The Sound of Wedding Bells

— OR —
Won After Great Perseverance!

CHAPTER XXIV.

Sir Archie stands in the middle of the room, staring at the door which had closed on Dulcie and Lady Brookley, like one dismayed.

He saw it all now. The sudden pallor of the beautiful face when he had said, "Lucy Fairfax and Hugh are to be married"; the swift closing of the dark eyes as if under a blow, revealed the truth.

She loved Hugh!
It was a hard blow for poor Archie, and it seemed to overwhelm him for a time, so that the old lord's volleys of anxious observations sounded vaguely in his ears.

She loved Hugh! Fool that he was not to have discovered it before! With something like a groan, he sunk into a chair, and recalled every little incident that bore upon his recently acquired knowledge, and as the panorama moved across his brain, he mentally called himself an idiot not to have seen how the land lay.

It was like his generous heart to feel for her more than himself, even while his whole being was tortured by the secret which he had discovered.

"My poor darling!" he mused. "How she must have suffered! But there must have been some misunderstanding between them! Dulcie is not the sort of girl to give the heart unasked for! And if there was something, then how did it come to an end?"

It never occurred to him that he might have been the cause, and he sat and pondered, heavy-souled with disappointment, and that creature of all sorrows, unrequited love.

"Cheer up!" growls the old earl, at last; he had been talking for half an hour and getting nothing but the most disjointed and inconsequential answers from Sir Archie. "Cheer up, my boy! It's nothing serious, depend upon it. It's a way women have. She'll be all right in the morning, see if she isn't. Lor' bless you, it's natural for a woman to faint now and then! Though," thoughtfully, "it's the first time she's done it. Rum thing you should know her, Archie."

"Yes," says Archie, absently.

The old earl winks, and lays a heavy hand on the square, straight shoulder.

"I say, Archie, my boy, if a man was on the lookout for a wife—what a chance for him, eh?"

"Yes," says Archie, again, a sudden flush coming upon his fair face. "Oh, yes, certainly."

"The prettiest girl I've seen from the Channel to Peru, and as sweet and amiable as an angel. My boy, a man that had her for skipper would have a jolly cruise of it."

"Yes," for the third time responds Archie, and he sighs.

"Cheers up this place—does, indeed!" goes on the old earl. "Been quite a different vessel since she came on board. I wouldn't lose her for half a kingdom, so mind what you're about, my lad. No tricks allowed," and he slaps Archie on the back with a laugh and a sly twinkle in his small eyes.

Archie gets up and paces the room, then he comes back and watches the door.

Presently Lady Brookley enters, and he fancies that her keen eyes seek his face curiously.

"Well!" he says, anxiously, "is—is she better?"

The old lady nods.

"Oh, yes, she is all right; the room was hot, and she complained of a headache—"

"Call in Sir William," shouts the old earl.

The old lady smiles.

"I don't think we shall want Sir William," she says, rather dryly. "At the same time I don't think she is so strong as she looks. Poor thing, she has had some trouble. She was telling you, I suppose?" turning to Archie.

Archie nods.

"Yes, she was telling me. I—I was much surprised; I didn't know anything of it," and a look of pain comes into his blue eyes.

The old lady watches him under her bent brows for a minute or two, then she glances at the clock.

"Edward, are you going to sit up all night?" she says, with a smile.

"Eh? Bless me—time up, already, my boy."

Archie looks up, but the old lady lays her hand upon his arm.

"You go up, Edward," she says. "Archie and I are going to have a chat."

"Oh, very well; don't spin yarns all night, that's all," and he trots off in the best of humours.

Lady Brookley sits silent for a moment, then she turns to Archie.

"Now, Archie, light that cigarette you have been longing for, and tell me all the news; never mind the smoke, I don't mind the cigarette. You won't talk unless you have it, I know."

Archie takes out his dainty silver case, and lights up a cigarette, but he doesn't seem inclined to talk.

"Well," says Lady Brookley, with a sympathetic smile, "aren't you going to tell me all about this last love affair of yours, Archie?"

Archie colors, and looks up uneasily, and forces a laugh, but it is rather a dismal one.

The old lady smiles.

"Well, Archie, what is she like? and is she still hard-hearted and obdurate? or have you succeeded in persuading her that Sir Archibald Hope is not to be sneezed at?"

He shakes his head.

"No use," he says. "She's not one to be persuaded, aunt—you're tired, aren't you, and want to go to bed?"

"No, I am not. And you don't mean to tell me what she's like? You used to bring me their photographs, my dear boy—"

"I haven't got one of—the young lady," says Archie, dolefully.

"Ah, that's a pity. Well, now, suppose, instead of your telling me I tell you what she was like."

Archie shakes his head.

"You don't think I can?" goes on the old lady, with her shrewd smile.

"Let me see. Tall, dark, with an olive complexion, long, fringed eye-

The prompt and positive results given by this pleasant tasting cough syrup have caused it to be used in more homes than any other remedy. It quickly loosens a dry, hoarse or tight cough, heals the inflamed membranes that line the throat and bronchial tubes, and relief comes almost immediately. Splendid for throat ticks, hoarseness, bronchitis, croup and bronchial asthma.

lashes, thick, silky hair, and a smile that makes stupid boys like you wish that you could secure the monopoly of it; the voice—well, that's very musical, and with a little laugh in it sometimes that I don't think I ever noticed in any girl's voice before."

Archie rises with dismay, and looks down at her as if she were a witch.

The old lady smiles up at him.

"Is that a pretty correct portrait, Archie?"

"But—but—" he says.

"And suppose I told you where she was to be found, and her name?"

"Aunt!"

"You stupid boy, did you think I was blind? Why, I saw it the moment she entered the room. The young lady who has stolen your heart is my Dulcie Dorrimore!"

Archie sinks into the chair, and stares at her.

"Then—then she has told you?" he says.

The old lady shakes her head.

"Not a word, my dear. Dulcie is not the girl to tell, even me—who love her, and whom, I believe, she really loves—a thing of that sort. No; but I am right, am I not? And why didn't you tell me?"

Archie knit his brows.

"I promised," he says, "that I would say nothing about her."

The old lady laughs softly.

"I see. The dear girl thought that it would make a difference here. Well, you can keep your promise, my dear. You shall tell me nothing, except this—do you love her still?"

Archie laughs—actually laughs; then he gets up and looks down at the keen, kindly face.

"Aunt, there is nothing in the world I wouldn't do to win her. Love her! I would die for her."

"Much better live for her," says the old lady, looking up at the tall, graceful figure and handsome face. "I think she'd like that better."

Archie smiles his head.

"She doesn't care a pin whether I live or die, so far as that goes," he says, ruefully. "I am nobody to her."

"Then there is some one who is somebody to her?" says the old lady, sharply.

Archie is silent for a moment, then he says, sadly:

"I don't know."

"But I do," says the old lady. "Who is it, I wonder? What a fool he must be!"

Archie groans.

"Yes—think of any man who had the chance of winning her neglecting it!"

"Don't you neglect yours, then, my dear," she says.

Archie starts, and looks at her curiously.

"I haven't the ghost of a chance," he says, dismally, hopelessly.

She gazes at the handsome face, noble in its perfect Greek beauty, and smiles.

who loved her, if he only went the right way to work—never!"

Archie's face flushes, and his eyes flash.

"Perhaps you'll tell me the right way, aunt," he says.

Lady Brookley shakes her head.

"You must find that out for yourself, my dear, and I wish you every success. There, get me my candle, and don't sit up smoking all night, or you'll look pale and haggard in the morning, and that won't be the way to win her. But I don't know," she says, with a smile. "There, good-night."

And she kisses him.

Archie sits smoking for some time, if not all night, a subtle joy mingling with his pain and disappointment. She is here, beneath the same roof with him. He shall see her tomorrow, hear her sweet voice, perhaps touch her hand! Though she does love Hugh, she is here, near him, Archie; and perhaps—who knows—he may win her. The hope, faint and uncertain as it is, makes his heart beat; and when he goes upstairs he glances at each door in the corridor, wondering which is that of her room.

And Dulcie, lying awake with sadly beating heart, with the words "they are to be married!" ringing in her ears, hears his step pause at her door, and a sudden thrill of pity stirs her. At least, if she cannot love him, she can sympathize with him; for is she not in the same position?

Perhaps they neither of them sleep well that night, for certainly when they make their appearance at breakfast, they are both rather pale and self-absorbed. All night that assertion of Lady Brookley's, about no woman being able to resist a man if he went the right way to woo her, has been haunting Archie, and he has hit upon some sort of resolution. The way to win Dulcie is certainly not by ardent wooing; he has tried that and failed. In the future he will go upon another tack, as the old earl would say.

Consequently when Dulcie enters amidst a storm of passionate exclamations from the earl—who has not yet got his devoted kidneys—Archie rises, and having put a chair for her, just ventures to say in a low voice:

"I hope you are better, Miss Dorrimore?"

"Quite, thanks," says Dulcie, just glancing up at him.

"If you're to have Sir William!" says the old earl, "have him at once. Confound it, do you think we are going to have you pine away and do nothing! I say it's shameful neglect, d'ye hear, my lady?" he roars.

"Yes, and so does all the square, Edward," retorts her ladyship blandly.

"But I don't mean to pine away," says Dulcie, with a smile, as she puts her hand upon the urn.

"If you do, it will be murder, simply murder, sheer neglect!" retorts the earl. "No! Don't touch those letters! You shan't read one. You have been worked to death, simply worked to death! D'ye hear my lady! I tell you what! You shall have an invalid chair, a Bath chair, and go round the park, and, by George, I'll draw it myself!"

"This Means That No German Machine Can Leave the Ground."

What this coming American Air Armada means and how its pilots learn their work for the Great Cause of Liberty.

There is an army of airplanes moving against Germany that is so numerous that where the French and British now have one machine there will be eight or ten, and this will mean that no German machine can leave the ground, that the German heavy artillery will have to fire by guesswork, that every railroad and transport train behind the German lines that moves by day will be bombed, that the airplanes will establish a zone of desolation behind the German lines, and that the planes will be in such numbers as to destroy utterly such cities as Essen, Zeebrugge and any other such points.

Another article in the World's Work gives some interesting information as to the way in which air-men are trained to their dangerous work. "Probably the most interesting work done by an American aviation student is that performed in the miniature range. This gives the student that preliminary instruction in artillery spotting which is perhaps the most useful service rendered by the airplane. On a huge table in one of the science halls is an immense picture map of a section of Belgium. It shows the City of Ypres and all the surrounding country, including every farmhouse, barn, country road, open field, river and pond.

It will take three or four months, perhaps, to transform our automobile factories and other establishments into airplane works, but once this is done we can turn out the product at an enormous rate. Since airplanes make awkward freight and take up large shipping space, it might be well to send American workmen to France and establish American factories there, and, as suggested by the French Minister of War, we may make parts and send them abroad to be assembled, as Ford cars are sent to assembling stations all over this country.

The equally important work of training flyers is already under way. Fortunately we can find places in the United States where this training can go on all the time. Canada has already suggested that in the winter time her flyers might receive their training in this country. It is not unlikely that England and France may send their recruits here for instruction, the final training of all flyers, of course, will take place in France near the scene of warfare. This country must be transformed into a huge recruiting ground for airplane service. It is the one thing which, above others, we must do and do quickly.

"Speed, hurry! It is the essence of war and the vital thing before us. Every month without the control of ally when on bomb dropping excursions over the German lines. Then his knowledge of the stars will lead him safely back from Germany to his own lines.

About the Ways of the Air. "The same professor gives many equally pertinent lectures on the behaviour of the upper air, which, at times, is very peculiar. He places at either end of a long table two air blowers, one elevated somewhat higher than the other. Then in the middle of the table, he places two American flags, one likewise flying higher than its companion. When the experimental winds are let loose, the students perceive how two flags, placed side by side, one slightly higher than the other, can blow in opposite directions. What shall the aviator do when he suddenly drops from one of these air currents into the other? Practical airmen will tell you this kind of a contretemps happens quite frequently.

Also learn the theory of flight, illustrated by a unique apparatus bearing certain resemblances to a miniature plane, and also receive essential instruction in photography, the compass and meteorology.

In such ways are the coming hosts being trained. In six weeks the largest flying school in the world at Dayton, Ohio, was turned from the tranquil use of fifteen farmers into one of the best of aviation camps.

Girls! Use Lemons! Make a Bleaching, Beautifying Cream

The juice of two fresh lemons strained into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white makes a most effective bleaching cream. Remarkable lemon skin beautifier at about the cost one must pay for a small jar of the ordinary cold cream. Care should be taken to strain the lemon juice through a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. Every woman knows that lemon juice is used to bleach and remove such blemishes as freckles, sallowness and tan and is the ideal skin softener, smoothen-er and beautifier.

Get three ounces of orchard white at any pharmacy and two lemons from the grocer and make up a quart of this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion and massage it daily into the face, neck, arms and hands. It naturally should help to soften, freshen, bleach and bring out the roses and beauty of any skin. It is simply marvelous to smoothen rough, red hands.

Concert at Witless Bay.

At 5 p.m. yesterday a concert party left by special car attached to the regular train for Witless Bay, where they gave an enjoyable entertainment, the proceeds of which were in aid of the new school which is being completed by Rev. Fr. O'Brien.

On arrival the visitors proceeded to the Convent where the Rev. Mother and good Nuns made them welcome. The city folks then sat down to a sumptuous tea, after which they proceeded to the school, where the concert was held. The programme, which consisted of songs, recitations, musical selections and dancing, were contributed by Messrs. Brown, Brophy, Howlett and Mrs. (Capt.) Martin; Messrs. F. Walsh, J. Walsh, J. Spratt, P. K. Devine, J. J. Mullaly, P. F. Moore and A. B. Wheeler, ventriloquist.

After the concert a dance was held which was kept up till midnight. Rev. Father O'Brien, Parish Priest, thanked the party from the city for their kind services and also took occasion to thank the Reid Co. for having placed a car at their disposal. At 1.30 this morning the party returned to town, having spent an enjoyable evening.

Obituary.

R. T. STEELE. A clean sportsman, a former prominent business man, and all in all one of Hamilton's most beloved and honored residents, was called by death last week, when Robert Tasker Steele passed to the great beyond after an illness of about two months, at his home, 64 West Charlton Avenue.

Born in Newfoundland 67 years ago, Mr. Steele came to Hamilton as a boy. Since then he had won his way into the hearts of thousands of Hamiltonians. As a public benefactor and a public-minded and spirited man in whose heart the welfare and betterment of Hamilton and its people was ever foremost, his memory will hold an enviable place in Hamilton for many years to come.

His business life extended over a period of 35 or 40 years. As a youth he joined the firm of Lucas, Parke & Company, wholesale grocers. Later the firm became Lucas, Steele & Bristol, and on the retirement of the late R. A. Lucas and Mr. Steele was carried on under the name of G. E. Bristol & Co. Mr. Steele was well known in business circles as an upright and fair-minded, as well as a level-headed man of business. He retired from active business about twelve years ago.

One of Mr. Steele's greatest interests in life was his own city, and the health and comfort of its people. To him are due a great many of the improvements which have been made in and around Hamilton during the past ten or fifteen years. For years he was President of the Hamilton City Improvement Society. He was prominent in the work of bettering Hamilton, both as regards the general beauty of the city and its cleanliness. He was the organizer of competitions among the citizens in beautifying their homes and their streets, and in this way did much to better living conditions, especially among the poorer classes.

After the Hamilton City Improvement Society, disbanded, he caused to be organized the Playgrounds Association, which exists to the present day, growing bigger, better and more useful as the years go on.

The children were his special interest, and it was due to him that the present facilities for good, wholesome, outdoor play under proper supervision were given to them. His later years were devoted to all manner of work which has benefited this city. The three playgrounds which are now in operation and which are patronized daily by thousands of children, will remain for years as the greatest monument to the honor of this good man.

He has stood behind clean, manly sport in Hamilton for many years, and Hamilton largely owes much of its reputation as a good sporting city to him. Where trickery or unfairness entered into any game, no matter how trivial, Mr. Steele immediately severed his connection with it. He was big in body as well as in heart. He was one of the strongest supporters of the Hamilton Rowing Club, and liked nothing better than a game of football, hockey or baseball, cleanly and fairly played. For many years he was one of the Board of Governors of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, and also of the Inter-Provincial Rugby Union.

There were few, if any, men in Hamilton who received more letters from Hamilton boys overseas than R. Tasker Steele. The athletes who had such kindness for him because of his interest in them in earlier days here, frequently addressed him in their letters as "Uncle Bob," or by other terms that showed both veneration and endearment. He also took much interest in the sick, especially at St. Joseph's Hospital, where he was a frequent caller, and often with reading matter for the patients.

He was connected with practically no fraternal societies, but was a member of St. Thomas Episcopal Church. Surviving him are his wife, a daughter, Mrs. Ernest Wright, of Toronto, and a sister, Mrs. John Gillard, of Newfoundland. Two brothers also survive, Arthur of Winnipeg, and James of Montreal.

A funeral service was held at his home on Saturday afternoon at 2.30, conducted by the Rev. Dr. Reardon. Interment was made at Hamilton Cemetery.—Hamilton Times.

The War.

The Italian situation continues, as it deserves, to engross the attention of the world. The Austro-German forces have got across the Tagliamento at one or two places and it looks as if the necessity for a further retirement will be imposed upon Cadorna. The chief danger, however, as we have pointed out, is not from this direct frontal attack from the east, but from the flanking movement in the north. One commentator is quoted in to-day's messages as saying that this particular threat has nothing serious behind it, we wish we could believe him. It is the strong move the enemy could make as things stand, and Germany has shown an unpleasant aptitude from the beginning for making strongest moves. The truth is, the situation is still very serious: it all depends upon the speed the Allies make in bringing up the heavy guns, by which alone the enemy's progress can be stayed.

The good and bad points in the situation which we have endeavoured to point out are well explained in the observations of military experts contained in the foreign papers that are now reaching us. Thus the New York "Times" correctly puts the blame for the whole disaster upon Italy's allies. It says:—

"Germany, by massing a great German army and practically the whole Austrian Army against Italy, has nullified Cadorna's victories and put Italy on the defensive. It is not Italy's fault. Italian emissaries have been beseging the Allies for months, in fact for years, trying to make them see the importance of giving aid in full measure to Italy. The first task was to make the Allies understand that the Italian campaign was not a side issue, but a major campaign, which might decide the war. Not until Cadorna's victories of this Spring, not until his objective became obviously Laibach and obviously reachable, did this idea seem to strike the Allies, in spite of all Italy's exhortations." The second task was to make them understand that while Italy could furnish soldiers and Generals, she could not furnish coal and guns and munitions, and that the Allies must do that.

Italy has been defeated for the same reason that the Russians were defeated in 1915, not because her men were not brave or her Generals ingenious, but because men cannot fight with their bare hands against artillery. When Italy asked for the raw material of warfare she was not asking a favour; she was asking something for the benefit of Italy, France, England, Russia, and the United States. She should have got all she asked for, not as a favour to her, but as a means of winning the war, and she should have got it early. Because she did not get it she has failed to hold her gains when the whole strength of Germany and Austria was hurled against her. That strength could not have been hurled against her if Russia had stood firm, but the Allies knew that Russia probably would not stand firm and should have prepared for that contingency. No doubt they have seen their fault lately and have been hastening to repair it, but they should make still more haste. Every help that can be given Italy should be given at once and without stint."

Another writer, Sidney Low, in the Daily Chronicle, paints in unmistakable colours the possible result of the drive. He says, "If Cadorna cannot stay the rush, he might even be compelled to withdraw across the Po and leave all Lombardy and Piedmont to the mercy of the invader. That, however, will not happen for the reason that before this stage is reached Italy will have made peace." On the other hand he shows the other side of this gloomy picture, and supports our contention that if the Allies stop the invasion in time they will gain in the end by it. "If the emergency is properly handled," he says, "Italy's present misfortune may prove the turning point of the war in our favour. Here at length the deadlock of indecisive trench warfare is broken. Here are the Germans, with their Austrian dependents, out in force in the open. Here is the war of movement we have always wanted and the chance of a great manoeuvre battle. If that battle should be joined when Cadorna has been provided with higher gun power than his opponents, if his own force is stiffened and strengthened by ten or a dozen divisions of British and French infantry, then the result may be and should be the complete defeat of the invaders, followed by an allied advance across the frontier in the wake of the routed army which might carry them right on to Trieste and bring about the collapse of Austria and a separate peace with that State. This is similar to Smuts' opinion that the whole invasion will prove a boomerang recoiling upon the invaders.

The despatch from the Canadian correspondent in Flanders is proof enough of the furious fighting that is raging for the possession of Passchendaele. It is probable, however, that nothing of great moment will mark the course of events on the west front while so great attention is imperatively demanded by Italy. In the midst of this great present reverse, it is heartening to read of the steadily mounting successes of the British arms in Asia. Allenby is aiming at Gaza, on the Mediterranean coast, possession of which would be a signal achievement. Any idea that these are minor operations should be dispelled by the fact that it has been thought worth while to send tanks to take part in them. At the same time Maude is doing brilliantly across the desert, being how securely stationed a hundred miles above Bagdad on the Tigris; while the news of the Russian victory somewhere on the Black Sea coast comes as an agreeable surprise. Turkey, after a long respite, will have to sustain much severe fighting from this onward.

Nobody knows yet what the outcome of the Italian crisis will be, but among the possibilities must be reckoned a further prolongation of the war. That contingency affects us as much as any, and we are under a great obligation to prepare for it. We can do so only in one way, by keeping up our fighting forces. We are not doing so at present, and time will not wait for us. Many persons, official and private, are making great and commendable exertions, but it is becoming clear that they are not sufficient. Unless the country backs them up, in the only way that is required or possible, it will be time for a change. It will be time for the Government, which boasts itself a National Government, to take a hand in and perform the first of its national duties.

Girls! Have Mass of Beautiful Hair, Soft, Glossy, Wavy

A small bottle destroys dandruff and doubles beauty of your hair.

Within ten minutes after an application of Danderine you can not find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most will be after a few week's use, when you see new hair, fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—growing all over the scalp.

A little Danderine immediately doubles the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The effect is amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy, and have an appearance of abundance; an incomparable lustre, softness and luxuriance.

Get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter for a few cents and prove that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that all—your sure if you will just try a little Danderine.

Shipbuilding Boom in Newfoundland.

Vessels of 400 Tons and Upwards Will be Turned Out From Harbor Grace Yards at the Rate of One a Month.

Newfoundland is awaiting the dawn of a new era in shipbuilding, which according to present indications, will be followed by the sunshine of an industry that will not only rejuvenate the town of Hr. Grace, but will shed rays of prosperity over the entire country.

Already orders have been received for the construction of thirteen vessels of 400 tons and upwards, all of which are to be fitted with auxiliary engines of an approved modern type. These engines will be of Swedish design and will be 120 horse power each.

The vessels will be of a standard size, three masted and supplied with two auxiliary engines of 120 horse power each. It is estimated that when the plant is in full swing the company will turn out a vessel of this type every month.

By means of an extension apparatus the keel beds may be enlarged so that steel ships up to 5,000 tons, dead weight, or about 3,500 tons register, may also be built.

All the work will be done under cover, and the shed, wherein the actual work of shipbuilding will be done, will cover an area of about 70,000 square feet.

Short trim tailored skirts seem to be adopted definitely. Bright wool flowers are used as trimmings on velour hats.

Making War on Paper

Christian Science Monitor: A Canadian soldier in a London "bus once proposed that the United States should send a fleet of aeroplanes across and bomb Germany "clean out."

Now a military critic suggests that the combined American and British navies sail up the North Sea, sweep all obstacles away from the natural entrance to the Baltic, and there destroy the German Navy, or seal it up in its canal refuge. It would be, without question, an easy thing to do, on one condition, and that is that the enterprise be undertaken on paper. One heavy dab of the pen would blot the "German Navy" clean out of the picture.

THE AMERICANS' SCRAP.
WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, To-day.

(By the Associated Press.)
A small detachment of American infantry men was attacked in the front line trenches early on Saturday morning by a much superior force of German shock troops. The Americans were cut off from relief by a heavy barrage in their rear. They fought gallantly until overwhelmed solely by numbers. The fighting in the trenches was hand to hand. It was brief and fierce in the extreme. As a result of the encounter three Americans were killed, four wounded and a sergeant and corporal and ten men were captured. Two French soldiers who were in the trenches were also killed. The enemy lost some men but the number is unknown as to their dead and wounded.

VICTORIES AGAINST THE TURKS.

WASHINGTON, To-day.

The British and French troops in Flanders continue to carry out raiding operations successfully against the Germans to heavily bombard the enemy positions at various points, with the Germans replying actively in the sector between Houtholst Wood and the Comines-Ypres Canal. Bombardments also predominate on the southern part of the front in France. Two additional defeats of the Ottoman forces are recorded, by the British in southern Palestine and by the Russians in the region of the Black Sea Coast. North of Beersheba the British are pressing on with the definite object of the capture of the coast city of Gaza. In their operations they have taken 208 officers and 2,429 men prisoners. The Russians have driven the Turks from the first line of trenches in the Black Sea region and have advanced at some places to the third line. Large quantities of booty were captured.

PIERCE FIGHTING AT PASSCHENDAELE.

Canadian Headquarters in France (by Wilson, Special Correspondent of the Canadian Press), via London.—The struggle before Passchendaele has developed into one of the bitterest battles in the whole history of the Canadians. Driven from his position at Bellevue Farm and in the Passchendaele Spur in the first Canadian attack and smashed out of Meecheolee Crest Farm in the second Canadian advance, the infantry of the enemy is fighting hard to retake his losses, or at least to maintain his position on Passchendaele itself. His faith in the protective value of the swamps and marshes which protected his advanced areas is broken and his best infantry was routed in the hand to hand fight. The Bosche is throwing in fresh divisions, rushing up guns and strengthening his defences in every possible manner. Time after time since my last despatch he has counter attacked. His guns have never been silent. He raked our front line with machine gun fire and a hail of shrapnel, turned on one barrage after another, bombarded our forward areas, searched the salient for our guns and gassed our advance and rear positions repeatedly. All these things he has done and at every turn we have beaten him. Replying to his barrage our guns have neutralized his fire, meeting his counter attacks our troops have greeted his infantry with bayonet and machine gun and driven them back with heavy losses, while our artillery has shelled them constantly, giving our men in the front line magnificent support. To-day, as yesterday, was one continuous barrage, in which the salient has known no rest. As the enemy was moving to attack on Saturday morning our artillery caught him on the advance, inflicting heavy losses, while our infantry struggled forward to an advanced enemy strong post, where we drove the Bosche out after a hand to hand struggle, retreating to our trench positions. Before the enemy's general counter attack, which was launched at 5 a.m. along the whole front, our patrols had discovered the enemy assembling. Before he launched his intensive two-minute barrage, our batteries, heavy and light, from the forward areas to miles behind the line pounded everything they possessed. Under the hail of shell which swept our own front line from his barrage fire, our men poured bullets from Lewis guns and rifles into the attacking parties which survived our own artillery bombardment. On our left the enemy was so confused by the overwhelming nature of his reception that his whole extensive plan of advance was broken down after short and weary fighting. At Crest Farm some parties of the enemy succeeded in entering our line, but were driven headlong from the position in a counter attack in which we took numerous prisoners. Our own losses were not light, but our stretcher bearers coming back from beyond the line report that the ground was covered with enemy dead, while each additional prisoner we take confirms the report of the enemy's severe casualties. The Bosche is literally being given no rest. For five solid hours, from 10 o'clock last night until 3 o'clock this morning, our guns bombarded him incessantly and the ground for fourteen miles beyond the front line was trembling from the intensity of our shell fire, while the sky was brightened with the glare of our guns.

BRITISH VICTORY IN THE CATTEGAT.

LONDON, To-day.

(Delayed.)—An official statement issued by the Admiralty says that ten armed patrol craft, in addition to a German auxiliary cruiser which was equipped with 6 in. guns were destroyed in a naval engagement reported today. The statement issued by the British Admiralty is as follows:—Further reports from our forces operating in the Cattegat have been received. We destroyed a German auxiliary cruiser armed with six inch guns and also destroyed ten armed patrol craft. Sixty-four prisoners have been rescued by our forces. No British losses are reported. Further details will be published on the return of our forces to their base.

DETAILS OF THE FIGHT.

LONDON, To-day.

Thirty men on the German auxiliary cruiser Marie of Fleusberg were killed in an engagement with British destroyers, according to an Exchange Telegraph despatch from Copenhagen. The Marie was a 2,000 ton vessel. She opened fire, which was answered by our destroyers. In ten minutes the Marie was ablaze. Of 81 members of her crew, the despatch says, 30 were killed and others took to the boats. Seven wounded sailors subsequently were rescued by the Danish steamer Daigus, another man was picked up by the steamer Trendsjon. They were landed on Saturday night. Other members of the crew are believed to have been rescued by the destroyers.

U. S.-JAPAN AGREEMENT RE CHINA.

PEKING, To-day.

Baron Consuke Hayashi, Japanese Minister to China, to-day informed the Chinese Foreign Office that Viscount Kikijurer Ishii, head of the Japanese Mission in the United States, and Secretary of State Lansing signed an agreement on November 2nd by which the United States recognize the Japanese special interests in China under which Japan and U. S. reaffirm the open door policy in China.

TANKS IN PALESTINE.

LONDON, To-day.

Reuter's correspondent at the British Headquarters in Palestine, describing the recent attacks on Gaza, says that tanks participated, adding: These leviathans were not entirely at home amid the shifty sands, but nevertheless nosed their way into the enemy lines with pachydermatous indifference to machine gun and rifle fire. They lumbered over entanglements and parapets of trenches, the moonlight exaggerating their huge unwieldy bulk. The Turks must have regarded them as veritable sons of Eblis. The correspondent credits the Turks with putting up a stubborn resistance, saying, He hangs on to his position to the last. For instance, a case is reported of a single machine gunner who although completely surrounded, refused to yield and it was impossible to knock him out when he last heard of. Italians attached to one British brigade fought with the greatest gallantry.

AVIATION REPORT.

LONDON, To-day.

The official statement issued to-night dealing with aviation follows: Yesterday, owing to a thick mist, very little flying was possible except on the coast. In this sector successful artillery work and photography were carried out. One German aeroplane was downed; none of ours is missing.

ITALIAN SITUATION SERIOUS.

LONDON, To-day.

The British correspondent accredited to Italian Headquarters, telegraphing on Monday, says the crossing of the Tagliamento doesn't imply a fresh Austrian victory, for the river is only the first line defence upon which depends the arrest of the invasion of northern Italy. The enemy has established a bridge at Pinzano, but he has not had time yet to bring up his biggest guns. The struggle will be largely a race between the enemy's heavy artillery and the arrival of Allied reinforcements. The Italian Army is sorting itself out again. The inevitable shortage of ammunition and the loss of guns will of course be a grave drawback, but the Italian positions are naturally strong and capable of being made stronger. It is thought likely that the latest Austrian attack in Trentino is only a feeler, but that the Italian wing there must also be ready for severe trials. The Daily Mail's correspondent at Headquarters in a despatch dated Sunday says: "The continuance of the rainless weather, while good for the morale of the troops, has prevented the expected flood which would have made the Tagliamento a formidable obstacle. The comparatively dry conditions enabled the enemy to carry out operations in the river bed and on the west-bank of the stream." The Daily Mail's Milan correspondent telegraphing on Sunday afternoon says the situation is growing serious and that the Milan evening papers insist upon the greatest possible aid from the Allies.

GERMAN CROWN COUNCIL.

AMSTERDAM, To-day.

The Best in Nfld.

So the Majority Say.

I tried all kinds of boots to find; to get a pair to suit me; my wife would say she had a mind; on many times to "boot" me. Because my money went like rain, and no good was I rendered, but now my corns they never pain, for good boots I've been tending. The boots I wore would pinch my toes, they'd rub my heels also, sir; than Kaiser Bill, I had more woes, as all my family know, sir. Rheumatics made my feet to leap with tingling, something cruel; along the street I used to creep, just like a worn out mule. But since I found the finest kind that's found in St. John's City, no more I'm troubled in my mind, I walk along quite gritty. My corns have beat a safe retreat, my thoughts no more are vague, sir, and I'm as nimble on my feet as "Our boys" under Haig, sir. So all good folks who need a pair of boots, the best in town, sir, the boots that's selling every where, the boots that won't renounce, sir; they'll keep your feet so dry and warm, they'll make your cheeks look ruddy, in summer's calm or winter's storm there's no boots like the Buddy.

NOTE OF THANKS.—Mrs. John J. Brick and family wish to express their sincere thanks to Dr. Rendell, Sister Malone and Nurse Snow for their kind attention to her daughter, the late Mrs. M. Well-Known Fisherman Dead.

Mr. Robert Somerton, a well known fisherman of Portugal Cove and for many years sexton of the Anglican Church at that place, passed away at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Deceased who had for some time suffered from an incurable complaint, entered the hospital about a fortnight ago in the hope of being restored to his former health. But despite the best efforts of the doctors and nurses nothing could be done to relieve his sufferings. At his own request he returned to his home last week where he entered into rest at the time mentioned. Left to mourn are a widow and several children. Another old and well known fisherman in the person of Mr. William Harding, of the same place passed away at 6 o'clock this morning, leaving an elderly widow and several grown-up children. To the sorrowing relatives of both families the Telegram offers deep sympathy.

Visited Pier 2.

Lady Davidson, who arrived in the city yesterday, and is accompanying her husband, Sir Charles Davidson, formerly governor of Newfoundland, now on his way to New South Wales, where he will remain as governor, paid a visit to pier two yesterday noon. Accompanied by W. S. Davidson, of the Returned Soldiers' Committee, Lady Davidson was escorted about the Red Cross rooms, hospital and discharge depot. Mrs. Sexton, Mrs. McCurdy and Mrs. Wm. Dennis, who were conducting work at the pier at the time of Lady Davidson's visit explained the Red Cross system of working. Lady Davidson was particularly interested in the work.—Halifax Recorder, Oct. 31.

The Cunning Jap.

A tale is told of how the cunning Japs outwitted a German visitor:—Shortly before the war a German naval squadron was visiting a Japanese port. The admiral and members of his staff were officially invited to go over the arsenal. Among other things they were allowed to see some of the shimosoe, the Japanese high explosive. The admiral, like a good German, made an opportunity to steal a handful of the powder. He put it in his trousers pocket, and found on returning to his ship that his best gala trousers were ruined. As grains of the powder had stained it an ugly yellow. By special courier from the German Embassy to Berlin, where it was analyzed and found to be a most innocent composition colored with ground mustard. The wily Japanese, knowing their guests, had judged it prudent to substitute the harmless compound for the real shimosoe.

Fads and Fashions.

A few flit lace blouses are seen. The monastic sleeve is the latest. Currant color is one of the new reds. New frocks have invisible fastenings. Heavy crepe de chine is used for blouses. A great deal of metal embroidery is used. No fashion can be forced successfully. One-piece frocks are trimmed with fur. Wool lace trims some of the newest gowns. Mixed fabrics are the newest for street suits. Velour hats are now correct for street wear. Felt silk and felt are combined in millinery. Jabot and stock are very good style this fall. The fashionable suit is rather severely tailored. Hats with flowers are promised for the future. Tassels are popular on the autumn millinery. All draperies should fall in perpendicular folds. Tailored shirts favor the masculine shirt bosoms. Bustles or bustle effects are increasing in number. Many of the smartest frocks have Chinese embroidery. Blouses are showing necks elliptical instead of round. Black velvet and white duvetyne are charming together. Black satin and gray astrachan are a good combination.

Aviators Captured Zeppelin in Mid-Air.

American Officer in French Battery Tells How Airship, Trapped, Flew White Flag.

Paris, Oct. 26.—Joseph Whitney Ganson, an American officer in a French battery at the front, gives the following account of the bringing down of a Zeppelin in the recent German raid by members of the famous Crocodile Escadrille. "At 6.15 in the morning," he says, "the commander, Lieutenant Lefevre, received a telephone message that Zeppelins were at a certain spot. In fifteen minutes he had pilots on high to see what could be done, as the fog was several hundred feet high and very thick. The telephone message was confirmed and at 6.30 the remainder of the escadrille mounted above the fog, where the airplanes formed in patrol. They rose very high, shaping their course by the compass, as the earth was hidden. "The airship was first seen at a distance of twenty miles. The altitude was more than 5,000 metres, and the air was bitterly cold. Lefevre started so quickly that he lost his fur cap and suffered considerably from frostbite. All the five airplanes attacked the Zeppelin before it saw them. Its first manoeuvre was to descend sharply and then rise, hoping thus to escape, as Zeppelins rise and sink more rapidly than airplanes, although their speed is nearly five miles an hour slower than that of the newest planes. The escadrille fired several rounds into the top of the Zeppelin, which made it more difficult to manoeuvre. "When the Germans saw luminous balls whizzing past they knew they were lost, and hung out a white flag at a height of a thousand metres. At first our men were careful how they approached, because they had been informed that the latest Zeppelins were bristling with guns. But the surrender was genuine, and in response to their signals the huge craft made a landing in trees. "The airplanes circled for five minutes above their victim as the Germans took that time to climb down, and it was well to make sure that the monster would not blow up. In fact, the Germans tried to set the Zeppelin afire, but were stopped by a French peasant with a gun. "Some Americans came over from their camp to see the Zeppelin, and set the example to crowds of peasants of securing souvenirs. The German Captain presented himself to Lefevre, saying:

"You are the winner, but I should prefer to have been destroyed with my airship rather than be taken prisoner and live." "Lefevre spoke to him in English and to the German Lieutenant in German. The latter said he was glad to be alive. Lefevre got the German's mascot, in the shape of a huge Teddy bear. The Germans wore fine fur-lined coats, but nevertheless one man's hands were frozen black and had to be amputated. Their thermometer at the highest altitude they reached registered thirty-six degrees below zero. The crocodiles chased the Germans for more than two hours, and did not know whether they were in France or over German territory owing to the fog. They had just enough gasoline to finish the fight."

Patriotic Concert.
SEATS RESERVED FOR OUTHARBOURMEN.
Department of Militia, St. John's, Nfld., Nov. 3, 1917. Sir,—Will you please state, in your issues of Monday a and Tuesday that, as a large number of men from the Outharbour who are now in the City will probably not have another opportunity of seeing the pictures of the Regiment and Forestry Companies that will be shown on Tuesday at the Patriotic concert, it has been decided to reserve seats for as many of these men as possible. With this end in view, tickets will be issued to them on Monday. On Tuesday night admission will be by ticket only until 8.30, after which time as many as possible of the general public will be admitted. I have the honour to be, Sir, Your obedient servant, JACK TURNER, Lt. for Minister of Militia.

SEAMEN GIVE TROUBLE.—Captains of vessels are experiencing much trouble with seamen, who, without leave, absent themselves for days. This morning not less than three master mariners applied to the authorities and had warrants issued for the arrest of members of their crews who had deserted. One of the deserters was captured and put on board his vessel. Sailors are now paid as high as $75 a month.

The Things Other People Can't Do.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

"That I've often heard you say things like that yourself," protested Molly when the cynic resented her attempts to jolly him about his habit of getting excited and talking in bunches.

"That's all right," said the cynic, "if I want to say those things about myself I can, but it's a very different thing for anyone else to say them."

What a lot of things we do say about ourselves that we wouldn't let any one else say.

Wouldn't We Be Mad If Anyone Else Said These Things.

"Here I am monopolizing the whole conversation."

"I know I have the homeliest nose in existence," etc., etc.

And then there are, with many of us, certain things that we can't bear to have other people do which, when we do them seem perfectly innocuous.

For instance, I hate to hear any one else sneeze. It makes me intensely nervous. I feel as if they could help it if they tried and that they are doing it on purpose to annoy me. Yet I love to sneeze myself. (I can almost understand the snuff habit.) I feel that my sneeze is a clean, hard, dry sneeze that no one could possibly take objection to, whereas my house-mates, naturally indignant at being requested not to sneeze, assert that it is one of the worst they ever heard.

She Can't Have Any One Chew Gum When She Is Not.

My mother cannot bear to have any one else chewing gum when she is not. If she is doing it too, she seems to forget how obnoxious the habit is, but to watch anyone chew when her own jaws are quiet is fairly maddening to her. She is sure to make cutting remarks about the habit and how it distorts one's visage.

Watching anyone else rock when they themselves are sitting still has a similar effect on some people.

Hiccoughs Affront Her.

Hiccoughs affect a friend of mine the same way they do me. She always bears down upon any hiccougher with a glass of water and full directions about drinking it quickly and getting rid of them. Her attention usually passes as kind solicitude for their comfort but she has confessed to me that it is really because she cannot bear to have anyone hicough. She feels personally affronted by it. Yet I have known her to hiccough for half an hour without trying to cure herself.

And a man friend of mine who appears to be almost without nerves, is very much upset when anyone drops anything. Yet on the whole he is rather clumsy himself.

Perhaps you'll recognize some of these little peculiarities. Or perhaps yours are quite different. But I'll wager, whatever you are, you have at least one—it's the way of the world.

THE TURKISH BATH.

The Turkish Bath is a successful method of finding out what purgatory feels like.

Long before the people of this country had come to know and love Turkey it was the custom, in that strange land to take a bath every once in a while. The peaceful, hyena-hearted subjects of the sultan tried out several kinds of baths before lighting on the one which has brought comfort to so many burdened souls and volcanic stomachs. They tried out the sponge bath and the wash-basin bath and the tub bath and the mud bath and the alcohol rub, but none seemed to meet the needs of their rough, hack-saw natures as well as the home-made variety, which is still used in Turkey at painful and irregular intervals.

The Turkish bath was brought to this country to stimulate the crop of total abstainers and has been an effective aid to temperance. After a man who has become carefully intoxicated from his ears down enters a Turkish bath for the first time and watches himself turn to the bright pink color of a porter-house steak, he will either sign the pledge at once or draw a short, crisp will leaving his property to the W. C. T. U. A Turkish bath, properly given, will drive a brand new drinker so high up on the water wagon that he can't be heard without talking on his fingers.

The Turkish bath is given in a small, tight room which contains everything but the head of the patient, which is allowed to stick out and wonder how long it will be before the roast is done. Live steam which has never been used on anybody before is introduced into the room and locates at once on its victim, which it proceeds to parboil at slow and easy stages. When the patient has been reduced to a mellow state and can hardly be told from a tomato salad, the steam is turned off, after which an unfeeling but muscular mechanic seizes a long towel with a sand-paper finish and uses it as a draw shave. This is one of the most soothing processes on record, and imparts a dull gloss finish to the cuticle.

It is a great mistake to deride the Turkish bath, or any kind of a bath, but it would be more popular if there were more bath and less Turk in it.

THE REJECTED.

WALT MASON

It gives my soul a wrench, that I can't join the boys, and excavate a trench, and make a warlike noise. I stick to my abode and do my daily grind because I'm pigeon toed, knock-kneed and color blind. For me no hero's wreath, no garlands or applause, because I've stored made teeth, swayed back and lumpy jaws. I see the boys go by, with buoyant step and free, and shed a weary sigh—the march is not for me. I may not hear the drums, or join the gallant charge, because I've shriveled gums, because my waistline's larger. Ah, well, a gent can do his little stunt at home, if he can't get a few beyond the raging foam. By bumping all the day, and bucking down like wax, methinks that I can pay each added war-time tax. By helping liquidate our Uncle's grievous bills, 'I'll keep my record straight, though shy of martial thrills. I'll pay up like a guy who wants to do his share; so when the boys go by, I'll get no stony stare. I cannot pack a gun, or wield a snickerboone, because I weigh a ton, and have the housemaid's knee; I'm troubled with the gout and falling of the hair, but that won't let me out—it still can do my share.

Your Boys and Girls.

A mother and father should train their child at home that when the time comes that their offspring has gathered from observation and comparison some idea of what is right and wrong, he may be safely allowed to mingle with other children.

His feeling of trust will bring him to the one he loves for explanations of what seems to him to be wrong; and it is then the opportunity comes for preparing him rightly to meet the world as he will find it, with love for all humanity.

If you wish to keep the love and confidence of your children, you must do all you can to make them love their home and believe in the identity of their interests with yours.

"Almost a miracle"

That is what Rabbi M. Shallit of Edenbridge, Sask., says regarding a cure by Zam-Buk, of which he gives the following particulars:

"A short time ago," said the Rabbi, "a man brought his little son to me and asked if I knew of anything that would cure the child of a terrible skin disease, with which he had suffered for three years. The child's forehead, eyes and ears were covered with sores. The sight was shocking, and the child had not been able to see for two years. As he was an only child, the father said he would give anything to have him cured, but as he had already been treated by many doctors, each of whom had given up the case as incurable, he had about despaired of ever finding a cure. Having great faith in Zam-Buk, I recommended it, and to cut a long story short, perseverance with Zam-Buk has now completely cured the child."

THE FATHER'S ACCOUNT

The following letter from the father of the boy expresses his gratitude: "The Zam-Buk Company, Toronto
Dear Sirs: I beg to testify that my boy suffered for three years with a severe skin disease, which doctors tried to cure, but in vain. The sores on his eyes were so terrible that for two years he was quite unable to see. Zam-Buk, however, has worked a complete and permanent cure.
The Zam-Buk treatment was recommended to me by Mr. M. Shallit, Rabbi of Edenbridge, for which I shall be grateful to him forever.
With best regards to you, I remain, Yours faithfully,
(Signed) E. KOMANUK."

ONE IN THE GREAT CAUSE.

October 28th, 1917.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—I have been intending for some time, to send a communication to your paper, but business necessity has so urgently pressed that it rendered it well nigh impossible for me to write sooner. I wish, through the pages of your paper, to communicate not only with my friends that are in your country, but likewise to speak out to the great body of men and women, loyal citizens to all that is just and good, firm supporters to all that is high and admirable in the world.

I, myself, was born in your country, raised in its spirit and still cherish its ideals, and though I have made my home in this great Republic of the United States, I still understand and appreciate the hopes and sympathies of the great mass of your people, and I have imbibed their spirit and ideals so that I feel constrained to express my utmost support of their cause, my confidence in their success, which is also our success.

I paid a visit to your country—the land of my birth—two years ago and I was especially impressed by what I saw. You were, at that time, engaged in the tremendous struggle with Prussian militarism; you were pouring out your blood generously, and struggling with a whole-hearted and inspired loyalty against the common foe of modern civilization. I saw great numbers of your young men—the best blood and finest spirits of your land—holding the country at last fond farewell, and issuing forth with a courage and a fortitude that spoke eloquently of the justice of your cause, the firmness of your conviction. I was deeply moved and most sensibly touched by what I saw, but little did I dream that in a short space of time our own nation would espouse the same cause, and our own boys would be fighting shoulder to shoulder with yours, to triumph or to fall together.

We have come to realize with you that there lives and works and fights to-day the most inhuman foe of peace and civilization known to the annals of history; and with you we have accepted the challenge of autocracy, becoming brothers in the cause of humanity in which the great democratic, peace-loving peoples are arrayed against the titanic, bestial power of German military and autocratic domination.

The United States is a peace-loving nation. It has from its infancy espoused the cause of liberty and freedom, protected the weak, and launched before the world a new and noble conception of justice and fair dealing in international relations. Its diplomacy has forever been above reproach, and it has forever championed the cause of suffering humanity. We sought peace; we lived for it; we did everything consistent with a high sense of national loyalty and devotion, a true sense of national honor to preserve it. But a nation born and bred in militarism is neither to be swayed by lofty sentiments, nor moved by the wails and agonies of oppressed and suffering humanity. A nation that has built a military caste unparalleled in history; a nation that has crushed small states in order to satisfy its own vicious ends; that has committed brutal outrages against women and children; that has cruelly and with no thought of mercy butchered whole peoples and is reeking with the blood of innocent thousands; that has undermined with sly and sinister influence the whole fabric of modern civilization; that has, like a fabled monster sought and cherished by its terrorizing power to dominate the world, has sought destruction of humanity, and hurled a challenge to the world.

Yes, we have accepted and are ready—to the utmost of our power—to establish our claim. We have contributed generously, and with a true American spirit have already alone subscribed more money than all the fighting forces in the first year of the war. We have arrayed millions of our best fighting men, and with a firmness, a conviction and a loyalty are ready to pour out our blood generously to fertilize the seed of freedom and democracy. And our millions—yes, our billions—will strike fear and terror into the utmost depths of the German Military heart, and with our power of men and money we will render the world safe and peaceable for all time to come.

I cannot bring myself to believe that the cataclysm can continue much longer, and I am exceedingly anxious to revisit the land of my birth. In things of stress like this, it is, however, impossible, but when again we pursue the ordinary channels of life, I shall return for a visit to my old home with thanks and sympathy for those of my comrades who have suffered so nobly and who have united—as it were—your country and mine—Newfoundland and the United States.

Thanking you in advance for space in your valuable paper,

I am,
Yours sincerely,
B. F. FORRESTAL.

The Chance Of a Lifetime.

Every Man Has An Equal Chance.

By THE SENTINEL

That the world is about to enter into a different epoch there can be no doubt. There are those, however, who say that we are drawing near to the End of the World, that the great war now raging will lead up to the Scripturally prophesied battle of Armageddon, when the nations of the earth are to be gathered together to the battle of that great day of God Almighty. Call them mere coincidences or whatever you wish, there are many points on which you will find it difficult to negative them. However, as I am confined to a short article, at this moment I shall not attempt to follow or lay their course of reasoning before you, but say I agree with them when they say that this is not the ordinary waging of War but is the Battle of Right against Wrong. It is for you to say now whether you are for Right or for Wrong. If you are not fighting for Right, when you might be, you are on the side of wrong. You cannot get away from this fact.

That Germany had a mighty, military machine we now know only too well. That Wrongful Might in her instance has fought against Right and has fought in the guise of Treachery, Treason, Poison, Cruelty, Shamelessness and utter disregard of the principles of humanity we have learned only too well.

That she has thus the mark of the Beast on her we have seen. This is what has placed against her all those nations of the World who have all ways been leaders in the cause of freedom and of good government. Allied with Germany are Austria, Turkey and Bulgaria, all of which you have always known as being exponents of the greatest brutality and beastiality to the Italians, the Armenians and the Greeks, or any other nationalities that unfortunately came under their power.

It is for you to say to-day whether you are going to uphold the champions of Freedom, or, by not helping them, that you are lending your aid to the champions of brutality and beastiality. If you are not with us you are against us. Don't mistake that, supposing you don't see it till you are on your death bed. In the cause of Freedom the best men of Newfoundland have fared forth to the War. You know that yourself and it should be guide enough for you. The most selfish men we have, the most shameless men we have, have stayed home to partake of what are in their eyes the softer things of life. Despite the fact that many of them know what their duty is they have said: "If the other chaps are foolish enough to go when they might stay at home, let them, we will only go when we have to." Now, what I would say about these fellows the editor would not print. Compulsory service is evidently their desire and they may not have to wait till Xmas to get it with their military socks. However, in the meantime, there are various influences at work for the further trying out of Voluntary Service to which we can only bow for the present. From these there is only one reason worth while. That is that it is better for the manhood of the country themselves to give their services voluntarily and so for the greater honour of Newfoundland. If the manhood of all communities of the country can rise to this it will be all right. If they can get it into their heads that the world is about to enter into a new epoch, and that they should share in the glory of the better epoch it is all right. It has always been the plaint of most men of our country and time that they have never had a chance. By this they mean they have never had a chance to do anything big. Now, however, none of them can say this. The greatest chance of a lifetime is now before you. It is the chance of proving yourself a real man. You can do that by voluntarily taking your place amongst all the other Real Men now in the Newfoundland Regiment.

Prove to your friends, prove to your relatives, to your sweetheart, perhaps to your wife, that you are a real man.

It may be that the Last Trump is about to be sounded, the last trumpet call for voluntary service. If enough men do not hear it, then it can only mean compulsory service for you, and there is no honour in that for you.

Don't blind yourself now with immaterial duties, don't listen to your mother or your father or any other person in the world if they say your duty is at home when you know in your heart and soul they really can get along without you and your conscience tells you your greatest duty is elsewhere. Tell them that your first duty is to be a Man, and that you are going to join the 1st Nfd. Regiment immediately.

Then you will be a Man amongst Men. If you wait for Conscription you can figure out yourself what you are. Different people may tell you different things.

Milady's Boudoir.

CARE OF THE FEET.

With the consuming passion for smart little high heeled shoes and boots, broken arches and tired feet, like the poor, will always be with us. But exercise will give considerable aid to overcome this affliction and will entirely eradicate it, if followed faithfully.

With shoes and stockings removed, seat yourself and cross the knees. Then, holding the under knee stiff, describe a circle with the other foot, curling the toes under and bending them forward at the other end of the circle. Of course the nails of the toes are given the same careful attention as those of the fingers, but this is only a moments task if attended to daily.

The last lesson Milady of the present day must learn is the art of relaxation. Many of us have breakfast in bed which in some cases is good and in others not. It depends on the stoutness or slenderness of the woman. Lean persons can do a lot of things that would mean beauty death to a stout one.

Lie flat on the floor on the back, slowly and lazily raise the right arm over the head, then, withdrawing all control and direction from it, let it drop heavily of its own weight. Do the same with the left arm and then with the right and left legs. Repeat a dozen times with each member and then rest quietly with closed eyes for five minutes before rising.

Everyday Etiquette.

"When going to a seat near the wall, in any kind of an audience, should I face the people seated, in passing them or should I turn my back to them?" was Jack's query.

"It is more convenient to turn one's back to the persons seated in passing them. It is also necessary to beg the pardon of the people so disturbed," said his elder brother.

LONDON GOSSIP.

LONDON, Oct. 15th, 1917.

PRINCESS MARY.

Princess Mary is now, I hear, fully qualified for V.A.D. (Voluntary Aid Detachment) nursing. Her Royal Highness took the full course under Dr. James Cantlie, that very popular lecturer on subjects essential to first aid and other V.A.D. work. With the other ladies in the very special class to which she belonged, held at Buckingham Palace, the Princess passed her examinations both in the theoretical and practical part of the work. I have not yet heard whether the Princess's great ambition to use her knowledge in a military hospital will be granted her, but if report is to be believed she would make a highly efficient nurse, possibly as skilled as her cousin, Princess Arthur of Connaught, who is known to her patients at St. Mary's, Paddington (London) as "Sister Connaught."

SALES OF GERMAN JEWELRY.

If one may judge from communications which are reaching here, Dutch and other Continental dealers find themselves in not a little difficulty as to how to manage the purchase or disposal of the large and increasing number of packets of jewelry and precious stones offered on sale from Germany. Ordinarily a ready and profitable market might be found across the Atlantic, while the monetary stringency in Holland prevents the dealers from taking up and paying for all the valuables available, but the pressure which is being brought to bear on the seventh war loan requires that they should realize everything they can by the disposal of articles of luxury and personal adornment, and, therefore, lower prices than have ever been known for similar articles may rule for a time.

THE TWO WINSTONS.

There has always been a good deal of popular confusion between our own Winston Churchill and the trans-Atlantic Winston Churchill, the well-known novelist. At one time, indeed, our Mr. Churchill was very widely credited with the authorship of his namesake's stories. The blunder which rendered easier by the fact that amongst his varied accomplishments in soldiering, politics, administration, letters and painting, Winston Churchill—our Mr. Winston—has himself written a novel, in apparent emulation of the traditions of Disraeli. The momentary confusion of the two names has been rendered even more frequent just now by the presence in town of the trans-Atlantic Mr. Churchill on a special mission from the United States, and it seems a pity that some specific distinction cannot be contrived to meet the difficulty. The American Winston Churchill is a descendant of a John Churchill who crossed the sea in the wake of the Mayflower, and the fact that he derived the name of Winston by pure coincidence from an American source is a little remarkable. Unfortunately, neither of the two can now be expected to introduce an additional initial into their names by way of distinction, as one or two now well-known writers have done in the course of their career. John M. Robertson, for instance, availed himself many years ago of this method of preventing confusion with innumerable other John Robertsons. The only solution of the difficulty seems to be to make a Peer of the British Winston Churchill, though even this would scarcely be retrospectively effective in clearing one man's reputation of the other man's work.

ALWAYS THE FOOD QUESTION.

They say that Lord Rhonda, a Peer of burly build, but not really stout, has lost a stone in weight since he became Food Controller. From now onward he, and the rest of us should recover a lot of the weight which we have lost since the beginning of the year. The chief reason of the diminished plumpness of the population is the short ration of potatoes last spring. Now we are allowed to eat as many potatoes as we wish; they are one of the few foods in which Sir Arthur Yapp does not counsel abstinence. Besides the potatoes we eat with full knowledge, we shall absorb a lot more in our bread. Nothing is more fattening than potatoes, and they will offset any winter shortage of heating foods, such as bacon and butter. Some people here are not persuaded that potato bread will be palatable; others want the loaf reduced in price, now that so cheap a material is used in it. A third section predicts that the potato loaf will not keep well, and may go "ropy." "Ropiness" is a hot weather disease of bread, and should not trouble the bakers this winter. But it is true that potato flour increases the dampness of bread, and consequently the housewife who bakes will have to watch that her loaves don't go mouldy. So much for our bread. The outlook in the matter of other foods is that we shall be well off for vegetables, but that milk and meat will grow very scarce as the winter progresses. Some farmers say that next March they will have no beef at all for the civil population. They need not talk so gloomily, because, as a matter of fact, the Government will in a few days announce feeding stuffs for cattle are to be sold at greatly reduced prices in order to make the fattening of bullocks once more worth undertaking.

AUTHORS' RETURN.

Two well-known London men who have been absent for a long time in the East have recently returned to London—Compton Mackenzie and Edward Knoblock. Mackenzie, who is attached to the Royal Marines, was with his ship at Gallipoli for the main part of the campaign, and since then he has been in Athens on special work. Knoblock, who was born in America but is a naturalised Englishman, has been with him in Athens. Since returning to London he has had an interesting experience to add to those that he had in Greece.

MUCH IN LITTLE.

I was shown to-day in the Food Production Department some little dried-up leaves, which I was told represented the eatable portions of three threepenny cabbages. They would little more than fill an ordinary match-box; yet I was assured that, soaked and cooked in the usual way, they would provide portions of cabbage sufficient for seven people. Educating the public up to the advantages of preserving vegetables by drying them has been one of the

Colds & Sense

You have a cold, or your child has a cold; a cough; a tight feeling across the chest; a soreness in the breathing tubes. In the past how have you treated such? You have bought some cough mixture, and swallowed this down into your stomach. Now, why? Your stomach was not ailing; and there is no direct connection between your chest (where the trouble is) and your stomach! Then why swallow into your stomach any mixture when the trouble is in your lungs and bronchial tubes?

It's a mistake; and Peps is the remedy provided to correct this uncommonsense treatment. Peps are little tablets, which contain highly beneficial Pine essences, combined with other medicinal extracts. These healing extracts are so prepared that as soon as you put a Peps into your mouth they are liberated in the form of healing vapors. You breathe these vapors down to the throat and lungs, and thus treat the organs that are inflamed, direct. In a way, it is like breathing from a vaporizer or bronchitis kettle, except that there is no apparatus needed, the little Peps providing everything needful for the treatment! The very small portion of Peps which you swallow has a slightly tonic effect upon the stomach and does you good, but the use of Peps is not for stomach troubles, but for lung, throat and bronchial troubles. Peps cure these as no ordinary treatment can. Children like Peps and they are best for the little ones because Peps contain no morphine, laudanum or other poison found in so many of the old cough mixtures. Druggists and stores everywhere sell Peps in box or from Peps Co., Toronto, for price. Remember the name—four letters only:—

most useful branches of the Department's work, since it answers the question of what is to be done with surplus products. Already many thousands of housewives have been instructed in the art, and under a new proposal that this branch of the department shall be handed over to the Ministry of Food, its scope is likely to be widely extended.

RUM COMMANDEERED.

The Government is taking possession of all stocks of rum in the country, and has prohibited commerce in the spirit. This decision appears to have been quite unexpected by the trade, and the Government is being urged to allow the release of a certain amount for the use of the workers. The position is that the stocks are running low, and the supply may become insufficient for the use of the fighting forces. There is sufficient rum in hand for the navy for some time, but not sufficient without for the army. The stocks in the London docks fell from 42,450 puncheons at the beginning of 1916 to 29,561 puncheons at the beginning of this year. Very little rum has been imported for the last few months. From early times the British sailor has had his daily tot of rum, and when it was decided to supply spirits under certain conditions to the soldiers in the field rum was selected. Next to brandy, it is the most stimulating of the spirits, and it is, of course, much cheaper than brandy—it is called "the poor man's brandy." In recent times rum has ceased to be a popular civilian drink, having given place to whiskey, which experts regard as far more deleterious. It is still a favorite with workmen, especially in the North of England, as a morning stimulant. Rum in milk or coffee, for instance, is a common early morning drink in Lancashire and in the shipyards. The Government's case probably is that rum is a morning drink and public-houses are now shut in the morning. The average wine merchant probably sells only one bottle of rum to every two or three hundred bottles of whiskey.

Don't forget that it is as important to learn about pits, dug-outs and cellars for storing garden produce as it is to grow it.

"Cascarets" Best For Headachy, Bilious Sick, Constipated

Best for liver and bowels, bad breath, bad colds, sour stomach.

Get a 10-cent box. Sick headache, biliousness, coated tongue, head and nose clogged up with a cold—always trace this to torpid liver; delayed, fermenting food in the bowels or sour, gassy stomach. Poisonous matter clogged in the intestines, instead of being cast out of the system is re-absorbed into the blood. When this poison reaches the delicate brain tissue it causes congestion and that dull, throbbing, sickening headache.

Cascarets immediately cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out all the constipated waste matter and poisons in the bowels. A Cascaret to-night will surely straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist means your head clear, stomach sweet, breath right, complexion rosy and your liver and bowels regular for months.

WAR SUMMARY
The Austro-German forces fighting against the Italian along the Tagliamento River, from the foot of the Carnic Alps south to the Adriatic Sea, are proving successful. The invaders of the Isonzo, driven their way across the river Pinzano and are pressing on while to the north of the river, intense operations are being carried out by the Teutonic forces. Two manoeuvres probably have their objective the cutting off of the entire right wing of General Cadorna's army. The Berlin wire of its announcement of the order of the river says 6,000 Italians were taken prisoners and that a large number of guns also were captured. The Italian official statement is only brief mention of the prisoners, merely asserting that the enemy succeeded in bringing some of his forces to the right bank of the river. There is no indication of any endeavor to maintain the Tagliamento line, but it is not improbable that stand here is a temporary one, in positions of greater strength prepared in the rear. Since the retreat from the front began there has been no statement confirming the position by Cadorna for turning against the enemy, but some observers have considered that such large losses in men and during the retrograde movement would merely lead to stand on the Tagliamento and retard the until better arrangements, and reinforcements in men and guns could be provided further westward. Both the Italian and German war offices are silent as to the movement begun by the enemy in the Trentino region. It is said that it was believed at the time that the Germans and Austro-Germans would attempt to push forward along the western and Lake Garda, through Bressanone upon the plains and between the Italian front in the Trentino and the Italian front in the Trentino with regular and most men, who were made prisoners.

WAR SUMMARY.

The Austro-German forces operating against the Italians along the Tagliamento River, from the region of the Carnic Alps south to the Adriatic Sea, are proving a serious menace. The invaders of Venetia have driven their way across the river at Pinzano and are proceeding west, while to the north on the Italian left, intense operations are being carried out by the Teutonic allies, the two manoeuvres probably having as their objective the cutting off of the entire right wing of General Cadorna's army. The Berlin war office in its announcement of the forcing of the river says 6,000 Italians were taken prisoners and that an additional number of guns also were taken. The Italian official statement makes only brief mention of the operations, merely asserting that the enemy succeeded in bringing some of his forces to the right bank of the stream. There is no indication as yet whether it is the intention of Cadorna to endeavor to maintain the Tagliamento line, but it is not improbable that his stand here is a temporary one, while positions of greater strength are being prepared in the rear. Never since the retreat from the Isonzo front began has there been an official statement confirming the spot chosen by Cadorna for turning about against the enemy, but some military observers have considered that with such large losses in men and guns during the retrograde movement, he would merely elect to stand along the Tagliamento and retard the enemy until better arrangements, including reinforcements in men and guns, could be provided further back westward. Both the Rome and Berlin war offices are silent as to the movement begun by the enemy in the Trentino region last Saturday, which it was believed at the time indicated that the Germans and Austro-Hungarians would attempt to push southward along the western banks of Lake Garda, through Briscia and out upon the plains and between Milan and Verona. In the initial attempt to break the Italian front in this region, the Germans met with repulse and even lost men, who were made prisoners.

GERMAN PLANS.

Italian Headquarters, Northern Italy, Nov. 5.—Reports of heavy artillery fire on both banks of the Tagliamento, with the chief pressure on the Italian left wing, show that Austro-German patrols have crossed the river as forerunners, and that the enemy is trying to throw the main body of his attack in Giudicaria Valley, on the Trentino front. They also show clearly his purpose to make a mass attack from the north.

GERMANS CROSS TAGLIAMENTO.

ROME, Nov. 5.—The Germans have crossed the Tagliamento River. The war office announces the Austro-German pressure against the Italians' northern wing has been intensified.

VENIZELOS IN ROME.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—Premier Venizelos, of Greece, who arrived in Rome yesterday accompanied by a number of Greek officials and deputies and the British naval attaché at Athens, Capt. Talbot, will extend his visit to other Entente countries. According to a cable received here to-day, his purpose is to secure material for equipment of the Greek army before actual mobilization is completed.

BELGIAN WOMEN BUILDING DUG-OUTS.

British Front in Belgium, Nov. 5.—Belgian women and girls are being compelled to build concrete dugouts under artillery fire. The statement that this form of slavery has actually been practiced is recorded in the diary of a German soldier who was recently captured. An illustration of German disregard for laws of war and humanity can be found in an incident which occurred the other night near Houthulst forest. The British heard the cries of "stretchers bearers" from No. Man's Land. It naturally was assumed that a wounded man was calling for help and Red Cross bearers rushed out through the darkness to render assistance. They were shot down by German snipers who used this ruse to entice them into the open.

TURKS DRIVEN FROM FIRST LINE.

PETROGRAD, Nov. 5.—In the region of the Black Sea Coast the Russians have driven the Turks from their first line and advanced in some places to the third line, the war office announced. Much booty was captured.

AUSTRIANS USE NEW GAS INVENTION.

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 5.—According to the correspondent at Gorizia of the Budapest Pesti Mirlap, the Austrians made their attack upon Gorizia with a new poisonous gas, the invention of a Viennese professor. The rain which fell during the attack it is explained, kept the fumes close to the ground and rendered the Italian masks useless against the new invention, which the correspondent declares, is one hundred times stronger and more deadly than the gas used in former attacks on the same front.

BERLIN OFFICIAL.

BERLIN, Nov. 5.—A supplementary statement issued by the general headquarters this evening says: In Flanders there is variable artillery activity; in Upper Italy good progress is being made.

A GOOD SHOT.

ROME, Nov. 5.—Two Italian carabinieri fired into the automobile of the General commanding the Third Army Corps of Brandenburg, while it was in the suburbs of Udine on Oct. 28th. The General was killed; his aide was desperately wounded and made prisoner.

IN GULF OF TRIESTE.

ROME, Nov. 5.—A naval bulletin last night referred to intense activity in the Gulf of Trieste.

TELEGRAMS DECIPHERED.

ATHENS, Nov. 5.—Lengthy telegrams which passed between former Queen Sophie and Emperor William during December, 1916, and the early part of this year, similar in tone to others that have been deciphered, are now made public and show that the Germans take the offensive on the Macedonian front. Queen Sophie assured the Emperor, her brother, of Greek cooperation. Field Marshal Von Hindenburg and Foreign Secretary Zimmerman, it appears, could not agree on the time the attack should be made, while the blockade of the Allies caused a shortage of food and munitions in Greece and prevented Greek action. On Jan. 10th the Queen telegraphed Emperor William, telling him of this food and ammunition shortage and concluded, "May the infamous pigs receive the punishment they deserve." In other telegrams the Queen promised that Greek artillery would be destroyed if there was danger of its falling into the hands of the Entente. She also kept her brother informed of the actions and intentions of General Sarrail.

OPERATIONS IN PALESTINE.

LONDON, Nov. 5 (Official).—Operations against Gaza are continuing and we are in contact with the enemy north of BeerSheva. The total number of prisoners captured by us from the commencement of those operations is now 207 officers and 2,429 men.

RUSSIAN OFFICIAL.

PETROGRAD, Nov. 5.—On the northern front fusiliades attained certain intensity in the Drinsk region. In the sector west of Lake Sventen the enemy opened violent artillery fire. On the western and southwestern and Roumanian fronts there were fusiliades and scouting operations. In the Black Sea coastal region, in the Kalkin-Chiftlik sector, one of our detachments ejected Turks from their first line trenches and at some places advanced to their third line. We took large quantities of arms and ammunition. In Kesh region, southwest of Erzingen, small Turkish detachments attempted to make an offensive but were repulsed. In Belimur region our scouts dispersed several parties of Kurds. The situation on the Baltic is unchanged.

IN PETROGRAD.

LONDON, Nov. 5.—At a meeting in Petrograd on Saturday, as reported in an Exchange Telegraph despatch from that city, representatives of the whole Petrograd garrison passed under the guidance and influence of the Bolsheviks, the radical pacifist group. Leon Trotsky, President of the Central Executive Committee of the Petrograd Council of Soldiers' and Workmen's Delegates, spoke with great confidence saying the Soldiers' and Workmen's Delegates would come into power Sunday. Many meetings were organized by the Bolsheviks. On the other hand Cossacks held a religious procession, carrying the cross and their banners and inviting the public to participate. There was most intense excitement in Petrograd on Saturday, the despatch says.

ARTILLERY ACTIVITY.

PARIS, Nov. 5.—There was intermittent artillery activity in Belgium and Upper Alsace says to-day's official announcement. An enemy attack on our small posts west of the Upper Cuch Forest was repulsed and prisoners remained in our hands. Everywhere else the night was calm.

GERMANS IMPOSE HEAVY FINE.

LONDON, Nov. 5.—A despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Co. from Amsterdam says that according to a frontier correspondent, the German authorities in Belgium have imposed a fine of ten million francs on the province of East Flanders because it failed to place forty thousand laborers at the disposal of the Germans by Nov. 1st.

NEWFOUNDLAND SUGAR.

TORONTO, Nov. 5.—Food Controller Hanna to-day declared that sugar shortage in Canada is real and would soon result in drastic restrictions if the situation did not improve. One evidence of this shortage was the fact that eleven cars of sugar for shipment to Newfoundland Saturday was held in this country.

An Appeal.

On Behalf of the Fire Sufferers in the Recent Fire at Random Island, Smith's Sound.

We, the undersigned, beg to appeal to a sympathizing public for aid on behalf of 10 helpless families at Petley and Aspen Cove, Smith's Sound, whose homes and property were totally destroyed in a forest fire about three weeks ago. The severity of the fire was such and its course so rapid, fanned and driven as it was by well nigh a half a gale of wind, that humanly speaking it was impossible to attempt to save anything or to battle with the devouring element in its course; nevertheless in many instances an heroic fight was maintained by the men until they were driven from their homes by the flames; while in others the men being away a mother and some helpless children had barely time to make good their escape. In less than an hour after the fire reached the villages it had destroyed the Church of England Church, fourteen dwellings, ten of them occupied, about the same number of barns with all the season's stock of hay, several stores, outhouses and stables with a loss in two of them of 30 qtls. of fish, four mills with quantities of lumber and logs, and 10 families rendered homeless with well nigh everything they possessed a few heaps of ashes. A conservative estimate has placed the loss at about $15,000.00. Practically nothing was saved. In one or two instances a bed and bedding and in others a trunk of clothes was saved, while in others what had been taken out of houses was afterwards destroyed. We therefore venture to take the liberty of appealing through the public press on behalf of these poor people who have so completely and suddenly been dispossessed of the savings and earnings and labors of a lifetime. In normal times the situation for these people would be a hard one indeed; it becomes intensely hard in a time like the present. We feel sure, therefore, that this appeal needs but to be made to meet with a sympathetic response from a generous and liberal public. The undersigned have constituted themselves a local committee to deal with the situation, to any one of whom gifts of clothing or money may be sent or to whom gifts can be forwarded through the medium of the press. On behalf of the fire sufferers: Hugh W. Facey, Mission Priest, Church of England, White Rock, Smith's Sound; Thomas Pitcher, Methodist Clergyman, Britannia; John T. Currie, Britannia; James T. Walters, Petley; Ed. T. Gardner, School Teacher, Petley, (Secretary); Walter Bugden (Chairman).

Rod and Gun.

Rod and Gun for November, which is now on the news-stand, contains as usual many stories and articles of particular interest to the lover of outdoor life and sportsmen generally. R. J. Fraser in this issue describes the "Joys of the Winter Camp" and Charles Camsell writes of the Wood Buffalo of our North-Western Canadian plains. Fred Copeland tells an entertaining story, "The Dominie's Mascot," and there are many more stories intervening between these and the regular departments devoted to Fishing, Guns and Ammunition, Kennel, Along the Trap Line, etc. The Kennel for this month contains a write-up of the recent Dog shows at Ottawa and Montreal with a list of awards given at each Show. Rod and Gun is published by W. J. Taylor, Ltd., Woodstock, Ont.

Infectious Disease.

Since the advent of the fall infectious disease has been on the down grade. Only two cases of diphtheria have been reported from within the city limits.

There is one case of smallpox at King's Cove and the sufferer is being attended by Dr. Levisconte.

When the Kidneys Fail.

Poisons Remain in the Blood, Which Cause Pains and Aches—Read Here of the Surest Way of Setting the Kidneys Right.

Brockville, Ont., November 6th.—If you have headaches, backaches and rheumatic pains you have reason to suspect the kidneys. Pain is caused by poisons in the blood, and poisons only remain in the blood when the kidneys are defective and fail to do their work. This Brockville lady has reported her case because she believes that a great many people are suffering as she did without knowing the cause or cure.

Mrs. Frank Noyes, 9 Stuart street, Brockville, Ont., writes: "For years I was afflicted with kidney complaint. I became very nervous, was easily worried and had frequent headaches and neuralgic pains, especially through the back. I had indigestion, poor circulation of the blood and was bothered with weak spells. I commenced using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and had only taken two boxes when I felt greatly relieved. I continued the treatment, however, until I was completely cured. In all I took about ten boxes, and have not been troubled in this way since. I highly recommend Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and I think also that the Fraxtors and Ointment can't be equalled."

Here is another letter to show how rheumatic pains disappear when the action of the kidneys is awakened by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills: Mr. John May, Walkerton, Ont., writes: "I was troubled with rheumatism in my legs and it became so lame that I could scarcely get around. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills were recommended to me, and so I commenced using them. After I had been taking them for awhile I was delighted to find that my rheumatism had left me, and to-day I am as sound as a bell, able to get around and attend to business. I have made use of Dr. Chase's medicines in many ways for the last forty years, and cannot speak too well of their good qualities."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25 cents a box, all dealers or Edmanston, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. You cannot expect such results from substitutes. Insist on getting the genuine.

Winter COATS.

These Coats are all this season's styles and all British made. This means that they are made of woollen materials, which signifies more warmth, and that they will hold their colour better than American made Coats, which as a rule are made of at least 75 per cent. cotton, but which are now being introduced on this market owing to the difficulty of getting British made goods.

However, we have been fortunate in getting a big stock of British Coats, but owing to their late arrival and our being very much pressed for room, we have decided to offer them of any Coats now offering the Newfoundland public. Do not delay making your purchase as bargains are few and far between these days, and as our Retail Prices are now less than the Wholesale Prices of those of the Wholesale Coat Men, this lot may not last long.
