Dodge Brothers Set New Record

Deliveries and Production Exceed Best Previous Week in History.

Dodge Brothers have been establishing new high records continuously for several months, as compared with similar periods for previous years, but the record of the week ending April 11 is the best in the company's history. With retail deliveries aggregating more than 7,000, an average of more than 1,300 each production day, the best previous week was surpassed by several hundred cars. New retail orders exceeded the corresponding week of 1924 by 1,000, or approximately 18.7 per cent.

Although Dodge Brothers Motor Cars are now being built at the rate of 1,100 a day, both deliveries and new orders are some 200 a day in excess of production.
"Had dealers' stocks permitted, the number of deliveries for the record week would have been even greater," said John A. Nichol, Jr., Vice-President in Charge of Sales. "It is not a spurt, but a steady, heartful climb."

CHAPTER XIII.

Her heart sank within her, but she bore a brave face and acquiesced with a smile. How could she confess her groundless fears and wild fancies to Sir Ralph, much less to Mr. Besant?

Dr. Bromwell called the next morning with Dr. Morecroft and prescribed a powder, which, as the nearest chemist's was five miles away, he was obliged to make up himself.

He stayed to luncheon, charmed Sir Ralph with his fund of information, and lulled Lillian's fears to rest with a respectful yet dignified courtesy which seemed natural to him.

The second day Lillian was weaker, the third too weak to leave the house. Sir Ralph looked alarmed.

The two doctors consulted. Mr. Besant, not one whit less noisy, fidgeted about the hall, and worried everybody.

The next day an ugly rumor got about, how no one knew, to the effect that an epidemic had broken out in the nearest village.

Sir Ralph, filled with fears for his pale-faced, ailing darling, was for rushing away with her to the sea coast.

But Dr. Bromwell feared, he declared, that Miss Melville's state of health made removal from the house impossible.

Two days passed. Lillian was confined to her room. Mrs. Williams was shut out by Dr. Bromwell's orders, and Miss Lucas installed as nurse.

"Miss Lucas," said the new doctor, "is younger, stronger, consequently more fitted for the task."

In the evening of that second day Sir Ralph stole upstairs, and entered Lillian's room.

He found her sitting by the fire, enveloped in shawls, lost in a reverie. He stood looking at her for a few minutes, and his heart sank within him. She was pale, thinner, and there was a deep piece of black velvet, to which was attached an ebony cross, around her neck. That strip of mourning told him volumes. "My darling," he said, going up to her softly.

"Papa!" she exclaimed, looking round, with a low cry of joy and a flush, that, alas! soon died away. "I am so glad you have come, so glad they said I was not to see you. Oh, papa, let me—"

Before she could finish Miss Lucas stole in quietly, as usual, and at her heels Dr. Bromwell.

Under some pretense he got the baronet from the room, followed him to the hall, and there, with proper gravity, told him he must not see his daughter again.

"Sir!" said the troubled father. "Why not?"

"She is very ill, I regret to say," said the doctor, fixing his dark eyes upon his agitated face. "Pray be calm, Sir Ralph. I have had news. The epidemic has spread to the village; two children have just fallen victims, and several others are lying ill. I cannot conceal from you longer that I fear Miss Melville—"

Sir Ralph uttered an awful cry, and shut out the light with his two hands. The doctor led him to the study and seated him in a chair.

He was trembling visibly, and no doubt to calm and strengthen him, the doctor mixed a draught and bade him drink it.

Sir Ralph, half unconsciously, did so, and listened with more composure to meet that which he had dreaded.

Lillian, said Dr. Bromwell, had caught the epidemic. It was terribly infectious and Sir Ralph must not approach even the apartment. Mr. Besant and all visitors must be forbidden the house, and Miss Lucas, with the two doctors, was the only person allowed in the sick room.

Sir Ralph listened like one stupefied. Dr. Bromwell administered another draught and retired.

At night he returned with Dr. Morecroft, and found that Sir Ralph had gone to bed feeling very unwell.

"Ah!" said the new doctor, looking at the old one significantly. "Pray was Sir Ralph ill?"

"Yes," said the valet, "and complained of great giddiness and stupefaction."

"My dear sir, I think you had better see him at once, while I visit Miss Melville."

At last it was announced that Sir Ralph and his beautiful daughter were lying ill with the epidemic and that no visitors were to be allowed to pass the lodge.

lover. "Don't be all day, the cob won't stand long."

Old Jack shook his head. "Can't open the gates, Master Besant," he replied, without taking his hands from his capacious pockets.

"Can't open the gates!" echoed Mr. Besant, with astonished impatience. "Why not? What's the matter with them?"

"Nothin's the matter with the gates, but some've very much the matter with Sir Ralph and missie," said the old man, sorrowfully.

Mr. Besant's face grew dark. "Open the gates," said he, peremptorily. "I'll ride up to the house and see to this!"

But old Jack shook his head stolidly. "Doctor's orders, Mr. Besant," said he. "Master and Miss Lily have got the fever, and it's catching, you know."

Mr. Besant turned very pale. He had just heard of the death of two of his grooms as he left the Towers yard; he had passed a cottager's funeral on his way, and met the undertaker's men coming for preparations for another.

Old Jack saw the palpable fear and smiled grimly. "You won't go and catch the happy-demic, would ye, Mr. Besant?" said he.

"No, that is, er—Lady Besant," faltered the coward, wondering whether he was in any danger even there—the wind was blowing from the house.

"No, just so, Lady Besant may catch it," muttered Jack, sarcastically. "Better go away, Mr. Besant; better go away, sir."

"I really think you're right, Jack," faltered Mr. Besant. "It would be foolhardy to rush into danger. Got the fever, both of them! Heaven bless me! This is fearful!"

And he turned his horse's head and rode slowly away, leaving Jack gazing after him with an unutterable expression of contempt and disgust.

The entrance gates could be seen from Lillian's bedroom window, and from that vantage place Dr. Bromwell had witnessed the summons, the refusal and the retreat. A wicked, sarcastic smile lit up his strange face and he turned and beckoned with his hand to Miss Lucas, who was sitting by the bed.

"Look," he whispered, "where the ardent lover rides—fit to break his neck, as if the very plague were at his heels."

"One idiot out of the way," murmured the other in response. "He always was a coward."

"Ah!" responded the doctor, glancing at the door.

When Dr. James Holleran announced the birth of a boy, Chaplin was the first to rush into the room. He knelt by his wife's side and tears came to his eyes.

"This is the happiest moment of my life," he said.

The news that the comedy king had secretly married his school girl leading lady in Mexico last November 25th, came as a distant shock to the film capital. Gossipy tongues began to wag and everyone wondered what poor Pola Negri, who had just broken her engagement to Chaplin, would think of the marriage.

Wits poked fun at Charlie and his "babe bride."

ing at the bed and lowering his musical voice to a whisper. "Is she asleep, Kate?"

Miss Lucas nodded. "Yes, and has been so all the morning."

He nodded and looked out thoughtfully. "Look," he said, suddenly, pointing out again, "there is another funeral."

"That makes the tenth this week," said the quiet governess.

"Yes," he replied. "Fate has dealt us all the winning cards. Who could have foreseen that our work would have been made so easy for us, that a decade of bad drainage and unhealthy living dens should aid in a climax so happy for us?"

The cold, gray eyes had closed with a slight shudder, which although he stood behind her, the doctor noticed.

"Well?" he said, quickly, almost sternly. "Do you shrink from the work?"

"No," she answered, vehemently. "What is it to me that a hundred paupers go to their graves if your will be done? Shall I shrink now that we are on the brink of success, when through all the weary months of your absence I waited, and waited, and waited patiently?"

She had drawn a little closer as she spoke and laid one hand pleadingly upon his arm.

Without looking at her he let his own hand fall upon her shoulder in a pitying, almost contemptuous caress, such as he might have given to a favorite hound, and answered:

"You say right, Kate. Now we are on the brink of success, only these two stand between our purpose, and they are—"

He made a gesture with his hand as if moving such slight obstacles away with a puff of air. "A few days longer and we reach the consummation. Patiently! Ay, we have both waited patiently. But there are two things that nerve me, Kate—love and revenge. I would wait another century for my revenge, and you—"

Son Born to Noted Comedy Star

MRS. CHAPLIN PRESENTS CHARLIE WITH SIX-POUND BOY.

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., June 29.—The birth of Charles Spencer Chaplin, Jr., son and heir of Charles Chaplin, famous screen comedian, was officially announced here Sunday.

The information was made public at the Chaplin studios where it was said the youngster weighed six and three-quarter pounds.

Mrs. Chaplin, the former Lita Grey, was reported doing well at the Chaplin home, Beverly Hills.

The Chaplins were married last November at Empalme, Mexico.

Anxiously awaiting the news outside the 18-year-old mother's bed chamber were Chaplin, Mrs. Lillian Spicer, the wife's mother, and W. E. Curry, her grandfather.

When Dr. James Holleran announced the birth of a boy, Chaplin was the first to rush into the room. He knelt by his wife's side and tears came to his eyes.

Older Than Oxford

The rural beauty-spot which inspired Gray's "Elegy," probably the most widely read poem in the language.

RICHARD HUDNUT THREE FLOWERS COMPACT With Puff and Mirror Meets the requirements of those wishing an individual box of Rouge or Powder. Supplied in all Popular Shades.

usage, has recently been saved from the activities of the builder. But now another "link with the past" is in danger.

This is Durham Castle, the west side of which standing on the steep, sloping banks of the Wear, is now said to be in danger of slipping down into the river. This danger, however, can be averted if the necessary work is undertaken in time, and an appeal is being made for funds to save what is acknowledged to be one of the finest monuments of of mediæval times in the country. For over ninety years the castle has been part of the University of Durham, but it stood for long centuries before that. As seen from the west it dates from the year 1280, and the hall, which is specially threatened, was built long before any of the existing halls of the Oxford or Cambridge colleges.

It appears that the western front of the castle, which was thought to be built on solid rock, has really a much less secure foundation. The walls rest on a thin layer of broken freestone, below which there is nothing but marly shale for a depth of approximately twenty-eight feet. The weight of the walls and the tresses of the hall, which stand on most on the verge of the bank, are crushing this yielding mass outwards towards the river.

TO EXPECTANT MOTHERS

Letter From Mrs. Ayars Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helped Her

"Spring Valley, Sask.—'I took the Vegetable Compound before my last confinement, when I got to feeling so badly that I could not sleep nights my back ached so across my hips, and I could hardly do my work during the day. I never had such an easy confinement and this is my sixth baby. I read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the 'Farmer's Telegram' and wrote you for one of your books. We have no druggist in our town, but I saw your medicine in T. Eaton's catalogue. I am a farmer's wife, so have all kinds of work to do inside and outside the house. My baby was born healthy, and I am feeling fine. I have to thank you for the Vegetable Compound. It has done more for me than any medicine I have ever taken. I feel stronger and more energetic. I will continue to take it to keep me in good health. I may work in every respect as nature intends. All druggists sell the dependable medicine. Give it a trial."

Electric Cable Blaze

Much excitement was caused by an electric cable catching fire in Union-street, off Blackfriars-road.

A workman engaged in putting down a new hydrant for the Water Board apparently struck the cable with his pickaxe, which was blackened and charred by the explosion. Almost miraculously the man was unhurt, although a little shaken.

Within a few minutes dense clouds of acrid smoke were rolling down the street. Several fire-engines arrived and for fear of a bigger explosion the firemen ordered the occupants of the buildings in the vicinity into Blackfriars-road. After about two hours the flames were subdued.

Houses Built of Glass

Plans for building houses of glass are being considered by American glass experts. Opaque glass can be produced in great quantities, it is claimed, at a reasonable cost.

"The glass house," says a writer in a trade journal, "has been the butt of many jokes, when not carried with it, too, the idea that everything within its walls was open to public inspection and that the occupants must go to bed with their clothes on to avoid embarrassment."

"The material for the proposed glass house can be made in slabs one-eight of an inch thick, thirty inches wide, and nine feet long. These slabs of opaque glass can be made in any shade or colour the builder wants."

The writer says that glass houses must be constructed on a concrete foundation and a wood framework. There will be an air pocket between the outside and the inside walls which will keep out both heat and cold. It is claimed that the first cost of the house would also prove to be practically the best, as the need for repairs would be almost non-existent.

Russia "Fed Up" With Communism

Present Afoot to Bring Back Professional Classes as Leaders. Russia is realizing that the theories of Karl Marx are all right on paper, but when applied to present conditions are a failure. Everywhere difficulties are being made, the people are suspicious of where they are going, and the leaders are really up to their eyes in it. So states Mrs. Florence Schopfocher, Van Horn Avenue, Montreal, who has just returned from a five months' tour of Russia, Kazakhstan and Persia, where she gave lectures and took part in public meetings on the Bahai movement. A Bahai in Bahai circles in Montreal, Mrs. Schopfocher leaves tonight to attend a Bahai congress to be held in Acre, Egypt, Maine to which various countries have sent delegates.

Traversing Russia from North to South, Mrs. Schopfocher visited the various cities and observed conditions, everywhere noting evidence of efforts to modify the present regime. "One can feel sorry for the leaders," she says. "They have found that it is one thing to awaken people and tell them what they want and then tell them afterwards that they want something else. The leaders of Russia to-day are up against it and have to deal with angry and suspicious people. While there are some people living in comfort, the country as a whole is poverty-stricken, and the soldiers' uniforms are often tattered, while the conductors on the international railroad from Moscow to the south are in rags. Travellers on railroads have to beware of thieves and sleep with their boxes roped at their side. Even then thieves lie on seats, pretend to be passengers and cut the ropes.

Leaders Sought. As evidence of a changing point of view in Russia, Mrs. Schopfocher quotes a great movement to bring back the "brains" of Russia driven out in the revolution, more particularly the specialists in various professions. Double salary is being offered as inducements to doctors, engineers and others, non-communists, to live and work in Russia, and it is not uncommon to find a non-communist specialist receiving twice the salary of his Communist brother. Communist women in Russia are easily distinguishable by their dress. They wear a very plain straight dress, a coat like a man's overcoat and a cap like a man's peaked motor cap. Women of the old aristocratic regime find congenial employment in acting as curators and assistants in the museums, full of treasures in art, jewellery and furniture of the Old Russia. All these treasures are undamaged with the exception of the portraits of the nobles, the frames alone remaining undamaged. Women of degree tending the treasures often come across some of their own family possessions in what are now national museums.

In religious matters, there is no freedom of conscience, Mr. Schopfocher states. Side chapels, at least in most of the churches, are open for a few hours each week, the great cost of lighting and heating preventing sometimes the whole of a church from being thrown open. Theatres are open every night and large audiences witness performances of the Russian ballet. It is an odd sight to see Mr. Proletariat in his black shirt with his family hanging out of royal boxes at the ballet, formerly filled with the aristocrats of old Russia.

Want Education. Admission of private enterprise and great desire for education are other features noted by Mrs. Schopfocher. In South Russia, she said, schools are running in relays from morning till night. She does not see, however, any prospect of return to the old regime and believes that Russia will retain a modified form of the present regime, retaining the best features of the present system and its highest ideals. From South Russia, Mrs. Schopfocher traversed the Caucasus through Georgia into Persia, visiting Baku, Tiflis, and Djofa. From Djofa to Tabriz she rode in a box car. At Baku she spoke to 500 people. In Persia the good roads are in the south and central portion, and the traveller found the way from Tabriz to Teheran almost impossible. Purchasing a motor car for the journey from a Government official, Mrs. Schopfocher essayed the difficult feat of motoring through, and traversed 72 miles in two days, travelling from day-break to sunset. Hauling the car up a 3,000 feet slope with ropes and a squad of 45 natives was an incident of the journey. In Persia, she found three million Bahai followers and the only fine school for girls with the exception of a British school—the Bahai Tarhiat School. There is a great desire among Persian women for education, Mrs. Schopfocher states. She is bringing over this summer a Persian woman teacher from the school to Columbia University to have her trained as a doctor, with a view to her return as the first emancipated woman doctor of Persia.

Envy of Teeth. Last year Mrs. Schopfocher went from Damascus to Bagdad with a party headed by the British Consul at Damascus and traversed the heart of the Syrian desert, the first white woman, she believes to take the journey. She met a queen of a Bedouin tribe who became enamored of the white woman traveller's white teeth. Her own were hennaed. How could she get white teeth? Watching the visitor clean her teeth, her Bedouin Majesty journey. In Persia, she found three lady's green tooth brush and on her departure asked only that in return for her hospitality. So the traveller went on her way minus one green tooth brush. Next winter, Mrs. Schopfocher proposes to visit Arabia and Persia, where she will speak on the emancipation of the Persian woman.

Magistrate's Court

The Minister of Finance and Customs versus John Nauflits, and Henry Jones, chief engineer of S.S. Herbert Green.

The prisoners were arraigned and charged with the following offences:— That you did, at St. John's, on July 7, by obstructing a person in the discharge of his duty, commit a breach of section 223, chapter 22 of the Consolidated Statutes, 3rd series, entitled "Of the Customs."

Mr. Fox for the Crown informed the court that he was not ready to proceed with the hearing on the above charges at the present. The evidence will be first taken at a preliminary enquiry to be opened either on Saturday or Monday next. Mr. Fenelon, on behalf of the defendants, was agreeable to this, and hoped the matter would be proceeded with as soon as possible.

The defendants, Captains John Ryan, Thomas Byrne, Captain of the Orleans, and Guy Shears were then arraigned and stood charged with a breach of section 203, chapter 22 of the Customs Act. Mr. Fenelon, on behalf of his clients, entered a plea of "not guilty."

The Herbert Green entered port on July 4th to take a part cargo of liquor. The suspicions of the authorities were aroused in connection with the vessel and close watch was kept on the captain and crew. Negotiations, as alleged by the prosecution, entered into between city parties with the captain and others for the purchase of the liquor. Their subsequent actions were watched, with the result that five cases of liquor were taken from the Herbert Green on the night of July 7, and placed in a small row boat. The police intervened, made a seizure, and brought the liquor to the Police Station.

The first witness called was Customs Officer Sydney Kendrick.

Witness on Saturday last was on duty at Harvey's wharf. He recognized present defendant Capt. Nauflits. He saw accused on Saturday last at the Furness Withy wharf on board the ship the Herbert Green, about 10 o'clock. Witness was doing duty on Furness Withy wharf, watching the Herbert Green, she carried a cargo of liquor. He saw some liquor being taken on board St. John's. Witness could not say whether it was whisky or rum. While he was watching the Herbert Green, Capt. Byrne, of the four masted schooner Orleans, came along on the wharf, and wished the witness good night. This was about 7 p.m. He asked him about the ship the Herbert Green. Witness was invited by Capt. Byrne on board the Orleans. Before proceeding on board the Orleans, witness what he thought the Herbert Green had on board. Witness told him it was a cargo of liquor. Witness then went on board the Orleans. The liquor was taken from the Herbert Green. Byrne first asked witness what his occupation was. He answered a Customs official. He told him he had nothing to do with the Herbert Green, as it was already in charge of two customs officials. They proceeded on board the Orleans. Witness met Shears on board the Orleans about 9:30 p.m. This was the second time witness went on board the Orleans that night.

Witness accompanied Capt. Byrne to the Herbert Green about 8 o'clock. He said he was going over to see the captain or super-cargo. Customs officials were on the wharf, viz: Wilson and Roberts. Capt. Byrne then spoke to Wilson, and asked if the captain or super-cargo were aboard the Herbert Green. The reply was that they had not yet boarded. The Orleans was berthed at A. Harvey's wharf at the time speaking to Wilson. Capt. Byrne then took money out of his pocket and asked if he did not have much change, he wished to purchase some liquor. He mentioned that he wanted four or five cases. Customs officer Wilson told him the captain and super-cargo were on board the ship. Witness saw the going on board and went into the captain's room in the aft part of the ship. Witness also saw Capt. of the Orleans, and defendant Byrne going into the captain's cabin, and he would see them inside by looking through the glass window of the cabin. Capt. Byrne was in the cabin about ten minutes, meanwhile witness was standing about 14 feet outside the cabin, and heard the conversation between the parties on the inside.

He remembered Capt. Byrne asked if there was any chance of doing business, and wanted to know the different brands of whisky, and if the very best. Nothing was done at the time, but he was notified to come down later when the transaction would be fixed up. Captain Nauflits and Ryan the super-cargo, then left the cabin and came on board. The captain came on board. The captain did not have enough money to buy liquor, and further, stated he had only about $45 in his pocket. At that time he did not say how much liquor he wanted to buy. Then Shears spoke up and told Capt. Byrne that he could manage to get some money. He would proceed to Burns' and leave a cheque and get $100 until Monday. The Captain agreed to this, and Shears went ashore to get the money before the store was closed. This was about 10 o'clock at night. Witness left the Orleans ten minutes later and went ashore. Witness proceeded to Furness Withy wharf and met Customs official named Green, and he reported to Customs Headquarters what had happened. Witness then remained on the wharf until Herbert Green left. Witness saw Capt. Byrne about 11 p.m. Witness saw Shears later on, and asked him if he got the money for Captain Byrne, and received the reply "yes." At this time Capt. Byrne and Shears went on board the Herbert Green, but witness did not know who they met. They remained there about five minutes. Witness saw them come on shore, and mentioned something about getting a boat to land the whisky.

An ordinary row boat was secured at the head of the wharf, with no oars in it. Byrne secured one from his own ship, and went into the boat in company with Shears. Witness saw them leave the wharf and rowed on the outside of the Herbert Green. The steamer started to blow her whistle then, and cast her lines off, and at the same time four cases of whiskey were lowered over her side. There were some cases on deck, but he did not know how many. The Super Cargo Ryan was on hand with members of the crew. While the captain was on the bridge looking forward, and could easily see the liquor from his position. Ryan was alongside of the stuff as it was being placed over the rail. As far as witness could judge, Ryan was checking the cases according as it went over. The police then went on board. Witness then went off and reported the matter to Customs Headquarters. He did not know what happened the whiskey after it went over the rail.

Cross-examined by Mr. Fenelon— Witness met Capt. Byrne about 7 o'clock at Harvey's wharf. Before that he had been in conversation with Harvey's stevedore a Mr. Will's on Water Street. It was while witness was talking to Byrne on Water Street that Will's came along. The conversation between Mr. Will's and Capt. Byrne was about getting fresh cod tongues. After that the Capt. left and went up town, and left witness and Will's together. That was about 6:30. A half hour afterwards witness had a conversation with Capt. Byrne. Witness did not remember if he had any conversation with Byrne at the Furness Withy premises on the previous day. Witness may have said that the liquor on board the Herbert Green was released from bond. Several questions were put to witness as to what was said in the discussion with supercargo Ryan which he failed to remember. There was no secrecy on the part of Capt. Byrne in the presence of witness or Customs Officer Wilson about his business on board the Herbert Green. Witness did not speak to Capt. Byrne after his first interview. It was about half an hour or so before Capt. Byrne came back. It was then that witness was invited to go on board the Orleans. Customs Officer Wilson was asked to go along as well, but he refused. It was about 11 o'clock witness saw Capt. Byrne and Shears again. Witness was on the Furness Withy wharf when they came over and then went on board the Herbert Green. The captain and the supercargo was on board at the time. Witness on being asked whether there was any signalling done between the Orleans and Herbert Green, said Shears had asked him if he would mind signalling on the Furness Withy wharf after supercargo Ryan went on board. As a signal witness admitted that he struck a match as requested by Shears. Shears was on the Orleans and then matches were struck by witness as a signal. After the signal Capt. Byrne and Shears came over to the Furness Withy wharf. All they asked was whether the captain or the supercargo was on board. They proceeded on board and went into the captain's cabin. The further hearing was then adjourned until 4 o'clock this afternoon.

Ailments Cured by Harmony

HOW MUSIC AFFECTS THE MIND.

Nervous disorders are on the increase, due partly to the war and partly to the greater strain under which we live to-day, and so it is in the realm of nervous disorders that music finds its widest and chief use as a remedy.

How music produces some of its results can be understood when one realizes that it can raise or lower the blood pressure, the importance of which in certain conditions is recognized by doctors everywhere.

Again, music acts on that part of the nervous system which governs the circulation of the blood, and in this way controls the secretions of the various glands of the body.

An Opera Cure.

This has naturally an important bearing on our nutrition, since the digestion is largely a matter of the proper secretions being poured into the testines at the proper time and in the proper quantity. It is the recognition of this principle that has made music so popular in all the restaurants. It stimulates the mind and adds a zest to the meal, which aids digestion.

Here is a case of how music "charms" illness. An American suffering from melancholia consulted all the best authorities with no benefit. He was ordered to take a voyage to Europe, and did so. There was little or no improvement in his condition, however, until he went to Vienna.

One night he visited the opera. It was a bright opera, full of harmony and charming songs. After the evening's entertainment he felt better. Repeated visits to the opera steadily augmented the effect, and within a few weeks recovery was complete.

This case is by no means singular. In a certain asylum, for instance, in which there were 1,400 insane women, it was found that music had a soothing effect on even the worst cases, and when continued it lulled the sufferers to sleep.

Even in cases of acute mania the effect of music is most salutary. There raged in Germany some years ago a condition which was called "the dancing mania," because sufferers from it indulged in wild dances. Soft, calm harmonies were played to them, and the paroxysms quieted down until they ceased altogether, and the patients were completely cured.

It has been discovered that when a patient's attention is concentrated on music, the nerves and muscles which act without the mind's consciousness are relaxed, and relaxation is the first step toward the restoration of a disordered nervous system.

A doctor has made a series of experiments on himself of the influence of half an hour's music every day. He has come to the conclusion that this musical treatment not only helps to keep one fit, but it adds from fifteen to twenty per cent. to the years of one's life.

Curious Facts and Figures

It is found in mining operations that the temperature of the earth rises about 1 degree Fahr. for every 60 feet of depth from the surface. On this basis the temperature of the earth in the Pendleton Colliery, Manchester, (3,474 feet deep, and the deepest mine in Great Britain), is about 58 degrees Fahr. above the temperature at the surface.

The temperature of the sea decreases as the depth increases. In the Pacific Ocean, for instance, when the temperature at the surface was 54 degrees Fahr., at a depth of 2,652 feet it was 40.5 degrees, a difference of 13.5 degrees.

In the Rockall depression, some 100 miles northwest of Ireland and Scotland, the Atlantic is about 5,000 feet deep, or a little over 1 1/2 miles, whilst in the North Pacific Ocean there is the Great Ocean Chasm, which is six miles deep.

TROUBLED WITH ECZEMA IN RASH

All Over Scalp, Itched and Burned. Cuticura Healed.

"I was troubled with eczema. It broke out in a red rash all over my scalp and after a time turned to pimples. It itched and burned all the time and caused my hair to fall out. I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a free sample and after using it found great relief. I purchased more, and after using two boxes of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment I was completely healed." (Signed) Miss Sarah G. Davidson, Summer St., New Glasgow, Nova Scotia.

Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Talcum promote and maintain skin purity, skin comfort and skin health often when all else fails.

Dangerous Ozone

Ozone is really oxygen—not the ordinary oxygen we breathe, but an intensified form of it. Hence, what oxygen will do, ozone will do with greater power. Fresh air, containing plenty of oxygen, is good for us; how much better, then, is "ozone" air?

Nevertheless, on account of its potency only very little ozone should be present in the air we breathe. Where oxygen merely makes fire possible, ozone causes excessive conflagration; many things that are ordinarily incombustible burn in it; rubber rots or "burns" in it in a few minutes, and so do the soft tissues of our air-passages, lungs, and eyes.

Even in the freshest air of the sea coast or mountain top the ozone present is infinitesimal, not enough to be smelled, though the odour of seaweed is often mistaken for it.

It is formed naturally by the action of the sun's ultra-violet rays on the upper atmosphere, but it is absent from the air of big cities because, owing to its activity, it destroys or "burns up" all sorts of organic matter like dust and soot, and is itself used up in doing so.

This characteristic activity of ozone, combined with the fact that its action leaves behind only pure, harmless oxygen, makes it at once a powerful and a "safe" disinfectant.

It is manufactured, electrically, on a large scale for use in the arts, as well as for cleaning wounds, ventilating meeting-houses and zoos, and keeping fresh the water in aquariums. By its use, too, the water supplies of such towns as Lille and Leningrad are sterilized.

Ozone was first noticed in 1785 by du Marum. Fifty odd years later, Schonbein, the friend of our great Faraday, found that the smell was due to a special gas formed from the air by the electric discharge. He it was who named the gas "ozone," meaning "the smelling stuff."

PARTICULARLY STRONG CAST IN "FIND YOUR MAN."

"Find Your Man," with the famous dog star, Rin-Tin-Tin, will be shown at the Nickel Theatre to-night.

Rin-Tin-Tin, the well known Belgian police dog, was brought over here from France by Lieutenant Duncan, who is responsible for his training. Rin-Tin-Tin can do every trick a dog can do and many tricks most dogs can't do. He can scale a five-foot hurdle and clear a twenty-foot stream. Besides his athletic ability he has a remarkable dog intellect.

The story of "Find Your Man" is laid in a lumber camp. It is full of suspense, thrills, love, and as for action, there can't be a lack of that when Rin-Tin-Tin is present. Paul Andrews, ex-soldier, and Buddy, his canine pal, find themselves involved in a plot to steal Government lumber. Paul makes the discovery too late, and he is arrested on a charge of theft and murder, of which he is innocent. The dog's remarkable work begins in Paul's escape and his miraculous rescue from death.

The cast, besides Rin-Tin-Tin, includes June Marlowe, the girl with the soulful eyes; Eric St. Clair, Charles Malles, Pat Hartigan, Fred Stanton, Lew Harvey and Charles Konkin.

The story as well as adaptation is by Darryl Francis Zannuck. Mal St. Clair is the director. It is a Warner Brothers Classic of the Screen.

Little Jack Rabbit by David Cory

"Now where shall we go?" asked a smile, and more than a mile, they kind Uncle Lucky, as soon as Little Jack Rabbit was seated beside him on the front seat and the four little Cottontails tucked safely away in the rear of the car.

"Over the hills and far away. Where the fairy bunnies love to play," shouted Susie Cottontail. "I've read about fairy bunnies but I've never seen one."

"All aright," chuckled dear Uncle Lucky. "We'll drive by the Ragged Rabbit Giant's castle and visit the Whispering Glen where the fairy bunnies live," and turning up Cabbage Street, he entered the Shady Forest.

"Where are you going so happy and gay? Why don't you stop for a minute to play?" shouted Chippy Chipmunk, running along the top of the Old Stone Fence, his pretty red-striped fur coat shining in the sun.

"Haven't time," answered Uncle Lucky. "We have many a mile to go, for the Whispering Glen is far from the homes of mortal men." Dear me, Uncle Lucky is talking in poetry. Maybe the Dream Fairy had whispered to him the night before.

Pretty soon Professor Jim Crow creased from the top of his Tall Pine Tree. "Wait just a minute, or maybe three."

"Can't stop for a winkery wink," answered Uncle Lucky. "These little folks want to see the fairy bunnies, and on he sped in the fast Luckymobile."

By and by, after a while, and many Goodness me, it was a tall mountain was lost in a big cavern among the rocks. So, of course, the Ragged Rabbit Giant never heard a word, although his ears were five times as large as nice Uncle Lucky's.

"Well, I guess all we can do is to turn back and take the Winding Trail to the Whispering Glen," sighed the old gentleman rabbit, when, all of a sudden, just like that, quick as the wind that blows off your hat, a big stone fell close beside them, to which was fastened a long rope. Then next minute they heard the Ragged Rabbit Giant tell them to tie the rope to the Luckymobile. And in the next story, if the rope doesn't break, you shall hear what happened after that. But don't worry, Little Readers. Giant ropes don't break easily and your Uncle Dave wouldn't have anything happen to his dear little bunnies for all the world plus a couple of cents.

Just then who should look down from way up high but the Ragged Rabbit Giant himself. "Ha, ha, ho, ho!" he laughed. "Come on up, the weather is fine, the top of the mountain is bright with sunshine."

"Impossible," shouted back Uncle Lucky. "But, dear me! again. It was so far up to the mountain top that the dear old gentleman rabbit's voice

Expert beef eaters, we are told, in a press despatch from Washington, are to be employed by the United States Bureau of Standards to assist scientists in solemnly chewing chunks of meat to learn whether a mechanical process can be found for determining the degree of tenderness. Undoubtedly this is further evidence of the backwardness of the United States, as compared with Great Britain. The Yeomen of the Guard, who make their home in the Tower of London, have been famous for centuries as beef-eaters and by this time must surely have attained a considerable degree of efficiency. Perhaps the United States authorities could arrange with the British Government to have the proposed tests carried out at the Tower.

Don't Fret if you Freckle
If you "freckle" easily—too easily, possibly, for your own liking—it may comfort you to know that you haven't a coarse skin. It is those with delicate, fine-textured skins who freckle, and the little brown spots are Nature's gift to protect the skin from the actinic rays of the sun.

These rays, if there were no freckles, would pass through the fine outer skin to irritate and possibly injure the under skin. The freckles, however, act as a sort of parasol, or screen, and the rays are checked.

There is a pigment in our blood which protects both the freckled and the unfreckled against the sun. It is when this pigment is required and produced in an increased quantity that it "comes out" in small spots.

Scientists state that the negro has a black skin simply because, over thousands of years, his race has "freckled" so greatly that first of all a brown skin was developed and inherited, and ultimately a black one. Anything which will tighten the skin, like lemon-juice, or harden it, like alum, will prevent freckles coming.

Text of Sermon by Rector of Trinity

Rev. L. J. Donaldson Preaches on the Anglo-Catholic Movement in Anglican Church.

A large congregation listened with close attention on Sunday evening in Trinity Church as the Rector discussed the serious church controversy now in progress in England over the revision of the Prayer Book. He said not only were the members of the Church of England concerned in this matter but the leaders of all the other Protestant Churches in England were beginning to realize that it deeply affected them also, for the Protestantism of England, he believed, was at stake.

Mr. Donaldson said in part:
"The school of thought or the party of the Church which is causing all the trouble, delight to appropriate to themselves the title of 'Anglo-Catholics.' The movement started in 1833 at Oxford, and is generally known as the 'Oxford Movement.' Later their followers were known as 'Fuseties' because of this name from Dr. Pusey, a recognized leader of the party.

"A few weeks ago there was published in England a document entitled
'Call to Action,' over the signatures of 136 of the most influential clergy and laity of the mother church. These names included men popularly known as High Churchmen, Low Churchmen and Broad Churchmen. All united in their earnest appeal that their fellow churchmen seriously re-examine the present dangerous situation. Here are their own words regarding the teaching of the so-called Anglo-Catholics: 'It compels us to recognize a crisis which threatens to change the character of the English Church. And unless English churchmen read the signs of the time and take themselves from their supine indifference the disaster which now threatens is likely to overwhelm us.
These are not hasty words spoken on the spur of the moment, but well thought out and carefully prepared statements intended to be taken at their full face value. In conclusion the document says: 'If Englishmen wish to enjoy the privileges of this historic church they must show the weight of their forefathers who made what it is. They must awake from their torpor; they must care more for truth than for peace; they must waive minor differences and unite in defense of basic principles. For it is the main mission of the English church which is at issue.'"

Mr. Donaldson also said that "we in Canada are also concerned, for not only are we deeply affected by the actions of the Church in the Motherland but there are also men of this same type of the Anglo-Catholic party in this country."

Halifax and throughout the Dominion."

Special mention was made of the action of the House of Clergy of the Church Assembly in England last February, which was the immediate cause for the publication of the "Call to Action." That assembly passed a resolution with a slight majority, in favor of observing, under another name, the festival of "Corpus Christi."

Continuing the preacher said:
"In 1317 the dogma of transubstantiation was adopted by the Church of Rome. Fifteen years later a nun, Juliana, was gazing at the moon and she saw a gap in its orb. She said it was revealed to her from Heaven that the moon represented the church and the gap meant the want of a festival for the adoration of the Body of Christ in the consecrated Host, and she was further instructed that she was to announce this heavenly revelation to the world and to begin at once to celebrate the Feast of Corpus Christi. So successfully did she carry out her work that 34 years later Pope Urban IV in 1264 formally appointed the Feast of Corpus Christi, which has become the most gorgeous and splendidly observed festival in the Roman Church.
But the Church of England declares in the 28th Article of Religion that "Transubstantiation (or the changing of the substance of Bread and Wine) in the Supper of the Lord, cannot be proved by Holy Writ; but is repugnant to the plain words of Scripture, over-throweth the nature of a sacrament and hath given occasion to many superscriptions."

"At that same Assembly last February" continued the preacher "a motion was also made, although it was defeated by a small majority, to introduce the Feast of the Assumption among the Saints days of the Church.

"This festival commemorates the supposed taking up to heaven of the body of the Blessed Virgin Mary. The stories connected with this supposed event first came to notice several hundred years after the remarkable occurrence was supposed to have taken place. They are certainly most fantastic fairy tales.

"The debates on these resolutions revealed the real nature of the views of these Anglo-Catholics. Their doctrine is so entirely contradictory to the authorized standards of the Church of England, that all true members of the Church should heed the solemn warning and earnest appeal of the "Call to Action" (1) to awake from their torpor; (2) to care more for truth than peace; (3) to unite in defence of basic principles."

Under his latter heading, Mr. Donaldson mentioned three points:
(1) The supreme authority of Scripture.
(2) The one only essential in religion that the heart should be right with God.

(3) The privilege of every person of direct personal access to God through Jesus Christ—the one mediator between God and Men."—Morning Chronicle, July 1.

Few people realize the extreme the eye, according to Dr. Fraser Harris in the "Optician and Scientific Instrument Maker."

"The eye is a camera which has a double convex lens in front, a sensitive plate (the retina) behind, and the image in the retina is upside down.

"The entire surface of the retina is only about one square inch, a very small portion of it receiving the image of the outer world. This portion where the image is received is a specialized, slightly hollowed spot about one-fifth of an inch in diameter
—the macula lutea.

"The photographic camera is adjusted for light by stops; the eye camera, by

Teaching Dogs to Smuggle

Problems for Customs Officers.
The lucrative smuggling trade which exists on the Swiss-Italian frontier necessitates constant vigilance by Italian Customs officials. The smuggled goods include saccharine, tobacco, matches, and perfumes, which are heavily taxed in Italy.

The centre of the trade is on the frontier south of Lugano. Here the Italian authorities have constructed a high wire fence covered with small bells, which extends along many miles of the hills and valleys.

Customs officers are placed at frequent intervals along the wire "wall," which they watch night and day, but in spite of all precautions the illicit commerce continues to increase, as the smugglers, mostly Italians, and their trained dogs, are exceedingly clever.

Cunning and Careful.
During a dark night, one of the smugglers will set the bells ringing purposely in his section, and when the officers rush to the spot other smugglers cut the wire a few hundred yards away and escape across the frontier with the contraband goods.

The training of dogs has become a fine, though cruel art. The smuggler leads his dog to the "trainer," who is always dressed in a Customs officer's uniform. He beats the animal frequently, so that in a few weeks the dog will detect and fear a man in uniform, and avoid him anywhere in future. This is exactly the result desired by the owner.

The Italian smuggler then takes the dog with him across the frontier and teaches him to return home alone. The animal wears a coat provided with small pockets which contain the contraband goods, and becomes in time an accomplished smuggler. The dogs are shot at on sight by the frontier guards, and this makes the animals even more wary and cunning.

The larger dogs carry their load with great speed over the Alpine passes, and it becomes practically impossible to prevent this form of smuggling. A well-trained dog is worth a large sum of money, but he cannot be sold, for he will constantly return to his master's home, where, owing to his value, he has always been well treated.

The Italian authorities have found the system of bells unsatisfactory, and have recently replaced them by small electric lamps on the wire fence, as most of the smuggling takes place at night.

It is doubtful, however, whether the new method will be a success, as it is a comparatively easy matter for the smugglers to cut off the electric current.

Most of the smugglers are known to the police and Customs-house employees, but they cannot be arrested unless caught red-handed, which is a difficult affair.

Hearing With the Eyes!

Lip-Reading Wonders.

You do not need your ears to enable you to listen to an ordinary conversation. It does not matter which sense conveys the sound to the brain—whether it is that of hearing or of sight. People who have been quite deaf for many years need only careful study to enable them to follow the softest voice. Quite recently, an ex-soldier who had had both ear-drums destroyed in an explosion met a comrade he had not seen for twelve years. They spent the rest of the day together, and the second man did not discover that his friend was deaf, so normally was the conversation carried on.

Sound With Shapes.

Each sound, however small, has its own shape on the lips and in the mouth. To show how easily examples may be distinguished, even though they are similar in sound, try for yourself the words "horse" and "house," speaking them in a normal voice, while facing a looking-glass. The shape of the lips is quite different for the two words.

Lip-reading is not like learning a new language; it is merely the development of a latent sense. But it is intensely useful in that it removes that uncomfortable feeling of awkwardness from both speaker and listener, and in time enables the deaf person to eliminate almost entirely the disadvantages of his handicap. Also, it increases the faculty of concentration and quickness to such an extent that often it makes the deaf man as alert as a man with an unimpaired sense of hearing.

Strong Demand That Great Britain 'Break' With Moscow

London, June 30.—Great Britain's relations with Soviet Russia have now reached a very acute stage through the unrelenting activity of the Moscow extremists to injure British prestige in China and elsewhere in Asia. There is a strong element in the Cabinet pressing for a complete break with Moscow. It is known to include Lord Birkenhead, Secretary for India, and it is understood also Sir William Johnson-Hicks, Home Secretary, and Sir James Douglas Hogg, Attorney General, support such a far-reaching step.

It is clear from the week-end speeches of Lord Birkenhead and Sir Douglas that Cabinet discussion of Anglo-Russian relations have entered a highly interesting stage.

SOVIET MONEY FOR REDS IN ENGLAND.

Whether Chamberlain and Baldwin are prepared at this juncture to sanction a break is a matter of great doubt. In Labor quarters there is grave suspicion to-day that such action, however, is under contemplation and may be justified by the Government particularly on the score of Moscow's continued propaganda against Britain.

There is a firm conviction on the part of many ministerialists that Soviet money is still coming into England to assist the Reds in the British labor organizations, and that view is shared by some astute Laborites, though at the present time they are not giving voice to such opinions.

Labor as a whole, and many Liberal are opposed to any break with Moscow, and there is also a feeling among them following interests that such a step should be avoided if at all possible.

At the same time the holders of Russian bonds believe a break would defer indefinitely any chance of obtaining even a percentage of the colossal sums due them from Russia.

What is evidently influencing Foreign Secretary Chamberlain at this stage in the discussions of the Anglo-Russian relations is a realization that a complete break would unleash an even more formidable campaign against the British Empire, for everything indicated that Zinovieff and the extremists in Moscow are now at loggerheads with Krasin, Rakovsky and other more farsighted Russians over this anti-British campaign.

May Set East Aflame.

A complete break might also determine Moscow to open up old accounts with Poland Rumania, and thereby add greatly to the dangers of European peace in the Eastern European corridor.

J. L. Garvin in the Observer declared that Zinovieff may force matters to a very ugly issue. Sir Robert Horne, one of the most influential members of Parliament, in stressing the Russian menace says:

"They have been striving now for the last four years in the teeth of very solemn obligations under the treaty which I made with them myself, to upset our Government in India and to set the whole of the East aflame." Laborites will press the Government this week to ascertain if the break is imminent.

Butterfly Emigrants

Year after year millions of butterflies leave their breeding grounds in the south and fly northwards. Those that travel the greatest distance cover about 4,000 miles.

They are found on the southern shores of the Mediterranean about April and reach England towards the end of May. Many still continue to fly northwards, arriving in Scotland about mid-June, and eventually reaching Iceland in July. According to Mr. C. E. Williams, Chief Entomologist to the Egyptian Ministry of Agriculture, they originate from south of the great desert belt that crosses Africa and Western Asia.

These butterflies have never been seen making the return journey, and it is a mystery how every year swarms leave Africa and find their way to the same countries in the north. It has been suggested that some go back, but since they have never been seen they must either travel by night or return in ones and twos. Mr. Williams' theory is that the migration of the butterflies resembles a kind of relay race, and that those that ultimately reach Iceland are many generations younger than those that first set out from Africa.

There'll come a moment when your feet must be seen!

That moment is close at hand. No concealing stockings, no sandals even—just bare feet. . . . You will slip into your new bathing suit and step out onto the sand. All eyes will be upon you, will appraise your stockinged legs and feet—for it is no longer the fashion to cover the feet for bathing. Are your feet well-cared for, shapely, without disfiguring blemishes? If you have even one little corn it will be noted and remembered against you. . . . For no one need have corns. Nice people don't have them. At the first hint of one, they apply a Blue-jay plaster. It is now removing half the corns that grow. They're off because they're out. Painful shoes may cause new corns, but a corn that Blue-jay removes is gone forever.

Just Folks.

By EDGAR GUEST.

EVERY MAN'S GARDEN.

Judge me not by what I've said, Hot in rage or cold in dread; Judge me not by what I've done Seeking goals which must be won; Prey to moods and temper quick, Shame lies round about me thick, But my garden lets you see Something of the better me.

Walk my garden and behold, I have loved the marigold! In those hours which were my own, Roses I have loved and grown; I have labored here to bring Hyacinths to bloom in spring, Here I've kept for all who come Many a red geranium.

Walk my garden round and see My devotion to a tree, See me struggle to express All my dreams of loveliness In a pansy patch, and make Dahlias beds for beauty's sake, Men may think me cold, but oh, Not a rose would call me so!

Judge me not by what you hear From the lips of men and women; If you'd know me as I am, Stripped of all the worldly sham, Let my little garden be Called to testify for me, There is evidence supplied Of my nobler, gentler side.

Judge that Mrs. Burton's car ran about 15 miles to the gallon, it is a 20 mile drive each way, meaning 40 miles for the round trip. It she makes it once it costs her about 75c, and, twice, $1.40 for gas alone. On top of this there are other costs that no one who does not own a car ever computes (and very few that do). The cost of tires, and wear and tear, which increases according to the mileage and should therefore be assessed on the mileage.

Chauffeur, Maid and Hostess Combined Then there is Mrs. Brown's time. She does her own work. She is entertaining a guest, which means some little extra preparation. If she is to spend three hours and a half transporting her guest, that means a pretty busy day for her.

Of course I know that there are a great many people who own cars who do not think enough about the pleasure they could give. But I think there are also a good many people who do not own cars who do not think enough about the effort their pleasure may seem to the car owner.

THE SELFISH (?) AUTO OWNER.

"I do hope when I have an automobile I won't get as selfish as some people," said my neighbor. "Well, I just had a letter from a friend of mine, Mrs. Burton. She wants me to come up to her house and spend the day. She has an automobile, you know, and she could come for me and bring me back just as well as not. It wouldn't be anything for her to just get into her machine and come down here. It isn't more than a half hour or at the most a three quarter of an hour's ride. And she knows how I love riding. But she wants me to come on the train. She says she'll bring me back if I'll come up. She knows very well I have to take the bus over to the train and then its three quarters of an hour on the train and its a 15 minute walk to her house. To say nothing of the expense, 35c. on the bus and 75c. on the train. If ever I get a machine of my own, I hope I'll be a little more generous. She took me both ways last year, but lots of people are that way, fairly generous at first and then they get stingy after they've had it awhile and forgotten what a bother it is to traipse around on trains. Well, I shan't go, that's all, and I hope she'll guess why."

Now I fancy there are some people who would consider a friend's offer to come and get them fair and reasonable, and others who would react exactly as this woman does.

With which do I agree, you may ask. Well, let's analyze the situation.

Three Hours and a Half Steady Driving.

She says it's not more than a three quarters of an hour drive. It's all of that and a little more, for I've driven it. Say 50 minutes. That means that if Mrs. Burton comes for her and takes her back she will be driving four times 50 minutes or about three hours and a half. Half of this time she may be driving alone, as one cannot always get company who can go just at the moment, one has to go, without a good deal of effort. And, of course, any companion would have to be fetched and returned (and probably waited for while she got her hat on and attended to one or two last details). . . . Driving alone through familiar territory when one has driven a good deal is exceedingly stupid. One is willing to do it but it is a distinct sacrifice. My neighbor thinks that her friend ought to think nothing of fetching her though it takes her at least an hour and three quarters. Yet she thinks it is a hardship that she should spend an hour and a half going up on the train. . . . Let's examine the expense. I should

THE DELCO Electric Plant

FOR OUT-OF-TOWN LIGHTING.

"DELCO LIGHT" consists of an air-cooled engine which will operate on gasoline or kerosene, directly connected to an electric generator and switchboard, on which are the necessary controlling instruments. These are all enclosed in one unit and may be called the Generating Unit.

The second unit is the Storage Battery, consisting of sixteen glass or rubber jar cells for 32 volt equipment. The engine is self-venting, when the starting lever is held up electricity flows from the storage battery through the field coils and armature. This electric energy is conducted to the incandescent lamps by means of copper wires to any position desired.

The lights do not, as a rule, require the entire output of the Generator, so the excess is taken up and stored by the Storage Battery. When the engine stops the storage battery is used as the source of supply, after which it is necessary to run the engine again to re-charge the battery. It may only be necessary to run the engine two or three times a week when used to light a residence, but when used in stores, or where considerable current is used the engine has to be run more frequently. It can be used to light your church, residence, barns, wharf, store or mill. The operation is simple, and the cost of running, very low.

We are Agents for the "Delco" Electric Plant, and we have a staff of electricians who will make installations in any part of the Island. If you are interested, write us for descriptive booklet and our estimate of the cost. We will be pleased to give you any information you require.

Genuine "Forgeries"

A Shakespearean Discovery that the Scholars Maligned.

Among the many literary forgeries which have confounded critics and shed a lurid light upon the fallibility of experts those known as the "Cunningham Forgeries" are the most remarkable. For when they were discovered after over two hundred years of oblivion scholars immediately accepted them as a settlement of many disputed questions about Shakespeare's plays.

Then they were denounced as forgeries and their evidence rejected by all authorities for nearly fifty years. Then, at last, chemical and microscopic tests proved they were genuine. Now they hold high place among British national treasures in the Record Office, London.

In 1842, the Shakespeare Society issued a volume entitled "Extracts from the accounts of the Revels at Court." It was written by Peter Cunningham, an Audit Office Clerk who was known as a contributor to the Shakespeare Society's publications, and in it he explained how he had found the Accounts Books of the Revels Office for 1604-5 and 1611-12 in the vaults under Somerset House.

shown to have been performed in 1611.

Some time after the publication of this work, Cunningham gave way to drink, and he was retired from the Audit Office in 1858. Ten years later impoverished and broken in health, he offered to sell to Sir Frederick Madden, Keeper of Manuscripts at the British Museum, the originals of these Accounts Books. As he had no right to them they were impounded.

Then all the experts were once more thrown into confusion by the announcement that the entries referring to Shakespeare's plays were forgeries! In 1869 the "British Quarterly" asserted that "it only required a glance of the experts to discover that the list of Shakespeare's plays performed before the Court had been appended to the old documents by a modern hand."

Dyce and Halliwell Phillips, two of the greatest authorities of the day, accepted this conclusion, and writers in America, Germany, and other countries agreed to describe the entries as the "Cunningham Forgeries."

The blunder seems to have had its origin in a letter written by Mr. Bond, Assistant Keeper of Manuscripts in the British Museum, who when he sent the documents to the Master of the Rolls in 1868, stated that he had reasons for doubting the authenticity of one, at least, of the papers, from the peculiar character of the writing and the spelling.

Peter Cunningham's well-known failing and his association with John Payne Collier, who was notorious as a forger of old documents, were, no doubt, partly responsible for the readiness with which forgery was generally assumed. But Cunningham had published the play lists in the book issued years before he gave way to drink or met Collier.

For forty-three years the error remained unchallenged. Then Mr. Ernest Law, an eminent authority, made a careful examination of the old accounts and proved the entries to be genuine.

He suggested scientific tests. Microscopic examination showed that the ink in which the entries were made exactly resembled that used for the rest of the accounts, and that it had made the same effect upon the paper. This meant that the entire book had been written at the same time. A chemical test, made in a Government laboratory, showed that only one kind of ink had been used throughout the accounts, and such ink has not been made for many generations.

In the face of such evidence, differences in handwriting and such eccentricities as the spelling of the dramatist's name as "Shaxberd" are of no consequence, so the clerk was most unjustly maligning.

Black Book of Crooks

SCOTLAND YARD'S GALLERY OF SWINDLERS.

Few people are aware that Scotland Yard maintains a wonderful "Black Book" to the criminal world—a veritable "Who's Who" to the personal side of modern crooks. Amazing though it is, however, there are still a few portraits the authorities would be glad to include.

Compiled by the record keepers in the department, the book has proved a priceless asset in checking the marauding activities of many men and women who are known by the police of every civilized country to live on their wits.

Men and women known as "International" crooks number at least five thousand, and in this "Who's Who of Crime" they appear with complete and intimate details as to age, height and colour of hair, eyes and complexion.

aliases, speciality and methods, together with photographs and fingerprints.

Fearful by Adventurers.

This wonderful book has already come to be dreaded by adventurers and adventuresses who have an international reputation. For it is only a fake that they are able to get into the country, as the main ports are closely watched by detectives, to whom the notabilities of the international underworld are well known.

The principal difficulty that always faces the police in dealing with the crook invasion is that new recruits are constantly being added to the ranks of crime. Until these make a slip no information regarding them is in the possession of the authorities, and some of them are so cunning that they not infrequently enjoy a good run before they can be indexed and given their rightful place in the book. It is a remarkable fact that the perpetrators of one of the cleverest of confidence tricks do not yet figure in the "Black Book."

There are few cleverer criminals operating in London, for this ruse—the "rosary" trick—seems to have failed. It was tried successfully only a short time ago on a rich Australian who was staying at a fashionable hotel and eventually "came to earth" when he realized that he had been robbed of £1,000.

Detectives with special knowledge of "con" men and their ways have hunted in all directions, but so far have been unable to lay their hands on either the rascal with the rosary or his confederates.

None of these is known at the "Yard," and it is believed they have only recently embarked on their career of crime. Once they were within an ace of downfall, but left hurriedly for Paris in time to avoid capture. They were not deterred, however, by this narrow escape, and within a few weeks returned to London, where they quickly claimed another victim.

Another type of crook whose identity has not yet been established by the police is the pocket-slasher. A member of this fraternity brought off a coup only a few days ago, his victim being an Irish motor engineer, who came to London from Belfast with sufficient bank-notes in his pocket to pay for a motor-car he had ordered from a West-end firm.

In order to avoid any possible risk of loss, he had the notes tied up in a handkerchief, which he carried in his hip pocket.

Bewildered by his surroundings, he approached a stranger, who, with a disarming affability, pointed out that by a coincidence he himself happened to be going in the same direction.

It was during the morning rush hour, and the two men soon found themselves struggling to enter a Tube train. In the process they became separated, and the Irish visitor was considerably disturbed on reaching his destination to find that he was not only miles away from the place he wanted, but also that his pocket containing £426 in notes had been cut away. He reported his loss to the police, but no trace of the thief has been discovered.

Brief Facts About Mary Pickford and Little Annie Rooney

Mary Pickford, foremost cinema artiste, in her forthcoming screen feature, "Little Annie Rooney," has stepped out of the costume drama role and back into the rags-and-bones, hoydenish, comedy characterization that so endeared her to the public and won for her the title "The World's Sweetheart."

"Little Annie Rooney," is nearing completion for early fall release through United Artists Corporation.

The scenes for the most part are laid in the teeming lower East Side district of New York, and the famous old Brooklyn Bridge has an important role.

Little Annie Rooney is the twelve year old daughter of a New York policeman; leads a band of street urchins in fiercely contended, rough and tumble, biting and kicking battles with rival gangs; and is secretly and madly in love with a strapping truck driver, the pal of her big brother, Tim.

Her garb consists of cheap calicoes, much-darned stockings, down-at-the-heel shoes, and, sometimes, a boy's cap.

Ten different nationalities and races are represented among the kid types in the two score or so youngsters figuring in the picture. There also are many animals—dogs, and cats, a goat, a pig and a couple of horses.

Lower East Side New York streets and districts faithfully are reproduced in the picture. There are streets and alleyways littered with old tin cans and all sorts of rubbish. Almost all of the picture was made at the Pickford-Fairbanks studio, Hollywood.

VACATION TIME

Some are going to the mountains, some are going to the shore, some are going where the fountain is a squirt ice-water evermore; a few away the fields are greener and the atmosphere is cleaner, and you get a better wiener for your money at the store. Hope's transfiguring our faces, for vacation time is nigh, and we'll seek the open spaces underneath a smokeless sky, where the frisks and whistles of breezes are not tinged with diseases, where each prospect cheers and pleases while the golden moments fly. Let us not forget, however, that the open spaces hold many insects smooth and clever, many bugs severe and bold; there the hornets are stinging, and the humble bees are stinging, and mosquito hosts are singing melodies we knew of old. Let us pack our old valises with such salves as granny made, with such swelling fads; have an extra mustard plaster to provide against disaster, and a poultice that will master sprain of leg or shoulderblade. Foolish is

The Romance of Lloyds

The address recently delivered by Andrew Scott on the subject of "Lloyd's Register of Shipping and its Work," before the Institute of Chartered Shipbrokers in London is of such interest and contains so much information about this remarkable and world famous institution that we have decided to publish it in full. The first installment follows and the rest will appear in subsequent issues.

Lloyd's Register of Shipping is a voluntary association of underwriters, shipowners and others, which exists for the purpose of surveying and classifying the shipping of the world. In all essentials it is a public body, having no pecuniary or commercial purposes to serve beyond those of the public interest. The whole of its revenue is devoted, in the interest of shipping, to extending its staff of surveyors and perfecting its organization.

The extent of the Society's operations is shown by the fact that of the vessels now afloat, viz., 32,56 vessels of 64,023,567 tons, no less than 15,514 vessels of 27,851,337 tons have been built under the supervision and to the classification of Lloyd's Register, whose well-known hall mark of 100A1 is accepted by the mercantile community everywhere.

Its rules form the basis of contract between shipbuilders and shipowners, between the latter and merchants and charters, and between all four and underwriters.

How did this Society, wielding so much authority, so willingly and universally accepted, come into existence and attain its present commanding position?

Lloyd's Register of Shipping took its rise, like the great parent institution of Lloyd's, in the coffee house which was started by Edward Lloyd in the reign of Charles II. "Ships' Lists" appear to have been kept for their own guidance by the early frequenters of Lloyd's Coffee House. These lists, which were written by hand, contained an account of vessels which the underwriters, who met there, were likely to have offered for some time afterwards, passed from hand to hand, much in the same way as the written news letters of the period, and were finally put into type and circulated for the use of subscribers.

It has been assumed that this may have occurred about 1725, the year which witnessed the establishment of Lloyd's List, but, be that as it may, we know that a Register was in existence in 1760.

The oldest copy of a Register of Shipping in the library of Lloyd's Register office bears the date 1764-5-6, for which period it was evidently circulated. It is of an oblong form, differing in this respect from the succeeding volumes, and its fringed edges bear evidence of having passed through the flames. On referring to this volume, which I have here for your inspection, it will be seen that the information it contains was of a very complete nature. It comprised the former and present names of the vessels, those of the owners and the masters, the ports between which the vessels traded, the tonnage, the number of their crew and of the guns they carried, the port and year of build; together with the classification printed in the column indicating the year in which the vessels were respectively surveyed, the column headed "66," left blank at publication, being intended to receive the latest alterations in writing.

Further particulars were added in the column headed "Guns," in the shape of notations descriptive of the vessels, such as "3d," single deck, "3d B," single deck with tier of beams, "3 Deks," "Dbid," etc. The vessels recorded in this volume are for the most part of very small size; but several are to be found of four, five and six hundred tons, and there are two ships of eight and one of no less than nine hundred tons.

The classes assigned to the vessels were designated by the letters A, B, I, O and U, which referred to the vessel's hull, while the letters G, M and B—meaning "good," "middling" and "bad"—related to its equipment. Thus the class AG would denote a first-class ship with a good outfit, while U B would be the designation given to a ship of the lowest class, and with a bad outfit.

The Register for 1775-1776 is interesting as being the earliest book extant containing the now familiar class of A1. In this volume also the alterations, which in the earlier copy had been made with pen and ink, were posted or stamped in type, a practice which has continued down to the present time as regards a certain proportion of the Registers, and in this respect Lloyd's Register Book stands alone.

The Register was established and supported by underwriters for their sole use as members of the Society, and the subscriptions formed the principal, if not the only, source of revenue. Strict rules were adopted for confining the use of the book to members. Each subscriber at the end of the year was obliged to deliver up his old book before a new one was issued to him, and at one time, if a book was lost or stolen, the person to whom it belonged was refused another although willing to pay for it.

The volume for 1778-1780 contains the following quaint prohibition:—

COPY of the BY-LAWS relating to the reserving the REGISTER-BOOKS for the Use of the MEMBERS of the Society only.

As the interest of the Society is, in the first instance, greatly hurt by the Custom of showing the Books, and leaving them at Places where they are but too common, thereby preventing many Underwriters from becoming Members, who, though they reap the Advantages and Benefits in common with them, do not pay their Quotas towards the expenses of the Institution, thereby, as much as in them lies, reducing the Members to the Necessity of paying larger Subscriptions.

XII. It is therefore agreed by the Society, and every Member thereof, and ordered by them to be a standing Rule and By-law strictly to be observed, that if any member shall after the 6th of February, 1778, show or give his Book to any Person whatever, not a Member of the Society, to read the Description of Character therein of any Ship, or shall read the same to him, or tell him the same after looking in his Book, or lend the said Book to him, such Member shall forfeit the sum of 5s. 3d., and, for the second Breach of this By-law, the sum of 10s. 6d., for the third Breach thereof the sum of £1. 1s., and for the fourth (all of them in Manner aforesaid and within the Year) his Book shall not be posted and more, except he pays the sum of Two Guineas and all former Forfeitures, within Fourteen Days of the Notice he shall receive thereof from the Secretary; or pays the sum of Five Guineas for a new Book any time thereafter, within the Year, and delivers up his old one.

XIII. In like Manner, if any Member shall leave his Book at any Place, except where he shall himself appoint constantly to leave the same locked up; and that said Book, by that Means cannot be found for three Days or shall be found in the Possession of any Person not a Member; such Member shall in like Manner forfeit as before, for the 1st, 2nd, 3rd, and 4th Breach of the said By-law: But if the Book shall be entirely lost the Forfeit shall be settled by the Committee, and the Member shall be obliged to pay Five Guineas for a new one.

In the issue, dated 1797-1798, appear for the first time the names of the gentlemen who composed the Committee for conducting the affairs of the Society, numbering 11, and including Mr. John Angerstein, then Chairman of Lloyd's.

The Register continued to be carried on by the underwriters to the apparent satisfaction of all concerned, until 1797, when a new style of classification was introduced, which aroused considerable opposition, and ultimately led to the formation of a rival

Register. This new Register, which was commonly known as the "Shipowners' Register" or Red Book, was a contradiction to the "Underwriters' Register" or Green Book, was a trifle larger than the older publication, of which it was, both as regards the particulars it contained and their arrangement, a precise copy.

The concurrent existence of two Registers, neither of which commanded general support, and each of which was under the guidance of one class only, self-elected and wholly irresponsible as they were at the time described, caused much dissatisfaction, and this found expression in a succession of public meetings held by merchants and shipowners, in 1823.

Mr. John Marshall, a shipowner of London, to whose sound judgment and untiring energy the movement owed a large measure of its success, has the honor to record a very full account of the proceedings at these meetings, from which we gather that both the Registers of Shipping had fallen largely into disrepute, and were travelling slowly to financial ruin.

Mr. Marshall advocated radical changes in the entire organization and administration of the Registers, which he suggested should consist of representatives of merchants, underwriters and shipowners.

REID, BANKING AND TRUST CORPORATION VS. REID NFDL CO., ET AL.

In the action of the Nfd. Banking and Trust Corporation vs. Reid Nfd. Co., Ltd., Mines and Forests (Nfd.) Ltd. and Nfd. Power and Paper Co., Ltd. which opened in the Supreme Court on June 10th before the Hon. Mr. Justice Kent, the taking of evidence was completed on Tuesday last when Mr. W. R. Howley, K.C., Senior Counsel for the defence, proceeded to sum up.

According to the pleadings filed the plaintiffs allege that the Banking and Trust Corporation was formed in October, 1919, by Messrs. H. B. Thomson, W. H. Greenwood and J. A. Macdonald for the purpose of selling or otherwise disposing of the properties and assets of the Reid Company and its subsidiary companies, and that through the efforts of the Corporation certain of their properties and assets were sold.

The plaintiffs allege further that under agreement with the Reid Company they were to receive commission on the purchase price of properties disposed of and the greater part of their claim is for ten per cent. commission on the amount realized by the Reid Company in cash, shares and royalties on the Humber Project. They also claim ten per cent. commission on the amount paid by the Newfoundland Government to the Reid Newfoundland Company in settlement of the Railway dispute under the agreement made in June, 1923 between the Government and the Company. Further claims are made for services alleged to have been rendered by the plaintiffs for the Reid Company in connection with its several undertakings.

The defendants allege in their defence that the plaintiffs are not entitled to commission on the Humber Project as the negotiations resulting in the agreement were carried on by the Reid Company direct with Messrs. Armstrong Whitworth Company after negotiations by the plaintiffs had come to nothing. They also contend that the agreement between the Government and themselves as to the settlement of the railway question was not the result of any work or negotiations on the part of the Plaintiff Company. They also contend that the plaintiffs have been remunerated for services rendered by them by payments made from time to time.

MR. HOWLEY—May it please your lordship: if we refer to the pleadings my lord, the first serious issue that we come to in this case is that contained in the latter part of paragraph 3 of the Statement of Claim, as amended; in which the plaintiffs plead that "in the months of December, 1919 and January, 1920, it was orally agreed between the said H. B. Reid on behalf of the Reid Company, with the said Henry B. Thomson and William Hamar Greenwood on behalf of the Plaintiff Company, that the Plaintiff Company should act as the sole agent of the Reid Company in Europe, and should receive reasonable remuneration for its services, and that so far as regarded services rendered in connection with any sales or other dealings in respect of which the Reid Company or its subsidiary companies should receive money, shares, or other securities or rights, such commission would be ten per cent. of the amount received."

The answer to that claim made in the defence consists first of all, of a straight denial of any such agreement; secondly, of the technical defence of the non-conformity with the requirements of Section 4 of the Statute of Frauds; thirdly, that if such agreement was made, it was repudiated by the commission agreement set forth in paragraph 7 of the Statement of Claim.

Now my lord, we submit that the allegation that such an agreement was made has not been sustained by the plaintiffs; and in order to review the situation, I would ask your lordship's patience while I briefly deal with the position of affairs—review the facts and the position of affairs that existed up to the time that it is alleged this agreement was made.

What are the facts? The facts, which I do not think are controverted either by one side or the other: in the early part of 1918, the summer of 1918, Mr. Thomson comes here in connection with his official duties, arising out of his position on the Food Control Board of Canada. He meets the Messrs. Reid, who have a large number of undeveloped assets, in the nature of water powers, timber lands, mineral lands, and other possible or potential assets. Nothing happens during the visit, beyond their referring to Mr. Thomson about the position of the Fish Products Company up here, and the stocks of fish which are on hand ready for realization; and Mr. Reid, who had met Mr. Thomson apparently casually, and not in any business like way at all, brings him up and shows him the fish plant, and tells him about the difficulties here, with the result that Mr. Thomson very kindly and not as a business matter at all, interests himself in it to the extent of telegraphing somebody on the other side as to the existence of this stock of fish.

THEN IN THE WINTER OF 1918-19, Mr. Reid goes to Montreal, and whilst in Montreal has occasion to go to Ottawa on business in connection with the Canadian subsidy to the steamer plying between Sydney and Port aux Basques; and there he meets Mr. Thomson, and the acquaintance that was commenced in Newfoundland in the summer of 1918 gradually broadens, and Mr. Reid mentions the position in which he had his company find themselves down here, the existence of these assets which they own, and what his views are with regard to possible development and realization; and Mr. Thomson immediately comes back with the suggestion that he is probably able to be of some assistance with regard to any projected programme for development that Mr.

Reid may have; and that goes on until it culminates on the 2nd April, 1919, in the letters which are set forth in Volume I—the letters of April 2nd, H.B.T. 10, which is No. 7 in the book. There had been some letters preceding that, but they are more or less of a general casual nature, having reference to this proposal for co-operation in development, but the first concrete evidence of anything that might be called a decisive or definite nature, is the letter H.B.T. 10 from Mr. Reid to Mr. Thomson, dated the 2nd April, 1919.

That Letter Begins: "Dear Mr. Thomson: "This Company controls the Newfoundland Products Corporation Ltd., which Company in turn holds the following assets: (1) The Humber Valley Area—water powers. (2) The Corner Brook area, the whole as more specifically defined in the plan herewith. Our purpose is to develop the assets of the Newfoundland Products Corporation Ltd., and you represent that you will be able to interest the requisite capital for such purpose."

Here, my lord, we see the germ, the beginning, the basis of the future development of the programme between Mr. Thomson and the Reid-Newfoundland Company. We, the Reid-Newfoundland Company have assets that we wish to develop, and you, Mr. Thomson, represent that you are able to interest the requisite capital for that purpose. They come together more or less, and that letter to Mr. Thomson is either accompanied by or followed immediately after by another letter of the same date, H.B.T. 11, which is No. 8 in the book, also from Mr. Reid to Mr. Thomson, which states that:

"Relative to our letter of even date, we appreciate your interest in this matter and it is understood that if a satisfactory investment of capital is secured and paid in, that you are able to receive as your return, (1) "25% of cash received and 25% of the common stock received, issued, or of capital proposed." It is interesting to note that Mr. Thomson tells us in his evidence that, I think he said, that he himself participated in the preparing of these letters.

MR. EMERSON—You made that statement once before Mr. Howley, and speaking from memory, I do not believe it is correct. My recollection is that that remark of Mr. Thomson applied to the $15,000 letter.

MR. HOWLEY—My impression was that it was these letters he was referring to.

MR. EMERSON—I am speaking from memory purely, and I think what I have just said is correct.

MR. HOWLEY—I am speaking from memory also. However, it is not a matter of importance, and if my memory has failed me on the matter, I am subject to correction; but that, my lord, is the genesis of the connection between Mr. Thomson and Mr. Reid in a business sense.

Now then, shortly after that Mr. Thomson went over to England, and he was followed in a few months by Mr. Greenwood, whose services in co-operation with Mr. Reid; and the first communication from England that we get on the matter is

Mr. Thomson's Letter of May 19th No. 11, which is marked H.B.T. 14:

"My Dear Reid: "Your cable reading as follows to hand: Important I get cable my progress Projects Co. Time now start making in fish. Is it advisable till shipping arranged. The following is my reply sent thereto sent last night: "Stewart not arrived yet working hard. Other parties writing fully present market glutted fresh fish—'Thomson.' I do not know when you will get this as great delays are reported in cable despatches. I took a long time getting here, but since my arrival I have been busy." "On my arrival here, I at once got in touch with some friends of mine relative to the Nitrogen proposition, and I have succeeded in getting them interested to the point that I hope to 'reply' before very long that a man will be on the way out to look into 'the whole question'—and so on.

What I would like to submit is, that he is a letter from Mr. Thomson that indicates that he has made material progress—progress to the effect that "before very long a man will be on the way out to look into the whole matter"; and having this general letter, which to say the least of it is the letter of an optimist—the letter of an optimist which nothing that he then had before him, or, as far as we can see, nothing that transpired afterwards, justified.

THE NEXT COMMUNICATION that we get is a letter from Mr. Greenwood, of the 28th June, 1919—No. 14, W.H.G. He says:

"Dear Mr. Reid: I am now in a position to report to you relative to my coming to London. I arrived, as you know, at Liverpool on Monday June 16th, and came up at once to London where I was met by Mr. Thomson and have been continuously with him day after day since that date. I have gone fully into all matters that you discussed with me in St. John's and on the way to Montreal. I find that he has been diligent on every phase of the business." And he goes on to the question that I wish to draw attention to,

and that is that this letter does not state so much what Mr. Thomson has accomplished, or what Mr. Thomson has done, but he goes on to tell us what he has done himself, and here is where we commence—"Let me state as I go along that I came over on the same boat with Professor J. G. McLellan, who is scientific adviser to the British Admiralty. He is a lifelong friend of mine having been a Professor of Physics at Toronto University. He was carrying with him the confidential report made to the Ministry of Munitions of War on its inventions branch relative to Nitrogen Products. This report I had the privilege of reading and making notes of, and I confidently expect to be able to get a copy of it through the kind offices of my brother Sir Hamar. This report bears out all that Mr. Thomson says about the electrical fixation of nitrogen, and its industrial development, is considered to be of the utmost importance by Professor McLellan and of those associated with him in the Government. I got from Professor McLellan a statement that he was willing to co-operate with Mr. Thomson and myself...."

So, my Lord, we have the position that apparently by an accident, which was not contemplated by Mr. Thomson at the time he made this representation to Mr. Reid as to his ability to interest capital; and which was not contemplated by Greenwood at any time until he met Professor McLellan on the boat, we have Professor McLellan injected into this thing as a helper towards the ultimate realization of these assets.

But the interesting paragraph is the one which deals with Major MacDonald. "I found my former business associate Major John A. MacDonald, who is attached to the British War Office in fine fettle, and thoroughly organized to carry on his extensive business so soon as he is demobilized which will take place in a few weeks." Then he goes on to tell what Major MacDonald has done, and particularly to accentuate his connection, and power and influence with financiers; and this is the first time that we hear of Major MacDonald. Here again is an accident. There is nothing to show that Mr. Thomson knew Major MacDonald at all when he first made his representations to Reid. There is nothing to indicate that Mr. Greenwood, up to the time of his arrival in England, had Major MacDonald in mind at all or had any knowledge of the fact that his former associate, MacDonald was to be found in London.

MR. EMERSON—I do not think that is quite correct. I think you will find that Major MacDonald had said that he had sent him his address at the War Office.

MR. HOWLEY: Yes, but he did not know where he was. He certainly did not know that Major MacDonald was in fine fettle, and thoroughly organized to carry on his extensive business; and by a curious accident or coincidence, Mr. Thomson and Mr. Greenwood, who have come over to England, with the object of introducing these Reid matters to financial people, find Major MacDonald in June thoroughly organized to do all that is necessary to carry out this programme of development and realization that the Reids have been dreaming of. What happens? Major MacDonald is not organized to carry on the business; Major MacDonald, I submit the evidence shows, is not, or was not in June at any rate, in touch with groups of financiers of the first rank. But, he is a man with an extensive business, thoroughly organized, and in touch with first rank capitalists, and in a position to carry out any development work such as was then in contemplation.

Incidentally, might I draw attention to the fact that as early as the 28th June, Mr. Greenwood tells us that this Major MacDonald is thoroughly organized to carry on business, and on the 27th September, Mr. Thomson tells us that Major MacDonald has recently formed a company.

MR. EMERSON—He does not say "recently."

MR. HOWLEY: He says: "in order to crystallize his situation, he has organized a company for the purpose of developing just such projects as you have."

What I want to point out is that there was no suggestion, no thought—nothing in that letter to point out to convey to the Reids what the nature or personnel of the company that Major MacDonald actually did form was.

Collided With Whale

Irishman Who Sailed 11-Ton Yacht Round the World Welcomed Home as Hero.

Water tanks leaked. Meat went bad. Mainmast sprung. Crew mutinied. Collided with whale. Became sun blind.

These, in brief, were a few of the adventures of Mr. Conor O'Brien, a Dublin architect, who has returned home with all the honors of a hero after a trip round the world in his 11-ton yacht.

When he arrived off the coast at Dalkey on the second anniversary of his departure, he was welcomed by 150 yachts and other craft, which escorted him into the harbor.

The coast from Dalkey to Kingstown was lined with people, even the nuns leaving their convent to join in the welcome.

Landing to the accompaniment of maroons, he was welcomed by the Dun Laoghaire Urban Council, and motored to Dublin, accompanied by a large procession of cars, and later was entertained to dinner.

From the Azores his sister was mate, and a native of the Friendly Islands, who is now in Ireland, with Mr. O'Brien, was his crew.

Residential Squares of London and Paris

Breaking Up of Large Fortunes Makes It Hard to Maintain Charming Open Spaces.

LONDON, July 1.—The change in social conditions is threatening the existence of the London squares. The stretches of grass-bordered trees and shrubs which stand in the middle of houses in the residential quarters of West End have been for a century one of the characteristic features of the metropolis, but with the breaking up of the great fortunes real estate owners are finding it harder to maintain them.

These squares are private property, belonging, as a rule, to the owners of the houses which surround them. When London was built originally many enlightened landowners laid the squares out to increase the value of the houses near them. Now the big estates are being broken up little by little and owners of the "freehold" squares are wondering if it would be worth their while to maintain them.

Already two or three of the picturesque plots have been sold for building purposes, and an appeal has been made by societies interested in preserving open spaces that the sales be stopped and the squares taken over by some public authority. The difficulty is that if they thus become public property they must be thrown open to the public, and the question will arise whether that will not tend to depreciate the value of adjacent real estate.

Much sentiment has been expended in the past on the plight of the ragged little child excluded from playing in the squares where her wealthy sister takes the air with her dogs and her nurse. It is contended, however, that if children of the poorer districts were permitted to use the squares, children of wealthy parents living in houses near by would not be allowed to go there.

Air Postage Stamps

South Africa has recently provided a novelty in the form of special air-mail postage stamps for use on the new Cape Town to Durban service. The stamp is slightly larger than the regular stamp, and shows a passenger aeroplane in flight.

Similarly, as a contribution to the funds of the Amundsen Polar Flight, the Norwegian Government placed at the disposal of the Air Navigation Association a proportion of an issue of seven air-stamps, depicting a Polar bear contemplating an aeroplane flying over the Arctic regions.

Philatelists will soon be privileged to dispatch letters by a semi-official air post between Paris and La Bourget. The letters will be franked by a souvenir stamp, showing a classical figure of Icarus in flight. According to legend, Icarus, son of Daedalus, flew with his father from Crete, but the sun melted the wax with which his wings were fastened on, and he fell into the sea.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT.—The Minister of Finance begs to acknowledge the receipt of $6.00 conscience money.—July 9, 11

GENUSES.

Genuses have often come from large families; Balzac was the youngest of a long line. Napoleon was an eighth child. Benjamin Franklin was the youngest of seventeen. Wagner and Mozart were both seventh children.

PURE FOODS

Purveyor of Jam's Jellies and Canned English Fruits to His Majesty KING GEORGE V. By Appointment

All Chivers' preparations are of guaranteed purity, and are made in the fresh air of the country under ideal hygienic conditions.

An international importance attaches to the Nations' Food Exhibition which was held at Olympia, in London, England, from the 11th April to 2nd May of this year. The arrangements bring well to the fore a matter which may not be so well known in the Dominions as in England. That is, the close association of Messrs. Chivers & Sons, Ltd., the makers of fruit products, with the actual growing of fruit and with general farming.

Not only in the Home country, but the whole world over, the Jams, Jellies, Marmalades, Canned Fruits, Custard Powders and scores of other fine products made by this firm are recognised as pre-eminent in quality. In England one feature largely contributing to this excellence is well known, and that is the fact that Messrs. Chivers are themselves fruit growers on a most extensive scale.

Messrs. Chivers & Sons own some 6,000 acres of land, of which a large proportion is devoted to fruit culture, and from their own orchards they take thousands of tons of fruit each year, freshly picked, straight from their own factory at Histon. The great value of this is manifest. The food undergoes no long dusty journey, and is not bruised or broken by the jolting of transport, but is taken direct from the picker to the boiling pans in all its freshness. It is boiled in silver-lined pans with the best refined sugar, so that its rich full flavour is perfectly preserved.

Apart from the use of home grown fruits, the firm has acquired a reputation among people of taste the whole world over for Marmalade; and Chivers' Olde English Marmalade made from the choicest Seville Oranges and refined sugar only is found on breakfast tables everywhere.

Side by side with this fruit growing, and fruit preserving industry, that of general farming and stock raising is carried on. The poultry and pigs ranging freely in the orchards help to keep down insect pests and to enrich the soil, while from the factory come residues which provide excellent feeding for a stock. So it is that the industries are happily associated. Everyone interested in these matters is aware that the word "Histon" in an animal's name is a guarantee of pedigree, for the horses, cattle, sheep, pigs, etc., reared at Histon have for many years taken the highest honours at the Royal and other Agricultural Shows in Britain. Stock from Histon is, moreover, exported across the seven seas to carry on the work of improving breeds in the Dominions, and elsewhere.

Friends in Newfoundland will be interested to hear that Messrs. Chivers have been asked, and have agreed, to stock in its entirety a farm annex as an additional attraction at the Nations' Food Exhibition, for 1925.

IN THE REALMS OF SPORT

JUNIOR LEAGUE FOOTBALL.

GAELIC . . . . . 2
C. Y. M. C. . . . . 1
Only a small attendance of spectators turned up at St. George's Field last evening to witness the C. Y. M. C. and Gaelic teams battle for the points in the Junior League. The heavy rain fell during the day left the field in a very sodden condition, and on this account the ball became very greasy which handicapped the players in their play. The game on the whole was very good, despite the conditions, and terminated in a victory for Gaelic by a score of 2 goals to their opponents.

First Half.

Gaelic defended the eastern goal in the first half and inside of one minute the ball had been worked into C.Y.M.C. territory, when Murphy notched up the first goal. Play then became evenly divided for several minutes, with narrow escapes on the opposing goals. Gaelic then went on the offensive and they secured a second goal ten minutes from the opening when Scutes found the net on a shot from midfield. The C. Y. M. C. forwards made several good runs to the eastern goal, but they always appeared to be out of luck. The teams crossed over with Gaelic leading by two goals.

Second Half.

In the second half the C. Y. M. C. teams put up a gallant fight to reduce their opponents lead, and for some minutes they confined the ball to Gaelic end, but after a hard struggle it was eventually cleared. They were rewarded in their efforts after twenty minutes of play had passed when Piercey availed of an opening and scored. C.Y.M.C. increased the pace from then on to the finish, and the Gaelic backs were given many anxious moments, but nothing further happened. The game ended in a victory for Gaelic by 2 goals to 1.

BOXING CONTEST FOR TWO TITLES.

Mason Adds Lonsdale Belt to Championship—Ninth-Round Win—Izzard's Stubborn Fight in Holland Park Bout.

After a particularly keen opening, followed by some heavy exchanges, Harry Mason beat Ernie Izzard in the ninth round at Holland Park.

Both of them were known to be former possessors of the light-weight championship of Great Britain and the latter holding the European title at the same weight. Thus both men went into the ring with a championship to gain and one to lose.

Both if them were known to be scientists as distinct from rugged fighters and both had experience.

The contrast was in build. Izzard is extremely tall for his weight, while Mason is stockily built. Thus Izzard had an advantage in reach to put against his rival's strength. In the first round both men showed a tendency to some close in-fighting. Izzard got in a nice right upper-cut, but Mason countered with a right to the head.

Mason Aggressive.

In the second round Mason caught his man with a right and left to the jaw, and again with a left. Izzard fought back with great stubbornness, but could make little impression on his opponent.

Both men went strongly in the third round, and to nasty jobs on the right side of Izzard's head by Mason the ball-holder replied with a powerful blow on Mason's eye.

It was a very evenly fought contest. Mason used both left and right well in the fourth round, but Izzard always countered well.

Izzard had the better of the fifth round, for not only did he land a fine right to the head, but he kept his opponent at a distance. Both men exchanged heavy blows in the next round, but in the seventh Mason got some nice rights and lefts home to the head and body.

In the eight round Mason landed a terrific right, which sent Izzard down, but the gong saved him. He rose for the ninth very groggily, and Mason beat his man down with rights and lefts to the head.

Izzard was by this time hopelessly beaten, and the referee awarded Mason the verdict.

In the chief of the subsidiary contests Johnny Sullivan, the Convent Garden lad, who has had experience with Carpenter in the DeCane, school, beat Sonny Bird, of Chelsea. It was only a points victory, but Sullivan held the upper hand throughout.

Frank Gascoyne (Newport) was no match for J. Carr, of Reading, and the Welshman's seconds threw in the towel when the half-way stage of a ten-rounds contest was reached.

In another ten-rounds contest Frank Harvey (Plymouth) beat Dick Donaldson (Stockton) on points.

PROSPERITY OF THE TOBACCO COMPANIES.

At a time of some uncertainty as to what various industries will be able to show in the way of net profits, investors will do well to bear in mind the excellent record of the leading tobacco companies.

R. J. Reynolds, American Tobacco, Liggett & Myers, Geo. W. Helms and U.S. Tobacco have reported a remarkably consistent upward trend in profits during the last ten years. Even poor years for general business do not materially disturb profits of these concerns. In line with the great expansions in cigarette consumption, profits of the companies specializing in this field have made the largest growth. Earnings of cigar companies have made less progress.

With respect to profits per dollar of invested capital, the tobacco companies had few superiors last year. Twenty tobacco companies earned an average of $11 per $100 of invested capital in 1924; in 1923 they earned $10, in 1922 $11, and in 1921 $10 per $100 of invested capital. These figures indicate the stability of profits irrespective of changing business conditions.

At the present time, we see nothing in prospect to interrupt the prosperity of the leading tobacco companies.

Tax Reduction Benefits Whole People

AND STIMULATES BOOM IN BUSINESS.

Calvin Coolidge, in Budget Address, Talks Common Sense—Economy, He Says, Can be Forced.

High light from the address of President Calvin Coolidge to the business organization of the United States government on Monday evening last:

"The direct beneficiaries of tax reductions are those who file the tax returns. The indirect beneficiaries are all the rest of the people."

"Taxation is nothing more or less than a restriction upon the freedom of the people. This money has to be earned. Those who have earned it, instead of being able to retain it for their own benefit, must necessarily turn it over to the government."

"We are seeking to let those who earn money keep more of it for themselves and give less of it to the government. This means better business, more of the comforts of life, general economic improvement, larger opportunity for education, and a greater freedom for all the people. It is in essence restoring our country to the people of our country. It re-endows them not only with increased material but with increased spiritual values."

"In the four years of operation under the budget system the annual expenditures have been reduced $2,081,000,000 and the public debt has been decreased $3,426,000,000."

"Economy in the cost of government is inseparable from reduction in taxes. We cannot have the latter without the former."

"Each tax reduction has been followed by a revival of business. If there is one thing above all others that will stimulate business it is tax reduction. If the government takes less, private business can have more. If constructive economy in federal expenditure can be assured it will be a stimulation to enterprise and investment."

"There can be no interruption in this effort for constructive economy in the federal business. To this we are dedicated. It is an effort to enrich the lives of the people we serve. There could be no nobler purpose. . . . Constructive economy in the business of government is for the benefit of the people."

"In this great business of the government we are undoubtedly continuing activities which are no longer essential or productive. The undertaking of new projects or lines of effort made essential by changing conditions should be marked by the weeding out of those no longer essential. I refer, of course, to those functions which are within your administrative discretion."

"Unfortunately the federal government has strayed far afield from its legitimate business. It has trespassed upon fields where there should be no trespass. If we could confine our federal expenditures to the legitimate obligations and functions of the federal government a material reduction would be apparent. But far more important than this would be its effect upon the fabric of our constitutional form of government, which tends to be gradually weakened and undermined by this encroachment."

"The cure for this is not in our hands. It lies with the people. It will come when they realize the necessity of state assumption of state responsibility. It will come when they realize that the laws under which the federal government hands out contributions to the states is placing upon them a double burden of taxation—federal taxation in the first instance to raise the money which the government donates to the states, and state taxation in the second instance to meet the extravagances of state expenditures which are tempted by the federal donations."

"This campaign for economy in federal expenditures has added greatly to the efficiency of the federal service. Constructive economy necessarily means efficiency."

"There are still reductions to be made. There are yet wastes to be eliminated."

"Wasteful, careless administrators of the government's substance, are out of place in the federal service. They will not be tolerated."

"If this policy means sacrifice, it is sacrifice for the benefit of 115,000,000 people. Their interests are paramount. Criticism by a few, who look askance at drastic paring down of spending, has little weight in the scale against the spontaneous commendation of the millions of people who have had brought to them with unmistakable clearness the result of such economy."

"An evening gown of tulle is embroidered in silver and crystals, and cut in scallops."

"For its added flutter and color contrast, the scarf becomes interestingly important."

"A wide belt of blond anade is worn on a pinstriped frock of yellow, string-colored chiffon."

"WILL A PASSING PHASE?"

Coal Coning Back.

Interesting prophecies with regard to the future of coal and the steam engine were made by Sir John Colman and Dr. John S. Haldane, the president, at the annual meeting of the Institute of Mining Engineers.

Sir John Colman, in a paper on "The Future of the Steam Engine," predicted that the importance of oil to this country was a subject which would be discussed in many quarters, but he looked upon oil as a passing phase which was passing. What oil does today coal would do again tomorrow, although oil would go through certain channels of use which would never be able to regain the position of coal.

Dr. Haldane, in a paper on "The Efficiency of Heat Engines," predicted that the future development of the steam engine would be in the lines of increased steam pressure with smaller and lighter engines. The boilers also would be designed in size as the pressure went up so that the complete engine and boiler would be much smaller than the equivalent internal combustion engine and would in all probability be more suitable and even superior for use in aeroplanes and motor cars.

Dr. Haldane said that the reason for this was that the steam engine had brought forward the paper because of the very uncertain position about the use of coal for steam engines. Some people seemed to believe that the use of coal for steam engines was going to be more or less abandoned. He believed that steam engines in the future, and the not so remote future, where steam was used by coal or oil, would take the place of internal combustion engines were now employed.

Waste of Heat Energy.

It came to this conclusion, not from a consideration of steam engines, but from biological considerations. The theoretical efficiency of a heat engine was put at 50 per cent of the heat units supplied to it, but they all knew that no engine in actual practice had ever given a greater efficiency than about 30 per cent. In the case of the steam engine they had to jacket every part of it to retain the heat, but in the internal combustion engine they had to adopt other measures to get rid of the heat, otherwise the steel would not stand the temperature to which it was subjected.

This was a waste of heat energy. While anticipating the future development of the steam engine along the lines of increased steam pressure with smaller and lighter engines, he did not think that steam engines and internal combustion engines would ever fight. He believed the steam engine would beat the internal combustion engine.

Mr. Sam Mayor, of Glasgow, said that if the same attention had been devoted to the development of steam engines as had been devoted to the internal combustion engine in marine work, they would have had a much more efficient engine than at present. There had been experiments in steam which produced an engine which in the smaller sizes showed economies which were unrealized in steam engines. The president presented the medals of the Institute to Sir William Gallacher, referring to Sir William's great achievements in regard to the causes of explosions in coal mines.

An Ancient Masonic Apron

NELSON, B.C., June—Handed down through successive generations for at least 17 years, a Masonic apron is in the possession of Mrs. F. M. McKee of this city, and it still is in a good state of preservation.

The apron came from Cork, Ireland. It was formerly owned by Barney Corbett of Antrim, who had the misfortune to be shipwrecked, when he lost the apron. Months later it was washed ashore on the Isle of Man in a chest in which Corbett kept it, and eventually returned to its owner. The action of the sea water discolored the apron somewhat, but the characters are still plainly discernible.

Since then the apron has passed down through several generations of the Corbett and has travelled many thousands of miles.
