BURDICK CHOSEN

Committee Chairmen Selected at Inaugural Meeting of 1925 Council.

Declaring that if support from the city council is not given immediately he would personally have to secure credit from the banks, Sir Adam Beck, chairman of the London railway commission, appeared at the inaugural meeting of the 1925 city council and appealed for extension of a $50,000 line of credit for the London & Port Stanley Railway.

That it was necessary to secure this credit in order to retain freight business was Sir Adam's emphatic assertion, and he was not altogether satisfied with the action of the new council in moving to secure the financial government's opinion before granting support for the line of credit. This action was taken when failure appeared in sight for the Douglas motion to grant the request of the railway.

Attended by every alderman and many citizens, today's inaugural session brought out much discussion. Committee appointments, previously drafted, were endorsed, though in some instances several votes were called for before decisions were finally made. The appointment of Ald. Henry Burdick as chairman of the committee and of George Burdick to the London railway commission came only after much heated discussion. The reading of the mayor's inaugural address and passing of bylaws took up much time, the session lasting from 11 o'clock until 12:40 p.m. Rev. R. J. Murphy opened the session with prayer.

Attacks Attitude.
"When the street railway company is in default of agreement to provide a track allowance, and the city makes a $50,000 loan to the company for this work, the city-owned Port Stanley road ought to get consideration," said Sir Adam Beck, who was invited to speak on the L. & P. S. request. He played the laxity with which the London Street Railway company had been treated. With councils changing each year, suits instituted against the company had been permitted to lapse from time to time. "I'm glad to hear his worship say today in his inaugural that he is going to make them carry out their agreements," declared Sir Adam. "It will be a memorable year if that is done."

"You find money for the street railway at 6 per cent. That's pretty cheap money. It would be difficult to get funds from many banks at that."

The commission chairman pointed out that the road had been taken over by the city when prices were low and that it had been sold for $800,000 more at present. During the regime of Mayor Little and Mayor Somerville these improvements had been put on, taking the funds from the company's own resources, instead of adding to the debt. "The money has been borrowed because of these improvements. He went on to say that all the big railway companies were clamoring for freight business at the present time, and if the Port Stanley could not secure business by permitting credit to its clients, it could not compete."

Opposition to Opinion.
The motion's out of order. The move is in direct opposition to the city solicitor's opinion," was Mayor Wenig's attitude toward Sir Adam's remarks. He declared that the Douglas motion was the only one that should be considered.

Auditors' Report on Housing
Commission Shows Deficit
of $54,496.08.

GOES TO COMMITTEE

"Unabsorbed Cost of Property" Explained as Covering Greater Part.

Showing a deficit of $54,496.08 in the housing commission accounts at the end of 1923, the official report of the joint audit for 1923 was handed to the new council today and was passed on to the committee for discussion. The report, made by H. B. Ashplant, city auditor, and the Oscar Benson Company, dealt in considerable detail with the various accounts and pointed clearly to the condition of books and accounts when the audit was commenced in 1922. As seen in the audit of 1922, housing commission accounts were in bad shape at that time and the work of the auditors was made exceedingly difficult. Many accounts and other documents were missing. Some of them have not been found yet. This condition resulted in the appointment of E. Houghton as accountant and of J. Cunliffe as commission manager. At the present time some twelve documents, chiefly agreements for the sale of houses, are missing.

Two Major Items.
The deficit announced today was made up of two major items: unabsorbed cost of properties amounting to $26,717.45, and deficit on interest earnings of $17,778.63. "Unabsorbed cost of property," explained the auditors, "represents the capital loss incurred through the speculative ventures of the commission. As mentioned in the auditors' report it does not appear to have been contemplated in the framing of the act that the local housing commission authorities would have embarked on building operations until there was an actual demand for houses."

Building costs were high when houses in the Pine Lawn and Garfield avenue subdivisions were put up. The commission then sold at figures below cost to get the buildings off their hands. The deficit on interest earnings is given as the loss on current account for 1923.

The balance sheet, as at Dec. 31, 1923, is given as follows:

Assets.
Balance on agreements...$472,994.76
Houses for sale...129,810.83
Lots for sale...10,337.29
Miscellaneous...3,883.90

Liabilities.

Pressure Brought to Bear on French Government in the Spanish Author Case.

Associated Press Despatch.
Paris, Jan. 12.—Vicente Ibanez, the Spanish author, who has recently been denouncing the King of Spain and the Spanish government, has been summoned by examining magistrate Baquet to appear before him in Paris on Jan. 13, together with Ernest Flammarion, Ibanez's French editor.

Senator Ibanez is reported to be in inferior health at Mentone, and according to an announcement last night has telegraphed the magistrate that he will not be able to appear on that date. He added, however, that Maitre Moutet, his counsel, would appear to answer the summons.

Deputy Paul Lafont, former under-secretary of state, has sent Premier Herriot a letter, saying he has decided to interpellate the government on the Ibanez proceedings.

"I shall interpellate the government concerning the judicial proceedings instituted against the Spanish writer Ibanez," he declared. "I hope, for the honor of my country, that the case will not be condemned. I hope that not a single judge in France will pronounce the smallest penalty against the author who during the war displayed magnificent friendship for France. It is positively too much that of all the free countries where Ibanez's courageous book was published, democratic France is the only one whose government hands over the author to justice for the crime of lese majeste."

FIREMEN SAVE BOY IN FIRE TRAP

Clyde Burch, 17, Now Lying in Victoria Hospital in Serious Condition.

Trapped in the second story of a frame structure at 325 Clarence street, occupied by the London News Company, this morning while it was being swept by flames, Clyde Burch, 17 years old, of 144 William street, was badly burned. His life was saved when firemen managed to carry him to safety through the window and down a ladder.

Another occupant of the store was rescued in a similar manner, but he escaped with no injury. The fire broke out shortly before 10 o'clock. Although the damage was not heavy, magazines and newspapers, which became ignited, blazed readily and firemen had difficulty in extinguishing the flames. Considerable damage was caused through water and smoke. The total loss is not expected to exceed $500, however.

The fire is believed to have started through an explosion in a victrola. Burch was taken to Victoria hospital by firemen. He is badly burned about the face and hands. His condition is considered extremely serious although not critical.

3,000,000 Koreans Hit By Famine

Government Relief Measures
Found Inadequate.

Associated Press Despatch.
Tokyo, Jan. 12.—As the intensity of winter in Korea increases, more than 3,000,000 persons are reported suffering from lack of food. The government today from the Associated Press correspondent at Seoul, Zena reports received at Seoul indicate that more than 50,000 extreme cases of starvation exist in that district alone. The peasantry is attempting to starve off death by living on roots and bark. Government relief measures are wholly inadequate. It is inevitable, the correspondent reported, that suffering will increase with the advance of winter.

Russian Faces Death Sentence
For Turning Traitor in the Alexander Assassination.

NOW 65 YEARS OLD

Associated Press Despatch.
Moscow, Jan. 12.—One of the most extraordinary trials in the criminal history of Russia opened here Saturday night in a courtroom, crowded with communists, revolutionists and foreign visitors. The defendant is a 65-year-old, who participated in the assassination of Alexander II, in 1881.

Okladski is on trial for his life on the charge of having turned traitor and betrayed his accomplices in that famous murder which shocked the world. His surviving revolutionists of the 1881 period and thousands of documents will be produced in court to show Okladski's disloyalty to his former revolutionists and anarchists.

Okladski had been in the employ of the czar's secret police up to 1917 and in later years worked as a clerk in a government institution. Several thousand tickets to the courtroom have been issued to workers, peasants and others, and the communists are seizing the hearing as a good medium for propaganda.

Liberals Confident of Increase

by Staff Correspondent.

Ottawa, Jan. 12.—Recent political activities in Liberal circles have again given rise to the well defined rumor that a general election during the present year is impending. Included among the activities in question are the meetings now being held in Toronto, and the three-day rally which will take place in the city of Quebec, at which Premier King and certain of his colleagues will be present. In addition organizers from Western Canada have visited the capital during the past few days, and have reported progress.

These latter claim that the government is gaining marked headway on the prairies, and predict that at the next election the Liberal party will make several important gains. Maritime province members who have been here in considerable numbers of late, are not optimistic about present political conditions down by the sea, but declare that with careful organization the government should be assured of 75 per cent of the representation in these provinces.

In the matter of an election, it may be said, that the premier and his cabinet have an entirely open mind. The results of by-elections in St. Antoine and West Hastings have emphasized the great value of organization, particularly among that generation of electors which has grown up since the war commenced. It is realized that the personality of candidates will in the next election

St. Paul Authorities Were Told Edifice Unsafe in

Associated Press Despatch.
London, Jan. 10.—While no one wishes to cramp the efforts of the St. Paul's cathedral authorities to raise sufficient funds to meet the cost of restoring the cathedral to a state of safety, it is certain that they were expected eventually to offer an explanation to the public as to why they have only just awakened to the fact that the building is in danger.

Sir Francis Cox, the eminent engineer who saved Winchester cathedral when it was in danger of collapse, made a report twelve years ago, it is understood, recommending filling with liquid cement the piers supporting the dome of St. Paul's cathedral.

Apparently nothing was done in the matter until 1921, when some work was begun which it is now evident was of insufficient magnitude to accomplish the desired end.

DWARFS AND AMAZONS FACED BY EXPLORERS

Colonel Fawcett, Great British Scientist, Goes to South America in Search of Civilization Older Than Egypt's—Enters Great Black Area—Seeks Lost White Race.

MAY UNCOVER MYSTERIOUS LIGHT

Col. P. H. Fawcett, famous British explorer, has left for Brazil, with the endorsement and support of great scientific societies of England and America. He seeks knowledge of ancient peoples which, if he is successful, will re-write the story of mankind. What he finds he will describe in The Advertiser.

Will he reach the ancient city, the "once opulent citadel" of a race possibly older than the Egyptians?

Will he bring back the secret of the mysterious light?

Will he establish South America as the origin of human civilization?

Will he find white descendants of the first great white race to develop a high civilization?

Through the North American Newspaper Alliance, The Advertiser has arranged for exclusive publication of Col. Fawcett's future dispatches. His progress to the unexplored heart of Brazil, the cutting of the last link with civilization, and his emergence will be fully recorded in the columns of this newspaper.

Special to The Advertiser.
Copyright, 1925.

New York, Jan. 11.—Col. P. H. Fawcett, F.R.G.S., D.S.O., distinguished British explorer, sailed on the Vauban Saturday for Rio Janeiro to smash through 1,500 miles of swamp, jungle and desert to a hidden ancient city in the heart of Brazil, which he believes will give proof that South America, and not the Valley of the Euphrates, is the cradle of civilization.

The expedition is sanctioned and aided by the Royal Geographical society of England, the American Geographical society of New York, and by the museum of the American Indian. Fawcett goes also as correspondent of The Advertiser and the North American Newspaper Alliance.

It is perhaps the most hazardous and certainly the most spectacular adventure of the kind ever undertaken by a reputable scientist with the backing of conservative scientific bodies. It is the culmination of Col. Fawcett's years of exploration in the South American jungles, which have revealed discoveries of such astounding interest that he has guarded them zealously, awaiting an opportunity to bring back final and convincing proof.

Ancient Civilization.

He already has gone far toward validation of his contention that there existed in this region a majestic civilization of an unknown white race, perhaps 10,000 years old, antedating Egypt; that it held the secret of a mysterious power, possibly derived from some knowledge of basic atomic forces; that these ancient people knew astronomy and mathematics, and that they had perhaps the oldest highly-developed indigenous culture in the history of the world. He has so far analyzed and articulated his theory that, as he now says, he is ready to announce his conclusions and risk his scientific reputation upon them.

The ancient city—and this is not an incredible chapter from "King Solomon's Mines," but a statement by the holder of the coveted medal of the Royal Geographical society—is guarded by tribes of desperate ferocity and encompassed by all but impenetrable jungles. Col. Fawcett and his companions must brave arrows, pestilence, giant anacondas, savage black panthers, and all the creeping, crawling, biting and stinging horrors of the jungle; they must cross arid desert wastes and ascend to a desolate, blasted volcanic region, where the last vestige of a once opulent civilization has been walled and guarded by the mountain peaks.

Is Veteran Explorer.
Col. Fawcett has spent the greater part of the last eighteen years in this wilderness. He has seen men impaled by the arrows of the Indians, and has seen a male crushed by a 30-foot anaconda. So great are the hazards that he is taking only two men with him, his son, Jack Fawcett, 21 years old, and a young Englishman, whom he has known from birth, who for the last three years has been living in Los Angeles.

"Any larger party would stand small chance of surviving," said Col. Fawcett. "Krupp, the German iron-monger, spent $20,000 on a great expedition into this region a few years ago. It was annihilated by pestilence and Indians. With only three men, we have a small chance of entering and returning. I speak the language of the Indian tribes, and I know what to do when they attack me with their bows and arrows—as they have done, many times before. If I took a large expedition, it would surely be wiped out."

Black Dwarfs and Amazons.
The site of the ancient city lies on the south watershed of the Amazon, between the Xingu and the Tapajoz rivers. The expedition will visit the black dwarfs, the black dwarfs, the black dwarfs, who live in holes covered with leaves and sticks; it will skirt the country of the Mundurucos, the redskins of the Amazon, between the Tapajoz and Parana rivers, having women chiefs; on beyond the ancient city lies the country of the Amazons; to the east is the dwelling place of the Asurins, or white Indians; farther to the east lie the buried ruins of another ancient city, of majestic Cyclopean architecture, which Col. Fawcett has previously visited and which he hopes some day to excavate.

To the north of the Asurins are the Roncador ridges, the land of the "snoring mountain," which rumbles and groans incessantly in its sleep of centuries, over volcanic fires, far to the west lies the site of the ancient city of Truxillo, where, in the eighth century, the great white race developed a high civilization.

SHANGHAI IN HANDS OF MILITARY LOOTERS

Both Winners and Losers
Engage in Wild Orgy of Thieving.

Associated Press Despatch.
Shanghai, Jan. 12.—Both victor and vanquished in yesterday's coup, by which Chi Hsieh-Yuan, deposed military governor of this (Kiang-Su) province, regained control of Shanghai, united this morning in an orgy of looting.

The soldiers, both of General Chi, whose attack was a defiance directed against the provincial government in Peking, and of the defending forces, led by the Peking appointee, Chang Yung Min, ran wild through Nantao, the native city, which adjoins on the south the French settlement here.

Native merchants and householders in that region today were frantically removing their possessions into the protected foreign quarters, in defiance of which the volunteer corps, comprising most of the foreigners in Shanghai, had been called out. The volunteer corps, aided by Chinese merchants and members of the Chinese fire-fighting brigade, were endeavoring to restore order.

Several bands of soldiers which penetrated with their bounding efforts, immediately adjoining or surrounding the foreign quarter were at the mercy of the soldiers, but authorities of the foreign quarter today expressed their confidence that their defence units would be able to handle any emergency and that no fear need be felt for the safety of any foreigners in Shanghai.

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL

The Two-Piece Ensemble of the Coat Sort Is High in Favor.

There are advantages in the two-piece frock, and advantages in the one-piece frock. But at the present time there seem to be very, very few women who do not find that the advantages of the one-piece frock over-balance those of the two-piece sort.

On the face of it, it is easier to put one piece on than two. Besides, a one-piece frock is usually straighter, simpler, less bulky. And there is hardly any effect that can be gained in a two-piece frock that cannot be simulated in a one-piece.

The advantages of the two-piece arrangement are that. That sometimes there is economy and convenience in being able to use two tunics or blouses with a single slip or foundation.

If what has been accepted for wear at southern winter resorts is indicative of spring fashions generally, then we may safely prophesy that the ensembles to be worn in March, April and May in the north will be for the most part of the frock and coat sort—not of the tunic sort.

Of course there is nothing really new in the ensemble idea—the thing that is new is the interest that all classes are taking in it. For years exclusive dressmakers here and in Paris have been making wraps of various sorts to go with the frocks they made, and many women have had wraps to go with most of their frocks.

Such an arrangement, of course, may have drawbacks for the woman who has her clothes made at home or by a dressmaker in a small way, because a frock usually offers fewer obstacles than a coat. The little dressmaker can make a frock, but she hesitates at entrusting a coat, cape or other sort of wrap to her.

The sketch shows the type of ensemble that seems to be gaining favor at southern resorts. It is of sand-colored flannel, with a straight, long flannel coat.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

IN THE KITCHEN.
Floor and Windows.

Much has been said and written on the subject of the kitchen floor and no course in household administration would be complete without some discussion of this important question. It is enough for most of us to know that most of those who have studied the question have come to the conclusion that the foundation of the kitchen floor is best when made of wood. Cement and tile, though ideal for bathrooms, vestibules, sun parlors, etc., seems to be not resilient enough for the kitchen, where so many steps have to be taken. Ideally the wooden kitchen floor should be covered with some sort of linoleum. The best is none too good if you can afford it. If an all-over covering is impracticable or too expensive, the center of the room can be covered in this way, and the edges, after the cracks have been filled, either varnished or painted. It is a good plan to cover the varnish on a kitchen floor or to re-varnish the painted surface at frequent intervals. To keep the floor waterproof finish upon it. The time may come when we have sinks and stoves and other kitchen fixtures built in like the most up-to-date bathtub, so that there will be no "underneath places" to catch the dust.

Half pound of beef, four ounces breadcrumbs, two ounces onion, one egg, a seasoning of salt and pepper, half teaspoon curry powder, two tablespoons gravy, one tablespoon chutney, mashed potatoes or rice. Press firmly into small buttered moulds and steam gently for three-quarters of an hour. Serve turned out and surrounded with well-seasoned mashed potatoes, or rice sprinkled with chutney.

OPIUM MISSION IS FAVORED BY BRITAIN

Austen Chamberlain Writes Buffalo Bishop of Government Attitude.

Canadian Press Despatch. Toronto, Jan. 11.—Bishop Charles H. Brent of Buffalo stated here today that a few days ago he received a letter from Austen Chamberlain, British foreign secretary, in which the latter said that Britain was favorable to the idea of having a committee visit India and the Orient to study at first hand the conditions surrounding the opium production in these lands. Bishop Brent, a Canadian by birth, has taken an active part in international efforts to curb the traffic in narcotic drugs.

Touching incidentally on prohibition in the United States, Bishop Brent said that it never would be repealed. If a referendum were held the law would be sustained, he said. It was a mistake to judge the sentiment of the people of the United States on this question by the events and the habits of the border cities.

LAUREN H. GARDNER DIES AFTER LENGTHY ILLNESS

Canadian Press Despatch. St. Catharines, Jan. 12.—Lauren H. Gardner, a prominent manufacturer, died at his home here this morning after a lengthy illness, aged 57 years. He was a native of Rochester, N. Y., starting as a young man in the manufacture of paper with his father. In 1912 he came to St. Catharines and organized the Garden City Paper Mills, and later the Canadian Vegetable Parchment Company, being president of the former and vice-president of the latter concern. He was also a director of the Victoria Twine Company of Toronto and Montreal.

He purchased the old Grand opera house a few months ago, and at heavy expense transformed it into the most splendid playhouse in the district, renaming it the Capitol. He is survived by a widow and one niece, Mrs. Flora McIntire, this city. Interment will take place in Mount Hope cemetery, Rochester, on Wednesday.

The Disappearance of the Big Fish Greatly Mystifies the Young Otter

By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

Of all the puzzled people in all the Great World none was more puzzled than was the young Otter whose big fish had disappeared. He had killed that fish. He had even taken two big bites out of the choicest part of it. So he knew that that fish couldn't have hopped back off the ice into the water while he was away. He had been gone only a few minutes, just long enough to get his sister and bring her over to see that big fish. He had boasted that it was bigger than any fish she had ever caught. Now there wasn't a trace of it anywhere. His sister tossed her head. "I don't believe you caught a big fish at all," said she.

"But I tell you I did," protested her brother. "I caught him and I left him right here."

"Then where is it?" demanded his sister. "He wished he could. He had a queer and most uncomfortable feeling. It made him uneasy. Actually it made him afraid. He didn't know what he was afraid of, but he was afraid. So when his sister disgustingly plunged into the water and swam back to the slippery slide on the bank he followed her."

But somehow he couldn't enjoy that slippery slide. He kept thinking about that lost fish. To make matters worse his sister kept teasing him about it. She called him a boaster. It was clear that she didn't believe he had caught that big fish he had boasted about. So after going down the slippery slide a few times he swam back to the place where he had left the big fish. He climbed out on the ice and once more looked around everywhere for signs of someone who might have stolen that big fish. But not a sign could he find.

A little way off on the ice was a little heap of snow. At least the young Otter thought it was a heap of snow. He looked at it carefully two or three times. But he didn't go over to it. He wasn't interested in heaps of snow. The only thing of interest to him just then was what had become of that fish. It was very mysterious. He didn't like a mystery. His uneasiness increased. So after while he once more swam away. He wanted to ask his father or his mother what could have become of that fish, but he didn't. He was afraid he would be laughed at. He was afraid that they wouldn't believe he had caught it any more than his sister believed it.

"I don't believe you caught a big fish at all," said she.

Now hardly had that young Otter disappeared when what he had taken for a little heap of snow disappeared, too. It disappeared without a sound. You see, it was alive. It really wasn't a heap of snow at all. If the young Otter had seen it go he might possibly have guessed what had become of his big fish. But he didn't see it go, and the next time he visited that place he didn't even notice that that little white heap was no longer there.

WOODSTOCK ANTIS FORCE BALLOT ON QUESTION

Canadian Press Despatch. Woodstock, Jan. 12.—At a meeting of the members of Chalmers church held last week a resolution was passed by a vote of 78 to 21 to enter the United Church of Canada. The twenty-one who voted against union refused to make the resolution unanimous. Instead, they circulated a petition, and it is said, secured the necessary number of names to demand a vote on church union. Yesterday the pastor announced that following receipt of the petition a second meeting will be held Monday next, when a vote will be taken.

TILLSONBURG YOUNGSTERS PLAY LOCALS HERE TONIGHT

This Year's Pan-Dried Sextet
Is Fast-Travelling
Team.

MANY NEW PLAYERS

The local juniors entertain Tillsonburg youngsters here tonight. After their first defeat of the season at the hands of the Paris kids the other evening, the locals are not taking anything for granted.

The young Pan-tries have many new players, but Tillsonburg has been turning out good junior teams for years, and this season's output is about up to standard, according to all reports.

It will be no measure such as the Ayer youngsters were victims of. Tillsonburg may be in for a defeat, but the Londoners will know they've earned a victory before they tuck it away in the first column. Tillsonburg and Woodstock staged a stirring struggle in their last meeting in the Out Town, which the home team won in overtime.

Both Tillsonburg and Woodstock defeated Ayer by decisive scores, although they were not so one-sided as the tally the Londoners piled up. This indicates that with more games under their belt, the youth of the two teams in the group are going to be much better now.

The line-ups for tonight are as follows:

Tillsonburg—Goal, Hill; defence, Colburn and Stubbs; centre, Vaise; wings, Weeke and Eastman; subs, Andrew and Jacques.

London—Goal, Fries; defence, Barrett and Pritchard; centre, Zeigler; wings, Filmore and Lauder; sub, McKay.

Poke and Cross Checks

The 7's were looking upon the trip into Kitchener tonight with a certain amount of anticipation. It looked like the formality of taking a victory that was before Friday night.

All the other teams struck Kitchener in a slump and profited. The 7's are taking tonight when Kitchener has apparently closed out the loss column. Probably the victory over Stratford was only a flash in a pan. On the other hand, Kitchener looked as good here in an exhibition game as any team in the loop. In fact, there were portions of their play that spelled trouble for the teams once the season got started.

Roy McKay and Arthur are going down as subs tonight. The team leaves the C. P. R. at 1:25. They are going to add a great deal of strength to the team when they get anywhere near caught up on drill.

There are only two games each this week. Staleness was beginning to get the teams. Stratford has two games away this week, one at the Falls, another at Preston. London has one game away and one home here with Preston on Friday night. Two wins would help a lot right now.

Somebody has to stop the Falls. It might be preferable that the Indians start in on the night. Then somebody would have to take Stratford. It would be a nice arrangement for Preston after their defeat in the Classic City. This would make the race nice and close though.

DE LUXE TRAVEL TO CALIFORNIA

Modern travel leaves little to be desired in comfort and luxury. The most recent innovation is the introduction of lady's maid service on the California Limited, the Los Angeles Limited, and the San Francisco Overland Limited, operating daily between Chicago, Los Angeles and San Francisco over their various routes. It has also been announced that the California Limited has been equipped with new all-steel drawing-room compartments with sleeping cars with specially designed ladies' lounge. Such improved services signify the strides being made to satisfy every conceivable desire of the long distance traveller.

These famous trains are already associated by connections with the Canadian National double track system to Chicago, and the trip from Toronto to Los Angeles or San Francisco is thus made one of the most pleasant and comfortable of the continent. Full information and tickets may be obtained from Canadian National ticket offices, and personal service in arranging reservations, etc., will be rendered by any Canadian National ticket agent—Adv't.

VIC FOLEY-MAYBERRY BOAT IS CALLED OFF

Canadian Press Despatch. Vancouver, Jan. 11.—The king of Canadian bantamweight boxers, who will meet Howard Mayberry of Hamilton in Winnipeg on Jan. 23, has been promoted, failed to fulfill his agreement as to the financial arrangements, and the latter has called off the match. It was announced here last night.

Foley left last night for Seattle, where he will complete his training for the Suez match on Tuesday night. He will rush back to Vancouver after the bout, and along with Allen will take the first train for the East to Toronto as their destination. Manager Allen believes the Mayberry bout will draw better in the Coast, and hopes to draw something good in the Queen's City.

After losing three of the five matches Friday the visiting curlers played an improved game Saturday morning, winning three and losing two. This gave them an advantage of four points. MAY HAVE TO QUIT CUBS.

Indications are that the Chicago Cubs will be without the services of Charley Hollocher, formerly their star shortstop, at the start of the season. William Veech, Cub president, reports Hollocher is still ailing, although in better health than when he left the team last season. He said Shorty Adams probably would start at short.

On the Side Lines

With C. S. G.

Bellefeuille Sticks.

St. Pats have intimated that they are going to disrupt the London team through offers as a result of Bellefeuille's final refusal to report. The same article in which this threat appears, says also that London is up in arms against the O.H.A., and there is talk of a Western Ontario professional circuit composed of the same towns and players now playing in the London leagues.

Offers inspired by revenge motives are not liable to appeal much to the London players. For the rest there have been rumors of such a project, but this is a season of rumors.

Incidentally pro offers these days are receiving more attention from players. They no longer accept terms off hand. Too many players have accepted dazzling terms which were not repeated in the actual contract tendered. Pro contracts have been very leaky affairs in the past, but lately the players have been getting lawyers to do their business for them. So far a non-collapse contract has not been discovered.

Westminster Rink is likely to be a municipal indoor sports center in a few weeks as a result of the city grant which makes it possible to start on the alterations at once. But so far no arrangements have been made for the management of the place. Maybe Mayor Wenig is going to direct by some new electrical form of control from Erie avenue, when he is home of an evening, if any. Since the public parks system of rinks has been placed under the administration of Gerald Goodman, chief supervisor of the city playgrounds, probably it would not be a bad idea to turn over the Westminster rink to the same department. This would lend an air of civic neutrality to the rink, chosen from representatives of the teams interested in making a board of directors over dates amongst the clubs playing indoor sport of one kind or another. It's a step in the direction of making the playground supervisor's job a year-round affair. Management of some kind must be decided upon quickly.

GUELPH JUNIORS BEAT PRESTON BY 1-0 SCORE

Atcheson Tallied Lone Counter in Second Period.

Special to The Advertiser.
Guelph, Jan. 11.—Guelph juniors out-pointed Preston, 1-0, in the best exhibition of hockey provided here in the city. The only tally of the match came after seven minutes of strenuous play in the second period, when Atcheson dashed in on a rebound of Brill's shot at close range and counted, although the locals had an edge in play in the evening session.

The visitors picked up in the second period, and the last 30 minutes was featured by brilliant hockey with neither team having any advantage. The players on both sides gave a clear exhibition of back-checking, the visitors, especially excellent. For Preston, Cicero, a 15-year-old lad, at center, and Armstrong, were the outstanding players, while Fischer and Brill were the best for Guelph.

The teams:
Preston—Goal, Cobo; defence, Reista, Bregman, forwards, Cicero, Schantz, Armstrong; subs, Glick, Bettke.
Guelph—Goal, Clough; defence, McMillan, Fischer, center, Brill, Atcheson, Stickney; subs, Williams, Brundrette.

Referee—"Ike" Masters, Kitchener.

The cereal crop average was 10,000 bushels compared to 10,772,000, and the farm value was $217,183,000 against $196,825,000 the year before.

Baldwin and the Tariff.

Stanley Baldwin, prime minister of Great Britain, is busy lowering the free trade flag which was left flying at the masthead of the ship of state when Ramsay MacDonald left office. He has promised that a bill will be introduced this year "entitling any industry which can prove itself substantial and efficient to general protection against unfair competition due to depreciated foreign currency, longer hours or lower wages." This opens the door wide, if only because it is to the interest of the Conservative party to find as many lame ducks in industry as possible. As for the value of foreign currency, it is full of difficulties, for a currency may sink or recover quickly, or a new currency be introduced. Nevertheless, Baldwin is in no wise discouraged.

Replying to a question from Mr. Lloyd George, he stated that if one country was found to be injuring a British industry a general tariff would be levied against all countries and not merely against the one doing the underselling. Here we have the protection doctrine revealed in all its stark, selfish nakedness.

Mr. Baldwin next suggests the ancient heresy of taxes upon food. In view of the history of the corn laws and the triumphant fight of Bright and Cobden against food taxes, it would seem that no person would ever suggest such a thing in England again. Mr. Baldwin now sets forth that there can never be a complete system of preference until the home country consents to have taxes "on food of normal, general, and daily consumption." This, he admitted, was not yet within the realm of practical politics, but he did not hesitate to bring it up for discussion. He declared, too, that his entire proposals were not meant as a wedge for the introduction of the protective principle, but, as the London Chronicle points out, if Mr. Baldwin is allowed to carry on his policy for three or four years England will be definitely transferred from the free-trade to the protectionist category.

As a matter of fact England is already protectionist, and the further the whole plan of imperial preference is carried the more surely will be the drift to straight-out protection of the American kind. Mr. Baldwin proposes to spend five million dollars a year subsidizing importers who bring in meat, apples, etc., in excess of guaranteed quantities. That is nothing more or less than putting a food tax on the British consumer, even though it comes from the general treasury.

This backward step in England is one of the most discouraging signs of the times. Since the war we have been drifting into a condition in which each state erects as high a customs barrier about its boundaries as it possibly can. Thus France, England, and Belgium bring about conditions in Germany which subject the German population to mere wage slavery, and then put on tariffs against the cheap goods produced by these people when they are reduced to the direst struggle for existence. With these tariff barriers, and the tariff rivalries they signify, come battles, competition and ill-will all over Europe; they work against peace as effectively as the various peace agencies make toward peace. Free trade and peace go hand-in-hand; protection in all its sordid selfishness spells economic and later physical wars. Between them the world must choose.

Loose Talk in England.

It seems too bad that every now and then some irresponsible mind breaks forth with predictions of Canada's separation from the British Empire, and the complementary nonsense of Canada's union with the United States.

With apparently no specific reason the Morning Post in old London has published a remarkable article regretting the tendency toward secession which Canada is displaying and urging Canada to stand fast by the mother country. The Morning Post says that this tendency "has aroused some uneasiness" in England.

It is not easy to understand the mental processes which produce an article of this kind, and it is much less easy to excuse them. One can not, of course, take the Morning Post seriously on any such subject, because it is the most pronounced of the old-fashioned die-hard Conservative and Imperialist journals which believe it a duty always to find something wrong somewhere in the British Empire. The Morning Post's point of view is consistently one which looks back to the "good old days" in lamenting the troubles and woes of the present.

Nevertheless the Morning Post's irresponsibility will do harm in sowing in English minds a suggestion which as it circulates is likely to become a conviction. It is to be hoped that some more healthy English newspaper will provide the needed antidote by telling the Morning Post that if there be any talk of Canada's secession it comes only from the Post's own office, and that the only real uneasiness exists not in the mother country but in Canada that such falsehood should be contemplated.

Pretender King supplied exactly the proper comment when he said in Ottawa: "It is impossible to talk greater nonsense." It is to be hoped that the readers of the Morning Post will read also Canada's reply.

Lincoln Was Schooled in Failure.

No man has any reason to consider himself a failure because he has failed. It is failure that has made some of the great men great.

When Abraham Lincoln was a young man he ran for the legislature in Illinois, and was so badly swamped that he might easily have retired and abandoned forever the idea of entering public life.

His next venture was to enter business, and as a businessman he was not a greater success than as a candidate for political office. He spent all his seventeen years of his life paying up the debts of a worthless partner.

Lincoln was in love with a beautiful young woman, to whom he was engaged, but before their wedding she was taken ill and died. Later on Lincoln married another woman who was never any help to him, and in many ways a positive burden and a hindrance.

Entering politics for the second time, he appeared as a candidate for congress, and was defeated almost as soundly as when he first ran for the Illinois legislature. His next effort was to get an appointment with the United States land department, where he might have become buried in the routine of the civil service department, but he could not even get a position there.

Later he became a candidate for the United States senate, and was defeated again, and the same thing happened to him when he contested the position of vice-president in 1855.

In 1858 he tried again and was defeated by Douglas. He was not until 1861, and at the age of fifty-two, that Lincoln "arrived" and began his real life's work.

Failure in business, disappointment in love, defeat after defeat in politics—these things made Abraham Lincoln possibly the greatest man United States has ever produced.

Good News From Tennessee.

Slowly the sun of freedom rises over the world of humanity. Slowly but surely, with a steady progress not to be denied. Nashville, Tenn., where for 30 years no lynching had taken place, witnessed the lynching of a 15-year-old colored boy a week ago. Immediately a group of the leading citizens offered a prize of $5,000 for the apprehension of the men concerned.

The boy, who had been wounded in a quarrel with a white man, was in a hospital cot when the lynching party dragged him from the ward, and quite coolly and methodically hanged him on a tree.

Lynching is the outward expression of that masked spirit which is the essence of such things as the Ku Klux Klan and all secret orders. It is just such prompt, determined local action which in each case can best meet this bravado of the bully. It is to be hoped that the reward offered in this case will bring the guilty men to justice.

Note and Comment.

Jack Canuck has suspended publication, but after all it does not matter so much. There is still the Montreal Star.

And now New York thinks it has something new in cross-word shoes. There are many wives who know that new shoes have meant cross words for years.

New York now produces a youthful clerk with a magic ring which unfailingly wins elections. Mayor Wenigle must have rings on his fingers and bells on his toes.

The Bear's Dead

In reading the news today and settin' down the things I'd read, I note as how that Springfield bear he's numbered now with them what's dead.

That bear's been a-killin' quite a spell, his mate he'd done five years back, a-leavin' that old bear alone to cook his meals and tend his shack. When he was sick of course the folks they had the best as they knew how, the bear he sat there peaceful like, not kickin' up a nasty row. He took his castor oil and salts, his senna and his hot sage tea, they soaked his feet in mustard baths and made him easy as could be.

But all the same it ain't no fun when bears is shut up in a cage, not even if their allin' hours is chalked upon the printed page—not even when they shuffle out and get a story writ on them, as though they was important like and mentioned like the leadin' men.

If I was just a big black bear I'd hate for folks to cage me in, I'd scratch my captors on the jaw and bite big chunks from out their shin. I'd rather they would let me be a-roamin' where the space is big, a-pickin' berries in July and feastin' on a squalin' pig.

Why in the next cage on past me, I reckon how that bear would say, I see a cousin livin' there I'd like to call on him some day, and ask him where he used to live and how they come to capture him, invitin' him on some hot day down to the river for a swim.

I often went to make a start, intendin' for to make that call, but every time I started off I bumped my nose against the wall, I wore the toenails off my feet, got callous spots upon my snout, from spendin' days and months in there a-lookin' for the best way out.

And when the days was hot out there I'd want to crawl away and sleep, so folks what stared in there at me they couldn't see when I would weep, but every time I got curled up and started off to snore and doze, the youngsters gathered in a row and pelted peanuts at my nose.

Of course the youngsters meant all right when they was callin' at my home, I couldn't make them understand how they should leave me there alone.

Oh how I'd like to free myself, and chase that snortin', gas-filled pig, and then pick berries for a spell and feast upon a squalin' pig.—ARK.

The Ways of Juries

Are Verdicts Arrived At According to the Evidence In the Case, or Because There Is a Certain Amount of Sentiment and Feeling?

(From the Hamilton Herald.)

NORMAN SELBY, the former prize-fighter, better known by his ring-name of Kid McCoy, is one of those men who in their relations with women have "a way with them."

He went through the marriage ceremony with eight women, and most of his ex-wives appear still to think tenderly of him, despite his ill-usage or neglect of them.

He has just been convicted of manslaughter at Los Angeles, Cal. His crime is a clear case of murder. He shot and killed a woman whom he had brought under his influence, and who he had killed because she had become an inconvenience to him. There were several women on the jury which tried McCoy. Apparently they were not immune from his powers of fascination.

The case for the prosecution was clear and convincing. It was proved that McCoy had killed the woman with deliberate intent. It was a case of murder. But the women jurors hadn't the heart to place the dear man in danger of the gallows. "He is not the type of man who hangs," explained one of them. So they agreed upon a verdict of manslaughter, for which the penalty is a term of imprisonment.

How Verdicts Come About.

THIS miscarriage of justice is being pointed to as evidence of the unfitness of women for jury duty. As if male jurors were not frequently guilty of the same work of criminality that was shown by the female jurors who explained that McCoy is not the type of man who hangs. It is not long since a Hamilton jury acquitted a woman charged with the murder of her husband, although the evidence proved her to be an active participant in the crime.

The strange and rather disgusting fact is that many jurors, men as well as women, do not appear to have any compunction about violating the solemn oath they take. They are sworn to give their verdict according to the evidence. In many cases they don't—they give their verdict according to their feelings.

How Jim Did It

Jim McLean was the village smith; Little the cash that he started with, The forge he used and the coal that fed it. The shoes and nails obtained on credit! But Jim said "Reckon I'll worry through. For all the work that I get to do. I aim to do—an' that ain't no bluff—A leetle better than 'Good enough!'"

Now Jim was not of the oily type. That's always wearing a beaming smile. Some people called him "a mite too pert" And Jim, at seasons, was brisk and curt. But his patrons stuck, and the new ones came. They said, "He's corky, but just the same. The jobs that he does are staunch and tough. A leetle better than 'Good enough!'"

The village now is a roaring town Which grew and won to its high renown Because of the factory spreading out. A hundred acres, or thereabout. And the tools and articles fashioned there Have made Jim into a millionaire. For Jim's jobs are—with no bunk or guff—A leetle better than "Good enough!"

That "Leetle better" is such a lot! In any business, no matter what. For "Good enough" be it understood, Is seldom enough and rarely good. The bridge or the house or the tool you make Is good enough—till it comes to break. And then you wish you had wrought your stuff A leetle better than "Good enough!"

—Berton Braley in Forbes Magazine (N. Y.).

Editorial Opinion

WILL TRY 118 FOR MURDER.

(From the Ottawa Journal.)

ONE hundred and eighteen defendants are awaiting trial for murder in the December assizes at Chicago, four extra judges having been drafted for the work. A contemporary noting this fact, asks believers in capital punishment to square this with their theory that the death penalty is a preventive of murders, seeing that the State of Illinois has capital punishment.

The answer is that in Illinois capital punishment exists chiefly on the statute books—it isn't practised. With the eminent Mr. Clarence Darrow achieving increasing fame—and dollars—in getting off young criminals like Leopold and Loeb, and with less than ten murderers out of every 100 reaching the gallows, the truth is that capital punishment in the Republic hardly exists.

A few swift executions such as that which took place in Montreal recently might make a world of difference.

To the Editor

Review Union Idea.

Writer Believes There Are Too Many Churches, and Predicts Falling-Off in Attendance.

Editor of The Advertiser:

This subject is nearing a settlement now, and the struggle for the church effects will soon commence between the unionists and the anti-unionists.

The Methodists and the Congregationalists seem to be taking the matter very quietly and the propagation of the gospel of unionism is being carried on by the quietest of means. The Scotchman has always loved a scrap over the fine points of his religion, and the present movement is no exception.

They are getting quite heated over it, and are preparing to go to great lengths in defence of their particular view of church worship. When the union movement is consummated it will be found that there will be no Presbyterianism, or rather, the old Presbyterianism will still be in existence and will have many ardent active supporters.

What is religion for if not to scrap over? It has in all lands been the most fertile ground for differences of opinion and for the propagation of the gospel of unionism. Although Christianity is a religion, Christianity is not a thesis to be argued over, but a principle to be lived. Someone said, years ago:

"For forms of faith let graceless zealots fight.
He can't be wrong whose life is in the right."

When we read the Beatitudes and read the very ardent discussions that have been carried on throughout this so-called union movement, we wonder where the connection is, and almost fail to see the point of contact in the whole matter between the church and Christianity.

Our church leaders seem to lose sight of the fact that the organized church of whatever creed or denomination it may be, is or should be the vehicle for the propagation of the gospel of Jesus Christ. The vehicle is, or should be, subordinated to, and of minor importance to what it conveys. It should make Christ and the worship of the divine an excuse for its existence. Any trifling, hair-splitting difference of opinion is sufficient excuse for religious professors to fly at each other's throats and engage in almost devilish abuse of each other.

I read and heard a lot in the late war of the word "propaganda," and Germany was supposed to be the breeding-ground for all its very worst forms. We can almost believe, if there is a satanic personality, that his majesty is the father of and the other who promotes the so-called religious discussions. It is his form of propaganda, for if there is a more sure method of hindering the progress of Christianity, the secular or credit dispute the devil has not found it out yet, or he would have used it.

The war of tolerance and lack of consideration for the other person's creed, a lack of broad-mindedness, that leads to a narrow, bigoted opinion that all other sects, all other creeds, must be wrong, is the root evil in all religious dispute and discussion.

It was just this spirit that caused Dean Swift in his day to write satirically:

"We are God's chosen few,
All others will be damned,
There is no room in heaven for you,
We can't have heaven crammed."
After all why do the churches make so much fuss and have so much dispute? They all pay a preacher, and where they can afford it, pay an organist and organist. They all go through some form or another of worship.

The whole matter of church union gives us room for thought as to whether it makes any difference whether there is so-called union or not. It seems as if a united church were an impossibility.

It never has existed, and until human nature changes it never will. The writer of those lines:

"We are not divided,
One in body, we,
One in hope and doctrine,
One in charity and united church," must have had his tongue in his cheeks or else he was very unobservant.

Church union, with the more perfect development of radio the people will be able to stay home and listen by the thousand to some highly-paid, ex-cathedra, "radio" church union preachers. That will mean more empty churches, and many churches are poorly attended now.

Or the possibility is that there will have to be a consolidation of effort and this may be done by the union of the funds necessary to maintain an edifice for those very faithful souls who are afraid the foundations of their faith are being sapped away.

LORD BERTIE'S DIARY

What Britain's Ambassador Saw in the War.

The period covered by the following extracts from the Diary of Viscount Bertie of Thame, former British ambassador to France, is March to December, 1918, a time of great anxiety.

First there was the disaster to the 5th Army, which led to General Gough's recall. Unity of command was brought about soon afterwards, Marshal Foch becoming generalissimo of the allied armies. In April Lord Bertie fell ill, and the Earl of Derby was appointed special ambassador in his place.

When the German peace note was under consideration, Lord Bertie—his diary—objects to the encouraging tone of President Wilson's reply, and suggests "smiling the Hun hip and thigh in Biblical fashion."

On the question of what treatment should be meted out to the German emperor, who had taken refuge in Holland, M. Clemenceau and Lord Bertie were agreed: "He is a criminal . . . and the entente allies should demand his surrender or expulsion."

XVII. March 27, 1918.—The situation is somewhat better on the front, and here there is no outward appearance of depression.

The Socialists are almost Jehu-like. "What have I to do with peace? Get thee behind me!" Yesterday I began to think that it might be Bordeaux again. Jules Cambon is hopeful today.

Will there be a scapegoat for the disaster? And if Haig cover Gough, will both be sacrificed? I have had to see Colonel Mullner, the rich man of Warwickshire who represents Walter Long in petrol matters. Whenever he is about to report misdeeds he runs up against some protecting authority. He will be backed up by G.H.Q., but not necessarily by the W.O.

The director of the National portrait gallery has been required to go to the Edgar Degas sale, for the approach of the Germans to Amiens had created alarm.

Civilian travellers will have to go by Beauvais from Amiens to Boulogne. March 28, 1918.—I hear that at the Doullens conference on Tuesday Milner, Haig, Wilson and Plumer had a consultation at the mairie, the result of which was that Milner offered the disposal of the Hun troops to be held in the hands of the government, with the full consent of Haig. After a few minutes' reflection Foch accepted.

Clemenceau said that the English "see some countries magnificently et avec grande dignite" (have behaved magnificently and with great dignity).

French pressmen and some of the official world are very full against Haig, for it was impressed upon him that defensive action was being taken in rear of the front line. The British were prepared. Can this be true? I also hear that Gough has been "ungunned," and is going home. March 31, 1918.—I have seen Clemenceau. He is confident, but today is a critical one. We have decided to kill a vast number of Germans, but our 5th army was practically wiped out. Let us hope that Foch, who is generalissimo over the army, will succeed in staying the German advance, and save Amiens.

Big Bertha in Action.

April 1, 1918.—There were two shells from the long-range gun yesterday, and today one fell at 1:10 p.m. and another at 4:10 p.m. The military today expect that the second shell today exploded within twenty yards of him, when he was in his motor near the Hotel Vaux, at the back of the Invalides. Two people were killed.

It has been explained to the Swiss minister that owing to the weather the atmosphere, and consequent differences in air resistance, not all the shells fired by the long-range gun will reach Paris, he says. He is very indignant at the killing of his "counselor" (embassy counselor) and wife, who were in the church when the explosion took place on the afternoon of Good Friday.

The said counselor was the official who occupied himself with German interests in France. The military attaché says that the hole made by the shell was quite small and the explosion did not seem to him to have been loud, for it was probably heard over a great part of the town.

April 4, 1918.—The keen-eyed Admiral Hall has been to see me on his way home from Italy. He thinks that the war may end this year, and have been successful.

He does not see how we can restore to Germany any of her colonies, but we shall have to do so, he says. He can maintain it for any length of time, but she will have great difficulties with Lenin and Trotsky.

He praised Wevers.

General Gough "ungunned." April 5, 1918.—The English are more critical of Gough than the French, and he has at last been "ungunned."

The French were dismayed at our disaster, but recognize that it was due to irresistible pressure. It was thought that besides the British troops being badly handled they had no confidence in Gough.

I think that, now that Foch is practically generalissimo, Versailles will dwindle in importance.

We have given way a little near Amiens, viz., at Villers Bretonneux, on the railway from Ham, which is dissonant to Clemenceau. Haig having sworn that he would hold.

April 8, 1918.—I was taken ill on Friday night with internal pains. I telephoned for my doctor, who evidently was alarmed and brought Rochard, the surgeon; they do not yet give any definite opinion as to what the trouble is.

April 11, 1918.—Alas! we seem to be pushed "petit a petit" (little by little) towards "Calais—Armentieres zone." When shall we be able to stay the German onslaught?

The big gun renewed the bombardment of Paris today; it fired three shells at intervals of 20 minutes between 2:45 p.m. and 4:45 p.m., and a fourth at 6:30 p.m., which last sounded the nearest.

It was Clemenceau, who, by according to the Versailles scheme, was enabled to manoeuvre Foch into what he ought to have been, and would have been, since the war and it not been for the obstinacy of some.

April 14, 1918.—So at last there is a commander-in-chief of the allied armies in France! Our disasters have been in great part due to false "amour propre" (vanity) in refusing to allow our army to be under a man of the country in which the war has been raging for over three years, and in rejecting French aid when it was needed.

April 17, 1918.—I received this morning a personal telegram from Balfour, most generously worded, that my mission is terminated, and Derby comes as special ambassador in my place. I have thanked Balfour, and said that I will do what I can to help matters.

I have had a set-back, and am once more in bed.

London, Aug. 27, 1918.—What a gallant old man is Clemenceau! Really a patriot.

Sept. 8, 1918.—If the entente allies continue their victorious career, public feeling in France will not content itself with an "as you were" peace, with Alsace-Lorraine thrown in as a sop.

The people will cry for vengeance, compensation, and the future security of France, and these desiderata can only be obtained first by the annihilation of the German military machine and spirit, and the occupation of Germany territory, the restoration of Belgium so far as humanly possible, the addition to that country of Luxembourg, and the exclusion of Germany from any territory west of the Rhine.

As regards Italy, with victory her appetite for Austrian territory will be whetted.

Public opinion in entente countries will call for a Polish state with an outlet to the sea, and independent in every way of Germany, Austria, and Russia. Finians must be taught not to look to Germany.

Our colonials will not give up to Germany what has been conquered by them, and for the sake of our colonial empire and of ourselves we must see them through it, whatever Winston Churchill, R. Cecil and others may say or think.

The ideas are those of one who has never had strong political convictions, and from having been beaten of Germany, has been called upon to remain neutral,

DEFEATS ATTEMPT TO ROB BANK SAFE

Robbery Gang Fails in Daring Raid On Cottam Village.

ALL WIRES WERE CUT

Canadian Press Despatch. Windsor, Jan. 10.—Windsor police are searching the city for three men who attempted to rob a safe in the office of the Windsor Lumber Company, and in the Imperial Bank at Cottam, Ont., after stealing an acetylene welding outfit from G. L. Lodge, Windsor.

The hold-up of a taxi driver also figures in the night's occurrence.

Neither of the safe-cracking attempts was successful. In both cases the men were frightened away and in any case it is likely that efforts to open the safes would have failed. In view of the fact that the men, in effecting the attempt, took along only the welding outfit, and neglected to take with it the blow torch necessary for opening the structures. Cottam, a village 30 miles from Windsor, was carefully isolated by the men before they attempted to enter the bank. Telephone wires were cut on both sides of the village. Word of the night's episode was first brought to the notice of the police by Fred Smith, 1023 Marquette avenue, a taxi driver in the employ of the Independent Taxi Company. He was held up by three men and flung into the rear of the car he was driving while the trio counted the roads to Cottam and back in their efforts to rob.

PIGEON-KILLING HAWK IS CAUSE OF DISPUTE

Bird at Hamilton Is Shielded by Protective Society.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Hamilton, Jan. 11.—While members of the bird protective association, citizens and police officials are at variance as to whether or not the hawk which has been depicted on the postoffice building, should be killed, the crafty, diurnal bird of prey is sublimely indifferent. Given amnesty today he carries on business as usual and at the close of the day perched himself full of pigeon and contentment on the ledge of the postoffice clock to await tomorrow's developments—more pigeons or buckshot.

Owen Merriam, and other members of the Hamilton bird protective society, contend that the law permits only two types of hawks to be destroyed. These are goshawks and sharpshooters. Members of the society say that "Mr. Pigeon Pie" is neither of these. Mr. Merriam added that his society would prosecute anyone who shoots the hawk.

FORMER BROOKLYN PASTOR SPEAKS IN LONDON CHURCH

Morning and evening services yesterday at Adelaide street Baptist church were conducted by Rev. Arthur T. Fowler, M.A., D.D., late of Tanson Place church, Brooklyn, N.Y. His sermons were "The Girdling of Goliath" and "Walking the Highway with God."

CHARLES E. HUGHES AND SUCCESSOR.

The resignation of Charles E. Hughes as U.S. secretary of state has been accepted by President Coolidge. Frank B. Kellogg, now ambassador to Great Britain, will be his successor. Mr. Hughes, who will retire in March to private life after 20 years devoted to public services, is shown on the left.

KELLOGG TO SUCCEED HUGHES AS U.S. SECRETARY OF STATE

Washington Is Surprised As Charles E. Hughes Resigns Office.

WILL QUIT IN MARCH

Present Ambassador To Great Britain Gets Post—Returns Soon.

Special to The Advertiser.

Washington, Jan. 11.—Charles E. Hughes will retire from the cabinet on March 4, and Frank B. Kellogg, now ambassador to Great Britain, will succeed him as secretary of state. Mr. Hughes has placed his resignation in the hands of President Coolidge with a reaffirmation of loyalty to his chief, but with an insistent request that after nearly 20 years of public service he be permitted to return to private life.

The president, accepting the decision, expressed regret, warmly praising the retiring secretary's record of accomplishment since he took charge of the country's foreign affairs four years ago. He bespoke for him a "well-merited repose" after the cares of public responsibility.

No Ambassador Named.

Ambassador Kellogg, already familiar with many of the outstanding problems of foreign policy, through his service at a succession of European conferences, probably will come to Washington soon to serve for a few weeks in the state department before he takes his new post in March. His successor at London has not yet been selected.

Announcement of the impending change was made at the White House last yesterday, and was heard with surprise by most of the official Washington. Mr. Hughes has indicated that he desired some time in the future to leave public office and recoup his private fortunes by resuming the practice of law, but some of those nearest him in official life believed he would remain for at least another year at the head of the state department.

Appointed by President Harding at the outset of his term of office, the secretary took from the start a leading grip on the conduct of the foreign affairs of the country and was the adviser of the White House also on many questions of domestic policy.

Carried Heavy Load.

He carried a heavy load of public responsibility at the Washington arms conference, as head of the U. S. delegation, and in the period of his service handled also many intricate questions growing out of the war.

With the accession of Mr. Coolidge to the presidency, Mr. Hughes remained, to every outward appearance, a trusted confidant of the new administration. He and Mr. Coolidge always have appeared to see eye to eye on foreign affairs, but for some months opposition of Mr. Hughes' policies in the senate, which has an advisory power on foreign affairs, have been a source of an apparently growing irritation to him. He never has agreed with Senator Borah, the new chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee, on some of the vital questions of foreign policy, although no outstanding disagreement between them has recently appeared in the picture.

President Coolidge will now give attention to the task of filling the vacancies in the diplomatic corps, resulting from changes in his cabinet on March 4.

Meanwhile the Senate will give consideration to two appointments by the chief executive, those of Harlan F. Stone of New York to be an associate justice of the supreme court, and of Charles E. Warren of Michigan to succeed him as attorney-general. Favorable action on both is expected.

May Be Houghton.

In line with the promotion of Ambassador Kellogg, the president is understood to have in mind the advancement of Ambassador Houghton at Berlin to the post of St. James. With such a policy carried to a logical conclusion, there would be a general advancement to those in the diplomatic service.

Although Ambassador Herriot in Paris might be considered next in line for the London post, the understanding here is that he prefers to remain at the French capital, where he has had many years of service. Moreover his desire for early retirement from the diplomatic corps has been reported.

Others whose names are mentioned in connection with the ambassadorship to Great Britain are Ambassador Fletcher at Rome, Under Secretary of State Grew, Solicitor-General James M. Beck and Senator Medill McCormick of Illinois, who retires from the Senate on March 4.

COLBERT SPEAKS.

John Colbert, prominent trades union worker, was the special speaker at the Sunday morning gathering of G.O.P. and "Walking the Highway with God."

DOUKHOBORS RETURN TO CANADIAN FREEDOM

Three Saskatchewan Families Penniless After Year in Soviet Russia.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Yorkton, Sask., Jan. 11.—Three Doukhobor families of the Kamskoy district, Saskatchewan, who went to Russia last February, have returned to their Saskatchewan homes disillusioned, they say, leaving Canada with plenty of funds, they have returned penniless, and are being looked after by friends. They declare that the civil and religious freedom they enjoy in Canada is many times preferable to the alleged freedom they were promised if they returned to the land of their nativity. Economic conditions here, they say, are immeasurably superior to those under the Soviet.

CLAIMS HAPPINESS IS FOUND IN WORK

Rev. Bruce Hunter Begins a Series of Sermons at First Methodist.

Beginning a series of Sunday evening sermons on "Familiar Age-Long Experiences," Rev. Bruce Hunter at First Methodist church took the case of Elijah, the "man of God," who had defied kings, disposed of false prophets, and then was plunged to the depths of despair, where he prayed that God might take away his life.

"Consider where Elijah had been for a few days," stated Mr. Hunter. "A short time ago he had stood before Ahab and denounced him, he had called on his God on Mount Carmel, and had been answered with fire from heaven; he had disposed of the prophets of Baal. Surely you would think such a man would be on the mountain top of a wonderful experience. He forgot one thing, that Jezebel was alive, and we come across him away out in the wilderness praying that God might take his life."

Break is Pathetic.

"The break in any life is pathetic, and the sag in a really great career is all the more pathetic. Lincoln had the experience of standing alone, the last chapters of Napoleon's life were spent alone. Souls that soar so high are only one step removed from being plunged into despair. These are the days that are inevitable, and it is our duty to understand their meaning and to learn their meaning."

"Elijah's trouble was from physical reaction; he had concentrated all his physical and mental powers on one problem; he had gone through an experience where men live years in minutes, and where the soul is mental or spiritual, we must pay the price."

Elijah Was Idle.

"Another reason for Elijah's trouble was that he was idle. There is no one recipe for happiness it is work; the mischievous people are those who have no great obligation on their shoulders. It was not a curse that God said man should earn his bread by the sweat of his brow. It was God who pointed the way to John Bright when God faced the wife of his wife, and told him of a great effort he might make for the benefit of the people; the greatest balm for an overwrought soul is losing ourselves in the service of others."

"Elijah stood alone in his great appearance, and he had the price of others. Oliver Cromwell stood alone, the loneliness that swept over John Knox was intense. One of the greatest of the fathers of Christ, thousands have gazed on the cross, and thousands have heard his cry, 'My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?' The great thing Elijah overlooked was that God had not forsaken him; God was near; He spoke to Elijah. When the night is the darkest, and the loneliness is the loneliest, God is near. Through the eyes of faith we can look up and see God coming as the invisible Blucher will turn our Waterloo into victory."

CROSS WORD PUZZLE NO. 77

What shall we call this puzzle? It can hardly be called a cross-word, for the words don't cross. They do, however, link up the first and last letters—a rather novel design.

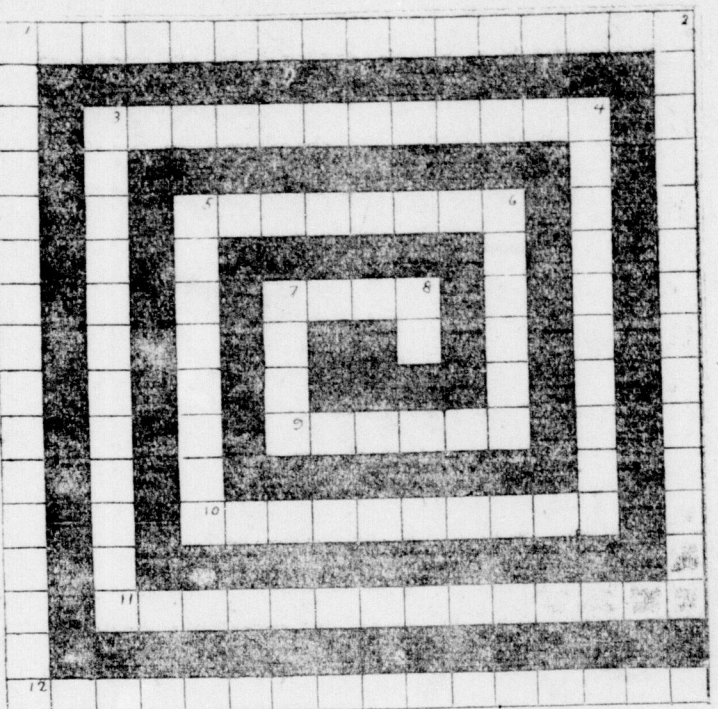

Each number in the puzzle indicates the position of the first letter of a word.

Each word reads from left to right (horizontal) or downward (vertical) according to position. Lettered in correctly, words that cross will interlock. Each number in the white squares also refers to a definition in the accompanying table.

Each definition suggests a word possessing the exact number of letters to fit the white spaces allotted to it.

Each white space is to receive one letter only. Words start only in numbered squares.

CACHE BAY CLAIMS MAN LEFT TWO YEARS AGO

Canadian Press Despatch. Hull, Que., Jan. 10.—Eugene Courville, aged 21, a former resident of Perkins Mill, wanted by the authorities as a material witness in the murder of Joseph Bouchard, aged 40, a farmer, in his log cabin at St. Pierre de Wakefield, and who was thought to be at Cache Bay on Lake Nipissing, has not lived there for almost two years, it is claimed.

James Carey testified at the inquest that he met Courville, a farmer employee at Bouchard's cabin on Dec. 24, when Courville was indicated as a witness in the murder of the dead man.

DECLARES SPIRITUALISM IS THE POWER OF GOD

Spiritualist Leader Monsica Lauder Todd Speaks at Masonic Temple.

Spiritualism is the power of God unto salvation. It is the fatherhood of God, the brotherhood of man, the immortality of the soul. It is the light of God and the principles of Christ.

Monsica Lauder Todd, one-time Methodist minister, who has been a spiritualist for many years and who addressed a gathering which filled the Masonic Temple last night.

"Spiritualism was the essence of Christ," she said. "Without spiritualism on the earth there was no light. A man who lived in a cellar did not know the glory of God's sun. Those who did not know spiritualism were as a man in a cellar—they had not seen the light."

Mr. Todd said that he had nothing against the medical profession, but spiritualism would cut down doctor bills for its followers. It would strengthen them, it would make them young. It would make them happy. There had been many wonderful cures effected by the power of thought. Some people had been cured by spiritualism after they had been treated by eight doctors.

At the conclusion of his address, Mr. Todd, as medium, gave spirit messages from those who had passed beyond to relatives in the audience. Mrs. E. Ballard and Mr. A. E. Turpin said a selection was also given by the Wildgust quartet.

A CITY WITHOUT GOD CAN NEVER PROSPER

Rev. John Agnew Urges People To Withstand Worldly Temptations.

A city without God can never prosper. The Rev. John Agnew, pastor of Ridout street Methodist church, told his congregation at last evening's service. Wholesome and godly people must live in a community where the church is the center.

The great city of Sodom was doomed when godly men and women no longer dwelt there. The same fate, figuratively, might come upon any modern city where people forgot their God.

Moving from one locality to another, people are apt to forget their home. Contact with strangers provides temptation to seek pleasure and forget the church. People come to church sometimes and when they go to sleep offer the excuse that they had a hard day shopping on Saturday. But they might as well remain away from church as come there to sleep.

Great and successful men have had early Christian training and have followed up their belief in God before anything else. Professing Christians, oftentimes, brave the cold and the storm to attend the theatre or the dance, but in similar weather the chances are that they will not be found in a place of worship.

SCHOOL TRUSTEES TO MEET IN CITY

Comparison of Rural Board Systems Will Feature the Sessions on Jan. 16, 17.

One of the features of the Middlesex school trustees' and ratepayers' convention to be held in the normal school on Jan. 16 and 17 will be an intimate discussion on the value of township boards of trustees compared with the present sectional system.

The department of education is considering changes in rural school administration and is looking to such associations as Middlesex possessors for first-hand information as to the needs of rural schools. The department is in favor of township boards of trustees and believes that township boards could function more efficiently than the present sectional trustees.

Dr. Karr To Attend. Dr. Karr, director of rural education, will be present Saturday morning to take part in the discussion that is sure to arise. The majority of trustees are in favor of the present method of school government. They point out that a township board would hardly be conversant with the individual problems of each school section. On the other hand, a central township organization would function with a view to bettering conditions in the entire community. Interest is particularly keen on this subject and therefore more than 100 delegates are expected to attend the Middlesex convention.

Election of officers will take place on Saturday afternoon as well as a discussion of organizational problems. Mr. Morris, secretary of the provincial association, will be present to aid the gathering in this matter. Mr. Morris is acquainted with all angles of the trustee problem and will be a real help in solving questions that come before the meeting.

Friday afternoon an interesting program has been arranged for the members of the University of Western Ontario, to be concluded with a social hour.

On Friday evening, President Reynolds of the O. A. C. Guelph, will speak on "Rural Trustees and Rural Education." The principal prearranged of the normal school, will also give an address at this meeting, while the boys of Manor Park school will give a demonstration of physical culture work. Principal Tanton of Manor Park is proud of his class which has gained much prominence in the last year. There will be demonstrations by both junior and senior pupils as well as high school girls. An invitation is extended to all those interested in physical culture to be present at the session.

The program has been arranged by President Chas. Macfie of Appleton, and Miss Ethel Robson, Ilderton, the secretary of the association.

KANSAS GOVERNOR, SON FACE BRIBERY CHARGE

Alleged To Have Received $1,250 For Pardoning Fred W. Pollman.

Associated Press Despatch.

Topeka, Kan., Jan. 11.—Warrants will be sworn out in the court of Topeka tomorrow charging Governor Jonathan M. Davis and his son, Russell D. Davis, 28, with soliciting and accepting a bribe of $1,250 in payment for a pardon issued to Fred W. Pollman, it was announced late today by Tinkham Veale, county attorney at Shawnee county.

Agreement was reached at a conference of county and state officers this afternoon that charges will be preferred and a warrant served on the governor and his son before the inauguration exercises tomorrow, when Governor Davis yields his chair as executive.

The accusations will be based, Mr. Veale said, on an alleged payment of $1,250 to the younger Davis by Pollman, convicted felon, who formerly was president of the Lyon County Bank at Leavenworth, Kas.

The money was said to have been exchanged last Friday in a Topeka hotel, when Russell delivered a pardon, signed by his father, to Pollman, later returning the money when he was confronted by witnesses who had "listened in" on the transaction by a telephonic arrangement.

Mr. Veale said that the county sheriff would serve the warrants immediately. The governor and his son would be given a preliminary hearing and placed under bond.

To make room for the large orchestra Mr. Jordan has assembled for tonight's performance of the "Messiah," four rows of seats have been taken out of the Capitol Theatre. Douglas Fetherston and A. S. Trussa will lead the violins. Dr. Louis Hahnel the violas, Paul Hahn of Toronto the violoncellos, and H. C. Watson the basses. Flutes, clarinets, oboes, bassoons, French horns, trumpets, trombones, tuba and tympani played by local and Toronto musicians, will make up the instrumentation. In addition the theatre organ, piano and a reed organ specially prepared by the Sherlock-Manning Company to augment the reed section will swell the forces when required.

MOTHERS LIKE TO TREAT COLDS WITH VAPORS

Direct Treatment with Vaporizing Salve Immediately Reaches Inflamed Air Passages.

It is no longer necessary constantly to dose the children in treating croup, bronchitis, sore throat, or deep chest colds. Many Canadian mothers now use the "Vicks" remedy, Vicks VapoRub, for the cold troubles of all the family, because it is just rubbed over throat and chest—there is nothing to take. When so applied Vicks gives off medicated vapors which are inhaled directly into the inflamed air passages, loosening the phlegm and making the breathing easier.

At the same time Vicks is absorbed and stimulates the skin like a liniment, or plaster, and thus aids the vapors inhaled to break up the congestion.

At all drug stores 50c a jar. For free test size, package write Vicks Chemical Co., 344 St. Paul St. W., Montreal, P. Q.—Adv.

Mystery Girl Identified When Voice Broadcast

Aunt in St. Louis Startled When Charlotte McGuire Speaks.

FOUND IN CHICAGO

Chicago, Jan. 11.—Radio and newspaper publicity today brought knowledge of her name and home to Charlotte "Norie" the mystery girl in the county hospital, who has been unable to remember anything about herself since she was found in a faint two months ago in the union station here.

She was identified as Charlotte McGuire, 28 years old, 5442 Wayne avenue, St. Louis, by Mrs. George Griffiths, an aunt, and Miss Genevieve Sullivan, a cousin. She left with them for St. Louis at once.

Since the girl was found here on the evening of Nov. 13, numerous attempts have been made to identify her. Persons from various parts of the country have come to visit her and more than 5,000 letters and telegrams have been received at the hospital giving "clues" as to her identity and asking for additional information.

Numerous descriptions have been published and motion pictures of the girl have been shown in various parts of the country.

Chatham Feels Earth Tremor

Special to The Advertiser.

Chatham, Jan. 11.—Certain South Chatham residents are confident that that section of the city experienced a slight earthquake on Friday afternoon. For 30 seconds distinct tremors were felt, causing glasses to rattle on buffets, and dishes to dance on dining-room tables. No trains were passing on the railroads at the time, and no heavy vehicles were on the streets, so that residents claim they were not mistaken.

The girl tearfully agreed to broadcast an appeal by radio.

By her fireside in St. Louis, Mrs. Griffiths was trying to "tune in" on outside stations when suddenly she heard the low voice of the girl.

Startled by the voice she believed she recognized, Mrs. Griffiths called the Chicago hospital.

This morning Mrs. Griffiths and Miss Sullivan approached the girl from behind a screen and her bed.

The girl could not see her visitors, but recognized a bird atop Mrs. Griffiths's hat.

"That bird," she said, "I know it. It's on Aunt Annie's hat."

OTTAWA TAILOR SHOP IS DESTROYED BY FIRE

Loss in Fire of Unknown Origin Is Placed at $150,000.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Ottawa, Jan. 11.—Fire of unknown origin breaking out in the rear of the G. M. Holbrook tailor shop, Sparks street, at 4 o'clock this morning, completely destroyed the Holbrook store and the building overhead, entailing a total loss of $150,000.

The Holbrook chambers were completely gutted, only the brick walls remaining, while smoke and water caused heavy damage to the Royal bank chambers, and to the Bank of Toronto building, which adjoin the burned property. The Dominion church immediately behind the Holbrook chambers was saved.

The blaze is believed to have broken out while smoke and water caused heavy damage to the Holbrook store and is thought to have been caused by a smoldering cigarette butt.

LEOPARD TURNS ON TRAINER, WOMAN IS CLOSE TO DEATH

Little Hope Is Held Out For Recovery of Dolores Valceda.

SAVED BY ASSISTANT

Special to The Advertiser.

Bay City, Mich., Jan. 11.—Mrs. Dolores Valceda, known in the circus world as Dolores Valceda, is at Mercy hospital with little hopes for her recovery as a result of an attack on her by a leopard which she was training in an arena on Saginaw street.

She had turned her back for a second, when the leopard sprang, landing with his paws and teeth on the back of her neck and knocking her to the floor. The infuriated animal continued to choke and new the woman and gradually moved his teeth and disfigured her face. His claws also dug into her scalp and her face was badly scratched.

The woman has had the leopard at the Saginaw street arena for over two months. It is said, although the police declared they did not know of the fact until they were called for assistance. They will investigate the circumstances under which the animal was brought here.

Woman on the floor. He succeeded in striking the leopard over the head several times. The blows dazed the brute for a moment, then it left the woman and sprang at Craig. He again clapped it over the head until it retreated. Craig seized Mrs. Hill and removed her from the cage.

Mrs. Hill's windpipe with its teeth and disfigured her face. His claws also dug into her scalp and her face was badly scratched.

GAMBLING HOUSE OWNER IS KILLED

Shoots One of Bandits Before Meeting Death—Money Is Saved.

Special to The Advertiser.
Detroit, Jan. 11.—Raymond Bishop, 59 years old, proprietor of a gambling house at 2435 East Milwaukee avenue, was shot to death early Saturday morning by hi-jackers who attempted to hold up his resort. But Bishop did not give up his life without exacting a penalty. One of the steel jacketed bullets from his automatic struck a member of the gang, and he fell dead almost at the feet of the man whom he was trying to rob. Bodies of both men were found by police, who entered the place shortly afterwards. In the strong box of Bishop's office there was $2,000 in currency, and it is believed the bandits, aware of this, attempted to rob the place. A display of arms, half a dozen men in the room when the hi-jackers forced their way in fled to the street when the firing began, but Bishop stayed behind to defend his money.

In several cases, shepherds and farmers who went to the fields to tend their sheep or cattle were found frozen with their flocks.

The Caucasus has not experienced such bitter cold for a century, and it is feared the effect on the crops will bring famine next year.

CHURCH OBSERVES 44TH ANNIVERSARY

Special Services Conducted at Knox Presbyterian by Hamilton Preacher.

Discussing "The Providence of God" in a message to Knox Presbyterian church on the occasion of its 44th anniversary, Rev. W. H. Sedgewick, D.D., Hamilton, yesterday morning described it as "a disturbing force, an agent of progress and a sustaining power."

How often we speak of "settling down," remarked Dr. Sedgewick, "as if that were the chief end and achievement of life. God is ever coming to us and in loving severity disturbing our nests. By giving us joys with wings the eternal God creates in us wings of faith with which to reach a higher world. There are few things that more frequently or more readily come between men and women and the real things of life than comfort. Religion is too often forsaken for comfort and the fire goes out on the altar of the soul. Is it to be wondered, therefore, that God takes away some of those preferences to stab the spirits wide awake."

God Means Progress.

"The providence of God is always an agent of progress," continued the speaker. "Providence disturbs us to make of us something better. By awakening us with merciful pain He awakens us from out of our dangerous comfort. How often we tuck our minds to bed, determined to hang on ourselves with anything new or any new idea. Only by moving can we keep up with the moving moving purposes of God. It is indeed a great discovery for a man to find out that God is not dead, that He is alive!"

"Providence is always a sustaining power," pursued Dr. Sedgewick. "Everlasting underneath and around, are the everlasting arms. Donald Harkie has said: 'Religion is betting one's life on God.'"

"If we would only lay our lives on God's wings," concluded Dr. Sedgewick, "and that not in idleness, but determined to do our best, then would we be upborne and safely guided and guarded into eternal life."

Special Music.

Special music rendered by the choir under the direction of the organist, "Charles Percy, included the anthem, "Praise Ye the Lord," and the solo, "Ye in the Lord," James Pringle Scott by Miss Gladys McEwen.

By way of prefacing his sermon Dr. Sedgewick, who is pastor of Central Presbyterian church, Hamilton, referred to the fact that he had preached in Knox church in 1906 when the general assembly was held here. He commented upon "the wonderful transformation and improvement" made in the church since that date.

Dr. Sedgewick spoke of the pastor of Knox, Rev. T. A. Symington, M.A., as a personal friend and remarked that "Knox owed to him a debt for the leadership he had given the congregation since settling here six years ago."

Largely-Attended Dedication Services Held in City Yesterday.

HOLD PROCESSION

Two new churches were opened in London yesterday in the dedication of the Anglican Church of the Resurrection at Knollwood Park and the new building of the Church of Christ Disciples on Elizabeth street. Ceremony associated with the opening of these churches was impressive.

CHURCH OF CHRIST.

Dedication of the new Church of Christ Disciples took place yesterday amid impressive ceremony and with the many worshippers, including prominent leaders of the work of the church in attendance. Opening service and communion in the morning, dedication service in the afternoon and the first evening service were all exceptionally well attended, and faith in the future of the church radiated from all sides.

Tributes to Rev. J. H. Versey, for six years pastor of the church, and who initiated efforts to secure a new church building, were general. The church building, were general. The church building, were general. The church building, were general.

Proceeding the morning service, a procession made up of clergy, trustees, elders, members of the church, and many of the old church to the new building. The procession was led by A. McKillop, the past president of the Ontario board of co-operation of the church, and who some time ago laid the foundation stone of the church. He was accompanied by Rev. J. H. Versey, the pastor, and Rev. C. W. Caudle, Indianapolis, the dedicatory of the new building and other church people. Keys to the doors of the building were presented to Mr. McKillop by W. G. Murray, the architect.

Unveil Window.

Rev. Mr. Versey and Rev. Mr. Caudle conducted the 11 o'clock service. The latter, preaching the dedicatory sermon, made a fitting tribute to the enterprise of the members of the London church in completing their efforts at such self-sacrifice.

At 12 o'clock noon communion service was observed. In the afternoon vice was observed. In the afternoon vice was observed. In the afternoon vice was observed.

A special service of dedication was observed, and at 4 o'clock a memorial window was unveiled by P. A. McKillop and Mrs. Claude R. Edin. The window is in memory of the late Mrs. Versey and of the late Leonard Versey, the pastor's son, who was killed during the great war.

Members of the building committee, who took part in the service, were Rev. J. H. Versey, chairman; A. W. McVicar, secretary; Claude King, treasurer; P. A. McKillop, R. J. Henderson, W. H. Dunn and F. Churchill.

CHURCH OF THE RESURRECTION.

Services of dedication at the Church of the Resurrection, the city's newest Anglican church, were well attended yesterday, and marked an interesting step in the religious development of London.

With the Right Rev. David Williams, lord bishop of the diocese of Huron, and other city clergymen present, the morning service was impressive and optimistic. There were 185 worshippers present, and great tribute was made by the bishop and other clergy to these men and women who had, by their own hands, constructed the roomy Knollwood Park edifice. Success has come to these Knollwood Park folks, who set out just over a year ago to secure for themselves a house of worship, and a new parish has now been established.

Assisting Bishop Williams at the morning service were: Rev. T. J. Charlton, rector of St. Matthew's, in which parish Knollwood Park was formerly included; the Venerable Archdeacon W. J. Doherty, secretary of the diocesan synod; Principal C. C. Waller of Huron college, and Rev. William Moulton, retired.

Bishop Williams and his attendants were met by the appointed representatives of the congregation, who read the petition for consecration of the new church, and the sentence of consecration was read.

Stands For Stability.

Stability, order and freedom were the outstanding characteristics of the Church of England, the lord bishop told his hearers in preaching from the first book of Chronicles, xli, 1: "This is the house of the Lord."

Just as the Christian believed in God, so was one of his first thoughts to build a house in which to worship his God.

Only the Christian judges right from wrong. The man who does not believe in God does what is the national or local custom, what is law or what his friends do, but, without God, cannot truly judge right from wrong.

The Church of England, like England herself, stands for stability, order and freedom. The church stands for stability and not for change, simply for the sake of change. It realizes that the fundamental things of life never change, though their exterior covering may come and go. The church desires order, for it is in no way extreme. It loves freedom, but desires temperance with tolerance, sobriety with liberty, and worship without faddism.

Special dedicatory prayers, hymns and Psalms were offered. William Sewell, licensed lay reader, was in charge of the choir. Mrs. Clayton was at the organ and Mrs. Dixon offered a solo at the morning service.

DECLARES VICTORY IS OFTEN FOUND IN DEFEAT

Rev. R. J. Murphy Cites Instances Where This Has Been Proven.

Victory is often to be found in defeat, according to the opinions expressed by Rev. R. J. Murphy, B. D., pastor of Wortley Road Baptist church, at yesterday morning's service. Rev. Mr. Murphy citing verses from the 21st chapter of Saint John's Gospel, told of the incident in which Jesus Christ has come upon his disciples and brought fruitfulness.

All night long the disciples, experienced fishermen, had worked on their ship on the sea of Tiberias, but without success. Night was considered the best time for fishing, yet all the craft of these fishermen availed them not. Then the morning came and with it, the Lord, and He bade them cast their nets on the right side of the ship.

With all their judgment as fishermen, the disciples obeyed their master, who had risen from the dead, and their nets were filled with a multitude of fishes. This was an instance where victory had come from defeat, Rev. Mr. Murphy declared.

There was the case of the student, working on his examinations. He failed, a defeat, proved incentive to work and study with greater vigor and thoughtfulness. So when examination came once again the student was able to pass with high honors.

The pastor declared that reverses should not cause pessimism and depression. Obedience to the Master and willingness to pay the price of not giving way to the line of least resistance would mean victory at last.

WATFORD PREACHER SPEAKS IN CITY CHURCH

Rev. T. De Rayner Gives Sermon at First Congregational Church.

Rev. T. DeCourcy Rayner of Watford, young people's editor of The Canadian Congregationalist, was the preacher yesterday at First Congregational church. His sermon on "The Daystar," taken from the text, Luke 1: 78: "Through the tender mercy of our God," was listened to by a large congregation at the morning service.

Two soon after Christmas is the message of the birth of Christ set aside and forgotten. Rev. Mr. Rayner declared, Jesus was referred to in many places in the Old Testament as "the star of Jacob," "a great light," "the sun of righteousness," and in the New Testament as "the true light," "the light of the world," and "The Daystar."

What sunshine is to physical life, so is Jesus to spiritual life. Only those who have experienced the darkness of sin can fully enjoy the gladness of light of Christ's coming.

Referring to the census just published, showing athletes and agonists found in London, Rev. Mr. Rayner thought such people almost beyond comprehension in these times. It was difficult to believe that there were men and women in this Christian era who have not found God.

"Behold Jesus and you'll know what God is," said Rev. Mr. Rayner, in closing. "Men have tried to find God all down through the ages, but not until Jesus came into their lives did men see in human form the likeness of God. Today hungering souls look back at the Lamb of Calvary and see what God is."
