Waterdown High School William McMonies

A news item in a Hamilton paper announces the marriage of William Brownie Forbes, B. A., who has been engaged as Principal of our High School, and Miss Fanny Moore, a nurse of New York City.

Mr. Forbes has two sons by a former marriage. Both he and his present wife are Ontario people, having been raised in the same school section.

Principal Forbes comes very highly recommended, as may be seen from the following testimonials with examination records in possession of the High School Board, and we believe that a bright future is in store for our school during the coming year.

Georgetown, May 7th, 1919.

This certifies that Wm. B. Forbes, B. A., taught successfully in the Georgetown High School during the 1917-1918 term, taking the Science Department. The following record of his work will prove the above statement.

Upper School—Part II Science (Faculty Entrance). 11 candidates passed, 2 taking honors. The entire class was successful.

Honor Matriculation—Two candidates wrote and were successful.

Middle School—9 candidates passed Entrance to Normal.

Matriculation (Junior)—2 passed, 2 took partial.

Lower School—8 candidates passed.

Ralph Ross, B. A.

H. S. Principal.

Markham, Oct. 14th, 1914.

To whom it may concern:
Mr. Wm. B. Forbes has taught Science in the Markham High School for three years ending mid-summer 1914, and has been very much appreciated both in the school and the town. During the years referred to the school has made a fine record as follows:

1913

9 passed Lower School Examination
8 passed Faculty of Education
18 passed Normal Entrance
11 passed Junior Matriculation
6 passed Partial Matriculation

1914

13 passed Lower School Examination
21 passed Faculty of Education, 22 wrote.
11 passed Normal Entrance
6 passed Junior Matriculation
2 passed Honor Matriculation, 2 wrote.

We recommend him to any Board who need a teacher in his line.

Miss Agnes Clark is spending her vacation in Muskoka.

Miss Alma Gumbert has returned from a visit with her cousins in Hamilton.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Rayner spent Sunday in Troy.

Mr. Stanley Surerus motored to Elmerson on Sunday last.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Betzner and family spent the holiday at Stouffville.

Christ Church Sunday School held their picnic at the Beach on Tuesday of this week.

The Holiday

Waterdown was certainly akin to Goldsmith's "Deserted Village" last Tuesday. Fully ninety per cent of the population journeyed to Wabasso Park to attend the Union Sunday School picnic. The committees had made excellent arrangements for the event, which was certainly a decided success. Tables were laid on the lawn in front of the pavilion and fairly teemed with good things, which were done justice to by the kiddies and also the older people.

After the inner man had been fully satisfied an adjournment was made to the lawn where an excellent program of sports were conducted by the committee in charge, consisting of races, ball games, etc. The different events were keenly contested, especially the soft ball game between two teams of lady players, and the way they lambasted the pellet was a sight to behold. The services of male friends was secured to do the hurling and back stopping. Messrs. W. Drummond and E. Sparks were in the box while "Foxy" Griffin was at the receiving end. Foxy, naturally bashful, blushed as compliments were hurled at him by fair admirers. The score, we are told, was 50 to 10.

The running races were exciting and resulted in some hair raising finishes. But the event of the day was the hard ball game between the married men and the Waterdown Juniors, and much to the discomfort of the latter, the aspirants for Junior honors were defeated by a score of 16 to 9. This is conclusive evidence that it is the duty of all unmarried men to get busy and secure a life partner. For the married men, Newsted pitched, Torrance catcher and Bell on 1st base, certainly played a National League caliber game of ball, the rest of the team playing a perfect game in the field. For the Juniors Featherston pitched excellent and was ably supported by Gordon Foster whose only fault was that he could not keep his eyes off the girls, a number of the other members of the team being afflicted with the same disease, hence the disastrous result. The game was umpired by Mr. Ash, Gordon of the National League, and all his decisions were un-disputed.

The roller coaster, merry-go-round and ice cream parlors were well patronized, as was also the boat trips on the Bay. The day was an ideal one and everything off smoothly. It is safe to say everyone thoroughly enjoyed the outing, which was the most successful Union Sunday School picnic ever held by the Waterdown churches.

The Waterdown Women's Institute held their regular monthly meeting on Wednesday afternoon last in the Parish hall of Grace church. The matter of having boys collect waste paper again was discussed, and it was decided to start in September.

The following choice program was rendered. Paper by Miss Iva Langton on "Work at McDonald College" A paper by Mrs. W. G. Spence on "Woman's Work on the Farm", and piano duets by the Misses Everitt, and Mrs. R. J. Vance and Mrs. P. H. Davidson.

At the conclusion of the Institute meeting, the members of the Community League met and discussed the transferring to the village the property recently purchased on Dundas street. It was decided that the building committee meet the council.

William McMonies, East Flamboro's oldest resident, passed away at his home here on Wednesday morning, July 28th.

Deceased was the second son of the late James McMonies, M. P., and was born in Nottingham, England on December 14th, 1832, coming to Canada with his parents at an early age. They settled near Waterdown on the 4th concession of East Flamboro, and the father with the boys help cleared 200 acres of land and erected a saw-mill on the farm from which a large lumber trade was carried on for a number of years. After the father entered Parliament the business was left in charge of his son William, which he successfully carried on for a long time.

In 1867 he married Miss S. J. Horning, daughter of the late Wm. G. Horning, and started in business for himself, eventually buying a farm on the Port Flamboro road, where he carried on the farming and fruit growing industry until about 15 years ago, when on account of failing sight he retired, and had since made his home with his son, Mr. G. McMonies.

The late Mr. McMonies joined the church at an early age and for a time was a faithful worker in the Union Sunday School here, and a life-long worker in the different churches in Waterdown.

The funeral, which was largely attended, took place on Friday afternoon last from his late residence to Waterdown cemetery, the Rev. Mr. Poole of the Methodist church conducting the services at the home and grave. The pallbearers were six nephews of deceased; Thos. Allen, Wm. G. Horning, Ollie Horning, Blake Binkley, W. A. Ryckman and Watson Hamilton.

The Old Home Paper

When I read the city papers with their headlines flaring out, I'm so proud of modern things I could dance and shout; they are clever, wise and witty, and they give me all the news and a little dash of science and the rambling of the muse; but the thing that sets me smiling and that will not let me frown is to get the weekly paper from the old home town. There's the good old Millgrove items and the happenings at Carlisle and the news that Hiram Wiggins is in bed with a chill, that Jim Jones is stepping these days because he is a dad, that Miss Jenkins gave a party and a pleasant time was had—oh, I feel that life means something more than money and renown when I get the weekly paper from the old home town. It's a long and lonesome distance that my weary steps have strayed, but the town has its memories that never, never fade. I can see the wooden buildings and the quaint uncrowded street, and shady loading corners where the neighbors used to meet, and it seems to me that life puts on its brightest glory crown, when I get the weekly paper from dear Old Waterdown.

Wabasso Park was the scene of a heavy artillery fire on Saturday last, when the W. A. A. opened up a barrage on the Tungsten Lammers, and shattered their defence by pouring in 27 runs in four and a half periods. Four home runs by Roy and Vern Willis, Jerry Burns and Fisher were features of the game. The Lammers were one man short on entering the field, and even with Ash, Gordon filling in at second for the losers, could not stop the W. A. A. attack, which ended in the score of 27 to 4.

AN HISTORIC PAGEANT.

250th Anniversary of Hudson Bay Company Marked.

With Indian fur brigades and York boats laden with peltries on Red river, council fires burning at Lower Fort Garry, and the smoke of the peace pipe scenting the air, the romance of wilderness days will live again at the celebration of the 250th anniversary of the Hudson Bay Company, which will be inaugurated in Winnipeg May 3.

Sir Robert Kindersley, G.B.E., latest of the distinguished line of Hudson Bay Company governors that began with Prince Rupert, valiant champion of the house of Stuart in the Cromwellian wars, will come from England and take part in the river pageant and in the subsequent street pageants which will be held successively in Edmonton, Calgary, Vancouver and Victoria.

The Red river pageant, which promises to be one of the most interesting historical spectacles ever staged in Canada, will start from the site of old Fort Garry, early capital of the company's once vast empire and about which Winnipeg grew, and pass down stream eighteen miles to Lower Fort Garry. Tricked out in bravery of paint, feathers and beaded buckskin, Indians from a dozen tribes will man York boats and canoes in fur brigade formation. To do honor to the company to which their ancestors paid loyal allegiance, Crees will come from the shores of Hudson Bay; Swampy Crees from James Bay, Ojibways from the Lake Superior fur country, plain Crees from Northern Saskatchewan, Blackfeet, Piegans and Assiniboines from the prairies and the Rocky Mountains, and tribesmen from the Athabasca and British Columbia.

A flotilla of freight boats piled high with bales of furs will trail in the wake of the York boats in charge of factors and trappers in pioneer costumes. As it glides in long procession through a countryside famous in Hudson Bay traditions, past the site of old Fort Douglas, the scenes of Lord Selkirk's Red River settlements and the battlefield of Seven Oaks, where Governor Semple and twenty men fell in conflict with their rivals of the Northwest Company, the pageant will seem to sail out of the past of 250 years ago.

When it reaches Lower Fort Garry, whose stone buildings and battlemented stone walls still preserve the picturesqueness of early days, two ancient brass cannons at the gate will boom a salute from their rusty throats. Within the walls of the old stronghold where the first treaty was signed between Canada and the western Indians in 1871, Governor Kindersley will seal anew the ancient friendship between the Redmen and the company by smoking the calumet of peace. The pipe, specially designed for the occasion, will bear carved upon its stem the totems of all the tribes and will be presented to the governor as a souvenir. Sir Robert will confer upon each of the braves a medal struck in honor of the anniversary, and at a council at which the Indians will squat upon the ground in a wide semi-circle, will reply to orations by the sachems and chieftains. After the speeches, the Indians will present a wampum belt to the governor in ratification of their pledges of fealty, and will partake of an old-fashioned feast.

Flirts With Sudden Death.
James Drysdale, driver for a Lethbridge fruit firm, was delivering bananas a few days ago when what he thought to be a ripe banana dropped down his neck. He reached and retrieved a yellow-and-green snake three feet long, which he held in his hand while he examined it thoroughly. It was a copperhead, whose bite is instant death. That the snake was numb with cold was probably his salvation.

Toronto Officer Led Way Into Sea of Marmora.

The first unit of the British navy to pass up to ports on the Sea of Marmora after the declaration of the armistice was a motor patrol launch, which was in command of a Canadian officer—Lieut. Lawrence Goad, of the Royal Motor Boat Patrol, who comes from Toronto.

As the launch landed its crew, the Greek women of the district strewed the way with flowers, and an old Greek priest came and paid homage. Evidences of the Turkish abominations were to be seen on the passage through the Dardanelles, the bodies of Anzacs and Imperial troops, who had fallen in the glorious attempt at Gallipoli, having been dug up merely for the clothing which was upon them.

At the time the armistice was signed Lieut. Goad was patrolling the Bulgarian coast. A great attack had been planned, and preliminary preparations were being made, but the cessation of hostilities frustrated this. For over three years Lieut. Goad had been on this patrol work in the Aegean Sea. At Mudros he frequently came in contact with the Canadian hospitals, one of which came from Toronto. In addition to keeping a constant vigilance for mines and submarines, he carried British spies, landed them, and then picked them up again when they had spent a week or two on shore. He was busy on mine sweeping after peace was declared, and said there were probably about ten thousand mines strewn in these seas.

This record is more interesting when the circumstances surrounding his joining the navy are known. A Toronto friend in London, Mr. Lachlan Gibb — approached the Admiralty and enquired whether Mr. Goad could enter the Royal Motorboat Patrol. The latter had had considerable yachting experience. A verbal assurance was given, and Mr. Goad reached London, and went with confidence to the Admiralty. But there was a rebuff; there was no room, it was said, and he could not be accepted.

The sympathy of the late Earl Grey was enlisted, and through the medium of his nephew, Capt. Rex Benson, Whitehall red tape was finally vanquished. Lieut. Goad was put in charge of a patrol. It was only a converted collier. At Malta they were told three U-boats were waiting. These "got" two of the colliers, but Lieut. Goad's was the lucky third, though he had that trying experience of seeing his companions hit while, acting under Admiralty orders, they were obliged to get themselves out of danger.

With him was also A. C. Turner, of Toronto, but although they were both accepted, their ways parted after the initial stages. After three years of such active service without a leave, Lieut. Goad has returned to be demobilized.

Camping.

When one goes camping with friends it is best to determine beforehand which of the party snores most quietly before choosing a partner for your shelter-half, which is the army word for tent. W. Gerard Chapman, the author, neglected to do this before leaving for the Algonquin district when he went camping with friends. His bunk-mate proved to be a pastmaster at snoring. After he had retired, the small tent vibrated and the ground quivered at the rumbling disturbance and Mr. Chapman was unable to sleep. Remembering an ancient belief that whistling often quieted a snoring sleeper he tried this remedy with but temporary and spasmodic effect. The next morning Mr. Chapman was up bright and early. He chanced to overhear the head of the party confiding to a friend who had come over from a nearby camp: "I got a pair o' grand musicians wid me. Wan of them snores—like a saw-mill workin' up knotty spruce, whilst the other wan whistles in his sleep. 'Tis rare harmony. I make no doubt, but between the two of them song-birds not a wink did I be after gettin'; not a wink the whole night through!"

Origin of Indian Summer.

The following explanation of the origin of the term "Indian summer" is sent in by a correspondent: When the Pilgrim Fathers landed in New England they naturally knew little of the climatic conditions of their new home. With October came the first flurries of snow. The frost nipped the woods, and the chill of the air foretold the coming of winter. "We will now have winter," it is related that one of the band remarked. But the friendly Indians pointed to the skies and to the west and told the Pilgrims that summer would come again before the winter. And they were right. In the last days of October, it grew warm again. The air was filled with slanting sunshine. The world seemed wrapped in an atmosphere of sleepy warmth. The Pilgrims looked forward and remarked, "Lo, the Indian's summer."

It's an Ill Wind—

After the big storm on November 29, the fishermen at Port Stanley made huge catches of fish and it is believed the storm blew the shoals of fish to the shores. The first boat in after the storm brought in five tons and the average catch for the next four days were fifty tons per day.

A "DEMOUNTABLE SHIP."

Strange Vessel Will Be Built of Its Own Cargo

The brain of the well-known Canadian financier, John Arbuthnot, of Victoria, B.C., has conceived a new type of ship for the transportation of vast quantities of lumber. He has labelled it the "demountable ship" and it will be about the most weird craft that ever sailed the Seven Seas. In reality it will be nothing more than a huge raft, built up in the shape of a boat with the cargo itself. Two gasoline engines will propel the craft, aided by sails spread from four masts, stepped in the cargo.

The first ship of this novel type is now being constructed on the Pacific coast and is destined for Australia. Its voyage across the boisterous Pacific will be watched with great interest. If it proves a success other craft will follow in which even the process of shipping lumber offshore will be revolutionized. The fact that Lloyd's has decided to take a risk and insure the craft seems to augur well for its success.

Mr. Arbuthnot designed the ship in order to overcome the shortage of tonnage and also the high freight rates, which are the bugbear of the lumber industry at the present time.

The first of Mr. Arbuthnot's demountable ships will be 250 feet long, with a beam of 60 feet, and a depth of 25 feet. It will contain 5,000,000 feet of lumber. It is the designer's ultimate hope that craft, 600 feet in length and containing 10,000,000 feet of lumber, will be constructed.

The vessel can be completely built in the water. With the first ship, however, Mr. Arbuthnot has decided to begin it on an improvised slip on a beach adjacent to a mill and after getting it shaped to launch it and carry on the construction. The ship will be flat-bottomed and will have three keels, the main keel running the entire length of the ship, and the other two keels about three quarters the length. On the keels large crosswise timbers will be bolted closely together. Then will follow eight layers of timbers running the entire length of the ship on top of which will come another layer of crosswise timbers. Iron rods will be run from the keels to this layer of cross timbers and other rods will be driven through the cargo from side to side. In this manner the rigidity of the craft will be obtained. By extending the length of the timbers beyond the perpendiculars the necessary overhang for the clipper bow and stern is obtained.

The two gasoline engines will develop about 1,500 horsepower, and it is expected that in favorable weather the ship will make about seven knots an hour.

As soon as the ship reaches her destination she will be taken to pieces. The lumber will be cut into marketable sizes. The engines, rigging, bolts, chains, rods and cabin fixtures will be sent back to the port where the ship was built for use in the construction of another craft.
