"I Can Now Do My Work, Without Feeling Tired"

Mrs. A. Moffatt, Roxton Falls, Que., writes:

"I suffered from a run-down system and nervous debility. I could not sleep or rest at night, and felt so weak I could not walk any distance. I took several tonics, but they only helped me while I was taking them. Mother advised me to take Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and I felt great benefit from the first box, and continued taking several boxes. Today I feel like a new woman, and am able to do my work without that dreadful tired feeling."

DR. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD GERALD S. DOYLE Distributor.

The Countess of Landon.

CHAPTER XI.

"You have asked, Seymour, what is to be said or done. The answer is: nothing. Royce"—her voice did not falter as she spoke the name, but her eyes closed for one second as if a pang of pain had smitten her—"Royce has left Monk Towers, and forever!"

Seymour's face flushed transiently, and his pale eyes gleamed, then he lowered them.

"It was the only course open to him," he said—"the only course. And my dear mother, I think I shall best show my respect for your great sorrow—a sorrow I share with you, believe me—by henceforth refraining from mentioning his name. There is always hope, even for the vilest"—the countess's eyes flashed, but she lowered them and remained silent—"and we may humbly trust the prodigal may return, penitent and reformed. Yes, we will hug that blessed hope to our bosoms; but meanwhile, we will endeavor to forget him. Ahem!" he cleared his throat, and taking up his glass, glanced at her from under his lids—"our dear Irene has grown quite a woman—quite."

The countess did not start, but she turned her head and looked at him, and as he met her gaze with his light, blandly smiling eyes, she understood him.

Her proud face grew pale, the white, shapely hand resting on the table closed spasmodically, and a slight shudder ran through her.

"And a very beautiful woman too," he went on, smoothly. "You will have to find a husband for her presently, my dear mother," and he laughed softly.

"There is plenty of time, Irene is still a child," she said; but she said it mechanically, and like one still under the effects of a sudden shock.

"Oh, yes, yes!" he said. "He will be a happy man who wins her. Dear Irene!"

He opened the door for her, inclining his head respectfully, and the countess passed out on her way to the drawing-room.

But at the door she paused, and instead of entering and joining Irene, she went slowly upstairs to her own room.

She locked the door and stood for a moment, her hand pressed to her bosom, as if she were oppressed by some terrible crushing thought. Then she went slowly, but as if drawn to it, to a small bureau in a corner of the room, unlocked it, and took a miniature from it.

She held it, gazing down at it with a strange expression; then she fell on her knees, and with the miniature still inclosed in the palm of her clenched hand, leaned her proud face on her hands, moaning like a human soul in torture.

And yet the portrait, though a man's, was not that of her husband, the late earl, or of Royce, her second and best-loved son; and it was not the passion of grief that shook her from head to foot, but rather that of a proud spirit dashing itself blindly against the strong barrier behind which fate laughs at us, taunting us with the past, and making of remorse a mockery and despair. There is a skeleton in most houses; there was a very grisly one indeed in Monk Towers.

CHAPTER XI.

The paroxysm passed, and the countess rose from her knees, trembling with exhaustion, and replaced the portrait in its drawer, dropping it from her hand as one drops a thing one hates and loathes, and bathed her face. Then she sunk into a chair, and clasping her arms, forced herself—there is no other word—into composure; and after a time the handsome face regained its usual stately calm, and she went down to the drawing-room.

Irene was at the piano singing in a very low voice a favorite song of Royce's, but she stopped the instant the door opened, and quickly took the music from the stand.

"Why do you leave off singing?" asked the countess.

Irene blushed, but she left the piano and came and seated herself beside the chair in which the countess always sat.

"Are you tired to-night, madame?" she said.

"No, I am not tired; I am quite well," was the calm reply. "Why do you ask?"

Irene did not like to say "because you look so pale," and she opened a paper and began to read, for the countess liked to hear the news conveyed by the girl's musical voice.

Neither of them spoke of Seymour, but presently he came in.

He had drunk three of four glasses of the famous Landon port, and had smoked a couple of cigarettes, and he entered the room with his bland smile even more pronounced than usual; for over the port the resolution he had arrived at in London had, so to speak, crystallized. Irene had grown into a very beautiful woman, and as he thought over this fact, and the amount of the Tresilian money, he felt more than ever convinced that it was his duty to save her from his scapegrace brother Royce, and secure her for himself. He had stood and looked at himself in the glass for quite five minutes before leaving the dining-room, and had smoothed his hair and pulled up his collar with a smile of satisfaction, assuring that there really was no reason in the world why he should not succeed.

To begin with, Royce was out of the way; he, Seymour, was an earl—an irresistible attraction to most girls, as he knew—and he was—well, really he was not bad-looking.

So he went into the drawing-room very well contented with himself, and determined to make himself pleasant and begin the business at once.

The gentle Seymour was by no means a clever man, but he possessed in a marked degree that peculiar kind of cunning which very often serves a man in the place of cleverness, and he was never at a loss for conversation. As Royce had once said, Seymour could talk the hind-leg off a donkey, and to-night he set himself to amuse and interest the beautiful lady who sat so quietly and silently at the countess's feet.

And though he did not succeed in getting anything but the shortest of responses from her, he was not discouraged.

"Are we not to have any music to-night?" he asked. "I thought I heard the piano while I was in the dining-room. If you are not too tired, Irene, dear—"

Irene rose at once, and he went with her to the piano and turned over the music for her, with his head on one side and his white hand softly beating time to the music, presenting such a delightful picture of the highly moral and domesticated animals that no one would have believed the gray-haired man bending with flushed face and startling eyes over the green table in the little "hell" off Regent Street and Seymour, Earl of Landon, to be one and the same person.

After Irene had sung a couple of songs, he offered to sing one himself. He had a soft, but rather feeble voice—there was nothing strong about Seymour, excepting his hypocrisy, which was strong as one of Royce's pipes—and he sang sentimental ditties about broken hearts and wasted lives in what his lady friends called a charming manner. But Irene, though she thanked him prettily, was not touched, and the countess's stern face did not soften in the very least.

"I think our voices would go well together, Irene," he said. "Are there not some duets here?"

And she turned over the music in the canterbury and found "The Lark-board Watch."

"Ah, here you are!" he said, pleasantly. "Now then."

But Irene gazed at the music and turned pale. She and Royce used to sing it when they were boy and girl; there was a patch of tissue paper over a rent which they had torn one day when quarrelling and struggling over it.

"I don't think I can sing any more to-night," she said, with a little catch in her voice.

Royce would have said, roughly, "Oh nonsense! What are girls made for but to sing, when they're wanted," and closed the piano at once.

"And now, what shall we do to-morrow?" he asked, as the countess rose to retire for the night. "You must look upon me as some hard-worked clerk taking a well-earned holiday, you know, and really I don't think any one deserves one more than I do! What do you say to a ride in the morning, Irene?"

"I shall be very pleased," she replied, after a second's hesitation. "That is, if madame does not want me."

"No," said the countess in her impassive voice, and without looking at them.

"Then a ride, by all means!" said Seymour, rubbing his hands with an air of anticipatory enjoyment. "I shall enjoy a canter. I do not get very much time for riding in town."

Irene gave him her hand and wished him good-night, but the countess lingered behind, as if she knew he wished to speak to her.

"Irene is—very quiet," he said. "She has that repose which is so truly charming—and, alas! so rare nowadays in young girls. I hope she is not unhappy, fretting about anything?"

The countess remained silent, and after a glance at her under his white lashes, he went on:

"It occurred to me that she might, perhaps, be fretting over—er—recent events. I fancy, mother, you had some plans for her in regard to Royce—forgive me for mentioning him—but, of course, there is an end to any thought of that kind?"

"Yes, there is an end," she said, coldly.

Does Your Child Show These Symptoms?

Often perfectly healthy children will, for no apparent reason, suddenly lose their appetite, become tired and listless, pale, and take no interest in games or sports. Often the child has a dry cough. If neglected too long, these symptoms may develop into anemia or consumption. When a child shows signs of becoming run down, its system should immediately be built up with a tonic. Dorothy Oliver developed symptoms similar to those described above, and in the following letter Mrs. Oliver tells how the child was restored to health.

"My little girl Dorothy, seven years of age, was much run down, suffering from loss of appetite. She was tired and nervous. She was losing flesh and becoming thin. This had been going on for over three years. I had tried several remedies without effect. Finally I got a bottle of Carnol and almost immediately I noticed an improvement. She gained 100 per cent. in strength and flesh. Today she is again the rosy-cheeked child I used to be. She is now full of life, health and vitality. I therefore can conscientiously recommend Carnol as a builder and appetizer."—Mrs. O. S. Oliver, 648 Beveridge St., Winnipeg.

Carnol is sold by all good druggists everywhere.

Something More!

After meals you want something more—a bit of sweet with a change of flavor. WRIGLEY'S is that "something more" and it's more than that! It is a great aid to your good health, as medical authorities say.

This is from a recent book on health:

"Many physicians now recommend gum chewing . . . for a better and more complete change of the starches into dextrin."

WRIGLEY'S after every meal

—means that your digestion is aided while your pleasure is served; teeth and digestion both benefit. Your choice of several flavors, all of the WRIGLEY quality—sealed in its purity package.

Mirror Misery

"NO LOOKING-GLASS" WAS THE PRESCRIPTION IN A DIFFICULT CASE OF MENTAL DEPRESSION.

A medical man who was called upon recently to treat a rather perplexing case of mental depression did two things—was ordinary, the other extraordinary. He prescribed a tonic and forbade his patient, a young woman of twenty-five, to use a mirror.

It was just by chance that he learned that she had the "mirror habit," and it so happened that in his studies as to causes of mental depression he had come to the conclusion that it wasn't natural, and therefore not good, for human beings to see themselves reflected.

That may astonish, but a moment's thought will make it clear that mankind was not originally intended to look at itself! The first mirror was doubtless a pool of still water, and then would come polished metal. But that our ancestors found means of looking at themselves does not prove that to see ourselves is right.

"What the Eye Doesn't See." Mirrors have an extraordinary fascination for the insane in the first stages of their malady. Afterwards, so the writer is told, a looking-glass will often drive them into paroxysms of fury.

There seems, therefore, little doubt that the "mirror habit," for some, is the beginning of wrinkles, the falling-in of cheeks and the like is not, to put it mildly, helpful or stimulating. And what doesn't help of stimulate is very apt to depress.

"What the eye doesn't see the heart doesn't grieve for" is very true. If convicts had looking-glasses and could see themselves as they are, and note the greying, the ageing, and the pallor, prison madness would vastly increase.

Wisdom, therefore, should make us use our looking-glasses as little as possible. The mentally depressed and those below par in health should use them not at all. It is worth trying, for in the case quoted above the young woman recovered.

English Humor Scores in Havana

Havana, Feb. 20 (A.P.)—The "Wydaddy," a stocky little vessel built along the lines of a tug, lay in Havana harbor taking on a cargo of liquor. "What's that name mean?" shouted an inquisitive American from a passing rowboat. "Will you buy a drink if I tell you?" yelled back a grinning member of the crew.

The "Wydaddy" which flies the British flag, pulled out subsequently with some 6,000 cases of liquor and her clearance papers indicated she was bound for West End, a port in the British West Indies.

Poultry Feeding

A successful method of feeding Poultry as carried out by many big poultry farms, is known as the "Dry Mash" system. A reliable Dry Mash is kept before the fowls at all times in a Hopper, Feeder or Trough. Litter, such as straw, is kept one foot deep on the floor of the well-ventilated, dry, sunny, house, and in its fed late every afternoon a good grain scratch-foed—one quart to each dozen fowls. Water, grit, charcoal, and broken oyster shell are before the fowls at all times. This method solves the problem of securing rapid growth and heavy egg-production. The hens should consume about twice as much dry-mash as grains, i. e., each dozen hens should eat 2 quarts of dry mash per day.

Feeding grains only such as corn and oats to poultry will not produce a big egg yield. A good dry mash—costing roughly about 5 cents a lb.—is made up of such ingredients as Oatmeal, dried meat scrap or fish meal, Corn Meal, Bone Meal, Bran or Wheat Middlings and sometimes Gluten Meal and dried Buttermilk. Cod Liver Oil is included in some recent mashies and certainly induces growth.

A good scratch food consists of Cracked Corn, Whole Wheat, Barley, Oats, Sunflower Seed, etc. So the poultry are getting a good selection of foods when fed this combination. Fowls consume in 12 months about 75 pounds of dry mash and scratch food.

MOTHER OF LARGE FAMILY

Recommends Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to Other Mothers

Hemford, N. S.—"I am the mother of four children and I was so weak after my last baby came that I could not do my work and suffered for months until a friend induced me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Since taking the Vegetable Compound my weakness has left me and the pain in my back has gone. I tell all my friends who are troubled with female weakness to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, for I think it is the best medicine ever sold. You may advertise my letter."—Mrs. GEORGE L. CAROUSE, Hemford, N. S.

My First Child

Glen Allen, Alabama.—"I have been greatly benefited by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for bearing-down feelings and pains. I was troubled in this way for nearly four years following the birth of my first child, and at times could hardly stand on my feet. A neighbor recommended the Vegetable Compound to me after I had taken doctor's medicines without much benefit. It has relieved my pains and gives me strength. I recommend it and give you permission to use my testimonial letter."—Mrs. IDA RYAN, Glen Allen, Alabama.

New Bank Alarm Shoots Fusileade of Cartridges

Chicago, March 11 (A.P.)—An automatic burglar alarm for banks which fires blank cartridges simultaneously in all the money cages and from the direction of all doors, is among the protective devices under test in the laboratories of the National Board of Fire Underwriters. Rapid fire automatic pistols set off by push buttons distributed throughout the bank constitute the alarm feature of the system. The theory of the inventor is that the fusillade will put the bandits to flight.

A SENSE OF HUMOR

"What shall I give him now?" said God. "He has the strength with which to plod the ways of life, the love of right. The gift of sorrow when skies are bright. Wisdom is planted in his mind. This man shall be both true and kind. Earth's beauty shall delight his eyes. And to its glories he shall rise." "He shall know right from wrong, and he Defender of the faith shall be: What more on him can I bestow Before to earth, I let him go?" Then snake an angel standing near: "Wisdom is not enough, I fear. Master, for all that he must do—Grant him a sense of humor, too." "Grant him to smile at petty wrong. The changing moods which sway the throng: When cares annoy him, show him then How laughable are angry men!" Years after, when his strength was tasked, "What keeps you patient?" he was asked. "What keeps you brave who are so tried?" "My sense of humor," he replied. KEEP MINARD'S LINIMENT IN THE HOUSE.

BRUCE ASKS RECONSIDERATION.

MELBOURNE, Mar. 19.—Premier Bruce of the Commonwealth of Australia has cabled Premier MacDonald regarding the British Government to reconsider its decision not to proceed further with the development of the Singapore naval base. Mr. Bruce promised to submit to the Federal Parliament proposals for a substantial contribution by Australia towards the project.

PORTUGUESE CIVIL SERVANTS ON STRIKE.

LISBON, Mar. 19.—Portugal's civil servants went on general strike to-day in support of their demand for increased wages. Following the declaration of the strike yesterday the President announced in parliament that all functionaries quitting work will be discharged and their places filled by the military. The strike was political, he charged, instead of economic in nature and was a threat to the Republic regime.

WOMEN FAIL TO GET VOTE IN TURKEY.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Mar. 19.—Women have not yet won the vote in Turkey. The National Assembly at Angora yesterday adopted the first seventeen articles of the new constitution, but the tenth, which specified that every Turk upon completing his eighteenth year was entitled to vote in parliamentary elections, was amended after a lively discussion by the insertion of the word male.

U.S. SAILORS TO THE RESCUE.

WASHINGTON, Mar. 19.—A landing force of 167 sailors and nine officers from the United States cruiser Milwaukee, at Annapolis, Honduras, is being rushed from that port to Tegucigalpa, the Honduras capital where wild disorder prevails. Consular advisers from Tegucigalpa also said many innocent persons were being shot down and looting was rampant.

CANADIAN EXPENDITURE.

OTTAWA, March 19.—Estimates for the financial year 1924-25 presented to Parliament to-day by Hon. J. A. Boyd provide a total of $400,571,850, a reduction under the total amount of the main estimates for 1923-24 of $25,939,385 and a reduction of $46,373,715 under the total main and supplementary estimates for 1923-24.

MAKES SEA NAVIGATION SAFER.

WASHINGTON—Hitherto unsuspected facts about ocean currents, knowledge of which may prevent many shipwrecks along our coasts, have been brought to light in recent investigations by the U.S. Coast and Geodetic Survey, according to Lieutenant Commander G. T. Rude, Chief of the Division of Tides and Currents of that bureau.

Contrary to the belief of mariners, a local wind creates a current setting not in its own direction, but in a direction about fifteen degrees to the right of the wind on the Pacific Coast and twenty degrees to the right on the Atlantic Coast, a long series of observations have shown.

"The importance of this," Commander Rude explained, "lies in the fact that a wind blowing parallel with the coast produces a current which may tend to set a coastwise vessel on shore. For example, a vessel bound up the Pacific Coast with a following 60 mile wind will overrun her log, due to wind-driven current alone, by one and two-tenths knots per hour and set in toward the land fifteen degrees on the average to the right of the wind direction.

"While from Ekman's theory a deflection to the right in the northern hemisphere is to be expected from theoretical considerations, due to the earth's rotation on its axis, it is modified along the coasts by the configuration of the bottom, bottom friction, and the form of the coastline. Therefore, while a general law may be given of the general current produced by any given wind velocity, observations are necessary at intervals along the coast, particularly well inshore, to determine the actual velocities for that particular locality. On sailing lines for coastwise navigation, however, the general law will hold with sufficient accuracy for practical results, within five to twenty miles offshore.

ANOTHER DISAGREEMENT.

MONTREAL, March 19.—Disagreement was reported by the jury in the Delorme murder trial when the court opened this morning. The jury was discharged and the Judge adjourned the court until tomorrow morning. In the meantime a crowd of officials will confer in regard to future action in the case.

FRENCH ARMY REORGANIZATION.

PARIS, March 19.—The Chamber of Deputies by a vote of 438 to 130 adopted the first articles of the army reorganization bill, dividing France into twenty military regions. The Minister of War, M. Andre Maginot, made the matter a question of confidence.

THE MOST INTERESTING MEMBER.

LONDON, March 19.—Among thirteen members of an influential committee appointed by the Government to inquire into the British National Debt, the public is most interested in the woman member, Mrs. Barbara Wootton who, at the age of 27, was chosen to participate in the deliberations with some of the most noted bankers, industrialists, professional economists and trade union leaders of the country. Mrs. Wootton is not old enough to be allowed Parliamentary vote under the existing law.

Polynesian Fire Walkers

MAKES SEA NAVIGATION SAFER.

Dr. Rollo N. Beck, director of the Harry Payne Whitney South Sea expedition, tells some remarkable stories of the doings of the native islanders.

Magic, he says, is not entirely suppressed among the natives. At the little island of Rapa, the southernmost of the eastern Polynesian group, a rite, known as unani, is performed by a fire walker for the purpose of securing good crops. This consists of walking several times with naked feet over a bed of stones which have been heated until red by a fire from beneath.

A shallow pit, two feet deep, is dug, usually about nine feet by twenty-one in size. Wood is placed in the bottom of this pit and on it are arranged about 200 round stones in two or three layers. When the day for the ceremony arrives, the wood is lighted and burned about four hours beneath the stones until they are glowing.

Immediately upon the hour set, six natives appear wreathed in flowers and bearing poles nearly fifteen feet in length. These poles are used to thrust aside the layer of stones, while still leaving a superior layer. In order to deepen the impression of risk in the minds of the onlookers, the performers will, at times, thrust the poles through to the fire where they burst into flame, conveying the idea that the heat of the stones removed caused the fire.

With the arrival of the priest the more impressive part of the ceremony begins. He appears with garlands of flowers and bearing a large spray of leaves in his hands. He passes about the fire each way, uttering a sort of incantation for protection. Then, heating the nearest stones three times with the t leaves, proceeds with dignity, but rather hurriedly, over the centre pile of stones. As he walks he is followed by those disciples who have courage to make the attempt under his directions.

This spectacle of the fire walker is a very interesting one inasmuch as an apparent impossibility is performed with such evident absence of injury. The first conclusion arrived at was that the feet of the Polynesians were tougher than those of Europeans, which is really true, but does not wholly explain the situation. A close examination showed that the soles used were basalt, of volcanic origin, the most noticeable feature of which is its porosity and non-conductibility. It was found that a stone could be heated red hot at one end while the other end remained comparatively cool.

Parson Rapped Divorce; Choir Went on Strike

Binghamton, N.Y., March 4.—(By Canadian Press)—The choir of the Boulevard Methodist Church here recently went on strike following a sermon by the pastor of the church in which he scored divorcees. Seven members of the choir of thirty are divorced. The strike lasted a week. All the members of the choir did not return to their positions. Ray Hartley, leader of the choir, who is divorced and married a divorced woman, and Deacon Fred Woodburn, who has been divorced three times and recently married his fourth wife, are said to have been so much hurt they may never return to the church. Quake-Proof Houses Wanted

TOKIO — (Canadian Press) — Declaring that it is imperative for permanent quake-and-fire-proof houses to be erected quickly as one way of aiding in restoration of this city, and stating that the section of the public which escaped the damages wrecked by the calamity of September last do not duly appreciate the importance of rendering some such aid, the Japanese Engineers' Association urges the formation of such a building corporation with semi-official aid. The Japanese government has authorized several banks to make advances for building purposes on easy terms, but this, the engineers insist, is not enough, and it is a repetition of the recent disaster is to be forestalled, they say, Japan should hurry in the formation of a corporation which would make it its business to erect fire-and-quake-proof structures. Before the 'quake Tokio was largely a city of small houses, and the presence of those small houses, crowded together, defeated every effort to introduce sanitation and order. If householders are allowed to rebuild their houses separately and without any proper and expert direction, the engineers maintain, it is regarded as inevitable that there will be a repetition of the congested small houses.

By Ruth Cameron.

DON'T COUNT ON GRATITUDE.

Never count on gratitude. When you do kind things for people do them because you wish to do them. Or if you don't wish to do them, refrain from doing them.

But don't have one eye on the gratitude you are going to get when you are doing kind acts. In the first place, that isn't cricket. And in the second place you are sure to be disappointed.

Gratitude is not a primitive emotion. It came into style with civilization. Of course, if you mean by gratitude just a swift welling up of emotion departing as quickly as it comes, that statement isn't true. Both animals and savages feel that kind of gratitude. But if you mean a sustained sense of obligation, a wish to repay that debt in some way, I do not believe it is a primitive or common emotion. The part of our mind that is molded by our thousands of generations of primitive ancestors, is really far larger than the part that has been molded by the few hundred generations of comparatively civilized ancestors.

Minds Like Icebergs.

True, this civilized layer is on top, and therefore we are more conscious of its part in our actions. But underneath, massive and immutable (except by further generations of development) lies the substratum of primitive mind. When you see an iceberg, you think of what you see on top of the water as the iceberg. You only dimly realize that under the water is a much larger part. And so it is with the mind.

Some people are so close to the an-mal, that beyond the first flush of joy at being helped, they never feel gratitude at all.

Others are sufficiently advanced to realize that the obligation exists but they will argue themselves out of it if they possibly can.

Ways of Cancelling the Obligation.

Sometimes their protective thinking will take the line that what you did for them didn't amount to so much after all. It would perhaps have been better for them if you hadn't done it.

Others protect their self-respect by making much of something they have done for you and thus cancelling the annoying obligation in their minds.

And still others are always on the outlook to take offense at something you do, because that also is a way in which they can wriggle out of that obligation and still keep their self-respect. They are far more critical of you than they would be of someone who had not done anything for them. I suppose that is one of the things Shakespeare meant when he said, "a loan of loss both itself and friend."

Obligations Simply Annoy.

A successful man, writing in the magazines on some of the methods by which he had climbed to his high position in the community, said that when he wanted to win some man's approval, instead of trying to do something for that man, he tried to let him do something for him. "Because," said he, "people generally feel kindly toward people they have helped, and who are under obligations to them, while the thought of people they are under obligations to annoys them."

Truly "a Daniel come to judgment!" No wonder, he made his ten millions, or whatever his claim to distinction was, I seem to remember his advice better than his achievements.

Searching for Buried City

PEKING—(Can. Press)—Relics of equal importance to those found by Howard Carter in his excavation of Tutankhamen's tomb in the Valley of the Kings may be found shortly within a few miles of Peking if predictions of archaeologists who have made a preliminary survey of the field are anywhere near accurate.

The remains of an ancient Chinese city, the walls of which before it was ruthlessly destroyed by one of China's first Emperors, enclosed an area probably greater than that of Peking, are lying to-day under three or four feet of earth north of Peking. Carl Bishop, representing a branch of the Smithsonian Institute, has been here some time, and is greatly interested in the long buried metropolis. It is probable that early this spring he and other explorers and archaeologists will commence to dig down for the hidden relics of the ancient Chow and Shang dynasties.

Chinese farmers are now driving ox teams and ploughs over land that was once the proudest possession of a monarch whose glory rivalled that of Alexander the Great, although history has so far given it little prominence. It was about 100 years before Alexander the Great conquered Egypt, or late in the second century B.C., there arose a king in the comparatively small China who by conquest founded an Empire which lasted until almost the present day. This was Shih Huang Ti, known as the "first emperor," whose rule, ending in 209 B.C., marked the close of the feudal period and the beginning of the empire in Chinese history. He subdued the feudal princes, built the famed great wall of China and successfully defended the country from Tartars from the north, standardized money, transportation, writing and other things, which aided centralization and destroyed as much of the ancient classics and traditions as possible, with the idea that the history of the Chinese Empire should begin with his reign.

Among the feudal kingdoms which the emperor subdued was that of Yen, the Capital City, of which—Yen Ching—is now to be excavated. Yen Ching was a city of immense areas and probably of very considerable population. The high development of art at that time is believed to promise that relics to be found will furnish an archaeological of singular interest.

Yen Ching, however, is but one of the many cities in China which offer a fertile field for the seeker of archaeological treasures. In Northern China, along the banks of the Yellow River, early Chinese civilization flourished. Search among the ruins of this country should disclose relics of the Tang dynasty, which furnished a brilliant period in ancient Chinese art.

against the physicians on whose certificate he was immured in a hospital for insane, and at the same time expressed his amazement at a law which prevented a sane man knowing on what charge he had been committed to an institution. The Court saw how possible it was for interested relatives with the collusion of two physicians to keep a man shut up indefinitely.

Although no collusion and no charge of wrong-doing is made against the doctors in the case, still it was their error of judgment which made the nine years of unjust detention possible. The medical profession of England is much disturbed over the decision as it feels that a doctor in a lunacy case will be running great risks in the discharge of professional duties. One thing is assured, there will be no decisions lightly given.

Here, in Nova Scotia, where the hospital for the insane is a Government institution, and it is in the interest of the officials to discharge patients as soon as cured, and where an Inspector of hospitals makes regular visits, that sort of thing could hardly happen. That is not to say that, through errors of judgment or other causes, no one ever has been wrongly committed, but that they could hardly be wrongly detained for a period of nine years. It would require too much collusion. The case in England has created a real sensation.—Chronicle.

Want Volstead Act Modified

Washington, Mar. 1.—Ten more members of the House have joined the committee of forty, formed Thursday to obtain modification of the Volstead Act to permit 2.75 beverages. It was announced by Representative Hill, Republican, Maryland, a leader in the movement.

"At least fifty members of the House of Representatives will file the committee bill next Tuesday," Mr. Hill predicted.

BLACK SHEEP.

I always hold to the belief that men are mostly good and straight, and so it brings me bitter grief when someone proves a crooked skate, betrays the earmarks of a thief, and earns his neighbors' scorn and hate. It's sad to see a neighbor lose his grip on honesty and worth; this spectacle gives me the blues, and stifles all my bubbling mirth; and it is sad to see the crews of guys who'd hoot him from the earth. They will not wait an hour for proof that he has sinned as people claim; they gaze from minaret and roof, and say his record is a shame; they kick him with exultant hoof, and hang the Jinx sign on his frame. They will not listen to a word that one would say in his defense; such argument is vain, absurd, and short of truth and common sense; the sinner is a vile old bird who should be shoed and chivied hence. But I refuse to shake a friend because some say he is a crook, unless the evidence they lend is final as the Sacred Book, and arm in arm with him I went to fish for suckers in the brook. Let others ply the vicious knout, and say the sinner should be shot. I'll think my friend a good old scout until they prove that he is not; I'll take him pannikins of trout, and luscious wienies, smoking hot.

Cities Should Elect Expert to Handle Business

Modern Method, Mr. Stairs Informs Halifax.

Cuticura Heals Face Disfigured With Itchy Eczema

"Eczema broke out in watery pimples on my face and head. Later my cheeks and head became so bad that they were covered with large scales. The itching and burning were so severe that I could not sleep at night. My face was badly disfigured. My hair became dry and brittle and fell out so that I had to have it cut off close to my scalp."

"A friend advised me to try Cuticura Soap and Ointment so I purchased some, and after using two boxes of Cuticura Soap and two boxes of Cuticura Ointment I was healed." (Signed) Mrs. Elmer King, Box 278, Jackson St., Oxford, Nova Scotia.

approach to the establishment of an administration on a modern business basis that has yet been evolved, was the opinion advanced by Gordon Stairs in an address before the Halifax branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada here last night. Mr. Stairs is town manager of Wolfville, a position which he assumed some months ago and which is the first experiment of that nature in civic government in Nova Scotia.

Members of the city council expressed their disapproval of the city manager plan at a meeting of the Council held last night, and voted against the resolution presented calling for the adoption of the city manager form of civic government for Halifax.

London's Easy Way TO REDUCE COST PRICE OF THEATRE TICKETS.

London, Mar. 6.—The gallery gods of London's theatres know how to get what they want, and also how to get rid of what they dislike. The one they howl, the other they "boo," and they seldom stop either until they are satisfied.

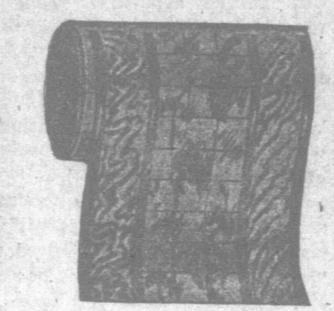

The gallery audience that witnessed recently the first performance of Sir Gerald Du Maurier in "Not in Our Stars," took it into their heads that two shillings a seat was too much money to pay for the gallery. So when Sir Gerald came out to make a curtain speech they started "booning," and then a deep voice shouted, "What about a shilling gallery? It ain't worth two bob."

"If you want a shilling gallery," Sir Gerald shouted back, "you shall have one from now onward."

The next night tickets for the gallery were only a shilling.

Newfoundland at Wembley.

The preliminary work in connection with the Newfoundland exhibit at Wembley has been proceeding steadily and systematically ever since the Committee of Management was formed in September last, and it is gratifying to learn that although great care has had to be exercised to keep within the limit of the amount voted by the Legislature, the display arranged will be attractive and comprehensive.

If there is any fault to be found with the Committee it is that they have carried out their plans too quietly, and, unintentionally we admit, they have not taken the public sufficiently into their confidence. A considerable amount of literature has been published in connection with the construction of the Magic City, with the nature of the exhibits from all corners of the Empire, with the arrangements that have been made to accommodate the invading armies of visitors from overseas, but we have heard altogether too little about our own share in the greatest event of its kind that was ever conceived.

Interest in such a matter is stimulated by keeping it constantly before the public, by informing them of each stage in the development of the plans, by furnishing them with details and by taking them fully into the confidence of the organizers. We are anxious to believe that the Exhibition is something real, we want to be in it, and our only regret is that our means will not permit us to undertake a more elaborate programme.

With the means at their disposal, however, the Committee, by exercising economy in the matter of overhead expenses and through the generosity of private individuals and firms, have been able to assemble an exhibit which will reflect credit upon the Dominion, and will create a good impression among visitors with regard to our natural attractions and resources.

The situation of the Newfoundland pavilion opposite the Exhibition Station will make it the first object of interest of arriving visitors, and the last seen by them as they depart. Right opposite the entrance is the main band stand which will always be a centre of attraction, and close by is the pavilion of His Majesty's Government. The oldest daughter of the Empire thus occupies the place of honour which is hers by right in the family circle, and it is our business to see that she is fittingly attired for the occasion.

We learn that a great many Newfoundlanders intend to visit Wembley during the season, and that among them will be a number of teachers. For them it has many special attractions. They will be enabled to glean a fund of information otherwise unobtainable, and the knowledge gained will be passed on to the younger generation when they return. Unfortunately the dates fixed for the holding of an Educational Conference are May 26th, 28th and 29th, which will make it impossible for them to attend it, but lectures on various subjects will be delivered during the whole of the time that the Exhibition is open. Whether it will be possible to make arrangements with the steamship line for special rates has not yet been ascertained, but some concession might reasonably be expected.

While we are fully in sympathy with the plans of the Committee to advertise our natural resources to the fullest possible extent, we trust that they are keeping uppermost in their minds the fact that our staple industry is the fisheries. We are aware that steps have been taken recently to secure specimens of our speckled beauties to place on exhibition, but while they may attract the tourist, the person whose attention we wish to hold is the business man. All the world and his wife will be at Wembley, and all of them want fish. Let them see our cod, salmon, herring, and other fish as they appear when they are taken out of the water. Show them our tins of salmon and lobster, and the kind of dried cod that Newfoundland can place on the market when she sets her mind to the task. Make these articles appear necessary on the list of household supplies, and make them appear luxuries as well. Our oils and seal skins and the by-products of the fisheries are par excellence, but the prospective purchaser must be convinced of their quality.

The main purpose of the Exhibition so far as we are concerned is to boost the resources of the country, and if we fail to advertise our wares to the fullest possible extent, we shall have failed to take advantage of the greatest opportunity ever offered, and the money expended will have been wasted.

SEALING NEWS

The messages received from the sealing fleet last night contains nothing of an encouraging nature. All the ships are still jammed, with a few old seals reported in the water. An off-shore wind would be greatly welcomed. The following messages were received last night:

JOB BROS. & CO.

Neptune—Wind E.N.E., drifting away from Gray Islands, towards Horse Island. Ice rafting in some places.

BAINE JOHNSTONE & CO.

Seal—Position eight miles off Gull Island and Cape John, still jammed.

BOWRING BROS.

Ranger—Jammed five miles from pans; thick fog.

SAGONA

Ice tight, ship jammed.

VIKING

In heavy sheet ice, making slow progress north west; no sign, all well.

TO JOB BROS. THIS MORNING:

Thetis—Ship 15 miles W. S. W. Grosis Islands, jammed all day. Old seals in water.

A MESSAGE TO THE MINISTER OF POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS

states that the crews of Viking, Thetis, Neptune, Stella Nova, Ranger, Seal, Sagona, Terra Nova and Eagle were all on board and well.

Train Notes.

Tuesday's west bound express arrived at Port aux Basques 11 a.m.

An express with foreign connections went out at 1 p.m.

The incoming express reached the city at 8:30 a.m.

The train with railway officials on board arrived at 11:15 a.m.

The Carbonar train arrived at 1:10 p.m.

Enquiry Continues

The preliminary enquiry into the charges laid against Joseph Barnstain was continued after the regular court this morning. Mr. M. J. O'Brien was again on the stand and put in a voucher for $172.00 for amount of goods stolen. Up to 1 p.m. the cross-examination by Mr. Jas O'N. Conroy had not concluded.

Wait and See

Shipping.

Schr. J. D. Hays arrived at Belmoram yesterday from sea. S.S. Silvia sails for Halifax and New York at 8 p.m. S.S. Rosalind is due to arrive at New York at 2 p.m. to-day.

Magistrate's Court.

An assault case between two young men residents Upper Battery was dismissed.

An old offender named Joseph Gibbs who has been held on remand was arraigned before Judge Morris this morning charged with (1) being a loose and disorderly person and with indecent exposure. The evidence as submitted by several witnesses showed that the accused has for some time past been a common frequenter of Waterford Bridge Road, begging alms, and terrorizing the whole neighbourhood. Two little children, pupils of Littleale Academy also gave evidence against the accused. They quickly identified the man in court and remembered seeing him near the school on three separate occasions, while the little children were compelled to relate a story of the man's misbehaviour on one occasion. Gibbs who has served numerous terms of imprisonment for the same offence was convicted and sentenced to six months imprisonment with the hardest kind of labor.

Is This Correct?

We are informed that recently about one hundred and twenty cases containing furniture and fittings from the Normal School arrived from abroad. In view of the fact that we have several furniture factories which are quite capable of turning out such equipment equally as good as the imported article, in view of the fact that these factories have had but few orders to keep them going owing to the lack of money in circulation, and in view of the necessity of providing employment by legitimate means, it is not to the credit of the authorities that these orders have gone to other countries. Certain articles no doubt had to be purchased abroad, but that one cent's worth of equipment which can be manufactured locally should be imported is a crying shame.

Smashed Anti-Freezing Hydrant

A sled, on which was loaded a large iron bucket weighing several tons, drawn by a team of four horses, shored near the Royal Stores this forenoon and smashed an anti-freezing hydrant with the result that tons of water flooded the sidewalk and passageway in Job's Cove. The bucket, arriving by the Silvia with other machinery for the Humber operations, is part of the equipment of the immense dry lines used in digging the canal to Deer Lake. Owing to the condition of the street it was impossible for the driver of the team to avoid the accident.

Put the Streets in Shape

To watch a motor car or a sleigh negotiating the troughs and hummocks on Duckworth Street, reminds one of a vessel labouring in a heavy sea. The portion of the street opposite the Crosbie Hotel is only one example of lack of attention given to the thoroughfares by the Council. The ice and silt on Water Street could easily be removed, and the back streets made less objectionable in a short time with the help of a few of the men who are employed on far less remunerative work—from the tax payers point of view—in the rockbeds.

Dangerous Drain

The attention of the Council is called to a drain at the head of Pleasant Street, about opposite the Maternity Hospital. The drain, cut through a four foot deep snow bank, is in a locality where there is much traffic and very little room. Consequently many accidents result. An attempt should have been made to level off the snow.

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES.

ARCTIC EXPLORER OFFERS ASSISTANCE TO LONE SURVIVOR.

SEATTLE, March 20. Ada Blackjack, who survived the strain of life on Wrangal Island, when four white men composing the remainder of the expedition led there by Allan Crawford, Toronto, perished, but who was struck down with tonsillitis in this city, received an offer of help to-day from Stephenson, the Arctic explorer. Mrs. Blackjack said she would accept the offer and try to return to her home in Nome.

DEFENDER OF PARENT ACCIDENTALLY SLAYS HER.

BALTIMORE, March 20. Russell Gibson, sixteen years old, trying to protect his mother from an attack by his father who threatened the woman with a chair, shot the mother dead and put two bullets into the body of her attacker. The boy and his mother were living with the father's sister near their original home, the parents having quarrelled and separated. Yesterday morning Gibson senior forced his way into the house where his wife was at breakfast. Seeing the boy about to shoot his father, Mrs. Gibson rushed between them, and received a bullet through her heart.

WINSTON CHURCHILL DEFEATED.

LONDON, March 20. Winston Churchill, standing as an Anti-Socialist candidate for the Abbey Division of Westminster, lost his election to-day to Otto Nicholson, Conservative, by thirty three votes.

SUBMERGED CREW OF SUBMARINE STILL ALIVE.

TOKYO, March 20. Eighteen men were still living to-day within the submarine 48 sunk yesterday off Saeko naval base in collision with the warship Taisuta. According to despatches the rescuers communicated with those in the submarine by tapping on the shell.

PEERESSES WILL ATTEMPT TO SECURE SEATS IN THE LORDS.

LONDON, March 20. Another attempt to obtain admission of women as members of the House of Lords will be made next week. Members of all shades in the Commons including Lady Astor and the women members will introduce a bill to enable Peeresses in their own right to sit and vote in the Upper House. There are twenty-four Peeresses in their own right in United Kingdom.

SHOCKED OUT OF THEIR SKINS.

LONDON, March 20. Prediction that a miner, James Brown, a Labor M.P., will be appointed as next Lord High Commissioner of the General Assembly of Church of Scotland has shocked the good people of Edinburgh almost out of their skins though it has not yet been substantiated.

IRISH MINISTER OF DEFENCE RESIGNS.

LONDON, March 20. Richard Mulcahy is no longer Minister of Defence of the Free State. He resigned from the Irish Cabinet to-day of his own volition, although it had been decided by the Executive Council to advise President Cosgrave to ask for Mulcahy's resignation. It was officially announced to-night, subject to Dail's approval, that President Cosgrave will assume the portfolio of Minister of Defence.

BELEYA SEEKS FURTHER HONOURS.

ST. JOHN, N.B., March 20. Hilton Belyea, the noted Canadian oarsman and twice Champion of the Dominion, sailed this evening on board the Melita en route to England, where he will compete for the famous Diamond Sculls, and also at Argenteuil, France, for the Olympic sculling crown.

SOVIET ENVOY ASKED TO LEAVE CHINA.

LONDON, March 20. The Chinese Government has ordered the Soviet Envoy in Peking, Mr. Karakhan, to quit China, says a despatch to the Daily Mail from Peking. This action was taken, the despatch adds, because Mr. Karakhan's notes to the Chinese Foreign Office were insulting, one amounting to an ultimatum, it giving China three days to recognize the Soviet Government. The correspondent says the situation is tense.

Died in a Shack

INVESTIGATION ORDERED. The body of the young man Hartrey of Portuguese Cove, Trepassay, which arrived by train from Deer Lake a couple of days ago is being forwarded home to-night by S. S. Walker. According to reports received in the city Hartrey died in a shack at Deer Lake from pneumonia, and but a few yards distant from the hospital. Owing to a protest made by the workmen, who it appears, blame the resident doctor for neglect, an investigation has been ordered by the Justice Department, and Magistrate Scott of Curling has been instructed to proceed to the scene.

A.N.D. Company Explains the Trouble at Grand Falls

In connection with the reported lock-out in Grand Falls, the Prime Minister has handed us the following message for publication:—

GRAND FALLS, Mar. 19. Hon. W. R. Warren, Prime Minister.

Our attention has just been called to an announcement in the public message of eighteenth instant purporting to be a report from Magistrate Fitzgerald to yourself upon the closing down of our mills on Monday the 17th. The statement in the public message is not correct. There was no lock-out. The mills were closed owing to a walk-out of the boiler-house men at very short notice and without submitting their grievance to the management. This resulted in all paper machines being stopped owing to lack of steam. The Company gave the above mentioned men twenty-four hours to choose between resuming their jobs or being paid off. The men resumed work Tuesday afternoon.

Postal Telegraph Reports

La Seie—Wind E., snow and rain, coast blocked with heavy ice, a few old seals seen yesterday along shore.

Nipper's Harbour—Strong N. E. wind with snow thick, unable to see ice conditions, too stormy past few days for men ascertain if any old seals about.

Catalina—Wind N. E. foggy, harbour blocked with ice.

Trellings—Wind N. E., strong fog and rain, bay full ice, several young hoods killed yesterday.

Greenspond—Wind northerly, strong breeze, ice conditions unchanged.

Bonavista—Light N. wind, thick fog.

Wesleyville—Wind and ice conditions unchanged.

Seal Cove—Strong N. E. wind with rain, ice running in bay, lots of old seals, no report of young seals, men unable to get on ice yet; one sealing steamer reported sighted Monday about eight miles from Seal Cove.

Cochman's Cove—Strong N. E. winds with rain, ice light, no seals here but lots old seals seen at Fleur-de-Lys; no report of young seals.

Westport—Wind east with weather dirty, bay full slob, no seals seen here.

Tilt Cove—Strong N. E. wind, with snow, ice about 2 miles off shore, no seals.

Hampden—Bay full ice, strong winds from easterly direction, no seals in vicinity.

PEPYS BEHIND THE SCENES.

March 19th.—A chill, foul day, with much fog and rain. The streets in the worst possible condition, and little hope of seeing them better. Indeed, the letters that Dr. Fraser writes to the news sheets very timely and I like well his suggestion that the men working at the rock sheds would be better employed in cleaning the streets. I did receive to-day a portrait in pencil of Commissioner Walker, which he did autograph for me, mighty fine, and will be a most valuable souvenir of the Enquiry. His report, I learn, takes 60 pages of manuscript, and like to be published Friday. By despatches out of England, news of R. MacDonald, he making himself in a speech, to be a pacifist, which I did know him to be, before, but did little think he would carry it so far as to decrease the standing army, which God knows, is small enough. And what is worse, he abandons the Singapore Naval base, so no station for big ships in the Eastern Seas; and the greatest danger of losing our supremacy of the seas when war breaks out. Little news of the sealers, but still hope that the voyage will be successful. From Mr. McNab comes a blank journal which Colman's, the mustard people, issue, pretty neat. News to-day of the aeroplanes which the Americans do fly around the world, but Lord, if they have the same fortune in this attempt as they did with their Atlantic flight and the blimp which they lost here, they will not get very far. The English flight begins to-morrow, and will, I trust, be successful. All the evening at the Club, the house being in such a state with my wife's spring cleaning of it, that I cannot stay in it.

MINARD

Star Movie To-Morrow

"Smashing Barriers" which begins its engagement at the Star Theatre on Friday is the best William Duncan feature that has been seen in this city for a long time. The thrills and stunts packed into this six reeler are more exciting than any western melodrama shown here has boasted. Duncan has never been seen to better advantage. The role calls for an exhibition not only of boxing, wrestling, rough and tumble fights, horsemanship, high diving and swimming, but all around vigorous, healthy sportsmanship. There is a chase in the picture which for continued suspense and thrilling action outdoes anything ever undertaken.

The drama deals with a youth disowned by his father who goes West and works as a lumberjack in a great logging camp. The camp is owned by Benjamin Cole, the father of the heroine, played by Edith Johnson, who has been seen in so many Duncan thrillers. Cole has been lured to the camp and is held prisoner by crooks who have taken over his timberlands. Duncan as Dan Stevens manages to protect Cole's daughter from the rans and to rescue her father. The story is simple and drives directly from the first reel to its thrilling finish.

The scenes in the lumber camp are exceptionally interesting, because they show glimpses of the great redwood forests of California and how these huge trees are brought down by skilled axemen and shunted into the streams where they float down to the great saw mills.

In addition to the thrilling scenes at the logging camp, Duncan as the hero has taken an oil claim which the villains blow up. This is one of the most striking scenes in the picture, but instead of wrecking the well, as they had plotted, the dynamite breaks loose a gusher.

A splendid cast supports Duncan in "Smashing Barriers," including an old favorite, Joe Ryan, who plays the heavy, Walter Rogers, Vincent Hooper, Slim Cole and Pietro Sosso.

Viagraph has mounted "Smashing Barriers" adequately. The oil well explosion is particularly well directed. There is no doubt but that followers of this popular screen star will be royally entertained at the Star.

Flour For Many Millions Comes From Minneapolis.

Minneapolis, March 10. (A.P.)—Minneapolis maintained its title of "Mill City" in 1923, during which year flour to feed approximately 31,000,000 people, or almost one-third of the population of the United States, was shipped from the mills of the city.

Figures announced by the secretary's office of the Chamber of Commerce show that 54,966 cars, or 15,458,740 barrels of flour were shipped from here during the year 1923. During the millers' unofficial estimate of half a barrel per capita consumption a year, based on previous years' tabulations, the flour shipments total would indicate that about 31,000,000 men, women and children were fed with bread and breadstuffs from the local production.

Totals for 1923 were considerably lower than the 1922 figures, the mills here running much below capacity most of the year. In 1922 60,449 cars containing 17,444,892 barrels were shipped.

The 26 local flour mills have a normal capacity of practically 100,000 barrels flour production a day, but insufficiency of suitable wheat raised in the northwest in recent years has curtailed the operations of the mills.

M. C. L. L.—Fifty-seventh Session, Thursday, March 20th. Open night. The institute will be addressed by Rev. R. F. Fairbairn and A. B. Herring, Esq. K.C. The former will speak on "The Honest Art of Argument," and the latter on "What's the Matter? What's the Cure?" Mr. Bert Gollen will rectify between the addresses. Visitors welcome. mar20.11

The Lost Boy Foley Comes Home

GIRL WHO AMAZED BY PSYCHIC GIFTS FACES GRAPT TRIAL.

(Daily News, New York, Mar. 7.) Air castles built by Miss Eugene Dennis, who has been conducting psychic seances—in New York—occasionally at $25 per seance since her emigration from the West two weeks ago, crumbled yesterday.

Charged with fortune telling and taking money under false pretenses, she must appear in West Side court to answer a complaint sworn out against her before Magistrate Rittenberg by Mrs. Mary A. Foley, 84 Newtown Avenue, Astoria.

Summonses were served on her and her mother, Mrs. E. G. Dennis, at the Hotel Claridge yesterday. Mother and daughter had just ended conferences with one of their staff of press agents when the sleuths appeared.

The Fatal Tipoff. Mrs. Foley, in her complaint, states that she paid Miss Dennis $25 on Feb. 27 after a seance in which Miss Dennis said her son, Thomas Foley, Jr., who had been missing two months from home, was working for an automobile concern in Los Angeles.

The next day young Foley returned home, declaring he had never seen the coast, but had been in Canada. The boy's father said he would not have permitted his wife to consult Miss Dennis if the girl psychic had not been approved by the police department in visits to headquarters.

She Cost 'Em $125. The Foleys consider Miss Dennis's psychic claims exceedingly unwarranted. They spent $125 on telegrams to Los Angeles because of her services. The summons was a distinct shock to the eighteen-year-old girl from Atchison, Kan.

Hereward Carrington, Miss Dennis's manager, told reporters that he immediately telephoned police headquarters to find out what was the big idea.

"Why they're crazy!" exclaimed Carrington.

Miss Dennis, in an adjoining room, was in seclusion.

List to Press Agent. "She's not a good showwoman," one of the press agents explained. "Out west she got $1,500 a week for appearing in theatres only because of the agility of theatrical managers who took her over. She'd flop horribly if she wasn't steered clear of the show."

As an example of the ability of the press agents for the so-called wonder girl came a half hour later.

Miss Dennis in a seance predicted a great career for a motion picture star. A half hour later two pages of type-written copy and a photograph of the seance, kindly furnished by the P.A., were in the hands of newspapermen.

Stuffed Sheep's Heart

By AN OLD MAID.

"I like stuffed sheep's heart with a 'G' because it is good. I like stuffed sheep's heart with an 'H' because it is hot, and I like stuffed sheep's heart with an 'I' because it is inexpensive."

One to each person is the usual allowance: four make a nice little family luncheon. The trimming of the hearts and the removing of the pipes make the cavity that takes the forcemeat. When this has been done they should be well rinsed in two or three tubs of tepid water, and wiped dry.

The Stuffing. This is the stuffing for this unpretentious, yet excellent, savoury: Shred a quarter-pound of suet, grate the rind of a lemon, mix and add a dessertspoonful of chopped parsley, a teaspoonful of lemon-thyme, and salt and pepper to taste; take of breadcrumbs eight ounces, and stir all together well. Bind with two strained, beaten eggs.

Press this forcemeat tight into each heart—it makes sufficient for four—tie it down with twine, spread a lump of butter or dripping on each, and set in a fairly hot oven to bake for thirty minutes. Baste liberally, and presently add a little mushroom ketchup to the gravy.

Mashed Turnips and Potatoes. Serve mashed potatoes and mashed turnips with the hearts, and if you aim at giving special pleasure, a jar of red currant jelly should also grace the table.

SOUTHERN'S NEW DIVIDEND.
 (From Boston News Bureau.)
 The placing of Southern Railway common on a 5% basis may be taken to reflect several things. It comes as the grateful culmination of nearly a generation of patient upbuilding, alike of the property itself and of the region it serves. It seems to bespeak Morgan confidence in the general economic outlook. It is another instance of a more enlightened as well as liberal dividend attitude toward shareholders. Perhaps it may be construed as indicating a future fair and sane treatment of railroads as a whole.

It has been a long chapter in rounding out and strengthening the rail structure that was linked up in the initial Southern Railway merger. Pres. Harrison truly calls the new dividend "a ground of pride to the management," in achieving an ambition held "through many managements." The early shock of European war, in its 1914-15 effects in the days

Wesley Church Literary Class Debate

On Tuesday past an inter-class debate took place between the Wesley Ladies' Star Circle and the Young Men's Literary Class on the resolution "That women have as much right to vote as men." The speakers for the affirmative were Mrs. R. Cross and Misses. Lizzie Butt and Helen Leslie, and for the negative Messrs. W. S. Sparkes, A. Mac G. Morgan and H. Hopkey. The affirmative contended that women equal right to a vote partners in life with men. They further held that democracy claims that every citizen should have a voice in the government of the state, women are citizens, and therefore have an equal right to vote. It was also pointed out that in countries where woman's equal right has been acknowledged with the vote they have proved their intellectual capabilities and good qualities. The negative pointed out that women do not have a right from a purely legal standpoint. Further that the true art of governing is developed and cultivated in men, and that politics is to the men what the art of housekeeping is to the women. Women are necessary to men much as men are necessary to women the welfare of civilization mainly depends upon the good-will between them, and differences in politics would have a tendency to cause grave misunderstandings and demoralize the home life. They refuted the argument that women claimed justice because the freedom and liberty that women enjoy to-day has been due mainly to man's consideration and thought for womanhood. The range of arguments covered the political, social, moral and legal side and the subject was thoroughly and profoundly discussed. On the vote being taken the affirmative won by a fair majority.

Inspection of Railway Made

Mr. H. J. Russell, Manager of the Government Railway, Mr. J. H. Fulmer, Superintendent of Motive Power and Mr. W. J. Joyce, Chief Engineer who have been on a tour of inspection over the railway line for several days past, returned to the city by special car attached to a freight train at 11.15 a.m. The party stepped off at all terminals as far as Corner Brook while en route, and found everything working as smoothly as could be expected at this season of the year. Winter conditions still prevail, particularly along the Topsalls where snow is piled up 10 and 12 feet high in places. The rotary plow is kept operating over this section of the line every day. While the railway officials remained off at Corner Brook arrangements were entered into with the Armstrong-Whitworth Co. regarding the transferring of a full line of equipment to be used in the Humber area. The Railway Management state that this year will be the best in the history of the railroad. Passenger and freight traffic is expected to be very heavy, and every arrangement will be made for the accommodation of the traveling public. Six new passenger cars are now under construction at the railway shops, three of which have been practically completed.

A Prosperous People Can Pay Taxes

An English business man who is thoroughly acquainted with conditions in Canada and who has been watching the campaign of The Financial Post to secure a reduction in Government expenditures declares that the one tax which needs to be carefully watched, is the income tax. His warning to Canada regarding income tax is based on what has been seen in England. If the income tax is allowed to grow in Canada, as it has in England, he says the spending power of the Government departments will become out of all proportion to actual wealth produced by the people; the net amount collected from income tax has no relation to the actual wealth produced by the people—it is just a tax on money as it is circulated. Further regarding the present situation in England, he says: "We are having interesting political developments. I do not know what

Officers Settlement Scheme

A recent Gazette announced the appointment of Capt. Victor L. A. Campbell, R.N., as a Deputy Crown Lands Surveyor. The appointee is an experienced man who came here last year from England with a view to locating a number of English officers' families on the farming sections of the West Coast. He then secured a suitable tract at Spruce Brook and is now there staying at the log cabin and superintending the erection of a dwelling house and barns for himself and also similar erections for his associates, Capt. Neville. The latter was here last year, and is expected to return by the next steamer from Liverpool, bringing with him a number of settlers. The position of Crown Lands Surveyor given Capt. Campbell carries with it no salary and we are informed that under the circumstances the appointment is justifiable.

GIVEN TO ST. PETERSBURG.
 Leningrad, Russia, Feb. 20. (A.P.)—Soviet government authorities who, in tribute to the late Bolshevik premier, Nicolai Lenin, changed the name of Peter the Great's capital from Petrograd to Leningrad, are taking steps to see that the decree is obeyed.
 Within a short time, it is announced, fines will be imposed for letters presented at the postoffice addressed to Petrograd. All newspaper dispatches from this city already carry the Leningrad date.
 A number of other cities have sought to honor Lenin's memory in a similar fashion. Simbirsk, the capital of the province where Lenin was born, has become Leninsk. The administration of Ekaterinoslavl, named in honor of Catherine the Great, has petitioned to be renamed Leninsk. In fact, so many similar petitions have come to the central authorities in Moscow that they have announced none will be granted without considerable deliberation.

When Children Will Not Eat.

Children vary very much with regard to the amount of food required to keep them in good health. If a child is normal weight for his height, has firm limbs, sleeps well, and is full of energy and good spirits, he is obviously eating well, although the quantity of food taken may be small. Children with very large appetites often eat far more food than they can properly digest, and are consequently not nearly so healthy as the small eater who assimilates every ounce of food taken.
 But children who seem genuinely unable to eat are a real anxiety. Want of fresh air is frequently a root cause of chronic lack of appetite. Children who are allowed out very little in winter-time, and while indoors remain in badly ventilated and over-heated rooms, are often unable to eat well.
 Another type of child cannot eat because he is suffering from over-fatigue. Long journeys to and from school may cause this.
 While the ideal regime for normal children is three good meals a day and nothing in between, at the same time there are some children who will not eat more than a very small quantity of food at any one meal. Should such a child be underweight and lacking in vitality it would be desirable to give nourishment little and often until the child is restored to normal health again.
 The mother of a child who is a consistent small eater should make a study of food values in order to plan out meals that will supply the maximum of nourishment with the minimum of bulk.

The Adventures of Bose

A TRUE STORY OF A NEWFOUNDLAND DOG.

(Specially Written For The Family Herald by R. B. POWELL.)

Bose was a Newfoundland dog. His soft, warm hair was a deep jet black with one white spot about the size of a quarter, on his throat. Joy, pain and love were depicted at different times, even though he possessed a black ruff to his mouth—the sign of a pure bred Newfoundland dog—Bose was always ready to make friends. He despised an aristocrat at all times.

Until Bose was six months of age little was known of him, aside from the general conclusion that he had been cruelly treated. One day, in St. John's, Newfoundland, shortly after Bose had his half-year birthday, his life took a change for the better. He was on board a small fishing sloop which was tied up to a larger freighter. Bose was receiving the worst thrashing of his life, from a cruel, drunken fisherman. The dog howled with pain every time the heavy lash fell across his trembling back. The dog had no opportunity to escape as he was chained to the after rail. He had been beaten before, but never so cruelly as this; now he gave up all hopes of living through the torture. The drunken beast seemed tireless in his purpose of beating the dog to death.

The moans and barks of Bose brought the mate of the freighter to the rail with an angry scowl on his face. "Mind your own business," came back the quick retort. The mate slipped over the rail onto the deck of the fishing smack. A few blows straight from the shoulder ended the dispute, after which the mate climbed back on board the freighter with Bose under his arm.

The young captain had been watching the scene with delight from the top deck, and was prepared to meet the first officer with the customary cry, "Good work, Dad, you sure hold on to that right hand punch well for a man of your age. What are you going to do with the dog? "Keep him off course!"

The next day the freighter pulled out for Halifax. There was a new life before Bose, everything was different. The most wonderful of all was the kindness shown to him. The only blow he received was from a deck-hand who paid for his cruelty by a swollen nose administered by the steward. The captain, mates, engineers and the crew joined in to see that Bose received nothing but the best of treatment.

The machinery on the boat caused Bose a great deal of concern. He would lie for hours in the engine-room watching the wheels and pistons in motion, trying to fathom the cause of their movements. Gradually he took everything for granted and wandered about the ship from the fore-castle to the bridge—always a welcome friend.

One warm afternoon, when the steward had given Bose his fifth bone for the day, the mate came along to the after deck. "I wonder what Bose would do if you were to throw his bone on to the boat-deck?" I don't know, but I'd bet dollars to doughnuts that he would find a way to get it," replied the steward. There was no way to the boat deck, which was ten feet above the main deck, except by a single ladder. This ladder had round straight rungs placed about 12 inches apart. It was difficult even for a man to climb the ladder, and it looked impossible for a dog. The mate picked up the bone and threw it far back on the boat deck. Bose immediately ran to the foot of the ladder and tried to ascend. He could get three legs off the deck alright, but when he tried to place the fourth on the bottom rung, he would topple backwards on the deck looking exceedingly crestfallen, but as determined as ever to succeed. After a fruitless attempt he walked back a few paces from the foot of the ladder and stood revolving in his mind a new system of attack.

He now approached with a new look in his intelligent eyes. He reached as high as he could with one of his front paws. Then, instead of keeping his head parallel with the rest of his body, he thrust it behind the rung on which he had placed his paw. This kept him from falling backwards until he had placed all four paws on the ladder. He then thrust himself by the back of his neck while he reached up for the next rung with one of his front paws. Cautiously he removed his head and placed it behind the same rung. He continued this until he reached the top of the ladder and won his bone. After a little practice, he became so proficient that he was able to climb a rope ladder with ease.

Many were the attempts to steal Bose in the different ports at which the boat was docked. On one trip to Newfoundland, Bose was stolen and locked up in an old shed. But the dog immediately set to work to chew and tear his way to freedom. It took him some time to do this, but after a day's incessant labor he emerged from the dark shed into the daylight. He frequented the docks until the freighter made its return voyage and then was welcomed by one and all as one of the crew.

When Bose was twelve months old he had a new experience thrust upon him. The ship was at the dock in Halifax when the mate attached a collar and chain to him while the crew stood round the pair voicing their opinions: "Oh! Come on; let him stay old man." "Don't send him away mate," coaxed the crew. But the mate was set in his ways. "No, I am going to send him as a present to my son."

The next day Bose was shipped away on the train, leaving a sorrowful crew who all felt as though their best friend was going forever. For the first time in his life Bose set up a protest. He became so morose and sullen that the baggage man left him severely alone in the corner, for he said, "I'm taking no chances with that savage brute." In the late afternoon the train pulled up at a flag station and Bose was unloaded. A young man of twenty awaited him at the station. He led the hot and tired dog a distance of two miles to the village, which was nestled between two hills on the St. Mary's Bay.

At sight of the water the dog began to strain at his chain, for he longed to get into the water and let himself be tossed about on their cool, refreshing crests. "Alright Old Top, I understand, we'll both go in; I am almost dead myself for a dip on the ocean wave," remarked the young man.

It was certainly refreshing to be in the water after such a hot, tiresome journey. All thought of his companion was gone in his delight of the swim. A sudden splash caused Bose to look around in time to see the young man disappear below a large wave. This was something new to Bose—that wasn't the correct way to swim according to his rules. Something must be wrong. It may be that his new-found friend was drowning. Anyway he would investigate. He swam instantly toward the spot where his young man had disappeared. He reached there as the young man rose from the water—he appeared to be in distress. It was no doubt now but what Bose would pull his friend to land and safety. At any rate he must not allow him to drown. He swam directly toward his companion with a worried look in his eyes. The young man was hastened to the wharf where he remained until the dog had completed his swim.

The two friends now went to the house, here Bose found something real interesting. As he turned to walk into the orchard he met a feisty creature which gave a "cluck," whenever Bose drew near it. This amused the newcomer and awakened his curiosity. He approached the contraption with a wondering look. What was it? What was it made of? What would happen if he should slap it? As quick as a flash the black paw reached out and the next minute feathers were flying in all directions. "What fun—this thing was just stuck together to be knocked to pieces. A second pivot-blow brought more feathers. A third brought a dozen more of the same kind of creatures around Bose. The young man heard the commotion and came out to investigate. Bose left off his enjoyment and ran up to his young master trying to explain the excitement and endeavoring to get his friend to join in the sport. Great was his surprise to find that he had been doing that which he should not have done.

Bose's sense of humor led him into many difficulties. A few weeks later he found a hive of field-bees. Their buzzing made him think they wanted to play, but it ended up in a war. The size was in favor of Bose, but the numbers count, and for fifteen minutes Bose fought a losing fight. But at last he hit on a happy idea. He approached the hive until he was approached by one lone bee. He would then retreat with the little warrior in full pursuit. Suddenly the large combatant would turn quickly and snap at the solitary bee, the poor unlucky warrior disappearing within the laughing jaws of Bose. After an hour of this kind of warfare Bose had completely annihilated the colony. He then turned towards home, stopping every few minutes to drive his swollen nose in the dust and roll over in the cool dust to ease the pain of his wounds.

After remaining in the country for a year, Bose was sent to a big city here he took over the occupation of a watchman on one of the docks. Very little was stolen from the wharf after Bose got the idea of what his duties consisted of. To-day our friend is engaged as a watchman in a private home in one of the suburbs of Boston. His record is so good that there is no doubt but what he will retain his present position for the remainder of his life.

Peer's Life Policies

(By a Physician.)

It is by no means uncommon for doctors to be consulted by women who have bought and worn coats with dyed fur collars; and the reason for their doing so is that they have found that, after wearing these coats, an acute inflammation of the skin, or dermatitis, has been set up, not only in the neck but frequently also in the face.

This same form of dermatitis has been noticed after the application of some hair dyes, and the cause is the same whether the human hair is dyed or a dyed fur is worn next to the skin.

The basis of these dyes is a substance known as paraphenylenediamine, which while it gives a perfect and fast color to fur and hair, also deposits on the fur and hair a poisonous irritant. Hence the dermatitis.

In the process of dyeing, chemical reactions continue after the fur or hair has attained the desired color, and a substance known as "Bandrowski's base" is formed, and this adheres to the fur or hair.

It is to this substance that all the trouble which follows has been ascribed.

Ahmad, the poisonous and irritant effects of this by-product which result from the use of paraphenylenediamine has been recognized. So much so that in Saxony and other parts of Germany the use of paraphenylenediamine has been prohibited as a hair-dye, as it has also in Paris, while in the United States importation has been prohibited.

In England, however, the use of this dye is permitted without any restrictions.

The furs most frequently dyed are rabbit skins; and it would seem that these skins are prepared, dyed, and dressed abroad, usually in Germany and Belgium, and then imported into this country. In addition to paraphenylenediamine, another substance known as metaphenylenediamine is used, and this also is deleterious.

Surely the time has arrived when the public should be protected against injuries resulting from the wearing of these furs? This protection may take the form of prohibiting altogether the importation of dyed furs or by insisting that the dyers—that is, the trade—remove all the poisonous substances from these furs before they are imported.—Ex.

DRUGS.

The residue of the estate after payment of a number of bequests and annuities was left in trust to his great-nephew for life with remainder to his children.

The present Lord Armstrong took an active interest in a number of ventures that were unsuccessful.

He was one of the creditors in the case of Francis Hastings Medhurst, who was found shot in a Croydon hotel in 1909, and his proof of debt in the bankruptcy proceedings amounted to £53,642.

He was at one time convinced that Lemoine, who was convicted in 1909 for defrauding Sir Julius Wernher of £64,000 in connection with a diamond-making "secret," was genuine.

He was a director of the Pyrenees Electrical Supply, Ltd., a company formed in 1907 at the time when Lemoine was arranging for a "diamond factory" to be built at Argelles in the Pyrenees.

DRUGS.

The undeniability of his association with Lemoine's undertaking was the subject of comment in financial journals before the exposure of the fraud.

Lord Armstrong also interested himself financially in a number of syndicates, including an early wireless telegraphy undertaking, a drug and drink cure enterprise, mining and oil schemes.

Duchess of Atholl Now Member of Parliament
NOTED FOR DEMOCRATIC MANNER.

London, Feb. 20. (A.P.)—Rubbing elbows with plain folks, is nothing new in the life of the Duchess of Atholl, who, from the angle of aristocracy, outranks all the other members of the new House of Commons. The wife of a soldier, she nursed the wounded near the firing lines in two wars, that with the Boers in South Africa and the more recent war. At home in Scotland she has a big say in all that has to do with public education and, through her social welfare activities during many years, has gained the reputation of the "under dog."

The duchess, like Lady Astor, is petite and has a slight penchant for ropes of pearls to adorn the neck. But she is not so vivacious nor so girlish in physical contour as the Virginia-born viscountess. For one thing she is older. She was born 50 years ago, the eldest daughter of a Scottish knight, Sir James H. Ramsey. A few months after her marriage in 1899 to John George Stewart-Murray, eldest surviving son of the then Duke of Atholl, the Boer war began. Her husband was ordered out and the next June she followed him to South Africa. There she ministered to the hospitalized "tom-mies" and was especially kind to the Scottish Horse, and irregular corps raised by her husband, then a marquis, in South Africa. Returning from the war, the duchess began writing "The Military History of Perthshire," which she did with such thoroughness that it required five years to complete the two volumes. In the world war she followed her husband again, this time to Gallipoli with the Scottish Horse, and then to Egypt, where she aided in Red Cross activities.

Despite her work as a leading member of the Perthshire Education Authority and her labors with the poor of the Highlands and Lowlands, and the organizing of nursing associations throughout Perthshire, which embraces more than 1,600 square miles, the duchess dipped into politics with ardor several years ago. In the elections of January and December, 1910, when the Marquess of Tuillardin contested the constituency, she was his chief of staff, speaking and canvassing almost daily. This year, when she stood for Parliament herself, she got in by the slim majority of 500 in a district that had 25,000 voters. But her performance was very notable, not only because for the first time it broke through the traditional Scottish opposition to women in politics, but because she brought her constituency over to Conservatism, turning out a Liberal, who had been returned unopposed in the election of 1922.

Water Snakes Board Vessel.

Vancouver, B.C. (C.P.)—Thousands of green water snakes swimming in vast schools near the Great Barrier Reef, off Australia, were reported by the crew of the British ship Eastway, which arrived here recently. But the vessel's captain had a still more weird experience to relate. When he anchored in the Straits of Macassar, he stated, hundreds of green water snakes actually swarmed up the anchor chains and slithered over the rail onto the decks. Their numbers were legion, he asserted, and the crew retreated to the cabins, leaving the deck to the reptiles which even twined their way up the rigging. Eventually the wind dropped, the tropic sun turned the iron decks into frying pans and the invading hosts evacuated the ship.

Helps Solve the Menu Problem

CARNATION Milk costs about the same as ordinary milk. But think of its convenience, its purity and its richness! Serve just as it comes from the can in place of cream for coffee, fruits and cereals. For all milk purposes add a little more than an equal amount of water. Carnation keeps indefinitely in the can until opened and for several days after opening if properly stored, so there is no waste. It adds richness and flavor to any dish.

Carnation is just pure fresh milk, evaporated to double richness, kept safe by sterilization. Order several tall (16 oz.) cans or a case of 48 cans from your grocer.

Try this recipe and write for the Free Carnation Recipe Book containing many others just as delicious.

CHOCOLATE BLANC MANGE: ¼ teaspoon salt, 2 cups Carnation Milk, 2 oz. unsweetened chocolate, ¼ cup water, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 2½ cups water, ¼ cup cornstarch. Thoroughly mix 2 cups of the water with the Carnation Milk; pour into the double boiler and bring to a boiling point. Mix the cornstarch, sugar and salt; dilute with the remaining ½ cup of water. Add to the first mixture, stirring constantly. Add the melted chocolate, stirring occasionally until mixture thickens. Cook fifteen minutes. Add flavoring; mould, chill and serve with whipped Carnation Milk.

MEET McLACHLAN AT C.N.R. STATION AND SANG "RED FLAG."

Deposed U.M.W. Secretary, Released from Dorchester on Ticket-of-Leave, Arrives Home—Brief Welcome Tendered at Steelworkers' Hall.

James B. McLachlan, former secretary-treasurer of District 26, United Mine Workers who has been released from Dorchester penitentiary on ticket-of-leave, where he had been serving a sentence of two years for seditious libel, arrived in the city recently. The deposed officer was met at the railway station by former vice-president Alex. E. McIntyre of Glace Bay, and some 60 or 70 of McLachlan's supporters from the colliery districts.

The mining town delegation arrived on two special tram cars, but they were a few minutes late to make connections with the express, and were not at the depot when McLachlan got off the express. They left the special cars at the car barns and proceeded down the C.N.R. tracks as far as Prince Street, headed by two pipers and one or two vocalists who sang the "Red Flag." The delegation proceeded up Prince Street to the Steelworkers' hall, where Mr. McLachlan was welcomed. Among the speakers were Foreman Ways, M.P.P., and Alderman M. A. McKenzie. The former Secretary of the U.M.W. had very little to say beyond expressing his thanks to his friends for their welcome. Shortly after the contingent left on two special cars for Glace Bay, where McLachlan was welcomed at the Savoy theatre by about 1,000 miners, most of whom belonged to the colliery night shift.

LOOSEN UP THAT COLD WITH MUSTEROLE

Have a jar of Musterole handy. The moment a cold starts use it freely. Just apply this clean white ointment with your fingers over the congested parts. You will immediately feel a warm tingle as it penetrates the pores, followed by a soothing cooling sensation and quick relief. Made of pure oil of mustard and other simple ingredients of well-known medicinal value, it is not blister. Many doctors and nurses recommend Musterole not only for colds but in cases of bronchitis, sore throat, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, cramps, neuralgia and congestion. Taken in time it may prevent pneumonia. There is nothing just like Musterole or nearly so good for any of the above ailments.

Golf Clubs for Women Only

TORONTO, Ont., March 10—(Canadian Press)—The gentle cynic on the Toronto Star who writes about the foibles of her sex has found a topic in a proposed Golf Club "for ladies only." She doesn't think it will have many members. She can see why men might be hampered by women when they wished to express themselves freely about the course of their ball—but the woman who takes her golf frivolously are both equally at home in male society. Masculine praise cheers the heart of a good woman player and masculine smiles flutter the heart of the poor player.

"It is interesting to speculate as to an ideal golf course for women only. Just as they are fond of four deuces wild in a game of poker, so they might insist on wearing high French heels on a golf green. That would make a really sporting game. There would be no need for hazards that provide long absences from the fairway and give golf couples opportunity for flirtation. The ideal woman's course would be a level plain. Every woman would wish to keep every other woman in sight all the time."

Brain Workers

WARNED TO EXERCISE MODERATELY.

HARRISBURG, Pa., March 12.—The violence and duration of exercise may cause a person to become stimulated, fatigued or exhausted, according to Colonel Edward Martin, former state commissioner of health. Dr. Martin said each individual must decide the amount of exercise to be taken, pointing out that what may be exhausting to one will be stimulating to another.

"Stimulating exercise is brief in duration," Dr. Martin asserted. "It leaves the one who takes it feeling more supple, active and better prepared for sustained effort, either mental or physical. This form of exercise should be taken at least once a day by all brain and indoor workers. It should be continued no longer than five minutes, and should be supplemented by deep breathing. The feeling after it has been taken is the best index as to how much should be taken."

"Fatiguing exercise leaves the one who takes it tired and languid, mentally and physically; hungry for meals and sleep. It is good for the brain and indoor worker on his vacation, but it is not good for the brain worker when busy with his problems. "Exhausting exercise leaves the one who takes it dead tired, irritable, without appetite and sleeping heavily or fitfully, with an all in feeling on setting up in the morning. It is not good, even for the trained young athlete."

Business Builders

"Business First Principles," by A. F. Shepherd (Business Builders, Ltd.), contains the following most interesting quotations from great authors:—

"There are fewer students of men than of geometry.—Pascal.
We must contrive a little to assimilate to their character. We must gravitate toward them, if we expect that they should approach toward us.—Burke.
When observations are drawn from so many particulars as to become certain and indubitable, these are jewels of knowledge.—Dr. Watts.

In ancient days the most celebrated precept was "Know thyself"; in modern times it has been supplanted by "Know thy neighbour."—Dr. Johnson.

Men must decide on what they will not do, and then they are able to act with vigour in what they ought to do.—Mencius.
To become an able man in any profession, there are three things necessary—nature, study, and practice.—Aristotle.

Each has his special talent. . . . The one prudence in life is concentration.—Emerson.

He that has complex ideas, without particular names for them, would be in no better case than a bookseller who had volumes that lay unbound and without titles, which he could make known to others only by showing the loose sheets.—Locke.

Ideas go booming through the world louder than cannon. Thoughts are mightier than armies. Principles have achieved more victories than horsemen and chariots.—W. M. Paxton.

To express the most difficult matters clearly, and everything intelligibly, is to strike coin out of pure gold.—Geibel.

King Tut's Tomb is Re-Opened to Visitors

LUXOR, Egypt, Mar. 7.—(By Canadian Press.)—The re-opening of the tomb of Tut-ank-Amen yesterday for inspection by some 200 visitors, guests of the Egyptian government, was preceded by the picturesque ceremony, following the custom in the days of the Pharaohs, of sacrificing two bulls in the centre of the tomb.

Millionaire Sails South to Seek for Morgan's Treasure

New York.—(Canadian Press.)—Archer H. Huntington, wealthy patron of arts and letters, and his former Anna Vaughan Hyslop sculptor, have gone to the Barbados and to the West Indian Islands, equipped for a two years' cruise, according to the Morning Post, which intimates that the Huntingtons have gone to seek a $50,000,000 treasure in the South Seas. Several persons who sought the treasure unsuccessfully in the schooner Genesee, two years ago, were quoted as declaring that Mr. Huntington had gone to Cocco's Island, where Captain W. L. Morgan was believed to have buried it in 1890.

Bar Associations to be Banqueted at Guildhall

LONDON, March 10 — (Canadian Press)—The Lord Mayor and Corporation of London have resolved according to the Canadian and American members of the Bar who are visiting London this summer, a state banquet in the Guildhall, on the line of the famous banquet held every 50th of November when the new Lord Mayor takes office.

Suggestions are still under consideration for the opening of the great meeting of lawyers from these countries to take place in Westminster Hall. It is suggested amidst these historic associations the guests could be received by the Lord Chancellor and other eminent English Jurists who would be assisted by Canadian Judges, the Canadian Bar Association being joint hosts with the English Bar of the American visitors. At the present moment the number of visitors of the American Bar is fully expected to exceed one thousand.

World Famed Men Often Classed As Dullards in School.

Heidelberg, Feb. 19. (A.P.)—German historians delving into the distant past have compiled a list of some of the "Peek's Bad Boys" and the "Tom Sawyers" of Europe who became world figures in achievements of various kinds and especially on the battlefield.

Napoleon stands first, not that he was a particularly bad boy, but because of his campaigns and accomplishments which brought him everlasting fame. Napoleon, it is recorded, was always a constant source of annoyance to his teachers, and when he was a military academy student he was known as one of the most stupid young men in his or any of the other classes.

One of Napoleon's opponents in war in later years, the Duke of Wellington, was known as a lazy youngster, and in his school days his thoughts always appeared to be pre-occupied with matters other than books or study. General Blucher was another who, according to German custom, was known as a "last place" pupil, one of the class relegated to the rear seats in the school room because of their unwillingness to learn. Blucher hated to employ himself in the class room, and was particularly adverse to learning his A B C's. It was years even before he was able to write his own name.

Charles Darwin never cared much for his school room tasks, "but always appeared more interested in birds and animals and things in the great outdoors, and was known among the other youngsters as having a weakness for chasing every cat or dog in sight."

Isaac Newton was another "last place" pupil. Nelson, the British naval hero, while not exactly a bad boy in school, is listed as having no talents at all, and even below the average in his classes. Oliver Goldsmith did not like school at all, and Lord Robert Clive, statesman and general, as a boy was the despair of all his teachers. After he had been expelled from four schools, his father in desperation sent him on a long cruise to the East where eventually he founded the empire of British India.

To the chemical world of Germany the name of Von Liebig ranks with that of Thomas Edison and electricity in America. Most of the school days of Von Liebig were spent in the back seats, and this has been one of the favorite stories of the German school children for several generations.

Vanities for Women

Clasp-Around Styles—Beauty's Diet. New materials are every bit as interesting as new clothes. A delightful black satin crepe will be seen in the spring collections. It is shiny and smooth on one side and dull on the other. A tunic frock of this material made of the shiny side uses the reverse for a chemise-sleeved blouse beneath or a box-pleated skirt will have a slim jumper-blouse made from the dull side.

Clasp-Around Fashions. The fashion for clasping things round us and fastening them at the side has evolved a new line for underwear. Pettis and other "undies" now fasten down one side. Corsets, too, have come into line, and lace up at the side, so that nothing interferes with that flat straight look back and front so essential to the present-day tube frocks.

Getting Thin Quickly. Women whose figures are the despair of themselves and their dress-makers are getting quite enthusiastic over the milk and potato cure. It entails no irksome exercises on draughty floors and before over-open windows, nor need one develop a passion for the succulent lemon on the irresistible baked apple. All you need do is have a milk and potato day—once, twice or three days a week, or, if you are a real disciplinarian and mean to do the thing thoroughly, every other day. On your non-dieting days you can eat and drink without any restrictions. The joy of this cure lies in the fact that it enables one to get thin quickly without that haggard look which under-feeding often brings. But the milk must be taken cold, the potatoes simply cooked, and no "snacks" of any description allowed. An All-Milk Day.

A certain beautiful actress whom no one, not even her perfervid admirers, could call slender, wanted to train down for a particularly energetic part. So she went on the milk and potato cure for some weeks, taking it on alternate days, and her appearance on the first night of the play won the amazement of her friends. There are others who have an all-milk day regularly once a week or fortnight for the sake of their nerves and complexions as much as their figures.

Tim Mulcahey on St. Patrick's Day

A STORY TOLD BY A 14-YEAR-OLD BOY AT A SOCIABLE IN THE PRESBYTERIAN HALL ON ST. PATRICK'S NIGHT.

Perhaps you would like to hear a little about Tim Mulcahey's experience on St. Patrick's Day.

Well, Tim's good wife sent him down town on St. Patrick's morning to make a few purchases, as she was expecting company in the afternoon. Well, dinner time came, but Tim didn't. Two, three and four o'clock came, but no Tim. It was nearly five o'clock when Mr. Mulcahey was sighted from the front door, where his wife had been on the lookout for an hour or two. He had his hat slightly tilted on one side of his head; his eyes had a vacant stare as if he had lost his memory, and his step seemed unsteady.

Now the main thing that caught the keen eye of Mrs. Mulcahey was that Tim had no parcels, and she at once began to wonder what became of the five dollars she had given him.

Bridget Mulcahey was a very careful woman. She always kept an account of her home expenses, entering every article with its cost in a book kept for that purpose. Shortly after Tim's arrival the following enquiry took place:

"Well, Tim, and where have you been all day?"

"I really have no recollection."

"Did you make the purchases?"

"Not to my knowledge."

"Of course you still have that $5.00 I gave you?"

"No, I have not then."

"And what did you do with it?"

"I really have no conscious recollection."

"Timothy Mulcahey, you know this is too bad. I try to be as careful as possible, and I enter every dollar I receive and expend in this little book. What are we going to do about this Five Dollars?"

"I'll have to give you an I.O.U. for it."

"Your I.O.U. would be like your promise on going down town."

"Then I'll give you a cheque."

"That would be useless. But will you, Mr. Mulcahey, please tell me what account I am to charge it to?"

"Tim at once seemed to have an idea, so with a merry twinkle in his eye he said: 'Don't worry, good wife, but charge it to Pitt Props or the Model Farm.'"

Indians Prosper

UNDER BRITISH ELECTION SYSTEM.

VICTORIA—(Can. Press)—Among the most progressive Indians of the North American Continent are those in some of the settlements of British Columbia, particularly in Graham Island and the Naas River District. By the Indian Act of 1906, provision was made for the granting of village councils to those settlements sufficiently advanced to take advantage of the powers conferred by the Act.

Since councils were established in Port Simpson, Metlakatla, Altnash, Massett and Skidgate, the Indians of those places, states W. E. Ditchburn, Chief Inspector of Indian affairs, have made remarkable progress in managing their own municipal affairs. The powers of these councils, while limited, and subject to the final approval of the Superintendent-General, are sufficiently extensive to allow the Indian Councilors wide scope for local improvements.

Elections are held once a year, generally in January, and the Chief and Board of Councilors are elected by ballot or by open vote, by the Indian residents. The councilors, among other powers, can pass by-laws for construction of school houses, council houses and other buildings for the use of Indians on the reserve. They can construct and maintain roads, bridges, ditches, and fences, and install electric light and power, and raise money for these and any other purposes; and have power to appoint constables and erect jails.

These responsibilities have engendered an increasing regard for peaceable conduct and the promotion of public improvements. Port Simpson, formerly a fortified post of the Hudson's Bay Company, is now a flourishing Indian village of about 700 Indians and about 100 whites. The town has a postoffice, government telegraph office, well equipped general hospital, churches and public schools and is the outfitting port for the fishermen, trappers and gas boats of the coast. The Indian council installed an electric lighting system, generate their own power and run the entire business. They have also opened up a public playground. The same can be said of other Indian villages and towns in the north. The neat dwellings and well kept gardens of the Indians are frequently commented upon by visitors.
