To The Trade

Business Firms who are considering issuing a Trade Calendar for 1916 would do well to get their orders in as soon as possible in order to ensure having same for delivery in the New Year. In dull times any experienced advertising man will strongly recommend the keeping up of the advertising fires, and there is no more effective way of retaining old customers and obtaining new ones than by the presentation of a Fine Art Advertising Calendar at the beginning of each year.

The Thos. D. Murphy Co.

of Red Oak, Iowa, whom I represent in Newfoundland, issues a line of Advertising Calendars which for beauty of design or advertising propositions cannot be surpassed. Prices range from $2.50 per hundred up. The Company also issues a fine lot of Advertising Blotters. May I call on you with samples?

"ECHOES of the Past; OR, The Recompense of Love!"

CHAPTER XIII.

"What is the matter, Mina?" he asked. "Why do you say that, why do you shrink from me? Come back to me, dear one?"

She shook her head. "No—I must not," she whispered sadly. "It is wrong—ah, you know it is. You can't marry me, you ought not to; and I ought not to have said I—what I did. But—piteously—it slipped from me, I could not keep it back."

"Why should you, dearest?" he said, and his voice was feeble, for the passion had exhausted him. "I love you, and you—you love me, Mina. I know it—and why should we not be married, dear child?"

She shook her head again. "Because you are a gentleman, ever so much, ah, ever so much above me. You—you forgot that I was what I am, a girl who has got her living by singing—and in the streets!"

Her face went hot again and she hung her head. It was the old story, the old story that dates back to Adam and Eve; knowledge may bring power, but it often brings unhappiness. Mina had learned to be ashamed of her lowly past. Clive was too wise, comprehended her state of mind too clearly, to attempt to laugh away her scruples.

"Is that what is troubling you, Mina?" he said. "Dearest, don't let it do so. I had forgotten; but, remembering it, I honored you for striving to repay the kind-hearted man who had sheltered and fathered you. And as to me, well," he laughed, "I'm a gentleman, I hope; but if I haven't sung in the streets, I've spoken in them."

"That is different," she murmured. "Is there any difference? I doubt it," he rejoined quite gravely, for he knew how difficult it would be to overcome the obstacle she had raised. "You sang—for money, and I did not spot for the mere love of it. I wanted to gain something, place, power, and, yes, money; for I've not too much of it. So that, if there is anything derogatory in the two businesses, there is not much to choose between them."

She sighed and looked at him appealingly.

"I am not fit to be your wife," she said. "There is so great a difference. I can't argue with you, sweet," he

Marvelous Balsamic Essences Cure Catarrh No Drugs To Take—A Direct Breathing Cure

Statistics Prove Ninety-Seven Per Cent of Canada's Population is Infested With the Germs of Catarrh.

This disease is most dangerous owing to its tendency to extend to the Bronchial tubes and lungs, where it causes Consumption. Unfortunately the people have had faith in sprays, ointments and snuffs, which can't possibly cure, and in consequence catarrhal disease has become a national scourge. Science is advancing every day, and fortunately a remedy has been discovered that not only cures but prevents Catarrh. This new treatment "Catarrhoxone" has sufficient power to kill the germs of Bronchitis, Catarrh and Asthma. It contains pure pine essences and healing balsams that go to the remotest part of the nose, throat and lungs, carrying health-giving medication to every spot that is tainted or weak. You don't take Catarrhoxone like cough mixture—you inhale its healing vapor at the mouth and it spreads all through the breathing organs, soothing and curing wherever Catarrh exists. This is nature's way of supplying the richest balsams, the purest antiseptics known to science.

A sneezing cold is cured in ten minutes. A harsh cough is eased in an hour, the most offensive catarrh is thoroughly drawn from the system.

For Asthma and Bronchial Irritation nothing can equal Catarrhoxone—every physician and druggist says so, and we advise our readers to try this treatment if suffering with an winter ill. The complete outfit costs $1.00, medium size, 50c, at all dealers.

Are you Weak, Anaemic, 'Nervy', 'Run-down'?

Don't let your life be clouded by indifferent health—don't suffer needlessly—don't remain Weak, Anaemic, 'Nervy', 'Run-down.' Let Wingarnis (the wine of life) give you new health, new strength, new blood, new nerves, and new life. Wingarnis is a tonic, a restorative, a blood-maker, and a nerve food—all combined in one clear, delicious beverage. It strengthens the weak, gives new rich blood to the anaemic, new nerves to the 'Nervy,' sleep to the sleepless, new vitality to the 'Run-down,' and new life to the Ailing. And it does not contain drugs.

Begin to get well FREE.

Wingarnis is made in England, and you can obtain a liberal free trial bottle—no users' case, but enough to do you good, by sending 5 cents stamps (to pay postage) to COLEMAN & CO., Ltd., Wingarnis Works, Norwich, England. Regular supplies can be obtained from all leading Stores, Chemists, and Wine Merchants.

WINGARNIS

Agents for Newfoundland—Messrs. MARSHALL BROS., Wat. Street, St. John's, Newfoundland.

"Yes!" and I told him—

"But I asked you not to tell anyone," said Clive gently.

"That's right, sir," assented Elisha meekly; "and I didn't give him no particulars. I just said that you was ill, and he said he was a friend of yours and that he'd come along and see."

"What is his name?" asked Clive.

Elisha scratched his head. "It's a queer sort o' name, sir, an' I'm sorry to say it's gone; something like counterpane, as near as I can remember."

"Quilton!" said Clive, with a sigh of relief, for he could rely on Quilton's discretion. "Let him come in."

As Quilton entered, Mina went toward the door. He made way for her and looked at her in his impassive way. Then he stopped dead short, his colorless eyes fixed on her downcast face. His lips opened as if he were about to speak, then he checked himself; but as he held the door for her he opened his lips again, again hesitated, but at last said:

"I hope he is well enough to see the?" As he put the question, his eyes resting blankly on her face, he held his head on one side as if waiting, listening intently, very much as a particularly deaf man waits to catch some sound.

She scarcely raised her eyes, and answered in a low voice:

"Yes—I think so; but he must be kept quiet."

His lips closed, his thick eyelids drooped over his eyes, and he emitted a kind of sigh, as if some question in his mind were answered.

"Thank you," he said in his expressionless voice. "I will be careful."

He waited until Elisha had followed Mina out, then he went to the bedside and looked down at Clive with a countenance so impressive that it seemed to indicate an absolute lack of interest.

"What is it—football? No; they don't play football in the summer. Been run over?"

Clive laughed shortly. "No; a row at a meeting."

"The people turned on their friend, eh?" said Quilton. "Thought they would; they always do; it's only a question of time."

"You're unjust, Quilton," said Clive smiling. "The trouble arose from a misunderstanding."

"Trouble generally does," said Quilton. "Badly hurt?"

"Not at all; nothing to speak of. Got a bash on the head—as you see, I shall be all right to-morrow—in a day or two. I'm sorry my friend here told you."

Quilton nodded. "Didn't want publicity? Strange how you shrink from that which most public men want—advertisement. You must have been pretty bad; are bad, in fact, now. Brain concussion, fever?"

"You might be a doctor," said Clive, rather pettishly; the fever was still on him. "No—I don't want this accident of mine cackled about."

"Sure? It would make a splendid article in The Beacon. Don't alarm yourself"—as Clive stirred and muttered under his breath. "Once more I'll sacrifice myself on the altar of friendship. Is there anything I can do? Got a good doctor?"

Clive nodded. "First-rate," he said. "And I'm in the care of the best of friends, who have done and will do everything that could or can be done."

"So I see," said Quilton. He sat down and stared before him, as insistent in appearance as a wooden lull. "Some of your humble proteges, I suppose?"

"They're just friends," said Clive, with a touch of impatience.

"Admirable institutions, the hospitals," hinted Quilton.

"I know," assented Clive. "But I am just as well off here. And you can't do anything for me, thanks very much. By the way, Quilton, I shall esteem it a favor if you'll hold up about this accident of mine. See?"

"Quite easily. I'm discretion itself; in fact, I'll slip in a paragraph in The Beacon saying that you have been called out of town."

"That's good of you," said Clive, with the first sign of gratitude he had shown. "And I'm awfully obliged to you for looking me up."

The door opened and Tibby entered with a calf's-foot jelly purchased from the ham-and-beef shop round the corner. She stopped short at sight of Quilton and jerked up her head aggressively.

"Sorry!" she said in hushed but defiant tones. "Didn't know you'd a visitor, Mr. Clive. Don't disturb yourself on my account, young man," as Quilton rose.

"Not at all," said Quilton. "May I mention that I'm not a young man, Miss—"

"Burrell, Tabitha Burrell is my full christening name; but my friends call me Tibby for short."

"Miss Tibby," said Quilton. "I said friends, young—old man," she remarked sharply, but still in the subdued voice.

"Pardon," he said impassively. "At any rate you have been a good friend to Mr.—to my friend here."

"Thanks," snorted Tibby. "When your testimony is required it will be asked for an' the postage paid. An' now if you'll let me put this jelly down afore it shakes itself orf the plate."

Quilton made a space for it on the table, and she dumped it down and stood for a moment, with her arms akimbo, eying Clive.

"I may be mistook," she said, addressing the opposite wall slowly and meaningly, "but I've a kind of hidea that the doctor said as he wasn't to be hexcited."

"I'm sorry if my visit has done so," said Quilton. "Perhaps he ought not to see too many people."

"Shouldn't wonder if you're right; one of 'em's goin', anyhow," said Tibby, and, with a significant nod of the ridiculous bonnet, she sailed out.

Quilton stood looking at the opposite wall, at which she had been staring.

"One of your friends appears to be somewhat—eccentric," he remarked, not by any means resentfully, but as if he were stating an undeniable fact.

Clive laughed. "She is rather. But there isn't a better-hearted girl—"

"It's her sister who is nursing you?" said Quilton.

Clive moved his head on the pillow restlessly.

"Yes. She isn't her sister."

The words had slipped out, been forced from him by his instinctive desire to differentiate Mina from the other two. He regretted the words the minute he had spoken them, but words, alas, are of the few things one cannot recall. Quilton, however did not appear to display any interest in the information.

"Well," he said. "I'll take Miss Tabitha's gentle hint, and relieve you of my presence. It isn't likely that you will want to see me again; but if you should, send a messenger or a wire."

"Thanks very much; I will," said Clive. "And I'm very grateful to you for calling."

FREE ADVICE TO SICK WOMEN

Thousands Have Been Helped by Common Sense Suggestions.

Women suffering from any form of female ills are invited to communicate promptly with the woman's private correspondence department of the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence. A woman can freely talk of her private illness to a woman; thus has been established a confidential correspondence which has extended over many years and which has never been broken. Never have they published a testimonial or used a letter without the written consent of the writer, and never has the Company allowed these confidential letters to get out of their possession, as the hundreds of thousands of them in their files will attest.

Out of the vast volume of experience which they have to draw from, it is more than possible that they possess the very knowledge needed in your case. Nothing is asked in return except your good will, and their advice has helped thousands. Surely any woman, rich or poor, should be glad to take advantage of this generous offer of assistance. Address Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., (Confidential) Lynn, Mass.

Every woman ought to have Lydia E. Pinkham's 80-page Text Book. It is not a book for general distribution, as it is too expensive. It is free and only obtainable by mail. Write for it today.

Fads and Fashions.

Underwear is less elaborate. The hair is worn close to the head. Tricorn hats are in good fashion. Buttons are being used for trimming. Evening frocks are still without sleeves. Many of the new suits and frocks are belted. Skirts of dance frocks are extremely full. All colors are dull and lines somewhat severe. Children's coats are made with quaint capes. Paris is now wearing many leather belts. Feather turbans are in fashion again this fall. Small street hats are higher than they have been. Brocaded silks will be used for afternoon dresses. Fashion is not quite sure about wearing crinolines. Light Havana brown is one of the good winter colors. A great many flowers are seen on fluffy evening dresses. Fur bands and ribbon combine to form a novel trimming. Self-covered buttons are used both for silk and cloth frocks. Some coats have full sleeves gathered into little bands of fur. Pointed velvet belts are seen on some of the new full coats. Gray kimmer makes a charming border to a green cloth coat. Gray is a popular shade. It is combined with black or dark blue.

"Have you any militant suffragists in Crimson Gulch?"

"Nary," replied Broncho Bob. "When the school teacher dropped a hint as how she'd like to vote we'd have been glad of a chance to shoot up anybody that 'ud interfere with her. But by common consent we turned the polls over to her an' all stayed away so's there wouldn't be any chance of her bein' embarrassed."—Washington Star.

"When a good talker is on de platform," said Uncle Eben, "reform seems so easy dat it almos' looks like common amusement."—Washington Star.

A TRIAL WILL PROVE THIS.

LONDON GOSSIP.

CONSCRIPTIONISTS IN THE GOVERNMENT.

The Cabinet Committee on Recruiting (Lord Crewe, Lord Curzon, Mr. Churchill, Mr. Chamberlain, and Mr. Henderson) have decided that a form of compulsion should be adopted. The recommendation of these five gentlemen will not be accepted by the Cabinet. The recommendation is only made in the case that voluntary recruiting does not immediately furnish the drafts to fill up the gaps created by casualties. There is no shortage of men. The recruiting continues to be steadily good, and the strain of arming and equipping them is what is felt most at present. The immediate question is purely one of reinforcements. There are plenty of men in hand, but training takes time, and the Government must therefore look six months ahead. However, I believe that the Cabinet will reject the recommendation of its Committee as it proposes compulsion. A very important influence against it is that of Lord Kitchener. Lord Kitchener, I believe, is at present opposed to compulsion not from any anti-conscriptionist principle but purely on grounds of military expediency.

DISTINGUISHED FRENCH VISITORS.

The party of distinguished French publicists and men of letters, who have been privileged to visit the Grand Fleet (no English Journalists, by the way, have been allowed to visit this fleet) were entertained to dinner by the Newspaper Proprietors' Association in London on September 6th. They included M. Pichon, formerly Minister for Foreign Affairs; M. Joseph Reinach, Senator; M. Rene Bazin, the novelist; and M. Poveset, of the French Foreign Office. M. Rene Bazin at least comes here as an old acquaintance. He has already made several sojourns in this country, and one of his very recent novels describes scenes of which Aberdeen is the picturesque background. Of course, as one of the most delightful story writers in the French language, he has long been familiar to the literary public here. Into some of his books there enters his strongly-felt emotions. No Frenchman of his day has looked forward with more intense longing to the reunion of the lost provinces to the France from which they were ruthlessly torn in 1871. In his novel "Les Oberles," one of the finest he has written, his glowing wrath at the attempted Germanisation of Alsace and Lorraine finds expression in touching and pathetic pages. German Kultur to him has consistently been the unclean thing.

BARON ROSEN OF RUSSIA.

Baron Rosen, whose remarkable speech in the Russian Council of the Empire in favor of Finnish autonomy and equal rights for the Jews has been reported in this week's papers, is one of the most clear-sighted of Russian statesmen. His counsels unfortunately have always had the misfortune of being disregarded, though later events have usually proved them sound. He was Russian Ambassador at Tokio immediately before the outbreak of the Russo-Japanese War, and persistently warned his Government against the policy it was then pursuing towards Japan, predicting war and disaster. He was not listened to, and war came, with its known results. Three years ago he submitted to the Tsar a memorandum on the foreign policy of the Empire, of which at present only this may be said—that it was attacked with great violence by the "Novoe Vremya." In February last he delivered a speech in the council of the Empire which likewise provoked the greatest indignation in the quarters which at the time were in closest touch with the ruling bureaucracy. He spoke of the system of opposing alliances and ententes in Europe, predicted with prophetic insight the outbreak of a bloody war, and lamented the unprepared state of Russia as due to the divorce between the Government and the nation resulting from the "endeavor to reduce the great Axiom (the constitutional manifesto of October 30, 1905) to naught." This endeavor, he warned the Government, "is dangerous. The history of all nations at all times teaches us that attempts to put back the historical clock are never successful, but are always accompanied by grave and sometimes fatal results." If, he continued, Russia was to be spared another revolution or another disaster, "we must be an equally firm barrier against the onslaughts of black reaction and militant nationalism, which in their incomprehensible blindness are only working for the benefit of internal and external enemies."

JAPAN AND BRITISH MARKETS.

Japanese enterprise has taken full advantage of the opportunity offered in the English markets by the cessation of German supplies of cheap cotton and woollen goods, particularly in the direction of cheap underwear. Before the war Germany had sent huge quantities of these goods to this country, Japan being her most serious rival. In fact a fierce trade war had raged for some time between the Japanese merchants and their German competitors, a war in which our Ally gained a good deal of ground. Now that German traders are out of the market, Japan is redoubling her efforts and is shipping to this country large quantities of cotton and all-wool garments. The Japanese products, in the opinion of experts in the wholesale trade, will be able to hold the market against any future German competition. It is stated, in fact, that Japan has risen so well to the occasion that she can supply us, if we want them, with all the cheap cotton and woollen goods which formerly came from enemy sources. By the way, there is a great deal of misgiving about the new British industries and German competition after the war. Beyond a doubt Germany and Austria are accumulating huge stocks of goods, and it is feared even before peace is declared that these will reach the English markets, bearing a specious trade-mark which does not indicate the place of origin, through the agency of neutral countries. Manufacturers naturally do not like to lay down expensive plant if they have no guarantee against German competition, and there is a strong feeling that a plain statement from the Government would clear the air and greatly facilitate British enterprise.

THE EMPTY POORHOUSE.

A London poorhouse has been offered to the Home Office, the Guardians assuming that it would be useful for the internment of alien enemies. A cursory examination of the premises, however, has caused Whitehall to reject the offer, it being feared that the cost of guarding the inmates would be excessive. It is, however, a striking illustration of the absence of poverty that poorhouses should become available for such purposes. Several have been converted into hospitals, and if more were required, it would be easy to get half a dozen poorhouses by transferring the paupers to others which are by no means full.

HIGGINS OF THE "EX. TEL. CO."

The death of Higgins, the chief engineer of the Exchange Telegraph Co., removes an inventor of remarkable ability and ingenuity. The improvements he made in the "tape" machines were continuous and considerable, as anyone who remembers the original "tickers" and compares them with the present excellent "club tape" can see. Mr. Higgins also invented the "annunciator," as he called it—not a very happy word, which is in use in the House of Commons, and is in brief a "tape" on a very large scale, which presents in summary form a record of what is happening in the House. The Exchange Telegraph Company owes its name to the fact that it was originally formed by members of the Stock Exchange to circulate Stock Exchange news. The company realized that the machines gave them wider opportunities, and after buying up a number of news agencies they embarked on the business of circulating the news of the day by means of the "tape." No London newspaper office is now complete without the whole battery of these instruments, while the broad or "club" tape is to be found in all the chief clubs and hotels, as well as in many private houses.

WHAT SPAIN THINKS.

A Madrid gentleman who is visiting London, says that the currents of opinion in Spain on the war could be fairly well defined. The pro-Germans were largely the Carlists and the Clerical Party, whose journals, either strongly or moderately, were following the German lead and accepted their explanations. At Court there was, of course, a strong party reflecting the sympathies of the Dowager Queen, who was an Austrian princess. A considerable section of the middle-commercial class, who have close connections with Germany, were also on this side. The friends of the Allies were largely among the intellectuals and the workmen. In his opinion (and he was a man who had travelled a great deal) the case for the Allies had been better presented in Spain than in any other country. The group of young men of progressive minds who conduct the "España," a brilliantly written Madrid journal, had familiarized the thinking Spaniards with a tempered and reasoned judgment on the issues and the importance to free and decent life and institutions in Europe of the defeat of Germany. This group of young men, mostly connected with the University or with scientific work, have gone further. One of them established a publishing business which has issued translations of books, chiefly German, that are of service to the Allies' cause. Most of the writers have been educated in Germany—indeed, my informant said that it was almost the rule that if a man had lived in Germany or could speak German he was on the side of the Allies. He believed that the best method of British propaganda in Spain would be to teach German there. He did not think that Spaniards generally were sympathetic to France. Historical memories and affairs in "Novocor" were chiefly responsible, but the Radicals looked for inspiration to the great Republic, and the freedom of England was a tradition.

THE RUSSIAN INFLUENCE IN FASHION.

A curious instance of the topicality of fashions is to be found in the re-appearance of Russian styles in the autumn showrooms. At the time the war broke out a Russian fashion vogue was nearing its end, but it was given a new lease of life, and hats and coats inspired by the military uniforms of our Muscovite ally were immensely popular all last winter. After such a run of Russian styles it might have been thought that the fashion houses in their plans for the coming season would have looked elsewhere for ideas, but on the eve of a new season the designers once again found themselves confronted with renewed popular interest in Russia and in things Russian, with the result that the new autumn coats again show Russian influence in every line. The fronts wrap over and fasten at the neck, collars button high at the neck, and the tunic coats are smartly belted round the waist. Short coats, however, will play little part in the development of autumn and winter fashion, nor will the full-length coat be extensively worn. Fashion is about evenly divided between the three-quarter and the seven-eighths length coat. In practically all the new styles, including those suggestive of Russian influence, the upper part of the coat is cut so as to define the figure to the waist which is, in the language of the expert, slightly "nipped." Below the waist the coat, whether of cloth, velvet, or fur, is cut very fully to accommodate the new skirts.

Woodstock Boy Makes Big Fortune.

Sells Invention to British War Office for $3,500,000.

Woodstock, N.B., September 27.—Dolph McLean, a Seattle, Washington, electrical engineer, and his business partner, D. W. Lapp, have secured a contract under the terms of which the British War Department has agreed to purchase outright a wireless telegraph invented by McLean for $3,500,000.

Dolph McLean, twenty-six years of age, is the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. McLean, of Woodstock. He studied electrical engineering here and graduated from the General Electrical Company of Boston. Coming home, he conducted a successful business, and for two years he worked here in his spare time on his invention. He went to Saskatoon three years ago, thence to Seattle, and has for five years been perfecting his invention, which promises to make him wealthy.

Our Casualty List.

To-day we chronicle the first death as a result of the Nfd. Regiment being in action. This young hero who has given his life is Private Michael John Blyde, who succumbed to his wounds. He was a mere boy being but 18 years old, and yet was one of the first to respond to his country's call. He had been a drummer in the Catholic Cadet Corps, and later joined the Frontiersmen, and was one of the many members of that patriotic little corps in Newfoundland who flocked to the colors at the call of duty. This must be the solace and comfort of the parents who have given this bright young life that the country may yet emerge triumphant from the terrible struggles with the Huns and Turks, who are attacking modern Liberty. Private Michael Blyde, Private George Garland, and Private Alec Hennebury, all mentioned in to-day's list of casualties, afford indication that the right half of the regiment has been in action. The numbers of the other soldiers mentioned as wounded, indicate that they were in the left half, unless it be a high number like 1348, drafted out of Co. E to make up a deficiency, in which case the number gives no indication as to whether the soldier is in the left or right half. Until the receipt of this last casualty list, all the numbers given were above 615, showing that it was the left half of the regiment which had suffered, and out of the eight names given in that list, three are below 615 and five above. It will appear from this that the left half of the Regiment, Companies C and D, had been occupying the more dangerous zone.

Local Loans.

We learn from the Canadian press that the Dominion of Canada will likely float some loans locally of considerable amount, as the Home Government has intimated a wish to be relieved of the task of finding money for the Canadian Government. She has her hands full in the way of financing, and she would like the Dominion to attempt to shoulder their own portion of the burden. Eighteen months ago, Sir Edward Morris put through the Legislature a Loan Bill for Two million dollars, at three and a half per cent. He was warned in the House of Assembly that the rate was not attractive, but he persisted and went to London with it, and his efforts were turned down and the 1914 Debentures were not issued. Last session, he introduced a bill raising the interest on this amount to Four per cent. He was warned again that the interest was not attractive under the conditions of the market, and advised to seek expert financial advice from London. He declined to do so and put through the bill. The Loan has not been put on the market, and no debentures have been issued. Canada some months ago had to pay Five per cent. in New York on $20,000,000. Recently England and France had to issue a Five Per Cent. Loan for $500,000,000 to underwriters at 96, thus paying more than Five per cent. Newfoundland will need to raise money to meet debenture interest and other obligations. Four per cent will not sell abroad at any reasonable rates. What is wanted is a Govt. which can inspire confidence. The financial blundering of Sir E. P. Morris and Mr. Cashin do not tend to create confidence or to sustain confidence. We repeat what is needed at the present time is a Government in which the people can have confidence, and which can create such confidence that investors would be prepared to take their money from the Savings Banks, which is there in many millions and invest it in sufficient amount at say 5 or 5 1/2 per cent. to carry Newfoundland through the difficulties confronting her. Such a rate of interest is much more attractive than the 3 per cent. depositors are receiving.

C.M.B.C.

The Cathedral Men's Bible Class will re-open with a service for men in the Cathedral to-morrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. At the invitation of the Class the C. L. B. and the Volunteers will also be present. The address will be delivered by the Lord Bishop. Over forty members of the Class have enlisted in the 1st Newfoundland Regiment and many of them are now in at the Dardanelles. But while so many have nobly responded to the call of their country and Empire, yet the work of the Class is vigorously pursued by those who have taken their place. The Class will meet, as in other years, at the Synod Building, every Sunday at 3 p.m. The members will make their Corporate Communion at 8 a.m.

Casualty List.

Last evening, the appended list of casualties was received from the Record Office, Nfd. Regiment, London:—
284.—PRIVATE MICHAEL JOHN BLYDE, 47 Fleming Street, St. John's. Died of wounds.
1848.—PRIVATE FRED. JOHN BURSEY, Clarendonville, T.B. Wounded.
1048.—PRIVATE WILLIAM JAMES COISH, 14 Carew Street, St. John's. Wounded.
996.—PRIVATE JAMES WILLIAM O'DRISCOLL, Tor's Cove. Wounded.
200.—PRIVATE GEORGE STANLEY GARLAND, Lower Island Cove. Wounded.
1000.—PRIVATE LEONARD HALEY, Bonavista. Wounded.
461.—PRIVATE ALEXANDER HENNEBURY, 59 Colonial Street, St. John's. Wounded.
998.—PRIVATE ARTHUR SULLIVAN, Pouch Cove. Wounded.

J. R. BENNETT,
Colonial Secretary.
Private Michael John Blyde, son of Mr. John Blyde, of the Municipal Sanitary staff, was a cutter at Parker & Monroe's Shoe Factory before enlisting. He was a prominent member of the C.C.C. and bugler with the Frontiersmen. He was one of the first and youngest of our young men to join the colors and left here as a drummer with A Company.
Private Fred. John Bursey, son of Mr. Reuben Bursey, of Clarendonville, Trinity Bay, left here with E Company and apparently was one of the few picked to make up the strength of the regiment when leaving for the front.
Private William James Coish, son of the late John Coish and of Mrs. Sarah Dean, of Carew Street, employed as stone mason's helper with Davey Bros. before enlisting, left here with D Company. It is interesting to note the pluck and patriotic spirit displayed by Private Coish when enlisting here. When going through his medical exams, he was twice "turned down" by the doctors because of defects to one of his feet. He forthwith entered the General Hospital, was operated on and had two toes amputated. His recovery was speedy and he lost no time in joining our regiment.
Private James William O'Driscoll, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph O'Driscoll, of Tor's Cove, left here with D Company.
Private George Stanley Garland, son of Mr. Eli Garland, formerly of Lower Island Cove, and brother of Mr. Hedley V. Garland, of the Postal Telegraphs, was on the staff of the G.P.O. before enlisting with the regiment. He left here with A Company.
Private Leonard Haley (or Hayley) was a former member of the C.L.B. and left here with C Company, and has a brother with the 1st Contingent. He is a son of Mrs. Haley, of Villa Verte, Bonavista, and of the late James Haley.
Private Alexander Hennebury is the youngest son of Mr. George McP. Hennebury, of The Evening Telegram staff, and prior to enlisting was a plumber with Mull's Co., an prominent member of the C.L.B. Alec and his brother, Corporal E. S. Hennebury, were amongst the first to volunteer with our Regiment.
Private Arthur Sullivan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sullivan, of Pouch Cove, belonged to D Company.

Huns Admit That Britannia Still Rules the Waves.

New York, Oct. 1.—Confirmation of reports that German naval experts had admitted that Germany had been unable to disturb Great Britain's rule of the seas, and the prophecy that no nation will be able to break such domination by means of a large number of submarines are contained in an article in the Berliner Tageblatt of September 9, by Captain L. Persius, naval expert of that paper. Under the caption, "The Freedom of the Seas," he says:—"At the beginning of the war Germany had the second strongest fleet. The British sea power was more than twice as strong. It succeeded in a short time in depriving us practically completely of the freedom of using the oceans, while the British merchant shipping could travel the oceans almost completely undisturbed. "Almost! To be sure, our submarines restrict the British rule on the sea. But no one would assert that the measure of such restriction, if considered in the light of the facts, is so considerable that we may speak with justification of the loss of British rule on the seas."

NOTICE.—A General Meeting of the Prohibition Committee of St. John's East and West will be held in the T. A. Armory on Monday evening, the 11th instant, at 8 o'clock. All voters who are willing to give their hearty co-operation to the movement are hereby cordially invited to attend.—oct8,31

Large Canadian Loan Likely

IN THE NEAR FUTURE.

Ottawa, Oct. 2.—A Canadian domestic loan of large proportions is a development of the near future. While it has never been announced or intimated officially it has been understood for a considerable time that probably early in the New Year, when the financial strain of the crop movement has passed away, a loan will be raised here in Canada. It will be the first of its kind and devoted to war purposes.
Such an arrangement would assist materially the exchange situation, inasmuch as the extent of the loan. The necessary foreign borrowing would be obviated. The proceeds would be spent wholly in Canada, a procedure similar to that to be followed in regard to the big loan just negotiated in the United States. In other words all the money so raised will stay in the country.

Recruiting in Canada.

Mr. N. W. Rowell, K.C., the Liberal leader in the Ontario Legislature, who has done magnificent recruiting work from the Atlantic to the Pacific, pointed out in a speech at Toronto recently that, while Canada enlistment represented only two per cent. of her population, Great Britain had given eight per cent. of her population; South Africa, four per cent.; New Zealand, three per cent.; Australia, two and one-half per cent. "Of all the self-governing dominions, the most populous and wealthiest and nearest the Mother Country has given two per cent.," he declared. "I cannot think that we are doing our duty when we are not doing as well as the Old Country, South Africa, New Zealand and Australia. I think the courage and patriotism of Canada is just as great as that of the other Dominions, but we are not coming forward. Canada's democracy meant just as much as that of the Old Country. If we were doing our duty having regard to our population, we would now have 300,000 men under arms."

GIVEN PASSPORTS.

PARIS, To-day. The Bulgarian Minister in France has been given his passports.

CONSIDERING MUNITIONS CONTRACT.

MONTREAL, To-day. New orders aggregating, according to street report, something like twelve million dollars, under discussion at the Executive meeting of the Dominion Steel Corporation held here yesterday. It is understood the Executive finally decided under certain conditions to embark on the manufacture of large size shells, thus advancing the negotiations which have been in progress for some weeks back. An early announcement of the contract for the work has been closed is not unlikely.

GERMAN PROTEST.

BERLIN, To-day. The German Government has lodged a protest at Athens against the landing of troops on Greek territory by the Entente Powers, says Overseas News Agency. The reply of Greece has not been received.

PHILADELPHIA, To-day. Philadelphia won the first game of the World's Championship baseball series from Boston Red Sox, 3 to 1.

TWO HUNDRED AND FIFTY MILLION DOLLARS IN SHELL ORDERS.

MONTREAL, To-day. The announcement that Sir Frederick Donaldson, Chief Superintendent of Ordnance at the Woolwich Arsenal, and Lionel Hitchins, Cammell, of Laird Company, were coming to Canada to assist the work of further organizing munition and gun manufacturing plants in the Dominion, was to-day made by A. E. Thomas, representative of David Lloyd George, British Munitions Minister, who has been touring the States and Canada, inspecting shell making factories. Thomas was a guest of the Montreal branch of the Canadian Manufacturers Association at luncheon and made this announcement in the course of a speech which dealt with the whole shell situation in Canada. Thomas said it had been suggested an Ordnance Plant under Government control should be constructed and when Donaldson and Hitchins arrived the matter could be gone into. Thomas pointed out that shell orders, amounting to $250,000,000 has been placed in Canada.

"THE BOYS OF LA BASSEE."

(By Patrick MacGill, in the Westminster Gazette.) You'll see from the La Bassee Road, on any summer day, The children herding many goats, the women making hay, You'll see the soldiers, khaki clad, in column and platoon, Come swinging up La Bassee Road, from billets in Bethune. There's hay to save and corn to cut, but harder work by far Awaits the soldier boys who reap the harvest felder of war. You'll see them swinging up the road, where women work at hay, The straight, long road, La Bassee Road, on any summer day. The night breeze sweeps La Bassee Road, the night dew wet the hay, The boys are coming back again, a straggling crowd are they, The column's lines are broken up, and gaps in the platoon, They'll not need many billets now for soldiers in Bethune, For many boys, good lusty boys, who marched so very fine, Have now got little homes of clay beside the firing line, Good luck to them, God-speed to them, the boys who march away, A-singing up La Bassee Road each sunny summer day.

A DETERMINED WOMAN

Finally Found a Food that Helped Her

"When I first read of the remarkable effects of Grape-Nuts food, I determined to secure some," says a western woman. "At that time there was none kept in this town, but my husband ordered some from a commercial traveler.

"I had been greatly afflicted with sudden attacks of cramps, nausea, and vomiting. Tried all sorts of remedies and physicians, but obtained only temporary relief. As soon as I began to use Grape-Nuts the cramps disappeared and have never returned.

"My old attacks of sick stomach were a little slower to yield, but by continuing the food, that trouble has disappeared entirely. I am to-day perfectly well, can eat anything and everything I wish, without paying the penalty that I used to. We would not keep house without Grape-Nuts.

"My husband was so delighted with the benefits I received that he has been recommending Grape-Nuts to his customers and has built up a very large trade on the food. He sells it to many of the leading physicians of the country, who recommend Grape-Nuts very generally. There is some satisfaction in using a really scientific prepared food." "There's a Reason."

STEAMER ATTACKED IN SOUTH ATLANTIC.

RIO de JANEIRO, To-day. The British freight steamer San Milite arrived here yesterday from Mexico and reported that she had been attacked at sea by an unknown vessel, one sailor being killed and six wounded.

Newspapers A Noite publishes an interview with the captain of the San Milite, in which he stated the British Admiralty insisted on the strictest secrecy as to the place of attack, in order to facilitate the mission of swift cruisers on patrol duty.

COLLARS.

By GEORGE FITCH.

Author of "At Good Old Siwash." A collar is a small white linen frill which has caused 50,000,000 women to make the same remark while watching their husbands dressing. The remark is: "Well, I'm glad I'm not a man," and it always comes just after a husband has torn a collar off and has addressed it in remarks that sear and burn.

Collars are compelled by the demands of style to be white and stiff, but not waterproof. These are three of the most heartless demands ever made upon the masculine sex.

It costs the men of this nation $100,000,000 a year in laundry bills to keep their collars white. Enough time is spent each day in struggling with clean collars a little less yielding than a stove pipe, to read a medium-sized library. And every time the sun gets a good hold on a summer day, it causes 40,000,000 collars to wilt like an overripe lettuce leaf.

A linen collar is so stiff in the morning that it has to be put on with jackscrews. But in the afternoon, when its owner is seven miles from his base of supplies, it melts away and lies on his shoulders, causing the world to give him the brutal ha! ha!

Once upon a time, waterproof collars were invented. They could also be cleaned at home by an amateur. But the laundymen bought up the funny papers and wrote so many jokes about celluloid collars that they passed away with the dibble cane head and the toothpick shoe.

In one hour, Edison could invent an enameled steel collar with a patent catch which could be put on by a one-armed man in the dark, would stand up even when worn by a fat man to a July baseball game and could be cleaned with a hose. He could invent it in an hour, but Henry Ford couldn't sell fifty of them in a year.

This is because the men who make the styles would decline to allow us to wear them.

The United States needs a larger standing army. We should enlist seven million men, arm them well and declare a war of independence against the men who make the styles. Then maybe we could get to church now and then without burning out a bearing while dressing for the occasion.

Seven officers and committeemen of the Cook and Suit Makers' Union are now under trial in New York for first degree murder. They are accused of having procured the death of Abraham Liebovitz, a member of the union, for working in a non-union shop during the Garment Makers' strike in 1910. A notorious East Side gang leader, Benjamin Fang, as told the authorities that he and his men were employed by the defendants to "beat up scabs." A fund of $250,000 is said to have been raised by the United Hebrew Trades' Union for the defence.

The State of South Carolina has by referendum voted for state wide prohibition the new law to become effective on Jan. 1st, next. The sale of beer and wines as well as liquor will be illegal.

"Hiram, if you'll just hang on to them reins, and be careful to keep on this side of that brook-side," the father replied reassuringly, "they won't bite you."

"It's spring for sure, father," said Hiram, and added, looking wistfully down toward the brook-side, "I bet the trout are biting down there in the hole under the willows."

"The greeting, 'How are you?' doesn't seem to me to represent any sincere and sensible inquiry," remarked the man who thinks hard about trifles. "That is true," replied Miss Cayenne. "When I meet several people I know I am always tempted to say 'why' instead of 'how.'"

Coddling Antipathies.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

At a summer camp, the women of the party had joined forces to whisk the dinner dishes out of the way. When the silver appeared, the dishwasher one of the dryers threw down her towel. "Put away," she said. "I hate to dry silver." "So do I," said another, doing likewise.

"Well, I'm not very fond of it, myself, now you call it to my mind, but I guess I can do it," said the third, with the frankness and good humor of camp life. And she dried the silver.

The little incident interested me. All three disliked drying silver, a distaste I share myself. The first two pampered the dislike. The third ignored it.

How One Can Put A Dislike Out of Business.

Did you ever realize how much one can increase a dislike by pampering it and how one can put a dislike practically out of business by ignoring it? I've noticed again and again in my own experience that if I defer to a dislike it immediately begins to gain power over me, whereas if I ignore it, it weakens.

People with violent antipathies are not necessarily people with strongly stressed temperaments. They may be merely self-indulgent people who have yielded to their dislikes until they have raised them to the dignity and strength of antipathies.

"I Never Eat Fat."

The person who says "I hate fat—

I never eat it," may have started with no stronger objection to it than he who accepts the fat with the lean. But the one set up dislike as an idol to which courtesy and the preferences of others, and anything else which interfered, should be sacrificed, while the other regarded it as an inconvenient obstacle to be overcome.

"Before I was married I had notions that I couldn't eat this and that and the other," a woman told me the other day. "I must have made a perfect nuisance of myself. But when I had to run a house myself and found how hard it was to think of things to have, I forgot all about most of those dislikes."

I suspect a good many of us have had similar experiences.

"I Don't Want To" The Final Word.

You have probably noticed how often children, especially undisciplined children, say "I don't want to" when they are asked to do this or that. They think that should settle the matter they expect their antipathy to be a supreme law. Is it not a sign of childishness and lack of self-discipline when we grown-ups make our antipathies and try to exalt "I don't want to" a supreme law?

"Perhaps we can't help having opinions," says Mrs. Wiggs, "but we can help expressing them as often as we do."

To paraphrase, "Perhaps we can't help having antipathies, but we can help coddling them as much as we do."

Mapleton's Peanut Butter is made in England. When you buy it you will know its value. When the children get it on their bread they know its quality. Cheap nourishment these strenuous times. The proof of the pudding is the eating of it.

A GREAT WAR FEATURE AT THE CRESCENT.

The great war feature: "A War Baby," attracted large audiences at the Crescent Picture Palace yesterday and will be repeated to-day; all the other pictures on the same programme were equally appreciated and received unstinted applause, especially the two comedies which kept the spectators in roars of laughter; the usual extra pictures are shown at to-day's big matinee and the children are sure to have a good time. On Monday Charles Reade's great story, "Peg Woffington" will be shown, this is truly a great picture and you should not miss seeing it.

PSYCHOLOGICAL STUDY OF LOVE IMPULSES.

One of the most beautiful love stories ever given at the Nickel Theatre was seen last evening and it was closely followed by the large audience. It was entitled: "Stars Their Course Change," and was acted in three reels by the Dossany Company, Francis X. Bushman, Edna Mayo and Bryant Washburn played the principal characters. It is a wonderful psychological study of love impulses and was highly interesting from start to finish. The Harmony boys, Messrs. Fushins and Cairns, were in splendid form last evening. The whole programme will be repeated this evening and we strongly advise all who were not present yesterday to attend.

Worth Dying For.

(The 'Herald Telegraph,' Montreal.) In connection with the announcement from Washington that the sinking of the 'William P. Frye' is to be settled with Germany on a cash basis, it is interesting to recall the fact, little known, that the now famous ship got her name from the late United States senator, William P. Frye, who represented Maine for 30 years. Senator Frye paid one of the most notable tributes to Great Britain that has ever been made by a representative of a foreign power. An extract from that speech is well worth repeating at this time:

"This little incident, with which you are familiar, is a marvellous illustration of the protection which Great Britain gives to her subjects. The King of Abyssinia took a British subject named Cameron in 1867 and carried him up to the fortress of Magdala, upon the heights of a rocky mountain, and put him in a dungeon. It took six months for the British to find this out. Then Great Britain demanded his immediate release, which King Theodore refused. In less than ten days after his refusal was received 16,000 British soldiers, including 5,000 Sepoys, were on board ships of war, sailing down the coasts. They disembarked, marched across the terrible country a distance of 400 miles under a burning sun, up to the mountain, up to the very heights in front of the towering dungeon; then came the battle, battered down the iron gates in the stone wall, reached down into the dungeon, and lifted out that one British subject. Then they carried him down to the same mountain, and then lift him out and carry him home to his country and friends! In God's name, who would not die for a country that would do that?"

IMPORTANT WARNING!

The Rifle Range on the South Side Hill will be in constant use from daylight till dark for Musketry Practice until further notice. All unauthorized persons are therefore prohibited from approaching the Range within two hundred yards from either side or within 1,000 yards of the targets to the Eastward. Any unauthorized person so doing will be liable to arrest, besides incurring serious danger from rifle bullets. This prohibition does not extend to any part of the hills west of the 1,000 yard firing point.

Business Improving at Bell Island.

From people who recently reached the city from that section we learn that business is brisker at Bell Island at present. Both Companies are carrying on operations on a larger scale than last year. The miners are engaged clearing out the dump pits and the exports of ore for the quarter ending September 30th, was twenty five per cent. in excess of the corresponding period last year.

One Pair of Hands is enough.

If you give your Cook a Gas Cooker she can always cook her best and never need keep you waiting because she has nothing else to do but cook.
She has no troublesome coal fire to look after, but can get the exact heat she wants for every dish by merely turning a tap—and she can cook several dishes (each requiring a different degree of heat) at the same time.
The Gas Cooker needs no preparation, makes no cleaning work, and is turned out as soon as it is finished with and therefore burns no unnecessary fuel.
By using a Gas Water-Heater in addition to the Gas Cooker hot water is supplied for all household purposes with the greatest promptitude, and the use of coal in the kitchen can be done away with altogether.
Where Gas Appliances are used in the kitchen the cook will always find that "one pair of hands is enough," always find that "one pair of hands is enough."

THE THOUGHTS OF THEOBALD.

RACE BETTERMENT.

Perhaps the lecture that covered most ground and the biggest subject of all Dr. Geisel's lectures was the one on Race Betterment, and it seems to me that the subject might well be amplified because there were certain angles of investigation which were left to the imagination of the audience to explore and I am not altogether sure that they followed her remarks to their logical conclusion.

She spoke of what men had accomplished, how they had perfected the raising of hogs, and had spent years to find how to vary the lines on the back of a potato bug. They had worked until they discovered exactly what sort of ground was needed for certain crops. They had brought science to bear on every problem—except Race Betterment. That was up to the women.

I do not think that most people took the fact that, after all, though the men were doing good work, that they were ignoring the main work—Race Betterment—and that the lecturer was showing up the ill-directed methods of the present day and making plain the great necessity of Race Betterment.

It is woman's work because the men have not attempted it.

And woman's way will be to raise up men who will make the world a happy place to live in, seek some other way than Poor Houses, Insane Asylums, and make it the main business to do away with the Poverty, Disease, and Wretchedness that we have now.

And these men will do this as the main object in life, before they specialize in hogs, however necessary and good that business may be.

Race Betterment is Woman's work, because Man has not made it his.

The audience clapped to soon when Dr. Geisel announced her firm belief that woman's sphere was in the home. For she followed up by saying that notwithstanding this, women were asking for the vote in order to accomplish by legislation some of the necessary advances towards Race Betterment that the men refused to do. They demanded the vote because they saw men legislating to conserve the interests of hogs, the interests of railroads, and the interests of the financial world, but ignoring the interests of Humanity. Politics, she described as a Mess. Women did not want the vote for power, or position; they only wanted clean cities, and clean, wholesome humanity to inhabit them, and when they had done as much towards this as could be done by law, they would gladly relinquish the ballot, secure in decent civic environment for their sons and daughters when they went from the home.

And as Dr. Geisel never missed having a hit at alcohol, she said that one of the first things women would do would be to abolish alcohol from the face of the earth.

THE HUMAN CROP.

It must be the wonder of the angels that of all the crops of the earth, the human crop is the least attended to. We will not let potatoes suffer from want of care, we will carefully weed and guard our cabbage, carrots, turnips and other vegetables, and see that the soil is kept just right, but the the war, there were 2,500 men working. When war was declared, 1,000 men were called to the colours. At the same time the sale of Vodka was prohibited.

It is found now that the 1,500 men, who were left to work the mine, can accomplish the same quantity of work that it took 2,500 men to accomplish before the war.

Fishery Report.

The latest reports compiled by the Board of Trade are—

Oct. 5th. From C. C. Pitman, (Lord's Cove to Lories)—The total catch is 10650 qts. and for last week 190. Eighty dorset and skiffs and 9 boats are fishing, but operations are practically over and bait is very scarce. The weather during the last two weeks has been very poor.

Oct. 5th. From A. J. Hoffe, (Change Islands)—Four schooners returned from Labrador this week with 200, 300, 150 and 100 qts of cod respectively. Prospects were very good the last two days, the boats getting from 1 to 2 qts each. Herring is scarce and there is no squid for bait. The weather was very rough last week but this week it has been fine. The catch to-date is 13,800 qts. with 800 for last week.

Cleanse Your Hair Makes It Beautiful, Thick, Glossy, Wavy

Try this! All dandruff disappears and hair stops coming out.

Surely try a "Danderine Hair Cleanse" if you wish to immediately double the beauty of your hair. Just moisten a cloth with Danderine and draw it carefully through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; this will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt or any excessive oil—in a few minutes you will be amazed. Your hair will be wavy, fluffy and abundant and possess an incomparable softness, lustre and luxuriance.

Besides beautifying the hair, one application of Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; invigorates the scalp, stopping itching and falling hair.

Danderine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. Its exhilarating, stimulating and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow long, strong and beautiful.

You can surely have pretty, soft, lustrous hair, and lots of it, if you will just get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter and try it as directed.

The Greek Market.

The appended message has just been received from England by the Board of Trade here:—

"Possible loss of Greek market would seriously affect values of Labrador. The war risk now is 60 per cent."

What Are You Doing for that Eczema?

"Nothing; I've about given up trying to cure it."

"That is not wise. Do as I did and you will probably be cured in a short time. I used Zylex and Zylex Soap with it and my Eczema began to improve at once. A couple of boxes cured. You can get Zylex at your druggists."

Zylex, 50c. a box; Zylex Soap, 25c. a cake.

Supposed Missing Schr. Turns Up.

The crew of Hollett's banker, who heard the rumour at Batteau and Venison Islands, that a schooner while on her way to the Labrador coast was lost with eighteen lives on board during a storm, have since learned that the supposed missing vessel had safely reached her destination, which was somewhere in Bonavista Bay.

Confederation.

(Winnipeg Telegram.)

It is well known that one of the political ambitions of Sir Robert Borden is to have his premiership marked by the admission of Newfoundland into the Confederation. He is thoroughly familiar with the problem, and is convinced that the difficulties in the way can be overcome if approached properly. Had it not been for the war, with the immense labor it has entailed, he would probably have set himself seriously to the task before now. Even as it is, there have recently been indications that Newfoundland is getting into a more amiable frame of mind. Her feeling of irritation is dying away. The question with her, now as ever, is mainly financial.

BLIND.

"Mid all the chaos have you seen One gleam, one light of a star?"

And the woman answered: "No, not one."

Though I have gazed near and far.

"But not one word for calm, sure speech? There is surely that somewhere."

But the woman answered: "When I pray 'Tis the stutter of despair."

"Look! On the far world-margin gleams The Dawn that is Victory!"

But the woman said: "My eyes are blind, I am bent and cannot see."

"Hearken, the very hour is here White Peace has been bought at last!"

But the woman said: "How many slain, And how many souls have passed?"

"Ah, but the world is better now, Men say it is true and plain!"

The woman murmured: "Whose heart was hurt When you paid for Progress Pain?"

"People are sobered, cleansed, made pure, War has wrought its work complete!"

But the woman said: "When passed you by The Sign of the Bruised Feet?"

"But there must needs be tragedy; No lesser thing has sufficed." The woman murmured: "O blind, O blind, To the Tragedy of Christ!"

APPEAL

To the People of Newfoundland.

BY THE PROHIBITION CAMPAIGN COMMITTEE

FELLOW COUNTRYMEN,—On the 5th day of June last, "A Bill Respecting the Prohibition of the Importation, Manufacture and Sale of Intoxicating Liquors" was passed by our local Legislature. The measure, which is cited as "The Prohibition (Bills) Act," provides for submitting the question to the electors of the Colony, obtaining an answer thereto, and ascertaining the result of the vote.

The same proceedings, as nearly as may be, are to be observed as in the case of a general election, and the Election Act of 1913 will, subject to the provisions of this Act and of any regulations, orders or instructions made or given by the Governor-in-Council thereunder, apply to the conduct of these proceedings. They are also to be observed with respect to the powers to be exercised, the duties to be performed by, and the rights, obligations, liabilities, qualifications, and disqualifications of judges, officers, electors and all other persons, and with respect to offences and penalties which may be incurred.

The ballot papers for the purpose of voting under this Act will be in the following form:

Are you in favor of prohibiting the manufacture and sale of spirits, wine, ale, beer, cider and all alcoholic liquors for use as beverages? YES NO

According to the Act, an affirmative vote on the question shall be made by placing a cross (thus X) in the space after the word "YES," and a negative vote by placing a similar cross after the word "NO."

The foregoing reference to the Act will be sufficient, without further explanation, to guide the duly qualified citizen in the exercise of his right as a voter on this momentous question. Now, let us consider the issue itself and what it involves.

We fully appreciate the varying viewpoints that will be taken in deciding this issue. In our view of the case, the question is a simple one. The liquor traffic is directly opposed to the social, economic and moral welfare of the country. But this is not a sufficient answer to many voters. It certainly is not a sufficient one to those directly interested. In the opinion of some persons, any direct assault on saloon-keepers lacks force, because the people have been given no argumentative strength. Well, is this partnership to continue?

The liquor dealer is a member of the community; the drunkard is a member of the community; the moderate drinker is a member of the community; the man who never drinks is a member of the community; and it is from this general and united membership must come the decision as to whether Newfoundland shall or shall not abolish this injurious, unsafe and nation-degrading partnership.

Then there is the moral side of the question—but the moral side is not as clearly grasped as its economic side. Intoxicating liquor is a bane to industrial progress. Should it be removed from the community as a detriment to the public welfare? This is the question. Many voters are clear on the subject and have their opinions; others are groping for a decision. We, however, believe that community life, whether here in St. John's or in the Outports, would be greatly improved by Prohibition.

The specious argument is urged that to close the licensed groceries and intoxicating drink resulting in the halting of the victims before the courts and their consequent fine and imprisonment?

Is it right to permit the manufacture of paupers and criminals, by countenancing the liquor traffic, and then tax sober and virtuous people to pay taxes to keep them in our charitable institutions and prisons?

Is it right to profess to be sorry for the evils which spring from intemperance, and, at the same time, to take no steps to bring them to an end?

Is it right for people to wish the temperance cause success, and at the same time continue to drink and support the liquor traffic?

Is it right for any man or woman who wishes well to their country to stand aloof from the only certain cure for intemperance—PROHIBITION?

Remember, Alcohol is not food, but a habit-forming, narcotic drug; a poison that takes vitality from a man but adds none. It lowers the power of resistance to disease and reduces the capacity for work. It inflames the passions, weakens the will, blunts the finer sensibilities and paralyzes the moral sentiment.

It is the chief cause of pauperism, domestic discord, heartbreak, ship and train wrecks and many other troubles. It is the principal factor in producing forty per cent. of the insane, seventy-five per cent. of the criminals, eighty per cent. of the erring women, and seventy per cent. of all the dependent and delinquent classes.

It is the most potent force in race degeneracy. Eighty-two per cent. of the offspring of alcoholics die in infancy, or become dependent or delinquent before the age of fifty. The effects often extend to the second and third generations, producing abnormal tendencies towards vice or crime.

No man that aspires to accomplish anything worth while in life, or has any regard for the welfare of his offspring, should use it in any form. Have the following facts any significance?

Absinthe has been prohibited in Belgium, in Switzerland, in Holland and France.

King Haakon of Norway closed the breweries on the outbreak of war.

The people of Iceland have banished alcoholic beverages from their island. The Czar has broken the second serfdom of Russia with his prohibition ukase.

Many Royal houses of Europe now oppose social recognition of the drink habit.

Public men and Patriots of Great Britain denounce the liquor traffic as the country's greatest foe.

Eighteen States in America have turned on "Old Bill Boose," as they call the drink habit, and other States are hastening toward the Prohibition colours.

Not one public man of really national leadership will now debate himself to serve the opponents of Prohibition.

An investigation reveals the fact that the use of alcohol as a medicine is decreasing in more than four-fifths of the hospitals of leading American cities.

Great industrial concerns all over the world are waging a vast business war on alcohol.

Is there anything on earth or under the earth that can oppose a movement animated by such a spirit and enthusiasm by such a prospect?

As an illustration of the hopelessness with which the liquor dealers themselves regard their doomed business, we quote the following, not as the words of a Prohibition fanatic, but as the editorial utterance of The National Liquor Dealers' Journal:—"Ultimately all questions must be settled by moral standards; only in this way can mankind be saved from self-effacement. The liquor traffic cannot save itself by declaring that Government is incapable of coping with the problem it presents; when the people decide that it must go, it will be banished. We are not discussing the benefit or justice of Prohibition; but its possibility, and its probability in present circumstances. To us there is "The handwriting on the wall," and its interpretation spells doom.

"For this liquor is to blame. It seems incapable of learning any lesson of advancement, or any motive but profit. To perpetuate itself it has formed alliances with the slums that repel all conscientious and patriotic citizens. It deliberately aids the most corrupt and recreant officials. It does not aid the purification of municipal, state, or national administration. Why? Because it has to ask immunity for its own lawlessness.

"Anyway, the case of the liquor traffic called for adjudication by the people and must be ready for trial. Other cases may be called later, but the one before the court cannot be postponed. But, as in the past, the men most concerned are playing for postponement, not for acquittal. Is it because they fear the weakness of their defence that they fear to go on trial? Looking the facts in the face is best. When the people decide that the truth is being told about the alcoholic liquor trade, the money value will not count, for conscience aroused puts the value of a man above all other things."

It is a fact worth knowing, and a source of much encouragement to the Prohibition Committee, that, in this important movement for the overthrow of the rum power, Catholic and Protestant are marching shoulder to shoulder under one flag and against one common enemy. This association is neither Catholic nor Protestant, but Christian, and, therefore, we can confidently ask all denominations to co-operate in the movement.

There is a clear call to go forward for Total Prohibition, and as we proceed hundreds of round-up rallies will be held and we shall endeavor to enrol a sufficient number of Prohibitionists to easily secure a victorious issue from the conflict.

Many of our leading men are fast consecrating themselves to the ideal of a saloonless Colony. It is an inspiring sight to see them coming to the colors, and it is a hopeful sight, because this is no longer a class war. It is the war of the people. They have made it their own. They are fast joining the ranks. When they are fully mobilized, early in November next, there will be an end of ALCOHOL.

There must be no word of discord sounded. Let us carry, all through the campaign, a spirit of optimism

"Just the Same."

How often does your friend ask you "How are you feeling," and your answer is: "Just the same," my cough is no one bit better. Don't you think that you are very foolish in allowing this nasty cough and cold hang on to you for such a long time? If you have contracted a cough or cold in some way or other, try the following:—Mix equal parts of Stafford's Liniment and Camphorated Oil together and apply to the neck and chest, rubbing it in well every time. Take from one to two teaspoonfuls of Stafford's Phosphate Cough and Cold Cures every two hours. The above treatment has been found beneficial hundreds of times. You can obtain these preparations from

"STAFFORD'S PHARMACY," Duckworth St.
"STAFFORD'S DRUG STORE," Theatre Hill.

Mothers—"I hear that Harry Smith is the worst boy in school, and I want you to keep as far from him as possible."

Tommy—"I do, Ma. He is always at the head of our class."—Boston Transcript.

YOUR BOYS AND GIRLS

Happy the parents who can flatter themselves that neither they, nor any of their household, have ever deceived a child unnecessarily and without legitimate cause. Children quickly discover that all that grown-ups do or say is not always truth, and very soon their innate cunning leads them to dissimulate.

Laziness will sometimes lead children to tell untruths, also the fear of being scolded or punished, or deprived of an unexpected treat, but this is generally after a child is three or four years old. It is very often our manner of trying to find out the truth which leads children to defiance, dissimulation and falsehood. "Did you do this?" or "Who has done this?" asked in a threatening voice and with severe looks, provoke an answer which may save from punishment, or at any rate may put it off, and so the child tells a lie.

Enjoy your meals by taking a teaspoonful of Stafford's Prescription "A" before eating. Trial size 25c. bottle; postage 5c. extra. Large size 50c. bottle; postage 10c. extra—sep21,tf
