Mary and America

The name of Mary is curiously and constantly associated with the men who developed America. That is the reason she has been chosen patroness of our country.

Columbus' own ship was called St. Mary of the Conception. Every evening, on that epoch-making voyage, all on board sang the "Salve Regina." Although Columbus named the first island at which he touched for Christ, he called the second Conception, in honor of His Mother.

In 1863 the Jesuits placed their united American missions under the patronage of the Blessed Virgin. . . . assist our project of finding the mouth of this grand river," wrote Marquette of his exploration of the course of the Mississippi, "we shall name it the Conception."

"Star of the Sea" was the designation of the vessel in which English Catholic settlers embarked. Their outpost was named St. Mary's, and to this day the country that surrounds it is called Maryland.

In 1846, the Sixth Provincial Council of Baltimore requested the Holy See to approve of the selection of Mary, conceived without sin, as the patroness of the United States.

We children love Mary, then, not only because we are Catholics but because we are Americans.—The New World.

The colored sunsets and the starry heavens, the beautiful mountains and the shining seas, the fragrant woods and the painted flowers,—they are not half so beautiful as a soul that is serving Jesus out of love, in the wear and tear of common, unpoetic life.—Faber.

The Tongue Slays More Than The Sword

Ill-natured, caustic remarks, unkind words—Oh, that they were more rare! Biting, stinging expressions—oh, that dove-like wings would bear them away from our midst!

Would that such cruel, cynical, discouraging language—language which often hurts more than a blow—would that such were cast out from us, as the legion of devils that then pounced upon the unfortunate herd of swine, and rushed pigs and shoats down a steep place into the sea!

"We whisper and hint and chuckle and grin at a brother's shame," and particularly a sister's. We cannot be kind to each other here for the space of an hour. Oh, if you and I and the rest of us but knew the value of our kind interpretations, of our cheering smiles, of our gentle, soothing words! What a great grand old world of ours this would be, if there were more kind words in it!

I believe that many a saint in heaven has been safely landed beyond the gates of pearl and gold by a kind, helpful word. Just as in "Salvation Nell," the poor, dragged drudge of the slums is saved from becoming a hysteric and revelling in the gross mud-honey of a life of shame, because "Halleluiah Maggie" speaks kind words to her.

Many a soul that is lost in the forest of crime, behind whom the woods have closed up and hidden away hope in the impenetrable shadows—a soul that peers ahead, only to find there darkness which can be felt—many such souls would be shining lights of good example in this world, splendid cities built upon hills for all to see, and would be hallowed saints in the land beyond the grave, had you or I or somebody else said a kind word at the proper time, and left a cruel word unspoken.

The poet well calls us "long-necked geese of the world that are ever hissing disparage," because our natures are little. And "poisonous flies" that cloud about a man's head, and whether he heed or not, attempt to impede his progress, mental or moral.

At this moment, somewhere in the world, a frail human heart is drifting, lone and friendless, through dark, wild waves of temptation. The little barque is perilously close to the rocks. Corrupt hands are lighting false bescons.

A kind word would say to that storm of trial and temptation, "Peace, be still!" And the angry sullen deep would hush its voice, and a great calm come, and the little craft steer safely to shore. But the word is never said. And there is another wreck, a wreck for time and eternity.

How great a matter a little "frankness" is! A tiny match can blow down a city like Troy. And the apostle calls our tongue a fire—a fire lighted of hell—fire that brings ruin and death.

But the tongue, unruly member though it is, can be tamed and cured, if we only begin our reformation properly. That reformation of our evil tongue must be done at the heart.

From Spain comes word of the death of the Right Rev. Abbot Don Anacleto Salazar, who was within four months of his 104th birthday. Believed to be the oldest priest in the world, Abbot Salazar, who was born in July 1811, was ordained in 1835 and had spent eighty years in the priesthood.

Shortly after his ordination and after becoming a canon regular of the Lateran, he was cruelly expelled from his canonry but returned to it fifty years later. On his 100th birthday Don Salazar was raised to the abbatial dignity, and on that day he sang Pontifical High Mass.

"Some day a giant familiar with the history of both church and estate will write a treatise showing how the documents, so frequently and highly praised—the Magna Charta, the Bill of Rights, the Declaration of Independence and the Federal Constitution—owe their existence to convictions which rose within the orthodox church and which crystallized at length into formal creeds. These creeds, with few exceptions, are not ethical but doctrinal, and hence they contain small explicit reference to our social and political rights; but history shows that such reform follows in the wake of religious progress. . . . progress has come largely through the orthodox Church. By the orthodox Church I mean roughly the Church which subscribes to the Apostles' Creed."

Under the presidency of Cardinal Begin and Archbishop Bruchesi, the National Canadian Eucharistic League will meet in Montreal on July 13. Sessions will be held during three days, and papers will be presented both in French and English. The Congress is not international but Canadian, while intended chiefly for the clergy, an invitation has also been issued to the laity. The Holy Father has written a beautiful letter expressing his approval of the Congress and conveying his best wishes for its fullest success. In the English sections, the opening address will be made by Rev. Thomas Burke, C. S. P. of Toronto, and among the speakers will be Bishop McDonald of Victoria, Bishop Morrison of Antigonish, Bishop O'Brien of Peterboro, Bishop O'Leary of Charlottetown and Bishop Ryan of Pembroke. No doubt the Congress will do much to oppose the spread of modern irreligion by directing the thoughts of all to the Tabernacle, America.

Many devout Catholics all over the world daily appeal to the Blessed Mother of God, using the beautiful prayer, the "Salve Regina." How many know the author was Blessed Herman the Cripple, or Uontractus, who was the son of Count Wolfrad II of Verigen and his worthy wife, Hiltrude. He was born in the year 1008. Early in life the boy was the victim of a severe illness which stunted his growth and left him a hopeless cripple.

Seeing Ourselves

One of the few recorded prayers of a famous Scotch poet was to the effect that it would be a good thing to see ourselves as others see us. He, however, admitted that the results would not be conducive to devotion.

Many another good thing, too, besides devotion, would go with this true reflection of oneself; self-satisfaction, glowing autobiographies, comforting assurances from, conspicuous, laudatory interviews with one's own reflections, patience and much unbounded contentment. "Why do you bring a suit for libel two years after you were called a hippopotamus?" asked the judge. "Well, your honor," replied the plaintiff, "it was only yesterday that for the first time I saw the animal." The number of suits for libel against self-reflection would certainly crowd the docket if seeing ourselves as others see us came to be the fashion.

There are immense difficulties to producing in a man this true reflection of himself. How many editors have succeeded in making their rejected contributors see themselves as they have been seen? We pause for a reply, but as eternity is long, let us ask rather whether it is the mirror or my lady's eyes which are responsible for what parades the avenues. Here is a tale which gives one reason why self-ignorance has so long a life: There was once a lad who must have derived his ideas of man's anatomy from an onion. At any rate, he believed that everyone grew up by building around himself another layer. If you peeled off the man, you could find, he thought, the boy. In certain cases there would be numerous layers, and the labor would be immense, for example, to get from an ex-president to a baby. But apply that notion to self and try to peel off the layers built up around the true knowledge of what you are. Take a cross section of your soul and you would have to cut through successes, dreams, ideals, flatteries, congratulations, dotings of fond parents, ambitions, deceptions, various hand-shakings and shoulder-clappings of friends, until you finally reached the shrunken and wrinkled kernel of self. No wonder the Greeks admired the man who said, "Know thyself" and considered him one of the seven wise men of the world.

There was a certain Spanish soldier who had hidden himself behind a life of distractions, of loves, hates, gambings, dissipations, day-dreaming, novel-reading, quarrelling, soldiering. He broke down all those intrenchments and got to a knowledge of self, but it was a heroic struggle. The process started with a cannon-ball, and a long sickness, and the process ended by his giving up home and wealth and honors, by fasting and meditation on Christ's life and by many months of retirement alone in a cave. He wrote a book in which he formulated the science of seeing yourself as God sees you, which is an improvement on the Scotch formula. The Spaniard was Ignatius of Loyola; his recipe for self-knowledge is called a retreat. In those exercises he does not seem to have left out much of his own experience except the cannon-ball. He would likely use that in extreme cases. Surgery, however, and prayer and fasting and exile and silence and caves of solitude are used to cut away self-deceptions. Besides this external surgery, as it might be called, there is an immense amount of internal surgery also, but we can not go into that here.

Retreats will not be popular until people cease to be afraid of hippopotamuses. There was a short retreat given three upon a time. The supreme excellence of the director dispensed with long explanations. His exercitants saw themselves as God saw them, and they dropped their stones and went out one after another, beginning with the oldest. Self-seeing is a potent discourager of stonethrowing.—F. P. Donnelly, S. J.

BAD BLOOD

Is The Cause of Boils and Pimples.

When boils or pimples start to break out on your face or body you may be sure that the blood is in an impure state, and that before you can get rid of them it will be necessary for you to purify it by using a good medicinal that will drive all the impurities out of the system.

Burdock Blood Bitter is a blood purifying remedy. One that has been on the market for the past forty years. One that is known from one end of the country to the other as the best blood purifier in existence. It cures boils, pimples and all other diseases arising from bad blood.

Mr. Andrew E. Collins, River Glens, N.B., was troubled with boils for years. In fact, did not know what it was until he tried it. It cured him.

Mr. Otto Boyer, York, Ont., had tried several kinds of medicine without success. Two bottles of Burdock Blood Bitter finished them. B.B.B. is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

In Korea until comparatively recently a man was not allowed the dignity of trousers until he had taken to himself a wife. Your gay bachelor had to wear a skirt and braud himself in the public view as one who had not yet attained a position in which he could support a wife.

The Old Fashioned Purging
and Gripping Action of Pills
Is Now Done Away With.

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills gently unlock the secretions, clear away all waste and effete matter from the system and give tone and vitality to the whole intestinal tract.

They do this by acting directly on the liver, and making the bile pass through the bowels instead of allowing it to get into the blood, and thus causing constipation, jaundice, catarrh of the stomach, and similar troubles.

Mrs. L. M. Ratchford, Peterboro, Ont., writes: "Having been troubled for years with constipation, and trying many different remedies which did me no good whatever, I was asked to try Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills. I have found them most beneficial. For they are indeed splendid pills, and I can gladly recommend them to all people who suffer from constipation."

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are sold in a vial, 5 vials for $1.00, at all drug stores or dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

The Canadian Shoe Wins

Evidence that Canadian soldiers at the front prefer the Canadian shoe to that furnished from British army stores, continues to accumulate. A Hamilton paper quotes a soldier who enlisted at Petrolia as saying that he can march half as far again in the Canadian made shoe as in the English shoe, and that among the men at the front Canadian army shoes are at a premium. This testimony is followed by the London, Ont. Free Press, which published a letter from Sergt. Bert Ward of that city to his brother in which he says: "What the boys here would like to know is whether the people who are talking about graft would sooner have the boys wear out two pair of Canadian shoes and have good feet or one pair of English shoes and ruin their feet. It will be remembered that one complaint made by the Liberals against the Canadian shoes was that they were too light. The London soldier answers that in a single sentence,—two pair of Canadian boots and good feet, or one pair of English shoes with feet ruined. Major general Hughes said the Canadian shoes were better adapted for the work in the trenches and every letter coming through from the soldiers at the front endorses his opinion. Liberal newspapers in Canada fostered and encouraged the idea that Canadian shoes were of inferior quality and that the great Canadian shoe industry was made up of grafters and bootlers. Since the real facts commenced to come out those same newspapers have lacked the manliness to say a word in defence of their first contention but are willing to maintain a shamed and sullen silence.—St. John Standard.

Italy at War.

The entrance of Italy into the war, on the side of the Allies had doubtlessly been anticipated in the chancelleries of Europe, and practically by the whole world, for some time. It would seem that her entrance into the fray should provide, Great Britain, France, Belgium and Russia with a powerful ally likely to prove of especial value in the operations in the Dardanelles. Also it will close a gateway by which Austria has been receiving large quantities of supplies. The importance of these facts is not to be underestimated. In the active campaign on land or sea Italy should have a fine showing. Her army, on war footing, numbers 3,920,000 men made up as follows: Permanent army, 734,401; mobile militia, 320,170; territorial militia, 2,275,631. Four armies have already been organized, each of from two to four army corps and one division of cavalry. It is likely that the first line of troops will include something in the vicinity of three quarters of a million men, while the second, third and fourth lines will be correspondingly strong. On sea, too, Italy is well prepared for whatever may come. She has four dreadnoughts in commission and two more to be completed this year. Those in commission range from 18,000 to 22,000 tons, and are armed with big guns. The guaranteed speed is from 22.5 to 23 knots. Other vessels in the Italian navy include eight warships of the pre-Dreadnought class, nine armored cruisers, sixteen protected cruisers, and ten torpedo boats and twenty-five submarines. The vessels are well equipped and thoroughly capable.

Canadian trade for the month of April reached a total of $65,000,000, an increase of $10,000,000 over the corresponding month last year, according to the monthly statement issued by Hon. J. D. Reid, minister of customs on the 17th inst. The exports of manufactured articles total $13,000,000 as against $4,000,000 for April, 1914, while the total merchandise exported was $28,691,000, compared with $17,751,000 for April, 1914. Imports fell off considerably, the amount of free and dutiable goods being $28,391,000, compared with $36,937,000 for last April. Duty collected was $5,986,000 as against $6,458,000 for April, 1914. Exports of animals and their produce was a feature, the value being $3,312,000, as against $1,860,000 for 1914. Taken as a whole the result of the first month of the new fiscal year is satisfactory from the viewpoint of Canadian trade.

Correspondence between the British minister at the Vatican and the Foreign Office in London discloses the fact that Germany has revoked the agreement, made at the request of the Pope, for the exchange of British and German civilian and incapacitated prisoners, independently of the question of military age. The Prussian minister at the Vatican has explained that the action was taken because Great Britain was not treating German submarine prisoners as ordinary prisoners of war.

From Paris, under date of the 23rd, comes this intelligence: An official note issued tonight regarding the operations in the Dardanelles says that a British submarine has sunk two torpedo boats and two transports, one of which was loaded with troops. The text of the note is as follows: "In the Dardanelles two Turkish divisions commanded by General Liman Von Sanders in person have delivered a furious attack against the British troops near Kalesh Tepe. They were completely repulsed and suffered very heavy losses. At the same time our Allies have won another success on the sea, where one of their submarines has sunk two torpedo boats and two transports, one of which was loaded with troops. "In the southern region of the peninsula our troops at certain points are only a few meters distant from the Turkish trenches; they have, notwithstanding a very powerful defensive organization on the part of the enemy, succeeded in making important progress."

Ottawa advices of the 20th, contain this information: Authentic information received by the militia department from German sources shows that while the Canadians at the battle of Langemarck had over six thousand casualties the loss they inflicted upon the enemy was even more terrible. The Germans had 12,000 killed and 20,000 wounded.

From London comes this information: The Russian Black Sea fleet, according to the news received by the Russian attaché has destroyed, in the Turkish coal mining district, one steamship and thirty-six sailing vessels. At Kozlu a pier elevator and railroad have been destroyed.

For a week or more intelligence from London indicated that a coalition cabinet was in course of formation, and latest advices state that such formation has taken definite shape, but that announcement regarding it will not be made until after the whitest holidays. It is also stated in late intelligence that Winston Spencer Churchill had bid farewell to the heads of the various departments of the Admiralty, thus indicating that he had retired from the post of first Lord of the admiralty. What the changes will be is not given out as above stated; but a general opinion prevails that A.J. Balfour, the Marquis of crew, A. Bonar Law, Austin Chamberlin and the Marquis of Lansdowne, Unionists, will be included in the new ministry.

Progress of the War.

The most important phase of the war, during the past week, has been the entrance thereto of Italy. From day to day, before the actual plunge everything pointed to Italy's joining the Allies, as the following reports show: London, May 20.—Any remaining hope that Italy would maintain her neutrality was abandoned this evening, when the Italian Chamber conferred upon the government extraordinary powers in the event of the outbreak of war. This is considered a vote in favor of war, for which the government has made all preparations and the prospects of which have aroused the greatest enthusiasm throughout Italy. The German and Austrian ambassadors were still in Rome tonight, but, according to despatches from Berlin, their one care now is to arrange for the safety of their nationals remaining in Italy. A formal declaration of war, or perhaps action without a formal declaration, is momentarily expected. At any rate, all preparations for naval and military action have been made on both sides, and it is quite possible that while the Italian premier, Signor Salandra, was explaining to the Chamber and the world the policy of his government the troops on the frontier and the navies in the Adriatic had anticipated diplomatic action. Italy, naturally, will have to look first to her frontier, but it is expected that her entrance into the war will compel Austria, and perhaps Germany also, to withdraw some troops from the Russian frontier. Rome, May 20.—All members of the cabinet maintain absolute silence regarding what step will follow the action of the Chamber of Deputies today in conferring upon the government full powers to make war. Former ministers and other men prominent in public affairs declare, however, that the action of parliament virtually was a declaration of war.

Rome, May 20, 1.25 p.m., via Paris, May 21, 1.15 a.m.—This day will be a historic one for the new Italy. The whole capital is in a state of expectation and ferment. Only in the period of the wars of independence can a parallel be found. When the sitting of the Chamber of Deputies began there were present 482 deputies of out 500, the absentees remaining away on account of illness. The deputies especially applauded were those who wore military uniforms and who had asked permission for leave from their military duties to be present in the Chamber today. The scene in the Chamber was most inspiring. The deputies occupied their places an hour before the opening and discussed the situation with the greatest animation. A few minutes before the session began, the poet Gabriele D'Annunzio, one of the strongest advocates of war, appeared in the rear of the public tribune, which was so crowded that it seemed impossible to squeeze anybody else. But the moment the people saw D'Annunzio, they lifted him over their heads to the first row. The entire chamber, and all those occupied rose and applauded for five minutes, crying: "Viva D'Annunzio." Later thousands sent him their cards, and in return, received his autograph bearing the date of this eventful day.

No representatives of Germany Austria or Turkey were to be seen in the diplomatic tribune. The first ambassador to arrive was Mr. Page, M. Barrere, Sir J. R. Rodd and Michel De Giers, the French, British and Russian ambassadors respectively, appeared a few minutes later and all were greeted with applause, which was shared by the Belgian, Greek and Rumanian ministers. For the members of the cabinet as they filed in, there was an ovation, the cheering being punctuated with cries for Salandra, Sonnino and war. Premier Salandra's address was interrupted time and time again by rounds of applause from all sides, and the climax was reached when he spoke of the army and navy. Then the cries seemed interminable, and those on the floor of the House and in the galleries turned to the military tribune from which the officers answered by waving their hands and handkerchiefs. At the end of the premier's address there were deafening "Vivas" for the King, war and Italy. Only thirty-four Socialists refused to join the cheers, even in the crying "Viva Italia," and they were hooted and hissed. In the Senate where Premier Salandra repeated his statements, his words aroused the same enthusiasm as in the Chamber, and seemed to be even more effective, for while it was known that a considerable number of Senators were on the side of neutrality, all enthusiastically stood by the government, Prince Di Camporeale, the brother of Prince Von Buelow's wife, did not rise at the first outburst of applause, thereby causing a wave of indignation and instantly there were cries: "Brother-in-law of Von Buelow rise, rise," which the Prince did, and like the others, he continued to remain standing. The Chamber of Deputies adopted the bill conferring full powers on the government. The vote was 407 against 74. One member abstained from voting. The bill passed amid tremendous enthusiasm.

Bulletin—London, May 24.—The Italian Ambassador at Vienna on Sunday afternoon presented a formal declaration of war to Baron Von Rajecz, the Austro-Hungarian foreign minister. This announcement is made in a Vienna despatch to Reuter's Telegram Company, sent by way of Amsterdam. Rome, May 22. (Via Paris, May 23).—Simultaneously with the issuance of the general mobilization order, the Italian government tonight officially announced that war had been declared against Austria-Hungary. London, May 23.—A Rome despatch to the Stefani Bureau dated Saturday says that the general mobilization of the Army and navy, ordered by Royal decree, will begin Sunday. All vehicles and draught animals will be requisitioned. Ordinary passenger wand freight service on the railways will not be disturbed.

Rome, via Paris, May 23.—General mobilization will begin Sunday. The ministers of war and marine have proclaimed a state of war in the Italian provinces bordering on Austria, in the islands and cities along the Adriatic coast, as well as all the fortresses, which will be declared in a state of defence. The above despatch confirms the despatch from Rome through the Stefani Agency, which was received earlier, from London. Rome, May 23, via Paris.—Baron Von Macchia, the Austro-Hungarian ambassador to Italy, was handed his passports at 3.30 o'clock this afternoon and will leave Rome tonight or tomorrow morning. Rome, May 23, via Paris.—The Italian ambassador at Vienna, the Duke of Avarna, has been recalled. Rome, May 23, via Paris.—A clash, which is generally regarded here to be the first skirmish of the Italo-Austrian war, occurred to-day between Italian and Austrian troops at Forcellini Di Montozzo, in the pass between Point Di Legno and Pejo.

London, May, 25.—Austria has struck first with her navy and aircraft along the Italian East coast. Italy promptly answered by throwing a body of troops across the Northeastern frontier and occupying a stretch of Austrian territory along the River Isonzo. Thus, although Field Marshall Von Hindenburg, who has a reputation for forcing matters, is reported in command of Austro-German troops along the new front, Italy in a sense has forestalled him.

Monday evening about 7 o'clock an accident happened to the Murray Harbor train; but no one was hurt. Six or seven cars were derailed, the train spreading. A wrecking train cleared the track the same night.

News has been received from Ottawa that the Royal assent has been given to the amendment to the British North America Act to provide an increase in the Western Senatorial representation guaranteeing four members in Commons to Prince Edward Island.

According to a statement of the captain of the Leyland Etionian, which recently arrived at Boston his ship was prevented from rendering assistance to passengers of the sinking Lusitania because of a warning that the vessel might also be torpedoed by the German submarine.

While walking on the D. A. track east of Port Williams station, N. S. Wesley Bent was struck by the "Extra" East No. 382, in charge of Conductor Iver, and instantly killed. Bent was formerly of Waterville but has lately been living in Kenville. He was 100 years old.

According to recent advices whole Canadian division again been in action along with the newly formed Fourth Brigade commanded by General Seal. Advices received by cable at the Militia Department Ottawa state that the last battle occurred Tuesday night and Friday morning when a fierce hand-to-hand battle ensued. The fighting took place in an orchard. The Canadians made a brilliant attack on the Germans and distinguished themselves with a brilliant dash in which large numbers of enemy fell. Overseas Dominions in Council

London, May 21.—That the Overseas Dominions should not have to wait until the war is concluded in order to participate in a new form of Empire government, but should now be active advisers of the Imperial government, is the suggestion made by Sir Lawrence Gomme, former chief clerk of the London County Council. Writing to the Daily Telegraph he advocates that the coalition ministry should be an Empire coalition of organizing statesmen and specifically singles out Premier Botha of South Africa, who should work with Lord Kitchener. The attack on Lord Kitchener by the Northcliffe group of newspapers is arousing a good deal of resentment, which is freely expressed by opposition journalists. The Pall Mall Gazette declares that if the working of the constitutional machine is made more difficult we shall be near a situation which will drive democracy to demand a dictatorship. The Globe, which has advocated a coalition government, says that when the full story of the shells supplied to the British army is told it will be found that Lord Kitchener has been improperly attacked.

Borden for England

Ottawa, May 20.—It is regarded here as quite probable that Sir Robert Borden will take a trip to England this summer. It is three years since his last visit. He then voiced the enthusiastic loyalty of this country to the Empire, but took the position that while willing to share in the burdens and responsibilities of Empire, Canada should have a voice in its councils. Sir Robert was given a magnificent reception in 1912 and it is safe to say that after the desire Canada has shown to do her part in this war and especially after the heroic stand made by her troops at Langemark, he would be given an even warmer reception this year. It is also felt that in spite of the excellent work done by Sir George Perley as acting high commissioner, the personal conferences which the Prime Minister and any of his colleagues who might accompany him would have with the Imperial authorities might help this country to render still more effective aid in regard to the sending of troops, the procuring of war supplies or otherwise.

La Baie De Chaleur

Associated with the early history and discovery of Canada the name of Jacques Cartier will ever hold a commanding and unique position. It was he, who nearly five hundred years ago, as to be exact July 10, 1534, sailed into this magnificent haven. An exceptionally hot day inspired the name, and it has borne that name ever since. La Baie de Chaleur—the bay of heat. Ninety miles long and from fifteen to twenty miles wide, this arm of the Gulf of St. Lawrence divides the Gaspé Peninsula from the Province of New Brunswick, and the depth is sufficient to ensure a safe passage for the largest ships afloat. As the bay narrows into the estuary of the Restigouche, the scenery becomes bolder and more majestic, presenting one of the most superb and fascinating panoramic views in America. The whole region is mountainous and almost precipitous enough to be Alpine, but its grandeur is derived less from cliffs, chasms and peaks than from far-reaching sweeps of outline and continually rising domes that mingle with the clouds. On the Gaspé side, precipitous cliffs of brick-red sandstone flank the shore, so lofty that they seem to cast their gloomy shadows half-way across the bay, and yawn with rifts and gullies, through which fretful torrents tumble into the sea. Behind them the mountains rise and fall in long undulations of ultramarine, and towering above them all is the famous peak of Tracadigache, flashing in the sunlight like a pale blue. Around the shores of La Baie de Chaleur the land is settled for many miles and the picturesque hamlets and green pastures add to the beauty of the scene. The swell from the ocean breaks rhythmically upon smooth sandy beaches that tempt the bather. There are many coves and harbours where the boating is alluring and shorn of its risks. Sheltered at its mouth by the islands of Miscou and Shippegan, and restless as may be the sea beyond, the yachtsman may guide his craft over the whitecaps when a stiff breeze is blowing, while there are often summer days when the bay is so placid that the small motor boat may safely venture into the open. The New Brunswick shore is followed by the line of Intercolonial Railway from Campbellton to Bathurst, and for a number of miles is in full view of the broad and beautiful expanse of water with the lofty and imposing mountains of Gaspé beyond.

Campbellton, Charlottetown, Dalhousie are all convenient centres with excellent accommodations for the summer visitor. YOUR SUMMER HOLIDAY.—This Year The Maritime Provinces.

Canada's Guns.

The People's Journal of Aberdeenshire, Scotland, in the following verses published under the general title "Rhymes of the Regiments," pays an interesting and well merited tribute to the bravery of the Canadian troops: (A Canadian Division near Ypres was forced to retreat, leaving four of their beloved 47 guns in the possession of the enemy by reason of the Germans using asphyxiating gases. Even this dastardly treachery could not keep the Canadians at bay, and in two magnificent charges with the bayonet, though they lost heavily, they won back their guns.)

On a distant strand there's the fairest land— A fairer cannot be— Where the rolling plain, awash with grain, Sweeps out from the western sea; And British men from town and glen, Athirst with the endless quest, Have left their home, and crossed the foam, To the land of the Golden West.

The prairie they have cleared away, And tamed the wild woods there, From virgin soil, with manly toil, They've won a harvest fair. And year by year they've seen draw near Their glad return to rest, In the old home glades, their fortune made, In the land of the Golden West.

But even then those British men, With all their visions grand, Where chilled to stone by a sudden moon From the dear old Motherland, What was that cry, that heavy sigh, From the home they loved the best? The rolling drum told war had come In the land of the Golden West. Brave Britons! all, they heard the call, And, eager for the fight, Each gallant son took up his gun For Liberty and Right. No man was slow but glad to go, They answered quick and brief, "Ready we are! to go afar" From the land of the Maple Leaf.

And so they came with different aim, Not rich to live at ease, On the wealth they had got from the great wheat plot On the prairie overseas, But khaki clad, each gallant lad, At Duty's first behest, Forgetting self, had left his wealth In the land of the Golden West. To their homes came they for one brief day, Then away to face the Hun, In a trench well hid and in their mid Four four-point-seven guns. No honest foe could ever go O'er the Canadian crest, But German guile stole it by wile From the men of the Golden West.

"The guns!" they cried. Their Chief replied, "Take back the guns, my men" The first charge failed. They never quailed, But came at the Hun again.

With might and main they came again No foe could stand the test, Nor German clay could hold at bay The men from the Golden West. The field is red with the blood they shed, But the foe has known defeat, And knows today Canadians say "We die, we don't retreat." Proud in their might, they swept the height, Like the waves o'er a blood-red reef, So nobly slain did gallant men From the land of the Maple Leaf.

Hail, Full of Grace!

(By Teresa Brayton, in The Ave Maria.)

Hail, full of grace! The flowers of May are springing. Young buds are swinging on the greening trees; Hail, full of grace! The homing birds are winging. Back to our shores from summer overseas. O Maiden tender as the snow-drop blossom! Mary, most holy in God's holy place. Thou who didst bear our Savior on thy bosom, Show us our summer in thy shining face! Hail, full of grace! The planets roll beneath thee, Young worlds are wheeling where thy glories are, Uncharted suns fling out their light to greet thee Throned forever as God's highest Star. The earth that bore thee trembles at thy glory, The winds, night hushed, lie down at close of day Yearning to hear again her wondrous story, Whose radiant flowering is the crown of May. Hail, full of grace! The happy children gather Cowslips and daisies at thy feet to strew, Lipping their throats "Hail Mary's" and "Our Father," Calling thee Mother and God's Mother, too. Down in the valley little lambs are bleating (The Lamb of God was folded on thy breast), A misty moon the kiss of eve is meeting,— Hail, full of grace! Thy name is peace and rest. Blessed art thou! The seas that ever vary Thrill to their depths and all the waves of them, When mourning mothers wail to thee, O Mary, With sad hands groping at thy garment's hem. Soft as the wand of death o'er hopeless weeping, "Am I not Mother, too?" thine answer saith,— Mother of Christ, we give unto thy keeping All we have ever loved in life and death. Hail, full of grace! Thy touch of mystic healing Laid on our hearts when pain and woe assailed, Is like the tidal wave of heavenly feeling Flooding thy soul when Gabriel whispered "Hail" O Mary, reaching through the hovering shadows, Find us and bind us on the road we fare, Till out of sleep we waken in God's meadows, And thou, O Full of Grace, to greet us there!

IN THE WOODS OF CASTLEBERG.

Netta Hardacre was admitted on all sides to be far and away the prettiest girl in Middleton. With her lustrous dark hair her creamy, soft-tinted skin, her fine features, flashing teeth, and a pair of big brown eyes expressive of every mood of softness or sadness of gaiety or tenderness, she was a girl who almost at the very first sight of her won not only admiration, but love from all beholders. She might so easily have been spoiled, too by all this so easily won admiration and homage, to say nothing of her position as the only child and heiress of Sir Victor Hardacre. Yet she was not in the least degree. There was never a girl who spent less time before the looking-glass, and people who knew her best often wondered if she had any knowledge or realization of her wonderful beauty and charm. Though allowed by her adoring father a more than generous dress allowance, she hardly spent a thought upon chiffons, and would, from her utter disregard for such trivial matters, have proved the despair of her dressmaker and milliner were it not that fortunately, she wore every garment with such an air as made it always seem the most fitting and becoming possible. In almost everything indeed she

An Ancient Foe

To health and happiness is Scrofula—as ugly as ever since time immemorial. It causes bunces in the neck, disfigures the skin, inflames the mucous membrane, wastes the muscles, weakens the bones, reduces the power of resistance to disease and the capacity for recovery, and develops into consumption.

"Two of my children had scrofula some which kept growing deeper and kept them from going to school for three months. Ointments and medicines did no good until I began giving them Hood's Sarsaparilla. This medicine caused the sores to heal, and the children have shown no signs of scrofula since." J. W. McGraw, Woodstock, Ont.

was as simple and as lovely and as lovable as a child.

Had she not she might reasonably have felt very discontented as well as very, very lonely amidst all the wild beauty and solitude of her stately home at Castleberg. Standing high on a hill, surrounded on almost three whole sides by a thick belt of woodland, lordly chestnuts and sycamores, silvery-barked beeches and gracefully drooping birch trees, its many wide windows looked down on a broad expanse of picturesque but hardly-inhabited country stretching far away to the hills and the deep, wide waters of the Atlantic.

A stately and beautiful home it was, with its high-terraced walks and gently-sloping gardens, its apple and cherry orchards, its hazel copse, and the deep darkness of the woods behind that at sunset were lit up as by a living fire with the glowing of red rays shining through of the sun setting low in the West. Yet very, very lonely it could be especially in the long evenings of mid-summer, when the only sound that broke the stillness of the evening was the noisy, monotonous cawing of the rooks in the trees overhead.

Neither Netta nor her father, however, were conscious of the least desire to leave it, save for a short while each autumn, when they went for a holiday together to Paris or to Rome, to Brussels or Berlin, or some other Continental town in which they might gratify their craving for the artistic and the old-world and beautiful. For the rest they were perfectly content at home, for Sir Victor was, first of all, a good landlord and a country gentleman, and when he was not enjoying himself out with the hounds or down by the river and lake with his rod or his gun he found equal if not greater pleasure in improving the conditions of his tenants or in planting or pruning the lawns and many copses and shabbyeries about his own beloved old home. Both he and Netta were inveterate readers, also, and between books and music, and flowers and landscape painting, and the care of her garden—for, though there were many gardeners at Castleberg, its beautiful and young mistress took a very active part as well as a special personal interest in everything that had already made the place such a wonder-world to visitors and sight-seers—the girl, on her part, never found time to feel lonely. Though there was so little youthful society about the place, she always had her father. And the two had been all in all to each other for so long—ever since the time when Netta was only three years old, and her beautiful young mother was carried home from an accident in the hunting field never to open her sweet eyes on this sad old world again.

It was because of that, and of how her mother died, that Netta always felt a little unhappy in the autumn of the year. For though the woods were very beautiful with their branches all orange and gold and the beech trees sending down shower after shower of copper-colored leaves on the vivid green turf of lawns whereon the pampas grass waved in the breeze tall white heads like the funeral plumes of a hearse, there seemed always a vague sadness and mournfulness in the air.

Her father was obviously restless and uneasy and depressed, and she could not help sharing at least some of his depression, though she busied herself more than ever—ere the winter should step in and prevent her—in the planting of bulbs and the putting in of cuttings and various other odds and ends of outdoor work in her own special walled-in garden, where the chrysanthemums these autumn days made a riot of gorgeous life and color beneath the dying splendor of the woods.

Once that autumnal anniversary time of decay and death had passed over her father's sadness disappeared, too, and Netta's heart began to lift relievedly with his own. And after that the months of winter seemed to fly, so short were the days, and so pleasant the long nights of reading and recreation together in the cheery glow of lamp and firelight.

As I have said, Netta had little and little of her own age, and hardly any of her own sex beyond that of old Madame Ducros, who had been her governess and (being a widow and childless and, without friends) found a still welcome shelter and annuity under the kindly roof of Castleberg. But she had hardly felt the need of any society—at least, not until after Godfrey Sutherland had gone away. She was not sure, even then, that any other society but his would have been much of a help and a solace to her. As long as she had Godfrey and her father, and the kind old Madame, and her garden and the poor and needy of the neighborhood to visit and be good to, how could she be lonely? Those evenings when Godfrey used to come to dinner—for though almost penniless, and with his estates, moreover, heavily mortgaged, there was no one in the neighborhood to whom her father extended a more hearty and generous welcome—staying afterwards to talk by the fireside or play a quiet game of whist with Madame and her father and herself—seemed periods of ideal joy and happiness and contentment now that Godfrey had gone. What had they quarrelled about? It was hard to say and indeed the word "quarrel" seemed much too strong a word to apply to the estrangement that had gradually come between them. It began like the cloud no bigger than a man's hand, in a slight feeling of jealousy on Netta's own part. But there had never been even the shadow of jealousy or misunderstanding between them until Estelle Dumont, a school friend of Godfrey's sister, had come to stay with them at Castle Grange. They had always made Godfrey so welcome at Castleberg, for in spite of his poverty, Sir Victor, Netta's father liked him incomparably more than any other young man he knew. He was so rich himself that he could well afford to overlook such a small fault as poverty in an otherwise charming and deserving young fellow, and Godfrey was so big and handsome and cheery and kind—and Netta as well as her father, had perhaps dreamed dreams. Dreams were all they were ever destined to be apparently, for with the coming of Estelle Dumont to his home, Netta and her father began to see less and less of their former frequent visitor. Perhaps it hadn't been altogether Godfrey's fault, she tried to think sometimes, for she herself had never been able to get on very well with Godfrey's only sister Julia, who seemed to her a very vain and frivolous person, supremely irritating, too, from her want of tact and her coarseness and opinionated self-assertiveness. She had tried to like her and be nice to her for Godfrey's sake; but Julia Sutherland had so plainly showed her contempt for the dullness and dreariness of Castleberg—her first visit having unfortunately coincided with Sir Victor's autumnal period of mourning and depression—that, as she was fond of telling her brother and her friend Estelle "wild horses would not drag her to that house of gloom again for any consideration." Neither did Netta care very much for Julia's French school-mate and companion, who—perhaps as a result of her chatterbox hostess' constant declarations against the deadly dullness of Castleberg and its occupants—seemed to hold herself distant and aloof from them in a degree highly incommensurate.

DON'T GIVE CONSUMPTION A CHANCE

To Get a Foothold on Your System. Check the First Sign of a Cold By Using DR. WOOD'S NORWAY PINE SYRUP.

A cold, if neglected, will sooner or later develop into some sort of lung trouble, so we would advise you that on the first sign of a cold or cough you get rid of it immediately. For this purpose we know of nothing better than Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. This preparation has been on the market for the past twenty-five years, and those who have used it have nothing but words of praise for its efficacy.

Mrs. H. N. Gill, Truro, N.S., writes: "Last January, 1913, I developed an awful cold, and it hung on to me for so long I was afraid it would turn into consumption. I would go to bed nights, and could not get any sleep at all for the choking feeling in my throat and lungs, and sometimes I would cough till I would turn black in the face. A friend came to see me, and told me of your remedy, Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. I got a bottle of it, and after I had taken it I could see a great change for the better, so I got another, and when I had taken the two bottles my cough was all gone, and I have never had an attack of it since, and that is now a year ago."

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is put up in a yellow wrapper, three pine trees the trade mark, and price, 25c and 50c. It is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Had ship's anchor fall on my knee and leg, and knee swelled up and for six days I could not move it or get help. I then started to use MINARD'S LINIMENT and two bottles cured me. PROSPER FERGUSON.

"What did the doctor say?" "He felt Jones' pulse and said there was no hope."

"The man who is always punctual in keeping an appointment never loses anything."

"No, only half an hour waiting for the other fellow to show up."

Mary Ovington, Jasper Ont writes:—"My mother had a badly sprained arm. Nothing we used did her any good. Then father got Hagyard's Yellow Oil and it cured mother's arm in a few days Price 25 cents."

We must never undervalue any person—every person is the handiwork of God.—De Sales.

Cholly—"When I was a boy you know, the doctor said if I didn't stop smoking cigarettes I would become feeble-minded."

Miss Keen—"Well, why didn't you stop?"

W. H. O. Wilkinson, Stratford says:—"It affords me much pleasure to say that I experienced great relief from Muscular Rheumatism by using two boxes of Milburn's Rheumatic Pills. Price box a 50c."

"What's the matter with your wife, anyhow?" "She's got a case of flat tire."

"What do you mean by a 'flat tire'?" "She's wearying of living in a flat."

NERVES WERE BAD

Hands Would Tremble So She Could Not Hold Paper to Read.

When the nerves become shaky the whole system seems to become unstrung and a general feeling of collapse occurs, as the heart works in sympathy with the nerves.

Mrs. Wm. Weaver, Shallow Lake, Ont., writes: "I suffered for a year, for my heart and nerves, with three different doctors, but they did not seem to know what was the matter with me. My nerves got so bad at last that I could not hold a paper in my hands to read, this was they trembled. I gave up doctoring thinking I could not get better. A lady living a few doors from me advised me to try a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, so to please her I did, and I am thankful to-day for doing so, for I am strong, and doing my own work without help."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50 cents per box, 3 boxes for $1.25; at druggists or dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.
