that they shall be endorsed upon policies. Every application for insurance is, therefore, impliedly subject to such conditions, except as varied by the parties under conditions which permit such variation, and noted upon the policy. It is not necessary for the insurer to notify the insured of any particular in which the policy differs from the application.

Laforest v. Factories Ins. Co., 30 D.L.R. 265, 53 Can. S.C.R. 296, affirming 24 Que. K.B. 543.

PROHIBITED KEEPING OF GASOLINE—DISTANCE —MATERIALITY.

Keeping a barrel of gasoline, about 16 feet from the building, is not a breach of condition in a fire insurance policy that the policy shall become void if more than 5 gallons of gasoline were "kept and stored" at one time in the building containing the insured goods; nor is it a circumstance material to the risk, nondisclosure of which would avoid the policy, where the insurance company at the time of issuing the policy had knowledge of the circumstances and the gasoline so stored is required for daily use.

(§ III E-100)—CONCURRENT INSURANCE
—NOTICE AFTER PLACING SECOND POLICY.

Notice that additional insurance has been placed on insured property is a sufficient compliance with a condition of another policy that notice should be given of the insured's intention or desire of effecting further insurance.

OTHER INSURANCE—ASSENT.

The insurer's assent to subsequent insurance may be inferred from knowledge and a course of conduct.

Moran v. North Empire Fire Ins. Co., 33 D.L.R. 461, 10 A.L.R. 339, [1917] 1 W.W.R. 1192.

PREVIOUS FIRES.

A question in an application for insurance as to whether the insured ever had any property destroyed by fire is material to the risk, misrepresentation of which vitiates the policy. [Western Ass'ce Co. v. Harrison, 33 Can. S.C.R. 473, reversing 35 N.S.R. 488, followed.]

Wilton v. Occidental Fire Ins. Co., 35 D.L.R. 267, 11 A.L.R. 581, [1917] 2 W.W.R. 787.

ADDITIONAL INSURANCE—CONSOLIDATION OF STOCK.

Where goods contained in 2 separate buildings are insured in 2 different companies, the consolidation of the 2 stocks into one stock does not effect additional insurance within the meaning of the Ontario Insurance Act, R.S.O., 1914, c. 183, s. 194 (5).

Rogers v. General Accident Fire and Life Ass'ce Co.; Rogers v. Mercantile Fire Ins. Co., 42 D.L.R. 656, 42 O.L.R. 419, affirming 13 O.W.N. 175.

80 PER CENT CLAUSE — COMPROMISE OF CLAIM.

A clause in a fire insurance policy permitting further concurrent insurance up to 80 per cent of the cash value, means that the insured is not entitled to recover upon all the policies together more than 80 per cent of the total value of the goods insured as that value stands at the time of the fire.

OTHER CONCURRENT INSURANCE — ADDITIONAL INSURANCE EFFECTED WITH FOREIGN COMPANIES — NONDISCLOSURE OF SUCH ADDITIONAL INSURANCE TO PLAINTIFF — AMOUNT OF POLICY PAID OVER BY PLAINTIFF — ACTION TO RECOVER MONEY BACK.

Pacific Coast Ins. Co. v. Hicks, 13 E.L.R. 194.

PRIOR INSURANCE — STATUTORY CONDITIONS.

The declaration made by the insured of prior insurance and its mention in the policy do not constitute a guarantee that the assured will maintain in force this first policy, and he may discontinue it without losing his rights against the second insurance company. Under R.S.Q. 1909, arts. 7034-8, a company which has already insured property is not liable for its loss by fire if subsequent insurance has been effected upon the property with another company, unless the former company has agreed thereto, or does not within 2 weeks from the receipt of a notice in writing of the wish of the insured to affect the subsequent insurance, refuse its consent in writing, or does not after the 2 weeks but before the subsequent insurance is effected refuse its consent in writing. Articles 7034-8, are deemed to form part of every insurance policy, and every derogation from these conditions is subject to the conditions of art. 7035, otherwise it is void as against the insured under art. 7036.

Siegler v. Provincial Fire Ins. Co., 47 Que. S.C. 497.

(§ III E-110)—AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENTS—SAND ON ROAD.

A pile of sand on the roadway is not part of the road-bed and is not within the exceptions contained in an accident insurance policy, insuring an automobile but excluding all loss or damage caused by "striking any portion of the road-bed or by striking the rails or ties of any street, steam or electric railway."

Collins v. Canadian Casualty Co., 40 D.L.R. 133, 25 B.C.R. 401, [1918] 2 W.W.R. 763.

UNTRUE STATEMENTS BY APPLICANT — MATERIALITY—AVOIDANCE OF POLICY.

Byrick v. Catholic Order of Foresters, 9 O.W.N. 334.

MEDICAL REPORT IN LIFE INSURANCE.

Answers to questions on the back of an application for life insurance, under the heading, "Questions to be asked by the Medical Inspector," written by such inspector, and not signed by the applicant, are not answers by the latter, and cannot be set up against him by the insurer, as false representations, in avoidance of the insurance.

Fernand v. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co., 44 Que. S.C. 117.

(§ III E-111)—FALSE ANSWERS OR CONCEALMENT.

A husband, beneficiary in a policy of insurance upon the life of his wife, is a party to and affected by her misrepresentation and concealment of the fact where he knew that at the time she made application for such insurance she was suffering from consumption, and had been informed by a physician that she could live but a short time, and in spite of such knowledge that she was so affected, he took her to the agent of the insurance company and himself paid the premium for the insurance which he knew was being made for his benefit and mitted to disclose those facts to the company.

Sirano v. Mutual Life Ass'ce Co., 5 D.L.R. 719, 3 O.W.N. 1372, 22 O.W.R. 311.

(§ III E—112) — UNDERTAKING TO HAVE POLICY READY AT A CERTAIN TIME — AGENT STAYING HAND OF COMPANY — POLICY NOT READY—LIABILITY FOR PREMIUM.

An insurance agent who undertakes to have an insurance policy ready at a certain date, and, by an unauthorized departure from the terms of the application, stays the hand of the insurance company so that the contract is not concluded or the policy issued until after the date agreed upon, cannot recover the insurance premium from the insured.

(§ III E—115)—HEALTH AND HABITS.

Where an applicant for insurance declared in his medical examination that each of his answers to the questions therein was, to the best of his knowledge, information and belief, complete and true, and was a continuation of and formed a part of his application for insurance, and the application itself contained the statement that the applicant was, to the best of his information, knowledge and belief, in good health and that such statements and the statements made or to be made to the insurer's examining physician should form the basis of the contract of insurance, and if there was therein any untruth or suppression of facts material to the contract, the policy should be void, such statements were no more than statements founded on knowledge, information and belief, and were not absolutely and unqualifiedly warranted to be true, and, unless it could be found that the applicant knowingly misstated the facts and induced the issue of the policy on such facts, as stated, the insurer should not be exonerated from liability under it. [Confederation Life v. Miller, 14 Can. S.C.R. 330, followed.] Where an applicant for insurance disclosed to the insurer's agent that he had been just prior to the making of the application under medical treatment and the agent communicated this to the insurer's medical examiner, and the latter admitted that he discussed that illness with the applicant at the time of his examination and that it was his own omission and not that of the applicant, that the answer to the question was not correctly written down, there was no intentional concealment or suppression of the fact of the recent medical treatment on the part of the applicant sufficient to avoid the policy. In the medical examination part of an application for a policy of life insurance, where it is the duty of the medical examiner to insert the applicant's answers properly and where he thought he had done so, the error (if any) of that officer is to be attributed to the insurer and not to the assured. [Biggar v. Rock Life, [1902] 1 K.B. 516, distinguished.] And where the applicant gave a negative answer to a question appearing therein, in the following form: "Have you now, or have you ever had any disease or disorder of the heart or blood vessels? Atheroma, palpitation of the heart, varicose veins, etc., aneurism," and the medical examiner failed to explain the meaning of the technical terms therein, and nothing appeared in the evidence to shew that the applicant knew that he had any of the diseases or disorders referred to in the question, such answer was an innocent misstatement not avoiding the policy, even though it was untrue at the time it was made.

Answers by an applicant for insurance to questions on her medical examination, which the application declared to form the basis of the contract, so that any untruth or suppression of material facts therein would avoid the policy, in which answers the applicant stated that she had had pneumonia about a year before; that she had fully recovered therefrom, that she had had occasional mild attacks of bronchitis, and that she had recently consulted a physician because of a cold, when in fact she was aware that she was then suffering from tuberculosis, and had been informed by such physician that she could live but a short time, were sufficient misrepresentations and suppressions of material facts of which the company should have been informed, to avoid the policy.

Sirano v. Mutual Life Ass'ce Co., 5 D.L.R. 719, 3 O.W.N. 1372, 22 O.W.R. 311.

HEALTH AND HABITS.

Concealment or false declarations in an application for a life insurance policy only avoids the contract resulting therefrom if they are of a character to materially affect the risk. The applicant who, to the question "what quantity do you drink, daily, of liquors, malt liquor, wine, spirits?" replies, "none, none, none," when he is not in the habit of taking any of them every day and sometimes takes nothing for 6 months is not guilty of concealment or of a false declaration. The answer "no" to the question, "Have you ever had any serious illness? Have you ever suffered from gonorrhoea?" When the applicant had sustained an attack of the latter is not a concealment or a false declaration if the evidence shews (1) that the applicant did not know the meaning of the word gonorrhoea, and (2) that the attack which he had had did not result in any serious consequences, and had in no way affected his health.

Prudential Ins. Co. v. Carrier, 43 Que. S.C. 97.

REPRESENTATIONS AS TO HEALTH—CONCEALMENT.

In a contract for life insurance, the expression "sound health" contained in the policy should not be interpreted as meaning "perfect health." If an applicant for insurance states that he has already undergone an operation on the throat for a malady "of the nature of which he is ignorant," he is not thereby guilty of concealment and his declaration is sufficient. A clause in the insurance contract, stipulating that the policy would be void if the insured had been previously treated by a physician for a serious malady, will not make the contract void in such case if there has been on the part of the insured neither false representations nor fraudulent concealment.

Fernand v. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co., 47 Que. S.C. 520.

LIFE INSURANCE — MISREPRESENTATION AS TO HEALTH—CONCEALMENT.

The insured, suffering from gout, which he does not declare when specially questioned, conceals a material fact of nature to diminish the appreciation of the risk; but if, after consulting his medical adviser, he has doubt about his disease, and answers: "Some rheumatism years ago," it is not fraudulent misrepresentation nor concealment; and the verdict by the jury declaring that the answers of the deceased insured were true and sincere should not be disturbed.

Security Life Ins. Co. v. Power, 24 Que. K.B. 181.

ACCIDENT INSURANCE — MISREPRESENTATION AS TO STATE OF HEALTH — KNOWLEDGE OF AGENT — VIATION OF POLICY.

The plaintiff signed an application for accident insurance in the defendant company, and therein represented and warranted that he was never ruptured. As a matter of fact, he had been ruptured, and the matter was discussed between him and the company's soliciting agent at the time he signed the application, and the statement was deliberately made, by the agent's advice. The policy issued, and the claimant made a claim for indemnity in respect of an accident resulting in a rupture:—Held, upon the evidence, that the plaintiff had a congenital hernia, and that the accident simply manifested it. And:—held, that the plaintiff had made a material false representation which vitiated the policy, and he was not entitled to recover upon his claim for indemnity. The agent could not be regarded as the company's agent when joining with the plaintiff in concealing a material fact affecting the rate of insurance.

Leonard v. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co., 44 N.S.R. 420.

(§ III E—120) — ACCIDENT — MISSTATEMENT OF OCCUPATION OF INSURED BY AGENT OF COMPANY — PREFERRED CLASS — TIMBER CRUISER OR SUPERINTENDENT.

A business manager of a lumber firm, whose duties involve occasional traveling to make inspection of logs about to be purchased, but whose duties in that regard are not of the continuous and practical nature of an experienced lumberman, is not a "timber cruiser" nor an "inspector in woods" nor a "proprietor or manager superintending in woods" within a clause of an accident insurance policy excluding the named occupations from the benefits of the preferred class of rating under which he took out his insurance on a selection made by the agent with full knowledge of the facts.

Kinman v. Ocean Accident & Guarantee Assn., 12 D.L.R. 364, 2 W.V.R. 630.

A condition of a contract of life insurance that it shall be void if, within 2 years from the date of the contract, the insured shall, without a permit, engage in the employment of a railway, is reasonable and valid.

Smith v. Excelsior Life Ins. Co., 4 D.L.R. R. 99, 3 O.W.N. 1521, 22 O.W.R. 863.

(§ III E—125) — OTHER INSURANCE—PREVIOUS APPLICATION.

Statements made by an insured that no proposal to insure her life has ever been declined and that she held no other assurances on her life, whereas, in point of fact, she had been refused a policy in a certain amount because she was a marksman, but that instead, an industrial policy for a small amount had been informally issued to her without a medical examination, are not misrepresentations materially affecting the risk.

F. FORFEITURE.

(§ III F—145)—LIFE — LAPSE OF POLICY BY NONPAYMENT OF PREMIUM — EVIDENCE OF REVIVAL — ACCEPTANCE BY AGENT OF PREMIUM AFTER LAPSE — TERMS OF POLICY.

NONPAYMENT OF PREMIUM — PAYMASTER'S ORDER — NOTICE — ESTOPPEL.

Where a premium is made payable out of the wages of the insured, by an order on a paymaster, and there is sufficient wages earned to pay the premium, failure by the insurance company to give the usual notice that it held such order, or to present it for payment in due time, or to notify the insured of its intention to look directly to him for payment, if it had that right, will estop it from insisting upon a forfeiture of the policy for nonpayment of the premium.

NONPAYMENT OF PREMIUMS OR ASSESSMENTS.

A policy of life insurance contained this condition: "This policy shall not take effect until same be delivered and the first premium shall have been paid thereon during the life and continued good health of the assured." It appeared that the policy was delivered during the lifetime and good health of the assured, but that with regard to the payment of premium the evidence was that during the assured's good health the money for the premium was in his bank and the assurance company's agents were instructed to make a draft for the amount of the premium and some expenses of a loan which the assured was obtaining, but the agents delayed making the draft and in the meantime the assured developed the disease of which he died:—Held, that, under the circumstances, the payment was in fact made and the company was liable.

Miner v. Excelsior Life Ass'ce Co., 3 A.L.R. 249.

A correspondence for the revival of life insurance lapsed for nonpayment of premiums, carried on between the insurers and the insured, in which the former make it clear that they will only agree to the revival upon a cash payment of a specified sum, this condition being accepted by the insured, cannot, of itself, operate as a revival. If, therefore, the insured dies before he has made the payment, his representatives cannot recover on the policies. Nor does it matter that, at the time of his death, he had applied for, and was in the expectation of receiving, assistance from the insurer, in the shape of a loan, to make the stipulated payment.

Hewitt v. Grand Orange Lodge of British America, 16 D.L.R. 877, 6 O.W.N. 16, 25 O.W.R. 899.

MUTUAL ASSESSMENTS—NOTICE.

When the by-laws of a mutual assurance company provide that the contributions due from the members will be payable by means of written notices served on the members personally, or sent by mail to the address of each, and that a member in default 30 days from the transmission of the notice will be deprived of his benefits, the company cannot invoke this forfeiture nor procure a declaration of it by setting up a custom contrary to the provisions of the by-law in respect of the transmission of the notice, unless it establishes that the member in default has actually received notice of the contributions nonpayment of which is alleged against him.

Parent v. Federal Assn. of Letter Carriers, 51 Que. S.C. 426.

MUTUAL BENEFIT ASSESSMENTS — DELAY—ACCEPTANCE.

A mutual aid society accepting payments of assessments from its members after they have become due, contrary to its regulations, cannot invoke these regulations in order to escape payment of a deceased member's insurance on the pretext that the payment of the latter's assessment had been made too late.

Canada-American Assn. v. Turmel, 26 Que. K.B. 33.

Where the regulations of a mutual insurance society provide that a member in default in paying his assessments at maturity will be suspended and that such suspension will result in a forfeiture of all his benefits, a mere default in payment does not operate as a forfeiture, but it is necessary that the suspension of the member be formally decreed by the association or by an officer appointed for the purpose.

Union St. Joseph v. Houde, 26 Que. K.B. 147.

G. REINSTATEMENT.

(§ III G—150) — TERMS — "INSURABILITY."

A condition in a life insurance policy that the risk shall cease if any premiums after the first shall not be paid, but that it may be reinstated upon payment of arrears and proof of insurability, entitles the insured to reinstatement at the original rate, not on changed terms.

(§ III H—155)—DELIVERY OF POLICY.

In an action by agents of an insurance company to recover a premium on a policy of accident insurance which the defendant had contracted for before embarking on an ocean steamer, held, that as the terms of the defendant's application had not been observed, he had stipulated, inter alia, that the policy should be delivered to him before he sailed; it was in fact not written until after he left; although then antedated, the defendant was not liable.

Brown's Travel Bureau v. Taylor, 44 D. L.R. 204, 26 B.C.R. 82, [1918] 3 W.W.R. 468.

Where by the terms of a policy of life insurance the balance of the whole year's premium was to be deducted on making settlement of the claim the deferred half-yearly payment of premium which had not accrued due during the lifetime of the assured is not a debt of his estate, and the loss through the deduction thereof from the face of the policy falls upon the beneficiary in whose favour a statutory appointment operating as a declaration of trust had been made in the lifetime of the assured.

NONPAYMENT OF—FORFEITURE OF POLICY.

The defence that a promissory note, made by the assured and not paid at maturity, was "given for any premium or part thereof" within the meaning of another clause in the policy, although it was in fact made in part renewal of an earlier note which was given in part payment of a premium, will bar recovery on the policy and need not be pleaded specially. Devitt v. Mutual Life Ins. Co., 22 D.L.R. 183, 33 O.L.R. 473, reversing 33 O.L.R. 68.

MORTGAGE CLAUSE.

The Scottish Canadian Canning Co. took out an insurance policy on their plant in which a clause was inserted making it payable in case of loss to the defendant who held a mortgage on the plant. When issued the policy was delivered to the mortgagee. The insurance company took a note from the Scottish Canadian Canning Co. for the premium, and the note not being paid at maturity the insurance company cancelled the policy and sued the mortgagee for the earned premium. Held, appeal that as there was no privity of contract between the insurance company and the mortgagee, the mortgagee could not be held liable for the premium.

National Fire Ins. Co. v. Emerson, 22 B.C.R. 349.

LIABILITY ON PREMIUM NOTE.

When a person wishes to insure his property in a mutual insurance company at a fixed premium, and clearly states his wishes on the matter, but upon the false representations of an agent signs a note for the deposit and accepts the mutual policy without reading it, he is guilty of negligence; but there has been no contract between the parties, and he is not bound as against the company in such a way that the latter can impose upon him payment of any portion of his note. In a contract for mutual insurance the company cannot sue for payment on a note for a deposit except for losses and expenses incurred by it after the note was signed and after the maker became a member of the company. It is for the latter in the first place to establish these facts.

Meunier v. Laprès, 47 Que. S.C. 470.

Assessments on a deposit note given by a member of a mutual fire insurance company not being a promise to pay the sum for which it is made but only according a basis on which assessments may be declared and levied, as provided by arts. 7016, 7017, R.S.Q. 1909, it can only be declared and levied to meet losses or expenditure incurred during the currency of the policy for which it was given.

Clément v. Rhéaume, 44 Que. S.C. 233.

The forfeiture of the right to indemnity for default in payment of assessments made against deposit notes, pronounced against the insured in a mutual insurance company pursuant to the provisions of art. 7022 of R.S.Q. 1909, is absolute and the directors and officials of the company have no power to renounce it by a general by-law or by a special agreement in a particular case.

would not be in default to pay unless called upon at his domicile, applies to policies issued by benevolent societies as well as to those of old line insurance companies, though the insured in such society are themselves insurers and the debtors in a sense themselves the creditors.

A. ASSIGNMENT GENERALLY.

(§ IV A—160) — ASSIGNMENT — SALE OF ISSUED CHATTEL—BENEFIT OF INSURANCE—RIGHT OF PURCHASER.

The consent of an insurance company to the continuance of a contract of insurance for $3,000 on a horse after its sale for $1,500, for the full amount of the policy, which provided that, on a loss only two-thirds of the animal's actual value would be paid, is not shewn by a letter from the general agent of the company to the purchaser to the effect that the latter's interest in the insurance was being held fully covered, subject to one-third deduction from the market value of the animal; where the agent supposed that the purchaser intended taking out a new policy for the sum properly insurable.

TRANSFER OF POLICY—MARRIAGE SETTLEMENT—COLLATERAL SECURITY.

An assignment of life insurance policies by way of a registered marriage settlement unaccompanied by delivery and without any notice thereof to the insurance company, will not prevail over a subsequent valid transfer of the policies as collateral security to a bank.

TO MORTGAGEE—"ABSOLUTE ASSIGNMENT"—RIGHT TO SUE.

An assignment of a policy to a mortgagee of the insured property, absolute on its face, though in fact given by way of security for the mortgage debt, is an "absolute assignment," not a charge within the meaning of the Judicature Ordinance, and the assignor has no further right to sue thereon.

LIFE INSURANCE—58 VICT. c. 25—DECLARATION BY HUSBAND OF ENDOWMENT POLICY IN WIFE'S FAVOR—EFFECT OF SUBSEQUENT INSOLVENCY—FRAUD.

Where the insured declares a policy of life insurance to be for the benefit of his wife under 58 Vict., c. 25, the trust thereby created is not invalidated by the subsequent insolvency of the husband, and creditors of the insured have no rights which would interfere with the rights of such wife even though the endowment policy matures during the life of the insured. Semble:—Such a declaration is valid even though the insured be insolvent at the time of making it.

Bank of B.N.A. v. Edgecombe, 46 N.B.R. 105.

MUTUAL AID SOCIETY — BENEFICIARIES — RELATIONSHIP—BY-LAW AGAINST BENEFITS BY WILL.

When the constitution of a mutual aid society only admits blood relations to the benefit of its dotations, the conferring of a certificate of dotation on a nephew by marriage (whom the assured falsely declared to be his sister's son) is illegal and void. A member of a society cannot confer, by will, his dotation in a Mutual Aid Society if the society's by-laws expressly prohibit it. Such prohibition does not constitute a violation of the liberty of the testator, and is not at all contrary to public order.

Dalziel v. L'Ordre des Forestiers Catholiques, 53 Que. S.C. 308.

HUSBAND AND WIFE — FORMALITIES OF TRANSFER.

The transfer by a husband of a policy of insurance in favour of his wife, should be made by a declaration endorsed on the back of the policy itself or annexed to it, and a duplicate of the declaration should be delivered to the insurance company, and a memorandum thereof endorsed by the company on the policy or the declaration.

If these formalities are not observed the transfer or application is without effect, and does not bind the company.

Banque d'Hochelega v. Galibert, 24 Rev. Leg. 479.

DONATION BY MARRIAGE CONTRACT—REGISTRATION—SERVICE.

The registration of a deed of donation, made to the wife by marriage contract, does not replace the service required by art. 1571, C.C. (Que.), when the object of the donation is a claim. Thus, a creditor, to whom an insurance policy has been transferred for consideration and who has had his transfer served, may claim the amount of the insurance to the exclusion of the insured's widow, who had received the donation of that sum in her marriage contract, which was registered, without any service being made on the insurance company.

EFFECT OF GARNISHMENT.

Under arts. 7377, etc., R.S.Q. 1909, a husband may appropriate an insurance policy on his own life for the benefit of his wife, but he cannot do so, previously, an attachment by garnishment has been made on the policy by his creditors.

Shorey v. Dolloff, 33 D.L.R. 118, 25 Que. K.B. 482, reversing 22 Rev. Leg. 7.

BY "WRITING"—WILL.

An insurance effected by a ratepayer with a mutual company established as above stated, is transferable to a third party who may not be a ratepayer himself.

Chicoine v. Mutual Ins. Co. of Roxton, 44 Que. S.C. 100.

(§ IV A—162)—OF WIFE—INTEREST.

Where the benefits of a life insurance policy have been settled upon the wife of the assured by a written appointment in her favour having the statutory effect of a declaration of trust for her separate use, a subsequent charge or mortgage of the policy made by the husband and wife jointly but solely for the husband's benefit is a debt of the assured which the wife is entitled to have satisfied out of his general estate so as to free the policy from such mortgage or charge. [Hall v. Hall, [1911] 1 Ch. 487, applied.] Where the insured in a life insurance policy assigned the same to secure the payment of his debt on the security of the policy, and his wife who had been named as the beneficiary in the policy joined with him in executing the assignment and in signing the charge or lien, such charge when made solely for the benefit of the insured is payable primarily out of his estate so as to free the insurance policy in favour of the wife as between herself and the estate where the designation of the wife as beneficiary on the face of the policy is by statute (R.S. M. 1902, c. 83 and R.S.O. 1897, c. 203), declared the creation of a trust for her separate use free from the debts of his estate.

(§ IV A—166)—RIGHT OF ASSIGNEE.

The assignee for creditors of the assured is entitled to maintain a joint action with the beneficiary to whom the loss is made payable by the policy, for the moneys payable under a fire insurance policy placed by the insolvent debtor upon his goods, notwithstanding that the transfer of the policy has not been consented to by the insurers.

Strong v. Crown Fire Ins. Co., 1 D.L.R. 111, 3 O.W.N. 481, 20 O.W.R. 901. [See 4 D.L.R. 224, 3 O.W.N. 1534, 22 O.W.R. 734.]

B. CHANGE OF BENEFICIARY.

(§ IV B—170)—Where an attempt is made to change the beneficiary of a policy of life insurance by a declaration in the will of the insured, which is ineffective to make such change under the law as it stands at the date of the death of the testator, an act which comes into force subsequent to his death cannot be invoked to validate the declaration. Where policies on the life of the assured are made payable to his widow, her interest becomes vested at the death of the assured, subject to any declaration in the will or elsewhere sufficient to effect a change.

Re Stewart Estate, 8 D.L.R. 165, 4 O.W.N. 293, 23 O.W.R. 343.

ENDOWMENT POLICY—CHANGE OF BENEFICIARY—ONTARIO INSURANCE ACT (R.S.O. 1914, c. 183).

An endowment policy differs from a policy payable at death. The assured after maturity but before actual payment has a right to change the beneficiary but not to alter or divert the benefit of any beneficiary for value, nor the benefit of a preferred beneficiary to a person not of that class. The naming of a beneficiary under such a policy, if it creates a trust in favour of that beneficiary, creates only a trust in the event of death; and is subject to the right of alteration by the assured as set out in the Ontario Insurance Act (R.S.O. 1914, c. 183, s. 171.)

Re Sun Life Ass'ce Co. & McLean, 48 D.L.R. 652.

In the absence of agreement to make one the beneficiary, the insured is in no sense a trustee for the beneficiary from time to time named in a policy of insurance containing a clause giving power to the assured to change the beneficiary named. Where an insured by virtue of the rights accruing to him under an insurance policy changes the beneficiary, this is a gift inter vivos and not a testamentary disposition. [Fulton v. Andrew, L.R. 7 H. L. 448, distinguished.] A daughter being neither trustee, guardian nor agent for her father, who lived with her, at and for some time prior to his death, whom the father, while so living with her, makes sole beneficiary of the moneys payable under a policy of insurance issued on his life, is not bound to supply her father with independent legal advice at the time he nominates her as sole beneficiary under the policy, the father being at the time compos mentis and there being an entire absence of fraud or undue influence.

Where the insured, in a life insurance policy originally made payable to his personal representatives, endorses on the policy a declaration that the policy and the insurance thereunder should remain payable as in the policy mentioned, subject to alteration during his lifetime, but, if not "assigned or otherwise disposed of," that on his death, if his wife survived him, the policy should be for her benefit, such declaration is not sufficiently positive or unconditional to operate as a declaration of trust in favour of the wife or to confer upon her the benefits of the policy as her separate estate under the Manitoba Life Insurance Act, R.S.M. 1902, c. 83. [As to statutory appointments of beneficiaries of life insurance policies, see Mr. Labatt's article in 36 C.L.J. 249 and Cameron on Insurance, pp. 121, 214.] While the appointment of an insurance policy made in favour of the wife of the assured under the Manitoba Life Insurance Act may, by s. 15 thereof, be revoked and the benefits declared in favour of the wife may by a writing be diverted to the estate of the assured, the writing must indicate in clear and conclusive language the intention of the assured to alter the appointment first made in her favour. In order to create a trust in favour of the wife of the assured, the statutory appointment of the benefits of a life insurance policy which under the Manitoba Insurance Act (similar to s. 159 (1) of the Ontario Insurance Act, R.S.O. 1897, c. 203) the assured may make in writing, must be in clear and unequivocal words taking effect immediately as upon an immediate declaration of trust and so as to divest the assured of all beneficial interest therein for the time being subject only to any future appointment, the making of which may be reserved to him by the statute.

Re Watson and Order of Canadian Home Circles, 4 D.L.R. 170, 3 O.W.N. 1605, 2 O.W.R. 834.

A sufficient declaration of beneficiary is created under the Insurance Act, R.S.O. 1897, c. 203, s. 151 (3), by a statement written by an insured person, after the death of the beneficiary named therein, on a certificate of insurance issued by a mutual benefit association, to the effect that the benefit thereunder should be paid to a person "who for many years had advanced money to [the insured] and kept up the premiums, and who [was] a holder for value," notwithstanding such change of beneficiary was void under the rules of the association, since such rules must yield to the statute. An adopted child or grandchild of an insured person is not within the preferred class of beneficiaries mentioned in s. 7 of c. 15 of 4 Edw. VII.

BY WILL—CONFLICT OF LAWS.

The change of the beneficiaries of an insurance policy issued by an Ontario company, which may be made under the provisions of the Insurance Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 183, ss. 171, 177, 179, can be validly made by the will of a testator domiciled in a foreign jurisdiction at the time of his death, despite the fact that by the law of that jurisdiction beneficiaries named in an insurance policy cannot be changed; such law does not, if it could, purport to have any such application.

CHANGE OF PREFERRED BENEFICIARY—BEQUEST—SUFFICIENCY OF.

General words of bequest, such as "all my property, including all my insurance policies at present in force and that I may hereafter have," are not a sufficient identification of a contract of insurance to make the will an appointment of a particular beneficiary of a policy of life insurance in which a beneficiary of the preferred class had been designated but had died in the lifetime of the assured so as to prevent the operation of ss. 151, 159 of the Insurance Act, R.S.O. 1897, c. 203 (as amended 1 Edw. VII. (Ont.) c. 21, s. 2 and 4 Edw. VII. (Ont.) c. 15, s. 7), which provides that, in default of any new appointment, the benefit shall go to the children of the assured; the insurance money had, by the first appointment of a beneficiary of the preferred class, become a trust fund and not transferable by the assured out of the preferred class of beneficiaries except in the statutory manner by an instrument in writing "identifying the policy by number or otherwise."

By an endowment policy issued in 1898, the company assured the life of M. for $1,000, and contracted to pay that sum to M. on 1st Oct. 1918, or, should M. die before that day, to his mother; and it was provided that, should the policy be in force on Oct. 1, 1918, M. should be entitled to certain optional benefits—e.g., the right to convert the sum assured and profits into a paid-up policy payable at the death of M. In 1906, M., by an instrument in writing, declared that the policy and assurance should be for the benefit of his wife. When the policy matured on Oct. 1, 1918, M. was still alive, and had made no further or other designation of a beneficiary. After Oct. 1, the company drew a cheque in favour of M.'s wife for a sum said to be the amount of the policy with profits, less the amount of a loan, and sent the cheque to M. for delivery to his wife. M. returned the cheque, and filed with the company a new designation making his mother the beneficiary. The company then applied for leave to pay the amount of the cheque into court and to be discharged from liability upon the policy. The application was supported by M.'s wife, but opposed by M. and his mother, M. alleging that he desired to exercise the option of taking a paid-up policy payable at his death:—Held, by Rose, J., that the policy was a subsisting policy, and the company's contract with M. had not been discharged, when, after Oct. 1, 1918, he attempted to revoke the benefits theretofore conferred upon his wife and to substitute his mother as beneficiary. (2) That the attempt was successful, and whatever rights the wife had theretofore possessed passed to the mother: see the Ontario Insurance Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 183, s. 171. (3) That M. or his mother had a right to select some benefit other than the payment of the cash which the company desired to pay into court, and the order asked for could not be made without defeating that right. Held, by a Divisional Court, on appeal from the order of Rose, J., that the application for leave to pay the money into court was rightly dismissed; but the order should have been confined to that; any adjudication as to the rights of the wife and mother was premature.

After the issue of the policy he made a will in which he referred to other insurance, which he called "city insurance," meaning another policy for $1,000 on his life, procured by a city corporation on his enlistment for service in the war. By the will he disposed of $2,000 of insurance, in various sums, amongst eight persons; he directed that $1,000 of the $2,000 should go to "my mother R. E. R.;" and there was a later direction that, "in case I do not receive city insurance the above will be void and the Metropolitan Life will go to my mother:"—Held, that the will sufficiently identified the insurance which was payable to Ruth E. A life insurance policy named the wife of insured as beneficiary. Subsequently by trust deed insured appointed trustees to collect upon his death the proceeds of said policy and others and pay such proceeds to his son on his attaining 25 years of age with provisions for investment and maintenance for such son until he attained 25; if such son should die before the insured or before attaining 25 the moneys to go to the wife or issue of such son and if none then the moneys to go to the insured's residuary legatees. The residuary legatees were said son and certain others whom it was not within the power of the insured to benefit under the policy without consent of the wife under the terms of the Life Insurance Policies Act. Held, that so far as the trust deed appointed the son a beneficiary of the insurance moneys under said policy it was a valid appointment under s. 8 of the Life Insurance Policies Act; that the bona fide intention was to benefit the son at all events and that such intention and its effect could and should be separated from the further and nugatory intent to benefit persons not proper objects of the power.

The insurer cannot, in order to evade paying the loss, take advantage of the fact that the conditions in the policy were not fulfilled, such as giving notice, making proof of loss or the time allowed for settlement, when he positively refuses to pay and repudiates all liability.

An offer of settlement of an insurance claim by the adjusting agent does not, in the absence of proof of authority to that end, operate as a waiver of any objections which might be urged against the claim by the insurer.

An application form for hail insurance contained a clause that the agent filling it in was the agent of the applicant and not of the company. By the mutual mistake of the agent and the applicant, the application contained a wrong description of the property:—Held, that insurance company was not liable on the policy issued upon the said application on the ground that, since the agent was the agent of the applicant, the company had no actual notice of the mistake. Co. v. Fletcher, 117 U. S. Reports, 519, approved.]

Laird v. Canada Weather Ins. Co., 29 W.L.R. 570, 7 W.W.R. 231.

(§ V B—212)—ASSENT TO REMOVAL.

An insurance company in giving a formal assent to a transfer already made of the insured goods to another building will not be held to have waived their right to afterwards claim on learning that a fire had already destroyed the goods that the rights of the parties became fixed at the time of the fire, and that it was an implied term of the consent that no loss had occurred whereof prompt notice had not been given to the insurance company as required by the terms of the policy.

(§ V B—216)—ACCEPTING PREMIUM NOTE — LAPSE OF POLICY CAUSED BY CONDUCT OF INSURER.

The acceptance of a note in payment of a premium on a life policy manifests an election on the part of the insurance company to treat the policy as in force and not to take advantage of the default of the insured; and if before maturity of the note the insured is led to believe by the representations of the company that the policy had lapsed, and in reliance of such representations he ceases to meet the subsequent premiums, the company by its conduct will be estopped from denying liability on the ground that the policy had lapsed for non-payment of premiums.

PREMIUM PAYABLE BY NOTE TO AGENT — RULES OF INSURANCE COMPANY — DEATH OF ASSURED — POLICY IN FORCE — LIABILITY.

An insurance company, whose authorized agent takes a note payable to him for the premium of a policy he has written and remits said premium less his commission to the company out of his own pocket, must regard this premium as paid, and the policy in question as in force.

(§ V B—230)—WAIVER BY INSURER — FAILURE TO BRING ACTION IN TIME — SUBSEQUENT REQUEST FOR PROOF OF LOSS.

The waiver of the failure to bring action on a policy of insurance within the stipulated time is not shewn by letters thereafter written by the insurer requesting proofs of loss without referring to the fact that the time for bringing action had expired, where there was no consideration for a waiver, and the insured did nothing to his detriment in reliance on a waiver.

NOTICE OR PROOFS OF LOSS.

The failure of an insured to give written notice of loss is waived by an insurance company, since it did not appear that it was thereby prejudiced where, on the day after the destruction of the insured property the president and two of the directors of the company, in response to a message from the insured, came and inspected the ruins, and told him that they would return the next day, which they did, when they obtained detailed particulars of the loss, which they reduced to writing, and pursuant to their instructions, the insured attended the next meeting of the board of directors of the company and gave them all the information they desired, and the secretary of the company prepared and the insured signed a statutory declaration of loss, which, together with the policy, were retained by the company, and where the insured subsequently paid an assessment on his premium note, and after the insured and the company were at arm's length, the former gave the latter a further statutory declaration of loss, after which the company returned the premium note and declared the policy of insurance cancelled.

Patterson v. Oxford Farmers Mutual Fire Ins. Co., 7 D.L.R. 369, 4 O.W.N. 140, 23 O.W.R. 122.

(§ V B—235)—PARTICIPATION IN ADJUSTMENT.

No waiver of a breach of policy of insurance can arise on the part of an insurer from a fact that it sent the insured proofs of claim which were filled out by him and returned to the company where the blanks themselves expressly stipulated that by furnishing them and investigating the claim the insurer should not be held to waive a breach of any condition of the policy.

VI. The loss; remedies of the assured.

A. NOTICE; PROOFS; ARBITRATION. — (§ VI A—245)—PROOF OF LOSS—SCOPE OF LIABILITY.

A claim against an insurance company under a policy of fire insurance is not a debt due or accruing due until the amount of the loss is fixed; it is a claim of indemnity for loss, and until the loss is ascertained, by the admission of the company or otherwise, the claim under the policy is one of damages rather than of debt. Shierman v. Harris and Craske, 22 D.L.R. 694, 8 S.L.R. 165, 8 W.W.R. 514.

FALSE PROOF OF LOSS—WAIVER—PARTICIPATION IN ADJUSTMENT.

A false statement by the insured in his statutory declaration as to the loss, by which the actual loss is greatly exaggerated, vitiates the claim under a condition that that effect in the policy; an appraisal of loss, or an endeavor to arbitrate the claim by an adjuster for the insurance company, does not operate as a waiver of, nor could he so waive, the condition.

PROOF OF LOSS—ON BLANKS FURNISHED BY INSURER—WAIVER OF CONDITION.

RELIEF FROM—PLEADING.

In an action upon a policy of fire insurance the plaintiff may be relieved, on the ground of mistake, under the Fire Insurance Policy Act, R.S.S. 1909, c. 80, from the effects of his failure to give notice and proofs of loss, although he has not pleaded the Act. CONDITIONS — ACCOUNTS AND INVOICES — PRODUCTION — PROOF OF LOSS — FALSITY.

A statutory condition of a fire insurance policy that the insured shall in support of his claim, if required and if practicable, produce books of account and furnish invoices and other vouchers, does not make the procuring and production of copies of invoices a condition precedent to his right of action. [Strong v. Crown Fire Insurance Co., 13 D.L.R. 686, followed.] To justify holding an assured guilty of having made a false or fraudulent statement in his proof of loss the evidence ought to be clear and satisfactory, and leave no room for any reasonable inference but that of guilt, and where evidence that the assured had made an excessive estimate of his loss is relied upon as proof of his fraudulent intent, the estimate should be so extravagant as to lead necessarily to the conclusion that the excess was due, not to an error of judgment, but to an intention to defraud. [Adams v. Glen Falls Ins. Co., 31 D.L.R. 166, followed.] A wilfully false statement of value in the statutory declaration of loss under a fire insurance policy vitiates the claim. [Maple Leaf Milling Co. v. Colonial Ass'ce Co., 36 D.L.R. 202, followed.] And where a building and a stock of goods therein are insured under one policy, such a statement with respect only to the value of the building defeats the entire claim. [Harris v. Waterloo Mutual Fire Ins. Co., 30 O.R. 718, followed.]

Kibzey v. Home Ins. Co., [1918] 2 W.W.R. 541.

COMPENSATION — ARBITRATION — AWARD
—ACQUESCENCE—REPAIRS—MANDATE.

A fire insurance company, acting by its agent, which agrees to an arbitration to determine the compensation an assured is entitled to on the burning of his building, and names its arbitrator and furnishes him with all the necessary signatures in blank and other papers, gives the assured sufficient reason for believing that its agent and its arbitrator are authorized to allow him to begin urgent repairs to the property burned, before the award is made. An award bearing the signatures of the arbitrators is, under such circumstances, not void because it has not been received by a notary, seeing that this obligation is incumbent as much on the defendant as on the plaintiff, and that the representative of the latter had taken possession of it and sent it to the company's agent. When a company has agreed to have arbitrators determine the compensation due to an assured, it cannot afterwards revoke the submission to arbitration, or invoke the right which the conditions of the policy give the company to make the repairs on the insured building which the fire has rendered necessary.

Lalande v. Phoenix Ins. Co., 54 Que. S. C. 461. [See 28 Que. K.B. 287.]

PROOFS OF LOSS.

A false statement by an insured person in a statutory proof of loss as to a fact not required by the Ontario Insurance Act, R.S.O. 1897, c. 203, to be stated, will not vitiate a claim for loss under subs. (e) of condition 15 of the Act.

(§ VI A—246)—ACCIDENT—CONDITION IN POLICY — IMMEDIATE NOTICE—DELAY—RECOVERY.

Where an accident insurance policy requires immediate notice of the accident to be given, the insured may be allowed a reasonable time in which to give the required notice according to the circumstances of the case. Held, that a delay of 52 days in giving the notice was, under the circumstances, a want of compliance with the condition which prevented recovery under the policy.

The statutory provisions in the N.B. Fire Insurance Act (1913, 3 Geo. V., c. 26) requiring the assured to give notice in writing forthwith after the loss has occurred is substantially complied with, where the assured verbally notifies the agent who solicited the insurance, and such agent notifies the company in writing, especially when the giving of such verbal notice may be ascribed to a mistake on the part of the assured resulting from the acts and statements of such agent. NOTICE OF LOSS—SUFFICIENCY OF—CONDITION AS TO—SERVICE ON AGENT OF FOREIGN COMPANY.

Notice of the illness and death of an insured animal given in Manitoba to an agent appointed to represent a company, according to the Manitoba Insurance Act, who gave immediate telegraphic notice to the head office in Montreal, is a sufficient compliance with a condition of a policy of insurance that notice of the illness or death of an insured animal should be given direct to the company, where notice, if given by the insured direct to the head office of the company, either in person or by letter, would not have arrived in advance of the notice given by the agent.

NOTICE.

Where the policy of guarantee insurance calls for immediate notice of any shortage and the insured fails to notify the insurer until a month after the discovery of loss, this notice is tardy and the insured cannot recover, even though the unfaithful employee be apprehended and convicted as a result of his (the insured's) efforts.

Lachine School Commissioners v. London Guarantee & Accident Co., 3 D.L.R. 335.

Under a policy insuring against accident and other causes of disablement and providing that written notice of the happening of an accident or event giving rise to a claim must be given an insurer within a specified time, there can be no recovery in the absence of such notice, even though the insured was incapacitated from complying with the requirement as to notice by the event which gave rise to his claim.

(§ VI A-247)—LOSS—PROOF OF—NON-COMPLIANCE WITH STATUTORY CONDITION—OBJECTION BY INSURER ON OTHER GROUNDS—WAIVER.

If a person in good faith furnishes proof of loss of insured property, to which the insurer objects on grounds other than non-compliance with statutory condition 13 of the Ontario Insurance Act, R.S.O. 1897, c. 203, 2 Geo. V. c. 33, R.S.O. 1914, c. 183, the insured will be relieved from such non-compliance under the provisions of s. 172 of such Act, where it would be "inequitable that the insurance should be deemed void or forfeited by reason of imperfect compliance with the condition." Statutory condition 13 of the Ontario Insurance Act, R.S.O. 1897, c. 203, 2 Geo. V. c. 33, R.S.O. 1914, c. 183, relative to furnishing proofs of loss, does not require the owner of a stock of goods which were destroyed by fire to furnish an insurer duplicate invoices from those from whom the goods were purchased.

A condition in a policy of insurance that the proofs of loss must be delivered within 20 days to the secretary of the insurer on blanks furnished by it means within 30 days after the insurer supplied the blanks. Where an insurance company receives proofs of loss under a policy issued by it and after an investigation rejects the claim on the ground of misrepresentation in the insured's application, there is a waiver of the condition in the policy that the proofs of loss must be sent to the insurer within a certain time.

A statement by the insured in the proofs of loss furnished the insurer that the insured property at the time of its destruction belonged to the insured, and that no other person had any interest in it except a specified bank for advances, but the statement failed to state the nature of the bank's interest or the amount of the advances, and made no mention of a transfer given the bank as security, is not a compliance with the provision of the policy that the proofs of loss shall state the interest of the insured and all others in the insured property. A mere statement by the insured in the proofs of loss furnished the insurer that the origin of the fire was unknown to him is not a compliance with the requirement of the policy that the insured in his proofs of loss "shall render a statement to this company signed and sworn to by the said insured, stating the knowledge and belief of the insured as to the time and origin of the fire." No waiver by the insurer of the provisions of a policy as to what the proofs of loss must contain is shown by the fact that its adjuster went to the place of fire to ascertain its cause and the amount of loss caused by it and that while there he made enquiries of the insured as to his knowledge of the origin of the fire, the quantity of the goods destroyed, what books or paper he still had and other insurance, and had measurements made for the purpose of estimating the quantity of the goods destroyed. The mere fact that an insurer retained the proofs of loss furnished by the insured for a long time without objection cannot be held to constitute a waiver of fuller or further proof. [McManus v. Aetna Ins. Co., 11 N.B.R. 314, followed; Imperial Fire Ins. Co. v. Bull, 18 Can. S.C.R. 697, 1 S.C. Cas. 1, affirming 15 Ont. App. 421, distinguished.]

Section 2 of the Fire Insurance Policy Ordinance, N.W.T. (Alta.), 1911, c. 113, giving power to the court to hold the insurance company liable notwithstanding trifling defects in the proofs of loss occurring by necessity, accident or mistake, or where it appears inequitable to hold the insurance void by reason of imperfect compliance with the conditions of the policy, should not be applied to dispense with reasonable formal proofs called for by the insurance company which the insured deliberately refused to furnish without assigning any reason for the refusal. Where one of the statutory conditions of a fire insurance policy requires the assured to supply, with his proofs of loss, a certificate of a justice or other officer resident in the vicinity of the fire certifying, in effect, that the circumstances have been investigated by such official and do not indicate the perpetration of any fraud by the assured, the refusal of the assured to furnish such certificate within the statutory time, although demanded by the company, is a bar to the action.

PROOFS OF LOSS—DUPLICATE INVOICES PRIOR TO STOCK-TAKING.

Where the insured claiming under a fire policy has furnished ample proofs of a proper stock-taking which took place 5 months before the fire and has supplied subsequent invoices and statements of sales, a further demand by the insurance company for duplicate invoices of the goods bought prior to the stock-taking and which was not complied with by the insurer, will not be upheld on objection that the proofs of loss had not been completed. Anglo-American Fire Ins. Co. v. Hendry, 15 D.L.R. 832, 48 Can. S.C.R. 577.

IRREGULARITIES—RELIEF—TIME.

Section 2 of the Fire Insurance Policy Act, R.S.M. 1913, c. 103, giving the court the power to relieve the assured in case the proofs of the loss furnished by him are defective in any way, have no relation to the furnishing of the certificate of a magistrate, notary public or commissioner referred to in s. 13 (e) of the statutory conditions appended to the Act, since such certificate need not be procured at all unless required by the insurance company. [Forest v. Home Ins. Co., 8 D.L.R. 764, followed.] When no term is fixed by the policy or the conditions within which the company may demand the production of such a certificate, the law requires it to be done within a reasonable time, and such a demand will be too late if not made until 78 days after completion of the proofs of loss required by the policy and 48 days after the plaintiff's right of action upon the policy had accrued under its conditions. Semble, such a demand would be too late unless made before the accrual of the right of action. Anderson v. German American Ins. Co., 35 D.L.R. 522, 24 B.C.R. 95, [1917] 2 W.W.R. 632.

"DIRECT LOSS OR DAMAGE BY FIRE"—FREEZING—"PROPERTY OF ASSURED."

In an action upon a policy insuring against fire the furniture and fittings of an "ice-cream parlour," it appeared that the fire in respect of which loss was alleged occurred in winter, and did not spread above the floor of the "parlour." In order to confine it below, the pipe and door of the furnace were taken off, with the result that the water froze in the pipes and plumbing fixtures of the fountain and carbonator.—Held, that the damage was the immediate consequence of the fire and the method adopted of dealing with it, and so was recoverable as "direct loss or damage by fire." (2) By statutory condition 6 (a) Ontario Insurance Act, s. 194, an insurance company is not liable for the loss of property owned by any other person than the assured, unless the interest of the assured is stated in or upon the policy. The policy insured the fountain and attachments, "the property of the assured," and these were injured in consequence of the fire: Held, that the plaintiff was entitled to recover for this portion of the loss, notwithstanding that these articles were not paid for in full, and that by the sale-agreement the ownership was not to pass to the plaintiff until payment in full—that agreement also providing that the goods were to be at his risk, and that he was to keep them insured

"with loss payable to the vendors as their interest may appear." The articles were his "property" in the popular sense; and "owner" is not synonymous with "holder of an exclusive title." (3) The plaintiff had given an order upon the defendants to pay M. a sum of money out of the amount due upon the policy:—Held, that whether the order divested the plaintiff of the right to sue for that sum and vested it in M. could not be decided in the absence of M.; and, so far as appeared, the plaintiff's right to sue was not affected. It was ordered that the whole amount found due by the defendants should be paid into court, and should not be paid out except on notice to M. and also to the vendors of the fountain and accessories.

(§ VI B—259a)—MARINE—"PERIL OF THE SEA."

Damage to a cargo from sea water that apparently had forced through the hatches of the ship during a storm is sufficient prima facie proof of injury from a "peril of the sea" within the meaning of an insurance policy covering a risk of that kind.

Creedeen v. North China Ins. Co., 36 D.L.R. 359, 24 B.C.R. 335, [1917] 3 W.W.R. 33. MARINE INSURANCE.

In a contract of marine insurance it was provided that the insured should not have a right to claim for total loss, either of vessel or freight, on account of the estimated amount of repairs exceeding the value of the vessel, nor a right under any circumstances to abandon either vessel or freight, provided the vessel remained in specie, unless the amount which the insurers would be liable to pay (exclusive of all general average charges, and charges for getting off or raising and bringing into port a vessel stranded or submerged, and of all repairs consequent upon decay) under an adjustment, as of partial loss, after making all the usual deductions, would exceed half the value of the vessel as declared in the policy. It was further provided that the highest valuation under which the vessel is insured in any policy should be the basis for ascertaining a technical loss of freight under the policy:—Held, that under such a contract so long as the vessel remained in specie no claim for total loss either of vessel or freight could be made except on the basis of calculation as to values set out in the policy.

(§ VI B—260)—PRESUMPTION OF DEATH—SEVEN-YEAR PERIOD—ACTION—COSTS.

Where there was no proof of the death of a person whose life was insured by the defendants, but he had been absent and unheard of for more than 7 years, his death was presumed, and judgment given for his wife in an action upon the insurance policy, although no inquiry was made by her at the time of his disappearance, except from friends of her husband and lake captains—he having been one of that class. Absence and silence are to be taken as indicating death as their cause, when there is nothing in the circumstances to indicate any other reason for the absence or silence. The presumption arises only when the absence and silence continue for 7 years. The presumption is not conclusive; and it was open to the defendants in this case to make any inquiry or institute any search they saw fit. The plaintiff, having made out a prima facie case, which had not been answered by the defendants, was entitled to recover. "The seven years" means the 7 years immediately following the disappearance, not the 7 years next before the commencement of the action. [Dicta of Clute and Riddell, J.J., in Duffield v. Mutual Life Ins. Co. of New York, 20 D.L.R. 467, 32 O.L.R. 299, dissenting from; Nepean v. Doe d. Knight, 2 M. & W. 894, followed.] No costs of the action were allowed, as the sufficiency of the proof of death might have been determined in a summary way under s. 165 (5) of the Insurance Act. Where death is caused by an accident which was occasioned as the result of a per-

ACCIDENT POLICY—DIRECT CAUSE—TOTAL DISABILITY—SPRAINED WRIST—TUBERCULOSIS.

A sprained wrist incapacitating one from performing his work as an eye, ear, nose and throat specialist, is a "total disability that prevents him from performing any and every kind of duty pertaining to his occupation," within the meaning of an accident policy; the disability is "immediate and continuous," resulting from accidental means, "directly, independently and exclusively from all other causes," though recovery had been prevented by a latent tuberculous condition becoming active.

The plaintiff suffered permanent injuries, causing "auricular fibrillation" of the heart, in a fight, in which he was not the aggressor, and the court held the company liable under the above clause; the disability being the direct cause of the fight even if the plaintiff's heart had been slightly affected, without his knowledge before that time, also that the plaintiff's change of occupation to a more hazardous one without disclosure to the company did not, under the circumstances, avoid the policy. The onus of proving fraud or false statements in the statutory declaration by the assured proving loss by fire, required by the Insurance Act (R.S.O. 1914, c. 183, s. 194), is upon the insurance company. Mere suspicion, or even grave suspicion, is not enough. There must be clear and satisfactory proof by the company, not such as would warrant a conviction for fraud and perjury, but strong enough at least to leave no reasonable inference but that of guilt.

(§ VI C—357)—DRY-DOCK—LEASE OF—COVENANT TO INSURE—INSURANCE NOT OBTAINED BECAUSE OF METHOD OF USER—DESTRUCTION—MEASURE OF COMPENSATION—FRAUD.

By the terms of the lease of a dry-dock the lessee agreed to use it in its construction work on caissons and other similar work; and also to have it insured for the benefit of the lessor against both marine and fire risks and to deliver it in good condition at the end of the term. The dry-dock was used in connection with the construction of a breakwater and ocean pier, and such use was largely one of experiment, and owing to the method of user no insurance could be obtained, although its seaworthiness was demonstrated by its weathering a gale while being taken to the place where it was to be used. The dock, during the work, collapsed and became a total wreck. It was admitted that the dock was lost past recovery, that the rent due under the lease had not been paid and that the insurance had not been effected. Held that these breaches gave the lessors the right to retake possession of the dock and terminate the lease, and the institution of proceedings with a clause for rent, up to the right, and subsequent damages was sufficient evidence of the lessor's intentions in this respect, and the lessor was justified in bringing the action although the term of the lease had not expired. The substance however to which their lordships looked was a claim for the value of something that had been lost in circumstances rendering the lessee contractually responsible for its value and this could be maintained. The covenant to insure "against both marine and fire risks" was construed to mean against the "hazards of the sea" during the term of the lease and not merely against risk in its journeys by sea, but if it had been effected it could not have covered a loss inevitable in the circumstances due to the unfitness of the structure and entirely dissociated from any peril by wind or water. MUNICIPAL INSURANCE—RIGHTS OF INSURED—DIVISION OF MUNICIPALITY.

A person who insures his buildings in a municipal mutual insurance company established by a by-law of a municipal council, does not lose his rights and his recourse against the company in case of fire from the fact that the municipality had been divided into two distinct municipalities. Such division does not affect the rights and obligations of the insurance company nor of its members, nor the powers and duties of the municipal council and of its officials the taxable property in the new territory erected in the municipality remaining charged with payment of all the debts and obligations contracted for before the division. It is the council of the municipality from which the new territory is detached which alone is authorized to procure from the moveables of the two municipalities the funds necessary to pay the insurance losses.

Where the by-laws of an association and certificate of membership showed that the association was bound to pay a member a certain sum, on his death, either to his widow or his beneficiary or his heir, but did not state which of the three should have the preference, it was held that such right formed, at his death, part of his estate, in the absence of any by-law to the contrary, and that such right and the debt belonged to the universal legatee of the member.

(§ VI E-400)—DEFENCES—RELEASE.

In the absence of evidence, it cannot be said that a change in the use of premises from a billiard and pool room to a restaurant is such a material change as will make the risk under a fire insurance policy more hazardous, even where gasoline is used on the premises.

A fire insurance company cannot set up public morals as a defence to a claim under its policy issued upon premises described therein as a "sporting-house," and used as a bawdy-house. [Morin v. Anglo-American, 3 A.L.R. 121, applied.]

Under arts. 1614, 1065, 1067 C.C. (Que.), the owner of a building must indemnify an insurance company that is compelled to pay damages to a tenant for loss sustained by the breaking of a fire sprinkler pipe as the result of the settling of a beam where the settling might easily have been prevented.

LOSS—PAYMENT AFTER SALE OF INSURED CHATELAINS—SUBROGATION OF INSURER TO LIEN NOTES.

Where lien notes were taken on the sale of an insured animal for the deferred payments, on paying a loss under its policy the insurance company becomes subrogated to the insurer's rights on the lien notes to the amount paid him.

Loss.

Where the fire insurance company is entitled to be subrogated to the rights of the assured against parties whose negligence caused the fire, it may sue the latter in its own name, under the Laws Declaratory Act, R.S.B.C. c. 133, if it has taken a formal assignment of the assured's claim on set-

Upon an assignment of fire insurance policies to a municipality after the latter has indemnified the owner for all damages sustained from the demolition of a building under art. 4426, R.S.Q. (1888) to arrest the progress of a fire, the municipality is entitled to be subrogated to all the rights of the owner and recover from the insurance company the loss payable under the policies.

LOSS CAUSED BY TRAMWAY—REIMBURSEMENT—PROPORTION.

A horse of the value of $300, insured for $200, was killed by a car of the defendants. The insurance company paid to the owner the full amount of the policy, and sued the tramways company for the $200. It was held that although the court found that the owner of the horse had contributed to the accident in the proportion of one-third, the tramways company was nevertheless bound to reimburse the insurance, not only the two-thirds of the $200 paid by it, but the two-thirds of the full value of the horse, to wit, $200.

RIGHT AGAINST ELECTRIC COMPANY CAUSING LOSS.

ACCIDENT—DAMAGES—SUBROGATION—COURSE OF THE INSURER WHO HAS PAID—C.C. ART. 1053, 1155, 2584.

When an insurance company pays to the assured the damages he has suffered as the result of an accident, it is not subrogated by agreement to the rights of the assured unless it shews that the conditions of art. 1155 C.C. (Que.) have been fulfilled. It has a remedy in damages under art. 1053 and it can, moreover, obtain from the assured, under art. 2584, an assignment of his rights against the one who caused the damages.

Where there is an absolute promise to pay in a life insurance policy and it is expressly provided therein that the payment of the sum insured shall not be disputed, s. 165 (2) of R.S.O. 1914, c. 183, specifying 18 months as a period of limitation does not apply; s. 165 was enacted for the benefit of the representatives of the assured to override restrictions as to time of action contained in the policy and where there is no such restriction it has no application. The life insurance company which pleads the bar of the action brought on the policy where the assured had not been heard of for 7 years and was to be presumed dead, has cast upon it the onus of showing that the death occurred more than one year and 6 months before the writ was issued, that being the period of limitation provided by R.S.O. 1914, c. 183, s. 165.

CLAIMS—LIMITATION OF TIME.

Where a fire insurance company, on paying the loss of the assured alleged to have been caused by the neglect of an electric company, does not bring its action against the latter in the name of the assured, under the subrogation clause of its policy, but instead sues in its own name after taking a written assignment from the assured of his rights against the electric company, it can maintain the action only if it has given the latter notice in writing of the assignment under the Laws Declaratory Act, R. S.B.C., c. 133; and the defect is not cured by an order adding the assured as a co-plaintiff made without prejudice to defendants' rights after the period of limitation had expired within which the added party would have had to sue.

REFUSAL TO FURNISH CLAIM PAPERS—INSURED UNHEARD OF FOR SEVEN YEARS—PRESCRIPTIONS.

A condition in a life insurance policy that formal proofs of death shall be furnished by the beneficiary is waived by the written refusal of the insurer to furnish claim papers until the court should decide that the insured should be presumed to be dead because he had not been heard of for 7 years.

PROOFS OF LOSS—RELIEF AGAINST STRICT COMPLIANCE IN FURNISHING—EFFECT OF—SASKATCHEWAN INSURANCE ACT.

The effect of granting relief under s. 2 of the Insurance Act (R.S.S. c. 80, now s. 86 of 1915 Stats., c. 151), which permits relief to be granted from strict compliance with a condition in the policy requiring proof of loss to be furnished as soon as practicable after the loss has occurred, is to put the insured in the same position as if proofs of loss had been furnished as required, with the result that other conditions of the policy requiring a certain delay before action can be brought, and which would otherwise make the bringing of the action premature, should be deemed to have lapsed.

CONTRACTUAL LIMITATION OF TIME.

Where the insurers have made a demand upon the insured for proofs of loss, the right of action under Ontario statutory condition 17 relating to fire insurance policies, does not accrue until 60 days after the proofs of loss have been furnished, and where incomplete proofs of loss were first supplied and invoices and a statutory certificate were then promptly demanded by the insurers by way of further proof, the 6 day period is to be computed from the completion of the proofs upon the latter being supplied. CONTRACTOR'S AND CITY EMPLOYEES—EXTRA PREMIUMS.

A stipulation in an employers' liability policy issued to a municipality that it shall not cover loss from liability for injuries or death caused to a person unless his compensation is included in the scheduled estimate on which the insurance was based, will exclude liability by the insurance company in respect of employees of the city completing works which had been let to contractors at the time the policy was taken out, but which afterwards were taken over by the city on the contractor's default; consequently no action lies against the city for an excess premium on the basis of the additional wages on such work not contemplated in the insurance contract paid to city workmen completing the contract work as to whom no claim was made nor could be substantiated on the city's behalf.

INDEMNITY—ENFORCEMENT—ASSIGNEE FOR CREDITORS.

The right of indemnity under an employer's liability insurance policy, for liability incurred for an injury to an employee, will pass, upon the employer's insolvency, to his assignee for the benefit of creditors and is enforceable by him; the insurer's liability is not limited by what the insolvent's estate is able to pay, but extends to the full amount of the judgment against the employer, regardless of the source from which the money came to make payment thereof. Nor is it essential that the payment should have been made before the assignment for creditors; it is sufficient when paid by the assignee with funds advanced by a third party.

"DAMAGES"—WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION—SETTLEMENTS.

The word "damages" has the universal meaning of recompense for wrong done; an insurance policy, purporting to indemnify an employer against "liability imposed by law for damages" on account of injuries to employees, covers not only claims for damages at common law, but also those under the Workmen's Compensation Acts, and contemplates the reasonable and prudent settlement of such claims by the assured. AGAINST EMPLOYER'S LIABILITY.

A contract of insurance by which the insurer assumes the risk of accidents that may happen to workmen engaged in placing electric wires on the inside and outside of buildings, covers also accidents to which a workman is exposed in placing electric wires on, or removing them from a pole placed near a building as accessory to the work of installation on the outside.

Goulet v. Merchants' & Employers' Guarantee & Accident Co., 51 Que. S.C. 256, reversing 50 Que. S.C. 473.

CONDITIONS PRECEDENT—DAMAGES—NOTICE.

Where a contract between an employer and an insurance company, under the Act respecting accident to workmen, stipulates that the insured cannot institute an action on the policy until he has been condemned to pay damages to one of his employees and has paid such damages, the employer against whom an action is brought cannot make therein a demand in warranty against the company, even when, by another clause of the contract, it is provided that if the insured is sued for damages on account of an accident the company must defend the action at its own cost, making use of the name of the insured. Where the policy provides that the insured shall, without delay, give notice to the company of every accident happening on his works, as well as of every claim made in respect thereof, such notice is a condition precedent to the bringing of an action by the insured against the company. Where the insurance company refused to defend the principle action itself, as it had the right to do, and denied its liability under the policy, it cannot ask for the dismissal of the action in warranty on the ground that it is premature.

Moineau v. Antonessa; Employers Liability Ass'ce Corp. v. Moineau, 25 Que. K.B. 334.

PROCEDURE — DILATORY EXCEPTION — WARRANTY.

A provision in an insurance policy against work accidents, by which the insured is required, in case of an action before the courts, to turn the case over to the insurer so that the latter may contest it on behalf of the insured, amounts to an agreement not to call in the insurer in incidental warranty. Under such conditions the insured cannot exercise the recourse of an action in incidental warranty, nor suspend for that purpose the main action by way of dilatory exception.

Dufresne v. Parent, 53 Que. S.C. 223.

INTERPRETATION OF POLICY—MEDICAL ATTENDANCE.

A clause in a policy of insurance against accidents to workmen, issued in favour of an employer, and providing that the insured shall not incur any expense nor make any settlement with an employee, except that at the time of the accident the insured may provide for imperative medical assistance, should be interpreted as putting the cost of medical assistance upon the insurance company which should guarantee the insured against it.

(§ VIII—441)—FIDELITY INSURANCE—ARRAIGNMENT — ACCOUNTS — COMPROMISE.

A clause in a policy of fidelity insurance stating that "the employee is obliged, if the company so requires, to arraign the employee before the courts," without declaring whether it should be before civil or criminal courts, is vague and must be construed against the insurance company by which the condition was stipulated. A delay in requiring the rendering of accounts is not negligence which will imperil recourse under the policy; nor when the mandator seeks to recover a portion of his claim against his mandatory by making a compromise settlement with him.

(§ I B—20)—ON LOANS — INTEREST RATE UNDER BANK ACT — STIPULATION ULTRA VIRES AND INOPERATIVE.

Where a bank has charged on loans more than seven per cent the maximum rate of interest or discount allowed by s. 91 of the Bank Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 29, the stipulation is ultra vires and inoperative. [McHugh v. Union Bank, 10 D.L.R. 562, applied.]

Northern Crown Bank v. Great West Lumber Co., 11 D.L.R. 395, 7 A.L.R. 183, 24 W.L.R. 477, 4 W.W.R. 720.

ON LOANS — SETTLEMENT OR PAYMENT, EFFECT — INTEREST RATE UNDER BANK ACT.

Where a bank's customer for about six years ran accounts with his bank, by which he was charged interest in excess of that permitted by the Bank Act R.S.C., 1906, c. 29, and where these accounts were then ascertained between the parties and covered by a chattel mortgage at excessive interest, and where 3 years later this chattel mortgage and concurrent additional accounts at excessive interest were all ascertained between the parties and covered by a new chattel mortgage stipulating for excessive interest, the latter mortgage amounted to a settlement of accounts between the bank and its customer having the same effect as payment would have had with regard to the question of excessive interest on the accounts and earlier mortgage and estopping the customer from disturbing such settlement, as he must have known that the bank had no right to stipulate for or exact the excessive interest and he voluntarily assented to such settlement and thereby gave up his right to recover back any excess.

JUDICATURE ACT—JUST DEBT—SECURITY.

The interest allowable upon any just debt under s. 10 (15) of the Judicature Act applies also as against sureties.

TESTS AS TO WHEN RECOVERABLE — "DEMAND" IN STATEMENT OF CLAIM ONLY — EFFECT OF.

Where there is no agreement, express or implied, to pay interest on an indebtedness nor any writing whereby the debt was payable at any certain time, the statement of claim in an action for recovery of both debt and interest, is not a sufficient demand under 3 & 4 Wm. & M., c. 42, s. 28, of interest thereafter. [Rhymney v. Rhymney, 25 Q.B.D. 146; Sheba Gold Mining Co. v. Trubshawe, [1892] 1 Q.B. 674, and McKenzie v. Champion, 4 Man. L.R. 158, followed.]

Northern Trust Co. v. Coldwell, 18 D.L.R. 512, 28 W.L.R. 625, 6 W.W.R. 1165.

ON PRICE OF GOODS—IMPLIED AGREEMENT TO PAY.

In the absence of some special usage of trade, or of some stipulation express or implied, a trader is not entitled to interest on the price of goods sold and delivered. An agreement to pay interest may be reasonably inferred from the previous dealings of the parties coupled with a printed notification of intention to charge interest on the vendors' statement of account. [Re Anglosey, 70 L.J. Ch. 810, followed.]

Marshall-Wells Co. v. Eaton, 8 W.W.R. 787.

(§ I B—22)—ON ACCOUNTS.

Under ss. 36, 37 (2), R.S.S. c. 52, interest upon a stated account may be allowed from the time when a demand for payment thereof is made.

Last West Lumber Co. v. Haddad, 25 D.L.R. 529, 8 S.L.R. 407, 33 W.L.R. 15, 9 W.W.R. 578.

ON ACCOUNTS — ARITHMETICAL ERRORS — SURCHARGING AND FALSIFYING — STATUTORY LIMITATION.

On the surcharging and falsifying of an account with respect to arithmetical errors in the calculation of interest, the parties should not be limited to a period of 6 years before the action was commenced, where the Statute of Limitations was not pleaded, such errors being of a character which common honesty would demand should be rectified whenever they are discovered.

(§ I B—24)—ON BANK ACCOUNT.

Where the proceeds of the sale of the bonds of a railway company incorporated by a Provincial Legislature for the purpose of building a railway wholly within the province were deposited with a bank to the special account of the treasurer of the province in accordance with the terms of an Act guaranteeing the payment of the bonds by the Provincial Government, which special account was to carry interest at such rate as the bank and the railway company might agree upon and the bank agreed with the railway company to pay 3½ per cent interest on the deposit, the Crown is entitled to the interest at such rate thereon accrued up to the time of its demand in an action to recover the proceeds under a subsequent Act passed for the purpose of protecting the province in its guarantee of the bonds, in which such proceeds are declared to be a part of the general revenue fund of the province and are ordered to be paid forthwith to the provincial treasurer.

C. AS DAMAGES; ON AMOUNT RECOVERED AS DAMAGES.

In expropriation matters, see Damages, III L—240.

(§ I C—25)—CONTRIBUTION WITHHELD BY COTENANT.

Interest by way of damages will not be allowed on moneys justly withheld by a joint owner from his share of contribution towards the expense and upkeep of the premises, where such course was brought about by the conduct of the other owner in refusing to execute a conveyance settling the former's interest in the property. [Raymond v. Hay, 3 N.B.R. 99, distinguished.]
Duffy v. Duffy, 26 D.L.R. 479, 43 N.B.R. 555.

RECOVERY — MONEY ACQUIRED UNDER VOID TESTAMENTARY GIFT.

One who withdraws money from a bank during the lifetime of and at the request of and for the use of a depositor, notwithstanding the deposit was made in their joint names for the purpose of creating a testamentary gift, which, however, was ineffectual, on accounting to the estate of the depositor for what remains in his hands at the former's death, he will be charged with interest thereon from the passing of accounts by the Surrogate Court.

Vogler v. Campbell, 11 D.L.R. 605, 4 O.W.N. 1389, 24 O.W.R. 680. [Reversed, on other grounds, 14 D.L.R. 480, 5 O.W.N. 169, 25 O.W.R. 137.]

AGREEMENT OF SALE OF LAND.

In fixing the amount to be paid by the purchaser for a conveyance in a vendor's action to enforce an agreement of sale on the purchaser's default in payment, interest after default should be allowed under the Judicature Ord. (Alta.) s. 10, clause 15, unless there is in the facts some equitable ground for withholding it in cases where the contract does not expressly provide for interest post diem; for although the word "may" is used in that enactment in declaring the power on the court to award interest on money "improperly withheld" if it seems to the court fair and equitable to allow it, it becomes the duty of the court to award interest when of that opinion and to fix the rate.

ON EXPROPRIATION AWARD — FROM WHEN CHARGEABLE.

In awarding compensation for lands compulsorily taken and others injuriously affected, in an expropriation under the Railway Act, 1906, interest is to be allowed on the whole amount awarded, and is chargeable from the time the notice of expropriation is served or possession taken.
Green v. C.N.R. Co., 33 D.L.R. 608, 10 S.L.R. 108, [1917] 2 W.W.R. 273.

(§ I C—33) — EXPROPRIATION AWARD — TIME OF ENTRY.

The effect of s. 347 of the Municipal Act,

R.S.O. 1914, c. 192, incorporated in the Public Parks Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 203, by s. 17 of that Act, is, that where the arbitration is only as to the amount of compensation, and the expropriating by-law does not authorize permanent entry on the land, the award as to amount does not become binding on the Parks Board unless adopted by by-law within three months after the making of the award; and where possession of the land has not been taken by the Board, and no provision is made in the by-law for entry upon the land under the award, interest should not be allowed to the claimant land-owner upon the sum awarded for the value of the land. [Re Macpherson and Toronto, 26 O.R. 558, distinguished.]

D. ON JUDGMENTS; VERDICTS; AWARDS.

(§ I D—35)—ON JUDGMENTS — RATE — B.N.A. ACT — FEDERAL AND PROVINCIAL POWERS.

Section 714 of the King's Bench Act (Man.) purporting to provide for interest upon the amount of a judgment recovered is ultra vires of the Manitoba Legislature, the subject of interest being assigned under the B.N.A. Act to the Dominion Parliament. Section 13 of the Interest Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 120, providing for interest at the rate of 5 per cent per annum upon judgments, does not apply to Manitoba; in that province the rate remains 4 per cent, under the English Judgment Act, 1838.

JUDGMENT FOR DAMAGES FOR TRESPASS TO MINING CLAIM — APPEAL FROM — PAYABLE FROM DATE OF JUDGMENT.

JUDGMENT — PRESCRIPTION — REGISTRATION.

Interest upon judgment is only prescribed by 30 years as capital; and, notwithstanding art. 2124 C.C. (Que.), the registration of a judgment preserves the right of preference attached to the title for interest accrued since the judgment without other limitation than the period of prescription. Campeau v. Roy, 54 Que. S.C. 237.

(§ I D—36)—ON AWARD — IN CONDEMNATION PROCEEDINGS — WHEN BEGINS TO RUN.

Where a railway company takes possession of land before proceeding to expropriate it, on an award of damages being subsequently made, interest attaches, not from the date of the award, but from the time of taking possession. [Re Clark and Toronto, Grey & Bruce R. Co., 18 O.L.R. 628, 9 Can. Ry. Cas. 290; Rhys v. Dare Valley R. Co., L.R. 19 Eq. 93; and Re Shaw and Birmingham Corp., L.R. 27 Ch.D. 614, 54 L.J. Gauthier v. C.N.R. Co., 14 D.L.R. 490, 7 A.L.R. 229, 25 W.L.R. 955, 5 W.W.R. 537.

WHEN BEGINS TO RUN.

To the amount of an award for land expropriated for railway purposes interest attaches not from the date of the award but from a previous taking possession by the railway company. [Gauthier v. C.N.R. Co., 14 D.L.R. 490, followed.]

Dagenais v. C.N.R. Co., 14 D.L.R. 494, 16 Can. Ry. Cas. 353, 25 W.L.R. 960, 5 W.W.R. 543.

RAILWAY ACT (CAN.).

Interest on the sum awarded as compensation as of the date of the deposit of the plan and profile, should not be given by arbitrators as a part of their award for land expropriated for railway purposes, and will be struck out as beyond their jurisdiction; the right to interest from that date is conferred under the Railway Act (Can.) and not left to be determined by the arbitrators.

Re Ketcheson and Can. Northern Ontario R. Co., 13 D.L.R. 854, 29 O.L.R. 339, 25 O.W.R. 20.

ON AWARD — IN EXPROPRIATION PROCEEDING — ALLOWANCE BY ARBITRATORS.

Arbitrators cannot add interest to the amount awarded for land taken by expropriation under the Railway Act (Can.) [Re Ketcheson and Can. Northern Ontario R. Co., 13 D.L.R. 854, 29 O.L.R. 339, applied.]

EXPROPRIATION PROCEEDINGS — ABANDONMENT.

There can be no allowance of interest under subs. 4 of s. 23 of the Expropriation Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 143, either upon the estimated value of the lands or upon the amount tendered therefor by the government, where before the ascertainment of the indemnity the proceedings were abandoned and no special damages sustained.

EXPROPRIATION AWARDS — COMPUTATION OF AMOUNT.

Section 7, c. 56, of the False Creek Reclamation Act, 1911, vests the right to take possession of expropriated lands immediately upon the payment or legal tender of the amount awarded; hence, interest on the amount awarded for land taken thereunder runs from the date of the award, and not from the date of notice fixed by the arbitrator.

Re False Creek Reclamation Act, 22 D.L.R. 117, 31 W.L.R. 678, 8 W.W.R. 1191, affirming 22 D.L.R. 103.

(§ I E-40) — CLAIM AGAINST DECEDENTS' ESTATE — AGREEMENT TO PAY SUM FOR PAST MAINTENANCE — TIME FOR PAYMENT.

Re English, 10 O.W.N. 139.

(§ I E-41) — LEGACY.

(§ I E-44) — WHEN RECOVERABLE — ON LEGACIES AND ANNUITIES — ABSENCE OF IMPROPER DELAY — ANNUITIES.

In the case of an annuity arising under a will, the general rule is that interest is not allowed on arrears, in the absence of misconduct or improper delay on the part of those chargeable with the payment of the annuity.

F. LIABILITY OF OFFICER, RECEIVER, TRUSTEE OR PERSONAL REPRESENTATIVE.

(§ I F-47) — INTEREST ON MISAPPLIED TRUST FUNDS.

A cestui que trust is entitled to interest on a fund in the hands of his trustee, which fund has been misappropriated by the trustee so that the cestui que trust has been improperly kept out of its use and the enjoyment of its profits.

Rogers Hardware Co. v. Rogers, 10 D.L.R. 541.

H. NECESSITY AND EFFECT OF DEMAND.

(§ I H-55) — ABSENCE OF AGREEMENT TO PAY.

Where a debtor does not agree to pay interest and the debt is payable otherwise than by virtue of a written instrument at a certain time, interest should not be allowed except where a demand for payment is made and the debtor is informed that interest will be claimed from the date of the demand.

SUFFICIENCY OF DEMAND — PRINTED WORDS ON BILL.

Printed words on an account, "Interest at 10 per cent per annum chargeable after 30 days," together with verbal references to these words and notification that interest is being charged, constitute a demand in writing sufficient to support a claim for interest from the expiry of the 30 days.

Hart v. Groer (No. 1), 9 W.W.R. 709, 33 W.L.R. 39.

(§ I H-56) — ON DEPOSIT IN BANK.

On the wrongful refusal of a bank to honour a demand for the withdrawal of a special deposit, the depositor may be allowed interest thereon in an action for its recovery at the legal rate from the date of the demand even though the legal rate is in excess of the rate of interest at which the special deposit was to be carried.

II. Computations; amount; rate; frequency of payment.

A. IN GENERAL.

(§ II A-60) — ANNUAL PAYMENT — "PER ANNUM" — MEANING OF.

The words "at 6 per cent per annum," as applied to a payment of interest, simply indicate the method of computation and the rate allowable by way of interest, but do not imply a contract to pay yearly or each year, merely signifying that the interest becomes payable at the time of the maturity of the principal obligation. [Atherton v. Bostock, 2 Man. & G. 511, 719, applied.]

FROM DATE OF ACTION.

When a claim is uncertain and contested, and can only be determined by a judgment, the interests run only from the date of the institution of the action.

Great Northern Construction Co. v. Ross, 25 Que. K.B. 385, 404.

B. RATE.

(§ II B-65) — RATE UNDER BANK ACT — ULTRA VIRES STIPULATION FOR EXCESS.

Notwithstanding prior dealings between the bank and its customer by which he had for a number of years acquiesced in the payment to the bank of interest on advances at a higher rate than 7 per cent, the rate limited by the Bank Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 29, s. 91, his subsequent mortgage to the bank settling the balance of indebtedness and containing a stipulation for the like excessive interest contravenes the said s. 91, and the insertion by the bank of such a stipulation was ultra vires on its part and the stipulation itself was inoperative; the interest collectable in respect of such mortgage must be calculated at the rate of 5 per cent, as being the legal rate where no special rate has been legally fixed and not the intermediate rate of 7 per cent, for which the bank was entitled to contract.

STATEMENT OF RATE — MORTGAGE.

A clause in a mortgage of real estate that "It is further agreed . . . that the principal is $700 and the rate of interest chargeable thereon is 10 per cent per annum as well after as before default" is a sufficient statement of the amount of the principal and interest to satisfy the requirements of s. 6 of the Interest Act (R. S.C. 1906, c. 120).

Standard Reliance Mortgage Co. v. Stubbs, 38 D.L.R. 435, 55 Can. S.C.R. 422, [1917] 3 W.W.R. 402, reversing 32 D.L.R. 57, 27 Man. L.R. 276, [1917] 1 W.W.R. 850.

A special statement in a mortgage on real estate complete in itself, of the amount of the principal and rate of interest calculated, is not required by s. 6 of the Interest Act (R.S.C. (1906), c. 120); it is sufficient if the facts stated in the mortgage show the principal amount and the rate of interest chargeable thereon.

LOANS — STIPULATED RATE — VOLUNTARY PAYMENTS—RECOVERY BACK.

A stipulation for interest at a certain rate on a loan "until paid" imports a contract to pay interest at the specified rate only until the maturity of the loan. To carry the contract for the stipulated rate beyond the maturity of the loan, explicit terms so providing must be made. Payments at the higher rate voluntarily made can not be recovered back.

AGREEMENT TO REPAY LARGER SUM—DIFFERENCE AS INTEREST—"BLENDED" PAYMENT.

Where in consideration of a present advance of money the borrower agrees to pay the lender a certain larger amount at a future date, the difference between the amount lent and the amount to be paid by the borrower is interest, but the transaction is not one which comes under s. 6 of the Interest Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 120, for the payment of a sum made up by the mere addition of interest to principal, the amounts due in respect of principal and interest respectively being clearly distinguishable, is not a "blended" payment within the meaning of said section.

Cummings v. Silverwood, 11 S.L.R. 407, [1918] 3 W.W.R. 620.

USURIOUS RATE—MONEY-LENDERS ACT—RECOVERY.

One who carries on the business of money-lending in connection with another business is a "money-lender," within the meaning of the Ontario Money-lenders Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 175, though not registered as such, and also the Dominion Money-lenders Act (R.S.C. 1906, c. 122); an exaction of interest in excess of the statutory rate does not invalidate the transaction as a whole, but prevents recovery of the excess. [Bellamy v. Timbers, 19 D.L.R. 488, 31 O.L.R. 618, followed.]

EXCESSIVE RATE — BANK ACT — INTEREST ACT.

An excessive charge of interest in violation of the Bank Act merely renders void the stipulation as to the prohibited rate, but does not affect the liability for the legal rate under the provisions of the Interest Act.

Reference directed to determine whether in making up the amounts of notes, the last of a series of renewals, the makers thereof had been improperly charged with a larger amount than was legally owing by reason of an excessive rate charged with respect to an earlier indebtedness, which they were not estopped from taking exception to on the principle laid down in McHugh v. Union Bank, 10 D.L.R. 562, [1913] A.C. 299. Where a bank stipulates for the payment of interest at an ultra vires rate under a security, that merely affects the rate of interest, and not the entire stipulation to pay interest.

Union Bank v. Farmer, [1917] 1 W.W.R. 1361.

Section 6 of the Interest Act, R.S.C. c. 120, is sufficiently complied with by a mortgage which provides for repayment as follows: "That we will pay to the said company the above sum of $1,000 . . . as follows: The sum of $11.50 on the first Monday of each month for the period of 165 months next ensuing. The first of such monthly instalments to become due and payable on the first Monday of May, 1910. It is declared and agreed between the parties hereto that the principal is $1,000, the rate of interest chargeable thereon is 10 per cent per annum as well after as before default, and that chapter 120 of the Revised Statutes of Canada shall not apply to this mortgage."

LOAN AT INTEREST—USURY—INTEREST ACT—CALCULATION—CONTRARY AGREEMENT—POWER OF JUDGE—C.C. ART. 1149—S. REV., [1906] c. 120 (INTEREST ACT).

The Interest Act is founded on public welfare and does not allow any convention or judicial contract contrary to its provisions. When there is a question of such a contract, the court should set aside the agreement in order to do justice to the parties. In a case where the amount of the judgment is based on some calculations, the Court of Appeal, which arrives at a result approximately the same as that of the Superior Court, will not modify the judgment on this point.

Chequette v. Lalonde, 56 Que. S.C. 252.

(§ 11 B-72)—INTEREST ACT—BILLS OF EXCHANGE ACT—RATE AFTER MATURITY—“LIABILITIES”—CONSTRUED.

The interest after maturity by way of liquidated damages upon a promissory note maturing prior to July 7, 1900, not made with interest, which is to be allowed under the Bills of Exchange Act and the Interest Act, 1900, R.S.C. 1906, c. 120, s. 2, is 6 per cent from the date of maturity to the entry of judgment, although the latter took place subsequent to the passing of the Interest Act, 1900, on July 7, 1900, whereby the legal rate was reduced from 6 to 5 per cent; the exception by that act, as to “liabilities” existing at the time of its passing has reference to the debt and not to the accrued interest to that date, and the interest rate on then existing debts on which 6 per cent would be allowed therefore, was not reduced to 5 per cent, even as to interest to be computed from and after July 7, 1900. (§ III A-75) — COMPOUND INTEREST — BANK — AGREEMENT FROM COURSE OF DEALING ACQUIRED IN.

Where a bank takes to a trustee for itself a mortgage from its customer as collateral to his indebtedness then past due, as represented by the customer's bills and notes, a series of statements of account by the bank to the customer in which the latter is charged with interest compounded from time to time on his debit balances and to which the customer, with full knowledge of the mode of computation, gave his written assent (although marked “E. & O. E.”), must be taken as constituting a stated account in respect of such interest claim and as evidence of an agreement to allow compound interest, although the original authorization of interest merely fixed the rate and was silent as to compounding, where the bank might have closed the account had the customer declined to assent to the compound interest charge.

INTERNAL REVENUE.

WAR REVENUE ACT—PENALTIES—SALES—“CONSUMER.”

A sale made at a retail store of an article subject to stamp duties under the Special War Revenue Act (Can.) 1915, ss. 14-18, is not shewn to be a sale to a “consumer” as defined by s. 14 so as to warrant a summary conviction for neglect to affix a tax stamp to the package, if the purchase was made by a revenue officer on behalf of the Department of Inland Revenue.

SALES TO “CONSUMERS”—WAR REVENUE ACT.

If drug preparations required by the War Revenue Act, 1915, to be stamped on being sold to consumers are sold unstamped to a revenue officer buying only for the purpose of prosecuting the seller, such retail sale may be the subject of prosecution under the Act, as by its terms all sales at retail are to be considered as included in the term “selling to a consumer.” [Patenaude v. Paquet Co., 31 D.L.R. 229, 26 Can. Cr. Cas. 204, disapproved.]

Ethier v. Minister of Inland Revenue, 32 D.L.R. 320, 27 Can. Cr. Cas. 12.

A sale by retail to a revenue inspector buying for the purpose of finding whether or not the seller was complying with the requirements of the War Revenue Act, 1915, Can., in affixing revenue stamps on goods sold, is a sale “to a consumer” within the provisions of that act. [Ethier v. Minister of Inland Revenue, 27 Can. Cr. Cas. 12, 32 D.L.R. 320, followed.]

Minister of Inland Revenue v. Nairn, 35 D.L.R. 224, 28 Can. Cr. Cas. 1, 11 O.W.N. 422.

If drug preparations required by the War Revenue Act, 1915, to be stamped on being sold to consumers are sold unstamped to a revenue officer buying only for the purpose of prosecuting the seller, such retail sale may be the subject of prosecution under the act, as by its terms all sales at retail are to be considered as included in the term “selling to a consumer.” [Patenaude v. Paquet Co., 31 D.L.R. 229, disapproved; Ethier v. Minister of Inland Revenue, 27 Can. Cr. Cas. 12, 32 D.L.R. 320, followed.]

Minister of Inland Revenue v. Thornton, 28 Can. Cr. Cas. 3, 12 O.W.N. 30.

SPECIAL WAR REVENUE ACT, 1915—ADHESIVE STAMP TO BE AFFIXED—WHEN THE OBJECT OF THE ACT IS FULFILLED—5 GEO. V. CAN. c. 9.

When the Special War Revenue Act, 1915, requires that every person selling any of the articles mentioned in the Act shall affix an adhesive stamp upon such articles, the object of the law is practically if not literally fulfilled if, instead of affixing one cent upon one of the articles and two cents upon the other, the person selling has affixed a 3-cent stamp upon one of the 2 articles, thus covering all the tax to be paid on both. A conviction under such circumstances will be quashed but without costs.

Cadotte v. Lazarovitz, 31 Can. Cr. Cas. 43.

TOBACCO—"POSSESSION."

A mere handling, or temporary physical control, of tobacco, belonging to another, does not constitute a "possession" of it within the meaning of that word in s. 356 of the Inland Revenue Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 51.

R. v. Young, 30 Can. Cr. Cas. 137, 24 B.C.R. 482, [1917] 3 W.W.R. 1066.

SALES OF PLAYING CARDS—SPECIAL WAR REVENUE ACT, CANADA.

There is no duty imposed on wholesale or retail dealers in playing cards (not being manufacturers or importers) to stamp packages of cards bought after July 1, 1918, under the provisions of the Special War Revenue Act, 1915, as amended 8-9 Geo. V, 1918, c. 46; but the importer is under obligation to see that stamps are affixed if imported after April 30, 1918.

UNLICENSED POSSESSION OF WASH SUITABLE FOR MAKING SPIRITS—INLAND REVENUE ACT, CAN.—LIMITED JURISDICTION OF POLICE MAGISTRATES.

A police magistrate has jurisdiction to summarily try under Part XV. of the Cr. Code and s. 132 of the Inland Revenue Act, a prosecution for a penalty or forfeiture under the latter act if the amount or value of such penalty or forfeiture does not exceed $500. This has reference to the amount which the statute authorizes as a punishment for the offence rather than to the amount which the magistrate actually imposes, and where accused would be liable in the same proceeding, under ss. 180, 181 of the Act, to an additional penalty of $500 for double the amount of excise duty and license duty as well as the penalty of from $100 to $500 for unlawful possession of a wash suitable for the manufacture of spirits, a police magistrate has no jurisdiction under s. 132 to hear the case.

R. v. Schmolke, 31 Can. Cr. Cas. 395, [1919] 2 W.W.R. 595. [Reversed in [1919] 3 W.W.R. 409.]

WAR TAX—PATENT MEDICINE—CONSUMER.

A merchant who sells and delivers a package of patent medicine without placing thereon the war stamp required by the Revenue Act, 5 Geo. V. c. 8, only incurs the penalty imposed by the Act if he makes the sale to a consumer. A public officer who buys these remedies not for use, but to lay a trap for the seller, is not a consumer.

Patenaude v. Dubé, 26 Que. K.B. 431.

ACTION FOR—DEFENDANT ALLEGING SEIZURE BY CUSTOMS OFFICERS—EXTENT OF DEFENDANT'S ONSUS OF PROOF.

Where, in an action for return of goods and damages for detention, it was alleged in defence that the goods had been seized by the collector of customs for alleged infraction by plaintiff of the customs laws, it was held that defendants were bound to show not only that the goods were held under that seizure at the time the action was commenced but also that the customs authorities were entitled to make the seizure. Counterclaim for storage was dismissed, as by agreement the goods were to be displayed in defendant's store window and they had been stored in the basement after the seizure by the customs officers, and because they were supposed to be under seizure, and defendant's claim for storage was therefore against customs authorities only.

The term "coast" in the treaty of 1818, by which the United States renounced the right to fish within 3 marine miles of the coast of any British territory, is not confined to the coast of the mainland, and a United States vessel is therefore liable to seizure for illegal fishing or preparing to fish within 3 marine miles from the shore of an island of Canada situated 15 miles from the mainland. NOTICE TO PARTIES.

In interpleader proceedings other than by the sheriff it is not necessary for the applicant for relief by way of interpleader to notify the parties claiming before applying for relief.

(§ 1—10)—STOCK CERTIFICATES NOT HELD BY SHERIFF—ALLEGED PRIOR ASSIGNMENT—RIGHT TO INTERPLEAD.

A sheriff, on making seizure of shares of a company in the statutory manner by service of notice upon the company, is entitled to interplead, though he has not actual possession of the share certificates, where a claim is made under an alleged prior assignment of the shares which is denied by the execution creditor. Where there is a contest in interpleader between an execution creditor and several persons who set up alleged assignments as prior to the execution, there should be only one issue directed between them for the guidance of the sheriff and for the adjustment of the rights of the several claimants. CLAIMANT DISPUTING THAT SEIZURE MADE.

Where a seizure of a crop of grain cut and in stook in the field was made by the sheriff's officer going to the debtor's farm and serving a notice of seizure of such grain describing it as "about 100 acres of wheat in stook," what was done is at least tantamount to an effective seizure under the writ of execution, and an adverse claimant who has intervened upon an interpleader application brought by the sheriff, and who has asked therein that his right under the adverse claim shall be determined, will not be allowed to set up that there was in fact no valid seizure.

ORDER DISPOSING OF GOODS SEIZED—CLAIMANTS—SHERIFF'S STATUS.

In an interpleader proceeding with an issue pending as between the claimants and the execution creditors, and with goods under seizure in the sheriff's hands, the sheriff has the right (although not a party to the pending issue) to apply for an order disposing of the goods under seizure upon failure of the claimant to comply with the terms of the interpleader order, but only upon proper grounds being shown, e.g., where it is inconvenient or expensive for him to retain them. Where, by an interpleader order in respect of goods seized by a sheriff, it has been directed that an issue be tried between the claimants and the execution creditors, the sheriff not being a party to the issue is not entitled to apply for an order to bar the claimants as against the execution creditor for non-compliance with the terms of the interpleader order.

RIGHT OF APPEAL.

An interpleader by a sheriff who has seized goods in an action is to be considered a proceeding in such action, not a separate action, and no appeal lies from a District Court if the amount in controversy in such action is less than the amount in respect of which the District Courts Act (Sask.), grants a right of appeal, though the value of the goods seized may exceed such amount.

EXECUTION CREDITOR—PRACTICE.

In interpleader proceedings the execution creditor should be made the plaintiff regardless of where the possession of the goods is.

EXECUTION—WIFE'S PROPERTY—PARTIES.

Until the presumption of ownership implied from possession is properly displaced, property in the possession of a married woman prima facie belongs to her. In an interpleader issue between an execution creditor and the debtor's wife, as to property claimed by her, the former may be made plaintiff to the issue; the form of the issue is immaterial.

Young v. Spofford, 32 D.L.R. 262, 37 O.L.R. 663. [See also 11 O.W.N. 232, 253.]

EXECUTION—TITLE TO PROPERTY—PARTNERSHIP.

In an interpleader issue as to goods seized under execution, it is not incumbent upon the claimant to prove that the goods are his absolute property, but he may shew that they are the joint or partnership property of himself and the judgment debtor, not exigible under the writ. PRACTICE—SHERIFF'S INTERPLEADER—CARRIAGE OF PROCEEDINGS BY ONE CREDITOR ON BEHALF OF ALL—NECESSITY OF OBTAINING SUCH DIRECTION—COSTS.

Execution creditors who are parties to interpleader proceedings by a sheriff should take advantage of s. 3 (c) of the Creditors' Relief Act, R.S.S., 1909, c. 63, and apply to the district court judge for a direction that one creditor shall bear the carriage of the proceedings on behalf of all, and their omission so to do is a matter that the court may properly take into consideration in determining the question of costs. Such application should be made promptly at an early stage of the proceedings. Where, therefore, execution creditors acted through separate solicitors and counsel in the court below, the Court of Appeal refused to make such a direction.

PRACTICE—ISSUE BETWEEN CLAIMANT AND EXECUTION CREDITORS—PROPER PLAINTIFF.

(P.E.I.), c. 11, the sheriff was not entitled to an order as the claims of the attaching creditors did not fall within the nature of the claims contemplated by that enactment.

SHERIFF'S NOTICE—DUTY OF EXECUTION CREDITOR—COSTS.

The proper course for an execution creditor on receipt of notice from the sheriff that a claim has been made to goods seized under his execution, is to make enquiries and satisfy himself as to the title of the claimant and within 4 days after receiving the notice to give notice in writing to the sheriff that he admits or disputes the claim, and in the event of admitting the claim, he will only be liable for the fees and expenses incurred prior to the receipt of the notice by the sheriff. It is not the duty of the sheriff to obtain further information in regard to the claimant's title and serve the same on the execution creditors. If rr. 490 or 491 (Alta.) are not complied with, the execution creditor who subsequently admits the title of the claimant may be ordered to pay all costs of the sheriff and claimant.

In an interpleader issue as to the right to mortgage money which has been assigned to one as trustee for the purpose of adjusting certain claims of a corporation, if it appears that none of the parties are entitled to it, the court, in order to ensure a proper disposition of the fund for the benefit of all creditors, will of its own motion order the fund paid to the liquidator of the corporation.

EXAMINATION FOR DISCOVERY—QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS OFFERED IN EVIDENCE—RULE 303 SASK.—GOODS SEIZED—APPARENT POSSESSION—ONUS OF PROOF.

In an interpleader action, after certain evidence had been given, counsel for the claimant offered in evidence questions and answers from his own clients' examination for discovery; these were objected to but were received. The court held that under r. 303 (Sask.), counsel for the claimant had no right to put in this evidence. Where goods seized are, at the time of the seizure, in the actual or apparent possession of the judgment debtor, the presumption is that the goods are his and the onus is upon the claimant to establish title thereto; where, however, the goods at the time of seizure are not in the actual or apparent possession of the execution debtor, the onus is upon the execution creditor to establish his right to seize them. The party upon whom the substantial onus of proof rests should be made plaintiff in the issue.

GOODS SEIZED—PARTNERSHIP PROPERTY—PARTNERSHIP ACT (R.S. SASK. 1909, c. 143).

An execution creditor must prove in an interpleader action that the goods seized are the property of the execution debtor, and if that debtor be a partner of the claimant, and the goods seized under the execution partnership property, the Partnership Act R.S.S. 1909, c. 143, s. 25, forbids their seizure.

ORDER DIRECTING AN ISSUE—NECESSARY REQUIREMENTS OF — JUDGE SHOULD SETTLE ISSUES BETWEEN PARTIES.

In an interpleader matter the judge, by order, directed an issue "whether the stock transfer in question in this action (Montgomery v. Hunter, administratrix) is the property of the said Montgomery as against the said Hunter." Held that this form of issue was wrong for two reasons: (1) It was the traditional form adopted in the case of a contest between an execution creditor and a claimant to goods seized under execution. It was not appropriate to a contest between 2 claimants to goods, where neither of their respective titles depended upon some title overriding the title of a third person. (2) There was nothing on the face of it to show the nature of the claim of either party or the grounds upon which either sought to invalidate the claim of the other. The Master or judge should, in cases of interpleader, settle the issues between the parties, being careful to make them specific and so as to cover all the points really in question. If he finds that he cannot conveniently settle the issues himself at the time the application is before him, he may direct that the parties should exchange pleadings, and thereby settle the issues.

TEMPERANCE ACT—SUSPENSION.

The Nova Scotia Temperance Act, 1910, is to be considered as having come into force in its entirety on the passing thereof subject to the suspension of certain provisions in particular localities in terms of the statute; and as to the city of Halifax, the suspension ceased as to the operation of Part II, dealing with penalties for the infraction of Part I, when the legislature in 1916 amended s. 3 of the Act by declaring that Part I. should apply to every part of Nova Scotia in which the Canada Temperance Act is not in force.

POWER OF PROVINCE TO PROHIBIT ORDERS FOR LIQUOR.

The taking or receipt of an order by a resident of a province from another person within such province for the supplying of liquor for beverage purposes within the same province, is a transaction that has its beginning and end within the province, and constitutes a subject upon which a provincial legislature has power to legislate by way of restriction or prohibition, since it is a matter of a purely local or private nature within the province.

Section 10 of the British Columbia Act prohibits the sale of intoxicating liquor, and s. 28 provides for a penalty of imprisonment with hard labour for a term of not less than 6 months and not more than 12 months for violation of any of the provisions thereof. An O. C. under the War Measures Act, 1914, (Can.) passed March 11, 1918, provides inter alia, that no person shall either directly or indirectly sell or contract or agree to sell any intoxicating liquor which is in or which is to be delivered within any province wherein the sale of intoxicating liquor is by provincial law prohibited. It provided a penalty for the first offence of not less than $200 or more than $1,000, and in default of immediate payment, to imprisonment for not less than 3 or more than 6 months for violation of any of the provisions of the regulations, and it further provided that the regulations be construed as supplementary to other prohibitory laws then in force or that may be thereafter in force in any province. The accused was convicted by a magistrate and sentenced to 6 months in prison under the Provincial Act. Held, on appeal, that from the difference in the penalty clauses in the two pieces of legislation a conflict is apparent, and notwithstanding the provision that the regulations be construed as supplementary to the prohibitory laws in force in the province, the O. C. must be construed as superseding s. 10 of the Provincial Act, and the conviction is quashed. [R. v. Thorburn, 41 O.L.R. 39 followed].

MUNICIPAL REGULATION—LEGISLATIVE ACT—VALIDITY OF BY-LAW.

The act of a municipal council in passing a local option by-law is a legislative Act and so would be its repeal by the council; and the court has no jurisdiction to compel the repeal of the third reading of a by-law by mandatory order to the council, whether or no an interim injunction against the third reading remained effective pending an appeal from the trial judgment.

The amendments to the Liquor License Act in Man. 1914, c. 58 s. 10, apply only to local option by-laws already voted upon and passed when such 1914 statute took effect; as to later local option by-laws it remains obligatory under the Liquor License Act, Amendment 1910, s. 74B, that the affidavit or declaration proving signatures to the petition should set forth in the affidavit the names of the petitioners whose signatures it purports to verify; a general reference in the affidavits to all the signatures in the petition is insufficient, and the municipality may be restrained by injunction from acting under it.

PROCEDURE AND ELECTION—REMOVAL—LIMITATIONS.

A municipal council cannot by its consent interfere with the statutory prohibition of renewal of a local option contest for 3 years after a vote properly taken, nor with the right of the electors to compel the submission of the question by a properly signed petition where the 3 year limitation does not apply; nor can the council's admission on the pleadings in an action against the municipality for a declaration that a by-law had not been legally submitted, give jurisdiction to the court to bind other ratepayers not before it by a judgment which is nothing more than a private bargain between the municipality and the suing ratepayer that the statutory provisions shall not be effective against him and other ratepayers in the like interest.

Municipal Act, Ont., 1903, and by s. 7 (35) of the Interpretation Act, 1907, which provide that deviations not affecting the substance or calculated to mislead or which appear not to have affected the result are not to be grounds for annulling the vote.

Where a petition is filed to submit such by-law and the petitioner's name also appears upon the voters' list, it is to be presumed that the municipal officer, in preparing said list, properly performed his official duty, and that every name thereon is that of a duly qualified voter, and the burden is upon the opponents of the petition to shew the contrary.

ELECTION — REQUISITION TO COMMISSIONER — BASIS IN ESTIMATING NUMBER OF ELECTORS.

Under the provisions of s. 124 of the Liquor License Ordinance, Con. Ord. 1898 (N.W.T.), c. 89 as amended by 2 & 3 Geo. V. (Alta.) c. 8, s. 26, requiring a member of the Board of License Commissioners to order the taking of a poll under such local option provisions, to ascertain whether or not licenses for the sale of intoxicating liquors should be granted within a certain license district of the province on the presentation to him of a requisition signed by at least one-fifth of the total number of electors of the district, such number must necessarily be estimated by the commissioner; and although, under subs. 2 of s. 124, the estimate is based on the number of persons who voted in the last provincial election, it should be made by taking, merely as a starting point, the number of votes so polled, and then building up or cutting down from that as the case may be, according to the information available, and thus ascertaining as nearly as possible the number now entitled to vote, the votes so polled being merely the basis of the estimate, and not, of itself, determining the number of electors for the proposed poll; in other words, being the foundation upon which the superstructure is to be built, and not both foundation and superstructure; hence the estimate considers the enumerators' lists, the influx of population and other relevant factors, as well as the number of votes cast at the preceding provincial election. The presentation to a license commissioner of the requisition provided in s. 124 of the Liquor License Ordinance, Con. Ord. 1898 (N.W.T.), c. 89, as amended by 2 & 3 Geo. V. (Alta.) c. 8, s. 26, is a condition precedent to the right of such commissioner to order the taking of a poll to ascertain whether or not licenses for the sale of intoxicating liquors should be granted within his district, and such requisition must strictly comply with provisions of that section. A list of voters prepared by an enumerator, while not conclusive as to the right of the persons therein named to vote, is prima facie evidence of that fact, in an action against a license commissioner for a declaration that he is not justified in holding a poll under the local option provisions of the Liquor License Ordinance, Con. Ord. 1898 (N.W.T.), c. 89, as amended by 2 & 3 Geo. V. (Alta.) c. 8, s. 26, where the question as to the numerical sufficiency of the number of electors on the requisition for such poll arises. Under the local option provisions of the Liquor License Ordinance, Con. Ord. 1898 (N.W.T.), c. 89, as amended by 2 & 3 Geo. V. (Alta.) c. 8 (comprised in s. 124), the presentation of the requisition for the proposed poll is the foundation of the jurisdiction of the license commissioner, and where it is proved that the license commissioner proposed to command the taking of the poll on a requisition signed only by one-fifth of the number of electors who voted at the last provincial election, this establishes an attempt, on the commissioner's part, to act without jurisdiction and shifts upon him the onus of shewing numerical sufficiency strictly.

Upon an application to quash a by-law submitted to the electors on the ground that unauthorized names were entered upon the list of voters used in voting upon the by-law, the court will not go behind the certificate of the County Court Judge affixed to the revised list under provisions of s. 21 of the *Con. SUFFICIENCY OF PETITION — ASCERTAINING NUMBER OF QUALIFIED VOTERS.

Section 137 (4) of the Liquor License Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 215, provides for the submission by the council to the municipal electors of a local option by-law or (see subs. (8)) a repealing by-law, if a petition "signed by at least 25 per cent of the total number of persons appearing by the last revised voters' list of the municipality to be qualified to vote at municipal elections" is filed with the Clerk:—Held, that in order to ascertain whether a petition duly filed is sufficiently signed, the number of persons who appear by the voters' list to be qualified to vote is to be taken into consideration; if one-fourth of these persons have signed the petition, the statutory requirement is answered. The name of a person may be repeated once or oftener on the list, but that does not increase the number of persons. The unimpeached affidavit of the applicant, upon a motion for a mandamus to the council to submit a repealing by-law, the number of persons on the voters' list was only 3,625, while there were in name 4,337, was accepted; and a mandamus was granted. That the applicant was an officer or servant (auditor) of the municipal corporation was considered unobjectionable.

Under the Temperance Law of Quebec only municipal electors in cities and towns who pay their taxes before Nov. 1, in each year, have the right to vote upon a by-law prohibiting the sale of spirituous liquors within the municipal limits, notwithstanding art. 1321 of that law. It would be otherwise if the voting took place under the Municipal Code which only requires that a municipal elector be qualified by the payment of taxes before the date fixed by a municipal by-law to this effect, or, in default, before the voting day. The president of a meeting called to take the vote has a right to vote upon such by-law.

Although license commissioners are directed by statute to take evidence "on oath" upon determining an application for license, they may, nevertheless, proceed upon admissions made by the parties and their counsel at the hearing, and so take cognizance of tacit acquiescence of both parties in a proposal to obtain the report of the license inspector and in the subsequent consideration of his report by the commissioners without objection from counsel. ASSIGNABILITY—ABANDONMENT OF LICENSE IN FAVOUR OF ANOTHER.

The license for the sale of intoxicating liquors granted by the collector of revenue is not a commercial matter. It is only a permission and a privilege granted by the State, the issue and delivery of which is subject to the approbation of the license commissioners. In consequence, the holder of such license can neither sell nor transfer, nor absolutely guarantee its confirmation. But the holder can, for good consideration, abandon his license and its renewal in favour of an assignee, who assumes the risk of the approbation or refusal to confirm by the commissioners, but it should be done in express terms.

Where a petition for liquor license reduction under the Liquor License Act, R.S. O. 1914, c. 215, s. 16, was not in fact duly signed and the municipal council knew that it was not, and acted in defiance of the statutory provision or without appreciating the fact that the power of the council itself to initiate a reduction by-law which once existed had been taken from it, the by-law based on such petition must be quashed.

Re Grieg & London, 22 D.L.R. 595, 8 O.W. N. 177.

(§ II A—39)—LIQUOR LICENSE HELD IN NAME OF ANOTHER.

It is inconsistent with the policy of the Quebec License Law (R.S.Q. 1909), that the ownership of a license to sell intoxicating liquors should be vested in one person while the license is held in the name of another; and an agreement having that effect is void inasmuch as it establishes conditions contrary to the policy of the statute.

REVIEW BY COURT.

Under s. 50 of the Municipal Act (B.C.), 1915, the Board of License Commissioners has the absolute discretion to grant the renewal of licenses, and where no bad faith is shown the court will not interfere with the Board's discretion in refusing to grant a renewal of hotel licenses, even where such refusal would result in a total denial of liquor licenses in the municipality.

R. v. License Commissioners of Point Grey; Ex parte Grauer and Robinson, 26 D.L.R. 75, 32 W.L.R. 360, 8 W.W.R. 1072.

PROHIBITION BY-LAW—CONTEST.

A collector of provincial revenue cannot refuse to grant a license for the sale of spirituous liquors, upon the production of a certificate approved by the municipal council, on the ground that the by-law prohibiting the sale of such liquors, in the county, had been sent to him by the secretary-treasurer when the by-law had been quashed by the Superior Court and had not been promulgated, and could not, on that account, be put into force. Art. 564, Mun. Code, which forbids the collector of provincial revenue from issuing a license within two months from the date of a judgment annulling a prohibitory by-law, for the territory affected by such by-law, unless such judgment be a final judgment, applies only to a by-law emanating from the local council and not to one enacted by the county council. Article 978 of the Liquor License Act, which is to the same effect as art. 564, Mun. Code, applies only to a prohibitory by-law ratified by vote of the electors. The fact that a prohibition by-law has been contested in the Superior Court is no obstacle to the promulgation of such by-law.

LICENSE COMMISSIONERS—MONTREAL—CONFIRMATION OF CERTIFICATE—RENEWAL OF LICENSE—DISCRETION OF COMMISSIONERS—COLLECTION OF REVENUE—CERTIORARI—WRIT OF PROHIBITION—MANDAMUS—QUEBEC C.P. 50—LICENSE ACT, 63 VICT. c. 13—5 EDW. VII. c. 13, s. 21, R.S.Q. ss. 925, 926, 939, 940, 942, 1002.

Since 5 Edw. VII. c. 13, s. 21, the discretion of the license commissioners of Montreal as to the confirmation of the certificate is no longer absolute; it is limited by ss.

925, 926, of the License Act; this confirmation ought not to be granted, except when the act expressly declares that it should be refused. When the act does not expressly prescribe a remedy, the court should apply the one which is most appropriate, no one having rights without having power to exercise them. Ubi jus ibi remedium. On principle, if the commissioners unlawfully refuse to confirm a certificate, and there is no other remedy but that of directing the collector of provincial revenue to issue the license without confirmation of the certificate, the court should direct him to do so, although the act does not permit him to grant a license when the certificate has not been confirmed by the commissioners. But, in this case there was a remedy, the judgment should have refused the application of the defendant for a renewal of his license, before the license commissioners, instead of requiring the collector of provincial revenue to give him a license without confirmation of his certificate. When the act replaces the license commissioners by a new commission, the former commissioners have jurisdiction to decide cases pending before them, even after the expiration of their term of office. When a decision of the license commissioners refusing to confirm a certificate has been reversed by certiorari, the judgment being without appeal, they can, by a writ of mandamus, receive an order to render a new decision, observing the requirements of the law as laid down by the judgment of the court of first instance.

Boisseau v. Parker, 23 Que. K.B. 450.

CONFIRMATION OF CERTIFICATE—OPPOSITION.

The confirmation of a license is left by the act entirely to the discretion of the municipal council to which it is presented. When the majority of the municipal electors of an electoral district oppose the confirmation of a certificate of a license of sale for intoxicating liquors, they should prove to the municipal council that their opposition contains the signatures of such majority, and see that all the formalities required by the act are observed; if they do not, the council may, in its discretion, disregard them and confirm the certificate.

Pilon v. Lachine, 47 Que. S.C. 193.

RENEWAL OF LICENSE—DISCRETION.

When a municipal council has adopted a by-law limiting the number of licenses, and refuses to confirm a certificate for the renewal of a license for the sale of liquor, without giving its reason for its refusal, the municipality is not liable for the damages suffered by the petitioner although the license granted under such circumstances to another person is void.

Latour v. Montreal, 48 Que. S.C. 61.

(§ II B-41)—LICENSING BOARD—JUDICIAL SCOPE OF—ADMINISTRATIVE FUNCTIONS.

A board of license commissioners exercising jurisdiction under the Municipal Act, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 170, in connection with the granting transfer or renewal of liquor licenses, is, in effect, a court and as such is bound by and subject to rules as to judicial notice and competent evidence. That the proceedings of a Board of License Commissioners in granting a license for the sale of intoxicating liquors may be reviewed on certiorari, is inherent to the judicial as distinct from the purely administrative functions of the board. [R. v. License Commissioners of Point Grey, 14 D.L.R. 721, applied.] The duties of the Board of License Commissioners sitting as a licensing court under s. 330 of the Municipal Act, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 170, are, as set out in that statute, judicial in character, the administrative functions connected therewith being with the municipal council.

C. CONTEST; REMONSTRANCE; AS TO RENEWAL OF LICENSE.

(§ II C—45)—CONTEST.

Under the Quebec License Act of License Commissioners of Montreal, in adjudicating upon the rights and the qualification of a person asking for the confirmation of a certificate for a license for a restaurant, exercise judicial functions, and there is no distinction to be made between an application to which an opposition has been filed and one which is unopposed. The commissioners must give notice to the applicant of whether or not an opposition is made to his application for confirmation of the certificate before deciding it on the facts within their knowledge of which he is ignorant but which justify a refusal of the application.

Blouin v. Choquet, 13 Que. P.R. 317.

Art. 937 R.S.Q., 1909, providing for quashing of a resolution confirming a certificate for a license is not restrictive. Thus, when the resolution confirming a certificate has been adopted by the council of a city or town it can be contested in the manner set out in the Cities and Towns Act.

Pilon v. Lachine, 14 Que. P.R. 392.

(§ II C—46)—OPPOSITION TO RENEWAL.

The holder of a liquor license, the renewal of which is opposed, has the right to be heard in support of his claim for a renewal and to submit evidence in respect thereof, and a judgment rendered by License Commissioners refusing a renewal to the license holder, but without his having been called upon to defend himself is radically null and will be quashed on certiorari. The License Commissioners for the Province of Quebec although endowed with ministerial functions, yet, in cases of oppositions to renewals of license certificates, exercise judicial duties, and such contestations must be heard and tried as any other case brought into court.

Nurnberger v. Choquet, 1 D.L.R. 512.

Petition or opposition to the confirmation of certificates for licenses for the sale of liquor in a municipality, filed with the municipal council, must contain the signatures of the majority of the municipal electors residing or having their place of business in the polling subdivision in which is situated the house for which the license in question is to apply. Such petition or opposition must be filed with the clerk of said council previous to the date fixed for the taking into consideration of said certificate. It must be established that proof was duly submitted to said council to prove to the satisfaction of the council that the demand for license is opposed by the majority of all the electors resident as aforesaid in the polling subdivision.

R. v. Kaulbach, 15 D.L.R. 524, 22 Can. Cr. Cas. 219.

KEEPING FOR SALE—EVIDENCE—SUFFICIENCY.

That the keeper of a boarding-house had liquors on his premises for sale in violation of law is not established by evidence of a sale of liquor for delivery at his address, where it does not appear that it was purchased by or for him, or that it was delivered at his house.

PROVINCIAL CRIMINAL LAW—CRIMINAL OFFENCE.

The unlawful sale of intoxicating liquor in contravention of the Nova Scotia Temperance Act, 1900, is a "criminal offence" against a provincial criminal law. [Re McNutt, 21 Can. Cr. Cas. 157, 10 D.L.R. 834, 47 Can. S.C.R. 259, applied.]

PROHIBITED DISTRICT—QUEBEC LICENSE LAW.

A district collector of provincial revenue in Quebec may prosecute for illegal sales of liquor without a license in a municipality having a local option by-law without first giving a notice to the municipality requiring them to prosecute under art. 1108, R.S.Q. 1909; but he is to give that notice if he wishes to charge the municipality with the costs of a prosecution instituted by him in case of its default.

Gélinas v. Jolin, 34 D.L.R. 700, 51 Que. S.C. 26, 27 Can. Cr. Cas. 392.

An information for selling liquor without a license authorizing such sale under the Liquor License Act, c. 142, R.S.B.C. 1911, s. 66, need not describe the offence in the exact words of the statute, if the defendant, from the form of the information, receives particulars of the charge such as he himself might ask for if the information had been in the words of the statute.

R. v. Campbell, 8 D.L.R. 321, 20 Can. Cr. Cas. 490, 3 W.W.R. 192.

A summary conviction for selling intoxicating liquor without a license will be quashed for want of jurisdiction in the magistrate, if the only evidence before him was that the defendant purchased the liquor for the use of himself and others upon a hunting expedition and received from the treasurer of the common fund reimbursement only for the purchase made by the defendant at the treasurer's request, and where there is nothing to discredit the evidence so given.

The King v. Lawless, 2 D.L.R. 105, 3 O.W.N. 669, 21 O.W.R. 247.

Upon a conviction for selling liquor without a license when the defence has been that only nonintoxicating liquor has been sold, it is a good ground for quashing the conviction that the magistrate refused to allow the liquor found on the premises to be analyzed.

R. v. Stephenson, 8 D.L.R. 104, 4 O.W.N. 272, 20 Can. Cr. Cas. 297, 23 O.W.R. 269.

PROOF OF OFFENCE.

The fact that a person charged with unlawfully keeping liquor for sale contrary to the Liquor Act, c. 4, 1916 (Alta.), and in whose house liquor has been found, swears definitely that he is innocent and calls witnesses to corroborate his testimony, does not necessarily satisfy the onus placed upon him by s. 54 of the Act of proving that he did not commit the offence. The principle of R. v. Covert, 34 D.L.R. 662, 10 A.L.R. 349, must be strictly limited and the cases to which it applies must be of very rare occurrence. On an appeal from the dismissal, by Ives, J., of an application to quash a conviction for unlawfully keeping liquor for sale contrary to the Liquor Act, c. 4, 1916, held, distinguishing R. v. Covert, supra, that there being not only evidence sufficient under the Act to constitute prima facie proof of the offence, but also circumstances of a suspicious character pointing to the guilt of the accused, the conviction should be sustained.

SALE WITHOUT LICENSE—LOCAL OPTION DISTRICT—AMENDING CONVICTION—STATUTORY PRESUMPTION FROM FINDING LIQUOR IN QUANTITY.

Under the Liquor License Act (Man.), the onus of proving a license to sell is placed upon the accused (s. 203), and where such onus is not rebutted, a conviction for unlawfully selling without license is justified under s. 159 on the finding of more liquor than the accused would reasonably require upon his premises if he fails to rebut the statutory presumption of selling which arises thereupon; and the court may make the necessary amendments to a conviction purporting to be for selling in a local option district so as to make it merely a conviction for selling without a license without entering into a consideration of the validity of the local option by-law, the provision for sale without license being equally applicable whether or no there was a valid local option by-law. A statutory presumption of illegal sale of liquor is raised under s. 204 of the Liquor License Act (Man.), against the person on whose premises is found more intoxicating liquor than is reasonably required for the use of a person not licensed to sell; and by virtue of s. 215 such presumption will support a conviction for illegal sale without license as being an offence under the same statute, although the information was only for unlawful possession of liquors in a local option district and did not allege a sale by the accused.

"HAVING" LIQUOR NOT IN DWELLING HOUSE.

A conviction under s. 49 of the Manitoba Temperance Act, 6 Geo. V., Man., c. 112, for "having" liquor in a place other than a dwelling house cannot be supported against the proprietor of a licensed pool room because of the possession and use of liquor by another person, not being his servant or agent, who was lawfully on the premises for the purpose of playing pool and who had brought the liquor there in his pocket and used the same without the connivance or consent of the proprietor. STATUTORY PRESUMPTION—EXCESSIVE QUANTITY.

The keeper of a boarding house who permits a boarder to bring an excessive quantity of intoxicants upon the premises for unlawful consumption is properly convicted of "having" intoxicating liquor for sale in a local option district because of the statutory presumption of s. 102 (2) of the Liquor License Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 215, making possession of an excessive quantity of liquor "conclusive evidence" that it was kept for sale in contravention of the Act.

UNLAWFUL POSSESSION—STATUTORY PRESUMPTION FROM DRINKING LIQUOR IN PLACE WHERE POSSESSION UNLAWFUL—PLACE OF POSSESSION DIFFERING IN INFORMATION AND DEPOSITIONS.

A charge of having liquor in a boarding house is not sustained by evidence that the accused drank liquor on the street. Such evidence would, under 1917 (Ont.), c. 50, s. 10, have shifted the onus of proof to the defendant on a charge of unlawful possession in the street and the magistrate might have amended the information under 1916 (Ont.), c. 78, but not having done so the court, on a certiorari motion, must quash the conviction.

UNLAWFUL SALE BY LICENSED VENDOR IN A DISTRICT TO WHICH HIS LICENSE DID NOT EXTEND.

A liquor vendor's license under the Nova Scotia Temperance Act affords no defence in respect of a sale made outside of the district for which he is appointed a vendor. If he sells intoxicating liquor outside the bounds of the municipality for which he is appointed he is as liable to prosecution as any private individual and it was not necessary to charge him with one of the offences of which a licensed vendor may be guilty in that capacity under the Act.

Under the Ontario Temperance Act, 1916,

c. 50, s. 51, and 1917, c. 50, s. 18, it is necessary to determine whether a physician charged with illegally issuing requisition for liquor in evasion of the Act acted in good faith in granting the requisition; and this involves a question of motive upon which evidence of other requisitions issued in large numbers by him in a short time may be admitted in proof of mala fides. ILLEGAL PRESCRIPTION BY PHYSICIAN—SUPPORTING AN INFORMER—INTENT—LIQUOR ACT, 1916, ALTA., c. 4.

The fact that an offence against the Liquor Act (Alta.) was induced by an informer acting in conjunction with the government department charged with the enforcement of the Act, goes only to the credibility of the informer. A conviction of a physician whom the informer had induced to illegally give him a prescription for liquor (Liquor Act, 1916, Alta., s. 32) is not bad because the informer had no purpose or intention to use the liquor as a beverage. It is enough that the physician's purpose was to enable the informer to obtain liquor for use as a beverage.

"WINE" CONTAINING LARGE PERCENTAGE OF PROOF SPIRITS FOUND IN WAREHOUSE OF WHOLESALE GROCER—EVIDENCE OF INTOXICATION—ADMISSIBILITY—PROPRIETARY OR PATENT MEDICINE ACT.

The defendant, a wholesale grocer, upon prosecution before a magistrate for keeping intoxicating liquor for sale contrary to the Ontario Temperance Act, 6 Geo. V, c. 50, was proved to have had in his possession, at his warehouse, a quantity of "Hall's wine," which, on analysis, was found to contain 31.33 per cent of proof spirits. The defendant was convicted:—Held, upon a motion to quash the conviction, that the wine must be "conclusively deemed to be intoxicating" (s. 2 (f) of the Act); and the defendant was liable to be convicted unless he proved that he did not commit the offence charged (s. 88); but evidence given on behalf of the prosecutor to show that the wine was capable of being used and was in some boarding houses used as a beverage, and that its use resulted in intoxication, was not inadmissible; it went to confirm the statutory presumption that the wine was intoxicating and to negative the suggestion that the wine was so medicated as to prevent its use as an alcoholic beverage. Held, also, that the wine did not come within the requirements of s. 125, which stipulates that the Act shall not prevent the sale of certain fluids containing alcohol; and the defendant himself did not come within that section, not being a druggist, or the manufacturer of the wine, or a merchant who dealt in drugs and medicines. Held, also, that the Dominion Proprietary or Patent Medicine Act, 7 & 8 Edw. VII, c. 56, is not to be taken to be in pari materia with the Ontario Temperance Act; nor, by the importation of s. 7 of the Dominion Act, is the Ontario Act to be read as exempting from its operation all proprietary medicines duly registered. Differences between the 2 Acts pointed out and their meaning and scope defined. Reference to the Dominion statute 7 & 8 Geo. V, c. 30, s. 4d, enacting that the provisions of the Proprietary or Patent Medicine Act, "shall not be deemed to in any way affect any provincial law."

R. v. Axler, 40 O.L.R. 304.

MAGISTRATE'S CONVICTION—EVIDENCE—TESTIMONY OF POLICE OFFICERS—TESTIMONY NOT INTERPRETED—LIQUOR FOUND ON PREMISES—PRESUMPTION—ABSENCE OF SEARCH WARRANT.

Upon a motion to quash a magistrate's conviction of the defendant for selling intoxicating liquor, contrary to s. 40 of the Ontario Temperance Act, 6 Geo. V, c. 50:—Held, that there was evidence before the magistrate sufficient to justify the conviction. (2) That, although evidence that complaints were made to the police to the effect that intoxicating liquor was being sold in the defendant's house was improperly admitted, it would not be fair to say that the inadmissible statements might have had some influence upon the magistrate's decision; for the evidence as to the alleged sale was conclusive, if believed, and no credible explanation was given of the presence in the defendant's house of a large quantity of intoxicating liquor. (3) That there is no rigid rule that in every case all the evidence shall be made intelligible to the accused; and the objection that the evidence of a Polish witness, while translated into English, was not translated into Italian, which was said to be the only language that the accused understood, was overruled, it not being shown that the accused suffered any prejudice in that regard. (4) That the magistrate in convicting did not act upon any statutory or other presumption, but simply drew his conclusions from the facts proved; and, therefore, there was no ground for the objection that the finding of liquor upon the premises raised no presumption against the accused because the police officers who found it had no search warrant and no authority to enter the house.

APARTMENT HOUSE—KEEPING LIQUOR IN CELLAR—"PRIVATE DWELLING HOUSE."

The defendant, the occupant of a suite of rooms in an apartment house, kept in a compartment of the cellar under the house, of which compartment he had the sole use and occupation, but which did not form part of the suite in which he lived, a stock of intoxicating liquors:—Held, that the compartment in the cellar should be regarded as part of "the private dwelling house" in which the defendant resided; and a magistrate's conviction for an offence against s. 41 (1), of the Ontario Temperance Act, 6 Geo. V. c. 50, was quashed.

R. v. Obermeyer, 40 O.L.R. 264.

HAVING LIQUOR IN RAILWAY CAR BY SERVANTS—"PRIVATE DWELLING HOUSE"—"EXCLUSIVELY USED."

A motion to quash a magistrate's conviction of the defendant for having intoxicating liquor in a place not his private dwelling house, contrary to s. 41 of the Ontario Temperance Act, 6 Geo. V. c. 50, was dismissed; and it was held, that a railway car in which the defendant and three other men, all employed by the railway company, lived, which car was sometimes used as a means of transportation, was not the "private dwelling house" in which the defendant resided, within the meaning of s. 41 and the interpretation clause of the Act, s. 2 (1). The car was a dwelling, but it was not "private," nor was it "exclusively used" as a place of residence. The magistrate, having found that the car was not a private dwelling house, had made a finding of fact which could not be reviewed on a motion to quash.

R. v. Gulex, 39 O.L.R. 539, 28 Can. Cr. Cas. 261.

HAVING LIQUOR IN MOTOR CAR—DEPOSITIONS NOT READ OR SIGNED—CARRYING LIQUOR FROM ONE LAWFUL PLACE TO ANOTHER.

Upon a motion to quash a conviction of the defendant, by a magistrate, for unlawfully having intoxicating liquor in her possession, elsewhere than in her private dwelling house—she had a bottle of gin in her motor car—contrary to s. 41 of the Ontario Temperance Act, 6 Geo. V. c. 50:—Held, that failure on the part of the magistrate to comply with s. 74 of the Act, by causing the depositions of the witnesses to be read over to and signed by them, did not invalidate the conviction, at all events unless it was shown that the defendant was in some way prejudiced thereby. [R. v. Leach, 17

(2) It was objected that no offence was proved. But the defendant had in her possession the liquor in respect of which she was prosecuted, and it was for her to prove that she did not commit the offence with which she was charged: s. 88. The defence was that the defendant was carrying the liquor from one place where she might lawfully have it to another such place, and that no use had been made of it en route: s. 43 (amended by 7 Geo. V. c. 50, s. 14). If the magistrate did not believe the defendant's statement (which was not shown), that was the end of the case [R. v. Le Clair, 39 O.L.R. 436]; it could not be assumed that he did believe the statement but proceeded upon a view of the effect of s. 43 different from that put forward by the defendant. The motion was dismissed.

ONTARIO TEMPERANCE ACT—MAGISTRATE'S CONVICTION OF LICENSED BREWER FOR UNLAWFUL SALE OF INTOXICATING LIQUOR—ORDER FOR FORFEITURE OF LICENSE—DOMINION ACT IN AID OF PROVINCIAL PROHIBITORY LEGISLATION, 6 & 7 GEO. V. C. 19, S. 2—"THIRD OFFENCE"—PREVIOUS CONVICTIONS—METHOD OF PROOF—SECTIONS 58, 59, 96, 97, AND SCHED. F., 6 GEO. V. C. 50 (O.).

By s. 2 of an Act in aid of provincial legislation prohibiting or restricting the sale or use of intoxicating liquors, 6 & 7 Geo. V. c. 19 (Can.), any person holding a license to carry on the business of a brewer who sells intoxicating liquor in violation of the law in force in any province shall be liable in any prosecution under such provincial law, on conviction for a third offence, to forfeit his license:—Held, that the expression "third offence" must be given the meaning which it bears in the province under the law of which the prosecution takes place: In Ontario "a conviction for a third offence" means a conviction for an offence which is charged as a third offence. Sections 58, 59, 96, 97, and forms in sched. F. Ontario Temperance Act, 6 Geo. V. c. 50. The defendants, licensed brewers, were charged with having committed an offence against the Ontario Temperance Act by the unlawful sale of intoxicating liquor, but were not prosecuted for a third offence. Upon their trial before a police magistrate, writings signed by two other police magistrates certifying to three convictions of the defendants for selling intoxicating liquor in violation of the Ontario Act were put in. The magistrate convicted the defendants of the offence directly charged, found that the prior convictions had been duly proved, declared that the defendants had become liable to have their license forfeited, and ordered that it should be forfeited:—Held, that there was no such conviction or valid conviction for a third offence as conferred upon the magistrate jurisdiction to forfeit the license; and the declaration and order should be quashed. Held, also, that there was no proper evidence before the magistrate that the defendants had been three times convicted.

R. v. Berlin Lion Brewery, 45 O.L.R. 340.
ONTARIO TEMPERANCE ACT—MAGISTRATE'S CONVICTION FOR OFFENCE AGAINST S. 40—KEEPING INTOXICATING LIQUOR FOR SALE—MOTION TO QUASH—SECTION 102—EVIDENCE—PROOF OF GUILT—SECTION 84—BENEFIT OF DOUBT—"SALE."

Upon a charge of an offence against the Ontario Temperance Act, guilt must be proved just as much as under any other enactment. Although the Act aids the accuser much in some respects, in his proof, it has not taken away from the accused and given to the accuser "the benefit of the doubt." A conviction of the defendant by a Police Magistrate for keeping intoxicating liquor for sale without a license, in violation of s. 40 of the Act, was quashed where the only evidence before the magistrate was that the defendant's son had been asked by a person, in the defendant's (unlicensed) house, for some liquor, and had afterwards sold to that person, in a lane, not owned and not used by the defendant, but near his house, a bottle of whisky: It was held, that there was no evidence to support the conviction—no evidence upon which reasonable men could find that there was no reasonable doubt of the defendant's guilt. Sections 84, 102 of the Act considered. An unlawful sale may be made without an unlawful keeping for sale—A sale of that which is kept for a lawful purpose.

R. v. McKay, 46 O.L.R. 125.
 Defendant's wife sold liquor for the defendant and was convicted of selling liquor in violation of the Canada Temperance Act. Later, on the same evidence, defendant was convicted of keeping liquor for sale:—Held, the defendant's conviction was good.

Ex parte Campbell, 40 N.B.R. 350.
 A parish court commissioner has jurisdiction to try offences under the Canada Temperance Act. The Act 62 Vict., c. 57, does not make the Village of St. Mary's an incorporated town, and does not deprive a parish court commissioner of his jurisdiction in that village. A conviction made upon evidence obtained by means of an illegal search warrant, held good.

The King v. Clarkson; Ex parte Hayes, 40 N.B.R. 363.

The Act 7 & 8 Edw. VII. (Can.), c. 71, re-enacts s. 117 of the Canada Temperance Act with amendments and, therefore, a conviction for a third offence under s. 117 as amended is good, although the first two convictions were made before the passing of the amending act.

Ex parte Staples, 40 N.B.R. 378.
 A conviction under the Canada Temperance Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 152, was set aside where no place of trial was mentioned in the summons and defendant did not appear.

The King v. Wilson; Ex parte Harrington, 40 N.B.R. 383.

In a prosecution for a violation of the Nova Scotia Temperance Act 1910, the burden is upon the party wishing to set up a defence under it of proving that the Canada Temperance Act is in force in the county where the offence is alleged to have been committed. Section 6, subs. 1 of the Act enacts that "Any person who shall procure for or offer for sale to any other person or persons any intoxicating liquor shall be deemed to have made an unlawful sale of liquor. Provided that this section shall not apply to the procuring of liquor on a valid prescription or certificate." The true meaning to be given to the word "deemed" as here used is that the fact of the procuring or offering for sale shall be treated as prima facie evidence of an unlawful sale leaving it open to the party accused to shew that there was no sale, or that the sale or procuring was within the exceptions permitted by the statute.

The King v. Fraser, 45 N.S.R. 218.

APPOINTMENT OF VENDOR FOR MUNICIPALITY—NO AUTHORITY FOR SELLING OUTSIDE—INFORMATION CHARGING UNLAWFUL SALE—PROHIBITION TO STIPENDIARY MAGISTRATE REFUSED.

A vendor of intoxicating liquors appointed for a municipality in Nova Scotia has no authority to sell in a city or town the boundaries of which are not included within the boundaries of the municipality. The court will not entertain an application for a writ of prohibition to restrain the stipendiary magistrate of the city from proceeding with an information charging an unlawful sale by the vendor for the municipality in violation of the provisions of the Nova Scotia Temperance Act, part I.

The King v. Fielding, 52 N.S.R. 412.

KEEPING FOR SALE—FORM OF CONVICTION AND COMMITMENT—SURPLUSAGE.

A conviction and commitment for keeping intoxicating liquor "for the purpose of sale, barter and traffic therein" is a conviction and commitment for "keeping for sale." The rest is mere surplusage.

PROHIBITION—TRANSPORT OF INTOXICATING LIQUORS—TEMPERANCE ACT—JURISDICTION—C.C.P., ART. 1003—SECTION REF., [1909] ART. 1317.

Article 1317 of the Temperance Act, R.S. Q. 1909, prohibits not only the issuing of licenses for the sale of intoxicating liquors when the prohibition law is adopted but it also forbids the sale of these liquors. The prohibition of sale of intoxicating drinks established in a municipality by a municipal by-law passed in accordance with the temperance law of Quebec makes the territory of this municipality a "prohibited zone" in the sense of the rules set up by the Governor-General in Council.

Fraser, Viger & Co. v. Lachine, 28 Que. K.B. 181.

The provisions of the Liquor License Act respecting prosecutions for the sale of intoxicating liquor without license authorize the Recorder to condemn the offender not only to a fine but also to the costs of prosecution and to imprisonment if such costs are not paid. Under this Act the offender may be ordered to pay the expense of conveying him to jail. But the order to pay these costs should be entered in the minute of the proceedings and not merely in the warrant of commitment. If it is not the conviction will be quashed.

Antaya v. Montreal, 13 Que. P.R. 273.

CRIMINAL LAW—DOMINION ORDER IN COUNCIL 589—"PROHIBITED AREA"—"DELIVER IN"—CIRCUMSTANCES SHOWING KNOWLEDGE OF ACCUSED AS TO IMPROPER TRANSPORTATION OF LIQUOR AND THAT HE CAUSED IT TO BE "DELIVERED"—DEFECTS IN ISSUE OF SEARCH WARRANT NOT AFFECTING CONVICTION.

British Columbia is a "prohibited area" within the meaning of the Dominion O.C. No. 589. Accused was convicted "for that he on or about Dec. 1, 1918, at Fernie, . . .

unlawfully did . . . cause intoxicating liquor to be delivered at his residence . . . near Fernie, British Columbia, to wit: Five barrels of intoxicating liquor addressed to The Rexford Hotel, Rexford, Montana, and dated Nov. 1918, contrary to O.C. No. 589." The five barrels so addressed were found on Dec. 1, 1918, on the defendants premises bearing upon them the internal revenue stamps of the United States. The date of the cancellation mark was Nov., 1918. There was no evidence that accused sent or took or transported or caused to be sent or transported the liquor into the province. It was held that the words of the order in council "deliver in" any prohibited area or "cause to be so delivered" mean that any person who knowing that the liquor has been improperly transported into British Columbia delivers it or causes it to be delivered is guilty of an infraction of the order in council; that the circumstances of this case (the marks on the barrels, quantity, etc.) formed strong evidence both that the accused knew that the liquor was improperly brought in and that he caused it to be delivered at his house and (accused producing no evidence) the conviction was sustained. The search warrant under which accused's premises were searched was improperly issued because the information was not signed, and no grounds of information and belief were disclosed, therefore the liquor was improperly seized; but the illegality did not affect the conviction.

Roux v. Hewat, [1919] 1 W.W.R. 530.

CRIMINAL LAW—B.C. PROHIBITION ACT—SELLING LIQUOR—CONVICTION FOR SECOND OFFENCE—MOTION TO QUASH—AMENDING CONVICTION AND IMPOSING PUNISHMENT FOR FIRST OFFENCE.

Upon an application to quash a conviction for a second offence of selling liquor in violation of the British Columbia Prohibition Act, the conviction and warrant of commitment may be amended and the requisite punishment for a first offence imposed. [R. v. Van Fleet, 38 D.L.R. 592, approved.] To allege in the information that there has been a previous conviction for the same offence is not improper but is not necessary.

CRIMINAL LAW—BRITISH COLUMBIA ACT—ACCUSED PLEADING GUILTY TO HAVING LIQUOR IN POSSESSION—MAXIMUM FINE IMPOSED THROUGH MISAPPREHENSION OF MAGISTRATE—APPEAL BARRED BY s. 54—APPLICATION OF SECTION TO BODIES CORPORATE—INTERPRETATION ACT, s. 45—"PARTY" IN SAID S. 54.

Appellant, an incorporated company, through its manager, pleaded guilty to having liquor in its possession, etc., and the magistrate inflicted the maximum fine of $1,000 under a misapprehension of the meaning of the Act, believing he had no power to inflict a lesser fine. On appeal it was held: (1) That the fact that the appellant had pleaded guilty need not prevent the judge from allowing the appeal and reviewing the sentence; (2) the requirements of an affidavit of merits, under s. 54 of the British Columbia Prohibition Act (which, having pleaded guilty, the appellant could not make) was a fatal objection against appellant. By reason of s. 45 of the Interpretation Act, this requirement applies to bodies corporate. In any case, the word "party" in said s. 54 was, with doubt, held to include a body corporate.

(§ III A—56)—UNLAWFUL SALES—LIQUOR NOT CONTAINING SUFFICIENT ALCOHOL TO PRODUCE INTOXICATION.

The sale of liquor called "temperance beer" containing so small a quantity of alcohol as not to be capable of producing intoxication when drunk in large quantities, does not violate the Quebec License Law.

Collector of Revenue v. Demers, 13 D.L.R. 738, 22 Can. Cr. Cas. 55.

WHAT IS A "DISPOSAL."

The word "disposal" in s. 54 of the Liquor License Act, is used in a liberal sense and may or may not be associated with selling, and any transaction respecting the physical change of possession of whiskey is included under the term "disposal" and is prohibited by the Act, if accomplished during forbidden hours, and particularly if resorted to for the purpose of defeating the purposes of the statute.

R. v. Clarke, 9 D.L.R. 517, 27 O.L.R. 525, 20 Can. Cr. Cas. 486.

PROOF THAT INTOXICATING—ALCOHOLIC PERCENTAGE.

The Sales of Liquor Act (Sask.) specifically declares by s. 2, subs. 1, that every spirituous and every fermented and every malt liquor is within the prohibition of the act, and it is therefore unnecessary as to such spirituous, fermented or malted liquors to prove that they are intoxicating or that they contain more than 1 per cent of alcohol and should therefore be conclusively deemed to be intoxicating under that subsection.

R. v. McPherson, 26 D.L.R. 503, 25 Can. Cr. Cas. 62, 8 S.L.R. 412, 33 W.L.R. 21, 9 W.W.R. 613.

UNLAWFUL SALES—OF WHAT LIQUORS—2½ PER CENT PROOF.

Where a wholesale bottler and seller of table waters sells a bottled beverage to a restaurant keeper in a local option town with warranty that they can be resold by the buyer in the course of his business without thereby contravening the law, and where the buyer relying on such warranty keeps for sale in his business the commodity in question and is in consequence prosecuted and convicted and fined for "unlawfully keeping liquor for the purpose of sale, barter and traffic therein without the license therefore by law provided;" breach of the warranty is established upon proof that the beverage contained more than 2½ per cent of proof spirits and was within the prohibition of the local option law.

UNLAWFUL SALES—SHOP LICENSE—MINIMUM QUANTITY IN UNBROKEN PACKAGES.

The holder of a shop license under the Liquor License Act (Ont.) is improperly convicted of selling a less quantity than ¾ half-pints of liquor in a broken package on filling the buyer's order for a half-pint of rum and a half-pint of gin to be mixed together where there was no appropriation of the goods to the sale or passing of the property therein to the buyer until the bottle, supplied by the seller as a container of the liquor ordered, had been securely corked and handed to the buyer; such bottle is an "unbroken package" under s. 2 (n) of the Act, sale of which by a shop licensee is authorized to a minimum of one-half pint.

Smith v. Galpin, 23 Can. Cr. Cas. 318.

UNLAWFUL SALES—TEMPERANCE DRINKS—INTOXICATING PRINCIPLE—QUEBEC LICENSE LAW.

The selling of so-called temperance drinks is within the prohibition of the Quebec License Law if they contain any intoxicating principle; evidence that the liquor in question contained from 3 to 5 per cent of proof alcohol and that this would intoxicate is sufficient upon which to base a conviction without proof that intoxication had resulted from the sales made.

Corriveau v. Simard, 18 D.L.R. 703, 23 Can. Cr. Cas. 156, 20 Rev. de Jur. 178.

"TEMPERANCE" BEER.

On an appeal by way of rehearing, from a magistrate's dismissal of a charge of selling intoxicating liquor on the ground that the temperance beer in question was not shown to be intoxicating and that it contained less than 2½ per cent of proof spirits, in consequence of which there was no statutory presumption that it was intoxicating, the judge rehearing the case by consent upon the same depositions as were before the magistrate, may find the alleged temperance beer, which contained over 2 per cent of proof spirits to have been intoxicating, if he credits the unanswerable testimony of a prosecution witness who had consumed a quantity of the same brand, bought from the accused, to the effect that it was intoxicating.

R. v. Willis, 25 Can. Cr. Cas. 297, 9 W.W.R. 919.

To support a conviction for keeping intoxicating liquor for sale based on the seizure in defendant's restaurant of a quantity of hard cider, it must be shown that the cider sent for analysis and found to be intoxicating within the Liquor License Act was a sample of the identical cider so seized, where there is no other evidence that what was seized was intoxicating.

R. v. Hewson, 26 Can. Cr. Cas. 38, 9 O.W.N. 449.

"SPIRITOUS OR MALT LIQUORS."

In a prosecution under Ontario Liquor License Act for illegally keeping liquor for sale, and proof in support thereof that lager beer was sold by the defendant and not merely purchased by him as the agent of those who consumed it, the magistrate is to take judicial notice that beer is both a spiritous and a malt liquor, and consequently included in the definition of "liquor" given by the Act; and it was unnecessary to take evidence as to whether or not it contained more than 2½ per cent of proof spirits.

R. v. Scaynetti, 24 Can. Cr. Cas. 40, 34 O.L.R. 373.

CERTIORARI—JUDICIAL NOTICE THAT WHISKEY IS INTOXICATING.

In considering an appeal by way of certiorari from a magisterial conviction (made under s. 91 of c. 39, 1915, the Sales of Liquor Act), the question for the judge is: "Is there any evidence whatever to warrant the conviction?" Judicial notice taken of the fact that Scotch whiskey is an intoxicating liquor.

McPherson v. Morrison, 25 Can. Cr. Cas. 69, 9 W.W.R. 164, 32 W.L.R. 385.

SALE BY LICENSEE IN PROHIBITED QUANTITY.

An information under the Liquor License Act (Man.) charging a wholesale licensee with selling bottled whiskey in a quantity less than one reputed quart bottle discloses at least an offence under s. 17 of that Act punishable under the general penalty imposed by s. 178, if it is not within the penalty of s. 159 for illegal sales without the required license; consequently, prohibition will not lie in respect of summary proceedings upon such information where the case has been remanded from time to time and the magistrate has not yet concluded the hearing.

White v. Cavanagh, 25 Can. Cr. Cas. 38,

(§ III A—57)—OBTAINING FROM CARRIER—PROHIBITED DISTRICT.

It is not an offence under the Nova Scotia Temperance Act, 1910, as amended 1911, for the purchaser of liquor bought in a county under license to personally receive it from the express company on its arrival by railway at the town in which he resides where the prohibition clauses of that Act are in effect; s. 30 of the Act, which prohibits sending liquor or bringing or causing it to be sent or brought applies to the person or agent sending the liquor by a common carrier to the person in the municipality which is not under license and to the person carrying liquor for another at either end of the transit, but not to the purchaser personally taking delivery from the carrier as the consignee of liquor bought in a licensed district.

R. v. Publicover, 21 D.L.R. 203, 24 Can. Cr. Cas. 1, 49 N.S.R. 85.

(§ III A—58)—LIABILITY OF CARRIERS—EXPRESS AGENT DELIVERING.

The effect of s. 25 of the Liquor Act, Alta., is that only the consignee himself is entitled to take delivery of liquor during its transit by express from a place outside of Alberta to an address in Alberta where the law permits it to be received and kept; and where the express agent had attempted to make delivery at the street address to which the consignment was billed, but, finding that the consignee was no longer there, sent an advice note by mail addressed to him, and, on the advice note being brought in by a person representing himself to be the consignee, delivered the liquor to him at the express office, the express agent is liable to conviction for an infringement of the Act, if it be shown at the trial that the person to whom delivery was made was not the consignee himself, but someone else whom he had sent to get the liquor. The delivery not being at the street address, which was the destination of the package, the accused would be liable whether or not he took reasonable precaution in having the person producing the advice note and receiving the goods identified as the consignee.

R. v. Benford, 34 D.L.R. 706, 28 Can. Cr. Cas. 41.

TEMPERANCE ACT—LIQUOR FOR PERSONAL USE.

The exception created by subs. (2) of s. 117 as to intoxicating liquor "sent, shipped, brought or carried to any person" for his personal use does not apply to a person who personally brings liquor for his own use into a county where Part II, of the Canada Temperance Act is in force; consequently a conviction is properly made under s. 117 (c) where the accused brought the liquor in by railway as his personal baggage although intending it solely for his own use.

CRIMINAL LAW—BRITISH COLUMBIA PROHIBITION ACT, s. 11—"HAVING" LIQUOR OWNER AND ACCOMPANIED BY OWNER—NO "POSSESSION"—CONVICTION BAR.

Appellant was charged with "having liquor in a place other than the dwellinghouse in which he resided." One, B., had some liquor in an unlawful place. He engaged appellant to move it, apparently with some other stuff, to another place. Appellant knew he was moving liquor. B. accompanied him during the removal. Held appellant was improperly convicted. The word "have" as used in the Act, denotes possession and it must be an actual physical possession; which appellant did not have. B. had possession and never parted with it.

(§ 111 A—59)—UNLAWFUL SALES—LIABILITY OF PROPRIETOR OR OCCUPANT—EMPLOYEE ACTING AS CUSTOMER'S AGENT TO BUY.

Illegal sale of intoxicating liquors on unlicensed premises is not made out against a restaurant proprietor where his employee merely acts as the agent of the customer in going out at the latter's request to buy liquors to be consumed in the restaurant and receives for that purpose the exact amount disbursed or to be disbursed, where the consumption of liquor in restaurants not having liquor licenses was not in itself illegal nor did the circumstances disclose any attempt at evasion of the liquor laws. O'Sullivan v. Michus, 18 D.L.R. 701, 23 Can. Cr. Cas. 169.

LIABILITY OF OCCUPANTS—ACTS OF EMPLOYEES.

The summary conviction of the occupant for the illegal sale of liquors made by the employee in contravention of the Liquor License Ordinance, Alta., 1915, c. 89, because of the statutory liabilities of the occupant under s. 95 of that Act, is a bar to the subsequent prosecution of the employee in respect of such sale; it is open to the prosecution to proceed with one charge against all responsible for the sale, or against any of them, for the one penalty, but not against each for a separate penalty. [R. v. Williams, 42 U.C.Q.B. 462, and Ex parte Kelly, 32 N.B.R. 271, applied.]

UNLAWFUL SALES—LIABILITY OF RESTAURANT WAITER—PURCHASE FROM LICENSED PREMISES—AGENT OF CUSTOMER—B.C. MUNICIPAL ACT, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 170, s. 318, SUBS. 5.

CONTRIBUTION BY SEVERAL TO BUY LIQUORS—LIABILITY OF OCCUPANT WHERE LIQUORS CONSUMED.

On a charge under the Liquor License Ordinance, Alta., of selling intoxicating liquor without a license, the effect of s. 115, subs. 3, of the ordinance is that proof of consumption of the liquor on the premises of the accused by a group of people gathered together merely for the purpose of drinking, is made conclusive evidence of selling, and testimony that the persons so assembled had each contributed to the cost of the liquor and sent for it by messenger is not admissible to displace the statutory presumption. [R. v. Lightburne, 4 Can. Cr. Cas. 358, followed.]

R. v. Simuluk, 24 Can. Cr. Cas. 136, 31 W.L.R. 577.

LIABILITY OF OCCUPANT OF PREMISES—ILLEGAL SALE BY STRANGER THEREON FOR FUTURE DELIVERY—ONUS AS TO AUTHORIZATION—PERSON "SUFFERED" TO BE OR REMAIN ON THE PREMISES.

Where future delivery is to be made elsewhere there must be more than the casual presence in the defendant's store of the person said to have there contracted for the illegal sale of liquor and to have there received the price of same, to bring the store-keeper within the provisions of s. 50 of the Liquor Act, 1916, Alta., declaring the "occupant" of the store personally liable to the penalty notwithstanding the sale cannot be proved to have been made by the directions of the occupant. The proprietor of a drug store is not liable under the Act for a sale so contracted for without his knowledge by a person not connected with the store, and the statutory presumption of s. 50 does not apply to make a person whose acts otherwise would indicate that he was merely a customer or casual caller, and as to whom no appearance of employment was testified to, a person who is "suffered to be or remain in or upon the premises of such occupant," so as to place the onus upon the proprietor of disproving the charge. The prosecution has still to prove general employment or general agency so as to raise the statutory presumption of specific authority or specific agency in the particular case.

R. v. Dominion Drug Stores (No. 2), 31 Can. Cr. Cas. 86, [1919] 2 W.W.R. 413, affirming 44 D.L.R. 382, 30 Can. Cr. Cas. 318, [1919] 1 W.W.R. 285.

LIABILITY OF PROPERTY OWNERS AND OCCUPANTS.

The effect of s. 112 of the Ontario Liquor License Act (amendments of 1907 and 1908) is to make liable for illegal sales of intoxicating liquor by his tenant on his premises in a local option district an owner of unlicensed hotel premises resident elsewhere and having no knowledge of the infraction of the liquor laws, by reason of the enactments contained in that statute that "in the event of the premises being an unlicensed tavern the owner who permits any part of it in which liquor is sold or kept for sale to be occupied by any other person shall be "conclusively presumed" to be an "occupant" thereof and that an "occupant" shall be personally liable for any offence committed on the premises by any person who is suffered to remain upon the premises. [7 Edw. VII., (Ont.) c. 46, s. 5, as amended 8 Edw. VII., c. 54, s. 6, construed; R. v. Bradley, 13 O.W.R. 39, approved.]

The King v. Bradley, 19 Can. Cr. Cas. 110, 3 O.W.N. 58.

LIABILITY OF OCCUPANTS—EFFECT OF CONVICTION.

The disqualification of a member of a municipal council under the Liquor License Act, C.S.N.B. 1903, c. 22, s. 61, on his conviction for knowingly committing any offence against the Act, does not apply where the conviction was not expressed to be for an offence "knowingly" committed, and might have been for the illegal sale of liquor by another without his knowledge on premises of which he was the occupant and as to which he might on that account be liable to conviction under the act apart from any guilty knowledge on his part; the court hearing a motion to quash the council's resolution on the ground that it was passed on the invalid vote of the convicted member is under no duty to examine the proceedings before the magistrate to ascertain therefrom whether or not the offence was knowingly committed, the duty of finding upon that question being one primarily for the magistrate.

Ex parte Murchie; R v. Gloucester, 24 Can. Cr. Cas. 228.

LIABILITY OF OCCUPANT—PRESUMPTION ON FINDING LIQUORS UNDER SEARCH WARRANT.

Subsection 49 of s. 49 of the Nova Scotia Temperance Act, as amended by N.S. Acts 1911, c. 33 s. 14, is within the legislative powers of a provincial legislature in making the finding of intoxicating liquor under a search warrant prima facie evidence of keeping for sale in contravention of the Act, although sales to persons outside of the province are not within the prohibition of the N.S. Temperance Act, and this statutory presumption will apply without any allegation or proof on the part of the prosecution that the keeping for sale was not for the purpose of selling solely to persons outside the province.

R. v. Hoare, 24 Can. Cr. Cas. 279, 49 N. S.R. 119.

RESPONSIBILITY — MUNICIPALITY — SEIZURE OF INTOXICATING LIQUORS—PRESUMPTION—FOREIGNERS—MANNERS AND CUSTOMS—ILLEGAL ARREST—RATIFICATION—C. CIV. ART. 1053—SECTION REF., [1909] ARTS. 1097, 1098.

When a Pole, on the occasion of the baptism of one of his children, has gathered in his home his relatives, friends and countrymen to the number of 60 or 80 persons, and following the usages and customs of his country has brought there to entertain them, 85 or 90 gallons of beer, and several bottles of whiskey as well as food, the chief of police and constables of a municipality, where a prohibition law exists, have no right to enter the house, disperse the guests and seize all the intoxicating liquors found there. To do so they cannot justify themselves either by the authority of arts. 1097, 1098, R.S.Q. 1909, which provide that the possession of a large quantity of intoxicating liquors raises the presumption that it is held for the purpose of sale, or on account of the noise and quarrelling of the guest among themselves. In this case, the municipality, in prosecuting this Pole several days afterwards, for having kept intoxicating liquor for the purpose of sale, (which charge was thrown out) has approved and ratified the act of its constables and assumed the responsibility therefore, it is liable for damages.

Rinkov v. St. Pierre, 56 Que. S.C. 43.

PERMITTING DRUNKENNESS "TO TAKE PLACE."

The offence of permitting drunkenness to take place in the house of the accused (Alberta Liquor Act, s. 36) involves something more than merely permitting drunkenness to exist on the premises; there must be proved against the accused some act or default on his part conducing to or continuing the drunkenness of the person who was allowed to remain on his premises while drunk.

R. v. Pomerleau, 35 D.L.R. 33, 28 Can. Cr. Cas. 7, [1917] 1 W.W.R. 1457.

PERMITTING DRUNKEN PERSONS IN HOTEL.

A summary conviction of an hotel keeper for permitting drunken persons to meet on his premises contrary to the Liquor Act, Alta., 1916, will be quashed if the evidence shows that the hotelkeeper did everything which could reasonably be expected during severe weather conditions in getting the drunken persons to leave the hotel without placing them in peril by an immediate ejection.

(§ III A—59a)—LIABILITY OF TELEGRAPH OPERATOR SENDING ORDER FOR LIQUOR.

Where it was shown upon the trial of a telegraph operator for selling liquor contrary to law, that upon being asked if he had any liquor, he told his questioner that he had not, but that he could telegraph for a bottle, which he did, but signed the telegram with the name of the other party, and the bottle was sent to the latter who paid the accused therefor, the purchaser not knowing to whom to apply for the liquor and the accused taking an active part in the matter, it was sufficient to warrant the trial justice to conclude that the accused did receive an order for the liquor and that he placed it with the dealer.

(§ III B-60)—CLUB BUILDING—JURISDICTION OF MAGISTRATE.

On an information under the Nova Scotia Temperance Act against a member of a club for unlawfully keeping liquor in the club building, the question is one of fact to be determined by the stipendiary magistrate, no question of jurisdiction arises on which a writ of prohibition can issue. STAYING PRESUMPTION.

A boat moored on a river is a "place" or "premises" within s. 45 of the Liquor License Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 215, so as to bring into operation the statutory presumption of keeping liquor for sale where the boat is controlled by a club and it is proved that liquor is consumed there.

CRIMINAL LAW—BRITISH COLUMBIA PROHIBITION ACT, ss. 10, 35, 38, 39, 41—KNOWLEDGE AND CONSENT OF ACCUSED—ONUS OF PROOF—DOCTRINE OF REASONABLE DOUBT.

For an accused to be found guilty of an offence under ss. 10, 39 or 41 of the British Columbia Prohibition Act, personal knowledge and consent must be brought home to him. Section 35 does not apply to a charge of selling, but only to a charge of keeping for sale. Notwithstanding the provisions of said Act relating to the shifting of the onus of proof, the doctrine of reasonable doubt still prevails; and if the Crown's whole case consists of inferences to be drawn by virtue of ss. 35, 39, 41, denial by accused of any knowledge or consent, which denial raises a reasonable doubt in, though it may not convince, the mind of the court, justifies the acquittal of accused. Section 38 of said Act is not limited in its application to hotel keepers. That section presupposes knowledge and consent on the part of the occupant whereby authority and direction may be presumed; but it is material to the guilt of the occupant that there is knowledge and consent.

Knowledge of the agent making sales of liquor in bulk for a nonresident seller, that the buyer intended to resell same in a district in which its delivery by resale would be illegal as contravening the Nova Scotia Temperance Act, 1910, will be imputed to the nonresident principal so as to debar him from recovery in Nova Scotia in an action for goods sold or delivered or upon bills of exchange given for the price.

UNLAWFUL SALES BY CLERK OF COMPANY—LIABILITY OF PRESIDENT.

The president of a company dealing in intoxicating liquors may be convicted of shipping liquor in violation of the Canada Temperance Act, although the shipment was made by a clerk, but on an order received directly by the president.

R. v. Holyoke; Ex parte McIntyre, 13 D. L.R. 225, 21 Can. Cr. Cas. 422, 42 N.B.R. 135, 13 E.L.R. 210.

AGENTS OR SERVANTS—AFFIDAVIT NEGATING OFFENCE ON TAKING APPEAL.

Where the affidavit required from the appellant on appealing from a summary conviction under the Liquor License Act, R.S.S. 1909, c. 130, negating the offence refers to agents and servants in the plural while the statute requires the affidavit that the appellant did not, by himself "or by his agent, servant, or employee," etc., commit the offence, the variance is not fatal to the appeal, as the affidavit must be construed as including the agents, etc., individually as well as collectively.

SALE BY EMPLOYEE OF LICENSE HOLDER TO PERSON OF PROHIBITED CLASS—CRIMINAL LIABILITY OF EMPLOYER.

A hotel keeper holding a liquor license is liable to conviction under the Indian Act (Can.) for unlawful sales of liquor made to Indians by his employees within the general scope of their employment although he had expressly forbidden his employees to sell to Indians.

UNLAWFUL SALES—LIABILITY OF PRINCIPAL FOR OFFENCE OF AGENT.

The act of a bartender in selling liquor to Indians in contravention of the Indian Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 81, is one within the scope of his ostensible authority and the hotel keeper who employed him may be convicted for it. ORDERS SOLICITED BY UNLICENSED PERSON.

The solicitation of an order for liquors within Saskatchewan to be supplied by an unlicensed person from a point outside is an offence under R.S.S. c. 130, s. 13, and no recovery can be had in Saskatchewan upon bills of exchange representing the price of the liquors supplied pursuant to the order so obtained because of the prohibition by that statute of actions founded on a contravention thereof; and this although the plaintiffs had a licensed traveller who could legally have taken the defendant's order but, owing to that traveler's illness, an officer of the plaintiff company, not himself licensed as a commercial traveler for liquors, took the order in his stead.

LIQUOR LICENSE ACT (QUE.)—VIOLATION BY AGENT—REFILLING OF BOTTLES.
White v. Leet, 18 Can. Cr. Cas. 337.

(§ III C-67)—ORDERS—FORWARDING TO DEALER OUTSIDE PROVINCE.

It is an offence under the Ontario Temperance Act to receive in Ontario on behalf of a liquor dealer in another province an order for liquor for beverage purposes to be filled by sending the liquor by express directly from the outside province to the customer; the offence of receiving the order would be complete even if the liquor were not sent.

R. v. McEvoy, 28 Can. Cr. Cas. 135, 38 O.L.R. 202.

"PURCHASERS' AGENT"—TRANSMISSION OF ORDER TO SELLER OUT OF PROVINCE—"TRANSACTION IN LIQUOR."

The true meaning of ss. 42, 139 of the Ontario Temperance Act, 1916, when read together, is: "We cannot and do not intend to prohibit dealing with merchants abroad, but we can and do prohibit all canvassing and soliciting of orders for liquor within this province, no matter whence the liquor is to come." Canvassing or soliciting is not a "transaction in liquor" within s. 139—it is a separate act from which a transaction may result. A motion to quash a conviction for receiving an order for intoxicating liquor for beverage purposes, contrary to s. 42, was refused, notwithstanding the signing of a document which gave the dealing the appearance of a "transaction in liquor" through a "purchasers' agent" for a vendor abroad. Whether it was a real transaction or a sham was a question for the magistrate, and there was evidence on which he could convict.

R. v. Toyne, 38 O.L.R. 224.

SOLICITING ORDERS—DISTRIBUTION OF CIRCULARS.

The defendant undertook the distribution of certain circulars in a city. He employed a man, who left at the houses of citizens envelopes with enclosures. Each envelope had upon it the name and address of a person in Buffalo, New York. Enclosed in each envelope was a list of alcoholic liquors and the name of the person in Buffalo. On the back of the list was a form of order, addressed to the person in Buffalo. The agent knew what was in the envelopes—the actual distributor did not. Neither of them took orders, nor was either of them authorized to do so:—Held, that what was done amounted to soliciting orders for beverage purposes, within the meaning of s. 42 of the Ontario Temperance Act, 6 Geo. V., c. 50.

R. v. Lynch-Staunton, 41 O.L.R. 317, 30 Can. Cr. Cas. 209.

ORDER FOR LIQUOR—SHIPPED FROM WITHOUT PROVINCE—AGENT.

The accused applied by way of rule nisi to quash a conviction under the Manitoba Act (c. 50, 7 Geo. V.) providing that no person shall, within Manitoba, take or receive any order or instruction for the purchasing or supplying of liquor for beverage purposes within the province. The accused was supplied, as an agent, by one W., with money with which the accused was to obtain liquor for W. There was nothing to shew that the name or place of residence of the person who was to supply the liquor was known or mentioned. The liquor was shipped by the vendors from outside the province to W. at Winnipeg. Held, that the application should be dismissed.

D. BY DRUGGISTS.

(§ III D-70)—MEDICATED INTOXICANT—"DRINKS AND DRINKABLE LIQUIDS WHICH ARE INTOXICATING"—INTERPRETATION.

A special finding by the trial magistrate that an elixir preparation contained sufficient medication to prevent its use as an alcoholic beverage and no more alcohol than was necessary to keep its component parts in solution negatives his finding that it is liquor as defined in the Manitoba Temperance Act, 6 Geo. V. 1916, c. 112, by reason of its containing over 2½ per cent of proof spirits and negatives his finding that it is a "drinkable liquid" which is intoxicating. The intention of the Act is not to include such a preparation in its prohibition of sales of "drinks and drinkable liquids which are intoxicating." [R. v. MacLean, 40 D. L.R. 443, 29 Can. Cr. Cas. 270, approved and followed.]

PATENT MEDICINE ACT.

A manufacturer registered as a proprietor of a patent medicine under the Proprietary or Patent Medicine Act, 1908, c. 56 (Can.), cannot be prosecuted under the Sales of Liquor Act (Sask.) for selling it, even if it contains a higher percentage of alcohol than that permitted by the Proprietary or Patent Medicine Act. The proper course would be a prosecution under the latter Act.

MEDICATED WINE.

A patent medicine registered under the Proprietary and Patent Medicine Act, 1908, c. 56, (Can.) which contains more than 2½ per cent proof spirits, but is so medicated as to cause nausea and sickness before intoxication is not an intoxicating liquor within the meaning of the Alberta Liquor Act (1916, c. 4, s. 23).

PROPRIETARY MEDICINES ACT—MANUFACTURER'S LICENSE—COMPANY.

A manufacturer's certificate granted under the Proprietary Medicine Act, (Can.) for the manufacture of invalid port wine containing a high percentage of alcohol, is not available by way of justification for the manufacture of the same product by a company other than the registered one, even with the latter's consent, where the manufacture and sale would infringe a provincial liquor law but for the registration.

R. v. Redman, 29 Can. Cr. Cas. 304, [1918] 1 W.W.R. 572.

CORPORATION AS DRUGGIST—"LIQUOR"—PATENT MEDICINE ACT.

The defendant, a corporation, kept a drugstore at Regina, and in the course of business sold a liquid known as "Kennedy's Tonic Port." A magistrate convicted the defendant of selling liquor contrary to the Saskatchewan Temperance Act (1917, c. 23), and imposed a fine of $100 under s. 24 of the Act, holding the defendant to be a druggist and therefore within that section. The defendant appealed. Held, that as the evidence shewed that the liquid contained more than 2½ per cent of proof spirits, it must be "conclusively deemed to be intoxicating" under s. 2 (1) of the Act, and as the evidence further shewed that it was capable of human consumption, it was "liquor" within the meaning of that Act. That as the defendant being a corporation was not capable of registration under the Pharmacy Act, it was not a druggist and was not therefore within the protection of the order-in-council of the Province of Saskatchewan of April 24, 1917, nor was it indeed within the protection of that order-in-council on the evidence as the liquid did not contain "sufficient medication or sufficient treatment to prevent its use as an alcoholic beverage." That since the enactment of 7 & 8 Geo. V., c. 30 (4d), registration under the Proprietary or Patent Medicine Act, 7 & 8 Edw. VII., c. 56 (Can.), is not an answer to a charge of want of compliance with a provincial statute. That the defendant had been properly convicted, but not being a druggist the minimum fine that could be imposed was $500 as provided by ss. 26 and 27, and that its fine must be increased accordingly.

INTOXICATING LIQUOR ACT, 1916—OFFENCE UNDER—PARTNERS—JOINT CONVICTION.

The defendants, who were in partnership as druggists, were convicted for an offence under the Intoxicating Liquor Act, 1916, and were fined $25 and costs, and in default of payment, imprisonment for 3 months. Held, on certiorari, that the offence being several in its nature the penalty ought to have been imposed on the defendants severally and the conviction should be quashed. The King v. Vroom, Ex parte Johnston, 46 N.B.R. 336.

ONTARIO TEMPERANCE ACT—CONVICTION OF DRUGGIST FOR KEEPING INTOXICATING LIQUOR FOR SALE FOR OTHER THAN STRICTLY MEDICINAL PURPOSES—MOTION TO QUASH—PRELIMINARY OBJECTION—RIGHT OF APPEAL UNDER S. 92 (2)—RIGHT TO CERTIORARI TAKEN AWAY—ONTARIO SUMMARY CONVICTIONS ACT, R.S.O. 1914, c. 90, s. 10 (3).

R. v. Breen, 13 O.W.N. 100.

THE SASKATCHEWAN TEMPERANCE ACT—PENALTY FOR VIOLATION BY DRUGGIST'S CLERK OR ASSISTANT—ABSENCE OF AFFIDAVIT OF MERITS ON CERTIORARI—RIGHT OF COURT TO LOOK AT PROCEEDINGS—ONUS ON ACCUSED TO PROVE TO MAGISTRATE HE WAS DRUGGIST'S CLERK OR ASSISTANT—MAGISTRATE'S RIGHT OF DECISION ON THE EVIDENCE.

A druggist's clerk or assistant can only be convicted for violation of the Saskatchewan Temperance Act under s. 42 thereof and is therefore only liable to a penalty of $100. Where a conviction under the Saskatchewan Temperance Act sentencing accused to a fine of $200 and costs and imprisonment complied with the wording provided in form F, in the schedule of the Act but it was impossible from a reading of the conviction to say whether accused was convicted under ss. 24, 27, or 42, in a proceeding by way of habeas corpus and for certiorari in aid thereof, though on an application by way of habeas corpus the court is not supposed to go outside the warrant of conviction and though the certiorari proceedings did not comply with the Act because the applicant had not filed an affidavit of merits under s. 59, it was held that the court was entitled to look at the proceedings to ascertain whether or not accused was convicted as a clerk or assistant (in which case he was subject to a less penalty and without imprisonment) rather than as a druggist or unauthorized person, as it could not have been the intention of the legislature under ss. 57, 59, to deprive an accused when illegally sentenced to imprisonment of his legal remedy. The sale of liquor having been proved, the onus is on accused to prove to the magistrate that he was an assistant or clerk and liable only to the penalty applicable to such and the magistrate has a discretion to decline to hold that the appointment as clerk has been proved.

(§ III D-72)—UNLAWFUL SALES—"SPECIALLY LICENSED DRUGGISTS OR VENDORS"—SACRAMENTAL PURPOSES.

Under s. 118 of the Canada Temperance Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 152, the sale of wine by a "specially licensed druggist or vendor" for sacramental purposes upon a clergyman's certificate may be of an unlimited quantity.

(§ III D-73)—UNLAWFUL SALES—SALE ON PHYSICIAN'S CERTIFICATE — CANADA TEMPERANCE ACT.

Under s. 119 of the Canada Temperance Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 152, the sale for medicinal use of intoxicating liquor upon the certificate of a "legally qualified physician having no interest in the sale" may (by analogy to s. 118 of the Act as to sacramental wine) be of an unlimited quantity. The permission for the sale "for medical purposes" of intoxicating liquor on the certificate of a "legally qualified physician having no interest in the sale" granted by s. 119 of the Canada Temperance Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 152, may include a medical provision for contingencies which may not have arisen at the time of the application for the certificate. The penalty prescribed against physicians by s. 126 of the Canada Temperance Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 152, read with s. 119, is for giving a certificate for other than strictly medical purposes and the offence in no way depends upon the subsequent use which may be made of the liquor which may be obtained by means of the certificate, and where such certificate is given bona fide and with reasonable discretion and upon professional grounds for "strictly medical purposes," the physician is protected.

R. v. McAllister, 14 D.L.R. 430, 22 Can. Cr. Cas. 166.

PHYSICIAN'S LIABILITY FOR ISSUING UNLAWFUL PRESCRIPTIONS IN EVASION OF PROHIBITORY LAW.

A conviction of a physician for "unlawfully giving prescriptions in evasion or violation of the Ontario Temperance Act contrary to s. 51" will be quashed as made without proof of any offence if there was no evidence that the prescription was given to anyone in evasion or violation of the Act except that 261 liquor prescriptions were shown to have been issued by the accused within 30 days.

R. v. MacLaren, 28 Can. Cr. Cas. 210, 39 O.L.R. 416.

ONTARIO TEMPERANCE ACT—ILLEGAL PRESCRIPTION BY PHYSICIANS—FINDING AS TO PHYSICIAN'S BELIEF IN ACTUAL NEED OF PATIENT.

It is a question of fact whether a physician prescribing intoxicating liquor for a patient under the Ontario Temperance Act did or did not believe that the case was one of "actual need" and that the use of liquor by the patient was "necessary" (6 Geo. V. Ont. c. 50, s. 51). If there is any evidence before the magistrate to warrant his finding that the physician did not honestly believe that the occasion was one of "actual need," his finding should not be disturbed.

(§ III D-74)—PROHIBITION ACT, N.B.—PRACTISING PHYSICIAN HAVING LIQUOR IN HIS POSSESSION—PROFESSIONAL REQUIREMENTS—QUANTITY ALLOWED.

The intention of the N.B. Prohibition Act (1916, 6 Geo. V. c. 20), is that a duly registered physician should have the right to obtain liquor from anyone holding a wholesale license, or from any retail licensee under the Act, in sufficient quantities to meet his professional requirements and to fill such prescriptions as he may consider it necessary to give, and there is no limit upon the quantity such physician may have at any one time in his possession for such purpose.

UNLAWFUL SALES—BY "PHYSICIANS THEMSELVES, CHEMISTS OR ORDINARY DRUGGISTS"—CANADA TEMPERANCE ACT.

Under s. 125 of the Canada Temperance Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 152, the sale of spirituous liquors or alcohol by physicians themselves, chemists or druggists, who are not "specially licensed vendors" (under ss. 118, 119) is restricted to the ten-ounce quantity.

E. TO PROHIBITED PERSONS.

(§ III E-75)—PROFESSIONAL EXAMINATION—ILLEGAL PRESCRIPTION—DELIVERY—PERSON NOT ENTITLED TO RECEIVE—LIABILITY OF CARRIER.

A prescription for liquor given by a physician for the use of the applicant's children who have not been professionally examined by him is illegal under the New Brunswick Intoxicating Liquor Act, (6 Geo. V. c. 20.) The wife of the party obtaining the prescription is not a party entitled to receive the liquor, and anyone who innocently and in perfect good faith carries the liquor and delivers it to her, is guilty of "carrying liquor" and liable under the Act, although such liquor was administered to the children on the advice of a doctor.

UNLAWFUL SALES—WHOLESALE TO PROHIBITED PERSONS—ABSENCE OF LICENSE—NOTICE, EFFECT OF.

Where a wholesale bottler and seller of table waters sells some of the commodity to a restaurant keeper in a local option town with warranty that it is "nonintoxicating hop ale," and knowing that the buyer intended to serve it to his customers although having no license to sell intoxicating liquor, there is in effect a warranty that the ale was such that it could be sold by the buyer in the course of his business without thereby contravening the provisions of the Liquor License Act (Ont.), where he proceeded to so deal with the ale believing that it was not an intoxicating liquor.

INDIAN RESERVE — INVALID CONVICTION — CERTIORARI.

Where a justice of the peace sentenced the petitioner to 2 months imprisonment for having intoxicating liquor in his possession on an Indian Reserve, a writ of certiorari was upheld and the conviction quashed on the grounds that: (1) the complaint was not made in writing; (2) the sentence was pronounced June 2, but the record showed no adjournment, from April 4 to that date, made in the presence of the petitioner, which constituted a sufficient irregularity to quash the conviction.

F. PROHIBITED HOURS AND DAYS.

(§ III F-81)—ELECTION DAY.

It is not illegal, under the Quebec License Law, s. 974, for a person who is not a licensee and who is not required to obtain a license under that statute, to give away intoxicating liquor to his friends by treating them on the day of a municipal election being held in the municipality; the limitation of the section as to beer and wines used at meals indicates that the words "by any person" used in the second paragraph of s. 974 refer only to licensees.

(§ III F-82)—SALES TO GUESTS AT MEALS WHEN BAR IS CLOSED—ORDERS FOR FLASK OF WHISKEY—TAKING AWAY UNCONSUMED PORTION.

If a hotel proprietor supplies liquor to guests in the dining room of the hotel on a Sunday, the exception in the Liquor License Act R.S.S. 1909, c. 130, s. 65 as to such sales of liquor to be drunk by guests "at their meals at the table," demands that the hotelkeeper shall not sell to any guest more liquor than he reasonably believes a man can drink at the meal and if he supplies a bottle of hard liquor he must see to it that the guest does not carry away in the bottle any left-over portion of its contents. "DISPOSAL" OF LIQUOR IN PROHIBITED HOURS—PREVIOUS SALE CONTRACT.

Where a bottle of whiskey was sold by a licensed tavern keeper, during the business hours allowed by the Liquor License Act, and was "laid away" in the kitchen attached to the licensed premises, for the purchaser, who called for it on a Sunday when sales and disposals of liquor are prohibited by the Act, the tavern keeper by then delivering it to the purchaser is guilty of an illegal "disposal" thereof.

(§ III F-83)—HOURS.

Where a bartender of a licensee, permitted to sell intoxicating liquors, sold, during prohibited hours, two separate orders for intoxicating liquors to two individuals both present at the same time and place, each man paying for the liquor furnished him, such constitutes two separate and distinct violations of the Saskatchewan Liquor License Law, and the holder of the license is liable to 2 separate penalties. [Apothecaries Co. v. Jones, [1893] 1 Q.B.D. 89, and E. v. Scott, 33 L.J.M.C. 15, distinguished.]

UNAUTHORIZED SALE BY SERVANT.

The provision of the E.C. Liquor License Act, s. 81, subs. 118, making the licensee liable to conviction for unlawful sales by his servants, does not apply to the offence of selling during prohibited hours in contravention of the Liquor License Act Amendment Act, 1916, c. 37 (B.C.); the liability under s. 3 of the latter Act is upon the "person violating" it, and the penalty applies only when the accused has personally committed the offence or has authorized or connived at it.

PROOF OF LICENSE.

On a charge under the Liquor License Act, C.S.N.B., 1903, c. 22, s. 48 (1), against an alleged licensee for selling in prohibited hours, the magistrate may infer that the accused was a licensee from uncontradicted oral testimony of witnesses, that he kept a hotel and habitually conducted it as if it were a licensed house, although the prosecution did not formally prove the license by a certificate of the license inspector under s. 83 of the Act.

SALE DURING PROHIBITED HOURS—SUFFICIENCY OF CONVICTION.

In a prosecution for selling intoxicating liquor contrary to the provisions of s. 48 (1) of the Liquor License Act, which prohibits the sale by license holders during certain hours, proof that the accused kept an hotel and sold liquors is, in the absence of any proof to the contrary, evidence that the accused was a licensed holder, and a conviction based on such evidence will not be quashed on certiorari.

G. PLACE OF SALE OR POSSESSION.

(§ III G—85)—"PRIVATE DWELLING HOUSE"—DWELLING AND SHOP.

A private dwelling, which is part only of a building, another part of which is used as a shop or factory, is not a place where intoxicating liquor may be kept, having regard to the definitions of "private dwelling house" in the Ontario Temperance Act, 6 Geo. V., c. 50: see s. 41 (1) and s. 2, clause (i) and subclause (i). A motion to quash a magistrate's conviction for having liquor on premises other than a private dwelling house, was dismissed.

ONTARIO TEMPERANCE ACT—MAGISTRATE'S

CONVICTION FOR OFFENCE AGAINST S. 41

(1) — "PRIVATE DWELLING HOUSE" — SUITE OF ROOMS IN APARTMENT HOUSE IN CITY—DEFENDANT LIVING ALONE—"FAMILY"—SECTION 2 (1) (II).

The defendant had intoxicating liquor in his "flat" or suite of rooms in an apartment house in a city. He was unmarried; he slept in the apartment, and took his meals (except breakfast) in it; he was the only person who slept there, but a servant came in during the day, cared for the premises, and prepared the defendant's meals on the premises.—Held, that the defendant's apartment was a "private dwelling house" within the definition of that term in s. 2 (i) of the Ontario Temperance Act, 6 Geo. V., c. 50, which, by clause (ii), includes a suite of rooms in which "there are facilities for cooking, and a family actually residing, cooking, sleeping and taking their meals." And a magistrate's conviction of the defendant for having intoxicating liquor in a place other than the private dwelling house in which he resided, contrary to s. 41 (1) of the Act, was quashed.

R. v. Baird, 45 O.L.R. 242.

DEFECT IN INFORMATION.

A charge under the Canada Temperance Act that the accused on a specified date "unlawfully did sell intoxicating liquor contrary to Part II. of the Canada Temperance Act then in force in the said county of Sunbury" does not imply that the illegal sale took place in that county, as Part II. is in force in many different counties; nor will the facts that the summons stated an offence at a particular place in that county within the jurisdiction of the commissioner trying the charge, and that the evidence adduced proved such offence, cure the defect and give the commissioner jurisdiction where the defendant did not appear to answer the charge, but his counsel appeared to object to the jurisdiction and withdrew on the objection being overruled by the commissioner.

KEEPING FOR SALE.

The amendment of 1915 to the Quebec License Law, s. 1011, by which in lieu of the fine of $50 for unlawfully keeping liquors for sale, the fine is made discretionary with the judge, with a maximum of $200, does not apply to a prosecution which was pending when the amendment was passed; such case is governed by the prior law when the amendment is not expressly made retroactive, and the court has no discretion to reduce the fixed fine of $50 which it declares.

ONTARIO TEMPERANCE ACT—MAGISTRATE'S CONVICTION FOR OFFENCE AGAINST S. 41 (1)—HAVING INTOXICATING LIQUOR IN PLACE OTHER THAN PRIVATE DWELLING HOUSE—PROOF OF INTOXICATING NATURE OF LIQUOR FOUND ON PREMISES—PROOF THAT HOUSE WHERE LIQUOR FOUND NOT "PRIVATE DWELLING HOUSE"—USE OF HOUSE AS BAWDY-HOUSE—CONVICTION OF DEFENDANT AS KEEPER—SECTION 2 (i) OF ACT.

R. v. Tereschuk, 17 O.W.N. 281.

TEMPERANCE ACT—LIQUOR ORDERS.

It is not an offence under the Manitoba Temperance Act to take orders for liquor in Manitoba provided the liquor is supplied from outside of Manitoba.

Re Manitoba Temperance Act and Great West Wine Co., [1917] 1 W.W.R. 232.

(§ III G—86)—AGENT TO TRANSMIT BUYER'S ORDER.

A person acting in Alberta as agent for others wishing to transmit orders for liquors and the price of same to persons outside of the province for shipment direct to the buyers, does not thereby become liable to conviction for unlawfully "selling" liquor in Alberta, although he is remunerated out of the price with the concurrence of the buyer by a commission allowed him by the liquor dealer to whom the order is sent; "selling" implies a transference of the property in the thing sold unless the statute creating the offence gives it a more extended meaning.

R. v. People's Wine & Spirit Brokers, 35 D.L.R. 115, 28 Can. Cr. Cas. 16, 10 A.L.R. 535, [1917] 2 W.W.R. 14.

WHAT IS PLACE OF SALE.

To constitute the offence under s. 111 of the Ontario Liquor License Act, as amended by 2 Geo. V. c. 55, s. 9, in an unlicensed place, of keeping up a bar sign or of displaying bottles and casks so as to induce a reasonable belief that liquors are sold there it is essential that what is done should induce a belief that (a) premises in fact unlicensed are licensed or (c) that liquor, i.e., intoxicating liquor, is "sold or served therein;" the statute requires something more to be shown than what would be necessary, and proper for the sale of nonintoxicating liquors.

R. v. Bevan, 8 D.L.R. 86, 4 O.W.N. 400, 20 Can. Cr. Cas. 237, 23 O.W.R. 510.

PLACE OF SALE—DWELLING HOUSE.

A dwelling house may be a place where in liquors are sold or reputed to be sold, within the meaning of the N.S. Liquor License Act, C.S.N.B. 1903, c. 22, so as to permit an inspector to enter and search for liquors which he has good reason to believe are being therein stored for sale in violation of law, where, to his personal knowledge, the owner of the house has been previously convicted both for illegally keeping and illegally selling liquor on the premises.

The King v. Matheson; Ex parte Gui-

ILLEGAL KEEPING—"THE OCCUPANT" OF DWELLING.

Where a dwelling house is owned by the husband alone and he is in actual use and possession of same, he is "the occupant" under s. 54 of the Ontario Temperance Act, 6 Geo. V., Ont., c. 50, and the exemption under that Act of the dwelling house as a place where liquor may be kept is not withdrawn under s. 54 by the conviction of "the occupant's" wife for infraction of the Act. [R. v. Irish, 18 O.L.R. 351, applied.]

R. v. Condola, 30 Can. Cr. Cas. 298, 43 O.L.R. 591.

WHAT IS PLACE OF SALE—ACCEPTANCE OF ORDER FOR DELIVERY ELSEWHERE.

A brewer holding a brewer's provincial license may not sell even in wholesale quantities at the brewery to a person who is not a holder of a liquor license if a local option by-law is in force in the municipality in which the brewery is situated, and the transaction is none the less a "sale" in such municipality in contravention of the statute [Liquor License Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 215, s. 155], although the order was given and accepted at the brewery for delivery in another municipality in which also local option was in force and although there was no appropriation of the goods at the time; the word "sell" in s. 155 is not to be construed as limited to the strict technical sense so as to demand an allocation of the goods. [Lambert v. Rowe, [1914] 1 K.B. 38, applied; Pietts v. Campbell, [1895] 2 Q.B. 229, distinguished.]

R. v. Wright, 24 Can. Cr. Cas. 321, 33 O.L.R. 237.

(§ III G—87)—TEMPERANCE ACT—PLACES APPLICABLE.

Part II. of the N.S. Temperance Act, 1910, is in force under Acts 1916, c. 22, in the city of Halifax; the penalties provided thereunder are applicable to offences in the said city against Part I. of that Act.

Re Carrie Bradbury, 30 D.L.R. 756, 27 Can. Cr. Cas. 68, 50 N.S.R. 298.

PROHIBITED AREAS—EXCEPTIONS—SEIZURE—REPLEVIN.

It is not a violation of s. 9 of the Nova Scotia Temperance Act, 1910, c. 2, as amended by Acts 1911, c. 33, to send intoxicating liquor from the city of Halifax into any part of the province in which the prohibitory part of that Act is in force, because s. 9 is in that part of the Act which by s. 3 is expressly declared not to apply to the city of Halifax. There being scope for the application of s. 9 of the Act, without applying it to a charge (laid prior to the amendment of 1915) of unlawfully causing liquor to be sent from the city of Halifax to a prohibition district in Nova Scotia prosecuted in the latter district, full effect must be given to the declaration contained in s. 3 of the statute to the effect that Part I. thereof shall not apply to the city of Halifax unless and until a proclamation shall bring it into effect there; and where there was no such proclamation and the information, summary conviction, and warrant of distress thereunder disclosed only that the accused caused the liquor to be "sent" from Halifax to the prohibition district without stating that it reached its destination or even left the city of Halifax, summary conviction discloses no offence under the Act; and such conviction together with the warrant of distress issued thereunder form no answer to a writ of replevin against the constable to recover goods seized to realize the fine illegally imposed.

Kelly v. Scriven, 28 D.L.R. 319, 26 Can. Cr. Cas. 187, 50 N.S.R. 96.

ILLEGAL POSSESSION—STATUTORY PRESUMPTION FROM RECEIVING.

The consignee who receives at an express office in Ontario a consignment of liquor has cast upon him the statutory onus of proving a legal disposition or possession thereof (Ontario Temperance Act, s. 88), and if he fails to satisfy the magistrate on his trial for illegally having or keeping the liquor in a place other than his dwelling house that he did not commit the offence a conviction may legally be made.

R. v. Moore, 30 Can. Cr. Cas. 206, 41 O.L.R. 372.

POSSESSION—PRIVATE DWELLING HOUSE—BOARDER.

A dwelling where only one boarder is kept is still a "private dwelling house" within the meaning of the Liquor Act, 1916 (Alta.), s. 3, so as to permit lawful possession by the boarder of liquor kept by him there if the quantity is not excessive.

R. v. Scott, 28 Can. Cr. Cas. 102, 11 A.L.R. 163, [1917] 2 W.W.R. 317.

CARRIER'S LIABILITY FOR DELIVERING TO PERSON NOT KNOWN TO BE ENTITLED TO HAVE LIQUOR IN POSSESSION—STATUTORY ONUS OF PROOF.

The effect of s. 49 of the Ontario Temperance Act, 6 Geo. V. c. 50, is that a carrier may be convicted of delivering liquor to "a person not entitled to sell and who sells such liquor or who buys for the purpose of reselling," if the magistrate has before him evidence from which he could properly infer that the person taking delivery from the carrier, and who was personally unknown to the carrier, had bought for the purpose of reselling although there was no direct evidence of any resale or as to the identity of the consignee. The onus is upon the carrier to satisfy the magistrate that he had reason to believe, and did believe, that the consignee did not buy to resell.

R. v. McEwan, 30 Can. Cr. Cas. 212, 41 O.L.R. 324.

(§ III G—89)—PLACE OF SALE—EXTRA BAR PROHIBITED.

The maintenance of a separate extra bar in a licensed hotel, although temporary and for one day only, is an infraction of the Liquor License Act, R.S.O. 1897, c. 245, s.

65, the inhibiting words of the Act that not more than one bar shall be "kept" meaning that more than one bar should not be had in use and not involving the idea of permanency or continued user. [R. v. Lewis, 41 C.L.J. 842, dissented from; Shelley v. Bethell, 12 Q.B.D. 11, applied.]

R. v. Genz, 22 Can. Cr. Cas. 110.

(§ III G—89)—KEEPING FOR SALE—STATUTORY PRESUMPTIONS.

The mere finding of liquor does not create a statutory presumption that liquor is kept for sale on the premises unless the special circumstances stated in s. 102 of the revised Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 215, are shewn to exist, for example, the maintenance of a bar.

R. v. Nero, 18 D.L.R. 688, 23 Can. Cr. Cas. 167, 6 O.W.N. 420.

EVIDENCE OF UNLAWFUL KEEPING—CARRIER.

Under s. 54 of the Alberta Liquor Act the onus is upon the accused of proving that a package of intoxicating liquor consigned to the accused and received by him from the express company, and which was found in his possession while he was taking it from the express office to his dwelling house, was not intended for sale on being charged under s. 23 of the Act with keeping liquor for sale; and this although the liquor was found in an omnibus of which the accused had charge as driver for a local common carrier, the express company's responsibility in respect of the consignment from outside of Alberta having ceased on delivery to the accused.

R. v. Collins, 35 D.L.R. 296, 28 Can. Cr. Cas. 105, 11 A.L.R. 32, [1917] 2 W.W.R. 170.

STATUTORY PRESUMPTIONS—REVIEWING EVIDENCE ON CERTIORARI.

On certiorari in respect of a summary conviction for keeping liquor on premises other than a private dwelling house in contravention of s. 24 of the Alberta Liquor Act, the court is bound to examine the evidence on the part of the accused, not to weigh any contradiction, but, assuming the truth of the evidence for the prosecution, to ascertain whether the accused has negated the statutory presumption raised by s. 54 of the Act on prima facie proof being given of his possession, charge or control of the liquor, whereby the onus of disproving the offence is, by said s. 54, then thrown on the accused.

R. v. Covert, 34 D.L.R. 662, 28 Can. Cr. Cas. 25, 10 A.L.R. 349, [1917] 1 W.W.R. 919.

REBUTTING STATUTORY PRESUMPTION—QUANTITY.

The statutory presumption of keeping liquor for sale which arises under the Alberta Liquor Act from possession of a large quantity at a private house, may be rebutted by the testimony of the accused denying that he kept it for sale; and where there was no evidence of frequenting of the place by others and nothing to throw discredit upon the testimony of the accused, the magistrate is bound to accept his evidence in disproof of the statutory presumption and cannot legally convict in the face of such rebuttal where the case for the prosecution depends on the statutory presumption alone. The court on certiorari will look at the evidence and set aside a summary conviction under such circumstances as not supported by any evidence upon which the magistrate could find the accused guilty. [R. v. Emery, 33 D.L.R. 556, 27 Can. Cr. Cas. 116, and R. v. Covert, 28 Can. Cr. Cas. 25, 34 D.L.R. 662, applied.]

R. v. Barb, 35 D.L.R. 102, 28 Can. Cr. Cas. 93, [1917] 2 W.W.R. 326.

IRRELEVANT EVIDENCE—STATUTORY PRESUMPTION.

Where the magistrate's discredit of the defendant's evidence on a charge of keeping liquor given in rebuttal of a statutory presumption arising under the Ontario Temperance Act from the finding of a small quantity in defendant's shop, may have been influenced by irrelevant evidence of a kind which would be likely to cause prejudice to the accused, the conviction will be set aside on certiorari. [R. v. Lapointe, 4 D.L.R. 210, 20 Can. Cr. Cas. 98, 3 O.W.N. 1469, applied.]

R. v. Melvin, 34 D.L.R. 382, 38 O.L.R. 231, 27 Can. Cr. Cas. 350.

STATUTORY FORMS OF PROCEEDINGS.

Where a liquor law authorizes the use of special forms thereby provided for certain offences and as to others declares that those forms shall form a guide for framing new forms in like manner, the use of the word "liquor" as meaning "intoxicating liquor" will be validated as regards an information, summons and conviction under the Act for an offence as to which a specific form is not provided, if such use of the word is generally, although not universally, made in the statutory forms.

Ex parte Pirie, 29 Can. Cr. Cas. 164, 45 N.B.R. 195.

DOCUMENT IMPROPERLY ADMITTED TO PROVE ANALYSIS.

Where the only legal evidence to support a summary conviction for keeping liquor in contravention of the Ontario Temperance Act does not satisfy the court hearing a certiorari motion to quash the conviction that the offence was committed (Cr. Code s. 1124), and the proceedings returned shewed that the magistrate had improperly admitted an invalid certificate of analysis which probably had influenced his finding of guilt, the conviction will be quashed. [R. v. Melvin, 38 O.L.R. 231, applied.]

R. v. Schooley, 27 Can. Cr. Cas. 444, 11 O.W.N. 341.

STATUTORY PRESUMPTION FROM POSSESSION.

Although sales of intoxicating native wine in quantities of over five gallons are allowed by the Ontario Temperance Act, the possession of same by the purchaser throws upon him the onus of proving that he was not guilty of the offence of having the same in his possession for illegal sale or disposal, if charged with that offence (s. 88).

R. v. Nazzareno, 30 Can. Cr. Cas. 296, 44 O.L.R. 36.

UNLAWFUL KEEPING—LABELS AS EVIDENCE.

On a conviction for unlawful possession of intoxicating liquor being brought up for review on certiorari, the bottles put in as exhibits at the trial should be transmitted for the certiorari hearing, if the labels on the bottles are relied upon as a representation of their contents by the accused.

R. v. Dickey, 25 Can. Cr. Cas. 55, 32 W.L.R. 404, 9 W.W.R. 142.

SEPARATE CONVICTIONS FOR SELLING AND KEEPING FOR SALE.

The offences of illegally selling intoxicating liquor and of keeping intoxicating liquor for sale are distinct offences, and separate proceedings for each are maintainable under the Liquor License Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 215, although charged as of the same day.

R. v. Sinkolo, 24 Can. Cr. Cas. 293, 8 O.W.N. 515.

STATUTORY PRESUMPTION OF UNLAWFULLY KEEPING.

R. v. Williams, 27 Can. Cr. Cas. 264, 11 O.W.N. 243.

STATUTORY PRESUMPTION—COMMUNICATING DOORS.

It is a question of fact for the magistrate as to whether one or more parts of a building divided off into sections with locked doors between the sections is or are under the control of the accused found in possession of one section so as to raise against him the statutory presumption, under R.S.O. 1914, c. 215, s. 102, of keeping liquor for sale by reason of the police finding intoxicating liquor in quantity stored in another section.

R. v. On Kee, 26 Can. Cr. Cas. 392, 11 O.W.N. 137.

POSSESSION—STATUTORY PRESUMPTIONS.

The onus is upon the accused charged with an offence under the Ontario Temperance Act, 1916, c. 50, to prove his innocence to the satisfaction of the magistrate after it has been shewn that he was in possession of the liquor (s. 88); the onus is not shifted by the mere denial of the offence by the accused in giving evidence on his own behalf if the magistrate does not give credence to the denial.

R. v. Le Clair, 28 Can. Cr. Cas. 216, 39 O.L.R. 436.

The fact that a person charged with keeping liquor for sale testifies that the liquor found in his possession was kept for his own use and not for the purpose of sale, does not necessarily disprove the statutory presumption arising from such possession; the justice is entitled to weigh the evidence. [R. v. Covert, 34 D.L.R. 662, 10 A.L.R. 349, explained.] Evidence held sufficient to justify fy a conviction for keeping intoxicating liquor for sale.

R. v. McKinley, 28 Can. Cr. Cas. 294, [1917] 2 W.W.R. 1069.

PRESUMPTION FROM FINDING ON SEARCH WARRANT.

The finding of intoxicating liquor upon a search made under warrant raises a statutory presumption of keeping for sale under s. 57 of the Ontario Temperance Act, 1916, only against the occupant of the premises where found and not against another person charged who was the owner of the liquors and had stored it on the premises with the consent of the occupant.

R. v. Riddell, 28 Can. Cr. Cas. 317, 38 O. L.R. 222.

CRIMINAL LAW—PROHIBITION ACT—SALE OF LIQUOR—CONVICTION—CERTIORARI—VENUE—B.C. STATS. 1916, c. 49.

Before imposing the consequences of an infraction of the Prohibition Act there should be reasonable particularity of proof as to when and where the offence alleged was committed.

EVIDENCE OF SALE—PARTNERSHIP—PRESUMPTION OF KNOWLEDGE.

The King v. Milkins, 17 Can. Cr. Cas. 20.

H. SEIZURE AND DESTRUCTION.

(§ III H—90)—SEARCH AND SEIZURE—LICENSE INSPECTOR—RIGHT TO ENTER PREMISES WITHOUT SEARCH WARRANT.

A liquor license inspector may enter a house without a search warrant in order to search for liquor which he, with good reason, believes is being stored for sale in violation of law, when he can do so peaceably and without force.

The King v. Matheson; Ex parte Guimond, 12 D.L.R. 480, 21 Can. Cr. Cas. 312, 41 N.B.R. 581, 13 E.L.R. 58.

SEIZURE AND DESTRUCTION—LIQUORS IN POSSESSION OF GOVERNMENT RAILWAY—RIGHT TO BREAK INTO STATION AND SEIZE.

Since the title to the property of the Intercolonial Railway is vested in the Dominion Government, and is not subject to provincial legislation, a provincial revenue officer cannot lawfully break into a railway station of that railway for the purpose of seizing under a provincial law a consignment of intoxicating liquor which he may have reason to believe the consignee intends to sell in violation of the provincial liquor license law.

The King v. L'Heureux, 14 D.L.R. 604, 14 Can. Ex. 250.

ILLEGAL SEARCH OF PERSON.

A search warrant for liquors issued under the Nova Scotia Temperance Act, 1910, s. 42, does not authorize the officer or his assistant to search the person of the occupant of the premises wherein liquor is suspected of being unlawfully kept for sale; a compulsory search of the person at the time of searching the premises referred to in the search warrant is punishable as a common assault, if no liquor was found on the premises, and there was no authority to arrest the party searched.

R. v. Paint, 36 D.L.R. 717, 28 Can. Cr. Cas. 171, 51 N.S.R. 114.

VALIDITY—STATUS OF INFORMANT.

An order for the destruction of liquor condemned, following a conviction under the Canada Temperance Act for storing the liquor, is entirely separate and distinct from the conviction itself. The magistrate, therefore, may properly order the liquor to be destroyed by the complainant on whose information the conviction was made. [Ex parte Dewar, 39 N.B.R. 143, followed; Ex parte McCleave, 55 N.B.R. 100, distinguished.] An inspector appointed for the enforcement of the Act may legally be appointed to carry out an order for destruction of seized liquor following a conviction for illegally storing the same, although such liquor was originally seized by the inspector and the prosecution in respect thereof was taken at his instance. [Ex parte Dewar, 15 Can. Cr. Cas. 273, 39 N.B.R. 143, applied.]

Ex parte Doyle; R. v. Lawlor, 31 D.L.R. 90, 27 Can. Cr. Cas. 60, 44 N.B.R. 90.

EVIDENCE—GOVERNMENT ANALYSIS—CERTIFICATE.

A municipal constable or policeman is not an "officer of the Crown" within the meaning of s. 106 of the Liquor License Act, R.N.O. 1914, c. 215, so as to make admissible in evidence for the prosecution under that section a certificate of analysis of alleged intoxicating liquors seized by him and forwarding at his instance to the provincial government analyst for analysis and report.

R. v. Hurley, 31 D.L.R. 18, 26 Can. Cr. Cas. 159, 36 O.L.R. 159.

LIQUOR IN BONDED WAREHOUSE—PERMISSION OF CROWN TO REMOVE TO ANOTHER PROVINCE—"DUTY SECURED BY BOND"—LIQUOR SEIZED UNDER TEMPERANCE ACT—RIGHT OF CROWN TO LIEN FOR DUTY.

The Crown having parted with its possession of intoxicating liquor by granting permission to the shipper in Ontario to remove it from his bonded warehouse as being the property of the shipper about to be transferred into the possession of a merchant in Nova Scotia, the duty having been "secured by bond" and such course being authorized by order-in-council; is not entitled to a lien on such liquor for such duty, and the liquor having been seized under the N.S. Temperance Act, is under the jurisdiction of the court to be dealt with under the Act. The Att'y-Gen'l of Canada is not a necessary party.

Att'y-Gen'l of Canada v. McCormick, 45 D.L.R. 463, 53 N.S.R. 216.

SEIZURE OF LIQUOR—GOVERNMENT RAILWAY—NOVA SCOTIA TEMPERANCE ACT, I GEN. V. C. 33—PROVISIONS AS TO CARRIERS.

The provisions of the Nova Scotia Temperance Act authorizing the seizure of liquor in transit or on the premises of any carrier do not apply to liquor in the custody of the Crown on the premises of a Government Railway. [The Queen v. McLeod, 8 Can. S.C.R. 1.]

Martinello v. McCormick, 50 D.L.R. 799, reversing 45 D.L.R. 364, 31 Can. Cr. Cas. 51, 53 N.S.R. 64 at 76.

INQUIRY FOR FORFEITURE ORDER.

On an equal division of the Supreme Court of Nova Scotia, a motion for prohibition stood dismissed by which it was sought to prevent a magistrate who had made a summary conviction for keeping liquor for sale in contravention of the Nova Scotia Temperance Act following a plea of guilty of the charge laid in general terms without identification of the liquor, from proceeding with a further hearing and inquiry upon a proceeding in rem under that Act to determine whether the liquor seized or what part thereof should be ordered to be destroyed.

R. v. Fong Quing, 39 D.L.R. 60, 51 N.S.R. 503, 29 Can. Cr. Cas. 61.

SEIZURE UNDER WARRANT — REASONABLE TIME—REPLEVIN.

Where intoxicating liquor has been seized under warrant (s. 46 of c. 2, N.S. 1910), and brought into court, the magistrate may lawfully detain it for a reasonable time pending proceedings for its condemnation, and no other court has a right to interfere with such possession.

Lavie v. Hill, 40 D.L.R. 459, 29 Can. Cr. Cas. 287, 52 N.S.R. 215.

REPLEVIN OF LIQUOR SEIZED — PRIVATE DWELLING HOUSE.

A replevin order should not be granted against a chief of police for the return of intoxicating liquor in his custody which has been seized in a place other than a private dwelling house.

Lam Jim v. McRae, [1918] 1 W.W.R. 404.

WHEN JUSTIFIED.

Where there is no reason to suspect that intoxicating liquor consigned by rail from a licensed district to an unlicensed district in Nova Scotia is intended for sale or to be used otherwise than for the personal use of the consignee, the seizure of the liquor is not justified under s. 36, N.S. Acts, 1911, c. 33, and the magistrate should order it restored to the consignee.

R. v. Publicover, 21 D.L.R. 203, 24 Can. Cr. Cas. 1, 49 N.S.R. 85.

SEIZURE UNDER SEARCH WARRANT — PRESUMPTION.

The statutory presumption of keeping liquor for sale raised against the occupant of premises where liquor is found by officers executing a search warrant under the Nova Scotia Temperance Act has reference not merely to the arrest of the occupant in that event, which s. 46 authorizes, but applies also against such occupant on being charged with unlawful keeping the liquor for sale.

R. v. Hoare, 24 Can. Cr. Cas. 279, 49 N.S.R. 119.

SEIZURE AND CONDEMNATION — STATUTORY PRESUMPTION — SHIPMENT AS OTHER GOODS—DESTINATION OUTSIDE OF ONTARIO.

On the seizure of intoxicating liquor in transit in Ontario, and the hearing by a justice of condemnation proceedings under the Ontario Temperance Act, 1916, the fact that the liquor was consigned as other goods raises a statutory presumption that it was intended for use in contravention of the Act. The application of the Act is not displaced by the production of a way-bill showing places of shipment and destination both outside of Ontario; and because of the statutory presumption the claimant of the liquor seeking to prevent its confiscation has cast upon him the onus of proving not only that the transaction was one to which the Act does not apply, but that he is the owner.

SEIZURE AND DESTRUCTION — NOVA SCOTIA TEMPERANCE ACT NOT EFFECTIVE AS TO LIQUOR IN TRANSIT ON FEDERAL GOVERNMENT RAILWAY.

A provincial liquor law cannot authorize a constable to seize, for the purpose of confiscation proceedings thereunder, intoxicating liquor under the control of the Crown as represented by the Government of Canada operating a Canadian Government Railway although the liquor was merely received by the railway as freight consigned to a person in the province. Magistrate's order for destruction of the liquor set aside.

Ex parte McGrath, 31 Can. Cr. Cas. 10.

SEIZURE AND DESTRUCTION—WHO MAY EXECUTE ORDER FOR.

There is nothing in the Canada Temperance Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 152, to prevent the appointment of the officer who laid the information for violation of the Act from carrying out an order to destroy liquors seized in the proceeding. [Ex parte Dewar, 15 Can. Cr. Cas. 273, 39 N.B.R. 143, distinguished.]

The King v. Le Blanc, 21 Can. Cr. Cas. 221, 12 E.L.R. 66.

SEIZURE AND DESTRUCTION.

A commissioner of police appointed under R.S.C. 1906, c. 92, is a person "fulfilling a public duty" within the terms of R.S.O. 1897, c. 88, and is entitled to notice of action thereunder before suit is brought against him for a return of a fine and costs alleged to have been irregularly levied upon the plaintiff by the commissioner in virtue of his office in respect of plaintiff's possession of intoxicating liquor within a prohibited district in alleged contravention of ss. 150, 151, Cr. Code. Where an order for the forfeiture and destruction of intoxicating liquor seized was made by a commissioner of Dominion police assuming to act under the authority of Code s. 614 in the presence of the owner of the liquor brought before him by the seizing officer, and the commissioner had, by statute, jurisdiction over the subject-matter and over the owner in respect thereof, a notice of action must be given within 6 months under R.S.O. 1897, c. 88, even if the forfeiture was irregularly made or was wholly void or contrary to natural justice, and was not reduced to writing; and semble the action itself must be brought within 6 months under Cr. Code, s. 1149.

JURISDICTION OF MAGISTRATE TO ORDER DESTRUCTION—CONDITIONS TO BE STRICTLY OBSERVED—INFORMATION NOT LAID BY PERSON MAKING SEIZURE.

The provisions of s. 36 of c. 33 of the Acts of 1911, as amended by c. 46 of Acts of 1913, with respect to the seizure and removal of liquor found in transit or in course of delivery and the power of magistrates to order the destruction of the same, must be strictly followed, and where the information is not laid by the person who makes the seizure, the magistrate before whom the matter is brought has no jurisdiction to order the destruction of the liquor seized, and such order, if made, will be set aside.

The King v. Clarke, 52 N.S.R. 406.

I. TRIAL OF OFFENDERS.

(§ III I—91)—EXCLUSIVE JURISDICTION OF TOWN STIPENDIARY MAGISTRATE—NOVA SCOTIA TEMPERANCE ACT, 1900.

The provision of the Town Incorporation Act, R.S.N.S. 1900, c. 71, ss. 233, 234, whereby a police office is established where "all the police business of the town shall be transacted," and whereby the police court is presided over by a stipendiary magistrate for the town exercising therein "all the jurisdiction of two justices of the peace or a stipendiary magistrate" has the effect of establishing a separate and exclusive jurisdiction and of taking away the jurisdiction of county justices to try an offence against the Nova Scotia Temperance Act, 1900, where the commissions to county justices do not expressly include the town, and this although the Temperance Act provides that prosecutions thereunder may be brought before "any magistrate" having jurisdiction where the offence was committed and defines magistrate as a "stipendiary magistrate or two justices."

ALBERTA LIQUOR ACT—INFORMATION—PARTICULARS—CONVICTION—EVIDENCE TO SUPPORT—APPEAL.

It is no ground for objection to an information under the Alberta Liquor Act, that it does not contain all the particulars it might, where it is clear from the evidence that the informant was prosecuting for a breach of the Act, in selling on a prescription signed by a certain doctor, and where there is ample evidence to support a conviction for an offence in so doing. Whether the magistrate should have ordered particulars to be given is not a question of law which can be raised on a stated case.

R. v. Weinfield, 47 D.L.R. 85, 31 Can. Cr. Cas. 163, [1919] 2 W.W.R. 586.

ABSENT DEFENDANT—PLEA OF GUILTY BY COUNSEL.

As ss. 715, 720 Cr. Code, pertaining to the appearance of counsel at trial before a magistrate are made applicable by s. 17 of the Prohibition Act, P.E.I. 1907, to prosecutions thereunder, counsel may appear and enter for an absent defendant a plea of guilty for a violation of the latter Act.

INFORMATION—AMENDMENT—DATE AND INFORMANT.

A conviction under the Liquor Act (Alta.) is not invalidated, by amending the original information before any evidence is taken, by changing the date of the offence, and changing the informant to another constable who swears to the information as amended. [R. v. Chew Deb, 9 D.L.R. 266, distinguished.]

R. v. Van Fleet, 41 D.L.R. 65, 13 A.L.R. 320, 30 Can. Cr. Cas. 147, [1918] 2 W.W.R. 432, affirming 38 D.L.R. 592.

A magistrate may try a person in his absence for selling liquor without a license where he has been duly summoned and is represented by counsel at the trial.

R. v. Matheson; Ex parte Martin, 2 D.L.R. 835, 20 Can. Cr. Cas. 153, 41 N.B.R. 187, 10 E.L.R. 585.

The provision of s. 24 of the Nova Scotia Temperance Act (N.S. 1910, c. 2, as amended N.S. 1911, c. 33) which declares that the offender on each subsequent conviction shall be "liable to imprisonment for 3 months," gives no discretion to the magistrate to lessen the term of imprisonment.

A conviction for selling liquor without a license will be quashed, where a magistrate with whom 3 informations were lodged against the accused for separate sales to different persons, heard evidence at the same time tending to prove the three offences, and found the accused guilty in all 3 cases.

PROHIBITION ACT, N.B.—HAVING LIQUOR IN PLACE OTHER THAN A PRIVATE DWELLING HOUSE—EVIDENCE NECESSARY TO SUSTAIN CONVICTION.

In order to sustain a conviction under the N.B. Prohibition Act (1916, 6 Geo. V. c. 20) for having liquor in a place other than a private dwelling house, it is necessary to shew that at the time the offence was said to have been committed the premises were not so used, the fact that part of such premises had previously been used as a shop, or the fact that they had the physical qualities of a shop is not sufficient for the purposes of the Act.

The King v. Vroom; Ex parte McDonald, 45 D.L.R. 494, 31 Can. Cr. Cas. 316, 46 N.B.R. 214.

WHAT IS "LIQUOR"—QUESTION OF FACT FOR MAGISTRATE TO DECIDE.

Whether liquor proved to have been sold by the defendant is liquor within the meaning of the Intoxicating Liquor Act N.B. is a question of fact the duty of deciding which is imposed by statute upon the magistrate who has jurisdiction over the person and the offence charged and where there is evidence to support his finding an appellate court will not interfere.

The King v. Vroom; Ex parte Crawford, 47 D.L.R. 578, 31 Can. Cr. Cas. 304.

MANITOBA TEMPERANCE ACT — RULES APPLICABLE.

The rules applicable to prosecutions in general apply to prosecutions under the Manitoba Temperance Act. The Crown cannot split up its case by merely putting in evidence of possession of the liquor to make a prima facie case and withholding evidence relating to the charge so as to put it in rebuttal. The possession required by s. 49 of the Act is an actual possession and control over the liquor.

The King v. Stein, 47 D.L.R. 571, 31 Can. Cr. Cas. 345, [1919] 2 W.W.R. 959.

WRIT OF PROHIBITION RESTRAINING MAGISTRATE—NOVA SCOTIA TEMPERANCE ACT — CRIMINAL CHARGE—APPEAL.

Application for a writ of prohibition to restrain a magistrate from proceeding with a prosecution for violation of the Nova Scotia Temperance Act arises out of a criminal charge, and no appeal lies from the judgment thereon.

MINUTE OF CONVICTION — SUFFICIENCY — AMENDMENT.

In a prosecution for selling intoxicating liquor contrary to the Liquor License Act, the minute of conviction imposed a penalty and costs without specifying the amount of the costs or the costs of commitment, and conveying to gaol on default of payment. The conviction was in the proper form, imposed the penalty, fixed the amount of the costs, and awarded imprisonment in default of payment of the said sums and the costs of commitment and conveying to gaol:—Held, per curiam, on a motion to quash the conviction on certiorari, that apart from the provisions of s. 89, the minute was sufficient to support the conviction; but, assuming that it was defective, it is not a ground under s. 89 for quashing the conviction. If it were necessary to support the conviction the minute could be amended under s. 89 (2).

The King v. Dugas; Ex parte Paulin, 43 N.B.R. 58.

CONFISCATION—VALIDITY—REVENDEICATION.

When a Magistrate's Court acting with in the limits of its jurisdiction pronounces against an accused the confiscation of alcoholic liquors in proceedings taken by the collector of the revenue, the Superior Court should respect this decision so long as it has not been set aside by a proper authority and dismiss the application for revendication by the owner of the liquor confiscated.

EXECUTION OF SEARCH WARRANT ON SUNDAY.

Cr. Code, s. 661, as to the execution of warrants on Sunday, being in terms limited to warrants authorized by the Code, does not apply to search warrants issued under the Canada Temperance Act nor does Part XV. of the Code, which by s. 135 of the Canada Temperance Act is to be read into the latter Act, contain any enactment which would validate the execution on Sunday of a search warrant under the Canada Temperance Act.

Ex parte Willis (R. v. Lawlor), 27 Can. Cr. Cas. 383, 44 N.B.R. 347.

SEARCH WARRANT FOR LIQUORS—PARTICULARITY.

A search warrant for liquors under the Liquor Act (Alta.) should describe the premises to be searched with sufficient accuracy to enable one to know from the mere reading of it what premises are to be searched.

R. v. Gibson, 30 Can. Cr. Cas. 308, [1919] 1 W.W.R. 614.

QUEBEC LAW—DELIVERY OF LIQUOR IN PROHIBITION MUNICIPALITY—INFORMATION—CERTIORARI.

If a person is accused of having delivered intoxicating liquor in a municipality where a prohibition by-law is in force, the charge should be based upon such by-law and not upon the Quebec license law. The production, at the enquete, of a copy of such by-law not mentioned in the information, is illegal. In such circumstances, a conviction will be annulled by certiorari. No contestation by writing is permitted to invalidate a writ of certiorari, not even by way of motion to quash. A conviction or order complained of can only be objected to by affidavit if lack of jurisdiction be shewn.

Fraser v. Cour du Recorder, 19 Que. P.R. 5.

SUMMARY CONVICTION—AMENDMENT ON APPEAL.

On an appeal from a summary conviction on a charge under the Prohibition Act of unlawfully having intoxicating liquor in a place of public entertainment, held that an amendment should not be allowed so as to make the charge one of having liquor in a place other than a private dwelling house.

J. SECOND AND SUBSEQUENT OFFENCES.

(§ III J-94)—HABEAS CORPUS—SECOND OFFENCE—EVIDENCE OF PREVIOUS CONVICTION.

A certificate with a person of the same name mentioned as having been convicted in a locality is some evidence of the identity of the defendant and in the absence of proof to the contrary the magistrate is justified in taking this evidence of a previous conviction. [R. v. Leach, 14 Can. Crim. Cas. 375; Ex parte Dugan, 32 N.B.R. 98, followed.]

Blackburn v. The King, 49 D.L.R. 482, 32 Can. Cr. Cas. 119.

SECOND OFFENCE—FORFEITURE OF LICENSE—OFFENCES OF DIFFERENT CLASS.

A prior conviction of the licensed hotel-keeper for permitting persons to be in the barroom during prohibited hours of sale is not sufficient under s. 83 of the Liquor License Act, R.S.S. 1909, c. 130, to warrant a conviction as for a second offence with a consequent forfeiture of license on proof of a latter offence of selling during prohibited hours.

R. v. Curran, 19 D.L.R. 120, 22 Can. Cr. Cas. 388.

SECOND OFFENCES—NOVA SCOTIA TEMPERANCE ACT—SUMMONS—PARTICULARS OF PREVIOUS CONVICTION—REQUIREMENTS—AMENDMENTS—WHEN INCLINED.

In a criminal prosecution for an alleged second offence under the Nova Scotia Temperance Act, 1910, as amended by 1 Geo. V. c. 33, incorporating by reference for procedure certain sections of Cr. Code, and the forms of the Canada Temperance Act, a summons is defective which does not specify with any detail the previous conviction either as to (a) its date; (b) the nature of the offence; (c) whether for selling or keeping or which of the other possible offences; (d) the place of the offence or (e) otherwise earmark it; although it is alleged therein that the present offence "was and is a second offence against the Nova Scotia Temperance Act, 1910;" such summons is an insufficient basis for a conviction in the absence of the accused for a second offence with the increased penalty. The defect of such summons cannot be got rid of by merely omitting to carry such defect into the present conviction, and, where the hearing has proceeded in the defendant's absence, a conviction as for a second offence cannot be based upon such defective summons, even though the present conviction and information may in themselves be sufficient in form. In a proceeding for an alleged second offence under the Nova Scotia Temperance Act, 1910, as amended by 1 Geo. V. c. 33, s. 8, the latter alone providing the punishment by imprisonment without option of fine for a second offence; where the information and conviction set out that the alleged second offence is contrary to the provisions of part I. of the Nova Scotia Temperance Act, 1910, and contain no reference to or recital of the amendment of c. 33, s. 8, the omission constitutes, at common law, a misdescription of the statutory provisions and is not cured by the general Interpretation Act for the Statutes of Canada, 6 Edw. VII. c. 21, s. 6 (now R.S.C. 1906, c. 1 s. 391), lacking all amendments, since the latter provision is not incorporated by reference in the Nova Scotia Temperance Act.

Offering in evidence before an accused person was found guilty of the subsequent offence on a trial for a second offence of selling liquor without a license, of a certificate of his former convictions, is not such a violation of para. (a) of s. 85 of the Liquor License Act of N.B. 1903, as will oust a magistrate of jurisdiction, where the latter, upon objection to the admission of such certificate, did not proceed further with such inquiry until the accused was found guilty of the subsequent offence, as such provision of the Liquor License Act relative to the order of time to be observed by the court in proving the first and second offences is directory only except as to the questions to be put to the accused. [R. v. Graves (No. 2), 16 Can. Cr. Cas. 318, 21 O.L.R. 329, followed.]

R. v. Matheson; Ex parte Martin, 2 D. L.R. 835, 20 Can. Cr. Cas. 153, 41 N.B.R. 187, 10 E.L.R. 585.

Where on the trial for an offence against the provisions of the Nova Scotia Temperance Act, the prosecutor in answer to a question as to whether the accused had been convicted of keeping intoxicating liquor for sale during the last year, replied in the affirmative, this question and answer before adjudication of the principal charge does not constitute an enquiry by the magistrate "concerning such previous conviction," in contravention of the Nova Scotia Temperance Act 1910, c. 2, s. 44, and a motion for the discharge of the prisoner on habeas corpus will be refused. [R. v. Passerini, 6 E.L.R. 541, distinguished.]

R. v. McNutt, 7 D.L.R. 651, 20 Can. Cr. Cas. 174, 46 N.S.R. 209.

"EACH SUBSEQUENT CONVICTION" — ADDITIONAL PENALTIES.

The additional punishment provided by s. 24 of the Nova Scotia Temperance Act, 1910, as amended by 1911, c. 33, for "each subsequent conviction" after conviction for the first offence, applies only to an offence of the same kind; selling liquor in contravention of the Act is a distinct offence from that of keeping for sale, and a prior conviction for selling will not support a conviction with a penalty as for a second or subsequent offence of keeping for sale.

R. v. Moore, 35 D.L.R. 394, 51 N.S.R. 51, 28 Can. Cr. Cas. 91.

PROOF OF PREVIOUS CONVICTION.

A summary conviction under the Alberta Liquor Act, 1916, with the additional penalty for a second offence will be quashed where there was no evidence by certificate or otherwise of a prior conviction and no reference thereto at the trial; the court hearing a certiorari application will refuse to receive the magistrate's affidavit tendered in opposition to the motion for the purpose of shewing that the magistrate acted upon his recollection of the former conviction he himself had made.

R. v. Brown, 37 D.L.R. 505, 28 Can. Cr. Cas. 208.

CONVICTION OF MAGISTRATE—EVIDENCE—AMENDMENT.

The court may amend the conviction, so as to impose only the penalty for a first offence, where there is no evidence to support the finding of the magistrate that the accused had been previously convicted under the Liquor Act (Alta.).

READING WHOLE INFORMATION.

On a charge of a second offence under the Nova Scotia Temperance Act, it is proper for the magistrate at the commencement of trial to read over the whole information to the accused although by s. 44 he is required to enquire in the first instance concerning the subsequent offence and on a finding of guilt thereof "and not before" enquire concerning the previous conviction. This requirement relates to the trial and examination of witnesses and not to the arraignment. [Faulkner v. The King, [1905] 2 K.R. 76, and R. v. Fox, 10 Cox C.C. 502, distinguished.]

R. v. Shatford, 38 D.L.R. 366, 51 N.S.R. 322, 28 Can. Cr. Cas. 284.

RECORD—STENOGRAPHIC NOTES.

The stenographic notes of evidence in a summary conviction matter are not necessarily a record of all the proceedings apart from the depositions, and where a conviction for a second offence is in due form it is not to be presumed that there was no adjudication on the later offence before recording the plea to the charge of having been previously convicted, although no note of the adjudication on the offence then being tried appeared in the stenographic notes other than a reference to the sentence as for a second offence. Even if there were an irregularity in that respect in proceedings under the Ontario Temperance Act, the conviction would not be invalidated thereby as the provisions of the Act in that regard are merely directory and do not go to the jurisdiction.

R. v. Hanley, 30 Can. Cr. Cas. 63, 41 O. L.R. 177.

PLEA OF GUILTY BY COUNSEL.

As the provisions of the Cr. Code, Part XV. (Summary Convictions), are in terms applicable to prosecutions under the Nova Scotia Temperance Act, 1910, counsel may appear before the magistrate and plead guilty for the accused without the personal attendance of the latter in respect of an illegal sale of intoxicating liquor in contravention of the Act. [R. v. Montgomery, 102 L.T.R. 325, and R. v. Thompson, [1909] 2 K.B. 614, 100 L.T.R. 970, applied.]

R. v. Thompson, 21 D.L.R. 743, 23 Can. Cr. Cas. 463, 48 N.S.R. 515.

SECOND AND THIRD OFFENCES.

There must be a conviction as for a second offence before there can be a conviction as for a third offence under the Canada Temperance Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 152, and the magistrate who has entered a conviction made as for a third offence, and which recites two previous convictions, must be taken to have found that there was in fact a second conviction as for a second offence. Where the magistrate had jurisdiction over the subject-matter and over the person, and certiorari is taken away by statute in respect of the particular offence, the court, upon a certiorari necessarily limited to the question of jurisdiction, cannot interfere with a summary conviction as for a third offence under the Canada Temperance Act, which recites 2 prior convictions proved before the magistrate, although such third conviction does not specify that the second conviction was made as for a second offence.

Ex parte Gogan; R. v. Steeves, 24 Can. Cr. Cas. 371, 43 N.B.R. 285.

SECOND OFFENCE—ADJUDICATION FIRST ON LATER CHARGE—PROCEDURE UNDER ONT. TEMPERANCE ACT.

A summary conviction under the Ontario Temperance Act, 6 Geo. V. c. 50 is not invalidated because on cross-examination of the accused giving testimony on his own behalf on a charge of a second offence of unlawfully having possession of liquor in contravention of the Act, he was asked about and admitted his previous conviction. Section 96 of the Act, that the magistrate "shall in the first instance inquire concerning such subsequent offence only," is directory only and not imperative as affecting the magistrate's jurisdiction. [R. v. Coote, 17 Can. Cr. Cas. 211, 22 O.L.R. 269, followed.]

R. v. Mercier, 31 Can. Cr. Cas. 171, 45 O.L.R. 237.

SECOND AND SUBSEQUENT OFFENCE—FIRST CONVICTION UNDER ALIAS NAME—ABSENCE AT TRIAL.

The previous conviction necessary to support a summary conviction for a second offence and the more onerous punishment provided for second offences under the Liquor License Act, C.S.N.B. 1903, c. 22, need not have described the accused by the same name as that under which he was summoned for the second offence; the second conviction will be regular in that respect if the evidence upon the trial for the second offence proves the identity of the person previously convicted with the person summoned for the second offence, although not present to defend the case. A defendant who has been duly summoned may be convicted in his absence upon a charge of a second offence under the Act, notwithstanding that s. 85 directs that on the accused being found guilty of the subsequent offence he shall "then and not before be asked whether he was so previously convicted" and further specially provides the course of procedure: (a) if the accused answers admitting the fact; (b) if he denies or stands mute of malice, or (c) does not answer directly to such question. [R. v. Coote, 17 Can. Cr. Cas. 211, 22 O.L.R. 269, approved; Ex parte Groves, 24 N.B.R. 57, applied.]

The King v. Matheson; Ex parte Haid Shilala, 20 Can. Cr. Cas. 496, 41 N.B.R. 386, 11 E.L.R. 519.

SECOND OFFENCE—FAILURE TO PROVE IDENTITY OF PARTY—JURISDICTION—CERTIORARI.

A summary conviction for a second offence against the Quebec License Law is not justified without proof of identity of the person first convicted with the person on trial as for a second offence. Failure to make such proof goes to the jurisdiction of the magistrate to convict for a second offence and is a ground for quashing the conviction on certiorari when a more onerous penalty would result in the event of a future conviction, because of the conviction made being for a second offence rather than for a first offence (7 Geo. V., c. 17, ss. 10, 38).

Duberger v. Morkill, 31 Can. Cr. Cas. 271, 20 Que. P.R. 49.

Where there is no proof, either by admission or certificate, of the prior offences upon a charge of a third offence of selling intoxicating liquor without a license under the Liquor License Act (Sask.), the conviction imposing a larger penalty than is authorized for a first offence must be quashed. [R. v. Brook, 7 Can. Cr. Cas. 216, and R. v. Nurse, 8 Can. Cr. Cas. 173, followed.]

The King v. Koogo, 19 Can. Cr. Cas. 56, 19 W.L.R. 246.

SECOND AND SUBSEQUENT OFFENCES.

A second summary conviction for unlawful sale of liquor under the Ontario Liquor License Act is not invalid because it charges an offence prior in time to the date of conviction for the first offence.

SECOND AND SUBSEQUENT OFFENCES—CERTIFICATES OF PRIOR CONVICTION.

In a prosecution under the Ontario Temperance Act, 6 Geo. V., c. 50, certificates of prior conviction thereunder issued under s. 96 (b) are prima facie evidence only in prosecutions charging a second or subsequent offence in which the accused is called upon to answer whether he had been previously convicted as charged (ss. 58, 59, 96, 97, and sch. F). Such special certificate produced on a charge laid as for a first offence is not evidence for the purpose of proving that it was a third offence for the purpose of cancelling a license under the Inland Revenue Act, although the informant had given prior notice to the defendant that he would charge the prior convictions as a ground for asking a cancellation of the license and gave particulars of the alleged prior convictions in his notice.

IV. Civil remedies.A. IN GENERAL; NUISANCES.*(§ IV A—95)—ACTIONS AGAINST LIQUOR LICENSEES—SUSPENSION BECAUSE WAR.

Only actions arising out of the business as liquor licensee are within a proclamation prohibiting actions against such licensees whose interests are affected by war, and there is no prohibition against creditors whose debts have accrued in another capacity, such as merchant or farmer; nor is any protection given to property other than the licensed premises or that used in connection therewith. ACTIONS UNDER LIQUOR ACT—PRESCRIPTION.

The 2 months prescription in art. 1171 of the License Law of Quebec only applies to actions and proceedings brought by the Collector of Revenue of the province, or by a municipal corporation, and not to those provided for by art. 1091 of R.S.Q. for damages against a hotelkeeper on account of assaults committed by drunken persons to whom he had served intoxicating liquor.

Martin v. New Carlton Hotel, 53 Que. S. C. 380, reversing 50 Que. S.C. 191.

B. CIVIL DAMAGES.(§ IV B—100)—COMPENSATION—CURATOR —FORM OF ACTION.

An action, by which a party asks to be declared entitled to governmental compensation (Quebec), for the discontinuance of the business of a liquor dealer since insolvent, is less an action than a petition under art. 876 C.C.P., and the curator has no ground of complaint if the action is made returnable 2 days after service. Although the action is accompanied by a writ of seizure the curator can not object if no seizure is made. The fact of calling this action one of saisie—in revendication is not a ground for an exception to the form.

Touzin v. Gariépy, 17 Que. P.R. 319.

(§ IV B—102)—FOR DEATH OF PERSON TO WHOM LIQUOR SOLD.

The civil liability imposed under the Ontario Liquor License Act upon a hotelkeeper for the death of a person caused by intoxication from drinking in the hotel is not avoided by showing that the deceased resumed drinking elsewhere while still intoxicated as a result of his drinking in the hotel, if such intoxication was the proximate cause of death and if the subsequent drinking was alone insufficient to lead to the cause of death apart from his intoxicated condition at the time when the subsequent drinking began.

JAILS.LIABILITY FOR INJURIES TO INMATES.

Where a small rural community allowed its peace officer to combine also the duties of several other officers, and, as such peace officer, he placed a prisoner in the lock-up, which 3 hours afterwards burned up, and in which fire the prisoner lost his life, all during the absence of the peace officer, who was attending to other duties, it was not unreasonable on the part of the municipality to permit its peace officer to attend to the duties of other offices which he held, and it was not the duty of the municipality to keep said officer or any one else in constant attendance on the prisoner.

Unless a prisoner asks for an interview with the detective, or there are exceptional circumstances, the jailer should not permit interviews between a Government detective and the prisoner, at which others are not present.

JOINT CREDITORS AND DEBTORS.I. IN GENERAL.*II. RELEASE OF ONE JOINT DEBTOR.I. In general.(§ I-1)—SEVERAL PURCHASERS OF LAND—JOINT AND SEVERAL LIABILITY.

Joint and several liability must be stipulated for and will not be presumed beyond the cases provided for by law. Thus there is no such liability in case of a sale on the part of purchasers even when they have purchased immovables en bloc and have created a joint estate among them, if such has not been expressly created by the deed of sale. Each in such case owes only his proportion of the balance due on the price of sale.

Versailles v. Harel, 47 Que. S.C. 468.

LOAN—SEPARATE ACTIONS.

If by one deed several lenders individually loan distinct and separate sums of money, the borrower is debtor to each of them for the amount loaned. The defence of the borrower, to the action of one of the lenders, that he could not be summoned to defend different actions taken against him by each of the lenders and that one of them has no right to sue without joining his cocreditors, will be dismissed on inscription en droit.

Bourgouin v. Franklin, 18 Que. P.R. 105.

JOINT AND SEVERAL LIABILITY—MANUFACTURE OF TIMBER—COMMERCIAL ACT.

An undertaking by 2 persons to manufacture timber is a commercial act, and the contractors are compelled jointly and severally to carry out their contracts. It does not create a partnership as between themselves, but, had there been a partnership, it would be dissolved by the abandonment of the undertaking, in consequence of which the creditors have their remedy against each of the contractors as joint and several debtors.

Where the obligation to pay is joint only, and not joint and several, it is an objection of substance and not of form that the promisee is joined as a promisor, but in a proper case the document may be rectified on the ground of mutual mistake.

(§ II-7)—VERDICT AGAINST ONE.

In an action for tort where 2 persons are alleged to have been guilty of negligence causing an injury and are joined as defendants, each defendant is to be considered as charged with a breach of duty which he individually owed to the plaintiff and a verdict may be supported which is in favour of one defendant and against the other both at common law and under Sask. r. 34 (Sask. r. of 1911).

The status of a de facto judge having at least a colourable title to the office, cannot be attacked in a collateral proceeding, the proper proceeding to question his right to the office is by quo warranto information.

III. Disqualification; eligibility.

(§ III-23)—DISQUALIFICATION BY INTEREST—PROCEDURE IN NAMING SUBSTITUTE.

Where a County Judge is disqualified by interest from hearing and determining an assessment appeal to which he is a party, the disqualification is absolute, preventing the County Judge from even nominating the Judge of another county to act for him, where there is a statutory provision under which the selection of a disinterested person to try the appeal may be made by a High Court Judge in Chambers.

Re Chisholm and Berlin, 9 D.L.R. 264, 4 O.W.N. 431, 23 O.W.R. 571.

STIPENDIARY MAGISTRATE — DISQUALIFICATION — BIAS — MAGISTRATE ATTORNEY FOR DEFENDANT IN ACTION IN WHICH ACCUSED IS PLAINTIFF.

A stipendiary magistrate is not disqualified from entertaining an information against a person, by reason of the fact that the former is attorney of record for the defendant in a pending action in another court in which the accused is plaintiff. A person who has any monetary interest, however small, in the result of judicial proceedings, should not take part in them as a judge.

Re McKinnon, 12 D.L.R. 809, 12 E.L.R. 238.

DISQUALIFICATION—PECUNIARY INTEREST IN IMPOSING FINE.

That a stipendiary magistrate may be interested in imposing a fine for a violation of the Canada Temperance Act in order to swell the fund from which his fees are paid is too remote an interest to disqualify him from entertaining a complaint for a violation of the Act. INTEREST OR BIAS—DISQUALIFICATION.

Uncontradicted affidavits filed on a motion to quash a summary conviction under a liquor law that the magistrate had stated he would convict any parties charged with selling liquor whether the evidence proved it or not, if he believed them to be guilty, shews a disqualifying bias on the part of the magistrate, and the conviction on a liquor selling charge will be quashed.

INTEREST—BIAS.

In the administration of justice, whether by a recognized legal court, or by persons who, although not a legal court, are acting in a similar capacity, public policy requires that, in order that there should be no doubt about the purity of the administration, no person who is to take part in it should be in such a position that he might be suspected of being biased. (§ V-35) — ALLOWANCES FOR TRAVELING EXPENSES—MEANING OF "WHERE HE RESIDES"; JUDGES ACT, R.S.C. 1906, c. 138, s. 18.

The residence of the defendant, a Judge of the Supreme Court of British Columbia, was held to be at the city of Vancouver, where the courts were held, and was not, as claimed by the defendant, at Grand Forks, some 700 miles distant; and therefore he had no right to charge for traveling allowances under the above Act. The words "where he resides" must be taken in their plain and ordinary sense without any question of domicile, which might be different from residence, and the words quoted cannot be twisted by any legal fiction to mean that the judge should be paid for expenses never incurred, or contemplated by the Act.

The King v. Clement, 50 C.L.J. 67.

VI. Jurisdiction.

(§ VI-50)—OF SUPREME COURT—NOT TO INCLUDE LOCAL JUDGE OF SUPREME COURT—BILLS OF SALE ACT, 1911, R.S. B.C. c. 20.

(§ I A—1)—PARTNERSHIP.

Rule 603 (Ont. Con. Rules 1897) does not authorize a summary judgment against one who is alleged to be a member of a firm against which a judgment was previously obtained, but who was out of the jurisdiction when the writ in the original action was issued, and who entered no appearance and did not admit himself to be and was not adjudged a member of the firm.

Bank of Hamilton v. Davidson, 10 D.L.R. 303, 4 O.W.N. 749, 23 O.W.R. 944.

MOTION FOR—FAILURE TO COMPLY WITH ORDER FOR SECURITY FOR COSTS—ADJOURNMENT.

A motion to strike out defendant's appearance and to enter summary judgment against him cannot be proceeded within the face of an order against the plaintiff to give security for costs although the order was made after service of the notice of motion for judgment, but the motion may be adjourned until the security order shall have been complied with or vacated.

COUNTERCLAIM—RIGHT TO PLEAD.

If the defendant shews in answer to a motion for summary judgment that he has a reasonable ground for defending or if he has a counterclaim arising out of the same matter, he is entitled to defend.

McDonald v. Pinder, 20 D.L.R. 494, 42 N.B.R. 227.

PRACTICE—AFFIDAVIT—SUPPORT OF MOTION.

Under the new practice introduced by rr. 56, 57, where the writ of summons is specially endorsed, the plaintiff may move for summary judgment without cross-examining the defendant upon the affidavit filed with his appearance; and, if the affidavit does not disclose a good defence nor set out facts and circumstances sufficient to entitle the defendant to defend, judgment will be granted to the plaintiff. An affidavit filed by the plaintiff in support of his claim, though it may not be necessary, is unobjectionable. Rule 57 does not alter the practice laid down in Jacobs v. Booth's Distillery Co., 85 L.T.R. 262—upon a motion under that rule the court does not attempt to determine facts in issue upon controversial affidavits.

Langdon-Davies Motors Canada v. Gasolectric Motors, 32 O.L.R. 84, affirming judgment of Denton Co., C.J.

ELECTION OF REMEDIES — NEGLIGENCE — WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION—REFERENCE TO IN FORMAL JUDGMENT.

Where the Trial Judge dismisses a negligence action brought by a workman against his employer and others, but states that the plaintiff would be entitled to compensation under the Workmen's Compensation Act (Alta.), it is improper to make a reference to the compensation in the formal decision issued in the negligence action at least where the amount of the compensation has not been fixed; a clause in the formal judgment inserted at the request of the defendants, purporting to declare the plaintiff entitled to compensation under the Act and to reserve leave to apply to fix the amount should the parties not agree, will not operate in bar of the plaintiff's appeal from the dismissal of the negligence action where the plaintiff had not elected to abandon the common law remedy and to accept compensation under the Act. PRINCIPLES GOVERNING THE GRANTING OF.

Summary judgment should not be granted when there is any serious conflict as to a matter of fact or any real difficulty as to a matter of law.

Western Security Bank v. Martin, 31 W.L.R. 149.

SIGNING FINAL JUDGMENT—LEAVE TO DEFEND.

On an application for leave to sign final judgment, a defendant, who was surety for the debt sued upon, sought leave to defer on the ground that the plaintiff should have obtained a greater sum for certain securities he sold, the proceeds of which were applied in reduction of the debt. An order was made for leave to sign final judgment. Held, on appeal, that the order should be set aside and the defendant be allowed to defend.

SERVICE OF NOTICE OF MOTION—DELAY.

The service of a notice of motion for leave to enter judgment in default of defence upon a liquidated demand will not deprive the plaintiff of the right to sign judgment in default of defence under Sask. r. 224 without an order and without waiting for the return of the motion which was afterwards abandoned; and unexplained delay for a long time in moving against the judgment will disentitle the defendant to relief on the ground that he was misled by the service of the notice.

BY DEFAULT—JURISDICTION TO GRANT—ABSENTEE—PROPERTY WITHIN PROVINCE.

Art. 94 (4), C.C.P., gives jurisdiction over the defendant who has left his domicile in the province of Quebec or has never had any, when the cause of action did not originate in the district wherein he is summoned, only when the plaintiff proves that the defendant possess property therein. When judgment is obtained by default, in the above case without such proof, the defendant, who has neither domicile nor property in the above-mentioned district, may have the judgment set aside by the Court of Review for want of jurisdiction.

(§ I A—3)—JUDGMENT AGAINST VENDOR—EXECUTION—IMMORAL SALE—POSSESSION.

An action to recover the balance of the purchase price of property having been successfully defended on the ground that the transaction was immoral and void, but the sale not having been formally set aside, the purchaser being in fact in possession animo domini, a seizure by the sheriff under a judgment against the vendor will be set aside as in contravention of art. 699 C.C.P. CIVIL REQUEST—DELAY—ACQUIESCENCE—APPEAL—C.C. ARTS. 885, 887, 890, 1177, 1209.

There is no jurisdiction to permit the production of a civil request against a judgment in which the defendant has acquiesced to the Superior Court and against which he has made without success all his complaints in the Court of Appeal. The judgments rendered in virtue of arts. 885, 887, C.C.P. are not susceptible to be retracted by a civil application seeing that these judgments do not fall in the exceptions of art. 890 C.C.P. and can be carried to appeal. The civil application cannot be admitted by way of a revision or appeal. There is nothing in our law as in the French law regarding the delay in which one may make a civil application to distinguish between a preparatory and an interlocutory judgment. Thus judgments such as those mentioned above on Jan. 27, and Feb. 14, 1916, are susceptible to be attacked by civil request as soon as they are pronounced and within 6 months afterwards and not conjointly as in France only after the final judgment.

REFUSAL OF PLAINTIFF TO ACCEPT—FAILURE TO GIVE NOTICE.

Default by a plaintiff to give, within 30 days, to a defendant who confesses judgment, notice of his refusal to accept the confession does not create a presumption that he accepts it, and does not authorize the defendant to enter judgment on his confession.

Morin v. Davidson, 46 Que. S.C. 120.

QUE. C.P. 125, 527.

A confession of judgment is not a plea, and there is nothing to authorize a demand for particulars of it.

FORECLOSURE—SETTING ASIDE.

A plaintiff not refusing within 30 days to accept a partial confession of judgment from the defendant, the latter can, even after judgment is inscribed, be relieved from the foreclosure subject to paying the costs incurred by the opposite party.

Gingras v. Rinfret, 52 Que. S.C. 237.

So long as the defendant has not served on the plaintiff the confession of judgment which he has signed the plaintiff may ignore it and proceed to judgment ex parte.

Ducoudu v. Berthelet, 13 Que. P.R. 190.

INTEREST — REFUSAL — MOTIVES — EXPENSES—C.C.P. ARTS. 527, 530, 549.

A confession of judgment is insufficient in an amount determined without declaring that it is made with interest, when this amount carries interest. It is not necessary for one who refuses to accept a confession of judgment to make known in the notice which he gives, the motives of his refusal. Then after the refusal of such a confession of judgment, the contestation is binding between the parties only on question of knowing if the defendant has a right to divers creditors which he claims, and the examination of the cause only bears on this point, without touching the question of interest. Costs ought not to be born by the defendant alone but the plaintiffs ought to pay the subsequent expenses of contesting and the expenses of revision.

Castle v. Rabinovitch, 25 Rev. Leg. 264.

The defendant to an action for the price and value of work performed and materials supplied according to an itemized account, who confesses judgment for a sum less than that claimed, can be ordered by the court to specify the items which make up the amount which he admits. His failure to do so supplies, according to circumstances, special cause for making, in the final judgment, the exceptional adjudication as to costs provided for by art. 549 C.C.P.

Kennedy v. Canadian Fire Underwriters Association, 43 Que. S.C. 302.

QUEBEC PRACTICE—LIBEL ACTION.

Subject to the provisions of art. 530, C. C.P., the plaintiff is not obliged to accept a confession of judgment and he has an absolute right to proceed in the case as if the confession of judgment had not been filed after having given notice of his refusal to the defendant. On default of the latter to file a defence within the time prescribed, the plaintiff may proceed ex parte to adduce evidence of the charges alleged by his action. In an action for damages for defamatory libel, where it is sought to re-establish the plaintiff's good reputation, the plaintiff is justified in refusing to accept a confession of judgment whereby the defendant consents to judgment being entered for the amount demanded after having denied all the allegations in the action.

JUDGMENT UPON ADMISSIONS—ACCEPTANCE OF DEFENCES — CERTAINTY OF ADMISSIONS.

The court will not allow final judgment to be signed upon admissions contained in an examination for discovery, unless the admissions are clear and unequivocal, nor where there is any serious question of law to be argued. If a plaintiff wishes judgment upon such admissions, he must accept as true the various defences to the action raised by the pleadings and not shewn to be false by admissions. [Ross v. McBride, 3 W.L.R. 561; United Telephone Co. v. Donohoe, 31 Ch. D. 399, and Barry v. Toronto & Niagara Power Co., 11 O.L.R. 48, followed.]

(§ I B—8)—GENERAL AUTHORIZATION TO ANY ATTORNEY TO CONFESS JUDGMENT—PUBLIC POLICY.

It is against the policy of the law of Alberta to give effect to a stipulation accompanying an acknowledgment of a debt that to secure payment thereof the debtor authorizes any attorney to confess judgment for the amount appearing unpaid; and this although the acknowledgment was given in a foreign country where such an agreement to confess judgment was recognized as legal.

C. JURISDICTION; NECESSITY OF SERVICE OR APPEARANCE.

Deficiency of judgment in foreclosure action, power of Master, see Mortgage, VI 1—135.

(§ I C—10)—JURISDICTION OF PROTHONOTARY.

The prothonotary has jurisdiction to allow an opposition to judgment to be filed when the judge is absent from the chief place of the district. This jurisdiction is derived not from art. 70, but from art. 33, C.C.P.

(§ I C-16)—NONRESIDENT — DEFENDANT CASUALLY WITHIN "LAW DISTRICT"—SERVICE—SUFFICIENCY OF.

The circumstances that the defendant's presence in the province was casual only, as upon a short visit, does not create any exception from liability to serve of process of the courts of such province in a civil action against him; territorial jurisdiction is effective against him on account of his presence in the territory when action was begun and process served upon him. (§ I C-19)—IRREGULAR SERVICE OF WRIT.

A judgment, recovered in an action upon a promissory note against an incorporated company, in which the plaintiffs are four directors, one of the four being secretary-treasurer, of the defendant company, and in which the writ of summons was served upon the defendant company by delivering it to the secretary-treasurer while himself a party plaintiff, is voidable for want of due service of the writ.

ENTRY IN CAPIAS PROCEEDINGS—SPECIAL BAIL.

A court has no authority to enter a default judgment against a defendant who was arrested in a civil action under a writ of capias and who gave bail to the sheriff, but did not put in special bail as conditioned by his bond to the sheriff, since a defendant so arrested is not in court until after he puts in and perfects special bail.

D. FOR AND AGAINST WHOM; SEVERAL OR JOINT.

(§ I D-20)—JOINT NEGLIGENCE.

The fact that an action of joint negligence has been brought against two defendants, and one has been proven to be not liable, is no reason why judgment cannot be maintained as against the one remaining.

E. FORM AND SUBSTANCE.

(§ I E-25)—A declaratory judgment may be had, declaring that a by-law was not submitted or voted upon according to law, in order to remove the uncertainty as to the actual effect of the submission and voting; whether any consequential relief is or could be claimed or not. [Jud. Act (Ont.) R.S.O. 1897, c. 51, s. 57, subs. 5.] Stoddart v. Owen Sound, 8 D.L.R. 932, 27 O.L.R. 221.

WHAT TO CONTAIN—MINOR OMISSIONS.

Although by art. 541, C.C.P. a judgment should mention the cause of action, the issues of law and fact raised and decided and the reasons for the decision, nevertheless the fact that a judgment gives no reasons, but only the final conclusions, constitutes an informal draft which is not sufficient to void the judgment.

Beaudry v. Prefontaine, 51 Que. S.C. 78.

DISPOSITIF.

To make a judgment executory it is not necessary that its dispositif should employ the word "condemned;" it is sufficient if it declares that the defendant is obliged to pay the plaintiff.

"DECREE"—ALIMONY.

While a decision in favour of a wife's claim for alimony granted in proceedings under the Divorce and Matrimonial Causes Act may be termed a "decree," it is nevertheless a "judgment" of the Supreme Court and in the same position as any other judgment of that court.

Francis v. Wilkerson, [1917] 3 W.W.R. 920.

(§ I E—28)—“WITH INTEREST”—RETROACTIVE.

Judgments are declaratory of right and have retroactive effect to the day of the service of the action. The words “with interest” in a judgment involving condemnation for the payment of moneys include interest upon such capital sum from the date of the service of the action and not from the date of the judgment. In the case of damages awarded as compensation, the same rule applies unless the court has liquidated all damages up to the date of the judgment.

Quebec Harbour Comm'rs. v. New Zealand Shipping Co., 50 Que. S.C. 305.

(§ I E—35)—CONFORMITY TO PLEADINGS AND PROOF—AMENDMENT OR REDUCTION—APPEAL—DAMAGES.

Although, even after verdict, a claim may be amended to conform to the verdict, yet where the matter of a verdict, rendered for a sum larger than that claimed by the pleadings, comes on by way of appeal from a judgment based on such verdict, rather than on a motion for a new trial, the judgment will be reduced to conform to the claim, where such course appears to meet the justice of the case. Where a verdict is rendered for a sum larger than that claimed by the pleadings, such verdict is not sufficient basis upon which to enter judgment for the excessive sum, unless the statement of claim shall have been amended to conform with the verdict. [Chattel v. “Daily Mail” (1901), 18 Times L.R. 165, applied.]

CONFORMITY TO PLEADINGS—DECLARATORY JUDGMENT, WHEN DENIED.

A declaratory judgment will not be rendered where the statement of claim not only does not ask for it, but also fails to ask for damages.

CONFORMITY TO PLEADINGS AND PROOF—RELIEF NOT SPECIFICALLY CLAIMED.

A general claim for further and other relief made in the plaintiff's statement of claim, will not, upon a motion for judgment in default of defence entitle the court to award any relief beyond that which is specifically claimed. [Faithfull v. Woodley, 43 Ch. D. 287, applied.]

Maxwell v. Cameron, 20 D.L.R. 71, 7 W.W.R. 365.

CONFORMITY TO PLEADINGS AND PROOF—DECLARATION OF NONLIABILITY.

On the dismissal of an action by vendors for the purchase price and specific performance of an agreement for sale of lands, the judgment should not include a declaration that the defendant is in no way liable upon the agreement unless there has been a counterclaim for such declaration of rights, and this although the ground of dismissal was the want of mutuality in the contract.

ACTION ON GUARANTEE—LIQUIDATED DEMAND.

Manitoba K.B. r. 625, is not confined to causes of action formerly covered by the common counts, but extends also to a liquidated demand, and leave to sign final judgment thereunder may be granted in respect of an action upon a guarantee of a debt which was a liquidated demand if sufficient particulars of the plaintiff's claim upon the guarantee are disclosed and the defendant guarantor files no affidavit negating liability or stating that he does not know that the debt is due. [Lloyd's Banking Co. c. Ogle, 1 Ex. D. 262, distinguished.] Merchants Bank v. Hay, 23 D.L.R. 554, 25 Man. L.R. 275, 8 W.W.R. 303, 31 W.L.R. 154.

MOTION FOR ON ADMISSIONS IN DEFENCE—ORDER FOR PAYMENT INTO COURT.

On application for judgment upon admissions in the defence under O. XXXII, r. 6, the defendant company (a foreign corporation licensed to carry on business in British Columbia) set up that the money sued for was claimed by third parties under a foreign jurisdiction. An order was made directing the defendant company to pay the amount claimed into court, but that the said moneys be not paid out unless notice of the application therefor be served on the foreign claimants, the application for judgment to be finally disposed of on that application. Held, on appeal, affirming the decision of Hunter, C.J.B.C., that the order was properly made in the circumstances.

DEFENCES—AFFIDAVITS—PARTICULARS.

To resist an application for final judgment under r. 276, there must be more than a mere statement that the defendant has a good defence to the action on the merits. The defence must be disclosed by the evidence either by affidavit or by viva voce evidence or otherwise. Sufficient facts and particulars must be given to show that there is bona fide defence. The affidavit in support of an application for final judgment under r. 275 may be made by the manager of a plaintiff company.

Advance Rumely Thresher Co. v. Laclair, [1917] 1 W.W.R. 875.

(§ I E—40)—NON OBSTANTE VEREDICTO—CONTRIBUTORY NEGLIGENCE.

Where a jury finds the damages suffered to amount to a certain sum, which sum they reduce owing to their finding of contributory negligence, the Supreme Court on appeal, considering the finding as to contributory negligence to be unwarranted upon the facts, may award to the plaintiff the full amount of damages found by the jury to have been sustained.

F. ENTRY; RECORD; SUMMARY OR SPEEDY JUDGMENT.

(§ I F—45)—ORDER FOR LEAVE TO ENTER—PERIOD AFTER JUDGMENT, HOW COMPUTED—CLERK'S INSCRIPTION—ORDER FOR JUDGMENT—EFFECT OF.

Under order 46, r. 1, of the rules of the Supreme Court N.S., providing for an order of arrest in certain actions and that the defendant be imprisoned until final judgment in the action and for 30 days thereafter, if the final judgment is against him, and further providing that within 30 days after final judgment an order may be made under the Collection Act for his appearance at a further examination, the period of 30 days in which such order may be obtained runs from the time of the entry of the judgment and not from the time of the order for leave to enter judgment. Where an order is obtained under O. 14, r. 1 (a) to enter summary judgment upon affidavits when no defence is shown to send the case for trial, the "final judgment" in the action takes place on the date of entering the judgment and not upon a prior date when the order was pronounced. [Re Debtor, 19 T.L.R. 1521; Standard Discount Co. v. Otard de la Grange, 3 C.P.D. 67; Re Gurney, [1896] 2 Ch. 863, applied.] An order obtained under O. 14, r. 1 (a), for leave to enter final judgment, is not in itself a "final judgment" though it is a final order deciding the rights of the parties and one from which an appeal may be taken.

Chesley v. Benner (No. 2), 10 D.L.R. 679, 47 N.S.R. 20, affirming 8 D.L.R. 625.

In an action against the drawer of a cheque, summary judgment will not be granted where the material is sufficient to justify the suspicion that the plaintiff, to whom it was endorsed, is not the holder in due course; and it appears that a defence may be established as between the drawer and the payee.

ENTRY—FINAL JUDGMENT PRIOR TO FIXING AMOUNT OF DAMAGES—TIME FOR APPEAL.

Where a final judgment is to be perfected by the insertion of the amount of damages to be ascertained by the registrar, the time to appeal will run from the date of the judgment itself and not from the date when the judgment was finally perfected by inserting the amount of damages.

Laursen v. McKinnon, 9 D.L.R. 758, 18 B.C.R. 10, 23 W.L.R. 1, 3 W.W.R. 717.

CON. R. 603—ACTION ON GUARANTY—PROOF OF AMOUNT DUE—REFERENCE.

Union Bank v. McKillop, 5 D.L.R. 882, 4 O.W.N. 36, 23 O.W.R. 16.

When, at the close of the trial, counsel for the losing party asks the judge to grant the "usual stay" and the judge says "yes" and nothing more is said, the meaning is that the successful party may sign judgment, but may neither issue an execution nor register a certificate of judgment until after the lapse of the time allowed for appealing from the decision.

Johnston v. Henry, 21 Man. L.R. 700, 17 W.L.R. 327.

A judgment should not be held to be invalid because the clerk of the court had omitted to make, in the procedure book, the note required by s. 105 (now 109) to be entered, in a case where some defendants have been served and some have not, that the plaintiff had requested him to strike out the names of the defendants that had not been served and to amend the style of the action accordingly, and it should not, after a great lapse of time, the judgment standing unreversed, be presumed, from the absence of such a note in the procedure book, that the plaintiff had not given such instructions.

Dixon v. Mackay, 21 Man. L.R. 762.

A claim based on a contract for lease and hire of services under which the plaintiff demanded a balance due for salary and damages as provided for in the contract should be recovered under the provisions for summary procedure.

Delestre v. Montreal Opera Co., 13 Que. P.R. 264.

SUFFICIENCY—WHEN BINDING—POWER TO AMEND.

The entry of the judgment by the prothonotary or clerk in open court, either in the docket or on the back of the proceedings, is not the court's final judgment. Such entry is only a note of the delivery of the judgment and has no authentic character. So long as the judge's signature is not on the draft, that document is nothing but an informal draft of the judgment without any value, because the signature is the essential formality which renders that document authentic and of legal effect. The court or a judge has discretionary power to modify the judgment after it has been given, not only in the case provided for in art. 546, C.C.P. but also in the case of error or surprise, so long as it has not been signed and registered; but the judgment thus amended must be given in open court under art. 537. An application to correct or alter a judgment before its signature or registration should be made by motion or petition, supported by a sworn statement, in accordance with r. 47, and not by a mere notice addressed to the opposite party. But as soon as the judgment becomes final by the signature of the judge, and its registration according to art. 544, its revocation or setting aside can be accomplished only by the methods laid down in the Code of Procedure.

Arthur v. Baillargeon, 19 Que. P.R. 392.

REGISTRATION OF JUDGMENT.

The registration of a judgment is a conservatory step which may be taken by a conditional creditor, notwithstanding that it is subject to appeal.

Desjardins v. Belanger, 19 Que. P.R. 338.

OPPOSITION TO JUDGMENT—EXECUTION.

A plaintiff who, after obtaining judgment, obtains a writ of execution against the defendant, and interrogates him under art. 590 C.C.P., thereby acquiesces in the judgment, and cannot then desist. A second judgment obtained upon an amended declaration after such desistment can be annulled upon an opposition to judgment.

Charland v. Lamare, 54 Que. S.C. 156.

OPPOSITION—REASONS—CHAMPERTY.

The fact that a defendant thought that the action against him was taken only for champerty and would not be returned into court, would not, even if proven, be a sufficient reason to have an opposition to judgment received.

Picard v. Nolet, 19 Que. P.R. 24.

(§ I F—46)—MOTION FOR—LEAVE TO DEFEND—N.B. JUDICATURE ACT—ORDER 14.

Judgment on a specially endorsed writ for the amount endorsed on the writ, with interest and costs, should only be ordered under order 14 of the New Brunswick Judicature Act, 1909, where assuming all the facts in favour of the defendant, they do not amount to a defence in law, and where there is a triable issue, though it may appear that the defence is not likely to succeed, the defendant should not be shut out from laying his defence before the court, either by having judgment entered against him or by being put under terms to pay money into court as a condition to obtaining leave to defend. [Neil v. Balmain, 11 D.L.R. 294, 41 N.B.R. 429, followed.]

APPLICATION TO COURT FOR SUMMARY JUDGMENT AFTER WRIT.

Judgment may be granted on a motion made to the court on notice under r. 608 (Ont. Jud. Rules 1897) by leave granted after the issue of the writ, where the defendant is an insolvent trader admittedly having no defence to the action brought against him on overdue promissory notes to wholesale merchants, and it is shewn on affidavits that he has been selling off his stock without replacing the same or paying the proceeds of sales to the wholesalers who supplied the goods, and is in arrears for rent and taxes.

Hayes v. Robinson, 10 D.L.R. 799, 4 O.W.N. 1280.

MOTION FOR SUMMARY JUDGMENT—REPLY AFFIDAVITS—RIGHT TO RECEIVE—LEAVE TO DEFEND.

On application under C.S.N.B. 1903, c. 116, as amended by N.B. 1911, c. 37, for liberty to sign final judgment, it is largely discretionary with the judge to permit plaintiff to read affidavits in reply to defendant's affidavits of defence. In such case, any conflict between the affidavits of the parties as to the merits of the defence should be resolved in defendant's favour. Under C.S.N.B. 1903, c. 116, s. 50, which authorizes, on return of summons, an order for leave to sign judgment on a liquidated demand, unless defendant satisfies the judge that he has a good defence, or that he is entitled to defend, the right of defence is absolute on defendant shewing that he has a good defence; but if he merely shews such facts as in the opinion of court are sufficient to base an order giving leave to defend, as distinguished from facts basing an absolute right of defence, the court may then impose conditions in granting the leave such as payment of the amount into court.

LIQUIDATED DEMAND.

Summary judgment should not be ordered under r. 603 (Ont. Con. Rules 1897) in an action by a solicitor against his client for costs of an action against a municipal corporation as to the validity of a drainage by-law which was disposed of by a special statute validating the by-law and fixing and directing payment of the client's costs as between solicitor and client by the municipality, where the fund for payment of such costs was held by the municipality, subject to notice of the solicitor's lien and the client produced evidence to shew that such fund was intended to go to the solicitor and consented to the fund being held by the municipal corporation subject to the lien claim pending the trial of the action.

Gundy v. Johnston, 5 D.L.R. 470, 3 O.W.N. 1601, 22 O.W.R. 798.

In order to obtain summary judgment for a liquidated demand on affidavits negating any possible defence the indorsement on the writ must shew beyond question that the claim is for liquidated damages.

Lembke v. Chin Wing, 4 D.L.R. 431, 17 B.C.R. 218, 21 W.J.L.R. 895, 2 W.W.R. 897.

Summary judgment should not be granted under r. 603 (Ont. Con. Rules 1897), upon a Chambers application founded upon affidavits that there is no defence to an action upon a promissory note, where there is any real question either of law or of fact between the parties. The power of summarily directing judgment to be entered for the plaintiff for a liquidated demand on a Chambers' application where it appears that there is no real defence (r. 603, Ont. Con. Rules 1897), is to be exercised with caution and only where it is plain that the facts set up by the defendant could not possibly entitle him to defend, and the plaintiff's proofs are complete. An affidavit in answer to an application for a summary judgment, that the note sued on was obtained by fraudulent representations, and that it was intended for a cash advance and not as security for a past indebtedness, raises a triable issue which cannot be disposed of by a summary judgment.

G. MODIFICATION; VARYING TERMS OF.

Correction of ambiguity as to costs, see Costs, II—20.

(§ I G—55)—MODIFICATION—PRESUMPTION—NEW JUDGMENT.

Where an action was dismissed as to all but one defendant, against whom judgment was rendered, it will be presumed that a subsequent ex parte entry on the records of a County Court of a "trial and judgment for the plaintiff" for a larger sum was merely a correction of the first judgment as to the one defendant only, and that it was not intended as a judgment on a new trial against all of the defendants.

CORRECTION—FEME SOLE—COVERTURE.

There is no jurisdiction in a County Court to correct its own judgment, affirmed on appeal, from a personal to a proprietary judgment, where the judgment in the first instance was against the defendant as a feme sole and she failed to lead her coverture. MISTAKE.

Although a formal judgment in an action has been issued and an appeal therefrom dismissed, the Trial Judge is nevertheless not functus officio, so as to prevent his entertaining an application to correct a "slip" or "mistake" in the judgment as entered, so as to conform with the judgment as pronounced by him.

(§ II A—60)—RES JUDICATA.

Boeckh v. Gowganda-Queen Mines, 6 D.L.R. 292, 4 O.W.N. 27, 23 O.W.R. 4.

A prior judgment dismissing a motion on behalf of the company to set aside an appointment to examine certain company directors in support of an application for a winding-up order and holding such witnesses to be compellable witnesses for examination under s. 135 of the Winding-up Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 144, supplemented by Con. Rules 1897 (Ont.) 489, 491, 492, is conclusive as against the company so as to bar or waive any preliminary objection to defects of form in the petition raised by their subsequent motion to dismiss, if such defects were of such a character as might have been given effect to had they been raised on the prior motion and if the prior judgment implies the validity of the form of petition.

Re Ontario Bank; Massey and Lee's Case, 8 D.L.R. 243, 27 O.L.R. 192.

Where a judgment finds that a party (e.g., plaintiff) has caused to another damages in a given amount, such judgment has the effect of a final judgment res judicata, even though it does not condemn such party to pay such amount; and in a subsequent action the production of the first judgment is sufficient proof of the amount of damages suffered either as set-off or as direct action; nor can such judgment in a previous action be attacked or enquired into for alleged irregularities in procedure or insufficiency of proof.

FORMER ACTION—DISMISSED—NEW ACTION—IDENTICAL ISSUES—ESTOPPEL—RES JUDICATA.

CONCLUSIVENESS OF FORMER JUDGMENT—RES JUDICATA.

Johnston v. Hetherington, 7 D.L.R. 784, 1 W.W.R. 776.

RES JUDICATA—POINTS COVERED.

The plea of res judicata applies, except in special cases, not only to points upon which the court was actually required by the parties to form an opinion and pronounce a judgment, but to every point which properly belonged to the subject of litigation, and which the parties, exercising reasonable diligence, might have brought forward at the time. [Henderson v. Henderson, 3 Hare 114, applied.]

RES JUDICATA—NEW ISSUE—PRIOR OPINION OF JUDGES

The doctrine of res judicata applies to bind the parties by the decision of the issues raised in a prior case, but does not bind the parties or the court trying a second case raising a new issue under the same contract in regard to mere expressions of opinion by the judges in appeal, on delivering their judgment in the first case, as to the interpretation of a document adduced in evidence where the record in the first case raised no such issue.

Swanson v. McArthur, 21 D.L.R. 580.

RES JUDICATA—JUDGMENT FOR POSSESSION OF LAND—SECOND ACTION FOR CHATELS.

Where a contract of sale of lands included also certain chattels and both land and chattels were sold for a lump sum without its appearing how much was to be paid for the chattels, the vendor who recovers judgment for possession of the land in an action to forfeit the payments made and to foreclose the purchaser's interest in the land, and who does not claim in such action any relief as regards the chattels, will be barred by the judgment in such action from claiming the chattels in a second action, the matter having become res judicata.

EXECUTION—INTERPLEADER—SECOND EXECUTION CREDITOR NOT PARTY TO FIRST INTERPLEADER.

Res judicata cannot be set up to bar the claimant of goods seized under execution in respect of an adverse decision in an interpleader issue with another execution creditor where the second seizure in question, although in respect of the same chattel, was not made until after the first interpleader issue was decided and where the execution creditor under whose execution the sheriff made the second seizure had not been made a party to the first interpleader although his execution was then in the sheriff's hands.

Gregory v. Great West Lumber Co., 22 D.L.R. 70.

RES JUDICATA—SECOND ACTION BY DIFFERENT PARTIES.

The identity of the parties is necessary to support a plea of res judicata and such defence is not available where the first action was brought by a different company from the company suing in the second action and was dismissed because there was no assignment by the latter to the former of the claim sued upon.

RES JUDICATA—ANNUAL TAXATION.

Where municipal taxes are imposed on a separate valuation roll each year, judgment on one year's tax does not constitute chose jugées (res judicata) as regards the action for the tax of a subsequent year.

Montreal L. H. & P. Co. v. Chamby Basin, 24 D.L.R. 665.

CHOSE JUGÉE ON INSCRIPTION.

A judgment delivered on an inscription en droit is chose jugée between the parties. Filiatrault v. Meloche, 47 Que. S.C. 108.

CAUSE OF ACTION NOT SAME.

Where the cause of action is not the same as a former action [Wentworth v. Hamilton Radial Electric R. Co., 28 D.L.R. 110, 31 O.L.R. 659, 33 D.L.R. 439, 35 O.L.R. 434, 54 Can. S.C.R. 178] and the same question was not in issue and was not raised or decided, there can be no application of the doctrine of estoppel or res adjudicata.

NEW EVIDENCE.

The plaintiffs obtained a judgment against the defendant by default in 1895, for debt. Ten years later the defendant brought action to set aside the judgment on the ground that it was obtained by fraud, which was dismissed. In an action by the plaintiffs for the amount due on the first judgment the grounds for defence was substantially the same as those upon which the action of 1905 was based, but the defendant also claimed that new evidence had been discovered since the action in 1905. The Trial Judge dismissed the action on the ground of res judicata. Held, that on the question of res judicata the test is whether the issues now sought to be set up were disposed of on the former trial. The discovery of new evidence has no bearing on the case.

Williams v. Richards, 25 B.C.R. 19, affirming judgment of Clement, J.

BY CONFESSION—NO JUDICIAL INQUIRY IN MERITS—EFFECT OF—RES JUDICATA.

A judgment obtained by arrangement between the contending parties and without the court making any judicial examination of the merits of the question, does not become res judicata.

DECREE FOR ALIMONY—RES JUDICATA—INSCRIPTION IN LAW—QUE. C.C. 1241, QUE. C.P. 191.

A final judgment is a "res judicata" between the parties, as to the obligation itself to pay alimony. A defendant who is sued to have the amount of the alimony revised or modified, cannot inscribe in law on grounds decided upon by the principal judgment.

O'Brien v. Berger, 16 Que. P.R. 160.

The plaintiff, an extra-provincial corporation, sued S. in a County Court for debt. S. died and the plaintiff then recovered judgment by default against the defendant as administrator of S. Execution was issued and returned nulla bona, although the administrator had assets in his hands. The plaintiff then brought this action against the defendant personally upon the County Court judgment relying on the judgment as evidence of assets, and the return of the execution as evidence of waste. Judgment having been given for the plaintiff, the defendant moved to set it aside on the ground that the County Court judgment was void because (1) no affidavit of debt had been filed under C.S.N.B. 1903, c. 118, s. 44, and (2) the plaintiff had no license under c. 18. Held, the County Court judgment was conclusive against the defendant upon both defences and that they could not be set up in this action.

The effect of a certificate of dismissal of affiliation proceedings under the Illegitimate Children's Act, R.S.M. 1913, c. 92, granted after a hearing on the merits pursuant to Cr. Code, s. 730 (made applicable to such proceedings by the Summary Convictions Act, R.S.M., 1913, c. 189, s. 4), is to bar further proceedings upon a second information before another magistrate for the same matter on production of the certificate; the jurisdiction of the second magistrate is at an end when in hearing the facts relevant to the defence of the previous acquittal or dismissal of the charge the conclusion is clear that the matter before him has been previously disposed of by a competent tribunal. (§ II A—63)—RES JUDICATA — APPLICATIONS FOR WINDING-UP ORDER—DIFFERENT MATERIAL AND PARTIES, BUT SIMILAR PURPOSE.

The objection that a second application for a winding-up order under the Winding-up Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 144, cannot be made after the first application has failed, on the ground that the matter is res judicata, does not apply where on the second application it appears that the parties are not the same and the material urged in favour of the second application is different, although the purpose of this application is similar to that of the former.

In an action by a guardian to compel the executor of an estate to pay $500 to his ward where the defence was a denial of the facts alleged, and where the parties had produced an agreement to submit the matter for a decision on the point as to whether the ward was entitled to the revenues of the inheritance or simply to fixed annuity, until his majority, a judgment which concluded in these terms: "For these reasons the court declares that the said A. B. is entitled to the revenues of the inheritance of H.B." only contains an expression of opinion, and is not a decree to be carried out, consequently it is not further capable of revision, and a court made cognizant by an inscription to this effect can only send back the case to the court of first instance, to be there dealt with according to the law.

Boismenu v. Merineau, 45 Que. S.C. 10.

The decision of the Wreck Commissioner in favour of a person accused of a breach of regulations under the Canada Shipping Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 113, does not constitute res judicata as against an individual complaining under s. 926 of that Act that he has been aggrieved by such breach.

The words "special case" in s. 22 of the Arbitration Act have the same meaning as in marginal r. 389 of the Supreme Court Rules and a "stated case" thereunder must be based on a statement of fact, either admitted or judicially ascertained. FICTITIOUS REGISTRY—FINAL OF INTERLOCUTORY JUDGMENT—APPEAL—C.C.P. ARTS. 43, 44, 46, 52, 52A, 68, 117, 214, 215, 216, 225, to 230, 232, to 234, 1020, 1178 — C. CRIM. ART. 460—S.R.B.C., [1861] C. 77, ART. 26, N. 2.

An application by which is formed a demand for fictitious registry is introductive to a true action. A judgment which rejects an application asking for permission for a fictitious registration is definite. On the contrary a judgment which admits or rejects a fictitious registration after the commencement of this mode of action, is interlocutory. The same judgment can be interlocutory on one point, and definite on others, according to the object to which it refers. Judges are not bound by interlocutory judgment rendered by them. The right of appeal exists always in our law, unless it has been taken away especially by the Act. Such is the principle of French Common Law, formally approved by art. 43 of the Code of Procedure.

From the view point of the right of appeal, there is no distinction between judgment rendered in actions commenced by writ, and judgments rendered on application introductive to an action.

Guilbeault v. Banque D'Hochelaga, 55 Que. S.C. 79.

(§ II B—71)—DISMISSAL OF MOTION—POWER OF ATTORNEY—APPEAL.

A judgment of the Superior Court dismissing a motion for the rejection of a power of attorney from a foreign plaintiff is an interlocutory judgment from which an appeal lies under art. 46, C.C.P.

San Martin Mining Co. v. Ingeniera Importadora, etc., Co., 43 D.L.R. 322, 27 Que. K.B. 527.

REPORT OF MASTER—MOTION TO SET ASIDE—REFUSAL TO RECEIVE EVIDENCE—REFERENCE BACK FOR LIMITED PURPOSE—RES JUDICATA.

Scott v. Gardiner, 17 O.W.N. 236.

INTERLOCUTORY JUDGMENT—FAILURE TO APPEAL.

An appeal from a final judgment reopens the issues upon all interlocutory judgments rendered in the cause, and default by a party to appeal from an interlocutory judgment does not constitute res judicata with regard to such judgment.

Rigaud-Vaudreuil Gold Fields v. Bolduc, 25 Que. K.B. 97.

RES JUDICATA—INTERIM ALIMONY.

A judgment granting an interim allowance is not res judicata of a subsequent claim having the same object.

Phaneuf v. Prevost, 49 Que. S.C. 189.

INTERLOCUTORY ORDER.

Unless an order would finally dispose of the matter in dispute, no matter in which way it had been made, it is an interlocutory order. [Newkirk v. Stees, 3 S.L.R. 208, followed; Bozson v. Altrincham Urban Council, [1903] 1 K.B. 547, not followed.] Charbonneau v. Pagot, [1917] 1 W.W.R. 1327.

(§ II B—72)—BY DEFAULT—EFFECT AND CONCLUSIVENESS OF DEFAULT JUDGMENT—IRREGULARITY OF SERVICE OF SUMMONS—SHERIFF'S RETURN—DISCONTINUANCE AGAINST ONE OF THE DEFENDANTS—SETTING ASIDE JUDGMENT—LEAVE TO DEFEND.

Relief from a judgment obtained in an undefended action will not be granted merely on the ground that judgment was taken contrary to some loose understanding between counsel for the several parties that the trial of the action should be postponed to a later day.

Ferguson v. Swedish Canadian Lumber Co., 2 D.L.R. 557, 41 N.B.R. 217, 10 E.L.R. 386.

Signing a default judgment against one of three members of a partnership does not prevent recovery against the others. [Castle v. Baird, 15 O.W.R. 273, followed.]

PRACTICE—SETTING ASIDE—AFFIDAVIT OF MERITS.

A regular judgment will not be set aside without the production of an affidavit of merits, except for some very sufficient reason. [Farden v. Richter, 23 Q.B.D. 124, 58 L.J.Q.B. 244, followed.] Where, however, the defendant's solicitor informed a student of the plaintiff's solicitor in the hearing of the plaintiff's solicitor that he intended to enter an appearance at a specified time and the plaintiff's solicitor expressed no dissent, a judgment entered by the plaintiff in default of appearance before such time was properly set aside without an affidavit of merits although the judgment was otherwise regularly entered.

Great West Land Co. v. Powell, 12 S.L.R. 186, [1919] 2 W.W.R. 78.

EX PARTE JUDGMENT—REVERSAL—SECOND ACTION.

When an ex parte judgment is reversed on review with the mere declaration that the plaintiff must pay the costs of review that the latter may proceed anew in the court of first instance without first paying the said costs.

Tremblay v. Depatie, 12 Que. P.R. 356.

(§ II B—76)—DISMISSAL FOR NONCOMPLIANCE WITH RULE OF SECURITY—STAY OF PROCEEDINGS.

The dismissal of an action for failure to comply with an order for security for costs is not a bar to another action for the same cause, but the court has an inherent power to stay the second action until the costs of the former have been paid. Where the claims set out in the second action are new, at least in form, and have not been specifically disposed of by the prior judgment, there is no res adjudicata apparent concerning them, but nevertheless the defendants are at liberty to plead res adjudicata.

DISMISSAL.

Where an action has been dismissed for noncompliance with an order for the payment of certain costs by the plaintiff, the court has no power to restore the action to the list for trial upon the plaintiff's paying such costs.

Smith v. Yukon Gold Co., 5 D.L.R. 31, 21 W.L.R. 902.

DISMISSAL—JUDGMENT ON DEFENDANT'S ADMISSIONS, CONCLUSIVENESS OF.

An order for judgment made on application of plaintiff under r. 615 of the King's Bench Act (Man.), upon admissions made by defendant in his pleading, puts an end to the action, where the admissions constituted the entire defence raised; and the plaintiff is, therefore, precluded from subsequently applying for an order for examination on discovery of defendant, notwithstanding that when the order for a judgment was made, nothing was said by counsel on either side with reference to the plaintiff proceeding for any further relief, and the plaintiff did not ask to have such right reserved, and no suggestion was made by defendant's counsel at the time that the order for judgment would be in the nature of a final judgment, or prevent the plaintiff from proceeding for the balance of his original claim. [Kelly v. Kelly, 18 Man. L.R. 362, distinguished; United Telephone Co. v. Donohoe, 31 Ch. D. 399, 55 L.J. Ch. 480; Andrews v. Patriotic Ass'ce Co., 18 L.R. Ir. 115, applied.]

OF NONSUIT.

A judgment of nonsuit under s. 110 of the County Court Act (B.C.) is not a bar to another action by the plaintiff on the same subject-matter. [Poyser v. Minors, 7 Q.B.D. 329, followed.]

Skelding v. Levin, 23 B.C.R. 47.

DISMISSING PETITION TO QUASH SAISIE-ARRÊT—CHOSE JUGÉE.

A judgment of the Superior Court, confirmed by the Court of Review, dismissing a petition of the defendant to have a saisie-arrêt before judgment quashed, because this petition had been filed without the permission of a judge after the expiration of the delay for contesting the saisie-arrêt, is chose jugée upon the question of whether the defendant was or was not within the legal delays for filing his contestation, which ground can be raised on the hearing of a motion to obtain permission to file it.

Ménard v. Choiniere, 24 Que. K.B. 528.

Where an action or other proceeding is discontinued on payment of costs, the adverse party may inscribe for judgment on such discontinuance.

Blake v. Goyette, 13 Que. P.R. 412.

C. COLLATERAL ATTACK.

(§ II C—80)—ORDER FOR ARREST—AUTHORIZATION TO CURATOR.

An opposition to judgment will not lie against an order for arrest or an authorization, from a judge to a curator in a judicial abandonment of property, to continue proceedings commenced by a temporary guardian.

Laurentides Brique et Sable Co. v. Charbon, 48 Que. S.C. 4.

(§ II C—86)—JUDGMENT BY DEFAULT.

Having regard to the statutory origin of the proceeding by petition in revision of default judgments, the leave given to file such petition does not have the effect of obliterating the default judgment, and consequently the defendant, petitioner in revision, is not entitled to have this action declared perempted, after 2 years from the said filing.

Taylor v. Grant, 18 Rev. de Jur. 90.

(§ II C—91)—LACK OF JURISDICTION.

The amendment of the Division Courts Act (Ont.) substituting the words "fail for want of jurisdiction" for the words "abate for want of jurisdiction," in 10 Edw. VII. (Ont.) c. 32, s. 79 (1) does not give a Division Court jurisdiction to try an action which should have been brought in the court of another division.

Re Gibbons v. Cannell, 8 D.L.R. 232, 4 O.W.N. 270, 23 O.W.R. 401.

LACK OF JURISDICTION—APPEAL—"FINALITY" OF DECISION APPEALED FROM.

The judgment by which a court declares itself to be without jurisdiction and transfers the cause to another court is not interlocutory but final in its nature. From such a judgment rendered by the Superior Court an appeal lies de plano to the Court of King's Bench.

Toudeau v. Montmagny, 22 Que. K.B. 289.

(§ II C—93)—SPECIAL TRIBUNALS—MINISTER OF LANDS—DECISION OF AS TO VALIDITY OF LAND PATENT—RES JUDICATA.

A decision of the Minister of Lands, Forests and Mines in favour of the validity of a Crown land patent is not res judicata as to a subsequent action to set aside the patent in the courts.

SPECIAL TRIBUNALS.

The rule that the judgment of a court which has jurisdiction cannot be called in question by collateral attack applies to the decisions of special tribunals and to proceedings that are directed by statute.

United Shoe Machinery Co. v. Laurendeau, 2 D.L.R. 77.

D. WHAT MATTERS CONCLUDED.

(§ II D—100)—EFFECT AND CONCLUSIVENESS.

The plaintiff is not stopped by judgments in former actions, where the same subject has not been adjudicated, although such former actions may have been between the same parties and concerning the same estate.

INTERPLEADER.

Where one real estate agent procured the execution of the contract of sale providing that the commission to himself should form part of, and be paid out of, the purchase money, and on another real estate agent making an adverse claim thereto as against the fund out of which it was so payable upon an allegation that the first agent had acquired the information which led up to such contract while in the employ of such adverse claimant, an order made in interpleader proceedings finding the first agent entitled to that proportion of the purchase money so set apart for the stipulated commission should not bar the claimant from an independent action against the vendor for any commission to which he may be entitled by reason of having acted for the vendor in finding the party who eventually purchased through the other agent; the formal judgment on the interpleader may in such case properly include a statement that its determination is without prejudice to the latter claim against the vendor.

Rice v. Proctor, 11 D.L.R. 693, 4 O.W.N. 1242, 24 O.W.R. 527.

(§ II D—102)—CHOSE JUGÉE—WAGES.

Where in contestation of a demand of judicial abandonment of property based on salary due, the principal question is that no salary being due to the plaintiff and that he was therefore not a creditor of the defendant, and on this ground, the demand is rejected by the Superior Court, there is chose jugée in a subsequent action by the same plaintiff against the same defendant for the same salary.

Sills v. Pyke, 49 Que. S.C. 315.

(§ II D—107)—EXPROPRIATION MATTERS.

Orders in matters of expropriation have all the juristic character of judgments of the Superior Court in matters within its jurisdiction. Subject to such appeals as are provided by the statutes they have the authority of res judicata. The exception of res judicata is a good reason for the dismissal of an action to set aside an order on arbitration for causes which the plaintiff ought to have urged by way of appeal.

Bouchard v. Quebec Development Co., 50 Que. S.C. 246.

(§ II D—112)—AGREEMENT OF SALE—FORECLOSURE—REDEMPTION—PERSONAL REMEDY—MORATORIUM ACT, 1914 (MAN.)—APPLICABILITY TO PENDING AS WELL AS SUBSEQUENT ACTIONS.

The period of one year to be allowed for redemption of land under s. 8 of the Moratorium Act, 1914, Man. in court decrees applies not only to actions commenced after the passing of the Act, but also to actions then pending.

(§ II D—117)—CONTRACTS.

Res judicata cannot be claimed as to the construction of a contract in a prior action in which the defendant in the second action was a joint defendant, but as to whom such contract was not in issue.

Klock v. Molsons Bank, 3 D.L.R. 521, 44 Que. S.C. 193.

(§ II D—118)—SUMMARY APPLICATION UNDER VENDORS AND PURCHASERS ACT (ONT.).

In an action for specific performance of a contract for the sale of land, any point previously decided on a summary application under the Vendors and Purchasers Act (Ont.) relating to that contract cannot be reviewed.

Cameron v. Hull, 9 D.L.R. 843, 4 O.W.N. 581, 23 O.W.R. 736.

(§ II D—121)—ALIMONY.

Arrears of alimony due under a judgment which has been registered in the land registry office, pursuant to s. 35 of the Ontario Judicature Act is a statutory charge upon the lands belonging to the husband, and may be enforced by a petition in the original action.

Abbott v. Abbott, 1 D.L.R. 697, 3 O.W.N. 683, 21 O.W.R. 281.

ALIMONY.

When a judgment grants an allowance for maintenance there is res judicata between the parties as to the obligation to supply those allowances until such judgment is annulled or revoked by another one. In an action for an increase in the alimony already granted by the judgment, one cannot on an inscription in law use grounds for the annulment or revocation of the first judgment.

O'Brien v. Berger, 49 Que. S.C. 278.

(§ II D—127)—REVIEW OF ASSESSMENT—SUBSEQUENT ACTION FOR TAXES.

In an action by a city corporation against a railway company for the recovery of taxes assessed against certain property belonging to the company within the city limits, the company may set up as a defence the exemption privilege provided in s. 14, c. 40, R.S.S. notwithstanding an unsuccessful appeal by them from the assessment to the Court of Revision and the dismissal of a subsequent appeal to a judge of the District Court on this very ground.

Prince Albert v. Can. Northern R. Co.,

(§ II D—130)—AS TO EXECUTOR'S POWER OF SALE.

A judgment determines every right, question, or fact distinctly put in issue as a ground of recovery or defence, and all matters which ought to have been brought forward as part of the controversy. A judgment by which an executor was ordered to make a sale is conclusive as to his power of sale though not expressly adjudicated.

(§ II D—136)—JOINT AGREEMENT ON CONTRACTS.

The decision adverse to the plaintiff creditor in a previous action in which it sued another person who jointly with the present defendant had entered into the contract in question with the company, by which previous decision it was held adversely to the company that both the present defendant, not a party to the previous action, and the party then sued were entitled to certain rights against the plaintiff as to the supply of gas and that the cutting off of the supply to the defendant in the first action operated as a forfeiture in favour of the present defendant of the plaintiff company's claim to an oil and gas lease over his farm, operates as res judicata in bar to the company's second action as regards the same points of controversy.

Welland County Lime Works v. Augustine, 4 D.L.R. 315, 3 O.W.N. 1329, 22 O.W.R. 235.

(§ II D—140)—CORPORATE MATTERS—NEGLECT—NUISANCE.

The defence of res judicata has no application between an action by a municipal corporation against the owner of property for the purpose of compelling him to open and clear out a watercourse, and another action by such owner against the same municipality to recover damages caused by defects in such watercourse.

Sevigny v. St. David, 50 Que. S.C. 291.

(§ II D—145)—CONCLUSIVENESS—JUDGMENT FOR RETURN OF SUBSCRIPTION MONEY.

A winding-up order obtained by a judgment creditor of the company in respect of a judgment recovered for the cancellation of his stock subscription and the return of money paid thereon is res judicata as to his right to be relieved from his subscription on the settling of the list of contributories in the winding-up.

Re National Husker Co., Worthington's Case, 10 D.L.R. 644, 4 O.W.N. 1077, 24 O.W.R. 385. [Affirmed, 14 D.L.R. 696, 25 O.W.R. 348.]

(§ II D—147)—CONCLUSIVENESS—WAGES CLAIM—DIRECTORS' PERSONAL LIABILITY.

In an action by a creditor against a surety, a judgment obtained by the creditor against the principal debtor is not evidence against the surety, on the maxim res inter alios acta, whether the defendant is a contractual or a statutory surety; consequently a judgment against a company sued for a labourer's wages for which the directors would be personally liable under the Companies Ordinance [Alta. Ord. 1911, c. 61] is not conclusive as against the directors sued in a subsequent action. [Re Kitchin, Ex parte Young, 17 Ch. D. 668, applied.]

E. AS TO PARTIES.

(§ II E—150)—RES JUDICATA—PRINCIPAL AND AGENT.

Where an agent has been sued and judgment taken against him, it operates as res judicata barring the prosecution of an action on the same grounds against the principal, even if the judgment is by default. [Partington v. Hawthorne, 52 J.P. 807, applied.]

PRINCIPAL AND AGENT.

A judgment, recovered by a real estate broker in an action against the owner for his commissions, is not binding upon the owner's agents who were not parties to the action, and cannot be set up as res judicata in an action by the broker against the agents for the commissions he claims to be entitled to out of the funds in their hands, nor is it admissible evidence of the facts established by it.

(§ II E—152)—ACTION FOR DEATH OF SERVANT—EMPLOYER AND CONTRACTOR.

Where an action for negligently causing death is brought by the representative of the deceased workman against the employer in respect of negligence in operating a hoist in building operations as to which the employer and a subcontractor would each have a measure of responsibility, the taking of judgment and receiving satisfaction in the action against the employer is a bar to a second action against the subcontractor in respect of his alleged negligence; and after receiving satisfaction of the judgment so recovered against the one, the plaintiff is estopped in the second action from saying that the injury resulted from the negligence of the subcontractor only and that the principal contractor who had consented to judgment in the first action was not in fact liable. [Brown v. Cambridge, 85 Mass. 476; Kembhall v. Hamilton, 4 App. Cas. 504, applied; Atlantic Dock Co. v. New York, 43 N. Y. 64; Donovan v. Laing, [1893] 1 Q.B. 629, distinguished.]

(§ II E-154)—VENDOR AND PURCHASER.

In an action against the lessee of certain land for possession or other relief, brought by both parties to a contract for the sale thereof, the legal estate being still in the vendor and constituting a substantial interest in the land, the defence of res judicata fails as to the vendor, though judgment had been registered against his plaintiff in a former action brought by the latter against the same defendant, and involving the same issues, and though the vendor on his examination for discovery disclaim any interest in the property.

Alexander v. Herman, 2 D.L.R. 239, 3 O.W.N. 755, 21 O.W.R. 461.

CONTEST OF WILL—ABSENT BENEFICIARIES.

A judgment in an action for the contest of a will is binding only between the parties to the action and cannot prejudicially affect any beneficiaries not before the court.

PURCHASER AT JUDICIAL SALE.

A judgment determining the conditions of a judicial sale is not res judicata between the one who has obtained it and the person who has become purchaser of the immovable at the sale.

Hope v. Leroux, 25 Que. K.B. 130.

(§ II E-162)—EQUITABLE OWNER OF LAND.

Where final judgment was rendered against the purchaser in a land contract in an action brought by him for possession or for other relief against a lessee of the said property, a suit involving the same issues afterwards brought by the vendor must be dismissed.

Alexander v. Herman, 2 D.L.R. 239, 3 O.W.N. 755, 21 O.W.R. 461.

(§ II E-163)—AS BETWEEN DEFENDANTS.

In an action by the Attorney-General on the relation of a city and its building inspector and by the city in its own right against an electric railway company to restrain the breaches of certain city by-laws concerning the erection of buildings and of any gas works or gas holders within the city, in which action the company claimed that by virtue of the powers derived from another company that it was not subject to the by-laws and also denied their validity, and at the opening of the trial applied to amend its defence by pleading that the plaintiffs, by the judgment of the Privy Council in the company's favour in a former action which the city alone brought against the company and in which the issues were similar to those in the present action, were estopped from denying that the latter possessed all the powers of its predecessor, the Attorney-General is not estopped by the judgment in the former action and as against him the application to amend should be refused. [St. Mary Magdalene v. Att'y-Gen'l. 6 H.L.C. 189; People v. Halladay, 93 Cal. 241, 29 Pac. R. 54, writ of error dismissed, 159 U.S. 415, distinguished.]

(§ II E-178)—ADMINISTRATOR'S BOND—DEFAULT JUDGMENT—LIQUIDATED DEMAND.

Where a judgment has been obtained for the amount of the plaintiff's claim against an estate, and the Court of Probate, being satisfied that the condition of the administration bond has been broken, has assigned the bond under the provisions of the Probate Act to the plaintiff who thereby became entitled to sue on the bond, and recover thereon as trustee for all parties interested, a default judgment may be entered for the judgment, debt, and interest, the statement of claim being for a liquidated demand under O. 27, r. 2. The sureties on such bond cannot compel the creditor to establish the claim over again against the estate.

(§ II E-180)—PRINCIPAL AND AGENT—HUSBAND AND WIFE.

Where a husband acting as agent for an undisclosed principal, his wife, in an exchange of lands, gives to the vendor as part payment for his wife's purchase two promissory notes signed by himself alone, a judgment against the husband upon the notes, which was not satisfied, is no bar to a subsequent action for a personal judgment against the wife for the unpaid purchase-money represented thereby.

(§ II E-195)—MORTGAGE CASES.

A decision given in favour of execution creditors against the execution debtor rejecting his claim that the lands seized under the execution were exempt from seizure under execution as being his homestead is res judicata as against a mortgagee of the lands from the execution debtor subsequent to the operation of the execution or judgment as a charge on the lands but the mortgagee may apply for a rehearing of the case on the ground of the discovery of new evidence of a material character.

ANNUITY—FORMER ACTION FOR—RES JUDICATA.

In a former action on a bond, all questions as to its validity and the question as to whether or not there had been delivery of the same, having been disposed of it is not competent to bring up anything that was or might have been set up in the former action. This is so even when the judgment is a consent judgment.

III. The lien.

A. IN GENERAL.

See Execution, I—8; Land Titles, IV—40.

(§ III A—200)—LIEN ON LAND—REGISTRATION AFTER CONVEYANCE—CONSTRUCTIVE NOTICE.

Where land was conveyed to and the title registered in the name of a creditor merely as security for a debt, it was not bound, under s. 2 (f) of the Judgments Act, R.S. M. 1902, c. 91, by the subsequent registration before the sale of the land by the grantee, of a judgment against the grantor, where the conveyance was not attacked until after the latter sale and the payment of the surplus (above the debt secured) to the debtor, without notice of such judgment.

(§ III A—202)—LIEN—HOW LOST OR SUSPENDED—SUBSTITUTION AGREEMENT—SALE OF LAND.

Except as to the costs under the writ of execution following a judgment for an overdue instalment of purchase money, the right to levy is lost if by agreement between the parties and a company the latter was substituted as the purchaser and the defendant relieved from his obligation to purchase, but with a reservation of the defendant's liability for the overdue instalment, and if the agreement of sale and the moneys paid thereunder have been forfeited by the vendor under a power contained in the contract; retention of rights notwithstanding the termination of the agreement would require clear and definite expression and could not be inferred from a proviso that nothing "done under it" should cancel the liability for the first instalment. [Cameron v. Bradbury, 9 Gr. 67; Fraser v. Ryan, 24 A.R. (Ont.) 441; Gibbons v. Cozens, 29 O.R. 356; McPherson v. U.S. Fidelity, 6 O.W.N. 677, followed.]

(§ III A—203)—REGISTRATION—ASSIGNMENT FOR CREDITORS—KNOWLEDGE.

The registration of a judgment by an assignee thereof after the death of the judgment debtor and subsequent to an unregistered assignment for creditors by the latter, of which the judgment creditor and the assignee of the judgment had knowledge does not, by virtue of ss. 15, 16 of the Registry Act, R.S.N.S. 1900, c. 137, create a charge upon the land of the deceased debtor which has passed to the assignee for creditors under the deed of assignment, and against which, therefore, no execution can issue thereon.

The King v. Kent, 26 D.L.R. 94.

REGISTRATION—EFFECT OF APPEAL.

Inscription on appeal, or in review from a judgment, does not deprive the creditor of the right to register the judgment against the immovables of his debtor, the inscription being a conservatory measure.

(§ III B—205)—CHARGING ORDER ON SHARES.

The Imperial Judgments Act (1838), 1 & 2 Vict., c. 110, and amending Act (1840), 3 & 4 Vict., c. 82, are in force in Saskatchewan, and under s. 14 of R.S.S. (1909), c. 52, the court adopts English r. 631, which gives a judge power to make a charging order on shares of the stock of a company for payment of the amount due on a judgment against a shareholder of the company.

Miller Morse Hardware Co. v. Smart, 38 D.L.R. 171, 10 S.L.R. 409, [1917] 3 W.W.R. 1113, varying [1917] 2 W.W.R. 439.

REGISTRATION—BUILDING—LAND.

A building may have a right of property different and distinct from that of the land on which it stands. A judgment may be registered against this immovable, although the debtor, owner of the building, has, in respect to the land, only an agreement of sale.

Bonnier v. Roy, 51 Que. S.C. 1.

CHARGING ORDER—SHARES—RECEIVER.

Stock standing in the name of a judgment debtor cannot be reached by the appointment of a receiver, but a receiver may be appointed of the dividends. [Bryant v. Bull, 10 Ch. D. 153, followed.] To reach the stock itself an order charging it may be granted upon notice of motion. [Miller-Morse Hardware Co. v. Smart, [1917] 2 W.W.R. 439, varied in 38 D.L.R. 171, 10 S.L.R. 409, [1917] 3 W.W.R. 1113, followed.]

Lehane v. Porteous, [1917] 2 W.W.R. 560.

(§ III B—209)—HOMESTEAD.

Where a judgment creditor registers an execution against the debtor in the land titles office during the interval between the debtor's entry for homestead and the grant of the certificate of title, and the land is subsequently acquired as a homestead by the debtor under the Dominion Lands Act, the court will not, upon application of the judgment debtor, grant a declaratory judgment declaring that the land in question is not subject to any rights of the judgment creditor under the execution, or that the execution is not a charge or lien upon the land, or that it is a cloud upon the judgment debtor's title, since such a declaratory judgment would not establish any rights, inasmuch as the execution only binds the land which is subject to it under the Exemptions Act (c. 47, R.S.S. 1909), this land is exempt as long as it remains "homestead." [Gilmore v. Callies, 19 W. L.R. 545, followed; Fredericks v. North-West Thresher Co., 3 S.L.R. 280, 44 Can. S.C.R. 318, distinguished.]

(§ III B—210)—CHATELLETS.

Where, upon the rescission of a sale of a chattel for the default of the vendor, a judgment was given the vendee for part of the purchase money he had paid the vendor under the sale contract which did not provide for a lien thereon on the property, the vendee in an action brought after the vendor's insolvency to recover possession of the chattel from the vendee may be declared to have a lien thereon for the payments so made, and such lien may be realized by sale of the chattel after due notice.

Canadian Gas Power & Launches v. Orr, 4 D.L.R. 641, 3 O.W.N. 1362, 22 O.W.R. 351.

(§ III B—212)—LAND EQUITABLY OWNED.

In an action for the sale of lands under a certificate of judgment for a sum of money, registered in the land titles office (Man.), where the judgment debtor, prior to the registration, had entered into a verbal agreement to sell the lands in question to a purchaser for a fixed and adequate consideration contemporaneously paid, and, subsequent to the registration, conveyed to the purchaser pursuant to the agreement; the effect of the agreement and payment was to vest in the purchaser at once the beneficial ownership of the land, leaving in the judgment debtor no interest or estate that could be sold under a registered certificate of judgment. Under the Judgments Act (Man.), which creates in favour of a registered certificate of judgment a charge upon "all the lands" of the judgment debtor, the judgment creditor's right depends entirely upon the statute, and while his registered certificate binds the judgment debtor's lands it does not bind such lands as have already been sold by the debtor, even when the purchaser's ownership is only equitable and unregistered.

(§ III B—213)—PERSONAL JUDGMENT.

Where the court awards damages for a contract of support of the plaintiff for life by the defendant which was part consideration of a deed from the plaintiff to the defendant, the plaintiff is not entitled to have the amount of such damages charged as a lien upon the land in addition to a personal judgment against the defendant.

(§ IV A—220)—VALIDITY OF MARRIAGE.

Foreign decrees of nullity of marriage will be recognized as fully as will foreign decrees of divorce, when such nullity is held to have arisen because of bigamy; and a foreign judgment of annulment on the ground of bigamy in an action between parties both subject to the foreign jurisdiction is admissible to prove want of consideration of a transfer of property in Canada made in consideration of the annulled marriage which took place in Canada.

Wilcox v. Wilcox, 16 D.L.R. 491, 24 Man. L.R. 93, 27 W.L.R. 359, 6 W.W.R. 213, reversing 14 D.L.R. 1, 25 W.L.R. 489, 5 W. W.R. 136.

A judgment in personam of a foreign court of competent jurisdiction may be sued upon in Saskatchewan where the evidence sufficiently establishes the identity of the defendant in the action on the judgment with the defendant in the judgment sued upon, and that the court which rendered the judgment had jurisdiction over the defendant in respect of the cause of action.

(§ IV A—225)—EX PARTE PROCEEDING—AWARD OF CUSTODY OF CHILDREN—EFFECT IN CANADA.

An order of a court of one of the states of the United States, made in a divorce proceeding instituted without personal service on the husband, awarding the custody of infant children to their mother, will not be given effect in Canada.

In an action in a Provincial Court on a judgment in personam obtained in one of the United States, evidence that the defendant against whom judgment was rendered was a resident of the state in question when the action was begun, was personally served with the summons which was the first step in the action is sufficient to shew that he was subject to the jurisdiction of the court which rendered the judgment, and where he submitted to the jurisdiction of the State Court by entering an appearance in the action by his authorized attorney such evidence is sufficient to establish the jurisdiction of the State Court over the defendant at the time of the rendition of judgment.

Read v. Ferguson, 8 D.L.R. 737, 5 S.L.R. 405, 22 W.L.R. 751, 3 W.W.R. 611.

Plaintiff brought an action in Manitoba, in respect of a cause of action arising in Manitoba. At the time of action brought the defendant was residing in Saskatchewan, and had his domicile there, and was served there. He did not appear to the action, and judgment was recovered by default. The plaintiffs then brought action in Saskatchewan upon this judgment, and alternatively for relief in respect of the original cause of action. The defendant objected that the Manitoba Court had no jurisdiction:—Held (following Dakota Lumber Co. v. Rinderknecht, 2 W.L.R. 275), the Manitoba Court having no jurisdiction over the defendant when the judgment was recovered, an action could not be maintained thereon, but such judgment, being invalid for the purpose of action, was invalid for all purposes, and, therefore, the plaintiff could maintain an action in respect of the original cause of action.

British American Investment Co. v. Flawse, 4 S.L.R. 372.

In order to establish a change of domicile so as to oust the jurisdiction of the Manitoba Court a defendant must shew a physical removal from Manitoba to Saskatchewan, and that at the time the action was begun he had the intention of establishing in Saskatchewan a residence of a permanent character, the onus of proving which was upon him. The statement of the defendant that when he was served with the process he was a resident of Saskatchewan and that he had since then resided there except during a temporary absence must be interpreted, in the absence of evidence of a contrary intention, as a declaration that he had not only his physical residence in Saskatchewan, but that he had also the intention of making it his permanent home, and this being the case, he must be deemed to have acquired a permanent domicile there, and the foreign judgment could not be enforced.

Fairchild v. McGillivray, 4 S.L.R. 237.

A foreign judgment, even if regularly obtained according to the practice and procedure of the foreign country, in order to create that duty or obligation to pay which English courts will enforce, must come within one or the other of the five cases mentioned in Emanuel v. Symon, [1908] 1 K.B. 309. An agreement to submit to the jurisdiction of the courts of a foreign country is not to be implied from the making of a promissory note payable in such foreign country. A foreign judgment does not in Nova Scotia, by reason of O. 35, r. 38, stand on a different footing from foreign judgments sought to be enforced in England. That rule was merely intended to give to a defendant another defence to an action on a foreign judgment, and was not intended to regulate or alter the law of the country as to when a foreign judgment can be enforced.

Gifford v. Calkin, 45 N.S.R. 277, 9 E.L.R. 385.

ACTION ON—PENDENCY OF APPEAL AGAINST.

The fact that an appeal against a foreign judgment is pending in the courts of the state or country in which it was obtained is no defence to an action upon it here, although the court would stay execution on proper terms. ATTACHMENT — PAYMENT — DISCHARGE — EFFECT.

A debtor against whom proceedings were taken abroad, and who was there compelled to pay a debt which it had contracted, is freed from the debt, both as regards its own creditor and the creditors of the latter in this Province. A debtor cannot be compelled by attachment proceedings, to pay the debt a second time. [Martin v. Nadel, 2 K.B. 27; Harris v. Cordingley, 16 Can. S.C. 501; Barker v. Central Vermont, R., 13 Can. S.C. 2; Equitable Ass'ce Co. v. Perreault, 26 L.C.J. 382, followed.]

(§ 17 A—226)—DIVORCE.

The plaintiff sued in Alberta upon a judgment recovered in a court of the State of Washington, U.S.A., for permanent alimony in connection with a divorce granted plaintiff from defendant. Defendant, during the action in the Washington court, was domiciled in Canada, but was personally served in Washington, though he had not appeared or submitted himself to the jurisdiction of the court:—Held, that plaintiff could not recover. The domicile of the defendant, and consequently that of the wife, at the time of the action in the Washington court, not being in that State, that court had no jurisdiction to entertain the action for divorce. Even assuming that the Washington Court could grant permanent alimony in an action in which divorce was not sought, which was doubted, it could not be said that in the absence of a decree of divorce such alimony would have been granted. [Le Mesurier v. Le Mesurier, [1895], A.C. 517, 64 L.J. P.C. 97, 11 R. 527, 72 L.T. 873, and Magnum v. Ma-

B. OF OTHER PROVINCES.

(§ IV B—230)—JURISDICTION—ATTORNEYS—CONDITIONAL APPEARANCE.

A nonresident defendant, who appears conditionally and defends the action on the grounds of want of jurisdiction and on the merits, thereby voluntarily attorns to the jurisdiction of the court, and a judgment recovered against him in such action is enforceable in the courts of any other province; the question whether he has submitted to the foreign jurisdiction is primarily one of fact.

Fraud, sufficient to permit a judgment of a Territorial Court to be attacked in an action brought upon it in the courts of Ontario, is not shewn by the fact that the plaintiff, who was in some doubt as to whether the defendant or another closely related company was his employer, in good faith brought his action against the defendant on a demand that was justly due him. ACTION UPON.

An action does not lie in Alberta upon a personal judgment by default recovered in another province of Canada against a defendant served with its process in Alberta, and there resident and domiciled, if he did nothing to submit to the jurisdiction of the court of such other province and did not acquire any domicile in such other province while the proceedings were being carried on. A foreign judgment on a promissory note or other personal demand will not be recognized and given effect to in Alberta where the defendant was not served in the foreign law district and had not appeared in the action there brought, nor otherwise attorned to the jurisdiction of the Foreign Court. A competent foreign judgment becomes in the domestic law district a simple contract debt; action may be brought either for the original cause of action or upon the foreign judgment.

JUDGMENT OBTAINED ON CONDITIONAL APPEARANCE—ATTORNTMENT TO JURISDICTION BY FLEA TO MERITS.

A Dominion company, with its head office in Alberta, entered a conditional appearance in Ontario, expressed to be "without prejudice to the right of defendant to dispute the jurisdiction of the court." In its statement of defence, defendant, after stating that it was delivered without prejudice to its said rights, set out grounds of defence to the action on the merits. The action was tried in the presence of defendant's counsel, and the plaintiff, and judgment was given for the latter. Held, that the plaintiff was entitled to sue in Alberta upon the said judgment on the ground that defendant attorned to the jurisdiction of the foreign court and could not afterwards be heard to say that it was not bound by the judgment of the said court. (§ V-250)—RELEASE—JOINT CREDITORS.

The general rule that a release of a debt by one of several joint creditors constitutes a release as against any subsequent claim made by the remaining creditors, will not be adhered to where there are special circumstances which would make its strict application inequitable. Three persons obtained a judgment against two defendants: two of the joint judgment creditors entered into an agreement with one of the judgment debtors under which they took from him a lease of a coal mine on a royalty basis, the third judgment creditor, obtaining on the face of the document, no interest in the lease at all; they also agreed to take from the one judgment debtor a mortgage upon the mine for an amount in excess of the judgment debt and agreed that the royalties to be paid by them should be applied in a certain order in payment, inter alia, of the interest and principal of their own mortgage; and they also agreed that their lease might be forfeited upon notice for nonoperation of the mine, though the third joint creditor had apparently no means of intervening to prevent the forfeiture, and they agreed that upon such a forfeiture no further amounts should be payable upon their mortgage. In consequence of this agreement, an appeal by the judgment debtors was discontinued. An action was subsequently brought upon a bond given as security for the judgment in the first action and the defendants relied upon the agreement as a release. Held, that, although there was no allegation, or evidence of intent to defraud, it would be unjust and inequitable to hold the third joint creditor bound by such agreement. [Niemann v. Niemann, 43 Ch. D. 198, 59 L.J. Ch. 290, applied.]

(§ V-251)—SATISFACTION—RESCISSION AFTER JUDGMENT OF THE CONTRACT SUED ON—COSTS.

That part of a judgment recovered by a vendor against the purchaser which represents purchase money is to be deemed satisfied by the vendor's exercise of a power of rescission of the contract and his resale of the lands; but the vendor may still enforce payment of the costs awarded him by the judgment. A person who has obtained a judgment against a defendant in a contested action, cannot transfer the amount of the judgment to his advocates in payment of their costs, when the action is pending appeal, this debt being still in litigation. This nullity is absolute. The reception by the court of an intervention in a garnishee summons after judgment is equivalent to permission to contest the declaration of the third party. A creditor has the right to intervene in a garnishee summons after judgment when there are several other garnishments against the debtor, who is insolvent, in order to contest an illegal or fraudulent transfer and to make a list of the creditors. A person can, on a contestation of the declaration of a third party, ask for the annulment of an Act, where this annulment has the effect of making the third party a debtor, when he would not be one otherwise. It is unnecessary to obtain permission of the court to bring into the action a party interested in it.

DAMAGES FOR NONCOMPLIANCE WITH—NATURE AND REQUISITES AS BASIS OF ACTION.

To be available as a cause of action, a judgment must be definitive and personal for the payment of money, of a character as would support an action of debt under the old forms of procedure; but no action will lie to recover damages for the breach of directions of a judgment for the return of certain bees and honey, the detention of which resulted in the destruction of that property.

EXECUTION—LEAVE TO ISSUE—JURISDICTION OF COUNTY COURT—TITLE TO LAND.

Under the County Court Act (N.S.), ss. 44, 45, a motion for leave to issue execution on a judgment of the County Court may properly be referred to the Supreme Court en banc where a question of title to land bona fide comes into question by reason of the judgment being for purchase money of land and of an objection being raised in good faith of want of title and that the description of the land offered to be conveyed was of a different property.

The procedure to be followed by an execution creditor to realize against the unregistered interest of his debtor as a purchaser of lands under contract is an application under Sask. rr. 336-341 and not by the filing of a caveat in support of the execution.

SEQUESTRATION.

If a party does not allege special reasons in his application for the appointment of a sequestrator, but contents himself with saying that it is for his interest that one should be appointed, his application will be dismissed as insufficient in law.

Constantineau v. Plouffe, 14 Que. P.R. 307.

VII. Relief against; rehearing; actions to annul.

A. IN GENERAL.

(§ VII A-270)—IRREGULAR ENTRY—PARTIES ABSENT—TRIAL.

There is no authority for giving judgment in favour of either party when neither is present when an action comes up for trial; where a judgment has thus been irregularly entered, the judge has power, under the Division Courts Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 63, ss. 104, 226, to set it aside and order a trial which, however, is not a new trial.

UNAUTHORIZED TRANSFER TO ANOTHER COURT.

After trial and judgment in a County Court (Man.) action, an order made without jurisdiction for the transfer of the cause to the King's Bench does not relieve the judgment debtor of his liability, nor in any way impair or affect it.

ENFORCEMENT OF COLLATERAL AGREEMENT.

A judgment for the seller suing for the price of company shares may, in a proper case, be made subject to a stay of proceedings thereon for a sufficient delay to enable the defendant to make a substantive application to the court for the enforcement of a collateral term of the sale contract that the price should be handed over to the company by the vendor as a loan in conformity with an agreement between the latter and the company.

PREVIOUS ACTION—REFERENCE—AGREEMENT—COMMON ERROR—JUDGMENT SET ASIDE.

A judgment must be set aside, where there has been a common error in the expression of the intentions of the parties. [Wilding v. Sanderson, [1897] 2 Ch. 534, followed.]

Royal Bank v. Skene, 50 D.L.R. 213, 59 Can. S.C.R. 211, [1919] 3 W.W.R. 1071, affirming [1919] 3 W.W.R. 740, which affirmed [1919] 1 W.W.R. 390.

RELIEF AGAINST—REHEARING—MOTION TO VARY.

SOLICITOR'S FAULT.

Where an application was made to set aside a judgment under s. 110 of the County Courts Act (B.C.) by reason of the applicant's solicitor being at fault, and the judgment is set aside ex dubito justitiae on the ground of irregularity of the judgment, held, on appeal, that as there was no exercise by the judge below of his judicial discretion as required under said section the order should be set aside.

Eddy v. C.P.R. Co., 22 B.C.R. 294.

EXECUTION—MOTION TO SET ASIDE—"RENEWAL" OF FORMER APPLICATION.

Hunter v. Perrin, 15 O.W.N. 359.

PETITION IN REVOCATION—NATURE OF REMEDY.

A petition in revocation of judgment is a means of withdrawal and not of revision or construction of the judgment. A judgment, ill founded on the merits and the grounds of the main contestation decided by it, cannot be grounds on which the petition in revocation can be based. French law has never allowed the recourse by a petition in revocation of a judgment, which simply decides a question of law. The mere submitting a case to the decision of the court on a factum or statement, with the consent of the parties' attorneys, cannot give rise to a petition in revocation of judgment. The King's declaration of April 22, 1732, addressed to the superior council of Quebec, and giving to the parties, by art. IX., the simple remedy by petition, of having an ambiguous judgment construed, has never been repealed, and is still in force.

Michelakis v. Regimbald, 19 Que. P.R. 300. [See 36 D.L.R. 367.]

PETITION IN REVOCATION—CANCELLATION.

Contrary to an opposition to judgment, the filing of a petition in revocation of judgment does not cancel the judgment rendered.

Popliger v. Glazer, 19 Que. P.R. 241.

PETITION IN REVOCATION—CONCLUSIONS—INSCRIPTION IN LAW.

A petition in revocation of judgment has the effect of putting the parties in the same position they were previous to the judgment. Accordingly the following conclusions taken in this request, namely, "that all the proceedings be declared void and of no value; that the parties, the plaintiff and defendants, be declared out of court and in the same state in which they were before action brought" should be rejected in an inscription in law.

Duclos v. Dagenais, 54 Que. S.C. 71. [See 50 Que. S.C. 333.]

PETITION IN REVOCATION—PÉREMPTION.

A petition in revocation of judgment will be received against a judgment declaring an action pérempted, if such judgment was given by default on a day when the court sits only for uncontested motions and those in which witnesses should be heard, and after there had been, by consent, several adjournments of the application for préemption.

McGibbon v. G.T.R. Co., 20 Que. P.R. 62.
REVOCATION — RECORD — GARNISHMENT — RENUNCIATION.

A creditor, who holds a judgment which he has tried to execute against his debtor's assets, may by way of a petition in revocation, ask the cancellation of a judgment rendered at his debtor's request, and have noted in the record his renunciation of the estate in whose hands he had a writ of garnishment issued. Such a petition, showing prima facie a good claim, will be received by the court.

Robert v. Charbonneau, 19 Que. P.R. 237.
REVOCATION — ACTION — PRESCRIPTION — INSCRIPTION IN LAW.

A provincial action is not, under Quebec law, a way of providing against final judgment. The prescription of 6 months, mentioned in art. 1178, C.C.P., concerning petitions in revocation of judgment, is a good ground for an inscription in law directed against such an action.

Faust v. Avisais, 19 Que. P.R. 109.
REVOCATION — THIRD PARTY OPPOSITION — GUARDIAN AND WARD.

It is by a petition in revocation of judgment, and not by a third party's opposition, that a tutor should ask the setting aside of a judgment rendered ex parte against his ward during his predecessor's administration.

McMullin v. Spark, 19 Que. P.R. 442.
ACTION TO ANNUL — ILLEGAL SENTENCE — PENALTIES—COLLECTOR OF REVENUE—LICENSE ACT.

When there is no way of protecting oneself against a judgment rendered illegally, then the direct action to set aside may be made use of. If the judgment, the nullity of which is sought, is a sentence rendered according to the License Act under art. 1163, R.S.Q., the court will not consider defects in the merits or in the form unless the plaintiff shews prejudice. One who pays a fine, condemned under penalty of imprisonment, is not considered as having acquiesced in the judgment. An action to recover back penalties illegally paid cannot be directed against a revenue collector.

Riberdy v. Tremblay, 27 Que. K.B. 385.
OPPOSITION TO ANNUL — COMPENSATION — PRACTICE—COSTS.

A defendant may, on the ground of compensation, make an opposition to annul a seizure, under art. 645, C.C.P., alleging that the judgment which is being executed is extinct, the opposition indicating a claim easily realized, such as an account of a few items for advertisements published in a newspaper, according to a scale of prices stipulated in a written contract. The priority of the claim-offer in compensation of the judgment is not a legal means sufficient to have the seized party's opposition dismissed, because compensation takes place

"de jure," according to the principle enacted by art. 1188, C.C. (Que.), from the moment two debts exist together, before it has been declared by the judge or opposed by the parties. As a matter of principle the C.C.P. does not recognize the opposition to annul as a means of attacking a final judgment in a contested case. Art. 645, C.C.P., which entitles the seized defendant to allege, by such an opposition, all grounds which might affect the merits of the judgment, is in derogation of the common law and hardly harmonizes or agrees with the other means of recourse allowed by the Code. However, the provisions of that article are so close and positive that there is no ground for construction, and they must be applied to their full extent, according to art. 12, C.C. (Que.), even if they appear not to agree with the general principles of the Code. They thus include, without any distinction, all the grounds of the seized party provided they have not been raised and decided. Art. 217, C.C.P., is an exception to the common law which requires that any action should start by a writ, in the name of the Sovereign. It may be applied only if the ground of the cross-demand cannot be raised by a plea to the action. Therefore, the defendant is not bound to make a cross-demand to prove the compensation he alleges, if the debt the plaintiff owes him is clear and liquidated or easy to realize, and he may, in such case, allege compensation in his plea to the action. Art. 217, is optional and not imperative, all the other means of recourse are left open to the defendant who has not made use of the cross-demand. The object of the special recourse given by art. 217 to a defendant is to avoid costs. If a defendant, by way of an opposition to annul the seizure, raised a ground of compensation which he might have raised to contest the main action, either by a plea to the merits or by cross-demand, and if such an opposition, being accepted, incurs more costs than such a plea to the merits or cross-demand, the court, in giving the final judgment, will be justified in setting off the costs.

Wiseman v. Eagle Publishing Co., 19 Que. P.R. 79.

OPPOSITION TO ANNUL — JOINT DEBTORS — SURETY—APPEAL.

In proceedings brought against two joint and several debtors, a contestation of the action brought by one debtor does not benefit his codebtors notwithstanding a contestation of the justness of the debt by one of them, the creditor has the right to proceed to judgment against the other and to execute such judgment against his goods. In any case, the debtor injured by a judgment given by default against him ought to appeal, by one of the methods of appeal against judgments and not by opposition to the execution of the judgment.

La Compagnie Julien v. Lamy, 53 Que. S.C. 304.

Article 1177, C.C.P., which enumerates the cases in which recourse may be had to a requête civile is not restrictive. Thus, a defendant subjected to judgment by the negligence of his attorney in failing to file his pleas has a right to attack the judgment by requête civile.

Dufresne v. Caisse, 13 Que. P.R. 193.

REQUÊTE CIVILE—EVIDENCE.

A requête civile will not be received when based on the ground that the judge who rendered the judgment admitted in evidence documents produced by the petitioner but did not take them into account.

Archambault v. McGlashan, 17 Que. P.R. 375.

REQUÊTE CIVILE—CONTESTATION.

To oppose the reception of a requête civile the sole right of the adverse party is to shew that even on its face it is not based upon any juridical grounds sufficient to cause the judgment attacked to be set aside, or that it does not comply with the formalities required by law; he cannot file any written contestation or declarations under oath to support a claim that it should be dismissed.

Charland v. Landry, 18 Que. P.R. 41.

NEW MATTER—QUEBEC PRACTICE.

A requête civile will not be granted if the facts alleged are not such as will alter the judgment, nor if the documents required and produced should have been known to the parties before the judgment.

St. Denis v. Trudeau, 14 Que. P.R. 173.

COMPANY WINDING UP.

The judgment which orders the winding-up of a company is a final judgment which cannot be set aside, on application of a shareholder on the ground that the headquarters of the company being in another province a Quebec court has no jurisdiction to make the order.

Re Belle Isle Park Co., 14 Que. P.R. 247.

BY APPEAL OR OPPOSITION IN QUEBEC.

A party may ask to set aside a judgment by means of an opposition to judgment, but he is not deprived from adopting at his option the other remedy by way of appeal.

Burns v. Cousineau, 14 Que. P.R. 389.

DECRÉE—ACTION TO ANNUL.

A direct action lies to set aside a decree of the court. In such case the action does not form part of the record of the cause in which the decree was made but is subject, in respect to the jurisdiction of the courts, to the rules drawn from the provisions of arts. 94 or 100 C.C.P.

Marchand v. Allaire, 12 Que. P.R. 436.

PETITION IN REVISION OF JUDGMENT—ALLEGATION OF A GOOD DEFENCE.

If an action has not been duly served, defendant may, by petition in revision, obtain relief without alleging or establishing that he has a good defence to the action. As is the case with an exception to the form, it suffices to allege nullity of service and falsity of bailiff's return.

Grant v. Taylor, 12 Que. P.R. 315.

REVOCACTION—NEW EVIDENCE.

When a judgment has been rendered dismissing an action for tort arising out of an accidental drowning, the evidence of witnesses examined at the coroner's inquest before the institution of the action in presence of plaintiff's attorney is not "new evidence" affording ground for revocation of judgment.

Duchaine v. Dussault, 20 Que. K.B. 451.

JUDGMENT—APPLICATION TO SET ASIDE—COLLUSION.

Irwin v. King Edward Smelting Co., 10 E.L.R. 75.

(§ VII A—271)—INTERLOCUTORY JUDGMENT ON STRIKING OUT DEFENCE—RELIEF AGAINST.

Where an order has been made by a local judge striking out the statement of defence in an action because of the failure on the part of the defendant to answer proper interrogatories, the same judge has jurisdiction, under the Manitoba practice, on a substantive application on fresh material, to set aside an interlocutory judgment signed against the defendant and to reinstate the statement of defence upon the defendant finally consenting prior to the signing of such judgment against him but subsequent to the granting of the order striking out the defence to answer the interrogatories.

FORM AND SUBSTANCE—RELIEF AGAINST—JUDGMENT DEBTOR'S RIGHT TO SET-OFF, HOW LIMITED.

REQUÊTE CIVILE — JURISDICTION — DOCUMENTARY EVIDENCE.

A requête civile should be presented to the court in which it is desired to have the judgment revoked. Thus a requête civile against a judgment of the Court of Review at Montreal reversing that of the Superior Court of the district of Terrebonne should be presented to the Court of Review at Montreal. When a requête civile is based upon the fact that an evidentiary document was omitted from the record submitted to the court, the petitioner should establish that such document was decisive and would have exercised an important influence upon the final decision, and that with it the judgment would have been different; if he alleges that the opposite party has had recourse to artifices, he should state facts which shew their nature and effect. A party who knows that one of the evidentiary documents is missing from the record, and who nevertheless agrees to plead and submit his case without the document, cannot after judgment have recourse to a requête civile based on such omission.

Mayer v. Miller, 48 Que. S.C. 145.

MASTER'S REPORT — WHEN REOPENING REFUSED.

Hancock v. Rose, 31 W.L.R. 547.

REVIEW OF JUDGMENT REFUSING APPLICATION—APPEAL.

Where a judge of the Supreme Court makes an order refusing an application, the remedy is, in general, by appeal, unless leave be given to renew it.

Irving v. Bucke, 21 B.C.R. 17.

OPPOSITION—QUEBEC.

The opposition to judgment forms part of the original proceedings and is a defence to the action; it cannot be dismissed on motion.

Tournier v. Noel, 14 Que. P.R. 234.

REQUÊTE CIVILE—OTHER REMEDIES.

A requête civile will not be entertained when the judgment complained of can be attacked on the grounds set forth (in this case the failure to file documents referred to in the declaration) either by appeal from, or opposition to said judgment.

McIntyre v. Eastmure, 12 Que. P.R. 196.

(§ VII A—272)—IMPOSING TERMS — EXCESSIVE JUDGMENT — CORRECTION.

On an application to vacate a default judgment because rendered for a greater sum than that to which the plaintiff was entitled, the court, instead of granting such relief, may vary the judgment by entering one for the amount to which the plaintiff is found upon the merits to be actually entitled, such practice being permissible under r. 99 (Yukon) which provides that a default judgment may be set aside or varied on such terms as are just.

Marcell v. Canadian Klondike Mining Co., 13 D.L.R. 805, 25 W.L.R. 339.

JUDGMENT IN PLAINTIFF'S ABSENCE—WITHDRAWAL OF COUNSEL.

Rule 351 of the Saskatchewan Rules of Court, 1911, by which any verdict or judgment obtained where one party does not "appear at the trial," may be set aside upon terms which the court may impose, does not apply to a case where plaintiff's counsel had appeared at the commencement of the trial and left the court-room without informing the court that he was withdrawing from the case which was proceeded with and tried in his absence.

TERMS ON SETTING ASIDE.

When a defendant applying to set aside a default judgment entered against him where his default was through a slip or mistake, puts in an affidavit of merits, the practice is to grant the application on terms; the terms will ordinarily include the payment of the costs occasioned by the signing of judgment and the costs of the application to set it aside, and the court will exercise its discretion upon the particular facts of the case as to making a further term of bringing the money into court or giving security. [Royal Bank v. Fullerton, 2 D.L.R. 345, 17 B.C.R. 11, distinguished; Collins v. Paddington, 5 Q.B. D. 368, applied.]

TERMS ON SETTING ASIDE — AFFIDAVIT TO SET ASIDE DEFAULT JUDGMENT — SECURITY FOR COSTS—WAIVER.

Where judgment was entered by the plaintiffs against the defendant for default of appearance, and the defendant applied promptly to set it aside, by affidavit shewing an excuse for his failure to appear and disclosing a good defence, if substantiated, on the merits, an order was made, under Rule 99 of the Judicature Ordinance, setting aside the judgment and allowing him in to defend, upon terms of his paying the plaintiffs' costs of entering the judgment and opposing the motion and waiving his right to security for costs.

B. DEFENCES.

(§ VII B—275)—OPPOSITION — AFFIDAVIT — SERVICE.

Service on the plaintiff's attorney as well as on the opposition, of the affidavit and receipt of the deposit before the reception by the judge of the opposition to judgment, substantially conforms to arts. 1168, 1170, C.C.P.

Charland v. Lamaire, 18 Que. P.R. 138.

C. GROUNDS.

(§ VII C—280)—GROUNDS — MISCONDUCT OF JURY — ILLEGAL PANEL — IRREGULARITIES.

A defendant has the right to petition in revocation of a judgment rendered according to the verdict in a jury trial, for the following reasons: (1) That the jury panel was illegal, of which fact the applicant was ignorant at the time of the trial; (2) That the applicant, defendant, had not received notice of action to which he was entitled; (3) That objections he made to the evidence were not stated in the report of the proceedings; (4) That the foreman of the jury was related to the opposite party and was not impartial; (5) That during the trial several members of the jury were in constant touch with the opposite party and his representatives; (6) That the verdict is for a "lump" sum, without any special answers to questions in the facts submitted. [Cook v. Caron, 10 Q.L.R. 152, and Roy v. Davis, 21 Can. S.C.R. 184, followed.]

Montreal Street R. Co. v. Normandin, 23 Que. K.B. 48.

The right of an unsuccessful party to apply for revocation of the judgment against him is not confined to the cases enumerated in art. 1177 C.C.P. If he swears that he was not notified of the date fixed for the hearing of the cause, and that he owes nothing to the plaintiff the requête civile will be granted and the proceedings on the judgment stayed.

Depato v. Zarnic, 14 Que. P.R. 439.

(§ VII C—282)—RELIEF AGAINST DEFAULT JUDGMENT — CONDITIONAL LEAVE TO DEFEND.

A defendant who is in default under the terms of leave to defend granted upon his own application in respect of a default judgment given against him, may still be granted leave to defend if the plaintiff has not been prejudiced, and if the default of the defendant was not wilful but due to a bona fide misapprehension upon a question of practice in taking out the order; but the court may, in such case, expressly limit his right of defence to the merits excluding any mere technical defence.

DEFAULT JUDGMENT — SUBSEQUENT PURCHASER — NOTICE — FRAUD.

Under ss. 162, 169 of the Land Titles Act, R.S.S., 1909, c. 41, except in case of fraud, a person dealing with the registered owner is not affected by notice of a prior unregistered interest in the land. A judgment by default obtained on a bare allegation that the land was purchased with knowledge of a prior sale, without alleging fraud, will be set aside ex debito justitiæ.

EXCESSIVENESS.

A judgment by default entered for a greater amount than is due will be set aside ex debito justitiæ, apart from any consideration as to whether there is a good defence on the merits.

Fawell v. Andrew, 34 D.L.R. 12, 10 S.L.R. 162, [1917] 2 W.W.R. 400. [Amended in 36 D.L.R. 408, [1917] 3 W.W.R. 365.]

INTERLOCUTORY AND FINAL.

The court's power to relieve against a judgment by default extends to a final judgment founded on an interlocutory judgment; in such case they are both judgments by default, and may be set aside on proper grounds.

Winnipeg Church Extension Assn. v. Markiewicz, 37 D.L.R. 697, 28 Man. L.R. 221, [1917] 3 W.W.R. 831.

EXCESSIVE AMOUNT—FORECLOSURE.

A personal judgment for an excessive amount, obtained by default in a foreclosure action, warrants the court, where there are other grounds, to set aside the whole judgment with leave to defend generally.

Scottish Temperance Life Ass'ce Co. v. Johnstone, 31 D.L.R. 649, 22 B.C.R. 510, [1917] 1 W.W.R. 538.

DEFAULT JUDGMENT ENTERED PREMATURELY — GROUNDS FOR RELIEVING AGAINST— LACHES OF SOLICITOR—DELAY IN MOVING TO SET ASIDE — CONSIDERATION OF THE MERITS.

Hart, Parr Co. v. Worth, 8 D.L.R. 1035, 1 W.W.R. 494.

DEFAULT OF APPEARANCE—IRREGULARITY IN COPY OF SUMMONS SERVED ON DEFENDANT—INCLUSION OF INTEREST — UNLIQUIDATED DAMAGES.

Brooks v. Brooks, 7 D.L.R. 781, 1 W.W.R. 813.

ACTION FOR AN ACCOUNTING BETWEEN PARTNERS — DEFAULT JUDGMENT — APPLICATION TO SET ASIDE — GREAT DELAY.

PETITION IN REVOCATION — ABSENCE OF DEFENDANT.

A defendant, condemned by a judgment of the Superior Court deciding the merits of the case, cannot have the judgment revoked by a petition alleging that his attorney was forced to proceed in his absence by order of the court; that he has a good plea but that his attorney did not then have in his possession the documents supporting the plea; that those documents were bills of lading which the defendant has succeeded in obtaining only since the judgment had been rendered.

McCall v. Patenaud, 24 Rev. Leg. 394.

INABILITY TO FURNISH COSTS.

A judgment obtained in default of appearance will be set aside on an application made one year subsequent to the entry of the judgment when it appears that the delay was due to the defendant's inability to secure the costs of the application.

RELIEF AGAINST.

The court will not relieve against a judgment by default obtained for want of prosecution after an appearance has been entered by counsel; nor is the absence of counsel from the jurisdiction when the case is called sufficient ground for such relief, particularly where the affidavit accompanying the petition does not disclose a well-founded defence on the merits.

Putnick v. Henry, 47 Que. S.C. 184.

SETTING ASIDE JUDGMENT BY DEFAULT — INEFFECTIVE SERVICE — LEAVE TO DEFEND—TERMS.

Defendants' manager, on being served with the statement of claim, was advised that the service was of no effect, as the proper party to be served would be the Insurance Inspector. He thereupon wrote to the plaintiff's solicitors informing them of the supposed mistake, and, having received no reply, believed that it was not necessary for him to do anything further. Plaintiff's solicitors signed interlocutory judgment in default of a defence and afterwards proceeded to trial of the action for assessment of plaintiff's fire loss without notice to the defendants, and final judgment was entered in the action for $526, and costs. As soon as defendants heard of the judgment they moved to set it aside and to be allowed to defend and shewed, as grounds of defence (1) that plaintiff had absolutely assigned his claim after the fire; (2) that the plaintiff's actual loss was only $189. Held, by the Court of Appeal, that the judgment should be set aside and the defendants allowed in to defend, but only upon payment to the plaintiff's solicitor of the plaintiff's costs subsequent to the service of the statement of claim, and paying into court the sum of $189 within ten days.

JURISDICTION — ABSENTEES — PROPERTY WITHIN.

Article 94, s. 4, C.C.P., gives jurisdiction over a defendant who has left his domicile in the province of Quebec or has never had any, when the cause of action did not originate in the district wherein he is summoned, only when the plaintiff proves that the defendant possess property therein. When judgment is obtained by default, in the above case, without such proof, the defendant, who has neither domicile nor property in the above-mentioned district, may have the judgment set aside by the Court of Review for want of jurisdiction.

Bank of B.N.A. v. Levy, 47 Que. S.C. 282. RELIEF AGAINST — DELAY — LEAVE TO SHEW PAYMENT.

MOTION TO SET ASIDE — LACHES.

Fussell v. Colman, 9 O.W.N. 108.

RELIEF AGAINST — OPPOSITION UNDER QUEBEC PRACTICE — ACTION TO ANNUL MARRIAGE.

A default judgment obtained by the husband in the Quebec Superior Court for annulment of his marriage may legally be abandoned by him on an opposition filed by the wife on her own behalf and a tierce opposition filed by her as tutrix to the infant child of the marriage; upon the filing of the désistement and its acceptance by the wife by inscribing for judgment thereon and obtaining acte thereof, the original judgment ceased to exist, where no affirmative declaration as to the wife's status was asked by the oppositions and nothing was thereby claimed, further than the cancellation of the original judgment.

Hébert v. Clouâtre, 15 D.L.R. 498, 45 Que. S.C. 239, 16 Que. P.R. 29, reversing on other grounds 6 D.L.R. 411, 41 Que. S.C. 241.

JUDGMENT BY DEFAULT — OPPOSITION TO — NOTICE TO OTHER PARTY — DEPOSIT — QUE. C.P. 1167, 1169, 1170.

Opposition to judgment being a way to provide against a judgment by default, the notice required by Practice r. 52 for all petitions, motions, and applications does not apply. If the opponent to judgment has only a belated knowledge of the facts alleged, he may on the fifteenth day after judgment, have his opposition issued and prove that he had in no way acquiesced in the judgment. Insufficiency of deposit is not a reason for the opposition to judgment being dismissed when the opponent at the hearing has reserved his right to complete his deposit.

Ryan v. Baie d'Urfe Heights, 16 Que. P.R. 103.

DEFAULT OF APPEARANCE — JUDGMENT BY DEFAULT — NULLITY — SETTING ASIDE.

Where a plaintiff proceeds by default, every step in the proceedings must be strictly complied with. This is a matter of strictissimi juris. Where something is required to be done before the plaintiff is entitled to enter judgment in default of appearance, that constitutes a condition precedent, the nonperformance of which vitiates any judgment which may be entered thereon. [Bank of Hamilton v. Baldwin, 28 O.L.R. 175, distinguished.] An application to set aside a judgment entered at the trial in default of appearance of the plaintiff need not be made to the Trial Judge and may properly be made to the local master. [Hamp-Adams v. Hall, [1911] 2 K.B. 942, followed.] If a defendant is required to file an appearance within a certain time with the "local registrar," when in fact there is no local registrar; failure to file an appearance with the clerk of the court is not sufficient to entitle the plaintiff to sign judgment on default and any judgment so signed is a nullity. The defendant, if he can show a defence which is prima facie good, is entitled to have such judgment set aside. [Smurthwaite v. Hannay [1894] A.C. 494 applied.] Lumber Manufacturers' Yards v. PROCEDURE—DELAY.

Delays of procedure are not generally of public order; they are only for the protection of the parties, and can be waived, if there is neither fraud nor collusion. An hypothecary creditor cannot maintain a petition for setting aside a judgment on the ground that the seizing creditor, who had caused the property seized to be sold by the sheriff, had obtained his judgment by default on proceedings irregular as to delays. Price v. Boyer, 26 Que. K.B. 73.

DEFAULT—REQUÊTE CIVILE.

A defendant may cause a judgment by default rendered against him after such service to be set aside when in fact he resides in the province. Although the remedy stated for this purpose is by petition for review, the court should recognize conclusions to the same effect in a proceeding entitled requête civile.

Carrier v. Dube, 51 Que. S.C. 528.

REQUÊTE CIVILE—INSCRIPTION EN FAUX.

An application to set aside a judgment can only be made to the court which rendered it. There can be no inscription en faux against a document under a private seal and therefore no abuse of jurisdiction on the part of the court which refuses such inscription.

Laroque v. Circuit Court, 17 Que. P.R. 446.

REQUÊTE CIVILE — ULTRA PETITA — JURISDICTION — SCHOOL TAXES.

A requête civile will be received when alleging among other grounds: (a) that the judgment rendered granted what was ultra petita since it was a condemnation pure and simple without allowing the party as permitted by the declaration the choice of abandoning the mortgaged immovable; (b) that an action for school taxes even accompanied by a demand for a declaration of a hypothec is within the exclusive competence of the Circuit Court.

School Commissioners of Hochelaga v. Belleau, 18 Que. P.R. 246.

(§ VII C—288)—SETTING ASIDE — EVIDENCE — ALLEGED PERJURY — ACTION DECIDED ON EVIDENCE OF APPLICANT.

An application to set aside a judgment on the ground of perjury on the part of one party's witnesses will not be granted where the merits of the action were decided on the evidence given by the party who makes the application.

REVOCATION OF JUDGMENT—MISTAKE.

There may be a petition in revocation of judgment, when the judgment was rendered through a misunderstanding between the attorneys of the parties, and it is not proven that another judgment on the merits could not be rendered.

D. PROCEDURE.

(§ VII D—290)—DEFAULT — THIRD PARTY—LEAVE TO DEFEND.

A third party brought into an action by notice served upon him by a defendant pursuant to r. 224 cannot, under r. 225, file a defence to this notice after the time allowed by rr. 182, 183 without the leave of the court or a judge. There is no provision in the rules for the defendant to sign interlocutory judgment against the third party for default in filing such defence; but, by the terms of r. 225, such third party, by default in filing a defence, is deemed to admit the validity of any judgment obtained or to be obtained against the defendant and his liability for the relief claimed against him.

REQUÊTE CIVILE — DEFAULT — DELAY.

Inscription en droit against a requête civile is an authorized procedure. The remedy by requête civile is not open to one who, being aware of the judgment rendered against him by default, allows the delays to pass without taking an opposition to judgment.

Molsons Bank v. Laframboise, 17 Que. P.R. 457.

REQUÊTE CIVILE.

A requête civile was presented to the court to revoke the judgment on a jury trial for the following reasons: (1) That the jury panel was illegally formed which fact was not known to the defendants at the time. (2) There was no proof that notice of action was given as required by law. (3) That certain objections were not entered on the minutes. (4) That a juror was related to the plaintiff. (5) That the plaintiff and his relations had communicated with the jury during the trial. (6) That the verdict was for a round sum. (7) Improper admission of evidence. The de-defendants claimed that a new trial was not an adequate remedy as the application would have to be supported by affidavits which were not admissible under art. 497 C.C.P.:—Held that said article did not apply to these grounds for relief; that a new trial was an adequate remedy; and that the requête civile could not be received. Held, also, that the Court of Appeal may order the cross-examination of persons making affidavits in support of the application for a new trial.

Normandin v. Montreal Street R. Co., 14 Que. P.R. 248.

E. TIME.

(§ VII E—295)—RELIEF AGAINST — REHEARING—PROCEDURE—DELAY.

More delay where not intentional or wilful is not an answer to an application to set aside a judgment on the merits unless irreparable wrong will be done. [Hanson v. Pearson, 3 Terr. L.R. 199; Regina Trading Co. v. Godwin, 7 W.L.R. 651, and Vinall v. DePass, [1892] A.C. 90, applied.]

APPLICATION TO SET ASIDE — LEAVE TO DEFEND—DELAY.

Where the entry of judgment is regular an application to set it aside and for leave to defend should be made as soon as possible after the judgment came to the defendant's knowledge, though some delay is not unnecessarily fatal to the application if the parties can be restored to their former position.

PRACTICE — DEFAULT — OPENING UP — DELAY.

On an application to open up, on the merits, a default judgment regularly entered, a month's unexplained delay is no answer where it appeared that the delay was not wilful and that no irreparable injury was shown.

FRAUD — NEW EVIDENCE — SEDUCTION — RESEMBLANCE OF CHILD.

In an action for seduction, a verdict and judgment were given for the plaintiffs, whose adopted daughter was the girl seduced. This was based on the testimony of the girl, who afterwards discredited her own testimony at the trial, and by affidavit denied that the defendant was the father of her child, ascribing the paternity to the male plaintiff. Fortified with this and other affidavits, the defendant made a motion, under r. 523, to open up the judgment, on the grounds of fraud, surprise, and the discovery of new evidence. The motion was dismissed upon the merits. Semble, that no court would open up a judgment on the ground that the child of a girl seduced resembled some one other than the defendant who had been found guilty.

(§ I A—1) — MALICIOUS PUBLICATION — LIABILITY—DAMAGES.

One who maliciously announces a judicial sale by others than the officer who, by law, is charged with this duty, in other places than that or those prescribed by C.C.P., is responsible in damages.

Gélinas v. Gerbeau, 53 Que. S.C. 294.

(§ I A—2) — TIME — OPPORTUNITY FOR CONTEMPLATING PURCHASERS TO INSPECT, NECESSITY OF.

In fixing a date for the judicial sale of property by a Master in the Ordinary, regard should be had to the nature of the property, and where it appears that the property in question cannot properly be inspected by prospective purchasers before the date set for the sale, the court should order the date of sale postponed to such later time as would afford an opportunity for inspection to contemplating buyers.

Leckie v. Marshall, 10 D.L.R. 785, 4 O.W.N. 913, 24 O.W.R. 513, reversing 9 D.L.R. 383, 24 O.W.R. 92.

NOTICES—DESCRIPTION.

It is not necessary in the judicial sale of an immovable for the notice of the sheriff to contain the civic numbers, nor any other description than the official cadastral numbers, but if the civic numbers are given they should be exact; if not the sale is void if the purchaser has been led into error.

Décarie v. Handfield, 51 Que. S.C. 277.

(§ I A—4) — BIDS AND BIDDING — RESERVED BIDS—PRACTICE.

A judicial sale under the practice should be subject to a reserved bid, in order to protect the parties from having their interests sacrificed, and this principle is especially applicable where the security is of a variable nature, for instance, mining properties involving some hundreds of thousands of dollars, and this although there may already have been abortive efforts to sell under reserved bid conditions.

Leckie v. Marshall, 10 D.L.R. 785, 4 O.W.N. 913, 24 O.W.R. 513, reversing 9 D.L.R. 383, 24 O.W.R. 92.

(§ II A—15)—ATTACKING VALIDITY — ESTOPPEL.

Sabeans v. Edwards, 32 D.L.R. 569, 50 N.S.R. 424.

SALE OF MINERAL CLAIMS UNDER EXECUTION — VALIDITY OF BIDS.

The sale by the sheriff under execution of a mineral claim under the Mining Act, R.S.B.C., c. 157, is not invalid because the purchaser was not the holder of a free miner certificate at the time of making his bid at the sheriff's sale, if he had a certificate at the later date when the sheriff made a bill of sale of the claim to him; the court will uphold sheriff's sales bona fide made notwithstanding mere irregularities.

(§ II A—16)—EFFECT.

The judgment on an application to enforce the statutory lien created pursuant to s. 35 of the Ontario Judicature Act in respect of an alimony judgment should provide for sale subject to prior incumbrancers unless the holders of these consent to sale free from their claims; subsequent incumbrancers must also be notified and allowed to prove their claims.

Abbott v. Abbott, 1 D.L.R. 697, 3 O.W.N. 683, 21 O.W.R. 281.

The sale by judicial order of two adjoining parcels of land "with a common right of way between them" has the same effect as a sale by the execution debtor since the plaintiff exercises the latter's rights and acts as his agent and the sheriff is only the ministerial officer, as a notary would be in a sale by private contract, therefore the adjudication under the above conditions constitute a servitude of passage by destination of the head of the family all the essential elements required by art. 551 C.C. being present.

Rosaire v. G.T.R. Co., 42 Que. S.C. 517.

(§ II A—19)—VOID SALE — INSUFFICIENT NOTICE.

A judicial sale of moveables made with a single notice in English and one in French on Dec. 27, when the notice of sale was only posted in the sheriff's office on Dec. 19, is illegal and void, and confers no title of ownership upon the purchaser.

Clement v. Déval, 47 Que. S.C. 196.

B. THE DEED.

(§ II B—21)—OF WORKSHOP AND ACCESSORIES — SUBSEQUENT SEIZURE OF MOVABLE EFFECTS — IRREGULARITIES — SEIZING PARTY BECOMING PURCHASER—QUE. C.P. 668.

A judicial sale, made en bloc, of a workshop or plant with all its working stock and implements, described in the return of seizure and in the sheriff's deed of sale in the widest way, includes the real properties by nature, the real properties by destination, and also the movable effects required to operate the plant. Therefore, a subsequent seizure made on those latter effects, as yet being the seized party's property, is made super non domino, and is therefore void. The second seizing party, who is sued on an action to annul the seizure, cannot plead against the purchaser the irregularity of the first seizure; he can, at the most, only take a direct action to have it cancelled. When a seizure and execution is made as above described, the distraction based on a release or an opposition for one of the buildings seized, does not apply to the movable effects therein contained. A seizing party who, at the sale of the seized stock, himself becomes purchaser, is not allowed, in an action to annul the seizure, to take advantage of C.C.P., 668.

Donaghy v. O'Caïn, 23 Que. K.B. 266.

III. Purchasers; their rights and duties.

A. IN GENERAL.

(§ III A—25) — RECEIVER'S SALE — CREDIT EMPLOYER — CLAIMS AGAINST ESTATE — NOTICE—KNOWLEDGE.

The interest of C. in the estate of his wife, under his wife's will, and in the estate of her father, A. under an appointment made by his wife, were sold by a receiver, under order of the court, to satisfy a judgment obtained by H. against C. (See 40

N.S.R. 229.) At the time of the sale C. was indebted to the estate of A. for advances obtained by him from the executrix either upon insufficient security or without security, and he was indebted to the estate of his wife for the proceeds of bank stock of which he had obtained possession as guardian of his infant children and which he had converted to his own use. Held, that the purchaser under order of the court of the equitable interests of C., was in no better position than C. himself would have been and must take the interests assigned to him as purchaser subject to the claims against them; that the maxim caveat emptor applied; that the filing of a schedule of accounts, pursuant to the order of the court, for the purpose of giving information to intending purchasers, and to which they were referred, disclosing the existence of claims against C., constituted means of knowledge of which the purchaser at the sale must be taken to have had notice; that the order for sale being made in a matter to which she was not a party, the executrix of A. was not bound by an error in the order, and in the deed made to the purchaser at the sale, as to the extent of C.'s interest. And further, for the reason that the purchaser at the sale, before paying his money and before receiving his deed, had notice as to the real extent of C.'s interest.

Grey v. Anderson, 50 N.S.R. 399.

SALE OF BOOK DEBTS.

A sale en bloc, by the Curator to the property of an insolvent, of the latter's book debts does not give the purchaser a right to recover debts due the insolvent which are not carried on the books.

Kouri v. C.P.R. Co., 44 Que. S.C. 5.

SALE UNDER EXECUTION.

Without prejudice to the recourse of the party aggrieved against the seizing creditor and those acting on his behalf, no demand to annul or rescind a sale of movables under execution, can be received against a purchaser who has paid the price, saving the case of fraud or collusion. The purchaser of effects, at a judicial sale, has an opposition, tierce opposition, against a judgment maintaining an attachment in re-liquidation of the same effects between a creditor and his debtor to which he was not a party.

Elliott v. Crombie, 51 Que. S.C. 191.

SALE OF LAND BY COURT — DEPOSIT — FORFEITURE OF.

A deposit serves two purposes, if the purchase is carried out, it goes against the purchase money, but its primary purpose is this, it is a guarantee that the purchaser means business. Purchasers at court sales should be given to understand that, generally speaking, the deposit is required to be paid as an earnest to bind the bargain and that it is only in the event of the completion of the sale that they can benefit by such payment.

Chaffrey v. Robertson, 7 W.W.R. 829.
Can. Dig.—85.

(§ III A—26)—SALE UNDER EXECUTION—COVENANT OF TITLE — LIABILITY OF SHERIFF TO PURCHASER.

Although a sheriff is not required to covenant for good title to a purchaser in a sale under execution, still, where in the absence of fraud or mistake a covenant of such effect and for indemnity to the purchaser is entered into by the sheriff in his bill of sale to the articles sold, he cannot be relieved from liability thereunder where the title of the purchaser failed because of an outstanding mortgage.

Sharp v. Ingles, 23 D.L.R. 636, 21 B.C.R. 584, 8 W.W.R. 1325, 32 W.L.R. 150.

(§ III A—27)—SHERIFF'S SALE — FAILURE OF TITLE—RECOURSE.

A purchaser at a sheriff's sale, who is unable to obtain possession of lots he purchased on account of an erroneous survey of the land, has no recourse for the purchase price against one who prosecuted the execution in subrogation to the rights of an attaching creditor.

U.S. Fidelity & Guarantee Co. v. Pharand 26 D.L.R. 264, 24 Que. K.B. 492, 22 Rev. de Jur. 153.

SHERIFF'S DEED — OPPOSITION A FIN DE CHARGE.

When the sheriff's deed erroneously mentions charges contrary to those decreed by a judgment upon an opposition a fin de charge, neither party can invoke rights other than those resulting from the judgment; where it is rendered upon an opposition a fin de charge founded upon a marriage contract, it cannot give further rights to the wife than those which are contained in the marriage contract.

Hope v. Leroux, 25 Que. K.B. 130.

(§ III A—28)—PROTECTION AGAINST EQUITIES.

A transfer of assets in a liquidation proceedings under a warranty "free from incumbrances" applies only to the mortgage on the buildings and liens on the stock, but not to an unsatisfied account.

Dominion Linen Mfg. Co. v. Langley, 46 Can. S.C.R. 633, affirming 19 O.W.R. 648.

(§ III A—29)—FORECLOSURE SALE — UNPAID VENDOR PURCHASING AT SALE — EFFECT ON DEFICIENCY JUDGMENT.

A deficiency judgment obtained in a foreclosure proceeding invalidly conducted by permitting the unpaid vendor to bid at the sale, and upon whose bid the sale of the property is confirmed at an upset price, is invalid and unenforceable against the guarantor of the defaulting purchaser.

LEAVE TO PLAINTIFF TO BID.

The objection to allowing a person who has the conduct of a sale to bid disappears when the property is sold at an upset price instead of subject to a reserve bid. Review of cases in which party with conduct of sale was allowed to bid.

Griessbach v. Hogan, 8 W.W.R. 356.

B. TITLE ACQUIRED.

(§ III B-30) — SHERIFF'S DEED — CONVEYANCE OF LARGER ESTATE THAN POSSESSED BY JUDGMENT — DEBTOR — PRESCRIPTION — ART. 2251, C.C.P.Z. — COSTS.

Under the procedure of the Province of Quebec, a deed after seizure and sale only conveys the title at the time of the adjudication; and if it purports to convey a parcel of land, not in the possession of the judgment-debtor at such time, the title to that parcel does not pass, and the prescription of 10 years mentioned in art. 2251 C.C.P. cannot be invoked.

The King v. Ross, 15 Can. Ex. 33.

MISDESCRIPTION OF LAND.

Where in a judicial sale, the lots sold were described as being "Nos. 1, 3, 4 North 3rd range of the township of Wolfe," whereas the description of the official cadastre was "Nos. 1b, 1c, 2b, 3a and the north part of No. 4," the sale is illegal and conveys no title, and the owner is entitled to an order for the cancellation of the registration of the sale. The description, in the notice of sale, "north part of lot No. 4," is insufficient in that no information was given as to the particular portion of the lot to be sold.

Johnson v. Townshend, 52 Que. S.C. 392.

OF MOVABLES — PURCHASE — DELAY IN PAYMENT OF PRICE — THIRD OWNER — ACTION FOR CANCELLATION — RECLAIMING — C.C. ARTS. 1487, 1568, 2005 — C.C.P. ARTS. 236, 605, 608.

The purchaser of chattels, in a judicial sale, becomes owner from the moment of the purchase, even though the objects sold are not delivered then, nor the price paid at once. A third party, owner of the chattels sold by judicial sale because he has omitted to distrain them from the judgment, has no action to reclaim them against the purchaser in the absence of fraud or collusion, for the sole reason that the latter has not immediately paid the purchase price. No oral evidence can be admitted to contradict a report of a bailiff, unless the party who offers this evidence has contested the report by a motion conforming to art. 236, C.C.P.

Brochu v. Brochu, 55 Que. S.C. 327.

SALE OF ANOTHER'S PROPERTY — JUDICIAL SALE — FOR MUNICIPAL TAXES — SALE SUPER NON DOMINO — NEGLIGENT ACQUISITION — CONCLUSION — RIGHT OF PURCHASER — REMOTE AND INDIRECT DAMAGES — AMENDMENT — COSTS — C.C. ARTS. 1487, 1492, 1521, 1535, 2098 — C.C.P. ARTS. 516, 522.

The principles which govern the sale of another's property do not apply to a sale by a person, who has purchased land from the sheriff at a sale for municipal taxes. This sale cannot be considered as not existing although it is tainted with defects. It presents all its effects as long as it is not annulled. Although sales of land by the sheriff for municipal taxes must be made as all other super domino and super possidente, there is always this fundamental difference that in a debt for municipal taxes it is the immovable which is taxed and not the owner or apparent possessor, and it is against the immovable that proceedings are taken and not against those who hold it, so, in a sale of this kind, if the true owner has knowledge of the facts, and does not protest or exercise the right of redemption given him by the Act, he acquiesces in the decree by his silence, and he who buys the lands from the purchaser cannot do it for him, and pretend that as the sale was void, he has a right to damages against the vendor. At all times in order to protect himself, this subsequent purchaser can refuse to pay the principal due by virtue of art. 1535, C.C. and if it is disputed he can name his vendor on a guarantee. He can, also, according to art. 1521, C.C., ask for a decision or the validity of the sale. The damages claimed for the increase in value brought to the land by the plaintiff on account of improvements made by him in the circumstances set out are not such as could have been foreseen at the time of the contract, and do not proceed necessarily and directly from its execution. When an action for damages is based on the refusal of the defendant to transfer a title of ownership in land according to an agreement for sale, a motion to amend the issues of the writ in order to add a petition for cancellation of the agreement for sale will be refused if an action in guarantee has been commenced by the defendant and is contested, since the amendment asked for would necessitate the amendment of the action of the guarantee, a new defence, and would entail costs which could not be fixed nor adjudged at once.

Perrault v. Chevalier and Chevalier v. Montreal, 55 Que. S.C. 92.

IV. Confirmation; setting aside; resale.

(§ IV-35)—PETITION TO ANNUL—NOTICE—PRESENTATION.

Where at the end of a petition to annul a decree there is a notice of presentation to the judge sitting for a certain district or in his absence to the prothonotary for the said court, and the petition is properly served on the attorney for the other party, it is properly presented if on the day fixed it is, in the absence of the judge, presented to the prothonotary who marks it "filed."

James Bay & E.R. Co. v. Bernard, 23 D.L.R. 701, 24 Que. K.B. 6.

SHERIFF'S SALE—FALSE BIDDING—RES JUDICATA—SERVICE.

There is res judicata in an opposition made by a purchaser to a resale of an immovable for false bidding when he has already contested the petition for the resale on the same grounds as those alleged in his opposition, except that in the first case, in his conclusions, he only reserved his right to ask the nullity of the sheriff's sale, and in the second one, he asked that nullity. An application to set aside a sheriff's sale must be served on all parties interested.

Trust & Loan Co. v. Courville, 24 Rev. Leg. 489.

CANCELLING A JUDICIAL SALE—UNDERPRICED SALE—FRAUD—MOVES TO SET ASIDE THE BIDDERS—AWARD TO THE DISTRAINING CREDITOR, C.C. ARTS. 993, 1032, C.P., ARTS. 637, 638.

There is a means to annul a judicial sale of chattels when it is in fact a fraud on the creditors. The value of the goods sold, the cheapness of the award, the secrecy surrounding the sale, the systematic luring away of the bidders, the hurry in executing the sale, the removal of part of the goods seized from one place to another without permission from the judge, the award to the distrainer himself, are all circumstances establishing the fraud and the deceit. When the distrainer himself obtains the award of the seized goods, he is responsible to the party injured by the fraud and deceit which accompanies the sale and determines the nullity.

Gruninger v. Bertrand & Provencher, 28 Que. K.B. 1.

PETITION TO ANNUL—VACATING FOR DEFAULT.

The delays to present a petition in nullity of a sheriff's sale reckon only from the payment of the adjudication which makes it perfect. The only remedy to force the "adjudicataire" to pay the purchase price is by way of "folle enchere." Plaintiff has not the alternative of having the sale vacated for want of payment.

Westmount v. Evans, 15 Que. P.R. 96.

PARTITION—INCOMPETENT PERSONS—RESTITUTION.

If a judicial partition and auction sale between major and minor, or interdict, have not been legally made, owing to the omission of essential formalities, the minor or interdict can obtain restitution against such contract, but they are bound to give back what they received and they cannot procure a new partition and a new auction sale without making such offer. Very special and extraordinary facts are required to justify the judgment being treated as radically null, when not attacked by one of the methods given by law to have such judgment set aside and obtain the annulment of the judicial contract which might have resulted from it.

Archambault v. Maher, 25 Que. K.B. 436.

SHERIFF'S SALE—DELAY.

A petition to set aside an order for a sheriff's sale, made more than 2 months after the sale, will be dismissed on inscription en droit as barred and not properly in court.

Where a purchaser at a judicial sale has paid a deposit on purchase-money into court in conformity with the conditions of sale in a partition action, but the sale goes off without any fault on the purchaser's part, the interest, earned thereon and credited to the court ledger account of the funds in that action while the money was in court, belongs to the purchaser to be repaid to him with his deposit.

The owner of property seized under writ of saisie-gagerie and subsequently sold with other property assigned by the curator of defendant's estate, has a right to claim the price by privilege if the other property has produced an amount sufficient to pay the seizing creditor in full. I. Right to trial by.

A. IN GENERAL.

(§ I A-1)—NATURE OF RIGHT.

The right to a trial by jury is a procedural not a substantive right, and may be restricted by rules of court made under general statutory authority.

PERSONAL INJURY ACTIONS.

Rules 172, 173, 176 (Judicature Ord., Alta.) are not intended to leave the questions of jury or no jury to the arbitrary discretion or prejudice of the Trial Judge or Master, but each case must be considered on its own merits, as to the character of the action, the amount involved, with special regard as to whether the case is of a class which would traditionally be tried without a jury; but such discretion is exercised on a wrong principle when the judge or Master, while considering an application for a jury trial of an action for damages for personal injuries, is influenced by an opinion, that it is more for the interests of the administration of justice that all cases should be tried by a judge alone, and thus refusing a jury trial in an action where one should be granted.

ACTION TO SET ASIDE LEASE—POSTPONEMENT OF TRIAL PENDING PROPOSED APPEAL, WHEN REFUSED.

Where it seems clear that an order directing the trial of an action to set aside a lease he had without a jury was rightly made, the court will exercise its discretion by refusing an application to postpone the trial pending a proposed appeal from such order. [Pearson v. Dublin, [1907] A.C. 351, distinguished.]

THIRD TRIAL—NEW TRIAL BY JUDGE AT REQUEST OF PARTY GIVING JURY NOTICE.

On granting a new trial of a negligence action which has been twice tried by jury, the new trial should also be by jury irrespective of the wish of the party who gave the jury notice to have the third trial without a jury, if a fair jury trial is probable in the county in which the venue is laid and the case is one of a nature that is preferably tried by a jury.

ORDER REFUSING—APPEAL.

An order refusing a jury trial is an exercise of discretion, and when it has been based on a proper principle and in pursuance of a reasoned opinion, it should not be reversed on appeal.

DEATH OF HUSBAND—WIDOW'S ACTION.

The injuries caused to a woman by the death of her husband are not personal injuries; they are injuries in respect to her means of subsistence. Where the widow brings an action claiming damages for the death of her husband by negligence she is not entitled to a trial by jury.

Robinson v. Montreal Tramways Co., 15 Que. P.R. 77.

B. WHEN RIGHT EXISTS.

(§ I B-5)—WHEN RIGHT EXISTS—NOTICE REQUIRING JURY AFTER NONJURY NOTICE.

Where the plaintiff gave a nonjury notice of trial in a libel action that fact did not prevent the defendant, upon complying with the provisions of s. 50 of the Judicature Act (that is, upon filing with the local registrar and leaving with the solicitor of the other party at least 15 days before the day fixed for trial a notice demanding a jury), from having the issues of fact tried and determined by a judge with a jury. The decision of the Master in Chambers in MacBeth v. Flood, 5 W.W.R. 1271, that s. 50 of the Judicature Act is qualified by r. 239 of the Rules of Court, was disagreed with, and it was held that the provision in that rule requiring 20 days' notice of trial to be given could not override the plain provisions of s. 50 of the Judicature Act requiring only 15 days' notice.

Tadman v. Moose Jaw News, 6 W.W.R. 1122.

(§ I B-6)—REFEREE'S INTERLOCUTORY ORDER FOR JURY.

The plaintiff is not precluded from applying for an interlocutory order for a trial by jury by reason of the service of a notice of trial on him by the defendant for a nonjury sittings of the court, and the setting down of the case accordingly; such setting down does not fix the forum so as to prevent a jury being had except upon the Trial Judge's order. The referee in Chambers exercising certain judicial authority pursuant to the Manitoba King's Bench Act has the power to make an order granting a trial before a jury and setting aside the notice of trial served for a non-jury sittings.

NOTICE OF TRIAL BY JURY—EXTENSION OF TIME.

In an action for libel, notice of trial without a jury was served on defendants on the 11th of May, and on the 6th of June defendants gave notice under O. 36, r. 2 of an application for an order extending the time for giving notice of trial before a judge and a common jury. The cause of the delay in giving this latter notice having been due to an oversight of the solicitor's clerk, the time should have been extended.

Clarke v. Ford-McConnell, 16 B.C.R. 344.

(§ 1 B-8)—ORDER FOR TRIAL BY—APPEAL FROM REFEREE—DISCRETIONARY ORDER.

Hewitt v. Hudson's Bay Co., 20 Man. L.R. 320, 17 W.L.R. 61.

ORDER FOR TRIAL BY JURY MADE SUBSEQUENT TO ORDER SETTING DOWN FOR TRIAL—IRREGULARITY—WAIVER.

An order granting the jury trial was held to have been regularly granted, but even if not, held, also, that advantage could not be taken of the irregularity by the defendant after the case had been tried and the verdict of the jury given.

White v. G.T.P.R. Co., 2 A.L.R. 522. [Reversed upon other grounds, 43 Can. S.C.R. 627.]

(§ 1 B-10)—IN CIVIL ACTIONS AND PROCEEDINGS.

It is discretionary, and not a matter of right, to order a trial by jury in cases of a class not specially designated for jury trial under the Manitoba King's Bench Act, R.S.M. 1902, c. 40, s. 59, where that statute provides that cases not so designated shall be tried by a judge without a jury "unless otherwise ordered by a judge." Where a plaintiff satisfies the court by his material on a motion for a trial by jury that the personal injuries he suffered by being hit by something falling from defendant's building were of a serious character, an order for trial with a jury should be made under s. 59, without requiring an affidavit also from the plaintiff's physician and thereby submitting the physician to cross-examination thereon before the trial.

Navarro v. Radford Wright Co., 8 D.L.R. 253, 22 Man. L.R. 730, 22 W.L.R. 665, 3 W.W.R. 457.

Where the option for a trial by jury should be made within 3 days after issue joined (423 C.C.P.) and the defendant after filing a plea of general denial is subsequently allowed to file a special detailed plea, then the plaintiff may move for a trial by jury on such special plea, although he did not do so on the plea of general denial.

C.N.R. Co. v. Levine, 4 D.L.R. 233, 21 Que. K.B. 521.

STATUTORY RIGHT—JOINDER OF SEVERAL CAUSES OF ACTION.

Where a statement of claim sets up several causes of action properly joined, one of which is akin to or within the general principles of the classes of actions which under s. 59 of the King's Bench Act, R.S.M. 1902, c. 40, are to be tried by a jury, the court will direct trial of the whole case to be with a jury. [Griffiths v. Winnipeg Electric R. Co., 16 Man. L.R. 512, applied.]

PARENT'S ACTION ON BEHALF OF CHILD—JOINING CLAIM IN OWN RIGHT—QUEBEC PRACTICE.

An action by a father as tutor for his minor child for injuries sustained by the latter as the result of the negligence of a railway company, as well as on the parent's own behalf for money expended in caring for the child and for the loss of the child's services, is one "for the recovery of damages resulting from personal wrongs" which may, in the Province of Quebec, be tried by jury, under s. 26, of c. 83, C.S.L.C. 1860.

Steel v. C.P.R. Co., 14 D.L.R. 287, 15 Que. P.R. 215, 23 Que. K.B. 36.

EQUITABLE CLAIM—SUBSIDIARY MONEY DEMAND.

An action to set aside on the ground of fraud a transfer of land, in which no claim is made for possession, is not an action "for recovery of real property" and the plaintiff is not entitled to a jury trial, although a claim is made therein for a money demand where the latter claim is merely incidental to the main issue.

NEW BRUNSWICK RULES.

Under the New Brunswick rules of practice, the right is preserved to both parties to a jury for the trial of the issues in any action in the King's Bench Division except in the case covered by order 30, r. 4, where the matter to be determined is likely to require "prolonged examination of documents or accounts or any scientific investigation."

The judge should not, save with the consent of both parties, direct trial without jury except in the case covered by r. 4, but when such order has been made, neither party can obtain a jury by simply giving notice under r. 5 (1) while such order remains in force and unrescinded.

PERSONAL INJURY ACTION.

Where the injury is serious and the damage in case of success would be substantial, in a negligence action for damages for personal injuries, an order for a jury trial is properly made under the Manitoba King's Bench Act, R.S.M. 1902, s. 59. IN CIVIL CASES—IN QUEBEC.

It is never too late, during the pendency of the case, to raise the question whether or not the jury has jurisdiction to pronounce upon the merits of the case, even if a judgment has been given praying acts of the option for jury trial. Expenses made by plaintiff for the board and lodging of his men and horses and salary of his men, in relation to said contract, are also of a commercial nature, and may be recovered in a case tried by a jury. Damages alleged to have been suffered by false misrepresentation and based upon a written contract for the manufacture of logs are of a commercial nature and subject to trial by jury.

Delisle v. Menier, 15 Que. P.R. 92.

(§ I B—11)—ON DEFAULT.

British Columbia Supreme Court, r. 967, 1906, empowering the Court or Judge, save as otherwise provided by the rules or any Act, to enlarge or abridge the time appointed by these rules for doing any act or taking any proceeding upon such terms (if any) as the justice of the case may require and permitting any enlargement to be ordered through the application for the same is not made until after the expiration of the time appointed or allowed, gives a judge the power to extend the time for serving a jury notice under r. 430, 1906, as amended 1908, which provides that in any other cause or matter than those in which the court or judge might direct the trial without a jury, upon the application within 4 days after notice has been given to any party thereto for a trial with a jury an order shall be made accordingly.

ON DEFAULT.

A jury trial cannot be had in a default or ex parte case.

Kertland v. Montreal Tramways Co., 16 Que. P.R. 260.

(§ I B—14) — PERSONAL WRONGS — LORD CAMPBELL'S ACT.

The right of action, under art. 1056 C.C. (Que.) (Lord Campbell's Act), is given to dependents of a person whose death is caused by the delict or quasi-delict (offences or quasi-offences), is an action resulting from "personal wrongs" within the meaning of art. 421, C.C.P., in which there may be a trial by a jury.

LORD CAMPBELL'S ACT.

Section 3 of the Act respecting Compensation to Families of Persons Killed by Accident, R.S.M. 1902, c. 31, contemplates that an action by a representative of a person killed by accident against the person charged with negligence may be tried by a jury, and if a jury trial would have been ordered in case the person injured had brought the action, then the order should not be refused because the person died and the personal representative brings the action.

Marion v. Winnipeg Electric R. Co., 21 Man. L.R. 757.

TRIAL BY JURY, ART. 1056, QUE. C.C.—"PERSONAL WRONGS"—DEATH BY WRONGFUL ACT.

The damages which may be claimed under art. 1056, C.C. (Que.) from the person responsible, by the widow of the victim of an offence or quasi-offence, are those which result from personal wrongs, within the meaning of art. 421. Accordingly, the plaintiff, in an action to recover these, may claim a trial by jury.

Robinson v. Montreal Street R. Co., 23 Que. K.B. 60.

(§ I B—15)—RIGHT TO—IN ACTION OF EQUITABLE NATURE—DISCRETION OF TRIAL JUDGE.

Whether a jury may be had for the trial of a case of an equitable nature, rests in the discretion of the judge hearing an application to strike out the jury notice. [Bryans v. Moffat, 15 O.L.R. 220, 223; Bisset v. Knights of the Maccabees, 3 D.L.R. 714, followed.]

Kelly v. McKenzie, 11 D.L.R. 824, 4 O.W. N. 1412, 24 O.W.R. 711.

EQUITABLE ACTION—RESCISSION.

Where the gist of an action is for equitable relief to set aside documents on the ground of fraud, there is no right to a trial by jury.

Racey v. International Harvester Co., 32 D.L.R. 131, [1917] 1 W.W.R. 606, 9 S.L.R. 392.

Except in the classes of cases specified in r. 172 (Alta.) no litigant has a prima facie right to a trial by jury. The interest of justice should govern the discretion as to the granting or refusing the right. The fact that under the old practice a jury would have been granted or under the English practice a jury would be granted is not in itself sufficient ground for directing a jury trial under the present rules, although it is a fact which should be kept in view. In an action for specific performance of an agreement to sell a growing crop and for an injunction and receiver, there being no alternative claim for damages, held, on an application by the defendant for a jury, that there should be a trial by jury upon the issue only whether there was an oral agreement such as the plaintiffs alleged.

(§ I B—17)—INJUNCTION.

The plaintiff in an action for damages for breach of an agreement to supply water for domestic and irrigation purposes, and for a mandatory injunction to compel performance thereof, is not entitled upon notice to a jury, under B.C. Rules, 1906, marginal rr. 426-432.

McArthur v. Rogers, 2 D.L.R. 347, 17 B.C.R. 47.

(§ I B—18)—WILLS.

Whether a jury will be granted in a contest of the probate of a will transferred from the Surrogate Court to the High Court, is a matter within the discretion of the latter court or a judge thereof, under ss. 22, 35, of c. 59, R.S.O. 1897, as there is no vested or absolute right to have such an issue tried by jury.

(§ I B—20)—IN CRIMINAL PROSECUTIONS
AND PROCEEDINGS.

The Cr. Code does not prescribe that an accused can elect to be tried without a jury when without a preliminary inquiry, or a committal, or an admission to bail, a bill of indictment has been preferred against him by the Crown Attorney with the written consent of a judge of a court of criminal jurisdiction. [The King v. Wener, 6 Can. Cr. Cas. 406, followed.] If no election has been made before an indictment is returned founded on the facts disclosed by the depositions taken at the preliminary inquiry, the accused has no statutory right to demand a trial before a Judge of Sessions without a jury and avoid a trial on the indictment. [The King v. Wener, 6 Can. Cr. Cas. 406; R. v. Thompson, 14 Can. Cr. Cas. 27, 17 Man. L.R. 608, dissented from.]

C. LOSS OR WAIVER OF RIGHT.

(§ I C—25)—WANT OF NOTICE—AMENDMENT—FAIR TRIAL—NEWSPAPER COMMENT.

The failure to give notice of an election to a trial by jury in accordance with a rule of court (r. 239 Sask.), which was promulgated shortly before the filing of the pleadings of which counsel had no knowledge, is not fatal to the claim of such right and may be cured by amendment; nor is such right affected because of newspaper comment upon the action the statements whereof not being prejudicial to a fair trial of the action by a jury.

PLACING CASE ON NONJURY TRIAL LIST.

McConnell v. Winnipeg Electric R. Co., 11 D.L.R. 837, 23 Man. L.R. 23, 23 W.L.R. 325.

When the statement of defence has been amended, an action is not at issue, under r. 301 of the King's Bench Act, until the expiration of 10 days from the delivery of the amended statement of defence and an application for a special jury may, under s. 60 of the Jury Act, be made within 6 days after the expiration of such 10 days. *Brown v. Union Machine Co. v. Can. Flax Mills, 10 O.W.N. 260.

NOTICE—PAYMENT OF FEES—EXTENSION OF TIME—FINAL JUDGMENT.

The pronouncement and entry of final judgment in an action terminates all interlocutory motions. A judge in chambers, on an application of the defendant to strike out a jury notice for nonpayment into court, of jury fees within the prescribed time enlarged the time for payment in and dismissed the application. On appeal, held that r. 239, which says that the jury notice shall be void unless the fees are paid into court within the prescribed time, is to be read with rr. 704, 747, and that failure to pay the jury fees within such prescribed time does not deprive the plaintiff of his right to a jury, but that a judge has power to enlarge the time and make good the proceedings under the 2 latter rules. Held, that rr. 704, 747 had no application to the payment into court under r. 239, and that the plaintiff having failed to pay the jury fees into court within the prescribed time, his jury notice was, under r. 239, void, and there was no power in a judge to revive it.

Andrews v. C.N.R. Co., 11 S.L.R. 203, [1918] 2 W.W.R. 331, affirming [1918] 1 W.W.R. 460.

DEPOSIT—FORFEITURE—HOLIDAY.

If the delay of 30 days to proceed to a trial by jury, mentioned in art. 442, C.C.P., expires on a holiday, it is continued in full force until the next day. When this delay ends on April 9, which falls on Easter Monday, a holiday, a motion to fix the day of trial and to choose the jury, notice served April 10 and presented April 12 is a valid proceeding which interrupts the forfeiture of the right. Default in making the deposit required by art. 434, C.C.P., within the delay allowed by art. 442, is not sufficient to cause the loss of right to a trial by jury.

Montreal Tramways Co. v. Dougan, 27 Que. K.B. 279.

FAILURE TO PLEAD.

A plaintiff who has only delayed his option for a jury trial, in order to permit the defendant to reply to an answer containing new facts has not lost his right to oppose a trial by jury.

Mathys v. Factories Ins. Co., 20 Que. P.R. 287.

ACTION IN WARRANTY.

A plaintiff who, by his declaration, has chosen a jury trial, does not lose that right because the defendant has called in warranty a third party; and, although the action in warranty is not subject to a jury trial, he also obtained the joinder of the action in warranty with the principal action.

Mercier v. Montreal Tramways Co., 19 Que. P.R. 15.

FAILURE TO DEMAND.

A party who does not proceed with his demand for a trial by jury within the 30 days which follow the date of the judgment determining the facts is entirely barred of his right to a jury trial.

Bertrand v. Canadian Sand & Gravel Co., 18 Que. P.R. 296.

To avoid being deprived of his right to a trial by jury, the party who has obtained it must within 30 days after the time issue was joined, take not only some but all of the proceedings necessary to bring his case to trial. Otherwise an inscription at enquete and merits by the adverse party will be maintained. [Landrieux and Heard, 12 Que. P.R. 198, followed.]

Cianfagna v. Atlantic, Quebec & Western R. Co., 13 Que. P.R. 117.

If an amended defence is filed according to a previous agreement of the parties, no option for a jury trial can then be made, when there is already in the record an inscription for enquete and merits.

C.N.R. and Levine, 13 Que. P.R. 417.

TRIAL—PLAINTIFF DERIVING HIMSELF OF RIGHT TO JURY TRIAL.

In an action for damages for breach of warranty, defendant set the action down for trial, and on application to the registrar a date was fixed for trial. On motion by plaintiff to postpone the trial, the referee postponed it to a date to be fixed by the registrar not earlier than a certain date. Subsequently, plaintiff filed a record and paid to the prothonotary a jury fee and set the case down for hearing by jury and applied to have a date fixed for such trial. Up to the time of the order postponing the trial, plaintiff had not expressed any intention to ask for a jury trial. Section 49 of the King's Bench Act provides inter alia that actions for breach of warranty "shall be tried by jury" unless the parties waive such a trial. Subsection 2 says that "except in cases of libel and slander, the right to a jury shall be held to be abandoned and the case shall be tried without a jury unless a jury fee . . . be paid. . . . The officer shall require payment of such fee before entering the case." Held, plaintiff, by his motion to postpone the trial and his taking out and serving the order postponing it to a date to be fixed by the registrar (the registrar having no authority to fix the date for a trial by a jury, which must be done by a judge), adopted the forum originally selected by the defendants. The plaintiff by his conduct abandoned his right to have the action tried by a jury, and is in the same position as though he had himself entered the action for trial without payment of the required jury fee.

D DENIAL OR INFRINGEMENT OF RIGHT.
 (§ 1 D—30)—DENIAL OR INFRINGEMENT OF RIGHT—IMPOSING TERMS INVADING THE RIGHT—EFFECT.

It is the judge at the trial who is to decide under s. 50 of the Judicature Act (Sask.) whether the jury is to be dispensed with; and no such power is conferred on the Master in Chambers or a Judge in Chambers; therefore a term should not be imposed on setting aside a default judgment that defendant should submit to trial at a nonjury sittings.

(§ 1 D—31)—JUDICIAL DISCRETION—MOTION TO STRIKE OUT NOTICE.

The granting of a motion by a Judge in Chambers to strike out a jury notice, under Con. r. 1322, will not interfere with the discretion of the judge who presides at the trial, in directing a trial by jury under Con. r. 1322 (2).

Bissett v. Knights of the Maccabees, 3 D.L.R. 714, 3 O.W.N. 1280, 22 O.W.R. 89.

JURY NOTICE—MOTION TO STRIKE OUT—CLAIM AND COUNTERCLAIM—PROPER CASE FOR TRIAL WITHOUT A JURY.

Stanzel v. J. I. Case Threshing Machine Co., 10 D.L.R. 803, 4 O.W.N. 1002, 24 O.W.R. 369.

Where issues of fact are raised upon the pleadings which must be settled before the question of liability or nonliability can be ascertained, it is a wrong exercise of his discretion on the part of a Judge in Chambers to strike out the jury notice, and such exercise of discretion is a proper subject for review. [Hunt v. Chambers, 20 Ch.D. 365, followed.] Prima facie a party who has given a jury notice has a right to a jury trial, subject to deprivation of such right if a judge so orders, but this order will not be made except upon good cause shown by the party attacking the notice, as, for instance, that only questions of law are involved.

Starratt v. Dominion Atlantic R. Co., 5 D.L.R. 641, 46 N.S.R. 272.

Where important questions of fact proper to be determined by a jury are raised upon the pleadings, a party who has given a jury notice has a prima facie right to have the case so determined, and an order made, notwithstanding such notice, setting the case down for trial without a jury, will be set aside. [Starratt v. Dominion Atlantic R. Co., 5 D.L.R. 641, 46 N.S.R. 272, followed.]

Carruthers v. The Nova Motor Co., 8 D.L.R. 689, 46 N.S.R. 514.

Upon a Chambers motion to strike out a jury notice, where the case turns upon whether a conveyance of land absolute in form is so in substance or merely an equitable mortgage, the relief sought comes within s. 103 of the Ontario Judicature Act, and the case is one for trial without a jury.

Roscoe v. McConnell, 7 D.L.R. 188, 4 O.W.N. 126, 23 O.W.R. 108.

Upon a Chambers motion to strike out a jury notice, the judge should proceed under Con. Rule (Ont.) 1322, to determine the question whether the case is proper for trial with a jury or not, and should not merely direct that the question be left over to be determined by the judge at the trial. [Bissett v. Knights of the Maccabees, 3 D.L.R. 714, 3 O.W.N. 1280, followed.]

Gerbracht v. Bingham, 7 D.L.R. 259, 4 O.W.N. 117, 23 O.W.R. 82.

It is a proper exercise of discretion to deny a trial by jury in a cause that will require at least 2 weeks to try and in which many witnesses will be examined, in an action attacking the validity of a will.

JUDICIAL DISCRETION—STRIKING OUT JURY NOTICE.

A Judge in Chambers hearing a motion to strike out a jury notice under Ont. Con. r. 1322, has the like discretion as the trial judge would have at the hearing. [Brown v. Wood, 12 P.R. (Ont.) 198, applied.]

Cornish v. Boles, 12 D.L.R. 245, 4 O.W.N. 1551.

DISPENSING WITH—PROLONGED EXAMINATION OF ACCOUNTS.

The right to a trial by jury as of a common law action may be displaced by shewing that a prolonged examination of accounts would be necessary, and this may be proved prima facie by the affidavit on production.

(§ 1 D—35)—JURY NOTICE—QUEBEC PRACTICE.

The plaintiff whose reply is served on the defendant the day on which the defence is received, has, nevertheless, the 6 days allowed him by C.C.P. in which to file such reply, the delay of exercising the option for a jury trial only runs from the expiration of these 6 days even when the reply is previously filed.

Scott v. Britton, 3 D.L.R. 873, 3 O.W.N. 568.

Where a statutory authority is conferred upon the court to dispense with the jury in any cause "requiring local investigation," the discretion will be exercised in favour of a trial without a jury if the case is one in which the principal issue is the amount of fire damage occasioned to timber lands in proof of which a large number of experts upon the value of standing timber are to be called.

NONREPAIR OF HIGHWAY.

James v. Toronto, 2 D.L.R. 893, 3 O.W.N. 1007.

(§ I D—40)—"REASONABLE REFRESHMENT" TO JURY.

Leave to appeal in a criminal case will not be granted on the ground that the jurors were kept eight hours without food in contravention of Cr. Code s. 946 which directs that they be allowed "reasonable refreshment," unless prejudice to the accused is shown; nor can prejudice to the accused be assumed from that delay where the jury continued their deliberations for an hour after refreshments were provided.

II. Impanelling; selection; competency.

A. IN GENERAL.

(§ II A—50)—MIXED LANGUAGE.

The plaintiff has not the right to obtain a mixed jury or a jury "de medietate lingue" if the defendant, a corporation, is opposed to it, although the latter can itself demand it.

Montreal Tramways Co. v. Crowe, 24 D. L.R. 567, 24 Que. K.B. 122.

Where defendant's counsel, in a criminal action, makes a premature application that he be allowed to interrogate the jury on a question involving their eligibility to sit, a ruling by the judge in these words: "We will see when the question arises," while it might give rise to a wrong impression on the part of counsel that the court would later do the questioning, does not, however, amount to a refusal of the defendant's right to challenge for cause, where the defendant's counsel allowed the jury to be sworn before renewing his application.

R. v. Pilgar, 8 D.L.R. 830, 20 Can. Cr. Cas. 507, 27 O.L.R. 337, 23 O.W.R. 433.

A sheriff may, in drawing a grand jury, without having before him the affidavit required by s. 43 of c. 162, R.S.N.S. 1900, strike from the panel the name of a juror, who, to the former's knowledge, by statute, was exempt from jury duty by reason of being a city official, or who, for some other reason, was exempt, and substitutes therefor the name of another duly qualified juror.

The King v. Brown and Diggs, 19 Can. Cr. Cas. 237, 45 N.S.R. 473.

Upon the exhaustion of the jury panel with the swearing of the eleventh juror in a murder case, the judge may, under s. 939 of the Cr. Code, direct the summoning of a number of persons by the sheriff, irrespective of their qualifications, from whom to select a twelfth juror.

JURY TRIAL—SUMMONING JURORS.

(§ II A—52)—CRIMINAL TRIAL—PEREMPTORY
CHALLENGE BY CROWN OF JURORS
WHO HAD BEEN STOOD ASIDE WHEN PAN-NEL FIRST CALLED—SECTION 928 CRIMINAL CODE — ACCUSED DEPRIVED OF RIGHT GIVEN BY LAW—NEW TRIAL.

The peremptory challenging by the Crown of jurors who had been stood aside when the panel was first called, upon their being called a second time, instead of shewing cause why they should not be sworn, as provided by s. 928 Cr. Code, deprives the accused of a right given by law, and entitles him to a new trial, notwithstanding s. 1019.

R. v. Churton, 45 D.L.R. 725, [1919] 1 W.W.R. 774.

STATUTORY DIRECTIONS—CHALLENGE—JURY LIST NOT REVISED—PREJUDICE—DEMUR-RER.

Cr. Code, s. 1011, which directs that certain omissions of statutory directions as to the jury or jurors shall not be a ground of impeaching any verdict nor be allowed for error upon any appeal, applies to an objection raised by challenge of the array of jurors, as well as to objections taken after verdict. Where the jury lists had not been revised annually according to law by a revising board exercising ministerial duties (R.S.Q., art. 3423), but the provincial law stipulated that the old lists should remain in force until the new ones were completed or revised (art. 3432), the use of a list revised by the deputy sheriff who was clerk to the revising board will not constitute a ground of challenge to the array (Cr. Code, s. 925), although the sheriff as a member of the revising board was himself involved in the neglect to revise, unless the complainant further shews that someone not competent as a juror had been summoned or that someone competent as a juror had been left off the jury list by reason of the unauthorized revision. The opposite party may demur to a challenge of the array of petit jurors on the ground that the matter relied upon is not in law a ground of challenge.

R. v. Morrow, 24 Can. Cr. Cas. 310.

STANDING ASIDE JURORS—CROWN'S RIGHT.

The provisions of Cr. Code (ss. 927, 933) relating to the right of the Crown to have jurors stand aside, are not inconsistent with the provisions of the North West Territories Act (Can.), as it stood immediately before Sept. 1, 1905, and are consequently not excluded from being operative in Alberta (and Saskatchewan) under s. 9 Cr. Code.

R. v. Murray, 28 D.L.R. 372, 25 Can. Cr. Cas. 214, 9 A.L.R. 319, 33 W.L.R. 148, 9 W.W.R. 804.

B. QUALIFICATIONS; COMPETENCY.

Relationship as a disqualification, failure to challenge, see New Trial, III C—20.

(§ II B—55)—QUALIFICATION OF JUROR—RIGHT TO QUESTION AFTER VERDICT.

After verdict rendered and sentence passed it is too late to urge that one of the jurors who sat on the case was not qualified and that his name was not on the sheriff's list of jurors as s. 1010 Cr. Code, establishes the legal presumption that all those who rendered a verdict were competent to have served on the jury where no objection was taken at the trial of an indictment. [Hex v. McCrae, 12 Can. Cr. Cas. 253, 16 Que. K.B. 193, distinguished.]

R. v. Battista, 9 D.L.R. 138, 21 Can. Cr. Cas. 1.

After a jury is empanelled and sworn it is too late to challenge for cause.

R. v. Pilgar, 8 D.L.R. 830, 23 O.W.R. 433, 20 Can. Cr. Cas. 507, 27 O.L.R. 337.

DISCHARGE OF JURY AND EMPANELLING FRESH JURY.

Where, on the trial of a capital charge, the jury were not kept together on an adjournment over night, as directed by Cr. Code, s. 945, whereupon the Trial Judge discharged the jury and empanelled a fresh jury, before which the trial was commenced de novo, there is no duty upon the Trial Judge, on his own initiative, to exclude all the 12 jurors sworn on the first day from the second jury; and the circumstance that eight of the first jury before which testimony had been given were called and sworn on the second jury without challenge does not raise a presumption of "substantial wrong or miscarriage" to found an order for a new trial.

R. v. Laparello, 22 D.L.R. 344, 25 Man. L.R. 233, 24 Can. Cr. Cas. 24, 8 W.W.R. 89, 30 W.L.R. 777.

PREPARATION OF JURY LIST.

It is not the insertion of a name in the list of jurors or jury register which establishes the qualification of a juror in Quebec (R.S.Q. arts. 3405 et seq., and Cr. Code, s. 921), but the entry of the name in the municipal valuation roll (R.S.Q., art. 3406) with mention of the requisite property or rental valuation.

R. v. Morrow, 24 Can. Cr. Cas. 310.

(§ II B—57)—IGNORANCE OF ENGLISH—FRENCH AND ENGLISH.

The only grounds upon which a challenge to the array can be made in a jury trial, in a civil case, are partiality, fraud or misconduct on the part of the officer by whom the panel is returned, or causes of nullity in the summoning of the jurors, or in the making up of the panel. The summoning of a juror whose name had been struck from the list, of a French juror, who does not understand English, as English-speaking, and the failure to summon one of the jurors on the list, are not grounds of that kind.

Montreal Street R. Co. v. Girard, 21 Que. K.B. 121.

FRENCH CANADIAN JUROR SPEAKING ENGLISH—ENGLISH SPEAKING JUROR.

It is no longer necessary that a juror should be English to serve on an English jury or French to serve on a French one. A knowledge of the language required is the qualification.

Bernier v. Montreal Light, Heat & Power Co., 13 Que. P.R. 116.

JURY TRIAL—CORPORATION—JURY DE MEDIATE LINGUAE.

If one of the parties is a corporation and objects to a jury of the same language, the court in the Province of Quebec must order a jury de mediate lingua.

Beaulieu v. Montreal Street R. Co., 12 Que. P.R. 263.

(§ II B—58)—BIAS—INTEREST.

A request by defendant's counsel, in a criminal trial for arson, made at the opening of the trial, that before the jury was called he would like to ask each of the men who are called whether he is interested in a certain insurance company, which interest on his part would have made him ineligible to serve, is prematurely made.

R. v. Pilgar, 8 D.L.R. 830, 23 O.W.R. 433, 20 Can. Cr. Cas. 507, 27 O.L.R. 337.

(§ II B—59)—OPINIONS FORMED.

A juror in a criminal case who, after he has been sworn, without objection or challenge, states that he is prejudiced against the accused will not be discharged, as objection to his qualification comes too late. [Reg. v. Stewart, 1 Cox C.C. 174; R. v. Edmonds, 4 B. & Ald. 471; R. v. Sutton, 8

B. & C. 417; Reg. v. Wardle, Car. & M. 647, followed.]

R. v. Mah Hung, 2 D.L.R. 568, 17 B.C.R. 56, 20 Can. Cr. Cas. 40.

D. PEREMPTORY CHALLENGES.

(§ II D-65)—BY CROWN.

The number of peremptory challenges by the Crown is limited to 4 in Alberta, both by the N.W.T. Act as of August 31, 1905 (see Cr. Code, s. 9), and by Cr. Code, s. 933.

R. v. Murray, 28 D.L.R. 372, 25 Can. Cr. Cas. 214, 9 A.L.R. 319, 33 W.L.R. 148, 9 W.W.R. 804.

III. Number.

(§ III-75)—VACANCY—DISQUALIFICATION—VERDICT—NEW TRIAL.

Art. 490 C.C.P. assumes that a full jury has been legally impanelled, and provides for the illness or withdrawal of a juror for a cause arising during a trial; it does not apply to a vacancy caused by the discovery that an unqualified juror has been part of the original jury; the verdict in such event must be annulled and a new trial ordered. Myers v. Montreal, 33 D.L.R. 329.

IV. Special jury.

(§ IV-80)—SECOND TRIAL—SELECTION OF JURY—DRAWING NEW PANEL.

Where a verdict directed by the court to be entered for the defendant on withdrawing a case from the jury is reversed on appeal and a new trial ordered, the jury for the new trial cannot be selected from the panel drawn for the first trial, but a new jury must be summoned.

Under s. 59 of the Jury Act (R.S.M. 1913, c. 108), a judge may grant a special jury, (1) when he grants an order for a jury in a case otherwise triable without a jury and a party to the action requests a special jury; (2) when in a case triable by a jury, unless waived by consent, a request for a special jury has been made within 6 days from the time when the action is at issue; this is in harmony with the provisions of the King's Bench Act (Man.), ss. 49-50.

Narovlansky v. Portugal, 35 D.L.R. 213, 27 Man. L.R. 553, [1917] 2 W.W.R. 624, affirming. [1917] 1 W.W.R. 1305.

MIXED JURY.

The second line of art. 436, C.C.P., providing for a right to a mixed jury, applies only to the case where a corporation is a party to the action or the case where the maternal language of one of the parties is French and that of the other English, and vice versa. This privilege is not given to those whose maternal language is other than French or English and who can easily speak one of these languages.

Chicoine v. Gordon, 18 Que. P.R. 288.

If a corporation is added as a defendant to an action where the parties originally in the cause were allowed to proceed with the jury speaking one language, the new defendant is not thereby deprived of his right to demand a mixed jury.

McDonald v. G.T.R., 18 Que. P.R. 411. [See 40 D.L.R. 749.]

V. Verdict; setting aside.

See also Trial; New Trial; Appeal.

(§ V-90)—EXCESSIVENESS—WHEN UNREASONABLE.

Although the amount of the general damages awarded by the jury's verdict in a railway accident case may seem to the Appellate Court to be very high, such is not a ground for setting aside the verdict and granting a new trial unless the court finds that the verdict was unreasonable and almost perverse. [Cox v. English, [1905] A.C. 168, 170; Pickering v. G.T.P.R. Co., 50 Can. S.C.R. 393; Pickering v. G.T.P.R. Co., 24 Man. L.R. 544, applied.]

WHEN.

The verdict of a jury cannot be set aside unless it is such that reasonable persons, and in good faith, would not have given it. Perron v. Drouin, 46 Que. S.C. 336.

VI. Extra powers conferred on jury by agreement of parties.

(§ VI-95)—EXCESS OF JURISDICTION—AGREEMENT OF PARTIES—VALIDITY OF.

There is no legal authority, however, against the parties, by agreement, conferring on the jury powers in excess of its ordinary jurisdiction, such as submitting to the jury questions of law with questions of fact, the whole process forming between the parties a judicial contract.

(§ 1-1)—STIPENDIARY MAGISTRATE—STATUS—RELATION TO THE MUNICIPALITY—REDUCTION OF SALARY—REMEDY.

Notwithstanding that a stipendiary magistrate of a town was appointed by the Lieut.-Gov.-in-Council, he is, by virtue of ss. 111-120 of the Towns Act (R.S.N.S.C. 71), an officer of the town, and therefore he may, under s. 121 apply to the court for the rescinding of a resolution of the town council reducing his salary.

(§ 1-2)—APPOINTMENT—TERRITORIAL JURISDICTION.

Although the authority of county justices of the peace is confined to the limits of the county for which they are named, it does not necessarily extend to all places within the county, if there be any district therein which possesses a separate and exclusive jurisdiction; and if concurrent jurisdiction is to be exercised by the County Judges in such separate jurisdiction the commission should so state in express words such as the phrase "as well within liberties as without."

R. v. Cody, 18 D.L.R. 773, 23 Can. Cr. Cas. 211, 48 N.S.R. 255.

APPOINTMENT AND OFFICIAL TITLE—EX OFFICIO JUSTICES.

Statutory proceedings authorized to be taken before a justice of the peace will not be set aside because of failure to describe the magistrate in the record of proceedings by the words "justice of the peace," if he is designated therein as stipendiary magistrate for the county and consequently is an ex officio justice of the peace by virtue of a provincial statute.

OFFICIAL TITLE IN PROCEEDINGS.

It will be assumed that a town magistrate signing as magistrate "in and for" the town a warrant of commitment which is headed with the name of both town and county, did so in the town although the warrant does not formally state that the warrant was there given.

R. v. Nolan, 35 D.L.R. 334, 28 Can. Cr. Cas. 100.

EX OFFICIO JUSTICES—PROCEEDINGS TAKEN IN CAPACITY OF RECORDER—R.S.Q. ART. 1410.

Where under a special provincial statute a justice of the peace is authorized to hear complaints, proceedings thereunder taken before him in another capacity, such as city recorder, are invalid and a summary conviction will be quashed on certiorari.

Latendresse v. Piette & the Corp. of Joliette, 31 Can. Cr. Cas. 248.

EX OFFICIO JUSTICES—MAYOR AND ALDERMEN.

The mayor and aldermen of a city in Ontario become ex officio justices of the peace on making their declarations of office and qualification under the Ontario Municipal Act, and 2 of them may as such justices try a charge of keeping liquor for sale in contravention of the Ontario Temperance Act. R. v. Lake, 28 Can. Cr. Cas. 138, 38 O. L.R. 262.

APPOINTMENT—AS AFFECTING CONVICTION—WOMEN.

Although a de facto police magistrate may not be qualified for appointment to such office the legality of his appointment there-to cannot be inquired into on an application to quash a conviction made by him. Irregular proceedings by police magistrate held not to have prejudiced the accused and, therefore, not a ground for quashing a conviction. It is within the power of a police magistrate, who has stated after hearing the evidence of the prosecution only that he sentences the accused, but who has not made a minute of the conviction, to reopen the case for the purpose of permitting the accused to make his defence.

R. v. Cyr, 12 A.L.R. 320. [Affirmed in 38 D.L.R. 601, 29 Can. Cr. Cas. 77, 12 A.L.R. 320 at 325, [1917] 3 W.W.R. 849.]

APPOINTMENT OF WOMAN.

A woman is under no legal disqualification in the Province of Alberta from being appointed a Justice of the Peace or Police Magistrate.

R. v. Cyr, 38 D.L.R. 601, 12 A.L.R. 320, at 325, 29 Can. Cr. Cas. 77, [1917] 3 W.W.R. 849, affirming 12 A.L.R. 320.

(§ 1-4b)—DISQUALIFICATION—BIAS.

In order to disqualify a magistrate from acting, on the ground of bias, it is not necessary to shew that he is in fact biased, but only that he is in such a position that he might be biased. [Reg. v. Gaiford, [1892] 1 Q.B. 382; and Reg. v. Huggins (No. 2), [1895] 1 Q.B. 563, followed.] One who is appointed stipendiary magistrate by a municipality at an annual salary, on the condition that he shall try all cases under the Canada Temperance Act, and shall make monthly reports, returns and payments to and for the use of the municipality of all fines, penalties and forfeitures collected by him as such magistrate on account of such cases, is disqualified from hearing a prosecution under the Act, inasmuch as there is a reasonable apprehension that he may be biased.

JUSTICE OF THE PEACE—DISQUALIFICATION—RELATIONSHIP.

Campbell v. Walsh, 18 Can. Cr. Cas. 304, 40 N.B.R. 186.

II. Liabilities.

(§ II-5)—Though a magistrate acts beyond his jurisdiction in bringing a case on before the hour fixed, such action will not be taken as indicative of a corrupt motive if it appears that the magistrate did not know the hour for which the trial of the case had been fixed and had taken the case at the earlier hour for the convenience of counsel for the accused, where the magistrate erroneously supposed that it was not necessary to have the prosecutor represented at the hearing, as defendant's counsel had informed the magistrate that the accused person would plead guilty and the accused did so plead at the hearing.

(§ II—6)—PROTECTION ORDER ON QUASHING CONVICTION.

On quashing a summary conviction to which the Public Authorities Protection Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 89, applies, the order of protection of the magistrate from civil action may stipulate an exception as to anything done by the magistrate maliciously and without reasonable and probable cause.

EXEMPTION FROM LIABILITY — PROTECTION ORDER.

Where a magistrate, a King's Counsel, with whom three informations were lodged charging a person with separate sales to different persons of liquor without a license, heard, at the same time, evidence tending to prove the 3 offences, if he fails to explain his conduct, upon one of the convictions being quashed, an order of protection will be granted him only upon payment by him of the costs.

R. v. Lapointe, 4 D.L.R. 210, 3 O.W.N. 1469, 22 O.W.R. 601, 20 Can. Cr. Cas. 98.

THE JUSTICES' PROTECTION ACT—JUSTICE EXCEEDING JURISDICTION—NOTICE AND TIME LIMIT FOR ACTION.

Where a justice of the peace had jurisdiction over the subject-matter of a complaint, but exceeded his jurisdiction in giving judgment without hearing evidence and in causing an execution to be issued and seizure made, an action against him for damages for malicious abuse of legal process was dismissed because it was not commenced within 6 months after the act complained of, nor was notice of action given, as required by ss. 8, 9 of the Justices' Protection Act. These sections applied because the action was brought for things done by him in the execution of his office and because, although he acted without jurisdiction, he acted bona fide and believed that as a justice he had a right to do what he did.

Pollon v. Kobzar School District, [1919] 3 W.V.R. 771.

(§ II—7)—EXCESS OF FEES.

A justice of the peace who receives from a person convicted before him more costs than are legally authorized and afterwards upon notice that they were not authorized by law fails to return such excess of costs, willfully retains the illegal fees within the meaning of s. 1134, Cr. Code, and therefore the penalty imposed by such section upon such officers for so retaining fees not authorized by law may be recovered by the party from whom he took the excess of costs.

Aikins v. Simpson, 19 Can. Cr. Cas. 325, 9 E.L.R. 368, 45 N.S.R. 368, affirming 18 Can. Cr. Cas. 99.

DEBTOR AND CREDITOR—PROCEEDINGS BEFORE JUSTICE OF PEACE—RIGHT OF JUSTICE TO ACT AS SOLICITOR OR AGENT OF PARTIES.

A justice of the peace, before whom proceedings are taken to collect a debt, ought not to act as solicitor or agent of the plaintiff either before action brought or after judgment is obtained.

MacGillivray v. Conroy, 10 E.L.R. 195.

III. Jurisdiction; procedure.

(§ III—10)—JURISDICTION OF STIPENDIARY MAGISTRATE.

Under the Nova Scotia Statutes, as amended in 1905, c. 11, s. 3, a stipendiary magistrate for any of the municipalities within a county has jurisdiction anywhere within the limits of the county in all civil matters as to which two justices of the peace have jurisdiction, and in causes of action arising wholly outside his special municipality but within the county.

Jones v. Thompson, 35 D.L.R. 667, 51 N.S.R. 192.

Under the New Brunswick Statutes (C.S. N.B. 1903, c. 119, as amended in 1915, c. 22), a stipendiary or police magistrate has no civil jurisdiction where both the parties to the action reside outside the parish in which the magistrate resides, though within the county.

JURISDICTION—COLLATERAL ATTACK.

Where the jurisdiction of magistrates is purely statutory, it is open to collateral attack by evidence dehors the proceedings, whether or not such proceedings purport to shew jurisdiction.

R. v. Taylor, 15 D.L.R. 679, 26 W.L.R. 652, 7 A.L.R. 72, 5 W.W.R. 1105, 22 Can. Cr. Cas. 234.

JURISDICTION—SITTING AT REQUEST OF ANOTHER JUSTICE.

The exclusive jurisdiction which by 1907, c. 5, (Alta.) is to attach to the first justice of the peace taking cognizance of the case is sufficiently displaced within the exception authorizing another justice to act on request, where the justice taking the information did so at the request of the trial justice accompanied by the latter's intimation that he himself would conduct the trial; acquiescence in such proposition is equivalent to a counter-request by the justice taking the information that the other justice should take the trial.

R. v. Cruikshanks, 16 D.L.R. 536, 7 A.L.R. 92, 6 W.W.R. 524, 27 W.L.R. 759, 23 Can. Cr. Cas. 23.

PRELIMINARY ENQUIRY — DEFENDANTS RIGHTLY BEFORE THE JUSTICE—WHEN EXCLUSIVE JURISDICTION ACQUIRED BY JUSTICE TAKING INFORMATION.

Cr. Code, s. 668 directing the justice to proceed to inquire into the matters charged when a person is before a justice and is accused of an indictable offence is to be limited to cases in which the accused is rightly before such justice. Subs. 3 of s. 708 Cr. Code, which declares that it shall not be necessary for the justice who acts before the hearing e.g., in issuing the summons or warrant, to be the justice by whom the case is to be heard, applies only to summary conviction proceedings under part XV. of the Code, and not to preliminary enquiries for indictable offences.

Re Holman and Rea, 9 D.L.R. 234, 23 O. W.R. 428, 27 O.L.R. 432, reversing 7 D.L.R. 481, 4 O.W.N. 207.

JURISDICTION.

A magistrate has only such jurisdiction as is given him by statute in respect of claims for wages due to workmen and labourers, and his authority to issue a warrant of arrest upon defendant's default of appearance to a summons depends upon there having been before him at the time of the issue of the warrant proper proof of the service of the summons under the Master and Servants Act, R.S.S., c. 149.

Washburn v. Robertson, 8 D.L.R. 183, 3 W.W.R. 209.

Every police magistrate is ex officio a justice of the peace for the whole county or district for which, or for a part of which, he is appointed, and such a justice of the peace need not hear both sides on the preliminary hearing, before committing the accused for trial before another magistrate.

JURISDICTION — PROSECUTION UNDER TEMPERANCE ACT.

R. v. Boileau, 36 D.L.R. 781, 38 O.L.R. 607, 28 Can. Cr. Cas. 144.

The jurisdiction of justices of the peace is territorial. The territory of the county of Lac St. Jean being the same as that of the District of Roberval, the fact that a justice of the peace of such district designates himself in an information as justice of the peace for the county of Lac St. Jean, does not deprive him of jurisdiction.

Sorgins v. Bouchard, 26 Que. K.B. 242. [Appeal quashed, 38 D.L.R. 59, 55 Can. S.C.R. 324.]

JURISDICTION—IMMOVABLE RIGHTS—FENCES.

An action for $31.80, the cost of construction and maintenance of a fence by the plaintiff upon his land, in default of the defendant who had undertaken, in an authentic deed, to put up and maintain such fence, is within the jurisdiction of a District Magistrate's Court.

Rose v. Cour du Magistrat du District d'Ottawa, 24 Rev. Leg. 129.

DESCRIPTION OF OFFENCE—JURISDICTION OF JUSTICE.

An information charging the accused with having sold intoxicating liquors "contrary to the statute in such case made and provided" sufficiently describes the offence charged, and it is not necessary to add the words "words being authorized by license for this purpose," which imply negative facts to which the defendant can take exception. In a prosecution of this kind, all the proceedings except the hearing and the judgment, can be taken before a single justice of the peace.

Huot v. Truchon, 26 Que. K.B. 199.

JUSTICE OF THE PEACE—JURISDICTION—"LICENSEE"—KEEPER OF STANDARD HOTEL.

The word "licensee" in s. 61 (3) of the Ontario Temperance Act, 1916, 6 Geo. V. c. 50, is confined in its application to a person holding a license as a vendor of liquor; it does not include the keeper of a standard hotel, if he is in any sense a "licensee" within the meaning of the Act. Therefore s. 61 (3), which gives jurisdiction to a single justice of the peace in the case of the prosecution of a "licensee" charged with an offence against the Act, "or for any offence committed on or with respect to licensed premises," was held not to warrant the exercise of jurisdiction by a single justice in the summary conviction of the keeper of a standard hotel charged with keeping liquor for sale upon premises some distance from the hotel; and the conviction was quashed.

R. v. Boileau, 36 D.L.R. 781, 38 O.L.R. 607.

JURISDICTION—ENFORCEMENT OF BY-LAWS.

The Recorder's Court of the City of Montreal is given jurisdiction by the charter of this city in any action for the enforcement of any by-law in force in the City of Montreal.

Henry Morgan Co. v. City of Montreal, 24 Rev. Leg. 486.

JURISDICTION — MUNICIPAL BY-LAW—NUISANCE—CONTRACT—PROHIBITION.

The Recorder's Court of the City of Montreal has jurisdiction to hear and try any complaint or action for infraction of the by-laws of the City of Montreal, respecting public nuisances. A writ of prohibition lies only when a court of inferior jurisdiction exceeds its jurisdiction, and not to inquire whether it tried it rightly or wrongly.

Montreal Abattoirs v. La Cour du Recorder, 27 Que. K.B. 162, 32 Can. Cr. Cas. 220.

(§ III—12)—JURISDICTION — COMMON ASSAULT—TITLE TO LAND.

The jurisdiction of the magistrate to try for an assault is not ousted as involving a title to land, where an assault by a fence viewer was not committed in the assertion or in the defence of any title to land.

The King v. Shaw; Ex parte Kane, 27 D.L.R. 494, 26 Can. Cr. Cas. 156.

MINISTERIAL AND JUDICIAL ACTS—WARRANT OF ARREST.

The issue of a warrant for arrest upon a sworn information is in itself a ministerial act of the magistrate, but his preliminary decision under Cr. Code s. 655, on the question whether a warrant or summons is the more appropriate, or whether in fact any offence is disclosed in the information, is a judicial act.

Marsil v. Lanctot, 28 D.L.R. 380, 25 Can. Cr. Cas. 223, 20 Rev. Leg. 237.

PRELIMINARY ENQUIRY—TRANSFER OF CASE TO ANOTHER JUSTICE.

When a magistrate has become seized of a case by taking the information for an indictable offence no other magistrate having general concurrent jurisdiction with him can acquire jurisdiction to intervene and preside at a preliminary enquiry, even with the consent of the first magistrate, except in so far as such course is authorized by statute in special circumstances such as illness or absence of the first magistrate.

Re Holman and Rea, 9 D.L.R. 234, 23 O.W.R. 428, 27 O.L.R. 432, reversing 7 D.L.R. 481, 4 O.W.N. 207, 23 O.W.R. 219.

SUFFICIENCY OF CONVICTION FOR UNLAWFUL SALES—JURISDICTION OF MAGISTRATE—PLACE AND TIME OF OFFENCE—JUDICIAL NOTICE—AMENDMENT—RIGHT OF APPEAL.

R. v. Gage, 30 D.L.R. 525, 26 Can. Cr. Cas. 385, 36 O.L.R. 183. [See also 10 O.W.N. 364.]

It is the duty of a magistrate to proceed with the trial of the accused when the accused is before him, when the accused has been committed for trial before him by another magistrate who is an ex officio justice of the peace for the same county; and this is so, even if the complainant does not appear at the trial, but has due notice of the time and place.

Gardiner v. Ware, 7 D.L.R. 480, 5 S.L.R. 268, 3 W.W.R. 24.

A stipendiary magistrate has power to try and to convict for an offence committed before the date of his appointment. [Reg. v. Bachelor, 15 O.R. 641, distinguished.]

IN CRIMINAL CASES.

The duties of a magistrate who undertakes to dispose of a matter brought before him are two-fold: first, to find if the party is guilty or not guilty of the charge, and secondly, to gather the facts and circumstances surrounding the criminal act, so that he may judicially find what penalty should be imposed. A magistrate before exercising his discretion as to the extent of the penalty to be imposed, within the limits provided by law, even where the accused pleads guilty to the crime charged, has no right to hear evidence in mitigation of the punishment without giving the private prosecutor having charge of the prosecution an opportunity to hear that evidence and cross-examine the parties giving it, and, if necessary, meet it with evidence on his own part in aggravation of the offence, or in contradiction of the alleged mitigating circumstances. A magistrate has no right to dispose of a case before the hour set for trial, in the absence of the prosecutor, although the accused appears before him and pleads guilty.

TERRITORIAL JURISDICTION—CASES NEAR BOUNDARY.

Where an offence has been committed within 500 yards of the boundary between two magisterial jurisdictions, Cr. Code, s. 584 (b), will not enable the prosecutor to lay it in one jurisdiction and try it in another; he may both lay and try the offence in either jurisdiction. [R. v. Mitchell, 2 Q.B. 638, 2 G. & D. 274, followed.]

R. v. Jack, 25 D.L.R. 700, 24 Can. Cr. Cas. 385, 49 N.S.R. 328.

ASSAULT OCCASIONING ACTUAL BODILY HARM—CERTIORARI—PERSON AGGRIEVED.

Justices of the Peace have no jurisdiction under Part XVI to hear a charge of committing an assault occasioning actual bodily harm, contrary to s. 295 Cr. Code, inasmuch as the jurisdiction given to magistrates under s. 773 is a statutory one, and cannot be extended by implication. [R. v. Sharpe, 18 Can. Cr. Cas. 132, preferred to R. v. Hostetter, 7 Can. Cr. Cas. 221.] A person who has laid a charge as described supra is a person aggrieved by the action of the magistrates so as to be entitled to have the proceedings brought up for review before the Supreme Court.

R. v. Law, 9 W.W.R. 1075, 25 Can. Cr. Cas. 251, 33 W.L.R. 569.

JURISDICTION ALSO AS SUMMARY TRIAL MAGISTRATE—SUMMARY CONVICTION OR SUMMARY TRIAL PROCEDURE.

Where trials for keeping a disorderly house and for frequenting a common lawdy house are held before a magistrate having jurisdiction to proceed to a summary conviction under the vagrancy clauses (Cr. Code, s. 228) or to a summary trial without consent under s. 774 (amendment of 1909), it will be taken in the absence of any express statement in the record of proceedings to indicate which procedure was being followed, that the magistrate acted under the power of summary conviction from which an appeal would lie rather than that he acted under the powers of s. 774 upon summary trial from which there would be no appeal.

R. v. Belmont, 18 D.L.R. 53, 23 Can. Cr. Cas. 89.

MAGISTRATE—EXCESS OF JURISDICTION—JUSTICES PROTECTION ACT.

The Justices Protection Act, 1848, is in force in the Province of Alberta, but it cannot be relied upon as a defence where a magistrate does something quite outside of and beyond his jurisdiction.

Spirrel v. Lauder, 6 W.W.R. 1051.

COMPLAINT FOR A RECOGNIZANCE TO KEEP THE PEACE—INSUFFICIENCY OF THE INFORMATION—CR. CODE S. 748.

A complaint on a demand for a recognizance to keep the peace under Cr. Code s.

748 (2) is invalid if it does not shew threats and fear of bodily harm.

R. v. Buteau, 30 Can. Cr. Cas. 411.

DEFECT IN SUMMONS.

Where the summons under which the defendant was called upon to appear before the court for an alleged infringement of the Canada Temperance Act shewed that the information upon which it was issued had been laid more than three months after the date of the commission of the offence charged, the justice had no jurisdiction to hear the charge. Neither ss. 723, 724 Cr. Code, nor s. 146 Canada Temperance Act, were broad enough to cure the vital defect in the summons.

R. v. Kay; Ex parte Le Blanc, 21 Can. Cr. Cas. 221, 12 E.L.R. 86.

At the hearing of an information under the Canada Temperance Act the magistrate adjourned his court from December 14, 1910, to January 5, 1911, at 10 a.m. Subsequently the counsel on both sides agreed, on account of convenience of train service, that the trial should not proceed until 2.30 p.m. When the court met, at 10 a.m., the magistrate was informed of the agreement but he proceeded with the trial, counsel for prosecutor being present and the defendant and his counsel absent. The defendant's counsel refused to take further part in the proceedings and the defendant was convicted. Upon certiorari:—Held, the magistrate did not lose his jurisdiction by reason of the agreement between counsel.

Re Broom, 11 O.W.N. 95.

Where an assault is committed upon a bailiff in the performance of his duties as a peace officer, viz., whilst attempting to effect a seizure in obedience to an order issued out of a Court of Justice, the accused cannot be tried before the Recorder's Court under the provisions of the Cr. Code, if no extraordinary violence resulting (e.g., in grievous bodily harm or murder) is used towards the complainant by the accused.

(S 111—13)—JURISDICTION OF FIRST AND SECOND JUSTICE.

Under a statutory provision limiting a justice's jurisdiction in any particular case to the first justice having possession and cognizance of the fact, but with a proviso that at such justice's request any other justice may at the first justice's request "take part in" the case, a request to the second justice may be implied from the conduct of the justice who received the information, and in view of Cr. Code, s. 1120, such request will be implied and the conviction upheld where both the justice receiving the information and another sat at the hearing, but because of objection raised by the family of the accused to the first justice acting, he voluntarily refrained from trying the case. TEMPERANCE ACT.

Two justices of the peace appointed for the entire county and holding a session at the police office established in an incorporated town within the county under the Towns Incorporation Act (N.S.), have concurrent jurisdiction with the stipendiary magistrate of the town to try a charge of selling intoxicating liquor in contravention of the Nova Scotia Temperance Act, 1910.

IV. Review; appeal.

(S IV—15)—MAGISTRATE'S CONVICTION—JURISDICTION—INDIAN ACT—AFFIDAVITS SUPPLEMENTING EVIDENCE—SENTENCE—"HARD LABOUR"—DISTRESS—WRITTEN INFORMATION—PLACE OF OFFENCE.

The defendant, having been convicted by a magistrate for unlawfully having intoxicating liquor in his possession, contrary to s. 41 of the Ontario Temperance Act, 6 Geo. V, c. 50, was imprisoned under a warrant of commitment issued pursuant to the conviction; and a motion having been made for his discharge, upon the return of a habeas corpus, it was held:—(1) That the mere statement of the defendant to the magistrate that he was an Indian, and therefore, as he attempted to shew, not subject to the Ontario Act, did not go far enough—it was incumbent upon him (if he was to have the benefit of the Indian Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 81, s. 136) to prove that he was a male person of Indian blood reputed to belong to a particular band (s. 2 (f) (i) of that Act); and an affidavit supplementing the evidence given before the magistrate was not admissible. (2) That a sentence of imprisonment with hard labour may be imposed upon a conviction for an offence against the Ontario Temperance Act: Interpretation Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 1, s. 25. (3) That the warrant of commitment and the conviction could, under s. 889 of the Criminal Code, be amended to meet the objection that it was only in default of sufficient distress that the defendant was to be imprisoned, and that no distress-warrant was issued. (4) That the objection that there was no written information or complaint could not prevail, not having been taken before the magistrate. (5) That the place of the offence was sufficiently stated in the conviction as "at and in the city of H."

(§ IV—16)—NOTICE OF APPEAL—EXHIBITS.

The County Court has no jurisdiction to entertain an appeal from an order of filiation made by justices of the peace against the defendant until the order of filiation and all the papers connected therewith shall have been sent by the justices, as prescribed by s. 69 of the County Court Act R.S.N.S. 1900, c. 156, to the clerk of the County Court for filing and production upon the appeal.

(§ IV—17)—PENALTY—APPEAL.

There is no appeal from a conviction under the Intoxicating Liquor Act (1916 N.B., c. 20, s. 176 (1)) in cases where a pecuniary penalty is provided, although default in payment of the fine imposed may be followed by imprisonment.

The King v. Doherty, 42 D.L.R. 102, 45 N.B.R. 461.

Leave to appeal was refused by the Privy Council in respect of a judgment of the Supreme Court of Nova Scotia (Johnston v. McDougall (No. 1), 44 N.S.R. 265, 17 Can. Cr. Cas. 58) upon points of law involving the statutory jurisdiction of the magistrate, decided prior to any assessment of damages in an action claiming $2,000 for illegal execution of a search warrant issued under the Canada Temperance Act.

Johnston v. McDougall (No. 2), 17 Can. Cr. Cas. 398.

(§ IV—19)—MAGISTRATE'S CONVICTION—MOTION TO QUASH—JURISDICTION—EVIDENCE—CERTIORARI.

A magistrate's conviction for a breach of Part II of the Canada Temperance Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 152, will not be quashed for want of jurisdiction because there was no evidence before the magistrate to warrant the conviction—certiorari being expressly taken away by s. 148 of the Act. [Reg. v. Wallace, 4 O.R. 127, followed.]

R. v. Berry, 38 O.L.R. 177, 11 O.W.N. 158. [See 39 O.L.R. 177, 28 Can. Cr. Cas. 341.]

JURISDICTION OF CONVICTING JUSTICES—MAYOR AND ALDERMAN OF CITY—EX-OFFICIO JUSTICES—MOTION TO QUASH—RELEVANCE OF TESTIMONY—SEARCH-WARRANT—INSUFFICIENT INFORMATION.

Upon a motion to quash the conviction of the defendant by two justices of the peace for keeping intoxicating liquor for sale upon premises in a city, without a license, in contravention of the Ontario Temperance Act, 1916, 6 Geo. V. c. 50, s. 40, it was held:—(1) That the convicting justices, being the mayor and an alderman of the city, who had made their declarations of office and qualifications, were, by virtue of s. 350 of the Municipal Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 192, ex-officio justices of the peace for all purposes incidental to the office, and had jurisdiction to make the conviction. (2) That there was evidence (set out below) which, if believed, supported the conviction.

(3) That evidence that a man was seen taking a bottle of whisky away from the house of the defendant and that the wife of the defendant was seen trying to hide a case of whisky, was not irrelevant upon the charge of keeping intoxicating liquor for sale—though the charge was mainly based upon the testimony of police officers who entered the defendant's premises under the authority of a search-warrant and found a large quantity of liquor upon the premises and men drinking with the defendant. [R. v. Melvin, 34 D.L.R. 382, 38 O.L.R. 231, distinguished.] (4) That the conviction was not affected by the fact, if it was the fact, that the search-warrant was issued upon an insufficient information. INTERFERENCE WITH FELLOW MEMBER—"JUST CAUSE"—DAMAGES—SCOPE OF ORGANIZED REDRESS.

A trade union acts without "just cause" where in seeking to compel a member to comply with its decision, it forbids his fellowmembers to work in the same employ, and it is liable in damages for the resultant loss of wages to the member where his dismissal was occasioned by the attitude adopted by the union. Although a trade union, combining with a common purpose to conserve the interests of its members and their trade, may lawfully do the acts reasonably necessary to secure and advance such interests, their course of conduct becomes unlawful if it degenerates into acts intended and calculated to injure the other party in his trade. [Quinn v. Leatham, [1901] A.C. 495, applied.]

When intimidation is resorted to by a local trade union to prevent the employment of nonunionists, the members of the local committee taking the message of intimidation to the employer are held as liable for damages suffered by the discharged parties. No action can lie against the Union itself as it is an unincorporated and unregistered body.

Fabrie v. Hewelman (Hewelmaus), 45 D. L.R. 744, [1919] 2 W.W.R. 146.

SALE OR LEASE — DEFAULT — REMEDY OF VENDOR.

The deed called a lease of an immovable made for a period of 6 years by which the alleged lessee undertakes to pay to the alleged lessor $100 per annum with interest, with a provision that the lessee could, at any time purchase the immovable for $610, or the balance of that sum after deducting the instalments of $100 which he had paid, is not a contract of lease, but an actual sale. Therefore, failure to pay one or several of the annual sums as they fell due does not give the vendor a right of action for rescission of the contract accompanied by saisie-gagerie and saisie-brandon.

Carey v. Carey, 42 Que. S.C. 471.

PERMITTING GRATUITOUS USE OF GARAGE TO INCREASE PATRONAGE.

Where the owners of a garage allow mechanics to occupy for an indefinite time a part of the premises on consideration that they shall have a repair shop nearby, and also with the intention that the latter shall do their best to induce their own customers to patronize the garage in preference to any other, there is not between the parties a contract of lease, but a contract of gratuitous loan or an indefinite contract by which the mechanics undertake, in consideration of the occupation of the premises, to favour the garage. In such case there is no right to bring an action for rent, but it could only be for damages in consequence of failure to carry out the conditions of the contract.

Simard v. Rousseau, 47 Que. S.C. 197.

ATTORNMENT CLAUSE IN MORTGAGE—ESTOPPEL—DISTRESS.

An attornment clause in a mortgage under the Land Titles Act (Sask.) does not create the relationship of landlord and tenant so as to entitle the mortgagee to the protection of the statute of 8 Anne, c. 14, s. 1. The clause creates by estoppel a personal right of the mortgagee against the mortgagor, not against a stranger. [Hyde v. Chapin Co., 26 D.L.R. 381, followed.]

(§ I-2)—ATTORNMENT CLAUSE IN SALE AGREEMENT.

An attornment clause in an agreement for the sale of land whereby the amount of rent payable on the "crop payment" plan should be a yearly rental equivalent to and applicable in satisfaction of the instalments of principal and interest will be valid and support a distress thereunder where the share of the crop stipulated, namely, one-half, would not be an unreasonable rent. [Foster v. Moss, 17 W.L.R. 174; and Independent Lumber Co. v. David, 19 W.L.R. 387, applied.]

CREATION OF RELATIONSHIP—FORMAL LEASE NOT EXECUTED.

Robillard v. Galeries Parisiennes, 20 D.L.R. 983.

(§ 1—3)—LEASE—REQUISITES—DEFINITE COMMENCEMENT OF TERM—STATUTE OF FRAUDS.

In order to enforce the Statute of Frauds, and create a valid lease there must appear either in express terms or by reasonable inference from the language used, on what day the term is to commence and when it is to end. A memorandum which has inserted alternative time for the commencement of the term does not satisfy these conditions and is insufficient.

CAVEAT EMPTOR—COVENANT FOR QUIET ENJOYMENT.

The principle of caveat emptor applies to a tenant in respect to his landlord's title. A tenant cannot dispute his landlord's title. In an action for rent evidence intended to show lack of title in the plaintiff was admitted subject to it being dealt with as the judge saw fit in giving judgment. A covenant for quiet enjoyment applies only to the acts of the lessor himself and of those who claim through or under him, and to constitute a breach of such a covenant there must be an actual interference with the tenant's possession, a notice demanding possession for nonpayment of rent is not sufficient. It is the duty of a tenant to protect and support the title of his landlord.

Woods v. Opsal (B.C.), [1918] 1 W.W.R. 985.

WARRANTY—BUGS.

A tenant is justified in refusing to take possession of a dwelling, if he discovers that it is infested with bugs. Where, at the signing of a deed of lease, the lessor verbally gave the lessee, who made the remark that he had been informed that the house was full of bugs, the assurance that such was not the case, there is a warranty on the part of the lessor justifying the lessee in refusing to enter into occupation of the house, if he finds that the dwelling is in fact infested with their vermin.

Foley v. Baker, 24 Rev. Leg. 185.

EXPENSES—TAXES—PAROL EVIDENCE.

The lessee of a shop who in his written lease undertook to pay for his rent "half of all expenses of the said shop for rent, taxes and all other expenses, etc." must pay half of the land taxes imposed upon real property by the City of Montreal. Parol evidence cannot be admitted to prove such an agreement.

(§ 1—4)—CREATION OF THE RELATIONSHIP—AGREEMENT—RIGHTS OF PARTIES—"WAR RELIEF ACT 1918," 8 GEO. V. (MAN.) C. 101, S. 10.

A clause in an agreement covenanting that the relationship of landlord and tenant is constituted between vendor and purchaser is good and creates such a relationship. The landlord or vendor may maintain an action for rent or payments due under this agreement under s. 10 of "The War Relief Act 1918" even though the tenant or purchaser is a privileged person under the statute.

EMPHYTEUSIS—RENT—ASSIGNMENT—EFFECT.

The purchaser at a judicial sale of land, subject to an emphyteuti lease, assumes towards the lessor all the obligations of the lessee especially the obligation of paying the stipulated annual rent. A transfer of the lease by the lessee to a third party, with the knowledge and implied assent of the lessor, has not the effect, in the absence of a formal novation of discharging him from his obligations.

Lampson v. Quebec, 49 Que. S.C. 307.

RENT PAYABLE WITH GOODS OR WORK DONE.

In order to constitute a valid lease, it is not necessary that a rent payable in money should be agreed upon, but the rent can be represented by something which is the equivalent of money, such as work done by the lessee or even payment in goods, but in such a case it is necessary that the equivalent should consist of some definite thing, and not merely of an expectation that may depend upon the will of persons other than those who may occupy the premises.

(§ II B-10)—COVENANT AGAINST DISPLAY OF SIGNS—BREACH—SIGNS PLACED BEFORE MAKING COVENANT.

A landlord may disentitle himself to take objection, under a tenant's covenant, against the display of projecting or window signs on a demised building to signs previously put up by the lessee while in possession under a prior tenancy without restrictive covenants, if, at the time of executing the lease containing such covenant, the lessor knew of the display of such signs and made no objection to them.

COVENANTS.

In interpreting ambiguous terms of a lease, as to the right to renew, the extraordinary and one-sided character of the agreement under one interpretation, is a feature which may be taken into consideration by the court in favour of the other interpretation more consistent with the usage in such transactions and with the conduct of the parties prior to the dispute which led to the litigation.

MacDonnell v. Davies, 9 D.L.R. 24, 4 O.W.N. 620, 23 O.W.R. 778.

COVENANT FOR PRE-EMPTION—TERMINATION UPON NONPAYMENT OF RENT.

A lessee's right of pre-emption, under a lease containing a covenant that the lessee may "at any time during the stated term exercise his right of pre-emption of the said premises," terminates upon the determination of the lease through a failure of the lessee to pay the stipulated rent, notwithstanding that the term of years during which the lease was to run had not come to an end.

Guisse-Bageley v. Vigars-Sheir Lumber Co., 9 D.L.R. 4, 4 O.W.N. 559, 23 O.W.R. 728.

COVENANT RUNNING WITH THE LAND—TAXES—DISTRESS.

A lessee's covenant to pay all taxes on the demised premises, with a provision that in default the lessor may do so and recover by levy or distress by way of rent reserved, runs with the land. [Spencer's case, 1 Smith's L. Cases, 12th ed., p. 62; Vernon v. Smith, 5 B. & Ald. 1, applied.]

Mackinnon v. Crafts, 33 D.L.R. 684, 10 A.L.R. 509, 11 A.L.R. 147, [1917] 1 W.W.R. 1402.

COVENANT AS TO SUITABILITY—BREACH—REMEDY—LIABILITY OF ASSIGNEE.

Notwithstanding the general rule that there is no implied covenant in a lease of an existing building that it is fit for the purpose it is intended to be used for, a lessor who agrees to construct for the lessee's occupancy a building on the leased land is bound to construct a building suitable for the purposes for which he knows the lessees intend to use it; if, however, the lessees have gone into occupancy, the remedy for a breach of the contract is in damages, not repudiation of the lease, even as against an assignee of the reversion.

Tarrabain v. Ferring, 35 D.L.R. 632, [1917] 2 W.W.R. 381, 12 A.L.R. 47.

PROVISION FOR RENEWAL—TERMS OF TO BE AGREED UPON—COVENANT AS TO COSTS OF ALTERATIONS—FIXTURES TO BECOME PROPERTY OF LESSOR—TRADE FIXTURES NOT INCLUDED.

Under a lease providing for a renewal "upon such terms as may be mutually agreed upon," and further providing that "in the event of a renewal of this lease not being granted . . . the lessor shall pay to the lessee . . . the actual costs . . . of alterations and additions," the lessor is liable if no agreement for renewal is in fact made no matter how unreasonable one of the parties may be as to the terms and conditions of renewal. A clause providing that "all improvements, alterations and fixtures constructed or made or to be constructed or made in or upon the said premises shall become the absolute property of the lessor," at the expiration of the lease does not include trade fixtures, and these the lessee is entitled to remove.

Godson v. Burns, 46 D.L.R. 97, 58 Can. S.C.R. 404, [1919] 1 W.W.R. 848, affirming [1918] 3 W.W.R. 587, 26 B.C.R. 46, which affirmed [1917] 3 W.W.R. 966.

COVENANTS—ALLEGED BREACH—DETERMINATION OF LEASE—DAMAGES.

After the surrender of a lease, the landlord can only recover damages for breaches of covenant committed before the surrender. The measure of damages should be the actual loss to the landlord by reason of such breaches. [Ex parte Glegg, 19 Ch. D. 7; Ex parte Dyke, 22 Ch. D. 410, referred to.]

Beckord v. Brande, 50 D.L.R. 450.

COVENANT FOR RENEWAL—PERPETUAL RENEWAL.

A covenant for renewal, in a lease, providing that the "new lease shall contain all the covenants contained in the present lease including the covenant for renewal," creates a right of perpetual renewal and to have the covenant for renewal, as originally worded, repeated in the new lease.

Re Jackson and Imperial Bank, 36 D.L.R. 589, 30 O.L.R. 334.

TERMINATION OF LEASE UPON SALE OF PREMISES—NOTICE.

On a sale of property subject to an unregistered lease containing a clause that "The lessor will have the right, in the event of the property being sold, to bring the lease to an end at any time, whether during the said term of 3 years or afterwards—by giving the lessee 3 months' notice in writing to that effect," the purchaser takes all the rights of his vendor, and on a resale by him may exercise the right of termination by giving proper notice.

St. Charles v. Friedanan, 31 D.L.R. 652, affirming 21 Rev. Leg. 96.

OPTION TO PURCHASE—RIGHTS OF LESSEE.

Mere written notice to the lessee to exercise his option, without particularizing the terms and conditions of the sale, is not a sufficient compliance with a provision in a lease whereby the lessee is given an option to purchase the property during the term of the lease, and that in the event of a proposed sale to any other person at whatsoever price, the lessor should notify the lessee to enable him, or preference, to exercise the option to purchase; and the rights of such lessee, where the lease is registered, will continue to subsist, even after a subsequent sale of the premises, during the currency of the lease.

St. Denis v. Quevillon, 25 D.L.R. 144, 51 Can. S.C.R. 603, reversing 23 Que. K.B. 436.

AS TO RETURN OF UNMATURED NOTES—EXTENT OF LESSOR'S RIGHT OF RECOVERY.

A lease, providing that, on default of payment of any of the notes given as consideration of the contract, the lessor could retake possession of the property, and that the lessee would lose all that he had paid to the lessor, and that the lessor "should return the notes unmatured at the time of their maturity, that is to say, that the lessor would only be obliged to retire them and return them to the lessee at the time of their maturity," gives to the lessor a right of action against the lessee to recover the amount of the notes due at such time, the amount of which would represent the value of the enjoyment of possession of the restaurant during the running of the lease; and in such case the lessor need only deliver up the notes not yet due at the time of the retaking possession.

LEASE OF FARM — ACTION BY LANDLORD FOR BREACHES OF COVENANTS — FAILURE OF CLAIMS FOR WANT OF REPAIR AND BAD HUSBANDRY — CLAIM FOR BREACH OF COVENANT "NOT TO CUT DOWN TIMBER" — EXPANSION BY SHORT FORMS OF LEASES ACT — EXCEPTION — "FIREWOOD" — "CLEARANCE" — "AS HEREIN SET FORTH" — EFFECT OF PUNCTUATION OF STATUTE — FELLING OF TIMBER TREES FOR FIREWOOD — INJURY TO REVERSION — WASTE — INJUNCTION — PLEADING — JUDICATURE ACT, s. 17 — DAMAGES — FORFEITURE — RELIEF AGAINST — LANDLORD AND TENANT ACT, s. 20 — TERMS — DEFAULT — FORFEITURE OF RIGHT OF RENEWAL OF LEASE — COSTS.

By indenture under the Short Forms of Leases Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 116, the plaintiff leased a farm to the defendant for 2 years, with a right of renewal for 3 years more, at the option of the defendant. Action for damages for breaches of covenants and a declaration of forfeiture:—Held, that, though a small part of the land was not ploughed 6 inches deep, as required by the lease, there was no evidence that the plaintiff's reversion would, at the expiration of the lease, be damaged or depreciated in value. The covenant "not to cut down timber" was expanded, by the Act, into a covenant not at any time during the term to cut down or destroy, "without the consent in writing of the lessor, any timber or timber trees, except for necessary repairs, or firewood, or for the purpose of clearance as herein set forth." There was nothing in the lease setting forth what timber trees might be cut for repairs, firewood, and clearance:—Held, that the words "as herein set forth" applied to the exception. Quere, whether the words "as herein set forth" referred only to "clearance" or to "repairs" and "firewood" also. An injunction asked for at the hearing should, under s. 17 of the Judicature Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 56, be granted, to restrain apprehended waste or trespass. Under s. 20 of the Landlord and Tenant Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 155, the plaintiff gave notice to the defendant of the breaches complained of, and claimed $400 damages:—Held, that a forfeiture should be declared, but that, under the discretion given to the court by s. 20, relief against the forfeiture should be granted to the defendant upon payment of $320 and costs. In default of payment at a time fixed, the forfeiture should be enforced and should include the defendant's right to an extension of the term.

McPherson v. Giles, 45 O.L.R. 441.

OPTION TO PURCHASE — TERMINATION — NOTICE — WRITTEN AND TYPEWRITTEN CLAUSES.

The following clauses in a lease in typewritten form—"The lessee hereby agrees to give 3 months notice (in writing), that is, on the 1st day of February, to the lessor, in case of his desire to leave said premises upon expiration of present lease, failing such, there will be a tacit understanding between said lessee and lessor that the lease continue in force for a further period as mentioned herein at same terms and conditions," and another clause at the end of the typewritten form written out by the plaintiff himself as follows: "Lessee has option of 2 further years from May 1, 1915, for consideration of $1,440, payable $60 on the 1st of every month, first payment becoming due and payable on June, 1915," are in conflict, and the written clause should have effect as more likely to contain the real intentions of the parties. Therefore, the lessee having not taken advantage of the option, had the right to leave the rented premises without notice at the expiration of the lease.

Calkins v. Howard, 26 Que. K.B. 91, reversing 50 Que. S.C. 147.

AS TO RENT—DEMAND.

A covenant in a lease, that if the rent is not paid by the month of August (au mois d'aout) in any year the lease shall be annulled does not dispense the necessity for the lessor to demand the rent in order to put the lessee en demeure. As such stipulation implies a doubt as to whether the lessee ought to have paid his rental on or before July 31, or during the month of August, the lessee is entitled to the benefit of the doubt.

Gaudreault v. Fournier, 49 Que. S.C. 450.

TENANT RELEASED FROM RESPONSIBILITY FOR ACCIDENT BY FIRE BY REASON OF DEFECTIVE STRUCTURE AND CONSTRUCTION OF PREMISES LEASED, NOTWITHSTANDING STIPULATIONS CONTAINED IN THE LEASE—C.C. 1055.

Notwithstanding a clause in a lease whereby the tenant assumes the obligation to keep the premises in a good state of repair, a tenant in case of a fire destroying the premises is not responsible if it is proved to the satisfaction of the court that the fire resulted from defective construction of the lower tenement on account of the beams running into the chimney.

CULTIVATE IN "PROPER AND HUSBANDLIKE MANNER"—MEANING OF.

(§ II B—11)—"TO TURN OVER IN GOOD CONDITION."

Where a tenant in an informal lease was to receive the premises "in the best condition" and undertook "to give up the house in the same condition and repairs," the landlord is entitled to have included in his measure of damages upon the surrender of the premises all damages due to the loss attributed to ordinary wear and tear. In considering whether a covenant by a lessee to surrender the premises at the end of his term "in the best repair" has been broken, that phrase must be taken in relation to the kind of house demised and the condition of repair in which it was at the time of the demise.

TO RESTORE IN ORIGINAL CONDITION — BREACH — MEASURE OF DAMAGES.

Breach of covenant by a lessee to restore the demised premises to their original condition, after structural changes had been made by him, renders him liable to the lessor for the estimated costs of restoration regardless of whether the costs were or ever will be actually incurred. [Joyner v. Weeks, [1891] 2 Q.B. 31, followed.]

Buscombe v. Stark, 30 D.L.R. 736, 23 B.C.R. 155, [1917] 1 W.W.R. 294.

(§ II B—12)—AS TO REPAIRS.

Where a lessee, by mise-en-demeure, has demanded the execution of repairs by a lessor, and the lessor, in accordance therewith, has proceeded with the repairs, which, though still unfinished at the date of the commencement of the lessee's action for rescission under art. 1641 C.C. (Que.), are yet completed before the trial thereof, the court has a discretion to refuse rescission.

Consumers' Cordage Co. v. Bannerman, 2 D.L.R. 419.

A covenant to repair which includes keeping the premises in repair is a continuing covenant and a notice to repair is not a waiver once and for all of its breach, but an election not to take advantage of it during the currency of the notice and after the expiry of the notice there is a right of re-entry if the premises continue out of repair. Making large openings in a wall, pulling down and removing part of same in an entire building so as to cause the premises to become a part of two buildings, to be thrown together and used as one, is a breach of the covenant to repair even where the lessee had the right "to maintain, continue, use, build and rebuild such wall," and is not only a continuing breach of the covenant to repair, but also waste. A lessor's notice to repair given on behalf of several trustees if signed by one and adopted by all is sufficient.

A notice to repair purporting to be given under a lease, which contained a general covenant to repair and a covenant to repair according to notice with a proviso for re-entry in case of breach or nonperformance of covenants may be sufficient, not only as a notice to repair under the lease, but as a notice of re-entry and forfeiture under s. 13 of c. 170 of R.S.O. 1897 (Landlord and Tenant Act), even if such notice does not require the lessee to make compensation in money for the breach.

Hébert v. Clouâtre, 5 D.L.R. 411, 40 Que. 745, 25 O.L.R. 588, 21 O.W.R. 325.

LIABILITY — LESSEE — ROOF OF HOUSE — ICE — DRAINS — DAMAGES — CIVIL CODE.

When a lease stipulates that the lessee shall remove the ice and snow from the roof and shall also keep the pipes in good repair, the lessee is responsible for damages which result from the fact that he had allowed the drains serving to drain the roof to become clogged by debris coming from the roof, and for damages caused in removing the ice with iron instruments.

Klein House Furnishing Co. v. Gabias, 25 Rev. Leg. 219.

TENANT'S COVENANT TO REPAIR — WORN-OUT WATER-CLOSETS — UNSANITARY CONDITION OF PREMISES — NOTICE TO LANDLORD — FAILURE TO REPAIR.

A tenant is not, under the covenant to repair, required to renew worn out and structurally defective closets. [Lester v. Lane and Hesham [1893] 2 Q.B. 212, and Terrell v. Murray, 17 Times L.R. 570, followed. Howe v. Botwood, [1913] 2 K.B. 387, distinguished.] It is not the duty of the tenant to make repairs in the first instance, upon the chance of the landlord repaying him what he expended; he was not compelled to run the risk of expensive litigation.

Buttimer v. Betz, 26 W.L.R. 705, 6 W.W.R. 22.

A lessee who covenanted with his lessor "to care for, protect and irrigate the trees now growing upon the said land" is liable for damages to a grove of trees injured by his horses and cattle, although the trees were not shut off from the barn by any fence. The lessor's agreement to furnish the necessary material in connection with the lessee's covenant to "keep up fences" refers only to fences existing at the date of the lease. Fences to protect the trees would have to be built by the lessee at his own expense. The lessor may recover notwithstanding that before action begun he had sold the land but had received only $1 on the purchase price.

Pawson v. Tangve, [1919] 1 W.W.R. 888.

(§ II B—14)—COVENANTS AGAINST ASSIGNMENT — RELIEF FROM FORFEITURE, HOW LIMITED.

The Ontario Supreme Court has no power to relieve a lessee of premises against forfeiture of his term on breach by him of his agreement not to sub-let without the written consent of the lessor, which agreement provided that the lessee's right under it should continue only so long as he strictly observed, complied with and performed the terms of the lease, since, by the statute law of Ontario, though the courts have power to relieve against a right of re-entry or forfeiture for breach of a condition or covenant between the landlord and tenant, it expressly excludes the breach of a condition or covenant against subletting or parting with the possession of the leased land.

The company, assignees of the lease of a theatre, agreed to sell to G. the lease and the equipment in the theatre for $5,500, payable $1,000 down, $2,000 "on the date of closing," and $2,500 with interest "in six weeks from said date." If the $2,500 was not so paid, the agreement was to become void, and any moneys paid were to be forfeited. G. paid the $1,000 and the $2,000 to S., acting for the firm of S. & Co., solicitors for the company. The lease was expressed to be made under the Short Forms of Leases Act; it contained a covenant on the part of the lessee not to assign or sublet without leave, and there was a proviso that leave should not be unreasonably withheld. The lease was for five years at a rent of $1,800, payable monthly in advance. When the $2,000 payment was made, S. was asked what would be done with the $3,000 in case the lessors' consent to the assignment was not obtained, and he stated that it would be returned, whereupon the payment was made. It was provided in the agreement that G. should take possession on the date of closing and keep an account of all money received by him and paid out until he paid the $2,500; and that the assignment of the lease should remain in the hands of S. & Co., and should not take effect until the $2,500 was paid. As soon as the agreement was signed, G. went to the theatre and assumed to act as owner, except that he handed over the receipts each day to the company's agent. G. had some altercation in or near the theatre with M., one of the lessors, who had agreed to heat and clean the theatre, and M., before the six weeks were up, wrote a letter to S. & Co. telling them that no consent to an assignment to G. would be given, and that the company would be held liable for the rent. At the end of the six weeks an assignment of the lease, which was executed so that it could be tendered for the lessors' consent, was presented to them; they refused their consent, giving reasons in writing for their refusal:—Held, that, as the assignment was not delivered to G., and was signed merely in order that there should be something formal to submit to the lessors, the mere signature of the paper for such a purpose could not be treated as a breach of the covenant. If there was an assignment by the putting of G. in possession pursuant to the term in the agreement, or a "setting-over" of the premises for the six weeks (see the long form of the covenant in the Short Forms of Leases Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 116), so that there was a breach of the covenant, the forfeiture was waived by the lessors—they, after G. had announced that he was assignee and had been seen by M. in and about the theatre, having written the letter insisting that the company should continue liable for the rent, and two weeks later accepted the rent for the next month. Acceptance of rent is a waiver of a forfeiture because it recognizes the lease as subsisting. [Fitzgerald v. Barbour, 17 O.L.R. 254, 257, followed.] The onus of proving that the consent of the lessors was unreasonably withheld was upon the company. The company being unable to procure the lessors' assent to the assignment, their claim against G. for specific performance must fail; and G.'s claim against the company for rescission of the agreement and against the company and S. & Co. for the return of the $3,000 must succeed. Conduct on the part of G. which led the lessors to believe that he would be an undesirable tenant afforded the company no defence to a claim for the return of money paid upon a consideration which had failed. S. & Co. were bound by the contract made by S. for good consideration, viz., the payment of the $2,000, to repay the money. [Winter v. Dumergue (1865-6), 14 W.R. 281, 699, followed.]

Grossman v. Modern Theatres, 45 O.L.R. 564.

COVENANT AGAINST ASSIGNMENT.

A clause in a lease of a licensed restaurant that in case the lessee wishes to sell or transfer his establishment he can only do so with the consent of the lessor, is an absolute prohibition against transfer of the lease, and the lessor may refuse his consent without giving any reasons.

Rosconi v. Péladeau, 48 Que. S.C. 356.

COVENANT AGAINST ASSIGNMENT — ASSIGNMENT BY WAY OF SECURITY — REASSIGNMENT.

Where the assignees of a lease by way of collateral security are prepared to release their debt and abandon their security, a re-assignment by them without consent is not a breach of a covenant not to assign or sublet without consent.

Fordham v. Commonwealth Trust Co., 8 W.W.R. 164.

COVENANT AGAINST — SUBLETTING — ACCEPTANCE OF RENT FROM SUBTENANT — WAIVER — ESTOPPEL.

The lessor of a restaurant who imposes a prohibition against subletting can tacitly revoke such prohibition. Consequently, when he has, at the same time, made over to the tenant his license for the sale of liquor, and the tenant sublets to a third party, to whom he makes over the same license, the steps taken by the lessor to get payment from the subtenant of the amount owing by the principal tenant, and his acceptance of the amount paid by the subtenant, are equivalent to a renunciation of the prohibition against subletting.

Demers v. Levesque, 46 Que. S.C. 158.

COVENANTS FOR TAXES—SPECIAL EXCEPTION.

Where a lease contained a printed covenant that the lessee was "to pay taxes" and also a later covenant that he should pay the taxes "on any building that he might hereafter see fit to erect," the former covenant may be struck out on a claim for rectification of the lease in accordance with the proved intention of the parties at the time the instrument was made.

IMPLIED COVENANTS — "ACCESS" CONSTRUED.

A provision in a lease "letting" to a tenant certain rooms in a building and giving him "access" to certain water closets therein, creates the implication that the "access" to the water closets is to be in common only with the other tenants and not exclusive."

Allen v. Johnston, 13 D.L.R. 160, 25 W.L.R. 325.

ELEVATOR SERVICE.

Where at the time of leasing of an apartment in an apartment house there is an elevator service therein which is reasonably necessary as a means of access to the apartment, a condition will be implied, in the absence of an express provision in the lease to the contrary, that the elevator service shall be maintained in an efficient way by the landlord; and damages are recoverable by the tenant for the breach which damages may be set off against the rent.

HEATING — MOVING PICTURE THEATRE.

In a lease of a building with all its contents, to be used as a moving picture theatre, there is, as in the case of a furnished house, an implied covenant that the premises are fit for that particular use and purpose. Where the letting period covers the winter months, inadequate heating appliances render the building unfit for human habitation, and constitute a breach of the covenant. [Wilson v. Finch Hatton, 2 Ex. D. 336; Smith v. Marrable, 11 M. & W. 5, followed.]

(§ II B—16)—PRESUMPTION AS TO CONDITION OF PREMISES.

A lessee is presumed to have received the premises in good condition, and is obliged to restore them in the same condition; saving his right to prove the contrary (art. 1633, C.C. Que.), this presumption regulates not only the relations between landlord and tenant, but may also be invoked by third parties.

Paquet v. Nor-Mount Realty Co., 28 D.L.R. 458, 49 Que. S.C. 392.

WARRANTY AS TO FITNESS.

In a demise of real property only, a condition or warranty that it is fit for the purpose for which it is intended to be used will not be implied. [Davey v. Christoff, 28 D.L.R. 447, not followed.]

St. George Mansions v. Hetherington, 41 D.L.R. 614, 42 O.L.R. 19.

COVENANT RUNNING WITH LAND — AGREEMENT TO BUILD — ASSIGNMENT — ASSUMPTION OF LIABILITY.

Notwithstanding the general rule that there is no implied covenant by a lessor of an existing building that it is fit for the purpose for which it was known to be intended to be used, the defendant lessors were held bound by their agreement to erect a building for their lessees and were, under the circumstances of the case, bound to make that building suitable for the purposes for which the lessees required it, and the defendant assignees of the lessors were held to have assumed the liability of remedying the defects complained of in consideration of the tenants' relinquishment of their possible right of rescission. Quere as to the liability of the assignees, had they not assumed such obligation.

Tarrabian v. Ferring, [1918] 2 W.W.R. 172, affirming 35 D.L.R. 632, 12 A.L.R. 47, [1917] 2 W.W.R. 381.

AS TO CONDITION OF BUILDING.

A landlord is not liable in damages on the ground of an implied warranty that the building leased was fit for the purpose for which it was to be used. In the absence of an express agreement or warranty in a lease as to the fitness for a particular purpose of the leased building, the tenant must take the building as he finds it, and has no claim against the landlord on an implied warranty. Where a lease for a term of years less than that to which the Land Titles Act is applicable is expressed to be executed pursuant to that Act, is in the form provided thereby, and the words of that form "subject to the covenants and powers implied," are used, it will be held that the parties intended that they should be bound by such obligations as would have attached to them had the lease been one which would, by law, instead of agreement, have been subject to the terms of that Act. Telfer v. Fisher, 3 A.L.R. 423.

(§ II B—17)—REPAIRS — USE OF PREMISES — TERMS OF LEASE.

A lessor is obliged to make, on the prem-lessee leased the repairs necessary to make them suitable for the purposes for which they are intended to be used, even though the lease provides that the lessee knows them well, and does not require them to be specifically described. The latter can maintain an action to compel the lessor to make such repairs within a fixed time and, on his failure to do so, to be authorized to make them at his expense.

Desautels v. Préfontaine, 42 Que. S.C. 401.
AS TO REPAIRS.

The plaintiffs sued for the costs of repairs to a building which they had leased to the defendant F. F. had assigned the lease to N. & B., who had sublet to F. & L. F. served a third party notice on his assignees, N. & B., who brought in their subtenants, F. & L., as fourth parties. N. & B., the assignees, were afterwards ordered to be made defendants, and the defendant F. obtained an order of indemnity against them. The court found that the building had collapsed because of overloading:—Held that, as the lease had been made pursuant to the Land Titles Act, the defendant F. was liable to the plaintiff on an implied covenant to repair for the cost of putting the building in its former position, that the assignees N. & B. were liable to F. for the same amount, and F. & L., the subtenants, were liable to N. & B. Held, therefore, that the plaintiffs were entitled to judgment against the lessee F., for the amount of the repairs and the plaintiff's costs; that F. was entitled to judgment against the assignees, N. & B., for this amount, and his costs of defence; that the plaintiffs were also entitled to a judgment directly against N. & B. for the amount of the repairs and their costs; that N. & B. were entitled to judgment against their subtenants, F. & L., for the amount of the repairs and for the costs which were applicable to the enforcement of their claim against the latter, N. & B. not being entitled, however, to recover against F. & L., the amount of the plaintiffs' costs recovered against them (N. & B.).

Telfer Brothers v. Fisher, 3 A.L.R. 423.
UNHEALTHY LODGINGS — OFFER TO REPAIR — DEPARTURE OF TENANT — RECIPROCAL RECOURSE — C.C. ARTS. 1612, 1613, 1641.

When a leasehold premises becomes unhealthy by reason of the neglect of the landlord to make the necessary repairs, the tenant should, before quitting the leased premises, ask for the cancellation of the lease, in default of the landlord making the repairs which are judged necessary. If the tenant quits the leased premises on account of the unsanitary condition, without giving the landlord time to make the repairs, he cannot reclaim the rent not yet due without demanding himself the cancellation of the lease.

RENEWAL OF LEASE — FAILURE TO EXERCISE OPTION — EXCUSE — EXCLUSION BY LANDLORD.

The failure of a tenant during his first term to take advantage of an option for renewal of his lease, is not excused by his wrongful expulsion by the landlord from the demised premises before the expiry of the time for exercising the option.

HOLDING OVER—RETAINING KEY.

When the movables of a lessee are seized for rent and placed in the care of a judicial guardian, who leaves them where they are, locked up, until after the expiration of the lease, the tenancy is not continued by the holding over, the occupation not being that of the lessee although he had retained the key in his possession.

OVERHOLDING TENANT'S ACT — EVICTION — RENT.

In proceedings under the Overholding Tenant's Act, the sole and only question to be considered is whether the tenant is to go out or not. Where the order for the ejection of the tenant, made by the Judge of the County Court, was set aside with costs on appeal, and it was ordered that the tenant's costs be set off against the rent alleged to be due. Held, that the order involved a decision that rent was due and was improperly made and must be set aside with costs.

CROPPING LEASE — TENANCY FOR YEAR OR AT WILL.

YEARLY TENANCY.

In the case of a lease for one year certain, the tenancy expires by effluxion of time, and notice to quit is not necessary to determine it. A tenancy at will arises only where the letting is for no certain term, but is to continue during the joint will of both parties and no longer. A landlord cannot, by a notice to quit during the currency of a term created by a written lease, convert a tenancy for one year into one at will.

Salleses v. Harrison, 10 E.L.R. 542.

(§ II C—22)—LEASE FOR 14 MONTHS — OVERHOLDING TENANT — RENT PAID MONTHLY — TENANCY FROM YEAR TO YEAR — TAXES IN ARREAR — RENT TO MUNICIPALITY.

When a tenant under a lease for a fixed term of 14 months at a fixed rental payable monthly remains in possession on the ending of the term, and still pays rent monthly he becomes a tenant from year to year. The taxes being in arrear the landlord is considered to have knowledge of this fact, and to have agreed that payments of rent to the municipality be the same as payments to himself. [Right v. Darby (1786), 1 Term. Rep. 159, followed.]

(§ II C—23)—TENANCY AT WILL—WHAT CONSTITUTES.

The occupation of land under a verbal agreement to pay the taxes thereon as rent until a purchaser is found constitutes a tenancy at will.

TENANT AT SUFFERANCE.

A lessee who is allowed to occupy the leased premises for a certain time after the lease has been terminated by notice, holds under sufferance, and is properly chargeable with rental on a quantum meruit for use and occupation.

Gardner v. Holmes, 38 D.L.R. 156, 24 B.C.R. 416, [1918] 1 W.W.R. 456.

TENANCY AT WILL OR SUFFERANCE.

Article 1608 C.C. (Que.) only establishes a presumption. Occupation by permission or by sufferance causes the existence of a lease to be presumed. But if such occupation can be explained otherwise than by title of the lessee, the presumption of a lease disappears. One who for several years has occupied a house belonging to his brother whose agent he was, without paying any rent, who keeps it in repair at his expense, and even improves it for his benefit, and acquiesces in its sale in which he has an interest, cannot be considered as a lessee of the house, but is only an occupant at his brother's pleasure; he cannot object to a buyer taking possession of the house at the time stipulated in the deed of sale.

Morgan v. Provost, 25 Que. K.B. 425.

(§ II C—24)—RENEWAL — HOLDING OVER.

The lessee is not entitled to a renewal in perpetuity unless the language used in the covenant therefor in the lease expressly or by clear implication shows that the party intended such renewal and, therefore, the provision in the lease permitting the renewal "at the same rental, upon the same terms and conditions in all respects" as provided in the old lease but saying nothing as to any further renewal gives the lessee no right to have inserted in the renewal lease any provision for a further renewal. Wilson v. Kerner, 3 D.L.R. 11, 3 O.W.N. 769, 21 O.W.R. 477.

RENEWAL LEASE — SALARY TO BE FIXED — ELECTION OF TENANT — OCCUPATION AFTER END OF TERM — LIABILITY FOR REASONABLE RENT.

A tenant under a lease renewable at his option at a rental to be fixed by arbitrators before the end of the term, who remains in the use and occupation of the premises whilst the arbitration proceedings and his election are pending, and then elects to refuse the renewal term is liable for a reasonable sum for such use and occupation.

Toronto General Hospital Trustees v. Sabiston, 47 D.L.R. 324, 44 O.L.R. 639.

A provision in a lease giving the lessee the privilege of renewal "from year to year at the expiration of any year so long as he may care so to do" does not make the lease renewable perpetually, since the right can only continue while the lessee personally "cares so to do" and can be exercised only while the lessor lives and continues to own the property. Such a provision is not a covenant, and does not bind the land or the heirs, assignees or personal representatives of either party, and is but a personal contract binding the parties alone, neither is such provision so indefinite as to call for the setting aside of the lease. A lease is not void because it provides for perpetual renewal.

Alexander v. Herman, 2 D.L.R. 239, 3 O.W.N. 755, 21 O.W.R. 461.

A notice by a lessee, purporting to exercise an option to renew the existing term, pursuant to a condition in the original lease for a "notice in writing" of exercising such option, is of no legal effect unless it is signed.

Greenwood v. Bancroft, 2 D.L.R. 417, 20 W.L.R. 816, 2 W.W.R. 162.

HOLDING OVER—LIABILITY.

In an action to recover possession of premises brought by the owner against an overholding tenant, who believed that he was holding under a valid renewal lease, while, as a matter of fact, there was no renewal lease, but only a tentative agreement for a renewal lease between him and the owner's manager, which agreement had not been ratified by the owner, though the court finds that the owner is entitled to judgment for possession of the premises, it is not obliged to give double rental value of the premises during the time the tenant held over, and will not do so where it does not find that the overholding tenant was "conscientious" that he had no right to retain possession." Dickson Co. v. Graham, 9 D.L.R. 813, 4 O.W.N. 670, 23 O.W.R. 749.

OPTION TO RENEW ON NOTICE—PAYMENT OF RENT ON RENEWAL TERM.

Where a rental agreement provides an option of renewal for subsequent years, the acceptance of rent for portions of one of such subsequent years is evidence of the tenancy having been created for that year, apart from the question of its effect as a waiver of an alleged forfeiture through failure to give prior notice as stipulated. [Bishop v. Howard, 2 B. & C. 100, applied.]

R.C. Episcopal Corp. de St. Albert v. Sheppard, 9 D.L.R. 619, 6 A.L.R. 128, 23 W.L.R. 282, 3 W.W.R. 814.

LOSS OF RENEWAL PRIVILEGE BY SURRENDER OF PART OF DEMISED PREMISES.

A covenant for a renewal of a lease is indivisible, and, if the lessee assigns a part of the demised premises, he cannot enforce the covenant for renewal as to the remaining portion; in like manner where the tenant voluntarily surrenders to the landlord a part of the premises demised with privilege of renewal, the renewal privilege is lost as to the remainder of the premises unless provision is made for its retention. [Barge v. Schiek, 57 Minn. 155, followed.]

Howland v. Jones, 15 D.L.R. 769.

STIPULATION FOR TERMINATING, IMPLIED WHEN.

A stipulation in the original lease for one year that either party may terminate at the end of any month of the tenancy applies to the lease from year to year implied on a holding over and payment of the same rent following the one year term and may be taken advantage of by a person to whom the lessor had assigned the reversion during the original tenancy.

Re Rabinovitch and Booth, 19 D.L.R. 296, 31 O.L.R. 88.

LEASE OF CORPORATION—SEAL.

In order to establish a tenancy from year to year, or the tacit renewal of the term, there must be a valid lease for a year at least, and a holding over by consent of the parties, from which the continuance could be implied; a verbal lease for the term of a year, entered into by an official of a nontrading corporation without the corporate seal and not under a by-law, creates no valid tenancy capable of an implied renewal by holding over and the holding over creates no liability except for use and occupation. [Finlay v. Bristol & Exeter R. Co., 7 Ex. 409, followed.]

RENEWAL—HOLDING OVER.

Where a lease contains a covenant by the lessee to heat at his own expense the upper flat of a building, the ground floor only of which is demised to him, and also contains a guaranty by the lessor that the heating apparatus is in good working condition, and a clause gives the lessee the right of renewal provided no breach or default be made in the lessee's covenants, the observance of the covenant to heat by an assignee of the lessee bound by that covenant is a condition precedent to his right of renewal, and, although the heating apparatus is defective, he forfeits the right if he does not make the best use he could reasonably have been expected to make of the system such as it is. Where a lease demises only the ground floor of a building a covenant by the lessee to heat the upper flat is one which is binding on an assignee of the lessee taking with notice thereof. A holding over must be wilful and contumacious before double damages can be given the lessor. Quære, where a lease demises only the ground floor of a building, is a covenant by the lessee to heat the upper flat one which runs with the land?

Nankin v. Starland, 3 A.L.R. 355.

YEARLY LEASE—COVENANT FOR RENEWAL.

A lease for one year contained the following covenant: "That at the option of the lessee, the term hereby demised shall be renewed for a further term of one year, and so on from year to year at a like rental and on similar terms."—Held, that the existence in fact of a desire for the further lease is all that is essential, and that desire may be indicated by conduct and circumstances, and no notice is necessary. [Brewer v. Conger, 27 A.R. (Ont.) 10, followed.] A covenant for renewal under the same covenants does not include the covenant to renew, but means only a second term, not a perpetuity of lease, and after the second term, the lessee remains on only as tenant from year to year. The plaintiff leased certain premises to the defendant "to have and to hold . . . from the first day of May for the term of one year next ensuing . . . with the option of continuing the lease from year to year until one or the other give notice in writing to quit 3 calendar months previous to the termination of any year." Prior to the end of the year the plaintiff gave the defendant 3 months' notice to quit; the tenant held beyond the year without giving any notice of his intention to remain. The court held that the defendant must be taken as remaining under his option (of continuing the lease) and was not an overholding tenant, within the meaning of the Overholding Tenant's Act, R.S.N.S. 1900, c. 174. Held, also, that the plaintiff had no right to give the notice he had given.

RESCISSON—ALTERING DEMISED PREMISES—EFFECT ON RESCISSON CLAIM.

Rescission of a lease will not be allowed at the instance of the lessee because of the refusal of the municipality to permit the rebuilding of a wooden building in the locality under its building and fire limit by-laws, where it appears that, though he accepted the lease and entered into possession of the premises relying on the lessor's promise made in good faith to see that the lessee got a permit for the alterations which he, the lessee, desired to make, the latter had equal means of knowledge from the outset that it was against a local building by-law to grant a permit for the rebuilding of or extensive alterations to a "frame building," and, nevertheless, went on after refusal of the permit and altered the condition of the premises so that at the time of seeking rescission he was not in a position to give up the premises in the same condition as when he received them, or in a condition, without the expenditure of money, to be available to the lessor.

Ruff v. McFee, 9 D.L.R. 519, 4 O.W.N. 501.

LESSOR'S FAILURE TO IMPROVE—FORFEITURE OF LIQUOR LICENSE.

The forfeiture of a liquor license resulting from the failure of a lessor to improve the leased premises in accordance with a municipal regulation, as required by a covenant in the lease, does not in the absence of a provision to that effect, express or implied, put an end to the lease so as to relieve the lessee from liability for rent thereunder. [Hart's Trustees v. Arrol, [1903] 6 Sess. Cas. 36; Grimsdick v. Sweetman, [1909] 2 K.B. 740, followed.]

FAILURE OF SUBJECT-MATTER—LIQUOR LICENSE.

The statutory abolition of bar rooms, the business whereof formed the basic consideration when entering into a lease of a hotel, does not amount to such total destruction of the subject-matter as will terminate the lease, on the principle that a contract is discharged when there is a total failure of the subject-matter contracted for; a proviso that the lease shall terminate upon the lessee's failure to secure a liquor license does not extend throughout the whole term of the lease.

Charrier v. McCreight, 33 D.L.R. 689, 11 A.L.R. 270, [1917] 2 W.W.R. 8, affirming [1917] 1 W.W.R. 834.

SHORT FORMS ACT.

A lease made in pursuance of the Short Forms of Leases Act (R.S.O., 1914, c. 116) cannot be surrendered by parol agreement.

Re Bagshaw and O'Connor, 42 D.L.R. 596, 42 O.L.R. 466.

FORFEITURE—AGREEMENT TO ASSIGN AS DISTINCT FROM ASSIGNMENT.

A valid assignment of the term is necessary to work a forfeiture under a condition of the lease that the lessee would not assign without leave; an agreement to assign is not enough. [Friary, etc. v. Singleton, [1899] 2 Ch. 261, applied.]

Cornish v. Boles, 19 D.L.R. 447, 31 O.L.R. 505.

LEASE OF HOUSE—PLACE OF PROSTITUTION—RETICENCE OF LESSOR—CANCELLATION—QUE. C.C. 993, 1612, 1616.

When an owner lets a house which was previously occupied by women of ill-fame, and is known in the neighbourhood as a place of prostitution, his reticence on that subject at the time he let the house constitutes deceit towards the tenant, and the latter can demand the cancellation of the lease.

Lorio v. Morgan, 46 Que. S.C. 379.

UNAUTHORIZED ASSIGNMENT OF LEASE—OBJECTIONABLE BUSINESS.

If a valid and binding assignment of the term is made without the lessor's consent being asked for, although the lease contains a covenant that the lessee "will not without leave assign or sublet, the lessor undertaking that his consent will not be arbitrarily withheld," the effect is to enable the lessor to forfeit the lease and to repossess the premises; but if, before a valid and binding assignment is made (e.g., the delivery of an assignment held in escrow pending the negotiations to obtain the consent), the consent of the lessors is requested, the refusal of such consent can only be justified if the proposed assignee or the business he is to carry on is found to be objectionable.

FIRE — CANCELLATION OF LEASE — REPAIRS — UNKNOWN REASONS — C.C. ART. 1660.

This is a proper case for the application of art. 1660, C.C., in favour of the continuation of a lease, after a partial fire to a store, when only the roof, one window frame, and some window panes have been damaged by the fire, and when the repairs have only continued for 20 days. There must also be taken into consideration in this case the fact that at first the lessee did not intend to cancel his lease, and that it was only after the repairs had been made, and after he had received the key of the store from the proprietor, that he had signified his intention of putting an end to the lease; the evidence, moreover, has established that the fire was not the principal reason which had determined the lessee in his discontinuing his occupation of the leased premises.

A tenant who, being in possession of premises under an agreement for a lease not in writing, surrenders the lease prior to making an assignment for the benefit of creditors, has not made a fraudulent preference or parting with property in fraud of creditors, and the surrender made is sufficient to give the landlord possession of the premises in question, as against the assignee.

If in an action for rent forfeiture is also claimed for acts done prior to the date of which the rent claimed became due, the action operates as a waiver of the forfeiture. FORFEITURE, AND WAIVER OF FORFEITURE.

Where a lease contains a covenant not to assign without lessor's consent and an assignment of the lessee's interest in the lease is made, and thereafter the lessor assigns his title, and the lessor's assignee, subsequently learning of the prior assignment by the lessee, accepts rent from the party in possession under the lessee, and later distrained on his goods for other rent, and makes no re-entry, the breach of the covenant not to assign is waived.

WAIVER OF FORFEITURE — ACCEPTING RENT FROM SUBLESSEE.

Although, under the terms of a lease, the tenant is prohibited from assigning or subletting the premises under penalty of forfeiture, still where he does so to the knowledge of the landlord, the acceptance of rent from the sublessee by the landlord constitutes a waiver of such forfeiture.

R.C. Episcopel Corp. de St. Albert v. Sheppard, 9 D.L.R. 619, 6 A.L.R. 128, 23 W.L.R. 282.

COVENANT — FORFEITURE — RE-ENTRY—IMPROVEMENTS—LIABILITY.

A lease contained a covenant that upon default in the payment of rent, etc., the lessor should have the right to immediately determine the tenancy and re-enter. On June 30, 1915, the lessor (the respondent) addressed a letter to the Mayor and Council of Regina (inter alia) as follows: "As time changes legislation should be enacted to suit conditions to meet demands that are required to cope with the situation. As you are quite well aware that the people who are running the Metropole Hotel are practically out of business, and as this property belongs to me, and as it is almost opposite the City Hall, it would be rather unsightly to have the windows boarded up, as the city has been given power to assist and provide accommodation for the local and traveling public. I am not going to ask you for any assistance further than to allow me to put an addition to the present building in the way of a rest room, sample rooms and any other accommodation I may see fit in the interests of reopening to the general public as an accommodation. . . ."

Held, that this letter, coupled with actual possession of the premises by the respondent from an earlier day in June, and followed by building and repairs begun on July 12 pointed conclusively to a re-entry by the respondent in June or at latest within the first day or two in July, and that the respondent was, on July 8, liable to the lessee for improvements which, under the lease, he agreed to pay for at the expiration of the said term.

FORFEITURE—RETURN OF LESSEE'S DEPOSIT GIVEN IN GUARANTEE.

Where an agreement for a lease to begin as soon as the landlord could prepare the demised premises for the tenant's purposes stipulated that a $500 deposit then made to the landlord was to be held as a guarantee of good faith, on the part of the tenant, that the latter would enter into possession when the premises were ready, such deposit may be ordered to be returned to the tenant when the landlord gave notice that the premises were ready for occupation when they were not in fact ready, and therefore could not by reason of a municipal by-law be used for the lessee's business, if the landlord gave notice of cancellation of the lease before the rental period had begun on the ground of the tenant's breach of covenant in sub-letting a portion of the premises without leave; the landlord under such circumstances could not keep the deposit, and also avoid the lease.

BELIEF AGAINST FORFEITURE OF LEASE — NONPAYMENT OF RENT — CHANGE IN TERMS BY USAGE.

A lessee of demised premises is entitled to an order for relief against forfeiture on the ground of nonpayment of rent, under the Laws Declaratory Act, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 133, s. 2, subs. 14, where it appears that he had been in the habit of paying several months' rent at a time instead of monthly as called for by the lease, with which arrangements the lessor seemed to have been satisfied, that no request for payment was made by the lessor for about 5 months, but instead thereof he served his notice of re-entry, at which time the lessee tendered all the rent then due, but the lessor would not accept it, and where the lessee brings into court all arrears of rent due under the lease. A failure on the part of the lessor to re-enter the demised premises and to declare a forfeiture under the terms of the covenant for nonpayment of rent, does not constitute such a waiver of rights as is contemplated by subs. 17 of s. 2 of the Act, to the effect that no relief shall be granted against forfeiture of a lessee's Can. Dig.—87.

term where a forfeiture under the covenant in respect of which relief is sought "shall have been already waived out of court in favour of the person seeking the relief," so as to preclude the lessee from maintaining a summons for relief against such forfeiture.

COVENANT OF DOUBTFUL MEANING.

The addition of a public shoe shining business will not be declared a breach of a covenant that demised premises should be used as a "store only," and that no other trade or business should be carried on where, with the consent of the lessor, the lessee conducted a shoe repairing shop on the premises; and a forfeiture of the lease will not be declared under the circumstances, since the true construction of such covenant was doubtful.

FORFEITURE — RELIEF AGAINST — SECURITY FOR RESTORATION AT END OF TERM.

A claim of forfeiture of a lease by reason of an alteration made in the building by a tenant to enable him to carry on a business therein of a class not prohibited by the lease, may be relieved against, under the Landlord and Tenant Act (Ont.), by requiring the tenant to give security for the restoration of the building at the end of the lease to its condition at the time the lease was made.

FORFEITURE OF LEASE—STRUCTURAL ALTERATIONS IN BUILDING — STATUTORY NOTICE BY LANDLORD.

A landlord's action to declare a forfeiture of the lease because of structural alterations made in the buildings without his consent by the tenant will be dismissed if a statutory notice of forfeiture has not been given pursuant to the Landlord and Tenant Act, 1 Geo. V. (Ont.) c. 37, s. 20 (2), (R.S.O. 1914, c. 155).

B., No. 12; Landlord and Tenant Act, R.S.O., 1914, c. 155, s. 19) is not defeated by tender or payment of the rent remaining due after the landlord became entitled to the right to forfeit.

CANCELLATION OF LEASE — UNINHABITABLE HOUSE.

A lessee cannot abandon the house he occupies, and have his lease cancelled, because it has become uninhabitable, without making a formal demand upon his lessor to make the necessary betterments, unless it is a case of urgency.

Saba v. Duchow, 54 Que. S.C. 53.

MONTHLY TENANCY — NOTICE OF TERMINATION—SUFFICIENCY.

Defendant leased from the plaintiff certain premises at a rental of $50 per month, payable in advance on the first day of each month. On Oct. 23, the defendant gave the plaintiff notice that he would vacate on Nov. 15, to which date the defendant paid rent. He quitted the premises on Nov. 14, but did not return the key to the plaintiff till about Dec. 2. The plaintiff sued for two months' rent, and the action having been dismissed the plaintiff appealed. Held, that the length of notice to quit in the case of weekly and monthly tenancies has not been fixed precisely, but the general principle is that in the absence of special stipulation reasonable notice must be given, and that a notice equal in length to the period of the tenancy is sufficient. A notice to quit must be given so that it will expire on and with the last day of the period of the tenancy.

Baker v. McCurdy, 7 S.L.R. 340.

CANCELLATION BECAUSE IMMORALITY.

The lease of a house for purposes of prostitution is void. It is no defence to an action for cancellation of such lease to allege that the owner herself keeps a disorderly house and that she wishes to retake possession of her immovable with the intention of occupying it for similar purposes.

Paul v. Cousineau, 24 Que. K.B. 264.

(§ II D—34)—RESILIATION.

Where the landlord does not comply with the covenant in the lease to heat the premises, and where the evidence shews that there was no undue interference on the part of the tenant with the heating apparatus, the lessee will be allowed to cancel the lease.

RESILIATION OF LEASE — DAMAGES — C.C. QUE. 1637.

Although in a lease and hire of things, art. 1637 C.C. (Que.), concerning damages in the case of cancellation of lease, reduces the principle that the party not fulfilling his obligation is liable for all damages resulting from such nonfulfilment, that article nevertheless must be construed according to the circumstances; thus, the rule may vary if the question is about a residence leased for a rather low price, or about business premises, or about a factory leased for a very high rent, or about a lease cancelled in summer time rather than in the fall or the winter. In the present case, the whole year was the basis of the damages awarded.

McGauran v. Bolte, 46 Que. S.C. 513.

CANCELLATION—NEW LEASE TO THIRD PARTY — LIABILITY FOR RENT FOR CANCELLED TERM.

The defendant leased the plaintiff a business premises for 23 months at $500 a month, it being a term of the lease that the first and last months' rent be payable in advance. The plaintiff paid the two months rent and took possession. During the term the parties agreed in writing to cancel the lease and grant a new lease to another person on similar terms. The agreement was carried out, the old lease being cancelled and a new lease given the second lessee, who entered into possession and paid the first and last months' rent in advance. In an action for the recovery of the last month's rent paid by the first lessee:—Held, that the agreement for cancellation of the lease made no provision in respect of the last month's rent, and all the terms of the lease, except as provided for in said agreement, were finally settled by its cancellation.

Perrin v. Antlers Realty Co., 20 B.C.R. 28.

An inscription in review suspends the delay for revision of taxation of a bill of costs. When two causes are joined for trial, enquête and argument in the Superior Court, and there is one inscription in review with a single deposit, only one bill of costs will be allowed in the Court of Review though the Superior Court pronounced separate judgments. In an action by the lessee for resiliation of the lease if the defendant consents to reduce the amount due or accruing due to him for rent from $500 to $200 and consents to the resiliation but with costs against the plaintiff which offer is refused, the cause then continues as commenced and the costs will be those of an action for $500 as well in the Superior Court as in the Court of Review.

Woodley v. Peloquin Hotel Co., 13 Que. P.R. 257.

An assignment for benefit of creditors by the tenant is not, in itself, a ground for cancellation of a lease. The landlord has no lien on the proceeds of sale of an hotel lease following the assignment. The court cannot allow the sale en bloc of the movables, the license and the lease of the insolvent tenant, as it would be impossible to make a precise allotment of the amount for which the landlord has the right to be collocated in preference to the other creditors.

CANCELLATION OF LEASE—AMOUNT OF DAMAGES TO LANDLORD.

Theoret v. Trudeau, 12 Que. P.R. 92.

E. ASSIGNMENT; SUBLETTING.

(§ II E—35)—WHAT CONSTITUTES—BUSINESS MANAGER.

Where the tenant under an assignment amounting to a lease containing a covenant or condition not to sell, mortgage, pledge, sublet, or assign such agreement or license or any interest therein, or to permit any person to have an interest in or use any part of the premises, enters into an agreement with a third party purporting to authorize the latter to act as his business manager and to take the excess over $1,500 of the profits of a business conducted on the premises, and obligating the third party to pay to the tenant in two instalments the sum of $1,500 not necessarily to be derived from the profits of the business, such agreement is substantially a subletting and the tenant is guilty of a breach of the covenant or condition.

PROVISO FOR LEAVE—LEAVE ARBITRARILY WITHHELD—EFFECT.

Under a condition in a lease that the lessee will not "assign or sublet without leave but such leave shall not be wilfully or arbitrarily withheld," the lessee is at liberty to assign without the lessor's consent if, before assigning, he had made application for the consent and the lessor arbitrarily refused in violation of the agreement. LESSOR'S COVENANT NOT ARBITRARILY TO WITHHOLD CONSENT TO ASSIGN.

The effect of a clause in a lease that the lessor will not arbitrarily withhold his consent to an assignment of the term which the lessee has covenanted not to make without his leave is not to impose an obligation on the lessor to give his consent, but in case it is unreasonably withheld to release the lessee from the obligation of the covenant and to enable him to assign without the lessor's consent. Under s. 26 (b) of the King's Bench Act, c. 46, R.S.M. 1913, a lease to the Government of Manitoba, or the rent due thereunder, cannot be assigned so as to make the assignment binding upon the Government unless the assignment be accepted in writing by the Provincial Treasurer.

Elliott v. Forrester, [1918] 2 W.W.R. 220.

SUBLEASE—ACCEPTANCE—PRESUMPTION—CANCELLATION—PAROL EVIDENCE—ULTRA PETITA.

If a lessor accepts rent from a subtenant, he is presumed to accept the latter as his tenant, unless it appears that he has not abandoned his rights against the principal tenant. Should the lessor, who has allowed the subletting, sue the principal lessee with attachment for rent and ask the cancellation of the lease, and obtain judgment in his favour, the subtenant occupying the premises with his own furniture has a sufficient interest to oppose that judgment as a third party. An agreement between a lessor and a sublessee, to the effect that the rents of July, August and September, amounting each to over $50, and which were payable in advance, should be paid respectively in the course of the month, may be proven by oral evidence with a commencement of proof in writing in three cheques, one dated July 12 for $125, another dated July 13 for $75, and a third one dated July 25 for $475, given to the lessor on account of the rent of July. A lessor who takes possession of the leased premises and occupies them himself, cannot later sue the lessee for cancellation of the lease and base his action on the rent due for that period of time covering his occupation. When premises are sublet with the consent of the lessor, even if the latter has reserved his recourse against his principal lessee, an action for the cancellation of the lease cannot be brought by him without bringing the sublessee into the case. If the conclusions in an action for attachment for rent asking the cancellation of the lease are taken against the principal lessee only, the sublessee who was occupying the premises with the lessor's consent, not having been called in the case, the court cannot, without deciding "ultra petita" order the expulsion of the sublessee.

Duchess Amusement Co. v. Desmarteau, 27 Que. K.B. 541.

ASSIGNMENT—COVENANT.

An assignee of a lease who stipulates that "if the assignor sells the business which he is actually carrying on he shall have the right to transfer his lease," may, after he has made a voluntary abandonment of his property, transfer his lease and his business, with the approval of his creditors, and of freeing the original lessee of all his obligations to the owner. The original lessee has no right to complain of the abandonment to creditors.

Labonte v. Sicotte, 24 Rev. Leg. 250.

(§ II E.—36)—ASSIGNMENT.

If a lease contains a covenant not to assign the lease without the lessor's consent (and that in such event the lessor could re-enter) and such covenant is violated by the lessee, the proper remedy for the lessor is to enter and terminate the lease; and notice to quit at a future date and a distraint made for the rent cannot be said to be evidence of a re-entry, as the lessee was thus recognized as a tenant by the lessor.

Pigeon v. Preston, 8 D.L.R. 126, 22 W.L.R. 894, 3 W.W.R. 694.

ASSIGNMENT OF LEASE—RESTRICTIVE COVENANT AS TO HOTEL—"TIED" HOUSE.

A covenant contained in a document separate from the mortgage given by the owner of the realty upon procuring a loan from a brewing company upon his hotel property whereby such owner and its tenant in occupation of the hotel severally agreed for valuable consideration with the brewing company that neither they nor their assigns would, during a specified period, sell or deal in or allow to be sold or dealt in upon the demised premises any brewing products other than those dealt in by the brewing company, is a covenant running with the land which may be enforced by injunction at the instance of the owner against a purchaser of the lessee's interests in the premises where such purchaser took with notice of such restrictive agreement, although the agreement was subsequent to the making of the lease itself the benefit of which the purchaser had acquired, and although it did not appear that the making of such restrictive agreement was a condition upon which the lease was granted.

COVENANT AGAINST ASSIGNMENT—MAKING LEASE PARTNERSHIP PROPERTY.

A provision in a partnership agreement whereby one partner agrees to assign to the other partner an interest in a lease to be used for the business of the partnership, in consideration of his share of contribution, operates as a mere equitable assignment, and does not constitute a breach of a covenant in the lease against assignment as a ground of forfeiture of the lease.

Herschorn v. St. Mary's Young Men's Society, 25 D.L.R. 102, 49 N.S.R. 260.

WHAT PASSES TO ASSIGNEE—GUARANTY OF RENT.

An assignment by a lessor, of all the rights, powers, title and interest in a lease, with all the benefit and advantage to be derived therefrom, carries with it the benefit of a guaranty contained in the lease for the payment of the rent by the lessee.

ASSIGNMENT WITHOUT LEAVE—UNREASONABLE REFUSAL OF LESSOR TO CONSENT—RIGHT TO ASSIGN—DECLARATION—DAMAGES—COSTS.

Childs v. King, 8 O.W.N. 511.

(§ II E.—37)—COVENANTS—BREACH—SUB-LETTING.

Permitting a real estate dealer to use for his business any portion of a leased store building during the day-time, and to display cards in the windows, without paying rent therefor, or having a key to the premises, is not a breach of a covenant against sub-letting, since he was merely a licensee.

SUB-LEASE—CONSENT.

The sub-letting of an immovable by the lessee does not relieve him of his obligations to his lessor, who preserves all his rights and privileges under his lease. Knowledge of the lessor of the sub-lease, and his acquiescence therein in receiving his rent directly from the sub-lessee, is equivalent to a consent in writing to this sub-lease and constitutes a waiver of the prohibition against sub-letting.

Renaud v. Pasquini, 52 Que. S.C. 28.

SUB-LEASE—PARTNERSHIP—QUEBEC LAW.

Where a tenant of a shop had agreed in his lease to garnish the premises with sufficient property to secure payment of the rent, and then forms a partnership with other parties who become the owner of the goods and movables on the premises, the tenant violates his agreement, and the landlord has the right to bring an action to rescind the lease.

Payette v. Payette, 44 Que. S.C. 536.

SUBLEASE—CONSENT.

The following acts by a landlord or by his agent are equivalent to consent in writing to the sub-letting of leased premises: the passing of the sub-lease and its ratification by the principal landlord's own notary, being at the time his agent; the recognition by the latter of the occupant as sub-tenant; sending to the sub-tenant a notice to quit the premises; claiming ownership to improvements made by the sub-tenant. The right of sub-letting with the consent in writing or the approbation of the landlord differs from absolute prohibition to sub-let or to assign the lease; the latter must be interpreted strictly while the former leaves to the court the decision as to the landlord's consent.

Laroque v. Freeman's, 50 Que. S.C. 231.

COVENANT—WAIVER.

A lessor who stipulates that sub-letting shall not be allowed without his express consent may tacitly waive this stipulation. Waiver may be inferred from the long inaction of the lessor after being aware of the sub-lease, and especially from the fact that he had received without protest rents from the sub-lessee on behalf of the original lessee, these facts constituting an evident acquiescence in the sub-lease.

Learmonth v. Goodman, 49 Que. S.C. 12.

SUBLEASE.

When a lessee has reserved the right not to consent to a sub-letting in whole or in part of the property leased for the purposes of living and manufacturing, unless the sub-lessee so offered should be acceptable to him and to his lessors, other parties in the house, the refusal by the lessor to accept the sub-lease for a laundry establishment, for the reason that different inconveniences may result from such an establishment will not be considered by a tribunal as an abuse of a discretionary power thus reserved by the lessor.

Mayer v. David, 18 Rev. de Jur. 6.

LESSEE'S LIABILITY FOR DAMAGES RESULTING FROM UNAUTHORIZED SUB-LEASE—CHINESE LAUNDRY—PRIOR JUDGMENT FOR CANCELLATION.

A lessee who sub-lets a house, notwithstanding sub-letting has been forbidden, to a nondesirable person such as a Chinaman keeping a laundry, is liable for the damages caused by the proximity of such person. Thus he may be ordered to pay to the lessor the loss of rent from a neighbouring lessee and the attorney's costs in the action to cancel the lease of the latter, his own expenses of moving and the cost of disinfection. These damages can neither be considered too remote nor as unforeseen. The lessee in such case cannot set up against such demand for damages, as res judicata, a prior judgment between the same parties granting to the lessor the cancellation of the lease with damages for the balance of the rent up to the end of the year and a reservation for the future rent.

Mayer v. David, 47 Que. S.C. 516.

SUBLEASE.

A sub-lease by a tenant of premises occupied for a number of years as a furrier's shop and residence, to a sub-tenant, as a restaurant with rooms to let, does not amount to using them for a purpose contrary to the evident intent for which they were leased (art. 1624 C.C. Que. s. 1). Hence, it affords no ground for an action by the owner to rescind the principal lease.

Latreille v. Beaumier, 44 Que. S.C. 476.

When the lease of a shop contains a prohibition to sublet, it is violated by the tenant if he forms a partnership to take over his business and carry it on in the premises; so doing amounts to a sublease, and the landlord has a right of action to rescind the lease.

Payette v. Payette, 44 Que. S.C. 536.

(§ II E—38)—SUB-LETTING—CONSENT IN WRITING—COVENANT NOT TO ASSIGN—LETTER OF CONSENT BY AGENT.

A consent in writing by the lessor to a sub-letting for which such consent is necessary under a covenant not to sub-let without leave may be effectually shown by a letter of consent written by the lessor's agent in his own name but stating that it is given on behalf of the principal.

Brown v. Toothills, 20 D.L.R. 584, 7 W. R.R. 318.

III. Rights and liabilities of parties.

A. IN GENERAL.

(§ III A—40)—NUISANCE—FACTORY—NEG-LIGENCE.

The noise, odour and vibrations resulting from the operation of a sausage factory, not attributable to any negligence, will not render a lessee, who rented the premises for such purpose, liable to the lessor for the damage resulting therefrom.

Pasquini v. Mainville, 37 D.L.R. 130, 52 Que. S.C. 22.

LIABILITY OF TENANT—DAMAGE FROM FREEZ-ING.

A tenant who brings something to rented premises which is liable to cause damage to the property unless proper precautions are taken, is liable for the resulting damage where such precautions have not been taken.

LEASE OF FARM BY MOTHER TO SON—ACTION FOR BREACHES OF COVENANTS—FAILURE TO PROVE BREACHES—IMPROVEMENTS—FINDINGS OF FACT OF TRIAL JUDGE.

Léonard v. Léonard, 15 O.W.N. 169.

CROPS—AGREEMENT—FORFEITURE OF LEASE—RIGHTS AND LIABILITIES OF PARTIES.

SALE OF PROPERTY—DESTRUCTION OF BUILD-INGS BY PURCHASER—RIGHTS OF TENANT—C.C. (QUE.) ART. 1053.

Where a lessee occupies a lot in good faith, under a lease legally given or not, and built upon it, the subsequent buyer of the property cannot, without the authority of the court, demolish this building and expose the goods stored in it to destruction. Where a verbal lease is admitted by the parties to it, a third party cannot deny its existence on the ground that such a lease cannot be proved by witnesses, unless fraud or collusions is alleged.

Mongrain v. Canadian Carbonate Co., 46 Que. S.C. 534.

The lease of a coachhouse and yard, for instruction in gymnastics, at the rear of a dwelling-house, with a living-room in the latter, does not entitle the lessee to cause his pupils to pass through the house to reach the premises leased. Oral evidence of an agreement between the parties according such right of passage is not admissible. If the lease is silent on the point the lessee has a right to enjoy the leased premises and use them as he had previously done, according to the necessities of his business when these were known to the lessor, and in the manner in which he had enjoyed them at the date of the lease, and oral evidence of these conditions was admissible.

Roumageon v. Chêne, 41 Que. S.C. 178.

The obligation of the lessee to make improvements on the immovable lease is an essential condition of the emphyteutic lease. Hence, the lease of a lot for a term of 99 years with no other conditions than "to pay the rent and taxes, maintain the fences and refrain from cutting down the trees," is not emphyteutic especially if it contains a provision that either party may terminate it on giving to the other twelve months' notice. It cannot, then, give the lessee a right to bring an action négatoire nor to formulate conclusions accessoires for indemnity in such action. The offer or proposal by one party to an action to cease litigation, which is refused, involves no admission and is not binding on him.

Larne v. Chateau Frontenac Co., 41 Que. S.C. 193.

LIABILITY OF TENANT—FIRES—PRESUMPTION.

A tenant is liable for the damages sustained by the proprietor of the leased premises caused by the destruction thereof by fire unless he produces evidence, to the satisfaction of the court, in rebuttal of the presumption of fault on his part which the law imposes upon him under art. 1629, C.C. (Que.). The fact that, during a high wind blowing against the side of the building, hot ashes have been kept in a wooden receptacle near trellis-work of old dry wood, at the place where the fire originated, is sufficient to establish the liability of the tenant.

Appleton v. Reynolds, 50 Que. S.C. 343.

AS TO SIGNS AND POSTERS.

A lessee has the right to put on the building, which he occupies under the lease, the signs necessary to his trade. He can also allow posters to be put on the walls of the house and of its outhouses and draw benefits from them; but such right applies only to temporary posters and not to permanent ones. Besides, he has to take into account the rights to bill-sticking conceded by the lessor in which he has acquiesced.

Asch v. Haney, 49 Que. S.C. 131.

LIABILITY OF LANDLORD AS FAR AS HEATING THE PREMISES—"MISE EN DEMEURE."

A cotenant is obliged to heat the apartments which he occupies as a merchant and which is situated immediately below an apartment that he rents to another tenant, in such a way that the apartment of the second is suitable for persons to live in. St. Germain v. Rubin, 25 Rev. de Jur. 140.

DISTRESS.

A lessor is justified in resorting to seizure if the lessee, in place of merely taking away his movables for the purpose of having them repaired, removes them for the purpose of quitting the premises and of paying no rent thereafter.

Learmonth v. Quebec Furniture Co., 52 Que. S.C. 55.

When a lease contains a clause that the lessee shall at its expiration deliver up the premises in the same condition as they were in when he received them, accidents by fire excepted, the liability of the parties, in case of fire, is determined according to the principles contained in arts. 1053-4, C.C. (Que.). The lessee is guilty of negligence when the fire is caused in attempting to thaw out water pipes, by an inexperienced person, by the use of a gasoline lamp or torch, and he is liable to the owner for the damages suffered thereby. It does not amount to a fortuitous event.

Ecclesiastiques du Séminaire de Saint Sulpice v. Frothingham, 51 Que. S.C. 214.

FIRE—PRESUMPTION.

In case of fire on leased premises, if the lessee does not rebut the presumption that it was caused by his fault he is liable for the injury caused to the lessor by the loss of the rent.

Learmonth v. Quebec Furniture Co., 52 Que. S.C. 55.

TENANT'S RIGHTS—LEASE OF HEATED APARTMENTS.

PLACE FOR SALE OF PROVISIONS—CONTRAVENTION OF BY-LAW—RECOURSE OF LESSEE.

Merson v. Wollenberg, 40 Que. S.C. 283.

(§ III A-41)—AGREEMENT TO SUPPLY WATER FREE.

A condition in a lease for business purposes of premises connected for water supply from the city main and furnished with a sink and lavatory equipment, that the water is to be free to the tenant, is not a warranty by the lessor that under all circumstances water shall be supplied to the tenant, but it does obligate the landlord not to lessen the supply which the tenant ordinarily received and needed for the purpose of his business, either by the landlord's own act or by the act of other lessees claiming under him.

BURSTING OF HOT-WATER PIPES—LIABILITY OF LESSEE.

A lessee of a house is not responsible for the damages caused by the bursting of the hot-water pipes on account of the frost, when it is caused by the defects in the heating apparatus and in the construction of the house.

Davidson v. King, 48 Que. S.C. 392.

(§ III A—42)—STATUS OF PLAINTIFF AS RATEPAYER—TENANT—LIABILITY FOR TAXES.

Rochford v. Brown, 25 O.L.R. 206, 20 O.W.R. 591.

(§ III A—43)—BREACH OF COVENANT TO REPAIR—MEASURE OF DAMAGES—RENT—EVICTION.

A landlord's breach of covenant to repair will render him liable to the tenant for all damages naturally resulting from the breach; but unless amounting to a total eviction it is no defence to a claim for rent.

"TENANT'S REPAIRS"—CONSEQUENTIAL DAMAGES—LIABILITY.

Neglect to make "tenant's repairs" (art 1635, C.C. Que.) in that portion of the building which he occupies renders a tenant liable for damage from such neglect to occupants of other portions.

Paquet v. Nor-mount Realty Co., 28 D.L.R. 458, 49 Que. S.C. 302.

AS TO REPAIRS.

A tenant who has not covenanted or agreed to make repairs is entitled to compensation for making repairs on demised premises only when made at the request of his landlord.

WRITTEN LEASE—FORMAL DEMAND—TESTIMONIAL PROOF—C. 6, ARTS. 1067, 1070, 1233, 1614.

No tenant of a house in virtue of a written lease can claim damages from the owner because of the bad state of the house which he occupies, without summoning him to make the necessary repairs. This formal demand should be in writing since the lease itself is in writing.

Deslover v. Mansfield, 25 Rev. Leg. 155.

AS TO REPAIRS.

Where a lease contains a covenant by the lessee to repair, but no provision as to notice to the tenant to repair, the landlord is not bound to give the tenant notice to repair before doing the repairs himself and proceeding to recover the cost. A collapse of the floors of a building, due to overloading, is not an accident or other casualty within the meaning of the exception in s. 55 (b) of the Land Titles Act.

Telfer v. Fisher, 3 A.L.R. 425.

KNOWLEDGE OF WANT OF REPAIR—CANCELLATION OF LEASE.

A lessee of a house, which he well knows has been inhabited, who takes possession in spite of its age and dilapidations, has none the less the right to insist upon the necessary repairs when new dilapidations caused by the age of the house or by faults of construction augmented to the old delapidation, render the house uninhabitable. The refusal of the lessor to repair, gives the lessee the right to take proceedings for cancellation of the lease.

Lair v. Simonovitch, 45 Que. S.C. 341.

PROTECTION OF DRAINS TO PREVENT FLOODING—DUTY OF TENANT.

It is not a defect in construction to protect by a cage, the opening of a drain soil pipe on the roof of a building, even when the neglect to keep it free and clear from refuse would cause the flooding of the roof. It is the duty of the tenant to attend to this clearing.

Cooper v. Holden Co., 48 Que. S.C. 455.

QUIET ENJOYMENT—REPAIRS.

Where a lessee is unable to claim damages under his lease on account of partial destruction of the leased premises by fire, the lessor is nevertheless bound to procure peaceable enjoyment of the premises for the lessee during the whole term of the lease and, for such purpose, he is obliged to make the necessary repairs with diligence.

Ruthman v. Massé, 25 Que. K.B. 193.

REPAIRS—HIDDEN DEFECTS—SUBLEASE.

A tenant who has been notified, or has reason to suspect, that the walls of the building are not solid, who neglects to have them examined, cannot plead ignorance of such hidden defects in order to justify the demolition of the building, without being responsible towards his subtenant; this is neither an unforeseen circumstance nor vis major. Works absolutely necessary to be done on a building in order to remove defects in construction which affect its solidity are not repairs which are charged upon the tenant in the absence of a special agreement to that effect. The obligation undertaken by a sublessor, to make repairs for the benefit of his sub-tenant, does not discharge the principal lessor from liability in respect to the hidden defects in the building, even in regard to sub-tenants who are in occupation of the leased premises.

Larocque v. Freeman's, 50 Que. S.C. 231.

REPAIRS—TIME FOR MAKING—PAYMENT OF RENT.

Where a lessor agrees to make repairs without specifying any time within which they are to be made, it is understood that the repairs should be completed on the date when the tenant takes possession. A provision to make all necessary repairs, without reduction of rent, and finished within reasonable time, as well as art. 1634, C.C. (Que.) apply only to repairs which become necessary during the term of the lease, and when the lessee can take possession only after completion of the repairs, he is not bound to pay the rent except from such time as he may have been able to occupy the leased premises.

Royal Trust Co. v. White, 50 Que. S.C. 277.

REPAIRS—DELAY.

When a lease stipulates that the owner shall have a reasonable delay to make extensive necessary repairs the delay of 40 days in art. 1634, C.C. (Que.) does not apply. The repairs of a wall warped and about to fall must be made with haste.

Lippé v. Dupont, 52 Que. S.C. 20.

APPARENT DEFECTS—INJURIES—LIABILITY.

A lessor, who stipulates in a lease that he shall not be bound to make any repairs, even those required by law if they are not mentioned in the lease, is not responsible for damages sustained by the lessee from a fall on a stairway in an outhouse, on which a step was in bad repair, the lease making no mention of repairs to this stairway. Besides, the condition of the step cannot be deemed a hidden defect, and the lessee should not have exposed himself to the danger which he might have foreseen.

Barry v. Quinlan, 24 Rev. Leg. 126.

COVENANT—ROOF—RAIN PIPES—FORCE MAJEURE—DAMAGES.

An unusual storm, but not an extraordinary one, which can be foreseen and its disastrous effects prevented by ordinary means, is not force majeure or a fortuitous event. The owner of an immovable is responsible for the maintenance of down pipes which conduct rain water. A clause in a lease that "the lessor will not be bound to make any repairs whatsoever, not even the greater repairs which the law requires of lessors," does not apply to a case where repairs are necessary to a roof which shelters several lessees occupying different floors of the house. In an action for damages caused to merchandise, an application by the defendant, in the course of the proceedings, that an examination and valuation of the depreciation be made, should be granted, but if, at such period, the merchandise had changed its condition, the application is properly refused.

Genereux v. Bonnet, 24 Rev. Leg. 319.

REPAIRS—DRAIN PIPE—ROOF—LATENT DEFECTS.

The defects, which a person visiting the premises to be rented cannot ascertain de visu, constitutes a latent defect; and the tenant is not obliged to report it to the proprietor. The tenant is not obliged to repair the pipe which drains the roof of the house he occupies, unless these repairs have been rendered necessary by his fault and negligence.

Vyse v. Stephens, 24 Rev. Leg. 222.

(§ III A—44)—AS TO POSSESSION—LANDLORD'S FAILURE TO DELIVER—PRIOR TENANT FAILING TO VACATE—DAMAGES, HOW LIMITED.

The damages against the lessor for failure to deliver possession to the lessee may be limited to the advance rent paid if the lessee for a new term is shewn to have taken his lease subject to the present tenant vacating and to the new tenant arranging for possession.

Sanofsky v. Harris, 19 D.L.R. 325.

RIGHTS AND LIABILITIES OF PARTIES—AS TO POSSESSION—LANDLORD'S CONTRACTOR—SCOPE OF EMPLOYMENT—DAMAGES.

That a building contractor for the erection of a large block for the defendant covering the location of the leased building and adjoining lands had razed the building, in the course of the operations contracted for, is evidence that what he did was authorized by the defendant so as to establish a claim for damages brought by a tenant who had been wrongfully dispossessed by such act.

Hart v. Brown, 19 D.L.R. 728, 8 A.L.R. 444.

AS TO POSSESSION.

The refusal of a lessee to make a cash payment for personal property purchased from a lessor under an agreement apart from a lease, as he agreed to do, does not justify the former's refusal to let the lessee into possession of the demised premises.

Wood v. Saunders, 3 D.L.R. 342, 21 W.L.R. 195.

INABILITY OF LESSORS TO GIVE POSSESSION OF DEMISED PREMISES—VALIDITY OF CONTRACT—FORMER TENANT REFUSING TO GIVE UP POSSESSION—ACTION BY LESSEE FOR SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE—DECLARATION—REVERSION—RIGHT TO RECEIVE RENT OF PREMISES—DAMAGES—CANCELLATION OF LEASE.

Keeley v. Reaume, 12 O.W.N. 342.

(§ III A—44a)—AS TO IMPROVEMENTS.

Where a lease of a coal mining property provides that, at the expiration of the term, the value of the improvements added to the property by the lessee, in the way of plant, machinery, mining appliances and other betterments, shall be appraised with reference to the amount and character of the work which they were intended to perform and will be able to perform when and after the appraisement is made, and, upon the expiration of the term, a new lease is made, whereby that appraisement is waived, and it is provided that, upon the expiration of the term granted by the new lease, the lessor shall pay to the lessee, on appraisement, the value of the improvements added to the property by the lessee, in the way of plant, machinery, mining appliances and other betterments, etc., during the period of the former lease as well as of the new lease, but that no stope, shaft, tunnel, gangway, breast, manway, airway, support, work or fixed apparatus, constructed, made or used underground, shall be considered improvements or betterments so as to be subject to valuation and payment as aforesaid, except such as shall be of actual value to the lessor in the future operation of any such stope, etc., at the expiration of this lease, the word "operation" must be taken to mean the operation of the mine by the use of such stope, etc., so that all stopes, etc., which are of use for the future operation of the mine, are to be considered as improvements and to be appraised at their value as improvements added to the property, which means the property as leased, and not as returned to the lessor, so that those stoves, etc., which are simply the result of taking out coal, will probably have added nothing to the value of the property, but will rather have depreciated it, by reason of the removal of the coal of greater value than the cost of their construction; and for the purpose of the appraisalment the two terms of the tenancy may be treated as one continuous term, and the property to be considered as being affected by improvements may be taken as it existed at the commencement of the first lease.

B. AS TO FIXTURES AND PROPERTY ON PREMISES.

Rights of parties to crops, void lease, see Levy and Seizure, I-18.

(§ III B-45)—PARTY WALL—DEMOLITION—DAMAGES.

The lessee of a house, whose owner, without any right, has made use of the wall of a neighbouring building as if it was a party wall, has no remedy in damages against his neighbour if the latter demolishes this wall which belongs to him, taking necessary precautions. The remedy of the lessee, in such case, is against his lessor.

Goldberg v. Lavut, 53 Que. S.C. 508.

DRAINS AND SEWERS—DUTY OF TENANT.

When a tenant leaves the rented premises, he should turn off the water and drain the water out of the pipes; if he neglects this precaution, he is liable for the damages that may be caused to the owner through the breaking open of the pipes and the flooding of the house. The tenant is also responsible for the cleaning, if he leaves it in a malodorous condition.

Commercial Properties v. Compagnie Ledue, 54 Que. S.C. 392.

BUILDINGS BURNED—LIABILITY.

The defendant, C. was tenant of the plaintiff from year to year, determinable on notice. His servant, P. after replenishing a fire in a stove went out leaving the drafts improperly checked and a quantity of inflammable fats close at hand and no one to watch it. A fire resulted and the buildings were burned. In an action by the landlord for damages it was held that the fire was an accidental one.

Paul v. Currah, 12 S.L.R. 278, [1919] 2 W.W.R. 359.

TRADE FIXTURES—NEW TENANT PURCHASING INTEREST OF FORMER TENANT—NEW LEASE TO NEW TENANT—FURTHER ASSIGNMENT OF TENANCY—ASSIGNMENT BY TENANT FOR BENEFIT OF CREDITORS—RIGHT OF ASSIGNEE TO FIXTURES.

Where parties purchased a tenant's interest in leased premises including trade fixtures, and shortly thereafter took a new lease of the premises from the owner, and the trade fixtures passed through the hands of a number of tenants through assignments or "reorganizations," and the last tenant made an assignment for the benefit of creditors to the defendant who gave a disclaimer, it was held that the fixtures belonged to the defendant and that he had the right to remove them within the three months' delay given by s. 55 (1) of the Creditors' Trusts Deeds Act. The court found that there was never any formal surrender of lease; such surrender as there was was by operation of law only; the circumstances bringing the case within the exception suggested in Leschallas v. Woolf, [1908] 1 Ch. 641.

PAYMENT FOR BUILDINGS—MODE OF VALUATION.

Covenants contained in separate leases on adjoining lots providing the payment for the improvements thereon by the lessor upon the expiration of each lease, in an amount ascertained by valuers, does not authorize a valuation of the improvements on the several lots as an entirety, but the value must be ascertained of the improvements on each lot separately.

BUILDINGS.

A covenant in a lease of a water lot that the lessor should, at its expiration, pay the lessee the value of "buildings and erections put up for manufacturing purposes" by the latter, includes not only a building erected thereon but earth and stone used to support and stiffen a crib work foundation upon which the building stood, in order to prevent vibration incident to the use of machinery therein. A substructure necessary to uphold and keep useful for manufacturing purposes the buildings and erections constructed upon them is itself an "erection" or "building" for the purpose of compensation by the landlord under the provisions of a ground lease whereby the landlord on electing not to renew is obliged to compensate the lessee for the "buildings and erections" placed by the latter on the land demised.

CROPS.

A lease for five years of land in which the lessor had a life estate only was held to have been put an end to by the death of the lessor during the term; but the wheat then sown and in the ground became emblements belonging to the lessee; and these being purchased from the lessee by the plaintiffs, the executors of the lessor, the defendant, the remainderman, became liable to them for their conversion. No so, however, the straw and manure on the farm at the determination of the lease. By the terms of the lessee's covenant, these were to be kept and utilized on and for the land, and were not the property of or removable by the lessee; the straw and manure, as "accessories of the soil" passed to the remainderman with the land freed from the demise. [Gardner v. Perry, 2 O.W.R. 681, not followed.]

Atkinson v. Farrell, 8 D.L.R. 582, 27 O.L.R. 204.

Plaintiff claimed the right, under 8 Anne, c. 14, s. 1, to have the year's rent paid by the sheriff out of the crops seized:—Held, that to entitle a landlord to such right there must be a real lease and the rent reserved must be a real bona fide rent and not an excessive one and there should be shewn an intention of the parties to create a real tenancy at a real rent and not merely, under colour and pretence of a lease to give the mortgagee additional security, and that the verdict should be against the plaintiff on the issue in this case. (§ III B—51)—MANURE.

Where a lessee of a term for years in land in which the lessor had only a life estate, covenants not to remove from the premises, but to use and spend thereon, the straw and manure made upon the land, the straw and manure do not become emblements on the death of the lessor and the consequent termination of the lease, but belong to the remainderman, as "accessories of the soil." [Gardner v. Perry, 6 O.L.R. 269, disapproved.] In a farm lease there is an implied provision, unless the contrary is expressed, that the tenant will till and manure in a good husbandlike and proper manner, and will spend, use and employ in a proper husbandlike manner, all the straw and manure which shall grow, arise or be made thereon, and will not remove or permit to be removed from the premises any straw or manure.

(§ III B—53)—PERSONAL PROPERTY.

C. LIABILITY OF LANDLORD FOR DEFECTIVE OR DANGEROUS PREMISES.

(§ III C—55)—COVENANT AGAINST LIABILITY.

A lessor's covenant to supply steam for heating demised premises does not give him such possession and control of the heating system and radiators as to render him liable to a tenant as on an implied covenant to keep the premises in repair, for the fall of a radiator that was insecurely fastened to the ceiling, where the lease expressly negated the lessor's duty to repair, and also relieved him from liability for all damages occasioned by defects in or accidents to any part of the heating plant or service. A lessor of unfurnished premises is not answerable for damages occasioned his tenant by reason of the defective condition thereof where the former did not covenant to keep them in repair, but expressly stipulated for freedom from responsibility for damages from such cause, and where the lease contained an acknowledgment that the tenant had examined the premises, and that no representations as to their condition or as to repairs had been made by the lessor. LIABILITY OF LANDLORD FOR DEFECTIVE OR DANGEROUS PREMISES.

The proprietor of a building which burns down owing to a defect in construction (e.g. a single brick chimney, one side of which is placed right along wood), which by law he is bound to know, is responsible in damages to his boarders for the value of their effects destroyed as a result of such fire.

DEFECTIVE ELEVATOR—INJURY.

A landlord is not responsible for injuries resulting from the defective condition of an elevator upon premises in possession of a tenant, even though from time to time he sent his engineer to repair it, and although at the time of the demise, the elevator was out of repair or in a dangerous condition

WARRANTY—DAMAGES—LESSEES' KNOWLEDGE.

Although a lessor may be liable for damages caused by reason of defects in the thing rented, which prevents or diminishes its use, the lessee has no remedy in damages when the defects are apparent and the lessee knew of them before taking the lease.

Villocourt v. Blais, 53 Que. S.C. 115.

(§ III C—63)—LEASE—SUBLEASE—DEFECTIVE PREMISES—INJURY TO PROPERTY OF SUBTENANT—RIGHTS OF PARTIES.

A lease under the Short Forms of Leases Act, R.S.C. 1914, c. 116, contained a clause under which the owner agreed to heat the demised premises "during all lawful working days to a reasonable extent." The lessor was not to be responsible for damages "during necessary repairs to the heating plant, nor if the parties under contract with the lessor to heat said building fail to do so, until he shall have received reasonable notice from time to time of the conditions, and shall have taken over the heating of the said building himself and shall have had a reasonable opportunity of remedying such conditions." The lessee sublet part of the premises to the plaintiff, who suffered damages through the freezing of the water pipes between Saturday and Monday morning during an unusually cold period. Held, that the sublessee did not incur any liability to the owner on the covenant of his immediate landlord to "repair, reasonable wear and tear only excepted," but took subject to the obligation of such immediate landlord, and had no right to look to the owner to repair any part of the demised premises. He and his immediate landlord took the premises as they were and were not entitled to damages for loss sustained owing to the defective condition of the premises. [Rylands v. Fletcher, L.R. 3 H.L. 330, distinguished.]

(§ III C—65)—INJURY TO TENANT—USE OF FIRE-ESCAPE—DRYING CLOTHES.

There is no implied invitation or license to use a fire-escape for any other purposes than that for which it was intended, and a landlord is not liable for injuries sustained by a tenant by falling through an unrailed opening of a fire-escape while drying clothes thereon.

TO TENANT'S EMPLOYEES—ICY ENTRANCE—CONDITION OF DOORS.

A landlord is not liable to an employee of a tenant of rooms in a building for injuries sustained in consequence of the jamming of an outdoor at the entrance to the building by ice on the approach thereto, of which landlord had no knowledge; an unwieldy door, otherwise properly constructed, is not a defect.

CONDITION OF PREMISES.

When a lease contains no express declaration that the leased premises are in perfect order, the lessee, who executed it after he entered into possession without any protest, may, in an action based on deteriorations to the premises, give evidence as to the condition in which they were when his occupation began.

David v. Bacon, 52 Que. S.C. 42.

(§ III C-70)—DUTY AS TO REPAIRS—DEFECTS—FLOODING—VIS MAJOR.

A lessor is obliged to provide against defects in the leased premises which prevent the enjoyment by the lessee, even those that are hidden (art. C.C. Que. 1614), but is not liable for damages through defects of which he was ignorant when the lease was made unless they have afterwards been made known to him, and he has neglected to make repairs, or they were known or ought to have been known to the lessee at the making of the lease. To establish the defence of vis major or the act of God, it is not necessary that the event should never have happened before, it is sufficient that its happening could not have been reasonably expected.

Bénard v. Hingston, 39 D.L.R. 137, 56 Can. S.C.R. 17, affirming 32 D.L.R. 651, 25 Que. K.R. 512.

REPAIRS—REMOVAL—DAMAGES.

Where a lessee of business offices sues in damages for injury resulting from improvements to the building, which compelled him to move his offices elsewhere, he cannot include in his damages the money he spent in publishing his new address throughout the province and elsewhere. An amount large enough to publish it locally is sufficient.

Le Credit Canada v. Waterman, 24 Rev. Leg. 406.

DEFECTIVE YARD—INJURY TO CHILD.

A tenant bound under a lease to make tenant's repairs, and under which the lessor is relieved from making any repairs whatever, has no cause of action against the landlord for injuries to her infant child caused by its tripping over a loose board in the floor of a yard used in common by all the tenants.

Brown v. Lamotte, 32 D.L.R. 738, 25 Que. K.B. 492.

(§ III C-72)—LEAKAGE IN SEWER PIPE—FAILURE TO REPAIR—LIABILITY OF LANDLORD.

Where a landlord leases a house to several tenants, he retains such control over the premises as to render him liable for damages caused by failure to repair a leak in a sewer pipe in the apartment of a tenant, in an upper flat, which causes damage to the tenant of a shop on the ground floor of the premises.

Brown v. Garson, 42 N.B.R. 354.

DUE TO FAILURE TO REPAIR.

Where the structure of a building, consisting of several tenements, requires a drain-pipe to draw off rain water from the roof of a part of it, the obligation of keeping it in order is primarily in the landlord. In answer, therefore, to a claim for damages by one of the tenants, caused by leakage of water that should have been carried off by the pipe, he cannot set up the defence that it was blocked by refuse or other matter thrown into it by the other tenants, "a trespass by third parties not pretending to have any right upon the thing leased (art. 1616, C.C. Que.)" for which he is not liable.

(§ III C-73)—DEFECTIVE WATER SYSTEM—LEAKAGE.

Leakages of water occurring frequently through the ceiling from the upper to the lower floors of a building which was occupied by various tenants, but over which the proprietors had sole control of the construction and maintenance of the water system, may raise a presumption that there was a defect in maintenance for which the proprietors may be held liable in damages to their tenants, although the place was not rendered untenable.

Alberta Loan & Investment Co. v. Berenson, 21 D.L.R. 385.

(§ III C-80)—LIABILITY OF LANDLORD FOR DEFECTIVE PREMISES—FALL OF WATER TANK.

A landlord is liable for the damage caused a tenant by the unexplained collapse of a water tank on the roof of the demised building, although it was placed there for the latter's benefit.

Wolff v. Mackay, 12 D.L.R. 750.

HABITABLE CONDITION—EFFECTS STOLEN.

If at the time of entry on leased premises, especially if immediately after work has been completed by the lessor, the walls of a dwelling-house need to be papered or whitewashed, the lessee may, upon refusal of the lessor to do so, cause this work to be done and recover the cost of it from the owner. When a house is not habitable, either because the lessor has not made the necessary repairs or while he is actually making them, and the lessee, while not inhabiting the premises, has placed in them his furniture without locking it up, he has no remedy in damages against the owner if the furniture is lost or stolen in the meantime.

Fauteux v. Beauvais, 49 Que. S.C. 141.

DAMAGE CAUSED BY RODENTS—RESILIATION OF LEASE.

The owner of a house leased as a private residence is liable for damages caused to the lessee by the rats which infest the leased premises, and the lease can be cancelled if the house has become uninhabitable on this account, provided that the lessee is not in fault and has made every effort to destroy or banish them.

Bigonnesse v. Bouchard, 48 Que. S.C. 406.

(§ III C—81)—ALTERATION OF BUILDING—LANDLORD'S CONSENT—ALTERATIONS NOT AUTHORIZED—DAMAGES.

The consent of a landlord to the tenant changing the external front of a building by making a one-store entrance with one door, does not authorize the tenant to make a two-store entrance with two doors—and although the value of the building may be increased, the landlord is entitled to damages for the unauthorized change.

If a landlord of an apartment house leases apartments to persons notoriously unfit to be trusted with the care of same, e.g., because of drunken habits, the landlord may be held liable under Quebec law for damage caused the other tenants thereby, e.g., where the drunken tenant allows the water to overflow so that the rooms below are flooded.

COVENANT—INSOLVENCY—FORFEITURE.

A provision in a lease that six months' rent shall become payable in advance in the event of the lessee's insolvency or his assignment for creditors is enforceable against the lessee if the tenancy had that period to run; it cannot be relieved against, as a penalty or forfeiture, where the lessor was compelled to lease the premises for the unexpired term at a reduced rent.

REDUCTION IN RENT—FLOODING—VIS MAJOR.

Hingston v. Benard, 32 D.L.R. 651, 25 Que. K.B. 512. [Affirmed, 39 D.L.R. 137, 56 Can. S.C.R. 17.]

REPUDIATION OF LEASE—LANDLORD'S REMEDY.

On the repudiation of a lease by a lessee the lessor may recover damages therefor, his remedy not being limited to the enforcement of the payment of rent as it falls due.

AS TO RENT.

Where there is a proviso in a lease that if any of the goods of the lessee shall be at any time during the term seized and taken in execution by any creditor of the said lessee, the then current and next ensuing year's rent shall immediately become due, the landlord cannot give himself any rights under the proviso by procuring the seizure of the tenant's goods either by an execution of his own or that of another.

IN CASE OF ASSIGNMENT FOR CREDITORS.

Under a lease for a term of years containing a provision, that if the lessee make an assignment, three months' future rent should become due and payable and the lessor be at liberty to terminate the lease, does not entitle the lessor to rank as a creditor for the remainder of the term, above three months' if he does not terminate the lease.

RIGHTS AND LIABILITIES OF PARTIES—AS TO RENT—ACTION FOR—EFFECT OF LEVYING DISTRESS.

The plaintiff in an action for rent will not be nonsuited because of a distress levied before bringing action and held unsold when the action was begun, where the goods seized were sold some time before the trial and the defendant advised of the amount realized, so that he was fully aware of the sum claimed as remaining unpaid.

LIABILITY OF SUBLESSEE—TENDER.

A lessee sued for rent by his lessor has an action in warranty against his sublessee who has agreed to pay to the original lessor the rent due by the original lessee and discharge the latter. A tender of rent due for the last two months of a lease, made on the condition that the creditor gives a complete and final discharge, is irregular and illegal.

Renaud v. Pasquini, 52 Que. S.C. 28.

"RENTABLE VALUE"—CROPS.

In ascertaining what is the rentable value for a particular year of a farm rented for one third of the crops, in a locality where it is impossible to find a tenant who will pay a money rental, one can only take the result of the harvest for that year, whatever it was, and divide it by 3. "Rentable value," as the expression is used in the statute (6 Geo. V. (Man.), c. 21), means the gross amount for which the land can be rented without deducting anything for taxes paid by the mortgagee. If the statute had used the expression "net rentable value," the taxes would have to be deducted from the gross rent or income.

Holmes v. Barnett, 27 Man. L.R. 558, [1917] 2 W.W.R. 881.

RENT OF PLANT AT SUM PER DIEM—COMPUTATION OF DAYS—INCLUSION OF SUNDAYS.

The plaintiff rented to the defendants a certain plant; the rental stipulated in the written agreement was $62 per day, "to start immediately on outfit leaving main line and to run each and every day until the work is complete:"—Held, (Clute, J., dissenting), that, in computing the number of days to be paid for, Sundays were to be included. The provision in the contract "one day to constitute ten hours" was for the purpose of determining what should be paid in the event of the plant being worked longer than ten hours. [Gibson v. Michael's Bay Lumber Co., 7 O.R. 746, followed.] Per Clute, J.:—Where a contract is open to two constructions, one of which contravenes a public statute and the other does not, it should be assumed that the parties did not intend to commit a breach of the law. The provisions of the agreement shewed that whatever days or parts of days were to be paid for were those days on which work could be done.

crop of the lessee, is not payable in advance and only becomes due in March, 1918.

St. James v. Perrier, 25 Rev. Leg. 238.
A lease in which it is stipulated that the rent shall be payable by monthly instalments of which the first shall become due on the first of the month, gives to the tenant the whole of the first day of each month, up to the hour of midnight, for the payment of the rent, for the preceding month.

(§ III D—98a)—RESERVATION OF RIGHT TO SELL—TERMINATION.

A right reserved to the lessor in a lease "to sell the demised premises at any time, subject to the right of the lessee to the crops sown prior to sale," includes by implication the right to terminate the lease on a sale being made although the lease itself did not expressly declare that a sale should have that effect.

(§ III D—99)—INCOMPLETE LEASE—SURRENDER OF POSSESSION.

If the agreement for a lease is one of which specific performance will be ordered, the tenant holding under such agreement is not merely a tenant from year to year, but stands in the same position as to liability as if the lease had been executed; so where the tenant had not been given possession of all of the premises in pursuance of the agreement and the landlord would in consequence be disentitled to specific performance, the tenant may repudiate the agreement, and, on doing so promptly and vacating the premises, will not be liable for rent except for the time of his actual occupation.

APPORTIONMENT—RETAING POSSESSION—NOTICE OF RELETTING.

Section 4, c. 156, R.S.O. 1914, declaring all rent to accrue from day to day, and to be so apportionable has changed the common law rule by which rent was not due in respect of an intermediate broken period; and under the statute the landlord may recover rent up to the time when he re-entered on his acceptance of the tenant's surrender when the latter gave up possession and gave the landlord notice to that effect. [Hartcup v. Bell, Cab. & El. 19, and Elvidge v. Meldon, 24 L.R. Ir. 91, followed; Hall v. Burgess, 5 B. & C. 332, distinguished.]

Where the landlord is notified by his tenant that the latter has given up the demised premises, and the landlord desires to preserve his claim against the tenant under the lease and at the same time relet, he should notify the tenant that he is reletting on such tenant's account.

RENT—DISTRESS—AFTER RETAKING POSSESSION.

A stipulation in a lease that, on breach of covenant by the lessee, three months' accelerated rent may be forthwith distrained for as "rent in arrear," and that the term may be forthwith forfeited, does not entitle the lessor to both remedies concurrently; the two remedies are necessarily repugnant to each other, and if the landlord elects to forfeit the term, he loses his right to distrain as for three months' rent in arrear, in the absence of any clause authorizing the lessor to keep the term in existence for the purpose of making a distress (as to which the continuance of the term is essential under Manitoba law) and at the same time to declare it forfeited in other respects.

Stanley v. Willis, 16 D.L.R. 549, 24 Man. L.R. 192, 6 W.W.R. 498, 27 W.L.R. 791.

A tenant is not liable for rent of demised premises after he has been evicted therefrom by his landlord.

AFTER RETAKING POSSESSION—AFTER SURRENDER BY TENANT.

A tenant who surrendered demised premises at the middle of a month, and at the same time gave notice of the termination of the tenancy, is liable for a full month's rent.

RENT—AFTER SURRENDER OF PREMISES.

Where a lessor, as a consideration of a settlement agreement in respect of an action by a lessee for the cancellation of a lease, agreed to accept as tenant for the remainder of the term, a third person, who was in possession of the demised premises by permission of the lessee, and from whom the lessor afterwards accepted payments of rent, as tenant for the remainder of the term, the original lessee is released from liability for rent subsequently accruing, notwithstanding that the new tenant did not execute as agreed a new lease which he was willing and had offered to sign, where the omission to submit a new lease to be signed was wholly due to the lessor's neglect, and the latter had retained the benefits he had received upon the settlement of the original lessee's action.

McKeown v. Lechtzier, 15 D.L.R. 15, 24 Man. L.R. 295, 5 W.W.R. 778, 26 W.L.R. 264. [Affirmed, 20 D.L.R. 986, 24 Man. L.R. 295, at 307, 28 W.L.R. 558.]

ABANDONMENT OF PREMISES.

A lessor who, before the expiration of his lease, abandoned the premises but paid the rent for the full term, has a right of action to recover from his lessor the rent received under a new lease for the unexpired portion.

(§ III D—100)—PART OF CROPS.

A tenant is not in default in the payment, as rent, of part of the crops raised on demised premises, because of his failure to deliver them, on demand of his landlord, in a manner different from that specified in the lease.

Shepherd v. Ross, 4 D.L.R. 432, 21 W.L.R. 259.

Plaintiff leased certain land to one Jack under lease providing that the rent was to be one-third of the crop grown upon the land during the term, to be delivered on the day of threshing, the threshing to be done on or before the 1st of November in every year. The defendant, as execution creditor of Jack, having seized the crop after it had been threshed, an interpleader issue was directed, on the trial of which judgment was given for the defendant. On appeal:—Held, under the terms of the lease the rent was due when threshed, and the crop having been seized after threshing the landlord's share had been vested in him. The rent being expressed to be one-third of the crop, this was a certainty, because the amount threshed could be ascertained, and there being a fixed standard and prices for grain, the amount of rent could easily be ascertained. That the protection afforded to landlords by the provisions of 8 Anne, c. 14, applies to rent payable otherwise than in money, it being well recognized that while rent must always be a profit, it need not be payable in money.

(§ III D—101)—RIGHT OF SUBLESSOR.

A lessee, who has sublet or transferred his lease and who sues his sublessee, cannot require the latter to pay him the rent due if he has not himself paid it; he can only ask that the sublessee be obliged to pay it to the principal lessor and give him a discharge, and in default pay him a corresponding indemnity.

Lapointe v. Original Salvador Co., 49 Que. S.C. 243.

(§ III D-105) — PREFERENTIAL LIEN — ACCELERATION CLAUSE—DISTRESS.

In case of an assignment for the general benefit of creditors, a landlord is only entitled, under s. 38 (1) of the Landlord and Tenant Act (R.S.O. 1914, c. 155), to a preferential lien for arrears of rent, "for" the period of one year next preceding and for the three months following the assignment, despite an acceleration clause in a lease providing that in case of events which happened rent for a longer period should become due and payable. The landlord's right to distrain is not taken away.

Alderson v. Watson, 28 D.L.R. 588, 35 O.L.R. 564. [See also 31 D.L.R. 259, 36 O.L.R. 502.]

PRIORITIES — EXECUTION CREDITORS—ACCELERATION CLAUSE.

Under 8 Anne, c. 14, the rent for which the landlord is granted priority over execution creditors must not only be due, but must be in arrear at the time of the sheriff's seizure; an acceleration clause in the lease whereby the current year's rent should immediately become "due and payable" and the term become forfeited on the lessee's goods on the demised premises being seized or taken in execution, does not give this priority for the accelerated rent, as it would not be in arrear under the statute of Anne until the day following the day when it became due.

CROP-SHARING LEASE—MORTGAGEE AND EXECUTION CREDITORS.

Where a mortgagee of farm land gives to the mortgagee the right on default of payment to enter into possession, to collect the rents and profits and to make a lease of the land at such rent as the mortgagee thinks proper, it is competent for the mortgagee to enter into possession and to make a crop-sharing lease to the mortgagor who thereby waives service of a formal notice under s. 93 of the Land Titles Act, Sask., and the share of the grain to which the lessor is entitled under such lease is a valid preferential claim for rent under the Landlord and Tenant Act, 8 Anne, c. 14, as against execution creditors of the tenant mortgagor. TENANT'S ASSIGNMENT FOR CREDITORS—STATUTORY LIEN OF LANDLORD—LIMITATIONS.

Under the Landlord and Tenant Act,

R.S.O. 1914, c. 155, s. 38, the landlord, in case of an assignment by the tenant for the benefit of creditors, has a statutory lien upon goods available for distress, independent of actual distress or possession, for the amount of rent due, but limited to the period of one year next preceding and for the three months following the assignment. LANDLORD'S LIEN.

Where a sheriff's sale under a writ of execution against the tenant, with the assent of the landlord, is held upon the demised premises, the landlord himself becoming the purchaser, he is entitled, notwithstanding such assent, to offset his claim for rent against the claim for the purchase price of the goods, and is not driven to an action on the case against the sheriff. ASSIGNMENT FOR CREDITORS—PREFERENTIAL LIEN FOR RENT—"EXECUTION OF ASSIGNMENT."

In s. 38 of the Landlord and Tenant Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 155, providing that in case of an assignment for the general benefit of creditors by a tenant the preferential lien of the landlord for rent shall be restricted to the arrears of rent during the period of one year next preceding and for 3 months following the "execution of the assignment," the words quoted are used in their strict legal sense, and mean the completion of the deed of assignment by delivery as well as by signing and sealing. Where a deed of assignment was signed and sealed by the assignor on the day on which a month's rent in advance was due, but was not completed nor intended to be completed by delivery to the assignee until the following day, and was not actually completed until the day next after that, it was held (the month's rent not having been paid), that rent was in arrear at the first moment of time of the day after the day; and, there never having been any intention that the deed should be handed to the assignee until after the commencement of business on that day, there were arrears when the deed was "executed," and the landlord was entitled to a preferential lien for 4 months' rent; the rule as to disregarding fractions of a day having no application in such a case.

LESSOR'S LIEN—FRAUDULENT REMOVAL OF EFFECTS—FOLLOWING—DELAY.

A lessee, his surety, or any other person, who had fraudulently removed effects subject to the lessor's lien in order to carry them to some other place, cannot take advantage of the expiration of the delay mentioned in art. 1623 C.C. (Que.) for the exercise of a saisie-gagerie by the right to follow the effects; the new owner alone can do so.

Brunet v. Raynault, 49 Que. S.C. 228.

LANDLORD'S LIEN—NOTICE.

Either legal notice served upon the landlord as to the proprietorship, by a third person, of goods on the premises of a tenant, or knowledge of the landlord that such is the case, will be sufficient to deprive the landlord of his privilege upon these goods. Where a property changes hands and the lease in force at the time when such a notice was given has expired, and a new proprietor leases the property and the same tenant remains in possession, the new proprietor being wholly ignorant of the existence of any such notice, the privilege of the new proprietor is not affected, and a new notice must be given.

Harbour Commissioners of Montreal v. Mathurin, 49 Que. S.C. 272.

LIEN OF LESSOR.

A lessee who agrees by his lease not to remove from the leased premises the movables which secure the past or future rent, cannot remove a portion of his movables even when he apparently leaves enough to secure the lessor.

Vanier v. Bonenfant, 48 Que. S.C. 363.

LIEN FOR RENT—INSOLVENCY.

The lien of the lessor is a real right of pledge, a ius in re on the effects placed in the house, whether under a lease in authentic form, a lease sous seign prive, a verbal lease, or one expressed or implied. It follows that if the lessee fails to perform any of his obligations, even though no rent should be due, the lessor can seize the effects, in the case of insolvency, when the lessee loses the benefit of the term. Between the lessor and lessee, art. 2005 C.C. Que. respecting the extent of the lien, does not apply; and when it is agreed in a lease made to a stock company that on default in paying the rent or fulfilling certain other obligations the lessor will have the right to claim the balance of the rent up to the end of the term he can claim by privilege all the balance of rent agreed for if the company is put in liquidation.

SAISIE-GAGERIE — PRIORITIES — INTERVENTION.

LIEN FOR—INVALID LEASE—COMPANY.

Where a monthly tenancy of a building owned by a director is attempted to be created at a meeting of directors where the only directors present are the owner director and another, and the company goes into possession of the premises, the owner director cannot distrain, nor by reason of distress gain priority in a subsequent winding-up.

§ III D—110)—DISTRESS FOR RENT—CONDITIONAL SALE AGREEMENT—SEIZURE AND SALE OF GOODS BY LANDLORD.

Section 4 of the Act respecting distress for rent and extra judicial seizures, R.S.S. c. 51, does not impair the right of a landlord to distrain on goods on the premises in the possession of the tenant under a conditional sale agreement. It only restricts the landlord's right as to the extent of the interest in the goods which he can sell. There is nothing in the Act which takes away the right of the landlord to distrain upon and seize and impound the goods for the purpose of selling that interest.

AGREEMENT—LEASE FOR PERIOD—OPTION TO PURCHASE AT END OF LEASE—RENT PAYABLE AT END OF TERM—DISTRESS FOR RENT DURING TERM—ILLEGALITY.

By an agreement between a town corporation and a manufacturing company the corporation gave the company a five years' option to purchase land leased to it for that period for manufacturing purposes—an annual rental was to be paid at the end of the term if the purchase was not completed, or pro rata at any earlier period at which the option was relinquished. Before the expiration of the five years, the company sold some of its machinery and was preparing to sell the balance when the corporation distrained for rent due under the agreement, and the contents of the factory were seized and sold. The court held that as the company had not relinquished the option there was no rent due and that the distress was illegal.

while the landlord will not enforce the power of sale or distress with respect thereto, and the landlord keeping the furniture locked up on the premises, the arrangement having been made prior to the winding-up order against the tenant, of which neither parties had knowledge at the time, constitutes constructive seizure and distress which will entitle the landlord to hold the furniture for the rent as against the liquidator. National Trust Co. v. Leeson, 26 D.L.R. 422, 9 A.L.R. 245, 33 W.L.R. 587, 9 W.W.R. 1132.

APPORTIONMENT ACT.

A proviso in a lease that "if any Act preventing the sale of intoxicating liquors should come into force during the currency of this lease the rental to be paid shall be determined by arbitration" applies only to rent falling due after the happening of the event, and the landlord has the right to distrain for rent payable in advance, though for a term which includes some time after the Act came into force. The Apportionment Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 156, does not apply to rent payable in advance.

Re Little and Beattie, 34 D.L.R. 217, 38 O.L.R. 551.

LANDLORD AS PURCHASER—APPRAISEMENT.

In a sale under a distress for rent the landlord cannot become a purchaser; the sale is also void for want of appraisal as required by s. 7 of the Distress Act (R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 65, as amended in 1915, c. 18).

IRREGULARITY—LANDLORD AS PURCHASER.

A clerical irregularity in a warrant of distress, or the landlord's bidding at the sale, does not invalidate the distress ab initio; the principle that a landlord cannot be a purchaser affects only the title and not the proceedings.

MORTGAGE.

The right of distress is not an incident of a mortgage unless created by special covenant. When exercised as a remedy it has the effect of suspending the debt distrained for until the sale.

ILLEGAL ACT BY BAILIFF—LANDLORD'S LIABILITY.

A landlord's warrant to his bailiff to distrain for arrears of rent does not authorize the latter to commit an illegal act, and trespass committed thereunder by the bailiff, not at the instance or for the ben-of the landlord, does not import any liability in trespass against the latter.

LANDLORD'S AUTHORITY TO BAILIFF—AS GOVERNING LANDLORD'S LIABILITY.

STIPULATION TO KEEP UP STOCK—ENFORCEABILITY, INJUNCTION.

A provision in a lease whereby the tenant, a retail merchant, binds himself to keep on the demised premises at all times goods enough to cover four months' rental under distress will not be specifically enforced by the court, and an injunction restraining the tenant from reducing his stock will be refused on the ground that the court would, contrary to practice, thereby be assuming to superintend the execution of the stipulation from day to day during the tenancy. TRESPASS IN EXECUTING.

Where there has been an abandonment of a seizure under a landlord's distress warrant it will not constitute a defence to an action for trespass based on a subsequent removal of the goods, especially where the right to a fresh distress, if any, had expired.

FORFEITURE.

The provisions of the Imperial Statute, 8 ANNE, c. 18 (Landlord and Tenant Act), allowing a distress for rent to be made within six months after the determination of the lease, do not apply where the tenancy has been put an end to by forfeiture thereof under a notice of forfeiture for breach of conditions given by the landlord under the terms of the lease.

A clause in a lease providing that if the lessee's goods on the land liable to distress should at any time be seized or taken in execution, then the current years' rent should immediately become due and payable, does not entitle the lessor to claim a year's rent in priority to the execution creditors under 8 Anne, c. 14, s. 1.

DISTRESS FOR RENT—COSTS OF DISTRESS—POUNDAGE CHARGES.

A sheriff acting as the landlord's bailiff in a distress for rent is not entitled to poundage or commission under the Distress Act, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 65, where all that he does after distraining the goods is to hold possession of them for a day; his lawful charges are in such case the fee for levying and for a man in possession. Where the tenant distrained upon for rent settles the claim and cost by payment before the expiration of the limited time for which the goods must be held before the landlord can legally proceed to a sale thereof, such payment by the tenant is not equivalent to a resale by the landlord or his bailiff to the tenant so as to entitle the landlord's bailiff to a commission in the nature of poundage upon their value.

EFFECT OF NONCOMPLIANCE WITH STATUTE.

Under the Distress Act, R.S.M. 1913, c. 55, a party distraining is to give a copy of demand and of all costs and charges of the distress to the person whose goods are seized, but failure to comply with this statutory provision does not make the distress illegal, although it may render irregular the sale of the goods distrained.

ILLEGAL DISTRESS—LIABILITY OF LANDLORD AND BAILIFF.

An action for illegal distress should be brought against the bailiff who committed the act complained of, and not against the landlord, unless it be shown that the latter authorized the wrongful act or sanctioned and ratified it after it came to his knowledge, or unless he chooses to take upon himself without inquiry the risk of any irregularity which the bailiff may have committed and to adopt all his acts.

When the plaintiff in a summary action accompanied by distress summoned the defendant to appear in an extension to an evening day, he preserved the right to complete his summons by leaving a copy of the declaration with the defendant himself or in the office of the court within three days which follow the legal notice of the writ. If the defendant suffers any prejudice by reason of this mode of procedure, the court can order a new notice, upon where a tenant has removed part of his effects and is on the point of removing the rest, the lessor has the right to exercise at the same time at his option the ordinary distress and the distress by right consecutively.

In the case one or the other of these measures can be adapted as a preservative measure, although no rent is due, for the sole reason of preserving the security of the landlord for future terms of rent.

A sale of goods upon a distress for non-payment of rent is illegal under 2 W. & A. c. 5, s. 2, if there has not been an appraisal of the goods by two sworn appraisers, and the tenant will be entitled to recover the real value of the goods; i.e., their full value to him, less the rent and expenses.

Dowry v. Clements, 20 Man. L.R. 219.

DISTRESS—GOODS OR THIRD PERSONS—NOTICE TO LANDLORD.

A landlord is presumed to know that the goods of travellers in a hotel, articles sent to a workman's premises to be repaired, there or to an auctioneer to be sold there, are not upon the leased premises except "transiently or accidentally" (art. 1622, C.C. (Que.)). It is not so, however, with regard to things delivered to the tenant for trial, or with a promise of sale, or in virtue of a sale with a suspensive condition and with retention of the right of ownership; these latter are subject to the privilege of the landlord unless the third person who owns them has given notice to the landlord of his right to the ownership of such articles, or if the landlord has acquired knowledge of such fact. From the time when the third person, owner of movables which furnish the leased house, has given notice to the landlord of his right of ownership in such movables, the privilege of the landlord ceases.

SALE OF GOODS DISTRAINED FOR RENT—DUTY TO SECURE BEST PRICE OBTAINABLE—EXCESSIVE DISTRESS — EVICTION AT VALE—LANDLORD HIDING AT SALE—DAMAGES.

A landlord who proceeds to sell the goods of his tenant distrained upon for rent is bound to endeavour to secure the best price obtainable for them.

Where it appeared from the evidence that the distress was excessive; that the goods, taken at cost price, were worth $500; that they were disposed of for a sum much below their actual value, and that the landlord himself was a purchaser at the sale, and subsequently disposed of the goods so purchased at a private sale, the court declined to interfere with the judgment entered by the Trial Judge in plaintiff's favour for $300 damages.

LIABILITY FOR ILLEGAL ATTACHMENT — MALICE—DAMAGES.

There is malice in the act of a lessor who, without previously claiming his rent, proceeds to have the effects of his lessee seized by way of attachment for rent, whilst a suit is pending against the lessee for the cancellation of the lease. A lessee whose effects have been seized in virtue of an illegal attachment for rent is entitled to claim from the seizing party real and vindictive damages.

for the money equivalent and issues execution upon which the crop is removed from the land and sold; nor has he preference on the proceeds as against wages claims against the debtor filed against the money realized by the sheriff in the plaintiff's action, such money not being distrainable for rent.

E. RE-ENTRY; RECOVERY OF POSSESSION.

(§ III E—115)—RE-ENTRY — VOLUNTEERS AND RESERVISTS ACT.

The mortgagee of a lease has the right to recover possession of the premises upon default of his lessee, notwithstanding the premises were occupied by the lessee together with a person in active service, entitled to the benefits of Volunteers and Reservists Relief Act, who was not a party to the action.

Armstrong v. Bradburn, 33 D.L.R. 625, 11 A.L.R. 388, [1917] 2 W.W.R. 28, reversing [1917] 1 W.W.R. 854. [See also 36 D.L.R. 306.]

The defendant B. and one T. were lessees of certain premises. These they mortgaged by a sublease to the plaintiff, B. remaining tenant of a part of the premises. He formed a joint stock company, retaining himself 97 out of 100 shares, and the company became tenant of the part of the premises he occupied. In June, 1916, the company sold all its assets, not including its leasehold interest, to B. who assumed all its liabilities. In 1915 he volunteered for military service, and the Volunteers and Reservists Act (Alta., 1916 c. 6) applies to him. In an action against the Bradburn Co. for possession it was held that in 1917 Bradburn himself was in actual physical possession along with the defendant company, and that, as B. was not a party to the action, no order could be made against him. An appeal was allowed (33 D.L.R. 625), but B. was permitted to appear and defend, which he did. That B. was not in possession for himself, but for the Bradburn Co., and the action ends, therefore, upon a question of fact, not of law.

ABANDONMENT OF DEMISED LANDS — RE-ENTRY BY LANDLORD — LIABILITY FOR.

Where a tenant, under a crop-sharing lease, moved from the lands before the expiration of his term, on failing to obtain a cancellation of his lease, and left some of his chattels thereon, substantial damages for a subsequent entry and taking possession by the landlord will be refused him where, after the re-entry and before the expiration of his term, the tenant removed all of his chattels and his servant from the land and abandoned it to the landlord, who subsequently occupied it without objection from the tenant, particularly where no claim was made to oust the landlord or to re-enter in continuance of the term.

Lamb v. Thompson, 11 D.L.R. 612, 24 W.L.R. 404.

RECOVERY OF POSSESSION — SUMMARY PROCEEDINGS.

Disputed questions of fact cannot be determined on an originating summons issued under Sask. r. 600 for the summary recovery of possession from an overholding tenant, since amended r. 583 (Sask. rr. of 1911) does not extend to proceedings under the former rule; but where the alleged agreement relied upon in answer by the tenant and disputed by the landlord is found not to be binding upon the landlord for lack of formal execution, the officer hearing the application may dispose of same on the question of law so raised.

Sun Electrical Co. v. McClung, 12 D.L.R. 758, 25 W.L.R. 43, 4 W.W.R. 1350.

Alberta r. 469 (Judicature Ord. Rules), under which summary proceedings by way of originating summons may be taken to recover possession from an overholding tenant, does not authorize the court to fix or order payment of a sum to be paid for use and occupation of the premises during the overholding period.

Wallace v. Day, 6 D.L.R. 281, 5 A.L.R. 1, 22 W.L.R. 22, 2 W.W.R. 846.

It is the statutory duty of a County Court Judge to determine whether or not a tenant is wrongfully holding against the landlord upon an application under Part III. of the Landlord and Tenant Act, 1 Geo. V. c. 37 (overholding tenants) and such duty is not fulfilled by dismissing the application without any specific finding of fact. [Re St. David's Co. and Lahey, 7 D.L.R. 84, 4 O.W.N. 32, approved.] If, upon an appeal by the landlord from the dismissal of his summary application for an order of possession against an alleged overholding tenant under the Landlord and Tenant Act (Ont.), the Appellate Court is of opinion that the matters in question shall be disposed of in an action and not summarily, it may vacate the order of dismissal and leave the plaintiff to his remedy by action and direct that the costs of the summary proceedings and appeal be costs in the action if brought within a time limited by the order.

PURCHASER OF REVERSION — RIGHTS OF — "RENT ACCRUING" AS DISTINCT FROM "RENT ACCRUED DUE."

A purchaser of the reversion does not in Ontario (differing from the English law under the Conveyancing Act, 1911, Imp.) acquire a right of re-entry for a breach of a lessee's covenant to pay rent which took place before the conveyance of the reversion. [Cohen v. Tannar, [1900] 2 Q.B. 609, applied; Rickett v. Green, [1910] 1 K.B. 253, distinguished.] Rent accruing due is an incorporeal hereditament but rent which has accrued due is a mere chose in action which does not pass to a purchaser of the reversion unless expressly assigned to him.

RECOVERY OF TENEMENT—SECTION 50 COUNTY COURTS ACT—OCCUPANCY AS SERVANT, NOT TENANT.

Alliance Immobilière v. Picard, 16 D.L.R. 82, 20 Rev. Leg. 243, 20 Rev. de Jur. 182. CLAIM FOR MESNE PROFITS.

Possession and payment of rent are not sufficient acts of part performance to support an alleged parol lease where there has been no change in possession or in the amount of the rent and the former tenancy, being from month to month, would have continued indefinitely until terminated by notice. In an action for the recovery of land, mesne profits accruing since the date when the defendant's possession became unlawful are recoverable as damages for trespass, notwithstanding that there is no relationship of landlord and tenant between the plaintiff and defendant.

PURCHASER OF GENERAL ASSIGNEE AND INSOLVENT DEBTOR — SUMMARY EJECTMENT — RIGHT TO REMEDY.

Defendant in possession of an hotel property under an agreement to purchase, after paying part of the purchase money, assigned all his property to the sheriff for the benefit of his creditors. After the assignment, the sheriff allowed the defendant to remain in possession and the owner having died, the sheriff, as assignee of the defendant under a resolution of his creditors, obtained the title from the estate of the owner and sold at public auction all his interest as assignee to the plaintiff.—Held, that the relation of landlord and tenant did not exist between the plaintiff and the defendant, and plaintiff could not recover possession by summary ejectment.

OVERHOLDING TENANT — MORTGAGOR — RE-POSSESSION.

A County Court Judge has no authority under Part III of the Landlord and Tenants Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 155, to make a summary order for the issue of a writ of possession against a mortgagor in possession, at the instance of one whose only claim to possession is as one of several mortgagors.

LIABILITY FOR FORCIBLE EJECTMENT.

When a lessee refuses to leave the premises after the expiration of the lease, the lessor has the right to proceed in ejectment according to art. 1624 C.C. Re-entry by a lessor, under the provisions of a covenant in the lease, by reason of the breach of that covenant by the lessee in giving a mortgage upon the chattels on the demised premises, is wrongful if the lessor does not first comply with the requirements as to notice contained in s. 20 (c) Landlord and Tenant Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 155; for such wrongful re-entry the lessor is liable in damages to the lessee, but, by reason of his breach of covenant, the lessee is only entitled to nominal damages.

SUMMARY PROCEEDINGS TO DISPOSSESS — TENANT "WRONGFULLY HOLDING."

Under the Landlord and Tenant Act (Ont.) 1 Geo. V. c. 37, it is the duty of a County Court judge, in summary proceedings brought to dispossess the tenant, to determine whether the tenant "wrongfully holds" against the right of the landlord, even if he considers it a case which might better be disposed of in a substantive action and not summarily.

R. 196.

NOTICE TO QUIT.

In the absence of a statutory requirement as to the length of notice for the termination of a tenancy from month to month, only a reasonable notice of intention to terminate the tenancy is necessary. [Jones v. Mills, 10 C.B.N.S. 788, followed.] A half month's notice of termination of a tenancy from month to month is reasonable, where the landlord knew the tenant was looking for a cheaper place because he could not afford to pay the rent the former demanded, and will be sufficient in the absence of a statutory requirement of a longer notice.

WRIT OF POSSESSION—WRITTEN DEMAND.

Under s. 3 of the Overhanging Tenants Act (R.S.N.S. 1900, c. 174) a written demand for possession must be made on the tenant before the County Court can have jurisdiction to grant the landlord a writ of possession; mere notice to quit is not sufficient.

TENANCY CREATED — RIGHT TO HAR-VEST CROP.

An agreement to crop land on shares without anything being agreed between the parties as to when the tenancy shall cease entitles the tenant to only such use and occupation as is necessary to put in and harvest crop, the share of the crop is not an annual rent, which makes the tenancy one for a year.

Fletcher v. Lyons, 48 D.L.R. 365, [1919]
3 W.W.R. 381.

CROPS.

Where the cause of forfeiture of the term is complete, the bringing of an action places the landlord in the position of having made a re-entry upon the date when the action was commenced, and, therefore, the plaintiffs having re-entered, the term was at an end, and the defendant had no longer any right to remain on the land. The defendant having remained on the land after action brought, he was liable in damages as for holding over. In connection with the determination of the question of whether there was any sale of the land to defendant (which on the facts was decided adversely to the defendant), the actions of the defendant in the preparation of a statement of the rent due, and failing to make any comment on the plaintiffs' statement as to their intention to sell the land to him at a time when he claimed to be the owner, should be taken as strong evidence that in fact no sale had at that time been made.

(§ 1-10)—LIS PENDENS — CROWN GRANT TO LAND ATTACKED — CLOUD ON TITLE — REGISTRAR OF TITLES — DISCRETION AS TO REGISTERING TITLE.

A certificate of lis pendens registered against lands, in an action in which the Crown grant of such lands is attacked, is not a charge within the meaning of the Land Registry Act (R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 127) but is a cloud on the title to such land, and the Registrar of Titles properly exercises the judicial discretion conferred on him by the Land Registry Act in refusing to issue an indefeasible title until such cloud is removed.

DUTIES OF REGISTRAR — CERTIFICATES OF TITLE — FAILURE TO ENDORSE EXECUTIONS — DISSIMILARITY IN NAMES.

The duties of the registrar of land titles in matters of registration are not merely ministerial, but are judicial to a limited extent; in the exercise of his discretion as to the identity of persons from a substantial similarity in names he must confine himself to the spirit of the statute in accordance with a reasonable protection of creditors' interests; and the fact that a writ of execution is designated by the initial letter of the Christian name and the title registered in the full name, but the surnames and addresses being alike, does not justify an assumption as to a dissimilarity of persons so as to relieve him from liability for his failure to endorse upon a certificate of title a memorandum of the writ. The conclusive effect of government surveys under s. 2 of Official Surveys Act, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 220, will not be extended to apply to a case in which a landowner selects his own surveyor, although the survey notes are received by the government officials.

LIS PENDENS — CLOUD ON TITLE — DISCRETION.

A certificate of lis pendens registered against lands, in an action in which the Crown grant of such land is attacked, creates a cloud upon the title to such land; the registrar of titles properly exercises the judicial discretion conferred on him by the Land Registry Act, R.S.B.C. (1911), c. 127, s. 116A (as amended by 4 Geo. V. (1914), c. 43, s. 66), in refusing to issue an indefeasible title until such cloud is removed. LEASE — RENEWAL — CROWN GRANT.

The plaintiff company, holder of the renewal of an original timber lease, brought action for a declaration that a Crown grant held by the defendant company for a portion of the land within the timber area (and issued to the defendant's assignors subsequently to the original lease prior to the renewal thereof) is void or in the alternative that it is subject to the rights of the plaintiff conferred by the leases. Section 105 of the Land Registry Act (B.C.) recites that "Instruments executed before and, taking effect before July 1, 1905, transferring, charging, dealing with, or affecting land or any estate or interest therein, unless registered before the said date (except a leasehold interest in possession for a term not exceeding 3 years) shall not be receivable by any court or any registrar or examiner of titles as evidence or proof of the title of any person to such land, as against the title of any person to the same land." The plaintiff submitted in evidence the original lease and the renewal thereof, they not having been registered. Held, that the section is not intended to apply where a party is not attacking the title to the land but is merely endeavouring to obtain a decision from the court as to the effect of an easement in respect of the land, and that although the leases could not be received as evidence of the plaintiff's title so as to oust the defendant's title, they may be received as evidence of the plaintiff's right to enter upon the lands and cut timber thereon during the term of the lease; further, that the plaintiff was entitled to a declaratory judgment that the Crown grant was subject to the plaintiff's antecedent lease and any renewals thereof.

FIRST REGISTRATION — OBJECTION TO — ORDER OF DISCONTINUANCE IN PREVIOUS ACTION AS BAR.

Notwithstanding that an objection to an application to bring land under the Land Titles Act, 1 Geo. V. c. 181 (Ont.), by a person claiming an interest in the land adverse to the applicant, is not an "action" within the meaning of the Judicature Act, R.S.O. 1897, c. 51, 3 Geo. V. c. 19, R.S.O. 1914, c. 56, it is for the master of titles to determine whether or not the effect of an order made in a prior action brought by the objector pertaining to the land purporting to bar "any further action which may be brought by the plaintiff for the same cause of action" was a bar to the right to raise the objection in the land titles proceedings as constituting res judicata.

FIRST REGISTRATION — FAILURE TO ESTABLISH LEGAL OR EQUITABLE TITLE.

Under the Land Titles Act R.S.S. 1909, c. 41, an applicant is not entitled to be registered as owner where he fails to establish that he has any estate either legal or equitable in the land in question. In Saskatchewan, a master of titles has no jurisdiction, on a reference to him by a registrar, to pass upon and direct the registration of a title which depends for its vability solely on the application of equitable doctrines, since a purely equitable claim not evidenced by any document cannot be made effective until a court of competent jurisdiction has declared the claimant entitled to an interest in the land.

The duty imposed on the registrar of land titles by s. 44 of the Territories Real Property Act, R.S.C. 1886, c. 51, relating to the issuance of first certificates of title, to issue a certificate "with any necessary qualifications" does not require him to ascertain whether the acreage mentioned in the certificate is correct, or else to omit it altogether.

NOTICE OF TRUST — PERSONAL REPRESENTATIVE—MORTGAGE—VALIDITY.

Although the Land Titles Act, R.S.S., c. 41, provides generally that no entry shall be made upon a certificate of title of any notice of trust an exception has been made in the case of land held by a personal representative, and where land is registered in the name of a personal representative as such, the registrar should not register a mortgage thereof made by such representative in his personal capacity, and the fact that such a mortgage is given registration does not render it valid. Where the representative becomes the beneficial owner of the land the mortgage should be held good as between him and the mortgagee.

LEASE — CORPORATION — MORTGAGEE IN POSSESSION — SERVICE OF NOTICE — AFFIDAVIT OF ATTESTATION — SUFFICIENCY — COVENANT TERM.

A lease of a special area, such as a basement, ground floor, second floor, may be registered, provided there is a certificate from a Saskatchewan surveyor that the premises are actually part of a lot. Such a lease may not be registered if made by a corporation claiming to be a mortgagee in possession unless proof be given the registrar that the owner and other parties interested have been served with the notice of intention to exercise the power to enter into possession. [Rollefson v. Olson, 21 D. L.R. 671, distinguished.] When the notary public before whom the affidavit of attestation of the witness to a lessee's signature has been sworn has not affixed his notarial seal thereto, the affidavit is defective and useless. A covenant in a lease made by a mortgagee in possession as to the termination of the lease upon the mortgagee's right to possession being determined held not to render the term uncertain or invalidate the lease for registration purposes.

TRANSFERS—MORTGAGES—LEASES.

Where real property is mortgaged by an instrument executed in accordance with the Real Property Act, R.S.M. 1902, c. 148, known as the Torrens or "New System" registry law, it can be transferred by the mortgagee to a purchaser from him only in the manner prescribed by statute. [National Bank of Australia v. United Hand-in-Hand Co., 4 A.C. 391, applied.] Mortgages of land which is subject to the Torrens or "New System" form of registration in Manitoba are permitted only in the form specified by the registration statute (the Real Property Act, R.S.M. 1902, c. 148), and the direction in the statutory form which permits of "special covenants" being added thereto is insufficient to cover an added power of sale or other stipulation whereby the mortgagor authorizes the mortgagee to execute an assurance or transfer of the mortgaged property and extinguish the mortgagor's title thereto; such a power of sale or stipulation is not in strictness a "covenant" even if framed as a covenant, and is not within the scope of the statutory form or consistent with the statutory provision.
