Frank Manton, Though Badly Wounded, Tried to Kill Police, and When Finally Captured, Begged Them to Shoot Him -Prisoner Is at Present in Hospital.

Blackwell, June 25.—About 9 o'clock today Officer Crosbie received a tip that Frank Manton, the Russian who shot G. T. R. Policeman Marshall, was hiding at the farm of Joe Hardie, about a mile police. east of Blackwell. An automobile was made by the officers to divert suspicion. The circle gradually narrowed until they were almost on the man and then a rush was made. Three shots rang out, followed by two more, and constraints only to find that the door help, and officer Marshall rushed to his assistance, only to find that the door help and officer marshall rushed to his assistance, only to find that the door held assistance, only to find that the officers and prisoner fell to the ground in a heap.

Bryan at Democratic Convention Carries Delegates Off Their Feet.

DENOUNCES WALL STREET

Attempts to Interrupt Speech and Demonstration Meets With Failure.

[Canadian Press.]

The Democratic national convention was called to order at 12:16 p.m. Mr. Bryan surprised the convention by slipping in without anybody seeing him. He had left his hotel by the servants' elevator, avoiding the crowd awaiting him there and made his way quietly to the hall. He entered by the stage door and bobbed up in the rear of the stage by a back stairway.

The crowd of delegates on the floor below could not see him. Mr. Bryan shook hands cordially with Cardinal Gibbons. The Nebraskan then steered back into a seat well secluded from the gaze of the crowd.

The delegates at this time were in great confusion finding their seats, and apparently were not concerning themselves with Mr. Bryan or anybody

A moment after Chairman Mack began pounding for order Judge Parker appeared, making his way up the vrong aisle in search of the New York delegation. A cry of "Parker, Parker" came from the galleries, but the former presidential candidate was not generally recognized. Blind May Hear Light

London, June 24 .- Dr. Fournier d'Albe, a lecturer on physics at Birmingham University, will demonstrate tomorrow at the optical convention at South Kensington an instrument called the optophone, which is designed to enable those who are totally blind to locate and estimate light by means of the ear. The instrument is based on the property of selenium of changing its resistance when it is illuminated. This change is made to cause a current which, when interrupted by a special contrivance and transmitted through telephone receivers fitted to the head, gives an audible sound varying in loudness with the intensity of the light. The blind are enabled to locate lamps in windows and other high lights and to trace the outlines of large, welldefined objects. It is a flaming sword of protection around any woman who has a right to call upon its help. Holy motherhood, helpless widow-Let other women say aught they please entertain for the order the highest respec and profoundest reverence, for the order has the highest respect and profoundest reverence for you, counting no task too eavy, nor any sacrifice too great to reheavy, nor any sacrince too great to releve your burden and defend your unspotted name. Masonry is a woman's fair angel, protecting her virtue and granting her aid."

A Benefit and Advantage. engaged in is for your benefit and advantage. You will no doubt approclate the language of an eminent clergyman when speaking to a large gathering of Masons and their wives and families, He said: Women, women, when your husbands and sons are at a Masonic Lodge they couldn't be at any better place on earth. There was a loud applause from the male side of the house. When the hurricane had subsided, with singular emphasis he added, 'If they are there.' Loud applause from the opposition. WAS TROUBLED WITH

Weakness Palpitation OF THE HEART.

Through one cause or another a large majority of people are troubled, more or less, with some form of heart trouble. Little attention is paid to the slight weakness of the heart, but when it starts to beat irregularly or intermittently, palpitate and throb, skip beats, beats last for a time, then so slow as to seem almost to stop, then it causes great anxiety and alarm.

To all such sufferers Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills can and will give prompt and permanent relief. They do this by their restorative influence on every organ and tissue of the

Mrs. John J. Downey, New Glasgow, N.S., writes:-"Just a few lines to les you know what your Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have done for me. I was troubled with weakness and palpitation of the heart, would have severe choking spells, and could scarcely lie down at all. I tried many remedies, but got none to answer my case like your Pills. I can recommend them highly to all having heart or nerve troubles." Price 50 cents per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co.

The Whole Store Is Humming This Week With Holiday Enthusiasm

Those who intend going away, and those who stay at home, all are busy in preparation for the holiday. In every section of the store there is a business that suggests the approach of the greatest summer holiday-"Dominion Day." Attractive stocks and values are met at every hand, and we might say the largest preparations that have ever been made in London for the sake of coolness and comfort in the midst of summer heat are those which have been made this season by the Smallman & Ingram store. Everything is ready that suggests coolness, comfort and simple life. SHOP EARLY in the week and

LONDON, TUESDAY, JUNE 25. WILL BRITAIN SEEK AN ALLY?

The new German naval bill has been promptly countered by the British Government. Of the surplus of $35,-500,000 on last year's accounts, $5,000,-000 has been earmarked to swell the shipbuilding programme for the present year, outlined by Mr. Churchill a few weeks ago.

In his portentous speech, Mr. Churchill announced the determination of the Government to maintain a margin of 60 per cent, over the German strength in battleships; and he intimated that if Germany hastened her pace this year he would ask for a supplementary grant. At the same time he offered to curtail the British programme, or to call a halt for a year en shipbuilding, if Germany would do the same. Germany has not responded to these overtures. On the contrary, the Reichstag has sanctioned an increase in the naval appropriations. It is to meet this increase that Mr. Lloyd George assigns $5,000,000 of his surplus to the Admiralty.

The prospect of an Anglo-German understanding which would lighten the burden of armaments, is not so bright as it appeared some months ago. Public discussion is turning toward the question of hardening the Franco-British entente into a military alliance, as a counterpoise to the Triple Alliance-Germany, Austria and Italy. But the condition of such a bargain would be the adoption of conscription in the United Kingdom. French publicists are quite frank in their insistence on this. The British navy could not protect France against a land invasion by the Triple Alliance, small. The British press is speculating whether Lord Haldane had this contingency in mind in his address upon P. or C. N. do next? We shall hear retiring from the War Secretaryship of them managing the governments to become Lord Chancellor. He used perhaps in distant as well as nearer this language, which in the mouth of lands. a Liberal minister sounded strange

"The voluntary system is our systo the distant parts of the Empire, which require us to keep garrisons overseas and expeditionary requirements which cannot be raised on anything but a professional or voluntary basis. That may alter. There s no magic in these things.

'The question of whether you have voluntary or compulsory vice depends entirely upon the principles of your foreign policy, and the problems with which you are confronted. I have always tried to teach fellow-countrymen the truth that the organization of armies and fleets depends upon foreign policy different foreign policy-and twenty years after this our foreign require quite a different organization. For the present what we have to do is to watch national necessities changed conditions of policy and see war and peace. that we do the best with the resources we have got." An organization in Great Britain headed by Lord Roberts is openly advocating compulsory military training, but Lord Haldane is the first cabinet minister to even hint that the voluntary system might not be perman-Lord Rosebery, in a recent speech, warned the country that if Great Britain is to enter the system of European alliances she must adopt the continental military system. Are Britons prepared to pay such a price for a European ally? Is the position of "splendid isolation" which Britain occupied for so many years no longer tenable? Has all possibility of an entente with Germany vanished? These are questions which are being asked in serious and responsible quarters.

THE BLOT ON EDUCATION.

The report of Mr. Pease, president of the British Board of Education, made to the House of Commons, bears out the account of the educational situation in the old country given in these columns a few days ago, Canada is not much better off. Mr. Fease pointed out that the greatest blot on the present system was the general fa'lure to continue education after the ordinary low school age. Of 384,000 children attending between 13 and 14, only 36,000 go on between 14 and 15-not 10 per cent!

One result of so wholesale a discontinuance of study at the earliest legal age is that much of the money spent on "a little learning" is wasted. Another result is that the nation loses a vast deal of intellectual and moral wealth which remains unenergized: the land is full of mute, inglorious heroes that might have been. Incidentally, as Germany, the great business rival, keeps adolescents at school up to the age of 18, she is harvesting before England has even sown, and newspaper organ? The talk of tariff each day along with occupational employment. The London Chronicle says:

"Mr. Pease is personally quite alive, as the Prime Minister, too, has in several speeches shown himself, to the importance of this problem of adolescence. What the board of education can do administratively to stimulate continuation schools and evening classes is being done. But no great advance will be made until the school age is definitely raised, and until, beyond that employers are obliged to give their juvenile employees time off to attend classes.

"To preach evening classes as the salvation of a young person who does nine or ten hours of hard noneducative industrial work during the day, is evidently a gospel of limited application.'

The Ontario Government has now entatively and timidly act d along the ine urged by the Chronicle. It is waitng for school boards to take advantage of the Adolescent School Attendance Act. The principle of compulsion may have to be introduced on a Provincial scale if individual municipalities do not soon make a move.

CANADIAN ENTERPRISE IN EUROPE.

The announcement that the C. P. R has arranged with the Austrian state railways to run its magnificent "observation cars" over their lines, for the benefit of tourists, emphasizes the broad-minded policy of the Austrian national railway system and the business enterprise of our C. P. R.

Such a move will be a good thing for both Austria and Canada. The cars will be run in connection with the C. P. R. steamship traffic. They will be widely advertised throughout North America, along with the glories of Austrian scenery. In Austria they will be a perpetual reminder of that It seemed your childish feet were tired country whose heritage is the Twentieth Century, and within whose spacious ground so many Austrians already have found homes of comfort and plenty.

The present British Government came into office in January, 1906. Since then it has reduced the public debt dy £78,184,000, or nearly $395,000,000. The Winnipeg Telegram hints that if it were not for the senate's rejection of the bill to appoint a tariff commission, the Borden Government would cut the duties on other goods besides cement. The senate did not reject the bill. THE VICAR DID HIS DUTY

[S. L. Hughes, M. The meeting had been called together for the purpose of welcoming the prospective Tory candidate for the Lancashire Division. There are two subjects of perennial interest, the weather and human health. And the effort to discover what makes weather and the investigation into the causes of the ills of man, the proper study of mankind, have produced a crop of printed matter from the days of Galen and Hippocrates to the era of Osler and Flexner. In the middle ages the weather man, then called the astrologist, and the "doctour of physik" were one and the same person; today the meteorologist pursues a separate path from that of the medico. Still, today as of old, both the weather man and the medical man are good at guessing, but they do it with discretion; they do not make the mistake of their forbears-few of them publish their theories and guesses in popular but I notice that he is very conservative form. There be some weather prophets, however, who keep up the old practice of foretelling weather for a month or six weeks ahead, and an occasional doctor writes for the "Ladies' Home Journal" his latest thoughts on how to feed babies. But few docof the family who has not been hurt in tors venture outside the technical journals, and there they write in a language that the uninitiated cannot un-[Richard Middleton, from "Poems and derstand, so garnished is it with that wonderful medical jargon of which the profession is so proud.

I daresay there would be a flood of literature from medical men, tracts, articles, books, written in the language of the common people, if they only dared. But they dare not. For there is an unwritten law among the profession that the man who rushes into popular print is either a quack or a seeker after notoriety. Hence doctors are even afraid to allow their names to be used in newspaper interviews, for fear of exciting suspicion among their brethren. Now this unwritten law has So still your hair, but surely you were come down from those old days which I have been speaking, when there were so many bookmakers among God knows, and in His proper time the profession. The public read the latest pronouncements on the ills that flesh is heir to with a morbid curiosity and every new reputed discovery was as welcome as the flowers in May.

A writer in the "Journal of the American Medical Association" has dug up one of those queer old tracts which abounded in the days of Pope and It is in accord neither with economic Swift. It is entitled, "An Essay law nor the eternal fitness of things nor Health and Long Life" and was published in 1725 by George Cheney, an Aberdonian, who died in Bath, Engfancy that the something wrong is right land, in 1743. As the book went through four editions it must have been warmly welcomed by the curious public. In his preface this Scotchman, who descended to practice upon the innocent English, says, "I have consulted nothing but my own experience and observation on my own crazy carcase and the infirmities of others I have treatin a cold bath, began to scold him. ed." His opening sentence is that often attributed to Franklin: "It is a common saying that every man past forty Demonstration: is either a fool or a physician."

As the result of his observations he lays down at the outset, under the subject of "Air," these quaint principles: 'Valetudinary, studious and contemplative Persons who have been much exposed or long abroad in a Northerly or bleakish Easterly Wind," should drink down, going to bed, a large Draught of warm Water-gruel, or of warm, small Mountain-wine Whey, as an antidote against the nitrous Effluvia, suck'd into the Body, and to open the Obstructions of the Perspiration made thereby." "In sickly, studious and sedentary people, the nitrous and watery particles of the Air get a ready and free Entrance into the Blood. . . And thus begets all these Disorders of the Body, that Air thus and thus poisoned, was shewn capable to produce."

MY OLD FRIEND'S SON

[BY WINIFRED BLACK.]

[Copyright: 1912.] I saw him at the theatre the other day-my old friend's son.

He had only a few lines to say in the play, but there was something in his voice and in the way he carried his head that attracted my attention. looked on the bills-yes, it was the same name-let's see, ten, fifteen, sixteen, seventeen, just about that by now, my friend's son-the little tyke who dragged me to the nursery to see his new and watched the star and her troubles, as his part bade him do, and there was something wistful and strained about his face that called to me like a well-loved and well-remembered voice, and I changed my mind. I went back and hunted up the boy, and he looked at me with eyes full of unshed tears when I mentioned his mother's name, and all the rest of that week we were friends, the boy and I. And now we shall be friends as long as we live, the two of us. And he did need me that very day, too. He was trying to make up his mind about something, and we talked the whole tangled, foolish, complicated affair all over, the boy and I, and I helped him decide to do the square thing, even if it did turn out to be a little troublesome, and I almost heard my old friend's voice calling to me in the wind and it never sounded sweeter in all the times I

Why not tell the hobbledehoy about it, and tell him what a fine fellow his father was, and is, too? He is a little worried about it now, he is so different from the rest of the kind in his class.

Who is so lonesome on earth as a boy away from home among strangers? Rest light, little mother, in your low grave. I knew you once and loved you, and for your sake that boy of yours shall never want for a friend as long as I shall live. Give me your hand, dear boy with your mother's eyes. No. I won't sentimentalize over you. I won't lecture you. I'll just love you and never say a word about it—boy fashion. Hark! > "Chillen keep in de middle of de road. Oh, den chillen, keep in de middle of de road; Don't you look to de right, Don't you look to de left, But keep in de middle of de road.'

What a quaint darky accent she could make, and how we used to love to hear her sing the old jubilee song, "Des Keep to de Middle of de Road." Dear friend, your little dancing feet walked down shadowed roads before you came to the end, didn't they?

But you sang all the way, they tell me, "Keep in de middle of de road."
Well, that boy of yours shall keep there, too, if there is any virtue in love and earnest effort to help him to remember.

LUNCHEON DISHES

Fruit may be the first or the final breakfast dainty, according to the preference of the family. Scrambled eggs with tomatoes make a popular early morning dish. Rice muffins are delicious with hot cocoa, an invigorating drink for cool mornings.

Rice Muffins.

One cupful of milk, one and one-half cupfuls of flour, one-half cupful of cold boiled rice, two scant teaspoonspoonful of batter and one egg. Mix the dry ingredients and rub them through a sieve into a bowl. Melt the butter and beat it into the rice. Beat the egg and add it to the milk. Add this mixture to the dry ingredients, then stir in the rice, beating all together quickly and well. Bake gem pans 25 minutes in a moderate

Add to them a level tablespoon of salt, two of molasses, one teaspoon of black pepper and one quart of hot water. Place the pot in a cool oven and bake slowly; as the water boils away or s absorbed by the beans fill the pot with omatoes (canned or fresh may be used; if fresh, peel and cut into pieces). Long and slow baking is required, and one quart of tomatoes should be used. If more moisture is equired after this quantity has been used, add hot water. Let them cook at least 10 hours-12 is better. This is a delicious dish and can be rewarmed as often as necessary.

With rice well cooked and a green salad dressed simply with a French dressing, it forms a perfect meal, and you are saved the cost of the salt perk. Beans baked in this way and sealed in jars while hot will keep as long as any canned food.

And a laugh from the brook that runs to the sea.' -William Cullen Bryant.

There are seasons when Nature seems to give a patient smile, as if she would like to laugh, but the burden of gray storm clouds is too heavy. There are other seasons when, bleak and desolate, she turns a bereaved face toward us. These seasons do not last long.

Taking her twelve months in the year, she furnishes a splendid and inspiring example of a brave and happy spirit. Her frowns do not last, and when she smiles into sunshine her smile is so bright the frown is forgotten.

Of all the seasons when she is hap piest and gayest, there is none like summer. It is then that she fairly ubbles over with joy. She titters in every melting snowdrop, she twinkles n every fresh blade of grass; she chuckles and giggles and smiles in

The fourth proved another bad session for Reitzman. He walked McManus, the first man, and hit Burke, the next man. Schwind dumped one in front of the plate, putting a man on second and third with only one down. Dolan then drove the ball to right centre, scoring two runs but was nipped going to second. Robertson was passed and got to second on Nichols' miscue of Louden's drive. Robertson and Louden worked a double steal, and the former scored when Brant allowed Cook's smash to go through him. Ottawa got smash to go through him. Ottawa got another in the sixth on two hits and an error. The Senators put over their last run in the eighth when Callahan tripled

What the Others Are Saying

Glints From Papers on Canadian League Circuit.

HEARD IN THE HAMILTON CLUB HOUSE.

Hamilton Spectator: "We've got the best club in the league," said Joe Keenan. "Yes, and we'll be in first place by the end of the week," was Scotty Cameron's come-back. "Before that," chimed in Bill Lane, while Conny Murphy said little, but got busy with a pencil and figured that the trick could be turned by SHOULD HAVE HAD AN ALARM CLOCK.

Hamilton Spectator: Red Fisher and Maguire missed their train connections this morning from Buffalo, where they spent Sunday with their people. As a result they will not reach Berlin in time for the game today.

ABOUT A MONTH LATE AS USUAL.

Hamilton Spectator: The official averages, including batting, fielding and pitchers' records, are now on the press and will be published tomorrow. These show the Hamilton club to be by far the best hitting club in the league, the Kolts have no less than six .300 hitters among the regulars, including Cameron, Keenan, Killilea, Lane, Corns and Fisher. This is a pretty good record, and it makes the local infield look all the better when it is considered that all four, Lane, Killilea, Cameron and Keenan, are hitting over the .300 mark. Six hitters of this calibre will win the majority of their games, especially as Murphy and Maguire are both over the .250 mark.

WE CALL IT GOOD LUCK. Brantford Expositor: With two down in the ninth on Saturday at London Manager Bowerman put in as a pinch hitter a player who has been playing the bench because of his inability to hit. This despised gentleman rapped out a single that beat Brantford. What do you know about that for hard luck?

SOMETHING PECULIAR ABOUT THIS. Guelph Mercury: Financing a professional baseball team in a small city is not all roses. Many fans imagine, when they see the local grandstand pretty well filled, and hear of the Guelph team playing before 2,000 at Ottawa, and Berlin. other of the larger places, that the money end of the business is coming along all right. It may be a matter of information to the fans to know that the Guelph team lost $55 on the games at Ottawa last week. When berths, railroad tickets and hotel bills are added to the salary list, as well as the bus and other small expenses, it does not take very long for the $75 gate guarantee per game to melt into nothing. That explains how it was that on the four games played the Guelph club went in the hole.

ST. THOMAS GETS THE HOOK. St. Thomas Journal: The Canadian League race is looked upon as a very open one, with every team playing good ball and making every effort to strengthen up. The St. Thomas club has hooks out for two more good Competing for. Some valuable prizes are also offered in addition to the trophy list, and all Ontario bowling clubs are invited to take part in the tournament. The draw will be made this evening following the closing of the entry list, and will be a Big Success.

The Scotch doubles tournament of the London Thistie Bowling Club will commence tomorrow afternoon at 1:30 o'clock and it promises to exceed all previous tournaments for size of entry lists. Already the Thistle Club has received a large number of entries, and as the list does not close until this evening, it is expected that there will be many more. Some valuable prizes are offered for the tournament, which was inaugurated last season with so much success. A number of valuable trophies are given as prizes, and they are certainly worth so the control of the published.

the middleweight champion of France and England, was disqualified in the nineteenth round of his fight with Frank Klaus, the Pittsburg middleweight, here today. Both men used rough tactics, and Klaus worked his elbows into the Frenchman's face in the clinches. In the nineteenth, Carpentier's manager, believing that Klaus had struck the Frenchman a foul blow on the chin with his elbow, jumped into the ring and threw up the sponge. Carpentier protested that he was able and willing to finish, but owing to the interference of his manager, the referee disqualified Carpentier.

London, June 25.—The third match for the cricket championship of the world was started yesterday between England and Australia. In the first two contests both the mother country and Australia scored signal victories over South Africa, and the present match was awaited with interest. Rain somewhat interfered, and cut short the time of playing. England opened the batting, and when play ceased for the day had scored 211 runs for four wickets.

UNION PACIFIC

is still the only route. For it costs no more than any of the ordinary ways.

Now, let us see what it gives you in return:

The Union Pacific is a double-tracked road - the trains all un one way.

It is guarded with Automatic Electric Block Safety Signals. Its roadbed is the finest in the world. It is ballasted with dustless Sherman gravel. The very pebbles are laid by hand like a great mosaic, both sides of the way. This means cool cars, like open carriages, both night and day.

It is the oldest road, and so its courtesy is best. Many of its attendants have grown gray in the one service.

It is the smoothest road. It is laid with ninety-pound steel rails and its powerful engines glide along like purring dynamos.

It will actually put you in Colorado tomorrow night - a trip that took your fathers months to make before this railroad came.

It is both pioneer and leader of the railroad world. And this hundredmillion-dollar road of luxury costs you no more than the ordinary way. Which of the five routes do you think you will take?

"Martha," she said to the old servant who had come in response to her ring, "I want you to go home with Miss Mitford. You must not go alone, dear. Good-night."
"Thank you very much, Mrs. Varney," "Thank you very much, Mrs. Varney," answered Caroline. "Come, Martha." As she turned, she hesitated. "You don't reckon she could go with me somewhere else, do you?"
"Why, where else do you want to go at this hour, my dear girl?" asked Mrs. Varney.

"Yes," answered Caroline, "it is on yery important business, and—I—"
"Oh," returned Mrs. Varney, "if that is the case, Martha must go with you."
"You know we haven't a single servant with you where the one whose," Caroline said in explanation of her request.
"I know," said Mrs. Varney, "and, Martha, don't leave her for an instant."
"No'm," answered Martha, "Ah'll take the one who suggester that—"
"But I was sure then, and now—"
"Her her extended hand.
"I want to speak to you," whispered the girl. "We can't wait," said Arrelsford, stepping forward.
"You must," persisted the girl. She turned to her mother again, "I can't! Oh, let me go!"
"But, my dear," said her mother, "you were the one who suggester that—"
"But I was sure then, and now—"

As soon as she had left the room, pass ing between the two soldiers, Arrelsford took up the conversation. He spoke quickly and in a sharp voice. He was widently excited.

What is she going to do at the teleraph office?" he asked.
"I have no idea," answered the woman.
"Has she had any conversation with him?" said Arrelsford, pointing to the front of the house.

"They were talking together in this came. but it room early this evening before you came the first time, but it isn't possible she tell me.

Anything is possible," snapped Arrels-Anything is possible, snapped Affels-ford impatiently. He was evidently de-termined to suspect everybody, and leave no stone unturned to prevent the fallure of his plans. "Corporal," he cried, "have Eddinger follow that girl. He must get to the telegraph office as soon as she does, and don't let any dispatch she tries to send get out before I see it. Let her live it in, but hold it. Make no mistake about that. Get an order from the department for you to bring it to me." As the Corporal saluted and turned away to give the order, Arrelsford faced Mrs. Varney again. "Are they both out

'Yes," answered the woman. "Did you "Yes," answered the woman. "Did you bring the man from Libby Prison?"
"I did, the guards have him out in the street on the other side of the house. When we get Thorne in here alone I'll have him brought over to that back winlow and shoved into the room."

"He won't see you it it is dark in the hall." He turned to the Corporal who had re-entered and resumed his station.
"Turn out those lights out there," he said. "We can close these curtains, can't "Certainly," said Mrs. Varney, open-ing the rear door and drawing the heavy portleres, but leaving space between them to that anyone in the dark hall could see through them but not be seen from the Montreal.

'I don't want too much light in here, either," said Arrelsford. As he spoke he blew out the candles in the two candelabra which had been placed on the different tables, and left the large. on the different tables, and left the large, long room dimly illuminated by the candles in the sconces on the walls.

dles in the sconces on the walls.

Mrs. Varney watched him with fascinated awe. In spite of herself there still lingered a hope that Arrelsford might be mistaken. Thorne had enlisted her interest, and he might under other conditions have aroused her matronly affections, and she was hoping against hope that he might yet prove himself innecent not only because of his personinnocent, not only because of his personality, but as well because the thought that she might have entertained a spy was repugnant to her, and because honor of the Dumont family, which was one of the oldest and most important from Glasgow.

Arrelsford, meantime, completed his preparations by moving the couch which Caroline Mitford had placed before the window back to the wall.

"Now, Mrs. Varney," he said, stepping far back out of sight of the window, will you open the curtains? Do it casually, carelessly, please, so as not to awaken suspicion if you are seen."

"But your soldiers, won't they—"

"They are all at the back of the house. They came in the back way, and the field in front is absolutely clear, although I have men concealed in the street to stop anyone who may attempt to escape that way."

Mrs. Varney walked over to the window and drew back the curtains. She stood

Mrs. Varney walked over to the window and drew back the curtains. She stood for a moment looking out into the clear, peaceful quietness of a soft spring night. The moon was full, and being somewhat low shone through the long windows and into the room, the candle light not being bright anough to dim its radiance. Her bright enough to dim its radiance. Her task being completed, she turned, and once more the man who was in command pointed across the hall toward the room on the other side.

"Impossible!" returned Mrs. Varney controlling her voice so that the other occupant of the room could not hear. "Yes," faltered the girl, "and I-someone else must do it."

LONDON ORANGEMEN TO PAY ST. THOMAS VISIT

Will Attend Divine Service in Railway City On Sunday.

Arrangements have been completed by which a large party of local Orangemen will go to St. Thomas by special train on Sunday next and march to church in the afternoon. On the following Sunday, July 7, the St. Themas Orangemen will pay a return visit, and will attend a service here accompanied by the London Orangemen. Rev. Mr. Appleyard will preach

Next Sunday the recently organized fife and drum band, which is eighteen strong, and is under the leadership of Mr. Robert Clare, will make its first ublic appearance. The local men have nvited the members of the Sons of England and the ladies' Orange lodges to go with them to St. Thomas, and a arge turnout is expected.

A committee composed of Wor. Bro F. H. Wright, chairman, and Wor. Bros. George Loney, secretary; A. Niven and T. Fox, is looking after the arrangements. This year the big Twelfth of July celebration will be held in Brantford, and plans are nearing completion for the massing of all the Orangemen of East Middlesex there. CHANGES WERE MADE IN VICTORIA STAFF

"Why, where else do you want to go at this hour, my dear girl?" asked Mrs. Varney.

"Just to—to the telegraph office," answered Caroline.

Mr. Arreisford, who had been waiting with ill-concealed impatience during this dialogue, started violently.

"Now!" exclaimed Mrs. Varney in great surprise, not noticing the actions of her latest guest. "At this time of night?"

"Yes," answered Caroline, "it is on the side," she said.

There was no doubt at all, he said, about the enormous possibilities of that great country; there was an increase from year to year of products coming from that quarter, especially cotton and wheat. It was undoubtedly to the interests of Great Britain to assist every new cotton-producing This was a lesson which Britain had had in the shortage from the United States of America last year, of the injurious effect upon our otton industry. It showed that it vas a dangerous thing to rely exclusively upon one particular source of supply for one of our most important Having given figures of the exports of Uganda cotton in recent years, Mr. Lloyd George proceeded to say that this year it was expected that there be 105,000 hundredweight exported from Uganda alone. Last year, for the first time, there were exports from the protectorate. Railsteamboats and piers were quite inadequate to the development of that new source of supply According to reports to the colonia, office the products were rotting on the wharves and platforms for lack of carrying capacity and storing room. What was wanted was a large number of engines, carriages and stores, also development of the roads, especially in the district of Lake Kioga, which was one of the most promising districts of the whole empire for cotton growing. In this connection chancellor said he was told that owing to the lack of road accommodation the natives could not bring their product to the lake. The natives were very much discouraged at this situation, because, having produced the cotton under the stimulus of great promises, they found it very disappointing that they could not get their cotton away.

The remaining five million of the surplus should, he said, be devoted to the redemption of debt. The total reduction of debt effected by the present Government, including millions, would be £78,184,000, and he asked as a matter of fair play that when comments were made upon the price of consols, adverse to the Government, the figures of the debt reduction should be goon as well.

and Is Working Hard.

Goderich, June 25. — The camp of 1912 will, it is expected, be remembered as one of the most practical training camps that has ever been held in this district. Every officer and every man is out to make the most of the few days that will be spent in active work, and all are working their hardest. The manoeuvres are constantly varied, it being the aim of the staff to produce conditions which will apthose the men would face in actual warfare. Cheers for Bryas. When the cardinal concluded, Senator Kern, Bryan's candidate for temporary chairman, entered the hall. In a moment, one of the galleries behind the platform started a cheer for

Bryan. "Bryan, Bryan," they shouted, and disorder broke loose again. Mack pounded his gavel in vain for several minutes, but finally secured enough quiet to proceed. Chairman Mack directed the ancuncement of the temporary organzation.

The first name, Allen Barker, of ew York, for temporary chairman, was greeted with a wave of cheering to which the band added its lively strains, the music drowning out the demonstration. The secretary then proceeded with the announcement of the other officers. As the list was concluded Mr. Bryan tepped forward. The crowd caught ight of him for the first time and there was a storm of cheerisg.

Mr. Bryan shook his head, held u his hand, and made other attempts to quell the outburst. This failing the and began to play. Mr. Bryan sat down, fanning himself nervously with a big palm leaf.

The band stopped and Mr. Bryan tinued, however, for several minutes more, the galleries being the last to subside. Bryan finally secured quiet and began speaking, placing in nomination for temporary chairman Senator John W Kern of Indiana. The delegates rose, cheered and swung their hats. Bryan spoke slowly, his words be ing punctuated with cheers. "If any of you ask for my credentials." said, "I beg to tell you that in three campaigns I have been the champion of the Democratic party's principles, and in three campaigns have received the votes of six and one-half million

Democrats. Tumultuous cheering. "Has anyone sought harmony more than I?" asked Bryan.

"No, no!" came from all over the Bryan said he had urged the national committee to consult the candidates, particularly the two leading candidates, but without avail.

The friends of Wilson had united with those of Clark in favor of a candidate for temporary chairman, continued Bryan, and had been 'turned down" by the national committee. "What better man could we find than Kern " exclaimed Mr. Bryan.

came shouts, mingled with "Kern." Bryan had spoken 22 minutes when there were demonstrative interruptions from the galleries, with cries of 'Parker.'

Bryan's stirring sentences soon had the crowds cheering again. "We are writing history today," he exclaimed, "and the country is waiting to hear whether this convention will follow Chicago in listening to the voice of predatory wealth."

Bryan said the President had not forgotten the promise of campaign funds from Wall street eight years After Bryan had spoken 36 minutes there was another outburst of Parker shouts from the galleries. Bryan closed at 1:38 p.m., multuous cheers, after speaking forty minutes Senator Kern took the platform as Bryan closed and was mildly cheered.

HYMAN HALL WILL BE A BOWER OF BEAUTY

London Horticultural Society Will Make a Fine Showing.

The officers of the London Horticultural Society are very enthusiastic over the prospects for a fine flower show in Hyman Hall on Wednesday and Thursday of this week. Entries continue to pour in and some excep-tionally fine exhibits are looked for. The frequent rains during the past ew weeks have had a good effect upon many varieties and as a consequence he show should be particularly pleasing to flower lovers on this occasion.

It is understood that several horticulturists have developed novelties that should attract some attention at the

PRIZE WINNERS WERE GIVEN THEIR REWARDS

Closing Exercises Held in the Catholic Commercial Institute, Monday Night.

The closing exercises of the Catho-lic Commercial Institute, held last held in this province in the month of lic Commercial Institute, held last neld in this province in the month of night in the parish hall on Richmond street, attracted a very appreciative audience. Senator Coffey presided, and mgr. Aylward and a number of the from all over Ontario, some from as priests were present. The programme was designed to show the work being done by the students, and the verdict was that the institute is setting a very high standard.

Mgr. Aylward, Senator Coffey and Schools Inspector Sullivan congratu-lated the students upon the excellent showing. A feature of the work was the training in oratory, the youthful speakers, including little Master Insell, who described himself as "a budding Cicero," especially distinguishing themselves.

Josephine McCarthy, a child with a remarkably sweet voice, sang a selection, "Home Sweet Home," which made an instantaneous hit. The selections from Tom Moore were also family-useful as well as excellent.

Interesting Debate.

A debate on the subject, "Resolved, that literature has done more for the uplifting of mankind than invention, proved very interesting. The arguments were thorough and showed much painstaking preparation, and in the end, Senator Coffey, while admit ting that both sides had put up a gallant battle, declared in favor of the affirmative, and literature won.

The presentation of the prizes formed a pleasing feature of the pro gramme. Five dollars in gold, donated Mr. T. Aust, for penmanship, went Marjorie Daly, while Palmer, Alma Johnston and Mae Jenkins also shared in prizes given by Mr.

Another prize of $5 in gold, given by Mr. E. J. Carty, for the best essay on ahead with the day. "Canada Since Confederation," was won by Jento Tierney. It was regrettable that owing to a prolonged illness the winner could not be present, and his prize was handed to J. Insell, a classmate, who will see that it is placed in his hands.

Mgr. Aylward presented the prizes.

The Programme.

The programme was as follows: Opening address, F. Devaney; history of bookeeping, H. Palmer; sten-ography, H. Cloghesy, A. Johnston and A. Burke; typewriting, V. Traher, F. Devaney and E. Martin; chorus, the boys; typewriting test, H. Cloghesy, L. Maynard, M. Jenkins, A. Johnston M. O'Rourke; literature, J. Gleeson, F. Devaney, J. Coughlin, H. Nopper and B. Webb; selections from Moore, G. Flynn, J. McCarthy, R. Burns; literature, R. Burns, M. Daly, W. Mohan; song, "Home, Sweet Home" J. Mc-Carthy, essay, "Canada Since Con-federation," J. Tierney; awarding of prizes by Mgr. Aylward, D. P.
