The sweet cathartic-laxative in the world to physic your liver and bowels when you have Dizzy Headache, Cold, Biliousness, Indigestion, or Upset, Acid Stomach. Is candy-like "Cascarets." One or two at night will empty your bowels completely by morning, and you will feel splendid. They work while you sleep. Cascarets never stir you up or grip like Salts, Pills, Calomel, or Oil and they cost only ten cents a box. Children love Cascarets too.

The Heir of Bayneham

—AND—
Lady Hutton's Ward.

CHAPTER VI.

The Baynehams of Castle Bayneham were a noble and ancient family. The earldom dated as far back as the reign of the "Merry Monarch." Hulbert Bayneham had been one of his chief favorites, and he delighted to honor him. He created him Earl of Bayneham and Baron of Hulmeur.

Hulbert, the first earl, built Bayneham Castle, and the state apartment is still shown where the king slept when he visited his friend. From Hulbert the line of succession was unbroken—son succeeded father, and each one added some new lustre to the name. Hildebrand, the third earl, was one of England's grandest warriors. Stephen, his grandson, was an eminent statesman; his influence was great, and he used it well. The father of the present earl was remarkable for nothing save having married one of the most beautiful and imperious women in England—Lady Blanche Delamere. She was descended from an illustrious but somewhat decayed family. They had title, rank, position and influence, but very little money, and when Lord Bayneham proposed to the daughter of the house, every one considered it an excellent match. No one ever asked what Lady Blanche thought herself. She had beauty and dignity, and her union with Lord Bayneham gave her everything else; and for many years the beautiful and imperious Countess of Bayneham was one of the most courted and popular women of the day.

She had a younger sister, who, unlike the brilliant countess, married for love; she united her fate with that of an almost penniless captain, Gerald Earle. Fortune however favored them, for before Gerald and his young wife began to feel the evils of poverty, a large fortune was bequeathed to him by a distant relative. Gerald Earle died abroad, and his delicate wife did not long survive him. She had left her only child, Barbara, to the care of the Countess of Bayneham. Her trust was nobly fulfilled; Barbara Earle was treated in every way like one of Lady Bayneham's own children. Her large fortune accumulated; and when she reached her eighteenth year she found herself one of the wealthiest heiresses in England.

The Countess of Bayneham had one fixed idea—it was that her son should marry Barbara Earle. She was deeply attached to the young girl, over whose childhood and youth she had watched so well. Both children were brought up with the same idea, but nothing definite was ever said to them. Lady ing-room," she said; "go and ask her now."

Claude obediently enough quitted the room. It was all a matter of indifference to him. He was not vitally interested in it; it seemed to him a prearranged piece of business, that it was part and parcel of the responsibilities of his estate.

In after years Claude Bayneham remembered that scene. He found Barbara in the morning-room; she was painting a group of flowers with no ordinary skill. When she heard his footsteps a deep, warm flush covered her face, and the hand that held the brush trembled.

"Barbara," said Lord Bayneham, "if you are not busy, I should be glad if you could spare me five minutes."

"Longer, if you like," replied Miss Earle. "My picture can be finished tomorrow. Do you like the grouping of those roses, Claude?"

"Yes," he said; "there seems to be a natural affinity between ladies and flowers. You paint them better than anything else."

"That is a pretty compliment," said Barbara; "but how about Rosa Benheur and the horses?"

"You are always hard upon my little attempts at flattery," said Lord Bayneham. "Barbara, I want to talk seriously to you."

"I am ready to listen," said Miss Earle. "What is it? Are we to have a general election? I read something of the kind."

"It is a very different matter I was thinking of," said the young earl, almost at a loss how to introduce the question of marriage, the lady before him looked so very calm and unassuming. "Barbara," he continued, making a desperate effort, "my mother thinks that we had better be married next spring."

For some moments there was a profound silence. He could hear the ticking of the little watch that lay near him from his childhood. He had yet to learn what it was to love.

His father died, and Claude became the Earl of Bayneham. Perhaps no one ever began life under fairer auspices; he was young, handsome, clever, and highly accomplished. Nature and fortune had both been kind to him. He owned one of the proudest names and the finest estates in England. The long and illustrious line of ancestors had each added a laurel to the crown of the Baynehams. Everything and every one smiled upon him. He was one of the happiest of men until that May morning came and brought him to the woods of Brynmar.

When Claude had been two years Lord of Bayneham Castle, his mother told him, in very plain words, she thought it time he should marry.

"A man's position," said the countess, "is never fully established until he is married. I need not tell you how much depends upon the choice of a wife. Fortunately you have made a good choice. You must remember, Claude, you have not mixed much in society since your father's death. I wish you to go to London next season, but I prefer that you should take Lady Bayneham with you."

"Why?" asked the young earl.

"Because unless you go as a married man, you will have every manuvring mother and chaperon teasing you," said the countess. "I should like you to be married early next spring."

"I have no objection," he replied, "if Barbara is willing."

A shade of annoyance passed over the fair, proud face of the countess. "That is hardly the way to speak, Claude," she said gravely. "I presume already you have no objection; you might surely find some suitable expression."

"I fear I am not clever at finding suitable expressions," said Lord Bayneham with a smile; "they come naturally enough to you, mother."

"You had better see Barbara this morning," said Lady Bayneham, "and ask her if she will consent to the marriage being arranged for next spring."

"Would it not be better for you to speak to her yourself?" said the earl hastily. "Ladies manage these things so much better than we do."

A decided frown darkened the proud, beautiful face.

"Are the men of your race contented to allow others to woo for them?" she asked contemptuously.

Lord Bayneham's face flushed.

"It is different with Barbara," he said; "there is no nonsense about her; she has more sense than any girl I ever met."

Lady Bayneham's face relaxed at this compliment to her beloved niece.

"You will find Barbara in the morning-room," she said; "go and ask her now."

"I shall never have to trouble myself with love-making; I am going to marry my Cousin Barbara, you know."

He certainly never did trouble himself with love-making. He was always kind and gentle to Barbara, but the men of his race had ever been chivalrous. He paid her every attention; never neglected her double claim of cousin and fiance. He sought to anticipate her wishes, to consult her tastes, and obey her least word; but there the matter ended. If she were going away for six months he did not miss her; his voice never trembled when he spoke to her. He knew nothing of the height of love or the depth of sorrow; he knew nothing save a quiet, calm affection that had grown with him from his childhood. He had yet to learn what it was to love.

His father died, and Claude became the Earl of Bayneham. Perhaps no one ever began life under fairer auspices; he was young, handsome, clever, and highly accomplished. Nature and fortune had both been kind to him. He owned one of the proudest names and the finest estates in England. Telegram Fashion Plates.

The Home Dressmaker should keep a Catalogue Scrap Book of our Pattern Cuts. These will be found very useful to refer to from time to time.

A PRETTY FROCK FOR AFTERNOON AND EVENING.

4166-4175 Brocaded canton crepe is here shown, with vest and facings of white georgette. This model is pretty for satin, crepe de chine or chiffon velvet.

The Waist-Pattern 4166, may be developed without the sleeves or the bretelles. It is cut in 6 Sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, and 44 inches bust measure. The Skirt 4175 is cut in 7 Sizes: 25, 27, 29, 31, 33, 35, and 37 inches waist measure. The width at the foot is 2 3/4 yards. To make the dress with sleeves for a 38 inch size requires 6 3/4 yards of 40 inch material. For vest, girdle and panel facing of contrasting material, 1 1/2 yard will be required. The dress requires 5/8 yard less without sleeves.

TWO separate patterns mailed to any address on receipt of 10c FOR EACH pattern in silver or stamps.

A NEW STRAIGHT LINE FROCK.

3812. Charming simplicity is featured in this pleasing style. The panels add length and becoming fullness. The closing is invisible at the left side of the front panel. This is a good design for remodeling. Satin and serge, plain and figured silk could be here combined. As illustrated Canton crepe, in a new shade of brown, was used, with a decoration of novelty braid.

The Pattern is cut in 3 Sizes: 16, 18, and 20 years. An 18 years size requires 4 1/2 yards of 27 inch material. A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10c in silver or stamps.

A CHARMING STYLE.

3973. Loose panels, long shoulders, a pretty sleeve effect, and straight lines, these are outstanding features of this attractive model. It will develop well in the new crepe weaves or in linen, or combining tissues. For remodeling or combining two different materials it is also desirable.

The Pattern is cut in 6 Sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, and 44 inches bust measure. To make as illustrated requires 3 3/4 yards of figured material, 38 inches wide and 2 3/4 yards of plain material 40 inches wide. The width at the foot is about 2 yards.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 10c in silver or stamps.

A BOY'S PLAY SUIT.

4142. This is a good model for galatea, drill, seersucker, gabardine and serge. The back is made with drop portions. The sleeve may be finished with the cuff or only the sleeveband.

The Pattern is cut in 4 Sizes: 2, 3, 4 and 5 years. A 2 year size requires 1 1/4 yard of 40 inch material. To trim as illustrated requires 3/4 yards of contrasting material 32 inches wide.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 10c in silver or stamps.

BOYS' BLOUSE AND KNICKER-BOCKER TROUSERS.

Pattern 3436 furnishes these two practical styles. It is cut in 5 Sizes: 6, 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. A 10 year size will require 1 3/4 yard of 36 inch material for the Blouse and 1 1/4 yard for the Knickerbockers.

Serge, chevrol, corduroy and khaki are good for the Knickerbockers and cambric, madras, linen, chambray and flannel for the Blouse.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 10c in silver or stamps.

A NATTY SUIT FOR THE LITTLE MAN.

4170. This is a comfortable style, with new and pleasing features. The inserted pockets in the smock will please the "little fellow." The "knickers" too boast of pockets that are large enough to hold the many things boys like to keep with them.

The Pattern is cut in 4 Sizes: 2, 3, 4, and 5 years. To make the suit for a 3 year size, will require 3 3/4 yards of 33 inch material. For knickers alone 1 1/4 yard is required.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 10c in silver or stamps.

Germany Denies Agreement With Russia

Harding Will Accept Renomination -- Destructive Fires Rage Over Wide Apart Areas -- White Star Liner Captures Blue Ribbon of Atlantic.

GERMAN DENIAL.
BERLIN, Dec. 1. The German denial of a military agreement with Russia is contained in a semi-official communication issued to-day. The communication declared that a report in a London newspaper of the signing of a Russo-German military agreement, which already has been repeatedly circulated and categorically contradicted, is propagandist.

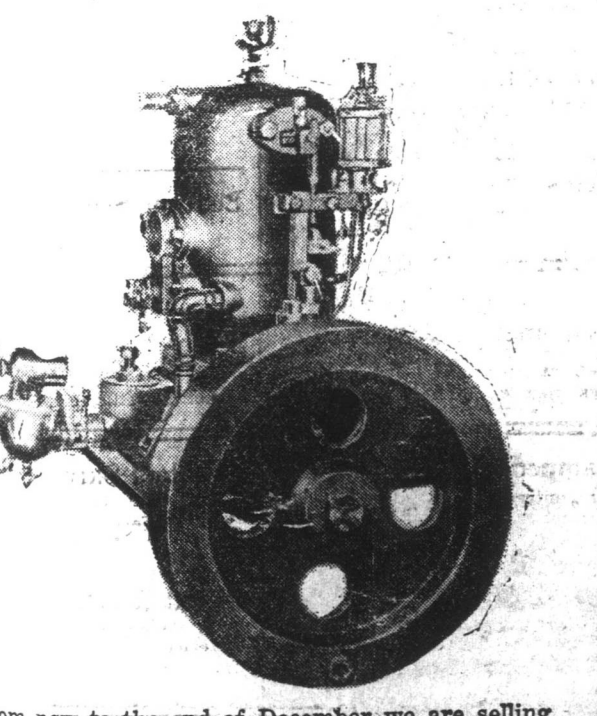

ANOTHER DISASTROUS FIRE.
NEWBORN, North Carolina, Dec. 1. Approximately two thousand five hundred persons, most of them negroes, were made homeless, about two hundred residences, two churches, two warehouses, and several small stores, were destroyed, and loss estimated at one million dollars caused by a fire which late to-day swept through ninety blocks of the western section of Newborn. The flames gained great headway because the fire departments were engaged on the opposite side of the town fighting a fire at the Roper Lumber Company's Mill, where three hundred thousand dollars damage, it is estimated has been done.

MAJESTIC BREAKS RECORD.
NEW YORK, Dec. 1. The Majestic, the world's largest steamship, became the world's fastest liner to-day, according to the record of the Mauretania, which was five days, eight hours, ten minutes. The Majestic kept an average speed of 24.59 knots an hour.

FRANCE DESIRES GOOD RELATIONS WITH AMERICA.
PARIS, Dec. 1. The Chamber of Deputies to-day approved an appropriation of three hundred thousand francs to "send a mission of five officers to America" for the purpose of advancing good relations. Specific countries of North or South America are not mentioned.

CAPTAIN AND TEN OF CREW PERISH WITH SHIP.
DULUTH, Minn., Dec. 1. Captain Nason Bernard and ten members of the crew of the Canadian steamer Maplehurst perished during a severe gale to-day, when the ship, after being beaten against the west part of the breakwater at the West End portage of Lake Canal, Lake Superior, sank in twenty-five feet of water. The missing included Malcolm McCaskill, of Cape Breton. Nine members of the crew were rescued by Coastguards.

The following members of the A.A. A. will conduct the Jackson-Bell race at the Princes Rink on Monday night. Messrs. W. J. Higgins, J. W. Morris, J. A. McKenzie, Fred Marshall, Stan Cullen, Herb Russell, C. J. Ellis, and J. M. Tobin. The Committee respectfully request the fans to abstain from smoking, and we feel sure that they will. The grueling run of 160 laps around the rink, with both men evenly matched, is going to call for almost super-human endurance and grit, and nothing that would tend to embarrass the runners should be tolerated. Much even money betting has been placed on the two runners, while in some places odds of 2 to 1 have been given that Bell will be the winner.

Brotherhood of St. Andrew.

ANNUAL MEETING AND ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

The annual meeting of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew was held Tuesday night in the Brotherhood Chapel. Before business was taken up, the reciter dedicated to the Glory of God and in memory of the Rev. Canon Arthur C. Wood, (the founder of the Chapter) two beautiful Altar Service books. Business was then resumed, the reciter presiding. The Director and Secretary in their reports showed that the work of the Chapter was going ahead by leaps and bounds. The election of officers resulted as follows: Director—H. J. Burnell, re-elected. Vice Director—H. Morgan, elected. Secretary—W. J. Frampton, re-elected.

A vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Jas. Billard for the good work performed by him during the 8 years he has held office, and who was unable to take office again. One of the chief works of the Chapter the past year, was visiting schooners and distributing cards among the crew. Nearly three hundred schooners were visited during the season and over 1500 cards were distributed. The meeting closed at 10.30 p.m. and was voted by all present as one of the best ever held.

Godson of "Divine Sarah" Appears in "Humoresque" Cast.

YOUNG FRENCH ACTOR, GASTON GLASS, WITH ALMA RUBENS IN FILM VERSION OF NOVEL.

Gaston Glass, who plays the leading male role in "Humoresque" at the Nickel Theatre Monday, has the distinction of being the godson of Sarah Bernhardt. Glass was born in Paris and made his debut on the French stage at the age of five. Later he was engaged by Mme. Bernhardt for her repertoire comedy and appeared with the distinguished tragedienne in "Cleopatra," "Camille" and "Jeanne d'Arc." In this capacity young Glass first visited America and remained in this country upon the conclusion of the Bernhardt company's tour.

During the war Glass was an aviator with the famous Guyonnet French flying circus, was wounded, and received decorations for gallantry. He returned to his adopted country and upon the advice of John Emerson, the producer, embarked upon a motion picture career, one of his first engagements being opposite Marguerite Clark.

In "Humoresque," a Glass has the role of the hero, a Ghetto lad who becomes a genius of the violin. Alma Rubens is the leading woman and Vera Gordon and Dore Davidson are also in the cast. The story was adapted from Fannie Hurst's appealing story of the same name. It is a Cosmopolitan Production.

Personals From "Canada."

The following personal items of interest to Newfoundlanders are clipped from "Canada" of date November 18th. Sir Edgar Bowring, High Commissioner for Newfoundland, is at present staying in the West Indies, and is not expected to return to England till early in the new year.

Dr. Wilfred P. Grenfell, C.M.G., of Labrador, was received by the Prince of Wales at St. James's Palace on Thursday of last week. At a meeting of the Council of the Royal College of Surgeons on the same day he was admitted a Fellow.

Sir Patrick McGrath expects to leave England by S.S. Majestic, which sails from Southampton on Dec. 6.

Among the visitors from Newfoundland who attended the Armistice Day service at Westminster Abbey were: Col. and Mrs. Franklin, Mrs. A. Macpherson, Mrs. MacNelly, and Miss Margaret Frew, and Dr. and Mrs. E. F. S. Greene.

Newfoundland was represented at the burial of the Belgian Unknown Warrior at Brussels last Saturday by Sir R. A. Squires, Prime Minister, and Lt.-Col. T. Nangle, who placed a wreath on the tomb and attended the Requiem Mass at the Cathedral.

After the "two minute's silence," last Saturday, Captain Victor Gordon, Acting High Commissioner for Newfoundland, placed, on behalf of the

Forty-Three Years in the Public Service--The Evening Telegram

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES.

NUTSHELL INTERVIEW.

NEW YORK, Dec. 2. St. Richard Squires, who was a passenger here yesterday from England, said he had been in conference with Premier Bonar Law.

JAPS WILL EVACUATE SHANTUNG.

TOKIO, Dec. 2. The Foreign Office announces the signing, yesterday, of an agreement between China and Japan, concerning Shantung. The transfer of all Japanese interests in Shantung will take place at noon, December 5, when all Japanese troops will be evacuated. Some matters, however, will be left for settlement after the evacuation.

FRENCH MISSION TO U.S.

PARIS, Dec. 2. The proposal for a mission of five French officers to America, for which the Chamber of Deputies yesterday appropriated three hundred thousand francs, was in response to invitations from Washington. It was said at the War Office today. The United States Government has repeatedly requested France to send such a Mission, composed of technicians, in an exchange of views with American officers in similar departments.

IS IT CIVIL WAR?

DUBLIN, Dec. 2. National troops engaged a party of irregulars at Loxlip, Kildare County, yesterday, capturing twenty-two of them, besides arms and ammunition. There were a few casualties on both sides. Irregulars were apparently marching on Dublin. All the chief approaches to the city were patrolled yesterday by National troops as part of a plan to prevent any sudden Republican blow before the Free State is legally established.

EX-EMPEROR OF CHINA MARRIED

PEKIN, Dec. 2. The wedding of Hsuan Tung, the 17-year-old deposed emperor of China was celebrated early this morning, with all the pomp and ceremony of imperial days. The bride was the Princess Kuo Chin-Si.

The Export Tax Refund.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir:—Your issue of Nov. 22nd, contains a letter under the heading "The Export Tax Refund" in which the writer of the same divides the fish into three classes, viz (1) That already shipped; (2) That purchased by merchants and lying in their stores; (3) That fish which is now for sale by the fishermen. While there may be some few cases that would make a refund doubtful in class (3), yet, we know of a great many cases where fish has been shipped in foreign and local bottoms direct from the fishermen's hands and the Export Tax paid at the customs of the port from which the vessel sailed; which only means a production of receipts by the fishermen and the refund made through the same custom's official to which the tax had been paid in the first place. While Sir, we feel in duty bound to accept everything from a legal point of view, that comes from a lawyer's pen, yet we also feel in duty bound to make some comment on the clause viz—"There is no law by which a merchant could be made to pay the fisherman a higher price for the fish now in his store than he agreed to pay when he purchased." As a matter of fact the merchant can only be called upon to pay that which was never his money but the fisherman's. The same being deducted from the fisherman at the time of sale, and the only complex thing, from a fisherman's point of view in identification of ownership to the refund in some cases, and all the rest ought to be legally and morally clear, or, if it may be allowed to use a much abused adage without sacrilege I would say "Suam Culque." Another clause is that which was made re certain exporters. That the price of fish yet for sale should be increased by the amount of tax saved on fish yet in the stores of the merchants. From a fisherman's point of view such a thing should, and must be made impossible and impracticable too, because, if carried into effect would mean the impoverishing of one class of fishermen and enriching the other, or in other words a tax that was taken from fish that was sold along the four dollar figure would now go to the man who, now sells at a better price, viz four fifty and we do not think that how ever hard the fishermen may be pinched, that he will stand for such handling of what we now call (and rightly so) the fisherman's own money. Therefore Sir, although your correspondent infers there can be no answer given to some of these questions, if considered from a legal point of view, let me say in closing that the final answer from the fisherman is and must be, that the Government and exporters and fishermen must work together to make an equitable return of the Export Tax to the fisherman who caught the fish, as far as it is humanly possible to do so.

Very sincerely,
BENJ. J. DAVIS.

SPECIAL CEREMONIES AT BAR HAVEN.

Special to Evening Telegram.

BAR HAVEN, To-day. Ceremonies of magnificence and splendor will be held in honor of St. Francis Xavier in St. Francis Xavier Church, Bar Haven, on Sunday morning, Dec. 3rd, the feast of St. Francis Xavier, and on Monday morning, Dec. 4th. On Sunday the musical programme of the mass will be of a high order and solemn musical vespers will be rendered in the evening. The rich purple vestments presented by Father Cacciola's mother will be worn on the occasion. The Sanctuary boys will be gowned too in their lovely purple cassocks and the beautiful ornaments of the Church will be shown. Owing to Sunday being the first Sunday in advent, and the beginning of the ecclesiastical year, the feast will be commemorated on Sunday. St. Francis Xavier's Parish possesses the best equipped wardrobe in the arch diocese.

The Battle of Hohenlinden.

Hohenlinden, which we remember by the well known lines beginning "On Linden when the sun was low," is a village in Bavaria, 20 miles east of Munich. On December 3, 1800, it was the scene of a great victory by Napoleon's generals over the Austrians. Five years previously Napoleon had blown the French revolution into space with a whiff of grapeshot, and since then he had been occupied with consolidating and increasing his own power. He was now first Consul, and his armies overpowered Central Europe. One of his armies, under General Moreau, was threatening Austria, and on the 1st December, 1800, it had taken up a position on the plateau between the rivers Isar and Inn. The Archduke John of Austria, attacked them there on that day, defeated them, and compelled them to retreat. However, he did not follow up his success but did practically nothing on the 2nd. This fatal delay gave Moreau time to bring up more French divisions and to rearrange his line of battle. The Austrians attacked again in a blinding snowstorm, before it was light, on the morning of the 3rd. They came on in three columns. One was defeated by the division of General Ney, another with all the artillery and baggage, got entangled in the forest roads, which were deep in snow, and became an easy prey to the French. The third column fought stubbornly against General Grenier's corps, but was defeated and compelled to retreat, in which it was joined by the remnants of the other columns. The Austrians lost about 17,000 men and 74 guns; the French about 5,000 men. This great victory much increased the prestige of Napoleon, and the Austrian Emperor was compelled to sign a treaty of peace, giving to France the boundary of the Rhine. Pitt, the English prime minister, who had been supporting the Austrians, gave it up for a bad job.

Railroad Trucks Vanish Every Month.

There are over one and a half millions of wagons running about the railways of our country! Scores of these wagons actually disappear every month, and may not be "found" for perhaps a year or two. Yet all of them are numbered.

As an example, a Great Northern of Scotland wagon disappeared and could not be traced anywhere. After an absence of two years it turned up in Devonshire!

It is an uncommon thing for a Great Northern wagon to be seen in a south of England terminus, while in some faraway northern railway centre will be found practically every line in the country. So that "losing" them is an easy matter.

"Losing" a "special" wagon is quite a different thing altogether. In fact, the missing or even delaying of one of these vehicles is rather serious. There are 29 sorts of special wagons built for carrying armor plate, and similar number for carrying armor plate. Five types exist for carrying boilers, four for cattle, four for fish, and three for rails and timber. There are wagons for conveying horses and heavy loads for fruit and milk, for meat, for bananas, and for glass.

Special care has to be taken in checking the movements of these wagons, since the "loss" of one may mean the loss of a big lot of valuable material. They are fewer in number than ordinary wagons, so are constantly in use.—Pearson's.

Provisioning the "Biggest Ship in the World."

For Every Round Trip the "Majestic" Must Store Enough Food to Feed Twelve Thousand People.

(By WAREY A. CUNNINGHAM)

Fanciful writers have frequently referred to the great ocean liners as "floating hotels," convinced that this summed up the magnitude and comfort of these craft and expressed the community idea. With the coming of the gigantic White Star Steamship Majestic, which made her maiden trip in May last, the hotel characterization is conspicuously inadequate. She is a floating city.

This designation of her comes not of consideration of her tonnage—which is a gargantuan 56,000 tons—nor of her length, breadth and depth. Nor does it come entirely of the fact that she has space for a population of 5,100 souls, 4,100 being passengers. It is of more properly registered by her commissariat, because the Majestic carries enough food to feed 12,000 persons, the population of a community which is proud to call itself a city.

There is more food aboard this vessel than was ever before placed on an ocean steamer.

The genius presiding over this great problem in provision for the ship's company is John Pearce, the grand chef of the White Star Line. Under him are sixty cooks, twenty bakers and fourteen butchers.

As figures are perhaps more persuasive in picturing the gigantic size and equipment of this super-vessel, let the figures be unrolled, as from the unbelievable sleeve of a magician:

In tons the meat supply put on the Majestic totals seventy-five, while it is necessary to stock up with ten tons of bacon and ham, twenty-eight tons of fish and eighteen tons of poultry. Also there are 1,000 each of plover, quail, snipe and pheasant; 750 each of partridges and grouse and 500 wild ducks, making a total of 6,000 game birds.

As for vegetables, there are thirty tons of potatoes, seven tons of carrots and turnips and some ten tons of cabbage and several more of onions and miscellaneous vegetables, as well as 1,400 pounds of hot-house tomatoes. "Fruits: there is no end to them! Boxes of apples to the number of 600; oranges and grapefruit, some 400 crates of them. A ton of hot-house grapes and sixty boxes of pears provide for the morning's menu."

There are thirty-five tons of flour for bread and pastry. Each voyage requires eight tons of sugar and five tons of butter; three tons of tea and coffee, 80,000 eggs and 800 gallons of milk.

Deserts, such as ice cream, jams and marmalades, there is another ton.

For those who need the "cup that cheers" there are 80,000 bottles of ale and stout, 1,000 quarts and 1,600 pints of champagne, 1,000 quarts and 1,600 pints of various wines. There are 4,000 bottles of whiskey, brandy and gin and 300 bottles of liquors.

There is no excuse for the chap who always bursts forth that he has smoked his last cigar or cigarette for the Majestic carries a supply of 250,000 cigarettes and 2,840 pounds of tobacco each voyage.

In the kitchens, dining rooms and bedrooms there are enough dishes, glassware, blankets to supply a city. For instance, there are seventy-five tons of dishes, cooking utensils and bedroom crockery, and nearly four tons of silverware and cutlery. The China and crockery total 80,000 pieces, including 30,000 plates, 15,000 cups, 2,700 pitchers and 3,400 tea and coffee pots. The plates alone would make a path six miles long were they placed side by side while "stacked" up they would be a quarter of a mile high. The cups side by side would fill a rack a mile long.

Glassware numbers 29,000 pieces, including 8,000 tumblers, 7,000 wine and spirit glasses, 7,000 salt, pepper and mustard containers and 1,900 water bottles.

The world's fastest dishwasher, whoever he or she may be, were he able to wash them at the rate of two a minute, could not finish the job in less than five months, working eight hours a day.

Silverware and cutlery for the dining saloon and "French" restaurant on board the Majestic makes a huge bundle of 56,000 pieces. It takes 10,000 knives and forks to supply the tables. For the beds, there are seventeen tons of blankets, 3,000 mattresses, 2,700 pillows and bolsters number 1,500.

The linen necessary for the steamship amounts to 19,000 pieces, including napkins, doylies and bedspreads, not to forget also 77,000 towels, 15,000 pillow cases, 8,000 bedspreads, 1,000 sheets, 10,500 blankets and 10,000 quilts.

An idea of just what all this means is readily visualized when it is pointed out that the linen, if spread on the ground would cover fifty acres. Hang it on a line and one with an eye for distance would see that it extended

MARSHALL BROTHERS

Our Herring Industry Doomed?

(Western Star.)
Now appears the herring fishery season will have an early termination. Only a few vessels have been allowed to start, and the United States tariff enjoyed by bottom countries operating here under the 1913 treaty. The packing stations find it expensive handling such large quantities of herring for the winter. The fish have run 50 per cent and we have known instances where they have gone 65 per cent.

It is therefore up to us to seek new markets for our herring or new means of cure, otherwise our people will be compelled to seek other avenues of endeavour. It has been said that if there was no Scotch pack, fleets of United States vessels would come here for salt bulk. Possibly so, and we will be glad to see them, for we will remember the busy scenes of twenty years ago, when upwards of thirty and forty sail of vessels came here and took away from one to two and sometimes three cargoes of herring in a season. But will we get a return of these days? We doubt it, because even before the introduction of the Scotch pack, there was some noticeable falling off in the fleet.

And suppose we return to these favourable conditions, would the financial returns be as great as with the Scotch pack? Eighty-five thousand barrels of herring constituted a good fall's shipment by salt bulk. At $1.25 a barrel this would amount to $106,250. Last fall some twenty-five thousand barrels were packed by the Scotch method and placing these at $10 a barrel, which is $2 less than they sold for here, gives a return of $250,000, being over double the amount of a half times that quantity would fetch by the salt bulk methods. It has been charged that the fishermen drove the salt bulkers away by means of the big price they demanded for the fish. But was herring the only thing that soared in price? What of nets, rope, gasoline, engines, etc. Did not the prices of these articles double and triple in some instances exceeded even beyond that? Compare the cost of outfitting a boat for the herring fishery the past five years as to that of twenty years ago, and then compare the price of herring to-day to what it was then. Possibly during the war period the price paid for herring from the nets became abnormal, but that condition has since passed away, and the past two years salt bulkers have been able to purchase herring at within 25 cents a barrel of pre-war years. We would like to see the vessels here and we would like to see the packing stations in full swing also.

So far as we can gather, however, there is another and greater cause for the falling off in the herring industry. There is a lessened demand for the fish in the markets of the United States, and this condition has Submarines Invented Centuries Ago.

Although it was only in the recent war that submarines played a conspicuous part for the first time, the mention of them is centuries old. Nearly 300 years ago, a workable submarine was built by Cornelius Van Drebel, a French physician, and was launched at the beginning of December, 1620. It was propelled by oars both on the surface and beneath, and could carry twelve oarsmen. According to contemporary records it would journey for several hours at twelve to fifteen feet below the surface, and on one occasion King James I. of England made a trip in it with Van Drebel. It does not however, appear to have been used for the purposes of war. The first attempt to blow up a ship of war with a torpedo was made in New York harbour in 1773, but it was a failure. The first submarine propelled by steam was the "Nautilus," built on the Seine in 1801, by Robert Fulton, and this was successful in blowing up a small vessel in Brest Harbour. Afterwards an attempt was made to blow up a British man-of-war, but this was unsuccessful. Fulton then offered the submarine to Napoleon, but it was declined. It remained for the Southerners, in the American Civil War, to make the first successful use of the submarine, for the new ironclads of the blockading fleet, were twice torpedoed and damaged, though not sunk, by partly submersible boats. After this, experiments with submarines were numerous, and many lives were lost. One submarine alone, after sinking repeatedly, and being raised again, was responsible for the drowning of thirty men. The persistence, coupled with stolid indifference to the probability of disaster, with which the experiments were carried out, after repeated and fatal failures, spoke volumes for the indomitable pluck and heroism of the Confederate sailors, and it is to these men that America claims, and rightly deserves, the honour of having first overcome what seemed insuperable difficulties to submarine navigation.

New Process for Curing Codfish.

The methods employed in the cure of codfish in this country have been more or less by rule of thumb, and have changed but little in the hundreds of years that have passed since the first fish was cured by sun drying, and followed ever since. Dry fish has been the staple article of production of Newfoundland, and unless new methods are introduced in the putting up of cod, will continue to be. True several attempts have been made, but unfortunately with small success, to bring about a change. But all have been abandoned and the old process continues to be the favorite, and without any rivals. All together there does not appear to be any possibility of finding a better way of cure than by the heat of the sun. Some years ago fish drying rooms were used by several firms in St. John's and one or two outposts, but the cost of running these was not borne out by results, and they too went into the discard. Now appears on the scene a gentleman who has given all the years of his life to a close study of our fisheries and their value, and who has experimented largely in newer and more improved methods than those employed. Mr. M. E. Condon of the district of Ferryland, claims to have evolved a new process of curing codfish and herring which he declares will revolutionise these industries and make them far more valuable than they are, not alone because of the improvement in catching and splitting and making, but as well because the fish treated by his process will command markets hitherto unknown to our fish products. Mr. Condon has contributed several articles to the local press on the advantages of his process over the ancient one, and in these articles, has explained with a wealth of detail his views on the future of the fisheries of Newfoundland, providing that new ideas are accepted and a general reformation in the present system of preparation for market brought about. Mr. Condon is a firm believer in the "bleeding process" which simply means that every fish taken alive should be bled by the cutting of its throat. There is nothing complicated or difficult in this process. One slash of a knife and it is complete. To test out his theory, Mr. Condon put it into practice, with effective and satisfactory results. Samples of the fish thus treated and cured under his personal supervision, and in many instances by himself, were sent to such connoisseurs as the Chief Justice, Hon. Dr. Campbell, Analyst D. James Davies, Messrs. J. T. Meaney and R. Hibbs, M.H.A., and to two experts in the cure of fish, Messrs. A. W. Piccott and R. T. McGrath, whose knowledge and experience are proverbial. From all of these gentlemen, he received most flattering testimonials, copies of which have been placed in our hands. All were delighted with the improvement as demonstrated by the new process, and found the fish sent them to be most delicious and palatable when cooked in the ordinary way. Another sample was sent to a leading representative of the Jewish community, who was loud in his praises of the manner in which it had been prepared. Our own acquaintance with the fisheries of the colony extends over a period of years and there are few phases of them that we have not studied. Mr. Condon's process looks good and the finished article tastes good. He is now seeking to interest foreign capital to further his process, and to establish depots all around the island, where fish will be received and cured according to his formula. As a business proposition it deserves every encouragement from fishermen and government alike. There is no guarantee of capital being sought. This movement is National not political, and there is no party political influence being solicited. Certain concessions are to be asked of the administration, viz., the admission of whatever gear and accessories may be necessary, free of duty. The beginning of a new industry is usually privileged in this respect, and as that proposed means the establishment of new markets, it is to be hoped that the Government will see its way clear to assist reasonably in the starting of this modern industry, and thus give an opportunity for the circulation of capital, the employment of extra labor, and the commencement of a new era of perfection in our cod and herring exports.

Supreme Court on Circuit.

TRUE BILL IN JOSIAH GOSSE FISH CASE. In the matter of Josiah Gosse who is up for trial before Circuit Court at St. John's, on a charge of obtaining money under false pretences, the Grand Jury yesterday brought in a true bill. The matter is being tried to-day before Mr. Justice Johnson and a special jury. Sir Michael Cashin and Sir John Crobie, who had been summoned before the Grand Jury, returned to town yesterday, after they had given evidence. Mr. Justice Johnson delivered a lengthy address at the opening of Court during which he paid a tribute to the late Judge Pender of Carbonear. Mr. Justice Johnson also spoke of his personal interest in Mr. Gosse, it being the place in which his ancestors from the Old Country settled over 100 years ago.

Miriam H. Still Stranded.

TUG HUGH D. RETURNS FROM SCENE. The tug Hugh D., Capt. Rose, arrived back from Bell Island, the scene of the stranding of the vessel Miriam H. Although several efforts were made to pull off the schooner they were unsuccessful and the ballast will have to be discharged. The Miriam H. which is aground on the beach immediately west of the Nova Scotia Pier, is believed to be undamaged. She is partly loaded with scrap iron and is embedded somewhat in the shingle of the beach. When the cargo is discharged it is believed that the vessel can be towed off at high tide without difficulty.

The fire was confined to the chimney of the residence and was extinguished with very little difficulty.

McMurdo's Store News.

SATURDAY, Dec. 3. Just opened, a full stock of Common Sense Rat Exterminator. This remarkable vermin destroyer not only kills but shrivels up rats and mice until little or nothing is left of them, so that no bad odor is possible after its use, while on account of its strength it is very economical in use, one thirty-five cent tin being sufficient to account for fifty rats. We carry Buckley's Bronchitis mixture, now being locally advertised for coughs, bronchial trouble, etc. Price 75c a bottle.

"My Irish Rose."

IN THE OLD CONVENT SCHOOL. The first flat of this building has recently been converted into a social hall, with a seating capacity of about 400. A fine new stage has been erected by Mr. Cousins (South Side) and his assistants, whilst our talented artist, Mr. Dan Carroll has painted some very fine scenery which will be seen for the first time in the West End Dramatic Company's opening performance of "My Irish Rose," on Tuesday next, in aid of the St. Patrick's Memorial School. The names of the different players appear in an advertisement elsewhere in this paper. Many of them are experienced players, whilst the new talent we are informed is of exceptional merit.

"My Irish Rose" caste of characters: Misses Ida Howlett, Mollie Horan, Anita Curtis, Gertrude Ryan; Capt. J. J. O'Grady, Messrs. F. J. Murphy, Thomas Rolis, T. J. Dalton, Chas. Tobin, John Heary, Wm. J. Flinn, J. M. Heary, Wm. J. Flinn, J. M. Spearns, Leo Robinson. Tickets at Byrne's Bookstore. All seats reserved. Prices 50c. and 30c. dec.21

Personal.

Mrs. R. C. Morgan and daughter left by train yesterday en route to Winnipeg, where they will remain for the winter. Mr. R. C. Morgan accompanied them as far as Port aux Basques, while his secretary, Mr. C. J. Merzer, also went along.

His Excellency the Governor has been pleased to appoint Captain A. G. Stewart Goddell to be Private Secretary; Captain P. F. Wilberforce-Bell, M.C., the Queen's Own Royal West Kent Regiment (R. of O.) to be Military Secretary and Aide de Camp; Hon. Robert Watson to be Honorary Private Secretary and Captain Gerald C. Harvey, Captain Alexander B. Baird to be Honorary Aides de Camp. Government House, St. John's, 1st Dec. 1922.

"The Broken Road."

A DIFFICULT PRODUCTION CLEVERLY HANDLED. In the play presented by the Mac Edwards Company at the Casino Theatre last night, a new departure was made by the exceedingly versatile troupe, and with a most difficult production they again demonstrated their ability in the Theatrical art. To be candid and frank, the play was a bit draggy, and notwithstanding that the cast put all their talent into the performance, the result as a whole was not satisfactory. The dialogue of the play is a bit heavy, and were it not for the ease with which the cast approached it, and the skill with which they demonstrated exceedingly difficult parts, another story might have been written. Bert Crawford as Roger de Coverley, with Miss Gertrude Riggs as Amanda Dillpickle, saved the situation. Miss Edwards as "Molly" again proved to be a favorite, her personation of an exceedingly complex character being beyond cavil. The other dramatic personae, C. J. Flinchey (Richard Clinton), Malcolm Murray (Reynold Plunkles Morgan), Jack Werner Corbin (Robert Temple), Miss Marie Fischer (George Gubb), and Ollie Newcomb (John Morgan), played up to the star, and by their efforts achieved a success which might easily have been a failure had less talent been lacking. We are rather of the opinion that the psychological perspicacity of the manager of the company, when announcing this bill a few nights ago, was a little bit at fault. The vaudeville turns between the acts relieved a situation that almost became tense at times. It is in no spirit of carping criticism that these remarks are made. The clever execution of the various roles reflected the greatest credit upon the performers, but the theme is a bit ponderous. The bill will be repeated to-night when those who failed to book seats for last night will have an opportunity of proving whether or not this particular play is not a bit out of hand, not through any fault of the players, but merely in the selection.

Medical Fees.

MEN AT STONE YARDS PAY MONTHLY. At present there are upwards of nearly 300 men employed in the Government Stone Yards in the East and West End of the city. The men are earning small wages, but were increased on last pay day (Friday) to learn that the sum of 25c, each was to be stopped every month for medical attendance. The total would amount to about $75 per month and it would be interesting to know who the favored doctor is. So far he has not been called, as none of the men are in ill health.

Magistrate's Court.

A domestic from St. Brendan's, taken in for safe-keeping last night, was remanded for eight days. A man was summoned at the instance of District Inspector Noseworthy, for refusing to support his wife and children during the last two months, failed to appear when called on. A case against milk vendors summoned by Inspector Edward Lawlor, for selling adulterated milk, contrary to the statute in such case, made and provided, was postponed until Wednesday next.

A Clarion Call.
ALL FRIENDS OF THE CAUSE.
 On the eve of a great warlike struggle all combatants are asked to make a supreme effort to win a victory, so too are the members of the Christian Brothers once again asked to march determinedly to the front tomorrow, with all the resources that they can muster, and all the dollars that they can spare, so as to contribute their share to the very former collection well into the night. From every quarter comes the report that all the members of the school boys, young and old, are ready to do their duty. The school boys of the Hall, or at Holy Cross, are more enthusiastic than ever. They are bent on showing that whilst they are in life in them yet, the Christian collection must move well up the scale. And this is only right for those upon whom they bestowed their care, in order to make of us capable citizens, upon whom they can depend for an education as practically no other family should now when we do so contribute towards the welfare of the Christian Brothers. The giving of a dollar, or more, than we ever before, will result in the aim we have before us. The doubling of the amount of the collection, the quarter of a dollar and the dollar, the half dollar and the dollar, these whose means are limited will do so. An increase in the number of the donors who have been in the position to contribute the larger sums, the two, five, ten dollar bills, and other larger amounts, will cause the collection to swell much higher still, so that the boys when we pour in the dollars and dollars to-morrow, as we have done in the past, will look upon the collection with a pride and satisfaction that we have never before. Rain or snow, clear or cloudy, will not deter us from our duty, just as the Christian Brothers, our teachers of the days when we were boys, that there is a feeling of pride ever in our hearts for all that we have done in the collection. We will be expressed in a way never surpassed. Just a few more, as in my mention of the number there occurs to me a little more. It relates to the visit of an English tourist to the beautiful lakes in a season when the weather was unusually wet, tho' the climate is said to be subject to change. Ten days or more he has been driving around in an Irish motor car, under the direction of a driver and a companion, hoping to see at their best the exquisite sight of the lakes so famed in song. Day after day, however, the rain came down heavily, but in gentle and frequent showers. At last the Englishman turned to the driver and said in impatient tones: "Does it ever rain like this in Ireland?" To which the guide, philosopher and realist replied: "Arrah, no sir, for it rains come down in bucket-fuls." So to-morrow may the dollars come to the boxes in torrents, making the contrast to the dripping collections of the years gone by, as great as the Irish jockey's bucket-fuls of rain that sometimes fall upon the lakes appear to the gentle tourist that usually prevail.

Poultry Exhibition Closes
 LADY HORWOOD PRESENTS PRIZES.
 The 12th Annual Poultry Exhibition has been held in the C.L.B. room since Wednesday last, having its conclusion last night, having been unanimously voted by all as the most successful exhibition held in the history of the Poultry Association. Lady Horwood closed the affair, and in doing so paid a well merited tribute of praise to the committee for their untiring efforts in making the show the huge success that it was. On the platform were Lady Horwood, President Gilliat of the Bell Island Association, Prof. Landry and the members of the Executive Committee. The silver cups and ribbons won by various competitors were presented by Lady Horwood. Each of the winners as they came forward were warmly applauded. A very happy occasion took place when his Worship the Mayor, Hon. Tasker Cook, presented on behalf of the committee a bouquet of Chrysanthemums, and the Valley Nurseries, Prof. Landry in his address spoke in glowing terms of the exhibition, stating it was the best ever held in the Dominion. The quality of the birds shown was excellent and the show was a good show in any of the Dominion Exhibits. He commended the committee and the members generally for the interest they had taken in the Poultry Exhibition. The affair had concluded President Landry and the committee in a word to his Worship and Lady Horwood. The Mayor, Tasker and Mrs. Cook, who were present last night, all expressed their satisfaction in the exhibition, and some 400 more people were taking in the 1922 show.

Lady Horwood leaves by to-morrow's train for Glace Bay where he has an appointment to attend on Tuesday next. The exhibition was the most successful yet held, and President Landry and the committee are to be congratulated on bringing Jackson Running to Form.

HAD A SPIN YESTERDAY.
 Yesterday afternoon Laurie Jackson and his trainer visited the Prince's Rink, when the Canadian sprinter covered five miles of the course. Taking into consideration that the track has a very short straight away stretch, and many corners to contend with throughout the hard grind, Jackson appeared to be quite at home. His running action and style was indeed beautiful to watch. He appears to run without the least effort, has a medium length stride with a quick leg action, while his arms in unison with the movement of his legs, makes him a finished runner. Jackson stated that the lay of the track could not be improved upon, while the sweep around the corners affords lots of room for an opponent to pass. He finished fresh, and is running in excellent form.

TRINITY

During the last few weeks I have given several lists of the names of men from Devon, Dorset, Somerset and Hampshire in England, who, from 1760 to 1860 assumed men's responsibilities in Trinity, and added to its family life. Though many of the descendants of those people are still with us and their names are still familiar to us yet the majority of them have passed on and out, and the places thereof know them no more. Our Trinity trade of a hundred and fifty years ago was not confined to Poole and Plymouth and Bristol, for our vessels and captains were well known and welcomed to the harbours of Limerick, Cork, and Dublin; and the trade between Ireland and Trinity was fraught with mutual advantages. The bills of lading of the vessels from Limerick were the same in several respects as those from Poole. In either case these bills would usually indicate that the cargo included so many barrels, so many barrels of tar, so many youngsters, in short, so much merchandise, youngsters included. Hence, as those names that I have already given of men from Devon and Dorset and Hampshire, were the names of men who had come out to Trinity as English youngsters, so the following names are those of men, who as boys of sixteen years of age came here from Limerick or Cork or Dublin, as Irish youngsters, during the years between 1750 and 1780, and then in later life married and settled down in Trinity at the dates given below, as taken from the old church register.

- 1767—Richard Kene, of the Kingdom of Ireland, and Mary Ann McGrath.
- 1769—John Allen and Mary Power, both from Ireland.
- 1771—John Canfor, of Dungarvin, Ireland, and Hannah Ivmy.
- 1774—Maurice Connors and Elizabeth Walsh, both of the Kingdom of Ireland.
- 1775—Gerald Keefe of Barnet Tree Parish County of Waterford, and Ann Cavent of Queen's County, Kingdom of Ireland.
- 1778—Maurice Connors, of Ireland, and Ann Hiscock.
- 1786—Darcy Quinn, of Ross, Ireland, and Sarah Foster.
- 1788—John Morrissey, of the County of Waterford, Ireland, and Margaret Ryan.
- 1788—Edwin Meagher, of the County of Tipperary, Ireland, and Patience Bayly.
- 1789—Cornelius Maloney, of Waterford, Ireland, and Mary Pinhorn.
- 1789—Thomas Dalley, of Tansicurry, Waterford, and Sarah Harding.
- 1792—Patrick Carig, of Tallow, near Youghal, Ireland, and Mary Lambert.
- 1795—Dennis Eagen, of Youghal, County of Cork, Kingdom of Ireland, and Hannah Dwyer.
- 1796—Edward Scully, of Youghal, Ireland, and Elizabeth Moore.
- 1798—William Duffey, of Onan, Killenny, Ireland, and Ann Healey.
- 1801—William Ennes, of the City of Dublin, Ireland, and Mary Hone.
- 1801—John Kirby, of Youghal, Ireland, and Ann Green.
- 1801—William Austen, of Tallow, Waterford, Ireland, and Mary Bromley.
- 1802—Thomas Britt, of Youghal, Ireland, and Mary Foster.

The Jews of old conveniently referred to people of all other nations as Gentiles; and owing to the fact that, almost without exception, those who come to us from across the ocean are either English or Irish, we had got into the habit of referring to the people of the rest of the world as "Foreigners." I was amusingly reminded of that some years ago whilst in Canada. A friend of mine was sent to Newfoundland, as a commercial traveller. Upon his return he told me the following story:—"An old man undertook to drive me from Catalina to Bonavista. He was deeply interested in and in reply to my questions about the country, he gave me some practical information. As conversation began to lag, I asked him if there were any Foreigners in Bonavista. He replied, No Sir! Not one! Then he corrected himself and said:—"Excuse me, Sir, I am wrong, there is one Foreigner, a Scotchman, the old doctor." I can follow the old man's reasoning, and so did Dr. Forbes, who laughed quite heartily, when, some years after, I told him the story. The forefathers of the people in Bonavista (as elsewhere) then and now, were and are so exclusively English and Irish, that even a Scotchman would come under the old man's definition of a "Foreigner."

To-morrow is the first Sunday in the Solemn Advent Season. The first day in the Church's Year.

THINGS ANCIENT AND MODERN.

I am in receipt of several letters from people thinking me for the story of the loss of the "William Kelson." I am glad to know that my hopes, re the good impression it would make, have been confirmed; and I am more than glad to know that I have given pleasure, especially to the old people of English Harbor, to whom the details of the wreck were familiar eighty years ago, but now, all but forgotten. The writer of one of the letters from English Harbor joins with me, in regrets (often experienced by me) over the fact that, owing to the neglect of the early settlers there to chronicle the doings of their daily life, many deeply interesting stories have been lost, and historical events forgotten. One has only to look over (as I often do) the records as contained in the old church registers of St. Paul's, Trinity, to realize what fine old characters those men were, who, from Hants, Dover and Dorset, came out and founded English Harbor. May God be good to them.

The same writer informs me that "a few of the old customs peculiar to, and in keeping with their race, and the teachings of Holy Writ," have come down to the present. One of the customs is: On the night of Christmas Day (not Christmas Eve) Carol singers go from house to house; and taking up their positions inside the porch door, sing (to the accompaniment of some musical instrument) "While Shepherds Watched their Flocks by Night," and etc. This is flanked by the words:—"My song is done and I must be gone."

are usually due to straining when constipated. Nujol being a lubricant keeps the food waste soft and therefore prevents straining. Doctors prescribe Nujol because it not only soothes the suffering of piles but relieves the irritation, brings comfort and helps to remove them. Nujol is a lubricant—not a medicine or a laxative—so cannot gripe. Try it today. J. B. ORR CO., Ltd. Sole Agents for Newfoundland.

I can stay no longer here; God bless you all, both great and small Merry Christmas, and a Joyful New Year.

God bless the rulers of this house, And all who dwell in here God bless you all both great and small, etc., etc."

After this the good woman of the house responds by liberal donations of Christmas Cake, and they go to the next house, and then to the next, till all have been visited. The writer is justly proud of the perpetuation of such an old and pious custom, which doubtless, is a part of the old Carol system of Merrie England, that their great-great-grandfathers brought over with them. In those days, before they had a church in which to assemble for the holy Christmas Services—so dear to them in the English parishes they had left—the meeting together in one another's houses for a service of Carol singing on Christmas evening, must have been very interesting to them, and must have constituted a sacred link that bound them to the homes they had left. I hope their descendants will never discontinue the custom. The local writer will be glad to hear from anyone who can give a clue to the origin and authorship of the two verses as given in these notes.

Mr. Gill Christian came to town last week, registered at the Garland, and attended to his business. Glad to see you Gill.

Sunday last—the last Sunday in the church's year—was Thanksgiving Day in the Church of England. A thread of thanksgiving ran through the services of St. Paul's during the day; and the offerings were for the Home and Foreign Mission Fund.

Mr. Nicholas Ryan and Mr. Fred. White of Bonavista spent the week end in Trinity and returned by Monday's express. Glad to see them. Come again.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS, ETC.

Garland P.—Thank you for your letter. I wish that more people would write to me in the same strain. It would supply me with the information and the inspiration that I need to make my notes interesting.

A.R.S.—No; it is by no means as easy as you think, to trace a family history from the meagre information that you can supply. The old church records are wonderfully helpful; but they were never intended to be complete family histories. In tracing the one you refer to, I had diaries, and letters beyond the ordinary to help me. I shall be glad to do what I can for you; but I can promise nothing definite.

R.—Thank you for the correction. When I referred to old Mr. and Mrs. Murphy at King's Cove, I wrote John Murphy instead of Patrick. It was my mistake.

R.B.—Sorry I can't do what you suggest. It would bring me into conflict with the advertising department, over which my privileges do not extend.

Inquirer.—Yes, Garland & Co., and Slade & Co., each had their headquarters in Trinity; and each had their branch business departments in such places as Scilly Cove, Hant's Harbour, New Perlican, etc., etc. Trinity was then practically the commercial capital of Trinity Bay.

Great Fire in the City of London.

On December 2, 1886, soon after half past ten in the morning, a fire, which proved very destructive, broke out in a block of warehouses between Knightbridge Street and Carter Lane, at the east end of the first named street, next Old Change. The fire began on the premises of a firm of whole sale paper dealers and stationers, a large building of two floors, and in part of five floors. The workpeople escaped, and fire engines were promptly sent from different stations. At eleven o'clock the conflagration had made rapid progress into the middle of the whole block of buildings, and engines and men were speedily on their way to the fire from every part of London. By midday twenty steamers were engaged, all of which got to work in the surrounding thoroughfares with a plentiful supply of water. Despite the most strenuous efforts, the roof of St. Mary's Church caught fire, and was soon blazing furiously. At this point, it was seen that if the fire once extended across Old Change, the damage would spread to a vast number of warehouses to the east. The fire brigade, therefore, concentrated and poured thousands of tons of water upon the burning buildings. The roof of the beautiful church was in flames, and presently part of it came asunder from the rest, as clearly as if it had been cut with a knife, and fell with a terrific crash into the church, totally destroying the interior. The walls, however, were of such solid masonry, that they withstood the shock and remained standing. By one o'clock it was seen that the great extinguishing power which had been brought to bear upon the fire, effectually restricted its damage

Paint and Paint Mixing.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir:—On the high interest founded in reading Canon Lockyer's articles on Trinity, I had long ago promised to write him of my own experience with paint mixed with sea-water and other things of a like nature. Now I have decided to write the Telegram instead.

Canon Lockyer is quite right about the mixability of paint with sea-water. I have been doing this occasionally for the past twenty years and making comparisons with other mixtures from time to time I find that paint so mixed has very little, if any, advantage with regard to durability over other paints. If there is any difference it is to be found in the paint applied since the war. This might be easily explained by the fact that we have drifted past the days of genuine linseed-oil into the period of make shift where anything is sold as such that gives off even a counterfeit odor of the genuine article.

With regards however, to the weather-resisting qualities of any paint, there are different things to consider. First of all, it can be taken as certain that a house painted after a wet spell will become shabby looking much earlier than if it were painted after a fine spell of sunshine because it absorbs much easier and therefore retains the ingredients of the paint much longer. At the same time to be fully competent to judge which is the better mixture it is quite necessary to understand the kind of lumber you have painted. In many cases of building in those later years, on account of the old mature trees being depleted, especially along the coast line, lumber is sawn from a much younger and smaller tree and the result is much more sappy lumber than formerly and I think most everyone knows that sap is as repulsive to paint as a rotten egg to an epicure. The fact remains, however, that sea-water will give you more paint without impairing its efficiency. Cod oil will do the same thing with added advantage, but better still is the mixture of two thirds of ready mixed (I refer only to "Matchless" white I have tried no other) paint to one third of white lead mixed with oil from the livers of dog-fish. This also thickens very much after mixing and the further use of this oil for the purpose of thinning increases its preserving qualities. If dog-fish oil is drawn as it comes from the liver it is practically odorless and white, and will dry readily if a small tea-cupful of beef pickle to the gallon of paint is mixed in. This mixture will never seem thin but the right consistency can be met by an occasional dipping of the brush and trying it on a board. No other paint that I know of will resist weather like it. Ochsre for the inside of boats can be mixed with cod oil and beef pickle and used with very satisfactory results.

Returning to the original subject of sea-water paint I want to add: I saw two boats painted a few springs ago for services at the fishery on the same schooner. One was painted with pure white "Matchless." After the first boat was painted sea-water was applied and a recasting of it put on the other. In the fall the first was practically covered with a green sea-water mixture was as clean as when launched. I have never tried it myself because I use copper and it seems a curious fact I do not know if it has been tried since. Evidently Canon Lockyer is a keen observer of men and things. Can he tell me if common gunpowder will or not dissolve in kerosene oil? Or if hard grease (motor) will melt in boiling water. I shall await his reply with much interest, providing that he will kindly understand that this is not meant as a probe for weak spots in his superior knowledge.

Yours truly,
JET BENSON.

Lewis Accepts.

CHICAGO, Nov. 27.—Harry Lewis, world's heavyweight champion, who appears in a match here tonight, declared that he was willing to wager $25,000, with the loser taking all the gate receipts, to defeat Jack Dempsey in a match. The statement was made after Lewis had accepted Dempsey's acceptance of his challenge for such a match was reported in Chicago.

Jack Dempsey announced that he had accepted the offer of Al. H. Woods theatrical producer, for a mixed bout with Lewis, and with fights with two boxers yet to be named. The terms for the three fights are understood to approximate $1,000,000.

The first match will be held in about three months. Harry Willis and Joe Bockett are being considered as Dempsey's opponents for the second and third matches. Lewis says: "Dempsey can go into the ring either with gloves or without them, and is at liberty to either box or wrestle, while I will confine myself to wrestling alone."

hand who is going to be exactly the same woman after marriage as she was before.

Men dislike scenes. They are frightened by hysteria. It is an immense relief to any man to know that in his wife he has a happy-hearted woman who will not become sunk in melancholy if his business takes him away for several weeks, who will not tell him that her evening has not been spoiled because he comes home late from his work.

Beauty, intellect, personality, youth itself are nothing beside this rare and beautiful gift of simply being happy. The "interesting" woman, with her moods, her emotional demands, her insistence that she must be all in all to the man she loves, often brings disaster to marriage. But the happy woman gives of her own happiness, it is infectious.

A Stubborn Cough Loosens Right Up

This home-made remedy is a wonder for quick results. "Really" and "Genuinely" Made.

Here is a home-made syrup which millions of people have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up stubborn coughs. It is cheap and simple, but very prompt in action. Under its healing, soothing influence, chest soreness goes, phlegm loosens, breathing becomes easier, leading in throat stops and you get a good night's restful sleep. The usual throat and chest colds are conquered by it in 24 hours or less. Nothing better for bronchitis, hoarseness, croup, throat ticks, bronchial asthma or winter coughs.

To make this splendid cough syrup, pour 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex into a 10-oz. bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup and shake thoroughly. If you prefer, use distilled molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, you get 15 ounces—a family supply—of much better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for $2.50. Keeps perfectly and children love its pleasant taste. Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known the world over for its prompt healing effect upon the membranes.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex with full directions, and don't accept any other size. Guarantees to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

Ahead we're always looking to-morrow's are in view; our incense we are cooking to greet the thing that's new; be-shrewing and gadooking, we say to old things, "Shed!" The poor Old Year now going has few to sing his praise; we say that he is showing a record of dark days, and daricks we are throwing, where once we gave him bays. No doubt the year that's coming will have his smile on straight; with dulcimers a-thrumming we'll greet him at the gate, and twelve months hence be humming the old time hymn of hate.

When the Pirates Visited Newfoundland.

Some Records of These Sea Marauders.

(H. F. SHORTIS.)

There is not a Cove in Newfoundland but has its records and traditions about pirates. Their ill-gotten gains have been buried in many places to await a convenient opportunity for their disposal, and often the pirates have never returned to claim their treasure. The buccaneer was merely an adventurer, and we know that Sir Walter Raleigh's fleet, when returning from South America to England, about the year 1595, called at Newfoundland, and took possession of several vessels, loaded with gold, and sent them to Leghorn (Italy) for sale. During the Guy Celebration in 1910, I gave some interesting records of Captain Peter Easton, British Navy, and afterwards, when he started on his own account and defied his old comrades. We know of a celebrated battle he fought off Harbor Grace Island, which was long commemorated by the well-known land-mark, Easton Rock, but later corrupted into Easter Rock. Quite recently I came across the records of Captain Bartholomew Roberts, a contemporary of the celebrated (or infamous) Captain Kidd and Captain Avery, who were the terrors of the sea for many a year, just two hundred years ago. He sailed everywhere, to South America, the Gold Coast on the west of Africa, and even to Madagascar and India, but his principal resort was in the West Indies. Having a very narrow escape there from a fleet of British and French men-of-war that were sent after him, he sailed for Newfoundland, and arrived on the Banks the latter part of June, 1720. He entered the harbor of Trepassay, with his black flag flying, drums beating and trumpets sounding. There were twenty-two fishing vessels there at the time, which the crews all abandoned at the appearance of this pirate, and went ashore into the woods. He created all the havoc possible, burning and destroying every vessel with the exception of a Bristol galley. These pirates tore down and destroyed the fishing stages and doing all the damage possible, indiscriminately, and as the old record says, "nothing is so deplorable as 10th, two days afterwards, they captured two vessels from Liverpool, which they plundered and let go. Other vessels met the same fate. Then they sailed from Newfoundland for the West Indies. Not long after three of the Newfoundland sailors endeavored to escape, as they were disgusted at the atrocities of the pirates, but they were discovered and sentenced to be tied to the mast-head and shot. One of the pirates at the court-martial had taken a liking to one of these men, named Harry Gadsby, and made use of such strong language at the trial in his defence (I would shock my readers if I related what he said) that his arguments proved successful, and Gadsby escaped the death penalty with a severe warning.

THE PIRATES' ARTICLES OF AGREEMENT.

The following extracts from the "Articles" that each man had signed to obey, when he joined the pirates crew, will certainly be interesting reading:—

1. Every man has a vote in affairs of moment—has equal title to the fresh provisions, or strong liquors at any time, and may use them at his pleasure, unless a scarcity (no uncommon thing among them) made it necessary for the good of all, to vote a retrenchment.
2. Every man to be called fairly in turn on board of prizes, and on those occasions, was allowed a shift of clothes. But if they defrauded the Company of a dollar in plate, jewels or money, marooning was their punishment. (This was putting them ashore on some desolate island with a gun and a bottle of water to subsist on or starve). If the robbery was only between each other, the guilty man was to have his nose or ears slit.
3. No person to game at cards or dice for money.
4. The lights and candles to be put out at eight o'clock each night. If drinking after that hour, they were to do it on the open deck, which Roberts believed would be a check to their debauches, for he was a sober man himself, but found his efforts to reform them in this particular "weakness" utterly beyond his power.
5. Each man must keep his gun, pistol and cutlery clean and fit for service. (In this they were extravagantly neat, and endeavored to outdo each other in the beauty and richness of their arms, giving sometimes, at an auction, over their booty £30 or £40 for a pair of pistols. They were slung with ribbons over their shoulders in a way that they took a great delight in.)
6. No boy or woman to be allowed amongst them, etc., etc.
7. To desert the ship or their quarters in battle was punished with death or marooning.
8. No striking any man aboard, but every man's quarrel was to be ended ashore, and the bosun to be umpire.
9. No man to talk of breaking up his way of living till each had shared 1000 pounds. If any man should lose a limb or become crippled in the service, he was to have eight hundred dollars out of the common stock.
10. The captain and quartermaster to receive two shares of a prize. The bosun and gunner one and a half shares, etc.
11. The musicians to have rest on the Sabbath Day, but the other six days and nights were without special favour.

These, we are assured, were pirate Roberts' Articles, but as they took care to throw overboard the original they had signed and sworn to, before being captured, there is room to suspect that they may have contained something too horrid to be disclosed to any person except such as were willing to be sharers in their iniquitous mode of living.

SWORN ON THE BIBLE.

They were all initiated by an oath, taken on the Bible reserved for that purpose only, and subscribed to in the presence of the worshipful Capt. Roberts. This must suffice for the present, or your readers will all have nightmare visitations; but if they would like to know more of those blood-thirsty tales of bygone days on the shores of Newfoundland, I may take them up again at some future date. Captain Roberts had a special black flag of his own, instead of the well-known skull and cross-bones. It was represented by a man (resembling Roberts himself) standing with each foot on a skull. One skull represented Barbados and the other Martinique, to show his hatred for these two places.

Government Must Resign.

Fight on United Fishermen, your cause is just and right. You have us all behind you, we're there with all our might. 'Tis true we're not at St. John's town but we're at your back and call, to fight for home and family, and save the country from downfall.

We are surely done with Coaker, we want him never more. We must drive him from this country, into some foreign shore. When first he came amongst us and posted on our strand. We thought he came from Heaven to save our Newfoundland.

And then his fluent tongue began to beg us o'er and o'er To give him all our money to build a union Store.

We very soon fell for his whims, which causes us regret. Our children now are hungry, and we must pine and fret.

To the crowd now at Port Union, you must not give a thought. They are only Coakers heeled, seeking what may be sought. For myself I am all Union, but not a Coaker man. I knew he was not Moses, when his secrets first began. DEAF TOM. Bonavista District, Nov., 1922.

Obituary.

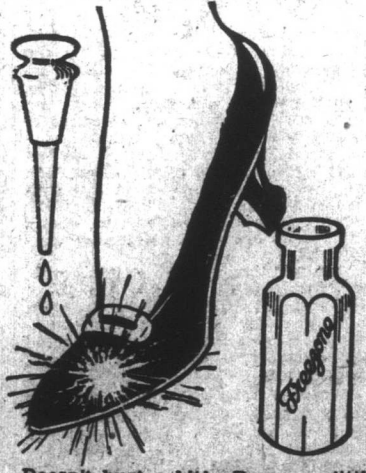

We chronicle the death of J. Harry Freeman of Brooklyn, N.Y. Not many of the present generation remember J. H. Freeman. It was over sixty years ago that Harry (as he was familiarly known) left St. John's, Newfoundland, to try his fortune abroad. He travelled extensively, as published by the Temperance Journal, (Editor, the late Mr. Isaac Murray) making his home for years in California, the then El Dorado of gold mines. Working there he was successful, but later came east and settled in New York and for years was in the banking business and later with the Home Insurance Company of New York, with whom he was connected when his sight failed; and the Company, in recognition of his services, gave him a substantial pension. He is the second son of the late John Freeman of the G.F.O., and brother of A. Freeman of H.M. Customs of this city. Up to within a few months of his death he had enjoyed the best of health and his passing was through old age.

Personal

Mr. J. G. Stone left by s.s. Silvia today for New York, where he will resume his former employment in marine circles, during the winter months. Miss L. M. By EDGAR A. GUEST.

IF I WERE A BOSS.

If I were a boss I would like to say: "You did a good job here yesterday. I'd look for a man, or a girl, or boy, whose heart would leap with a thrill of joy."

At a word of praise, and I'd pass it out Where the crowd could hear as I walked about.

If I were the boss I would like to find The fellow whose work is the proper kind; And whenever to me a good thing came, I'd ask to be told the fellow's name, And I'd go to him and I'd pat his back, And I'd say: "That was perfectly splendid, Jack!"

Now a bit of praise isn't much to give, But it's dear to the hearts of all who live; And there's never a man on this good old earth, But is glad to be told that he's been of worth, And a kindly word when the work is fair Is welcomed and wanted everywhere.

If I were a boss, I am sure I should Say a kindly word whenever I could; For the man who has given his best by day, Wants a little more than his weekly pay, He likes to know, with the setting sun, That his boss is pleased with the work he's done.

THE BEST CHANCE.

How easy it is to say cynical things about marriage. Every daily paper with its reports of divorces, and a t e r n a l murders for jealousy, and sordid struggles over matters of alimony, will provide you a text if you want it.

And so the smart and cynical and depressing things are said and some things we lose sight of that fact that there are such things as happy marriages and that to achieve one is to give yourself the best chance of enduring happiness.

The Greatest Earthly Happiness.

"There is no earthly happiness exceeding that of a reciprocal satisfaction in the conjugal state," said an old philosopher.

How true that is! We have heard it said that a true marriage halves our sorrows and doubles our joys so often that we have to come to make fun of that statement as a bromidion. But it's true just the same.

Marriage has many inconveniences, many annoyances, many restraints, many sacrifices. But if it is a true marriage it has enough comradeship, enough tenderness, enough sympathy, to counterbalance these things over.

When passionate love is gradually transmuted by the years into that blend of tenderness and friendship which is true married love, it forms the best possible background for happiness that exists in all life.

It Takes Brains.

True, it is not easy to achieve a successful marriage any more than it is easy to achieve success in any line. Character and brains enter into the making of it. Forbearance, and a sympathetic imagination. Nor can it be made by one. Any more than one person could make a business a success if the other gave him no cooperation. Nor can it be made in a year and then left to itself any more than a business could be left to itself. Says Cowper: "The kindest and the happiest pair will find occasion to forbear and something every day they live to pity and perhaps forgive."

Of this difficult business of understanding, and making oneself understood in married life, Stevenson says: "Do you think it is a hard thing to write poetry? Why that is to write poetry and of a high if not the highest order."

What wonder, then, that we sometimes fall and grow discouraged and begin to wonder if we are not looking in the wrong place for happiness. If we are looking for perfect happiness, we are. There is no such thing in marriage. Nor out of it. But if we are looking for the best background for happiness we shall find it in no place so surely as in the tenderness and companionship of true married life.

When some moment comes that brings out this tenderness and it surges through your heart and brings a light to your eyes, you know that that is the reality and other things are just on the surface. Of course these moments cannot come often but the facts are always there just the same. Do not lose your grasp of them.

A good dinner deserves a good cigarette, a bad dinner needs one. Let your choice be CUB.

Lady Duff Gordon a Business Failure.

The Toronto-Quebec girl, Lady Duff Gordon, who became one of the world's most famous dressmakers, has just come to grief, being discharged from her own establishment. She was born Lucy Sutherland, a daughter of Douglas Sutherland of Toronto, and is a sister of the writer, Elinor Glynn. Her story, as cabled from London to the New York Herald, gives an interesting side-light on business and financial methods in some of the famous retail stores.—Financial Post.

Lady Cosmo Duff Gordon, whose nom de motier is Lucille, has been discharged from that establishment which she founded, known as Lucille Ltd. Creditors of the New York headquarters of the modiste concern filed a petition in bankruptcy last spring. But now Lucille herself is penniless and is filing a petition in bankruptcy in London.

"I've been absolutely foolish," she said, adding that the fact that she had been "fired" from her own business, incredible as it might be, made her laugh. "Otto B. Schuloff, president of the New York corporation, managed the business," she said, "but it's entirely my own fault that my dream of fortune has not been realized. A few weeks ago I was summarily dismissed and a writ has been served for my debts to Lucille's."

Lady Duff Gordon said she had been designing dresses ever since she was eight years old, when she made doll's clothing for her own dolls and those of her sister, Elinor Glynn.

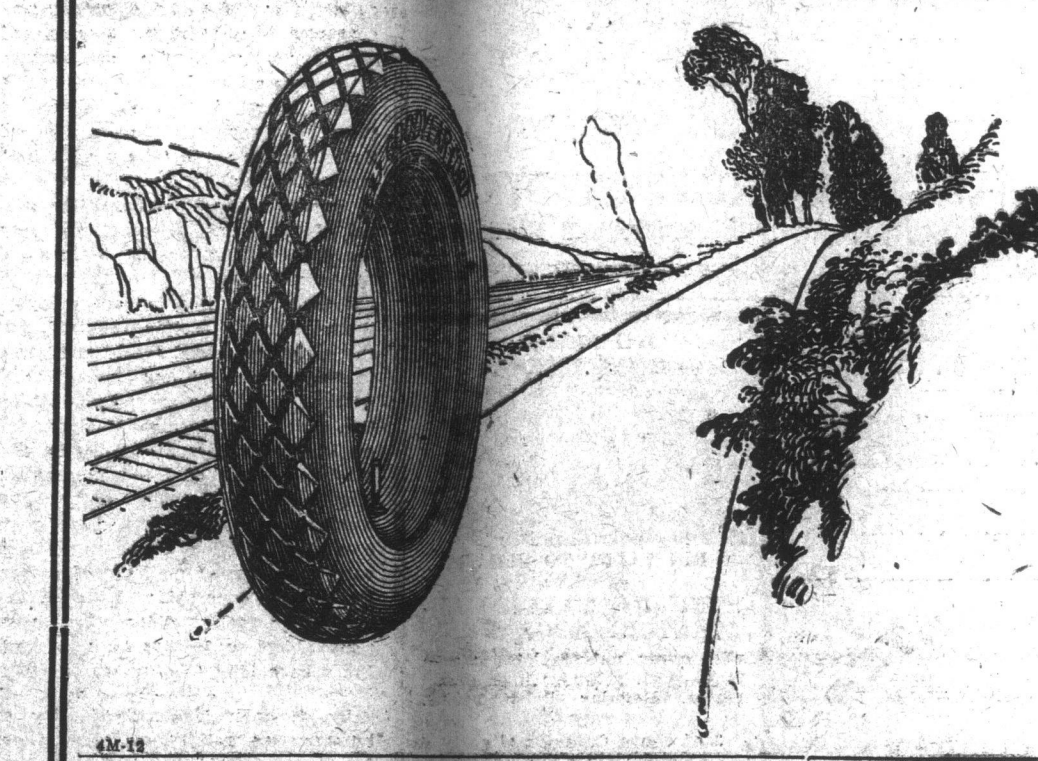

"In 1893 my first husband left me as penniless as I am to-day, living in two small rooms in Davis Street. Mrs. Arthur Brand asked me to make her a tea gown. It created a mild sensation among her friends and orders poured in. The first year a turnover of $250 made me deliciously happy, though I had to cut out the dresses on the floor, not having any table.

"Four years later I moved to Hanover Square, called my dresses by name and used manikins for the first time," Lady Duff Gordon told how her business grew steadily, with the founding of her New York house in 1910, and the Chicago and Paris houses later. "Life was a golden dream," she said. "I designed the 'Ziegfeld Follies' costumes. Then in 1917 I met Otto Bernard Schuloff at the Plaza Hotel.

"He took me by the arm, and said: 'Gee, girlie, I'm glad to meet you!' I was amused and interested, and he persuaded me to reorganise my business along with his great millinery business. But I do not blame Schuloff for a moment. It was all my own fault.

"He was the boss, and I was on a salary of $2,000 a year, with a share of the profits. The first hint of disaster came when he ordered me to go to Paris in 1920, where my salary disappeared in francs; but the sterling basis was restored, and I was happy, for I was still designing dresses. Now I'm fired. Even a writ has been served for the little money I still owe the firm—and my petition in bankruptcy was filed yesterday. It's funny!"

Does Your Tobacco Sift Down into the Stem of Your Pipe?

Edgeworth Tobacco goes out into the world to make its own friends. It is a good smoking tobacco. We don't have to make many claims for it.

It makes quite a number of friends for itself. Some of these good friends write to us. One of them recently sent us the following suggestion: Gentlemen:

Being an occasional smoker and on those occasions usually smoking your tobacco, I am writing to mention a point which might be used in your advertising to your advantage, which to my knowledge has appeared in none of your advertisements to date.

Your tobacco possesses the particular quality of not being rubbed too fine, as a great many of the various brands of tobacco are, and this should be a great selling item, as a smoker invariably experiences a great deal of difficulty in keeping the stem of his pipe clear and clean with the average tobacco, which practically always gets drawn into and block up the stem.

This is merely a point which I have noticed and hope that it may be of use to you. If your pipe clogs up too quickly, we believe you'll find that Edgeworth will relieve you of one of the petty annoyances of smoking.

You are not likely to become an Edgeworth fan simply on this account. You will want a smoking tobacco which has the flavor and fragrance perfectly matching your individual taste.

Edgeworth doesn't suit all smokers; it suits many—not just because it doesn't clog up the stems of their pipes, but because it's also a pretty good smoking tobacco.

Edgeworth Plug Slice is formed into flat cakes and then sliced into thin, moist wafers. One wafer is rubbed for a second between the hands and furnishes an average pipful.

Edgeworth Ready-Rubbed is already rubbed for you. You pour it straight from the little blue can into the bowl of your pipe.

Both kinds pack nicely, light quickly, and burn freely and evenly to the very bottom of the pipe.

Both Edgeworth Plug Slice and Edgeworth Ready-Rubbed are packed in small, pocket-size packages, in handsome tin humidors and glass jars, and also in various handy in-between quantities. Sold everywhere. dec2,2 (Contributed.) TWO GREAT WORTHIES OF THE CHURCH OF SCOTLAND—OLD SCOTCH DIVINES AND THE MINISTERS MAN JOHN.

THE OLD SCOTCH BEADLE. Shortly after the disruption of the Church of Scotland, two clergymen—father and son—were discussing the comparative merits of the churches of which they belonged.

The father, an upholder of Erastianism, had remained faithful to the schism in which he had been ordained. The son, expatriated at great length on the superiority of his church over that of his father; of the advantages of its freedom from state control; of the privilege of its members to elect their own ministers; of its activity and zeal for the diffusion of religion, etc.; and while he did so, did not hesitate to pick holes large and many in the discipline and government of the church with which father had been so long connected, and from which he himself had so recently seceded.

In his estimation the Auld Kirk had faults innumerable, the Free Church none. After hearing him for a while, the father closed his conversation by saying: "When your kirk's lum, Andrew, has been as long reekin' as mine, I'm thinking ye'll find, lad, it will then need sweepin' too."

The Rev. Dr. Gillan, of Inchinnan, was a ready wit, of whom a number of capital stories are told, among them being the following:—One day a young elder, making his first appearance in the Glasgow Presbytery, modestly sat down on the very edge of a bench near the door. By and by the minister who had been sitting at the other end rose, and the young elder was just falling off, when the door opened and Dr. Gillan entered, who catching him in his arms, with his usual readiness exclaimed: "Sir, when you come to this place you must try and stick to the forms of the church."

Among the preachers who occupied the pulpits in Scotland in the days of other years, these fitful glances tend to reveal, were men not less famous for their eloquence and earnest preaching than for their wit and humour and popular eccentricities of character; and they were certainly not the less effective as pastors and preachers that they no and again gave resign to their fancies, and were moved to laughter like ordinary men.

How much have the keen humorous sensibilities of Spurgeon, and Moody, and the Rev. John McNeill, and others that might be named, contributed to the effectiveness of their pulpit ministrations? Indeed, there have been few great preachers, in any time or place, who have not had a lively sense of humour; although the converse, of course, does not obtain. In the grand old days of yore, the old Scotch divine was a lovable creature, none of your long faced sanctimonious moving figures of hypocrisy. The old Scotch divine could take for his text, such a subject as The spirit moveth in Sundry places, preaching the gospel of truth to his congregation, on the spirit divine, or the spirits of wine, and the benefits to the soul of toddy, in those far away days, there were no scripts required, but the scripture flowed freely and given to the people without money and without price. The great Dr. Guthrie, the grand Dr. Norman Macleod, the erudite Dr. Anderson of Glasgow, and eloquent Gillan of Dundee, were all humourists of the first water. Referring to the fact that each successive generation considers itself a vast improvement on its predecessor, Dr. Guthrie once said: "I thought that my father really didna ken very muckle, but my laddies seem to think I'm a born idiot."

Dr. Norman Macleod's faculty of humour was well known everywhere, for it manifested itself in various ways—most effectively, perhaps, in lyrical measures such as "The waddin' o' oor Dog's Tail," "Capt. Fraser's Nose," etc., but always to the order of uproarious fun. It is told of Norman that when walking down Buchanan Street, Glasgow, arm-in-arm with a merchant friend of the West End, one day, the two were passed, first by the Most Rev. Bishop Irvine of Argyle, then by the Bishop's Valet, following a few steps behind him; the one short and slim and the other long and thin, but both dressed clerically, and seeming much alike. They each saluted the popular minister of the Barony as they passed.

It is a truism that much depends upon the way in which a saying is done. A young spark of a fellow has been made a minister, neither very wisely nor very well, as we may in fairness suppose, for, being appointed to a country charge where the manse was situated at a considerable distance from the church, he very soon shocked the finer sensibilities of the laity by driving tandem to and from the Sunday service—that is, having two horses yoked to his machine, the one running in front of the other. The like had never been seen or heard of before. He would require to be spoken to about it at once. Driving of itself was tolerable, but tandem was out of the question. Accordingly, the whereupon his merchant friend turned to him and enquired: "Oh," said Norman, "that's the Valet of the shadow of death."

When Norman, not yet great, began his ministry in the Ayrshire parish of Loudoun, among his parishioners were some rather notable freethinkers, whose views the young divine, with the energy and earnestness characteristic of him, thought it proper to assail and denounce. Naturally this caused a good deal of commotion and excitement in what had hitherto been rather a sleepy parish. One of his elders, who thought his minister's zeal outran his discretion, one day thus addressed him:

"Mr. Macleod, hoo is it we never heard o' unbelievers hereabout till ye cam' among us?"

"John," said the ready minister, "saw ye ever a wasp's bite? 'Hoch ay, aften.' 'Weel, lat it be, and they'll lat you be; but put your stick through the heart of it, and it'll be another story."

No minister was ever more beloved by his people than was Dr. Macleod by the inhabitants of the Barony parish. There is a story—although told before—which reveals this with rare effect, and which the great Norman himself told with much gusto. A dissenting minister in the district had been asked to come to a house in the High Street, and pray with "a man who was thought to be at the point of death. He knew by the name and address given that the people were not connected with his congregation. Still, he went off at once as desired. When he had read and prayed—having previously noted how tidy everything looked about the room; and being puzzled by the thought of a family of such respectable appearance having no church connection—he turned to the wife and mother of the dead, and asked if they were not connected with any Christian body in the city?

"Och, ay," she replied, "we're members o' the Barony."

"You are members of the Barony! Then why didn't you call in Dr. Macleod to pray with your husband; instead of sending for me?"

"Ca' in the great Dr. Norman Macleod!" skinned the matron, with uplifted hands, "the man's surely daft, Dinna ken it's a dangerous case o' typhus!"

Norman Macleod, Anthony Trollope, the novelist, and John Burns of Castle Wemyss, were great friends, and went together once on a tour in the Highlands of Scotland. On arriving at an inn late at night they had supper, and then told stories and laughed without stint half the night through. In the morning the old gentleman, who slept in a bedroom above them, complained to the landlord that he had not been able to sleep on account of the noise from the party below; and added that he regretted that such men should "take more than was good for them."

"Weel," replied the landlord, "I am bound to say there was a good deal of loud talking and laughing; but they had nothing stronger than tea and berrings."

"Bless me," rejoined the old gentleman, "if that is so, what would Dr. Macleod and Mr. Burns be after dinner?"

THE OLD SCOTCH BEADLE. "John," said a parish minister in Perthshire to his beadle not very long ago, "that Disestablishment o'rs is becoming serious. Dr. Hutton and his crew are apparently not to rest until they have us all put out of church and manse together. Why I see there's to be a set of agitators from Glasgow, and elsewhere to be holding a meeting in our very own parish this week."

"Dinna ye bother yerse' minister," was the beadle's reply; "dinna ye bother yerse'!" If the Kirk continues to do her duty, the very gates o' hell will no prevail against her. We have scripture for that. As an instance, Sir, ye mind o' your sive dissenters who tried to put me out o' the grave-diggin' two years syne. I've happy four o' them noo!"

It is a truism that much depends upon the way in which a saying is done. A young spark of a fellow has been made a minister, neither very wisely nor very well, as we may in fairness suppose, for, being appointed to a country charge where the manse was situated at a considerable distance from the church, he very soon shocked the finer sensibilities of the laity by driving tandem to and from the Sunday service—that is, having two horses yoked to his machine, the one running in front of the other. The like had never been seen or heard of before. He would require to be spoken to about it at once. Driving of itself was tolerable, but tandem was out of the question. Accordingly, the elders laid their heads together, and one of them tackled the reverend gentleman on the question at the close of the service.

"Why, you drive to church yerse'!" said the Minister to the elder.

"Ay, but in a very different manner frae that heathenish way that you do it," retorted the elder—that tandem way."

"I see nothing more scandalous in driving tandem than running them abreast," coolly argued the minister; "but if you can convince me that there is, I will cease from doing it."

"I just dinna like it," said the elder, failing to discover a better argument at the moment.

"That's just it," sneered the minister. "You don't like it. It's a sheer conventionalism and narrow-minded prejudice."

"Maybe it is, but it dinna look weel," insisted the elder.

"Look! this is nothing," returned the minister, "but a mere matter of taste."

"The elder's right," broke in the beadle, who had been standing aside listening to all the argument. "Look has a hantle to do wi't. An' if ye'll allow me, Sir, I'll convince ye o' that by a very simple illustration. See ye here, noo, Sir. When ye pronounced the benediction two or three minutes since, it lookt grand an' constant-like when ye did it the proper way. But what gine you had done it a heathenish way, tandem benediction by placing your left thumb to the point of your nose, with your fingers spread out, and your thumb of the right hand to the point of your little finger of the left hand? This is what the beadle called, a tandem heathenish benediction."

The minister stood convinced and never proposed tandem again as long as he lived.

A highly respectable minister, who had no preaching gifts, was one day going to officiate for a country brother, who was from home. The manse to which he was going was some miles from the railway station, and the minister's man John, was in waiting for the conveyance of the stranger when the train arrived in the winter afternoon. John, after receiving him kindly, told him that he had some messages to do in the town close by the station, which would take him about half an hour, and that he would go along to the hotel the landlord would give him a comfortable house at the fireside till he was ready.

The minister sat patiently agreed, but when, instead of half an hour elapsed before John appeared, he upbraided him when he came for his unnecessary delay, and threatened to report him to his master. This was too much for John, who could stand it no longer, and said:

"Weel, Sir, if ye maun hae the truth, I was tellt by the minister to put off at the town till it was dark, so that the folk in the parish might na see wha was to preach the morn."

"That's a damp, cold morning," said the minister, as he entered the session-house, chaffing both hands and feet.

"Deevillish, Sir, deevillish," replied John. Catching the same perhaps, although the sound reached him imperfectly, "it's a hell o' a caul morn."

Dogs And Children.

On more than one occasion motorists have driven over dogs and without stopping have left them lying in the road, maimed and injured. The man who will do this to a dog is capable of doing it to a child. The quality of mercy is not strained.

The motor car does not supply mercy, nor caution, nor care. With a handle at the wheel, a motor car is a juggernaut. The man who will leave an injured dog in the street, making no effort to relieve its sufferings, or to put it out of its misery is a criminal. The man who has no mercy for a dog will drive off and leave a crippled child, if it is dark enough or if nobody is looking.
