MOTION TO RESCIND AMENDMENT BARRED

J. L. Brown's Resolution on Church Union Fails Before Private Bills Committee Today and Will Be Introduced in House—Committee's Rights To Change Bill Are Questioned.

UNIONIST AMENDMENT ON VOTING CARRIES

Special to The Advertiser
by a Staff Reporter.
Ottawa, June 11.—J. L. Brown's motion in the private bills committee to rescind the amendment to the preamble of the church union bill was today ruled out of order. It will be reintroduced in

A unionist amendment providing that the vote of non-concurring churches be taken six months before the act comes into force was passed. It was also decided that the vote must not be taken during the months of July and August.

Mr. Brown questioned the right of a committee of parliament to prescribe to the churches the means whereby they should reach their decisions. The committee should ratify the right of the churches to use their own means. QUESTIONS INVOLVED.

It is a measure we had long been fighting for to give the outside city workers a two-weeks' holiday with pay each year, and it's a shame to try to repeal it in this way, just when the law would have come into effect. It's repeat it in this way, just when the law would have come into effect. It's not a fair move at all, and the Labor Party will certainly have a delega-tion at the council meeting on Monday night to protest.

"The claim of Ald. Greer that the men are working overtime and being paid by the hour has nothing to do with the case at all. A man doesn't work overtime because he wants to, but because he needs the money or because he can't afford to offend his boss by refusing to do the extra work to a time when perhaps there is a special rush. Mothers Advise Their Daughters to Rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to Keep Them in Health

A Mother's Advice Restores Mrs. Hall to Health

Lindsay, Ontario.— "I had very poor blood and was bothered with pains in my side and back. I took kidney medicine for a while without success. I got pale, weak and ner-vous. My mother, who has used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Com-pound for a number of years with very good results, advised me to take it and I did. It did me worlds of good. I have gained twenty pounds and have not felt so well for a long time. You may use this letter as a testimonial to help others if you think it worth it."-Mrs. MARY E. HALL, R. R. 5, Lindsay, Ontario.

A Sickly Child

Mahoningtown, Pa. - "I would like to say a few words about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. About a year ago I thought it would be necessary for me to take my daughter out of school. She was losing weight, was nervous, and when she would come home from school the would drop into a chair and cry, and say, 'Mamma, I don't believe I sen go to school another day!'

gave her Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and now she is a healthy, happy, hearty, strong girl and weighs 120 pounds. She has no difficulty in doing her 'gym' work, and she works at home every night and morning, too. I am a mother who can certainly praise your medicine, and if it will be of any benefit you may use this letter as a reference."— Mrs. GEORGE E. WHITACRE, 621 W. Madison Avenue, Mahoning-

Registration of students who intend taking up studies in secondary schools next term is progressing well. In South London Collegiate Institute the present students have been timely fin asserting their intentions for next year, and the total enrollment is expected to be heavy.

"We will have at least 60 to 70 more students next years." Principal T. S. H. Graham stated today. However, registration of Grade VIII bubils might be better, and he urged early registration.

At the Technical High School, the Central and East Collegiates, the regist ration of Grade VIII students has not been exceptionally heavy, and early action on the part of parents is hoped for, as it means much in establishing and making early plans.

Zephyrs," to the final number, "The Evening Rainbow," the pretty little fairy play presented last night in St. Andrew's Hall was a delight. En-titled "The Fairies' Child," the play is fanciful and adapts itself beautifully to effective costuming. The Ladies' Aid of the church, under whose direction the play was given, used every opportunity to gain pretty effects. The costumes were very lovely and the settings attractive. The occasion was a flower festival yesterday in which insurgents in the given under the auspices of this orsenate and the house heard them-

The story of the play concerns the small daughter of a woodcutter, who has strayed into the forest on a magic night—a night on which the queen of the fairies must grant whatever request a mortal makes. Hiding behind the rushes, she hears that her brother, lost many years, is living with the fairies, and is successful in making the Fairy Queen grant him his release, and the two go home in triumph. The dance of the zephyrs, the pretty tableau of the evening rainbow, the humorous dance of the "Four Frogs," all were excellently done by the large company of young girls and boys taking part. The play was skillfully directed by Mrs. Robert MacDonald,

Police Scout Suicide Theory

As Suspicious Circumstances
Are Revealed.

Special to The Advertiser by a Staff Reporter.

Listowel, June 10. — Provincial police, investigating the circumstances surrounding the death of the late William Hone, who was found dead with a revolver near his hand dead with a revolver near his hand on May 28 on his farm a few miles from the town, and who was believed to have committed suicide, have shown that they are still not satisfied that the man took his own life, for they have made a second arrest following their investigations the last few days of rumors that the man had been numbered. last few days of rumors that the man had been murdered.

Harry Thibideau, a boy of 16, is the second person to be apprehended by the police working on the case. Melville Cummings, who along with Thibideau, had slept at Hone's farm the night previous to his death, and who later discovered the dead body, was arrested last Friday on a nominal charge of vagrancy. Both are being held in the Stratford jail as witnesses for the inquest which is inal charge of vagrancy. Both are being held in the Stratford jail as witnesses for the inquest which is to take place at Monkton June 17. Following the exhumation of the cody today and the conducting of a body today and the conducting of a post-mortem examination by Coroner James Moore and two other local medical men, further sensational de-velopments have been announced. Discover Fracture.

Coroner Moore told The Advertiser that besides the bullet hole, which penetrated the skull, a very serious racture was also found during the day's examination, "one extending almost the entire distance around the nead with several other smaller fractures leading from it. I have seen many bad fractures of the skull, but never one quite as bad as that on the skull of the deceased," he said. "I am not saying that the bullet didn't cause it, but it seems extra-ordinary to me that its entry would ause such a serious break." "Were there any other markings on he head that would-indicate that a low had been struck?" asked The Advertisere

"No, we looked for that but were unable to find any bruises or abrasions on the skin. 'It would seem from that the bullet had caused the fractures, but they were so big that it caused a doubt in our minds."

"Furthermore the absence of the control of the contro "Furthermore the absence of any singeing of the hair where the bullet are still working on any clues that entered the head leaves room for may throw further light on the case fired from close range and therefore not self-inflicted. Then again experts say that a bullet fired from close range would make a larger aperture of a self-inflicted the supposed mysterious would be made have not materialized "So far, the gun found beside the bed where the dead man lay has no been where the dead man lay has no entering than on coming out. We found the opposite to be the case in our examination."

"Then in your opinion you would say it was murder and not suicide?"

The Advertiser questioned. Spector McCaffery told The Advertiser.

Mrs. Hone, the wife of the decased man, was unable to identify it. "I don't know whether it is his ay it was murder and not suicide?"
The Advertiser questioned.

Still a Mystery. "No, I am unable to say what it is. The whole thing so far remains mystery to me. There is ample is. The whole thing so lat teacher a mystery to me. There is ample evidence to show that it was a case of self-destruction, and there is still other evidence that, unless explained, would clearly point to foul play. The post-mortem has not satisfied us one way or the other. It will have to be left until the inquest to decide."

District Inspector J. McCaffery of the provincial police, who is in charge of the cast, was asked if it was because of the findings announc-ed by the coroner following the in-quest that the young lad Thibideau was placed under arrest was placed under arrest.
"Well, partly," he declared, "but we had contemplated taking him into custody as an important witness be-fore the body was exhumed."

An interesting angle of the case was related to The Advertiser by Inspector McCaffrey regarding the statement given to him by Thibideau.

"According to the boy," he said, "According to the boy," he said, there was another man with him in the house besides Cummings and the lad the night previous to the tragedy whose name so far has not been mentioned. The unknown man left late in the evening and the three others slept in the same bed the rest of the night. In the morning, Cummings and Thibideau got up, but Hone remained in bed. The boy said that there were some pigs to sell, so he remained in bed. The boy said that there were some pigs to sell, so he went out to the barn to hitch up the horses, while Cummings remained in the house alone with Hone. As he passed the door Cummings came out passed the door Cummings came out of the house and drove away. That was about 8 o'clock in the morning. When they returned, Cummings was the first to find the dead body."

Thibideau Talks. Thibideau was interviewed by The Advertiser at his home on the out-skirts of the town several hours before his arrest was made. He is what one would call a mere child, hardly looking more than 13 or 14 years of age. All afternoon he had been fishing in a creek,

"What do you know about the death of Mr. Hone?" he was asked,
"All I know is that he had committed suicide."

"What makes you think that?"
"He had been talking about it the night before. He said that he felt so disgusted with himself that he felt like taking a gun and putting a bullet through him."
"Did you ever see Mr. Hone with a revolver?"
"No I didn't know he had any I

"No, I didn't know he had one. had never seen a gun around the house before, and I had been working with Mr. Hone for over a week."
"Was Mr. Hone alive when you left him in the morning?" "Yes, he was lying in bed. I think he was feeling sick."

Now, if Mrs. Robin had flown straight to her nest there probably would have been no further trouble. But she didn't. She stopped in the top of an apple tree. Even then all might have been well had she been content to perch in one place. But content to perch in one place. But she hopped about from branch to branch and that dragging string when you think of it. Never in her branch, and that dragging string when you think of it. Never in her whole life had she had anything like managed to get wound around about that happen before. Her first fright-ened thought was that an elemy had it was held fast. Poor Mrs. Robin!
It upset her completely. She wanted that string more than ever. She wanted it all the more because she had had it and now it had been taken away from her again.

So she fluttered about and tugged and, of course, the tighter the string and pulled and did her best to get that piece of string free again. Of course the other end was free. Girl Not Marriage Without Love Is Worse Than Remaining Single Always, Especially in These Modern Days of Independence.

"I am thirty years old. I have an opportunity to marry a good man, whom I respect, but do not love. Shall I take him, or drift into being a ur old maid?"

Do neither, daughter. Mariage generally lasts for a long, long time, and it seems longer if you are tied to one for whom you do not care.

Aside from the sin of marrying man you do not love-and nothg but love sanctifies marriagend the fraud you perpetrate upon ne man-for no man wants a wife icket or to save herself from the pinsters' Retreat-consider how ttle you have to gain and how uch to lose by getting a makehift husband

Consider how fed up you will t with the perpetual society of a a man you do not care for will upon your nerves when you have to observe them day in and day out! Realize how bitter would be the sacrifices if you did not love him! How hard the road of duty is to tread when no flowers of romance or tenderness or affection bloom along it!

Believe me, daughter, the only woman who finds that marriage pays for all it costs her is the one who is so madly in love that she sees a Fairy Prince in some ordinary, commonplace chap; who would rather marry him and do her own cooking and washing nothing of fate but just the privilege of serving him and being near

As for the sour old maid stuff, where did you get that? The idea that every woman who doesn't get married is bound to degenerate into a sour old maid, with a prying nose and a perpetual motion tongue, is as extinct as the dodo. If there ever were such creatures they have been evoluted out of existence, and you will find no women more tolerant, more genial, more lovable, than the women who, for one reason or another, have not elected to take unto themselves husbands.

Possibly in the old days when a woman had to marry in order to secure herself a support and a place in society and any degree of personal reedom, it may have been trying on a lady's temper and nerves not to be able to land a husband. It was a confession of failure that advertised to the world that she was lacking in feminine charms and finesse. Also it relegated her to the outer darkness, socially speaking, and forced her to eat re is, however, a vast difference between poor Miss Jennie of the '60s and '70s and even the '90s, hanging on to a family that regarded her as an incubus, and that looked upon her as a failure because she didn't marry, and Miss Jean of 1924, with her prosperous business or profession; her good clothes, her nice apartment, her freedom, her latchkey, her million interests in a million inter-

There was some excuse for the milk of human kindness curdling in Miss Jennie's veins, but there's no reason at all why Miss Jean's disposi tion should go sour. And, as a matter of fact, it doesn't. She's all sweet

But don't delude yourself, daughter, with the belief that marriage is any sort of a patent, soul-saving device, and that it will automatically turn you into a kindly, cheerful, optimistic, amiable woman. When it comes to making character, we roll our own, and what we are depends entirely upon how we react to the hardships of life.

The married woman, no less than the single woman, has her blighting disappointments. She sees her dreams torn to pieces, her ambitions blighted and thwarted, her hopes die. She must work and struggle and endure. She must make sacrifices. She must face and despair. She must suffer loss, and she can let these and achieve a sweetness that is almost an invisible halo about her

All married women are not angels, any more than all unmarried women are devils. There are just as many disgruntled wives as there are sour old maids. There are plenty of wives who have let their husbands' who whine because their husbands are not money-makers. Plenty of married women who are filled with malice and all uncharitableness toward every woman who is better off than they are.

None of us can escape sorrow and suffering and disappointments. We can meet them with courage and philosophy and keep ourselves sweet, or we can rage against life and grow sour nursing our little grudge against fate

For we are all like grapes crushed in the wine press of life. After took on one of fleeting, furtive hapthat we go through the fermenting process of experience and some come out of it sweet and strong wine, and some vinegar.

But marriage has nothing to do with it. The sour old maid would have been a sour married woman.

He glanced at as much as he could see of himself in the blurred mirror. The clothes brought to replace his own were only a peasant's. A coarse white cotton shirt, rough-dry, a pair of stiff blue cotton trousers and felt lippers, were not exactly the garments in which he wanted to face Desiree de Mailly.

Then he went down to dinner, but only one corner of the table was set, with a coarse checked cloth of green and blue and white, with red lions rampant on the white. The two places were laid with a trio of comnon white plates, one on the top of he other, and a soup plate on the op of each pile. There were a leadenooking spoon and fork, a black-nandled knife, with a glass rest for the two last to repose on between the courses. By the side of the plates was set a thick, stemmed goblet, and each was a fringed napkin atch the tablecloth.

With that sudden realization of facts that had helped Wilson materially in his career he knew that, but or his presence. Desiree de Mailly would have dined off watery soup and mashed potatoes. There would have been no excellent sardines, no perfect omelette, no dessert, no wine hat must have come from a conoisseur's cellar, perhaps no coffee.
When the meal was over Pierre eared the table, leaving them alone linger over the coffee.

Wilson drew out his cigarette case. "Do you smoke?" he asked,

"No one knows. They were first heard of in America about six or seven years ago. They're not the ordinary style. They just pick up a valuable bracelet here and there and then pass on. They stole one worth nearly £1,000 in this hotel last December, and another worth £500 in Cappes

Wallace Laut Speaks At Annual Meeting in Tecumseh House.

TELLS OF MENACE

Wallace Laut of the McConnell-Ferguson Advertising Co. was the chief speaker at the annual meeting of the London Advertising and Sales Club held in the Tecumseh House last night.

Amnouncing his subject as "Dead From the Neck Up," Mr. Laut declared that the invasion of this tountry of 2,000,000 American publications every much was the gravest question that Canadian advertisers, retail merchants and manufacturers had to face. The city of London itself, he stated, was absorbing 16,000 Sunday newspapers each week, the majority of which came from across the line.

"It is true," pursued Mr. Laut, "that American millions have built large factories over here, and that such products as palm olive and pepsodent that a manufactured in Cae now being manufactured in Canada, but it is also true that American advertising has built more branches in Canada than the tariff even. Unless Canadian retail mer-chants get to work the Americans are going to absorb more and more of Canadian retail business."

Thrive On Advertising. Two things which had thrived in London on advertising, Mr. Laut stated, had been the hydro-electric and the London & Port Stanley Rail-way and the United Welfare Fund.

One of the outstanding features of the taking of the vote at Owen Sound was the attitude of the moderator, who asked that there might be no applause, "as this is a matter on which we all feel deeply and as it is certain to cause pain to many I would ask the assembly that there should be no demonstration whatever when the vote is announced." It is that spirit of kindly consideration that will do much to make possible a desirable settlement of present and future

It is also worthy of notice that Dr. Ephraim Scott, the veteran editor of the Presbyterian Record, a leader of the anti-union forces who has used his virile pen in many papers to state his viewpoint, was given a whole-hearted ovation by the entire gathering when he rose to give his depositors who made withdrawals shortly before to question what he said, for if they did he'd highly commendable that these delegates, while the only one singled out to demand restitution. differing sharply on the question of union, were ready at once to show appreciation of work well Gus Porter's point of view. and faithfully done.

A Field That Is Well Filled.

Hamilton has a new organization, the Optimism Club. Its aim is stated to be "to talk health, happiness and prosperity to everyone it

The idea may be very excellent, but is there not a chance that this infant organization may find itself in a field that is already full to the brim with organizations?

There is such a thing as overdoing this business of organizing new clubs and associations, and we are right at that point now. The trouble is that the same men are called upon to join a good many of them. Many have tried it only to find that they finally had to curtail their memberships to one or two organizations. They discovered that there was duplication of effort and an inroad on their time and pocket that they could not stand.

This plan may work in Hamilton; it may be that there are many men there who have been overlooked in the membership of existing organizations; if so, Hamilton is the exception to the

ACTUARIAL CERTIFICATE FOR YEAR 1923

By Professor M. A. Mackenzie, M.A.,

Fellow of the British Institute of Actuaries. Toronto, March 11th, 1924.

I certify that I have examined the certificates of life insurance issued by the ient Order of United Workmen and in force on the 31st of December 1933. and that I find as at that date:

The mid-year liability under all whole life certificates in force as per schedule attached hereto was

The mid-year net liability under all twenty payment life $5,185,500 00 2,500 00 58,600 00 $5,246,600 00

$5,246,600 00 The Society was therefore 101% solvent as at the 31st of December, 1923, ording to the meaning of the Ontario Insurance Act.

The mortality basis of the above valuation is that of the National Fraternal ingress Table.

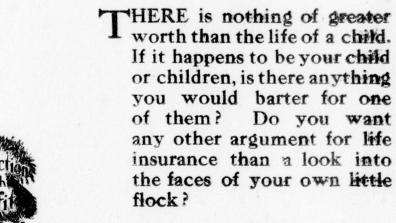

The interest basis of the above valuation is 4%. The funds are carried at par on the books of the Society, and at the above igure are earning over $5\frac{1}{2}\%$. In view of the facts disclosed by the valuation, I am of opinion that the Ancient Order of United Workmen is in a position to provide for the payment of its contracts of insurance as they mature without deduction or abatement and without increase in its existing rates of contribution, provided always that the funds are not seriously impaired either by unforeseen investment losses or by an interest of insurance in the rate of most failure which the members will be referred.

SIR ADAM BECK LEAVES TO TAKE SHIP AT QUEBEC

Canadian Press Despatch. Toronto, June 10 .- Sir Adam Beck leaves tonight for Quebec to take a ship for England, where he will address the world's electrical congress on Ontario's great hydro-electric development.
F. A. Gaby, engineer of the provincial commission, will also attend the congress. LONDON EVENING ADVERTISER, WEDNESDAY, JUNE 11, 1924. Gorgeously Gowned 'Miss Advertiser' Is Still Waiting For You While hundreds of "Miss Advertiser" Mama Dolls have been given away, the big distribution continues unabated and there will be no hesitation in supplying dolls until every girl in London and district has been made happy.

A Companion For Your Holidays

It is when you are on your holidays, where "Miss Advertiser" is not acquainted, that she will be most admired. Your friends will wonder where you got her, and you will have great pleasure in telling your little friends in the country how they, too, can get one of these little beauties.

We Will Help You!

Girls who have not yet secured their four subscriptions to win a doll should bring the orders they have to our Mama Doll Department, where assistance will be rendered to get the subscriptions not yet obtained.

Montreal, June 11.—The volume of business transacted on the stock exchange this morning was not as large as in the corresponding period yesterday. The general trend of the market was firmer, gains outnumbering losses in a wide range of issues. Montreal Power continued to lead the market in point of activity, and closed at 173, for a net gain of 1 point, after having sold at the new high of 174. Second in volume of business came Spanish River common, that stock registering an advance of 1½ points to 10634. Price Bros. came third in activity, and closed at 42c for a net gain of 1½ points.

WINNIPEG

Canadian Press Despatch. Winnipeg, July 10 .- In sympathy with hicago, today's session of the local wheat market was a very broad and active affair, with the trade volume large in both futures. Opening prices, which were \(\frac{8}{5} \) c to 1\frac{1}{2} \) higher, were followed by rapid advances, July touching a high of \(\frac{8}{1}, 097 \), and October \(\frac{8}{1}, 097 \), c Closing prices were almost at the top of the market, with a net gain of \(2^3 \), e for July and \(3\) \(\frac{1}{2} \), for Cotober. The United States government crop report was construed here as the most bullish estimate that the trade has had in recent years. There was an excellent class of buying by exporters and shippers, shorts, millers and brokers. Although a slight reaction set in round mid-session, values came back, and, with a very strong undertone prevailing, further advances are looked for, considerable October wheat passing into the hands of local traders during the session, while some small profittaking sales came out of the advance. Leader of Antis Declares Real Battle Is Just Beginning.

FINISHING TOUCHES

Special to The Advertiser by a Staff Reporter. Owen Sound, June 10.—"The fight

is just beginning." That is the attitude of foes of union within the Presbyterian Church. Anti-union leaders interviewed here made it plain to The Advertiser that the war was to be waged without any respite. The "die-hards" are determined not to enter the United Church of Canada under any circumstance, and they will fight to the last to retain all the Presbyterian property they can get possession of.

"What is the next move, assuming that 'ne union bill will be passed by par ament?" The Advertiser asked R *. J. W. Macnamara, secretary of the Presbyterian Association.

It was further charged that there was a conspiracy and fraud in running up a large bill of costs to the ship in dry-dock at Prince Rupert. That in order to carry out the fraud against the underwriters carrying the met with a painful accident on Sun-day while helping to unload sugar from the steamer Claremont at the risk on the Canadian Farmer, the ship's log had been forged, and that Boyd, because he refused to subcribe to the fraud against the underwriters, had been dismissed. "From the foregoing, the court, after very careful consideration, can come to no other conclusion than that the unfounded charges preferred by Boyd are too serious to be lightly dealt with, and for his spiteful and unsuccessful attempt to jeopardize the reputation of others he should be made to pay the costs of the proceedings.

In conclusion the court wishes to place on record its opinion that the evidence failed to disclose that there was the slightest stain or reflection or the character and integrity of any of the officers of the steamship or any member of the Vancouver manage-

An Informal Presentation of Summer Modes -Hats, Frocks, Wraps, Hose, Gloves, Furniture-

The radiance of summer is mirrored in this delightful showing of cool and colorful apparel, while summer comfort is suggested by the inviting depths of armchairs and swings. From French frocks and beaded bags, to white sport hose; from formal hats to informal porch swings. And the prices remember that summer purses, like summer dresses, may be slender.

FRENCH FROCKS

Just in time for our Summer Opening, we have been fortunate enough to receive a shipment of the summer frocks chosen by our representatives in France.

To say that they are French frocks is also to say that they are charmingly colorful, artistically designed, and of flower-like daintiness. As to their prices—but we shall let them speak for themselves.

SUMMER FROCKS OF VOILE, LINEN AND CREPE.

Random selections from a rack full of dresses in white and the flower colors show frocks that are pleated, tucked, beaded and embroidered. A White Linen Dress achieves distinction by appliqued bands of roses on the skirt, at the neck and on the abbreviated sleeves.. The Soft Poudre Blue Voile is the charming medium in which a dainty drawnwork frock finds expression. It is edged with soft folds of white voile, to match the novel white beads which adorn it$18.00

It has an artful simplicity, this frock cf rose crepe, embroidered in gray silk, with long, narrow panels. $25.00 As dainty as the rose from which it has borrowed its color is a Voile Dress, trimmed with drawn-work and appliqued bands of soft white voile $13.50

The vivid yellow flame tones of a Voile Frock are accented by demure pipings and ties of white In harmony with the vogue of white,
