The reciprocal trade of the United per cent of the total of all imported

"The above figures," says Secretary Morton, "are worthy of consideration because they teach the importance of encouraging that trade throughout the earth. All legitimate trade, if it endures, is gainful to both parties there-to; but trade between individuals—that is, trade where either one is loser there--stops itself. Trade between individuals continues so long as it is found to be mutually advantageous, and what is true as to trade between individuals holds good as to trade between nations. Therefore, all trade restrictions, falsely called 'protective tariffs,' are unnecessary because they must only impede or prevent profitable trade; while bad trade dies of its own profitlessness."

Justin McCarthy on the Prospects for Home Rule.

"The Tories Cannot Prevent the Political World from Moving On."

New York, Aug. 26.—Mr. Justin Mc-Carthy contributes an article to the Tribune on "How Stands the Irish Cause," in which he states that Ireland will have to wait some time for home rule. It may be that it will come before a Liberal Government again suc-

"they cannot prevent the political world from moving. And even Tories feel the movement. But, of course, the great solid strength of Ireland is in herself and her own cause; in the teachings of history, in the lessons of experience. There is not, so far as

Mr. McCarthy deals with the electoral successes of his party in Ireland of the internecine strife which injured the Irish cause in Great Britain, and speaking of Mr. Redmond's attitude, he rays: "At the present time he and his followers will have to fall into line with us. It will be his duty and his busines to oppose the Tory ment-the coercionist Administration. We shall vote together in every lobby and it may be that the division lobby may become to mean for us the forget ting of old divisions. If we could get even this much out of the return of the Tories to power, we should have had something substantial to recompense us for what we have lost. Suppose we assume that the Tory statesmen will have their full constitutional tenure of office—and I see no reason whatever why they sould not have it it will be for Ireland a dreary time. But Ireland will not die of disap-pointment in six years. She is ready for new hope, and quite filled with a new energy when the last session of the present Parliament is over and done

A SERIOUS CHARGE.

Constable Jeffries Alleged to Have Extorted Money

From a Young Couple on Becher's Is land-The Constable Denies the

Luke Jeffries, of the county constabulary, will appear before the adjourned sessions tomorrow and answer to a charge of extorting money from a young man whom he had placed under arrest. J. A. Tracey, of Horton street, is the complainant. One afternoon about the first of the month he walked over to Becher's Island in company with a Stanley street, South London music teacher. He says they strolled around the island for a while and finally sat down. They had rested themselves only a few moments when Jef-fries and Detective Ward appeared, and the former placed the young couple under arrest. He brought them some distance, but let them go, as they would forever be disgraced if locked up. Tracey alleges, however, that their liberty cost them $6, which was paid to Jeffries. He and his lady friend have made a written statement of the case, strongly denying that they were guilty of any wrong. Detective Jeffries has made a complete denial of the charge. He says that complaints had been made regarding people on Becher's Island, and with Detective Ward he visited the place with the purpose of making arrests if any guilty ones were caught. He admits arresting Tracey and the young woman, but emphatically denies having taken money in exchange for the liberty of his prisoners. Detective Ward also defends Jeffries.

Women of Guthrie Show Lazy Men How to Repair a Town Church.

Guthrie, Okla., Aug. 26.-For a long time the West Guthrie Congregational Church has been in need of repairs and, despairing of the men attending to the matter, a score of women appeared today with hammers, hatchets, saws, planes and nails, and repaired walks, belfry, roof, and floor, while a crowd of men looked on in amazement. In spite of a few mashed fingers and some torn clothing, the women are pleased with their work, and (announce that next week they will improve the street in front of the church and put up hitching racks.

LONDON WEST NOTES. Henry Ward and John O'Sullivan are charged by Geo. Finnegan with using abusive language, and Geo. Finnegan is charged by John O'Sullivan on the same complaint. They will be heard before Squire R. F.

Lacey tonight. In the case of George and Arthur Stinch-combe, who charge John Kelly with nonpayment of wages, the matter was settled amicably outside of court.

Mrs. Ann Elliott will have Joseph Pask, a small boy, up before Squire Lacey tomorrow night. Mrs. Elliott claims that she gave the boy Pask $1 to purchase some wood at a wood yard. The boy took the dollar but never went near the yard. Hence the charge. The boy is so small that the Humane Society people have been notified and the case is put off for trial till tomorrow evening.

THE WORK OF ANARCHISTS. Paris, Aug. 26. - The efforts of the police to discover the authors of the attempt upon the life of Baron Alphonse De Rothschild, on Saturday afternoon last, by sending him an infernal machine disguised as a mail pack age, have proved unavailing up to the present. The police authorities, however, are confident that it was the work of Anarchists and thirty suspected Anarchists have been arrested, examined and obliged to give the police specimens of their handwriting. They were subsequently discharged. FRANCE MUST BACK DOWN. London, Aug. 25.-The Daily News publishes a dispatch from Paris saying the Waller affair ought to show the French the danger of their revised espionage law. The United States will protect this convicted epy as firmly as if he were a white man. The spy law as it stands is barbarous. It was devised by Gen. Boulanger, when he was fishing popularity. France ought to be obliged to the United States for giving this demonstration of its evils. The Under Foreign Secretary of the United States is now here, and he has been telling Ambassador Eustis what the public expect him to do. I am alluding to the Socialistic meeting presided over by Herr Bebel, which was held among people who are striving for the very opposite condition of things and are all advancing in state and social organization. We must fight against such aspirations, and those who believe that they can advance these interests by the aid of such people merely dig their own graves. CHINA MUST COME TO TERMS. London, Aug. 26.-The Sun says that It is rumored that the Marquis of Salisbury, the British Premier, has determined upon decisive action in regard to China, and that a British fleet will occupy one or two Chinese ports, and perhaps land marines, in order to enforce Great Britain's demands in connection with the investigation of the recent massacres.

The Times publishes a dispatch from Shanghai saying that the inquiry into the massacre of missionaries at Ku Cheng has been proceeding since Wednesday. All the members of the consular commission have been present, but progress has been slow. The dispatch adds that a Mohammedan rebellion has broken out in Kan Su, the most northwestern province of China, and is spreading. The situation is serious. A special from Foo Chow, China, to the New York World says: Firmness has brought the Chinese to terms. Foreigners are now present at the trials of natives implicated in the attacks upon missionaries. The Chinese officials af-ford every facility to the foreign commissioners of inquiry. Six of the Chinese who had a hand in the massacre at Hwasang have been convicted of murder, and new arrests are made daily. A DEADLY ENVELOPE. Paris, Aug. 25 .- A heavy letter addressed to Baron Alphonse Rothschild was delivered at the Baron's office vesterday afternoon during his absence at Trouville. The Baron's confidential clerk, H. Jacobsky, opened the bulky parcel with a knife, whereupon it exploded. The clerk's eye was almost torn out of his head, and one of his hands was so badly shattered that three of his fingers had to be amoutated. The package was delivered at Baron Rothschild's residence in the Rue St. Florentine and was taken to his office in the Rue Lafitte. H. Jacobsky, the wounded clerk, is 50 years old. He was formerly a notary at Metz. He entered the service of the Rothschilds in 1871. He conducts the firm's legal business and manages its estates. He has nothing to do with the ordinary business of the firm, and in the absence of Baron Alphonse Rothschild, opens the latter's personal letters only. Several other clerks were present in the office when the explosion occurred, but none were hurt. Experts are when the package was stamped in the post-office. M. Jacobsky is doing well, and it is not expected that his condition will become more serious. ANOTHER ARREST. Gala Time. Boston, Mass., Aug. 26.—Knights Templar and their ladies, from every section of the United States, and visitors from every nook and corner of New England have been pouring into the Hub today by the thousands. One hundred commanderies, includover 3,500 sir knights, arrived at the different railroad stations, and before midnight tonight 50 more delegations will be domiciled within the city's gates. Boston was awake early today and before the sun was fairly started on its daily journey, strains of music were heard on the streets, as resident commanderies moved towards the depots to meet and escort early arrivals. One could not go more than a block or two down town without meeting at least one body of plumed knights, and the holiday spirit soon reigned supreme. The city was almost absorbed in receiving and welcoming its guests. A great feature of the gathering this year is the great number of visitors who are attracted simply as spectators. All trains from New England points are late from one to two hours, and there is hardly a town, village or hamlet in all the New England States that is not represented. Railroad men say they expect to bring in over 250,000 people before the parade starts tomorrow, besides those from the suburban towns that make up greater Boston. There have been no meetings of an official nature today except those devoted to committee work. Every sir knight has been busy receiving and entertaining friends. The headquarters of the grand commandery of Massachussets and Rhode Island and of the triennial committee have been open all day to visiting sir

FARNHAM Palace, the residence of the Bishous of Winchester, is an enormous red brick building, with towers and battlements, that has belonged to the bishops since the time of Henry of Winchester, King Stephen's brother. The late Bishop Thorold, who refurns hed the palace, found that it took over a mile of carpet to cover its rooms and corridors. The top of the old keep, from which one of the most beautiful views in England is to be had, was turned into an old-fashioned garden by Bishop Sumner. "Roses and honey-suckle," said the bishop, "pinks and carnations, hollyhocks and sunflowers, sweet peas and nasturtiums, and Prince of Wales' feathers, red and white, and tiger lilies, oceans of mignonette, thickets of sweet briar, snapdragon, and London pride, sweet-wil liam and lavender, shall have undisputed sway and dominion here, in a garden such as would have pleased Lady Corisande, and in which Swift, if he could walk over from Moor Park, hard by, might for an hour be coaxed out

Washington, Aug. 24.—Secretary Morton, of the United States Government, calls attention to the enormous trade of the United States with Great Britain, which leads all other countries in ex-changes with the United States. Dur-ing the year 1894 the English-speaking people of Europe took $431,000,000 worth of American exports out of $892,000,000. Taking the British possessions altogether and classing them as one customer for American products, the Sec-

States from Great Britain was not so large during 1894, but was still highly sifinificant. The United States imported from Great Britain and her possessions $178,000,000 worth of goods during the year, an amount equal to 27

CAN THIS BE SO?

R. JONES has been instructed by R. S. Chinese Explanation of the Recent Williams & Sons to sell on the premises, Missionary Outrages.

> Blame Laid on the Chinese Missionary Interpreters Who Play on Missionary Zeal and Ignorance of the Lauguage.

Chicago, Aug. 26. - Sam Moy, a prominent Chinese merchant of this city, has received a copy of a Chinese newspaper published at Foo Chow, which gives four columns of space to an account of the attack upon the English and American missionaries in June. The article shows that the attack on the mission houses arose first from motives of robbery, and second by a revelation of the corrupt practices of some of the hangers-on of the mission stations. There are only two ways to get converts in China. One is to hire them; the other way is by kidnapping children and keeping and teaching them. Good missionaries don't allow any kidnapping, but most of the missionaries, while good people themselves, don't know how bad their native staff is. An interpreter sees a child, a girl 10 or 12 years old, and finds out that her parents are poor, or careless people not likely to make much of a fuss at her disappearance. He coaxes the child to visit the mission, and often force has to be used. The missionary is told that the child wishes to become a Christian, that she wants to live in the mission and be instructed, or some other invention which seems plausible to the ignorance and zeal of the missionary, and something is added to show the importance of guarding the new candidate from recapture by the heathen relatives, who the missionary is assured would do so to prevent the perversion of the child's faith. As the missionary cannot talk to the child, he trusts his interpreter. The latter practically gets the girl. She is his slave for the time being, and he induces the missionary to keep her safely and out of sight until he can sell her and get the money for her. The burning of the missions freed some of the girls, who told the stories of their kidnapping, confinement and the indignities to which they were subjected. The stories spread and aroused the ferocity of the Chinese. This started the great riot, and the mob attacked the missionaries and interpreters indiscriminately. The Governor of Fo-Kien sent 10,000 soldiers up to Min River to quell the riot and restore order, but the bandits joined with the rabble and whipped the soldiers. The soldiers lost half their number and had to retreat. At the time the paper was printed it was said the whole section was in the control of the

"DADDY'S ON THE ENGINE."

A New Song That Has Captured Gotham Town.

There is a new song in town, says the New York Advertiser, and it is sung by sweet Kitty Rampone. New songs come and go easily in New York. New singers are rare. We have one in sweet Kitty Rampone, whose picture is published herewith. You may not have heard the story of sweet Kitty, and "My Dad's the Engineer," but it is a story of human interest, just the same. Kitty is a dark-eyed lass, somewhere between 12 and 14 years of age. She is well proportioned, has a face that Corregio would like to have painted, and a voice as musical as a lark's. "Oh, it is so strange," she said, as she finished singing the new song, to the reporter, "and you are really going to print my picture?"

Her father, the old professor, was in raptures. He is no longer young. He has had his battles with fate, his victories and his defeats. He is proud of his success, and prouder still of his daughter.

After all, New York is the best town in the world, Its heart is bigger, and it asks fewer questions than any other city, even when things go wrong. Now and then it does things that no other city would think of doing. That is because it is New York. But the heart pulse of New York is all right. It beats true all the time. It makes and unmakes its heroes and heroines in the most inconsequent sort of way. But the man or woman who rings the bell at the right moment is sure to be heard, says the Advertiser. And has won more fame in a single night than her father, a fine musician, has been able in the trend of many years and on two continents to acquire. Here is the song that has given Kitty Rampone success: We were none of us thinking of danger As the train sped on in the night, Till the flames from a burning forest it looks as though Kitty Rampone has rung the bell at the right moment. She

Then a tiny maid near a window, With a smile said, "There's nothing to fear. I'm sure that no harm will befall you

Made the passengers wild with fright.

My Dad's the engineer!" REFRAIN Daddy knows what he is doing."

"Daddy's on the engine Don't be afraid; Said the little maid: "We'll soon be out of danger Don't you ever fear;

Every one is safe, because My Dad's the engineer!' With the sparks falling closely about Thre' the flames we sped on so fast,

An English writer, glorifying over the extinction of the Ibsen fad in England speaks of the plays of that eminent author as "hysterical galimaufries of pathological nastiness." Here is a chance for some of the Boston worshippers of the outraged Norwegian to come to his defense again. And they might as well, at the same time, say another good word for Maeterlinck, who has been stigmatized by a second unsympathetic and unsentimental Briton as a "literary sponge cake, moistened in watered maraschino."

From the mutterings that come hither from Spain, that dear, interesting little baby of a king may be obliged to pack up his toys at any moment and seek some spot where he can be a child in peace.

"There," said the playwright. "That play is finished."

"Why, George, dear," said his wife, "You've only been at it ten minutes." "I know it, my dear, but it isn't part of my work to introduce the dances and comic songs. It's only three acts, you know."

If photographs could be taken of the wretched, homeless summer cats, and shown to their owners who so cruelly desert them, it is to be wondered if the latter would be more humane when another year rolled around to the going out of town period. The poor creatures, despite the heartless treatment to which they are subjected, have not lost their faith in mankind, as is evidenced by the confidence with which they approach a stranger, and, rubbing themselves against his leg, plead in their own touching dumb way for his friendship. It is flattering as a cat's opinion of humanity, but it is still more flattering to the cat, in manifesting no tendency to misanthropy as a result of the wrongs that are so unfeelingly heaped on it.

But the people who live only for the cooks-or for what their cooks preare are not the sort to whom to look for inspiration.

Many a wife has kept a delicate busband comparatively well through ier loving and wise ministrations. It is easy to warn and urge, but more difficult to have our precepts carried out. So we must practice what we preach, for neither husband nor child can be expected to attend to the advice of a mother who, paying no regard to the laws of health, has fallen into a self-indulgent, invalid life, or who, in spite of every precaution, is suffering from the overstrain and exposure of her careless youth.

The number of cultivated people who habitually permit their actions to be influenced by small beliefs the absurdity of which they readily acknowledge, is surprising. Perhaps half of one's acquantances cherish some petty illusion or small superstition, acquired in childhood, which, confessedly ridiculous in itself, yet affects in greater or less degree their conduct through life. How many women, for example, finding one or more stems in their cup of tea, do not expect company soon after, and if the company comes, do not accept it as proof of the reality of the warning? How many people, who would be quite ashamed to own their belief in anything like luck, do, nevertheless, always manage to see the new moon over the right shoulder? And how many, while ridiculing the superstition about Friday, still refuse to begin a journey on that day, as if the ly condemned by Providence? The belief that if thirteen persons sit down at dinner, one of the number will die within the year, is so universal, or at least, so generally deferred to, that few dinner givers dare to disregard it. So is the belief that if you boast of not having had a disease, you are certain to have it, as if boastfulness were a sin above other sins, to be punished speedily and severely.

NEW STYLES OF HATS.

The Sailor Hat Has Reappeared in Full Force-Other Novelties.

The boating hat has re-appeared in full force, and it has a wide brim and more trimming than formerly, says the New York Sun. Three very pretty heads that were watching a recent yachting contest were covered with hats that will bear mention. One was a low crowned sailor with a band of black velvet on one side, striped bows and plaitings of striped silk in front, and two black quills come down to us. The airs that float new on the earth are unlike those Another, also of sailor shape, but with a charged with impurities and distemwider brim, was trimmed with black and white ribbon bows upstanding all health of earth, compared with that wider brim," was trimmed with black charged with impurities and distemaround, and white aigrettes on the left which those experienced before whom with a brim especially broad in front, but sickness and emaciation. A toque of fancy shot straw has fluted sequin net around the crown and bows of plumbago blue, with a bunch of black algrettes on one side. Another very stylish hat of black straw, turned up evenly at the sides and back, is loaded with yellow poppies and large ostrich feathers. A bunch of yellow poppies on the left side under the brim are arranged so they droop on the hair.

Wonderful Future.

A Great Hereafter Which Awaits the Christian.

Surpassing Beauties of Heaven Depicted by a Master Mind.

New York, Aug. 26.—For the bereaved and faint-hearted, there could be no words of stronger consolation or encouragement than those of the sermon prepared by Rev. Dr. Talmage for yesterday. His subject was "Surpassing Splendors." The text chosen was: "Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard." I. Corinthians, ii., 9.

"I am going to heaven! I am going to heaven! Heaven! Heaven!" These were the last words uttered a few days ago by my precious wife as she ascended to be with God forever, and is it not natural, as well as Christianly appropriate, that our thoughts be much directed toward the glorious residence of which St. Paul speaks in the text I have chosen.

The city of Corinth has been called the Paris of antiquity. Indeed, for splendor, the world holds no such wonder today. It stood on an isthmus washed by two seas, the one sea bringing the commerce of Europe, the other the commerce of Asia. The mirth of all people sported in her Isthmian games, and the beauty of all lands sat in her theaters, walked her porticoes, and threw itself on the altar of her stupendous dissipations. Column, and statue and temple bewildered the beholder. There were white marble fountains into which, from apertures at the side, there rushed waters everywhere known for health-giving qualities. Vases of terra cotta adorned the cemeteries of the dead-vases so costly that Julius Caesar was not satisfied until he had captured them for Rome. From the edge of the city a hill arose, with its magnificent burden of columns, and towers, and temples (1,000 slaves awaiting at one shrine), and a citadel so thoroughly impregnable that Gibraltar is a heap of sand compared with it. Amid that strength and magnificence, Corinth stood and defied the world.

And it was a bold thing for Paul to stand there amid all that and say: "All this is nothing. These sounds that come from the Temple of Neptune are not music compared with the harmony of which I speak. These waters rushing in the basin of Pyrene are not pure. These statues of Bacchus and Mercury are not exquisite. You citadel of A3rocorinthus is not strong compared with what I offer to the poorest slave that puts his burden at that brazen gate. You, Corinthians, think this is a splendid city. You think you have heard all sweet sounds, and seen all beautiful sights; but I can tell you 'eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him."

I first remark that we can in this world get no idea of the health of heaven. The diseases of past generations The third was a low-crowned hat the gates have been opened, is nothing that soul standing before the throne. On earth she was a life-long invalid. lying upon the hair, and four quills now! Catch, if you can, one breath of standing upright at the back, formed the pulses! Health of vision! health of spirits! immortal health! No racking cough, no sharp peurisies, no consumhospitals of wounded men. swinging in the air; health flowing in all the streams; heath blooming on the bank. No headaches, no sideaches, no backaches. That child died in the agonies of croup; hear her voice now ringing in the anthem! That old man that went bowed down with the infirmities of age, see him walk now with the step of an immortal athleteforever young again! That night when the needlewoman fainted away in the garret, a wave of the heavenly air resuscitated her forever. For everlasting years, to have neither ache, nor pain, nor weakness, nor fatigue. "Eye hath not seen it, ear hath not heard it."

I remark further, that we can in this world get no just idea of the splendor of heaven. St. John tries to describe it. He says: "The twelve gates are twelve pearls," and that "the foundations of the wall are garnished with all manner of precious stones." St. Johns bids us look again, and we see the great procession of the redeemed passing; Jesus, on a white horse, leads the march, and all the armies of salvation following on white horses. Infinite cavalcade passing, passing; empires pressing into line, ages following ages. Dispensation tramping on after dispensation. Glory in the track of glory. Europe, Asia, Africa, and North and South American pressing into lne, Islands of the sea shoulder to shoulder. Generations before the flood following generations after the flood, and as Jesus rises at the head of that great hest, and waves his sword in signal of victory, all crowns are lifted, all ensigns flung out, and all chimes rung, and all hallelujahs chanted, and some ery, "Glory to God Most High," and some, "Worthy is the Lamb that vas slain"-till all exclamations of endearment and homage in the vocabulary of heaven are exhausted, and there come up surge after surge of "Amen! Amen! Amen!" "Eye hath not seen it, ear hath not heard it." Skim from the summer waters the brightest sparkles, and you will get no idea of the sheen of the everlasting sea. Pile up the splendrs of earthly cities, and they would not make a stepping stone by which fou might mount to the city of God. Every house is a palace. Every step a triumph. Every covering of the head a coronation. Every meal is a banquet. Every stroke from the tower is a wedding bell. Every day is a jubilee, every hour is a rapture, and every moment an ecstasy. "Eye hath not seen it, ear hath not heard it."

I remark further, we can get no ilea on earth of the reunions in heaven. If you have ever been across the sea, and met a friend, or even an acquaintance, in some strange city, you remember how your blood thrilled, and how glad be our joy after we have passed the seas of death, to meet in the bright city of the sun those from whom we have long been separated. After we have been away from our friends ten or fifteen years, and we come upon them, we see how differently they look. The hair has turned, and wrinkles have come in their faces, and we say, "How you have changed!" But oh, when you stand before the throne, all cares gone from the face, all marks of sorrow disappeared, and feeling the joy of that blessed land, methinks we will say to each other, with an exclamation we cannot now imagine, "How you have changed!" In this world we only meet to part. It is good-bye, good-bye, Farewells floating in the air. We hear it at the rail-car window, and steamboat wharf-good-bye. Chrildren lisp it, and old age answers it. Some-times we say it in a light way-"goodbye"; and sometimes with anguish in woman of fashion as strongly as ivy does bye! Ah! that is the word that ends which the soul breaks down. Good-the thanksgiving banquet. That is the word that comes in to close the Christmas chant. Good-bye! good-bye! But not so in heaven. Welcomes in the air, welcomes at the gate, welcomes at the house of many mansions-but no good-

A little child's mother had died, and they comforted her. They said: "Your mother has gone to heaven-don't cry"; and the next day they went to the graveyard, and they laid the body of the mother down into the ground; and the little girl came up to the verge of the grave, and, looking down at the body of her mother, said: "Is this heaven?" Oh, we have no idea what heaven is. It is the grave here—it is darkness here-but there is merrymaking yonder. Methinks when a soul arrives, some angel takes it around to show it the wonders of that blessed place. The usher-angel says to the newly-arrived: "These are the martyrs that perished in Piedmont; these were torn to pieces at the Inquisition; that is the throne of the great Jehovah, this is Jesus." That will be the great reunion; we cannot imagine it now, our loved ones seem so far away. When we are in trouble and lonesome, they don't seem to come to us. We go on the banks of the Jordan and call across to them, but they don't seem to hear. We say, "Is it well with the child? is it well with the loved ones?" and we listen to hear if any voice comes back over the waters. None! None! Unbelief says, "They are dead, and extinct for ever," but blessed be God. we have a Bible that tells us different.

I remark again, we can in this world get no idea of the song of heaven. You know there is nothing more inspiriting than music. In the battle of Waterloo the Highlanders were giving way, and Wellington found out that the bands of music had ceased playing. He sent a quick dispatch, telling them to play, with utmost spirit, a battle march. The music started, the Highlanders were rallied, and they dashed on till the day was won. We appreciate the power of secular music! but do we appreciate the power of sacred song? There is nothing more inspiring to me than a whole congregation lifted up on the wave of holy melody. Away, then, with your starveling tunes that chill the devotions of the sanctuary, and make the people sit silent when Jesus is coming to hosanna. But, my friends, if music on earth is so sweet, what will it be in heaven? All the best singers of the ages will join choirs of white-robed children! choirs of patriarchs! choirs of apostles! Morning stars clapping the cymbals. Harpers with their harps. Great anthems of God, roll on! roll on!—other empires joining the harmonies till the thrones are full of it, and the nations all saved. Anthem shall touch anthem, chorus join chorus, and all the sweet sounds of earth and heaven be poured into the ear of Christ.

I wish we could anticipate that song. I wish in the closing hymns of the churches today we might catch an echo that slips from the gates. Who knows but that when the heavenly door opens today to let some soul through, there may come forth the strain of the jubilant voices until we catch it? Oh, that as the song drops down from heaven it might meet half way a song coming up from earth.

A STUPENDOUS WORK

Whole of the Bible Has Been Translated Into the Chinese Language.

Vancouver, B. C., Aug. 25.—Among the passengers who will leave for the Orient on the Empress of Japan this week is the Rt. Rev. S. F. J. Scheresehewsky, D. D., rotired Protestant bishop of China, who is engaged on a most important task, viz: Translation of the Bible into the Chinese from the original tongues. In 1859 he left for China as a missionary of the United States Episcopal Church and was subsequently appointed Bishop of China, being the third in cumbent of that office. In 1832 he suffered a sunstroke, which compelled him to resign the office, as it affected his speech and rendered him unable to move about. Leaving China he visited Europe and there commenced the great task on which he has been engaged ever since. Four years he spent in Europe and the remainder of the time in America, and now at last this stupendous work is completed and the bishop has with him a translation of the whole Bible in Roman characters. On arriving in China he will commence the work of reproducing the manuscript into Chinese characters, after which it will be printed and published. This will take three years more. Speaking of the recent riots, the bishop says the mandarins are in his opinion mainly responsible, as they are the chief opponents of foreigners, and use every possible means to stir up the ignorant people against the whites.

CHAMBERLAIN ON COLONIAL RELATIONS.

Mr. Isaac N. Ford cables from Lonion to the New York Tribune. Only in Parliament last week will be remembered after the session It was made by Mr. Chamberlain when the financial vote for the Colonial Office was reached after midnight Thursday. It was a short speech delivered quietly and without flourish of trumpets; but it contained evidence that the leader who formulated twenty years ago in Birmingham great munipolicies, grounded upon new ideas of the functions of local government, is preparing to revolutionize colonial relations. One evening journal hails him with accleim as "Josephus Africanus," and another recalling Froude's eloquent reflections in "The English in the British West Indies," forecasts the advent from Birmingham of a statesman capable of wielding the bow of Ulysses. Both are right in assuming that Mr. Chamberlain has in mind large plans of colonial policy, based on new principles. What was most significant in this speech was the declaration that many of the British colonies were in the condition of undeveloped estates which could not be developed without imperial assistance. There were some colonies, he added, for which British rule had done absolutely nothing; and England could not trade with them so long as they were undeveloped. He would be prepared to consider carefully any case in which, by a judicial investment of imperial money, those | colonies could be developed. Mr. Chamberlain spoke confidently-almost impetuously-of many colonial problems, and discussed them with breadth of view. IDLE CHATTER IN PARLIAMENT. Otherwise the week in Parliament has been filled with dull recitative of | run very low in the long period of de small talk, flippant badinage and poor jokes. When the debate on the reply to the Queen's speech had been shut off by closure, the business of financial supply was taken up, with the front Opposition bench nearly empty, Mr. Healey, on the skirmish line, fighting for the Irish leadership, and Mr. Redmond in ambuscade, luring the Home Secretary into maladroit amnesty concessions. Public business has been deliberately obstructed by the Irish members, and the privileges of the question hour abused by all fac-tions for the sake of idle chatter. Swarms of new members have been entertained by trifles light as air. They smiled when Mr. Hanbury was exposed in the attitude of defending votes for the House of Lords, which he had formerly assailed. They laughed when Mr. Jordan, Nationalist, unable to obtain confirmation of his own account of an Orange attack on a Roman Catholic temperance picnic, indignantly demanded why there was no breach of the peace when there ought to have been one. They roared when an impassioned Orangeman laid bare a conspiracy for the removal of the statue of Cromwell from the entrance of the South Ken-Museum, and received official assurance that it had been put in a cupboard because it was an artistic work, and only plaster of paris. They were fairly convulsed with merriment when Speaker Gully and Mr. Curzon contrived between them to cut short Mr. Stanley's superfluous memories of "Charley" Stokes, the North of Ireland Protestant, who went out to Africa as a missionary, and became an industrious and popular trader.

West African railways delegation.

While business is obstructed, it is not improbable that the discussion on supply will suddenly collapse and the session be brought to an end early September. Adjournment cannot long be deferred, whether the rumor be true or false that a compromise has been made with the Irish members for the liberation of a few treason and felony prisoners in return for the abandonment of obstruction tactics.

ROCKS AHEAD.

With their great majority the Salisbury Government are likely to have less trouble with the Irish than with the agricultural, commercial and educational questions. The Prime Minister has already been pressed by the National Agricultural Union to give assurance of legislation for the benefit of the most depressed industry of the

CONSERVATIVES KICKING.

Harold Frederick cables from London to the New York Times: There has been a much louder expression of Tory wrath over filling the two remaining law-officer vacancies with the Unionists than the earlier concessions to Cham-berlain evoked, and even the Unionist Times admits doubts as to the wisdom of the action, but nothing tangible in the way of protest, much less of mutiny, may be looked for, so far as the House of Commons is concerned. It is not impossible, however, that there may be some defections of private Tory voters in the Dublin district where Kenny, the new solicitor-general, must seek re-election, and if the Irish Nationalist parties could agree on a popular honest Parnellite like Col. Nolan, they very likely would win the seat. It is said, however, that Redmond insists on running Rochefort Maguire, and that does not promise so hopeful a fight. It may be taken for granted that Limerick will remain practically disfranchised for her pains in electing the dynamiter Daly, at least till next February.

ROOM FOR REFORM. Most educated Englishmen, in or out of Parliament, agree that civil service examinations here have got into an absurd, harmful, and pedantic rut. T. P. O'Connor made an unusually vivid and effective attack on the abuses of the system, and Hanbury, the new Secretary of the Treasury, displayed, for a Minister, an unprecedented willingness to promise to see if something could not really be done, but the most that even he can do is to bring the matter before the civil service commissigners, and these officials take a purely Chinese mandarin view of the whole business. They regard Greek and Latin as the beginning and end of everything, and nobody can budge them. Each of these languages counts 750 marks on the examination papers, while English counts only 500, and French and German counts only 375 each. Among the English tests put to 18-year-old applicants for minor postoffice and other vacancies of a similar grade, dozens were read at which the House roared with laughter, such as "Show that Shakespeare has laid scenes in each of his plays among surroundings harmonizing with the plot."

LIBERAL ATTITUDE TOWARD

According to the Speaker, the weekly organ of the Liberals, the attitude of that party on the Chinese mission outrages is distinctly in favor of active intervention. Lord Salisbury, the paper, says, should obtain an Anglo-American entente, under which the first work should be the further opening up of China. The Government at Pekin would be wise to accept foreign aid to restore order, if only to save itself. A family council of the nations could without difficulty sentence China to the tutelage of a native officer of Europeans. This is not yet probable, although it would be certain to benefit the Central Government, but it will come soon unless the Pekin Government responds to the just demands of the

In the force were 10,000 volunteers who are similar in all respects to the American National Guard. These volunteers were included in 90 corps gathered from all parts of the United Kingdom, and in the opinion of the American officers the uniform display and the contact with volunteers from all sections of the country as well as their association with regulars. could not be otherwise than beneficial. People in Detroit Are Interested in a Great Resemblance in Two Cases.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 26.-Much interest has been manifested here over the recovery of Mr. G. H. Kent, of Ottawa, from Bright's disease by using Dodd's Kidney Pills, a remedy which is now in universal use, and many people have a clear recollection of the similar case which occurred in London, Ontario, not long ago, namely, that of Mr. Wm. Langley, who for some time was an inmate of Harper's Hospital here and was operated upon without effect by several Detroit physicians. It was owing to this connection with Detroit and the long accounts published in the press that so much interest was taken in the case, and led to such an enormously increased sale of the medicine.

serious consideration of administration reforms in the Established Church LIBERAL LEADERS UNDAUNTED.

Meanwhile the Liberals are conferring respecting the causes of their defeat, and summoning a national assembly of the party. Sir William Harcourt manfully stands by his flag; refuses to admit that the local veto was responsible for the Liberal Watero, and reaffirms his faith in the righteousness of the temperance measure which caused his ejectment from Derby, with help from the organized associations of brewers.

A HARASSING STRUGGLE. The Government's legal appointments have been completed after a LORD WOLSELEY'S PLANS. In military circles Lord Wolseley is credited with many plans for the improvement of the service, after his accession to the command of the army on the 1st of November. He has been known as an advocate of reconstruction of the recruiting system, by which the army would be made more attractive to young men. His plan would be to increase the soldier's pay and to reduce the expense of recruiting thereby. This method of army reform thereby. This method of army reform is not likely to meet with the approval of calculating economists. It is probably true that many men who join the police force might be induced by higher pay to join the army. Lord Wolseley has been a free talker, and his comments on army reform are now recalled prematurely. The War Office will not be likely to allow him absolute license to carry out the projects formed before he was armed with istration. The new forest maneuvers have been in progress during trying weather for large bodies of troops which have suffered from arduous

The jute industry of that town, with its well organized factories, is menaced with something as destructive as Chinese cheap labor, namely, Indian labor in Calcutta factories, built with Scotch capital. RAILWAY RACES.

The race between rival flying express trains to Scotland has been more interesting than any sporting contest of the week. The contest between the east and west coast lines between London and Aberdeen began in July and has ended with a continuous week of record breaking. The west coast line has won the final honors, but only after it had twice been beaten by its east coast rival. The winning score was 540 miles in 512 minutes, with an average speed of 63 miles an hour and a maximum of 74 miles an hour over a portion of the The east coast record over course. a course seventeen miles shorter, was maximum speed of nearly 67 miles. Both lines have suspended racing for the season, although excited engineers have boasted that 80 or 100 miles an hour could be made safely. The utility of the performance is doubtful, since the lines were cleared fifteen minutes before the arrival of the flying exesses at any point; the night traffic or freight was abandoned, and the danger of the service was so great that Sir Wilfrid Lawson humorously warned the directors that they were incuring liability for manslaughter. The record was made by running trains from London to Carlisle without a stop, and by reaching Aberdeen at 4:30 in the morning, a most incon-

GALT VS. GVIELPH.

Galt, Ont., Aug. 25 .- A. western baseball league game, between Garelph and Galt, was played here yesterday, The attendance was about 2,000, of Moom 500 came from Guelph. Guelph scored five runs in the first on a couple of err p rs and hits by Cockman and O'Connor and a home run by Hutchison, Galt played a plucky, up-hill game, and but for reckless base running would have won. Score:

HAMILTON BADLY BEATEN. Pitcher Moore, the star of the Hamilton nine, we s sadly out of kilter on Saturday afte moon, when he went into the box at! Tecumseh Park and served the Alert s with every kind of ball on the basel all menu. The game was one of the Canadian championship series, and to uphold the good name of London, Bert Sheere was put in the box, and clever Sam Thorpe behind the bat. They did their work almost to perfect ion, and a great part of the responsibility for Hamilton's very sewas in extraordinary good Sheere trim. scattered and scratchy. Jack r, the ex-Alert, being the only one is o make over one bag. Jack made his first appearance in Tecumseh Paris in a Hamilton uniform, and as stepped up to the plate in the secork i inning he was accorded a good we loome. He raised his hat in acowledgement, and then touched the Il for two bases, landing it away Farnworth's territory, and scoring chroder, who had secured his base n balls and stole second. That was he only earned run the Hamilton's scored. In fact, they only got two runs altogether, the second being in the sixth, when Thorpe attempted to out Player from stealing second, and Dunn, in returning the ball, threw wild, and allowed Lomas to score.

The work of the Alerts was of a very different stamp, and made the game one-sided, but interesting. The boys in blue caught Moore's curve on the drop of the bat, and run upon run was pounded off the crack pitcher, while occasional errors helped to pile up the big score. In the first mning twelve men went to bat for six runs the side being retired on a sacrifice of Burton's, Dunn's force out and Tierney's pop fly to Player. Two runs were netted in the third, on a hit to right field by Sheere, a hot one past second base by Hiscott, a beautiful twobagger by Tierney (the ball going over the left fielder's head) and a scratch by Burton. Tierney was caught while running to third.

Inning four was marked by one continued streak of slugging, and was good for eight runs Steve Dunn led off with a three-base hit to the right field fence corner, and scored on Farnworth's hit to left. A succession of hits followed, and the procession around the bags continued unabated. Farnworth was forced out at second, and Sheere flew out. With three men on bases, Dunn came to bat for the second time in the inning. Moore gave him a chance to hit the leather, and was accepted, but for nothing less. than a three-bagger. Hynd, Tierney, and Burton crossed the plate. Durga made the eighth run on Farnworth s hit, and Thorpe retired the side ky fanning wind.

One and two runs were netted in line fifth and sixth respectively, and as Moore was played out, Lomas took, the box. He fared well enough until the ninth, when he, too, fell a victi na to

THE TURF. THE FUTURITY RACE FOR $67,000. Sheepshead Bay, Aug. 25.-The great Futurity race was the magnet to draw a much larger gathering to the track yesterday than could have been expected under ordinary circumstanctes; albeit the balance of the card for opening day of the Coney Island Jockey Club's autumn meeting was attractive enough. When the bugle called the horses for the great Futurity to the post at 4:40 o'clock there were 30,000 people in attendance. The field was one of the largest that ever starter in a Futurity, and the 30,000 pairs of eyes never left the head of the chute where the twenty jockeys were maneuvering to get the best of the start with their mounts. Finally the flag fell to a beautiful start, and in one grand cavalcade the twenty horses swept down into the dip in a bunch. Then they went out of sight in the dip, and when they came into view again, Requital, with Griffin in the saddle, cool and confident, had the foot of the field, and was going easy. Crescendo was second, and the others, headed by one of the Morris pair, were apparently beaten. Whips were being lied thick and fast. Handspring and Hastings, the cracks, were nowhere to be seen. Into the stretch they swept Griffin was now looking over his shouller and had the race won. Carr, on Crescendo, was spurring and whipping with all the vigor at his command, and he gradually crawled upon the horse wearing the dark blue. Then out of the bunch flashed Silver II. and Handspring. The latter swerved into the aldson was sold by auction at Ailsa Craig, when the 200-acre farm in Mc-Gillivray township was purchased by Miss Lizzie Donaldson for $9,150, and the 50-acre farm in Stephen township went to Mr. Charles Lynn for $1,650. After enjoying a few weeks' holidays with their mother in Ailsa Craig, the Misses Campbell left on Friday last for their respective schools-Joan to St. George, Maggie to Uxbridge and Ela to Komoka. After New Years Miss Ela Campbell will teach at Morton's school, McGillivray, having been engaged by the trustees of that school. A cyclonic gust of wind struck the farm of Daniel Graham, con. 10, Caradoc, taking with it half the roof of his large barn. Heavy maple logs lying on one side of the barn yard were blown up against the building and a hayrack standing at a little distance was also turned over and over until it came against the barn. The cyclone also struck R. Ellworthy's and Duncan Mc-

A very pretty wedding took place at the residence of Mr. E. Davis, "Will)wdale," Wardsville, when his daughter, Miss Nellie, was married to Mr. Chas. D. Normandy, of Duluth. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Barnett, of Kintyre. The groom was assisted by Mr. A. E. Davis, brother of the bride, while the bride was attended by Miss Maggie Templeman, of Muirkirk. Miss Irene Moses, of Kent, Ohio, acted as flower girl. The bride was beautifully attired in a costume of white swiss and lace and carried a handsome boquet, while the bridesmaid wore a dress of were present. The Boston club will play at Middlesborough on Aug. 28, and will thereafter play two matches at Newcastle. The couple left on an extended trip through the States before returning to their future home in Duluth.

The sovereigns of Rosewood Camp, C. O. W. O. W., Melbourne, held their annual picnic in Clarke's grove, adjacent to the village, when games and athletic sports were indulged in, greatly to the enjoyment of the moderately numerous crowd gathered from adjoining villages and townships.

The Strathroy Gun Club defeated Ailsa Craig by eight shots on Thursday. Quite a large crowd witnessed the tennis tournament at Poplar Hill last week. Eight teams put in an appearance and fought for the coveted trophy. Messrs. N. McIntyre and J. Clare, of the Melrose Club, were the favorites all through the game, and by good and careful playing carried off the banner and the championship of Lobo.

$3,000. BATHING IN SENEGAL.

(From the London Daily News.) Mark Twain, remarking upon the fact that the hotels in France charge for soap among the extras, concluded that washing and bathing was not common in that country. It is only fair to add that Max O'Rell explains that in France people carry their own soap with them, and that a man would as soon use another man's tooth brush as his soap. However it may be in France itself, it appears that in one at least of the French colonies bathing is not an ordinary practice, but is hedged about with uncommon strictures. A young French explorer, M. Gaston Donnet, contributes to the Revue Bleue some vivid descriptions of the colony of Senegal. The following happened at Saint Louis, the capital, a dull, unprogressive. French colonial town, eaten up with red tape and officialism. M. Donnet tells us that he and a fellow traveler wanted to take a bath. There is no establishment in the capital of Senegal. Rumor had it that it was possible to hire baths at the hospital. "We asked," he says, one of the servants for a bath." "Certainly; take seats. Your names, surnames, and birthplace?" "But we only want a bath." "Exactly. What is your name, and where and when were you born, and are you Government servants, soldiers or officers? No; well the rules do not provide for this. Wait a minute, I will read them over again. Yes, here is your case. You first make out on stamped paper an application to the governor of the colony. After favorable notice from the governor you send another application to the chief colonial doctor, who will send for you and will examine you." "But we are not ill." "It is the rule. Having examined you, the doctor will give you two non-commissioned officers' bath tickets to be delivered to the assistant doctor." "Why non-commissioned offi-cers' bath?" "Mon Dieu! In our accers' bath?" "Mon Dieu! In our accounts we recognize only two categories of persons, officers and civil servants. the latter taking rank with officers or petty officers. You are not official at If officers were to find you in their baths they would probably make a row." "How long will all these for-malities take?" "Oh! nothing at all. Two or three days, provided that your

A Big Cut in the Conservative Majority
—The Returns.

Moncton, N. B., Aug. 26.-The election in Westmoreland on Saturday resulted, as anticipated, in the return of Mr. Powell, his majority being over 700. Considering that Mr. Wood's majority in 1891 was 2,148, the Liberals in such a short campaign did herculean work in reducing the majority. In Moncton City, where the Government railway works are, the majority was cut down from 550 in Mr. Wood's election to 187. In Salisbury's the majority of 150 in 1891 was turned into a minority against Mr. Powell of 113. In the parish of Moncton the majority of 530 was also reduced to a minority. In Dorchester the majority was cut down one-third. Considering that Messrs. Costigan, Foster, Weldon, Adams and other Government members were in the county with all the munitions possible to carry on the war, the Liberals came out more than well

THE "BICYCLE FACE."

A Brooklyn correspondent of the New York Sun writes: I have read many able communications to your paper describing and accounting for the "bicycle face." Why is it you have never noticed the "baby carriage face" of the Brooklyn men? It's appalling. I can only describe it as a cross between the bicycle face and Death's.

Some day let one of your reporters go over to Brooklyn and see George, wifey," and the baby out for an afternoon airing.

George clutches the handle with an iron grasp as he nears a crossing. Wifey on one side holds on to the front of the carriage. The beads of perspiration roll down George's manly brow as he looks up and down the street, mentally calculating the distance away of the "trolley." Wifey pulls back and says, that car pass, George! Now be careful! The car is coming on the other track! Look out! Oh, do, George, be careful! Come on now! No, no! Come b-a-c-k! Now! Hurry! quick!"

With a rush they're over. Then-"Is my hat on straight, George?" Now is the time to get a snap shot of George, but that wouldn't-nothing could—catch the expression. It's something that cannot be described, but would haunt the observer to his dying lay.

The bicycle face is seraphic in comparison. Dante never imagined such.

ROYAL GIFTS

Sold by Recipients Without Delicacy or

Restraint. It must be rather distressing to royalty to see the small value set upon the gifts which it is in the habit of distributing among its friends and followers. These gifts are constantly being converted into cash in a most public and open manner, without the slightest delicacy of restraint. Thus, at a great public auction held at London, there was a valuable gold-mounted and jeweled cane, which belonged to the late Maharajah Dhuleep Singh, and had been presented to him by the Prince of Wales as a token of friendship and regard.

It was but the other day that a number of very charming etchings made by the Queen and the late Prince Consort forty-five rears ago were put up at auction at Dublin. They had been presented by Her Majesty and her husband to one of her former ladies in waiting, on whose death they had been offered for sale by the heirs, The shop windows of one of the great pawnbrokers at Berlin were filled some months ago with an entire collection of valuable watches, snuff boxes adorned with gems, articles of jewelry, etc., all presented by various sovereigns and royal personages, to the late Count Visone, minister of the household to the King of Italy, and pledged without being redeemed by his scapegrace son, who, until the other day, was a secretary of the Italian Embassy at Berlin.

Thus it happens that one finds pins, rings. snuff boxes and even autograph portraits in the possession of people for whom they were certainly never intended, and who make improper use of them for the purpose of obtaining social prestige.

Perhaps the grossest case of all, however. was that of Baron von Radowitz, now German ambassador at Madrid, who, on the conclusion of his mission at Constantinople, where he had represented Germany diplomatically for a number of years and enjoyed the particular favor of who was never tired of loading him with valuable gifts, deliberately put up at public auction in Constantinople itself, under the very eyes of the Sultan, all the presents which he had received from his Ottoman Majesty. .. The spectacle of four Chicago policemen, mounted on bicycles, furiously chasing a little woman rider just because her attire happened to be a little in advance of the city regulations on the subject, and, finally after a ride of a mile or so landing in a promiseuous heap of policemen and bicycle, with the crowd cheering like lunatics, while the "New Woman" waved her cap triumphantly far in advance, must have been a sight that discounted all the World's Fair Exhibits put together. To so startle a Chicago policeman, after the Midway Plaisance, a costume must needs be a little outre. According to a reporter, it was the 'bloomingest'' pair of bloomers ever seen in that city. They were of old gold satin and skin tight, ending at the knee with a band of green ribbon. The snug fitting leggings were a shade darker than the bloomers, and the feet were encased in tan Oxfords. A green satin jacket embroidered in yellow silk, a white shirt waist with stand-up collar and yellow tie, and a little bright green yachting can.

completed a costume that might well have tried the nerves of the stoutest member of the force. Confederate Postage Stamps. Persons who have kept any of the old letters they received from the south during the war might do well to look them over. The confederate government authorized the issue and use of local postage stamps, and nearly every city in the south at one time had its own stamp. Many thousands of those were used, but so rare are they now that they bring very high prices. There is among collectors a keen demand for them, and an idea of what they will bring may be gathered from the report of a sale which occurred recently at the rooms of the Philatelic Society, New York. Local confederate stamps sold as follows: Athens, Ga., $40; four varieties of the Baton Rouge, La., 5-cent, $41, $77 and $30 respectively; Macon, Ga., two varieties, for $63.50 and $171; Lenoir, N.C., $82, and Mobile 2 cent, black, $41.50. As time goes on these curiosities will probably increase in value. They are already beyond the reach of everybody but wealthy collectors. The Cold Bath.

Most medical men consider that a cold oath every morning is apt to do more harm than good to any but persons of a very vigorous constitution. The sensible thing to do is to see that the temperature of the water in cold weather is not lower than that of the air. A daily bath is a most healthful practice but it should not be so cold as to give a shock to the sys-

ERB GOT OFF. Stratford, Ont., Aug. 25 .- The case of Christian Erb, chargei with putting ground glass in the family soup, occupied the attention of the police court since Thursday, and resulted yesterday in dismissal of the case.

MANITOBA'S WHEAT CROP. The Canadian Bankers' Association of Winn peg has received the remainder of the crop estimates. The average crop of wheat is 27.09 bushels to the acre. The total estimated yield in Manitoba is as follows: Wheat, 30,890,076 Lushels; oats, 23,938,102 bushels; barley, 5,758.224 bushels; total, 60,636,402 bushels. The reports from the Canadian Pacific Railway in Manitoba and the Northwest show that the crop is now safe from all dangers.

Mr. C. D. Anderson, formerly of Torento, has opened a commercial photo studio at 540 Richmond street. A number of Mr. Anderson's views have been reproduced by the Buffalo Express and the Toronto Mail, which goes to show that his work in this line is somewhat above the average.

Special.-While the weather is fine have your house photographed. Mr. C. D. Anderson, 340 Richmond street, makes a specialty of this work.

THE LATE JOHN EASTWOOD. Mr. John Eastwood, secretary-treasurer of the Hamilton Times Printing Company, and a director of that organization, died on Saturday at the comparatively early age of 58, after a long illness. Mr. Eastwood had many friends in this neighborhood, who will regret to hear of his death. He was for many years one of Hamilton'se progressive business men As a lover of fine arts, he was ever ready to help along deserving Canadian talent, and more than one artist belonging to this city have been, in their struggles for fame, cheered by his patronage and kindly consideration.

* LOCAL BREVITIES

-Detective Michael Heenan, of St. Thomas, is in the city today. —Superintendent Woolatt, Engineer DeGurse and Solicitor Leggatt, of the Lake Erie and Detroit River Railway, are at the Tecumseh.

-Mr. T. F. Kingsmill, the well-known Dundas street merchant, has arrived home from a purchasing tour in the British and Continental markets.

-Quite a crowd of Ancient Foresters, including the Robin Hood Drill Corps and the Knights of Sherwood Forest, went to Guelph today to participate in the annual demonstration of the order.

-While Mrs. Henry Parsons, South London, was visiting at a friend's on Richmond street yesterday, she left her baby's buggy in the doorway of a vacant store. When she went to get it after her call, it was missing. It is a large bamboo cane buggy with wooden wheels. The police were in--The public schools reopened today with a larger attendance than ever. All of the teachers have not as yet returned, but substitutes have been appointed for each vacancy. Misses Macklin and Winnett are in England, where they have been during the holidays and will not return for a few weeks. At the Collegiate Institute there were a large number of the public school graduates. They had their lessons appointed, were given a list of the text books required for the course, and were dismissed until tomorrow morning. Principal Merchant announces that there is an exceptionally clever looking contingent this year from the public schools.

The Secret Out.

DEAR DR. CAMERON:

You will pardon the presummition of these words when I tell you they are from a very unnappy man to a muchhonored one. You know what you have done for me, but you cannot know the feelings to which your kird ness has given rise. They are strong, they are vital; they are absorbing. N ever have I known before what it was to regard any human being above my work and my ambition. What I once called love was but a shadow, a vanity. This only the one great feeling of a my life, and if it seems unmanly or pres umptuous in me to avow it, you will pe adon me for the sake of what I am willing to do to preserve your honor and d your happiness. Love makes light of sacrifice, and it is love I have felt ; for you ever since you so generously came to my most stance at the momen at of my greatest necessity. If then I disappear do not let the fact make y ou indignant or unhappy. It will be for r your sake, and therefore for my own, who am your truest well-wisher, JULIUS N OLESWORTH. Destroy this and do not retain so much as a memory of its contents.

The letter fell it om Dr. Cameron's hands. Julius Mc lesworth at once thrust his foot f orward and pushed it into the flanks. In the light of its burning, the, two men again confronted each other.

"And this medins-" gasped Walter. That you do linot want me to go back with you to I wew York. That intercourse between us is dangerous; that when this wind ceases and a path can be found the rough the wilderness of snow withou t, I shall vanish from your must never know, nor must you, if you value in onor or happiness, attempt to follow r w e."

Though 1 he fire had died down almost to sishes, there was still glow enough to show the despairing pallor which ha d overspread Dr. Cameron's face at the ese words.

Ther e can be but one interpretation to put 's apon this language," he de-clared, "You have evidence or you clared, "Your elief-" grip of Molesworth's hand on his was is like a vise.

"De not continue," he charged him. not ask me to explain myself. e between us is our only safety that you know I am a runaway ly in your interests, and that the between us is one of regard rather of shame."

3ut Genevieve-" two en them, making for the moment terrible silence. Then Molesworth fir dished the sentence by declaring: "Will never be prosecuted on any are suspicion: While I remain absent, oubt will always hover about the case, and trammel the efforts of those en-

"But if they find you?" "They shall not find me. I have an extra incentive now to keep out of their reach; you have heard my avowal of regard and have not repulsed me." Dr. Cameron, awed by the feeling expressed in these words, was silent. Then his own poignant misery got the mastery of him, and bowing his head forward into his hands he exclaimed: "And so my every dream dies! My wife is—"

"The woman you are bound to cherish," broke in the tender, almost solemn voice of the other.

And before the stricken and almost overwhelmed husband of Genevieve Cameron could sink upon the settle from which he had so lately risen wretched and wild, but in a condition more hopeful than now, the other had crossed the floor, and mounting upon the rounds of a small ladder fastened against one side of the wall, disappeared through a trap into the darkness of the story above.

CHAPTER XXXII.

Dr. Cameron, left to himself, fell into a sort of miserable stupor, from which he was only aroused by the chill occa-sioned by the dying down of the fire. Bestirring himself as he realized that he was fast becoming numb, he rose, piled on fresh fuel, and passing to the door, moved it a little from its position and endeavored to look out. But the rush of snow was too blinding, and he was staggering back from the aperture, when he heard a cry, whose smothered and despairing tones assured him that another of his comrades was perishing in the snow almost within reach of his arm. Without any thought but that of his duty to a fellow sufferer, he rushed back to the fire, plucked out a halfburnt brand, and waving it to make it burn brighter, tore down the door and thrust the glowing signal out into the darkness. It burnt but a moment under the influence of the driving smow and wind, but that moment was sufficient. For in a space of time too short for Dr. Cameron to realize what he had done, there came a gurgling sound of speech, then a hurried rush of some panting human form, and a man tumbled into the opening headlong, and fell, mute and incapable, on the snow-covered floor. Dr. Cameron at once bestowed on him the care which Dr. Moles worth had given to him. He drew the man before the fire, and after replacing the door, which he had thrown down in his hurry, he took such measures to resuscitate him as time and opportunity afforded. He was spe edily re-warded by a decided movement of the spare but energetic limbs, and d a shrill but grateful "Thank you," which al-

Stooping down, he looked the man hastily in the face, and drew back stunned; for it was not only that of the lounger who had constantly obtruded his presence upon him for the last 48 hours, but in the eye and around the corners of the mouth he detected an expression which at once revealed to him that this man had a more intimate connection with himself than he supposed, and that if he had met him at every turn which he had lately taken, it was because the man had made a business of following him. "You are a detective, are you not?" asked Dr. Cameron, with all the sang froid his sinking heart could muster.

"At your service," acknowledged the an energy in forcible contrast to the shiftless air he had found it convenient hitherto to assume. "Glad to find you are safe, sir. I began to think we were all done for. Never have I seen such a storm-never in all my life." Dr. Cameron did not answer. He was thinking of the man above, and wondering if he knew what a dangerous occupant had intruded into their refuge.
"But we are mighty comfortable here.
There seems to be a pile of wood over by the hearth, and if I could find a bite now—"

"Wait," cried the doctor. For the man in his newly-recovered spirits showed a dangerous intention of investigating the place in which he found himself; a proceeding which could not fail to carry him to that spot where the ladder ran up the wall. to ask you a question or two. In the first place, how did you come here? I

'Very likely, but I am one of the kind that don't stay left. I've an interest in you, and the way I show interest in a man is to keep as near him as possible. I slept in the same hotel with you, sir, and took the same train. We've had a pretty serious time of it, but we're all right now, and I don't propose to regret my part of the

Dr. Cameron looked him gravely in the eye. "Are you from New York?" he asked, "and have you been following me ever since I left the city?' "Pretty much, sir. But that don't count. As long as it was with friendly intentions you can't object to an attention that has always been respectful,

"No, but what I want to be assured of is that they are friendly. You are doubtless in the employ of the police, but were you sent here to act as a spy upon me, or to assist me in my endeavors to find Dr. Molesworth?" "Can you ask after all that has hap-Why, sir, without me you wouldn't have got track of the villain at all, or if you had, you would have found yourself looked upon with suspicion as an agent of the police. No, sir, I may not have done much, but I have done enough to show you I am here to assist you in your search, and if this storm had not come on he would never have escaped us. As it is-Halloo!" he exclaimed, "what sort of a place is this?" He had just caught sight of the peculiar paraphernalia of the spot. "That is more than I have been able to find out," answered the doctor. "It is a refuge and that is all that concerns us.

"But the pillars, the table, the bench, and then those skins! It looks like a cave, but what cave ever had a hearth like that!"

"It is the cellar of a man's house, added, as he saw the detective's eyes flash upward to the ceiling. "But all we have got to do with it, I presume, is to rest here till morning. Lucky for us if the owner does not appear and turn us out."

"The owner? so the place has got an owner! Well, let him come; I don't think he will turn me out. I wonder where he keeps his grub." "Wouldn't it be better to ask whether or not there are any more poor perishing creatures straggling about in the sterm near our door?" suggested the doctor, with some vague idea of there being safety in numbers. "Was there no one near you when you made your-self heard at the door? More than a dozen men set out from the cars."

"I know it, but I soon lost track of even you, sir. Every man for him-self in a fight of this kind. But where is your companion?"
"My companion?"

"I see two overcoats here, sir; you didn't wear them both yourself?" Dr. Cameron glanced at the floor beside the settle, and, sure enough, there lay the coat which Julius Molesworth had thrown over him. He found it difficult to speak, but he did, and that with a carelessness which astonished him-

FORESTERS AT CHURCH.

Rev. A. G. Harris Delivers a Practical Sermon

To the A. O. F. at Their Annual Church Parade-Collection in Aid of the Aged People's Home-Drew Sick Pay for 20 Years.

The members of the A. O. F. city courts attended divine service in a body yesterday afternoon at the Centennial Methodist Church, East London, and the turnout was one of the largest ever seen in London. The lengthy procession was headed by juvenile Foresters, and following came the Seventh Band, under the leadership of Bandmaster Tresham. The courts represented in the line of march were:

Court Brighton, No. 6,509; Court Excelsior, No. 5,895; Court Forest City, No. 6,744; Court Forest Queen, No. 6,-563; Court Magnolia; Court Pride of the Dominion, No. 5,660; Court Stella, No. 7,047; Court Wellington, No. 7,134.

Juveniles—Court Pride of London, No. 1; Court Pride of Brighton, No. 26;

Court Maple London, No. 16 Court Maple Leaf, No. 16.

The Knights of Sherwood Forest, under the command of Mr. Alf. Taylor, and Robin Hood drill corps, commanded by Cant. Brown, had places in line by Capt. Brown, had places in line, and during the parade performed a number of intricate and pretty evolutions. At the church a large number of lady Companions of the Forest gathered and listened to the eloquent and practical sermon delivered to the order by Rev. A. G. Harris. Mr. Harris chose as his text the seventh verse of the fourteenth chapter of Romans: "For none of us liveth to himself."

The preacher contrasted this maxim of the Apostle Paul with the many selfish maxims of the present day and proceeded to draw a vivid picture of the wilfulness and selfishness and the pleasures to be found in helping one another. He pointed out the harm that could be wrought in a community or workshop by the scandal-monger dealing in innuendos, the evil results of drink, the curse attending habits of gambling, and the utter uselessness of what was termed a "harmless" man. Some men were like chips in porridgethey did neither harm nor good. But who wanted chips in porridge? This jellyfish life was not the life for a man to live. The man who did no good must surely do harm. All should be workers together for good. Mr. Harris severely criticised the hypocritical man, who wore a smile on the streets and a scowl among his family at home. The man who learned courtesy and kindness could not be a tyrant at home. He then scathingly portrayed the selfish man's actions both at home and abroad and led up to the Scriptural injunction:

"And," continued the minister, "just here comes in the benevolent societies and their work. They provide for per-sons in the crisis of life. When men have health and strength they can provide for themselves and their families. But health does not always last, and men ask themselves the question, What are we to do when we are sick? can lay un a little money is so little, for how few of us earn many dellars beyond what we have to spend? And so they band themselves into societies, and contribute small amounts so that when the father of the house is no longer able to work he can draw a little every week. There does not come a more solemn moment in the home than when the father-the breadwinner, the man on whom the responsi-bility has been resting so long—is laid up on a sick bed. When the strong arms lie weak and feeble, and the frame which did not seem to fear any toil is frail as a child, it is a sad, sad home. And when there is no provision for the family the father's fever burns all the stronger because the man within is thinking 'what are the loved ones to do now?' And so these societies say 'when a brother is sick we will help him.' This is just what the Master would have you to do. It seems to me that these associations banded together to help one another are the outgrowth of the Savior himself.

"Then there comes another great crisis in man's history-death, Oh; when the brain that has planned, and the arms that have worked, and the heart that has loved—when these lie cold in death, what desolation comes over home! In such times how poor are words to assuage the grief of a family so stricken. It is the society that takes to a certain extent, the father's place, and helps the family, and helps the children.

"Go on with the good work that is in your hands. Go on not only in a selfish kind of a way for the protection of yourselves, but for Christ. Bring God into all your movements. Then you will have the blessing of God upon your hearts, and when you come to the last hour you may regret many things, but you will never regret at that supreme moment that you helped others and did all the good that you could and lived an unselfish life."

The choir rendered the anthem "A Hope in Heaven," with good effect, and a liberal collection was taken up in aid of the Aged People's Home.

After the service the line reformed and marched back to the center of the city. The East End courts dropped out as their lodge rooms were passed. Among the Foresters in church was Mr. W. J. H. Parkhouse, a member of Court Pride of the Dominion, No. 5,660. "I have been drawing sick pay for twenty years without a break," said he to the "Advertiser," and I cannot find words wherewith to thank the society. Will you mention it for me?"

Nature's Voices. To the discerning ear Nature has many voices. She has a message in the sweet tones of the brook as it rushes down the hillside in ocean's moody voices, now rippling with gentlest cadence upon the golden sands, anon in deep boisterous voice as she lashes the beach with foam. Then the voice of trees which the laughing winds bear to our ears, of sunshine and shade, of hill and valley, of bird and flowers. But she comes in pain, too, the voice of the aching, stinging corn speaks impressively, but Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor removes the worst corn in 24 hours, painlessly, and without leaving

Papa and a Dectective Appeared on the Scene and Disturbed Their Dreams of Bliss

Sherbrooke, Que., Aug. 26.—Master Jas. Sullivan and Miss Stevenson who eloped from Barton Landing, Vt., Thursday night, had their hymeneal dreams interrupted here Friday afternoon by the unexpected arrival on the scene of the girl's father, Dr. Stevenson together with United States Detective Miles. Sullivan a rugged but prosaical Adonis of 21, she a decidedly handsome blonde of 17, arrived at Sherbrooke Friday morning at 7 o'clock by the Boston and Maine and registered at the St. James hotel. In the course of the forenoon they went in search of a minister to do the need ful for them; failing in this they returned to their room at the hotel, where about 4 o'clock they found themselves confronted by the irate father and the girl was compelled to abandon her lover to the tender mercies YES. By the superior purity of the Detective Miles. She left for home with her father by last night's train, while poor Jamie was left to brood over his fallen fortunes. It is understood from Miss Stevenson's version that the young couple had on more than one occasion endeavored to get married, but the young lady's parents who were unfavorable to the match, especially at such an early age, had each time interposed their authority so at last they had determined to take the matter into their own hands.

As this is a Jury that cannot himself bring in a verdict, which duty must be left to the public, I have the utmost pleasure in giving my personal testimony to the fact that Mr. Jury and also his clever wife—a vocalist of more than ordinary ability and merit—are people who may well receive general support and confidence. Mr. Jury's bearing throughout the entire pitiful proceedings has been worthy of all praise."

THE "COMMERCIAL FORM." The Board of Education held a special meeting on Saturday afternoon with the following members present: Trustees Sanders, Griffin, Hunt, Craig, Turner, Murphy, Jeffrey, Johnston, Wilkins and Dr. Campbell, Secretary McElheran and Principal Merchant. Trustee Hunt explained that the meeting was called to consider a matter that was now in an undecided position. There was a motion passed some time ago that a commercial form be introduced into the public schools at the opening after vacation. Trustee Logan put in a motion last meeting to reconsider this at the next regular meeting in September. To decide whether this form is needed in the public schools Mr. Hunt proposed to test the views of the citizens. If they received only 25 or 30 answers they would take it for granted that the form was not wanted, but on the other hand if they received 75 or 100, or 150 applicants they weuld know that the people wanted the form and they could get it in working order. It was then moved by Trustee Hunt seconded by Trustee Griffin that the followe Hayes and Private Rob-are in Ottawa attending papers: "Commercial form pupils, attention. All pupils having passed the junior fourt or entrance examination, wishing to study commercial subjects in the public schools, are requested to present themselves to Principal R. M. Graham, at Simcoe street school, or make application to the secretary of the Board of Education, stating whether they have passed the High School entrance, on or before Tuesday the third of Septem-

An Art for Which There Should be Little Use.

Why Not Have a Better Understanding With Yourself as to What Makes Your Skin Sallow and Blotchy.

The treatment of diseases of the skin has been much studied by scientific men. Soaps, lotions, cosmetics, etc., without number have been heralded all over the country for years. It is a fact that nearly all diseases of the complexion are directly caused by some stoppage of nature's drains. All the local treatment in the world cannot permanently cure these annoying complaints. The bowels, nature's drainage system, must be kept free from clogging or disease results. Especially is this true with women. It is almost past belief to what extent female troubles are directly traceable to constipation of the bowels. The researches of an eminent physician led him to believe that much scientific treatment, with a view to regulating the bowels, was erroneous. He demonstrated that the simple remedies of nature used in as nearly a natural state as possible, were most efficient. These researches led to the production of Karl's Clover Root Tea, the greatest regulator of bowel disorders known to man. Its wonderful efficacy has amazed all who have used it.

Mr. Louis Goetz, of Buffalo, N. Y.,
President Cleveland's old caterer, says of this wonderful remedy: "I have taken Karl's Clover Root Tea every evening before going to bed, with great results. My skin looks better and the pimples are disappearing. Have been troubled for years with eruptions on the skin, and all remedies so far have failed to help me. far have failed to help me. A few doses of Karl's Clover Root Tea worked wonders."

wonders.

A proper use of this sterling remedy will insure bright, clear skin, healthy color and freedom from headache, dizziness, indigestion, and all kindred ills. It can and does cure all forms of disease resulting from a clogging of the system. This natural remedy, brewed directly from roots and herbs, strikes directly to the seat of the trouble, and is a boon to mankind. Do not suppose that you are a sufferer from some high sounding organic complaint. Look to your bowels. Keep them free and don't worry. Get a sample of Karl's Clover Root Tea at W. T. Strong's.
