Wonderful Times Ahead.

Newfoundland Can Raise Loans Without Trouble -- Only Six Million Added to Public Debt--Communist Plot Responsible for South African Trouble--Manitoba Government Resigns.

BOLSHEVIK PLOT. JOHANNESBURG, March 16. Order has been completely restored. The police declare they have voluminous evidence showing that a Bolsheviki plot was responsible for the revolutionary outbreak. The revelation will be "astounding," they assert. A government official declared to-night that the prisoners exceeded six thousand, and that those among them responsible for outrages would be dealt with. The railway men have resumed work.

NEWFOUNDLAND'S NEW LOAN. TORONTO, March 17. A syndicate comprising the Dominion Securities Ltd., Toronto, Dillon Best and Co., New York, and Lee Higginson, of Boston, have acquired the six million bond issue of the Newfoundland Government, carrying five and a half per cent. for twenty years payable in New York funds. The price paid was $8,768, the cost to the present colony being $6.59 per cent. in New York basis. Figuring cost in Canadian dollars at four per cent. discount, the cost works out at about 5 1/2% and the price approximately 5 1/2%.

FRANCE WILL PAY HER DEBTS. PARIS, March 17. Premier Poincare told Finance Committee of Senate yesterday that France will pay all her debts as she has her custom.

A GOOD SIGN. NEW YORK, March 17. The Bank of England, which has distributed a five per cent. dividend annually since 1914, has increased the rate to six per cent. a telegram to a financial agency here last to-day. The increased dividend was an agreeable surprise to international bankers. Even those with international London connections seemed to have no intimation that such action was impending. The larger disbursements coming so soon after reduction of discount rate was accepted here as proof of Great Britain's steady recovery to normal or pre-war conditions.

REBEL LEADERS SUICIDED. JOHANNESBURG, March 17. Joe Thompson, President of the Argued Executive of South African Industrial Federation, has been arrested in connection with the miners' strike. The rebel leaders Fisher and Spindler, who were found dead in Trade's Hall at Fordsburg after bombardment of the city by Government forces, committed suicide, according to an official statement.

FIFTY CASUALTIES DURING RIOTING. LONDON, March 17. Twenty natives were killed and thirty wounded at Nairobi, British East Africa, yesterday, in fighting which followed demonstrations over the arrest of the Indian agitator Tauku, says a Central News despatch.

BREAKING OUT AGAIN. LONDON, March 17. The Labor Party to-day announced that Arthur Henderson had received telegrams from the Party's Russian foreign delegation alleging that the Soviet Government was preparing to renew its policy of terrorism against the Social Revolutionary Party. According to the telegram the leaders of the Russian Socialist Party, who have been imprisoned three years, will be tried for treason on March 20, and under cover of the trial the Communist Party intends to conceal its real purpose which is alleged to be to settle accounts with its political enemies. An appeal is made for immediate and resolute intervention on the part of Socialists throughout the world. Mr. Henderson has telegraphed Communist leaders expressing alarm and urging that no injury be done to these political prisoners. The Berlin party has also made urgent representations to the Third International.

March is Month of Revolutions. The "idea of March," which since the revolution seems to have had a disastrous effect, mentally, each year in certain circles in Germany, is again causing the Government and industrial controls no little anxiety. March is the month of revolutions, uprisings and revolts in Germany. Since 1918, Germany has been set by the ears every March. In March, 1919, there was a real attempt to overthrow the Government. In March, at the same time the Bolsheviks overthrew the Bavarian Government. In March, 1920, the Kapp-Luetwitz revolution chased the National Government out of Berlin. In March, 1921, there were radical uprisings in Middle Germany which took the Government a fortnight to put down. From confidential reports reaching the newspapers, industrial managements and the Commissioner of Public Security, it is declared that indications show that something is happening in extreme radical circles which foreshadows some outbreak for this March.

THE TERROR OF THE SEAS. CRUEL MONSTER THAT IS EASILY COWED. Many authors have written thrilling descriptions of the devil-fish, and although scientists declare that usually these accounts are exaggerated, they admit that the creature has many curious features. The devil-fish varies in length from one inch to fifty feet, but very few specimens of the largest kind have been found, and none of these was in perfect condition owing to the fierce attacks of whales and other monsters of the deep. They are provided with sucker arms or tentacles, with which they catch the small fish on which they live. These arms are tremendously strong, and, in addition, the devil-fish is armed with a sharp parrot-like beak. In spite of these formidable weapons, however, the creature, while cruel, are very timid--and easily cowed. Amazing Speed. The smaller devil-fish swim in shoals, and as they move they change their colour according to their surroundings. They have another device which enables them to escape when hard pressed. This is the ink bag, by means of which they can pour out a dark fluid which makes the sea around them thick and cloudy. Even more extraordinary in their method of swimming. They draw water into their bodies and then force it out of a hole just below the head. The force of the water as it rushes out propels the creature. Usually, the devil-fish swims backwards, but it can swim forward simply by turning. Its flexible siphon in the opposite direction. In appearance the devil-fish is a loathsome creature, for its long, writhing arms and fixed, stony stare are terrifying in the extreme. Besides being able to swim, it can crawl along the sea bottom on its feelers. It lies in some crack in the rocks, and as soon as a fish passes its hiding place its feelers shoot out with amazing speed. Once the suckers have touched the victim there is no escape, and it is drawn quickly into the great mouth.

TRINITY.

I have often been asked when, and by whom the name Trinity was given to our harbor and town, and I have never been able to give the definite answer that I should like to give. I have always taken it for granted that the name was suggested to some early visitor, by the presence of the three arms of water. North West Arm, the Harbor, and the South West Arm, thus making a Trinity of waters. The most careless observer could not fail to notice. I sadly miss my friend Canon Smith, to whom in doubt I always went for such information, and I cannot find anything in the history of Newfoundland that will help me out.

I find that it was known as Trinity in 1583, and was referred to as such by Richard Whitbourne. Two of the most interesting figures in the history of Newfoundland are Gilbert and Whitbourne; both were on the Island in 1583. Sir Humphrey Gilbert came as the Queen's representative, and Whitbourne as a common sailor. The latter part in the function, and watched the ceremonious taking possession of the colony. Poor Richard, afterwards Sir Richard, had no friends at Court. His first experience of the country was as a hand before the mast. "The young sailor, in the beautiful land-locked harbor of Trinity, amidst all the hurry and bustle of the shore fishery, first saw the 'natural inhabitants' he called the Beothics or Red Indians. (Vide Prowse's 'History,' p. 85.)"

Some people maintain that it was given the name Trinity because it was first entered on Trinity Sunday. If so, there is no reference to it, that I know of, in history. The fact that Sir Richard Whitbourne came here on Trinity Sunday is duly recorded in history, but it was thirty years after he had been here before, and at which time he referred to it as "beautiful . . . Trinity." Thus, thirty years after Whitbourne's first visit to Trinity he came again (in 1615). He was then Sir Richard Whitbourne, and he tells us that on the 11th of May, 1615 he sailed from Peter, England, in a barque manned with eleven men and boys at his own charges. On the 4th of June, being Trinity Sunday he anchored in Trinity Harbor, and there, in the name of the Holy and Undivided Trinity, he called together the masters of the English ships then lying in the Harbor, and held the first Court of Admiralty in the King's name that ever was held in Newfoundland. (Vide Prowse, p. 115.) This reference to Trinity Sunday indicates that the place was already known as Trinity Harbor when Whitbourne entered it on that Trinity Sunday; and whilst it was referred to by Whitbourne thirty years before as "beautiful . . . Trinity," it is still doubtful as to whether Whitbourne gave it the name then, or that it had been known by that name even before his visit in 1583. It is not likely that an ordinary sailor, such as Whitbourne was in 1583, would be the first to give the name, hence it was given at that date, it was probably given by some one else—or possibly by some one before that date.

Rogers, in his history of Newfoundland, says: "Trinity Bay must have been well known from early times, as Cartier recognized Cape Bonavista and Catalina Harbor as the northern extremity of Trinity Bay in 1534; and Perlican as its southern extremity was a fishing resort in 1597." The presence of the Beothics in and around Trinity Bay kept people from settling there, hence Trinity Bay was not so well known in early days as was Conception Bay and others where there were no Indians. Did Trinity derive its name from Trinity Bay, or Trinity Bay derive its name from Trinity? Who can tell?

For this sturdy old sailor Whitbourne, every Newfoundland should feel a deep affection. His love for our Island was wonderful; through good report and evil report he always stood by us. Sir Robert Bond did suitable respect to the memory of the old "worthy of Devon" by naming our first important railway junction "Whitbourne." (Vide Prowse, p. 118)

The following is a reference to Newfoundland in 1622: "The settlements were very much scattered, and these hardy pioneers, most skilful in woodcraft, traversed the country in all directions, and made visits to

JOSEPH SIAUD RECOMMENDS THE DODD'S REMEDIES.

Has no Trouble with his Kidneys—Even When the Weather Changes, Since Using Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Duck Lake, Sask., March 17th. (Special)—Joseph Slaud, a well-known resident here is a firm believer in the Dodd's Remedies. "I believe I have the right to be," Mr. Slaud says. "For I have given them a thorough trial. 'I have used 44 boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills and 46 boxes of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets and they have done me a lot of good. I don't feel any sore from my kidneys now even when the weather changes.'"

"To anyone suffering from Kidney disease or Dyspepsia I recommend the Dodd's Remedies. Give them a trial before trying any other." Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets give good digestion. Dodd's Kidney Pills make good blood. With good digestion and pure blood good health is assured. Ask your neighbors about the Dodd's Remedies.

each other—'cruising' as it was then called in the country." The following footnote to illustrate the use of the word "cruising." A lady sent her servant—an outboard man—to ask a friend to go calling with her. The message delivered was: "The mistress wants to know 'mam, if you will go cruising with her this afternoon.'"

When Mr. Somerton gave his Lecture on Fur Sealing, it was arranged with Mr. Smith, the Principal of the School, that any of the children recommended by him would be admitted to the Lecture on payment of five cents, with the understanding that they might bring their blank-books with them, take such notes as they thought fit and then the next day in school those who wished to do so should write an essay on the subject. Twenty-nine children attended the lecture, and undertook to write. Two prizes were offered, and the manuscripts were submitted to Mr. Somerton to be read and marked by him. No name was given by the writers; but each paper was marked by a number, and the age of the child. No one but Principal Smith knew what children the numbers represented. Mr. Somerton became so interested in the papers submitted, that he added two additional prizes. When he went to the school to announce the results he found that the respective numbers of essays selected represented Willie Gent (80), Mabel Christian (75), Isabella Kelly (70), Gladys Hiscock (60), and the prizes were awarded accordingly. This is the first time in Trinity that the school children have been asked to do this, and the results are decidedly encouraging. The same privileges and exercises will be provided for in future in connection with every such lecture given.

Several people are complaining of the bad language and rude actions of the young men and boys who congregate on the main road at the top of the Doctor's Hill. Years ago they were not allowed to congregate there. An official complaint will be made if it is not stopped.

The arrival of the mail for Trinity, Catalina and Bonavista, from Shoal Harbor last week, drawn by twenty-one dogs, was interesting in more ways than one. It meant a long, hard pull, owing to the heavy snow drifts along the line; and some fifteen bags of mail had to be left behind at Princeton. These were brought in the next day by some men from Princeton. There being no dogs at Princeton, and the road being impassable for horses, the men used their own power, and pulled the bags merrily along in record time.

The inquiry by a correspondent as to the technical meaning of the word "youngster," sends me back in interesting thought to references to "youngsters" in Mr. William Kelson's letters of a hundred years ago. They were, largely articles of commerce to him. To all the orders for such youngsters sent in to him by the planters in the Bay, his order sheet to the agent in Poole would read something like this: Kindly send out by the brig— in the spring— fifty bundles of oakum, fifty barrels of tar, twenty barrels of pitch, ten dozen bake-pots, fifty youngsters, five dozen train-oil lamps, etc. etc. Then when the vessel had arrived in the spring and discharged her cargo, Mr. Kelson would report to Poole something like this: I beg to report the safe arrival of the brig— and that her cargo turned out as follows: Fifty barrels of oakum, in good condition; fifty barrels of tar, two with heads leaking; ten dozen bake-pots, several badly broken; fifty youngsters, five not at all well; five dozen train-oil lamps, ten with ribs and handles off, etc. etc. The youngsters were given a place in the order and in the receipt, either between the pitch and the bake-pots, or between the tar and the train-oil lamps, just as they happened to come into Mr. Kelson's mind as he wrote, and they were delivered to the planters and checked off accordingly. There was no markish sentiment wanted over them, and perhaps that was one of the reasons why they developed into such fine men.

Some happy events of the distant past.

Mr. Shortis Replies to Mr. O'Mara.

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir.—Mr. H. F. Shortis, who is, certainly, well-informed on our early sealing voyages, as well as an enthusiast on all matters pertaining thereto, will be surprised to learn of the splendid catch of the twenty-five St. John's vessels, already noted, etc. (Mr. O'Mara, Article of Thursday last). Mr. Shortis is not in the least surprised. When I was speaking to Mr. O'Mara a few days ago, and noted the mischievous twinkle in his saucer eyes, I felt sure that he would have a sly dig. My old friend is a deep shot. Mr. O'Mara is ever endeavouring to maintain the head of the outport men as seal-killers, and, no doubt, would prove successful had he the material to work on. He attacks us for his native town, and I only do my old friend justice in saying that I know no man so well versed in the general history and traditions of St. John's as M. J. O'Mara. But to come to the point. I shall not show the absurdity of Mr. O'Mara's statements as to the superiority of St. John's skippers of the past over the outport skippers from any evidence of mine, but I shall take up his own remarks and prove that he has been endeavoring to pluck the laurels from the brows of the outport skippers and place them on the heads of the St. John's men. With a flourish of trumpets he enumerates the successful vessels who brought in loads of seals to St. John's in the year 1857. He names those famous seal-killers: Capt. P. Mullooney, Barron, Terence Halleran, P. Feehan, Edward White, Alexander Graham, Carew, Gossie of Torbay, William Kneeb, Bemister, etc., but carefully refrains from going farther. But he went far enough to "put his foot in it." Now, my old friend, did you ever stop to think that, with two or three exceptions, every one of the famous skippers you named in your well-written letter, were born and reared in the outports? Would Mr. O'Mara have us believe that those famous Vikings were modern Heaas, who would deny their birthright? Mr. O'Mara was very unfortunate in his selection. I would feel very much obliged to Mr. O'Mara if he could give me the names of native born St. John's skippers who could rank with such outport heroes and successful seal-killers, as those Mr. O'Mara has named himself, such as Mullooney, Halleran, Graham, White, etc., or who could produce records such as Whelan, Billy Rabbits, Jim Wilcox, Mundena, Bartlett, Sprackling, Clarke, Norman, of Brigus; Dawes, Parsons, Deaneys, of Bay Roberts; Pike, Forwards, Fitzgibbons, Dwyers, of Carbonear; Rockwoods, Weymans, Hopkins, of Heart's Content; Egan, Andrews, Grahams, Coleman, of Trinity; Daniel Green, Hanrahan, Keefe, and above all, Thomey of Harbot, Grace, whose average record in sailing vessels for half a century was over 4,000 seals; William Kneeb, Murphy, Wm. Kean, Winders of Bonavista Bay; Stephen Johnson and Avery of Bay de Verde. Now, Mr. O'Mara, old friend, get a salt on, and let us see what a success you will make in handling your case, and then I shall have something else to say. There is nothing like making an analytical contrast, because, we are then sure to arrive at a true conclusion. Yours very truly, H. F. SHORTIS.

MASKS.

The other evening a group of us were sitting around the office of a little Inn where I sometimes take refuge when in need of vacation. One of the men made a very strong statement which I knew (though he didn't) ran counter to the convictions of the other people present.

He looked at those few people who were not a sign of feeling on his face, just the ruminative look he has when they are thinking of their own thoughts. I had a pretty good idea what those thoughts might be, to anyone who did not, their thinking was going on behind perfectly impenetrable masks.

Castle With Two Opaque Windows.

As I looked at these masks I was thinking how strange and beautiful and missing and haunting is the way we all live behind masks. I saw we all come out from behind them to some extent in speech, but again we sometimes express and compromise betray ourselves by the smile which emotion flings up on the face. But nine-tenths of our lives are lived in the impenetrable fastness of man's true fortress—the gray mask that lies back of those opaque windows we call our eyes.

We read each others' thoughts. It has been proclaimed that angels the many possible inventions of the coming age is some utilization of the principles of vibration whereby we may read each others thought without the medium of speech. I do not wholly welcome such an idea. It is a trespass on the integrity of man's individuality. It would be like doing away with all locks and keys and leaving all the doors of one's home and one's private rooms open to all who would enter and pass through. Only rather worse, I think.

Perhaps, though, the inventor will leave us control of the avenues of communication and it will not be possible to establish it unless both parties are willing. Although even this—well, having lived in the persons of ourselves and our ancestors for some thousands of years behind the impenetrable mask there seems to be something in us that cannot quite bear the thought of coming out from behind them.

Masks in Heaven!

I wonder how it will be in the after life? I always loved those lines, "New we see through a glass darkly but then face to face. Now I know in part but then shall I know even as also I am known." They used to comprise my favorite verses. I wonder if that means that there will be no masks in Heaven. But if it does one need not worry how one will like it for whatever Power makes our conditions in any future life will surely be able to look after that.

In the meantime I am glad there are masks here. Sometimes, to be

KEEPING HIS WORD.

Jinks Jinks always kept his words throughout his useful years, and when his funeral occurred the town was wet with tears. We'd p l a n t ed hard at sundry times, and famous statesmen, too, and plutocrats whose stock of dimes was something fierce to view; and while we grieved to note their doom, and see their projects bust, we only wept around each tomb enough to lay the dust. For gilded gents and famous gents and gents with gorgeous rolls are commoner than twenty cents, and oft have tawdry souls. But when you meet that human bird with sunshine on his brow who never goes back on his word, take off your hat and bow. He says he'll pay you what he owes, and though through storm and fire he goes, he'll promptly keep the date. No promise lightly leaves his lips, but when his pledge is made, he never fails, he never slips, his word never fades. He's an example to the town, a landmark good to see; and when at last we lay him down beneath a churchyard tree, the briny tears in streamlets roll like waters in a hill, and in the town there is a hole it will be hard to fill.

Cure of Codfish.

THE ICELANDIC METHOD.

The following is the method adopted at Iceland in the preparation of "Labrador style," according to the account given by the Norwegian Consul-General at Genoa. As soon as the fish is caught, and whilst it is alive, its throat is cut so that it bleeds to death. This is described as most important. As soon as possible after this the fish is gutted and the head removed. The fish is split in the ordinary way, with this difference, that the cutting does not go down to the tail, but stops short about a hand's breadth from it according to the size of the fish. The tail part thus remains round; about a third of the bone is left at the tail part. The fish is then thoroughly washed (another important item), and the washed fish are piled with a thick layer of salt between each (salt should not be spread) in piles from one and a-half to two metres high; the first salting is often done at Iceland in great vats. After five or six days the piles are rebuilt, so that the uppermost fish become the lowest in the new pile and abundant salt is again used. After ten or fourteen days the piles are taken down, the loose salt is shaken off the fish, which are then placed on a board and washed with pure water, a fibre-brush (skurekost) being used. In contrast to the process with ordinary split fish the black membrane on the nape is left. It is of great importance that the outside or backside of the fish is thoroughly washed, especially under the fins. If there is a reddish appearance on the nape (vingarnes) it is again salted and again washed. After washing the fish are piled ready for drying. But they have to be dried only to a small extent. It is difficult to state a time, as it depends on the weather. As a guide, it may be said that with average good weather drying may be done for two periods of six hours each, the fish being piled in the interval; in strong sunshine this would be too much. Then the "Labrador-style" is ready for shipping. In conclusion, the Consul-General advises Norwegian curers, if they are thinking of preparing the "style" in Norway for the Italian market, never to forget three things—first, that the fish must be bled immediately after leaving the sea; second, never to spare salt; third, to wash the fish thoroughly before and after salting.—By Klipp-fish in Fish Trades Gazette.

Going to Extremes.

PARIS HAS NEW FAD—BATHS FOR DOGS.

Paris, (Associated Press).—No longer will those pampered pets of Parisian women—the Pomeranian and the Pekingese—be left to the unskilled care of the maid for their weekly baths. Elaborate baths, constructed and equipped exclusively for the abolition of pet dogs of wealthy Parisians have just been opened in the exclusive Saint Honore quarters of Paris. A fashionable dog's life is a veritable path of roses if the word attendants at the canine bathing establishment may be accepted as true. Attendants say he rides in a luxurious motor-car to the baths where he has a private bathing compartment. After experienced masseurs pay their respects to his canine highness while a manicurist shapes his aristocratic claws. When the veterinary determines that his health is all that his owner could desire, he re-enters the motor-car with his mistress and returns home to a dainty meal of porter-house steak.

Get a Woman to Catch a Woman.

The girl detective versus the girl bandit.

Under this title is developing a chapter in the history of crime and its detection and punishment in the United States. Nearly one hundred girls and women are on the rolls of the Department of Justice as deputy United States marshals. In every section of the United States women are accelerating the crime wave, are being forced to appear in courts to defend themselves against criminal charges. With women both enforcing and violating the law a criminal war within the limits of sex is developing. The stage is set to put to practical test the formula of "Set a woman to catch a woman."

employed in active field work. Although they have the full power to make arrests—that goes with the commission—in most cities where they have been commissioned they are detailed to work as clerks of marshals. The rapidity with which women are taking to violating law, however, will lead to the employment of members of the sex in active detective work. Police chiefs of most large cities have proved the efficiency of women for police duties of specified character. In Washington women who belong to the police force are detailed to work that involves contact with children and adult females. In other cities the same plan is in operation. Women commissioned as deputy United States marshals might well be employed in the detection and arrest of female gamblers, it is pointed out.

Street Railway Sued.

An interesting action arising out of an article carried into a street car by a passenger falling and injuring another passenger, has been commenced in the county court by James A. Hawey, who sues the Ottawa Electric Railway Company for $500 damages.

Hawey claimed he was a passenger on a Britannia line car in February, 1920, and while he was riding, an iron bar which had been brought into the car by another passenger, and placed in the rear of the car, fell and hit his head. He also claims that a lump was raised and that since then he has suffered from headaches and dizziness.

Telling Time by the Sun.

You may have wondered sometimes how it is that whilst most of our counting is done in tens, we have several examples of reckoning by twelves, such as the half-dozen, the dozen, the gross, and also the divisions of the year and of the day.

The reason is that in the old days there were two quite distinct systems of calculating. The Jews and Arabs used their ten fingers as an aid of addition, and from them we get the decimal system. But other early peoples had a system of counting founded not on the number of their fingers, but on the movements of the sun.

They adopted as their unit the time which the sun takes to travel his own length, that is one minute. They found that the sun required 720 minutes to pass from sunrise to sunset at those times of the year when day and night were equal, and these they divided into 12 hours of 60 minutes each. Twelve thus became their group for calculating purposes, and 60 (6 times 12) was their top number, corresponding to our hundred.

They were at first only moderately good astronomers, so they worked out the year at 360 days, which gave 12 months of 30 days each. Each month had two spells of twelve working days and six days of rest. Later they adopted the six-days week, with a seventh rest day as part of it.

We can see a curious survival of the 12 system in our own language. Most others have no proper words for num-

Makes a Family Supply of Cough Remedy

Really better than ready-made cough syrups and saves about 25% Easily and quickly prepared.

If you combined the curative properties of every known "ready-made" cough remedy, you probably could not get as much real curative power as there is in this simple home-made cough syrup, which is easily prepared in a few minutes.

Get from any druggist 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex, pour it into a 16-oz. bottle and fill the bottle with syrup, using either plain granulated sugar syrup, clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, as desired. The result is 16 ounces of really better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made and saves easily $2. Tastes pleasant and never spoils.

This Pinex and Syrup preparation gets right at the cause of a cough and gives almost immediate relief. It loosens the phlegm, stops the nasty throat tickle and breaks the sore, irritated membranes so gently and easily that it is really astonishing.

A DAY'S USE will usually overcome the ordinary cough and for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness and bronchial asthma, there is nothing better.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations to break up severe coughs.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2 1/2 ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

King George Sues President Harding.

King George of Great Britain, through his attorneys, has filed a suit in District Court of Fort Worth, Texas, against President Harding, asking damages of $1,079 for the alleged non-delivery by the Rock Island Railroad of 84 cases of corned beef during the war. President Harding is a party to the suit because the railroad is the defendant, and the United States Government had control of the railroads for a period during the war. King George was the only plaintiff named in the suit. According to the suit, the corned beef, which was to be shipped to Hoboken, N.J., never was delivered.

Why You Need Iron— To Make You Strong and "Brainy" and Put the Power Into Your Blood To Overcome Disease Germs

The food you eat contains carbon. When your food is digested it is absorbed from the intestines into the blood. When the carbon in your food comes in contact with the oxygen carried by the iron in your blood, the carbon and oxygen unite and so doing they give off tremendous energy, thereby giving you great force, strength and endurance. Without iron your blood carries no oxygen and without oxygen there is nothing to unite with the carbon in your food so that what you eat does you no good—you do not get any strength from it—it is like putting coal into a stove without a fire. You cannot get any heat from the coal until you have a fire.

The strongest weapons with which to prevent and overcome colds, pneumonia, kidney trouble, rheumatism, nervous prostration, is that almost any disease or disease germ is plenty of good rich, pure blood, strength, energy and endurance and the greatest energy carrier in the body is organic iron, not metallic iron which people usually take, but organic iron like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples, and like the iron contained in what is known as organic Nuxated Iron, which may be had from almost any druggist. Nuxated Iron often increases the strength, energy and endurance of weak, nervous, run-down folks in two weeks time.

It has been used and highly recommended by former United States Senators, Members of Congress, Judges of U. S. Courts, many physicians and prominent men.

Battleship to Tin Kettle.

A VISIT TO THE NAVY SCRAP-HEAP.

The work of the ship-breaker has developed to such an extent that it is not unlikely that you boil the water for your tea in part of the remains of a Dreadnaught. The brass tap from which you draw the water may have seen service in another form in the Battle of Jutland.

Should you have sardines with a meal, do not be surprised if the origin of the tin was a cruiser that figured in some little scrap in the North Sea.

If the Washington Conference has its way a substantial part of the world's navies will finish up either as tin cans or garden seats. But whether Washington succeeds or fails, the remarkable process of conversion will go on. Since the Armistice the British Government alone has consigned over five hundred warships to the scrap-heap. Over two hundred vessels have gone to one firm—Thos. W. Ward, Ltd., of Sheffield.

A recent deal included one hundred and thirteen warships with a total tonnage of 360,000. The original value of these engines of destruction was many millions of pounds. What was paid for them by the shipbreakers is a secret, but if the Admiralty receives £20,000 for a warship that would cost £2,000,000 to build to-day it considers it has not made a bad deal.

All round the British coast are huge yards specially fitted up for the task of reducing to scrap anything from a battleship to a submarine. To go through one of them would move a naval man to tears. He would see all around him great piles of apparently valueless rubbish. Bits of decking, the blades of a turbine engine, part of a kitchen galley, the remains of the ladder up which he used to climb to the bridge—all are mixed in chaotic confusion.

The process of tearing a warship to pieces is a highly developed one. As soon as a vessel is moored men swarm aboard and remove the deck fittings. Then comes the difficult operation of taking up the deck. For this purpose the oxy-acetylene process is employed. Oxygen and acetylene are combined to eject from a pipe a flame of terrific heat. With the jet in his hand the workman applies the flame to the steel deck, and literally cuts a way through it. In a surprisingly short time large squares are cut out, and all that remains is for the crane-man to attach his chain and swing the chunks of metal on to the quay.

Garden Bakes and Dog Kennels.

A bewildering spectacle of engines and machinery meets the eye when the deck has disappeared. The men clamber below, and with wrench and hammer detach huge portions for the crane to lift clear. Gradually the once smart-looking craft loses its vitals. The gangways, the officers' quarters, the boilers, the shaft. Soon there is nothing left but an empty shell. Then the oxy-acetylene flame gets to work again. The sides of the hull are cut into squares, and eventually a few pieces floating on the surface of the water are all that remain to tell the tale.

On the quay, steam shears cut pieces of steel into sizes that will fit a furnace, for that is their ultimate fate. Most of them find their way to South Wales, where they are melted down. Brass and copper, the beautiful fittings which formerly Jack took such a pride in causing to resemble a mirror—all go into the melting pot as soon as they have been sorted and cleaned. The magnificent furniture which adorned the quarters of some admiral is handed with great care and eventually sold as it stands. Cheaper woodwork has a different fate. It may become the handle of a garden rake, or end its career as a dog kennel.—Tit Bits.

Public Officers Refused to Take Oath.

Berlin, (Associated Press)—Public officials in some of the federated German states have refused to take the oath of allegiance to the republican constitution on the ground they owed allegiance only to their own state. The point of law evoked lively discussion, particularly in Bavaria where respect for the present German regime is not very deeply grounded. Legal suits were brought in two cases for reinstatement of the officials whose offices had been declared vacant on account of their non-constitutional attitude. One court ruled the oath was unnecessary but a higher court reversed the decision.

A Land of Quick Harvests.

Karelia has come slightly into the limelight lately owing to a revolution which is stated to have broken out against the Soviet Government, and in which the Karelians are receiving the moral support of the Finns. Karelia has no political boundaries, but is considered to be all the territory in North Russia east of Finland to the White Sea, including the town of Kem, and south of Kem, to Petrozavodsk, to the west of the railway line.

The language of the Karelians is a form of Finnish with a sprinkling of Russian, but most Karelians can also speak Russian. The men are fair-haired and have blue eyes and sallow complexion. They are of medium height with very well-developed shoulders; the majority of the boys of 14 to 16 require a large size man's tunic. The women are short and plain. They all wear handkerchiefs over their heads, and the unmarried women wear their hair in scraggy plaits.

The villages generally consist of from 20 to 30 houses built on the side of a hill bordering a lake. The Karelians keep their houses extremely clean, and they themselves take a weekly steam bath, the whole family generally going into it at once.

They eke out a precarious existence; the land cannot be tilled before the end of May, and everything must be harvested before the end of September.

On account of the northern latitude, there is practically no night from May till August, and consequently crops grow fast. Wheat is said to have grown three inches in two days.

Irishmen at the Head. During the operations against the Bolsheviks in 1918-19, four battalions of Karelians were raised, supervised by British officers, the whole being under the command of an Irish colonel, a reservist.

The object of the first three battalions was to drive the Red Finns out of Karelia, in which they succeeded. The fourth battalion was raised to fight the Russian Bolsheviks and was in action several times.

As to the political aspirations of the Karelians, no love has ever been lost between them and the Russians, and this feeling was worked upon by their Irish C.O., who encouraged them to seek political autonomy and even designed a flag for them, which he had made and sent over from London—a shamrock on an orange ground! Their cap badge consisted of a large trefoll cut out of cartridge cases.

Great was the jubilation in the Karelian headquarters when a message, which had reached the War Office via Helsingfors, was repeated to the intelligence officer, Russia, and read that "A patrol of the Royal Irish Rifles had been seen near the Finnish frontier!"

The chief difficulty in the way of Karelian self-government is their almost total lack of educated men, the occasional schoolmaster being the only man in the country who boasts of any learning.—Family Herald

Bermudas and Shakespeare.

In 1587, Sir Walter Raleigh wrote of the Bermudas as a "hellish sea of thunder, lightning and storm." The truth is, Bermuda was born into the history of the world because of the wrecks which were strewn on her dangerous reefs in storms, which blinded the mariners or took them out of their course. Shakespeare published his play of "The Tempest" some time not later than 1614, probably as early as 1611. Malone, one of the early commentators, became convinced that Shakespeare's friends of this disputed theory say, intended to make the Bermudas the scene of his play, and this view has been accepted by many. Thomas Moore, who lived in Bermuda for a time, assumed it, and Kipling is an enthusiastic supporter of Malone's view, and finds a beach in Bermuda where one of the scenes might well have been enacted. Resemblances to the circumstances detailed in an account of the storm and wreck of the "Bermudas" are traced, it is said, in the lines and scenes of the play.

Canada's Forest Supplies.

According to interesting figures which have been compiled by Mr. F. J. D. Barnjum, a Canadian forest expert, the loss by forest fires alone, in the United States, during the last five years, amounted to over fifty-six million acres, or more than eleven million acres per year. To this has to be added losses from cutting, destruction by wind and insects, which it is estimated causes an additional annual shrinkage of fifteen million acres, or a total destruction in the United States of not less than twenty-six million acres per annum.

The contention is advanced that the situation in Canada is equally alarming. Mr. Barnjum in this connection makes the following sobering statement: "Our annual cut is much less than the United States; our standing supply is also much smaller, while our destruction from fire, wind and bugs, is proportionately larger. As a matter of fact, the entire supply remaining in Canada to-day would not last the United States over six and a half years."

A very strong plea is made that the Government shall take action to conserve Canadian wood for Canadian mills. In conclusion, Mr. Barnjum says: "The subject of an embargo or export duty on pulpwood is not a question of what Canada might like to do it is an absolute necessity for the protection of her own mills. It is a situation where she must retain the wood supply she has or close down prematurely one of her most important industries in order to ship wood out of the country to the mills of the United States."

Evidently we are approaching the position that only finished products should be permitted to leave the country, which involves a policy requiring more than passing consideration—and consideration of the present as well as of the future.

Is Civilization Moving North?

"Is civilization moving north?" asks Vilhjalmur Stefansson in the World's Work.

"We are conquering the difficulties of the North faster as times goes on," he says. "It was more than a thousand years from the time when the Romans thought that no civilization could exist north of the Alps until the civilization north of the Alps was really on a par with that of Italy."

"But it was only a century from the time when Benjamin Franklin thought that the little island of Guadeloupe was worth more than all of Canada till the time when second-rate cities in Canada had become more important than the whole island of Guadeloupe. It was only a few decades from the time when even Seward's friends tacitly admitted that 'Seward's Folly' was the correct name for Alaska until the Republicans began to 'point with pride' to the purchase and to rank it among the glorious achievements of the party."

"By analogy we may expect that it will require only a decade or two for the same progress in knowledge and revolution in sentiment with regard to the Northern prairies that are still called 'Barren Grounds' and are still supposed to be worthless."

Carried to Gallows.

Harvey W. Church, 21-convicted slayer of two automobile salesmen, lost his last hope for life March 2, when Gov. Small refused a plea for clemency. Too weak to walk and his mind a blank, the result of a 46-day hunger strike, he was carried to the gallows strapped in a chair at 4 o'clock March 3. More than 400 persons applied for permission to see the trap sprung, including several women.

The Herring Fishery.

(By M. E. CONDON.)
Article III.
With reference to the Herring fishery of Newfoundland which is equal, if not surpasses our cod fishery from a financial standpoint. The waters all over the island are being worked with herring, which as a rule are the equal of, if not superior to any herring in the world, and should be exporting over two million barrels beside the Herring Oil by products. One of our competitors, I mean Norway, in the year 1920, exported
Fresh 5,600 bbls.
Smoked 506,598 Lbs.
Salted 2,295,575 Bbls.
Oil 56,867 Bbls.
Newfoundland exported on or about one hundred thousand barrels of Herring Oil. Since the war we are down the grade as to our herring fishery, all caused by neglect and the lack of education to which I referred in my article on the fishery, by many, not taking into consideration that it was an article of export which were putting up and exporting to the consumer. In many cases they say that anything is good enough for export, and ship them in shabby packages, some of which will not keep fresh air out, not to mention the loss of pickling in.

THE WAY TO WIN.
There is only one way to win the herring market. First you must have intelligent supervision of curing and packing. No. 1 package, not a handy made package, but by a cooper of experience, and of No. 1 seasoned herring, and then let the herring be packed with freshness, cleanliness, and quality, etc., and then stored in a place, until ready for shipping—packed in the sun cooking on the pier—with the packers registered to stand or fall by. As to this is my own ideas for the curing of herring, which will be far superior to the methods quoted above, and for our competitors and same will stand under the Pure food law of the United States and give to the consumer a first class article of food in packages and properly supervised and standardized under my own registered brands. I will prove this during the coming season of 1922. There should not be a cooper idle in any native city; all should be making herring barrels, and I have every reason to believe that I have the endorsement of the coopers here, and I will within a week or so be asking the Government, through its Executive, for an entry for two and a half million dollar plant to develop and operate the fisheries. The free entry for machinery, cold storage, ferrous, trans, cement, etc., to be used for the installation of the different plants and exemption of the investors, local and foreign, for a fifteen year period of taxation, will also be asked.

PROPHET WITHOUT HONOR.
I want no Government guarantee of 10 per cent, or more for my company to contribute, now or in the future, as I have faith enough in the possibilities of the fisheries of the native land, so that all I need is the free entry, and that quickly, so that I can go to the United States, and other countries to get the capital to develop my modernized ideas as to the fisheries of Newfoundland, but unfortunately I could only make the Government believe that I came from foreign land. Major Cotton would be pleased immediately to take me over to get my capital in his account; but as I have public opinion at my back to give me a square deal to develop my experiences ideas, and which I will fight for with the pen and tongue, I need not state that the Government would give employment to hundreds of people who are badly in need of same.

This is not a political issue and I should be immediately given all the help possible both by the Government and the Opposition to get the United States and other countries to invest their capital. My fourth and last article will be on this subject. Capital, and other different kinds of fish here are wasted.

Whaling Customs of Eskimo.
The Eskimo of the Arctic have whaling customs. It has proved difficult to convert them to the ways of the white man. Of the practical part of the latter, the Eskimos have, however, adopted whale boats and harpoons. The methods of hunting are their own. When a whale is captured the Eskimos assemble as they can. The boats are lined out, with sails up, and the other, the dead whale is towed to the rear, and the slow progress homeward is begun. When the whaling season is over, each successful whaler gives a naq-qaq (celebration) with the rest of the villagers and guests. There is feasting, music, dancing, and a dance at the end of the programme, which often lasts for days. All the old men and women and the sick Eskimos, are invited to the price of the whale hunt. They are able to walk are carried by sleds or hauled on sleds to that of the village selected for the

Handsome Sailor to be an Island King
The officers of the Union Steamship Company's liner Marama, which has arrived at Wellington from San Francisco, tell of a most romantic experience by a member of the crew of an abandoned barque who was a passenger on the Marama.
The barque caught fire in the Pacific but ultimately reached Tubai, a remote island in the Solomon group.
All the crew were Italians with the exception of two Swedes, Knut Uddgren and Ginnor Saason. The former was well over 6ft., and not ill-favoured in looks. It seems that on the island there were about fifty natives, mostly women, and when they saw this blond giant they fell in love with him.
Hush to Hold Him Back.
The crew were fifty-four days on the island, and when the trading schooner called in and Knut Uddgren started to climb into the boat the women made a concerted rush to hold him back. They implored him to stay, and said they would make him king of the island. Uddgren fought his way clear and jumped into the schooner's dinghy, calling out that he would return.
He left San Francisco by the Marama on her way to Wellington and disembarked at Papeete. At the latter port he intended to take passage by a trading schooner to his future kingdom, Tubai, where he expects to spend the rest of his life.
He said: "Why not? The climate is wonderful. I can have the pick of many beautiful women for a queen, and I can run the island on up-to-date methods and make something out of these natives. I believe that with better communications with the larger islands and with the outside world generally it is possible to build up a very prosperous community."

Married in Pyjamas.
Clad in pyjamas, socks, and slippers, and covered by a makeshift, a bridegroom was solemnized a few weeks ago in a London register office.
The man had taken out a licence to be married an hour before the usual opening time explained to the registrar that an early ceremony was desired as his fiancée and himself wished to catch a train immediately after the ceremony. When he entered the register office about six inches of his pyjamas were showing below his mackintosh.
He apologized to his bride and to the registrar, explaining that he had overslept, and that if he had stopped to dress they would have missed their train.
After the ceremony the registrar turned to complete the certificate, and while the wife paid the balance of the licence the husband rushed downstairs and, in the waiting car, slipped a pair of trousers over his pyjamas.

Nervous Breakdown
The extreme depression and discouragement which comes over one at times is the most alarming symptom of nervous exhaustion.
This letter is a message of hope to all who find themselves in this unfortunate condition.
Mrs. Geo. T. Tingley, Albert, N.E., writes—
"For years I was in a very nervous, run-down condition, was much depressed in spirit and suffered a great deal at times. The least noise would irritate me and at times I felt as though I certainly would go crazy. I consulted different doctors to no effect.
"A friend advised the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and I can truly testify today to the great benefits received. There was a marked change before I had finished the second box and when I had used a dozen boxes my nerves were thoroughly restored and I was entirely relieved of those terrible feelings I used to have. I shall ever be ready to testify to the benefits of this wonderful medicine, feeling sure that it will give to others the quick and permanent relief it has given me."

Men Who Stumbled Into Fortune.

FABULOUS RICHES FOUND IN QUEER PLACES.
A road was being made in Tasmania with stones obtained from around the New Golden Mine property, near War-ratanna, when it was discovered that the "road-metal" contained gold in considerable quantities. The contractors decided to use less valuable material, as this seemed like paving the road with gold.
The goose that laid the golden egg is fabulous, but the chickens with their crops stuffed with nuggets are true. A gold rush at Santa Barbara, California, was occasioned by the discovery of small nuggets in the crops of thirty chickens killed on a local farm.
Another consequence was a great mortality among poultry to see what their crops contained in addition to corn?
An African Romance.
A poor man in Chile bought the foundations of a house for a sum equal to tenpence, and among the stones with which he proposed to build a wall around his garden he found one containing a large percentage of gold. He was smart enough to inquire where the stone came from originally, and lucky enough to succeed in his quest. A week's work produced fifteen thousand pounds, so the foundations proved the foundation of a fortune.
Two men, who had prospected for gold without discovering a single trace of the precious metal, came to the end of their strength and their resources. Then one of them died. The other dug a grave, and in the sad task struck a nugget weighing 160 lb. Eventually he sold his find for more than £7,000.
Klondike was discovered by a half-breed trapper who, tiring the embers of his camp fire, noticed a strange yellow colour for which he could not account. He mentioned the fact to his friends, and within half an hour digging operations were begun. Each spadeful of earth contained gold.
It was when both capital and hope were exhausted that the last stroke of the pick revealed the fabulous riches of the big Bonanza silver mine, a treasure house which has yielded silver to the value of forty millions sterling. The Flores mine of San Luis Potosi, Mexico, was struck by a poor priest, who bought an abandoned claim for an "old song," and two brothers named Bolados, who earned a miserable livelihood by carrying fuel, found in a crevice opened by an earthquake an enormous block of silver worth a quarter of a million sterling.
By the discovery of South African diamonds remains the most romantic in the world. In 1867 John O'Reilly stopped for the night at the house of a farmer named Van Nickerck. Children were playing on the floor with pretty pebbles which they had found in the river. Looking at one of the stones, O'Reilly said, "That might be a diamond."
Throwing Diamonds Away.
The Boer farmer laughed and said that diamonds were not to be had for the stooping. However, O'Reilly obtained the farmer's permission to take the pebble to Cape Town, promising to give him half the proceeds if it were of value.
At Colesberg he stopped at a tavern and displayed his stone, scratching a pane of glass with it to prove his contention that it was a diamond. But the other fellows scratched glass with their gunflints, and flung the pebble out of the window. O'Reilly retrieved it, and on reaching Cape Town was told that it was a diamond of twenty-two and a half carats. O'Reilly sold it for £600, and divided the amount with Nickerck.
The Boer then recalled that he had seen an immense stone of similar appearance in the hands of a Kaffir witch-doctor. He found the fetish-man, bought the stone, and sold it immediately to an experienced diamond buyer for £11,200.—T.H. Bis.

TARTAR.

"Tartar" is a lime-like substance that forms on the teeth. It is composed of saliva, phosphate of lime, etc., and becomes attached to the teeth near the salivary duct. It is porous like a sponge and holds particles of food which decompose and taint the breath with an offensive odor. This tartar once formed increases, always in the direction of the gums; first, inflaming them, then causing them to puff up and recede from the teeth, and finally by absorption of the bony sockets, to cause good, sound teeth to drop out for want of support.

And so it has come to pass that the thinking women of the country as well as serious minded men have come to the conclusion that the development of thrift is necessary to the development of national character. But if you are going to make last season's clothes do for a while it does not mean that you cannot have them dry cleaned and thoroughly refreshed, and that you must not change the shape or color of them. Our dyeing system is a perfect one.

Record Human Temperature.
BRISTOL, ENG. (Associated Press)—The extraordinary figure of 114 degrees Fahrenheit was the recorded temperature of a girl here, who was suffering from the gripple. When first summoned to see the girl the physician said he was astonished to find that his clinical thermometer recorded a temperature of 112 degrees but, thinking that the thermometer was out of order, he requisitioned two others only to find that they both recorded the same high point. During the night the patient's temperature advanced two degrees. Appropriate treatment

What is Your Verdict!

Is it not safe to assume that the Ford Motor Company of Canada, Limited, who manufacture in their own huge perfectly equipped plant practically every part of the Ford car, are the people best qualified to make replacement parts at the lowest price compatible with the high quality which must be maintained?
Manufacturers of spurious parts, operating as they do on a small scale with limited capital and inadequate equipment, cannot possibly make parts of the same quality or accuracy at anywhere near the low price you have to pay for Genuine Ford Parts. Yet you are asked to believe that these spurious parts are not only equal to Genuine Ford Parts in quality but can be produced to sell for less!
We rest our case here. The verdict we leave to you.
