"Flatterers"

The Shadow of the Future.

CHAPTER XXXIV.
CONTAINS SURPRISES.
"It must be something small, indeed," she said, looking round. "This, if I could have it," taking up a well-used leather writing-case, one from the office at St. John's, Jacob had told her.

"Then that'll get for you, miss, promised the landlady, shaking the dust off the cover. "Ah, deary me, he always wrote upon it. I saw him that very day."

Sydney turned the much blotted pages over. A sheet with some three written lines slipped out. The words were to herself:

"My Own Dear Miss Sydney.—I told you once pleasure never killed; but when I think I shall see you here soon for your holiday, and then—"

That was all. Sydney folded the uncompleted message with reverent affection, thankfulness in her breast that no knowledge of her new troubles had dimmed the gladness of his last hours.

"Yes, the old case I shall like best," she said, and Miss Ambler, delighted at securing her pale lonely interest for anything, talked freely on of Jacob and his great kindness, "which no-noby, Miss Grey, knew the value of better than myself, for many's the time hunger and we would have shook hands if it hadn't been for him, and that's a fact I'm not above confessing, and that's what I felt when I got a last black gown for him. I've paid the last respects to more than one friend, ah, and relation too, in my black alpaca, but 'no,' said I, 'for Mr. Cheene I'll have mourning, and new, I'm now going to walk behind him in a half-worn skirt at tenpence a yard, especially considering there's no one else to follow, for I didn't know, miss, where you was, nor who—him—whether I ought to try and find you out."

"Who will attend to everything here, then?" Sydney asked. "Had Jacob no relative, no one who understood such business?"

"Relative, no, miss. There were a many Cheenes once in Sillcote, but he has told me he was the last. As for business, I don't suppose he's left much to attend to; but a stranger, I think, will manage that little."

"A stranger? He never told me of any one."

"No, miss. But there was one who came to him first last year—later on than this. He was in and out, and they did a deal of consulting like for a day or two, what about Mr. Cheene never said. Then he came again since this Easter. And Mr. Cheene must have expected him then, for he got a neighbour to step in, and by and by he called to me 'Miss Amelia,' and I stepped up, and he had that very letter-case open and a paper on, and he said, 'I'm lawyer enough to have made my own will, and I want you to witness it.' Which of course we both did; and Mr. Cheene locked it up in the cedar box that stands beside his bed, and said to me, 'There now, it's ready for you to find; and to the strange gentleman, and for you to get on,' he said. So of course that gentleman will be his executor."

"But should you not send this person world?" questioned Sydney, and was answered truly enough. "When things come so sudden, miss, we are never ready for them! I had never so much as heard his name! But I've a notion the letter that brought good news that morning came from him, for Mr. Cheene locked it up in the box with his will, and said to me, high spry like, 'We're going to be gay with company soon, Miss Ambler.' So I thought I'd see nothing of any one I'd just got down with the box and ask our clergyman if he'd open it, and find the gentleman's—'Why, goodness gracious sakes alive!'—Miss Ambler broke off abruptly, starting Sydney, whose attention had been wandering. "Here he does come up the street, and no mistake, and some one with him! And"—peering out of the window—"they're stopping at this door! Don't you mind, nor hurry yourself, miss. I'll tell him all about you, and say Mr. Cheene wouldn't have had you disturbed for the world. Perhaps"—hastily setting chairs at right angles—"you'd like to go to the other room if they wish to come up here! I'll run and stop that stupid Nancy bringing them."

But Miss Ambler was not quick enough. As she opened the door, two people entered from the narrow landing. In an instant three were gazing at one another, all doubting the evidence of their own senses.

"Miss Alwyn!" exclaimed the male intruder, it was Richard Drayton.

"Sydney! Oh, my poor Sydney!" cried the lady beside him, running to catch the wonder-struck girl in her embrace. And the rest of that minute was chaos to them all.

The first to find voice was Miss Ambler. Her wry little curls were bobbing about, her eyelids ominously red, and her sniffs were frequent; but sentiment must wait its turn, now she must out with a long-stifled say:

"Miss Alwyn!" she repeated, fronting Sydney, still on Mary's shoulder. "Yes, and Miss Alwyn I knew you to be these months past, though I wouldn't vex him that was here by letting out what he didn't see fit to tell me! But when Bridget Lewis, that lived once at St. John's, stillroom-maid, and I caught bemoaning when she was six years old, and has been to see me every time she set foot in Sillcote-Upton since, no matter what service she's been in, and knew all about my family's misfortune with poor Mr. Alwyn as well as I knew hers—when Bridget came two years back and told me she'd been with her mistress, Mr. Massey's lady wife, and seen where Mrs. Alwyn had hid herself, and heard all about Mrs. Alwyn's daughter, that couldn't be made too much of, and Mr. Alwyn, that couldn't be made too little; and when she came again a-visit'ing last Michaelmas to 'Lady Wynne's, and brought word through a housekeeping friend in that Suffolk place that the talk was Miss Alwyn had got in disgrace for something with her ma, and had gone away that summer; and when I measured that against a young lady I'd never seen before, coming here and crying in Mr. Cheene's room, and then all of us getting paid what Mr. Alwyn owed directly after, why, you don't suppose I am going to be deceived any longer! Miss Alwyn, my dear, I've recollected you morning and night, from then till now, and it's the prayer of a retired haberdashery old maid like me can fetch you prosperity, you'll surely get it! Widely"—ended the grateful old soul, suddenly clapping three golden coins on the table—"as for that money

There! I'm proud to have found you with the bird's beak! You've taken, and if I touch a penny-piece for payment my name's not Amelia Ambler!"

With which she seized her neglected dinner-ware, and whipped out of the room, leaving the long-separated friends to an afternoon of strange, far-reaching explanations, starting with Mary's marriage, ending with something still more wonderful. For Sydney finding this fortnight-wed pair possessed the secret of her leaving St. Clair's, was now forced to tell where and with whom her past twelve months had been spent, and what had cast her loose from Wynstone, sending her to meet at Sillcote-Upton a loss she was so ill-prepared for.

"Jacob had made me feel his home was almost mine," she said, falteringly. "When he went from me—"

"He had taken care it should be quite yours," put in Mr. Drayton. "While he lived I was bound to give no hint of it to any one—not even Mary; but now, as you will hear when I read you his will, he has left you everything he had in the world."

"All my father's things!" cried Sydney. "Oh, dear old Jacob! If you could hear me thank you!"

"Yes, Miss Alwyn; these, and other things that were your father's too." "It's told me he bought nothing else but what—how did he put it?—that would have just gone to light a fire!"

"Ah, so they might then, but not now," returned Richard Drayton, dryly. "You have never asked me yet, Miss Alwyn, how I came to be acquainted with your old clerk, nor what first brought me to Sillcote-Upton."

"I have heard so much; I am so glad to have you here," answered Sydney, laying her head with a long-drawn sigh on Mary's knee. "I think I scarcely want to know any more yet."

"That's fine mixing," passed Mr. Drayton, his wife giving him leave by a nod. "Best clear all up at once, and get it over. So, to go to first facts, I had a glimmering when I first met you of having heard your name, Alwyn. After a bit I remembered when it was on some visit of mine to a relative at Sillcote-Upton, who spent a night each week violin-playing, with some one so called—"

"My father!"

"As it turns out, yes, you and I never seemed strangers, did we, Miss Alwyn? That old network of intimacy must have had something to do with it. Well, now for the next thing, you remember when I came to England it was to take up a little estate in the south. On that bit of property was a mine. The lease of it had been purchased of my uncle for fifty years. It had been closed sixteen. Was worthless, most folks said. I'd had some training in other mines, examined all I could of this, and thought differently. To see if I was right, I worked with all my money and all my time for fourteen months, for on the mine's value depended my chance of getting through with a scheme I think you understood. Sydney smiled up at Mary. "I found out that mine had been wrecked partly by incapacity, partly by reckless management. Not the first time that sort of thing has happened. I saw my way clear as daylight to reconstructing a paying concern. I laid my plans accordingly. Went to St. Clair's to find you."

"Yes, for it was the same Grantlyde mine your father had had, and his name headed the old list of shareholders. If you, as his representative, had held the original shares, you would have been largest proprietor was required to reforming the business. Well, you were gone; no one knew where, or could tell by. I was on my way to hunt up Mrs. Alwyn abroad, when I fell in with Major Villiers in town, and told him what I was after. He saved me a fruitless journey, by telling me those same shares had been offered at your father's sale, and amid shouts of laughing had been purchased by a clerk named Cheene. Him I foraged forthwith. Showed him every single detail I had worked out, and cut short a long business, which would only puzzle you at present, got his consent and that of the other remaining shareholders, to start the company afresh on a safe footing, myself holding a certain amount of stock, and acting as manager. Success has followed so fast that the shares have gone up without one check and are still rising. I was able to tell Mr. Cheene, when I saw him last May, that his few shillings' worth of scrip, which he almost sold from the flames, represented now a very respectable fortune. It would bring in, if realised, five-and-twenty thousand pounds to-morrow, Miss Alwyn."

"So, no more companions' places for you, foolish, reckless child that you were," said Mary, stooping fondly over Sydney's dark head, and to his wife's gentle care and caresses. Mr. Drayton wisely left this new-made heiress almost mute in her great astonishment. (To be continued.)

Where Crime is Almost Unknown.

The visit of the King and Queen of Denmark to Greenland calls attention to this exclusive, wonderful of the Arctic. This is the first time Greenland has seen its King and Queen.

There is no country in the world of which so little is known as Greenland, and the notions many people have concerning it are wrong. No one can land there without permission of the Danish Government, and there is only one Englishman living there to-day has visited it, namely, Mr. Roger Pocock. Since 1735 only two Englishmen have set foot in Denmark's northern possession.

A small gunboat patrols the coast in summer, but it is not the gunboat or the international treaty which keeps steamers away from its settlements. The law is backed by the menace of an unprovoked, unlighted, cast, uncharted tides and currents, the lee-pack, the berg-stream, and fog.

Not One Crime.

It was two hundred years ago that Dr. Hans Egede, a Danish Lutheran clergyman, settled in Greenland, and to-day the Danish Eskimos, who number 22,000, are all Christians.

There is not a single policeman in the country, and when Mr. Pocock was there he discovered that there had been no crime in the colony for at least one hundred years. There are pure-blooded Eskimo priests and physicians, as well as a native newspaper and an illustrated journal produced entirely by Eskimo labour.

In the towns and settlements one finds churches with steeples, organs, and oil-paintings. The Greenland Eskimo does not lead a nomadic life, but dwells in model settlements, and in the southern portion of the colony they have their own gardens, where, in the brief summer months, all kinds of vegetables are grown, including strawberries and cucumbers.

Willow and birch trees attain a height of ten feet, and grass and heather are abundant. Three hundred different kinds of plants grow wild, and in summer the coastal areas are one blaze of glorious colour owing to the many wild flowers. True, the interior of the country is a vast ice-cap which pours, it is estimated, a thousand million tons of ice into the ocean every year.

Young Girls Need Care

FROM the age of twelve a girl needs all the care the thoughtful mother can give. Many a woman has suffered years of pain and misery—the victim of thoughtlessness or ignorance of the mother who should have guided her during this time.

If she complains of headaches, pains in the back and lower limbs, or if you notice a slowness of thought, nervousness or irritability on the part of your daughter make life easier for her. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is especially adapted for such conditions. It can be taken in safety by any woman, young or old.

Cobourg, Ont.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended to me for my daughter. She had trouble every month which left her in a weak and nervous condition, with weak back and pain in her right side. She had these troubles for three years and frequently was unable to attend school. She has become regular and feels much better since she began taking the Vegetable Compound, and attends school regularly. She is gaining steadily and I have no hesitancy in recommending Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine."—Mrs. JOHN TOMS, Ball St., Cobourg.

Carbon, Alta.—"I was in a general run-down condition with a weak back and a tired feeling so that I did not feel like working. My mother was taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and recommended it to me, so I have taken it and my back is better and I am now able to do my work. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to my neighbors and you may publish my letter."—Mrs. JOSEPHAT A. GRENIER, Box 47, Carbon, Alta.

British Navy Superstitions.

One of the very strongest and most inextinguishable of all superstitions in the Royal Navy—a superstition almost as strong to-day as ever it was—is that vessels bearing the name of Royal personages are doomed to ill-luck; and, strange as it may seem, there is an undeniable historic basis for this feeling.

Some of the most terrible disasters ever known in connection with our Navy have concerned war vessels with Royal names. Two vessels called the Royal James came to disastrous ends. One of them exploded, and some 800 officers and seamen perished; the other ship so named was actually carried out of the mouth of the Thames by the Dutch under circumstances disagreeable to those in charge of the craft.

Then there is the far-rememberable disaster to the Royal George, that turned over, and sank, in sight of crowds at Spithead, over 1,000 souls, amongst whom were 300 women, being sacrificed. And second only to this hideous disaster is that which afterwards befell the Royal Charlotte, which was consumed by fire of Leghorn, over 800 of the very flower of our Navy perishing with her.

When, in 1885, the Victoria, a new vessel, and the very triumph of modern invention, was rammed, and sank in sight of the whole fleet, there was not a sailor, who did not remember the dire fate of a Royal-ly named craft.

Russia Denies Curzon's Allegations.

British Government Duped by Forged Documents--Boland Approves Churchill's Speech--N.F. Prime Minister Coming Home.

RUSSIA'S ANSWER.
LONDON, Sept. 26. The outline of the reply of the Russian Soviet Government to the note of Lord Curzon, Foreign Minister, calling attention of the Soviet Government to alleged serious breaches of faith in pursuance of a campaign of intrigue against Great Britain in Central Asia and Afghanistan by the Soviets, has been delivered to Lord Curzon from M. Berzin of the Russian Trade Delegation. Mr. Berzin declares that while the Soviets are fully convinced the accusations are without foundation, the Soviet Government is making fresh inquiries in order to be able to refute the charges in detail. He cites Lord Curzon's allegation that Senteri Nuerpsa, formerly in charge of the movement of foreigners in Moscow on June 26, "in fact" Mr. Berzin asserts, "He has been in prison since March and never held any position under the Third International. Similarly" Berzin adds, "other reports attributed to Eliava, Karakhan and others have no foundation in fact." Mr. Berzin says there is no doubt that Lord Curzon and the British Foreign Secretary have fallen victims to false rumors spread by Russian White Guards and of French origin. He concludes, "Mr. Berzin wishes to impress on the foreign office that the Russian Government wishes more than ever to promote friendly and sincere relations with the British Government and it has given the best proof of its good intentions by taking steps immediately after signing the trade agreement to clear all activities and dissolve any organization in the East which might be construed as likely to give offence to the British Government or constitute a breach of agreement."

DOOR STILL AJAR.
LONDON, Sept. 26. Hope that Premier Lloyd George will not close the door to conference in his reply to De Valera is expressed by the usually well informed political correspondent of the Sunday Times. He says there can be no doubt that the Sinn Fein leaders are anxious to come to conference and that one may shrewdly suspect that their insistence on sovereignty rights is no longer more than a pious opinion, but that they fear to make formal renunciation of them for they know it will be signal for a bitter attack on them from that powerful section of their party which is inveterately anti-English.

BELFAST'S RIOT ZONE.
BELFAST, Sept. 26. A proclamation prohibiting the assembly of three or more persons together in the riot zones in Newtownards Road in East Belfast, scene of the fierce fighting on Sunday, was issued today, to become effective at 8.30 o'clock to-night. The order is similar to the riot act. Military forces are holding the riot zone with fixed bayonets.

PREMIER HOMEWARD BOUND.
MONTREAL, Sept. 26. Sir Richard Squires, Premier of Newfoundland, who passed through Montreal about a month ago on a mission for his Government which took him to Ottawa, New York and Washington, arrived at the Ritz today on his homeward route. He is leaving for Sydney to-morrow evening. "With respect to my itinerary since I was in Montreal," said Sir Richard, "I visited New York where I was in touch with large financial interests whose business would be seriously handicapped in the event of the United States putting on a Prohibitive Tariff against the exportation of Newfoundland Products, codfish, herring and cod oil. The position which I took was that the balance of trade between the United States and Newfoundland Products was very largely in favour of the former and that in preparing a Draft Tariff of such a nature as to prohibit the sale of our products there, they were really taking a blow at United States trade with Newfoundland. The quantity of our fish and oil consumed by United States was shown to be exceedingly small as compared with the volume of trade they were doing in our

A CURIOUS STORY.
RIGA, Sept. 26. Charges that the British Government had been duped into buying false and forged documents were made by Kari Radak, in the newspaper Pravda of Moscow Radak, according to a wireless message to the official Rosta Agency, giving a transcript of his article, says "Lord Curzon's accusations that Russia had violated her agreement regarding propaganda were based upon documents which Darek alleges were gotten up by a member of the German political police, connected with an 'international espionage organization.'" country, The gross of United States Products used in Newfoundland, either shipped directly or purchased through Canadian houses, approximated $20,000,000 as against $3,000,000 for goods which they took from us, leaving the balance of trade of approximately twenty to three in their favour. "The Premier pointed out that these discussions with leading officials of the United States Government were informally carried on, but declined to express any opinion as to the probable outcome, or disclose anything that had been said in the course of the discussions."

DECISION FINAL.
GLOUCESTER, Sept. 26. Entry of the Boston schooner Mayflower for the elimination races to choose a United States defender for the International Fishermen's Cup, was rejected today by the United States Fishermen's Race Committee. In a letter to Henry K. Hunt, Chairman of the Directors of the Mayflower Association, the committee pointed to the recent refusal of the Halifax trustees of the cup to allow the Mayflower to race for the trophy. The decision of the trustees is held to be final by the United States Committee, Mr. Hunt was informed.

Pleasing Presentation.
MR. W. LINEGAR HONORED BY ASSOCIATES.
A pleasing function took place last night at the residence of Mr. Wm. Linegar when a deputation from the St. John's Journeymen Cooper's Union presented him with an address and a handsome gold watch, suitably engraved. The presentation was made by Mr. James Bennett, the newly elected president of the Union who in a nicely worded speech eulogized the work of Mr. Linegar in forwarding the interests of his fellow craftsmen, during his ten year term of office. The following address accompanied the watch.
Dear Sir--The members of the Journeymen Cooper's Union cannot let the occasion of your retirement as Executive Head of the organization for the past ten years pass by, without expressing their sincere respect at the step which you have taken, although no doubt it was not taken without mature consideration, and as yourself expressed it, that your business required all your time for its successful operation. We must only submit to the inevitable, but we will miss your energetic and efficient leadership which never failed us in turning the sharp corners, which are always in close proximity to the path of an active labor organization such as the Cooper's Union. In expressing our deep appreciation and esteem for the manner in which you have conducted our affairs for such a long period to the satisfaction of both members and employers, we must not forget the fact which cannot be gainsaid that to your personality and tact the Union owes a great measure the position it holds today in this community. But having your personal assurance that your assistance and matured and wise counsel will be always available in all affairs of the Union, gives us a sense of security for in those trying times of upheaval and disturbances a tried and true leader with capabilities of no mean order, is almost an irreplaceable loss. And now dear Sir, we must ask you to accept the accompanying token as a slight tribute of the respect and esteem in which you are held by the members of the Union, both individually and collectively.
As the token carries a guarantee of a quarter of a century may you, Sir, and your family have this guarantee multiplied exceedingly in good luck, good health, and unbounded success in all your undertakings.
On behalf of the Union,
(Sgd.) JAMES BENNETT, President.
JAMES J. POWER, Secretary.

St. John's, Sept. 26th, 1921.
Mr. Linegar thanked the deputation for the handsome gift which he said would be always treasured, not only for its value, but for the spirit which prompted it. Refreshments were served and a very enjoyable social hour was afterwards spent.

MOTORING.

Someone has spoken of the pleasures of motoring. If there are any I haven't found them yet. Not long ago a friend of mine asked me to come for a run in his "divver." In these hard times one rarely gets an offer of this sort, and I jumped at it. After the usual difficulties which driver owners experience in starting, we drove off and beyond an occasional bump we managed to get out of town safely. No sooner had we got on the country road than the fun, that is what the car owner called it, began. Have you ever been tossed in a blanket? If you have you will appreciate some of the sensations I experienced on that drive. The only difference was that when you come on the blanket you don't hurt yourself unless some silly ass lets go, whilst every time I hit the hard seat with which drivers are blessed, I felt as if I were running away from a hostile battery of guns, every one of which was scoring a direct hit on some portion of my anatomy. Fortunately, before we had got very far, one of the tyres blew out. Sudden as was the shock which the noise caused me, it was nothing to the pleasure I felt at getting an opportunity to revive from the shaking I had received. Just as we got out to fix the puncture, however, it began to rain. You know that cold, heavy and decidedly unpleasant rain we have in September. Well that was the sort of rain that came down then. To make matters worse, my companion had, as I might have expected, forgotten to fix a hole in the spare tyre. It was not until after we had rolled about in the mud and wet for over an hour that we were again able to continue our drive. For a time, beyond the perpetual shaking to which I was rapidly becoming accustomed, nothing untoward happened. But too well I knew it was merely the calm before the storm. I was right. All at a sudden, the car began to jig-sag in a weird manner, a succession of loud explosions came from some part of its interior, then came a few coughs and a sudden stop. My companion jumped out and opened the bonnet. He poked about for ten or fifteen minutes and then calmly turned on me.

"Sorry, old fellow," he said, "but we'll have to get a tow."
"How far are we from civilization?" I asked.
"Oh, about four or five miles," he replied. I walked through all the mud and mire for what seemed an eternity. As the lights of the town showed up in the distance, I heard a familiar rattling behind me. I turned and discovered the divver I had left a few miles back. The driver, I cannot call him friend, stopped as he came up to me.
"Sorry," he said. "Didn't think 'e old bus would go, but she's all right now." "Hop in," I turned, my back on him and with my head high, proceeded painfully towards town. The pleasures of motoring, did you say?

A number of men were working in a stone quarry, and after a fuse had been laid the men retired behind a little barricade to await the explosion. A very short fuse had been set, and their waf was only to be a short one, but practically the whole time had passed when one of the men exclaimed:
"Great Scott! You know that barrel of gunpowder I was carrying? I'd forgotten it. I've left it behind, near the end of the fuse!"
"Good heavens!" cried the foreman. "There's enough gunpowder there, then, to shift the whole hill. This small harrigade is no protection--it's too near the source of the explosion. Run for your lives!"
The men began to run, but had not got far when the explosion occurred. Fortunately, however, no one was seriously hurt, for afterwards the whole gang began to drift back--with the exception of one man, who did not appear till the next day.
"Well, where have you been?" queried the foreman, eyeing him coldly, for he was the same man who had left the gunpowder behind.

The Restless Age.

This is indeed the restless age. A spirit of discontent seems to be permeating the younger generation in a way which causes one to sit and ponder, and to ask oneself, "where are we and whither tending?" The young people of to-day are the fathers and mothers of tomorrow. The future of this colony will eventually rest in their hands. What then will be the ultimate result of the strenuous life which they are now living? Certainly, no good can come of it. It has been asserted by many, both in print and on the public platform, that this restlessness, this desire to be always doing something, this evident dislike of quiet and home life, is a heritage from the war. It probably is, although the war now serves as an excuse for a multitude of changes which have taken place in the means and manner of living during the past few years. But whilst to a certain extent these uneasy, restless habits of the younger generation are due to perfectly natural causes, nevertheless an effort must be made to combat them if our people are not to become anaemic and adynamic within the next few years. In this city of St. John's, this desire to be always, to use an expressive colloquialism, "on the go" is very apparent as is only natural in a small community. In their mad rush for pleasure and excitement, our young people are heedless of health and everything that is necessary for their welfare, and it must be perfectly obvious that this anxiety to satiate their desire for excitement does them anything but good. Life to our youth of to-day is a continual round of dances, theatres, moving pictures, everything in fact which sates their desires for so-called enjoyment, whilst the dangers of impaired health are neglected even to the extent of not being considered for a single instant. Parents are greatly to blame for the existing state of affairs. No parent of a few years ago would even dream of allowing freedom to their children to the same extent as is done by the modern parent. Too much latitude is permitted and the results are often disastrous. We have no desire to be considered a Jonah nor do we wish to impose our views on any one. We do not, for a moment, deny the right of any to resent our comment on this unusual condition of life. But this much we do say, and the truth of our prophecy can only be proved by time; the very lifeblood of the city is being drained, the men and women of to-morrow are becoming physically incapacitated for the tasks which will be imposed upon them before the passage of many years. Let them take warning. The fall of Rome is not so far distant that it cannot be used as an analogy; the fall of the French Kings is an even closer one. If we are to continue as a colony which has always been proud of its manhood, descended from the hardy seagoers of three centuries as they are, then let us live natural lives. Let every parent attempt to restrain the craving for enjoyment which their children exhibit and let them try to inculcate in its place that love of a homely and quiet life which was so characteristic of the generation of a few short years ago.

Belvedere Orphanage Collection.

The Mother Superior and community of St. Michael's Convent, Belvedere, desire to express cordial thanks to the many generous friends of the Institute who helped towards Sunday's Collection. The amount realized is $480.00, about $500 less than last year's total. The Sisters also wish to thank the members of the various Societies who acted as Collectors; the "Friends of the Orphan" for their touching appeal, and all other friends for their kindly assistance.

Odd Fellows Make Presentation.

At last night's meeting of Atlantic No. 1, I.O.O.F., a very pleasing presentation was made to Bro. Robert Pike, who leaves on Sunday next for the United States. The presentation took the form of a watch fob suitably engraved, and was in recognition of his services as a member of the above Lodge. The newly appointed District Deputy Grand Master, Bro. G. T. Phillips made the presentation, and in a most speech paid a glowing tribute to the work of Bro. Pike. P.G. Bro. W. T. Quick also eulogized the recipient, as did other members. Bro. Pike was taken by surprise and was visibly affected, but in a brief speech thanked all present for their kind words. He takes with him all the best wishes of his brethren of Atlantic No. 1 for success in the land of his adoption.

Winter Swimming.

N.A.S.C. GETS BUSY. With the closing of the summer outdoor swimming, the lately formed Newfoundland Amateur Swimming Club is now getting in trim for the winter sports, which they intend holding this year. The pool at the Seaman's Institute is now in fine condition, thanks to the capable management of Mr. Holmes, the new Superintendent. The pool has had a thorough cleansing and the water will be kept clean and pure by means of a chemical. Mr. Holmes, who is President of the Club, is a great "stunt" artist in the water, and intends teaching the members many new water games. A water polo ball has been bought and practice at this popular game has now begun. A series of games will be played during the winter. A new diving stand has been put in the pool at the Club's expense, and a spring board may also be installed shortly, whilst rings, for gymnastic stunts, will be suspended over the water. Anyone from 17 years up may join the club.

Dunfield Boys' Club.

The annual meeting of the Dunfield Boys' Club was held at Canon Wood Hall last night when business for the past year was finalized. The Director of the Club, Rev. A. Clayton, occupied the chair and called the meeting to order. Secretary Knight then read the report of the club for the past year, which showed it to be in a flourishing condition. Mr. J. Pearce, ex-President of the Club, followed with the reading of the financial report, which showed a splendid credit balance to start the coming year. The Rev. Clayton outlined various items of the programme for the coming season. It was decided at last night's meeting that the organization be known as "The Dunfield Men's Bible Class" in future. The election of officers for the ensuing year then took place and resulted as follows:— President—E. E. Knight. Vice-President—G. Lewis. Secretary—E. D. Wills. Treasurer—W. Lockyer. Committee—W. Brown, H. Raines, G. Burnell, W. Legge.—COM.

Promenade Concert.

There was a very large attendance at last night's promenade band concert given by the C.C.C. Band in the Prince's Rink. An entirely new programme of music was played by the Band and every selection met with hearty approval. These concerts are becoming more popular every time and form an excellent means of passing an enjoyable evening.

CARD OF THANKS.—Mrs. John White and family of Twillingate, wish to express their sincere thanks to all kind friends who in any way assisted and comforted them in their sad bereavement, including all the kind friends of St. John's, Harrison's Hr. Grand Falls and elsewhere who sent letters and messages of sympathy; also those who sent wreaths and flowers to adorn the casket of their dear one.—adv.

Russia and N. F. Fish.

TRADE COULD BE DONE.

That Russia presents a market of unlimited possibilities for our codfish and herring, and that every effort should be made to capture this trade, has been pointed out time and again in the columns of this paper. This claim we have amply supported and further substantiated by the "subjoined" letter from Messrs. Joseph Gundry & Co., of Bridport, Dorset, England, and which was kindly handed us by their agent, Messrs. Graves & Son. The firm of Gundry, established more than 250 years ago and ever since engaged in the manufacture of fishing nets, twines, etc., should be in a position to know something of what they speak. Their statement that "Russia in the war took all the herring that could be caught, and Newfoundland is right in supposing that eventually this market will revive," bears out the assertions we have made. Another point in the letter that should not be overlooked is the sale by the British Government of one million barrels of herring to the Soviet authorities, even at the low price obtained and evidently only half of that anticipated it amounted to over half the value of our codfishery. The letter is dated Sept. 13th, and is as follows:—

"Dear Sirs.—We are obliged for your letter of the 2nd inst., and the newspaper (Telegram) with regard to the Russian market. We are afraid that if Newfoundland is depending on Russia for her immediate requirements to replace the position they will be very disappointed. Russia, without a doubt, requires the goods, but cannot pay for them down, and the only hope appears to us to be that if anything in the nature of international relief for Russia is started, you might get the International authorities to finance the sending of herring, dried cod, etc.

"The same state of affairs as obtains in Newfoundland, as regards getting rid of herring, obtains in this country, in Ireland and in Norway. The British Government, who guaranteed 54- or 55- last year for herring, had to dispose of the remainder of last year's catch amounting to over a million barrels, at we think 28- a barrel to the Soviet authorities, thereby losing 50% of their purchase price. The financial arrangements with the Soviet authorities were 10% cash and the remainder payable over a period of three years. These facts should be known to the powers that be in Newfoundland. A Russia, before the war, took all the herring that could be caught, and Newfoundland is right in supposing that eventually this market will revive, but we fear it will be some years before any private interest can do business in Russia, without taking absurd risks."

R. I. S.—There will be a meeting in the B. I. S. Ladies' Auxiliary in the Club Rooms on Wednesday, Sept. 28th, at 8.15 p.m. By order ELIZABETH H. PEDIGREW, Sec'y.—sep27.21

Home Grown Apples.

Yesterday afternoon the Telegram was shown some home grown apples from the garden of Mr. W. H. Hynes, and the specimens submitted compare favorably with the best imported apple of a similar grade. Mr. Hynes' productions are of an excellent quality, being free from faults, and very tasty, and excellent for eating purposes, being in fact of an early variety. Mr. Hynes has three trees in his garden each one bearing a different species. All bore fruit plentifully this season. In one or two other places in Newfoundland apples have been successfully grown, but not in any great quantities. The late Geo. R. Forsyth, Magistrate at Grand Bank, had an orchard at his farm located between Grand Bank and Fortune, and the late John E. Lake, of the latter place, made several attempts to plant an orchard in the bottom of Bay D'Espoir, having imported some hundreds of young apple trees from Nova Scotia.

School Prefects Appointed.

A very interesting ceremony took place at Bishop Spencer College yesterday when a score or more of the senior girls were enrolled as School Prefects. The young ladies are leaders and seconds of patrols in the Girl Guides. His Lordship Bishop White was present, attended by Rev. Dr. Bok and Rev. J. Brinson. After prayers the Bishop gave a short address on the duties of "Prefects" and then pinned the badges on the young ladies. New Prefects will be enrolled from time to time as they are required. The attendance at Bishop Spencer College yesterday was a large one and it is pleasing to note that every day new scholars enter. The pupils are all very happy and a most successful year is anticipated. The new prefects are:—Misses E. Baird, J. Carmel, E. Chalder, M. Hinchings, I. Randall, G. Watson, M. Wills, Margaret Wood, A. Blanford, A. Bolt, E. Carzell, M. Baris, E. Goldstone, E. Green, C. Marshall, F. Rennie, M. Rogerson, D. Sellers, H. Thompson, D. Withers, Marjorie Wood, J. Bushings, A. Harding, A. Chab.

Congratulatory Messages.

Big Welcome Being Planned for Our Athletes.

Many congratulatory messages were sent by delighted sporting enthusiasts yesterday to our Halifax team. There was scarcely a citizen who did not evince the keenest interest in the result and when the boys return they will meet with a reception such as has been accorded to few. An official welcome will be given them by Mayor Morris, whilst a big parade will be held through the town. At Halifax the team is receiving treatment of the most hospitable nature. Last night they were entertained by Capt. Mitchell, of the A.S. Rowing, and had a most enjoyable time. The following message was sent by Mayor Morris:—

"To Goodland and Thomas, Nfld. A.A.A., Halifax Hotel. Mayor and Council send warmest greetings and congratulations upon their competition and splendid success. Citizens preparing public reception and enthusiastic demonstration upon return of victory. 'I. C. MORRIS, Mayor.'"

The following message, which speaks for itself, was sent by President Ayre to the Sporting Editor of the Halifax Herald:— "J. A. Ahern. 'Sporting Editor Halifax Herald. 'Your tribute to our athletes will become a classic in Newfoundland athletics circles. It is more than a 'reprint' it has set a standard which 'Newfoundland athletes will strive to equalize. To be designated as quiet and unassuming good winners and 'good losers, neither boasters nor knockers, gives the finishing touch to their successful efforts. Papers 'are full of laudatory remarks concerning our men, your treatment, and especially your report. Mayor Morris on behalf of the city is writing our men congratulations. Big 'demonstrations' planned for their return, when Mayor will welcome vigorously. On behalf City, Country and 'Association, many thanks. 'GEO. W. B. AYRE, 'President Nfld. A.A.A.'"

Tickets in the sweep on the "Herald" Marathon, which was organized by the N.S.C., in aid of the Halifax funds, are now selling well and but a few more remain unsold.

Mrs. John A. Barron will be "At Home" at her residence, 177 LeMarchant Road, on Thursday and Friday, 29th and 30th, from 3.30 to 5.30 p.m.—sep27.21

Inspected Windsor Lake.

CIVIC COMMISSION DISCUSS CHARTER. On Saturday afternoon the Mayor and Council, in company with Mr. Ryan, City Engineer, visited Windsor Lake and inspected thoroughly the water system and Screen House. They found the Venturi Meter and the manometer were giving entire satisfaction. The average volume of water passing through the screens daily is about 6,000,000 gallons, and it is estimated that almost one-third of this amount is wasted, and although every precaution is taken, it seems almost impossible to avoid this large percentage of waste. There are nine water screens in all; four in each of the two screen houses, and one at the reservoir. These screens are made of the finest copper wire netting, and they are regularly raised from their positions and cleaned of all accumulations. The No. 1 Screen House, by the Pond, has been erected since the institution of the Water Works, some seventy years ago, and is still in a good state of repair, with the exception of the western end of the building, which the Council intends to repair immediately. The object of the Council in taking these precautions is to prepare for the winter time, so that the work may be done before the severe weather sets in; as our water system is very important, and precautionary steps are always the safest.

The Council also visited LeMarchant Road, Mullin's Bridge and the Waterford Bridge Road and the South Side; and they expect to make some improvements in the near future to those narrow exits near the city, and also to install some new lights.

For some time past, the Municipal Council has been holding special meetings on Monday evenings, for the purpose of reading over the New Charter, and making preparations for the necessary By-laws, in accordance with the same. Solicitor Carter is in attendance at all the meetings, and is giving his best counsel on all questions of doubt. The task before the Council is a big one, but they hope to have everything in good order by the time the new Council takes office in January.

We regret that in the letters of the N.S.C. Secretary published yesterday the name of Mr. Charles Hall was inadvertently omitted. The gentleman is one of the five wives of the Committee and a keen enthusiast in all branches of athletics.

Drunk Stops Car.

FORGETS HIS CHANGE IN COURSE.

A drunk and disorderly who was further charged with assaulting a constable in discharge of his duty, appeared before Judge Morris this morning. Constable Seaward said the prisoner walked in front of a car on New Dover Street and stopped it. He then sat down on the mud guard and refused to move. The owner of the car called witness to remove the man. The accused came with the constable until Adelaide St. was reached, when he kicked out and upturned the custodian of the law. He then took a flask of rum from his pocket and broke it, saying, "You won't get that on me." The constable held him until he could get assistance when the accused was taken to the Police Station. His Honor imposed a fine of $10 or 20 days. The prisoner, forgetting that he had previously deposited $5 for his release, tendered a $10 bill and walked out. A constable thereupon had to run after him with his change.

Three Months for Larceny.

A man who had been held on remand on a charge of larceny, appeared before Judge Morris in the Central District Court to-day. He was accused of taking some carriage rugs, dishes and a pair of pants. His Honor declared that he did not believe a word of the statement which the prisoner had made in the box, and sentenced him to three months without the option of a fine.

N. S. C. Sweeps Going Well.

The sweepstakes inaugurated by permission of the Justice Department to defray the expenses of our Halifax athletes, is making good progress, and the success of the Nfld. team has given the sale a decided impetus. The enthusiasm of citizens yesterday over their success knew no bounds, and one well known business man bought fifty dollars worth of tickets. The "shake-of-the-hat" idea is repugnant and justly so to most of the public, but in the sweep the chance of winning five hundred dollars really gives the purchaser of a ticket a good sporting chance as well as the opportunity of donating a dollar towards a very worthy and desirable object. The prize will be awarded to the holder of the ticket of the winning time in the Modified Marathon to be held at Halifax on October 15, in which John Bell is competing. To the persons holding the tickets on either side of the winning time two hundred dollars each will be awarded.

Juvenile Court for Sydney.

On Thursday last, a big meeting was held at Sydney, C.B., for the purpose of advocating the establishment of a Juvenile Court. Several prominent people addressed the meeting, Judge MacLachlan of Halifax explaining the Probation System which it was intended to apply. Efforts will be made to have this Juvenile Court become an accomplished fact. Could not something of the sort be done here?

MINE OWNERS WANT A WET NURSE.

LONDON, Sept. 27. A serious situation has arisen in the South Wales coalfields, owing to a misinterpretation of the settlement of the last coal strike. The Mines Department requires owners to contribute a further ten shillings per ton, amounting to seven hundred and fifty thousand pounds wages, whilst owners expected this sum to be provided by the Government out of the ten million pounds subsidy, and after a hurried meeting have decided to close a number of mines. Such action would seriously aggravate the employment situation.

Long Tow Started.

When the s.s. Monroe was moving through the Narrows yesterday evening with the s.s. Oskaloos in tow, the wire hawser parted with the strain, and the latter ship had to be brought to anchor by the attending tug. The Monroe proceeded out to Freshwater Bay where the broken cable was taken aboard. By the time the ship returned to port darkness had set in and the long tow to Boston had to be abandoned until this morning. At 10 o'clock everything was again in readiness and about an hour after both ships had cleared the heads and straightened up. The Oskaloos was apparently using one of her turbines as a dense smoke was issuing from her funnel.

Domestic Science Practically Taught.

New York, Sept. 21. (Associated Press)—On the assumption that most girls some day will marry and make their homes in small city apartments, public schools here are being equipped to teach them how to keep house economically and efficiently under those conditions. Part of the equipment of the domestic science department of each of the new standard school buildings opened this year, is a model flat, filling the space of one ordinary schoolroom and including a kitchen, living room, dining room, hall, bedroom and bath. Adjoining the model flat is a large cooking room and three small kitchens, separated by railings, the entire unit providing for the instruction of forty pupils at once.

Marvellous Billiard Player.

FRENCH CUE ARTISTE ATTRACTS ATTENTION.

Paris, Sept. 23.—The meteoric rise in the billiard world of Roger Conté, French cue marvel, has attracted as much attention in Europe as Willie Hopper's spectacular performances in America some 12 years ago. Conté is coming to the United States this month to represent France in the world's billiard championship tournament, to be held in Chicago in November.

Born in Toulouse in 1891, young Conté began to wield a cue in his father's billiard parlors when the top of his head was hardly visible above the tables. He used a stool to make some of the more difficult shots. In his early teens, he defeated many of the ablest players in Europe at billiards. Recently he gave Dorset, one of the 10 best French players, 150 points, and beat him in a 500-point game, running out in five breaks. He is weakest on masse shots, but this fault is overcome by marvelous position play and nursing.

A Rush of Applicants.

For Foreign Missionary Service. New York, Sept. 21. (Associated Press)—More than 1,200 girls and women recently have applied for appointments as foreign missionaries, according to Miss Mabelle Rae McVeigh, candidate secretary of the Woman's American Baptist Foreign Mission Society. Ages of applicants, Miss McVeigh said, range from 14 to 45. "Probably one reason for the astonishing increase in the number of applicants," Miss McVeigh said, "is the fact that the war has made the world seem smaller, so that foreign lands no longer seem as distant as they formerly did."

Newfoundland is Making a Strong Drive in Sport.

Ten Team Soccer League is in Existence in City of St. John's—N.A.A.A. Now Formed.

(Sunday Leader.) Newfoundland is turning its attention more and more to sport and this year has seen an unprecedented revival of interest in the Old Colony. Every branch of outdoor sport has its supporters, but none more so than the Soccer game. The city of St. John's with a population of 45,000, was last season able to put its teams in the field and forty-five scheduled games were played throughout the year. Soccer in St. John's has undergone a tremendous boom since the war. The Newfoundland Regiment, renowned from Gallipoli to the Somme was able in its few moments of leisure to undertake the game with the imperials and like all overseas troops they returned to Newfoundland with a love of soccer deeply engrained in them. They have been the most ardent propagandists for football in the city of St. John's and their propaganda has borne the excellent fruit just indicated.

Last season saw the formation of the Newfoundland Amateur Athletic Association. Previously there was no organization as such and sport was compelled to drag along from lack of one. Now, however, responsive to the increasing demand for a regular, systematized form of athletics, the association has taken shape and is now in a fair way to becoming the equal of any on this side of the Atlantic. Its embrace is wide, containing all elements from football to hockey, cricket, baseball, wrestling and pedestrianism. President is G. W. B. Ayre, LL.B., with vice-president W. J. Higgins, K.C., M.H.A., secretary P. J. Grace, treasurer G. E. Hunt. The association was able to obtain from the municipal authorities of St. John's an athletic ground which is very large indeed, and gives an opportunity for the exercise of every branch of sport. Work will be pushed on this in order to have it ready for next season. It will embrace also a swimming pool and hockey arena. The "Parade Ground" is in the centre of the city.

Newfoundlanders attending the Wanderers' Sports Saturday afternoon come to Canada with a wide reputation in their own country and are expected to show up well in the various events. Thomas Butler, of the M.G.A., is the sprint record-holder for Newfoundland, being champion over the 100, 200 and 440 yards distance. Fred J. Phelan won the victor-todrum of the Amateur Athletic Sports in the Island this year as the best all-round athlete.

Harvey Skirving is the five and five mile champion. The statement that Skirving is a Montreuil is incorrect. This splendid athlete has never been out of Newfoundland in his life until he turned up in Halifax for the Wanderers' Sports. John Bell is the five and ten mile distance champion and with his manager, A. Harvey Thomas, will be present on the Wanderers' grounds. E. J. Goodland, a Newfoundland newspaper man, accompanies the athletes. The wrestling league in the Island is something of an innovation in modern sport, while a boxing league is also being formed. Head of the latter in St. John's are B. B. Stafford, S. P. Cullen and F. W. Marshall.

When Dress Was Controlled by State Law

All the world has come, perhaps to that state of mind, body, and purse when it is busy tightening its belt. There isn't enough of everything to go round; or, if there does happen to be enough of some commodity, people haven't enough money to pay for it. Certainly, there are very few people and industrial troubles and trade slumps are making them still fewer—who now have money to spare for luxuries.

Yet the luxuries continue to be made and bought. Whether they get paid for is another matter. The West End tradesmen and the "dailymen" of North know most about that. Apart from Jewellers, which the average man and woman are not buying just now, clothes are an easy first in the expenses item.

According to Fixed Rules.

Hundreds of years ago there were laws governing what a woman—and man, for that matter—should or should not wear. Some of these sumptuous laws were stern and legal affairs; others were of the unwritten order but probably quite as stern.

The blessed and wonderful part about them was that they made it impossible for Mrs. Brown to care for straws what Mrs. Smith had on—the simple reason that Mrs. Smith probably had on just the same things as had Mrs. Brown herself.

You were not allowed to robe yourself and your relations according to your fancy and the extent of your purse. You and they dressed according to your station in life; or, in other words, to the guild to which your menfolk belonged.

If your father, or husband, or uncle or whoever had you in her keeping, those glad old days, when women didn't have an independent existence was a butcher, baker, candlestick maker, a lawyer, merchant, lordling, or tailor, you were dressed accordingly. Apparently, too, no one in those good old times ever wanted to dress any other way. If they had, the intricate circle of a man's suit—a much more powerful and wonderful body than the existence of a big Trade Union now—would probably have suggested his near relatives some very drastic remedies.

No "Latest Styles" Allowed.

Any lady who started on such a line, same course as trying to copy the costume of another rank than her own would have had a hard time of it in the hands of a competent sales committee of her personal acquaintance.

The sumptuary laws cut both ways and my lady, pranked up in the costume of her butcher's wife, would have created as much suspicion as the baker's good woman copying Mr. Merchant's robes and modes.

So sternly regulated were one's private affairs in those days that not only the cut of your clothes, but the material and cost of them, were all settled for you.

Presumably any little backsliding in the way of extra buttons or trimmings were promptly made an excuse for the Treasury to inflict the E.P. on that period.

The Parisian, who now sets the world's fashions, was even worse off than the Londoner, for only those having trifling incomes of £5,000 were allowed to buy four dresses a year for their wives. The pauper with less than £2,000 could only buy one dress and of material under 20 sous a yard at that, unless the said pauper was of the nobility, when 30 cents a yard might be given.

Presumably what a good man he left over, when there were so few dressmakers' bills to pay, went to swell the treasury of the royal personages who took such kindly interest in all his subjects.

There's a far cry, of course, from the ways of 1291 to 1921, but one wonders if there will ever rise up a Chancellor brave enough to touch feminine frumperies as a source of income.

Death in Scarlet Socks.

It certainly does not add to the safety of life to learn that death often lurks where its presence is least suspected.

For example, the man whose vanity affects scarlet socks little suspects that there is poison in the dye that makes them so captivating; and that, when he perspires in hot weather, this poison (antimoniac oxide) may enter his system through the skin with possibly fatal results. Every year, it is said, red socks of a cheap variety send dozens of their innocent wearers to the hospitals.

There is a similar danger in vivid greens, which contain arsenic; bright blues, which owe their beautiful colour to murate of soda; and yellows, which draw their shimmer from lead—all mineral dyes, and all deadly.

Only a few months ago a lovely Parisian girl, Mlle. Carlier, paid with her life for decking her beauty in an exquisite green silk blouse; and one of the most popular women in Brussels society, Mme. Sabitu, died of lead-poisoning because she wore stockings of yellow to match a Paris gown.

The toys whose gay colouring appears to children are often no less dangerous, with their hues of red and green, blue and yellow, which may contain deadly mineral poisons.

Arsenic, a poison, two grains of which are fatal, has a hundred little-suspected ambushes. It lurks in artificial flowers; in candles used for decoration; in stockings and gloves; in wallpapers and furniture coverings; in Britannia-metal forks and spoons.

In many foods, too, danger lurks. To some, shell-fish are poisonous; to others, strawberries or eggs—thus justifying the saying that "What is one man's food is another man's poison." And scores have died from solanine poisoning as the result of eating potatoes that were sprouting.

Even in plants and flowers danger often lies. Prussic acid lurks in the beauty of lilies-of-the-valley; daffodils and narcissus, buttercups and nasturtiums often cause troublesome skin affections.

Ward's Linalum Believes Rheumatism

Cats' Skin for Rheumatics.

There are more curious "remedies" for rheumatism than for any other malady.

The bee-sting cure has, of course, long been known, and it certainly seems to do good in some cases.

Other people wear necklaces of beads—amber or ordinary blue glass—to ward off attacks.

The belief that a silver ring with a piece of copper-let into the side will cure rheumatism is also very widespread. It is at any rate less inconvenient than the Cornish cure, which necessitates crawling under a Bramble that has formed a second root in the ground, or drinking water in which a "thunder-stone" has been boiled.

Finally there is the wearing of a cat's skin. There would seem to be a sound reason underlying this particular belief.

Stimulate the circulation and you do something towards curing rheumatism. So if you wear a rough, warm substance like a cat's skin, next your body you reduce your chances of catching rheumatism.

Generals Keep Shop.

LEADING HUNGARIAN ACTRESS IN SOAP FACTORY.

Hungarian generals and statesmen, and a majority of the nobility, who played brilliant roles during the war and at the Court of the ex-Emperor, have followed the example of Field-Marshal von Koveess, he conqueror of Ivanograd—and recently opened a cigar shop—by setting up in business as shopkeepers, tailors, carpenters, and clerks.

The Baroness Dora Banny, daughter of the former Hungarian Premier, has opened a hat shop, while Count Eugen Klebelsberg has become a mounted policeman on probation.

Count Albert Apponyi, the veteran Hungarian statesman, writes two articles monthly for a New York newspaper, and Herr von Szepessy, member of an old family of aristocrats, is about to marry a dressmaker and plans to become a women's tailor.

Famous dancers and singers unable to live on their salaries have opened manicure saloons, and the greatest tragedienne of the National Theatre, Emilia Markus, is employed in a soap works.

"Slump" in Wine Prices.

Sixty thousand "pipes" (or casks), at least, of Portuguese wines (Douro and Lisbon) are according to Harper's Wine and Spirit Gazette, fermenting in the London Docks, and are fit practically for nothing better than turning into vinegar.

Many well-known firms are writing down in very drastic fashion the present values of their wine stocks, bought in mid-war times.

Branded champagne purchased at 10s. per dozen, duty paid, are now offered at 5s. and Douro ports can now be obtained at 1/2s. per pipe L.O.B., instead of the "Centuries" which not a year ago were paid.

It is not generally known, the paper adds, that the Customs and Excise authorities are prepared to waive the duty upon the original shipment in such cases, and a considerable amount of money ought to be saved in this respect by firms owning large quantities of wine "gone wrong" during the last twelve months.

Kaiser is in Cage of Barbed Wire.

London—Sir Park Goff, M.P., has just returned from a visit to Doer and Wiefman. He says that the Kaiser is now behind a twelve foot barbed wire fence and has had rows of trees planted inside of it, so that the house and garden are almost invisible to outsiders.

Recently the inhabitants got a look at the ex-war lord when he came to superintend the repair of the fence, apparently taking as much interest in the barrier as a means of keeping intruders out as the Dutch Government took in keeping a possible intruder in.

The local people still call him "His Majesty" or "the emperor", and the gates of Doorn still bear the imperial crown mounted with the letter "W."

There is no such aloofness where the Crown Prince lives in a humble cottage next the village blacksmith, whose forge he frequents, practicing, making horseshoes and varying the exercise with billiards with the local publicans, and motorcycling rides about the island. People now regard him with utter unconcern.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

WHAT A FOREIGNER TAUGHT ME.

Not long ago I met a foreigner who has been living in this country about twelve years and who although he had a slight (and delightful) accent, spoke English more fluently, more vividly, and with a fuller vocabulary than any of us to whom English is our native tongue.

and he was much pleased. He went on to speak of his experiences in learning English and told me two things that interested me enough to pass on to you.

Went About With a Note Book.

One was his method of learning English. This is what he did. He knew just the English taught in the Danish high school when he came to this country (anyone who has tried out high school French as a working language in France knows what that means), and he wanted to supplement it, as soon as possible, as he had his living to earn in the new land. So he went about with a note book jotting down in it the Danish names of the objects that he saw on his walks or his trips to shops or visits to homes.

For instance, a walk might yield him the Danish words for trolley car, straw hat, necktie, schoolboy, school, automobile, potatoes, onions, carrots, telephone post, and so forth. As soon as he got home he would look up the English equivalent in his Danish-English dictionary and this method of identifying the object with the word, he declared, helped him get a vocabulary far quicker than studying any list of words in a book.

Why Wait to Go Abroad.

Anyone who is going abroad might try this method in the new country. Though come to think of it I do not see why one need wait; one could pretend one was in France, or Spain, or Italy, and do it here, couldn't one?

The other fact concerned the results of his study. He said that he and several native born Americans tried this experiment.

They took up the dictionary and opening it at random took down the top word on the page. They did this on 30 pages and then each tried to define the words. "And I did not come out so badly," he said. "Knowing him, I know that that means his came out very well."

Try This On Your Family.

"Immediately I asked myself: 'How well should I come out?' and reaching for my dictionary I tried it. The first word I found I could define, the second I had a pretty good idea of, the third, 'tasmanacha,' was a little worse than Greek to me. The fourth was 'wast' and seeing it thus aloft from its family and not knowing whether it was a noun, adjective or verb, I actually found myself at a loss. Of course I laughed when I read its definition.

It is an interesting test. Try it some day with a group of friends when time hangs heavily and you are sick of hearing and saying the same familiar bromidioms.

Obects to Women as Ministers.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 21.—Declaring that the ordination of women as ministers of the gospel would be prejudicial to the best interest of the church, and would increase the occasion for factional scandal and unhappy satanic church quarreling, the Rev. Dr. C. E. McCartney, pastor of the Arch Street Presbyterian church of Philadelphia, discussed recognition of women in the church before the general council of the alliance of reformed churches throughout the world here.

Dr. McCartney said it would tend toward the complete feminization and more and more increase the disposition to throw the whole responsibility of church work upon the women. The church, in time would become a sort of women's guild.

Dr. McCartney declared that the record of women as interpreters and leaders of religious thought was not an enviable one.

Dr. Martin Yeast, of Lithuania, answering Dr. McCartney, said he hoped the views expressed by the Philadelphia minister were his own personal opinions and not that of the Presbyterian and reformed churches. The women also were defended by Dr. S. Lewis Robertson of London representing the Presbyterian church of England and Dr. Arthur J. Brown of New York City.

Four Entrants.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Sept. 20.—The entry list for the American elimination race was increased to four to-day, schooners Elsie and Ellen T. Marshall being entered by their respective owners. Yessels already in are the Josephine De Costa, of Boston, and Ralph Brown. The entry of the Elsie was tentative, subject on condition that she arrives from the Banks in time for the race October 12.

A meeting of the committee of fifty to raise funds was held at the Chamber of Commerce this evening. Everyone was brimful of enthusiasm for the coming trials to pick a defender for the International Trophy, and nearly $25,000 to care for the expense of not only this year's event, but also future races.

The matter of having more sailing men on the Race Committee was brought up and advocated by Capt. Geo. H. Peoples. This body had a short session immediately afterward and added Captain John Matheson and Charles H. Harty to the committee.

The Auction Block.

The marketing of laborers on the auction block, as in the days of slavery, was fantastically spectacular, as it was undoubtedly intended to be, but without practical bearing upon the present industrial situation. Workers with their services to offer do not display intelligence in asking bids from an audience composed of unemployed. Even when the negro slaves were sold we have no doubt that means were adopted to see that the best prospective bidders were notified of the event, and the auctioneers were specially qualified to advertise the various good points of the slaves offered.

And after all, does not the auction block signify the process by which all workers—laborers, artisans, managers or executives—market their services to the best advantage. Most of us are for sale to the highest bidder, even though there may be other considerations than the mere monetary. We want in exchange for what we do, the highest reward that the world will pay. But must of us have more sense, if we are out of employment, than to try to sell our services to those who are also out of work. In fact, we are inclined to think that if there was more of the auction block idea in trade-unionism there would be less unemployment. The idea of the union agents seems to be to get better wages for their members than the market can afford, rather than work for the highest bidder. When others in the community have not the purchasing power to buy the goods produced at the cost of these high wages, unemployment follows.

Perhaps, after all, labor can take more lessons than capital from the Boston auction block incident.—The Financial Post.

DELIBERATION.

The things we do in foolish haste make heart and conscience sore; rash impulse causes half the waste that prudent men deplore. Like autumn leaves, the money flies, because the joyous skate won't ask himself, "Now, is it wise, this splurge I contemplate? Oh, shall I blow this bundle junk I've earned by labors hard, or put it safely in the bank, where moth and rust are barred?" He won't sit down and view his wad, and think how much it cost, the strain that bends his shoulders broad, the efforts that exhaust him, the counsel wise to wit; he'd think it was some sort of plant, if those girls butted in. Oh, oftentimes I am impelled to seek the marts of trade, where bargain counter sales are held, and blow the coin I've made. But long ago I made a rule to think such yearnings o'er; and in a day said more. To-day I'd buy the car that flies our gasping villages through; tomorrow more I'll realize that my old boat will do. It's impulse leads the boys astray; the rash and thriftless gink should buy himself a bale of hay and sit on it, and think. And he should think how foolish 'tis to waste the hard-earned bones, while foolish spenders round him whis, and yonder pauper groans.

Stockings Too Short.

Novelist refused to pull them up. An goal at Atlantic City, New York's Brighton, clad in a bathing suit, lies the novelist Louise Rosine writes the New York correspondent of the London Daily Mail.

She is awaiting the opening of the police court on Monday to be tried on a charge of violating the municipal bathing regulations, in that she appeared on the beach with the stockings of her bathing suit rolled below her knees. This is a crime of considerable magnitude in the large seaside resorts of the United States.

When a policeman reminded her of the regulations and requested her to cover her knees she is alleged to have replied: "Most certainly not. My knees are none of the town's business." When taken to the police station she still refused to roll up her stockings, and would not give her address or accept bail. She announced her determination to remain, and will take the case to the Supreme Court, if necessary, as a protest against "stupid restrictions of women's freedom."

MYT AND JEFF

IT'S AWFUL TO BE SO ABSENT-MINDED AS THIS.

—By Bud Fisher

MY WORD, BUT I'M GETTING ABSENT-MINDED! FIRST I LEFT THE HOUSE WITHOUT MY BAGGAGE, AND THE SECOND TIME I LEFT WITHOUT MY HAT. I HOPE I CAN CATCH MY TRAIN!

DARN IT, BILL, I CAN'T SEEM TO FIND MY TICKET!

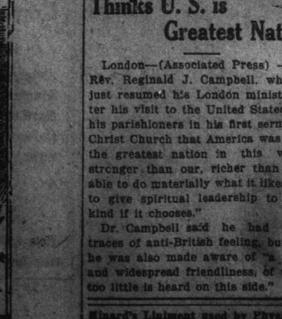

THAT'S ALL RIGHT, JEFF, I'LL GET IT ON MY SECOND ROUND!

IT AIN'T IN MY HAT! I'M SO TERRIBLY ABSENT-MINDED I DON'T KNOW WHERE I PUT IT!

OF ALL THE HOW-DE-DOS, AIN'T THIS AWFUL? I AIN'T FOUND MY TICKET YET, BILL!

OH, WELL, JEFF, IT WILL BE ALL RIGHT IF YOU NEVER FIND IT!

NO, IT WON'T! I'VE GOTTA FIND THAT TICKET! I WANT TO KNOW WHERE I'M GOING!

Thinks U. S. is Greatest Nation.

London.—(Associated Press)—The Rev. Reginald J. Campbell, who has just resumed his London ministry after his visit to the United States, told his parishioners in his first sermon at Christ Church that America was "now the greatest nation in this world, stronger than our, richer than ours, able to do materially what it likes, and to give spiritual leadership to mankind if it chooses."

Dr. Campbell said he had found traces of anti-British feeling, but that he was also made aware of "a warm and widespread friendliness of which too little is heard on this side."

YOUR EYES TROUBLE

It is a shocking experience to see the numerous blind people moving along the streets.

Each of us gives a quick, sympathetic thought to these unfortunate and each of us goes hurriedly on our way, overlooking entirely the unconscious message these sightless humans have for us.

If you asked them they would tell you that your eyes are your most priceless possession—once gone, the wealth of an empire could not restore them.

Little eye troubles lead to bigger eye troubles. Prevent them by consulting me—free of charge.

PYORRHEA ALBINA.

Pyorrhoea is so insidious that we want to repeat again and again our former warnings against it. It is not painful as a rule, and that very fact makes it all the more dangerous. Watch for those bleeding gums, they are your warnings. Do not give your body a chance to absorb poisons that come from bad teeth or diseased gums. Anything from a headache to a serious illness may result from your neglect. Pyorrhoea is a dreadful disease.

Clothes and the woman—one and inseparable—always will be—and always should be. But, my, how thrifty they are getting nowadays and yet they continue to dress just as well.

Other women except Dainty Dorothy have learned how to make last season's suit meet this season's requirements. They have learned of our superior cleaning and dyeing facilities, and they are taking advantage of them—so are the men folks.

Gala Day at Bay Bulls.

CONVENT SCHOOL OPENED.

Saturday, Sept. 24th, the Feast of Our Lady of Mercy, will be long remembered as an important day in the history of Bay Bulls. For a long while the people of this settlement have been anxiously looking forward to the accomplishment of an end which they worked enthusiastically and whole-heartedly to attain, namely, the laying of the foundation of a Community of Sisters of the Order of Mercy to take charge of the secular and religious training of their children. During the past five years those people left nothing undone to reach the goal of their earnest desire. Beginning in November, 1915, they have since erected an up-to-date school capable of seating one hundred and fifty children; a spacious and commodious hall, a magnificent convent and in a short time will have completed a presbytery which will rank among the best of its kind in the island. It is difficult in a short newspaper item to give a detailed description of these buildings but we think too much cannot be said in appreciation of the laudable efforts put forward by the parishioners of Bay Bulls who number less than one thousand. With a minimum of help from outside, these people have found in labor and material the wherewithal to erect these structures. During the busy summer's fishing season when fishermen's minds are fully turned towards their private work, the fishermen of Bay Bulls let no opportunity pass to rally round their Parish Priest and give him every assistance in the noble work he had undertaken. Through the autumn and often in winter storms these men made sacrifices unknown to keep on giving a helping hand to their church; and when the winter season rendered building impossible they repaired to the forest and provided certain material needed for the erection of these buildings. As the first signs of spring approached the hills re-echoed to the sounds of the hammer and day in and day out this continuous drive went on for the cause of religion and education. Apart from the voluntary subscriptions many little entertainments were gotten up in the way of garden parties, etc., and into these as into the actual labor the people threw themselves heart and soul.

From early on Saturday morning last the little town began to put on a spectacular appearance, and from every home flowed streamers of hunting and varied colors and the church and surroundings were tastefully decorated with flags, while banners of welcome here and there bore silent but none the less adequate expressions to the feelings of the parishioners. Soon valleys of musketry gave notice that the Nuns were coming, and as the motor cars bringing the Sisters approached, the cheers of the people vied with the faithful old musket in expressing a hearty welcome. At 4 p.m. it was appointed that the official opening would take place, and long before that hour the spacious church was filled to overflowing. Regret was, however generally expressed when it was known that His Grace the Archbishop, owing to suffering from a cold, could not be present. His Grace during his episcopate, has taken a noble interest in such work, and we are sure was with those people in spirit on Saturday evening. The extension of the different religious orders has been a great part of the good he has accomplished, and we are certain it is the ardent wish of all concerned that he may be long spared to carry out his further plans. Benediction was then imparted by the Parish Priest, Rev. Fr. O'Brien, after which he welcomed the Sisters on behalf of himself and his parishioners. Owing to a pressing call to another part of the parish he was compelled to make a brief address, but on Sunday morning, he dealt at length with the subject. He called to the mind of his hearers the great importance of the coming of the Sisters and what it meant for the future development of both secular and religious education. Touching on the present conditions of the world at large and the great need of religion in the reconstruction programme that is going on, he urged the parents to make every sacrifice and do all possible to keep their children at school and arm them for the battle of life with a true education, which is only possible where knowledge and religion are imparted hand in hand. He reviewed the excellent work the Sisters were performing in this country; the great efforts they were making to keep abreast of the times and concluded by bespeaking a new light to shed forth on the future generations of this parish.

Such is a brief account of this important event, but we are quite sure that the spirit which animated such a noble work and with the strong faith which prompted the people of Bay Bulls to such a worthy end, they will say with the Psalmist: "Now nobis Domine, non nobis, sed nomine tuo da gloriam." (Not to us, not to us, oh Lord; but to Thy Name give glory.)

Infant's Brain in Girl of 19.

WHERE MEDICAL SCIENCE FAILED.

CHICAGO, Sept. 23.—Medical science has failed in a remarkable attempt to restore the dwarfed faculties of 19-year-old Marie Zumbach, who lived sixteen years in a basement dungeon.

At the American Hospital, where Marie was subjected to a daring operation a year ago, after she was snatched from her living death, it was admitted to-night that the case was almost hopeless.

It was hoped that the experiment would prove that an atrophied brain could be made active by the introduction of thyroid glands. Surgeons and other medical authorities in all parts of the country have been watching the case.

She still has the physical development of a child of 6; the mental development of a child of 2.

She doesn't respond to treatment, especially mentally. Physically she has gained a few pounds and on some days eats three meals. Generally speaking, her condition is unchanged, in spite of the very best attention from leading medical specialists.

Science a year ago thought that a miracle might be performed in Marie's case. Thyroid gland operations were then under discussion, here and abroad. Dr. Serge Voronoff, the famous Paris surgeon, was in Chicago demonstrating his thyroid gland theories.

Marie had just been found by the health authorities hidden in a basement at Joliet, Ill. She had been there since she was two years old. Born sub-normal, her mother, a superstitious Polish woman, locked her in the cellar, where the sun's rays never penetrated.

Dr. Max Thorek, head surgeon of the American Hospital, operated upon Marie. He removed the living thyroid gland of a monkey and transplanted it into the neck of the little patient.

Since then the girl has received the best of care. Physicians and nurses set to work with enthusiasm to build up the arrested body and light the lamp again in the clouded brain.

But the drawn little features registered no change of expression. Marie continued to fail to recognize persons or objects. She just existed.

"A pitiable case indeed," said Dr. Edmund Krumhold, assistant professor of neurology at Northwestern university, one of the numerous specialists who have interested themselves in the case. "If she is to make any progress, it will have to be mental progress first. This cannot be accomplished unless some philanthropically inclined person takes this little girl in hand, provides her with pleasant surroundings and a tutor; someone to give constant attention to the almost lifeless brain."

Palestine Has Small Population.

LONDON, Sept. 4.—(Associated Press)—There are now barely 700,000 people in all Palestine, a population much less than that of Galilee alone in the time of Christ, says Sir Herbert Samuel, the British High Commissioner there, in a report just made public. Ten thousand immigrants arrived in Palestine in the seven months between September 1920, and May, 1921, he reports. Sir Samuel attributes the scarcity of the population to lack of development.

The financial condition of Eastern and Central Europe, and internal difficulties within the Zionist organization of the United States, says the report, have prevented the Zionist movement from providing, as yet, any large sums for enterprises of development or colonization. As a consequence, while there had been much pressure to admit Jewish immigrants, there had been little expansion in the opportunities for employment, he declared.

The water supply for Jerusalem having been found to be insufficient, the Government is bringing into use some ancient reservoirs of vast capacity, of unknown date, possibly Herodian, situated eight miles away. The Garrison of the country has been reduced to 5,000 combatant troops, imposing a charge of $2,500,000 on the British Exchequer, or at the rate of $500 for every fighting man.

White Riders of the Night.

The Hooded Terror of the South.

Thousands of people in the United States are agitated by the actions of bands of white-robed night-riders. In this weird, mysterious society to which is attributed the outbreak of "tar and feather" it is known as the "Ku-Klux-Klan."

Beniah Johnson, of Tennessee, and the Rev. Philip S. Irwin, a subject of Miami, Florida, are the latest victims. A band of men robed in white kidnaped Mrs. Johnson, and coated her with tar and feathers. Mr. Irwin was set off in a similar way, and his eyes were the same. These individuals committed some acts against the organization's code, the guiding principle of which is the supremacy of the white over the black, the upholding of a strict code of laws laid down by themselves.

Strangers Secret Society. Mysterious in all their actions, this organization has struck terror into the hearts of every black-eyed American, whether white or black, especially in the South. Whether a struggle for supremacy between black and white is waged the "K.K.K." is at hand, working quietly and systematically, unseen and unheard, seldom does the society fall in its own power.

Next day every Negro of ill repute had fled from the precincts of the city! The only secret society of its type in the United States, the Klan was founded in 1865 and was later reorganized in 1915. It is now the most powerful and most active organization in the South, and its members are known as "white riders."

How mighty is the power of the Klan can never be properly appreciated unless one has come into direct contact with its ramifications. Yet some idea at least of its high status is afforded by the fact that in its ranks it has some of the highest judges on the American Bench, members of Congress, ministers of the Gospel, and others of influence. But their names are kept secret.

Although it is known that many such great personages are intimately associated with the movement, out of the tens of thousands of members the identity of only one solitary "eagle" has been disclosed to the world. That man is Colonel William J. Simmons, Professor of Southern History, at Lander University, Atlanta, who is known as the "Imperial Wizard."

It has been alleged that the Klan has more than once indulged in unwarranted orgies of "black" bloodshed, and it has been further asserted that the "Ku-Klux-Klan" did "horrible and given five minutes in which to swear for ever any further communication with white women. When he heard the alternative—to be burnt alive—the terror-stricken Negro fell on his knees and swore the oath. Then, as mysteriously as they had come, the captors vanished.

Every Negro dreads the name of the "K.K.K." The merest whisper of it is enough to set him quaking. He knows that the watchword of the band is thoroughness. Quite recently in a little southern town a single horseman appeared clad in the awe-inspiring dress of the Klan. From behind the mask came a sepulchral voice, which stated that within a few minutes "a band of solemn, determined men" would pass, and that nobody should follow them.

Then from the distance came a sound as of thunder, which grew louder and louder until there flashed before the astonished gaze of the assembled multitude, two hundred night-riders of the Klan, each man clad in the society's robes, masked, and heavily armed.

They passed under the arc lamps which flamed in the air. Immediately the lights went out, to be switched on again when the riders had disappeared. This was a great recognition of their power and authority.

Without speaking a single word they took him into a fast car and drove furiously without headlights to a lonely place. By the time the destination was reached the boy was almost frantic with fear. Despite his appeals he was tied to a tree and, having been stripped of the waist, was given twenty-five heavy lashes by a powerful man. Then a bottle of acid was produced and the letters "K.K.K." were branded indelibly upon his forehead.—Tit-Bits.

Rural Route No. 1, Mascouche, Que. The Minard's Liniment People. "Sirs,—I feel that I should be doing a wrong if I neglected to write you. I have had four tumors growing on my head for years. I had them cut off by a surgeon about fifteen years ago but they grew again till about three months ago I had one as large and shaped like a lady's thimble, on the very place where my hair should be parted, and it was getting so embarrassing in public that it was a constant worry to me. About three months ago I got a bottle of your liniment for another purpose and saw on the label good for tumors. Well I tried it and kept at it for exactly two months, with the result that it has entirely removed all trace of the tumor, and were it not that they had been cut fifteen years ago, no mark would be seen. I have not been asked for this testimonial and you can use it as you see fit.

(Signed) FRED C. ROBINSON. P.S.—I am a farmer and intend using Minard's Liniment on a mare for a strained tendon, and am hoping for some results. FRED, C. R.

The Disaster to the "Arctic."

The Collins liner "Arctic" left Liverpool for New York, on September 21, 1921, with about 370 souls on board. On September 27, the liner was blundering through the fog, hanging over the Grand Banks, about fifty miles southeast of Cape Race, when suddenly there loomed through the mist the shadowy outline of another vessel. The two boats had scarcely desisted one another when there was a terrific crash. When they released their deadly embrace and backed away, the "Arctic"—the French steamer "Vesta"—gave signs of foundering, and at once turned to make for the harbour of St. John's, Newfoundland. At first it was thought that the "Arctic" had escaped serious damage, except to her upper works, but in a few minutes the awful intelligence came up from the depths of the ship that water was coming in rapidly, and that the fires would soon be extinguished. The captain turned his prow towards Cape Race—the nearest point of land—with the intention of running ashore at full speed, but he was prevented by the heavy gale that was raging, and after four hours' labouring with wind and sea, the furnaces were extinguished by the rising waters, and the "Arctic" shortly afterwards made her fatal plunge, within a few miles of the shore; only 15 of 235 passengers and 21 of a crew of 156, being saved. Most of the boats were smashed in the attempts to launch them, and a large, hastily improvised raft, which the seamen had fashioned when they learned that the vessel was doomed, and on which 75 persons sought refuge, was broken up by the waves, leaving a solitary survivor. The French vessel was more fortunate, since she succeeded in reaching St. John's, though in a sinking condition.

Without a moment's hesitation the leaders of the band proceeded to the cells, unlocked the doors, and liberally ignoring the other Negroes, selected the man who had been in the main identified with the crime. They took him out and hanged him to a telegraph pole.

Yet the Klan does not direct its efforts solely against the blacks. In safeguarding women every person whom they consider to be an offender in this direction, be he black or white, is an enemy of the society. The Klan is never wrong. By some almost superhuman inspiration it goes about its work with a deadly certainty that terrifies all evil-doers. Where unwarranted outrages have been committed, it has in almost every instance been clearly established that the society's members have been in no way implicated. Such crimes have been carried out by gangs of desperadoes under the name of "Klanishness," as it is called.

This sort of thing, declares Mr. Shaw Desmond in the August "Wide World Magazine," has led to the recent solemn pronouncement issued by the "Imperial Wizard."

"Beware! Beware! All ye people of the earth. There is one and only one Ku-Klux-Klan; therefore shun as a poisonous serpent any other organization of a similar name. We warn you, Beware!"

The latest phase of the "K.K.K." movement is the branding of offenders. A few weeks ago a body of masked men appeared in the home of Alexander Johnson, a Negro bell-boy at an hotel in Dallas, Texas, who had offended against the code of the "K.K.K."

Without speaking a single word they took him into a fast car and drove furiously without headlights to a lonely place. By the time the destination was reached the boy was almost frantic with fear. Despite his appeals he was tied to a tree and, having been stripped of the waist, was given twenty-five heavy lashes by a powerful man. Then a bottle of acid was produced and the letters "K.K.K." were branded indelibly upon his forehead.—Tit-Bits.

I had them cut off by a surgeon about fifteen years ago but they grew again till about three months ago I had one as large and shaped like a lady's thimble, on the very place where my hair should be parted, and it was getting so embarrassing in public that it was a constant worry to me. About three months ago I got a bottle of your liniment for another purpose and saw on the label good for tumors. Well I tried it and kept at it for exactly two months, with the result that it has entirely removed all trace of the tumor, and were it not that they had been cut fifteen years ago, no mark would be seen. I have not been asked for this testimonial and you can use it as you see fit.

First Railway in England

On Wednesday, September 27, 1825, the first railway was opened and ran between Stockton-upon-Tees and Darlington, both towns in Durham, the line being 25 miles in length. By 1826 the railway of Great Britain and Ireland had reached a length of 21,377 miles and this system has since been adopted in every country of the world. James Watt, a great British civil engineer of Greenock, who lived from 1736 till 1819, was an inventor of steam engines for working in one place. But as a means of locomotion, the credit and honour of them belong to George Stephenson, a native of Newcastle-upon-Tyne, and his son Robert Stephenson, who together planned and produced the first travelling railway. The father's crowning achievement was the railway line connecting Manchester and Liverpool. In obtaining Parliamentary permission for such railway traffic great opposition was at first encountered; but the Bill passed through Parliament in the year 1825, and the first line was opened, as stated above, on September 27, 1825.

There has been a general desire to learn what conclusions Lord Reading's sympathetic mind would arrive at after a careful study of Indian affairs on the spot.

The Viceroy's first speech is decidedly hopeful and encouraging. In his view the Mohlah rising, serious as it was, should not be taken as symptomatic of the general state of India, but is to be regarded as the turbulent outbreak of a traditional storm-centre which called for firm handling.

Lord Reading's general conclusion appears to be that, on the whole, India is settling down. The peoples of India now have their political future in their own hands. With legislative the Imperial Conference the path is clear towards orderly evolution as a self-governing State.

Everyone will hope that the Prince of Wales's visit will be as a healing touch. Lord Reading mightily emphasized the Prince's entire association from parties and politics. The welcome of the Princess and peoples of India will be given to the son of the King-Emperor and the heir to the throne, which stands firm on the bedrock of India's loyalty, so amply proved in the war.—Daily Mail.

Gracefully Accepted. (From the New York Times.) What might have been the most unpleasant controversy, with possible consequences of a really serious character, has been escaped rather narrowly, thanks to the prompt and quiet acceptance of the decision by the Nova Scotia Trustees of the North Atlantic Fishermen's Trophy that the Boston boat Mayflower was not eligible to sail as the American defender.

Under the conditions of the race, only real fishing boats could enter, and, in the opinion of the Nova Scotians, the Mayflower was built more for the purpose of winning the race than to catch fish. Her owners' desire to win, and her speed, have been so successful enough to prove her eligibility, but the weight of evidence seems to be against her—to prove that she cannot carry cargoes large enough to make her a practical craft in a hard service.

At any rate, submission to the adverse verdict of the duly authorized officials has been without even a murmur of protest, so international amities are not threatened. The Mayflower's owners express surprise at her rejection, but they hint no unfairness, so it safely can be assumed that there was none. None on either side, that is: Speed is a valuable quality in a race to market, and just how much the carrying capacity of a boat should be sacrificed in attaining it is obviously a question on which opinions can differ quite honestly.

SWEET, PURE MILK—always on hand when you want it!

If you have never used Libby's Evaporated Milk, you will be amazed to find how good, how convenient and economical it is. Many women who first tried it in some emergency now use it always—they find it gives such satisfactory results.

There's no waiting for the milkman—you can always keep several cans on the shelf and in summer there's no bothering with ice, and in winter the milk wagon can get stuck in a heavy drift of snow as often as it wants to!

And there's less waste—a can of Libby's Evaporated Milk will keep indefinitely before being opened—and after you have opened a can you can use just what you need; the rest, put in a cool place, will keep several days.

Libby's Milk comes from the finest dairying section of America and is processed in our own sanitary condensaries—it is not the "distributed" product of an unknown and nameless plant.

Order a tin from your grocer to-day.
