The effect of s. 135 of the Alberta Land Titles Act, 6 Edw. VII, c. 24, is that a person dealing with a registered owner is not affected by any outstanding interest of which he has no notice, nor of any interest of which he has notice, unless, with such notice, he does something which constitutes fraud. There is no reason in law why a transfer under the Act should not be executed in blank, with authority to the person to whom it is handed, or to anyone else, to fill in, under certain instructions, the name of the so-called transferee, who, in reality, is the person to whom the registrar is to be requested to issue a new certificate of title. Where one has advanced money on the security of an agreement to give a transfer of land registered under the Act, and the transfer is executed and delivered, and the transferee then receives notice of an agreement of sale made by the transferor after the execution and delivery of the transfer, he is nevertheless entitled to register his transfer, and obtains thereby a good title as against the holder of the agreement of sale. A transfer under the Act is not a deed of grant. It does not pass the title, and its practical effect is little or nothing more than a mere order to the registrar by the holder of the registered title to transfer the title to somebody else.

TRANSFER—REGISTRATION—CERTIFICATE OF TITLE—UNREGISTERED CLAIM.

The registration of a transfer of lands under the Land Titles Act (Alta.) will not enable the transferee, on obtaining his certificate of title, to set up the latter to defeat an unregistered claim under the transferor's contract of sale of a portion of the lands subject to which the transferee in fact took his title under his own agreement of purchase, although not disclosed in the registered transfer or in the certificate of title.

to avoid being cut out by a transfer made by the registered owner.

MORTGAGES—NOTICE OF FORECLOSURE—REGISTRATION—LAND TITLES ACT (SASK.)

This was a petition to the Master of Titles from the refusal of the registrar to register a Notice of Exercising Power of Sale on the ground of the mortgagee being the registered owner of the land in question. The petitioners were mortgagees of the lands in question and, as administrators of the estate of the deceased mortgagor, registered owners of the property. The estate being insolvent, the petitioners, after vainly endeavouring to sell the lands, attempted to register a Notice of Intention of Exercising Power of Sale under their mortgage. It was held by the Master of Titles that there seemed to be nothing in the law or practice to prevent a mortgagee from exercising his rights under the mortgage, even where he is an administrator of the estate of the deceased mortgagor, also that the circumstances of the case (i. e., the responsible position held by the petitioners as Official Administrators), warranted the Registrar in consenting to register the Notice of Intention to Exercise the Power of Sale. [Tennant v. Trenchard, L.R. 4, Ch. 537, distinguished, as applying to a Trustee, not an Administrator.]

ABORTIVE SALE OF MORTGAGED PREMISES—SUBSEQUENT SALE BY PRIVATE CONTRACT.

Where a public auction sale of mortgaged premises has proved abortive and the mortgagee, without the authority of the registrar disposes of the property by a private sale, such private sale may be subsequently validated by the registrar, who may dispense with notice to the registered owner, if reasonably satisfied that the latter has no beneficial interest in the mortgaged lands.

HOMESTEAD ACT—AGREEMENT.

The object of the Act respecting Homesteads (c. 29, 1915, Sask.) was the protection of the wife's interest in the homestead of her husband. The amendment (s. 5, c. 27) of 1916 was to meet the case of a false certificate of affidavit where the Act had been prima facie complied with. Where the land comprised in an agreement of sale and the vendor at the time of signing the agreement is unmarried the agreement is not invalid because it is not accompanied by the required affidavit. The agreement is valid as between the parties and may be enforced upon completion of the affidavit necessary to enable it to be registered.

STATEMENT OF CONSIDERATION—POWERS OF REGISTRAR.

There is nothing in the law, common or statutory, which compels a statement of the true consideration to be expressed in a transfer of land or transfer of mortgage any more than there was for the statement of such consideration in the common law indenture of deed, and a registrar cannot refuse registration to an instrument on the ground that no consideration is stated therein.

Though transfers of an interest in a homestead must contain the affidavit of the transferor in Form C, yet no duty seems to be cast on the registrar to see that no mortgage is registered unless it is executed in the method provided, and it is very dangerous for the registrar to attempt to apply personal information or knowledge (e.g., as to the marriage of the transferor) which he may have outside of his official records, excepting possibly where this is necessary for the prevention of fraud in the protection of his records.

CAVEAT—RESERVATIONS IN CONTRACT OF SALE—REMOVAL OF CAVEAT—PERPETUATION.

The C.P.R. Co. sold to Vanceise land under contract, which provided that the purchaser upon payment of the contract price, the performance by him of the conditions of the sale, and the surrender by him of the contract, should be entitled to a transfer "in fee simple freed and discharged from all encumbrances," but subject to certain reservations including a strip or strips of land for railway or irrigation purposes whenever and wherever the company might desire, the company, however, to return proportionate amounts of purchase money to the purchaser. After payment in full and the surrender by the purchaser of his contract the company lodged a caveat which after reciting the provisions of the agreement claimed an interest in the land "under and by virtue of the reservations contained in said agreement for sale," and forbade the registration of any transfer or other instrument except subject to the said claim. The transfer executed by the company excepted and reserved unto the company all coal, petroleum and valuable stone which might be found to exist within, upon or under the land, together with full power to work the same, and was also made subject to the caveat. The Master in Chambers having directed the caveat to be perpetually continued, the purchaser Vanceise appealed. Held, that the purchaser was not entitled to an order for the summary removal of the caveat in view of the terms of the agreement for sale, but that the Master had erred in making the caveat perpetual, and that the appeal should be allowed to the extent of giving the appellant liberty to bring such action as he desired to determine his rights under the agreement and transfer.

CAUTIONS—CAVEATS AND ADVERSE CLAIM.

Section 97 of the Land Titles Act, which provides that "registration by way of a caveat . . . shall have the same effect as to priority as the registration of any instrument under this Act," can only mean that a caveator who registers his claim under an agreement to purchase thereby obtains priority for his claim over any other purchaser who registers his claim by way of caveat at a subsequent time, in the same way as a mortgagee who registers his mortgage first acquires priority over one who registers his afterwards; and the section applies to the case where the vendor of both the competing caveators is not the registered owner but only entitled to a transfer from the registered owner as well as to the case where the vendor is the registered owner. Where an action for a declaration of right to the conveyance of lands is defended by subsequent caveators on the ground that at the time of the plaintiff's agreement to purchase there was an action pending between the vendor and the subsequent caveators in which the vendor sought specific performance of an earlier agreement to purchase, specific performance being decreed and a time fixed for payment, but it appears that the subsequent caveators have allowed the time to elapse within which they were entitled to redeem under the judgment they, in order to defeat the claim of the prior caveators, must shew such facts as would at least against the vendor entitle them to specific performance, and, in the absence of such a shewing, they will not be allowed an extension of time for payment and their caveats will be discharged.

An instrument which contained an assignment by a vendor of a certain sum being part of the moneys payable under an agreement of sale and, for more effectuating the same, also an assignment of the said agreement of sale and the land in question, was held to be of such a nature that it created an interest in the land sufficient to support a caveat under The Land Titles Act. LIS PENDENS AS CAVEAT—NOTICE—REGISTRATION OF ASSIGNABILITY.

The registration of a certificate of lis pendens against lands is similar in its effect to the registration of a caveat under the Land Registry Act, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 127, and its registration prevents any disposition by the registered owner in derogation of the claim of the party registering the certificate until that claim has been satisfied or disposed of. [Alexander v. McKillop, 45 Can. S.C.R. 551, 1 D.L.R. 586, applied.] The provision of the Land Registry Act, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 127, as to registration of a certificate of lis pendens operates for the benefit of intending purchasers who might, in its absence, innocently deal with the registered owner and be bound (without any notice) by judgment delivered in the action then pending. The provision in the Land Registry Act, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 127, for the registration of a certificate of lis pendens as a charge does not imply that it shall constitute a "charge" as that term is interpreted by the Act, and the registration does not create any assignable interest in the lands.

The provisions of s. 85 of the Alberta Land Titles Act, 1906, read with form W thereof, as to the description of lands to be given by caveators, are merely directory and intended for the guidance of registrars, and a caveat lodged thereunder, which enables the registrar to identify the land affected, is sufficient if the interest claimed is stated with reasonable certainty although in some particular not in strict compliance with the prescribed form. [McKillop v. Alexander, 1 D.L.R. 586, 45 Can. S.C.R. 551, followed; Wilkie v. Jellett, 2 Terr. L.R. 133, 26 Can. A document in the form of a promissory note containing a clause whereby the maker stated to be the registered owner in fee simple of land described purports, in consideration of the debt and the extension of time for paying it, to encumber the land for the benefit of the payee for the amount of the debt, may be sufficient to base a caveat under the Land Titles Act, Sask., to enforce a lien on the land. [Imperial Elevator v. Olive, 19 D.L.R. 248, followed.] An unregistered transfer under the Land Titles Act, Sask., creates only an equitable estate, and the prior registration of a valid caveat in respect of an informal charge made by the transferor before the making of the transfer will prevent the bettering or increasing of any interest in the land adverse to the equitable estate of the caveator, although the transferee purchased in good faith and without notice of the informal charge; but the transferee may be subrogated to the mortgagee's rights under a registered mortgage prior to both the informal charge and the sale transaction where he paid off and obtained a discharge of such mortgage as part of the purchase money. A caveat filed in respect of a registrable mortgage, which latter and the transfer on which the mortgagor's title depended, the registrar declined to receive without production of the duplicate certificate of title is by virtue of s. 97 of the Land Titles Act, Alta., as effective for the period of the caveat as if the mortgage itself had been registered; and, from the time of filing such caveat, it prevents the acquisition or the bettering or increasing of any interest in the land adverse to or in derogation of the claim of the caveator as it then existed. [Stephens v. Bannan, 14 D.L.R. 333, and McKillop v. Alexander, 1 D.L.R. 586, 45 Can. S.C.R. 551, applied.] The discretion allowed to the registrar under s. 97 of the Land Titles Act (Alta.) to allow the withdrawal of a caveat and the substitution thereof of the registrable instrument on which it was based was not intended as a mode of disposing of substantial rights where there are intermediate registrations; the registrar will properly decline to make the substitution where questions of the validity of the caveat may be raised by persons who have subsequently entered claims on the register. A merger does not take effect against the intention of the parties, and where it is plain that the subsequent registration of the mortgage referred to in a caveat based on same was with the intention of retaining the priority secured by the caveat, the mortgage will not merge the caveat so as to vest a better title in the mortgagee under an intermediate mortgage than he had when he registered subject to such caveat.

A caveat will lapse where the caveator, after proper lapsing notice had been given the caveator by the registrar, obtained a void order under s. 130 of the Land Titles Act from a Judge of the District Court acting as a Local Master, which he was without jurisdiction to grant, extending for more than 30 days the time for the lapsing of the caveat. As an application for the continuance of a caveat under s. 130 of the Land Titles Act is neither an action nor a proposed action, therefore power to grant an order for that purpose cannot be delegated by the Judges of the Supreme Court to Local Masters, as it does not come within the authority conferred upon the former to make rules delegating their powers to Local Masters in respect to action brought or proposed to be brought in their respective districts.

CERTIFICATES—APPLICATION FOR—OMISSION TO NOTIFY ALL PARTIES IN INTEREST—FRAUD—EFFECT OF VALIDITY.

Where the mortgagee knows that his mortgagor's title under court proceedings was obtained by the omission to bring in as a party a person known to claim the lands under an unregistered transfer free from the mortgage in question, the Land Titles Act, R.S.S. 1909, c. 41, does not afford protection to the mortgagee for any advances made by him subsequently to getting notice of such facts, although the mortgage had been registered before the notice; making any further advances after the receipt of the notice is committing a fraud on the purchaser with the unregistered title and to the extent of such advances the mortgagee is not a bona fide mortgagee. For the holder of a certificate to refrain from giving notice of his foreclosure proceedings to a person of whose unregistered claim as a purchaser through the mortgagor he had notice, as well as of the fact that such person believed, on information furnished by a former holder of the mortgage, that it had been paid off, and the taking of a foreclosure order by failure to disclose such unregistered interest to the court is a fraud on the court for which the certificate of title issued to a party to such fraud may be cancelled under the Land Titles Act.

FORGED TRANSFER—LAND CERTIFICATE BASED THEREON — EFFECTIVENESS OF, HOW LIMITED.

No estate or interest passes under a forged transfer purporting to be made under the Land Titles Act (Alta.), apart from the consideration of what effect may be given to a certificate of title based thereon in favour of a bona fide purchaser for value. The cancellation of a certificate of title on the registration of a forged transfer is not a cancellation under the Land Titles Act, and, so long at least as the registered title remains in the transferee named in the forged transfer, or in some one having no better standing, the owner in fraud of whom the certificate has been cancelled (but not under the Act) upon the recording of the forged transfer is entitled to the land.

Re Adams and McFarland, 20 D.L.R. 293, 6 W.W.R. 1077.

Though a mortgage in proper form is handed in for registration at the same moment as the transfer of title to the mortgagor under the Land Titles Act (Sask.), it cannot be actually registered until after the title has been officially transferred of record under that Act (Torrens title system), and therefore it must be received subject to executions already on file in the land titles office.

OWNER UNDER TITLE BY ADVERSE POSSESSION — CANCELLATION OF OLD CERTIFICATE.

Notwithstanding the provisions contained in ss. 44, 104 of the Alberta Land Titles Act, 1906, c. 24, land held under a registered title is not exempt from the operation of the Statute of Limitations in force in Alberta, and a person who entered on land and had been in adverse possession for the statutory period acquires a title to the land which cannot be attacked by the registered owner in whose name a certificate of title stands; the entry of the name of the new owner upon the register is not provided for in the Land Titles Act, and will not be ordered by the court, nor will the certificate of title of the former owner be ordered to be cancelled.

DEED IN FRAUD OF CREDITORS—CANCELLATION OF CERTIFICATE—SALE OF LAND IN SATISFACTION OF CREDITORS' CLAIMS.

On holding void a voluntary conveyance of a debtor's property which has been registered in the land titles office, the court cannot order the cancellation of the grantee's certificate of title, but merely the sale of the land in satisfaction of the claim of the grantee's creditors.

TITLE TO CROPS—RIGHTS OF LESSEE UNDER CROPPING LEASE.

A growing crop of wheat, or other product of the soil not produced spontaneously, is a chattel interest which may be claimed against the transferee of the title to the land under the Land Titles Act (Sask.), by the tenant or licensee under an agreement made with the transferor for cropping land on shares; if the agreement constituted a lease it is within the exception of s. 66 of the Land Titles Act, but if not a lease, the person put in possession under the cropping agreement would hold a license with an interest entitling him to go upon the land for the purpose of harvesting the grain and removing same to the elevator in conformity with this agreement, and such interest and parol evidence of notice to the transferee and of the latter's acceptance thereof as a term of his purchase may be shewn notwithstanding the production by the transferee of a certificate of title in which the crop agreement was not mentioned. [Marshall v. Green, 1 C.P.D. 35, applied; Wood v. Lang, 5 U.C.C.P. 204, distinguished.]

FORGED TRANSFER—CANCELLATION.

A certificate of title procured upon a forged transfer, although prima facie valid, may be set aside under s. 58 of the Real Property Act (Man.), and a new certificate issued to the true owner.

EASEMENTS.

A certificate of title should not be issued for an easement, but it should be protected by a memorandum on the certificate relating to the servient tenement, and where the dominant tenement is apparent, also upon the certificate relating thereto.

Re Easements, 8 W.W.R. 171.

SUBSEQUENT RESALE BY VENDOR—RIGHT TO POSSESSION.

One L., the owner, sold a quarter section of land to the defendant under agreement, payable by instalments. Subsequently, L., claiming to have cancelled the sale to the defendant because of nonpayment of instalments, resold the land to the plaintiff, giving the plaintiff a transfer therefor which the plaintiff registered and obtained certificate of title. The defendant, between the execution of the transfer and the issue of certificate of title, executed and lodged for registration a caveat which the registered on the same day that the certificate of title issued. The plaintiff caused the registrar to serve on the defendant notice of lapse of caveat unless a judge's order continuing the same was produced, and no judge's order being produced the caveat lapsed and was struck off the title. The defendant continued in possession of the land:—Held, that the plaintiff's certificate of title was conclusive evidence that the plaintiff was the owner of the land and was entitled to possession thereof.

LAND CERTIFICATES.

A certificate of ownership or a certificate of title, while conclusive evidence of title for purposes of transfer, is not necessarily conclusive in the hands of a registered owner who has acquired same by mistake or accident, although, semble, a sale by such person would create in the purchaser an estate absolutely conclusive. Where, therefore, the L. Co. purchased from M. certain land the bounds of which on the ground were well known by the vendor and the purchaser, but the actual registry description being unfamiliar to them, and in the transfer M. included a lot of land in which he had parted with an equitable interest, although he still retained the legal estate:—held, in an action by the equitable owner of the land against the L. Co., that the certificate of title of the L. Co. was not conclusive; that the L. Co. had not intended to purchase, nor had M. intended to sell this particular lot; that, therefore, on the ground of mutual mistake or accident the certificate granted in respect to this lot, then still in the name of the L. Co., should be cancelled. Semble, the jurisdiction of the court over contracts of sale or other dispositions of land where certificate of title has been granted, whether on the ground of fraud, accident, mistake or otherwise, has not been taken away or in any way interfered with by the provisions of the Land Titles Act.

Ott v. Lethbridge Brewing & Malting Co., 3 A.L.R. 210.

TAX SALE DEED.

There being no valid objection to the title, an owner of land under a tax sale deed is entitled to registration as owner in the absolute fee register. On a subsequent application for an indefeasible title the registrar cannot refuse an indefeasible title on the mere ground that the root of title is a tax sale.

Ex parte Lamson, 21 B.C.R. 507.

"ACTION FOR RECOVERY OF LAND."

An action for the establishment of title only, not claiming possession, is not an "action for the recovery of land" and the certificates of title are not a bar to such action under s. 104 of the Land Titles Act (Alta.).

TITLE OF TAX-SALE PURCHASER—SERVICE OF NOTICE—HOMESTEAD.

Except in those cases wherein the interest of the person to be served is shown to be under $200, personal service of notice of an application by a tax-sale purchaser for title should be made in all cases where personal service is possible. The memoranda of liability of a homestead to forfeiture to the Crown in right of the Dominion and of the lien of a colonization society, both of which have been acquired under s. 44, c. 54, R.S. C. 1886, must follow on a title granted to a tax-sale purchaser and it is, therefore, immaterial whether notice is given to the Minister of the Interior or to the colonization society of such purchaser's application for title.

CERTIFICATE OF TITLE TO EXECUTOR—ADMINISTRATION DE BONIS NON — DUTY OF REGISTRAR.

In spite of the provisions of the Land Titles Act (Sask.) which forbids recognition of trusts, the interpretation of s. 111 given by the courts and by the well settled practice in the Land Titles Office gives the result in that section: "And the registrar shall grant to the executor and administrator as such a new certificate of title," a meaning which is in effect a recognition, in cases of devolution, of the trust upon which the title was issued. On the decease of an administratrix duly registered, the registrar should require the production of letters of administration de bonis non of the intestate, and should not make transmission of the registered land to the executrix of the administratrix.

PLANS.

A plan registered under s. 79 of the Saskatchewan Land Titles Act is the official description of the property and cannot be altered or amended, after registration, except by a judge's order under subs. 2 of s. 80 of that Act. The plan is for the purpose of shewing the boundaries of lots staked out in town plots and to provide a short and convenient description of the same, and is for registration, so that thereafter the lots are described according to that plan, and it becomes the official description of the property. The plan provided for under s. 76, to the effect that the registrar may require anyone transferring land to furnish him with a plan having the several measurements of the land to be transferred marked thereon and certified by a Saskatchewan land surveyor, is only for the information of the registrar, to enable him to see upon the plan how the piece of property in question is laid out and that its boundaries do not conflict with any other parcel of land, but is not for registration. A transfer of a part of a lot, for which lot a plan has been already registered with the registrar as required by s. 79, does not of itself constitute an alteration of the plan and does not require an alteration of the plan by a judge's order under subs. 2 of s. 80 of the Act. Where land is subdivided by a registered plan under s. 79, and a corner lot is shewn as fronting on a certain street with a side street as one of its lateral boundaries, a new plan of subdivision of such lot is not required on a sale of the middle portion thereof fronting upon the side street only, but a conveyance or transfer may be recorded as of such part of the lot, with or without an easement of right-of-way over the remaining portions.

upon such defective mortgage, such mortgagees have lost priority over executions filed thereafter and before the issue of the certificate of title if they voluntarily discharged the caveat and accepted a new mortgage at the time when the transfer was made from the registered owner to their mortgagor the mortgagees' proper recourse was to have taken action to have their original mortgage reformed and recorded in conformity with their caveat instead of discharging the same.

STAY OF PROCEEDINGS—MORATORIUM.

The stay of proceedings authorized by subs. 18 of s. 62a of the Land Titles Act, as amended by s. 15, c. 3, 1916, is to be granted not as a matter of right, but as a matter of discretion; it, therefore, cannot be granted on the ground that the proceedings which are sought to be stayed are prohibited by the Volunteers and Reservists Relief Act, c. 6, 1916.

Re Land Titles Act: Re Anderson mortgage to Canadian Mortgage Ass'n, 11 A.L.R. 242, [1917] 1 W.W.R. 828.

VIII. Assurance fund.

(§ VIII—80) — ASSURANCE FUND — RECOVERY FROM—ERRONEOUS STATEMENT OF ACREAGE IN CERTIFICATE OF TITLE.

One who purchases land on an acreage basis in reliance on an erroneous statement thereof in the seller's certificate of title, is not entitled to recover for a deficiency from the assurance fund created under s. 108 of c. 24 Alta., 1906, where such error was not due to any mistake of the registrar in issuing the certificate, but to a mistake in the original survey and Crown patent, which had crept into subsequent certificates of title; since what the registrar certified was not the quantity of land but its title.

ASSURANCE FUND.

Where, on the faith of an abstract of title which, by reason of the failure of the registrar to note on the certificate of title the filing of a seed grain lien under the Seed Grain Act of 1908, shewed a clear title, the plaintiff purchased land at a mortgage foreclosure sale and received from the court a clear certificate of title thereto, the fact that he did not make a special search for liens of such nature, which became binding on the land from the time they were filed, does not amount to negligence sufficient to prevent him recovering from the assurance fund the amount he was compelled to pay to free the land from such lien.

Under subs. 3 of s. 137 of the Land Titles Act, R.S.S. 1909, c. 41, damages for the registration of a void tax transfer may be recovered out of the assurance fund by the owner of the property, but not against the tax purchaser who had obtained registration of such tax title and had taken out a certificate of ownership which was transferred bona fide for value to a third party to whom a certificate of title had been issued.

AGREEMENT FOR SALE—MORTGAGEE—CAVEAT — ASSURANCE FUND—MISTAKE OF REGISTRAR—LIABILITY—PARTY TO FRAUDS — ACTION AGAINST—DAMAGES.

A mortgagee under a mortgage from a purchaser under an agreement of sale who, being unable to register the mortgage itself, files a caveat in respect thereof in the Land Titles Office, is entitled to compensation from the Assurance Fund for the loss sustained by reason of the Registrar's error in recording the caveat against the wrong lot; but he must first prosecute an action under s. 105 of the Act against the party who fraudulently took advantage of the error, and who was thereby enabled to defeat the mortgage; the last-mentioned action is a special one for damages, and it is not sufficient that action had been brought and judgment and execution obtained without result against the same party on his covenant contained in the unregistered mortgage upon which the caveat was founded.

ASSURANCE FUND — REGISTRAR NECESSARY PARTY WHEN.

The Registrar of Land Titles is a necessary party to a case stated by private parties for the opinion of the court as to the liability of the assurance fund upon admitted facts.

Re Adams and McFarland, 20 D.L.R. 293, 6 W.W.R. 1077.

A registrar being forbidden to receive and register any instrument not accompanied by a certificate of title, a mortgage is not properly produced for registration until such certificate is produced by the mortgagor or his agent, and although the mortgage may have been in the office at the time the title was received it was improperly there, and could not be deemed to be so in the possession of the registrar as to place any obligation upon him to register it upon receipt of the title.

Hall v. Registrar of Land Titles, 4 S.L.R. 244.

RECOURSE AGAINST FUND—LACHES—TAX SALE.

The owner of lands sold for school taxes in 1908 and then registered in the name of the purchaser is debarred from an action in 1916 against the assurance fund under s. 110 of the Land Titles Act. Further, the owner of the land was guilty of laches.

Blackstock v. Registrar of North Alberta Land Registration District, [1917] 2 W.W.R. 938.

ASSURANCE FEES—NUMBER OF CERTIFICATES OF TITLE.

Assurance fees should be computed in the same way whether one or more certificates of title are to be issued on the registration of a transfer because these assurance fees are based on the valuation of the land transferred, i.e., on the total valuation of the land contained in the transfer, irrespective of the number of certificates of title to be issued on the registration of such transfer.

EXCAVATIONS—CHANGING STREET GRADE.

The right to lateral support of land is not infringed until actual damages are suffered by reason of the withdrawal of the support, and a falling in of an insignificant quantity of the soil without any consequent special damage will not sustain an action based in damages only and not for an injunction. The owner of land who uses explosives in the usual way for the purpose of excavating rock for the foundation of a house is bound to exercise all reasonable care and is responsible for damage to an adjoining occupant due to the use of extra heavy blasts.

Where the right to use the plant and materials left by a contractor in finishing a job abandoned by him, is, by the terms of the contract, merely personal to the contractee, which he cannot transfer to another contractor employed by him to complete the work, such property is subject to seizure on execution against the defaulting contractor.

MONEY ON PERSON—AMOUNT.

A bailiff levying under a writ of execution has no right to seize money upon the defendant's person. He cannot seize a greater sum than ordered under the writ.

Clark v. St. Aubin, 9 Que. S.C. 271.

SEIZURE AND SALE OF IMMOVABLE.

A debtor ordered in an action in declaration of hypothec, to abandon the property, who does not do so and thus becomes a personal debtor, cannot oppose the seizure of the property by the creditor on the ground that the latter has not previously discussed his movable effects. Such creditor is exempted from doing so by art. 614 C.C.P. In all cases where the seizure has not to be made at the defendant's domicile or in his presence, no demand of payment is required. At any rate, if such a formality were necessary, its omission could justify the nullity of the seizure only if the seized party suffered prejudice therefrom, and provided he tenders and deposits the amount claimed in the writ of execution.

Brien v. Robert, 54 Que. S.C. 309.

ALIMENTARY ALLOWANCE.

Alimentary allowances gratuitously bestowed by third parties are nonseizable, but not the revenue obtained by the beneficiary by alienating his property.

Matts v. Marcotte, 14 Que. P.R. 341.

(§ I A—2)—SEIZURE — OPPOSITION — BUTCHER SHOP—CHATELS—TRADER—QUE. C.P. 598, PAR. 10.

A lamp, a cash register and a furnace and its pipes furnishing a butcher's shop must be left to him as "tools, implements, or other chattels ordinarily used in his trade," if, at the time of a seizure made at his place, he selects those chattels from other ones of which the value does not exceed $200. One who temporarily ceases to exercise his trade or business does not, for that reason, lose his quality as trader.

McPhail v. Tessier, 46 Que. S.C. 404.

(§ I A—4)—LAND—TITLE—POSSESSION.

When the seizure of immovable property has been made super non possidente, but super domino, it is only the person who was in possession thereof animo domini who has the right to question the seizure or to demand the nullity of the adjudication. In order to be in possession animo domini it is not sufficient merely to be the holder of the immovable; it is necessary that it should be possession in good faith, in virtue of a title sufficient to transfer the property, of which the faults are not known.

Lafortune v. Vézina, 25 Que. K.B. 544, reversing 48 Que. S.C. 254. [Reversed in 41 D.L.R. 208, 56 Can. S.C.R. 246.]

(§ I A—9)—SIMULTANEOUS SEIZURE OF MOVABLES AND REAL ESTATE—OPPOSITION BY WIFE—QUE. C.P. 12, 614, 651, 729—QUE. C.C. 1585.

The seizure and sale of the movable effects should take place before the seizure of real estate, although both may, nevertheless, be seized simultaneously. Where the wife opposed the distress, and the plaintiff thereupon declared that he admitted the opposition and ordered the sheriff to proceed against the real property, the defendant cannot stop the seizure by mentioning some movable effects belonging to him and supposed to have a larger value than the debt. Such a contention is frivolous and the opposition will be dismissed.

Gauthier v. De Sambor, 16 Que. P.R. 185.

(§ I A—10)—MINING CLAIMS, UNPATENTED—EXIGIBILITY.

The interest of a mining claimant in an unpatented claim duly recorded under the provisions of ss. 34, 35, 53, 59, 64 of the Mining Act, 8 Edw. VII. (Ont.), c. 21, R.S.O. 1914, c. 32, is exigible for a judgment debt due by the claimant. [McPherson v. Temiskaming Lumber Co., 9 D.L.R. 726, [1913] A.C. 145; and Glenwood Lumber Co. v. Phillips, [1904] A.C. 405, applied.]

TIMBER CLAIMS — CROWN TIMBER ACT (ONT.)—TIMBER SEVERED BEFORE EXECUTION — TIMBER SEVERED AFTER EXECUTION.

Where timber has been cut and is lying on the land of a debtor on the date of an execution against him, such timber is subject to seizure under the Execution Act of Ontario, 9 Edw. VII. c. 47, although the debtor is operating under a license obtained under the Crown Timber Act, R.S.O. 1897, c. 32. The rights of a licensee are such an interest in lands as to be exigible under the Execution Act to the effect that a "writ of execution shall bind the goods and lands against which it is issued, from the time of the delivery thereof to the sheriff for execution." [C.P.R. Co. v. Rat Portage Lumber Co., 10 O.L.R. 273, disapproved; Glenwood Lumber Co. v. Phillips, [1904] A.C. 405, 70 L.J.P.C. 62, 20 Times L.R. 531, applied.] Timber cut by a licensee subsequent to the date of an execution against him is attachable under the execution, notwithstanding that the cutting had been made by an assignee or transferee to whom, in the interval between the laying on of the execution and the cutting of the timber, the licensee had transferred his rights, unless such transfer was made in good faith and for valuable consideration and without notice on the part of the transferee of the writ having been delivered to the sheriff and remaining unexecuted.

(§ I A—14)—HYPOTHEC — CHOSE IN ACTION.

Debts assigned or immovables conveyed as collateral security are not property belonging to the debtor which can be discussed as provided by art. 2066 C.C. (Que.). It must actually be his property and not what he may acquire by litigation. There is no hindrance to offering for discussion immovables hypothecated, apparently for more than their value even if they belong to the debtor himself.

Maher v. Shorey, 15 Que. B.R. 52.

(§ I A-15)—IMMOVABLES.

A seizure made on a defendant of immovables under sequestration is a seizure on the possessor thereof animo domini and as such is valid. Failure to publish in the newspapers of the locality within which the immovables are situated the legal notices of the sale of such immovables does not per se justify the annulling of the sale, but only makes the sheriff responsible for the damages resulting therefrom; nevertheless such omission may be evidence of fraudulent connivance between the parties which the court will carefully consider on an allegation of fraud.

It does not follow that an attachment is frivolous on its face, and as such can be rejected on motion, from the fact that the opponent has already made in the same case a similar attachment which has been declared barred by limitation. An attachment for seizure and sale of certain machinery, tools and materials and a carriage, founded on the following circumstances, (1) with regard to the first objects, they had been placed in the factory of the opponent for perpetual keeping and had become immovable by intention (b) as to the carriage it belonged to a third party to the knowledge of the person seizing and had been left at the home of his proprietor for storage, it is not futile on the face of it, and can not be rejected on motion.

CROPS—VENDOR AND PURCHASER.

Where an agreement for the sale of land provides that, in case the vendor becomes entitled to cancel the contract, he shall, without prejudice to his rights thereafter to cancel the same, have the right to enter into and possess any improvements on the land, including growing crops, and to apply the net receipts therefrom upon the contract, the taking possession by the vendor under said terms of the contract will prevent the goods so possessed from being exigible under writs of execution against the purchaser. Where such a purchaser has rented the land on a crop payment plan notice by the vendor to the tenant to pay to the vendor the rental share of the crop and an undertaking by the tenant to so pay the vendor is a taking possession under the contract.

Crowd Lumber Co. v. McKenzie, 10 W.W.R. 1370.

(§ I A-20)—REGISTERED LETTERS.

A registered letter addressed to the debtor can be seized under a writ of saisie-gagerie. The court may order the letter to be opened and if it contains a cheque payable to the defendant or to bearer will permit it to be indorsed by the plaintiff's attorney. The bank at which the cheque is payable may safely pay it with such indorsement if a copy of the order authorizing the payment is attached.

Gallant v. Grayson, 13 Que. P.R. 539.

B. PROPERTY IN CUSTODY OF LAW.

(§ I B-25)—KEEPING SHERIFF'S OFFICER IN POSSESSION.

Where a sheriff has made a valid seizure of the goods of an execution debtor it is not necessary, in order to retain possession, for a sheriff to put a person on the premises for the purpose of holding the goods, as against those who have notice of the seizure. But in order to make a valid seizure it is necessary for the sheriff or his bailiff (a) to be upon the premises where the goods are, or so close thereto that if his authority to seize is disputed by one in actual possession he is in a position to lay hands on the goods; (b) to intimate an intention of seizing the goods.

II. Mode and sufficiency; return.

(§ II-30)—RETURN.

Where an execution creditor duly placed his execution in the hands of the sheriff, who, instead of proceeding regularly to sell under the execution the effects of a liquor business belonging to the execution debtor, placed his bailiff in possession of the business itself with directions to take over the daily receipts thereof as a going concern, and where such receipts were actually turned over by the cashier every day to the sheriff, the legal construction of the daily taking over of the money by the sheriff is that each such taking over was a levy thereon under the execution.

EXTRA-JUDICIAL SEIZURES ACT—SALE—TITLE—RIGHT OF APPEAL—JURISDICTION OF MASTER.

On an application under the Extra-judicial Seizures Act, 1914, c. 4, for an order for sale, the fact that the question of title is enquired into without objection does not give a right of appeal. The sole question for consideration on such an application is whether, assuming the goods to have been rightfully seized, a removal and sale is advisable considering the state of the market and the primary object of avoiding undue loss to the debtor. Adverse claimants are in the same position and have the same remedies as though the Act had not been passed. A Master in Chambers has jurisdiction in any judicial district in the province.

Re Extra-judicial Seizures Act, Re Canadian General Electric Co.; Re Wener and Pollard, 12 A.L.R. 141, [1917] 2 W.W.R. 1003.

SEIZURE AND SALE OF REAL ESTATE—DESCRIPTION OF PROPERTY—ABANDONMENT—COSTS—C.C.P. ART. 555, 705—RULES OF PRACTICE NO. 59.

As a general rule the sheriff charged with executing a writ of execution (de teris) is required before proceeding to the seizure to summon the defendant to point out his immovable goods and to present himself at the places where they are situated in order to effect the seizure of them; but there is an exception to this in the case of an immovable abandoned at law. In the case of execution by the plaintiff for the cost due his solicitor if it does not appear in the fiat, or the writ of execution, or in the report of the sheriff that the plaintiff has obtained the consent of the solicitor, the seizure is irregular and illegal in respect of these costs only.

Tasse v. Rouillard, 25 Rev. Leg. 33.

SEIZURE BY SHERIFF—SALE—OPPOSITION.

A sheriff seizing movable and immovable effects of a defendant may proceed and sell the immovables if the sale of the movables is stopped by an opposition to withdraw. A debtor who files an opposition to annul against the seizure of his property advertised for sale by the sheriff, asking the latter to proceed with the previous seizure and sale of certain movables which he indicates, cannot later file another opposition to annul against the seizure and sale of those movables on the ground that the seizure of the immovables was still pending, and that the movables indicated by him could not be seized by the sheriff in virtue of the same writ. Such an opposition may be struck out on motion as frivolous.

Gauthier v. de Sambor, 53 Que. S.C. 511.

OWNERSHIP—CONDITIONAL SALE.

A defendant cannot make an opposition to a seizure of movables, on the ground that he is not the proprietor of them, but that they belong to the plaintiff himself, who seized his own property. A stipulation in a sale of movables that the buyer is "not to receive title to said property until the full amount (price of sale) has been paid" is a condition in favour of the plaintiff, and for his protection, which can be waived by the latter, and is not one which can be invoked by the buyer on his behalf.

Maxwell v. Keith, 54 Que. S.C. 120.

REVENDEICATION — GUARDIAN — POSSESSION—ORDER OF COURT—RULE NISI.

A voluntary guardian of goods under seizure who is ordered, by judgment of the court, to deliver these effects to one of the parties, is without interest to contest the rule nisi issued against him on the ground of irregularity and illegality, if he does not contest the order of the court addressed to him or the sufficiency of the security ordered to be given by the party entitled to the possession of the goods.

Genzer v. Alliance Films Co., 54 Que. S.C. 32.

OPPOSITION A FIN DE DISTRAIRE—TITLE.

Where, in an opposition a fin de distraire to a seizure of movables, the opposant declares that he bought the goods at a bailiff's sale, the opposition, even if the opposant's title is defective, should not be rejected on motion, but only upon a contestation after issues joined between the parties.

Canadian Consolidated Rubber Co. v. Seidman, 24 Rev. Leg. 104.

ORDER OF SALE OF CHATTELS.

A bailiff, when putting up seized chattels for sale, is not bound to follow the order in which they figure in the minutes of the seizure.

Ducharme v. Hénauld, 44 Que. S.C. 243.

SERVICE ON DEBTOR—DESCRIPTION—PLACE OF SALE.

The court, in an action by a saisi, may set aside the judgment ordering the seizure and sale of an immovable without first realizing from the movables. The omission of the sheriff to serve the procès-verbal of seizure on the debtor, in compliance with art. 707, C.C.P., is a ground for annulling the order. The exact description of the immovables in the notices of the sale is also a formality required on pain of nullity. The sale of the immovables at a public other than that provided for by law is absolutely illegal and void.

Bernard v. James Bay & Eastern R. Co., 26 Que. K.B. 531.

MODE AND SUFFICIENCY—SEIZURE OF GRAIN—CUSTODY AND POSSESSION.

Where a bailiff notifies an owner that he has seized grain and leaves the warrant with him and takes a bond for the delivery to the sheriff of the grain seized, such seizure is a legal seizure. Although effectual and continuous possession of property seized should be secured by a bailiff, yet as against persons who have notice of the seizure it is not necessary for the sheriff to put a man into possession in order to hold goods of which he has made a valid seizure. (§ II—32)—SHERIFF'S SALE OF EXEMPT PROPERTY—NULLITY.

A sheriff's sale under execution of property claimed exempt under ss. 17, 18, Home-stead Act, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 100, is not merely an irregular exercise of legal powers but an unlawful act in defiance of statute and void, and can confer no title there-upon the purchaser.

SUFFICIENCY OF RETURN.

A sheriff's return of nulla bona to an execution is a sufficient compliance with r. 365, of the Judicature Ord. (con. ord. 1898, c. 21, Sask.), to permit a levy upon and sale of land under the writ.

OPPOSITION—INSOLVENCY.

An opposition for payment will be rejected on motion, if there is no allegation therein that the defendant was insolvent at the time plaintiff obtained judgment declaring his seizure binding, or that plaintiff had knowledge of defendant's insolvency at the date of the opposition.

Eastern Townships Brick & Mfg. Co. v. Giasson, 17 Que. P.R. 410.

INSUFFICIENT RETURN—GUARDIANSHIP—NOTICE OF SALE.

Minutes of proceedings which do not state that the defendant has been required to provide a guardian, when no guardian has, in fact, been named; which do not declare, moreover, that the defendant has been required to sign, or has signed, the minutes which have only been signed by the bailiff himself outside of the dwelling of the defendant, and long after the seizure, are absolutely void. The seizure is only complete when the minutes are drawn up and signed with a notice of sale for a fixed date. Where a sale which commenced on a Saturday was not finished that day, and a copy of the minutes was only given to the defendant on the following Monday, notice of sale cannot be given the next day at the door of the church. The above mentioned irregularities render void the proceedings of the bailiff who seized, and they can be set aside on motion.

A. OF OFFICERS LEVYING.

(§ III A—35)—SHERIFF ABANDONING POSSESSION.

After a valid seizure has been made by the sheriff, the question whether or not the sheriff has abandoned possession of the goods seized is always a question of fact.

(§ III A—40)—ASSISTANT BAILIFF—RESISTING—CRIME—JUSTIFICATION.

An assistant bailiff is a "peace officer" and "person in the lawful execution of process against goods" within the meaning of s. 169, Cr. Code, and it is a crime to resist him; it is no justification that the property seized belonged to others, since the true owner could have asserted his right by interpleader. A County Court bailiff has power to appoint an assistant to act for him, and to make lawful seizure under an execution issued to the bailiff.

AUTHORITY OF SHERIFF—CROPS—HARVESTING—NEGLECTANCE.

A sheriff seizing standing crops under a fi. fa. has no right to incur expense in harvesting and threshing them without the authority of the execution creditor; the authority may be implied. It is not negligence of the sheriff in having the threshing done in the winter instead of the spring, at a greater cost, in anticipation of probable damage to the crops from the spring thaw.

Sturgeon v. Henderson, 37 D.L.R. 54, [1917] 3 W.W.R. 56.

NEGLECTANCE OF BAILIFF—LIABILITY.

A bailiff in Alberta, although subject to the instructions and orders from the sheriff of the district, is appointed by the Government of the province and the sheriff is not responsible for negligence or misconduct by such bailiff.

Great Northern Ins. Co. v. Young, 32 D.L.R. 238, 11 A.L.R. 166, [1917] 1 W.W.R. 886.

ABANDONMENT OF POSSESSION BY OFFICER LEVYING.

A bailiff will be deemed to have abandoned the possession of seized goods if after seizure he permits the owner to transport and sell the goods, upon promising to pay the bailiff a portion of the proceeds.

Corona Lumber Co. v. Brereton, 32 D.L.R. 528, 27 Man. L.R. 370, [1917] 1 W.W.R. 706.

FL. FA.—COSTS OF EXECUTION.

A sheriff seizing goods under a writ of fieri facias is only entitled to costs of the execution until such time as he receives notice of an assignment for the benefit of creditors.

Baker v. Richards, 40 D.L.R. 351, 25 B.C.R. 397, [1918] 2 W.W.R. 902.

SALE OF LOGS UNDER EXECUTION—QUANTITY—LIABILITY OF SHERIFF—ESTOPPEL—NEGLIGENCE—DAMAGES.

Failure to give the notice of a sheriff's sale under fl. fa., as required by r. 557, or a defect in the notice, does not invalidate the sale to an innocent purchaser. A sheriff may not be entitled to recover his costs of the action from the plaintiffs, if his duties were performed in a loose manner.

BAILLIFF—PUBLIC OFFICER—NOTICE.

A bailiff, who receives an opposition to withdraw at the sale of certain movable effects seized by him and who ignores it and proceeds to the judicial sale of those effects, is liable for damages to the owner of the effects. A bailiff is not a public officer and has no right to a notice of action, according to s. 88, C.C.P.

Hart v. Rochon, 53 Que. S.C. 253.

RIGHTS GROWING OUT OF LEVY—OF OFFICER LEVYING — SALE—JUDGMENT—STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS.

If an execution is issued and levied on land during the period of limitation, the sale may be held afterwards, although an action or proceeding to recover on the judgment would be barred by the 20-year period after its recovery by virtue of R.S.N.S. 1900, c. 167, s. 22.

EXECUTION—SALE OF MORTGAGE—DUTY OF SHERIFF—PRICE.

BAILLIFF—GUARDIANSHIP—COSTS — QUE. C.P. 621, 622, 624, 628, 669.

Although a bailiff cannot appoint himself as guardian of the effects seized by him and on that ground claim costs of guardianship, yet, if he does not find any guardian, he may remove the effects and keep them in his custody until a solvent guardian is offered him, or until he can himself find a solvent one; and in such a case he is entitled to claim the disbursements he has incurred in putting the effects into a safe place, and also the value of his services.

Chapron v. Coulombe, 46 Que. S.C. 472.

LIABILITY OF CONSTABLE—JUSTIFICATION.

Where an execution is issued by a stipendiary magistrate after the lapse of one year without the affidavit required by s. 32, c. 160, R.S.N.S. 1900, but is otherwise within the jurisdiction of the magistrate and in regular form, a seizure by a constable under such warrant is a mere ministerial act, and will afford absolute justification to the officer executing it. [Sleeth v. Huribert, 25 Can. S.C.R. 620, 628; Morse v. James, Willes 122, 128, followed.]

Law v. Lovell, 25 D.L.R. 37, 49 N.S.R. 282.

SEIZURE OF REGISTERED MORTGAGE—POWER OF SHERIFF.

The sheriff has no power to seize and sell a registered mortgage of lands, his duty being to hold it as security for the amount due under the writ with power to sue for the recovery of the amount secured when the time for payment shall arrive.

Channel v. People's Home Co., 9 W.W.R. 169.

BAILLIFF'S COSTS.

The defendant as bailiff for the plaintiff made certain extrajudicial seizures, and retained out of the moneys realized a certain sum as his costs. The plaintiff alleged that the sum so retained was in excess of the defendant's proper costs, and made application under R.S.S. 1909, c. 51, s. 3, as amended, for an order requiring the defendant to pay to the plaintiff a sum not exceeding treble the amount of the money taken by the defendant in excess of his proper costs:—Held, that in the absence of a special contract, the defendant was not entitled to the charge made by him of a 5 per cent commission on the amount collected, and that the defendant was entitled only to the costs allowed by the schedule to the Act, that it was in the discretion of the judge as to what sum, not exceeding treble the amount of money taken contrary to the provisions of the Act, the defendant should be ordered to pay, and under the circumstances the defendant was ordered to pay only the actual amount wrongly retained, together with the costs of the application.

Northern Trusts Co. v. Buie, 9 S.L.E. 242, 34 W.L.R. 285.

POWERS OF BAILLIFF.

A writ of execution de terris addressed to the sheriff of a district may be executed by any of his bailiffs.

St. Lawrence Flour Mills Co. v. Charbonneau, 18 Que. P.R. 244.

EXCESSIVE SEIZURE.

A bailiff who sells the chattels seized to an amount he believes necessary to satisfy the writ, but which turns out upon the subsequent taxation of costs of guardianship, to be in excess of what was required, is guilty of no fault that involves liability for damages.

Ducharme v. Hénault, 44 Que. S.C. 242.

LEASE—EVICTION.

One who is appointed judicial guardian of movables, seized by him under a writ of execution, cannot expel the lessee of a shop containing the goods on the ground (a) that he has assumed the responsibility for the custody of the goods seized; (b) that the premises have been leased contrary to a prohibition against subletting, and the lessee illegally occupies them. This is an application of the principle that no one is permitted to take the law into his own hands. In such case the expelled lessee has a right to damages.

Gravel v. Lacombe, 52 Que. S.C. 289.

IMMOVABLES—SALE BY SHERIFF—HIGHEST BIDDER—DEPOSIT—C.C.P. ART. 749, 750.

In the case of sale of immovables by sheriff to the highest bidder, the court may at the request of a creditor of the defendant order the sheriff to demand a deposit from each bidder conforming to arts. 749, 750, C.C.P. The judgment which orders this deposit is a final judgment of which there is an appeal "de plano."

St. Germain v. Sallhani & Rabinovitch, 25 Rev. Leg. 144.

DISTRESS — LIABILITY FOR SERVICES — EMPLOYEE OF SHERIFF.

A person employed by a sheriff in connection with a distraint by a landlord, compelled to use the sheriff or sheriff's officer, can have no claim against the person directing distraint, in the event of the sheriff not remunerating him for his services.

Weaver v. McGregor, [1917] 2 W.W.R. 795.

B. OF OTHERS.

(§ III B—45)—MONEY REALIZED FOR COSTS — NECESSITY OF HOLDING FOR DISTRIBUTION.

Money realized on an execution, although for costs only, must be held by the sheriff for 3 months and advertised, under s. 25 of the Executions Act, R.S.M. 1902, c. 58, which provides that at the end of that period such money, together with any other money realized on other executions against the defendant, shall be then distributed ratably among such persons as may have unsatisfied executions in force in the sheriff's hands.

OF OTHERS.

An opposition to the writ of execution itself, before any seizure is effected, is premature and will be dismissed. An opposition to annul only lies after the seizure has been actually effected.

Courchesne v. Talbot, 4 D.L.R. 668, 41 Que. S.C. 241.

SEIZURE OF PARTNER'S GOODS UNDER WRIT AGAINST FIRM.

A partner, whose goods are illegally seized under a writ directed against the partnership, cannot claim damages for the illegal seizure where instead of opposing the seizure he pays the debt and costs thereof.

Lavigueur v. Paquet Co., 47 Que. S.C. 151.

EXECUTION CREDITOR.

A judgment creditor whose judgment is executed by seizure of his debtor's movables is obliged to give up possession of a movable seized which he knows to be the property of a third person. For failure to do so he is liable for the damages caused to the owner by the judicial sale of his property. Such damages, in default of other proof, consist of the price paid by the purchaser.

Computing Scale Co. v. Desrosiers, 44 Que. S.C. 10.

EXECUTION CREDITORS.

The relation of principal and agent does not arise between a seizing creditor and the bailiff entrusted with the execution of the writ. The former is therefore not liable in damages for the acts of the latter.

Dueharme v. Hénault, 44 Que. S.C. 242.

(§ III B—46)—EXECUTION OR ATTACHMENT CREDITORS.

Where the defendant, an alleged absconding debtor, moves summarily under the Supreme Court Rules (N.S.) to set aside a process issued against him, if originally the circumstances of the case at the time the process was issued were such as to warrant the bona fide belief that the defendant was absconding from the province, the process will not, under the summary jurisdiction of the court, be set aside even though the defendant has returned to the province and shews that he had had no intention of remaining out of it, but if the defendant's property has been attached unwarrantably he will be left to his action therefor. [Hunt v. Soule, 1 N.S.R. 296 (ed. 2), followed.]

LIABILITY FOR ACTS OF BAILIFF.

A bailiff is a ministerial officer and not a servant or agent of the plaintiff. The latter when resorting to his services is not liable for any délits that he may commit in the course of his work.

Bourbeau v. Guillemette, 52 Que. S.C. 224.

(§ III B—49)—PURCHASER AT SHERIFF'S SALE.

The failure to shew, on an application to confirm a sale of land by the sheriff under an execution, that the sale was held at the hour specified in the notice of sale, vitiates the proceedings.

An unpaid vendor of immovables sold at sheriff's sale is an interested party and has the right to have such sale set aside if the due formalities have not been complied with. The formalities required by law regarding proceedings at sheriff's sale are of public order and the violation thereof entails the annulling of such sale at the instance of any interested party.

Savoie-Guay Co. v. Deslauriers; Rose v. Savoie-Guay Co., 7 D.L.R. 205, 14 Que. K.B. 360.

PURCHASER AT SHERIFF'S SALE.

In view of s. 9 of the Creditors' Relief Act (R.S.S. 1909, c. 63), entitling execution creditors to share ratably in the proceeds realized on a sale, where a notice of sale of land by the sheriff under an execution stated that the property was to be sold subject to "existing encumbrances filed thereon as disclosed by the records," and there was at the time of the sale in addition to the execution under which the sale was to be had, a lis pendens and 2 prior executions of record, the words "existing encumbrances" must be taken not to include the prior executions unless an express agreement to the contrary is otherwise shown, as the seizure and sale under execution is a seizure on behalf of all creditors entitled to share under that statute.

C. PRIORITIES.

Of mortgagee in possession over seizure for taxes, see Chattel Mortgage, II A—7.

(§ III C—50)—SEIZURE UNDER EXECUTION—RIGHTS OF ASSIGNEE FOR CREDITORS.

Where a sheriff, under s. 13 of the Execution Act (B.C.), seizes money in specie belonging to the execution debtor, but instead of holding the same for 30 days in like manner as where goods have been levied upon and sold, forthwith pays the money over to the execution creditor, an assignee for creditors under the Creditors Trust Deeds Act, R.S.B.C., c. 13, to whom the debtor made an assignment immediately after such execution creditor got his money has no status to sue for the money on behalf of all creditors as it no longer belonged to the execution debtor after the sheriff had taken possession of same; nor had the assignee the right to sue for the enforcement of claims which other execution creditors within the 30 day period might have had against the fund or against the sheriff under the Creditors Relief Act, R.S.B.C. c. 60.

EXECUTION—RENT—ATTORNEYS' CLAUSE.

A claim for rent by way of interest under an attorneys' clause in a mortgage has priority over the claim of an execution creditor.

Sturgeon v. Henderson (Man.), 37 D.L.R. 34, [1917] 3 W.V.R. 56.

PRIORITIES.

Where the goods of a tenant are seized upon the demised premises and sold under execution, the sheriff, in order to give a good title, must first apply the proceeds in satisfaction of the landlord's claim for rent, by virtue of the Creditor's Relief Act, R.S. N.S. 1900, c. 172.

SEIZURE OF CONTRABAND—CUSTOMS—DEPOSITARY—RIGHTS AND REMEDIES.

When a customs collector seizes goods used for contraband, and deposits them in the hands of a person to whom he entrusts them, their owner has no right to seize them by attachment in revendication, so long as the first seizure is pending. The depositary may, in defence to the owner's attachment in revendication, plead the fact of the deposit, and allege that the collector's seizure was made legally, without alleging an exception of another's right and an inscription in law asking to strike out the allegations of the plea referring thereto will be dismissed.

Girard v. Godin, 54 Que. S.C. 263.

PRIORITIES.

A debtor who has been compelled to pay the claim of his foreign creditor is discharged from liability not only towards the latter, but also as against the latter's creditors in the Province of Quebec, and cannot be obliged, by way of seizure by garnishment to pay it a second time. When the seizing creditor has been made aware of the action taken by the foreigner and been put en demeure to take conservatory proceedings in consequence, it does not matter that his seizure was made between the date of the foreigner's judgment and the satisfaction thereof.

Fraser v. Beyers Allen Lumber Co., 44 Que. S.C. 322.

DECLARATION OF TIERS—LACOMBE ACT.

Where there are several seizures against the same defendant the first seizing creditor is preferred to those coming later. If the defendant deposits the seizable part of his salary under the provisions of the Lacombe Act he is not subject to any further seizing of the same salary. If the court can order the tiers-saisi to retain possession of the amount of the note which he owes to his creditors that can only be in the case in which the said note contains words which prohibit its transfer or show the intention to make it nontransferable or non-negotiable, or when the seizing creditor does not offer the tiers-saisi good and sufficient security against his being troubled in the future with respect to the payment of the said note.

Rugg v. Clarke, 18 Que. P.R. 74.

REVENDICATIO—POSSESSION—CREDITORS.

In the case of seizure in revendication, if the plaintiff during the proceedings obtains possession of the property seized by furnishing security, the creditors of the plaintiff have their recourse by execution against the said property before the decision of the cause. The right of retention invoked by the defendant in his plea is no obstacle to this. An opposition to annul made by the plaintiff in these circumstances will be dismissed upon motion, as being taken with the object of improperly delaying the sale. Rugg v. Clarke, 18 Que. P.R. 65.

COLLUSIVE JUDGMENT FOR RENT.

A creditor caused immovables of his debtor to be seized. The latter filed an opposition, which was dismissed. A third party, the lessor of the debtor, in collusion with him, fraudulently and irregularly obtained against the same debtor a judgment for rent due and maintaining a saisie-gagerie and a lessor's lien. It was held that the first creditor could proceed by opposition by third party to have the illegal judgment obtained by the lessor quashed.

Lapointe v. Original Salvador Co., 49 Que. S.C. 243.

BONA FIDE PURCHASER—CHANGE OF POSSESSION.

Rule 478 as to actual and continued change of possession under a bill of sale is not applicable, where the execution debtor has never had the goods in his possession and the purchaser had the goods in his possession at the time of the purchase.

Bank of Toronto v. Austin, 10 W.W.R. 799.

IV. Bond for release of.

(§ IV—55)—ABANDONMENT OF SEIZURE BY TAKING BOND—PRIORITIES—BONA FIDE PURCHASER—GARNISHING CREDITOR.

The sheriff's bailiff seized under execution 85 acres of wheat crop, in stock. He then took from the judgment debtor a bond without sureties, the condition of which was that the sheriff should be permitted by the judgment debtor to enter upon the premises and retake the goods when required. The bailiff thereupon left the premises and did nothing further. The wheat was sold to an elevator company who bought without notice of the foregoing facts. Before the purchase money was paid over it was attached by a garnishing order issued in an action at the suit of C against the judgment debtor. In an interpleader issue between the sheriff and C, it was held that the seizure had been abandoned. [Little v. Magle, 29 W.L.R. 596, distinguished.] Held, also, that the elevator company had acquired a good title to the wheat. Rule 478 (Sask.). [Dixon v. Mackay, 21 Man. L.R. 762, followed.] In order to maintain his seizure the sheriff must retain actual and continued possession until sale. [Ackland v. Paynter, 8 Price 95; Blade v. Arundel, 1 M. & S. 711, followed.] Held, also, that the bond did not constitute actual and continued possession by the sheriff. [Dodd v. Vail, 9 D.L.R. 534, 23 W.L.R. 62 and 903, distinguished.]

(§ I—1)—NEWSPAPER—PROPRIETOR AND PUBLISHER.

A publishing company which is both proprietor and publisher of a newspaper, substantially complies with s. 15 of the Libel and Slander Act (1913, Alta., c. 12, 2nd sess.) by inserting a notice at the head of the editorials: "The . . . published at . . . by the . . . publishing company."

COMPENSATION OF INJURY.

When two persons are injured and the injuries are their mutual acts, there is compensation of injury, and neither has any recourse at law. There is thus compensation of injury if one party accuses the other of being a "perjurer," a "bandit" and a "dishonourable man," and the other replies that the first party is a "prostitute."

Vousounara v. Kautsoinopoulos, 53 Que. S.C. 383.

SLANDER—MINOR SON—FATHER'S LIABILITY C.C. QUE. 1053, 1054.

A father is not responsible for his minor son's acts and dealings when it is impossible for him to control him, and when he is unable to foresee his son's words or acts, the son having had a good education and being, usually, reserved.

Biron v. Toupin, 46 Que. S.C. 523.

(§ I—9)—REPETITION—MATTERS OF PUBLIC NOTORIETY.

That the libellous statements were matters of public notoriety in the community previous to their publication may properly be pleaded in mitigation of damages.

II. WHAT ACTIONABLE.

A. IN GENERAL.

(§ II A—10)—WHAT CONSTITUTES SPECIAL DAMAGES—POSTPONEMENT OF MAERAGE—CHARGING ENGAGED MAN WITH BEING MARRIED.

The postponement of the plaintiff's marriage as the result of a slanderous statement regarding him constitutes special damage sufficient to support an action for slander. To untruly state to the father of the plaintiff's fiancée that it is reported that he is a married man, with the intention that the parent should act thereon in order to protect his daughter, which he did by repeating the report to her, is a reflection on the honour of the plaintiff and the honesty of his intentions sufficient to support an action for slander if special damages are shown. [Speight v. Gosnay, 60 L.J.Q.B. 231; Gillett v. Bullivant, 7 L.T. (O.S.) 490; and Derry v. Handley, 16 L.T.N.S. 263, followed.]

NEWSPAPER — CORRUPTION — POLITICAL INFLUENCE.

To charge a newspaper with selling its influence to any political party and therefore binding itself in a manner to deceive the public, by publishing what may be contrary to the honest convictions of its management, tends to bring such newspaper into a contempt with the public and result in damages and is therefore actionable.

ABUSIVE LANGUAGE — MEETING OF SCHOOL COMMISSIONERS.

Where, in a meeting of school commissioners to deliberate upon the question of improvement of a school house, one of them, in the heat of discussion, addressing the chairman, said to him, "You have no heart or honour to let the children suffer," but without intention of attacking the chairman's character, a confession of judgment by such commissioner for $20 as reparation should be accepted.

Dufresne v. Belly, 53 Que. S.C. 335.

AFFRONT TO A RACE.

There is no individual right of action for affronts directed to persons collectively, when the individual persons, as in the case of a race, are so numerous that the defamation cannot injure any one in particular, or cause a personal wrong to any one.

Germain v. Ryan, 53 Que. S.C. 563.

NEWSPAPER — INNUENDO — FREEMASONRY — APPEAL—QUESTION OF FACT.

The publication in a newspaper of an article tending to defame an author and suggesting that he was a Freemason, in a centre of Roman Catholic population, is a libel. A pretence of criticizing literary work does not justify attacks upon the character and upon the person of the one who wrote them. The court, when taking a libellous article into consideration, ought not to attach too much importance to the grammatical sense of the writing of the articles, but ought rather to estimate the effect it has had upon the minds of the readers. When an article is, on its face, libellous, and obviously refers to the plaintiff, it is not necessary to prove the innuendo alleged in the statement of claim. The question of knowing whether a Court of Appeal can vary a judgment of a Trial Court upon a question of fact, or upon the amount of damages accorded, is not a question of law, it is only a rule of discretion, although the courts in several cases have held the opposite view.

INTENTION TO INJURE—SPECIAL DAMAGES.

One who, being aware of the inferior quality of the goods of another, discloses the facts to third persons without intent to injure the owner, incurs no liability towards the latter, especially when the truth of the statement was acknowledged. In an action for slander, evidence of special damage is not admissible unless specially alleged.

Cloutier v. Demers, 39 Que. S.C. 492.

(§ II A—13)—PERSON DEFAMED—CERTAINTY OF REFERENCE.

The certainty of the person upon whom the imputation is laid in an alleged slanderous utterance must be shown by the complaining party; it is not sufficient to support a slander action that some of the persons who were present understood them to refer to the plaintiff, if such be not a plausible and reasonable inference from the circumstances proved in evidence.

Contant v. Ducharme, 10 D.L.R. 230.

DEFAMATORY CHARGES DIRECTED AGAINST A RACE—RIGHTS OF INDIVIDUAL MEMBERS.

In a libel action, if the writing alleged to be libellous contains no defamatory allegation in respect to individuals, but only a dissertation more or less violent and passionate as to the philosophical, social or religious opinion ascribed to a corporation, a religious sect, or an association, it is not defamatory. A writing attacking a Jewish population composed of 75 families in a population of 80,000 persons, in terms which would be libellous if addressed to an individual, is not addressed to an assemblage numerous enough to be lost in the number, and should be considered as defamatory. In this case one of the members of this Jewish body may bring an action for damages against the author of the libel.

Ortenberg v. Plamondon, 24 Que. K.B. 69, reversing 14 D.L.R. 549.

(§ II A-14)—LIBEL—NEWSPAPER—INNUNDO—BANK'S WINDING UP—PURCHASER OF DEPOSITS—GOOD FAITH—PUBLIC INTEREST—QUANTUM OF DAMAGES—QUE. C.C. 1053.

A newspaper which complains of the slowness with which the winding-up of an insolvent bank takes place, and which accuses the persons who bought the depositors' deposits of having interfered with the winding-up in order to induce the depositors to sell their deposits for less amounts, commits a libel even if no name is mentioned, and even if the newspaper did not even know who had bought the deposits. A newspaper which publishes false facts or insinuations cannot plead good faith or public interest. The Court of Appeal will not intervene as to the amount of damages granted by the Trial Court in a case of libel except, as in the case of a jury verdict, when the amount is so high that there is a presumption that the judge has been mistaken, or has been influenced by undue reasons.

La Patrie v. Desresres, 23 Que. K.B. 535.

B. CHARGING LEWDNESS, BAD CHARACTER, CRIME, ETC.

(§ II B-15)—TRIAL—VERDICT FOR DEFENDANT—PLAINTIFF NOT DAMAGED—PLAINTIFF ENTITLED TO NOMINAL VERDICT—INTERFERENCE OF APPELLATE COURT.

Where in an action for slander a jury has brought in a verdict for the defendant on the ground that the plaintiff has suffered no damage, an appellate court will not interfere with such verdict on the ground that the plaintiff is entitled to a verdict for nominal damages. [Wilson v. London Free Press, 45 D.L.R. 503, followed.]

Altman v. Ferguson, 47 D.L.R. 618, [1919] 2 W.W.R. 976.

Where the words of an alleged libel are capable of the criminal meaning charged in the innuendo, although the words would not be libellous per se, the action brought thereon "involves" a criminal charge within the meaning of a statute (9 Edw. VII, c. 40, s. 12 (2)), restricting the class of cases in which security for costs may be ordered against the plaintiff in favour of a newspaper publisher.

WHAT ACTIONABLE — PERSONS DEFAMED — CHARGING TENDENCY TO PUBLISH "PRETENDED CLERICAL SCANDALS."

To publish falsely in a newspaper that a named contributor to another newspaper "never fails to make use of an occasion to reveal pretended clerical scandals" amongst the clergy of the Roman Catholic Church is libellous.

Desaulniers v. "L'Action Sociale," 20 D. L.R. 566.

OPPROBRIOUS WORDS—WOMAN—EXCESSIVE DAMAGES—NEW TRIAL.

Words contained in letters written to the employer of a young woman, referring to her as "slut," "carrion," "dog," "if this woman controls you body and soul," though capable of a defamatory meaning in their ordinary popular sense, were not under the circumstances capable of being understood as imputing to her unchastity or immoral conduct; an award of $15,000 as her damages for the libel is unreasonable and excessive, and ground for a new trial.

UNCHASTITY—NOMINAL DAMAGE.

In an action for slander imputing unchastity to a young girl, only nominal damages can be recovered where no special damage has been proved (Libel and Slander Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 71, s. 19 (1)). Special damage from repetition of the slander for which the defendant is not responsible is too remote. [Review of authorities.]

Stewart v. Sterling, 42 D.L.R. 728, 42 O. L.R. 477.

WORDS IN LETTER, WHETHER CAPABLE OF BEING READ IN A DEFAMATORY SENSE—VERDICT—GENERAL DAMAGES FOR TWO LIBELS—JUSTIFICATION OF ONE—NECESSITY FOR SEPARATION—MISTRIAL—NEW TRIAL.

Leonard v. Wharton, 17 O.W.N. 127.

WORDS IMPUTING CRIMINAL OFFENCE — HOUSEBREAKING—INJURY TO PROPERTY—CRIMINAL CODE, s. 539—FAILURE TO SHEW ACTIONABLE WRONG—FINDING OF JURY—NONSUIT—COSTS.

Bissonnette v. Pilon, 16 O.W.N. 153.

WORDS IMPUTING CRIMINAL OFFENCE—FAILURE TO ESTABLISH ACTIONABLE WRONG—FINDING OF JURY—NONSUIT—COSTS. McMillan v. Pilon, 16 O.W.N. 154.

CHARGING MORAL AND PHYSICAL DEGENERACY.

A newspaper which publishes that the plaintiff "has all the characteristics of moral and physical degeneracy," that he has "all the symptoms of insanity which the police should watch over, and that the Government should cause him to be examined by experts," is guilty of an injurious, malicious, and defamatory libel.

Fournier v. Soleil Pub. Co., 47 Que. S.C. 45.

CHARGING VIOLATION OF LIQUOR LAWS.

It is slanderous to charge a person with committing a breach of the liquor laws for which he may suffer corporal punishment by way of imprisonment.

Richards v. Anderson, 10 W.W.R. 893.

(§ II B-18)—CHARGE OF ILLEGAL MARRIAGE—RIGHT OF ACTION BY CHILDREN. A charge that a man and his wife lived in a state of concubinage presupposes the illegitimacy of their children, and will entitle such children to maintain an action for libel regardless of whether it is true or not.

CONSPIRACY—ACTION FOR CONSPIRING TO CHARGE PLAINTIFF WITH BEING THE FATHER OF A BASTARD — ACTION NOT MAINTAINABLE WITHOUT ALLEGATION OF SPECIAL DAMAGE—SLANDER—MOTION TO SET ASIDE STATEMENT OF CLAIM—LEAVE TO AMEND—COSTS.

Gibson v. McDougall, 17 O.W.N. 157.

(§ II B—20)—CHARGING THEFT OR MISAPPROPRIATION.

Pickels v. Lane, 11 D.L.R. 841.

RECLAIMING AN ANIMAL — JUSTIFICATION — C.C. ART. 1053.

A person who, in good faith, without intending to do wrong, in recovering his animal, which he finds in the hands of a third party, declares that he who sold it to the latter had taken it from his home without any right, and who then causes an attorney's letter to be written to this vendor demanding him, under pain of action, to explain how he came to be in possession of the animal, cannot be sued for damages on account of this. He was exercising his right as owner in reclaiming his property, and his words were relevant.

Warwick v. Guay, 55 Que. S.C. 473.

(§ II B—22)—SLANDER — WORDS CHARGING WOMAN WITH UNCHASTITY — LIBEL AND SLANDER ACT, c. 12, 1913 (2ND SESS.) S. 17 — PREVIOUS UTTERANCE OF SAME SLANDER TO ANOTHER — EVIDENCE OF — ADMISSIBILITY — SPECIAL DAMAGES.

Under s. 17 of the Libel and Slander Act, c. 12, 1913 (2nd sess.) (Alta.) a female plaintiff is entitled to judgment in an action for slander although the words relied on do not directly charge any act of sexual intercourse, if they do charge an invitation to such acts. In an action for slander evidence is admissible that the defendant previously uttered to the witness the same slander as that made the basis of the action. Loss of the association and hospitality of friends has been held special damages in an action for slander.

SLANDER — "ROBBED THE CITY" — EXPLANATION BY OTHER WORDS.

Ward v. McBride, 24 O.L.R. 555.

LEWDNESS—VARIANCE—AMENDMENT.

In an action for slander, if the words (lewdness of woman) proved convey practically the same meaning as the words laid, the variance will be held immaterial or else the judge will amend. [Ecklin v. Little, 6 T.L.R. 366, followed.]

Hahn v. Gettel, 33 W.L.R. 97, 9 W.W.R. 686.

C. DAMAGING BUSINESS; SOCIAL STANDING.

(§ II C—25) — CHARGING CANDY MAKER WITH KEEPING UNSANITARY FACTORY.

A charge that the plaintiff's candy factory was found by a public health inspector to be in an unclean and unsanitary condition, and that the destruction of a large quantity of candy was ordered, setting out a purported statement of particulars supplied by the inspector, is libellous, irrespective of whether the plaintiff was charged with being guilty of a criminal offence; such charge is defamatory both of the plaintiff and of his business.

CHARGE OF OBTAINING OTHER'S LANDS BY POLITICAL INFLUENCE.

A publication charging a trading company with having used political influence for the purpose of procuring legislation giving it possession to lands in derogation of what, to its knowledge, were the property of the publisher of the charges, is an imputation calculated to injure the corporation in its business, and therefore actionable.

Price v. Chicoutimi Pulp Co., 23 D.L.R. 116, 51 Can. S.C.R. 179, affirming 22 Que. K.B. 393.

PHYSICIAN.

To say of a physician that he aggravates diseases to make money, and to say "are you not afraid of having your throat cut by Dr. G—, when you allow yourself to be operated on by him," constitutes slander.

Gagnon v. Cusson, 24 Rev. Leg. 233.

(§ II C—29)—AS TO CHATTEL MORTGAGE.

The publication without malice, by a mercantile agency to its subscribers, of a true extract from a register kept by virtue of an Act of a Provincial Legislature, which was open to inspection by the public, for the purpose of giving to the subscribers information which the agency bona fide believed to be true, is privileged, and an action for libel in respect of such publication will not lie, although the extract purported to shew that the plaintiff had given a chattel mortgage when it should have shewn only a lien note given on the purchase of chattels. [Fleming v. Newton, 1 H.L.C. 363; Searles v. Scarlett, [1892] 2 Q.B. 56; and Annaly v. Trade Auxiliary Co., 26 L.R. Ir. 11, 394, followed. Williams v. Smith, 22 Q.B.D. 134, and Macintosh v. Dun, [1908] A.C. 390, distinguished.] If what is published is not a true extract from the public record, even although it is furnished by the government official in charge, it is not privileged: [Reis v. Perry, 64 L.J.Q.B. 566.]

(§ II C—37)—CHURCH MATTERS — ECCLESIASTICAL CENSURE.

An action does not lie against a church bishop merely because of his ecclesiastical direction to his congregation not to deal with a certain excommunicated member of the church where the statement is not defamatory.

BOARD OF TRUSTEES OF THE COLLEGE OF DENTAL SURGEONS — PROFESSIONAL ETHICS — PUNITIVE AND EXEMPLARY DAMAGES.

The members of the Board of Governors of the College of Dental Surgeons have right of action against a newspaper which published an untrue and defamatory libel impugning their professional honour. It is not necessary to prove special damages.

Ubbotson v. L'Autorite, 25 Rev. de Jur. 322.

PHYSICIAN — WORDS IMPUTING DISCREDITABLE CONDUCT.

SLANDER — WORDS USED "LUNATIC AT LARGE" — ABSENCE OF PROOF OF DAMAGE.

Bootham v. Smith, 19 O.W.R. 147.

D. WORDS ABOUT OFFICIALS OR CANDIDATES.

(§ II D—40)—SLANDER — WORDS OBJECTIONABLE PER SE — CHARGING ALDERMAN WITH WANT OF INTEGRITY.

Without proof of special damage an action for slander will lie for words spoken of a city alderman, imputing to him want of integrity not merely in principle and inclination, but in the exercise of his office, irrespective of whether he could be ousted from office if the truth of the slander were established.

While fair and honest criticism is no tort, yet criticism, if it imputes base and sordid motives unwarranted by the facts, even if the writer bona fide believes them to be true, is not fair comment. There was nothing shewn which would entitle the defendant to claim privilege, but even if such privilege existed it had been abused, in that the communication was made to persons not interested in the matter in question.

Caswell v. Law, 4 S.L.R. 265.

(§ II D—41)—OF LEGISLATIVE OFFICER.

A publication by a newspaper falsely charging a member of a legislature with using his public office in furtherance of his personal or private interests, is defamatory and libelous.

Culligan v. The Graphic, 37 D.L.R. 134, 44 N.B.R. 481.

Although a municipal councillor, as a candidate for re-election, is liable to legitimate criticism of his acts while in office, it is not permissible to attack his honour and stigmatize him as a "dishonest man" not only in his private but also in his public life, because as president of the finance committee he had certified a pay list containing the names of workmen who had never claimed their wages and had approved accounts already paid, when it is proved that these errors were more properly attributable to the municipal officers and that the municipal councillor had acted in good faith and had received no benefit.

Lingley v. Gass, 26 Que. K.B. 156, reversing 48 Que. S.C. 297.

(§ II D—46)—CANDIDATES.

A charge that a candidate for the office of municipal councillor appealed from an assessment of his property on the ground that it was excessive, and that he afterwards sold it for an amount greater than for what it was assessed, which was described as "another of his hold-up games," is not actionable per se. A charge that a candidate for the office of municipal councillor had "held the town up for an exorbitant price" for property required by the town for a public street, does not imply a criminal act, and is not actionable per se.

Holland v. Hall, 3 D.L.R. 722, 3 O.W.N. 1304, 22 O.W.R. 209.

WHEN UTTERED BY CLERGYMAN.

A parish priest who solicits a ratepayer not to vote for a certain person because he, as parish priest, knows things about such ratepayer which he is unable to divulge, meaning that he is not a man of integrity or good moral character, and not worthy to hold a responsible public position, is guilty of slander, and liable in damages.

ELECTION PETITION.

A petitioner if prudent and without malice is allowed freedom to state grounds of complaint relevant to the issue. Upon an action of damages by the respondent upon such petition, against the petitioner, the burden of proof falls upon the plaintiff who, as complaining of an injury, is bound to prove the truth of such injury.

Barre v. Depelteau, 25 Rev. de Jur. 72, 25 Rev. Leg. 65.

E. PRIVILEGED COMMUNICATIONS.

(§ II E—50) — LIABILITY — QUALIFIED PRIVILEGE TO THE PRESS — CONDITION NECESSARY TO INVOKE.

L'Evenement Publishing Co. v. Letourneau, 11 D.L.R. 851, 22 Que. K.B. 152.

PRIEST—CONFESSORIAL.

A priest, being like all other citizens under the jurisdiction of the civil courts, when suing his curé for damages alleges that the defendant has said to a number of persons at the confessional that in voting for the plaintiff to be mayor of the parish they had committed a mortal sin, menacing them with refusal of absolution if they should not consider the vote as a mortal sin and confess it as such, these persons having afterwards repeated these words in public to the detriment of the plaintiff, establishes prima facie a good right of action, and an inscription on droit filed against this action will be dismissed. By a privileged communication it is not necessarily meant that the author of injurious acts would not be responsible on account of a special circumstance; it merely signifies that the presumption of malice which results from the fact that the words are injurious in themselves disappears in the case of a privileged communication, and that a person who complains of the words is obliged to rebut the presumption by positive proof.

Leleuvre v. Jobin, 52 Que. S.C. 492.

The qualified privilege of the press in England in respect to publishing accounts of public meetings exists in virtue of express laws dating from the years 1881 and 1888 made for the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland only. It cannot be invoked in the Province of Quebec, where no such legislation has yet been adopted, though the other provinces have introduced it.

Maille v. Publishing Co. of Canada, 43 Que. S.C. 397.

PRIVILEGED OCCASION—ABUSE OF PRIVILEGE.

(§ II E—55)—EXCESS OF PRIVILEGE.

Where, in an action for libel, the occasion is privileged, and there is evidence to go to the jury on the question of malice, if the jury simply finds that the statement was in excess of the privilege only, there must be judgment for the defendant, since a mere excess of privilege is not necessarily evidence of malice.

REPETITION OF HEARSAY WITHOUT INVESTIGATION — EXCESS OF PRIVILEGE.

A plea of privilege is not sustained by reason of relationship where the defendant wrote his brother an anonymous letter repeating allegations of adultery which he had heard concerning the latter's wife without making any inquiries about the credibility of his informers or to ascertain whether or not they had any sinister motives in formulating or circulating such a report.

EXCESS OF PRIVILEGE — LETTER TO LEGISLATURE.

In an action of damages for libel, privilege does not exist, even when the occasion is privileged, if dishonest acts are charged against the plaintiff without any other object than that he wished to attack the defendant. Thus, a letter addressed to the members of the Legislative Assembly, opposing the adoption of a law concerning an association, and containing sentences injurious to the officers of the association, is not privileged if such accusations are false and malicious. An officer of the association who, although not mentioned by name, is specially aimed at by the letter, has, personally, a right to claim damages from the author of the libel, and the action need not be taken in the name of the association or of its board of directors.

Fontaine v. Potvin, 46 Que. S.C. 495.

(§ II E—58)—AS TO MAGISTRATE OR OFFICER WITHOUT INTENDING TO BASE A CHARGE.

Where the jury finds that defamatory words were spoken to a magistrate without intention of basing a criminal charge on the facts disclosed, the communication is not privileged.

PUBLICATION PRIVILEGED — STATEMENT TO SOLICITOR OF PLAINTIFF IN HIS CHARACTER OF SOLICITOR.

Schelking v. Cromie, 47 D.L.R. 704, [1919] 3 W.W.R. 539.

A written communication to the secretary-treasurer of a municipality to bring to the attention of the council the sale of intoxicating liquor, and designating a certain person who was suspected of practising it, a letter in the same sense to the curé of the parish, and a notice to the suspected person forbidding him to sell liquor to the writer's brother-in-law or son, are not libellous when made in good faith without malice and with probable cause. The fact that the suspected person had been prosecuted for selling liquor and acquitted does not negative probable cause.

Vézina v. Moise, 44 Que. S.C. 30.

(§ II E—59) — RECKLESS STATEMENTS — ABSENCE OF BELIEF IN TRUTH OF.

Where slanderous statements are known by the defamer to be untrue, or he makes them recklessly not caring whether they were true or false, the qualified privilege which would otherwise attach because of a common interest in the subject-matter of the inquiry, is not available as a defence in slander.

(§ II E—60)—THEFT — DAMAGES — GOOD FAITH — PROBABLE CAUSE — PRIVILEGED OCCASION — C.C., ART. 1053.

The defendant, a merchant in the country, was awakened twice during the night by the plaintiff wishing to buy intoxicating beverages. In the morning the defendant held that the window frame of his store had been forced open and that someone had stolen from him beer, eggs, money, and a cheque for $57. He declared that he suspected the plaintiff of having stolen it. He imparted his suspicions to the manager of the bank who was his business adviser. In these circumstances the defendant acted with probable cause and in a privileged case. He is not responsible for damages to the plaintiff.

Jacques v. Joharghi, 25 Rev. Leg. 248.

(§ II E—65)—COURSE OF DUTY OR BUSINESS.

The delivery of a letter to be typed is publication when the occasion is not privileged and the letter does not concern the ordinary course of business in which the typist is employed. A communication in writing on an occasion of qualified privilege is not privileged if on its face it is clearly in excess of the occasion.

COURSE OF DUTY—CONSTABLE—PUBLICATION.

The publication of a slander in the course of an effort to ferret out a crime is not privileged on the part of a person who believed he was a constable, and acting as such, if in fact he was not a constable.

Trafton v. Deschen's, 36 D.L.R. 433, 44 N.B.R. 552.

IN COURSE OF DUTIES OR BUSINESS.

A physician has the privilege of prescribing to his patients remedies which he deems proper and also of advising them to have them made preferably in one drug store than in another, as long as he acts in good faith, without malicious intent, and if he gives such advice only because he is convinced that his prescriptions will be better filled in the drug store which he designates. The presumption of malice which arises from words apparently injurious, disappears before a proof of circumstances which establish good faith and justification of the one who has maintained them.

Aumont v. Cousineau, 18 Rev. de Jur. 271.

(§ II E—69)—STATEMENTS BY MANAGER AS TO CONDUCT OF EMPLOYEE.

Statements made by the manager of a store to parents in answer to their inquiries as to the grounds of the dismissal of their daughter, that she had sent goods home from the store without charging them, which implied theft, are privileged communications from which no actual malice can be inferred, and, therefore, not actionable slander.

(§ II E—74)—LANDLORD AND TENANT.

Where it appeared in a proceeding permitted by s. 5 of the Collection Act, R.S. N.S. 1902, c. 182, to be instituted by a judgment creditor for an examination of the financial condition, etc., of the judgment debtor, the debtor being in this case one against whom judgment had been rendered in an action of slander, that the debtor had called at a house owned by him for the purpose of collecting the rent then due and of giving the tenant notice to quit because he had heard that the conduct of the inmates was giving the house a bad name and he told the tenant what he had heard and demanded an explanation and in the altercation that followed between the parties in the presence of the tenant's wife and daughters, the debtor uttered the slander for which the judgment was entered against him against one of the tenant's daughters, but in all the discussion, he made no statement irrelevant to the subject he demanded to be explained, the occasion is a privileged one, and if no ill-will or malice in fact on the part of the debtor is shewn and no issue as to privilege or malice was raised in the action in which the judgment was recovered, an order for the committal of the debtor is not warranted as for a wilful and malicious tort under subs. 1 (f) of s. 27 of the Collection Act, enacting that if in cases of tort it appears to the officer charged with the examination of the judgment debtor that the tort was wilful, he may commit the debtor to gaol.

Henn v. Smith, 6 D.L.R. 48, 11 E.L.R. 1. (§ II E—77)—WHEN TESTIFYING—BEFORE COMMISSION.

The immunity of witnesses in judicial proceedings from liability for statements made therein is not a statutory one but is founded upon a rule of law declared by the courts and based upon grounds of public policy and convenience. Such immunity extends to a witness before a commission appointed under the authority of a statute to inquire into some matter properly cognizable, if such evidence be pertinent to the inquiry, even though the Act under which the commission is appointed and the method of its appointment are open to sound legal objection. No action will lie for an alleged slander uttered by a witness while giving evidence before a commissioner appointed by the Lieut.-Gov.-in-Council under c. 2, 1908 (Alta.).

If a witness abuses his position as such in order to injure the parties to the case or third parties, either by perjuring himself or by making statements which do not relate to the matter in issue or to the questions which are put to him, he commits a fault provided against by art. 1053, C.C. (Que.).

Carrington v. Russell, 4 D.L.R. 675, 42 Que. S.C. 71.

WORDS USED BY WITNESS.

The privilege, invoked by the defendant in an action claiming damages for libel, that the alleged libelous expressions were spoken or written by him in his capacity of witness at a trial, is not absolute and depends on circumstances which should be pleaded and proved. Therefore, preuve avant faire droit will be ordered on the claim of such privilege.

Hoban v. Parsons, 13 Que. P.R. 363.

MATTER CONTAINED IN PLEADINGS.

There can be no libel in pleadings in the regular course of justice, if the allegations, however defamatory, be material and made with reasonable cause.

Forget v. Belleau, 26 Que. K.B. 58.

(§ II E—78)—WORDS USED IN PLEADINGS.

Where allegations in a written pleading are relevant to the issues of the case and are made with reasonable and probable cause and without malice and are relied on in good faith and under the belief that they are true, and the correctness thereof can only be ascertained at the trial, such allegations are privileged, and even should the court come to the conclusion that they have not been proven, no action will lie against the party making such allegations.

(§ II E-80)—FAIR COMMENT — CHARGING CORRUPTION.

No action for libel will lie against a newspaper which makes fair and reasonable comments upon prevalent evil conditions, provided they do not exceed the bounds of legitimate criticism, and do not impute personal knowledge and corrupt intention.

(§ II E-82)—MUNICIPAL OFFICER — ALLEGED LIBEL — JUDGE'S CHARGE—GENERAL VERDICT — INTERPRETATION OF.

Where in an action for damages for libel of a municipal officer the trial judge explained the meaning of s. 5 of the Libel and Slander Act (R.S.O. 1914, c. 71), and charged them that the words were capable of a defamatory meaning and that it was their duty to find whether the words had, in fact, a defamatory meaning, and, if so, to assess damages, and the jury brought in a general verdict "for the defendant." The jury must be taken to have found either that the words were not libelous or that, if they were libelous, the damages were too trifling to warrant a verdict for the plaintiff; in either case the Appellate Court should not set aside the verdict or order a new trial. [Sydney Post Publishing Co. v. Kendall, 43 Can. S.C.R. 461; Lumsden v. Spectator Printing Co., 14 D.L.R. 470, 29 O.L.R. 293, distinguished.]

MUNICIPAL OFFICERS.

Where the defendant company, who were engaged in manufacturing and selling certain articles used principally by municipalities, finding their business interests imperilled by the unlawful acts of plaintiff company, their rivals, who had issued a circular and sent it to municipal secretaries-treasurers, Reeves, and councillors in various provinces, calling their attention to the fact that it was unlawful for the company to pay commissions directly to these officers on any future sales to their municipalities but leaving it to these officers to select local agents to represent the company in making sales to the municipalities, sends out a circular letter to the same officers and to others calling attention to plaintiff's circular and intimating that it would be difficult for an honest rival to compete with one who used such a circular or did the acts which the circular suggests and that hundreds of honourable secretaries-treasurers and councillors have spurned the graft, the sending of such circular by defendants is a privileged communication.

F. WHAT CONSTITUTES A PUBLICATION.

(§ II F-85)—EVIDENCE OF PUBLICATION. There is evidence of publication of a libel where it appears that the pamphlet containing the libellous words has come into the hands of codefendants.

Lucas v. Ministerial Assn., 31 D.L.R. 200.

The question as to whether a slander has been published or not is one of fact, and where the trial takes place without a jury, the Trial Judge's finding will not be reversed on appeal unless the Appellate Court has a "firm conviction of error."

Wickens v. McConkey, 7 D.L.R. 602, 2 W.W.R. 946, affirming Alta. Supreme Court.

WHAT CONSTITUTES PUBLICATION.

One who, finding that slanders concerning him are being circulated, and not knowing who is responsible, places the matter in the hands of a detective agency, but does not tell or ask them to go to any particular person, may recover damages for a publication of the slanderous statements to employees of the detective agency. [King v. Waring, 5 Esp. 15, and Smith v. Wood, 3 Camp. 323, distinguished.] The fact that the slanderous utterance was spoken by the procurement of the plaintiff is not material to the question of publication or no publication. [Duke of Brunswick v. Harmer, 14 Q.B. 185, applied.]

Rudd v. Cameron, 8 D.L.R. 622, 27 O.L.R. 327, 23 O.W.R. 469, affirming on different grounds, 4 D.L.R. 567, 26 O.L.R. 154.

III. Actions; defences.

A. IN GENERAL.

Relevancy of evidence as to meaning of libel, innuendo, fair comment, see Discovery, IV-32.

Relevancy of evidence as to authorship of libellous letter in newspaper, see New Trial, II-7.

(§ III A-95)—NEWSPAPER LIBELS — SECURITY FOR COSTS — SUFFICIENCY OF AFFIDAVIT.

An affidavit by the defendant in an action for a newspaper libel stating his belief, after diligent inquiry, that the plaintiff is not possessed of property sufficient to answer the costs of the action, sufficiently meets the onus probandi to establish the negative as to the plaintiff's pecuniary liability under s. 12 of the Libel and Slander Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 71, and will entitle him to an order for security for costs. [Paladino v. Gustin, 17 P.R. (Ont.) 553, distinguished.]

NEWSPAPER — SUFFICIENCY OF NOTICE — MISNOMER — SPECIFYING STATEMENTS.

A mere misnomer of the defendant in a notice to a newspaper under the Ontario Libel and Slander Act (R.S.O. 1914, c. 71,

s. 8), the notice describing the defendant as a "publishing" instead of a "printing" company, is not so misleading as to vitiate the notice; but where the notice merely sets out the date of the issue of the newspaper containing the alleged libel, indicating the article by quoting its heading, without "specifying the statements complained of," as required by the Act, it is insufficient and the action will be dismissed upon the defence of want of notice.

Pohlman v. Herald Printing Co. of Hamilton, 48 D.L.R. 361, 45 O.L.R. 291, reversing 15 O.W.N. 215.

DAMAGES — CONFESSION OF JUDGMENT — REFUSAL TO ACCEPT.

In an action for damages for defamatory libel, the plaintiff has a right to adduce evidence to re-establish her good name and reputation, and is justified in refusing to accept a confession of judgment which denies all the allegations in the action; after notice of her refusal to accept the confession, if no defence is filed, the plaintiff may proceed ex parte to prove her claim as if no confession had been filed.

Rochon v. Monfette, 32 D.L.R. 466, 25 Que. K.B. 528.

APOLOGY — NOTICE — NAME OF PUBLISHER OR PROPRIETOR.

Section 15 of the Libel and Slander Act, c. 12, 1913 (2nd sess.) which provides that no defendant shall be entitled to the benefit of ss. 7 and 13 thereof (which prohibit actions for libel against a newspaper until after service of notice upon it demanding an apology and the lapse of sufficient time to permit the printing of such apology and limit the time within which such actions may be begun to 3 months after knowledge of the publication of the libel), "unless the name of the proprietor and publisher and address of publication is stated either at the head of the editorials or on the first page of the newspaper," held to have been complied with by the following notice at the head of the editorials in the defendant's newspaper: "Published at Calgary, Canada, by the Herald Publishing Company, Limited." Section 15 contemplates one natural or artificial person or partnership that is both publisher and proprietor, and the stating of the name of the publisher, as it was stated in this case, is a stating of the name of the proprietor as well, and therefore, a compliance with the section.

A notice under s. 5 of the Libel Act (R.S.M. 1913, c. 113), addressed to "The Winnipeg Telegram Printing Company, Limited," instead of to "The Telegram Printing Company, Limited," is a sufficient compliance with the Act if it in fact reaches the latter company and it is given thereby the opportunity to apologize which it is the purpose of the statute to secure. [Burwell

v. London Free Press, 27 O.R. 6; Benner v. Mail Printing Co., 24 O.L.R. 507, not followed.]

NEWSPAPER — RETRACTION BY — DELAY IN RETRACTING — EFFECT AS TO DAMAGES.

A newspaper sued for libel is not entitled to a dismissal on publishing a retraction several weeks after action brought and offering to pay the costs; the plaintiff may thereupon inscribe for proof and have his damages assessed in default of further plea. Desaulniers v. "L'Action Sociale." 20 D.L.R. 566.

EXEMPLARY DAMAGES — APOLOGIES — QUE. C.C. 1053.

In the case of slander that may give rise to an action for exemplary damages, apologies made to the offended person are considered, according to doctrine and jurisprudence, as an extenuation of the action for slander.

Pare v. Madore, 46 Que. S.C. 427.

ACTIONS—DEFENCES.

In an action for libel contained in a newspaper, the defendant may, independently of Lord Campbell's Act, 6 & 7 Vict. c. 96, and as in any other action brought to recover a debt or damages, defend by paying money into court by way of satisfaction, but the payment cannot be accompanied by a defence denying liability, although the defendant can, if he admits that he published the alleged libel and that the words are defamatory, pay money into court and at the same time deny the innuendoes or some of the innuendoes alleged. Where the statement of claim in a libel action alleges 3 distinct libels alleging innuendoes in each case and the defendant pleads payment into court, and as to two of the libels admits their publication and defamatory meaning but denies the innuendoes, and as to the third libel admits only its publication and alleges that the words are not libellous and are incapable of a defamatory meaning, the defence does not indicate with sufficient clearness that the plea of payment into court applies only to the 2 libels first mentioned and such plea will be stricken out with leave to the defendant to amend so as to make, if he so wishes, the plea refer to the two first mentioned libels only.

Parks v. Edmonton Journal Co., 3 A.L.R. 359.

DISCOVERY — NEWSPAPER — DISCLOSURE OF CONTRIBUTORS.

In a libel action against a newspaper which assumes full responsibility for what it publishes, the court should not, except under special circumstances, compel it to disclose the name of its contributors or informants.

De Schelking v. Cromie, [1918] 3 W.W.R. 1038.

SLANDER—SPECIAL DAMAGE.

The fact that as a result of the words complained of people have avoided the plaintiff, is not special damage as will support an action for slander where the words are not in themselves actionable. [Weldon v. DeBathe, 14 Q.B.D. 339, applied.]

Ball v. Donnelly, [1918] 3 W.V.R. 55.

Garrison v. Eastwood, 15 O.W.N. 273.

JURY TRIAL — VERDICT FOR PLAINTIFF

"WITHOUT DAMAGES" — LIBEL AND

SLANDER ACT, R.S.O. 1914, c. 71, s. 5.

De Luer v. Hare, 13 O.W.N. 450.

(§ III A—96)—If the statement complained of as libel is a privileged communication, then, to make it libellous, there must be actual as distinguished from legal malice. In an action for libel, where the occasion is privileged, in order to justify a verdict for plaintiff the jury must expressly find malice. It seems that even the demeanour of a party on the witness stand is an element for consideration on the question of the existence of malice.

NECESSITY OF PROVING MALICE.

In a slander action, while the plaintiff might, to remove privilege, and establish malice, on the trial give evidence of publications of the alleged slander, not mentioned in the particulars, yet it did not follow that an affirmative answer to the questions put to him on an examination for discovery would have established malice; but they might have been intended to secure information as to publications on occasions not privileged, on which the plaintiff might bring another action, and such questions will not be permitted. In determining the question of malice the matter in question is the defendant's belief in the truth of the matters alleged at the time of the publication, and not at the time of the examination, so questions so framed as to cover present belief are not proper questions relevant to the issue.

Klenman v. Schmidt, 4 S.L.R. 366.

(§ III A—98) — NECESSITY OF DISCLOSING NAMES OF PARTIES PRESENT.

The plaintiff in an action claiming damages for defamation is not obliged to disclose the names of the persons present if he states that such persons will be used as witnesses. If the plaintiff claims both actual and exemplary damages he may be directed to give the particulars as to each class.

McPartland v. Russell, 13 Que. P.R. 306.

(§ III A—99) — ACTION AGAINST NEWSPAPER—NOTICE—PLEADING.

Failure of the plaintiff in a libel action against a newspaper, in reply to a plea setting up want of notice as required by s. 8 (1) of the Libel and Slander Act (R.S.O. 1914, c. 71), to allege noncompliance with s. 15 (1) which disentitles the defendant from the benefit of such defence unless the name of the proprietor or publisher is stated in the paper, is not an admission of such compliance; where the plea alleges compliance, the same is not admitted by the absence of denial in the replication.

Dingle v. World Newspaper Co., 45 D.L.R. 226, 57 Can. S.C.R. 373, reversing 43 D.L.R. 463, 43 O.L.R. 218.

B. WHO MAY RECOVER.

(§ III B—100) — PERSON LIBELED REPRODUCING LIBEL.

A journalist who is libeled in a newspaper and who reproduces the libellous article in his own paper with comments, does not thereby abandon his right to sue for damages, but this reproduction increases the publicity of the libel, for which the defendant cannot be held responsible.

Fournier v. Soleil Pub. Co., 47 Que. S.C. 45.

SLANDER ACTION — HUSBAND AND WIFE CO-PLAINTIFFS.

In an action for slander with respect to the wife, there is no objection to her being a coplaintiff, and an inscription in law asking the dismissal of the action, as far as she is concerned, will be dismissed.

Lefebvre v. Roberge, 16 Que. P.R. 270.

LIBEL ON PARENTS — ACTION BY CHILDREN.

Children cannot maintain an action for damages in consequence of a libel on their parents.

Frigon v. Massicotte, 42 Que. S.C. 445.

C. DEFENCES; JUSTIFICATION.

(§ III C—105) — JUSTIFICATION.

It is no justification to plead to an action for libel that the deceased was a Roman Catholic priest and that according to the Roman Catholic religion he could never marry, and any marriage contracted by him was null and void; attacks on the deceased's theories and opinions might be matters of public interest, but statements as to his private life are not. The fact that the writer did not know that the deceased he has libelled had left children still living is an aggravation and not a mitigation of a libel charging that the deceased had not been legally married.

MUNICIPAL COUNCIL—APPLICATION FOR HOTEL LICENSE — DISCUSSION — C.C. ART. 1053.

The fact of saying that a former hotel keeper, an owner of a temperance hotel in a place where prohibition exists, has bought intoxicating beverages for $86.24 does not mean that he has acquired this beverage to sell without license, and does not constitute an injury. A municipal councillor, called to decide on a request for a license before the council, which is a question of public interest, has the right to take account of information which he obtains, and of discussing the question publicly and freely; if he does so in good faith, without malice and with probable cause, he does not incur any civil responsibility.

Desjardins v. Beaucage, 25 Rev. Leg. 509.
JUSTIFICATION — PARTICULARS — AFFIDAVIT.

Where the defendant, in an action for slander, pleads justification, he must state in his plea, or in particulars delivered to supplement the plea, the facts upon which he relies for justification; and, until such particulars are given, the defendant is not entitled to examine the plaintiff for discovery. The plaintiff is not bound to make affidavit of denial before he call upon the defendant for particulars. [Zierenberg v. Labouche, [1893] 2 Q.B. 183; Arnold & Butler v. Bottomley, [1908] 2 K.B. 151, followed.] Where an order was made requiring the defendant to deliver particulars of a plea of justification, and the particulars delivered did not comply with that order, an order was made setting aside the particulars delivered, with liberty to the defendant to deliver new particulars, verified by his oath that they "are to the best of his belief true and as full and accurate as he can make them, in view of the knowledge he now has."

Hemeforth v. Maloof, 42 O.L.R. 36.

NEWSPAPER — PLEADING — STATEMENT OF DEFENCE — SERIES OF LETTERS FROM CORRESPONDENTS — PROVOCATION.

DEFENCE OF FAIR COMMENT — ERROR IN JUDGE'S CHARGE INDUCED BY DEFENDANT — MISTRIAL — DAMAGES — NEW TRIAL — COSTS.

Jacks v. Mail Printing Co., 7 O.W.N. 677.

DEFENCE — PAYMENT INTO COURT.

A tender cannot be pleaded as a defence to a claim for unliquidated damages. Under order 22, r. 1, of the Nova Scotia Judicature Act, a defendant cannot plead payment into court with a defence denying liability in an action for libel.

Hardwick v. Kinney, 11 E.L.R. 583.

DEFENCES — JUSTIFICATION — NOTORIETY OF FACTS TO PUBLIC — AMENDMENT — C.C. ART. 1053; C.C.P. 191, 522.

In an action of damages for slander, the notoriety of facts stated by the defendant and mere repetition of current rumors, may be pleaded as mitigation of damages, and these allegations cannot be rejected on inscription in law. When in an action of damages for slander the declaration mentioned certain time and place where the defamatory words were spoken, the plaintiff cannot amend his declarations to substitute another time and place, as this would be materially altering the charge against the defendant. Conversation with the chief of police, at the court house, during a notorious trial wherein the defendant in good faith merely repeats accusation against the plaintiff already known to the public by the evidence adduced in the trial, by publications in newspapers, and by public rumors, does not amount to an injurious or slanderous statement and is privileged.

Carrington v. Mosher, 46 Que. S.C. 484.

PARTICULARS—DISCOVERY.

In an action for libel a plea of justification was made without stating full particulars thereof and defendant's solicitor obtained from the plaintiff's solicitor an undertaking to produce the plaintiff for examination for discovery and plaintiff's solicitor obtained from defendant's solicitor 2 postponements of the time of said examination and while the second period was current plaintiff's solicitor took out a summons for particulars and the defendant's solicitor took out a summons to compel plaintiff's solicitor to fulfil his undertakings. Held, that there was nothing in these circumstances justifying the ignoring of the principle that a defendant who has pleaded a general justification must furnish the plaintiff with the particulars of the facts before obtaining discovery from the plaintiff.

Wilson v. Deane, 3 A.L.R. 186.

DEFENCE TO ACTION — JUSTIFICATION — FRESH PUBLICATION OF LIBEL.
Méthot v. Taschereau, 39 Que. S.C. 289.

(§ III C—108)—DEFENCES — ABSENCE OF MALICE.

The absence of malice in making the publication, though it may not be a bar to an action for libel, may reduce the quantum of damages; and the defendant is entitled to plead in mitigation of damages that he acted in good faith and with honesty of purpose.

Robert v. Herald Co., 10 D.L.R. 20.

Pleading justification is not, by itself, evidence of malice in a libel action but it will tend to aggravate the damages if the defendant either abandons the plea at the trial or fails to prove it.

Chiniquy v. Bégin, 7 D.L.R. 65, 41 Que. S.C. 261.

ABSENCE OF MALICE.

Where the occasion is privileged, in an action for libel, the presumption is in favour of the absence of malice.

(§ III C-109)—DAMAGES — GOOD FAITH — PROBABLE CAUSE—C.C. ART. 1053.

The defendant had 2 buffalo robes stolen. Having seen a rig go out of his yard he followed it and on the way picked up his 2 robes which had been thrown on the street. Having reached the rig he found an individual who told him that his name was Merrill the defendant. He sent him a lawyer's letter, claiming $15 damages on account of his buffalo robes; in these circumstances the defendant had acted in good faith and with probable cause and could not be sued.

Merrill v. Gayné, 25 Rev. Leg. 405.

(§ III C-110)—FAIR COMMENT — ESSENTIALS OF PLEA—TRUTH.

Where fair comment is pleaded in a libel action, the defendant must prove the truth of the facts upon which the comment was based, and that it was honestly and fairly made upon a matter of public interest.

FAIR COMMENT.

Everyone has a right to comment on matters of public interest provided he does so fairly and honestly and such comment, however severe, is not actionable.

Even a personal attack may, under certain circumstances, form part of a fair comment upon giving "facts" truly stated, if it be a reasonable inference from them.

Brown v. Orde, 6 D.L.R. 297, 4 O.W.N. 18, 26, 22 O.W.R. 1002.

FAIR COMMENT—PUBLIC OFFICE.

The conduct of the holder of a public office held not to be a matter of public interest in a political contest in another part of the country a number of years after such person had ceased to hold such office, and when he was not a candidate or official in the contest in question, and particulars of such matters of alleged public interest were struck out of the statement of defence in an action for libel.

Wade v. News Advertiser, 24 B.C.R. 260, [1917] 2 W.W.R. 1134.

FAIR COMMENT—ACTION BY COMPANY.

In an action of libel a defence invoking the public interest, good faith and the right of fair comment, cannot relieve the author of the comment from liability unless he proves in addition the truth of the assertions contained in the libellous writing. A joint stock company may bring action for defamation if it suffers in respect of its property. Accusations which by their very nature would cause injury and real damage may be the subject of reparation without proof of special damage.
Can. Dig.—91.

Chicoutimi Pulp Co. v. Price, 51 Que. S.C. 360.

(§ III C-111) — TRUTH — NEWSPAPER CHARGING EXPULSION FROM RACETRACK FOR ASSAULT.

The plea of truth in justification for a libellous statement published in a newspaper that the plaintiff had been fined and suspended from association racetracks for assaulting the starter at a race-meeting, the innuendo being that the plaintiff had been guilty of an unlawful assault and indictable offence and of improper conduct as a horseman, is not sufficiently established where the evidence shews that the alleged assault was committed by another person, but the fine had been erroneously recorded against the plaintiff, or that on a previous occasion he was fined for irregularities on the track not in connection with the incident charged in the libel.

BELIEF IN TRUTH—MOTIVE.

Inasmuch as the rule of law is that the motive or intention of the writer is immaterial to the right of action, the fact that the writer wrote as a Roman Catholic addressing himself to Roman Catholic readers is not a ground of justification for the publication of an absolute statement that 2 persons were not legally married when the fact was merely that their marriage was not recognized as valid by the Roman Catholic Church.

Chiniquy v. Légin, 7 D.L.R. 65, 41 Que. S.C. 261.

JUSTIFICATION — FAIR COMMENT — BELIEF IN TRUTH — MISDIRECTION.

In an action to recover damages for libel, a direction by the Trial Judge to the jury that the defence of justification would be established if the defamatory statements had been made in honest belief of their truth, although in fact untrue, and that, if the publications were an honest comment on the facts, that, in itself, would be sufficient to establish the defence of fair comment, is erroneous and misleading.

Price v. Chicoutimi Pulp Co., 23 D.L.R. 116, 51 Can. S.C.R. 179, affirming 22 Que. K.B. 393.

JUSTIFICATION—TRUTH.

In an action claiming damages for defamation evidence of the truth of the facts cannot be received as justification, but the court can take it into consideration from the point of view of the intention to cause injury, which is an element of the defamation, and for the mitigation of the damages. Bois v. Deschêne, 48 Que. S.C. 178.

(§ III C-112)—ALLEGATIONS AS TO PROVOCATION.

On an application to the referee in chambers to strike out paragraphs of a statement of defence, an affidavit to prove the truth of a reply should not be admitted. Paragraphs of a statement of defence in a libel action, setting up a previous article published by the plaintiff and that the article complained of was invited and provoked by such previous article, were sustained; it being for the jury to say whether the retort was in self defence, and the plaintiff was ordered to attend and submit to be examined as to the first article.

ATTACKS BY POLITICAL NEWSPAPERS—PROVOCATION.

In an action claiming damages for libel in a political newspaper, it is permissible to plead, as an extenuation of the fault, provocation by the plaintiff in another paper of articles alleged to be injurious and harmful attacking collectively the French-Canadian deputation to the Dominion Parliament, and especially the political friends of the newspaper put on its defence. The court can take the circumstances into account in order to determine the extent of the liability of the defendant. In any case such provocation should be direct and personal. The defence cannot allege that the articles that it invokes as provocation are untrue, defamatory and libellous; the last ground is an exception to the right of another, and can in any case only furnish matter for an incidental demand.

Fournier v. Soleil Pub. Co., 47 Que. S.C. 45.

(§ III C-113)—JUSTIFICATION — BASIS FOR PLEA OF TRUTH, WHEN INSUFFICIENT AS TO SPECIFIC FACTS.

In an action for libel, a justification must be specially pleaded and with sufficient particularity to enable the plaintiff to know precisely what is the charge he will have to meet, and, although where the words complained of are precise and convey a specific charge in full detail, it is sufficient to plead that they are true in substance and in fact and no particulars are necessary, yet an allegation in plaintiff's statement of claim, that the defendant newspaper published an article charging, that an effort was made "to stampede the members of the city council into appointing a member of the police force," and that the first move to secure a certain appointment to the police force was made by the plaintiff "of the notorious cafeteria and later the pioneer of the still more notorious South Coulee," does not allege such specific facts in full detail as would entitle the defendant to plead truth in justification without stating particulars shewing the specific facts which he means to prove in order to establish the truth of the alleged libel. [Zierenberg v. Labouchere, [1893] 2 Q.B. 183; Walker v. Hodgson, [1909] 1 K.B. 239, followed.]

TRUTH.

Where an alleged libellous statement is true, if it be a privileged communication, there can be no recovery no matter what amount of malice may exist.

(§ III C-114)—EXPLANATION OF ALLEGED LIBELLOUS MATTER BY SAME OR OTHER ARTICLES.

A defendant in an action of libel is entitled to plead and prove in mitigation of damages that the remainder of the articles not set out in the plaintiff's statement of claim modify the words sued upon or that other passages in the same publication qualify them.

Robert v. Herald Co., 10 D.L.R. 20.

LIBEL — INSCRIPTION IN LAW — COMMISSIONERS' REPORT — PUBLIC OPINION.

A journalist sued for libel has the right to rely on public documents to discuss an appointment to some position. He may allege the state of public opinion concerning the plaintiff, such a fact being useful to some extent in fixing the amount of damages.

(§ IV-120)—CRIMINAL LIBEL — REFUSING PRIVATE PROSECUTOR LEAVE TO PREFER INDICTMENT OR FORMAL CHARGE AFTER COMMITMENT OF ACCUSED FOR TRIAL — CROWN'S REFUSAL TO PERMIT PROSECUTION.

After a committal for trial for criminal libel, the court will refuse leave to the private prosecutor to prefer a charge, if the Crown not only refuses to prosecute but opposes the application of the private prosecutor to proceed with the charge, as in case leave were granted the Att'y-Gen'l could immediately enter a stay of proceedings under Cr. Code, s. 962, which would, in effect, nullify any order granting leave.

LIBEL IN ATTRIBUTING INTENTION.

A false statement made in writing that another person intended to commit suicide is not a libel involving a criminal charge. Stone v. World Newspaper Co., 30 Can. Cr. Cas. 292, 44 O.L.R. 33.

(§ IV—121) — PRIVATE PROSECUTOR — CROWN.

The person who laid the information for defamatory libel, which was followed by a commitment for trial and indictment of the accused, is none the less a "private prosecutor" liable for costs of the defendant under Cr. Code, s. 1045, on judgment going in the latter's favour, although the Crown counsel took up the proceedings after the preliminary enquiry and conducted them as Crown business. [R. v. Patterson, 36 U.C. R. 129, followed.]

(§ II A—14)—CONFIRMATION OF CERTIFICATE—OPPOSITION—REVOCATION.

The municipal elector who signs an opposition to the grant of a license certificate cannot withdraw his signature, and art. 930 of R.S.Q. 1909, as amended by (1 Geo. V., c. 10), permitting a municipal elector to personally appear before the authorities charged with the duty of confirming the certificate and to withdraw his signature does not apply to an opposition signed by the absolute majority of the municipal electors. Resolutions of a municipal council permitting the signers of an opposition to the confirmation of a certificate for license to withdraw their signatures so that it will no longer contain the entire majority, and confirming the certificate, notwithstanding his opposition, are illegal and ultra vires, and will be quashed on application of the municipal elector.

Chaput v. St. Denis, 47 Que. S.C. 146.

B. POWER AS TO, GENERALLY.

(§ II B—20)—Article 932 of the License Law of Quebec, R.S.Q. 1909, requires a municipal council to give the reasons upon which it refused to confirm the certificates of license of the existing holder, when it confirms that of a new license holder and this law being one of public order, a resolution by the municipal council which is passed under breach of its provisions is void.

LICENSING — CONDITIONS PRECEDENT — MUNICIPAL ACT, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 170, SUBSS. 318, 349, 352—CROWN OFFICE R. 40—CERTIORARI.

Compliance with the requirements of the Municipal Act, as to the signature to a petition for a license, and as to the statement of distances of residences of signatories from the premises is a condition precedent to the jurisdiction of a Board of License Commissioners to hear the petition. Rule 40 of the Crown Office Rules only applies to an omission or mistake in a judgment or order.

Re New Westminster Board of License Commissioners, 6 W.W.R. 681.

CANCELLATION—PROCEDURE.

When cancelling a license under the authority of a by-law which contains no provisions as to procedure, a licensing board is not bound to observe the principles governing procedure in court. [Re Crabbe and Swan River, 9 D.L.R. 405, followed.] Subs. 121, s. 95, c. 40, 1913 (B.C.), is confined to proceedings before courts of justice for infractions of inter alia by-laws.

SALE—GOVERNMENT INDEMNITY.

The sale of a tavern or restaurant license is a legal sale of an incorporeal right and is perfected by the acceptance of the transfer of the license by the Government. The unpaid vendor of such license has a right to be collected by privilege for the amount of the price of sale remaining due upon the above-mentioned indemnity paid to the insolvent by the government.

(§ II C—25)—THEATRES — POWERS OF MUNICIPALITY—AMOUNT.

The corporate powers of a municipality, under s. 64 (24) of the Towns Incorporation Act (C.S.N.B., c. 166), to license and regulate all theatres, is subject to the limitation of s. 3 of c. 168, that the license fee on "public places of amusement" shall not exceed $50; a by-law imposing on moving picture shows an annual license fee or $300 is ultra vires and void.

SHOOTING GALLERY—MORAL CHARACTER—MANDAMUS.

Section 233 of the Edmonton (Alta.) charter is wide enough to authorize the requirement of good moral character as a condition precedent to the issuing of a license for a shooting gallery, which may be made to depend upon a report certified by the chief of police; and the court will not, by mandamus, interfere with the action of the license authorities refusing a license because of an unfavourable report. (§ II C—27)—THEATRES AND MOVING PICTURES—POWERS AS TO REGULATION.

By s. 3 of the Theatres Act (Alta. 1911-12, c. 29), the Lieut.-Gov.-in-council may make regulations governing the erection, operation, supervision and safety of all classes of theatres and entertainment halls, and by s. 4 may make regulations for licensing, controlling and governing the use and operation of cinematographs, moving picture machines or similar apparatus, and for regulating or prohibiting the exchange, leasing, sale or exhibition of films, and by s. 13 may make such regulations as may be deemed necessary, advisable or convenient for the purpose of carrying into effect the provisions of the Act:—Held, that the above provisions do not authorize the Lieut.-Gov.-in-council to impose a license fee on theatres.

(§ II C—33)—SALES BY SAMPLE—COMMERCIAL TRAVELERS.

Where the enabling statute authorizes a by-law to be passed by a city for licensing commercial travelers for nonresident traders selling directly to consumers, a by-law which is not restricted to nonresidents is ultra vires because it is broader than the statute authorizes, and a summary conviction thereunder will be quashed although the trader whom the accused represented was a non-resident.

COMMERCIAL TRAVELER—TAKING ORDERS.

A wholesale merchant who sends a commercial traveler to take orders in a neighbouring municipality for the sale of goods, and who delivers such goods there on the following day to the purchasers by the same clerk, does not carry on a commercial business in such municipality and is not obliged to take out a license there.

Giffard v. Dupuis, 50 Que. S.C. 257.

PEDDLERS—INSTALLATION OF LIGHTNING RODS.

A lightning rod vendor who canvasses for orders for the supply and installation of lightning rods on buildings is not a "peddler" within the Hawker's and Pedler's Act (Sask.), at least where it does not appear from the evidence that the value of the skill and labour in the work of installation was trifling as compared with the value of the rods alone as goods and merchandise.

R. v. Staudall, 31 Can. Cr. Cas. 144, 12 S.L.R. 282.

TRADER—TAKING ORDERS.

A merchant, who sends his clerks to take orders from the residents of a neighbouring municipality and delivers the goods sold through the same or other clerks, with his own vehicles, a day or two afterwards, is a "trader" within such municipality, and ought to take a license for that purpose, according to the by-laws of said municipality.

Saint-David-de-l'Auberivière v. Guy, 51 Que. S.C. 272.

(§ II C—44)—VEHICLES FOR HIRE—CHARACTER CERTIFICATE REQUIREMENTS FOR LICENSE.

Statutory authority to a municipality to license and regulate the driving of cabs, hacks, motor cars and other vehicles plying for hire, does not authorize the municipality to limit licenses to such persons as are certified by the chief of police to be of good moral character.

(§ II C—46)—PLANTERS AND FARMERS—MARKETS.

Leases of private market stalls are not invalid as based on an illegal consideration by reason of the fact that the municipal authorities have refused to grant the licenses for the stalls, and such leases will not be cancelled because the tenants allege they have been deprived of the enjoyment of the premises leased as a result of the city's refusal to grant them such license.

Wallenberg v. Merson, 1 D.L.R. 212, 21 Que. K.B. 310.

Once an applicant for a butcher's license establishes that the locality where he proposes to open a private stall is at the required distance from any public market, that it is a proper place for such private stall, and that he is ready to pay the necessary license, the municipal authorities are bound, in the absence of any by-law limiting the number of such private stalls, to issue this license and have no discretion in the matter; and they will be compelled to fulfil this duty by mandamus.

(§ 1—1)—ON LAND—BREACH OF CONTRACT FOR SUPPORT—PART PERFORMANCE.

On the failure of the defendant to carry out an agreement to support the plaintiff's son for life, in consideration of the purchase and conveyance by the plaintiff to the defendant of certain real estate, a lien on the land in the nature of that of a vendor will be given the plaintiff for the value of the property, less whatever sum the defendant may be entitled to for the support and maintenance of the son until the breach of the agreement. [Cunningham v. Moore, 1 N.B. Eq. 116; Paine v. Chapman, 6 Grant 338, followed; Zdan v. Hruden, 4 D.L.R. 255, 22 Man. L.R. 387, distinguished.]

ACCOUNTANT—BOOKS OF CORPORATION.

An accountant has a lien for his services upon the books of account upon which he works, provided he is rightfully in possession of them while doing the work, but he cannot acquire such lien upon any books of a company which it is required, either by its Act of incorporation or articles of association, to keep at all times in its office,

IN GENERAL.

R. had purchased a quantity of furniture from the plaintiffs under a hire purchase agreement, which was duly registered, but, before completing her payments, she stored the furniture with defendant, a warehouseman, but without the knowledge of plaintiffs, who some months afterwards, on discovering the fact, demanded delivery up of the furniture under the terms of their agreement. Defendant refused to deliver until his warehouse charges were paid. Held, that defendant was not entitled to retain the goods until his charges were paid.

(§ 1—2a)—THRESHER'S LIEN—SEIZURE—FORCIBLE ENTRY.

The position of a lienholder under the Threshers' Lien Act (Sask.), s. 1, is that of a purchaser for value, and he has the right of forcible entry for the purpose of taking a sufficient quantity of grain in satisfaction for his lien.

The owner of a threshing outfit cannot claim a lien on grain threshed under the Threshers' Lien Act, for compensation for threshing it at a certain rate per bushel, where there was no definite agreement thereto, but the rate was to be determined by the yield per acre.

MANITOBA THRESHERS' LIEN ACT—RIGHT TO BREAK OPEN BUILDING—SUFFICIENCY OF AGREEMENT.

The Manitoba Threshers' Lien Act, R.S. M. 1902, c. 167, being remedial in its nature, will be liberally construed. Under the Threshers' Lien Act, R.S.M. 1902, c. 167, which creates an active and not a passive lien, a locked granary may be broken open in order to take possession of grain for the purpose of acquiring a lien thereon. A stipulation that grain will be threshed at the same rate as is charged by another person is a sufficient agreement that it shall be done "at or for a fixed price or rate of remuneration" so as to satisfy such requirement of the Threshers' Lien Act, R.S.M. 1902, c. 167.

THRESHER—SEIZING GRAIN—SALE.

A thresher taking grain to satisfy his lien under the provisions of the Threshers' Lien Act (R.S.S. 1909, c. 152, s. 1, amended by Acts 1913, c. 67, s. 24), becomes a "purchaser for value" of the grain so taken, and as such, has a right to sell the grain to satisfy his claim.

Rudy v. Sonmore, 29 D.L.R. 40, 9 S.L.R. 267, 34 W.L.R. 1122, 10 W.W.R. 1279.

Plaintiff agreed to thresh defendant's crop at a specified rate per bushel. After he had threshed the greater portion of the crop his men refused to work and he was unable to complete the contract, and by reason of this breach the defendant was unable to get the balance threshed. Plaintiff sued for the amount of his account, interest, the expenses of endeavouring to exercise his lien, and a declaration that he was entitled to a lien on the grain. The defendant objected that the contract was an entire one, and that the plaintiff had never completed it, and counterclaimed for general damages but not for special damages:—Held, that the contract was not an indivisible one and payment was not conditional upon completion, and the plaintiff was therefore entitled to recover. 2. But the defendant was entitled to complete performance and upon breach to damages. 3. But the defendant, not having pleaded special damage, could not now be allowed to shew special damage, and the amount agreed upon when settlement was discussed fixed the basis upon which damages should be assessed. 4. That the notice of intention to charge interest was sufficient compliance with the provisions of subs. 2 of s. 37 of the Judicature Act, and the plaintiff was entitled to recover interest at legal rate. 5. Any right to a lien which the plaintiff had under the Act respecting threshers' liens, and that Act being in derogation of the common law must be strictly complied with before the plaintiff could avail himself of its provisions. 6. That the right of lien to be effective must be exercised within sixty days and by the actual taking of the grain, and a notice of intention to exercise not accompanied by an actual taking is not effective for that purpose, and the plaintiff had therefore no right of lien.

Elsom v. Ellis, 4 S.L.R. 294.

CROP PAYMENT ACT—FORCIBLE ENTRY.

The Crop Payment Act, 1915, does not take away a thresher's lien, even in respect to the share of the crop which under an agreement between the grower thereof and the vendor to him of the land belongs to the vendor. A thresher has a right to break into a granary in order to obtain the grain which is the security of the price of his

Annable Co. v. Younglove, [1917] 3 W.W.R. 453.

THRESHERS' LIEN ACT—SECTION 5 (2)—NATURE OF LIEN—HOW EXERCISABLE.

Defendant was held liable for trespass and conversion for taking grain from plaintiff's granary to satisfy alleged balance of claim for threshing. Defendant held not entitled to lien by reason of noncompliance with the provisions of the Threshers' Lien Act. Section 5 (2) of said Act considered. Said Act does not allow the breaking open of a building to get out of grain "in bulk" a quantity to satisfy the lien.

Hopkins v. Shubert, [1919] 1 W.W.R. 748.

RIGHT OF THRESHERS TO BREAK INTO GRANARY—EXCESSIVE SALE—DAMAGES—LIABILITY OF PURCHASERS.

The defendant threshers had a right to break into plaintiff's granary to seize under their threshers' lien if the amount taken was not excessive. Where, after seizure, the threshers were paid their account except for the hauling, but nevertheless proceeded to sell all the grain seized, they were held liable in damages, as were also their purchasers, for the excessive sale.

THRESHERS' LIENS—POSITION OF THRESHER AS PURCHASER FOR VALUE.

In an action under the Threshers' Lien Act, the thresher has, prior to actual seizure, a lien upon all grain threshed by him, as security for the payment of his claim, and the moment he takes possession he becomes the actual owner to all intents and purposes, and when he sells the grain so taken by him, he does so, not as a lien holder, but as owner. This would not in any way prevent the debtor from recovering damages in case the seizure were of an excessive amount, as s. 2 of the Act limits the quantity which may be taken by the lien holder to a sufficient quantity computed at the market value to cover the debt. If the seizure were, however, of a quantity which, under all the circumstances, could be considered only reasonably sufficient to pay the claim of the lien holder, the latter would not be liable to damages for illegal seizure merely because he realized upon the sale more than enough to pay his claim, but he might in such a case be liable to account for the balance as a purchaser who had not paid the full purchase price of goods bought by him. No precise line can be drawn between excessive, and therefore illegal, seizures, and reasonable, and therefore legal, seizures, because each such case must be governed in this respect by its own circumstances.

Bunk v. Markwat, 6 W.W.R. 1084.

(§ 1—3)—FOR KEEPING AUTOMOBILE—GARAGE—LIVERY STABLE—HORSE OWNED BY THIRD PARTY.

Section 3, subs. 5 of the Innkeepers Act, 1 Geo. V. (Ont.) c. 49 (R.S.O. 1914, c. 173), conferring a right of lien upon livery stable keepers, does not apply to keepers of automobile garages, the context in the Act showing that the Legislature intended the statute to apply only to livery stables where horses are ordinarily kept. As distinguished from the common law lien of an innkeeper on property of a third party in the possession of a debtor, the statutory lien of a livery stable keeper under the Act will not be construed as covering the property of a third person.

OF STABLE KEEPER.

The Stable Keepers' Act, R.S.M. (1913), c. 183, does not entitle the keeper to a lien on an animal put in the stable without the knowledge and consent of the owner. [Buxton v. Baughan, 6 Car. & P. 674, followed.] Yeo v. Farragher, 39 D.L.R. 324, 28 Man. L.R. 424, [1918] 1 W.W.R. 624.

WOODCUTTER'S LIEN — SUBCONTRACTOR — NOTICE—PERSONAL LIABILITY.

A woodcutter who worked for a subcontractor and who, not having been paid his wages, gave the owner of the wood the notice required by art. 1994c, C.C. (Que.), acquires a privilege on the wood of the latter, but does not thereby obtain any personal recourse against him.

Laurentides Paper Co. v. Rompre, 27 Que. K.B. 194.

SEIZURE OF WOOD AFLOAT — RIGHTS OF OTHERS.

The privilege, created by art. 1994, c. C.C. (Que.), in favour of wood cutters, can only be exercised under the conditions determined by law. The fact that the wood seized under the exercise of this privilege was, during the process of the suit, carried away by the breaking up of the ice, and mixed with other wood belonging to a third person who had paid for it, gives ground for personal recourse against the latter.

Rheault v. Brown Corp., 53 Que. S.C. 296.

WOOD ADRIFT—SALVAGE—RIGHT OF RETENTION—PLEADING.

One who saves lumber floating astray on a river has a right of lien on such lumber for his costs of salvage. A creditor who has a right of retention, and who is sued by the owner revendicating the object thus retained, must not ask by his plea the dismissal of the action, but must conclude that he should not be dispossessed without having been reimbursed his costs.

Gagne v. Daigle, 54 Que. S.C. 239.

FOR LABOR.

Under a contract by which the plaintiff was to manufacture laths, etc., out of defendant's lumber at a certain price per 1,000 feet, it was provided that the plaintiff was to deliver the laths, etc., as fast as defendant could take them "and settlements to be made the tenth day of each month for the preceding month's saw bill."—Held, defendant was entitled to delivery of the laths before payment therefor; that this agreement was inconsistent with a right of lien for the price of sawing and the plaintiff was therefore not entitled to a lien. The fact that the defendant gave a note in part payment, which was dishonoured, and the fact that the defendant went into liquidation under the Winding-up Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 114, while some of the laths were in the possession of the plaintiff did not entitle the plaintiff to a lien upon such laths.

A workman who makes repairs to an automobile has thereon a right of retention, and his claim for repairs constitutes a privileged debt which takes rank by preference on the proceeds of the sale of the vehicle. He may issue a conservatory attachment to give effect to his privilege.

Morin v. Garbi, 50 Que. S.C. 273.

II. Priorities.

(§ II-5)—SEAMAN'S LIEN FOR WAGES—PRIORITIES—STATUTORY LIEN FOR BUILDING.

A lien for a seaman's wages has priority over a statutory lien for building, equipping or repairing a ship under s. 4 of the Admiralty Court Act, 1861, or for necessaries. The Aurora, 7 W.W.R. 5.

(§ II-7)—EMPLOYEE'S LIEN ON ASSETS OF EMPLOYER IN PRIORITY TO BANK'S STATUTORY SECURITY.

The statutory charge in favour of employees to the extent of three months' wages owing to them by the wholesaler or other person giving a statutory security to a bank under s. 88 of the Bank Act (Can.), 1913, may be enforced by direct action by the employees against the bank, if the latter has taken possession of or disposed of the property covered by the security.

(§ II-9)—THRESHERS—RIGHT OF SALE, UPON RETENTION, HOW EXERCISED—CONVERSION.

Under the Threshers' Lien Ordinance (Alta.) giving a lien "for the purpose of securing payment" for threshing grain, the lienor's right is only one of retention, and he is guilty of conversion if he sells the subject-matter of the lien without resorting to his legal remedy. The proper procedure of the enforcement of a lien conferred by the Ordinance is to sue in a court of equity for a foreclosure of the lien and have a sale made by an order of the court. The Ordinance does not confer upon the lienor the right to seize such grain by breaking open the granary of the owner, where the grain is stored, and sell it without resorting to legal process. [Brown v. Glenn, 16 Q.B. 254; and Mulliner v. Florence, 3 Q.B.D. 484, applied.]

III. Loss; waiver; discharge.

(§ III-10)—DISCHARGE.

The discharge of a mortgage debt by a chirographic creditor of the mortgagor in consideration of the undertaking by the mortgagee to facilitate the purchase by the creditor, at the lowest possible price, of movables of the debtor levied on under execution, does not create an obligation which entitles him who has paid to recover the sum from the mortgagee on the ground that the latter received it a second time, by another title, under a judgment rendered subsequent to their agreement.

Gagnon v. Bédard, 21 Que. K.B. 172, affirming 39 Que. S.C. 368.

(§ III-13)—DISTRIBUTION OF FUNDS—COLLOCATION — MUTUAL INSURANCE COMPANY—BILL OF DEPOSIT—LABORER—PRIVILEGE—ESTATE BY DESTINATION—MACHINERY—LEGAL SALE—C.C. ARTS. 379, 1489, 1490, 2000, 2009, 2033—C.C. P., ARTS. 668, 814, 815, 816—S. REF. [1909] ARTS. 7023, 7124.

There is a legal mortgage in favour of mutual insurance companies against fire, for the recovery of subscriptions in the bill of deposit; and this mortgage takes rank counting from the date of the bill of deposit, without affecting the former mortgages. A laborer, who asks to be entitled to a claim based on a hiring of service, ought to indicate the nature of the services rendered, the value, added by his work to the estate of the debtor, and the registry of his lien. Machinery having been sold in execution with the estate, and the purchaser having paid the price, the tenant can not reclaim unless there had been collusion.

(§ I A—1)—N.W.T. ORDINANCE—STATUTE OF JAMES—SUPERSEDED, HOW FAR.

The N.W.T. Ordinance, Con. Ord. 1898 c. 31, is a substitution for the corresponding English enactment, 21 Jac. I. c. 16, and, so far as the latter deals with the same class of actions, it is not part of the law of Alberta. [Rutledge v. U.S. Savings & Loan Co., 37 Can. S.C.R. 546, followed.]

The provisions of the Ontario Railway Act, 1906, 6 Edw. VII. c. 30, s. 223, whereby actions for damage or injury sustained by reason of a railway under that Act, must be brought within 1 year, are in effect incorporated with the special Act 36 Vict. (Ont.), c. 99 (under which the London Street R. Co. was incorporated), and the limitation of 1 year substituted for that of 6 months under the Railway Act, 1859, c. 66, s. 83, which by the special Act were declared to be incorporated therewith.

D. BY AND AGAINST WHOM AVAILABLE.

(§ 1 D—25)—TENANT AT WILL WITHOUT RENT—STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS (ONT.)

Where a person becomes tenant at will of another's lands without paying rent therefor, the Statute of Limitations, 10 Edw. VII (Ont.) c. 34, s. 6, begins to run in his favour as against the owner at the end of one year after being let into possession.

(§ 1 D—26) — CORPORATIONS — ELECTRIC COMPANY.

The statutory obligation of an electric railway company to supply lighting to customers within a certain distance of the company's lines makes its negligence in allowing a dangerous current to set fire to the customer's premises one in relation to the works or operations of the defendant, and the customer's action therefor must be brought within the period of limitation which is provided for that class of action by its special Act (Con. Ry. Companies Act, 1896, B.C., c. 55, s. 44). [Lyles v. South-end, [1905] 2 K.B. 1, applied.]

(§ 1 D—27)—AGAINST WHOM AVAILABLE—MUNICIPALITY — PUBLIC AUTHORITIES PROTECTION ACT.

The period of limitation provided by the Public Authorities Protection Act, 1 Geo. V. (Ont.) c. 22, R.S.O. 1914, c. 89, for actions against public officials does not extend to and include actions against a municipality.

MUNICIPALITY.

A cause of action against a municipality in British Columbia for damages accruing in July, 1897, in respect of alleged deviations from certain dyking and drainage works constructed by it under the authority of municipal by-laws was subject to the provisions for limitation of actions contained in the B.C. Municipal Act, 1892, and of the Municipal Clauses Act, R.S.B.C. 1897. Such an action would be barred in so far as the claim was based upon the contention that the works were not justified by the by-laws relied upon as authorizing the same, after the expiry of the periods of limitation specified in ss. 243, 244 B.C. Municipal Clauses Act, 1897.

MUNICIPALITIES—RETROACTIVENESS OF STATUTE.

Section 358 of c. 16 Sask. 1915, barring claims for damages against municipalities resulting from land being injuriously affected unless made in writing with particulars of the claim within one year after the injury, affects more than mere matters of procedure and takes away a right existent under the law as it stood before the passage of the statute, and is therefore not retrospective. [R. v. Dharma, [1905] 2 K. B. 335, The Ydun, [1899] P. 236, distinguished; Hickson v. Darlow, 52 L.J. Ch. 453; Wright v. Hale, 30 L.J. Ex. 40, applied.]

(§ 1 D—29)—ATTACHING CREDITOR.

Under Nova Scotia Practice Order 46, r. 6, which provides that a subsequent attachment may dispute the validity and effect of a previous writ of attachment on the ground that the sum claimed was not justly due, or was not payable when the action was commenced, the subsequent attachment may take the ground that the debt was barred by the Statute of Limitations as an answer to the claim of the previous attachment.

Gormley v. DeBlois, 8 D.L.R. 109, 46 N. S.R. 280.

E. TO WHAT CLAIMS APPLICABLE.

(§ I E—30)—RAILWAY ACT—BREACH OF CONTRACT TO LOCATE STATION.

An action for the breach of an agreement to locate a railway station on the plaintiff's land in consideration of a right-of-way over it, is not within the limitation of one year prescribed by s. 306 of the Railway Act, 1906, for actions for damages or injury sustained by reason of the construction or operation of a railway. [Beard v. Credit Valley R. Co., 9 O.R. 616, followed.]

FRAUD—BREACH OF TRUST—PILOTS' FUND.

The Statute of Limitations does not run against a claim founded on fraud or fraudulent breach of trust, as for funds wrongly obtained or withheld by pilotage authorities with respect to a fund for the benefit of pilots.

Smith v. Halifax Pilot Commissioners, 35 D.L.R. 765, 51 N.S.R. 241.

RAILWAY ACT (CAN.)—CONSTRUCTION AND OPERATION—OCCUPATION.

An action for damages suffered by the landowner which could not be included in the award on expropriation of the land under the Railway Act, 1906, e.g., for a wrongful occupation by the railway prior to taking expropriation proceedings, is not within the limitation of 1 year prescribed by s. 306 of the Act, as such injury arises merely out of the occupation by the railway company and not out of the "construction or operation" of the railway.

TO WHAT CLAIMS APPLICABLE—RECOVERY OF PERSONALTY.

There is no statute of limitations applicable to an action for the recovery of personal property in Ontario, and therefore no statutory bar to such an action, though laches and delay for even a shorter time than the statutory period applicable to real property may be a bar to it.

Soady v. Soady, 6 O.W.N. 240.

COMMERCIAL DEBT.

The debt created by a loan of money, from a father to his son, to assist him in business, is not commercial. It is prescribed by 30 not by 5 years.

Quevillon v. Quevillon, 52 Que. S.C. 273.

TIMBER—POSSESSION—CURATOR.

The action of a lumberman against a person in possession of the timber, to produce the value thereof to enable him to exercise his lien, is not an action for damages, but an action in reversion, to which arts. 2261, 2268, C.C. (Que.), relating to the prescription of 2 years, to that of movables, do not apply. The recourse against the judicial curator in such case does not exclude that against the person in possession of the timber, subject to the lien. Marinier v. Riordon Paper Mills Co., 51 Que. S.C. 532.

II. When statute runs.

A. IN GENERAL.

(§ II A—35)—ACCOUNTS—CHARGES ON ONE SIDE ONLY.

That the last item of an account for goods sold is within 6 years will not draw after it those of longer standing, where the account is not mutual, but all charges are on one side only. [Cotes v. Harris, Buller's N.P. 149; Beck v. Pierce, 25 Q.B.D. 316, applied.]

ATTORNEYS' FEES—SETTLEMENT OF CASE.

Where there has been a substitution of attorneys by consent in a pending case, the prescription of 5 years against costs then due to the attorneys does not, where the case is subsequently settled, commence to run from the date of the substitution, but only from the date of settlement, even where the settlement has not been confirmed by a judgment. Fees for the study of a case, its preparation and other special services are not taxable; they cannot be allowed except upon proof of the value of such services. In such case prescription does not commence to run from the date of the final judgment, in the same manner as against taxable costs, but from the date when the services were rendered.

Millette v. Mayer, 50 Que. S.C. 312, affirming 45 Que. S.C. 430.

PEREMPTION OF ACTION—INSCRIPTION OF CASE ON ROLL BY PROTHONOTARY—QUE. C.P. 280.

The peremption of action begins to run only from the date of its being put on the roll.

Pelletier v. Charbonneau, 16 Que. P.R. 194.

B. CONTRACTS; MORTGAGES.

Redemption of mortgage, dower, see Adverse Possession, I E—30.

(§ II B—40)—LIEN NOTE.

The Statute of Limitations does not begin to run on a lien note until the day following the due date stated therein, as an action could not be brought until the expiry of the due date. [Kennedy v. Thomas, [1894] 2 Q.B. 759, followed; Sinclair v. Robson, 16 U.C.Q.B. 211, not followed.]

In the case of a hiring contract for the construction of a house, if the contractor abandons the work and the owner, after having summoned the contractor to go back to work within 24 hours has given over the completion of the building to another, the prescription against an action for damages by the owner does not commence to run till the day following the last day of the time given to the contractor to go back to work. Thus in this case, the time having expired on the 21st August 1912, the prescription did not commence to run till the following day, the 22nd and the action for damages having been commenced by the owner on the 21st August, 1917, was brought in time. Moreover, the 5 years prescription does not apply to the action for damages. A contract can be commercial for one party and civil for the other. When it is a question of deciding whether a prescription is commercial or civil it is the quality of the creditor that must be considered. Because one party is commercial it does not follow that all his acts are so. Thus a contract of a merchant concerning immovables, like this one, is not an act of commerce.

Bachand v. Duchesne, 56 Que. S.C. 132.

(§ II B-41)—NEGOTIABLE NOTE—LOAN.

A promissory note payable to order given for a loan at interest and not in acknowledgment of a prior debt, is subject to the prescription of 5 years.

PROMISSORY NOTE PAYABLE ON DEMAND—TIME OF COMMENCEMENT OF STATUTORY PERIOD—DEPARTURE OF MAKER FROM PROVINCE AFTER COMMENCEMENT.

Findlay v. Battram, 9 O.W.N. 308.

(§ II B-42)—MORTGAGE.

The covenant to repay mortgage moneys implied by the Land Titles Act, even though imported into an instrument not under seal, is a specialty debt, and the applicable period of the Statute of Limitations is 20 years, by virtue of 1 Geo. V. c. 28, s. 102, Ontario, being an amendment to the Ontario Land Titles Act, providing that any charge or transfer not under seal, shall operate the same as if they were under seal, being the substance of s. 107 of the former Act, R.S.O., 1897, c. 138. The obligation to pay the mortgage moneys, imposed by a covenant implied by statute, is a specialty, and is not barred by lapse of time less than 20 years from the date of default.

DEFAULT IN PAYMENT OF INTEREST.

An action to recover money due on a mortgage in statutory form, providing that in default of the payment of the interest the principal shall become payable, is barred, under 10 Edw. VII. c. 34, s. 49 (k), unless action is brought within 10 years from default in the payment of interest, notwithstanding 10 years has not elapsed since the principal would have become payable apart from the acceleration clause. Cameron v. Smith, 12 D.L.R. 64, 4 O.W.N. 1459, 24 O.W.R. 767.

VACANT LANDS—CONSTRUCTIVE POSSESSION—WHEN STATUTE BEGINS AGAINST MORTGAGEE.

Where a right of entry or to sue for possession has accrued to a mortgagee by the mortgagor's default in payment, and the mortgaged lands are left unfenced and without actual occupation by anyone, the Statute of Limitations does not run against the mortgagee so as to extinguish his title to the lands; the mortgagee may still foreclose although the remedy by action for the debt is barred, and the mortgagor similarly is not barred of his right to redeem. [Bucknam v. Stewart, 11 Man. L.R. 625; Delaney v. C.P.R., 21 O.R. 11, applied.]

REDEMPTION OF MORTGAGE—POSSESSION.

A mortgagee not having possession cannot set up the Statute of Limitation in bar of the right to redeem.

HYPOTHEC—SHERIFF'S DEED.

A purchaser who has received from the sheriff a deed subject to the charge of the right of enjoyment stipulated by the owner of the immovable sold in favour of his wife, cannot invoke the 10 years' prescription against hypothecs which have not been renewed, inasmuch as in doing so he would be seeking to have prescription against his own title.

Hope v. Leroux, 25 Que. K.B. 130.

D. TRUSTS; BAILMENT.

(§ II D-50)—TRUST—FRAUD—RELEASE.

Where it is not alleged or proved that the defendant was guilty of fraud or that he had retained or converted to his own use any of the trust property, he is entitled to the benefit of the Limitations Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 75, s. 47. Where the effect of a transaction and release was to convert the plaintiff's interest in remainder into an interest in possession (s. 47 (2) (b)) the statute began to run against him from the date of the transaction, and his right to recover was, at the time of the commencement of this action, barred.

TRUST.

The Statute of Limitations will not bar a wife's claim against her husband to account for her money handed over to him by her on an express trust that he should invest it on her behalf.

Ellis v. Ellis, 15 D.L.R. 100, 5 O.W.N. 561, 25 O.W.R. 539.

TRUSTS — ARREARS OF ANNUITY — WHEN STATUTE RUNS.

Where a trust is created by will for the payment of an annuity, the right to payment of arrears is not limited to the arrears for 6 years past.

FRAUDULENT REPRESENTATION OF AUTHORITY — EXPRESS TRUST.

Where money is handed over to the defendant by the plaintiff to pay off the mortgage of the latter to a third person upon defendant's false and fraudulent representation that he, the defendant, is the mortgagee's agent, and the money is not paid over to the mortgagee, the defendant becomes an express trustee of the money for the plaintiff from whom he received it, and the Statute of Limitations applicable to ordinary claims of debt does not apply.

(§ II D—51)—POSSESSION UNDER VOID DEED.

One who is in possession of land under a conveyance, which is void by reason of the insanity of the grantor, is a trustee for the lunatic and his representatives, and the Statute of Limitations does not run in his favour as against them.

Hoover v. Nunn, 3 D.L.R. 503, 3 O.W.N. 1223, 22 O.W.R. 28.

E. FRAUD.

(§ II E—55)—Where the contesting party only becomes aware of the existence of a deed in fraud of his rights when it is produced in court, he has 1 year from that moment, and not 1 year from the making of the deed, within which to contest under C.C. (Que.) 1040.

Banque Nationale v. Godbout, 8 D.L.R. 668, 19 Rev. Leg. 401.

WHEN STATUTE RUNS—FRAUD.

The Statute of Limitations is not a bar to equitable relief in case of fraud founded on fraudulent misrepresentations made to induce the purchase of shares in a company, as against the persons guilty of the fraud, if the person defrauded is not guilty of laches in seeking relief; and so long as the latter remains in ignorance of a concealed fraud without any fault of his own, his remedy is not barred. (§ II F—60)—TORTS—NEGLIGENCE.

The limitation period for commencing an action for damages for personal injury against the owners of a motor vehicle by collision with the motor vehicle is 6 years from the time when the cause of action arose, under 10 Edw. VII. (Ont.) c. 34, s. 49 (g) as an action "upon the case."

Maitland v. Mackenzie, 6 D.L.R. 336, 4 O.W.N. 109, 23 O.W.R. 80.

NEGLIGENCE OF CIVILIAN RIFLE ASSOCIATION.

The members of a civilian rifle association in an action for injuries, alleged to have been received by reason of their negligence, while acting in pursuance of the Militia Act, are entitled to the benefit of the provision of that Act, requiring an action to be commenced within 6 months from the time the act complained of was committed.

PROSECUTIONS UNDER ADULTERATION ACT.

The time for laying an information for an offence punishable on summary conviction under the Adulteration Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 133, is 2 years under s. 50 of that Act and s. 135 of the Inland Revenue Act, which it makes applicable; s. 1142 of the Cr. Code does not apply.

R. v. Regina Trading Co., 35 D.L.R. 403, 28 Can. Cr. Cas. 85, 10 S.L.R. 242, [1917] 2 W.W.R. 363.

ACTION AGAINST CROWN—INTERRUPTION OF PRESCRIPTION.

By s. 33 of the Exchequer Court Act (R.S.C. 1906, c. 140) the provincial laws relating to prescription and limitation of actions apply to an action for personal injuries against the Crown in right of the Dominion. Mere "negotiations" do not operate as an interruption of the prescription.

Fradette v. The King, 40 D.L.R. 699, 17 Can. Ex. 187.

RAILWAY FIRES—OPERATION OF RAILWAY.

The burning of worn-out ties by a railway company on its right-of-way in performance of the duty imposed by s. 297 of the Railway Act, 1906, to keep the right-of-way free from unnecessary combustible matter, any damage or injury resulting therefrom is caused by reason of the "operation of the railway" within the meaning of that phrase in s. 306, the right of action for which accrues within one year.

Can. S.C.R. 338, 19 Can. Ry. Cas. 58, affirming 19 D.L.R. 140, 32 O.L.R. 104.

RAILWAY CLAIMS—NEGLIGENT WAREHOUSING—DAMAGE FROM "CONSTRUCTION AND OPERATION."

An action for breach of a railway company's contract of warehousing entered into by it after the arrival of the consignment at destination is not within the limitation of s. 306 of the Railway Act, 1906, which deals with actions for damages caused by reason of the "construction or operation" of the railway.

ACTIONS AGAINST RAILWAYS—INUNDATION CAUSED BY DEFECTIVE DITCHES.

An action for damages brought against a railway company for having neglected to keep its ditches in repair, and having thereby caused damages to the plaintiff by inundating his land, being founded upon a quasi-delict, is prescribed by two years.

Sénécal v. G.T.R. Co., 48 Que. S.C. 496.

PROSECUTIONS UNDER ADULTERATION ACT (CAN.).

The time limit for laying an information for an offence punishable on summary conviction under the Adulteration Act (Can.), is 2 years (R.S.C. 1906, c. 135, s. 50); and s. 1142 of the Cr. Code does not apply.

G. SUITS RELATING TO REAL PROPERTY.

(§ II G—65)—SUITS RELATING TO REALTY—LACHES.

Mere laches, short of 20 years from the accrual of the right to recover any land, will not bar the plaintiff's claim under s. 16 of the Statute of Limitations, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 145.

Cook v. Cook, 17 D.L.R. 661, 19 B.C.R. 311, 27 W.L.R. 930.

LIMITATION OF ACTIONS—DISPUTE AS TO BOUNDARY-LINE BETWEEN TWO HALVES OF LOT—POSSESSION AND FENCING IN ACCORDANCE WITH AGREEMENT—ACTION TO RECOVER POSSESSION OF SMALL STRIP OF LAND—EVIDENCE.

REAL PROPERTY—LIMITATION OF ACTIONS—REGISTERED OWNER IN POSSESSION—PRIOR POSSESSION IN ANOTHER FOR OVER 12 YEARS—EFFECT ON RIGHTS OF PARTIES—THE REAL PROPERTY LIMITATIONS ACTS (IMP.)—THE LAND TITLES ACT, ss. 44, 104.

The right and title which by s. 34 of the Real Property Limitation Act, 1833 (Imp.), continued in force by the Real Property Act, 1874 (Imp.), which, under s. 2 of c. 31 of the Con. Ord. 1898, is in force in Alberta, is extinguished by possession of the land in another over the statutory period, is the right and title to bring a suit for the recovery of possession, and not the registered owner's right and title to the land. Such interpretation is necessary in order to give full effect to both said section and s. 44 of the Land Titles Act which makes the certificate of title "conclusive evidence . . . that the person named therein is entitled to the land . . ." Hence, where the registered owner is in possession the fact that another has had possession for over 12 years gives the latter no right to a declaration of ownership; nor has the latter any right of action for recovery of possession by reason of s. 104 of the Land Titles Act.

Sinclair v. McLellan, [1919] 2 W.W.R. 782.

ADVERSE POSSESSION—POSSESSOR TO HOLD IN FEE SIMPLE—RECTIFIED DESCRIPTION IN DEED—DEED TO GRANTEE AS TENANTS IN COMMON.

Foisy v. Lord, 3 O.W.N. 373, 20 O.W.R. 699, affirming 19 O.W.R. 390, 2 O.W.N. 1217.

(§ II G—66)—INJURY TO PROPERTY—NUISANCE—TRESPASS.

Where an injury or damage caused by the construction or operation of a railway is continuous, the limitation of 1 year for bringing an action therefor, as prescribed by s. 306 of the Railway Act, 1906, does not apply.

WHEN STATUTE BEGINS TO RUN—INJURY TO LANDS BY DIVERTING SURFACE WATER.

The flooding of an adjoining owner's land by a railway company by interference with the natural flow of surface water may result in such continuing damage as to extend the time for bringing an action for damage sustained by reason of the construction or operation of the railway.

Niles v. G.T.R. Co., 9 D.L.R. 379, 4 O.W.N. 820, 15 Can. Ry. Cas. 73.

FLOODING OF LANDS—DEFECTIVE CULVERT—CONTINUATION OF DAMAGE.

The negligent construction of a culvert obstructing the flow of a natural water-course and causing the flooding of lands is a continuation of damage, and the limitations under s. 267 of the Railway Act (B.C.) 1911, c. 44, will not begin to run until after one year after the doing or committing of such damage ceases. [McGillivray v. G.T.P.R. Co., 25 U.C.Q.B. 69, followed.]

RAILWAY COMPANY—NEGOTIATION.

Where a railway company negotiates with a person whose crops have been injured by trespass of cattle caused by defective fencing, the period of limitation of action against the railway company runs from the termination of such negotiations.

Phillip v. Canadian North-Western R. Co., 6 W.W.R. 1220.

(§ II G—67)—RIPARIAN RIGHTS.

The statutory period of prescription for the use of a stream of deposit sawdust and mill refuse in, begins to run from the date of the first substantial injury causing damage to the millowner, lower down the stream.

H. MUNICIPAL INDEBTEDNESS OR LIABILITIES.

(§ II H—70)—STREET RAILWAY—NEGLECT CONSTRUCTION AND OPERATION.

The limitations of time for bringing actions against a municipality for its negligent construction or operation of a street railway, are governed by the Ontario Railway Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 185, s. 265; and the Municipal Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 92, and the Public Utilities Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 204, and the Public Authorities Protection Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 89, have no application.

NEGLIGENCE ACTIONS.

Section 2 of the Municipal Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 192, which bars any action for negligence against a municipality if not brought within 3 months from the time when the damages were sustained, will also apply to a case where the municipality is added as a party defendant after the expiration of the statutory period, although the action was instituted within the time.

Burrows v. G.T.R. Co., 23 D.L.R. 173, 18 Can. Ry. Cas. 183, 34 O.L.R. 142.

DAMAGE CAUSED BY THE PILING OF SNOW.

In the case of damages claimed from the city of Montreal as having succeeded to the rights and obligations of the Toll Road Trustees of Montreal, damages caused by the piling of snow in an orchard alongside a snow fence erected by the city, the prescription which applies is not that of 6 months provided for by the charter of the city, but that of 12 months contained in the Railway Act of Quebec, R.S.Q. 1909, art. 6642. This prescription begins to run, not from the construction of the snow fence, but from the time at which the injury was suffered, and could be definitely ascertained. The privilege of notice of action and of prescription should be strictly interpreted.

Del Sole v. Montreal, 24 Que. K.B. 550.

RIOT—SUPPRESSION—PERSONAL DAMAGES—PRESCRIPTION—CHARTER OF THE CITY
OF QUEBEC, ART. 310, 561.

An action to recover personal damages caused by the suppression of a riot in the City of Quebec is subject to the prescription of six months laid down by art. 561 of the charter of Quebec. Only the damages to property caused by a tumultuous gathering of people disturbing the peace are exempted from this prescription art. 310 of the same charter.

Berubé v. The City of Quebec, 56 Que. S.C. 106.

PRESCRIPTIONS—MONTREAL CHARTER.

Article 2267, C.C. (Que.), which denies an action and states that the debt is absolutely extinguished in cases of prescription under arts. 2250, 2250, 2261, 2262, C.C. (Que.), cover equally special prescription and particularly those found in arts. 536a and 537 of the charter of the city of Montreal.

(§ III E—125)—WHEN ACTION IS BARRED.

In case of a concealed fraud so far as the plaintiff seeks relief against a person not committing the fraud but who had received the benefit of the money without himself being at fault, the plaintiff must shew that he has been diligent and vigilant; and if by reasonable diligence he could have discovered the fraud more than 6 years before action brought, the court will refuse the relief of following the money against the innocent party on the ground that it would be inequitable to permit the plaintiff to set up such claim after the long delay.

(§ III F—130)—TORTS—RECURRENT INJURIES—FAILURE TO REBUILD BRIDGE.

On the failure of a town to restore a bridge that had been swept away, a new cause of action arises daily in favour of those injured by such default for which damages may be recovered for 3 months, less one day, prior to the time of bringing action, since the period of limitation prescribed by s. 606, Con. Municipal Act (Ont.) 1903, c. 19, does not apply to such a case.

ACTION FOR FLOODING LAND—RAILWAY ACT.

In an action for damages for flooding land, the plaintiff's right of recovery was limited to damages sustained within one year before the action was begun because of s. 198 of c. 8 of the Railway Act (Alta.), 1907.

CONTRACTOR IN CONSTRUCTING RAILWAY—SPARKS FROM LOCOMOTIVE.

The limitation prescribed by s. 306 of the Railway Act, 1906, for bringing action against railway companies for damages, extends, by virtue of s. 15 of 3 Edw. VII., c. 71, to the National Transcontinental Railway Commission, since that body is required by law to let the work of construction by contract, such limitation includes actions against a person constructing a portion of the National Transcontinental Railway under contract with such commission for a fire negligently started by a locomotive owned by the former. Fire started on the land of a person by sparks from a locomotive owned by persons building a railway under a contract with the National Transcontinental Railway Commissioners, is an injury sustained "by reason of the construction" of the railway for which action must be brought within one year, the period of prescription fixed by s. 306 of the Railway Act, 1906.

NOTICE OF ACTION.

Where a provincial statute enacts that in cases of claims for bodily injuries the claimant must give notice to the corporation of the accident within 60 days therefrom, failing which such corporation is to be relieved of all liability, and further provides that suit cannot be instituted before the expiry of 15 days from the service of such notice, but that no action shall lie unless instituted within 6 months "after the day the accident happened, or right of action accrued," then the prescriptive period of 6 months begins to run from the day of the accident and not from the expiry of the 15 days following the service of the notice, where the plaintiff's pleading shews only a single right of action and a single claim for damages resulting therefrom.

Allard v. Beautharnois, 9 D.L.R. 162.

INJURY FROM OPERATION OR CONSTRUCTION OF RAILWAY.

The statutory limitation as to time for bringing an action for damages for injuries sustained by reason of "the construction or operation of the railway" (Railway Act, 1906, s. 306), extends to a case of injury sustained by a labourer, who was employed in a gang loading old rails on flat cars by means of a crane and steel chain which broke, such work being performed in the actual "construction or operation of the railway."

Danyleski v. C.P.R. Co., 32 D.L.R. 95, 20 Can. Ry. Cas. 410, 27 Man. L.R. 364, [1917] 1 W.W.R. 993, reversing [1917] 1 W.W.R. 649.

The time limit imposed by s. 306 of the Railway Act, 1906, respecting actions for injuries caused by reason of the "construction or operation of the railway" does not apply to action arising for injuries to passengers out of negligence in their carriage.

DEFERRING PERIODS OF LIMITATION UNDER PROVINCIAL RAILWAY ACT—LONGER PERIOD UNDER LORD CAMPBELL'S ACT (B. C.)—ACTION AGAINST RAILWAY FOR CAUSING DEATH.

A suit brought under the Families Compensation Act, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 82, against a railway company, is not barred when begun more than 6 but within 12 months after the accident, the limitation being controlled by that Act and not by B.C. Con. R. Co.'s Act, 1896, c. 55, s. 60.

B.C. Electric Ry. Co. v. Gentile, 18 D.L.R. 264, [1914] A.C. 1034, 28 W.L.R. 795, 6 W.W.R. 1342, 111 L.T. 682, 18 Can. Ry. Cas. 217, affirming 15 D.L.R. 384, 18 B.C.R. 307.

TORTS—NEGLIGENCE—LORD CAMPBELL'S ACT—CITY CHARTER—WHICH ACT CONTROLS.

The time limited by Con. Ord. c. 48 (Alta.) (Lord Campbell's Act), for bringing actions thereunder for damages for negligence causing death is not limited or controlled as to such actions against the city of Calgary arising from the operation of a street railway by the municipality, by a general clause of the Calgary charter (s. 125), fixing a shorter period within which any "action for damages by reason of the negligence or default of the city" shall be brought.

OBSTRUCTION OF WATER BY RAILWAY.

An action for damages sustained by reason of the illegal obstruction of access to navigable waters by a railway company must be brought within 1 year from the completion of the obstruction. TORTS—NEGLIGENCE.

If the land proprietor is under any direct liability to the injured party for neglect to keep adjacent sidewalks on the public street in repair, or free from snow or ice, by virtue of a municipal by-law (R.S.Q. 1909, art. 5641, subss. 3, 20), the neglect of such duty would, at most, be only a quasi-délit of omission on the part of the municipality, and the land proprietor jointly and severally, and the latter may set up the same defences as would be available to the municipal corporation, including the prescriptive limitation by which action against the municipality must be taken within a period of 6 months after the accident (R.S.Q. 1909, art. 5684, C.C. (Que.) arts. 1196, 1112, 2231).

QUASI-DÉLIT—LACK OF IDENTITY—PRESCRIPTION.

The lack of means by which to prove the commission of a quasi-délit (in this case want of knowledge of the identity of the responsible party) does not make it absolutely impossible for the party injured to sue (art. 2232 C.C. (Que.)) and his right of action is none the less subject to the prescription of 2 years (art. 2261).

Charpentier v. Craig, 22 Que. K.B. 385.

NEGLIGENCE OF NOTARY.

The contractual negligence of a notary, like that of an agent, is prescribed by 30 years, as the Civil Code and the Notaries Code are silent upon the point. (Art. 2242, C.C. Que.)

(§ III F—131)—Under the Alberta Workmen's Compensation Act, providing that a claim for compensation thereunder must be made within 6 months from the occurrence of the accident causing the injury and permitting the injured person notwithstanding his failure in an action for negligence to ask for compensation provided the action is brought within the time limited by the Act for taking proceedings, no compensation can be fixed by the court in an action begun more than 6 months after the accident. [Cribb v. Kynoch (No. 2), [1908] 2 K.B. 551, followed.]

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION—ACTION FOR NEGLIGENCE.

Where in an action for negligence it is found that the damages therein are to be fixed as a compensation under s. 3 (4) of the Workmen's Compensation Act (Alta.) 1908, c. 12, the court will not allow any compensation under the Act where the original action is not commenced within the statutory period of 6 months. [Smolik v. Walters, 1 D.L.R. 891, followed.]

INJURY FROM CONSTRUCTION OR OPERATION OF RAILWAY.

Injuries sustained while unloading rails from a box car to a flat car for easier distribution in replacing the old track, are sustained "by reason of the construction or operation" of the railway, within the meaning of the Railway Act, 1906, and an action for damages must be commenced within 1 year as provided by s. 306. [Greer v. C.P.R. Co., 23 D.L.R. 337, 51 Can. S.C.R. 338, followed.]

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT—PETITION PRELIMINARY TO ACTION—LIMITATION.

The petition provided for by art. 7347, R.S.Q. 1909 (Workmen's Compensation Act), does not bar prescription if notice of action is not served within a year from the date of the accident.

Ruffineau v. Quebec & St. Maurice Industrial Co., 45 Que. S.C. 400.

RAILWAY OPERATION.

When the action was for injury sustained by reason of the construction or operation of a railway, the statutory provisions limiting the time for bringing an action applied; the action not having been brought within a year, the plaintiffs were barred: s. 306 of the Railway Act, 1906, and s. 265 (1) of the Ontario Railway Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 185. [C.N.R. Co. v. Robinson, [1911] A.C. 739, distinguished.]

G.T.R. v. Sarnia Street R., 37 O.L.R. 477.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION.

The limitation of one year, in respect of actions to recover compensation for injuries sustained "by reason of the construction or operation" of railways, provided by s. 306 of the Railway Act, 1906, relates only to injuries sustained in the actual construction or operation of a railway; it does not apply to cases where injuries have been sustained by employees engaged in works undertaken by a railway company for procuring or preparing materials which may be necessary for the construction of their railway. [C.N.R. Co. v. Robinson, [1911] A.C. 739, applied.]

Injuries suffered through the refusal of a railway company to furnish reasonable and proper facilities for receiving, forwarding and delivering freight, as required by the Railway Act to and from shipper's warehouse, by means of a private spur-track connecting with the railway, do not fall within the classes of injuries described as resulting from the construction or operation of the railway, in s. 242 of the Railway Act, 1903, and, consequently, an action to recover damages therefor is not barred by the limitation prescribed by that section for the commencement of actions and suits for indemnity.

G. SUITS RELATING TO REAL PROPERTY.

(§ III G—135)—RECOVERY OF LANDS—ALBERTA.

An action for the recovery of land in Alberta as against a person holding adversely must be brought within twelve years by virtue of the Imperial Statutes of Limitations, 37 & 38 Vict. c. 57, the Alta. Ordinances (1911), c. 31, s. 2, and the Alta. Act, 4 & 5 Edw. VII. (Can.) c. 3.

DEVISE OF LANDS TO TOWN CORPORATION FOR PUBLIC PARK—ACCEPTANCE ON CONDITIONS OF WILL—BREACH—FORFEITURE—CLAIM FOR DECLARATION—CONTINUOUS BREACH BEGINNING MORE THAN 10 YEARS BEFORE ACTION — LIMITATIONS ACT, R.S.O. 1914, c. 75, ss. 5, 6 (9).

As to the alternative claim, that there was one breach, continuing over many years, of the condition, and the time for commencing the action founded upon that breach expired at the end of 10 years after the breach had begun.

Excepting that which is due to the Crown and the interest on the judgments, the arrears of rent even in tenants for life, arrears of interest, those of tenants and leaseholders, and in general all arrears of natural benefits are prescribed in 5 years.

Labreque v. Boulette, 24 Rev. Leg. 447. [See also 25 Rev. de Jur. 75.]

ANNULMENT OF DEED—MISTAKE.

A negatory action, founded upon the nullity of a deed on account of mistake, is prescribed in 10 years.

Wright v. Olmstead, 3 O.W.N. 434, 20 O.W.R. 701.

H. TAXES.

(§ III H—140)—TAXES—ACTION AGAINST MUNICIPALITY TO SET ASIDE SALE.

An action to question the validity of a tax sale of land to a municipality must be begun within 6 months after the sale, or at least after notice of application for registration of the tax sale title, or it is barred under ss. 512, 513 of the Municipal Act, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 170, providing that actions for any unlawful act of a municipality purporting to have been done under statutory authority, shall be commenced within 6 months after the cause of action arose.

Temple v. North Vancouver, 13 D.L.R. 492, 18 B.C.R. 546, 25 W.L.R. 215, 350, 4 W.W.R. 1369. [Affirmed, 6 W.W.R. 70.]

I. JUDGMENT.

(§ III I—145)—WHEN ACTION BARRED—JUDGMENTS—SALE ON EXECUTION AFTER JUDGMENT BARRED—LEVY DURING LIFE-TIME OF JUDGMENT.

The word "proceeding" in s. 22 of c. 167, of R.S.N.S. 1900, limiting the time within which actions or other proceedings may be brought for the recovery of money secured by judgments, relates only to the acts or steps necessary to put the judgment in force, such as an application to obtain execution, and not to the sale necessary to complete the proceedings incidental to a levy made within the limitation period.

EXECUTION UPON JUDGMENT.

Execution upon a judgment is barred if application for leave to issue execution is not commenced within the period prescribed in the Limitations Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 75, s. 49 (1). [Poucher v. Wilkins, 21 D.L.R. 444, distinguished.]

J. MISCELLANEOUS.

(§ III J-150)—PAROL GIFT—EVIDENCE—ADVERSE POSSESSION—STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS.

Worsnop v. Wood, 19 W.L.R. 533.

(§ III J-151)—PROSECUTIONS UNDER TEMPERANCE ACT.

The requirement of the Nova Scotia Temperance Act, 1910, c. 2, s. 36, that a prosecution shall be commenced "within 3 months after the alleged offence" would authorize an information on March 1st for an offence committed on the previous 1st day of December.

R. v. Nolan, 35 D.L.R. 334, 28 Can. Cr. Cas. 100.

SUMMARY CONVICTION — CONTINUING OFFENCE.

A charge under s. 409, Cr. Code for knowingly availing oneself of the results of peroration at an examination from and after the date of such examination, is a charge of a continuing offence, and would not be barred by s. 1142, although the examination was held more than 6 months before a charge was laid under Pt. XV. of the Code. The limitation of 6 months enacted by the Cr. Code for the prosecution of summary conviction offences (s. 1142) applies only where the prosecution is under the procedure of Pt. XV, relating to summary convictions; it has no application to a proceeding by way of indictment although there was an alternative method of prosecution by summary conviction under the law creating the offence.

R. v. Lartie, 25 Can. Cr. Cas. 300.

IV. Interruption of statute; removal of bar.

A. IN GENERAL.

Nullum Tempus Act, interruption, acknowledgment, see Adverse Possession, II—60.

(§ IV A-155)—INTERRUPTION OF STATUTE—REMOVAL OF BAR—"JUDICIAL DEMAND"—PART PAYMENT BY CURATOR IN QUEBEC—EFFECT IN ALBERTA.

Even if the collocation on the dividend sheet by the curator appointed under Quebec law in proceedings following a demand by another creditor for the debtor's abandonment of property to his creditors or the subsequent payment of the dividend operates to interrupt the period of limitation in Quebec, where the debt was incurred, an action in Alberta on the debt after the debtor's removal to that province will be barred in 6 years after the cause of action arose if based on a simple contract; the payment by the curator is not to be regarded under Alberta law as a payment by or on behalf of the debtor and does not stay the effect of the Ordinance. [Birkett v. Bissonette, 15 O.L.R. 93, followed.]

DEATH—PERSONAL REPRESENTATIVE.

The want of a personal representative to be sued will not interrupt the running of the Statute of Limitations for a debt due by the deceased.

RENUNCIATION — NEGOTIATIONS — MUNICIPALITIES — MUNICIPAL OFFICERS AND EMPLOYEES — C.C. ARTS. 2184, 2185, 2186, 2267—S. REE., [1909] ART. 5865.

A renunciation of prescription of a claim for damages against a municipality arises when the Municipal Council appoints a commission charged to examine this claim, with instructions not to pay anything before the amount of the damages is assessed between the interested parties and paid by them. An action founded on art. 5865 s. ref. [1909] which established a prescription of 6 months in favour of every municipality, its officers and employees, for damages resulting from offences, quasi-offences, or illegalities, does not fall within the provisions of art. 2267, C.C.

Pru'd'homme v. Town of Saint-Jérôme, 55 Que. S.C. 374.

B. BY SUIT.

(§ IV B-160)—FILING PETITION.

Service and filing of a petition to sue under the Workmen's Compensation Act operates, by virtue of art. 2224 C.C. (Que.), as an interruption of prescription.

LIMITATION—COURT OF REVISION—DELAY—PROPER PROCEDURE—C.C.P. ART. 279.

The production of depositions in the office of the Court of Revision after an entry has already been made there, is a proper proceeding which suspends the period of limitation.

Rioix v. Canadian Country Club, 56 Que. S.C. 167.

COMMENCEMENT OF ACTION—INCIDENTAL DEMAND.

When a plaintiff asks a certain sum as damages and, later, ascertaining that damages have increased or become permanent in such a manner as could not have been foreseen, files an incidental demand claiming that the damages should be increased, such increased damages, so claimed, are not prescribed by the lapse of 1 year—prescription having been suspended by the main action.

Montreal v. Tramways Co. v. McNeil, 25 Que. K.B. 90.

PETITION OF RIGHT.

The lodging of a petition of right with the Secretary of State, in compliance with the provisions of s. 4 of the Petitions of Right Act (R.S. 1906, c. 142) will interrupt prescription within the meaning of art. 2224 C.C.P.

Saindon v. The King, 15 Can. Ex. 305.

(§ IV B-163)—WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT — REVIVER — RENEWAL OF WRIT.

An action at common law and under the Workmen's Compensation Act (E.S.O. 1914, c. 146), the cause of action under the Act being barred at the expiration of 6 months from the occurrence of the accident unless kept alive by the renewal of the writ of summons, cannot, after the writ is expired and no valid service having been effected, be revived by a renewal of the writ, though the common law cause of action has not become barred. [Doyle v. Kaufman, 3 Q.B.D. 7, 340; Hewett v. Barr, [1891] 1 Q.B. 98, followed.]

C. BY PAYMENT OF PROMISE.

(§ IV C-165)—INTERRUPTION OF STATUTE.—PART PAYMENT.

That a payment or part payment should have the effect of taking a transaction out of the Statute of Limitations, it is not necessary that the payment should be actually made in money. Any arrangement between the parties intended to have the effect of discharging pro tanto the party indebted, will have the same effect as the payment of money. [Maber v. Maber, L.R. 2 Ex. 153, followed.]

Robson v. Malloch, 6 W.W.R. 1049.

PRESCRIPTION—INTERRUPTION OF—PROMISSORY NOTE—PARTIAL PAYMENT.

In a commercial matter, partial payments constitute a tacit acknowledgment which will operate to interrupt prescription and may be proved by oral testimony.

Henderson v. Armstrong, 13 Que. P.R. 140.

(§ IV C-166)—PAYMENT OF DIVIDEND BY ASSIGNEE OR CURATOR.

The payment of a dividend by a curator or assignee for creditors does not imply a new promise by the debtor so as to raise a new obligation to pay a debt barred by limitations. [Birkett v. Bissonette, 15 O.L.R. 93, applied.]

MORTGAGE — PAYMENTS BY ASSIGNEE OF EQUITY OF REDEMPTION.

Payments of interest to a mortgagee by an assignee of an equity of redemption who, pursuant to agreement with the mortgagor or by virtue of s. 89 of the Real Property Act, R.S.M. 1902, c. 148, assumes the payment of the encumbrance, will prevent the running of the Statute of Limitations in favour of the mortgagor. [Forsyth v. Bristowe, 22 L. J. Ex. 255; Bradshaw v. Widington, [1902] 2 Ch. 430; and Alston v. Mineard, 51 Sol. J. 132, followed.]

PAYMENT.

The Statute of Limitations is not a bar to an action for the balance due on a grocer's account incurred by the wife of the defendant where it appeared that, during the life time of the grocer it was the practice of the defendant's wife to buy groceries and make monthly payments therefor, generally precisely the amount of the month's purchases, but sometimes a little more or a little less, so that at the death of the grocer there was a balance left unpaid, a statement of which was sent by the executrix of his estate to the wife of the defendant who promised to pay the bill, and payments were made by her from time to time until her death and then were continued by her daughter until the defendant put a stop to it, and, therefore, the executrix is not debarred from recovering the balance remaining unpaid from the defendant.

In an action on a promissory note where the limitation period under the statute would be held to have run but for a part payment made within the period of the fact that the Alberta Statute of Limitations is silent as to a part payment interrupting the statute and that the English statute, 9 Geo. IV. c. 14, s. 1, provides as regards the original English statute from which the Alta. statute was taken that nothing contained therein shall alter, take away or lessen the effect of any payment or any principal or interest, may properly be invoked in support of the long series of judicial interpretations fixing the law in relation thereto. In an action on a simple contract, where a 6 year Statute of Limitations is pleaded, a part payment made even after the expiration of the 6 years is sufficient in general to revive the cause of action, and therefore raise the implication of a promise to pay the balance and of an acknowledgment of the existence of a larger debt.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT—DIFFERENT INDEMNITIES.

The indemnities provided by the Workmen's Compensation Act (Que.), whether for temporary incapacity or for permanent partial incapacity, are subject to one and the same action, and are governed by the same prescription, and payments by an employer to an injured workman operate as an acknowledgment of debt under the Act, thereby interrupting the prescription, regardless as to which of the indemnities the payments were intended to apply.

Quebec & Lake St. John R. Co. v. Fougues, 26 D.L.R. 34, 24 Que. K.B. 538.

MORTGAGE — PAYMENTS OF INTEREST BY HEIRS OF MORTGAGOR.

The plaintiff sued upon a mortgage made in 1888, payable 5 years after its date, with interest. The mortgagor died in 1904, leaving a widow and three children, the defendants, who continued to live upon the mortgaged land. From time to time, payments on account of interest on the mortgage were made by one of the children, the last being in June, 1915. The widow defended the suit, alleging that she was not party or privy to the making of the payments on account of interest, and that she had now acquired a possessory title to the land:—Held, that the case was governed by s. 24 of the Limitations Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 75, and s. 13 had no application. The payment of interest by one of those claiming under the mortgagor was a sufficient payment to keep the mortgage alive as against all persons claiming under him. [Roddam v. Morley, 37 Ch. D. 651, followed.]

McKay v. Hutchings, 41 O.L.R. 46.

NOTE—PAYMENT OF DIVIDEND BY ASSIGNEE FOR CREDITORS.

The payment of a dividend by the curator in a judicial abandonment of property, upon a debt having for consideration notes payable to order, interrupts the five year prescription, as payment made by the curator is as though made by the insolvent himself. In such case prescription begins to run, not from the date when the dividend was payable, but from that of the payments.

Laporte-Martin v. Bouthillier, 53 Que. S.C. 471.

(§ IV C—167)—PROMISE OR ACKNOWLEDGMENT.

A letter written by a client to his solicitor requesting him to look after his affairs once more and enquiring as to the amount of his (the client's) past indebtedness, constitutes an interruption of prescription as regards such indebtedness, but does not constitute a renunciation to prescription acquired.

Bernard v. Pelissier, 8 D.L.R. 545.

INTERRUPTION OF STATUTE—PROMISE OR ACKNOWLEDGMENT.

Where an alleged debtor on a liquidated money claim, in answer to the creditor's notice of intended action, writes a letter to him acknowledging the debt, without superadding any mere conditional promise to pay, such letter is sufficient to take the case out of the Statute of Limitations; the acknowledgment is not qualified even if accompanied by a request for time, by a statement that the debtor will not be able to pay until a future time.

Waddell v. Caldwell, 17 D.L.R. 411, 48 N.S.R. 109, 14 E.L.R. 332 at 334, affirming 14 D.L.R. 678, 14 E.L.R. 332.

INTERRUPTION OF STATUTE — REMOVAL OF BAR — PROMISE OR ACKNOWLEDGMENT, CONDITIONAL OR OTHERWISE—WHEN INEFFECTIVE.

McNeill v. McEachren, 20 D.L.R. 971.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT OF DEBT — CONDITIONAL PROMISE TO PAY.

A promise to pay conditional from the promisor's ability to do so does not operate as an absolute acknowledgment of a debt barred by limitations.

PROMISE OR ACKNOWLEDGMENT—"MY DEBT."

Agreeing to waive the Statute of Limitations is not a sufficient acknowledgment unless coupled with a promise; and though the expression "my debt" might by itself be construed as implying a promise of immediate payment, it is not so if negated by the debtor's statement of his inability to pay. [Rackham v. Marriott, 2 H. & N. 196, Smith v. Thorne, 18 Q.B. 134, followed.]

ACKNOWLEDGMENT OF DEBT.

When a debtor executes a contract in writing with his creditor by which he undertakes to do some work for $70, and that at the foot of the document places the following clause: "I agree to pay $5 on old bill from above amount," he acknowledges that he owes the old debt, the prescription of which is therefore interrupted.

O'Shea v. Hague, 47 Que. S.C. 394.

MORTGAGE—PAYMENT OF INTEREST BY SON AND DAUGHTER OF MORTGAGOR—SUFFICIENCY TO KEEP MORTGAGE ALIVE AS AGAINST ALL PERSONS CLAIMING UNDER MORTGAGOR—LIMITATIONS ACT, R.S.O. 1914, c. 75, s. 24.

McKay v. Hutchings, 41 O.L.R. 46.

INTERRUPTION—WRITING.

The prescription of 5 years prescribed for negotiable notes works a forfeiture of the right of action. If the amount of the note exceeds $50, the interruption of the prescription can only be proved by a writing from the maker.

Dion v. Cimon, 51 Que. S.C. 57.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT OF DEBT—SCHEDULE—ASSIGNMENT FOR CREDITORS.

The enumeration of a debt in a schedule to a creditor's trust deed is an insufficient acknowledgment to take the debt out of the operation of the Statute of Limitations and part payment of the debt by the trustee is equally important.

Cockshutt Plow Co. v. Young, 10 S.L.R. 68, [1917] 1 W.W.R. 1441.

PROMISSORY NOTE—ACKNOWLEDGMENT IN WRITING.

To an action begun Nov. 5, 1912, to recover the amount of a promissory note made by the defendant and his brother, dated Nov. 1, 1903, payable one year after date, the defendant pleaded the Limitations Act; and it was held, that a letter written by the defendant to the plaintiff, dated Nov. 8, 1906, in which the defendant said: "I thought that note matter was settled long ago. I will write my brother John for details and on receipt of his reply you will hear from me again"—assuming that the letter referred to the note—was not a written acknowledgment of the debt from which a promise to pay might be inferred.

Wood v. Tromanhauser, 32 O.L.R. 370, reversing Junior Judge, County of York.

UNCONDITIONAL ACKNOWLEDGMENT OF DEBT —LAW IMPLYING PROMISE TO PAY—PREVENTING CLAIM BEING BARRED.

The law implies a promise to pay where the acknowledgment of the debt is unconditional; so as to prevent the claim being barred by the Statute of Limitations.

Bank of Vancouver v. Kennedy, [1919] 3 W.W.R. 51.

SUFFICIENCY OF ACKNOWLEDGMENT OF DEBT.

A letter of the defendant in which there was an offer to confess judgment for a debt constitutes a sufficient acknowledgment to deprive him of the benefit of the Statute of Limitations.

Western Foundry & Metal Co. v. H.T. Stevens Co., [1919] 3 W.W.R. 1021.

A CERTAIN ACKNOWLEDGMENT IN LETTER HELD SUFFICIENT TO PREVENT THE OPERATION OF THE STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS.

Jenkins v. McWhinney, 5 D.L.R. 883, 4 O.W.N. 90, 23 O.W.R. 29.

INSCRIPTION IN LAW.

If, on the very face of a declaration, it appears that the plaintiff has already brought an action upon the same grounds, but it is not alleged that such action was followed by a final judgment, it is an exception of lis pendens and not an inscription in law which is open to the defendant.

Chaput v. Legault, 20 Que. P.R. 286.

ESSENTIALS—IDENTITY OF ACTIONS—JOINER.

In order that there may be lis pendens of two actions, it is necessary that there be identity of parties, identity of cause of action, and identity of the object of the action. If one of these is wanting there cannot be lis pendens. In the latter case, to prevent a possible conflict between the two judgments, the procedure to follow is that of joinder of the actions.

Raycraft v. Little, 49 Que. S.C. 505, 17 Que. P.R. 436.

EXCEPTION OF LIS PENDENS—ANSWER IN WRITING—PROOF—INSCRIPTION ON THE ROLL.—C.P., 164, 173, 293 ET SEQ.

If an exception of lis pendens has been answered in writing and proof is to be adduced, the case should not be inscribed on the ordinary roll for proof and hearing. On a motion to reject such inscription, the case will be sent to the Practice Court to be disposed of.

Gingras v. Hoileau, 16 Que. P.R. 341.

(§ I—2)—EFFECT OF LACHES—WRONGFUL ISSUANCE.

The delivery of an amended statement of claim will not validate a certificate of lis pendens wrongfully issued by a clerk of the court, pursuant to s. 35 of the Alberta Mechanics' Lien Act when the original statement of claim filed with him as a condition to the issuing of the certificate was defective in not setting out the statutory allegations and claims for relief. The filing of an amended statement of claim in an action wherein the original statement of claim did not authorize the registration of a lis pendens certificate will not validate such certificate. National Match Co. v. Thomas, 13 O.W.N. 413.

(§ I—3)—EFFECT OF NOTICE GENERALLY.

The registration of a certificate of lis pendens by the plaintiff is the means provided to protect his interests and give notice to other parties that he claims an interest in the property involved and is seeking to enforce his rights by action, and such registration operates as a notice to all who are or may become interested in the property.

Robinson v. Holmes, 17 D.L.R. 372, 6 W.W.R. 1143.

(§ I—4)—REMOVAL OF—BONA FIDE PURCHASER—TRUST.

Under ss. 79 and 59 of the Real Property Act (R.S.M. 1913, c. 171) a bona fide purchaser has the right to deal with the registered owner without any inquiry as to how and under what circumstances the owner procured title; if at the time of the agreement the purchaser has no knowledge that the vendor held the land merely as trustee for another person, he is not bound by a lis pendens filed by a judgment creditor of the real owner in an effort to subject the land to satisfaction of the judgment, and the purchaser is entitled to hold the land free from such claim, and to have the registration of the lis pendens removed, as forgoing a cloud upon his title. (§ H—9)—CAVEAT IN LAND TITLES.

The filing of a caveat, under the Manitoba Real Property Act, R.S.M. 1902, c. 148, has no greater effect, so far as the rights or interests of the caveator are concerned, than a certificate of lis pendens.

(§ H—10)—REGISTRATION — MOTION TO VACATE — PLEADING NOT JUSTIFYING ANY LIEN OR CHARGE ON LAND.

Forrester v. Lafontaine, 16 D.L.R. 881, 6 W.W.R. 677.

Where a writ of summons has been issued and a lis pendens filed, but no valid service of the writ is made on the defendant, the latter must enter an appearance gratis before launching a motion to dismiss the action and for the discharge of the lis pendens.

Where the plaintiff, to whom a certificate of title was issued and land transferred as security for a debt from the grantor, gave his grantor a power of attorney, and afterwards alleged that the latter, as the result of a conspiracy, transferred the land, in trust for himself, to another, and that a certificate of title was issued to the transferee, who, in turn, transferred the land in fee simple to a trust company, without consideration, in trust for the grantor and others, one not a party to the alleged conspiracy, who acquired from the trust company an interest in the land under an agreement for its purchase, obtained under ss. 71, 91 of the Real Property Act (Man.), a good title as against the plaintiff, since he secured it from its registered owner, and a lis pendens filed by the plaintiff will be vacated on motion of such contract purchaser in an action brought by the plaintiff to set aside all of such transfers.

SETTING ASIDE.

A certificate of lis pendens will not be vacated before trial, unless the applicant can show that under no possible circumstances can the facts as set out in the endorsement on the writ or the plaintiff's pleading give him any right in respect of the land in question.

DISCHARGE OF — LAND TITLES ACT.

In an action for the specific performance of an agreement for the sale of land, the plaintiff issued and registered in the Land Titles Office a certificate of lis pendens. The defendant moved before a local master to have the lis pendens discharged on the ground that there was no authority to issue the same except in actions respecting mechanics' liens. The local master having refused the application, the defendant appealed to a Judge in Chambers. On appeal:—Held, that although the certificate of lis pendens was issued out of the court, yet the registering of it in the Land Titles Office was the act of the registrar and not of an official of the court. That the application not being made under any of the provisions of the Land Titles Act, and the action itself not having been disposed of, a Judge in Chambers has no power on such a motion as the present to direct the registrar to vacate the registration of the certificate of lis pendens.

Dufour v. Dehid, 8 S.L.R. 19.

EXCEPTION—LIS PENDENS.

The exception of lis pendens must identify the persons, cause and object of the two actions.

Pacaud v. Pacaud, 12 Que. P.R. 319.

LITIGIOUS RIGHTS.

WHAT CONSTITUTE — ASSETS OF INSOLVENT COMPANY — RIGHT OF WAY.

A sale of the assets of a company being wound-up, even if such assets include claims of which the amount is undetermined, does not constitute a sale of litigious rights. In order that a right may be considered litigious, the contestation to which it is subject must bear on the very existence of that right, and not on its value.

LIVERY STABLE.

SALE TO REALIZE LIEN FOR CHARGES — INCAPACITY OF LIENOR TO BECOME PURCHASER.

The party exercising the statutory right to sell a horse under an innkeeper's or livery stable keeper's lien for stabling charges under the authority of the Innkeepers Act, 1 Geo. V. (Ont.) c. 49, cannot himself become the purchaser at the sale. The statutory requirement of two weeks' notice by newspaper advertisement is not complied with by advertisement in the successive weekly issues of the newspaper, where the last publication took place only the day prior to the sale.

HIRE OF HORSE — DUTY OF KEEPER TO WARN — NATURE OF ANIMAL.

The keeper of a livery stable who hires a horse to another is bound to give notice to the bailee of any dangerous quality in the animal hired of which he has or should have knowledge, and failure to give such notice, while it may not be accurately designated contributory negligence, may, in an action against the bailee for an injury resulting from neglect to exercise proper caution, go directly to the question of the bailee's negligence and liability.

Questions relating to the establishment of rates and their reasonableness under art. 7300, R.S.Q. 1909, for the privilege of logging or the value of improvements made by a company to facilitate the driving of logs, are left to the entire discretion of the Lieut.-Gov.-in-Council, whose decisions are final, and from which the law provides no appeal to the courts.

Re Little Sturgeon River Slides Co. and Mackie Estate, 6 D.L.R. 895, 4 O.W.N. 262.

COMPENSATION FOR DRIVING — LEVYING TOLLS — RIGHTS OF BOOM COMPANY — ABSENCE OF IMPLIED CONTRACT.

Where a lumber company in the course of its logging operations banked its logs on the ice during the winter season, and in the spring the logs were floated down to a river and then driven down the river to the mills where they were to be sawn, the character of the river being such that it would be impracticable to float or drive the logs in cribs or boomed together, the fact that the lumber company, in common with other operators, floating and driving their logs in single pieces allowed them to become intermixed and in this intermixed condition to pass into certain works erected in the river, which did not in any way improve its floatable character, by a boom company incorporated under the laws of a foreign country, does not constitute an implied request to separate the logs; and the lumber company, deriving no benefit from the interference with the logs by the boom company, and having forbidden the boom company from so interfering, a contract will not be implied to pay the tolls fixed by the boom company, although under its powers as amended, the boom company had authority to construct the works and to collect tolls and charges for such services.

(§ 1—5) — EXERCISE OF STATUTORY RIGHTS — UNREASONABLE OBSTRUCTION OF STREAM — CONSTITUTIONAL LAW — SAW LOGS DRIVING ACT.

A lumber company that unreasonably obstructs navigation on a river by the driving of its logs, cannot justify its conduct by provincial legislation conferring on it the right to float logs, and to use the waters of the stream for such purpose; since the Parliament of Canada alone has jurisdiction over navigation. The Ontario Saw Logs Driving Act, R.S.O. 1897, c. 143, does not authorize the obstruction of navigation by the floating of logs in a stream, which is expressly forbidden, not from necessity but ex abundanti cautela, by s. 3 of the Act. [See B.N.A. Act, s. 91.]

(§ 1-7)—CONTRACT FOR CUTTING AND HAULING—NONDESIGNATION OF SCALE—RIGHTS OF PARTIES.

In an action for a balance claimed due on a contract for cutting and hauling logs, containing a clause that they are "to be paid for according to the count and scale of —, which shall be final and conclusive between the parties," without naming the scale to be used, the plaintiff will not be bound by the scale appointed by the defendant, but evidence of scales appointed by both will be received to determine the quality of logs to be paid for.

(§ 1-8)—COMPENSATION FOR SORTING.

Where, as the result of common action, logs of different log owners become intermixed in their course down a floatable stream, the cost and expense of separating and securing them shall be paid by each individual log owner, and if one log owner requests a boom company to separate his logs from the intermixed logs, no implied contract with another log owner can be presumed on the part of the boom company to entitle it to recover for services rendered in connection with this separation of the logs especially where such last-mentioned log owner had forbidden the boom company from interfering or meddling with his logs.

CULLING AND MEASURING.

A party alleging error of calculation by a culler or measurer does not need to ask for the cancellation of the contract; on the contrary, his prayer for a reformation is a demand for the complete execution of the contract. He must, however, give conclusive proof of error in such measurements, and measurements taken ex parte when the logs were in the water in the early spring and when many of them were hidden from view, cannot be accepted as against the measurements of the culler chosen by the parties under the contract. Under a contract for the cutting of logs in timber limits where it is stipulated that the culling and measuring will be done by a culler appointed by the party who undertakes the cutting, the calculations of such culler will be accepted by the court and such clause given effect to although mere errors of calculation may be reformed.

Where logs and shingle bolts are to be paid for as taken out and loaded, according to the quantities found by an official scaler, the buyers who took delivery of shingle bolts and placed them on a scow which drifted away before the contemplated scaling and was lost, will be liable notwithstanding the impossibility of scaling according to the contract if it did not result from any fault of the seller; the quantity will be determined in such case by the best available evidence apart from the official scaling which was stipulated for in the contract.

Rich v. North American Lumber Co., 17 D.L.R. 25, 18 B.C.R. 543.

(§ 1-9)—WOODMEN'S LIEN — WHO ENTITLED.

The lien provided by art. 1994 (c), C.C. (Que.), to secure the charges of any person engaged in cutting or manufacturing lumber, applies not only to those who are directly engaged in the work themselves, but also to those who have the work done by others.

Houseman v. LePage, 25 D.L.R. 332, 24 Que. K.B. 413.

WAGES—WOODMAN'S LIEN.

The contractor for logging operations is entitled as well as the wage earner to a lien on the logs or lumber in respect of the work he has had performed in cutting the timber and hauling the logs to the mill for the agreed contract price by virtue of the Woodman's Lien Act (Alta.), 1913, 2nd sess., c. 28. WOODMEN'S LIEN — DEMAND — SPECIFIC AMOUNT.

Under s. 9 of the Woodmen's Lien Act, C.S.N.B. 1903, c. 148, the affidavit required must show that the amount claimed is justly due and owing, and that payment thereof has been demanded and refused, but this does not mean that the claim should be dismissed unless the amount claimed and demanded is the exact amount subsequently found to be owing. It is the duty of the judge under s. 17 of the Act to determine what if anything is due and if anything is found to be due and owing to order that the amount be paid to the lien holder.

WOODMAN'S LIEN AGAINST PURCHASER — DATE OF CONTRACT.

Sections 37, 38 of the Woodmen's Lien for Wages Act, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 243, under which a workman is entitled to a right of action for his wages against the person for whom logs are supplied under a contract, if the latter fails to require, before making any payment, the production of the employer's payroll, apply only to contracts which contemplate the employment of labour after the date of the contract, and not to a purchaser of logs manufactured and ready to be taken possession of by the purchaser at the date of the contract: to entitle a workman to recover under these sections for work done subsequently to the date of the contract he must be able to prove that the subsequent work was performed in respect of the particular logs under the contract.

The prohibition of export from British Columbia of timber cut on Crown lands therein unless manufactured within the province into boards, deal, joists, lath, shingles "or other sawn lumber" (Forest Act, B.C., s. 100), applies to prevent the export of the product of the timber after sawing the log into short lengths of from 16 to 20 inches, and cutting these short lengths longitudinally so as to leave each block only a small arc of the circumference of the log, where the blocks are left unfinished for any practical permanent use and are commercially suitable only for further manufacture into shingles.

I. In general.

COUPON WITH STORE PURCHASES — GIFT WITH WINNING NUMBER.

The giving of an automobile by a department store under an advertised scheme whereby all purchasers of $1 worth of goods or more obtained a free coupon belonging to a series from which one particular number had been selected as the winning number to be disclosed after the close of the competition, is an offence under the lottery clauses of the Cr. Code; and the advertisement and management of such scheme are punishable under paras. (a) and (c) respectively of subs. 1 of s. 236, Cr. Code.

BUSINESS BY MODE OF CHANCE.

Upon a charge of carrying on a business by modes of chance contrary to the lottery clauses of the Cr. Code (s. 236), evidence of persons who had canvassed for business on her behalf with which the lottery features were proposed, is not admissible evidence against the accused where not connected by evidence that the accused did in fact hold the lottery drawings suggested by the canvassers.

The King v. Lumgair, 19 Can. Cr. Cas. 123, 3 O.W.N. 309.

The sale of immovables with the intention, agreed upon between vendor and purchaser, of organizing a lottery and disposing of it by public drawings, is radically null, being simulated between the parties as accessory to the main design of committing an act prohibited by law. It cannot, therefore, be relied on in opposition to a subsequent legal sale to a third party.

Bédard v. Phoenix Land Improvement Co., 42 Que. S.C. 1.

II. What constitutes.

(§ 11-5)—SALE OF LOTS.

A deed of sale intended as a blind for the purpose of running a lottery in subdivision lots, is illegal and void and cannot be opposed to a subsequent bona fide purchaser of these lots from the original owner, although it has been registered.

FREE OPTION CERTIFICATES.

It is not a lottery offence under para. (a) of subs. 1 of s. 236, Cr. Code, to publish a scheme for the drawing, without payment or obligation to pay, of certificates giving a privilege of purchase of a class of article at a fixed price alleged to be lower than the value, where no sales of such article are made except to those who draw certificates and they are under no obligation to purchase.

Although sitting within his territorial jurisdiction a magistrate cannot try an offence which is alleged to have been committed beyond his territorial jurisdiction, except where there is a statutory extension of his power in that respect; s. 577 the Cr. Code has not been made applicable to offences under Alberta statutes. A commissioner of police appointed by the Governor-in-Council under R.S.C. 1906, c. 92, has no jurisdiction to make a conviction under a provincial law; his jurisdiction is restricted to the matters set forth in the Dominion Act and coming within the legislative jurisdiction of the Parliament of Canada.

MALICE—SUFFICIENCY OF MOTIVE TO RENDER PROSECUTOR LIABLE IN DAMAGES.

Hurst v. Elliott, [1919] 2 W.W.R. 849.

REASONABLE AND PROBABLE CAUSE—ADVICE OF COUNSEL.

The fact that the informant who was afterwards sued for malicious prosecution had first consulted counsel and laid all the facts before him and had been advised by such counsel to lay the information is not in all cases a bar to the action being maintained, but is to be considered in determining the questions of malice and want of reasonable and probable cause. Where counsel's advice to the prosecutor upon the true facts fully laid before him to lay an information for a criminal offence is acted upon by the prosecutor and this is followed by a committal for trial and the finding of a true bill upon such facts, the prosecutor, against whom no express malice is shown, is justified in his prosecution although a conviction is not secured; and a verdict for damages for false arrest and malicious prosecution will not under such circumstances be supported.

(§ 1-2)—ADVICE OF COUNSEL.

Advice of counsel before charging a person with an offence, while evidence in the defendant's favour in an action for malicious prosecution, does not constitute a complete answer to a claim of want of probable cause, especially where it appears that the defendants tried to rely on their solicitor without forming an opinion of their own as to the guilt or innocence of the plaintiff.

ADVICE OF COUNSEL NO JUSTIFICATION—MITIGATION.

An informant is not discharged from liability for damages caused by an arrest without probable cause by the mere fact that he acted on the advice of counsel, and it can only be taken into consideration by the judge in estimating the amount of the damages.

Calogery v. Spencer, 47 Que. S.C. 12.

CHARGE OF KEEPING BAWDY HOUSE—JUSTIFICATION—ADVICE OF COUNSEL.

In an action for malicious prosecution for charging the plaintiff with keeping a bawdy house, the fact that the defendant, owing to the mistaken idea he entertained as to what in law constituted a bawdy house, honestly believed, and under all the circumstances was reasonably justified in believing, the charge to be true, is no defence, nor is the fact that the defendant acted bona fide and under the advice of the clerk of the peace and of counsel of itself enough to afford a good defence.

NO REASONABLE AND PROBABLE CAUSE FOR LAYING CHARGE—ABSENCE OF MALICE.

Where plaintiff wrongfully shut in defendant's horses to prevent them going in his yard, for which defendant, a foreigner, on advice of a magistrate laid a criminal charge, an action by plaintiff for malicious prosecution was dismissed without costs on the ground that although there was no reasonable and probable cause for the prosecution, the plaintiff had failed to show malice.

Kretsul v. Papella, [1919] 2 W.W.R. 847.

CONSULTING WITH POLICE.

In an action for damages for malicious prosecution it is not a good defence that the only part taken in the prosecution by the defendant was the laying of the information, and the fact that the defendant acted on the advice of a constable or police sergeant, or the combined advice of both, is not conclusive evidence of reasonable or probable cause.

Schaal v. Reeves, [1918] 2 W.W.R. 442.

ADVICE OF COUNSEL—INQUIRIES—MALICE—CIVIL RIGHT.

Where, in an action for malicious prosecution, the defendant sets up the defence that he consulted a solicitor before instituting the criminal proceedings, the soundness of the solicitor's advice is, generally speaking, not weighed, and such defence is a complete answer to the allegation that the defendant had acted without reasonable or probable cause unless the question remains whether through the neglect of the defendant, and subsequently of his solicitor, to make proper inquiries, such defence is not destroyed. The instituting of criminal proceedings for the purpose of establishing a civil right amounts to the malice which must be proven in an action for malicious prosecution.

Ibbotson v. Berkley, 26 B.C.R. 156, [1918] 3 W.W.R. 1018.

ADVICE OF COUNSEL—CHARGE OF FALSE PRETENCES—MALICE.

The fact that a defendant to an action for malicious prosecution acted upon the advice of counsel in instituting the prosecution is not necessarily a complete answer to the allegation of lack of reasonable and probable cause. [Harris v. Hickey, 17 B.C.R. 21, 2 D.L.R. 356, followed.] A person seeking to shelter himself behind his counsel must take proper care to inform himself of all the facts. In an action for malicious prosecution, proof that the defendant endeavored to use the criminal courts as a means for collecting a debt establishes such malice as the law requires the plaintiff to prove.

Olds v. Paris, 25 B.C.R. 453, [1918] 2 W.W.R. 682.

(§ 1—3)—OF CIVIL ACTION.

The principles of the French law as laid down in art. 1053 C.C. (Que.), and not the principles of the English law govern in such a case. [Copeland v. Leclere M.L.R., 21 B.R. 365, disapproved.]

C.P.R. Co. v. Waller, 1 D.L.R. 47, 19 Can. Cr. Cas. 190.

ATTACHMENT—SAISIE-ARRET BEFORE JUDGMENT.

A transaction, without reserve, does not only extinguish the actual damages claimed, but also future ones for the same reason. So, where the plaintiff desists from an attachment before judgment with the consent of the defendant and without any reserve, this latter cannot afterward claim damages from the plaintiff for malicious prosecution. Where the plaintiff, in an attachment before judgment, falsely alleges the insolvency of the defendant, and persists in this allegation, even after he had desisted from his seizure, he may be, in a cross demand, condemned in damages.

Burtner Coal Co. v. Gano Moore Co., 24 Rev. Leg. 435.

(§ 1-4)—WHETHER CHARGE WAS FOR CRIMINAL OFFENCE—DEFECTS IN INFORMATION.

A charge of setting fire to a "separator" is equivalent to a charge of attempting to destroy an agricultural machine under s. 571 (read with s. 510) Cr. Code, and where such facts have been set out in the information, but the words "contrary to s. 511" were added, whereas the offence was not in fact under s. 511 as erroneously supposed, but under s. 571, the information may none the less be relied upon as a charge of a criminal offence in an action subsequently brought for malicious prosecution.

II. Want of probable cause; malice.

A. IN CRIMINAL PROSECUTION.

(II A-10) WANT OF PROBABLE CAUSE—IN CRIMINAL PROSECUTION—SUFFICIENCY.

Upon the question of want of reasonable and probable cause in an action for malicious prosecution, where the alleged offence was based on the plaintiff's want of ownership in certain property, a finding that such ownership was established is not in itself sufficient proof of want of reasonable and probable cause, but it should also be shown by the plaintiff that the defendant, in taking the proceeding against the plaintiff, did not act under an honest and reasonable belief as to facts and circumstances which, if true, would warrant any reasonable and prudent man in taking the proceeding. [Archibald v. McLaren, 21 Can. S.C.R. 588; Brown v. Hawkes, [1891] 2 Q.B. 718, distinguished.]

Duguay v. Myles, 15 D.L.R. 388, 42 N.B.R. 265.

CRIMINAL PROSECUTION — ESSENTIALS OF CAUSE OF ACTION.

In an action for malicious prosecution, the plaintiff's cause of action is established on proof of these essentials: (a) that he was prosecuted by the defendant on a criminal charge; (b) that the prosecution was determined in his favour; (c) that the defendant instituted or carried on the proceedings maliciously; (d) that there was an absence of reasonable and probable cause for such proceedings; (e) damages express or implied.

ARREST—PROBABLE CAUSE.

A cashier of a company who procures the arrest of an employee of the company in the honest belief, because of his failure to return to work, that he was the one to whom a missing sum of money was over-paid, acts under reasonable and probable cause, and the employer is not liable for malicious prosecution or false arrest.

Landry v. Bathurst Lumber Co., 35 D.L.R. 701, 44 N.B.R. 374.

BELIEF IN GUILT—FORGERY—ELECTIONS—MALICE SHOWN BY ARREST OF RIVAL CANDIDATE.

Mere belief in a person's guilt, without ascertaining any reasonable grounds for its probabilities, does not justify a prosecution for the arrest of the accused person. A letter purporting to be written by the Attorney-General voicing the sentiment of a political party in indorsement of the candidature of the addressee at an election, the writing of which is denied by the alleged author, does not establish reasonable and probable cause for the belief that such letter had been forged by the addressee, in defence of an action for malicious prosecution for the forgery by a rival candidate.

Where the principal object of a prosecution for forgery is to secure the imprisonment of the accused so as to prevent his participation at an election in which he is a rival candidate, malice will be inferred. [Wright v. Greenwood, 1 W.R. 393, applied.]

REASONABLE AND PROBABLE CAUSE—FINDING OF TRIAL JUDGE—MALICE—VERDICT OF JURY—DAMAGES—COSTS.

Gratton v. Lavoie, 9 O.W.N. 213.

CRIMINAL PROSECUTION—INDIRECT MOTIVE—RECOVERY OF PROPERTY—MALICE.

That the defendant laid a charge of theft against a person to whom he had entrusted a horse for sale, merely for the purpose of recovering possession of the horse which the agent refused to deliver up, may be an indirect motive from which malice may be inferred against him in an action for malicious prosecution, where he knew that the agent claimed possession solely for the purpose of selling it on defendant's account under an agreement between them not limited as to time whereby such agent was to receive for his services and expenses any sum he should receive in excess of a minimum net price to be turned over to the defendant. In the absence of direct evidence of malice on the part of the defendant, in an action against him for malicious prosecution, malice may be inferred from the absence of reasonable and probable cause in taking the criminal proceedings complained of, or from the fact that in taking them the defendant was actuated by indirect or improper motives.

MALICE—IN CRIMINAL PROSECUTION—SUFFICIENCY.

Upon the question of the existence of malice in an action for malicious prosecution, the jury properly determines whether the defendant did or did not act honestly and without ill-will or any other motive or desire than to do what he bona fide and reasonably believed to be right in the interests of justice, as one of the factors in finding malice or no malice. [Hicks v. Faulkner, 8 Q.B.D. 167, applied.]

ARREST FOR CATTLE STEALING—REFUSAL TO LISTEN TO EXPLANATION AS TO POSSESSION.

Want of reasonable and probable cause for laying information against a person for stealing cattle he had bought from the defendant, which were not to be delivered until paid for, is not to be inferred merely because, at the time of the plaintiff's arrest, the defendant had refused to listen to explanations made by the latter or to examine a receipt held by him showing payment for the cattle to one not authorized to receive it, where the other circumstances leading up to the prosecution were such as to demand immediate action by the owner of the cattle to prevent their impending shipment.

REASONABLE AND PROBABLE CAUSE.

Reasonable and probable cause for the plaintiff's arrest is shown by the fact that he took the defendant to the former's house and locked him in, releasing him only after by reason of threats and intimidation the defendant agreed to pay the plaintiff a large sum of money, and gave him $300 in cash.

PROBABLE CAUSE—INQUIRY.

Honest belief in the case after reasonable inquiry as to the true facts and circumstances is sufficient reasonable and probable cause for instituting a criminal prosecution.

ARREST—WARRANT.

Where the Trial Judge, sitting without a jury, has found on undisputed evidence that an offence for which the plaintiff might have been arrested without a warrant has been committed, and that the defendants honestly believed that such an offence had been committed, and that it had been committed by the plaintiff he is justified in drawing the inference that there were reasonable and probable grounds for the arrest and granting the protection of s. 30 Cr. Code.

ARREST OF TENANT BY LANDLORD—REMOVAL OF GOODS.

When a tenant fraudulently removes his goods subject to the privilege of his landlord, without giving him notice and unknown to him, the latter, after having exhausted his civil remedy and taken the opinion of a magistrate, has probable cause for having him arrested under the Criminal Code, and is not liable in damages if the tenant is subsequently set at liberty.

Rousseau v. Dubois, 54 Que. S.C. 1.

(§ II A—11)—RECEIVING STOLEN GOODS—PURCHASE AT GROSS UNDERVALUE FROM NONTRADER.

The fact that a junk dealer had purchased in bulk a quantity of goods which could not properly be classed as junk at a gross undervalue from a nontrader in such goods is sufficient to put such purchaser upon inquiry as to their ownership, and may be set up in proof of reasonable and probable cause in defence of an action for malicious prosecution.

(§ II A—12)—ADMISSION OF NONBELIEF.

A belief upon which the private prosecutor has acted is essential to the existence of reasonable and probable cause as it affects an action against him for malicious prosecution; so, where the prosecutor, when examined at the trial in the latter action, denied ever having had a belief that the plaintiff was guilty and also denied having laid any charge against the plaintiff, but is proved to have laid the charge, his denial of belief in the plaintiff's guilt is conclusive proof of want of reasonable and probable cause in favour of the plaintiff who had been acquitted on the criminal trial and who also denied his guilt on the civil trial, although it may further appear that there were grounds of suspicion which would have sustained a defence of reasonable and probable cause had the defendant admitted that he had believed them. [Haddrick v. Heslop, 12 Q.R. 267, and Shrobery v. Osmaston, 37 L.T. 793, applied.]

Reasonable and probable cause, as well as want of malice, in preferring a charge of theft and of aiding and abetting another to obtain money from a municipal corporation by false pretences, is shewn where it appears that the plaintiff, a girl of 16, who was able to read and write, presented money orders drawn by her father, a sectional foreman employed by the city, in which she was fictitiously named, at the city hall, all of which were in unsealed envelopes, for the payment to her of wages of city labourers her father had fraudulently carried on his pay rolls, and that the plaintiff delivered to her father the money she obtained thereon, as, under such circumstances, the inference was warranted that she was aiding her father to defraud the city.

Provost v. Montreal, 3 D.L.R. 128.

Want of probable cause on the part of the defendants is sufficiently shown in an action for malicious prosecution where the circumstances disclose that, in preferring a charge of theft against the plaintiff, they acted rashly, and the question whether they really believed that the plaintiff intended to steal from them was open to doubt, as honesty and reality of belief in his guilt was essential to the defendant's protection.

PROBABLE CAUSE — MALICE — CHARGE OF THEFT.

Neither malice nor want of reasonable and probable cause are necessary inferences against the informant in a criminal charge for theft of timber, because of such informant having first instituted civil proceedings against the trespasser with the sole purpose of recovering the price and before being advised by his solicitor that the facts justified a prosecution for theft, if the informant later instituted criminal proceedings in pursuance of his solicitor's advice and the charge was dismissed. [Burgoyne v. Mofatt, 10 N.B.R. 13, distinguished.]

Priest v. McGuire, 27 D.L.R. 290, 25 Can. Cr. Cas. 139, 43 N.B.R. 469.

Probable cause exists for laying information for theft against one who forcibly took a crop from a purchaser which was planted by the former after the extinguishment of his rights in the land by a sale by the sheriff under an execution, where the taking was by force and accompanied by trespass to lands, although under a pretended claim of right.

Hirtle v. Knox, 13 D.L.R. 21, 47 N.S.R. 219, 49 C.L.J. 620.

ARREST—CONSTABLE ACTING IN GOOD FAITH.

An action for damages for malicious arrest and prosecution will not lie against a city where the constable making the arrest acted in good faith, and with probable cause, although the case when called was dismissed for lack of evidence.

Del Solo v. Montreal, 43 D.L.R. 96, 54 Que. S.C. 159.

ESSENTIALS OF DEFENCE.

There are four essentials to the defence of reasonable and probable cause in an action for malicious prosecution, namely: (1) an honest belief in the guilt of the accused; (2) this belief being based on an honest conviction of the existence of the circumstances which led the accuser to that conclusion; (3) this belief based on reasonable grounds, i.e., such as would lead any fairly cautious man in the defendant's situation so to believe; and (4) the circumstances so believed and relied on such as amount to reasonable ground for belief in the guilt of the accused. [Hicks v. Faulkner, 46 L.T.R. 127, applied.] The advice of counsel, after disclosure of all facts, is cogent evidence of the existence of reasonable and probable cause; but, if the complainant does not believe in the guilt of the accused, there is no reasonable and probable cause for him. [Connors v. Reid, 25 O.L.R. 44, followed.]

FALSE ARREST—MISTAKE—PROBABLE CAUSE. A false arrest procured under mistake, as a result of acting rashly on information as to the alleged offence, is without reasonable and probable cause and actionable, notwithstanding that upon discovery of the error the charge was immediately withdrawn; liability in such instance in Quebec, is governed by the Quebec civil law (C. C. Que., art. 1053), and not by English law. Fabryan v. Tremblay, 37 D.L.R. 444, 26 Que. K.B. 416.

PROBABLE CAUSE—EMBEZZLEMENT—CASH REGISTER.

An employee in charge of a cash register who fails to register a sum, in order to reimburse himself for an equal amount he claimed to be due him, cannot maintain an action for malicious prosecution against his employer for procuring his arrest for theft, on which charge he was acquitted, since the latter, in the circumstances, has acted in good faith, and with reasonable and probable cause.

Lachaud v. Giguère, 33 D.L.R. 615, 49 Que. S.C. 541.

In an action claiming damages for malicious prosecution it appeared that, on the preliminary hearing before the magistrate, defendant made the admission: "I do not think the plaintiff meant to steal the car in the ordinary meaning of stealing the car. I thought at the time he had taken the car for a claim he had himself." Held, that the finding of absence of reasonable and probable cause was justified and that plaintiff was entitled to recover.

Foley v. Harrison, 49 N.S.R. 135.

MALICIOUS ARREST—CAPIAS—PROBABLE CAUSE—INSOLVENCY—QUE. C.P. 893, 894, 853, 498, 475, QUE. C.C. 1570.

A malicious arrest, to give a right to damages, must have the following characteristics:—(a) It must have been made without probable cause. (b) It must be followed by an acquittal. A capias is issued with probable cause against a trader, when the latter:—(c) neglects to pay his debts at maturity; (d) allows himself to be sued; (e) makes on Sunday big bargain sales of which he keeps the proceeds in his pockets instead of depositing them as usual with his banker. Probable cause is one which gives rise, in the mind of a prudent man, to a reasonable suspicion, and is a question of strict law, to be determined only by the judge. That question of law arises from a series of facts established and admitted by the jury. Malice, in an illegal arrest, is inferred from lack of probable cause.

Perron v. Drouin, 16 Que. P.R. 121.

MALICE.

A commitment for trial of an indictable offence, after a preliminary investigation, raises a presumption that there was a probable cause for the charge, and, in the absence of evidence to rebut it, relieves the party who made it from liability for malicious prosecution.

(§ II B—16)—RESPECTIVE FUNCTIONS OF JUDGE AND JURY — JUDICATURE ACT, R.S.O. 1914, c. 56, s. 62 — REASONABLE AND PROBABLE CAUSE — FINDINGS OF JUDGE AND JURY — DAMAGES — NO MISDIRECTION — NO MISCARRIAGE OF JUSTICE SHOWN.

The question of reasonable and probable cause in an action for malicious prosecution is to be determined by the judge, R.S.O. 1914, c. 56, s. 62. The function of the jury is to determine the following only: 1. Whether the defendant prosecuted the criminal charge against the plaintiff as alleged before a tribunal into whose proceedings the civil courts are competent to inquire. 2. Whether the proceedings complained of terminated in the plaintiff's favour. 3. Whether the defendant instituted or carried on the proceedings maliciously. 4. The damages sustained by the plaintiff.

WANT OF PROBABLE CAUSE.

Reasonable and probable cause for the arrest of the plaintiff, a watchmaker, on a charge of having converted to his own use a watch left with him for repairs, is not shown, in an action for malicious prosecution, where the only thing tending to shew any improper dealing with the watch was his statement to the defendant that he was leaving town and would leave all repair work with another person, and that he omitted to leave with him the watch in question.

Wood v. Newby, 5 D.L.R. 486, 4 A.L.R. 333, 21 W.L.R. 438, 2 W.W.R. 409.

In an action for malicious prosecution, a formal finding by the judge of absence of reasonable and probable cause may be unnecessary, if such a finding can be necessarily inferred from what took place at the trial.

(§ II B—17)—MALICE.

Malice, in an action for malicious prosecution, may be found from the facts that the defendant, without reasonable or probable cause, procured the arrest of the plaintiff on the ground that the latter, a watchmaker, who had removed from the town, had in his possession a valuable watch belonging to the defendant, and the latter did not take a summons for the plaintiff, as suggested by the magistrate, as he stated that he feared that if a summons was issued it would give the plaintiff an opportunity to escape, since, from such circumstances, it appeared that the defendant's desire was to recover the watch and not to punish the plaintiff. Malice may be implied in an action for malicious prosecution, where there was not reasonable and probable cause for the arrest of the plaintiff.

MALICE IN FACT MUST BE PROVED — NOT LEGAL MALICE.

The malice which a plaintiff in an action for malicious prosecution has to prove is not malice in its legal sense, but malice in fact, malus animus, indicating that the defendant was actuated either by spite or ill-will against the plaintiff.

Scott v. Harris, 44 D.L.R. 737, 30 Can. Cr. Cas. 363, 14 A.L.R. 143, [1918] 3 W.W.R. 1028.

The entire absence of reasonable and probable cause constitutes malice in law which entitles the plaintiff to recover damages.

MALICE.

Currie v. Caloff, 19 W.L.R. 767.

III. Termination of Prosecution.

(§ III—20)—MINUTE OF DISMISSAL — REQUIREMENT AS CONDITION PRECEDENT, HOW LIMITED.

As a basis for an action against the defendant for malicious prosecution, it suffices if the plaintiff proves his dismissal in the prosecution complained of, nor is proof of a minute in writing of such dismissal a condition precedent to recovery in the action for malicious prosecution.

Rudyk v. Shandro, 18 D.L.R. 641, 7 W.W.R. 415.

PROOF WITHOUT PRODUCTION OF RECORD.

In the absence of proof that the withdrawal of the prosecution was brought about by a compromise or arrangement to which the accused was a party proof of such withdrawal is a termination of the prosecution in favour of the accused. [Mortimer v. Fisher, 11 D.L.R. 77, applied.]

Tamblin v. Westcott, 20 D.L.R. 131, 7 W.W.R. 1037, 23 Can. Cr. Cas. 391.

QUASHING ON TECHNICAL GROUNDS.

There must be a final termination of the prosecution in favour of the accused before he can maintain an action against the informant for malicious prosecution; such termination means a final judgment discharging the accused as innocent and not merely by the quashing of the indictment on account of a technicality or irregularity apart from the merits.

Richard v. Goulet, 19 D.L.R. 371, 23 Can. Cr. Cas. 327, 45 Que. S.C. 374.

An action for damages for malicious charge of a criminal act and for false arrest cannot be maintained until the prosecution for such charge is at an end; such prosecution can not be considered as terminated by the fact that the complaint, after a preliminary hearing, has been declared by a magistrate not well founded, if it appears that the complainant, the defendant in the action for damages, has given the recognition required by s. 688 Cr. Code to the effect that he will prosecute his accusation before the Court of King's Bench.

Ducharme v. Bazinet, 18 Rev. de Jur. 255.

SUFFICIENCY OF ALLEGATIONS — WITHDRAWAL BY CROWN.

In an action for malicious prosecution the malicious proceedings complained of were sufficiently terminated in the plaintiff's favour if the magistrate dismissed the charge upon the proceedings being abandoned, unless the abandonment was brought about by some compromise or arrangement with the accused; the principle being that the termination must be such as to furnish prima facie evidence that the action was without foundation. A prosecution is terminated if the grand jury ignores the bill of indictment; and as in Saskatchewan grand jury functions are performed by the Atty-Gen'l and his agents the withdrawal of the prosecution by any of those officers of the Crown is of the like effect.

TERMINATION OF PROCEEDINGS IN PLAINTIFF'S FAVOUR — COMPROMISE.

A favourable termination of a criminal prosecution for obtaining chattels with intent to defraud, so as to permit the recovery of damages for malicious prosecution, is not shown where the prosecution was dismissed only upon terms of the prisoner giving security to pay for the property. It may be shown in defence of an action for malicious prosecution that the termination of a criminal proceeding in the plaintiff's favour was in fact the result of compromise or agreement, notwithstanding the records shew that the dismissal was based on the prosecutor's statement that he did not have any evidence to offer. [Baxter v. Gordon Ironsides & Fares Co., 13 O.L.R. 598, applied.]

The termination of criminal proceedings before a magistrate is sufficiently shewn in an action for malicious prosecution where the records of such officer shewed that the charge against the plaintiff was dismissed with costs, and the testimony of the magistrate was to the same effect.

Gourdeau v. Quebec, 40 Que. S.C. 388.

PRIVATE CONTRACT — RELIGIOUS COMMUNITY — 992 C.C.P.

A mandamus cannot be had to obtain the execution of a private contract. A nun, who has been relieved of her vows at her own request, and who has left the community, cannot afterwards, by way of mandamus, compel the community to take her back. Her remedy, if any, being a simple action for damages.

Labbe v. Soeurs, etc., de Notre Dame de Montreal, 15 Que. P.R. 316.

(§ I A-4)—EXISTENCE OF OTHER REMEDIES.

To entitle an applicant to a mandamus he must have a legal right to the performance of some duty of a public and not merely of a private character, and there must be no other effective, lawful method of enforcing the right.

EXISTENCE OF OTHER REMEDY.

The court should exercise its discretion by refusing a writ of mandamus where there is an alternative remedy which is equally convenient, beneficial and effective.

Shapiro v. Roy, 19 Que. P.R. 55.

(§ I B-7)—WARRANT FOR ARREST — WITNESSES — SAFE CONDUCT.

Mandamus will not lie to compel a magistrate to issue a warrant for the arrest, on a criminal charge of conspiracy, of persons resident out of Canada who are temporarily therein solely for the purpose of giving evidence before a committee of a provincial legislature in respect of the very matter which is sought to be made the subject of the criminal charge, while such non-residents are under the protection of a safe-conduct granted to them by the legislature.

(§ I B—8)—TO COMPEL REINSTATEMENT OF CASE — REFUSAL TO HEAR CRIMINAL APPEAL.

Mandamus lies to require an inferior court to enter continuances and to hear an appeal from a summary conviction which it had improperly refused to hear on the merits upon an erroneous ruling against the sufficiency of the notice of appeal.

TO REHEAR APPEAL — SUMMARY CONVICTION.

Where a summary conviction is appealed against under Cr. Code, ss. 749, 750, and the appeal was allowed without any evidence being taken, on the sole ground that the information was insufficient, such decision, even if erroneous under s. 753, because the objection had not been raised in the Magistrate's Court from which the appeal was taken, is not a decision upon a mere preliminary point, but one upon the merits; and mandamus will not lie, even with the consent of the County Judge, who had so decided, to compel him to reopen the appeal. Mandamus will not lie to a District Court Judge because of his allowance of an appeal taken under Cr. Code, s. 750, on the failure of the prosecutor or of the Att'y-Gen'l to appear in opposition thereto, the writ not being intended to direct in what manner the trial below shall be conducted, but merely that the inferior court shall exercise its jurisdiction in the event of its erroneously declining so to do.

(§ I C—15)—TO TAXING OFFICER.

Where, under an order by a court for a prosecutor to pay the accused person his costs of the criminal proceedings which was made under s. 689 Cr. Code, and therefore by the provision of such section included the costs of the accused's appearance on the preliminary inquiry, though made in general terms and not specially referring to such costs, the taxing officer acting upon the theory that the judge in his order did not intend to award such costs, declined to tax them, the Ontario High Court has jurisdiction to issue a mandatory order to the officer directing him to tax and to allow to an accused person such costs.

An application to compel a municipal corporation by mandamus to appoint a minority representation in a board of trustees in the management of a hospital, in pursuance of a provincial statute divesting the municipality from the control of the management, the property and funds whereof vested in the municipality under the terms of a charitable bequest, and where the appointments sought by the mandamus would otherwise prove futile, was dismissed by an equally divided court.

The King v. Roach; Re Payzant Memorial Hospital, 25 D.L.R. 177, 49 N.S.R. 310.

ACTION FOR MANDATORY ORDER TO COMPEL CORPORATION TO PERFORM CONDITION — OBLIGATION TO SUPERINTEND PERFORMANCE NOT ASSUMED BY COURT.

A testator, who died in 1883, devised lands to a town corporation, the defendants, and their successors forever, to be used and kept as a place of recreation and amusement for the inhabitants of the town forever, and to be called "M. Park," with a proviso that if the corporation should neglect or refuse "to keep the same and the fences surrounding it in proper order and repair and as a public park should be kept, I hereby in that event cancel the said gift and direct that the said lands shall revert to and form part of my estate." The town council accepted the gift, on the conditions of the will. In this action, brought in 1918, by the executor of the testator, to compel the defendants to perform the condition, or for a declaration that the title to the land had reverted to the estate, it was found that there had been a continuous breach of the condition, beginning mere than 10 years before action:—Held, that a judgment in the nature of a mandatory order could not be pronounced, for that would involve the assumption by the court of the obligation of superintending for all time to come the performance of continuous duties, in the performance of which the exercise of a certain amount of discretion must necessarily be allowed to the defendants—an obligation which the court does not assume. [Bickford v. Chatham, 16 Can. S. C.R. 235, followed.]

Where the term of office of a board of commissioners of sewers, appointed under c. 159, C.S.N.B. 1903, had expired between the date of argument of a motion for a mandamus against the board, to compel them to make an assessment upon certain marsh lands, and the date of judgment upon such motion, it was held that the writ might go against their successors in office.

(§ I D—28)—TO COMPEL MAYOR'S SIGNATURE—CONTRACT.

The mayor of a city cannot be compelled by mandamus to sign, in the name of the council, a contract whose exact wording has not been submitted for the approval of the council.

National Cartage & Supply Co. v. Belieu, 54 Que. S.C. 15.

(§ I D—29)—TO BOARD OF HEALTH.

Although a board of health appointed under the Ontario Public Health Act, R. S.O. 1897, c. 248, is not constituted a corporation, neither the board as a whole nor its members individually are to be held liable for the recovery of medical claims as for a private debt, but the remedy is to be sought against the board as a public body by the prerogative writ of mandamus requiring the board to issue an order upon the municipality for payment.

Rich v. Melancthon Board of Health, 2 B.L.R. 866, 26 O.L.R. 48, 21 O.W.R. 516.

(§ I D—30)—COURT OF REVISION — JUDICIAL BODY — WHEN MANDAMUS WILL LIE.

The Court of Revision (B.C.) is a judicial body and the Court of Appeal (B.C.) cannot review its proceedings in the sense of inquiring into the correctness of the courts' conclusions. If a mandamus will lie at all to the Court of Revision it will only lie when it is made to appear that the court has refused to hear and determine the complaint. [The Queen v. Dayman, 7 El. & Bl. 673, followed.]

(§ I D—31)—TO COMPEL CITY TO SUPPLY WATER.

The duty of a municipal corporation to supply water from its water supply is enforceable by mandamus; the remedy will be refused when the party seeking it refuses to pay the assessments therefor.

ILLEGAL DISMISSAL OF TAX OFFICER.

A municipality may be compelled by mandamus to restore one to the office of assistant assessor who has been dismissed without personal notice of the council meeting called to consider his dismissal.

The King v. Halifax; Re Stevens, 25 D. L.R. 113, 49 N.S.R. 289.

A mandamus to a municipal council should be directed to the corporate body and not to the individuals composing it, although it is proper to notify the individuals. [See also Re Bolton and Wentworth, 23 O.L.R. 390.] Where after a written demand had been made on it for funds for the maintenance of a continuation school by the chairman and secretary-treasurer of the school board, followed by a personal demand for the money by the chairman and other members of the school board but the council did nothing to fulfill its statutory obligation to furnish the money, this inaction is a sufficient refusal to indicate that it did not intend to do what was required, and a mandamus will lie to compel the council to supply the money. Mandamus will not lie against a municipal corporation at the instance of a school board where there has not been a sufficient demand for the providing of funds by the school board under the High Schools Act, 9 Edw. VII. (Ont.), c. 91, s. 38, but the application for the mandamus may be dismissed without prejudice to another application to be made after formal demand.

TO TOWN OFFICERS.

The right of mandamus to compel a municipal corporation to do a certain act is not accorded to taxpayers as such; and in order to establish ground for the claim accruing from the misfeasance of the corporation, it is not sufficient to shew that the plaintiff is a stockholder in a company affected by the misfeasance complained of, such not being equivalent to a private claim by the plaintiff himself.

Gourdeau v. Quebec, 13 Que. P.R. 388.

RESOLUTION—ENFORCEMENT.

A municipal corporation cannot be compelled by mandamus to execute and cause to be put in force a resolution of its council accepting a tender for certain public works. Laperriere v. Pierreville, 18 Que. P.R. 315.

(§ I D—37) — ASSESSMENT OF TAXES — COMPELLING REVIEW OF.

A mandamus should not be granted to review the confirmation of a property assessment by the municipal Court of Revision unless the court is satisfied that the decision of the lower court was not made bona fide or was not based upon matters which it could legally take into consideration.

TO COMPEL TAX LEVY.

Under s. 263 of Public Schools Act, R.S. M. 1902, c. 143, for the purpose of realizing on the execution placed in his hands, the sheriff caused the treasurer of a municipality to be served in 1906 with a precept to levy the necessary rate upon the lands situated in the defendant school district. Subsequently the treasurer resigned and B. was appointed treasurer. B. made out the general tax roll without including the levy. He said he had no knowledge of the proceedings against the municipality but admitted knowing of the judgment. He had been a member of the municipal council during 1906. On application for a mandamus to compel B. to levy the rate:—Held 1. That, as a member of the council, he should have had knowledge of the proceedings taken, and the plaintiffs were entitled to the order asked for, as the duties of the treasurer upon whom the precept had been served devolved upon his successor in the office. 2. That the inability of the treasurer to obey the mandamus for lack of some preliminary steps required by law to be attended to by other officers of the municipality, over whom he had no control, was not a sufficient answer to the application. [London & Canadian v. Morris (1893) 9 M.R. 377, followed.] On appeal:—Held, that the omission of the words "by rate" in the directions to the sheriff to levy imposed on the execution was fatal to the proceeding and that the application for a mandamus should be dismissed.

By 22 Vict. c. 8, s. 24 (1859) any candidate or elector dissatisfied with the decision of the presiding officer in any election for mayor, etc., in the city of Fredericton, may, within 10 days after the election, make application in writing through the city clerk to the council, setting forth the cause of complaint and demanding an investigation thereof; and by s. 11 of the amending Act, 26 Vict., c. 33 (1863) it is provided that no such petition shall be inquired into by the city council, unless within two hours after the declaration, a protest against the return be delivered to the presiding officer stating the grounds of the protest; and confines the inquiry to the grounds stated in the protest:—Held, on an application for a mandamus, that the city council was not justified in refusing to grant an investigation on a protest filed demanding a recount of the ballots cast, and assigning as a cause of complaint that certain ballots were accepted which were illegal in that they were not in accordance with the law relating to elections on the grounds that the council had no jurisdiction to hold a recount, and that there was no specific statement of grounds in the protest. The council cannot inquire into grounds stated in a petition praying for an investigation which have not been stated in the protest delivered under s. 11 of 26 Vict., c. 33.

(§ I F—54)—ELECTION — PERFORMANCE OF DUTY BY RETURNING OFFICER.

Mandamus will not lie, under s. 235 of

VII. c. 3, to compel a returning officer to open envelopes containing disputed ballots allowed by a court of enquiry, and add them to election returns, where he has properly added the votes cast, with the exception of the disputed ballots, as required by law; since his neglect to add the disputed ballots was not a wilful delay, neglect, or refusal to perform the duties imposed upon him by law; and adequate relief could be obtained on a recount before a District Court Judge. On a returning officer wilfully neglecting to add disputed votes allowed by a court of enquiry under the Alberta Elections Act, 9 Edw. VII. c. 3, though under a bona fide misapprehension of his duty, mandamus lies under s. 235 to compel him to do so; an appeal to a District Court judge or a recount by him not affording such other remedy as precludes relief by mandamus.

On an application by one of the candidates for a mandamus to a returning officer who had made formal return that the election was void, asking that the returning officer should be directed to return that the applicant was the duly elected candidate, the court, on finding no material on which to so order, will simply dismiss the application, and will not use the application as the means of issuing a mandamus to the returning officer to make return as to which of the candidates was elected as shewn by the only poll books which had been properly kept, where no such general direction had been applied for and the result of such a count would be adverse to the applicant.

one-half of the members thereof voting against them because they were determined not to permit the continuation school to be established.

(§ II A—75)—Where an inferior court decides a matter within its jurisdiction on a preliminary point without going into the merits, there is no real decision on the case, and mandamus will lie to compel a reconsideration, but it must be clear that the point upon which the decision rested was in reality preliminary and not one upon the merits. On an appeal to a Division Court under s. 749 (a) Cr. Code, from a conviction by a police magistrat, a decision by the Appellate Court allowing the appeal on the sole ground that the information on which the conviction was based was insufficient though this point was not raised before the magistrate, while it may be erroneous under s. 753, is nevertheless a decision on the merits and not on a matter preliminary, and hence mandamus will not lie to compel the Division Court to reopen the appeal.

MANDAMUS TO COMPEL HEARING OF APPEAL — AFFIDAVIT — BY WHOM MADE.

One M. laid an information before two justices of the peace against one E. alleging an improper dismissal from E.'s employment, contrary to R.S.S. (1909), c. 149, s. 3, subs. 2. The justices having made an order against E. he appealed to the judge of the District Court. When the appeal was called, objection was taken by counsel for M. that the money paid to the justices as security pursuant to Cr. Code, s. 750 (c), had not been paid into court by the justices, and thereupon the judge dismissed the appeal with costs. The present application was made on behalf of E. for a writ of mandamus directed to the said judge to set aside the order of dismissal and directing him to hear the appeal. The application was supported by an affidavit of E.'s solicitor, but there was no affidavit of E. himself:—Held (1) that the word "prosecutor" in Crown Practice r. 25 means the applicant for a writ of mandamus; (2) that an affidavit in support of a writ of mandamus must be made by the applicant himself, and must shew that he has a real interest in the subject-matter; (3) that the filing of such affidavit is a condition precedent to the granting of the writ, and that this omission was more than a mere irregularity, and that leave should not on this application be granted to file an affidavit of the applicant.

A public market is one to which any person whosever may bring and offer for sale marketable articles subject only to municipal and police regulations. An aggregation of private stalls does not constitute a public market so long as the individual tenants only may carry on their trade therein.

MARKING OF GOODS.

GOLD AND SILVER.

It is an offence under the Gold and Silver Marking Act, 1908 (Can.), to have in possession with intent to sell the same, rings marked as of 9 karat gold unless nine twenty-fourths of the weight of the ring, including that of the cement inclosed in the inner part of the ring, is of gold; and the nine twenty-fourths proportion does not apply to the gold and alloy only in the article but to all that part of the article which has the appearance of and is likely to be the subject of fraudulent sales on the representation that it is throughout of the quality indicated by the mark.

(§ 1—2)—LEGISLATIVE POWER OVER.

Section 92 of the B.N.A. Act, which enacts that the legislature of each province may exclusively make laws relating to matters within an enumerated class, among them being "property and civil rights," "solemnization of marriage," and "generally matters of a local or private nature in the province," operates by way of an exception to the powers conferred by subs. 16 of s. 91 of the Act as regards "marriage," and the provincial legislatures therefore have jurisdiction to enact conditions as to solemnization which may affect the validity of the marriage contract.

The law of the Province of Quebec governing marriage does not render null and void, unless contracted before a Roman Catholic priest, a marriage that would be otherwise legally binding, which takes place in such province between persons, who are both Roman Catholics, or, between persons one of whom only is a Roman Catholic.

Re Marriage Laws, 6 D.L.R. 588, 46 Can. S.C.R. 132.

The provisions of the Manitoba Marriage Act, 5 & 6 Edw. VII. c. 41, validating (under the limitations of s. 30) all marriages after two years between persons not under legal disqualification notwithstanding irregularities, "so far as respects the civil rights in Manitoba of the parties or their issue, and in respect of all matters within the jurisdiction of the Legislature of Manitoba," apply to persons whether married within the province or in foreign countries.

II. Mode or form; validity generally.

(§ II—5)—FORM OF — CELEBRATION DE FACTO—VALIDITY.

Except in cases of bigamy and actions for criminal conversation there is a strong presumption in favour of the validity of a marriage proved to have been celebrated de facto.

(§ II—6)—VALIDITY OF FORM.

A marriage of two Roman Catholics performed by a Protestant minister of the Methodist Church, under the authority of a license, sealed with the great seal of the Province of Quebec and signed by the Lieutenant-Governor of that Province authorizing the omission of a previous publication of the banns, as permitted by arts. 59, 59a, C.C. (Que.), was declared to be valid and binding in law in proceedings by opposition in a civil action in the Province of Quebec brought by the man to declare its invalidity in conformity with an ecclesiastical decree made by the Roman Catholic Archbishop of Montreal declaring the marriage null and void upon the ground that the Methodist minister was incompetent to perform the marriage in view of a decree known as the Ne Temere Decree proclaimed by the congregation of the council of the Roman Catholic Church that only those marriages of Roman Catholics could be valid which had been contracted before the curé of the place, where in such civil action the court maintained her claim made upon an opposition on her own behalf and upon a tierce-opposition in her capacity of tutrix to her minor child to vacate the default judgment entered therein upon the husband's claim on the ground of fraud and undue influence. [Laramée v. Evans (upon demurrer), 24 L.C.J. 235 (on the merits), 25 L.C.J. 261, not followed.]

Hébert v. Cloutière, 6 D.L.R. 411, 41 Que. S.C. 249, 10 E.L.R. 335. [Reversed on other grounds 15 D.L.R. 498, 16 Que. P.R. 29.]

(§ II-9)—FOREIGN MARRIAGE.

An agreement to marry, followed by cohabitation which constitutes a valid marriage in a foreign country where it was made by two residents of Ontario not forbidden by the law of that province to enter into such contract will be recognized as a valid marriage in Ontario.

Forbes v. Forbes, 3 D.L.R. 243, 3 O.W.N. 557, 20 O.W.R. 924.

On a prosecution for bigamy the admission of his first marriage made by the accused after his arrest, and the testimony of witnesses to that marriage which took place in a foreign country affirming that the same took place in the ecclesiastical form usual there, and was followed by cohabitation of the parties, will, if believed, be sufficient proof of the first marriage to support a conviction without expert evidence of the foreign marriage law.

The King v. Naoum, 19 Can. Cr. Cas. 102, 24 O.L.R. 306.

MARRIAGE IN FOREIGN COUNTRY—INTENTION TO LIVE IN QUEBEC—PRESUMPTION.

A plan made by an intended husband and wife, living in a foreign country, to come and live in the Province of Quebec after their marriage which plan also was carried out, cannot, by itself, be construed to establish a presumption of their intention to be governed, as to their matrimonial conventions, by the laws of Quebec.

Lachance v. Leboeuf, 46 Que. S.C. 421.

(§ II-11)—PRESUMPTION OF MARRIAGE.

Where a man and woman have cohabited for such a length of time and in such circumstances as to have acquired the reputation of being man and wife, a lawful marriage between them will be presumed, although there may be no positive evidence of any marriage having taken place; and the presumption can be rebutted only by strong and weighty evidence to the contrary.

Johnston v. Hazen, 43 N.B.R. 154.

III. Capacity of parties; who may marry.

(§ III-20)—DECEASED BROTHER'S WIFE—DEATH—ACTION.

Marriage between a man and his deceased brother's wife is not permitted and although the different churches and religious communities have retained the right they were enjoying at the time of the coming into force of C.C. (Que.), of granting dispensation from impediments to marriage, under art. 127, C.C. (Que.), they cannot grant such dispensation in the cases prohibited by art. 125. However, a marriage, which is null according to the terms of art. 125, may have civil effects if contracted in good faith by all the parties thereto. A widow who marries her deceased husband's brother has a right of action for the death, by accident, of her second husband.

Denaut v. Mansfield and Pontefract, 54 Que. S.C. 499.

(§ III-21)—INFANTS.

A judge has no authority to homologate the advice of a family council, naming a tutor ad hoc with authorization to grant his consent to the marriage of a minor because her father being dead, her mother refuses her consent to said marriage.

Ex parte Beland, 15 Que. P.R. 19.

INFANTS.

An angry exclamation by a mother to her son, on hearing of his marriage, "You had better go and live with your wife!" is no evidence of her consent to the marriage.

Hagen v. Stewart, 44 Que. S.C. 121.

(§ III-27)—CONSANGUINITY OR AFFINITY—CAPACITY TO MARRY.

Kinship, under canon law, between the third and the fourth degree in collateral line, between Catholics, creates an invalidating impediment to their marriage, and the absence of a valid dispensation renders such marriage null in law, and, in the circumstances, the court will give civil effect to the decree of the bishop of the diocese annulling such marriage.

Manegre v. Laferriere, 18 Rev. de Jur. 405.

The C.C. Quebec, independently of and in addition to the absolute invalidating impediments decreed in arts. 124, 125, 126 of the Code, recognizes equally, in art. 127, all other acknowledged impediments, at the time of the promulgation of the marriage, in accordance with the different religious beliefs, whether due to consanguinity or affinity, subject to the right of dispensation under such causes as formerly existed in the different churches and religious societies; and kinship between the third and the fourth degree in collateral line constitutes, under canon law, between Catholics, an invalidating impediment to such marriage, and, in the absence of a dispensation from a competent ecclesiastical authority, such marriage is null in law; and it is the duty of the courts to ratify the impediments recognized at the time of the promulgation of the C.C. by the different religious bodies whether owing to consanguinity or affinity or due to other causes; in the circumstances, when a marriage, between Catholics, has been annulled by the bishop of the diocese, the court in sustaining an action to annul such marriage can only ratify and give civil effect to the decree issued under Episcopal authority.

Laberge v. Lauzon, 18 Rev. de Jur. 407.

IV. Annulment generally; termination.

(§ IV-45)—JURISDICTION—MARRIAGE ACT, R.S.O. 1914, c. 148—RIGHT OF ATTORNEY-GENERAL TO INTERVENE.

Because of the right to intervene given to the Att'y-Gen'l of Ontario by the Marriage Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 148, in actions to annul certain irregular marriages, the Att'y-Gen'l has a status to make a preliminary application to dismiss or stay the action on the ground that the case disclosed by the plaintiff's pleading is not within the statutory provision for annulment and that the court would therefore have no jurisdiction to entertain it.

CONSANGUINITY—QUEBEC LAW.

Article 152 C.C. (Que.) is not exhaustive of the causes making null a marriage and, in addition to those enumerated in arts. 124-6 referred to in art. 152, art. 127, provides for others resulting from consanguinity, affinity and other causes which remain subject to the rules followed, up to the promulgation of the Code, in the various churches and religious bodies. Therefore, Roman Catholic consorts who, at the time of their marriage, were related in the fourth degree of the collateral line, are entitled to maintain an action to annul the marriage on establishing that the Roman Catholic Church makes such relationship an absolute bar to marriage. The possession of status of a married person and production of the marriage certificate is not a ground for dismissal of an action brought by one of the consorts to annul the marriage, but only for dismissal of a motion to declare the certificate a nullity.

Tremblay v. Despatie, 43 Que. S.C. 59, affirming 40 Que. S.C. 429.

(§ IV-50)—ANNULMENT DECREE—ABANDONMENT—QUEBEC MARRIAGE LAWS.

It is not against public policy to permit a husband who has obtained a default judgment declaring his marriage annulled, to formally abandon the decree on its being attacked in opposition proceedings alleging fraud, undue influence, and threats by the husband and others which had induced the wife not to defend the action.

Hobert v. Cloutre, 15 D.L.R. 498, 45 Que. S.C. 239, 16 Que. P.R. 29, reversing, on other grounds, 6 D.L.R. 411, 41 Que. S.C. 241.

(§ IV-55)—PROHIBITED DEGREES OF CONSANGUINITY—EFFECT OF DEATH.

The validity of a marriage voidable on the ground that the parties were within the prohibited degrees of consanguinity, such as uncle and niece, can only be questioned during the lifetime of both parties, and cannot be attacked by the next of kin of the deceased spouse. (§ IV-56)—PHYSICAL INCAPACITY.

The High Court of Justice for Ontario has no jurisdiction to entertain an action to have a marriage declared invalid by reason of the alleged physical incapacity to consummate the same on the part of one of the parties thereto.

(§ IV-57)—ANNULMENT—AGE—FALSE AFFIDAVITS—PARENTAL CONSENT.

Neither absence of the consent by parents required by statute, nor a false affidavit by the husband made to procure the license to marry, nor false statements by the parties to the celebrating clergyman made to induce him to perform the ceremony, invalidate a marriage. The policy of the law is not to invalidate marriages because of irregularities leading to them.

Harris v. Meyers, 30 D.L.R. 26, 50 N.S.R. 112.

The consent to the marriage of a person under 18 required by s. 15 of the Marriage Act (R.S.O. 1914, c. 148) is not a condition precedent to the validity of the marriage. Ont. Stats. 1919, c. 36, makes written consent an absolute necessity.

INFANCY—LACK OF PARENT'S CONSENT.

Under the law of Alberta an action does not lie either by the girl's parent or by herself to annul her marriage at the age of 16 under a marriage license obtained by the husband on a false and fraudulent affidavit as to her age and a ceremony performed without the parent's consent, and this although the marriage had never been consummated.

Burns v. Hills, 22 D.L.R. 74.

WANT OF PATERNAL CONSENT—JURISDICTION OF COURT TO ANNUL.

The Supreme Court of Alberta has no jurisdiction to declare a marriage null and void by reason of the want of the consent thereto of the father of one of the parties.

Notwithstanding the words, "The father, if living, of any person under 21 years of age . . . shall have authority to give consent to such marriage," a marriage between an infant and an adult without the consent of the father of the former is valid, the quoted words being merely directory. Consent under s. 11 of the Marriage Ordinance is a condition precedent to the grant of a marriage license, but not to the marriage and failure to obtain such consent does not render the marriage void. B. v. M., 7 W.W.R. 1197, 8 W.W.R. 110.

ANNULMENT OF MARRIAGE—INFANCY.

A father who takes an action to have the marriage of his minor son annulled, on the ground that it was contracted without his consent, has the right to continue his action even if his son becomes of age pending the suit.

Guttman v. Goodman, 26 Que. K.B. 270.

INFANCY.

The marriage of the minor son of a widow, without her consent, is annulable, at her instance, by action brought within 6 months of her becoming aware of it. Conception by the wife within 6 months of the marriage affords no ground of defence to such an action, art. 153 C.C. (Que.) having reference to art. 115, but not to arts. 119, 120.

McIntyre v. Gental, 13 O.W.N. 309.

(§ IV—58)—DEGREE OF INSANITY AS GROUND OF ANNULMENT—GENERAL PARENSIS.

The degree of insanity as ground for annulment of a marriage need not necessarily be that of interdiction or established by medical authority: a person affected with general paresis at the time of the marriage, the circumstances pointing to the abnormal exercise of his ordinary mental faculties and his general inability to realize the nature and consequences of his acts, is not legally capable of giving a valid consent necessary for the formation of a valid marriage.

(§ IV—59)—ANNULMENT—PRIOR MARRIAGE.

A prior valid marriage, which has not been legally dissolved, existing at the time a marriage is contracted, renders the second marriage void and it will be annulled by the court.

Shackleton v. Edmondson, 30 D.L.R. 577.

OTHER EXISTING MARRIAGE.

A marriage will not be held invalid upon an agreement between the parties filed in the action that the pretended marriage between them should be adjudged and declared a nullity on the grounds set forth in the plaintiff's statement of claim, that she was induced to go through a marriage ceremony with the defendant on the false representations that he had obtained a divorce from a woman to whom he had been formerly married.

(§ I—5)—INSURANCE FUNDS—MORTGAGEES—ASSIGNEE.

Where a first mortgagee has a claim against two mortgage funds upon the mortgage premises, which funds belong respectively to different persons, and a second mortgagee has a claim against one only of the funds, the court, at the suit of the second mortgagee, will not apply the equitable principle of marshalling assets to the prejudice of the dominant creditor, the debtors or their assigns, so as to compel the first mortgagee to satisfy his claim out of one of the funds only, but the claim of the first mortgagee will be charged rateably against both funds. Where in case of loss the insurance upon certain property is, by the terms of the policy, payable in the first place to a first mortgagee, and, secondly, to a second mortgagee, and executions have been registered before the second mortgage was made, the first mortgagee has a right by statute (Mortgagee's Act, R.S.O. 1914, ch. 112, sec. 6, subs. 3) to apply all the insurance money to the satisfaction of his mortgage, and cannot be compelled to take part of his claim from the proceeds of the sale of the remaining mortgaged property, so as to leave a portion of the insurance money to the second mortgagee.

Though there may be serious doubts as to whether or not a painter who has sustained a fall in working on a house for so much per hour is entitled to sue under the Act respecting accidents to workmen, his application for leave to sue will not be dismissed in limine.

(§ I B-8)—UNDER SUPERVISION OF ENGINEERS—FIXED SCALE.

A man who agrees to do work on a fixed scale of prices at so much per yard, etc., or furnishes materials and work at so much per foot under the supervision of engineers, surveyors, etc., is not a builder nor even a subcontractor within the meaning of art. 1688 C.C. (Que.); he is merely a workman.

Stilwell-Bierce v. Lyall, 3 D.L.R. 369.

C. COMPENSATION; WAGES.

Price of work not agreed, reasonable price, see Contracts, II D-190.

(§ I C-10)—WAGES.

Where the statute (R.S.C., c. 113) fixed the salary of a harbour master, whom the Crown could dismiss at any time, "at the rate of" $600 per annum, and provided that he should, on December 31 of each year, pay to the Crown all harbour fees collected during the year, less his compensation, and that if the amount of fees should be less than $600, the lesser amount would constitute his salary, he can, upon his discharge after serving the first month of a year, retain as remuneration $50 only, the proportionate share of his annual salary he had actually earned, and not $229 in fees collected during the previous month, as his compensation will be determined by the contract of employment, and not by the manner and time of accounting for the fees received by him.

The King v. McLeod, 4 D.L.R. 491, 17 B.C.R. 189, 21 W.L.R. 517, 804, 2 W.W.R. 578.

COMPENSATION — SUPERINTENDENT — COMMISSION ON SAVINGS IN COST—CHEAPENING WORK.

One employed to superintend the construction of a waterworks system for a municipality who, in addition to a fixed allowance, was to receive a commission on any saving effected by him from the estimated cost, may be refused any commission where he permitted material deviations from the original plans to such an extent that, while the initial cost was cheapened, the municipality would have to spend a sum in excess of the difference to place the system upon an efficient basis conformable to the original plans. The expenses of preliminary advertising, searching of titles, preparing and registering right-of-way plans, and of making a final examination of the work on completion are presumably not included in the item of "contingencies 10 per cent" included in the estimate of the cost of a public work supplied by the engineer of a municipality and which formed the basis of an agreement for the latter's remuneration.

CONTRACT OF EMPLOYMENT—AUTHORITY OF FOREMAN.

A railway company is not liable to an employee as for breach of an agreement by its foreman to allow such employee, as pay for his services and in addition to per diem wages, to cut hay growing on the company's premises, where the wages proper agreed upon were at the maximum rate which the foreman, who employed him, was authorized to allow, and where there was no shewing that the foreman was authorized to bind the company by the agreement respecting the hay, though it was his duty to see that the hay was removed.

WRONGFUL DISCHARGE — MEASURE OF DAMAGES—MITIGATION.

In an action for breach of contract by the master, profits derived by the servant out of the employer's business which he could not have earned if the contract had been performed should be deducted from the damages.

Cockburn v. Trusts & Guarantee Co., 37 D.L.R. 701, 55 Can. S.C.R. 264, affirming 33 D.L.R. 159, 38 O.L.R. 396, reversing 32 D.L.R. 451, 37 O.L.R. 488.

CONTRACT FOR FIRST YEAR'S SERVICES—NO DEFINITE CONTRACT FOR SECOND—TERMINATION BY EMPLOYEE ON MONTH'S NOTICE — WAGES — RIGHTS OF PARTIES — CONSTRUCTION OF CONTRACT.

Haber v. Buttery, 46 D.L.R. 681.

WAGES ON WRONGFUL DISCHARGE.

A servant who has been wrongfully dismissed may recover against the master on a quantum meruit for the services rendered, although the contract of hiring did not comply with the Statute of Frauds inasmuch as it was not to be performed within a year of the making thereof. [Rose v. Winters, 4 Terr. L.R. 353, followed.]

SERVICES WITHOUT SPECIFIC CONTRACT — QUANTUM MERUIT.

Where the court finds that there was no concluded agreement of hiring for the specific length of time contended for by the employer, as the employee had never understood that the hiring was for such term, nor assented thereto and the agreement was not in writing, the employee will be entitled to recover upon a quantum meruit for the services he had rendered.

EMPLOYEE SHARING "NET PROFITS"—MONTHLY ACCOUNTING—SCOPE OF—MONTHLY "NET LOSS," HOW BORNE—MEANING OF GOODWILL.

Under a contract of employment whereby the employee was to have one-half of the "net profits of the business after deducting all rents, advertisements and other expenses" with an accounting each month, the cost of getting the goods in and of repairs and alterations of the store premises, may, in the absence of any intention shewn to the contrary, be charged against the month in which they were incurred, although their main advantage was to follow in later months; and, semble, under such an agreement each month's business must stand by itself and only net profits for the month divided, the employer alone standing the losses in months in which no profit was made. The "fraud" which in the terms of the Master and Servant Act, 10 Edw. VII. c. 73, s. 3, must be shewn in order to impeach a statement or return made by an employer of the net profits a share in which he had contracted to give his employee by way of remuneration for his services, must involve dishonesty; mere mistake is not enough. [Ex parte Watson, 21 Q.B.D. 301, applied.] A right of an employee to a stated share in the "net profits" of the business under the terms of his contract of employment does not entitle him to share in what his employer received on selling out for the goodwill of the business. ILLNESS OF SERVANT—RIGHT TO WAGES.

A head waiter in a hotel is as a servant entitled to his wages or salary during absence through temporary illness, provided that the contract of service remains in existence during that time, and that he is ready and willing to carry out his duties save for the incapacity produced by the illness; but the illness of the servant may so go to the root of the consideration as to justify the master in rescinding the contract.

REMUNERATION BASED ON "NET PROFITS."

Where a contract of hiring depends entirely on the "net profits" realized from sales which the employee has been directly or indirectly instrumental in making, the court will not be astute to deprive the employee of such profits where it seems reasonably clear that they have been earned, and in determining the "net profits" a just proportion of the overhead charges of the business should be allocated to that quantum of business done in which the employee is to participate.

PER DIEM CHARGE—AGREEMENT.

Where at the time of the hiring the person hired told the employer what the per diem charge would be for the service, that should be the basis of compensation as constituting an agreement to pay that amount and not merely a quantum meruit, where the service was accepted and no variation of such compensation was discussed.

Bain v. Cochana, 23 D.L.R. 619.

ACCOUNTING AS CONDITION PRECEDENT TO RECOVERY.

A manager, who on receipt of a notice of dismissal delivers to his employer his books and everything which has been entrusted to him, is not obliged to render an account, when not demanded by the employer, before suing for his salary.

CHANGE OF SALARY—EFFECT—DISMISSAL.

Where, during the employment, the salary of the employee is changed from a fixed salary of $125 per month with a commission of 10 per cent to a sole commission of 20 per cent the contract of hire itself is not affected and remains in force. The employer is bound to pay to his employee the agreed salary, whether he is satisfied or not with his services, as long as he does not choose to put an end to the contract.

—PREFERENTIAL CLAIM—QUE C.C. 1233, 1994, 2006—R.S.C. 1906 c. 144, s. 70.

A yearly engagement of a clerk by a merchant can be proved by parol evidence. This engagement can also be shown by the execution of the contract between the parties. Clerks have a preferential claim upon goods which are found in their employer's shop, for a period not exceeding 3 months.

Abeles v. Turgeon, 23 Que. K.B. 533.

TRAVELING SALESMAN—COMMISSIONS.

A manufacturer employing a traveler to be paid by commission for the sale of certain products, who afterwards, by agreement with the traveler, changes his business and the commission payable but retains the services of the latter, thereby tacitly agrees that the contract made between them shall continue on the same conditions except as to the modifications agreed upon. A provision in the contract that the traveling agent will be the only representative for a certain town does not give him the exclusive right of sale. If the agent cannot cover this territory within a reasonable time, the employer may, without violating his contract, employ another agent to cover the ground which the first was unable to cover within the time.

Picher v. Marceau, 51 Que. S.C. 305.

Where a traveling salesman is employed on the basis of a commission payable on sales that are ratified, the goods delivered and the price paid, and the employer reserves the right to cancel sales made to customers whose former debts were not paid at maturity, the salesman cannot demand any commission on such sales, nor upon sales lost by the insolvency of the purchaser, even after the extended time agreed to by the employer, unless he prove that it was by the gross negligence on the employer's part that the latter was not paid by these customers.

UNDER RAILWAY CONTRACT.

Debts owing to workmen employed on the works of construction of a railway become the personal debts of the company owning the railway, where the company has made payments to the contractors after having received notice of the claims of the workmen; and no distinction can be made between those workmen who were employed by the principal contractor and those who were employed by subcontractors.

Rheume v. St. Charles & Huron R. Co., 50 Que. S.C. 112.

Where the plaintiff contracted to work for the entire season and left without cause before the end of the season, yet, as the wages were reserved monthly, he was entitled to recover for the time he worked. While the contract might be susceptible of a construction that the wages were not to be paid until the end of the season, yet the form of the defendant's defence in alleging that "the defendant agreed to employ the plaintiff" for the season "at $35 per month" precluded the defendant from now contending that the contract was otherwise than as so alleged.

Grant v. Bradley, 4 S.L.R. 505.

SPECIAL SERVICES — NURSING — PRESCRIPTION.

A sister employed as housekeeper by her bachelor brother, at a yearly salary, who has served him as nurse during his illness, thereby renders special services, and is entitled to extra compensation. The prescription of a year in art. 2262 C.C. (Que.) does not apply to such claim.

Silver v. Standard Gold Mines, 3 D.L.R. 103.

(§ I C—13)—WHERE SERVANT LEAVES BEFORE CONTRACT PERFORMED.

A contract for service contains an implied condition that if faithful service is not rendered the master may elect to determine the contract, and where that right is properly exercised by the master during the currency of the servant's salary, the servant has no remedy, that is to say, he cannot recover salary which is not due and payable at the time of his dismissal, but which is only to accrue due and become payable at some later date, and on condition that he had fulfilled his duty as a faithful servant down to that later date.

RIGHT TO WAGES UPON LEAVING EMPLOYMENT — JUST CAUSE — INFERIORITY OF FOOD.

Inferiority in the quality of food for which no reasonable opportunity to remedy the complaint is given by the servant to the master does not constitute a just cause for leaving the employment so as to entitle the servant to a recovery of wages for the unexpired term of employment.

(§ I E—20)—TERM OF EMPLOYMENT—CONCURRENT AGREEMENTS.

Where a contract of employment provides for an annual salary for 3 years, with a clause that the term of employment is to run "concurrently with the term of a certain agreement," which was for 21 years, terminable at the end of 7 years, the term of hiring must be deemed to be governed by the latter clause.

HIRE OF SERVICES—COMMERCIAL TRAVELER—ANNUAL ENGAGEMENT—DISMISSAL OF SERVICE—C.C. ARTS. 1642, 1667.

In default of proof to the contrary, when the salary of a commercial traveler is fixed at so much a year, and it has been thus entered in the books of his employer, the engagement is for a year; the fact that the salary is payable in monthly payments does not change the duration of the engagement. The quietness of business, not due to the fault of the employee, is not a justifiable cause for his dismissal. In this case of an engagement for a year, the burden of proof of breach of the contract by the employee, or the mutual consent pleaded by the employer, is upon the latter. If an employer suspends the work of his employee for two months, with the promise to take him back to his position after the lapse of that time, the latter is free to look for work elsewhere, and this step can be considered as an abandonment of his engagement.

Walters v. Dumontier, 25 Rev. Leg. 1.

ANNUAL CONTRACT—EFFECT ON BY INCREASE IN SALARY.

A contract for the hire of services of a manager a salary of $2,700 a year payable in 12 monthly payments is a contract for one year. Nor is such contract annulled by the fact that the salary had been increased during the year.

Gallagher v. Confer, 48 Que. S.C. 302.

HIRING OF SALESMAN FOR DEFINED TERRITORY ON SALARY AND COMMISSION—BREACH OF AGREEMENT.

Grocock v. Allen, 5 O.W.N. 340, 25 O.W. R. 304.

(§ I E—21)—RIGHT TO DISCHARGE—DISREGARD OF INSTRUCTIONS.

An employer is justified in discharging, without notice, a traveling salesman employed by him where it appears that the salesman disregarded instructions to keep in communication with the employer, and failed to travel with his trunks, in spite of instructions from his employer that this was absolutely essential, notwithstanding that the contract of employment provided that it was terminable by either party by giving a month's notice.

Braden v. Reid, 9 D.L.R. 668.

REFUSAL TO WORK — DISCHARGE — VILE NAMES—CONDONATION.

Refusal on the part of a servant to perform the duties for which he was hired gives the master the right to dismiss him, but does not justify the master in insulting him by calling him vile names. The servant does not necessarily condone the offence because he does not leave the employ immediately, especially if the offence is again committed after a few days, after which the servant does leave the employ.

Berg v. Cowie, 40 D.L.R. 250.

NOTICE—MISCONDUCT.

The period of notice stipulated in a contract of employment or the proportionate remuneration in lieu thereof, in the event of a termination of the relationship upon a failure to carry out the duties in accordance with the contract, does not affect the master's right of dismissal without remuneration for any misconduct or a wilful breach of duty.

ILL HEALTH OF SERVANT—REFUSAL TO WORK—DISMISSAL NOT JUSTIFIED.

A master is not justified in dismissing a servant for refusal to obey an order to do certain work if the state of the servant's health is such that he is not fit to do the work.

Michaud v. Stroobants, [1919] 3 W.W.R. 46.

(§ I E—22)—GROUND FOR DISCHARGE—DISOBEDIENCE OF UNREASONABLE ORDER.

In order to justify the dismissal of a servant by his master on the ground that the servant disobeyed the orders of the master, it must appear that there was, on the part of the servant, wilful disobedience to the lawful and reasonable order of the master, and this fact is not established merely because the servant refused to answer a general call of the master to his servants to assist in loading a wagon where it appears that the servant honestly believed that his services were not required at that moment because he thought there were sufficient men answering the call to accomplish the master's object.

ABSENCE WITHOUT LEAVE—MISCONDUCT—DISMISSAL—JUSTIFICATION.

A servant who absents himself from work without leave for two weeks and three days is guilty of misconduct justifying dismissal unless he can satisfy the burden which is on him of proving that he had leave to go on this vacation.

GROUNDS FOR DISMISSAL.

No wrongful dismissal of an employee hired to travel for his employers and to assist their local agents in selling goods, is shown where the reason for the dismissal was the employee's receipt of a bonus from the agents for his assistance to them.

Tebb v. Baird; Tebb v. Hoberlin; Hoberlin v. Tebb, 3 D.L.R. 161, 3 O.W.N. 952.

GROUNDS FOR DISCHARGE OF EMPLOYEE.

There is no absolute legal rule as to what is a justification for the dismissal of an employee before his term of employment has expired; each case must stand on its own merits; lack of executive ability resulting in great financial loss to a company is sufficient to justify the dismissal of their general works manager.

Bashford v. Provincial Steel Co., 10 D.L.R. 187, 4 O.W.N. 1019, 49 C.L.J. 336, 24 O.W.R. 334.

GROUNDS FOR DISCHARGE—DISSATISFACTION WITH RESULTS—MISCONDUCT—INCOMPETENCY.

Where, under a written contract of hiring the defendants employed the plaintiff as traveling salesman at a fixed salary and commission for one year certain, the hiring to be extended for another year if defendants were satisfied with the results, but there was not expressly reserved any right of dismissal for mere dissatisfaction within the first year; and where, under such agreement the plaintiff acted faithfully, pursuant to instructions, but because of want of results the defendants before the expiry of the first year became dissatisfied and upon that ground alone dismissed the plaintiff; such dismissal was wrongful in the absence of misconduct or incompetence on plaintiff's part.

Carveth v. R. Asbestos Packing Co., 9 D.L.R. 631, 4 O.W.N. 872, 24 O.W.R. 151.

GROUNDS—INSUBORDINATION.
A servant may be summarily dismissed if he is insulting and insubordinate to such a degree as to be incompatible with the continuance of the relation of master and servant.

GROUNDS—DISOBEDIENCE OF INSTRUCTIONS—DISPOSITION OF BANK FUNDS.

A disregard by a manager of his master's instructions as to the disposition of bank funds, over which the manager has a power of attorney, amounts to a misconduct which will justify his dismissal by the master.

MUNICIPAL EMPLOYEE—GROUND FOR DISMISSAL.

The refusal of a municipal employee to discontinue living in apparent open adultery when threatened with dismissal if he continued, is sufficient to justify such dismissal.

TERM—IMPLIED RENEWAL—MUNICIPAL EMPLOYEE.

The engagement by a municipal corporation, for the term of a year, of a civil engineer charged with the superintendence of public works, is a contract of hire of services susceptible of continuing by tacit renewal. In order that there may be a tacit renewal it is not sufficient that the employee continue his services after the term ended, but the services so continued must be with the tacit consent of the employer.

Lessard v. Levis, 54 Que. S.C. 139.

TERM OF EMPLOYMENT—DISMISSAL—SALARY—DAMAGES.

By-laws adopted by a joint stock company, which order that the annual meeting of shareholders shall take place the first of February for the election of directors, and that the manager shall be chosen from among the directors, at their first meeting, establish that the engagement of the manager is by the year. A dismissed employee has not the right to sue for his future salary; he can only claim what is due. He ought, under the circumstances, to bring his action in the form of an action for damages, which are usually the amount of the salary which he should have received, less what he has earned or might earn.

Malherbe v. Orkin, 54 Que. S.C. 274.

WRONGFUL DISMISSAL—REMEDY—WAGES—DAMAGES.

An employee dismissed before the termination of his engagement, without sufficient reason, has not only a right of action, but also a right to sue for wages due. It is for the employer to prove the wages or damages of the employee.

Marchand v. Jean, 54 Que. S.C. 279, 24 Rev. de Jur. 492.

DISMISSAL—DISOBEDIENCE TO ORDERS.

(§ I E—23)—LIABILITY FOR WRONGFUL DISCHARGE.

The defendant employed the plaintiff under a written agreement in the following terms: "As a draughtsman and generally in survey work for 3 months or until the drafting and survey work in connection with a certain contract to survey certain C.N.P. R. Co.'s rights of way held by the employer, at $165 per month, and thereafter to complete a term of 3 years from the date of this agreement in the said employment at the rate of $125 per month." Plaintiff worked under the $165 wage for 9½ months, when the defendant told him that the contract with the C.N.P. Ry. was completed and he (plaintiff) would in future work under the $125 wage. The facts were that, although the defendant had been paid in full for his work under the contract, the drafting had not been completed. On the following day the defendant asked the plaintiff to make certain changes in this drafting, which plaintiff refused to do under the $125 wage. He was dismissed:—Held, that there was a breach of contract and that the measure of damages be $165 per month from the date of plaintiff's discharge to the time of his new employment.

WRONGFUL DISCHARGE — HINDERING PERFORMANCE OF DUTIES.

A company having engaged a general manager is liable in damages for breach of the contract of employment, if during the currency of the term, by resolution of the directors, it materially lessens his authority under the contract and makes it impossible for him to discharge his duties thereunder.

Montreal Public Service Co. v. Champagne, 33 D.L.R. 49.

WRONGFUL DISMISSAL—EMPLOYEE OF MUNICIPALITY—WAGES FIXED BY DAY—NOTICE — LIABILITY — RURAL MUNICIPALITIES ACT, s. 148.

A superintendent of road work in a municipality is regarded as a municipal officer, and may be dismissed at the pleasure of the municipal council. This superintendent being hired at so much per day, cannot claim notice; neither can reimbursement for any moneys paid out be claimed except such expenses as were authorized by the municipality.

Stonehenge v. Dickenson, 50 D.L.R. 383, [1920] 1 W.W.R. 235.

An engineer engaged to superintend or manage a mine is entitled to employ a secretary to look after the routine business, correspondence, etc., and generally to use his discretion as to the manner in which he shall discharge his duties, and unless a clear abuse of such discretion is shown, his employer cannot dismiss him before the term of his engagement.

WRONGFUL DISMISSAL—GROUNDS UNDISCLOSED.

In an action by an employee against an employer for damages for wrongful dismissal, the employer may justify the dismissal on grounds never disclosed to the servant, and even on grounds that the master did not know about at the time of the dismissal.

LIABILITY FOR WRONGFUL DISCHARGE—EFFECT OF RECOVERY FOR PORTION OF TIME UNEMPLOYED — ESTOPPEL — RES JUDICATA.

The recovery by a servant of wages for the month following his wrongful dismissal from a yearly hiring, estops the parties from asserting that he was not entitled to the amount recovered qua wages, and also negatives a contention that the wrongful discharge applied to that month; therefore the wrongful dismissal will not take effect until the following month, when the servant may recover damages therefor for the balance of the term of his employment.

Hayes v. Harshaw, 18 D.L.R. 619, 30 O.L.R. 157.

WRONGFUL DISMISSAL—ELECTION OF REMEDIES.

Gregory v. Williams, 30 D.L.R. 279, 44 N.B.R. 204.

The contract for hire of personal services may be continued by tacit renewal. The employee hired for 1 year, at a salary payable by the week with an agreement for 1 month's notice by either party to terminate the engagement, if dismissed without notice has a right of action against his employer for the amount of his salary for four weeks.

Choquette v. Paquette Co., 42 Que. S.C. 204.

When a contract which can be validly proved by oral evidence is made in writing oral testimony of variations made to it by the parties is admissible. An employee engaged for a term and dismissed without cause before its expiration has a right of action against the hirer of his services to recover the stipulated salary as its instalments fall due.

Charbonneau v. Publishers' Press, 42 Que. S.C. 97.

GROUNDS FOR DISCHARGE—THEFT—INJURIOUS WORDS.

An employer, who in unusual circumstances finds something belonging to him in the possession of his employee, the latter attempting to excuse himself by alleging a mistake, evidently ill founded, has probable cause for believing that it had been stolen by the latter and is justified for giving as a reason, when dismissing him from service, that he was a dishonest man and had committed theft.

Christie v. Denenberg, 40 Que. S.C. 450.

(§ I E—25)—LENGTH OF NOTICE—TERMINATING EMPLOYMENT.

Where a railway conductor had been employed continuously for 12 years by the same railway company, and the practice of the company had been not to dismiss employees of that grade in their service without holding an official inquiry, it may be assumed, in the absence of any contract to the contrary, that he should have a reasonable notice of the termination of his engagement other than for cause, and damages for wrongful dismissal are properly computed on the basis of the conductor being entitled to 3 months' notice.

MONTHLY EMPLOYMENT—NOTICE OF DISMISSAL.

The employment of an agent at a salary of $200 per month, without conditions and for an indeterminate period, is not one made on trial, but is an employment by the month, and can only be terminated by one month's notice of dismissal. [Garon v. Security Life Ins. Co., 50 Que. S.C. 294.]

STATUTORY NOTICE OF DISMISSAL—RETROACTIVE OPERATION — REGULATION OF MUNICIPAL EMPLOYMENT.

A servant of the city of Edmonton, who is not employed under a by-law, is not, by virtue of a provision of the Edmonton Charter, entitled to any notice of dismissal or to any damages for the failure to give such notice, and it is immaterial whether or not the servant was employed before or after the enactment of the said provision. [Lawler v. Edmonton, 29 W.L.R. 661, followed.]

(§ 1 E—26)—DISMISSAL—WHAT CONSTITUTES—REVOCACTION OF POWER OF ATTORNEY AS GROUND FOR QUITTING.

The revocation by a master of a power of attorney over bank funds given to his manager, and a disapproval of the latter's actions because of his disregard of the master's instructions, does not amount to a dismissal from service as to warrant the servant to quit the employment.

(§ 1 E—27)—LIABILITY FOR INDUCING DISMISSAL—MALICE.

To induce an employer to dismiss an employee, where the person so inducing the dismissal violates no legal right of the employee, and neither does any illegal act nor uses any illegal means in obtaining his object, does not give the employee any cause of action against the person inducing his dismissal, even though that person is actuated by malicious motives.

II. Liability of master to servant.

A. NATURE AND EXTENT; MASTER'S DUTY.

Injury to switchman, defective system, switch stand too near rails, see Railways, II A—10.

Injury to employee on yard train, statutory signals and warning, see Railways, III—51.

Liability of Crown for negligence of its officers or servants, see Crown, II—20.

(§ II A—30)—DEFECTIVE SYSTEM AND EQUIPMENT OF FACTORY—COMMON LAW LIABILITY.

A common law action will lie for an injury occasioned an employee by defects generally in the system and equipment of a factory.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT—CHARGE OR CONTROL OF MACHINERY—CHAIN OF NEGLIGENT ACTS.

A workman using a movable hoisting apparatus is in charge or control of it within the meaning of the Ontario Workmen's Compensation Act, R.S.O. 1897, c. 160, R.S.O. 1914, c. 146, where he had to propel it to the place where it was to be used and lower and raise it. Liability under the Ontario Workmen's Compensation Act may be based on a finding of the jury that an employer did not take proper precautions to safeguard his employees from the negligence of fellow-servants, by not furnishing a safe place for the plaintiff to work by reason of permitting an accumulation of material near a steel girder being used in the construction on which the plaintiff was working, which was not properly braced, and which was thrown on the plaintiff as the result of the negligent operation of a hoisting apparatus by another workman, the rules regarding the use of which were not strictly enforced by the employer. A chain of negligent acts resulting in an injury to an employee is sufficient to predicate a liability under the Ontario Workmen's Compensation Act. [Thompson v. Ontario Sewer Pipe Co., 40 Can. S.C.R. 396, distinguished.]

Braithaity v. Mackenzie, Mann & Co., 19 D.L.R. 869.

The original contractor for the construction of a building, sued by one of the workmen for personal injury resulting from an accident in the course of employment, who pleads that before the date of the accident in question he had assigned his interest in the contract to a third party, (without alleging that the plaintiff had been informed of such assignment, by formal notice or otherwise), and who merely produces a copy of such assignment at the close of the trial, will not be held responsible for the amount claimed as damages in the action, but will be held liable for costs of the action where it appears that the assignee of the contract in the meantime made a settlement with the plaintiff as to the amount of damages. Leberre v. Beauchamp, 18 Rev. de Jur. 380.

LIABILITY OF MASTER—FAILURE OF FELLOW-SERVANT TO PERFORM STATUTORY DUTY OF MASTER—CONTRIBUTORY NEGLIGENCE. Linazuk v. Canadian Northern Coal & Ore Dock Co., 5 O.W.N. 642.

(§ II A—35) — NEGLIGENCE — MASTER'S DUTY—COMMON LAW LIABILITY.

An employer who provides a safe place for his servants to work, and equips it with modern tools and appliances, employs a competent foreman, and promulgates rules for the safety of his employees, is not liable at common law for an injury to a servant due to the violation of such rules by a fellow-servant.

"INEXCUSABLE FAULT."

An employer is guilty of "inexcusable fault" in causing an inexperienced workman to work at a round-saw unprotected by any guard, contrary to the factory law regulations, with the help of a mere lad also inexperienced, especially when the inexperience of these employees has been reported to him by his foreman. Three elements go to make "inexcusable fault": (a) the will to do or not to do, (b) knowledge of the danger which may result from the act or omission, (c) the absence of any justifying or explanatory cause.

Poirier v. LeGrand, 9 D.L.R. 269, 22 Que. K.B. 193, 19 Rev. Leg. 266.

NATURE AND EXTENT—MASTER'S DUTY.

The Workmen's Compensation Act (Que.) presupposes the existence of a legal contract for the hire of services between employer and workman.

Boutin v. Corona Rubber Co., 4 D.L.R. 640, 41 Que. S.C. 519.

HEALTH AND SANITATION—NEGLIGENCE—PROXIMATE CAUSE.

If the negligence of a master causes a decrease in the disease-resisting power of a servant, the master is only liable for damage caused to the servant by an ailment when the negligence is shown to be the proximate cause thereof.

WORKMEN HIRED IN QUEBEC TO BE EMPLOYED IN QUEBEC AND ONTARIO—ACCIDENT IN ONTARIO—LAW APPLICABLE.

Common law liability, in cases involving delict or quasi-delict, is governed by the lex loci regit actum. Hence workmen hired in Quebec to be employed in Quebec and Ontario, who are injured by the positive act or by the fault of their employers in the latter province, have no remedy except under the provisions of its laws. When the evidence shows that the foreign law does not admit of the remedy relied upon by the plaintiff, and upon which a verdict has been given in his favour by the jury, he must be nonsuited, non obstante veredicto, a new trial being ineffective.

G.T.R. Co. v. Marleau, 14 Can. Ry. Cas. 284, reversing in part 38 Que. S.C. 394, 12 Can. Ry. Cas. 149.

DIRECTION TO OTHER WORK DISREGARDED.

When a workman is appointed to a particular task his employer's order not to work at it during a specified time, but to proceed to another, is not an absolute order not to continue, and his noncompliance does not deprive him of his remedy, nor constitute an inexcusable fault which can be set up against him, in case of accident. Thus, when the workman at a sawing machine was told by his employer to leave it and work on a planing machine for an afternoon, and he continues the work he was at and is injured, he has a right of action.

Ledoux v. Lucas, 43 Que. S.C. 427.

ACCIDENTS WHILE AT WORK—FALL—NATURAL SICKNESS—APPLICABILITY OF THE LAW—S. REF. [1909], ART. 731.

The plaintiff, widow of a laborer who during his work, fell, suddenly collapsed and died almost immediately, has no recourse against his employer in virtue of the law of accidents while at work, if it is proved that the workman was already suffering from an enlargement of the heart, and that the cause of his death was a cerebral hemorrhage.

Vandrin v. Canada Box Board Co., 25 Rev. Leg. 242.

NEGLIGENCE—WORKMAN—CARE OF TOOLS.

The rule imposed on the workmen by the person erecting a building that they shall keep their tools in a place reserved for that purpose while the work is going on, does not constitute a contract of deposit which renders him liable for the loss of tools kept there.

Hebert v. Harbour Commissioners of Montreal, 42 Que. S.C. 439.

JOINT RESPONSIBILITY—MASTER AND SERVANT—JOINT EXPLOITATION OF RAILWAYS—WARRANTY—C.C., ART. 1054.

A master is responsible for the wrongful act of his servant, committed in the performance of the work for which he is employed. A man may be the servant of two masters; and if, in such case, he renders himself liable in damages, the power of control is the element which decides the responsibility. His fault may involve both masters in liability. The master, in whose general service a man is, is not responsible for the tortious act of such employee, if the control of the master has been, for the time being, superseded by the control of another master into whose temporary service he has passed by being lent (even gratuitously). In such a case, it is the last employer who is responsible. Though a defendant in warranty did not contest the demand in warranty, the court should adjudge upon it, if it appears that in law such warranty liability does not exist.

Caldarelli v. O'Brien, 9 O.W.N. 162.

(§ II A-36)—LIABILITY OF EMPLOYER
WHEN GUILTY OF "INEXCUSABLE FAULT" —PARTICIPATION BY EMPLOYER.

As a rule the "inexcusable fault" of the employee is as regards the employee an excusable fault, except where the employer has participated therein (e. g., by engaging an employee of immature years to do dangerous work), but the inexcusable fault of a foreman is the inexcusable fault of the employer.

Poirier v. LeGrand, 9 D.L.R. 269, 22 Que. K.B. 193, 19 Rev. Leg. 266.

(§ II A-38)—UNLAWFUL EMPLOYMENT OF CHILDREN.

From the fact that art. 3833 R.S.Q. 1909, forbids the proprietor of an industrial establishment classed as dangerous to employ workmen under 16 years of age, and the fact that this provision is one of public order, the result does not follow that when a minor of 15 is so employed the contract for hire of his services, deemed to be based on such engagement, is tainted with nullity of public order so as to deprive the minor of his remedy under The Workmen's Compensation Act for injury by an accident occasioned by and in the course of his employment. Therefore the employer will not be allowed to set up such nullity to a claim for indemnity by the tutrix of the minor workman, victim of an accident under the above conditions.

Mitchell v. Fenderson, 43 Que. S.C. 516.

(§ II A-40)—FREEZING AS "ACCIDENT" WITHIN WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT.

The freezing of a servant's limb as the result of his exposure for ten hours to intense cold in the discharge of his duties, constitutes an "accident" within the meaning of the Quebec Workmen's Compensation Act, R.S.Q. 1909, arts. 7321 et seq. The fact that other workmen employed with the plaintiff on an intensely cold day in the discharge of their duties did not suffer from frost bites, will not relieve an employer from liability to the plaintiff for an injury caused by freezing on the assumption that the injury was not an accident but was due to the plaintiff's poor health, which rendered him more susceptible than other persons to the cold.

(§ II A-43)—FAILURE TO GIVE NOTICE OF INJURY — CONDUCT OF EMPLOYER — WAITER.

The failure of an employee to give notice of an injury as required by s. 9 of the Workmen's Compensation Act, R.S.O. 1897, c. 160, will not avail an employer who was not prejudiced by the want of notice, and who, with full knowledge of the injury, by his conduct and representations led the employee to neglect to give such notice. WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT—NOTICE OF INJURY—FAILURE TO GIVE—EXCUSE.

An employee's ignorance of the fact that he was entitled to compensation for injuries is not a mistake that will excuse his failure to give notice thereof in the manner required by s. 4 of c. 12, of the Alta. Workmen's Compensation Act, 1908. [Roles v. Pascal, [1911] 1 K.B. 982, followed.] The failure of an employee to give notice of an injury within the time prescribed by s. 4 is not fatal unless the omission is prejudicial to the employer.

Bruno v. International Coal & Coke Co., 12 D.L.R. 745, 6 A.L.R. 269, 24 W.L.R. 729, 4 W.W.R. 888.

STATUTE REQUIRING NOTICE OF CAUSE OF IN-JURY.

Where a workman, a foreigner, under the impression that he was in the employ of a firm which was the owner of several timber berths in the vicinity in which he was working, and which also owned and operated a saw-mill and conducted extensive logging operations in the same district, gave the firm the requisite statutory notice pursuant to the Workmen's Compensation for Injuries Act, R.S.O. 1897, c. 160, ss. 9, 13, of the injuries received by him, within the time limited by the Act, his action was maintained against his actual employer, a limited liability company operating one of the berths owned by the firm, notwithstanding the want of strict statutory notice to the company, where it appeared that the foreman in charge of the latter's works, in which the plaintiff was injured, knew of the accident and all the circumstances surrounding it and the evidence shewed that the company was in no way prejudiced by such failure to give the formal notice, and where the company had not pleaded want of notice as a defence but had subsequently, pursuant to s. 14 of the Act, served notice of intention to set it up at the trial.

In the erection of a concrete construction where the forms or skeleton walls have continually to be heightened as the work progresses and a gangway of boards and scantling is laid across the skeleton walls to permit the concrete to be wheeled to the forms and dumped, the work so performed is not part of a "system," but is something that of necessity must be left to the care of a foreman and workmen, and the master's common law liability is satisfied on supplying the necessary materials, resources, and competent workmen to do it. Liset v. B.C. Lumber Co., 17 D.L.R. 449, 19 B.C.R. 480, 27 W.L.R. 859, 6 W.W.R. 817.

MASTER'S LIABILITY — PROPER PLACES TO WORK — PROPER SYSTEM — MATERIALS — COMMON-LAW LIABILITY—NOTICE.

The master's primary duty to the employee is to provide in the first instance fit and proper places for the workmen to work in, and a fit and proper system and suitable materials under and with which to work, but he is not bound to see that the place is safe from day to day or from hour to hour; so if changes have to be made incidental to the work and to the place the employee is called upon to work in, and if these are made under the direction of persons competent to carry forward the work and under a system and with resources which would enable them to carry it out with due regard to the safety of themselves and their fellow-servants, the master is not at common law liable for the failure of such persons to exercise due care, skill and diligence in its prosecution unless the negligent performance amounts to a breach of a statutory duty imposed on the master or unless he had after actual or implied notice of the mistakes of the persons so entrusted failed to correct the same. Holdaway v. Perrin, 19 O.W.R. 949, 2 O.W.N. 1346.

(§ II A—47) — EFFECT OF VIOLATION OF RULES.

In order to entitle the plaintiff to recover from a railway company for negligently causing the death of a locomotive fireman as the result of a defective system of operating a snow-plough, which was being propelled by the locomotive at the time of the accident, by placing a signalman on the plough who had not passed the necessary eye and ear test, and an examination as to train rules, it must appear that such negligence was the proximate cause of his death.

(§ II A—43)—DYNAMITE — EXPLOSION — CAUSE OF ACCIDENT — EVIDENCE—PRESUMPTION.

If an accident happens to a workman occupied in filling a mine, by the premature explosion of dynamite, and the cause of the accident cannot be discovered, there is a presumption of fault against the employer, owner of the dynamite and tools employed by the workman. Such presumption can be combated if the employer discovers a cause for the accident not chargeable to his own fault, and which would have been able to cause the explosion. In such case it is incumbent on the workman to prove the real cause, and to connect it with an act of negligence of the employer.

TRAWING OUT DYNAMITE — EXPLOSIONS — FAILURE OF MASTER TO INSTRUCT EMPLOYEE TO FOLLOW DIRECTIONS.

Strati v. Toronto Construction Co., 19 O.W.R. 88, 2 O.W.N. 1067.

(§ II A—49)—COURSE OF EMPLOYMENT.

Where a delivery man in the employ of the defendants finding two fellow-employees in the office at a time when he wished to make extra deliveries of his employers' goods, requested one of them to accompany him for the purpose of assisting him, and upon neither being willing, obtained permission from one of the defendants to take one of the men, which he did, and on the next day, the delivery man, for the same purpose, took the other employee who was in the office the day before, though not by any special order of any one of the defendants, and after the deliveries were made, the horse they were using ran away and the employee so assisting the delivery man was injured, the injury will be held to have occurred in the "course of his employment."

Veitch v. Linkert, 3 D.L.R. 39, 3 O.W.N. 874.

COURSE OF EMPLOYMENT.

Where a railway employee is injured while removing personal belongings from the defendants' car with the permission of the defendant company, the accident is one arising out of and in the course of his employment for which he is entitled to compensation under the provisions of the Saskatchewan Workmen's Compensation Act, even though an action brought by him at common law for damages had been dismissed on the ground that at the time of the accident he was on business of his own and was a mere licensee, if the accident occurred during the time he was in defendants' employment.

A workman is not entitled to the benefit of the Workmen's Compensation Act (B.C.) for injuries received while in a place in his master's factory where his duty did not call him, and where he went to procure something for his own convenience and not in his employer's interest.

Evidence that a workman went to his work in his usual good health and afterwards came from his place of employment with a hernia and the nature of his work was such as was specially likely to be the cause of hernia, is sufficient to establish that the hernia arose "out of and in the course of" his employment within s. 4 of the Manitoba Workmen's Compensation Act, 1910.

One is not disentitled to the compensation under the provisions of the Workmen's Compensation Act (Alta.), merely by reason of the fact that he contracted to do the work at which he was employed at a lump sum and not upon a time basis.

COURSE OF EMPLOYMENT.

Where one who has left the employ of a railroad company is killed while on his way to the office of the company to get his pay on the day following such abandonment of his employment, no compensation for his death can be claimed under the Alberta Workmen's Compensation Act, 1908, since the accident in question did not arise out of or happen in the course of his employment within the meaning of s. 3. A claim for compensation for the death of an alleged employee cannot be made unless it appears that the accident in question not only arose out of the employment but also happened in the course thereof, as it is impossible to construe disjunctively the word "and" in the second line of s. 3 of the Act.

Where a brakeman is killed while switching cars on the "flying shunt" process, the accident may be found to have arisen "out of and in the course of the employment," although, when such accident occurred, the brakeman was on the ground (contrary to the rules of his employment) instead of on the engine-tender step while doing such work. [Harding v. Brynaddu Colliery Co., [1911] 2 K.B. 747, at 750, 753, applied.] An accident arises "out of" the workmen's employment where such accident is shown to have been due to and resulted from a risk reasonably incident to the employment. In construing the term "out of and in the course of the employment" in the Workmen's Compensation Act (Sask.) 1910-1911, c. 9, s. 4, the words "out of" point to the origin or cause of the accident, and the words "in the course of" apply to the time, place and circumstances. [Fitzgerald v. Clark, [1908] 2 K.B. 796, applied.]

COURSE OF EMPLOYMENT — "OUT OF AND IN THE COURSE OF" — SHOVELLING CLAY—REPLACING DERAILED CAR.

Where the plaintiff was employed by the defendant (a brick and supply company) for the ordinary work of a labourer, a personal injury sustained while assisting a fellow-workman, at the latter's request, to put back on the track one of the cars used for carrying the clay from the pit to the plant, which had become derailed, is properly held to have arisen "out of and in the course of" his employment, where the replacing the car was such work as the plaintiff and the others of his class in the defendant's employ might reasonably have been called upon to do.

Alexander v. Todd, 7 D.L.R. 877, 1 W.W.R. 720.

COURSE OF EMPLOYMENT — WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT.

An establishment run for the purpose of profit, where machines are operated by other means than by man power, or animal power is subject to the Workmen's Compensation Act (Que.) and, consequently, an employee in a laundry operated by electricity and run by a public hotel, is entitled to the benefit of the Act. When, in an industrial establishment, a workman is, after ordinary working hours, repairing a machine, and the foreman, living on the premises and believing the repairs completed, tries to operate the machine and is hurt, such an accident happens by reason of and in the course of his employment.

Caron v. Windsor Hotel Co., 46 Que. S.C. 529.

(§ II A—50) — LIABILITY OF MASTER — DUTY TO WARN AND INSTRUCT.

In an action by a workman for personal injury, due to an accident resulting from the negligence of the defendant employer's foreman in giving an order to the workman without warning him against the danger which was the effective cause of the accident and which was known or should have been known to the foreman, the defendant is liable under the Employers' Liability Act, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 74, although it may appear that the workman's ordinary calling, in which he had been hired, prima facie imported a right on defendant's behalf to assume that the workman knew his business and would not place himself in danger.

DUTY TO WARN OR INSTRUCT — EXPLOSION OF BLAST — FAILURE TO HEAR WARNING.

The fact that an employee was injured as the result of his failure to hear a warning of a fellow-servant that a blast was about to be exploded, will not impose any liability on an employer where the method of warning was that employed by others engaged in similar work.

NEGLIGENCE OF THIRD PARTY — JOINT LIABILITY—ELECTRICITY.

An electric company, as employer, and a municipal corporation operating a hydro electric system, may both be held liable for the death of a lineman electrocuted while at work, where the negligence of each was a real cause of the accident.

Toronto v. Lambert, 33 D.L.R. 476, 54 Can. S.C.R. 209, affirming 29 D.L.R. 56, 36 O.L.R. 269.

INJURY AT WORK — DUTY TO WARN OR INSTRUCT.

The fact that the employee is set at dangerous work at night for the first time, places upon the employer the duty of taking special care that the employee should receive all requisite instruction and warning for his protection while working where there is no light.

Sturgeon v. Canada Iron Corp., 12 D.L.R. 500, 4 O.W.N. 1386, 24 O.W.R. 684.

DUTY TO WARN OR INSTRUCT.

Where instructions and warning are necessary to enable employees, in circumstances involving danger, to appreciate and protect themselves against the perils incident to the work in which they are engaged, it is the duty of the employer to take reasonable care to see that such instructions and warnings are given. The employer may delegate that duty to competent persons; but, where compensation is sought for injuries sustained by an employee owing to neglect to give such instruction and warning, the onus rests upon the employer to shew that the duty was delegated to a person qualified to discharge it, or that other adequate provision was made to ensure protection against unnecessary risk to the employees. The failure of the employer to take reasonable care in the appointment of a properly qualified superintendent, to whom the duty of selecting persons to be employed is intrusted, amounts to negligence involving liability for damages sustained in consequence of the acts of incompetent servants. [Young v. Hoffman Manufacturing Co., [1907] 2 K.B. 646, applied.] In this case, as the risk incident to the employment of an incompetent foreman was not one of those which are assumed by an employee, the plaintiff was entitled to recover damages at common law. C.N.R. Co. v. Anderson, 45 Can. S.C.R. 255, 20 W.L.R. 416.

INSTRUCTIONS, WARNINGS AND ORDERS TO WORKMEN AGAINST DANGERS.

EMPLOYER AND EMPLOYEE—IMPROPER METHODS OF WORKING.

Drolet v. Denis, 20 Que. K.B. 378.

(§ II A—53)—ELEVATOR—COMMON FAULT.

A contractor, who uses an electric elevator to carry material from one storey to another in a building under construction, should install it in such a manner that it could be said that he had taken the necessary precautions to protect his workmen. It is his duty to install an indicator within the elevator showing the operator to what storey the ascent is required, to enable him to stop it there and prevent a possible accident to one who wishes to use the elevator. On the other hand, the workman employed on the building is guilty of negligence if, when wishing to take the elevator, he leans over into the pit of the elevator without having given the signal to stop. In such case there is common fault.

Norcross Co. v. Gohier, 26 Que. K.B. 387. [Affirmed 41 D.L.R. 687, 56 Can. S.C.R. 415.]

(§ II A—54)—AS TO WARNING OF SPEED OF MACHINE.

Where a child or young person of comparative inexperience has been employed in working a machine operating at a fixed speed and is transferred to a similar machine operating at a different speed, it is the duty of the employer to warn such employee of the difference in the machines, and in default he will be liable for personal injuries sustained by the employee who, in ignorance of the difference in speed, applied to the operation of the second machine, the movements applicable to the first and was injured in consequence.

(§ II A—56)—DUTY TO WARN — WORKMEN AT TRAMWAY CROSSING — APPROACHING CARS — "DEFECTIVE SYSTEM."

The work of laying planks at a tramway crossing may properly be found to have been done under a "defective system" when the foreman, whose duty it was to watch and warn the men of approaching cars passing at high speed at about 15 minute intervals, was also required to do manual work along with the men in his charge, thus distracting his attention from the watching which was necessary for their protection.

(§ II A—58)—INFANTS, NEGLIGENCE TOWARDS.

It is negligence for a master to direct a minor servant, who was not employed for such position, to work temporarily at a dangerous machine, without warning or instructing him as to the danger, sufficient to render the master liable for an injury sustained by the servant, where, in attempting to unlog such machine, his hand was caught by spikes in a cylinder thereof, which he had never seen. [Smith v. Royal Canadian Yacht Club, 3 O.W.N. 19, distinguished.]

Stokes v. Griffin Curled Hair Co., 4 D. L.R. 844, 3 O.W.N. 1414, 22 O.W.R. 474.

Where a minor under fourteen years of age is illegally employed in an industrial establishment contrary to the provisions of the Quebec Industrial Establishments Act, there is no legal contract for the hire of his services, and if the minor suffers personal injuries, his remedy lies in an action for damages at common law (s. 1053 Cr. Code) and not in an action under the Workmen's Compensation Act.

(§ II A—60)—DUTY OF MASTER—SAFETY AS TO PLACE AND APPLIANCES—BROKEN CABLE—NEGLIGENCE.

The inference may be drawn from the happening of the accident by the breaking of a cable at defendant's works, in the absence of explanation by the defendant, that it arose from want of care on the part of defendant or his servants, but not necessarily want of care for which the master is responsible to his workman; the master's duty is to take reasonable care and to make reasonable effort to provide a safe place and safe machinery in which and with which the servant is to work, but not to guarantee that the place and machinery shall be absolutely safe. LIABILITY OF MASTER TO SERVANT—INJURY TO APPRENTICE—DEFECTIVE TOOL SUPPLIED BY FELLOW-SERVANT—CUSTOM.

The fact that it is customary for journeyman plumbers to furnish their own tools will not absolve an employer from liability for an injury sustained by a 16 year old apprentice as the result of using a defective tool provided by a journeyman plumber in the service of the employer, with whom the apprentice was required to work; since it was the duty of the employer to see that suitable appliances and tools were furnished for the use of his apprentice. [Jones v. Burford, 1 T.L.R. 137, distinguished.]

LIABILITY OF MASTER TO SERVANT—SAFETY AS TO PLACE—ACCIDENT DUE TO SNOWSLIDE.

An employer is not relieved from liability under the Workmen's Compensation Act, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 244, for the death of a mining employee as the result of the building of shelter in which he was required to work being struck by a snowslide, by reason of the fact that the slide was occasioned by abnormal conditions, where the shelter was located at a place where slides should have been anticipated. SAFETY AS TO PLACE—DEFECTIVE TRACKS USED IN CONSTRUCTION WORK.

A brick-making company operating tracks on its premises for its undertakings is liable for damages in a personal injury accident to a licensee upon the premises resulting from nonrepair of the tracks particularly where it had knowledge of the lack of repair, although such licensee was in the direct employment of a third party doing construction work on the premises in the course of which work the track in question had to be used, it appearing that such third party with whom the plaintiff was employed had not assumed any responsibility as to the maintenance of the track.

SAFETY OF APPLIANCES—GENERAL USE, MATERIALITY OF.

Upon a question of safety of appliances for workmen and the employer's duty in respect thereof, the general use of such appliances, by employers in the class of work involved, is not the determining test. [Ship Building Works v. Nuttall, 119 Pa. 149, disapproved.]

DEFECTIVE SYSTEM—NEGLIGENCE OF FELLOW-SERVANT.

Where injuries sustained by a workman in loading a vessel are primarily due to a defective system in vogue, the employers are liable in damages under Lord Campbell's Act (C.S.N.B., 1903, c. 79), even though the accident was the result of the negligence of a fellow employee. [Wilson v. Merry, L.R. 1 H.L. (Sc.) 326, distin-

BREACH OF STATUTORY DUTY—DEFECTIVE ELEVATOR DOORS.

An employer's failure to fulfil the statutory duty imposed upon him by s. 33 of the Factories Act, R.S.M. 1913, c. 70, to protect an elevator with "good and sufficient trap-doors," will render him liable for the death of an infant employee, occasioned by a fall into an elevator shaft, as the result of a defect in the doors which caused them to spring open when the employee struck them while playfully wrestling [David v. Britannie, [1909] 3 K.B. 146; Jones v. C.P.R. Co., 13 D.L.R. 900, 30 O.L.R. 331; Hes v. Abercarn Welsh Flannel Co., 2 T.L.R. 547, applied.]

RISK OF EMPLOYMENT—NEGLIGENCE OF SERVANT—LIABILITY.

Where an employer does not provide a window-cleaner at his service, with any protective appliance; and where the window-cleaner does not ask for any, they are both guilty of a common fault and must bear equally the damages suffered therefor by the employee.

SAFETY AS TO APPLIANCES—LIFE IN PERIL.

Where a workman's life is in peril and the superintendent of the works knows it, and has under his control a safety appliance which, if applied, will remove or materially lessen the danger, and there is no sufficient reason for not applying it, then if, in consequence of the nonapplication, the workman is killed, the death is caused by the negligence of the superintendent, for which the employing company is liable under the Employer's Liability Act, R.S.N.S. 1900, c. 179. In the case of a workman suing, under the common law for damages by him suffered in consequence of an accident, the obligations and liability of his employer are to be determined by the law of the province of Ontario where the accident took place, notwithstanding the fact that the contract to hire the workman's services took place in the province of Quebec. The law of the province of Quebec would apply, if the action was formed under the Quebec Workmen's Compensation Act.

Fullum v. Foundation Co., 25 Rev. Leg. 470.

The fact that a certain appliance might have prevented the death of a servant will not render a master liable therefor where the jury found that its use would have been impracticable, and that its absence did not amount to a defect.

Mercantile Trust Co. v. Canada Steel Co., 3 D.L.R. 518, 3 O.W.N. 980, 21 O.W.R. 808.

SAFETY AS TO PLACE AND APPLIANCES—SCAFFOLDING.

Section 6 of the Building Trades Protection Act, 1 Geo. V. (Ont.) c. 71 (R.S.O. 1914, c. 228), imposes an absolute duty on persons engaged in the erection, alteration, repair, improvement or demolition of a building, not to use scaffolding or other mechanical or temporary contrivances which are unsafe, unsuitable, or improper, or which are not so constructed, protected, placed and operated as to afford reasonable safety from accident to persons employed or engaged upon the building. [Watkins v. Naval Colliery Co., [1912] A.C. 699, applied.]

DEFECTIVE FOUNDATION OF DREDGE—LIABILITY.

Where an accident has happened resulting in injury, though the happening of the accident in itself may not be evidence of negligence, yet when the plaintiff establishes that the defendant owed to him a duty to take care, and also establishes that the injuries complained of resulted from a condition of things apparently incompatible with the performance of that duty, the maxim res ipsa loquitur applies, and the onus is cast upon the defendant of accounting for the accident, and if he does not satisfactorily account therefor, the happening of the accident under such a condition of things is evidence from which negligence may be inferred.

Lindsay v. Davidson, 4 S.L.R. 415.

SCAFFOLD.

Where a labourer, employed in the erection of a building, was ordered to finish some rivets at an elevation of at least 50 feet from the ground and for which work no scaffolding directly under the riveting was provided, and was ordered to place a plank across 2 beams near the work to be done, and to use them for that purpose, and in so doing the plank slipped and he was thrown and injured, the master, by reason of his failure to provide safe scaffolding, is liable for his injuries.

Dominion Bridge Co. v. Jodoin, 46 Can. S.C.R. 624, affirming 39 Que. S.C. 103.

DANGEROUS CONDITION OF FACTORY FLOOR—FAILURE TO SHOW THAT INJURY CAUSED THEREBY—WEIGHT OF EVIDENCE—DOCUMENTARY EVIDENCE.

Plant v. Consumers Box & Lumber Co., 10 O.W.N. 243.

(§ II A—64)—DEFECTIVE LADDER.

A workman is not entitled to recover for injuries sustained through the fall of a ladder, caused by the rounding of the edges at its end, where he had failed to report the defects to the proper authorities, so that they might be remedied.

Green v. G.T.R. Co., 10 W.W.R. 430.

(§ II A—65)—EXCAVATION WORK—SAFETY—MANAGEMENT—NEGLIGENCE OF FELLOW SERVANT.

An employer who appoints a competent superintendent over certain work, gives him requisite authority for the performance thereof and supplies him with all necessary material, is not liable at common law for injuries to a workman through the negligence of the superintendent in the discharge of his duties.

SAFE PLACE—EXCAVATION—FAILURE TO BRACE SIDES.

The fact that an employer was aware that two other cave-ins had occurred within 24 hours one at a point opposite where an employee was required to work in a deep, narrow trench, the sides of which were not braced in any manner, discloses such a failure to observe reasonable precaution for the safety of his employees as to render the employer answerable for an injury to one of them as the result of a cave-in.

INJURY TO SERVANT—EXPLOSION—REASONABLE CARE—PROPER APPLIANCES—UNNECESSARY RISK.

The utmost duty of a municipal corporation as regards its employees operating its waterworks is to take reasonable care to provide proper appliances and to maintain them in a proper condition and so to carry on its operations as not to subject those employed by it to unnecessary risk. [Smith v. Baker, [1891] A.C. 325, applied; McArthur v. Dominion Cartridge Co. [1905] A.C. 72; Winnipeg Electric v. Schwartz, 16 D.L.R. 681, 49 Can. S.C.R. 80, distinguished.]

TRENCHES.

Where a contractor is digging a trench, and previous blasting has rendered the sides of the trench liable to cave in, so that workmen in the trench are exposed to danger unless the sides are shored up, of which the contractor ought to have known, he is guilty of negligence if he fails to shore up the sides, and a workman is injured in consequence.

(§ II A-66b)—STRINGING ELECTRIC WIRES—PROTECTION—RUBBER GLOVES.

Permitting an inexperienced employee to work at stringing wires charged with electricity, without furnishing him with rubber gloves as a protection against the danger of such work, will render the electric company liable for the death of the employee, caused by electrocution, during the course of the work.

Couillard v. Beauharnois, 26 D.L.R. 159, 24 Que. K.B. 324.

ELECTRICAL USES AND APPLIANCES.

A judgment for the plaintiff for negligently causing the death of a servant, will be sustained where the evidence justified the jury in finding that the deceased, a painter, who was free from contributory negligence, was not properly warned of the danger from highly charged and imperfectly protected electrical wires located within a few inches of the place where he was required to work on a narrow scaffold, that no notice of the dangerous character of the wires was posted, and that the deceased was directed by his master to work at the place where he met his death, and if he had been warned to keep away therefrom, such warning was overridden by subsequent directions.

INJURY TO EMPLOYEE FROM CONTACT WITH WIRE—PROPER PRECAUTIONS.

Where it appears that every reasonable precaution had been taken for the safety of employees and there being nothing from which it may be inferred that the accident was due to the negligence of some other person for which the master is liable, a power company is not responsible for injuries to an employee resulting from contact with an electric wire represented to be harmless but which had in some way become charged.

LIABILITY—DAMAGES—ACCIDENT AT WORK — ELECTRICITY—DEFECTIVE TRANSFORMER—C.C., ARTS. 1053, 1056.

An electric company is liable for an accident sustained by its employee, electrocuted in the course of his employment by coming in contact with a transformer known by the company to be defective and near which it had set the employee to work without taking the trouble to turn off the current.

Brown Corp. v. Bouchard, 28 Que. K.B. 219.

(§ II A-67)—MASTER'S DUTY TO FURNISH SAFE APPLIANCES—CHAIN FASTENED TOGETHER WITH WIRE.

A master who furnishes a chain which is insecurely fastened together with wire, for the use of his servants in hoisting heavy weights, is liable for an injury sustained by an employee as the result of the breaking of the chain by reason of such defective fastening.

INJURY TO INEXPERIENCED EMPLOYEE—DEFECTIVE APPLIANCE—LIABILITY OF EMPLOYER.

An inexperienced boy 16 years old, employed in the cutting of a concrete floor to hold a chisel while another employee struck it with a sledge hammer, can recover from the employer for loss of an eye caused by a splinter of steel flying from the chisel; it appearing that the chisel and the use to which it was put rendered scattering of splinters likely, and constituted a special danger to the injured boy, who was directed to so hold the chisel that his head was on or near a level with the top of it.

SAFE PLACE—POLE SET IN HOLE MADE BY CONTRACTOR OTHER THAN DEFENDANT.

One who contracts to string wires on poles to be set by him in holes dug by another contractor, which were accepted as being sufficiently deep, is answerable for the death of a servant as the result of the fall of a pole on which he was working that was set in a hole not deep enough to hold it securely, since there was a failure to furnish a safe place in which to work.

MISCELLANEOUS PLACES AND APPLIANCES.

Although at common law and by statute the servant is entitled to certain safeguards for his safety and protection, such as a safe place to work, safe tools and appliances and care in selecting overseers, it is for the master to say just when the servant shall work, and if the master suspends or postpones the work, but continues to pay, the servant cannot complain nor can a damage claim be sustained upon the relation of master and servant in respect of personal injuries sustained by the latter when on the master's premises wholly at his own instance and for his own purposes during a period for which his work was suspended although the employee's wages were being paid in the interim.

INJURY TO SEAMAN—"DAMAGE DONE BY ANY SHIP"—ADMIRALTY COURT ACT, 1861, s. 7—INTERPRETATION—JURISDICTION—CONSENT OF PARTIES—ACQUESCENCE.

The plaintiff, a seaman, brought an action in rem for damages against the barge "Neosho" for bodily injuries sustained by him in an accident alleged to have been occasioned by negligence for which the ship was liable. Held, that the damage done was not "by" the barge, but "on" the barge, and is not such damage as gives plaintiff a remedy in rem within the meaning of s. 7 of the Admiralty Court Act, 1861. The court was therefore without jurisdiction in the matter. In the absence of jurisdiction existing by law, the filing of an appearance and the giving of bail by defendant do not give jurisdiction to the court in a proceeding in rem. Jurisdiction is not a matter of procedure and cannot be derived from the consent of parties.

ASSUMPTION OF RISK—HORSES.

A servant assumes the usual and ordinary risks of his work and a master is not liable for injuries to such servant caused by horses with which he was working taking fright, if the horses are ordinary work horses and there is no evidence that the master knew them to be vicious or given to running away.

Williams v. Keeler, 41 D.L.R. 69.

ENGINEERING WORK—GUY ROPE—NECESSITY OF KEEPING CLEAR FROM PASSING TRAINS—NEGLIGENCE—INJURIES—DAMAGES.

Where conditions are such that it is impossible to secure an anchorage for a guy rope used to afford the necessary resistance to the strain put upon tackling in raising bents in connection with the erection of a grain conveyor, such as would hold the rope clear from passing trains, it is the contractor's duty to see that the work is made safe for his employees either by following a different system of erecting the bents, or by providing some adequate means to safeguard the guy wire from contact with passing trains, or to warn or stop passing trains while it was so attached. Failure by the railway employees to take sufficient care to avoid contact by the train with the guy wire was something which the contractor was bound to anticipate and guard against and negligence on the part of the company's employees would not affect his liability. LIABILITY FOR INJURY TO SERVANTS—SAFE PLACE—INSUFFICIENT EXCAVATION FOR POLES FOR ELECTRIC WIRES.

One who contracts to string wires on poles for an electric power line to be set by him in holes dug by another contractor, and who with knowledge of the local conditions accepts such holes as being sufficiently deep and takes no precautionary measure for better supporting the poles in case the ordinary filling of light soil there available should be insufficient, is answerable for the death of a servant as the result of the fall of a pole on which the latter was working that was set in a hole not deep enough to hold it securely, since there was a failure to furnish a safe place in which to work. for. Under the provisions of art. 7337, R.S.Q. 1909, the accidental collaboration of a fellow-workman is not essential; it suffices that a single workman is employed who has the rights and remedies provided by the Act. The indemnity under the Act may be awarded for injuries caused by accident without the necessity to establish negligence.

Thorne v. Roy, 41 Que., S.C. 305.

LIABILITY—ACCIDENT—MASTER AND CARTER — DRAWING ICE — PLATFORM PIECE WORK—C.C. ART. 1053.

One who employs a carter to draw ice from the place where it is cut on a river to a platform built by himself, is liable when the horses of the carter are drowned in the river by the accidental collapse of the platform, although the carter is being paid at the rate of ten cents per cake instead of by wages.

Langlois v. Dominion Park, 56 Que. S.C. 353.

(§ II A—68)—STEVEDORING COMPANY.

A stevedoring company is under a duty to its employees engaged in loading a ship by a winch and tackle, to provide against any fouled tackle going over the side of the ship, and to see that some person is on the deck for the purpose of signalling the winchmen to stop on the fouling of the wires supporting the sling board.

Snell v. Victoria & Vancouver Stevedoring Co., 8 D.L.R. 32, 1 W.W.R. 985.

(§ II A—70)—MACHINERY.

Apart from any statutory obligation, no negligence is shewn on the part of an employer by his failure to place a guard on a dangerous machine where its presence would not have avoided the accident for which suit was brought, though such guard was afterwards placed on the machine, and it appeared that guards had been used in other localities prior to the accident.

In an action to recover against a master for injuries received while operating a coping machine, where it appears from the plaintiff's evidence that he was not aware of any defect in the machine and another witness testifies that knowledge of the defect had been brought home to the defendants, such defect being the "tripping" of the machine twice when the operator had worked the "tripper" only once, a verdict by the jury for the plaintiff will not be disturbed on appeal, although it depends solely on the balance of probabilities without definite evidence on either side as to the cause of the repeated operation.

SAWING OPERATIONS — DEFECTIVE SYSTEM — CONCLUSIVENESS OF VERDICT.

Where a jury, after having viewed a mill and its operations, has found that injuries sustained by a sawyer in course of operations were occasioned by a defective system, and awarded damages therefor, their verdict should not be interfered with on appeal.

Lyons v. Nicola Valley Pine Lumber Co., 31 D.L.R. 133, 23 B.C.R. 141, [1917] 1 W.W.R. 237.

DANGEROUS MACHINERY — INCOMPETENT MANAGEMENT — WANT OF SUPERVISION.

It is negligence on the part of employers to omit providing a proper system by which the dangerous character of the employment might be lessened, and in putting an incompetent man in charge of a dangerous machine, and keeping him there for part of the day and the whole of the night, without supervision or instruction. [Chate v. Ontario Rolling Mill Co., 27 A.R. (Ont.) 155; Jones v. C.P.R. Co., 5 D.L.R. 332, 13 D.L.R. 900, applied.]

Hull v. Seneca Superior Silver Mines, 24 D.L.R. 254, 33 O.L.R. 557.

DEFECTIVE MACHINERY — INJURY TO EMPLOYEE — COMMON LAW LIABILITY.

A master knowingly using a defective piece of machinery which could have been rendered safe by means of a simple and easily understood automatic mechanical device (e.g., a circuit breaker or cut-out to stop the rotation of the drum of a hoisting apparatus operated by electricity before it could take up too much of the cable) renders himself liable in damages for injuries caused his workmen through its use.

Paskwan v. Toronto Power Co., 15 D.L.R. 752, 5 O.W.N. 823.

DEATH — IMPROPER METHOD OF REPLACING BELT ON PULLEY.

An employer is properly held liable under the Ontario Fatal Accidents Act, 1 Geo. V. c. 33, for the death of a servant, where the deceased was absolved from contributory negligence, and it appeared that the accident would not have happened had the defendant's millwright, engaged in repairing a defective belt, not failed in his duty to see that the deceased was not exposed to danger.

Falconer v. Jones, 11 D.L.R. 769, 4 O.W.N. 1373, 24 O.W.R. 672.

OPERATION OF MACHINERY — DELEGATION OF DUTY TO ESTABLISH SAFE SYSTEM OF OPERATION — PROHIBITING STOPPING OF MACHINERY WHILE CHANGING WORK.

An employer cannot, by delegating to an employee the duty of establishing a safe system, escape liability at common law for injuries sustained by a servant as the result of a defective system of operating dangerous machinery. For an employer to require a servant to work in close proximity to a rapidly revolving drill, which caught his arm and injured it while he was changing work in the machine, which he was forbidden to stop, amounts to a failure to provide a safe place for the servant to work and renders the employer liable at common law.

(§ II A—71) — GUARDING MACHINERY — USING FOR IMPROPER PURPOSE, ONUS.

Where an employee is injured while using a machine of his own accord for a purpose for which it was not intended, and the machine is without defect and is sufficiently guarded for use for the purpose for which it is intended, and a regular practice of using the machine for the improper purpose to the knowledge of the employer has not been shown, the employer is not liable in damages.

Wyers v. Winlow & Irving Co., 10 D.L.R. 587, 4 O.W.N. 1080, 24 O.W.R. 401.

FACTORIES ACT, SASK. — DANGEROUS MACHINERY — DUTY TO GUARD — FAILURE TO COMPLY WITH ACT — NEGLIGENCE — LIABILITY.

Section 19 of R.S.S. 1909, c. 17 (the Factories Act) provides in part that: "In every factory all dangerous mill gearing and machinery . . . shall be so far as practicable securely guarded." Failure to comply with this statutory duty renders the factory owner liable for injuries causing the death of an employee, if such death resulted from breach of the statutory duty and not from the employee's own negligence. General instructions not to go near machinery when in motion does not obviate the necessity of complying with the requirements of the statute, nor does the fact that they were given establish that a man found dead in the unprotected machinery was guilty of negligence when his duty took him upon a small platform upon which the machinery was situated.

HOISTING MACHINERY — SELECTION OF APPLIANCES—QUESTION OF FACT FOR JURY.

Although a master is not bound to adopt all the latest improvements and appliances, the question as to whether proper safety appliances had been installed by a master to prevent the overwinding of hoisting machinery is one of fact for the jury, notwithstanding the fact that the master entrusted the selection of such appliances to a competent man; and it is sufficient, for the finding of the jury, where the evidence points to several kinds of safety appliances, that the improper devices had been installed.

In an action for injuries received by reason of the alleged negligence of defendant in failing to provide a guard for a gear, where it is not disputed that the gear should have been securely guarded, that it had been originally guarded, but the guard had been broken but had not been replaced, and that the accident would not have happened if the gear had been guarded, and where there is no evidence of contributory negligence, a verdict by a jury in favour of the defendant will be reversed and a new trial granted.

Alexe v. Canadian Western Lumber Co., 8 D.L.R. 1, 22 W.L.R. 559, 3 W.W.R. 267.

Failure to guard, as required by the Nova Scotia Factories Act, 1901, c. 1, s. 20, a protruding set-screw in a revolving shaft in a saw-mill at a point in close proximity to which a servant was required to work, constitutes a defect, within the meaning of c. 179, s. 3 and subs. (a) of s. 5 of the Employers' Liability Act, R.S.N.S. 1900, in the arrangement of the work and machinery of which the master was aware, so as to render him liable for injuries sustained by the servant through his clothing catching on the set-screw. A saw-mill is a "factory" within the meaning of s. 20 of the Nova Scotia Factories Act, which requires that all dangerous parts of mill-gearing, machinery, etc., shall be, so far as practicable, securely guarded, as such Act declares that "mill-gearing" comprises "every shaft, whether upright, oblique, or horizontal."

A violation of subs. 1 (a) of s. 20 of the Factories Act (Ont.), is sufficient to justify a verdict in favour of a servant, where it is shown that he would not have been injured if a set-screw in a shaft, which was admittedly dangerous, had been securely guarded or sunk into the shaft.

McClement v. Kilgour Mfg. Co., 3 D.L.R. 462, 3 O.W.N. 999, 21 O.W.R. 856.

In an action by the conductor of a construction train for injuries from a wing of a gravel-spreading machine operated by air pressure, coming down upon him, caused by the engineer in charge of the machine unintentionally starting it by striking his knee against the handle of a valve used to set it in motion while attempting to get closer to the air gauge, which, owing to the darkness, he could not see from where he stood without a light, to ascertain if there was sufficient air in the reservoir of the machine to operate the same, a motion for nonsuit was rightly refused, it being for the Trial Judge to say whether any facts have been established in evidence from which negligence may be inferred, and for the jury to say whether or not from these facts negligence ought to be inferred. [Metropolitan R. Co. v. Jackson, 3 App. Cas. 197, followed.]

FAILURE TO GUARD SHAFT.

Where the direct and proximate cause of an accident was the neglect of the employer to guard a shaft, an injured employee himself free from negligence, may recover under either the Factories Act, R.S.O. 1897,

c. 256, of the Workmen's Compensation Act, R.S.O. 1897, c. 160.

UNGUARDED SET SCREW IN SHAFT — BREACH OF STATUTORY DUTY.

The failure to guard a projecting set screw in a rapidly revolving shaft, as required by c. 1 of the Factories Act (N.S.) 1901, near which a servant was required to work, is negligence sufficient to render an employer liable for an injury to a servant caused by his clothing catching on the set screw.

GUARDING DANGEROUS MACHINERY — EXCEPTIONAL WORK — LIABILITY BY STATUTE BUT NOT AT COMMON LAW.

The employer's duty at common law to see that the employees are not required to work under a defective system does not extend to an unusual employment of a workman in assisting to move a pulley through a passageway not ordinarily used or intended for workmen to work in; and where an unprotected revolving shaft projected into the passageway, and the workman, while assisting in moving the pulley through it, was injured by coming in contact therewith, the efficient cause of the injury was the direction of the superintendent to the workman to work there, and the damages must accordingly be limited to the amount recoverable under the Workmen's Compensation Act, R.S.O. 1897, c. 160, R.S.O. 1914, c. 146.

SAFETY OF APPLIANCES — GUARDING DANGEROUS MACHINERY.

Where there is evidence of negligence on the part of the employer company as regards the guarding of machinery for the safety of employees as required by statute, yet no recovery of damages for the death of the employee from coming in contact with the machinery can take place without evidence to connect such negligence with the accident. (§ II A-75)—MINING OPERATIONS — EXPLOSION — DEFECTIVE SYSTEM — CONCLUSIVENESS OF VERDICT.

The verdict of a jury, based on a reasonable conclusion from the evidence, that injuries occasioned by an explosion in the course of mining operations had been caused by a defective system of storing powder, cannot be disturbed on appeal.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT — LIABILITY TO PERSON INJURED WHILE REMOVING COAL FROM MINE — "UNDERTAKER" AS DEFINED BY ACT — MEANING OF "WORKMAN" — CASUAL EMPLOYMENT.
Armstrong v. McIntyre, 7 D.L.R. 786, 2 W.W.R. 336.

MINING — EXPLOSION — STATUTORY DUTY OF MASTER.

A mining company owning and operating a mine is liable in damages to a miner employed by the contractor to whom the drilling operations had been let, for personal injury of such miner through an explosion on striking a missed hole which should have been blasted by the previous relay or shift, and of which no report was made to him when he went on duty, where the company's system was faulty in not making provision as required by the Mining Act (R.S.O. 1914, c. 32) or reporting from one relay of men to the next that a charged hole had not exploded and in not seeing that proper directions were given to have it exploded before continuing the drilling as required by the statutory mining rules, s. 164 of the Act; the duties in that respect are imposed upon the company and it is not absolved from responsibility by having contracted out to another the operation of the drilling machine.

MINES — HOLE CHARGED WITH DYNAMITE — WARNINGS.

An unexploded hole charged with dynamite left in a mine by the night shift with, out any report or warning as required by r. 14 of s. 164 of the Mining Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 32, whereby a worker of the following shift, while engaged in his ordinary work, struck a protruding ledge of rock, causing an explosion, will render the master liable for the injuries he sustained thereby.

MINES — INFANT EMPLOYEE — SUPERVISION — VIOLATION OF WARNINGS.

The employment of a boy of 14 years of age to attend to the wire rope at the revolving drum of a hoisting gear of a mine is not such as to call for special supervision or special instruction where the drum was properly guarded and the work was properly boy's work if done by him where he was directed to do it outside of the guards, particularly where he had been specially warned of the danger of attempting to work inside the guards and was injured by doing so in spite of the warning. McSorley v. Dominion Coal Co., 22 D. L.R. 802, 48 N.S.R. 562.

WORK IN MINES — INEXPERIENCED EMPLOYEE — WANT OF GUIDE — STATUTORY REGULATIONS.

Permitting an inexperienced employee to work alone at night on a dimly lighted deck of a mine, which required the taking of cars loaded with ore from the cage of a hoist, without having an experienced man to guide him in the work, affords reasonable grounds for a jury's finding, where the employee is later found dead below the deck even where nobody saw him fall, that the death was caused by the negligence and breach of statutory duty of the master. Section 164, r. 45, of the Mining Act, R.S. O. 1914, c. 32, prescribes the code of signals for raising or lowering a cage in the shaft of a mine, and r. 98 provides that the owner of a mine shall enforce and observe such care and precaution for the avoidance of accident or injury to any person in or about the mine as the particular circumstances of the case require, and that the machinery, plant, appliances, and equipment, and the manner of carrying on operations, shall always, and according to the particular circumstances of the case, conform to the strictest considerations of safety. Failure of a mine-owner to maintain the mine in a condition suitable for carrying on the work with reasonable safety is followed by liability, even though the act which caused the injury may have been attributable to neglect of duty of a fellow-employee, and even though the owner employed competent officials for the superintendence of the mine, and required the statutory directions to be observed. (§ II A—76)—PESTICES.

Where a trap door built over a mining shaft was negligently left open, by reason whereof a rock fell through it from another level of the mine and injured one of the miners, there is an omission on the part of the mining company of a statutory obligation under r. 17 of the Ontario Mining Act, 1908, to "provide a suitable pestice" for the protection of the workmen working on the lower level while work was going on on a higher level, and this notwithstanding that the trap door while kept closed would be effective as a pestice.

(§ II A—80)—UNCOUPLING CARS—"UNPACKED FROG" — FINDINGS OF JURY — NEW TRIAL.

In an action for damages for the death of the plaintiff's husband by reason of the negligence of the defendants, a railway company, his employers, while he was engaged in uncoupling cars, there was evidence, which the jury rejected, that the deceased had gone in voluntarily between the cars when the train was in motion; the jury found negligence causing the accident, namely, "frog not properly packed," and negatived contributory negligence, but did not indicate the connection between the negligence they found and the accident, as they were directed to do.—Held, that the jury should have indicated how or why the want of packing was the cause of the death—there was a want of proper evidence of direct causal negligence and an absence of intelligible expression by the jury of what they thought was a reasonable inference, there being at least three explanations which might be accepted; and a new trial was ordered. Ryan v. C.P.R. Co., 32 D.L.R. 372, 37 O. L.R. 543.

NEGLECT — DANGEROUS TRAIN YARD — DEATH—REMEDY.

Insufficient space between tracks in a train yard, where snow and ice had been permitted to accumulate, the yard being inadequately lighted, is negligence which will render a master liable for the death of a servant who has been run over by an engine while at work thereat; the damages therefore may be enforced by an action at common law, under Lord Campbell's Act, and need not be restricted under the Employer's Liability Act.

NEGLIGENCE — CONTRIBUTORY — JURY — FINDINGS — EXPERT EVIDENCE—GOOD RAILWAY PRACTICE — SWITCH STAND — LOCATION — TOO CLOSE TO RAIL.

A jury may find, without the assistance of expert evidence, that the location of a switch stand in a railway yard is too close to the rail, and is not reasonably sufficient to permit of the safe passage through it of a man riding on the side ladder of a car. The fact that the order of the Railway Commissioners does not govern the location of switch stands of a certain height, constructed according to good railway practice, does not justify a railway company placing such a stand so close to passing cars, that it is dangerous to switchmen. An employer is not entitled to expose his servants unnecessarily to obvious dangers, which they can escape only by constant vigilance or unflinching alertness.

INJURY TO SWITCHMAN — WANT OF PRINTED RULES — SPECIFIC FINDINGS.

The general finding of a jury that the injuries sustained by a switchman were caused by the negligence of the railway company is limited by a specific finding that the negligence consisted in not having definite printed rules and in not seeing that they are at all times strictly obeyed, and discloses no specific act of negligence on which an action at common law is maintainable.

Hile v. G.T.P.R. Co., 24 D.L.R. 9, 8 W. W.R. 403.

INJURIES TO RAILWAY WORKMAN RETURNING FROM WORK.

A railway company is not responsible for the injuries sustained by its workmen while returning from work under the direction of their foreman to the sleeping accommodations provided by the company, since such injuries are not those arising in the course of their employment.

INJURY TO RAILWAY FIREMAN — CONFLICTING FINDINGS — NEW TRIAL.

In an action for damages for injuries sustained by a locomotive fireman employed by the defendants, by reason of the escape of steam from a valve in the locomotive engine, the jury found in answer to questions: (1) that the injuries of the plaintiff were caused by the negligence of the defendants; (2) that such negligence consisted in not seeing that the valve was properly closed; (3) in answer to the question, "Or were the plaintiff's injuries the result of his own negligence?" — "No;" (5) that the plaintiff by the exercise of reasonable care could have avoided the accident; (6) that he could have done so "by examining valve."—Held, that there was evidence proper to be submitted to the jury on all branches of the case; and that the answers of the jury were conflicting, and there should be a new trial: r. 501 (1).

(§ II A—83)—HEAD-LIGHTS.

Where the plaintiff, in an action under the Fatal Injuries Act (Ont.) for damages for the death of her husband who had been run over by a train while employed as a section-man upon the railway, pleaded lack of notice or warning of the approach of the train and the defendant railway company pleaded in answer that the accident was not caused by their neglect or omission, the fact that evidence was given and submitted to the jury at the trial of the failure to maintain a head-light in accordance with the company's rules, although that point was not more specifically raised by the pleadings, will not be a ground for granting the defendants a new trial, if they were not taken by surprise, but stood upon the evidence given and raised no objection until after verdict.

(§ II A—85)—RAILWAY TRACK — ACCUMULATION OF ICE.

It is the duty of the employer to provide safe premises for his servants to work; allowing ice and snow to accumulate along the side of a railway track so as to be a trap for a workman walking along the track in the performance of his duty is negligence, and if the cause of an accident the company is liable. The fact that the accident happened on a highway is no defence, the duty being founded not on ownership but on possession.

McEntee v. G.T.P.R., 40 D.L.R. 322, 11 S.L.R. 145, 23 Can. Ry. Cas. 269, [1918] 2 W.W.R. 253.

DEFECTIVE ROADBED — PROHIBITED SPEED — PROXIMATE CAUSE.

A sink-hole due to the inherent weakness of the subsoil of a roadbed, over which place trains were ordered by the railway company to be run at a slow speed, is not necessarily negligence per se and will not support the findings of a jury, that an accident causing the death of a locomotive engineer was caused by the defective roadbed and not having a watchman for same, where the real cause of the accident arose from the excessive and prohibited speed at which the deceased was running his train.

(§ II A—89)—SWING BRIDGE.

The exception to a rule of a railway company that its trains are entirely under the control of the conductors and that their orders must be obeyed except when they are in conflict with the rules and regulations or plainly involve any risk or hazard to life or property, in either of which cases all participating will be held alike accountable, is applicable where a locomotive driver ignored and passed a semaphore which was against his train proceeding and stopped at a water tank until he had filled his engine, when he signalled the conductor, who, by a rule of the company, had entire control of the train, that he was ready to go ahead, and the conductor signalled him to go ahead, and he, still ignoring the semaphore, ran on to a swing bridge which was then being opened to let a tug pass and the engine ran off into the water and the engineer was drowned, his death is due to his own negligence.

(§ II A—94a)—POLE NEAR TRACK.

A railway company which has complied with an order of the Railway Board under subs. (g) of s. 30 of the Railway Act, 1906, requiring its water stand pipes to be placed 7 feet 6 inches from the centre of its tracks, is relieved from liability to a brakeman for injuries sustained while riding on a ladder on the side of a car, by coming in contact with a stand pipe located as required by such order. INJURY TO CONDUCTOR WHILE ADJUSTING TROLLEY — POLE NEAR TRACK.

In an action by a conductor of a municipal owned street railway for injuries sustained by colliding with a metal standard close to the track while adjusting the trolley pole, the fact of the close proximity of the standard otherwise properly constructed, or that because of the overcrowding of the vestibule he is compelled to leave it when adjusting the trolley pole, or the violation of rules of operation which are not pleaded, does not support a jury's finding of negligence against the defendant.

(§ II A—95)—RAILWAY — ACCIDENT TO WORKMAN IN REPAIRING CARS — FAILURE OF WORKMAN TO OBSERVE RULES — FAUTE COMMUNE.

Under certain rules prescribed by the Department of Railways and Canals, a blue flag was required to be placed at the end of a car, when workmen were engaged under or about it. Special instructions were also given that this rule should be strictly adhered to, and each car-repairer was supplied with two of such flags. L., on the day of the accident, had his flags in his toolbox, but neglected to use either of them. While L. was engaged, certain cars, came into contact with the car under which he was working, with the result that he was fatally injured. At the trial it was admitted that he had been negligent, but it was charged that there was faute commune, because the yard-master had ordered the cars to be moved by means of a flying-shunt. The evidence shewed that the yard-master would not have let the cars go on to the siding on which L. was working, had he seen a blue flag on that car:—Held, that the proximate cause of the accident was the negligence of L. in failing to put up a blue flag, and it was not a case in which the doctrine of faute commune should be applied.

Samson v. The King, 15 Can. Ex. 75.

DEFECTIVE SYSTEM — RAILWAYS — BRAKES — FELLOW SERVANT — LIABILITY — WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION.

The use of an auxiliary truck in substitution of a damaged car next to the engine, unconnected with the braking apparatus, thereby reducing the braking efficiency to one-half, is not of itself evidence of a defective system so as to charge the railway company with common law liability for the death of the engineer when the cab of the engine was struck by it in the process of shunting; the accident having been occasioned by the negligence of a fellow servant in thus placing the truck, the liability of the company was limited to recovery under the Workmen's Compensation Act (N.B.).

(§ II A—96) — OPERATION OF RAILWAY CARS — NEGLIGENCE.

A railway company is liable for injury to an employee who was caught in a narrow space between a car which he was moving and a nearby building while he was climbing the nearest side-ladder to reach the brake to stop the car, though he could have safely used a ladder on the other side of the car, where, he, being ignorant of the closeness of the building to the track, naturally used the particular ladder, and where the danger must have been obvious to the foreman who directed him to move the car, and the foremen negligently failed to warn him of the danger.

(§ II A-97) — COUPLING CARS — NEGLIGENCE — SHORT LEVERS — FOREIGN CARS — RAILWAY ACT.

A railway company is liable for an injury sustained by a brakeman while coupling a car belonging to a foreign company, that had a short coupler lever which could not be operated without going between the end of the cars; since the hauling of a car so equipped was a violation of s. 264 (1) of the Railway Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 37, requiring all freight cars to be provided with couplers that can be uncoupled without the necessity of men going between the ends of the cars.

Lapointe v. The King, 14 D.L.R. 394, 14 Can. Ex. 219.

SAFETY APPLIANCES — AUTOMATIC COUPLERS — STATUTORY COMPLIANCE.

Section 264 of the Railway Act, 1906, imposing on railway companies the duty of equipping their cars with automatic couplers and with modern and efficient appliances, does not create an obligation to their employees to equip their cars with the very latest improved couplers immediately after they are put upon the market; and the equipment with couplers of 10 to 15 years' duration used extensively by other railways and approved by the Railway Board is a sufficient compliance with the Act.

SAFETY APPLIANCES — COUPLERS — FROZEN RELEASE — INJURIES TO EMPLOYEE UNCOUPLING.

A train equipped with approved coupling devices as required by s. 264 (c) of the Railway Act, 1906, which had been inspected upon its arrival according to the usual practice and no apparent defects found, will not render a railway company liable for injuries to an employee sustained while uncoupling a car resulting from the formation of ice inside the coupler, preventing its operation, but which could not be visible from the exterior.

RAILWAY OPERATION — INTERSWITCHING — NEGLIGENCE — DUTY OF TRAIN CREW — SCOPE OF EMPLOYMENT — EMPLOYER'S LIABILITY.

A train crew of the defendants while performing their duty in the transfer yard of another railway company were directed by the yardmaster to remove a special car of freight which was to be transferred to the defendants' railway from amongst a number of other cars in the yard. In order to do so it was necessary to shunt several cars placed in front of the car to be transferred and the train crew switched these cars to certain tracks on which there was then standing a train of the other railway company, headed by an engine under which the fireman, plaintiff, was then working. They undertook to couple the cars which they were switching to the standing train, as a matter of convenience, and, in doing so, struck the rear of the train with such force as to move the engine and cause injuries to the fireman who was working under it. Specific questions were not submitted to the jury, notwithstanding suggestions made by defendants' counsel after the judge had charged them, and they returned a general verdict in favour of the plaintiff.—Held, that in so proceeding to couple the cars they had switched on to the standing train the defendants' train crew were still acting within the scope of their employment in the defendants' business and, as they performed the work in a negligent manner, the defendants were liable in damages for the injuries caused to the plaintiff.

(§ II A-100) — RAILWAY EMPLOYEES — LOCOMOTIVE ENGINEER — DUTIES AS TO PRECAUTION — COLLISION — LIABILITY FOR INJURIES.

A locomotive engineer or other railway employee having control of the tracks, after becoming aware of the presence of any person dangerously near the track, however imprudently, is bound to use ordinary care to avoid injury to him when he knows that the danger of collision is imminent; mere knowledge that the danger is possible is not enough there must be knowledge that a collision was likely to occur.

COLLISION — INJURY TO RAILWAY EMPLOYEE — SIGNALS.

A railway company cannot relieve itself of all responsibility for the consequences of a collision by proving that it gave all the warnings required by the Railway Act. It is liable at common law, wholly or partially according to circumstances, when the employee in charge of the engine could by taking ordinary precautions have prevented the accident.

Demers v. C.P.R. Co., 48 Que. S.C. 186.
RUNNING OF TRAINS.

Deceased was employed in the defendants' workshops, and traveled to and from his work on a pass. The condition on the back of the pass, exempting the company from liability for damages to person or property of holder of pass, was not signed by the workman. Deceased was a man skilled in his particular trade, and refused to work for the company unless given transportation. The jury found as a fact that deceased was traveling on a pass, but that there was not sufficient evidence to shew that he was made acquainted with the conditions thereon, and gave a verdict for $9,000, which, on motion for judgment, was sustained by the Trial Judge:—Held, that the finding as to want of knowledge of the condition on the pass should not be interfered with. That the finding was against the weight of evidence. Deceased, while traveling on his employers' car, was injured, and subsequently died from his injuries, in a collision between a car which broke away or became detached from the motor which was pulling it and ran back down grade, crashing into the car occupied by deceased. Defendants admitted that the accident occurred through the negligence of fellow-servants in the employment of defendant company, but there was no other evidence of negligence:—Held, on appeal, that it was for the plaintiff to shew that the accident was due to some specific act of negligence for which the defendants were responsible. Appeal allowed, and verdict set aside.

(§ II A—109)—FAILURE TO OBSERVE STATUTORY REQUIREMENTS.

Section 276 of the Railway Act, 1906, is for the protection of employees of the railway company as well as of the public, and the widow and administratrix of a watchman employed by the company at a level crossing of the railway with a street railway, who is killed in an accident caused by a breach of that section by the running of a freight train backwards over the crossing without any person on the end car to give proper warning of its approach, resulting in a collision with a street car crossing the tracks, may recover damages against the company under s. 276. [McMullin v. N.S. Steel & Coal Co., 7 Can. Ry. Cas. 198, 39 Can. S.C.R. 593, and Lamond v. G.T.R. Co., 7 Can. Ry. Cas. 401, 16 O.L.R. 365, followed.]

(§ II A—110)—ELEVATOR—DUTY TO INSPECT.

An employer is answerable for an injury to a servant by the falling of an elevator where there had been negligence of the employer in failing to have it inspected as frequently as the conditions incident to its use required, and such inspection would have disclosed the defect which caused the elevator to fall. (§ II A—114)—DUTY TO INSPECT—LATENT DEFECTS—ICE IN CAR COUPLER.

The duty of a railway company to inspect cars for defects was discharged, so as to absolve it from liability for an injury to a brakeman through the failure of an automatic car coupler of the best known type to work properly by reason of an accumulation of ice inside it, where the car on its arrival at a station was given the usual inspection, and no practicable system of inspection would have disclosed the presence of the ice.

(§ II A-115)—SELECTION AND RETENTION OF EMPLOYEES—MASTER'S LIABILITY.

Where a master does not personally superintend and direct the work of his servants, his duty is performed, at common law, if he selects proper and competent servants to do so, and furnishes the servants with adequate materials and resources for the work.

SELECTION AND RETENTION OF EMPLOYEES—CITY EMPLOYING DOCTORS FOR GENERAL VACCINATION—CITY'S LIABILITIES, HOW LIMITED.

Where a city exercises due care and prudence in the selection of the physicians whom it employs to perform (without city supervision) the operations in the general vaccination of the resident children of the city, the alleged negligence or fault of one of such physicians in performing a vaccination is not competent or admissible as against the city in an action for personal injuries following the operation. Ballard v. Morris, 12 O.W.N. 48.

RESPONSIBILITY — BLASTING — SUBCONTRACTOR—C.C. ART. 1053.

A company engaged in blasting had 13 holes drilled into a shaft and charged them with dynamite. Only 12 went off. The next day the plaintiff and other laborers having been sent to work in the mine, the 13th hole was struck by a pick, there was an explosion, and plaintiff was injured. Held that the company was liable in damages. The fact that the plaintiff was working for a subcontractor of the company did not affect the liability of the company.

Buschuk v. Dane Mining Co., 25 Rev. Leg. 11.

(§ II A-122) — SAFETY — SERVANTS OF THIRD PERSON—HIRED CREW.

The hirer of a crane owes a duty to the crew furnished with it to so direct and supervise the operation as to provide for the safety of those engaged in it and to employ a system which will ensure the workmen against injury, no matter whose servants they are, and in the absence of the owner's knowledge of the character of the work to be performed with it and his undertaking to supply a machine capable of doing it, there being no contributory negligence or volens, the hirer and not the master of the crew is responsible for the death of a crane-man occasioned by the overturning of the machine in course of operations.

B. SERVANT'S ASSUMPTION OF RISKS.

(§ II B-125)—NEGLIGENCE OF EMPLOYER —EMPLOYEE'S DUTY TO AVOID CONSEQUENCES.

Notwithstanding negligence of an employer which imperils an employee, the latter is bound to use reasonable diligence to avoid the consequences thereof on becoming aware of the negligence.

CONTINUANCE IN EMPLOYMENT WITH KNOWLEDGE OF DANGER.

Mere proof that the employee knew the danger and continued in the employment is not conclusive evidence to prove that he consented to assume the risk, and the trial tribunal is at liberty, notwithstanding, to find that the employee suing for personal injuries sustained by continuing in the dangerous work had not contracted or consented to run the risk.

INJURY TO SERVANT WHILE REPAIRING BUILDING—DEFECTIVE CONDITION.

Although the owner of a building is responsible for the damage caused by what has happened on account of want of repair or by defect in construction, this responsibility cannot be invoked by one who having undertaken to remedy these defects falls a victim to them during his work.

Lambert v. L'Oeuvre, etc., de St. Jean, 48 Que. S.C. 312.

DEFECTIVE SYSTEM—VOLENTI NON FIT INJURIA—COMMON FAULT.

A workman who, knowing the danger of using a machine deprived of protection, continues to use it and is injured, does not necessarily come within the rule volenti non fit injuria. If the employer, knowing of the defects in the machine, neglects to remedy them and permits the workman to use it in this state, there is fault and common liability.

Bégin v. Sharp Construction Co., 26 Que. K.B. 345.

LAW—WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION FOR INJURIES ACT, R.S.M. 1902, c. 178, s. 3—RAILWAY ACT, R.S.C. 1906, c. 37, s. 306—LIMITATION OF TIME FOR ACTION.

Anderson v. C.N.R. Co., 13 Can. Ry. Cas. 321, 21 Man. L.R. 121.

DANGERS OBVIOUS AND INCIDENTAL TO WORK.

The use of dangerous machinery creates in itself no greater liability on the part of its owner to a servant operating it than the use of ordinary machinery. The probability of the circumstances which import danger—knowledge on the part of the Master and absence of knowledge on the part of the workman is much greater, however, where machinery is in its nature dangerous.

Williams v. Western Planing Mills, 3 A.L.R. 214.

(§ II B—132)—WORK OF BRAKEMAN.

By hiring as a brakeman on a railway an employee does not undertake to assume the risk of an accident caused by the neglect of the company to take all necessary and legal precautions for the protection of its employees, and the company is liable in damages for an accident caused by such neglect.

Wentzell v. New Brunswick, &c., R. Co., 43 N.B.R. 475.

(§ II B—133)—SERVANT'S ASSUMPTION OF RISK—GANGWAY—SHIPPING CASES.

Where a longshoreman is engaged by shipowners to assist in unloading a ship, he must be taken to have assumed the risks of defects in the placing and securing by the ship's officers of the gangway over which he must board the ship to get to his work. RAILWAY APPLIANCES—DEFECTS—FINDING OF JURY—NEW TRIAL.

A railway company is not obliged to have the best appliances for the purpose of discharging freight if the appliances used are reasonably fit for the purpose. If the jury give no finding from which it can be inferred what the defect was which led to the accident, a new trial will be ordered.

INANIMATE CHATTEL—BORROWED UNLOADING CRANE—OWNER—CUSTODY OF THE CHATTEL—BORROWER—PRESUMPTION OF MISTAKE—CONTRARY EVIDENCE—C.C. 1053, 1054, 1776.

A derrick, belonging to the defendant being on government land in charge of the defendant Clayton, is an inanimate chattel and falls under art. 1054, C.C. The principle of liability imposed by art. 1054, C.C., is "in case of injury caused by the chattel which one has under his care sets up a presumption of fault." This presumption may be rebutted and destroyed by evidence given by the one who has charge of the chattel, that he committed no fault, and that he was not a party to the cause of the accident occasioning the injury.

Article 1054 does not apply to the defendant company because the crane which they had loaned to Clayton was not under their control and they were incapable of any fault, C.C. 1776.

Miller v. International Hotel Co., 7 O.W.N. 423.

INJURY TO SERVANT—VOLENTI NON FIT INJURIA.

A person entering on a work with full knowledge of possible danger from obvious defects, his duty being chiefly to remedy or report such defects, should not be allowed damages for injuries arising out of such defects unless there be some express agreement to that effect. Defence of volenti non fit injuria held applicable in an action by a roadmaster for injuries received from an accident while using a speeder on an official trip over defendant's railway, the alleged cause of the accident being the bad condition of the rails.

(§ II B-136)—LATENT DEFECTS—MUNITION FACTORY—EMPLOYEE—POISONOUS GASES—VENTILATION—INJURY TO HEALTH—PROXIMATE CAUSE—PROOF.

In an action brought by a workman to recover damages for injury to his health caused, as he alleged, by neglect of his employers' duty to him as their servant while working in their munition factory to ventilate the building in which he worked so as to keep the air reasonably pure so as to render harmless, as far as reasonably practical, vapours generated in the course of the work. Held, that the fact the Workmen's Compensation Board had rejected the claim on the ground that it was not a case of "personal injury by accident" and so was not within the Act, did not stand in the way of the present action. Held, also, that there was no evidence on which reasonable men could find in plaintiff's favour, he having failed to prove absence of proper ventilation, the presence of poisonous vapours, or that the two combined were the proximate cause of his ill health.

(§ II B-139)—DANGEROUS SCAFFOLD.

It is not inexcusable fault for an employer to order his workmen to build a scaffold on which they are to work if the workmen are reasonably competent and know the danger to which they will be exposed and consent to build and use the scaffold without having it examined by a carpenter.

(§ II B-141)—SERVANT'S ASSUMPTION OF RISKS—ELEVATORS.

The risks of employment assumed by an operator of an elevator in a large office building cannot be construed to comprise risks caused by the employer's failure (a) to provide for the use of such operator an elevator in proper working order, and (b) to enclose the elevator shaft at the different floors of the building.

(§ II B-143)—ASSUMPTION OF RISK—COMMON LAW LIABILITY—MACHINERY—ENGINE PACKING.

Where the machinery of a plant is in such a state of repair that no more than ordinary care and attention are required to keep it safe, the Master satisfies his common law liability if he places competent persons in charge and sees that adequate materials are kept on hand for use by them in keeping the machinery and plant in a safe condition; and he will not be liable at common law for injuries to an employee attributable to a fellow-servant's neglect to use the materials provided (e.g., engine packing), although there may be a restricted liability under an employers' liability law. WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT—WHAT APPLIANCES WITHIN—STEAM SHOVEL.

A steam shovel resting on wheels on a temporary track is an "engine or machine" within the meaning of s. 3 (5), Workmen's Compensation Act, R.S.O. 1897, c. 160, so as to render its owner liable for injuries inflicted on a servant through its negligent operation by the engineer in charge. A hoist running on wheels along elevated rails from which depended a cylinder operated by compressed air for lifting and carrying heavy weights is a machine within the meaning of the Workmen's Compensation Act, R.S.O. 1897, c. 160; R.S.O. 1914, c. 146.

MACHINERY GENERALLY.

If a servant, who has been injured in the course of his employment, has disobeyed any order of his master, or has put himself in the wrong place or otherwise acted as he should not, and if his act was one without which he would not have been injured, he cannot recover damages from his master, even though his act was due to mere inadvertence. DEFECTIVE INSTRUMENT—NEGLIGENCE—KNOWLEDGE OF DEFECT—APPRECIATION OF DANGER—ACCEPTANCE OF RISK.

To place in the hands of an employee an instrument for his use which owing to a defect in it is likely to cause him injury is negligence but if, at the moment he takes the instrument to use, he has knowledge of the defect and appreciates the danger and the risk and, notwithstanding this, he voluntarily decides to use it, there is no negligence towards him as he is to be regarded as volens. McClement v. Kilgour Mfg. Co., 3 O.W.N. 446, 29 O.W.R. 770.

(§ II B—144)—USE OF DANGEROUS MACHINERY—FACTORY ACT.

When the employer neglected to guard a shaft, and such want of a guard was a direct and proximate cause of the accident the employee who is not himself negligent is entitled to recover under the Factories Act, R.S.O. 1897, c. 256, s. 19.

UNGUARDED.

A machine which was no part of a factory or plant, but a product thereof manufactured for a customer, is not within the words of intention of s. 32, c. 8, of the Factories Act, 1911 (B.C.), which requires the secure guarding, so far as practicable, of all dangerous parts of mill-gearing, machinery, shafts, etc., so as to render a manufacturer liable where a servant sustained injuries while testing such newly constructed machine, by coming into contact with a portion thereof which was not guarded as such section required, since it was necessary that such portion should be exposed to view in order that all parts of the machine might be properly inspected.

A master who requires his servant to perform a dangerous service cannot say that it was done voluntarily merely because the servant, in the exercise of his duty, performed the service, instead of refusing to do so at the risk of dismissal. A servant who does that which his duty requires him to do, though it may be dangerous, and does it in a reasonable manner, so as not to increase the risk, does not bring himself within the rule volenti non fit injuria.

The maxim, volenti non fit injuria, is not applicable where a servant sustains injuries as a result of a violation of a statutory duty by a master. A servant who continues in an employment with knowledge of the close proximity of a protruding set-screw in a revolving shaft that was not guarded, as required by c. 1, s. 20, of the Nova Scotia Factories Act, 1901, does not thereby voluntarily assume the risk of injury therefrom, so as to deprive himself of a cause of action for personal injuries under the Employers' Liability Act (N.S.) 1900.

DANGEROUS MACHINERY—NEGLIGENCE OF EMPLOYEE—NEGLIGENCE OF EMPLOYER—INJURY—DAMAGES.

A plaintiff cannot recover damages for injuries received where both the plaintiff and defendant are at fault, and the responsibility of the accident has been placed on both, the loss cannot be shared; it must be borne by the injured party.

Aimer v. Cushing Bros., 49 D.L.R. 492.

UNGUARDED MACHINERY—ASSUMPTION OF RISK.

On the defence of volens, in an action for damages by an employee on account of injuries sustained in the course of his employment, the question which has to be considered is whether the plaintiff agreed that, if injury should befall him, the risk was to be his and not his master's.

EMPLOYER'S LIABILITY—LEASE OF MACHINERY—SAW-MILL — PROTECTION — C.C. QUE. 1053.

One who operates a saw-mill with his own machinery is responsible for an accident happening to one of his workmen, even when he had rented his machinery to another person whom he paid for piece work. There is negligence and employer's liability when a buzz plane in a saw-mill is not covered with a protector.

Hubert v. Bradford, 23 Que. K.B. 396, reversing 19 Que. K.B. 271.

The workman who, knowing of the danger of using a machine not properly protected, voluntarily continues to do so and is injured does not necessarily come within the principle of the maxim volenti non fit injuria. If his employer, also aware of the defective nature of the machine, has failed to provide a remedy, and has allowed the workman to use it in its unprotected condition, there is fault and common liability.

Viau v. Villeneuve, 21 Que. K.B. 263.

(§ II B-146)—MINING—VOLENS—MASTER'S BREACH OF STATUTORY DUTY.

The maxim volenti non fit injuria is not applicable in relief of a defendant guilty of a violation of a statutory duty such as is imposed by the Mining Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 32. [McClement v. Kilgour Mfg. Co., 8 D.L.R. 148, 27 O.L.R. 305, applied.]

Dania v. Hudson Bay Mines, 23 D.L.R. 455, 32 O.L.R. 335. [Affirmed by Can. Sup. Ct. February 1, 1916. See 9 O.W.N. 494.]

IN MINE.

The doctrine of volenti non fit injuria applies to bar a negligence action by an employee for personal injury in respect of the employer's failure to protect the place of work on a hillside from falling stones and debris, where the nature of the risk was known to the employee, who with his fellow-workmen had done the work they thought sufficient to guard the place against the stones and debris and where the plaintiff was an experienced man at such work. [Smith v. Baker, [1891] A.C. 325, distinguished.] The relation of master and servant implies an obligation on the part of the master to provide for the safety of his servant in the course of his employment to the best of the master's judgment; yet, in that sort of employment where the servant must have known as well as his master, or probably better, whether or not the place was safe, it is the servant's duty to exercise diligence and caution to avoid danger. (§ II B-151)—SERVANT WHEELING CONCRETE OVER RUNWAY—DEFECT IN PLATFORM—INFERENCE.

McKeand v. C.P.R. Co., 2 O.W.N. 812, 18 O.W.R. 309.

(§ II B-153)—DAMAGES—DAMAGED CAR—DEFECTIVE LADDER—NOTICE—STATUTORY DUTY—RAILWAY ACT, R.S.C. 1906 c. 37, s. 264—BREACH OF RULES—PROXIMATE CAUSE OF INJURIES.

Smith v. G.T.R. Co., 20 D.L.R. 901, 32 O.L.R. 380.

INJURIES TO EMPLOYEE—MOVING CAR—NEGLIGENCE OF RAILWAY COMPANY FOREMAN ALLEGED.

Lennox v. G.T.R. Co. and C.P.R. Co., 19 O.W.R. 169.

(§ II B-156)—TRACK AND ROADBED.

Where in emergency work on a railroad, a member of the wrecking crew, while assisting in clearing the track after an accident from an unknown cause, is injured by the unexpected and unusual plunge of a twisted rail on its release by cutting the bolts on the fish-plate connecting the rail, no negligence is shewn against his employer and the doctrine res ipsa loquitur does not apply.

OPERATION OF RAILWAY—CONDITION OF YARD—"LAY-OUT" OF CONCOURSE—SWITCHING.

(§ II B-158)—SPEED OF TRAIN.

A car cleaner employed by the defendants was injured by being struck by an engine while walking on the track. The jury found that the injured party was not guilty of negligence but that the negligence which caused the accident was improper light of yards during the time of alterations and the train being a little ahead of time running at an excessive speed. The jury did not answer the question as to failure to ring the bell. Held, that the accident was not due to actionable negligence on the defendant's part and the action must be dismissed. When a jury exonerates an injured party from the charge of contributory negligence upon the evidence which but for the finding would appear to shew very convincingly that he was the author of his own injuries, the court should ascertain whether there is evidence upon which the jury might reasonably find negligence on the part of the defendants which actually caused the injury or whether the findings of the jury make a case of actionable negligence against the defendants. Charges of alleged negligence expressly put to the jury upon which the jury did not make a finding must be taken to have been negatived. There was no duty owed by the defendants to the plaintiff regarding the time of arrival of any of its trains. There is no rule of law limiting the rate of speed of railway trains in the interests of railway workmen. [Andrews v. C.P.R. Co., 37 Can. S.C.R. 1, 5 Can. Ry. Cas. 450, followed.]

Paquette v. G.T.R. Co., 13 Can. Ry. Cas. 68, 19 O.W.R. 305.

(§ II B—160)—KNOWLEDGE BY SERVANT OF DEFECT OR DANGER.

Where a servant was killed by a brick falling through an opening in a platform under which his work did not take him the master is not answerable therefor where the servant had been warned as to and knew the danger of going under the opening, and had been expressly directed to keep away therefrom.

Mercantile Trust Co. v. Canada Steel Co., 5 D.L.R. 35, 3 O.W.N. 1467, 22 O.W.R. 568, affirming 3 D.L.R. 518, 3 O.W.N. 980.

SERVANT'S ASSUMPTION OF RISKS—KNOWLEDGE OF DEFECT.

Neither the employee's knowledge of a defect in the condition of the works due to the employer's negligence, nor the continuance in the employment, is conclusive evidence of willingness on the part of the employee to incur the risk.

EXTENT OF KNOWLEDGE.

Knowledge on the part of an employee of the risk he runs in his employment is not sufficient to bring him within the rule of volenti non fit injuria, but it is necessary also to prove that he knew the nature and extent of the risk.

Valel v. Small, 11 D.L.R. 433, 4 O.W.N. 1238, 24 O.W.R. 529.

KNOWLEDGE BY SERVANT OF DANGERS—DUTY TO WARN AGAINST DANGERS.

Though an employer must point out to an employee latent dangers, the latter must use ordinary care to ascertain dangers incident to his work.

BLASTING.

The risk of injury from a premature explosion is assumed by an employee, who, without protest, works for six weeks loading holes for blasting, in proximity to other holes that, preparatory to loading, were being "sprung" or enlarged by exploding a small quantity of powder in them, with knowledge that the concussion therefrom was liable to discharge the powder in the hole he was charging.

Beck v. Guthrie, 14 D.L.R. 524, 18 B.C.R. 482, 26 W.L.R. 11, 5 W.W.R. 531.

Where a mine proprietor leaves a winze in the mine unprotected, contrary to a statute requiring protection, and supplies the employee with a defective wrench to use in his work on a drill, by reason of which negligence and defect the employee fell down the winze and was killed, the employer's liability is not taken away by a finding that the employee might have avoided the accident by exercising more care in using the defective wrench, if there is no evidence that the employee knew the wrench to be defective.

(§ II B—161)—IN RAILWAY CASES.

Where a statutory duty is cast upon a master in any particular work, the fact that a servant continues in that work with knowledge of its dangerous character and appreciation of the risk thereof, does not render the maxim volente non fit injuria applicable so as to absolve the master from liability, unless it is shown that the servant undertook the employment not only with knowledge of the risk involved, but also of the master's statutory duty in respect thereto.

Clark v. C.P.R. Co., 2 D.L.R. 331, 20 W.L.R. 877, 17 B.C.R. 314, 14 Can. Ry. Cas. 51, 1 W.W.R. 1213.

COUPLING CARS—KNOWLEDGE OF DANGER—VIOLATION OF RULES.

On the principle of volens, a brakeman is not entitled to recover from a railway company for personal injuries he sustained while uncoupling cars where, with full knowledge of the risk and in violation of the company's rules, he goes between the cars while in motion for the purpose of uncoupling them.

C.P.R. v. Frechette, 22 D.L.R. 356, [1915] A.C. 871, 24 Que. K.B. 459, 18 Can. Ry. Cas. 251, reversing 23 Que. K.B. 203.

(§ II B—162)—ASSUMPTION OF RISK.

There is no assumption of risk unless the workmen knew of the danger; and the doctrine will not bar a bricklayer's action for damages for injuries sustained by the falling of the wall in the construction of which he was assisting where he followed the line, stretched to lay brick to, and which it was the duty of the corner-men to turn over as occasion required, so that the wall could be properly backed, where the plaintiff did not know that such duty of his fellow-workmen had been neglected to the extent of making the wall dangerous.

(§ II B-165)—SCOPE OF EMPLOYMENT—ENGAGING OUTSIDE OF DUTIES.

An employee who was directed by his foreman to be present during the testing of a machine in another department of a factory, in order to attend to mechanical details during the test, was acting in the course of employment where he was killed while attempting to fasten the machine more securely to the floor.

WHETHER EMPLOYEE WAS WITHIN SPHERE OF DUTIES.

A foreman in charge of an electric power-house is acting within the sphere of his employment when he himself does or assists in doing necessary work which ordinarily would be done by others under his charge upon whom he had the right to call, unless it is shown that his authority was limited by his employer to the requisitioning of help in such cases.

(§ II B-170)—COMPLIANCE WITH COMMANDS.

Where the defendant's donkey engine was being moved by its pulling with its own steam upon a cable attached to a stationary object, thus being dragged along in the direction desired and was operated by the plaintiff, the engineer, who was standing on the two handles which worked the drums on one of which the cable was being rolled up as the engine moved along, though there was a runner along the side of the engine which would have been a safer place for him to stand if the engine should jerk, and the engine stuck fast and would not go ahead and the defendant's foreman in charge of the work shouted to the plaintiff to "slacken her up and give her head," meaning to loosen the cable and then go ahead at full steam so that when the cable pulled taut the engine would be jerked over the obstruction, and the plaintiff obeyed the order, and the jerk resulting threw him off the engine and injured him, there being no evidence that the foreman knew that the plaintiff was riding on the handles, these circumstances shewed no negligence within subs. 3 of s. 3 of the British Columbia Employers' Liability Act, providing that a workman injured by reason of the negligence of any person in the service of the employer to whose orders the workman was bound to conform, and did conform, where such injury resulted from his having so conformed, shall have the same remedies against his employer as if he had not been in his employ.

It is immaterial, under the Quebec Work-Can. Dig.—96.

men's Compensation Act, that the workman is paid by the piece or by the foot, provided the work is done on the premises, and under the supervision of the employer.

Beaulieu v. Picard, 7 D.L.R. 2, 42 Que. S.C. 455.

(§ II B-171)—IN DITCH OR TRENCH.

In order to establish a case under the Workmen's Compensation for Injuries Act (R.S.O. 1897, c. 160), of liability for the negligence of a superintendent, it is not necessary that such superintendence should be exercised directly over the workman injured, or that the workman should be acting under the immediate orders of such superintendent; it is enough if the superintendent and the workman are both employed in the furtherance of the common object of the employer, though each may be occupied in distinct departments of that common object. [Kearney v. Nicholls, 76 L.T. News, 63, followed.]

Magnussen v. L'Abbé, 4 D.L.R. 857, 3 O.W.N. 864, 21 O.W.R. 376.

Where a foreman in charge of blasting operations charges a drill hole with dynamite, and, forgetting that he has done so, orders one of the workmen to clean out the hole, and where the workman had been told by his employer to obey the orders of the foreman, and did obey, the employer may be held liable in damages under subs. 3 (as well as under subs. 2) of s. 3 of the Workmen's Compensation for Injuries Act, R.S.O. 1897, c. 160.

(§ II B-173)—MACHINERY GENERALLY.

Negligence on the part of an employer resulting in injury to one of his employees is shown where it appears that his foreman, while men under him were engaged in moving across the floor of the master's works a heavy iron beam with hooks large and adequate enough to carry the beam, ordered the men to use smaller hooks because the larger hooks, on account of their length, would not lift the beam over a pile of iron stringers on the floor, and where it was proved that the smaller hooks were insufficient for the purpose and permitted the beam to fall, injuring one of the men engaged in the work of removing it.

Smith v. Hamilton Bridge Works Co., 5 D.L.R. 216, 3 O.W.N. 1524, 22 O.W.R. 872, affirming 3 O.W.N. 177, 20 O.W.R. 227.

(§ II B-175)—NEGLECT OF FELLOW-SERVANT—PERSON IN CONTROL OF MACHINE UPON TRAMWAY.

Dunlop v. Canada Foundry Co., 12 D.L.R. 791, 28 O.L.R. 140, affirming 2 D.L.R. 880, 28 O.L.R. 140.

(§ II B-180)—NEGLECTANCE—FELLOW-SERVANT'S NEGLIGENCE.

It is actionable negligence when defendant's servants placed a plank in a weak and insecure position for the workmen to walk up so that it tilted while the plaintiff was turning over a box of bolts end over end upon it in loading a dray, alongside his employer's warehouse, with the result that the plaintiff, who did not know that it was insecure, fell and was injured, particularly where by statute the employer is held liable for the negligence of a fellow-workman of the injured party (N.W. Ord. Alta. 1911, c. 98.)

FELLOW-SERVANT'S NEGLIGENCE—MASTER'S OWN NEGLIGENCE.

The liability of a master to a third person or to the general public for injuries resulting through the negligence of his servant is a matter of tort, but the liability of the master for injuries to the servant himself is based on an implied obligation in the contract of hiring whereby the master indemnifies the servant against the negligence of the master himself or someone standing in his place but not against the negligence of a fellow-servant, and hence the workman is not entitled at common law to obtain indemnity where the injury is occasioned through the negligence of a fellow-workman. The claims of a man injured in the service of his master depend on the contract of service, and the implied contract of the master does not extend to indemnify the servant against the negligence of any but the master himself, nor to include the workman's assumed risks as to a fellow-servant's negligence.

COMMON EMPLOYMENT—MASTER'S BREACH OF DUTY.

The defence of common employment is not available to the master in a case in which injury has been caused to a servant by the negligence of a fellow-servant selected by the master in breach of a statutory duty to employ in the particular service only persons who have passed a qualifying test, if the injury be the natural consequence of the lack of capability which the test should have disclosed. [Groves v. Wimborne, [1898] 2 Q.B. 402, applied.]

NEGLECTANCE OF FELLOW-SERVANT—ACTING IN PLACE OF FOREMAN.

That a fellow workman as the senior and more experienced of those employed in painting a building had assumed in the temporary absence of the foreman to give directions to a fellow employee, will not support an action in negligence under the Employers' Liability Act, R.S.M. 1913, c. 61, against the employer in respect of such directions where in fact the employees were upon an equal status. [Garland v. Toronto, 23 A.R. (Ont.) 238, applied; Shea v. Inglis, 11 O.L.R. 124, distinguished.]

SERVANT'S ASSUMPTION OF RISKS—FELLOW-SERVANT'S NEGLIGENCE.

An employee who permits a fellow-servant to do part of the work allotted to be personally performed by the former, and which it was no part of the fellow-servant's line of duty to do, cannot hold their common employer liable in negligence (apart from the Workmen's Compensation Act, Alta.), for personal injuries sustained by the negligence of the fellow-servant so assisting, although a superior foreman to both was aware that the latter had been in the habit of so assisting and had given no orders to prevent the continuance of that course of working.

VERDICT UNDER COMMON-LAW LIABILITY—"DEFECTIVE SYSTEM"—FELLOW-SERVANT'S NEGLIGENCE.

A verdict under the common-law liability of an employer for negligence in not maintaining an adequate system of warning the employees engaged in hoisting operations with a "skip," is not sustainable where the signalman employed was competent, careful and experienced and the system of verbal warning to the workmen to stand clear followed by a signal with the hand to the engineer to raise the skip was an adequate one if followed; the fact that the jury declined to find that the signal had or had not been given as sworn to, does not entitle the plaintiff to damages as even if the signal had not been given the injury was attributable to the negligence of the signalman a fellow-servant of the plaintiff and not a superintendent and the employer was not liable.

(§ II B-181)—BREACH OF STATUTORY DUTY—CONTRIBUTORY NEGLIGENCE OF SERVANT.

C. CONTRIBUTORY NEGLIGENCE OF SERVANT.

(§ II C-185)—PROJECTING SET SCREW—CONTRIBUTORY NEGLIGENCE.

In an action for injury to a workman in a saw-mill through alleged negligence in not guarding a projecting "set screw" in the machinery as required by the Nova Scotia Factories Act, 1901, it is not sufficient to entitle plaintiff to judgment that the jury in answer to questions found that the "set screw" should have been countersunk and had that been done it would have been a protection, if the jury also answered that the accident occurred through the plaintiff's own negligence.

INJURY TO LINEMAN CLIMBING POLE—DISREGARD OF PRACTICE.

The disregard by a lineman of a practice, not a rule, in not ascending an old pole before it was lashed to the new pole is not in itself contributory negligence to warrant a withdrawal of the case from the jury. [Randall v. Ahearn & Soper, 34 Can. S.C.R. 698, applied.]

KNOWLEDGE OF DANGER—ASSUMPTION OF RISK.

A workman who, in pursuance of orders, operates a machine which he knows to be dangerous and unguarded, is not necessarily guilty of such contributory negligence as should absolve his employer from liability, unless the workman has in fact agreed to assume the risk involved.

In the absence of an express finding by the jury that a servant at the time he was killed was guilty of contributory negligence a master will not be liable therefor on the theory that his death was the result of a mere act of inadvertence upon the servant's part during the course of his employment.

Mercantile Trust Co. v. Canada Steel Co., 3 D.L.R. 518, 3 O.W.N. 980, 21 O.W.R. 808.

FAILURE TO SUGGEST REMEDY FOR DEFECTS—CIRCULAR SAW.

An employer is obliged to take the utmost care to prevent injuries being caused to his employees through the use of a circular saw, by adopting devices to that end, as by providing it with a guard; if he does not take this precaution, he is responsible in damage in case of accident. But where the employee is a skilled and experienced mechanic in charge of the machine, who knowing the danger never suggested that a guard should be installed, although it was within his power to obtain one from his employer, he is guilty of contributory negligence.

Stewart v. St. Lawrence Flour Mills Co., 26 Que. K.B. 476. [Affirmed 39 D.L.R. 790, 55 Can. S.C.R. 624.]

DANGEROUS METHOD WHEN SAFER COURSE AVAILABLE.

A workman who, with full knowledge of the risk he is taking, deliberately adopts a dangerous method of doing his work, when there is open to him another method of doing it which is free from risk, cannot impose liability upon his employer for personal injuries resulting entirely from his adoption of the unsafe course.

In an action for damages for injuries sustained by the plaintiff, while working for the defendants in the woods as a rigging slinger, the jury found that a part of the defendants' plant was defective and that the plaintiff was not guilty of contributory negligence:—Held, on the evidence, that the case was brought within the Employers' Liability Act; and that the judgment entered for the plaintiff, upon the jury's findings should not be disturbed; Irving dissenting. Answers given in re-examination to leading questions, expressed in terms which conflict with what the witness has said in cross-examination, are no guide in arriving at the truth.

(§ II C—186)—MASTER AND SERVANT—CONTRIBUTORY NEGLIGENCE OF INFANT—SPEEDY DRIVING—BREACH OF STATUTORY DUTY — ACTION AGAINST EMPLOYER — LIABILITY.

A by-law of the city of Toronto, passed pursuant to the clause of the Municipal Act, now R.S.O. 1914, c. 192, s. 400, subs. 49, authorizing a municipality to pass by-laws to regulate traffic in the public streets, provided that no vehicle should be driven upon any street in the city in charge of any driver less than 16 years old:—Held, that the prohibition of the by-law was not for the protection of the driver, but for the protection of the public; and the breach of it by the employer of a boy under 16 in permitting the boy to drive a horse in the public streets, did not give the boy a cause of action against his employer for injury sustained while so driving. [Fahey v. Jephcott, 2 O.L.R. 449; Hagle v. Laplante, 20 O.L.R. 339; Fowell v. Grafton, 22 O.L.R. 550, distinguished.]

Milligan v. Thorne, 32 O.L.R. 195.

(§ II C—191)—UNEXPLODED HOLE IN MINE—FAILURE TO LOOK.

The fact that an employee in a mine did not look to see whether or not a hole charged with dynamite was unexploded, does not establish contributory negligence in bar of his action for personal injuries, where there were no warnings leading him to such inquiry.

(§ II C—192)—RIGHT TO SET UP, VIOLATION OF STATUTE.

A servant, whose duty required him to work in a restricted place at a table in close proximity to a setscrew in a revolving shaft that was not guarded, as required by s. 20 of c. 1 of the Nova Scotia Factories Act, 1901, is not guilty of contributory negligence, where, while passing over the table in the discharge of his duties, his clothing was caught by such setscrew and he was seriously injured.

(§ II C—195)—RAILWAY AND STREET RAILWAY CASES.

An employee of a railway company is guilty of contributory negligence, which will bar a recovery of damages by his personal representatives against the company for his death in the course of his employment, where the deceased was walking between two parallel tracks in a railway yard, and, without looking to ascertain if any train was approaching, stepped upon a track on which a freight train was moving and where the yard helper on one of the moving cars endeavoured to warn the deceased, and caused the brakes to be applied, but not in time to prevent the deceased being struck.

McEachen v. G.T.R. Co., 2 D.L.R. 588, 3 O.W.N. 628, 21 O.W.R. 187.

The deceased, a brakeman, in the employ of the defendants, while walking on a siding in express violation of one of the defendants' rules, was run over by a car of the defendants and killed by a moving train. Held, that the deceased took the risk of accident by disobedience to the orders of the defendants and no action for negligence would lie.

Pettigrew v. G.T.R. Co., 13 Can. Ry. Cas. 118.

(§ II C—198)—INJURIES TO SWITCHMAN—DEFECTIVE ENGINE—UNAUTHORIZED USE—PROXIMATE CAUSE.

There can be no recovery either at common law or under the statute where the real and basic cause of an accident and the resultant injuries to a switchman is the unauthorized taking and using of an untested and defective engine by the switching crew whom he voluntarily assisted in the taking and using of the engine with knowledge of its defective condition.

Hile v. G.T.P.R. Co., 24 D.L.R. 9, 8 W.W.R. 403.

(§ II C—199)—UNPROTECTED FROG—UNCOUPLING CARS IN MOTION.

An unprotected frog is not of itself negligence where the deceased met his death in an attempt to uncouple cars while in motion, unless his duties required him to do so.

RAILWAY COMPANY—OPENING COUPLERS AS VIOLATION OF RULE AGAINST ADJUSTING COUPLERS OF MOVING CARS.

For a brakeman, while standing on the side ladder of a freight car, to lean around the end of the car in order to open the coupler, the lever of which was too short to be worked from the side of the car, is not a violation of a rule against going between moving cars to adjust couplers. It is not contributory negligence for a brakeman, while standing in a crouching position on the side of a moving freight car with one foot on a loose step 6½ inches below the bottom of the car, and holding with one hand to a rung of a side ladder 14 inches above the bottom of the car to attempt to open the car coupler, by reaching around the end of the car in order to work the lever operating the coupling apparatus, which was considerably shorter than the levers commonly used on other cars.

(§ II C—201)—DANGEROUS POSITION ON CAR.

Where one employed by another as a car repairer was ordered by another employee to assist him in repairing a car standing upon a track in the yard when other cars were propelled against it and injured him, the master, in the absence of a plea of volens or evidence that the negligence of the servant contributed to the injury, is liable in an action under the Workmen's Compensation Act (Ont.) for the injuries thus sustained.

G.T.R. Co. v. Brulott, 46 Can. S.C.R. 629, affirming Brulott v. G.T.R. Co., 24 O. W.R. 154, 19 O.W.R. 514.

D. DISOBEDIENCE OF RULES.

(§ II D—205)—CROWN EMPLOYEE.

An injury to an employee of the Crown while adjusting a machine, contrary to instructions and which he knew to be the duty of another, is not attributable to the negligence of any officer or servant of the Crown acting within the scope of his duties within the meaning of s. 20 of the Exchequer Court Act (R.S.C. 1906, c. 140).

Girard v. The King, 34 D.L.R. 509, 16 Can. Ex. 95.

LOADING VESSEL.

A finding that the employing shipowners had not taken the necessary precautions to enforce their rule that labourers employed in loading the vessel should use the companion-way and not the hatchway in descending to work, will, if supported by the evidence, be sufficient on which to make the employers liable for injury causing the foreman's death, where a labourer in attempting the dangerous mode of descent by the hatchway from the upper to the main deck fell into the hold and upon the foreman who was there in the discharge of his duties and caused injuries to the latter from which his death resulted, where the circumstances shewed that the accident occurred before the labourer became subject to the control of the deceased foreman, and that the enforcement of the rules prohibiting the use of the hatchway as a means of descent was a matter for the general superintendent and others in authority who would have known, if they had exercised proper supervision, that the practice of descending by the hatchway in contravention of the rules had become common amongst the labourers employed.

Donaldson v. Deschenes, 16 D.L.R. 656, 49 Can. S.C.R. 136.

CONTRIBUTORY NEGLIGENCE.

An application by a workman for compensation for personal injury under the Workmen's Compensation Act, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 244, will be refused where the accident, basing the claim, is the result of the serious and wilful misconduct of the plaintiff, e. g., his disobedience of repeated warnings not to do the work in question without first throwing back the lever of the machine which he was cleaning and turning off the power.

Clayton v. Hanbury, 17 D.L.R. 384, 27 W.L.R. 893.

LOCUS OF ACCIDENT—CAUSE—COMPENSATION.

The fact that a workman, despite warnings, persists in remaining in a place of danger where he is killed is inexcusable fault on his part for which the damages should be reduced, but it does not mean that the accident was intentionally induced by him so as to deprive his representatives of the right to compensation. When an accident happens during working hours it is not necessary that it should occur in the immediate vicinity of the place assigned to the workman who is its victim; it suffices that it was occasioned by the work. If the deceased was the sole support of the ascendant who claims compensation, the latter is entitled to compensation though the deceased contributed to the maintenance of others.

Dominion Quarry Co. v. Morin, 21 Que. K.B. 147.

EMPLOYERS' LIABILITY — VOLENTI NON FIT INJURIA — MINER INJURED THROUGH USING WRONG TOOL.

The plaintiff, in mining coal for defendants was injured by an explosion caused by his using an iron scraper instead of a wooden tamping rod in packing clay while preparing for exploding the coal. He knew the use of the scraper for such purpose was prohibited by law and was dangerous to life. He had broken his tamping rod the day previous and had failed to get another. He said he had not applied to the defendants' office as he knew they had none in store. Held even if, under the terms of the order of the coal director, the defendants were bound to supply the rod (which the court doubted) their failure to do so did not excuse plaintiff in wilfully subjecting himself to the risk taken and defendants were not liable for common-law damages. The rule volenti non fit injuria applied.

Garbonia v. Western Commercial Co., [1919] 2 W.W.R. 52.

(§ II D—206)—WORKMAN—PROHIBITED ACTION—INJURY—NO COMPENSATION—DAMAGES.

Where a workman deliberately performs an act prohibited by his employers, the transgression committed carries him outside the sphere of his employment and as he is not required or expected to perform such act he is not entitled to compensation for injuries resulting from such act.

INJURY TO SERVANT BOARDING MOVING TRAIN CONTRARY TO RULES—PROXIMATE CAUSE.

The premature starting of a train without ascertaining that all the train-crew were aboard will not render the Crown liable for injuries sustained by an employee on its railway, where the accident resulted from an attempt to board the train while in motion in violation of a Crown regulation.

E. FELLOW-SERVANTS AND THEIR NEGLIGENCE.

(§ II E—210)—FELLOW-SERVANTS AND THEIR NEGLIGENCE.

Where an employee, while engaged with fellow-workmen in rolling up timbers on flat cars, which timbers were similar to telegraph poles, being larger at one end than the other, and the only inference to be drawn from the evidence as to the cause of the accident is one of three alternatives:

—(1) The small end was rushed up too fast; or (2) the fellow-employees of the plaintiff let go the big end when they should and could have held it; or (3) there was not sufficient men on the job to hold the timber up, a judgment by the Trial Court in favour of the defendant will be reversed on appeal and judgment entered for the plaintiff for his damages sustained. FELLOW-SERVANTS—PUBLIC WORKS—GOVERNMENT RAILWAY—NEGLIGENCE OF CROWN'S SERVANTS—COMMON EMPLOYMENT—R.S.N.S. c. 178, s. 10—INTERRUPTION OF PRESCRIPTION.

C., who was primarily employed with a gang of labourers on a certain work, was lent by his foreman to the foreman of another gang engaged in another work. Owing to the negligence of the foreman last mentioned in using a certain piece of machinery for the purpose, an accident occurred whereby C. was killed. In an action by the representatives of the deceased:—Held, that the case having arisen in the province of Nova Scotia, and the negligence complained of being that of a fellow-servant of deceased, the Crown was entitled to raise the defence of common employment. [Ryder v. The King, 9 Can. Ex. 350, 36 Can. (§ II E—215)—BRIDGE OPERATIONS—SAFEGUARDS—NEGLIGENCE OF FOREMAN—LIABILITY—STATUTE—COMMON LAW.

Where operations for the lowering a wooden approach to a bridge have been placed under the competent management of men experienced in the work, and all materials and appliances for taking every needed precaution against accidents provided, an omission of the superintendent or foreman to sufficiently safeguard a false bent in the structure resulting in an injury to an employee, not attributable to a defect in any permanent structure in respect of which the master owes a duty to safeguard, is negligence of the management and not of the master, for which the latter cannot be held liable at common law, and recovery in such case can only be had under the Employers' Liability Act, R.S.M. 1913, c. 61. The defence of common employment has no application to the breach of the statutory duty to supply a "pentice" to protect a shaft, imposed by statutory r. 17 of s. 164 of the Mining Act of Ontario, 8 Edw. VII. c. 21. [Sault Ste. Marie Pulp & Paper Co. v. Myers, 33 Can. S.C.R. 23, followed.]

(§ II E—225)—STATUTORY DUTY—RAILWAY EMPLOYEES PASSING TEST.

Where a railway company in breach of the duty imposed by order no. 12225 of the Railway Board, permits an employee to engage in the operation of trains without the specified examination and test, the company is, under s. 427 of the Railway Act, 1906, liable in damages to any person injured as a result of such breach of duty.

NEGLECTANCE OF FELLOW-SERVANT — STATUTORY LIABILITY.

The effect of the Judicature Act, R.S.S. 1909, c. 52, s. 31 (14), is to make the employer liable to a workman if the accident whereby the latter sustains personal injuries in the course of his employment is due to the negligence of a fellow-servant.

An employee bringing an action in Manitoba to recover damages for alleged negligence taking place in Alberta cannot succeed under the Workmen's Compensation Act (Man.), 6 Geo. V. 1916, c. 125. He must find his remedy, if any, at common law. [Simonson v. C.N.R., 15 D.L.R. 24, applied.]

COMMON EMPLOYMENT — COMMON LAW — CHANGE OF RULE BY WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ENACTMENTS.

Although an employer is not liable at common law for injuries to an employee sustained by reason of the negligent act of a foreman, if the machinery supplied is proper and usual and the employer has taken reasonable precautions to insure the safety of his employee; yet, under the Workmen's Compensation for Injuries Act, R.S.O. 1897, c. 160, there may be liability in such cases, where the plaintiff (at the instance of a third party, employed by the defendants, to whose orders the plaintiff, in the same employment, was bound to conform) is required by such third party to do, and does, certain work in the doing of which the plaintiff is injured through such third party's negligence.

NEGLECTANCE CAUSING DEATH—LIMITATION TO INJURIES WITHIN PROVINCE—EMPLOYERS' LIABILITY ACT (MAN.).

The Employers' Liability Act, R.S.M. 1913, c. 61 was intended to be confined in its operation to injuries occurring in the province of Manitoba, and is not available in an action against a railway company for negligence causing death brought in Manitoba by a Manitoba administratrix in respect of a fatal accident occurring on a part of the railway in Ontario; nor will an action in Manitoba be available under the corresponding Ontario statute unless the plaintiff has given the notice of injury which the latter requires. [Simonson v. C.

NEGLECTANCE OF FELLOW-SERVANT — CHANGE OF RULE BY STATUTE IN PROVINCE WHERE INJURY SUSTAINED — ACTION IN ANOTHER PROVINCE.

R.S.S. 1909, c. 52, s. 31, subs. 14, which declares in effect that the defence of common employment shall no longer obtain in an action against an employer for injuries resulting to the employee from the negligence of another employee engaged in the same service, applies only to actions in Saskatchewan, and will not sustain an action by the employee in Manitoba for injuries sustained in Saskatchewan in the course of his employment, to which action there was in Manitoba as regards injuries sustained outside of the province, a defence at common law on the ground that the injury was received from the act or default of a fellow-servant constituting an ordinary risk incident to the service. The Employers' Liability Act, R.S.M. 1913, c. 61, giving an employee a right of action which did not exist at common law in respect of the negligence of a fellow-servant, does not apply to injuries suffered by the employee outside of Manitoba.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT.

In order to recover under the Workmen's Compensation for Injuries Act, C.S.N.B. 1903, c. 146, as amended by 8 Edw. VII, c. 31, s. 3 (a) for injuries caused by a defect in the condition or arrangement of the gear, etc., connected with, intended for, or used in the business of the employer, the workman must prove that the defect was due to negligence on the part of the employer.

Campbell v. Donaldson, 40 N.B.R. 525.

(§ II E—230)—OPERATION OF RAILROADS. Where the jury found that the defendants were negligent and the plaintiff free from contributory negligence, there is necessarily precluded a finding that the plaintiff was volens.

G.T.P.R. Co. v. Brulott, 13 Can. Ry. Cas. 95, 21 O.W.R. 206.

The plaintiff and T. were both employed by the defendants. The plaintiff was assisting T. in repairing a car standing on a track in the defendants' yard, when the yard-engine propelled other cars against the car under repair, and injured the plaintiff, who sued for damages for his injuries, under the Workmen's Compensation for Injuries Act, alleging negligence on the part of T., a person in a position of superintendence to whose orders the plaintiff was bound to conform in not placing a flag in a position to give warning that work was going on upon the track. The jury found:—(1) that the plaintiff's injuries were caused by the neglect of T. in not placing the flag for protection; (2) that T. was a person in a position of superintendence over the plaintiff and to whose orders he was bound to conform; (3) that the plaintiff's injuries were not caused by his own want of care; "It was no part of his duty to place these flags;"—Held, that, notwithstanding that the jury had not found that T. was exercising superintendence at the time of the injury, and had not found that the plaintiff did conform to T.'s orders, yet, having regard to the evidence and the judge's charge, the findings were sufficient, under the said Act, to support a judgment for the plaintiff. When the judge was about to begin his charge, a discussion arose about the frame of two of the questions proposed to be submitted to the jury, and the defendants' counsel suggested another question:—"Did the plaintiff voluntarily perform the acts which caused his accident, knowing of the dangers which he ran?" This defence was not set up in the pleadings nor previously at the trial; and no application was made for leave to amend or to reopen the case or postpone the trial. The judge declined to submit the question, saying that he did not think it fair to introduce it at that stage.

Brolott v. G.T.R. Co., 13 Can. Ry. Cas. 76, 24 O.L.R. 151, affirming judgment of Falconbridge, C.J.

Subsection 5 of s. 3 of the Workmen's Compensation for Injuries Act, R.S.O. 1897, c. 160, should receive a liberal construction in the interests of the workman. An employer may be responsible for the negligence of an employee resulting in injury to another employee, although the one injured is in authority over the other. The plaintiff was foreman of a railway yard of the defendants, and M. was his assistant and subject to his orders. In carrying out the plaintiff's orders, M. gave a wrong direction to the driver of the yard engine, by reason of which the plaintiff was struck by the engine and injured. The engine driver testified that he took his instructions from M.—Held, that there was reasonable evidence that M. was, on the occasion in question, a person in charge or control of the engine, within the meaning of subs. 5; and the defendants were responsible for the negligence of M.

(§ II E—240)—WHO ARE FELLOW-SERVANTS—IMMUNITY OF MASTER.

Under the fellow-servant rule, the immunity of the master is not limited, at common law, to those cases where the injured servant and the one through whose negligence he was injured have been actually engaged at the same work or at work on a common immediate object or near one another or in the employment of the master at the same time.

(§ II E—245)—FELLOW-SERVANTS—COMMON EMPLOYMENT—SELECTION OF WORKMEN BY A TRADE UNION—ASSIGNMENT TO SERVICE.

Where an agreement has been made between shipowners and a society or union of longshoremen whereby the latter undertook to supply to the shipowners the requisite number of men as and when required at a stated rate of wages payable individually to each man employed and for the time only for which he worked, the fact that the selection of the employees was left to the union and that the shipowners had agreed not to discharge any of the men except through the union's foreman employed along with them does not prevent their being employees of the shipowners when they are assigned for duty and enter upon the work, where the foreman himself might have been dismissed by the shipowners and the latter were not only the paymasters but retained the power of controlling the work; and the longshoremen are, therefore, to be considered fellow-servants with the officers and men of the ship in a common employment.

(§ II E—250)—INJURY TO BRAKEMAN—STANDING ON GANGWAY OF LOCOMOTIVE—NEGLIGENCE OF FELLOW SERVANT.

The personal injuries received by the plaintiff, a front-end brakeman, while in the performance of his duty standing on the gangway between the locomotive and tender, looking for signals on the approach to a station, and observing if there were any hot boxes in the trucks of the cars, by being knocked from the train by a poker in the hands of the fireman, and run over, were not due to the negligence of the defendants at common law, or the use of an alleged dangerous system by them.

Moncreiff v. Barnett-McQueen Co., 34 D.L.R. 737, 24 B.C.R. 185, [1917] 2 W.W.R. 625.

VICE-PRINCIPAL.

A teamster employed by a company to carry its workmen to and from their work, has not "superintendence entrusted to him" over the workmen whom he is carrying, within the meaning of the Workmen's Compensation for Injuries Act (R.S.O. 1897, c. 160, s. 3), and a workman injured by his negligence has no right of action against the company under that statute.

Demers v. Nova Scotia Silver Cobalt Co., 3 D.L.R. 346, 3 O.W.N. 1206, 22 O.W.R. 97.

The application of the rule respondent superior to each particular case depends upon facts and is a question of fact.

(§ II E-256)—SUPERINTENDENT.

Under subs. 2 of s. 3, Workmen's Compensation for Injuries Act, R.S.O. 1897, c. 160, giving to workmen the same right of compensation and remedies against the employer as if the workman was not in the service of the employer for personal injuries caused by reason of the negligence of any person in the service of the employer who has any superintendence entrusted to him whilst in the exercise of such superintendence, it is not necessary that such superintendence should be exercised directly over the workman injured, or that the workman should be acting under immediate orders of such superintendence, and it is enough if the superintendent and the workman are both employed in the furtherance of the common object of the employer, although each may be occupied in distinct departments of that common object; but the case is much stronger where the plaintiff was under the orders of the foreman doing the work in question. [Darke v. Canadian General Electric Co., 4 D.L.R. 259, 3 O.W.N. 817; Kearney v. Nichols, 76 L.T. 63, followed.]

Nigro v. Donati, 8 D.L.R. 213, 4 O.W.N. 453, 23 O.W.R. 438.

It is inexcusable fault, involving the employer's liability, for a foreman to do a direct act of disobedience to the well-known rules of the establishment (e.g., giving orders to a workman to enter a "cyclone" stone-crushing machine without previously removing the transmission belt therefrom, and later putting the machine in motion without ascertaining whether such workman had left it).

Houle v. Asbestos & Asbestic Co., 3 D.L.R. 466, 42 Que. S.C. 176.

LIABILITY OF MASTER FOR DEATH OF SERVANT—NEGLIGENCE OF PERSON HAVING SUPERINTENDENCE—STARTING MACHINE WHILE SERVANT IN POSITION OF DANGER.

Under the Workmen's Compensation Act, R.S.O. 1897, c. 160, an employer is liable for the death of a servant as the result of the negligence of an expert electrician, charged with the duty of testing an electric generator, in starting it without ascertaining whether the deceased, who was detailed from a different department to assist in making the test, was in a place of safety; since the tester was a person having superintendence over the deceased within the meaning of the Act. One whose duty it was to set in motion a machine he was testing is a person charged with superintendence, within the meaning of s. 3 (2) of the Act, over a workman from a different department of a factory detailed to assist in the test, although the former did not have general superintendence over such workman.

FOREMAN.

No common law liability on the part of the employer is shown where the foreman in charge was a competent man and the injury to the workman was caused by the failure of the foreman to use certain protective measures for which the foreman had been supplied with adequate materials which he neglected to use either wilfully or by inadvertence.

Murray v. Eburne Saw Mills Co., 8 D.L.R. 71, 2 W.W.R. 1016.

In negligence cases the plaintiff must establish as an affirmative fact that the defendant was guilty of negligence, but when an accident causing injury is the work of a moment, and the eye is incapable of detecting its origin or following its course, the general rule cannot be of universal application or utter destruction would carry with it complete immunity for the employer. (§ II E-265)—SIGNALMAN.

Where a railway company applies to the Railway Board under s. 227 of the Railway Act, 1906, for leave to cross the line of another railway company, and the Board, by its order giving leave to cross, directs that an interlocking plant shall be established at the crossing at the expense of the applicant company, and that the other company, whenever it desires to make use of the crossing, shall be entitled, upon notice to the applicant company, to place a signalman in charge thereof, whose wages are paid by the company, the signalman so appointed is the servant of the company appointing him, and that company, and not the applicant company, is liable to a servant of the applicant company who is injured by the negligence of the signalman in passing a train of the applicant company over the crossing.

(§ II E—266) — LIABILITY — PERSON IN CHARGE—BRAKEMAN GIVING SIGNALS.

A brakeman standing on the ground and giving signals to the engineer of a locomotive engaged in transferring cars from one track to another, is a person in charge or control of the engine, within the meaning of a. 3, sub. 5 of the Workmen's Compensation for Injuries Act, R.S.O. 1897, c. 160. [Allan v. G.T.R. Co., 8 D.L.R. 697; Martin v. G.T.R. Co., 8 D.L.R. 590, applied.]

RAILWAY—INJURY TO SERVANT—BRAKEMAN — NEGLIGENCE—CONTRIBUTORY NEGLIGENCE.

Clark v. C.P.R. Co., 18 W.L.R. 467.

(§ II E—275)—FOR WHAT ACTS OF FELLOW-SERVANT MASTER IS LIABLE.

The doctrine of common employment does not prevail under the law of the Province of Quebec. [Asbestos & Asbestic Co. v. Durand, 30 Can. S.C.R. 285, 292; Filion v. The Queen, 24 Can. S.C.R. 482, applied.]

FOREMAN AS FELLOW-SERVANT — NEGLIGENCE—WORK OF LIFTING IRON PLATES.

Where a foreman has, from his master, discretion as to how many men shall be employed from time to time in lifting iron plates in a factory, the master is not liable for the foreman's error of judgment or negligence in putting on the men too heavy a load, where the foreman is no more than a fellow-servant.

FOR WHAT ACTS OF SUPERINTENDENT MASTER IS LIABLE—WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION FOR INJURIES ACT, R.S.O. 1897, c. 160.

Where a contractor is digging a trench and it is the duty of the man in charge of the blasting to place logs over the drill-holes to prevent the scattering of debris by the blast, and he negligently rolls a log upon and injures a man working in the trench, the contractor is liable under the Workmen's Compensation for Injuries Act (R.S.O. 1897, c. 160) for his negligence, even though the injured workman be not in the blasting department.

Magnussen v. L'Abbé, 4 D.L.R. 857, 3 O.W.N. 864, 21 O.W.R. 376.

NEGLECT OF FOREMAN.

An employer is not liable at common law for an injury to a servant caused by the carelessness of a competent subforeman in the employ of the master.

Dunlop v. Canada Foundry Co., 12 D.L.R. 791, 28 O.L.R. 140, affirming 2 D.L.R. 887, 4 O.W.N. 791.

Where a servant, who was directed to test a machine manufactured by the defendant, called the attention of the defendant's foreman to the danger of doing so without the guarding of rapidly moving saws, and was thereby injured while making such test, the jury may find a verdict against the master under the Employers' Liability Act (B.C.).

SERVANTS AT PLAY—INJURY TO FELLOW SERVANT.

If some servants leave their work and indulge in "larking" to the injury of a fellow servant, that does not infer liability on the employer for damages at common law or under the Employers' Liability Act (N.S.), or the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1910 (N.S.), c. 3. Flocks v. Canadian Northern Coal & Ore Docks Co., 3 O.W.N. 381, 20 O.W.R. 652.

(§ II E—276)—IN MINE—NEGLECT OF FELLOW-SERVANT — COMMON EMPLOYMENT.

For the breach by the mining company of a statutory duty to guard an opening or shaft in a mine, which neglect was the cause of a mine employee falling down the opening, it is no defence that the failure to guard was due to the negligence of a fellow servant in the course of their common employment. [Groves v. Wimborne, [1898] 2 Q.B. 402, applied.]

Pressick v. Cordova Mines, 14 D.L.R. 515, 5 O.W.N. 263, 25 O.W.R. 228.

An employer who has provided for the inspection as to the safety of a mining tunnel, is not answerable as for negligence to his workman who was injured by sticking his pick into a piece of dynamite, if the failure to discover its presence was due to the neglect of a fellow servant to whom the duty of inspection had been assigned; and no facts were disclosed which would be inconsistent with the theory that the dynamite was left at the place of the accident through the carelessness of a fellow workman. (§ III A—285)—INJURY—FINDING OF JURY—NEGLIGENCE OF EMPLOYEES OF TWO DIFFERENT COMPANIES—JOINT AND SEVERAL LIABILITY.

The jury having found on sufficient evidence that an accident resulted from the common negligence of the employees of two different companies, such companies are in law jointly and severally liable for the damage. [Jeannotte v. Couillard, 3 Que. Q.B. 461, distinguished.]

G.T.R. Co. and Montreal v. McDonald, 44 D.L.R. 189, 57 Can. S.C.R. 268, 23 Can. Ry. Cas. 361, affirming 40 D.L.R. 749, 53 Que. S.C. 409.

MASTER'S LIABILITY TO STRANGER FOR SERVANT'S TORT.

A prima facie case of negligence is made out against the owner of a vehicle where it is shown that the vehicle while being driven by one of his servants ran into the plaintiff, who was standing on the sidewalk, and who was injured as the result thereof. (§ III A—286)—RAILWAYS—TRAIN RUN JOINTLY BY TWO COMPANIES—NEGLIGENCE OF ENGINEER—INJURIES—DAMAGES—CONTROL OF SERVANT AT TIME OF ACCIDENT—LIABILITY OF COMPANY.

An agreement was entered into between the Central Vermont R. Co., which was operating a line between St. Albans, U.S.A., and St. Johns, Que., and the G.T.R. Co., which was operating a line between St. Johns and Montreal whereby they were to run a train jointly between St. Albans and Montreal. The same train crew was to remain in charge during the trip, but each company were to pay the crew while running over its own line and each company was to assume all liability for loss or damages sustained in operating trains on its own line. The court held that the Central Vermont R. Co. could not be held liable for damages for injuries caused by the negligence of the engineer while running on the G.T.R. Co.'s line between St. Johns and Montreal. As the engineer was at the time of the accident under the control of, and paid by the G.T.R. Co., it alone was liable.

Central Vermont R. Co. v. Bain; G.T.R. Co. v. Bain, 48 D.L.R. 199, 58 Can. S.C.R. 433, reversing 28 Que. K.B. 45.

(§ III A—289)—WAR REVENUE ACT—PROPRIETOR OF DRUG STORE RESPONSIBLE FOR CLERK'S FAILURE TO AFFIX STAMP—REVENUE OFFICER—CONSUMER.

Under the Special War Revenue Act, 1915 (Can.), the proprietor of a drug store is responsible for the failure of one of his clerks to affix a revenue stamp on goods sold which require the stamp to be affixed although the sale was made without his knowledge, and the clerk had instructions always to affix stamps where they were required. A revenue officer buying goods requiring stamps to be affixed with a view of taking out a summons for violation of the Act is a consumer within the meaning of the Act.

CRIMINAL LIABILITY—REVENUE LAWS.

A company operating a retail store in which perfumes are sold is not liable to fine under the Special War Revenue Act 1915, for the default of its salesman to affix a stamp to a package of perfume making a sale of same, if it has given all proper directions and facilities for carrying out the provisions of the Statute; the penal liability which the Statute provides is upon the "person selling" and the statute has not in this case made the Master criminally responsible for the act of his servant done without his connivance or knowledge. [Somerset v. Hart, 12 Q.B.D. 360, 53 L.J. M.C. 77, applied.]

Patenaude v. Paquet Co., 31 D.L.R. 229, 26 Can. Cr. Cas. 205.

MASTER'S PENAL LIABILITY—WAR REVENUE ACT.

The scheme of the War Revenue Act, 1915 (Can.) is to make the employer liable for the penalties which it provides in respect of failure to affix revenue stamps on the retail sale of certain drug preparations, in respect of sales made in his store by his employees, although he was absent at the time of sale and although general directions had been given the employees not to sell such goods without affixing and cancelling the stamp. [Patenaude v. Paquet Co., 31 D.L.R. 229, 26 Can. Cr. Cas. 204, disapproved.]

Ethier v. Minister of Inland Revenue (Que.), 32 D.L.R. 320, 27 Can. Cr. Cas. 12.

The Special War Revenue Act, 1915, Can., makes the employer liable for the penalties which it provides in respect of failure of his employee in the course of his employment to affix revenue stamps on the retail sale of certain drug preparations, although general directions had been given by the employer to the employee not to sell such goods without affixing and cancelling the stamp. [Ethier v. Minister of Inland Revenue, 27 Can. Cr. Cas. 12, 32 D.L.R. 320, approved.]

Minister of Inland Revenue v. Nairn, 35 D.L.R. 224, 28 Can. Cr. Cas. 1, 11 O.W.N. 422.

(§ III A—290)—SCOPE OF EMPLOYMENT—NEGLIGENT DRIVING.

A "sales-agent" who sells and delivers wares of his employer, and rents a horse and conveyance from him for delivering the goods, although not required to devote any specified time to the work, and paid entirely by commissions, is acting within the scope of his employment when taking the horse and conveyance to the stable after a day's work on his employer's business, and the employer is liable for his negligence.

RECKLESS DRIVING—HIRED TEAM.

A driver furnished by a liveryman with the hiring of a team who assists in the work of the hirer and operates, except as to driving, under the latter's directions, will, in the event of an accident resulting from reckless driving, render the liveryman, not the hirer, liable for damages resulting therefrom. [Consolidated Plate Glass Co. v. Caston, 29 Can. S.C.R. 624, followed.]

SCOPE OF EMPLOYMENT.

Where an incorporated company is authorized to engage in the business of company promotion and of buying and selling corporate shares, its sales agent has no implied authority to bind the company to repurchase at a premium the shares of another company which it is promoting, although such agreement is made as part of or collateral to the agreement of sale and forms a part of the consideration thereof.

NEGLIGENCE — SUPERINTENDENCE — EMPLOYERS' LIABILITY ACT, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 74, s. 3 (2).

C, who was acting as superintendent of the work of loading logs on to trucks by means of a donkey-engine, temporarily took charge of the engine owing to the incompetence of the engineer, and instructed him how to work it. While so engaged, a man employed as a loader was struck by a log that was improperly lowered, and was killed. The plaintiff obtained judgment in an action for damages under the Employers' Liability Act. Held, on appeal that C, being so engaged, was "a person having superintendence entrusted to him" within the meaning of s. 3, subs. 2 of the Act, and the appeal should be dismissed.

Willard v. International Timber Co., 25 B.C.R. 210.

BRUSH FIRE—SCOPE OF EMPLOYMENT.

The relation of committant and préposé exists between a father and his married son, living with him and working on his farm, under his direction and control. The act of the son, in setting fire to the brush on his father's land, though against the latter's will, is part of the work for which he is employed, and implies responsibility in the father.

Doyon v. Poulin, 50 Que. S.C. 117.

RESPONDEAT SUPERIOR.

A responsibility arises from the power of control at the moment of the tort; and the wrongdoer, though in the general service of a third person, may momentarily be the servant of the defendant and be under his control in so far as to render the latter responsible as his master.

Gest v. Berghauser, 25 Que. K.B. 200.

EMPLOYER'S LIABILITY FOR ACTS OF WORKMAN—DAY WORKMEN ON RAILWAY CONSTRUCTION—ACTS DONE DURING MEAL HOUR—QUE. C.C. 1054.

Workmen hired by the day or hour by contractors constructing a railway are "in the performance of the work for which they are employed" during the mid-day recess for their meal and rest; particularly if they are ordered to take such meal and rest at a place indicated, and under the superintendence of a foreman. Accordingly, their employers are responsible for damages caused by them during this interval.

Poliquin v. Davis, 45 Que. S.C. 409.

(§ III A—291)—WANTON OR MALICIOUS ACTS.

A master is answerable in damages for the act of a driver in his employ who, while driving a waggon on car tracks just ahead of a street car, turned out for it at a street intersection, where many people were standing in the roadway waiting to board the car, shouted for them to get out of his way, and drove through the crowd in such a reckless manner as to strike the plaintiff, a person attempting to board the car, which was then opposite the wagon, and knock him down, so that the car ran over and crushed his foot.

Baillargeon v. St. George's, 4 D.L.R. 894, 22 Que. K.B. 6.

Where servants are employed to build a cabin on uncleared land, the clearing of the site for the erecting of the cabin is presumably within the scope of their employment.

ACT OF EMPLOYEE BEYOND SCOPE OF EMPLOYMENT.

A teamster who is hired with his team and wagon by a wood-dealer at a fixed rate per day to deliver wood, is not the servant of the wood-dealer so as to render him liable for damages where in making delivery of a load, the teamster, under the special direction of the buyer of the wood, took the load down an excavation into a basement under a building which was being moved, and after unloading it, and with assistance getting his teams and wagon turned around, on going out from the basement caught and knocked out one of the supports, and caused the floor above, which was heavily weighted with merchandise and machinery, to collapse. Verrall v. Dominion Automobile Co., 3 O.W.N. 108, 20 O.W.R. 178.

(§ III A—294)—EMERGENCY—DANGEROUS COURSES—SCOPE OF EMPLOYMENT.

If in the case of emergency an employee in the course of his employment has two courses open to him, either of which may be dangerous, and in the emergency adopts the more dangerous and is injured, this does not put him outside the scope of his employment, and he is entitled to damages under the Workmen's Compensation Act (Sask.).

B. FOR ACTS OF INDEPENDENT CONTRACTOR.
See Municipal Corporations, II G—210; Negligence, I B—16.

(§ III B—295)—WORK OF DANGEROUS NATURE.

A person cannot divest himself of liability for negligence in leaving an excavation in building operations unprotected as regards persons using the adjoining public highway or lane, by making it a part of the contract with an independent contractor for the excavation work which extended to the street line, and was necessarily dangerous to users of the highway, to provide a sufficient barricade in respect thereof; it is the duty of the former to see that the contractor takes all necessary precautions to prevent injury to third persons from the necessarily dangerous excavations which he has directed to be made.

McLean v. Crown Tailoring Co., 15 D.L.R. 353, 29 O.L.R. 455.

WORK SUPERINTENDED BY EMPLOYER.

The owner of the right to cut timber, who entrusts to a contractor the hauling of the timber from the woods, is responsible for damages caused to third parties by the contractor in the execution of the work if he reserves to himself the control and direction of the enterprise; in such case the relation of master and servant subsists.

Lortie v. Wright, 26 Que. K.B. 18.

(§ III B—297)—LEASE AND HIRE OF WORK — PRINCIPAL CONTRACTOR — SUBCONTRACTOR—WORKS BADLY DONE—DAMPNESS—C.C. QUE. 1688, 1690, 1696.

When a plasterer, subcontractor, plasters certain ceilings upon some concrete put on by another workman, and the plaster falls, he must give explanations and good reasons to avoid liability for the consequent damages. But he is not liable if the principal contractor forced him, in spite of his protests, to do the work on concrete which was too damp, especially when the roof was not finished, and the water was running down on the ceilings.

Quinlan v. Morrison, 23 Que. K.B. 481.

(§ III B—300)—CONSTRUCTION WORK BY CONTRACTOR—EMPLOYER'S DUTY TO PROTECT PASSERS-BY—FOR WHAT ACTS OF CONTRACTOR EMPLOYER IS LIABLE—EMPLOYING COMPETENT CONTRACTOR—EFFECT OF.

Where a person employs another to do construction work which, in the natural course of things, will involve a duty towards passers-by on the adjacent street to reasonably protect them from material falling upon them during the work of erecting the building, the owner for whom the work is being done is not relieved from responsibility for the performance of that duty by employing an independent contractor to perform it and to assume the whole responsibility for such protection, however competent the contractor may be.

Vaill v. Bank of B.N.A., 20 D.L.R. 630.

JOINT LIABILITY OF PROPRIETOR AND OF INDEPENDENT CONTRACTOR — INJURY TO SERVANT OF CONTRACTOR.

A railway company's reservation by contract of complete control over and the right to direct an independent contractor in respect of railway tunneling work, renders the former jointly liable with the contractor (notwithstanding the latter's individual liability under the Workmen's Compensation Act, R.S.O. 1897, c. 160) to a servant of the contractor for injuries sustained as the result of being required to work in a place known by both defendants to be one of danger by reason of the omission of the railway company or the contractors to provide safeguards against the falling of rock upon the workmen.

EMPLOYER — DUTY INCUMBENT ON — INDEPENDENT CONTRACTOR—DUTY ENTRUSTED TO—INJURIES—DAMAGES.

The rule by which a person is absolved from liability for the negligence of an independent contractor doing work for him, does not apply where the neglect which occasioned the injury was of a duty which was incumbent upon the employer and which duty he entrusted to the contractor to perform for him. [Pickard v. Smith, 10 C.B. N.S. 470, applied.]

INJURY TO SERVANT OF CONTRACTOR—JOINT LIABILITY OF PROPRIETOR AND OF INDEPENDENT CONTRACTOR, WHEN NEGATIVED — ABSENCE OF SUPERVISION — TESTS.

Rock-filling in a bay for the protection of a railway embankment is not work of such a dangerous character as to impose upon the railway company any duty to safeguard the servants of independent contractors executing the work under the general supervision of the railway company's engineer as to the actual construction of the "fill," where the injury took place from the fall of rock in quarrying the material upon the railway lands with the company's permission, but the latter had under the contract no control over the manner in which the material should be taken out nor as to where or how the contractors should procure the material, and, in fact, exercised no supervision over the quarrying. [Dallantonia v. McCormick, 8 D.L.R. 757, 14 D.L.R. 613, 29 O.L.R. 319, and Penny v. Wimbledon Council, [1899] 2 Q.B. 72, distinguished; Hole v. Sittingbourne, 6 H. & N. 488, applied.]

(§ III B—302)—JOINT LIABILITY OF PROPRIETOR AND OF INDEPENDENT CONTRACTOR—INJURY TO SERVANT OF CONTRACTOR.

A municipality's reservation by its contract with an independent contractor of control over the way in which the contractor's work shall be done and the kind of material that should be used and its stipulation for the right under certain circumstances to dismiss workmen engaged thereat, does not render such municipality jointly liable with the contractor to a servant of the contractor for injuries sustained as the result of mere collateral negligence of the contractor in the performance of the contract, such as the latter's failure to provide an efficient method of marking the location of unexploded dynamite charges or giving notice thereof to his workmen engaged in excavating at places where dynamiting had been done. [Reedie v. London and N.W. Ry. Co., 4 Ex. 244, 20 L.J. Ex. 65, applied.]

(§ III B—303)—INJURY TO ADJOINING OWNER.

The act of committing work to a contractor to be executed, from which, if properly done, no injurious consequences can arise, is to be differentiated from the act of turning over to him work to be done from which mischievous consequences will arise unless preventive measures are adopted; and while it may be just to hold the party authorizing the work in the former case exempt from liability for injury resulting from negligence which he had no reason to anticipate, there is, on the other hand, good ground for holding him liable for injury caused by an act certain to be attended with injurious consequences, if safeguards are not provided, no matter through whose fault the omission to take the necessary measures for such prevention may arise; and, where the owner of lands, in the construction of works thereon for which injury to the adjoining premises must be expected to result, himself omits to take the necessary measures to prevent such mischief, he may be held liable upon a plea alleging such omission. [Bower v. Peate, 1 Q.B.D. 321, 326, applied.] The liability of a master for an omission to do something depends entirely upon the extent to which a duty is imposed to cause that thing to be done, and in such a case it is quite immaterial whether the actual actors are servants or not.

INDEPENDENT CONTRACTOR — LIABILITY OF EMPLOYER — INJURIES TO ADJOINING OWNER—RAILWAYS.

A railway company will be liable for damage to land adjoining its right of way occasioned by the negligent operations of its contractors for the construction of the road-bed, if in letting the contract no care was exercised by the railway company to provide that in the blasting operations which were an essential part of the contract the "top-lofting" method which would throw debris upon the lands of the adjoining owner should not be adopted, and the contractors damaged the adjoining property by following that method where another course of operations was open to them under which the injury might have been avoided.

(§ III B-305)—WHO ARE INDEPENDENT CONTRACTORS—LIABILITY OF MASTER FOR INJURIES TO EMPLOYEE OF INDEPENDENT CONTRACTOR—CONTRACT UNDER SUPERVISION OF MINE SUPERINTENDENT—DRIVING A TUNNEL.

Bradshaw v. Britannia, 7 D.L.R. 878, 2 W.W.R. 20.

In order to be an independent contractor a workman must be free from control and must not be subject to the orders of anyone as to the manner in which the work is to be done.

Beaulieu v. Picard, 7 D.L.R. 2, 42 Que. S.C. 455.

Where a municipal corporation enters into a contract with certain contractors for the construction of a bridge, but some difficulty arising as to the remuneration for the piling, a $6 per diem charge was by a subsequent agreement allowed for the contractor's own time and the use of his piling plant, but the contractor still retained complete control over the entire work and he could select his own employees, he is in law an independent contractor and not an employee of the municipality, and the municipal corporation is not liable for his negligence.

Johnston v. Clark, 7 D.L.R. 361, 4 O.W.N. 202, 23 O.W.R. 196.

IV. Liability of servants.

(§ IV-310)—WORKMAN.

When a workman has supplied his materials and done his work and payment thereof has been made, he has no responsibility in case of damages resulting to the structure put up, either from a defect of construction or the nature of the soil, and no presumption of fault at all rests on his shoulders, either of aquilian or of contractual fault under C.C. (Que.) 1688.

Stilwell-Bierce v. Lyall, 3 D.L.R. 369.

ACCOUNTING BY EMPLOYEE—BOTTLES LEFT WITH CUSTOMERS.

In the absence of a written agreement and in accordance with commercial usage, an employee whose duty it is to deliver goods sold is not responsible for bottles or cases left with customers, and an account of them cannot be demanded at the expiration of his engagement or when he leaves his employ, especially if, each day, he has given in a list of the full bottles delivered during the day, as well as the empty bottles brought back.

Brunel v. Plamondon, 46 Que. S.C. 385.

(§ IV-312)—DAMAGES—NEGLIGENCE OF FELLOW-SERVANT—INFRINGEMENT OF MUNICIPAL BY-LAW—PROTECTION OF PUBLIC.

The infringement of a general prohibition in a municipal by-law prohibiting blasting operations without a permit from a municipal officer will not make liable the proprietors on whose behalf the operations are conducted, for injury to a workman occasioned by the negligent act of a fellow-workman under circumstances in which the fellow-servant doctrine would otherwise apply; such by-law is not one particularly designed to benefit or protect a class but is intended as a protection of the public at large. [Bell v. G.T.R., 15 D.L.R. 874, 48 Can. S.C.R. 561; Butler v. Fife Coal Co., [1912] A.C. 149 and Watkins v. Naval Colliery Co., [1912] A.C. 693, followed.]

(§ IV-313)—LIABILITY OF INDEPENDENT CONTRACTORS.

One who employs a contractor to erect a building is not answerable for damages sustained by an adjoining property owner through the falling of a wall as the result of the negligence of the contractor in building it, the maxim, qui facit per alium facit per se, not being applicable. [Reedie v. London & N.W. R. Co., 4 Ex. 244, and Gayford v. Nicholls, 9 Ex. 702, followed.]

V. Workmen's compensation cases.

Total disability, see Insurance, VI B-345.

(§ V-340)—APPLICATION OF ACTS GENERALLY—ACCIDENT ON DAY MILL WAS STOPPED.

The Workmen's Compensation Act (Que.) does not apply to an accident happening to a workman, outside of the factory, on a day when the mills were stopped, when he gave his assistance to a work which was purely one of recreation, upon the courteous invitation of his foreman, and at the latter's private residence.

Brown v. Carrier, 27 Que. K.B. 17, reversing 52 Que. S.C. 44.

MANUFACTURER AND TRADER—JOINT EMPLOYMENT.

Where an employer is both a trader and manufacturer, a workman or his representatives who make a claim under the Workmen's Compensation Act (Que.), must establish that, at the time of the accident, the workman in question was assisting in the industrial operations of the employer, as well as in his commercial work, and that the accident occurred in the course of the industrial operation. So, a night watchman, employed by a company whose business is the manufacture and sale of petroleum products, and to whom it was ordered by his employer to deliver a wagon loaded with gasoline to certain districts outside of Montreal, has no claim under the above law if he is killed by a passing train while returning from his duty.

Caron v. Imperial Oil Co., 54 Que. S.C. 394.

RIGHT TO VIEW PLACE OF ACCIDENT.

A plaintiff in an action under the Workmen's Compensation Act (Que.) cannot, before the trial, obtain permission to visit the place where the accident occurred.

Stychlinsky v. Canadian Steel Foundries, 20 Que. P.R. 130. [See 25 Rev. Leg. 135.]

REMEDIES—STATUTORY—COMMON LAW.

The sole recourse which the law gives a workman, the victim of an accident in the course of employment, is by proceeding under the Workmen's Compensation Act (Que.), with the authorization of a judge of the Superior Court. He cannot sue under the common law.

Goupil v. Van, 24 Rev. Leg. 192.

COMMON LAW ACTION—DAMAGES.

Where an accident happened while plaintiff was working for defendants, it was held that he could only proceed under the Workmen's Compensation Act (Que.); and must prove inexcusable fault on the part of defendants. An action brought under the common law must be declared unfounded.

Desormeaux v. Dupre, 24 Rev. de Jur. 196.

ACTION BY MINOR.

A minor over 14 may, with the authority of a judge, bring an action under the Workmen's Compensation Act (Que.).

Therriault v. Caron, 19 Que. P.R. 213.

An action under the Workmen's Compensation Act (Que.) is not based on the contract of hire of services, but on the fault of the employer; and a minor can only bring such action through his guardian.

Delangle v. Montreal Machine Shop, 20 Que. P.R. 208, 55 Que. S.C. 132.

REMEDY OF ASCENDANTS—SOLE SUPPORT.

The only ascendants who have a right to an indemnity for the death of their child, in an accident to a workman, are those of whom the victim was their sole support at the moment of the accident. A right of action is not open to those of whom the victim was one support, even if the chief one. Whenever the Workmen's Compensation Act (Que.) differs from the common law, the former should be interpreted in a restrictive sense.

Price v. Saint-Louis, 27 Que. K.B. 174.

Compensation should not be granted to the father and mother of an employee killed in the service of his employer, under par. c. of art. 7323 of the Workmen's Compensation Act (Que.), upon the ground that their son was their only support at the moment of the accident, if they were not in want. A father and mother who own in the country a farm which is paid for, worth $1,575, the father earning also wages of $400 a year, and their youngest child being 15 years old, are not in want.

Montreal Public Service Corp. v. Picard, 27 Que. K.B. 188.

PAYMENT OF RENT — INSURANCE — JUDGMENT—EXAMINATION OF DEFENDANT.

A defendant, condemned to pay a plaintiff a rent under the Workmen's Compensation Act (Que.), cannot, even if he has paid all he is bound to pay up to date, escape by offering to have the payment of the rent secured by an insurance company approved by an order-in-council, or by conservatory measures such as the registering of the judgment against his property, or the examining of the defendant concerning his assets.

Smith v. Weir, 19 Que. P.R. 134. [See 53 Que. S.C. 51.]

CAPITAL—DELAY—COSTS—INSURANCE.

One suing under the Workmen's Compensation Act (Que.) may, within a month from the judgment condemning his employer to pay an annual rent, ask that the capital be paid to him. The capital of a rent, granted to an employee under the Act must not be diminished by the costs which an insurance company would deduct for administering the capital and distributing it in periodical payments.

Okopy v. Atlas Construction Co., 24 Rev. Leg. 371.

FRENCH AND QUEBEC LAW — RIGHTS OF PARENTS.

The French law relating to accidents to workmen is different from the law of the Province of Quebec as to the rights of parents to claim compensation. Under the French law it suffices that the parents are in need, but under the law of Quebec the victim must have been the sole support of the parents.

Picard v. Montreal Public Service Corp., 24 Rev. de Jur. 142.

CONFLICT OF LAWS.

An employee, the victim of an accident, who had been engaged at Montreal to go and work in a workshop at Port Arthur, Ontario, may invoke the benefits of the Workmen's Compensation Act of Quebec, even if he has already obtained compensation under the Workmen's Compensation Act of Ontario. But the court should take into account what he has already received.

Burdeau v. Dominion Bridge Co., 54 Que. S.C. 363.

(§ V—341) — WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT — PROCEDURE — EVIDENCE — JURISDICTION OF COURT.

Under the Alberta Workmen's Compensation Act, a District Court Judge acting thereunder as the statutory arbitrator, has the power to direct the issue of a commission to take the evidence of witnesses in order that the evidence so taken may be used before him as part of the evidence on which to base his award. CLAIM FOR WAGES—CONTRACT OF LEASE—ACTION DURING LONG VACATION—(QUEBEC).

A workman's claim for wages is upon a contract of lease or hire of work and may be tried in the long vacation under the exception of art. 15, C.C.P. of "actions arising from the relation of lessor and lessee," the latter term being recognized by art. 1500, C.C. (Que.) as including both a lease of things or a lease of work.

INDEPENDENT CONTRACTOR — WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION.

The liability to others than employees (e.g., employees of contractors of the principal employer) under the Workmen's Compensation Act (Alta.), 1908, c. 12 is limited by the character of the work with relation to the principal employer and not to the manner or nature of the accident.

PERSONAL INJURY — NEGLIGENT ORDER OF SUPERINTENDENT — WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION FOR INJURIES ACT.

The master is liable for personal injuries sustained by the workman by reason of conformity to the negligent order of the superintendent under the Workmen's Compensation for Injuries Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 146, s. 3, but it is not essential that conformity to the order should be the causa causans of the injury, if it were a sina qua non. WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT—DAMAGES — "LIMIT" AS DISTINCT FROM "MEASURE."

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT — PROCEDURE—ARBITRATOR — SUBMITTING QUESTIONS OF JUDGE—TIME FOR APPEAL—ERROR OF FACT.

Where parties have an opportunity to ask the arbitrator to state his award under the Workmen's Compensation Act, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 244, in the form of a special case and neglect to do so, the award should not, in the absence of misconduct, be set aside so as to enable him to obtain the opinion of the court on a point of law not open at the hearing. After the publication of an arbitrator's award under the Workmen's Compensation Act, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 244, the arbitrator cannot submit questions under s. 4 of the Act to a Judge of the Supreme Court. ASSESSMENT OF DAMAGES AFTER DISMISSAL OF NEGLIGENCE ACTION.

Where an independent action for damages for personal injury to a workman alleged to have resulted from the negligence of the employer is dismissed at the trial for lack of evidence to shew negligence, the trial judge may, on the application of the plaintiff, proceed to assess and award compensation under the Workmen's Compensation Act (Sask.).

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT B.C.—UNSUCCESSFUL NEGLIGENCE ACTION.

The rule that where an action for personal injuries which has been brought under the common law has been disposed of, the plaintiff has no right to ask for an assessment under the Workmen's Compensation Act (B.C.), unless he does so immediately after trial of the action at common law, is applicable only where the judgment was rendered against the plaintiff, but where the plaintiff had obtained a verdict under the common law and the verdict was set aside on appeal and he subsequently applied to the Trial Judge for an assessment of damages under the Act, such application is allowable. The act of a workman employed as a fireman tending a furnace, in adjusting a belt attached to a carrier, which fed the furnace with fuel, in the absence of the chief engineer, whose duty it was to adjust the belt, is an act done in the course of the workman's employment, so as to entitle the workman to compensation under the Workmen's Compensation Act for injuries incurred during the progress of the work. [Barnes v. Nuntery Colliery Co., 81 L.J.Q.B. 213, distinguished.]

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION FOR INJURIES ACT—PROCEDURE.

Where a brakeman engaged in coupling cars at night is injured by reason of the negligence of the engineer in charge of the locomotive in failing to wait for a new signal to start, it having been prearranged between the two that the brakeman was to give such signal by lantern, the master is liable under subs. 5 of s. 3 of the Workmen's Compensation for Injuries Act, making an employer responsible "by reason of negligence of any person in the service of the employer who has the charge or control of any points, signal, locomotive, engine, machine or train upon a railway, tramway or street railway." [Martin v. G.T.R. Co., 4 O.W.N. 51, applied.]

Allan v. G.T.R. Co., 8 D.L.R. 697, 4 O.W.N. 325, 15 Can. Ry. Cas. 14, 23 O.W.R. 453.

BOARD — JURISDICTION — FINALITY OF DECISION.

Where the Workmen's Compensation Board (Man.) has jurisdiction over any matter brought before it, its action or decision is final and not subject to question or review in any court. If, however, the Board attempts to deal with a matter over which it has not acquired jurisdiction, or if it fails to be governed by the provisions of the Workmen's Compensation Act according to their true intent and meaning, its actions, decisions or proceedings are not protected by s. 57 of the Act, and a party affected may seek the remedies available to him in the courts. An enquiry held by the Board as to the compensation to be allowed the representatives of a deceased workman, is a judicial one, and the employer should be given notice of the time and place of such enquiry. Failure to give such notice is not a ground for setting aside the order, if the Board has jurisdiction to deal with the matter.

INJURY—MISTAKE—RATIFICATION — WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT, R.S.Q. 1909.

Before a workman or his representative can claim the benefit of the Workmen's Compensation Act R.S.Q. 1909, art. 7321, he must prove the existence of the contractual relationship of employer and employee; and an action under the Act cannot be maintained if the workman, mistaking the place to which he was sent, misrepresented to defendant's foreman that defendant had sent him to work and had consequently been permitted to work and there was no ratification as the injury occurred before the employer had learned that he was there.

Coney v. Morel, 20 D.L.R. 656, 45 Que. S.C. 458.

MUNICIPAL WORKS — NOTICE OF ACTION — LIMITATIONS.

The Workmen's Compensation Act (R.S.Q. 1909, arts. 7321-47) applies to persons employed by a municipality in its works, and entitles an employee injured in the course of his work to his statutory indemnity, notwithstanding his failure to give notice of the action within the time prescribed by the municipal charter (2 Geo. V. 1912, c. 65, s. 4) or by a special statute applicable to actions against municipalities (Cities and Towns Act, R.S.Q. 1909, art. 5864); the provisions of the first named Act, in cases falling within it, override the provisions of the other statutes, and are governed by the prescription of 1 year provided therein. In awarding the indemnity under the Act, the court cannot, if the capital of the annuity is preferred, condemn the employer to pay an annuity only.

NOTICE OF INJURY—ELECTION OF REMEDY.

The fact that a notice of injury served on the employer is headed as being in the matter of the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1908 (Alta.), and also with the words "application for compensation," are not sufficient to constitute a definite election on the part of the workman to take his remedy under the Act alone and to abandon his common law remedy for negligence where no such inference could be drawn from the statements contained in the notice itself apart from the headings.

ELECTION OF REMEDIES—WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION OR LORD CAMPBELL'S ACT.

A plaintiff is not bound to elect at the trial whether he will proceed under the Workmen's Compensation Act or under the Act respecting compensation to relatives of persons killed by wrongful act, C.S.N.E. 1903, c. 79, but the action can be brought and proceeded with under both Acts, and the damages assessed under either Act as the evidence might warrant.

Wentzell v. New Brunswick, etc., R. Co., 43 N.B.R. 475.

FAILURE TO ESTABLISH COMMON LAW LIABILITY—LEAVE TO PROCEED UNDER STATUTE—TIME TO ELECT.

In an action by an employee for damages at common law and under the Employers' Liability Act, judgment was entered for the defendant by the trial judge. Counsel for the plaintiff then asked the judge to make an order that this judgment should be without prejudice to his rights to apply for compensation under the Workmen's Compensation Act, as he wished to appeal to the Court of Appeals from the judge's decision. The judge said there seemed to be no doubt that plaintiff should elect to appeal or apply for compensation under the Workmen's Compensation Act at the conclusion of the trial.

No motion by way of appeal or application to the equitable jurisdiction of the court to correct an error in a matter before a judge acting within his jurisdiction under the Workmen's Compensation for Injuries Act will be entertained, except where the amount allowed the claimant is greater than is provided by the Act. On the hearing of a petition under the Act the judge may, in the exercise of his discretion, apply any of the rules of the Supreme Court, 1909, which he may consider applicable to the circumstances of the case, and is not confined to rules ejusdem generis with the subjects dealt with by the rules especially referred to in the Act.

Merritt v. St. John R. Co., 42 N.B.R. 667.

INDEMNITY, HOW ESTABLISHED—THIRD PAR-TIES—POWER TO AWARD—VOLUNTARY
ADMISSION OF PARTIES.

In order to succeed upon a claim for indemnity against an award under the Workmen's Compensation Act, it must be established that the damages are paid by reason of and for the liabilities enumerated in the Act. An award for a lump sum under the Workmen's Compensation Act (B.C.) cannot be made under s. 10, without the acquiescence of all parties in the character of compensation, and no award for indemnity against a third party in respect of the liability may therefore be made without the latter's consent. Unless the employment is within the purview of the Workmen's Compensation Act (B.C.), and properly established, the court has no jurisdiction under the Act to award compensation merely upon the voluntary admission of the parties to such award in an action for negligence.

tracting Co.*, 24 D.L.R. 400, 22 B.C.R. 109,

SECOND ACTION—PRESCRIPTION.

An employee, who has recovered a first judgment under the Workmen's Compensation Act, may institute another action if, subsequently, it is shewn that he has sustained permanent injuries. In such a case, prescription does not commence to run from the date of the accident but only from the date when the aggravation of the injuries of the victim has been discovered.

Pelland v. Touzin Sand Co., 50 Que. S.C.
280.

Upon an application to be authorized to bring an action under the Workmen's Compensation Act, it is not necessary to decide whether it is the law of the foreign province, which will apply in such case from the moment that the petitioner shews that he has a sufficient cause of action. [Gab-bella v. G.T.R. Co., 12 Que. P.R. 329.]

JUDGMENT BY CONSENT—APPEAL—INDEMNITY.

Proceedings by appeal and in review, provided for by art. 22 of the Workmen's Compensation Act (Que.), (now art. 7342, R.
S.Q. 1909) are not permissible against the judgment by consent under art. 27 (now art. 7347), where the parties have acquiesced in it, and the Act does not distinguish between acquiescence given before and that given after the judgment. Such a judgment can from that time only be set aside by requête civile, as the direct action has never been recognized in the French law as a mode of proceeding against judgments. Apart from the requête civile there is no other recourse against this judgment than the action to revise the compensation given to each party by art. 26 (now art. 7348).

St. Jacques v. St. Jean Berchmans, 52
Que. S.C. 104.

A petition to sue under the Workmen's Compensation Act will be dismissed if it only alleges that the accident occurred while the deceased was employed by the city of Montreal in the making or repairing of the roadway, directing a machine, which serves to mix concrete, said machine being propelled by mechanical force other than hand or horse power.

Caille v. Montreal, 14 Que. P.R. 82.

ACTION BY FATHER—RIGHT TO—EXCLUSION OF COMMON LAW REMEDIES.

The Workmen's Compensation Act (arts.
7321, et seq. R.S.Q. 1909), limits the remedies it gives for labour accidents and takes away from the parties who claim damages all the common law remedies. Therefore, the father of a victim, killed in an accident, who was not his only support, has no action in liability against the employer.

Quebec Ry. Light & Power Co. v. Lamont-tagne, 23 Que. K.B. 212.

MINOR INJURIES—AMOUNT—EVIDENCE.

An accident of minor importance and which causes no appreciable injury to an employee does not give the latter any recourse for damages under the statute. In order to establish the amount of the capital upon which an annuity is to be calculated, the evidence afforded by actuarial tables of insurance companies, giving the probable expectation of life should not alone be taken into consideration, but there ought also to be considered what might be the prospective capacity of the workman in continuing to do work. In estimating the amount of the capital, the cost of administration of such capital which would be required by an insurance company should also be taken into consideration, because the employee, in case he does not directly receive the capital, would not be obliged to incur such expenses.

Moineau v. Antonessa Employers Liability Ass'ce Corp. v. Moineau, 25 Que. K. B. 334.

CAPITAL OR RENT—ELECTION—TIME—RES JUDICATA.

Under the amendment (4 Geo. V. c. 57) to the Workmen's Compensation Act (Que.), the option of the person injured to obtain the payment of the capital instead of the rent, must be made by his action, and it cannot be done after issue joined and enquete closed, nor after judgment rendered. If the option is refused, and judgment is rendered granting an annual rent to the plaintiff, which judgment is affirmed in review, there is res judicata as to the right to obtain the capital, and the plaintiff cannot subsequently renew his demand.

Torovik v. Steel Company of Canada, 51 Que. S.C. 512.

PARTIES.

Under the Workmen's Compensation Act, the compensation provided for in case of death should be apportioned by the court among those entitled to it, and therefore all persons who may have a claim to it should be made parties to an action brought by one of them. If all such persons are not made parties, the defendant may, by dilatory exception, apply to have the proceedings stayed until the plaintiff has brought them in.

Drouin v. Wallbert, 49 Que. S.C. 6.

LIS PENDENS—COMMON LAW ACTION.

A party obtaining judgment under the Workmen's Compensation Act (Que.) may, if his judgment is dismissed on appeal before the expiration of the time fixed for prescription, take an action at common law based on the same facts, which he declares that he is ready to abandon if the judgment given in his favour is eventually confirmed, and this second action will not be dismissed on a plea of lis pendens.

ACCIDENT TO WORKMEN—AUTHORIZATION—PRESCRIPTION—INTERRUPTION—C.C. (QUE.) ART. 2224 R.S.O. [1909], ARTS. 7345, 7347.

The notices of a petition to authorize the institution of an action given by a judge under art. 27 of the Workmen's Compensation Act, interrupts the prescription mentioned in art. 25 of that Act. Thus an action commenced on Nov. 30, 1914 is not prescribed if the accident happened on Nov. 29, 1913, and the request for authorization was commenced on Nov. 25, 1914 and granted on Nov. 30, following.

McKinstry v. Irvine, 39 Que. S.C. 426.

(§ V—342)—WHO PROTECTED BY—WHO LIABLE UNDER.

A master is liable, under subs. 5 of s. 3 of the Workmen's Compensation for Injuries Act, R.S.O. 1897, c. 160, making the employer liable where the injury is caused "by reason of the negligence of any person in the service of the employer who has the charge or control of any points, signal, locomotive, engine, machine or train upon any railway, tramway or street railway," where a yard foreman is injured by being struck by an engine engaged in shunting operations and under the control of his assistant by reason of the negligence of the assistant in failing to carry out an order of the foreman.

Hallett v. Abraham, 17 D.L.R. 854, 6 O. W.N. 355.

DEATH OF BOY—FATHER PARTIALLY DEPENDENT.

The compensation awarded for the death of a fifteen year old boy, who lived at home with his father and mother, and on whose earnings the father is partially dependent for the support of his family, should be the maximum amount allowed by the Workmen's Compensation Act (Sask., 1910-11 c. 9, s. 15).

RIGHTS OF FOREIGNER—TEMPORARY RESIDENCE.

Temporary residence in Canada, while looking for a re-engagement on lake vessels, does not entitle a foreigner to the benefit of the Workmen's Compensation Act under art. 7324, R.S.Q. 1909, as a resident of Canada.

Regina v. Western Trust Co., 39 D.L.R. 759, 55 Can. S.C.R. 628, [1917] 3 W.W.R. 1055, affirming 30 D.L.R. 548, 9 S.L.R. 336, 34 W.L.R. 1125, [1917] 1 W.W.R. 1274, 24 D.L.R. 26, 32 W.L.R. 307.

RELEASE—BEFORE AND AFTER INJURY.

Section 4 (2) of the Workmen's Compensation Act (Sask.) 1910-11, c. 9) applies to contracts entered into before injury, by which a workman contracts himself out of the Act, but not to contracts in settlement, after the injury has been received.

EMPLOYEES' RELIEF FUND—VALIDITY OF CONTRACT—ESTOPPEL.

The agreement of an employee of the Intercolonial Ry., as a condition to his employment, to become a member of the temporary employees' relief and insurance association, and under its constitution and by-laws to accept its benefits in lieu of all claims for personal injury, is perfectly valid and may be set up as a complete bar to his action against the Crown for injuries sustained in the course of employment; by accepting the benefits he will be estopped from setting up any claim inconsistent with the rules and regulations.

Gagnon v. The King, 41 D.L.R. 493, 17 Can. Ex. 301.

CHILDREN—PROOF OF RELATIONSHIP.

The relationship of parent and child, to entitle an illegitimate child of a deceased worker, acknowledged before the accident, to claim indemnity under the Quebec Workmen's Compensation Act (R.S.Q. 1909, art. 7323), is sufficiently established by possession of the filial status, which constitutes a recognition of the child by the parent as a natural child; the degree of proof is the same as that in an action for support.

Canada Cement Co. v. Hanchuk, 37 D.L.R. 422, 26 Que. K.B. 434.

BAKERY DRIVER.

One employed as an assistant on a bakery wagon is protected by the provisions of the Quebec Workmen's Compensation Act (R.S.Q. 1909, art. 7321), and is entitled to compensation for a partial permanent disability sustained in an accident in the course of employment.

WHO PROTECTED BY, OR LIABLE UNDER—MANUFACTURE — CONTRACTOR — EMPLOYEE OF THE LATTER—R.S.Q. [1909], ART. 7321.

An infant minor who works in a shoe factory at the manufacture of heels, is not employed by the owner of the factory, when the owner has given the heels to a contractor to be done at so much a case, and when it is the latter who has employed the infant, even when this contractor and his employees work in the factory and with the machines belonging to the owner. In this case, the latter is not liable under the Workmen's Compensation Act.

Pauzé v. Bergeron, 55 Que. S.C. 245.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION—APPRENTICE—R.S.Q. 1909, ARTS. 7321, 7327.

The recourse given under art. 7321, R.S.Q. 1909, depends upon the existence of an express or implied contract between the victim and the party against whom the demand is directed and the plaintiff must prove such contract. An apprenticeship is a contract in virtue of which a person undertakes to teach another a profession, trade or calling upon certain conditions, during a stipulated term, which contract creates reciprocal obligations between the contracting parties.

Wilston v. G.T.R. Co., 47 Que. S.C. 67.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION — CLASSES OF PERSONS INDEMNIFIED — R.S.Q. 1909, ART. 7323.

Art. 4 of (9 Edw. VII., c. 66 (Que.), now art. 7323 R.S.Q. 1909), names, under the letters, a, b, and c, three classes of persons to whom the compensation provided in the case of death of the victim of an accident is payable, and in which, in the order indicated, each class excludes those which follow. Consequently, when one of a married couple survives, neither the children nor the ascendants who are within the prescribed conditions can lay claim to any part of the compensation. [Robinson v. C.P.R. Co., [1892] A.C. 481; Re United Collieries v. Hendry, [1909] A.C. 383; Darlington v. Roscoe, 96 L.T. 179, followed.]

Roberge v. Jacobs Asbestos Mining Co., 45 Que. S.C. 304.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION—WORKMAN ENGAGED IN QUEBEC BY EMPLOYER WITH HEAD OFFICE THERE—ACCIDENT HAPPENING IN ONTARIO.

The law of Quebec respecting accidents to workmen applies to the case of an accident which happened in Ontario to a workman hired in Quebec by an employer who had his head office in Quebec for work to be done in both provinces.

Vincent v. G.T.R. Co., 45 Que. S.C. 353.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION — CLASSES OF CLAIMANTS—WIDOW'S RIGHTS.

The three classes of people designated in art. 7323 R.S.Q. 1909, by the letters a, b, c, have the right concurrently to the indemnity provided for in the article, in the proportion fixed by a court of competent jurisdiction failing an agreement among themselves. Consequently, the widow of the deceased workman can only claim the entire compensation by showing that there are no other persons who have a right to benefit under the law.

Hurd v. Clarke, 45 Que. S.C. 397.

ACCIDENT TO WORKMAN—DISEASE—LIABILITY — FAULT — C.C. s. 1053—S. REF. [1909] s. 7321.

Sickness not being an accident, a person who contracts typhoid fever while at his work, after drinking water taken from a tap on the property of his employer, has no claim either under the Workmen's Compensation Act, or in common law, unless he proves some neglect on the part of his master.

Charron v. C.P.R. Co., 55 Que. S.C. 134.

LUMBERING—FACTORY—"SOLE SUPPORT."

A paper manufacturing company, cutting timber in the woods to supply a factory, does not carry on an agricultural industry; such accessory operations are part of the main business and are subject to the Quebec Workmen's Compensation Act. The term "sole support" in art. 7323, R.S.Q. 1909, applies to a minor providing exclusively for the needs of the ascendant, without taking into account the obligations for maintenance which might be imposed upon others.

Barrette v. News Pulp & Paper Co., 51 Que. S.C. 103.

Lumbering, carried on for the sole purpose of procuring an immediate maximum supply and without regard to the integral preservation of the forest, is not of the character of forestry or agricultural work properly speaking. Such a business is essentially industrial in its nature and as such is subject to the Workmen's Compensation Act (Que.).

Pelletier v. Pronovost, 51 Que. S.C. 97.

A joint stock company which engages in the business of cutting lumber on timber limits to carry it to market, carries on a commercial and industrial business under the provisions of the Workmen's Compensation Act (Que.).

Laroque v. Maclaren, 51 Que. S.C. 285.

INDEPENDENT CONTRACTOR.

Under the Workmen's Compensation Act (Que.) one employed in absolute independence of his employer becomes a contractor or subcontractor, and is not subject to the Act. But if the employer retains the control of the work of his employee, and if he can dismiss him, the latter can claim the benefit of the Act whether he works at a fixed salary or at so much a piece.

Laurentian Granite Co. v. Hendry, 25 Que. K.B. 194.

WORKMEN EMPLOYED BY CITY.

A carpenter employed by a municipal corporation, who suffers an accident while repairing a door of an employees' boarding house in connection with the aqueduct under construction, is subject to the Workmen's Compensation Act (Que.).

Giroux v. Montreal, 51 Que. S.C. 77.

MUNICIPAL WORK—HIGHWAYS.

An employee of the city of Montreal working on the repair of its public streets does not, in case of accident, come under the operation of the Workmen's Compensation Act; and an action under that Act may be dismissed on inscription en droit.

Trudeau v. Montreal, 49 Que. S.C. 62.

DIGGING WELL.

The Workmen's Compensation Act applies to the work of digging a well.

Larouche v. Jobidon, 49 Que. S.C. 10.

HOTEL WORK—MANUFACTURE.

An employee of a hotelkeeper, who as well as working as a bar tender is employed in the manufacture of aerated waters which his employer sells in his hotel, is entitled to the benefit of the Workmen's Compensation Act, if, while he is employed in the manufacture of such aerated waters, he meets with an accident, whatever may be the quantity of such aerated waters which are manufactured by the hotelkeeper.

Chamberland v. Chamberland, 50 Que. S. C. 285.

TRANSPORTATION—LOADING—DELIVERIES.

The words "transportation business" mentioned in the Act respecting accidents to workmen (R.S.Q. 1909, art. 7321), do not include such services performed by a merchant for his own purposes in carrying on his business; they include only the transportation of goods for third persons; likewise in regard to "business of loading and unloading." It would be otherwise if the employer was a manufacturer or other person subject to the operation of the Act. A driver of a delivery wagon, who is employed by an importer for the delivery of merchandise, cannot invoke the provisions of that Act in an action to recover damages sustained from an automobile while he is engaged in unloading goods from his wagon.

Rosenbloom v. Lavut, 50 Que. S.C. 48.

RELEASE—NULLITY—ERROR.

An employee is not bound by a release to his employer from all liability in connection with the compensation to which he is entitled under the Workmen's Compensation Act. If, through an error as to his true pathological condition, he acknowledges that his disability to work has ceased, he is not bound by such declaration.

Trudel v. Levasseur, 49 Que. S.C. 319.

INDUSTRIAL WORK—SHOP FOR REPAIRING GOODS OF MANUFACTURER—LOADING—R.S.Q. ART. 7321.

A merchant, who keeps a workshop only for the repair of damaged furniture which he receives from a manufacturer, is not an industrial workman subject to the Workmen's Compensation Act. The operations of loading and unloading only fall within the operation of the Act in so far as they are performed by persons who make it their business. But the loading by a merchant of goods which form the object of his business for delivery to his customers does not constitute a business of loading.

Labbe v. Julien, 48 Que. S.C. 322.

INDUSTRIAL OPERATIONS—LUMBERING.

Cutting wood in the bush by lumbermen does not constitute an industrial operation to which the Workmen's Compensation Act (Que.) applies.

Re Smith and Link, 17 W.L.R. 550.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION—INDEMNITY OF MASTER — LIABILITY OF STRANGER — JOINT WRONGDOERS.

Section 8 of the Workmen's Compensation Act, giving a right of indemnity to an employer, who has been called upon to pay compensation, an indemnity against strangers under "a legal liability" must be confined to cases where there is a legal liability in the stranger to the exclusion of cases, where there is a legal liability to pay damages in a stranger and the employer himself. [Cory v. France, 80 L.J.K.B. 341, applied.]

C.P.R. Co. v. Alta. Clay Products Co., 7 W.W.R. 948.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION—COMPENSATION TO ILLEGITIMATE CHILDREN—EVIDENCE OF MOTHER—NOTICE OF ACCIDENT AND OF CLAIM—"OUT OF AND IN THE COURSE OF"—R.S.M. 1914, c. 209, s. 8, SUBSS. 2, 3.

As the Workmen's Compensation Act, s. 4, treats an illegitimate child as a legitimate one, the evidence of the father or mother should be received, if corroborated. Where notice of a claim for compensation is given in due time, but the notice of the accident is given too late, it is incumbent upon the person making the claim to prove, that such failure was occasioned by mistake, absence from the province, or other reasonable cause. [Bruno v. International Coal & Coke Co., 4 W.W.R. 888, followed.] Smith v. C.N.R., 7 W.W.R. 596.

(§ V—343)—RIGHTS OF BENEFICIARIES—ALIEN—WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION—MOTHER DEPENDING ON SON—C.C. (QUE.) ARTS. 6, 27, 28.

A mother residing in a foreign country and depending partly upon the earning of her son for her living, can sue before the Courts of Quebec, under the Workmen's Compensation Act of Alberta, when her son has been killed in the service of a railway company having its principal place of business in Montreal. Under the Act, the employer becomes liable to pay compensation to his employee by the sole fact of his being killed during his service, and the claim dates from the date of the accident. Under the same Act, the absence in a foreign country far away, is a justification for not filing a claim within the delay fixed by law. Johansdotter v. C.P.R. Co., 47 Que. S.C. 76.

PARENT'S RIGHT TO INDEMNITY—CHILD NOT MEANS OF SUPPORT.

A father, whose son was drowned by the fault of a navigation company for which he worked, but who was not his sole means of support, cannot maintain action against the latter for indemnity under the Workmen's Compensation Act, but he may hold it liable in damages under art. 1056 C.C. (Que.). Ladamme v. Levis Ferry, 47 Que. S.C. 291.

RIGHT OF PARENTS TO RECOVER FOR DEATH OF CHILD—COMMUNITY MAINTENANCE.

The right to maintenance is a claim attached to the person itself of the consorts, and the fulfilment of this obligation can be demanded, by either or both of them, for one of their children, when they are in community; but it does not follow that the obligation to furnish maintenance is a debt due to their community of property. Thus a wife in community as to property can, with her husband, bring an action for indennity under the Workmen's Compensation Act on account of the death of their son, this action being of the nature of a demand for maintenance.

Sullivan v. Furness Withy, 47 Que. S.C. 289.

BENEFICIARIES.

The statute relating to accidents to workmen is exceptional legislation; a person who claims the benefit of its provisions is obliged to establish that he belongs to the class mentioned in the conditions requisite to the making of a claim. Where the plaintiff is an ascendant relative of the person whose death was caused by the accident, he must produce evidence establishing that the deceased was his only support, at the time of his death, and that deceased's wages did not exceed the sum of $1,000 per year.

Thompson v. Kearney, 25 Que. K.B. 220.

FAULT OF VICTIM—DEATH OF WORKMAN—RIGHT OF MOTHER.

Jetté v. G.T.R. Co., 40 Que. S.C. 204.

INSURER'S SUBROGATION.

The recourse of the person injured, under art. 7334, R.S.Q. 1909, against the person responsible for the accident other than the employer, his servants or agents, being a right which is exclusively attached to his person, cannot be exercised by the insurer of the employer who has obtained from the representatives of the workmen a subrogation. But the insurer may exercise such a recourse if he has reimbursed the employer what he has paid, and has obtained from him a subrogation of all its rights.

Maryland Casualty Co. v. Dominion Flour Mills Co., 49 Que. S.C. 262.

(§ V—344)—SUBMITTING TO MEDICAL EXAMINATION.

The victim of an accident in the course of his work is only obliged to undergo one medical examination at the request of his employer and cannot be compelled to undergo a second.

Ferrari v. C.P.R. Co. 18 Que. P.R. 412.

MEDICAL TREATMENT—LIABILITY.

An employer is not responsible for doctor's and druggist's bills when the accident did not cause the death of the victim. If he himself chose a doctor and made arrangements with the authorities of a hospital, without consulting the victim, he cannot keep from the latter what he paid to those ends.

St. Maurice Lumber Co. v. Cadorette, 25 Que. K.B. 410.

SUBMITTING TO MEDICAL TREATMENT.

Although in ordinary circumstances errors in the treatment do not cause the loss of recourse of the victim, the injury resulting from the employment of a quack in preference to a doctor cannot give rise to a recourse for indemnity. An employer is bound to pay compensation to his employee for disability resulting from an accident, even if the accident is the result of a fault on the part of the workman, but not for disability resulting from facts subsequent to the accident and depending upon the will of the victim. Where the employer renders possible the intervention of a bonesetter in the treatment of his employee, by guaranteeing security for the penalty to which the bonesetter exposes himself, but who while so doing puts his employee on his guard, does not assume the responsibility of the consequences of the treatment of the bonesetter.

Pelletier v. Lachance, 49 Que. S.C. 122, reversing 47 Que. S.C. 526.

MEDICAL EXAMINATION.

If a plaintiff, in case under the Workmen's Compensation Act, has been examined by physicians in support of a petition for provisional allowance, the defendant is not thereby deprived of the right to have him examined by a physician chosen and paid by the employer.

Catzo v. C.P.R. Co., 17 Que. P.R. 302.

(V—345)—IN COURSE OF EMPLOYMENT—WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION BOARD (MAN.)—WORKMAN ACTING WITHIN COURSE OF EMPLOYMENT—POWERS OF BOARD—FINALITY OF DECISION.

The Workmen's Compensation Board (Man.), is empowered by the Workmen's Compensation Act and amendments to determine whether at the time of the accident the injured workman was or was not acting in the course of his employment and the finding of the Board is by the Act made final and conclusive. [Workmen's Compensation Act, 1916, Man. c. 125, authorizing the appointment of the Board held to be intra vires the Manitoba Legislature. The decision in Winnipeg Electric R. Co. v. Winnipeg, 30 D.L.R. 159, being accepted.]

INJURY IN COURSE OF EMPLOYMENT.

An accident to a train conductor, while he is in the act of ascertaining whether a particular train is one for which he has been ordered to wait, arises "out of and in the course of his employment;" and a Trial Judge is justified in finding that it so arose—though not direct—if sufficiently circumstantial to lead a reasonable man to that conclusion; with such a finding an appellate court will not interfere.

Morton v. G.T.P. Branch Lines Co., 33 D.L.R. 27, 10 S.L.R. 8, [1917] 1 W.W.R. 1125.

An injury sustained by a plumber employed in one department of a business while helping himself to material in another department thereof, instead of applying for it to the clerk in charge, as required by the shop rules, is not one "arising out of and in the course of employment;" nor caused "while in the discharge of his duty," within the meaning of the New Brunswick Workmen's Compensation Act.

An injury to an employee while proceeding to his work sustained at a place adjacent to the road ordinarily used by employees, is not one "arising out of or in the course of employment" within the meaning of the Workmen's Compensation Act, R.S. M. 1913, c. 209.

A general labourer in a pickle factory, who in the absence of the hostler is ordered by a daughter of his employer to look after the horse of the establishment, has a claim under the Quebec Workmen's Compensation Act, when in doing so he meets with an accident.

Pillette v. Pigeon, 52 Que. S.C. 206.

COURSE OF EMPLOYMENT — "TRANSPORTATION"—"LOADING OR UNLOADING."

A driver of a delivery wagon employed by a mercantile house is not engaged in the work of "transportation business," or in that of "loading or unloading," within the meaning of the Quebec Workmen's Compensation Act (R.S.Q. 1909, art. 7521), and he is not entitled to compensation under the Act for injuries sustained in the course of delivering goods for his employer.

Clark v. Chatham, Wallaceburg & Lake Erie R. Co. (Re Workmen's Compensation Act), 33 D.L.R. 786.

COURSE OF EMPLOYMENT—DISOBEDIENCE—COMPENSATION.

No action will lie under the Workmen's Compensation Act (N.S. 1910, c. 3), for the death of a workman who wilfully, and in violation of express orders, remains in a dangerous place while a blast is being fired, and is killed; the accident does not arise in the course of his employment, but is caused by his wilful misconduct. The effect of s. 5, subs. 4 of the Act, is to give the court power to assess compensation in the plaintiff's favour, where the action has been brought independently of the Act, provided the employers would have been liable if proceedings had been instituted under the Act.

COMPENSATION — INJURY TO EMPLOYEE — ELECTION—WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT, 4 GEO. V. c. 25 (ONT.)—SUIT AGAINST THIRD PARTY—RIGHT OF ACTION.

A workman injured in the course of his employment, and entitled to bring an action against a person not his employer, may bring such an action or elect to claim compensation under the Workmen's Compensation Act. On obtaining permission from the Compensation Board to withdraw his election, his right of action is not barred.

INJURY IN COURSE OF EMPLOYMENT.

Injury to the eye of an employee caused by work on the door of a warehouse arises "out of and in the course of employment," within the meaning of the Workmen's Compensation Act (Man.), even though the work be in the nature of an improvement or alteration the employee was not ordered to do and which was performed outside the building in which the employee usually worked, if done for the purpose of expediting some work within the scope of the employee's duties.

FROST BITE.

Where a Trial Judge finds that frost bite to the feet of a workman incurred in the course of his employment upon a very cold day constitutes an "injury arising out of his employment" within the meaning of the Workmen's Compensation Act (Alta.) 1908, c. 12, s. 3, the finding will not be reversed on appeal. [Warner v. Couchman, [1912] A.C. 35, distinguished.]

ALIGHTING WHILE TRAIN MOVING.

A workman engaged in taking wires up and down telegraph poles, and for that purpose travelling in a work train with a crew from place to place, is not justified in alighting from one car and attempting to get on another while the train is in motion, and between stations; and such conduct is not a "risk arising out of and incidental to the nature of the employment" within the meaning of s. 6 of the Workmen's Compensation Act, (Sask.) 1910-11, c. 9, so as to render the employer liable for injuries to the employee resulting therefrom, the employer's liability in such case being limited to the ordinary risks of travel. Plumb v. Cobden Flour Mills Co., [1914] A.C. 62; Barnes v. Nunery Colliery Co., [1912] A.C. 44, followed.]

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION — INJURY TO WORKMAN—POISONOUS GASES—NEGLIGENCE — "ACCIDENT" — "WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT" ONTARIO 4 GEO. V. c. 25.

A workman whose health is injured through inhaling fumes of poisonous gases while working in a munition factory is not barred from bringing an action even though an application was made for compensation under the Workmen's Compensation Act (Ont.) and refused by the Board. Such an injury is not one by "accident" within the meaning of that term in s. 15 of the Act.

Scotland v. Canadian Cartridge Co., 50

COURSE OF EMPLOYMENT — "ON, IN OR ABOUT"—FACTORY.

A stable in which machinery is installed for cutting and crushing grain for horses is a factory within the meaning of s. 2 of the Workmen's Compensation Act, (Sask.). An employee who is injured a quarter of a mile away from such factory while engaged in employment which is not part of the factory work, is not employed on or about such factory at the time of the injury. [Cornea v. National Paving & Construction Co., 26 D.L.R. 402, followed.]

MACHINERY—FIRE HALLS—FACTORY.

An apparatus for changing an alternating electric current into a direct current, and an instrument for recording fire alarms, are not "machinery used" within the meaning of the Workmen's Compensation Act (Sask.), and they, installed in a fire hall, and fire engines kept therein, do not constitute the fire hall a "factory" within the meaning of that Act.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION — INJURY IN COURSE OF EMPLOYMENT — RAILWAY — SLEEPING QUARTERS—"DWELLING."

The suppliant's husband was employed on the I.C.R. as part of a gang of men engaged in the repairs and maintenance of the tracks. The railway had placed at the disposal of such men a box or freight car, which was fitted with bunks or beds as a dormitory, and placed on a siding. After leaving off work at 6 P.M. the employees' entire time was at their disposal and they were at liberty, but not obliged, to sleep in this sleeping car. One night, the suppliant's husband went to sleep as usual in the car and was found dead in his bed in the morning. Held that this car was a "dwelling" and that the accident or death did not happen in the course of his employment, and that his widow was not therefore entitled to compensation.

Corriveau v. The King, 18 Can. Ex. 275.
WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT—EMPLOYER —WORKMAN—WITHIN MEANING OF THE ACT—COMPENSATION—IN RESPECT TO LOSS OF WAGES ONLY.

The respondent, a travelling salesman, entered into a contract with the postmaster of Fredericton, to carry the mails between Fredericton and New Maryland, six round trips a week, at $4 per day. The arrangement was only a temporary one, pending the calling for tenders by the Post Office Department. It might only last for a day, or might last for a year. Held, on a claim for compensation by the petitioner, who had been hired by the respondent to carry and distribute the mail, for an injury received in the course of his employment, that the carrying of the mail was part of the regular business of the respondent, and the petitioner's employment was regular and permanent, and he was engaged in manual labor, within the meaning of the Workmen's Compensation Act (N.B.). Compensation under the Act is given in respect to wages only, and not in respect of personal suffering or for medical, surgical and hospital charges incurred by reason of the injury.

Bolden v. Chase, 46 N.B.R. 147.

ILLNESS CONTRACTED IN COURSE OF WORK.

In actions under the Workmen's Compensation Act (Que.) the burden is upon the plaintiff of proving the application of the Act. The Act is not applicable when the workman suffers not from the accident but on account of an illness contracted in the course of his work.

Pencis v. Girard, 47 Que. S.C. 406.

NAVIGATION WORK — "SAILING VESSEL" — "FOREIGNER"—"ALIEN."

A schooner assisted by a tow, and not using its sails, is not navigated as a sailing vessel. The captain drowned by falling from the ship, at a time when his services were not required, although he had been sleeping on board according to the terms of his employment, is nevertheless the victim of an accident in the course of his work. The remedy under the Workmen's Compensation Act is open to relatives of the workman, if he was engaged in work which was not continuous, and his annual earnings were less than $1,000. The words "foreign workman" in art. 7324, R.S.Q. 1909, have the same meaning as in art. 21, C.C. (Que.) and signify "alien."

Dallaire v. Quebec Salvage Co., 49 Que. S.C. 501.

TRANSPORTATION OF TROOPS—PATROL WORK —COMPENSATION.

The chartering of a steamship to the Government, by an ordinary charter-party, to serve for the transport of troops and the patrol of a port, does not affect the nature of the owner's business who, engaged in the work of transport by water, remains subject to the Workmen's Compensation Act. The head of the business who places his workmen at the disposal of a third party, and continued to pay their wages, does not cease to be responsible for the compensation to which the workmen are entitled on account of an accident in the course of their employment within these conditions. To establish the annual earnings which would serve as the basis of the compensation for permanent disability, when the employment is not continuous, it is necessary to add to the wages really earned by the workman during the period of actual employment the earnings which he really made in other businesses during the rest of the year, and not fictitious earnings calculated by means of the wages that he could have earned in the time that he was disabled during a certain number of years.

Kennedy v. Thom, 49 Que. S.C. 211.

WORK ON SHIP—SEAMAN.

The enumeration in art. 7321, R.S.Q. 1909, is not limitative of the industries subject to the operation of the Workmen's Compensation Act, (Que.), and covers every business of a hazardous and commercial character. A sailor killed by falling from his ship, not in the course of working the ship, but when on board for the night according to the terms of his hiring, is nevertheless the victim of an accident in the course of his employment. The recourse under the Act is open to the parents of the victim, if he was engaged with an industry the work of which was not continuous and his annual income being less than $1,000.

Quebec Salvage Co. v. Dallaire, 26 Que. K.B. 253.

AGRICULTURAL OR INDUSTRIAL ENTERPRISE—CREAMERY—RELEASE—VALIDITY.

A creamery carried on by a manufacturer for his personal benefit is not of the character of an agricultural industry, but is an industrial enterprise subject to the Quebec Workmen's Compensation Act. An agreement between an employer and a workman, by which the latter, injured in the course of his work, renounces all claim that he may have against his employer, is void ab initio.

Laperriere v. Paquet, 51 Que. S.C. 99.

COURSE OF EMPLOYMENT—TEMPORARY RETIREMENT.

The work of a workman begins as soon as he is at the disposal of his employer, and ends when he, the employee, leaves the place of work and regains his complete liberty of action. An employee may temporarily suspend his labour and quit his post to go into other parts of the building connected with the business, without losing his right to compensation under the law, in case of accident. A fireman, on a locomotive in a yard, is still at his work, if he leaves it for a moment, without leave from his engineer, to get some drinking water, as it is customarily done at this place.

Greig v. G.T.R. Co., 51 Que. S.C. 50.

A temporary suspension of work does not always deprive the workman of his recourse under the Workmen's Compensation Act (Que.) if he is the victim of an accident during such suspension; but if the workman, notwithstanding the employer's orders to the contrary, withdraws from the latter's superintendence, leaves his work and traverses, in his own interest, a dangerous place, situated where the work is carried on, he loses his recourse against his employer.

Lavery v. G.T. Ry., 26 Que. K.B. 281.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION—WOOD—CUTTER—JOBBER—TIMBER-YARD—INDUSTRIAL OR AGRICULTURAL UNDERTAKING—APPLICABILITY OF WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION—R.S.Q. [1909] ART. 7321.

The Workmen's Compensation Act applies to accidents which happen to woodcutters engaged in lumberyards, where they cut logs for the company on the timber limits of an industrial concern. Such work is not agricultural, but industrial. It does not matter at all whether the woodcutter is engaged in the immediate service of the company or whether he is employed by a jobber.

Perron v. Veillette, 56 Que. S.C. 110, 309.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT—WORKING FOR STRANGER—RESPONSIBILITY OF EMPLOYER—SECTION REP. [1909], ART. 7321.

If a workman is sent by his employer to a certain place to work, and while at such place he applies himself to other work at the request of strangers, and not for the benefit of his employer, he has no claim under the Workmen's Compensation Act if he sustains an accident.

Roy v. Lemieux, 56 Que. S.C. 341.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT, R.S.B.C. c. 244—DEATH OF SERVANT—SERVANT RUN OVER BY ELECTRIC TRUCK—FELLOW-SERVANT—"WAREHOUSE"—"FACTORY"—"COURSE OF EMPLOYMENT."

A building used for the business of storing, charging, and repairing electric trucks which are the property of others than those who carry on said business is a factory within the meaning of the Workmen's Compensation Act, R.S.B.C. c. 244.—The course of a workman's employment embraces all the time occupied in coming, going, and stopping for any purpose ancillary to his work.

Evans v. B.C. Electric R. Co., 29 W.L.R. 435, 7 W.W.R. 121.

ACCIDENT IN COURSE OF EMPLOYMENT.

In considering whether an accident to a workman arose out of and in the course of his employment within the meaning of the Workmen's Compensation Act, (Alta.), c. 12, 1908, the following test, put by Lord Sumner in Lancashire & Yorkshire R. Co. v. Highley, [1917] A.C. 352, at p. 372: "Was it part of the injured person's employment to hazard, to suffer or to do that which caused his injury? If yes, the accident arose out of his employment. If nay, it did not, because while it was not part of the employment to hazard, to suffer or to do cannot well be the cause of an accident arising out of the employment" was applied and the employer held not liable.

Powell v. Thomas, [1918] 3 W.W.R. 901.

(§ V—346)—"UNDERTAKERS"—"ENGINEERING WORK"—EJUSDEM GENERIS.

The Workmen's Compensation Act (R.S. B.C. 1911, c. 244, s. 9), gives rights of action against the principal contractor co-extensive with those against the employer himself, and both the subcontractor and the principal contractor are "undertakers" within the meaning of the Act. The expression "any other work" in the definition of "engineering work" is not necessarily limited to work ejusdem generis.

Morris v. Structural Steel Co., 35 D.L.R. 739, 24 B.C.R. 59, [1917] 2 W.W.R. 749.

MACHINERY—"ENGINEERING WORK."

The effect of s. 2 and subs. 4 of s. 3, of the Workmen's Compensation Act, (Sask. 1910-11, c. 9,) is that, if, in the construction of the particular work in which the injured servant is engaged at the time of the injury, machinery is used, though not being used at the particular time, he is entitled to recover, but if machinery is not ordinarily used in that work he cannot recover; a steam roller used in one part of paving work, but not used in another part of the work in connection with which the injury arose, is not an injury "on or about engineering work" within the meaning of the Act, and for which no recovery can therefore be had. [Lord v. Turner, 5 Mint-Sen, 87; Chambers v. Whitehaven Harbour Com., [1899] 2 Q.B. 132; Pattison v. White, 29 T.L.R. 775; Baek v. Dick, [1906] A.C. 325, followed.]

"UNDERTAKERS" IN OR ABOUT CONSTRUCTION OF BUILDING—PIPING.

The work of piping forms a necessary part of the construction of a cold storage plant, even where the building itself is completed, and persons engaged in that work come within the phrase of "undertakers" within the purview of s. 4 of the Workmen's Compensation Act, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 244, which makes the Act applicable to "employment by the undertakers in or about the construction of buildings." [Mason v. Dean (1900), 69 L.J.Q.B. 358, followed.]

($ V-347)—WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT—LUMBERMAN—DEATH BY ACCIDENT.

Duquette v. Lake Megantic Pulp Co., 12 Que. P.R. 359.

($ V-348)—INEXCUSABLE FAULT OF EMPLOYER OR EMPLOYEE.

The failure to remove a defective part of a ceiling deemed not dangerous while repairing it, though constituting negligence, does not amount to inexcusable fault of the employer under the Workmen's Compensation Act, art. 7325, R.S.Q. 1909, as rendering the employer liable to an increase of the amount of compensation for injuries to an employee resulting from a fall of the plaster.

Douglas v. Auer Incandescent Light Mfg. Co., 25 D.L.R. 429, 24 Que. K.B. 188.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT (QUE.)—ADDITIONAL COMPENSATION—INEXCUSABLE FAULT OF MASTER OR FELLOW-SERVANT.

Poulin v. G.T.R. Co., 37 D.L.R. 792, 27 Que. K.B. 141.

WORKMEN'S COMMON LAW TORT CUMULATIVE TO STATUTORY RIGHT.

The indemnity allowed to injured workmen under the Workmen's Compensation Act may be greater than the sum of $2,000 where such injury results from the "inexcusable fault" of the employer; that is to say, in cases of "inexcusable fault" the injured party is not deprived of his common law action in tort although suing in virtue of the statute itself.

Poirier v. LeGrand, 9 D.L.R. 269, 22 Que. K.B. 193, 19 Rev. Leg. 266.

"SERIOUS NEGLECT"—TO TREAT INJURY—AGGRAVATION.

The meaning of the words "serious neglect" in subs. 2 (c) of s. 6 of the Workmen's Compensation Act, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 244, in their ordinary and nonstatutory sense, import more than ordinary negligence; and while that section has no application to the conduct of the injured subsequent to the accident, a failure to continue treatment of an eye after the injury, which consequently results in its permanent loss, constitutes serious neglect which will preclude the right to claim further compensation in respect of that injury. [Humber Towing Co. v. Barclay, 5 B.W.C. Cas. 142, followed.]

INCREASED COMPENSATION.

A manufacturer who, in violation of the law, employs a minor, under 16 years of age, and sets him at work upon an automatic and dangerous machine, not in good order, is guilty of inexcusable fault, and is liable to be ordered to pay an increased compensation under the Workmen's Compensation Act (Que.).

Morrow v. Hinphy, 51 Que. S.C. 137.

COMMON LAW—STATUTE.

It is an established principle that a statute never abrogates the common law unless there is an express clause to that effect, or unless there are provisions which clearly show an intention of setting it aside. Thus, the Workmen's Compensation Act (Que.) having in no way, as far as the liability of the employer towards his men and employees is concerned, set aside the common law, the employer is liable for the inexcusable fault not only of all those appointed by him for the operation of his undertaking, but also of all those employed by him in whatsoever capacity.

Montreal Tramways Co. v. Savignac, 27 Que. K.B. 246.

"INEXCUSABLE FAULT."

An inexcusable fault is a greater, more serious and less pardonable fault than a gross mistake. It occupies an appropriate place between a gross mistake and fraud. It is more serious than a gross mistake, but less serious than fraud; it is not deceitful, but quasi-deceitful. So an employer who sets a boy of 17 at an easy work near a dangerous machine, without giving him special instructions, is not guilty of an inexcusable fault if the danger from the machine is obvious and easy to avoid.

Belgo-Canadian Pulp and Paper Co. v. Millette, 27 Que. K.B. 11.

DUTY OF PROTECTION.

Under the Workmen's Compensation Act, (Que.) the inexcusable fault must contain as an element some voluntary act on the part of the person guilty, which is likely to produce injury or death. Therefore it is not inexcusable fault for an employer to have certain work performed by one man instead of by two, and not to furnish his employee, a hqjlermaker, with lunette to protect his eyes as provided by a city by-law, when this kind of work has been done for a number of years in the manner in which it was done during plaintiff's engagement without the occurrence of any accident.

Smith v. J.R. Weir, 53 Que. S.C. 51. [See 19 Que. P.R. 134.]

DISOBEDIENCE OF INSTRUCTIONS—ENGINEER.

It is only voluntary acts which are done with a knowledge of the danger and a carelessness for result which are considered inexcusable within the meaning of the Workmen's Compensation Act (Que.). So where the accident is the result of a negligent attention to instructions on the part of an engineer or upon some other cause which led him to think that an engine had to be started, there is no inexcusable fault.

Lennon v. Montreal Transportation Co., 53 Que. S.C. 239.

SAW MILL—CLOTHING.

The persistence of an employee in a workshop in clothing himself, in spite of his employer's remonstrances, in a long flowing dust coat to do his work in proximity to the saws and belts, constitutes an inexcusable fault of a nature to justify the court in reducing the compensation, when the workman is a victim of such gross imprudence in an accident while at work.

Fontaine v. Paradis, 54 Que. S.C. 468.

DAUGHTER'S ESTABLISHMENT—INEXCUSABLE FAULT—INFANT.

A manufacture of metallic corks for bottles falls within the class of dangerous establishments under art. 3833, R.S.Q. The owner who employs there an infant under 16 years of age is guilty of an inexcusable fault in the event of an accident.

Vauier v. Bouthillier, 54 Que. S.C. 407.

ELECTRIC SHOCK.

If a workman, working upon a scaffold erected outside a car, receives an electric shock and is thrown down, and suffers severe injuries, it is not inexcusable fault on the part of the company which placed the electric wires across the scaffold for the purpose of lighting the interior of its cars. C.P.R. Co. v. Ferrari, 27 Que. K.B. 334.

PRECAUTIONS.

"Inexcusable fault," under the law of accidents to workmen, is a fault almost voluntarily and quasi-malicious. So it is not an inexcusable fault when (a) an employer appeared to have taken certain precautions to protect his workmen, as, for example, in explaining to them the workings of the machine at which the workman is required to work, and in ordering another workman in charge of a neighboring and similar machine to teach him his work; (b) but especially when the workman had already, before the accident, worked more than six hours at such machine, whose working was easy to understand and exhibited only a very obvious danger.

Rubber Regenerating Co. v. Manchuk, 27 Que. K.B. 129.

RAILWAY SWITCHMAN FALLING BENEATH MOVING CAR.

A switchman of a railway company who, in order to reach more quickly the place where he works, mounts on a car platform and, on reaching the switch which he was to operate, falls beneath the moving car and is fatally injured, is not guilty of an inexcusable fault by which he loses the benefit of the Workmen's Compensation Act (Que.).

Pepin v. G.T.R. Co., 47 Que. S.C. 223.

INJURY TO SERVANT RUNNING DANGEROUS ELEVATOR—EARNING POWER.

When an employee is working at an elevator, known to entail an element of danger while running, and a representative of his employer at his request undertakes to arrange with the person in charge of the building to have it stopped, and the employee, although the elevator did not stop, continues his work, and gets injured, he is not nevertheless guilty of an inexcusable fault under the Workmen's Compensation Act. The fact that an employee injured and seeking relief under that Act has found employment after the accident at his former rate of pay, is not decisive proof that his earning power has not been diminished.

Peterson v. Garth Co., 24 Que. K.B. 165.

ALLEGATIONS.

Claiming under the Workmen's Compensation Act a sum greater than the amount of the compensation fixed by the Act, it is necessary to prove that the accident was due to the inexcusable fault of the employer. An allegation of facts, which tend to establish inexcusable fault on the part of the employer, is not foreign to the case and will not be struck out on an inscription en droit.

Savignac v. Montreal Tramways Co., 18 Que. P.R. 125.

DROWNING WHEN RETURNING FROM WORK—LOGGING.

L, a driver of timber, returning to camp after his day's work, in a dark and rainy night, came to a river 35 feet in width, where the bridge had been carried away by the water during the day. At the same time the "searchers," sent from the camp to find him, having seen him, threw a tree across the river to form a bridge according to the custom in such circumstances. L, attempted to cross but the tree broke, he was carried away by the current and drowned. Held, not inexcusable fault under the Workmen's Compensation Act. The accident, although happening after the day's work, occurred at the place of the work, by the fact and the performance of the work, inasmuch as the driver was returning to the general camp, of necessity, for his food and rest under the surveillance of his employer. A company engaged in cutting timber and driving it to sawmills, where it is manufactured into commercial lumber, is not exercising an agricultural industry, but is performing a commercial and manufacturing operation, and the "drivers" of its timber come within the provisions of the statute respecting accidents to workmen.

Baie St. Paul Lumber Co. v. Tremblay, 25 Que. K.B. 1.

PLEADING—PRAYERS—AMENDMENT.

Where in an action under the Workmen's Compensation Act, inexcusable fault is alleged and the plaintiff prays generally that the defendant be condemned to pay him $400, and in an incidental demand, for increased damages, he prays also generally, that damages be increased to $4,342, he cannot obtain a condemnation in his favour for general damages, and the déliéré will be discharged and the plaintiff given a delay to amend his conclusions.

Waters v. Cape, 51 Que. S.C. 151.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION — RAFTING — WORKING OF TIMBER AND SAWMILLS — DROWNING.

Under the law respecting accidents to workmen there is no "inexcusable fault" on the part of the victim under the following circumstances:—A raftsmen, returning to camp after his day's work, on a dark and rainy night, came to a river 35 feet wide, where the bridge had been carried away during the day by the water. At the same time the searchers sent out from the camp to find him, having seen him, threw upon the river a tree to form a bridge, as is usual under such circumstances. The raftsmen tried to cross, but the tree broke and he was carried away by the current and drowned. The accident above mentioned, though occurring after the day's work, happened at the place of work, by the fact and on account of the work, since the raftsmen was, of necessity, returning to the general camp to get his meals, and to sleep there under the supervision of his employer. A company which cuts timber and rafts it to its saw-mill, where it is turned into lumber, is not engaged in an agricultural industry, but is a commercial and manufacturing undertaking, and its raftsmen come within the provisions of the law respecting accidents to workmen.

Tremblay v. Baie Saint Paul Lumber Co., 46 Que. S.C. 203.

WORKMEN—COMPENSATION—DILATORY EXCEPTION—COMMON LAW.

If a plaintiff in an action for damages alleges that the accident was caused by reason of his work and by the inexcusable fault of defendant, and prays that the latter be condemned to pay him an annual rent under the Workmen's Compensation Act, or, in default of its applicability, to pay him the sum of $10,000, he must, on a dilatory motion, optate between the two rights of action set forth in his declaration.

Lesage v. Henderson, 15 Que. P.R. 323.

REDUCTION OF INDEMNITY.

An experience electrician, who disobeys the orders of his employer by failing to wear rubber gloves furnished him in order to work with electric wires charged with high voltage is guilty of inexcusable fault warranting a reduction of the indemnity in case of injury. When an employer has paid to his injured employee sums greater than the indemnity to which he is entitled for the period of total temporary incapacity, the indemnity for permanent diminution of his capacity to work may be reduced accordingly.

Caron v. Quebec R.L.H. & P. Co., 50 Que. S.C. 475.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT — TEMPORARY INCAPACITY — INEXCUSABLE FAULT, R.S.Q. 1909, ART. 7321.

The Workmen's Compensation Act (Que.) differs from the French law in that it does not make any distinction, as to the effects of inexcusable fault, between the compensation to which the workman has a right, whether in a case of temporary or permanent incapacity, and consequently this inexcusable fault can be pleaded in both cases. The inexcusable fault of the employer includes also the inexcusable fault of his superintendent. One of the characteristics of an inexcusable fault is the knowledge of danger, and consists in culpable and intentional negligence, and a carelessness of the safety of the workman, and it cannot be pleaded in the case of an error of judgment or in the case of a wrong movement due to ignorance of immediate danger.

Archambault v. Labelle, 46 Que. S.C. 387. (§ V—350) — COMPENSATION—AMENDMENT OF ACT — RETROACTIVENESS — CAPITAL RENT—CHOICE.

The Act of Geo. V. (1914), c. 57, amending the Workmen's Compensation Act (R.S. Que. 1909, art. 7329), which gives the person injured, or his representatives, the option to demand the payment direct to themselves of the amount of compensation or of the capital of the rent, has no retroactive effect and does not apply to an accident arising before the passing of the law, and the employer can only be required, as formerly, to pay the capital of the rent to an insurance company designated for that purpose by an Order-in-Council.

Martin v. Cape, 27 D.L.R. 113, 49 Que. S.C. 347.

CONSTRUCTION OF STATUTE — ANNUITIES — CAPITAL RENT.

The provision in sub-head 2 of art. 7322 of the Quebec Workmen's Compensation Act, that "the capital of the rents," claimed in cases of total or partial incapacity, "shall not exceed the sum of $2,000," does not govern the amount of rent where it is claimed from the employer himself, but derives its meaning from the subsequent art. 7329, which gives the injured person or his representatives the option to demand that the capitalized value of the rent shall be paid over to an approved insurance company which will provide an annuity in lieu thereof. [G.T.R. Co. v. McDonald, 5 D.L.R. 65, 21 Que. K.B. 532, followed; 16 D.L.R. 830, 49 Can. S.C.R. 163, affirmed.] C.P.R. v. McDonald, 23 D.L.R. 1, [1915] A.C. 1124, 24 Que. K.B. 495.

CAPITAL RENT.

Where under the Workmen's Compensation Act (art. 7321, R.S.Q. 1909) a workman who has been injured does not ask for the deposit of the capital sum, he is entitled to a rent the capital of which may exceed $2,000.

C.P.R. Co. v. Flore, 24 D.L.R. 710, 24 Que. K.B. 55.

SUSPENSION FROM WORK.

A workman who is paid by the hour for his work, but who is laid off temporarily through no fault of his, and who is afterwards recalled and resumes his work, is entitled to estimate the amount he would have earned had he not been laid off, and add it to the amount actually received in order to show that the Workmen's Compensation Act does not apply, and that he is entitled to bring his action under the common law.

Reynolds v. Can. Light & Power Co., 25 D.L.R. 237, 48 Que. S.C. 500.

REDEMPTION OF WEEKLY PAYMENTS—MODE OF ASCERTAINMENT.

In estimating the total amount of compensation to be awarded in redemption of future weekly payments under the Workmen's Compensation Act, the amount should be based on the state of health and the probable expectation of life of the injured person at the time of the inquiry on the application for redemption, without any deduction of the antecedent payments, though agreed upon by counsel of the respective parties. [Vivier Mills v. Shackleton, [1912] 1 K.B. 22, followed.]

PERMANENT AND PARTIAL DISABILITY.

In determining the question of permanent incapacity under the Workmen's Compensation Act (Que.), whether partial or total, it must be taken in consideration what the injured could earn before the accident and the earning capacity after the accident, but the fact that the injured's earnings since the accident are as much as before is not conclusive on his ability to do the work, if his work is intermittent and the rate of his earnings varies according to the kinds of work he is engaged in.

Lariviere v. Girouard, 24 D.L.R. 532, 24 Que. K.B. 154.

AMPUTATION OF THUMB—PARTIALLY PERMANENT INCAPACITY.

The Workmen's Compensation Act is an Act of public order, and every agreement to the effect that the employer should be relieved of the obligation imposed upon him by this Act is ipso facto a nullity.

Girard v. Naud, 48 Que. S.C. 429.

PERMANENT AND PARTIAL INCAPACITY—DIMINUTION IN SALARY.

The Workmen's Compensation Act granting, in case of permanent and partial incapacity, a rent equal to half the sum by which the wages have been reduced in consequence of the accident, it is the duty of the court to ascertain the corresponding decrease in the salary; and where the accident caused only a slight incapacity which does not expose the victim to any diminution in his salary, he has no claim to an indemnity for permanent and partial incapacity.

Stack v. Whittall, 48 Que. S.C. 272.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION—TEMPORARY TOTAL INCAPACITY—PERMANENT PARTIAL INCAPACITY—R.S.Q. 1909, ARTS. 7322, 7346.

Bonneau v. Sevigny, 25 D.L.R. 855, 47 Que. S.C. 129.

INJURY IN COURSE OF EMPLOYMENT.

An accident caused by the tortious act of a fellow workman having no relation whatever to the employment, cannot be said to arise "out of and in the course of the employment" under the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1910, N.S., c. 3, s. 5. [Challis v. London & S.W.R. Co., [1905] 2 K.B. 154, distinguished.]

Doyle v. Moirs, 22 D.L.R. 767, 48 N.S.R. 473. [Leave to appeal to Privy Council refused, March 27, 1915.]

INJURIES IN COURSE OF EMPLOYMENT.

An accident cannot be said to have happened by reason of or in the course of his work, so as to make a claim under the Workmen's Compensation Act (Que.), where the employee, without the knowledge or permission of the employer, goes to a place where he is forbidden to go, and meets with an accident while there.

COMMUNICATION OF DISEASE WHILE REMOVING CINDER FROM FELLOW-SERVANT'S EYE—COURSE OF EMPLOYMENT.

Where an infectious disease is communicated to a workman by his fellow-workman while trying to remove a piece of cinder which had got into his eye while he was at work, and such disease results in blindness, the accident may be said to have happened in the course of his employment so as to entitle him to compensation under art. 7321, R.S.Q. 1909.

C.P.R. v. Flore, 24 D.L.R. 710, 24 Que. K.B. 55.

INJURY TO TEAMSTER—IN OR ABOUT PLANT. Compensation may be allowed under the Workmen's Compensation Act, (N.S.) in respect of injury to a teamster while driving a truck and team of horses in the delivery of the output of the factory although at some distance therefrom, the horses and truck being a part of the factory "plant" under the extended meaning given by subs. 2 of s. 2 to the word "factory," so that an injury "on, in or about" any part of the plant is within the statute. [Yarmouth v. France, 19 Q.B.D. 647, and Carter v. Clarke, 14 Times L.R. 172, applied.]

O'Toole v. Brandram-Henderson, 21 D.L.R. 83, 48 N.S.R. 293.

INJURIES WHILE CHANGING CLOTHES — COURSE OF EMPLOYMENT.

A workman who was injured by the collapse of temporary stairs on which he was proceeding a few minutes before the hour for commencing his day's work to another floor for the purpose of changing into his working clothes left there on the previous day, is entitled to compensation as for an injury arising out of his employment under the Workmen's Compensation Act, Alta.

INJURY TO ONE EMPLOYED TO PAINT HOMESTEAD.

A painter employed to paint a homestead is precluded by the provisions of s. 10 of the Workmen's Compensation Act from recovering compensation for injuries sustained at that work.

Smid v. Townsend, 8 W.W.R. 474.

DEATH WHILE MOVING BUILDING.

The death of a workman employed by a contractor for moving a building who loses his life in consequence of an accident comes under the application of the Workmen's Compensation Act, the moving having relation to the industry carried on in the building.

Desilets v. Laplante, 48 Que. S.C. 385.

DROWNING WHILE RETURNING FROM WORK.

A workman who, at the end of his day's work in order to return home, embarks in a boat not belonging to his employer or under his control to return to his home, and who is drowned en route, is not the victim of an accident within the application of the Workmen's Compensation Act, and his widow and children have no recourse against his employer.

Menard v. Quinlan, 47 Que. S.C. 115.

POSTPONEMENT OF ADJUDICATION AS TO AMOUNT.

Where in an action under the Workmen's Compensation Act (Que.), the annual rent for a permanent partial incapacity cannot be properly ascertained at the trial, the court has power to postpone final adjudication to some future date and to grant a temporary allowance in the meantime.

Hyland v. Lake & River Transportation Co., 37 D.L.R. 467, 26 Que. K.B. 452.

AMOUNT—PRAYER.

A plaintiff suing under the Workmen's Compensation Act (Que.), cannot obtain a condemnation for general damages, but the court may on a proper prayer by him, fix and determine the annual rent to which he is entitled.

Waters v. Cape, 30 D.L.R. 718, 50 Que. S.C. 151.

ACTION FOR RENT OR CAPITAL.

A plaintiff, in an action under the Workmen's Compensation Act (Que.), as amended, may sue for either the annual rent or the capital, and even if he elects to sue for the annual rent he may, at any time, even after judgment, make option for and recover the capital representing such rent.

AWARD OF LUMP SUM—VALIDITY—NEGLECT OF CURE.

Under the Workmen's Compensation Act, R.S.B.C., 1911, c. 244, an award of a lump sum should be upheld where it is not awarded as such but is merely the result of the addition of the several amounts of a weekly allowance. An applicant for compensation under the Workmen's Compensation Act, R.S.B.C., 1911, c. 244, is not entitled to compensation beyond the date when he neglected to follow the instruction of his medical advisers which would, if followed, have effected a cure. The applicant who is cured, and he who refuses to be cured, are on the same legal footing.

Gorgnigiani v. Welch, 26 B.C.R. 195, [1918] 3 W.W.R. 797.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT, (QUE.)—YEARLY WAGES — ASCERTAINMENT — INEXCUSABLE FAULTS.

To fix the yearly wages in order to apply the Workmen's Compensation Act (Que.) it is not sufficient to take the wages that the victim earned at the time of the accident and multiply it by the number of working days of the year, but the real wages must be ascertained, i.e., the wages without taking into account the accident which the workman received during the time he was employed; and when the workman has worked for less than 12 months prior to the accident, there must be added to the wages which the workman has earned the average remuneration of a workman of the same class in order to complete the 12 months and form the yearly wage that, in the normal conditions of his work, the workman should have earned during the year. A workman whom his employer places at the head of his companions, to represent him as checker or foreman, and to whom he has given, in his absence, the direction of the works, but who himself works with the other labourers, does not lose his quality of workman towards his employer, and retains the benefit of the Act. When a case falls under the Act the principles of the civil law on the fault do not apply, save in a case in which an intentional or inexcusable fault is alleged. An inexcusable fault is an especially gross mistake, which consists in voluntarily doing a dangerous act of which the danger is known or ought to be known. It also consists in not seeing or foreseeing what another person, under the same circumstances, would have seen or foreseen. That fault supposes the knowledge of the danger and the will to run it, and implies a neglect of care or a lack of precaution which might easily prevent an accident. In cases under the Act the jurisdiction of the court is not limited to decision of the parties' rights at the time the action commenced, as in the ordinary cases, but it must determine those they have at the time of the judgment and also the probable future duration of the victim's incapacity. When a plaintiff includes in his claim the whole compensation to which he may be entitled, and his action implies the assertion of the creditor's total rights, it interrupts prescription not only as to the daily compensation due at the time but also as to what might become due later on the same ground of action.

Foucher v. Morache, 46 Que. S.C. 498.

ACCIDENT OF WORK—CALCULATION OF SALARY—CONTINUOUS WORK—CATEGORY—PROOF—REFERRED TO THE SUPERIOR COURT—S. REF. ART. 7328, 2 AND 3.

A labourer who works in a munition plant established for more than one year at seventy-two and a half cents an hour, for seven months thus earning a salary of $615.45, does an uninterrupted work and is subjected in so far as the manner of calculating his salary, to art. 7328, 1909, S. ref. [1909] (Workmen's Compensation Act), and not to s. 3 of the same article. It is for a labourer who sues by virtue of the law of accidents of work and whose demand is rejected by the aforesaid art. 7328 s. 2, to prove the average salary of labourers in the same category during a period necessary to complete the twelve months. If he does not prove this the court can send back the "brief" to the Superior Court, to permit the latter to make this proof.

Pelletier v. Montreal Locomotive Works, 25 Rev. Leg. 76.

MILL HAND—COMMON LAW—SALARY LESS THAN $1000—REJECTED ACTION—C.C. 1953 A. ART. 7326, S. REF. [1909].

An employee in a mill whose salary is less than $1000 a year can sue for damages in virtue of the Common Law. He ought to form his demand according to the disposition of the law of accidents of work otherwise the action will be dismissed subject to proof.

Canadian Steel Foundries v. Stychlinsky, 25 Rev. Leg. 135. [See 20 Que. P.R. 131.]

When art. 2 of 9 Edw. VII. c. 66, respecting workmen's compensation for injuries, allows to an employee an income in a case when he receives an injury during his employment, which injury carries with it a permanent partial incapacity, it is on condition that his professional capacity would decrease, and be lasting in reduction of his salary. It is this reduction of salary that should be the basis of figuring the income to which the employee will have a right, income which will amount to one-half the reduction in salary which he suffered through the accident. This essential condition required by law will not apply when, after the accident the plaintiff voluntarily renewed his employment with the same salary as he received before the accident. In such circumstances, he will find that art. 2 of the above law, is, by voluntary act of the plaintiff, rendered inapplicable, and that, in the present state of the legislation, he has no right to any income.

Cater v. G.T.R. Co., 18 Rev. de Jur. 27.

The Act, 4 Geo. V., c. 57 (Que.), amending the Act respecting accidents to workmen, which allows the workman, in a case of permanent disability, to demand the capital of the amount of compensation awarded in lieu of an annuity, has no retrospective effect. The Act cannot be considered declaratory and interpretative, except in regard to the fact that the statute did not take away the common law remedy of persons who could not take advantage of the statute. The amendment does not prevent the employer from having the awarded compensation revised under art. 7346, R.S.Q. 1909, even if he pays the amount of the capital to the workman.

Jennings v. Brissette, 25 Que. K.B. 21.

COMPUTATION OF INDEMNITY—R.S.Q. 1909, ARTS. 7322, 7326, 7329, 7349—"DAILY WAGES RECEIVED AT THE TIME OF THE ACCIDENT"—ANNUAL WAGES—AVERAGE—CAPITAL.

Trudel v. Rhéaume, 52 Que. S.C. 207.

SETTLEMENT—PRESCRIPTION—INTERRUPTION.

An agreement between employer and employee, in settlement of a claim under the Workmen's Compensation Act, (Que.) by which the employer is to pay the victim a sum in addition to the amount already received and to keep him in his employ as long as he had work to give him and he did his duty properly, is not a settlement of the claim and neither affects a novation nor an extinguishment of it. Such agreement interrupts the prescription. From the time it was made until it was set aside, the prescription is suspended and only begins to run again at the latter date.

Tremblay v. Canada Cement Co., 52 Que. S.C. 183.

INTERRUPTION OF PRESCRIPTION—COMPUTATION OF INDEMNITY.

Service of the petition to obtain authority to bring an action under the Workmen's Compensation Act (Que.), interrupts the prescription declared by art. 7343 of the Act. To determine the wages of the workman as the basis of the indemnity to be given, the court should take into consideration the total of what he had earned during the 12 months before the accident, without deducting from these wages the amount which he had paid to his employer on account of the pension fund.

Squizzato v. Brennan, 51 Que. S.C. 301.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT—WORKMAN EARNING SALARY—OVER $1,000—COMMON LAW RIGHT—R.S.Q. 7326, 7328.

When the victim cannot sue under the Workmen's Compensation Act (Que.), because his salary is over $1,000, his action lies under the common law, and suit taken under the Act will be dismissed.

Couture v. G.T.R. Co., 16 Que. P.R. 221.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT—EARNING CAPACITY REDUCED—COMPENSATION—ANNUITY—AVERAGE SALARY—SETTLEMENT.

Sentimental considerations cannot overrule the law, and, in the case of an accident to a workman the rule de minimis non curat lex does not apply when an annuity, representing a capital of over $200, is at stake. In the case of a workman employed for less than 12 months previous to the accident, the average salary of workmen of the same class, together with the victim's earnings since his employment, taken as a basis to calculate an annuity for the reduction of earning capacity, is the salary which has been really earned, and not which should have been earned; and the court cannot presume that salary if no evidence is given on the point. Neither the offer of a settlement before the judge, whom the law authorizes to try and get the parties to settle before he allows the action to be entered, nor the admissions nor concessions which have then been made in view of a settlement, can be taken advantage of against the parties at the trial.

Kopyi v. Jacobs Asbestos Mining Co., 46 Que. S.C. 466.

NONCONTINUOUS WORK—ANNUAL SALARY.

A factory which since its establishment has not been operated for 12 consecutive months, but only during irregular intervals, must be considered as an enterprise the work of which is not continuous. To determine the indemnity payable to a workman who is the victim of a labor accident therein, one must establish his annual salary by adding to the remuneration which he received during the period of work the earnings which he could have realized during the balance of the year. (R.S.Q. 1909, art. 7328.)

Naud v. Girard, 25 Que. K.B. 407.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION—SALARY—EXTRA EMPLOYEES—R.S.Q. [1909], ART. 7321, 7323, 7328 WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT.

When an employer employs two classes of workmen of the same category: the first called regular employees, the second called extra employees, the latter not working continuously, and receiving a lower salary than those of the first class, it is necessary in order to determine the annual salary of the workmen for the full twelve months, by virtue of the second paragraph of art. 7328 of the Workmen's Compensation Act (Que.) to take the average of the remuneration received by the extra employees without taking into consideration that of the regular employees.

Langlois v. G.T.R. Co., 55 Que. S.C. 251.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION—APPRENTICE—INDEMNITY—C. C. (QUE.) ART. 1915—R.S.Q. [1909] ARTS. 7322, 7325, 7329.

An apprentice, in the sense in which the word is used in the Workmen's Compensation Act, is one who begins to work, and who only earns the minimum salary at first and gradually increases. He is not necessarily one engaged nominally under the name of apprentice.

Riendeau v. Labelle, 25 Rev. Leg. 391.

COMPUTATION OF YEARLY WAGES.

The yearly wages entitling one to invoke the Workmen's Compensation Act, (Que.) as also the yearly wages used as a basis to calculate the rents, mean the real wages allowed to the victim during the 12 months before the accident, and those wages must include the allowances granted for extra work according to contract.

Laferriere v. Frontenac Electric Laundry, 19 Que. P.R. 369.

AVERAGE WAGE—COMPUTATION.

Where a workman, the victim of an accident, has been less than 12 months in his employment, in order to fix his yearly wages there must be added to what he actually earned during the period of his employment the average wages received by workmen of the same class during the period required to complete the 12 months. Such average wage is computed, when the workmen are paid by the hour, by dividing the total amount which they received during the supplementary period by the number of hours which they worked during the same period.

St. Maurice Paper Co. v. Marcotte, 27 Que. K.B. 394.

PERMANENT PARTIAL INCAPACITY—ANNUAL RENT.

The right of the victim of an accident under the Workmen's Compensation Act, (Que.) to recover for permanent partial incapacity, depends upon the amount by which his wages have been reduced in consequence of the accident.

Smith v. G.T.R. Co., 53 Que. S.C. 334.

PARTIAL PERMANENT INCAPACITY—APPEAL—PROVISIONAL ALLOWANCE.

If a final judgment of the superior court has declared that the plaintiff is partially and permanently incapacitated, and it is not claimed that his condition has altered since the judgment, he will not be granted a daily provisional allowance during the proceedings in review.

AMOUNT ADMITTED—JUDGMENT.

In an action under the Workmen's Compensation Act, (Que.) if the defendant admits owing a certain amount, and consents to a judgment being given for such amount, the court can give judgment for such amount upon the plaintiff's petition during the litigation, reserving to him the right to continue the action for the remainder of the claim.

Rossi v. Scottish Canadian Magnesite Co., 54 Que. S.C. 511.

SETTLEMENT OF CASE — CONFIRMATION — CAPITAL—VALIDITY—CONTINUANCE.

After the service of the petition for authority to sue under the Workmen's Compensation Act, the parties may settle their dispute, with the sanction of the court, and such arrangement may extend to the payment of the capital. Such an agreement can only be set aside on the grounds which allow the cancellation of agreements. If an action under the Workmen's Compensation Act (Que.) is settled between the parties, and the plaintiff, complaining of the illegality of the settlement, continues the proceedings, the parties should proceed to prove the sufficiency of the amount paid.

Patenaude v. Canada Cement Co., 20 Que. P.R. 241. [See 54 Que. S.C. 216.]

COSTS AND INTEREST.

The compensation granted by art. 7332 of the Workmen's Compensation Act (Que.) is offset by the costs which the employee owes his employer; that is, the latter has a right to deduct the costs from the amount of the compensation. A court ought not to make a distinction where the law makes none, or to create exceptions which the law has evidently not wanted to declare by not including them in the law. The successful party must pay his attorney's costs; and should that party pay them, he is subrogated de jure by the sole effect of the law, to the rights of his attorney, and may execute the judgment for those costs without transfer or previous service, by complying with art. 555 C.C.P. As costs bear interest from the date of the judgment granting them, it is not necessary for the judge to add the words, "with interest."

Trudel v. Rhéaume, 54 Que. S.C. 292.

EXECUTION OF JUDGMENT—PREMATURITY.

An execution, obtained less than a month after the final judgment given under the Workmen's Compensation Act (Que.) in favor of a workman permanently incapacitated, is premature and illegal.

Manchub v. Rubber Regenerating Co., 20 Que. P.R. 8.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION — PERSONAL INJURIES — PRINCIPLES OF ASSESSMENT AND DAMAGES.

An injured workman may show that if he had not been injured, he might at the time of action be in receipt of larger wages than he is then getting, and should be allowed a fair amount of compensation for being deprived of the reasonable prospects he had of improving his condition in life. In an action for damages for personal injuries a jury should not award punitive or vindictive damages, and should take into account the accidents of life and other matters, including the fact that the plaintiff had not been completely disabled. They should not give the plaintiff the full amount of a perfect compensation for the pecuniary injury he has suffered, but only what they consider, under the circumstances, a fair compensation for his loss.

Anderson v. Forrester, 7 W.W.R. 1039.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION — ASSESSMENT OF DAMAGES FOR INJURY—TIME SPENT ON HOMESTEAD—PARTIAL INCAPACITY.

An injured workman should not be allowed damages in respect of the time during which he is compelled by the Dominion Lands regulation to live upon his homestead. The proper way to assess damages under the Workmen's Compensation Act is to estimate the earnings during 3 years preceding an injury without any consideration of sympathy, physical suffering or injury to the appearance. A plaintiff is not entitled to the full sum named in the Act, where his injury is such that his earning power is decreased one-quarter only.

Kier v. Bennell, 6 W.W.R. 739.

($ V—351)—PARTIAL INCAPACITY.

Continued suffering from a broken leg after the bones have been joined and restored to normal condition, due to lack of proper medical treatment, is a temporary disability; the burden of proving permanent incapacity is upon the plaintiff.

Bodeau v. Chagnon, 37 D.L.R. 392, 52 Que. S.C. 202.

LOSS OF HAND.

The loss of all the fingers on one hand amounts to the loss of the whole hand, and justifies the award of the full amount allowed for the loss of a hand under the Workmen's Compensation for Injuries Act (N.B. 1914, c. 34).

Pankhurst v. Smith, 33 D.L.R. 23, 44 N.B.R. 279.

THUMB AND FINGER CRUSHED—ACTION FOR DAMAGES — EVIDENCE — FINDINGS OF JURY—DAMAGES.

Simpson v. Tallman Brass & Metal Co., 3 O.W.N. 398, 20 O.W.R. 646.

PERMANENT PARTIAL INCAPACITY—PARALYSIS.

Where a workman suffers from the complete paralysis of his left arm and leg, due to a lesion of the nervous system caused by an accident while working, that is, by a shell weighing 18 pounds, which fell from a shelf and struck his left arm, which paralysis has resisted all attempts at cure, but which possibly may be cured, he is entitled to compensation for a permanent and partial disability. Such possibility of cure is uncertain and cannot be treated as a judicial fact of sufficient weight to establish that the disability is merely temporary and not permanent.

Martha v. C.P.R., 51 Que. S.C. 443.

(§ V-352)—"TOTAL INCAPACITY."

A doctor's certificate that an injured person is "able to do light work" is not proof that he is "fit and capable of doing work," or that his "incapacity for work" or "total incapacity" has ceased, within the meaning of an agreement limiting the liability between master and servant.

Russell v. Twin City Coal Co., 36 D.L.R. 235.

PERMANENT INCAPACITY — ANNUITY—CAPITAL.

When a judgment, under the Workmen's Compensation Act, condemns an employer to pay an annual sum to his employee, the latter may, by motion, apply to the court, within 30 days from the date of the judgment, for an order directing that the capital be paid to him.

Demers v. Grailion, 51 Que. S.C. 42.

(§ V-353)—"PROVISIONAL ALLOWANCE."

A provisional allowance should not be granted to a plaintiff suing under the Workmen's Compensation Act (Que.), if his right of action is contested and doubtful, or if it is susceptible of only giving a reduced rent which would be absorbed by the provision paid during the trial.

Yukerviez v. G.T.R. Co., 19 Que. P.R. 151.

Article 7343, R.S.Q., authorizing a judge, in an action under the Workmen's Compensation Act (Que.), to grant the plaintiff a daily allowance, should be construed strictly. So, when the employer shews that that law does not apply because the employee earns more than $1,000 a year, the application will be refused.

Tremblay v. Canada Cement Co., 24 Rev. Leg. 444, 20 Que. P.R. 13.

If a defendant pleads that the plaintiff makes more than $1,000 a year, and does not fall under the Workmen's Compensation Act (Que.), a plea which appeared prima facie well founded, a daily allowance will be refused.

Sayed v. Canadian Tube & Iron Co., 19 Que. P.R. 1.

STIPULATED JUDGMENT—REMEDY—REVISION OF COMPENSATION—DAILY ALLOWANCE.

The stipulated judgment, under s. 27 of the Workmen's Compensation Act (Que.) (9 Ed. VII., c. 66), on a workman's petition asking authorization to sue, having the same effect as a final judgment from a proper tribunal, must be attacked by the same means and not by those provided to have transactions set aside. The means of appeal or review before three judges, granted by s. 22 of the Act, are not granted against the stipulated judgment rendered under s. 27, because the parties have acquiesced therein, and because the law makes no distinction between the acquiescence before or after the delivery of judgment. Such a judgment, therefore, can be withdrawn only by a petition in revocation, because the main action has never been recognized in the French law, as a means of attacking judgment. Such a judgment is none the less subject to be set aside, but according to the special provisions concerning transactions (arts. 1921, et seq. C.C. Que.), and not according to those concerning ordinary contracts (arts. 991 to 1001, C.C. Que.). So an error of law can never be a ground to have such a judgment withdrawn (art. 1921 C.C. Que.). There is no other remedy against such judgment, besides the petition in revocation, than the action to revise the compensation granted to each party by s. 26 of the Act. The Quebec Code, different from the French law, enacts the principle that a party may always desist from his claim or proceedings without the consent of the opposite party, provided he pays the costs, but only from a judgment given exclusively in his favor. A judgment condemning the defendants, with their consent, to pay the plaintiff the sum of $87.50, provided the latter renounces any damages suffered from the accident, is not exclusively in favor of the plaintiff, and he could not, except with the defendant's consent, desist from that judgment, which at his request, was ratified by the court under s. 27 of the Act. A workman, who takes an action to revise the compensation granted him by a stipulated judgment, cannot, during the trial in review, ask for alimony in the form of a daily allowance. The only compensation which s. 26 of the Act authorizes in cases of revision within four years from the agreement of the parties or the final judgment, are those of absolute and permanent incapacity, which have been fixed either by the stipulated judgment ratifying the agreement of the parties according to s. 27, or, in case of disagreement, by the judgment rendered under s. 3. In other words, the absolute and permanent incapacity, mentioned in subpar. (a) of s. 2 of the Act, is the only one which, in case of aggravation, may justify an action to revise.

St. Jacques v. St. Jean Berchmans, 19 Que. P.R. 30.

PROVISIONAL ALLOWANCE.

An application for a provisional daily allowance, made during an action under the Workmen's Compensation Act (Que.), cannot be contested in writing without previous permission of a judge, but should be adjudged upon summarily, at the discretion of the court or a judge.

Blair v. Allen Scott Roofers, 20 Que. P. R. 114.

Where the plaintiff, after the accident complained of, was again able to work and settled with his employer, obtains permission to sue again, on alleging new facts, he has no right, during the new proceedings, to a provisional allowance.

Harris v. Peek Rolling Mills, 20 Que. P. R. 149.

The provisional daily allowance authorized by the Workmen's Compensation Act (Que.), is left to the discretion of the court, which should only be exercised for important reasons, for example, when the liability of the employer is certain, or the employee is unable to work, etc.

Schinek v. Galibert, 19 Que. P.R. 130.

PROVISIONAL ALLOWANCE—WAGES.

An application for a provisional allowance under the Workmen's Compensation Act (Que.), made 6 days before the hearing, and the defendant denies the plaintiff's right for the reason that he earns a yearly wage of more than $1,000, will be transferred to the court seized of the case.

Jourdain v. Canada Box Board Co., 19 Que. P.R. 181.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION—TEMPORARY ALLOWANCE—DISCONTINUANCE.

Duval v. Vieus, 12 Que. P.R. 338.

Under the Workmen's Compensation Act (Que.), the plaintiff's provisional alimentary allowance pending the suit should be fixed as much as possible on the same basis as the final allowance will be determined.

Sutherland v. Phenix Brass Works Co., 13 Que. P.R. 408.

INTERIM ALLOWANCE—PLEADING.

The Workmen's Compensation Act (Que.) gives complete discretion to the Superior Court or judge thereof to grant, during the action, a daily allowance to the plaintiff.

Canada Cement Co. v. McNally, 18 Que. P.R. 134.

In an action under the Workmen's Compensation Act, an interim allowance will not be granted if the defendant's pleading denying his liability is apparently very serious and if the court gravely doubts that the plaintiff will be able to obtain judgment against the defendant.

Pionias v. Lachine Mfg. Co., 18 Que. P.R. 102.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT — PROVISIONAL ALLOWANCE—PRIMA FACIE DEFENCE—R.S.Q. ART. 7322.

In an action under the Workmen's Compensation Act (Que.), no provisional allowance will be granted if the defendant's plea denying his liability is, at first sight, a very weighty one, and if the court has grave doubts as to whether the plaintiff can obtain judgment against the defendant.

Gagnon v. Demers, 15 Que. P.R. 416.

PROVISIONAL ALLOWANCE—COMPANY IN LIQUIDATION.

A demand for a provisional allowance under the Workmen's Compensation Act (Que.), will be granted even if the defendant company declares that it has been put into, and actually is in, liquidation.

Duguay v. Canada Iron Corp. 15 Que. P.R. 200.

DAILY ALLOWANCE—COMPANY EMPLOYER.

A daily allowance during the trial will not be granted to the plaintiff in an action under the Workmen's Compensation Act (Que.), if it is proved that the defendant company, although possessing the majority of the shares in the company which employed the plaintiff and under the control of the same manager, is however an independent company with special powers and its own board of directors.

Manchuck v. Canadian Consolidated Rubber Co., 18 Que. P.R. 311.

(§ V—354)—REVISION OF COMPENSATION—AGREEMENT.

Under the Workmen's Compensation Act (Que.) the person injured may demand a revision of the compensation that he has received on account of aggravation of his disability, even though this compensation has been determined by agreement between the parties and not by judgment. The action for revision is open to him not only in case of aggravation of a disability already acknowledged to be permanent, but even when the disability first deemed to be only temporary has afterwards assumed a permanent character.

Desbequets v. Doyle, 52 Que. S.C. 117.

COMPENSATION—DEMAND OF CAPITAL.

When a workman, injured in the course of his work, intends to demand from his employer the capital of the rent to which he is entitled by way of compensation, he should demand it by the conclusions of his action. The final judgment which awards compensation under the form of rent in conformity with his demand, constitutes res judicata between him and his employer and cannot be reformed on motion. The option given by art 7329, R.S.Q. 1909, exercisable within the month from the date of the final judgment fixing the compensation, is limited to the alternative of payment to the victim in conformity with the judgment, or of payment of the capital of the rent to an insurance company.

Burke v. Ross, 52 Que. S.C. 142.

(§ V—355)—APPEAL.

In an action under the Workmen's Compensation Act (Alta.), there is no appeal from the District Court Judge, except that given by par. 4 of the second schedule of the Act, which is by implication only, and limited to questions of law, by analogy to the English Workmen's Compensation Act of 1897, [Smith v. Lancashire & Yorkshire R. Co., [1899] 1 Q.B. 141, applied].

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION BOARD—VALIDITY OF PROCEEDINGS—FINALITY—REVIEW—JURISDICTION.

Where a municipal corporation, sued by a contractor for work done, pleads payment of the amount sued on to the Workmen's Compensation Board, after having been notified of the plaintiff's liability under the Workmen's Compensation Act and the assessment of the amount against him, the court has jurisdiction to inquire into the proceedings of the Board to ascertain whether the corporation brought itself within the protection of the Act. After a decision has been rendered and a valid assessment made by the Board, it is final and not subject to review by the courts an assessment by an officer of the Board becomes valid when confirmed by the Board.

COMMON LAW ACTION—"DETERMINED."

A common law action for damages is not "determined" within the meaning of s. 3 (4) of the Workmen's Compensation Act, c. 19, so long as the right of appeal is open to the plaintiff and he has taken advantage of it. Therefore, where upon dismissal of the action in the Appellate Division the plaintiff appeals to the Supreme Court of Canada, he is not required to apply at once for an assessment under the Act and to have his claim for compensation stand over, until the judgment on such appeal, or be entertained. PRESUMPTION OF RIGHT AND NOT WRONG.

It is a maxim of the law to give effect to everything that appears to have been established for a considerable course of time and to presume that what has been done was done of right and not of wrong.

"NOSCITUR A SOCIIS" — "PRODUCE" IN INDIAN ACT, CONSTRUED.

The word "produce" in the phrase "grain, root crops, or other produce" embraced in s. 39 of the Indian Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 81, is, under the maxim noscitur a sociis, limited to the meaning which it shares with its antecedents "grain" and "root crops" and should not be taken to cover "wild hay."

"EXPRESSIO UNUS."

The maxim "expressio unius est exclusio alterius" is not of universal application, but depends upon the intention of the parties as it can be discovered upon the face of the instrument or upon the transaction, and should not be applied when its application, having regard to the subject matter to which it is to be applied, leads to inconsistency or injustice.

CONSTRUCTION OF STATUTES.

Section 32 of the Mechanics' Lien Act (Alta.), 1906, c. 21, as amended by s. 12, c. 20 of 1908, is for the protection of an owner who is under a personal contractual obligation to pay and not otherwise. "Owner" is a variable term and as used in s. 11 of the Mechanics' Lien Act (Alta.), 1906, will include "leaseholder" when read with the interpretation clause, s. 2, subs. 4, extending the term "owner" to a person having any estate or interest legal or equitable in the lands.

CONSTRUCTION OF STATUTE—SASKATCHEWAN MECHANICS' LIEN ACT—IMPLIED REPEAL.

A mechanics' lien is the creature of statute and enforceable only as may be provided by the statute creating it. While, before the enactment of the Saskatchewan Mechanics' Lien Act of 1907, the Supreme Court of that province had statutory jurisdiction to entertain an action to enforce a mechanics' lien, the effect of s. 30 of that Act is to repeal by implication the former statutory jurisdiction and to confer jurisdiction on the District Court alone. Therefore, in an action in the Supreme Court by a vendor for payment of purchase money and other relief, a counterclaim for the enforcement of a mechanics' lien was set aside. [Martin v. Russell, 2 B.C.R. 98, applied and followed. Dittum in McKenzie v. Murray, 11 W.L.R. 123, not followed.]

Johnson v. C.N.R. Co., 10 O.W.N. 372.

NATURE OF LIEN—CONSTRUCTION OF MECHANICS' LIEN ACT—SUBSTANTIAL COMPLIANCE WITH FORM—"OWNER."

Sections creating the right to a lien are to be strictly construed, while provisions dealing with procedure on the enforcement of the lien are to receive a broad and liberal construction. The lien given by the Mechanics' Lien Act is a lien upon the building or erection, i.e., is against the property no matter who owns it or has interest in it. The true tenor and intent of the instrument claiming a mechanics' lien is a claim of a lien upon certain specified lands and not a claim of lien upon the estate or interest in the lands of certain named persons. [Barrington v. Martin, 16 O.L.R. 135, followed.] An error in naming the owner of the lands with respect to which a lien is claimed, is not sufficient to prevent the instrument claiming the lien from shewing the substantial compliance with the statutory form, as desiderated by s. 17 of the Act. A sub-contractor has a lien on the interest of his principal acquired through his (the principal's) lien.

THE RIGHT—WHEN LIEN EXISTS—ACTION TO "REALIZE A LIEN"—CONDITIONS—MECHANICS' LIEN ACT, B.C.

An action to realize a lien under the Mechanics' Lien Act (B.C.), can be brought only when the money sought to be recovered has become payable and within 30 days after the filing of the lien; no action lies for the purpose of keeping the lien in esse where the due date is deferred beyond the time which is limited by the Act for actions to enforce a mechanics' lien, such cases not being provided for in the Act.

SUBSTANTIAL PERFORMANCE OF CONTRACT.

Although an unimportant part of the contract remains unfinished, one who contracts to supply material or do work on a building is entitled to enforce a lien for the contract price less the cost of completing the contract.

OWNER'S KNOWLEDGE OF WORK.

In an action to enforce a lien where the owner of the property did not contract for the work or improvements, it is incumbent upon the plaintiff, under s. 10 of the Mechanics' Lien Act (B.C.), to shew that the owner had knowledge of such works or improvements.

Baker v. Williams, 23 B.C.R. 124.

STATUTORY LIEN FUND—RIGHTS OF OWNER.

The statutory amount of payment which the owner may retain by virtue of s. 11 (1) of the Mechanics' Lien Act, R.S.S., c. 150, forms a fund available for the lienholders only, to which the owner cannot resort as security against or to make good any loss occasioned by the non-compliance of the contract. [Russell v. French, 28 O.R. 215; Rice Lewis v. Harvey, 9 D.L.R. 114, followed.]

Peart v. Battell, 23 D.L.R. 193, 8 S.L.R. 305, 8 W.W.R. 1159, 31 W.L.R. 956.

LANDS OF DIFFERENT OWNERS—"LIEN HOLDER"—WHO IS.

The Mechanics' and Wage Earners' Lien Act, R.S.M. 1913, c. 125, does not authorize the registration of one lien for one lump sum against the lands of different owners, although the work may have been done or the materials furnished under one contract for the building of houses on the lands of the different owners, unless, perhaps, in a case where the lien claimant did not know and had no means of ascertaining before filing his lien, that the lands were owned by different persons. [Fairclough v. Smith, 13 Man. L.R. 509; Oldfield v. Barbour, 12 P.R. 554, and Dunn v. McCallum, 14 O.L.R. 249, followed. Ontario Lime Ass'n v. Grimwood, 22 O.L.R. 17, distinguished.]

The expression "lien holder," in s. 33 of the Act, means a person having a lien which was valid at the time of commencing his action, so that when in an action commenced by a lien claimant, it is decided that he had no valid lien and no action was commenced within the time prescribed by s. 22 of the Act by any other person claiming a lien on the same property, all the liens upon it must fail. [Sear v. Woods, 23 O.R. 474, followed.]

RIGHT OF MINER AGAINST MINERAL CLAIM.

A miner may enforce a mechanics' lien against a mineral claim which has not been Crown granted. The 1910 amendment of s. 10 of the Mechanics' Lien Act has overcome the effect of the decision of the full court in Anderson v. Gotsdal, 7 B.C.R. 404. Venness v. Stoddard, 9 W.W.R. 832.

UNREGISTERED FOREIGN COMPANY—SUPPLY OF COAL AS BASIS OF LIEN.

An unregistered foreign company is entitled to a mechanics' lien inasmuch as the enforcement of the lien does not involve the acquisition of holding of lands or any interest therein or the registration of any title thereto under the Land Titles Act within the meaning of subs. 2 of s. 11 of the Foreign Companies Ordinance. A person who supplies coal to a building contractor for generating steam for the purpose of hoisting material and to dry the building in course of construction may be entitled to a mechanics' lien.

Wortman v. Frid Lewis Co., 9 W.W.R. 812, 33 W.L.R. 119.

ILLEGALITY OF CONTRACT.

Making additions to a house of ill-fame with knowledge that they are intended to increase the immoral business, will defeat a contractor's right to a mechanics' lien therefor.

Miller v. Moore, 3 A.L.R. 297.

REGISTRATION OF GRANT FROM CROWN—MECHANICS' LIEN FILED AGAINST INTEREST OF PERSON OTHER THAN GRANTEE—WHETHER MECHANICS' LIEN FOLLOWS ON TITLE.

Upon the registration of a grant from the crown where a mechanics' lien is filed against the interest in the land of a person other than the grantee, the mechanics' lien should be followed on the title unless the grant shows on its face that it is a home-stead grant in which case (unless the grant is to the personal representative of the person against whose possessory interest the mechanics' lien has been filed) the mechanics' lien should not be followed on the title.

Re Land Titles Act, [1919] 2 W.W.R. 39.

REQUEST OF OWNER—AGREEMENT OF SALE—COVENANT TO BUILD—LIEN FOR PREPARING WORK.

An agreement for the sale of land which contains a covenant binding the purchaser to erect certain works on the land at a certain cost and contains a covenant by the vendor, the owner, to remit a specified amount from the purchase price on the completion of said undertaking, is such a request in writing as gives a mechanics' lien arising from the erection of the said works general application under s. 6 of the Mechanics' Lien Act (B.C.), 1916, c. 154, and therefore the lien is not restricted to the increase in value of the premises by reason of such works. There is no lien under the Mechanics' Lien Act, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 154, in respect to the cost of preparing for work to be done upon a site, although such work has been frustrated without fault of the contractor.

B.C. Granitoid Co. v. Dominion Shipbuilding, etc., Co., [1918] 2 W.W.R. 919.

REAL PROPERTY—CROWN LANDS—LIEN AGAINST INTEREST OF ENTRANT—CROWN GRANT TO ANOTHER PERSON—LIEN NOT FOLLOWING ON TITLE—DUTY OF REGISTRAR—PRINCIPLE AS TO REGISTRAR'S DISCRETION AS TO REGISTERED INSTRUMENT FOLLOWING ON SUBSEQUENT TITLES.

A mechanics' lien filed against the possessory interest of an entrant to Crown lands does not follow on the title if the Crown grant issues to another person. In such case the registrar has the right to register the grant and issue the certificate of title thereon clear of the mechanics' lien. It is a sound principle in registration that the registrar, having exercised his discretion in accepting for registration an instrument, should not subsequently exercise a further discretion as to whether the instrument should follow on subsequent titles. It does so as a matter of course until disposed of by a judicial tribunal or removed by act of the parties. But this does not apply to the case of a mechanics' lien filed before issue of the grant.

Re Land Titles Act, [1919] 1 W.W.R. 628.

(§ II—7)—"PRIVITY AND CONSENT" OF OWNER—CONTRACT WITH LESSEE.

To create a lien against the interest of an "owner," for work done and materials furnished with his "privity and consent," there must be something in the nature of a direct dealing between the contractor and the owner or person whose estate is to be charged; when the latter merely has knowledge that the work is being done or materials furnished, and silently assents thereto and benefits thereby, a lien is not thereby created against his interest. Such lien is not created for work done and materials furnished under a contract exclusively with a lessee of the property.

Eddy v. Chamberlain, 37 D.L.R. 711, 45 N.B.R. 261.

"OWNER"—"MORTGAGEE"—UNPAID VENDOR—PRIORITIES.

An unpaid vendor who advances funds to the purchaser to build upon the land is not an "owner" within the meaning of s. (c) of the Mechanics' Lien Act (R.S.O. 1914, c. 140), so as to subject the land to mechanics' lien for work done and materials furnished under contracts with the purchaser; but by virtue of s. (2) of the Act, such vendor is deemed a "mortgagee" for the purpose of giving priority to the liens upon the increased selling value of the land caused by the improvements.

WORK CONTRACTED BY LESSEE—REQUEST OF LESSOR.

Work contracted by a sublessee in pursuance of an agreement with his lessor authorizing him to build upon the land, constitutes a "request" on the part of the lessor within the meaning of s. 2 (c) of the Mechanics' Lien Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 140, which extends the operation of the statute to the estate of any person at whose request work is done or materials furnished.

Ott v. Robertson, 23 D.L.R. 17, 34 O.L.R. 147.

ERECTION OF FIRE SPRINKLER UNDER LEASE—RIGHT OF LESSOR.

One who erects a fire sprinkler system under an agreement whereby the equipment is merely leased to the owner of the premises with a right to purchase, reserving the title and ownership thereto until paid in the lessor, is not precluded from claiming the statutory mechanics' lien against the premises of which the erection has been made part. [Chicago & Alton R. Co. v. Union, etc., Co., 109 U.S. 702, followed.]

LANDLORD AND TENANT—IMPROVEMENTS UNDER CONTRACT WITH LESSEE—TRADE FIXTURES.

A mechanics' lien cannot be acquired under s. 11 of the Mechanics' Lien Act, Stat. Alta. 1906, c. 21, on demised premises for building or placing therein at the request of the tenant chattels or trade fixtures which he may remove at the expiry of his term. The right to a mechanics' lien on demised premises for making alterations therein under a contract with the lessee, is not limited by s. 11 of the Mechanics' Lien Act, Stat. Alta. 1906, c. 21, to such alterations as are beneficial to and which increase the landlord's interest in the property.

(§ II—8)—RIGHTS OF CONDITIONAL VENDOR—CONFLICTING LIENS.

Where the title to furnaces sold is retained by a vendor until the payment of the price, the rights of such parties are governed by s. 9 of the Conditional Sales Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 136, and such vendor cannot rank as a lienholder under the provisions of the Mechanics' and Wage Earners' Lien Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 140.

INTEREST OF "OWNER"—VENDOR AND PURCHASER—REQUEST.

The lien given by s. 6 of the Mechanics' Lien Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 140, attaches to the estate or interest of the "owner," as defined by s. 2 (c) of the Act, and does not include a purchaser of land whereon improvements were made prior to his taking possession without his request express or implied. [Orr v. Robertson, 23 D.L.R. 17, 34 O.L.R. 147, distinguished.]

TRUE OR REGISTERED "OWNER"—VENDOR AND PURCHASER.

The word "owner" in the Mechanics' Lien Act does not necessarily mean registered owner, and that any person having an interest in the land, whether registered or not, at whose request, etc., work has been done, is an owner as defined by the Act and must be made a party. The case of Jones v. Barnett, [1906] 1 Ch. 370, 69 L.J. Ch. 242, was considered and followed, inasmuch as deciding that a purchaser cannot obtain a good title when the court inadvertently deals with the property of one person under the supposition that it belongs to another, and without notice to the true owner.

(§ II—9)—COMPLETION OF WORK BY CONTRACTOR'S CREDITORS—FURNISHING PROOF THAT NO OTHER LIENS ARE CHARGEABLE—RIGHTS OF LIENOR'S ASSIGNEE OR REPRESENTATIVE.

The nominee of the contractor's creditors who by agreement with the owner takes over the unfinished contract and completes the same on the contractor's default, with a stipulation that he shall be entitled to the same amount as would be coming to such contractor had he himself completed the work, will not be held in an action brought by him to enforce a lien, to a strict compliance with a clause of the original contract requiring the contractor, before action brought, to supply evidence that no other undischarged liens than his own remain a charge of the property, if in fact there were no such liens and the owner raising such objection had knowledge that the creditors other than the plaintiff had agreed with the latter not to file mechanics' liens. The representative of the creditors of a building contractor who contracts with the owner to take over, as the nominee of the contractor, the work of completing the contract, and obtains from the owner a stipulation whereby all moneys earned or to be earned under the contract were to become payable to such representative in the place of the original contractor, is entitled to file a mechanics' lien for the amount due on completion of the work in like manner as would the original contractor, notwithstanding that there was no express assignment in writing of the right to such lien from the latter.

III. Priorities.

(§ III—10)—OTHER ENCUMBRANCES—INCREASE IN VALUE—ENFORCEMENT.

Under s. 5 (3) of the Mechanics' Lien Act (R.S.M. 1913) prior encumbrances have priority over the mechanics' liens only to the extent of the actual value of the premises at the time the improvements are made, and the lien-holders have priority as to the increase in value effected by the improvements the rights of the latter cannot be worked out in an action for the foreclosure of a vendor's lien or mortgage, but can only be given effect to in an action brought to enforce their liens.

A purchaser of an unfinished building whose deed is registered prior to the registration of any mechanics' liens without actual notice thereof thereby acquires a priority by virtue of the Registry Act (R.S.O. 1914, c. 124), and takes the property free of the liens. Mere knowledge that building was going on upon the land does not amount to actual notice; nor can the purchaser be deemed an owner within the meaning of that part of s. 2 (c) of the Mechanics and Wage-Earners Lien Act (R.S.O. 1914, c. 140), which depends upon privity, consent or benefit, in order to charge the land with the liens. (§ III—11)—DELAY IN FILING—INTERVENING LIENS.

Section 25 of the Mechanics' Lien Act (Sask.), as amended by s. 4, c. 38, of 1913, providing that the failure to file a lien or to commence action thereon within the statutory period shall not defeat the lien except as against liens registered by intervening parties meanwhile, does not create a priority in favour of intervening liens for work not performed and materials not furnished.

SUBCONTRACTORS AND MATERIALMEN.

A notice given by a subcontractor under s. 32 of the Mechanics' Lien Act cannot avail to give the subcontractor a priority over those who by virtue of s. 30 have priority over him, but who have given no notice under s. 32. A person who has contracted to do a certain specified part of a building contractor's work and to supply all the needed material therefor for one set sum can only rank in priority as a subcontractor and not as a materialman under s. 30 of the Mechanics' Lien Act.

SUBCONTRACTORS AND MATERIALMEN—WAGE EARNERS.

The special provision for priority of wage-earners introduced into the Act, whereby it is declared that as against wage-earners the percentage required to be retained by the owner to answer liens shall not be applied by the owner to the completion of the contract on the contractor's default nor to the payment of damages for noncompletion (s. 15) does not affect the other provisions of the Act regarding mechanics' liens generally; and it is not to be implied from such prohibition that the owner may in cases other than for wages so apply the statutory percentage towards the cost of completion as against the liens of materialmen or subcontractors in the event of the contractor's default.

The claim of a mortgagee in respect of advances made subsequently to the commencement of the work done by lien holders is postponed to the rights of the lien holders. The mortgagee as a subsequent incumbrance might have been entitled to be given an opportunity in the lien action to redeem the lien holders had it applied for registration at once, but having neglected to do so until after the sale of the land in question, any such right has been lost.

National Mortgage Co. v. Rolston, 49 D. L.R. 567, 59 Can. S.C.R. 219, affirming 32 D.L.R. 81, 23 B.C.R. 384, [1917] 1 W.W.R. 494.

OVER MORTGAGE—"INCREASE IN VALUE" BY WORK—MORTGAGE MONEY NOT ADVANCED WHEN WORK COMMENCED.

The limitation of the priority of mechanics' liens over mortgages declared by the Mechanics' Lien Act (Alta), 6 Edw.VII. c. 21, s. 9, to the amount whereby the premises have been increased in value by the work, does not apply where no money was advanced by the mortgagee until after the commencement of the work for which the lien is claimed. Under the Act, a mechanics' lien attaches to the interest which is vested in the owner at the time the work is commenced, or to any interest which he may acquire during the progress of the work; and the lien will take priority over a mortgage upon which no money was advanced until after the commencement of the work, although the mortgage had been registered before that time.

MORTGAGE.

Where a mortgage has been duly registered, advances made thereunder after mechanics' liens on the mortgaged property have arisen, but before their registration, take precedence of the liens. A mortgagee having been held to have priority over liens, both upon the land and the improvements, a lien-holder cannot take away that priority by shewing that the work and materials increased the selling value of the property.

Warwick v. Sheppard, 35 D.L.R. 98, 39 O.L.R. 99.

PRIORITY OVER MORTGAGE — INCREASE IN VALUE.

A lien-holder for materials supplied and used in the construction of a building upon land subject to an existing mortgage is entitled to rank upon the increased value in priority to the mortgagee in the proportion only that the value of the materials supplied by him exclusively bears to the whole cost of the building, and not for any part of the increase brought about otherwise. In computing this proportionate amount, no regard should be taken to amounts paid the lienholder on account before the action was brought.

Security Lumber Co. v. Duplat, 29 D.L.R. 460, 9 S.J.R. 318, 34 W.L.R. 1131, 10 W.W.R. 1270.

Under s. 9 of the Mechanics' Lien Act, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 154, the value of the property before the lien attached is to be taken for the purpose of fixing the upset price for which the lienholder would have priority over a mortgagee as against the increase in value of the mortgaged premises by reason of the work and improvements, the latter, however, must be limited only to the extent to which the specific contract enhances the selling value and not for work or improvements by others under independent contracts; if no greater sum than the upset price is obtained at the sale the lienholder has no priority, and his only recourse is against the equity of redemption.

Section 8 (3) of the Mechanics' and Wage Earners' Lien Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 140, gives a lien priority over mortgages upon the increase in selling value of land by reason of work or service done thereon or materials supplied. S. 14 gives priority to a lien which has been registered or of which written notice has been given to the mortgagee upon the land itself, including the buildings and erections thereon, over all subsequent advances under a mortgage. The priority of an unpaid vendor is not forfeited by the substitution of a mortgage for the unpaid amount. Actual notice not in writing is not sufficient to give a lien the priority over mortgages provided under s. 14.

PRIORITY OVER MORTGAGEE—WHEN.

In the absence of evidence that the selling value of the land incumbered by a mortgage has increased by the work or materials, no lien attaches under s. 8 of the Mechanics' Lien Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 140, upon such increased value, in priority to the interest of a mortgagee; nor will it warrant a sale of the mortgage to satisfy the statutory lien, even though subject to a first charge in favour of the mortgagee for advances made prior to the registration of the lien.

MORTGAGE—PRIORITY OF LIENS.

McSparran v. Miller, 9 W.W.R. 81, 32 W.L.R. 392.

STATEMENTS OF CLAIM.

It is not essential to the preservation of a lien against a prior mortgage, under s. 8 (3) of the Mechanics' and Wage Earners' Lien Acts (R.S.O. 1914, c. 140), that it shall be stated in the registered claim that it is against the mortgagee, inclusively or otherwise.

PRIORITY OVER MORTGAGEE—WORK OF TAKING OUT ORE—MECHANICS' LIEN ACT. R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 154, ss. 9 AND 10.

Section 9 of the Mechanics' Lien Act does not give relief to lien holders as against prior mortgagees, unless, from the proceedings at the trial, the increase in the value of the mortgaged premises can be ascertained. Lien holders for work consisting entirely of the taking out of ore from a mine, cannot, except when it is strictly development work, enforce their liens as against a prior mortgagee.

Anderson v. Kootenay Gold Mines, 18 B.C.R. 643.

MORTGAGE—VALUE OF LAND.

In determining the value of a parcel of land upon which stands a portion of a house which has been, by mistake, built partly upon the parcel in question and partly on an adjoining lot owned by another person, for the purpose of adjudicating upon the respective rights of a mortgagee and a lienholder under subs. 3 of s. 5 of "The Mechanics' and Wage Earners' Lien Act," R.S.M. 1913, c. 125, no regard can be had to the fact that such other person would, if applied to, have consented to the removal of the house off his lot, and the priority of a mortgage on the lot in question over the lien of a workman, subsequently arising under the Act, for the cost of removing the house so as to place it wholly on the parcel in question, is limited to the actual value of such parcel with the part of the house upon it at the time he began the work, which value must be ascertained without reference to the subsequent removal. Rule 603 of the King's Bench Act affords no relief to the mortgagee in such a case or any foundation for a contention that the value should be ascertained by deducting the cost of removal from the value after removal. Jack v. McKissock, 27 Man. L.R. 548.

PRIORITY OF MORTGAGE OVER LIEN—MECHANICS' AND WAGE EARNERS' LIEN ACT, R.S.M. 1913, c. 125, ss. 5 (3), 27, 35, 37—PARTIES TO ACTION—AMENDMENT.

When the plaintiff in an action to realize upon a mechanics' lien intends to dispute the right of a prior mortgagee to priority for more than the actual value of the land at the time the improvements were commenced, being the limit of such priority imposed by subs. (3) of s. 5 of "the Mechanics' and Wage Earners' Lien Act," R.S.M. c. 125, it is not necessary to make the mortgagee a party to the action in the first place, but the notice of trial may, under s. 35 of the Act, be served upon the mortgagee and the question of priority and for what amount may be determined at the trial under s. 37 of the Act. [Bank of Montreal v. Haffner, 10 A.R. (Ont.) 592, affirmed in the Supreme Court. Casse's Digest, p. 526, sub nom.; Bank of Montreal v. Worswick, and Larkin v. Larkin, 32 O.R. 80, distinguished on account of differences between the Ontario and Manitoba statutes.] Quære, whether the onus is not thrown by our statute upon the mortgagee of showing what was the value of the land at the time of the commencement of the improvements. In this case the plaintiff had joined the mortgagee as a defendant to the action and in his statement of claim had expressly conceded priority for the whole amount of the mortgage. Held, that, unless the mortgagee could show that it had been induced to alter its position to its prejudice in consequence of that concession, the plaintiff should be permitted to amend, on proper terms as to costs and otherwise to claim the limitation of the mortgagee's priority as above.

(§ III—14)—VENDOR'S LIEN.

A vendor of land to whom a portion of the purchase price is due is to be treated as if mortgagee, so far as the Mechanics and Wage Earners Lien Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 149, is applicable, despite the fact that the land has been conveyed to the purchaser, and mortgaged by him: a duly registered mortgagee to the vendor in payment of the unpaid purchase money, the vendor assuming the existing mortgage, has priority to any unregistered lien under the Act of which the vendor had no actual notice.

Charters v. McCracken, 20 D.L.R. 756, 36 O.L.R. 290.

DIFFERENT LIENHOLDERS.

The priority acquired by notice under s. 32 of the Mechanics' Lien Act (Alta.), is a priority only over other lienholders of the same class as fixed by s. 30, and does not interfere with the priority fixed by that section as between the different classes of lienholders.

FOR CONVEYING MATERIAL TO STRUCTURES IN UNDEDICATED PLAT—HIRE OF TEAMS AND DRIVERS.

A lien for conveying building materials to the land where they are to be used cannot be acquired under s. 6 of the Mechanics' Lien Act, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 154. [Webster v. Real Estate Imp. Co. (Mass.), 6 N.E.R. 71, followed.] Labour performed in making streets, which have not been dedicated as public highways, in a tract of land being subdivided for the owner's profit, is not work done on public highways for which a lien is denied by s. 3 of the Mechanics' Lien Act, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 154, but is lienable under s. 6 of the Act. One who furnishes a contractor with horses, wagons and drivers for the use on premises he is improving, is, under s. 6 of the Mechanics' Lien Act, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 154, entitled to a lien for their hire.

One performing labour on a sewer extending below low-water mark into the sea is nevertheless entitled, under s. 6 of the Mechanics' Lien Act, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 154, to a lien for his services on that portion of the sewer on which he performed labour.

LOADING MATERIAL FOR TRANSPORTATION TO BUILDING—CONVEYING MATERIAL.

Labourers employed by a subcontractor to dig earth and load it on wagons for transportation to the place where it was used in improving other property are not entitled to a lien on such other property for their services under s. 4 of the Mechanics' Lien Act (Alta.), 1906, c. 21. Teamsters employed by a subcontractor in conveying material to a building in the course of erection are entitled, under s. 4 of the Mechanics' Lien Act (Alta.), 1906, c. 21, to a lien thereon for their services.

MATERIALS WORKED INTO BUILDING.

One who delivers materials for use in a building under course of construction by a contractor, is not, after the latter's default and the taking over of the work by the property owner, entitled to a mechanics' lien for such of the materials as were subsequently worked into the building by the latter; the right to a lien under such circumstances being denied by s. 5 of the Mechanics' Lien Act (Alta.), 1906, c. 21.

LIEN FOR WAGES—CONTINUOUS PERIOD.

The wages claims of labourers which are given a special privilege under the Mechanics' Lien Act (Alta.), if for "not more than 6 weeks' wages," are the wages earned within a continuous period of 6 weeks counting backward from the last day's work, and do not include that part of the wages prior to such period which may be included in the wages for services at different times, spread over a larger time, but aggregating 6 weeks' wages or less.

STATUTORY LIEN FUND—HOW AFFECTED BY CONTRACT.

The fact that a contract provides that 20 per cent of the amount of the progress certificates should be retained by the owner and should be paid within 30 days from the completion of the work does not in any way affect the statutory obligation on the owner to conduct 20 per cent from any payments to be made by him in respect of the contract, namely 20 per cent out of the 80 per cent of the progress certificates, under s. 11 (1) of the Mechanics' Lien Act, R.S.S. c. 150.

AMOUNT OF LIEN—PAYMENT BY INSTALLMENTS—RIGHT OF DEDUCTION.

Under ss. 6, 10 of the Mechanics' and Wage Earners' Lien Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 140, the rights of lienholders are measured by the amount "justly owing" by the owner to the contractor, and where an agreement provides payment by instalments, with the right to retain an amount as a drawback on the completion of the work, the lien accrues for the full amount of any instalment payable, subject to the owner's right of deduction in the event of the noncompletion of the whole contract.

MATERIALMAN—TIME FOR REGISTERING LIEN—MECHANICS' AND WAGE EARNERS' LIEN ACT, R.S.O. 1914, c. 140, s. 22 (2)—TIME WHEN "LAST MATERIAL" FURNISHED.

By s. 22 (2) of the Mechanics' and Wage Earners' Lien Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 140, "a claim of lien for materials may be registered before or during the furnishing or placing thereof, or within 30 days after the furnishing or placing of the last material so furnished or placed." The plaintiff supplied lime to the contractor for the brickwork of a building being put up for the defendant. From the 5th November, 1913 till the 23rd December, 1913, there were items in the plaintiff's account for lime supplied on nearly every day; but after the last date there was no item until the 26th January, 1914, when two bags of lime were delivered, worth 85 cents. The plaintiff's claim for lien was not registered until the 25th February, 1914:—Held, upon the evidence, that the lime delivered on the 26th January, was for work done under the contract between the contractor and the defendant. That the validity of the claim for lien was not affected by the fact that the last item, by reference to which the registration was in time, was a small one, and that the material was furnished some time after the bulk. The amendment of the Act in 1896, by 59 Vict. c. 35, s. 21 (2), removed any difficulty in this respect. Review of the authorities before and since the amendment. That the plaintiff's lien was not confined to the 85 cents, but comprised all the items of his account. It is now immaterial whether the material is furnished under one contract or more; and the right is independent of the completion of the work.

Hurst v. Morris, 32 O.L.R. 346.

One who contracts, with an owner of land who intends building a house, to purchase the materials and pay the workmen and that he should receive $2 per day during the construction, is a builder within the meaning of art. 2013 et seq. C.C. (Que.), and, on observing the prescribed formalities, acquires for what is due him the privilege accorded by that article. If he contracts directly with the owner as if he were an independent contractor he is not obliged to give the notice required by art. 2013. A house, even when leased and occupied by the lessee, does not "become ready for the use to which it is destined" within the meaning of art. 2013 (b) so long as there is work to be finished, such as joining work and painting. The delay of 30 days for registering the builder's preference or privilege only begins to run from the completion of such work. The builder is not subject to art. 2013 (i), par. 2, nor bound to take legal proceedings within 3 months. Such condition is only required of the one who supplies the materials.

Letellier de St. Just v. Blanchette, 21 Que. K.B. 1.

PUBLIC ROADS.

A labourer who works on the macadamizing of a public road has not a lien on the road, it being a part of the public domain. Desrosiers v. Leedham, 49 Que. S.C. 33.

MECHANICS' LIEN ACT—LABOURER'S LIENS —SECTION 10 — "NOT EXCEEDING THE WAGES OF SIX WEEKS"—SECTION 17—PAYMENTS BY OWNER WITHOUT DELIVERY OF RECEIPTED PAY ROLL—DEFEATING PROTECTION TO OWNER UNDER S. 32—HAULING MATERIAL—WHETHER WORK IN QUESTION GIVING RISE TO CLAIM FOR WAGES OR AS SUBCONTRACTOR.

The wages "not exceeding the wages of six weeks or a balance equal to his wages for six weeks" for which a labourer is given an absolute lien under s. 10 of the Mechanics' Lien Act (Alta.), means wages earned within a continuous period of six weeks counting backwards from the last day's work (interpretation of similar expression by Beek, J., in Rendall, Mackay v. Warren, 21 D.L.R. 801, accepted dubitante). The provision in s. 17 of the Act against payment by the owner without delivery by the contractor of receipted pay-roll as by that section required means that an owner who makes payments to the contractor without satisfying himself, by the method provided, that all wages have been paid, does so at his own risk and if, as a result of such payments, there is not enough in his hands to meet the wages over the six weeks' wages for which an absolute lien is given, he cannot avail himself of the protection given to him by s. 32 which limits his liability except for these six weeks' wages to the sum owing by him to the contractor at the time of the receipt by him of the written notice of the lien and the amount thereof. A claim for hauling materials to the building sites to be paid for in a lump sum and not done by the claimant himself but by others hired or sent by him, the price including the services of his horses and equipment, the claimant being his own boss as to the manner in which the work is to be done, is not a claim for wages, but a claim as a subcontractor. [*Mylnzyuk v. (Que.). A building has not become fit for the use intended for it, according to the terms of art. 2013b C.C. (Ont.) c. 70, providing a lien for the performance of labour on "logs, cordwood, timber, cedar posts, telegraph poles, railroad ties, tanbark, pulpwood, shingle bolts and staves, or any of them . . ." is in derogation of the common law, and under strict construction, applies only to "railroad ties" manufactured or hewn in the woods, or for the work in getting the timber out of the forest about to be cut and before their arrival at the sawmill, but not when sawn into

The general lien under s. 6 of the Mechanics' and Wage Earners' Lien Act (Ont.) and the special one in the nature of a vendor's lien upon the material itself, depend upon the placing upon the land to be affected of the material in question. Proximity to the land is not enough; it must be on it, so that in fact or in contemplation of law the value of the land itself is enhanced by its presence. [Ed. Note:—By 8 Geo. V., c. 29, s. 1 (Ont.), assented to March 26th, 1918, s. 6 of the Mechanics' and Wage Earners' Lien Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 140, is amended by adding after the word "upon" in the eighteenth line thereof the words "or adjacent to."]

(§ V—30)—"OWNER"—HOMESTEAD.
A homestead entrant is an "owner" within the meaning of s. 4 of the Mechanics' Lien Act (Sask.), and a materialman is entitled to file a lien against the homestead for material furnished.

Beaver Lumber Co. v. Miller (Sask.), 32 D.L.R. 428.

COAL MINING—OWNER'S REQUEST—LEASE.
No lien will attach under secs. 4, 11, of the Mechanics' Lien Act (Alta.) 1906, c. 21, to bind the owner of land, for work performed in mining coal under a lease, at the request of the lessee, not of the owner or for his benefit.

OWNER—POSSESSION UNDER UNREGISTERED CROWN GRANT.

Actual possession under a grant from the Crown, coupled with a statutory right to register the grant, and thereupon to become the owner in fee, creates an estate or interest upon which a mechanics' lien may attach.

Dorrell v. Campbell, 32 D.L.R. 44, 23 B. C.R. 500, [1917] 1 W.W.R. 500.

INTEREST OF "OWNER"—WORK AT OTHER'S REQUEST—ASSUMPTION OF LIEN.

Under s. 2 (3) of the Mechanics' Lien Act, R.S.S. 1909, c. 150, a mechanics' lien can only attach upon the estate or interest of the person at whose request and upon whose behalf and for whose direct benefit the work is done; a lien which appears to be for work done at the instance of other persons, without indicating that the work was done for the "owner" of the property to be charged in incurably defective and the owner's subsequent undertaking to assume such lien is not binding on him.

Northern Plumbing & Heating Co. v. Greene, 27 D.L.R. 410, 34 W.L.R. 293, 10 W.W.R. 283.

MONEY OWING TO CONTRACTOR.

The effect of ss. 37 to 40 of the Mechanics' Lien Act (Alta.), 1906, c. 21, is to constitute the moneys owing to a contractor for getting out timber and logs, a specific fund, on which the workmen and labourers have a lien for wages, with an equitable as well as statutory legal remedy in regard thereto.

INCREASED SELLING VALUE OF LAND—RIGHT OF VENDOR.

The "increased selling value," within the meaning of the Mechanics' Lien Act (Sask.), which results from the erection of a building, is the difference between the value of the land without the building and the amount for which both land and building may be sold. Where the property has a potential value, such as that which arises from its possibilities as a future industrial site, the "increased selling value" cannot be ascertained without a sale. A lien holder under the Act has a right to pay off the unpaid purchase money under an agreement for sale to the same extent as he would have had if the vendor's claim were that of a mortgagee. [Dure v. Roed, 34 D.L.R. 38, followed.] Where land has a potential value as a future business site, and is subject to a mechanics' lien for material used in erecting a building thereon, the proper method of determining the increased selling value occasioned by the building, is to ascertain the value of the property without the building, and then sell the whole property.

SQUATTER ON CROWN LAND—AFFIDAVITS—SUFFICIENCY.

Where a squatter on Crown land accepts work and materials applied to the erection of a building thereon, he holds himself out to be the owner of the land within the meaning of the Mechanics' Lien Act (B. C.) and in action under the Act to enforce a lien will not be permitted to escape liability on the ground that he has no interest in the land. Certain irregularities in affidavits of a mechanics' lien held not to render the affidavits insufficient.

Macdonald v. Hartley, [1915] 3 W.W.R. 910.

INSTALLATION OF WATER SYSTEM—PROPERTY AFFECTED BY LIENS—LAND ON WHICH HOUSE SITUATE.

A mechanics' lien under the Mechanics' Lien Act (Alta.), s. 4, is maintainable for installing a water system in a dwelling house as against the land occupied or enjoyed therewith and which was specified in the mechanics' lien which was registered, although the parcel of land upon which the house itself was situate was not included in the registered claim of lien its omission therefrom operated only as a relinquishment of part of the security, and did not have the effect of extinguishing the remainder of it.

INTEREST OF REGISTERED OWNER—PURCHASE OF LAND FOR ERECTION OF CHURCH.

The interest of the registered owner of land upon which a church has been erected by a contractor pursuant to a contract with the trustees for an unincorporated church congregation, who held under an agreement for sale from the owner, is chargeable with a lien in the contractor's favour, where the owner has not given the notice required by s. 11 of the Mechanics' Lien Act (Alta.). The fact that the contractor was a member of the congregation and knew of the interest of the various parties in the land does not cut down his right of lien. Where the contractor is entitled to a quantum meruit a fair and reasonable sum to compensate him for the work undertaken and done and for the responsibility involved in the doing of it should be added to the actual cost of it to him.

Rohd v. Pfaffenroth, 31 W.L.R. 197.

Failure to complete a building in accordance with the specifications in a building contract precludes recovery of the contract price and the enforcement of a mechanics' lien thereon.

up a building thereon. B. and T. were the contractors, and the plaintiffs supplied material to them, for which they claimed a lien upon the land, under the Mechanics' Lien Act, R.S.S. 1909, c. 50. The plaintiffs' registered claim of lien was (by mistake) "upon the estate" of B. and T. in the land, instead of upon the estate of the owners of the land. B. and T. made a general assignment to a trust company for the benefit of their creditors; and the plaintiffs brought this action (to enforce their lien) against the owners of the land and the trust company as assignee of B. and T.:—Held, that the trust company had a status to question the mechanics' lien claimed by the plaintiffs. That the plaintiffs had a valid lien, notwithstanding the mistake in naming the contractors as owners. Sections 4, 17, 19 of the Act considered. [Barrington v. Martin, 16 O.L.R. 635, followed.] The claim of lien substantially complied with s. 17; and no evidence was adduced of any prejudice resulting from the failure to name the actual owners of the land. Semle, that the lien was supportable upon the ground that B. and T. were the owners of an interest in the land (s. 2, subs. 3) by virtue of their lien for at least the same amount as that claimed by the plaintiffs.

(§ V—32)—CONSOLIDATION OF LIENS.

The provisions of the Mechanics' Lien Act (C.S.N.B. 1903, c. 147) although allowing any number of lien holders to be joined in one suit do not enable a lien holder to consolidate liens against several different buildings. Each individual building must bear the burden of its own construction.

O'Brien v. Fraser, 41 D.L.R. 324, 45 N.B.R. 539.

SEMIDETACHED ERECTION—JOINT OR SEVERAL CONTRACT—OFFER AND ACCEPTANCE—"OWNER'S REQUEST AND BENEFIT."

A contractor's offer to build a pair of semidetached houses on two adjoining lots, owned by different persons, naming separate terms for each house but addressed to both owners together, implies a distinct acceptance by each of them, and the acceptance by one does not create a joint contract binding on both as subjecting both lots to a mechanics' lien for plumbing materials furnished for both houses nor can the interest of the accepting owner be charged for materials furnished on the adjoining lot not at "his request or for his direct benefit," within the meaning of s. 2 (c) of the Mechanics and Wage-Earners Lien Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 140. [Deegan v. Kilpatrick, 54 App. Div. N.Y. 371, distinguished.]

The lien may also attach against several pieces of property as one individual claim; the fact that the houses are subsequently divided between different owners cannot impair the lien, which, under s. 4 (2) of the Mechanics' Lien Act (R.S.M. 1913, c. 125), becomes effective from the time of the commencement of the work.

SEPARATE LOTS—"OWNER"

A materialman is not entitled under the Mechanics' Lien Act, R.S.S., 1909, c. 150, to register as one individual claim, a lien for the amount due for materials supplied by him to the contractor, against all the lands jointly of the owners of different parcels, who had made separate contracts with the contractor for the erection of houses on their respective parcels; nor do they have such interest in one another's land as "owners" within the meaning of s. 2 (3), so as to charge the other's land for materials furnished at the owner's request or benefit.

CLEARING OF TOWNSITE—EXTENT OF LIEN.

The lien for work done in clearing a townsite consisting of several tracts extends to the whole land benefited by the work within the meaning of s. 6 (c) of the Mechanics' Lien Act (B.C.), except whatever may be excluded from it by s. 3, as being "a public street or highway."

(§ V—34)—SCHOOL BUILDINGS.

Public school buildings and the lands upon which they are erected are subject to the provisions of the Mechanics and Wage-Earners Lien Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 140, s. 2. [Hazel v. Lund, 25 D.L.R. 204; Connely v. Havelock School Trustees, 9 D.L.R. 875, followed.]

SCHOOL PROPERTY.

School trustees are within the meaning of the word "owner" in s. 8 of the Mechanics' Lien Act (B.C.), and the lien is enforceable against school property, notwithstanding the provisions in s. 3 of the Act making it inapplicable to any public work carried on by a municipal corporation or the express exemption of school property from sale under execution contained in the School Act.

MUNICIPAL PROPERTY—INDUSTRIAL SITES—FAILURE TO GIVE NOTICE DISCLAIMING LIABILITY.

Lands agreed to be conveyed by a city to a purchaser buying same as an industrial site upon his building and equipping a factory and performing certain conditions as to the operation of the factory are not exempt from having a mechanics' lien enforced against the city's title for the cost of the building under the Mechanics' Lien Act (Alta.), if the city has failed to post up the notice repudiating responsibility under s. 11 of the Act. VI. Of subcontractors and materialmen.

(§ VI—45)—CLAIMS OF MATERIALMEN—STATUTORY FUND—APPLICABILITY.

The Mechanics and Wage-Earners Lien Act (R.S.O. 1914, c. 140, s. 12), requiring the owner to create a fund by deducting 20 per cent from any payment to be made by him in respect of a contract, for the protection of those who supplied materials to the contractor, does not apply to a contract under which nothing was payable by the owner to the contractor—as where during the progress of the work the owner had paid the contractor more than the value of the work done and the work as a whole was never completed: under such circumstances the claims of the material-men are not enforceable against the owner.

Burton v. Hookwith, 48 D.L.R. 339, 45 O.L.R. 348.

RIGHT OF SUBCONTRACTOR—TERMS OF PRINCIPAL CONTRACT—WAIVER—NONCOMPLETION OF WORK—HINDRANCE—VALUE OF WORK DONE.

Where the assignee of an architect superintended for the defendant the work of constructing a building, brought action to recover the money due for the architect's services, and to enforce payment thereof by filing a lien for the sale and building, it was held, that the defendant should have raised in the pleadings the objection that the architect had not posted upon the building or delivered to the owner a receipted payroll pursuant to s. 15 of the Mechanics' Lien Act (B.C.), or led evidence upon that point. Therefore, that defence was not open. Held, also, that, the lien being assignable, every remedy for its enforcement went with it. Held, further, upon the facts, that there was a sufficient substantial performance of the contract to entitle the architect or his assignee to a lien, notwithstanding that some portion of the material contracted for had not been supplied by one of the contractors at the time he received his final certificate from the architect.

Sickler v. Spencer, 17 B.C.R. 41.

OF MATERIALMEN—QUEBEC LAW—REGISTRATION—PRACTICE.

By the statute of 1904, 4 Ed. VII., c. 43, the legislature of Quebec has explicitly given to the supplier of materials a right of privilege, by adding to arts. 2013 and 2013a, C.C. (Que.), the words "the supplier of materials," and consequently the latter has now a privilege on the increased value and not only an hypothec on the whole property. Since the passing of that statute, the supplier of materials is one of the privileged creditors by art. 2013, which declares a lien for the privilege as for the other privileges created by art. 2013. Under art. 2013, the creditors' privilege mentioned in art. 2013 (which includes the supplier of materials privilege) "dates only from the registration within the proper delay," in order to fix that delay, one has to look for it by analogy in arts. 2013b and 2013c, and that delay must accordingly be the same one, namely, thirty days after the building is completed. The obligation imposed by law to the supplier of materials to preserve his right and privilege of notifying the owner, is sufficiently fulfilled when, before delivering the materials, the supplier obtains delivery receipts signed by the owner or by his authorized employees. Held, from the deeds filed, that the notices required by law have been properly given; such notices could be legally given by the defendant, the supplier of materials, to the plaintiffs' vendor during the whole course of the building as well before as after the plaintiffs' deed of acquisition; the defendant was not bound to register his privilege before the registering of plaintiffs' title; the defendant has notified the plaintiffs' vendors of the registering of his privilege and he has also notified the plaintiffs themselves; and finally, at the time of the institution of the present action, the defendant was still within the delays required by law to claim his said privilege.

Pacaud v. Limoges, 24 Rev. de Jur. 4. [Affirmed, 56 Que. S.C. 242.]

NOTICE—MUNICIPALITY—POWERS OF OFFICERS.

The secretary-treasurer of a municipality who, in order to give effect to a resolution passed by the council ordering him to "bear in mind a notice" of privilege received from a supplier of materials, writes a letter to that creditor that "the city will retain for you the sum of $1,500," and subsequently informs that creditor that he has been instructed by the council to see "that a remittance is sent you on the next estimate filed," exceeds his powers and does not bind the municipality. If such creditor's privilege subsequently becomes null for lack of formalities, he has no recourse against the municipality, as the letters from the secretary-treasurer have created no legal relation between them. In a case where a garnishment becomes void owing to the creditor failing to take action within the three months following the notice (art. 2013i, C.C. Que.), the owner is free from the obligation imposed on him by art. 2013h, of retaining, on the price of the building contract, an amount equal to that of the privileged claim.

Noisieux v. Lachine, 24 Rev. Leg. 491.

(§ VI—46)—MATERIAL-MEN—INTERVAL BEFORE SUPPLY OF EXTRAS—TIME FOR FILING LIEN.

Where the material-man has contracted to supply all of a certain class of supplies (e.g., the hardware) required in the construction of a particular building, as mentioned in the specifications, and the material-man supplies not only goods which were mentioned in the specifications, but further materials which were contemplated by his contract as extras or additions, for the amount of which the fixed price was subject to increase, the lien for the entire bill is not lost by the lapse of the statutory period for filing liens between the last delivery of that portions of the goods, the class and quantities of which were shewn in the specifications, and the later delivery of the extras; the lien in such case is in time if filed within the statutory period following the last delivery of extras.

CONTRACTOR'S DEFAULT.

A subcontractor supplying materials is not entitled to claim under the provisions of the Mechanics' Lien Act (R.S.M. 1913, c. 125, ss. 4, 7, 9), where, owing to the contractor's default, there is no "sum justly due or payable" to the contractor by the owner.

EXTENT OF SUBCONTRACTOR'S LIEN.

Under the Mechanics' Lien Act, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 154, the lien of a subcontractor will attach when he has completed his contract, or if the contract provides for progress payments on account, a lien would attach for the amount of each instalment as it became due; and in the absence of evidence that either the whole or some part of the contract price was due or payable to the subcontractor at the time of payment by the owner to the principal contractor of the only sum which accrued due to the latter before his abandonment of the contract, the subcontractor cannot rely upon such payment to establish his lien. [Turner v. Fuller, 12 D.L.R. 255, 18 B.C.R. 69, and Rosio v. Beech, 9 D.L.R. 416, 18 B.C.R. 73, applied.]

EXTENT OF SUBCONTRACTORS' LIENS—EXCAVATION AND CLEANING UP.

Where the contract work both with the principal contractor and the subcontractor for excavating expressly included the cleaning up of the debris on the completion of the building, and the owner called upon the principal contractor to do it before taking over the building and the latter replied that he would have the subcontractor do it, the subcontractor's lien for the excavation work will be kept alive by the cleaning up done by the latter in good faith in fulfillment of his subcontract although his last prior work (the excavating) was done more than five months before.

Foster v. Brocklebank, 22 D.L.R. 38, 8 W.W.R. 464.

LABOURER'S RIGHT TO LIEN.

A subcontractor is not a "labourer" under the Mechanics' Lien Act (Alta.), so as to acquire as to labour done as part of the contract, the special privileges given by that Act to labourers.

Rendall et al. v. Warren, 21 D.L.R. 801, 8 W.W.R. 113.

SUBCONTRACTOR—TIME FOR FILING LIEN.

Under a mechanics' lien statute enabling claims for liens by contractors or subcontractors to be registered within 30 days after the completion of "the contract," a subcontractor is to register his lien within 30 days after the completion of his contract with the principal or superior contractor.

WHEN ACCRUING.

The lien of a subcontractor does not attach under the Mechanics' Lien Act (B.C.) until he has completed his contract, or until, if the contract provides for interim payments on account, such a payment becomes due. [Nepage v. Pinner, 21 D.L.R. 315, followed.]

Braden v. Brown, 24 B.C.R. 374, [1917] 3 W.W.R. 906.

WORK INCLUDING MATERIALS AT LUMP SUM.

A subcontractor at a lump sum for painting work, including the supply of the necessary materials for that purpose, is not a "labourer" nor "person placing or furnishing materials" within s. 15 of the Mechanics' Lien Act, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 154, so as to preserve to him a lien under that section, where the owner has made payment in full to the principal contractor before the lien was filed by the subcontractor.

SUBCONTRACTOR FURNISHING LABOUR AND MATERIALS—STATUTORY NOTICE OF LIEN CLAIM FOR MATERIALS.

A subcontractor who furnishes both labour and materials for the construction of a building for a lump sum is entitled to a lien therefor without giving the notice required of a mere material-man by s. 6 of the Mechanics' Lien Act, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 154.

Irvin v. Victoria Home Construction & Investment Co., 12 D.L.R. 637, 18 B.C.R. 318, 25 W.L.R. 79, 4 W.W.R. 125.

SUBCONTRACTOR—RIGHT TO LIEN* FOR LABOUR PERFORMED UNDER ENTIRE CONTRACT FOR BOTH LABOUR AND MATERIALS.

A subcontractor may, under s. 6 (1) of the Mechanics' Lien Act, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 154, acquire a lien for labour, although performed under a contract to furnish both labour and materials for a lump sum, where the value of each can be easily ascertained.

(§ VI—47)—MATERIALSMAN—EXTENT OF LIEN.

The lien created by s. 5 of the Mechanics' Lien Act (Alta.), for the unpaid price of material "until it is put or worked into the building" is a continuation of the seller's lien for the unpaid purchase price notwithstanding delivery until the material is worked into the building; and the remedy of resuming possession must be taken before the materials are worked into the building.

Metals Ltd. v. Trusts & Guarantee Co., 22 D.L.R. 495.

SUBCONTRACTOR—OWNER ADVANCING STATUTORY PERCENTAGE TO CONTRACTOR.

The fact that the owner did not retain from his contract any of the percentage of the value of the work as required by the Mechanics' Lien Act (Ont.) for the protection of subcontractors and wage-earners, does not make him liable for subcontractors' claims, as to which no lien was filed or notice of claim given the owner until after the expiry of thirty days following the abandonment of the work by the principal contractor, the statutory obligation to retain the percentage being limited to thirty days after completion or abandonment of the contract with the owner.

Brooks v. Mundy, 16 D.L.R. 119, 5 O.W.N. 795, 25 O.W.R. 687.

PERCENTAGE FUND—RETENTION OF 20 PER CENT FOR THIRTY DAYS.

The period of 30 days during which the owner is to retain 20 per cent of the value from his contractor for the protection of other lien holders is to be computed from the completion or abandonment of the contract by the principal contractor, but the expiry of such period does not relieve the owner from his obligation to protect the interests of a subcontractor of whose right to register a lien the owner has notice; and such obligation is enforceable by a subcontractor who was enabled to file his lien more than 30 days after the abandonment of the work by the principal contractor by having been permitted by the owner thereafter to go on and complete the subcontract and who had filed his lien within 30 days of completing his own work.

SUBCONTRACTOR—CLAIM ON STATUTORY PERCENTAGE—TIME.

The obligation of the owner to retain a statutory percentage of the value of the work and materials is limited to the period of 30 days after the completion or abandonment of the contract by the contractor with whom the owner had contracted, and where such contractor had abandoned the work uncompleted and the owner had to pay more than the balance of the contract price to finish it, a subcontractor filing his claim more than 30 days after the principal contractor's abandonment although within 30 days of his own last work on the building has no lien, if nothing then remained due the principal contractor.

Brooks v. Mundy, 16 D.L.R. 119, 5 O.W.N. 795, 25 O.W.R. 687.

STATUTORY PERCENTAGE TO BE RETAINED TO PROTECT SUBCONTRACTOR—TRUSTEESHIP—CONTRACTOR'S FAILURE TO COMPLETE.

By the Mechanics' Lien Act, 10 Edw. VII. (Ont.) c. 69, the property owner is, as regards lien-holders holding claims against the principal contractor, a trustee of the 20 per cent of payments which become due to the latter under the contract during the progress of the work; and the owner will be liable for such percentage, so far as may be required to satisfy the unpaid lien claims, although by his contract he was to pay and did pay the contractor only 80 per cent of the value of the work as certified by progress certificates of the architect, where the contractor afterwards abandoned the work and the 20 per cent retained of the value so certified by the architect was insufficient to pay the cost of completing the contract. The property owner is entitled under the Mechanics' Lien Act, 10 Edw. VII. (Ont.) c. 69, to deduct from the sums for which he is liable to his contractor on progress certificates while the work is going on, 20 per cent thereof (or 15 per cent, where the contract price exceeds $15,000) for the protection of persons entitled to liens as subcontractors; and the owner is not entitled as against the subcontractor to apply such percentage to answer the cost of completing the work on the contractor's default. [Russell v. French, 28 O.R. 215, approved.]

MATERIALMEN—JOINT ORDER BY CONTRACTOR AND OWNER.

Where the property owner joins with the contractor in giving the order for material to be supplied in the erection of the building and it is charged to their joint account, the owner may be held liable for the full price in a mechanics' lien action brought against them both to enforce payment, although only a lesser sum be due by him to the contractor.

Rogers Lumber Co. v. Gray 10 D.L.R. 698, 23 W.L.R. 920, 4 W.W.R. 294.

CREDITS—FICTITIOUS PAYMENT.

On trial of a mechanics' lien action involving materials supplied to a building contractor, a receipt of the materialman for a fictitious payment intended to assist the contractor in obtaining an advance from the owners will not necessarily be charged against the materialman.

(§ VI—49)—BUILDING CONTRACT—SUBCONTRACTOR—VALUE OF WORK DONE—RECOVERY FROM MAIN CONTRACTOR—PROVISIONS OF SUBCONTRACT—WAIVER OF LIEN—BENEFIT OF OWNER—ARCHITECT'S CERTIFICATE.

Shipway Mfg Co. v. Loew's Theatres, 7 O.W.N. 292.

(§ VI—51)—EFFECT OF PAYING CONTRACTOR OR SUBCONTRACTOR.

If it appears that moneys were paid by the owner to the contractor or subcontractor for the very purpose of being applied in paying wage earners having a privileged and preferential lien under the Mechanics' Lien Act (Alta.), over other lien holders, and the moneys were in fact so applied, the owner is entitled to credit for such payments against the contract price.

PROGRESS PAYMENTS TO CONTRACTOR—ABANDONMENT OF WORK—PERCENTAGE FUND.

The value of the work upon which, to the extent of eighty per cent., the owner may pay the contractor under the Mechanics' Lien Act (Man.) prior to receiving written notice of a subcontractor's lien claim, is, in case of abandonment of the work while uncompleted by the principal contractor, the value of the work actually done and material furnished up to the date of abandonment, but such value is to be calculated on the basis of the price to be paid for the whole contract.

EFFECT OF PAYING PRINCIPAL CONTRACTOR.

A subcontractor filing a mechanics' lien in that capacity in respect of his contract with the principal contractor for painting a house and furnishing both labour and materials, who admits payment for all material and that the balance owing to him was for work done only, has no lien as against the owner who has paid the principal contractor in full, even where the owner has made payment without receiving the receipted pay roll under s. 15 of the Mechanics' Lien Act, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 154.

COMPLETION OF BUILDING BY OWNER.

A subcontractor's claim for lien on a building, the completion of which was taken over by the property owner, is defeated by s. 8 of the Mechanics' Lien Act, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 154, where, at the time the claimant finished his work, the payments made the original contractor, together with the cost of completing the building, exceeded the original contract price.

BUILDING CONTRACT TAKEN OVER BY PROPERTY OWNER—COST OF COMPLETION.

Under s. 32 of the Mechanics' Lien Act, (Alta.) as amended 8 Edw. VII. c. 20, no fund exists to which can attach a mechanic's lien for material furnished a contractor, where, on the construction of the building being taken over by the owner in accordance with the terms of a contract, the money already paid the contractor and that subsequently expended in completing the work, exceeded the contract price.

Canadian Equipment & Supply Co. v. Bell, 11 D.L.R. 820, 24 W.L.R. 415.

BUILDING CONTRACT—CONTRACTOR FAILING TO COMPLETE WORK IN DUE TIME.
McManus v. Rothschild, 25 O.L.R. 138, 20 O.W.R. 469.

(§ VII—55)—ART. 2013b, C.C. QUE.—EXPRESS RENUNCIATION—SUBSEQUENT REGISTRATION—SALE—RIGHTS OF PARTIES.
The signing and delivery of a document by one entitled to a lien for material and labour, within the delay in which he had a lien on the property without registration under art. 2013b C.C. (Que.) by which he renounces all legal privilege, is an absolute renunciation which extinguishes such privilege.

Weiss v. Silverman, 47 D.L.R. 161, 53 Can. S.C.R. 363, reversing 24 Rev. Leg. 204.

LIS PENDENS IMPROPERLY ISSUED.

Under the Mechanics' Lien Act, R.S.M. 1913, c. 125, only the County Court for the judicial division in which the property affected is situated has jurisdiction to try an action under the Act; a lis pendens issued in any other jurisdiction has no effect on the property; unless a lis pendens is issued in the proper jurisdiction within the prescribed time, the lien wholly ceases to exist.

ASSIGNMENT OF CONTRACT—COMPLETION BY OWNER.

A stipulation in a building contract, that upon default of the contractor the school trustees shall be entitled to take his place to complete the contract and deduct the cost of completion from the balance of the purchase price, is in effect an assignment of the unpaid balance of the contract price within the purview of s. 16 of the Mechanics' Lien Act (B.C.), and therefore invalid against the lien for the full balance of the contract of price acquired under the Act.

Hazel v. Lund, 25 D.L.R. 204, 22 B.C.R. 264, 9 W.W.R. 749, 32 W.L.R. 818.

ESTOPPEL IN PAIS.

Under s. 6 of the Mechanics' Lien Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 140, an estoppel in pais from claiming such lien cannot arise, and such right can only be waived by a signed agreement.

Anderson v. Fort William Commercial Chambers, 25 D.L.R. 319, 34 O.L.R. 567.

ESTOPPEL—PRIORITIES—COSTS.

Held, on the facts in a mechanics' lien action, that the loan company was bound to advance the balance of a loan made on a property, the mortgage not being put in evidence, and there being nothing in the application for loan providing that the mortgage was not bound to advance the money. Held also, that there was no waiver of a lien upon a certain lot where a form of waiver as to that lot had been signed without consideration and by mistake, there being no intention to waive and the claimant not knowing at the time of signing that he was to do work on that particular lot. Held also, that the principle of estoppel did not apply in the particular case. A loan company forcing lien-holders to go to trial to establish their rights and priorities was ordered to pay the costs of the trial.

Palfrey v. Brown, 31 W.L.R. 535.

RELEASE—ACCORD AND SATISFACTION.

An owner's acceptance of the contractor's order given in return for the release of a materialman's lien operates as an accord and satisfaction of the materialman's claim, which cannot be reawakened by the subsequent delivery of additional material and the filing of a fresh lien within the statutory period thereof.

Wortman v. Frid Lewis Co., 9 W.W.R. 812, 33 W.L.R. 119.

FAILURE TO SERVE STATEMENT OF CLAIM.

Failure to serve a statement of claim in a mechanics' lien action within six months after issue does not destroy the lien.

ASSIGNMENT OF MECHANIC'S LIEN IN PAYMENT—DESTRUCTION OF BUILDING COVERED BY LIEN—APPLICATION OF INSURANCE MONIES—MECHANICS' AND WAGE EARNERS' LIEN ACT, R.S.O. 1914, CH. 140, s. 9.

Agnew v. East, 10 O.W.N. 428, 11 O.W.N. 78.

MECHANICS' LIEN ACT, R.S.S. 1909, c. 150, s. 24—"PERSON CLAIMING ANY RIGHT, TITLE OR INTEREST."

The right, title or interest which entitles a person to require the registrar to send out the notice provided for by s. 24 of the Mechanics' Lien Act, R.S.S. 1909, c. 150 is not necessarily a registered one, and so long as any one claiming a right, title or interest in the property in question requires him to serve the notice he must follow the provisions of s. 24.

Re Land Titles Act, [1919] 1 W.W.R. 47.

(§ VII—59)—WAIVER—TAKING SECURITY—GUARANTY OF PAYMENT.

One who furnishes a defaulting contractor with building materials under a guaranty of payment from the property owner, is not entitled to a mechanics' lien against the property, under the Mechanics' Lien Act, (Alta.), 6 Edw. VII, c. 21, unless there is a balance payable by the owner to the contractor; his remedy is by a personal judgment against the property owner.

VIII. Enforcement; procedure.(§ VIII—60)—MATURITY — RIGHT OF ACTION—ALL CLAIMS.

When any part of a claim under the Mechanics' and Wage Earners Lien Act (R.S.O. 1914, c. 140) has matured, an action lies, and in that action all claims whether then payable or not are to be dealt with at the trial as provided for in s. 37.

JOINER OF "LIEN-HOLDERS."

"Lien-holder," in s. 2, c. 40, R.S.O. 1914, includes a person who files a claim but fails to establish it at the trial, and a lien duly registered but upon which no action has been brought, within the stipulated time, may be enforced in an action brought within that time by the plaintiff who failed.

Baines v. Curley, 33 D.L.R. 309, 33 O.L.R. 301.

NOTICE—POSTING BY OWNER—WHEN NECESSARY.

The Mechanics' Lien Act, 1906 (Alta.), c. 21, s. 11, does not make necessary the posting of a notice by the owner who does not learn until after the completion of the building by his tenant that construction work had begun, in order to escape the liability ensuing under the Act as upon the statutory presumption that in default of posting notice it shall be held to have been constructed "at the request of such owner;" s. 11 applies only where knowledge of the construction is acquired by the owner during the course of construction, and it is not sufficient to fix the owner with liability that he had given the tenant permission by the lease to erect a building at his own expense and to remove it at the end of the term.

NECESSARY PARTIES.

Under s. 22 of the Mechanics' and Wage-Earners' Lien Act, R.S.M. 1902, c. 110, a claim of lien under the Act cannot be "realized" unless the person who is the registered owner of the land at the time of the commencement of the action is made a party to it, or unless there is some other action pending, to which such owner is a party, in which the claim may be "realized," and, in such case, although the lien has been duly registered within the time required by the Act, it absolutely ceases to exist unless some action to which the registered owner is a party has been commenced under the provisions of the Act, within the period of 90 days prescribed by the Act.

ACTION OR COUNTERCLAIM.

The right to a mechanics' lien being entirely statutory, not only the right itself but the method of enforcing it must depend upon the statute, and must be pursued in strict compliance with the statute. If a particular court is designated to administer the remedy, resort must be had to that court and the jurisdiction of that court is exclusive. Accordingly in the Saskatchewan Supreme Court a mechanics' lien cannot be enforced either by action or by counterclaim.

Shuttleworth v. Seymour, 7 S.L.R. 74, 6 W.W.R. 1100.

Plaintiff brought action to enforce a mechanics' lien, and tendered in evidence in proof of the lien a certified copy which shewed no affidavit of execution, and did not shew any seal affixed. Further, the lien itself was irregularly drawn and improperly filled out. Without deciding whether the execution of the lien would be sufficient, had the corporate seal been omitted the lien would have been invalid in the absence of such a seal, because no affidavit of execution was attached. 2. That the curative sections of the Mechanics' Lien Act (Sask.) do not affect the provisions of the Land Titles Act and cure invalidating defects in instruments under the latter Act. 3. But it appearing that the lien having in fact been sealed with the corporate seal of the plaintiff company, it should be given leave to prove that fact in proper form. 4. That where the particulars of the amount claimed in the lien were set out in a manner which substantially complied with the Act, the lien, notwithstanding defects, should be held valid under s. 19 of the Mechanics' Lien Act.

Monarch Lumber Co. v. Garrison, 4 S.L.R. 514.

ACCOUNT—CROSS-CLAIM.

Eddie-Douglas v. Hitch, 4 O.W.N. 1597, 24 O.W.R. 907.

The words of s. 17 of the Mechanics' Lien Act, "No assignment by the contractor . . . of any moneys due in respect of the contract shall be valid as against any lien given by this Act," were held, not to operate so as to prevent payments made by the owner to creditors of the contractor, under an arrangement between the owner and the contractor, from being effective as payments on account of the contract price, in the ascertainment of the amount due from the owner to the contractor, upon which alone the lien of materialmen attaches under s. 32 of the Act, as amended by s. 12 of the Statute Law Amendment Act, 1908. Secus, if arrangement had been one for payment in the future; but, once the arrangement was acted upon and payments were made in pursuance of it, the assignment (if the arrangement amounted to an assignment) ceased to be of importance, and the payments must be regarded as payments to the contractor—no notice in writing having been given by the plaintiffs—and the owner was protected to the amount of these payments. [False Creek Lumber Co. v. Sloan, 17 W.L.R. 525, applied and followed.]

Pioneer Lumber Co. v. Rooney, 19 W.L.R. 913.

PARTIES—CLAIM OF ENCUMBRANCE CREATED PENDENTE LITE.

A plaintiff in an action to enforce a mechanics' lien is not obliged to add as a party an encumbrance whose claim was created pendente lite.

Canada Foundry Co. v. Edmonton Portland Cement Co., [1919] 2 W.W.R. 310.

(§ VIII—61)—ASSIGNEE AS PARTY DEFENDANT.

A bank holding an assignment of the balance of the contract price owing by the owner to the principal contractor has a sufficient interest to be added a party defendant in a mechanics' lien action.

Dorrell v. Campbell, 27 D.L.R. 425, 22 B.C.R. 584, 10 W.W.R. 492, 34 W.L.R. 367. [See also 32 D.L.R. 44, 23 B.C.R. 500, [1917] 1 W.W.R. 500.

PARTIES—ERRONEOUS DESCRIPTION OF—AFFIDAVIT.

The error in the affidavit of a mechanics' lien under the Mechanics' Lien Act (Alta.), of misnaming the company for whom the work was done as equitable owner of the land as the Alberta Plate Glass Co., Ltd., instead of the Alberta Glass Bottle Co., Ltd., is cured by s. 14 of the Act where no prejudice has been shown.

(§ VIII—62)—STATUTORY DECLARATION—ADVANCES.

Subsection 1 of s. 30 of the Mechanics' Lien Act, C.S.N.B. 1903, c. 147, does not apply to a claim of lien that is made after the contract has been completed, the section only applies where a contractor is getting advances during the progress of the work, that is where he is getting payment on progress estimates.

Brown v. Bathurst Lumber Co., 28 D.L.R. 204, 43 N.B.R. 527.

COSTS—RIGHT TO ALLOWANCE.

Where action has been brought to enforce a mechanics' lien under a building contract, other claimants against the same property should make ex parte application under Mechanics' Lien Ordinance, s. 18 (Alta.) to be added to the action, instead of bringing separate actions, and where they pursue the latter course they are entitled to such costs only as they would have properly incurred in making an ex parte application. The owner is ordinarily entitled to costs out of the fund in court before it is distributed under s. 30.

NOTICE—NECESSITY—SUBCONTRACTOR FURNISHING LABOUR AND MATERIALS.

A subcontractor who furnishes both labour and materials for the construction of a building for a lump sum is entitled to a lien therefor without giving the notice required by s. 6 of the Mechanics' Lien Act, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 154.

Fitzgerald v. Williamson, 12 D.L.R. 691, 18 B.C.R. 322, 25 W.L.R. 82.

ENFORCEMENT—STATEMENT OF CLAIM FILED WITHOUT AFFIDAVIT.

Bruce v. National Trust Co., 11 D.L.R. 842, 4 O.W.N. 1372, 24 O.W.R. 688.

AFFIDAVIT—OMISSION OF NAME AND RESIDENCE.

The saving clause (s. 14) of the Mechanics' Lien Act (Alta.), may operate to make a lien effective although the affidavit of lien did not show, as required by s. 13, the name and residence of the owner of the property or interest to be charged, e. g., on a lien which the affidavit shewed to be for work on a school identified by name and location although the board of school trustees was not named as owner.

Foster v. Brocklebank, 22 D.L.R. 38, 8 W.W.R. 464.

AFFIDAVIT AS TO PAYMENT OF WAGES.

The affidavit or statutory declaration of the contractor or his agent that all wages up to and inclusive of the fourteenth day preceding the declaration of persons employed on the work who are entitled to wages have been paid in full required by s. 30 (1) of the Mechanics' Lien Act, C.S.N.B. 1903, c. 147, is not a condition precedent to a lien by a contractor on a completed contract, and an order of the judge of the Gloucester County Court dismissing a claim of lien because such an affidavit or declaration had not been given to the respondent company was set aside.

Brown v. Bathurst Lumber Co., 43 N.B.R. 327.

AFFIDAVIT—BEFORE SOLICITOR.

Rule 309, which provides that an affidavit shall not be sworn before the solicitor for the party on whose behalf it is to be used, applies to the affidavit required under s. 19 of the Mechanics' Lien Act (B.C.), [Columbia Bittulthie v. Vancouver Lumbers Co., 21 D.L.R. 91, followed.]

Braden v. Brown, 24 B.C.R. 374, [1917] 3 W.W.R. 906.

Lemon v. Young, 10 O.W.N. 82.

SCHEDULE OF REGISTRATION—DUPLICATE.

When a party complains that the schedule of registration of an architect's lien is not a duplicate but a copy, he must prove it; he cannot deduce this proof from the fact that the registrar, in his certificate upon the duplicate of the schedule sent to the creditor, made use of the word, "copy."

Brunswick Balke Collender Co. v. Racette, 49 Que. S.C. 50.

(§ VIII—63)—ALLEGATIONS—DESCRIPTION—AFFIDAVIT BEFORE SOLICITOR.

It is not necessary under s. 15 (a) of the Mechanics' Lien Act (R.S.M., 1913, c. 125) that the true ownership of the property be stated in the claim. The main object of the statute is to secure it on the buildings and land; it is immaterial that the claim describes more land than is required; nor is it void if sworn before a solicitor for the claimants.

SUFFICIENCY OF NOTICE—CERTIFICATE OF LIAS PENDENS.

It is not essential that the certificate of lias pendens in a mechanics' lien action shall in terms state that the action was instituted "to realize the lien;" it is a sufficient compliance with s. 35 of the Mechanics' Lien Act (Alta.), that such purpose was indicated by the mention of the title or interest being called in question under that Act.

COMPLETION BY OWNER—NOTICE AND REGISTRATION.

When an owner resiliates his contract with his contractor, and continues the work of construction himself, employing the same workmen, he is considered as being substituted for the contractor and as working on his own account. In these circumstances one of the workmen can exercise the lien of workmen and furnishers of materials without giving the notice mentioned in articles 2013 (c) and 2013 (g), the registration and the notice required by art. 2013 being sufficient.

Temple Baptist Church v. Ferras, 48 Que. S.C. 84.

SUFFICIENCY OF NOTICE OR STATEMENT OF LIEN—FILING AGAINST WRONG PROPERTY—RIGHT TO AMEND, HOW LIMITED.

The Mechanics' Lien Act (Alta.), does not enable the court to give leave to amend a lien where it has been registered entirely against the wrong property because of an error in the description of the lands to be charged, so as to substitute the description of the proper lands, if the time for filing a lien against the latter has already expired.

SUBCONTRACTOR—NOTICE OF CLAIM TO OWNER—SUBSEQUENT PAYMENTS BY OWNER TO PRINCIPAL CONTRACTOR—PERCENTAGE.

Notice in writing to the owner by the subcontractor giving the particulars of the subcontract and stating that the owner will be held liable therefor is sufficient under the Mechanics' Lien Act (Man.), as a notice in writing of the lien and payments thereafter made by the owner the principal contractor even within the 80 per cent mentioned in R.S.M. 1902, c. 110, s. 8 (c), are not protected as against the subcontractor's lien.

AS HYPOTHEC—REGISTRATION—NOTICE.

An action by a contractor against an owner for the price for which the defendant executed a deed of obligation in favour of the plaintiff, is an action based upon a hypothec and not upon a lien; and if no document is produced shewing that a lien was registered against the immovable, and that notice of the lien was given to the owner, the judgment will be for dismissal only, reserving the rights of the plaintiff.

Choquette v. Couture, 17 Que. P.R. 480.

NOTICE OF LIEN—TIME.

The want of notice to the owner within 3 days after the registration of the architect's lien does not affect the validity of this registration because no provision in the law meets the case in which a notice is not given.

Brunswick Balke Collender Co. v. Racette, 49 Que. S.C. 50.

VERBAL NOTICE.

Inability of a contractor to pay his workmen, avowed before them and the owner, and the promise of the latter to pay them as soon as the works are finished, is a verbal notice sufficient to permit the workmen to register a lien upon the increased value given to the immovable by their labour.

Lafamme v. Laplante, 51 Que. S.C. 38.

NOTICE—VENDOR AND PURCHASER.

Builders and furnishers of material cannot acquire any lien upon an immovable possessed under an agreement for sale except by giving notice to the owner of the immovable in conformity with arts. 2013, 2013e, 2013g, C.C. (Que.); this notice is an essential condition of the lien, which can only be claimed by following strictly the formalities imposed by law.

Kalmanovitch v. Frank, 52 Que. S.C. 171.

NOTICE—RES JUDICATA.

When lumbermen take action for wages with conservatory seizure and at the same time claim a lien upon the timber cut, and this right is denied upon the ground that the notice given was irregular, there is a chose jugée in a subsequent action to compel a person formerly in possession of the timber cut, which had been disposed of, to bring into court an amount representing its value, in order to permit them to exercise their liens.

Marinier v. Riordon Paper Mills Co., 51 Que. S.C. 532.

NOTICE.

An architect not specially authorized has no power to receive from a materialman the written notice which should be given to the owner to create a lien especially if the architect is at the same time one of the contractors on the building. The notice required by art. 2013g, C.C. (Que.), is essential to the validity of the lien.

Duncan Co. v. Desjardins, 51 Que. S.C. 71.

(§ VIII—64) — AMENDMENT — DEFECTIVE STATEMENT OF CLAIM — IRREGULAR CERTIFICATE OF LIS PENDENS.

It is a ground for vacating the registration of a certificate of lis pendens issued pursuant to s. 35 of the Mechanics' Lien Act (Alta.), by the clerk of the court, certifying that an action had been commenced for the realization of a lien, that the statement of claim filed with the said clerk was defective and irregular in not containing the necessary statutory allegations, and not claiming to have the rights to a lien declared, or a sale of the land ordered, and that no other relief incidental to the rights of the lien holder was claimed thereby, notwithstanding that an amended statement of claim was afterwards delivered, without the requisite leave, in which a claim to realize on the lien was made.

(§ VIII—65) — ACCOUNTING.

An interlocutory application to stay proceedings in an action under the Mechanics' Lien Act (Ont.), brought by workmen against both their employer and the property owner, should not be granted to enable the owner to complete the work on the contractor's default and so ascertain the balance, if any, owing by the owner under the contract; such a question should not be determined in Chambers but should be determined at the trial, or if the pleadings properly raise the question of law under Ont. Con. R. 259, it can be determined upon a motion in court.

Saltsman v. Berlin Robe & Clothing Co., 6 D.L.R. 359, 4 O.W.N. 88, 23 O.W.R. 61.

(§ VIII—66) — EXISTENCE OF LIEN — ACTION BROUGHT TOO LATE.

Where the question is whether an alleged lien under the Mechanics' Lien Act, C.S.N. B. 1903, c. 147, is in existence, an order made by the Trial Judge assuming to determine such question without taking the evidence thereon, will on appeal be vacated, if it appears that the lien was not prosecuted within the statutory period as prescribed by s. 22 of the Act.

Boucher v. Belle-Isle, 14 D.L.R. 146, 41 N.B.R. 509.

No lien attaches to the land under the Mechanics' and Wage Earners' Lien Act, R. S.O. 1014, c. 140, in the absence of evidence that any materials furnished for the building were supplied within the statutory period of the registration of the lien.

TIME OF REGISTRATION.

The time for registration limited by the Mechanics' and Wage Earners' Lien Act, R. S.O. 1914, c. 140, s. 22, does not begin to run until after the completion of additional work necessary for the full performance of the contract. [*Anderson v. Anderson v. Fort William Commercial Chambers, 25 D.L.R. 319, 34 O.L.R. 567.

LAST DELIVERY OF MATERIALS.

A mechanics' lien is enforceable under s. 22 of the Mechanics, and Wage Earners' Lien Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 140, if registered within the statutory period from the last delivery of materials, even though the materials last delivered may never have been used in the construction of the building, if they were furnished for the purpose of being used therein. [Brooks-Sanford Co. v. Theodore, etc., Co., 22 O.L.R. 176, distinguished: Bunting v. Bell, 23 Gr. 584, overruled: Larkin v. Larkin, 32 O.R. 80, approved.]

LAST DELIVERY OF MATERIAL.

A lien registered within the statutory period of the last delivery of material is a sufficient compliance with the Act as to the time of registration.

TIME OF ENFORCEMENT—SUNDAY.

Where the nineteenth day after the filing of the affidavit of a mechanics' lien falls on a Sunday, an action to enforce the lien is in time if brought on the following day under the Interpretation Act (Alta.), s. 7, subs. 21.

Corby v. Perkus, 9 O.W.N. 318.

MATERIALS—SUPPLYING — LIEN — TIME FOR FILING—MECHANICS' LIEN ACT (B. C.)

A person supplying materials only for the building under a contract thereof with the principal contractor must file his lien under the Mechanics' Lien Act, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 154, s. 19 (2), within 31 days after the last delivery of materials made by him. [Irvin v. Victoria Home, 12 D.L.R. 637, 13 B.C.R. 318, distinguished.]

Coughlan v. Carver, 20 D.L.R. 533, 20 B.C.R. 497, 29 W.L.R. 791, 7 W.W.R. 459.

JUDGMENT IN ACTION OF OTHER LIENHOLDER.

Where a lienholder had registered a claim of lien under the Mechanics' and Wage Earners' Lien Act, 10 Edw. VII. (Ont.) c. 69, and judgment in the action had been delivered, but not signed, a lienholder who registered his lien after the judgment was delivered may be let in to prove his claim on payment of his own costs of the application. Any proceeding taken during the existence of a lien is within the meaning of the words "unless in the meantime an action is commenced" in s. 24 (1) of the Mechanics' and Wage Earners' Lien Act, 10 Edw. VII. (Ont.) c. 69, the words "in the meantime" being held to mean any time before the lien ceases to exist.

COMPLETION OF CONTRACT—FURNACE SUPPLY.

A plumbing contract to furnish and install a hot air furnace for heating a house, including the necessary pipes, registers and fittings, comprises the furnishing and installation of the incidental cold air registers as a material part thereof; and the time within which a mechanics' lien may be filed for such work under the Mechanics' Lien Act (Alta.), 6 Edw. VII. c. 21, s. 13, is to be computed with reference to the installation of the cold air registers where that is the last work done under the contract, notwithstanding a delay of two months after the installation of the furnace itself and of the other incidental fittings.

TIME OF FILING LIEN OR GIVING NOTICE—CERTIFICATE OF COURT.

The certificate which may be granted by the judge under the saving provisions of s. 41, read with ss. 22, 38, 39, 40 of the Mechanics' Lien Act, C.S.N.B. 1903, c. 147, is the commencement of the lien proceedings against an owner.

Euller v. Beach, 7 D.L.R. 822, 21 W.L.R. 391.

TIME FOR FILING—PERFORMANCE OF WORK.

Work performed by a contractor on buildings in pursuance of and to complete his contract, after the date fixed for completion, entitles him to file his mechanics' lien within the statutory limit of time as from the performance of such work. The triviality of the work done or the amount involved cannot affect the plaintiff's rights.

REGISTRATION—TIME.

The omission to register a mechanics' lien within the specified time in the Land Registry Office is not cured by s. 20 of the Mechanics' Lien Act, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 154 (which provides that "no lien shall be invalidated by reason of failure to comply with any of the requisites thereof . . . unless the owner is prejudiced thereby . . .") and is fatal to the validity of the lien, even where it has been registered within the prescribed time in the County Court Registry.

Dale v. International Mining Syndicate, 25 B.C.R. 1, [1917] 2 W.W.R. 1031.

Under s. 9 of the Mechanics' and Wage earners' Lien Act, R.S.M. 1913, c. 125, a person who has delivered materials to the contractor loses his lien therefor, as against the 20 per cent of the contract price to be held back by the owner from the contractor, unless he registers his lien within 30 days after the abandonment of the contract, if he has not supplied any materials to the contractor after such abandonment, though he was not notified of it, and a delivery of some materials for use in the building to the owner after such abandonment, in exchange for some of the materials formerly supplied to the contractor, will not have the effect of extending the time for registering the lien for the materials supplied to the contractor.

Brown v. Dunhill, 25 Man. L.R. 546.

REGISTRATION — TIME — AMENDMENT OF STATUTE.

Where a lien, both by the previous law and by the statute amending it, is made to depend upon and to date from its registration, the effects of the registration of such lien effected after the coming into force of the amending Act are governed by the provisions of this Act. A lien of a materialman registered after the coming into force of the amending Act (7 Geo. V. c. 52) is governed by the latter Act, although the materials for which the lien is sought were delivered before the Act came into force.

Cantin v. Chevalier, 52 Que. S.C. 97.

REGISTRATION—ACTION.

The words, in art. 2013b C.C. (Que.), concerning the privilege on immovable with registration, "unless a suit be taken in the interval, or unless a longer delay for payment has been stipulated in the contract," refer to an action by the creditor to recover his claim during the year and not to anything relating to the validity of the privilege.

Waxman v. Girouard, 24 Rev. Leg. 429.

REGISTRATION OF LIEN — PARTNERSHIP — COMPANY—PROOF OF EXECUTION.

Where a mechanics' lien has been filed by a partnership, even though it be trading under the name of what purports to be an incorporated company, the Registrar is justified in insisting that a discharge of the lien be executed by all the partners, or someone duly authorized on their behalf, and that proof be given him of the composition of the partnership.

Re Land Titles Act; Re Mechanics' Lien Act, [1918] 1 W.W.R. 411.

(§ VIII—67)—PLACE OF FILING.

Where the official with whom the affidavit of a mechanics' lien is to be filed under the Mechanics' Lien Act (Alta.), is not only a deputy clerk of the Supreme Court (in which capacity he was entitled to receive the filing), but also a deputy clerk of the District Court (in which capacity alone the filing would not be authorized), the stamping of the filing as in the District Court will not invalidate the lien where it was duly forwarded to the Land Titles office in like manner as it would have been had it been stamped as a Supreme Court filing if no prejudice resulted, the curative clause, s. 14 of the Act, being operative in respect of the error.

(§ VIII — 68) — SUBCONTRACTOR — MORTGAGEE—PROGRESSIVE PAYMENTS — DISCHARGE OF LIEN.

Where progressive payments under the contract of the principal contractor are made contingent upon advances being made to the owner by the mortgagee, the court may, on the trial of a mechanics' lien action brought by a subcontractor who had completed his subcontract, direct that his lien remain in force, so that it may attach in respect of any such further advances which may in future be made by the mortgagee, reserving leave to the owner and the mortgagee to apply for the discharge of the lien. A mechanics' lien filed by a subcontractor is not to attach so as to make the owner liable for a greater sum than the sum owing by the owner to the contractor under the Mechanics' Lien Act (Alta.); consequently if the latter's contract with the owner does not entitle him to a further payment until completion, the lien of the subcontractor who has completed his subcontract cannot be made effective until completion of the entire work of the principal contractor, but the court may, on the trial of the lien action, direct that such lien shall remain in force, so that it may attach in respect of further sums that may thereafter become due by the owner to the principal contractor, reserving leave to the owner to apply to discharge the lien.

(§ VIII—69)—PERSONAL JUDGMENT.

If under the Mechanics' and Wage Earners Lien Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 140, a contractor fails to enforce his lien against the owner because of his failure to commence the action within the statutory period, the contractor may be awarded in the same hearing a personal judgment against the owner to the extent of the amount of the lien claimed.

PERSONAL JUDGMENT AGAINST CONTRACTOR—LABORERS' LIEN—LOGGING OPERATIONS.

An employee of the contractor for getting out logs who has obtained personal judgment against the contractor does not thereby forfeit his equitable right to be paid out of the fund which by the Mechanics' Lien Act (Alta.), 1906, c. 21, ss. 37 and 38, is created for the protection of the workmen and labourers engaged in the work, and such right may be enforced in garnishment proceedings against the money due by the owner of the logs to the contractor by declaring the lien of the workmen to have priority over the claim of other execution creditors.

MATERIALS FURNISHED DECEASED CONTRACTOR—DECLARATORY JUDGMENT AGAINST ADMINISTRATOR.

Where, in an action to enforce a mechanic's lien against a building, by reason of the owner of the property not being indebted to the contractor, the claimant cannot have a lien under the Mechanics' Lien Act, (Alta.) he is entitled to a declaratory judgment that the administrator of the contractor's estate is, in the due course of administration, liable therefor. Canadian Equipment & Supply Co. v. Bell, 11 D.L.R. 821, 24 W.L.R. 415.

(§ VIII—70)—UNENFORCEABLE LIEN—VALID LIEN—JUSTIFICATION OF PROCEEDING TO JUDGMENT.

Where the lien cannot be enforced against the property of the company no valid lien, which justifies the plaintiff in proceeding to judgment under s. 49 of the Mechanics' Lien Act, can be established.

DEFENCES—PLEADING.

A defence under s. 8 of the Mechanics' Lien Act, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 154, that no money is payable by the owner to the principal contractor, must under B.C. County Court 175, order 11, r. 18, be pleaded in the dispute note filed in an action brought by a subcontractor to enforce a lien for the balance due to him by the principal contractor.

(§ VIII—73)—STATUTORY DIRECTIONS AS TO TRIAL.

In a mechanics' lien proceeding, where, under s. 45 of the Mechanics' Lien Act, C.S. N.B. 1903, c. 147, a notice disputing the plaintiff's lien is filed, the existence of the lien must, as a distinct preliminary proceeding under ss. 45, 46, be first and separately determined by the court.

Boucher v. Belle-Isle, 14 D.L.R. 146, 41 N.B.R. 509.

Under the statutory direction contained in the Mechanics' Lien Act, R.S.N.S. 1900, c. 171, s. 30, which specifies that in a mechanics' lien action the Trial Judge shall "do all things necessary to try and otherwise finally dispose of the action and of all matters, questions and accounts arising in the action," it is sufficient if the Trial Judge disposes of all questions which are necessary to be tried to enable him to dispose of the action.

(§ VIII—74)—CLASS OF ACTION TO ENFORCE.

Where art. 2013 (b) C.C. (Que.) provides that a builders' and workmen's privilege exists only for one year from the date of registration unless a suit be taken in the interval, the suit required is a hypothecary action to enforce the privilege and a personal action against the debtor does not suffice. The action to enforce a mechanics' lien (builders' privilege) under art. 2013 (b) is a personal hypothecary action if the property is still in the debtor's hands or an action in declaration of hypothec if it has passed into the hands of a third party.

See also Militia.

MILITARY SERVICE ACT, 7-8 GEO. V. 1917, CAN. C. 19—CONSENT OF ATTORNEY-GENERAL OF CANADA TO PROSECUTION—NOTICE TO REPORT FOR DUTY—ABSENCE WITHOUT LEAVE—TAKEN ON THE STRENGTH.

The written consent of the Deputy Minister of Justice, is sufficient to authorize a prosecution under the Military Service Act, 1917. A limitation is made by s. 13 of Order-in-Council, P.C. (Can.), 3168, that no conviction shall be made for being absent without leave under s. 102 of the Military Service Regulations (Can.), unless the man charged has, before he became absent without leave, been taken on the strength of the Canadian Expeditionary Force. Because of this it is not sufficient for prosecution to show merely that because of the notice to report for military duty as a member of class 1 under the Military Service Act 1917, he became a man "on active service" and that he failed to report; there must be evidence to show that before he became absent without leave he was taken on the strength of the C.E.F. A notice to report for military duty under the Military Service Regulations, and the Military Service Act, 7-8 Geo. V. 1917 (Can.), c. 19, is sufficient if received by mail at the correct street address for the defendant by his sister, although the initials of his name were incorrectly given.

WAR MEASURES ACT AND REGULATIONS—TRIBUNAL FOR TRIAL—OPTION OF PROSECUTION.

The general powers conferred on the Governor-in-Council under the War Measures Act, 5 Geo. V., 1914 (Can.), c. 2, s. 6, to pass regulations, inter alia, as to censorship of publications is not limited by s. 10 of the same Act so as to make it necessary that the regulations should prescribe only one of the two methods of prosecution therein referred to, i.e., summary conviction proceedings or indictment, to the exclusion of the other. The power under s. 10 to prescribe which of these two should be followed is permissive only, and under s. 6 the regulation may leave it to the prosecution to choose under which of the authorized modes he will institute the proceedings. The accused being properly before the magistrate, the latter's decision in favor of summary proceedings will not be reviewed on prohibition instituted before the actual trial.

R. v. Spence, 31 Can. Cr. Cas. 365.

(§ I-1)—PROCLAMATION—ENROLLMENT—EFFECT—C.C.P. ART. (QUE.) 332-7-8 GEO. V. (C.) [1917], c. 19.

The calling, by proclamation, of men subject to the Military Service Act, has the effect of immediately enrolling in the military forces of Canada all those who fall within the class named. The draftees thus enrolled do not form part of the Canadian Expeditionary Force except by being placed on active service. We cannot consider as part of the reinforcements the draftees who are exempted or who are on the exemption list, nor those whom the Act considers as deserters.

MILITARY SERVICE ACT—SON OF NATURALIZED ALIEN—DISFRANCHISEMENT—HABEAS CORPUS—CONSTITUTIONAL LAW.

Naturalization of the father of the applicant, in 1913, under the Naturalization Act (Can.), had the effect of giving the applicant, then a minor, the capacity of a British subject and the enjoyment of the rights appertaining thereto. The Wartime Elections Act, of 1917, took away the applicant's right to vote, and as he could only be conscripted by reason of the enjoyment of such right, he thenceforth ceased to be subject to conscription, and consequently the applicant is not bound by the Military Service Act of 1917. The fact that the applicant had asked exemption before the local tribunals should not, under the circumstances, deprive him of the right to ask for the annulling, as applicable to him, of the order-in-council of April 20, 1918, which cancelled the exemptions granted to conscripts of 20, 21 and 22 years since the applicant was never subject to the Military Service Act of 1917. Section 6 of the War Measures Act of 1917 did not confer on the Governor-General-in-council the right to abolish or suspend the Habeas Corpus Act in this country; even if such right might be inferred from that section, the parliament which passed it had no constitutional right to do so, as the Parliament of Canada has not the right to abolish the Habeas Corpus Act in this country, this right being restricted to the Imperial Parliament which has not deemed it proper to do. The order-in-council of April 20, 1918, is in conflict with the Imperial Acts, and therefore void.

—HABEAS CORPUS—ARMY ACT.

One who voluntarily enlists in an expeditionary force for overseas, to serve in a war, and who, having left the service, following his discharge by a military medical board, as being permanently incapacitated, is arrested and arraigned before a police magistrate, who frees him, cannot be again placed under arrest by the military authorities and if he is, he can demand his liberation by a writ of habeas corpus. The Army Transfer Act, 1915, does not apply to voluntary enlistment in this country, and only relates to the regular army.

ENLISTMENT OF MINORS—HABEAS CORPUS.

Under art. 243 C.C. (Que.) a son remains subject to the parents' authority until majority or emancipation, and though under the Militia Act (R.S.C. 1906, c. 41) all male inhabitants of Canada between 18 and 60 years of age are liable to serve in the militia, the minor son of a person domiciled in Quebec cannot enlist voluntarily in the active militia without the consent of his father; and upon the application of the father will be discharged upon habeas corpus proceedings if he has so enlisted. Arsenault v. Piuse, 32 D.L.R. 604, 50 Que. S.C. 373.

A minor under 18 years, who understands the nature and consequences of enlistment and who is certified by the proper authorities to be qualified, may waive the exemption in favour of youths under 18 contained in the Dominion order-in-council of August 20, 1915, and his enlistment for overseas service will be valid without his father's consent.

DESERTION—ABSENT WITHOUT LEAVE.

The defendant was charged before the county stipendiary for that "he did or about the 14th day of May, 1916, desert" (from the active militia of Canada) "and was absent from the same as a deserter until apprehended on the 31st day of August, 1918." The court held that the gist of the charge that the accused was absent as a deserter involved being absent without leave and he was properly convicted under par. 13 of the Dominion order-in-council passed 9th November, 1917.

MILITARY LAW — MILITARY SERVICE ACT, 1917—APPLICATION—MEMBER OF MILITIA—ARMY ACT—KING'S REGULATIONS.

The definition "His Majesty's auxiliary forces," in the Army Act, applies only to military forces under the control of the Parliament of the United Kingdom, including therein the Channel Islands and the Isle of Man, and does not include volunteer troops or colonial militia. Paragraph 2 of the Schedule to the Military Service Act, 1917, exempts from its operation only members of His Majesty's forces as defined by the Army Act, and not members of the Canadian Militia. The fact that a soldier is transferred from one corps to another without his consent, contrary to par. 306 of the King's Regulations does not constitute a complaint sufficient to base thereon an application for habeas corpus. It is for the military tribunals organized under the authority of these regulations, to take cognizance of breaches of the regulations.

This consent cannot be presumed, or inferred from correspondence or circumstances; it must be formal, and any person who alleges that he has obtained it must furnish the proof. An application for a concession, accompanied by a deposit of the price and followed by the determining of the location under art. 2109, does not confer on the applicant any right of possession or of working as long as the application has not been accepted by the Minister and he has not formally granted the concession.

What is known as a "creek claim" in the Yukon Placer Mining Regulations of 1901 does not extend across a river. The petitioners applied to the Minister of Lands for licenses under the Coal and Petroleum Act to prospect for coal and petroleum over an area upon which others had previously held licenses. The petitioners had fulfilled the statutory requirements to entitle them to licenses after the former licenses had expired and before the holders thereof attempted to revive them under B.C. 1915, c. 48 being an Act to enable the Lieut.-Gov.-in-Council to grant relief from penalties and forfeitures in relation to moneys payable to the Crown. The Minister refused the licenses on the ground that the Lieut.-Gov.-in-Council had, under the Act, purported to revive, or was bound by law to revive, the lapsed licenses.—Held, on appeal, that the petitioners having fulfilled the statutory requirements after the former licenses had lapsed and before the attempt was made to revive them they had a legal right to obtain their licenses. Held, further, that c. 48 does not confer any power on the Lieut.-Gov.-in-Council to revive lapsed licenses in face of the petitioner's legal rights. [Woodbury Mines v. Poyntz, 10 B.C.R. 181, followed.] The Minister of Lands has no discretionary powers in the performance of his functions under the Coal and Petroleum Act; he acts as a mandatory of the statute.

A tenant at will under the Crown holding an unpatented mining claim under the Mining Act, s. 8 Edw. VII c. 21 (Ont.), has no status to attack an express adverse grant of the Crown, nor to set up a claim for damages against the adverse grantee.

Bucknall v. British Canadian Power Co., 7 D.L.R. 62, 4 O.W.N. 164, 23 O.W.R. 155.

Under the Mining Act, s. 8 Edw. VII (Ont.) c. 21, s. 62, where an application for a mining claim is refused by the mining recorder, and the refusal is contested, the applicant's proper and competent procedure for a hearing is that provided under ss. 63, 65, 66, 130 (2), where the recorder's formal decision is to be obtained in the first instance before the right to appeal to the mining commissioner arises. Under the Act, where a disputant, ignoring ss. 63, 65, 66 and 130 (2), fails to submit the dispute in the first instance to the recorder and instead initiates his proceeding before the mining commissioner, the commissioner will rightly refuse to go into the merits because the dispute is not properly before him under s. 130 (2).

ASSIGNMENT OF APPLICATIONS FOR LICENSE

TO WORK — HOLDING COMPANY — JOINT

BENEFIT—ABSOLUTE SALE.

Shaw v. Robinson, 4 N.B. Eq. 286.

MINING LEASE—PROVISIONS AS TO FORFEITURE—RIGHTS OF LESSOR—EXERCISE OF SUCH RIGHTS—FAILURE OF LESSEE TO COMPLY WITH PROVISIONS.

A mining lease embodying provisions as to forfeiture on the failure of the lessee to fulfil certain obligations is not void when such failure occurs, but voidable at the option of the lessor. A lease which is part of an undertaking authorized by a special statute must be construed with and governed by such statute.

Queensland Gold Mining Co. v. Ward, 30 D.L.R. 1, [1919] 3 W.W.R. 948, affirming 42 D.L.R. 476, 25 B.C.R. 476, [1918] 3 W.W.R. 230.

(§ II A—30)—SALE OF RIGHT TO TAKE AWAY AND REMOVE MINERAL.

The sale of the right to take away and remove from now and for ever all the natural point mineral or other minerals which may be found in a certain immovable constitutes a sale of the mine carrying with it the concessions of the surface, and is not merely the sale of the right to work the mine; such a sale is the sale of an immovable right with all the effects thereof, whereas the sale of the right to mine is the sale of a moveable right. There are three elements which must be taken into consideration to ascertain what a sale is that of a mine itself or that of the right to mine; the mine itself, the ground and the rent.

Houle v. Quebec Bank, 4 D.L.R. 614, 41 Que. S.C. 521.

MISREPRESENTATION—PURCHASE OF MINING CLAIMS—UNDERTAKING TO RETURN PURCHASE MONEY.

Lake View Consols v. Flynn, 7 O.W.N. 322.

(§ II A—32)—RIGHTS OF DEVISEE OR GRANTEE.

Where a deed granting all the sewer pipe clay on a part of the grantor's farm made no limit as to the depth the grantees were to go in removing the clay and there was no other agreement as to that subject, the grantor is not entitled to have the deed rectified so as to conform to what both parties at the time of its execution contemplated would be the depth to which the grantees would go in getting the clay as the result of tests then made. [Okill v. Whitaker, 1 DeG. & Sm. 83, and Howkins v. Jackson, 2 Macn. & G. 372, applied.]

Gallagher v. Ontario Pipe Clay Co., 3 D.L.R. 394, 3 O.W.N. 732, 1240, 21 O.W.R. 550, 1002.

SALE OF LANDS—RESERVATION—RIGHT TO MINES AND MINERALS—IMPLIED RIGHT TO ENTER.

A sale of land with a reservation of mining and mineral rights, implies a right to enter on such land in order to exercise these rights.

(§ II A—34)—DEPOSIT OF "TAILINGS" ON PRIVATE LANDS—PERMISSION OF OWNER—PROPERTY IN "TAILINGS."

"Tailings" from ore reduction deposited on the private lands of a company by another company, with the permission of the former, but with no agreement as to removal, become the property of the first-mentioned company.

Dominion Reduction Co. v. Peterson Lake Silver Cobalt Mining Co., 50 D.L.R. 52, 59 Can. S.C.R. 646, affirming 46 D.L.R. 724, 44 O.L.R. 177, which affirmed 41 O.L.R. 182.

PLACER MINERS—HYDRAULIC MINERS—USE OF IMPORTED WATER—INJURY TO ADJACENT MINES BY FLOODING.

Barnes v. Yukon Gold Co., 18 W.L.R. 542.

B. OIL AND GAS.

(§ II B—41)—DEED OR RESERVATION OF OIL OR GAS.

The words "mines" and "minerals" are not definite terms but are susceptible of limitation or expansion according to the intention with which they are used. [Glasgow v. Farie, 13 App. Cas. 657, applied.]

Barnard-Argue, etc., Oil & Gas Co. et al. v. Farquharson, 5 D.L.R. 297, 23 O.W.R. 90, [1912] A.C. 864.

(§ II B—52)—CONDITIONS AS TO DEVELOPING.

An agreement by two separate land-owners, neither of whom had any title or right to or interest in the farm of the other, that they are to give "the usual gas and oil leases of their respective farms," where the agreement throughout uses the word "leases" in the plural and never in the singular, is an agreement for separate leases of their respective farms and not for one joint lease of the two farms, notwithstanding a provision that the lessee was to supply gas free of charge to the landowners.

Welland County Lime Works Co. v. Shurt, 8 D.L.R. 720, 4 O.W.N. 336, 23 O.W.R. 397, reversing 1 D.L.R. 913, 3 O.W.N. 775, and restoring 3 O.W.N. 398.

(§ II B—53)—RIGHT AND TITLE ACQUIRED UNDER LEASE.

Subsequent lessees of an "oil lease" where there is already on record an outstanding valid "oil lease" on the same property will be restrained from entering upon or prospecting for oil or gas on the lands in question during the period that the prior lessees are so entitled.

(§ II B—55)—"OIL LEASES"—LEASE MADE BY WIFE—NONACQUESCENCE OF HUSBAND—FAILURE OF LESSEES TO COMPLY WITH PROVISIONS OF LEASE—FORFEITURE—RECOVERY OF POSSESSION OF LAND—DAMAGES BY OIL OPERATIONS—REMOVAL OF MACHINERY—SALE ON DEFAULT.

Smith v. Miller, 10 O.W.N. 344.

(§ II B—56)—CONTRACTS.

Where, in an agreement between the parties, the first clause contained a declaration of title, and subsequent clauses gave a right of mining with a power of cancellation under certain contingencies, the agreement was severable, and the exercise of such power related to the operative clauses only and did not affect the clause containing the declaration of title.

Dunsmuir v. Last Chance Mining Co., 16 B.C.R. 409.

III. Miner's Hens.

See Mechanics' Lien, V. 30.

(§ III—75)—CONSTRUCTION OF ORDINANCE.

The Miners' Lien Ordinance, 1906 (Y.T.) must be read and construed in the light of the history of the lien laws in the several provinces and their progenitors, the lien laws of the United States. The underlying principle of the mechanics' lien laws in the several provinces is that the lien attaches by reason of a contract with the owner of the premises, qualified by the provision that the statute does not give a lien, but only a potential right of creating it.

(§ III—85)—PRIOR MORTGAGEE—PRIORITIES—NOTICE.

Under s. 7 of the Miners' Lien Ordinance, 1906 (Y.T.), requiring that a claim of lien shall state the name and address of the owner of the property to be charged, and also of the person for whom and upon whose credit the work was done, a mortgagee of the property, whose mortgage was registered prior to the work done and material supplied and who was not in possession when the work was done and material supplied and who had not contracted for or been in any way privy to the hiring of the workmen, need not be named in the claim of lien.

FOR WHAT WORK OR MATERIALS—WOOD CUT FOR MINE, DIVERTED.

A claim of lien by workmen for wood cut for a mine properly includes all the wood cut by the workmen which was intended for use in the mine, though part of the wood was diverted to other purposes by the owner, such diversion not being under the control of the workmen.

(§ III—100)—EXCESSIVE CLAIM.

A claim for a miner's lien should not be rejected merely because the sum claimed is more than the claimant is entitled to, but the claimant should be allowed to establish that he is entitled to a lien for some part of the claim.

(§ III—105)—PARTICULARS OF WORK DONE, REQUIREMENTS.

A statement in the claim for a lien under the Miners' Lien Ordinance, 1906 (Y.T.), that it is "for wages for work and labour done and performed on and in respect to certain mining claims," followed by the amounts set out in their respective time checks for wages and giving the dates of employment, is a sufficient statement of the work done within the meaning of subs. (b) of s. 7 of that Act. [Barrington v. Martin, 16 O.L.R. 635, distinguished.]

MISCHIEF.

WILFUL DAMAGE—HIGHWAY.

Where rural municipalities had a statutory right to open temporary roads across private property and the municipal council had passed a resolution purporting to give the defendant and her agents the right to cross the informant's land in pursuance of which defendant instructed her agent to cross the land with a load of hay, believing that she had the right to do so, an inference is raised that the defendant acted under a fair and reasonable supposition of right (Cr. Code, s. 540), displacing the liability to summary proceedings under s. 539 for wilful injury to property; and where there was no evidence to the contrary, the justices were without jurisdiction and their summary conviction of defendant was quashed on certiorari.

R. v. Adamson, 25 Can. Cr. Cas. 440, 9 S.L.R. 91, 33 W.L.R. 566.

SETTING FIRE TO THRESHING SEPARATOR—"MACHINES," "STRUCTURE," MEANING OF.

A "threshing separator" is not a "structure" within the meaning of s. 511 Cr. Code, but is covered by the term "agricultural or manufacturing machines" under s. 510.

WILFULLY KILLING HORSE—AGREEMENT NOT TO PROSECUTE.

If the offence is of a public nature no agreement can be valid that is founded on the consideration of stifling a prosecution for it; consequently a promissory note, unless held by a transferee in due course and for value, is not enforceable if given in consideration of stifling a criminal prosecution for the indictable offence of wilfully killing a horse, the property of another (Cr. Code, s. 510).

SALE OF BUSINESS—FORMER OWNER AS AGENT IN CARRYING ON NEW BUSINESS —SALE TO CREDITOR OF FORMER FIRM WHO DOES NOT KNOW OF CHANGE OF OWNERSHIP—RECOVERY OF PRICE OF GOODS SOLD.

The purchaser of a business, who engages the former owner to act as his agent in carrying on the business, cannot recover the price of goods sold to a creditor of the former firm, who thinks he is still dealing with the old firm, and that the amount of the purchase will be credited on the account, before he has given such purchaser notice of the change of ownership and that the goods are being supplied by him. MUTUAL—VENDOR AND PURCHASER—HOUSE

AND LOT DESCRIBED BY STREET NUMBER —HOUSE ON OTHER LOT—REMOVAL BY PURCHASER TO PROPER LOT—DAMAGES.

Where a vendor agrees to sell and a purchaser to buy a house and lot described by the street and street number where it is situated, both parties believing at the time of sale that the house stood on the west half of a certain lot according to a registered plan, and after the sale it is found that the house in fact encroaches 4 feet on the east half of the lot, which has been conveyed to a third party; it being impossible to rectify the deed to conform with the agreement the purchaser is entitled to damages. The damages were assessed at what it cost the purchaser to move the house on to the west half.

Hickman v. Warman, 46 D.L.R. 66, 44 O.L.R. 257.

TIMBER LIMIT—MISDESCRIPTION.

Where an agent locator makes a mistake in the description of a timber limit, so that it is not recognized by subsequent locators or in the office of the Surveyor-General, the principal has no right of action against subsequent locators who state the same claim and describe and register it properly.

Orde v. Rutter, 39 D.L.R. 456, 25 B.C.R. 45, [1918] 1 W.W.R. 735. [Affirmed, 49 D.L.R. 691.]

QUANTITY OF SUBJECT-MATTER—LANDS—RECTIFICATION BETWEEN VENDOR AND PURCHASER.

Where by mutual mistake of both vendor and purchaser land sold at an acreage price was dealt with on the sale as being of a much larger area as erroneously described in one of the documents of title (e.g. 87 acres, instead of 25 acres), rectification will not be ordered on the purchaser discovering the mistake subsequent to conveyance, if the parties cannot be replaced in their original position because of subsequent dealings with the property by the purchaser before discovering the mistake and of alterations made thereto.

Jackson v. Irwin, 12 D.L.R. 573, 18 B.C.R. 225, 24 W.L.R. 947, 4 W.W.R. 1301, reversing 11 D.L.R. 188, 18 B.C.R. 225, 4 W.W.R. 511.

II. Mistake as to Title.

IMPROVEMENTS UNDER MISTAKE OF TITLE.

Whatever claim the parties in possession of Dominion Crown lands may have to the grace and bounty of the Crown, in respect of improvements or otherwise on the setting aside of a Crown patent improvidently issued in the name of a person already deceased at the date of the grant and through whom the parties in possession claim, it is a matter to be dealt with by the law officers of the Crown rather than by the Exchequer Court hearing the information brought at the instance of the Crown to cancel such patent.

The King v. Laréncé, 10 D.L.R. 195, 15 Can. Ex. 145.

IMPROVEMENTS—OPTION TO PURCHASE LAND TAKEN FROM LIFE TENANT—INTENTION TO EXERCISE OPTION—BONA FIDE MISTAKE AS TO NATURE OF ESTATE OF VENDOR—RETENTION OF POSSESSION UPON MAKING COMPENSATION TO REMAINDERMEN—CONVEYANCING AND LAW OF PROPERTY ACT, R.S.O. 1914, c. 109, s. 37.

To entitle a person to relief under s. 37 of the Conveyancing and Law of Property Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 109, it is not necessary that he should believe or have reasonable grounds for believing that he has the legal estate in the lands upon which he makes "lasting improvements"—all that is required is that he shall in good faith believe that he is in a position to make himself the owner. [Young v. Denike, 2 O.L.R. 723, applied and followed.]

Montreuil v. Ontario Asphalt Block Co., 46 O.L.R. 136.

III. When relief may be granted.

Where, by reason of mutual mistake between the parties, in a supposed parcel agreement for the sale of land, the plaintiff has, with the other's acquiescence, erected a barn and planted fruit trees on the premises, a court of equity will grant reasonable compensation therefor.

CORRECTION.

When there is an error in calculation in a document it is the duty of the party who discovers it to notify his adversary and the court of first instance, and if he does not, the Court of Review should correct this error without modifying the costs.

Marinier v. Riordon Paper Mills, 51 Que. S.C. 532.

IV. Recovery of money paid voluntarily under a mistake of fact.

VOLUNTARY PAYMENT MADE TWICE OF SAME DEBT—ABSENCE OF FRAUD.

In the absence of fraud or misrepresentation on the part of the payee, he is not under an obligation to pay back upon the ground of mistake, the amount of promissory notes which the payer has paid the second time under protest and with the knowledge that he was not liable. [Kelly v. Solari, 9 M. & W. 54, and Imperial Bank v. Bank of Hamilton, [1903] A.C. 49, applied.]

CHEQUE ERRONEOUSLY DRAWN TO HUSBAND FOR DEBT DUE WIFE.

A husband having conveyed his business to his wife and, after working for her for a certain time as an employee, the husband and wife have separated and are living apart, and the husband has ceased to have anything to do with the business, and the defendant knew of this change and intended to deal with the wife, but through error a cheque was made payable to the husband, who appropriated the money to his own use, the payment to the husband cannot be considered a valid payment of the debt, as the wife was in no way to blame for the error.

Ross v. New Brunswick Construction Co., 24 D.L.R. 234, 48 N.B.R. 291.

RECOVERY OF MONEY VOLUNTARILY PAID—MISTAKE OF FACT.

The future happening of an unforeseen event which affects the right of one to whom money had been voluntarily paid does not amount to a mistake of fact that will permit the payor to recover such payment. Where the executor of an estate from which an annuity was payable, in order to facilitate the settlement thereof, paid all of the succession duty on the annuity in one payment, instead of in 4 annual instalments, as he might have done under s. 11 (1) of the Succession Duty Act, (Ont.) 7 Edw. VII. c. 10, he cannot recover from the Crown upon the death of the annuitant immediately after such payment was made, on the theory that it was paid under a mistake of fact, the amount of the 3 annual instalments of succession duty that would have subsequently accrued had it not all been paid at one time, notwithstanding such Act provides that in the death of the annuitant before the expiration of the 4 years, payment should be required only of the instalments which fell due before the death of the annuitant.

MONEY PAID UNDER MISTAKE OF LAW—COSTS PAID BY SOLICITORS.

The rule of law that moneys paid under a mistake of law cannot be recovered does not apply where the mistakes are made by officers of the court therefore costs paid by a solicitor under a mistake of rules of practice as to an examination for discovery may be recovered by him. [Ex parte James, L. R. 9 Ch. 609, followed.]

London Guarantee & Accident Co. v. Henderson, 23 D.L.R. 38, 25 Man. L.R. 617, 32 W.L.R. 61, 8 W.W.R. 1260.

MISTAKE.

Money paid in satisfaction of a succession duty under a mistake of law to the effect that a bequest created an annuity, cannot be recovered from the Crown.

MONEY PAID VOLUNTARILY UNDER MISTAKE OF FACT.

DEPOSIT TO OBTAIN NEW TRIAL.

On an appeal from a judgment in favour of the plaintiffs a new trial was ordered upon the defendant paying into court $4,000 to abide the result of the new trial. On the new trial judgment was again given in favour of the plaintiff, the judge adding that the payment out of moneys must be spoken to. Subsequently the defendants assigned for the benefit of creditors. On application for payment out:—Held, that as the money was paid in as against the happening of a contingency which eventuated before the assignment, namely, the securing of a judgment, the plaintiff was entitled to payment out. Neither the Fraudulent Preferences Act nor the Creditors' Trust Deeds Act applies in this case.

III. GOVERNMENT CONTROL.

Restraint of trade, Cr. Code, s. 498, see Contracts, III E—275.

I. What constitutes; in general.(§ I—2)—COMBINE DEFINED.

A "combine" within the meaning of the Combines Investigation Act is any compact about the making or selling of one article which would fix the price not only of that one article, but of any other article, to the detriment of consumers or producers of the last-mentioned article.

United Shoe Machinery Co. v. Laurendeau and Drouin, 2 D.L.R. 77.

II. Combinations in restraint of trade, commerce or competition.B. OF MANUFACTURERS OF, OR DEALERS IN, VARIOUS PRODUCTS.*(§ II B—16)—OTHER PRODUCTS.

An agreement between two dealers in junk aimed to destroy all competition in that business in the territory in which they were operating and to lower prices paid by them for the stuff and indirectly to raise prices paid to them by their customers, the profits resulting to be divided between them, is void and unenforceable under Cr. Code, s. 498.

Weidman v. Shragge, 2 D.L.R. 734, 46 Can. S.C.R. 1, 2 W.W.R. 330.

UNDULE RESTRAINT OF TRADE.

The mere fact that for a consideration which was reasonable, the owner of a salt works and plant should agree to give the sole and exclusive control for a limited period to another person of those works and plant, retaining only a right to manufacture for the local trade and sell to that trade at prices to be fixed by the purchaser of the control of the salt works, does not make such an agreement illegal ex facie under s. 498 Cr. Code. [Att'y-Gen'l of Australia v. Adelaide S.S. Co., [1913] A.C. 781, applied.]

BUYING OUT COMPETITION.

An arrangement between coal companies for the purpose of buying out a competitor is not illegal under s. 498 (d) Cr. Code, as tending to unduly prevent or lessen competition. That subsection applies to arrangements among persons who remain in the business as to the method by which they will carry it on and to regulations among themselves so as to lessen competition, and not to an arrangement to buy out the property of a competitor who is left free to acquire other properties and so to continue in competition with his vendees.

PRICE RESTRICTION AGREEMENT.

A price restriction agreement between the wholesaler and the retail dealer whereby the latter was to sell certain goods bought from the wholesaler only at prices therein stated, will not be enforced because of its illegality under Cr. Code, s. 498, if its stipulations are such as unreasonably to enhance the price of the goods to the purchasing public. [Wampole v. Karn, 11 O.L.R. 619; Weidman v. Shragge, 20 Can. Cr. I. Application of acts generally.(§ I—2)—AGREEMENT OF SALE—LANDS IN OTHER PROVINCE.

The Moratorium Act (Man.), does not apply to the enforcement in Manitoba of an agreement for sale of lands situated in another province.

CROP AGREEMENTS.

An agreement for sale of lands whereby the purchaser is to pay the proceeds of one-half of the wheat crop yearly until the purchase money and interest is fully paid, is within the exception of s. 4 (b) of the Moratorium Act (Man.), although the agreement is not for delivery of part of the crop itself; but s. 3 of the Act applies to extend for one year the time fixed for redemption under the Master's report made before the Act came into force.

"RESIDENT."

A resident of another province or country who comes into this province with the intention of enlisting in the forces raised by the Government of Canada in aid of His Majesty during the present war, and does so enlist within a short time after his arrival here, cannot be deemed to have become a "resident" of Manitoba within the meaning of that expression as used in the War Relief Act (Man.), 1915, c. 88, and is not entitled to the benefits of that Act. [Wanzer v. Woods, 13 P.R. (Ont.) 511, at p. 513; Bempde v. Johnstone, 3 Ves. 201, followed.] Douglas v. O'Brien, 27 Man. L.R. 46.

MENTION WORKER—MEMBER OF ARMY RESERVE.

An applicant for relief under the War Relief Act (B.C.), 1916, c. 74 went to England in June, 1915, as a volunteer and applied for a commission in the Engineers, but owing to his doing special building construction work on a munition factory at the time his application was suspended. In August, 1915, he became manager of a munition factory, at which work he is still engaged. In July, 1916, he was placed in Army Reserve, Section B, exempting him from service while employed in a munition factory. An action was brought against him for foreclosure of a mortgage. Held, that he was entitled to relief under the War Relief Act.

Walker v. British Canadian Securities, 24 B.C.R. 119.

INCORPORATED CLUB.

A club incorporated under the Benevolent Societies Act, R.S.B.C. 1897, is a statutory trustee of property held in its name and comes therefore within s. 2 (c) of the War Relief Act (B.C.), 1916, c. 74 as amended by Act 1917, which provides that during the continuance of the war, and for a period of 6 months thereafter, it shall not be lawful for any person to bring any action or take any proceedings, either in any of the civil courts of this province, or outside of such courts, against any member of the family of any such person if dependent on such person.

Inman v. Western Club, [1917] 3 W.W.R. 541.

LIBEL ACTION.

A plaintiff in a libel action need not comply with the provisions of the War Relief Act (B.C.), 1916, c. 74.

Nelson v. Balderson, [1917] 3 W.W.R. 448.

MORTGAGE—CODEPENDANT.

Defendants in an action based upon a covenant for payment in a mortgage cannot rely upon the fact that a codefendant is a volunteer as defence to the action.

Northern Trusts Co. v. Peart, 10 S.L.R. 67, [1917] 1 W.W.R. 1415.

ANTICIPATED DEBT—RENEWAL OF NOTE.

No action lies against a volunteer or reservist upon a promissory note which, although made after the date of the passing of the Volunteers and Reservists Relief Act (Alta.), c. 6, 1916, is shown to be a renewal of a note before the passing of the Act and not intended to discharge the original note.

In the case above mentioned the purchaser, who had enlisted was not protected under the Volunteer and Reservists Relief Act, c. 7 of 1916, as against the vendor's right to seize her share of the crop, the proceedings not being a proceeding upon a personal covenant within the meaning of s. 3 (following Riach v. Elliott, [1917] 1 W.W.R. 591). Proceedings by way of counterclaim for specific performance of the agreement of sale on cancellation, were allowed as if the volunteers and Reservists Relief Act had not been passed, the court being satisfied under s. 8 that the interest of the purchaser was merely nominal as he had never paid more than interest on the agreement, and under s. 17 of the court confirmed and validated the proceedings.

(§ 1-5)—VOLUNTEERS AND RESERVISTS—DISCHARGED VOLUNTEER.

Section 3 of the Volunteers and Reservists Relief Act (Sask.), 1916, c. 7, continues the protection afforded by the Act, until 6 months after the conclusion of the war; this protection applies to all who have once joined the Canadian forces as volunteers although subsequently discharged.

WAR RELIEF ACT—MORTGAGE—ARREARS OF INTEREST.

The War Relief Act (Alta.), 1918, s. 3, does not apply to proceedings pending at the time the Act came into operation, but after proceedings have been commenced a mortgagor may pay all arrears of interest and other charges leaving nothing but the principal in arrear, and proceedings, although properly commenced, could then only be continued in contravention of the section.

WAR RELIEF AMENDMENT ACT—CONFLICT OF LAWS—ACTION IN ENGLAND.

The War Relief Amendment Act (B.C.), 1917, c. 74, relates to procedure only and therefore is no defence to an action in the English courts against a volunteer who enlisted in that province but upon whom service of process is made in England.

Merchants Bank v. Elliot, [1918] 1 W.W.R. 698.

WAR RELIEF ACT—COMMISSIONED OFFICERS —"PROCEEDINGS."

Commissioned officers, though not in a sense "enlisted" soldiers, are "volunteers" within the protective provisions of the War Relief Act, 1916, c. 74, and an application for the registration of a final foreclosure order is a "proceeding outside the court" suspended by the Act.

Re Smith and the Land Registry Act, 31 D.L.R. 702, 23 B.C.R. 547, [1917] 1 W.W.R. 332.

(§ 1-10)—HUSBAND AND WIFE.

An action against a married woman for her personal debt, her husband not being a defendant, will not be stayed under the Volunteers and Reservists Relief Act (Alta.), 1916, c. 6, on the ground that since the action was begun her husband has come within the protection of that Act. (§ 1-15)—EFFECT OF DEATH.

The protection given the wife of a volunteer by s. 15 of the Volunteers and Reservists Relief Act (Sask.), 1916, c. 7, is not removed upon his death, but continues during the period covered by the Act, if she does not remarry. [McCausland v. Griffiths, [1917] 3 W.W.R. 52, distinguished.]
Re Canada Life Assurance Co., [1917] 3 W.W.R. 349.

The protection afforded by the Volunteers and Reservists Relief Act (Sask.), 1916, c. 7, does not cease with the death of the volunteer or reservist, but extends to protect his property and interests during the continuance of the war and for one year thereafter.

Re Land Titles Act; Re Netherlands Transatlantic Mortgage Co., [1917] 2 W.W.R. 1082.

EFFECT OF DEATH—MORTGAGE.

A volunteer who died before the Volunteers and Reservists Relief Act (Alta.), 1916, c. 7 came into force (April 19, 1916) never had the protection of the Act and therefore his estate is not entitled to its protection. An action to foreclose a mortgage upon property, on which a volunteer has a vendor's lien, is a proceeding against such volunteer, and is therefore prohibited by s. 3 of the Act.

In an action by a vendor against a purchaser upon an agreement to buy land the fact that there has been nothing of record in the Land Titles Office to disclose a resale by the purchaser to a man now on active service, such resale not being discovered until after the action was begun, is not a ground for suspending the operation of the Volunteers and Reservists Relief Act (Sask.), 1916, c. 7.

The period of one-year extension prescribed by ss. 3, 7 of the amending Act (Man.), 5 Geo. V., c. 10, known as the Moratorium Act, to enable purchasers and mortgagors of land to meet defaults, cannot be invoked after the period had once run without the default being made good; consequently payment by a purchaser of a tax arrear, the default of which had run a year will not revive the operation of the statute as against a vendor seeking enforcement of the contract by reason of such default.

In an application by a mortgagor in respect of sale proceedings no relief or stay of extra judicial proceedings can be granted under the Moratorium Act (B.C.), 1915, c. 35, where the moneys owing are in respect of interest or principal and interest. The failure of the mortgagee to give the notice required by s. 2, subs. 1, para. c. gives no jurisdiction to relief on an application under the Act, but an injunction might be applied for to restrain the mortgagee from proceeding with the sale.

The registration of a transfer subsequent to the issue of the Moratorium Proclamation is not forbidden thereby. Accordingly where the property in land has passed in default of payment within the time specified in an order nisi for private sale to a specific purchaser prior to the proclamation taking effect, the transfer to such purchaser may be registered.

Re Moratorium Proclamation, 7 W.W.R. 795.

(§ III — 55) — MORATORIUM ACT, 1914 (MAN.), EFFECT OF IN FORECLOSURE ACTIONS—RIGHT TO PERSONAL JUDGMENT.

Section 5 of the Moratorium Act, 1914, (Man.), which stays actions "for the recovery of possession of the land charged" until after the lapse of a 6 months' period does not limit the recovery of a personal judgment for the amount due under a sale agreement for principal and interest, and where an action which was pending when the Act was passed had not proceeded to the entry of final judgment before August 1st, 1914, the limitation of s. 4 as to actions to enforce a covenant or agreement in respect of lands does not prevent the subsequent entering up of judgment, although it stays proceedings to enforce payment by writ of execution or by registration of the judgment.

FORECLOSURE—WIFE'S SEPARATE ESTATE.

VOLUNTEERS AND RESERVISTS RELIEF ACT—RIGHT OF MORTGAGEE TO RENT.

The fact that a mortgagor is a volunteer or reservist within the meaning of the Volunteers and Reservists Relief Act (Alta.), 1916, c. 6, is not a defence to an action to recover the rent or rental value of the mortgaged premises, provided the mortgagee gives the mortgagee the right to collect the rent or rental value. In such a case the mortgagee is entitled to judgment for the payment of the rent or rental value and for the appointment of a receiver therefor and to an order for possession in default of payment until such default is remedied.

Mutual Life Ass'ce Co. v. Blakett, [1918] 2 W.W.R. 521.

Where a mortgagee is in arrears, the mortgagee, is entitled to the rents or, in default of rent, to possession, although the wife of a volunteer claims an interest in the premises under an agreement of sale and has rented them to the wife of another volunteer.

General Financial Corp. v. Wood and McGregor, [1918] 1 W.W.R. 780.

WAR RELIEF ACT—RIGHT OF MORTGAGEE TO POSSESSION OR RENTABLE VALUE.

On an application under s. 9, War Relief Act (B.C.), 1916, c. 74, for leave to a mortgagee to enter into possession unless paid the rentable value of the mortgaged premises, the court will have regard, not to the ability of the mortgagor to pay, but to the question whether there exists at the time of the application a sufficient equity in the mortgagor to make it reasonably certain, in the opinion of the court, that the mortgagee will ultimately recover his principal and interest. If there is, leave will be refused; if not, it will be granted. In deciding what is the rentable value the court has no discretion to fix an arbitrary rent, but must on evidence adduced decide what is the rentable value as fixed by the market at the time of the application.

The proviso to s. 6 of the War Relief Act, c. 24, 1918, means that no matter what may happen to a mortgagee's application for leave to pursue any of his other remedies, his right to payment of the full amount of the net income of the mortgaged property to the extent of the mortgagor's default is absolute. It is, therefore, not necessary for a mortgagee to obtain leave to serve notice on a tenant to pay him the rents of the mortgaged premises.

Melvor v. Parker, [1917] 1 W.W.R. 1399.

BUYERS AND MORTGAGORS—"RENTABLE VALUE."

Section 1 of c. 21 of 6 Geo. V. was plainly intended only to abridge the rights of a vendor or mortgagee and to extend relief to the purchaser or mortgagor, in cases where interest could not be sued for under the Moratorium Act (Man.) its amendments made by c. 10 of 5 Geo. V., till it was more than a year overdue, so as to enable the debtor to prevent an action not yet brought, or to get a stay of proceedings after action brought, by paying such a sum as would leave no interest more than a year in arrear, which it had been held in Campbell v. Roubert, 25 D.L.R. 652, 26 Man. L.R. 28, he could not previously have done. That section does not expressly repeal subs. (a) of s. 4 of the Moratorium Act as enacted by s. 5 of c. 10 of 5 Geo. V., which enables a vendor or mortgagee to sue at once for interest in arrear subject to the right of the debtor to shew that the "rentable value" of the property is less than the amount of the interest sued for and to get a stay of proceedings for more than such rentable value; and, is full effect can be given to it without holding that such repeal was intended, it should not be construed as effecting such repeal by implication. The provisions of subs. (a) of s. 5 of the Moratorium Act as enacted by s. 6 of 5 Geo. V. which admittedly have not been either expressly or impliedly repealed, tend further to shew that subs. (a) of s. 4 was not intended to be repealed.

PLEADING — AMENDMENT — "MORTGAGE OR OTHER INSTRUMENT CHARGING LAND"—BOND.

If a litigant intends to rely upon the Moratorium Act (Man.), he must, as a general rule, set it up in his pleading; but some of its provisions, which introduce specific changes in the status of all litigants, will be recognized and applied whether they have been pleaded or not; and leave to amend should be given or refused in accordance with the principles applied to the Statute of Limitations. A bond as collateral security for a mortgage is not a "mortgage or any other instrument charging land with the payment of money," within the meaning of the Moratorium Act.

Great West Life Ass'ce Co. v. Howden, 35 D.L.R. 617, [1917] 1 W.W.R. 1531.

MORATORIUM ACT, s. 7—ABANDONMENT—PLEADING.

On motion for judgment in an undefended action for foreclosure of an agreement of sale, the plaintiff is not entitled to claim that the Moratorium Act (Man.), does not apply because of an abandonment of the land by the defendant, as provided in s. 7, unless there is in the statement of claim an appropriate allegation to that effect.

WAR RELIEF ACT AMENDED—PROCEDURE.

Any application dealing with an order made under the War Relief Act (B.C.), 1916, c. 74, and amendments must be made to the court.

Pilkington v. Kent (B.C.), 25 B.C.R. 432, [1918] 3 W.W.R. 584.

LEAVE TO TAKE STEP IN ACTION—NOTICE OF APPEAL.

Section 8 of the War Relief Act Amendment Act (B.C.), 1917, which came into force on the 19th May, 1917, provides that "every plaintiff or party commencing, instituting or taking any proceedings in or out of court shall after service of the writ, notice, or other process whereby any proceedings in or out of court are instituted, and before taking any further step, furnish evidence to the satisfaction of such court or of the officer or tribunal in whose office or before which any proceedings out of court are being taken, that the defendant was not at the time of such service entitled to the benefit of this Act," etc. The writ was issued in this action on May 10th, 1917, and without the plaintiff complying with the above section the action was tried and judgment given in his favor on June 20th following. The defendant first raised the point that the plaintiff had not complied with the provisions of the War Relief Act in his notice of appeal. Held, that it is only when the plaintiff proposes to take a step in the action that he is required to obtain leave. In the present instance it is the defendant who is taking the step (i.e. giving notice of and bringing on the appeal), in which case the provisions of the Act do not apply.

B. WHAT CONSTITUTES.

(I B-5)—FORM—SUBSTANCE—MORTGAGEE'S RIGHTS—HOW DETERMINED.

A mortgage, no matter what its form, is but a security for the payment of the money covered by it, and this principle governs in determining the mortgagee's rights.

Bernard v. Faulkner, 18 D.L.R. 174, 7 A.L.R. 439, 7 W.W.R. 162.

(I B-6)—EQUITABLE MORTGAGE.

Where an instrument covering certain lands purports to be an absolute assignment and power of attorney but is really given only to secure a loan for which the borrower gives his promissory note, such instrument is merely an equitable mortgage, and under the maxim "once a mortgage always a mortgage" the grantee will be limited strictly to his rights as a mortgagee. [London & Globe Finance Corp. v. Montgomery, 18 T.L.R. 661, distinguished; Samuel v. Jarrah, [1904] A.C. 324, followed.]

Arnold v. National Trust Co., 7 D.L.R. 754, 5 A.L.R. 214, 3 W.W.R. 183.

though the legal estate is outstanding in another than the depositor. The law of Ontario in respect of equitable mortgages by deposit of documents of title is the same as the law of England.

Zimmerman v. Sproat, 5 D.L.R. 452, 26 O.L.R. 448.

(§ I B-7)—DEED WITH AGREEMENT TO RECONVEY.

An agreement by a mortgagor after default whereby the mortgagee gets a new security for advances not included in the original mortgage and expenditures not in contemplation when the original mortgage was made, is to be treated as in effect a new mortgage as regards any attempted restriction of the mortgagor's right to redeem.

Manitoba Lumber Co. v. Emmerson, 14 D.L.R. 390, 18 B.C.R. 96, affirming with a variation 5 D.L.R. 337, 21 W.L.R. 503, 2 W.W.R. 419.

QUITCLAIM DEED—DISCHARGE—TENDER.

A quitclaim deed given as security for a debt, together with a written memorandum providing for the surrender of the deed when the indebtedness is satisfied, must be read together, and operate as a mortgage, which is discharged by subsequent tender of the amount of the indebtedness. The tender of such amount according to statement furnished by the creditor is sufficient notwithstanding it subsequently turns out that the statement was for less than the amount actually due.

SALE WITH POWER OF REPURCHASE—EXPENSES AND AMELIORATIONS—RENUNCIATION—REIMBURSEMENT—C.C. ART. 1548.

He who, after consenting to a sale with power of repurchase, makes improvements to the sold estate, thereby incurring expense, has a right to be reimbursed if he renounces his right to repurchase the property and the buyer accepts this renunciation.

Malo v. Lebrun, 25 Rev. Leg. 458.

SALE WITH POWER OF REDEMPTION—SIMULATION—FRAUD—LOAN—WRITTEN EVIDENCE—COMMENCING EVIDENCE BY WRITING—C.C. (QUE.) ARTS. 984, 989, 1032, 1233.

Even where the parties had in view a loan of money, if they give to it the form of a sale with power of redemption, the latter must take effect as such, and cannot be considered as a pretended sale. In the absence of fraud and simulation proof by witnesses will not be allowed of an agreement extending the time for redeeming land valued at more than $50 agreed upon in a deed of sale. The refusal of a person to carry out his written or verbal agreements, does not in itself constitute fraud.

St. Aubin v. Crevier, 56 Que. S.C. 143.

(§ I B-8)—CONVEYANCE ABSOLUTE IN FORM.

Stuart v. Bank of Montreal, 10 D.L.R. 841, 4 O.W.N. 1280, 24 O.W.R. 714.

CONVEYANCE ABSOLUTE IN FORM—CONTEMPORANEOUS AGREEMENT — DEFEASIBLE PURCHASE OR MORTGAGE.

In determining whether a deed absolute in form was in fact a mortgage under the form of a sale or represented a bona fide sale with a contract to repurchase, it is a fair test to ascertain if the remedies are mutual and reciprocal; and a collateral agreement which refers to the debt and interest for which the property is held and which stipulates for the transferee having full power to dispose of same, is evidence of the transaction being a mortgage rather than a defeasible sale with right of repurchase.

DEED ABSOLUTE IN FORM—SECURITY FOR DEBT.

A deed, although absolute in form, will be construed as a mortgage when given by the grantor as security for past and future advances from the grantee.

Buchanan v. Oakes, 15 D.L.R. 582, 26 W.L.R. 549.

CONVEYANCE ABSOLUTE IN FORM—POWER OF SALE.

A conveyance of land by a deed absolute in form, but which had been intended as security for a debt, does not import a power of sale by which the grantee may sell the property without the concurrence of the grantor. [Pearson v. Benson, 28 Beav. 598, followed; Oland v. McNeil, 32 Can. S.C.R. 25, distinguished.]

ABSOLUTE CONVEYANCE—EQUITY OF REDEMPTION—INTENTION.

A conveyance absolute in form may be intended to operate as a mortgage or pledge only, but the mortgagor may, by subsequent independent agreement, extinguish his equity of redemption in favour of his mortgagee or surety, at the same time acquiring an option to repurchase, and if such is the real intention of the parties the equity of redemption ceases to exist, and the former mortgagor has only his option or privilege of repurchasing on the terms set out in the agreement.

(§ I B-9)—ORDER OF DISTRIBUTION—REGISTRATION OF JUDGMENT AS A MORTGAGE—APPEAL—QUE, C.P. 801.

A judgment rendered by a Trial Court may be registered as a mortgage on a property; but such a mortgage follows the issue of the appeal: if the appeal is maintained, the mortgage remains but if the appeal is dismissed, the mortgage becomes void. Art. 801, C.C.P. as a rule refers only to mortgages in warranty respecting the fulfillment of the sale against the foreseen or unforeseen dangers of eviction.

Joyal v. Vigneault, 16 Que. P.R. 8.

C. WHAT PROPERTY COVERED; DESCRIPTION OF PROPERTY.

(§ I C-10)—FIXTURES — LIABILITY OF STRANGER FOR CONVERTING.

A person who, with knowledge of the land mortgage, purchased and removed from the lands an engine and boiler so placed as to become a fixture, may be joined as a defendant in the mortgagee's action for foreclosure and sale, so that he may be held liable for any deficiency in the mortgage security to the extent of the value of the engine and boiler.

Dyas v. Henderson, 19 D.L.R. 560.

FIXTURES IN STORE—ATTORNEYS CLAUSE—LANDLORD AND TENANT.

The plaintiff was the mortgagee of land upon which was a store containing articles usually regarded as trade-fixtures. The mortgagor sold and conveyed the land to W.; he also sold his stock of merchandise, chattels, and fixtures to W., and executed a bill of sale thereof. W. made a bill of the same property to B., and B. to the defendant F. In this action the plaintiff sought to restrain the defendants from removing such of the articles as he considered to form part of the freehold. The plaintiff's mortgage contained a clause by which the mortgagor attorned to the mortgagee and became tenant of the land at a rent equivalent to and payable at the same time as the interest:—Held, that by the mortgage all fixtures passed to the mortgagee, subject to the right to redeem; and, if the clause created the relationship of landlord and tenant, the fixtures were the landlord's and could not be removed by the tenant. But the true relationship was that of mortgagee and mortgagor; and the mortgagor by the mortgage of the land pledged all that could be regarded as fixtures in the widest sense of the term—all things actually fixed, and such things not actually fixed, and such things not actually fixed as were intended to form part of the inheritance. [Monti v. Barnes, [1901] 1 Q.B. 205, Southampton & West Lancashire Banking Co. v. Thompson, 37 Ch. D. 64, 70 Stack v. T. Eaton Co., 4 O.L.R. 335; Bing Kee v. Yick Chong, 43 Can. Gordon v. Fraser, 43 O.L.R. 31.

(§ I C-13)—TO SECURE BONDS.

Where a mortgage to secure bonds excepts from its operations logs on the way to the mill, logs which have once been started on the way to the mill do not cease to fall within the exception because they are delayed through lack of water to float them or from any other cause. Where a mortgage is made to secure bonds upon the whole property, assets etc., of a company, present and future, except logs on the way to the mill, such exception applies to such logs as may be on the way to the mill, not only at the date of the mortgage, but also at any future time.

A married woman who by the fraud of the company's agent is innocently induced to sign mortgage papers in favour of the company and a direction to pay the proceeds of the loan to such agent in respect of property which she did not own but which was transferred into her name without her knowledge by such agent in pursuance of his fraudulent scheme to obtain money from the company in excess of its value through a false valuation and an application in the name of another, is not estopped from repudiating liability under the mortgage under a plea of non est factum and of claiming that she was led to believe that the documents she was signing were of an entirely different character, by her failure to personally inspect and read over what she was signing under such circumstances she was under no duty to protect the company from possible frauds by its own agent.

(§ 1 D—17)—AMOUNT OF DEBT.

The "true value" of a mortgage under s. 176 of the Land Registry Act, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 127, does not necessarily mean the nominal amount secured by the mortgage, and, if the registrar is not satisfied with the value as affirmed, he must proceed as directed by s. 176 to ascertain the true value.

VALIDITY—AMOUNT OF DEBT—PAROL AGREEMENT FOR EXTRA INTEREST—AFTER DEFAULT—INTEREST ACT.

Although a parol agreement by the mortgagor after default to pay an increased rate of interest on a mortgage in consideration of an extension of time is under the Statute of Frauds insufficient to charge the extra interest upon the land, such an agreement is enforceable against the mortgagor personally. Section 8 of the Interest Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 120, inhibiting any stipulation by way of fine or penalty or rate of interest raising the rate on arrears of mortgage principal above that on principal not in arrear, is construed as having reference to covert or burdensome provisions of the mortgage as originally drawn and does not preclude a new contract by which a mortgagor in arrear agrees to pay an increased rate in consideration of an extension.

(§ 1 E—20)—TRUSTEES—PERSONAL LIABILITY—MISTAKE IN DRAUGHTSMANSHIP—REFORMATION OF INSTRUMENT.

A covenant in a mortgage by trustees expressed to be made by them "as trustees but not otherwise" will in the absence of other controlling words be held to limit their liability to the payment of the money out of trust estate and will not render them personally liable. If, therefore, it appears from the evidence that the parties agreed that the mortgagors were to pay as trustees and not otherwise and failed through a mistake in draughtsmanship to express that intention in the instrument, it should be reformulated so as to limit the liability as intended. [Watling v. Lewis, [1911] 1 Ch. 414, distinguished; Wilding v. Sanderson, [1897] 2 Ch. 534, applied.]

O'Brien v. Knudson, 48 D.L.R. 447, [1919] 3 W.W.R. 480, reversing 45 D.L.R. 187, [1919] 1 W.W.R. 327.

COVENANT—JOINT OR SEVERAL—DEATH OF MORTGAGOR.

A covenant by three mortgagors that "the said mortgagors covenant with the said mortgagee that the mortgagors will pay the mortgage money and interest and observe the above proviso, and will pay all present and future taxes" . . . is a joint covenant only, and, therefore, if default in performance occurs after the death of one of the mortgagors his estate is not liable.

Lindley v. Vassar, 25 B.C.R. 219, [1918] 1 W.W.R. 879.

COVENANT FOR FURTHER ASSURANCES—LAND TITLES ACT—TRANSFER OR VESTING ORDER.

Under a covenant in a mortgage under the Land Titles Act (Alta.), that the mortgagor, upon default, "will execute such further assurances of the land as may be requisite," the mortgagee is not entitled upon default by the mortgagor, to an order directing the mortgagor to execute a transfer of the mortgaged land or to a vesting order. The extended covenant for further assurances (s. 70), if applicable to a mortgage under the Act, can be so by analogy only, and the meaning thereof would seem to be that after default the mortgagor will do any act or execute any instrument necessary to perfect the security and support the mortgage.

Ritchie v. Edmonton Milling Co., [1918] 1 W.W.R. 537.

[§ I E—22]—MORTGAGEE IN POSSESSION.

Only ordinary and necessary repairs to encumbered property are within the purview of an agreement by which a mortgagee was placed in possession of a sawmill property, as a mortgagee in possession, the mortgagor reserving the right to redeem upon paying the costs of improvements made by the mortgagee while in possession, and the mortgagor cannot be required to pay, either under the terms of such agreement, nor as appurtenant to the rights of a mortgagee in possession, $106,000 for improvements consisting of the erection of a new and different mill in place of a practically new one that was torn down, a large portion of such expense being incurred after the expiration of the time for redemption and notification by the mortgagor of his intention to redeem, and his repudiation of liability for such extensive improvements, and after the launching by him of an action for redemption. [Carrol v. Robertson, 15 Gr. Ch. (Ont.) 173; Brotherton v. Hetherington, 23 Gr. Ch. (Ont.) 187; Shepard v. Jones, 21 Ch. D. 469; Henderson v. Astwood, [1894] A.C. 150, distinguished.]

LOSS OF RENTS FROM NONREPAIR—SUBSEQUENT REDEMPTION DECREE.

While acting as owner following a final order of foreclosure in his favour regularly obtained, and up to the time when the court, exercising its equitable powers and not for any irregularity in the final order, opened the foreclosure and gave the mortgagor liberty to redeem, the mortgagee was under no obligation to repair or to keep up the buildings on the mortgaged lands, or to try to obtain tenants, and, therefore, his mortgage account is not subject to surcharge as for rents which might have been, but were not, obtained by him.

Williams v. Box, 15 D.L.R. 261, 26 W.L.R. 461, 24 Man. L.R. 31, 5 W.W.R. 912, reversing 12 D.L.R. 90, 24 W.L.R. 93, 4 W.W.R. 244.

COLLATERAL AGREEMENTS AS TO RATE OF INTEREST—CLAIM IN MORTGAGE ACTION—RES JUDICATA—CHATTEL MORTGAGE—SALE—ACCOUNTING.

The plaintiff, with two others, in 1905 purchased from C. farm machinery, giving notes therefor bearing interest at 7 per cent before maturity and 10 per cent thereafter until paid, and as further security gave a lien on the machinery and certain land mortgages, the mortgages bearing interest at the rates specified in the notes. C. subsequently took proceedings in the court leading to the sale of the lands under the mortgages, and on the taking of the mortgage accounts before the local registrar, interest was allowed at 7 per cent only, it being held that the increased rate of 10 per cent on the arrears was not recoverable. The amount thus found to be due was fully satisfied out of the sale of the lands. In 1913, the plaintiff gave a chattel mortgage to the defendant on an engine, part of the machinery in question. This engine the chattel mortgagee subsequently sold and out of the surplus proceeds remaining after payment of its claim paid to C. in satisfaction of an alleged lien of C. $392, this sum representing the amount claimed by C. in respect of the increased rate of interest specified in its collateral agreement and disallowed on the taking of the accounts in the mortgage proceedings. In an action for an accounting of the moneys received on the sale of the engine under the chattel mortgage, held, that the chattel mortgagee was a trustee of the surplus and as such had the right to pay and discharge out of the sale price any encumbrances prior to it. That the claim of C. was, however, one that could have been and should have been raised by C. in its mortgage action, and not having been there raised was res judicata and could not be asserted, and that therefore the payment in question to C. was not warranted.

FUTURES—EFFECT OF POSSESSION—REMOVAL—INJUNCTION.

A mortgagee by leaving his mortgagor in possession of the mortgaged premises impliedly authorizes him to hire and bring and fix other fixtures necessary for his business and to agree with their owner that he shall be at liberty to remove them at the end of the time for which they are hired. The right in the owner to unfix or remove things so affixed ceases, however, when the mortgagee takes possession. But if such an implied permission is at variance with the express language of the contract between the mortgagee and the mortgagor, no implied permission can be as between them supported. [Ellis v. Glover [1908] 1 K.B. 388, followed.] A mortgagee not in possession is not entitled to obtain an injunction to restrain the removal of such fixtures, unless he also proves that his security is insufficient or will become so by such removal. (§ I E—23)—RENTS—RECEIVER.

A mortgagee is not entitled, as against the mortgagor, to a refund of rents paid, before the mortgagee takes possession, by a tenant of a purchaser under an agreement for sale. Where such rents have been paid over by the purchaser's solicitors to a receiver appointed on the application of the mortgagee, the fact that the purchaser is indebted to the mortgagor and is out of the jurisdiction does not entitle the receiver to retain the rents.

A mortgagee cannot lawfully provide, at the same time as the loan is made, for any event or condition on which the equity of redemption shall be discharged and the conveyance become absolute, nor for an option to purchase, although the option price is far in excess of the loan; and this, although it appears that the lender was not willing to lend unless he had both the security and the option and that the lender and borrower were dealing at arm's length. AGREEMENT FOR MORTGAGE—MATURITY DATE NOT SPECIFIED.

A written agreement to give a mortgage back to the vendor on the purchase of real estate is too indefinite to be binding where only the amount of the mortgage money and the rate of interest are specified and it does not appear for how long the mortgage is intended to run; under such circumstances the court will not oblige the proposed mortgagee to accept a mortgage which might be paid off whenever the purchaser chose in his lifetime.

(§ I F—25)—MORTGAGE OF CHURCH—GUARANTY OF DEBT BY TRUSTEES—SCOPE.

A covenant by the trustees of a church guaranteeing the payment of the mortgage debt creates a general guaranty as against all the guarantors, notwithstanding a clause that the covenants of the mortgage shall affect and bind only the specific property of the church.

TRUST DEED SECURING DEBENTURES—FORECLOSURE — COMPANY — WINDING-UP ACT.

The contention that when a company is being wound up under the Winding-up Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 144, an action for foreclosure of a mortgage given by the company does not lie, but the mortgagee is restricted to the remedy given by s. 133 of the Act, can only prevail, if at all, when the case falls strictly within the class of cases mentioned in the section, and the case is not within such class if the mortgaged premises were never "in the hands, possession or custody of the liquidator." Stewart v. LePage, 29 D.L.R. 607, should not be interpreted as holding that, even where leave has been granted (as was the fact in the present case) such an action is not maintainable.

(§ II A-30)—EQUITABLE MORTGAGE—EXECUTIONS.

An assignment of the proceeds of a mortgage to cover an indebtedness to a bank in pursuance of a prior agreement by the debtor to place a mortgage on his lands whenever required by the bank, the mortgage being executed prior to but not registered after the filing of an execution, disentitles the bank, under ss. 70, 118 (2) of the Land Titles Act (Sask.), as amended by s. 17 of c. 16 of 1912-13, to claim priority by way of equitable mortgage over the execution creditor.

Empire Cream Separator Co. v. Frier, 36 D.L.R. 356, 45 N.B.R. 1.

AS TO OTHER CLAIMS.

Notwithstanding that the title acquired by the holder of a mortgage under a foreclosure proceeding may be void against a purchaser of the encumbered land whom the former led to believe that the mortgage was satisfied, yet a person whom, in good faith, lends money to the holder of the title so acquired, and who registers his mortgage without notice of such purchaser's rights, will be protected although warned of impending litigation regarding the land before taking such mortgage.

SUBSEQUENT MORTGAGE — MISTAKE — EQUITABLE RELIEF.

Where the defendant in a mortgage action had been a first mortgagee and had taken a conveyance of the property he was not entitled to equitable relief on the ground of ignorance of the plaintiff's mortgage, there being no evidence of either a joint intention or an express agreement to take the land free from encumbrances, as was the case in Dean and Chapter v. McArthur, 9 Man. L. R. 391.

(§ II B-40)—CONDITIONAL SALE AGREEMENT—FAILURE TO REGISTER RENEWAL UNDER CONDITIONAL SALES ACT—SUBSEQUENT DEBENTURE.

A publishing company purchased from the defendant in 1913 certain machinery under a conditional sale agreement—only a small portion of the purchase price being paid at the time of purchase. In 1915 the same company received an advance from the plaintiffs, as security for which they gave them what is described as a "first mortgage debenture" which specifically charged the assets of the company with payment of the amount and contained the words "but so that the company is not to be at liberty to create any mortgage or charge on its property ranking in priority to or pari passu with this debenture." The defendant failed to register the renewal statement within the two years as required by the ordinance respecting Hire Receipts and Conditional Sales (Con. Ord. N.W.T., 1898, c. 44; see also amendment, 1916, Alta., c. 3 s. 8). In an action to determine priorities between the parties, it was held that the purpose of the Act required a benevolent and broad meaning to be given to the term "mortgage," that the plaintiffs' debenture fell within such term and was entitled to priority over the defendant's agreement.

Foster v. International Typetting Machine Co., 47 D.L.R. 329, [1919] 2 W.W.R. 652.

PRIORITY AS TO JUDGMENTS — EQUITABLE MORTGAGE—MERGER IN LEGAL MORTGAGE.

Even if as a general rule the taking of an ineffectual legal mortgage by an equitable mortgagee does not merge the equitable mortgage, as affecting his right of priority, the rule will be displaced by clear proof of intention to the contrary; and, hence, taking of a mortgage to replace a prior mortgage which was not registrable because of an incorrect description of a plan, and because the mortgagors were not then the registered owners of the land, gives priority to a creditor of the mortgagors who obtained judgment against them and filed an execution thereon after the first mortgage, but before the second was given, intention to abandon the prior mortgage clearly appearing, though the mortgagees erroneously regarded the second mortgage as affording as valuable security as the first.

MORTGAGE OF EQUITABLE INTEREST—OTHER PRIOR UNREGISTERED EQUITABLE INTERESTS—MORTGAGEE'S KNOWLEDGE OF—REGISTRATION—CAVEAT—LAND TITLES ACT, 1917, c. 18, s. 194—STATUTES—CONSTRUCTION.

In cases coming within s. 162 of the Land Titles Act (R.S.S. 1909, c. 41; see 1917, c. 18, s. 194) a registered purchaser or mortgagee for value of an equitable interest in lands, who has actual or constructive notice of other equitable unregistered interests prior to that which he acquired, does not, except in cases of fraud, take subject to those interests. Knowledge of an unregistered interest is not to be imputed as fraud.

Union Bank and Phillips v. Boulter-Waugh, 46 D.L.R. 41, 58 Can. S.C.R. 385, [1919] 1 W.W.R. 1046, reversing 42 D.L.R. 548, 11 S.L.R. 297, [1918] 3 W.W.R. 27, sub nom. Boulter-Waugh v. Phillips.

ATTORNMENT CLAUSE.

Under the Alberta system of land titles, the mortgagor does not convey the fee to the mortgagee as under the English system; the mortgage creates only a statutory charge against the land, the legal title still remaining in the mortgagor, and an attornment clause in the mortgage cannot create any real tenancy in the mortgagor, and, therefore, s. 1 of 8 Anne, c. 14, cannot apply. [Yates v. Ratledge, 5 H. & N. 249; Cox v. Leigh, L.R. 9 Q.B. 333; Morton v. Wood, L.R. 4 Q.B. 293, distinguished; Jellicoe v. Wellington Loan Co., 4 N.Y.R. 330, applied.]

Hyde v. Chapin, 26 D.L.R. 381, 33 W.L.R. 539, 9 W.W.R. 1142, reversing 8 W.W.R. 820.

(§ II B—44)—SUBSTITUTED MORTGAGE.

Where one to whom a voluntary conveyance of land was made, which was void as to the creditors of the grantor, upon retiring an existing mortgage thereon, gave a new one to the mortgagee for a larger amount, such mortgage is not affected by a subsequent proceeding to set aside such conveyance, to which the mortgagee was not a party.

III. Vendee of mortgagor; assumption of debt.

(§ III—45)—PAYMENT BY VENDOR—SURRENDER.

A mortgagor who is compelled to pay a mortgage debt after its assumption by an assignee of the equity of redemption, either by express agreement, or by virtue of s. 89 of the Real Property Act, R.S.M. 1902, c.

148, is entitled to an assignment of the mortgage.

RIGHTS ACQUIRED BY—EFFECT OF REGISTRY ACT.

One who purchases encumbered lands from a mortgagor takes subject to the true state of the mortgage indebtedness, having regard to the application of payments made between the mortgagor and mortgagee; and the purchaser acquires no better rights, by virtue of the Ontario Registry Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 124, than the mortgagor himself had.

Thomson v. Stikeman, 14 D.L.R. 97, 29 O.L.R. 146.

An agreement by the purchaser of land to assume, "on the completion of" the deferred payments with interest thereon to the vendor, the payment of a mortgage to a third party for a stated amount (which, with the other payments, made up the total purchase price), and to take into consideration "at the time of assuming mortgage" yearly payments made by the vendor thereon, does not impose any liability on the purchaser, in the absence of anything in the agreement of sale to the contrary, for interest accruing on the assumed mortgage prior to the time fixed for completion of the deferred payments to the vendor or the time of their actual payment in the event of repayment.

Miner v. Hinch, 15 D.L.R. 1, 26 W.L.R. 293, 23 Man. L.R. 802, 5 W.W.R. 797.

IMPLIED COVENANT.

Section 63 of the Land Titles Act, c. 41 (Sask.), which implies a covenant to pay the mortgage debt by a purchaser of the mortgaged premises has no application to the purchase of only an interest in the mortgaged premises. [Short v. Graham, 7 W.L.R. 787, followed.]

Smith v. Wright, 8 O.W.N. 609.

Under ss. 114, 126 of the Real Property Act, R.S.M. 1902, c. 148, as they stood prior to the amendments made by 1 Geo. V. c. 49, a mortgagee, even after foreclosure under the Act, may, if he still retains the property, sue the mortgagor on his covenant for payment; and, therefore, in such a case, a mortgagor who has transferred the property may call upon his purchaser to pay the mortgage money under the implied covenant to indemnify him set forth in s. 89 of the Act. [Williams v. Box, 44 Can. S.C.R. 1; Platt v. Ashbridge, 12 Gr. at p. 106; Campbell v. Holyland, 7 Ch. D. 166, and Blunt v. Marsh, 1 Terr. L.R. 126, followed.] Payment by the mortgagor in such a case is not a condition precedent to his right of action on the purchaser's obligation to indemnify. Protection may be afforded to the purchaser by payment into court for the proper application of the money. [Cullin v. Rinn, 5 Man. L.R. 8; Mewburn v. Macklean, 19 A.R. (Ont.) 729, followed.]

(§ III—47)—GRANTEE'S LIABILITY TO GRANTOR.

Where land is conveyed subject to a mortgage, and the grantee assumes and covenants to pay and to indemnify the grantor against the mortgage, the grantor, if sued upon his covenant in the mortgage, is entitled, in third party proceedings against the grantee, to immediate judgment and execution for the amount of the judgment obtained against him, by the mortgagee, with costs, but the grantee, if he has disposed of the equity of redemption, is entitled to notice of proceedings for foreclosure.

McMurtry v. Leushner, 3 D.L.R. 549, 3 O.W.N. 1176, 21 O.W.R. 996.

IMPLIED COVENANT OF INDEMNITY.

An assignee of an equity of redemption subject to a mortgage, by virtue of s. 89 of the Real Property Act, R.S.M. 1902, c. 148, impliedly covenants with his assignor, unless otherwise expressed, to pay the principal and interest of the mortgage, and to indemnify the assignor from liability thereon.

Ross v. Schmitz, 14 D.L.R. 648, 25 W.L.R. 828, 6 S.L.R. 131, 5 W.W.R. 399.

INDEMNITY BY PURCHASER—RELATIONSHIP—PAROL EVIDENCE.

The rule that the purchaser of an equity of redemption is bound to indemnify the vendor against his liability for the mortgage debt does not apply when the purchaser is merely a nominee or agent; and parol evidence is admissible to prove this relationship.

Campbell v. Douglas, 32 D.L.R. 734, 54 Can. S.C.R. 28, affirming 25 D.L.R. 436, 34 O.L.R. 580.

The relationship subsisting between mortgagee, mortgagor and assignee of the equity of redemption who has covenanted to pay the mortgage debt, is not that of creditor, surety and principal debtor.

Brown v. Pike, 23 R.C.R. 246.

(§ III—48)—STATUTORY LIABILITY OF TRANSFEREE — IMPLIED COVENANT — PLEDGING.

A statement of claim in an action to enforce the statutory implied covenant of a transferee to pay the mortgage debt, alleging that the defendant is the present registered owner and that he became such since the execution of the mortgage, and praying for judgment in accordance with the implied covenant under the Land Titles Act (R.S.S. 1909, c. 41), sufficiently sets out the defendant as "transferee" under s. 63 of the Act and fully warns him of the nature of the relief claimed against him. [Colonial Invest. & Loan Co. v. Foisie, 4 S.L.R. 392, distinguished.]

IMPLIED COVENANT OF TRANSFEREE.

Under s. 52 of the Land Titles Act (Alta.), in every transfer of land subject to mortgage, a binding covenant is implied, both with transferor and mortgagee, that the transferee will pay the mortgage, and the mortgagee may sue the transferee directly upon this covenant in default of payment.

Great West Lumber Co. v. Murrin, 32 D.L.R. 485, 11 A.L.R. 173, [1917] 1 W.W.R. 945.

The implied covenant under s. 63 of the Land Titles Act (Sask.), of a transferee of land subject to a mortgage, so long as he remains the registered owner, to answer for the mortgage debts, is only applicable where the whole of the mortgaged estate, not merely a portion of it, has been transferred. [Montreal Trust Co. v. Bogs, 25 D.L.R. 432, followed.]

Dominion of Canada Investment & Deventure Co. v. Carstens, 36 D.L.R. 25, 19 S.L.R. 272, [1917] 3 W.W.R. 133.

A judge has power under s. 52 of the Land Titles Act (Alta.), as amended in 1916, to direct the registration of a transfer of land subject to a mortgage, in order to subject the transferee to the statutory implied covenant to pay the mortgage debt, unless the transferee within a reasonable time takes proper steps to effectively assert his claim against the registration.

Re Land Titles Act: Re Ronald and Summers, 37 D.L.R. 374, 13 A.L.R. 209, [1917] 3 W.W.R. 626.

GRANTEE'S LIABILITY TO MORTGAGOR.

Where a person purchases part only of the lands comprised in a mortgage made by his vendor and takes a covenant against incumbrances, for further assurance and for quiet possession, he is entitled as against the mortgagor and as against a subsequent purchaser of the remainder of the mortgaged lands with notice of rights, to be indemnified against the amount due on the mortgage.

Home Building & Savings Ass'n v. Pringle, 7 D.L.R. 20, 4 O.W.N. 128, 23 O.W.R. 137.

GRANTEE'S LIABILITY TO MORTGAGEE.

Where a mortgagor sells the mortgaged premises and the purchaser assumes the mortgage, or retains in his possession an amount of purchase money equivalent thereto, the purchaser is compelled by s. 63 of the Land Titles Act, c. 41 (Sask.), to appropriate that money to the mortgage, just as formerly he was compelled in equity to hand it over to the mortgagor if the mortgage was compelled to pay the mortgage.

Montreal Trust Co. v. Boggs, 25 D.L.R. 432, 31 W.L.R. 914, 9 W.W.R. 1200.

TRUSTEE TRANSFEREE—IMPLIED COVENANT TO PAY DEBT.

A trustee transferee of land subject to a mortgage cannot be held to covenant impliedly with the mortgagee that he will pay the principal money and interest secured by the mortgage, notwithstanding s. 52 of the Land Titles Act (Alta.).

Evans v. Ashcroft, 8 W.W.R. 899.

IMPLIED COVENANT TO PAY—PLEADING.

Where an action is brought against a transferee of registered land subject to a mortgage, and personal judgment is sought against him under s. 52 of the Land Titles Act (Alta.), there should be an express claim setting forth that such transferee is so liable, as the defendant sought to be charged ought to be distinctly informed as to how and by what authority he is alleged to be held personally liable. THE LAND TITLES ACT, S. 52—TRANSFEREE OF MORTGAGED LAND—IMPLIED COVENANT WITH MORTGAGEE—LIABILITY CONTINUING AFTER TRANSFER OF OWNERSHIP.

The liability of a transferee of mortgaged land under the covenant implied with the mortgagee under s. 52 of the Land Titles Act (Alta.) persists after he has parted with the ownership of the land.

HYPOTHEC—SUBSTITUTION.

The registration of the transfer of a debt has not the effect of creating the hypothec different from that created by the deeds of obligation, but simply substitutes new creditors for the former ones; therefore, if injured in any way, the debtor is not entitled to attack the deed of transfer but should attack the deeds of original obligation.

Horswell v. Campbell, 19 O.W.R. 952.

RIGHTS OF ASSIGNEE—COVENANT—DEFENCES.

The usual covenant in a mortgage for payment of the mortgage-debt is enforceable by an assignee of the mortgage, as an independent obligation, notwithstanding any defences arising from the transaction in which the mortgage was given; the assignment of a covenant is not an assignment of a chose in action contemplated by the Conveyancing and Law of Property Act (R.S.O. 1914, c. 109, s. 49); nor does an assignment pendente lite put an end to the action, but merely prevents proceeding with it without an order to proceed.

FRAUD—BONA FIDE ASSIGNEE—STATE OF ACCOUNT.

The fact that a mortgagee is fraudulently named in a mortgage executed in blank does not affect the right of a bona fide assignee to treat the person named as the valid holder of the charge, although in fact the latter had paid nothing to the mortgagor; it is only in so far as payments have been made that an assignee is affected by "the state of the account." The state of accounts can only affect the assignee of a charge or mortgage under the Land Titles Act, R.S.O., 1914, c. 126, in so far as payments have been made subsequent to the date of the mortgage; if without actual notice when the assignment is made the assignee is not affected by the fact that the amount for which the mortgage was given has in fact never been paid.

(§ V—63)—FRAUDULENT DISCHARGE—FRAUD BROUGHT HOME TO MORTGAGOR'S AGENT—ONUS ON BENEFITED PARTY.

A person cannot avail himself of what has been obtained by the fraud of another, unless he himself not only is innocent of the fraud but has given some valuable consideration, and where a mortgagee executes a release of his mortgage at the request of the mortgagor and his agent and such request is tainted with fraud which is brought home personally to the mortgagor's agent only, the onus is on the mortgagor not only to establish his own innocence of fraud in the transaction but to prove that he has given valuable consideration to the mortgagee for the release. On setting aside a discharge of mortgage which had been obtained by the fraud of another by which the defendant benefited although not chargeable with any direct knowledge of it, allowance must be made to him for disbursements made on the faith of the discharge being effective.

(§ V—64)—DISCHARGE BY ADMINISTRATOR—AS RECONVEYANCE—ESTOPPEL.

Where a widow holds two mortgages on certain property, the first mortgage as administratrix of her deceased husband's estate, the second mortgage in her own name, and she executes and registers a discharge which recites the second mortgage, but is signed by her "as administratrix," she and her assigns are estopped, as against innocent parties without notice claiming title under a foreclosure of subsequent mortgages, from denying that her personal mortgage had been paid and discharged; the discharge operates by law as a reconveyance.

MORTGAGEE PRISONER OF WAR—UNABLE TO SIGN DISCHARGE—PAYMENT INTO COURT.

The Trustee Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 121, does not enable the court to make an order vesting land in Ontario in the mortgagor when he is willing to pay off the mortgage and to pay the money into court, where the mortgagee's signature to a discharge cannot be obtained because of his internment abroad as a prisoner of war; but if the mortgagor has made a contract of sale of the lands free from incumbrance he may apply under the Conveyancing and Law of Property Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 109, s. 21, for an order to pay into court sufficient money to meet the incumbrance and interest, including an allowance for the costs of a future motion for payment out, and may thereupon obtain the court's order declaring the land to be free from the incumbrance. (§ V—66)—MERGER—INTENTION—CONVEYANCE OF EQUITY TO MORTGAGEE AFTER LATER'S ASSIGNMENT OF MORTGAGE.

The conveyance of encumbered land by a mortgagor to the original mortgagee by an instrument referring to the mortgage as being held by the bank to whom the mortgagee had transferred the same as security, will not effect a merger of the title sufficient to work a satisfaction of the encumbrance on the mortgagee subsequently obtaining a re-transfer to himself of such mortgage, where it is apparent that the intention of the parties to the transaction was that it should be kept alive.

(§ V—69)—DISCHARGE BY ASSIGNEE—RIGHT TO USE ASSIGNOR'S NAME—STIPULATION FOR REASSIGNMENT ON TERMS.

An assignment of mortgage which recites that it is given as collateral security for a loan to the assignor but which contains in its operative clause an assignment of the whole mortgage and the whole debt and not merely a part equivalent to the loan and interest, and which further provides for a re-assignment of the mortgage on payment of the loan, is sufficient under the Registry Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 124, s. 62, to enable the assignee to receive the whole of the mortgage money and to give a statutory discharge of the mortgage without the assignor joining or giving a further release of his interest, if the assignment expressly grants power and authority to use the name of the assignor for the enforcement of the mortgage.

(§ VI A—70)—ENFORCEMENT—MORTGAGE UNDER TORRENS SYSTEM.

The court will not direct the registration of a final order of foreclosure made in a court proceeding as under the old registry system against lands in Manitoba subject to the Torrens system of title registration, upon a mortgage made under s. 99 of the Real Property Act, R.S.M. 1902, c. 148; the compulsory transfer of the mortgagor's title can be accomplished only by a proceeding in the land titles office under ss. 113, 114 of the Act.

FORECLOSURE—COVENANT—EXTINGUISHMENT OF DEBT—SUBSEQUENT MORTGAGE—SAME MORTGAGEE—LIABILITY UNDER.

A mortgagee who has foreclosed and subsequently sold the property cannot sue on the covenant for payment, but the wiping out of the indebtedness on the first mortgage does not deprive him of his right as mortgagee of a later mortgage to proceed on the covenant in such mortgage.

LAND TITLES ACT, ALTA.—FORECLOSURE—EXTINGUISHMENT OF DEBT—EXPRESS APPLICATION—EXECUTION FOR BALANCE—INTENTION.

An amendment to the Alberta Land Titles Act in 1919 provides that an order for foreclosure whether made by a court or judge or by the registrar shall operate as a full satisfaction of the debt secured by the mortgage. An order made upon an express application to be permitted to purchase for a certain agreed amount and for a vesting order and for leave to issue execution for the balance due, and where this is clearly intended to be granted by the order made, is not within this amendment. [Mutual Life Ass'ce Co. v. Douglas, 44 D.L.R. 115, reversing 39 D.L.R. 601, distinguished.]

Security Trust Co. v. Sayre, 49 D.L.R. 187, 15 A.L.R. 17, [1919] 3 W.W.R. 634, reversing [1919] 2 W.W.R. 863.

COVENANT—EXTINGUISHMENT OF DEBT—LAND TITLES ACT.

An order under s. 62 (a) of the Land Titles Act (Alta.), for foreclosure of a mortgagor's interest in mortgaged land, does not extinguish the mortgage debt, and the mortgagee may still proceed against the mortgagor upon the covenant or upon collateral security.

HYPOTHEQUE—DEFAULT CLAUSE—DIVISIBILITY.

A provision in a mortgage (hypothèque), that upon the borrower's failure to make payment the property shall immediately vest in the lender, and all sums paid be forfeited as liquidated damages, does not vest the property in the lender, in discharge of the mortgage debt, in bar of the lender's right to sue for same, since under art. 1133 C.C. (Que.) he may elect between recourse under the penal clause or under the primary obligation; though the loan has been made by two persons jointly it is a divisible obligation, and may be enforced by each separately.

Halero v. Gray, 33 D. L.R. 140, 50 Que. S.C. 350.

FORECLOSURE—PERSONAL JUDGMENT—CONCURRENT REMEDIES.

A final order of foreclosure of a mortgage under the Land Titles Act (B.C.), vesting the mortgaged property in the mortgagee, does not prevent the latter from proceeding to realize the mortgage debt under his personal judgment, given by the order nisi, so long as he remains in a position to reconvey the mortgaged property; if he proceeds on his judgment, the foreclosure will be reopened to enable the mortgagor to redeem.

FORECLOSURE—SPECIAL PROVISIO AFFECTING REMEDY—ACCELERATION CLAUSE.

A purchase-money mortgage containing a proviso that the mortgagor may retain a certain sum out of the last instalment until he receives a conveyance of the interest of an infant who was a party to the conveyance with the vendor-mortgagee, does not disentitle the mortgagee to his remedy of foreclosure upon default, but the acceleration clause will not override the proviso as to the deferred sum, and recovery will be limited exclusive of that amount.

PROCEDURE—SPECIAL STATUTE—ACTIONS BEFORE MASTER.

The special procedure provided by s. 3, c. 6, of the statutes of 1914 (Alta.), that all actions for the enforcement of mortgages or agreements for the sale of land shall be brought before a Master in Chambers in the Supreme Court, does not debar plaintiffs from proceeding under the ordinary procedure.

DISTRESS—RIGHTS OF ASSIGNS.

Section 5 of the Distress Act, R.S.S. c. 51, which entitles a mortgagee to distrain upon "the goods and chattels of the mortgagor or his assigns," is confined to an assignee of the land whose assignment is subsequent to the mortgage, but does not give a mortgagee the right to distrain on the goods of someone whose interest was prior to the mortgage. ATTORNMENT CLAUSE—POWER OF DISTRAIN.

A tenancy created by an attornment clause to secure mortgage interest is one created by estoppel, and binds those privy to the estoppel, but not third parties. The fact that the mortgagee has neither the legal estate in the lands, nor any reversion, does not disentitle him from distraining. [Morton v. Woods, L.R. 4 Q.B. 293; Ex parte Punnett, 16 Ch. In an action upon a mortgage where it is found that the defendant did not execute the mortgage but that moneys of the plaintiff were paid for, and to the defendant through an agent whom he had authorized to obtain a loan for him, the action should not be dismissed before he has paid back the money received and paid out for his benefit [Lodge v. National Union Invest. Co., [1907] 1 Ch. 300, 306], and the plaintiff should be allowed to amend his claim so as to make it one for the repayment of money lent, and the plaintiff should be allowed the rate of interest which the defendant had notice was claimed and which he did not object to [Last West Lumber Co. v. Haddad, 25 D.L.R. 529, 8 S.L.R. 407, followed]. The mortgage should not be cancelled nor the registration removed until such payment back by the defendant, where the court is satisfied the defendant intended to mortgage the land in question.

Davis v. Smith, 8 D.L.R. 486.

B. ON DEFAULT OF INTEREST, INSTALMENT, TAXES, ETC.

(§ VI B—75)—DEFAULT OF INTEREST, ETC.

The relief against acceleration clauses in mortgages provided for by sub-sec. 10 added to s. 93 of the Land Titles Act (Sask.), by 1 Geo. V. c. 12, s. 7, applies to the general law relating to mortgages and not to a particular kind of foreclosure, and as soon as enacted it became in effect a part of every mortgage in the same way as if it had been inserted in the mortgage by the parties. The words "together with costs to be taxed by the registrar" in subs. 10, which gives relief against a mortgage acceleration clause in proceedings before the registrar of land titles, have not the effect of limiting the right of relief to a proceeding before the registrar, but the remedy may be had in court proceedings, e.g., a foreclosure action.

Wasson v. Harker, 8 D.L.R. 88, 5 S.L.R. 364, 22 W.L.R. 609, 3 W.W.R. 218, reversing in part 7 D.L.R. 526, 22 W.L.R. 320, 3 W.W.R. 25.

A sale of land under a mortgage for non-payment of monthly instalments of principal was ordered in a foreclosure action in Saskatchewan in terms of an acceleration clause in the mortgage although the defendant offers to pay the sum which is in arrear without reference to the acceleration clause.

APPLICATION OF PAYMENTS — INTEREST — MORATORIUM.

Where a mortgagor makes a payment on the mortgage and does not direct whether the funds are to be appropriated in payment of the principal or interest, a duty arises on the part of the mortgagee to apply it towards the payment of the interest, otherwise the interest would be added to capital, and so become itself liable to interest, or the interest would be in default for more than 1 year and the mortgage thereby become liable to foreclosure under the Moratorium Act. RIGHT TO DISTRESS—GOODS OF OTHER PERSONS.

Where a land mortgage contains an attornment clause in respect of the interest, and in addition purports to give the mortgagee the right to distrain upon any goods upon the mortgaged premises for arrears of principal and to recover same by way of rent reserved, a mere personal license is created by the latter power as between the mortgagor and the mortgagee, which does not justify the mortgagee distraining goods of persons other than the mortgagor which may be upon the premises. [Edmonds v. Hamilton Provident, 18 A.R. (Ont.) 347; Miller v. Impérial Land Co., 11 Man. L.R. 247; Trust & Loan Co. v. Lawrason, 10 Can. S.C.R. 679, applied.]

AS TO AMOUNT—DIVISIBILITY.

A creditor has the right to maintain an action for the amount of the loan, even where it has been stipulated in the deed that, on default of the borrower paying the loan with interest, on the date fixed, the immovable property hypothecated should become the absolute property of the lender, without the necessity of placing the borrower in default. A clause in a hypothecary obligation that "the loan is indivisible and may be claimed by the lenders in whole from each of the heirs of the borrower, conformably to art. 1133, C.C. (Que.," does not mean that the lenders are bound to make their claim against the borrowers together and in one and the same action. It signifies merely that, if the debtor should die before payment of his debt, the plaintiff or the other lender might claim the whole amount from each of the heirs instead of dividing the claim and proceeding against each one of them for his proportionate share.

(§ VI B—76)—SPECIAL COVENANTS.

The "special covenants" which may be introduced into a statutory mortgage under the Torrens or "New System" title registration (Real Property Act, E.S.M. 1902, c 148), must not be such as are repugnant to the imperative provisions of the statute itself. While at common law the rights and powers of a mortgagee of land are incident to the legal or equitable estate vested in him as mortgagee, the statutory mortgage under the Torrens or "New System" registry law in Manitoba, R.S.M. 1902, c 148, does not vest any estate in the lands in the mortgagee, but takes effect as a security only, with statutory powers for enforcement; the mortgagee's rights and powers are consequently dependent directly upon the statutory provisions, and any additional stipulations in a mortgage made under that statute, which purport to authorize the mortgagee or his assigns to sell the lands, are not effective to pass the registered title merely on a transfer by the mortgagee in purported exercise of the conventional power of sale without the judgment of a court or the compliance with the statutory proceedings for enforcing the security.

FORECLOSURE—ADDING EXECUTION CREDITORS AND LIENHOLDERS—ALBERTA RULES 46, 47—PURPOSE OF—REDEMPTION.

The purpose of rr. 46, 47 (Alta.) is to obviate the adding in the first instance of caveators, lienholders, execution creditors and subsequent mortgagees, in an action for foreclosure while the rights of the mortgagor and first mortgagee are being determined, and also until it is determined whether there will be a surplus available for subsequent encumbrances. Service of the order nisi gives an opportunity to subsequent encumbrancers to come in and redeem and in the case of a lienholder to establish his rights under the lien.

Plaintiffs brought action for foreclosure of a mortgage, joining the mortgagor and the registered owner as parties defendant, and claimed judgment on the covenant against the mortgagor and the registered owner. It was not expressly alleged that the present registered owner was a transferee through the mortgagor. On motion for judgment:—Held, where a proceeding is taken against a transferee of land subject to a mortgage, and it is sought to hold him personally liable under the Land Titles Act (Sask.) respecting implied covenants, there should be an express allegation setting forth that he is so liable, and, there being no such allegation in this case, the plaintiff was not entitled to personal judgment against the registered owner.

ABANDONMENT OF IMMOVABLE—MISTAKE—SURETY.

When appeals are successively taken to the Court of King's Bench and the Privy Council from a judgment of the Superior Court in an action en déclaration d'hypothèque ordering the defendant to surrender the immovables hypothecated within 15 days from date of service (which was made) and both appeals affirmed the original judgment, the said delay for surrender, suspended thereby, only runs from the date on which the final judgment of the Privy Council is registered as provided by art. 1252 C.C.P. The declaration of the defendant that he has surrendered all the immovables, followed by an enumeration in which one of them is omitted by an error in copying, is a valid surrender and does not give the plaintiff a right to proceed as if the one omitted had not been surrendered. The undertaking by the surety on appeal from the judgment in an action en déclaration d'hypothèque that he will pay the amount adjudged in capital, interest, costs and damages if the appellant fails to do so, does not make him liable for a loss resulting from the fact that the immovables having depreciated in value pending the appeals, and the taxes and interest on prior hypothecary claims accumulated, the proceeds of the judicial sale were insufficient to satisfy the judgment.

In an action to enforce a mortgage by foreclosure, K., F., and G. were made defendants as the owners of the equity of redemption, and a company, an execution creditor of the defendant K., was added as a defendant in the Master's office, where its claim was allowed; and, as a subsequent incumbrancer, it redeemed the plaintiff's mortgage. K. was the mortgagor, and F. and G. were owners of undivided interests in the equity of redemption by transfer from K., subsequent to the placing of the company's execution in the sheriff's hands:—Held, that the company, after its claim had been allowed, became an incumbrancer, with all the rights incident to that status. [Federal Life Ass'ce Co. v. Stinson, 13 O. L.R. 127, affirmed in Scott v. Swanson, 39 Can. S.C.R. 229, followed.] (2) When the company redeemed the plaintiff, it became, as against K., entitled to a judgment of foreclosure, unless redeemed by payment of the full amount due on both its securities. [Gilmour v. Cameron, 6 Gr. 290, followed.] (3) That the company had no right to consolidate or marshal its securities as against F. and G., its right to consolidate not having attached until it had become an incumbrancer, which was not until after the severance of the equity of redemption. (4)

That the company was entitled to have the respective interests of K., F., and G. ascertained, and the moneys due under the first mortgage apportioned, so that each of them would be entitled to redeem his undivided interest on payment of the proper amount. [Flint v. Howard, [1893] 2 Ch. 54, applied.] (5) That redemption by F. of the plaintiff's mortgage would not put an end to this action and so force the company to take some other proceeding to enforce its rights—multiplicity of legal proceedings must be avoided: Judicature Act, s. 16 (h). (6) That leave to apply should be reserved, so that, when the proceedings for foreclosure or redemption should be concluded, partition or sale might be had in the same action.

Notwithstanding the fact that a subsequent mortgagee fails to file a defence to an action to foreclose a prior mortgage, he may, under Sask. r. 232, on the plaintiff's motion for judgment, raise the objection that the plaintiff's mortgage, which, by reason of a mistake in the description of a part of the land conveyed, was not registrable under Land Titles Act, R.S.S. 1909, c. 41, could not be foreclosed until after the rectification of such mistake by the court, and the registration of the corrected mortgage.

The application was opposed by the plaintiff, and was dismissed; the court holding (1) that it was unnecessary, as a right of appeal existed even without the aid of the Act of 1913, 3 & 4 Geo. V. c. 51, s. 1, repealing para. (e) of s. 2 of the Supreme Court Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 139, and substituting a new para. MORTGAGORS AND PURCHASERS RELIEF ACT—DERIVATIVE MORTGAGE—STAY OF PROCEEDINGS.

The Mortgagors and Purchasers Relief Act, 1915, 5 Geo. V. c. 22 (Ont.) is a statute calling for a liberal interpretation; and the case of a derivative mortgage falls within its provisions without doing any violence to them. Section 2 (1) (a) of the Act and s. 2 (d) of the Mortgages Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 112, considered. In this case, proceedings upon a derivative mortgage were stayed, at the instance of the mortgagees, the makers of the derivative mortgage. The intention of the Act is to permit delay; and delay should be granted so long as the ultimate recovery of the money is not jeopardised, and reasonable compensation by way of interest is paid.

FORECLOSURE ORDER—VARIATION.

The C. Co. sold certain land under mortgage, under the Land Titles Act. After paying its own claim and that of the second mortgage, a balance remained to be divided among sundry execution creditors. The I. L. Co. also claimed under an unregistered instrument, in respect of which a caveat had been filed. An action had been taken to establish this claim, but it was not yet completed. The mortgagee alleging doubt as to the status of the I.L. Co. and lack of knowledge of the amount due the execution creditors, paid the money into court, under the Trustee Act, R.S.S. c. 46, s. 28 on an application by an execution creditor for payment out, it was held that the lack of knowledge of the amount due to the execution creditors would not justify the mortgagee in paying the money into court, and thus evading the responsibility cast upon him of distributing the money, unless some difficulty should arise, but the position of the I.L. Co.'s claim was sufficient to justify the mortgagee in taking advantage of the Trustee Act, and paying the surplus into court. Having paid the money into court, the mortgagee's responsibility did not end there, but he should then have proceeded to apply for directions. But the mortgagee not having applied for such directions, it was open to any person claiming the money to apply for the distribution thereof. While the I. L. Co. was not in a position to secure payment out of the amount claimed, yet, as it had brought an action for the purpose of establishing its claim, a stay should be directed until the determination of that action.

RELIEF AGAINST FORFEITURE — STATUTORY COVENANT FOR ACCELERATION UPON DEFAULTS—MODIFICATION.

Where a mortgage was made pursuant to the Short Forms of Mortgages Act (Ont.), but contained additional covenants and provisions, it was held, that a provision for acceleration of the time for payment of the principal upon default as to any of the covenants or provisions was an addition to or qualification of the statutory covenant for acceleration upon default of payment of interest and for relief upon payment of arrears of interest, and the same addition or qualification should be read into the power to relieve, so that where default was made in respect of the covenant for payment of taxes, the mortgagors should, upon payment of taxes, be relieved from immediate payment of the principal. And so as to a provision requiring the payment as an indemnity of three months' interest in advance, in addition to the payment of the arrears of interest: The mortgagors, being relieved from the consequences of default, upon payment of interest up to date, should not be required to pay a sum, in the nature of a penalty, for interest in addition to the future interest. The court has power to relieve against oppressive and unfair forfeiture.

SHORT FORMS ACT—POWER OF SALE—ASSIGNMENT BY MORTGAGEE—POWER EXERCISED BY ASSIGNEE—INADEQUACY IN PRICE — FRAUD — COLLUSION — PRESUMPTIONS.

A mortgage made in pursuance of the Short Forms of Mortgages Act (Ont.) contained the following power of sale: "Provided that the said mortgagee on default of payment for two months may on one month's notice enter on and lease or sell the said lands. Provided that in case of default of payment as in foregoing proviso mentioned for three months, the foregoing powers of entry, leasing and sale of any of them, may be exercised without any notice having been given as therein provided." In an action by an executor of the deceased mortgagor, to set aside a sale of the mortgaged land by the assignee of the mortgagee, and also to set aside a mortgage given by the purchaser, the court held that the assignee of the mortgagee could validly exercise the power of sale upon three months' default, without notice, also on the evidence that the sale was made in good faith and without collusion and that the inadequacy in price was not so great as to lead to the presumption of fraud or negligence or unfaithfulness on the part of the assignee in the discharge of her duty in the exercise of the power of sale.

POWER OF SALE—NOTICE—AUCTION SALE—VALUE OF LAND—EXPERT TESTIMONY.

In an action by the assignee of the equity of redemption to set aside a sale of vacant land under the power of sale contained in the first mortgage, by the first mortgagee to the second mortgagee, it was held:—(1) That the right to sell, on three months' default, without notice, as stipulated for in the mortgage, was not lost by notice being given to some of those entitled to notice under an earlier provision in the mortgage by which the power of sale might be exercised after default for two months on 10 days' notice. (2) That, when the land, which consisted of two separate parcels, was offered for sale at public auction, each parcel, should have been advertised and offered separately, instead of both together; but, as the land was not sold at the time that it was so offered, but later the sale actually made must be dealt with, without regarding the attempted sale as any real test of the selling value of the property. (3) That, upon the evidence, the sale to the second mortgagee, by private contract, after the land had been offered at public auction, was a real sale, and free from any taint or suspicion of wrongdoing. (4) That, considering all the circumstances, the sale at $350 a foot was not a sale at an undervalue, though there was expert evidence that the land was worth $400 a foot. MORTGAGE ACTION—ORDER PROVIDING FOR SALE—APPLICATION FOR CONFIRMATION OF SALE—DEFECTIVE PROCEEDINGS IN SALE.

On application for confirmation of a sale of land made by virtue of an order nisi, default in payment by defendant must be proved. It is a fatal defect in mortgage sale proceedings for the notice of sale in the newspaper to state a different date for the sale than the notice in the posters, although the sale is actually held on the date advertised in the posters and being the later date. Where the court order requires notices of sale to be posted in "conspicuous" places in the city, the posting of such notices in barristers' offices is not sufficient, and such insufficiency forms a fatal objection to confirmation of the sale. Where the court order provides that property of the defendant mortgagor shall be sold "subject to taxes (if any)," and advertisement is not sufficient which states that the property will be sold "free from all encumbrances save taxes, municipal claims and subject to any possible seed grain liens, and also subject to any statutory liens or encumbrances which may appear on the title." The form of order for sale provided for in the rules of court, and which requires insertion of the claims that the property is sold subject to, requires the draftsman to use reasonable diligence in ascertaining as accurately as possible the nature and amount of the claims which the property is sold subject to, and a recital of the same. The primal object of advertising is not the mortgagee's protection; it is that the property may be fairly placed in the market.

Default being made in principal and interest secured under a mortgage the property was offered for sale and bid in and conveyed to a third party who ten days later reconveyed it to the mortgagee. The mortgagee subsequently sold the property. In an action by the mortgagor against the mortgagee and subsequently purchaser for a reconveyance of the property a declaration that the various conveyances are inoperative and for an accounting of the rents and profits; Held, that the several conveyances were valid and effectual and that the mortgagor was entitled to an accounting of the proceeds of the first sale but not of the subsequent one.

When land is sold by the sheriff, and the highest bidder does not pay the purchase price, and the court, at the request of the owners and the mortgagees orders a resale (falle enchère), and names a sequestrator to administer the property, the crops and revenue collected by the sequestrator during the course of litigation by the parties interested does not belong to the bidder, since not having paid the purchase price he has not become the owner, they are the property of the creditors. In such case the court will order the moneys to be deposited in court to be distributed by the prothonotary under a collocation order. A voluntary sale is completed merely by the consent of the parties, although there has been no delivery and the price has not been paid, while in a forced sale, by order of the court, it is not complete till the price is paid.

Bros., execution creditors of the mortgagor, were not made parties to the proceedings. Some considerable time after they became aware of the foreclosure they applied to and obtained from the Master in Chambers an order setting aside the foreclosure and fixing a new date for redemption. The material used before the Master contained sufficient to indicate that the plaintiffs had since the foreclosure made a sale of the land to a third party under agreement. On appeal to the Court of Appeal. Held, that the order should be set aside and the matter referred back to the Master for the purpose of having the purchaser added as a party to the application to open up the foreclosure.

PRACTICE—SALE UNDER POWER—SURPLUS—APPLICATION AS TO DISPOSITION THEREOF, BY MORTGAGEE—COSTS.

A mortgagee after sale of the mortgaged lands had a surplus, and claiming to be in doubt as to the persons entitled to such surplus applied for and obtained a summons "for directions and advice as to the disposition of the moneys now in the hands of the said company, being the surplus money from the sale of certain lands under a mortgage made by Cudmore to the said company." A month later the mortgagee paid into court the amount in its hands less a certain sum which it claimed to be entitled to retain for costs incurred by it in previous proceedings. On the return of the summons it appeared from the statements of counsel for the mortgagee that the mortgagee had no claim upon any of the moneys and that the questions to be determined were those arising between various execution creditors of the mortgagor. Counsel for the mortgagee also took the position that the court had no jurisdiction on the motion to adjudicate upon the mortgagee's right to retain the amount claimed by it for costs and contended that the court was confined in authority to giving directions as to the disposition of the surplus moneys admitted by the mortgagee and paid into court. Held, that in view of the fact that the question to be determined was merely as to the rights of the several execution creditors to participate in the fund, the mortgagee could relieve itself from responsibility by paying the surplus to the sheriff, and in view of the further fact that the applicant repudiated the court's jurisdiction to give directions and advice as to disposition of all the moneys in its hands at the time the summons was issued, the application should be dismissed with costs and the moneys directed to be repaid out of court to the applicant.

Re Cudmore, 12 S.L.R. 273, [1919] 2 W.W.R. 400.

SURPLUS.

Where subsequently to the giving of a mortgage on land executions are lodged against the mortgagor, and after the giving of a second mortgage other executions are lodged and the property is sold in an action on the first mortgage, leaving a surplus after payment of the claim of the first mortgagee sufficient to pay the second mortgagee and the execution preceding it, and the second mortgagee is ordered to be paid, the intervening execution creditors are entitled to be paid in full and not merely pari passu with the subsequent execution creditors. [Principles involved in Roach v. McLachlan, 19 A.R. (Ont.) 486; Breithaupt v. Marr, 20 A.R. (Ont.) 689; Re Massey, 2 Terr. L.R. 84; and Howard v. H.R. Trading Co., 4 Terr. L.R. 109, applied.] Where after a first mortgage executions are lodged against the mortgagor and then a second mortgage is given, the latter mortgage is a specific charge upon the interest of the execution debtor, subject to, and, in respect to executions lodged after it, with the same effect as if expressed to be subject to the rights of the prior execution creditors. A new and different interest from that to which the prior executions attached is thus carved out of the debtor's interest and specifically charged with the second mortgage, leaving again a new and different interest subject to be charged or bound, voluntarily or involuntarily, by the act or default of the debtor, and it is only this latter interest that is affected by the subsequent executions. Section 22 of the Creditors' Relief Act contemplates only one fund and in the present case there are two funds, one representing the amount necessary to satisfy the intervening creditors, the other the ultimate residue. In view of the fact that subsequently to the decisions above cited the Territorial Ordinance, c. 26, 1898, was replaced by the Creditors' Relief Act, 1910 (2nd sess.) Alta., amending and consolidating the law and there is no indication in the latter Act that the sections carried without change into it had been wrongfully interpreted, any inclination to differ from those decisions should be disregarded.

J. SUBSEQUENT SUIT.

(§ VI J—140) — OF AGREEMENT — MORTGAGEE SUBSEQUENTLY BECOMING OWNER OF FEE—ACTION FOR BALANCE OF DEBT—RIGHTS OF PARTIES.

The defendant mortgaged to the Quebec Bank his interest in an agreement of purchase of land. Instalments remaining to be paid were paid out of advances made by the bank, whose business and assets the plaintiffs subsequently acquired. Before such acquisition the mortgage had been followed by a conveyance of the fee direct to the bank from defendant's vendor. The defendant, subsequently, in consideration of an extension of time for payment of his indebtedness to the bank, released by quit claim deed to the bank his equity of redemption. The bank thereupon became absolute owner of the land. Held, that the absolute character of the title acquired by the mortgagee did not prevent the reopening of the foreclosure in case the mortgagee afterwards sued for any part of the debt, but in this case the foreclosure could not be reopened by reason of the mortgaged property having passed into the hands of a bona fide purchaser for value and the right to sue for the balance of the debt was extinguished.

A mortgagee in possession who has made expenditure in the way of permanent improvements not falling within such terms as "just allowances" or "necessary repairs" must allege and prove to the court the substantial facts upon which he alleges a claim therefor. A mortgagee must not proceed with permanent improvements in the face of a suit for redemption.

(§ VII A-146)—WITHHOLDING DISCHARGE—BREACH OF COVENANT TO PAY INSURANCE PREMIUMS—ASSIGNEE.

Where an owner of property obtains from an insurance company a loan upon mortgage thereon, and is required by the company to take out and keep paid up a policy of insurance upon his life, which he assigns to the company as collateral security for the due repayment of the loan, and the mortgage contains a covenant by the mortgagor to pay the premiums, with a clause that if they are not paid by the mortgagor they may be charged upon the land and added to the amount due under the mortgage, the company may rightly refuse to give a discharge of the mortgage until such premiums charged have been paid in addition to the mortgage amount. Such a transaction does not involve a clog upon the equity of redemption. A transferee or assignee by purchase of the lands can have no higher right than the mortgagor himself.

DIFFERENT ESTATES.

If two or more distinct mortgages be made of different estates between the same parties, or if a sum of money be advanced on one estate, and other estates be afterwards made a security for the sum already advanced, and also for further advances, although without any agreement that the first estate shall be charged with the further advances, nevertheless, neither the mortgagor nor any one claiming under him the equity of redemption of one of the estates, although without notice of the other mortgage or charge, shall be permitted to redeem one mortgage without redeeming both.

B. WHO MAY REDEEM.

(§ VII B-150)—ASSIGNEE.

A purchaser pendente lite of the mortgaged premises added as a party defendant in a foreclosure action has a locus standi to apply to redeem without first entering an appearance. An assignee of the equity of redemption purchasing after an order nisi for foreclosure has been made at the suit of the mortgagee, is bound by the order nisi, and, when added as a party defendant, he is limited by the period fixed for redemption by the order nisi. Wasson v. Harker, 8 D.L.R. 88, 22 W.L.R. 609, 5 S.L.R. 364, 3 W.W.R. 218, affirming in part 7 D.L.R. 526, 22 W.L.R. 320, 3 W.W.R. 25.

Plaintiff gave a second mortgage on certain land to defendant. Default being made, defendant instructed his solicitor to foreclose. On the day on which the summons was issued the mortgagor remitted the bulk of the amount due, leaving only a small balance due, together with the costs. Defendant's solicitors asked for payment of the amount, repeatedly, and finally obtained an order nisi for foreclosure. The plaintiff then arranged with a party who was indebted to him to pay off the claim, but this party neglected to do so, and foreclosure was made absolute. Defendant then sold the land to one A., apparently at a price less than the true value, but otherwise there was no collusion or fraud shown. In an action to reopen the foreclosure:—Held, that A. having acquired title from the registered purchaser for value was protected by s. 65 of the Land Titles Act and his title could not be questioned.

Where the mortgagee accepts a payment on account after the amount to be paid for redemption has been fixed in an order nisi for the sale or foreclosure of the mortgaged property, a new day must be fixed to redeem, or, if the amount of the claim as reduced can easily be calculated by the defendant mortgagor, he must at least have notice of the motion for the final order.

EXTENDING TIME FOR REDEMPTION—WHEN GRANTED.

The principle upon which the court should be guided in enlarging the time for the redemption of a mortgage is that the security is sufficient and that there is a probability that the mortgagor will be able to pay off the mortgage if the extension is granted.

In a mortgage action the plaintiff's claim was originally for foreclosure, and the judgment directed the ordinary proceedings for foreclosure. By an order made on March 4, 1919, the subsequent incumbrancers having paid $80 into court, it was directed that all due proceedings be had for redemption or sale instead of foreclosure. The referee made a report fixing August 27, 1919, as the day for redemption. The report was dated on a day in February, but was not signed until after the order of March 4, which order was mentioned in the report. Upon a motion to set aside the report:—Held, that the effect of misdating the report was to shorten the time for redemption and appeal: it is imperative that all judicial acts should bear true dates. (2) Under a judgment for sale, the practice is different from that under a judgment for foreclosure. In the case of a sale, an incumbrancer who desires to redeem may always do so, but he is not entitled to have a separate time fixed for him to redeem: one day 6 months off is to be given to the original defendants to redeem the plaintiff and all other incumbrancers who have proved claims. (3) The plaintiff's mortgage called for interest at 5 per cent; by an agreement between him and the mortgagor, made after the registration of the second and third mortgages, the mortgagor was to pay 5½ per cent; but prima facie this agreement gave the plaintiff no charge upon the land for the additional one-half per cent as against the subsequent mortgagees. (4) It is unnecessary to insert in the report any statement as to what will follow upon redemption or failure to redeem: r. 482, 487. (5) There is no stay of proceedings as the result of an appeal from a refusal to stay: r. 2, 505 (3), 507 (6).

(§ VII C—157) — REDEMPTION — TENDER AFTER MATURITY—NOTICE OR BONUS—LAND TITLES ACT (ALTA.).

As a mortgage of land in Alberta under the Land Titles Act (or Torrens System) constitutes merely a charge on the land and does not grant the mortgagor's estate subject to a right of redemption, a mortgagor in default after maturity of the principal money and before foreclosure may, in the absence of any stipulation therefor, redeem without giving 6 months' notice or 6 months' interest bonus in lieu thereof as it was the practice in England to require under mortgages whereby the legal estate had passed and in regard to which the defaulting mortgagor was permitted to redeem only by the application of equitable doctrines. Re Pambrun and Short, 16 D.L.R. 193, 7 A.L.R. 314, 27 W.L.R. 301, 6 W.W.R. 68.

(§ VII C—158)—FORECLOSURE — FINAL ORDER — REOPENING ACCOUNTS — PURCHASER.

A final order of foreclosure may be reopened for concealment of material circumstances from the court in the foreclosure proceedings, where the motion is made promptly, and this although the mortgagee had purported to make an agreement for sale of the lands after the final order to a person having notice of the foreclosure proceedings, where there is evidence of collusion between the mortgagee and the purchaser. A final order of foreclosure may be vacated and the mortgage account reopened where there had been concealment from the court on the plaintiff's part of material circumstances on the application for the order nisi and serious error to the prejudice of the mortgagor is shown in the plaintiff's account upon which the foreclosure is based, if there has been no laches on plaintiff's part in moving and he did not obtain information until after the making of the final order of the time fixed for redemption. Hill v. Handy, 17 D.L.R. 87, 50 C.L.J. 565, 27 W.L.R. 266, 6 W.W.R. 244.

EX PARTE ORDER—LEAVE TO ISSUE EXECUTION—EXTENDING TIME—DISCRETION—PRACTICE RULES.

A judgment for the payment of money by the defendant was pronounced in favour of the plaintiff on April 19, 1894, but was not entered until April 15, 1914; on that day an order was made by the Master in Chambers, on the ex parte judgment, and execution was issued accordingly. There was no doubt that the judgment was unsatisfied. The defendant moved to set aside the order, but not within the time allowed by r. 217. The judge who heard the motion extended the time under r. 176, and set aside the Master's order on the ground that it was improperly made ex parte:—Held, notwithstanding that the judgment was unsatisfied, and that the right to enforce it might be lost by the plaintiff's slip, that the judge's order was right and could not be reversed on appeal—r. 213 being explicit as to the necessity for notice of the application being given to the defendant, and the case not falling under r. 216.

Joss v. Fairgrieve, 32 O.L.R. 117.

IRREGULARITY.

A motion for an order of foreclosure in a mortgage action, in which one of the defendants has appeared, comes under the head of "contested business" not to be transacted during vacation; and where notice of such a motion was issued and served in vacation without leave, the motion was dismissed: r. 693. Leave to renew was, however, given. That the notice of motion was not addressed to any one, and was not signed by the solicitors, made it irregular merely, and the irregularities could be cured by amendment. [Goetz v. An order was made directing the payment of the amount claimed into Court, but that there be no order for payment out until notice of application therefor be served on the foreign claimants and that the motion for judgment be disposed of at the same time. The foreign claimants were duly served with notice but they did not appear on the motion and judgment was given for the plaintiff with an order for the payment out to him of the moneys in court. TION—REMEDIES UNDER CRIM. CODE.

In March, 1918, an information as laid against the defendant charging him with an offence against a Dominion order in council, made under the War Measures Act, 1914, 5

Geo. V. c. 2 (Can.) by having in his possession, or publishing, objectionable matter, to wit, a book intitled "The Parasite."

The defendant claimed a right of trial by jury, which was conceded by the Crown.

The defendant was committed for trial, and an indictment was found against him by the grand jury. In November, further proceedings upon the indictment were stayed, by direction of the Attorney-General, under

s. 962, Cr. Code—in effect by the entry of a nolle prosequi. In December, a new information was laid against the defendant, substantially to the same effect as the first information, and the defendant was brought before a magistrate. A preliminary objection was raised and a motion made by the defendant for an order prohibiting the magistrate from proceeding upon the new information:—Held, by Sutherland, J., in Chambers, dismissing the motion, that the stay directed upon the indictment was not a bar to the second information, the defendant not having been put in jeopardy upon the first. Upon appeal by the defendant from the order of Sutherland, J., it was held, by a Divisional Court of the Appellate Division, that the motion was properly dismissed, the jurisdiction of the magistrate not being attacked. The defendant had the right to appeal from the order dismissing the motion for prohibition; but the question considered upon the motion was not one of jurisdiction; it was a question for consideration in the criminal proceedings, and there only. After the decision of the Appellate Court, the Crown having elected to proceed with a summary trial before the magistrate, the defendant again moved for an order prohibiting the magistrate from proceeding upon the information, upon the grounds that he had no jurisdiction under the War Measures Act, or the orders in council respecting conscription, to try the defendant, and that the defendant was entitled to a trial by jury.—Held, by Masten, J., in Chambers, that a second motion for prohibition should not, in the circumstances, be entertained; and that the lack of jurisdiction did not appear with sufficient clearness to warrant the issue of an order of prohibition; and, in the exercise of a proper discretion, the motion should be refused. Held, by a Divisional court on appeal from the order of Masten, J., that, assuming that the court had power to prohibit the magistrate from trying the case summarily if it was not lawful for him to do so, that power ought not to be exercised, because it was lawful for the magistrate, and he was in law bound, so to try it. If the court had no power that ended the matter; if it had power, and a discretion, no sufficient reason was shewn why the case should not be left to take the ordinary course of a criminal case under the Cr. Code. If the magistrate was wrong in considering that the case could be summarily tried against the will of the defendant, ample provision was made in the Code for relief in several ways.

MOTION—NECESSITY—DILATORY EXCEPTION—QUE. C.P. 165, 62 V. c. 58—PRACTICE R. 47.

The petitions or motions which must be supported by an affidavit, according to the 47th Rule of Practice, are those constituting special demands, based on facts which do not appear in the record or in the entries in the minute book. In the present case the city of Montreal, being a party, is not bound to deposit the sum required by the rules of practice in order to be entitled to make the present motion, according to s. 552 of its charter.

Laliberte v. Montreal, 16 Que. P.R. 174.

EXTENSION OF TIME—SPECIFYING DATE.

Where a motion is made demanding the prolongation of the delay to contest the statement or bilan of an insolvent, alleging Can. Dig.—103.

also that the extension of the delay to prove the allegation will be necessary, the judge may, without adjudicating ultra petita, grant both demands, although in the conclusions of the motion, the first only is prayed for. It is not necessary, in such a motion, to specify the date at which it will commence to run, as in such a case, the additional delay must be calculated from the expiry of the first delay granted by law.

Krauss v. Michaud, 26 Que. K.B. 504. [Appeal to Supreme Court of Canada quashed, 52 D.L.R. —, 59 Can. S.C.R. 654.]

A motion to suspend the proceedings until judgment has been rendered in another case between the same parties will not be granted if a plea is not filed in the case and if the motion is unsupported by affidavit.

Rousseau v. Marcotte, 13 Que. P.R. 219.

II. Orders.

(§ II—5)—APPLICATION TO VACATE.

A caveat based on a prima facie valid document will not be vacated on a summary application to a judge in Chambers where the facts are involved and each party has denied by affidavit the principal allegations made on affidavit by the other party; the application might be entertained if the facts were undisputed and the issue rested on the interpretation or validity of the written document on which the caveat is founded.

(§ II—6)—N.B. RAILWAY ACT, C.S.N.B., c. 91, s. 17—PURCHASE MONEY—PAYMENT INTO COURT—SERVICE OF—SETTING ASIDE.

An order made under the Railway Act, C.S.N.B., c. 91, s. 17, for claimants on purchase money for a railway right-of-way paid into court by the railway will be set aside where the mortgagor who contracted for the sale had no authority to do so for the mortgages, nor was service of the order made on an assignee of the mortgages, as had been directed by the court when the order was made.

Re Reardon & St. John & Quebec R. Co.; Ex parte Shea, 20 D.L.R. 910, 32 N.B.R. 244.

SETTING ASIDE.

Where an extra-provincial corporation, made a codefendant with an individual, obtains an order setting aside the service of process upon it on the ground of want of jurisdiction, and notice of the application was served on the plaintiff only and not upon the individual defendant, the order is as to the latter an ex parte order and is subject to rescission as such. An ex parte order of a referee may be rescinded by himself under Manitoba K.B. r. 438 if it appears, on the motion made to rescind, that such ex parte order was improperly made, and this notwithstanding that the application to rescind was not made within the four-day limitation of that rule, if it appears that the interests of the objecting party were not affected (Man. K.B. r. 342.)

SETTING ASIDE OR RECALLING ORDER—POWERS OF LOCAL JUDGE.

The restriction upon the powers of local judges under rr. 27, 34 of the King's Bench Act, R.S.M. 1902, c. 40, whereby neither a local judge nor the referee in Chambers may vary or rescind "an order made by a judge," does not apply to prevent a local judge rescinding or varying his own order.

Douglas v. C.N.R. Co., 13 D.L.R. 800, 24 W.L.R. 804, 23 Man. L.R. 490, 4 W.W.R. 1121.

POWER OF JUDGE OVER.

In the absence of express statutory, a judge of the Court of King's Bench is without power to set aside an order made by him in a controverted election proceeding; appeal being the only remedy in such case. [Munroe v. Heubach, 18 Man. L.R. 547; Re St. Nazaire Co., 12 Ch. D. 88; Preston Banking Co. v. Allsup, [1895] 1 Ch. 141; Charles Bright & Co. v. Sellar, [1904] 1 K.B. 6; McNabb v. RULE NISI—ERROR—SETTING ASIDE.

If a motion asks for a rule nisi against the defendant instead of the plaintiff, the plaintiff on whom the rule is served can demand that it be set aside for such error, although the judgment given on the motion, correcting the error in copying which was found in it, condemns the plaintiff.

Normandin v. Montreal Tramways Co., 17 Que. P.R. 390.

(§ II—7)—ORDER UNDER CREDITORS' RELIEF ACT—IRREGULARITIES—AMENDMENT.

Where an order made by a District Court Judge was not intitled in the matter of the Creditors' Relief Act R.S.S. c. 63, but it was plain from the nature of the order that it was made under that Act, such judge has power under s. 16 to amend the order to include the omitted words and generally to cure irregularities and defects in his prior order.

(§ II—8)—DEFEATING THROUGH IRREGULARITIES.

The erroneous statement in a sheriff's transfer of land under an execution sale, that the writ was issued out of the Supreme Court, instead of the District Court, will not defeat an application to confirm the sale, notwithstanding a new transfer will be necessary. A statement in an affidavit of the sheriff that an execution was renewed in the office of the "local registrar" of the District Court, instead of that of the registrar of the land titles office, will not defeat an application to confirm a sale of land under the writ, since, as there was no such office as the local registrar of such court, no one could have been misled by such error.

Re Price, 4 D.L.R. 407, 21 W.L.R. 299, 5 S.L.R. 318, 2 W.W.R. 394.

IRREGULARITY OF JUDGE'S SIGNATURE—VALIDITY.

Where an application to a District Court Judge was clearly made under s. 8 of the Creditors' Relief Act, R.S.S. c. 63, but by inadvertence the judge signed the order over the designation of Local Master (L.M.), the latter may be treated as surplusage, and will not affect the validity of the order.

(§ II—9)—TAKING OUT AND SERVING COPIES OF ORDERS.

Where leave is granted a defendant to enter an appearance and deliver a defence conditioned on payment of certain costs within a stipulated time after taxation, the defendant is in default at the expiry of the stipulated time after the costs have been taxed, although the party entitled to payment of such costs did not issue and serve the order.

A. INCORPORATION.

(§ I A—5)—POLICE VILLAGE—POWERS OF COUNTY COUNCIL.

A county council is without jurisdiction to enact, in creating a police village, that it is erected into an incorporated village apart from, and that its inhabitants shall be a body corporate separate from, the township in which it is situated.

Smith v. Bertie, 12 D.L.R. 623, 28 O.L.R. 330.

COSTS OF INCORPORATION—BY-LAW.

A town corporation, in providing payment of the costs of its incorporation, may order that the costs incurred for the same object by a certain member of its taxpayers in connection with a prior petition rejected by the legislature, should be charged to the municipality, if it is proved that the opposition to the first project was not justified in the public interest and that a part of the costs incurred on that occasion have benefited the promoters of the second project.

Rioux v. Trois-Pistoles, 54 Que. S.C. 410.

(§ I A—7)—TERRITORY.

The prohibition in s. 3, subs. (d) of the Municipalities Incorporation Act, c. 143, R.S.B.C. 1897, against a district municipality including, at its incorporation, land subdivided into town lots, etc., is not absolute, but such lands may be included if all the conditions and provisions of s. 3, except subs. (c), of that Act, have first been complied with. In a proceeding collaterally attacking the validity of the incorporation of a district municipality, on the ground that it included within its area at the time of incorporation land subdivided into town lots, in violation of s. 3, subs. (d) of the Act, it will be assumed in the absence of evidence to the contrary that all the conditions and provisions of s. 3, except subs. (c), making such inclusion valid, have been complied with, and that therefore the land in question, whether town lots or not, are properly included in the municipality.

Saanich v. French, 8 D.L.R. 637, 3 W.W.R. 270.

B. DIVISION OR ANNEXATION.

(§ I B—10)—ANNEXATION—DUTY TO OPEN HIGHWAY—MANDAMUS.

Ratepayers of an annexed municipality have a sufficient interest to compel by mandamus the opening and maintaining a highway as required by the annexation statute.

Mountain Sights v. Montreal, 37 D.L.R. 688, 52 Que. S.C. 174, 23 Rev. de Jur. 597.

A petition for incorporation of a part of a municipality as a village, signed by two-thirds of those qualified under art. 52, Mun. Code, which has been presented to the county council remains valid notwithstanding the withdrawal of some of the signatures. The husbands of female owners of immovables of the value necessary to give the right to vote are electors and qualified to sign the petition. When an action has been brought to have the homologation by the county council under art. 57 Mun. Code, or of the report of a special superintendent annulled, a resolution of the council revoking the homologation filed with an offer to pay the costs, is a defence which justifies the dismissal of the action.

Tremplay v. Chicoutimi, 41 Que. S.C. 333.

(§ I B—11)—ANNEXATION OF PART OF TOWNSHIP TO VILLAGE—POWERS OF MUNICIPAL BOARD.

The Ontario Municipal Board has jurisdiction under ss. 17, 20 of the Municipal Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 192, to make an order annexing part of a township to a village, and by virtue of s. 39 (1) of the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 186, it also has the power to make such order suspensive in its operation.

Bell v. Burlington, 25 D.L.R. 269, 34 O.L.R. 410.

ANNEXING COUNTY TO CITY — EFFECT ON FRANCHISES — POWER OF BOARD.

The annexation of county territory to a city does not affect a railway franchise granted by the county and the income the county is entitled to thereunder; nor does the city thereupon become "successor" under the agreement between the county and the railway company. The Ontario Railway and Municipal Board, in making the annexation order, has no power to provide that such rights should pass to the city in whole or in part.

D. CHARTER.

(§ I D—25)—CONSTRUCTION OF.

The power and responsibilities contained in the Municipal Act (B.C.), 1914, c. 52, apply to all municipalities, and should not be held to be impaired by a collateral statute with restricted application such as the Shaughnessy Settlement Act (B.C.), 1914, c. 96, unless that intention is expressly shown.

(§ II A—30)—POWERS TO MUNICIPALITY, RESTRICTION AS TO CANCELLING SIGNATURE.

A signatory to a petition praying a municipal body to exercise statutory powers cannot remove his name from the signature where no statutory provision is made for such removal. A municipal council is a legislative body with certain statutory powers; it is not subordinate to the courts, and the exercise of its statutory powers is in the discretion of the council; and if there is good faith the court cannot interfere.

Re Robertson and Colborne, 8 D.L.R. 149, 4 O.W.N. 274, 23 O.W.R. 325.

RIGHT TO MAINTAIN AN ACTION — PUBLIC NUISANCE.

A municipal corporation cannot maintain an action, except as relator on an information by the Attorney-General, where a defendant neglects to perform a duty to the public under a municipal by-law and thereby creates a public nuisance. EXPROPRIATION — CONFLICTING STATUTES — "AVOINANT" — "AVOINANT."

Section 6 of 6 Edw. VII. c. 50, authorizing the town of Fraserville (Que.) to expropriate lands outside its limits, impliedly repealed s. 193 of 3 Edw. VII. c. 69, limiting the application of art. 4561 R.S.Q. to expropriation of land within the town, and art. 4561 therefore became applicable to expropriation of lands outside the town.

HOSPITALS AND CHARITABLE INSTITUTIONS ACT.

The corporation of the municipality in which an indigent person, admitted to a hospital, is resident, within the Hospitals and Charitable Institutions Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 300, s. 23 (1), means the town, village or township municipality, not the county municipality.

Toronto Free Hospital for Consumptives v. Barrie, 34 D.L.R. 691, 39 O.L.R. 63.

POWERS OF—ONLY THOSE DELEGATED BY EXPRESS WORDS, OR NECESSARY IMPLICATION.

The only powers which a municipal corporation can exercise are those granted by express words, those necessarily or fairly implied in or incident to the powers expressly granted and those essential to the accomplishment of the declared objects and purposes of the incorporation.

McMillan v. Winnipeg, 45 D.L.R. 351, [1919] 1 W.W.R. 501.

"CHARITABLE" AID—CATHOLIC ARMY HUTS—BUDGET.

The powers conferred on municipal corporations by s. 398 (5) of the Municipal Act (R.S.O. 1914, c. 192), to grant "aid to any charitable institution or out-of-door relief to the resident poor," does not extend to a grant for the purpose of creating army huts to serve as chapels for Catholic soldiers and to supply the latter with their devotional aids, the huts also to serve as recreation places for all soldiers; a resolution purporting the granting of such aid is therefore ultra vires. Nor has a municipal council the power to require or authorize the raising of funds in one year to be paid out or expended in the next or future years.

MUNICIPAL LAW—THE HIRING OF OFFICERS—DISMISSAL—VOTE OF COUNCIL—ABSOLUTE MAJORITY—1909, ARTS. 5312, 5322.

The words "absolute majority of the whole council," in art. 5322, R.S.Q. 1909, permitting a municipal council to dismiss its officers, must be interpreted as meaning not only the majority of members present but including also those absent.

Hebert v. Beauharnois, 25 Rev. Leg. 419.

APPROVAL OF ACCOUNTS—ATTESTATION.

A municipal council accepting the account rendered by its secretary-treasurer, not attested under oath, but after examination by the auditors and discharging him from his obligations and responsibilities, is not ultra vires of the powers of the council, the provision of the law requiring a secretary-treasurer to render his account under oath not being of public order. But he cannot himself dispense with it and cannot invoke custom and precedent to be relieved of this obligation imposed upon him by law.

Pérodeau v. Richard, 26 Que. K.B. 206.

LIABILITY FOR COUNSEL FEES—REPRESENTATION BEFORE COMMISSION.

A municipality is not liable for the fees of counsel not retained by it merely because they represented some of its officers and citizens before a Royal Enquiry Commission.

Desaulniers v. Montreal, 24 Que. K.B. 135.

In deciding on the merits of an appeal from a resolution of a local council on the subject of a by-law, a County Council has power to grant costs to either party, and such costs may include all those incurred by such appeal. The council is not compelled to tax them at the same session at which the decision was rendered, but may do so at the next general session.

Ste. Foye v. Quebec, 18 Rev. de Jur. 99.

The powers conferred by arts. 758, 759, Mun. Code, on a county council and on the board of delegates, may be exercised by them in regard to a road to be made as well as to one already made; nevertheless, the declarations mentioned in arts. 758, 759 may be made legally only after public notice has been given to that effect (761 Mun. Code); and, the declarations must be published after the adoption of a resolution or approval of the procès-verbal which contains them.

Brunet v. Beauharnois, 18 Rev. de Jur. 141.

POWER OF LEGISLATURE AS TO.

On the creation of a municipal corporation, the legislature may confer on it the powers conferred upon municipal corporations generally by any particular law or body of laws in the province.

(§ II A—31)—POWERS OVER POLICE DEPARTMENT—INVESTIGATION—POLICE BOARD.

Section 278, c. 192, of the Municipal Act, R.S.O. 1914, directing a Judge of the County Court to investigate upon a resolution of the city council any matter relating to malfeasance or misconduct on the part of an officer or servant of the corporation, does not apply to an inquiry into charges of misconduct in the police force, which by s. 354, etc., is within the jurisdiction of the Board of Police Commissioners.

POLICE STATION—EQUIPMENT OF—FURNITURE—STATIONERY.

Under R.S.O. 1914, c. 88, s. 23, the County Council shall furnish a police magistrate for the county with a proper office, together with fuel, light and furniture, and (following Newsome v. Oxford, 28 O.R. 442) furniture shall include stationery for such office, and it is immaterial whether the appointment of such magistrate is made under s. 13 or s. 14 of the said Act, or that such magistrate may have a private office of his own as a barrister or solicitor in such township.

DISMISSAL OF POLICE OFFICER—TOWNS ACT (ALTA.).

Under the Towns Act (Alta.), 1911-12, c. 2, s. 69, a municipality has an unconditional power of dismissing or suspending any member of its police force, even where there has been a contract in writing between the municipality and the dismissed official, and the term of employment contemplated in such contract has not been completed and no cause exists for the termination of it.

DELEGATING BRIDGE CONSTRUCTION TO CORPORATION—INTEREST OF RATEPAYER TO ATTACK PROCEEDINGS—PRESCRIPTION.

A municipal corporation of a county, which has decided to construct a county bridge and has adopted a procès-verbal directing the work to be done, but without determining its cost, cannot delegate to a local corporation the adjudication of the undertaking of the construction and the execution of the work. In making such delegation it acts ultra vires, and a rate payer has a sufficient interest to proceed to have the proceedings annulled by direct action. The provisions of the Mun. Code respecting appeal to the County Council or to the Circuit Court do not apply in such case, as there is a distinction between acts illegally performed by a municipal corporation in the exercise of its powers and those which are ultra vires.

(§ II B—49)—BY MUNICIPALITY.

A corporate body created by statute to own in trust, improve and manage a harbour bounded by its high-water mark, with a proviso that "it shall be incumbent upon it to erect land-marks," with general powers to alienate its property, has both implied and express power to contract with owners of land contiguous to the harbour and bounded by the same high-water mark, involving the alienation of land on the harbour side, and the acquisition of land on the other.

(§ II C-50)—BY-LAWS—QUASHING UN-NECESSARY BY-LAWS—HIGHWAYS.

The fact that a by-law was unnecessary will not prevent the court from quashing a municipal by-law if it be irregular. Where the Municipal Act (Ont.), s. 632 (1), provides for notice of proposed by-laws for closing roads, the publishing of an intended by-law to sell the same is not such a notice as is required by the Act, and the by-law itself is irregular.

Re Seguin and Hawkesbury, 9 D.L.R. 487, 4 O.W.N. 521, 23 O.W.R. 857, varying 6 D.L.R. 903.

The illegality of a resolution providing for indemnifying a municipal council against the costs of upholding a by-law if attacked, even though such resolution has induced the council to pass the by-law, does not invalidate the by-law.

Re Robertson and Colborne, 8 D.L.R. 149, 4 O.W.N. 274.

A municipality cannot issue a license for the exhibition of wild animals within the municipality where there is an existing by-law of the municipality prohibiting the keeping of wild animals within its boundaries. Before a municipality can establish a claim that a license fee is payable to it, it must shew that it had intended to make such claim either by the production of the collector's roll, or by evidence of a demand upon the defendant for the amount or a notice to him that it would be exacted.

LOCAL IMPROVEMENT ACT—ASSESSMENTS.

The general scheme of the Local Improvement Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 193, is to authorize the council to undertake a work, then to execute it, then to procure an assessment roll to be made for imposing the tax; the latter follows automatically on the work being authoritatively undertaken and fully executed, and there is no appeal except that provided from the Court of Revision.

VALIDITY OF BY-LAW—APPROVAL OF RAIL-WAY AND MUNICIPAL BOARD.

In order that the validity of a municipal money by-law shall not be open to question in any court, under the Municipal Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 192, s. 295, by reason of the approval thereof by the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board, such approval must remain effective when the proceedings in which the by-law is attacked come on to be heard; the court will have jurisdiction to quash where the Board's approval order existing when the notice of motion to quash was served was afterwards withdrawn by the Board.

MODE OF ACQUIRING LAND—STATUTES—RE-PEAL BY IMPLICATION.

So far as the purchase and acquisition of real property are concerned, s. 5 of 1915, c. 46, amending the Municipal Act (B.C.), 1914, c. 52, as to the necessity of the assent of the electors, is incompatible with the powers under the by-laws conferred by subs. 155 of s. 54 of the Act of 1914, and therefore, to this extent, the latter must be deemed to have been repealed by implication.

Where a municipal corporation by its municipal council has determined on the course to be taken in connection with pending litigation, that determination binds all the ratepayers, because the voice of the council is the voice of the municipality which, under the Ontario municipal system, is represented by its council and municipal action or inaction must be determined thereby.

Stoddart v. Owen Sound, 7 D.L.R. 377, 4 O.W.N. 171.

There is no provision of law compelling a municipal council to submit a by-law to the electors for the repeal of a local option by-law in respect of the sale of intoxicating liquors.

be invoked in case of an accident, not being referable to a fire.

REGULATION OF JITNEYS—REASONABLENESS—INJUNCTION—QUASHING.

An injunction refused restraining the defendant city, until after the trial of an action to quash the by-law prohibiting "jitneys" from continuing the prosecution of the plaintiff's drivers for violations of such by-law [Preston v. Luck, 27 Ch. D. 497, applied]. A municipal by-law is not unreasonable merely because particular judges may think that it goes further than is prudent or necessary or convenient, or because it is not accompanied by a qualification or an exception which some judges may think ought to be there. EXPROPRIATION—PRESUMPTION AS TO VALIDITY—PRESCRIPTION.

The rule of law omnia praesumuntur rite acta applies to the proceedings of municipal corporations. Where an expropriated party considers that the resolutions of the municipal council ordering to proceed with the expropriation is illegal, and that instead of taking steps to have the resolution annulled, nominates commissioners and joined in the proceedings to fix the indemnity, he cannot, after the award has been determined, take an action in law to have the resolution of the council and the award declared null and void. The direct action to have a resolution of the council of the city of Montreal declared null and set aside is prescribed by 6 months, provided it is adopted in matters within its jurisdiction.

Where all the formalities surrounding the passage of a city by-law have been complied with, and all that remains to make the document complete and, on its face, a valid by-law is the signature of the mayor, which under the by-laws governing his office he is required to affix, the city is not entitled, because his signature is withheld, to an injunction restraining action under an agreement approved by such by-law, where the agreement has been acted upon by the other party to it on the faith of the passage of the by-law. Where an agreement with a city which has been approved of by by-law has been acted upon in good faith by the other party to it, the city council cannot, of its own motion, reconsider the by-laws so as to nullify such agreement.

MUNICIPAL COUNCIL—MAYOR—RESIGNATION—SUCCESSOR—VALIDITY OF PROCEEDINGS—ELECTION.

The second part of art. 84, Mun. Code, which states that "the mayor remains in office, even if he ceases to be a member of the council, until his successor is sworn in," does not apply to a case where the mayor has resigned. It only relates to a mayor who is in office at the period when this office legally expires. A motion adopted by a municipal council upon the casting vote of the person presiding over the meeting is void, if such person had no right to preside. Arts. 314 et seq., Mun. Code, only relate to contestations of municipal elections under arts. 245 et seq., and not those by the municipal council itself. In the latter case the contestations fall under arts. 430 et seq.

BY-LAW—PROCÈS VERBAL—AMENDMENT AND REPEAL—DISCRETION.

A municipal council has the right to amend or repeal a by-law by another by-law, or a procès verbal by another procès verbal. In the exercise of this discretionary power the courts cannot intervene unless a grave injustice equivalent to fraud has resulted. There is nothing illegal in a municipal council, the composition of which has been changed by an election, reconsidering the propriety of a measure with the object of conforming to the opinion expressed by the vote of the electors.

(§ II C—51)—NOTICE OF MEETING—ADJOURNED MEETING.

By the terms of art. 931a Mun. Code, a county council cannot take into consideration an application for an appeal, unless a public notice to make known the day and the hour of the session when the application will be proceeded with, is given by the secretary-treasurer or by the commissioner of the municipality. This public notice should be published at least 7 days before the day fixed for the session during which the examination of the application will take place. When an application for an appeal is filed in the office of the council on a date approaching one of the next regular meetings of the council, and which public notices of 7 days, as above mentioned, cannot be given, the council in such a case, must order a public notice and to call a special meeting for the purpose of considering such an application, and such a special meeting is then properly held, when it is called and held within 30 days from the date the application was filed in the office of the council. In addition to the notice published in the municipality, art. 931a requires a special notice to mayors and members of the council to call them to such a special session. Such notice should be given by a registered letter, at least 10 days before the time fixed for holding of the session. Under art. 224 each special notice must be drawn up or given in the language of the person to whom it is addressed, but when the special notice is addressed or given to a person who speaks both languages, French and English, such notice may be given to him in either language. In absence of evidence as to which language is the right one of the councilmen or mayors not present at the special session, the only presumption which may be inferred from the fact that the names may be English names, is not sufficient to decide that such persons use the English language, because such a presumption is not authorized by the Code, and it is an established fact, that person with an English name speaks French, and he may speak both. Two sessions of a municipal council, before and after noon of the same day, do not constitute one meeting, when it does not appear as a fact that they simply adjourned for the purpose of having dinner.

BY-LAWS — RESOLUTIONS — "QUESTIONS" — VALIDITY — THREE READINGS — ENACTMENT.

A proviso in a city charter that no "question" once decided by the city council shall be reversed without notice from at least one meeting to another, will apply to invalidate a by-law which was given its third reading at the session of its introduction which could only be done on a suspension of the rules of order, when the motion to suspend had carried only after a like motion had been lost, the vote on the lost motion to suspend being upon a "question" within the meaning of the restriction in the charter.

MUNICIPAL BY-LAW AND ASSESSMENT WITH STATUTORY PROVISIONS—STRICT COMPLIANCE WITH STATUTE—LOCAL IMPROVEMENT ACT—PUBLICATION.

Where a municipal by-law and an assessment under it purport to be made in pursuance of a statute, the statutory provisions must be strictly complied with "in the sense that nonobservance of any of them is fatal." A prerequisite to the valid passing of a by-law under the Local Improvement Act (R.S.O. 1914, c. 193) is publication of the council's intention under s. 11.

Fleming v. Sandwich, 46 D.L.R. 613, 44 O.L.R. 514.

Under the Liquor License Act (Sask.), the council of the district prepared for submission a local option by-law. Notice of intention to submit the by-law (published in the proper paper on Nov. 10, 17 and 20, and Dec. 1, voting being fixed for Dec. 12), is sufficient under the Act. The notice sufficiently complied with the Act in indicating the office of the secretary-treasurer as the place where the by-law might be inspected, and the council chamber as the place where the by-law would be finally considered, without specifically stating the location of such places. The word "passed" where used in the Act, referring to the passing of the local option by-law by the council, refers to the final motion of the council in enacting the by-law and has no reference to any signing or sealing of the same. The omission of the officials of the district to sign and affix the seal to the by-law in question within the time limited for passing it, the by-law having been duly passed by the council, did not in any way invalidate it.

MUNICIPAL LAW—ACTION FOR ANNULMENT—RESOLUTION—PROPOSAL OF A COUNCILOR SECONDED BY THE MAYOR—PROHIBITION OF BILLIARD ROOMS—ABSENCE OF PREJUDICE—INTEREST—C. MUN., ART. 14—5 GEO. V., [1915] c.

In meetings of a municipal council a motion by a councilor need not necessarily be seconded before being put to a vote and adopted as a resolution of the council. The fact that it was seconded by the mayor does not affect its validity. Except in the cities of Quebec and Montreal, the Act only authorizes the licensing of billiard tables, upon a resolution approved by the local municipal council, therefore a rate payer has no right to demand the rescinding of a resolution which, in place of refusing the application for a permit, made to the council, restricts itself to declaring that billiard saloons shall be prohibited within the limits of the municipality for one year.

Belanger v. Beauport, 55 Que. S.C. 8.

(§ II C-56)—APPROVAL OR DISAPPROVAL OF MAYOR.

The affixing of a schedule read at the meeting at which a by-law is passed, and the signing and sealing of the by-law, need not be done at the meeting; they are matters of routine only and can be done by the proper officers at a later date.

Re Robertson and Colborne, 8 D.L.R. 149, 4 O.W.N. 274, 23 O.W.R. 325.

(§ II C-59)—PROMULGATION OF BY-LAWS—QUASHING—ACTION.

There is nothing in the Winnipeg Charter 1-2 Edw. VII. c. 77 making promulgation by publication in a newspaper or otherwise essential to the validity of any by-law and, under s. 527, no application to quash a by-law can be entertained unless made within one year from the passing of it, notwithstanding that it is made within 2 weeks after the promulgation provided for by s. 524. The provisions as to promulgation and moving to quash thereafter are merely intended to enable the city to greatly abridge the time within which an application might be made to quash a by-law imposing a rate.

An action for a declaration that a by-law is illegal and to restrain the municipality from enforcing it is not the kind of action referred to in s. 532 of the charter, and will lie although the by-law has not been quashed or repealed and no notice of the action has been given. [Rose v. Wawanash, 19 O.R. 294, followed.] A delay of five months after the plaintiff became aware of the effect of the by-law complained of is not sufficient to debar him from bringing such an action. The fact that the city had sold the debentures issued for the cost of the extension of the street is no bar to granting the plaintiff relief in such an action.

McPherson v. Winnipeg, 27 Man. L.R. 450, [1917] 2 W.W.R. 197.

PUBLICATION.

By the Liquor License Act the provisions of the Rural Municipalities Act as to quashing by-laws are made applicable to local option by-laws; but this does not make the procedure of the Controverted Municipal Election Act applicable; that Act applying only where an election is contested or a vote questioned and not where a by-law is attacked for irregularity. Where a District Court Judge is acting as persona designata in the proceedings, the rules of court do not apply, and no provision having been made as to how service should be effected the head officer of the municipality, e.g., the reeve, is the only person who can be served. The reeve being the proper person to be served the municipality was not served with the notice or material in support thereof, within the time limited, but, by appearing on the return day and making application for an adjournment which was granted, giving the municipality ample time to meet the applicant's case, the irregularity was waived.

(§ II C—60)—BY-LAW CONSENTING TO SPECIAL PRIVILEGE OR FRANCHISE CONFERRED BY LEGISLATURE.

A municipal by-law directing the execution of an agreement between the municipality of Point Grey and an electric railway company consenting to the construction of a tramway on certain streets of the municipality and also imposing terms on which cars should be operated, does not confer such a particular privilege, right or franchise as to require the submission of the by-law to the ratepayers for approval under s. 64 of the Municipal Clauses Act, (B.C.) 1906, where the railway company was empowered by c. 55, B.C. 1896, to construct and operate a tramway in that and other municipalities subject to the consent of the municipal council being first obtained and to the latter's designation of the streets upon which the tramway should be built, although the permission of the municipal council was further specified by statute to be upon such conditions as to plan of construction and for such period as might be agreed upon between the company and the council; the purpose of the proviso requiring the consent of the municipality is restrictive and not donative in character, and its function is to circumscribe, or impose conditions upon the exercise of the rights already conferred by the legislature.

INTEREST OF PERSON ATTACKING BY-LAW—RESOLUTION—REMEDIES—DIRECT ACTION.

The capacity of citizen, taxpayer, elector and property owner, of the city of Montreal, is not an interest sufficient to entitle him to apply for the rescission of resolutions which do not specially affect him. One having the capacity to do so, can proceed under art. 978, C.C.P., without having recourse to a direct action, which is only taken in the absence of any other remedy. Art. 304 of the Montreal charter, which allows a taxpayer to attack a by-law adopted by the municipal council, does not thereby give him the right to attack a resolution which is simply an act of routine administration. It is not the duty of courts to seek for the motives which might have inspired the acts complained of.

LAND ENTERED UPON AND EXCAVATED FOR SEWER—DRAINAGE SYSTEM—BY-LAW PASSED IN 1913—INTRA VIRES—MUNICIPAL ACT, 1903, SS. 2 (8), 554—EXPROPRIATION OF "EASEMENT"—COMPENSATION—DAMAGES.

On Feb. 10, 1913, the council of the defendants, a city corporation, passed a by-law which, after reciting that it had become necessary to acquire an easement over certain lands described "for the right of way of the . . . drainage system," authorized the city engineer to proceed with the construction of sewers across the lands described, to enter upon the lands, etc.:—Held, that, under s. 554 of the Municipal Act of 1903, 3 Edw. VII. c. 19, which was the Act in force when the by-law was passed, and s. 2 (8) of that Act, which interpreted "land" as including "lands, tenements and hereditaments, and any interest or estate therein, or right or easement affecting the same," the council had power to pass the by-law. The right to construct the sewer upon the land of another was not in strictness an easement, but an hereditament. The intention of the statute, however, as shewn by Re Davis and City of Toronto, 21 O.R. 243, decided under the Municipal Act in force in 1891, R.S.O. 1887, c. 184, and by the amendment made in 1892, 55 Viet. c. 43, s. 1, embodied in s. 2 (8) of the Act of 1903, was to enable a municipality to take the right to construct a sewer through land without taking the land itself; and there was no reason why a municipality should be compelled to acquire absolute title to the lands through which the sewers were to pass. In an action for trespass, for an injunction, and other relief, brought by one of the persons whose land was entered upon and broken up by the defendants, in pursuance of the by-law, it was declared that the by-law was intra vires the defendants and that the plaintiff was entitled to compensation, to be determined under the Municipal Act, for all that was authorized by the by-law, and to damages for anything done beyond what was authorized.

The school board of a town, under the authority of the Public Schools Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 266, s. 43 (1), made an application to the town council to pass a by-law for borrowing $30,000 for the purpose of purchasing a new site and erecting a new school-house. The council refused to pass such a by-law, but submitted the proposal to the vote of the qualified electors, under s. 43 (3). Out of an electorate of 900, only 189 voted, and of these 110 were unfavourable to the proposal. The vote was taken in the summer of 1918. In November, 1918, the board again asked the council to pass a by-law for the same purpose or to submit the proposal to the electors at the municipal election in January, 1919. The council again refused to pass a by-law, but resolved to submit questions to the electors—not only the question which the board wished to have submitted, viz., "Are you in favour of school and site to cost $30,000?" but also, "Are you in favour of school on old site to cost $23,000?" and, "Are you opposed to new school?" An action having been brought by the school board to restrain the defendants from submitting the two additional questions, it was held, upon a motion for an interim injunction, that it was the duty of the council, on the application being renewed by the board, either to pass a by-law under s. 43 (1) or to submit the question again to the vote of the electors, and to submit it simpliciter, without the additional questions, which might tend to confuse the minds of the electors and prevent a proper vote on the one question involved in the application of the board. Held, also, that the real question which the council should submit to the electors was specifically authorized to be submitted to them, and s. 398 (10) of the Municipal Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 192, did not apply. [Re Gaulin and Ottawa, 6 O.W.N. 30, 16 D.L.R. 865, and Gaulin v. Ottawa, 6 O.W.N. 38, followed.] An injunction was granted.

The recourse given by the Cities and Towns Act against a valuation roll is not limited, and the Supreme Court has jurisdiction to annul a valuation roll, when in its entirety, it is made on an illegal basis. The following allegations forming part of the declaration of an action commenced to declare void 2 by-laws and a valuation roll are relevant to the action and cannot be taken away under an entry in law, namely: "16 The council of the said defendant corporation has pretended to adopt and to have approved by the municipal elections, the said by-laws Nos. 52 and 53 in basing itself on the municipal valuation roll then in force, which is altogether irregular, illegal and void, in as far as the said valuation roll was made, prepared and approved irregularly and illegally, whereas the said defendant corporation was bound to make or has made the said valuation roll, including or having included therein the true value of lands of the said municipality, subject to municipal tax and on the contrary, illegally and fraudulently, said valuation is too high and fictitious and does not at all represent the value of said lands to such an extent that by the decisions recently rendered by the courts of this district, the valuations made at $6,000 and $3,000 per acre have been reduced to $500, showing that it was greatly exaggerated. The whole system adopted by the council of the defendant corporation in so far as its valuation roll is concerned, is wrongful, illegal and void, the said valuations carried upon the said roll are exaggerated and raised too high, illegally and fraudulently, for the illegal object of leading to mistake and deceive the holders of debentures and creditors of said defendant corporation, and the said valuation roll pretended to be in force is radically void, has no real value, and all proceedings and procedures adopted for the vote on approval of said by-laws Nos. 52, and 53, based on such valuation roll, are in consequence irregular and void, and should be annulled."

BY-LAW—INVALIDITY IN PART.

A by-law or resolution of a municipal council may be valid in part and void as to the rest if the valid portion is distinct from, and has no connection with, that which is void. Otherwise, the nullity of one part makes the whole void. For example, where the highway committee of a municipality had approved of the prices of contracts for supplying material for gutters for a sidewalk and for certain work to be done in laying asphalt, and the council had ratified their act, and passed a resolution adopting a report of the Finance Committee recommending a modification of the contracts by requiring a specified portion of the work to be done by the municipality by day work, which resolution is void for want of a two thirds majority. SCHOOL BY-LAW—UNREASONABLENESS—NOT SIGNED BY HEAD OF MUNICIPALITY—REMEDY BY MANDAMUS.

Where a municipal council is acting entirely within its statutory powers, the court has no right to interfere. Upon a motion to quash a village by-law authorizing the raising of money for the purpose of erecting a school-house, the court refused to entertain objections that the whole cost should not be charged against the ratepayers of the village, and that the by-law was unreasonable because the cost of the proposed school was excessive. Passing the by-law was a legislative act, and it was not for the court to sit in judgment on the reasonableness of it. That a municipal by-law is not signed by the head of the municipality is not a ground for quashing it. The person whose duty it is, under the Municipal Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 192, s. 258, to sign and seal a by-law, may be compelled by mandamus to do so.

BY-LAW—REGULATION OF BUILDING—UNREASONABLENESS AND DISCRIMINATION—QUASHING OF BY-LAW.

A by-law passed by the council of a city corporation in pursuance of a legislative power, prohibiting the erection of apartment blocks within a certain defined area, should not be held to be unreasonable or discriminating and, therefore, invalid, by reason only that there are already several apartment blocks in the same neighbourhood and the applicant has bought a lot within the area described with the intention of erecting an apartment block thereon or of selling the site to some one who would do so. The discretion of the council bona fide exercised in giving such a by-law three successive readings at one sitting, under a rule of procedure providing that such might be done on urgent and extraordinary occasions, should not be interfered with, and the by-law should not be quashed for irregularity on that account. INDEFINITENESS—SIDEWALKS.

A municipal by-law imposing upon an abutting owner the duty of constructing a cement sidewalk in front of his property, is void and illegal and may be set aside in an action by such owner (a) if it designates the work to be done in a general manner and without precision; (b) if it does not indicate the site or the side of the road upon which it should be made; (c) if it does not mention the street or road on which it is to be built.

Sisters of Charity, etc., of Montreal v. Chateauguay, 52 Que. S.C. 8.

Although a municipal by-law ordering the construction of a cement sidewalk is indefinite as to the exact situation of the sidewalk, if the municipal council executes the work in the best possible manner to give effect to the by-law, the court will not order the demolition of the work on the application of a municipal councillor who himself proposed the adoption of the by-law and who allowed the work to be finished without taking any steps to have it stopped.

(§ II C-66)—WANT OF JURISDICTION.

Vested rights cannot be interfered with by municipal by-laws except where the language of legislation conferring power to enact them clearly discloses such intent. The completion of a building on a certain street, which was begun under a permit from a city, for use as a garage for hire and gain, cannot be prevented by a municipal by-law prohibiting the "location" of structures of that character on such street, which was adopted subsequently to the granting of such permit.

WANT OF JURISDICTION.

The city of Toronto has power under s. 6 of its building by-law, No. 4861, to revoke a building permit already given, where the erection of the building in question would be an infringement of such by-law passed under the authority of clause (c) of s. 541a of the Ontario Municipal Act, 1903, as enacted by 2 Geo. V. (Ont.), c. 40, s. 10, if the permit previously granted has not been followed up by acts as constituting a "loca-

(§ II C-69)—MUNICIPAL DRAINAGE ACT—COMPLAINT AS TO DRAIN — ORDER OF COUNCIL TO SURVEY AND REPORT—ADOPTION OF REPORT—RATIFICATION—VALIDITY.

Where a complaint is made by a ratepayer as to the repair of a drain, and a request is made to have it repaired as soon as possible, there is nothing in the Municipal Drainage Act to prevent the municipal council from going beyond the complaint in ordering the engineer to make a survey of the drain and report. The adoption of the report which treats the work as a new one is a ratification and equivalent to previous instructions, and a by-law to carry it into effect is valid and should not be quashed.

Where a municipal corporation, presuming to act under a by-law and a special statute and the general powers conferred by the city charter, passed a resolution authorizing the municipality to grant to a stock company the exclusive privilege of operating an autobus line on certain streets of the city, a ratepayer who is also a shareholder in a tramway company which held similar privileges, has no interest entitling him to bring an action against the city unless he has suffered special injury beyond that which is public in its nature and affects all the inhabitants alike.

CLOSING OF HIGHWAYS—POWERS OF MUNICIPAL COUNCIL.

In the case of the closing of a highway the question of what is or is not in the public interest is a matter to be determined by the judgment of the municipal council, and if within the limits of its powers, is not open to review by the court; and a by-law will not therefore be set aside on the ground that it was passed in the interest of a certain person where there is nothing to show that the action of the council was in bad faith.

The provisions of the law that procès verbal ought to indicate clearly the work to be done and the time in which it ought to be done, are imperative and the procès verbal is void if such provisions are not followed. Where the evidence showed that the plaintiff suffered considerable prejudice on account of the procès verbal, this gave him a special and distinct personal interest over all the other contributors to demand its annulment.

A statute authorizing a municipality, either by carrying out its existing by-laws or any other law, to order the closing or changing any of its public roads, does not inhibit the municipal council, which has passed a by-law ordering the closing of a public road within the municipality, to repeal such by-law. It is not necessary to submit such a by-law to a vote of the electors under art. 5782, R.S.Q. 1909.

Drummond v. Beaconsfield, 54 Que. S.C. 85.

REGULATION OF STREETS—RESIDENTIAL PURPOSES—PERMIT FOR GARAGE—CONTRACTOR—COSTS.

By-law No. 570 of the city of Montreal, to reserve certain portions of streets for residential purposes only, is legal, duly passed and promulgated, and in full force and effect. When a law is doubtful or ambiguous, it is to be interpreted so as to fulfil the intention of the legislative body passing it, and to obtain the object for which it was passed; and every provision of law so adopted shall be deemed to have for its objects the remedying of some evil, and the promotion of some good, and shall receive such fair, large, and liberal construction as will insure the attainment of its objects and the carrying out of its provisions according to their true intention, meaning and spirit. Therefore, the by-law, in reserving that part of "Mance street" in question therein, must be construed as meaning and intending the portion of the street now officially known as "Jeanne Mance street," but commonly known as "Mance street." The by-law is a regulation for the good government of the city; and is within the power of the city of Montreal. Where the city or its officers issue a permit to erect an establishment of trade, on a lot fronting on a commercial street, which lot extends to another street in the rear, reserved by law for residences only, the permission does not and could not allow the owner to build a commercial house on this last street. Where a person obtains from the city a permit to erect a garage on a lot, he waives his right, if, subsequently, the city grants him, at his demand, the permission to build, on the same lot, an apartment building. A contractor who represents himself as the owner of a lot, and obtains from the city a permit to build a commercial establishment, and who is sued for having erected this construction on a street reserved for residences only, may have the action dismissed on the ground that he is not the proprietor, but only the contractor; in that case, however, the action will be rejected without costs.

AS TO USE OF STREETS.

Where a municipal council has jurisdiction to deal with the subject of opening up a new road, mere irregularities in the procedure cannot be relied on by way of collateral attack. The task of locating the new road belongs in the first place exclusively to the commissioner. Objections to the project as a whole, or as to the location or payment of damages, etc., may be urged when the council is asked to confirm or adopt the proceedings, and where such objections are not then urged they cannot be afterwards raised as ground for invalidating the prior proceedings. The municipal authorities having entered, or being entitled to enter, have the right, especially after notice, to remove obstructions from the way.

AS TO CARMEN—INVALID CONVICTION.

(§ II C—105)—REVOCAION OF POOL-ROOM LICENSE — RIGHT OF LICENSEE TO BE HEARD BEFORE TOWN COUNCIL.

Where a town council, having the right to revoke a pool-room license for certain infractions of a by-law of the town, revokes the license, without giving the licensee a chance to be heard at a judicial hearing, such action is not illegal, where it appears that the town in question is a small place, and the pool-room one of the principal loitering places and one that may very quickly become notoriously objectionable, and the court is satisfied that, even if the members of the council did not have a knowledge from personal observation, there were sufficient grounds to justify their action, especially where there is no suggestion that the council acted arbitrarily or in bad faith.

A town council has the right to revoke a pool-room license, for an infraction of a by-law of the town by the licensee, where such by-law existed at the time of the application for the license, and where the infraction was expressly made ground for such revocation at the time of such application.

AS TO TRANSIENT TRADERS—CONSIGNMENTS BY FARMERS.

A fruit farmer who consigns a carload of fruit to his town agent and gives him written authority to sell the same on his account is not liable to conviction as a "transient trader" in respect of sales made to the public generally by the agent from the car at its destination, although he did not take out a "transient trader's" license under a town by-law passed in conformity with the Municipal Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 192, s. 420; the words "transient traders and other persons whose names are not entered on the assessment roll, etc.," which appear in that section mean transient traders and other trading persons, and do not include a farmer selling his own produce, although he may ship in carload lots to a far distant point in the province, nor is the farmer pro hac vice a trader within the meaning of the section read in conjunction with the exemptions of farmer's product contained in other sections of the Municipal Act.

POWERS OF LICENSING AND REGULATING—BY-LAW — "PUBLIC GARAGE"—WHAT CONSTITUTES — MUNICIPAL ACT, s. 406A., PAR. 4 (A) (MUNICIPAL AMENDMENT ACT, 1914, s. 13).

Section 406a. of the Municipal Act, as enacted by s. 13 of the Municipal Amendment Act, 1914, authorizes the passing of by-laws by the councils of cities (4) "for licensing and regulating the owners of public garages . . ." By cl. (a) of par. 4: "For the purpose of this paragraph, a public garage shall include a garage where motor-cars are hired or kept or used for hire, or where such cars, or gasoline, oils, or other accessories are stored or kept for sale." In the exercise of the power conferred by sec. 406a., the council of the plaintiffs, a city corporation, passed a by-law enacting "that no person shall carry on the business of a public garage as defined by the Municipal Amendment Act, 1914, unless and until he shall procure a license," etc.:—Held, that the defendants, whose business, carried on in a building, alleged by the plaintiffs to be a "public garage," consisted in supplying gasoline and air to persons using automobiles, and whose building did not afford storage for automobiles, were not carrying on the business of a public garage within the meaning of the statute and by-law. Definition of "garage."

TRANSIENT TRADERS.

A man carrying goods in a motor-truck and selling them from place to place without localizing his trade in any particular place is a hawker or pedlar and not a "transient trader" within the licensing clauses of the Municipal Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 192, s. 420; and as a hawker he is exempt from the license fee under s. 416 of that Act if he sells to retail dealers only.

PROHIBITING ADVERTISEMENT OF FUNERAL ORNAMENTS—CONSTITUTIONALITY.

A provincial legislature may, without encroaching on the powers of the Dominion Parliament, empower a municipality to prohibit, by by-law, advertisements of funeral ornaments, and to impose fines for the infraction of such by-law and imprisonment in default of the fines. Such by-law does not become unjust and illegal for the reason that incorporated companies transgressing the by-law are exempt from imprisonment.

Belair v. Montreal, 19 Que. P.R. 314.

WEIGHT OF BREAD—SCOPE OF REGULATION.

The Act 1 Geo. V., c. 40, respecting the making and selling of bread, did not effectively abrogate art. 579 of the Mun. Code (old) authorizing municipal councils to "determine the weight and quality of the bread sold or offered for sale in the municipality." It has only limited the field of action of municipal councils by limiting their regulation to provisions which must not conflict with their own.

Bourassa v. St. Barthe, 53 Que. S.C. 198.

RESTRICTING TRADE DISTRICTS—MUNICIPAL JURISDICTION — REGULATION OF BUSINESS—STRICT CONSTRUCTION OF BY-LAW.

Where a statute confers upon a municipal council power to determine upon the expediency or necessity of measures relating to its affairs, its judgment upon matters thus committed to it, while acting within the scope of its authority, cannot be controlled by the courts, the decision of the council being, in the absence of fraud, final and conclusive, and in the creation of a restricted district for a lawful calling the question of expediency and necessity is for the municipal council and not for the court. [Krusse v. Johnson, [1898] 2 Q.B. 91, applied.] When a legislature interferes with a legitimate and necessary business or calling, the statutory power conferred upon a municipality must be clearly indicated and then specifically followed in any by-law passed thereunder, and a by-law providing that no building or structure of any kind shall be "constructed and used for a laundry or wash-house" within a specific portion of a municipality is ultra vires under a statute empowering the municipality to define the limits within which laundries or wash-houses might be established, maintained or operated.

(§ II C—108)—REGULATION OF BUSINESS—SALE OF BREAD.

A municipal by-law making it compulsory for bakers to deliver bread in wrappers intended to keep it clean is, on its face, a health by-law within the terms of a city charter empowering the municipality to pass by-laws "for providing for the health of the city and against the spreading of contagious or infectious disease."

AS TO SALE OF MILK—FEDERAL ADULTERATION LAWS.

Section 68 of the statute of the Province of Canada 1851, 14-15 Vict. c. 128, which confers on the city of Montreal power to pass by-laws for the welfare, health and local government of the city, remains in force, notwithstanding subsequent Federal and provincial legislation upon those subjects; and a milk regulation by-law passed thereunder is not repugnant to the Federal statutes dealing with the adulteration of foods.

Savaria v. Geoffrion, 27 Can. Cr. Cas. 36, 22 Rev. Leg. 433.

(§ II C—110)—TEAMSTERS.

The municipal regulations which require carters and contractors doing business within the municipality who use teams, to take out licenses do not apply to one who, under an agreement with the municipality, contracts to raise the carcasses of dead animals in order to convey them beyond the municipal limits. Therefore, a conviction by the Recorder imposing on the latter a fine for violating these regulations is a nullity and a certiorari will be granted to have it quashed.

Lesage v. Montreal, 42 Que. S.C. 144.

(§ II C—111)—PEDDLERS AND HUCKSTERS.

A person is not a "transient trader" requiring a municipal license as such under the Ontario Municipal Act, 1903, 3 Edw. VII, c. 19, s. 583, where, although not permanently resident within the municipality nor assessed therein, he takes orders for hair goods and toilet articles to be supplied directly to the public and not to the retail trade only, if the samples from which orders are solicited are not sold by him and the orders are taken and the business transacted at one place only (e.g. an hotel) and the orders so taken are addressed to a firm located in another municipality subject to acceptance or rejection by the firm after being transmitted to its place of business. [R. v. St. Pierre, 4 O.L.R. 76, followed.] In order to constitute an offence against a municipal by-law passed under the authority of s. 583 (30, 31) of the Ontario Municipal Act relating to "transient traders," the goods offered for sale must be goods in the municipality.

BY-LAWS OF COUNTY—REGULATION OF BUSINESS—EXTENT OF COUNTY BY-LAW OVER COUNTY LINE ROAD.

A county by-law prohibiting hawking and peddling within a county without a license does not apply to a boundary road between two counties by virtue of ss. 433 and 439 of the Ontario Consolidated Municipal Act, 3 & 4 Geo. V. c. 43, R.S.O. 1914, c.

192, which provides that the soil and freehold of every highway shall be vested in the municipality or corporation that for the time being has jurisdiction over it, and that the councils of townships between which they run shall have joint jurisdiction over boundary roads, where it does not appear that the county council enacting such by-law ever assumed control of such boundary road under s. 446 (3) of such Act.

TRANSIENT TRADERS.

The mere delivery of goods within a municipality by a person employed to make delivery in accordance with customers' orders for fixed quantities given elsewhere, with the taking of which the defendant employee was not connected, will not support a conviction of such employee for conducting the business of a transient trader in contravention of a transient traders' by-law passed under the Municipal Act, R.S. O. 1914, c. 192, s. 420 (6).

BY-LAW REGULATING TRANSIENT TRADERS—WHEN OFFENCE.

A conviction under a municipal by-law regulating transient traders can be supported only where the offence is within the precise terms of the by-law itself, although the powers of the municipality had been extended so as to enable it to regulate the acts relied upon as constituting the offence.

HAWKERS AND PEDDLERS—TAKING ORDERS.

NAMES FROM DIRECTORY IS NO COMPLI-ANCE WITH ORDINANCE.

Under subs. 3 of s. 44 of the Ontario Shops Regulation Act, R.S.O. 1897, c. 257, giving a local municipal council the right to pass a by-law regulating the closing hours of certain classes of shops if the council is satisfied that the application therefor is signed by at least three-fourths in number of the occupiers of shops of the class to which such application relates, it is not an accurate method to rely merely on the taking of names from the city directory in order to ascertain the number of persons who conduct shops of the class in question. If the name of one of the signers to a petition, praying for the passing of such a by-law is obtained by deception it should be rejected in the count of signatures. Where one of the names to a petition, praying for the passing of a by-law regulating the closing hours of barber shops, is that of a person who did not sign the petition but whose name was affixed thereto by his employee without the employer's authority, the name is not properly attached to the petition and should be rejected from the count of signatures, and a subsequent ratification by the person whose name was thus affixed, made after a motion to quash the by-law in question, is inoperative. The provisions of subs. 3 must be strictly complied with and, if it appears that the three-fourths requirement has not been complied with, the by-law is invalid.

Re McCoubrey and Toronto, 9 D.L.R. 84, 23 O.W.R. 653.

CLOSING STORES.

A municipal council in Ontario has power under the Shop Regulation Act, R.S.O. 1897, c. 257, s. 44, to pass a by-law regulating the time of closing of shops not earlier than 7 p.m., within the municipality, independently of the presentation to the council of a petition of electors. Where various petitions are presented to a municipal council under the Act for an early closing by-law, but the petitions together contain the signatures less than the requisite three-quarters in number of the occupiers of shops to be affected by the proposed by-law, the petitions may be treated as supererogatory, and the council may, without reference thereto, pass a by-law for closing of shops, and may therein provide for closing at the same or a different time than had been petitioned for, subject to the restriction in such case of the closing hour being not earlier than 7 p.m., which restriction does not apply, where the by-law is made upon a duly signed petition under s. 44 (3).

BY-LAWS—EARLY CLOSING PETITION—RE-QUIREMENTS.

The early closing by-law passed by a municipality under the Early Closing Act, (Alta.), must conform exactly to the petition so where the petition was to regulate the closing of all retail mercantile shops, its signature by the necessary two-thirds in the aggregate of those engaged in certain classes of trade will not support a by-law limited to those trades. The municipal council receiving a petition under the Act, must, under s. 9, make careful inquiry and investigation to satisfy it that the petition is signed by the requisite two-thirds of the tradesmen affected; it is not enough that some party interested in the by-law makes affidavit that to the best of his knowledge and belief the signatures obtained covered the statutory two-thirds. STORES—JURISDICTION.

Sections 1 to 14 of the Shops Regulation Act (R.S.M. 1913, c. 180) are in force in the city of Winnipeg; a by-law passed thereunder requiring that shops be closed at and after six p. m. each week day does not apply to druggists' shops; except as to goods the sale of which after hours is specially prohibited by such by-law, there is no limitation as to what a druggist may sell; a magistrate has no power to decide what goods fall within the description of "goods usually sold or kept for sale" by druggists; but such goods may be defined in a by-law.

(§ II C-113)—REGULATING SUNDAY BUSINESS.

Whether or not a by-law under the Montreal charter, passed by the Quebec Legislature, purporting to authorize certain Sunday sales by traders is ultra vires as dealing with a question of criminal law, the Provincial statute is a protection to those who exercise the privileges or exemptions, which it purports to confer; and until such statute has been declared invalid by a court of superior jurisdiction after due notice to the Attorney-General, a police magistrate's summary conviction, based upon his finding that such Provincial legislation was ultra vires, will be quashed.

(§ II C-115)—MUNICIPAL ACT (ONT.)—

ERECTION AND MAINTENANCE OF WEIGHING MACHINES—CITIES, TOWNS AND VILLAGES—INTERPRETATION ACT.

Section 582 of the Municipal Act, Ont.

(3 Edw. VII., c. 19) provides that the councils of townships, cities, towns and villages may pass by-laws "for erecting and maintaining weighing machines in villages or other convenient places, and charging fees for the use thereof . . ." Held, that the section conferred upon the councils of cities power to do what the section provides for, otherwise it would be necessary to read out of the section the words "or other convenient places." To limit the right of cities and towns to erecting and maintaining weighing machines in villages would be absurd. But the councils of cities, towns and villages have power to erect weighing machines and to appoint weigh masters independently of the above section, derived from s. 580. See also s. 326, 537. It was unnecessary to decide whether the provisions of the by-law authorizing the imposition of fees for weighing ceased to be in force when s. 582, the authority by virtue of which the by-law was passed, assuming that that was the only authority, was repealed by the Municipal Act of 1913, 3 & 4 Geo. V. c. 43; but, if the validity of those provisions depended on s. 582 only, they ceased to be operative upon its repeal, for they were inconsistent with the provisions of the substituted enactment: Interpretation Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 1, s. 16. The city corporation was entitled to judgment upon its claim for fees for weighing loads of coal for the company: If the council of the corporation had power to enact the provisions of the by-law independently of the power conferred by s. 582, that result followed as of course; if that view was not the right one, the company, having taken advantage of the facilities for weighing its coal, was properly ordered to pay for the services rendered; and, in the absence of any evidence to the contrary, the fees prescribed by the by-law might be taken well to be a reasonable compensation for the services rendered.

AS TO BONDING CORPORATIONS—MOTOR VEHICLES.

By resolution, the city council of Vancouver instructed the city license inspector to refuse to accept the bonds of any insurance or casualty company not holding a Dominion license. The resolution was passed in pursuance of authority alleged to be contained in the by-law providing for the filing of a bond by the owner of a motor vehicle. On a motion to quash the resolution, held, that the resolution was invalid on the ground that the Act of the legislature giving the city authority to pass by-laws regulating motor vehicles and providing for such a bond was never intended to give the council the right to create a monopoly or arbitrarily exclude from the position of bondsmen any person, company or class and that any investigation having in view the object of rejecting any person or company as bondsmen should be a fair and impartial one in which all parties interested are given an opportunity of being heard.

(§ II C—119)—TEMPERANCE BY-LAW—NOTICE.

All licensed hotel keepers have a sufficient interest to enable them to attack the validity of a by-law passed pursuant to the Quebec Temperance Act. When a by-law prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors has to be approved by the municipal ratepayers, the by-law and the public notice mentioned in R.S.Q. 1909, art. 1321, should be published and affixed at the same time within the delay required by the Act. This formality is essential and art. 16 Mun. Code, and arts. 1327-8 R.S.Q. 1909, do not apply.

PROHIBITION OF LIQUOR—ELECTION—VALIDITY.

A municipal elector is sufficiently qualified without proving special interest, to bring action, under the common law, to quash a prohibition by-law, on the ground of fraud, and illegality in the voting of the municipal electors. The provisions of the Mun. Code, respecting municipal elections should apply to the voting taken upon the occasion of the adoption or rejection of a by-law for the prohibition of the sale of intoxicating liquors. The public has a right to be present during the voting, and if the presiding officer refuses the electors entrance into the voting room where he remains alone with the secretary-treasurer, the voting upon the by-law will be voided.

(§ II C—126)—UNPROTECTING WELLS.

In a municipal by-law requiring the "owner or occupant" to guard or cover a well when not in use, the word "owner" must be read "owner in occupation," and the by-law would not apply to render the equitable owner of the fee in lands let to a tenant liable for breach of the by-law by the tenant resulting in the loss of plain-tiff's horse of which the tenant was bailee. Love v. Machray, 1 D.L.R. 674, 20 W.L.R. 505, 22 Man. L.R. 52, 1 W.W.R. 925.

Where, under statutory authority, prosecutions for offences against a local option liquor law might be taken before the mayor of the municipality acting as an ex officio justice of the peace even where the municipality was in effect the prosecutor and interested in the fines, the municipality may lawfully undertake the defence of a prohibition motion seeking to prevent the mayor from acting in such cases so as to establish his jurisdiction; and the municipality may obligate itself to the defending attorney for the costs to be incurred in opposing the prohibition motion by a resolution of the corporation. AS TO COMPENSATION — CONFIRMATION — GRADING STREETS—LIABILITY.

An agreement as to compensation for lands taken for an electric power plant must be authorized by a resolution of the council or be afterwards confirmed by it. Otherwise it is not binding on a city. The fact that two readings are given to a money by-law to provide for the raising of the compensation does not constitute a confirmation. The damages for breach of such an unconfirmed agreement assessed by arbitration are not payable by the city. By s. 337 of the Montreal city charter, as amended by 3 Geo. V., c. 54, no contract can bind the city of Montreal unless it has been approved by the council or the board of commissioners, and upon production of a certificate of the controller of finances showing that the city has voted money for such contract. These provisions are imperative, and a claim against the city based on a pretended contract will be rejected, in the absence of proof that the formalities required by the city charter have been fulfilled.

LEGISLATIVE AND ADMINISTRATIVE POWERS—LOCAL IMPROVEMENT—SIGNING—SEAL—MAYOR—POWER OF COUNCIL.

By a by-law, passed under ss. 9, 11 of the Local Improvement Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 193, the council of a town enacted that a roadway should be constructed as a local improvement, and afterwards accepted the tender of a contractor for the doing of the work. A contract was prepared and was approved by resolution of the council. The mayor refused to sign the contract.—Held, that a by-law approving of the contract was unnecessary. Distinction between the legislative and administrative powers of the council pointed out. (2) There being no statute requiring the mayor to sign contracts, and the corporate seal being the essential thing, the council had power by resolution to authorize the sealing and delivery, with the countersignature of any designated person, of any contract within its power. (3) The contract as drawn having been approved by the council, it was not necessary that it should be in accordance with the original resolution. (4) A by-law is not void because passed in violation of some domestic rule or practice of the council. (5) As a matter of discretion, the court ought not to interfere with the construction of a work within the competence of the council—save in very exceptional circumstances.

Wilson v. Ingersoll, 38 O.L.R. 260.

PUBLIC WORKS.

A municipal corporation, which awards contracts for municipal works to several persons without accepting any tender or passing any formal by-law, may be bound and held to pay for the work, (1) if the terms of the contracts have been publicly discussed and adopted by the council; (2) if no proposal has been voted on nor entry made of the discussion merely by inadvertence; (3) if the work has been divided and distributed among the contractors by a vote of the council recorded in its minutes; (4) if the works have been executed, accepted and used by the municipality. The price of the above works fixed by the contract cannot afterwards be changed by the council without the consent of the contractors. A contract fixing no term for payment, the price of the works will be payable at the time they are accepted, and the council cannot, by a resolution adopted long after, declare that they will be paid for at some other time. Impossibility of payment does not prevent the debt from becoming due.

Charette v. Point Fortune, 51 Que. S.C. 7.

AGREEMENT BETWEEN MUNICIPALITY AND BANK—CURRENT ACCOUNTS—DEALINGS WITH OTHER BANKS.

The obligation assumed by a municipality towards a bank to "keep its current account there" does not bind it to deposit there all its moneys, especially a sum borrowed for a special purpose (e.g., the construction of a bridge). The fact that it had, for some 20 years, deposited all its moneys with the said bank, does not affect the construction to be given to the above expression. When a municipality undertakes to deposit with a bank the sinking funds of its loans, "unless owing to the very nature of the loan or the conditions under which it is made," such deposit cannot be made, if it makes a loan from another bank and deposits with it the sinking funds for the said loan in conformity with resolutions passed by its council, the municipality will not be considered as having violated its first agreement, and the burden of proof that it has acted fraudulently, or that the conditions mentioned in the said exception have not happened, falls on the interested bank.

CONTRACTOR FOR DRAINS—ENGINEER—INTERPRETATION OF CONTRACT—ARBITRATION—ACCEPTANCE OF WORKS—ACQUIESCENCE.

When, in a contract made by a municipal corporation for the construction of drains in a street, under the superintendence of an engineer, it is stipulated that either party may refer to arbitration by giving written notice to the other party and to the arbitrator, such clause must be interpreted as making notice necessary in order that the parties be bound by the arbitrator's award. When, such contract, declares that the works shall not be accepted by the engineer in the name of the corporation until 1 month after the works have been put in operation, it means that the engineer cannot accept them before such period has expired, but it does not mean that the corporation shall be finally bound by the engineer's acceptance. In such case the corporation is not bound by its engineer's acceptance of works which were incomplete, defective, and done contrary to the plans and estimates. The fact that the corporation has only kept back, from its contractors, 10 per cent of the contract price instead of 20 per cent which it was entitled to, does not constitute acquiescence of the works by its engineer. A contractor with estimates and contracts can only recover the price of his works when he has fully carried out his obligation.

MUNICIPAL COUNCIL—EXCLUSIVE LIGHTING FRANCHISE—ESTABLISHMENT OF MUNICIPAL LIGHTING SERVICE—VALIDITY OF.

A contract with a municipal council for an exclusive lighting franchise for 10 years with a proviso that the municipality would give the contractor the preference over any other person tendering at the end of the term at the rates quoted in the competing tender for another 10 years, is not a bar to the council establishing its own electric lighting plant on the expiry of the first 10 years pursuant to statutory authority conferred meanwhile; the municipal by-law establishing a municipal lighting service for the citizens having been ratified by the legislature pendente lite, a resolution of the municipality passed in conformity with the validated by-law was declared valid and the judgment below varied accordingly.

Ricard v. Grand'Mere, 20 D.L.R. 768, 60 Can. S.C.R. 122, varying 23 Que. K.B. 97.

MODE OF CONTRACTING—POWERS OF COMMISSIONERS—RATIFICATION BY COUNCIL.

Under the Edmonton charter the power of the commissioners is subject to the supervision of the council, and when, after submitting to the council, the latter authorized a particular contract, the commissioners have no authority to make a contract in conflict with the council's authorization; nor will a resolution of the council authorizing tests of the proposed undertaking and the submission of a by-law to raise funds presumably necessary under the agreement, in the absence of knowledge of the terms thereof, operate as a ratification of the agreement. It is not necessary to follow the procedure under s. 578 of the Edmonton charter by a motion to quash a resolution where no exception is taken to the resolution, but only to an agreement because not in accord with the resolution.

CONTRACT TO BUILD BRIDGE—EXECUTION ACCORDING TO CONTRACT—RIGHT TO RECOVER—NO BY-LAW AUTHORIZING—DUTY OF MUNICIPALITY TO KEEP HIGHWAYS IN REPAIR.

A plaintiff who has, according to the true meaning of a contract in writing and sealed by a municipal corporation, done what he contracted to do in constructing a bridge to replace one which formed part of a highway in the township is entitled to recover the contract price. The absence of a by-law authorizing the construction is no defence to an action to recover the contract price, it being part of the duty of the municipality to keep the roads in repair and fit for ordinary traffic including the building and repair of bridges. [MacKay v. Toronto, 43 D.L.R. 263, distinguished.]

Witherspoon v. East Williams, 47 D.L.R. 370, 44 O.L.R. 584.

The ratepayers' right to prevent an expenditure of municipal funds for purposes ultra vires the corporation does not justify an action to rescind a completed purchase and to compel the vendor to repay the price he has received; his remedy in such case is to hold the individual councillors responsible for the loss.

Verner v. Toronto, 1 D.L.R. 530, 3 O.W.N. 586, 21 O.W.R. 170.

(§ II D—148)—CONTRACTS WITH UNINCORPORATED ASSOCIATION—EFFECT ON SUBSEQUENT INCORPORATION.

A resolution of a municipal council which authorizes the municipality to enter into an agreement with an unincorporated association has no binding effect on the corporation subsequently formed of the unincorporated body.

AGENCY—BINDING SUCCESSOR.

A municipal council cannot bind succeeding councils by the appointment of a fiscal agent with exclusive right to sell municipal bonds. Quere, whether such appointment is not ultra vires.

(§ II D—149)—POWERS OF—CONTRACTS GENERALLY—TRANSFER SUBJECT TO ENABLING ACT—"PROCEEDING."

A municipal resolution authorizing a city solicitor to take all "proceedings" and the mayor and clerk to sign all documents necessary to transfer the municipality's estate in certain land to the Dominion Government as an armoury site, will be given effect, although part of the "proceedings" is the bringing about of provincial legislation as a condition precedent to a legal transfer.

INADEQUACY OF PRICE ON SALE.

The court will not sit in review of the action of municipal councils while acting within the scope of its authorized powers, except upon the ground of fraud; and a sale of municipal property cannot, in the absence of fraud, be impeached on the ground that the council did not obtain as much for the property as it should have received in the exercise of its duty towards the ratepayers.

Grants of money by the city of Winnipeg to the "Winter Sports and Peace Carnival" and to the "Manitoba Curling Association" are beyond the power of the city, as they are neither grants to "charitable institutions" or for the entertainment of important "guests" and so are not within §§ 589, 590 of the charter of incorporation. A grant to the "Mercantile Sailors' Relief Fund" is within the powers of the city, it being a charitable institution of a permanent character which has received the approbation of the Civic Charities Bureau (s. 700, sub-a. 198). A city council has the power in consolidating by-laws under s. 209 (c) of the City Act (c. 84, R.S.S. 1909), as amended by s. 7, 1910-11, c. 18, to provide for a higher rate of interest to be paid on consolidated stock of the municipality, than the aggregate amount of annual interest on such stock as provided for under the constituent by-laws which authorized the issue of such stock; and a ratification of such consolidating by-law by the burgesses is not essential to the validity of such increase in the rate of interest where the constituent by-laws had been previously ratified by the burgesses.

A municipal corporation may proceed by injunction against an electric company attempting to instal within the municipality a system of electric lighting, under a by-law which is subsequently repealed and replaced by another because the first was illegal, and neither the company nor its grantors had done anything to take advantage of the privileges granted by the repealed by-law. The right of the corporation to an injunction is more evident, because the by-law was not attacked as illegal. As long as the second by-law remains in force the first must be without effect.

VII. c. 81, which provides that: "The city is authorized to fix, determine, charge and receive rentals on all underground constructions reserved by the persons, firms, syndicates, companies or corporations, and all overhead constructions owned by the city. Such rentals shall be fixed from year to year, to cover the cost of maintenance and administration of the same, the interest and sinking fund calculated in such manner as to extinguish the debt in not less than 40 years on the capital invested by the city for the construction or purchase of such underground conduits as well as the salaries and expenses of the electrical commission. When the said debt has been extinguished, the rental shall no longer include the interest and sinking fund on the extinguished debt; but the amount of such rental for each person or company shall be in proportion to the portion of the conduits occupied or reserved by him or it," means that the companies are obliged to pay an annual rent sufficient to pay the cost of administration, maintenance and sinking fund, calculated to extinguish the debt incurred for the construction of the drain and subterranean conduits in 40 years; in other words, they should pay this rent not only for the space occupied or reserved for that by them, but also for the space unoccupied.

MUNICIPAL LAW—WATER COURSE—PATH OF DITCH—PATH OF DRAIN—SPECIAL SUPERINTENDENT — JURISDICTION OF MUNICIPAL COUNCIL AND OF THE SUPERIOR COURT—C. MUN. ART. 867.

A municipal council has power to name a special superintendent, and to confirm his report, with the object of making an official report setting out a statement either of the path of a ditch or the path of a drain and of changing a watercourse. The municipal council can establish watercourses wherever it sees fit to do so, provided that it does not cause the water to flow over lands where nature did not intend it to flow. When a municipal council has pronounced on the sufficiency or insufficiency of a watercourse and has acted in good faith, within the limits of its powers, its decision is not subject to the jurisdiction of the Superior Court; it is a question of fact left to the discretion of the municipal authority.

Arbique v. St. Placide, 56 Que. S.C. 512.

WATER FRANCHISE—APPROVAL OF ELECTORS.

A village municipality has the right to grant the exclusive privilege of laying drains in all the streets for the purpose of operating an aqueduct during a period of 25 years. When a by-law granting such franchise does not give any bonus nor impose any tax nor oblige the ratepayers or residents of the municipality to take the water from the aqueduct, it is not necessary that it should be approved by the municipal electors nor by the Lieut.-Gov. in Council. Where a notice has been given for a special meeting for the purpose of adopting municipal by-laws it is not necessary to renew this notice if the by-law is not adopted at such special session but at a subsequent general session. A ratepayer or municipal elector can only demand the quashing of a municipal by-law by a direct action on proving that the by-law is or will be prejudicial to him.

Appeal from a decision of council to omit the names of electors from the lists because they had not paid their taxes. It is a principle that the municipal law of parishes, towns and villages ought to be interpreted in a broad manner when it is a question of imposition of taxes or penalties. In this case the usual formalities that the law required in the imposition of water taxes and rent have not been complied with by the council of the respondents and as a result such taxes are extinct. Under these circumstances the appeal should be allowed with costs against the respondents.

(§ II F—180)—“CREMATORIES”—“INCINERATORS.”

Section 232 of the City Act (Sask.), 1915, c. 16, relating to crematories, does not apply to incinerators, which are entirely different things.

WATER COURSE—DITCH—APPEAL—JURISDICTION—IRREGULARITY.

Municipal council having jurisdiction to establish a water course, may utilize, for this purpose, either a line ditch or a road ditch already existing. Art. 867 of Mun. Code (old) by which road ditches and line ditches appear to be excepted from the category of municipal water courses, ought to apply to such ditches only as long as they do not alter their nature. Art. 100 of Mun. Code (old) does not give an appeal to the parties upon questions of fact; it can only be invoked in cases where a municipal council has exceeded its authority, or has committed a grave irregularity or has rendered itself guilty of a grave injustice.

(§ II F—183)—BRIDGES—WATERCOURSE.

Art. 5639, R.S.Q. 1909, Cities and Towns Can. Dig.—105.

Act, does not authorize a county council to make regulations in regard to the construction and maintenance of a bridge situated in a town, unless such bridge crosses a watercourse which lies within its jurisdiction and that there should be a necessity therefor.

(§ II F—188)—OPERATION OF RAILWAY—DOMINION FRANCHISE—ASSENT OF MINISTER.

A municipality may acquire the undertaking of a Dominion railway, but under s. 299 of the Railway Act, 1906, is without power to operate it under the Act except under the authority of the Minister of Railways and Canals with the obligation of applying for an enabling Act at the next session of Parliament.

Re Grand Valley R. Co., 26 D.L.R. 651, 18 Can. Ry. Cas. 430.

(§ II F—190)—POWERS—ESTABLISHMENT OF MUNICIPAL GAZETTE.

The establishment of a “municipal gazette” or municipal publication dealing exclusively with the details of the city’s government is within the powers of the city of Edmonton under the Edmonton charter, Alta. 1913, 1st sess. c. 23; and a resolution of the city council to that end will not be quashed unless it be shown that the council acted otherwise than in good faith.

(§ II F—192)—PURCHASE OF LAND.

A municipal council is not restricted as to the price to be paid for land purchased for administrative purposes, and it may be determined upon between the corporation and the vendor without any reference to the values appearing on the assessment roll. In the absence of special provisions as to the procedure to be followed, a municipal corporation (e. g., the city of Montreal) desirous of purchasing realty for administrative purposes, may do so on resolution of its municipal council as in ordinary cases of administrative functions.

Birchenough v. Montreal, 3 D.L.R. 299, 21 Que. K.B. 467. [See 13 Que. P.R. 179.]

Whether a municipal corporation with power to purchase and hold real estate for certain purposes has acquired and is holding said property for other purposes is a question that can only be determined in a proceeding at the instance of the Crown.

Verner v. Toronto, 1 D.L.R. 530, 3 O.W.N. 586, 21 O.W.R. 170.

PURCHASE OF LAND—MARKET BUILDING.

The fact that a municipal corporation’s statutory authority was in terms to continue the market theretofore established and to establish and regulate “other markets” will not debar the municipality in case of destruction by fire of the market building so continued, from building a new market in another and more fitting location within the municipality to the exclusion of the former site, or from using the former site for other purposes.

Steeves v. Moncton, 17 D.L.R. 560, 42 N.B.R. 465.

(§ II F—193)—MUNICIPAL TELEPHONES.

A municipality may establish a telephone system under 2 Geo. V., c. 38, upon being properly petitioned to do so, without giving effect to all the prayers of the petition, if the system complies with the Act in question.

G. LIABILITY FOR DAMAGES.

(§ II G—195)—LIABILITY FOR DAMAGES—TORTS NOT UNDER POWER OF COUNCIL—FORM OF ACTION.

The provisions of s. 10 of title 27 and s. 26 of title 35 of the charter of the city of Medicine Hat, providing for the appointment of an arbitrator to fix the compensation of one whose lands have been "injustly affected in the exercise of any power of the council," in the event of the council not being able to agree with the claimant as to the amount of compensation or damages, do not apply to a claim for damages of an owner of lands abutting on a street the grade of which has been cut down by the city, since such action by the city is not an "exercise of any power of the council," but is a tortious interference by the city with the owner's right of free access to the street, in the absence of any express or implied provisions in the charter granting such power to take away from the owner such right of access, and the correct remedy is by action against the city.

HIGHWAY—GUARD-RAIL.

A township is liable for injuries sustained by a traveler along one of its roads by reason of its failure to supply a guard-rail or barrier at a place which is notoriously dangerous, where it appears that the failure to supply such guard rail was the direct cause of the injury and that the attention of the township had been frequently called to the fact that a guard-rail was necessary at that point.

ABANDONMENT OF EXPROPRIATION PROCEEDING—RELIEF FROM LIABILITY FOR—SEQUENTLY ENACTED STATUTE.

Where a city, which was required by s. 52 (20) of 3 Edw. VII. (Que.) c. 62, to expropriate land for public purposes within a designated time, abandoned the proceeding after notice to the landowner, the appointment of commissioners, and the taking of testimony, the city is not relieved from liability to the landowner for the deprivation of the use of his property as the result of the imminence of the expropriation, by the subsequent enactment of 7 Edw. VII. (Que.) c. 65, providing that the city need not proceed with such expropriation, and that its right to expropriate should expire after a delay of 3 months from the time the Act came into force if not proceeded with.

Robillard v. Montreal, 13 D.L.R. 681.

ABANDONMENT OF EXPROPRIATION PROCEEDINGS.

Where arrangements to build a factory on land has been completed before the passage of a by-law for its expropriation, the repeal thereof 4 months afterwards, and after the commencement of an arbitration, does not render a municipality liable to the landowner for losses occasioned by reason of his not proceeding with the building of the factory because of the institution of the expropriation proceedings.

RAISING STREET AND SIDEWALKS TO INJURY OF ADJOINING OWNER.

A municipal corporation is liable in damages to owners, where property abuts on streets or sidewalks, the level of which is raised, thereby causing depreciation to their property, such change of level in effect constituting a sort of expropriation entitling interested parties to compensation.

Hull v. Bergeron, 9 D.L.R. 28. [See 18 Rev. de Jur. 167.]

CONDITIONS PRECEDENT—PLAINTIFF'S TITLE—MISFEASANCE.

Although an action may not lie against a municipal corporation by the owner of lands for damages in respect thereto, through the misfeasance of the corporation if the damages occurred before the plaintiff acquired his title, the action will not be defeated, as to damages resulting after he acquired title, by the circumstance that the act of misfeasance itself occurred before that time. Damages by the contractor for unreasonable delay by the city in giving the grades and levels for excavation work on the streets may constitute "extras" for which the city engineer's certificate must first be obtained as a referee under the terms of the contract; and in any case the contractor need not have delayed the whole work over the more favourable season for the operations by waiting for the city engineer to give him the grades and levels, but on the city's default, should have himself employed an engineer to do so and added the expense to the contract, when the matter was one of detail only and could have been worked out by any engineer from the plans shewing the depths and from the corner stakes already put on by the city engineer.

PUBLIC WORK AUTHORIZED BY STATUTE—REMEDIES.

The fact that the municipal Public Works Act (R.S.S. 1909, c. 91) gives the city power to construct certain work therein mentioned in the nature of public utilities, does not preclude the city from constructing a subway under the Cities Act (R.S.S. c. 84, s. 184), which is an altogether different class of work; an individual suffering special injury by reason of the construction thereof, done in a proper manner and under statutory authority, cannot maintain an action therefor, but his only remedy is the one provided by the statute. The plaintiff is entitled to amend his claim to establish his right to an action for damages instead of arbitration under the statute.

A municipal corporation cannot be held liable for injuries resulting from the negligent construction and operation of an electric lighting system in pursuance of a franchise granted by it, on the ground of a breach of duty to keep its highways free from nuisances; the power of such corporation, under art. 5461, R.S.Q. 1909, to regulate the use of highways and public places, are legislative or governmental, and unless specifically provided a failure to exercise them does not give rise to a right of action.

ACTING IN PURSUANCE OF STATUTORY POWER—SPECIAL DAMAGE TO INDIVIDUAL.

Where a city, acting in the execution of a public trust and for the public benefit, does an act which it is authorized by a statute to do, and does it in a proper manner, an individual suffering special injury by reason of such act cannot maintain an action. He is without remedy, unless a remedy is provided by the statute. [East Fremantle v. Annois, [1902] A.C. 213, applied.]

CLOSING OF STREET—TRAFFIC—TRADE—DAMAGES.

The city of Montreal has the power in the public interest to prohibit the passage of vehicles in certain streets; but if an individual sustains damages in his trade, the city must indemnify him for the injury it causes him.

Cogne v. Montreal, 24 Rev. Leg. 238.

PUBLIC WORKS—NEGLECT—DAMAGES—LOSS OF PROFIT—PRESCRIPTION.

The city of Montreal is responsible for damages sustained by the owner of a place of business situated 1,000 feet from a place where it was carrying on public works, if it has been negligent in delaying such works unreasonably and unjustly. The diminution of profits sustained by such owner in his trade and undertakings, shewn by a comparison of his business during the year the works were in progress with that of the preceding year, as well as by contracts in hand, is not indirect damage or too remote under arts. 1074, 1075, C.C. (Que.), and should be allowed in accordance with the evidence in the action. The 6 months prescription, mentioned in art. 537 of the Montreal charter, against damage actions resulting from offences, quasi-offences, or irregularities, is not a denial of the right of action as in art. 536a of the same Act; therefore the court cannot of its own motion apply such prescription under art. 2188 C.C. (Que.).

Dambrosio v. Montreal, 54 Que. S.C. 65.

PUBLIC WORKS — NEGLIGENCE — NOTICE OF ACTION.

The city of Montreal is responsible for damages it caused even in making necessary public streets authorized by law and undertaken in the public interest, when guilty of negligence in the execution of such works. Actions for damages so caused are not governed by art. 536 of its charter, relating to notice of action to which it is entitled.

CITY OF MONTREAL—ACTION FOR DAMAGES—NOTICE OF ACTION—REASONS EXCUSING DEFAULT OF NOTICE — 63 VICT. C. 58 (CHARTER OF MONTREAL), ART. 536.

No action exists against the city of Montreal for damages resulting from bodily injuries caused by an accident unless, within 30 days after the accident, a written notice, conforming to the city charter has been received by the city. Ignorance of this obligation on the part of the victim of an accident, and lack of prejudice suffered by the city by the fact that it has not received this notice or has received it too late, are not sufficient to justify the absence or insufficiency of the notice.

Dupuis v. Montreal, 56 Que. S.C. 121.

INJURY TO SHEEP BY DOGS—DIVISION COURT.

By s. 18 of the Dog Tax and Sheep Protection Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 246, a right of relief is given to sheep-owners, whose sheep have been killed or injured by any dog, on an application satisfactory to the council; but nothing in the Act or otherwise makes the municipal corporation liable in a court of law for the amount of the damage done. A Division Court was prohibited from entertaining an action to recover from a township corporation the value of sheep alleged to have been killed, in the township, by dogs of unknown owners.

NOTICE OF EXPROPRIATION—ABANDONMENT—DAMAGES—RAISING OF STREET LEVEL—PARTIAL EXPROPRIATION.

An owner, put en demeure by notice from a municipality that it intends to expropriate his immovable, and who is thereby prevented from renting it, can recover, as compensation for a partial expropriation, the damages incurred by loss of tenants and an unnecessary removal, even when the notice in question has not been followed up. A municipality which raises the level of streets, public places, parks, etc., must pay to the owners of land fronting thereon, as compensation for a partial expropriation, the real damages caused to their buildings.

(§ II G.—203)—INJURY TO LAND FROM GRADING STREETS.

The work of grading streets is specifically conferred by ss. 378, 390 of the City Act, R.S.S. 1909, c. 84, and is therefore a work in the "exercise of powers under the Act" within the meaning of s. 245 as entitling an owner to compensation for land injuriously affected though no part of the land itself is actually taken.

Prince Albert v. Vachon, 27 D.L.R. 216, 34 W.L.R. 106, 10 W.V.R. 359, affirming 33 W.L.R. 470, 9 S.L.R. 80.

REPAIR OF HIGHWAY—INJURY TO HORSE BY DEBRIS.

A municipal corporation is guilty of negligence, if, when repairing the public roads in the municipality, it deposits on the land material taken out containing rusty nails or other waste of demolition. It is therefore liable for the loss of a horse which is injured on this debris.

Maltais v. Pointe-Au-Pic, 48 Que. S.C. 87.

PREPARING MATERIALS FOR REPAIRING STREETS.

Where a municipal corporation is guilty of negligence, default by nonfeasance of the statutory duty imposed upon it to keep its highways in good repair, and adequate means have been provided by statute for the purpose of enabling it to perform its obligations in that respect (e.g., 64 Vict., c. 54 (B.C.)), persons suffering injuries in consequence of such omission may maintain civil actions against the corporation to recover compensation in damages, although no such right of action has been expressly provided for by statute, unless something in the statute itself, or in the circumstances in which it was enacted, justifies the inference that no such right of action was to be conferred. The common law obligation under which the inhabitants of parishes in England, through which highways passed, were responsible for their repair, has no application in the Province of British Columbia.

(§ II G—205)—POLE ON STREET.

The only liability upon a township for injuries to a person caused by a collision while driving on a highway in a township with a pole erected upon the highway, not by the municipality but by a telephone company which had no statutory or other right to erect poles upon the highway, is that imposed by subs. 1 of s. 696 of the Municipal Act, R.S.O. 1897, c. 223, making municipal corporations civilly responsible for all damages sustained by any person through the municipality's negligent failure to repair the highway by removing the pole.

EXCAVATION ON STREETS.

Where the municipal charter imposes a duty to keep its streets in repair, and the facts demonstrate an actual want of repair causing damage, an action is prima facie shown to be well founded, and the defaulting municipality is called upon for excuse.

POLE ON STREET—NEGLIGENCE—BURDEN OF PROOF.

Where an act of negligence is committed by a municipal corporation such as allowing a public street to be obstructed by a telephone pole, the plaintiff suing for damages must prove that the negligence was the cause of the accident which resulted.

Lamothe v. St. Pierre de Verone, 48 Que. S.C. 481.

(§ II G—207)—AUTHORITY TO CONSTRUCT BRIDGE — PERMISSIVE ONLY — COMMON LAW RIGHTS—NUISANCE—INJUNCTION — DAMAGES.

Legislative authority, merely permissive in terms, does not abrogate common law rights, hence where under the Ontario Municipal Act, authority is given a municipality to build a bridge over a river, the work must be done with due regard to the rights of others, and the resultant stopping or partial stopping of flowing water gives to persons injured thereby a prima facie right of action for damages and an injunction against the nuisance.

NUISANCE — DAMAGE TO BUSINESS — OBSTRUCTING STREET — CONSEQUENTIAL DAMAGE.

Where a decrease ensued in the volume of business of a merchant, and which he attributed to the fault of a municipal corporation which obstructed, to more than 1,000 feet distant, the street where he carried on his business, the obstruction being caused by works which took a much longer time than necessary to construct. The loss is not the direct or immediate consequence of the matters complained of, consequently an action by the merchant will not lie to recover the amount he lost. (Harold v. Mayor of Montreal (1867), 11 L.C. 169; Robillard v. Montreal, 5 B.R. 292, and Bicket v. Metropolitan R. Co., L.R. 2 H.L. 188, followed.)

(§ II G—209)—BOARD OF COMMISSIONERS— NEGLIGENCE OF ENGINEER.

A member of a municipal council or board of commissioners which has directed work to be done by its engineer, who from curiosity or from any other motive is present when the work is being done, and is injured owing to the negligence or want of skill of the engineer, may recover from the corporation damages for the injuries sustained.

LIABILITY OF CITY CORPORATION FOR NEGLECT OF POLICE FORCE TO PROTECT PROPERTY OF RATEPAYERS FROM ROBBERY AND VIOLENCE—RELATION OF POLICE FORCE TO CORPORATION—MUNICIPAL ACT, SS. 354-370—PLEADING—RULE 124—SUMMARY DISMISSAL OF ACTIONS.

The plaintiffs, residents and ratepayers of a city, sued for damages for loss sustained by rioters invading their business premises and stealing and injuring their goods, alleging that the police force employed and maintained by the corporation, and paid out of the rates and taxes to which the plaintiffs had contributed, should have protected their premises and prevented the riotous and unlawful conduct complained of.—Held, that the duty of preserving the peace and of preventing robberies and other crimes and offences was a duty cast by the Municipal Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 192, s. 367, upon the police force, and not upon the corporation; what was complained of was merely inaction; and, unless the act left undone was an act which the city corporation was under legal obligation to do, the failure to do it did not bring the corporation under liability, even if the person who was charged with the duty of doing it was one who, for some purposes and in respect of certain matters, could be looked upon as the servant of the corporation. It was not alleged that the corporation failed to perform any of the duties expressly cast upon it or its council by any of the provisions of the Municipal Act from s. 354 to s. 370; and proof of the facts alleged would not establish legal liability on the part of the corporation.

ILLEGAL ARREST—CONSTABLE—PUBLIC OFFICER—NOTICE OF ACTION.

A constable of the city of Montreal who arrests in a public street a person on a charge of having committed a theft, does not act as an employee and officer of the city, but must be considered as a peace agent in the service of the state, and therefore the city of Montreal is not responsible for his conduct. The constables of the city of Montreal are public officers, and, in such capacity, they cannot be sued for damages by reason of an act done by them in the exercise of their functions without notice of action of at least 1 month before the issue of the writ of summons, in accordance with art. 88 C.C.P. The court is bound to take notice of such want of notice, although it has not been raised as a part of the defence.

(§ II G—212)—FIRE—TARDINESS OF RESPONSE TO THE CALL—NEGLECT TO INSTALL HYDRANTS—DAMAGES—LIABILITY—C.C., ART. 1053.

A resolution of a municipal council, ordering the installation of hydrants in a given place in order to insure efficient fire protection, is a simple administrative measure and not a reciprocal contract, the breach of which would have implied a contractual error and liability for damages on the part of the corporation in the case of a fire which could not be fought effectually. If, however, a resolution of this nature is equivalent to a contractual undertaking, the liability and damages for the omission of the corporation to carry out the terms would only be fixed after a formal demand.

(§ II G—222)—LIABILITY FOR ALLOWING INDEPENDENT CONTRACTOR TO PLACE DANGEROUS IMPLEMENT IN STREET—ATTRACTION TO CHILDREN.

Where a municipal corporation allowed an independent contractor, engaged in repairing a street, to negligently place a cauldron of boiling pitch in a busy street without taking any precautions to protect the public, and where it might be an attraction to children, the corporation is liable in damages for injuries sustained by a child, who, while playing in the street, was splashed with the boiling pitch, by reason of the breaking of the wooden handle of a ladle used by an employee of the independent contractor in handling the pitch.

HIGHWAYS—REASONABLE SAFETY.

A municipal corporation is not an insurer of travellers using its streets; its duty is to use reasonable care to keep its streets in a reasonably safe condition for ordinary travel by persons exercising ordinary care for their own safety.

Fafard v. Quebec, 39 D.L.R. 717, 55 Can. S.C.R. 615, affirming 35 D.L.R. 661, 26 Que. K.B. 139; 59 Que. S.C. 226.

NEGLECT OPERATOR OF HIRED MACHINERY—FRIGHTENING HORSES.

Damages sustained by the frightening of horses caused by the negligent operation of a steam wagon hired by a municipality having the control and full power of direction over the engineer furnished with it, renders the municipality not the owner liable therefor, particularly where the cause of the accident is not attributable to any defect in the engine, but to the failure of the municipality to take the necessary precautions. [Donovan v. Laing, [1893] 1 Q.B. 629, followed.]

Mack v. Lake Winnipeg Shipping Co., 24 D.L.R. 128, 25 Man. L.R. 364, 8 W.W.R. 323.

OPERATION OF STEAM DRILL—FRIGHTENING HORSES.

A municipality is liable for the consequences of a runaway caused by the noise and fumes from the operation of a steam drill without adopting practicable precautions to avoid the accident.

Beshamps v. Montreal, 48 Que. S.C. 351.

(§ II G—223)—FIRE DEPARTMENT—VOLUNTARY ESTABLISHMENT—NEGLIGENCE.

Where a municipal corporation is not bound by law to establish and manage a fire department, but has elected to create it by-law, it is liable for damages sustained by the negligence, during their performance of duty, of the servants employed by the municipality to carry on the department. [Hesketh v. Toronto, 25 A.R. (Ont.) 449; Shaw v. Winnipeg, 19 Man. L.R. 234, followed.]

Thomas v. Winnipeg, 16 D.L.R. 390, 24 Man. L.R. 106, 27 W.L.R. 314, 6 W.W.R. 379.

IN FIRE DEPARTMENT.

A municipal corporation is not liable at law for damages resulting from the destruction of the property of its ratepayers by fire as a result of an inefficient fire department, unless such fire were the direct result of a tort formally authorized by such municipality.

NEGLIGENCE—REMOVAL OF DANGEROUS SUBSTANCE FROM BURNING BUILDING BY CITY FIREMEN—EXPLOSION AFTER REMOVAL—INJURY TO PERSON—LIABILITY—AGENCY OF FIREMEN FOR OWNER OF BUILDING—FINDINGS OF JURY—LIABILITY OF CITY CORPORATIONS—EVIDENCE.

Lester v. Ottawa, 8 O.W.N. 295, 591.

(§ II G—224)—IN SEWER DEPARTMENT.

It is actionable negligence for the servants of a municipality to leave a trench connecting the plaintiff's premises with a public sewer, in a street, partly filled with frozen chunks of earth so that water caught therein during a sudden thaw, percolated through them and followed the trench into the plaintiff's cellar, causing damage therein, notwithstanding that the last few feet of the trench were filled in the same manner by the plaintiff.

Davidson v. Lethbridge, 4 D.L.R. 523, 21 W.L.R. 273, 2 W.W.R. 317.

(§ II G—225)—IN POLICE DEPARTMENT—NEGLIGENCE OF CONSTABLE IN DRIVING MOTOR AMBULANCE IN CARRYING INJURED PERSON TO HOSPITAL—DAMAGES—LIABILITY OF CITY—LIABILITY OF BOARD OF POLICE COMMISSIONERS—LIABILITY OF INDIVIDUAL MEMBERS OF BOARD.

The city of Winnipeg is not liable under the charter of incorporation for the negligent acts of a police constable appointed by the Board of Police Commissioners, over whom it has no right of discharge or control. The city having purchased and delivered a motor ambulance to the police department, and having no control or power to issue orders to, or discipline, or dismiss for misconduct the constable driver of such motor is not liable as owner for the negligence of such driver under the Motor Vehicles Act (Man.), although technically the owner of such ambulance. The possession of an ambulance is essential to the proper and efficient performance by the police of an important part of their public duty, and in driving it to convey an injured person to a hospital a constable is discharging his public duty as a policeman. The Board of Police Commissioners is an agency of the state, appointed by the state to perform a public duty and cannot be held liable for anything done in the discharge of such public duty. [Winterbottom v. London, 1 O.L.R. 549, affirmed 2 O.L.R. 105, followed.] The Chief of Police has no power to authorize a speed in excess of that allowed by law, and the Board is not liable for the acts of a constable acting under such illegal order, given by him on his own responsibility and without authority derived from them. The Board of Police Commissioners is created by statute, a bare administrative agency, without property out of which any judgment recovered against it can be realized, and a judgment would be absolutely futile; also being unable to own anything it cannot be held liable as owner under the Motor Vehicles Act. The individual members of the Board cannot be held liable for an act which they did not sanction either individually or as a Board.

Bowles v. Winnipeg, 45 D.L.R. 94, [1919] 1 W.W.R. 198. [See [1918] 2 W.W.R. 529.]

IN POLICE DEPARTMENT.

Where constables in the ordinary course of their duty and in pursuance of civic by-laws take into custody a person in a state of intoxication, they are bound to exercise every reasonable care and precaution to afford their charge proper protection, and failure to do so renders the city which employs them liable in damages for injuries that may result from imprudence and negligence.

(§ II G—227)—IN HEALTH DEPARTMENT—LIABILITY FOR ACTS OF MEAT INSPECTOR—UNLAWFUL CONFISCATION.

The city of Montreal is liable in damages when its inspectors without lawful cause and without complying with the formalities required by law confiscate in a butcher shop meats not fit for consumption.

Gaudreau v. Montreal, 48 Que. S.C. 388.

(§ II G—228a)—ARREST—NONPAYMENT OF TAXES—DEFENCE—BURDEN OF PROOF.

In an action for assault and wrongful imprisonment arising from the arrest and imprisonment of the plaintiff for nonpayment of school rates and taxes the plaintiff contended that the rate was not made up as required by the statute. The court held that the burden of proving this was, under the pleadings, on the plaintiff and he had not satisfied this burden.

Taylor v. Durno, 45 D.L.R. 450.

IN MAKING ARREST.

By application of the rule that the principal is responsible for the acts of his agent, an action for damages by a person illegally arrested by a constable lies against the municipality by which such constable is appointed and paid.

MALICIOUS PROSECUTION—ARREST OF EMPLOYEE OF POWER COMPANY—LIABILITY FOR ACTS OF MAYOR—COSTS.

Waters v. Toronto, 24 O.W.R. 746.

LIABILITY FOR ACTS OF OFFICERS—TOWN CONSTABLES.

The appointment of police officers is devolved upon cities and towns by the Legislature as a convenient mode of exercising a function of government, but this does not render them liable for the unlawful or negligent acts of such police officers even when committed in attempts to enforce ordinances or by-laws of the corporation employing them, as such acts are done by them in their public capacity, and not as agents or servants of the corporation.

Gibney v. Yorkton, 31 W.L.R. 523.

ILLEGAL ARREST BY CONSTABLES—LIABILITY—RESPONDEAT SUPERIOR.

Where a constable illegally arrests a person without a warrant and the chief constable approved of the act and detains the prisoner, both are guilty of a trespass. Where police constables appointed by a justice of the peace under the Constables Ordinance (Con. Ord. 1905, Alta.), are engaged and paid by a municipal corporation in its efforts to maintain peace in the community, the municipality possesses the like immunities as the Crown, and cannot be held liable for wrongful acts of such constables in their efforts to secure the observance of the law. The doctrine of "respondeat superior" does not apply. [Griffin v. Coleman, 4 H. & N. 265, approved; McCleave v. Moncton 32 Can. S.C.R. 106, followed.]

Pon Yin v. Edmonton, 31 W.L.R. 402, 8 W.W.R. 809.

(§ II G—231)—DESTRUCTION OF PROPERTY—TOWN ACT (SASK.)—INJURIOUS AFFECTION—DAMAGES.

Under s. 340 of the Town Act (Sask. 1916, c. 19) the owner of property is entitled to damages for injurious affection to the property by the exercise of the powers conferred by the Act upon the town although no property has, in fact, been taken. The effect of s. 343 of the Act is that the town may, if it sees fit, give notice in a local newspaper of the completion of the work, and in such notice may state the last day on which a claim for damages may be filed, and claims must be filed within the time limited by the notice. In the absence of such notice by the town, notice within a year as provided by s. 342 is sufficient.

(§ II G—235)—DRAINS—IMPROPER CONSTRUCTION—FLOODED DRAINS—LIABILITY FOR.

It is negligence for a municipality to begin digging a ditch at the wrong end, the result of which was to bring large quantities of water to a point on the land of the plaintiff, where it remained an unreasonable time, and it is answerable in damages for same.

Where under the Municipal Drainage Act, one township initiates proceedings for the building of a drain which would invade another township, whether what is proposed to be done is more than is required for the purpose is not a question of law but of fact, depending upon the evidence.

SEWERS—WORK ON—DELAY IN RESTORING STREET—MUNICIPAL LIABILITY.

A city may be held liable in an action for damages for injury sustained by want of proper access to business premises by reason of the city's failure to exercise reasonable expedition in completing the restoration to a travelable condition of a street abutting the business premises after it had been opened up for the purpose of putting in a concrete sewer.

OBSTRUCTION OF SEWERS—OVERLOADING THE SYSTEM—ADDITIONAL SEWERS—LIABILITY, TEST OF.

Where a city, for sanitary or other reasons, attaches additional sewers to its system, well knowing that such additional sewers will overload the system, it must be responsible for the damage resulting from such overloading, unless by contract with the owners of property served by such additional sewers it makes it a condition of granting a sewer connection that it shall not be liable for resulting damage.

CONSTRUCTION OF DAM—DIVERTING WATER.

A rural municipality in Manitoba is liable in damages for constructing through its servants a dam in the improvement of its roadways and so diverting water from its natural course that more water came upon the plaintiff's farm than would otherwise have reached it.

Thorsteinson v. North Norfolk, 22 D.L.R. 34.

(8 H G 3—255)—MANHOLES IN STREETS—DEFECTIVE COVER.

The city of Montreal is responsible for the condition of the manholes in its streets, and is liable in damages for injury caused by a pedestrian falling in; the cover having been removed and improperly replaced by parties unknown.

Spedding v. Montreal, 23 D.L.R. 681, 47 Que. S.C. 493.

SEWERS — GAS MAINS — INJURY — PARAMOUNTCY OF HEALTH—VESTED RIGHTS.

Space occupied by gas mains, and the mains themselves, are of the nature of "land," as defined by s. 321 (b) of the Municipal Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 192, and the lowering of a gas main, necessitated by the municipality constructing a sewer, is an "injurious affection of land" in respect of which the gas company, as "owner" is entitled to compensation from the municipality under s. 325 (1) of the Act. The cost of the lowering operation is the measure of compensation. There is, in English law, no doctrine of "paramountcy" in the abstract, with respect to the duty of a municipality in providing sewers on their streets, and, in the absence of legislative authority, the vested rights of parties must not be displaced or withdrawn except by legislative authority; it is not permissible to have any preferential interpretation or adjustment of rights flowing from statute.

Toronto v. Consumers' Gas Co., 30 D.L.R. 590, [1916] 2 A.C. 618, 37 O.L.R. 586, affirming 19 D.L.R. 882, 32 O.L.R. 21.

HIGHWAYS—SURFACE WATER—DAMAGE TO BUILDING — EXCAVATION — LICENSE — LIABILITY.

The Ontario Municipal Act (R.S.O. 1914, c. 192, ss. 406a, 483) confers no power upon a municipality to give a license to make excavations on a highway in the course of building operations by an abutting owner; and where the latter, on the assumption that the license gave him the right, did make such excavations, in consequence whereof a wall of the building fell in from the accumulation of water on the highway, the injury will be deemed occasioned by his own unlawful act and he has no recourse against the corporation.

RISE OF CANALS—FLOOD—LEVEL OF CELLAR — NOTICE OF ACTION—LIMITATION—C. C. ART. 1053, 62 VICT. [1890] c. 58. ARTS. 536, 537. (CHARTÉ DE MONTREAL.)

Whether or not the city of Montreal had built a sewer in the street in front of a building to a level higher than the cellar of this building, it is not responsible for damages caused by a flood of the cellar if it has not committed any fault and is not guilty of negligence. It is for the owner to make the levelling between the sewer and his house in such a way as to prevent the water from entering his cellar.

Laurin v. Montreal, 25 Rev. Leg. 167.

INUNDATION — DAMAGES — VALUATION — FLOODING OF THE WATERS OF THE S. LAWRENCE—VIS MAJOR—C.C. ART. 17, SS. 24, 1053.

An owner who sues a municipality for damages suffered by reason of annual floods, and who is not consulted, cannot commence a new action, for a subsequent flooding, if the evidence shows that the damages claimed are mixed up with the previous floodings, so that it is impossible to distinguish between them and to make a separate valuation. The inundation of riparian lands by flooding of the waters of Lake St. Louis, in the St. Lawrence river, in the spring and autumn, is a case of vis major for which no one is responsible.

Paradis v. The City of Lachine, 56 Que. S.C. 137.

In this case it was held, that the city of Vancouver was under no statutory or common law liability to provide means of drainage to plaintiff's basement, and that the latter voluntarily assumed the risk, which resulted in the damage complained of, by connecting with the drain in the manner he did.

Woodward v. Vancouver, 16 B.C.R. 457, 19 W.L.R. 297.

BURSTING OF WATER MAIN—FLOODING OF BASEMENT.

Where damages are caused by inanimate things, a legal presumption exists as to the fault of the proprietor or guardian thereof. Therefore, the city of Montreal is responsible for the damages caused by the inundation of the basement of a house, through the cracking of a water main pipe, the property and under the care of the municipality.

Delahanty v. Montreal, 54 Que. S.C. 50.

CHANGE OF WATER COURSE—EXPROPRIATION.

A municipal corporation has no right, except in cases provided by law, to change, by minutes of proceedings, the natural direction of a water course in such a way as to cause it to flow over lands which nature has not subjected to such servitude. A corporation can only order the expropriation of land in order to secure the carrying out of its minutes, when the works ordered are of general public interest, but not when they only concern a few taxpayers.

NEGLIGENCE—LIABILITY OF MUNICIPALITY FOR FAILURE TO TURN OFF UNUSED WATER SERVICE PIPE—MUNICIPAL PUBLIC WORKS ACT, s. 15.

A municipality was held liable for damages caused by flooding of a basement by a leak in an unused water service pipe which it had failed to turn off as requested, or apart from being requested, as was its duty on knowing, as the court believed it did, that the said pipe was not being used. Section 15 of the Municipal Public Works Act, protecting a municipality from liability for breaking of service pipes, etc., refers only to service pipes upon property of the municipality.

SEWERAGE SYSTEM—AUTHORIZED BY LEGISLATURE—NEGLIGENCE IN CONSTRUCTION AND OPERATION—DAMAGES.

No action will lie against a municipal corporation for doing that which the Legislature has authorized if it be done without negligence although it causes damage; but an action does lie for doing that which the Legislature has authorized if it be done negligently causing damage.

DRAINS—POLLUTION AND ODORS.

A municipal corporation which permits a cheese manufacturer to drain his factory into a defective drain, established by process-verbal, which runs across the property of the plaintiff, is liable in damages for the injury which the latter may sustain therefrom in consequence of the offensive odors escaping from the drain.

Sevigny v. St. David, 50 Que. S.C. 291.

(§ II G—237)—DRAINS—OBSTRUCTIONS—SURFACE WATERS—LIABILITY—NOTICE AND OPPORTUNITY.

Where negligence, for want of adequate municipal provision to carry off drainage or overflow highway waters, is charged against a municipality under the Municipal Act, R.S.M. 1902, c. 116 (s. 516a, added by Man. 1904, c. 36, s. 1), reasonable notice of danger or damage must be brought home to the municipality, and it must be given a reasonable opportunity to avert the danger and prevent the damage. [Rice v. Whitby, 25 A.R. (Ont.) 191, applied.]

Portage Fruit Co. v. Portage La Prairie, 14 D.L.R. 21, 23 Man. L.R. 822, 25 W.L.R. 438, 5 W.W.R. 145.

OBSTRUCTIONS OF SEWER.

The neglect of a town to clean out an open drain which it had defectively constructed adjacent to the land of the plaintiff in such a manner that the drain would fill up, will render the municipality liable for injuries sustained because of the water of the drain backing up and flooding the plaintiff's land, and also for causing a more continuous seepage of water into it, notwithstanding that some small portion of the injury was occasioned by the backing up of the waters of a creek, and that the plaintiff might have diminished the damage by digging a watercourse, where, on the whole, the greater portion of the injury was due to the negligence of the town.

(§ II G—241)—DRAINAGE—AS TO SURFACE WATER—CONTRIBUTORY NEGLIGENCE.

Where negligence for want of adequate municipal provision to carry off drainage or overflow waters from the highway is charged against a municipality by a contiguous landowner, evidence of such owner's omission to protect his own property from the overflow, where, owing to the level surface of the locality such protection would have been simple and inexpensive, is relevant to shew want of reasonable precaution by the owner himself.

Portage Fruit Co. v. Portage La Prairie, 14 D.L.R. 21, 25 W.L.R. 438, 23 Man. L.R. 822, 5 W.W.R. 145.

LIABILITY FOR DAMAGES—FAILURE TO PROVIDE SUFFICIENT OUTLET FOR DITCH—BACKING UP OF WATER.

A rural municipality is answerable in damages for a failure to provide a sufficient outlet for a ditch opened by it adjacent to the plaintiff's land, by reason of which water backed up and inundated the land so as to destroy the fertility thereof, and render it useless for cultivation.

Kenny v. St. Clements, 15 D.L.R. 229, 26 W.L.R. 432, 24 Man. L.R. 51, affirming on this point 4 D.L.R. 304.

A municipality is answerable in damages where it entered upon the land of the plaintiff and enlarged a ravine that was not a natural watercourse, into which it wrongfully carried water by the construction of a drainage ditch.

Lamontagne v. Woodlands, 5 D.L.R. 524, 21 W.L.R. 881, 22 Man. L.R. 495.

AS TO SURFACE WATERS.

If a municipal corporation, about to drain into a natural watercourse, proceeds, without due regard to the right of an adjoining property owner and without any attempt at preliminary amicable negotiations with a view to obviating or lessening the damage to adjoining lands, to overflow the course and damage neighbouring lands, the municipality which committed the wrong cannot complain if the damages awarded against it for both past and future injury, in lieu of an injunction, should slightly exceed a sum which would compensate the landowner, the situation having been brought about by its own wrongdoing. Where a drainage ditch is constructed by a defendant municipal corporation opposite the plaintiff's farm so as to drain surface water into a natural watercourse, it may not, apart from statutory authority, bring into it a larger volume of water than can be carried at its natural capacity, and if it does so, the injured party has a remedy in damages or by injunction.

McGuire v. Brighton, 7 D.L.R. 314, 4 O.W.N. 137, 23 O.W.R. 223.

RELEASE OF LAKE WATER—OVERFLOW OF LANDS.

A municipality is answerable for the damages caused by an overflow of lands, where it permits the accumulation of water in a lake after a heavy rainfall, and later, at the end of the rain, releases the water in large volumes on the lands of riparian owners.

James v. Bridgewater, 24 D.L.R. 634, 49 N.S.R. 188, affirming 20 D.L.R. 799.

WATERCOURSE — DRAINAGE — LEGAL SERVITUDE—ACQUIESCENCE.

No person is obliged to assist in making upon his own land a watercourse of a size greater than may be necessary for the drainage of such land. (Art. 881, Mun. Code). A process-verbal of a watercourse which contravenes the provisions of the law and renders lands subject to drainage works which, by reason of their situation, cannot be of benefit to the lands, is pro tanto illegal and null; and the owner who has so suffered injury is entitled to have it set aside so far as it affects him. Such a violation of the law constitutes an aggravation of the servitude which the owner of the lands subjected thereto has the right to repudiate at any time; it cannot be urged against him that he has acquiesced in the construction of the works on account of the fact that he has temporarily submitted to the provisions of the process-verbal which are ultra vires.

NEGLECT—UNUSED WATER PIPE—BREAK IN—DAMAGES.

The plaintiff was tenant of premises supplied by a city with water. The old service pipe that supplied a former building had not been removed nor used since the erection of the present building. The water in this old service pipe, unknown to the plaintiff or its landlord, had never been turned off by the city, and in course of time a leak occurred therein and the basement of the plaintiff's premises was flooded whereby it sustained damage. Held, that the defendant was liable.

Elite Cafe v. Regina, 12 S.L.R. 161.

BURSTING OF WATER PIPES.

A municipal corporation is not responsible for injury caused by inundation in the streets due to the breaking of the pipes of an aqueduct, when the cause of the break is unknown and the municipality proves that it could not foresee nor prevent it and is not guilty of any negligence.

La Sage v. Montreal, 51 Que. S.C. 196.

WATERWORKS—RIPARIAN RIGHTS—DAMAGES—NOTICE OF ACTION.

The authority given, in its charter of incorporation, by the legislature to a city, "to construct and maintain an aqueduct" and to "take" within a radius of 50 miles of its boundaries, such water as it may require, does not in any manner derogate from art. 503 C.C. (Que.). If the city establishes the intake for its aqueduct in a river, it cannot invoke this authority for the purpose of storing the waters of the river and depriving the riparian proprietors above that point of the rights which they possess under the common law without previously expropriating such rights. The notice of action required by the charter of the city of Quebec, as a condition precedent to the bringing of any action for damages, and which is required to be given within thirty days "from the day when the accident occurred," is not necessary when the cause of action does not arise from an accident. In such a case, a protest may take the place of notice, subject to the discretion of the court.

Wood v. Hamilton, 12 D.L.R. 451, 28 O.L.R. 214, reversing 8 D.L.R. 825.

GAOL SUPERVISION.

A small rural municipality whose only police officer arrests a person for drunkenness and disorderly conduct, and, after taking away from the prisoner the matches found upon him, imprisons him in a frame "lock-up" building to await his trial before a magistrate, is under no legal obligation to keep a caretaker or watchman in constant supervision over the prisoner; and the municipality is not liable to the prisoner's relatives for his death by a fire which burned up the lock-up in an interval between the police officer's hourly calls of inspection, where the cause of the fire is not shown.

McKenzie v. Chilliwack, 8 D.L.R. 692, [1912] A.C. 888, affirming 15 B.C.R. 256.
CONDITION OF PUBLIC LAVATORY—ACCUMULATION OF SNOW AND ICE—NEGLIGENCE—LIABILITY OF MUNICIPALITY.

A person using a public lavatory established by a municipal corporation under a power to that effect, although there was no statutory obligation compelling such establishment can sue for injuries caused by the negligence of servants employed therein in the performance of their duties. (§ II G—260) — PRESENTING CLAIMS AGAINST—ARBITRATION—INJURY TO LANDS BY GRADING STREET.

On an application for the appointment of an arbitrator to fix compensation for altering the grade of a street, under s. 10 of title 27 of the charter of the city of Medicine Hat, the fact that the applicant's property is benefited rather than injured by the change of grade, or that the city has not yet completed its work upon the street, is not fatal to such application.

LIABILITY FOR DAMAGES—NOTICE CONDITION PRECEDENT TO LIABILITY.

Where by statute notice of claim must be served on a municipal corporation within a fixed delay from the date of the accident, which notice should contain particulars as to time, place and date, and a notice is served, the corporation cannot escape liability by pleading an irregularity in the notice which has not caused it any prejudice, more particularly where the plaintiff gave notice of his having fallen opposite a public building fronting on two streets and the name of one street is added after the designation of the building, and after the expiry of the delays for serving the notice the plaintiff amends the notice by stating he fell opposite the same building, but on the other street, his action will not be dismissed for want of notice, especially where the corporation has obtained full possession of the facts and proceeded in warranty for indemnity against the owners of the building opposite which the plaintiff fell. The statute requiring notice of action against a municipal corporation was not enacted to allow corporations to escape liability on technical grounds, but to enable them by investigation to come into possession of all facts, so as to either compromise or properly prepare its defence.

West v. Montreal and St. Martin's Church, 9 D.L.R. 9.

DEFECTIVE SIDEWALK—NOTICE—DELAY—"REASONABLE EXCUSE."

Failure to give notice to the municipality of injuries sustained, by reason of a defective sidewalk, as required by s. 460 (4) of the Municipal Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 192, within the time specified by the Act, is fatal to the plaintiff's action, unless there was reasonable excuse for delay. It is not a reasonable excuse to say that plaintiff failed to apprehend the seriousness of the injury.

Wallace v. Windsor, 28 D.L.R. 655, 36 O.L.R. 62.

Claiming damages against a municipality "for smashing plaintiff's automobile by car No. 46 on Cumberland St. North this morning" is a sufficient notice of action.

NOTICE OF ACTION—SUFFICIENCY.

Where the notice of action to a municipality sufficiently sets out the place of the accident, a slight variation as to the exact spot does not affect its validity.

Robertson v. Montreal, 30 D.L.R. 312, 50 Que. S.C. 208.

NOTICE OF INJURY—DESCRIPTION—SUFFICIENCY—MISTAKE.

It is not necessary that the notice of injury required under the Municipal Act,

R.S.O. 1914, c. 192, s. 406 (4) should state the day on which the accident happened so long as it is given within 7 days of the happening of the injury. An evident mistake in the description does not invalidate the notice when sufficient information is left therein to identify the place where the accident took place, and the mistake does not mislead the defendants.

NOTICE OF INJURY—DIVERSION OF WATER.

Section 561 of the charter of the city of Quebec requires a notice to be given within 30 days in the case of a claim for damages resulting from accident; in an action for damages to a tannery by reducing the supply of water from a river used for power purposes, s. 58 applies, and the 30 days' notice is unnecessary.

Quebec v. Bastien, 32 D.L.R. 499, 25 Que. K.B. 539.

NOTICE OF ACTION—CITIES AND TOWNS ACT—ESSENTIALS—LOSS BY FIRE.

Art. 5864 of the Cities and Towns Act, reproduced in the defendant's charter, as amended by 2 Geo. V., c. 59, requires that before instituting an action for damages for personal injuries, or for damages to movable or immovable property, written notice be given to the city clerk within 60 days from the date on which the right of action accrued of the claimant's intention to sue, the details of the claim, and the place where he resides; in default whereof the defendant is not bound to pay damages, notwithstanding any provision of law to the contrary. That provision makes the notice which it requires previous to service of the summons an essential formality, the omission of which entails the nullity of the action. Knowledge which the defendant might have of the accident, or of damages to movable or immovable property, does not dispense with the notice. Service on the defendant of a simple deed of quit-tance and subrogation of the rights, remedies and claims of the victim of the accident, or damages to the property, does not free the assignee of the obligation to give the notice. The notice must be written, previous to the action; it must particularize, within the delay fixed, the nature, character and amount of damages; the place where the damages were sustained; the date—if not exact, at least approximate—at which they occurred; the intention to sue; the residence of the claimant; all the facts and circumstances which bring about the liability of the defendant. An omission of the notice does not give rise to a preliminary exception to form; while the 4 months prescription enacted by the same provision always produces a peremptory exception of the action. The losses caused by a fire constitute damages to movable and immovable property of the same nature as those intended by art. 5864.

Strathcona Fire Ins. Co. v. Sorel, 24 Rev. de Jur. 609.

NOTICE OF ACTION—HIGHWAY—LOSS OF HORSE.

A claim, with threats to refer it to an advocate, addressed to the mayor of a municipality after a road accident, is equivalent to the notice of action required by art. 453, Mun. Code, if it is established that such claim has been communicated to council. In the present case the court held that a claim for $75 can take the place of a notice of action preliminary to an action for $125. A municipal corporation is responsible for the loss of a horse which fell and broke a foot, after having slipped on a stone sticking out of the roadway, unless it is shown that the stone was there by a mere accident, or force majeure. Gaudreau v. Beaufort, 54 Que. S.C. 23.

NOTICE OF ACTION—WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT—PRESCRIPTION.

Sections 536, 536a and 536b of the charter of the city of Montreal, which relate to the notice to be given to it in the case of actions for damages, to the 6 months prescription for such actions, and to the city's recourse in warranty having as their object actions based on liability for offences or quasi offences, do not apply to actions brought under the Workmen's Compensation Act, which are based on a legal and contractual obligation.

Robin v. Montreal, 54 Que. S.C. 2.

NOTICE OF ACTION—EXCUSE.

The failure to give the notice of action required by the charter of the City of Montreal is an absolute bar to the right of action, but the plaintiff is not deprived of his right if, through sickness or other disability, he was prevented from giving the notice, or was unable to write. If the lower court admitted that the plaintiff had good reasons for not having given the notice, and that he has not lost his right of action as aforesaid, a court of appeal should not interfere with the discretion so exercised by the first judge.

Fee v. Montreal, 52 Que. S.C. 336.

INJURY TO LAND—NOTICE—LIMITATIONS.

Upon the proper construction of s. 245, of the City Act of Prince Albert, R.S.S. 1909, c. 84, the council is liable to pay damages for any land injuriously affected by the exercise of the powers conferred by that Act upon the city, and its liability to pay compensation for land injuriously affected is not limited to a case where some land had been actually taken by the city and other land injuriously affected thereby.

NOTICE OF SUIT—PARTICULARS.

An action in damages against a municipal corporation governed by the Cities' and Towns' Act (Que.), will be dismissed an exception to the form, if the notice of suit previously given did not contain the particulars of plaintiff's claim, or state the place of his residence.

Potter v. St. Lambert, 17 Que. P.R. 295.
DAMAGE FROM LOWERING STREET GRADE—CONTINUOUS CAUSE—NOTICE.

Where an owner of property upon which he proposes to build, excavates to bring the top of the foundation to the required height above the then existing grade of the street, and the lowering of the grade renders it useless as it stands, the cause of action is not a continuing one. [Darley Main Colliery Co. v. Mitchell, 11 App. Cas. 133, followed; Mason v. South Norfolk R. Co., 19 O.R. 132, and Carr v. C.P.R. Co., 14 Can. Ry. Cas. 40, distinguished]; and if the necessary notice is not given under s. 125 (a) of the Calgary charter the cause of action is barred.

Randall v. Calgary, 33 W.L.R. 886.

NEGIGENCE—DEFECT IN SIDEWALK—ACCIDENT—WANT OF NOTICE IN MUNICIPALITY.

In order that a municipality liable for an accident by reason of nonrepair, it must be shown that it had notice of the existence of the defect, or that defect has existed for such a length of time as makes it probable that it knew of it or ought to have known of it.

Bell v. Winnipeg, [1919] 2 W.W.R. 535.

GG. COLLECTION OF CLAIMS AGAINST. (§ II GG-264)—LIABILITY OF COUNTY OR TOWNSHIP.

Where under ss. 352 and 353, subs. 5, c. 192, R.S.O. 1914, the council of a city or town establishes and maintains a police office, etc., and where by-law a police office is provided by that council, a claim for stationery and furniture should be brought against the town and not against the county.

Holmested v. Huron, 24 D.L.R. 561.

DAMAGES FROM GRADING STREETS—REMEDY—ACTION AT LAW—ARRBITRATION.

The fact that the affidavit on a motion to appoint an arbitrator claims damages in consequence of excessive and unnecessary grading does not thereby restrict the applicant to the remedy by an action at common law, but it is for the arbitrator, acting under s. 370 of the City Act, 1915, c. 16, to determine the amount of damages resulting from the exercise of powers under the Act.

LIABILITY FOR CARE OF THE SICK—RESIDENCE—RETROACTIVENESS OF STATUTE.

The residence required to charge a town with the statutory liability under ss. 171, 172 of the Town Act, R.S.S. 1909, c. 85, for hospital treatment of persons falling sick, refers to the place where the person happens to fall sick and not to the place where the person is admitted to the hospital; the fact that the statute has been amended as to make notice of receiving the patient a condition precedent to such liability cannot apply to cases arising before the passage of the amendment.

(§ II H-265) — LOCAL IMPROVEMENTS—NOTICE OF ASSESSMENT—SUFFICIENCY.

A notice of assessment for local improvements is sufficient if when published it signifies, as required by statute, an "intention of making such assessments," and those affected are benefited by the proposed work of improvement.

B.C. Electric R. Co. v. Victoria; Re Pandora Ave., 36 D.L.R. 671, 24 B.C.R. 346, [1917] 3 W.W.R. 542.

DUTY AS TO WATER SUPPLY—ASSESSMENT FOR—CROWN.

Apart from any statutory duty under the Cities and Towns Act (Que., 1909) and any by-laws passed in pursuance thereof, there is an implied obligation on the part of a municipal corporation, arising from necessity, to give a water supply to buildings of the Dominion government, so long as the latter is willing, in consideration of such supply, to make fair and reasonable payment; it is subject to a special charge imposed by the municipality for the use of such supply.

Minister of Justice for Canada v. Levis, 45 D.L.R. 180, [1919] A.C. 505, affirming 51 Que. S.C. 267, sub nom. Doherty v. Levis.

FRONTAGE TAX—NOTICE—QUASHING BY-LAW—ACTION.

Sections 525, 527a of the charter of the city of Winnipeg was not intended to extend the time within which a by-law may be moved against under s. 526, but provide a means whereby the city may much abridge the time within which an application may be made to quash a by-law imposing a rate. [Bogart v. Belleville, 6 U.C.C.P. 425, distinguished.] The imposition of a frontage tax is in the nature of a judicial proceeding, of which the party affected must have notice, and be allowed to be heard. The ignoring of the provisions of s. 644 in the imposition of a frontage tax on an owner's property, without giving him an opportunity of being heard renders the assessment illegal and void. Notwithstanding s. 532 of the Winnipeg charter, an action may be brought to have a by-law declared illegal and to restrain its enforcement without first procuring it to be quashed. [Rose v. West Wawatash, 19 O.R. 204; Kerfoot v. Watford, 24 O.R. 235, followed.]

MUNICIPAL VALUATION—LAND IN CULTIVATION—JURISDICTION—SUPERIOR COURT.

The Superior Court has jurisdiction in an action to declare illegal a municipal valuation of real estate by assessors of the City of Montreal when the object of the action is, not only to reduce the entry on the valuation roll, but also to declare that the principle of the valuation is erroneous, as in the case where the municipal assessors have disregarded the owner's right to have his real estate valued as land under cultivation and have assessed it as building lots.

Labege v. Montreal, 27 Que. K.B. 1.
VALUATION ROLL—AGRICULTURAL LAND AND CITY PROPERTY—APPEAL.

Although the Cities and Towns Act restricts to the lowest rate the tax which corporations can levy upon agricultural lands situated within the limits of their municipalities, the omission to state in the valuation roll any reference to distinguish agricultural lands from city property is not a reason for voiding the roll. It is at the time of the making up of the collector's roll that interested taxpayers ought to appeal if their properties are taxed in excess of the rate fixed by law.

Delisle v. Roberval, 54 Que. S.C. 103.
VALUATION OF LAND—ANNEXATION—AGREEMENT—REVIEW.

Where there was an agreement, confirmed by law, between the City of Montreal and a neighbouring municipality, that after the annexation of the latter the land under cultivation in the municipality shall not be valued at more than $100 an acre, and later the city's assessors valued one piece of land much higher, the court of revision has power to set aside such valuation and give effect to the agreement between the two municipalities, at the suit of the owner of the land.

Montréal v. Décarie, 24 Rev. Leg. 241.
(§ II H—266)—ASSESSMENTS FOR LOCAL IMPROVEMENT—LEVYING—UNIFORMITY.

A municipality, empowered by a by-law to levy by special assessments for the cost of certain local improvements, has the authority to make separate and distinct special assessments, one to cover the expenses of grading and paving the streets, and another for the cost of the land required. The power of a municipality to levy a special assessment for local improvements, to be borne by the property owners directly benefited thereby, enables the municipal council, under s. 51 of 8 Edw. VII. (1908), c. 89, as amended by s. 1 of 4 Geo. V. (1914), c. 77 (Que.), to effect such an assessment by resolution and at a varying rate, according to the benefit acquired by each lot, though a by-law provided for a uniform rate.

UNDERGROUND VAULTS.

A municipality can impose a land tax upon the space occupied by any underground vault in any street of the city, although such vault has been constructed under the permission of the municipality.

Montreal v. Dionne, 24 Que. K.B. 133.

AGREEMENT TO ACCEPT FIXED SUM—RATES SUBSEQUENTLY INCREASED—VALIDITY.

A municipal council having agreed to accept a certain fixed sum for water rates, and a subsequent by-law having been passed materially increasing the rates imposed and prohibiting the granting of any bonus unless the consent of the ratepayers is obtained (the supplying of water at rates less than those charged to other persons in the municipality being included in the word "bonus") it is not illegal where no statutory prohibition exists for the municipality to recognize its moral obligation and adhere to an understanding for a commutation of rates and refrain from collecting the taxes levied over and above the amount agreed on.

EXEMPTING FROM TAXATION — RELIGIOUS INSTITUTIONS.

An arrangement made by a municipality which claims to have a right to tax a certain property belonging to a religious community, which, on its side, submits that the municipality has no such right, an arrangement by which the latter undertakes to pay annually a fixed sum less than and instead of the usual taxes, is not a donation but really a contract. Although a municipal corporation cannot under common law agree to such an arrangement, the Legislature has the right to authorize it to make such agreement by a resolution of the municipal council. A council which has adopted such a resolution, implying, once it has been accepted by the other party, a bilateral contract, cannot rescind it by another resolution.

Maisonnette v. College Ste. Marie, 24 Que. K.B. 563.

EXEMPTION FROM TAXATION.

A municipal exemption from "taxes or any other dues to the said city" includes not only municipal taxes but also school taxes and the special tax for sidewalks.

Montreal v. Garneau, 54 Que. S.C. 520.

AS TO EXEMPTIONS—INDUSTRIES.

Although a municipal corporation cannot grant any subsidy to bring within its limits an industrial establishment already existing in the province, it may, as a condition to such subsidy, stipulate that the subsidized industry will transfer into the municipality an accessory establishment carried on in another locality. Having the power to exempt manufactures from taxation, so as to encourage industries, it may determine the quota of taxes that it will collect for a certain time.

The municipal council is not bound to make a new role of valuation each time the latter is annulled. It can do so, but if it follows arts. 650, 675, and 676 of the Municipal Code it is not subject to a writ of mandamus.

Royer v. Parish of St. Bernard, 25 Rev. Leg. 275.

(§ II H—271)—TAX SALES UNDER SUMMARY PROCEEDINGS.

Although sales of immovables by the sheriff for municipal assessments, due to the city of Montreal, are made under the summary proceedings provided by the charter, and appointed for October 15 in each year, nevertheless, when a first opposition to such sale was only decided by the court subsequently to Oct. 15, the city may continue summary proceedings for the sale of the immovables even on a date other than

A municipality cannot validly collect taxes on land of annexed territory not on the assessment roll at the time of annexation, and it may be enjoined from so doing.

POWERS—AS TO TAXES—FIXED ASSESSMENT—PUBLIC SCHOOLS, HOW AFFECTED BY.

Section 77 of c. 39 of the Public Schools Act (Ont.), 1901, as amended by s. 39 of c. 89 of 1909, carried into R.S.O. 1914, c. 266, as s. 39, covers an exemption by means of a fixed assessment, so that where under the by-law of a township a company's ratable property is to be assessed at a fixed commuted gross sum for a fixed period of years and relieved from any "assessment or taxation" in excess thereof, the company is not thereby exempted from assessment for school rates.

Re Ontario Power Co. and Stamford, 18 D.L.R. 64, 30 O.L.R. 378.

WHAT TAXABLE—CITY PROPERTY—HOMOLOGATED LINE.

A ratepayer who, after the formalities of the charter have been complied with by the city of Montreal in imposing a tax, does not complain within the delays and in the manner prescribed by the charter, is debarred from afterwards complaining, except if in imposing such tax the city exceeded its power, in which case such imposition would have no legal authority and be absolutely null and void; and a taxpayer would not be deprived of the right to invoke, before the court, that illegality and nullity, even after the roll had come into force. A house situated on a residential street, built upon and occupied, bounded in front by an homologated line, upon which strip of reserved ground are shade trees, lawn, flowers and a well covered by a structure, is considered as one single property, and the portion within the homologated line can be assessed by the city together with the rest of the property.

Montreal v. Smith, 54 Que. S.C. 124.

SPECIAL TAX—PUBLIC ROADS—ISLAND.

Municipal corporations have a right to levy a special tax upon all taxable real property situated within their territory, for the improvement of their public roads, and the fact that a portion of the real property is on an island, where there are no roads, does not exempt it from the tax.

Choquette v. Varennes, 54 Que. S.C. 33.

CITY OR TOWN—TAX ON TELEPHONE POLES—POWERS AS TO.

The erection of the town of Fraserville into a city confers upon it many powers, but it is not authorized to impose taxes on telephone posts.

National Telephone Co. v. Fraserville, 16 Que. T.R. 192.

(§ I H—279)—TELEPHONE POLES AND WIRES.

A municipal tax imposed by a village municipality on the telephone poles and wires situate in the streets of the village is illegal and cannot be recovered.

Pierreville v. Bell Telephone Co., 23 D.L.R. 635, 17 Que. P.R. 161.

I. EXAMINATION OF CORPORATE BOOKS AND RECORDS.

(§ II I—280)—RIGHT TO INSPECT RECORDS.

A ratepayer or resident of a municipality in Ontario has no common law right to inspect the record of the corporation; all rights of examination or inquiry by a ratepayer into municipal affairs are limited to those given by statute. [Tenby v. Mason, [1908] 1 Ch. 457, followed; Williams v. Manchester, 13 Times L.R. 299, distinguished.]

Journal Printing Co. v. McVeity, 21 D.L.R. 81, 33 O.L.R. 166.

INVESTIGATION AS TO FORCIBLE INTERFERENCE WITH MUNICIPAL RECORDS—POWERS—CRIMINAL PROCEEDINGS.

The council of a town has a right, under art. 5320, R.S.Q. 1909, to appoint a committee to inquire into the facts of a violent entrance into the vault containing its archives, its debentures and its money, and to do so upon the proposal of two members of the council without information by or representation of the ratepayers. The council can also assign to this committee the right, in case the facts mentioned in the resolution should prove to be true, to institute criminal proceedings against such persons. It is not necessary that the resolution should order the committee to report to the council.

Labadie v. Levis, 47 Que. S.C. 16.

VERIFICATION OF THE ACCOUNTS OF THE SECRETARY—TREASURER OF A MUNICIPALITY.

There can be only one special verification of the accounts of a municipality. The council may ask for it, or 5 taxpayers or the treasurer may do so. If one is made at the request of one of these interested parties he cannot require another. The powers of the council under the C. Mun., art. 642, are then exhausted. The secretary's accounts having been specially verified for the years preceding 1918, the council cannot order a second. The council may order a verification of the accounts of 1918, seeing that the previous verification made for that year was an ordinary one. The verification ordered for the years preceding 1918 is now set aside. The verification ordered for 1918 is maintained with costs against the defendant.

Cordeau v. Village of St. Pie, 25 Rev. de Jur. 385.

AUDIT OF TREASURER'S ACCOUNT—ACCEPTANCE OF AUDIT FOR YEAR LAST PAST.

The acceptance by a municipal council of the accounts of its secretary-treasurer for the year past, after audit by the municipal auditors, does not prevent the council ordering an audit of the accounts for the last 5 years, when there is reason to believe that the annual accounts and their auditing contain errors. The amendment to art. 176, Mun. Code, by c. 23 of 5 Edw. VII. (Que.) which gives 15 electors the right to demand this new audit confers the same right, by implication, on the council, which represents all the electors. The council is not bound to have this audit made by municipal auditors or officers, or to fix the time within which it should be made.

(§ III—285)—RIGHT TO RESIGN.

Under s. 106 of the Municipal Ordinance, Con. Ord. 1898, c. 70, there is an implied right given to a member of a municipal council in Alberta to resign, and this right, apart from a statutory disclaimer, may be exercised even before the member elect has taken full possession of the office for which he was a candidate.

R. ex rel. Hogan v. Jollivette, 4 D.L.R. 697, 20 W.L.R. 264, 4 A.L.R. 233, 1 W.W.R. 829.

ENGINEER—CERTIFICATE UNDER CONSTRUCTION CONTRACT—RECONSIDERATION—CLERICAL ERROR, CORRECTION OF.

The certificate of an engineer made binding upon the parties under a construction contract cannot after it is issued be changed by him as upon a reconsideration and change of opinion; but, semble, a clerical error might be corrected.

A meeting of a municipal council is not properly called or constituted if a member of the council, not in attendance thereat, has not been given any notice of it.

O'Donnell v. Widdifield, 1 D.L.R. 271, 3 O.W.N. 597, 21 O.W.R. 1.

A municipal council has power to declare the original act, by virtue of which one has claimed to be a proprietor, occupant or lessee of real estate to be entered on the valuation roll, false or fictitious, but it has no right to pronounce it a nullity. The council exercises, at the time of annual revision of the valuation roll, or at the time of examining the triennial roll, functions of a judicial nature.

Herbert v. Saint Michel, 18 Rev. de Jur. 228.

AUTHORITY OF ENGINEERS SUPERINTENDING PUBLIC WORKS.

Engineers charged with the superintendence of public works are not agents, but only salaried employees. Therefore they cannot bind the city by ordering, without legal authority in writing, changes or increases in the works entrusted to them. See art. 1689, C.C. (Que.), and s. 337 of the city charter.

Harris Construction Co. v. Montreal, 24 Que. K.B. 330.

ACCOUNT BY SECRETARY-TREASURER—NON-COMPLIANCE WITH FORMAL REQUIREMENTS—RIGHT OF RATEPAYER TO ATTACK.

The rendering of an account by a municipal secretary-treasurer, without attestation under oath according to the constant usage in the municipality and without the secretary-treasurer being required to comply with this formality, cannot be contested by a ratepayer, (a) because the action pertains only to the municipal corporation, and the plaintiff in his capacity of ratepayer is not competent in law to bring it; (b) because the municipal council had accepted this account as rendered and had discharged the secretary-treasurer by repaying to him the balance of the account which was due to him.

Pérodeau v. Richard, 48 Que. S.C. 165.

AS TO APPROVAL OF WORK.

A municipal corporation is only bound by the action of its municipal council. Consequently, unless having special authority to that effect, an official of the corporation cannot accept for it works which it has entrusted for execution to a contractor, reserving the right to receive them itself.

(§ III—286) — INSTRUCTIONS GIVEN BY MAYOR TO DO CERTAIN WORK — COUNCIL'S REFUSAL TO PAY — NO EXECUTED CONTRACT — RATIFICATION BY BY-LAW — MISCONCEPTION OF WORK REQUIRED.

The plaintiff, an accountant, was instructed by the mayor of Toronto by letter to examine the books of the Toronto Electric Light Co. "and give me a report of the company as an accountant shewing the probable financial results if the city takes over the company's business and operates at the present load of about 30,000 h.p." These instructions were afterwards extended to include also the Toronto Railway Company. No sum was agreed upon as remuneration. The negotiations for purchase having failed, the plaintiff sent in a bill for $42,546.50 which the council refused to pay, and the plaintiff then brought action to recover this sum. Their Lordships held that there was no executed contract in the sense that the council, knowing the facts, had accepted or ratified the act of the mayor. The work could only be authorized by the council itself, by by-law under seal upon full knowledge of the facts, and this had not been done. [Waterous Engine Works Co. v. Palmerston, 21 Can. S.C.R. 556, applied; Clark v. Cuckfield Union, 21 L.J.Q.B. 349, distinguished.]

POWERS OF MAYOR—ARREST.

The mayor of a town, although he has power under the authority of the municipal council to cause the arrest of any person who makes a disturbance during a sitting of the council, cannot of his own initiative and without authorization from the council, 17 days after such sitting, procure the arrest of such person, on the ground that the majority of the councillors had resigned and that the matter was urgent; in such case the mayor cannot claim from the municipality the costs he has incurred by such arrest.

PRESUMPTION OF FAULT—HOW REBUTTED—RECOURSE.

The presumption of fault created by art. 1054 C.C. (Que.), against the owner of the thing which causes an accident resulting in injury can only be refuted by proof of force majeure, fortuitous event, or the victim's fault. It is not sufficient for the owner to prove that the thing was in good condition. When there are several plaintiffs in an action for damages, and only some of them succeed in obtaining them, the defendant has on that ground no right to damages against the others.

LAYING GAS PIPES—BREACH OF STATUTORY DUTY—RULE IN CONSTRUING SUCH STATUTES.

Statutory authority given a defendant company to locate and construct gas pipes in a municipality with a provision that the work must be done "so as not to endanger the public health of safety" is construed to mean that no such danger shall ensue without regard to time upon the principle that such provisions are given a liberal construc-

RAILWAYS—BREACH OF STATUTORY DUTY—FAILURE TO PROVE—CONTRIBUTORY NEGLIGENCE BY DECEASED EMPLOYEE.

A railway company is not necessarily liable for personal injuries received by trainmen because of a derailment at a depression or "sink hole" on a new piece of road due to an inherent weakness in the ground underneath the roadbed and not to negligent construction of the road; and it is properly absolved from liability for the death of the engineer of a heavy freight train if the derailment was caused by his running the engine at a rate of speed much in excess of that to which his orders limited him, and if the railway company, in addition to restricting the speed limit, took all reasonable precautions to ballast with gravel, from time to time, the depressions varying from two to four inches occurring at the spot.

WORK AUTHORIZED BY STATUTE—DRAINAGE—OVERFLOW.

No statutory remedy exists under the Drainage, Dyking, and Irrigation Act (R.S. B.C. 1911, c. 69), nor under s. 21 thereof which merely refers to damages resulting from the execution of the work carried out under s. 11, for the negligence of the commissioners in carrying out the scheme of the work not under s. 11; but since negligence in the execution of a work authorized by statute is actionable at common law, the commissioners are liable at common law for damages caused by the overflow of water from ditches constructed by them, in not providing, as authorized by their scheme, a reasonable and safe outlet, under proper municipal authority, in a way of averting such overflow. ACTION FOR DAMAGES—LAW FOR THE PROTECTION OF THE PUBLIC—S.R. ART. 6210—COMMON FAULT.

There results, without any possible doubt, from the evidence, that the accident of which the plaintiff complains, is partially due to the negligence of the injured child; but above all from the fact that the defendant did not to the slightest degree fulfill the duty which S.R., art 6210 imposed upon him. Every company should build and place its gas or water works so that the apparatus and property may connect in such a manner that there may be in these works, wherever they are, no menace to health and public safety. In law the defendant company is liable (Cooke v. Midland Great Western Railway of Ireland [1909] A.C. 229). In fact the evidence showed that the action of the plaintiff is well founded to the amount of $7,454.48, with costs.

(§ I B—5)—MAXIM RES IPSA LOQUITUR—INFERENCE ON FACTS ESTABLISHED—CAUSE OF ACCIDENT UNKNOWN—PROOF REQUIRED.

In cases in which the maxim res ipsa loquitur applies the facts established make the inference of negligence clear, and the defendant is liable if he does not produce sufficient evidence to counteract the inference. In cases where the cause of the accident is unknown the court is left to decide upon such facts as are available, whether negligence on the part of the defendant is the more reasonable inference or not.

PROPERTY LEFT IN CONDITION THAT MAY BE DANGEROUS—INTERVENING ACT OF THIRD PARTY CAUSING INJURY—LIABILITY OF OWNER.

A person who, in neglect of ordinary care, places or leaves his property in a condition which may be dangerous to another, is answerable for the resulting injury, even though but for the intervening act of a third party the injury would not have occurred, if such act is one which, in the circumstances, he should reasonably be called upon to anticipate, where the intervention of a third party is the direct cause of the accident. The test applied is whether the party guilty of the primary negligence had cast upon him the duty of anticipating such intervention. [Geall v. Dominion Creosoting Co., 39 D.L.R. 242, 55 Can. RAILWAY TRACK—HABITUAL USER BY PUBLIC—STATUTORY PROHIBITION—TRESPASSER—DUTY OF COMPANY.

Section 264, c. 99, R.S.N.S. 1900, enacts that every person not connected with the railway or employed by the company who walks along the track thereof, except where the same is laid across or along a highway, is liable on summary conviction to a penalty not exceeding $10. Held, that a doctor returning along the track after making a professional call, was a trespasser and the company owed him no duty except not to run him down knowingly or recklessly. This the jury found had not been done and the company was not liable. Mere passiveness of the company in allowing the public to walk along the track, did not make them licensees, for injury to whom the company would be liable. [G.T.R. Co. v. Anderson, 28 Can. SCHOOL—EXAMINATION—DANGEROUS EQUIPMENT.

A School Board which conducts a technical school for instruction in the manual arts, and permits the Department of Education to use its equipment on an examination, the examination being entirely under the direction of the Department of Education, is not liable in damages for injuries to a student taking the examination, if the equipment supplied was reasonably safe and suitable for the work for which it was being used.

RAILWAYS—CONTRACTOR—SAND DEPOSITS—EXPROPRIATION.

Damages suffered by a landowner from sand deposits in the course of construction of a Crown railway are only recoverable as against the contractors; the injury not having resulted from any expropriation of land is not actionable against the Crown under the Expropriation Act, and having happened 10 acres away from the railway, was not "on a public work" within the meaning of s. 20 of the Exchequer Court Act, and therefore not actionable against the Crown under the latter statute.

Theberge v. The King, 41 D.L.R. 282, 17 Can. Ex. 381.

RAILWAY—DEFECTIVE BRIDGE—BODY FOUND IN RIVER—EVIDENCE—SUFFICIENCY.

In an action for damages for the benefit of the wife and children of a passenger on the defendant's railway whose death was alleged to have resulted from the negligence of the defendant's servants, it appeared that, owing to a defective bridge, the passengers on the train on which the deceased was travelling were obliged to walk across part of the bridge and board another train. When the train arrived at the bridge the deceased was intoxicated and asleep. The conductor of the train was aware of the deceased's condition and, apparently thinking that he could not be got conveniently across the bridge, decided to leave him in the train so that he would be taken back on it, and proceeded eastward. The train in which the deceased had been left did not start back for some time afterwards, and while, before it did so, he had been noticed by passengers to be on it and asleep, he could not be found when it left. While the train was standing, one of the passengers had heard a splash of a heavy body of some kind falling into the water below the bridge. Three weeks afterwards the deceased's body was discovered in the river a point about twelve miles below the bridge. The face bore a severe bruise which, according to the testimony of the coroner and the undertaker, must have been made before death, but there was no other mark of violence upon the body. At the trial a motion for a nonsuit was allowed, and the trial judgment was affirmed on appeal. On an appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada, held, that there was evidence from which it would be open to a jury to find that the deceased came to his death as a result of the defendant's negligence, and the case was remitted for a new trial.

BOARD OF HEALTH—INFECTIOUS DISEASE.

An action under the Fatal Accidents Act for damages for the death of an infant suffering from a communicable disease will be dismissed where there is no evidence to show that the death was caused by the negligence of the authorities in charge, despite the verdict of a jury in favor of the plaintiff.

HIGHWAY—FIRE—STEAM ENGINES—PRESUMPTION.

One who uses vehicles and steam rollers for macadamizing a public road, without providing appliances protecting against fire, is responsible for the loss of buildings destroyed as the result of a fire started by sparks coming from such machines. Where an inhabited house and outbuildings built in an isolated place along a public road are burned ten minutes after the passage of a steam engine, from which sparks escaped, the accident, if no other cause is established, will be attributed to such sparks.

Pelletier v. Stack, 54 Que. S.C. 148.

PRESUMPTION AS TO NEGLIGENCE.

There is no presumption of negligence against an industrial company of not using a mode of preventing accidents which has not yet been proved to be of sufficient capacity and which can in certain cases even increase the danger.

Quebec R., L.H. & P. Co. v. Vandry, 24 Que. K.B. 214. [Reversed on another point 29 D.L.R. 539, 53 Can. S.C.R. 72.]

CARRIERS—WAGGON ON WHARF—INJURY TO CHILDREN.

Carriers are guilty of negligence in placing a crated waggon on a public wharf in too perpendicular a position, so that children lawfully on the wharf pull it over and are injured. The selection by the wharfinger of the place of deposit does not make him liable for the negligence of the carriers' servants.

TIMBER—LIABILITY FOR CONTRACTOR'S ACTS.

The purchase of rights to cut the timber implies, for the purchaser, the right to use the ground for the purpose of operating the lumber business; but it includes also the consequent obligation of using it as a good "pater familias." The purchaser cannot divest himself of such obligation by asking contractors to run the business at a fixed price; owing to his personal obligation he remains responsible for depredations committed on the premises by such contractors in carrying out their contract.

(§ I B—16)—DEFECTIVE CARTRIDGES—LIABILITY OF SELLER.

A retail vendor is not answerable for personal injury sustained by the purchaser of a sealed box of cartridges of a certain description and make, as the result of the box containing one cartridge of a different kind and of the explosion of the cartridge after it had missed fire because of its being the wrong size, where the plaintiff relied solely on his own judgment and not that of the vendor, in making the purchase. GRANARY—ANIMALS.

Where a granary is properly constructed at the time the grain is stored therein, but afterwards becomes injured without the knowledge of the owner of the granary, so that stray animals can obtain access to the grain, the owner does not "have or store on his premises grain accessible to stock" within the meaning of the Open Wells Act (R.S.S. c. 124), and is not liable for damage to such animals.

COLLAPSE OF STAIRWAY—INJURY TO EMPLOYEE OF SUBCONTRACTOR—LIABILITY OF CONTRACTOR.

Building contractors who allow a temporary stairway to be used by persons working in the building under construction are properly held liable in negligence for personal injuries sustained by an employee of their subcontractor by the collapse of such stairway when he attempted to pass over it, if no warning had been given or barrier placed to give notice that the stairway was being moved to a different position by the contractor's workmen; the fact that the contractor's workmen had permitted another person to use the stairs just prior to the plaintiff's arrival was sufficient to put the plaintiff off his guard on seeing this and to justify him in assuming that the use of the stairway was permitted as being safe without putting upon the plaintiff the duty of investigating what was being done by the contractor's workmen then and there engaged at work.

INJURY TO SHOPPER FALLING THROUGH TRAP DOOR—COMMON FAULT.

There is common fault when a woman, being in a shop, falls through an open trap door in a corner and inflicts upon herself serious injuries. The fault of the plaintiff consists in not looking where she was going; that of the defendant in the fact that he should not have left the cellar door open in a part of his shop to which the public had access.

DEFECT IN MACHINERY—KNOWLEDGE OF.

The plaintiff was killed by the fall of a boom of a derrick, the evidence shewed the machine to be of the best type, in good repair and operated by a competent man. The plaintiffs alleged that there was a defect in the machine, in that the dog did not fit properly in the cog-wheel and at times slipped. The only evidence of knowledge by the defendants of the alleged defect was that of two witnesses, one of them stating that the operator of the hoist told him, after the accident that the machine was defective and that he had notified the defendants of the defect prior to the accident, and that this statement was made by the operator 15 or 20 feet from the defendant W. (one of the members of the defendant firm), who did not contradict the statement. The other witness, who stood beside W. at the time the statement was made, testified that he heard what the operator said. The plaintiffs contended that when W. did not contradict the operator's statement, the evidence was admissible as an acquiescence by W. in the statement. The evidence was allowed in on the trial and the jury returned a verdict for the plaintiffs. Held, on appeal, reversing the judgment of the Trial Judge and setting aside the verdict of the jury, that the evidence that W. heard the statement was of the vaguest character; that the remark was not addressed to him; that the allegation was not that he, but the firm (of which he was a member), had been notified, as to which he may have had no knowledge, so that even if he heard what the operator said he may not have been in a position to contradict it. In view, therefore, of the loose character of all this evidence, it should not have been admitted, and without it the plaintiff should not succeed.

FACTORIES ACT—BREACH—GRAIN ELEVATOR—DEATH OF EMPLOYEE.

A drum around which coil the steel cables attached to a lift, and a hole between the drum and the side of the platform on top of which the lift is placed, are within subss. (a) and (c) of s. 19 of the Factories Act, R.S.S. 1909, c. 17, and are, therefore, things which should be guarded and protected; and where, because of the absence of such a guard, an employee of the proprietor of the factory wherein such lift is used meets his death such proprietor is liable in damages to the dependents of the deceased. Hilton v. Robin Hood Mills, 11 S.L.R. 370, [1918] 3 W.W.R. 168. [Affirmed 47 D.L.R. 282, 12 S.L.R. 245, [1919] 2 W.W.R. 134.]

SAW MILL—DAMAGES—POSSESSORY OR NEGATORY ACTION — OCCUPANT OF PUBLIC DOMAIN.

Although it may be true, in principle, that if a person establishes himself at a place where an industry is in operation, and that the owner of the latter uses all possible and necessary improvements to diminish the inconvenience of his proximity and the damages which he may cause, he must suffer them without being able to claim any compensation, it is otherwise if the industry has rendered itself guilty of negligence in the operation of its works. Accordingly, the owner of a saw mill is liable for damages caused to his neighbour by allowing the wind to carry over the latter's land bark and sawdust from works carried on in his mill, without taking any precautions to prevent them. The owner of the mill is, in fact, exercising a servitude upon the land of his neighbour, who may bring a negatory action against him. An occupant, by permission of the Crown, of beaches, of public domain, has a right to a possessory action of servitude, if he is disturbed by his neighbour.

Cimon v. Bouchard, 24 Rev. Leg. 449.

FACTORY—PRECAUTIONS.

When a manufacturer, in establishing his industry, takes all proper precautions not to cause damage to the neighbours, he can escape, in great measure, from the liability for damages which result from the operation of the industry. It is different when a manufacturer places machinery in a building not intended for it, nor so constructed as to prevent the vibrations being felt by the neighbours.

MASTER AND SERVANT—INJURY FROM BREAKING OF WORN CABLE—FAILURE OF EMPLOYER TO EXAMINE CABLE—WORKMAN STRIKING HOPPER FROM BENEATH INSTEAD OF FROM SIDE — CUSTOMARY METHOD — NOT CONTRIBUTORY NEGLIGENCE.

Plaintiff, while in employ of defendant, who was erecting a building, was injured by the falling of a hopper due to the breaking of a steel cable, which passed through piping, which cable the court inferred from the circumstances had become worn and was not in fit condition for the use made of it. Held, that defendant was bound from time to time to examine and test the cable and that such examination would have disclosed its condition. The failure to do so and continued use of an unfit cable constituted negligence.

(§ I C—37)—FALLING BUILDING OF PORTION THEREOF GENERALLY.

Where a person orders to be done on his premises a work, lawful in itself, but from which, in the natural course of things, injurious consequences to his neighbours must be expected to arise unless means are adopted by which such consequences may be prevented: and where he entrusts an independent contractor with the performance of such duty incumbent upon himself, and the contractor neglects its fulfilment, the liability for the resultant injury to the adjoining premises does not depend on the relation of master and servant; and the fact that he entrusted his own duty to another person (whether servant or independent contractor) who also neglected it, furnishes no excuse in law.

ICE FALLING FROM ROOF—REMEDY—DAMAGES—INJUNCTION.

There is a duty, apart from any obligation imposed by a municipal by-law, upon the owner or occupant of a building the roof of which is so constructed that from natural causes the snow or ice which falls or collects upon it will naturally and probably slide from the roof, to take all reasonable means to prevent the snow or ice from falling upon the adjoining property, or an adjoining highway, and causing damage to persons or property there; a failure to adopt such means of prevention will render him liable in damages for an injury caused thereby, but the case is not one for an injunction.

(§ I C—38)—FALL OF WALL—RES IPSA LOQUITUR.

The unexplained fall of a wall is prima facie evidence of negligence on the part of those responsible for its construction. Ordinary care is not determined by the wisdom gained by results; it is gauged by the situation and surrounding circumstances. In general it means such care as prudent and cautious men would use according to the exigency and as would be necessary to guard against probable danger.

Erdman v. Consolidated Mining & Smelting Co., 7 W.W.R. 1121.

(§ I C—40)—INSECURE ELECTRIC POLE—INJURY TO SERVANT OF INDEPENDENT CONTRACTOR—LIABILITY OF OWNER OF POLE, HOW LIMITED.

Where the poles intended for transmission wires of a power company had become insecure by the washing away of earth before the wires were strung, and the company gives to an independent contractor the work of first strengthening and securing the poles and then of stringing wires upon them, the power company is not responsible for personal injuries to the contractor's workman by reason of the falling of a pole which he had climbed for the purpose of stringing the wires before it had been strengthened and without knowing that it was unsafe; the workman is not entitled to claim against the power company as owners or occupants of the property that he was an invitee thereon to whom there was a holding out on their part that the premises were safe as it was a part of his master's undertaking to strengthen the poles before stringing the wires, and it was the collateral negligence of his master, the contractor, in not notifying him that the poles were not safe that was the cause of the injury. (§ I C—44)—EXCAVATIONS—DUTY AS TO CARE—INDEPENDENT CONTRACTOR.

A man who orders a work to be executed from which, in the natural course of things, injurious consequences to his neighbour must be expected to arise unless means are adopted by which such consequences may be prevented, is bound to see to the doing of that which is necessary to prevent the mischief, and cannot relieve himself of his responsibility by employing someone else, whether it be the contractor employed to do the work from which the damage arises or some independent person, to do what is necessary to prevent the act he has ordered to be done from becoming wrongful. [Bower v. Peate, 1 Q.B.D. 321, followed.]

FALL OF FROZEN SURFACE OF GRAVEL PIT—CONTRACT—BREACH OF DUTY—CAUSE OF DEATH—CONTRIBUTORY NEGLIGENCE—FATAL ACCIDENTS ACT—PARENTS—DAMAGES.

The defendants employed a teamster to take gravel for them from a pit, at so much a load; they had agreed both with the owner of the pit and with the teamster to remove the surface earth and snow from the pit in order that the gravel might be reached and got out. The defendants failed to perform that duty properly, and the plaintiff's son, who was employed by the teamster, went into the pit, on a day in winter, to load and draw gravel from it, and was killed by a piece of the overhanging surface of frozen earth and snow falling upon him. On the previous day, a servant of the defendants, in or towards the performance of their duty to remove the surface, had exploded three charges of dynamite in the frozen surface soil so as to loosen it and remove it. No examination was, on that day or the next day, made to ascertain the full effect of the explosion; and yet the man who was killed was ordered, by the defendants' same servant, to load the gravel at the part of the pit where the explosion had taken place:—Held, that the defendants' failure to perform their duty was the cause of the man's death, and that they were liable in an action under the Fatal Accidents Act. In the circumstances, there was a duty upon the defendants toward every one there, as the man was employed in removing gravel for the defendants, to take reasonable care that the frozen surface was so removed that it should not be a needless danger to them when so employed. The defendants had committed a breach of duty, apart from contract. Held, also, that the defendants were liable upon another ground, viz., the neglect of their servant in regard to the explosion, that neglect having been the direct cause of the death. The deceased was not the author of his own injury, nor was he guilty of contributory negligence. The amount assessed as damages by the Trial Judge, $1,400, divided between the father and mother of the deceased, was not excessive in view of the evidence of reasonable expectation of pecuniary benefit from the prolongation of the life of their son.

Durant v. Ontario & Minnesota Power Co., 41 O.L.R. 130.

(§ 1 C—48)—WHARF—GANGWAY.

The lessee of a building on a wharf, occupied as a freight shed, is not responsible for an accident which happened to a labourer who was working in it, by the fall of a heavy gangway belonging to the lessee, which stood against a post in a slanting position and was knocked down by a carter unloading his cart; the fact that the lessee failed to have the gangway attached to the post so that it could not fall was not considered as negligence.

(§ 1 C—49)—DRAWBRIDGE—SITUATION DANGEROUS—FLIMSEY BARRIER ACROSS BRIDGE—LIABILITY OF CORPORATION FOR DAMAGES—NEGLIGENCE OF DRIVER OF MOTOR—PASSENGER NOT CHARGEABLE WITH DRIVER'S NEGLIGENCE.

A corporation which, by the situation of a drawbridge, the approach thereto, and a flimsy barrier across the bridge when open, makes such bridge a trap for the unwary and an invitation to accident, is liable for damages, due to a jitney breaking through the barrier and plunging into the river, notwithstanding that the highway was known to the driver, and that he was reckless and disregarded the danger. If the corporation has provided funds for defraying half the cost of constructing the bridge and has in fact exercised control over it, prima facie it is the duty of the corporation to take suitable measures for protecting the public against the dangers incidental to the working of the draw span, and it is incumbent upon the corporation if it desires to dispute this responsibility to prove that the officials who had in fact exercised control were exceeding their lawful powers.

The suppliant, in the course of a joy ride, driving an automobile without a chauffeur's license, attempted to cross a Government canal bridge when the bridge was being opened and the gates down, after being signalled to that effect by the bridge-master, resulting in the machine and its occupants plunging into the canal. Held, under the circumstances and evidence, the suppliant has made out no case against the Crown, and that the accident was brought about by his own negligence.

Boyer v. The King, 42 D.L.R. 384, 18 Can. Ex. 154.

(§ 1 C—50)—LIABILITY TO LICENSEES OR TRESPASSERS.

In a negligence action under Lord Campbell's Act for personal injury resulting in death brought by the next of kin setting up that deceased was an employee, an invitee, a licensee, and a victim of a system, the only duty, in so far as the claim as to the deceased being a licensee is concerned, which an owner of premises owes such a person, is not to deceive him by means of a trap or to be guilty of any active negligence, and the licensee must otherwise take the premises as he finds them, and the fact that a gangway (across a steambot belonging to the same owner leading to another of such owner's boats moored side by side at the dock) was opened for the first time on the morning of the accident to carry lumber across it, and that the hatchway was open for the necessary ventilation and left unprotected other than by some boards which had covered the hatch being left on edge over it, is not evidence of neglect of duty by the owner.

Where the owner or occupier of a stable supplies stable accommodation and feed for horses at a fixed sum per day, but without giving the exclusive use of any part of the stable, he is under obligation to see that the stable is in a reasonably safe condition so far as the exercise of reasonable care and skill can make it so, and this obligation subsists notwithstanding that the horses were fed and cared for by their owner. RAILWAY AND TRAFFIC BRIDGE — RAILWAY PART NOT FLOORED—TRESPASSER FALLING THROUGH—DEATH—DAMAGES.

The owner of a railway and traffic bridge, one portion of which is used for railway traffic only and is not floored, the other portion being fenced off from the railway portion and used for the passage of persons and vehicles only and for the use of which a small charge is made, is not liable in damages for the death of a person who, in a state of intoxication, and in order to avoid payment of the charge, attempts to cross on the railway portion of the bridge, falls through and is killed. Such person being a trespasser, the doctrine of implied invitation does not apply. [Stevens v. Jeacocke, 11 Q.B. 731, 116 E.R. 647; Gorris v. Scott, L.R. 9 Ex. 125; Walker v. Midland R. DANGEROUS PREMISES—BUILDING IN COURSE OF CONSTRUCTION—DUTY TO LICENSEE.

A person seeking employment on the construction work of a new building and entering on the works under the permission to be implied from a notice reading "labourers wanted," is a licensee while waiting for the arrival of the foreman in charge of the hiring of labourers; and is entitled as against the various contractors to reasonable protection from unseen dangerous conditions in the premises in course of construction; and the contractor whose foreman had supervised the placing of a boiler-plate in a dangerous position leaning against a pillar of the building and projecting over a cartway so that it fell over and killed such licensee is properly held liable in damages for the death, where the boiler-plate remained in such contractor's care up to the time of the accident.

OPEN WELL—DUTY OF OWNER—TRESPASSING ANIMALS — DEFENDANT'S KNOWLEDGE — OPEN WELLS ACT (SASK.) — RURAL MUNICIPALITIES ACT (SASK.)—ASSUMPTION OF RISK.

The Open Wells Act, R.S.S., c. 124, imposes on the occupant of lands, duties in respect of trespassing animals above the liability at common law; but where a horse fell into an open well on defendant's farm while trespassing there, and its owner knew of the well and that it was dangerous for stock, yet turned his horses at large, knowing that they would probably stray to where the well was, and thereby contravened a municipal by-law passed under the Rural Municipalities Act (Sask.), making it unlawful to allow horses and cattle to run at large, he has thereby assumed the risk and the responsibility for the loss is to be attributed to his own negligence in disobeying the by-law. [Watkins v. Naval Colliery Co., [1912] A.C. 693, and Butler v. Fife Coal Co., [1912] A.C. 149, applied.]

DUTY TO INVITEE—VOLUNTARY ASSUMPTION OF RISK.

The owner or occupant of premises owes to an invitee a duty not to expose him to any unexpected danger without warning him of it; but where the danger is patent to everyone, and the invitee knows of it, he must be taken to have voluntarily assumed the risk. Keech v. Sandwich, Windsor & Amherstburg R. Co., 22 D.L.R. 784, 8 O.W.N. 96.

LOGGING OPERATIONS — INJURIES TO TRESPASSERS.

There is no liability on the part of a company conducting logging operations for injuries to a trespasser thereby occasioned. [Lowery v. Walker, [1910] 1 K.B. 173, [1911] A.C. 10, followed.]

DUTY TO LICENSEE—BARBED WIRE FENCE.

A person using a trail over private property, and over which the public has acquired no right-of-way, is a bare licensee, and the only duty of the owner of the premises towards him is to give him warning of any concealed danger or trap of which the owner knows; the construction of a barbed wire fence along the boundary of the land is not in the nature of a trap.

UNSAFE PREMISES—INVITEE.

If a defendant has not neglected some legal duty to a plaintiff, the latter cannot recover damages from him for any injury sustained.

In an action for damages for personal injuries sustained by a boy in the defendant's gymnasium, judgment was given against the defendant for the amount of doctor's fees and hospital charges. On appeal, held that, even on the assumption that the defendant had failed in any duty owed was no evidence that the defendant had failed in any duty owed by it to him. [Latham v. Johnson, [1913] 1 K.B. 398, 82 L.J. K.B. 258 applied.]

PRIVATE PROPERTY — BOAT — GANGWAY — ACCIDENT — NEGLIGENCE — DAMAGES — C.C., ART. 1053.

The owner of private property who allows the public to come in and to use it with no more hindrance than if it were public, is liable for all danger by the medium to which he furnishes access. Thus, if the master of a passenger boat allows a young girl under age, who is found on the wharf, to cross and to remain on the gangplank of the boat, and if the latter when taken away from the wharf or boat, upsets and throws the young girl in the water where she is drowned, the owner of the boat is responsible for damages to the father of the victim.

Desjardins v. Ottawa River Co., 25 Rev. Leg. 328.

DRAINAGE AND DAMMING OPERATIONS — TRESPASSER.

Where land alongside a river was occupied by a company which, by a special arrangement with the owner, has obtained the right to abut his dam to it and to construct upon it a revetment wall to retain the water, it has the same rights, obligations and responsibility, within the purview of the special arrangement, as the owner himself; and it is responsible for the damages caused by the crumbling of the ground and the fall of the revetment wall due to defective drainage and to the bad state of repairs of the wall. A person who, to watch and examine the surroundings of a dam and a watercourse, stands on a lot of ground adjoining the public road, which is not fenced nor separated by any mark from the road cannot be considered as trespasser.

Montreal Light, Heat & Power Co. v. Lowrie, 25 Que. K.B. 367.

(§ I C—55)—INJURIES TO CHILDREN—DANGEROUS ATTRACTIONS — TRESPASSERS—MUNICIPAL GROUNDS.

A child will still be a trespasser if he goes on private ground without leave or right, however natural it may have been for him to do so; but the presence in a frequented place of some object of attraction tempting the child to meddle where he ought to abstain may well constitute a trap, and, in the case of a child too young to be capable of contributory negligence, it may impose full liability on the owner or occupier, if he ought as a reasonable man to have anticipated the presence of the child and the attractiveness and peril of the object. A finding by the jury that previous to the accident whereby children playing in a municipally owned gravel pit were smothered, the municipal corporation had no knowledge, nor should it have reasonably known, that there was a likelihood of children being injured by the falling of earth, sand or gravel while playing in the pit where the case was not based upon the maintenance of a nuisance. INJURIES TO CHILDREN—DANGEROUS ATTRACTIONS—NARROW FOOTBRIDGE.

A narrow footbridge built over water for the convenience of its owner is not such a dangerous attraction to children as will render the owner liable for the death of a child of tender years who fell therefrom into the water and was drowned where there was no license extended to children to go there and the bridge was ordinarily inaccessible by the withdrawal of a plank leading to it. INJURIES TO CHILDREN — DANGEROUS ATTRACTIONS — BUILDING MATERIALS ON SCHOOL PREMISES.

Where material not dangerous in itself is left in a safe but inconvenient position by a contractor on school premises where he was employed to do certain repairs, he will not be liable for damage which resulted to one of the scholars from its being moved by third parties to a dangerous position, which change the contractor could not have reasonably anticipated. ELECTRIC POWER—PIPE LINE ON TRESTLE—WIRE ABOVE PIPE — BARRIERS AROUND TRESTLE — WARNINGS POSTED — BOY CROSSING ON TRESTLE—INJURIES TO BOY—ACTION—DUTY OF POWER COMPANY.

A boy who is injured by an electric wire which crosses over a pipe line on a trestle cannot recover damages from the power company owning the wire, for children were not in the habit of crossing this trestle, and as the company had no reason to suppose that anyone would cross this trestle, it did not fail in any duty owing to the company.

The rights of a driver of a motor vehicle and that of other vehicles (including bicycles) to use the highway are equal, and each is equally restricted by the rights of the other. Each is required to regulate his own use by the observance of ordinary care and caution; and when accidents happen as incidents to the reasonable use of the highway, the law affords no redress by criminal or civil proceedings.

SNOW AND ICE ON SIDEWALK — FRONTAGE OWNERS RESPONSIBLE FOR REMOVAL — CITY POWER TO REMOVE AND CHARGE EXPENSE TO OWNERS—NEGLECT BY CITY TO REMOVE IN REASONABLE TIME—LIABILITY.

The plaintiff, in consequence of ice and snow on one of the principal streets of the defendant city, slipped and fell, suffering injuries for which he claimed damages. There was a city by-law which required the city to keep streets in repair. The trial judgment was in favour of the plaintiff. Drysdale and Mellish, J.J., following Maguire v. Liverpool, [1905] 1 K.B. 767, held that the appeal should be allowed and the action dismissed on the ground that there was no by-law requiring the city to remove snow and ice from the sidewalks, the obligation to do so was on the frontage owners, the city simply having possession to do so and charge the cost to the owners. Russell, J., and Ritchie E.J., were of opinion that the appeal should be dismissed on the ground that the failure to remove snow and ice from the sidewalks came within the definition "non-repair" and the city being charged by statute with the duty of keeping the streets in repair, failed in that duty, in allowing the slush to remain on the sidewalk, and as it had the means of removing it and failed to do so within a reasonable time it was guilty of negligence.

NEGLIGENT DRIVING — LIABILITY OF LIVERY STABLE KEEPER.

A livery stable keeper who engages to convey a passenger and supplies the driver as well as the horse and buggy will be liable in damages for the driver's failure to do what a reasonable and prudent driver would have done on approaching a traction engine on the road with knowledge that there was a strong probability of the horse becoming scared and with knowledge that the road at that point was a dangerous one on which to pass the engine, notwithstanding which the driver attempted to pass, with the result that the buggy was overturned and the passenger injured.

Golightly v. Banning, 22 D.L.R. 124.

NEGLIGENT DRIVING KILLING HIGHWAY WORKMAN—SUFFICIENCY OF EVIDENCE.

Deceased was killed by a motor car while on a bridge shortly after midnight. On the question of the identity of the car that struck deceased there was the evidence of the driver of a sleigh who saw the accident, he swearing that from the time he came on the south end of the bridge and reached the scene of the accident, the only car to pass him (which was going south as he was) was the car that struck deceased, and the defendant admitted that, after coming on to the south end of the bridge and before he reached the spot where the accident occurred, he passed a sleigh. The evidence was corroborated by one of the deceased's fellow workmen, who swore that the only motor car that passed between three minutes to twelve and the time of the accident was the car that killed deceased. The jury found in favour of the plaintiffs. Held, on appeal, that there was evidence upon which the jury might reasonably return the verdict which they did. "Where there are probabilities that might be weighed by a jury, it is proper that such a case should go to the jury." [Grand Trunk Pac. R. Co. v. Griffiths, 45 Can. S.C.R. 380, followed.] Longman v. Cottingham, 18 B.C.R. 184. [Affirmed 15 D.L.R. 296, 48 Can. S.C.R. 542, 26 W.L.R. 650, 5 W.W.R. 969.]

"SAFETY ISLAND"—VEHICLES.

Where a person crossing a highway, having a double track of rails in the centre, there being a fifteen-foot fairway between the curb of the street and the outer rail on each side, within which vehicular traffic is supposed to keep, reaches the first track he may reasonably feel the security afforded by a "safety island," and if he is struck by the mudguard or some similarly projecting part of a rubber-tired motor "bus" which approaches him, having its right wheels on the inside rails, and so injured, he may recover in an action for negligence.

PUBLIC THOROUGHFARE—SIDEWALK—REPAIR.

A part of a public thoroughfare which a municipality allows the public to use as a footpath, and which is shut off by a curb from that part which is used by vehicles, is a sidewalk. The municipality is liable in damages if through negligence it allows a hole to be left in such sidewalk which causes injuries to a pedestrian.

SLIPPERY SIDEWALK—FAILURE TO SAND OR HARROW.

Failure to sand or harrow a slippery sidewalk before 9 a.m. when the conditions requiring it only arose on that morning is not "gross negligence," for which a city is liable under the Ontario Municipal Institutions Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 192, s. 460 (3).

CL. 36—NEGLIGENCE OF CONDUCTOR—"MISJUDGING COURSE OF AUTOMOBILE." — FAILURE OF DRIVER OF AUTOMOBILE TO GIVE SIGNAL WHEN TURNING—REVERSAL OF JUDGMENT FOR PLAINTIFFS—GROUND FOR NEW TRIAL NOT SHOWN—EVIDENCE OF WHAT CONDUCTOR SAID IMMEDIATELY AFTER COLLISION—INADMISSIBILITY.

Action for damages for loss and injury to O, by his automobile colliding with an electric street-car of the defendant, which was backing, the conductor standing on the back platform, which was thus in front, and the motorman operating the car at the other end. O was going north, and turned to go west, thus meeting the backing street car. The plaintiff, in his pleading, assigned, as negligence on the part of the defendants, want of warning and failure to stop in time owing to the defendants' servants not being "sufficiently attentive to duty." In the charge to the jury they were told that the negligence which the plaintiff complained of was that the defendants' servant might have stopped, but did not stop, the street car when the vehicle driven by O was in a position from which he had no power to escape. The jury found negligence, which, they said, "consisted in having the car controlled from the wrong end and in the conductor misjudging the course of the plaintiff's automobile." They negatived contributory negligence. O and the conductor gave evidence at the trial. O said that the conductor, when he saw that his car was going to run into O's vehicle, signalled the motorman by bell, "but the car kept coming;" and that the conductor told him (O), immediately after the accident, that he (the conductor) had given the motorman the signal in plenty of time to stop, but the motorman "did not take it." This the conductor denied. O. did not pretend that he gave any warning of his intention to turn west—the local municipal by-law required a "visible and audible warning;"—Held, that there was no evidence of negligence proper to be submitted to the jury—there was nothing more than "a mere surmise that there may have been negligence." [Toomey v. London, Brighton & South Coast R. Co., 3 C.B.N.S. 146, 150] and the action should be dismissed. (2) The jury had gone beyond their province in finding that the street car should have been controlled from the rear—that matter was under the control and direction of the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board; Ontario Railway and Municipal Board Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 186; see also cl. 36 of the schedule to the defendants' Act of Incorporation, 55 Vict. c. 99. (3) There was no ground for directing a new trial: the accident was due to O.'s own fault or an unexpected failure of the engine of his automobile. (4) Semble, that what the motorman said to O. immediately after the accident was not admissible in evidence. [Wilson v. Botsford-Jenks Co., 1 O.W.R. 101.] (5) O.'s mother, who owned the automobile, was properly added as a plaintiff at the trial before the jury were charged, upon her consent in writing under r. 134 (2).

COLLISION OF STREET CAR WITH AUTOMOBILE.

In an action for damages for negligence in the operation of a street car colliding with plaintiff's automobile, where it is found that the plaintiff was himself negligent and his negligence was concurrent with the negligence of the defendant which, e.g., excessive speed, was both primary and ultimate, the plaintiff cannot recover. COLLISION WITH AUTOMOBILE.

Where a municipal by-law provides that persons in charge of animals should proceed on the right side of the street, and should not pass the centre line, one who places his horse and carriage across the street, beyond the centre, is in fault and has no remedy if his horse is struck by an automobile which, without negligence, passes along the street on the right and within the centre line.

INJURY TO PERSON WAITING FOR CAR—CARTER.

When a person is injured while waiting at a place where passengers generally board a street car, by the horse of a carter, the carter and the contractor who employed him are both responsible for the injury. The carter having greater facility of choice where to place his cart and move his horse, his obligation was to let the foot-passenger have the right-of-way. He was negligent

PUBLIC ROAD — TRAFFIC — BY-LAWS—COLLISION — DAMAGES — C.C. QUE. 1053.

One who, without absolute necessity, drives an automobile upon the left side of a public road instead of on the right side, transgresses by-laws made for the safety of traffic, and assumes all risks resulting therefrom. The principle by virtue of which one claims damages ought to deduct from his claim the amount which he should receive under an insurance policy, does not apply to the case of a collision between automobiles.

AUTOMOBILE — RULE OF ROAD — COLLISION.

Where a vessel at a dock in a harbour unloading grain into an elevator with which it is coupled is moored safely against ordinary strains and to the satisfaction of the elevator owner, and an approaching vessel entering the harbour proceeds to turn around near the unloading vessel, thereby surging the water and unmooring the latter vessel, and causing injury to the elevator, the unloading vessel is not liable when the surging was a sudden occurrence due to the unavoidable and accidental breaking of a cable being used by the incoming boat to assist in turning, and the danger was not and could not have been anticipated or observed or appreciated by the unloading vessel in time to avert it.

(§ II A—75)—STATUTORY DUTY IMPOSED ON RAILWAY COMPANY—FAILURE TO COMPLY WITH—DUTY OF TRAVELER APPROACHING TRACK—LIABILITY FOR DAMAGES.

Where a statutory duty is imposed on a railway company to sound the whistle and ring the bell of the engine when a train is approaching a highway at level rail, a traveler has a right to expect this to be done, and is not required to look to see if a train is approaching. The omission to carry out the statutory duty imposed amounts to negligence and renders the company liable for resulting injury. (G. T.R. Co. v. McAlpine, 13 D.L.R. 618; Smith v. South Eastern R. Co., [1896] 1 Q.B. 178, followed.)

Doyle v. C.N.R. Co., 46 D.L.R. 135, [1919] 2 W.W.R. 184, 24 Can. Ry. Cas. 319, affirming, [1919] 1 W.W.R. 21.

One driving upon city streets knowing that there are crossings where street cars are passing but owing to the darkness is ignorant as to where the crossings exactly are, is bound to keep a good lookout and to be on guard as to conveyances coming his way, and his failure so to do and his blindly trusting to those driving ahead of him constitutes contributory negligence precluding him from recovering for injuries caused by collision with a street car even though those in charge of the car were negligent in its management.

BREACH OF STATUTORY DUTY.

In order that a railway company may be held responsible in damages for its negligent omission to perform a statutory duty, it must appear that the injury was the result of such omission and not of the folly or recklessness of the injured person; but the fact that the negligence of the plaintiff contributed to or formed a material part of the cause of his injury, will not preclude him from recovering damages if the consequences of his contributory negligence could have been avoided by the exercise of ordinary care and caution on the part of the defendant.

APPORTIONMENT OF DAMAGES.

Under Quebec law, an injured person will have his damages reduced if his negligence was contributory only; he can recover nothing if his negligence was the cause of the accident and the defendant's negligence was merely contributory; it is not the law that where there is common fault both parties must bear a share of the damages.

Montreal Tramways Co. v. McAllister, 34 D.L.R. 365, 26 Que. K.B. 174. [Affirmed by Prity Council 51 D.L.R. 429.]

VOLENS.

If a person with full knowledge and appreciation of the risk and danger attending a certain act, voluntarily does that act, it will be assumed that he voluntarily incurred the attendant risk and danger, and the maxim volenti non fit injuria directly applies.

C.P.R. v. Frechette, 22 D.L.R. 356, [1915] A.C. 871, 24 Que. K.B. 459, 31 W.L.R. 872, 18 Can. Ry. Cas. 251, reversing 23 Que. K.B. 203.

STREET RAILWAY—CROSSING—HILL.

The driver of a loaded vehicle climbing a steep hill has no special right-of-way over a street car track and must use reasonable care in crossing. Blindly crossing the track without looking to see whether a tram car is approaching or not is negligence which disentitles him to damages for injuries sustained.

QUESTIONS FOR THE JURY.

In an action for damages for personal injury caused by a car of the defendants, the jury found that defendants' negligence was the cause of the accident, but also that the plaintiff might, by the exercise of reasonable care, have avoided the accident. There was evidence sufficient to justify both these findings. The Trial Judge dismissed the action, following London Street R. Co. v. Brown (1901), 31 Can. S.C.R. 642. On appeal, the court ordered a new trial on the ground that the jury's finding that the plaintiff might have avoided the accident by the exercise of reasonable care was not sufficient without their saying in what respect he failed to exercise reasonable care, as the court was unable to determine from the jury's finding whether the plaintiff was in law guilty of contributory negligence or not. The court suggested that the proper course for the Trial Judge to take in such a case would be to submit to the jury two questions such as, 1. Was the plaintiff guilty of negligence? 2. If yes, what was this act of negligence? and that it would probably be well to add a third question: Whose negligence really caused the accident?

Plaintiff held disentitled to recover for injury through collision between his automobile which he was driving and defendant's tram car because the accident occurred at a dangerous point where plaintiff should have looked to see if a car were coming and if he looked he would have seen it, and either the failure to look, or, if he looked, the crossing in front of the car, was reckless conduct constituting contributory negligence on his part, which was the causa causans of the accident.

Fraser v. B.C.R. Co., [1919] 2 W.W.R. 513, affirming Gregory, J.

(§ II A—76)—WHEN CONTRIBUTORY NEGLIGENCE A DEFENCE—EFFICIENT CAUSE.

Negligence or want of ordinary care or caution on the plaintiff's part as constituting contributory negligence may disentitle him to recover where it is such that otherwise the injury could not have happened. In an action for negligence causing death in which a defence of contributory negligence is raised, if a negligent act on the part of the deceased is established which was the efficient cause of the fatal injury the question of the deceased's view of the possibilities of his act is immaterial, and whether the possibility of injury was or was not foreseen by him all the consequences which are the direct and natural outcome of his negligent act are attributable to same in bar of the action.

Cook v. G.T. Ry. Co., 19 D.L.R. 600, 31 O.L.R. 183, 15 Can. Ry. Cas. 150.

WHEN CONTRIBUTORY NEGLIGENCE A DEFENCE—DEGREE OF CARE.

In actions for damages for injuries under the Workmen's Compensation for Injuries Act, R.S.O. 1897, c. 160, the plaintiff cannot be proved guilty of contributory negligence by proving only that he could have avoided the accident; it must be shown that he could have avoided it by the exercise of such care as persons acting in the like capacity and under similar circumstances ordinarily would have exercised.

Scott v. University of Toronto, 10 D.L.R. 154, 49 C.L.J. 335, 24 O.W.R. 325.

In order to disentitle a plaintiff to recover upon the ground of contributory negligence, it must be found distinctly that the accident was attributable to his failure in the duty imposed upon him.

Dart v. Toronto R. Co., 8 D.L.R. 121, 4 O.W.N. 315, 23 O.W.R. 380.

TRIAL — APPEAL — JURY — VERDICT FOR PLAINTIFF—JUDGMENT FOR DAMAGES—REVERSED ON APPEAL—FUNCTIONS OF JUDGE AND JURY—CASE ONE FOR WITHDRAWAL FROM JURY.

Plaintiff sued defendant for damages for personal injuries from a fall while alighting from a street car operated by defendant, alleging negligent condition of car, and recovered judgment at trial on verdict of negligence by a jury. On appeal this judgment was reversed and the action dismissed with costs; on the ground that, in addition to the incredibility of plaintiff's story and its inconsistency with the other evidence, there was evidence of an admission by the plaintiff that the accident was caused by her heel coming off her boot, and which evidence was not denied by the plaintiff. The case should have been withdrawn from the jury at the close of the evidence and a dismissal of the action directed.

It is for the judge to say whether any facts have been established by evidence from which negligence may be reasonably inferred. The jurors have to say whether from these facts, when submitted to them, negligence ought to be inferred. [Metro-politan R. v. Jackson, 3 App. Cas. 193, per Lord Cairns at 197, followed.]

The question for the judge (subject to review) is, not whether there is literally no evidence, but whether there is none that ought reasonably to satisfy the jury that the fact sought to be proved is established. Where there is proved, as part of the plaintiff's case, or proved in the defendant's case and admitted by the plaintiff, an act of the plaintiff which per se amounts to negligence, and when it appears that such act caused or directly contributed to the injury, the defendant is entitled to have the case withdrawn from the jury.

Harris v. Winnipeg Electric R. Co., [1919] 1 W.W.R. 453, 29 Man. L.R. 306.

(§ II A—78)—WHAT CONSTITUTES CONTRIBUTORY NEGLIGENCE GENERALLY ACTING IN EMERGENCY.

Where the negligence of a railway company, operating a passenger train, forced a passenger into an emergency as to getting off the train at his destination, the fact that the means or method of exit which he, in such emergency, adopts, is not the wisest possible under the circumstances, does not necessarily imply contributory negligence on his part.

McDougall v. G.T.R. Co., 8 D.L.R. 271, 27 O.L.R. 369, 23 O.W.R. 364.

OF DEFENDANT—PERSONAL INJURIES OF PLAINTIFF DUE TO HIS OWN ACTS—DAMAGES.

A plaintiff whose own acts placed him in obvious danger cannot succeed in an action for damages against the defendant, even though the latter is found negligent, unless the plaintiff can show that the defendant's negligence placed a third party in danger; and that he acted as a reasonable and prudent man would.

McDonald v. Burr, 49 D.L.R. 396, [1919] 3 W.W.R. 825.

SUDDEN EMERGENCY FROM SUPERVENING NEGLIGENCE OF EMPLOYER.

Where the operator of an elevator in an office building is ascending with passengers and suddenly finds himself unable with the motor mechanism at hand to control or stop the elevator, the emergency will relieve him from being charged with contributory negligence in respect of the course taken by him to meet the emergency by calling down the person in charge of the electric switches awaiting his signal and for overlooking the immediate danger to himself in projecting his head over the side of the elevator in so doing, where a person of ordinary prudence might be expected to take a similar risk in an effort to avert the contemplated danger to the passengers and himself.

BOARD OF EDUCATION — LIABILITY — UN-GUARDED HOLE — CONTRIBUTORY NEGLIGENCE.

Shaw v. Board of Education of St. Thomas, 19 O.W.R. 846.

(§ II A—79)—INTERVENTION TO RESCUE—PROBABLE DEATH OR SERIOUS INJURY.

A person is justified in law in intervening to save from apparent probable death or serious injury a third person independently of any contractual or natural relationship between the person in danger and the intervener; unless his intervention was unnecessary, reckless or rash under the circumstances in the judgment of prudent persons and in considering his conduct he should not be charged with errors of judgment resulting from the excitement and confusion occasioned by the emergency and that if the intervener is injured he can recover on the ground either of negligence against the person in danger or of negligence against himself occurring after his intervention began.

Haigh v. G.T.P.R. Co., 8 A.L.R. 153, 7 W.W.R. 806.

(§ II A—81)—REFUSING MEDICAL TREATMENT.

The author of a délit or a quasi délit is only answerable for the damages which are the immediate and necessary result of it. Thus, where the victim of an accident aggravates the consequences of it by refusing treatment which should cure it, he cannot hold the author of the accident liable for a permanent infirmity which might have been avoided.

Noel v. Quebec R., L. H. & P. Co., 48 Que. S.C. 130.

B. OF PERSONS UNDER DISABILITY.

(§ II B—85)—CONTRIBUTORY NEGLIGENCE —OF CHILDREN.

Young children who have attained the age at which criminal responsibility begins (7 years) may be held responsible for contributory negligence debarring them from recovering damages in actions for personal injuries through the negligence of others, if such children fail to exercise that standard of care which may reasonably be expected of children of their age and situation.

Moran v. Burroughs, 10 D.L.R. 181, 27 O.L.R. 539, reversing 3 D.L.R. 392.

(§ II B—86)—ATTEMPT TO CROSS STREET CAR TRACK.

A person who attempts to cross a street car track, when a car is too close to him to make it practicable for the motorman to stop the car or avoid striking him, cannot recover damages against the company.

Montreal Tramways Co. v. Hamilton, 43 D.L.R. 243, 27 Que. K.B. 575.

(§ II B-87)—NEGLIGENCE OF PARENTS.

A municipal corporation is not liable for injury to a child five years of age caused by falling into the excavation in the evening after dark when all reasonable means have been used to protect the public. The negligence in such case is that of the parents who allow their children to play on the street in proximity to danger at such a time.

Scott v. Quebec, 44 Que. S.C. 184.

(§ II B-88)—CHILDREN.

The doctrine of contributory negligence does not apply to an infant of tender years. Vick v. Morin, 22 D.L.R. 29, 21 B.C.R. 8, 30 W.L.R. 412, 7 W.W.R. 1053.

INJURY CAUSED BY AUTOMOBILE—CONTRIBUTORY NEGLIGENCE OF CHILDREN.

Contributory negligence may be attributed to a boy 11 years of age who, while he is playing on a public street, is injured by suddenly turning and running in front of an automobile through his failure to look out for approaching vehicles.

Hargrave v. Hart, 9 D.L.R. 521, 22 Man. L.R. 467.

STREET CAR—PRESUMED JUVENILE DISCRETION.

A boy of 8½ years, possessing the ordinary intelligence of a child of that age, will be presumed to know enough to get out of the way of a moving street car if he saw it coming.

C. ON HIGHWAYS.

(§ II C-95)—DUTY TO LOOK.

Anyone who attempts to drive across the track of an electric street railway, where he knows that cars are constantly passing, without looking to see whether a car is approaching, is guilty of contributory negligence barring recovery for injuries caused by a car colliding with the buggy in which he was driving. RAILWAY CROSSING—REASONABLE CARE.

A person about to cross a track in front of an engine or car running on rails must exercise reasonable care. What is reasonable care depends on the circumstances of each case and is a matter to be determined by the jury.

PUBLIC WORK — RAILWAY—COLLISION — STALLED AUTOMOBILE.

The collision of a train with an automobile stalled on a level crossing of the Intercolonial Railway, occasioned by the delay of the engine driver to apply his brakes the moment he became aware of the presence of the motor upon the track, is an accident "on a public work" and caused by the "negligence of an officer or servant of the Crown while acting within the scope of his duties or employment upon, in or about the construction, maintenance or operation of the Intercolonial Railway," within the meaning of s. 20 of the Eschequer Court Act.

AUTOMOBILE ON STREET CONTRARY TO BY-LAW—COLLISION.

The fact that a carter leaves his horse and waggon standing obliquely across a street in such a way as to block up more than half of its width, in violation of a municipal by-law, does not exonerate from all liability an automobile driver who imprudently causes a collision by passing at any risk rather than stopping and requesting room to pass. In such case it is contributory negligence.

Wayagamack Pulp & Paper Co. v. Girard, 27 Que. K.B. 101.

DEVIATION FROM REGULAR ROUTE TO AVOID DANGER.

One who, to avoid a danger, deviates from his route and puts himself in a more dangerous position, cannot be accused of fault, even if he commits an error in judgment, if he merely acts on a sudden impulse created by the imminence of the danger.

Adams v. Wilson, 10 O.W.N. 138.

MOTOR VEHICLES — PLAINTIFF BOARDING STREET CAR—STRUCK BY DEFENDANT'S AUTOMOBILE — CONTRIBUTORY NEGLIGENCE—THIRD PERSON CAUSA CAUSANS OF ACCIDENT.

Plaintiff was injured while attempting to board a street car at a crossing by being struck by defendant's automobile. Another automobile passed at an excessive rate of speed to the right of defendant between him and the curb as defendant reached the crossing (thus, as the court assumed, preventing plaintiff and defendant from seeing each other) and the plaintiff had passed in front of this other automobile before being struck by that of defendant. The court was not satisfied on the evidence that defendant was traveling at other than a reasonable speed or that he was committing any breach of the provision of the Motor Vehicles Act and concluded that the plaintiff failed to exercise ordinary caution and discretion in passing in front of a speedily moving automobile without first ascertaining whether the street was clear beyond it and that she was therefore guilty of contributory negligence. Apart from the question of negligence the court was inclined to the view that the conduct of the driver of the other automobile was the causa causans of the accident.

Jackson v. Hatell, [1919] 3 W.W.R. 66.

(§ II C—96)—SPEED.

Where bricks are piled upon a street by a contractor in the course of erecting a building, and the obstruction so created is insufficiently protected at night, both as to the number of lights thereon and as to the location or position of such lights, the contractor is liable in damages to one who drives into such obstruction at night without seeing it, where such driving cannot be said to be reckless or unusually fast, in an action of negligence based upon the failure to warn travelers by protecting lights, apart from any right or permit which the contractor may have had to pile the bricks on the street.

Turnbull v. Corbett, O'Brien v. Corbett, 8 D.L.R. 343, 41 N.B.R. 284, 11 East. L.R. 67.

(§ II C—97)—MOTOR VEHICLES—AUTOMOBILES DRIVING ON WRONG SIDE OF ROAD—VACILLATING COURSE—BOTH PARTIES CONTRIBUTING TO ACCIDENT.

Two parties were driving their automobiles at night in opposite directions but on the wrong side of the road when they collided and both sustained damages. The evidence disclosed that just prior to the collision each party endeavoured to get on to the right side of the road, but that the defendant fearing that the plaintiff would strike him broadside again turned to the left, the collision following. The plaintiff sued and defendant counterclaimed. Held, that the accident was caused by the fault of both parties, and that neither party could recover against the others.

(§ II C—98)—MARRIED WOMAN—PASSENGER IN HUSBAND'S MOTOR CAR—COLLISION — CONTRIBUTORY NEGLIGENCE OF HUSBAND—RIGHT OF WIFE TO RECOVER IN ACTION FOR DAMAGES.

A wife who is injured in a collision while riding in a motor car driven by her husband may, under the Married Woman's Property Act (R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 152), maintain an action in her own name and for her own benefit in respect of the injury sustained.

Contributory negligence on the part of the husband will not prevent her succeeding in the action, on the ground that he is not her servant and she is not responsible for his negligence. [The "Bernia," 13 App. Cas. 1, applied.]

The obligation of a person who rides in the automobile of a third party, on the invitation of the owner, in order that he may shew the driver the way is limited prima facie to directing him along what streets he should proceed and what turnings he should take he is not under obligation to point out obstacles or dangers on the route which would be apparent to any careful driver, and his failure to do so is not negligence.

PUBLIC WORK—ICE ON APPROACH—INJURY TO PERSON—LIABILITY.

Suppliant was injured by falling on the footpath on the approach to a bridge, at a place under the control of the Dominion Government; and the superintendent of the canal and his assistants were charged with the duty of maintaining the footpath in good order. The accident happened at about midnight. The footpath was slippery, owing to ice. A witness gave evidence that at 4 p. m. of the day before the accident he had spread ashes on the spot where the suppliant fell; and that he visited the footpath at 2 p. m. on the day of the accident, and that the ashes were still there and that no more were required for safety:—Held, that as it was not shewn that the footpath in question had been allowed to remain an unreasonable time in an unsafe condition, no negligence was attributable to the superintendent of the canal or his assistants, and that the suppliant could not recover.

D. OTHER CASES.

(§ II D—104)—DRIVING HORSE ON HIGHWAY—DEFECTIVE LINES—FINAL, DISTINCT FROM EFFECTIVE, CAUSE.

Where the plaintiff's horses shied on the highway at a telephone pole negligently left there by the defendant, and at the same time broke the reins, there is not contributory negligence where the reins had been well taken care of, and, so far as the plaintiff was aware, were fit for all purposes, although the fact might be that, while they were sufficiently strong for all ordinary purposes, they were not fit to drive with, where an unusual strain was placed upon them.

Smith v. Berwick, 15 D.L.R. 91, 6 S.L.R. 1279, 26 W.L.R. 155, 5 W.W.R. 661.

E. IMPUTED.

(§ II E—110)—PIT UNGUARDED UNDER ELEVATOR—LICENSEE—KNOWLEDGE OF DANGER—CONTRIBUTORY NEGLIGENCE.

The plaintiff, an employee of a milk vendor, in the course of his duties, carried milk up and down an unguarded freight elevator in the defendant company's quarters, used for the storing and pasteurizing of milk. The floor of the elevator, when down, was used in conjunction with the other floor space where it stood, in going from one side to the other, there being a pit below the elevator floor about 15 feet deep, of which the plaintiff claimed to have no knowledge. The plaintiff had been at the building, in the usual course of his business, about ten times previous to the evening of the accident. When he entered the building about eight o'clock, there were no lights. In crossing the floor space where the elevator shaft was (the elevator being at an upper storey), he fell in the pit and was injured.—Held, affirming the judgment of the Trial Judge taking the case from the jury and dismissing the action, that the plaintiff had knowledge of the locus in quo, and he was guilty of contributory negligence in attempting to cross the elevator floor without knowing whether the elevator was down or not. F. INJURY AVOIDABLE NOTWITHSTANDING CONTRIBUTORY NEGLIGENCE; LAST CLEAR CHANCE.

(§ II F—120)—CARELESSNESS OF PERSON INJURED—RECKLESS CONDUCT OF MOTORMAN.

The carelessness of the plaintiffs in driving across the tracks of a tramway was, in this case, excused by the reckless conduct of the defendant's motorman in failing to use proper precautions to avoid the consequences of their negligence after he had become aware of it.

Calgary v. Harnovis, 15 D.L.R. 411, 48 Can. S.C.R. 494, 26 W.L.R. 565, 5 W.W.R. 869, affirming 11 D.L.R. 3, 6 A.L.R. 1, 23 W.L.R. 847, 4 W.W.R. 263.

LAST CLEAR CHANCE—ACCIDENT PRIOR THERETO.

The doctrine of the "last clear chance" applies only where there has been a breach of duty on the part of the defendant arising after the danger to the plaintiff became or should have become apparent to the defendant and he fails to do, for the purpose of avoiding the accident, that which a reasonably careful man would have done, and hence where the accident has happened before the defendant became aware of the danger to the plaintiff, it is not error to refuse to submit to the jury the question of whether the defendant could by the exercise of reasonable care have avoided the accident.

ULTIMATE NEGLIGENCE.

Even if the deceased who was killed while crossing the railway was guilty of contributory negligence in not looking for approaching trains damages will be awarded against the railway if there was such ultimate negligence on the part of its employees operating the train that the collision might have been avoided after they became aware of the danger had the watchman stationed at the rear of the train moving reversely shouted a warning (on seeing the horses and load of lumber), to the driver walking on the far side and not visible to him, instead of jumping off and attempting only to warn the other train hands.

O'Callaghan v. Great Northern R. Co., 20 D.L.R. 145, 18 Can. Ry. Cas. 156.

LAST CLEAR CHANCE—ULTIMATE RESPONSIBILITY.

In a negligence action for damages resulting from the collision of two automobiles where it appears that the defendant was guilty of primary negligence and by the exercise of reasonable care could in the circumstances eventually have avoided the result of his own primary negligence as well as that of the plaintiff (assuming the plaintiff to have also been guilty of primary negligence), the ultimate responsibility for the collision, rests upon the defendant.

B. & R. Co. v. McLeod, 18 D.L.R. 245, 7 A.L.R. 349, 28 W.L.R. 778, 6 W.W.R. 1299, reversing 7 D.L.R. 579, 5 A.L.R. 176, 22 W.L.R. 274, 2 W.W.R. 1093.

ULTIMATE NEGLIGENCE.

Negligence of a defendant incapacitating him from taking due care to avoid the consequences of the plaintiff's negligence may, though anterior in point of time to the plaintiff's negligence, constitute ultimate negligence, rendering the defendant liable, notwithstanding the contributory negligence of the plaintiff. [Scott v. Dublin & Wicklow R. Co., 11 Ir. C.L.R. 377, 394, followed.]

FINDINGS OF JURY.

Stepan v. National Elevator Co., 22 D. L.R. 914.

ULTIMATE NEGLIGENCE.

Where the general effect of the verdict when read with the evidence and the charge of the Trial Judge is that notwithstanding the negligence of the deceased who had been struck by a street car while attempting to cross the track, the motorman might have avoided the accident by the exercise of reasonable prudence, the verdict should not be set aside.

Long v. Toronto R. Co., 20 D.L.R. 369, 49 Can. S.C.R. 224, 18 Can. Ry. Cas. 92, reversing 10 D.L.R. 300, 15 Can. Ry. Cas. 35, 24 O.W.R. 39.

In an action for damages for injuries sustained, where contributory negligence is alleged, a new trial will be ordered if the attention of the jury has not been directed to the question whether, but for the negligence of the defendant the accident might have been avoided, notwithstanding the negligence of the plaintiff, and their finding is not conclusive on this point. COLLISION WITH STREET CAR.

A plaintiff cannot recover damages for injuries received where the responsibility for the accident has been placed upon both the plaintiff and the defendant, and the defendant could not, by the exercise of reasonable care after he became aware of the danger to the plaintiff, have avoided the accident.

Smith v. Regina, 42 D.L.R. 647, 11 S.L.R. 291, [1918] 2 W.W.R. 1610, affirming 34 D.L.R. 238, 21 Can. Ry. Cas. 270, 10 S.L.R. 72, [1917] 1 W.W.R. 1444.

COLLISION BETWEEN TRAIN AND AUTOMOBILE.

In an action for damages because of the destruction of the plaintiff's motor car by a train, the Trial Judge after consideration of the findings of the jury, held the effect of them to be a finding that the decisive negligence was that of the brakeman, and, therefore, gave judgment for the plaintiff.

(§ 1—1)—TRIAL—IMPROPER CONDUCT OF COUNSEL INFLUENCING VERDICT.

If it appears that counsel for the plaintiff throughout the trial had systematically sought in various ways to inflame the minds of the jury against the defendant, in a slander action, and this has resulted in an excessive verdict against the latter, a new trial will be ordered on appeal.

Hal'ren v. Holden, 12 D.L.R. 570, 18 B.C.R. 110, 24 W.L.R. 951, 4 W.W.R. 1339. [Affirmed by Supreme Court of Canada.]

ACTION FOR NEGLIGENCE—INSUFFICIENT EVIDENCE.

Where the evidence of negligence is not convincing and so intimated by the Trial Judge, or where the jury's finding inferentially negative the existence of negligence, the court will not grant a new trial. [Cobban v. C.P.R. Co., 23 A.R. (Ont.) 115; G.T.R. Co. v. McKay, 34 Can. S.C.R. 81, 85; Andreas v. C.P.R. Co., 7 Terr. L.R. 327, 37 Can. S.C.R. 1, applied.]

CONCLUSIVENESS OF VERDICT.

Where all questions of substance have been passed upon by a jury a new trial should not be granted.

Pruett v. G.T.R. Co., [1917] 2 W.W.R. 662.

(§ I-2)—UNFAIR REMARK OF COUNSEL.

Unfair and inflammatory language employed by counsel in the present action of a case for the plaintiff in an action against a street railway for injuries to a woman passenger, unless objected to by counsel or stepped by the Trial Judge, is not of itself ground for a new trial.

Dale v. Toronto R. Co., 24 D.L.R. 413, 34 O.L.R. 104.

REMARKS OF ATTORNEY.

Where counsel for the plaintiff improperly refers in his opening to the jury to the fact that money has been paid into court, and counsel for the defendant objects, a new trial will be ordered, though counsel for the plaintiff apologizes for his statement and withdraws it, and counsel for the defendant does not ask to have the jury discharged.

Dickinson v. "The World," 5 D.L.R. 148, 17 B.C.R. 401, 21 W.L.R. 529, 2 W.W.R. 633.

(§ I-4)—TERMS.

Nokes v. Kent, 6 D.L.R. 877, 4 O.W.N. 252.

II. For errors of the court.

In conviction for sedition, repetition of seditious words, see Sedition, I-5.

(§ II-3)—DISMISSAL OF ACTION—UNRELIABILITY OF TESTIMONY—BALANCING OF PROBABILITIES.

On appeal from the dismissal of the action by the Trial Judge on the ground that the witnesses on both sides were unworthy of credence, the Appellate Court may grant a new trial if it appears that the Trial Judge made no attempt to weigh the evidence and to balance the probabilities of the case in connection with its attendant circumstances.

McCawley v. Albert, 15 D.L.R. 497, 48 N.S.R. 32.

RAILWAY—DEATH OF PERSON—NEGLIGENCE—EVIDENCE FOR JURY—NEW TRIAL.

Brewer v. G.T.R. Co., 2 D.L.R. 919, 3 O.W.N. 572.

A new trial will be granted where, before any evidence was heard, an action was dismissed on an objection, that was not pleaded by the defendant, that the shares of stock on which the plaintiff based his action, had been assigned by him.

Daniel v. Birkbeck Loan Co., 4 D.L.R. 767, 22 O.W.R. 147.

EVIDENCE—NEGLIGENCE—BURDEN OF PROOF—MISDIRECTION—MOTOR VEHICLE ACT, 1918, 8-9 GEO. V. (N.S.) c. 12, s. 50.

A judge in his charge to the jury must be careful in expressing his opinion upon the facts to bring out all points in both parties' favour. And further, in his charge as regards negligence where the burden of proof has been changed by statute, he should state upon whom the burden is placed. [Bray v. Ford, [1896] A.C. 44; McLeod v. Holland, 14 D.L.R. 634, 47 N.S.R. 427; Jefferson v. Paskell, [1916] 1 K.B. 57, applied.] England v. Colburn, 50 D.L.R. 379.

FAILURE TO TAKE DOWN EVIDENCE IN WRITING—DIVISION COURTS ACT (ONT.).

Where in a Division Court action for the recovery of a sum exceeding $100, the Division Court Judge has not complied with 10 Edw. VII. (Ont.) c. 52, s. 106, by taking down the evidence in writing, a letter from the judge setting out the facts which, in his view, were proved at the trial, will not be looked at by an Appellate Court, and a defendant appealing is entitled to a new trial, he not being responsible for the irregularity.

Smith v. Boothman, 9 D.L.R. 450, 24 O.W.R. 106.

IRRELEVANT EVIDENCE—REMARKS BY COUNSEL—ALIEN ENEMY.

The admission of evidence irrelevant to the issue, calculated to prejudice the jury, is prima facie a "substantial wrong or miscarriage," and the onus of proving that it is not is on the party on whose behalf the evidence is given. [Comments upon the improper admission of evidence of the plaintiff's nationality.]

Gage v. Reid, 34 D.L.R. 46, 38 O.L.R. 514. [See also 39 O.L.R. 52.]

AS TO EVIDENCE—"SUBSTANTIAL WRONG."

The improper admission of evidence in criminal proceedings as to which it cannot be said that substantial wrong or miscarriage of justice was not thereby occasioned is ground for a new trial under s. 1019 Cr. Code.

R. v. Baugh, 31 D.L.R. 66, 36 O.L.R. 436, 27 Can. Cr. Cas. 373.

CROSS-EXAMINATION OF MEMORANDUM TO REFRESH MEMORY—"SUBSTANTIAL INJUSTICE."

There exists a well established right to cross-examine the memorandum used by a witness to refresh his memory, the denial of which constitutes a substantial injustice, particularly in view of the inconsistencies and mistakes of the testimony of the witness the evidence of whom is the very essence of the case, and is ground for a new trial. [Sinclair v. Stevenson, 1 Car. & P. 582, applied.]

McLean v. Merchants Bank, 27 D.L.R. 156, 9 A.L.R. 471, 34 W.L.R. 81, 10 W.W.R. 191.

AS TO PLEA OF JUSTIFICATION—PROBABLE CAUSE.

In an action against a police constable for false arrest without warrant, in which the defendant was not permitted to set up reasonable and probable cause in justification for making the arrest without a warrant a new trial will be granted.

Altman v. Majury, 31 D.L.R. 759, 37 O.L.R. 608, 27 Can. Cr. Cas. 398.

AS TO VERDICT—APPELLATE JUDGMENT ON MERITS.

Where a Trial Judge directs a judgment against the verdict of the jury, the Appellate Court in setting the judgment aside will not order a new trial, but will direct a judgment to be entered in accordance with the verdict.

Gray v. Wabash R. Co., 28 D.L.R. 244, 35 O.L.R. 510, 20 Can. Ry. Cas. 391.

CIVIL ACTION — ACQUITTAL ON CRIMINAL CHARGE.

If a perusal of the judgment of a District Court Judge convinces the Court of Appeal that he has been influenced in his judgment in a civil action by the fact that the plaintiff had been acquitted on a criminal charge, a new trial will be ordered.

Goldston v. Alameda Farmers Elevator & Trading Co., 43 D.L.R. 607.

CHARGE TO JURY—CRIMINAL TRIAL—SUBSTANTIAL WRONG.

Although some of the expressions used by the Trial Judge in his charge to the jury may be open to criticism, a new trial will not be granted under the Cr. Code if there has been no substantial misdirection, and the court is satisfied that there has been no miscarriage of justice.

R. v. Letain, 29 Can. Cr. Cas. 389, 28 Man. L.R. 386, [1918] 1 W.W.R. 505.

MISDIRECTION — DEFENCES — MISREPRESENTATION—INSANITY.

A judge's charge to a jury must be read as a whole, and a misdirection therein must be a substantial one or contain an element tending to mislead or confuse before it can be a ground for a new trial. [Blue v. Red Mountain R. Co., [1909] A.C. 361, at p. 368; White v. Victoria Lumber, etc., Co., [1910] A.C. 606, at p. 611, followed]. In an action against executors for the amount of calls upon shares in a company in which the testator was a shareholder, the defendants set up the defence of mental incompetency to contract and misrepresentation. In charging the jury the judge said: "One or either of these defences may be true, but they cannot both be true. If he were mentally incompetent, then the question of misrepresentation would not arise at all, but in order that a misrepresentation could be made to him and be effective to enable his executors to get out of the contract, you must first start with the proposition that he was capable of making a contract." The jury gave a general verdict for the plaintiff. The defendant upon appeal complained of misdirection. Held, that reading the charge as a whole, no ground had been shown why the verdict should be set aside and a new trial ordered.

Canadian Financiers Trust Co. v. Ashwell, 25 B.C.R. 97.

COMMENT BY COUNSEL—RAILWAYS—NON-PRODUCTION OF CONFIDENTIAL REPORTS.

Counsel commented on the refusal of a railway company to produce a confidential report and the Trial Judge refused to direct the jury that they were not entitled to draw an unfavourable inference against the company so refusing production. Held, that there should be a new trial.

Errico v. B.C. Electric Ry. Co., [1917] 2 W.W.R. 238.

NEGLECTANCE—COUNSEL FOR DEFENDANT ABSENT AT TRIAL—VERDICT SET ASIDE.

Sheahan v. Toronto R. Co., 19 O.W.R. 946.

(§ II--6)—NONSUIT—WEIGHT OF EVIDENCE—ADMISSIONS.

Where counsel for one party to an action places in evidence an admission made by the opposite party, containing some statements in favour of and some adverse to the interest of his client, it is not necessary to give equal credence or weight to the several statements. A new trial will be ordered, therefore, where the Trial Judge has withdrawn the action from the jury on the ground that the whole admission must be accepted as truthful, and if so, negatives negligence.

Huck v. C.P.R. Co., 29 D.L.R. 571, 9 S. L.R. 288, 34 W.L.R. 1177, 10 W.W.R. 1342.

FOR ERRORS OF THE COURT—IN REFUSING CONTINUANCE.

The refusal of the Trial Judge to grant the plaintiff an adjournment of the trial to identify an exhibit produced, may be ground for ordering a new trial, on appeal from the dismissal of the action, where the plaintiff was taken by surprise in respect of such lack of evidence, and leave to bring a new action had not been reserved to the plaintiff, but terms as to costs would properly be imposed upon him.

Stephenson v. Sanitaris, 16 D.L.R. 695, 30 O.L.R. 60.

TO DEFENDANT ON REVERSING NONSUIT.

While a defendant moving for a nonsuit at the close of the plaintiff's case takes the risk of having the case disposed of on appeal without evidence for the defence, the Appellate Court may grant him a new trial on reversing the nonsuit, if it be shown that he was prepared at the trial to adduce evidence in answer had the nonsuit not been granted, particularly if it appears that the risk of taking the nonsuit was not brought to the attention of defendant's counsel.

Mars v. Drury, 9 D.L.R. 638, 23 W.L.R. 538, 6 S.L.R. 185, 3 W.W.R. 1143.

WHEN JUDGMENT FOR NOMINAL DAMAGE SHOULD HAVE BEEN ENTERED—ENTRY BY APPELLATE COURT.

On appeal from a judgment nonsuiting the plaintiff when he should have been awarded nominal damages a new trial will not be granted, but the Appellate Court may direct judgment to be entered for a nominal sum. [Simonds v. Chesley, 20 Can. S. C.R. 174; Scammell v. Clarke, 23 Can. S.C.R. 307; and Milligan v. Jamieson 4 O.L.R. 650, applied.]

Day v. Horton, 14 D.L.R. 763, 23 Man. L.R. 623, 26 W.L.R. 72, 5 W.W.R. 751.

(4 H-7)—PERMITTING ONE PARTY TO SHEW MISTAKE IN WRITTEN CONTRACT AND REFUSING OPPOSITE PARTY SAME PRIVILEGE.

When one party to an action is permitted to give oral evidence in his own favour to shew a mistake in a written contract and the same right is refused the opposite party, a new trial will be granted.

Edmonton Securities v. Lepage, 14 D.L.R. 60, 25 W.L.R. 532, 6 A.L.R. 282, 5 W.W.R. 88.

ADMISSION OF EVIDENCE—MATTERS READ TO JURY.

Where a statute provides, "that only three expert witnesses may be called by either side, without the leave of the judge or other person presiding, to be applied for before the examination of any such witnesses," a refusal of the judge to obey the statute constitutes a mistrial, and a new trial will be granted.

Rice v. Sockett, 8 D.L.R. 84, 27 O.L.R. 410, 23 O.W.R. 602.

That the conviction of one of two defendants tried jointly for burglary and theft was against the weight of evidence is no reason for granting a new trial to both under s. 1021, Cr. Code; but the rule is otherwise if the defendants have been jointly convicted of conspiracy, or if a new trial will tend to the administration of justice. [R. v. Fellowes, 19 U.C.Q.B. 48, distinguished.]

R. v. Murray, 8 D.L.R. 208, 20 Can. Cr. Cas. 197, 27 O.L.R. 382, 23 O.W.R. 492.

Under s. 374 of c. 111 of the Supreme Court Act, C.S.N.B., 1903, that court will not grant a new trial of an action appealed from the County Court in which but a trifling amount is in dispute, on the ground of misdirection or improper admission or rejection of evidence, unless substantial wrong or miscarriage was thereby occasioned.

Where, in an issue as to lunacy under s. 7 of the Lunacy Act, 9 Edw. VII. (Ont.) c. 37, a Divisional Court has, of its own motion and against the protest of one of the parties to the issue, improperly called for and heard fresh evidence, and itself examined the alleged lunatic, and, upon the original evidence and the further facts thus ascertained, has determined the issue and reversed the decision of the Trial Judge, and it appears that much of the fresh evidence so obtained may be material and important, the proper course is, not to determine the issue upon the record as it stood when the appeal came before the Divisional Court, but to direct a new trial.

Re Fraser; Fraser v. Robertson; McCormick v. Fraser, 8 D.L.R. 955, 26 O.L.R. 508, 22 O.W.R. 353.

REJECTING EVIDENCE—REVIEW ON APPEAL.

Improper exclusion of evidence may be ground for a new trial, but the nature of the evidence excluded should be stated to the Appeal Court in order that it might arrive at a conclusion whether such improper exclusion is ground for a new trial.

Kimball Lumber Co. v. Anderson, 27 D.L.R. 555.

DAMAGES—EMPLOYERS' LIABILITY INSURANCE.

Where nothing was brought out during the course of the trial of an employee's personal injury action from which the jury could reasonably infer that an insurance company was the real defendant in interest, a new trial will not be granted because of references made during the course of the trial that a physician called for the defence had examined the plaintiff on behalf of a certain casualty insurance company if his cross-examination by the plaintiff's counsel in this respect went no further than to attempt to shew that the physician was not disinterested by reason of his employment by the insurance company and his possible bias on account thereof. [Loughead v. Collingwood Shipbuilding Co., 16 O.L.R. 64, distinguished.]

Mitchell v. Heintzman, 9 D.L.R. 20, 23 O.W.R. 763.

PREJUDICIAL REMARKS—ALIEN ENEMY.

A new trial will be ordered where a jury has been prejudicially influenced by counsel's improper comment that the defendant was of enemy and the plaintiff of friendly nationality by birth.

D. v. B., 38 D.L.R. 243, 40 O.L.R. 112.

IRRELEVANT EVIDENCE—LIBEL—FAIR COMMENT.

The admission of evidence in a libel action, of facts not set out in the particulars of the plea of fair comment, is ground for a new trial.

Augustine Automatic Rotary Eng. Co. v. Saturday Night, 34 D.L.R. 439, 38 O.L.R. 609.

IMPROPER EVIDENCE—AUTHOR OF LIBEL.

An improper admission of evidence disclosing the authorship of a libelous letter in a newspaper, which is corrected by the Trial Judge in his charge to the jury, is no ground for a new trial.

Culligan v. The Graphic, 37 D.L.R. 134, 44 N.B.R. 481.

IMPROPER ADMISSION OF EVIDENCE—PREVENTING PROOF OF DEFENCE.

A defendant is entitled to a new trial on the ground that he was prevented from attempting to prove his defence on cross-examination of the plaintiff's witnesses; and on the ground of the improper reception of evidence of correspondence and conversations after the trusteeship had ceased.

Jones v. Burgess, 43 N.B.R. 126. [Appeal allowed in part by Canada Supreme Court, not reported.]

STATEMENT OF WITNESS IN FORMER TRIAL READ IN CHARGE TO JURY.

Only a very clear case of wrong or miscarriage would justify an order for a third trial, where the amount involved is small in proportion to the costs incurred. Where a Trial Judge, in the course of his charge, gives to the jury a statement from his own notes of a former trial of the evidence given by a witness, and a protest from counsel is dealt in a way calculated to impress upon the jury still more emphatically an alleged incompatibility between the evidence of the witness and the statement supposed to have been made formerly by him, a new trial should be directed.

Hearn v. Nelson, 8 W.W.R. 99.

(§ 11—8)—MISDIRECTION.

An isolated misstatement of law in a judge's charge to a jury is not misdirection, as grounds for a new trial, if in its entirety the charge fairly states the law bearing upon the case from its different aspects.

Duffy v. Reid, 34 D.L.R. 289, 44 N.B.R. 407.

When the facts are such that in order to guide the jury properly there should be a direction of law given, the omission to give such direction of law is a ground for a new trial. [Prudential Ass'ce Co. v. Edmonds, 2 A.C. 487.]

Where, upon the second trial of an action with a jury, the charge of the Trial Judge is such that it may have prejudiced the defendant as to the amount of damages, and larger damages have been awarded than at the former trial, a new trial may be refused, upon the plaintiff consenting to a reduction of the damages to the amount awarded at the former trial.

Connors v. Reid, 3 D.L.R. 636, 3 O.W.N. 1137.

Where on a trial for shooting with intent to murder the jury returned a verdict of acquittal after an erroneous ruling by the Trial Judge that the jury could not be directed, on such indictment, to bring in a verdict for the lesser offence of shooting with intent to maim or to do grievous bodily harm, if they found such lesser offence proved, a new trial will not necessarily be granted by the appellate court on reversing such erroneous ruling on an appeal by the prosecution, but the court will exercise its discretion in refusing a new trial if it considers that the evidence does not warrant it.

R. v. Kerr, 3 D.L.R. 720, 20 Can. Cr. Cas. 70, 22 Man. L.R. 353, 21 W.L.R. 652.

CRIMINAL CASE—MISDIRECTION AS TO LAW.

Where the Trial Judge erred in his charge to the jury as to the validity of a seed grain mortgage in question on a false pretence charge, a new trial should be ordered by the Appellate Court if it considers that the jury may have been influenced to convict by that portion of the charge.

R. v. Holderman, 19 D.L.R. 748, 23 Can. Cr. Cas. 369, 7 S.L.R. 279, 30 W.L.R. 82, 7 W.W.R. 729.

CRIMINAL CASE—MISDIRECTION AS TO REASONABLE DOUBT.

A new trial will be ordered in a criminal case on the ground that the instruction to the jury may have misled them on the question of reasonable doubt and so have led them to apply the rule as to the balancing of mere probabilities as in civil cases.

R. v. Schurman, 19 D.L.R. 800, 23 Can. Cr. Cas. 365, 7 S.L.R. 269, 30 W.L.R. 56, 7 W.W.R. 680.

MISDIRECTION — ACTION FOR SLANDER — CHARGE OF TRIAL JUDGE TO JURY — APPEAL — NEW TRIAL ORDERED.

A judge's charge to a jury must be clear and concise, not misleading in any way, nor ambiguous, otherwise misdirection may be found, and a new trial ordered. Rhodenizer v. Rhodenizer, 50 D.L.R. 344, 53 N.S.R. 234.

MALICIOUS PROSECUTION—ERROR OF JUDGE IN INSTRUCTING JURY AS TO MALICE.

Error on the part of the Trial Judge in instructing the jury as to the elements necessary to constitute a cause of action founded on malicious prosecution so that jury may have found for the plaintiff without in fact finding any malice whatever, is ground for a new trial.

Bolster v. Cleland, 45 D.L.R. 574, 14 A.L.R. 341, [1919] 1 W.W.R. 1029.

Upon an appeal in a criminal case, the Court of Appeal should not grant a new trial merely because a portion of the judge's charge was objectionable if of opinion that, irrespective of the charge, the jury could not have done otherwise than convict the accused and consequently that the misdirection could not have occasioned any "substantial wrong" to the accused within the terms of the Cr. Code, s. 1019. [See also Tremere's Criminal Code, 2nd ed., 1908, pp. 806-808.]

The King v. Lew, 1 D.L.R. 99, 19 Can. Cr. Cas. 281, 17 B.C.R. 77, 19 W.L.R. 853.

A new trial of a criminal case in which the jury returned a verdict of not guilty will be ordered at the instance of the Crown where the Trial Judge, upon being asked by the jury after they had been out a while whether he had told them that it was not necessary to have before them evidence corroborative of that of the accused's accomplice, replied that he had not, and then went on to say, among other things, that the law did not require such corroborative evidence to be given though it was usual for judges to advise the jury that they should not convict on the uncorroborated evidence of an accomplice, and where the judge, after the jury had retired again, refused to request of the counsel for the Crown further to instruct the jury that if they saw fit to believe the evidence of the accomplice and to find a verdict against the accused upon it, they might do so, and such a verdict would be a lawful one, especially where the Trial Judge also said to the jury just after his statement above set forth that "of course the jury is generally supposed to pay some attention to what the judge says upon a legal point."

R. v. Betchell, 5 D.L.R. 497, 19 Can. Cr. Cas. 423, 4 A.L.R. 402, 21 W.L.R. 665, 2 W.W.R. 624.

It is not misdirection for the judge to tell the jury his opinion upon a question at issue before them, if he expressly leaves that question to them to settle. A new trial is not granted on the ground of misdirection, unless, in the opinion of the court, some substantial wrong or miscarriage has been thereby occasioned.

NEGLIGENCE OF DEFENDANTS — CONTRIBUTORY NEGLIGENCE OF PLAINTIFF — INSUFFICIENT INSTRUCTIONS TO JURY.

The jury having found negligence on the part of the defendants' employees and of the plaintiff's wife, who was driving his automobile, in answer to two further questions found that after the employees of the defendants became aware, or ought to have become aware, that the automobile was in danger of being injured, they could have prevented the injury in the exercise of reasonable care by the speedy application of brakes. On these findings the Trial Judge entered judgment for the plaintiff. The court held that the Court of Appeal was justified in ordering a new trial on the ground that it was the duty of the driver of the motor car as well as that of the railway employees to have taken all reasonable care to avoid the collision, when the danger of it should have been apparent, and that questions as to her conduct at that stage of the occurrence similar to those with regard to the conduct of the railway employees should have been submitted to the jury.

Gavin v. Kettle Valley R. Co., 47 D.L.R. 65, 58 Can. S.C.R. 501, [1919] 2 W.W.R. 611, varying, as to costs, 43 D.L.R. 47, 26 B.C.R. 30 at 38, 23 Can. Ry. Cas. 379, [1918] 3 W.W.R. 385.

PARTIAL MISDIRECTION AS TO CONSTITUENTS OF CRIME.

Where a charge of murder is based first, upon unlawful acts of the accused which the prosecution alleges were the cause of the deceased doing an act that resulted in his inflicting upon himself a gunshot wound from which he died, and secondly, upon alleged brutal treatment accelerating the death of the deceased after the gunshotwound, and both aspects of the case were presented to the jury upon the evidence, misdirection as to the essential constituents of the crime of murder upon either aspect of the case will entitle the accused to a new trial, although the case may have been properly presented upon the other aspect, as it is impossible to know upon which of the grounds the verdict was based or whether upon both. Where a charge of murder is based upon a fatal gunshot wound inflicted while the gun was in the hands of the deceased, being used by him as a club to strike one of the accused with the stock, and upon the allegation that the acts of the accused which had led to the deceased clubbing his gun and striking therewith were done with an unlawful object, the jury must be instructed that before convicting of murder they must find not merely that the conduct of the accused had, in fact, led to such act of the deceased, but also that the accused knew or ought to have known that their acts were likely to cause death; and failure to so instruct is a substantial wrong or miscarriage entitling the accused to a new trial after conviction.

Graves v. The King, 9 D.L.R. 589, 21 Can. Cr. Cas. 44, 47 Can. S.C.R. 568, 12 E.L.R. 332, reversing 9 D.L.R. 175, 20 Can. Cr. Cas. 438.

INSTRUCTIONS — READING CHARGE AS A WHOLE — MISDIRECTION.

The judge's charge to the jury is to be read as a whole, and if in view of its general meaning and effect, the jury were not left under any erroneous impression as to the real nature of the issues to be determined or as to the law applicable, misdirection cannot be predicated upon an isolated portion of the charge when read apart from the other portions, so as to constitute a ground for ordering a new trial.

FOR ERRORS OF THE COURT — AS TO INSTRUCTIONS — ACTION FOR ASSAULT.

A new trial will be granted where the Trial Judge, in an action for an assault, instructed the jury, by whom a verdict for the plaintiff was rendered for only nominal damages, that the assault was of a trifling character, that the plaintiff had not received any physical injury, and that the action was one which should have been settled in the police court, where, as a matter of fact, the defendant's treatment of the plaintiff by shaking his fist in the latter's face, violently shaking his person, and applying extremely abusive and opprobrious language to him, was a brutal and high-handed proceeding entitling the plaintiff to exemplary and not merely compensatory damages, and the effect of the judge's charge taken as a whole was to withdraw from the jury any question of exemplary damages.

MISDIRECTION.

A mis-statement of evidence by a Trial Judge, however trivial, to the jury, and his refusal to correct it, is good ground for a new trial.

R. v. Klepareczuk, 39 D.L.R. 171, 13 A.L.R. 212, 29 Can. Cr. Cas. 336, [1918] 1 W.W.R. 695.

DAMAGES—FATAL INJURIES ACT—MISDIRECTION.

In an action for damages under the Fatal Injuries Act (R.S.N.S. 1900, c. 178), it is misdirection for the Trial Judge to instruct the jury to do what they consider fair and reasonable without explaining to them the limitations of the Act, and the principles upon which the amount is to be calculated.

AUTOMOBILES — COLLISION — DEATH — DAMAGES — NEGLIGENCE — INSTRUCTIONS.

A person injured by more than one wrong-doer may maintain an action for the whole damages done to him against any of them. In an action for damages under the Fatal Accidents Act for the death of a person killed in a collision between a motor truck and a motorcycle, in the side car of which deceased was a passenger, the jury should be distinctly told that unless the deceased was guilty of some default on his part amounting to contributory negligence, he was not affected by the fact that the driver of the motorcycle was guilty of negligence that caused the accident; and should be further instructed that they might find defendants guilty of negligence if the driver of the truck was guilty of any negligence that contributed to the accident, notwithstanding the fact that they found the driver of the motorcycle also guilty of negligence.

Coop v. Simpson, 42 D.L.R. 626, 42 O.L.R. 488.

MISDIRECTION — SUBSTANTIAL WRONG OR MISCARRIAGE.

Under some circumstances non-direction to a jury may be substantially and in effect misdirection and therefore may be misdirection absolutely and consequently involve a question of law within the meaning of s. 1014 Cr. Code. A failure to direct the jury that statements made by one of the accused not in the presence of the other accused are only evidence against him who made them is a misdirection entitling that other accused to a new trial where there has been substantial wrong or miscarriage. A conviction can be set aside in Alberta only where there has been a miscarriage of justice by reason of a wrong decision of law; in England it may be set aside if there has been a miscarriage due to that or any other reason.

R. v. Murray, 38 D.L.R. 395, 11 A.L.R. 502, 28 Can. Cr. Cas. 247, [1917] 2 W.W.R. 805. [See also 33 D.L.R. 702, 27 Can. Cr. Cas. 247, 10 A.L.R. 275, [1917] 1 W.W.R. 404.; 28 D.L.R. 372, 25 Can. Cr. Cas. 214.

IMPROPER REMARKS BY JUDGE.

The making of remarks by the Trial Judge during the progress of a trial and in his charge to the jury calculated to prejudice a fair trial of the action is ground for a new trial.

Lucas v. Ministerial Assn., 31 D.L.R. 200.

MISDIRECTION AS TO INQUEST EVIDENCE—HOMICIDE—SUBSTANTIAL WRONG OR MISCARRIAGE.

R. v. Duckworth, 31 D.L.R. 570, 26 Can. Cr. Cas. 314, 37 O.L.R. 197.

WHEN REFUSED—FAILURE TO OBJECT.

No new trial will be granted if no objections are taken to the nondirection of the judge or to the forms of questions asked, or that further or other questions should be submitted. [Nevill v. Fine Arts, etc. Co., [1897] A.C. 68, 75, followed; Olver v. Winnipeg, 16 D.L.R. 310, 24 Man. L.R. 25, applied.]

Hile v. G.T.P.R. Co., 24 D.L.R. 9, 8 W.W.R. 403.

WHEN REFUSED—FAILURE TO BRING TO COURT'S ATTENTION.

A new trial will not be granted on the ground of nondirection where counsel was afforded an opportunity at the trial to call the judge's attention to a more specific direction and failed to do so.

Phillips v. Montgomery, 25 D.L.R. 499, 43 N.B.R. 229.

WHEN REFUSED—MISDIRECTION.

The court is not warranted under O. 39, r. 6, in granting a new trial on the ground of misdirection in a case where, if the verdict had been for the opposite party on a proper direction, it would be set aside.

Simpson v. Malcolm, 43 N.B.R. 79.

AS TO INSTRUCTIONS.

In an action for assault the judge misdirected the jury in favour of the plaintiff on matters which might affect the question of damages, and a verdict was rendered for the plaintiff for $135. On appeal upon the ground of misdirection and excessive damages. Held, that although the damages were not excessive, yet the misdirection caused a substantial wrong or miscarriage entitling defendant to a new trial, inasmuch as the jury might have been influenced by it in assessing damages. Edmondson v. Allen, 40 N.B.R. 299.

MISDIRECTION — REFERENCE TO MATTERS NOT IN EVIDENCE.

In an action by a solicitor for payment of a bill of costs incurred in an action conducted by himself on behalf of the defendant, the Trial Judge (who sat on the former case) in his charge to the jury referred to matters within his own knowledge that took place at the former trial but was not in evidence on this trial. Held, that there was misdirection and there should be a new trial.

Woodworth v. Gold, 21 B.C.R. 333.

ABANDONMENT OF PLEA AT TRIAL—CHARGE TO JURY—MISDIRECTION—NEW TRIAL. Slater v. Watts, 16 B.C.R. 36.

(§ II-9)—MASTER AND SERVANT—DEFECTIVE APPLIANCES—INSUFFICIENCY OF ISSUES.

A new trial will be ordered in an action for damages for injuries sustained by reason of defective appliances, where the question as to whether the Master did all that should be expected from a reasonably careful and prudent employer of labor to avoid the danger, or to discover and remedy it were not fully and adequately placed before the jury, although the judge's charge to the jury was not objected to at the trial.

Goodwin v. Taylor, 43 D.L.R. 619, 43 O.L.R. 141.

DAMAGE ACTION—QUESTIONS SUBMITTED TO JURY—FURTHER QUESTIONS REQUIRED BY COUNSEL — REFUSED BY JUDGE — NEW TRIAL—JUDICATURE ACT, 9-10 GEO. V., 1919 (N.S.) c. 32, s. 42 (6).

Counsel in a damage action may require the judge to direct the jury to answer certain questions raised by the issues, and the refusal of the judge to so direct the jury may be used as a ground for a new trial. [Des Barres v. Bell, 20 N.S.R. 482, distinguished.]

Myers v. Nova Scotia Tramways & Power Co., 50 D.L.R. 484.

STREET RAILWAY—PERSON KILLED BETWEEN TRACKS AND PLATFORM — WHETHER TRESPASSER OR LICENSEE — QUESTION FOR JURY.

Carruthers v. Toronto & York Radial R. Co., 19 O.W.R. 983.

PLAINTIFFS' INADVERTENCE IN INTRODUCING DISSERVING DEPOSITIONS.

Where the plaintiffs' case is dismissed at the trial on the defendant's motion at the close of the plaintiffs' case, and where, on appeal from such dismissal, it appears that the motion was given effect simply because the plaintiffs inadvertently and disservingly introduced the entire examination on discovery of the defendant, containing categorical denials, and that but for the introduction of such denials the defence must have met the plaintiffs' case, and it further appears to the Appellate Court that the matters in issue should properly be placed before the Trial Court in a more satisfactory form than that adopted by the plaintiffs, a new trial may be granted to them upon terms.

Imperial Roofing Co. v. Dick, 10 D.L.R. 484, 5 A.L.R. 470, 23 W.L.R. 821, 4 W.W.R. 100.

(§ II-9a)—DAMAGE ACTION—DEFENDANTS INDEMNIFIED AGAINST LOSS—EVIDENCE—WRONGFUL ADMISSION OF.

In an action for damages for injuries sustained through the negligence of the defendant's servants, the plaintiff has no right whatever to prove that the defendants are indemnified against any verdict that might be given in favour of the plaintiff by an indemnity company. Such evidence puts the real defendant in a position of manifest and incurable disadvantage, and if the Trial Judge does not warn the jury against allowing their conclusion to be effected by such evidence, a new trial will be granted, unless the plaintiff consents to a reduction of damages—where the court considers they have been assessed too high, owing to the admission of such evidence.

Gregg v. Grant, 44 D.L.R. 359, 46 N.B.R. 138.

EVIDENCE — ADMISSION OF IRRELEVANT — TRIAL JUDGE POSSIBLY INFLUENCED BY.

The admission of irrelevant evidence which may have adversely influenced the opinion of the trial judge, is sufficient, unless he has disclaimed its having influenced his mind, to justify the granting of a new trial.

Larson v. Boyd, 46 D.L.R. 126, 58 Can. S.C.R. 275, [1919] 1 W.W.R. 808, affirming 42 D.L.R. 516, 11 S.L.R. 325, [1918] 2 W.W.R. 1069.

FOR ERRORS OF COURT — INSUFFICIENCY OF ISSUES SUBMITTED — NEGLIGENCE.

In an action for damages for injuries sustained by the plaintiff by being struck by the defendant's street car while the plaintiff on foot was crossing the track, if upon the facts (a) the plaintiff's conduct may not have been negligent, and (b) the defendant may have been guilty of negligence which occasioned the accident, the omission at the trial to pass in a satisfactory way upon these issues is ground for a new trial.

Myers v. Toronto R. Co., 18 D.L.R. 335, 30 O.L.R. 263, at 266, reversing 10 D.L.R. 754, 30 O.L.R. 263, 24 O.W.R. 452.

MISTRIAL — OMISSION TO AMEND PLEADING — EMPLOYERS' LIABILITY ACT, B.C. — CONFUSION OF ISSUES SUBMITTED TO JURY — TERMS.

Where an employee sued his employer for damages for personal injuries arising from alleged negligence and the claim was submitted to the jury not only at common law but under the Employers' Liability Act (B.C.), but the verdict went in his favour only upon the statutory liability, the result is a mistrial where the plaintiff pleaded only at common law and declined to apply to amend when given an opportunity at the trial; and on the plaintiff appealing from the trial judge's refusal to enter judgment on the verdict he may be ordered to pay defendant's costs of the former trial as a condition of obtaining a new trial.

IMPROPER ADMISSION OF EVIDENCE — LETTERS — PROOF OF SIGNATURE.

Proof that a letter produced by a witness was written by the defendant company involves two elements, viz., the signature of the person who signed and his authority, and, where objection was taken to the letter being given in evidence for failure to adduce such proof, a new trial may be ordered where the letter was admitted, and the question of its proof was, in effect, withdrawn from the jury, whose verdict depended on the effect to be given to such letter.

IMPROPER ADMISSION OF EVIDENCE — EXTRACT OF MIXING REPORTS.

It is a ground for a new trial in an action for injury at a mine through alleged breach of statutory rules, that the trial judge gave credence to extracts from the mining company's report to the government, although the report itself was not put in evidence, the plaintiff not wishing to be bound by all of the statements made therein, and the defendant company objecting that the entire report must go in or none of it.

Stanoszek v. Canadian Collieries, 22 D.L.R. 691, 21 B.C.R. 470, 9 W.V.R. 710.

IRRELEVANT EVIDENCE — SUBSTANTIAL WRONG.

A verdict will not be set aside on account of the improper admission of irrelevant evidence where it has not occasioned any substantial wrong or miscarriage of justice.

Farnell v. Conway, 41 D.L.R. 649, 45 N.B.R. 343.

DOCTOR — MALPRACTICE — EXHIBITION OF WOUND TO JURY.

In an action against a doctor for malpractice, a new trial will be granted, on the ground of improper admission of evidence, where the plaintiff was allowed to exhibit to the jury a wound caused by an operation performed by another doctor, without defendant's consent or knowledge, and the jury were not warned that they were not to draw conclusions from its appearance.

Richardson v. Nugent, 40 D.L.R. 700, 45 N.B.R. 331.

AGREEMENT FOR SALE OF LAND AND BUILDING — REFUSAL OF TRIAL JUDGE TO ALLOW CERTAIN EVIDENCE — ERRORS.

Goose Lake Grain & Lumber Co. v. Wilson, 42 D.L.R. 776, 11 S.L.R. 274, [1918] 2 W.W.R. 1018. [See 40 D.L.R. 271, 11 S.L.R. 163, [1918] 2 W.W.R. 311.]

NEW TRIAL — DISCRETION OF COURT TO ORDER — COSTS — NEGLIGENCE — COMPANY SUPPLYING ELECTRIC LIGHT — INJURIES ALLEGED DUE TO UNSAFE CONDITION OF WIRES.

In an action against defendant, a company operating an electric street railway and supplying electric light and power, for damages for injuries sustained as alleged in consequence of the unsafe condition of the defendant's wires, the court, in the exercise of its discretion, without setting aside the findings of the jury on the trial, may order a new trial where the case as it stands is not very satisfactory, and the actual cause of the injury for which plaintiff seeks damages is not sufficiently shown.

Miller v. Nova Scotia Tramways & Power Co., 52 N.S.R. 448.

WHEN REFUSED — ISSUES FAIRLY SUBMITTED.

A new trial will not be granted on the ground of misdirection if the charge, taken as a whole, fully and fairly leaves the facts to the jury, notwithstanding it contains objectionable isolated expressions or statements, nor on the ground that the trial judge failed to refer particularly to material evidence if counsel fails to call attention to the omission.

Porter v. O'Connell, 43 N.B.R. 458.

IMPROPER ADMISSION OF EVIDENCE — NEW TRIAL — SUBSTANTIAL WRONG OR MISCARriage.

Allen v. The King, 44 Can. S.C.R. 331, 18 Can. Cr. Cas. 1.

MOTION FOR NEW TRIAL — JUDGMENT BY DEFAULT — GROUNDS AVAILABLE BEFORE JUDGMENT.

Sanford Mfg. Co. v. Stockton, 10 E.L.R. 230.

III. For matters pertaining to jury or verdict.

A. IN GENERAL.

(§ III A—10)—JURY — NONDIRECTION AS GROUND FOR.

The failure of the Trial Judge to direct the jury clearly as to the distinction between misfeasance and nonfeasance will not serve as a ground for a new trial where the verdict given is entirely in accordance with the evidence, nondirection being a ground for a new trial only where it produces a verdict against the evidence.

Tobin v. Halifax, 16 D.L.R. 367, 47 N.S.R. 498.

B. ERRONEOUS VERDICT.

Excessive verdict, reasonableness, see Libel and Slander, III A—95.

Verdict influenced by mistake, see Discovery, IV—20.

(§ III B—15)—Where the jury, in answer to the question whether the defendant could, by the exercise of reasonable care, have avoided the accident, answer, "Yes, to a certain extent," and further state that his want of reasonable care consisted in "lack of judgment," these answers do not amount to a definite finding of contributory negligence, but the proper course is to send the case back for a new trial.

Dart v. Toronto R. Co., 8 D.L.R. 121, 4 O.W.N. 315, 23 O.W.R. 380.

VERDICT AGAINST EVIDENCE—AGREEMENT—RELEASE—RETURN OF COLLATERAL—POLICIES.

Kane v. Brock, 36 D.L.R. 387.

VAGUE FINDINGS—PROXIMATE CAUSE.

A general affirmative finding by a jury on a question as to whether the unsafe condition of an elevator was the cause or one of the causes of an accident, without specifying the particular cause, is too vague on which to enter up judgment and ground for a new trial. [See 18 D. L. R. 786.]

ACTION BY HUSBAND AND WIFE—INDEFINITENESS AS TO PLAINTIFFS.

The verdict in a negligence action must be certain in that it must show in whose favour it was given where two plaintiffs, husband and wife, sue for separate causes of action, one by the wife and one by the husband; a new trial must be ordered if the verdict is brought in "for the plaintiff" in a fixed sum of damages where there is nothing to show for which plaintiff the verdict was given in an action by the wife for damages for her injuries in falling from a street car, and an action by the husband for medical expenses and the loss of his wife's society and services.

Earley v. Winnipeg Electric R. Co., 22 D.L.R. 765, 25 Man. L.R. 443, 31 W.L.R. 365, 8 W.W.R. 850.

FINDINGS AGAINST WEIGHT OF EVIDENCE—DOCUMENTARY EVIDENCE.

It is a ground for ordering a new trial that on one essential portion of the case the successful party in the court below is found by the appellate court to be contradicted by the overwhelming mass of testimony, particularly where the documentary evidence support such contradiction.

McDonald v. Campbell, 22 D.L.R. 748, 48 N.S.R. 520.

VERDICT AGAINST WEIGHT OF EVIDENCE—REASONABLENESS.

Where the verdict arrived at by the jury upon evidence properly submitted to them upon questions of fact is one that reasonable men might reach, the verdict will not be disturbed as being against the weight of evidence. [Comms. of Railways v. Brown, 13 A.C. 133; Windsor Hotel Co. v. Odell, 39 Can. S.C.R. 336, followed.]

Fraser v. Pictou County Electric Co., 28 D.L.R. 251, 50 N.S.R. 30, 20 Can. Ry. Cas. 400.

FINDINGS INFLUENCED BY WRONG WITNESS.

The court's finding in an action contesting the validity of an election on account of personal bribery, influenced by the testimony of a witness who has not been subpoenaed, but attended in place of another witness of a similar name who has been subpoenaed, is ground for a new trial.

Hamm v. Bashford, 26 D.L.R. 573, 9 S.L.R. 68, 33 W.L.R. 473, 9 W.W.R. 1044, reversing 8 W.W.R. 793.

Can. Dig.—108.

NOMINAL DAMAGES.

A new trial will not be granted to enable a party to an action to recover nominal damages only.

Dunham v. Marsden, 38 D.L.R. 24, 45 N.B.R. 279.

FOR MATTERS PERTAINING TO VERDICT—ERRONEOUS VERDICT—LIBEL.

Where the words complained of in a libel action as to the plaintiff's business are not susceptible of any but a defamatory meaning unless they can be justified as true, and no plea of justification is raised, a verdict for the defendant will be set aside and a new trial ordered. [Sydney Post Publishing Co. v. Kendall, 43 Can. S.C.R. 461, followed.]

Lindsay v. Spectator Printing Co., 14 D. L.R. 470, 29 O.L.R. 293.

JURY FINDINGS—UNCERTAINTY—CURING OF CONTRADICTORY WRITTEN ANSWERS, BY VERBAL CORRECTION IN OPEN COURT.

Where a jury's original written findings of answers to questions submitted are inconsistent, and, in an answer to an enquiry by the trial judge, the jury orally explains and harmonizes the various answers in open court, the result from this course is, that the earlier written findings are displaced pro tanto by the final verbal findings, and the inconsistency of the findings may thereby be cured.

CONFLICTING FINDINGS—NEGLECTANCE.

The findings of a jury in an action for personal injuries sustained by a locomotive fireman by reason of the escape of steam from a valve in the engine, that the injuries were caused by the negligence of the defendant in not seeing the valve properly closed, and that the plaintiff by the exercise of reasonable care in examining the valve could have avoided the accident, are conflicting and ground for a new trial under r. 50(1) (Ont.). [St. Denis v. Baxter, 13 O. R. 41, 15 A.R. (Ont.) 387; Australasian Steam, etc., Co. v. Smith, 14 App. Cas. 321, followed; Kerry v. England, [1898] A.C. 742, distinguished.]

Ball v. Wabash R. Co., 26 D.L.R. 569, 35 O.L.R. 84, 20 Can. Ry. Cas. 329.

The findings of the jury were set aside and a new trial ordered where the findings were at variance with the preponderance of the evidence, and the plaintiff's conduct so inconsistent with his claim that a reasonable jury, correctly apprehending the effect of the evidence, could not have come to the conclusions at which they arrived.

Densmore v. Hill, 45 N.S.R. 312.

The jury at the trial of an action has nothing to do with costs, and if they bring in a verdict clearly stated to be for damages and costs, which is accepted and acted upon by the judge, the judgment should be set aside and a new trial ordered. [Poole v. Whitcomb, 12 C.B.N.S.

770, and Kelly v. Sherlock, L.R. 1 Q.B. 691, followed.] Costs are now entirely in the discretion of the trial judge, no matter what is the amount of the verdict for the plaintiff. [Shillinglaw v. Whillier, 19 M.R. 149, followed.]

Davis v. Wfright, 21 Man. L.R. 716.

VERDICT CONTRARY TO EVIDENCE—NEW TRIAL—REFUSAL.

Where a verdict is set aside as contrary to evidence, the practice is not to send the case back for a new trial when, if another verdict was given to the same effect, it would be set aside as unsupported by the evidence.

Suarez v. Eisenhauer, 47 N.S.R. 418.

SETTLEMENT—EVIDENCE NOT PRODUCED.

When in an action for damages the defendant has filed a document stating a settlement of the claim, and the document and the fact of payment as complete compensation were not submitted to the jury, who gave a verdict upon the merits of the case, the Court of Review may remit the record to the Superior Court for a new trial.

Pilotte v. Canada Cement Co., 52 Que. S.C. 193.

PREJUDICE—COMMON FAULTS.

An error causing prejudice does not result when the judge presiding at a jury trial presents in his charge to the jury a cause of liability, even if erroneous, if the verdict rests upon some other cause. In a jury trial, even when the evidence upon the question of common fault is contradictory and far from producing an absolute conviction that the accident was caused by the fault of the defendant alone, the court cannot order a new trial for this reason when the verdict is not clearly opposed to the evidence. The decision as to common fault is within the province of the jury.

Montreal Street R. v. Normandin, 26 Que. K.B. 467. [See also 33 D.L.R. 195, [1917] A.C. 170.]

(§ III B—16)—VERDICT AGAINST EVIDENCE—APPELLATE JUDGMENT ON MERITS.

An appellate court will not, where the verdict appears against the evidence, remit the case for a new trial where no jury could properly find a verdict otherwise than in accordance with the inference of fact drawn by the Court of Appeal, but will direct a judgment on the merits as appearing by the evidence. [Suarez v. Eisenhauer, 47 N.S.R. 418, followed.]

Landry v. Kirk, 28 D.L.R. 49, 50 N. S. R. 33.

INSUFFICIENCY OF EVIDENCE TO SUSTAIN.

Where a verdict is clearly against the weight of evidence, a new trial shall be ordered.

Alexe v. Canadian Western Lumber Co., 8 D.L.R. 1, 22 W.L.R. 559, 3 W.W.R. 267.

VERDICT—ULTIMATE NEGLIGENCE—SUFFICIENCY OF FINDINGS TO SUSTAIN.

In a personal injury action arising from a street car colliding with a rig where the findings of the jury were in effect that the negligence of the defendants' motorman and that of the plaintiff were concurrent and simultaneous negligence of similar character by both parties and that there was not any new negligent act by the defendant in addition to its first act of negligence, verdict was properly for the defendant and will not in that respect be disturbed.

ERRONEOUS VERDICT—FINDINGS OF JURY ON QUESTION SUBMITTED—NEGLIGENCE ACTION.

Where the jury's answers to the questions submitted in a negligence action were all in the defendant's favour, but the answer as to contributory negligence of the plaintiff was not supported by any evidence whatever, the appellate court may, if of opinion that the jury must have been influenced by some improper consideration upon that finding, direct a new trial although the answers to the other questions would, if taken alone, be sufficient to support the verdict for defendant; in such case the court may reasonably assume that the same vice affected the other findings.

ERRONEOUS VERDICT—INSUFFICIENCY OF EVIDENCE TO SUSTAIN.

Sutcliffe v. Bennett, 16 D.L.R. 884, 47 N.S.R. 474.

TIMBER LIMIT—INSTRUCTIONS AS TO RUNNING BOUNDARY—APPROVAL—INSUFFICIENCY OF EVIDENCE AS TO APPROVAL OF DEPUTY MINISTER.

In a case involving a question whether the boundary of a timber limit had been run according to the authorized instructions of the administrative authority and if it was approved by the Deputy Minister of Lands and Forests as required by regulation No. 24 of the Quebec Wood and Forests Regulations, the court held that a new trial should be had to determine whether the Deputy Minister had, by placing his initials with the letters "app." on a report made by the Chief Superintendent of Surveys, in explanation of modifications made by him in the survey, meant to give his approval to the survey operations as required by regulation 24, or had merely meant to approve of the explanations made by the Superintendent of Surveys. [See also Shives Lumber Co. v. Price Bros. & Co., 44 D.L.R. 390.]

JURY—VERDICT AGAINST THE WEIGHT OF EVIDENCE.

O'Leary v. Smith, 40 D.L.R. 744, 45 N. B.R. 424.

A new trial will not be granted under Cr. Code s. 1021 on the ground that the finding by the Judge trying the case without a jury was against the weight of evidence, if the case is one merely of condict of testimony upon which the judge gave credence to the Crown witnesses rather than to those of the defence. When the accused applies by leave of the trial judge to the Court of Appeal under Cr. Code s. 1021 for a new trial on the ground that the verdict against him was against the weight of evidence, the onus is upon him to show that the verdict is against the weight of evidence, and consequently he has to establish affirmatively his contention of innocence to displace the presumption against him on account of the verdict; nor can the verdict be said to be against the weight of evidence when there was no evidence tending to a contrary result; recourse should be had to ss. 1014 and 1015 if it be claimed, notwithstanding the lack of evidence of innocence, that a case had not been made out by the Crown.

R. v. O'Neil, 25 Can. Cr. Cas. 323, 9 A.L.R. 365.

The verdict of a jury will be set aside and a new trial ordered where the findings are against evidence and are such as reasonable men should not have found, also where the questions submitted are misleading.

Kane v. Brock, 49 N.S.R. 362.

VERDICT AGAINST WEIGHT OF EVIDENCE.

A new trial may be directed where a jury gives a verdict which is against the weight of evidence and such that the jury reviewing the whole of the evidence reasonably could not properly find. Where a jury is not able to answer the questions submitted to them by a unanimous decision and so state, but nevertheless undertake coincidentally with such statement to render a general verdict in favour of plaintiff, this verdict cannot be supported.

Mackenzie v. B. C. Electric R. Co., 21 B.C.R. 375, 8 W.W.R. 956.

INDEFINITE FINDINGS AS TO NEGLIGENCE AND CONTRIBUTORY NEGLIGENCE.

An action for damages occasioned by an explosion in the course of mining operations was dismissed upon a finding of the jury of contributory negligence. Upon appeal to the Court of Appeal for British Columbia, it was held, that there was no evidence to sustain this finding; but, because of uncertainty as to which of 2 distinct grounds of negligence charged had been found against the defendants, a new trial was directed. The defendants then appealed to the Supreme Court of Canada, contending that there was no evidence of negligence on their part on either charge, and that there was evidence to support the finding of negligence on the part of the plaintiff. Held, that the finding of negligence and also that of contributory negligence were indefinite, and that there ought to be a new trial.

Magnussen v. L'Abbe, 3 O.W.N. 301.

(§ III B-17)—EXCESSIVE VERDICT—DAMAGES—TEST.

An appeal by the defendant for a new trial on the ground of excessive damages will be dismissed by an appellate court although the damages are "larger perhaps than a judge or another jury might give," but yet are not so large as to be considered excessive or such as twelve reasonable men could not honestly award to the plaintiff.

Story v. Stratford Mill Bldg. Co., 18 D.L.R. 309, 30 O.L.R. 271.

VERDICT—EXCESSIVE DAMAGES.

A new trial may be granted by an appellate court where the jury in assessing damages for pollution of a stream on plaintiff's land by reason of material used in the construction of defendant's railway fixed such damages at a sum which in the opinion of such appellate court had not been satisfactorily proved.

Ball v. Sydney & Louisburg R. Co., 9 D.L.R. 148, 46 N.S.R. 507.

DAMAGES—BREACH OF CONTRACT—SALE—MOTION TO INCREASE VERDICT.

In an action for damages for breach of contract for failing to deliver a quantity of pulpwood purchased by the plaintiff from the defendant, the weight of the evidence was greatly in favour of the alleged breach. The jury found a general verdict for the plaintiff for $75, an amount paid on account of the purchase price. Held, on an application to increase the verdict to the amount of damages claimed, or for a new trial, that the plaintiff was entitled to substantial damages and the verdict was against the weight of evidence, but as, under the evidence, the jury might have assessed the damages at an amount less than that claimed by the plaintiff, the court refused to order a verdict for the amount claimed and ordered a new trial on the question of damages only.

Morin v. Tardif, 45 N.B.R. 272.

EXCESSIVE VERDICT—FAILURE TO REDUCE AMOUNT—DISCRETION OF COURT IN GRANTING.

In an action for damages, if it appear that the jury, in fixing the amount of damages, has not taken into account important evidence tending to reduce damages, the court may require the plaintiff to accept, within such time as it fixes, a judgment for a reduced sum, and may or der, that, in default of his doing so, there be a new trial.

C. P. R. Co. v. Frechette, 23 Que. K.B. 203.

NEGLECT — ACTION — UNSATISFACTORY FINDING OF JURY — NEW TRIAL GRANTED ON TERMS.

Smith v. Hamilton Street R. Co., 18 O.W.R. 729.

(§ III B—18) — JUDGMENT IN UNDEFENDED ACTION.

A new trial will be granted, in the interests of justice, where the merits of a defence are shewn, and it appears that the action was undefended because of someone's mistake, misapprehension, or perhaps neglect, upon the payment of the costs of such undefended trial, and the costs of opposing the motion for the new trial, and on giving satisfactory security for the amount of any judgment that may be recovered against the defendant on a new trial. [Dickenson v. Fisher, 3 T.L.R. 459; and Holden v. Holden, 102 L.T. 398, followed.] Ordinarily a new trial will not be granted upon a judgment pronounced in an action not defended at the hearing merely on the ground of an inadvertent mistake or misunderstanding, through which the defendant did not attend and was not represented by counsel thereat.

Ferguson v. Swedish Canadian Lumber Co., 2 D.L.R. 557, 41 N.B.R. 217, 10 E.L.R. 386.

(§ III B—19) — FAILURE OF JURY TO FOLLOW INSTRUCTIONS.

Where an action for an alleged breach of the Factories Act and the Employers' Liability Act (B.C.) as well, was improperly submitted to the jury on the theory of a common law liability arising from an alleged breach of the former act, upon the jury returning a verdict of $2,880 for the plaintiff, and being asked what damages they would award if they were to decide the case under the Employers' Liability Act, they answered $2,880, a new trial will be granted if the jury have failed to answer questions submitted to them on the question of voluntary assumption of risk which would be material to the question of liability under the latter act.

FAILURE OF JURY TO ANSWER QUESTIONS.

A new trial will be ordered where the jury has failed to answer a question of fact submitted to them, the answer to which is necessary to the proper determination of the case.

Gibbs v. Northern Construction Co. (B.C.), 43 D.L.R. 276, [1918] 3 W.W.R. 396.

C. SELECTION AND QUALIFICATION OF, OR INFLUENCE UPON, JURORS.

See Jury, III-75.

(§ III C—20) — DEFECTIVE PANEL — RELATIONSHIP OF JUROR.

The omission of a statutory duty to revise the jury list when constituting the panel, not amounting to packing, or the remote relationship to the plaintiff of a juror, who was in fact impartial, which facts were not challenged at the trial, and resulted in no prejudice to the defendant, are not grounds for setting the verdict aside or for a new trial.

Montreal Street R. v. Normandin, 33 D.L.R. 195, [1917] A.C. 170, 116 L.T. 162, affirming 48 Que. S.C. 21. [See also 26 Que. K.B. 467; 23 Que. K.B. 48.]

Disqualification of a juror because of affinity with the plaintiff, known to the defendant before the trial and not challenged, does not affect the verdict, and is no ground for a new trial.

Duffy v. Reid, 34 D.L.R. 289, 44 N.B.R. 407.

(§ III C—23) — JUROR INFLUENCED BY IMPROPER MOTIVES — DUTY OF JUDGE AND COUNSEL.

Whenever and as soon as it becomes known to a trial judge that a juror is actuated by improper motives, it is the duty of the judge, of his own motion, to protect the litigants from the results of such a scandal by then and there discharging the juror and summoning another, as would have to be done in the case where a juror is discovered to be insane or to have accepted a bribe. Where such course is not taken there should be a new trial. It is the duty of a trial judge, in negligence cases particularly, to submit questions to be answered by the jury, where the judge can properly do so. It is therefore the duty of counsel engaged in such a case to allow the questions to be put and the answers to be made, and they should not interfere with the judge in the exercise of that duty by pointing out or suggesting to the judge that the jury is not obliged to answer the questions. [Armishaw v. B.C. Elec. R. Co., 18 B.C.R. 152, 14 D.L.R. 393, followed.]

Howard v. B.C. Electric R. Co., [1918] 3 W.W.R. 409.

D. MISCONDUCT OR SEPARATION OF JURORS: COMPROMISE VERDICT.

(§ III D—26) — JUROR VISITING SCENE OF ACCIDENT.

Visiting the scene of the accident by a juror, during the course of trial, which does not influence nor bias his verdict is no ground for a new trial.

Atkinson v. C.P.R. Co., 25 D.L.R. 48, 8 S.L.R. 440, 33 W.L.R. 49, 9 W.W.R. 600.

DEFECTIVE PANEL. — MISCONDUCT — REQUETE CIVILE.

In a trial by jury the irregularity in the panel cannot be objected to after the verdict and cannot form a ground for a requete civile when it is not proved that the party complaining has suffered prejudice. Nor can a new trial be abandoned by réquete civile for an act of misconduct on the part of a juror, nor for want of notice of action as the law requires.

Normandin v. Montreal Tramways Co., 48 Que. S.C. 21. [Affirmed, 33 D.L.R. 195, [1917] A. C. 170.]

JURY'S FINDINGS INCONSISTENT AND INSENSIBLE—MISTRIAL.

Miller v. Kaufman, 19 O.W.R. 881.

IV. New evidence; surprise.

Newly discovered evidence, see Sale, I B-5.

(§ IV-30)—TO IMPEACH WITNESS — EFFECT.

The discovery of new evidence to impeach the testimony of a witness examined on the former jury trial is not sufficient ground to grant a new trial.

POWER OF JUDGE.

The power of a District Court judge to order a new trial is subject to the same limitations as those imposed upon a County Court judge in England. An order by a District Court judge for a new trial on the ground of the discovery of fresh evidence set aside, because it was not shown that the new evidence proposed to be adduced would be conclusive and because the party seeking the new trial had not shown reasonable diligence in endeavoring to secure the evidence.

Sklar v. Borys, 10 S.L.R. 359, [1917] 5 W.W.R. 188.

PETITION TO OPEN UP JUDGMENT — KING'S BENCH ACT, R. 664 — DISCOVERY OF FRESH EVIDENCE.

The discovery by a plaintiff, whose action has been dismissed at the trial, of further evidence by which he could only make out a stronger case and weaken the defense, if another trial were allowed, is not a sufficient ground even for ordering a new trial, much less for opening up the judgment upon petition under r. 664 of the King's Bench Act after the time for applying for a new trial has expired.

PROCEEDING UPON INSUFFICIENT EVIDENCE — GROUNDS FOR GRANTING.

Where a party takes his chance of proceeding with the trial upon insufficient evidence, the court will be disinclined to grant a new trial, and will not exercise its discretion to re-open the judgment unless the justice of the case requires such course, the onus being upon the person applying for the new trial to shew that there is a substantial case to try.

Cline v. Goodhew, 7 W.W.R. 561.

(§ IV-31)—NEWLY DISCOVERED EVIDENCE — PROBABILITY OF DIFFERENT VERDICT, GOVERNING PRINCIPLE.

A new trial will not be granted in a damage action on the discovery of new evidence unless the proposed fresh evidence is such that there is a reasonable probability that, if brought before a jury, a different verdict to that in the former trial would be given. [Anderson v. Titmas, 36 L.T. 711, applied.] Hagemer v. C. P. R. Co., 20 D.L.R. 29, 25 Man. L.R. 1, 29 W.L.R. 743, 7 W.W.R. 406.

ACTION FOR BREACH OF PROMISE — PLAINTIFF'S MARRIAGE PENDING APPEAL.

The fact that the plaintiff in an action for breach of promise and seduction has married another since the trial, is not a ground for granting the defendant a new trial.

Collard v. Armstrong, 12 D.L.R. 368, 24 W.L.R. 742, 6 A.L.R. 187, 4 W.W.R. 879.

A new trial will not be granted on the ground of newly discovered evidence where it appears to the court that due diligence was not used, otherwise the evidence would have been discovered in time for use on the former trial. A new trial asked on the ground of newly discovered evidence will be refused where the court is of the opinion that, if such evidence were used on another trial, there is no reasonable probability that the result would be different.

McDonald v. McKay, 8 D.L.R. 78, 40 N.S.R. 448, 11 E.L.R. 590.

When new facts of an essential nature have been discovered by the defence in a criminal trial before verdict rendered, even after the judge has charged the jury and the jury has retired to deliberate, the jury should be recalled to hear this additional evidence, and a new trial will be granted where the jury has not been allowed to hear such additional evidence.

R. v. Manconi, 3 D.L.R. 112, 20 Can. Cr. Cas. 81.

A new trial will not be ordered where the new evidence proposed to be adduced might have been produced at the former trial.

Conrad v. Halifax Lumber Co., 41 D.L.R. 218, 52 N.S.R. 250.

The discovery, after the trial, of new evidence which satisfies the court that if the party had had it at the trial he must have had a verdict, is sufficient ground for a new trial in order to do justice between the parties. The discovery of witnesses who can contradict those produced on the trial is no ground for a new trial.

Gibbons v. Hatfield, 43 D.L.R. 346, 46 N. B.R. 96.

An application for a new trial, on the ground of newly discovered evidence, will be refused where the applicant fails to shew that reasonable diligence had been exercised in searching for the evidence before the trial. [Young v. Kershaw, 81 L.T. 531, followed; Robinson v. Smith, [1915] 1 K.B. 711, distinguished.]

LEAVE TO ADDUCE NEW EVIDENCE.
Greer v. Armstrong, 24 O.W.R. 960.

WHEN REFUSED ON NEWLY DISCOVERED EVIDENCE.

The court will not grant a new trial on newly discovered evidence when such evidence is simply additional and cumulative to evidence already given.

Hanson v. Ross, 42 N.B.R. 650.

WHEN GRANTED—EVIDENCE OF PROBABLE CAUSE—AMENDMENT—COSTS.
Cromwell v. Rioux, 9 O.W.N. 210.

In this action plaintiff had succeeded in the court below, and the defendants had appealed, which appeal was dismissed, whereupon an appeal was taken to the Supreme Court of Canada. While this appeal was standing for hearing the defendants applied to the court en banc for a new trial on the grounds (a) that one of the defendants' solicitors on the record was financially interested with the plaintiff in the action, without defendants' knowledge, and (b) discovery of new evidence. It was held, by s. 25 of the Judicature Act, the court en banc has power to hear application for new trial, etc., provided that the judgment or order complained of has not been made as the judgment or decision of the court en banc, and the judgment in question having been affirmed by the court en banc has become the judgment of that court, which now had no jurisdiction to make any further order. That so far as this court was concerned the matter was res judicata and the defendants' only remedy, apart from the appeal pending, was by way of a new action on the ground that the first judgment was obtained by fraud.

Willoughby v. Saskatchewan Valley & Manitoba Land Co., 4 S.L.R. 454.

A petition in revocation of judgment will be received if plaintiff, who is suing on assumption, alleges that he has since discovered a witness who was with defendant's wife when she brought the goods sued for.

Menard v. Thibault, 14 Que. P.R. 384.

(§ IV—32)—SURPRISE.

A new trial will not be granted on the ground of surprise in that the principal witness for the defence had departed from the statements made to the defendant's solicitor before the trial as to the nature of his testimony, if the affidavits do not disclose the difference between the two statements, nor specify in detail what the witness had represented before the trial.

(§ V—36)—WAIVER OR LOSS OF RIGHTS TO NEW TRIAL.

Where there is even meagre evidence to support a finding of fact drawn by a jury in favour of the plaintiff, and that evidence is not contradicted, a new trial should not be directed if the defendants were not taken by surprise by its introduction, and could easily have met it if untrue, although the point was raised only in a general way by the pleadings.

Graham v. G.T.R. Co., 1 D.L.R. 554, 25 O.L.R. 429, 13 Can. Ry. Cas. 232, 20 O.W.R. 965.

(§ V—40)—MOTION BELOW BEFORE APPEAL—EXCESSIVE VERDICT.

An application under s. 86 of the County Court Act (R.S.N.S. 1900, c. 156), for a new trial or to set aside a jury's findings, must be made to the County Court Judge, and cannot in the first instance be made to the Supreme Court; it cannot be made, by way of appeal, concurrently with the motion below, and as long as the motion is pending there is no appeal. The principle, that an Appellant Court will grant a new trial where the verdict appears excessive and is not reduced by consent of the parties, has therefore no application. [Watt v. (§ V-50)—INTERFERENCE WITH JURY.

On a motion for a new trial in an action of trespass involving the location of a line, the court will hear affidavits of jurors in answer to affidavits stating that one of the parties interfered with the jury while viewing the locus in quo.

Hanson v. Ross, 42 N.B.R. 650.

(§ V-60)—GRANTING NEW TRIAL OF SOME ISSUES.

Where, in an action for several alleged slanders some of them should not have been submitted to the jury, and damages in the plaintiff's favour were not separately assessed, a new trial will be granted with reference to the remaining charges.

EXECUTION OF DEED.

Under the Quebec law a notary duly qualified to practise his profession is an official competent to give to his acts the seal of authenticity, but, in order to effect that, it is necessary: that the contracting parties appear before the notary; that they state in his presence what they wish inserted in the deed; that the deed containing the agreements and declarations of the parties should be read to them, and they should testify thereto in the presence of the notary by their signatures to such deed; that the notary after all these formalities have been complied with should place his own signature to the deed to testify that the agreements and declarations of the parties are properly stated therein.

Gagnon v. Hurlbut, 18 Que. P.R. 459.

AS OFFICERS—NOTICE OF ACTION—PRESCRIPTION.

Articles 3383-3389, R.S.Q. 1909, like those of the Imperial statute of 1750 (24 Geo. II. c. 44, ss. 7, 8), from which they are reproduced, have never had any other object than to protect magistrates, justices of the peace and officers of justice charged with the execution of the criminal laws against vexatious actions. Before C.V.P. 1867, no other than these officers had a right to one month's notice of action brought against him for damages by reason of acts done in the exercise of his public functions; the provisions were then extended to all public officers without discrimination. But the 6 months' prescription of the action provided by art. 3387, R.S.Q. 1909, remains as before, particularly with respect to magistrates, justices of the peace and officers of justice charged with the enforcement of the criminal law. Notaries have never been aimed at by the above mentioned provisions, which apply only to officers having judicial powers. Although notaries are, in the Province of Quebec, as in France, "public officers" (art. 4574, R.S.Q. 1909; art. 1er L. 25 Ventôse an. IX), they can neither be considered as public functionaries nor as depositaries nor citizens charged with a public duty, nor as forming any other part of the public administration; their functions relate only to private interests and not to those of the state.

Chaput v. Crépeau, 52 Que. S.C. 443.

COMPENSATION—QUANTUM MERUIT.

Contract between an owner of land and a notary, by which the owner promises to pay him a commission if he procure a loan for him, cannot be proved by oral testimony. In an action by a notary upon an account for professional services, the court, in the absence of proof of quantum meruit or custom, cannot award any other remuneration than that given by the tariff in force.

LIABILITY — HYPOTHEC — PAYMENT — GOOD FAITH.

A notary, who holds a receipt for the payment of a hypothec signed in advance by the hypothecary creditor, becomes the agent of the latter to receive the amount due by the debtor, whether in money or by cheque to his order therefore another notary, who in good faith advised the debtor to pay the hypothecary debt by cheque to the order of such agent, commits no fault and is not liable if the notary runs off with the money and speculates with it.

OF OFFICER OR AGENT OF CORPORATION.

A municipality is bound to take every reasonable means, through its overseeing officers and otherwise, to learn the actual conditions of the streets which, by statute, it is under a duty to repair, and cannot successfully set up want of knowledge as an excuse for nonrepair if the knowledge might have been obtained by the exercise of reasonable precautionary measures.

Vancouver v. Cummings, 2 D.L.R. 253, 22 W.L.R. 164, 46 Can. S.C.R. 457, 2 W.V.R. 66.

NOTICE TO BANK OR LOAN COMPANY.

Defendant A.B. purchased land under an agreement for sale. Being financially involved, and executions having been issued against him, he decided to raise a loan upon the land, and for that purpose procured the conveyance of the land from the vendor to his wife, defendant J.B. It did not appear that there was any consideration given by J.B. therefor. Defendants then applied for a loan, and executed a mortgage to the plaintiff. After the execution of the mortgage the sheriff seized the goods of defendant A.B., and to secure the withdrawal of the seizure defendants gave the sheriff an order on the proceeds of the loan from plaintiff company, which the sheriff accepted and withdrew from possession. This order the company paid, and the money so paid constituted the only money advanced on the mortgage. The same day the order was given the defendants attempted to revoke it by notice given to the company's solicitors, who had then reported the loan and completed their duties in connection therewith. This notice was given before the money was paid over. In an action for foreclosure, defendants alleged (1) that the company had paid the money in question after notice revoking the order, and (2) that the defendant J.B. executed the mortgage for her husband's debt and without independent advice. It was held, that even if the defendants could have revoked the order given, their notice intended to have that effect was insufficient, in that the solicitors upon whom the notice was served had completed their duties and were no longer agents of the company for the purpose of the loan. (2) That under the circumstances of the case the court should not interfere on the ground that the wife had executed the mortgage without independent advice.

NOVATION.

PERSONAL OBLIGATION OF COMPANY'S AGENT FOR COMPANY'S DEBT.

When an agent, acting on behalf of a company, guarantees a contract made on behalf of such company and gives his own promissory notes to accommodate the third party with whom the contract is made, such giving of notes does not constitute novation, whereby a new debt and a new debtor would be substituted to a previous debt and a previous debtor.

French Gas Saving Co. v. Desbrats Advertising Agency, 1 D.L.R. 136.

WHAT CONSTITUTES — WHEN INFERRED — TAKING OBLIGATION OF THIRD PERSON— AGREEMENT TO SUBROGATE ON PAYMENT OF DEBT.

Where the defendant who purchased property from the plaintiff's grantee, on it being attached by the plaintiff because sold by the former in violation of his agreement, indemnified the plaintiff to the extent of his claim against his grantee, the former agreeing to subrogate the defendant to his claim against his grantee on the payment of such indebtedness, and the defendant failed to make such payment, the transaction between the plaintiff and the defendant did not amount to a novation so as to release the plaintiff's grantee from liability, since the facts did not shew an intention to effect a novation.

Beriman v. Gertler, 13 D.L.R. 778, 44 Que. S.C. 368.

WHAT AMOUNTS TO—PAYMENT OF NOTE PART IN CASH AND RENEWAL NOTE FOR BALANCE.

The payment of a note partly by cash and partly by a renewal note for the balance does not operate novation of the original note, and, in the event of nonpayment of the renewal note, suit is properly brought on the original note.

Hall v. Lockwell, 9 D.L.R. 144.

LOAN—NEW DEBTOR—ACCEPTANCE.

In order to establish novation as affecting the liability on a loan, the evidence must shew acceptance of the liability by the third party, and that the latter had been accepted by the creditor as his debtor in lieu of the actual borrower.

DELEGATION—EXTENSION AND DISCHARGE.

When a delegatee accepts the delegate in the place and stead of the delegator, in such a way as to discharge the latter from the obligation, there is novation, but the double intention of the delegatee to accept the delegate and to liberate the delegator must be manifest. This manifestation may, moreover, either be expressed or tacit, but, if tacit, there must be no room for doubt.

Reeves v. Piche, 46 Que. S.C. 189.

SUBPURCHASER.

When, in a contract of sale, the purchaser covenants to carry out an existing agreement between the seller and a third party, and to defend at his own expense any suit that may be taken by the latter for damages for breach of contract, or to enforce specific performance, the relation of debtor and creditor arises between such purchaser and third party. The latter has the right to bring, directly against the former, any action he might bring against the seller, his original obligor.

Dawes v. Ward, 43 Que. S.C. 456.

RENEWAL NOTE.

The mere acceptance of a renewal note is but a conditional payment and is not a novation of the original note, especially so when the holder retains such original note. A cancellation made unintentionally or under a mistake or without the authority of the holder is inoperative. The holder has the option to proceed either on the original note and tendering the renewal note, or on the renewal note itself.

I. What are nuisances.

(§ I—1)—STONECUTTING YARD.

In determining whether the business of a stone cutter is a nuisance or not the court should take into consideration the character of the neighbourhood to ascertain the degree of comfort to be expected and whether the premises are being reasonably used or not.

(§ I—2)—NUISANCE — OF MUNICIPALITY — NOISE AND VIBRATION FROM OPERATION OF PUMPS BY ELECTRIC POWER — INJURY TO ENJOYMENT OF NEIGHBOURING PROPERTY — STATUTORY AUTHORITY — INJUNCTION — DAMAGES.

The defendant corporation was empowered by 35 Vict. c. 79 and 41 Vict. c. 41 to operate a pumping plant and machinery for its waterworks. The machinery was at first operated by steam power, but afterwards electrical power was substituted:—Held, upon the evidence, that the noise and vibration occasioned in the operation of the pumps by electrical power constituted a nuisance, and seriously interfered with the comfort of the plaintiffs in the enjoyment of their house situate close to the pumping station. And:—held, that, as it was not shown that the machinery could not be operated unless driven by electrical power, and as the use of electrically-driven machinery was not expressly authorized by the statutes, the nuisance was not justified by statutory authority. Semble, that, if it had been shewn that the machinery could not be operated unless driven by electrical power, that mode of operation would be regarded as authorized by the statutes; and quære, whether the same result would not follow if it were commercially impracticable to use any other power. [Jones v. Festiniog R. Co., L.R. 3 Q.B. 733; and West v. Bristol Tramways Co., [1908] 2 K.B. 14, applied.]:—Held, also, a proper case for awarding damages in lieu of an injunction; but the damages should be limited to the injury suffered by the use of electrically-driven machinery beyond that which would have been sustained if steam power had been used. Judgment of Middleton, J., varied.

Young v. Fort Frances Pulp & Paper Co., 17 O.W.N. 6.

(§ I-13)—HOSPITAL OR PEST-HOUSE.

Where it appeared that the defendant municipality established and maintained within its limits a hospital for the treatment of contagious diseases and especially small-pox patients; that the premises are unsuited for such a purpose and their establishment and maintenance are in contravention of law, and that it was in close proximity to dwelling-houses of plaintiff, access to which was interfered with, if not prevented, by barriers erected across the road and put up by the hospital, such hospital is a nuisance and its further use for the purposes indicated should be enjoined. [Crawford v. Protestant Hospital for the Insane, M.L.R. 7 Q.B. 57, distinguished.] Where, in an action for an injunction against a municipality for the further use and maintenance of a building as a small-pox hospital or for contagious diseases, it is claimed by the city that the said building is an emergency hospital, but the weight of evidence is that it was intended for and was to be used as a permanent hospital for emergency cases, the said building must be established in conformity to s. 43 of the rules of the Board of Health of the Province of Quebec, and the facts that the said Board approved of the hospital has no bearing where the provision of s. 43 as to a space of 40 feet between the pavilions of the patients and the fence or border of the ground has not been complied with, the Board having no right to dispense with compliance with s. 43.

(§ II-40)—INDICTMENTS FOR PUBLIC NUISANCE.

The effect of s. 223 Cr. Code is to leave indictment as a method of procedure for trying the general question whether a common nuisance to the detriment of the property or comfort of the public generally, though not affecting life, safety or health, has been committed; but where life, safety or health is not involved (s. 222) the conviction on such indictment is not for a crime but for a civil wrong only, and the consequential proceedings to which s. 223 refers are not for the punishment of the person convicted but for the abatement or remedy of the mischief done.

Montreuil v. Ontario Asphalt Block Paving Co., 19 O.W.R. 942.

(§ II-41)—MIXING TAILINGS — ABATEMENT — NOTICE.

The washing down of tailings of mining property on another's lands constitutes a nuisance by commission and also of emergency, which justifies the aggrieved party to trespass upon the wrongdoer's land, without any previous notice or request, for the purpose of abating it. [Lemmon v. Webb, [1895] A.C. 1, 64 L.J. Ch. 205; Raikes v. Townsend, 2 Smith 9, followed; McCurdy v. Norrie, 6 D.L.R. 134, applied.] Suttles v. Cantin, 24 D.L.R. 1, 32 W.L.R. 101, 22 B.C.R. 139, 8 W.W.R. 1293.

(§ II-43)—BLACKSMITH SHOP — ODORS AND NOISE — INJUNCTION.

Permission by the municipal authority to erect a blacksmith shop does not authorize the owner to commit a nuisance therewith. He may be enjoined from operating it in such a manner as to cause a nuisance, by reason of noise and offensive odours, to the occupant of an adjoining dwelling-house.

Beamish v. Glenn, 28 D.L.R. 702, 36 O.L.R. 10.

ANTICIPATED OR THREATENED NUISANCE.

A public convenience is not per se a nuisance, and in any event it could not be considered so to the occupants of a building not yet erected, and therefore, the action was premature. An application at the trial to add the Attorney-General was refused as having been made too late, without his consent, and without its being shown that the public interest would otherwise suffer.

British Canadian Securities v. Victoria, 16 B.C.R. 441, 19 W.L.R. 242.

(§ II-44)—ABATEMENT OF — PROVINCIAL BOARD OF HEALTH ACT (ONT.) — JURISDICTION OF JUDGE — EVIDENCE — PROCEDURE.

The Provincial Board of Health having determined, as authorized under s. 6 of the Public Health Act, R.S.O. (1914, c. 218) that a nuisance exists, and recommended the removal or abatement of the nuisance the local board may apply to a judge under s. 81, subs. 2, for an order for the removal or abatement of the nuisance. On the application the judge may admit further evidence for the purpose of determining whether under all the circumstances an order for abatement should issue and if so on what terms; but this provision does not mean that he may, on further evidence, set aside the finding of the Provincial Board. Affidavits in support of the finding of the Board are not admissible, and the judge is not justified in attaching any weight to affidavits challenging the correctness of the finding of the Board of the nuisance.

Danforth Glebe Estates v. Harris, 16 O.W.N. 41, affirming 12 O.W.N. 189.

(§ II—48)—BY A PRIVATE INDIVIDUAL.

The law only justifies the abatement of a nuisance by a private individual where the right can be exercised without disturbing the public peace; and, in an action, where the plaintiff, a riparian owner, with teams and men in force, enters the lands of a neighbour (the defendant), and proceeds to cut down and remove a wing-dam thereon, on the ground that it constitutes a nuisance causing damage to the plaintiff's lands; and where the defendant, while resisting this action, was assaulted and beaten severely by the plaintiff, it appearing that, while the defendant did commit the first assault in defence of the wing-dam, the plaintiff and his associates retaliated, throwing him down and otherwise mistreating him; there is no justification for the excessive beating, and the plaintiff is liable in damages.

Lorraine v. Norrie, 6 D.L.R. 122, 46 N.S.R. 177.

(§ II—51)—PRESCRIPTION.

The plaintiff's fences enclosed part of the highway abutting on his land. The defendant tore down the fences, although his right of passage along the highway was not really interfered with. Held, that the plaintiff was in possession, and could maintain trespass; and the defendant, as a private individual, had no right to abate the nuisance caused by the obstruction of the highway. Injunction and damages awarded.

III. Criminal Liability.

ENDANGERING PUBLIC COMFORT — OVERCROWDED STREET CARS.

The franchise granted to a street railway company by agreement between it and a municipality, confirmed by the provincial legislature, to operate street cars on the public streets, does not make the overcrowding of the street cars a public nuisance within Cr. Code s. 223, where the lives, safety or health of the public are not endangered, and where no injury is occasioned to the person of any individual (s. 222); and a demurrer to an indictment in so far as it charged same should have been allowed.

As every court or judge has power, under s. 13 of the Evidence Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 145, to administer oaths, the question of the regularity of the appointment of the person acting as clerk as affecting his power to administer the oath in open court to a witness in a proceeding in court before a judge, is immaterial, as in such case the oath may be said to have been administered by the court itself.

(§ 1-2)—FORM OF SWEARING HINDOO — INTERPRETER.

Where a Hindoo witness in a criminal case is sworn through an interpreter by solemnly promising with uplifted hand to tell the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, and he assents to such ceremony as the appropriate and usual one in swearing men of his nationality and class with intent that his evidence should be received and acted upon as evidence given under oath, and thereupon answers affirmatively an interrogation whether the "oath" he had taken was binding upon his conscience, he must be taken to have invoked his deity by such ceremony even though it does not appear that express words of invocation were uttered in connection with his solemn promise to tell the truth, and such witness is properly convicted of perjury if his testimony proves false.

AFFIDAVIT — IRREGULARITY.

Jubinville v. Kee Foo, 39 Que. S.C. 478.
(§ 1-3)—AFFIDAVIT — COMMISSIONER'S AUTHORITY — OATH EX JURIS — COMMISSIONER OUTSIDE OF JURISDICTION.

An affidavit taken outside of Saskatchewan for use in that province is defective where it appears that the affidavit was taken by "a commissioner," but fails to show that the commissioner was authorized to take oaths outside of Saskatchewan for use in Saskatchewan, under Evidence Act, R.S.S. 1909, c. 60, s. 40. A commissioner for taking affidavits for use in Ontario is not an official for taking affidavits for use in the courts of Saskatchewan, he not being one of the functionaries designated in the Evidence Act, R.S.S. 1909, c. 60, s. 40, in view of which Sask. practice r. 413 is to be interpreted when construing the phrase "person lawfully authorized to administer oaths in such country, etc." contained therein.

POWER OF COMMISSIONERS.

Where by the terms of the Municipal Elections Act (B.C.) the declaration of qualification of voters is to be made before a "commissioner for taking affidavits in the Supreme Court," a declaration of qualification made before a commissioner appointed under the provisions of the Provincial Elections Act (B.C.) is of no legal effect; the powers of the commissioners last referred to being restricted to those conferred upon him by the Act under which he was appointed.

(§ 1-5)—STATUTORY DECLARATIONS.

Where the law makes the taking of a statutory declaration or other solemn declaration a condition to the recovery of a demand or to the exercise of a legal right, the declaration so taken is one "required by law" within Cr. Code, s. 175 (false extra-judicial declarations).

OFFENCE — CIRCULATING OBSCENE PRINTED MATTER — SUBSERVENCE OF PUBLIC WELFARE — EXCESS IN STATEMENT.

Even if the circulation among the clergymen of a city of printed matter containing grossly disgusting details of an obscene character, describing a theatrical performance, was to serve the public good by arousing public sentiment leading to the suppression of performances of such character, the person who circulates it will be liable to prosecution under the Cr. Code for any excess in the publication beyond what the public welfare demanded. No public good, sufficient to absolve a person from liability under s. 207 of the Code, as amended, for circulating obscene printed matter tending to corrupt public morals, is shown from the facts that the purpose of the circulation among the clergymen of a city of printed matter containing grossly disgusting details of an obscene character, describing a theatrical performance, was to arouse public sentiment leading to the suppression of performances of such character.

R. v. St. Clair, 12 D.L.R. 710, 28 O.L.R. 271, 21 Can. Cr. Cas. 350.

SELLING OR EXPOSING FOR SALE OBSCENE BOOKS.

The proprietor of a book store cannot be convicted, under s. 207 of the Cr. Code, of knowingly selling or exposing for sale an obscene book when he had no knowledge of the contents of the books, a few copies of which had been, without his knowledge, purchased by a clerk and kept among stock in a cellar to which the public was not admitted. In order to warrant a conviction under s. 207, as amended by 8 & 9 Edw. VII. c. 9, for selling or exposing for sale an obscene book, it must be proved that the accused was aware of its obscene character and that it was sold or exposed for sale with his knowledge.

Code, upon a charge that the accused did unlawfully attempt to dissuade certain witnesses from giving evidence before members of a Royal Commission appointed to investigate a certain charge, where the facts merely established an attempt to dissuade the witnesses from giving evidence before a special commissioner appointed by said Royal Commissioners to take such evidence, it must be shown that the Royal Commissioners were acting within the scope of their commission in appointing such special commissioner.

SUMMARY CONVICTION OR SUMMARY TRIAL — JURISDICTION.

The offence of obstructing a peace officer in the execution of his duty (Cr. Code, s. 169), is one which may be prosecuted under the "summary convictions" procedure of Part XV. of the Code, or under the "summary trials" procedure of Part XVI., if taken before a magistrate having jurisdiction under both procedures; if the procedure of Part XVI. is followed his jurisdiction will be subject to the consent provided for in Cr. Code, s. 778, in a province where consent is not dispensed with; but if the procedure of Part XV. (summary convictions), is followed throughout, the magistrate has jurisdiction to try the case and impose the punishment applicable to a "summary conviction," without asking the consent of the accused under s. 778. [R. v. Crossen, 3 Can. Cr. Cas. 152, R. v. Carmichael, 7 Can. Cr. Cas. 167, and R. v. Van Koolberger, 16 Can. Cr. Cas. 228, dissent from.]

PERSON EMPLOYED BY BAILIFF TO LEVY UNDER EXECUTION.

Where the officer charged with the execution of process of a civil court has power to employ a deputy or subordinate officer to act for him in making a seizure of goods, such deputy or subordinate officer is within the protection of Cr. Code s. 169, subs. (a), making it an offence to resist or willfully obstruct him in the execution of his duty, the person so employed being within the statutory definition of "peace officer" given by s. 3, subs. (26), as well as a person acting "in the lawful execution of process" within s. 169, subs. (b).

SEIZURE—RESISTANCE—WARRANT.

A person in possession of property is not bound to relinquish it to one who assumes to act under legal process, but who has not clothed himself with proper and sufficient authority to rightfully take possession of the property in question. If the person in possession obstructs such officer in attempting a seizure of the property he is not thereby guilty of a breach of s. 169 Cr. Code.

SUMMARY CONVICTION OR SUMMARY TRIAL.

The methods of procedure by summary conviction (Part XV. Cr. Code) and by summary trials (Part XVI.) for the offence of obstructing a peace officer (s. 169) are alternative methods, and where a summary conviction is sought and the procedure of Part XV. followed, the defendant need not be asked for his consent to summary trial under s. 778 even where the magistrate is one having jurisdiction under s. 773.

A. IN GENERAL; ELIGIBILITY.

(§ I A—5)—PUBLIC OFFICER—INSPECTOR OF BUTTER—NOTICE OF ACTION—C.C.P. 88.

An inspector of butter, named by the Dominion Government, is a public officer. He is entitled to one month's notice of action if he is sued for damages caused in the exercise of his duties.

Toussignant v. Bouchard, 15 Que. P.R. 327.

(§ I A—10) — ELIGIBILITY — MEMBER OF MUNICIPAL COUNCIL — DISQUALIFICATION — INTEREST IN CONTRACT WITH TOWN.

A candidate for member of a municipal council is disqualified under s. 80 of the Ontario Consolidated Municipal Act, 3 Edw. VII, c. 19, R.S.O. 1914, c. 192, if he or his partner as such, has an interest in any contract, express or implied, with or on behalf of the corporation, but the interest must be one of possible private gain.

R. ex rel. Fitzgerald v. Stapleford, 13 D.L.R. 859, 29 O.L.R. 133.

MUNICIPAL CANDIDATES—PROPERTY QUALIFICATION.

The value of the property qualification of a candidate for municipal councillor required by s. 52 of the Municipal Act (Man.) was held by a divided court to mean the actual, not the assessed value at the time of the election.

DISQUALIFICATIONS—INTEREST IN MUNICIPAL CONTRACTS — SHAREHOLDER—TAXES.

A contributor to the funds of an association interested in gas contracts with a municipality, to whom shares are allotted to the extent of the amount of his contribution out of the stock of the company formed out of the association, without his knowledge or approval, does not necessarily prove him a shareholder and hence a party interested in a contract with the municipality so as to disqualify him from the office of alderman, under s. 22 (1) of the Edmonton charter, 1913, c. 23. [Re Empire, etc., Somerville's Case, L.R. 6 Ch. 266, applied.] Section 22 (1) of the Edmonton charter, 1913, c. 23, disqualifying any person for the office of mayor or alderman if such person is indebted to the municipality, is intended to apply only to an ordinary indebtedness, but not to a debt for taxes, though declared to be a statutory debt by s. 369.

R. ex rel. La Fleche v. Sheppard, 24 D.L.R. 404, 9 A.L.R. 1, 8 W.W.R. 1020.

ELECTIONS ACT — PETITION — QUO WARRANTO.

Section 192 (b) of the Manitoba Municipal Elections Act refers not only to persons who are "disqualified" under ss. 53-57, but also to persons who lack the qualifications necessary under s. 52 to make them eligible for election. Where proceedings are taken after an election to unseat a municipal officer on the ground of want of qualification, such proceedings should be by way of petition and not of quo warranto.

The King ex rel. Dumas v. Leclair, 42 D.L.R. 643, 28 Man. L.R. 622, [1918] 2 W.W.R. 858.

MUNICIPAL COUNCILLORS — MAYOR — LITIGATION.

It is not sufficient, in order to be nominated for or elected to the office of mayor or municipal councillor, or to be appointed to other municipal offices and occupy them, to know how to read print, or to sign his name, or even to be able to do both; it is necessary to be able to read and write fluently; and this law admits of no exception for municipalities peopled with settlers where those knowing how to read and write fluently are few in number.

Lacaille v. Desmauches, 24 Rev. Leg. 345.

MUNICIPAL COUNCILLORS—PROPERTY QUALIFICATION — VALUATION — PAROL EVIDENCE.

Although under the authority of arts, 228 and 670 of the old Mun. Code, as amended by 35 Viet. c. 8, s. 2, the real property qualification of a municipal councillor was not determined exclusively by the valuation roll, and parol evidence could be admitted as to the actual value of the property; it is not so under the new Mun. Code; and if the real property upon which the candidate desires to qualify is estimated at less than $400, evidence that it is actually worth more is not admissible. To establish such qualification, all charges or hypotheses encumbering the property must be deducted from the value shown on the roll, and not from the actual value.

Ouellette v. Boulay, 24 Rev. Leg. 170.

ALDERMAN — VALUATION ROLL — QUO WARRANTO.

Under art. 5364, R.S.Q. (Cities and Towns Act), it is the real property valuation, as it appears on the municipal valuation roll in force, which determines the electoral qualifications of aldermen. Such valuation cannot be contested nor questioned under the pretext that it does not represent the actual value of the real property, with a view of basing a defence to an application for a quo warranto.

Mercier v. Martin, 54 Que. S.C. 457.

DISQUALIFICATIONS—INTERESTS IN MUNICIPAL CONTRACTS.

Article 4215, R.S.Q. 1888, which prohibits any person having a contract or interest in a contract with a municipal corporation from being appointed a member of the council of such corporation, does not apply to sales of goods, made at different times by a municipal councillor in the course of his trade to the corporation which he represents.

Foster v. Currie, 48 Que. S.C. 103.

ELIGIBILITY GENERALLY—QUALIFICATIONS.

Where a candidate for mayor of the city of Sherbrooke was, at the time of his nomination and election, the owner of an undivided one-half of an immovable, the total value of which was $10,000, and against which undivided one-half no hypothecation or claim existed of record, such undivided ownership is a sufficient property qualification for said office under the charter of said city as "real estate" of the value of $1,000 or more, over and above any mortgage.

Demers v. Hebert, 8 D.L.R. 632, 42 Que. S.C. 314.

QUALIFICATIONS.

For the purpose of the qualification of a member of a municipal council the Mun. Code does not fix any delay for change of ownership of property. A councillor who sells the property on which he qualifies and on the same day purchases another does not lose his qualification thereby. A writ of quo warranto to prevent him taking his seat will be refused.

Landry v. Beaugerard, 14 Que. P.R. 429.

MUNICIPAL COUNCILLOR—HIRE OF SERVICES BY CORPORATION — ELIGIBILITY—QUO WARRANTO.

A municipal councillor, who gives his services to a corporation for a salary, is not permanently disqualified under art. 205, Mun. Code, from exercising his office, but only during the time of his service or as long as he has an interest in the hiring contract in which he is engaged. Consequently, once the services are rendered, and the salary paid, recourse cannot be had by quo warranto proceedings to dispossess him of his office. [Houle v. Brodeur, 18 Que. S.C. 440 and Lewis v. Carr, 46 L.J. (N.S.) 319, followed.]

Arcand v. Paquet, 45 Que. S.C. 289.

ILLITERACY—VALUE OF REAL ESTATE OWNED.

The provision of the new Mun. Code, s. 227, which prescribes that "Whoever can neither read nor write fluently cannot exercise the functions of mayor or councillor" should in the case of members of a rural municipal council receive a liberal interpretation so as to avoid rendering the constitution of these councils difficult if not impossible. The qualification for the office of mayor or of councillor are (a) to be owner of real estate; (b) that such real estate be worth $4000 after deduction of all charge; (c) that the real estate and its value should appear on the valuation roll. But when the real estate is burdened with charges and its actual value considerably more than that borne on the roll, it is necessary in order to determine the qualification to deduct the charges upon it from the amount of its actual value and not from that of the value on the roll.

Rivard v. Portelance, 52 Que. S.C. 90.

DISQUALIFICATION—SURETY FOR CITY.

No one is disqualified from occupying the position of mayor or of municipal councillor because he has become surety for the municipal corporation for the purposes of an appeal in a judicial proceeding. The security that art. 227, Mun. Code, declares to be a disqualification for these offices is that which secures an obligation in which the corporation is creditor.

Beaumier v. Baril, 52 Que. S.C. 101.

CITY CONTRACTS—LITERACY—QUO WARRANTO.

A municipal councillor selling stone to the municipality, and engaged in making and repairing its roads according to a scale of prices fixed by resolution of the council, is disqualified from acting as councillor; he comes within the terms of art. 205, Mun. Code, and may be removed from his office by quo warranto. It is not necessary that a municipal councillor should know how to read and write. An allegation to that effect in an order for a writ of quo warranto may be struck out on an inscription en droit.

Dorris v. Guertin, 52 Que. S.C. 1.

DISQUALIFICATION — TAXES — QUO WARRANTO.

A candidate for the office of city alderman is not disqualified if he has before his nomination paid his municipal taxes by cheque, for which he was given a receipt for his taxes, even if the cheque was not presented for payment and the amount was not credited in the books of the town owing to the negligence of the latter's employees. On a petition for a writ of quo warranto based on the fact that the defendant at the time he was nominated for alderman owed some municipal taxes, the latter, having pleaded only a general denial, will be allowed to produce to the court his receipt for payment of these taxes. Municipal taxes are not due in the sense that their nonpayment makes a candidate for alderman ineligible so long as they are not exigible.

Sonneise v. Maybury, 52 Que. S.C. 123.

QUALIFICATIONS — RECORDER — EX OFFICIO POWERS.

The recorder of the city of Montreal is not bound to possess any property qualification, holding ex officio the powers of a justice of the peace as an adjunct to his office of recorder. Article 3335 R.S.Q. applies only to these justices of the peace who are associated by the government to the commission of the peace. Even if a recorder was bound to possess property and take the oath of allegiance, and that he had not, he would have the right to pronounce a conviction if he is a de facto judge.

Kastel Co. v. Recorder's Court, 15 Que. P.R. 139.

(§ I A—11) — ELIGIBILITY FOR ALDERMAN — RESIDENCE.

A person who has his residence in the city of Lachine and who for 5 months boards with his wife in an apartment at Montreal, in order to educate his children, all the time keeping his house in Lachine and going there at times and returning to live in it after the expiration of the 5 months, has not changed his ordinary residence in Lachine, and continues to be eligible in this respect for the position of alderman of that city.

Latour v. Lefebvre, 47 Que. S.C. 261.

(§ I A—14) — TIME OF DETERMINING DISQUALIFICATIONS.

The disqualification against the holding of office of mayor or alderman prescribed by s. 22 of the Edmonton charter, 1913, c. 23, are limited to the date of election and are not intended to apply to disqualifications from sittings.

R. ex rel. La Fleche v. Sheppard, 24 D.L.R. 404, 9 A.L.R. 1, 8 W.W.R. 1020.
Can. Dig.—109.

(§ I A—16) — INCOMPATIBLE OFFICES GENERALLY.

Where there are two candidates for a municipal office under the Municipal Act, R.S.M. 1902, c. 116, the returning officer has no jurisdiction after the close of the nomination proceedings to deal with an objection that one of the nominees is disqualified, nor to declare the other candidate elected without the votes being polled on the ground of the disqualification of his opponent, although the disqualification alleged was that the candidate as the "Noxious Weed Inspector" of the same municipality was its paid officer.

Re St. Vital Municipal Election; Tod v. Mager, 3 D.L.R. 350, 21 W.L.R. 203, 2 W.R. 185, affirming on different grounds 1 D.L.R. 565, 22 Man. L.R. 136, 20 W.L.R. 537, 1 W.W.R. 929.

INCOMPATIBLE OFFICER — ALDERMAN EMPLOYED BY CONTRACTOR FOR MUNICIPAL WORKS — FORFEITURE OF OFFICE.

Where an alderman of a town corporation is employed by a contractor who had made a contract of hire of service with the town, the alderman does not incur the forfeiture of his position by staying in the employment, and in assuming the superintendence of the work undertaken by his employer. [Poulin v. Limoges, 7 Que. S.C., followed.]

Jacques v. Gelinas, 45 Que. S.C. 3.

(§ I A—17) — DOMINION COMMISSIONER OF POLICE — PROVISIONAL DISTRICTS IN ONTARIO — "PERSON FULFILLING PUBLIC DUTY" — NOTICE OF ACTION.

Geller v. Loughrin, 24 O.L.R. 18, 19 O.W.R. 318.

B. APPOINTMENT AND ELECTION.

(§ I B—27) — ELECTION.

The three essential prerequisites of the occupation of a municipal office de jure under the Municipal Act (Ont.) 1903, are: (1) The actual possession of the necessary property qualification; (2) Election to office; and (3) The completion of the statutory declaration of qualification as required by statute.

R. ex rel. Morton v. Roberts; R. ex rel. Morton v. Rymal, 4 D.L.R. 278, 26 O.L.R. 263, 22 O.W.R. 50.

(§ I B—28) — APPOINTMENT OF PARISH OFFICERS — SESSIONS — QUALIFICATIONS — OATH.

A county council, under s. 52 of the Municipalities Act (N.B.), which provides that "meetings may be adjourned from day to day for 8 days in the whole and no longer," can only sit for 8 days, including Sunday and the first day of the session, and the appointment of parish officers on January 28, by a council which met in regular session on January 20, and adjourned from day to day, is illegal. Under s. 65 of the Act, the council must appoint parish officers at its first general meeting, and has no power to appoint such officers at its semi-annual meeting in July. Under a special Act passed April 2, 1914, 4 Geo. V., c. 67, the councillors for the parish of Durham were authorized to appoint for that year the parish officers for that parish, and the parish clerk, when so appointed, was required, within 6 days after such appointment, to post up a list of the officers so appointed, who should qualify for their respective offices in 10 days after such posting, otherwise their office should be deemed vacant. Held, the council had no right to declare vacant the office of officers properly appointed under the Act and performing the duties thereof on the ground that the offices had been vacated because no return of the officers having taken the oath of office had been filed with the secretary-treasurer of the county. Under s. 88 of the Act it will be assumed that persons properly appointed and acting as parish officers have taken the oath of office.

The King v. Restigouche; ex parte Murchie, 43 N.B.R. 115.

C. QUALIFYING; INDUCTION; VACANCY.

(§ I C—30)—INELIGIBILITY—ARREARS IN TAXES.

The nomination is a part of the election under the Municipal Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 192, s. 53, so as to render ineligible as a candidate for municipal councillor a person who was at the time of nomination in arrears for taxes to the municipality, although such arrears were paid before the date of polling.

R. ex rel. Mitchell v. McKenzie, 21 D.L.R. 438, 33 O.L.R. 196.

(§ I C—31)—QUALIFYING; OATH.

The mere fact that a proper declaration of qualification for office required by the Municipal Act (Ont.), 1903, has not been made, does not, of itself, compel the court to declare the seat vacant, but the party elected may, if otherwise qualified, be given leave to make the declaration of qualification so as to complete his de jure right. [Reg. ex rel. Clancy v. Conway, 46 U.C.R. 85, followed.] A mortgagee who is assessed for freehold property of the value named in the statute may make a valid declaration of qualification for office under the Act. Refusal or neglect to make the declaration of qualification for office, even if caused by inability to make it, amounts to refusal of the office.

R. ex rel. Morton v. Roberts; R. ex rel. Morton v. Rymal, 4 D.L.R. 278, 26 O.L.R. 263, 22 O.W.R. 50.

BAILIFFS—QUALIFICATIONS—OATH.

The statutory provisions as to the oaths to be taken by a bailiff before entry upon his office are directory merely, and failure to take such oaths will not render invalid the acts of the bailiff.

Little v. Magle, 7 W.W.R. 224, 29 W.L.R. 596.

DELEGATE OF SUPERINTENDENT OF PUBLIC INSTRUCTION—OATH.

One who is delegated by the superintendent of public instruction to hold an enquete under this Act is not a Royal Commissioner and is not obliged to be sworn. An action does not lie even under art. 50, C.C.P., to attack the legality of proceedings by officials who are subject to the department of the provincial secretary and who acted upon his instructions and with his authority.

Therrien v. Mercier, 24 Que. K.R. 352.

AUDITOR—OATH OF OFFICE—OMISSION.

An auditor named by the council, under the authority of art. 642, Mun. Code, to make an audit of the books of the secretary-treasurer, is a municipal officer and, as such, is required to take the oath of office before fulfilling the duties of his office. The omission of an auditor to take such oath in the delay fixed by law implies a refusal to accept the office, and makes absolutely void all acts which he pretended to accomplish as the holder of such office.

Ross v. Ste. Anne de la Pointe au Pêre, 53 Que. S.C. 388.

CHURCH CONSTABLE—OATH OF OFFICE—NOTICE OF ACTION.

A church constable is a public officer and, like any other public officer, he cannot exercise the functions of his office without having previously taken the oath of office. A public officer who omits to take the oath of office cannot claim the immunities attached to the office. In particular, he is not entitled to the notice of action prescribed by art. 88, C.C.P.

Thivierge v. Roberge, 53 Que. S.C. 357.

E. RESIGNATION OR DEPRIVATION OF OFFICE.

(§ I E—45)—RESIGNATION.

A resignation from the office of municipal councillor does not operate as a disclaimer under ss. 77, 78 of c. 70, the Mun. Ord. N.W.S. 1898 (Alta.), so as to vest the office in the person who received the next highest number of votes at the election. The filing of an alleged disclaimer of office under s. 77, after the person elected has resigned, is ineffective to vest the office in the person who received the next highest number of votes at the election, as provided by s. 78, a disclaimer made at a time when the person was neither an officer de facto nor de jure not being within the purview of s. 78. A person elected to the office of municipal councillor after a poll of votes and not by acclamation may, at any time previous to the beginning of his term of office and before his election is completed or disclaimed the office under s. 77, without the consent of the council, and such disclaimer has the effect of a resignation.

R. ex rel. Hogan v. Jollivette, 4 D.L.R. 697, 4 A.L.R. 233, 20 W.L.R. 364, 1 W.W.R. 829.

(§ I E-46)—DISQUALIFICATION OF MAYOR —MUNICIPAL CONTRACTS — QVO WAR-RANTO.

A municipal councillor (mayor) who has received compensation for work done by him under a contract with the corporation, is disqualified under art. 205, Mun. Code, from holding his office, notwithstanding that the contract has been performed and payment received before the issue of the writ of quo warranto. [Bouchard v. Bélanger, 8 Que. S.C. 455; Martineau v. Debien, 20 Que. K.B. 512, applied.]

DISQUALIFICATION — COMMISSIONERS OF MONTREAL.

Saint-Martin v. Lachapelle, 12 Que. P. R. 106.

(§ I E-51)—RECALL — CITY COMMISSIONER
IN CHARGE OF POLICE — GROUNDS FOR RECALL ELECTION — INTERFERENCE WITH POLICE PROSECUTIONS—N.B. ACTS 1912,
C. 42.

Recall proceedings from the removal from office of a city commissioner in control of the police force may be founded on grounds other than a breach of the specific duties and conditions attached to his office under the statute regulating his election. Such proceedings may be based upon an alleged interference by the commissioner with the proper discharge of their duties by the police by directing the discontinuance of certain prosecutions brought by them.

Ex parte Tobin, 31 Can. Cr. Cas. 68, 46 N.B.R. 338.

(§ I E-55)—STATUTORY MEDICAL OFFICER OF HEALTH, HOW REMOVED FROM OFFICE.

A "medical officer of health" appointed under the Public Health Act, 2 Geo. V. (Ont.) c. 58, cannot be dismissed except for cause, and with the approval of the Provincial Board of Health.

Re Warren and Whitby, 10 D.L.R. 222, 4 O.W.N. 1029, 24 O.W.R. 317.

REMOVAL OR SUSPENSION.

In cases of high and important public offices where there is a power of a motion for satisfactory cause the official must merely under ordinary grounds of general justice and fair dealing, be given notice and opportunity to answer. Where, however, the persons, whose right to vote upon the question of removal is attacked upon the ground of bias, are not judges so much as politicians, and not jurors deciding facts, but public men who have to give a mere general opinion upon the general efficiency of a public official, the court should be extremely slow to disqualify for mere bias of opinion aside from personal pecuniary interest. Aldermen are not disqualified from voting upon the question of the removal of a commissioner merely because of a certain bias upon the subject, especially where that bias has been disclosed after the commencement of a law suit against them and under the attack of opposing counsel. [Barnard v. Board of Education of Seattle, 40 L.R.A. 317, distinguished.]

Gallagher v. Armstrong, 3 A.L.R. 443.

DISMISSAL FROM OFFICE — NOTICE.

Under the Cities and Towns Act, a municipal council may, upon a vote of the absolute majority of the council, remove, when it thinks proper, a municipal officer it has appointed; it does not have to give notice of dismissal; and the dismissed officer has no recourse against the corporation for loss of salary or compensation.

Roy v. Grand Mère, 53 Que. S. C. 119, affirmed in 54 Que. S. C. 21.

(§ I E-56)—DISQUALIFICATION — CONVIC-TION FOR UNLAWFUL SALE OF LIQUOR.

If it be intended to seek the disqualification of the accused as a member of a municipal council because of his illegal sale of intoxicating liquor in contravention of the Liquor License Act, C.S.N.B. 1903, c. 22, the accused must be both charged with and convicted of having committed the offense knowingly, such being an essential to the disqualification although not in all circumstances necessary to a conviction for the illegal sale.

Ex parte Murchie R. v. Gloucester, 24 Can. Cr. Cas. 228.

(§ I E-57)—REMOVAL — DISQUALIFICA-TION — GROUNDS OF — MUNICIPAL COUNCIL.

The provision of s. 22 of the Edmonton city charter disqualifying any member of the city council who either by himself or his partner has an interest in any contract with the city must be construed strictly and the seat will be vacated whether or not the contract appears (a) to have personally benefited the respondent or (b) to be even enforceable at law.

R. ex rel. Livingstone v. East, 18 D.L.R. 394, 29 W.L.R. 710.

REMOVAL — DISQUALIFICATION — GROUNDS OF — MUNICIPAL COUNCIL.

A member of a municipal council is disqualified from sitting where it appears that his judgment may be clouded by having a personal interest in a contract with the municipality, and the disqualifying provision of s. 22 of the Edmonton city charter affecting any member of the city council who has any such interest is construed strictly.

R. ex rel. Livingstone v. McNamara, 18 D.L.R. 392, 29 W.L.R. 707, 7 W.W.R. 324.

DISMISSAL OF TOWN SOLICITOR — "DUE CAUSE" — REVIEW.

ss. 118, 120 of the Towns Incorporation Act (R.S.N.S. 1900, c. 71, as amended by 1910, c. 26) must be read together and a town solicitor holding office during good behaviour cannot be dismissed by the council unless due cause is alleged and shown; by ss. 122-123 his dismissal is subject to review by a judge in a summary manner.

Chesley v. Lunenburg, 28 D.L.R. 571, 50 N.S.R. 85.

(§ I E—58)—DISMISSAL OF TAX ASSESSOR—
SUFFICIENCY OF NOTICE OF HEARING.

Notice of a council meeting to consider a recommendation for the dismissal of an assistant assessor must be served personally and not by merely leaving a copy of the notice with someone at the place of residence of the person to be served.

The King v. Halifax; Re Stevens, 25 D. L.R. 113, 49 N.S.R. 289.

CHARGES — NOTICE — HEARING.

S. 6 of title 3 of the charter of the city of Edmonton (Ord. 1904, c. 19) provides that "no person shall be disqualified from being elected a member of the council by reason of his being a shareholder in any incorporated company having dealings or contracts with the city or by his having a lease of any property from the city; but no such leaseholder shall vote in the council on any question affecting the company;" —Held in view of the statute as a whole, that the fact that certain aldermen are shareholders in companies having contracts with the city does not disqualify them from voting upon a motion for the dismissal of a commissioner of the city. The effect of the charter is to place the commissioners in a position considerably above that of ordinary employees. S. 3 of title 17 of the charter provides that "no person shall be appointed a commissioner except by a vote of not less than three-fourths of all the members of the council, and the appointed commissioners shall hold office during the pleasure of the council but shall not be dismissed except for cause satisfactory to the council and by a vote of not less than two-thirds of all the members of the council." Under this section the council cannot remove a commissioner from office unless it informs him of the grounds upon which it proposes to act and gives him a fair and reasonable opportunity to answer the charge made against him. [Osgood v. Nelson, L.R. 5 H.L. 636, 41 L.J.Q.B. 329, followed.]

Gallagher v. Armstrong, 3 A.L.R. 443.

A notary is a public officer (s. 4575, R.S.Q. 1909), and, as such, he has a right to the protection which our laws accord to public officers; and, under art. 88 C.C.P., a notary, as a public officer or person performing public functions or duties, cannot be prosecuted for damages resulting from anything done by him in the exercise of such functions, unless a written notice has been given him by the prosecutor at least 1 month before the commencement of the action; and this notice must state the grounds of the action and specify the name and office address of the attorney or representative of the prosecutor, and must be served on the defendant personally or at his domicile; and, in the absence of proof of bad faith or fraud, the notice required by art. 88 is absolutely necessary constituting a jurisdictional obligation of the prosecutor before he can issue a writ against the public officer in default; and the terms of art. 88 are formal and estop the prosecutor from any action unless he has complied with their provisions, his right of action being strictly subject thereto, and no public officer can be presumed to have waived the right granted him by this article unless he has expressly and knowingly waived it.

Authier v. Beaulieu, 18 Rev. de Jur. 393.

F. CONTEST OF TITLE.

(§ I F—65)—RURAL MUNICIPALITIES — CONTEST OF TITLE TO OFFICE — COUN-CILLOR'S LENGTH OF TERM.

Section 71 of the Manitoba Municipal Act, R.S.M. 1902, c. 116, as amended 1909, c. 33, s. 15, relating to the drawing of lots in a new rural municipality by the councillors affected, to determine which councillors shall sit for two years and which for one year respectively on or before Jan. 31, is merely directory, and a drawing of lots on March 19, is a sufficient compliance with the sections referred to.

CONTEST OF TITLE.

The right of a mayor, warden, reeve, alderman, county councillor or councillor to hold a seat may be attacked by an originating notice at the instance of an elector even though the latter does not claim the seat for any other person, and the notice may be amended at any time prior to the final disposition of the motion attacking it.

II. Rights; powers; duties; liabilities.

A. RIGHTS; POWERS AND DUTIES GENERALLY.

(§ II A—70)—POWER OF MAYOR — RIGHT
TO INSTRUCT SOLICITOR TO DEFEND AC-TION — ABSENCE OF INTEREST.

The mayor of an incorporated town cannot of his own motion, and in opposition to a resolution of the town council, instruct a solicitor to enter an appearance in an action brought against the town, where the solicitor is not defending on behalf of the mayor, and the mayor has no interest in the subject matter otherwise than in common with the other ratepayers of the town.

Corning v. Yarmouth, 9 D.L.R. 275, 12 E.L.R. 205.

The license commissioners for the city of Montreal are ministerial officers who exercise incidentally judicial functions as regards the confirmation of a license certificate whenever there is an opposition produced against this confirmation. Therefore, before they render judgment, they must submit to the essential formality of every judicial proceeding enunciated in art. 82 C.C.P. which forbids the adjudicating on any judicial demand unless the party against whom it is made has been heard or duly summoned.

Naraberger v. Choquette, 13 Que. P.R. 270.

(4 II A-74)—DUTIES.

A land owner within a land registration district in Alberta is not entitled to demand from the registrar of the district an official certificate that the land in question is a homestead and as such exempt from a certain execution issued under a judgment against the applicant and registered under the Executions Ordinance, Revised Ord., 1911 (Alta.) c. 27, as it is not the duty of the registrar to determine whether or not the property is a homestead and as such exempt, that being a question for a competent court; the registrar for the purposes of his official certificates of his records must treat the execution as a charge upon the land with priority according to the date of its registration.

Love v. Bilodeau, 7 D.L.R. 175, 5 A.L.R. 348, 22 W.L.R. 689, 3 W.W.R. 81.

ACCOUNT BY MUNICIPAL SECRETARY-TREASURER — FORMAL REQUIREMENT — VERIFICATION — WAIVER.

The obligation of the secretary-treasurer of a municipal corporation to render an account, created by a special Act, is a matter of private order, and the municipality can dispense with this account or with the formalities which should accompany it. Thus a municipal council, which for 5 years permits its secretary-treasurer to render his account without attesting it under oath, as required by the corporation's charter, thereby renounces the right, and the payment of the salary of the secretary-treasurer after his last account is rendered is an acquiescence in and an acceptance of it.

B. COMPENSATION AND FEES.

(§ II B-80)—FAILURE TO QUALIFY AFFECTING RECOVERY.

Fence-viewers who have failed to take the oath of qualification explicitly required of them under R.S.N.S. c. 70, s. 93, before entering upon their duties cannot recover moneys which would otherwise be coming to them as fence-viewers.

Hannigan v. McLeod, 21 D.L.R. 509, 48 N.S.R.340.

SALARY — PAYMENT AND ACCEPTANCE OF A SMALLER AMOUNT — EFFECT — ESTOPPEL, HOW NEGATIVE.

A public school inspector appointed prior to the Public School Consolidation Act, 1896, is entitled to remuneration at the rate of $5 for every teacher occupying a separate room with a separate register, and the fact that he has accepted a different rate of pay for many years, does not estop him from suing for his arrears of salary, his rate of pay being a fixed one, as well known to the council as to himself, and the council not prejudiced by reason of his conduct in the matter.

Carlyle v. Oxford, 18 D.L.R. 759, 30 O.L.R. 413.

POSTMASTERS — COMPENSATION AND FEES — COMMISSION — IMPROPER USE OF STAMPS — LIABILITY — PROCEDURE.

Where a postmaster receiving a commission from the government on the sale of postage stamps uses postage stamps in bulk to pay trade debts in contravention of the Post Office regulations, an action lies at the suit of the Postmaster-General for repayment to him of such commission.

Postmaster-General v. Millar, 19 D.L.R. 184.

(§ II B-82)—COMPENSATION — INCREASE OR REDUCTION OF — AGREEMENT AS TO VALIDITY.

The Public School Consolidation Act, 1896, makes it obligatory on the county council to pay public school inspectors a fixed rate and no agreement with the inspector as to salary is necessary, nor would such an agreement be legal, if made for a smaller remuneration than the statute provides, as defeating its purposes.

C. LIABILITIES.

(§ II C-85)—An "unlawful" act is one contrary to law, common or statutory, and a defense by statute that the defendant "lawfully acted by virtue of his office" is sustainable only where the act in question was done "lawfully" so far as the other party is concerned.

(§ II C-86)—MISCONDUCT — SCOPE OF OFFICIAL DUTIES — IMMUNITY — LIQUOR LICENCE INSPECTOR.

In an action against several defendants including a license inspector for an alleged conspiracy to defeat the plaintiffs' rights on his application for a liquor license under the Liquor License Act, R.S.M. 1902, c. 101, the inspector enjoys no immunity by virtue of his official position as regards acts which were beyond the scope of his official duties.

NEGLECT OR MISCONDUCT GENERALLY — SEIZING LIQUOR INTENDED FOR ILLEGAL USE.

A provincial revenue officer is answerable to the Dominion Government as for a conversion for breaking into an Inter-colonial Railway station and seizing a consignment of intoxicating liquor which he had reason to believe was intended to be sold by the consignee in violation of a provincial law, since the title to the property of such railway is vested in the Dominion Government and, being public property of the Dominion, is not subject to provincial legislation.

Bombardier v. Rivest, 40 Que S. C. 103.

(§ II C—87)—MONEY HAD AND RECEIVED — APPLICATION TO SET ASIDE DEFENCE REFUSED — APPEAL DISMISSED WITH COSTS.

In an action against the sheriff for money received by defendant to the use of plaintiff in connection with a foreclosure sale, to which a defense was pleaded, the judge in Chambers refused plaintiff's application to set aside the defense. On appeal, it appearing that plaintiff was not entitled to the claim sued for, and that in any event plaintiff could not succeed without amending his claim, the appeal was dismissed with costs.

III. Officers de facto.

(§ III—90)—PRESUMPTION OF REGULAR APPOINTMENT — CLERK OF COURT.

A presumption of regular appointment arises from a person acting as the clerk of a court.

R. v. Wilson, 15 D.L.R. 168, 6 S.L.R. 348, 26 W.L.R. 148, 5 W.W.R. 620.

(§ III—91)—DAMAGES — BAILIFF — PUBLIC OFFICER — NOTICE OF ACTION — LETTER OF ADVOCATE — PRESCRIPTION — C.C.P. ART. 88—R.S.Q. ART. 3387.

A bailiff is a public officer. In the exercise of his functions he carries out a public duty, and in that capacity he has a right to the notice of action required by s. 88 C.C.P., and he has the benefit of the prescription laid down by s. 3387 R.S.Q. 1909, hence a mere formal demand by a letter of an advocate to pay a stated amount of damages cannot take the place of the notice required by the Act.

Lapierre v. Gendron, 55 Que. S.C. 126.

(§ III—92)—DE FACTO—SCHOOL TRUSTEES.

The only remedy of a ratepayer in respect to any irregularities in the calling of or proceedings of the first meeting of school trustees is under s. 34 of the School Ordinance, and by s. 33, subs. 2, all such irregularities are cured by the publication, in the official gazette, of notice of the formation of the district. The election of school trustees may be attacked only as provided in s. 77, and, even if the trustees were irregularly elected, their acts are not void so long as they have held office and have been de facto trustees. (§ III—93)—RIGHT TO FEES.

An officer cannot recover fees or set up a right of property or right to recover money that accrues to him in virtue of his office, on the ground that he is an officer de facto unless he be also an officer de jure. [People v. Hopson, 1 Denio N. Y. 373, approved.]

OPPOSITION.

To seizure, see Levy and Seizure.

To judgment, see Judgment Execution.

OPPOSITION TO SEIZURE — ORIGINAL NOT RETURNED — MOTION FOR PARTICULARS.

A motion asking for particulars on an opposition will be dismissed as premature if the original of the opposition has not yet been returned.

Frost & Wood Co. v. Thibeaucau, 16 Que. P.R. 278.

REJECTION ON MOTION—FRAUD—CREDITOR.

An opposition can only be struck out on motion if "prima facie" it is frivolous, that is, if it is evidently made for the purpose of unjustly delaying the sale of the effects seized; if the facts on which it is based are openly false, or if the points of law on which it is based are indubitably ill-founded. Thus, an opposition raising the point whether the revocation of a deed on the ground of fraud or simulation is only for the benefit of the creditor applying for it, or whether all other creditors may claim it, cannot be struck out on mo-

The best authorities are not unanimous.

Tremblay v. Monsour, 53 Que. S.C. 84.
SECURITY — TRANSFER — MOTION TO DISMISS.

An opposition to secure charges which alleges a transfer of the rents of the property as security for a claim, which transfer has been registered on the property, and asks that the property be sold burdened with that obligation, raises a serious question and cannot be dismissed on a mere motion.

Cuddy v. Brodeur, 20 Que. P.R. 123, 24 Rev. Leg. 39.

OPPOSITION FOR PAYMENT — MOTION TO EXAMINE — COSTS.

Art. 651, C.C.P., which allows the examination of the opposite party if his opposition seems frivolous, does not apply to an opposition for payment, which is subsequent to the sale. If such a motion is granted, and a useless examination takes place, the party that caused such proceedings should pay the costs.

Beaupre v. Gravel, 20 Que. P.R. 26.

OPPOSITION TO ANNUL — JUDGMENT — EXECUTION — SURETY.

When one of the defendants has failed to appear and is ordered to pay, he cannot, by opposition to annul, ask for the nullity of the execution taken under the judgment against him, for the reasons that his codefendant had filed a declinatory exception which had been upheld, and being the joint and several surety of his codefendant he was not compelled to pay the debt as long as judgment was not given against the latter.

Julien v. Chévanelle, 20 Que. P.R. 6.

SEIZURE — TITLE TO GOODS — MOTION TO STRIKE.

An opposition, by which one declares his ownership of the goods seized "as having acquired them with his own money, in the ordinary course of business," will not be struck out on motion.

Cailloux v. Houde, 20 Que. P.R. 169.

SECOND OPPOSITION — JUDGMENT — AMBIGUITY — ORDER TO SUSPEND.

An order to suspend will not be granted on the filing of a second opposition based on grounds: (1) that the judgment dismissing the first opposition is ambiguous; (2) the date on which the judgment may be executed is not mentioned in the return (procès verbal); and (3) the creditor has proceeded immediately after the dismissal of the first opposition.

Prudhomme v. Decarie, 19 Que. P.R. 224.

EXCEPTION TO FORM — DELAY — NOTICE OF DEPOSIT — AFFIDAVIT — ADDRESS — DOCUMENTS.

An exception to the form against an opposition is too late if served 7 days after it is filed with the prothonotary. Such exception, as all preliminary exceptions, should be accompanied by a notice of deposit of the sum fixed by the Rules of Practice and by the certificate of the prothonotary attesting such deposit. The omission in the conclusions of an exception to the form of the words "sauf à ce pouvoir" without being in itself a ground for dismissing an exception that is well founded, is sufficient reason for contestation and may involve a condemnation to payment of costs against the party who makes such exception. The failure to file with an opposition the documents supporting it is not a ground for an exception to the form. Nor is the omission to state in the affidavit in support of an opposition the address of the opposant. This requirement applies only to one who has his usual residence in a town with numbered streets, whatever may be his actual residence at the time when he makes his deposition. To avoid any doubt an opposant will be allowed to amend without costs his opposition by adding the street and number of the actual and temporary residence of the deponent. The examination of the opposant will only be allowed if it is demanded by special motion. Documents in support of an opposition filed at the office of the prothonotary, after the sheriff has sent his return there, will not be struck out of the record as being filed too late or irregularly filed.

Tasse v. Rouillard, 18 Que. P.R. 222.

OPPOSITION—GROUNDS FOR DISMISSAL.

An opposition may be dismissed on mere motion on the ground that the contract for the title invoked by the opposant may be simulated, annulable or without effect in regard to the party suing to enforce its execution, or because the grounds invoked by the opposant are unfounded in law.

Evans v. Chopin, 18 Que. P.R. 380.

A motion for dismissal of an opposition cannot discuss or attack the merits but must be based on the ground that the reasons for the opposition are frivolous or futile on their face. The allegations in a motion to dismiss an opposition cannot form the subject of an enquête.

Barry v. Juneau, 18 Que. P.R. 434.

OPPOSITION A FIN D'ANNULER.

An opposition à fin d'annuler by the debtor personally condemned to pay the amount claimed, based upon an abandonment made by the co-defendant condemned to pay the hypothec, will not be dismissed on motion even if later the abandonment has been withdrawn.

(§ I—1)—LIABILITY OF PARENT FOR AUTOMOBILE PURCHASED BY CHILD—AGENCY.

A person who sells an automobile to an infant under 21, and takes his agreement and lien notes for the price, has the onus cast upon him of proving the son's agency for the parent if he seeks to make the latter liable, and such is not conclusively shown by the license having been taken in the parent's name.

Wheeler v. Chapman, 21 D.L.R. 660.

SUM OF MONEY HANDED BY FATHER TO DAUGHTER—LOAN OR GIFT—EVIDENCE.

Preston v. Barker, 14 O.W.N. 119.

Although the courts ought, as far as possible, to maintain the principle of paternal authority in its integrity, they can and should, on the other hand, in certain cases, exercise their control over paternal authority when the latter is not used in a judicious or just manner and especially when the welfare of the infant is being interfered with. A father cannot (for the simple gratification of seeing his son, a minor of 17 years, follow the former's calling) insist upon the son learning the father's trade, when the minor's inclination and aptness adapt him to a totally different calling in life, especially where the son continues to live with his father and in that way continues under the supervision of the father, and where to decide otherwise would be to compromise the future welfare of the child.

Bail v. Lemieux, 18 Rev. de Jur. 497.

(§ I—4)—LIABILITY FOR CHILD'S MAINTENANCE—AGREEMENT.

Where a parent arranges that his minor child shall reside with a relative, without charge, and give the relative his services free, the parent is liable to damages if he induces the child to leave the relative while yet a minor; the value of the child's keep while with the relative, above his value as a labourer, is the measure of the damages. Latimer v. Hill, 30 D.L.R. 669, 36 O.L.R. 321, affirming, except as to damages, 26 D.L.R. 800, 35 O.L.R. 36.

SUPPORT.

A wife may recover from her husband's legatee whatever sums she has spent for the maintenance of a child born of the marriage, and which, in the opinion of the court, should have been paid by the father, although she has never sought to enforce against a decree for alimony.

Hill v. Johnson, 44 Que. S.C. 160.

JUDGMENT FOR CHILD'S SUPPORT—TERMINATION UPON DEATH OF PARENT.

An allowance for maintenance awarded to a natural child by judgment against its father ceases on the death of the latter, and is not a charge on the succession.

Filiatrault v. Meloche, 47 Que. S.C. 108.

MAINTENANCE — CHILDREN — WEAKNESS — INTOXICATING LIQUORS—C.C., ART. 166.

An old man 64 years old who is in need and who is incapable of obtaining the necessaries of life by his own labor, has the right to be maintained by his children who are able to do so. This is true even though his poverty is caused by the abuse of intoxicating liquor. Defendants ought to be held jointly and severally liable.

Payan v. Payan, 25 Rev. Leg. 340.

SUPPORT OF PARENTS AND INFANTS—OPTION TO SUPPORT INFANTS RATHER THAN FATHER-IN-LAW IN A CASE OF EXTREME POVERTY.

When the evidence shews that the plaintiff is no poorer than the defendant, but that, as a matter of fact, the position of the latter is more necessitous than that of his father-in-law, and that between the choice of supporting his children or his elderly parent there is nothing illegal in defendant's option to support his children rather than his father-in-law.

Lafortune v. Guimond, 25 Rev. de Jur. 252.

MAINTENANCE—NATURAL CHILD—RIGHTS OF MOTHER.

The mother of a natural child has a right to recover from the father the maintenance of the child and expenses of her confinement at the same time though she has not been appointed tutrix.

LIABILITY OF FATHER FOR TORT OF CHILD — CHILD KICKING OTHER CHILDREN — SCIENTER.

A father is not, merely because of the relationship, liable for the torts of his minor child. The fact that a father may have had notice that his infant son had kicked the plaintiff's child will not render the parent liable for a similar assault committed several months afterwards, apart from knowledge and approval by the father of the offending child of a course of conduct on the latter's part involving assaults of that kind. That a father may have had knowledge of the propensity of his infant son to kick other children cannot be inferred from the former's admission to a third person that at one time he had intended settling the plaintiff's claim for such an assault. [Thomas v. Morgan, 2 C.M. & R. 496; Sayers v. Walsh, 12 Ir. L.R. 434; and Mason v. Morgan, 24 U.C.Q.B. 328, distinguished.]

LIABILITY FOR BREACH OF PROMISE.

A father is not liable for damages on account of a breach of promise of marriage by his son, a minor, when he proves that he could not have prevented it and has himself suffered from it.

Vachon v. Gagnon, 51 Que. S.C. 463.

PARENT'S LIABILITY FOR DAMAGE CAUSED BY CHILD — UNAUTHORIZED EMPLOYMENT.

A person who hires the services of a minor, without the father joining in the agreement, has no recourse against the father when the minor causes damage to his employer, even if the father was aware of the employment of his son.

Bergeron v. Dagenais, 47 Que. S.C. 492.

[§ I-9] — DAUGHTER — LOSS OF SERVICE — ENTICEMENT BY DEFENDANT — SERVICE DETERMINABLE AT WILL — ACTION — DAMAGES.

The fact that the contract of service between a father and daughter (over 16) is terminable at the will of either party is no bar to an action by the father, whose daughter has been enticed away and her service consequently lost.

Walters v. Moore, 50 D.L.R. 336, [1919] 3 W.W.R. 806.

FATHER'S LIABILITY FOR TORTS OF CHILD.

The presumption of liability, created by art. 1054, C.C. (Que.), of a father for damage caused by his minor children is only a prima facie presumption, and can be negated by proof of justification, by the father, hires his service, and in the course as the minors are under the control and surveillance of their father at the time the reprehensible act was committed. If a minor son, without the knowledge of his father, hires his service, and in the course of his work causes damage to his Master, the father is not liable, the minor being at that time under the control and surveillance of his master and acting as his servant.

Bergeron v. Dagenais, 46 Que. S.C. 302.

II. Legitimacy.

[§ II-10] — LEGITIMACY — CORRECTION OF REGISTER.

The correction of registers of civil status as to the legitimacy of a recognized child can be made only through a principal action by calling into the case all the interested parties, including the child.

IV. Right to custody.

[§ IV-40] — RIGHT OF PARENT TO CUSTODY OF CHILD — EFFECT ON WELFARE OF CHILD.

The Child's Protection Act (Ont.) 7 Edw. VII., c. 39, s. 30, directing that a Roman Catholic child shall not be placed in a foster home in a Protestant family does not compel a change of custody of a child of tender years so as to take it from its Protestant foster parent with whom it was placed by the Children's Aid Society under the authority of the Children's Court Commissioner acting on the statement of the child's mother that she was a Protestant where the Commissioner had adjudicated that the mother who seemingly was in sole control and charge of the child, was unfit to have the child's future custody. CUSTODY OF—RIGHT OF FATHER.

Re/Cameron, 10 D.L.R. 814, 24 O.W.R. 160.

RIGHT TO CUSTODY.

A widow, mother of children 6 and 8 years old, has a right to their custody and may proceed by habeas corpus to obtain possession of them from their grandmother and uncle who have taken them to their home and maintained them for some years.

Moquin v. Turgeon, 42 Que. S.C. 232.

In a matter of habeas corpus for the custody of a child under age the interest and well-being of the child is the first consideration for the judge. When it is a case of dispute between the parents as to the child's custody, and the latter is not capable of making an intelligent choice, the court should choose for him. In this case the child, 22 months old, instead of being placed in a charitable institution was placed in care of its mother.

Nault v. Nault, 13 Que. P.R. 221.

CUSTODY OF CHILDREN—TUTOR—HABEAS CORPUS—QUE. C.P. 1114.

When a father declares that it is impossible for him to keep with him all his children, the court may place one of them at the grandfather's, who is a well-to-do man, who is married and has 3 daughters, one of whom is a teacher. The contention of a third party claiming to have received the custody of the child will not be allowed.

Dalliere v. Bouchard, 16 Que. P.R. 68.

(§ IV—45)—DESERTED CHILD—CHILDREN'S PROTECTION ACT—RIGHT OF PARENT.

The parents being both in jail on criminal charges, their children were taken in charge under the Children's Protection Act (Alta.) as deserted children. After their release the parents applied for the return of the custody of the eldest child. This application was refused. A subsequent application for an order compelling the Superintendent of Neglected Children to inform them of the whereabouts of the then youngest children, and to keep them informed of any changes, was granted. The Superintendent of Neglected Children complied with the order as to the present whereabouts, but appealed from the order, objecting to be under the obligation in case of future changes. The court held, that a judge of the Supreme Court as persona designata had jurisdiction to make the order. There is nothing in the statute which has the effect of destroying the court's inherent power to control the guardian who has been substituted for the natural guardian. . . . There should be, however, a right reserved to the Superintendent to shew that for some special reason, arising out of very special and temporary circumstances, he ought to be allowed to keep the whereabouts of the child, for a time, concealed from the parent. The intention of the Act is to leave the parents' rights and duties existing with respect to their neglected children unaffected, except in so far as the circumstances with respect to character and conduct on the part either of the parents or the child make it expedient, having regard only to the interest of the child, that the parents shall not be allowed to have the control of the child.

Right of third party to sue, privity, see Contracts, VI A—410.

Right of member of association to sue in his own name, see copyright, 1—8.

(§ I A—1)—WIFE SUING AS—HUSBAND'S AUTHORIZATION, WHEN ESSENTIAL—QUEBEC C.C.—LIBEL—"SIMPLE ADMINISTRATION," SCOPE OF.

An action for libel is not a matter of "simple administration" within the exception of art. 176, C.C. (Que.), and consequently a married woman separate as to property cannot maintain the action without the authorization of her husband.

SOLE PROPRIETOR SUING IN TRADE NAME.

The Ontario practice rules do not permit a person who carries on business alone under a firm name to sue in such firm name only without making himself a plaintiff under his individual name, although he is liable to be sued under the firm name.

Lumsden v. Spectator Printing Co., 14 D.L.R. 470, 29 O.L.R. 293.

WRECKFUL REMOVAL OF CORPSE FROM BURIAL LOT—ACTION FOR—TITLE NECESSARY TO SUSTAIN.

One who has not the title to a cemetery plot cannot maintain an action for the wrongful removal of human remains therefrom.

O'Connor v. Victoria, 11 D.L.R. 577, 4 W.W.R. 4.

ACTION BROUGHT IN NAME DENOTING PARTNERSHIP—SOLE MEMBER OF FIRM—STYLE OF CAUSE—IRREGULARITY—AMENDMENT—CON. RULES 222, 231.

Lloyd v. Scully, 4 O.W.N. 1404, 24 O.W.R. 685.

IN INTERDICTION PROCEEDINGS—QUEBEC.

When an order of interdiction for insanity has not been made by a judge, its revision can be sought only by the person interdicted or by any of his relatives, and then only upon petition to the court and not upon an incidental proceeding such as an exception to the form in a pending case.

Moffat v. Montgomery, 14 Que. P.R. 353.

ACTION BY MORTGAGEE ON INSURANCE POLICY—OWNER.

Where an action upon a fire insurance policy is brought by the mortgagee of the insured premises, the owner, although mentioned as the insured, is not a necessary party, if his only interest in the insurance moneys is that the amount thereof paid discharges, in part, his mortgage, it being for a larger amount than that assured by the policy. [Brandt v. Dunlop Rubber Co., [1905] A.C. 454, followed.]

Pachal v. Germania Fire Ins. Co., [1918] 2 W.W.R. 502.

(§ I A—7)—WHO MAY SUE—INJURY TO RIPARIAN RIGHTS.

A riparian owner who is deprived of his reasonable and proper right of navigating a river and of obtaining clear access thereto, by reason of a lumber company unreasonably obstructing the stream in the course of their driving operations, has such a special interest, and sustains such special damages, as entitle him to maintain an action against the company where the river affords the only means of egress and ingress he and his family have between their residence and the outside world.

(§ I A—9)—MUNICIPALITY.

A declaration, in an action to have a contract declared void or annulled, in which are set forth obligations of performance arising from a municipal board and the settlement of a boundary involving the mutual surrendering of land, that would cease to be binding or to have effect, upon judgment rendered maintaining the action, sufficiently discloses the interest of the plaintiffs to sue, required by art. 77 C.C.P. The fact that the conclusions do not go beyond, nor ask for anything requiring execution, does not imply lack of interest, the judgment sought being one that, of itself, is executory and redresses a wrong complained of. A public corporation created to administer and manage public property (e.g. a harbour), with powers of alienation of its movable and immovable dependencies, is competent to bring suit in its own name, to have a contract made by it declared null, or to have it annulled. Such a case is not of the kind contemplated in art. 978 C.C.P., as requiring the action or intervention of the Attorney-General.

Harbour Commissioners of Montreal v. Record Foundry & Machine Co., 21 Que. K. B. 241.

(§ I A—11)—CESTUI QUE TRUST.

The rule is well settled that a member of a society or church congregation may sue on behalf of himself and all other members of the congregation to prevent a breach of trust as to which they have a legal interest to intervene.

(§ I A—13)—CONTRACT—JOINT MAKERS.

An action upon a contract entered into on the one side by 2 persons held to have been brought properly by one of them.

Smith v. Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., 38 D.L.R. 455, 25 B.C.R. 37 at 41, [1917] 3 W.W.R. 1071.

Where the plaintiffs, as some of the joint heirs of an estate, proceed against the defendant, as a person wrongfully in possession of the joint property, without adding as coplaintiffs the other joint heirs, and where the plaintiffs in their action demand an accounting and a declaration of their right to undivided shares in the estate, a dilatory objection by the defendant against the nonjoinder of the remaining joint heirs will not defeat the plaintiffs' action, when it clearly appears that the objection was taken too late, and that the remaining joint heirs will not be prejudiced by the declaration in favour of the joint heirs who are already parties in the action.

Houde v. Marchand, 8 D.L.R. 431.

JOINT OWNERS.

An action, taken by one of two persons seized of the naked ownership of an estate against the life usufructuary to have the usufruct ended by reason of wasteful administration, is not unfounded because the coproprietor has not been made a party, and that the action should be remitted to the Superior Court to have the coproprietor made a party, but costs of the appeal would not be granted to the plaintiff, as he ought to have summoned the coproprietor into the cause.

Guay v. Duval, 18 Rev. de Jur. 371.

(§ I A—15)—SALE—INTEREST OF VENDOR.

A vendor of real property, required by law to deliver such property, has a sufficient interest to take an action to make one who detains it illegally, give it up.

Beaucage v. Brunette, 54 Que. S.C. 383.

(§ I A—16)—BY TAXPAYER.

Where a city corporation is about to pass an ultra vires by-law, and an application for an injunction to restrain is made by a plaintiff (not in the name of the Attorney-General), such plaintiff comes within the prohibition of the well-settled rules that no person may institute proceedings with respect to wrongful acts which, if of a private nature, are not wrongs to himself, and if of a public nature do not specially affect him-self.

Keay v. Regina, 6 D.L.R. 327, 5 S.L.R. 372, 22 W.L.R. 185, 2 W.W.R. 1072.

(§ I A—20)—RIGHT OF THIRD PERSON TO SUE ON CONTRACT.

A company has no right of action on a contract made before its incorporation between its promoters to transfer to it, on its subsequent formation, shares of stock of the companies amalgamating with it.

Goldfields v. Mason, 12 D.L.R. 244, 24 O.W.R. 878, 4 O.W.N. 1530.

THIRD PARTY NOTICE—MOTION TO SET ASIDE.

Wolsely Tool & Motor Co. v. Jackson, 6 O.W.N. 400.

(§ I A—22)—CONTRACT MADE BY AGENT IN HIS OWN NAME.

A contract made by an agent in his own name sufficiently satisfies the Statute of Frauds so as to permit the principal to maintain an action thereon, parol evidence being admissible to shew the relation of the parties.

MOTION BY DEFENDANTS TO COMPEL THE ADDITION OF NEW PLAINTIFFS—CONTRACT—PRINCIPAL AND AGENT—COUNTERCLAIM.

Winnifrieth v. Finkleman, 5 O.W.N. 781.

(§ I A—32)—PURCHASER UNDER FORECLOSURE—VACATING FINAL ORDER.

On vacating a final order of foreclosure, notwithstanding an alleged sale made thereafter by the mortgagee, the purchaser taking with notice of the foreclosure may be added as a party plaintiff where the mortgage accounts are reopened.

(§ I A—40)—EFFECT OF ASSIGNMENT.

If shewn on a trial that shares of stock on which an action was based had been assigned, the case should be directed to stand over in order to permit the plaintiff to obtain the assent of the assignee to become a coplaintiff, or, if not obtainable, to make him a defendant, where the plaintiff desires to prove that the assignment was as security only and that he still retained a beneficial interest in the shares.

Daniel v. Birkbeck Loan Co., 4 D.L.R. 767, 3 O.W.N. 1250, 22 O.W.R. 147.

INTEREST OF ASSIGNOR AS PARTY—LIEN NOTE—ENDORSEMENT—EQUITABLE ASSIGNMENT.

Canadian Bank of Commerce v. La Brasch, 39 D.L.R. 398, 10 S.L.R. 408, [1918] 1 W.W.R. 8.

Action to enforce a lien against land made in 1886, in favour of an English company known as the Canada North-West Land Co. In 1893 a Canadian company with the same name was formed to take over the assets of the English company, and it was stated in evidence in a general way that the Canadian company did take over such assets. The action did not shew which company was suing, merely alleging the claim upon a lien to the plaintiff company. Objection was raised that the Canadian company had sued, and could not maintain an action without alleging and proving an assignment. The company then applied for leave to amend. Held, 1. The lien, being dated before the organization of the Canadian company, must be taken to have been made in favour of the English company, and if so could not be sued upon by the former unless an assignment was alleged or proved. 2. On the circumstances of the case it would appear that the action was brought by the Canadian company. 3. That while there was evidence of a vague character pointing to the assignment of the lien to the Canadian company, such evidence was not such as could be left to a jury, the rule being that it must be determined, not whether there is literally no evidence, but whether there is any upon which a jury could properly proceed to find a verdict for the party producing it, upon whom the onus of proof is placed, and a judge sitting without a jury is bound by the same principle. 4.

There being, therefore, no sufficient evidence of assignment, the plaintiffs could not maintain this action, and as to allow an amendment would entail the setting up of an entirely new cause of action, such amendment should not be allowed.

Canada North-West Land Co. v. Irwin, 4 S.L.R. 394.

(§ I A-41)—ACTION ON BILLS—ORIGINAL INDORSEES.

Where, at the time of an action on bills of exchange, the plaintiff is not holder or indorsee of the bills, which are in fact held by a bank as the original indorsee, the latter must be added as a party plaintiff.

Canada Food Co. v. Stanford, 28 D.L.R. 659, 50 N.S.R. 252.

(§ I A-45)—ATTORNEY-GENERAL—MUNICIPALITY—DAMAGES PECULIAR TO PRIVATE PLAINTIFFS.

A property owner who suffers a peculiar and specific injury from an obstruction of a road which prevents free egress and ingress to his property, may maintain an action in his own name against the wrongdoer to have the road declared a public highway and to obtain the removal of the obstruction without making the Attorney-General a party to the action.

O'Neil v. Harper, 13 D.L.R. 650, 28 O.L.R. 635, reversing 10 D.L.R. 433.

ACTION TO QUESTION EXERCISE OF POWER BY CORPORATION—RIGHT OF MUNICIPALITY TO MAINTAIN.

The Attorney-General should be made a party to a proceeding to question the power of an electric railway company to operate its road notwithstanding informalities in obtaining the municipal franchise, where, after due notice to the municipality, an authorization of certain crossings had been made by the Board of Railway Commissioners on the footing of the electric railway having the requisite franchise.

Burnaby v. B.C. Electric R. Co., 12 D.L.R. 321, 3 W.W.R. 628.

ON MATTERS OF PUBLIC RIGHTS—ABSENCE OF SPECIAL DAMAGE—LOCAL OPTION.

A mere inhabitant of a license district has no status to maintain an action against a license commissioner, asking for an injunction restraining the commissioner from acting on a requisition presented to him for a poll to determine whether licenses should be granted for the sale of liquor under s. 121 of the Liquor License Ordinance, Con. Ord. 1898 (N.W.T.), c. 89, as amended by 2 & 3 Geo. V. (Alta.), c. 8, s. 26, there being no allegation in the statement of claim that any special damage might accrue to the plaintiff from the submission of the question to a vote of the electors.

Gross v. Strong; Pinchebeck v. Strong, 10 D.L.R. 392, 5 A.L.R. 491, 23 W.L.R. 340 and 362, 3 W.W.R. 879.

(§ I A-46)—INTEREST IN ATTACKING BY-LAW—LOCAL IMPROVEMENTS.

A ratepayer, who is not substantially prejudiced by the assessment for local improvements enacted by a special by-law, has no interest in attacking its validity.

Craddock Simpson v. Westmount, 27 D.L.R. 94, 49 Que. S.C. 341.

RIGHT OF RATEPAYER TO COMPEL COLLECTION OF TAXES.

Where a municipality has allowed a certain proportion of the taxes levied against a property to remain unpaid for a number of years, a ratepayer has no status to maintain an action against the municipality to compel it to collect such arrears.

Norfolk v. Roberts, 23 D.L.R. 547, 50 Can. S.C.R. 283, affirming 13 D.L.R. 463, 28 O.L.R. 593.

ACTION TO ANNUL ILLEGAL VALUATION ROLL.

A ratepayer, particularly one having a contract with the municipality by which the amounts of taxes he is obliged to pay are based upon a valuation roll, has a sufficient interest to maintain an action to set aside the whole of such valuation roll because of illegality.

La Cie d'Approvisionnement d'Eau v. Montmagny, 25 D.L.R. 292, 24 Que. K.B. 416.

RATEPAYER'S ACTION—ATTORNEY-GENERAL.

A ratepayer has the right on behalf of himself and the other ratepayers, without joining the Attorney-General as a party ex relatione to maintain an action against a municipal corporation to restrain acts which are ultra vires, where the Crown is not directly interested. [Brogdin v. Bank of Upper Canada, 13 Gr. 544; and Hoole v. G.W.R. Co., L.R. 3 Ch. 262, applied; Rogers v. Bathurst School District, 1 N.B. Eq. 266, distinguished.]

Steeves v. Moncton, 17 D.L.R. 560, 42 N.B.R. 465.

RATEPAYER'S ACTION.

Where a ratepayer of a city purports to be suing the corporation and the mayor and councilors on behalf of himself and all other ratepayers of the city he is in effect suing the individual defendants on behalf of themselves, they being ratepayers, and the form of action is, strictly speaking, objectionable; the individual defendants should be specifically excepted from those on whose behalf the plaintiff sues: [Morrow v. Connor, 11 Ont. P.R. 425] Moreover, the suit should be not only on behalf of all the ratepayers but also on behalf of all the inhabitants of the city. [Mellreith v. Hart, 39 Can. S.C.R. 657.] These technical objections to the style of cause may, however, be cured by amendment.

Gallagher v. Armstrong, 3 A.L.R. 443.

INTERESTS OF TAXPAYER—RIGHT TO ATTACK MUNICIPAL BY-LAW.

The mere fact of being a taxpayer of a municipality does not give a right of action to quash a by-law which grants a privilege (e.g., the right to carry on an auto-bus business in the streets of a town) if the plaintiff suffers no special injury.

Robertson v. Montreal, 23 Que. K.B. 338. [Affirmed, 26 D.L.R. 30, 52 Can. S.C.R. 30.]

(§ I A—47)—QUI TAM ACTION—STATUS OF PLAINTIFF.

An objection that the plaintiff has no legal status to sue cannot be raised on pre-emption proceedings, but only by exception to the form or on the merits. [Lamontagne v. Grosvenor Apartments, 20 Que. K.B. 221, approved.]

Mason v. Ledoux, 2 D.L.R. 50.

(§ I A—48)—RIGHT OF ATTORNEY-GENERAL TO SUE.

Only the Attorney-General has the right in the absence of any express statutory provision, to sue for an order restraining a municipal corporation from passing a by-law which while ultra vires does not specially affect any citizen or class of citizens.

Keay v. Regina, 6 D.L.R. 327, 22 W.L.R. 185, 5 S.L.R. 372, 2 W.W.R. 1072.

The Attorney-General, suing on the relation of a city and an officer thereof, if he has independent rights in the action, is not bound by the proceedings in a former action by the city against the same defendant in which similar issues were involved and the judgment was rendered against the city, upon the ground that such officer represents the Crown alone and could have sued without a relator as well, there being no difference except for the purpose of costs between an ex officio information and an information on the relation of a corporation or a private person. [Fonseca v. Att'y-Gen'l, 17 Can. S.C.R. 612 (reversing, on other grounds, Att'y-Gen'l v. Fonseca, 5 Man. L.R. 173), at p. 619, distinguished.]

NECESSITY OF JOINING ATTORNEY-GENERAL—TRESPASS—ENCROACHMENT ON LAND BY NAVIGABLE WATERS.

Volcanic Oil & Gas Co. v. Chaplin, 10 D.L.R. 200, affirming 6 D.L.R. 284. [Reversed 19 D.L.R. 442, 31 O.L.R. 364.]

(§ I A—50)—IN REPRESENTATIVE CAPACITY—ATTORNEY OR AGENT FOR BENEFICIARY, STATUS.

An action brought by an attorney or agent must be brought in the name of the person for whom he acts, and cannot be brought in the name of the person who holds the power of attorney, or the agency.

Luciani v. Toronto Construction Co., 10 D.L.R. 551, 4 O.W.N. 1073, 24 O.W.R. 381.

(§ I A—51)—BAND OF MUSICIANS—ACTION BY MANAGEMENT COMMITTEE—TRUSTEES FOR MEMBERS.

(§ I A—52)—EXECUTOR—SUING IN REPRESENTATIVE CAPACITY—NOTE TAKEN IN NAME OF TESTATOR FOR DEBT DUE ANOTHER ESTATE OF WHICH HE WAS EXECUTOR.

Where an executor in his life time sells property of an estate, taking a note therefor in his own name, his executor after his death may maintain an action thereon in his representative capacity.

Ayer v. Kelly, 11 D.L.R. 785, 41 N.B.R. 489, 12 E.L.R. 564. [Appeal to Can. S.C. dismissed; not reported.]

RECEIVERS.

A liquidator of a company appointed under the Winding-up Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 144, sufficiently represents the creditors without joining one of the creditors generally, as a party in an action to contest as against an alleged chattel mortgagee of the company's goods the invalidity of the chattel mortgage as against creditors by reason of non-compliance with a statute requiring that chattel mortgages made without actual and continued change of possession shall be recorded, and declaring that otherwise they shall be void as against creditors of the chattel mortgagor.

National Trust Co. v. Trusts & Guarantee Co., 5 D.L.R. 459, 26 O.L.R. 279, 22 O.W.R. 933.

B. JOINDER.

(§ I B—55)—NONJOINER, EFFECT OF, REMEDIES FOR—JOINT LESSORS.

In an action ex contractu, a nonjoinder of plaintiffs is always, unless amended, a fatal error under the New Brunswick County Court practice; if the nonjoinder appear on the face of the pleadings, the mode of attack is demurrer; if only disclosed at the trial, the result is a nonsuit or adverse verdict. [Vassie v. Chesley, 33 N.B.R. 192, distinguished.]

Where 2 lessors have a joint right to be paid a certain amount as rent, the neglect by the debtor to pay the amount gives the two lessors together a right of action, but such neglect is not an interference with any right possessed by either of them singly, and under the New Brunswick County Court practice neither can bring action without joining the other as co-plaintiff.

Knowles v. McLaughlin, 11 D.L.R. 659, 41 N.B.R. 548, 12 E.L.R. 508.

JOINER—ADDITION OF PLAINTIFF—PERSON INTERESTED IN COMMISSION CLAIMED BY PLAINTIFF—DISCOVERY—BETTER AFFIDAVITS OF DOCUMENTS.

Imrie v. Wilson, 2 D.L.R. 883, 3 O.W.N. 895.

ADDITION OF PLAINTIFF—ASSIGNMENT—JOINER OF PARTIES AND CAUSES OF ACTION.

Clarke v. Bartram, 1 D.L.R. 907, 3 O.W.N. 691.

While the nonjoinder of parties having a joint interest as co-owner with the plaintiff is, under Ont. C.R. 206 (1897), no longer a ground for the absolute dismissal of the action, the court will direct, on the defendant's exception raised on an interlocutory motion, that the action do not come on for trial unless and until the other person interested has been joined as a party.

Hoodless v. Smith, 7 D.L.R. 280, 4 O.W.N. 190.

MISJOINDER AND NONJOINDER—SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE.

Where, in an action for specific performance an agreement for the exchange of property, the statement of claim discloses a cause of action along with another party, the nonjoinder of the latter as a co-plaintiff is no ground for a dismissal of the action but the defect may be remedied by leave to add and amend under penalty of dismissal. The proper method by which a party to an action may raise the question of nonjoinder or misjoinder (r. 28, Alta.), is by an application, substantively, or on motion for directions, in Chambers, or summarily at the trial, to strike out or compel the opposite party to add, which is to be done at the earliest opportunity under the penalty of costs; raising the question in a defence as a point of law is not the proper method, except in the case when it appears on the facts alleged that the plaintiff or plaintiffs have no cause of action against the objecting defendant, which in reality is no objection on the ground of misjoinder, but merely that the facts alleged do not constitute a cause of action.

"SERIES OF TRANSACTIONS"—RESCISSION—FRAUD.

Sales of shares, attacked for fraud by different purchasers, may be viewed, under r. 123 (Eng. O. 16, r. 1), as "arising out of the same transaction or series of transactions" warranting the joinder of the several plaintiffs into one action.

Allan v. McLennan, 31 D.L.R. 617, 23 B.C.R. 515, [1917] 1 W.W.R. 513, reversing 10 W.W.R. 941.

SAME TRANSACTION—SAME QUESTIONS.

Moneys due to several persons in their respective capacities, under a contract for work and labour done, upon the same construction, there being no common question of law or fact, are not "causes of action arising out of the same transaction or series of transactions," to enable the several plaintiffs to join into one action, nor within the rule "where if such persons brought separate actions any common question of law or fact would arise," within the rules of the Supreme Court of B.C.

Bourner v. Pauling, 35 D.L.R. 465, 24 B.C.R. 222, [1917] 2 W.W.R. 1129.

PARTNERS.

The shipment of goods to a person who is in fact trading as a partnership entitles him to sue in his own name, without joining a dormant partner, for damage to the goods in course of transit. A dormant partner is a necessary party plaintiff in an action for the benefit of the partnership.

Vipond v. Furness, 35 D.L.R. 278, 54 Can. S.C.R. 521, varying 31 D.L.R. 635, 25 Que. K.B. 325.

JOINDER OF ASSIGNOR—ACTION FOR TORT BY ASSIGNEE.

A mere right of litigation is not assignable; nor, in an action begun by an alleged assignee, will the assignor be added, unless it be necessary to terminate the real matter in dispute.

Henderson v. Pinto Creek, 33 D.L.R. 599, 10 S.L.R. 105, [1917] 2 W.W.R. 178.

WRITTEN CONSENT.

In order that a person be added in an action as a party plaintiff there must be a consent in writing signed by the party thus to be added. [Henderson v. Pinto Creek, 33 D.L.R. 599, 10 S.L.R. 105, followed.]

Gardiner v. Muir, 38 D.L.R. 115, 10 S.L.R. 388, [1917] 3 W.W.R. 1080.

ACTION TO SET ASIDE WILL—JOINDER OF BENEFICIARIES—ORDER FOR REPRESENTATION—PERSONS "HAVING SAME INTEREST"—COSTS.

In an action by one of the next of kin of a deceased testator to set aside bequests made in the will to the defendants, it appeared when the case came on for trial that, in the event of the plaintiff's success, the sums bequeathed to the defendants would necessarily be distributed amongst the next of kin of the deceased, and that there were other persons in the same relationship to the deceased as the plaintiff. Held, that all those who would be benefited by the success of the action should be made parties or be represented. The representation contemplated by r. 75 is a representation of a class "having the same interest"—i.e., interest in the result of the action. An order was made directing that the record and proceedings in the action be amended by striking out the name of A.D.M. as plaintiff and substituting therefore, "A.D. M., suing on behalf of himself and all other the next of kin of the late S.M. and of all those who would be benefited by the action succeeding," and providing that A.D.M. should in the action represent the said next of kin and persons who would be so benefited.

May v. Wheaton, 41 O.L.R. 369.

PERSONS CLAIMING FOR SERVICES—THRESHING.

Two persons employed together by the same person to thresh grain may be joined as plaintiffs in an action to recover their remuneration.

Dusbabek v. Bjornstad, [1918] 3 W.W.R. 79.

LIQUIDATOR—DIRECTORS' MISFEASANCE.

A creditor of a company which is being wound up cannot, without joining the liquidator as a coplaintiff, sue the directors of the company to compel them to make good to the company losses alleged to have been caused by breaches of trust and acts of misfeasance committed by them as such directors and bringing about the insolvency of the company. [Wilson v. Lord Bury, 5 Q.B.D. 518, followed.]

London Guarantee v. Henderson, 26 Man. L.R. 568.

JOINDER OF PLAINTIFFS—MOTION TO COMPEL PLAINTIFFS TO ELECT WHICH WILL PROCEED — ENLARGEMENT TILL TRIAL — SPECIAL CIRCUMSTANCES.

JOINDER OF PLAINTIFFS AND CAUSES OF ACTION—R. 66.

White v. Belleperche, 12 O.W.N. 165, 202.

Where a plaintiff sues jointly and severally the city of Montreal and a third party for damages on account of injuries caused by them, the city can compel the plaintiff to bring such third party into the case.

Duchesne v. Montreal, 14 Que. P.R. 86.

PRACTICE—JOINDER OF PLAINTIFFS HAVING SEPARATE AND DISTINCT CAUSES OF ACTION—COSTS—DEFENDANT NOT OBJECTING TO IRREGULARITY—NO COSTS GIVEN ON DISMISSAL OF ACTION.

An action in which a number of plaintiffs joined in suing defendant for various trespasses against various lands belonging to one or other of the plaintiffs was held not maintainable in that form and was dismissed (without prejudice to the right of any plaintiff to bring further action). There cannot be a joinder of plaintiffs having separate and distinct causes of action although there may be such joinder for damages arising from the one and same wrongful act of the defendant.

Jiggins v. Oliver, [1919] 1 W.W.R. 705.

JUDGMENTS—PLEADINGS—NUMBER OF EMPLOYEES SUING DEFENDANT IN ONE ACTION—SEPARATE CLAIMS FOR WORK—SINGLE JUDGMENT FOR TOTAL AMOUNT SET ASIDE—MISJOINDER OF PARTIES—R. 15—SAME "TRANSACTION OR OCCURRENCE."

In an action "in which a number of employees sued defendant for various sums for work, a single judgment entered by default for the total amount thereof was set aside. A number of employees having distinct claims against a defendant for distinct work done by each of them as individuals, although contemporaneously and at the same workshop, cannot join in one action to recover their wages. The same "transaction or occurrence" within the meaning of r. 15 means some business negotiation or dealing with which several persons, though in different rights, may have been connected. On account of a previous winding-up order against defendant company the action was not dismissed for misjoinder of parties. In view of s. 22 of the Winding-up Act (Can.) the motion to dismiss was unnecessary. The question whether the action should go on in its present form was left to the master.

Risler v. Alberta Newspapers, [1919] 1 W.W.R. 740.

(§ I B—57)—ACTIONS AGAINST MUNICIPALITIES—JOINDER OF ATTORNEY-GENERAL.

The Attorney-General is a necessary party only when the public interest in the subject-matter of the action is province-wide in its extent, and not when that interest is confined to a community forming only a part of the province.

OF ATTORNEY-GENERAL.

Where a proceeding is defective because the Attorney-General was not added as a party plaintiff and no consent from the Attorney-General is forthcoming when the case comes on for final disposition, as upon a plaintiff's motion for judgment, a conditional amendment will not be granted subject to the plaintiff obtaining the Attorney-General's consent, but the action will be dismissed if the plaintiff has not the necessary status to maintain the action.

Keay v. Regina, 6 D.L.R. 327, 5 S.L.R. 372, 22 W.L.R. 185, 2 W.W.R. 1072.

PRIVATE ACTION AGAINST PUBLIC NUISANCE—ATTORNEY-GENERAL.

In an action to abate a nuisance against the public health, if the plaintiff shews that he has suffered some particular, direct and substantial damage over and above that sustained by the public at large, the Attorney-General is not then a necessary party. [Goldsmid v. Tunbridge Improvement Commissioners, L.R. 1 Ch. App. 549; Glossop v. Heston and Islesworth Local Board, 12 Ch. D. 102, applied.]

Clare v. Edmonton, 15 D.L.R. 214, 26 W.L.R. 678, 5 W.W.R. 1133.

OF ATTORNEY-GENERAL.

It is immaterial whether a wrong complained of is alleged to have been committed by a public body, e.g., a municipal corporation, or by a private individual, so far as respects the question whether the Attorney-General should be joined as a plaintiff. Where the ratepayers or some of the ratepayers of a municipality sue to restrain their municipal council from performing some act it is not necessary that the Attorney-General should be joined as a plaintiff, if the thing sought to be restrained touches in no way the interests of all the people outside that particular municipality. But if the municipal corporation as a corporation is proposing to do something in excess of the powers given it by its charter it is in the interests of the public of the province that it be restrained and the Attorney-General is a proper party, whether or not a private interest be infringed. [Att'y-Gen'l v. Garner, [1907] 2 K.B. 480, 76 L.J.K.B. 965, 97 T. 486, 23 T.L.R. 563; and Prestney v. Colechester, 21 Ch. D. 111, 51 L.J. Ch. 805, followed: view of Sir John Romilly, M.R., in Evan v. Avon, 29 Beav. 144, 30 L.J. Ch. 163, not followed.] The council of a municipal corporation is not the corporation; the inhabitants are the corporation and the members of the council are their trustees. A city is the body of its inhabitants in their corporate form. In a suit against a municipal corporation and the mayor and councillors individually, wherein no charge of wrong doing is made against the corporation and no specific relief is asked against it, but wherein the relief sought is the restraining of the council from passing a certain resolution except under certain conditions and after the observance of certain formalities, the mere fact that the corporation is formally a defendant is no reason why it should be necessary to have the Crown or Attorney-General as a party plaintiff.

(§ II A—65)—RIGHT OF ASSIGNEE TO SUE IN OWN NAME.

The Rules of Practice and Procedure of the Supreme Court of Ontario, including r. 85, having been confirmed by statute, have the force of a legislative enactment. There is nothing in the rule which conflicts with R.S.O. 1914, c. 109, s. 49, and both enactments may stand together; and now that fusion of law and equity has taken place, and the rules of equity, where they are in conflict with the rules of law, are to prevail, r. 85 now applies to an action in the Supreme Court of Ontario, and enables an equitable assignee to sue in his own name. Can. Dig.—110.

name where the assignment is of the whole fund, leaving no beneficial interest in the assignor.

Graham v. Crouchman, 39 D.L.R. 284, 41 O.L.R. 22.

FOREIGN INSURANCE COMPANY — GENERAL AGENT — ACTION TO RESTRAIN FROM APPLYING FOR REGISTRATION — COMPANY A NECESSARY PARTY.

The general agent of a foreign insurance company whose capacity to sue and be sued on behalf of the company does not commence until it has become registered, is not its agent, in an action brought to restrain it from applying for registration under a provincial Insurance Act; the action is improperly constituted without such company being made a party thereto.

MUNICIPAL OFFICER WHOSE STATUS IS IN QUESTION.

In a suit by a ratepayer on behalf of himself and the other ratepayers and inhabitants of a municipality against a mayor and council to restrain them from removing a commissioner from office, without first giving him notice of the charge against him and an opportunity to answer, it is not necessary to join the commissioner as a party.

Gallagher v. Armstrong, 3 A.L.R. 443.

ACTION IN WARRANT — SIMPLE WARRANT — ACTION AGAINST A THIRD PARTY BY THE PRINCIPAL DEFENDANT — C.C.P. 186.

Although it has been held that an action in simple warrant may be directed against a person who by his fault, has subjected another party to an action in law, it has never been held that such a person can be called in to take the fait et cause of the principal defendant.

Archambault v. Chausse, 15 Que. P.R. 431.

EXCEPTION TO THE FORM — DEFAULT OF DECISION — PREJUDICE — EXPENSES — C.C.P. ART. 105, 113, 123, 174.

An exception to form produced by a "mis en cause" founded on the plea, that he has been an added party without any decision having been taken against him, will be maintained, but without costs if the latter suffers no prejudice.

Dorion v. Gervais & Chartrand, 25 Rev. Leg. 30.

MUNICIPAL LAW — RECISSION OF BY-LAW — IRREGULAR SESSION ADJOURNED — DECLARATION OF VACANCY — NOMINATION OF COUNCILOR — PARTIES TO ACTION — MUN. CODE, ART. 118, 430, 431 — C.C.P. ART. 521.

In an action to rescind a municipal by-law intended to declare a vacancy in the council, and to fill the vacancy by naming a new councilor, the plaintiff is not compelled to add the named councillor as a party.

Bergeron v. Notre-Dame-du-Bon-Conseil, 56 Que. S.C. 174.

(§ II A—66)—CREDITOR'S ACTION TO SET ASIDE FRAUDULENT CONVEYANCE — GRANTOR AS PARTY DEFENDANT.

Union Bank v. Mountain, 30 D.L.R. 284, 9 S.L.R. 214, 34 W.L.R. 101.

JUDGMENT CREDITOR — FRAUDULENT CONVEYANCE — ACTION TO SET ASIDE.

In an action by a judgment creditor to set aside as fraudulent a conveyance by the debtor, where no relief is asked against the debtor and no special circumstances appear making it desirable to have him before the court, the debtor is not a necessary party to the action. [McDonald v. Dunlop, 2 Terr. L.R. 177; Bank of Montreal v. Black, 9 Man. L.R. 439; Scott v. Burnham, 19 Gr. 234; Beattie v. Wenger, 24 A.R. (Ont.) 72; *Gallagher v. ACTION BY CREDITOR TO SET ASIDE FRAUDULENT CONVEYANCE.

A judgment debtor is a proper, although not a necessary party to an action by a judgment creditor to set aside a conveyance by the debtor as fraudulent. [Gallagher v. Beale, 14 B.C.R. 247, not followed.]

Gibson v. Franklin, 21 B.C.R. 181.

ACTION TO SET ASIDE FRAUDULENT CONVEYANCE.

The grantor is a necessary party to an action by a simple contract debtor to set aside a fraudulent conveyance, and must be made so in the first instance.

Miller v. Kuss, 9 W.W.R. 763. [See also 25 D.L.R. 816, 32 W.L.R. 957.]

(§ II A—67)—NUMEROUS PARTIES.

Ont. Con. R. 200 as to class representation orders cannot be invoked by a plaintiff to have one member of a voluntary association appointed to represent all the other members, in an action for trespass and assault committed at the instance of that defendant on behalf of the association. Rule 201 as to class representation orders can only be invoked where the right of the class to be represented depends upon the construction of an instrument, and those rights are sought to be ascertained.

Scully v. Ontario Jockey Club, 8 D.L.R. 203, 4 O.W.N. 379, 23 O.W.R. 422.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE — NUMEROUS PARTIES — REPRESENTATIVE FOR NUMEROUS CLASS.

Practice r. 77 (Ont. rules of 1913) as to the appointment by the court of a person to represent unascertained classes of defendants, does not apply where the parties interested in an equity of redemption, although numerous, have separate and distinct interests in the incumbered land, and are entitled to indemnity and contribution differing according to their respective titles and the dates of their acquisition.

Howie v. Cowan, 2 D.L.R. 906, 3 O.W.N. 1156.

(§ II A—70)—ACTION RELATING TO LANDS — INTEREST OF THE CROWN — ADDITION OF ATTORNEY-GENERAL AS PARTY.

The Attorney-General is a necessary and proper party to any action relating to lands in which the Crown has an interest, and the rights of the public are involved.

E. & N. R. Co. v. Wilson; E. & N. R. Co. v. Dunlop, 50 D.L.R. 371, [1919] 3 W.W.R. 961, reversing 46 D.L.R. 541, [1919] 2 W.W.R. 147.

(§ II A—71)—ACTION AGAINST CROWN — ATTORNEY-GENERAL.

The nonexistence of any right to bring the Crown into court does not give the Crown immunity from all law, or authorize the interference by the Crown with private rights at its own mere will, and the practice in England in cases where no petition of right will lie is to sue the Crown by the Attorney-General under a declaratory order obtained.

ACTION FOR TRESPASS — TRESPASSER CLAIMING UNDER PROVINCIAL LEASE — PRIOR GRANT TO DOMINION — ATTORNEY-GENERAL NOT NECESSARY AS A PARTY.

In an action for trespass, where the trespasser claims under a lease from the Crown as represented by the province, such lease being subsequent to a grant which if valid must prevail, the Attorney-General is not a necessary party.

Esquimalt & Nanaimo R. Co. v. McLellan, 44 D.L.R. 697, [1918] 3 W.W.R. 645, affirming 37 D.L.R. 803.

CROWN AS PARTY DEFENDANT — TRANSCONTINENTAL RAILWAY — ACTION FOR DAMAGES — JURISDICTION.

An action for damages against the Transcontinental Railway (Eastern Division) must be taken against the Crown in the Exchequer Court and not against the commissioners of said railway who are acting as representatives and for the benefit of the government of Canada. [The King v. Jones, 44 Can. S.C.R. 495, followed.]

Fournier v. Commissioners of the Transcontinental Railway, 15 Que. P.R. 56.

(§ II A—85)—COMPANY — WINDING UP — JUDGMENT — PERSON PRIVY IN ESTATE TO PARTY LITIGANT.

A person cannot be affected, still less concluded, by any evidence, decree or judgment to which he was not actually or in consideration of law, privy. In order that a judgment may be conclusive against a person as privy in estate to a party litigant it is necessary to shew that he derives title under the latter by act or operation of law subsequent to the recovery of the judgment, or at least to the commencement of the proceedings, and that the judgment was one affecting the property to which title is derived.

Re Bailey Cobalt Mines; Bailey Cobalt Mines v. Benson, 45 D.L.R. 585, 44 O.L.R. 1.

(§ II A—86)—PARTNERS.

As a rule there can be only one defendant in an action of slander, namely, the person who uttered the words complained of, and unless the plaintiff pleads that one defendant instructed the other to utter the slander sued on, a claim against 2 persons jointly, although alleged to be partners, will be struck out as embarrassing. [See annotation to this case.]

(§ II A—87)—CORPORATION — SALE OF SHARES.

In an action to enforce a sale of shares between a shareholder and a third person, the company may be joined as a proper though not necessary party, in order that the formalities requisite for the transfer may also be enforced.

Reardon v. Franklin, 35 D.L.R. 380, 51 N.S.R. 161. [Affirmed 39 D.L.R. 176, 55 Can. S.C.R. 613.]

(§ II A—95)—ASSIGNMENT FOR BENEFIT OF CREDITORS — SALE TO INSPECTOR — SUIT TO AVOID.

In an action to set aside a sale of the assets of a company made by its assignee for the benefit of creditors because one of the inspectors of the estate was interested in the purchase, any question as to his right to retain profits derived by him cannot be considered, if neither the company nor the inspector is a party to the action.

Laing v. Toronto General Trusts Corp., 16 O.W.N. 193.

(§ II A—100)—HUSBAND AND WIFE.

While a claim for the custody of the children may be joined in an action by the wife against the husband for alimony, another person taking care of the children under the defendant's directions cannot be made a codefendant for the purposes of the relief sought as to the custody of the children.

Ney v. Ney, 1 D.L.R. 641, 3 O.W.N. 927, 21 O.W.R. 524.

JOINDER OF DEFENDANTS — HUSBAND AND WIFE — AGREEMENT — SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE — DECLARATION OF TRUSTEESHIP — RR. 30, 32, 79.

Held, that, so far as the action was for specific performance the wife was a necessary and proper party, and the joinder of the 2 defendants was authorized by r. 32; and, apart from that rule, and before the Judicature Act, she would have been a proper party. The fact that the wife might not be interested in all the relief prayed for was not a proper matter of complaint: r. 39; and it would not be a ground for relief under r. 79. And a motion by the defendants for an order requiring the plaintiff to elect as to which of the defendants he would proceed against, and to dismiss the action as to the other, was refused.

Mutz v. Murr, 26 W.L.R. 711.

HUSBAND AND WIFE — ACTION TO SET ASIDE FRAUDULENT CONVEYANCE.

This was an action by a judgment creditor to set aside a conveyance of land by W. E. F. to his wife, A. S. F., as being fraudulent. Both the husband and wife were joined as defendants, and on February 8, 1915, the solicitor for W. E. F. made an application in Chambers before the Chief Justice of British Columbia for an order striking him out as being an unnecessary and improper party, and in making the application he relied on the authority of Gallagher v. Beale, 14 B.C.R. 247. The Chief Justice held that the husband was a proper, although not an unnecessary party, and dismissed the application with costs.

Gibson v. Franklin, 7 W.W.R. 1411.

(§ II A—105)—CASES AS TO REAL ESTATE.

Where a mortgagee holds by a conveyance absolute in form, but which is in effect a mortgage only, he may be made a codefendant in a creditor's action for a sale in aid of execution against the owner of the equity without any offer by the plaintiff to redeem; and the plaintiff may, upon his debtor's interest being ascertained, elect either to redeem or to sell subject to the mortgagee's claim. [Moore v. Hobson, 14 Grant 793, followed.]

Wallace v. Smart, 1 D.L.R. 70, 19 W.L.R. 787, 48 C.L.J. 110, 22 Man. L.R. 68.

ADDING IN MASTER'S OFFICE.

The Manitoba rules of practice as to adding parties in the Master's office are confined to cases where neither any accounting nor any direct relief is sought against the parties to be added and in which the question of relief to the added parties themselves (beyond what is claimed by the plaintiff) cannot arise.

Watson v. Cadwallader, 14 D.L.R. 526, 23 Man. L.R. 760, 26 W.L.R. 1, 5 W.W.R. 549.

HOLDING DEED TO BE MORTGAGE — TACKING.

On holding a deed absolute in form to be an equitable mortgage to the extent of the consideration therein stated, in an action by the widow and heirs of the grantor, the grantee will not be permitted to tack on an additional indebtedness from the grantor although it was the intention of the parties to the deed that it was to stand as security therefor, where all of the persons interested, including judgment creditors of the grantor, were not parties to the action.

Duffy v. Mathieson, 13 D.L.R. 588, 13 E.L.R. 73.

SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE — PERSON AGREEING WITH VENDOR TO CONVEY TO LATTER'S VENDEE.

A landowner who contracted to sell land to a purchaser, who, in turn, agreed to sell it to the plaintiff, is a proper party to an action for specific performance of the latter agreement, where, with full knowledge of such contract, he had agreed with his vendee to convey the land to the plaintiff in furtherance of the contract of resale.

Dixon v. Dumore, 12 D.L.R. 549, 49 C.L.J. 551, 24 O.W.R. 774.

FORECLOSURE ACTION — ASSIGNEE OF PURCHASER.

An assignee of a purchaser to whom the purchaser's interest under the contract had been assigned is a necessary party defendant to an action for the foreclosure of the contract for the purchase of the land, and his nonjoinder will affect the judgment rendered in the action.

Gale v. Powley, 24 D.L.R. 450, 22 B.C.R. 18, 32 W.L.R. 65, 8 W.W.R. 1312.

SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE OF SALE OF LAND — PREDECESSOR IN TITLE.

The predecessor in title (remaining registered proprietor) of a vendor of land is not a proper party to an action for specific performance brought against the purchaser.

Gibbs v. Gibson, 9 W.W.R. 190.

JOINDER OF CODEFENDANT — NECESSARY PARTIES — ASSIGNEE OF AGREEMENT OF SALE OF LAND — CANCELLATION OF CONTRACT.

In an action for cancellation of an agreement of sale and to recover possession of the premises by the vendor, although the assignee of the agreement of sale is not a necessary party so far as the issues between the vendor and the purchaser are concerned, yet as the presence of the assignee will be necessary in order to enable the court to be able the plaintiff the relief for which he asks, the assignee ought to be joined as a codefendant even although the plaintiff opposes such joinder.

Griese v. Loewen, 6 W.W.R. 698.

(§ 11 A—106)—FORECLOSURE OF LAND CONTRACT — UNKNOWN ASSIGNS OR SUBPURCHASERS.

The plaintiff in an action for foreclosure of an agreement for the sale or exchange of lands is under no obligation to make assignees or subpurchasers parties to the action or to the motion for rescission, where the defendant fails to disclose in the pleadings or otherwise actual facts relating to any subsale or any notice to the plaintiff of any such assignments. [McCreight v. Foster, L.R. 5 Ch. App. 604, L.R. 5 H.L. 321, applied.]

Plainview Farming Co. v. Transcontinental Townsite Co., 25 D.L.R. 594, 25 Man. L.R. 677, 32 W.L.R. 499, 9 W.W.R. 247.

B. JOINDER.

(§ 11 B—115)—DEBTORS UNDER JOINT LIABILITY — JOINDER AS DEFENDANTS ESSENTIAL.

It is the right of persons jointly liable to pay a debt to insist upon being sued together, because otherwise one such debtor may through nonjoinder become severally liable for the whole debt. Where it appears on the trial of an action for breach of contract that the defendant is jointly liable with another person who was not made a party, but who ought to be made a party defendant, the court of its own motion or upon application of either party, may add such interested stranger, and the cause shall not be defeated by reason of the nonjoinder in any event, as the rights of the parties actually before the court may be dealt with apart from the rights of the stranger. [Rule 41 of Sask. Jud. Rules (1911) applied.]

Lamb v. Lasby, 10 D.L.R. 624, 6 S.L.R. 192, 23 W.L.R. 548, 3 W.W.R. 1139.

Under Ontario r. 186, 192 (Con. Rules of 1897), an alleged agent may be joined in an action on a contract made by him, ostensibly on behalf of the principal, for the purpose of claiming against the alleged agent alternative relief in case it should be found that he made the contract on his own behalf. [Tate v. Natural Gas Co. 18 P.R. 82, followed; Andrews v. Forsythe, 7 O.L.R. 188, distinguished.]

Youngston v. Doty, 2 D.L.R. 839.

Under r. 86 of the Saskatchewan Supreme Court Rules (1911), it is proper to make an order ex parte to add as a party defendant in a foreclosure action a person who has, after order nisi for foreclosure and before final order, acquired the equity of redemption in the mortgaged premises; r. 42 as to notice of motion does not apply in such a case.

Wasson v. Harker, 7 D.L.R. 495, 22 W. L.R. 208.

A motion to add a party defendant may be refused, when there appears to be a substantial question as to the application of the Statute of Limitations, which might be affected by the order, unless the applicant consents to a term that the Statute of Limitations shall apply for the benefit of the added defendant up to the date of the order and not merely to the date of the writ against the original defendant.

Broom v. Toronto Junction, 3 D.L.R. 699, 22 O.W.R. 14, affirming 3 O.W.N. 1158.

JOINER — COVENANTS UNDER LEASE — SUBTENANTS — LANDLORD.

Where the plaintiff in the one action sues (a) his landlord for breach of covenant in a lease, and (b) his own subtenants to enjoin them against using certain water-closets on the demised premises; he thereby contravenes the Alberta rules against joining two causes of action of these distinct classes and will be put to his election and required to abandon the one to the other.

Allen v. Johnston, 13 D.L.R. 640, 25 W. L.R. 397, 5 W.W.R. 85.

DEFENDANTS — JOINER — COMMON INTEREST.

Although the relief sought against several defendants may vary, they may be joined as codefendants in the same action, under the Manitoba King's Bench Act, R. S.M. 1902, c. 40, r. 219, provided there be a question of law or of fact in which they have some common interest. [Andrews v. Forsythe, 7 O.L.R. 188, and Chandler v. G.T.R. Co., 5 O.L.R. 589, distinguished.]

First National Bank v. Avitt, 15 D.L.R. 82, 26 W.L.R. 425, 24 Man. L.R. 588, 5 W.W.R. 842, varying 14 D.L.R. 629, 26 W.L.R. 37, 5 W.W.R. 660, 663.

IMPROPER JOINER — UNDISCLOSED PRINCIPAL — ACTION AGAINST PRINCIPAL AND AGENT — NECESSITY OF ELECTION.

In an action against several defendants, one of whom, without disclosing the existence of his principal, acted as agent for the others in the transaction to which the action pertains, the plaintiff will be required to elect within a reasonable time whether he will treat principal or agent as the party with whom he dealt. [Smethurst v. Mitchell, 1 E. & E. 622, applied; Tate v. Natural Gas & Oil Co., 18 P.R. 82, distinguished.]

Phillips v. Lawson, 11 D.L.R. 453, 24 O.W.R. 255, 4 O.W.N. 1364.

JOINER — DEFENDANT — BOTH PERSONAL AND REPRESENTATIVE CAPACITY.

Under K.B. r. 243 (Man.), a plaintiff may join claims against the defendant whether as executrix de son tort or as administratrix, and claims against the defendant personally.

National Drug & Chemical Co. v. Astrof, 20 D.L.R. 14, 25 Man. L.R. 44, 7 W.W.R. 546.

JOINER OF DEFENDANTS — PRINCIPAL AND AGENT — LEAVE.

Currie v. Wreford, 27 D.L.R. 783, 9 S. L.R. 129, 34 W.L.R. 45, 10 W.W.R. 167.

DEFENDANTS — JOINER OF — BELIEF, JOINT, SEVERAL OR IN ALTERNATIVE.

Where the plaintiff has 2 causes of action against certain of the defendants, arising out of the same relationship, and, in respect to one of such causes of action, certain others of the defendants are jointly liable with their codefendants, the entire issue may be tried in a single action under rr. 196 and 197 of the King's Bench Act, R.S.M. 1913, c. 46, relating to relief whether joint, several or in the alternative, with proper protection against embarrassment or expense in any particular part of the trial in which some of the defendants may have no interest. [Stewart v. Teske, 20 Man. L.R. 167, followed.]

Stephens v. Cairns, 17 D.L.R. 743, 24 Man. L.R. 434, 28 W.L.R. 337.

IMPROPER JOINER — CONTRACTS — SERVICE OUT OF PROVINCE — DISCRETION.

British publishers of a reprint of English Law Reports issued a prospectus, prior to publication, estimating that each set would contain about 150 volumes of about 1,500 pages each. The sets were sold at a fixed price per volume. The plaintiffs, sellers of law books in the United States of America, made an agreement with the British publishers to take a certain number of sets, at a stipulated price per volume; and, as part of their plan for disposing of their sets, made an agreement with the defendants, doing business in Ontario, to sell them a certain number of sets, at a named price. This agreement was made on the faith of the prospectus. There was no contract between the publishers and the defendants. The publishers cut down the number of pages in the volumes, so that when 150 volumes had been issued, the reprint had not been completed, and it was expected that the sets would run to 200 volumes. When the volumes reached 150, the defendants refused to pay for the additional volumes; and, volumes 151-154 having been delivered, the plaintiffs sued the defendants for the price. The defendants pleaded that they had paid the full price, and asked for a declaration that they were entitled to the remaining volumes without further payment. An order was made, on the application of the plaintiffs, adding the British publishers as defendants, permitting service to be made upon them in Great Britain, and allowing the plaintiffs to amend their statement of claim by setting out the contracts and the contention of the defendants, and by claiming a declaration that, if the original defendants should succeed in their contention, the added defendants should be declared liable, for the reason that the prospectus was theirs, and the default, if any, theirs. This order was set aside on appeal, it being held that (the 2 contracts being quite distinct and between different parties) the added defendants were not proper parties to the action brought against the original defendants (r. 25 (1) (g)), applying the criterion of r. 67, relating to the joinder of parties and of causes of action. [Oesterreichische Export A.G. v. British Indemnity Ins. Co., [1914] 2 K.B. 747, distinguished.] Held, also, that the right to allow service out of Ontario is one which must be exercised in accordance with a sound judicial discretion; r. 67 (2) enables the court to deal with the case if the joinder is deemed oppressive or unfair; and no sound principle could justify the bringing in Ontario of an action by foreigners against defendants in Great Britain, upon a contract neither made nor to be performed within Ontario.

PLEADING — COMPANIES — EMPLOYEES OF COMPANY JOINING IN ACTION TO ENFORCE STATUTORY LIABILITY OF DIRECTORS FOR WAGES.

Employees of a company having separate claims for wages against it are not improperly joined in bringing an action against the directors of the company to enforce the statutory liability for the wages of workmen. [Risler v. Alberta Newspapers, [1919] 1 W.W.R. 740, distinguished.] Risler v. McTeer, [1919] 1 W.W.R. 746.

(§ II B—118)—PERSONAL INJURIES.

Where one is injured by the fall of a building, and a writ is issued against the supposed owner, and it is then discovered that the building is registered in the name of his wife, and she is added as a defendant, the plaintiff cannot be compelled, under the Supreme Court Rules (B.C.), to elect against which defendant he will proceed. There is no distinction between actions of contract and actions of tort in respect of the interpretation of the rules as to joinder of parties defendant. [*Bullock v. North v. Rogers, 5 D.L.R. 377, 17 B.C.R. 87, 1 W.W.R. 836.

ACTION FOR NEGLIGENCE — ELECTRIC COMPANY AND MUNICIPALITY.

The statement of claim set up that the defendant city had, for the purposes of its line of electric trolley cars, fastened a guy wire to a telegraph pole of the C.N.R. Co. on which the defendant electric light company had a high power wire, and by so doing caused the insulation upon the latter wire to be rubbed off, in consequence of which the plaintiff, while working on the pole in the discharge of his duty, received the injury complained of. The plaintiff claimed also that the electric light company was liable to him for negligence in maintaining its high power wire void of insulation, thus causing the plaintiff's injury. The 2 defendants were not charged with any joint tort, nor were they charged separately with the same wrongful act, but each was charged with a separate and distinct act or omission:—Held, that the local judge at Brandon was right in dismissing an application of the defendant electric light company to compel the plaintiff to elect as to which defendant he would proceed against, and that, under rr. 196, 197 of the King's Bench Act, the plaintiff might have both his complaints tried in the same action. WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT — CLAIM AGAINST SUBCONTRACTOR AND PRINCIPAL CONTRACTOR — JOINDER OF PARTIES.

Where a plaintiff suing for damages for personal injuries elects to proceed independently of the Workmen's Compensation Act, he cannot make any claim under the Act (except by virtue of s. 8); consequently when so proceeding against a subcontractor, his immediate employer, he cannot join a claim against the principal contractor under the Act. Both contractors may be sued in an action at common law, where such action arises out of a series of occurrences for which one or both are responsible and with which both are connected the plaintiff being uncertain which is liable. DEFENDANTS — JOINDER — COMMON INTEREST — ADDING PARTIES DEFENDANT.

In an action to set aside certain conveyances and mortgages alleged to be fraudulent and void as against the creditors of the transferor, the transferees and mortgagees under the deeds which are challenged have a sufficiently common interest with the transferor to authorize their being joined with him as codefendants, the fraud, fraudulent conduct, and fraudulent intent to hinder, defeat or delay, being the underlying principle of the action as to all of them. ADDING AS PARTY DEFENDANT THE THIRD PARTY.

Under subs. (h) of s. 16 of the Judicature Act (Ont.) 1913, c. 19, R.S.O. 1914, c. 56, empowering the court to grant full equitable as well as legal remedies in any action pending before it to ensure a complete and final determination, the court may, at the trial, add as a substantive defendant, a person already before the court as a third party brought in by the defendant by a third party notice claiming indemnity or relief over, if the third party is substantially a defendant and the justice of the case requires that he should be added to enable complete relief to be awarded.

BRINGING IN PARTIES — JOINT AND SEVERAL NEGLIGENCE — ADDING PARTIES.

An owner who employs an architect to superintend the erection of a building on his land adjoining a public highway, and who through the agency of the architect employs land surveyors to survey and designate the site for the building, is not entitled, in defending the architect's suit for his fees, to counterclaim for damages on the ground that the building was erected so as to encroach upon the public highway owing to the negligence of the architect, the builder and the surveyor, or in the alternative from the negligence of some of them, and to bring them all in as parties defendant to the counterclaim unless he so counterclaims as to shew a contractual relationship or connection between the added defendants and the original plaintiff. INJUNCTION — SUBPURCHASER AS NECESSARY PARTY — NEW TRIAL.

Upon the hearing of appeals by both parties from the judgment of Lennox, J. (34 D.L.R. 484, 38 O.L.R. 488), attention was called to the fact that the Dominion Sugar Co. was not a party to the action, although its contract with the defendants was attacked by the plaintiffs. After consideration, the court directed a new trial, with liberty to the plaintiffs to add the sugar company as a party defendant; and it was:—Held, that the action was not properly constituted; that the case came within r. 134, for, without the presence of the sugar company, it was impossible to say that the court could effectively and completely adjudicate upon the questions involved in the action, and if the sugar company was not added the court would be prevented from effectively doing justice. ACTION BY TOWN SOLICITOR — RIGHT OF MAYOR TO INTERVENE — CONDITION AS TO COSTS.

In an action brought against an incorporated town by a firm of solicitors, of which the town solicitor is a member, in respect of a claim which a majority of the town council are in favour of paying, but which is resisted by the mayor as illegal and unauthorized, the fact that the town is inops consilii, by reason of the interest of the town solicitor, is a reason for admitting the mayor to intervene and defend the action on behalf of himself and other dissenting ratepayers, if any, subject to the penalty of payment of costs. The liability as a ratepayer to pay a proportion of the amount involved in a claim against a municipal corporation is such a special interest as to give the mayor a locus standi on the hearing of the application for leave to intervene and defend. The mayor, as such and as a ratepayer, may properly be given leave to intervene for the purpose of defending an action against a town where it is a reasonable assumption that the council's refusal to defend is not a bona fide exercise of discretion. VII. c. 17), defends as a third party pursuant to notice, the party giving such notice is not entitled to examine the third party for discovery unless and until, as a condition precedent, an application for directions has been made under those rules. Warren v. THIRD PARTIES — INTERVENTION.

Upon a motion for an injunction against a registrar of deeds to restrain him from registering a plan, the proponders of the plan may be heard by leave of the judge, guided by analogy under Ont. Con. Rr. 3, 1086, and if the motion fails may be entitled to costs as against the applicant.

INTERVENTION — EXPROPRIATION PROCEEDINGS — INTEREST ACQUIRED PENDENTE LITE.

A person having an unregistered interest in land in Alberta within the knowledge of a railway company at the time of the service of the "notice to treat" in expropriation proceedings and registering his interest after such proceedings having been commenced must be treated as a purchaser pendente lite because of the provisions of the Land Titles Act (Alta.) 1906, c. 24, but may be allowed to intervene and be added as a party to the arbitration proceedings.

INTERVENTION — JUDICIAL PROCEEDING — JURISDICTION OF COURT DETERMINED BY AMOUNT IN CONTROVERSY ON INTERVENTION.

An intervention is a "judicial" proceeding within the meaning of s. 46 of the Supreme Court Act. The amount in controversy upon the intervention is the amount that governs the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court of Canada to hear an appeal. (King v. Dupuis, 28 Can. S.C.R. 388; Côté v. THIRD PARTY NOTICE — LEAVE TO DEFEND.

An application by a third party for leave to defend, made several months after service of the notice on him, without any affidavit shewing a defence, and after the defendant has satisfied the plaintiff's judgment, should be refused, and an application by the defendant for the relief claimed in the third party notice should be granted.

BRINGING IN — INTERVENTION — BOND GUARANTEED.

In 1909, the proceeds derived from the sale of certain bonds of the A. & G.W.R. Co., guaranteed by the province, were deposited in certain banks in the name of the Provincial Treasurer, to be paid out, in a specified manner, upon construction of the railway. By statute of the provincial legislature, c. 9 of 1910, the railway company were declared to have made default and the moneys so held by the banks, of which $6,000,000 and interest were held by the defendant bank, were declared "to form part of the general revenue funds of the province of Alberta, free and clear of any claim thereon or thereto by the A. & G.W.R. Co., their successors and assigns," and directed to be paid over to the Provincial Treasurer. The defendants having refused to pay the money on demand, an action to recover it was brought in the name of His Majesty and the Provincial Treasurer. After having entered an appearance, but before delivering a defence, the defendant bank applied to have the railway company and the Canada West Construction Co. added as defendants. The application was heard by Beck, J., who, notwithstanding the opposition of counsel for the plaintiffs, ordered the parties named to be added as defendants by the plaintiffs, who were required to amend their statement of claim accordingly. The plaintiffs appealed from that order, and the added defendants applied direct to the court en banc for an order adding them as parties defendant and ordering the writ of summons and statement of claim to be amended accordingly:—Held, on the appeal that the order of Beck, J., adding the defendants should be affirmed with the omission therefrom of the direction to the plaintiffs to amend their writ and statement of claim and the substitution thereof of a direction to the added defendants to file within 6 days a defence showing their respective interests and the facts upon which such interests were alleged to rest. In view of the fact that the added defendants had at one time a beneficial interest in the money sued for and the statement of their counsel that they still had a claim to all or a portion of such moneys and that the original defendant was only a trustee for them, they should be added as defendants under r. 33 and the order of Beck, J., should stand with the variation above referred to. Rule 33 did not furnish a proper ground for adding the defendants. Per Beck, J.:—The order appealed from was rightly made on proper reasons and those reasons apply with greater force to the present application. Held, also, that as the Crown neither gives nor accepts costs, there should be no costs of the appeal or of the application. [Johnson v. Reg. [1904], A.C. 817, 73 L.J.P.C. 113, followed.] On the application of the added defendants for an order adding them as parties:—Held, that for the reasons expressed on the appeal from the order of Beck, J., r. 35 was not intended for the protection of parties in the position of the applicants, but they should be added under r. 33; it appearing that the fact that the defence was not disclosed might be disregarded in the present case and the plaintiffs would not be prejudiced by the order, there was no reason for amending the statement of claim. It is unnecessary to deal with the present application owing to the view taken by the majority of the court on the appeal.

Polson Iron Works v. Main, 4 O.W.N. 648, 23 O.W.R. 786.

RATEPAYER INTERVENING.

Since a municipal corporation represents the common and general interest of all its ratepayers in litigation one of the latter has a right to intervene in an action against the corporation only in so far as he personally suffers a real prejudice by reason of having a special interest, distinct from that of the general body of ratepayers which interest is menaced or affected, compromised or capable of being compromised by the corporation's fault. This interest does not exist, nor the prejudice arise, from the fact that the corporation filed a declaration in the action submitting itself to the court if the intervenant does not attack the declaration as the result of fraud or collusion. In the absence of such allegation it will be presumed that the corporation, in making the declaration, acted with entire good faith in the interest of itself and all the ratepayers.

PRACTICE — MUNICIPAL LAW — DAMAGES FOR OBSTRUCTION IN STREET — THIRD PARTY BROUGHT IN.

A municipality, sued for damages caused by an obstruction in one of its streets, which, according to a special law, forces the plaintiff to bring into the case the party whom it points out to him as being responsible for the fact complained of, must bear the costs both of the action to bring in the third party and of the defence to the action, when the judgment rejects the action as to the third party and declares that the latter has wrongly been pointed out as above described.

DILATORY EXCEPTION — ACTION IN WARRANTY — ACCIDENTS TO WORKMEN — THIRD PARTY IN WARRANTY — C.C.P. 182 — R.S.Q. s. 7334.

A defendant sued under the Workmen's Compensation Act (Que.) may, by way of a dilatory exception, call in warranty another party who is not in the case, without thereby causing any prejudice to the plaintiff. The question is more difficult when the defendant, plaintiff in warranty, moves to unite the cases.

If trustees sued plead that the sum claimed from them does not belong to the plaintiff but to a third person, the court, before judgment, will order the plaintiff to add such person in the cause.

Campbell v. Nelles, 19 Que. P.R. 13.

SOLICITOR AND CLIENT—FEES—EXECUTION—INTERVENTION.

Whoever is interested in the process of a suit can intervene in order to protect his rights. So in a case where an execution was issued, and a seizure of movable property made by an advocate distraining for his costs, his client, defendant in the suit, can contest the opposition made to such seizure by a third party, seeing that it is to the interest of such contestant to see that his advocate is paid. The proper proceeding in the above case would be intervention, but the court will not reject the contestation for that reason considering that the contestant, being the defendant, is already a party in the suit.

Irahan v. Painchaud, 53 Que. S.C. 445.

INTERVENTION—ASSIGNEE—SAISIE-ARRÊT.

A party who intervenes in a saisie-arrêt after judgment, to demand the annulment of an assignment of a debt, may bring into the cause the assignee of the debt by serving on him, without permission of the judge, his intervention accompanied by a writ of summons. The stamps which should be placed on such writ of summons are those of an action of the amount of the claim of the intervenant. A party who becomes intervenant in a seizure after judgment, and demands by his conclusions that the transfer of the debt of the plaintiff be set aside, should bring the assignees into court by means of a writ of summons and not by a petition.

The Attorney-General is not a necessary party to an action in which the public outside of the municipality have no interest. [Gallagher v. Armstrong, 3 A.L.R. 443, followed.]

INTERVENTION OF ATTORNEY-GENERAL—ATTACKING CONSTITUTIONALITY OF ORDER-IN-COUNCIL.

The Attorney-General is not a necessary party to an action involving an attack upon the constitutionality of an order-in-council.

Shives Lumber Co. v. Chaleur Bay Mills, 25 D.L.R. 262, 24 Que. K.B. 408.

(§ III—123)—FORECLOSURE—INTERVENTION OF CREDITORS TO CONTEST SECURITY.

In a foreclosure action to enforce the securities of bondholders against a company in liquidation, an unsecured creditor cannot, either under r. 28 or r. 40, be allowed to be added as a party defendant for the purpose of contesting the validity of the deed of trust.

Capital Trust Co. v. Yellowhead Pass Coal & Coke Co., 27 D.L.R. 25, 9 A.L.R. 463, 33 W.L.R. 873, 9 W.W.R. 1275.

CREDITORS.

In an action by a widow against the heirs of her husband, who had died insolvent, to recover the amount of a donation in contemplation of death made to her in their marriage contract, a creditor of the deceased, claiming under a lease for rent and other privileged debts, has no status to contest the conclusions of the plaintiff's declaration and his intervention for that purpose will be rejected.

Racine v. Meloche, 41 Que. S.C. 392.

(§ III—124)—INDEMNITY—RELIEF OVER—THIRD PARTY NOTICE BETWEEN DEFENDANTS.

The indemnity in respect of which a third party notice may be served by a defendant upon his codefendant must be against some liability imposed upon the defendant serving the notice in favour of the plaintiff and not one against a mere failure of the plaintiff to pay him any costs which might be ordered.

Melvin v. McNamara, 17 D.L.R. 18, 28 W.L.R. 223, 7 A.L.R. 368, varying 16 D.L.R. 65, 26 W.L.R. 825.

A third party notice cannot be supported as upon a contract of indemnity where the defendants are sued upon a promissory note given for the price of a stallion to the third party and seek to claim against him a breach of warranty of the stallion; any damages to which the defendants may be entitled in that regard as against the warrantor are for breach of contract and not of a contract to indemnify. A third party notice against the payee of a promissory note will not be set aside in respect of a claim by the makers sued upon a promissory note by the endorsee thereof, that the note should not be used or negotiated by the payee unless and until the had obtained the signature of certain other parties as joint makers thereof.

The right to invoke the third party procedure exists whenever the plaintiff's claim against the defendant, if successful, will result in the defendant having a claim against the third party to recover from him the damages which he has been compelled to pay to the plaintiff. [Rule 209, Ont. Con. Rules of Practice (1897), construed.] A carrier sued for conversion of goods by the consignee in respect of an alleged neglect of duty on the part of the auctioneer employed by the carrier to sell the goods for unpaid charges, and for alleged failure to account for all of the goods sold, may properly bring in the auctioneer as a third party and claim indemnity and relief over against him under Ont. R. 209 (C.R. 1897).

A person brought into the action by a "third party notice" upon a claim of indemnity made by the principal defendant against him should obtain leave to enter a conditional appearance on defending such indemnity claim, otherwise he will be taken as waiving any right he may have to object to the local jurisdiction.

Grocers' Wholesale Co. v. Bostock, 4 D.L.R. 213, 3 O.W.N. 1588, 22 O.W.R. 786, affirming 22 O.L.R. 130.

BRINGING IN—INDEMNITY AND RELIEF OVER—THIRD PARTY AGAINST FOURTH PARTY.

A third party brought in by the defendant under a "third party notice" upon a claim for indemnity or relief over may in turn bring in a fourth party by a similar notice to answer a claim for indemnity or relief over made by the third party against him, by virtue of order 16, r. 54a of the English Practice Rules as amended July, 1911, made applicable in Alberta by the Alberta Judicature Ordinance and its amendments.

(§ III—124a) — INTERVENTION — RATEPAYER ATTACKING MUNICIPAL CONTRACTS.

Not merely the interest of a ratepayer but a special and distinct interest is required to entitle a person to demand that a contract awarded by a municipality be cancelled, unless it be established that the transaction at issue is fraudulent or ultra vires; the interest of an unsuccessful bidder, to whom the contract would not be awarded if set aside, is not sufficient as entitling him to intervene. IV. Substitution.

(§ IV—125) — SUBSTITUTION—STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS.

Where a plaintiff seeks to amend by substituting plaintiffs other than himself, it can only be done on terms that the action shall be deemed to be brought as of the date of the amendment, and time under any statute of limitations affecting the case shall be deemed to have run up to the date of the amendment.

Luciani v. Toronto Construction Co., 10 D.L.R. 551, 4 O.W.N. 1073, 24 O.W.R. 381.

A plaintiff's right of action is not barred by the Statute of Limitations, where he brings his action within the statutory period, though since the cause of action arose he has taken his son into partnership and mistakenly brought his action in the names of himself and his son as partners, the style of cause and record being subsequently amended to name him personally as plaintiff though such amendment was allowed after the statutory period. [Ferguson v. Bryans, 15 Man. L.R. 170, distinguished.]

CONSENT—PARTNERSHIP—“LIMITED.”

An action was begun by the H. Co., Ltd., based on an agreement made with the H. Co., a partnership 2 days before the limited company began business. The District Court judge, assuming to act under Court E. 32, struck out the word “limited” and judgment was entered for the plaintiff in default of appearance. Held, that the course taken by the judge amounted to substituting a new plaintiff for the original one, which could not be done without the consent in writing of the new company.

PARTITION.

I. RIGHT TO; WHO MAY HAVE, AND IN WHAT.

II. PROCEDURE.

I. Right to; who may have, and in what.

(§ I—1)—SECOND ACTION.

A party to partition proceedings cannot bring a second action in partition as long as the nullity of the first proceedings has not been judicially established. The action to annul should be brought against all the copartitioners.

Maber v. Archambault, 42 D.L.R. 213, 56 Can. S.C.R. 488, affirming 25 Que. K.B. 436.

“COMMON”—RIGHT OF PASTURAGE AND FUEL—CO-OWNERSHIP—SERVITUDE.

Rights of pasturage and cutting fuel formerly granted by a seigneur to his serfs, in common upon a piece of land called “common,” are rights of user or real servitude, but are not rights of undivided co-ownership; such rights are not sufficient to base thereon an action for partition of such common by the heir of the seigneur against the representatives of the original grantees.

Dutremblay v. Lanouette, 53 Que. S.C. 6. WIDOW ENTITLED TO DOWER.

Rule 615 (Con. Rules, Ont.) applies only to persons who can compel partition, and until a widow decides to take under the Dower Act, and not under the Devolution of Estates Act, she is not such a person, and there is no power to make any order under this rule. A widow although entitled to dower out of the whole of her deceased husband's lands, has only a right of action to have her dower assigned to her (upon which her right of possession arises) and cannot “compel partition” under r. 615, this being limited to those who have a right to possession of their shares in lands.

Morrison v. Morrison, 34 D.L.R. 677, 39 O.L.R. 163, reversing 38 O.L.R. 362. [See 11 O.W.N. 359, 421.]

(§ I—2)—RIGHT OF HEIR—LOSS OF USUFRUCT ESTATE BY SECOND MARRIAGE.

Notwithstanding a donation of the bare ownership made by a surviving consort, one of the heirs has the right of action to demand partition of the usufruct of the property during the wife's life which she has herself lost by her second marriage.

Labelle v. Labelle, 47 Que. S.C. 385.

ACTION BY UNIVERSAL LEGATEE—REFORMATION OF ACCOUNTS.

Action for partition, for an account or for reformation of accounts and partition, brought by a universal legatee against the colegatees, has as its ulterior object the payment to the plaintiff of the part which should come to her in the succession of the testator after the winding-up of the estate, and all the conclusions to this effect should and can be taken in one and the same action. It is immaterial that the conclusions demanding the liquidation are the main conclusions of the action, and that the condemnation to payment of the party in possession is a subsidiary conclusion or vice versa.

Laberge v. Laberge, 48 Que. S.C. 276.

VENDOR—REDEMPTION.

A vendor with a right to redeem cannot bring an action for partition so long as he has not exercised his right.

II. Procedure.

(§ II—16)—PARTIES—EXECUTOR.

An executor cannot bring an action for partition and sale.

Villeneuve v. Morin, 15 Que. P.R. 331.

COMMUNITY—LIQUIDATION—PARTIES.

Although, generally speaking, a coheir cannot ask the division of assets belonging to a community and attack the title of a third party in possession of an immovable property which has belonged to him, unless he has previously obtained the winding-up of that community, yet such winding-up is not necessary when the immovable property is the sole asset of the community. In an action for compulsory partition and licitation of an immovable property, which is the sole asset of a community, if the plaintiff is offered a sum equal to the value of his share as established by a report of experts, less his proportion of the debts, the action for licitation must be at his own expense.

Pérodeau v. Quéry, 27 Que. K.B. 524, affirming 52 Que. S.C. 532. [See also 49 Que. S.C. 139.]

(§ II—20)—QUESTION OF TITLE.

On a bill in equity for partition the plaintiff must prove title in himself to an undivided part of the property, but if his title is denied, the equity jurisdiction is not ousted merely because the title in dispute is a legal and not an equitable one.

Durant v. Huestis, 1 D.L.R. 786, 10 E. L.R. 423.

(§ II—25)—AGREEMENT AS TO LAND BY TENANTS IN COMMON—INTENTION TO SELL—JUDGMENT FOR PARTITION OR SALE—POSTPONEMENT OF PROCEEDINGS UNDER, UNTIL EXPIRY OF PERIOD MENTIONED IN AGREEMENT.

Morris v. Morris, 10 O.W.N. 287, 11 O. W.N. 37.

(§ II—30)—SALE BY AUCTION—SEQUESTRATION.

A sequestration will be ordered in an action for partition by auction sale to receive the revenues and profits of the immovable of which partition is demanded.

Present v. Sigal, 17 Que. P.R. 478.

SALE—THIRD PARTY.

Articles 746, 747, C.C. (Que.) apply only to a sale or other conveyance made to one of the co-owners or copartitioners and having as an object the cessation of the division between them, but not to a sale made to a third party. A sale by heirs of an undivided immovable to a third party, and the partition among them in equal shares of the price of the sale, is not equivalent to a partition of the immovable so as to discharge a hypothec taken by a third party upon the undivided quarter of one of them.

Banque St. Jean v. Nolin, 51 Que. S.C. 138.

PARTITION ACTION—INSCRIPTION IN LAW—SCARCITY OF MONEY—EXPERT'S REPORT—C.C.P. 191—1040, 1045—C.C. QUE. 689.

A defendant, sued for partition and sale, cannot ask for the dismissal of the action by alleging in his plea that, at the time, the market is very heavy and money very scarce; such allegations should be dismissed by an inscription in law. A motion to delay the partition may not be made until the report from the experts charged with visiting and valuing the properties is made, and establishes that such properties cannot advantageously be divided, in order to prevent the court from ordering such properties to be immediately sold by auction.

Greenford v. Stern, 16 Que. P.R. 169.

POSTPONEMENT OF SALE.

The fact that the condition of the financial and real estate market prevents undivided immovables from being sold at a proper price is not a sufficient reason for the court to postpone the sale.

Effect of war on alien partnerships and firms: 23 D.L.R. 375, 378.

I. Nature; creation; what constitutes.

(§ I—1) — EXISTENCE—ALLEGED ADMISSIONS—PROFIT SHARING AGREEMENT BETWEEN EMPLOYER AND EMPLOYEE.

Whether or not a partnership should be declared to have been substituted by an alleged oral agreement for a prior profit-sharing agreement between an employer and employee made under ss. 3, 4 of the Master and Servant Act, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 153, is to be determined on conflicting evidence, on the credit to be given the witnesses and from the surrounding circumstances and the conduct of the parties; and it is not conclusive evidence of the existence of a partnership that the defendant in a letter written to the plaintiff employee referred to their arrangement as a "partnership" and later served upon him concurrently with a notice of dismissal a "notice of dissolution of partnership;" it is still open to the court to find that the word "partnership" as so used was not used in the legal technical sense where the evidence shows that the parties had not reached an agreement as to the contribution by each nor as to the disposal of the capital invested in the business to which the employee had contributed nothing.

Donkin v. Disher, 16 D.L.R. 610, 27 W.L.R. 428, 5 W.W.R. 870, 49 Can. S.C.R. 60, reversing 12 D.L.R. 405, 18 B.C.R. 230, 24 W.L.R. 955, 4 W.V.R. 1365.

Re Hicks and Pringle, 12 O.W.N. 54.

AGENCY—CONTRACT OF EMPLOYMENT.

An agreement by which one party agrees to make a sale of certain animals, to give them care, and to be engaged also in the sale of milk and cream on a farm belonging to the other party, in consideration of the remuneration of a sum equal to half the net profits realized, is not a partnership but an agreement of mandate, or of lease and hire of work. If one so hired takes a part of the animals and appropriates them, he will be deemed a purchaser and must pay their value.

Beique v. Gaston, 54 Que. S.C. 162.

CONTRACT — DONATION INTER VIVOS — ACTIONS.

An agreement between the owner of an immovable and a third party with regard to a lot of land held to be a deed of gift inter vivos by the owner (which would, however, be void, having been made under private seal and not registered) rather than a partnership deed. Nevertheless, where the parties have treated it as a partnership, the court should consider it as such. A settlement of accounts of a dissolved partnership should, as a rule, be made by an action pro socio, when such accounts are uncertain and undetermined. In such case an action brought by one of the members for a fixed amount of damages will be dismissed.

Jasmin v. Jasmin, 24 Rev. Leg. 411.

CLUB PROPERTY—EXECUTION.

An association of persons who, for their personal amusement exclusively, bought a house in the country, calling it "The Dominion Fish & Game Club," does not constitute a partnership. Each owns his own individual share, which can only be seized by way of execution, not by garnishment.

Robertson v. Guilbault, 54 Que. S.C. 343.

CONTRACT FOR—FOX RANCH—AGREEMENT.

Gordon v. Hopgood, 13 E.L.R. 69.

(§ 1-3)—AGREEMENT BETWEEN PHYSICIANS EMPLOYMENT FOLLOWED BY PARTNERSHIP.

Where an agreement between two physicians provided for the employment of one by the other for 2 years and that thereupon a partnership would be entered into upon a fixed basis for division of profits, and where, after the expiration of the 2 years, they continued to work together for 6 months, but without having agreed upon the partnership articles contemplated by the original agreement, in default of which there was to be a division of the practice and an arbitration to settle differences, it will be presumed that a partnership, at least at the will of the parties, existed for the period which had elapsed following the employment up to the time when the parties ceased to practise together.

Mader v. Harrison; Harrison v. Mader, 9 D.L.R. 385, 47 N.S.R. 1, 13 E.L.R. 101.

SHARING PROFITS—JOINT INTEREST.

An agreement, whereby the owner of land transfers an undivided interest therein, and in all the profits arising therefrom to another, who undertakes to provide funds for laying out the land into lots and for other incidental expenses preparatory to offering the lots for sale, and to devote a reasonable amount of his time to the affairs of the property, constitutes the parties partners in respect of the land. The sharing of gross returns does not, in itself, create a partnership, whether the persons sharing such returns have or have not a joint or common right or interest in any property from which or from the use of which the returns are derived.

Galbraith v. McDougall, 11 D.L.R. 133, 24 O.W.R. 232, 4 O.W.N. 919, varying 6 D.L.R. 232, 23 O.W.R. 928.

FAILURE TO CARRY OUT VERBAL UNDERTAKING.

A verbal undertaking given by a prospector who had made a discovery of a coal deposit, that he would stake out 2 mining claims in addition to one for himself and a verbal agreement that, after the staking of these three claims, they should be amalgamated and worked on a partnership basis, does not create a partnership between the prospector and the 2 parties with whom the verbal agreement was made, in respect of the single claim which the prospector staked for himself, where he failed to stake claims for the others; all that was created was an agreement for a future partnership on certain conditions which were never complied with.

FARMING ON SHARES—PURCHASES.

The fact that the owner of a farm enters into an arrangement with another person whereby the latter is to work the farm on shares, the owner supplying the money needed to carry on the farming operations and the profits to be divided between the two parties, does not constitute the parties thereto partners so as to create a liability on the part of the owner for purchases made by the one working the farm on his own credit, though for the benefit of the joint enterprise.

The word "contracting," as used in the phrase "trading, manufacturing, contracting or mining," contained in the Partnership Act (Alta.) 1908, c. 5 as to registration of firm and company names, is to be interpreted in its popular sense as referring to what is usually known as a contracting business (e.g., building or railway contracting work) and does not include the making of contracts for the sale or purchase of real estate either on one's own account or as a broker or agent.

A contract whereby one person is to manage the store of another for a fixed amount weekly plus a quarter share of the net profits and the circumstance that the names of both were joined as a firm name in operating the store business, disclose a partnership.

Orchard v. Dykeman, 21 D.L.R. 106, 43 N.B.R. 181.

JOINT INTEREST IN CROP.

An agreement whereby one is to receive one-third of the grain for money advanced for raising the crop, does not create a partnership, but merely a joint ownership of the crop.

Boyer agrees to rent a shop in the city of Montreal and to carry on in it the shoe business with the stock furnished by the said A. Soucier; it is agreed that all expenses being paid the 2 parties will share the net profits realized by the said Boyer in the said business. Signed in duplicate at Montreal this 11th of September, 1911. This agreement is good for 7 months." constitutes a partnership between the parties. Dupont v. Boyer, 47 Que. S.C. 503.

Garbutt v. Marshall, 17 W.L.R. 285.

ESSENTIALS—CONTRIBUTION—LIABILITY.

It is of the essence of a partnership that each member should contribute thereto whatever has been agreed upon. An agreement, by which several persons place a limit upon the conditions under which they are eventually to participate in the proposed enterprise, does not constitute a contract of partnership, if, by tacit understanding, the enterprise is abandoned before one of the partners has contributed his portion thereto. Therefore, as between the intended partners, there is no liability for accounting or for damages.

Martineau v. Stewart, 25 Que. K.B. 289.

FUTURE FORMAL AGREEMENT.

When parties hold negotiations for the forming of a partnership and agree that the terms thereof shall be set out in a formal instrument, so long as the latter is not drawn up, colourable conduct or relations between them, if contradictory or inconsistent, cannot establish the existence of a completed contract.

Gabias v. Baigne, 22 Que. K.B. 326.

INTENTION—PARTNERSHIP AGREEMENT.

There is a partnership contract when all the essential elements of such a contract are found in the agreement between the parties, and when it appears that their intention was to form a partnership. Thus, all the elements of a partnership contract are contained in the words "I take back Mr. G. from now to July 1, 1907 to buy horses, upon condition of dividing the profit and of 40 cts. a day for board. And he shall not force me to return him the money previously deposited, unless trade should be had or unless he should require the money for something else; Mr. G. must deposit $1,500 within 15 days from now, and I shall have to supply the money to buy horses of his choice." After the dissolution of a partnership, the partners cannot exercise their remedies against each other concerning the partnership business, otherwise than by way of an action pro socio and to render account. The party who fails must bear the costs, unless the court, for special reasons, orders otherwise, and if the Trial Court does not follow that general principle without giving in its judgment any reasons for doing so, such judgment will be reversed on appeal.

Guillemette v. Marien, 46 Que. S.C. 507.

II. Rights and powers of partners.

Authority as to endorsement of note, see Bills and Notes, III A—55.

(§ II—5)—AUTHORITY OF PARTNER—AGENT.

Under s. 7 of the Partnership Act (R.S.S. c. 143), a partner is an agent for the firm, for the purpose of the business of the partnership, but it is only his acts done for carrying on, in the usual way, the business of the kind carried on, that bind the firm and his partners.

USUAL WAY OF BUSINESS—CHATTEL MORTGAGE — DOCUMENT UNNECESSARILY SEALED—IGNORANCE OF PARTNERSHIP—POWER TO PLEDGE ASSETS.

Defendants carried on partnership as hotel-keepers under the name of W. H. Murr, one of the defendants, who had entire management of the business. Murr gave a chattel mortgage under seal to R. & L. for $2,000 charged on the partnership property. Murr though unaware of this knew that the borrowing of money was necessary. R. & L. were unaware that Murr was a partner until after the dissolution:—Held, that the "usual way of carrying on business" is a question of fact. Held, that ignorance on the part of R. & L. that Murr was a partner did not relieve him. Held, that power to borrow money implies power to pledge assets. Held, that though Murr had no power to bind Murr by deed, a sealed chattel mortgage bound Murr inasmuch as sealing was superfluous.
Can. Dig.—111.

Western Commercial Co. v. Murr, 29 W.L.R. 945.

(§ II—6)—PARTNERS—IMPLIED AUTHORITY—BILLS AND NOTES—ABUSE OF TRUST—LIABILITY OF CO-PARTNER.

In an ordinary trading partnership a partner has implied authority to draw, accept, make and endorse bills of exchange and promissory notes in the name of the firm. Even though the partner exercising such power abuses his trust for his individual benefit, his co-partner will be bound unless the holder is chargeable with notice of the facts. *

Larue v. Molsons Bank, 49 D.L.R. 455, 28 Que. K.B. 203, affirming 53 Que. S.C. 524.

AS TO BILLS, NOTES AND CHECKS.

A note given by one partner in the name of the firm for the payment of a private debt of his own due the payee, who took the same in good faith, cannot be enforced by the latter against the partnership unless he shews that it was in fact given with the authority of the other partners.

(§ II—7)—RIGHTS AND POWERS OF PARTNERS—CONTRACTS.

The authority given by law to a member of a partnership is authority to do only such things as are necessary for carrying on the partnership.

Kay v. Chapman, 11 D.L.R. 726, 6 S.L.R. 69, 24 W.L.R. 80, 4 W.W.R. 448.

POWER TO BORROW—SCOPE OF FIRM'S BUSINESS.

The power to borrow money in the capacity of partner cannot be validly exercised where the transaction appears to be foreign to the firm's business.

Tai Sing v. Chim Cam, 27 D.L.R. 528, 23 B.C.R. 8.

AUTHORITY—PURCHASE OF PROPERTY—CANCELLATION — EXAGGERATION—C.C.QUE. ARTS. 992, 1506, 1522, 1727.

When persons having in view the formation of a partnership to acquire real estate for speculative purposes, send one of their number to look at the property, with instructions to make a report to them; if the report is substantially true and made in good faith it is sufficient to cover their liability; and errors of fact, exaggeration as to value, distance, or standing of the neighbourhood, are not grounds for an action to dissolve the partnership and cancel the deed of sale. These errors and exaggerations do not constitute a substantial error which in itself would be a cause for voiding the contracts.

Ruel v. Roy, 46 Que. S.C. 422.

CONTRACTS—SURETYSHIP—REPAYMENT OF DEBT TO INDIVIDUAL MEMBER.

An agreement between 2 partners by which, after the partition of the assets, a sum of $50,000, loaned by the partnership to a third party, is made payable to one of the partners, the other one guaranteeing that the sum would be paid within a certain time, with interest, is a contract of suretyship as between the surety and the debtor, but, as to both partners, the contract relates to a division of the partnership assets. A resolution of a board of directors acknowledging their indebtedness of a sum of money, payable at a certain date, to one member of a partnership, is not an undertaking to pay it to another partner to whom it was transferred.

Howard v. Findlay, 51 Que. S.C. 375.

(§ II—8)—REAL ESTATE—ORAL AGREEMENT — PERSONAL PROPERTY — STATUTE OF FRAUDS.

As between partners an oral agreement concerning an interest in real estate owned by the partnership is valid. The real estate becomes, for the purposes of the partnership, personal property and not being real estate nor deliverable goods and chattels neither s. 4 nor s. 17 of the Statute of Frauds applies. [Gray v. Smith, 43 Ch. D. 208, distinguished.]

Geffen v. Lavin, 49 D.L.R. 23, [1919] 3 W.W.R. 498.

DESTRUCTION OF PROPERTY OF—RIGHTS AND POWERS.

It is within the scope of a partner's authority to authorize the burning of partnership property which in his opinion is of no further value.

DISPOSAL OF PARTNERSHIP FUNDS AND PROPERTY.

An assignment of the book debts due a partnership by one of the 2 partners composing the firm in the absence of the other is valid as to the other partner, even though the partner executing the assignment was by agreement between him and the other member of the firm without power in that regard, if the assignee was without knowledge of the lack of authority on the part of the partner who executed the assignment.

Tebb v. Baird; Tebb v. Hoberlin Bros. & Co.; Hoberlin Bros. & Co. v. Tebb, 3 D.L.R. 161, 3 O.W.N. 952.

POWERS OF PARTNERS—SELLING PARTNERSHIP PROPERTY—PERSONAL SCHEME.

Where a partnership for a speculative purchase in block and sale in parcels of certain partnership lands rapidly rising in value subsists; and where one of the terms of the partnership agreement is that none of the land in question shall be sold without the consent of each of the partners; and where one of the partners, who holds the legal estate in trust for himself and his copartners, acting in collusion with another of his partners as a coventurer in a transaction for their sole benefit to speculate in such partnership lands, effects a so-called sale without the unanimous consent of the partners, the transaction is illegal and wrongful from its inception. The provision of subs. 8 of s. 27 of the Partnership Act, R.S.B.C. 1911, c. 175, that any difference arising as to ordinary matters connected with the partnership business may be decided by a majority of the partners, is not applicable.

Gordon v. Holland; Holland v. Gordon, 10 D.L.R. 734, 23 W.L.R. 738, varying 2 D. L.R. 327, 20 W.L.R. 887, 2 W.W.R. 158.

DISPOSAL OF PARTNERSHIP PROPERTY—PURCHASER FROM ONE PARTNER—CONVEYANCE—INQUIRY.

A purchaser of a partnership business as a going concern, who makes the purchase from one of 2 partners either with knowledge that the vendor had no authority from the other partner to sell, or without making diligent inquiry as to the existence of such authority, is guilty of conversion of the interest of the other partner. A representation made to a prospective purchaser by one of 2 partners that he had a power of attorney from the other partner to sell the entire business of the partnership as a going concern, is not a sufficient enquiry into the authority of the vendor to sell, but the prospective purchaser should insist on the production of the power of attorney before making the purchase.

Where one who desires to obtain a lease of land from a partnership firm is refused by 2 of those connected with the firm, on the ground that he intends to use the land for a saw-mill, and subsequently obtains a written lease from another partner by concealing his real intention and representing that he wants the land for a lumber yard, he will be restrained from erecting a by O. [Blair v. Bromley (1846), 5 Hare 542, and Thompson v. Robinson (Ont.), 16 A.R. 175, distinguished.] The plaintiff sued the defendant for money alleged to have been collected or received by the firm of O. & B.; the action was dismissed, but without costs, because the fact that the defendant's name appeared in the firm justified the plaintiff in making an investigation as to his real position.

Johnston v. Brandon, 45 O.L.R. 369.

LIABILITY OF INCOMING PARTNER FOR DEBTS OF FORMER PARTNERSHIP—NOVATION—EVIDENCE—STATUTE OF FRAUDS.

The defendant L. on entering into partnership with his co-defendants, agreed that the new firm should take over the assets and assume the liabilities of the former partnership business carried on by his co-defendants. The new firm, with the knowledge and consent of L. communicated that fact to the plaintiffs, creditors of the former partnership, and the plaintiffs thereafter accepted the new firm as their debtor and discharged the former partnership from its liability:—Held, that there was a complete novation and that L. as well as his co-defendants, was liable for the plaintiffs' claim. Held, also, that L.'s agreement to assume the liabilities of the old firm, although not in writing, might be proved by parol evidence or by conduct, and that the Statute of Frauds had no application to it, as the agreement was something in addition to the other terms of the partnership and not inconsistent with them. [Rofe v. Flower, L.R. 1 P.C. 40, 44, followed.]

Mason v. Turnbull, 24 Man. L.R. 465.

ENDORSEMENT OF NOTES — PARTNERSHIP NAME.

A partner who allows his copartner to habitually endorse, with the partnership name, personal notes which he discounts, and the proceeds of which he applies indifferently to his personal business and to that of the partnership, is liable to the same extent as if the moneys obtained through such endorsements had benefited the partnership business exclusively.

McKeen v. Molsons Bank, 53 Que. S.C. 524.

RELEASE BY ONE PARTNER WITHOUT OTHER'S CONSENT—LIABILITY—EVIDENCE.

A person who entered into a contract of partnership, and obtains a release therefrom by one partner without the other's consent, is liable to the latter for its non-performance. Merchant's books are evidence against them, but not in their favour.

Lynch v. Perron, 23 Que. K.B. 220.

THIRD PARTY—RESPONSIBILITY—RENUNCIATION—NOVATION—C.C. ART. 1169, 1171, 1174, 1897, 1900.

The dissolution of a commercial partnership has no effect against a third party, as long as it has not been made public by its registration. Persons who give a third party reason to believe that they are in partnership incur the same responsibility as if they were in fact partners. When it is declared that the dissolution of a partnership has been made in writing, oral evidence will not be admitted to prove it. The renunciation of a right is not presumed; it must be proved by him who alleges it. The acceptance of a note in payment in the course of business does not operate as a novation.

Ray v. Gettas, 8 O.W.N. 318.

(§ III—13)—ASSIGNMENT FOR CREDITORS—FUNDS COLLECTED BY PARTNER.

The estate of a partnership, in an assignment for the benefit of creditors, is not liable for amounts collected by the active partner of the firm acting in his individual capacity as the local agent of an elevator company, though the partnership benefited by such agency.

(§ III—14) — CORROBORATION — EVIDENCE ACT—QUESTION OF FACT—BURDEN OF PROOF.

A widow and executrix of her husband's estate, suing for the price of goods sold and delivered cannot succeed when the defendant company holds an assignment of her late husband's debts to his former partner, provided that partner can fully prove the partnership and consequent liability of the deceased to him.

Simpson v. Tasker-Simpson Grain Co., 49 D.L.R. 303, [1919] 3 W.W.R. 928.

LIABILITY OF PARTNERS—RIGHTS OF CREDITORS — AS BETWEEN INDIVIDUAL AND FIRM CREDITORS.

Section 26 of the Partnership Act, R.S. M., 1902, c. 129 prescribing the procedure against partnership property for a partner's separate judgment debt to be by way of summons, is broad enough to permit a hearing upon an application to a judge in chambers by way of notice of motion.

SAME OWNERS OF TWO PARTNERSHIPS—CREDITORS.

In the distribution of assets by the assignee of 2 partnership firms composed of the same individuals, where it appears that although 2 businesses were carried on under separate names and with separate books of account, separate bank books and separate letterheads, they were really one firm, a debt due from one business to the other need not be considered in the distriigation. [Banco de Portugal v. Waddell, 5 A.C. 161, applied.]

INDIVIDUAL AND FIRM DEBTS—APPLICATION OF PAYMENTS.

If a partner is indebted on his own account to a person to whom the firm is also indebted, and that partner with the moneys of the firm makes a payment to the creditor without specifying the account to which it is to be paid, the payment must be taken to have been made on the partnership account and must be applied accordingly. Where 3 persons enter into a partnership dealing with lands, stipulating that the partnership lands should be sold for such price as the partners might from time to time agree upon and that should any disagreement arise in regard to the sale of other dealings whatsoever in such lands the mutual decision of any 2 must bind the 3 partners, with mutual covenants and agreements to effectually carry out the stipulation; a subsequent memorandum of agreement of sale of the land, signed by 2 of the partners, is good as to all of them notwithstanding the Statute of Frauds.

PARTNERSHIP REAL ESTATE.

Where the plaintiff and the three defendants purchased land in partnership and the conveyance was made to one of the defendants who afterwards gave an option of purchase to another defendant and the latter succeeded in securing a purchaser at a price and on terms to which all expressed assent, though the plaintiff refused his formal consent unless the defendant who secured the purchaser would make an affidavit, which he refused to do, that he was not receiving a secret profit, the defendants were not guilty of fraud or of a breach of duty to the plaintiff in completing the sale without his consent, if there was in fact no secret profit, particularly in view of the provisions of the Partnership Act, R.S.B.C. c. 175, s. 25, making the assent of the majority of a number of partners sufficient.

Shepherd v. Bruner, 19 D.L.R. 869.

PARTNERSHIP REAL ESTATE—PROOF IN WRITING—ACKNOWLEDGMENT BY DEPOSITION.

There is commencement of proof in writing, which leads to the proof by witness, of a special partnership agreement for the purchase and resale of a piece of real estate with joint profits in the deposition of the contending party examined as a witness, and when the facts were that it was he himself who proposed the matter to the other party, that they visited the property together, that the transfer of the insurance was drawn up by him and was in their favour as partners, and that if the other had been present at the signing of the contract of sale they would both have appeared as purchasers.

Moreau v. Menard, 45 Que. S.C. 542.

(§ IV—16)—WHAT IS.

If a caveator succeeds in establishing his contention that a valid partnership which was not evidenced by any writing subsisted between him and the owners of the land in question, and that such land was an asset of that partnership and that he still retained his interest in it, he would be entitled to a declaration by the court to protect that interest by the recording of a caveat.

The fact that the plaintiff, who claimed that the defendant was a trustee for him in respect to a one-half interest in property the latter purchased and in which the plaintiff was to have such an interest upon providing a large sum for the initial payment, advanced the defendant $500 as one-half of the sum the latter was to pay and did pay the owner of the property in order to obtain an option thereon, which was subsequently applied as a part of such initial payment, the balance being furnished by the defendant upon the plaintiff's failure to do so, does not make the defendant a trustee for the plaintiff, notwithstanding the $500 was not returned the plaintiff until 14 days after the defendant made such initial payment.

(§ IV—17)—ON DEATH OF PARTNER.

(§ V—20)—DIVERTING PARTNERSHIP FUNDS TO PRIVATE INVESTMENTS.

Under the Partnership Act, R.S.M. 1902, c. 129, s. 24, unless the "contrary intention" appears, property bought with money belonging to a partnership firm is deemed to have been bought on account of the firm and in a business carried on by the plaintiffs and the defendant as builders' contractors and brick-makers in a partnership at will, where the defendant, without the consent of his copartners, from time to time during the partnership diverted certain moneys from the resources of the partnership firm and used such moneys in certain outside speculations and investments out of which certain profits were realized, the principle of s. 24 is applicable and the benefit of such speculations and investments accrues to the partnership firm.

Black Hill Threshing Syndicate v. Cole, 42 D.L.R. 790.

ACCOUNTING—INCONSISTENT CLAIMS—ELECTION.

There is no inconsistency between a prayer for an accounting and a prayer for a declaration of ownership to a share of securities belonging to the firm, in an action for accounting between partners, and the defendant cannot by means of a dilatory exception demand the plaintiff to elect between the two.

Barnard v. De Sambor, 25 D.L.R. 344, 24 Que. K.B. 480.

ACCOUNTING—RIGHT OF PARTNER TO COMPENSATION.

A contract of partnership excludes any implied covenant for the payment of services rendered the firm by any of its members, and cannot be allowed as an item in an accounting between them; nor does a partner who occupies the position as manager, stand in any better position.

Merriam v. Kenderline Realty Co., 25 D.L.R. 369, 34 O.L.R. 556.

ACCOUNTING—PROFITS REALIZED IN OTHER CAPACITIES.

When two brothers accept a donation from their father of a lot of land in common with a forge, and in compliance with his wish work the forge together for 30 years without any agreement and without divition, there is formed between them a special partnership for the purpose of the working of the forge. If, during the 30 years one of the associates has at the same time performed the duties of bailiff of the Superior Court and of secretary-treasurer of the municipality to the knowledge of his associates, for 27 years without opposition or claim on the other's part, the latter cannot demand from him an account of the profits that he has drawn from the exercise of these functions and claim to be paid half of them.

Ferland v. Ferland, 47 Que. S.C. 314.

PURCHASING SHARE OF OTHER PARTNER—RIGHT TO REIMBURSEMENT AFTER SETTLEMENT.

In a partnership composed of two members, if one of them purchases the share of the other, and the accounts between them are settled, without any claim on the part of the purchaser for the amounts withdrawn by the vendor, the purchaser cannot subsequently claim from his former partner reimbursement of part of this sum on the ground that he had not the right to take it.

(§ V-22)—LIABILITY OF PARTNER MAKING ADVANCE FOR BENEFIT OF FIRM.

A partner who has paid money for the benefit of a partnership cannot hold a copartner for more than his proportionate share thereof, on the ground of the insolvency of other partners, without shewing such insolvency. A partner who has paid money for the benefit of the partnership cannot, on the ground that some of the partners have left the province, hold other partners liable for more than their proportionate shares thereof.

Lamb v. North, 3 D.L.R. 774, 22 Man. L.R. 360, 21 W.L.R. 422.

(§ V-23)—DEATH OF PARTNER—IMPLIED CONTINUANCE OF PARTNERSHIP WITH PERSONAL REPRESENTATIVES—LEASES.

Two lessees of several theatres entered into an agreement by which each gave to the other an undivided half interest in each lease held by him and in the profits and emoluments thereof, and it was provided that the agreement should remain in force till the expiration of these leases and of any and all renewals thereof. The agreement also contained a provision that it should be binding upon the "heirs, executors, or assigns" of the parties, as though they had been specially mentioned in it:—Held, that upon the death of one of the partners the partnership came to an end, and did not remain in force between the surviving partner and the representatives of the deceased partner till the termination of the leases. The provision that the agreement was to remain in force till the termination of the leases had no greater effect than if the date at which the leases expired had been stated in the agreement; and, therefore, the general rule that, in the absence of special provision, the death of a partner puts an end to a partnership, even though the term provided for has not expired, became applicable. The provision that the agreement should be binding upon the heirs, executors, or assigns of the parties was not equivalent to an agreement that the partnership should not be dissolved by death, but was merely a loose way of avoiding the necessity of repeating these words after the name of each contracting party whenever it occurred in the document.

Whitney v. Small, 31 O.L.R. 191, 6 O.W.N. 188, reversing 5 O.W.N. 160, 25 O.W.R. 121.

One partner has no right to devise his interest in the partnership property in such a manner as to clog his partner's interests in the partnership business, by imposing conditions as to making payments of sums alleged to be due to the testator by his partner. Where the devise of a deceased partner in a mercantile copartnership to whom the business was devised as a going concern to be worked by the devisee and the surviving partner share and share alike, continues to carry on the business for his own benefit, using the stock and plant of the copartnership he must account to the surviving partner for any profits made. (§ VI—25)—DISMISSAL OF PARTNER—"JUST AND REASONABLE CAUSE."

"Intoxication forms a "just and reasonable cause" for the dismissal of a partner and the dissolution of the partnership within the meaning of such phrase in the articles of copartnership, and may be set up in justifi-tion to an action for wrongful dismissal. Fitzsimons v. Stoller, 27 D.L.R. 174, 10 W.W.R. 463.

INSOLVENCY—POWER TO ACKNOWLEDGE DEBT BARRED BY LIMITATIONS.

A partner has no implied authority to acknowledge a debt barred by limitations after the dissolution of the partnership by insolvency proceedings.

Quaker Oats Co. v. Denis, 24 D.L.R. 226, 9 A.L.R. 62, 8 W.W.R. 877, 31 W.L.R. 579, affirming 19 D.L.R. 327, 8 A.L.R. 31.

LIABILITY OF RETIRING PARTNER—RELEASE.

One cannot be held on a partnership note after he ceased to be a member of the firm, with knowledge thereof by the holder, particularly where the liability was released by the taking of other securities.

Northern Crown Bank v. Elford, 34 D.L.R. 280, 10 S.L.R. 96, [1917] 2 W.W.R. 90.

DISSOLUTION—APPOINTMENT OF RECEIVER—SUBSEQUENT PAYMENT TO PARTNER.

A payment of money to a member of a partnership after the appointment of a receiver, the dissolution of the firm, and the restraining of such partner from receiving money owing the firm, of which the payer had notice, does not amount to a payment to the partnership so as to discharge the debt.

Irvine v. Hervey, 13 D.L.R. 868, 47 N.S.R. 310, 13 E.L.R. 297.

LEASE MADE DURING PARTNERSHIP TO COMMENCE AT ITS TERMINATION—SHARING BENEFITS.

A partner who, pending the existence of the partnership, takes a new lease in his own name of the business premises of which the firm was tenant, without the consent of his copartner, in order to continue the business there, from and after the dissolution of the partnership, is under a legal obligation to let such partner share in the benefit of the new lease.

Hyde v. Webster, 13 D.L.R. 388, 20 Rev. Leg. 45.

RECEIVER—LEASE.

A partnership at will is for all practical purposes dissolved when a receiver is appointed, and one partner has then a right to lease the partnership premises and hold it for his own personal benefit.

Mah Kong Doon v. Mah Cap Doon, 39 D.L.R. 234, [1918] 1 W.W.R. 610, affirming 37 D.L.R. 50, [1917] 3 W.W.R. 434.

ACCOUNT—REFERENCE—RECEIVER—SECURITY—RECEIVER TO CARRY ON OR SELL BUSINESS.

Howie v. Howie, 14 O.W.N. 120.

PREMATURE DISSOLUTION—DAMAGES.

No partner has a right, without cause, to dissolve the partnership before expiration of the time fixed in their agreement, under penalty of paying the damages which the other partner suffers. When it is a partnership for the purchase and sale of real property, where operations would have been commenced at a time when the real property had a great speculative value, and the dissolution took effect at the moment when the market was affected by a crisis brought about by the war, the amount of damages suffered by the expelled partner should be estimated by taking into consideration the facts before, as well as after the action.

Howard v. Findlay, 27 Que. K.B. 375. [Reversed in 47 D.L.R. 441.]

ELECTION OF DOMICILE—PEREMPTION—SERVICE.

If a firm of attorneys, who had made an election of domicile, is dissolved and one of the members elects a domicile elsewhere, a motion for peremption should be served at the domicile elected by the latter, not at that elected by the partnership.

Bailey v. Bailey, 13 O.W.N. 385.

APPOINTMENT OF RECEIVER.

When a partnership is dissolved there is formed among the former partners a community of undivided interest, in virtue of which each of the partners becomes owner of his proportionate share of the property rights and interest comprising the partnership's assets, and this co-ownership only ceases by the complete dissolution of the partnership. Upon the dissolution of a commercial partnership a sequestrator may be appointed pending the liquidation. When the administration of the business (pharmacy) calls for a special knowledge, the court, in appointing a sequestrator, may entrust the management of the business to a qualified person, one of the partners, who had charge before the dissolution, under the superintendence and responsibility of the sequestrator.

Bonneville v. Salvus, 49 Que. S.C. 253.

LIQUIDATOR—NOTICE—DOCUMENTS.

The court or a judge may appoint a liquidator to a partnership upon petition of a partner who has given notice of dissolution but cannot on such appointment inquire if the declaration of partnership filed, against which there has been no inscription en faux, is true or false.

Bithell v. Bithell, 17 Que. P.R. 440.

LIQUIDATOR—SEIZURE—GARNISHMENT BEFORE JUDGMENT—C.C. QUE. 1896a.

On the dissolution of a partnership, if any trouble arises between the partners, the best remedy, the only effective one to apply in such a case, is the appointment of a liquidator. When a voluntary liquidator has taken possession of the assets of a partnership, one partner cannot seize, by way of garnishment before judgment, assets which do not belong to his copartner, but to the partnership.

Bass v. Enderman, 46 Que. S.C. 412.

The member who wishes to retire from a business partnership for the termination of which no time is fixed, is not required to justify his action; it is sufficient that the notice by him not to longer continue a member of the firm is given in good faith and under circumstances which do not prejudice his partners. No form of notice is required and it need not be served by a bailiff.

Lardon v. Valade, 13 Que. P.R. 438.

GROUND—EFFECT OF WAR.

Errors in judgment, failure in matters of business, differences of opinion, discords and disagreements in respect to division of profits and to good faith, which do not seriously affect the interests of the partnership, are not reasons for dissolutions of the firm before the expiration of the term agreed upon. In any of these cases if these acts should become such as would justify a demand for dissolution, they cannot be set up by the one who by his actions and violence of his character has been the exclusive cause of the trouble. To establish the amount of damages suffered by a partner after an unwarranted dissolution of the partnership by the other member, the court should take into account the past history of the firm, the profits which had been made up to the time of the dissolution and those which should be attributed to the partnership, by taking into consideration not only the facts which existed at the time of the dissolution, but those which have happened since and which can be proved. The court, deemed to be aware of the existence of a state of war in which this country is engaged, will consider its general influence upon the affairs of the parties.

Howard v. Findlay, 51 Que. S.C. 385.

ASSUMPTION OF DEBTS BY PARTNER—NOVATION.

When a creditor of a partnership which has been dissolved goes to the office of one of the partners to receive payment of his debt and is informed by the partner that it is he who has assumed the payment of the debts, and the creditor is given a note for the amount, the other partner is not discharged, since novation cannot be presumed, and it should be evident that a note cannot effect novation and the representative of a creditor to consent to a novation should have authority.

Bremner Co. v. Langlois, 52 Que. S.C. 362.

DISCHARGE OF LIQUIDATOR.

The liquidator of a dissolved partnership may, in distributing according to the judge's order the moneys in his possession, obtain from him his final discharge.

Bissouette v. Kubelik, 18 Que. P.R. 217.
(§ VI—26)—WHAT CONSTITUTES A DISSOLUTION.

Two members of a partnership may not dissolve the partnership without notice to the third member, even by the one buying out the other's interest.

Thomas v. McNaughton, 2 D.L.R. 211, 21 W.L.R. 267, 2 W.W.R. 381.

LIABILITY OF SURVIVING PARTNER—NOTICE OF DISSOLUTION—CONTINUING PARTNERSHIP SIGN.

Notice to creditors of the death of a partner is not necessary to protect his estate from liability for debts contracted in the carrying on of the business after his decease. The omission of a surviving partner to remove the partnership sign from the premises in which the partnership business was carried on is not in itself a holding out by him that the partnership is still in existence and carrying on the business or that he is continuing the business on his own account in the partnership name.

Imperial Oil Co. v. Duplessis, 9 A.L.R. 59,
WHAT CONSTITUTES A DISSOLUTION—NOTICE TO THIRD PARTY—EFFECT.

The notice of the change of the constitution of a partnership required by s. 38 of the Partnership Act (Sask.) enacting that where a person deals with a firm after a change in its constitution, he is entitled to treat all apparent members of the old firm as still being members of the firm until he has notice of the change, must be given after the dissolution and, that, therefore, a conversation prior to the dissolution of something that might occur in the future has no effect.

(§ VI—27)—RETIRING PARTNER IN SAME BUSINESS—TRADE SECRETS.

A partner who sells out his interest may engage in the same business as that of the firm and use the usual methods of doing that business, even though that involves the use of the knowledge acquired as a partner, providing he does not use the identical process or formula of the partnership.

Wodehouse v. Ideal Stock & Poultry Food Co., 35 D.L.R. 721, 39 O.L.R. 302, varying 11 O.W.N. 296.

RIGHTS IN FIRM NAME.

A law firm is a civil partnership, and when one partner retires from the firm on his appointment to an official position his copartner may execute on a judgment in the name of the partnership, but only for his share, unless the retiring partner's interests have been properly transferred to him.

Bernard v. Pelissier, 8 D.L.R. 545.

GOODWILL—RIGHT OF SURVIVING PARTNER—VALUATION.

The right of a surviving partner to take over the interest of the deceased partner need not expressly appear on the face of the partnership agreement, but such intention may be inferred from its general terms. Upon valuation of the interest of the deceased partner the actual value of the assets should be determined in the ordinary way, and not by the accounts struck at the end of each year under the partnership articles; the goodwill of the business is also to be included in the assets.

Wood v. Gauld, 29 D.L.R. 246, 53 Can. S.C.R. 51, varying 24 D.L.R. 831, 34 O.L.R. 278.

GOODWILL OF FIRM—RIGHT OF SURVIVING PARTNER.

The goodwill of a firm forms a part of its ordinary assets, and in the absence of an express stipulation entitling the surviving partner to take over the interest of the deceased partner, no such right of pre-emption can be implied. (§ VI—28)—COMPENSATION TO PARTNER CONTINUING BUSINESS.

A surviving partner who has carried on the business for the benefit of the partnership, pending proceedings being taken for its winding-up by the court, is not a trustee within the meaning of the Act, and therefore not entitled to the benefit of s. 40, c. 129, R.S.O. 1897, but if his claim is not based exclusively on this section and he asks generally to be allowed out of the partnership assets such sum as the court may deem fair and reasonable as compensation for his services, he should be allowed to apply to the court for such compensation as it, in its discretion, may see fit to grant. [Knox v. Gye, L.R. 5 H.L. 656, applied.]

Livingston v. Livingston, 26 D.L.R. 140, varying 20 D.L.R. 960, 32 O.L.R. 440, which varied 4 D.L.R. 345, 26 O.L.R. 246.

POWERS AND COMPENSATION OF SURVIVING PARTNER.

The surviving member of a foreign partnership, although an alien, may, if the countries are at peace, sell and convey partnership lands situated in another county without any representative of a deceased partner joining in the conveyance.

DEBTS OF OLD FIRM—LIABILITY OF RETIRING PARTNER—CREDITOR WITH KNOWLEDGE CONTINUING ACCOUNT WITH NEW FIRM—EFFECT.

Where creditors of the old firm, knowing of the change of partnership and that the new partners had taken over all the assets and had agreed to be subject to all the liabilities of the former firm, continued their dealings with the new firm as with the old and treated the new firm as their debtors in respect of the debt owing to them at the time of the creation of the new firm, the retiring partner will be discharged. Georgeson & Co. v. DeLong, 19 D.L.R. 551.

(§ VI—29)—DISSOLUTION—ACCOUNTING.

Where the partnership business has been operated solely through a manager by whom the accounts were kept, such accounts should form the basis of the inquiry directed to be made by a referee under the usual reference for taking the partnership accounts in an action for the winding-up of the partnership affairs; and until some discrepancy appears in the manager's accounts as disclosed on the firm's balance sheet brought in and filed, the plaintiff should not be called upon to file accounts before the referee in like manner as if he were a sole trustee for the firm.

ACTION FOR DISSOLUTION — SUBSTITUTED AGREEMENT ON TERMINATION OF PARTNERSHIP.

An action brought in form for the dissolution of a partnership should not be dismissed merely because it appears that at the end of the term the parties substituted a new agreement for the adjustment of their partnership rights, whereby one of the partners was to enter the employment of the other; the court should, in the same action, give the plaintiff relief by declaring and enforcing the terms of the substituted agreement if set up in the defendant's pleading.

SALE OF BUSINESS — ACCOUNTING — LIMITATIONS—TRUST.

Where a business has been carried on by husband and wife in equal shares as partners, the sale of the business terminates the partnership. The husband is not a trustee in the full sense of that word for the wife's share of the purchase price received by him so as to preclude the Statute of Limitations from applying. Any action for a partnership account must be brought within 6 years from such receipt. [Knox v. Gye, L.R. 5 H.L. 656, applied.]

PARTNERSHIP AT WILL—FORFEITURE—NON-PAYMENT OF DEBT TO FIRM—ACCOUNTING.

Where no time is fixed for the duration of a partnership, it is presumed to be one at will, terminable by any partner at any time, and though a partner's noncompliance with a demand by the other partners to pay a debt due by him to the firm is ground for a dissolution, they cannot, except by process of law or an agreement to that effect, forfeit and acquire his interest in the firm in satisfaction of the debt, and must account to him for his share in the assets and the profits, up to a reasonable time after notice of such demand, subject to the deduction of the amount of his indebtedness to the firm.

DISSOLUTION BY DEATH—ACCOUNTING.

Every person who administers property not belonging to him should render an account of his administration even when he believes that he is carrying on his own business. The communiſte as well as the third-party holder in good faith is bound to render an account of his administration. The legatees or heirs who continue to administer the property of a partnership which existed in the lifetime of their ancestor, are agents who should render an account of the administration to the surviving partner. The principle that one who demands an account must allege that he has himself rendered an account or that he is rendering an account, does not apply to an action of the nature of pro socio.

The defendant applied for an order directing an inquiry as to the damages resulting from the injunction and the judge ordered a reference to the registrar, not only to inquire and report as to damages, but also to decide whether a partnership existed. Held, that the appeal should be allowed.

FOR SHARE OF PROFITS.

Although the action of a partner who quits a partnership, for his share of the profits made, by the latter is an action pro socio, nevertheless, an action against the other partner for a fixed sum of money may be taken when the contract stipulates that, in case one of the partners withdraws from the partnership, a special amount of money shall be paid to him at different periods for his share of the profits.

(§ I—1)—CREATION OF RIGHT.

On each of two adjoining lots is a building which entirely covers its whole area. A wall used as the northern wall of the plaintiff's building and the southern wall of the defendants' stood entirely on the plaintiff's lot. Held that while the wall is entirely the property of the plaintiff and is not a party wall, the defendants have an easement for the support of the joists of their building in the wall, it having been openly and uninterruptedly used for that purpose for more than 20 years; that a lost grant must be presumed to which this user would be referred.

McGaffigan v. Willett Fruit Co., 4 N.B. Eq. 353.

The owner of land who consents, by using it, to the construction of a party wall built by the adjoining owner on the dividing line between their lots, and formed a backing for their respective houses, cannot, when he had notice of its construction and went with his architect to visit the spot, examined the plans and specifications and allowed the work conforming thereto to be done, claim as damages the value of an excess of land, over and above the nine inches fixed by law, taken from eleven feet in depth for the foundation of the wall. He is considered as having given his tacit consent, and the ownership in common created between him and his neighbour deprives him of a right of action. An injunction will be refused.

Dubreuil v. Labelle, 42 Que. S.C. 353.

A neighbouring proprietor may acquire a party wall either by formally indicating his intention to do so, or by performing acts which constitute on his part a desire to make use of the wall. Where a building in Quebec is so constructed that the wall of the neighbouring building is used for all purposes of an exterior wall except support, one wall of the new building being such that, without the neighbouring wall, it would not stand the weather, or afford sufficient protection, or satisfy the building regulations, and, for further protection, the two walls are joined at the top by metal flashing, and it appears that the owner of the new building expected that, when it had settled into position, it would receive support also from the neighbouring wall, the owner of the neighbouring wall is entitled to compensation for the use of his wall as a party wall.

Morgan v. Avenue Realty Co., 6 D.L.R. 388, 46 Can. S.C.R. 589, 11 E.L.R. 391, reversing 20 Que. K.B. 526.

(§ I—2)—COST OF CONSTRUCTION—RIGHT TO CONTRIBUTION—WREN.

An owner who builds a party wall can require his neighbour to contribute towards its construction, but only on condition of conforming strictly with the law or with the agreement between them. If the wall is defective, and in contravention of law, it should be rectified by the owner before demanding from the neighbour the payment of his share.

Laberge v. Fortin, 47 Que. S.C. 475.

(§ I—8)—DEFECTIVE CONSTRUCTION—DAMAGES.

One in possession of land under an agreement of sale may demand the demolition of a badly built party wall and damages, but he cannot claim the value of the land taken by his neighbour for the construction of the wall over and above the number of inches agreed upon. When the heightening of a party wall is made in violation of municipal by-laws, upon a wall already badly built and in a defective and dangerous condition, the adjoining owner who has not exercised any control over the work can demand its demolition and claim damages.

Maccarone v. Zenga, 49 Que. S.C. 491.

(§ I—9)—REMOVAL.

An action by one who has built a party wall to recover from the adjoining owner a part of the cost is, in its nature, a petitory action claiming a servitude and, therefore, a judgment maintaining it, though it condemns the defendant to pay a sum less than $500, is appealable. The adjoining owner, when the party wall, built in good faith, encroaches only a few inches, has no right to an action for its demolition either directly or indirectly by means of an action en bornage. A party wall built between two lots of land affords a ground of non-suit to the action en bornage brought by one of the owners.

(§ I—13)—RIGHT TO USE END FOR FRONTAL FACING OF BUILDING.

The owners of a party wall, in the absence of special circumstances, are entitled to extend the frontal facing of their respective buildings to the middle line of the end of such wall.

I. In general.

(§ I—1)—PLACE OF MANUFACTURE—ASSEMBLING OF PARTS—NEW INVENTION.

A patented article made in the United States in detail in the sizes required in accordance with specific orders, the parts merely being joined together in Canada, is not manufactured or constructed in Canada within the meaning of the Patent Act, R. S.C. 1906, c. 69, s. 38.

The one feature of placing at right angles instead of diagonally, as in other grip treads patented, the chains connecting the side chains of the grip treads is not a new and useful improvement in grip treads for pneumatic tires.

Dominion Chain Co. v. McKinnon Chain Co., 45 D.L.R. 367, 58 Can. S.C.R. 121, affirming 38 D.L.R. 345, 17 Can. Ex. 255.

(§ I—2)—DURATION—TERMINATION—NON-MANUFACTURE—ILLEGAL IMPORTATION.

In the absence of special circumstances, the "life of a patent," within the meaning of an agreement not to engage in the manufacture or sale of disc talking-machines during the life of the letters patent thereof, is the "term limited for its duration" as provided by s. 23 of the Patent Act, R.S. 1906, c. 69, unless it comes to an end by a judgment in rem of a court of competent jurisdiction declaring the patent void; nor are illegal importation and non-manufacture of the invention circumstances terminating the life of the patent within the meaning of the agreement, particularly where in the case of prohibited importation the patent might still be in existence quoad any one but the importers under s. 38 (b) of the Act.

(§ I—3)—MISTAKE IN APPLICATION—REISSUE.

An omission through mistake to make a claim in a patent application for one of the inventions disclosed in the specification is within the purview of s. 24 of the Patent Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 69, as to reissue in cases of "insufficient description or specification."

Re Leonard, 14 D.L.R. 364, 13 E.L.R. 280, 14 Can. Ex. 351.

(§ 1-4)—CONSTRUCTION—WHOLE INSTRUMENT TO BE LOOKED AT.

The proper mode of construing a patent is the same as would be applied in the case of any other written instrument, and it is not in accordance with the true canons of construction to read the claim alone without the specification; the whole document must be looked at to see what the claim is. [Consolidated Car Heating Co. v. Came, [1903] A.C. 569, followed.]

Johnson v. Oxford Knitting Co., 25 D.L.R. 658, 15 Can. Ex. 340.

INVENTION OF SERVANT.

In the absence of a special contract, the invention of a servant, even though made in the master's time and with the use of the master's material and at the expense of the master, does not become the property of the master, so as to justify him in opposing the grant of a patent for the invention to the servant, who is the proper patentee. COMBINATIONS.

Where the merit of an invention consists in an idea or principle, a machine based on the same idea or principle may be an infringement although the detailed means of carrying it into effect be different, but it is otherwise if the invention is merely of the particular means employed and consists of the combination of old parts to produce a new and useful result; the latter is properly the subject of a second patent.

United Injector v. James Morrison Brass Mfg. Co., 10 D.L.R. 619, 4 O.W.N. 1263, 24 O.W.R. 698.

NOVELTY—INVENTION—COMBINATION—PRIOR ART—COSTS.

Where the patentee has merely adopted in the manufacture of his patented article old contrivances of a nature similar to those found in other articles of the same kind, and producing similar results, there is no invention to support the patent. The court, taking into consideration the conduct of a defendant leading up to the action, has a discretion to deprive him of his full costs although he succeeds in the action.

Treo Co. v. Dominion Corset Co., 42 D.L.R. 605, 18 Can. Ex. 115.

OLD ELEMENTS—PATENTABLE INVENTION.

Bringing together old elements in such a way as to be useful and produce a combination which has the essentials requisite to a valid patent entitles an applicant to have patent issue, notwithstanding that each of such elements can be traced in previous patents.

Canadian Steam Boiler Equipment Co. v. MacGilchrist, 16 O.W.N. 37.

(§ II-20)—ANTICIPATION—PRIOR KNOWLEDGE OF USE.

In order that a device be validly patentable it is not sufficient to take a well-known mechanical contrivance and apply it to a subject to which it has not been hitherto applied; the true test being whether an ordinary mechanic could have made it without other suggestion than his knowledge of his art. [Dominion Fence v. Clinton Wire Cloth Co., 39 Can. S.C.R. 535, distinguished; Harwood v. Great Northern R. Co., 11 H.L.C. 654, followed.]

PROCESS PATENT—IMPORTATION—ANTICIPATION—CLAIMS AND SPECIFICATIONS.

The importation of apparatus to carry out a process patent is not within the prohibition of the Canada Patent Act (R.S.C. 1906, c. 69, s. 38); an attack on a patent on the ground of illegal importation may be made by way of defence.

Also Process Co. v. Friesen & Son, 35 D.L.R. 353, 16 Can. Ex. 507. [Affirmed 45 D.L.R. 759, 57 Can. S.C.R. 606.]

(§ III—25)—CONFLICTING CLAIMS—JURISDICTION—ARBITRATION—STAY OF PROCEEDINGS.

The Exchequer Court has jurisdiction under s. 23 of the Exchequer Court Act (R.S.C. 1906, c. 140) to determine conflicting applications for patents notwithstanding the pending of a similar proceeding before the Commissioner of Patents, by way of arbitration, under s. 20 of the Patent Act (R.S.C. 1906, c. 69); where jurisdiction is assumed the other proceedings will be stayed.

(§ III—27)—CLAIMS AND SPECIFICATIONS.

In the manufacture of sofa-bed the addition of a woven wire mattress to the lower frame when such a device has been used for years in the upper frame is not a new and useful improvement which can be protected by patent. [Harwood v. Great Northern R. Co., 11 H.L.C. 654, 3 L.J. Q.B. 27, applied.]

Rollaud v. Fournier, 4 D.L.R. 756.

PATENTABILITY OF INVENTIONS—INVENTION DISCLOSED BUT NOT CLAIMED IN PRIOR APPLICATION—ABANDONMENT—REISSUE.

Where the claim of patentability in a patent application is for the apparatus only although the specifications disclose also, as a new invention, the process in which the apparatus is to be used, the applicant cannot afterwards, except on an application for a reissue of the patent so obtained, obtain a patent of invention upon the method or process so as to cover any device or contrivance producing the same effect as his patented apparatus and thereby widen the claims of his original patent. [Hinks v. Safety Lighting Co., 4 Ch.D. 607, 612; and Miller v. Brass Co., 104 U.S.R. 350, followed; Barnett-McQueen Co. v. Canadian Stewart Co., 13 Can. Ex. 186, distinguished.]

IV. Sale; license; assignment.

Where a servant devises an invention in the time and at the expense of his master and with the use of the master's material, and having obtained a patent for the invention, assents to its use by the master, the proper conclusion is that he has given the master an irrevocable license to use the invention.

Imperial Supply Co. v. G.T.R. Co., 7 D.L.R. 504, 11 E.L.R. 340, 14 Can. Ex. 88.

(§ IV—31)—AGREEMENT FOR LICENSE

Duryea v. Kaufman, 2 D.L.R. 468, 3 O.W.N. 651, 21 O.W.R. 141.

(§ IV—35)—SALE—OBTAINING NEW PATENT IN ANOTHER COUNTRY—INJUNCTION.

The seller of the rights in Canada of a patent and trademark is entitled as of course to apply outside of Canada for a similar patent and trademark; the consent of the buyer, though unnecessary, is binding upon him, and an injunction will be granted to restrain the buyer from interference with the seller's attempts to obtain such patents and trademarks outside of Canada. An injunction operates in personam to restrain wrongful acts in a foreign country by a resident here.

(§ IV—45)—LICENSE AND ASSIGNMENT—CONFLICTING CLAIMS—JURISDICTION.

Felt Gas Compressing Co. v. Felt, 14 D.L.R. 395, 14 Can. Ex. 311.

LICENSE ASSIGNMENT.

Where a form of license to use a patented invention was signed by the employee in whose favor the patent had been issued, to license the employers, a railway company, to use it for a nominal consideration of one dollar, without royalty or further payments being thereby provided, and the railway company objected to the inclusion of a clause in the license which purported to restrict the license so as to exclude the use of the invention by certain allied railway companies and gave notice of such objection to the proposed licensors, and the license was not executed by the company nor was anything done towards its acceptance further than the retention by the company of the copy forwarded to them, such retention without registration thereof will not be held to be an acceptance of the agreement binding upon the company, if it appears that the alleged invention was perfected in the course of the employee's work for the company and that the licensors knew that the company always demanded from employees who invented a device under such circumstances an absolute license without cost to the company for the use of the invention on their own and all allied lines.

The title to vessels built in Canada for a foreign power, even though apparently remaining in the builders according to the terms of the contract as a guarantee for payment of moneys owing, and reverting to the foreign power upon final payment, really rests in the true owner from the beginning, and this owner is entitled to the protection afforded by the Patent Act. Marconi Wireless Telegraph Co. v. Canadian Car & Foundry Co., 50 D.L.R. 702. [Affirmed by Canada Supreme Court, June 21, 1920.]

INFRINGEMENT.

A Canadian patent is void on the ground of noncompliance with the Patent Act. Where the invention so patented is in public use and on sale with the consent of the inventor thereof for more than one year previous to the application for the patent in Canada. The Patent Act, R.S.C. 1906, c. 69, s. 7. The words "in Canada" in s. 7 of the Act have reference to the application for the patent, and not to the sale of the machine to be patented. [Smith v. Goldie, 7 Ont. App. 628 (on appeal 9 S.C.R. 46), followed.] A Canadian patent is void on the ground of noncompliance with the Act, when the construction or manufacture of the invention so patented had not been commenced or carried on in Canada within two years from the date of the patent. (Section 38).

There is no infringement of a patent where the element specifically claimed by the patentee as an essential element is omitted from the defendant's machine (electric toaster); a claim is bad where every element is shown in the prior art in combination.

BY NOTE.

When a debtor, in account current with his creditor, informs that he will be unable to meet a note about to mature, and the creditor obtains from a third party, indebted, or about to be indebted, to the debtor on a contract between them, a note of the same amount, and uses it to take up the maturing note, and it is paid in due course, the operation amounts to a payment made, if not by the debtor, for him and with his money, and the rule of art. 1161, Civil Code, that imputation of it should be made upon the oldest debt due, applies to it. Hence, if the indebtedness from the note taken up with the proceeds of the other is the oldest in the account, it is extinguished.

BY CHEQUE.

A creditor is not obliged to accept a cheque in payment of his debt, but in such case he should return it to his debtor and not keep it in his own possession.

Lavimodiere v. Garipey, 51 Que. S.C. 471.

The acceptance of a cheque at one of the branches of the bank on which it is drawn but after the board of directors has passed

When the balance of $3000 of the sale price of the stock in trade, goodwill and furniture of an hotel is made payable at the same time as the last instalment of rent on a long lease of the house where the stock in trade is, the destruction of the leased premises by fire renders the $3000 payable at once. The occupier of a house who, at the time of its total destruction by fire, has paid a part of the rent in advance, has the right to be reimbursed for what he has paid.

Perrault v. Parker, 56 Que. S.C. 160.

III. Place.

(§ III—25)—PLACE OF PAYMENT.

Where a contract for sale of land made by offer and acceptance is silent as to the place of payment of the purchase-money, the presumption is that the price is payable at the place where the party made the offer and was domiciled.

Pearson v. O'Brien, 11 D.L.R. 170, 22 W.L.R. 793, 4 W.W.R. 342, affirming 4 D.L.R. 413, 22 Man. L.R. 175, 20 W.L.R. 510, 1 W.W.R. 1026.

When a contract is silent as to the place of payment, the money will be payable at the residence of the contractor, although the work is done in another province. [Gullivan v. Cantelon, 16 Man. L.R. 644, followed.]

Empire Sash & Door Co. v. McGreevy; C.P.R. Co., 8 D.L.R. 27, 22 Man. L.R. 676, 22 W.L.R. 372, 3 W.W.R. 129.

Under art. 1152, C.C. (Que.), when the place of payment is not definitely designated by the contract, or otherwise prescribed, the payment must be made at the domicile of the debtor; and the domicile which determines the place of payment is his actual domicile at the time of payment, and not some different domicile which he had at the date of the contract; and the fact that the debtor may have paid certain instalments at the domicile of the creditor is not of itself of such a nature as to modify the law nor the rights of the parties in this respect, and the court will not hold that the defendant has, by virtue of any such payment at the domicile of the creditor, waived his right to pay the subsequent instalments at his own domicile; and where this provision is ignored the plaintiff will lose his right to the costs of his action by not demanding payment at the domicile of the defendant before commencing the suit, and tender and deposit duly made by the defendant under this doctrine will be deemed valid and sufficient.

DUE PAYMENT—SALE—TERMS 30 DAYS NET—SUMMONS—PLACE OF JUDGMENT—REAL OFFERS—CHEQUE—C.C. (QUE), ARTS. 1607, 1152, 1163, 1533.

A sale of goods subject to the agreement "terms 30 days net" is not a cash sale. In such a case, the place of payment is not determined by the place of delivery; and the sending by the vendor of a bill bearing the words "please remit" does not constitute a summons. The offer of a cheque accepted by a bank can take the place of an offer when it has been refused because the amount offered was considered insufficient but without objection as to the nature of the security offered.

Commonwealth Color & Chemical Co. v. Blais, 55 Que. S.C. 419.

OFFICE OF NOTARY.

The deposit by defendant in the office of the notary, near plaintiff's domicile and with due notification to plaintiff, of the amount claimed by the latter, was, under the circumstances of this case, valid and legal, although such amount was made payable at plaintiff's domicile under the terms of the deed and mortgage mentioned in plaintiff's declaration.

Charlebois v. Charlebois, 24 Rev. 3e Jur. 375, 54 Que. S.C. 465.

DEMAND OF PAYMENT OF DEBT—PLACE OF PAYMENT.

The demand of payment, required by art. 1967, C.C. (Que.), to put the debtor in default, is necessary even if the debt is payable at a stipulated place and not to be demanded, as in the case of rent due under a lease in which it is stipulated that the rent shall be payable at the house of the tenant.

Bourgeois v. Morin, 46 Que. S.C. 334.

PAYMENT — INTEREST — LOAN — NOTARY — AUTHORITY—C.C., ARTS. 1144, 1152.

The indicating of a place of payment other than the domicile of the debtor has not the effect of conferring authority to receive this payment by a person whose domicile is indicated. Thus in a loan, the following clause: "Each payment must be made in the office of the undersigned notary at Montreal with the exception of the principal which is to be repaid at the domicile of the creditor," does not give any authority to the notary to receive the interest falling due and to give a receipt.

Pleard v. Rugola, 56 Que. S.C. 472.

IV. Application.

(§ IV—30)—Where an indication of payment is made in a deed of sale to which the creditor is not a party by an insolvent trader who sells part of his assets a few days prior to his formal abandonment and the third party has not accepted the indication so as to transform it into a delegation of payment, such indication does not constitute a preferential payment to the detriment of the other creditors, and no action will lie against the third party who has not accepted it. An indication of payment in favour of a third party who does not intervene or appear in the deed of sale containing the indication of payment does not constitute a delegation of payment until it has been formally accepted by the creditor in whose favour it is made, and may be revoked by the parties to the deed at any time before such acceptance.

Turgeon v. Bourgeois, 4 D.L.R. 144.

Where upon the payment of a certain sum as damages for the pollution of a stream no suggestion was made that the payment was for the excess over and above a limited prescriptive right and no such claim was advanced, the claim should be rejected.

Hunter v. Richards, 5 D.L.R. 116, 26 O.L.R. 458, 22 O.W.R. 408.

PAYMENT BY THIRD PERSON—PLEA.

A debtor who is being proceeded against for the recovery of a judgment in the name of a person who has been paid by an undisclosed third party is entitled to establish before the court all the circumstances under which that payment was made, as he may have a substantial ground of opposition as to a third party paying the judgment and enforcing same in the name of the judgment creditor for the purpose of harassing the judgment debtor without giving notice of the transfer.

Coderre v. Cabana, 21 D.L.R. 436, 16 Que. P.R. 272.

DELEGATION OF PAYMENT — ACCEPTANCE — HYPOTHEC—NOVATION.

The delegation of payment not accepted does not effect novation. So long as a delegation of payment of a price of sale made in the same deed is not accepted, the vendor may grant a discharge of the privileges and hypothecs which exist in his favour upon the immovable sold. The privilege of the vendor belongs to himself only, and not to the creditor to whom the delegation is made who has not accepted it.

Economic Realty v. Montarville Land Co., 48 Que. S.C. 519.

APPLICATION—PRINCIPAL AND INTEREST.

In the absence of any appropriation by the purchaser, a vendor is not bound to apply payments in discharge of interest rather than of principal, if at the time the payments were made the manner of application was immaterial to both parties.

Phillips v. United Investors, 34 D.L.R. 283, 27 Man. L.R. 410, [1917] 1 W.W.R. 1348.

MONEY IN COURT—STOP-ORDER—PAYMENT OUT OF COURT—COSTS.

Hamer v. O'Brien, 13 O.W.N. 147. [See 12 O.W.N. 379.]

DESIGNATION—ACCEPTANCE—SUBROGATION.

The designation in a deed of sale of payment of part of the price does not constitute a contract of delegation but is a stipulation in favour of a third party which can be accepted so long as it is not revoked, and the action to recover the debt is a sufficient acceptance. The heirs of a vendor in favour of whom there are several successive designations of payment not accepted during the lifetime of the creditor but not revoked, may accept them, receive the payment from the first debtor and be subrogated to all their rights, privileges and hypothecs against the other persons liable to pay.

Gratton v. Lemay, 51 Que. S.C. 493.

DEMAND FOR—TELEPHONE.

Demand for payment of a debt must be made at the home of the debtor, and cannot be made by means of the telephone. But the fact that a debtor promises to go to the creditor's house and settle his debt excuses the latter from making a formal demand of payment.

Racine v. Raporte, 51 Que. S.C. 507.

MONEY IN COURT—PAYMENT OUT.

Re School Section 5, Tp. of Stephen and Hill, 7 O.W.N. 121.

APPLICATION—PARTNERSHIP.

The same person must be indebted to the same creditor for several distinct debts in order that there may be an imputation of payment. When the debt of a partnership and that of a partner are actually payable, the partner must make a statement to his copartners of the payment he has received from the common debtor in proportion to the amount of the two debts, but if the partner has imputed it wholly upon the debt to the partnership, such imputation should under art. 1843 C.C. (Que.), be maintained.

Masse v. Germain, 18 Rev. de Jur. 91.

APPLICATION—FIRST IN DATE.

Installments paid by a purchaser under several contracts, without any special imputation, must be applied to the first contracts by order of date.

Levitt v. Lacasse, 49 Que. S.C. 329.

(§ IV—31)—BETWEEN SECURED AND UNSECURED CLAIMS—INTENTION.

Payments credited in a running account are not necessarily to be credited on an earlier and secured part of the account so as to leave the balance unsecured; the appropriation of the payments is a question of intention, and the presumption in favour of appropriating the credits to the earlier debts may be rebutted by showing a contrary intention. Thomson v. Stikeman, 17 D.L.R. 205, 30 O.L.R. 123, affirming 14 D.L.R. 97, 29 O.L.R. 146.

(§ IV—33)—OF PARTIAL PAYMENT.

Where the payment of the deposit is made with an application to an agent for the purchase of shares from the agent upon a condition that the consent of the principal, the owner of the shares, shall be obtained to the terms offered, and the principal declines the terms, the agent is not entitled to treat such deposit as the money of the principal but should place the same in medio so that it may be returned by the agent to the prospective purchaser on the offer being refused.

McPherson v. Fidelity Trust & Savings Co., 6 D.L.R. 520, 17 B.C.R. 182, 2 W.W.R. 109.

PURCHASE PRICE OF REAL ESTATE PAYABLE BY INSTALLMENTS—OPTION TO RELEASE PART FROM MORTGAGE.

When, in a deed of sale of 200 lots of land, the whole purchase price of which is payable by instalments, there is an agreement that the purchaser may, at any time, release from the mortgage a stated number of lots by paying a specified sum, and, under the agreement, he makes a payment exceeding this sum, and obtains from the vendor a release of a proportionate number of lots, the payment should not be applied on the amount due at the time of such payment, but by taking into account the release of the lots, and in such a way as to make a proportionate reduction on the instalments of the purchase price not yet due.

Island City Realty Co. v. Malo, 46 Que. S.C. 128.

(§ IV—34)—EXCESS PAYMENTS—CURRENT ACCOUNT—APPLICATION.

On the trial of a mechanics' lien action involving materials supplied to building contractors for distinct buildings, payments by the contractors for materials in excess of the amount due when the payments were made, will be applied to other items of the contractors' general account, in the absence of special agreement that the surplus should be credited against future orders for the particular buildings.

Howlett v. Dofran, 11 D.L.R. 372, 24 W.L.R. 401, 4 W.W.R. 674.

(§ IV—35)—IMPOUNDED GOODS—DAMAGE—PAYMENT TO SECURE RELEASE—INVOLUNTARY—RECOVERY BACK.

A payment made to release impounded goods under circumstances which show that it was not voluntarily made may be recovered back as money had and received. [Fogde v. Parsenau, 37 D.L.R. 758, 10 S.L.R. 423, followed.]

[§ 1—4]—A corporation cannot sue for penalties as a common informer, unless expressly authorized to do so by the statute imposing the penalties. [Guardians of the Poor of St. Leonard's, Shoreditch v. Franklin, 3 C.P.D. 277, followed.]

Gay Major Co. v. Canadian Flaxhills, 3 D.L.R. 312, 3 O.W.N. 1058.

Under R.S.Q. 1909 an action for the penalty for failure by a trader to register a declaration as to his marriage status in accordance with art. 1834 C.C. (Que.) can only be brought by the Crown and does not lie in favour of any person or informer, as the statutes call for a special authorization by law or by municipal by-law before an individual can sue by way of qui tam action.

Cardinal v. Geoffroy, 4 D.L.R. 226, 21 Que. K.B. 528.

STATUTORY PENALTIES.

The $200 penalty imposed for the criminal offence mentioned in s. 269 of Dominion Election Act, R.S.C., 1906, c. 6, is not recoverable until a court of competent criminal jurisdiction has adjudged the person in question guilty of the offence which forms the basis of the action for the penalty under said section.

Renouf v. Dubuc, 18 Rev. de Jur. 519.

The penal action against a member of a business firm for failing to register a declaration of his marriage within 60 days from the date on which it was celebrated is a qui tam action which can be brought by the plaintiff as well in his own name as in that of the King.

Lamontagne v. Galbraith, 13 Que. P.R. 397.

Art. 7538, R.S.Q., gives the right to a person to bring suit in his own name only when he is authorized by law or by a municipal by-law for the recovery of a fine or a penalty. A penal action against a defendant who is carrying business alone, for not having filed at the prothonotary's office or in the registry office a declaration as to whether he is common or separate as to property with his wife, can only be taken in the name of the King. [Lamontagne v. Galbraith, 13 Que. P.R. 397, 13 Que. P.R. 44, followed.]

Cardinal v. Geoffroy, 13 Que. P.R. 413.

(§ 1—5)—BREACH OF CONTRACT—FORFEITURE OF DEPOSIT ACCOMPANYING TENDER—LIQUIDATED DAMAGES.

A stipulation in an advertisement for tenders that a deposit accompanying a tender for the construction of a public building should be forfeited if the person making the lowest tender refused to enter into a contract, will be regarded as a provision for a penalty and not for liquidated damages.

Brandon Construction Co. v. Saskatoon School Board, 13 D.L.R. 379, 25 W.L.R. 6, 6 S.L.R. 273, reversing on other grounds 5 D.L.R. 754.

BREACH OF CONTRACT.

Where a deed of sale of a partnership business contains a clause stipulating a penalty in the event of the vendor carrying on business within certain limits to the prejudice of the buyer, the proof of a single act of sale by the vendor for a very small price (e.g. $3.63) does not constitute such a carrying on of business by the vendor as would entitle him to the stipulated penalty.

Ledoux v. Hill, 8 D.L.R. 894, 19 Rev. de Jur. 350.

FORFEITURES — BREACH OF CONTRACT TO CONVEY—REMISSION.

Provision in an agreement to convey, for automatic forfeiture of the contract on mere default by the purchaser, will be relieved against as being in the nature of a penalty.

Massey v. Walker, 11 D.L.R. 278, 23 Man. L.R. 563, 24 W.L.R. 168.

BREACH OF CONTRACT.

When a contract for the sale and delivery of materials provides that a penalty of $25 a day shall be due and payable by the seller, as liquidated damages, in case of failure to make complete delivery within a specified time, if the buyer continues to take delivery thereafter, without protest, and to make payments amounting to the sum he would be entitled to charge under the penal clause, he is presumed to have renounced the same and cannot set up a claim thereby by a cross-demand, in a suit brought against him.

Wighton v. Hitch, 44 Que. S.C. 128.

(§ 1-6)—BREACH OF CONTRACT.

An agreement between a municipal corporation and a resident ratepayer, that the question whether a hedge belonging to the latter and bordering on a highway, encroaches thereon and is a danger to the public, or not, be referred to a committee empowered to decide what shall be done, with a clause that the ratepayer shall pay a penalty of $100, if he refuses to carry out the decision of the committee, is lawful and binding and gives the power to the corporation, in case of refusal of the ratepayer to carry it out, not only to recover the penalty but to perform, itself, the work decided upon. Hence, if such work is the cutting away of a certain portion of the hedge that encroaches on the highway, the right of the corporation is not limited to the recovery of the penalty, or to a suit for specific performance, or for damages for breach of contract, but it may, itself, carry out the recommendation of the committee, and the ratepayer, in these circumstances, has no action to recover damages for trespass or for the cutting of his hedge.

JURISDICTION AS TO REMISSION—FINES AND FORFEITURES ACT.

The jurisdiction given by s. 6 of the Fines and Forfeitures Act, R.S.O. 1914, c. 99, to "the court or judge having cognizance of the proceedings for the recovery" of a fine, penalty, or forfeiture, to remit, "such fine, penalty, or forfeiture," cannot be exercised, where the action to recover the fine, penalty, or forfeiture, is brought in the Supreme Court of Ontario, by the Master in Chambers; but may be exercised by a judge, sitting in court, at any time after the commencement of the action.

PEREMPTION (QUEBEC)

See also Dismissal and Discontinuance. GENERALLY.

An opposition to judgment, when entertained, is a plea to the action and its object is to have the judgment set aside. The defendant opposing has a right to ask for dismissal of the action if no effective steps have been taken within two years from the date when his opposition was filed.

Montreal Baseball & Amusement Co. v. Grant, 13 Que. P.R. 178.

As there can be no peremption against the Crown, it will be refused in a penal action although the plaintiff sues as well in his own name as in that of the Crown, the claim being indivisible. Semble, on the hearing of a motion for peremption of a qui tam action the defendant is not entitled to ask for dismissal of the action on the ground that the plaintiff could not sue jointly with the King.

Mason v. Ledoux, 13 Que. P.R. 386; Lamontagne v. Galbraith, 13 Que. P.R. 397.

PROCEDURE—PEREMPTION OF INSTANCE — REGISTRY—C.C.P., ART. 279, 283.

As long as a cause inscribed for inquiry and hearing is not crossed off the role, there is no peremption of instance.

Sayer v. McDougall, 25 Rev. Leg. 334.

Under R.S.Q., 1888, the plaintiff in a qui tam action is the legal representative of the Crown suing for a penalty and therefore such action cannot be perempted (nonsuited) after two years have gone by without any steps being taken to bring the case on to trial, as peremption does not lie against the Crown.

Mason v. Ledoux, 2 D.L.R. 50.

AS TO QUI TAM ACTION.

An action to recover a fine taken under the provisions of art. 7442, R.S.Q. 1909, whether in the name of the claimant or in that of the Crown, is not subject to peremption d'instance for discontinuance for 10 years.

MOTION FOR.

A motion for peremption, presented to the court and adjudicated upon by being put hors de délibéré, is a useful proceeding and covers peremption.

Tisi v. Filion, 60 Que. S.C. 472.

DELAY—CONSENT.

The filing of a plea long after its service, and even after the filing of the replication, is a useful proceeding which interrupts peremption, especially if the defendant has never complained of this delay and the parties seem to have given a reciprocal consent to the filing of their pleadings after the legal delay.

Clark v. Taylor, 18 Que. P.R. 290.

TIME—TRANSFER OF CAUSE.

Where a declinatory exception has been maintained and the record ordered transmitted to the district in which the judge has jurisdiction, the time limited for peremption of the cause is suspended and does not begin to run until the date of the receipt of the record at the office of the court of that district.

Provincial Fire Ins. Co. v. Carbray, 25 Que. K.E. 140.

WANT OF PROSECUTION—COPIES OF PLEADINGS.

The production of a copy of the declaration, for the use of the judge, is a useful and even necessary proceeding, which will cause a motion for peremption for not prosecuting the action for 2 years to be dismissed.

Cook v. Dubois, 18 Que. P.R. 131.

SETTLEMENT PENDING.

Negotiations for settlement between the parties legally proved to the satisfaction of the court will prevent a motion for peremption to prevail.

Myers v. Rideau Shoe, 18 Que. P.R. 133.

Carriere v. Lindsay, 12 Que. P.R. 406.

CHANGE OF ATTORNEY—PRESCRIPTION—INTERRUPTION.

A motion for change of attorney made by the defendant to an action in consequence of a change in the personnel of the firm is a proceeding which interrupts the running of prescription.

Gorey v. C.P.R. Co., 12 Que. P.R. 230.

PEREMPTION OF SUIT — CROSS-DEMAND — COMPENSATION.

Carrier v. Easton, 12 Que. P.R. 277.

MOTION FOR—NOTICE—SERVICE—VACATION.

On a motion for peremption of an action, served July 5 and returnable September 10, the proceedings as they appeared on the record were: "Issue joined by reply to plea on June 29." Neither party had inscribed for proof and hearing within the 3 days following June 29, the date of the reply to the plea (C.C.P. art. 293), so that this reply was the last proceeding on the record. Held, since the 3 days to inscribe the case (art. 293) expired in vacation (art. 15) on July 2, the delay was forcibly extended to September 2, since June 30 was the only judicial day which could count in computing the delay. Not being compelled to proceed to trial between June 30 and September 1 (art. 10) the peremption was interrupted. It could only commence on September 3, and in consequence, the defendant's motion served July 5, should be refused as premature.

Richstone v. Right, 24 Rev. de Jur. 33, 19 Que. P.R. 266.

CASE INSCRIBED AND REFERRED.

If a case is referred to a judge, such reference is a useful proceeding which interrupts peremption.

Pinkerton v. Burns, 19 Que. P.R. 209.

LEAVE TO FILE DEFENCE—DELAY.

Permission to file a defence long overdue, and after an inscription for proof ex parte, implies the obligation, on the part of the defendant, of filing it the same day; if he does not do so, and the prothonotary, for this reason, refuses to receive a reply and an inscription, the defendant who filed his defence later, without the knowledge of the plaintiff, cannot, after 2 years have elapsed since such filing, apply for peremption of the action.

Marsil v. McDonald, 20 Que. P.R. 277.

CHANGE OF PARTIES.

If one suing in a certain capacity is removed and replaced, and the defendant has been notified of that fact, the latter cannot, after the expiration of two years from the service of such notice, ask that the action be perempted. His duty is to proceed against the new appointee and continue the action.

Hains v. Tooke, 20 Que. P.R. 167.

INSOLVENCY—EFFECT.

An abandonment of property by a defendant has not the effect of interrupting peremption of the action.

Robidoux v. Denis, 19 Que. P.R. 172.

VERBAL EVIDENCE—DATE OF SERVICE OF PROCEEDINGS—ANSWER ILLEGALLY FILED—C.C.P. 205, 299—C.C. QUE. 1233.

Verbal evidence is allowed to establish the priority of date between a demand for peremption and the service of an act interrupting the peremption. Such a fact must be deemed to be in the class of those of which no written evidence could ever be obtained. An answer to a plea filed after the delays, and without the opposite party's consent or the judge's permission, is an illegal proceeding which does not prevent the peremption.

Canadian American Linotype Corp. v. C.P.R. Co., 15 Que. P.R. 369.

PEREMPTION OF ACTION—SUMMARY ACTION
 —PREMATURE—MOTION FOR PEREMPTION—QUE. C.C. 2240—CONFERENCES—QUE. C.P. 279, 280.

A motion for peremption served on March 20th, 1914, whilst the last proceeding on the record was the filing of the plea on March 18th, 1912, is premature, because the plaintiff might have inscribed the case on March 20th, 1912, the latter date not being included in the 2 years. Conferences of which there is no written proof cannot interrupt the course of peremption.

Leger v. Leblou, 15 Que. P.R. 401.

(§ 1-6)—JURY TRIAL—CASE REFERRED TO FIX DATE OF TRIAL—QUE. C.P. 280.

If, on the day fixed for a jury trial, one of the parties cannot proceed, and if the record, referred to the chief justice to fix the date, has never been transmitted to him, there is a suspension of proceedings preventing the peremption of action.

Poirier v. Quebec & Lake St. John R. Co., 16 Que. P.R. 254.

MOTION FOR RULE NISI—C.P. 279.

A motion for rule nisi is not an "instance."

LeHuray v. Abrahamson, 13 Que. P.R. 68.

NOTICE TO ATTORNEY—JURISDICTION—PRACTICE—COSTS.

A motion for staying an action, served on each of the attorneys of the plaintiff formerly in partnership, at the office of the senior of these attorneys, is properly served. Such a motion may be presented for hearing before the Practice Court which has jurisdiction to decide it. If negotiations for settlement have taken place the delay for peremption begins to run anew from the date of the last letter exchanged. Failure to pay the costs of a prior motion for peremption which was refused cannot be set up against the presentation of a new motion for the same purpose.

Staszo v. Montreal Stockyards Co., 18 Que. P.R. 162.

SERVICE OF MOTION—FIRM OF ATTORNEYS.

If a firm of attorneys is dissolved a motion for peremption served on one only of its members will be dismissed.

Offord v. Wisintainer, 18 Que. P.R. 318.

PAYMENT.

If a claim has been paid there can be no order for peremption of the action brought to recover it even on the application of a defendant other than the one who made the payment.

Rosenthal v. Stober, 18 Que. P.R. 444.

INTERRUPTION—DATE OF SERVICE—PAROL EVIDENCE.

Peremption can only be declared by the court on a motion valid in form. The re-inscription or the removal of the cause from the record interrupts the peremption. When a motion for peremption and a re-inscription or removal of the cause from the roll have been served on the same day between 9 and 10 a.m., and there is nothing to shew which of the two was first served, the court should in case of doubt ascribe the priority to the one interrupting the peremption. On contestation of the truth of a procès-verbal of service in conformity with art. 236 C.C.P. oral evidence will be admitted for the purpose of establishing the priority of date between the service of the demand for peremption and the service of a proceeding interrupting peremption.

Chapman v. Russell Shale Bricks, 18 Que. P.R. 421.

INTERRUPTION—PARTICULARS.

The filing of particulars ordered by the court, although made a long time after the date fixed and without the consent of the opposite party, is a useful proceeding which interrupts the peremption.

STATEMENT UNDER OATH OF OFFICE.

R. v. Tremblay, 35 D.L.R. 209, 26 Que. K.B. 37, 28 Can. Cr. Cas. 21.

II. Elements of offence.

KNOWLEDGE OF FALSITY.

The corroboration required on a charge of perjury need only be as to the falsity of the previous deposition, although the circumstances may be such that to prove guilt a further element must be shewn such as the knowledge of the accused that the party with whom he claimed he had entered into a contract on behalf of another had in fact no authority to do so.

R. v. Nash, 17 D.L.R. 725, 23 Can. Cr. Cas. 38, 7 A.L.R. 449, 6 W.W.R. 1390, 28 W.L.R. 960. [Affirmed, 8 W.W.R. 632.]

A conviction for perjury that follows the precedent of form 64 (c) of the Schedule to Cr. Code need not allege that the deponent had knowledge of the falsity of the testimony on which the charge is founded.

R. v. Yee Mook, 13 D.L.R. 220, 21 Can. Cr. Cas. 490, 6 A.L.R. 231, 4 W.W.R. 1342.

When an indictment or a charge under the Speedy Trials clauses alleges perjury in that the accused had previously voted on an election day and with intent to vote again on that day had sworn that he had not already voted, there is implied in such allegation that he is charged with making the false oath "wilfully and corruptly" or "knowingly," and the form of the charge will be sufficient under such circumstances as the charge contains in substance a "statement that the accused has committed some indictable offence therein specified" (Cr. Code, s. 852), although it does not in terms state the offence as done "wilfully and corruptly" (Cr. Code, s. 172) or "with knowledge of the falsity of the assertion."

R. v. Morrison, 28 D.L.R. 113, 26 Can. Cr. Cas. 26, 49 N.S.R. 446.

EVIDENCE THROUGH INTERPRETER — SUBSTANCE OF ANSWERS TRANSCRIBED.

On a charge of perjury against a witness speaking in a foreign tongue, it is not essential that the prosecution should prove that every word uttered by the witness in the witness-box had been translated by the interpreter and repeated by him in English so as to be placed upon the official stenographer's notes; it is enough that the court is satisfied on the interpreter's testimony in the perjury trial that he repeated in English all that was material of what the accused had said in a foreign language.

R. v. Bogh Singh, 12 D.L.R. 626, 18 B. Cr. 144, 21 Can. Cr. Cas. 323, 21 W.L.R. 941.

Notwithstanding the method of administering an oath to a witness lies within the control of the Trial Judge, upon a subsequent prosecution for perjury the sufficiency of the manner of administering the oath on the trial in which the perjury is alleged to have been committed, is to be decided by the judge presiding at the perjury trial.

R. v. Lee Tuck, 5 D.L.R. 629, 19 Can. Cr. Cas. 471, 4 A.L.R. 388, 21 W.L.R. 669, 2 W.W.R. 605.

AUTHORITY TO ADMINISTER — JUDICIAL PROCEEDINGS.

Where a person acted de facto as a registrar under the Manhood Suffrage Act, 7 Edw. VII. (Ont.) c. 5, without objection and under colour of right as having been appointed by the only statutory member of the Board of Registrars then officially acting, the administration of the qualification oath by the registrar so appointed to an applicant applying to be registered as a voter takes place in "judicial proceedings" within the meaning of s. 171 of the Cr. Code, so as to found a charge of perjury in respect of wilfully false and misleading statements sworn to by the applicant, whether or not such de facto registrar had been regularly appointed. [Drew v. The King, 6 Can. Cr. Cas. 424, 33 Can. S.C.R. 228, followed.]

R. v. Mitchell; R. v. West, 10 D.L.R. 717, 27 O.L.R. 615.

FALSE STATUTORY DECLARATION.

A statutory declaration, made in the form provided by the Canada Evidence Act, by the assured, wherein he states the loss by fire, of the goods insured under a fire insurance policy and assigns a value to same is a "solemn declaration," which the assured is "required or authorized by law" to make, within the terms of Cr. Code, s. 175, and the declarant is liable to conviction under s. 175, if statements therein contained would amount to perjury if made in a judicial proceeding, the same being known by him to be false and being intended by him to mislead the insurance company or its adjuster.

R. v. Nier, 28 D.L.R. 373, 25 Can. Cr. Cas. 241, 9 A.L.R. 353, 33 W.L.R. 180.

FALSE OATH AT ELECTION—ADMINISTERING—DE FACTO OFFICER.

A charge of perjury in taking a false oath, at a municipal election held under the Towns Incorporation Act, R.S.N.S., c. 71, that the deponent had not previously voted at the election, will not be quashed because it does not specifically set out the appointment by the municipality of the election officer which it names as the "presiding officer" for the polling subdivision before whom the alleged false oath was taken; Cr. Code, s. 862 makes it unnecessary to state the nature of the authority of the tribunal before which the oath was taken and the charge sufficiently indicated the person described as "presiding officer" was acting as such under an appointment made in pursuance of the Towns Incorporation Act. [See annotation on "Authority to administer extra-judicial oaths," 28 D.L.R. 122.]

R. v. Morrison, 28 D.L.R. 113, 26 Can. Cr. Cas. 26, 49 N.S.R. 446.

FORM AND MAKING OF OATH.

A Chinaman cannot be convicted of perjury where, when presented as a witness in the case in which the false testimony was alleged to have been given, in response to a question from the clerk of the court, the accused stated that he was a Christian and that he desired to be sworn upon the Bible, but, under the directions of the Trial Judge, without further inquiry or any assent on the part of the Chinaman, the clerk administered the Chinese oath by burning paper, as under such circumstances no binding oath was administered.

R. v. Lee Tuck, 5 D.L.R. 629, 19 Can. Cr. Cas. 471, 4 A.L.R. 388, 21 W.L.R. 669, 2 W.W.R. 605.

FORM OF OATH—UPLIFTED HAND.

A witness who testifies to what he knows to be false is guilty of perjury, although, without being asked if he had any objection to being sworn in the usual manner, but without objecting to the form used, he was directed to take the oath by raising his right hand instead of kissing the Bible.

Curry v. The King, 15 D.L.R. 347, 48 Can. S.C.R. 532, 22 Can. Cr. Cas. 391, affirming 12 D.L.R. 13, 21 Can. Cr. Cas. 273, 47 N.S.R. 176.

PROCEEDINGS ON WHICH OATH IS ADMINISTERED.

The fact that the witness, although sworn by the prothonotary was actually examined in the robing-room and not in the presence of the prothonotary or a judge, is immaterial when neither party raised any objection to the mode of examination at the time. A person who makes a statement on oath knowing it to be false, upon examination on discovery under art. 286 C.C.P., is guilty of perjury.

The King v. Howley, 20 Can. Cr. Cas. 26.

PROCEEDINGS HELD WITHOUT AUTHORITY—TAKING EX PARTE STATEMENT OF PERSON FOUND IN ILLEGAL POSSESSION OF LIQUOR.

The obligation imposed on a person found with liquor in his possession to disclose on oath or affirmation the source from which he obtained it (Intoxicating Liquors Act, 1916, N.B. s. 179) does not arise unless such person admits having drunk liquor on the same day. Where there has been no such admission the magistrate has no authority to require the disclosure under s. 179 of that act and perjury cannot be assigned under Cr. Code, s. 172 (a) for false statements in a solemn declaration purporting to be made under that Act, and semble, not under Cr. Code, ss. 170, 171 as the proceeding was not a "judicial proceeding" within the Code definition.

III. Proof.

FALSE DEPOSITION—PROOF—RECORD.

Where the deposition containing the false statement charged as perjury forms part of the record of a superior court of record, and is certified and attested by the official stenographer, it is proved by the production of such record; the additional oral testimony of a witness that he had heard the accused make, under oath, the statements charged to be false is not made necessary by Cr. Code, s. 1002.

Spires v. The King, 28 D.L.R. 146, 25 Can. Cr. Cas. 172, 24 Que. K.B. 547.

STATUTORY INVESTIGATION BEFORE A COMMISSIONER.

It is error constituting ground for setting aside the acquittal of the accused and for ordering a new trial upon a charge of perjury before a statutory commissioner that the judge trying the case without a jury (speedy trials clauses) declined to take cognizance of the original record of a superior court produced by its officer for inspection unless the latter would deliver the same up to be filed, where such record was material to prove the proceedings in which the perjury was charged to have been committed and the prosecutor tendered a copy for filing.

R. v. Judge, 24 Can. Cr. Cas. 354, 24 Que. K.B. 115.

CORROBORATION.

On a charge of perjury the material particular for which corroboration is required is not the fact that the accused had sworn to the statement but that the statement itself was false. The appellant was convicted of perjury for swearing that "he did not get from one B. a cheque for four thousand dollars." B. swore that he gave the cheque in question to the appellant and the only evidence relied on as corroborative of his was that of one S., bank manager, who swore that he cashed the cheque for the appellant. Held, that the evidence of B. was "corroborated in some material particular . . . implicating the accused," by the evidence of S. as required by s. 1002 Cr. Code.

INDEFINITE OPTION TO PURCHASE LAND.

An option to purchase land, at any time during the term of a 3-year lease, does not create a perpetual right; the rule against perpetuities has no application to an agreement of that kind.

Bennett v. Stodgell, 28 D.L.R. 639, 36 O.L.R. 45.

WILLS—MANITOBA TRUSTEE ACT—JURISDICTION TO DETERMINE WHETHER PERPETUITY CREATED.

Under ss. 42-47 of the Manitoba Trustee Act, R.S.M. 1902, c. 170, permitting the court to give its opinion to or to advise or instruct trustees, the question whether a perpetuity is created by will cannot be determined. [Re Lorenz, 1 Dr. & S. 401; Re Hooper, 29 Beav. 656; Re Williams, 1 Ch. Chamb. 372, and Re Rally, 25 O.L.R. 112, followed.]

Re Crickton Estate, 13 D.L.R. 169, 23 Man. L.R. 594, 25 W.L.R. 18.

DETERMINING POINT OF TIME IN A WILL.

In considering a case in which the rule that a gift which creates or tends to create a perpetuity is void is invoked, it is not after-events that should be looked at, but the situation at the death of the testator;

it must then be seen that the event which is to bring about a final distribution is certain to fall within the period prescribed; if it is not, the gift is void; and the fact that subsequently the event did actually happen within the time, is of no consequence. Any gift not of a charitable nature, the purpose of which is to tie up property for an indefinite term, is void as creating a perpetuity.

Kennedy v. Kennedy, 11 D.L.R. 328, 28 O.L.R. 1, affirming on this point, 3 D.L.R. 536. [Affirmed, 13 D.L.R. 707, 24 O.W.R. 943.]

Re McLellan, 7 O.W.N. 447.

II. Remainders; powers; accumulations.

A bequest of income to the issue of a legatee in the event of her death before or after that of a testator, is not brought within the rule against perpetuities by reason of the fact that the legatee did not marry until after the testator's death; since the interest of the issue of the union under such bequest would of necessity vest within the period fixed by such rule. A testamentary direction that, on the death of a legatee to whom income was payable, it should be paid to his or her husband or wife if in needy circumstances, is not brought within the rule against perpetuities by reason of the fact that the legatee was unmarried at the testator's death; since the interest of the husband or wife would vest within the period fixed by the rule on the subsequent marriage of the legatee. [Hade v. Hale, 3 Ch. D. 643; Pearks v. Moseley, 5 A.C. 714, and Seaman v. Wood, 22 Beav. 591, distinguished.]

Re Crichton Estate, 13 D.L.R. 169, 23 Man. L.R. 594, 25 W.L.R. 18, 4 W.W.R. 1184.

Under the rule against perpetuities the mere possibility of the limit allowed by law being exceeded renders the whole provision of a will giving rise to the question void ab initio, thus precluding the splitting up of the clause with a view to giving effect to some of its parts to the exclusion of others.

Re Phillips, 11 D.L.R. 500, 28 O.L.R. 94.

An appointment under a power relates back to the instrument creating the power, and if the appointment would offend against the rule against perpetuities if made at the date of the instrument creating the power, it is bad; the test being properly made by treating the appointment as if written in the original instrument creating the power.

Re Elliot, 11 D.L.R. 34, 24 O.W.R. 494.

Where under a will a general power of appointment, exercisable by will only, is given to members of a stated class, for instance, grandchildren who may be born after the death of the testator at any time during the life of his widow, and the property is to go over in default of appointment, and such gift over is to take effect on the death of such unborn grandchildren, the provision in question is void as offending the rule against perpetuities.

(§ 1-1) — UNLAWFUL PRACTICE — ASSISTANT.

Consequently, the acts of an examiner for the above-named purposes, although he was illegally appointed, but is de facto in possession of the office, are valid. [O'Neill v. FEES—TARIFF.

There is no tariff in existence in the province of Quebec to determine what the charges of a physician may be. In the absence of any agreement, the court must in each case determine the fee to be paid by the patient, and, to do so, must take into consideration not only the standing of the physician but also the position, the earning power and the responsibilities of the patient.

(§ 1-7) — RIGHT TO PRACTICE — REVOCATION OF LICENSE.

Where statutory authority is conferred upon a medical council to cause an inquiry to be made by a standing committee of a limited number for the purpose of investigating a charge of misconduct against a member upon which it is sought to revoke his license to practice, and the statute further provides that the council shall "ascertain the facts" of the case by such committee and may act upon its written report upon proof of infamous or disgraceful conduct, it is not competent for the council to act upon a mere report of the evidence and proceedings before the committee unless such report be supplemented by a finding, and determination of the essential facts by the committee; nor is it competent for the council to itself determine such facts upon the evidence reported by the committee.

(§ 1-8) — PRACTISING WITHOUT LICENSE — STUDENT ASSISTING PHYSICIAN.

The effect of s. 63a, of the Medical Profession Act (Alta.) (amendment of 1911-12), is that a person who professes to practice medicine is to be held to actually practice; therefore an information or conviction is not irregular for charging that the accused "practiced or professed to practice medicine and surgery," such allegation being merely a statement of different modes of the offence within the curative provisions of Cr. Code, s. 725. [R. v. McDonald, 6 Can. Cr. Cas. 1; R. v. Brine, 8

Can. Cr. Cas. 54, and R. v. Brouse, 9 D.L.R. 458, 21 Can. Cr. Cas. 17, followed.] A medical student who himself prescribes for patients of the registered physician in the Province of Alberta, with whom he is associated as an assistant, and does such acts as would constitute the practice of medicine if done wholly on his own account, is liable for unlawfully practicing medicine in contravention of the Medical Profession Act, 1906 (Alta.), c. 28, as amended by 1911-12 c. 27, although he receives no remuneration from the registered practitioner for his work other than being supplied by the latter with free board and lodging.

Chiropactic treatment for disease is within the prohibition of the Medical Profession Act, R.S.N. 1909, c. 106, s. 64, if given by an unlicensed person for hire, gain or hope of reward; and a chiropractor doing business for gain is properly convicted if he has not been registered under the provisions of that Act.

II. Rights, duties, and liabilities.

(§ II—35)—COMPENSATION—SPECIAL FEES.

In considering an account of a physician, the court should be governed by the scientific position and of the reputation of the doctor, of the importance and duration of the treatment, of the financial position of the patient, of the gravity of the illness, of the distance of the patient's residence, of the previous relations between the doctor and his patient or his family, of the number and length of the visits and whether they were made in the day time or during the night. It is the custom that all applications of special instruments and all operations, even those of minor surgery, give a right to higher fees. There should also be allowed a fee to the regular physician of the patient for assistance at consultations. But a physician cannot include in his account fees for "daily attendance" on the ground that he was all the day at the disposition of the patient without proving that this was necessary and that he had notified the patient of it.

MUNICIPAL POWERS—APPROVAL OF PLAN.

Inadvertent action of a town council in approving a plan for a subdivision of land not shewing a public road previously dedicated by a land owner, does not affect the town's right to subsequently assert the existence of such highway, as against a purchaser of land adjoining the road who knew of its existence, and of the town's claim thereto, especially in view of the Land Titles Act, R.S.O. 1897, c. 138, s. 26, in force at the time of the filing of the plan, providing that all registered lands are to be subject to any public highway, etc., subsisting; and in view of the provisions of the Consolidated Municipal Act, 3 Edw. VII. (Ont.) c. 19, ss. 629, 632, for proceedings to close or dispose of public highways.

Larcher v. Sudbury, 11 D.L.R. 712, 24 O.W.R. 659, 4 O.W.N. 1289.

CROWN GRANT — NUMBERED LOTS — ASCERTAINING BOUNDARIES.

The boundaries of land described, in a Crown grant merely by lot number are to be determined by the official plan or survey of the district in which the land is located, and ambiguous markings upon the plan are to be interpreted with regard to the intention disclosed by the surrounding circumstances. APPROVAL BY STATUTORY AUTHORITY—ALTERATIVE POWERS OF MUNICIPAL COUNCIL AND COUNTY JUDGE.

The refusal of a town council to approve a plan for the subdivision of land does not preclude its approval by a judge of County Court, under the jurisdiction conferred by s. 80 of the Registry Act, 10 Edw. VII. c. 66, R.S.O. 1914, c. 124, which provides that plans shall be registered when approved by a municipal council or a judge of the County or District Court. Re Royston Park Subdivision and Steelton, 13 D.L.R. 454, 28 O.L.R. 629.

APPROVAL BY MUNICIPALITY OR BOARD—SUBURBAN SUBDIVISIONS.

The City and Suburbs Plans Act, 2 Geo. V. c. 43, is not retroactive in its intent, and the provisions requiring the submission of a plan proposed to be registered of any subdivision of land lying within five miles of a city having a population of not less than 50,000, to the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board for its approval, and forbidding sales of lots on such a plan by description referring to the plan, until such approval has been obtained, do not apply to the case of a plan of a survey completed and approved by the proper municipality before the passing of the Act, but not tendered for registration until afterwards.

Toronto v. Hill, 10 D.L.R. 639, 24 O.W.R. 388, 4 O.W.N. 1076.

SUBDIVISION PLANS—APPROVAL—OBJECTIONS — JURISDICTION OF ONT. MUNICIPAL BOARD.

The lapse of the period of twenty-one days specified in the City and Suburbs Plans Act, 2 Geo. V. (Ont.) c. 43, s. 7, without notice of objections being filed to a subdivision plan, does not bar the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board from giving leave to an objecting municipality to be heard in opposition to the proposed subdivision at any time before the board has certified its approval and the board may then, after hearing both parties, dispose of the application on the merits. The provision of s. 7 of the City and Suburbs Act, 2 Geo. V. (Ont.) c. 43, that if no objection is made and filed with the board within a limited period the applicant for approval of a subdivision plan "shall be entitled to have the plan certified as approved unless the board of its own motion shall have otherwise directed," does not limit the power of the board to "otherwise direct" to the period within which objections are to be filed, and does not entitle the applicant to a certificate as of right when objections have not been filed accordingly.

Re Canadian Building & Loan Ass'n and Hamilton, 10 D.L.R. 539, 4 O.W.N. 1185, 24 O.W.R. 858.

LAND SURVEYOR—ERROR IN PLAN—RESPONSIBILITY.

A land surveyor who undertakes to subdivide and stake out a piece of land in accordance with a general plan made by another surveyor, is not responsible for errors in such plan if not made by him, and when he had no reason to suspect the existence of such errors.

On the plaintiff applying for leave to proceed under subs. (4) of s. 5 of the War Relief Act, Amendment Act, 1918, the registrar referred the application to the judge in Chambers when the plaintiff included in his summons an application that he be at liberty to collect the rents of the premises in question in the action. (§ I C—20)—DEFINITENESS—PARTICULARITY—STATEMENT OF CLAIM—FACTS FROM WHICH MALICE INFERRED.

Although King's Bench Rule 331, R.S.M. 1913, c. 46, prescribes that a statement of claim, which alleges malice as a fact, need not set forth the facts from which malice may be inferred, yet the plaintiff may plead such facts if he sees fit.

JURIDICAL EXPRESSIONS.

It is not within the province of parties to an action to define expressions which are purely juridical, of which they may make use in their pleadings. The court will not grant a motion to this effect.

Saunders v. Deavitt, 15 Que. P.R. 329.

(§ I C—22)—PARTICULARITY—BREACH OF PROMISE—WHETHER VERBAL OR IN WRITING.

A plaintiff suing for breach of promise of marriage should set up in her statement of claim every material fact upon which she must rely to make out her cause of action; and the pleading should therefore disclose whether the alleged promise was verbal or in writing, and if it is claimed that the contract of marriage was broken by defendant's marriage to another, the date of such marriage should be pleaded.

Murray v. Thames Valley Garden Land Co., 24 O.W.R. 52.

(§ I C—27)—VALIDITY OF MUNICIPAL BY-LAW.

Where art. 697 Mun. Code, provides that "the promulgation of every municipal by-law is considered to have been sufficiently made until the contrary is alleged," it is not necessary that this allegation should be made in an action at law but it is sufficient that the interested party be informed by the municipal council of the irregularity; consequently, the value of work done by a contractor under a contract based on such a by-law after notice of the irregularity has been given by the council but before any action to set aside the contract or by-law is taken cannot be recovered.

CONDITIONAL SALE—HIRING.

When a plaintiff, on a motion for authorization to sue a married woman, alleges that he conditionally sold furniture to her, he cannot be allowed, in his answer to the defence, to claim that it was a hiring he made.

Levitt v. Lachasse, 49 Que. S.C. 329.

In an action to recover the purchase price of a hay press which the plaintiff alleges to have sold and delivered to the defendant, the plaintiff cannot amend his declaration in such a manner as to allege further that the machine in question is at the disposal and risk of the defendant; as such an amendment would entirely change the nature of the action and would be inconsistent with its allegations.

International Harvester Co. v. Ratelle, 18 Rev. de Jur. 458.

PRELIMINARY EXCEPTION — PREUVE AVANT FAIRE DROIT—INCOMPATIBLE DEMANDS—OPTION—C.C.P. ART. 166 s. 7.

On a preliminary exception the court cannot order "preuve avant faire droit." An action brought against a municipality in order to declare void a by-law passed by its municipal council to fill the then vacant place of an alderman, and against the nominee for alderman, to declare him incapable of occupying this position, does not contain two incompatible and contradictory demands; and a dilatory exception that the plaintiff should have the option of choosing between the two demands must be rejected.

Sorel v. Brousseau, 25 Rev. Leg. 162.

F. CONCLUSIONS.

(§ I F—40)—INSCRIPTION IN LAW.

An inscription in law which does not contain conclusions will be rejected by the court of its own motion if the objection is not raised.

Burnter Coal Co. v. Gano Moore & Co., 19 Que. P.R. 291.

NEGATORY ACTION — ADJOINING OWNERS — DRIPPING FROM ROOFS.

The conclusions in a negatory action, praying that the plaintiff's property "be declared free from all servitude or encumbrance as to the defendant and his property" and that the defendant be ordered to give up the works constituting the servitude complained of, are sufficient to form the basis of an executory judgment, without the necessity of claiming also the authorization to undertake such works should the defendant not attend to them. Neighbours, whose properties are so close to each other that the dripping water of the roofs of their houses may alternately splash back on the sides of one or the other house and deteriorate them, must comply with the local custom of putting up a common gutter for both houses in order to prevent the water from penetrating the sides of the house. One refusing to do so will not be allowed to direct a negatory action against his neighbour.
Can. Dig.—113.

Poulin v. Houde, 53 Que. S.C. 145.

PARTIES.

If a party has interest in being notified of an action, he cannot complain by way of exception to the form that no conclusions have been taken against him.

Legault v. Charbonneau, 19 Que. P.R. 218.

DISCONTINUANCE — CONFESSION OF JUDGMENT — COSTS.

A plaintiff may discontinue a portion of the conclusions of his declaration, even by a proceeding other than a discontinuance properly so called. It is not necessary that the document containing such discontinuance should state that the discontinuance will be made with costs against the plaintiff. After service of a discontinuance a defendant cannot then confess judgment in accordance with that part of the conclusions which the plaintiff has discontinued.

Equitable Realty v. Roy, 20 Que. P.R. 171.

RELEVANT FACTS.

Parties to an action may, by their pleadings, submit deductions, for instance, that of an admission. The court will decide whether such a deduction is logical. The renting of an office by the plaintiff, the engagement by him of a manager, and loss of time, may be pleaded as grounds for special damages for nonfulfilment of a contract. A plaintiff may plead the defendants' failure to assist where it might render them liable in a larger amount. A plaintiff may allege that he would have found purchasers for his shares if the defendants had allowed the purchasers' agents to make a trial of the mine. An action against the defendants for refusing to allow such trials, and the settlement of such an action, are relevant facts in the case. It is not permissible to plead that a corporation has acted in spite of the advice of its lawyer, who is a member of its board of directors.

G. DEFECTS WAIVED OR CURED; TIME FOR OBJECTIONS.

(§ I G—50)—OPPOSITION — MINOR — C.C. QUE. 304.

An opposant who makes his opposition and swears to it the 16th day of July, and only gives notice of it on the 19th of the same month, when he is 21 years of age, is legally before the court.

Pouliot v. Bernard, 46 Que. S.C. 335.

(§ I G—51)—HEIRS SUED COLLECTIVELY—APPEAL — FAMILY COUNCIL — TARIFF
— C.C. QUE. 306 — C.C.P., 135.

A defendant's right to sue collectively, and without special designation, the heirs of a deceased person within the 6 months, does not prevent the heirs, if they are minors, from obtaining, before appealing from the judgment given against them, the authorization of the family council homologated by a judge or the prothonotary of the district of their domicile. An inscription in appeal delivered without authority will not be set aside, but time will be given to the appellants to rectify the procedure. If a motion to set aside an inscription is granted for costs only, delay will be given to the appellant to rectify his procedure, the defendant's attorney has a right only to the fee upon and relating to the motion and not to the fee for an abandoned appeal nor the fee for examination, inscription and security.

(§ I G—52)—CURED BY OPPONENT'S PLEAD-ING.

A writ cannot be deemed to be specially indorsed and need not be amended, because it is not intitled "statement of claim," nor signed by counsel, and omitting the words "delivered, etc.," and an objection upon an undue extension of an indorsement upon the writ should be raised by motion before the delivery of the defence.

H. EXHIBITS; PROPERTY; OVER.

(§ I H—60)—PRODUCTION OF DOCUMENTS — COSTS.

If one party declares under oath that the original of a document designated by him in support of a pleading is not in his possession, he will be barred of the right to file it, and the adjudication of the costs, which might result to the adverse party in the course of the action from the default to produce the original of the document with the pleading which designates it, will be reserved for the judge who decides the case on the merits.

PROMISSORY NOTE — TENDER AND DEPOSIT WITH REPLY.

Although it may be irregular to only tender and deposit with the reply to a defence note which should have accompanied the declaration, the court will permit them to be so tendered and deposited when the interest of justice demands it in the particular circumstances in which the parties are placed.

Finlay v. Boileau, 48 Que. S.C. 444.

I. PARTICULARS.

(§ I I—65)—ORDERING PARTICULARS—EM-PLOYER'S LIABILITY ACT.

In a workman's action to recover from his employer damages for personal injuries due to the alleged defective conditions of a crane used in building operations, the plaintiff may be ordered to give particulars of what he was doing at the time the accident occurred and, to the extent of his knowledge thereof, particulars also of the alleged breakage causing the injury. The principle upon which an order for particulars may be refused where the case depends upon the doctrine of res ipsa loquitur does not apply to prevent the order being made where the plaintiff has not framed his pleadings on that doctrine exclusively, but has voluntarily set out a statement in the nature of particulars of negligence leading up to the accident; in such case if the statement of particulars in the pleading is insufficient, further particulars should be ordered.

Proctor v. Parsons Bldg. Co., 10 D.L.R. 30, 23 W.L.R. 716, reversing 9 D.L.R. 692, 23 W.L.R. 535, 4 W.W.R. 48.

ESTABLISHING ALLEGATIONS OR CLAIMS — BURDEN OF PROOF — ORDER FOR PAR-TICULARS, WHEN REFUSED.

In an action by plaintiff claiming that his property had been sold for taxes wrongfully claimed as due and unpaid, and that such sale was made without any power or authority in the township making the sale, an order for particulars giving the details in the authority of the township to sell will not be made on defendant's application. [Turner v. Sutfrey, 16 B.C.R. 79, followed.]

WHEN ORDERED — TRANSACTIONS WITHIN KNOWLEDGE OF PARTY DEMANDING.

In an action between husband and wife for a separation of community property which the wife alleged the husband was disposing of and concealing, the plaintiff will be required to give particulars of her claim notwithstanding that the defendant must of necessity have knowledge of all transactions relating thereto, where the plaintiff's allegations in her statement of claim are of a general nature, without stating time, place or circumstances pertaining to the matters pleaded.

Hall v. Stone, 13 D.L.R. 537, 15 Que. P.R. 113.

PARTICULARS — RAILWAY ACCIDENT — DEATH, LORD CAMPBELL'S ACT.

In an action for damages against a railway company occasioned by the derailment and wrecking of a train, it is not necessary to particularly specify, on a claim for general damages, the negligence alleged in the particulars of claim; the fact that damage is done by something getting out of control which normally is, or ought to be, under control, raises a presumption or rational inference of fact, that the accident is due to the negligence of the user or his servants, and an order by a master for further particulars thereon cannot be supported, the occurrence itself when proved warranting a finding of negligence. In an action under the Fatal Accidents Act, 1 Geo. V. c. 33 R.S.O. 1914, c. 351, an order for a statement of particulars from the parents of the benefits received from their son during his lifetime should not be made as it would be compelling the plaintiffs to give particulars of the evidence by which they intended to support their claim.

Mulvenna v. C.P.R. Co., 15 D.L.R. 616, 5 O.W.N. 779.

LORD CAMPBELL'S ACT — CONTRAVENTION OF RAILWAY RULES BY COMPANY.

In an action against a railway company under Lord Campbell's Act for negligence causing death, an order should not be made that the plaintiff deliver particulars of the railway company's rules and regulations in contravention of which the plaintiff claimed a defective and improper system was maintained in leaving switches unprotected which had led to the personal injury which caused the death.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION CASES.

Section 15 of the Workmen's Compensation for Injuries Act, R.S.O. 1897, c. 160, R.S.O. 1914, c. 146, requiring that where the injury complained of has arisen by reason of the negligence of any person in the defendants' service, particulars shall be given by the plaintiff of the name and description of such person, applies only where the claim is based on some specific act of misconduct on the part of a fellow-servant, and is not intended to shift the onus thrown on the defendant in cases where the plaintiff can rely upon the res ipsa loquitur rule.

Pierce v. G.T.R. Co., 16 D.L.R. 69, 5 O. W.N. 962.

STATEMENT OF CLAIM.

In an action for damages against a municipality for having notified the plaintiff, a contractor for city works, not to proceed and for having refused to furnish cars under the contract and for removing the plaintiff's plant, the plaintiff may be ordered to furnish the best particulars he can of the manner in which, the time when and the place where the defendant notified the plaintiff not to proceed, and the manner in which, the time and place where the defendant refused to furnish cars. Rhinard v. Ginther, 28 D.L.R. 628, 34 W.L.R. 69, 10 W.W.R. 181.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT — QUE. C.P. ACT. 123.

The declaration required by art. 123 C.P. is general. The law nowhere makes any exception to the rule for an action brought under the Workmen's Compensation Act (Que.). Particulars must be furnished on the nature of the accident which is alleged to have caused the injury; when and by whom the plaintiff was engaged in the employ of the defendant; the nature of his employment and the check number under which he worked; the nature of the injuries which the plaintiff suffered; how and why the plaintiff pretends that his incapacity is permanent.

Biglands v. John McDougall Caledonian Works Co., 20 D.L.R. 979, 16 Que. P.R. 114.

Where a statement of claim alleges fraudulent misrepresentations inducing the purchase of shares and the statement of defence sets up laches and acquiescence, and the reply alleges that the delay in bringing the action was caused by "further misrepresentations," it is not a satisfactory answer to a demand for particulars of the reply to say that such particulars are sufficiently set out in the reply, statement of claim, and particulars of the statement of claim already furnished. A provision in an order for particulars that they may be given after examination for discovery is not proper where the facts must be within the knowledge of the party from whom the particulars are sought. That party may, in a proper case, obtain leave after discovery to deliver further particulars, but the case ought to be presented upon the pleadings and ancillary particulars before discovery is had.

CONTRIBUTORY NEGLIGENCE.

An order for particulars of contributory negligence should not be granted unless the party applying satisfies the court that he is likely to be taken by surprise by some accusation or evidence which may be brought against him and which he cannot be prepared to meet unless he is told of it beforehand.

Gillingham v. Lewis, 21 D.L.R. 470, 48 N.S.R. 233.

OVER-PAYMENTS — FRAUD.

In an action by a provincial government for the recovery of over-payments under contracts for the construction of a new Parliament building, also charging fraud and conspiracy, the defendant is entitled to particulars of the amounts claimed to be overpaid, and of the fraudulent representations charged, particularly where they are not within the defendant's knowledge and there is nothing to shew that the plaintiff cannot set out what they are. [Sim's v. Slater, 10 C.L.T. 227; Whyte v. Ahrens, 26 Ch. D. 717; Leitch v. Abbott, 31 Ch. Div. 374; Sachs v. Speilman, 37 Ch. D. 295, applied.]

STATEMENT OF CLAIM — NEGLIGENCE — DISCOVERY.

O'Dell v. London, 14 O.W.N. 201.

MOTION FOR — AFFIDAVIT — NEGLIGENCE — BY-LAWS.

A motion for particulars does not need to be supported by a statement under oath. A defendant charged with negligence has a right to know the act or acts for which he is blamed. Where the negligence consists of the violation of municipal by-laws it is not necessary to point out what by-law has been violated, nor in what the violation consists.

Perrault v. Lacombe, 19 Que. P.R. 174.

LOSS OF PROFITS — TIME — COSTS.

A plaintiff suing for loss of profits cannot be compelled to shew in detail what profits could have been made or to furnish a statement of receipts and expenses upon which he made his calculations. He may, however, be compelled to state the number of days he had lost in order to complete the contract; the cost of deed which he had prepared and the amount of commissions he had to pay to procure the necessary funds to complete the sum required; but not the name of the person to whom he had paid such commission. If both parties partially succeed in their respective claims, the costs of a motion for particulars may be set off.

Brown v. Dupuis, 19 Que. P.R. 319.

CAPIAS.

Upon an application for a capias, as in all other proceedings, the party attacked has a right to demand particulars necessary to enable him to frame his defence.

Stackhouse v. Lorimer, 19 Que. P.R. 480.

STATEMENT OF CLAIM — EX PARTE ORDER — SETTING ASIDE — APPEAL — SUBSTANTIVE APPLICATION — TIME FOR DELIVERY OF DEFENCE — EXTENSION.

Herwood v. Canadian Oak Leather Co., 11 O.W.N. 421.

STATEMENT OF DEFENCE — R. 141 — "MATERIAL FACTS."

Redmond v. Stacey, 13 O.W.N. 79, affirmed at p. 179. [See also id. p. 206.]

SUFFICIENCY.

If the particulars furnished are not as complete and precise as required by the judgment ordering them, but the party swears that he cannot furnish them more fully and explains why, it will be for the Trial Judge to say whether or not the adversary has been taken by surprise and whether or not the enquête should be adjourned to enable the necessary facts to be supplied.

Kawri'ko v. Gloucester Lumber & Trading Co., 18 Que. P.R. 199.

RIGHT TO.

A defendant cannot demand particulars before he is released from the consequences of his failure to plead.

Frank v. Magalnick, 18 Que. P.R. 277.

MOTION TO REJECT — AMENDMENT.

A defendant barred of the right to plead cannot demand the rejection of the particulars furnished. A plaintiff can without costs amend his declaration at the same time that he furnishes the particulars required of him.

De Felice v. Rolph, 18 Que. P.R. 308.

TIME.

Every demand for particulars, based upon the ground that the petitioner has need of greater details to plead or reply to a plea, should be made and filed within the delay required by law or an additional delay granted by the court to reply to the merits of this proceeding alleged to be insufficiently detailed or itemized. A party barred from filing a plea cannot demand details or particulars of the pleading in respect to which he is in default.

Stark v. Anson, 18 Que. P.R. 156.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT OF DEBT.

One who alleges that the opposite party has often acknowledged that he owes him a certain sum, will be compelled to state when and in what manner this acknowledgment was made and whether it was verbal or in writing.

Boucher v. Brown, 18 Que. P.R. 347.

AFFIDAVIT.

A motion for particulars need not be supported by affidavit. If the plaintiff complains that the defendant had not delivered to him the movables (choses in action) that he had agreed to deliver to him and that the plaintiff had been obliged to give to his purchasers other similar more costly movables, the plaintiff will be obliged to disclose the names of the persons to whom he had resold the obligations in question and the names, professions and domiciles of the persons from whom he had been obliged to purchase the other obligations.

Thompson v. Provincial Trust Co., 18 Que. P.R. 477.

ACTION AGAINST DIRECTORS.

A defendant sued for the debt of the company in liquidation, of which he is a director, is entitled to receive all the particulars necessary to render clear and precise the allegations of the declaration, for example: Of the difference between the declared assets of the company and the real assets; the dates and the amounts of the advances made by the plaintiff bank to the company; of the dates, amounts and occasions of the loans which the directors had made to themselves out of the property of the company; of the obligations on which the directors are relieved as well against the company as against its shareholders and directors; and when, how and in favour of whom the directors have used the name of the company in business matters; when, how and to what creditors such director of the company has misrepresented its affairs and when and on what occasion he has fraudulently administered the affairs of the company; the dates, amounts and the nature of the loans made by the plaintiff to the company in question and the name of the person to whom these loans have been made.

Merchants Bank v. Blanchet, 18 Que. P.R. 293.

ACTION FOR CAUSING DEATH—DRUGGIST.

In an action for damages against a druggist causing the death of plaintiff's child, by substituting a poison for the remedy prescribed, the plaintiff may be ordered to indicate not only the prescription to be filled but as far as possible through the coroner's inquest or otherwise the poison which had been substituted.

Maurice v. Millette, 18 Que. P.R. 254.

ACTION IN WARRANTY.

A principal defendant who has pleaded to an action without demanding particulars cannot afterwards demand them on the ground that his defendant in warranty has demanded them from him.

Fiset v. Agricultural Co-operative Co. of Cheesemakers, 18 Que. P.R. 479.

DEMAND NOTE — PRESENTATION.

In an action upon a note payable upon demand the plaintiff can be compelled to indicate the time and place of presentation for payment.

Beauchemin v. Aubuchon, 18 Que. P.R. 193.

NECESSITY OF THE MOTION FOR — C.C.P. 123.

When a party must have had knowledge of the particulars asked for, and he does not allege the necessity of such particulars, a motion to dismiss the motion for particulars as unnecessary, will be granted.

Ship v. Crocker, 16 Que. P.R. 109.

TRAMWAYS — MODERN IMPROVEMENTS TO PROTECT PASSENGERS—C.C.P. 123.

A motion asking particulars on an allegation of the declaration that a car of a tramway company was not properly protected by modern, improved and well-known devices designed to protect passengers from falling under the wheels, will be granted.

Rothschild v. Montreal Tramway Co., 15 Que. P.R. 429.

AFFIDAVIT — NECESSITY OF — C.C.P. 123 — R. OF P. 47.

A motion for particulars, not being a preliminary plea but a special demand, must necessarily be supported by the affidavit required by the 47th Rule of Practice, since it is precisely for the purpose of dealing with facts which do not appear in the record. Such a demand can only be granted when it is necessary.

Larose v. Ainey, 16 Que. P.R. 166.

LEGATÉE CLAIMING HIS INCOME FROM TESTAMENTARY EXECUTOR — C.C.P. 123 — C.C. QUE. 916, 917, 918, 919.

Where the defendant was testamentary executor, the plaintiff applied to him to get her income to date and fixed the amount at $1,500, and the defendant made a motion alleging that he could not plead to that action, seeing that the plaintiff in her declaration did not state (a) what constituted the income of the estate; (b) how it was due; (c) the separate items constituting that total sum of $1,500; (d) the reasons why that sum might be due; (e) how much was due at and for each month, it was held that the defendant is supposed to know, much better than the plaintiff, the amount, the nature, and the maturity of the revenues of the estate of which he is testamentary executor.

Lafortune v. Bonneville, 16 Que. P.R. 162.

ACTION ON CHEQUE.

When a claimed cheque has been filed in court, the defendant can easily see that it has been endorsed by a third party.

Chaurest v. Provost, 16 Que. P.R. 153.

ACTION AGAINST MUNICIPALITY — EXCAVATION WORK — C.C.P. 123, 202.

A plaintiff suing the city of Montreal for damages resulting from excavation works badly carried out must furnish particulars of the expression that the city has not acted "according to the rules of art and the means of protection" it should have taken. Such allegations are too vague and make it impossible for the other party to answer them himself in accordance with art. 202 C.C.P. in a special and categorical way.

Laliberte v. Montreal, 16 Que. P.R. 143.

FAILURE TO FURNISH — ADMISSIBILITY OF EVIDENCE THEREUNDER.

If the defendant gives reasons showing why it is impossible for him to give fur-the particulars, the court may allow or disallow, at the hearing, evidence of vague allegations.

Woods v. McCrory, 16 Que. P.R. 112.

PERSONAL INJURIES ACTION — FOREMAN KNOWING DEFECTS IN MACHINERY.

When the plaintiff, in an action for damages on account of personal injuries, alleged that certain foremen were aware of the defects in machines at which the plaintiff was at work he may, on motion therefor, be ordered to give the names of such foreman if it is possible to do so.

Lacroix v. Laprairie Brick Co., 14 Que. P.R. 203.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT — AVERMENTS IN DECLARATION — EXCEPTION TO FORM — C.C.P. 174.

A petition to sue under the Workmen's Compensation Act (Que.) constitutes the instituting act of an action, and the subsequent issue of the writ of summons is only the fulfilment of an order of the parties before another tribunal equally competent. The omission to insert, in the writ and declaration, the other authorizing the workman to take action cannot constitute a cause of nullity of the summons. An exception to the form based thereon should be dismissed with costs.

Francœur v. Lawrence, 16 Que. P.R. 118.

EXCEPTION TO FORM — MOTION FOR DISMISSAL—C.C.P. 123, 174.

The plaintiff must make a motion for particulars or a motion to reject the paragraphs which he contends are vague or irregularly pleaded, according to the practice and jurisprudence of this court. An exception to the form is not the proper procedure in such a case.

Godin v. Briggs, 16 Que. P.R. 184.

PRODUCTION OF DOCUMENTS — C.C.P. 123, 289.

A motion for particulars, which requires the production of certain documents, will not be granted if the plaintiff has other special recourses than such motion for particulars to require the filing of documents by the adversary.

Piche v. Cantin, 16 Que. P.R. 201.

ACTION ON NOTES — VALUE GIVEN AND CONSIDERATION RECEIVED — C.C.P. 123.

A defendant, who was sued on 2 promissory notes, wanted to know the value given and what consideration he got back. The defendant was long since interdicted. The plaintiff was presumed to be a holder in due course, and the motion for particulars was dismissed.

Tourneur v. Jalonde, 16 Que. P.R. 189.

When, in obedience to a judgment ordering plaintiff to furnish particulars under certain paragraphs of the declaration, plaintiff has given evidence of his good faith in endeavouring to supply such particulars, the court will not grant defendant's motion for further particulars, more especially when defendant does not allege that such further particulars are necessary for his defence. Under such circumstances the court will grant act of defendant's motion for such further particulars, and reserve the latter's right to make any application for such delay of the enquete as may, in the discretion of the court, be necessary in justice to defendant, should the evidence adduced by plaintiff, owing to the absence of such further particulars, take defendant by surprise.

Conroy v. Conroy, 18 Rev. de Jur. 165.

SLANDER—NAMES—DATE.

In an action for slander, the plaintiff may be ordered to give particulars as to the names of the persons to whom the alleged slanders were uttered, and the date.

McMillan v. Levine, 25 Que. K.B. 206.

"UNJUST AND PREJUDICIAL" — MATTERS OF OPINION.

An allegation to the effect that something in respect of which complaint is made is "unjust and prejudicial" does not involve a question of fact, but is a matter of opinion, and does not permit of a demand of particulars for the purpose of ascertaining wherein it is unjust and prejudicial.

St. Martin v. Hebert, 50 Que. S.C. 262.

INSCRIPTION EX PARTE.

A motion for particulars not being a preliminary plea, the plaintiff may, on the day following the dismissal of such a motion, close the pleading and inscribe ex parte for trial.

Gagne v. Hushion, 17 Que. P.R. 386.

NOMINAL DAMAGES.

Particulars can only be demanded when the action is for special damages, not when it is for nominal damages.

Papineau v. Nickel, 17 Que. P.R. 346.

MOTIONS FOR—DELAY.

Although a demand for particulars ought not to be entertained when the facts are known or presumed to be known to both parties, yet, if there be no truth in such facts, the demand ought to be granted, as the adverse party might have reason to prepare for the contradiction of witnesses which might be heard against him. Such motion might also be refused, when from the whole of the facts alleged and by the attitude of the adverse party, it appears, that he is himself in possession of sufficient information, or means of obtaining information, and that he has no other object in seeking further particulars as to the facts alleged but that of indirectly obtaining delay. A defendant who moves for particulars, without asking that he should not be bound to file his plea until such particulars and the documents in support thereof have been produced and, moreover, without asking that the time for pleading should be enlarged till such production, but who merely prays that the motion should be heard on a date mentioned, is bound to plead to the merits before the expiration of that time whether or not the particulars have been given. A motion for particulars, being of the nature of a preliminary exception, ought to be made within 3 days following the filing of the document which is attacked for want of precision.

Barnard v. Boulanger, 25 Que. K.B. 83.

MOTION FOR FURTHER PARTICULARS — RIGHT TO LIEN FOR TAXES — DESCRIPTION OF LANDS.

Sturgeon Falls v. Imperial Land Co., 19 O.W.R. 1011.

MOTION FOR PARTICULARS — BOTH PARTIES EXAMINED FOR DISCOVERY — ACTION FOR INFRINGEMENT OF PATENT — REASONABLENESS.

Williams v. Tait, 3 O.W.N. 307, 20 O.W.R. 483.

ACCIDENT POLICY — PLEADING — PARTICULARS.

O'Brien v. Canadian Casualty & Boiler Ins. Co., 12 Que. P.R. 261.

MOTION FOR PARTICULARS — DEFENDANT OUT OF COURT.

A defendant who has not filed his defence, and is barred of his right to do so, cannot obtain an order for supplementary particulars of the plaintiff's claim until he re-established himself.

Lérigé v. Sanoé, 12 Que. P.R. 148.

MOTION FOR PARTICULARS — STATEMENT OF CLAIM—DESCRIPTION TOO INDEFINITE.

Sturgeon Falls v. Imperial Land Co., 19 O.W.R. 757, 2 O.W.N. 1433.

J. PLEADING LAWS AND ORDINANCES.

(§ I J—71)—PLEADING LAWS—ACTS.

The provision in favour of free miners, embraced in s. 53 of the B.C. Mineral Act 1896, c. 34, exempting such class from suffering from any acts of omission or commission or delays on the part of any government official, must be specially pleaded before evidence in respect thereto can be received.

Lightning Creek v. Hopp, 17 D.L.R. 641, 28 W.L.R. 110, 19 B.C.R. 586.

K. JUDGMENT ON PLEADING.

See Judgment.

(§ I K—75)—PRELIMINARY QUESTIONS OF LAW.

A hearing by consent upon a submission of points of law before the trial, is authorized by Exchequer Court r. 126, only as to matters which appear upon the pleadings.

The King v. L'Heureux, 14 D.L.R. 604, 14 Can. Ex. 250.

JUDGMENTS ON — ADMISSIONS — ALTERNATIVE PLEADINGS.

A judgment will not be rendered under Sask. r. 311, on alleged admissions in defendant's pleading, if the latter, being in the alternative, still leaves all the facts in issue.

Marce v. McCall, 13 D.L.R. 424, 25 W.L.R. 47.

JUDGMENT EX PARTE — NO DEFENCE.

If a defendant does not file any defence within the prescribed delays, he is absolutely barred from pleading it, and the plaintiff may proceed to judgment ex parte, against him, without registering the certificate attesting his default to plead.

Vézina v. Clavet et al., 49 Que. S.C. 118.

INSCRIPTION IN LAW — DEFAULT OF ANSWER IN FACTS — C.C.P. 192, 200.

An inscription in law will not be dismissed on verbal demand for the sole reason that there is not annexed to it an answer concerning facts.

Provincial Fire Ins. Co. v. La Protection, 16 Que. P.R. 263.

L. RELIEF UNDER PLEADING.

(§ I L—80)—VENDOR AND PURCHASER — ASKING RIGHT TO REDEEM.

It is not necessary to ask expressly in the pleading for the usual time in which to redeem, in an action against the purchaser under an agreement of sale, for a declaration that the agreement of sale shall be declared cancelled and that the assignee be entitled to retain any moneys paid under it and to possession of the lands.

Pentland v. MacKissock, 9 D.L.R. 572, 23 Man. L.R. 1, 22 W.L.R. 947.

Where a conditional sale contract contains a stipulation that the conditional vendee shall upon his default be liable for any loss upon a re-sale, and the conditional vendor resumes possession and resells, the vendee if sued for the balance due without reference to the price realized upon the resale should plead the resale and his right to abatement in the price in order to enable the court to take an account of the vendor's expenses upon the resale, otherwise the court may award judgment for the amount claimed with a reservation to the vendee of his remedy in respect of the resale.

ACTION FOR DISCOVERY.

To entitle the plaintiff to an action for discovery he must allege in his statement of claim some facts as to absence of knowledge on his part constituting a ground for such relief.

(§ I L—81)—PRAYER FOR FURTHER RELIEF — SPECIFIC ALLEGATIONS.

A prayer in plaintiff's statement of claim asking for further relief is not sufficient to justify a separate kind of relief, different altogether from that suggested by the facts alleged and specifically claimed. [Cargill v. Bower, 10 Ch.D. 509, followed.]

PRAYER — SUFFICIENCY — DECLARATORY ORDER.

A statement of claim is not open to objection on the ground that a merely declaratory judgment or order is sought.

Swift Current v. Leslie, 26 D.L.R. 442, 9 S.L.R. 19, 33 W.L.R. 528, 9 W.W.R. 1024.

M. ADMISSIONS.

(§ I M-95)—ADMISSIONS — NOT STRICTLY CONSTRUED BUT MOULDED UNDER THE EVIDENCE.

In an action by plaintiffs for the price of goods supplied to defendant, where the defendant sets up an agreement of agency between the plaintiffs and himself and counterclaims to have an account taken of what moneys were still due in respect to that agency, and plaintiffs reply to the counterclaim that the contract of agency was entered into, but was subsequently annulled by the parties, and that thereafter the defendant purchased the goods in question, and ask in the alternative for a reference to ascertain what is due them from the defendant if the contract of agency was made and still exists, such admission by the plaintiffs under the modern practice in Manitoba will not be taken strictly against them, but will be moulded in accordance with the evidence adduced at the trial, especially where such evidence shows that there was only a proposition of agency between the parties which was never consummated because the parties failed to agree on the terms.

Gallagher v. Freedman, 10 D.L.R. 436, 25 W.L.R. 389.

FAILURE TO PLEAD — ADMISSION BY.

Failure to deny an allegation in the statement of claim that plaintiff is a physician "fully registered" is equivalent to an admission.

Johnston v. Halifax, 9 D.L.R. 220, 46 N.S.R. 474, 49 C.L.J. 157, 12 E.L.R. 251.

ADMISSIONS — SCOPE OF ISSUES.

Damages for wrongfully cutting timber on plaintiff's land is properly awarded against two codefendants, where no issue as to the sole liability of one of the defendants was raised at the trial and where the statement of defence admitted the responsibility of both for the cutting.

Field v. Richards, 11 D.L.R. 120, 4 O.W.N. 1301, 24 O.W.R. 606. [Affirmed, 13 D.L.R. 943, 5 O.W.N. 57.]

DIVISIBILITY.

When the defendant in an action for money lent does not plead payment, but admits, in an examination sur faits et articles, that he borrowed a certain sum from the plaintiff but reimbursed him with goods, the plaintiff is divisible.

Quevillon v. Quevillon, 52 Que. S.C. 273.

EVIDENCE — ADMISSION — DIVISIBILITY OF ADMISSION — IRRELEVANT FACTS — COMMENCEMENT OF PROOF IN WRITING — DISCRETION OF COURT.

A trial court, by deciding that there is a commencement of proof in writing giving a right to parole evidence, exercises a discretionary power, and Courts of Appeal should not reverse the judgment unless there is evident error. [Fournier v. Morin, 11 Q.L.R. 98.] An admission in the plea of a party sued for the recovery of a loan, stating that he received the money as a gift, may be divided if, in his testimony as witness, he acknowledges that on the donor's death he was to give the said sum to third parties; also if his answers are in bad faith and also if written documents from him, and containing admissions and promises incompatible with his plea, are filed. His divided admission is a commencement of proof in writing entitling the plaintiff to prove the loan by witnesses.

Magenfant v. Pelletier, 45 Que. S.C. 404.

N. AMENDMENTS OF PLEADING.

(§ I N-110)—AMENDMENT OF STATEMENT OF DEFENCE — WHEN ALLOWED.

After some of the defendants in an action have filed and served their defences they will be permitted to amend them where another defendant was absent from the province at the time such statements of defence were delivered, and it is shown that upon his return he gave his codefendants information of which they wish to avail themselves in their defence.

Phillips v. Lawson, 11 D.L.R. 453, 24 O.W.R. 655.

AMENDMENTS AFTER TRIAL — PRIOR PLEADING NOT ADOPTED.

Rescission of an agreement for the sale of land on other grounds than those set up in the pleadings may be decreed where evidence in support of such grounds on the part of the plaintiff was given at the trial without objection and the defendant in his evidence went fully into those questions, but such failure to plead will affect the disposition of the costs of the action, and any amendments of the pleadings necessary to effectuate this may be allowed (with or without application by the parties) at any stage of the trial.

Larson v. Rasmussen, 10 D.L.R. 650, 5 A.L.R. 479, 24 W.L.R. 239.

In an action, upon a bond, by a municipal corporation against a manufacturing company and its surety, where the defendant company seeks to amend its pleadings to dispute its execution of the bond, proper tests are (a) whether the fact is admitted by the record (b) whether the defect in execution is at best of a most technical character; and, governed by such tests, the application, in a proper case, will be denied.

Guelph v. Jules Motor Co., 8 D.L.R. 635, 23 O.W.R. 823.

The determination of a question touching the merits of the action should not be made on a Chamber motion, since there is a very limited right of appeal from Chamber orders and the proper policy is to have all questions both of law and fact disposed of at the trial.

Bristol v. Kennedy, 8 D.L.R. 750, 23 O.W.R. 685.

WHEN EFFECTIVE.

Under the Judicature Rules (N.S.), O. 28, rr. 7-10, merely making an entry of an order granting the amendment is sufficient even though no order is taken out; but the amendment must be made to give the defendant an opportunity to plead to it, and failure to do so within the prescribed period renders the order itself ipso facto void.

Sutherland v. Victoria Steamship Co., 27 D.L.R. 622, 50 N.S.R. 146.

MOTION FOR PARTICULARS—WRITTEN AGREEMENT—NECESSITY—DISMISSAL.

Ship v. Croker, 20 D.L.R. 978.

SPECIALLY ENDORSED WRIT OF SUBPOENA—STATEMENT OF CLAIM TREATED AS AMENDMENT.

Dunn v. Phillips, 31 D.L.R. 274, 36 O.L.R. 580.

WHEN ACTION AT ISSUE—AMENDMENT OF PLEADINGS—APPLICATION FOR SPECIAL JURY.

Brown v. Telegram Printing Co., 8 D.L.R. 1026.

ALLEGATIONS OF FRAUD.

A plaintiff who in his pleadings carelessly alleges falsehood and fraud, on which ground the action is dismissed, there being no evidence of fraud, is not entitled to have such pleadings amended so as to give him the relief he might have been entitled to had the pleadings been properly drawn.

AMENDMENT OF—RULE 105—APPLICATION.

Royal Bank v. Nesbitt, 40 D.L.R. 166, 13 A.L.R. 408, [1918] 1 W.W.R. 766.

AMENDMENT OF DEFENCE—WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT—FAILURE TO PLEAD.

Where at the time of the bringing of an action for damages for personal injuries the defendant is aware of a claim made by the plaintiff against another party for compensation under the Workmen's Compensation Act (Man.), but does not plead election of compensation by the plaintiff, he should not be allowed to so plead by amendment at the trial where it appears that the trial might have taken an entirely different course had the defendant raised the point by his defence.

Lechiw v. Sewrey, [1918] 2 W.W.R. 386.

DEED ATTACKED ON THE GROUND OF FRAUD—

FRAUD NOT FOUND AT TRIAL—DEED SET ASIDE FOR IMPROVIDENCE—AMENDMENT NOT ASKED FOR OR MADE AT TRIAL—AMENDMENT MADE BY APPELLATE COURT NUNO PRO TUNC — RULES 183, 186 — COSTS.

McCartney v. McCartney, 15 O.W.N. 210.

INSCRIPTION IN LAW—EVIDENCE.

An inscription in law cannot be amended after an order has been given to furnish evidence before the inscription may be disposed of.

Labelle v. Ricard, 19 Que. P.R. 366.

OPPOSITION — NEW FACTS — AFFIDAVIT —

DISMISSAL.

An opposition may be amended provided the new facts alleged are supported by an affidavit; it will not be dismissed as frivolous when on its face it invokes a title or right of ownership.

Stackhouse v. Lorimer, 19 Que. P.R. 448.

LEAVE TO AMEND AFTER CASE CLOSED.

Leave to amend the statement of claim, when asked bona fide, and when it can be made without injustice to the defendant, should be made on terms, even after the close of plaintiff's case.

McLean v. C.P.R., 33 D.L.R. 647, 12 A.L.R. 69, [1917] 1 W.W.R. 1466.

AMENDMENT OF DEFENCE ON APPEAL.

A defence which was not raised by the pleadings or considered by the Trial Judge is open to the defendant, by amendment on the appeal, where it rests upon facts disclosed at the trial by the plaintiff's own witnesses and in respect to which the plaintiff could not be prejudiced by the allowance of the amendment.

Jones v. Mackie, [1917] 3 W.W.R. 1021.

IN ACTION ON AGREEMENT OF SALE.

The plaintiffs asked for an amendment to their pleadings claiming in the event of failure to establish their right to enforce the agreement they should recover from the vendor all moneys paid under the agreement. Held, that the amendment to their pleadings should be allowed. (Steedman v. Drinkle, 25 D.L.R. 429, [1916] 1 A.C. 275, applied.)

Price v. Ruggles (Man.), 28 Man. L.E. 1132, [1917] 2 W.W.R. 1435.

SERVICE.

A plaintiff, who amends his writ while the court is in session and when an exception to the form is presented, is not obliged to serve such amendment, and the defendant who does not file his plea within the legal delays after such amendment is made is entirely barred of the right to do so.

Frank v. Magalnick, 18 Que. P.R. 277.

In making an amendment it should be made upon the document to be amended of a new document containing the amendment should be filed. In either case the amended document should be served on the opposite party.

Laperriere v. Paquet, 51 Que. S.C. 99.

RELATING BACK — NOTE — EXCEPTION TO FORM.

An amendment to a declaration relates back, as to its effect, to the time of service of the writ. It interrupts the prescription which without it the defendant would have been able to acquire. The defendant, in an action founded on a note, wishing to take advantage of an omission of the plaintiff to allege that he had signed the note, should do so by an exception to the form or a motion for particulars and not by inscription in law.

Delap v. C.P.R. Co., 5 O.W.N. 850.

AMENDMENT FOR PURPOSE OF JURISDICTION

—TRANSFER OF CAUSE.

If a declinatory exception is filed asking that the record be sent to the court of the place where the contract was made, where the defendant has his domicile, and where the action was served on him, the plaintiff cannot by an amendment prevent the operation of this declinatory exception. If a motion to amend is made by the plaintiff for the purpose of giving jurisdiction to the court of the district in which the action was irregularly brought, this court must first take cognizance of the declinatory exception, and, if it is granted, the court will have no longer jurisdiction to adjudicate upon a motion to amend. [See Stewart v. Jubb, 47 Que. S.C. 366.]

Trudeau v. Beaudet, 47 Que. S.C. 401.

All amendments to pleadings must be made before judgment. The Court of Review cannot grant a motion to amend the declaration.

McDonald v. Saunderson, 50 Que. S.C. 422.

AMENDMENT OF DECLARATION—JUDGE'S PERMISSION—C.C.P. 513.

A plaintiff who has received a motion for particulars may file an amendment to his declaration without obtaining permission from the judge, as it is the first time he amends, but such an amendment is an admission that the motion for particulars is well founded.

Wener v. Gainear, 16 Que. P.R. 100.

AMENDMENTS AFTER JOINDER OF ISSUE.

A party cannot be permitted to change, in joining issue, the grounds of his claim or defence after the action has been served and the plea has been filed.

Bacon v. Providence, Washington Insurance Co., 47 Que. S.C. 71.

AMENDMENT — WHEN ALLOWED — CHANGING ACTION—C.C.P. 522.

The character or nature of an action is determined by its conclusions. An amendment will not, therefore, be allowed to change a personal action into an hypothecary action.

Chaurest v. Wolman, 16 Que. P.R. 105.

ISSUES RAISED AT THE TRIAL AND ON APPEAL. NOT IN THE PLEADINGS—AMENDMENT—ACTION ON PROMISSORY NOTE—BILLS OF EXCHANGE ACT, R.S.C. c. 119, s. 21, SUBS. 5.

In an action on a promissory note given for shares in a company, the only defence at the trial and the only ground of appeal, raised by the pleadings, was that "there was no promissory note payable to the order of the plaintiff." The defendant sought to set up, at the hearing of the appeal, that the note sued on was not a promissory note, and introduced issues not raised by the pleadings by arguing that the plaintiff company was not incorporated at the time the note was given, and that before the note was handed over to the plaintiff company, he withdrew his application for shares:—Held, that neither of these questions could be argued under the above ground of appeal:—Held, that the pleadings could not be amended, since neither of the above questions was raised therein and since no evidence was given at the trial upon said questions.

Imperial Rural Telephone Co. v. Baade, 29 W.L.R. 379, 7 S.L.R. 243.

TRIAL—AMENDMENT NEAR CLOSE OF TRIAL

—NOT PROPERLY ALLOWED—GROUNDS OF JUDGMENT NOT ESTABLISHED BY EVIDENCE—JUDGMENT REVERSED ON APPEAL — OBLIGATION OF EXONERATION AND CONTRIBUTION BY COPRINCIPALS TOWARDS AGENT.

Plaintiffs brought action to set aside a judgment obtained against them by defendants in a former action for contribution in respect of certain costs of legal proceedings incurred by defendants as trustees on their behalf. The Trial Judge found that plaintiffs did assume a liability for a share of the costs as sued for in the former action, thus finding against them on the issues raised by the pleadings, but at the close of the evidence for the defence near the end of a long trial he allowed an amendment pleading, and subsequently gave plaintiffs judgment on the grounds that the said costs (for a share of which he found plaintiffs) were discharged by defendants' settlement with and release of certain other parties against whom also defendants had at one time claimed payment, and further that defendants, being trustees, had received certain moneys on account of the trust for which they had not accounted. The appellate division reversed this decision on the ground that at that stage of the trial such amendment should not have been granted (especially as it was objected to) and in any case the evidence did not establish the said grounds. Per Beck, J.: The case is one of agents asking exoneration and contribution from their principals. Such obligation of principals is not, strictly speaking, that of contractors. It is one which was raised by the Court of Chancery and ultimately recognized by common-law courts on the principle of an implied contract; but it always remained an obligation based on equity to do what was just in the circumstances by way of exoneration and contribution. There is no reason in justice nor in law why the release of one coprincipal should release another coprincipal from his obligation to exonerate and contribute to the extent to which he would have been ultimately liable had the one coprincipal not been released.

PARTIES—ADDING NEW DEFENDANT—AGAINST WISH OF PLAINTIFF—NOT NECESSARY TO DETERMINE MATTERS INVOLVED.

National Trust Co. v. Trusts & Guaranty Co., 20 O.W.R. 379.

(§ I N—111)—AMENDMENT—ALLEGATIONS DEFECTIVE, EVIDENCE SUFFICIENT.

Where a statement of claim is defective in that it does not fully disclose a cause of action, but the evidence does shew a cause of action, and there is no surprise of the opposite party, the Trial Judge should amend if he thinks an amendment necessary.

DEFENCE OF FRAUD—REPUDIATION.

Where in an action on lien notes the statement of defence incompletely sets up fraud owing to the failure of alleging repudiation of the contract on account of the fraud, the court, by virtue of s. 30 (7) of the Judicature Act and r. 253, should, for the complete settlement of controversies and avoiding their multiplicity, allow an amendment of the defence to enable the introduction of evidence in support thereof. International Harvester Co. v. Smith, 26 D.L.R. 102, 9 S.L.R. 46, 33 W.L.R. 540, 9 W.W.R. 1033.

WHAT AMENDMENTS ALLOWABLE, GENERALLY—CONSENT.

Where a plea of general denial is filed in order not to retard the hearing of the case which is to be inscribed for proof and hearing with the understanding that such plea may be replaced later at any time before the trial by a special plea, and the case is inscribed on the roll in the ordinary way, then such agreement precludes the option for a trial by jury on the special plea filed later by consent.

C.N.R. Co. v. Levine, 4 D.L.R. 233, 21 Que. K.B. 521.

STATEMENT OF CLAIM—EX PARTE AMENDMENTS—WHAT ALLOWABLE—ENDORSED WRIT.

The ex parte right to once amend conferred, by r. 127, Out., on the plaintiff, does not permit an amendment to the statement of claim which alters, modifies, or extends the claim endorsed on the writ under r. 32, so as to introduce a new cause of action.

Snider v. Snider, 16 D.L.R. 730, 30 O.L.R. 105.

DEFECTIVE PLEA OF USURY.

It is the duty of the court, in order that justice be done, no matter how bad or defective a defence of usury appears, to grant such amendments as are necessary to raise the real questions in dispute.

Stuart v. Boswell, 26 D.L.R. 711, 50 N.S. R. 16.

LIBEL—JUSTIFICATION.

The pleadings in a libel action must define the issue which is being tried, and a defendant, upon a plea of justification, is limited to proving the truth of his assertion, and cannot be allowed, to the prejudice of the plaintiff, to amend the plea and adduce evidence raising a totally different issue.

A plaintiff will be permitted to amend the conclusions by withdrawing all that relates to a demand for an account, contenting himself with the conclusion which demands a condemnation pure and simple for payment for a sum of money.

Black Lake Consol. Asbestos Co. v. Slade, 18 Que. P.R. 18.

ADDING ALLEGATION AS TO EXPENDITURES UPON MORTGAGED PREMISES.

An absolutely distinct and different cause of action from that set up in the original claim cannot be set up in an amended claim without leave of the court. A mortgagee in possession, who has asked for foreclosure in his original claim may allege by amendment an expenditure of money upon permanent improvements to the mortgaged property.

Handistel v. Sinton, 9 W.W.R. 291.

AMENDMENT OF OPPOSITION TO SEIZURE.

An opposition for withdrawal from seizure like any other legal proceeding, may be amended, but the amendment itself should be made under oath.

(§ 1 N—112) — AMENDMENTS — NEW CAUSE OF ACTION.

Where the plaintiff at the trial applied to amend his pleadings so as to add a claim in detinue to an action of trespass and the case proceeded without the matter of amendment being decided, but evidence directed to the detinue claim and to its answer was taken, the plaintiffs who thereafter rely upon their pleading being considered as amended and are so treated will not be heard to object to the defence being also taken as having been amended by the insertion of a plea setting under a ius tertii to which the evidence was directed but which was not pleaded to the original claim of trespass as it would have been no answer thereto.

Eastern Construction Co. v. National Trust Co.; National Trust Co. v. Miller, 15 D.L.R. 755, [1914] A.C. 197, 110 L.T. 321.

SETTING UP NEW CAUSE — LIMITATIONS —

ORIGINAL CONSIDERATION — NOTE.

The principle, that a claim cannot be amended as introducing a cause of action which had become barred by limitations since the issue of the writ, has no application to a case where in an action on a promissory note an amendment of the statement of the claim setting up the original consideration is allowed, though between the date of issuing the order, allowing the amendment and the actual taking out of the order limitations had meanwhile intervened. [Hudson v. Fernyhough, 61 L.T. 722; Weldon v. Neal, 19 Q.B.D. 394, distinguished.]

Cameron v. Hattie, 26 D.L.R. 496, 49 N.S.R. 456.

NEW CAUSE — EFFECT ON COLLATERAL PROCEEDINGS.

A right arising since the commencement of the action may by leave of court, be set up by way of amendment of the statement of claim, particularly where it makes it necessary to continue interim or collateral proceedings, such as the continuance of an injunction growing out of the action.

NEW CAUSE — CHANGE OF STATUS OF SURETY

A statement of claim in an action to set aside a fraudulent conveyance commenced by a principal and surety may be amended as shewing the change of status of the surety after the commencement of the action. [Stone v. Theatre Am. Co., 14 D.L.R. 62, applied.]

OF COUNTERCLAIM — PUIS BARRIN CONTINUANCE.

Under s. 338 of the King's Bench Act, R.S.M. 1902, c. 40, a defendant may, in a proper case, be allowed his counterclaim previously filed by setting up a number of causes of action for damages alleged to have arisen since the counterclaim was filed, and such amendment should be allowed if it would not put the plaintiff in such a position that he could not be compensated in costs or otherwise. Winnipeg v. Winnipeg Electric R. Co., 19 Man. L.R. 279]. The plaintiffs had judgment in the action for $3,600, with leave to bring another action for the balance of their claim, a large portion of which had only accrued since the commencement of the action, and they could not, therefore, introduce their new claim in this action by amending their statement of claim. Held, that these circumstances were not such that the allowance of the amendment asked for would inflict upon the plaintiffs an injustice for which they could not be compensated, because they might either counterclaim, at least to the extent of a full set to the latter, under Toke v. Andrews, 8 Q.B.D. 428, and Renton Gibbs & Co. v. Neville & Co., [1900] 2 Q.B. 181, or they might commence a new action, and then move to consolidate the two actions or have them tried together, or for such other relief as would prevent the defendants from enforcing any judgment for damages in their action pending the result of the new action if diligently prosecuted.

Snyder v. Minnedosa Power Co., 23 Man. L.R. 750, 5 W.W.R. 151.

An amendment setting up a new cause of action that has accrued to the plaintiff since the issue of the writ should not be allowed.

Dominion Investment Co. v. Carstens, 9 S.L.R. 238, 34 W.L.R. 325.

Amendments to the statement of claim which would change the action into one of a substantially different character, and introducing new matters which would more conveniently be the subject of a fresh action, should not be allowed.

London Guarantee v. Henderson, 26 Man. L.R. 568.

Rogers v. National Portland Cement Co., 10 D.L.R. 830, 24 O.W.R. 361.

BEFORE TRIAL.

An amendment of the statement of claim consisting of the substitution of the word "train" for "motor-car" will be allowed if the defendant is not thereby prejudiced in going to trial on the date fixed.

Mercer v. B.C. Electric R. Co., 7 D.L.R. 405, 22 W.L.R. 234, 2 W.W.R. 1102.

Where an amendment is served under art. 514 C.C.P. (i.e., as of right without leave of the court) the delays for peremption are not suspended pending the filing of the amended pleading, and if two years elapse without further proceedings being taken the suit will be dismissed on the motion of the defendant (art. 379).

(§ 1 N—114)—AMENDMENT OF STATEMENT OF CLAIM ON TRIAL.

Where a formal inspector's certificate of completion of a construction contract is waived by the defendant by treating an informal certificate as sufficient, an amendment of the plaintiff's pleading will be permitted at the trial so as to allege such waiver.

Pigott v. Battleford, 12 D.L.R. 171, 6 S.L.R. 235, 24 W.L.R. 365.

ON THE TRIAL.

Leave to amend a pleading will be refused if the claim or objection sought to be added does not appear to be well founded.

Brown v. Bannatyne School District, 2 D.L.R. 264, 22 Man. L.R. 260, 21 W.L.R. 80, 2 W.W.R. 176.

The plaintiffs, a firm of real estate brokers, in an action for the specific performance of a contract to sell lands, may be permitted at the trial thereof to amend their statement of claim so as to shew that such agreement was made in the name of a member of the firm for its benefit.

Edgar v. Caskey, 4 D.L.R. 460, 5 A.L.R. 245, 21 W.L.R. 444, 2 W.W.R. 413.

Where the plaintiff sues for specific performance of an alleged agreement for the sale of lands, and where the agreement as to price was in writing and as to terms oral, the defendant may, at the trial, be allowed to amend his statement of defence so as to plead the Statute of Frauds.

Clement v. McFarland, 8 D.L.R. 226, 23 O.W.R. 613.

An amendment may be granted, on the trial of an action for malicious prosecution, to strike out the word "feloniously" from the plaintiff's statement of claim, in respect of an allegation that the defendant charged the former with having feloniously stolen a watch, to conform with the information laid by the defendant charging the plaintiff with fraudulently and without colour of right converting it to his own use under s. 347 Cr. Code, since the act so charged constituted the statutory offence of theft or stealing, whether or not it was a felony.

Where the plaintiff in his statement of claim upon a sale and delivery of seed grain does not allege the exact ground of action, whether misrepresentation and deceit or breach of contract or both, but does bring out all the facts bearing his action, thus sufficiently informing the defendant what the real complaint is so that the defendant cannot be prejudiced by a proper amendment, such an amendment may be made during the trial to allege a breach of warranty so that a more satisfactory ground of action may be laid under ss. 13 to 17 inclusive of the Sale of Goods Ordinance, N.W.T. Ord. (Alta.), 1911, c. 39, when those sections are applicable.

Where a petition of right to recover from the Crown compensation for land taken and for resulting damages to property by reason of the erection of ice piers on and opposite the suppliant's land, makes a claim both for the value of the land taken and for damages, an amendment at the close of the case claiming the value of the land taken and offering to waive expropriation proceedings and convey to the Crown the land taken upon a certain sum being paid over to the suppliant as compensation for the land, is unnecessary and will be refused.

Pickels v. The King, 7 D.L.R. 698, 14 Can. Ex. 379.

AMENDMENTS ON THE TRIAL—NEW THEORY FOR PLAINTIFF DEVELOPED BY DEFENDANT'S EVIDENCE—NEGLIGENCE ACTION.

In an action for damages for the death of an employee by reasons of the alleged negligence of the defendant employer, where there were no eye-witnesses to the accident, the plaintiff may, after verdict, be allowed to amend his pleadings to enable him to set up negligence on a different theory from that already set up, where such amendment is consistent with the facts as developed in the course of the evidence of the defendant's employees and witnesses and with the answers returned by the jury to questions submitted.

Falconer v. Jones, 10 D.L.R. 178, 24 O.W.R. 18.

AMENDMENT AT TRIAL—PLEA OF FRAUD.

Unless there are exceptional circumstances, an amendment will not be allowed on the trial for the purpose of adding a plea of fraud where fraud has not been pleaded in the first instance.

MacKenzie v. Gray, 17 D.L.R. 769, 7 S.L.R. 115, 28 W.L.R. 322, 6 W.W.R. 914.

CROWN—AMENDMENT—CROWN'S PREROGATIVE.

Under s. 11 of the Manitoba Petition of Right Act notwithstanding the omission of the proviso contained in the corresponding section of the English Act, it is not meant to restrict the royal prerogative any more than under the English Act which has not taken away the Sovereign's prerogative in the matter of pleading and procedure; and the Crown may amend its pleadings at any time. Where for reasonable cause counsel was not aware of the actual facts when he framed his original defence, and there is no element of surprise, an amendment, even though of material nature, should be allowed at the trial under the general rules and practice.

Canadian Domestic Engineering Co. v. Bezem, [1919] 2 W.W.R. 762.

An application to amend a pleading should be refused where the application is made at the conclusion of the evidence and the truth of the allegations sought to be introduced is not borne out by the evidence. In an action by a city in its own right and by the Attorney-General on the relation of the city and its building inspector against an electric railway company to restrain the breaches of certain city by laws concerning the erection of buildings and any gas works or gas holders within the city, in which action the company claimed that by virtue of the powers derived from another company it was not subjected to the by-laws and also denied the validity of the by-laws, and at the opening of the trial applied to amend its defence by pleading that the plaintiffs, by the judgment of the Privy Council in the company's favour in a former action which the city alone brought against the company and in which the issues were similar to those in the present action, were estopped from denying that the company possessed all the powers of its predecessor, the amendment was allowed as against the city and an opportunity given the company of proving it.

DeVenue v. Warren, 45 N.S.R. 8, 8 E.L.R. 453.

(§ I N—116)—CHANGING GROUNDS AFTER JOINDER OF ISSUE.

A party cannot be permitted to change, in joining issue, the grounds of his claim or defence after the action has been served and the plea has been filed.

Bacon v. Providence, Washington, Ins. Co., 47 Que. S.C. 71.

(§ I N—118)—AMENDMENT—AFTER TRIAL—ALLOWABLE ON WHAT TERMS.

Under the Manitoba practice, a plaintiff will be allowed to amend his statement of claim at the close of the case where it appears that no injury or prejudice can be occasioned to the defendant thereby and where the imposition of costs will properly compensate the defendant therefor, but the defendant will be given time to file his defence to the amended statement of claim and the case will be reopened, if required, to admit further evidence in regard to any new matter raised by the amendment and the defence thereto. Scandinavian American National Bank v. Kneeland, 11 D.L.R. 243, 23 Man. L.R. 480, 24 W.L.R. 139, 4 W.W.R. 564.

AMENDMENT AFTER VERDICT, OR TRIAL — JUDGMENT — ON MOTION TO VARY REPORT.

A request, after judgment dismissing an action, to permit an amendment so as to allege an alternative claim, not originally pleaded, was rightfully denied.
