CHAPTER XXII
DAYS OF ANGUISH

The old doctor bent down and listened to his breathing and felt his pulse. Then he looked up and shook his head.

Reginald led the way to the dressing-room.

"Well," he said, "what do you think of him, sir?"

"Very serious," he said. "Mr. Darrell has had a shock, I might almost say a fit. I ought to have been sent for before."

"It is true," said the captain, gravely. "I have only just returned from London, where I have been staying for a day or two. He was quite well when I left—that is, as well as he usually is, and the change seemed so great that I sent for you without an hour's delay."

"Quite right; quite right," returned the little man. "I ought to have been here before. I don't like the look of it at all."

"You think it is serious?" asked the captain, with an anxiety he tried in vain to conceal.

"The squire is an old man—an old man—and has lived—ahem!—well, rather an excitable life," replied the old doctor, guardedly.

The captain nodded thoughtfully.

"There has been some shock—some shock—ahem!—you understand me?—connected with the unfortunate business respecting Mr. Hugh. I warned the squire then. I told him I would not answer for the consequences of another such strain. But, oh, my dear young sir, patients always make light of doctors' warnings and only remember them when it is too late!"

Then he took a pinch of snuff complacently and toddled back to the bed. After a few minutes he returned to the captain, who was standing by the mantel-shelf, gazing thoughtfully at the fire, and said:

"If I might make the suggestion—ahem!—I think it would be as well if Miss Darrell were to be near. You understand?"

Reginald Dartmouth turned almost savagely.

"Miss Darrell is in London," he said. "If any nursing is required I will do it."

The doctor bowed.

"Very good, Mr. Dartmouth," he said; "so that I can have some one on whom I can rely."

Reginald Dartmouth followed him out of the room, and they stood beside the bed again.

The old man was still sleeping, the vacant look upon his face prominent and marked.

The doctor stayed for about half an hour, then, saying he would hasten home to make up some medicine, he left the squire to the care of Reginald Dartmouth.

The captain waited until the door had closed and the brougham had rolled away, and then bent his head down to the quiet one of the old man.

He listened to the short, irregular breathing for a minute or so with a deep frown upon his face and his lips shut tightly.

"Ahem!" he muttered, and with stealthy tread made his way to the door of the next room.

It was a small one, and served the purpose of a dressing- and washing-room, though the squire had seldom used it in the latter capacity. Pausing a moment at the door to look back at the bed, Reginald Dartmouth crept on tiptoe to a large safe that stood in the corner and, shading the candle with his hand, knelt down to try the handle.

"Locked," he muttered. "Now, where are the keys?"

He looked round the room carefully, trying to fix on the most likely place to search for them.

On the table stood an inkstand and a few sheets of paper, lying on the blotting-pad.

He took up the blotting-pad and examined the marks upon it with minute scrutiny, but could decipher nothing.

Then he resumed his search for the keys, noiselessly opening the drawers of the table and carefully turning over the bundles of papers and confusion of odds and ends.

Then he searched the pockets of a dressing-gown, and carefully turned out the contents of a small cabinet.

"They must be in the other room," he muttered, anxiously.

And he stole back to the bedroom.

Satisfying himself that the old man was still sleeping, he continued his search.

But the wished-for keys were nowhere to be found, though he looked for them in every likely place, not scrupling to turn out the pockets of the clothing in the wardrobe as he had done those in the dressing-room.

Then, wiping the perspiration from his forehead, he crept back to the bed and stood with dark, frowning face, looking down upon the still, vacant one lying on the pillow.

What was to be done? He must have the keys. Within that safe lay the old man's will. He must have the keys.

Suddenly an idea struck him and he laid his hand upon the pillow.

Yes, they were there. He could feel them.

They were there; but how was he to get them? The slightest movement of the pillow might awaken the old man and render him suspicious.

And yet, stilling the beating of his heart, for it throbbed with the excitement of the situation, he slid his hand quietly and slowly behind the old man's head and took the keys.

At the moment his fingers touched them the old man opened his eyes.

"Reg," he said, faintly, with a startled look, "what is the matter?"

"I am trying to lift your head a little higher, sir," said Reginald Dartmouth. "Do you feel any better?"

But the old man, after staring vacantly at him for a moment, closed his eyes again.

Reginald Dartmouth, with the keys safe in his grasp, smiled sardoniously. It had been a narrow escape. He waited patiently for a few moments, then crept into the next room.

He knelt down to the safe and inserted the key, but before he could turn it a cry from the next room disturbed him and brought him back.

The old man was half up in the bed, his face drawn and anxious, his eyes glaring round the room.

"Reginald, Reginald!" he gasped, as the captain came up to the bed with solicitude on his face. "I—I—have had a dream."

"A dream, sir?" said the captain, soothingly.

"Ay, ay!" returned the squire, sitting back to the pillow. "A dream. Reg—a dream. Ay, only a dream, though!"

Anxious to humor him back to sleep again, the captain sat down beside the bed, the keys still in his hand.

"A dream, sir, was it?" he said in a low voice. "Not a disagreeable one, I hope?"

"No, no!" moaned the old man. "I dreamed, Reg, that Hugh was alive and back at the Dale again. He and Grace—alive—and—and—"

Here his eyes closed again, and he seemed to have fallen into the old stupor.

Reginald Dartmouth was all on fire.

The time was flying with the wings of lightning. The doctor would return; Mrs. Lucas, whom he had sent to lie down for a little while, would be up and in and out the room; he would get no chance to see the will! Again he bent down to listen.

The old man seemed asleep. He would venture now.

Once more stealing toward the door, he cast a look back, and at that moment the old man started up with a look of horror upon his face, pushing the hair from his brow with one hand, clutching the bedclothes with the other.

"What have I done? What have I done?" he gasped, as Reginald came back to the bed. "What have I done?—robbed my lad of his own—his own? Reg, give me—my—keys—they—they—Where did I put them? Oh, behind the pillow!"

And with difficulty he half turned and clutched at the pillow.

Reginald Dartmouth put his hand behind it and took out the keys.

"Are these they?" he asked, holding them out to him.

"Yes, yes!" he groaned. "Go to the safe and—fetch the—the—the will! Quick—quick!"

No need to bid him hurry. He sprang into the next room, unlocked the safe and, snatching at a paper which lay inside, returned to the bed.

The old man was still sitting up, his gaze fixed eagerly upon him.

He took the will in his hands and pointed to the candle.

Reginald brought it and the old man held the paper to the flame.

Before it had ignited, however, Reginald drew the candle away, and the paper fell on the bed.

The old man groaned.

"Burn it—burn it!" he gasped.

"Give me some paper—ink!"

Reginald Dartmouth took up the will and, thrusting it into the breast of his coat, went into the next room for his paper and ink.

When he came back the squire was lying down, but at sight of the paper he raised himself on one arm.

"Bring it to me—quick, quick, Reg, or it will be too late, and Hugh will be robbed—robbed!"

The captain, with a white, anxious face, spread the paper out upon a tray that lay on a table beside the bed and placed it before him.

"The pen—the pen!" breathed the old man, and Reginald Dartmouth placed the pen in his hand.

With a groan, as if summoning all his strength, the dying man grasped the pen and commenced writing.

Reginald watched him with a bright light in his eyes and lips that seemed carved in stone, his gaze chained upon the trembling hand and shaky characters it traced upon the paper.

Whatever had gone before this, he felt, would be the squire's last will.

With difficulty the old man scrawled a dozen lines or so, and then paused for breath.

"Hold—my—hand, Reg; hold—my—hand," he gasped.

Reginald Dartmouth held his hand, and the old man traced his name at the bottom of the sheet—"Harry Darrell."

"There, there; it's done, thank Heaven! Reg, Reg, it was 'most too late. It was the dream did it; I should 'a' robbed the poor lad of his own if it hadn't—been—for—the dream. Never mind, Reg. You're an honest—honest fellow, lad—an honest fellow. I—haven't—forgotten you—haven't forgotten you. There's two thousand pounds—two thousand pounds. It isn't so much as the Dale, which you'd 'a' had; but I couldn't rob poor Hugh—poor lad!"

And he sank upon the pillow, still clutching his last will.

Reginald Dartmouth set the candle down, the perspiration pouring off his face.

"Let me see the will," he hissed, and snatched it from the weak fingers.

The old man opened his eyes and stretched out his hand.

"Not that one!" he cried, faintly.

"Don't burn that one! That's—Hugh's, poor Hugh's! The—other—one. Burn the other one."

A low cry of mockery rang from Reginald Dartmouth's lips as he lifted his eyes from the paper and fixed them on the glaring ones of the dying man.

"Not burn this?" he hissed, with a sneer. "You old fool—no! burn this! See!" and he held it to the candle.

The old man sprang up in bed as if with a superhuman effort, his eyes glaring like coals and almost starting from his white face, and snatched at the will.

Torture of the Inquisition
A Modern Example of Suffering

People suffer—suffer torments—with help at hand. Gin Pills can overcome pain in the most marvelous way—all the suffering which follows in the wake of weak or diseased kidneys, such as rheumatism, sciatic neuralgia, stone in the bladder, excruciating backache, stiff and swollen joints and ankles, yields quickly to the soothing, healing, strengthening power of Gin Pills, which contain Juniper and seven other valuable diuretics and antiseptics.

Mr. Arnold McAshell, of Hants, N.S., writes as follows:

"For a long time I suffered from a pain in my back and could not move without agony. I grew worse until confined to bed. A friend advised me to use Gin Pills. Before I had used one box I began to feel better. By the time I had finished two, I was completely cured. I cannot say too much in favor of these pills and I recommend them strongly to anyone suffering from kidney trouble."

At the first suggestion of pain in the back get Gin Pills from your druggist or dealer. Each box is guaranteed to relieve—or money back. 50c a box. Free sample, sufficient to show its value, sent on request.

Australia Gives Prince a Loyal Welcome.

Reception of King's Son Most Enthusiastic--Hungary Has Signed Peace Treaty -- Premier Surprised Railway Men -- Prince Albert Receives Ducal Coronet--Large Force of Marines Land in Ireland.

AUSTRALIA'S WELCOME TO THE PRINCE.
MELBOURNE, June 4. Prime Minister Hughes has sent a cable despatch to Australia's commissioners abroad describing the enthusiastic welcome given the Prince of Wales. The message says: "The Prince of Wales was received at Port Melbourne by the Governor General of Australia, Premier and representatives of all bodies in Australia. The landing was witnessed by large crowds. Their joy, held up by hours of waiting, burst into wild enthusiastic acclamation. The Prince drove eight miles through gaily decorated streets packed by six hundred thousand people, waving and shouting their welcome and vying with the guns of the Australian fleet in the harbor. Thousands of pigeons released added to the welcome, which was unprecedented in Australia. At night the Government House ball was attended by throngs of people of all classes. Millions of lights provided a gorgeous illumination. Since his arrival the Prince has been fully occupied with the receptions in his honor, sometimes surrounded by those brilliantly dressed their welcome and vying with the masses. He presided over the first Privy Council in Australia, bestowing military and other decorations and receiving military and naval representatives. Everywhere he has been taken to the hearts of the people, his

The mother who loves her baby and yet is unfortunately not able to rear him in Nature's way cannot go wrong if she follows the advice of doctors and mothers, based on a century's experience, and feeds him on "Nevve's Food," which ensures baby being properly nourished. Being rich in the flesh-forming albuminoids and bone-forming salts, it builds bone and flesh, assists teething, gives healthy sleep, and is easily assimilated and digested. If your baby is fed on Nevve's Food, he will be free from teething troubles, rickets, and other similar infant complaints, and will grow up healthy, happy and contented. And these are facts which should have weight with a mother when choosing her baby's food.

EVERY MOTHER should send for Free Nevve's Food, which will be mailed on receipt of 24 for postage. Booklet, "Hints About Baby," sent on receipt of 24.

many qualities and democratic bearing endearing him to all. Although he has been here for a week the enthusiasm has not slackened."

WILL MAINTAIN LAW AND ORDER.
LONDON, June 4. Premier David Lloyd George yesterday received a deputation of the National Union of Railwaymen with reference to the movement of munitions to Ireland, says the London Times to-day. The Times asserts that after the railwaymen put their case before the Premier, Mr. Lloyd George made a forcible statement, declaring that the Government would do all in its power to maintain law and order, and that the railwaymen seemed to be somewhat surprised by the uncompromising nature of the Premier's reply.

HUNGARIAN PEACE TREATY SIGNED.
VERSAILLES, June 4. The Treaty of Peace with Hungary was signed in the Grand Trianon Palace here at five o'clock this afternoon. The Hungarian treaty was the first of the treaties framed by the Peace Conference to be signed ahead of time.

ANOTHER PROFITEER FINED.
ROCHESTER, N.Y., June 4. The Antwerp Diamond Company, which operates three credit jewelry and clothing stores in Buffalo, was found guilty in the United States District Court here of violation of the Lever Act, by charging unjust and unreasonable prices for clothing and was fined eighteen thousand dollars.

U. S. SECRETARY OF STATE RESIGNS.
WASHINGTON, June 4. Frank L. Polk to-day resigned as Under Secretary of State and his resignation was accepted by President Wilson.

TRIAL YACHT ARRIVES.
NEW YORK, June 4. The twenty-three meter Shamrock trial "horse" for Shamrock four, Sir Thomas Lipton's Challenger for America's Cup, arrived here to-day from Dartmouth, England, under her own sails, commanded by Captain Alfred Draper.

TRAGIC SUICIDE.
BOSTON, June 4. Mrs. Mollie Binder and her three small children, Harry, Abraham and Geraldine, died from gas at their home on Lucerne Street, Dorchester District to-day, under circumstances indicating in the opinion of the police that the deaths were planned. All the bodies were found lying on the bed. Mrs. Binder had been under treatment for nervous disability. The police theory is that after her husband, Morris Binder, left the house for his business to-day put the children in bed, turned on the wall gas jet and lay down with them. A neighbor who smelled the gas and entered the apartment by a bedroom window to investigate, notified the police.

ONLY ONE PEERAGE.
LONDON, June 4. Only one peerage is bestowed in the King's birthday honors, and that is conferred on Prince Albert, who becomes the Duke of York, Earl of Inverness and Killarney. Prince Albert, as King George's son, thus takes the titles his father possessed as the late King Edward's second son. The majority of the honors are for services rendered during the war.

MARINES LAND IN IRELAND.
CORK, Ireland, June 4. The battleships Warspite and Valiant arrived in Cork harbor to-day and transhipped a large number of marines into destroyers, which took them into Queenstown where they landed. The troopship Caritas embarked twelve hundred troops at Devonport for Queenstown, from which place they will be distributed in Wexford, Waterford, Cork and other countries. A goods train was wrecked last night in street of West Meath, Leinster, as a consequence of rails having been torn up.

Municipal Council.

The weekly meeting of the Council took place last night. Present Mayor Gosling, Councillors Ayre, Mullaly, Morris and Vinnicombe.

The petition presented by citizens re reservation of roads for pedestrians, but the Council, while in full sympathy with the movement, regretted that under the present Act, they are unable to accede to the petition, but that the Legislature will be asked to grant the necessary powers to the Council to close any road or streets to certain class of traffic.

Dept. Minister Public Works Harris requested estimate of cost of oiling road.

Application of Mr. Sweetapple for position of driver of motor sprinkler, was ordered filed.

J. W. McNally, Solicitor, on behalf of James Ryall, asked that he be paid for services rendered during the present year in connection with the collection of horse taxes. He is to be offered $25 without prejudice.

Application of Job Bros. and Co., re water main extension South Side Road, will receive attention of the City Engineer.

Neyle, Soper Hardware Co., Ltd., will be given permission to install motor at their premises, Adelaide Street.

Permits to make extensions were granted the following, subject to the approval of the City Engineer: Frank Parsons, Freshwater Rd.; Wm. Driscoll, Coronation St.; J. W. Egan will be permitted to build stable on Cornwall Avenue, provided that he conforms to the regulations.

Application of Ed. Murphy, Water St. West, to make repairs, was referred to the Engineer.

Plans for alterations to premises Water Street, as submitted by Neyle, Soper Hardware Co., Ltd., were passed.

Plans of the St. John's Abattoir Co., Ltd., to erect an abattoir and cold storage warehouse on Water Street East, was deferred pending a report of Medical Health Officer.

The matter of looking for Legislation to limit the fire service to Job's Street was under discussion, and as it is a very important matter, the opinion of Inspector General Hutchings will be asked for, particularly from a fire standpoint. The work of the Venturi Metals, Ltd., will shortly be put in operation.

Plan of garage for Dr. Fallon was passed.

The Councillor Vinnicombe referred to the case of Sanitary employee Hopkins recently pensioned. The Council can do no better than they have already done.

On last Sunday, a big fire which was in progress at Windsor Lake might have done great destruction but for the prompt action of a number of residents of Broad Cove section, Thornburn Road. The Council wish to publicly thank these men for their prompt action, and has awarded those engaged a small recognition of $5.00 per man.

Reports of the City Engineer, Plumbing Inspector and other officers were tabled.

Tenders to supply earthenware pipe were awarded W. J. Ellis and H. J. Stabb Co.

Report of Health Officer Brehm for the week showed 4 new cases of diphtheria.

The question of the resolutions in connection with motor cars at present before the Legislature, caused a lengthy discussion, and resolutions were passed and ordered to be presented to the Legislature immediately, protesting against such legislation, which means depriving the city of its share of the revenue derived from this source and handing it over to private interests, known as the Newfoundland Motor Association. Copies of the resolutions so passed were also ordered to be published in the daily papers.

With passing of the pay rolls and other minor matters the meeting adjourned.

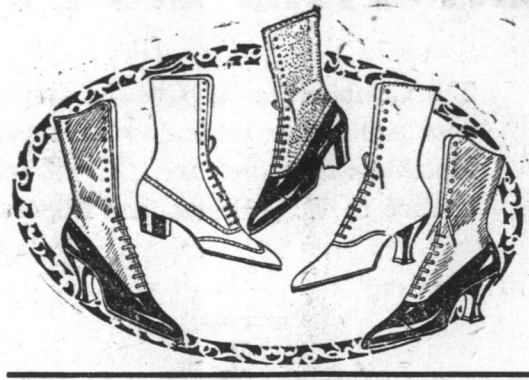

Obituary.

On May the 26th, there passed peacefully away at his residence, the Ropewalk, city, David McDonald, in his 28th year. Deceased was well known in marine circles having followed the sea from his boyhood years until shortly before he died. He followed his calling during the Great War, braving the dangers of the submarine and did his bit for King and Country as truly and as well as those of the Royal Naval Reserve. To such men as him Newfoundland owes her prosperity during the trying times between 1914 and '18. The past year 1919, he was mate on the Arronet, owned by Tessier & Co., on her he made his last voyage. Arriving home in the early part of January in perfect health, he shortly afterwards contracted the "flu" and gradually became weak until pneumonia setting in quickly did its work. He was a man beloved by all with whom he came in contact, ever ready to do his duty and give a helping hand to any who needed it. He leaves to mourn their sad loss a wife (formerly Miss

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

DON'T DO THINGS BY HALVES.

RUTH CAMERON

Here is a little tableau which I witnessed the other day. A man whom I know to be one of the innumerable neuve a riche of these days, was dining in a fashionable restaurant with two women as his guests. He is a man who only a few years ago was a day laborer, and although he is a thoroughly worthy person, he has not been used to some of the amenities of life. But in the last few months since he made his phenomenal rise, he has associated with some people who have been bred to observe all the gracious customs. While the party were waiting for their order, a woman friend stopped to speak to one of his guests. Of course it was his place to rise, and he did—but only half way. There he hesitated in an extremely awkward position, half way out of his chair and half way in it, his napkin clutched to his chest and a look of embarrassment on his face. Finally he sank back, still awkwardly. Plainly he knew that was the thing to do, but was not sure enough of himself to do it wholeheartedly.

perfectly sure. Complete the bow or the smile—it won't do any harm, and at least is much less awkward. Uncertainty is always awkward. It is always better to do a thing wholeheartedly if you are going to do it at all than to pull up just before you take the jump and land in the middle of the ditch.

Rod and Gun.

Bonnycastle Dale, the well known naturalist, has written and illustrated a splendid article descriptive of trapping conditions in Rice Lake, Ontario, during the 1919 season. This appears in the June issue of ROD AND GUN IN CANADA along with nine other stories and articles dealing with the wild life in the great out doors of the Dominion. "The Red Gods" are calling insistently now that grim winter snows have gone and even if you are not in a position to enjoy the real outing that you like, you can live again the happy days of former outings by reading the pleasurable narratives set down by fellow lovers of the wilds. The June issue of Canada's national sportsmen's monthly contains the usual high class Guns and Ammunition, Fishing Notes, Conservation, Kennel and Trap Departments. ROD AND GUN IN CANADA is published monthly by W. J. Taylor, Limited, Woodstock, Ont.

THE SICK MAN.

Stretch out a hand to him! Though poor he seems, Time was he cherished youthful hopes and dreams, Time was he woke at morning, just as you, To think of splendors that his hand might do, And though the outer garment shows sin's stains, Perhaps some beauty of his soul remains.
Stretch out a hand to him! To be his friend May be your own great tribute at the end; Kindness to sinners does not breed disgrace— More shame to him who turns away his face; Help him to rise who falls beside the way As you to God for help are moved to pray.
Stretch out a hand to him! Were he in pain Or sorely hurt, with him you would remain; Did some mischance strike him a stunning blow Without delay unto his side you'd go; Well, he is sick at heart or stunned by fate And needs your help, but lo! you hesitate.

Our Railway.

(Western Star.)

It has been reported that the daily express service would be resumed as soon as the various depots are supplied with coal, but we have not, so far, been able to get the report confirmed. As we have previously stated, however, a regular tri-weekly service the year round with regular freight trains would be much more acceptable by the public generally, and prove inestimably more valuable to the trade of the whole country than an attempt at a daily service for a few months during the summer season followed by a repeat of last winter's experience. In summer time there is a variety of means for travel and for the transportation of freight, which more or less circumvents the Island. They are, however, mere ships of passage; with the first appearance of winter, ships of the tin-can class must hie to more congenial waters. It is then that the railway stands to be the great benefit to the country that it was intended to do should be. When much of our coast is barricaded with ice, and our harbors sealed by the operations of Jack Frost, it is then that the Iron Horse has an opportunity to justify its maintenance.

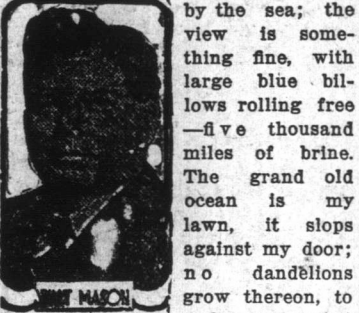

The trade and progress of this Newfoundland of ours has been retarded through the lack of public facilities, and will so continue until such time as our public services are brought up to meet the requirements of the age. We have the railway through the country; for over a quarter of a century it has rendered service. But since its first construction there has been little or no improvement. The day has arrived, however, when something must be done to the trunk line. The people expect it, and the trade and commerce of the country demand it.

BY THE SEA.

I'm at La Jolla, by the sea; the view is something fine, with large blue billows rolling free—five thousand miles of brine. The grand old ocean is my lawn, it slopes against my door; no dandelions grow thereon, to make my spirit sore. The water booms into the caves, reminding me of this: I do not have to mow the waves; and such a thought is bliss. I see the billows, high and dark, the endless surge and swell; I see the seals, and hear them bark, as though they'd things to sell. And I could sit and watch the sea one thousand years or two, and every hour 'twould bring to me some message strange and new. It's saying, as it sighs and raves, and murmurs moans and pleads, "You do not have to mow my waves, or from me dig the weeds." The salt sea sloshes round my coop, and sharks come up and play, and I sit out, upon the stoop, and smile the livelong day. I've always had a lawn to mow, and weeds to dig at night; no sandbars on the ocean grow, to mar my chaste delight.

Household Notes.

Take the milk bottles from the doorstep the moment the milk man leaves them.
Rents in gloves and umbrellas may sometimes be mended with adhesive plaster.
The vinegar in which pickles have been preserved is excellent to use in salad dressing.
Dainty moccasins can be made for baby from the tops of pale-colored evening gloves.
When cutting new bread, dip knife in hot water, and the bread will not crumble.
If pearl buttons have been spoiled in the laundry, rub with olive oil and polish with flannel.
Hot sliced tongue served with boiled rice and glazed carrots make a good one-dish meal.
A piece of adhesive tape put inside rubbers will prevent their splitting down the sides.
Very good wash cloths are made from white stockings cut open and their edges crocheted.
The guest chest should contain a nightgown, a bathrobe, slippers and even a new toothbrush.
A number of creamed soups can be made with the water in which vegetables have been boiled.
Cotton crepe table napkins are a convenience in the summer cottage, as they require no ironing.

The Dust Nuisance.

St. John's was ever noted for its being the dusty city, but never more so than in this month and year of grace. Clouds of germ-laden dust whirl and sport along the streets, and wayfarers and bystanders alike are choked and strangled with the flying particles. From every passerby are heard strong expressions of protest and denunciation, because of the neglect of the authorities to cope with a nuisance, dangerous and annoying. We talk of Child Welfare and the necessity of hygienic care in the conservation of the public health, yet all the time the thousands of people in this city of dreadful dust are being slowly poisoned by the inhalations of microbe infested particles, and all because of a lack of dust laying appliances. There is no scarcity of water and it is therefore a disgrace that St. John's is in such a vile condition to-day. The least air of wind is enough to start the dust fiend on its course, and with a strong breeze blowing from any quarter the peril becomes intensified, penetrating as it does stores, houses, offices, schools and other places where people congregate, leaving layers of fine, powdery grit and other components on wares and clothing, not to speak of food supplies. People cry out for some action to be taken, but the sound of their protest goes unheard and unheeded. We have been promised oil, but while waiting for its application to the streets the menace to health still continues. To-day especially, pedestrians and drivers of vehicles were almost blinded and choked by the solid volumes of dust which swept through the streets, and were it not for the good offices of the Water Street store proprietors, who kept their watering hoses going, thus obviating in a measure the rising of the accumulations of the filth of the winter and spring, the discomforts and dangers would have been augmented. Somebody is responsible for the condition of St. John's as it is at the moment; and a more discreditable state was never known. It is time something was done and done quickly.

C. E. Orphanage Garden Party.

At an enthusiastic meeting of ladies and gentlemen held last night in Canon Wood Hall, Mr. Reg. Dowden occupied the chair. The object of the meeting was to make arrangements for the annual Garden Party in aid of the C. E. Orphanage. It was agreed to hold the event on Wednesday, August 11th. Many of the ladies present volunteered to be responsible for tea tables. Mrs. G. Shears and Mrs. (Hon.) T. Cook were appointed to arrange for others. A large number of table holders will be needed this year and any lady desirous of assisting is requested to notify Mrs. Cook or Mrs. Shears. Another meeting will be held on the 25th inst., when it is expected arrangements will be well in hand. The men's committee will meet shortly to discuss their share of the work. It is hoped to make this year's Garden Party even a greater success than last year's.

Grand Concert and Play to be held in St. Joseph's New Hall, Plymouth Road. Tickets for sale at Fred. V. Chesman's. Reserved 50c. General admission 10c. Concert begins at 8.15 p.m. June 2, 4.

Incorrect.

An item in this morning's Daily News states "at a meeting of the City Council last night very strong resolutions were passed protesting against regulations which have been brought before the Legislature at the request of the Newfoundland Motor Association which regulations propose to take from the Council its proportion of taxes derived from motor cars and to spend the same on roads outside of the city in the interests of the motorists."

This does not correctly report the regulations now before the Legislature. The bill proposes to give the City Council $5,000.00 yearly which is about $500.00 more than they received last year. The Association is asking for legislation to increase motor taxes, and for the Government to give them the increase, from this it will be seen the City Treasury is not being interfered with. In fact the City will be greatly benefited if the bill goes through, as machinery which the Motor Association propose purchasing will be at their disposal under a Commission to be appointed in spending the $5,000.00 allowed them, with this machinery, and as good results will be obtained as details the amount given under the present conditions, and at this rate the City will be benefited to the extent of $6,000.00 yearly, instead of being harmed, and we may hope to see Cornwall Avenue, LeMarchant Road, and many other City streets, which for the past two years have been in such a deplorable condition, put in shape.

E. COLLISHAW,
Secretary Nfld. Motor Association.

Baseball League Met Last Night.

A meeting of the Baseball League was held in the offices of the Vice-President, Mr. W. J. Higgins, K.C., when Secretary Reg. Dowden read the minutes. Treasurer F. Brien, of the Football League, gave an account of the work done in connection with St. George's Field. It was decided to enter a relay team in the C.C.C. sports on July 7th as requested by Major L. C. Murphy. The matter of insurance for players was left in the hands of the various teams. The games, of which there will be 20 on the regular schedule, will be played Tuesday and Thursday evenings and Wednesday afternoon, the other evenings being devoted to football. The use of the grounds on Saturdays and mornings of holidays will be decided by arrangement between the two leagues. The opening ball game will be played on Wednesday, the 16th inst. The matter of renting the field will be decided by the executives of both leagues who are joint lessees of the property. It was unanimously decided that Mr. J. B. Orr, a noted fan, preside at meetings in the absence of the president or vice-president. Two rounds will be played and in case the second is not finished the championship will be decided by the standing of the teams in the first. The fixtures will be:
C.E.I. vs. Wanderers.
The Cubs have the bye and will play their first game with the C.E.I. play their first game in automatic play. The admission fee will be ten cents and ten cents extra for the grandstand. A meeting will be held next Friday night to arrange details in connection with the opening game. A vote of thanks proposed by Mr. T. V. Hartnett was heartily accorded and tendered by the Chairman to Mr. Fred. Brien for his valuable services in connection with repairs and improvements to the grounds.

Letter from Far North.

Rev. Canon Bolt was yesterday in receipt of a letter from Rev. S. M. Stewart, Fort Chimo, Ungava. The missive was dated March 6th and has been three months on the way. Rev. Mr. Stewart gave an account of his stay of four months with the Indians on the return from which they ran short of food, nevertheless doing the journey of 300 miles in 16 days. The travelling was done on snow shoes. An epidemic among dogs having carried off most of them, left no other means of travel. Rev. Mr. Stewart hopes to return to England on furlough in the fall, and on the way will stay for a few days in St. John's.

Poor Outlook.

(Trade Review.)
Dried codfish that was sold readily for $14 quintal last fall, is a drug in the St. John's market this week. The spectacle of scores of fishermen going up and down Water Street with "yaffles" of fish under their arms was again in evidence, and in most of the merchants' offices that they visited the reply was, "we do not want any fish just now, we are not buying." In fact, except in one office they would make no offer. Several schooners are in the stream at anchor with part cargoes and seven or eight with full loads—one with 1,300 quintals. It is a serious situation and looks bad for the coming fishery.

A party of friends were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Looking Backward

12 MONTHS OR SO.

A little over twelve months ago I was demobilized from the army. I had to exchange from khaki into civilian clothing. The problem that faced me at the time seemed formidable, but—thanks to the good services of an old comrade—the problem was solved quite easily. It was this way: The procedure of being "demobbed" had been remarkably simple. Upon arriving in St. John's I had reported to the Militia Department, where after a little delay I was handed a bundle of different colored Army forms all signed, sealed and settled, and soon I was again on Water Street—"demobbed". Behold me, now, seeking a civilian outfit. All I possessed was an old blue suit that had certainly seen better days. How was I to get (a) a suit, (b) a hat? My shoes were O.K. Two or three A. P.M.'s had assured me that they were not of regulation military pattern. My shirt and collar I could get along with. What I wanted quickly was raiment for the body and a decent covering for the head.

Just at that point in my meditations I came into violent contact with some solid substance. At about the level of my eyes I saw a row of medal ribbons; the next moment I shouted for joy! Above the ribbons beamed the cheery physog of one Sam Trout, ex-Sergeant Major and an old comrade. Now I beheld him in the garb of a policeman doing duty on Water Street. We exchanged hearty greetings, to the no small amusement of the public. I exulted. Here was a man to solve my difficulties. Sergt-Majors are men of sterling qualities. They solve before breakfast problems which would blacken a poor sub's whole day. I confided in ex-Sergt. Major Trout, he beamed and waved his hand. "That's easy, sir; go in there," said he, pointing to a doorway. "That's The Royal Stores Gent's Department; ask to see Mr. Leahy, he is the man to fix you up." To cut a long story short, I went in, and after selecting a smart looking hat, saw Mr. Leahy, who I found to be the gentleman in charge of the Custom Tailoring Department; and a fine man he is too. I was shown a selection of Suitings—all smart patterns; I soon made my choice, my measurement and other particulars were taken and a day arranged for trying on. Anyway, a week later I found myself the proud wearer of a smart tweed suit of fashionable cut, and I walked the streets habited as a civilized man for the first time in 5 years—and well dressed! Why, it was the best fitting suit that I had ever had, and time has shown that it has given excellent service.

Believing as I do in hanging on to a good thing when it comes my way, I paid another visit to Mr. Leahy last week and repeated my order.

By a strange coincidence who should I meet coming along Water Street but old Sammy Trout, the ex-Sergt. Major. We spent some time talking over old times. I told him where I had just been, and tried to thank him again for his good advice.

"That's all right, sir," said he. "One good turn, &c., you know"; and he added with a reminiscent grin, "That was a h— of a time we had at the railway track, wasn't it, sir?"

NO WAR WEALTH TAX.

LONDON, June 4. The Cabinet Council to-day decided to abandon the idea of a tax levy on war wealth, which had been examined into by the Cabinet and by a special Committee of the House of Commons.

NEW BOLSHEVIK OFFENSIVE.

LONDON, June 4. A new Bolsheviki offensive has begun between the Pripet Region and the Dniiper River, according to news that has reached London. Advances say that Polish posts have been driven in by a force of sixteen thousand cavalry and one infantry division, and that the Poles line now runs from Bracklaw to Biela Yachkov.

SINN FEIN WINS LOCAL ELECTIONS.

BELFAST, June 4. Followers of Sir Edward Carson have been defeated in County and District Council elections, in their own strongholds, in choosing boards of guardians. In addition to Sinn Feiners winning County Tyrone for the first time, and maintaining their hold on County Fermanagh, Michael Carolan, who was unseated by Belfast Council following his sentence at hard labor for an alleged seditious speech, to-day headed the poll in the Spankhill division of Belfast, which previously had been a stronghold of Orangemen. Still another Sinn Fein Echo de Paris, political editor of the division, Belfast, the stronghold of Joseph Devlin, and another Sinn Feiner was elected in Lisburn.

OFFICIAL DENIAL.

LONDON, June 4. Persian officials in London announced to-day that there was no truth in the reports that the Bolsheviki had occupied Teheran, the Persian capital.

FRANCO-TURKISH ARMISTICE.

PARIS, June 4. An armistice convention with Mustapha Kemal Pasha, chief of the Turkish Nationalist forces in Asia Minor has been signed at Beyrout by Baron Robert de Caix, Secretary General of the French High Commission there, says "Parisian" political editor of Echo de Paris. This step, which was taken five days ago is said to have been necessary because the French are compelled to regroup their too widely scattered forces in Syria.

INCREASED WAGES.

LONDON, June 4. The National Wage Board has issued a report granting railwaymen further increases in wages, ranging from two shillings to seven shillings per week, according to their grade, in addition to the increases already granted under a sliding scale. The demands of the men for special pay for holidays and similar days were refused.

ELECTION EXCITEMENT.

City Council Resolutions.

June 5, 1920.
Dear Sir.—Enclosed please find a copy of Resolutions passed at a meeting of the St. John's Municipal Council, held last night, which I will thank you to have published in this evening's edition.
Yours very truly,
J. J. MAHONY,
Acting Sec.-Treasurer.

TO HIS HONOUR THE SPEAKER AND MEMBERS OF THE HONOURABLE HOUSE OF ASSEMBLY.

The Petition of the Undersigned Humbly Sheweth,
That the Municipal Council learns with much astonishment that a Resolution has been presented to the House and rushed through its earlier stages, which proposes to deprive the City of a revenue, amounting last year to $5,300.00, without any apparent intention of bearing the Council in reference to the matter. To be specific, the Resolution proposes to hand over all the taxes received from Motor Cars to the Motor Association, and so far as the City is concerned the Association calmly offers to spend $4,000.00 of the amount upon the streets of the City! The Council presumes that such proposals could not have been seriously intended.

In the first place, the Council has always possessed the right to levy tax upon horses, carts, carriages, etc., using the streets of the City, and when Motor Cars were introduced applied to have them included. This was done and a small tax was imposed, which the Council collected for the benefit of the City funds. Later Mayor Ellis requested the Legislature to increase the amount of the Tax, which was authorized, but in doing so the Government took half the amount for the General Revenue. The Council has consequently protested against this as an injustice, claiming:

- (1) That nearly the whole of the Cars are owned by citizens of St. John's.
- (2) That the streets of the City are damaged by the continual passing of Cars.
- (3) That the greater part, perhaps 75% of the usage of Cars is within the City limits.
- (4) That the General Revenue already received through the Customs a very heavy and sufficient contribution from Motor Cars.

It appears now that, at the request of the Motor Association, the Legislature is ready to hand over the half of the Motor Taxes, which the City has been receiving, to a Commission. The ostensible object—being the improvement of roads outside of the City Limits, but the real object of which is to afford greater comfort and pleasure to the Motor Association. It is undoubtedly true that motorists in using the roads in outlying districts occasion a certain amount of damage to such roads, and it is also admittedly most desirable that all the district roads should be improved, but the Council submits that the very heavy import duty on Cars affords ample revenue for an increased grant to such districts, and that it is unjust to deprive the City of a Revenue to which it clearly has a perfect right.

The Council has about twenty-five miles of streets to take care of and living upon these streets there are 36,000 people. The City has never been able to afford to put its streets in the condition in which they should be kept, and this year proposes to spend about $25,000 in making repairs, oiling and watering the same, but which sum is entirely inadequate to the purpose. If the Motor Car Taxes of $5,300.00 are to be taken from the City either the expenditure upon roads must be reduced or the people of St. John's must tax themselves in some other way to make up the amount.

It seems hardly possible that the Legislature can contemplate depriving the City, whose necessities are so great, of this revenue, in order that motorists may have a pleasanter trip through the Country. The Council further begs that the Legislature should contrast the amount of traffic to which the City streets are subjected to the traffic on the country roads. At any moment of the day there are probably five hundred or six hundred cars, carts and carriages using the twenty-five miles of City streets, while it is doubtful if one-tenth of that number could at one time be found on any other five miles of road in the Colony of Newfoundland.

The Council is informed that a suggestion has been made to allow the Council a flat sum of $8,000.00 from the Motor Taxes, the City to continue to collect the taxes and attend to the registration of cars as at present.

The Council submits that thus to limit the share of the City is not fair. The number of Cars in use in the City will undoubtedly increase, and the damage to and use of the streets will be increased, therefore the Revenue of the City from this source should be likewise automatically increased.

The Council begs to draw attention to another feature of the matter. There has been during the past few years a very important increase in the number of Motor Trucks used in the City. These Trucks, which cause considerable damage to the streets, are used almost exclusively in the City, the only exception being the transport of codfish from Pouch Cove, rendered necessary by the difficulty of shipping from that place. The Council does not consider that it has any claim to any portion of Taxes on Motor Cars outside of a five mile limit from the City boundaries.

To sum up, the Council most strongly protests against any alteration in the apportionment of the Taxes of Motor Vehicles, except as noted above. That is, the Council should receive one half of Taxes on Motor Cars owned in the City and within five miles thereof; the whole of the Taxes on Motor Trucks owned in the City; The Council shall not receive any portion of Taxes on Cars owned outside the above limits.

The Council further begs to remind the Legislature that it applied in May, 1917, to have the Taxes on Motor Cars increased by 50%, but that its proposal was turned down by the Government of that day.

For and on behalf of The St. John's Municipal Council,
W. G. GOSSLING, Mayor.

Obituary.

HAROLD RUSSELL.

The passing of Mr. Harold Russell, at his home in North Sydney, on the 2nd, of June, will be heard with regret among his friends and relatives of this city. Harold was the only son of the late Jessie and Robert C. Russell, the latter only predeceasing him about three weeks ago. In December past, he underwent an operation for a serious internal disease, and all that science and medical skill and that was done, to combat the disease and prolong his life, but it soon became apparent that his life was slowly but surely ebbing away. Harold Russell received his education at the Methodist College, and later was in the employ of the Reid Nfd. Co., and the Government Postal Telegraph office as operator where he served with credit to himself and satisfaction to his employers. About ten years ago he removed to North Sydney, where he held a position as operator, with the Western Union Cable Company. Mr. Russell married Miss Gertrude Croucher, only daughter of Mr. J. T. Croucher, who with three small children are left to mourn an irreparable loss. The deceased also leaves two sisters, Mrs. E. J. Birch of this city and Miss Lilian of New York.

One less at home, a charmed circle broken, A dear face missed day by day from its usual place, But cleansed, saved, perfected by grace, One more in Heaven.

Says Last Four Years Are Like a Nightmare

Dodge Had Lost Fifty Pounds and Couldn't Sleep—Tanlac Again Proves Merit.

"I've been patting myself on the back ever since I took a friend's advice and tried Tanlac, for the way it overcame my stomach trouble was really wonderful," said Thornton M. Dodge, of the Dartmouth Ferry Service, who lives on Stair Street, Dartmouth, N. S.

"When I look back on the past four years and all that I've gone through on account of indigestion, it just seems like a dreadful nightmare. I couldn't eat a thing but what it would sour on my stomach and a bitter liquid would come up into my mouth afterwards. Then gas would form and bloat me up until I would almost choke and I would have cramping pains all through the stomach. At last I became afraid to eat because I knew I should suffer so much afterwards, and I often left the table without touching a bite. I lost fifty pounds in weight, couldn't sleep well at nights and hadn't a scrap of energy. In fact I was just about out and out and was at my wit's end to know what to do, for although I had tried all kinds of medicine, it was like throwing my money away for all the good they ever did me. A friend of mine who had been greatly helped by Tanlac advised me to try it, and I'm sure glad I did for it has done me a world of good. I now have a splendid appetite and can eat in every way that I have for years past. There isn't anything on the market that can hold a candle to Tanlac as a medicine for stomach trouble, and after what it has done for me I am glad of this opportunity to recommend it."

Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors; by Reg. Sullivan, Pouch Cove; Sound Island Store, Sound Island; Dennis Flynn, Avondale; J. J. O'Brien, Cape Broyle.—adv.

Women's Missionary Society.

Friday morning's session opened at 10 o'clock, Miss G. Parsons in the chair. The first item brought forward was in relation to Circles and Bands. At 11 a.m. Mrs. Hunter took charge of the devotional exercises. This was one of the best half hours of the whole series of meetings. Minutes of previous meetings were read and adopted, and next in order came the election of officers, resulting as under:

Hon. President—Mrs. Curtis.
President—Mrs. E. J. Hunter.
1st Vice-President—Mrs. Story.
2nd Vice-President—Mrs. (Rev.) Pickering.
3rd Vice-President—Mrs. (Rev.) Taylor.
Recording Secretary—Mrs. R. Duff.
Corresponding Secretary—Mrs. E. Lindsay.
Treasurer—Mrs. J. Peters.
Secty. of Strangers—Mrs. N. Joyce.
Secty. Circles and Bands—Miss G. Parsons.
Treas. Circles and Bands—Mrs. L. Taylor.
Supt. Christian Stewardship—Mrs. A. E. Parkins.
Secty. of Literature—Mrs. W. G. Currie.
Auditor—Mr. W. G. Currie.

District Superintendents.

Carbonar—Mrs. John Maddock.
St. John's—Mrs. K. Macrae.
Western—Mrs. A. S. Adams.
When the election was concluded adjournment was made to the luncheon room, where the good things provided for the visitors were very much in evidence. Strictly speaking we could not replenish the inner man; but we did amply supply the inner woman. The afternoon session opened at 2.45 with opening exercises by the band-leaders. An address was then given by an old W. M. S. worker for many years, Mrs. Snowden, widow of the late Rev. M. Snowden, so well known all over the colony for his faithful work in the Master's Vineyard. Mrs. Snowden's address was beautifully given and heartily enjoyed by all present. We had further a report from Mrs. Mayo of the Western District. In keeping with former reports this one was up to the usual high standard. A short memorial service was then held for our dear sisters who had during the past year "Crossed the Bar" and entered "rest." Rev. Dr. Hugh Pedley of the Congregational Church, gave us an illuminating address on "The Friendship of Jesus," and we heartily thank the Dr. for his beautiful words. The series of meeting and sessions was brought to a close with a sacramental service, conducted by the Rev. Dr. Bond, Rev. Dr. Pedley, Rev. Dr. Saint, Rev. Darby and Rev. Atkinson. We go back to our respective homes and work with, we trust, a greater intensity of purpose and stronger zeal to do great things in the name, and for the sake of Him whose we are, and whom we serve, helped by our prayers, and gifts of money and our untiring services to send the Gospel of the blessed God to those who have it not.

"Another year of mercies
Of faithfulness and grace,
Another year of gladness
In the shining of thy face.
Another year of progress
Another year of praise;
Another year of proving Thy presence all the days." L.L.B.

Legislative Council.

June 4th.
The House met at 4 p.m.
The Bill entitled "An Act to Amend the Income War Tax Act 1918" passed the third reading.

The Bill entitled "An Act to Check Profiteering," evoked a lot of discussion. In 30, Committee stage, Hon. Mr. Steer being the first to offer comment. He began his remarks by criticising the title of the Bill. He said that most of the noise about profiteering was made by newspapers, but he was prepared to admit that at times there may have been money made on pork, beef, flour and other fluctuating articles. "This Bill," said the Hon. Member "does not give any definition of what is meant by profiteering. The intention of the bill is unfair to the trade. If for instance extra profit is made on sugar loaves at the same time may be made on pork and beef. He proposed an amendment to paragraph 3 of the Bill.

Sir Patrick McGrath, who was a member of the old Food Control Board while not exactly criticising the present one sailed into the Government's methods of control. He read a few extracts from the manifesto of Premier Squires re profiteering, the contents of which almost astonished the Government members. In fact the copy from which he was reading had to be shown. Some of the difficulties which the Board of Control had to face, the Chairman were stated particularly regarding biscuits and butterine. At the mention of the latter Sir Patrick was charged with allowing the manufacturers such little profit that they had to go out of business. He asked Hon. Mr. Browning to give a statement of how the hard biscuit manufacturers were dealt with. Hon. Mr. Browning stated that they were allowed a profit of 20 cents per bag and that the dealers wanting more profit for selling than they were getting, applied to the manufacturers who in turn asked the board. The Board turned down the request, and the result was that a new bakery was started by some of the dealers. Hon. Mr. Steer here offered some explanation, which apparently did not make matters much better.

Hon. Mr. Grieve and Hon. M. P. Gibbs and Hon. R. K. Bishop also took part in the discussion. The committee rose and reported progress, the rest of the order of the day being deferred till next session.

Judgment in the Hr. Main Petition Case Mr. W. Woodford's Election Declared Null and Void.

In The Matter of The Election Act 1913, The Election For The District of Harbour Main, Held on November 3, 1919.

RICHARD KELLY, PETITIONER, AND WILLIAM WOODFORD, RESPONDENT.

The petition in this case, presented by Richard Kelly, a voter in the District of Harbour Main, complains that the respondent, William Woodford, one of the candidates elected for that district at the general election, held on November last, was not duly elected or returned and that his election was void, on the ground that before, during and after the election, he had been guilty of certain corrupt and illegal practices. The petition contains a great number and variety of charges against the respondent, but at the trial, most of these were either abandoned or not proved by the petitioner. The petitioner relied, mainly, on the allegation that the respondent had improperly distributed public moneys to voters of the district for the purpose of procuring them to vote for him. The respondent had been Minister of Public Works for a number of years immediately preceding the election and in that capacity had the management and direction of the Department of Public Works and of the construction and repair of roads and bridges. During the Session of the Legislature in 1919 a sum of $500,000 was appropriated by the Legislature for roads and bridges. By direction of the Governor-in-Council the money, after deducting $3,000 therefrom to pay to the Newfoundland Teachers' Association, was allocated on a per capita basis, to the eighteen electoral districts—one half to be expended by the Public Works Department for roads and bridges and the other by the Department of Marine and Fisheries for wharves and fishing works. Under this direction of the Executive Government the sum of $257,75 was placed to the credit of the District of Harbour Main in the Public Works Department in an account known as the "Surplus Trust Special Account" to be expended on roads and bridges. The respondent, besides being Minister of Public Works, had represented the district of Harbour Main in the Legislature up to the dissolution in September, 1919, at the trial the petitioner's evidence was that the respondent had improperly distributed this money to voters of the district. The respondent on the other hand says that all expenditures of the district were made by him in his capacity of Minister of Public Works and were properly and legally disbursed upon the repair or construction of roads and bridges. The main question to be determined is whether the manner in which the respondent allocated or distributed this money to the voters amounted, in law, to bribery. If he used this money in a manner and for a purpose which in legal language constitutes bribery then that he did so under legal forms and in accordance with the practice of his office does not destroy the illegal and corrupt character of his conduct as a parliamentary candidate. He disbursed any public funds as Minister of Public Works or otherwise unfairly and improperly with the view, motive or intention of securing votes in his favour he was, in law, guilty of a corrupt practice and therefore liable to the disqualifications and penalties attached thereto. The Public Service Act, by which the sum of $500,000 was appropriated to roads and bridges, provides that the Governor-in-Council may authorize the payment to Local Boards or Councils where they exist, of all moneys voted for their respective district or neighbourhood for roads and bridges, and the money so paid may be expended by these Boards or Councils upon such needs or requirements as such Board or Council may determine. In the district of Harbour Main there are eight such Boards elected under the Local Affairs Act, 1915. One each at

Horse Cove, Turks Gut, Colliers, Conception Harbor, Avondale, Chapel's Cove, Harbour Main and Holyrood, but no part of the $500,000 appropriated by the Public Service Act, 1919, was paid to or expended by these Boards, but was all expended directly by the Department of Public Works, under the management and direction of the respondent. The procedure adopted by the Department in making allocations and payment out of this fund for the repair or construction of roads and bridges was for the Minister or Secretary to fill in on form of allocation authorising the person named therein to expend a specified sum of money upon a particular work. A cheque was drawn up by the accountant for the amount required and sent or delivered to the person to make the expenditure with a letter of instruction and a blank form of return to be filled in by him when the work was done, giving a detailed account of the money he had received. The manner in which this system was applied in the district of Harbour Main left complete control of all expenditures on roads and bridges in that district to the respondent, a control, which, according to the evidence, he fully exercised before and during the election. In many cases whilst he was canvassing the district with his colleague, Dr. Jones, he appropriated and made arrangements for expenditures to voters under circumstances which pointed to no other conclusion than that they were made for the purpose and with the intention of influencing the voters to vote in his favour. In October he asked a voter, Joseph Tilley, of Kelligrews, to call at his office and gave him a cheque for $25.00 which was charged to the "Surplus Trust Special Account" in the Department, but he did not inform Tilley for what purpose it was given him and Tilley could not say why he received it. He had done during the previous four years. Tilley took the cheque, cashed it and spent the money for his own purposes. The respondent, who was not called as a witness, gave no explanation of this extraordinary transaction, and no attempt was made to ascertain how the money was spent, nor does it appear that any return was made to the Department. A third cheque for $25.00 was paid to this voter for repairs to a road to his farm. This road was in and part of his own farm. It was not a public road. The expenditure was an improper use of the public funds which are not intended for the improvement of private farms. It does not appear that any return relating to this money was made to the Department. A third cheque for $25.00 was paid to Tilley for work on Tilley's Road. This amount was paid after the election although Tilley did not know whether it was arranged for or not before the election. He says that he did not get this work done owing to the weather conditions and because he was not allowed to work between nomination and polling days. The evidence leaves no doubt that the payment of this money was arranged for between the respondent and Tilley before the election. In the case of Charles Mercer of Kelligrews who a year previously had asked the respondent for money for a road, the respondent, when he was canvassing that part of the district, brought Mercer a cheque of the Department for $25.00, dated October 1, 1919, and gave it to him with a blank form of return, to work out on a road leading to his farm. The work was not done on the road but in November, after the change of Government, he was asked to return the money to the Department, which he did. Another voter, George Tilling, was asked by Mr. Woodford during his canvass to do some repairs to a road. Tilling undertook to do it for $50.00. He worked out his money on the road in question and some days later Mr. Woodford brought him a cheque of the Department, dated October 16, for $150.00 and gave it to him at the house of Joseph Tilley with a blank form of return to be filled in and returned to the Department. When Tilley took it the respondent said to him, "that is more than I promised you," but he did not let him what the extra money was for or why it was given to him. Tilley was surprised to get it. He didn't know what to do with it. He recognized that he had not earned it, therefore he put men to work on the roads. In this way he "worked out" $129.00 in all, including the first $50.00. The balance $21.00 he returned to the Department with his return, which he did to do so, after the election. No blame can be attached to Tilley in this transaction. He acted honourably. He acted honourably and honestly throughout. But the inference is inevitable, in this, as in the other cases, referred to, that the allocation was made and the money paid by the respondent for the purpose of securing Tilley's vote and influence at the election. About October 23 just before nomination day Mr. Woodford while passing through Lance Cove met a voter named Richard Walsh. He stopped him and asked Walsh, "did he have any place he could work out a few dollars." Walsh told him about a local road in his inside land, which needed repairs. Mr. Woodford promised to pay him $20.00 after the elections. Walsh said he'd work the money out on that road, which he did, he was paid after the election. This road leads to two farms, one of them owned by Walsh, but at this time all his crops had been taken out. Arthur Clark, of Horse Cove, in the district was paid $50.00 by the Secretary, Mr. Harris, on November 1st, for work done on an order by the respondent, dated October 23rd. Mr. Woodford and his colleague visited Horse Cove in the course of their canvass of the district. Clark met them and told Woodford there and told him he had done work on the roads during the past four years, for which he had not been paid. It does not appear that this work was authorized or inspected nor was its value ascertained. Woodford asked him "would $50.00 do." Clark replied "yes." Clark brought him to see the condition of local roads. They returned to Clark's house where Woodford gave him the order just referred to and promised him another $50.00 if he was returned. Then there is the case of William John Morgan and the payment to him of the men who worked on the Seal Cove Bridge in August and September. Morgan was a member of the Road Board or Local Council; in the Seal Cove Section of locality. The work on Seal Cove bridge was done under Morgan, on the instructions of Mr. Hibbs, Chairman of the Board. Payment was made to Morgan and to Mr. Woodford, Minister of Public Works, on Monday, October 12th. Mr. Woodford was in Seal Cove of the men who worked on the bridge. He told Morgan he would pay the men on Wednesday. On Wednesday the paymaster, Thomas Kelly, arrived by train from St. John's and paid the men in Morgan's house. Some 18 or 20 men had assembled outside the house to get their money. Mr. Woodford and his colleague were outside the house talking to the men while they were being paid one by one by Kelly, inside the house. After the men were paid Mr. Woodford asked Morgan "if he wanted anything." Morgan asked for a few dollars for Indian Pond Road. He was paid $75.00, which he worked out on Indian Pond Road. He also arranged on this occasion with a voter, Thomas Dowden, to pay him $15.00 to work on a road to his ground, and with James Morgan, who told him that he (Morgan) had no money on this job (the Seal Cove Bridge) because he was working in town at the time. The respondent told him "he would see what he could do," and he was paid $10.00, according to the allocation. The respondent also gave James Morgan "for road to farm," he gave him $20.00 for a road to his farm. On the 16th of October after I was speaking to Mr. Woodford. William John Morgan, the Road Commissioner, brought it to me in an envelope. No particular return sheet was returned to me. I suppose to work on the road, if you like. I didn't work it out yet, but I will." He left the return sheet with William John Morgan to be filled in when the money was worked out. On the same occasion another voter, Jacob Lear, of Seal Cove, asked Mr. Woodford for a little help on the road. He said he'd "do the best he could." He gave him $25.00 for a road to his house. He sent him a Department cheque for the amount through William John Morgan, with return sheets enclosed in an envelope. He didn't work it out. The respondent says he will work it out, and that Morgan will decide on what road. These payments to Thomas Dowden, James Morgan and Jacob Lear were arranged for by Mr. Woodford. The money was paid at Morgan's house for the work they had done on Seal Cove Bridge. Two days later, the 16th October, Morgan got cheques and return sheets for each of them. He gave them to them. At the same time he brought voters named George Daves $10.00, Henry Coveyduck $20.00, Benaiah Morgan $25.00 for different purposes. Nicholas Quilty, of Horse Cove, says he went to Mr. Woodford about the 13th of October, and got a $20.00 bill from the Board of Works. He needed it and went to look for it. He had come from the fishery and was destitute. He asked Mr. Woodford if he could give him $20.00 for a little work on the road. Woodford gave it to him then and there. Quilty says in his evidence: "I didn't tell him any special place. He didn't ask me. He gave me the money to take to the place in particular was mentioned." The money was paid by a cheque of the Department. In cross-examination, he said, he intended to work out the money, but that he had two houses in his house in Manuels to make a road "to get to a bit of ground." He told Woodford what it was for. He had to make the road. There was no road there before. It was through his own hand. He worked the money on this road and after the election he sent in his returns. There is nothing in Morgan's evidence to justify this payment out of the public funds and the respondent gave no explanation in regard to it. It is clear, from these cases and from others of which evidence was given at the trial, that the respondent intimately associated the payment of public money and the giving employment to voters, with his canvass of the district during the election. The evidence shows that, between the 14th and the 29th of October, over $7,000.00 was allocated and paid by or through the respondent to about 135 voters of these payments amounts varying from $5.00 upward. Some of these payments were utterly unjustifiable, such as those to Nicholas Quilty, to Thomas Dowden, the extra $20.00 to George Tilling, to Arthur Clark, to Joseph Tilley and others. Some of these payments were made to improve the grantee's own land, others to pay for work the grantee alleged he had done on the roads during the previous years, without authority and without investigation of any kind as to the work or its nature, extent or value; others without defining the particular work upon which the money was to be spent. For the forms of the office were filled up but they served no purpose, but as records of the office. In some instances the man in whose favour the money was spent, as in Quilty's case, did not know upon what he was to spend the money. He was not told, but the allocation form was filled in for "Horse Cove Road." In one or two cases no returns were sent in but the money was spent by the grantee for their own use. These men said they intended to work it out later—that may be so, but it is questionable whether anything further would have been done with the money or the returns but for the light these proceedings throw upon them. It was surely the duty of the respondent to have given the Court such explanations as to the manner in which the money was spent, and to have allocated these expenditures, but he did not see well to do so. In these circumstances, though the facts themselves show it conclusively, the Court must regard the fact of the respondent's given evidence as an admission of the adverse construction it is compelled to put upon the manner in which he associated these payments and allocations with his canvass of the district. The fact that the respondent was Minister of Public Works does not excuse him. The object for which this money was voted by the Legislature might have been properly carried out by the respondent, but the respondent without the respondent associating the expenditure in any way with his canvass of the district or without being made an instrument to influence the voters to vote in his favour and to promote the election of himself and his colleague at the forthcoming election. This constitutes bribery within the Election Act of 1913. Sec. 146 of that Act says: "146. The following persons shall be deemed guilty of bribery and shall be punishable accordingly: (1) Every person who shall directly or indirectly, by himself or by any other person on his behalf, give or lend, or agree to give or lend, or shall offer, promise, or promise to procure, or endeavour to procure, any money or valuable consideration to or for any voter, or to or for any person on behalf of any voter, or to or for any other person, in order to induce such voter to vote or refrain from voting, or shall corruptly do as aforesaid on account of such voter voting or refraining from voting at any election. (2) Every person who shall directly or indirectly, by himself, or by any other person on his behalf, give or procure, or agree to give or procure, or offer, promise or promise to procure or endeavour to procure, any office, place or employment to or for any voter, or to or for any person on behalf of any voter, or to or for any other person, in order to induce such voter to vote or refrain from voting, or shall corruptly do any such act as aforesaid, on account of any voter having voted or refrained from voting at any election. If a candidate at an election gives money or valuable consideration to a voter in order thereby to influence his vote he is guilty of bribery within the meaning of this definition. Mr. Justice Winter, in the Bay de Verde case dated in 1914 and approved by Chief Justice Carter in the Placentia case, and by Mr. Justice Little in the Trinity case, says: "If a candidate or his friends, in the ordinary course of his lawful business, has the opportunity or it is under the necessity of giving employment, and takes advantage of his power there afforded him to direct and control that business and work and to give the employment arising therefrom in such a manner as thereby to gain the political support at the election of those to whom the employment is given, either for himself or his friend and with that object in view the giving of such employment is bribery."

"Bake with Royal and be Sure"

If a large landed proprietor has extensive improvements to make upon his estate, or a merchant or manufacturer is engaged in large transactions he may under ordinary circumstances in the course of the due and proper management of his affairs, give employment to others, and in proportion to the numbers he employs will the employment so given be not only lawful but beneficial. But if the supposed landed proprietor, merchant or manufacturer becomes a parliamentary candidate, and with a view to promoting his own election, to make himself popular as a candidate, and to influence votes in his favour divers the improvements, business or other transaction from their ordinary and natural course, or in any manner contrives to make the giving of that employment subservient to the main and ultimate purpose of promoting his election, then the giving of such employment though in all other respects lawful, even commendable, becomes an offence against the "Corrupt Practices Act" and assumes the character of bribery. Until we have some higher authority to guide us I have to hold that the principles I have just endeavoured to explain and illustrate apply to employment upon public works paid for out of the public funds, with at least equal force to that given by private persons at private expense." We agree that the same principles apply to public as to private employment. The question, in each case, is whether it was given with a corrupt intention, that is, an intention to influence the votes of those to whom it is given. The policy and theory of the law is that a voter should exercise his franchise freely, and not be subject to any of those influences which tend to limit that freedom. Section 146 of the Election Act, 1913 specifies the which may not be done by a candidate or other person for the purpose of influencing votes, without incurring the penalties of bribery. These acts when done with that intention, amount to bribery in law, whether they are committed in the course of public or private employment or with public or private money. The evidence proves that the respondent during his canvass of the district, in some cases gave voters money, as in the case of Quilty, with little or no obligation on the donee to work it out; the dominant object was to give the money in order to influence the vote, in other cases, the allocation was made with the intention or hope thereby to influence the grantee to vote in his favor though the employment given or the improvement effected. Both classes of cases come within the definition of bribery given in the Election Act. We must therefore hold that the respondent was guilty of personal bribery during the election and that he was not duly elected and returned and that his election was and is void. We shall report this finding to His Excellency the Governor as directed by the Election Act and also that the bribery was committed by and with the knowledge and consent of the respondent at the election held in the district of Harbour Main in November last. The respondent must pay to the petitioner the costs of these proceedings, but the petitioner must pay the costs of the charges other than the distribution of public money, and which were abandoned at the trial. Listed at St. John's this 31st day of May, 1920. (Sgd.) W. H. HORWOOD, C.J. J. M. KENT, Judge.

St. Bonaventure's College.

The Aula Maxima of St. Bonaventure's College was the scene of a very pleasant function yesterday afternoon when the students foregathered there to evince their esteem and affection for the Rev. President, Bro. J. B. Ryan, who leaves for Ireland on Sunday next to attend the general chapter of his order, as a representative of the American Province. The assembly was an enthusiastic one, and the feeling that pervaded the hall spoke eloquently of the hold which Bro. Ryan exercises over the affection of the boys—big and small. The stage was occupied by a group of boys, representing the various class-rooms and when the Rev. President made his appearance, a cheer went up that made the very welkin ring, and must have convinced him—if indeed proof were needed—that he occupies a place years deep in the hearts of the St. Bon's boys. The address, beautifully illuminated by Sr. Josephine, of the Presentation Convent, was read by Gerald A. Strapp, the presentation of the pupils' gifts being made by Edmund Phelan, John Ryan and Jerry Stoyles amidst the applause of all present. Bro. Ryan's reply to the address was listened to with rapt attention; the kindness and forethought of the boys whilst palpably affecting him, did not prevent him from putting his heart into a little speech which will long be remembered. He reminded his hearers of the glorious traditions of the College and referred most felicitously to the appreciation of the people of Newfoundland of the Brothers' labors in their midst. In conclusion he again thanked the boys for their kindly feeling towards himself and the Brothers, wished them a successful Sports' Day and expressed the hope that examination week would bring a happy consummation to the work of the session. A rousing three-times-three brought to a conclusion a little ceremony which speaks most forcibly of the cordiality and respect with which the Rev. President is regarded by the students of the College whose destinies he directs.

ADDRESS

To Rev. Bro. J. B. Ryan, on the occasion of his Visit to Ireland as Representative of the American Province of the Irish Christian Brothers.

Dear Bro. Ryan:—

We have foregathered here to-day for the double purpose of offering you some slight token of our affection and esteem and of wishing you a hearty God-speed upon your journey across the waters that separate you from the land of your birth.

Of your mission and its purport we well realize the importance. We rejoice at the fact that with Bro. Culhane, whose name will ever be coupled with your own wherever St. Bonaventure's is known and mentioned—we rejoice, I say, that with him you have been chosen to represent the American Province at the General Chapter of your Order, about to be held in Dublin. When we consider that both yourself and Bro. Culhane have been so long and so closely identified with the highest interests of our Alma Mater, and incidentally the improvement of our country, spiritually and materially, let us assure you that we regard your selection as the greatest and the happiest compliment that could be paid to Newfoundland and the thousands within her shores who are under such heavy obligations to the Brothers and the cause to which they are so devoted.

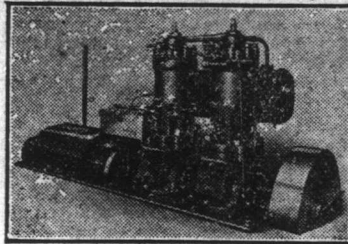

By your edifying life as well as by your sympathetic and fatherly devotion to our interests you have taught us to love and respect you. May no train of circumstances prevent you from continuing to point out to us at St. Bonaventure's the way to exalted and noble things. Were your services demanded elsewhere we should find it very difficult to reconcile ourselves to a separation certain to cause a void in the hearts of all who have had the good fortune of sitting at your feet in the halls of this College.

To conclude, we offer you, Bro. Ryan, this little gift with the heartiest good-will; we wish you a very pleasant trip and trust that time and circumstances permit you to make the most of your stay in your native land. Finally, we respectfully request you to salute for us the hills and valleys of Old Ireland. For us it is a land of dreams known only to us through the medium of song, story and history, and ere we separate, we venture to express the fervent hope that upon your return to our shores you will bring with you good tidings of great joy—that all is well with the old land—that 'tis dawn on the hills of Ireland.

Premier Lloyd George of England, let it be known that he was having difficulty in procuring a housekeeper, and immediately Downing Street was mobbed with applicants. There are a million British women doomed to a life of spinsterhood. Of all the European countries England has the smallest proportion of boy babies.

An Early English Sea Fight.

On the morning of June 6, 1191, long after the treacherous Emperor Issore of Cyprus had sunk in the dark blue sea behind them, the fleet of the Crusaders under Richard of "the Lion Hearted" of England, sighted a sail, and made towards it. As they approached, they were astonished at her size; having three tall masts, lofty bulwarks, and fore and aft castles. "A marvellous ship, a ship than which, except Noah's Ark, none greater was ever read of." She had on board nearly fifteen hundred men bound for the relief of Acre, then besieged by the Christian forces. This huge Saracen vessel carried high catapults in her tall deck castles, with heaps of stones and iron ready to be dropped on to any low-decked boat that approached her sides, and—most dreadful weapon of all—Greek fire. King Richard signalled his ships to lie upon their oars, while a "snake" went forward to challenge the stranger. The little vessel came back with the report that none could speak any "Christian tongue" with ease, but they had proclaimed themselves to be French. Again the "snake" was despatched, and again it returned with the ambiguous answer that the ship had now declared herself to be Genoese. One of the crew of the King's ship then said that he recognized her as a Turkish warship. "Let one of the ships advance in hostile manner," said he; "and then you will see if her intentions are peaceful or not." Richard took the sailor's advice, and a war galley shot out from the fleet and dashed down upon the stranger. She was at once met with a storm of arrows and bolts, and shouting with joy, Richard signalled a general attack, leading the way in his own vessel. Brave to foolhardiness as were the Crusaders, they soon found that they could do nothing against the Turk. It was impossible to carry her by boarding while from her towering sides stones, arrows, iron bars, and, worst of all, the Greek fire, fell in a constant shower on their low-lying craft. Soon the Christian galleys drew back in sullen defeat, but, stamping the deck in his fighting fury, Richard said that he would hang as cowards the crew of any vessel that did not return to the attack. They knew he would not hesitate to fulfil his word, and again rushed to the attack, but once more were the Moslems triumphant. One last resource was left to Richard; to capture her was impossible, but to sink her was in his power. Drawing his galleys in line, he gave the word, and charged down on the doomed vessel, the water building under the oars of the straining crew.

Amid the crash of rending timbers the Turkish vessel heeled over, pierced by the iron tipped rams in a dozen places. Slowly she righted, and then as slowly filled and sank, carrying with her all her crew save fifty, who were saved.

Prospects for Sugar.

(From the Brockville Recorder.)
Reports are going the rounds that sugar is likely to be very scarce in the future and all kinds of alarming prices are heard of as possible. How justifiable these are it is difficult to say at present, but rays of hope that they are not absolutely right can be seen. Thus the Dominion's ships are bringing thousands of tons of the raw material from Cuba, and this will continue. Then the Huns will probably have a good deal of beet sugar to export. Now comes the news that Russian and Rumanian sugar may be imported in large quantities to New York later on; it is said that 40,000 tons have already been arranged for. Then there are the other European countries to be considered which are sure not to have been idle in sugar production. There may be hope in all this for at least a break in prices before so very long.

HOW YOU CAN TELL GENUINE ASPIRIN

Only Tablets with "Bayer Cross" are Aspirin—No others!

If you don't see the "Bayer Cross" on the tablets, refuse them—they are not Aspirin at all.

There is only one Aspirin, that marked with the "Bayer Cross"—all other tablets are only imitations.

Look for the "Bayer Cross"! Then it is real Aspirin, for which there is no substitute.

Aspirin is not German but is made in America, and is owned by an American Company, all rights being purchased from the U. S. Government.

Genuine "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" have been proved safe by millions in America, and is owned by an American Company, all rights being purchased from the U. S. Government.

Handy tin boxes of 12 tablets—also larger "Bayer" packages, can be had at any drug store.

Our Coal Mining.

(Western Star.)

Last week it was our privilege to visit the A.N.D. Company's coal mining operations near the old Howley coal workings. Up to quite recently the work had been practically all of a prospecting nature covering an area of nearly five miles. Their present and main operations are located about two and three-quarter miles from Howley railway station, being on opposite side of Coal Brook to the old workings. There coal seams have been unearched for a distance of three thousand feet. Two shafts have been sunk, the present one being some three hundred feet deep, from which two drifts have been driven three hundred feet each, one about fifty feet above the other. There is coal all the way from thirty feet below the surface at the main shaft, thus showing a seam of coal hundreds of feet east and west and at least two hundred and seventy feet in depth and improving all the time. The coal is of the very best quality. We saw it in use both for domestic and steam purposes. It is bright, burns readily, giving out a blue flame, leaving no cinders, but only a fine white ash.

At the workings, a boiler house, a cook house, and a number of cabins for the men have been erected, also for necessary constructional work. Over a thousand feet of new road is being constructed and the roads to the railway station will be put in good repair preparatory to the shipping of coal to Grand Falls; over a hundred tons of which have been stripped and ready for hoisting, besides the supplying of all the needs at the workings.

Capt. D. McCuish, who has had over forty years' mining experience in this country, is in charge there, with Augustus Farnell, of Corner Brook, as assistant. At present the mine is on a single shift owing to shortage of men, but all winter she was running three shifts. Good wages are being offered, from three to four dollars a day, according to experience and ability, and there is openings at present for all the experienced coal miners they can get.

Woman Billiard Champion.

Although no relation to the late Mr. John Roberts, Miss Ruby Roberts, the Australian billiard player, who has arrived in this country to play Miss Ena Collins, the English expert, was regarded by the greatest of all billiard players as the champion of her sex.

Two hundred and sixty-seven is her best break, and there are not many men in England, outside the front rank, who could play Miss Roberts level and give her a beating.

With the Rod.

(Western Star.)

There are some salmon going at Robinson's and Crabbes Rivers. Sandy River is very high, the water being within a foot or two of the railway bridge.

There are some two or three parties on Robinson's River, but up to date we have not received particulars of any catches.

The Lower Humber is altogether too high for any salmon fishing and is likely to continue so for some weeks. This river is usually one of the latest on the Coast.

L. C. MORRIS,
CHAPTER XII,
CONEY ISLAND.

Among the special features of New York, such places as Coney Island, and the Chinese quarters, and the Woolworth building, may be mentioned. Either of these is well worth the attention of the visitor, and affords ample food for reflection. Coney Island as the average reader is aware, is a great pleasure resort, and is situated almost thirty miles from New York proper, and is patronized by tens and hundreds of thousands weekly. Its attractions are as varied as art, money, and device can make them, and whether they can be seen by day or by night, they present a scene of bewildering sports—some would say maddened sports—for certain it is, that the greater portion of the crowd throw off all restraint and indulge in an abandonment, which seems to say, "let us eat, drink and be merry for to-morrow we die." As we looked at this scene we asked ourselves the question: "Where does Christianity come in? for if all this is a Christian, then there is not much in changing the religion of the western nations."

To enumerate the various sports would require a book; hence our notes must be limited to the few that are most interesting to us. The aerial and interurban railway we found to be both exciting, exhilarating, and sensational, and the shute the shutes, and Ferris wheels, and swinging seats the same feeling; but of all the sights to be had, and of all the sensations to be felt from these recreations, the altitude gained on the summit of the Ferris wheel afforded, in our opinion the best. The motion is not unduly swift, nor are the revolutions rapid; but there is a regularity that lends a feeling of safety, and gives time for due observation. But such a place as Coney Island observation is not much indulged in—it is seems laughable. The object and purpose of the place is pleasure, and it is for pleasure that the majority of people flock there in their thousands. Sundays and week-days the crowds are vast, and day and night the carnival continues. It was a sight that our party saw it, and it was one of our respected townsmen, in the person of Miss Madeline Dea, that treated us to the outing, and provided a taxi for the purpose. The entire scene was dazzling. To express it in a sentence would be to say, "that it was a flame of fire, or a blaze of electricity." At such a place the feeling of those not accustomed to such things are very varied. At the moment you approve of what you see, at the next moment you disapprove of it, and wonder why it is, and why so many people throng the grounds. But then it is human nature to do so. These flashing lights, which fill the air in myriad numbers, these bands of music which fill the air, these

National Assets of Newfoundland.

Both Pleasure and Profit in Their Pursuit.

(Contributed.)
The conservation of wild life and the proper method of turning it to account as a national asset has been greatly developed of recent years and many statesmen on the continent of North America have given their support and aid to it. The notable effect in Canada through the agency of the Dominion Conservation Commission which was formed by Sir Wilfred Laurier, and in the proceedings of which he always took the keenest interest, will always be a monumental record of him as a far seeing statesman and one who surveyed the assets of the country as a whole, and who was anxious to develop all the resources of the Dominion.

"The Craft of the Tortoise."

A Book Which Urges the Emancipation of Women, Yet Doesn't Mention It.
The "Craft of the Tortoise," by Algernon Tassin (Boni and Liveright, N.Y., S. E. Garland, ret.), is the name of the latest book from this famous American publishing firm. It urges the economic and social emancipation of the "weaker" sex without referring to it—which is very clever and very much more effective than a book written, obviously, for that purpose. Containing four parts, each symbolical as well as literal, there is a broad vein of satire running through it, and the sarcasm at times is so fine that the reader find himself wondering if it really is sarcasm—which, of course, is also very clever. Tassin has an uncanny knack of thrusting right through to the very soul of things and, by his very simplicity, laying open to gaze, subjects often if not always cloaked by conventional and prudery. He is something of an iconoclast, inasmuch as many ideas—or idols—are laid in ruins by his velvet-smashing blows. Here, for example, is a fearless paragraph:

- (1) How can we secure the most profitable and legitimate use of our wild game.
- (2) How can wastefulness be prevented.
- (3) How can the continuity of supply be insured.

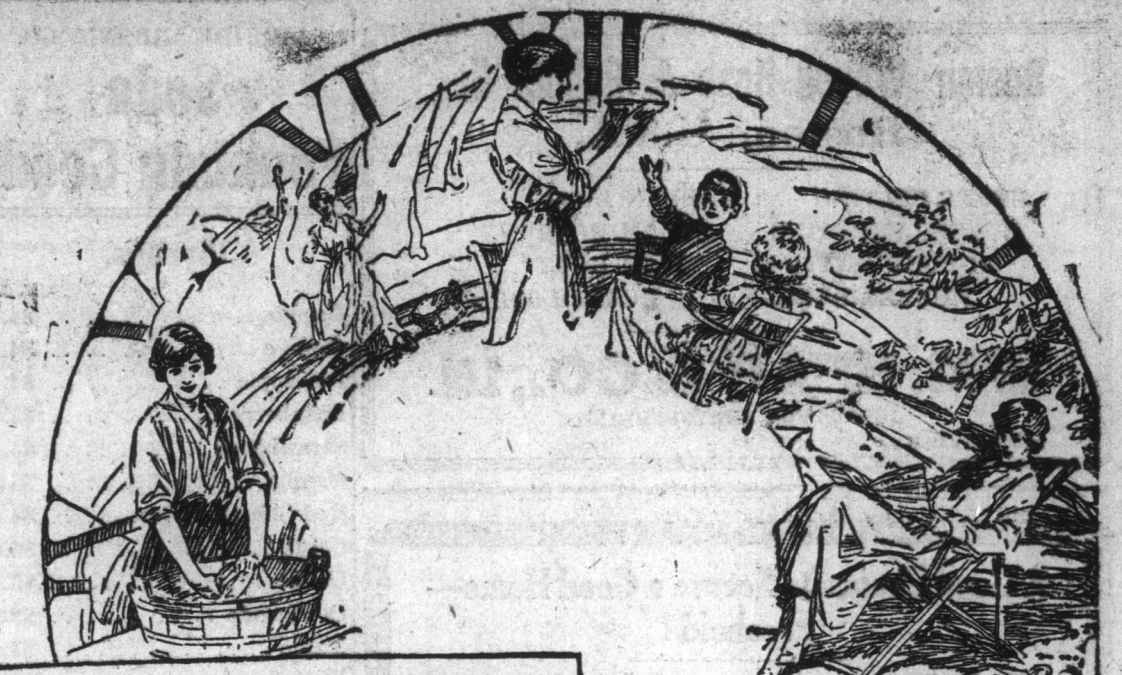

What Quebec Has Done.
In surveying the Canadian situation one is impressed with the fact that the Province of Quebec has tackled the problem in a practical way and has realized that the proper handling of her game resources can bring revenue to the state and develop these resources. By a system of fishing and hunting, leases, money, prosperity and development have been brought into the naturally wild and picturesque portions of the Province, and many visitors now come every year to these holiday resorts. The number of reserves leased to clubs or individuals amount to four hundred and twenty-five and include an area of approximately eight thousand square miles for hunting purposes. In addition to this four hundred and sixty-nine rivers or portions of rivers are under lease for fishing purposes, fourteen hundred and forty-four lakes are also leased and several clubs lease all the lakes in their hunting area which will bring the total of lakes under fishing lease in Quebec up to at least 2,500. This entails alone the employment of about 600 men all the year round and they are paid by the lessees and appointed by the Minister. All fur pays a tax in Quebec and has to be officially stamped and tagged and cannot be in anyone's possession without this evidence of having paid a tax, this also covers home consumption and export. The adjoining provinces have aided Quebec in enforcing this law and many seizures of Quebec smuggled furs have been made in Ontario and New Brunswick.

That Settled It.

(From Tit-Bits.)
While expounding to his wife the alleged fact that men are able to control their tempers better than women, Mr. Hinks fell over the cat and nearly broke his nose.
"That settles it!" he hissed. "I've often threatened, but now I'll drown the brute."
His wife begged him to be merciful, but his mind was made up.
Accordingly he placed the offending feline, along with two large bricks, in an old flour sack, and hastened upon his murderous errand. On reaching the canal he threw up the bag with such vigor that he overbalanced and fell into the muddy water. After struggling for half an hour and incidentally drinking half the water in the canal he returned home wet and weary.
At the door sat the cat.
"Well, of all—" exclaimed Hinks. "Why, I drowned the brute!"
"I don't think so," said his wife, as she let him in. "You didn't give me time to tell you that there was a hole in that bag."
I want another bottle of "Brick's Tasteless", it is the best preparation I have ever taken to give me an appetite. -apr23,20

Zeppelin Raid on Hull.

One of the first Zeppelin raids on England was that on Hull which took place on June 6, 1915. It was shortly before midnight on a Sunday, when the airship arrived and its bombs began to fall, setting fire to a timber yard, a large drapery store and wrecking and setting fire to several houses. There was wide-spread dismay. People jumped out of bed and ran into the street, making for the open country. The owners of motor cars tried to escape from the city, but the police held up the traffic, with the result that the Anlaby Road was blocked with cars for a distance of a mile. People had not then learned that it was safer to stay in the house when Zeppelins were overhead. Nearly all the damage was done to private property, and all the people killed were civilians. There were twenty-four deaths including four children burnt to death, and five deaths from shock. Let us hope that the League of Nations will be such

The Good Old Days.

(From the Calgary Albertian.)
All the thrill of historical romance may be found these days in your boy's arithmetic book. In its pages flourish farmers who still sell potatoes for 56 cents a bushel and grocers who offer eggs in any quantity for 24 cents a dozen. And as for sugar—why, just listen to this from the arithmetic book:
"A grocer has 10 barrels of sugar, each containing 140 pounds. If he sells the sugar for 6 cents a pound, how much money will he have?"
In this good book dwell prosperous grocers who have bargain sales of butter at 24 cents a pound and lovable milkmen who stick to the old price of 8 cents a quart, regardless of what milkmen outside the book have done.

No wonder, therefore, that within its pages reside happy families of six who can live on $39 a month, as in this problem:
"The grocery and meat bill of a family of six amounts to $39 a month. At that rate, what would a family of four pay for meat and groceries per month?"
There is talk of revising school arithmetics so that their problems, written in good old days when sugar was 6 cents a pound, shall be more realistic. But no! Let there be no change. Never were arithmetic books such pleasant reading as now. They not only teach arithmetic, but also history, touching as they do upon those happy days when a market basket could be filled for a dollar.
Rub the kitchen stove with sandpaper. It will remove the old blacking and grease and make a smooth surface.
To prevent refrigerator drains from becoming clogged, place lumps of washing soda in the bottom tilling of the refrigerator.
