'BUSINESS!"

Candia, Island of Crete, Sept. 17 .-Admiral Noel, the British naval commander here, handed Edem Pasha, the Turkish governor, yesterday evening a demand for the disarmament of the Mussulman population. The pasha is awaiting the advice of the Turkish Government on the subject.

An Athens telegram says: It is cumored that a conflict between insurgents and Turkish troops has occurred near Candia. According to the report some Christians were killed and a number wounded.

THE FRENCH MUST GET OUT. London, Sept. 17.-A dispatch to the Morning Post from Cairo says that Gen. The Daily Telegraph's Cairo correspondent says that Gen. Kitchener intends to present an ultimatum demanding that the French expedition under Major Marchand quit Fashoda forthwith.

Official circles in Paris and the public are in no way perturbed by the news from Fashoda. On the contrary they appear to be indifferent. Much greater excitement prevails respecting the Dreyfus affair. A curious story is published to the effect that a passenger steamer, which, while passing Devil's island, approached closely in order to enable the passengers to see the habitation of Capt. Dreyfus, was disagreeably surprised by cannon shots fired from the island. It was learned afterwards that all vessels venturing too near were similarly greeted. TROUBLE IN THE FRENCH CAB-INET.

Paris, Sept. 17.-At a meeting of the cabinet ministers today it was decided to submit the documents in the Drevfus case to a commission to be selected by the minister of justice, M. Sarrien. They proceeded to the quays, cheering the troops, and were with difficulty dispersed by the soldlers of the garison. Afterwards, a crowd of about 1,500 people returned to the quays, and when they saw the soldiers landing barefooted and nearly naked, they became infuriated and surrounded Gen. Toral's house, hooting and hissing and stoning the building. Eventually, the Spanish general suc ceeded in escaping to the Leon XIII. On learning this the mob gathered on the dock and stoned the steamer for half an hour, smashing the cabin windows. Eventually, the Leon XIII. was obliged to leave the place where she

Death of the Rev. Dr. John Hall,

The Eminent Presbyterian Preacher and Author, While Visiting in Ireland.

Belfast, Ireland, Sept. 17 .- The Rev. John Hall, of New York, died this morning at Bangor, county Down. The Rev. John Hall was born in County Armagh, Ireland, on July 31, 1829. He was of Scotch descent. When 13 years of age young Hall entered Belfast College. In 1849 he was licensed to preach, and at once engaged in the labor of a missionary in the west of Ireland. He was installed pastor of the First Presbyterian Church at Armagh in 1852, and in 1858 was called to the Church of Mary's Abbey, now Rutland Square in Dublin.

He received from Queen Victoria the honorary appointment of commissioner of education for Ireland, as he had shown himself to be an earnest friend of popular education.
During the year 1867 Mr. Hall was a delegate from the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Ireland to the Presbyterian Church in the United States, and after his return to Ireland he received a call to the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church in New York. He accepted it and entered upon his labors in November, 1867. A new church edifice was erected for Dr. Hail in 1875, at a cost of about $1,-000,000, on the corner of Fifth avenue and Fifty-Fifth street. Mr. Hall was elected manager of the university in the city of New York in 1882..

Mr. Hall was the author of "Family Prayers for Four Weeks," "Papers for Home Reading," "Familiar Talk to "Questions of the Day," "God's Through Preaching," "Founda-Boys," "Questions of the Da Word Through Preaching," tion Stones for Young Builders," and "A Christian Home: How to Make and How to Maintain It."

Barbadoes suffered mostly from the rain, which destroyed the crops and roads, as it did at St. Lucia and other islands, while the center of the storm swept St. Vincent and Guadaloupe. Details from St. Vincent show that an unparalleled destruction of life and property has taken place there. Out of a population of 41,000, 300 were killed and 20,000 were injured and rendered homeless. Besides this, owing to the complete destruction of the provisions, the people are starving. The island has been absolutely gutted by the wind and floods from the mountains, in addition to the waves along the coast.

The Supply of Water Reduced to Dangerous Limits.

A Street Car Famine Produced by a Strike

The Country Startled by an Epidemic of Railway Outrages-Duke of Connaught Wins Popularity in France -Bismarck's Memoirs-Fuss About a Photo.

London, Sept. 17 .- The drought continues throughout the greater part of Great Britain. A temporary fall in the barometer early in the week raised hopes which were doomed to disappointment. The temperature has again risen, and London continues bathed in sunshine. The outcry in the east end of London, where the supply of water has been reduced to dangerous limits, is taking the form of influential public meetings, which violently denounce the East End Water Company for neglecting to take proper measures to assure a supply of water, and calling for municipal control of the waterworks. In the meantime the sanitary conditions are so bad in some districts that there is serious fear of epidemics. The north of London is also suffering undeserved martyrdom, in the shape of

A STREET CAR FAMINE, due to the strike of hostlers. Many thousands of business people, who rely on cheap conveyance to the city, have been seriously inconvenienced by the stoppage of this traffic, which occurred on Wednesday last. Public sympathy inclines to the company, which has taken the bull by the horns, and has dismissed all the strikers, engaging outsiders to take their places.

RAILWAY OUTRAGES. The whole of Great Britain has been startled by an epidemic of railroad outrages. On the Northwestern and Midland, in the neighborhood of Northampton, there have been several most determined attempts to wreck passenger trains. Formidable obstructions were constructed across the tracks, and one train had a most narrow escape from disaster. It plowed through veritable barricade, but did not leave the rails. The most alarming features of the outrages is the fact that the police have not been able to obtain the slightest clew to the perpetrators, though 100 detectives have been scouring the district. Consequently a panic similar to the Jack the Ripper scare prevails. On theory is that the crime was the work of a band of trainwreckers looking for plunder and emulating the far west holdups.

ING. After passing eight weeks on an invalid's chair, the Prince of Wales this week, for the first time, was able to walk a few paces with the aid of a stick. He traveled to Balmoral from his yacht at Portsmouth. Private letters declare the prince lately has been very irritable at the enforced medical restraint, and that he has even declared that a permanent limp would be a cheap penalty to pay for release from his floating prison. It is added that the attending physicians finally yielded and allowed the prince to journe to Scotland, in order to appease their patient, and also to arrest the strong stimulus which rest and sea air appe tite have given to his increasing stoutness. The prince will apparently continue to wear for many weeks to come the apparatus which has been fitted to

to the French army maneuvers around Molins, which he attended as President Faure's chief guest. He first distinguished himself by a splendid display of horsemanship before the French staff when, a borrowed horse, startled by the firing, tried to bolt, reared and fell. The duke skillfully disengaged himself unhurt.

On the following day, during a halt, he minutely examined a French soldier's knapsack. He had one of them emptied on the ground, weighed the articles and finally took the knapsack, strapped it on his own shoulders, and walked up and down in front of the president and the generals in order to test whether the straps hampered his movements. The spectators were greatly amused, and the private soldiers loudly cheered him.

Yesterday the Duke of Connaught visited the French camp kitchens, and, following the great Napoleon's precedent, he asked to be allowed to taste the soldiers' food, remarking: "I must only take a tiny morsel, as I am robbing somebody's share." He then forked out and ate a piece of beef, which he pronounced to be of excellent quality. The duke also examined the men's overcoats, testing their weight and texture. These incidents have made the Duke of Connaught very popular with the French soldiers and villagers. At the hamlet of Enmond they had a great delight in seeing the thirsty president of the republic and Queen Victoria's last totaled $3,673,617, as against $2,878,- son stop before a little public house and call for and toss off glasses of light beer, while the hurriedly assembled band played "God Save the Queen.

MARCK. The leading newspapers here scathingly review Herr Moritz Busch's life of Prince Bismarck, which was re-cently published. The general opinion is that both the author and his idol suffered greatly by the revelations made. The British, naturally chiefly, resent the late Prince Bismarck's expressions of hostility to Great Britain and the Queen, and to her daughter, the former Empress Frederick of Germany, with which the book teems. The Daily Telegraph says if the work reveals the real Bismarck, he lowered the moral tone of the whole of Europe, adding: "Everyone knew he made unscrupulous use of the press, but according to Herr Busch, he deliberately instructed his hirelings to disseminate absolute falsehood.' The Times remarks: "It was reserved to the sublime unconsciousness of one of his sincerest worshipers to expose all the meanness, duplicity and brutality which he combined with so many brilliant and admirable qualities."

FUSS ABOUT A PHOTOGRAPH. A photograph of the czarina nursing her baby recently appeared in an English newspaper, and when it reached the Russian censor, the latter was a much-puzzled official. He consulted with the minister of the interior, who was equally perplexed, and decided to retrogression. To break the record FISHER AND FOSTER next year is now their aim. I can do," said the Russian Emperor, "is to show this to the czarina and let her decide." In a few minutes, so the story goes, the czar returned and said, with a smile, to the minister of the in-"Her imperial majesty finds nothing in the picture contrary to the law. Let it pass.'

THE EXHIBITS HAVE VANISHED

The Buzz and Bustle of the Big Show Have Ceased.

Close of the Western Fair's Successful Silver Jubilee Celebration.

Another Record-Breaking Attendance for the Final Day-Interesting Races -Canadian Team Record Lowered.

Confusion reigned at the exhibition grounds after 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. With the exception of the ring attractions the fair was then over and, as usual, permission was given the exhibitors by the officials at that hour to remove their goods. Then in every quarter men set about undoing the work of preparation day, and it was done with surprising suddeness. The booths were stripped of their decorations, and the goods bundled into rigs as quickly as the latter could be secured. Empty drays and express wagons poured into the grounds, while loaded ones came out. A steady traffic of heavily-laden wagons was kept up to a late hour on the streets leading from the fair grounds, and this morning the busy scene was all but converted into the peaceful and pretty pine grove known eleven months and three weeks in the year as "Queen's Park." President Gartshore and his fellowdirectors are well pleased, although the tabulated statement of gate receipts has not yet been compiled it is weil known to those who have any experience with the Western Fair that the attendance during the past week exceeded that of any fair ever known in the history of the institution. It must be admitted that the exceedingly favorable weather had a great deal to do with the success, but the management singularly distinguished themselves by the excellent character of the exhibition. There were several striking features of the fair of 1898, aside from the re-cord breaking attendance, and its superiority as an attraction, or rather, multitude of attractions. One was the immunity from accidents and arrests, and another was the happy way in which every department was manag-They could not have run more smoothly

Before the race the record was 2:30, and in the first heat George G. McCormick's team reduced it by 2% seconds, but yesterday Mr. Chamberlain put Walter Medium and mate over the mile in one second better time without a skip. During the entire week not a single case of pocketpicking was reported to the police. Detective Davis, of Toronto; Detective Heenan, of the M. C. R., and Detective Cockburn, of the Grand Trunk, were in the city, and with Detectives Nickle and Rider, kept Notable Exhibits.

GOLD MEDAL OIL DISPLAY. Every housewife knows the misery of trying to use poor oil in the lamps. Every man who has anything to do with machinery knows that a poor quality of lubricating oil is costly stuff to use. Both the housewife and the machinist will always buy the best if they can. The trouble is that if one judges from the rival claims of various refiners, one must come to the conclusion that each of them makes a better oil than the other. One result of the Western Fair has been to simplify this matter a great deal. Expert and impartial judges pronounced the products of the Queen City Oil Company, of Toronto, to be superior to all others, and awarded the exhibit a gold medal. It was a beautiful display, most tastefully arranged, and included all the various brands and grades of oil manufactured by this company. The celebrated "Prime White" and "Water White" Sarnia illuminating oils occupied a deservedly prominent position in the exhibit, and were recognized as familiar friends by thousands of visitors to the fair.

The well-known Capital Cylinder, the Renown Engine and the Atlantic Red brands of lubricating oils-by far the most popular lubricating oils on the Canadian market-were much in evidence. Gasoline and benzine of unexcelled quality were also shown. Thousands of samples of Washing Wax, a new product of the Queen City Oil Company, were given away during the fair. It is an invaluable household

THE FINEST CARRIAGE DISPLAY. Nobody who visited the transportation building failed to be struck with admiration for the magnificent display of carriages made by B. Greer, successor to B. J. Nash & Co. This factory long ago built for itself a great reputation on the broad foundation of uniform excellence, supplemented by energy, enterprise, fair dealing and a determination to give its patrons the best. This reputation has not suffered. but has grown materially, since the business passed into Mr. Greer's hands. All the old high standards have been maintained, and there has been an increase of energy and enterprise more in keeping with the keener competition of these later years. Thus it is that the products of this factory have kept their position of first in the estimation of the people.

SOMETHING ABOUT WALL PAPER In no industry has greater progress been made within the last few years than in the manufacture of wall paper. Even quite young people remember the coarse, uneven texture, the hideous patterns, and the horrible mingling of garish, clashing colors which characterized the wall papers of not long ago. Compare these eye-sores with the large and varied assortment of beautiful wall papers displayed by E. N. Hunt at the fair, designs that are the highest impression of all that is best in art; colors rich, soft and beautiful, and shading into the most delicate tints, and always a perfect harmony of color and design. Few people, however, realize what it costs to purchase these gems of art. Each pattern costs from $100 to $500 before a single print is made from it. Knowing that the public would be interested in the method by which these beautiful results are obtained, Mr. Hunt included in his display one of the rolls from which the patterns are printed. The design is traced on the rolls in brass driven into hardwood. This work is all done by hand.

Mr. Hunt's exhibit was awarded a well-merited diploma of honor. It included handsome window shades and curtain poles and chains. Some of the wall paper shown was the finest made; some was very inexpensive; beautiful and artistic. Mr. Hunt employs workmen who are specialists in paper-hanging. Business is not confined to the city. Contracts are taken in all parts of the country, and workmen sent to fill them. He also makes a specialty of picture framing and artists' materials. His large store at 190 Dundas street is filled with the best goods at the lowest prices.

Ottawa, Sept. 17 .- The degree of interest taken in the plebiscite campaign by the people of Ottawa may be indicated by the statement that the dual attraction of he appearance of Hon. Sidney Fisher, miniser of graculture, and Hon. George E. Foster, on the same platform to delived temperance addresses did not bring together a crowd large enough to fill Harmony Fiall. While it was an audience of respectable dimensions, it lacked in numbers and enthusiasm what might have been expected so near the decisive day of the campaign. The meeting was presided over by Mr. A. W. Fraser, chairman of the local executive.

MR. FISHER.

Mr. Fisher said that he was on the platform as a temperance man and a prohibitionist; he was not present to speak for the goernment of which he was a member. "This is not a party question in any sense or form," the minister said. "The fact that I have here with me tonight my friend, Mr. Foster, is evidence that, although we differ politically, we can combine and join hands upon this great question. I recall the time when, as two young members of parliament, we had the opportunity of moving and seconding a resolution in favor of prohibition." The minister corrected an impression which is prevalent in some parts of Canada that the people of Quebec are intemperate. He said that the Province of Quebec has, a large number of parishes in which there are no licenses than there are townships without licenses in Ontario. Considering the question of revenue and taxation, he said that if the people decide to have prohibition they must be prepared to meet the difficulties that their decision will occasion. There will be new incidents of taxation, and he was not sure but that total abstainers will be called upon to pay more than they contribute present. If so, speaking for himself, and, he believed, for every prohibitionist in the country, he would gladly pay more in taxes. He said that he was not a little surprised upon returning to Canada a few days ago to find that so little interest is being taken in the campaign. "I hope," Mr. Fisher said, "that our people are not going to let this op-portunity go by default, because if they fail at the present time to avail themselves of the opportunity they cannot expect another opportunity for a great many years to come, and this is the only way you can get prohibition in Canada."

MR. FOSTER. Mr. Foster declared that the attitude of every civilized country towards the liquor traffic had been based upon the principle of prohibition. The principle was as old as legislation. "If a majority of you vote for prohibition, all British precedent goes to make it certain that prohibition you shall have." Mr. Foster took the ground that even in the absence of a promise that prohibition would be the sequence of a favorable vote, it was the duty of prohibitionists to come out and vote. They could not afford to do anything else. If they did otherwise, and did not show they would be asked to shut up. up, they would be asked to shut up. Mr. Foster discussed the objection of enforcement and revenue. The country, he said, could not afford to have unenforced prohibition and extra taxes. but the country could afford a thoustand times over to have enforced prohibition and extra taxes.

BASEBALL CANADIAN LEAGUE STANDING.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Hamilton, Sept. 16.-The Hamiltons made Foreman, of London, think he could not pitch at all today. They put up 16 hits for a total of 26 bases. The game was close and exciting, though ragged, up to the seventh. Each side scored one in the first, Hamilton by hitting, and London by Meara's good base-running. Neither scored again till the fourth, when Hamilton got two on an error by Mohler on a chance for a double play, and a two-base hit by London, however, got three, after two men were out, through Keenan interfering with Dean, followcd by costly errors. A base on balls, a hit, a sacrifice and a couple of errors gave Hamilton three in the fifth, and London tied in the sixth, Laroque and Keenan hitting and scoring on a throw by Conwell, the ball hitting Carey, who was running to first. In the seventh Hamilton jumped on Foreman, and eight hits and an error or two in the outfield netted seven runs. The Hamiltons' hitting kept up to the end of the game. Score:

New York, Sept. 17.-Numerous stories have been current recently regard-ing the changed fortunes of Michael D. F. Dwyer, who for years was the king of plungers on the race tracks of this country. JOCKEY TOD SLOANE. James Tod Sloane, who is called the prince of jockeys, has sailed for England, where he will ride for Lord Will-liam Beresford during the coming season. When Sloane went to England last year he was comparatively unknown, and there were few who believed that his peculiar style of riding would win against that which tradition and experience had proved to be the best for English jockeys. Besides, English jockeys trained religiously, and Sloane never trains at all. He says it is the head that wins races. He ate and drank what he liked, and lived in lux-ury at a swell hotel. When he began to win races, three and four a day, the British turf critics experienced a change of heart. Some of the jockeys began to imitate his style, and the Yankee rider was pictured and cartooned and talked about until he was the chief center of interest in English racing. In a short time Tod had the pick of the mounts. His bank account grew and he spent money like a Russian prince. After the racing season he spent weeks at various country places, the guest of noblemen, and made a trip on the continent. He came back to America, the same quiet student of the art of riding he was when he went away, and during the season here he has won 119 out of 260 mounts, and has A.B. R. B.H. P.O. A. Dear Sir—In reply to your inquiry regarding my knowledge of the Dyke Cure for Intemperance, I have to say that it was brought under my notice about a year ago, and I specially interested myself in a number of cases that were treated by it. In some of them the results were remarkable, several parties who were confirmed inebriates becoming entirely changed and remaining till the present time sober and useful citizens. Several other parties treated at the same time I have lost sight of, but do not personally know of a case out of half a dozen in which the treatment was not successful. With best wishes, I remain,

Yours sincerely,

AND CLIMATE

Is Unrivaled for Most Agricultural Purposes.

Prof. J. W. Robertson's Advice to the Farmers-The Cold Storage System.

The soil of Canada is not excelled by that of any land where the people fol-low farming for a living. But fertility of soil alone is not a source or assurance of wealth to the people who live on it. It must be managed by skillful, industrious, economical farmers, with methods adapted to meet the changed and still changing demands of such markets as are accessible.

Canada has a climate admirably adapted for growing very large quantites per acre of such plants as are suitable for the cheap production of cattle products. No country is superior to Canada as a home for cattle, swine, poultry, horses and sheep. The bracing weather of Canadian winters is followed by the warmth and humidity of genial summers, under which crops grow in almost tropical luxuriance. At the same time the cool evenings and mights give to plants a robustness of quality which are not to be found in tropical regions, and also make life for the people comfortable and healthful.

All the world knows that Canadiangrown wheat is the finest for breadmaking that is to be found anywhere. The oats and oatmeal of Canada are unsurpassed in substance and flavor; and the peas, beans and rye are second to none. While the matchless quality of Canadian cereals is acknowledged, the superior character of many other Canadian food products has been over-looked. Wheat, flour, oatmeal and peas are not perishable food products, and have found their way into distant markets in a condition as good, or almost as good, as when they left the granary and the mill. It has been quite otherwise with many other things. Until the cold storage system was introduced, the damaging influence of warm weather on animal products such as butter, eggs, meats, cheese and poultry, was not adequately guarded against. In all the settled districts of Canada lying eastward of the great lakes and westward of the Rocky Mountains, appless of the finest quality in flavor, in substance, in color and in size can be grown; and in areas containing hundreds of square miles, pears, peaches and grapes are grown in large quantities in the open air. where the climate is favorable to the growth of small fruits, such as strawberries, raspberries, currants, gooseberries and many others.

It is thus possible to follow such mixed or diversified farming as will best maintain the fertility of the soil, give employment to a large rural population for the area occupied, and permit the sale of concentrated or relatively high-priced products. It can be profitable in proportion to the wisdom and skill with which the intelligence and energy of the people are applied. PROF. J. W. ROBERTSON.

Church Legislation.

The recent discussion in the Methodist General Conference on the question of "Discipline" is of interest to those outside the pale of the Methodist community, for several reasons, the chief being that the Methodist Church is a large and influential body, which has a great influence on the moral life of the community; and, further, the principle of church life is a matter of concern to all intelligent Christian citizens. Discussion in itself is a good thing, if it does not spring from a captious, critical spirit, but from an honest desire for the truth. Some are very timid in this respect. If you ask inconvenient questions, or provoke discussion, you are "throwing cold water" on a good cause. As a matter of fact, a good cause is like a healthy man; it will not be killed by a little cold water. In these days, every question must be submitted to free and open discussion. The way in which the Methodist Church or any other church trains its young people, and handles social questions, affects the life of the whole community. We observe that in the recent discussions in the conference it was contended by some that the Methodist body was showing a hankering after an increased ecclesiastical regulation of the individual life. This, it is contended by some of the Methodist speakers, looks like an attempt to blend Judaism with Christianity. This is a question of principle. The Christian is not under law, but under grace. What is the Evangelical principle, is it the unfolding of a new life from within, under the influence of a living Sovereign and Guide, or is it the constraint of life from the outside by our ever-increasing number of church rules? This question seems to go the root of the matter. Is such legislation in harmony with the central principle upon which an Evangelical Church is supposed to rest? The question whether it is advisable for the Christian man to use or abstain from particular amusements, is one thing. The question whether he should be told that the church does not permit him to do these things, is another. Does the lowering or the uplifting of the standard depend upon a definite church rule? Is there not such a thing as a spiritual life and spiritual atmosphere? Must the man who contends for the purity of the Evangelical principle, and the freedom of the individual conscience, be treated as if he claimed mere selin the name of liberty?

These questions in their ecclesiastical or theological sides, do not come within the province of a journal of this kind, but as matters which have a strong ethical influence we take note of them. A new generation is growing up. New dangers arise, of which an ancient book of discipline does not take note. Our boys and girls are trained in schools and colleges where Science, Art and Literature exert a living influence, and it is important that their highest life should be quickened, and that they should be taught to rule themselves according to great principles and not rest in petty rules. When they are children, they should be ruled firmly and gently, but as they grow up they should be trained to the duties and principles of manhood. Small casuistry will only warp their life, while the truth will make them free and strong. Hence we are glad to note in the Methodist Conference, as elsewhere, the breath of a vigorous discussion such as is needed to keep sweet and wholesome the life of any social or religious organization,

A Questionable Policy.

The Local Government of New Brunswick proposes to stimulate wheat cultivation in that province by bounties to wheat growers. This would no doubt increase both wheat production and taxes. The principle, however, is unsound. A bounty may be defended as & temporary expedient under peculiar sircumstances, such as invest our iron' industry, for instance; but as a rule the system is to be avoided. Modern experience should be a warning. The government of the European countries where the system obtains in its extremest form would be glad to abolish It, but the bounty-fed interests have become too powerful for them, and continue to bleed the taxpayers at large. The New Brunswick project seems open to the strongest objections. In France, Germany, Russia and Belgium the physical conditions at least are favorable to the production of beet sugar; but the same cannot be said of New Brunswick in respect of wheat, which has proved an uncertain and unprofitable crop in the past. We should not like to reflect on the intelligence of the New Brunswick farmers by imputing the fault to them; the cause apparently lies in the soil and climate, and no bounty can ameliorate these. Under such circumstances even temporary bounties could not be justiaed. A liberal bonus might enlarge the wheat-growing industry, but it would collapse when the artificial etimulus was removed, and the farmers would be worse off than before. If the legislators of New Brunswick wish to promote the agricultural interests they should employ more enlightened methods. It should be possible 17 means of experimental farms and effect.

other scientific processes, such as we have in Ontario, to determine the most profitable lines of production and educate the agricultural community accordingly. The province, in adopting the bounty system, would be merely trying to lift itself by its boot-straps.

Ontario Fruit in Manitoba.

Manitoba has opened a new and promising market for Ontario fruit. Ontario fruit growers and shippers can make it a profitable and permanent one if they study its requirements. Hitherto California fruit has had the call in Manitoba; Ontario did not even cater for it. A few days ago the first consignment of Ontario fruit reached Winnipeg in good condition. The experiment fully justified expectations, and will now be repeated on a larger scale. Our shippers must understand that if they are to seize and hold the market the greatest care must be given to packing. That is one secret of the success of the American fruit. The Winning Free Press reads this lesson to Ontario fruit dealers, who, it says, are probably not alive to the importance of the Manitoba trade. The Free Press adds: "The market in the city of Winnipeg alone reaches $400,000 each season, and at the present time 80 per cent of the fruit consumed in Winnipeg comes from the United States.

Western Ontario fruit has recently found a good market in Montreal, where, thanks to cold storage railway facilities, it is landed in perfect condition in less than 24 hours from the time of shipment. The railway and express companies have paid particular attention to this traffic, and may be relied on to aid in developing the Manitoba fruit trade.

Unknown Neighbors.

Rev. Amory H. Bradford, in a recent number of the Outlook writes on "One of Our Unknown Neighbors," and in this case the unknown neighbor is Canada, he says: "Americans are often immensely amused at the ignorance of foreigners concerning the geography of the United States, but an examination of a few of our inintelligent citizens as to the geography or political constitution of Canada would develop monumental ignorance on a subject much nearer home than the United States is to Spain." He then proceeds in a friendly spirit to give for the benefit of American readers a brief sketch of our country, its peoples and institutions. That is, he gives a short geographical outline of the Dominion, and then pays particular attention to British Columbia. "Those who have crossed the continent by the Canadian Pacific Railway have had a glimpse of its mountains. lakes and rivers. I am familiar with what may be seen from railways in fish indulgence and advocated license | Europe, America and Japan, but nothing that I have elsewhere found com pares for grandeur with what is passed as the train moves through the Rocky Mountains and the Selkirks."

Dr. Bradford after this gives an intelligent review of the Western Province, as to its population, life and resources. The following words seem worth quoting: "One impression which was emphasized again and again in Vancouver, and other towns also, was the fact that the old days of frontier privation are disappearing. The settlements now are chiefly near the railway. Where they go the comforts and luxuries of civilization are sure to follow. The good order of these new cities was a constant and grateful surprise. There were saloons, of course, in abundance, but neither by day nor night was disorder seen nor did vice flaunt itself. To those who remember the wild orgies of other days in our Western towns, or who know of the brazen effrontery with which vice still displays itself in many of our newer cities, the question must arise, Why the difference? I do not attempt to answer."

Binder-Twine.

The Free Press says that the Ottawa Government in taking the duty off binder twine struck a blow at Canadian industry. It admits, however, that the interests of the Canadian maker would have been of less importance in general consideration than the widespread good of agriculture. As binder twine was put on the free list for "the widespread good of agriculture" our contemporary confesses that the intentions of the Government Nothing's so hard but search will find were good. It is not fair to blame the Government because the intention was defeated through circumstances beyond any government's control. The shortage in Manila products, largely due to the war, could not be foreseen. The effects were felt first in the United States, and in consequence of the advanced prices there Canadian factories early this season exported heavily in that country. The Canadian supply in the first place was not large enough, the manufacturers having restricted it because they feared the abolition of the duty would injure their business. The unexpectedly large wheat area sown this year was another cause of the shortage. The price of binder twine rose about double and the farmers of Canada have suffered accordingly, but how could a duty on twine have helped them? It could only add to the burden. We do not think the closing down of the Central Prison plant, due to fire, had any effect on the market. It would have been impossible under the picsent extraordinary circumstances for the price to have been forced down in Canada while it continued so high over the border. The law of demand and supply would have had a leveling

The greater part of our exports to England were cotton, breadstuffs and provisions. Admitting them free of duty is the way England has of protecting its labor and manufactures. In the same time her trade has increased twelve-fold. That is a healthful indication. Beyond doubt, the great Dominion is a business factor worthy of cultivation; not, of course, at the expense of our own markets and our own industrial system, but to the fullest possible extent compatible with the welfare of these latter. If the Quebec conference shall promote such cultivation it will benefit both countries.

An Obsolete Function.

[Goldwin Smith in the Weekly Sun.] The resolution of the Methodists to memorialize the Queen for the abolition of the order of precedence for the clergy in state functions in Canada may by some be regarded as too punctilious; yet jealous fidelity to a principle has always a wholesome effect. There is no denying what the Methodists assert, that a recognition by the crown of clerical precedence posed to the constitutional relations of church and state in this Dominion. It is in fact a survival of that system of church establisment which was overthrown together with unconstitutional government by the revolutionas it should be called, rather than rebellion—of 1837. The clergy of the Episcopal Church can hardly be blamed if the recollection of their former privilege still clings to them and sometimes, though not often, finds expression in a way rather ruffling to the sensitiveness of the clergy of other denominations. But the day of privilege is passed; that of perfect religious equality has come; and it is well that in our social reforms as well as in our laws and constitution we should thoroughly recognize the happy change.

-Brooklyn Life. RAILWAY RATES

To the Pacific Coast Will Be About Doubled.

"Ridiculous Rate-Cutting" on New York Roads.

Mr. W. E. Davis, general passenger agent of the G. T. R., says they are busy getting the tariff into shape, which will be made public soon for the information of the public. A Buffalo dispatch says: The ratecutting war between railroads run-ning east from Buffaio has reached what a prominent ticket agent today called "ridiculous stage." Round trip tickets were today put on sale by th Erie Road, between Buffalo and Rochester at 75 cents. This is a drop of $2 25, and makes the rate one-third of cent a mile. The other roads are expected to meet the cut. The Canadian Pacific has formally notified the trunk lines that the new tariffs restoring rates are in prepara-tion and rates to St. Paul, Minneapolis and Sault Ste. Marie will be the same as the lowest differential rates between Chicago and Minneapolis. Tariffs are also being prepared on rates to the Pacific coast via the Soo line and Port Arthur, which will be the lowest of any differential rate via the American

The railway rates from Toronto to the Pacific coast will be about double what they are now when the rate war is brought to an end. The Grand Trunk Railway has issued a new tariff, withdrawing the tariff issued on Wednesday, and again advancing rates from points in the Eastern States and the Suspension Bridge to the Pacific coast. The new tariff is from stations in Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont and New York to all points on the Pacific coast, including Vancouver, Victoria, New Westminster, Nelson and Rossland. The rate from the Suspension Bridge, N. Y., to Vancouver, Victoria and New Westminster is $72 50 first and $60 second class. Neither the Canadian Pacific nor the Grand Trunk have announced rates from Eastern Canada, but it is probable that the rates from the Suspension Bridge will also apply from Toronto At any rate there will be very little difference between the two rates. Before the rate war started rates from here were $61 80 first and $55 80 second class by the Canadian Pacific, and $73 90 first, and $62 50 second by the Grand Trunk and American lines. Now the Canadian Pacific will charge just what the Grand Trunk and the American competitors are The present cut rates are $35 first and $25 second-class, so that the new rates are slightly more than double, and all travelers will have to pay them after

Mr. Reddy Suffered Intensely for Two Years-His Sleep Was Broken and Unrefreshing-Dodd's Kidney Pills Cured Him.

Toronto, Sept. 16 .- Who has not suffered from Lumbago?

There are very few people who are not tortured by what is commonly called "Backache," "Lame Back," "Pain in the Small of the Back," etc.

These are the everyday names for Lumbago. And Lumbago is a severe form of Chronic Rheumatism, which keeps its victims in perpetual misery. Lumbago attacks the old and the young. The longer you have had it, the worse it is.

Lumbago is caused by the Uric Acid in the blood. Uric Acid is a poison which the kidneys should filter out of the blood, and which should be expelled from the system in the urine. When the kidneys are weak, diseased or overworked, they cannot properly do the duty they are intended to do. Instead of being strained out of the blood, the Uric Acid is left in it, goes through the system, settles in the joints and muscles, and causes Lumbago and Rheumatism.

Lumbago can be cured only by making the Kidneys do their work properly, and filter the Uric Acid out of the

KEEPING PRODUCTS

The Temperature at Which Butter Fruit, Eggs, Etc., Will Hold.

The following is a list of the temperatures at which it seems desirable to hold the different products in their best conditions: Degrees Fahr.

Butter (for long periods)20 Cheese (long periods)36 Tender fruit, such as early apples, pears, peaches, to-matoes (for long periods)....38 to 34

Dressed beef, mutton, pork and poultry32 to 80 Eggs36 to 34 In order to secure the best results from the use of cold storage in warehouses and on board the steamships, it is necessary that the goods be handled in the best possible way when they are removed from the cold storage chamber. During warm weather, the packages should be left unopened for about two days, until the products become gradually warmed up to near the temperature of the surrounding air. If that be not done the cold surface of the products will cause the moisture of the warm air to be condensed on them. In the case of eggs, fruits, and meats, particularly, that will cause them to have an appearance called "sweating" and to become rather un-sightly. The packages should be left closed for at least two days, in a room where the temperature is the same as that of the air in which they are to be handled afterwards. Otherwise moisture from the air will be condensed on the surface of the products and give them a most undesirappearance. The so-called "sweating" of eggs is not an exudation of moisture through the shells of the eggs, but is entirely a condensation of moisture from the air. That applies also to meats which are covered by cloths. The covering should not be removed from the quarters until they have been hung for a short time at the temperature of the atmosphere at which it is to be cut up. A difficulty in the carrying of meats in cold storage has been experienced from their liability to become mouldy on the surface when they were removed from the cold storage room and left in a room at a warm temperature. Experiments are being carried on at the present time to find if such development of mould cannot be prevented in a simple way, which will also improve the appearance of the meat, and in no way affect it injuriously.-Prof. J. W. Robertson.

To the Ontario Loan and Debenture Company-Street Appropriations of United States and one residing at the Board of Works Brought Up-That $1,400 Hospital Plan Account -Other Matters of Interest.

Tenders for the purchase of the $70,000 worth of hospital debentures, bearing interest at 31/2 per cent, and extending over 30 years were opened at the meeting of No. 1 committee last night. The Ontario Loan and Debenture Company's offer was accepted, it being the best. There were seven tenderers. This tender was above par, being $70,847.

There is a slight misunderstanding between City Treasurer Pope and the board of works. The city treasurer submitted a statement showing the committee's appropriation for streets to have been $22,500, while their expense to date amounted to $28,625. Mr. Pope has refused to pay several amounts on this account. Ald. Car-rothers, Belton and Douglass, of the board of works, dropped in and argued that the committee originally asked for $32,000, and $7,500 of sewer debenture money to form a part.

Property owners threaten the city with an action if another pavement is not laid without any expense to them. City Clerk Kingston said the city need fear no action, as the blocks were laid as an experiment in 1881, and that the ratepayers had never been assessed for it. A suggestion was made that the road be paved with cobblestone, which could be done for $200. METHODIST

Methodist Ceneral Conference.

Toronto, Sept. 16.-The first subscription towards the Methodist twentieth century $1,000,000 fund came to hand this morning in the shape of a contribution from H. F. Bland, of Smith's Falls, who forwarded $50 for the $1,-000,000 fund proper, and $100 to the fund in aid of St. James' Church, Montreal. Mr. Bland stated he had been a member of the Methodist Church for 40 years, and was delighted with the $1,-000.000 scheme.

Rev. Dr. Cornish was appointed general conference statistician. Rev. A. B. Chambers, when the report of the superannuation fund came up, moved that every minister should be entitled to superannuation after 40 years' service, if he so desired.

Judge Dean indorsed this proposition. Dr. Griffin opposed it. Joseph Tait said that 50 per cent of the men in the church who were over 60 were as young in heart and mind as they ever had been. Rev. Mr. Nugent said that ministers were entitled to superannuation after 40 years' work in the ministry. In that length of service the minister paid for his own superannuation.

The motion was defeated by a small majority. The clause of the report of the superannuation fund committee recommending that before superannuation clergymen should be examined by a medical man, elicited animated discussion.

Rev. Dr. Dewart thought that such a course would be humiliating to the Methodist Church. Rev. Dr. Griffin took the same view.

He said he could get a medical man to give him any opinion he wanted. Rev. J. M. Campbell advocated the clause as a protection against adven-Mr. Lavelle, M.D., of Montreal, said it was unjust to throw slurs at the medical profession, which had done so much for the Methodist clergy. The clause was passed on a vote.

The next clause recommended that in the case of clergymen leaving the church, only half the amount paid by into the superannuation fund should be refunded.

After some discussion this clause was adopted by a small majority.

At the afternoon session the report of the committee on itinerancy and transfer was presented, and a discussion sprang up on the pastrol term.

Rev. Dr. Willoughby moved that the astoral term be four years, and if three-quarters of the quarterly board should approve, the pastor may serve a fifth year. He said the ministry was ripe for a change, and a lengthened pastorate would allow the minister time for the cultivation of his studies and to do better work for his flock. Rev. J. A. Lanceley approved of four years absolutely as the term.

Rev. Dr. Chambers supported the four-year term. HON. WM. MULOCK ON SENTIMENT

A Brilliant Speech at the British Empire League Banquet.

The Influence of Imperial Penny Postage-The Material as Well as the Sentimental Side.

Toronto, Sept. 16.-Hon. Wm. Mulock, postmaster-general of Canada, made a brilliant speech at the banquet tendered him last night by the British Empire League. In response to the toast of "Our Guest," proposed by Col. Denison, Mr. Mulock dealt with imperial penny postage and said in part: Well, sir, now that it (imper-First Subscription to the 20th ial postage) is an accomplished fact as far as it soes, what will it do for Canada and the empire? Is there any The Superannuation Question and Tenure of Pastorate Discussed by the Canada and the empire? Is there any one in Canada who would, if he could, undo it? (Cries of "No.") Is there anyone in Canada who, if he would, could undo it? (Cries of "No.") Some people say that the postoffice department will lose money by it. Well, suppose it does, what then? Is not the advantage worth the cost? (Hear, hear.) Agreeing with those who consider the freest possible postal communication as one of the most powerful links of empire, we should not, I think, regard the pros and cons of the scheme as articles to be weighed the scales of the apothecary, but be big enough, broad enough, patriotic enough to cheerfully give of our substance if needs be for the advancement of the affairs of empire. We have in Canada today over 500,000 people who were actually born in Great Britain, whilst near four millions of our people are of British descent.

Does it not make for the federation of the empire if unbroken postal correspondence be maintained between our Canadian millions and their relatives and friends in the old land? It is conceded that the letters of friends in the United States to their friends in Europe have proved one of the most powerful factors in attracting immigration to the United States. Is it not reasonable, then, to suppose that the stimulus which cheapened postage will give to the establishment and maintenance of correspondence tween Canada and Great Britain, in manner, aid in diverting to our shores at least a considerable portion of these streams of immigration that heretofore have been allowed to flow into other lands? If the people of the old land are by freer postal arrangements enabled to keep alive their friendships with their relatives and friends in Canada, whenever it is a question with them whither they shall emigrate their decision will be in no doubt. Where their hearts are there will they be also.

(Applause.)

THE INFLUENCE OF SENTIMENT. Sir, in dealing with affairs of state, let us not underestimate the influence of sentiment upon national and indi-vidual action. The mightiest struggles, the greatest movements, had their origin in sentiment, and the human heart, even in the commercial age of today, is as impressionable as in the most chivalrous of bygone ages. Sentiment has given Great Britain her Indian Empire; sentiment has impelled her statesmen to prepare the way for the evangelizing of heathern Africa; high, holy, sacred sentiment swept away slavery from the United States. Sentiment repatriated many Canadian sons in the hours of Canada's danger, and we can never forget the outburst of Canadian enthusiasm when, at the time of the Mason-Slidell affair, our Canadian brothers, who had settled in a foreign land, formed themselves into military organizations and returned to Canada prepared to make every sacrifice in defense of their country. Sir, there are those who would disregard considerations of sentiment in the work of nation-building. To them I would say that there is a something which makes more for human happiness than do even commercial enterprises or commercial successes, a something which, whilst it is amongst the softer threads of life's woven cord, binds men together in bonds stronger than steel. Sentiment enters so largely into the mainsprings and motive. human action that to crush or expel it is to rob life of many of its sweetest joys. Social plants and flowers blossom and produce fruit under its beneficent influence. These same plants without it bring forth but the dried leaves of the barren tree. Patriotism is largely its outgrowth, and religion derives from it much of its vitality. I need not trace its far-reaching tendrils. Like the ivy, it clings closest to the most rugged wall and finds nourish, ment in the humblest home and the most abandoned heart. It is the rain of heaven upon the virtues, and strength to the broken reed. Anything, therefore, that will foster the pure and noble sentiments of a people is one of the worthiest aims of government. Scarcely any power better does than personal communication. Friends cannot always be together, but government may make easy the way of their interchanging views and thoughts. Oceans may divide the nearest and the dearest, but the union of hearts continues unbroken; and governments, appreciating, as they ought, human emotions, human affections, may worthily promote measures for the interchange of thought and messages of love and affection between the separated ones. To bring father and mother into frequent communication with their boy across the sea, to carry the torch of home love and social friendship amongst our kin and friends wherever they may be, to bring about reunions of families and loved ones in new homes, in new lands, these, I submit, are not unworthy objects of government. (Hear, hear.) But, sir, the subject also has its material side. As to the effect of cheaper postage upon commerce I leave it to business men to speak; but perhaps it is safe to assume that one tendency of commerce is to move along the lines of least resistance. If this is a sound view, then it follows that the better facilities for trade and the cheaper the postal rates between Canada and the rest of the empire, the more will trade develop within the em-

STILL BETTER

Weekly Review of the State of Trade.

Canadian Reports Show Still More Activity in Business Channels-Crops Exceed Estimates-The Situation Across the Border.

New York, Sept. 17 .- Bradstreet's review says: Cooler weather in Canada has resulted in improved trade advices. Toronto reports a large movement in drygoods, and lumber in good demand, some of which is expected to go to the United States. Stocks of blankets and underwear are reported limited, and some imports from the States may be expected. Grain prices are above an export besis, hence the movement is small. Montreal reports improved trade, and the jobbing business ahead of former years. Collections are good. Butter and cheese are firm, with the former tending upward.
Trade in the Maritime Provinces is disappointing, and the returns from the fisheries have been poor.

Victoria reports collections prompt, trade prospects good, and the oat crop the largest in years.

Canadian failures for the week numin this week a year ago. R. G. Dun & Co.: Canadian reports this week exhibit more activity, and on the whole a better prospect for the future. Retail trade is more active at John, owing to the annual fair, while wholesale trade continues moderate, and collections are still slow. Business in hardware at Halifax is not brisk, but there is a fair demand in groceries and drygoods, and fish prices are fairly well maintained on account of the small catch. Crops are promising, but collections not very satisfactory.

Most staple lines at Montreal show a satisfactory movement, but boots and shoes are somewhat dull, and consequently leather. Collections are generally good, but money is stiffer. Jobbing trade at Quebec continues very satisfactory in all lines, with increased orders for shoes and good collections. Money is plentiful, with commercial paper readily taken at 6 per cent.

Wholesale trade at Toronto has been less active, but prospects are bright and payments satisfactory. Not much movement of crops is yet reported at Winnipeg, but the yield exceeds estimates. Wholesale trade is steady in all lines, and retail trade fair. Victoria reports only fair wholesale business, with collections about average, but retail trade is satisfactory in drygoods and clothing. The New Westminster fire has been the most important feature in trade at Vancouver. The volume of wholesale trade is about average, with retail rather quiet and collections fair.

IN THE UNITED STATES. Bradstreet's report says: Reports of still further enlarged distribution at most western markets and of slight improvement at eastern centers, where demand has been slower to materialize, enlarged foreign demand for breadstuffs, increased railway earnings, not entirely due to the swelling movement of grain to market, which, indeed, is still behind last year's records: bank clearings increased over last week and over all corresponding weeks except one year ago, when speculation was very active; rather better than expected government crop reports and enlarged exports of American manufactures are all features tending to make the trade situation at present a notable one. The quiet appearance of the iron trade is confined strictly to new business, because mills are still fully provided with orders. The wholesale demand for lumber continues undiminished, in spite of some complaint for retailers. Export trade as a whole continues very satisfactory: Import trade as yet shows no particular expansion. Unfavorable trade features are few, and presented chiefly in the textile manufacturing trades, but here it is hoped that the undeniably large distribution of drygoods this fall will soon be reflected in improved demand. Business failures for the week number 173, against 142 last week, and 169 in this week a year ago.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s review: New York, Sept. 16.—Business is passing well through the difficulties that attend the winding up of a war, which are generally greater than those involved while war is in progress. The rush of orders kept back while war lasted by those who thought it shrewd not to take any chance, has lifted prices a little, and caused a larger demand for the time than can continue; but though it has passed there is ample evidence that the consuming demand is very large. How large can only be judged after some weeks of waiting, but once more it looks as though those who wait longest are likely to pay most. business of the country is expanding. Wheat has come forward much more freely, and the price has advanced 2c. It is supposed that the advance largely due to milling demand coming upon a narrow supply. Exports are large, 3,079,976 bushels, flour included, from Atlantic, and 202,052 bushels, from Pacific ports and two weeks, 5,697,323 bushels from both coasts, against 10,-796,853 bushels last year. Widely different accounts of foreign supplies and demands do not aid the market, but it may be noticed that a large flour contract has been closed at Seattle for Russia, and receipts of wheat for two weeks of September have been 14,663.895 bushels, against 14,697,106 last year. One certainty there is that the foreign demand will be smaller and the American crops larger than last year. slight yielding in corn was due rather to the government report, which is not entirely discredited as crop, than to any change in movement. which has been small compared with last year. The exports for two weeks have been 4,351,331 bushels, against 7,-075,363 last year. Important cotton mills have stopped. Woolen mills represent rather better orders, although much machinery is idle. Stocks are a shade higher, averaging 19c per share for the week, though the speculative

On the 20th of February, 1898, the Swiss people accepted by an overwhelming majority a law referred to them providing for the purchase and operation by the state of the railroads of the country. The action is one of interest and importance to all people everywhere, because it evolves momentous political and financial as well as economical and social considera-

The agitation of the question whether the railroads should be constructed and managed by the state began in Switzerland almost with the beginning of railroad building. The first rail-road, from Basks to Baden (Switzerland), was opened in 1847. A plan for the construction of a system of railroads by the confederation and the cantons concurrently, prepared by the federal council at the suggestion of the national council, was rejected by the national council, which voted in July, 1852, by a large (majority, in favor of construction by private companies, under charters issued by the cantons with the approval of the confedera-This conditt on was not satisfactory to the federall authorities, and a law was passed in 1872 enlarging the powers of the confederation and giving it the controll of the concessions. Leprosy Is Contagious, but Not Here ditary-Curious Infection.

That leprosy is a contagious disease is unanimously admitted by the best authorities; but the exact manner of its contagion is certainly difficult to understand. There are many examples of persons living for years in the most intimate family relations with lepers and remaining uninfected. And often but one member of the family will acquire the disease. On the other hand, the history of the disease in different parts of the world shows that it never originates spontaneously, but that its origin can always be traced to human importation. There are also a very large number of recorded cases where leprosy has resulted from a single contact of an abraded surface with some lesion or secretion of an infected individual. These apparently contradictory facts must be explained on the theory that some peculiar, inherent predisposition, which exists only in a limited number of individuals, is necessary for the development of this strange disease. There is no reason to believe that leprosy is an hereditary disease.—B. Foster, M. D., in "North American Review" for September.

NEW MEXICO DUEL

Colonel Eaton's Exciting Battle With the Hill Boys.

A United States Marshal's Exhibition of Bravery That Was Tinged With Recklessness-The Pathetic End of a Bad Man Who Wanted Blood.

in the early eighties there was probably no worse town on the face of the earth than Socorro, New Mexico, and the duel between Colonel Eaton, then United States deputy marshal, and the Hill boys will always be remembered by the boys who were knocking around the southwest at that time. "Colonel Eaton's shot" was for many years a byword among the boys, Whe were themselves handy with the gun.

The town had reached a state of lawlessness where honest people feared to think for themselves, when Colonel Eaton besame marshal. Eaton was a great, strapping bis show, about middle aged. He was a man of great heart, he didn't know what fear was, his aim was deadly and very shortly after he took hold in Socorro quite a few of the tough boys left town. They knew that the new marshal was more than a match for any of them with "Butch" and Charles Hill, however, refused to be good. They had been raised in the town, they had known Colonel Eaton since they knew any one, and when filled with bad whisky the boys swore loud and long that they would kill Eaton if he bothered them. The Hills were mere boys, but they could shoot like all possessed, and when they one day sent word round to Eaton that he had run the town long enough every one knew what they meant. It didn't take three sheet posters to tall the citizens that there would be a fight when Colonel Eaton and the Hill boys met. It was also conceded that there would be a meeting just as soon as Exton could find where "Butch" and Charlie were loafing.

him did not bother Eaton. There was no duel that day, however. Some one hunted up the Hill boys and got them out of town. About a week later they came back to have it out with Eaton, and they found him waiting. It was a very cold night when Colonel Eaton stepped out of the Plaza drug store, and, hearing shots in the Grand saloon, across the plaza, he started for it. Two of his deputies on the dead run met him.

Such a little thing as two to one against

"Don't go over there, colonel," said one of them. "It's the Hill boys again. They are full of bad whisky and are shooting billiard balls off the table and putting out the lights. They'll kill you! Wait until we get the Winchesters and go with you."

Don't bother about the guns, boys. Leave the Hills to me. We must have it out face to face They were square enough to send me word that they would shoot me on sight. I'm ready for them. Don't you fellows mix in this at all. It's my fight. They'll kill me or I them tonight."

With that the big marshal pushed on toward the big saloon in the corner of the plaza. He smoked his cigar and returned greetings of friends, just the same as though he were not going single handed into a duel against two as clever shots as were ever in the town. He bolted right into the main entrance instead of going round the side to get in the rear of his men. When he came in the Hills were down at the other end of the long hall, full 40 paces. The crowd had lined up along the sides of the building to be out way of any stray bullets. The Hills were throwing up billiard balls and shooting them while in the air. The Hills saw Eaton as quick as he saw them, and together three shining guns were leveled, and the three sided duel began.

Eaton was confused for a fraction of a second by the bright lights and it almost cost him his life. The Hills were both quick as chain lightning and their guns spoke at once. Eaton had a movement in shooting peculiar to himself. He used a downward sweep of his shooting arm in opening the game, and he always let go when he touched the right level. He was just a tenth of a second late here; the Hills had fired first. The crowd saw the heavy marshal stagger as his hat flew from his head, knocked by a bullet which took away some of the bair. They saw his gun fly in the air, knocked from his hand by a bullet which tore through his arm. The gun never touch the floor. Eaton caught it with his left hand and like a flash put two bullets into Charlie Hill. They were no chance shots, Eaton having always prided himself on shooting with both hands.

Charlie had one bullet through the chin and another in the mouth. Eaton didn't wait to see him fall. He turned on "Butch" with that left hand, but the deadly shot was never fired. "Butch" had seen that his brother was hit, and, dropping his gun, had run to him, catching him in his arms. Colonel Eaton, too, was at the side of the dying lad in an instant, and with his good left hand helped "Butch" place him on a billiard table.

Charlie couldn't speak, of course, but "Butch" said he wanted a minister, and man was sent for Rev. ---, who came quickly and staid with the boy until he died. Those who saw the end of Charlie Hill will never forget that scene. Great, sugged men, who perhaps hadn't seen the inside of a church or heard a prayer for years, stood around that billiard table and istened as the minister prayed for his erring Sunday school scholar. Rev. ---, who is now stationed in an Ohio town. was the minister. He had taught both the Hill boys in Sunday school and had labored hard to keep them from going wrong, but they were too wild; they wanted to be bad men; they wanted each to "kill their man." The death of Charlie Hill took all the desire for blood out of 'Butch." When last heard of, he was running a saloon in southern Texas, a law abiding citizen .- Pittsburg Dispatch.

The Correction.

The Bookman tells this story illustrasing the humors of a school examination: "It appears that at an elementary examination in English which was held in a school near New York two sentences were given out to be corrected by the younger scholars. The first sentence was to be conrected as to its subject matter, and the second sentence as to its syntax. These were the sentences:

" 'The hen has three legs.'

" 'Who done it?' "When the papers were handed in, it was found that one of the examinees had apparently regarded the sentences as subtly connected in thought, for his answer was as follows:

'The hen didn't done it; God done

Israel Zangwill, who is now 35 years old, was born in one of the poorest hovels of a Ghetto. All of his chirdhood was passed in the stubblefields. He obtained his education as a boy at the Jews' free school in the east end of London and spent three years of his life as a teacher in that locality. He had a hard struggle to get through school, but he did it, and took prizes on the way. He says he rarely saw the sun in those days, and the dream of his life was to get away from garrets and long back stairs and to live where daybreak came with some sort of regularity. This is pretty much all that is known of his early life, as it is all he has ever cared to tell.

While still at school his scholarship attracted the attention of one of the Rothschilds, who immediately offered him the money with which to make a start in life. But Zangwill rejected the offer with scant thanks-proud and confident that he could make his way in the world without charity. His first employment, therefore, was that of a joke writer tor a society weekly, which brought him his pay in lots of $5. His first book that brought him any money was "Doctor Grimmer," a queer little tale which was short-lived in the popular esteem. His next, which was more fortunate, was "The Master." His finest story, perhaps.

is "The Children of the Ghetto," the first half of which pictures life among the orthodox Jews, and the second half of which conducts them forward to a point at which they begin to mingle with the gentiles. His last book, not quite as powerful as the other, is "The Dreams of the Ghetto." His work, however, is not confined to bookmaking, as he is also an indefatigable writer of short stories and of magazine articles.

Zangwill's ready wit and odd appearance have caused almost as much to be written about his personality as about his writings. In figure he is tall and thin with stooping shoulders. He affects baggy and ill-fitting trousers, and the pockets of the long frock coat he habitually wears are usually stuffed with manuscripts. His face is distinctly Jewish in outline,

LADY NAYLOR-LEYLAND.

An American Girl Who Has Helped

The cable brought the news the other day that women were taking a prominent part in the election contest at Southport, near Liverpool, for the seat recently vacated by the Right Hon. George N. Curzon. Mrs. Curzon, nee Mary Leiter of Chicago, kissed certain of her husband's constituents during the campaign which ended so successfully for him, and now Lady Naylor-Leyland, who was Jennie Chamberlain of Cleveland, is playing the same role. Lord Skelmerdale's wife, an English lady, is also belping her husband to defeat Lord Naylor-Leyland. Lady Naylor-Leyland is said to have the handsomest house in London, excepting only the residences of royalty. Hyde The New Zealand Rabbit in a New Park House, as it is called, is not only of stately appearance but is also a veritable treasure house of art, and its interior magnificence is due in a great part to the father of Sir Herbert Naylor-Leyland, the present owner, who brought together the nucleus of this superb collection some years ago. He also designed the fine building in which it is displayed. Like the question of reducing to three days the time it takes to cross the Atlantic, the increase of the bicycle's speed to a point where the rider can travel as speedily and as safely as on a railroad train is one of the things that seein bound to be attained. It is as surely a coming achievement that awaits us in the future as is the perfecting of the machinery of the ocean greyhound so that the present speed of the marine flyers can be doubled.

In the days when bicycles run at a speed of forty-five miles an hour a clear track will be absolutely necessary, so that with locomotive engine pace will have to come a special track for the wheelmen, a desirable improvement that will be welcomed by all lovers of the wheel. The attainment of the speed named for the bicycle seems to be in the hands of Henri Fournier, who has become known as the king of automobilists in Paris, France. What Fournier does not know about the petroleum tricycle may as well be omitted from the wheelman's education.

At present Fournier, who uses the petroleum tricycle of the Doin-Bouton kind, with a one and a half horse power machine, averages forty kilometers an hour. The machine he uses is comparatively light, easy of manipulation and pewerful. It is fitted with a motor of from one to three horse power, its hill climbing and speed capabilities being gauged thereby. The big and heavy automobile carriages have trouble in mount ing hills, but the lowly and Dutch barn style of tricycle goes puffing right up to the top, and its rider is in nowise affected with fatigue in the task of making the ascent.

Fournier is in deadly earnest in his determination to attain a speed of fortyfive miles an hour. He has made a series of tests with his automobile that show that, given a straight, smooth track and the machine working at forced draught, the express train will find the petroleum tricycle a dangerous rival in the matter of speed. To see Fournier on one of these test trips is a sight never to be forgotten. He flies along with bulging eyes fixed on the ground over which he is flying, hair streaming in the wind and the puffing motor working at such a speed as to make one tremble to think of the fate of the rider should an untoward accident cause a spill. Fournier seems to know no fear when going like the wind on these risky trips. By constant practice he has become an expert in the manipulation of the petroleum tricycle, and will turn a curve while going at the dizzy speed of forty-five miles an hour with all the recklessness of a boy. His performance suggests the grave danger that would accompany trips such as his on a road where similar machines are dashing along. Fournier alone on a level, smooth road, with no one to kill but himself and no machine to smash but his own, is a sight sufficiently thrilling. Multiply the sight by ten, and imagine that number of Fourniers mounted on flying automobile tricycles, and the spec tator cannot help thinking that this would make a novel and sure method of committing suicide.

A BLESSING IN DISGUISE.

Role. A new phase has been given to the rabbit scourge in New Zealand by the success which has attended the experiment of freezing the rabbits and exporting them. says the St. Louis Globe-Demgerat. It would appear that out of what has hitherto been an apparently irremediable curse, an important industry may be developed. One exporter is said to be in the receipt of between 15,000 and 20,000 rabbits per day, and is paying to trappers and in wages between $4,000 and $5,000 per week. He has 24,000 traps out, giving employment to about 500 trappers. His exports of rabbits last year was about 700,000, and this year he will increase it to 1,500,000. The scale on which this enterprising exporter is laying out his plans is further seen in the fact that he works up into boxes, in which the frezen rabbits are shipped, about eight truckloads of timber a week, and he pays over $2,000 a month for freight. It is estimated that this season's exportation of rabbits will run to between 5,000,000 and 6,000,000. This, at the low price of 6 cents per rabbit, will bring in more than $300,000 to the trappers, and the total amount received in the colony, as the proceeds of the rabibt export industry for this season, will be, at a moderate calculation, $700,000.

Royal Amateurs. Amateur photography is becoming more and more fashionable, and even monarchs dabble in the art. The Princess of Wales takes some charming views, but the Empress of Austria has the most interesting collection, composed of over 1,000 studies of the heads of beautiful women and girls she has met in her wanderings over Europe. Many of the types were found in remote parts of the Mediterranean shores, such as Corfu and the Greek isles. In France the camera is even more popular than it is in England and the snapshot is the favorite. Count Primoli, a descendant of Lucien Bonaparte, makes a specialty of kodak views, and wherever he goes-to luncheon, crush or tea-is always ready to snap a pretty or

HARD ON THE EYES.

Glased Paper Is Decidedly Bad for the Sight.

The effect of glazed papers on the eyesight has recently occupied the attention of some German doctors, says the Druggist's Circular. One authority examines the causes of the changes in the general reading and writing habits of the nation, and explains that in the earlier part of the century the old rag papers then in use, both for writing and printing purposes, were mostly of a dull gray or blue color, and were coarse grained, so that thick letters had to be used by writers with quill pens or by printers on their old slow presses. With the introduction of more modern fibres paper received smoother surface, steel pens could be employed, and the printing paper could travel over quicker printing presses.

The fashion for brillant colors and elabcrate type setting has been carried to such a state of perfection that a reflection is often created which could never arise from the former rougher surface. Now, what is the effect upon the reader's eye? In the old books or letters with a mild and soothing light, the surface contrasted easily from the thicker and darker type or writing characters; now the highly glazed surface offers reflections of the light, which, with the more elaborate and thinner type, produces a lot of shades and lights which are most trying to the eye. The paper has often to be turned in various directions to be seen more clearly in order to distinguish the gray (or may be other shades) of the type from the shining white of the paper. This is similar in effect, as to the result of trying to decipher writing in the dusk. An experiment would soon prove this. Take an old edition, say of Shake. speare, and a new magazine on highly glazed paper and compare the sensation in the eye after half an hour's reading. The doctors, therefore, propose that the public inspectors of schools should order the use of sanitary paper for the eyes, by which they mean that a glazed or highly polished surface should be avoided, and the colors chosen should rather be gray or light blue, but no white, and, in fact, no brilliant colors at all. The type should be clear and sim le, and not too thin. The children, whose eyes require protection, and through them the parents, should be taught to demand their favorite books and papers to in printed in the right style, and the exc s of a falsely guided taste should be a sided. It is suggested that a few years of such policy would soon improve the eyesight.

OUCCESS in life is almost impossible for a man with bad breath. Nobody wants to do business with him. Nobody wants to associate with him. He is handicapped everywhere. Offensive breath comes from Catarrh; sometimes from Catarrh of the Stomach, somenes of the head, nose, and throat. It is from Catarrh somewhere, and Catarrh is another name for uncleanness.

Many men understand this, and make every effort to cure it, but it is beyond the reach of ordinary practice.

No self-respecting man can ignore Catarrh. If he has it in any form he makes constant effort to be rid of it. There is something about the manner of life and the climate of Canada that seems to breed diseases of the mucous membrane. science ordinarily doesn't try to cure Catarrh; t "relieves" it; but Dr. Chase has been curing Catarrh for over thirty years, and his name is blessed by thousands who have shaken off the grasp of this insidious disease.

A New Happiness

Nobody else in all the world dreams or even faintly imagines the gladness which comes to a mother as her right in the hour when she first looks on the face of her own little child. After weary months of waiting she at last holds in her arms the child who is her greatest treasure. She has dared and endured much for this little life, and the bond between her and it is closer and stronger than any other on earth. Life of her life, strength of her strength, the baby from the very first belongs to her and to no other.

The first month of the little one's life should be a time of remaining in sanctuary. The mother cannot be too quiet; the necessity of the time is for absolute rest, and she should not re-ceive the visits of friends, nor should any except the nearest relatives be permitted to see her or her little one until the first month has rolled round.

So far as possible, from the very first, the mother will be wise who brings up her little one according to grow faster and will be happier if not fed whenever it cries; if its hours for sleep be respected and its hours for nourishment be adjusted by the clock. This way, too, gives the mother a certain freedom. During the first year her child's life she must regulate her own engagements by its requirements; but if she has a two hours' or three hours' or four hours' limit during which she may be away, then she knows that the baby will not

Buffer by her absence.

By all means, if it is possible, let the mother have some kind, strong wonan to help her in the care of her We hardly realize how much we might be saved in our restless and complex modern life by having a little more service in the home. If it should always be gradual; otherwise unsightly wrinkles will take the place be a question of what one may do or may not, let the economizing fall somewhere else. Do without certain fuxuries, live more simply, have few-er dresses, let baby's clothes be plain, consider where you can avoid expense, but try to have a nurse who can somewhat relieve you in the care which the little one will constantly need.

Baby's father has not ceased to have a claim upon baby's mother because of the arrival of the little heir to the throne; yet it sometimes happens that a young mother is so absorbed in the precious little one who has come to regular features, but must be chosen ther that she in a manner, ceases to be interesting to her husband. The New York slums are an unknown land to most of those who live outside of their borders. Even to the I was myself surprised to see how few men and women who have made a study of East Side conditions there is a perennial crop of surprises. For instance, it appears that the big tenements have distinctive names which are never heard outside of the neighborhood, unless a fire or a crime brings the house into public notice. Not long ago a fire started in a Rivington street house, and, as one result, the fact was disclosed that the local method of referring to the tenement was as "the House of Babies." The janitor furnished statistics, furthermore, fully justified the title. He said that are 49 families in the house and 52 babies in arms. He professed himself utterly unable to estimate the number of children who are able to toddle around, and of those who can take care of themselves and others. Evidently three mothers must each have two children in arms in order to bring the balance out according to the nitor's statistics. This will not surprise East Side visitors. They say

Operations Must Be Carried On the Whole Year

Make Profit - Prof. Robertson's Suggestions.

To make his business profitable the dairyman must carry it on during the whole year. Milk and its products have been as a rule dearer in winter than in summer. A large amount of capital is invested in cows, barns and cheese factory and creamery buildings. It is wasteful policy to permit so much capital to be unproductive during five or six months of the year. In the past it has been not only unproductive but a source of expense. Considerable labor on farms during the winter is absorbed into the unremunerative chores of the farm buildings, unless animals are kept yielding a product, or increasing in value. Cows must be fed during the winter. If a direct revenue can be obtained, the work can be done with more enjoyment, more of it will be undertaken, and more profitable methods will be applied. Other branches of farm management, such as the raising of young stock, the fattening of swine and the keeping of laying hens, will grow out of it. There are few more discouraging and joyless occupations than attending on cows all winter, vithout any revenue from the work. There are hundreds of men who are employed as cheese-makers during the summer months, and who unwillingly are comparatively idle during the winter months. If the capacity and ability which they possess can be applied to making butter during the winter months, so much will be gained. When dairymen obtain a satisfactory revenue from cheese factories during the summer, and get hardly any income during the winter, they can make only very slow progress in bettering their circumstances. The patrons who send most milk to the cheese factories in summer might also send relatively the largest quantity in winter. As a esult of the immediate revenue from butter-making in winter, cows get better care and better feeding. As a consequence, they give more milk the following summer. After winter dairying was begun at the first government dairy stations, the president of the Mount Elgin Dairy Company, who had 30 cows and had milked them during the winter, stated that during the month of May of the following year he obtained 25 per cent more milk from his herd of cows than he had ever obtained in that month in any previous year. Doubtless that was mainly owng to the fact that the cows were kept in a fairly warm stable during the winter months and fed on succulent feed to induce a large flow of milk. Unless cows on the average are made to milk during ten months of the year they are likely to become unprofitable as milkers. It will not do to let the cows become a leisurely class, on holidays for five or six months of the year. The by-products of dairying, in the form of skim-milk and buttermilk, are more valuable for the raising of stock, the feeding of swine and the growing of chickens, during the winter and very early spring months than they are during the summer. The dairymen have not been, and cannot be fully prosperous until they have a a revenue coming in regularly during the whole

A STRANGE CASE

Mr. Jas. Crosgrey, of Port Hope, Tells an Interesting Story.

His Right Leg Swollen to Three Time Its Natural Size-Ulcers Followed and for a Year and a Half Doctors

Treatment Failed to Help Him.

[From the Port Hope Times.]

"It was nearly as large as that telephone pole." These words were used by Mr. Jas. Crosgrey, for eight years resident of Port Hope, Ont. Crosgrey is in the employ of Mr. R. K. Scott, who has a feed store on Walton street, and is well and favorably known in town and vicinity. Less than two years ago Mr. Crosgrey was the recipient of much sympathy on account of a severe affliction which befell him. depriving him of the use of his right leg, and from doing any labor except a few odd days' work. His recovery was wrought so suddenly and completely that the Times considered the matter would be of sufficient interest to its readers to obtain an interview with Mr. Crosgrey. In substance Mr. Crostold the following story of his illness: "In April, 1895, I was laid up for seven weeks with typhoid fever, and after I recovered from the fever my right leg began to swell. was very painful, indeed, and a few weeks it was three times its natural size — nearly as large ats that telephone pole," and he pointed to a stick of timber ten inches in diameter. "Nothing the doctor did gave me any relief, and I consulted another with the same result. I suffered for nearly five months when I noticed that the swelling began to decrease and I became hopeful of recovery. But the improvement only continued for a short time and then the swelling became greater and two big ulcers formed on the inside of the leg above the ankle. These ulcers were right through to the bone and you could put that much into them," and Mr. Crosgrey indicated on his thumb an object an inch in length. "For the next year and a half I was treated by four or five doctors but my leg and the ulcers were as bad as ever. The doctors pronounced the disease phlebitis or inflammation of the veins. They didn't seem to know what to do for me, however, and I despaired of getting well." Mr. Crosgrey's relief came in a strange manner, almost by chance one might say. He tells of it this way "I had a relative living near Teeswater, named William Baptist. heard of my condition and sent word to me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. His reason for recommending them, he stated, was because they had cured him of serious trouble in both legs, when all else had failed. I decided to try them and in less than five weeks the ulcers were completely healed, and the swelling in my legs disappeared. The ulcers never returned and my leg is just about as sound as the other one. I know that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills alone cured me when doc-tors and all others medicines failed endure and I am willing that the details of my illness and cure be made known. Crosgrey, who is 41 years of age, is now at work every day. The nature of his work, that of lifting heavy bags of flour and feed, is proof of his complete recovery. He is a life-long friend of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and never lets an opportunity peaking a good word for them. The above statement was sworn to

OUR SHORT STORY

said Mr. Teakwood reflectively lots of it left over, an' ye can fin' it as he shaved a keener edge on the wooden sword he was making, and

Old man Bolivar tilted his chair back at a more reassuring angle, and clasped his hands about his knees in an easy attitude for listening. George Smith ceased the soft drawl which he had been droning into the ears of the storekeeper, and Pendarvis brought in his buggy-cushions and made himself comfortable on the cracker-box. But even these very obvious preparations did not awaken the story-telling mood as they should have done. A broad shaft of light from the large lamp suspended in the center of the store streamed across the road and lost it-self in the undergrowth beyond.

"Well, what about ole man Free-man?" asked George Smith at last in an exasperated way, and "ole 'man Bolivar" surreptitiously removed one of his large shoes and shook out of it

It's a nowarful rity at seems to me It's a powerful pity, it seems to me, that a man can't have but one chance to raise his children' an' if they don't pan out right that time there ain't no more show for him. When they're raised, they're raised, an' done with. If they was any rules for raisin' 'em now, like two tums two is four, it would be diff'rent, but it ain't that way, not by a long shot. The most of us is experimentin' anyhow, like tryin' to raise a cotton crop. Oncet in a while it comes through all right; but sometimes they's too much rain an' the cotton all runs to weed; an' then again they ain't no rain at all an' a bumble-bee could stand on the groun' on his his hind legs an' pick the cotton outen the top bolls. An' I reckon it was a mighty bad year when ole man Freeman's boys begin to grow

"They ain't one o' them seven boys that's worth killin' today, an' the ole man's workin' harder today than he did twenty-five year ago. But I reckon he thought Jim was goin' to be somethin'. 'An' nerve's what gits there, when It comes to politics," said George Smith gloomily, with an irritable memory of the last disastrous campaign, in which he had "run" for the position of over-

The story is told of a young married woman, who asked another young married woman how she managed to get along so amicably with her husband. The answer was, "I feed the brute—his stomach with food and his mind with flattery." Even a man will have to admit that this young wo man had solved about two-thirds of the art of making the average man happy. The other third consists of keeping his body in such condition that he will enjoy his food and his mind in such condition that he will be susceptible to flattery. It isn't much use to put tempting food before a man who hasn't an appetite. It doesn't pay to lavish smiles on a man whose nerves are racked

The average man pays very little attention to his health, and won't take medicine of his own accord until he is flat on his back. A shrewd wife will keep an eye on her husbend's welfare in this respect, and when she sees that he is bilious or suffering from indigestion, or is generally out of sorts, will see that he resorts to that most wonderful of all invigorators, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It is the best of all appetite sharpeners, blood makers and fiesh-builders. It corrects all disorders of the digestion and makes the liver active and the blood pure. It tones the nerves and cures all cases of nervous exhaustion and prostration. It cures 98 per cent. of all uses of consumption, bronchial, throat and kindred ailments. Medicine dealers sell it. Mrs. Rebecca P. Gardner, of Grafton, York Co., Va., writes: "I was so sick with dyspepsla that I could not eat anything for over four months. I thought I was going to die. I weighed only 80 pounds. I took two bottles of the 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I am now as well as ever and weigh 125 pounds."

"It 'pears like I come to know all about this Freeman business kinder accidental like. You see, 'long middlin' airly las' spring I got ole Nance one day an' rode over to old Freeman's for to borrer his harrer. I was a-gittin' my garden ready, an' it was that grassy it was plum boun' for to be harrered. When I got over there, Squire Diggs an' some more men was jes' ridin' away, an' the ole man met me in the gal'ry lookin' like he'd been a-cryin', an' says he: 'I'm a-fixin for a change, Lije,' says he. 'Jim's a-goin' to git married Sunday, an' me an' the ole woman is jes' deeded him the place, an' him an' his wife is a-goin' to take keer of us the balance of our days. don't know how happy it makes me feel. I'm a goin' to have me a big cheer an' set out here in the gal'ry, where I kin watch the cows goin' to paster, an' Jim plowin' in the fur field, an' where the old woman can listen to Jim's wife potterin' 'round the house, you know, an' I kin kinder oversee an' tell him how to do things, for Jim don't know so pesky much about farmin'.

"'You better hol' on to that deed till you die,' said I in a warnin' voice, 'an' let the takin' keer come first; an' bless gracious the ole man was so mad he came mighty nigh not lettin' me have the harrer.
"Well, shore enough, Jim he married, an' brung his wife home, an' got his deed safe an' soun', and for a good while ever'thin' was as nice as pie. Jim's wife couldn't do enough for 'pa' an' 'ma,' an' you'd 'a' thought they was all a-slidin' down hill with all the wheels greased, things went so easy. Ever time I passed there the ole man and ole woman 'ud be settin' up in the gal'ry in two big cheers, lookin' like they owned the earth an' a good-sized chunk of the moon. The ole man used to snicker when he sen me comin', an' say, 'Well, Lije, I'm a-havin' a middlin' good time, ye see.'

"'Stid o' fadin' away an' dyin' as anybody'd 'a' thought they'd 'a' done, the ole man an' the ole woman begin to pearten up an' git fat. When I went over there along in June for to take the harrer home, the ole man said he believed he was good for fifteen more years yet. Jim an' his wife heerd it, an' twan't long after that before Jim's wife begin to fix for settlin' the old folkses' hash. She got awful mad be-cause the ole man chawed terbaccer, an' she jest' couldn't stan' it nohow; an' she couldn't eat at the table with neither of 'em because they e't with their knives, an' she made 'em move into one o' them back shed rooms, because their snorin' disturbed her; an' when about a month ago the ole woman got sick, she jes' ripped up an' she snorted, Jim's wife did, an' said they'd better hunt some other quarters, for she was plum tired o' waitin' on em. "When the ole man heerd that, he natchally chimed in, an' twan'n't long before she was a-screamin' and goin' into highstrikes, an' sayin' that she was insulted in her own house, an' other things like that. Jim, he heerd the row, an' he come a-tarin' in an' says, 'Dad, I can't stand this no longer. You 'n' ma'll hafter git out.' Awful backswoodsy feller, Jim was. Always seemed like he couldn't take no polish.

"'Git out! We'll hafter git out, will we?' yells the ole man; an' before you ould morn'n wink he jumps onto Jim an' throws 'im down, an' recht ap along the wall for the waggin' whip that was hangin' up under the gun, 'lowin' to use the handle on Jim. The whip was outen reach, but he grabbed the tongs that was hangin' up at the end o' the chimbley board, an' he give that boy such a larrupin' with them tongs as ain't never been heerd on in this part of the moral heritage. teat Jim, the ole man did, till he promised to deed the place back, an' then he set on 'im an' held 'im down while one o' the hands went for Squire Diggs an' some witnesses, an' one of em was me. The minute the deed was made the ole man says to Jim, 'Now, bring the waggin' 'oun', an' be quick about it, too, for you're goin' to light out tonight. The ole woman an' ne's gittin' middlin' anxious to have the place to ourselves. Step lively now,'

"An' Jim, he moved into that cabin on the Hi Watters' place. "It pears to me like it was all the fault of Jim's wife," said old man Bolivar reflectively. "If a man once begins to allow his wife to boss, there ain't no help for him after that. Jim never had no sperrit, nohow."

"That's the way it strikes me," replied Mr. Teakwood meditatively. These things is got to be done right in the first place, or you might as well let 'em alone. Women's queer critters, the best you can do with 'em, an' if you oncet let 'em git the upper hand they're a-goin' to keep it, you hear me. If it had 'a' been me that married that wife o' Jim's, I would 'a' stood up before her the very first day, an' says I, 'Now, Vangyleen,' I'd 'a' said, willin' to be accommodatin' on all occasions, but when I set my foot down, it's sot, an' it ain't no use to try to make me go any other way. I'm the head of thissher fam'ly, you kin depend on that. An' oncet they's a understanding they won't be no trouble."

Into the silence that fell as the soft drawl ceased, came the cry of the whippoorwill, sent back in softer echoes from the distant hills. Then a head was thrust into sight at the doorway, its sunburned countenance all one wide grin, and the boy accompanying the head suggested, as he came into full

"Pa, they was a-lookin' fer you up at the house."

"Is that so?" cried the stern disciplinarian, rising with such celerity that he stepped on the cat. "I reckon I'd better be a-goin'. I'd 'a' gone before now if I'd 'a' knowed that Ellen was a-lookin' for me."

"I reckon I'd better be goin', too," said old man Bolivar, glancing apprehensively along the shadowy road. "I didn't let 'Mandy know where I was a-comin', and she might be uneasy." And a flood of musical laughter swept through the pines, and sent the trumpet flowers down in a crimson drift at

GILBERT'S HUMOR.

W. S. Gilbert does not retain all of his humor for use in his librettos. In the early days of his success, when Gilbert and Sullivan were considered by managers as the "sure win-ners" in the comic opera field, a young woman who was a member of one of the "Pinafore" companies, wrote to Gilbert telling him of her approaching marriage with a young man of good position and family.

Gilbert congratulated the young woman and expressed the hope that her future might be prosperous and happy. Only a little more than a month passed and another letter from the same girl reached him, in which she stated that her engagement with the young man had been broken, and that she had accepted another suitor. He replied that he had every confidence in her judgment, and again ex-

It was almost two months after that that Gilbert received a third letter from the same girl, who informed him that young Lord—had proposed and that she had accepted him, after breaking her engagement with No. 2.

Gilbert's humor could no longer withstand the temptation, and he wrote: "I desire to congratulate you on your approaching marriage with"— Here he placed an asterisk, and in a foot-

Traveled Extensively Throughout the Provinces - Interesting Statements Concerning His Experience.

STELLARTON, N.S .- James R. Murray, well known violinist, of this place, who has traveled extensively throughout the Provinces, makes this statement:

"I was running down in health and my weight fell off from 175 to 150 pounds. Prescriptions did me but little good. My grouble was called nervous dyspepsia. I pesorted to Hood's Sarsaparilla and after taking five bottles I was greatly benefited. I feel as well now as ever in my life, and have increased in flesh so that I now weigh 177 pounds. I am well known in this part of the country, having followed my profession, that of a violin musician for the last 26 years. I gladly tell my friends what Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for me. Before I began taking the medieine I did not have any ambition, but now all is changed and my dyspeptic trouble perfectly cured." JAMES R. MURRAY.

N. B. If you decide to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, do not be induced to buy any substitute. Be sure to get Hood's.

Hood's Pills are the only pills to take with Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Wheat, spring, per bu66c to 671/2c
Oats, per bu24c to 26c
Peas, per bu48c to 51c
Barley, per bu36c to 381/20

There was a good attendance at today's session. Grain changes consisted in lower values for oats and wheat. Barley and peas were firm.

Eggs and butter sold at the same price as on Thursday. Meats were quiet and unchanged.

The principal features in the fruit market were higher prices for peaches; grapes and plums were steady; melons, apples and pears sold slow, the supply being very heavy. Vegetables were quiet, the only alteration in price being in potatoes, for which the top price was 90c. Young pigs sold slow.

Hay was dull. Quotations: GRAIN

PERTH, Ont., Sept. 16.-There was a very fair business done at the cheese market today; there were 1,975 boxes of white cheese offered, of which 700 were sold to Warrington. Live Stock Markets. TORONTO, Sept. 16.-In contrast to last Tuesday's market there was an extraordinary heavy run of stock at the western cattle yards today; about 86 carloads were delivered yesterday; of these about 50 loads were left over for today's market; today's deliveries amounted to 90 loads, which altogether made an unusual supply; the result was a tendency for prices to decrease from Tuesday's mark, though prices for the best stock were well maintained. Prices were: Butchers' cattle, slow demand, $3 25 to $3 75; butchers, choice, as high as $4 25; stockers, $3 25 to $3 60; heavy stockers, up to $3.80 and $3.90; exporters, good demand, $4 to $4.40; very choice, $4 60; export bulls, $3 50 to $4; good milch cows, from $30 to $50. There were 1,400 sheep delivered; lambs fetched from $4 to $4 50; shipping sheep, $3 50 to $3 75. There was a big delivery of hogs-3,350; prices ranged from $4.25 for heavy fat hogs, to $4.75 for choice light selections.

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.-Beeves--Receipts, 1,824; 29 cars on sale; active and steady; 1 car unsold; native steers, $4 90 to $5 40; oxen and stags, $2 90 to $4 25; bulls, $3 05 to $3 75; cows, $2 to $4.05; cables slow; live cattle, 10% c to 11½c; tops, 11¾c; exports none. Calves Receipts—458; market slow; veals, $5 to $8 37½; bobs, $4 to $4 50; grassers and buttermilks, $3 50 to $4 50; 4 cars of westerns unsold. Sheep and lambs -Receipts, 4,756; sheep steady; choice lambs steady; others 10c to 25c lower; cars unsold; sheep, $3 to $4 75; lambs, $5 to $6 40; 1 car. $6 50; culls. $4 to $4 75. Hogs—Receipts, 2,657; half a car on sale; market lower, at $415 to $450. CHICAGO, Sept. 16.—Cattle—Choice steers, $5 35 to $5 75; medium, $4 80 to $5; beef steers, $4 10 to $4 75; stockers and feeders, $3 to $4 60; bulls, $3 25 to $4 25; cows and helfers, $3 50 to $4 25; $4 25; cows and heifers, $3 50 to $4 25; calves. $3 to $7 55; western rangers, $2 75 to $4 40; fed western steers. $4 10 to $5 40; Texans, $3 25 to $5 15. Hogs—Fair to choice, $3 85 to $4 021/2; packing lots. $3 50 to $3 821/2; butchers, $3 60 to $4 05; mixed, $3 60 to $4; light, $3 65 to $4; pigs, $2 90 to $3 85. Common to

$3 60 to $4 25; feeders, $3 90 to $4 12½; inferior to choice lambs, $3 35 to $6 25; western range lambs, $4 90 to $5 25. Receipts—Cattle, 2,000; hogs, 26,000; sheep, 7,000. EAST BUFFALO, Sept. 16.—There was one load of sale cattle, which were sold at strong Monday prices. Calves were in light supply, active demand and higher; choice to extra were quot-able at $7.75 to $8; good to choice, $7.25 to $7.75; the outside figure was more readily obtainable than yesterday, when only a few sold at $8. Sheep and lamber. The effective sold at $1. lambs—The offerings were too liberal for the demand, and generally ruled lower, except sheep, which were firm, being in proportionately light supply; the total offerings were 40 loads, in-cluding 10 loads left over, the latter fact having the usual depressing effect on prices; lambs sold principally on the basis of $5.50 to $5.75, with a few sales of fancy selected at $6, but in the latter case it was usually small bunches; choice to extra, $4 50 to $4 75; good to choice, $4 25 to $4 50; common to fair, $3 to $3 50; there were several loads left over at the close. Hogs-The total offerings were 50 loads; although the demand was active, prices were again lower; it was a one-spot market, medium, heavy and Yorkers selling generally at $4 20 for corn-fed and grassy at $4 15 generally, with a few sales at $4 10 to $4 12½; plgs, $4; roughs, $3 50 to $3 70; stags, $2 50 to $3 25; there was a fair clearance at the prices, with a steady close on all but pigs and heavy hogs, which a little more than filled the demand.

RICH STRIKE

Great Vein Opened in the Jumbo Mine.

Trying to Keep It a Secret-The Men Paid Off.

Rossland, B.C., Sept. 17.-What is unaoubtedly the richest strike ever made in this camp occurred in the Jumbo mine this afternoon. For some days the management has been expecting to cut the ore chute with the lower tunnel, which is now in some 700 feet. When the day shift fired at noon they broke into two feet of quartz glistening with tellurides, which will run up in the thousands of dollars to the ton. Manager Galusha was in Rossland to watch developments, and went out to the mine at two o'clock. As soon as he sized up the situation the men were paid off and the mine closed down. Every effort has been made to keep the news quiet, but it is certain that the facts will be generallly known within a day or two, and a wild scramble for stock will ensue.

The bulk of the stock is held by J. A. Finch, the millionaire mining operator of Spokane, though large blocks are held by Manager Galusha and the New York capitalists who financed Corbin's British Columbia railways. The immense amount of work which has had to be done, and the long time consumed in doing it, as the mine was not equipped with machinery, have is certain to be a dollar as soon as news of the strike becomes known, and may go much higher.

"ALONE IN GREATER NEW YORK.

Last night another great crowd filled the Grand Opera House. It is gratifying to Manager Roote to see that the show is received with such marked favor and that it has won such pronounced success. "Alone in Greater New York" pleases the crowds. This evening's performance will end the force. engagement.

MARKS BROTHERS NEXT WEEK. Marks Brothers have decided to remain in London for three nights next week, closing on Wednesday evening. They have had a most successful two weeks' business, and will doubtless keep up the large attendance for the three nights of the extended engagement. Last night another full house witnessed the play of "Esmeralda.' The prices remain the same. Tonight they play "A Hot Time."

HOLLIS STOCK COMPANY. At the Grand Opera House on Monday, Sept. 19, the Hollis Stock Company will commence their week's engagement here, with a production of the famous society comedy-drama "Forget-Me-Not." Judging from the press reports of Ottawa and Hamilton, where this company has played a six and two weeks' engagement respectively, no better attraction of this class has ever visited Canada. The star of the company is the southern actress, Miss Lorraine Hollis, whom the American press appear to be unable sufficiently praise. With a record as leading member of such companies as Augustin Daly, William H. Crane and the late William Terriss, with seven years' experience at the head of her own companies, Miss Hollis comes amply recommended as a versatile actress of the highest merit, equally fascinating in refined comedy and emotional drama. Added to her histrionic talents, Miss Hollis possesses a strikingly beautiful and expressive face, magnificent physique, a clear, musical, contralto voice, and a graceful carriage, altogether making a composite stage picture of lovely womanhood difficult to describe, impossible to forget. A carefully selected company of unusual talent renders excellent support to Miss Hollis, who will follow 'Forget-Me-Not" with productions of the society melodrama, "The Tigress," and the ever-favorite play "Camille." Special arrangements have been made to play this attraction at popular

RIVALS A MIRACLE.

Mr. George C. Chalker's Terrible Sufferings Cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Howsey's Rapids, Sept. 12.-Mr. Geo. C. Chalker, of this place, tells a remarkable story of restoration to sound health that rivals the far-famed St. Anne de Beaupre cures.

Briefly, Mr. Chalker's story is as fol-"I suffered horribly for years from Kidney Disease. I could do no heavy work. My pain was almost un-endurable. No remedy did me the least good till I started to use Dodd's Kidney Pills. Six boxes of this wonderful medicine have cured me completely-made a new man of me. I cannot speak highly enough of them. I can state with the utmost confidence that Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure the very worst cases of Kidney Disease.

French Cabinet Council Disagree on the Dreyfus Matter.

The Minister of War Hands in His Resignation.

Viennese View the Remains of the Late Empress-Rev. Dr. Hall's Death-Notes.

Vienna, Sept. 17.—Emperor Francis Joseph, at 9 o'clock this morning, re-ceived the special representatives of foreign sovereigns. An hour later he received the visit from the sovereigns, with the exception of the King of Saxony, whom he personally greeted at the railroad station. The inhabitants of this city are streaming in dense crowds towards the chapel of the Hofburg, and are defiling in az unending stream before the casket containing the remains of the late empress. DR. HALL'S DEATH.

Belfast, Sept. 17.-Dr. Hall was on his annual visit to Europe. He died at his sister's residence. His health has been broken down, and he had been seriously ill for two days before his death. He had hoped to return to New York, and had already engaged a pas-sage on a steamer for himself and THE DREYFUS PROBLEM

Paris, Sept. 17.—The council met at the Elysee Palace at 9:3 0a.m., President Faure presiding. According to a semi-official note the minister of justice said that after having examined the papers he felt unable to decide upon the question of the proposed revision of the Dreyfus case until he had taken the opinion of a special commission of the ministry of justice. The cabinet, therefore, authorized the minister to summon a commission for this purpose.

RESIGNATION OF THE FRENCH MINISTER OF WAR.

Paris, Sept. 17.—General Zurlinden has sent his written resignation to Pre-mier Brisson, as follows: "I have the honor to beg you to receive my resignation as minister of war. An exhaustive study of the papers in the Dreyfus case has convinced me too fully of his guilt for me to accept, as the head of the army, any other solu-tion than that of the maintenance of judgment in its entirety.'

As he was leaving the Elysee Palace after the cabinet meeting, a large crowd of people cheered the premier, M. Brisson, with cries of "Vive la Revision," apparently showing that popular feeling was changing in favor of a reopening of the Dreyfus case. ROYAL REMAINS.

Vienna, Sept. 17.-The casket containing the remains of the late Empress of Austria was viewed by the public yesterday. Upon it were four wreaths sent by the children and grandchildren of the deceased, while many floral offerings were on the walls of the chapel. At the head of the casket were the imperial crown, the coronet of an archduchess, and the jeweled order of the late empress. go, and of late the stock has been going black fan and a pair of white gloves. Guardsmen were stationed at each begging at 30 to 40 cents per share. It corner of the catafalque.

After the blessing of the remains, Emperor Francis Joseph knel: down and repeatedly kissed the coffin. Up-on arriving at the Hofburg Chapel on Thursday night, his majesty became almost unconscious from the intensity of his emotion. Many of those present wept with sympathy. CABLE NOTES.

A RELIC OF BARBARISM

Will Soon Be Abolished by a Wonder ful New Invention.

For the first time in the history of the Western Fair, a diploma of honor has been given for a new article. The merit of the Odorless Crematory Closet was so great the directors decided to disregard precedent, and pay a richly deserved tribute.

There is no better proof of this fact than the exhibit made by the Odorless Crematory Closet and General Heating Company, of Hamilton. It attracted the attention of every visitor to the fair. Medical men who saw it were particularly interested. They realize that the filthy, primitive, unsanitary, uncomfortable, outdoor arrangement is a most prolific cause of disease death in every community. And they matory closet will soon wipe this blot saw with delight that the odorless creoff our civilization. The closet is handsome in design and beautifully finished. It is adapted to private residences, public buildings, hotels and school buildings. In villages and towns where there is no sewerage it is in-dispensable. The closet is perfectly sanitary and absolutely odorless. It requires no disinfectant. Wm. Wyatt & Son are the local representatives for the Odorless Crematory Closet and General Heating Company, and will be pleased to have you call at the store, 385 Richmond street, and examine the new invention.

People are proud of the wonderful advance of civilization in these lat-ter days, and of the conveniences science and invention have provided for their use. They are proud of the age in which they live. And they are right These days are better than the former They will also furnish you with the strongest references, including the names of many prominent men throughout Ontario who have these closets in their houses.

Quarter.

The term "quarter," used in warfare, originated from an agreement anciently made between the Dutch and Spaniards, that the ransom of a soldier taken in action should be a quarter of his pay. Probably it meant to "grant conditions." In this sense the expression was commonly used at one time. As a modern warlike term, to give quarter means that the prisoners of war should be sent to the rear of the army and there lodged and fed by the captors until exchanged or released on the termination of hostilities. - Brooklyn

Klondikers Bring Back $50,000 to $200,000.

A Michigan Man Carries $120,000 in His Pocket.

Port Townsend, Sept. 17 .- The steamer City of Seattle, from Skaguay with 150 Klondikers, who left Dawson on Sept. 2, has arrived here. The amount of gold brought out is estimated from $50,000 to $200,000.

The recently organized miner association held its first meeting on Aug. 27, and drafted a letter to Sir Wilfrid Laurier, appealing to him for the appointment of a commission to inquire into the matter of how Gold Commissioner Fawcett has conducted his office, at the same time making specific

St. Joseph, Mich., Sept. 17.-Frank Phiscator, the Klondike gold king, arrived here from the Klondike on his second voyage yesterday. Phiscator, though only two years ago an un-known and humble resident of Baroda, is now a man of national reputation. Last year, about this time, Mr. Phiscator, after discovering three valuable claims in the Klondike, returned to this city and sold claims to a London syndicate for half a million. He returned to the gold fields near Dawson City last February, and discovered three more valuable claims, from which he has taken $120,000. He said the health of the gold-seekers in and about Dawson City is excellent. He said that starvation was unknown among the natives, as well as gold-seekers, as food had become quite plentiful in the past year. The fever from which many were suffering in the Klondike in 1897 is greatly reduced, as the water which collected poison while passing through the moss on the mountains is not be-

Political Points.

It is stated that the bye-election for the legislature in South Ontario, where Mr. Calder was unseated the other day, will be held during the latter part of October.

Hon. Col. Baker, ex-minister of education and mines and provincial secretary in the late Turner Government of British Columbia, thinks that at the next meeting of the house there will be a deadlock and that then the present government will appeal to the people, and the elections will be fought out on federal party lines.

Everybody Missed It.

Almost every visitor at the Western Fair missed the exhibit of Blue Ribbon Tea, which caused so much favorable comment last year. It was, however, no fault of the Blue Ribbon Tea Company, as they applied for space in the main building, and had made considerable preparations, when they were informed that there were no vacant spaces left. The crowds that visited the fair were reminded of this superior tea by the large and beautiful sign at the corner of Dundas and Rectory streets. Tea drinkers who did not have a chance to sample the Blue Ribbon brand should buy a package at their grocer's. The superior flavor of this tea is making new and lasting friends

-A sensational incident occurred last night on Talbot street. A married man was walking with a woman arm-in-arm when the former's wife appeared on the scene, and waded into the couple in a very informal fashion. She grabbed the other woman's sailor hat, and threw it down, and then pummeled both her husband and his companion until they were glad to escape in different directions.

-Mrs. Edwards, who lives on the Hamilton road, near Nilestown, left her horse standing on Burwell street, near Dundas street, today while she entered a residence. A lady friend from St. Mary's remained in the buggy. The horse ran away and threw the lady out, injuring her painfully The harness and buggy were badly damaged and the horse was wounded by running against a telegraph pole.

After a holiday trip of two months, J. D. Dewar, of Lobo, accompanied by his wife, has returned from Rossland, looking as if the visit did them a world of good. Mr. Dewar toured the country all around the famous mining center, and is greatly impressed with the fact that farmers have a better chance of becoming rich than those hunting for gold. The country is in a most prosperous condition, the crops being excellent this year. He considers Rossland a splendid place for a man of moderate means to engage in profitable farming.

IN A MUDDLE

The City Council Likely to Have a Big Overdraft.

The Board of Works Spent Too Much-Talk of an Extra Assessment.

"Ah, tis a dream," is the most popular air among the city fathers at present. The members of No. 2 committee started the refrain when they began to realize that they were counting on money for genuine improvements which they cannot so expend. The finfore United States Commissioner E. | ance committee joined in the chorus when they realized that their appropriations made when the rate was struck were not at all equal to the requirements. No. 3 committee will pick up the tune when they come to cut off proposed expenditures and other-wise plan to scrape and save so that the board of works may be helped out of the hole. It is a rude awakening all round.

One course which may be adopted now that the financiers have run the length of their tether is to have a special assessment. It has been done in other municipalities in the past, but it is a costly method of getting over the difficulty, and has never before been adopted in London. It is to be hoped this expensive measure may not have to be taken. It will not be, if in the round-up of the moneys expended in the different departments, it is found that the total can be redistributed so that all demands can be met. A statement of the financial position of the committees has been prepared by the city treasurer, but Ald. Winnett, chairman of the finance committee, declines to let the press have it. board of works has used up $3,000 of the $7,500 of sewer debentures - money which they are supposed to spend only on streets along which the new sewers have been laid. Unless they can get the balance for general street work they will have a big overdraft. The city treasurer is not inclined to let them have it. Taking it all in all, it is apparent that the council is in a financial mud-

The Government's Chief Architect Here -Tenders Called For.

The Plans and Specifications at the Masonic Temple-A Fine Building.

Mr. F. R. Heaks, chief architect of the Ontario Government, reached the city last evening with the plans for the London Normal School. Today an advertisement appears in this paper calling for tenders for the construction of the new building.

Mr. Heaks will remain in the city for some time, and will be found in room 10 of the Masonic Temple. The plans and specifications of the school may be seen and examined there by contractors and other interested par-

The new building is designed in the style of modified French gothic, and will have a very imposing appearance. The superstructure will be of Credit Valley stone, and above this will be pressed brick with stone dressing, to the windows. It will have a tower 150 feet in height. The ground floor will consist of reading room, reception room, secretary's room, and library, with main entrance through the tower, to a grand staircase, leading to the upper floor. Separate entrances are provided for, leading east and west on the upper floor. The assembly hall is to be 43 feet by 50 feet, and situated in the rear of the building, with entrance from the ground floor. The equipment, heating and ventilation, and everything in connection with the building will be up-to-date in every respect. It will be open for pupils on Jan. 1, 1899. The building is to face to the north on Elmwood avenue, and bounded on the west by the Wortley road, on the east by Marley Place, a new street to be opened up. Duchess avenue will be opened up to the rear. The lot covers about four acres. The tenders have been called to be in Oct. 5, and the work will be commenced immediately.

NO PLACE LIKE HOME.

Mowever Humble It May Be, It Never

Has Had Its Substitute. "There is no question about it, no matter how humble or unpretentious our homes are, there is no place in the world like them," said a gentleman who lives in Guatemala recently. "Guatemala is by no means one of the worst places in which to live, especially in the coffee growing sections. However, there are certainly much more desirable places all over the world. It is a fact that the natives there prefer it to anywhere else in the world. This was shown in a striking case which came under my observation. "A wealthy gentleman in Guatemala married a beautiful girl. She was one of the most magnificent looking creatures I ever saw, of the pure Spanish blond type, which is seldom seen. The girl had been educated abroad and given every advantage. She was refined and cultivated. Her husband was devoted to her, and a short while after their marriage took her to Paris to live. There they had a splendid residence and everything that the heart of a highbred woman could desire. Everything was magnificently appointed. They entertained sumptuously, having ample means with which to do so. Still the bride was unhappy.

"Often the husband would return and find his wife in tears. He thought she would finally overcome it, but it seemed to increase. At last one day, becoming The Basinette. - 204 1/2 Dundas Street. fearful that her health would suffer, he forced her to tell him what was the matter. It was simply that she wished to return to Guatemala to witness a little local feast participated in by the Indians and natives in that country. The feast was given annually, and as a child she had been accustomed to attend it. Although she had access to all the fine displays in Paris and Europe, she preferred to see the poor little celebration at home. Realizing that her heart was so fixed upon it, her husband was forced to relinquish the allurements of the gay French capital and take her back to the squalid surroundings of Guatemala."-Washington Star.

One Man's Start In Business. Of all the curious starts in life of which self made men are apt to boast, the most extraordinary one is that which furnished the basis for a business from which a stationer in this city derives a comfortable income. He does not tell the story himself, but it comes from an old acquaintance whose veracity is beyond question. The successful business man of today was once a collector for a mercantile house and made as high as 30, or 40 calls per day on delinquent customers. He always borrowed a lead pencil from each one and never returned it unless asked to do so. Of course no suspicion attached to him, for forgetfulness in regard to lead pencils is recognized as a human failing. One of every three he secured was long enough to pass muster as a new pencil, and after he collected 1,000 in this way he secured a contract for furnishing lead pencils to a country school. One of the advantages of his bid was that he offered to supply pencils already sharpened. He now maintains a commodious stationery store, and his contract department flourishes. - Philadelphia Record.

To Remember Faces. To remember a face, as a person is called, the rule is not difficult to follow. Pick out some feature or peculiarity by which you can distinguish that face or person from all other faces or persons and associate the name with that feature or peculiarity. No two countenances or figures are alike, and it is by noting how they differ one from another that you will remember them. In explaining his remarkable memory for faces Speaker Reed once said to a reporter that he never looked a man in the face that some striking peculiarity, a line, a wrinkle, an expression about the eye, the set of the lips, the shape of the nosesomething set that man's face down in his mind eradically and distinguished from the rest of mankind, so that when a man approached him he would think, "Here comes that man Robinson whose right pupil is bigger than his left," or this is Thompson whose nose is so crook ed."-Self Culture.

NOT LOVED.

"And what do you intend to do, Lucille?"

The answer came quick and decisive: Find her, Cecil. 1 repeat, what you have just said of her history occurred to me. I remembered how sad at times she has appeared when I have come unexpectedly upon her. Also, that more than once she has referred to her past life as if it had been of no pleasant nature. I recollect she said that one day she would tell me some of her history. You, Cecil, confirm my sus-picions, and I will discover her. She shall find me a friend to help, to advise, to comfort, if necessary, for I am certain no blame can attach to her."

"But, my dear Lucille," broke in the marquis, alarmed at the turn affairs were taking, "I scarcely think such a proceeding justifiable. Signora Saproni expresses a decided desire for secrecy." Only, my lord, because probably she fears I might be offended at what she seeks to hide." Tut, tut! Then, again, how could you, a lady in your position, find her, my love? "My uncle is right, Lucille," said Cecil, decisively. "You could not well The marquis' features exdo this." pressed pleasure-Lady Westbrook's disappointment, until Lord Carlsford proceeded: "Therefore, if you like to but the affair in my hands, I will be your detective, and discover Signora Saproni for you."

"You will?" exc exclaimed Lady Westbrook, leaning forward with sparkling eyes. "How very good-how very kind of you!'

"Cecil forgets," and the marquis' tones were suddenly very grave, "how Maria Saproni's flight and his seeking after her might be construed by the world-hardly to the young lady's ad-

His nephew colored, but added, laughing, as he rose from the table: "Do not fear, my lord, the world shall have no opportunity to air its love of scandal upon me. I will take care of that. Furn.sh me with all the clew you can, Lucille, and I will find the

"Oh! my lord, can there really be any harm in Cecil doing this?" "Great harm, my child-very great," was the grave rejoinder; "and you must balk instead of aid him."

"My lord! "Yes. I see I must, after all, take you into my confidence. Lucille, first answer me: which do you love best-your cousin or me?" "My lord, can you ask?" and, with some emotion, Lady Westbrook held her hands impulsively towards her compation. "Do I not owe all to you? Are you not a father to me in affection as well as name?' He took her hands, pressing them in his own, and answered: "I am glad to hear it-very glad,

Lucille; for I know I may now safely trust you with a secret, the veriest hint of which must never be revealed to Cecil. Though Signora Saproni's present address is as much a mystery to me as to you, I was aware that she intended to leave as she has." 'You, my lord!" And Lucille raised her eyes to his in astonishment. "Yes, I, Lucille." And as they both arose, he, clasping her hands in his, and looking earnestly into her face, "Cecil loves Signora Saproniloves her honorably-yes, would even marry her!"

"Cecil, my lord!" "Yes, Cecil; and your maid knows it. That is why, like a brave, noble, selfsacrificing woman, she has fled, to save our family from probable trouble-has fled, as she has, to prevent Cecil's finding her-as I knew, as she knew, he

my lord, I fear you have done Cecil a crueller wrong than you imagine by depriving him of such a wife. Still, the world may be of a different opinion, and I have no right to make things contrary to your desire. I will not make the attempt. But pray make me one promise. Unaware to Cecil let us find Maria. I know she has few friends—no relations; she is almost, if not quite, alone in the world. Were she in want she would, and justly, be too proud to seek aid here. It is our part, who owe her so much, to help, to watch over her future unasked.

Smiling, the marquis kissed her white "Your request is easily granted, my love," he said, "for it echoes my own intent. Your announcement of Maria Saproni's departure took me by surprise. I had counted to have had time to take precautions against her so acting-precautions unknown to her. But now, rely on me that I'll use every means to find her."

The more he reflected the more certain he was that it was his admiration which had driven the Italian away, and the more determined he was to find her -if for no other purpose, at least, to clear away the stain which evidently, in her eyes, rested on his honor.

As he dressed he thought whether he should take his "tame cat," the captain, into his confidence. He decided, finally, in the negative.

Since those hints and suggestions of the officer he had scarcely felt so ready to entrust his affairs to his keeping. Consequently, before the hour when Captain Lascelles "dropped in," Cecil. plan already formed, had mounted his horse, and, unattended by his groom, ridden off.

Reaching Hyde Park Corner he over-took the Earl of Lethrington, also, like himself, proceeding westward. Joining company, they talked of the day's "on dits." during which Gerard naturally inquired after Lady Westbrook.

"She is quite well, thanks," answered Cecil, meditatively, smoothing his horse's glossy mane with his riding-

He was in doubt whether to mention Lucille's annoyance at the flight of her maid, for men are as apt to chat trifles even as the other sex; besides, something whispered him that the most trivial of trivialities, where his cousin was concerned, would be interesting to

On second thoughts, however, he refrained from the communication, thus preventing the earl learning a circumstance which he might have blended with his adventure of the previous night.

At Oxford Circus, separating, each went his way, little aware how apparently they were in unison. Turning up Langham Place, and skirting Regent's Park, Cecil proceeded to a street lying behind Albany street. Here, checking his horse into a walk, Cecil drew from his pocketbook a narrow strip of paper evidently cut from a morning newspaper. 'Yes," he muttered, consulting it, 'quite correct. No. 13, 'Mr. Noah Seacum, Private Inquiry Office.' I may as well see what he is like." Casting his eyes round, he perceived a little tatterdemalion enjoying with his nimble feet so energetic a pas seul on the pavement that his shock hair flew about as if under the influence of electricity.

The bright eyes caught the nobleman's, and instantly the commercial part of the nomad's young mind overwhelmed his devotion to Terpsichore.
"'Old yer 'orse, yer honor?" he cried, darting up.

"Yes, my man," answered Cecil, lighting. "Walk him up and down. I alighting. shall not be long.

The nomad took the reins, and Lord Carisford ascended the one broad step, unwholesomely white, of No. 13, and knocked. His summons being answered by a slipshod domestic with unkempt hair and unmistakable indications of stove-brushes on her features, he inquired for Mr. Noah Seacum, and was at once ushered into the sanctum of the detective officer, late of Scotland

There is no necessity to describe Mr. Seacum particularly. Suffice, he was a rather spare, small man, with irongray hair and a sallow countenance, not marked so much by shrewdness as by dogged persistency. He looked respectable and honest, so Cecil, after a few questions, informed him of the reason of his visit.

First impressing the strictest secrecy he proceeded to state the circumstances, and why Lady Westbrook, in whose name he, her cousin, be it held in mind, acted, imagined she had fled. Mr. Noah Seacum listened, here and there throwing in a leading question, and through the whole taking notes. A young gentleman instituting a private search for a handsome lady'smaid, of course she was handsomecela va sans dire-was, to say the least of it, suspicious. Nevertheless, if that was the detective's opinion at the commencement, so exceedingly well and with such a lack of self-interest, did Cecil carry out the affair, that he soon banished it, attributing the whole matter of concern to her ladyship. [To be Continued.]

DYSENTERY

Have It Checked and the Inflammation Allayed by Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry.

It is appalling how many people in the course of a year are hurried into untimely graves by an attack of dysentery.

It comes on so suddenly, its course is so rapid its action on the system so weakening, its termination so quickly fatal, that any treatment must be administered promptly and the disease checked effectively at the outset. The only remedy that anyone would think of relying on in such an emergency as that, is Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. For a generation and a half it has been curing all forms of bowel complaints of children and adults, and during that time has saved thousands of lives and many doctors' bills. Never be without it in your house. Its cost is trifling, only 35 cents, but the pain and weakness, yes, even death, it may save you from ome day, or some of your family, is worth more to you than ten thousand

Mrs. Richard Gilbank, Coldwater, Ont., says: "I have used Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry and found it a reliable remedy for Summer Complaint, Diarrhea, Dysentery and Cholera Morbus. I know it to be a grand remedy in the case of children, and heartily recommend it." Paper artificial teeth are now made in Germany. They are said to be not brittle, to retain their color and to be lighter than china teeth, and they do not melt in the mouth.

MAN EATERS AS PETS

Sir Henry Rawlinson Possessed Wonderful Taming Power Over Wild Beasts.

Sir Henry Rawlinson, the great authority on Persian inscriptions, wrote his Memoir" in a summer house overhanging the Tigris, where the outside heat of 120 degrees was reduced to 90 degrees by the action of a water wheel which poured a continuous stream of water over the roof of the house.

For recreation while writing this book Rawlinson indulged in petting wild animais. He had a tame leopard named Fahad, which he brought to England and presented to the zoological gardens at Clifton, near Bristol. Whenever Rawinson was in England he would visit Fahad. As soon as the beast heard his cry, "Fahad, Fahad!" it would rise from the floor of its cage, approach the bars and then, rolling en the floor, extend its head to be scratched.

Once the keeper, who did not know Sir Henry, on seeing him patting the leopard, exclaimed:

"Take your hand out of the cage! The animal's very savage and will bite you!" "Do you think so?" said Sir Henry. don't think he'll bite me. Will you, Fahad?" And the beast answered by a pur and would hardly let the hand be with-

He also had at Bagdad a pet lion, which had been found when a kitten on the bank of the Tigris, its mother having been shot, and brought to Sir Henry. He alone fed it, and the lion when grown would follow him about like a dog. One hot day the lion moped and rejected its food. It paced about the master's room, and he, being very busy, called two servants to take the lion away.

The lion would not go with them, but drew nearer its master and at last sat down under his chair, with its head between his knees. "Oh," said he, "If he won't go, let him hide." The servants went out, and Sir Henry wrote on. The lion sank from a sitting position into that of a "lion couchant." All was quiet for several hours save the scratching of a pen. When his work was ever, the master put down his hand to pat the pet. The lion was dead .- Youth's Companion.

YENETIAN GONDOLIERS.

The Life Is One of Hardship, Continual Exposure and Fatigue.

The gondoliers of Venice have again and again risen against the ruin of their livelihood by the "black devils" of the vaporetti, but force is at once called in, and they are brutally silenced, flung into prison and deprived of their license-i. e., of their daily bead. Because it is so picturesque a calling, and the balancing of the oar looks so easy a work those who are out ide it do not realize its hardships. In su ner if Venice be full it is well enough and brings a fair though never a high wage, but in the other seasons it is a life of great and continual exposure and fatigue. In cold weather-and Venice is intensely cold in the winter solstice-the long vigils on the traghetto are most tedious and trying, especially through the long chill nights. When the icy winds blow in from the Alps or the Adriatic, the gondolier stands exposed to all their fury, while the passenger he carries sits warm and sheltered under the felze. Strong and lithe in form, often handsome in feature, almost invariably intelligent and acquainted with legend and verse, invariably courteous and well bred, the gondolier should have received the utmost attention from his rulers. It is painful to know that no body of men has ever been so slighted, so injured, and so wantonly outraged.

There is nowhere any more interesting and deserving community than the Venetian gondoliers, and few more worthy of regard, yet they have been dealt with as though they were no more than so much scum of the sea. Their long established rights receive no consideration, and their injuries no compensation.

If the vote of Venice could have been honestly polled, no steamboat would ever have been allowed on the Grand canal, just as if the vote of Florence could have been honestly polled the center of Florence would be now standing untouched and would have remained untouched for many egeneration.—Ouida in Fortnightly.

Disappointed.

A little anecdote about Mr. Gladstone in The Chap Book makes itself welcome by touching the great man's humorous

The premier was invited to attend one of Punch's famous dinners. He was to meet Mr. Harry Furniss, who had, as one might say, discovered the Gladstone collar and was in the habit of caricaturing the statesman weekly by representing him almost buried in his own collar.

Mr. Furniss had of course been told that he was to meet Mr. Gladstone, and the entire company looked forward with amusement to the night when the ideal and the actual should thus confront each

The evening came, and Mr. Gladstone with it, but he wore a little band of white linen behind which not even the lobe of the ear could be concealed. He had appreciated the situation and provided for it.

The Flag and the Regiment.

When William McKinley was Major McKinley, he once made an address in which he described the difference between the American volunteer and the soldier of other nations. The men who were his comrades in the civil war, he said, not only fought, but thought. To illustrate this he related an anecdote about a young soldier in some northern regiment whose duty it was to carry the regimental flag. On the march the boy ran on ahead with the flag streaming in the air. The colonel was incensed. "Here!" he cried. "Bring that flag back to the regiment!" The boy turned and replied, "Aw, you bring your regiment up to the flag!'

DISCIPLINE

Its Perfection Shown in Time of Danger on Board a Man-of-War.

After lunch, writes Stephen Bonsal, in McClure's, as I walked with an officer apon the spar deck an orderly came up and said just as if he were announcing supper or eight bells, "I have to report a fire in a coal bunker." "All right," replied the officer; "will be down immediately." Then, with a parting whiff, he threw away his cigar, and we went down the companionway together.

There upon one of the lower decks a sentry, with the most quizzical expression of curiosity upon his face that I have ever seen, stood before a great dial like those in use in modern hotels, the indicator of which pointed steadfastly to the little face of the dial marked "B 21." My companion, the officer, went down still further into the bowels of the ship, while I stood with astonishment at the indicator, with wonderment as great, if not as open mouthed, as the sentry's. "It's a wonderful thing, this here machine," he said. "It keeps me awake at night, it's so darn human. It rings up a fire in some spooky way, just as if you or I might touch a bell and order up a mint julep. Yes, it do, sir."

Where B 21 was neither he nor I knew, but we agreed in the hope that the burning bunker might be far from the magazines. There was some talk about playing that number and that letter in the next game of chance upon which we entered until gradually the consciousness dawned upon us that we were even at this moment engaged upon a game of most serious hazard and that the cards might go against us. I smoked my eigar for an hour upon the signal tower, wondering all the while how the invisible flames were growing and whether they were gaining headway, and so, having given evidence of what I considered almost Spartan stoicism, I grabbed the officer as he came up from below, covered with coal dust and sweat, and said with as cheerful mien as I could muster, "And how about B 21?"

"Let's go up on the bridge; it's cooler there," was the only reply vouchsafed. So we climbed up to the fighting tops, I drawing a certain satisfaction from the thought that if we blew up we should still be on top, and never from that day to this have I heard a word of how the fire in coal bunker 21 was put out, and, for all I know, it may be burning to this day.

Repairing Clocks. "Watch repairers have a horror of touching a clock that has been tinkered by amateurs," explained a watch repairer to a reporter, "and they would rather get out of such a job if they can do so, for the loss of one of the smallest parts means considerable work to reproduce it, and much more work than the general customer expects or wants to pay for. They try to get rid of such a job when they can, for in nine cases out of ten the result is not entirely satisfactory. People who have a good clock, unless they know something about the way clocks are made and how they should be taken apart, will do the wise thing to let it alone when it gets out of order. Experimenting with it often means the ruin of the clock. It is absolutely dangerous to try to unwind a main. spring, as men have discovered for themselves, unless the proper tools are bandy. Now, a clock repairer has a contrivance known as a spring controller, which grasps the spring and holds it while being taken out or put into the clock, so that there is no danger. The spring for an eight day clock is often two yards long, and when suddenly let free it flies out with nearly the force of a charge of shot from a gun. -Washington Star.

The Best Parts of Lamb or Mutton.

In buying lamb or mutton you may choose the saddle or the whole hind quarter, the leg, loin or shoulder. The saddle is roasted, the leg is roasted or boiled, the loin is roasted or cut into chops and the shoulder is roasted. The hind quarter costs more than the fore quarter, but the shoulder piece, boned and stuffed, makes a very nice and inexpensive roast. The shoulder and neck piece are also used for lamb stews and fricassees.

Chops are cut in two ways-there are the long chops and the short chops. The long chops have the flank end left on. while in the short chops the flank is cut off and only the loin part used. The long chops cost less by the pound, but really are not so cheap, since the flank piece adds to the weight without giving any more eatable meat. It takes so much more to make the amount needed for family use that in the end it really costs more than the lesser number of pounds of short chops at the larger price.—Sallie Joy White in Woman's Home Companion.

Secondhand Wagon Wheels.

Among the great variety of things sold at secondhand are wagon and truck wheels. Wheels become secondhand from various causes. A concern running fine wagons kept always in perfect order would discard a wheel that was marred, though it might still be serviceable and replace it with a new one. The old wheel would be bought by somebody having a wagon repaired and needing a wheel to replace one broken and wanting it cheap. The secondhand wheel costs little, very much less than a new wheel. It may be possible to put a secondhand wheel of the same color as the other three or very close to it, so that it matches well enough, but men have been known to take for the same end of a wagon two wheels of different colors and different heights.

When finally worn out, the old wagon wheels and truck wheels are broken up. The wood is used for burning and the axle boxes and tires go to the scrap heap. - New York Sun.

The Icelanders' Language.

How strange it would seem to us today if there existed, say in Newfoundland, a colony of Anglo-Saxons, sent there by King Alfred, and speaking still the pure old Saxon tongue of King Alfred's Wessex! Yet this would exactly parallel the case of Iceland. While Danes and Swedes have modernized the ancient Scandinavian of the Sagas into the Danish and Swedish of the present day the Icelanders still go on speaking the tongue of their forefathers pretty much as it was spoken by Rolf the Ganger and Harold Hardrada. They read the Sagas in the tongue of the old singers as easily as our children can read Shakespeare and the English Bible.-Gent Allen in Popular Science.

MULEY EL HASSAN.

Sketch of the Recently Deceased Sultan of Merocco.

Mulai Ab-El-Aziz, Sultan of Morocco,

The Sultan was the son of the late Sultan Mulai-Hassan and was born in 1831. He succeeded to the throne on the death of his father and was proclaimed Sultan in the Sherifian camp on July 7, 1873. The dead despot of the Empire of Morocco was known to his subjects under the title of "Emir-al-Munenin," or "the Prince of True Believers." He was the fifteenth monarch of the dynasty which was founded by Mulai-Achmet and the thirty-sixth lineal descendant of that Ali who was the uncle and the son in-law of the great Prophet Mahomet himself, Every Sultan, under the traditions of the family of the Sherifs of Feleli, is supposed before his death to indicate the member of the family who will best conserve the interests of the empire by replacing him on the throne. Yet the Sultanate is an elective office and every member of the family is eligible. Mulai. Ab-El-Aziz was 67 years old, and he ruled with absolute power over about 5,000,000 subjects, any one of whom would have willingly laid down his life at his monarch's beck. The government is vested in the Sultan and there are no restricting laws, either civil or religious. The Sultan is advised by six Ministers, who are the Grand Vizier, the Minister of Foreign Affairs, Home Affairs and War, the Chief Chamberlain, Chief Treasurer, and Chief Administrator of Customs. The revenue of the Sultan is about $250,000 a year.

RED UNIFORMS HARD TO HIT.

It Is a Fallacy That Scarlet Is Particularly Obtrusive.

Scarlet, it has always been supposed, was the worst color possible for the purposes of the battlefield. It has been said so with such frequency, indeed, that nobody of late years has cared to dispute the fact. We owe it to some very practical experiments carried out in Germany that the question has now been put on a more satisfactory basis. A squad of ten men, two dressed in light grey, two in dark grey, two in scarlet, two in blue, and two in green, were lately ordered to march across an open country. Their movements were closely watched. The first men to disappear from sight were those in light gray, immediately afterward the scarlet, then the dark gray, and finally the blue and the green. Here we have all wellworn theories upset. Experiments carried out on the rifle range showed that our national color possesses even distinct merits. The idea was this time to ascertain which color gave the worst mark for the rifle. Twenty men, all good shots, were used for the purpose of the experiment. After they and fired a given number of rounds it was discovered that scarlet was far the most difficult color to hit. For every miss at the other colors there were three in favor of scarlet. We will not assert that these experiments were conclusive evidence of our national color, but they certainly go a long way to justify its retention, says the Army and Navy Gazette. There is much to be said in these days of quick-firing guns in favor of a uniform which is difficult to hit, and in this particular scarlet undoubtedly will hold its own against all other colors.

'I was ailing for nearly four years with nervous prostration. I tried many remedies and was treated by physicians without any permanent benefit. A year ago I took la grippe which greatly aggravated my trouble. My friends despaired of my recovery. I was induced to try South American Nervine, and was rejoiced to get almost instant relief. I have used four bottles and feel myself completely cured. I believe it's the best remedy known for the nerves and blood." Wm. M. Copp, Newcastle, N. B. For sale by W. S. B. Barkwell.

THROUGH PATENTED INVENTIONS. Communication from Messrs. Marion & Marion, solicitors of patents and experts, New York Life building, Montreal: Prior to Jan.1,1881,236,136 patents (not including 9,957 patents granted ed States. These included all patented inventions exhibited at the Centennial Exposition at Philadelphia, an exposition of which the most striking and important feature was its display or the improvements in industrial arts brought about by American invention, a display which was a revelation to all who visited that exposition, and was justly attributed to the stimulus given to invention by the United States patent system. I was believed by many that the inventions there exhibited represented the highest development possible that there was no further room for improvement in many of the arts at least. Yet, the effect of this exposition was not, as might, as might have been expected, to discourage invention and to convince inventors that nothing more remained to be done, that the field of invention was exhausted but to largely stimulate invention. For three years after this exposition the number of applications for pat-ents received was less each year by fully one thousand than in 1876; but in 1880 the number was nearly one thousand more; in 1881, nearly five thousand In 1882 ten thousand more than in 1876 were received. Last year the number received was six thousand, more than twice the number received

ANOTHER ABOUT GILBERT. Gilbert, the librettist, met Liebling, the pianist, not long ago, and they say the following interchange occurred between them, says Lew Rosen, in the Washington Post. Liebling, you must know, has an inordinate vanity, and Gilbert, as you do know, has a caustic wit. Liebling was introduced to Gilbert, and Gilbert said:

"Sir, I have heard Liszt"-Liebling bowed his head in acknowledgment at what he supposed was the coming compliment. "I have heard Henry Hertz," continued Gilbert.

Liebling bowed still lower. "I have heard Paderewski." Liebling made a genuflection even unto the ground. "Well, sir," continued Gilbert, in abrupt tones, "not one of them—not one of them, sir, perspired as profuse-

Some people don't care for Coffee. They've been drinking a cheap kind that has been ground at least three or four weeks. We have the reputation of selling the best Coffee in the city. Why is it? Because we buy the best green beans. We roast them every week. We grind them every morning. You'd enjoy a cup of Coffee if you could get it good.

FOR EIGHT YEARS

Pain So Intense Would Nearly Twist Fingers from Sockets.
Puffed Up Like a Toad.

Water Ran Through Bandages to Floor. Had to Walk the Floor Until Would Fall Asleep. Fingers Peeled Like an Onion.

Doctors Could Not Cure, Cured By Cuticura. About eight years ago I got sore hands, it commenced with a kind of a burning sensation on my fingers and on top of the hand. When I commenced to rub them, you could see little white pimples on the skin. I rubbed more and more, until I felt like twisting my fingers out of their sockets. I had high fever, and cold chills ran over me, and so kept it going until I was tired out. Nights, I had to walk the floor until I fell asleep. My hands peeled like an onion, the finger nails got loose in the roots, and the water ran out, and wherever there was a little pimple there the burning fire was, and I tell you and can prove to you, that happened at least ten times. During the day, I had to attend to my business, for I am running a blacksmith shop, horseshoeing, and I would not shut up the shop for anybody, but it was hard. My hands ouffed up worse than a toad. When I drove rse nails, the water from my hands ran through the bandage, on to the floor. My customers refused to look at my hands. I had a friend to take me to the doctor; he gave a a friend to take me to the doctor, he gave a solution of something to bathe my hands with. I was working every day, and did not know what to do so I went to another doctor, I think for a year. I found your advertise ment in a Utica newspaper, and I got the Cu-TICURA RESOLVENT and CUTICURA SOAP. The nails hardened up and peeled off and I don't believe there is one of the first nails left on my hands. What I have told you is true. I do this for your benefit and humanity's sake. I would not suffer any more as I did, for the whole country. CASPER DIETSCHLER, Feb. 22, '98. Pembroke, Genesee Co., N. Y.

YOU NEED THE BEST

The Diamond Dyes Color All Classes of Goods.

Diamond Dyes, as far as general usefulness is concerned, are far ahead of all the adulterated package and soap grease dyes now before the public. These crude package dyes and soap grease mixtures are very limited in their powers. 'Tis true, they give a semblance of color to thin and flimsy fabrics, but when tried on good dress materials and heavier goods, such as flannels, worsteds, tweeds and cloths, they are simply worthless.

The Diamond Dyes, owing to their great powers of penetration, their perfeet solidity and depth of shade, their purity and brilliancy, are adapted for all classes of goods, from the thinnest gauze to the heaviest tweeds. This great range of work, possibly only to the Diamond Dyes, is what has made them so popular all over the world. If you would do your dyeing work in proper style, use the Diamond Dyes. Avoid all imitation package and soap preparations. The Diamond Dyes are first and best for home use.

Opportunities for Young Men and Women. There are grand possibilities before every young man and woman. Some attain to them fully and proudly, some accomplish but little compared with what they should, and others by neglect and little intelligent effort become failures. No young man or woman without a definite purpose can hope to be anything worth living for. No young man or woman without good money-making powers can hope to rise above a life of drudgery.

How can failure, part or entire, be evoided? The answer is plain. Determine to engage in something that will give you a useful and pleasant life. To be successful and enjoyable it must help you to money. In no way can this be accomplished so certainly as by a course of study in the Detroit Business University, the leading business training institution in As America is just entering on an unusual season of prosperity, the course of business training will be a course of business training will be a grand stepping-stone to a life of active usefulness in the United States, if you wish to make it so.

LAST DAYS

The Murderer Gave Up His Sceptic -His Father Has the Body.

Bracebridge, Sept. 17.-Rev. Mr. Leith, the friend and schoolmate of Willie Hammond, has given out the following statement to the press:
"In attending Mr. W. J. Hammond I found that he gave up his indifference as to his spiritual condition, and seemed penitent. His statement was that he had cast himself on the mercy of God, and was trying to trust in the Saviour. I asked him if his skeptical views had done him any good, and he said 'No.' He said, 'Skepticism is no good to live by, and I would not want to die trusting in it.' The Ontario Government will allow Mr. Hammond, sen., to bury his dead, and the interment will probably take place at Gravenhurst. It was largely due to the sheriff's importunities that this boon was granted the old man, as Mr. Betts states that the jail yard is unfit to be used as a cemetery. New jail buildings will probably be erected shortly, and if the body were buried in the yard it would be necessary to exhume it. Coroner Campbell empaneled a jury immediately after the execution, and made the announcement that the cause of death was a broken neck.
