ITS ORIGIN, ITS AIMS, AND ITS GROWTH

The Canadian Club, of Toronto, was formed in the fall of 1897, to provide for the young men of the city an opportunity to discuss public questions on a non-partisan basis. It has since developed along broader lines than those laid down by its founders; there are fewer discussions among the members, and more attention is given to providing discussion by experts and publicists.

The Canadian Club movement dates back to December, 1892, when independent attempts were made to establish national clubs in Montreal, Toronto and Hamilton. The first two organizations were not long lived, although "The Canadian National League," of Montreal, did exercise an influence for a time. The Canadian Club of Hamilton, of which Mr. C. R. McCullough was the leading spirit, was more successful, and was the leading national organization in Ontario for some years. The objects of that Club were "the encouragement of the study of the history, literature, art, music and national resources of Canada, the recognition of native worth and talent, and the fostering of a patriotic Canadian sentiment." It was intended to be a "debating or mutual improvement society, with social features founded on the basis of unpartisan patriotic public spirit." The Hamilton Club did an excellent work, and its influence flowed far beyond the confines of that city. It still pursues a most useful career.

When Mr. Sanford Evans, one of the founders of the Hamilton Club came to Toronto, he advocated the founding of a similar club here. He called a meeting at the Rosin House, but found opinion divided. National sentiment was not strong. Undaunted, he planned a dinner, at which the whole matter would be discussed. Even there he found croakers. Nevertheless, Mr. Evans persisted, and a committee drew up a constitution and a list of officers, which were presented at another gathering held in the upper story of Mason-Risch's warerooms, on King Street. That night some twenty-three members signed the roll, and deposited their fee with the treasurer, the first two names being those of John A. Cooper and W. Sanford Evans. The former was selected as President and the latter as First Vice-President.

The work began in earnest. The idea was to have monthly meetings and the weekly luncheon was not thought of. At first the Club dragged seriously. To cultivate enthusiasm the President suggested dining together once a week to talk over Club matters and get acquainted. This was in February. These luncheons, however were not constitutional at first and monthly meetings were held. A series of public meetings was also inaugurated. A banquet was also held on January 26th, 1898, with Sir Oliver Mowat, Mr. William Ogilvie (who had just returned from the Yukon with the report of his discoveries), Mr. A. E. Kemp, Mr. J. W. Flavelle, Mr. (now Judge) Neil McCrimmon and Mr. Evans as the chief speakers. On March 3rd, another public meeting was held in St. George's Hall at which four of the members, Mr. Bain, Mr. Colquhoun, Professor Wilmott and others read papers. On March 26th, Mr. Sanford Evans and Professor Shortt addressed another public gathering. On June 1st Sir Gilbert Parker was banqueted and the first year of the Club closed on November 1st with, according to the treasurer's report, a balance of 87 cents out of a total of $51 fees received.

In the second year of the Club the membership grew steadily, with Mr. Sanford Evans as President, and Mr. A. E. Huestis as Secretary. It was enthusiasm and earnestness that were desired, not numbers. The officers decided that the Club should be allowed to grow slowly so that all the members would be thoroughly acquainted with each other. The weekly luncheon grew more and more important, and by January, 1899, it had become the regular meeting day. Thus the present main feature of the Club was a natural growth. At first there was no particular guest. Conversation was encouraged and occasionally some person made a short speech. Then the members were encouraged to bring any out-of-town guests who might happen to be available. Occasionally a guest was asked to say something. Then the guest was sought because he could say something. Finally it became the custom to have a speaker for each luncheon.

During 1899-1900 Mr. George Wilkie was President, and Mr. George A. Kingston, Secretary. From an average attendance of 25 the number at the weekly luncheons grew to 45, and the membership expanded from 140 to over 190. This was the year of the beginning of the Boer War, and a mass meeting of citizens was held in Massey Hall, at which Mr. Wilkie presided, and at which Dr. Parkin, the Hon. Mr. Fitzpatrick, Mr. Sanford Evans, and Mr. E. B. Osler, M.P., spoke. Later a patriotic concert was held, the proceeds of which went to the National Fund then being raised for the benefit of our soldiers in South Africa. Mr. Kipling cabled a poem to be read at this gathering.

In 1900-1901 Mr. W. E. Rundle presided over the Club, Mr. W. R. P. Parker acting as Secretary. During the regime of Mr. Rundle the membership grew to 270 and the average attendance to 83. Among the prominent men who addressed the Club were Principal Grant, of Queen's University, Sir John G. Bourinot, Rev. Herbert S. Bigelow, of Cincinnati; Hon. Geo. W. Ross, Mr. Duncan Campbell Scott, Hon. Tom I. Johnson, of Cleveland, Hon. F. E. Alfred Evan-turel, Dr. Benjamin Russell, M.P., Hon. Howard G. Crosby, New York City, and Professor Goldwin Smith. The questions discussed at the luncheons were chiefly those pertaining to municipal and government ownership and operation of public franchises, Canada's relation to the Empire, The Confederation of Newfoundland, Technical Education, and French Canada.

During 1901-1902 Mr. S. Casey Wood directed the affairs of the Club, Mr. Huestis again being Secretary. In the first two months the attendance averaged about 80; but in the last two months of his presidency this had grown to 110. The membership expanded from 270 to 450. The chief events of the year were an "At Home" in the gallery of the Ontario Society of Arts, at which 300 people attended to see and encourage Canadian art, and a banquet to Sir Gilbert Parker, at which 220 persons were present. Among the speakers of that season were the late Rev. Dr. Robertson, Prof. Goldwin Smith, Dr. Drummond, Hon. R. L. Borden, Prof. Clark, Mr. B. E. Walker, and Auditor-General McDougall.

During 1902-1903 Mr. D. Bruce Macdonald was the President, and Mr. A. E. Huestis, Secretary, for the third time. The membership grew from 450 to 800, with a waiting list of 150. Every young man in Toronto wanted to be a member. The average attendance grew from 110 to 188, and the highest recorded number at any one luncheon was 345. Among the speakers in this year were: Prof. J. W. Robertson, Booker T. Washington, Hon. J. W. Longley, Prof. Goldwin Smith, Prof. Charles G. D. Roberts, the Rev. Charles Gordon (Ralph Connor), Ben. Greet, and Judge Hodgins. The banquet to Mr. A. B. Aylesworth, at the King Edward Hotel, which was attended by 350 persons, was the final success of a successful year.

Mr. W. R. P. Parker was the President for the season 1903-1904, and Mr. E. J. Hathaway was Secretary.

The membership increased, according to the Secretary's Annual Report, from 800 to 1,090. The average attendance this season was 222. The record attendance at any luncheon of the Club was on February 22nd, when there were 400 present.

During the season the Committee decided to publish extended reports of the addresses delivered before the Club, and issued these in three pamphlets in December, February and May. 1,500 of each of these pamphlets were sent to all members of Club in good standing. The remaining copies unfortunately were destroyed in the great fire in April, together with the old minute books, letters and early records of the Club.

Among the speakers of the season were: Hon. G. W. Ross, E. B. Osler, M.P., Col. Denison, Prof. Shortt, Hon. Clifford Sifton, Hon. J. I. Tarte, Hon. G. E. Foster, Sir Thos. Shaughnessy, Prof. Goldwin Smith, Ald. Ames, of Montreal; Dr. Thos. Barclay, of Paris; Hon. Sydney Fisher, Hon. S. H. Blake, Sir Sanford Fleming, Lt.-Col. Ponton, Robert Reford, J. S. Ewart, K.C., J. W. Tyrrell, and Hon. Senator Ford, of New York.

A very successful "At Home" was held in the Normal School Buildings on the evening of March 17th, 1904, at which 750 were present. The entertainment consisted of readings by the following well-known Canadian authors:—Messrs. W. Wilfred Campbell, Norman Duncan and Mrs. Jean Blewett; also, orchestral and vocal music. Refreshments were served in two buffets, and the entire building was thrown open to the Club guests.
