UKRAINIAN GOVT. IS OVERTHROWN

GERMANY SURRENDERS 20 SUBS TO THE ALLIES TODAY

GERMANY HANDS OVER 20 SUBMARINES TO BRITISH ADMIRAL OFF HARWICH

First Lot of Enemy U-Boats Is Surrendered at Sunrise This Morning—Undersea Craft Will Proceed to English Port in Charge of German Crews, Who Will There Board Transports for Their Return Home.

London, Nov. 20.—Twenty German submarines were surrendered to Rear Admiral Reginald W. Tyrwhitt 30 miles off Harwich this morning at sunrise, according to a Press Association dispatch. These are the first U-boats to be turned over to the Allies by Germany.

Admiral Tyrwhitt received the surrender of the German craft on board his flagship, a British cruiser.

The surrendered submarines will proceed to Harwich in charge of their own crews. The U-boats will then be boarded by British crews and interpreters and proceed to Parkeston Quay nearby. The Germans will leave the submarines there and board transports for their return to Germany.

Twenty additional submarines will be surrendered on Thursday and twenty more on Friday. The remainder of the U-boats to be handed over in accordance with the armistice terms will be given up later.

GERMANY'S FLEET SAVED FROM ANNIHILATION BY MEETING OF SEAMEN, DECLARES PERSIUS

Noted German Critic Reveals Some Sensational Conditions That Existed in Enemy's Naval Affairs—Von Tirpitz Blamed for Stubbornness.

London, Nov. 20.—(British Wireless Service).—Capt. Persius, the German naval critic, has chosen the moment when the finest vessels of the German navy are about to be surrendered to the Allies, to publish in the Berlin Tageblatt a sensational article containing revelations regarding the German fleet. Capt. Persius says the hope that the German fleet would be able in a second Skagerrak battle to beat the British fleet rested upon the bluff and lies of the naval authorities.

In August, 1914, Germany had about one million tonnage in warships, the writer points out, while Great Britain had more than double that, and, thanks to the mistakes of von Tirpitz, the German material was quite inferior to the British. In the Skagerrak battle, he declares, the German fleet was saved from destruction partly by good leadership and partly by favorable weather conditions. Had the weather been clear or Admiral von Scheer's leadership less able, the destruction of the whole German navy would have resulted. The long-range British guns would have completely smashed the lighter-armed German ships. As it was, the losses of the German fleet were enormous, and on June 1, Capt. Persius says, it was clear to every thinking man that the Skagerrak battle must be the only general naval engagement of the war.

Von Tirpitz Was Obstinate.

On all sides, continues the writer, Admiral von Tirpitz was advised to construct only submarines, but he remained obstinate. On October 1, (1915?) several members of the Reichstag made an earnest appeal to the army command —not to the naval staff—with the result that an order was issued terminating the construction of battleships in order that the material might be used for the making of submarines. In the meantime, so great a scarcity of material had arisen that it became necessary to disarm a number of the battleships and take the metal. In this manner, at the beginning of 1916, twenty-three battleships had been disarmed, as well as one newly-built cruiser.

At the beginning of this year, Capt. Persius states, the German navy consisted only of dreadnoughts and battleships of the Helgoland, Kaiser and Markgraf type and some few battle cruisers. All the ships which von Tirpitz had constructed from 1897 to 1906, at a cost of innumerable millons, had been destroyed, and the U-boats that had been constructed had proved unable to fight against British warships.

Few Subs Constructed.

Admiral von Capelle, during his period as head of the navy, says Captain Persius, constructed very few submarines, work being continued only on the construction of submarines of the large type, but in official quarters it was still stated that Germany possessed an enormous number of U-boats and that the loss was virtually nil.

That was not true, the writer admits. In 1917, he states, 83 submarines were constructed, while 66 were destroyed. In April, 1917, Germany had 126 submarines, and in October, 146. In February, 1918, she had 136, and in June of the same year, 113, according to Captain Persius' figures.

Only a small percentage of these submarines were actively operating at any given time, Captain Persius declares. In January, 1917, for instance, when conditions were favorable for submarine work, only twelve per cent were active, while thirty per cent were in harbor, thirty-eight per cent under repairs and twenty per cent "incapacitated." Submarine crews, he says, were not sufficiently educated and trained, and they looked with distrust upon the weapon. In the last months, he reveals, it was very difficult to get men for submarine work, as experienced seamen looked upon submarine warfare as political stupidity.

Seamen Saved Themselves.

Captain Persius tells of the mutiny that broke out at the beginning of this month, when the German navy was ordered out for attack. Had the seamen obeyed, the writer remarks, innumerable lives would have been lost, and he declares that "every thinking man therefore is of the opinion that the seamen, on November 5, rendered an invaluable service to their country."

KILLED IN ACTION

PTE. LLEWELLYN MILLER PENNIE has been officially reported killed in action on November 3. This sad news was received by his parents on Tuesday morning. Pte. Pennie enlisted with the Cyclist Corps in this city, which left for overseas from Toronto. He was only 21 years of age, and prior to enlisting had been working on his uncle's farm outside the city. U. S. APPEAL COURT HEARING MOTION FOR NEW TEIPER TRIAL

Former Hamilton Man Was Convicted of Murdering His Mother.

Rochester, N. Y., Nov. 20.—The appellate division today is hearing argument on a motion for a new trial for John Edward Teiper of Buffalo, now serving twenty years in Auburn prison for the killing of his mother on a road near Buffalo, January 30, 1916. Teiper was convicted in December, 1916.

Mrs. Teiper and another son were beaten to death with a hammer, and a daughter almost killed, while the family was riding in an automobile. The accused claimed that the party was attacked by a highwayman. The indictment charging him with the murder of his brother was not tried.

Teiper was represented in court today by three attorneys. His wife, who professes belief in his innocence, was present to hear the argument. The Teiper family is well known in Hamilton, Ont., where they resided at one time.

REVOLUTION IN BERLIN BROUGHT UNDER CONTROL

Red Flag of Rebels Slowly Disappearing From Streets.

QUIET IN HOLLAND AGAIN

Crowds Parade Streets of Dutch Capital Wearing Orange Ribbons.

Amsterdam, Nov. 20.—The red flag is gradually disappearing from the streets of Berlin, as are most other external indications of the revolution, according to a dispatch received here from the German capital.

A governing cabinet of Social Democrats has been established in the former chancellors' palace next to the foreign office, where Friedrich Ebert, Socialist premier, and Hugo Haase, secretary of foreign affairs, and their associates are overrun with callers.

Mathias Erzberger, head of the German armistice plenipotentiaries, who has just returned from attending the armistice negotiations, is engaged in organizing a German representation to attend the peace conference. Maximilian Harden, editor of Die Zukunft, is proposed as one of the delegates.

SOME OF PENSIONS PAID TO SOLDIERS DISGRACE AND BLOT

So Declares Mayor C. R. Somerville.

MUST ASSURE COMFORT

And Enough Should Be Given to Compensate for Earning Loss.

A paltry pension of eight or ten dollars a month doled out to a man who, after having been willing to offer his life as a sacrifice for democracy, returns home partially disabled, is a disgrace and a blot on the national life of Canada, according to a statement of Mayor C. R. Somerville this morning.

The question arose out of a discussion of the prospects for the returned men taking up their civil occupations again, and the recompense that Canada owes the men who have lost an arm or a leg in the great struggle. There are some things that should be made right by the Canadian people to the men, the mayor thinks, but the one that is the most glaring instance of injustice is that of pensions.

The money paid the disabled men should be sufficient to enable them to keep their families with at least the same degree of comfort as they could if they were still fit for industrial pursuits.

Mayor Somerville also thinks that Canada's representatives at the peace conference should press for an indemnity from the central powers sufficient to reimburse the Dominion for all money expended on the war, including a sum to cover all that will be paid to the soldiers and the dependents of men who have lost their lives in the struggle for freedom. If the Canadian delegates return with anything less than this, he thinks, they will have failed in their duty to their country.

ROCHESTER IS LEFT WITHOUT NEWSPAPERS AS PRINTERS STRIKE

Men Decline to Accept Award of Arbitration Board.

Rochester, N. Y., Nov. 20.—Rochester is without her daily newspapers today as a result of a strike called last night by the Allied Printing Trades Council. Neither the Democrat-Chronicle nor the Herald, the two morning papers, appeared this morning, and the two afternoon dailies, the Post-Express and the Times-Union, will not be published today.

The strike order followed the rejection last night by the printers' council of an award made by a board of arbitration of five, consisting of two representatives of the employers, two of the printers, and a fifth member. The printers had demanded a scale of $35 a week for day work and $40 for night work. The arbitration board awarded $28 and $31 respectively, which was promptly rejected. A settlement is not expected until the officers of the International Union arrive. Meanwhile no attempt will be made to publish.

ITALIAN CRUISER ENTERS HABROR OF SEBENICO

Austrian Liner Has Been Taken Over and Renamed.

Rome, Tuesday, Nov. 19.—An Italian cruiser has entered the harbor of Sebenico. The Austrian trans-Atlantic liner Franz Josef, which was in port, has been taken over and renamed the Armand Diaz. Admiral Milto, governor of the Dalmatian region occupied by Italy, hoisted the Italian flag over the vessel, according to newspaper dispatches. Order has been restored at Fiume, it is stated.

Sebenico is in Dalmatia, near where the River Kerka flows into the Adriatic Sea. It is 70 miles southeast of Trieste.

BOLSHEVIK LOSSES ARE FIVE TIMES THAT OF THE ALLIES

Archangel, Nov. 14.—(By the Associated Press.)—The Bolshevik forces along the Dvina, their infantry attacks having been repulsed, today were bombarding the Russo-Allied positions on the left bank of the river at Tulgas. The Allied artillery is replying vigorously.

Since late in September the Bolsheviki have been trying stubbornly but fruitlessly to drive the Allied forces up the Dvina to north of its junction with the Vaga. The small amount of ice in the river at this time of the year is helping the enemy gunboats. The Bolsheviki apparently possess a large number of river craft on which to mount naval guns, brought from Petrograd.

As long as the enemy gunboats are able to move the Americans and British are combatting great odds. But the enemy infantry is no match for the Allies. The Bolshevik losses in killed, wounded and captured being at least five times that of the Allies.

REFUSED TO GIVE UP CROWNS; WAS INTERNED IN SWITZERLAND

Strange Experience of William McIntosh, Formerly of The Advertiser, Whose Dental Work Was His Undoing.

When William McIntosh, formerly of The Advertiser and for many years ago he little thought the misfortune of that day would cause his internment in Switzerland for many months during the war.

The accident, which was the direct cause of his inconvenience, occurred in London many years ago during a celebration, when a rocket struck Mr. McIntosh in the face and injured his jaw. It was necessary for him to undergo much dental treatment, and a number of gold crowns were placed in his mouth.

He was in Europe when war broke out, and went to Switzerland. While in that country he wrote his observations of the war for The Advertiser and revealed many interesting facts. He intended to come home, but something happened which prevented his departure.

The Swiss Government, plagued with spies from Germany, discovered that code messages were being brought into the country beneath the crowns of teeth. As a result of this exposure it was determined that all strangers in the country should be forced to have the crowns in their mouths removed. No doubt the Swiss dentists did a thriving business, but Mr. McIntosh refused point blank to permit the bridge work and crowns to be taken from his mouth. As a result he was not permitted to leave the country, and only now will be able to secure access to the outside world.

PLANS ARE BEING FORMED TO MAKE WORLD BONE DRY

Prohibition Leaders at Columbus Conference Preparing Great Campaign.

Columbus, Nov. 20.—Plans through which "dry" leaders hope to make the world as "arid as a cinder path," according to one of the delegates in an address last night, will be outlined at sessions today, Thursday and Friday of the world-wide prohibition conference. Among speakers who will address meetings today are Former United States Secretary of State W. J. Bryan. Ben H. Spence, Toronto, and Bishop Thomas Nicholson of Chicago, national executives of the Anti-Saloon League of America, will also speak at sessions of the conference.

Delegates are watching closely the investigation at Washington by the Senate committee, who are probing charges that money furnished by the brewers was used in the purchase of newspapers. Further discussion by the conference is expected.

THREATENED REVOLUTION IN HOLLAND BLOWS OVER

London, Nov. 19.—Latest diplomatic reports from Holland seem to indicate that the threatened revolution there has blown over. Crowds paraded the streets of The Hague yesterday wearing orange ribbons.

Reports, which are unconfirmed, state that The Hague garrison supported Pieter J. Troelstra's demand that the queen abdicate. "Queen Wilhelmina decided to comply, but the garrison afterwards laid down its arms in the presence of loyal troops from the provinces.

WOULD HAVE PEACE DELEGATES GO OVER DEVASTATED AREAS

French Deputies Demand That Germany Make Restitution of Raw Materials.

Paris, Nov. 20.—All the delegates to the peace conference should be asked to visit the departments of France invaded by the Germans and see for themselves the damage and devastation committed by the enemy, declares Raoul Peret, president of the budget committee of the Chamber and Deputies, and Deputy Louis Dubois. The deputies have just returned from an official visit to the liberated regions, and express the belief that France must exact from Germany not only reparation in money, but also the restitution of tools and raw materials carried away.

FIRE IN BRUSSELS CAUSED DESTRUCTION OF MANY BUILDINGS

Region Near the Midi Station Evacuated in Radius of One Mile.

Brussels, Nov. 20.—The fire in the east central portion of Brussels resulting from explosions at the Midi station lasted eight hours, and all the buildings in the streets nearest the station are in ruins. The region near the station has been evacuated in a radius of more than one mile.

UKRAINIAN GOVERNMENT IS OVERTHROWN, KIEV IS TAKEN WHILE THE ASSEMBLY FLEES

Troops From Astrachan Under General Denikine the Anti-Bolshevik Leader Set Up Provisional Ministry In Captured Capital.

Copenhagen, Nov. 20.—The Ukrainian Government has been overturned and Kiev has been captured by troops from Astrachan, according to Kiev dispatches to Swedish newspapers. The Ukrainian assembly has fled and a provisional government has been established by the captors of the city, who are apparently commanded by Gen. Denikine, leader of anti-Bolshevist forces.

The Ukraine became a republic during the disorders in Russia after the overthrow of the Kerensky Government in November 1917. There was much fighting there between the Bolsheviki and their opponents, resulting in the defeat of the Bolsheviki. The Ukrainian Government made peace with Germany at Brest-Litovsk, a few days before the Russian Bolshevik Government also agreed to the German terms. Austro-German troops then entered the Ukraine for the purpose of carrying out economic articles of the peace treaty.

The Ukrainian Government was overthrown last May and Gen. Skoropadski became dictator under the title of Hetman, but he had difficulty in maintaining order there, although assisted by the Austro-Germans.

Gen. Denikine formerly was commander of the Russian armies on the southwestern front. Previous to that he had been chief of staff of the Russian armies.

PARLIAMENT MAY BE CALLED EARLIER THAN IS EXPECTED

All Public Departments Are Ordered to Prepare Estimates.

Ottawa, Nov. 20.—Preliminary steps have been taken for the calling of Parliament. To all public departments instructions have gone forth that estimates are to be prepared in readiness. It is not expected, however, that members will actually be summoned to Ottawa before January, although decision on this point has not yet been reached by the Government.

Probably, too, the premier will be unable to be present, at any rate, for the early part of the session. When he left for London it was understood that peace deliberations with the imperial Government in addition to the actual peace conference itself would probably occupy some considerable time, and it was considered essential that Sir Robert and his colleagues who accompanied him should be present to represent Canadian interests.

MAY TAKE COAL IN PUBLIC BUILDINGS TO HELP HOUSEHOLDERS

Fuel Controller McCallum Is So Advised.

WEATHER HAS HELPED

But There Is Still Need of Economy in Anthracite Supply.

The householder will have the preference in the distribution of anthracite coal in the city this year, according to a letter which J. W. McCallum has received from the provincial fuel controller respecting the seizure of anthracite coal in public buildings. Mr. McCallum interprets the letter to give him the power to take any anthracite coal from any building other than a private residence in case the situation warrants such measures being taken.

While the communication does not say this in so many words, this is the construction that the local fuel controller places on it.

Need For Economy.

He points out that there is still need for economy notwithstanding the fact that the fine weather has helped the situation greatly. Churches also have done their share in conservation by undertaking to burn soft coal in the furnaces this winter. According to Mr. McCallum he could commandeer any hard coal that might be in the possession of the churches as well as that in any other public building. Farmers in the vicinity are burning wood since the order has gone forth that they cannot buy coal and this has a tendency to make the situation easier.

Amount in Doubt.

There is still some doubt as to whether London will be able to get its full amount of hard coal this year. This was intimated some time ago, but there is nothing definite in the matter as yet. In any event the only thing to do, says J. W. McCallum, is to burn wood or soft coal where possible and if this is done there will not be any undue hardship on account of the scarcity of coal.

PETAIN, STANDING IN FRONT OF STATUE OF NEY REVIEWS TROOPS

French Marshal Receives Enthusiastic Welcome to Metz.

Metz, Nov. 20.—When Marshal Petain entered this city yesterday he stood before the statue of Marshal Ney and reviewed his troops. The municipality and local societies welcomed the marshal at the city hall, and the vicar-general greeted him at the cathedral, where Te Deums were sung. A prefecture has been established by French Commissioner Tirman.

Gen. Mangin has issued a proclamation greeting the people of the city. His proclamation reads:

"The regime of oppression and vexation ended with the German defeat. The republican army brings liberty and justice. France opens widely her arms to all her refound children."

STEAMSHIP LINE INAUGURATED.

New Orleans, La., Nov. 20.—The Panama Maru, of the Osak Shoshen Kaisha, one of the largest Japanese steamship companies, arrived at this port last night, marking the beginning of actual operation of the first regular steamship line ever operated between New Orleans and Japan. The vessel brought a cargo of coffee from Brazil, and on its return trip through the Panama Canal will carry a cargo of machinery and merchandise for Japan.

MATRIMONY, NOT WAR APPEARS NOW TO BE PRINCIPAL OBJECT OF THE PEOPLE OF GERMANY

Whole Page Advertisements Are Appearing in the German Newspapers Appealing to Those Considering Marriage to Get Into Corresponden ce With Prospective Mates.

New York, Nov. 20.—Martial ardor has been supplanted by marital zeal in Germany. This is evidenced by the advertising columns of German newspapers received here. Matrimonial ads cover whole pages and are inserted by people of all ages and walks of life.

A peculiar feature of these ads is that many make appeals for husbands or wives for relatives. Parents, brothers, sisters and even friends of those who seek mates, invite correspondence from those matrimonially inclined. War invalids, wealthy physicians, manufacturers and rich widows are among those who resort to publicity.

Tobacco Is Scarce.

One advertiser says he is a widower who has property amounting to several million marks. He admits he is 58 years old, but says he "looks younger." A physician who has an annual income of 100,000 marks seeks to arrange a meeting with "a beautiful, stately woman, object matrimony." Scarcity of tobacco in Germany is shown by the large number of advertisements offering to purchase cigars and cigarettes in any quantity offered.

That the Germans are preparing to embark on large commercial campaigns in the East is inferred from advertisements asking for salesmen to find purchasers for German products in Poland and Rumania. Other announcements request manufacturers to submit samples of articles which are "suitable for eastern countries."

BURGOMASTER MAX OF BRUSSELS CITY IS WELCOMED HOME

Resumes Position After Fifty Months a Prisoner In Germany.

Brussels, Nov. 17.—After 50 months of captivity in Germany, Burgomaster Max of Brussels came into his own again today.

The municipal council met to receive him at the Hotel de Ville, which was covered with flags. The Dutch minister, many prominent citizens and officers of the allied armies were present. Burgomaster Max was loudly cheered when he entered the hall and took his seat at the aldermen's table. Acting Burgomaster le Monier welcomed him with an address, and formally relinquished the burgomaster's seat to Max, who made a short address.

GOVERNOR-GENERAL GETS FIRST WAR SAVINGS STAMP

Government To Inaugurate a Campaign in the Near Future.

Ottawa, Nov. 20.—Announcement is made that the Government will inaugurate a war savings stamp campaign. The first war savings stamp has just been issued to his excellency the governor-general.

The Government will become the repository of the nation's savings up to a total of $50,000,000. Savings will be placed with the Government by means of the purchase of war savings stamps. The stamps are to be redeemable in January, 1924. They are to be sold by the Government at a price which works out to an interest rate of somewhat better than 4½ per cent compounded semi-annually or 5 per cent simple interest if computed at the end of the period. Thus in December, 1918, or January, 1919, a five-dollar war savings stamp may be bought for four dollars. After January the purchase price of a war savings stamp will be increased a month by month, but at the end of five years from December, 1918, all stamps will be redeemed at $5 each. Stamps of lower denomination to be known as thrift stamps will be on sale. When sixteen of them have been accumulated they may be exchanged for a war savings stamp worth $5 at the end of the period. The plan is expected to work out to the great advantage of both the people and the nation.

In all the nine provinces strong local organizations are being formed. They will in turn organize the municipalities and the process of organization will be further carried out until it will embrace so far as possible every individual in the country.

ITALIAN CENSORSHIP LIMITED BY DECREE TO MILITARY NEWS

Committee Appointed to Inquire Into Treatment of War Prisoners.

Rome, Nov. 20.—By a royal decree the press censorship has been limited to military news, false reports likely to alarm the public, reports of troubled international relations and matter which in itself is basis for prosecution.

Another decree appoints a committee to inquire into the laws of war and the conventions relative to the treatment of prisoners of war by the enemy. It will also draw up a statement as to injuries caused persons and property and establish the responsibility therefor. The president of the supreme court is chairman of the committee, which is composed of senators, deputies and representatives of the Government.

THOUGHT CHECKS BELONGED TO HER; MRS. WESTON FREE

Not Guilty of Stealing Army Money.

Mrs. Sarah Weston, 736 Pall Mall street, charged under the postoffice act with stealing two checks valued at $40 each, was found not guilty in police court today.

The story as told by Crown Attorney J. B. McKillop and R. G. Fisher, counsel for Mrs. Weston, showed that the woman had been separated from her husband for two years, and he had done nothing to support her. She had paid a visit to Mr. McKillop's office some time ago to see if the crown attorney could not make her husband join the army.

Finally a military check came to her home addressed to Mrs. Sarah Weston. The street address was wrong, but the postman had thought it was for her, and she had come to the conclusion that her husband had joined the army and that she had received a $40 check as separation allowance. However, to make sure, she held the check for a month, and when another one arrived, thought it was all right and cashed the checks.

It was then discovered that she was not the Mrs. Weston who was entitled to the money and prosecution followed. Mrs. Weston promised to make full restitution, and after the serious nature of the case was explained to her by the magistrate, Mrs. Weston was allowed to leave the courtroom free.

NO WAGES SETTLEMENT REACHED BETWEEN THE PLUMBERS AND MEN

No settlement has yet been reached between the local plumbers and their employees, who are asking for an increase of fifteen cents per hour. Last May the men asked for an increase in wages, and after considerable discussion the employers offered their men 50 cents per hour to start May 1, or 55 cents per hour to start July 1. In the interval it was hoped that all the work contracted for would be completed. When the employees committee took the proposition back to the men they accepted the 50 cents per hour scale to start May 1. Everything went well till September 1, when the men started negotiating for another raise of 15 cents per hour, which would bring their scale of wages up to 65 cents per hour. It is customary for labor agreements to run from May to May; this the men failed to observe, it is charged. The negotiating for the latest increase was started just after the large Government contracts had been signed. In Toronto 300 to 400 plumbers have been employed in the munition factories, and there are a large number here as in every other Canadian city. When the munition factories finish their contracts they will have no further use for these men, and they will be turned back into their old trade, which will have a great effect on the labor problem, as it stands today. The men's wage scale increases since 1913 is shown as follows: May, 1913, the men were receiving 27½ cents per hour, and they were increased to 35 cents; in May, 1914, it was raised from 35 cents to 40 cents per hour, and in 1915 from 40 cents to 50 cents; May, 1918, from 45 cents to 50 cents per hour, and in November, 1918, 50 cents to 65 cents per hour, which is a 30 per cent increase in 1918.

EXPLORERS WINTERED AT PORT DOVER WHILE ON WAY TO THE NEW WEST

The romantic story of the French travelers, lay and clerical, the first white men who came through Southern Ontario, Norfolk, Elgin, Kent and other counties; of the daring voyages made by bark canoe on stormy Lake Erie; of the relations with various Indian tribes in the effort to pierce the mystery of the great unknown country to the west —these formed the material out of which Dr. James H. Coyne of St. Thomas drew a most interesting picture before the London and Middlesex Historical Society at its opening meeting in the public library last night.

The Sulpicians.

Probably the most interesting part of all the record was that of the Sulpician explorers, Dollier de Casson and Galinee, who in 1670 came along the north shore of Lake Erie on their way to the west to found a mission among the Shawnees on the Ohio River, and finding themselves caught by the late autumn, spent the winter at what is now Port Dover. Dr. Coyne told of the investigations which had been carried on some years ago which resulted in the discovery of the exact location of the house in which these Frenchmen wintered in 1671. Photographs were shown of the site, in which the outlines of the long-vanished building were to be seen.

The First Map.

Galinee's map, made to accompany his story of the trip, was the first map of this part of the country made from actual exploration, those previous having been from hearsay. Dr. Coyne made his address clear by showing a large number of the early maps, some of them originals, in which the advance of knowledge concerning the southern peninsula was to be seen by the steady increase of details.

At the next meeting of the society, J. Davis Barnett of the Western University will speak on "The Books Written by the Returned Exiles of 1838."

DETROIT MINISTER PAYS TRIBUTE TO BRITAIN'S PART IN THE STRUGGLE

The annual meeting of the Missionary Circle of the Talbot Street Baptist Church was held on Tuesday evening, Mrs. H. H. Bingham, the president, presiding. Dr. Wellington Hoag of the Woodward Avenue Baptist Church, Detroit, gave an interesting address on "Blended Life." In the course of his address, he said that if mankind wanted to make themselves count in this life, they must be blended with Christ and go forth each day into the world, with the spirit of Christ to serve his fellow men in the best possible way. Dr. Hoag paid a tribute to Great Britain and her Allies, speaking on the thousands of lives that had been offered for the motherland and the wonderful sacrifices made by them.

He regretted that the United States had not entered the war at an earlier period, but there being so much foreign element to deal with, it had been unavoidable. He also believed that the English-speaking race would prove a mighty force in the proposed league of nations, which was the only thing for the good of the whole world. At this meeting, the sum of $106 was realized for missions.

TWO WRITS ISSUED

Another writ, which has been entered at the court house, is that of McFarlane & Co., grocers of this city, against Thos. V. Shaw, also of this city, for $661.26.

To the Editor of The Advertiser:

Before it is too late, and we have forgotten, will you allow me a little space in your valuable paper to speak about this silly, miserable daylight saving that we are obliged to put up with?

In the years gone by there was one thing that compensated us for the scorching hot summer days—that was the long, restful evening, after it began to get cooler; but now that is taken from us. One hour cut of, and we are obliged to go to bed to rest (?) in our hot homes with the thermometer about 100.

Then in October, we who have husbands who go to work at 7 o'clock were obliged to burn fuel from 5 o'clock a.m. (4 o'clock in reality), for it was very cold at that early hour, and also quite dark, which made it necessary to burn electric light for two hours, from 5 to 7 o'clock. So the extra fuel and light burned that month quite, if not more than, counterbalanced any saving of light during the summer months. In my opinion there has been nothing saved, and a great deal of inconvenience and discomfort caused. Can it not be stopped?

A SUFFERER.

CHILDREN AND HOME WORK.

To the Editor of The Advertiser:

Kindly permit me, through the columns of your paper to express my views on "Children and Home Work."

It is a well-established fact that education is one of the greatest things that a person can possess, and something we all wish for our children to have, but there is such a thing as overloading their young brain, and the way to do just this is to force so much home work on them that they will be deprived of any spare time for recreation or pleasure.

"As all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy," what is to be gained by trying to force the children to learn by extra home work what they should have learned in their ordinary school days? Owing to the "flu" epidemic and the schools being closed for several days, they naturally went back in their studies, and some allowance should be made by the teachers for this forced idleness, and they should not try to catch up by giving them extra homework, for they always did get enough and, to my mind, too much home work.

Take a child, for instance, who is taking music lessons and has to practice one and a half hours each day. What chance has this child got for pleasure? For 90 per cent of children who have to practice make all work out of it instead of getting any pleasure out of it, and every child whose parents can afford it is entitled to a musical education, as a person who is blessed with this accomplishment has many advantages over another person who is not so fortunate. When you can play or sing you are always welcomed in any society.

My solution to the problem would be to shorten up the holidays at Easter and Christmas for a few days, and many other holidays which our school teachers enjoy and which the children have to make up for in the way of extra work at home. I believe that our children should have some holiday, but as they are now being loaded up with extra home work in order to catch up for lost time, it looks to me that it would be more to their advantage if their studies were spread over a greater period of time until they reached the point where they would have been if the schools had not been closed instead of overloading them with extra work after school hours.

I believe that I am voicing the sentiments of a great many parents who have their children's welfare at heart, and I trust that others will express their views on this subject in the hope that the board of education may take some notice of this very important question.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor for space.

Respectfully yours.

GREY WELL OVER.

OWEN SOUND, Nov. 19.—The county of Grey well oversubscribed its objective of $3,000,000, as is shown by the correct figures tabulated today, giving a total of $3,422,250, from 6,325 subscribers. This makes an average of $541 for each subscriber, which is indeed a fine showing.

The summary:

Owen Sound	$1,551,400
Meaford	309,800
Clarksburg	356,950
Dundalk	131,450
Markdale	219,200
Hanover	130,550
Durham	329,750
Chatsworth	152,750
Flesherton	112,850
Ayton	127,550

Honor flags have been won by ever district in Grey County. Two, Hanover and Dundalk, have won two crowns to their flags, with more than 50 per cent above their allotment, and Meaford, Ayton and Flesherton have won single crowns. The county has won an honor flag, and so has the town of Owen Sound. Arrangements are being made for the presentation of these emblems to the proper authorities. There will probably be a flag-raising this week with appropriate ceremonies.

WAR HAS HAD EFFECTS ON MUSIC AS ON ALL OTHER LINES OF EFFORT

These Outlined at Meeting of London Conservatory Alumni.

The first regular meeting of the London Conservatory Alumni was held at Conservatory Hall on Monday evening, and proved successful even beyond the high expectations of the executive.

The social committee, under the convenership of Miss Madeline Simpson, had charge of the arrangements for the evening. The tables, tastefully decorated in the conservatory colors, made a most artistic picture in the mellow candle light, and delighted the thirty-five odd members who sat down to the bounteous supper provided.

Charles Percy, president of the alumni, gave a brief outline of the aims and ideals of the Alumni Association, pointing out that it was hoped to make it an important connecting link between the parent institution and the country at large. Graduates of the conservatory should always seek to uphold the high standard of the institution. Graduates, particularly those teaching in the smaller towns and rural district, have great opportunity for raising the musical standard in their community, not only through the work with their pupils themselves, but in organizing community singing, etc.

Effects of War.

F. L. Willgoose, principal of the Conservatory, gave a resume of the effect of the present war on the musical profession as parallel with its effect on general conditions, showing that now, as never before, students of music are drawn from the home and the working man, and that in days to come music will regain the pupils from the leisure class, temporarily lost, while still retaining this new class of pupil. Mr. Willgoose predicts great strides, during the next ten years, in music as in commerce, but in the one, as in the other, there must be the right attitude toward the world, backed by enthusiasm for one's chosen work, to guide safely through this chaotic period of readjustment, to success. To be successful, man must do the work he likes, or like the work he does, and a perfect fusion of the two marks achievement, he said.

Miss Myrtle Robinson delighted the gathering with two solos, one with violin obligato by Miss Florence Dewey, Miss Gertrude Rennie furnishing the accompaniments in her usual sympathetic manner.

Power of Expression.

The address of the evening was given by Miss Georgia M. Newbury, head of the department of elocution. Under the principle that "expression is necessary to evolution," Miss Newbury traced the rise and fall of nations from the supremacy of ancient Greece down through history to the great revolution now in progress in the German Empire, the expression of a people long denied expression. With races, as with nations, expression is essential to development, to evolution. Speech, Miss Newbury pointed out, is the one thing that separates man from beast, the one thing that makes man—man. The birds have God-given gift of song never equalled by human voice, but they have not the greater gift of expression. The beauties of nature herself must be made articulate by the expression of the poet. In things material, as in things artistic, this principle applies. It was "expression" in the language of man, that raised the British Empire from a land of feudal government to the greatest democratic nation that the world has ever known; it was expression that founded the United States, and down through all the ages expression has been the starting point of all great reforms and all great revolutions. A good thought, well expressed, carried to another, has unbounded possibilities, and yet, possibly because of its very nearness, people fail to grasp the significance of language—expression, as they should. The brilliant delivery of Miss Newbury's address proved in itself the very essence of her argument.

After a brief business meeting, the evening was closed with the singing of "Auld Lang Syne" and the National Anthem.

DUTTON SUFFERS RELAPSE OF "FLU"

ST. THOMAS, Nov. 19.—Reports have been received today of a second outbreak of Spanish "flu" in Dutton, and it is said to be far worse than the first outbreak. Fifty-one new cases have been reported, and instead of abating during the last 24 hours, it has increased to such an extent as to become alarming. The physicians of the village are being kept busy both night and day handling the various cases, reports say.

Mute Vag Suddenly Recovers Speech; Court Is Amazed

Vehement Address Delivered by "Dumb" Prisoner.

ST. THOMAS, Nov. 19.—Probably never in their history have city police officials and the magistrate and chief of police received such a jolt as they did this morning, when David H. Seels, a deaf and dumb beggar, arrested yesterday on a charge of vagrancy, appeared for a hearing.

The magistrate, who is an adept in the art of using the deaf and dumb code, had informed the accused that he was charged with a serious offence, and would be liable upon conviction to a term in jail. The accused replied that he had done no harm, and explained by the mysterious movements of the hands that he was down and out, and had merely begged a little food and something to keep him going until he got work.

Created an Annoyance.

The chief said that the man had created annoyance among residents of the city, but the chief could not talk to Seels, so he wrote on a piece of paper what he wanted to ask him. After both magistrate and police had been laboring for an hour or more in the deaf and dumb language the surprise came.

The man in the prisoner's box apparently thought it was time that he defended himself, and he began to talk. He told the court that it was high time they found something better to do than arrest innocent men, and in as good English as any person ever used he gave one of the most vehement and impassioned addresses heard here, in which he denounced police methods and everyone connected with them.

Wife in British Columbia.

He told them that he had a wife in British Columbia. He was not deaf and dumb. He had merely "put one over" them and was trying now to raise funds with which to go back home.

The chief collapsed, and the magistrate looked so surprised that it was all he could do to finally blurt out the words, "You are fined $5 and costs, and the sooner you get out of town the better." The man left this afternoon, after paying his fine out of the money he had obtained while begging.

MEMORIAL SERVICE FOR BRUSSELS LAD

BRUSSELS, Nov. 19. — The farmers clubs in this locality are discussing co-operative shipping of live stock.

Last week Joe T. Nicholson and Miss Rebecca Spence, both of Ethel, were married. The ceremony was performed at Mitchell at the home of the bride's sisters, Mrs. Hemsworth. Mr. and Mrs. Nicholson will continue to reside in Ethel.

Sunday afternoon a memorial service was held in Ethel Methodist Church for Pte. Elwyn Dobson, who died on shipboard from pneumonia when going with a contingent overseas. He was an fine young man, the eldest son of Harvey and Mrs. Dobson. Rev. Mr. Johnson was the preacher.

A number of the friends of W. A. Grewar, who with his family is removing from Brussels to California, after a long residence here, assembled in the Oddfellows' Hall and presented him with an address and a gold-headed ebony cane. After Mr. Grewar's reply several complimentary addresses were given.

Word was received here that Walter Smith, a former resident of Brussels, and eldest son of Mrs. Walter Smith, had died at Trehern, Man., from a second stroke of paralysis. He was 65 years of age, a blacksmith by trade, and is survived by his wife and seven children. It is 35 years since Mr. Smith went west.

Pte. Elmer Ewan of Brussels was married recently to Miss Gertrude M. Speck of Toronto.

Look To the Future and Undertake Its Responsibilities Now, Sir Wilfrid's Message

LAURIER SURVEYS FUTURE AS NEW ERA DAWNS; DENOUNCES "ORDER-IN-COUNCIL"; UPHOLDS PEOPLE; DEMANDS SQUARE PENSIONS FOR THE SOLDIER

Liberal Chieftain Declares Against Hostile Trade Barriers and For League of Nations With U. S. and Canada As Exemplars.

TWO THINGS FOR RETURNED MAN THAT MUST BE GIVEN

Acclaims Britain With Its King as Most Democratic of Countries and Calls for Cheers as He Mentions Name of George V—Major Eric Reid Acts as Chairman, and J. E. Elliott, M.P.P., Pays Tribute to Womanhood of the Dominion.

"There's a keek in the old man yet." It was these words of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, honored chieftain, lo, these many years of the Liberal party, spoken during his address on Tuesday afternoon to the convention of Western Ontario Liberals in Hyman Hall, which evoked laughter and resounding cheers.

It was these words which his affectionate followers passed along to one another at the close of his address in the evening in the Tecumseh House, following the banquet tendered him on the occasion of his 77th birthday.

The "keek" was there, the dignified, distinguished presence, the clearness of eye, the firmness and musical quality of voice, the vigorous grasp of affairs, the breadth of vision and sympathy, the loyalty to the principles of service to men, irrespective of rank or creeds, the keen logic, the subtlety of humor, and the exalted eloquence which have characterized Sir Wilfrid at his best in the past and made him a leader to inspire.

HIS PLANS FOR FUTURE OF PARTY.

These things the members of the audience who packed the dining-room of the Tecumseh House to overflowing said to one another last night, as they commented upon the platform for Liberalism in Canada which the chieftain announced for the first time at the dawn of a new era for the Dominion and the world, the dawn of the era of peace at the close of the great war.

"We must be disciplined and strong," were his final words, in quotation of the French premier, "disciplined in observance of the law; strong in preservation of the right."

LET PEOPLE, NOT ORDER-IN-COUNCIL, RULE.

Preservation of the right, in his definition as elaborated in his address, involves securing and safeguarding the rights of all the people in Canada, government of the people, for the people, by the people, as opposed to government by "order-in-council"; prevention of the industrial exploitation of the masses for the benefit of the few; securing the rights of both labor and capital which are not opposed, but interdependent; making adequate provision for the returned men and the dependents of those who have given their lives overseas, a sacrifice to the cause of justice and democracy.

EMPLOYMENT AND ADEQUATE PENSIONS.

"Two things we must do for the returned men," he declared, emphatically, secure for them employment and adequate pensions," at which his listeners cheered to the echo.

To the hundred years of peace between Canada and the United States, with its hundreds of miles of boundary line, he pointed as a concrete example of the possibility of a "League of Nations" on a larger scale, a league in which differences can be settled by tribunal, a league broad enough, perchance, to take in a new Germany, purged of militarism and the spirit of kaiserism.

CALLS CHEERS FOR KING GEORGE.

Britain, with its King, he acclaimed the most democratic of all countries. At this point Sir Wilfrid called for three cheers for George V., and they were given with a fine show of spirit. Should Britain, politically free, be hampered in its commercial freedom by the raising of barriers of tariff and protection? If democracy means anything, it must mean making impossible in the future the raising of hostile tariffs.

"The war has ended and a new era dawns," he said. "The divine right of kings is a thing of the past. The doctrine has been burned in the flames of the great war, which has fired the world and rid it of its last great despot. The new doctrine is accepted that all government is founded on and derives its power from the consent of the people.

RESTRAINT, NOT LICENSE.

"This does not imply license. It implies restraint. It implies that every citizen abridges a portion of his freedom and surrenders to the law. Democracy is the reign of law. Democracy is the submission of everybody to the law.

"Democracy is the equality of everyone," said Sir Wilfrid. "Submission to law must not only be by the people but by the government. The government does not make the laws. The laws are made by the people, by their representatives in parliament. The government has no right to make laws by order-in-council. Such is the doctrine which we hold as Liberals of Canada.

REMEDY IN THE HANDS OF THE PEOPLE.

"The law may be offensive or unjust. The remedying of the law is in the hands of the people. In a constitutional country, the remedy is in the hands of the people through the ballot.

"My belief stands unshaken that by argument, by sausion, by appeal to true light, the public conscience will be awakened and truth and justice triumph in the end. It belongs to no race and to no creed, that the human conscience must be the supreme arbiter between man and man."

Like the convention of the afternoon, the gathering at the banquet in the evening was unique from the fact that women electors constituted at least a third of those present, "not as spectators; for the first time as actual participators," to use Laurier's phrase.

For several minutes before 7 o'clock Sir Wilfrid Laurier held a levee in the rotunda, old friends pressing around to shake hands with him, scores of admirers enjoying for the first time the honor of an introduction to the silver-haired chieftain.

MAJOR ERIC REID ACTS AS CHAIRMAN.

Beside the guest of honor stood a young citizen whose name has become a household word in London, Major Eric Reid, home from the great war after receiving promotion after promotion, decorations from the King of England and the premier of France. With distinction Major Reid performed the duties of toastmaster, delivering a graceful introductory speech, rallying to cheers for Sir Wilfrid, the Western Ontario Liberal Association, and the King.

On top of these, W. G. Charlton of Aylmer called for "The Returned Men," which met with a lusty response.

"George S. Gibbons" was also a popular toast.

It was a notable fact that this first Liberal banquet at which women were present for the first time as active members of the organization, was probably the very first banquet attended where there was not a bouquet in the shape of a toast for "The Ladies."

TRIBUTE TO CANADIAN WOMEN.

J. C. Elliott, M.P.P., looked after their interests exceptionally well, however, as he embodied their sentiments and those of the men as well, in the words, "The supreme test of Canadian patriotism is the manner in which, in the years to come, the Canadian people will care for their returned men and the dependents of those who, giving their lives, do not come back."

During the evening a number of beautiful bouquets were presented to Sir Wilfrid, prominent among which were a basket of red roses, the Liberal flower, from the women representatives who attended the Liberal convention and a large basket of white chrysanthemums tied with red, white and blue.

An interesting ceremony of the evening was the bringing in in state of Sir Wilfrid's birthday cake, an imposing structure, several storeys high, boasting red candles.

SIR WILFRID'S ADDRESS.

When I remember in the first years of the war that a son of my old friend, George M. Reid of London, had enlisted and gone over, I had no doubt whatever of what he would do. He has proved himself indeed a chip off the old block and true son of his father.

I express my thanks to our friend, Mr. Elliott, for the kind way he has spoken of me. He has told you that it was an honor that I on this occasion visit you. Let me tell him in all frankness that the honor is not for you, but for me. May I also recall that this is not the first time it has been my privilege to be in these parts of the Province of Ontario. It is now forty years this fall that I had the honor to visit for the first time this district, and I attended, with my old friends, Mackenzie and Richard Cartwright, a meeting at Strathroy, when we were fighting the last battle of the Mackenzie Government. It was then I renewed my acquaintance which I had formed some years before with my old friend, Sir George Ross, a young man like myself, then in the House of Commons.

Many Anxious Fights.

I have done my best since to serve the country. I have fought for it in victory and defeat, and many were the occasions where we had to fight many anxious fights. Not more than twelve years ago we came to a very severe crisis, not only in the life of our country, but also in the life of the party. If I had followed my own inclination, and, indeed, the invitation of some descending Liberals, I would have stepped down and out. But I am also of the Celtic race, and I don't like to quit—in time of danger especially. We cannot forget that in the last battle we fought we were a divided party, and it is always better to look danger in the face, and to look at the situation just as it is. We must recognize that the party is not as united now as it was at one time. It is the part of prudence, it is the part of wisdom, it was the part of patriotism, to examine closely and well the causes of the cleavage.

Without discrimination, without putting any blame on anyone, let us ascertain the views as to who were in the right and who were in the wrong. I am particularly proud to be able to say on the present occasion, in the presence of so many women of this district who are now our fellow-citizens, not only in name, but in fact also, who are here not as spectators, but as participants, that we were right. I am proud to be able to bring before them still more the views of my fellow-countrymen and citizens like myself, the views that have compelled me to follow the course which I did.

Liberals All Loyal.

Upon the question of the participation of Canada in the war, never was there any division of the Liberal party in Canada. We were all in favor that Canada should go into the conflict to the best that was in her; that she should give as she had given. Upon the question of military service I never found any fault with anyone for holding views contrary to those which I held. The Liberal party as long as I had anything to do with it has always stood for voluntary enlistment, and not compulsory. The same privilege should always have been extended, and when the matter came before the House, my fellow-members will bear with me, everybody followed his own inclination, and some thought that the voluntary recruiting should be given up and compulsory recruiting forced therefore. Having taken that position, they defended it on the platform and otherwise. When the Government adopted the policy they found that they should also carry on the policy.

Proud of His Attitude.

For my part I did share that view. I thought that I would support all the measures of the Government, but knowing the country as I do, from ocean to ocean, when there had been no preparation for the population of this country for such a deviation of policy, when no evidence had been attempted, when the Government had promised again and again there would be no compulsory enlistment, I would not be worthy of the name of Liberal if I had taken any other attitude than I did. There is one thing that is certain: if they who believed in that policy of compulsion were in the right, we were in the wrong; if we who did not believe in the policy were right, they were wrong. Again, I repeat, I allow the same liberty to all, so far as I am concerned in the public life. It was possible that they who declared for compulsory recruiting were acting according to their beliefs at the first, but the proof that we were right came when the Government found it advisable to send out thousands of messages from this city advising the farmers that they sons would not be taken from agricultural work to join the army. The Government by this action confessed that the need of agriculturists on the land in the production of foodstuffs was greater than the need of them in the army. It acknowledged compulsory recruiting, so far as the farming communities were concerned, was a wrong policy.

Promises Were Broken.

If the Government had not mismanaged the business as they did, they would have obtained from every Province of the Dominion the full quota, which was needed to support our men at the front. The promise was given, and the promise was broken—broken by the men who gave it. Well, sir, this was done, not by the old, unregenerated Government, but the new, so-called Union Government, the regenerated Government; by the Government which had had an infusion injected of what was supposed to be rich, red Liberal blood. "Good men have been added to the Government, men who were known to be men of honor, holding to their promises, men of their word, but how are the pure fallen from grace! (Applause.)

No wonder about that. It is as old as the earth. Wherever you put into the crucible a heterogeneous mixture of alloys you will get always a degredation of the purer metal. Those who went into the Government should have remembered the scripture which says:

"No man putteth a piece of new cloth to an old garment, for that which is put in to hold it, if it be taken from the garment the rent is made worse."

Have Broken Sacred Word.

There never was a more hideous rent than the rent that was made in the solemn words of the king's ministers. The king's word is sacred, and the word of his ministers ought to be equally sacred. The promise was made; it was broken, and—when?

Delegations of farmers came to Ottawa, thousands of them, to ask the Government to be as good as its word. They were told no, it could not be done, and the reason the Government gave was that the military situation was serious. The military situation at that time, that is about the month of May, was certainly very serious, but sir, are we to believe that the men who introduced that policy, who told us that it was absolutely necessary that we should have this compulsory recruiting, that it should be universal—are we to believe that when they made that promise, are we to suppose that they believed that this war could be fought without reverses? Did not they know last fall that we were to have a last offensive of the German armies in France; did not they think it was possible that these armies might suffer reverses of their own; and that when they gave that promise they might meet with a situation such as this?

Ignorance or Bad Faith.

If they did, then sir, there is only one of two things, they made the promise to the farmers in ignorance, or they made it in bad faith. I know what was the motive. They wanted to win, not the war, but the election, and as I told you this was by the regenerated Government; this was by the new ministers who are known to be men of their word; the word was broken. However, there was only one thing to do, and I say here in the name of the Liberal party, no matter what the sacrifice, it is the privilege of the people to hold to account their rulers. The people may be deceived once; that is the fault, the crime of the deceiver. If they are deceived again; that is the fault of the people themselves.

Why He Explains.

Now, sir, this is the reason why I am here to explain the position which we have taken all the time. Our heart was just as deep in this war as was the heart of our fellow-countrymen of the Conservative party. We wanted to win just as much, and the best evidence of our firm desire is the presence of our chairman here today, the son of a Liberal leader.

Well, heaven be thanked, the war is over. The war is over and democracy has triumphed over autocracy. Never shall we forget the past as it has been the last four years. Let us look to the future, let us look to the duties which it has now placed upon us. Democracy has triumphed, but it has triumphed in the trials and in the struggles of the past four years. The history of the world has been at all times the record of some privileged class endeavoring to live at the expense and by the toil of their fellow-men. In the ancient days it was slavery, in the middle ages it was the feudal system, in our day it was industrial exploitation of the masses for the benefit of the few.

Democracy Still To Fight.

Democracy can change institutions. It will not change the human heart. And even now there will be men who will try by the protection of law to get their bread out of the unrequited toil of their fellow-men. Autocracy, wherever and so long as it prevailed, was power, domination and enrichment by means of standing armies. When the whole history of the war which has just been closed is written, when the archives of Berlin have been explored and given to the world, we will know and have the evidence that the German autocracy and the kaiser had contemplated this war, not only for annexation of property, but the extension of their dominion from the North Sea, over the Balkans to the Black Sea, far down to the Indian Ocean.

Now for Universal Peace.

The Allied nations took up the challenge to crush the military power of the kaiser, and if possible to end war forever. The power of the kaiser has been crushed. Now we are face to face with the problem to end war forever on the face of the earth. Ending war is certainly a noble dream. It has engaged the minds and hearts of some of the best men that ever lived. Henry IV. of France, when he was assassinated, contemplated a last war against Austria, to crush them, then to have a universal peace.

But civilization had not reached such a level that it was possible to put in force such a noble policy as that. But sir, the world has moved forward a lot. Democracy is now the law of the greatest and noblest social nations of the world. Democracy is the law of France, Italy, United States and all the Allied nations. Is it not possible that amongst these nations there may be an agreement that henceforth they will have no disputes amongst them? That if ever they have any that cannot be settled by negotiations they will be settled by a tribunal appointed by the authorities?

Not Merely a Dream.

It is not merely a dream, and I believe that the conference which will meet in Versailles will bring that conclusion. It is hoped that between the nations which fought this war there shall never again be such a struggle as we have just witnessed; that between Italy, France, Great Britain, the United States and Japan it will be decreed that there shall never again be war between them. There are some men—I have not heard many say so here, but a good many on the other side of the ocean—I have heard deprecating the idea. But those scoffers, those douting Thomases, I think we can in Canada here give them an example in our relations with our neighbors, the American nation. We have between Canada and the United States the longest boundary line between two nations; a boundary line which extends from ocean to ocean. For one hundred years and more we are proud to say that we have had between the two nations no war. We have had quarrels many; bickerings, too many; we have had angry words very often, and from high quarters also. But whatever the differences were we were able to settle them by negotiations, and when we could not agree by negotiations then we called in the assistance of independent arbitrators and referred the question to them, and asked them to decide between us. I must say that on more than one occasion I have thought the verdict was not according to the facts, according to the evidence. Sometimes our friends, the Americans, had the same thought on some verdicts, but whatever the thought, at least we carried out the award like true men and honorable.

Mistakes Unavoidable.

And now it is impossible to expect a tribunal of that kind never to make mistakes, any more than we can expect the courts of law which settle our domestic disputes not to make mistakes, but will not our representatives at the peace conference, the representatives of the American nation, be proud to say that on the continent of America the Canadian and American nations have had no war for the last hundred years? Is it not easier ten times, one hundred and a thousand times, that on some occasion when we have thought that the verdict was not what we wanted to have negotiations than to have the brutal arbitration of guns and powder?

It is very true, not very long ago, that we had some men in this country who said, "No truck nor trade with the Yankees." But Lord forgive them; they did not know what they were saying. If, sir, the Americans were good enough to mix their blood with the blood of our Canadian soldiers on the battlefields of France, never again should we hear that we will have no truck nor trade with them.

Trade Begins Friendship.

Trade is the first commencement of friendship between nations, the agreement of two nations to trade with one another leaves very few matters for differences of opinion, and that something for which we British subjects have reason to be proud, that is that England, old England, is the mother of trade, and has had less quarrels during the nineteenth century than any other nation in the world. But in this league of nations what of Germany? If Germany were still ruled by the kaiser, I would say that we could have no alliance with her. A treaty of that kind, a league of that sort must be founded upon a treaty to which signatures will be appended which must be respected; and when the kaiser proclaimed in 1914 that treaties were simply scraps of paper, we could not have expected to treat with the kaiser. But Germany has sent the kaiser away. Germany is in the throes of a revolution today.

For my part I hope that democracy will triumph in Germany as it has triumphed in many other countries, and will triumph everywhere in the world. There are men amongst us who say that the German people are responsible for the atrocities committed by the German armies in France and Belgium. But it is not correct. The responsibility rests upon the commanders of the armies. If there is not a strong commander at the head to maintain discipline you will always find disorder. The Duke of Wellington, while in Spain, shot many a man for similar offences. Bonaparte, when a commandant of the army in Italy, only 26 years of age, had two soldiers shot for having gone into a church in Italy and pilfered some church ornaments. In a famous proclamation to his soldiers he said that a soldier who was brutal to a woman was a monster.

Different With Huns.

This is what we hoped would have been done by the commanders of the German army, but unfortunately this was not done. And are we to believe that the German people, one of the noblest people in the world, at all events before the war, cannot reclaim themselves as so many nations have been reclaimed by democracy? No language has been spoken of a more noble theme than the language used only four days ago by General Petain—not General Foch, but the commander of the French armies—when he said, "Whatever may have been the outrages committed by the German army in our country, you must remember that you cannot retaliate, but you must behave like gentlemen." Whether or not Germany should be at once admitted into the family of nations, Germany of today, is a question which, with the limited knowledge I have, I would not care to answer. But it is a question which we can leave to the wise decision of the statesmen who will settle the question. But this is one of the problems which now confront democracy; it is as great and perhaps greater than the problems of the war.

Courage Is Needed.

When you think of Turkey, of Rumania and Bulgaria, and what conditions these countries have been thrown in by the war, in consequence of the war, you may well believe that the courage that was needed to face the problems of the war, the courage which comes from these problems, will be needed also to settle all those questions of peace.

There are two nations which above all the others have borne the burden of this war, and these are France and England. France, everybody must admit, never was greater than it showed itself in this war, never was more heroic than it was in this war. The tortures endured by the French people when six of their departments were in the hands of the enemy for four years cannot be realized. I do not think the condition of the French people can be conceived. The French people proclaim and admit, and by the words of their prime minister, that but for the support given them by England, France would have been dismembered, and crushed, perhaps forever.

England Came Cheerfully.

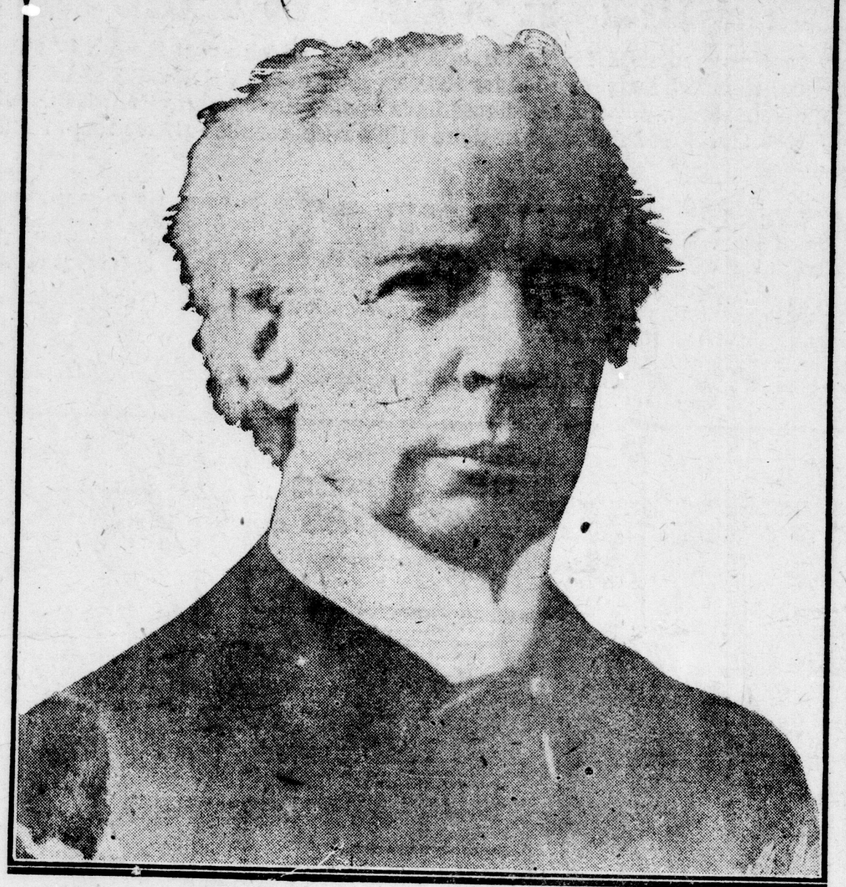

England came to the help of France without hesitation, in the first days of the war, and to the eternal honor of England it can be said this war found England unprepared. There are people who will claim that England should have been prepared. It is a singular thing of the Anglo-Saxon race, they never prepare for war, but at the end of the war they are always on the top. At the beginning of the war England sent her small armies, only some 200,000 men, to France—that small "contemptible army," as it was titled by the kaiser—fought until they reached the Marne, and then sent the enemy rolling. England then prepared for war, and by voluntary recruiting raised an army of 5,000,000 men, far more by voluntary means than by compulsory. She has written one of the most glorious pages of history that was ever written.

These two countries, France and England, are democratic. France is a republic, England is a monarchy; but England is democratic just as much as France is republic. We cheer our king for his courage and for his modesty. If the kaiser had had all of these qualities he might still have his crown on his head as our king has his crown. Civilization and liberty there is in England, just as much as there is in any republic. Political liberty there is in England, just as much as in any republic. But commercial liberty there is more in England than in the republic of France or the republic of the United States.

Now sir, men there are in England, men there are in Canada, who are today conspiring—(Is that too strong a word, conspiring? I think not.)—to force England to abandon her system of free trade for a protective system. The assertion has been made upon the floor of Parliament in England by Bonar Law, I read from a debate some few days ago—Mr. Lee Smith, speaking of the report which has been made that the imperial cabinet had agreed to a policy of imperial preference, Mr. Bonar Law being quoted by Mr. Smith—"Is this to apply to the tariff?"

Bonar Law replied: "Not necessarily, to some extent, but there will be no taxation, and therefore no imperial

LIBERALISM IS PLEDGED TO GIVE LABOR AND CONSUMERS SAY IN GOVERNING INDUSTRY

New Association In Western Ontario Adopts Progressive Policies Affecting All Phases of Civil Life to Make Peace Worth While

Betrayed, but not sold out, progressive Liberalism in Western Ontario came to the fore to stand to and carry on yesterday, when the Western Ontario Liberal Association was formed at Hyman Hall. The organization embraces 31 constituencies, both Federal and Provincial.

The great principles for which genuine Liberalism has always stood were reiterated by the many speakers amid great enthusiasm, while the many important resolutions adopted gave practical evidence that the new association intends to be in the vanguard of progressive and democratic leadership in the reconstruction period to come.

Large delegations in attendance gave evidence of the earnestness with which the association will attend to its task. The big audience, presided over by George S. Gibbons, London's Labor-Liberal candidate, rallied to the call of the venerable leader, Sir Wilfrid Laurier. It was an epochal event that will have a beneficial and a lasting effect upon the political life of the province.

Progressive thought and spirit were embodied in the resolutions, which aim at giving the common people a greater degree of control over the destinies of the nation. They stood for the abolition of the War Times Election Act. They advocated greater representation of labor and the people generally in industrial control and the shaping of the industrial policies of the Dominion; they advocated equal rights for all people and all states, large or small; the abolition of order-in-council government; a square deal for Canada's soldiers; a more equitable distribution of wealth, and the burdens of state, and joined with the great agricultural industry in its demand for a more equitable economic system for the farmer.

Following a hearty reception the meeting opened when Mr. Gibbons introduced W. C. Kennedy, M.P. for North Essex.

Mr. Kennedy contributed a practical history of the Liberal party since 1904, showing that in the election of that year Ontario had returned 38 members; in 1908, 38 members; in 1911, 13 members, and in 1917, 8 members. It was abundantly clear that the audience appreciated the deduction of one of those eight doughty stalwarts when Mr. Kennedy told the story of the betrayal of 1911 by "the Noble Eighteen," and the later and greater betrayal of 1917 by a greater number of Tories masquerading as Liberals and seeking to dominate the affairs of the party from their offices at the Queen City. The men who had sought the ruin of the Liberal party in Ontario were always exploiting the party and the country for their own personal gain.

Will Never Be Sold Out.

The Liberals of Western Ontario, after consulting with Sir Wilfrid, had resolved to get away from the pernicious influence of Toronto, and never again to put themselves in a position of being sold out.

Mr. Kennedy explained that after the organization of the W. O. L. A., three more associations would be got under way in other parts of the province, and by this means it would not be possible for any man or set of men to deliver the Liberal party to the enemy.

To George S. Gibbons Mr. Kennedy gave full credit for the organization. The London candidate had given his time unsparingly and done a magnificent work for the party in organizing the new association. Amid hearty cheers Mr. Kennedy asked Mr. Gibbons to take the chair.

Mr. Gibbons immediately took over the meeting, and W. G. Charlton of Aylmer was appointed secretary. D. C. Ross, M.P. for West Middlesex, was called upon to read the constitution of the new association. Mr. Ross also paid tribute to Mr. Gibbons as having done a giant's work. The constitution was read, as it appears in another column, and approved.

The Officers Chosen.

The election of officers then took place with the following result: Honorary president, Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Col. T. S Hobbs, ex-M.P.P.; active honorary president, Arthur T. Little, London; president, George S. Gibbons, London; first vice-president, Mrs. Brown, Stratford; second vice-president, Miss Isabel C. Armstrong, London; third vice-president, Dr. Rogers, Ingersoll; fourth vice-president, Thomas McMillan, South Huron; secretary-treasurer, W. G. Charlton, Aylmer.

East Lambton: I. Gremize and Miss Coutts. West Middlesex: Mrs. Peter Mitchell and George Innes. East Middlesex: A. J. Blaikie and Thomas Ramsay. London: Mrs. W. N. Manning and William Heaman. West Elgin: W. A. Galbraith and Mrs. R. W. Ball. East Elgin: W. L. Rogers and L. Johnston. North Huron: Abner Cousins and Mrs. Popplestone. South Huron: Henry Smith and John Essery. North Bruce: K. N. Robinson and S. J. Cameron. South Bruce: M. A. Holliday and Frank Stemmle. North Waterloo: James Stellin and Dr. R. J. Schararr. Brant: Allan Kneale and Robert Aitkins. Brantford: Mrs. Gardiner and John Muir. Norfolk: W. E. Kelly and James Ross. North Oxford: D. J. Sinclair and W. W. Day. South Oxford: W. C. Brown and W. Buchanan. Haldimand: Mr. Colter and Mrs. (Dr.) H. Walker North Perth: Dr. P. F. Quinlan and Mrs. J. J. Foster. South Perth: Wm. Forrester and Dr. Norman. Lincoln: Mrs. C. Taylor and Mr. Shepherd.

Tribute to Canada's Heroes.

The name of W. G. Charlton, who fought in the Liberal interests in East Elgin, was coupled with a resolution of congratulation to the Canadian troops overseas upon their glorious victories. The resolution, which will be forwarded to Sir Arthur Currie, is as follows:

Whereas, the organization of the Western Ontario Liberal Association coincides with the ending of the world war, the defeat of militarism and autocracy, and the re-establishment of peace;

And whereas, it is fitting that at its first meeting the said association should place on record its gratification at the attainment of the objects for which so many Canadians fought and offered dup their lives, as well as an expression of its pride in the valor of Canadian troops and the self-sacrifice of Canadian women;

Now therefore, be it resolved that the congratulations of this association be tendered to the survivors of the Canadian army upon the successful termination of the mighty struggle in which they have won undying fame for themselves and for Canada; that its respectful sympathy be extended to the relatives of those who fell that liberty and justice might survive and that its thanks be as they are hereby expressed to the noble Canadian women who render such untiring and invaluable assistance from the very beginning to the last hour of the war;

And further be it resolved, that copies of this resolution be given to the press for publication, and forwarded to General Currie, the commander of the Canadian forces in the field.

Ideals of Liberalism.

Mr. Charlton dweit upon the ideals of Liberalism and said that it was not a weapon to win elections, but a sacred principle in the life of every man, woman and child who desires to exercise the loftiest principles advanced by the Man of Galilee. Liberalism asked an equal opportunity and liberties for all. He asked forbearance in attempting to dominate even an opponent.

Thomas McMillan followed, with an inspiring tribute to Sir Wilfrid Laurier, to whom he made reference as the great spokesman of the rights of the common people. All present knew how well Sir Wilfrid stood as the symbol for true and noble service. This was followed by the introduction of the following resolution to Sir Wilfrid:

That this meeting of Ontario Liberals offers its congratulations to the Right Honorable Sir Wilfrid Laurier, leader of the Liberal party of Canada, upon attaining in unimpaired health and vigor his seventy-seventh birthday, and at the same time expresses the hope that his years of public service may rival in length and fruitfulness those of his great Liberal exemplar, William Ewart Gladstone:

That at this turning-point in the world's history this meeting desires to place on record its unshaken faith in Sir Wilfrid Laurier's statesmanship and far-seeing vision, and it pledges him its loyal and enthusiastic support in pressing forward a program of constructive and democratic measures designed to re-unite the Canadian people, to restrict profiteering, to equalize the burdens of taxation, and to apply to all the other problems created by the war those principles of Liberalism which, through the war, have become the common rallying ground of the democracies of all the Allied nations.

League of Nations.

James Ross, Liberal candidate in East Middlesex at the last election, introduced a resolution having to do with the formation of a league of nations, in which he declared that the desertions from the Liberal party has acted as a housecleaning and that the party was stronger than in the last half-century. The resolution was as follows:

That the Western Ontario Liberal Association declares its conviction that the establishment of a league of nations to protect the equal rights of states great and small, to prevent future conflicts, and to secure the limitation of armaments, is the greatest and most urgent constructive work of the statesmen and peoples of the world in order that there may be an end to the canker of militarism.

Reconstruction Period.

The resolution dealing with reconstruction was in the hands of R. L. Brackin of Chatham, who in the course of his comments stated that the salvation of the laboring man had been and would always be in the hands of the Liberal party. He strongly favored advanced legislation for workers such as had been introduced by Lloyd George. The resolution was adopted as follows:

The Western Ontario Liberal Association is of the opinion that the problem of the future is reconstruction and that industrial reconstruction is its most important phase. To introduce into the government of industry the principles of representation whereby the interests of labor and of the community may be considered in industrial control and the shaping of industrial policies is the natural work of Liberalism. It is to Liberalism that we owe the transition

JUMP IN FIREMEN'S PAY RECOMMENDED, EFFECTIVE DEC. 1

Special Investigating Committee Wants Chief To Hear Grievances.

For second-year men, $4 a day, and for first-year men, $3.75 a day, was the new wage scale for firemen proposed at the city hall last night by the special committee appointed to investigate their grievances. It was decided that this wage should become effective December 1. This was considered a fair wage. The old scale of pay was only $3 for third-year men, and $2 for those who had been on the department for two years.

The former rates are now in force in Brantford, and it was thought that the men here could not keep a family on $3 per day.

Holidays With Pay.

The request of the firemen that each one be allowed to have two weeks' holidays with pay some time between May 1 and October 31, was granted. Chauffeurs have been getting $25 per year more than the other men, and the men who drive horses asked that they be given an increase. The committee decided to grant them $15 per year bonus.

The question of the settling of the personal grievances of the firemen was discussed. Ald. S. R. Manness moved that any such grievances should be heard by Chief Aitken, and that if there is not an agreement reached, then No. 1 committee might hear it. There was a suggestion that the chief lay the grievances before the committee instead of the men who had the complaints addressing the committee personally.

"The men will say that it is unfair to allow the chief and not them to bring forward their grievances," said Controller C. H. Merryfield. The motion of Ald. Manness carried.

Unfits To Be Discharged.

It was decided that the temporary men be given a medical examination as soon as possible and that any man who was not fit should be discharged. Chief Aitken declared that out of the 40 men on the force there were twelve who had not been examined. The committee thought that as the wages had been increased there would be no difficulty in securing the right class of men. The medical examination is to be made, irrespective of age.

The question as to whether ex-Fireman White should be reinstated was left to the fire chief.

City Clerk Baker was instructed to revise the fire bylaw by adding to it those matters which had been adopted at the meeting, and changing clauses as they were changed at the meeting. Copies of the bylaw will then be sent to all the members of the committee, and the bylaw in its revised form will be submitted to No. 1 committee at its meeting next Wednesday.

SCHEME FOR DEVELOPING BOYS OUTLINED BEFORE GATHERING BY W. R. COOK

Addressing a meeting of ministers, superintendents, mentors and others interested in boys' work on "The Four-fold Program for Older Boys," W. R. Cook, the boys' work secretary for Ontario, declared that last year's program was not as adequate as this year's because the latter program made a distinction between older and younger boys. He then told of the construction of the program, remarking that it recognizes the fact that you cannot divide a boy into water-tight compartments. "This system is fourfold," said the speaker, "and in order to typify this it was suggested that the C. S. E. T. clubs sit in a hollow square. The first citizen or president was to be known as a praetor, the treasurer as a contor, and the secretary as a scriptor."

Must Develop Them.

"We must develop Anglican, Presbyterian and Methodist boys in a way in which they should be developed. Every square should meet with other Tuxis [illegible]. There should be occasional community conclaves. There would then be opportunities for oratorical and other competitions. These fellows are going to be citizens. These conclaves could elect members to a central council, which in turn could elect members to the boys' provincial parliament. There was one held last year at Toronto and there is one to be held the winter after this coming one."

Charting.

Going into the matter of charting the boy, he said: "You can't measure the religious life of a boy any more than you can his intellectual or physical life. Charting has no suggestion of measurement. At the beginning of every season the mentor, taking the boy privately, tells him what things on which to focus. The boy within an hour or two will know himself better than in a year otherwise. At the end of the season, based on the record of the boy during the year, there is another interview, and the boy can be told where he could concentrate."

Get Them Young.

"In the program there is an increased effort in community education. If we are going to have the spirit of co-operation abroad in Canada we have to get men young and mature. We are fortunate in Canada that we have come to the realization of that fact."

After the lecture Rev. W. Leslie Armitage led in the discussion, urging that boy workers, although young, might not be afraid to step out. Rev. W. R. McIntosh declared Mr. Cook to be a good advocate of boys' work. "He has philosophy in his head and language. He is the best man on the road," he said. A vote of thanks was then tendered Mr. Cook. He replied: "They say you can always tell a man from Toronto, but you can't tell him much." Before the gathering dispersed R. E. G. Davis announced that a committee on boys' work would issue a pamphlet within the week which would explain the work.

DORCHESTER CHOIR CONCERT.

BRITISH SUBJECT AND CANADIAN FIRST, LAST, AND ALL THE TIME; KNOWS NEITHER RACE OR CREED

"Old Chief" Speaks From His Heart to Liberals—Gladstone His Ideal and Liberalism His Principle — Has Some "Kick" Left Yet.

"I am said to be an old man; I have not many years left on this good old earth, but I think I can render myself this tribute—that as leader of the party, when I had to take a position I never knew race or creed. (Applause.) I stood as a Britisher, a Canadian first, last and all the time. It has been my tenet and my motto through public life, and on that I have striven to make Canada the finest country on earth in which to live."

This simple passage in the speech delivered yesterday afternoon at Hyman Hall by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, while the organization of the Western Ontario Liberal Association was in progress, brought the most dramatic moment of the afternoon's proceedings, and the audience of delegates from 31 constituencies in Western Ontario cheered and applauded the old chief's declaration of faith.

Warm-Hearted Reception.

The Liberal leader came into the hall while the meeting was engaged in consideration of the more or less routine business of the hour. The audience, composed of men and women in almost equal numbers, rose to their feet and gave him a greeting which must have borne upon him the strength and loyalty of Liberalism in Western Ontario. Then Thomas McMillan paid a tribute to the old chief, ending with a timely resolution of confidence, and Sir Wilfrid rose to reply. He was never more happy, more mentally virile and more gracious.

"I cannot conceal that I am very sincerely touched by the sentiments expressed by Mr. McMillan on your behalf, and the manner of their presentation strikes me forcibly, for I cannot forget that the resolution comes from a son of an old friend with whom I sat in the House for years. The son is a true chip of the old block. But in one way I am not altogether grateful to the speaker, for he reminds me that I am about to pass another milestone, that while I am 76 today, I shall be 77 tomorrow. Believe me, it is not pleasant to hear that, but it is the law of nature, and we have to bear it.

"But"—and here the audience howled with delight—"let me tell you that I have some kick left yet. I have been all my life more or less in politics. I am thankful to Providence that so long as it pleases God to give me strength I shall put it at the service of the country. Mr. McMillan was kind enough to refer to some incidents of my life.

"It is true that I did not wish to become leader of the Liberal party in succession to such a line of men who had gone before me. I pleaded that in this country the leader should be one of Protestant creed and English race. It was to the everlasting credit of the Liberal party of that day that its leaders told me that 'Liberalism knows no creed or race. Be our leader and we will follow you.'

All of a Family.

"And it is true that I am born of a French people, who live in a country of English people. But is there much difference between the peoples when one goes back to their origins?"

Sir Wilfrid told of an incident in the House in which a French member crossed swords with Arch McKellar. The Frenchman protested he could not understand English, and McKellar said he would speak in the language of the Frenchman's ancestors. The second was worse than the first, however, and another protest came from the Frenchman that he had heard no such French before. McKellar said he was speaking in the language of his opponent's ancestors, and then explained that the language was Gaelic. It had been lost in Gaul, but kept alive in the hills of Scotland.

"We are all of the same original blood, and the estrangement of races cannot be forever. We can have only one aim, and that is to build a great nation out of all our elements.

Canadian First—Always.

"I and my doctrines have not always been popular in this my country," he continued. "I have not been popular at times in my own province, and sometimes not in this province.

"But let heaven be my witness that in anything I did I always remembered I was a British subject, and a Canadian, first, last and all the time."

"We were born to and have to face difficulties, and we should never be discouraged. I have been facing difficulties all my life, for I have been leading the Liberal party almost thirty years, and let me say that I begged Blake on my knees to lead on, but he chose to step out. I learned the lessons of defeat when Mackenzie went down; I never forgot the lessons of Edward Blake or of Gladstone. I have come through the lives of others and through my own days, but I do not remember a day when I was not a Liberal of the English school. It must have been in my blood. In fact, someone once told me I was descended from Annie Laurie." (Laughter and applause.)

Democracy Triumphant.

"We are now passing through an anxious time. Thank the Lord the worst has come to an end. We have won a victory, a larger victory than we dared hope for, and we may once more breathe with democracy triumphant. But we must expect that there will be more struggles on behalf of democracy. Let us hope it will be a new era, with more happiness for the troubled masses than ever before. We are going to have our old party struggles, too. Men will divide again on the lines of Liberalism and Toryism. Parties are unavoidable, good or bad. It is the law of nature that men cannot agree together. For my part I belong to and believe in the principles of Liberalism as laid down by Gladstone, by Bright, by Mackenzie and Brown and Blake. I say that these two parties will continue to struggle, because always there will be men who will endeavor to domineer upon other men, and there will be men who will not be domineered upon.

"Though I am an old man, I still have an eye for good things. It is the most inspiring meeting of my life, in that we have the ladies with us, not as spectators, but as participants. Now, in this era to come we will have the help of the women, and let me say, as we are all married men here, that the women will be the masters of the situation in politics as they are in the household."

This closed the leader's address, his closing words being drowned in waves of applause.

LAURIER SURVEYS FUTURE AS NEW ERA DAWNS; DENOUNCES "ORDER IN COUNCIL"

preference on foodstuffs. All had agreed to this imperial preference."

Canada's Preference.

I do not know what has been done by the other governments of the dominions, but I do know that the Parliament of Canada never gave any such consent as that. The policy of the imperial preference was introduced in 1897 by the tariff amendment of that year, which introduced a preference in favor of all British goods coming into Canada at a rate of 12½ per cent. This increased to 25 per cent, and then again increased to 33 1-3 per cent. At that time our policy was condemned by the Conservative party, who blamed us for not demanding a similar preference in return. We refused to accept such a policy as that. We gave our preference to Great Britain out of our own free will. We did it because we thought it was in the best interests of Canada to do so, and, sir, we have had no occasion to regret it so far. England is at liberty to choose any system that it may desire. Shall she remain free trade, or become protectionist?

Will Give Freely.

That is a question to be settled by the British people, but so far as the voice of the Liberal party will go, we will never ask us to go back upon our policy of preference, and we shall never ask England to give us any petty or big favor for it. But what shall be the policy, after all? We have had some statements made by Mr. Bonar Law in the papers of yesterday, but it is summarized as not to be as clear as it should be. Mr. Bonar Law stated that there would be no taxation upon the food of the people, and to that we will give our consent. We do not desire in Canada to tax the food of the working people of England, and I must say the farmers of the western provinces declare they do not want to tax the food they export to Great Britain, and I maintain again that Canada first, last, and all the time, entirely, by serving the interest of England, and the interest of the British Empire. For my part, I believe, on the contrary, that if the British Empire is to continue as it has been, it is not by restricting any law of freedom, but by extending at all times the privilege of happiness and greater wealth to the common people. This, sir, is the policy which we hope will be adopted.

Lloyd George's Policy.

Mr. Lloyd George, speaking a few days ago, on what should be the policy of the future, made this remark: "The process of reporting speeches by cable is very unsatisfactory, because the words have to be condemned." This is what he said: "The third of President Wilson's points prevents any idea of the departure from free trade. It says, in effect, that so far as possible there shall be no tariff barrier between nation and nation; that means no hostile tariff barrier." In this, it is well to wait until we see more of further events. I simply lay before you the principles which actuated the Liberals up to this time.

Lorden's Peace Mission.

Passing now to another subject, the prime minister of Canada, and three of his colleagues have sailed for England for the purpose of taking part in the conference to take place for the settlement of the peace conditions. To this, of course, there is no objection, excepting that it seems to me that ministers have been very very hasty. They left, the last days of the week before last; the election in Great Britain is taking place now, and cannot be over till the month of December, and I would be much surprised if the conference opens for many weeks after that. In the meantime it would have been the part of prudence for the prime minister to call together the Parliament of Canada to hear the views of the Canadian people, so far as they can be expressed by the present Parliament.

The Case of the Soldiers.

The next problem to be considered is the return of the Canadian soldier. This is of great importance, and does any returned soldier know what has been done for the returned soldier? For my own part, I have been a long time in politics, and follow them pretty closely from day to day, and I have yet to learn what has been done. I see by an Ottawa paper, the Citizen, of five or six days ago, that the Government has appointed a council to look after the interests of the returned soldiers, and this is what we hear of the object of the council. It is "to co-ordinate the departments which have been giving deep study to the great questions arising from the war! Why do we not hear the results? If they have done anything worth showing, they are more modest than I ever knew them to be, and I knew them pretty well. Against this, let me give you what has been done in England. They did not wait till November 16 before organizing. (Here Sir Wilfrid quoted from another Conservative paper, showing that arrangements had already been made in Britain for the return to civil life and employment of 63 per cent of the fighting forces.)

It is the task of Britain to concentrate the efforts of the ministry to be ready for the days of peace, however remote that period may be.

Civilian war workers will be demobilized in the same way as the actual soldiers. They will receive railway passes and insurance guarantees. It is useless to bring men and women back if there is nowhere for them to live, no houses in which to live, and no work by which to make a living.

A Tip for "Union."

I wish to say also, speaking in the name of the Liberals sitting in Parliament, that whenever it pleases the Canadian Government to give out such a bold policy as the Anglo-Saxon policy, as typified by Britain, we shall also give it our whole backing and support. This is not a question for today; it was a question yesterday and the day before. This is a question that should have been tackled in the way it was tackled in England, making preparation immediately for the day of peace, far or near. It was not done. In this, as I have said of other matters, I do ask of the powers that be to do two things for the returned soldiers, prepare employment and pensions. We owe this to those noble men who have done their share in saving civilization and who have more to us more proud of the Canadian name than we have ever been before. A page has been added to history during the last four years by our friend, Major Reid, and those associated with him.

In questions that concerned the war since it began, the Liberals have supported the Government in any policy they may devise, in order to do justice to the men who have fought. This is not a debt we are paying; it is simply a charge of duty which is incumbent on the Canadian people, and a duty every man in Canada would be all too glad to discharge to the fullest extent.

Capital and Labor.

There is another question which I wish to approach. You gentlemen of the association which was formed today in your city have canvassed the whole field of questions which most engrossed the Canadian people. You have approached the questions of labor and have adopted the following proposition, to which I call the attention of the people under this roof. (Here reference was made to the resolution regarding labor, which appears in another column.)

Let us hope that we are turning a new page in the history of the world, in the history of capital and labor. Let us be frank with one another. The relation of capital and labor up to the time has never been satisfactory. They have been hostile more than friendly, but they must not unfriendly. The interests of labor and capital are the same. When capital is hurt, labor is hurt, and when labor is hurt, capital is hurt.

Conditions Revolutionized.

Today conditions of production have been totally revolutionized. (Sir Wilfrid referred to the individual small cobblers, milliners and tailors of the past, who have disappeared, giving place to the large brick factories of today, employing hundreds of men.)

The capitalist, even if he has his strong box full of bonds and stocks, would be a pauper if all the establishments covered by those stocks and bonds were idle. On the other hand, the laborer would be idle himself unless there was a large capitalist to maintain these establishments in which he has to work. Therefore labor and capital are dependent one upon another and must work hand-in-hand.

Speaking some time ago before an assembly of labor men, someone declared that all the improvements which have been made in the condition of labor have been made in spite of the hostility of capital. I said: "My friend, do not look back to the dark days; look forward to the future." Let it be understood by the capitalists, and by the laborer, that their interests are one, and that they must work together, and henceforth there shall be a new page turned. The masses are far happier than in the past, and it is the hope of democracy that the common people in the future shall have a happy life.

I do not ask this moment for any hasty judgment, but this must be reserved until we know the conditions of peace. Much will depend on the conditions of peace, and while we wait we will be patient until peace is secure, as we have been patient since the war began. In the meantime you must not forget that eternal vigilance is the price of liberty. You men of Western Ontario, you who are true sons of your fathers, and are today walking in the path made by these men who would not support autocracy, and were always in the van.

To Call National Convention.

Let me hope that your example will be followed not only by the sections of Ontario, but by the whole Dominion of Canada, and if I have another suggestion to make, and if it pleases God to continue to me the health of the present time, I propose at some time to call a convention of all the Liberals of Canada to settle the problems that will be laid before us, when we know the full results of the war, and to endeavor to settle them on the lines of Liberal principles. The Liberal principles I say, whatever may be the questions in the future, will be the important thing, as in the past.

It will always be a struggle between the classes, which will endeavor to form an autocracy, and the great masses of the nation, and in these struggles, the men will divide into classes, those who believe in freedom, and those who believe in domination. With the war ending, an era closes. The new era is opening. The divine rights of kings is a thing of the past.

The doctrine was burned in the flames of the great war forced upon the world. The new doctrine, now accepted everywhere, is that all governments must be founded, and derive their power from the consent of the giver. This does not imply any license on the part of the people. This implies on the contrary, a restraint put on the people. It implies that every citizen abridges a part of his freedom, and surrenders it to the law. Democracy is a submission of everybody to the law. Democracy means the equality of everyone without exception before the law. Submission to the law is necessary not only on the part of the people, but on the part of the Government also. The Government does not make the laws. The laws are made by the people through their representatives in Parliament. The Government has no right to make laws by orders-in-council. The right of the Government is to submit these laws to Parliament, and when it has passed them it is the duty of the Government to execute the laws. Such is the doctrine, which we live, we Liberals of Canada.

Great Sacrifice to Obey.

By experience of recent days, we have known it is sometimes a great sacrifice indeed to obey some laws. We know that these laws have been conceived in ignorance, and carried out by prejudice, but even so, we always proclaim the doctrine, that the laws must be observed. The law may be unjust, sometimes, but unjust as it may be, the remedies are in the hands of the people. In constitutional countries the remedy in the hands of the people, is the ballot, to which you ladies have for the first time in the history of the nation been called.

There is no race, no creed except that creed that says that human consent must be the supreme arbitrator between man and man. I will conclude by calling to your attention the last words spoken in the French Parliament by Mr. Clemenceau, speaking only eight days ago upon the duties which confront the French republic, and which we can apply to all the nations of the Entente. He summed them up in this sentence: "We must be disciplined and strong." I give you this motto of the French republic for the Canadian Dominion. We must be disciplined and strong in the observance of the law, and strong in the prosecution of the right.

Chairman's Fine Tribute.

Major Eric Reid, D.S.O., Legion of Honor, who capably occupied the chair, in a brief address expressed to Sir Wilfrid and Lady Laurier the greetings of the meeting. He assured Sir Wilfrid that the Liberals of Western Ontario were willing to follow him wherever his wisdom directed.

In the words of the prophetess of old, we assure you that you God shall be our God, and your people our people, and whithersoever thou goest thither will we go. In this the critical period of Canada's history and progress it is to you that we turn for light and leadership, with the assurance that through whatever paths you may guide us they will lead to a higher plane in the national life of the world."

Mr. Elliott's Address.

"On behalf of the Liberals of Western Ontario I want to express the appreciation of the honor that has been our fortune in that we have with us the most distinguished son that Canada has as yet produced, Sir Wilfrid Laurier. We are grateful and proud that he has consented to spend this anniversary among us. We extend to him our heartfelt wish that his years may still be many in our midst, and that our beloved country for many years may be favored with his wise statesmanship, and the supreme integrity, which have been outstanding characteristics of his public life."

In these words J. C. Elliott, M. P. P., of West Middlesex, voiced the sentiments of the more than 200 delegates present, in reference to the man who is held in the highest esteem in Canada today by the general public, and whom London was proud to entertain on this occasion.

The Supreme Test.

"The supreme test of Canadian patriotism will be the manner in which in the years to come," continued Mr. Elliott, "the men, some of them shattered and broken, some of them maimed for life, who have returned from the greatest struggle the world has ever known, and the dependents of those brave lads who laid their lives on the sacrificial altar for their country, are treated by the people of this fair land of ours."

This test will not come until the bands have ceased their martial music and the lads who have survived the shot and shell of the enemy guns and bombs have been brought home and discharged. We must give generously and not forgetting our responsibility to these men and the orphans and widows. They must be kept in the same position they would have been able to maintain if the husband or father had not offered his life for his fellowmen. (Applause).

Proud of Our Sons.

"We are proud of our Canadian sons who have so nobly done their duty in this, the hour of their country's need. The honor bestowed on you," addressing the chairman, Major Eric Reid, "one of which is the highest that France can give, and which you have won by your devotion to duty, has brought honor to your native city and to all Canada. I feel it an honor and credit that a man who has served his king and country as you have done is the presiding officer of this notable gathering.

"This meeting has been called under the most auspicious circumstances. Canada, as well as those European countries, has been tried in the fire of affliction such as nations have never before had to endure. We are thankful that Canada has come out of the conflict with credit and that the awful carnage and bloodshed is ended. Of more importance is the fact that the war has established eternal principles of truth and justice."

Value of Franchise.

Speaking on the subject of the franchise the speaker declared it to be one of the treasured assets of a free people, and should not be violated in any way by any political party.

"Any government that attempts to violate the franchise in any way is taking a step, the evil effects of which will be far-reaching." (Applause).

"We are glad to welcome those who have been newly enfranchised. I refer to the women of Canada. In the war they have made as great sacrifices as our boys have, and it is but fitting that they should have a part in the councils of the nations at the present time. One of the greatest safeguards af the people is this extension of the franchise, for which Liberalism in every land has stood. It is with devout thankfulness that we welcome the ladies to the rights of citizenship.

Principles of Liberalism.

"The real principles of Liberalism are the interests of the great masses of humanity," said Mr. Elliott. "It does not make much difference what name is given or what a party is called. Some call themselves Conservative and some Unionist. Naturally I would not care to be called those names. The supreme question is whether the party is interested in bettering conditions for the great mass or not. (Applause.)

"We as Liberals have stood for this end, and it is the standard that we must follow.

"Party politics has been decried by some, but it has proven by far the best for the country so far, and until something better is evolved it is the system upon which we must rely. It is useless to talk of mixing up the members of the parties in one government, for it has not been successful."

In closing the speaker warned his hearers that the difficulties that are to be solved are so large that there is no time for racial differences.

"The problems which we are facing as a nation are so onerous that the individual attention of the people must be given to them. All differences of race and creed or religion must be forgotten.

The newly-organized Western Ontario Liberal Association paid a unique tribute to the great Liberal Chieftain in remembering his 77th birthday. Before him at the ban quet table was placed a monumental anniversary cake, displaying 77 candles. The incident deeply affected the veter an leader.

"GO THOU AND SIN NO MORE."

The Editor of The Advertiser:

Sir, In the issue of your paper of November 11 I find an article stating "Criminal Record No Bar to Army." This man has proved his sincerity, and it is the tried men who are strongest. The law of the Master is "Go, thou, and sin no more." The law of man seems to be "Live no more, but starve." The man has been punished, has proved by his action the sincerity of his repentance, and having come through that "awful hell of the fires of war," surely has purified and burned out all that was wrong. How do we know what first made him go wrong? He has proved and shown there was and is the pure gold of honesty in him by retrieving his past mistakes. If the men who take from him his chance of respectability would open the books of their former lives, perhaps they would show more dispicable things and greater sins, because they had the light and love of home, than this man ever did. He is trying to do as the Master Jesus said: "Go and sin no more"; and these Pharisees, as of old, are trying to make him sin by saying: "Get ye away, thou art not clean." Gold before it is purified by fire is full of dross; but the fire of the furnace leaves it pure, chaste and undefiled. Will you tell Mr. Pugh to write to the Pathfinders' Club of America; Mr. Wright, president, the Hodges Building, Detroit, Mich. Oh, that Canada was as far advanced in humanity as her neighbors of the U. S. A. Then we would learn not to be narrow, not to be Pharisees, but to give the helping hand to those who need it. Thanking you for the courtesy of your time and space in the paper, I am yours for truth and harmony.

WORLD FEDERATION.

To the Editor of The Advertiser:

"When the war drums throb no longer,
And the battle flags are furled,
In the Parliament of man,
The Federation of the World."
—Lord Tennyson.

The awful war which has been raging in Europe for the past four years and three months at such tremendous cost is over at last. "Praise God, from whom all blessings flow." Now, let us have "World Federation" of all nations to prevent future wars.

War has been adequately proved to be a terribly destructive folly, a monstrous relic of barbarism, which should not be continued to be tolerated by civilized nations in the 20th century of the Christian era.

"World Federation" of all nations is the logical remedy for war, and should be arranged as speedily as possible. God made all races of men that dwell on the face of the earth, and intended they should live together peaceably. He designed that all people should be helpful to each other. Wars result from selfishness and greed, autocratic ambitions, and devilish grasping avarice.

Militarism has proved to be a monstrous menace to the world. Conciliation and arbitration is a far better method of settling international differences and disputes.

"World Federation" of all nations is what is required to bring all nations and races into harmony and co-operation, and to secure arrangement of world conditions to avoid future wars.

1. "World Federation" of all nations should be established as soon as possible. A world conference or congress, of duly appointed representatives of the governments of all the respective nations of the world, should be arranged to be held at The Hague or some other suitable place without delay. The congress should proceed with arrangements for "World Federation," and provide plans for annual sessions of a "world parliament," at which accredited representatives of the governments of all the respective nations should confer on matters of international importance. (Two representatives from each of the small nations and five representatives from each of the large nations, would give ample representation and not make the parliament unwieldy.) Each conference or session of of the "World Court" should hold office, own chairman or president and other officers required for the conduct of proceedings.

2. The World Congress or Parliament should select a competent staff of appointees for the personnel of a supreme judicial council or "world court," to be established as a permanent institution for the maintenance of international justice, and should formulate rules for the guidance of the court, decide as to length of time for which the members of the "World Court" should hold office, etc.

3. There should be an agreement signed by all the delegates to the World Conference, and afterwards ratified by the respective governments of all the nations, to the following terms:

(a) That international disputes hereafter be all submitted to arbitration that fail to be settled by diplomacy.

(b) If settlement cannot be satisfactorily accomplished by arbitration within a reasonable time, that the matter under dispute be submitted to the "World Court," whose decision shall be final.

(c) National disputes between capital and labor, and disputes between provinces or other integral parts of a nation with a national government should be submitted to arbitration, and if not satisfactorily adjusted in a reasonable time be submitted ot the "World Court" for final decision.

4. An International World Parliament control of naval and aerial forces required for international police purposes should be established, contributed to by all nations, as agreed upon at the World Conference or Parliament. Each respective nation should be permitted to have control of its own national police force for maintaining order in its own country, but not allowed to maintain standing armies or to build up armaments for purposes of aggression against other nations.

There should be complete disarmament and demobilization of military forces in all nations, and cessation of armament manufacture, except what may be necessary for police purposes.

The World Parliament should decide the limit required for the respective nations.

There should be government control by each nation of materials used and factories operated in the manufacture of armaments required for national and international police purposes.

5. There should be commercial freedom for all nations to engage in legitimate commerce, including free passage of merchant vessels upon all natural international waterways.

6. All ambassadors and consuls of all nations should regard it as a duty to help make sure that the World Parliament arrangements are properly observed.

7. As a further aid to fraternalism and to help rid the world of the menace of militarism, all military training and military conscription should be abolished in every country.

All papers, books and other literature that incite nations to war or to violent international disturbances within nations should be suppressed.

All persons guilty of atrocious acts, or of directly or indirectly inciting nations to war, or to violence within nations hereafter should be placed in jail.

"What we seek is the reign of law, based upon the consent of the governed, and sustained by the organized opinion of mankind."—President Wilson.

Now is the time for the democratic people of every country to exert their influence with their respective governments, and by resolutions, letters, petitions and deputations insist on the establishment of "World Federation," to prevent future wars and the incalculable disaster another war would bring. Instead of preparing for "the next war," let the people of every nation earnestly prepare for the blessings of peace.

A LONDONER IN THE SOUTH.

To the Editor of The Advertiser:

I am very sorry to hear that London has suffered so severely by the epidemic of Spanish influenza.

Tampa and Jacksonville have been badly affected, with 85 deaths in the former, and over 200 in the latter.

St. Petersburg has been wonderfully fortunate in being one of the few cities in the country to avoid an epidemic of influenza, and the few cases that were noted were mild.

So far only eight deaths directly traceable to the influenza, one being white and the others colored people, have occurred in St. Petersburg.

This immunity from the disease, I attribute, to the clean condition of the city. The streets are all paved with red brick. Some 47 miles of the city being paved. This covers almost the entire city. There is no dust of any kind.

Flocks of buzzards are to be seen flying over the city every day. They generally roost around the school buildings about noon, and when the children are called in the birds descend and pick up the fragments of lunches left by the children.

No one is allowed to molest the birds as they are called the "Scavengers of the South," and pick up a good deal of refuse that otherwise would spoil and cause an epidemic in this warm country.

During my wanderings downtown on Sunday afternoons at home, I often wondered if the garbage department was asleep or what the big electric flusher was bought for.

The condition of the downtown streets, especially Dundas and Richmond streets, were disgraceful.

Dust and dirt of all kinds, waste paper, etc., were flying about in the wind.

These downtown streets should be swept and flushed after the Saturday night rabble got through parading up and down Dundas and Richmond streets, even if it did encroach on the Lord's Day.

I do not mean to say that the condition had anything to do with the epidemic, but it would make the city more healthful and give the stranger within our gates over Sunday the impression that we were alive.

St. Petersburg is called the "Sunshine City." The two daily papers make it a practice of giving away their papers free of charge every time the sun does not shine. The record to date is 34 sunless days in seven years.

Roses and other flowers are in full bloom, and oranges, grapefruit, bananas, etc., are turning yellow, and will soon be ripe enough to pick.

Temperature from 60 to 80.

LIBERALISM IS PLEDGED

from autocratic to representative and responsible government in the affairs of the state. To democratize the government of industry so as to give to the workers and consumers a larger share in the government of industry is the task that lies ahead.

A Blot of Shame.

Mrs. R. W. Ball of St. Thomas, who took an active part in the last election, introduced the following resolution:

That the Western Ontario Liberal Association is of the opinion that that dark blot of shame, the war-time elections act, should be removed from the statute book at the earliest possible date.

Mrs. Ball, the only woman speaker, made a striking impression on the audience when she stated that when she had heard some say, "I have no more use for a politician than I have for a toad or a frog or some other reptile," she gave the remark thought, and wondered what the same person thought of the ministers of the gospel who had converted their pulpits into political platforms. Mrs. Ball believed that politics could be as good and sacred and pure as religion. She did not believe Liberalism was dead, but only seemed asleep while it studied, and sought to make itself better for the struggle to come.

Mrs. Ball, the sister of soldiers overseas, declared the war-time elections act the greatest insult ever offered to women by any government. The women should make sure that no government would ever again perpetrate such an outrage.

Order-in-Council Government.

Wellington Hay, M. P. P., for North Perth, condemned order-in-council government in the following resolution, which was received with enthusiasm (and groans) by the audience:

The Western Ontario Liberal Association expresses its abhorrence of government by order-in-council, whereby the civil liberties of the people have been swept away, and government by a parliament responsible to the people abolished.

Rights of Warriors.

John Cowan, K.C., of Sarnia, presented the following resolution regarding the rights of sailors and soldiers:

That the Western Ontario Liberal Association pledges itself to insist and make sure that our sailors and soldiers shall have the first claim upon the consideration of Parliament, as they already have upon the gratitude of the Canadian people; that none of those who have served in the forces shall be allowed to fall into distress, either from lack of employment or from any other defect in our social organization; that those who have been incapacitated from following their occupations shall be freely assisted to train themselves for new employments, and shall be further assisted by the state in every practical way to establish themselves as producers or in business or as wage-earners; that the pensions from the Government to disabled men and to widows and children shall be sufficient in amount to secure a satisfactory standard of comfort, and that the pensions fund shall be generously and sympathetically administered.

The resolution was given a hearty reception and carried.

McCoig Flays Government.

Archie McCoig, M.P., the fighting Kent Liberal, who has brought about the passing of much beneficial legislation in the interests of the whole community, paid the Government of the day to his leader, Sir Wilfrid. He flayed many malpractices of the Government, and told of the loading up of ministries with under-secretaries at $5,000 per year, and the uselessness of the food board and other highly expensive commissions. Mr. McCoig asserted that the order forcing people to take sugar and flour back to the stores has caused the spread of disease. He told of the farce connected with the dismissal of W. F. O'Connor after the latter had dared to attack the food barons. Mr. O'Connor had been "fired" because he would not permit a stenographer to run his office.

Mr. McCoig gave high praise to The Advertiser for its standing for Liberalism, and this was warmly approved. He pointed out that thousands of dollars of advertising from the big interests had been refused by The Advertiser during the last campaign.

Mr. McCoig's resolution dealing with the economic system was passed as follows:

That the Western Ontario Liberal Association reaffirms the Liberal principle of the more equitable distribution of wealth and of the burdens of the state, and joins with the agricultural industry in its demand for relief from an economic system which discriminates unfairly against the farmers in favor of the big interests.

This brought the meeting to a close, and hearty cheers were given for the King, Sir Wilfrid Laurier and George S. Gibbons.

The constituencies represented at the meeting were as follows: North Essex, South Essex, East Kent, West Lambton, East Lambton, West Middlesex, East Middlesex, London, West Elgin, East Elgin, North Huron, South Huron, North Bruce, South Bruce, North Waterloo, South Waterloo, North Wellington, South Wellington, Brant, Brantford, Norfolk, Haldimand, Welland, Wentworth, Hamilton East, Hamilton West, North Oxford, South Oxford, North Perth, South Perth, Lincoln.

Among the members of the Legislature who attended the meeting were: J. A. Calder, M.P.P. of South Oxford; J. C. Elliott, M.P.P. for West Middlesex; Severin Ducharme, M.P.P. for North Essex; Walter Ferguson, M.P.P. for Kent; John Grieves, M.P.P. for North Middlesex, and Wellington Hay, M.P.P. for North Perth. Many candidates for the local house were also in attendance, and the Dominion members included five of the eight members now representing Liberalism in Ontario. They were Messrs. Truax, McCoig, Kennedy, Ross and Euler.

BOLSHEVIK GOVT. IS ENTITLED TO NO CONSIDERATION

Lord Robert Cecil Reviews the Atrocities Committed in Russia.

London, Nov. 18.—Replying to an allusion by Arthur Ponsonby, member of Parliament for the Stirling district of Scotland, that there were rumors of Great Britain sending a military expedition to Russia, Lord Robert Cecil, undersecretary of state for foreign affairs, said today in the House of Commons that he could give no information without consulting with the war office. He reviewed the grave offences of the Bolshevist Government, saying:

"If they had been committed by any civilized government, Great Britain would be justified in seeking redress by force of arms."

He declared that the Bolshevist Government was "entitled to no consideration whatever from the British Government."

PLATINUM BAN LIFTED.

OTTAWA, Nov. 20.—The war trade board has removed the restrictions prohibiting the use of platinum in the manufacture and repair of jewelry. The restriction has been in force since June last.

SIR WILFRID'S VISIT.

SIR WILFRID LAURIER has never taken the easy way or waded the shallow stream to reach the goal toward which he set his eyes. And as dawn broke today, marshaling in the 78th of his honorable years, he does not choose to reach the leadership of the nation he has served for decades as premier and as devoted son by the soft and quickly measured methods of compromise. Looking upon the new vista of a Canada victorious, and cleaving to his faith in the final certainty of the people to see the truth, he enters again the arena to confront a new world of politics. All things have changed. Nations have been swept away in the rush of democracy's might toward the plains of peace, the world has been set free of the shackles that chained the best of its men to the blood-gushing machine of war, and the mist lifts from Canada to reveal, on the one hand, a people expectant—expectant of the men who will come once again over the long-waiting threshold, ready to press them to the heart of the nation, and expectant as well of what the future may hold for all of them. The people are looking toward that mirror of their hopes and yearnings, for the man who can reflect their desires in clear-cut lines of new statesmanship and new constructive policy for the Dominion and at the same time be a guiding light. Sir Wilfrid Laurier is the man.

The Maple Leaf never meant so much in the world as it does today. Sir Wilfrid Laurier does not dash in to capitalize in the political way the expectancy and expediency of the nation. Rather does he survey the field from the cool heights of long experience and love of country. There are the valleys and there are the quicksands that lie in the valleys. There, too, are the sweeping plains of contentment for all, waiting to be furrowed for a crop. A crop of what character? Shall the seeds of discord and strife and prejudice be cast again on the wild winds, or shall the sower be chosen who will proceed with calmness, throwing no evil seeds and causing no blights or famines of national welfare? A roused and thinking people must answer these questions, now or never.

It is Canada's new national consciousness—so certainly materialized it could be cut with a knife—toward which Sir Wilfrid turns his eyes. The war has passed; one might launch forward from the early days of the war in Canada and draw a view of sickening corruption. But while the Liberal leader, strong in mentality and body, and with a fresh reserve of strength, paid no eulogies to his opponents, realizing that their faults were apparent to all, he cast the past away, and losing no moment of the precious days that are left, struck for the future and for the rousing of the nation to its reborn destiny.

Sir Wilfrid forced home many of his tried and tested beliefs. But he sounded the new note with the old. He dealt in a general way with the returned soldier and his inadequate pension. He demanded that reconstruction be well thought out, and that the soldier, cast back into civilian, return to find a place of security.

Perhaps his most important announcement was that in the near future it was planned to call together a conference of Liberals from all over Canada to consider the policies to be undertaken in Canada for the future, embracing all those matters which concern the destiny of the country. For this reason, no doubt, the chieftain did not pronounce upon many issues about which he wishes to consult his following. That following is a vast one today, a force that must be reckoned with, and that cannot be tricked with shabby subterfuge in the next contest that must come, a contest in which one of the chief gladiators will be a stronger Liberalism, no matter what the other contestant may be labeled. Such was the conviction of those who caught some of the new fire of the old chieftain's leadership. The prayer that he might be spared for many years, the belief that increasing years did not diminish but added to his wisdom, and the certainty that the great leader was still the great leader, came as the fine gathering closed.

The organization of the Western Ontario Liberal Association justified its existence, if it did nothing more than bring the leader to his followers in London and the district. But the new organization, the objects of which will be dealt with in a later issue, will wrest the leadership of Liberalism in the province from those who have "operated" the party from the stronghold of entrenched Toryism and special privilege.

ENTER THE AERIAL ERA.

FOR FOUR years all the forces of aviation have been concentrated on the purposes of war. Now, with the termination of the struggle, we are to see these forces utilized for peace purposes. Tennyson in prophetic vision told of "merchant argosies of the air." Already these are under way. An Italian aerial freight route has been established; France proposes to put into service at once a system of aerial routes with which to link up her industrial centres; while aerial mail services are already common in England, France and some portions of the United States. Soon we will see an adoption of the airplane to the same stupendous extent as that of the automobile. Once the airplane has been made as safe to navigate as the motor car, it is certain to become universally used for purposes of pleasure, and no doubt the want for an aerial flivver will be promptly met by some genius—perhaps of Detroit—who will at once add to the pleasure of the human race and achieve an ethereal democracy similar to that of the highway.

With the coming of the aerial era the world will shrink. Distance will be rapidly conquered, and there will be none of the remoteness that now exists through intervening waters, deserts, jungles and mountain ranges. The prolonged flights that are of daily occurrence make inevitable early and easy access to the globe's last wildernesses and frontiers, and in time will throw open to the air-flivvering week-ender those forbidding wastes that have hitherto been the objective of none but the boldest adventurers.

It will be readily seen how the aerial age will, by the immense expansion of industrial and missionary enterprise, speed up the Christianizing and civilizing of all and sundry heathen. It will bring the peoples of the world, white, black and yellow, into immediate contact with one another, and better understanding will follow. The airplane will aid largely in making permanent the peace which is about to be achieved, and no happier service to mankind than that can be imagined.

WILSON GOING OVER.

CONSIDERING the immense scope of the coming peace conference, President Wilson's decision to attend in person is a wise one. In no similar meeting of history have the destinies of nations been involved on such a large scale as will be the case when the final settlement between the Teutons and the Entente is discussed. The conditions to which the signers of the pact will be bound will be far-reaching. Far beyond the countries immediately interested, the conclusions of the peace meeting will be felt. We have had a world war, the biggest of all time, and the world peace which we are about to achieve will measure up to the convulsion from which it springs. That the chief executive of the great republic should attend the peace convention in person is a fitting recognition of its dignity and importance.

Again, the fact that the settlement is to be based on the fourteen terms makes it desirable that Mr. Wilson should be there. It is certain that there will be many points to be elucidated, and doubtless some modifications. To attend to these matters at the end of a 3,000-mile cable would be unsatisfactory and risky. If Mr. Wilson's principles are to be the foundation on which a reconstructed world is to be erected, there must be no misunderstanding as to how the vital clauses are to be interpreted.

The president's presence will both reduce the chances of flivvering and be a notification to the Hun that the great republic is in the peace settlement as heartily as she was in the prosecution of the war.

MY FRIEND.

[Philadelphia Public Ledger.]

No man is poor or in need of pity or without hope or "down and out" while he has a friend. It is hard to think that any human being could stoop so low as to put himself outside the pale of friendship. There is no loss of this world's goods or this world's favor that weighs anything, even for a moment, against the loss of a friend.

My friend bears with me and believes in me. He idealizes me, and I am ashamed that I do not live up to the picture he draws in his mind. That sense of mortification at myself is not strong enough, perhaps, to induce me to amend my conduct. Yet the fact that the picture of something better than I am is created by the lasting affection of another is enough to keep me going. It gives me courage to face the day. It gets me out of bed in the grey morning when I might be asking of the walls and the ceiling, "What's the use of anything?"

My friend is thinking of me. A letter is the petal and a meeting is the full flower of our friendship. I do not want of him any other gift than that. He has no axe to grind, no nest to feather, no selfish interest to serve, when he comes to me. All lies in the open between us. His heart is as my heart. There is nothing to hide. We have a world in common—and into that world in common each brings from his own separate sphere that which the other will enjoy.

The ego subsides. My own pushful vanity recedes because of want to hear his story. I want to learn that all goes well with him and his. In his turn he wants me to be communicative. He seeks, from a genuine interest in my welfare and my concerns, to learn what stones or roses strewed my path since last we met.

There are so many ways of helping besides lending money—which is sometimes the poorest and the last way to give relief to the afflicted.

If I have a friend I cannot think it is a burden to minister to him. It does not occur to me that anything I can do involves me in a sacrifice. It is, instead, a privilege and a pleasure to be of use.

The world learns to be friendly. It never was so kind-hearted and so generous a place as it is today. There never were so many people toiling for others without caring for themselves. The most hideous selfishness that ever was perpetrated has schooled God's children in the golden rule. He who despairs of this earth because the war was possible, and because it has kept up so long, is without vision of the better day that dawns, in which friendship is coming into its own, and my friend and I are free to serve the world even as we help and bless each other.

CAUSE FOR THANKS.

By R. Ray Baker.

"A lot to be thankful for!" Maurice Eldridge's expression was one of disgust instead of gratitude. He was disgusted with himself for ever moving to this big city, where no one knew anybody else; with his job, because it gave him a holiday with nothing to do; with the fellow who appropriated his umbrella; with the weather that made the umbrella necessary, and with his lottery ticket for winning the turkey he carried under his arm.

He stood under an awning, his hands in his trousers pockets, his coat collar tight about his neck, water dropping off the end of his nose. He glared at a taxicab that pushed through the mud splashing some of it on the curb. The occupant of the car, a girl with a rather attractive face, caught his eye, and as she did so she tilted her chin upward and turned her head away.

Maurice hunched his shoulders and pattered down the rain-covered sidewalk, unmindful of the downpour.

"The business woman across the court," he sneered. "She can't even give a fellow a decent look."

Fifteen minutes later found him entering his room in the Century apartment house. His left shoe uttered resentful squeaks with every step, and sounded like a cripple and felt like a drowned rat as he threw the turkey on the table and stood surveying it with a baleful eye.

The paper wrapping soaked with water, had become disarranged and the lifeless bird lay exposed, its head dangling below the table edge.

"You look like a turkey," Maurice observed as he sank into a chair, "but in reality you are a white elephant. What a man like me wants with a turkey I don't know. No place to cook it, and nobody to help eat it anyhow. I ought to have let the relief society keep it, even if I did get the lucky number. What's a turkey dinner on Thanksgiving day without a lot of other good things to go with it and a congenial companion or two?"

Involuntarily his eyes wandered across the court to another section of the flat building, where the "business woman" had apartments along with two other bachelor girls. As he looked she entered the room, approached the window and looked disconsolately at the sheets of water that swirled down. Maurice discarded his sour expression and a smile bickered across his countenance. Here was the girl he had been trying to get acquainted with ever since he came to the city two weeks ago. What better opportunity than now he thought, as he rose to his feet. The movement caught her eyes and she looked toward him—and pulled down the shade of her window.

Maurice struggled out of his wet garments and into dry ones. His change completed, he recalled that the mail carrier was about due and that there might be a letter from home. He stepped into the hall.

In the apartments on both sides of the hall dishes were rattling, and the odor of cooking viands found its way to his nostrils, while bursts of merry laughter reached his ears.

Arriving at the entrance vestibule he discerned something white through the glass of his mail box, and it made him feel a little more cheerful. He opened the box, took out the letter, and was about to tear it open, when he discovered that the name on the envelope was: Miss Jacquelin Dietz.

"The mail carrier got it in my box by mistake," Maurice mused. "It says apartment seven, and mine is nine. The business woman occupies seven. Somebody remembers her all right today, but I'm left out in the cold."

He reached out to place the letter in box seven, and as he did so he kicked an oblong package that rested on the floor. Curiosity prompted him to pick it up, and he saw that it bore the same address as the letter.

"Yes, she certainly does fare well," he muttered, and was about to replace the package, when footsteps sounded on the stairs that led up into the other section of the building.

"She's coming for her mail," he decided, and a daring thought entered his brain. With the letter in a pocket and the packet under his arm he retreated hurriedly up the stairs that led to his own apartment, pausing on the first landing.

Looking back, he saw the "business woman" approach her mail box and look around with an expression of disappointment. She hesitated a moment, looked out into the street, where the rain still was beating down, then walked slowly back up the stairs she had just descended.

Maurice retraced his steps to the vestibule. He waited for perhaps five minutes, then reached out and pressed the bell above mail box seven, his mouth and eyes expressing somewhat akin to desperation.

He clamped his ear to the speaking tube and presently heard a feminine voice respond with a "Hello!"

Maurice made his tones as gruff as possible and spoke into the tube.

"I have a letter and a package for you. I'll bring them right up." He did not give her a chance to tell him she would come down.

In a few moments he was ushered into her room. When she recognized him she attempted to assume a haughty demeanor, but the attempt failed because her eyes were red.

"I got these by mistake," he said, lamely.

She smiled a tired little smile and received the package and letter.

"I'm so glad to get them," she said. "I've been miserable today because I'm all alone. The other girls have gone home for the holidays. I knew the package was coming, and it was a ray of hope to look forward to. When I didn't find it downstairs I was just about heartbroken."

She sniffed and dabbed her eyes with a handkerchief. He stood there looking foolish and wanting to stay, but unable to frame an excuse.

She picked the package from the table where she had placed it and started to unwrap it.

"This is full of good things," she told him. "There's a lot of cake and candy and nuts and things that help to make up a Thanksgiving dinner. I know because I get one every year, although always before there has been someone to help me eat them and we always had a turkey."

He grabbed fiercely at his tie and found his collar was getting tight, and he knew he wanted to suggest something, but could hardly muster the courage. If she had given him one of those haughty looks of hers he would have sunk through the floor, but instead she was smiling—rather ruefully, it is true, but smiling—and he blurted out:

"I'm in just the same fix, only I have the turkey and nothing to go with it."

She glanced meditatively toward double doors at one end of the room.

"That's a kitchenette," she said. "There's a gas stove in there, and I—I guess I could cook a turkey, although I never tried. If you want to take a chance——"

Some time later the two sat down to a round little table, on which a feast had accumulated in a remarkably short space of time.

"I never tried to serve a turkey before," he remarked as he picked up a formidable knife and fork, "but if my carving turns out as well as your cooking—well, there will be no cause to complain."

He jabbed the fork into the steaming bird.

"A lot to be thankful for," he said, and meant it.

AWARDED D. S. O.

Major A. J. Lockwood of Westport Served With R. A. M. C.

Brockville, Nov. 19.—Word has been received that Major A. J. Lockwood, M.D., whose parents reside at Westport, Ontario, has been awarded the D. S. O. for gallantry under fire with the R. A. M. C. When war broke out, Major Lockwood, who is a graduate of McGill University, 1910 class, was studying in Germany with a classmate, Captain Hepburn. Making their way by the Hook of Holland to England, they immediately took out commissions in the Royal Army Medical Corps, and within a very short time had reached France, where their services were in much demand to meet the casualties resulting from the earlier British operations. Major Lockwood at that time was a lieutenant, and soon was promoted to the rank of captain. In 1916 he was decorated with the Military Cross for gallantry while acting as an advance dressing station, and still later won the Mons Star for participation in the early fighting of 1914. Last year he was at his home in Westport on leave for a short time.

ALMOST BLIND FROM HEADACHES

It is hard to struggle along with a head that aches and pains all the time. Headache seems habitual with many people; indeed, some are seldom, if ever, free from it, suffering continually, and wondering why they can get no relief.

In nine cases out of ten, persistent headaches are due to poisoned blood, the blood being rendered impure through some derangement of the stomach, liver or bowels.

The reason Burdock Blood Bitters makes permanent cures of all cases of headache, is because it starts the organs of elimination acting freely, and the poisons and impurities are carried off from the system, purified blood circulates in the brain cells, and instead of pains and aches there is revived mentality and bodily vigor.

Mrs. Geo. Monck, Arden, Ont., writes: "I have been troubled a great deal with sick headaches, and at times would almost go blind, and have to go to bed. I tried different kinds of medicine without any benefit until I was advised to use Burdock Blood Bitters. After taking it, I have not been troubled since."

B. B. B. is a purely vegetable remedy, and has been manufactured for the last forty years by The T. Milburn Company, Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Easy to Make This Pine Cough Remedy

Thousands of families swear by its prompt results. Inexpensive, and saves about $2.

You know that pine is used in nearly all prescriptions and remedies for coughs. The reason is that pine contains several peculiar elements that have a remarkable effect in soothing and healing the membranes of the throat and chest.

Pine cough syrups are combinations of pine and syrup. The "syrup" part is usually plain sugar syrup.

To make the best pine cough remedy that money can buy, put 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth) in a 16-oz. bottle, and fill up with home-made sugar syrup. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, you make 16 ounces—more than you can buy ready-made for $2.50. It is pure, good and very pleasant—children like it.

You can feel this take hold of a cough or cold in a way that means business. The cough may be dry, hoarse and tight, or may be persistently loose from the formation of phlegm. The cause is the same—inflamed membranes—and this Pinex and Syrup combination will stop it—usually in 24 hours or less. Splendid, too, for bronchial asthma, hoarseness, or any ordinary throat ailment.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and is famous the world over for its prompt effect upon coughs.

Beware of substitutes. Ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

THE RACE BETWEEN THE BEAVER TWINS.

You remember that Tom and Jerry Beaver were Twins. And I am glad to say that they were good and jolly friends, too. They never kicked each other out of bed in the nice Beaver house. But both loved immensely to play a joke on the other, and they had sense enough to take a prank in fun, and not become angry. I suppose you have seen people who delight to get a prank off on another chap, but who get angry themselves when a prank is sprung suddenly on them. Well, the Beaver Twins had more sense than such foolish people. And so, when Tom Beaver grabbed a limb of a tree, in the woods and jumped into their little canal to swim and dive for their woodpile, calling, "Jerry! let's have a big race!" why, Jerry was such a good sport, that he rushed to win that race if possible.

And those Twins dived into the canal, each with a big limb, and swam for home. But Tom got there first and put his branch on the woodpile. He had to dive to reach the woodpile. You say, you never heard of a woodpile being under water?

Well, let me tell you that many strange things happen in Beavertown. In that city, every woodpile is at the bottom of Mirror Pond. You see, their woodpile keeps them warm in the winter. But you ask, do the Beavers build a fire? Yes, they build a fire in their stomachs to keep them warm. You see, a Beaver eats his woodpile! And Tom and Jerry and the Beavers would eat that wood-pile in the winter. But soon Tom's branch was floating on top of the water, and Jerry said, "Tom, I beat you; for you didn't fasten your limb well to the woodpile." So Tom had to admit that he was beaten.

All night long, the Beavers worked, until suddenly a sound was heard in the Great Forest like a pistol shot. It was Mother Beaver in the canal, close to the poplars. Her keen ears heard a soft footfall of some enemy, and she gave the water a terrific whack with her long and flat tail, and the echoes rang through the Great Forest like a pistol shot. And at that signal of danger, all the Beavers dived into the canal, and swam very fast, very fast indeed for home—that is, all except Tom and Jerry's little brother, who was a naughty, disobedient child. This little brother gave his mother much trouble, because he would not mind her, and so, now, instead of diving into the canal, he stayed where he was, and said to himself: "Mother doesn't know what she is talking about. There's no danger!" And you know if children disobey their parents, something is apt to happen to them to punish them.

In That City, Every Woodpile Is at the Bottom of Mirror Pond.

SUGGESTIVE QUESTIONS ON THE UNIFORM LESSON FOR SUNDAY, November 24, 1918.

ONE GOLDEN TEXT SUGGESTION.

By Rev. T. S. Linscott, D.D.

(Monday)

Jacob Wins Esau.—Gen. xxxiii., 1-17.

QUESTIONS FOR TODAY.

7. Verse 4.—Would you say that Esau manifested this affection for Jacob from his own original choice, or had he been influenced by God or Jacob's presents?

8. If Jacob had not prayed and wrestled with God the night before this meeting, what probably would have been the difference in the way Esau greeted him?

9. If Esau had originally intended to men?

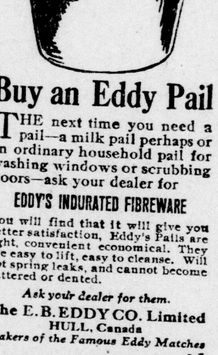

Golden Text: A soft answer turneth away wrath.—Prov., 15:1.

GENTLENESS AND LOVE HELP US WITH OUR FELLOWS.

If Jacob had organized a fighting band and had prepared to go to war with his brother and settled their quarrel through the arbitrament of the sword, there would have been a great slaughter, and whoever might have won in the fight, the old feeling between them would have continued and been accentuated; but Jacob's wise policy of fighting his brother with prayer, with gentleness, and with presents, was infinitely better. It is generally so, and it is a pity that the nations of the earth have not learned to settle their disputes with each other like Jacob settled his with his brother Esau. There is a lesson in this also for us as individuals. We shall always find that "A soft answer turneth away wrath."

BEHOLD! RESPONSIBILITY NOW BELONGETH TO YOU!

Yesterday for the first time in history women sat with men in a Western Ontario Liberal convention. They sat there because during the war which has just come to an end they proved themselves indispensable as citizens of the nation, and because they are now recognized as indispensable in the period of reconstruction which is to come. And more than this, it was their privilege to listen at the feet of the great Liberal chieftain, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who welcomed them into the political world and fired them with the desire to be truly righteous citizens.

The women representatives at this convention were picked from the whole of Western Ontario, not according to birth (certain women in the land now possess the franchise, because they were born the mother, or the sister, or the wife of a soldier), but because they were considered the most representative women of Western Ontario Liberalism. 'Tis true that according to the law of the land, many of them do not yet possess the franchise, but they will before another election, and in anticipation of this they are coming out openly as Liberal women, not hiding behind the skirts of indecision.

Today theirs is indeed a strange position. They are not exactly children, and yet they have been permitted for the first time to dine with the older and more experienced members of the political family, and consequently must be on their best behavior. A childishly handled knife and fork may be a source of amusement for a short time, but if the child persists in refusing to learn it is banished from the presence of its elders. So, too, women must assume the responsibilities which equal citizenship lays upon them, lest they be considered not yet ready for a place of equality.

Then, too, women are somewhat in the same position as the debutante who for the first time turns up her curls and steps into the grown-up world to find a nitch for herself, or like the girl graduate in hood and gown who, kneeling in the presence of her Alma Mater, sees far into the days to come. Both have come through a period of rapid growth, during which they have been receiving everything with very little effort on their part. But on the day of their graduation they are thrown upon their own resources, and must show the stuff of which they are made. Women entering the political field are much in the same position. Everything in the way of legislation has hitherto been carried out for them, but now they are to be thrown upon their own resources, and it is theirs to prove that they are ready for the responsibility.

And last of all women are the eternal mothers of the land. Their instinct for motherhood comes before every other, in the political arena as well as in the family life of the nation. When the Liberal party proclaims itself the fathers of any cause, the women Liberals automatically become the mothers of that cause. And herein lies their responsibility. Never must they allow the child to be unworthy of the mother. Nourished at their own breast, it must reflect the high ideals and nobility of those who claim to be its mother.—The Editor.

CYNTHIA GREY'S MAIL-BOX

Exile of Capt. Dreyfus.

Dear Cynthia,—It is now some time since I wrote to your page, but here I am again with a number of queries if you will answer them, please.

1. When was Capt. Dreyfus expelled from France?
2. What was the charge?
3. What was the name of the island?
4. How long was he there?
5. Was he proven innocent in the end?
6. What was done to his accusers?

Thanking you sincerely.

RETTA ROUMAINE.

Ans.—Your answers have been somewhat delayed, Retta, simply because the "path of knowledge" was blocked by no less an enemy than the "flu." However, here are the replies now, and the facts are rather interesting in view of the events of the past four years.

1. His trial was held at Paris on December 19-22, 1894, when he was condemned to military degradation and imprisonment for life.
2. The charge was that of offering to sell military secrets to a foreign power (understood to be Germany).
3. The Isle du Diable, off the coast of French Guiana.
4 and 5. The family and friends of the unfortunate man at once began an agitation for his release. Newspapers took up the case and public feeling ran very high. Leakages in the military department still went on, and in 1898 a Major Esterhazy was arrested, tried by courtmartial, but acquitted. At length Capt. Dreyfus was brought home, and a fresh trial ordered, August 7-Sept. 9, 1899. This ended in a sentence of guilty and imprisonment for ten years. But ten days afterwards he was pardoned by the President of France, and released from prison. In July, 1906, Capt. Dreyfus was formally reinstated in the army with the rank of major.

6.—I do not know if they were ever brought to account or not.

Some Wash Day Advice.

Dear Miss Grey,—I saw where some busy mother asked for advice with her wash-day. I think this is the hardest work for many farm women, especially where there are children. My advice to her is to occasionally take the largest and hardest pieces to a laundry and have them washed and rough dried. This is not very expensive and the clothes, sheets, towels, etc., are made to look like new. Hoping the busy mothers will profit a little by this, and with kindest regards to Miss Grey and all the readers, I am

A HAPPY MOTHER.

Ans.—I wonder if any, or many, of our out-of-town housekeepers have ever tried this system? Home help is always difficult to procure, and especially so in the country and rural towns. As "Happy Mother" says, her method is not so very expensive, and would certainly help to lighten the labors of the home.

She Misses "Copernicus."

Dear Miss Grey,—As I haven't written to you for so long, I thought I would call around again. Has "Copernicus" gone to the war? I haven't heard anything about him any more. Tell him to write again if he is on hand. Say, Miss Grey, could you or any of the readers tell me how to make vinegar out of cider? Well, I will ring off for this time.

STUBB'S SHORTY.

Ans.—Welcome back S. S. There's no faces that we like to see better than the old ones. I don't know anything about Copernicus, but perhaps your plea may bring him back.

To make the vinegar, I believe that the cider itself will turn to vinegar if given time; you may hasten the process by simply adding a little "mother" from someone else's vinegar barrel, or some substitute. This for the "mother"—spread a piece of brown paper thickly with molasses and place in the cider barrel. In a short time it undergoes a chemical change, and acts as "mother" in turning the cider to vinegar.

PONTIFICAL MASS FOR SOLDIERS WHO GAVE THEIR LIVES

Special Service Held in St. Peter's Today.

BISHOP GIVES ADDRESS

Believes Some of Dead May Never Go to God's Presence.

A pontifical mass of requiem and absolution was celebrated at St. Peter's Cathedral this morning at 10 o'clock for the soldiers who died on the battlefields of the great war. In explaining the nature of the service to the people, Bishop M. F. Fallon referred to yesterday's service which was one of thanksgiving and prayer in contrast to the mass this morning, which incorporated the Catholic idea of prayers for the dead.

"This sacrifice has a special meaning at the close of so heartrending a conflict as the world has just gone through," declared the bishop. Then addressing the men in khaki present in the church, he said: "Many of you may have seen, as I have, the constant lines of graveyards in France and Flanders with their little white crosses, the symbols of Christian faith, erected above the graves of the men who have now become the children of God. What a sight to touch the heart! And now we in our turn must do our duty towards those who have fallen for us. The Catholic church says we must pray for their immortal souls. 'Tis true that many of them may have been holy enough to go immediately into God's presence, and there may be some who will never be permitted to do so, but between the one and the other there is a great middle state of purgation, of purification and the Catholic church lays on her children here below the responsibility of prayer for them. The symbol which I see before me is not capable of prayer, nor can it be moved by prayer, but through and beyond this symbol I see them all, the great army of the departed dead, and I pray that we shall keep them reverently before us all the days of our lives."

The officers of the mass were as follows: Assistant priest, Father Roy; deacon of honor, the Rev. Captain W. T. Corcoran; Catholic chaplain of No. 1 Military District; deacon of the mass, Father Harding; subdeacon of the mass, Father Brennan. The mass was sung by the choir of St. Peter's seminary.

MORE EVIDENCE IN EXPLOSION PROBE

Owner of Building Never Saw Any Smoking There.

The probe into the cause of the explosion at the acetylene plant of F. G. Mitchell on Rectory street, near Dundas last October 5, which commenced Tuesday morning in the police court under the direction of E. P. Heaton, provincial fire marshal, and Crown Attorney J. B. McKillop, was continued this morning.

J. C. Parkes, owner of the building that was blown to atoms by the explosion, was the first witness called at 11 o'clock. Mr. Parkes stated that, according to his agreement with F. G. Mitchell, the latter was to be out of the garage in question on the first day of July last. He received $10 a month rent for the building. Mr. Parkes went on to say that Stephen Snider, the man killed in the explosion, always had charge of the building. Mr. Parkes was always scared of acetylene gas, but did not think it was as dangerous as it was.

Never Saw Smoking.

The witness gave it as his opinion that an explosion had taken place in the big galvanized iron tank, the contents of which it is supposed wrecked the building. He had been in the place half a dozen times, but had never seen Snider smoking inside the plant. Two days before the explosion, Mr. Parkes helped Snider clean out the tank. Witness gave it as his opinion that the explosion was caused either by leaks in the gasometer or prest-o-lite tanks by a spark from the hydro switch or a lighted match.

Mr. McKillop—"Do you know that experts say that as the hydro switch was situated nine feet from the door of the building it would be impossible for a man to ever reach it without keeling over if the gas was strong enough to wreck the building?"

"I don't know," replied Parkes.

Ton of Carbide.

"How much carbide was there round the premises, Mr. Parkes?" asked J. M. McEvay, who is appearing for a number of residents of the district whose property was damaged by the explosion.

"About 2,200 pounds," was the reply. Mr. Parkes, in answer to another question, could not say how far the explosion was felt. He had no idea.

Mrs. J. C. Parkes was the next witness called.

"I never had any other idea, but what the explosion was caused by the mixture in that galvanized iron tank," she declared. "I was never inside the building," she replied in answer to a question by Mr. McKillop. Mr. Snider had told her he hated to clean out the tank.

The investigation was adjourned at 12:30 o'clock and resumed at 2 o'clock.

HAS NO FEAR OF ANY BOLSHEVIST MENACE

Mayor Does Not Believe It Will Influence Canada.

Canada has nothing to fear from Bolshevism, according to Mayor C. R. Somerville. While there is some reason for thinking that the movement has gained some ground in this country he thinks that it will not reach any dangerous size.

It would be well, however, he says, for the country to take special care to lock the doors of immigration to any persons who might be reasonably suspected of being connected with the Bolshevist movement abroad. The only danger would be in the indiscriminate reception of immigrants from European countries after the peace terms are settled.

SEATTLE UNION VOTES IN FAVOR OF STRIKE TO RELEASE MOONEY

Attempt Will Be Made to Turn Demonstration Into International Affair.

Seattle, Wash., Nov. 20.—After a protracted session lasting until after midnight, the Seattle Metal Trades Council, representing approximately 35,000 workers, early today voted to strike to bring about the release of Thomas J. Mooney and his co-defendants, convicted in San Francisco in connection with the "preparedness day bombing case."

An attempt will be made to make the demonstration an international affair, union men said. The resolution passed by the council asks that Arthur Henderson, leader of the British Labor party, be requested by cable to ask the British labor organizations to take similar measures to secure Mooney's release.

The resolution first fixed the date for the strike at December 1, but this was amended and the date left open to be decided on by national labor officers in order to make the strike a general one. Notice of the council's action here is to be forwarded to the American Federation of Labor, and the federation will be asked to recommend the strike to all affiliated organizations.

GASSED!—"Gassed" was the cry of the office clerks in the Royal Bank Building this morning, but no gas masks were available. A returned soldier who was in the building at the time said that it reminded him of the battlefields of France.

PRESENTING "THE BLACK FEATHER."—St. George's Church, Wharncliffe road north, has produced many successful and pleasing playlets, but its present undertaking, "The Black Feather," promises to beat all previous records. The play itself needs no introduction to Londoners, as it was produced by Albert Brown at the local opera house during the year 1917. The plot is well laid, and deals with the intrigue of foreign spies, and how they are handled by the British secret service. The play is full of dramatic situations, which are offset at times by a fine vein of comedy. Particular attention has been paid to the lighting effects and staging of the production. The play will be presented on Thursday and Friday evenings of this week at 8 o'clock.

GAVE HER LIFE IN SERVICE OF OTHERS AS EPIDEMIC RAGED

Mrs. Alfred Pocock Died in Winnipeg.

The story has reached London today of the heroic sacrifice of life in the service of others of a young woman well known in London, the wife of Alfred Pocock, of Winnipeg, formerly of this city. This forenoon Mrs. Joseph Pocock, 318 Wolfe street, received a telegram stating that her daughter-in-law had died at midnight last night from pneumonia, which developed from influenza.

A little over two years ago the marriage took place of Alfred Pocock, formerly of the B. N. A. staff of this city, now of the Winnipeg Shoe Company, Winnipeg, to Marguerite Powell, a trained nurse, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Powell of Barrie.

Notwithstanding the fact that she had a 15-months-old baby and the care of her home, when the urgent call came for the help of trained nurses in the influenza epidemic which was sweeping the prairie city three weeks ago, Mrs. Pocock felt it her duty to respond. So efficient and capable did she prove that she was made supervisor of the emergency nursing service for that city. A week ago she contracted influenza, the secondary infection, pneumonia, manifesting itself in a few days. The yonng husband is seriously ill from the same disease, and the babe is not expected to live.

Owing to the illness of his son, daughter-in-law and little grandchild, Mr. Pocock left for Winnipeg on Monday.

Another son, Wilfrid Pocock, a partner in the Winnipeg Shoe Company, and his wife are just recovering from influenza.

Mrs. Alfred Pocock is survived by her husband, baby, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Powell, Barrie, five sisters and two brothers. One sister, Mrs. Lawrence Stanley, lives in Chatham. One brother, Capt. Powell, is overseas, and the other is Dr. Powell of Port Arthur.

Scrubbed Family For Sick Woman And Glad To Do It

Welfare Nurse Has Peculiar Duties Thrust on Her.

"What do you suppose I was doing yesterday afternoon?" asked one of London's health and welfare nurses of a friend today. Friend couldn't possibly guess, because, like a lot of other London people she hadn't the slightest idea of a health and welfare nurse's manifold duties, the great variety of service she renders in the course of her day's work.

The nurse told what she was doing: "I received a call from a woman," she related, "who asked me if I could go to her house. I did so, and when I arrived, I found she had contracted blood-poisoninig in her hand. But that alone wasn't the reason I was called. She had five children who have had influenza, but are quite well again. She wouldn't allow them to go back to school without having a thorough bath and their heads washed for fear of risk to other children. She said she hated to ask me to do this, but didn't know of any other way she could get the children properly bathed and their hair properly cleaned unless I would do it. Would I? I was delighted to find a woman so thoughtful for the welfare of other children as well as her own. So I spent a good part of the afternoon scrubbing those children.

Satan Still Finds Mischief For Idle Hands To Achieve

"Satan still finds mischief for idle hands to do."

This is the way the local police explain the fact that from November 4 till 16, 71 juveniles have appeared before Magistrate A. H. M. Graydon charged all the way from disorderly conduct to theft and back again.

"Youngsters are always being brought into court on some pretext or another," declared Sergt. of Detectives Thomas Nickle this afternoon.

"Don't you think that the kids, being let loose from school on account of the flu, and finding time heavy on their hands managed to get into mischief?" asked the reporter.

"Well, I guess there must be some truth in the old axiom that 'Satan still finds mischief for idle hands to do,'" replied Detective Nickle. "There have certainly been a number of youngsters in court during the last two or three weeks."

Two small girls and a boy appeared before Magistrate Graydon this morning charged with stealing some coal from R. W. Wood. They were found guilty, but let go with a warning, as were also five boys charged with disorderly conduct.

"Y" WILL ASSIST IN SECURING HOUSES FOR MEN BACK FROM WAR

Demobilizaton of the Canadian expeditionary force will bring with it many problems and difficulties, but the Y. M. C. A. is going to put its whole force to the wheel and help to solve at least a few of the many problems that will present themselves. When thousands of Canadian troops and their families arrive home it will be very difficult to house them all, as accommodation is limited. A meeting to discuss this question was held at the Y. M. C. A. last night.

Besides the Y. M. C. A. board there were representatives from the Military "Y" and the Soldiers' Aid Commission present. The Y. M. C. A. has decided to secure the names of all those in the city who have or will have rooms suitable for light housekeeping, and the representatives of the other two organizations assured the "Y" board that the organizations which they represented would assist in the work in every possible way.

Application blanks are at the "Y" ready for distribution to those who have accommodation. When the work begins to get under way those in charge of it will try to secure places in the business section, where information and blanks can be given to those who have rooms. Rooms for light housekeeping are not the only ones that are wanted, as any information as any information as to the securing of lodging for single men will be gladly received. All information as to housing facilities may be sent to the Y. M. C. A., where blank applications will be given to those desiring them. The task is a necessary one, and the cooperation of all will be needed to accomplish it.

DESCRIPTION SENT OF AN ALLEGED MURDERER

The authorities at the Grand Trunk station have received a telegram, urging them to watch for the man, who, aided by Frank McCullough, is alleged to have murdered Police Constable Frank Williams of the Toronto police force in that city last evening. The telegram was that the man's name is Johnston, and that he is 22 years of age. The description of him is as follows: Five feet eight inches in height, clean shaven, ruddy face and fair complexion. He was wearing a brown coat with a belt, but was without an overcoat. He was also wearing a green cap. Until an early hour this morning he had not been arrested.

Social Reformers Probing Bad Case Get Severe Shock

A Little Child Led Them, But the Joke Was on Them.

There's a certain kind of chicken one small boy in town doesn't like. It's the chicken that comes home to roost.

A citizeness who can't bear to see children suffering or in sorrow discovered the little lad leaning up against the wall of a building at a quiet corner Saturday afternoon, sobbing as if his heart were going to break. A smaller boy stood sympathetically near, watching with anxious eyes.

"What's the matter?" asked the citizeness.

It was a minute or two before the afflicted small boy could answer, then he gasped between sobs, "My mum-mum-mother has gone away to Buffalo and left me, an' she never told me she was going.

"I we-went home for my di-dinner an' the lady where we have rooms says my mother is gone away to keep house for someone else, and she didn't take her clothes or anything."

More Sobs.

Sobs broke out afresh at this point.

"Where's your father?"

"He's away in ———. That's why we've been rooming."

"Haven't you got any brothers or sisters?"

"I got one sister, but she has been sick a long time. She's in the hospital."

Another citizeness had stopped just at this minute to know what the little fellow was crying about, and registered proper shock.

"Isn't it dreadful to think that any mother could be so heartless!" exclaimed the second.

"Have you any place to stay?" asked the first.

"The lady where we have been rooming said she'd take care of me till my father came back. But I guess I'll go to the p'lice station an' see if they can find my mother," he added, struggling manfully for composure.

Investigation.

Both the first and second woman were agreed that it would be well to see that the little fellow really was going to be properly cared for, so number one offered to go along with him to see the lady where he roomed.

He led the way, holding his new friend's hand, while the little sympathizer trotted along to see the thing through.

It was scarcely half a block before the house was reached; by no means the kind of a house from which one would expect a mother to go away and leave a helpless little family.

The young guide pushed the front door open, announcing "This is the place." Then he knocked politely on the door to the right in the big hall. It opened promptly to reveal a tall, capable-looking, well-dressed woman.

"Are you Mrs. ———?" inquired the visitor.

"I am," she replied.

"This little boy tells me that his mother who rooms here has gone away to Buffalo and left him without telling him anything about it."

The Joke.

The tall, capable-looking woman looked down at the wistful, tear-stained face of the small boy, then she laughed, heartlessly, it seemed to the small boy's friend.

"He said," continued the citizen person, "that he was going to the police station to look for her."

The surprising landlady laughed again. "I will get myself and his poor mother in for a scandal," she said. "Why, no, his mother hasn't gone away at all. Here she is now," pointing to a motherly-looking woman coming down the hall.

"You see," she continued, "I thought I'd teach Billy a lesson. He has been giving his mother a great deal of worry, going out and staying till late at night, and having her looking all over for him. Today, she had his dinner all ready at noon, but he didn't come home till after 2 o'clock, so when I saw him running in the hall, I thought I'd just teach him a lesson. He asked me if his mother was upstairs and I said that she had gone away to Buffalo. He wanted to know with whom she had gone. I told him someone who thought more of her than he did; someone who wouldn't stay out late and worry her. He ran up to their rooms and took one look round, then came down again. 'She didn't take any clothes,' he said.

"I asked him if she hadn't left any dinner for him. He said she did, but he didn't want any, and he ran out again. That was just a few minutes ago. I didn't dream he would take it like that."

After one wrathful exclamation, and also a much relieved one, the small boy had thrown his arms around his mother's plump shoulders and was sobbing into the bib of her white apron.

"Now you know how mother feels, Billy," she said. Then she told Billy's would-be champion that last Monday Billy had disappeared early in the morning and didn't turn up again till half-past eleven at night.

She had been almost frantic about him, inquiring all over town.

At last, she went to the police station, fearing he had been injured in the crowds. That was what had apparently given him the idea of going to the police station to look for her.

"She didn't go this time, but she will next time, if you don't look out, Billy," said the landlady.

"She won't get a chance," said Billy, hugging his mother as if he would never let go of her again.

SIR WILFRID HOLDS INFORMAL RECEPTION DURING AFTERNOON

Spent Quiet Morning Lunching at Hunt Club.

Following his strenuous day on Tuesday, Sir Wilfrid Laurier spent a quiet forenoon today, lunching at 12:30 o'clock at the Hunt Club with a few old friends. This forenoon he is holding an informal reception at the Tecumseh House, where hundreds of people have wended their way to take advantage of the opportunity afforded to pay their respects to the honored leader of Liberalism in Canada for three decades.

Among these are numbers from out of town, who were unable to be present at the Western Ontario Liberal convention and banquet yesterday, owing to the limited accommodation, which made it possible only to include delegates.

Several prominent Western Ontario Liberals have stopped over today to be with Sir Wilfrid on the occasion of the celebration of his 77th birthday.

FATHER DIES OVERSEAS LEAVING YOUNG FAMILY AND MOTHER AT HOME

Pte. Charles Boniface Had Never Seen Youngest Daughter.

Advertiser Illustrations

Pte. Boniface and his youngest child, whom he never saw.

A family of nine, six of them mere children, are fatherless as a result of their soldier daddy, Pte. Charles Boniface succumbing to Spanish influenza in the 18th General Hospital in France on November 13. The mother, Mrs. Boniface, who resides at 211 Wellington street, has just recovered from a severe attack of Spanish influenza, and four of the little tots were ill with the disease at the same time. One little baby daughter, Margaret, has never seen her father, she being born two months after he left for overseas.

When The Advertiser reporter called at the fatherless home this morning the young children were trying to comfort their mother, and one of the little girls asked the mother: "Will we have to give baby Margaret away now we have no daddy," and the mother assured her that they would try to keep her.

Much trouble has come to this home since the father went overseas, first one and then another of the family being sick, thus incurring a great expense, which the little income can hardly meet. Pte. Boniface enlisted with the 142nd Battalion, in which one of his sons also enlisted, and had not been previously wounded or met with any other mishap. Another son, Pte. William, is also serving in France. He left London with the 34th Battalion.

MILITARY NOTES

Today's orders say that the following appointments have been made to be lieutenant: Lieut. Robert William Simmie, M.C. for No. 1 District Depot.

A telegram has been received from militia headquarters, stating that "University graduates or those with matriculation standing, who desire the opportunity to return to academic work, are to be immediately discharged."

A court of inquiry will be held at the Heights for the purpose of investigating and reporting upon the disappearance of certain articles, the property of Pte. Charles Warner McLean (deceased), while in the hospital with influenza. The articles missing were: One wrist watch, one pair of shoes, one purse with name on it, containing considerable money, two suits combination wool underwear.

WILL DISCUSS PAYMENT TO BE MADE BY COUNTY FOR HOSPITAL PATIENTS

A meeting of the special committee of the city with the county representatives to discuss the question of an agreement respecting county patients at Victoria Hospital will be held some time next week. Ald. S. Manness says that, after an investigation, he finds that the county has not been paying enough towards the keep of its patients in the hospital. While from the records it is learned that the average cost per patient during this year has been $2.55 a day, the county pays only $1.25 a day. Ald. Manness thinks that this should be increased.

GOVERNMENT LOOKING FOR POSITIONS WHICH SUIT RETURNED MEN

The manufacturers of the city have been requested by the Government to fill in returns showing the number of men that can be utilized in the various factories with a view, it is thought, to having the men placed in positions without any undue waiting when they are returned from the fields of France. The returns are to be completed and returned to the Government by December 15, it is understood. The London factories can absorb a large number of them in all probability.

Mrs. Harry Kingsmill and and Miss Minnie Raymond have arranged a program of unusual merit for the opening concert of the Woman's Music Club on Thursday. In addition to Mrs. F. C. Rutledge's piano number (Beethoven's C Minor Concerto), Mr. Thomas Martin playing the orchestral part on the second piano, Miss Dorinda Abbott contributes a vocal group, Miss Lorna MacGillivray two harp selections and Miss Raymond, Frederick Smith and Grant Milligan an instrumental trio. George Carrie, tenor, sings a group of songs: (a) "The Lass o' Killeaie (Spickles, (b) "Passing" (Purcell), (c) "Ah, So Pure," Martha, (Flotow). The club is also to hear Mrs. Branion of New York, probably in a selection from Charpentier's opera Louise. Mrs. Branion, who has sung with the Chicago Grand Opera Company and in oratorio under Sir Henry Wood, London, has a beautiful soprano voice of quite exceptional purity. By the courtesy of Mr. Scott, visitors' tickets will be on sale at Hambly's Bookstore at 25 cents.

S. A. OFFICIALS DISCUSS PROBLEMS OF FUTURE

Commissioner Richards and Colonel McMillan of Toronto met Colonel Rawling, Dr. Knowles and their assistants, who are working on the organizing of the Salvation Army war work campaign at headquarters yesterday. Many important questions were discussed and gone into in connection with the forthcoming campaign. It was pointed out that, in view of the cessation of hostilities, there was a great work for and large part to be played by the Salvation Army in the period of demobilization.

First of all, all huts in different parts of France will be busily engaged, and will necessarily have to be maintained until the conclusion of the demobilization period. Then the soldiers' hostels, both in Canada and overseas, will have to be worked for at least two years to come, and the expectancy is that the demand for these soldiers' stations in the transferring of the returned soldiers from place to place will be great.

Another point, which is at present a very important issue, is the maintaining of several maternity hospitals in Canada, also the establishing of a number more, some of which are already under construction, and others are being put on foot for immediate consideration.

The matter of war orphans and those children who need looking after, which responsibility may be taken over by the Salvation Army, was discussed. Commissioner Richards mentioned that the war pensions board had turned over several children to the Salvation Army recently, officially appointing the responsible Army officers for this work.

WHY GERMANY'S COLONIES MUST BE RETAINED

Advertiser Illustrations.

This map, adapted from one issued by the admiralty, shows the trade areas in which German submarines could operate if Germany had naval bases in the Cameroons, German East Africa, and German New Guinea. The outlines represent a radius of 4,000 miles; the cross-shaded areas are doubly dangerous because they would be exposed to U-boatpiracy from two bases.—London Daily Mail.

SCHOOL BOARD TO VACATE ARMORIES

ST. THOMAS, Nov. 19.—It was definitely decided this week by the board of education to discontinue the use of the armories as a public school as soon as possible. The cost of maintenance is said to be excessive and it only accommodates two classes so that it has been deemed advisable to vacate the building. Inspector Taylor thought it would be advisable to make use of the building until spring at least, but the resolution passed, nevertheless.

QUEBEC MEDICAL OFFICER CASHIERED BECAUSE OF IRREGULARITIES IN M.S.A.

MONTREAL, Nov. 19.—Capt. Aurele Roy, acting medical officer of the second depot battalion, 2nd Quebec Regiment, was yesterday formally cashiered from the King's service.

This was the result of the finding of the general court-martial which probed charges connected with the use of money for improper purposes in order to defeat the M. S. A. by reducing categorization to such an extent as to free fit men from military service. It was stated that Capt. Roy had been found guilty on two of these charges.

BURIED AT RODNEY.

ALLOWED MINOR TO PLAY.

ST. THOMAS, Nov. 19.—C. E. Turner, billiard-room proprietor, appeared today in the city police court and paid a fine of $5 and costs on a charge of allowing a minor to play in his establishment. Magistrate Maxwell urged the poolroom men to at once seek some means of protection from the Legislature whereby boys who misrepresent their age in order to gain admission to poolrooms might be prosecuted.

"I understand the difficulties of the poolroom-keeper," declared his worship, "and I think they should be allowed some protection."

Secrets of Health and Happiness

Why You Ought to "Breathe Deep" Before Entering a Car

By DR. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG,
A. B., M. A., M. D., (Johns Hopkins University.)

Foul air is filled with a breathed-out gas—carbon dioxide—with dust and dirt particles and myriads of germs, both infectious and otherwise. These elements, almost void of any oxygen, form a combination which acts as a poison to the scarlet stream of the human mechanism. It loads the crimson fluid with an abundance of material which it seeks itself to throw off and not only brings no oxygen with it, but prevents whatever oxygen may come into the blood stream from being really beneficial on account of the great proportion of evil influences present in these poisons.

At times it is quite necessary to be in a place where quarters are close and the air anything but fresh. In crowded cars, for example, in subways, elevators, buses and other means of conveyance, as well as in halls and theatres, the waste material present in the air almost always exceeds the amount of oxygen present. It is largely due to this condition of the air that ailments are contracted to such a great extent in these places.

Some Muscle "Tricks."

Take breaths as deep as you possibly can when you get on a car and when you get off it. In either instance you load your tiny blood tubes and vessels with plenty of oxygen, so that you prepare a way strongly to resist the poisonous influence of the air you must breathe during the next few moments or for the next hour or so.

While you are seated in a crowded car or theatre stiffen your muscles every now and then, so that the fibres may be made to work and thus produce energy. While in the act of creating energy the muscle fibres drive the circulating fluid rapidly over the mechanism from the heart, through the tubes and vessels, back to the lungs, to receive a new supply of the reserve and incoming oxygen, so that there is little chance for the poisonous gases of the surrounding air to make the scarlet stream in any area of the mechanism suffer stagnation.

Forcing Blood Stream.

Deep breaths and stiffened muscles not only prevent the scarlet fluid from being badly affected by the presence of a great deal of waste material in the air, but because they involve action they force the blood stream into the face and beneath the skin surface, so that your cheeks become flushed and pink.

Study the Internal Nerves

YOU prick your finger and know that it is the nerves which carry the painful sensation to the brain. You move your hand, and realize that the idea of movement started in your mind. But did you ever think that every beat of your heart and every breath of air taken into your lungs is dependent on a constant supply of nerve force?

It is the internal or sympathetic nerves which drive the machinery of the body, and from their derangement or exhausted condition arises weakness of the stomach, feeble action of the heart, or inactivity of liver and bowels.

When nerve force fails every organ of the body becomes more or less deranged. Indigestion, sleeplessness, headaches, irritability and nervousness are some of the first indications. You lose energy and ambition, find your work a drudgery, and grow weak and listless. As time goes on you become more and more helpless, until nervous prostration or collapse brings you to the sick bed, and long months are often necessary for the restoration of the exhausted nervous system.

Even in this extreme condition Dr. Chase's Nerve Food will usually cure if its use is persisted in, but how much wiser it is to heed the warning in the early stages and keep the nerve force at high-water mark.

No restorative has ever proven its worth in so many thousands of cases as has Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. What it has done for others it will do for you under similar conditions. By forming new, rich blood it nourishes the starved and depleted nerves back to health and vigor, and thereby overcomes the cause of weakness and diseases of the nerves.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is in such great demand that you can obtain it wherever medicines are sold—50c a box, 6 for $2.75. Portrait and signature of A. W. Chase, M.D., are on every box of the genuine.

ADELE GARRISON'S CONTINUATION OF

REVELATIONS OF A WIFE

How Dicky Responded to His Mother's Plan.

"Oh, Misses Graham, you should coom by old vomans! She say she seeck."

"What?" Dicky raised his head from the couch, where he had been lying while I read to him. After the first day following his discouraged and exhausted homecoming, he had scorned bed, insisting upon dressing each morning and dividing his time between an easy chair and the couch. I had noticed, however, that despite a brave effort to keep up, the couch claimed him the greater part of the time.

"Don't get up, Dicky," I said, laying a restraining hand upon his shoulder. "I'll go to mother at once."

"For heaven's sake, Madge!" he exclaimed petulantly, "I have neither paralysis nor paresis. And I certainly shall see what is the matter with my mother."

"Oh, surely," I answered placatingly, turning quickly toward the door that he might not see the irrepressible smile lurking on my lips at the ease with which my mother-in-law's little scheme of feigning illness for her son's sake was succeeding.

Mother Graham's Ruse.

I heard him rise from the couch and follow me down the hall to my mother-in-law's room. She had undressed and had gone to bed, and I saw with amazement that she'd contrived to make herself look distinctly feverish. Several folds of flannel were wound around her throat and the room was filled with the fumes of oil and camphor.

"What's the matter, mother?" Dicky and I asked almost simultaneously, as we came into the room.

"It's my throat," she croaked hoarsely. "It hurts me terribly to swallow, and I ache so all over. I wish, Margaret, you'd make me a cup of hot tea, and get the hot water bag for my feet, and telephone for some quinine tablets. I'm all out of them. I didn't let Katie stay around me because she has to be with the baby, and throat troubles are often catching. But don't worry. I'll probably be all right tomorrow."

I was prepared to pick up the cue we had agreed upon and urge her to have a physician, but Dicky took the words from my mouth.

"Tomorrow!" he snorted. "I guess we'll be apt to wait till tomorrow to do something for you. What's Gibson's number?" turning to me. "Will you telephone him, or shall I?"

"It is useless to 'phone him," I said quietly. "I tried it this morning, to ask him something about the baby. But he's too ill even to take messages, and the man who has his practice is so busy that he won't come except for the most urgent cases."

"Well, I guess he'll come for this!" Dicky said, arrogantly, but his mother interposed decidedly.

"I'll not have any doctor I don't know, especially one that's so busy he doesn't want the case. I'll get along all right without anybody."

"Didn't I hear Pettit got back last night?" Dicky turned to me.

"Yes, he's at father's." I returned, as my mother-in-law interposed belligerently:

"Pettit! I'd as soon have Katie!"

"Well, for the love of Mike!" Dicky turned on her imperiously. Pettit brought you through pneumonia all right. I'm going to telephone him to come over."

"Let Margaret telephone," my mother-in-law said feebly, putting out her hand to her son. "It seems as though I hadn't seen you for a week, Richard. Sit down and talk to me. I'll keep a handkerchief over my mouth, although it's only the baby that I'm really worried about."

"All right." Dicky settled himself unsuspectingly in an easy-chair near his mother's bed, while I sped away to the lower floor, carefully closing the doors after me as I went.

It was, of course, necessary that Dr. Pettit be warned of the fact that my mother-in-law was only simulating illness, and that Dicky was the real patient for whom he was called. But as I took down the receiver I wished rebelliously that the problem of medical attendance for Dicky might have been solved in any way but this. Save for his occasional childish petulance Dicky was once more my royal lover-husband, all the dearer for the weakness which made him cling to me continually, as a little child might to its mother. He was restless when I was out of his sight, and only I could quiet the fits of nervous chilliness and trembling which often seized him. I feared, despondently, that the entrance of Dr. Pettit into the problem might prove a discordant element.

Here Are a Few of the Many Delicious Ways Fish May Be Made To Conserve Meat.

Fresh fish should be frequently used wherever available. However, we have large stores of salted, canned and dried fish that can be used in those places where fresh fish isn't readily available.

Fish is a protein, and therefore takes the place not only of meat, but also of eggs.

At this season of the year when the price of eggs is soaring, it is extravagant to use eggs as a breakfast dish in the large family. Fish will supply just as much nutriment at considerably less cost.

You can use the canned, salted or dried fish in the same ways. They can be served creamed on toast, baked or broiled.

Creamed Fish.

¼ cupful of flaked cooked fish
1 teaspoonful of oleomargarine
1 teaspoonful of flour
½ cupful of milk
¼ teaspoonful of salt
Onion juice

Make a sauce of the oleomargarine, flour and milk. Add a few drops of onion juice and the salt. When cooked to a smooth sauce, add the flaked fish and heat thoroughly.

Baked Salt Mackerel.

Soak mackerel in cold water for twelve hours. Drain and rinse with cold water. Place in a granite baking pan and sprinkle with ¼ teaspoonful each of clove, allspice, cinnamon and pepper. Add ½ cupful each of vinegar and water. Bake in a moderate oven one hour, basting frequently.

Scalloped Codfish and Rice.

½ cupful of rice
1 cupful of codfish
1 tablespoonful of oleomargarine
1 tablespoonful of flour
1 cupful of milk
2 tablespoonfuls of bread crumbs

Cook the rice in boiling salted water until soft. Soak the codfish overnight or put in cold water and bring to the boiling point. Drain and flake the codfish. Make a white sauce by melting the oleomargarine, add the flour, stirring until well blended, and then add the milk. Stir until thickened. Spread the rice, the codfish and sauce in layers in a greased baking dish. Cover with crumbs and bake about 20 minutes in a moderate oven.

Fish Sauce on Toast.

2 tablespoonfuls of oleomargarine
3 tablespoonfuls of flour
1 tablespoonful of salt
½ to 1 cup of flaked fish
¼ teaspoonful of pepper
1½ cupfuls of rice stock
1 tablespoonful chopped canned pimentos

Melt the oleomargarine. Add flour, salt and pepper. When mixed, remove from the fire and add rice stock. Return to the fire, and bring to boiling point, stirring constantly. Add pimentos and fish and serve at once. Pour the hot sauce over slices of hot toast.

THE LITTLE BLACK NURSE.

"Oh, dear!" pouted Dotty when her Mama called her to come mind the baby. "I just hate to take care of a baby. I want to play."

"Well, that's no sign you need step on me," cried a tiny voice in the grasses at Dotty's feet.

Dotty looked all around, but not a soul could she see. Then a squeaky little laugh sounded from the bushes and her little friend, Squeedee, hopped up beside her.

"Was that you squeaking at me?" laughed Dotty, shaking Squeedee's hand.

"No, it wasn't!" exclaimed the tiny voice. "And I do wish you'd get out of the way so I can get by." And a tiny black ant, dragging a little white bundle, crawled over a blade of grass.

"Well, Well!" laughed Squeedee, tipping his hat. "If there isn't Mrs. Red-ant's little nurse and baby! Don't be frightened, Dotty isn't going to harm you."

"She certainly better look where she's stepping then," retorted Little Black Nurse. "Just because she doesn't like to help take care of her baby brother is no sign others don't like to do so."

"Oh, dear!" laughed Dotty, stooping down so she could see the little creature better. "Do you mean to tell me, Squeedee, that little Black Ant is a nurse-girl? I never heard of the like before." Dotty laughed so hard the little white bundle squirmed out of the Little Black Nurse's hand and tried to wiggle under the grass.

"Certainly," replied Squeedee, merrily waving his magic feather over Dotty's head. Eine, menie, minie moo make Dotty smaller grow." And sure enough, Dotty began to grow smaller and smaller until she was no larger than the little ant herself.

"Well, that's better," laughed Little Black Nurse. "Now I guess you can see I'm a nurse and what you thought was a bundle is a tiny red ant baby. You evidently don't like to take care of babies?"

"No, I can't say that I do," replied Dotty. "They're so much trouble, I think."

"Do You Mean to Tell Me, Squeedee, That Little Black Ant Is a Nurse-Girl?"

"Oh, I don't think they are," said Little Black Nurse. "I love to watch them for Mrs. Red-ant because she's so kind to me. Then, too, I've never known anything else but working for others. You know, Mrs. Red-ant's army took me away from my mother when I was very, very tiny, and raised me as their own, so I feel I can never repay them for their trouble."

"You see, Little Black Nurse's Daddy and big brothers and uncles and cousins went to war, and if Mrs. Red-ant's soldiers hadn't rescued Little Black Ant she probably would have died," said Squeedee.

"Mrs. Red-ant has been a real good mother to me," laughed Little Black Nurse, "and if I can help her in taking care of her little ones, I'm glad to do it, for I love her very dearly. Why, where you only have one little brother to watch, I take care of at least 50 babies every day."

"Oh, my!" exclaimed Dotty. "Don't it make you dreadfully tired?"

"No, indeed," replied Little Black Nurse gathering up the little white baby ant. "One should never tire of doing things for those who love us," and away she ran over the blade of grass, dragging the little ant behind her.

Dotty straightened up and turned around, but Squeedee had disappeared and she was all alone.

When Mama called, Dotty quickly ran into the house, and from that day no one ever heard her complaining about taking care of her baby brother, for Dotty never forgot what Little Black Nurse had told her: "One should never grow weary of doing things to please those who love us."

A Simple Secret That Makes For Real Beauty

BY LUCREZIA BORI
The Famous Spanish Prima Donna

LUCREZIA BORI

Some time ago I listened with amusement to a beauty specialist who had been in attendance on some of the greatest actresses and singers of Europe and America. On her walls was a framed and autographed portrait of a famous actress whom I greatly admired. Automatically I exclaimed at her loveliness, whereat the beauty physician smiled.

"Do you want my honest opinion of Mme. T——?" she asked. "I attended her many times, and know her features well. Very good. Well, she is by no means beautiful if you judge her according to any accepted beauty standard. I could tell you in detail why her features and her figure cannot be called beautiful. Of course, they are not ugly, but they aren't nearly as beautiful as people suppose when they see her on the stage."

"Why, then, does one always think of her as a beauty?" I asked curiously.

Dr. L. paused impressively:

"She has the secret. It is so simple that almost any woman can use her recipe with fair success if she would only be persistent about it. It is this: Mme. T——carries herself as though she thought she were a beauty!

Believes Herself a Beauty.

"Watch her carefully some time. See the proud poise of her head, the splendid, imperial carriage of her body. Every move she makes is a challenge to you to exclaim at her wondrous loveliness. You can tell by looking at her that she believes herself to be a great beauty. And as she is known to be a woman of much intelligence and has much personal charm, she very easily influences others to believe as she does. Oh, it's quite simple!"

Possibly this point of view is a little exaggerated. Nevertheless, it contains sufficient truth to provide a helpful thought. So many women carry themselves as though they really had no good opinion of their person.

When they enter a room they seem to look timidly for some corner where they can efface themselves. When they walk on the street they permit their shoulders to droop and their feet to drag unevenly. They seem constantly apologetic about themselves.

Of course, a reasonable, sincere modesty is to be highly commended, and it is far preferable to shallow, baseless conceit. But every woman should be proud of her body if it is a healthy, well-kept form. Any one can keep her face and form clean and healthy. If it is defective at any time, that defect should be cured.

But when you have a sound body, why not throw back your head proudly as you walk with firm, elastic step? Why not believe in your own mind that you are a beauty? It will reflect itself on your features, in your carriage, in your whole outlook.

Stimulation in Belief.

What woman isn't more buoyant and more companionable when she is well dressed—and knows that she is commanding admiration? There is a stimulation about this knowledge which adds considerably to a woman's power to charm.

Believe that you are a beauty. Carry yourself as though you believed it. It will surely affect your appearance and the opinions of those who see you.

Three Minute Journeys

BY TEMPLE MANNING

Where Men Reverently Walk in the Street Not To Disturb the Sacred Cattle On the Sidewalk.

"If I were a cow," said a 6-year-old lady of my acquaintance, "I would choose to live in India."

She had laid down her story book to make this sage observation and her eyes sparkled with the earnestness of her choice and—for once, she was right. Indeed, there is no other country on earth where the average animal is so well treated and the cow is reverenced, waited on and actually worshipped as an emblem of deity.

But, of course, the cow must be of the special sacred kind to enjoy all these evidences of appreciation. If she is of the elect, she may spend her life in ease within the precincts of some sacred temple or wander along the countryside at will. If she should browse on some unlucky farmer's vegetables, he will respectfully plead with her to desist or if she's nearly ruining the crop, in fear and trembling lightly tap her as with honeyed words and supplications he begs her to move on for "he is a poor man."

It is this religious attitude of the Hindus that is responsible for the strange appearance of the streets of some villages and the boulevards of large cities. For instance, our illustration is a faithful drawing from a photograph taken in Calcutta. These are sacred cattle lying at ease on the sidewalk of an important street. Not a human being is in sight, for they all turn out and walk in the street so as not to disturb the animals. Much as the British Government would like to make the streets of Calcutta safer and cleaner, it cannot. For it will not disturb the religious feeling of the Hindus, whose hearts reverence the cattle.

So it is a common sight in Calcutta to see the sacred cattle, singly or in droves, wandering through the streets unattended. Curiously they poke their noses into shop windows or leisurely stroll through the bazaars where the shopkeepers reverently bow before them, praying that they won't take it into their heads to eat up all the stock.

THURSDAY, NOV. 21.

So complicated are the planetary aspects, both Lunar and Mutual, for this day, that it will probably be a day on which perplexity and doubt will call for wise counsel and careful procedure.

There is great danger from rash and overhasty acts and speech brought about by the turbulent and confusing conditions born of contradictory stellar influences. Under the circumstances the best advice may be to defer until a more auspicious occasion whatever may be put off, but to handle with coolness and precision all that it is imperative to attend to. Extreme care must be taken to avoid quarrels and litigation. With this advice heeded, favorable issues may come from the day's doings, since Jupiter is in very friendly attitude.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year calling for their best judgment, patience and wisdom, and there may be some financial advantage. A child born on this day will be quick, impulsive, adventurous and generous.

In the conservatory of an upper part of a New York hospital there was a large glass jar in which was a large specimen of the goldfish. One morning the caretaker found the jar broken and the water frozen to solidity, the fish, of course, being as rigid as ice. The lump of ice was taken away and thrown into an old rubbish barrel, where it remained several weeks. One March day the sun was unusually strong, and it split the cylinder of ice, and what was the astonishment of the caretaker to see the tail of the fish wriggling out of a part of the broken block! The actual freezing had not killed the fish, which was removed to another tank, where it swam about as if nothing had befallen it.

WESTERN UNIVERSITY TEAM AND WOODSTOCK LADS PLAY SATURDAY

New Basketball League Being Formed by Western "U"—Meeting This Week.

The Western University second year meds' rugby team will play the Woodstock College squad at Woodstock Saturday afternoon. "Doc" Cline received a letter from the captain of the Woodstock fourteen asking for a game Saturday, and the locals have decided to play. A game was scheduled for last Saturday with the Woodstock boys, but it was postponed at the last minute.

A signal practice will be held by the meds this afternoon.

The locals are anxious to meet the Woodstock team and will put up a good game against them, as the Western boys have been showing up remarkably well in exhibition games with the collegiate teams.

Simpson, who plays flying wing for the meds, has been ill for some time, but will be back on the line-up again Saturday.

A return game will be played by the Woodstock team, which will likely be held on Saturday, November 30.

An inter-year basketball league is being organized by the Western University. The second year meds will enter a strong team in the league. A meeting will be held shortly and a schedule will be drawn up for the season. The games will be played at the Western "U" gym.

DEMPSEY PUTS OVER KNOCKOUT ON FLYNN IN THREE MINUTES

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 18. — Jack Dempsey, the heavyweight boxer, knocked out "Porky" Flynn of Boston in the first round of a scheduled six-round bout here tonight.

Dempsey was master of the situation from the beginning, and with a series of right and left jabs to the body and head put his opponent through the ropes. A moment later he sent him down for the count with a left hook to the jaw. The round lasted two minutes and sixteen seconds.

BIG EATERS GET KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take Salts at First Sign of Bladder Irritation or Backache.

The American men and women must guard constantly against Kidney trouble, because we eat too much and all our food is rich. Our blood is filled with uric acid which the kidneys strive to filter out, they weaken from overwork, become sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys; to neutralize the acids in the urine, so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water beverage, and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.

BATTLING NELSON FINDS GREAT METHOD TO COLLECT OLD DEBTS

Rumor That "Bat" Was down and Out Was Only a Bluff and Brought Him In a Nice Bank Roll — Stories Told About Ex-Fighters.

By Frank G. Menke.

Those who were wont to insist that Battling Nelson lacked a sense of humor perhaps are chanting a different melody at this moment. For the battle-scarred lightweight champion of other days has just finished slipping over one of the most remunerative jokes in the history of pugdom.

Not so many weeks ago a story came out of Chicago which pictured Bat in the hospital down and out and as busted as the German army. Bat, from a sick bed, claimed that he needed money but qualified his statement in this way:

"I'm not looking for donations. All I want is that some of the fellows who borrowed money from me when I had it should return a little of it now. I loaned out $250,000 in my fighting days —and most of it is still owing to me."

Bat's supposed pitiful condition melted the hearts of a number of persons who really were guilty of having extracted money from Bat via the loan route in the early days—and who had not paid it back. So they dug down into the family bankroll, extracted as much loose change as was possible, and shipped it along "to help the old boy out."

Money in small amounts began to rain in upon Nelson and after something like $2,500 had been ferried along to him by men who owed him that much—and a whole lot more—Bat let loose this bit of news:

"Say, I wasn't broke, and I ain't down and out. I got too much sense about money matters to lose all my money or to loan all of it. But a lot of guys played me for a sucker when I had it, and they borrowed money, and they didn't pay it back. So I sent out that yarn about being broke to see if they would come through. And they did. I got quite a bankroll from those guys and I guess I'm satisfied now."

Meanwhile Nelson is chuckling—and the "hold out" friends are gritting molars and bicuspids.

One of the stories that Jimmy Britt likes to tell about Nelson in furnishing testimony to show that Bat lacks a sense of humor, is this:

"In 1908 Nelson took on Rudy (Boer) Unholz in a ten-round, no decision contest in Los Angeles, all of us were posed in the ring for pictures to be printed in the next day's papers. Just before the camera man set off the flash Nelson asked me to change positions with him. I asked him the reason and he answered:

"'If I stand where I am now my cauliflower ear will show in the picture.'

"Imagine," concluded Britt, "a guy with a face like Nelson's worrying about how he was going to look in the next day's paper."

"Unholz was at his best at that time, and dealt out a fine beating to the old Battler. Unholz was the type who could go well for ten rounds, whereas Nelson never began to show anything until after the ten rounds were over.

"The next morning the papers in Los Angeles, with the exception, gave the decision to the 'Boer.' The single exception was a little yacting sheet which had a circulation of about 1,000. Nelson purchased the entire edition of the paper for the purpose of mailing it to his various newspaper friends throughout the country.

"Nelson spent all of the afternoon and part of the evening folding the papers carefully. When the time came for sticking on the wrappers, addressing them and putting on postage, the old warrior, deciding he needed help went down to the lobby of the hotel to get it.

"The first man Bat encountered was Unholz, and after greeting him most cordially, Bat asked Rudy 'if he would give him a little help. The 'Boer' answered affirmatively, and the two fighters then went to Nelson's room. There the Battler kept Rudy busy licking the mucilage on the wrappers for more than three hours. After the work was over, Rudy said to Bat:

"'What was in those papers?'

"'Oh,' replied Nelson, 'nothing but a story telling how I licked you last night.'

"Bat told me the story some time afterward in a very serious way, and when I laughed at it, he couldn't see the humor in the situation."

"On the occasions of my last fight with Nelson," continued Britt, "another no-decision contest in Los Angeles, all of us were posed in the ring for pictures to be printed in the next day's papers. Just before the camera man set off the flash Nelson asked me to change positions with him. I asked him the reason and he answered.

"'If I stand where I am now my cauliflower ear will show in the picture.'

"Imagine," concluded Britt, "a guy with a face like Nelson's worrying about how he was going to look in the next day's paper."

COAST LEAGUE TEAMS GETTING READY FOR THE HOCKEY SEASON

Season Will Begin January 1 —Vancouver, Seattle and Victoria Entered.

VANCOUVER, Nov. 19.—Pacific coast hockey teams will start their championship series along about January 1, a few days later than last season, and will play through until early in March, when the champions will clash with the eastern titleholders in the annual world's series for possession of the historic Stanley cup. President Frank Patrick, of the Coast League, stated today that the directors will probably get, together the latter part of next week, or earlier, if the quarantine ban is lifted. No definite word has been received concerning Portland's plans, but Vancouver, Seattle and Victoria are certain starters, and there is every likelihood of Portland again entering the race, with the end of the war in sight.

Work of fitting up the Victoria arena is progressing, and it is expected that the plant will be open early in December. Seattle plans on opening the middle of next month, and the Vancouver arena will be open for skating just as soon as the "flu" epidemic abates and the closing order is rescinded.

Whether a double schedule or a schedule similar to last season's will be adopted by the P. C. H. A. this season will depend on the number of teams entered. The local amateur clubs are getting busy and expect to outline their plans next week. The Commercial and City Intermediate will operate again, and there will also be a patriotic league, in which some of the former ice stars will compete.

Wonderful For the Blood!

Cures Sallow Skin, Headache, Languor and Tiredness.

You don't need to be told how you feel—blue, sort of sickish, poor appetite, vague pains, tired in the morning. This condition is common at this season.

Fortunately there is prompt relief in Dr. Hamilton's Pills which immediately relieve the system of all poisons and disease-producing matter.

Thousands have been so utterly depressed, so worn out as to be despondent, but Dr. Hamilton's Pills always cured them. "I can speak feelingly on the power of Dr. Hamilton's Pills," writes C. T. Fearman, of Kingston. "Last spring my blood was thin and weak, I was terribly run down, had awful headaches and a gnawing, empty feeling about my stomach. I couldn't sleep or work until I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills—they did me a world of good." At all dealers in 25c boxes.

JABS AT SPORT

THE HAS-BEENS and the Irish Rangers will play tonight in the City Bowling League.

OF THE 157 players reserved by National League clubs for next season, less than 90 were with their club throughout the season of 1918, and some of those have since gone into the service. The league, therefore, has but a hazy idea of what it would have in playing material if the game is on again next year.

ANGLERS AND Trappers will meet in the Harriers' Basketball League on Thursday evening, and the Hunters and Scouts will stage the second contest.

PERSONS INTERESTED in the careers of our boxers and who read the daily "dope" on them, are wondering now if Jack Dempsey got a "square deal" by the referee, who happened to be Eddie Graney, when the verdict in his bout with Willie Meehan was given against Willard's most logical opponent for the title.

THE WESTERN MEDS are a bunch of game lads and should give the Woodstock College boys a good fight for the game on Saturday.

SECRETARY W. A. Hewitt has announced that the annual meeting of the Ontario Hockey Association will be held in the Temple Building, Toronto, on Saturday, December 7, at 10 a.m., and all notices of amendments to constitution, etc., must be in the hands of the secretary by Saturday, November 23, and all nominations for office by Saturday, November 30.

LONDON CURLING CLUB euchre tournaments will begin Friday evening. A large turnout of members is expected.

LEO McGRAW, a former professional baseball catcher, has died from Spanish influenza. He was 27 years old. McGraw was a former member of the Chicago White Sox, Milwaukee, Memphis, and Grand Rapids teams.

SATURDAY NIGHT, in a benefit bout on the Pacific coast, San Francisco, to be exact, Fred Fulton made a "sucker" of Meehan by a margin so wide that even Meehan's mother would not have disputed the decision, which was given to the Minnesota plasterer.

FRED MITCHELL TO BE NEW PRESIDENT OF CHICAGO CUBS

Former Manager of the Team To Succeed Charles Weeghman.

CHICAGO, Nov. 19. — Fred Mitchell, manager of the Chicago club of the National League, will be elected president of the club to succeed Charles Weeghman, it was authoritatively announced today. The change will be made within two weeks.

Mr. Weeghman will, however, retain his financial interest in the club. He was one of the backers of the Federal League, and became president of the Chicago Nationals when that club was absorbed by himself and associates.

Mitchell, who was formerly with the Toronto club, came to Chicago two years ago from Boston, where he was scout, coach and utility man to George Stallings, manager of the Boston Nationals.

He suggests Hamilton, London, Brantford, Ottawa, Montreal, and a second team in Toronto, to play when the Leafs are away from home.

TORONTO DETECTIVE, FORMERLY OF CLINTON, KILLED BY GUNMEN

Frank McCullough Placed Under Arrest Shortly After Shooting.

TORONTO, Nov. 19—Detective Frank Williams of Claremont street division, was shot and instantly killed last night while attempting to arrest two men who had approached a College street fur dealer late in the afternoon with an offer to sell furs. Detective Williams was born in Clinton, Ont., where his parents reside. One of the gunmen, Frank McCullough, is under arrest.

Detective Williams joined the police force on October 1, 1914, and had shown himself to be a remarkably keen constable. He was 24 years of age. He was recently promoted. Credit, or much of it, for the arrest is given to a daring newsboy, who was selling papers at the corner of Bathurst and King streets, and some comrades who followed him. The lad responded to the cries from pedestrians as McCullough fled past them and when he slipped on the street corner, without hesitation, jumped on the murderer. Williams found when he reached the fur store that the men had left for a King street livery stable. He went there. Within a few minutes, the men drove up and turned their outfit into the stable. As they stepped out of the buggy they were placed under arrest and taken into the dimly-lighted office of the livery to be questioned. They had hardly entered the office before McCullough drew his revolver and opened fire. Three shots went wide of their mark. With each shot Williams clung more firmly to his prisoner. He had his revolver, but was in a position that he could not draw it. Fighting and scuffling, Williams and the two gunmen reached an archway to the livery stable from King street. Here McCullough fired two more shots, one of which instantly killed Williams.

MAJOR LEAGUES WILL LIKELY OPERATE AS USUAL NEXT YEAR

Toronto Is Welcome, But No Place Vacant in the Majors.

TORONTO, Nov. 19.—President McCaffrey returned today from a baseball trip to Peoria, Chicago and Detroit.

"After looking over the western situation, I think Toronto is in a good spot in the new International League," said Mr. McCaffery.

A special meeting of the National Association of Minor Leagues will be held at the call of the chairman in January in Chicago, when the case of Larry Lajoie will be taken up. The meeting will ask the National Commission to reopen the case and also to take up the cases of Truesdale, Lalonde, Schultz and Kelly, who were declared free agents last spring by the National Commission.

"I think the major leagues will operate as usual next season," said Mr. McCaffrey. "Toronto stands always ready to buy a franchise in either of the big leagues should one be put on the market. Everybody in baseball concedes Toronto as major league calibre."

SPANISH INFLUENZA STRIKES ITS VICTIM WITHOUT WARNING

Pneumonia Often Results, Making Precaution Doubly Necessary.

Much of the difficulty experienced by health authorities in checking the spread of the Spanish Influenza lies in the fact that it strikes its victim without warning.

Although authorities are taking every possible precaution in their effort to stop the spread of the epidemic, the disease in many sections of the country has gotten entirely beyond control and is claiming its victims by the thousands.

It is universally agreed by all well-informed persons that the surest preventive is to get the system in the best possible physical condition in order to be able to throw off the infection. As has been previously stated it is possible to perfect the powers of resistance of the human system so that it can throw off almost any infection, not excepting Spanish Influenza, which is one of the most contagious diseases known.

Medical authorities agree that people who are weak and rundown are the earliest victims of the Influenza epidemic. If you find yourself weak or losing flesh, or if you are in a generally rundown condition, you are really in great danger if you should come in contact with the Influenza germ.

As a powerful reconstructive tonic and system builder, Tanlac is without equal. This is a statement of facts and is fully supported by recognized authorities. According to all accepted reference works, including the United States Dispensatory, Encyclopedia Britannica, and leading text books used in the school of medicine, the principle ingredients of Tanlac possess the most valuable tonic properties known to science. This statement is further proven by the fact that millions of persons who have actually taken Tanlac have testified to its extraordinary merit as a medicine.

Tanlac restores health and strength to the weak and rundown system by enabling every organ of the body to perform its proper function in nature's own way. It creates a healthy appetite for good nourishing food, and is an ideal strengthening tonic for persons who are in a rundown condition and who are suffering from the after-effects of Influenza, Grip or Bronchial troubles.

Tanlac is sold in London by Standard Drug, Limited, and by an established agency in every town.

TORONTO VETERANS TO ENTER TEAM IN THE SENIOR GROUP

Schumacher, Former London Star, Will Play on G.W.V.A. Hockey Team.

TORONTO, Nov. 19.—The Veterans' Athletic Association met last evening, and decided to enter a team in the O. H. A. senior series. About 60 returned men attended and showed great enthusiasm over the prospects. J. Ryan, who formerly managed the Parkdale A. C. football team, was elected manager, and Frank Selke of Kitchener was the unanimous choice for coach.

If numbers count for anything, the new team should be formidable. Among others the following have already signified their intention of trying for a place: Finlay, Owen Sound; Barker and Kew, Winnipeg; H. A. Fraser, Weyburn, Sask.; Dafoe and McDonald, Queen's University; Schumacher, London; Trudder, Pembroke; Farlow, who played here last season with Crescents; Pickering, Niagara Falls; Arnold, Oshawa; Dunphy, Boston A. A.; Aird, Maxwell, Sinclair, Young, McDonald, Codner, Pecteau and McIlmurray, Toronto; Joyce, Scanlon and Smith of Kingston, and McCallum of Brandon.

With this array of talent to choose from, Veterans should be able to build up a fast sextet, in fact, one capable of making a creditable showing in the big series. A suggestion was made last evening that a team or teams be also entered in the Beaches League, but the executive decided to postpone action in the matter for the present. However, it is thought probable that Veterans' A. A. will compete in the outdoor series.

The following list contains names of patrons selected: Sir John Eaton, Major-Gen. Logie, Col. Kirkpatrick, D. S. O., and Major F. Smith.

Officers elected were: President, Col. Morrison, D.S.O.; vice-president, Sergt.-Major McCallum; secretary-treasurer, H. Payne; manager, J. Ryan; coach, F. Selke; representatives to O. H. A., F. Selke and Lou Marsh; club physician, Major Barton, Base Hospital.

AUSTRIANS ARE WILLING TO SUPPORT ANY GOVERNMENT THAT CAN SUPPLY FOOD

Political Conditions Depend Principally Upon People Being Able To Get Enough To Eat—Rulers of Old Austrian State Have Disappeared.

London, Nov. 20.—The entire political situation in Austria is provisional, according to a Vienna dispatch to the Daily Mail, dated November 14. The political conditions at present, it is added, depend largely on food conditions, and any government able to supply food probably would be able to pass any measures it wished.

Otta Bauer, the new foreign secretary of the German Austrian republic, and the Government's moving spirit, wishes to join the German federation, and probably will carry this plan out if he can get food for the people. The correspondent does not believe there is any danger of Bolshevism unless the food supply fails.

The rulers of the old Austrian state, the correspondent continues, have disappeared, as have the generals who led the armies. Former Emperor Charles is virtually a prisoner at Eckartsau with his suite. The Austrian archdukes are scattered about the country, and "nobody knows anything about them and nobody seems to care."

KING GEORGE HAS WRECKED ANOTHER PRECEDENT; GOES TO COMMONS FOR ADDRESS

Unescorted, Britain's Democratic Leader Met in Gallery of House With Commons and Lords.

LONDON, Nov. 19.—Another precedent went the way of other precedents today, when King George, accompanied by Queen Mary and the Prince of Wales, went to the palace at Westminster to receive and reply to the loyalty address passed by the Houses of Parliament yesterday.

Hertofore it had been the custom of the Parliament to go to the king on such an occasion. The royal party drove to the palace at Westminster without escort, and was loudly cheered along the route.

Arriving at Westminster the king, the queen, and the prince went immediately to the gallery of the House of Lords, where the commoners and the lords, the latter with the officials of the Houses in their robes of office, awaited them. The king was in morning dress. The lord chancellor and the speaker of the House of Commons presented the addresses.

King George, after expressing his thanks, in a speech alluded to the part played by the whole empire "in the long and terrible struggle now being brought to a close."

Expresses His Thanks.

In expressing his thanks to the House of Lords, and the House of Commons, the king said he was glad to meet the members of Parliament and the representatives of India and of the dominions beyond the seas, "that we may render thanks to Almighty God for the prize of peace, now near at hand, and that I may express to you, and through you to the people whom you represent, the thoughts that rise in my mind at a time so solemn."

The king said he was grateful for the spontaneous and enthusiastic expressions of loyalty and affection he had received in the metropolis, and from all parts of the British Isles, as well as from every quarter of the empire. He added that during the last four years of national stress and anxiety "my support has been faith in God and confidence in my people."

The king declared that in the future he would strive to the utmost to discharge the responsibility laid upon him "to uphold the honor of the empire, and to promote the well-being of the peoples over whom I am called to reign."

Soil Remains Inviolate.

"After a struggle longer and far more terrible than anyone could have foretold," King George continued, "the soil of Great Britain remains inviolate. Our navy has everywhere held the seas, and wherever the enemy could be brought to battle it has renewed the glories of Drake and Nelson. The incessant work it has accomplished in overcoming the hidden menace of the enemy's submarines and in guarding the ships that have brought food and munitions to our shores has been less conspicuous but equally essential to success.

"Without that work Britain might have starved, and those valiant soldiers of America who have so much contributed to our victory could not have found their way hither. The fleet has enabled us to win the war. In fact, without the fleet the struggle could not have been maintained, for upon the command of the sea the very existence of maintenance of our land forces have from the first depended.

Army Raised Quickly.

"That we should have to wage this war on land had scarcely entered our thoughts until the storm actually broke upon us. But Belgium and France were suddenly invaded, and the nation rose to the emergency. Within a year an army of more than ten times the strength of that which was ready for action in August, 1914, was raised by voluntary enlistment, largely owing to the organizing genius and personal influence of Lord Kitchener, and the number of that army was afterwards far more than doubled.

"These new soldiers, drawn from the civil population, have displayed a valor equal to that of their ancestors. Short as was their training they have imitated and rivalled the prowess of the small, but ever famous force, which in the early weeks of the war from Mons to the Marne, fought its magnificent retreat against vastly superior numbers.

Tribute to Dominions.

"Not less prompt was the response and not less admirable the devotion to the common cause of those splendid troops which eagerly hastened to us from the dominions overseas—men who showed themselves more than ever to be bone of our bone, inheriting all the courage and tenacity that have made Britain great. I shall ever remember how the Princes of India rallied to the cause, and with what ardor the soldiers sustained in many theatres of the war and under conditions most diverting and exacting the martial traditions of the race."

Proceeding the king paid tribute to Field Marshal Sir Douglas Haig, to the air forces, the mercantile marine, the fishermen, munitions workers, both men and women, and to the medical units in the field and afloat. He referred to the importance of after-the-war reconstruction problems; to the necessity for liberal provision for those whose exertions by sea and land, aided in bringing about the present situation and to the necessity of perfecting machinery to avoid the risk of further international strife.

As to the future, the king said the duty was to create a better Britain.

ARE ADVERTISED MEDICINES WORTHLESS?

There is no more reason to condemn all advertised medicines than there is to condemn all physicians or all druggists. Fakes there are in every profession and in every trade, but they do not last long. Take a medicine like Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, the true test of its merit is the fact that for forty years it has been relieving women of America from the worst forms of female ailments, constantly growing in popularity and favor, until it is now recognized from ocean to ocean as the standard remedy for female ills.

The committee consists of Mr. Butler, representing the Grand Trunk; F. Maughan, representing the Canadian Pacific Railway, and J. Morrison, representing the Canadian Northern Railway.

LUCAS PICKING LIBERAL TO WIN IN NORTH HURON

Attorney-General Expects Conservative Will Lose in By-Election in Progress.

TORONTO, Nov. 19. — Hon. I. B. Lucas, who has recently returned from North Huron, where the three-cornered by-election fight is in progress, stated today that as there are two Conservative candidates in the field, it was possible the Liberal candidate might be elected. Mr. Lucas had two conversations with Sir William Hearst yesterday regarding the situation.

Hon. I. B. Lucas today produced a resolution passed at the annual convention of the Liberals in Wingham:

"That we are not in favor of the extension of the parliamentary term and compact made regarding the by-elections by William Proudfoot."

PREMIERS DISCUSS RESOURCES PROBLEM OF WEST PROVINCES

Adjourn To Give the Prairie Leaders Time To Consider.

OTTAWA, Nov. 19.—No final conclusions were reached as the result of the first day's deliberations of Dominion and Provincial ministers called together to consider reconstruction and other problems affecting the Dominion.

It was announced when the conference adjourned until Wednesday morning that the subject under discussion had been that of the transfer of their natural resources to the three prairie provinces, a matter that had been the subject of deliberation at all previous provincial conferences. After the views of the representatives of the prairie provinces had been heard and some discussion had taken place it was decided to adjourn until Wednesday morning in order to allow the provincial members of the conference time to consider the natural resources question by themselves.

Ban On Travel to States Is Lifted

OTTAWA, Nov. 19.—Restrictions on travel between Canada and the United States are removed by an order-in-council passed today. Fisch went over with the same company, and had made his home with Mr. Melvin Robinson of McGillivray since coming from England.

"FLU" HAS AGAIN PASSED ITS CREST

Sarnia, Nov. 19.—The influenza epidemic has again passed its crest in the city, and it looks now as if it would rapidly disappear. The number of cases being reported to the board of health are decreasing, only 26 new ones being reported today, which is a big decrease over 60 reported for the week-end.

CANADIANS HEADED FOR RHINE, CABLES SIR ARTHUR CURRIE

Weary With Destruction Works, They Long for Home.

OTTAWA, Nov. 19. — Sir Thomas White, acting prime minister, has received the following message from Sir Arthur Currie, commander of the Canadian forces in France, which is in reply to his congratulatory message sent on behalf of the people of Canada to the overseas forces on the termination of hostilities:

"From the doubly-historic battlefield of Mons and on the eve of its departure for the Rhine, the Canadian corps acknowledges with a sense of deepest gratitude your message sent on behalf of the people of Canada. We join with them in humble and grateful thanks to God for the glorious victory vouchsafed to our arms. Our hearts go out to those for whom there remains only the cherished memory of their loved and lost, sacrificed in the noblest cause for which men have died. Weary with work of destruction, we long for the time where we shall be homeward-bound, to take up again with a clearer conception of its responsibilities our duty as citizens of the fairest land in all the world, our own beloved Canada."

STRIKE THROUGHOUT WORLD IS ASKED IN BEHALF OF MOONEY

Oakland, Cal., Nov. 19.—Resolutions passed by the Central Labor Council of Alameda County directing the unions under its jurisdiction to take a strike vote in protest against the conviction of Thomas J. Mooney, a review of whose case was refused by the United States supreme court yesterday, were telegraphed and cabled to labor organizations throughout the United States, Canada, England and Australia today.

The council asked that these organizations take like action, and that Monday, December 2, be set as the tentative strike date.

LARGEST SUBSCRIBERS.

Sarnia, Nov. 19.—Gordon G. Geddes of this city has the honor of being the largest individual subscriber for Victory Bonds. Mr. Geddes purchased $50,000 worth of the bonds, and his store also subscribed one hundred per cent, which entitles the place of business to an honor flag.

Howard Fraley of Forest is the largest individual subscriber for bonds in the county. He took $75,000 worth. The county of Lambton altogether has subscribed to the loan a total of $4,030,950.

METZ OCCUPIED BY FORCES WITH PETAIN AT HEAD

Old City of Lorraine Has Been 47 Years in Hands of Germans.

ARMIES KEEP WATCHING

Ready Any Moment to Convert Peaceful March Into Hostile Operation.

PARIS, Nov. 19.—The war office tonight describes the operations along the French line as follows:

"Our advanced continued today without incident.

"The material abandoned by the enemy is accumulating as well as the number of liberated prisoners who have rejoined our lines.

"In Belgium we have reached the line of Bourseigne-Vieillerienne. In Lorraine our left is at Sarrall, Klerberg, Hemmorreing, Saverne, Allenvilliers and Wangen.

"The entry of our troops into Saverne under command of General Gouraud was made, amidst great enthusiasm at 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon.

Entry Into Metz.

"Marshal Petain made solemn entry into Metz at the head of the troops of the Tenth Army. The old city of Lorraine, captive for forty-seven years, manifested in a never-to-be-forgotten way its love for the mother country."

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY OF OCCUPATION, Nov. 19.—General Dickman's army is well into Belgium and within a few hours' march of the German frontier on the south.

Bring Up Artillery.

The march has been halted for a short time, while the heavier artillery, supply service and other elements can be brought up.

As the Germans withdraw the concentration of the army of occupation is increased. Not for a moment is the vigilance been relaxed. All possible tactical advantage is carefully taken, and the forces are so deployed that the peaceful march might easily, in the presence of the enemy, be converted into a hostile operation.

Send No Parcels To Prisoners; Are Being Cared For Canadians Are Being Repatriated With Others.

OTTAWA, Nov. 19.—A telegraphic advice has been received from the Canadian high commissioner from London to the effect that on account of the repatriation of Allied prisoners of war, all individual parcels for prisoners of war have been stopped.

The needs of these prisoners are being attended to by the Canadian Red Cross Society or some other help socity.

WILSON'S PRESENCE IN EUROPE IS ABSOLUTELY ESSENTIAL, SAYS ROSS

New York, Nov. 19.—"The presence of President Wilson in Europe is absolutely essential," declared Sir Charles Ross, inventor of the Canadian service rifle, on his arrival here today on the British steamship Orduna. He said he had come to the United States on a "special mission," but declined to say what it was.

"The people of Great Britain and of the United States," he added, "do not fully understand each other, but both desire to reach a better basis of mutual understanding. A visit to Europe by President Wilson at the present time, will have a wonderful effect on future relations."

BANDITS CAUSE REIGN OF TERROR IN QUEBEC

Quebec, Nov. 19.—Terror reigns in the district around Arthabasca d'Israel and Victoriaville, where bandits have been creating uneasiness among the people. A number of businessmen were held up at the point of revolvers, robbed of their money, and in some cases robbed of their horses and rigs and motor cars.

An Armenian dealer named David Hadiesi was attacked in the bush at the rear of St. Ludger Beauce. He has not been seen alive since then. Yesterday three bandits held up the mail driver in the rear of Arthabasca, near Hamsouth. Six thousand dollars' worth of mail was stolen.

PARLIAMENT MAY BE ASKED TO VALIDATE PROHIBITION ORDER

Expires One Year After Peace Is Signed.

OTTAWA, Nov. 19.—Validating legislation will be submitted next session, it is expected, in regard to prohibition. The order-in-council on which Dominion action was taken found its authority in the war measures act. The order itself remains in force during wartime and for a period of twelve months afterwards. The war measures act, however, expires on the proclamation of peace in the Canada Gazette.

The question how far the order-in-council is valid after the war measures act has ceased to exist is now before the justice department. The same point has arisen in Great Britain in regard to orders-in-council passed there under authority of the defence of the realm act, or "Dora," as it is more commonly called. A special committee, which had the question under consideration, decided that war would cease to exist on the exchange of formal peace ratifications, and that orders-in-council passed under the defence of the realm act would not be valid after expiry of the act itself, unless validated by Parliament.

It is probable that the Canadian justice department will reach a similar conclusion in respect to orders-in-council passed under the war measures act.

While the Government has not yet taken the matter up, the suggestion is made of some lessening of prohibition restrictions when validating legislation is introduced.

The same situation will arise in regard to other orders-in-council passed under the war measures act, which cover a period beyond the conclusion of peace.

RETURNED MEN, LABOR AND EMPLOYERS FOR REPATRIATION TALK

Ottawa, Nov. 19.—Plans are under consideration for wide development of the repatriation committee's work. This committee consists of five members, of the cabinet, with the addition of Hon. J. A. Calder as chairman. Primarily its function is to co-ordinate efforts of the various Government departments which have been studying problems of reconstruction arising with the conclusion of the war.

In each large centre of industry local committees are to be appointed representative of employers, returned soldiers, and organized labor. Women workers will probably be represented on the committees. Further, it is likely that a central advisory committee will be appointed. The whole idea of the scheme is that the problem of repatriation may be handled with the minimum dislocation.

NORTHCLIFFE WANTS TO KNOW HOW LLOYD GEORGE IS FIGURING

How Will He Secure Land for Soldiers?

HOW WILL HE FINANCE?

Premier Says Cabinet Is Too Busy To Prepare Bills.

London, Nov. 18—(By the Associated Press).—In normal times the country would be in a fever of excitement over the election. Interest in policies, however, is now submerged under the greater interest in the closing events of the war.

The political situation is peculiar because there is only one man in the field, and there is no concentrated opposition to him. All factions approve of Premier Lloyd George's reconstruction plans, as far as they go. What opposition exists is divided into sections.

The first is the old Liberal organization, led by Former Premier Asquith, which opposes the election as untimely principally because only forty per cent of the soldiers, according to their estimates, will be able to vote. They say the soldiers have the greatest claim to a voice in the settlement of the war.

Labor's Program.

The other section is the Labor party, which has its own program, including the nationalization of railways, mines and other public works with compensation to the owners.

Lord Northcliffe's papers and the leading Liberal organs invite the premier to be more specific in the statement of his plans and ask him to tell how he proposes to secure land for the soldiers, which is one of the chief planks in his platform. They ask how he will pay for this land and how he will finance his proposals for the extensive building of workmen's houses. Lloyd George partially answered these questions last Saturday, and says that the cabinet has not had time yet to prepare bills.

GERMAN COUNTESS USED RED CROSS FUNDS FOR SELF; IS UNDER ARREST

Washington, D. C., Nov. 19.—Dispatches received from Prague today by the Czecho-Slovak information bureau say that the German aristocracy at the Bohemian capital, has been involved in a graft scandal. Countess Coudenhove, wife of the last Austrian governor of Bohemia, is said to have been arrested and held on the charge of turning to her own use gifts and money donated for the wounded through the Red Cross organization of which she was president. Arrested with her were Count Nostitz, Count Wolkenstein, Countess Westphal, and Countess Taaffe, all prominent members of the nobility.

THEDFORD PASTORS GIVEN SEND-OFF

Thedford, Nov. 1.—On Monday evening the St. Paul's congregation met in the basement of the church, which was beautifully decorated, to tender their farewells to Dr. and Mrs. A. J. Grant.

An address on "Stewardship" by Rev. Mr. Chapman showed the splendid services rendered by Dr. Grant to all branches of church work. With Mrs. Grant he had done so much towards bringing the church to its present successful standing that the loss would be great.

On behalf of the members, the doctor was then given a beautiful gold-headed ebony cane, and Mrs. Grant a silver carving set. Dr. Grant responded on behalf of Mrs. Grant and himself, and spoke feelingly of the hearty co-operation and support he had received during office.

A surprise awaited Rev. Mr. Chapman, who is leaving shortly to take up his duties at All Saints' Church, Windsor. W. J. French read an address expressing regret, and J. H. Crawford presented him with a solid leather club bag. Rev. Mr. Chapman expressed his sorrow on leaving St. Paul's, but owing to the larger sphere of work offered, felt compelled to accept the promotion. A dainty lunch was then served, and the evening was brought to a close with the benediction.

MEMORIAL SERVICE FOR CHATHAM PRIEST

CHATHAM, Nov. 19. — Impressive memorial services were held in St. Joseph's Church today in honor of Rev. Father Placid, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. Doyle, and a former priest here, who died in France early in October, while serving as a chaplain in the United States army. High mass was sung by Rev. Father Paul.

C.N.R. Board Is Enlarged; Is To Handle All Lines

Nova Scotia and New Brunswick Are Given Representation.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Ottawa, Nov. 19.—Thomas Cantley, head of the Nova Scotia Steel Company, and former member of the defunct Canadian shell committee, will represent Nova Scotia on the enlarged Canadian Northern board of directors, and Alexander Barnhill, K. C., of St. John, a prominent barrister, will represent New Brunswick. Mr. Barnhill was one of the members of the international joint waterways commission recommended by Sir Wilfrid Laurier in 1911. Sir Wilfrid's recommendations were, however, set aside by the incoming Borden Government, and men of their choice and politics substituted. Hon. R. P. Carvell is said to be responsible for his present appointment, which will shortly be made by board of directors. With the appointment of the two men every yard of Government road will come under the control of the Canadian Northern board, under the chairmanship of D. B. Hanna, originally vice-president of the company.

RAILWAY BOARD TO HEAR EVIDENCE IN TELEPHONE INCREASE

Brussels, Nov. 19.—Both the Presbyterian and Methodist Sunday schools have invested in Victory Bonds, handing them over for advance work in connection with missionary forward plans.

From one-half acre of land Howard Hall grew 5,600 pounds of Yellow Danver Dutch set onions and 1,200 pounds of pickling onions. He sold them at top notch prices.

The home of Mrs. Chas. Ritchie, John and King streets, has been sold to Jas. Cardiff, a well-known Grey Township farmer, who is retiring. Mr. Cardiff paid $1,100. Mrs. Ritchie will probably remove to Toronto.

Brussels made a fine sweep for Victory bonds. F. S. Scott, canvasser, had $101,100 on his list.

The fine 100-acre farm of Donald McNeil, 14th concession, Grey Township, was recently sold to John D. McEwen for the sum of $6,500. He gets immediate possession. Mr. McEwen has been a storekeeper at Moncrieff, but sold out to Curtis Rathwell of Saskatchewan. Mr. McNeil, who is a bachelor, may go west on a holiday to visit relatives and friends.

The Ontario Railway and Municipal Board will meet here on Friday, 29th inst., to hear evidence on a proposal to increase rates to $12 per annum on the Brussels, Grey and Morris Independent Telephone Company. There are about one thousand subscribers to this telephone system.

Miss Geddes, who was at her home near Belgrave while the Brussels school was closed, was not able to resume her work last week when school opened, owing to illness. Miss Marjorie Yuill filled her duties.

Last Saturday Mrs. Norman McDonald, niece of John and Robert Ferguson of this town, was buried at Teeswater, where her parents reside. Deceased succumbed to pneumonia, following Influenza, at Edmonton. Her husband and a son and daughter survive.

The new building for the Bank of Nova Scotia will soon be ready for occupation, and will be fitted up in a modern style in every particular.

BRANTFORD LAD HIT.

SPANISH INFLUENZA

Do Not Fear When Fighting a German or a Germ.

BY DR. M. COOK.

The cool fighter always wins and so there is no need to become panic-stricken. Avoid fear and crowds. Exercise in the fresh air and practice the three C's: A Clean Mouth, a Clean Skin and Clean Bowels. To carry off the poisons that accumulate within the body and to ward off an attack of the influenza bacillus, take a good liver regulator to move the bowels. Such a one is made up of May-apple, leaves of aloe, root of jalap, and is to be had at any drug store, and called "Pleasant Purgative Pellets."

If a bad cold develops, go to bed, wrap up well, drink freely of hot lemonade and take a hot mustard foot-bath. Have the bedroom warm, but well ventilated. Obtain at the nearest drug store "Anuric Tablets" to flush the kidneys and control the pains and aches. Take an "Anuric" tablet every two hours, together with copious drinks of lemonade. If a true case of influenza, the food should be simple, such as broths, milk, buttermilk and ice-cream, but it is important that food be given regularly in order to keep up patient's strength and vitality. After the acute attack has passed, which is generally from three to seven days, the system should be built up by the use of a good iron tonic, such as "Irontic" tablets, to be obtained at some drug stores, or that well-known blood-maker and herbal tonic made from roots and barks of forest trees—sold everywhere as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.—Advt.

IF YOUR EARS RING WITH HEAD NOISES

If you have roaring, buzzing noises in your ears, are getting hard of hearing and fear Catarrhal Deafness, go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Parmint (double strength), and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar. Take 1 tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Anyone who has Catarrhal trouble of the ears, is hard of hearing or has head noises should give this prescription a trial.—Advt.

Unable To Get Bread, Milk or Meat in Their Neighborhood, or Even To Get Their Washing Done—Austria Is Quieted Down.

VIENNA, Via Geneva, Monday, Nov. 18.—By the Associated Press.—The situation in Vienna appears to be that there is more talk than disorder, with urgent need for bread, especially for the poor of Austria.

Former Emperor Charles, who has retired for the present to his castle at Eckartsau, it is asserted by the Socialist Arbeiter Zeitung, is living on the shortest rations, and possibly may be starving with his wife and family.

The former royal family has been unable to secure meat, milk and bread in the neighboring village or even to have its washing done. They have been obliged to send away almost all of their fifty servants.

Some disorders have occurred in Prague, according to reports received here, as the result of an attempt to remobilize the former soldiers into a national guard. There are also reports that Jews have been assassinated in Bohemia.

Disorder Dispelled.

Wherever the Associated Press correspondent passed on his way to Vienna he encountered no difficulties, and he saw no disorders except along the railway lines. The formation of a new republic here has apparently been an easy task. It is now merely a question of holding the people together until a stable government can be established. However, the freest possible political discussions are permitted. There has been little bloodshed in Vienna. It is declared that two persons were killed accidentally during a great demonstration by Socialists and members of other parties last Tuesday when the republic was formed.

Women Enfranchised.

One of the most notable political changes has been the granting of equal franchise to women. In the republic all the forms of the old empire have been done away with. No passports are required to travel nor must one have a residence permit.

There is no censorship of the press. When the correspondent went to obtain permission to send telegrams abroad, Dr. Otto Bauer, the foreign secretary, and a Socialist, gave his consent on the spot, saying: "Under the old government it would have taken you two months."

Will order prevail in the new German Austrian republic, of which Vienna is at once the wheel and the hub, or will there be an outbreak of Bolshevism? This question is on every tongue. The air is full of rumors printed by newspapers or spread about by the thousands of soldiers traveling to and fro.

On the streets one hears reports of revolution in France, that Italy is to be made a republic, and that American and Allied troops are occupying Austrian cities here and there.

VIENNA, Via Basel, Nov. 19.—M. Zerbik, the minister of public works, has asked the Austrian foreign minister to address a telegram to the governments of the United States, Great Britain, and France, showing the extremely critical situation in Austria concerning coal and food

OWEN SOUND OFFICER MET DEATH ONE DAY BEFORE WAR ENDED

OWEN SOUND, Nov. 19.—A. W. McFaul, 922 Second avenue west, has just received the sad news that his son, Lieut. Wesley Clarence McFaul, of the infantry, had been killed in action on the previous Sunday, November 10. The word coming after the signing of the armistice, when everyone hoped that casualties had ceased, made the announcement doubly hard. The late Lieut. McFaul enlisted in November, 1915, with the 93rd Battalion, and was in France in July, 1916.

Won Military Medal.

He served with such distinction that he was awarded a military medal, and a commission. He was wounded in August last, and only returned to the front thirteen days when he made the great sacrifice. One day more and the fighting had ceased. Lieut. McFaul was not only well known, but very highly esteemed by everyone who knew him. He was an upright and manly lad, and his death has caused the deepest regret. He leaves, besides his father, two sisters, Misses Evelyn and Violet, at home, and two soldier brothers, Lieut. Lawrence and Pte. Cre McFaul, both of whom are in France.

Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Sharpe, 627 Second avenue east, received two telegrams within two days of each other, the first announcing that their son, Trooper Herbert Sharpe, was seriously ill at Moore Barracks Hospital, Shorncliffe, November 11, and the other received yesterday announced that he died on November 15 as the result of bronchial pneumonia.

Enlisted in 34th Battery.

Trooper Sharpe enlisted with three other Owen Sound boys, Paul Kennedy, George Simpson and the late Lieut. J. Galbraith, in August, 1915, in the 34th Battalion, but later transferred to the cavalry, and was attached to the Fort Garry Horse, which was brigaded with the famous British cavalry units. He was wounded on August 9 and since then he had been in hospital, and had almost recovered from his wound, expecting soon to go back to France. He was only ill a few days from pneumonia when death came. Before going overseas he was on the staff of the Union Bank here.

GODERICH LAD WOUNDED.

GODERICH, Nov. 19.—Mrs. Elizabeth Ervine received a cable today notifying her that her son, Pte. William Henry Ervine of the infantry had been officially reported admitted into 22nd General Hospital at Camieres on Nov. 4 with gunshot wounds in both thighs. Pte. Ervine enlisted here with the 161st Hurons. He has another brother, Harry, also in France.

BRANTFORD, Nov. 19.—Mayor MacBride today took steps to enforce the Government fuel regulations. Through a central office all coal arriving in the city will be listed, and orders issued on the dealers covering the same. Dealers will only be allowed ten tons out of each car, the remainder to be delivered as directed by the authorities. In case of shortage the reserve laid up by the city last summer will be drawn upon.

RESOLUTION OFFERS THANKS FOR VICTORY

ST. THOMAS, Nov. 19.—A most appropriate closing resolution was made by Trustee F. W. Wright at the meeting of the board of education on Monday night, tendering the humble and profound thanks of the board to the all-ruling Providence, who had made victory possible. This was followed by lengthy addresses from the various members of the board on the great crisis through which the world has recently passed.

FISH-EATING DRIVE MAY BE STAGED SOON

STRATFORD, Nov. 19.—E. O. Sawyer, Jun., of the fish division of the Canada food board is in the city today to boost the consumption of fish. Mr. Sawyer stated that if possible a fish campaign would be put on here during December. "A pound of fish per week per person" is the slogan of the department.

Warden Cornell of Elgin Raps Proposed Million-Dollar Loan.

ST. THOMAS, Nov. 19. — Warden Cornell in his address at the opening of the last quarterly session of the Elgin county council held this afternoon, criticized the present Ontario Government for its housing-loan scheme. Mr. Cornell immediately after his address took occasion to state that contrary to custom he had prepared his own address, whereas the county clerk had formerly been left to handle it for the warden. "I say this in order that there shall be no onus on the clerk," declared Mr. Cornell.

In opening, the warden stated that the year just passed had been one of the most important in the history of Elgin County, and he extended his thanks to the officials and members of the county council who had so ably assisted him during the past year. Continuing, he said:

"Since our last regular meeting most remarkable events have taken place in reference to the world war. What we then looked forward to with hope and courage has become a reality, with a speed which has exceeded the hope of the most sanguine. It is certainly a course of wonderful satisfaction to know that the efforts of our brave soldiers have at last been rewarded, and that democracy has prevailed over autocracy.

Other Forms of Autocracy.

"However, there are other forms of autocracy, other than that known as political autocracy, into which, let us hope, Canada will never be drawn to any extent. For instance, the concentration of wealth into large corporations, commonly known as the 'big interests.' These absorb the smaller corporations, resulting in the building up of a few large centres of industry at the expense of smaller.

"Let me mention briefly, as an illustration, our Canadian banks, whose charter permits them to loan their money in any place they desire. These banks have branches in almost every village and hamlet throughout the country, and like an octopus whose tenacles reach out, sucking the strength from whatever living object they come into contact, these branches withdraw the money from the smaller town where it has been deposited, taking it to their offices in the cities for the use of large industrial concerns which they help to build up.

U. S. Charters Different.

"Bank presidents and directors are in many instances, presidents and directors of industrial institutions, and when application is made for loans by institutions in which they are interested, what would be more natural than that they should favor these institutions. There is amarked difference in the charters issued by the United States Government, which only permits the loaning of money by the banks in the communities where it was deposited.

"To some of us, the granting of one million dollars by the Ontario Government, to be loaned to different municipalities for the better housing of their employees, looks like another error along the same line, namely, the concentration of wealth in larger centres at the expense of the general public, thus carrying out the Biblical quotation, 'Unto them who have shall be given, and from them who have not shall be taken away, even that which they have.'

"Instead of increasing the surplus of those who are already rich, we should look to providing for the less fortunate, and, above all, be sure that we are generously just when soldiers return battered and scarred from the battlefields of Europe."

GRAIN.

Chicago, Nov. 20.—Opening: Corn—November, $1 31½; December, $1 29¼.

Oats — November, 75c; December, 74⅜c.

Winnipeg, Nov. 20.—Oats opened ⅛c to ⅝c lower for December and ¼c to ⅞c lower for May.

Barley opened ¼c lower for December and ½c lower for May, at $1 22.

Inspections on Tuesday were 848 cars. The contract grades of wheat were 495 cars.

Chicago, Nov. 20.—Predictions of a decided increase of receipts tended today to weaken the corn market. The predictions were based chiefly on the large number of car permits which had been issued of late. Forecasts of more favorable weather for husking and for moving the crop acted also as a bearish influence. Opening prices, which ranged from ⅞c to 1¾c lower, were followed by moderate further declines and then by something of a rally.

Oats as well as corn lacked support. On the other hand, most commission houses had selling orders. After opening ⅜c to ½c to 1c lower, with December at 74¼@74½c, the market receded still further before beginning to react.

LIVE STOCK.

Toronto, Nov. 20.—Live stock receipts today were fairly heavy, and an active trade resulted, with cattle prices firmer, excepting in the poorer grades. Hogs and sheep were steady. Receipts, 974 cattle, 134 calves, 1,392 hogs and 866 sheep. The prices ranged as follows:

Cattle—Exporters, choice, per cwt, $12 75@14; do, medium, $11 50@12 75; do, bulls, $9@10 50; butchers, choice, $9 75@11; do, medium, $9@9 75; do, common, $6@7; do, cows, choice, $9@10; do, medium, $7@8; do, canners, $4 75@5; do, bulls, $8@8 75; feeding sters, $9@10; stockers, choice, $8 50@9; do, light, $6 50@7; milkers, choice, each, $90@145; springers, choice, each, $95@150; calves, $16 50@17 75.

Sheep—Ewes, cwt, $10@11; bucks, $7@9; lambs, $15@15 25.

Hogs—Fed and watered, per cwt, $18; f. o. b., $17@17 25.

Chicago, Nov. 20.—Hogs—Receipts, 29,000; market on better grades mostly 10c to 15c higher, others steady to strong; butchers, $17 65@18; light, $17 10@17 75; packing, $16 60@17 60; throw-outs, $15 25@16 50; pigs, good to choice, $13@14 50.

Cattle — Receipts, 18,000; generally steady to strong on all grades; calves steady.

Sheep—Receipts, 20,000; lambs strong; top, $16; sheep steady.

Montreal, Nov. 20.—The offerings of live stock at the Canadian Pacific stock yards today were 300 cattle, 350 sheep and lambs, 700 hogs and 200 calves. As a general thing the market was quiet. Prices for cheap cattle are a little weaker in tone, but good stuff is so scarce as to command high figures. Quotations:

Choice steers, $11 25@12; good steers, $10 50@11; medium, $9@10; common, $7 50@8 50; choice butcher cows, $8 50@9; good, $7@8 50; medium, $6 50@7; choice butcher bulls, $8 25@9; good, $7 50@8; medium, $6 50@7.

WALL STREET.

New York, Nov. 20—Wall Street, 10:30 a.m.—A halt in the consummation of the Mercantile Marine deal on orders from Washington caused a sharp break in shipping issues at the opening of today's stock market. Marine preferred registered an extreme decline of 5⅝ points to 109 on its initial transaction of 8,000 shares. The reaction extended to oils and motors, Mexican Petroleum losing almost 3 points. United States Steel and other industrials made moderate concessions to the lower trend, but soon rallied. Rails were dull and irregular, coppers displaying similar tendencies.

MAJESTIC

Mary Pickford at the Majestic Today For the Last Time.

A milk bath and its dire consequences are finely pictured in Mary Pickford's latest Artcraft photoplay, "Johanna Enlists," a picturization of Rupert Hughes' well-known story, "The Mobilization of Johanna," which will be presented at the Majestic Theatre today for the last time.

The plot concerns the daughter of a poor farmer who has never experienced the joy of having a beau. A regiment of soldiers on their way to a cantonment passes the farm, and, one of the officers falling suddenly ill, they camp there, and Johanna nurses the stricken soldier.

She is delighted, for her dreams have been realized. The officers and men

Showing at the Mejestice Theatre Thursday and Friday. The story deals with the adventures of a young prospector in the west who is convicted of a crime of which he is innocent, and which involves him in serious trouble. The love element is strong, and the situations are unusually thrilling.

fall in love with the quaint girl, despite her freckles, which she proceeds to eradicate. A certain private and officer are rivals in their attention to her. One night Johanna decides to take a surreptitious milk bath for beauty's sake, and the officer believes she is clandestinely meeting the private. The two men quarrel while Johanna is trying to hide in the tub.

The private calls the officer "a piece of cheese," and is court-martialed. Meantime the captain, who boasts an aristocratic lineage, discovers that Johanna's last name is the same as his, and when the private is exonerated by the court, takes the girl away with him to the next town to marry her, leaving the two disappointed lovers disconsolate.

"Hearts of the World" at the Majestic for One Week, Commencing Dec. 2.

D. W. Griffith's great production, "Hearts of the World," will return to the Majestic Theatre for one week, starting Monday, December 2. This production has been brought back at the earnest request of hundreds of Majestic patrons.

A court of inquiry will be held at the heights, for the purpose of investigating and reporting the circumstances surrounding the death of Pte. Alfred E. Whitehead.

LATE REPORTS SHOW MIDDLESEX OVER TOP IN VICTORY LOAN

Unofficial Figures Now Give the County Total as $2,778,800.

The county of Middlesex has gone "over the top" in the Victory Loan campaign. Last night the total for the county stood at $2,778,800, and still some returns are to come in. The objective was $2,775,000. County Organizer Cork stated that the total of $2,778,000 was an unofficial one. It was hard to get any official figures on account of the slowness of the rural mail. It was anticipated that several thousands of dollars would be added to the total today.

Mr. Cork stated last night that the total for the day amounted to $438,950. Lucan and Ailsa Craig have added second honor crowns to their objective flags, both having added over $50,000 to their original objective.

Organizer Cork and L. H. Dampier of Strathroy, chairman of the county organization, both expressed themselves as being more than pleased that the county had reached its objective.

FISH REPORTED SCARCE AT LEAMINGTON

KINGSVILLE, Nov. 19. — Roscoe Cooper, who has been running a bakery in Windsor for several years, has sold out and come to this town, where he has purchased a portion of the business of his brother, H. J. Cooper. He will take charge of the bakery, while his brother will continue the confectionery and ice cream business.

Poor lifts of fish are being reported by the gill-net and pound-net fishermen. On account of the fish scarcity they are seriously considering lifting their nets for the season. The price of whitefish has gone up to 20 cents per pound for this season.

NEW "FLU" CASES PUT LID ON AMHERSTBURG

AMHERSTBURG, Nov. 19.—S. McGee has bought the china department recently owned by Barlow & Smith, who became insolvent. J. Sinclair of Dalhousie has taken over the wall-paper, stationery and toys.

The ban has again been laid on all public places here, as there are a large number of new cases of influenza. There were no services in the churches on Sunday. There are seventeen cases in the Brunner-Mond Hospital.

On account of two members of the cast being ill with the "flu," "Billy's Bungalow," a comedy being prepared by the R. W. S. of St. Andrew's Church, has been postponed. This has been prepared under the management of Principal Overholt and staged by George Bender.

THAMESVILLE, Nov. 19.—Dr. Kinzie, dentist, has bought the practice of the late Dr. Currie, and will take up his work at that place next week.

LONDONERS VOICE THEIR PLANS FOR PUNISHING EX-KAISER BILL

THIS IS ALL.

"How to Serve Kaiser Bill."

To the Editor of The Advertiser:

1. Have him stripped.
2. Lather him with hot tar and feathers.
3. Have him put in a cage at the zoo.
4. Then put a sign on his residence: "The Beast of Berlin."

A SUBSCRIBER.

To the Editor of The Advertiser:

What would you do with ex-Kaiser Bill?

I know what I'd do if I had my will:
I'd give him the fate of the Wandering Jew,
From a novel that's written by Eugene Sue;
But instead of the earth which he had to roam,
I'd confine Bill's career to a place nearer home—
From the borders of Paris to the outskirts of Leigh,
An outcast forsaken, for all men to see.

He should wander through fields, where the little white crosses
Would remind him forever of war's dreadful losses;
No rest should he have, but for ever and ever,
Remorse in his soul, which should burn like a fever;
No shoes on his feet, no hat on his head,
He should beg from the women of Belgium his bread—
And the curse I would give him? To make it more evil,
He should visit each night with his partner the devil.

E. N. HARDING.

A FITTING PUNISHMENT.

To the Editor of The Advertiser:

In answer to your query anent the general public's idea of a fitting punishment for the above-named animal, I beg to suggest the following. And this includes his sons.

Take every cent away from them, put them in overalls and compel them to work every day, under a driver. Their work to be the cleaning up of the battlefields.

This to be done without pay, and on the same rations the poor people of the German-occupied and devastated regions had to put up with.

The same punishment applies to all those who are in any way responsible for cruel and inhuman practices during the late war.

To merely imprison, exile or take their lives does not seem sufficient. In the first two they would have life without a care, with possibly a little enjoyment; in the latter, death and freedom from all worries.

Under my plan it would be a living death for them, while at the same time they would be doing a necessary work.

Yours very truly, ANTI-KULTUR.

SHOOT HIM.

To the Editor of The Advertiser:

"What would I do with ex-Kaiser Bill?" My opinion is that if the Entente Allies are to have him delivered up to them they should remember he is a soldier and treat him as such. He should be given a soldier's death and a soldier's burial in the land "where poppies grow." He should be shot, as that is the death that many of our brave boys met. He should be given a soldier's burial. You just have to read "The Burial of Sir John Moore" to understand what I mean.

Quotations:

"We buried him darkly at dead of night."
"And the lantern dimly burning."
"No useless coffin inclosed his breast."
"Not in sheet nor in shroud we wound him,
But he lay like a warrior taking his rest,
With his martial cloak around him."
"We carved not a line, and we raised not a stone."

You see what I mean? Shoot him, roll him in his cloak, and without a coffin, bury him at night, and put no mark over the spot. Napoleon was imprisoned on the Island of Elba, and escaped, and the battle of Waterloo was fought. Give him no chance to do likewise.

"A WOMAN."

A TREATMENT FOR THE EX-KAISER.

You ask me what I'd do with Kaiser William,
So please excuse my language if I tell;
I'd hand him over to his mate, the devil,
To be consumed up in the fires of hell.
But, wait, I think I'm over-zealous,
It would not do to burn him up so fast;
I'd like to let proud William Hohenzollern
Have time to think about his devilish past.

I think I'd dump him in a great big cauldron,
Up to his neck in coal oil, icy cold;
Then light a fire and start the pot a-boiling,
Just like they did in those brave days of old.
And just before the coal oil started bubbling,
Around this once majestic, lordly Hun,
I'd have our friends, the Allies, prod him gently,
With pitchforks, just to see if he was done.

I would not have him boiled until he's tender
(Although his hide is very, very tough);
I'd have the Allies lift him from the cauldron,
When my conscience told me that he'd had enough;
Then after he got cool enough to handle,
And when his mind and soul had become placid,
I'd have the Allies paint him very slowly
From head to foot with strong sulphuric acid.

And after he had gone through all this treatment
(Providing that he did not die of pain),
I'd put him in a cage on exhibition,
Until it drove his beastly mind insane;
I'd have the public come along and view him,
And when the crowd got mad enough to kill,
I'd throw him out to satisfy their craving—
That's what I'd do with fiendish Kaiser Bill.

RETLAW P. RUPRAH,
London.

WHAT I WOULD DO WITH THE EX-KAISER.

I would say: "Mr. Hohenzollern, you are no better than your people thought you were before the war, and no worse than the Allies have painted you. You are what your ancestors and training have made you. You are probably familiar with the text: 'The wages of sin is death.' That is what has happened you, metaphorically speaking. You also have read the Old Testament much, too much, indeed, and so you must have read: 'The sins of the father are visited upon the children, even unto the third and fourth generation.' That again is what has happened you. You no doubt have often read of the bloody battles mentioned in the Old Testament. You have also noticed these battles were all approved by God, even to the slaying of innocent women and children. In fact, they were a direct command from God, according to Moses. You had the misfortune to believe that the German people were the chosen people of God, like the Israelites of old. So you believed you were in partnership with the God of Israel, and as he led the children of Israel on to victory under the leadership of Moses, he, too, would lead the German nation on to victory under your leadership. You found afterwards it was all a delusion, but your training and environment had so bedulled your intellect that you could not understand why God did not stay with you. Now you know you are down and out, but who you are blaming for it I don't know; but if you had an independent reasoning mind you would know the blame was with your religious and political training, but as you don't know that, you must be classed with those of an unsound mind, and as we long ago found out, no corporal punishment inflicted on the insane was beneficial to the patient's recovery, we ceased punishing them and pitied them instead. So I say the only thing I would do with you is try and root the delusion from your brain and instil into your mind the true doctrine of humanitarianism."

JACK RILEY.

SIR THOMAS WHITE EXPECTED TO TAKE PLACE AS PREMIER

Report of This Move Comes From Ottawa.

Sir Robert Borden may never return to Canada as premier, and Sir Thomas White may be the next premier of Canada.

This conjecture has been carried from Ottawa by those who hear of impending changes in Union Government. It is stated that the prime minister will remain in England following the peace conference as an appeal judge on the privy council, and that Sir Thomas White will be rehearsed for the place during Borden's absence.

At a banquet recently tendered Sir Thomas White at Montreal, it is reported that Baron Shaughnessy stated that the finance minister was the man upon whom the eyes of those who expected Borden to retire were turning.

QUERIES REGARDING MILITARY SERVICE

Address Your Problems to the Military Editor of The Advertiser and They Will Be Answered From Official Information.

SUBSCRIBER. Q.—1. Is it still necessary for married men to carry their marriage certificates on their person?

2. Now that the war is over is it still necessary for farmers exempted until May next to carry their military papers?

A.—1. Yes. It is the intention of the authorities to apprehend all deserters and defaulters, and this will be facilitated by all men eligible for military service carrying their papers, and thus proving their status when accosted by the police.

2. Yes. No information has been received here suspending the military service act, and therefore all exempted men should carry their papers on their person and thus avoid trouble.

WOODSTOCK. Q.—My husband was recommended for the military medal and distinguished conduct medal in the spring of 1916, and has not yet received these decorations. would it be wise for me to write the war office, London, England, regarding same, as he is returning to Canada in the near future?

A.—It is quite possible that he may have been recommended for the above decorations, but the recommendations may have been rejected. Many soldiers at the front are recommended for bravery, but all do not receive medals as a reward for same. Unless your husband was gazetted in orders as having been awarded either of the above decorations, it would be useless for you to write to the war office. However, if the award was gazetted it would facilitate matters if you wrote to the war office, London, regarding same. It would be advisable for your husband to apply through his commanding officer overseas in order to ascertain why he has not received the decorations, provided that he has been gazetted as entitled to receive them.

MITCHELL. Q.—1. What will be done with deserters apprehended after the war?

2. Will they be deprived of their citizenship and the right to sue in the civil courts?

A.—1. The punishment to be meted out to such offenders is at present under consideration by the authorities, but no definite procedure has as yet been announced.

2. Both the above punishments have been suggested to the authorities, and are being considered by them at the present time, although no decision has been announced.

READER. Q.—Is a soldier allowed to wear a ring emblematic of a fraternity of which he is a member?

2. Is he permitted to wear on his coat a small button of the same design?

A.—1. Yes.

2. No; only military decorations are permitted to be worn by all ranks on the tunic.

ONE IN DOUBT. Q.—Is an N. C. O. or man entitled to subsistence allowance while on leave to the United States or in Canada for a period of seven days or longer?

A.—Cases such as the above are decided on their individual merits. The soldier involved should apply to his commanding officer for the above allowance, and he will deal with the case and decide whether he should receive the allowance or not. There would be no harm done in applying, as the case might be considered favorably by the commanding officer.

FARMER. Q.—1. I am out on harvest leave which expires on November 22. Now that the war is over must I report to my unit on that date?

2. Will I be called to go overseas?

3. How long before I shall be discharged?

5. On discharge can I retain my uniform or must I return it to the military authorities?

A.—1. Unless your leave is extended by the military authorities (of which you will be notified) you must return to your unit upon expiration of the leave, as you are not yet discharged from the service.

2. It is not likely that you will be sent overseas unless unforeseen events in the present peace proceedings necessitate the same.

3. If you have your uniform and have not permission to wear civilian clothes you should wear the former, as it is against military regulations for you to do otherwise.

4. When your services are no longer required by the military authorities, which depends entirely upon how sincere Germany was in her recent peace proposals.

5. Present military regulations are to the effect that all Canadian soldiers who have not served overseas on discharge must return their full kit, and equipment (including uniform), to the quartermaster of their unit upon receipt of their discharge.

SEVERAL CARS DERAILED AT SHEDDEN

SHEDDEN, Nov. 19.—What might have been a serious accident occurred on the M. C. R. on Sunday morning at the early hour of 7:30, when a freight train traveling at the rate of about forty miles an hour was partially derailed, causing considerable damage to the roadbed.

About one mile east of the Shedden station one of the journals broke under one of the box cars, and caught in the track, derailing several cars. Fortunately the cars were not turned over. Only one car, loaded with beef, was broken open.

The auxiliary from St. Thomas was immediately sent to the scene of the accident, and had the track repaired by 4 in the afternoon, blocking the west track for some nine hours.

There was no one injured in the accident.

Frank Miller, aged 12, eldest son of Walter Miller of Dover, who had the misfortune to have his eyeball badly burned from a firecracker which exploded in his hand, is as yet unable to see, and the specialist has little hopes of his recovering the sight, but is doing everything possible.

KLEPTOMANIAC IS PLEA ADVANCED FOR THEFT OF RING

ST. THOMAS, Nov. 19.—After a remand of one week, the man who pleaded guilty to stealing a ring from the second-hand store of G. W. Durkee, appeared today and was allowed to go on payment of a fine of $25. According to his counsel, Andrew Grant, the accused is honest, but is a kleptomaniac, though he steals only at certain times, when he is seized with an uncontrollable desire to take something. His counsel told the court that the man makes $175 per month, and is well provided for with a handsome bank account, so that he would not be in need of the price of the ring.

Fellow-workmen from the Michigan Central shops testified to the man's honesty. They stated than on certain occasions he had been known to walk around an engine and takes tools from other workmen without realizing that he was committing any wrong.

NIGHT CLASSES NOT TO OPEN TILL 1919

ST. THOMAS, Nov. 19.—The board of education announces that the night classes arranged to begin on October 15, and postponed on account of the epidemic of influenza, have been postponed further until after Christmas. Inspector J. A. Taylor, who, with Dr. Voaden, will have charge of the teaching staff of these classes, finds that it would be unwise at the present time to begin the classes, owing to the fact that people have not returned to the same confident feeling that existed before the advent of the epidemic.

The trustees have also decided that returned soldiers should be encouraged to take advantage of the technical education offered at these classes.
