He said: Honourable senators, I do not think it is necessary to give a long explanation on second reading of this bill. This legislation is of major importance, not only to the dairy industry of Canada but to the consuming public. However I do not think a long explanation is necessary, as this legislation has had virtually the unanimous support of all parties in the other place. The legislation was prompted by various farm organizations and the Dairy Council. I am sure that honourable senators could not help but be well aware of the provisions of this legislation, because of the publicity that has been given to this demand over the past few years.

This is the first piece of legislation I know of which sets up a commission which will have responsibility across Canada for the production and marketing of a farm product. We all know that there are many boards and commissions dealing with farm products in Canada but, without exception, I believe they are all confined to a given area of Canada or to less than 100 per cent of the total production in our country. This bill is breaking new ground in that it will put into the hands of this commission the responsibility for administering the production and marketing of dairy products from coast to coast in Canada.

One of the major problems that has confronted the dairy industry over the years—in fact, one of the problems that confront the producers of agricultural products generally—is the fluctuation in the volume of the product and a consequent fluctuation in price. Of course this does no good to either the producer or the consumer.

We can think of many occasions when dairy products were in surplus in Canada, and consequently we had depressed prices which were of little benefit to the producer and of no lasting benefit to the consumer. Once you have a commodity in surplus production, depressed prices follow. Soon you find the producers going out of production, your surpluses disappear and you find yourself then faced with a demand for a product that is not available. Consequently, prices increase rapidly and this, I again suggest, is of no lasting benefit to the producer and certainly is of no benefit to the consumer. So, the vicious circle goes round and round—overproduction, lower prices; underproduction, higher prices.

We have had virtually chaos in the dairy industry and in other agricultural industries in Canada for many years, and it is my belief that this legislation, if passed by this house, will certainly go a long way to solve this particular problem.

We only need to look back to 1963 when we had chaotic conditions in the dairy industry because of, I suggest, surpluses. The demand was made at that time for the setting up of a commission similar to that provided for in Bill C-205. You will recall, I am sure, that in 1965 when the Government of the day announced their support prices for dairy products for that year they also announced that provision would be made for the setting up of a dairy commission. This announcement brought an immediate response from organized farmers and the dairy industry generally in support of the Government's intention to bring forward this particular piece of legislation.

I think at this point we must remember that under our Constitution the responsibility for agricultural production and marketing controls is largely provincial. However, when an agricultural product is being moved from one province to another, or from this nation to another nation, then it becomes a federal responsibility over which the provinces have no jurisdiction.

This legislation makes provision for the federal commission to work in co-operation with the provincial boards across Canada to control the dairy industry. It is my sincere hope that this will bring some stability to production, to the prices paid to the producers and to the prices that will be charged to the consumers. I hope this will mean that we can develop in Canada a dairy industry that will meet the needs of the Canadian people generally, both as consumers and as producers.

Bill C-205 makes provision for the appointment by order in council of three members to this Board, and of course they will have a second consultative committee of nine members whose experience and advice will be available to the three-member Board. I understand that in appointing people to these boards the industry generally will be kept in mind, as will the producers, the processors and the consumers. It seems to me that these are the people who ought to have representation on a commission of this type.

In order that the commission may operate, naturally it will have to have some finances, and provision is made in the bill for three sources of finance to the commission. First, the amount required for the implementation of the federal dairy support program will be provided under the provisions of the Agricultural Stabilization Act; second, the amounts required for the commission's own administrative operations will be provided by a vote of Parliament; and, thirdly, the commission will be empowered to raise funds through levies and licences.

It is again my understanding that the moneys raised through levies and licences can be used for the promotion of dairy products in Canada and, I presume, abroad.

I mentioned earlier that the commission will be working in co-operation with the provincial boards across Canada, and the legislation makes provision that if the provinces require this commission to administer some parts of their own programs on their behalf, that will be possible.

In conclusion I can only say to you that it is my hope that this Board can do for the dairy farmers of Canada and for the consuming public what the Canadian Wheat Board has been able to do for the western farmer in the production of wheat. I am not going to get into any discussion about the Canadian Wheat Board other than to say that I think it would be a stronger board and would serve Canada better if it were to manage the production of all cereal grains in Canada rather than just a part. I am glad to say that this commission will be handling the production and sale of dairy products across Canada.

If it is the wish of honourable senators to have this bill referred to a committee, I am prepared to move that it be referred to the Standing Committee on Banking and Commerce. It may be, however, that you would like to proceed with it without reference to committee. It is a matter for honourable senators to decide.

Hon. G. Percival Burchill: May I ask a question at this stage? In the various provinces we have our own provincial dairy commissions. I know we have a very active one in the Province of New Brunswick which fixes prices to the consumer, and so on. How will this proposed commission work in with the provincial commissions?

Hon. Mr. McDonald: As I have tried to point out, this will work in harmony and co-operation with the provincial boards, such as your provincial board in New Brunswick. We have now arrived at the situation in Canada where milk produced in, for example, New Brunswick may not of necessity be consumed there. In Saskatchewan we are going to have to import milk, and it is not possible for the Saskatchewan provincial board to deal with milk coming in from another province. I do not anticipate any problems in this regard. The provinces in fact have asked the federal Government for this type of legislation on many occasions in the past, and I think we can have complete harmony between the provincial boards and this federal commission.

Hon. Harry A. Willis: Honourable senators, I want it clearly understood that I speak to you today as a farmer.

I congratulate the sponsor of this bill. I have secretly hoped that my friend, Senator Harry Hays, a previous Minister of Agriculture, would be the sponsor of this bill because when I was buying Holsteins and he was auctioneer I paid more for those I bought than he got for me for those I sold. Therefore, for personal reasons I was hoping he would be the sponsor. Nevertheless, we had a very able man sponsoring this bill.

Honourable senators, I think this is the first time in her history that Canada has had a lawyer as Minister of Agriculture.

Hon. Mr. Hayden: That is very good.

Hon. Mr. Willis: I will tell you about that in a minute; you just listen.

True to lawyer's form and lawyer's techniques, he is developing the same instincts as he had when he was in his law office. I commend him for what he is attempting to do on behalf of the farmers of Canada, but I criticize the way in which he is attempting to do it. Like a lawyer, he announced amid acclaim in March of this year that the farmers were going to get $4 per hundredweight for their milk. Naturally, that perked up the farmers all over Canada regardless of political affiliation and regardless of the province in which they farmed. That, as I say, was the announcement of the Minister of Agriculture, Mr. Greene.

Then in May 1966, about six weeks after he made that announcement, the Department of Agriculture published a leaflet which was distributed widely throughout Canada to all farmers, entitled "A Letter to the Farmer—It Pays to Know Everything." I do not know whether he was thinking that he was enunciating legal principles to the farmers when he said, "It Pays to Know Everything."

Hon. Mr. McCutcheon: "The truth shall make you free"!

Hon. Mr. Willis: In any event, in that letter which was distributed widely he also reemphasized what he had announced in March.

Then in his notes for an address in Crysler, Ontario on June 11 last his opening remarks were:

> I would like to spend a few minutes discussing the new dairy program that came into effect on April 1.

And he went into it again with another six pages of the same thing he had said in March, and much the same thing as appeared in the leaflet in May.

Despite the fact that on June 20 he moved in the other place a resolution with respect to this bill and then on June 23 spoke to the bill itself—which I will come to later—much to my surprise and shock yesterday I received in my mailbox at the post office here a letter—I suppose all honourable senators and probably all members of the House of Commons received a similar one—and what does it say? It says, "Subject: Minister explains dairy policy." This is dated last Friday, June 24, and I received it yesterday, Tuesday, at noon.

Thinking I was going to speak yesterday afternoon, I really could not believe my eyes when I saw this letter in which he again attempts to explain the way some misunderstandings he said occurred in the announcements, and that people were taking it wrongly and misinterpreting it. As I say, I suppose I was not the only one he was seeking out because he did not know I was going to speak on this bill, and I imagine everybody received a copy. That is four or five times the minister has sought to enunciate what his dairy policy is, despite the fact that he spoke in the other place on June 20 and June 23.

Then, yesterday morning in the Globe and Mail, a much-honoured paper in the City of Toronto, in the second section, on the front page there appeared this headline, "Ottawa Backs Probe Into Milk." The sponsor should have mentioned that the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa had already appointed someone to investigate the price of milk in the Province of Ontario. This news item announced:

> Backed by a grant from the federal Department of Agriculture, Brian B. Perkins will investigate the effects of milk pricing policies on the returns to the producers.

Honourable senators, with the background I have recited as to what the minister has stated on five occasions, the Department of Agriculture, with this bill already passed in the other house and then before the Senate for consideration, announces that a professor of economics in the Department of Agriculture at Guelph University—and he must be all right, but I do not know him at all—is going to start investigating the effects of milk-pricing policies in the Province of Ontario, and that investigation is going to take approximately two years. Where is the legislation? Where is the guiding influence of the Department of Agriculture for Canada? I think it is at cross-purposes.

Then Mr. Greene issued his "writ" as a lawyer, and he appeared on June 20 before the other place in the resolution stage and explained it by saying:

> It is the first bill that will provide a legislative base for the establishment of a commission with Canada-wide responsibility for an agricultural commodity.

I want you to note the words, "with Canada-wide responsibility".

Then later in the same explanation, at page 6657, the minister went on to say:

> Under our constitution, the responsibility for agricultural production and for marketing controls lies largely with the provinces. However, when agricultural commodities cross interprovincial or international boundaries, federal authority is involved.

So there is no doubt whatsoever about it, the minister himself stated in the other place that the control of milk prices is a federal matter.

Then later in the debate on the bill itself he reiterated much the same thing as he had said in the resolution stage, and asked the other place to accept what he said in the resolution stage, to go along with what he intended to say during the debate itself.

My honourable friend the sponsor said that all parties in the House of Commons voted for it unanimously, but if he reads the proceedings both in the resolution stage and in the debate he will see there were grave questions asked both by the official Opposition and the N.D.P. and Social Credit members. They commended the minister for bringing in such a bill, but wanted to know what he was going to do for the farmers.

When he introduced that bill, honourable senators, he knew as well as we know that there were various rates already set by various provinces for the price of whole milk. For instance, the Province of Quebec has no set price, so the people in that province can willy-nilly market their milk in any other province if they can meet the competition. The Province of Ontario has a price, and it is $3.25.

Hon. Mr. Burchill: The whole province?

Hon. Mr. Willis: Yes, the whole province. It is $3.25, and that is where the minister got his figure of $4. He was going to add 75 cents and that would bring it up to $4, but he forgot—I know the honourable Senator Burchill knows, because he asked the question he did—that there are other costs involved. There are transportation costs and various other involvements which would not be covered by the 75-cent increase.

Therefore, I say that this bill is one that does not apply fairly to all provinces. I think that if we are asked to approve a bill of such a far-reaching nature as this one, it should apply equally to all the provinces and we should make sure that each province has a set price.

Section 121 of the British North America Act—and this applies to what the minister said about this being a federal matter—states:

> All articles of the Growth, Produce, or Manufacture of any one of the Provinces shall, from and after the Union, be admitted free into each of the other Provinces.

That is why I argue that this is not a provincial matter at all. It is a federal matter, and the reason there are such goings on in some of the provinces is because of the promise which was made several times by the Minister of Agriculture that they would get $4 per hundredweight for their milk.

Now, let us look at the bill itself. Section 2(b) defines "dairy product". Just listen to what a dairy product is under this bill:

> ..."dairy product" means milk, cream, butter, cheese, condensed milk, evaporated milk, milk powder, dry milk, ice-cream, malted milk, sherbet,—

I had some last night.

> —or any other product manufactured wholly or mainly from milk.

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): What flavour, Harry?

Hon. Mr. Willis: Lemon—and that is what this bill is, and it goes on to say that is what it is.

Of course it appoints a commission of three persons whose tenure of office is such that there will always be a membership of three. Their salaries and expenses are subject to the approval of the Governor in Council, no doubt on the recommendation of the Minister of Agriculture.

Honourable senators might be interested in subsection 5 of section 3 which reads:

> A member ceases to hold office upon reaching the age of seventy years.

That is not 75 years, as in this chamber.

Then, as if a commission of three members were not enough, provision is made for a consultative committee, and it has how many members? The number is nine. So you have three commissioners, and you have nine members of the consultative committee—whatever that means. I would think that three commissioners would be sufficient. but if there has to be a consultative committee, then it should have a membership of ten so that there could be equal representation of all the provinces of Canada. It is my opinion that that is what is required, and this bill should be amended accordingly. From where are the nine members to come? My honourable friend, the sponsor of this bill (Hon. Mr. McDonald) said they would all be experienced dairymen. I hope they are, but I think that each province should be represented on that consultative committee.

My honourable colleague next to me says that Newfoundland does not have a dairy industry, but Senator Hollett says it does.

This bill goes on in section 8 on page 3 to say:

> The objects of the Commission are to provide efficient producers of milk and cream with the opportunity of obtaining a fair return for their labour and investment and to provide consumers of dairy products with a continuous and adequate supply of dairy products of high quality.

Hon. Mr. McCutcheon: Who defines "efficient"?

Hon. Mr. Willis: As far as I can tell, it is the minister himself, although it is not stated specifically in the bill.

The bill then provides for the powers of the commission, which are that they can store dairy products themselves; they can ship them; they can make payments for the benefit of producers of milk and cream as they see fit; and paragraph (c) of subsection 1 of section 9 provides that they can > make investigations into any matter relating to the production, processing or marketing of any dairy product, including the cost of producing, processing or marketing that product.

Honourable senators know that at the meeting of the Standing Committee on Banking and Commerce this morning a lot was said about a provision of the Income Tax Act and an amendment to the Bankruptcy Act, but I have never in my life seen a measure with such provisions as to policing as this. It is away ahead of the amendments to the Bankruptcy Act, and of the provisions of the Income Tax Act.

Subsection 3 of section 9 provides that the Commission may make rules as it deems necessary for the regulation of its proceedings, for the fixing of a quorum, and so on. Under the heading of "Duties of Commission" the commission has to report once a year, following determination by the Governor in Council, pursuant to the Agricultural Stabilization Act, of the total amount to be paid by the Agricultural Stabilization Board to the commission for the purpose of stabilizing the price of milk and cream. From that I suppose the Agricultural Stabilization Board is going to remain in existence, but why that is necessary under this setup I do not know.

Section 12, under the heading "Regulations"—and this is the most iniquitous part of all—reads:

> (1) The Governor in Council may make regulations regulating the marketing of any dairy product, including regulations
>
> (a) providing for the marketing of any dairy product on a quota basis;
>
> (b) designating the agencies through which any regulated product shall be marketed;

Then listen to paragraph (c) which is at the top of page 5:

> (c) providing for the issue of licences to persons engaged in the production or processing of a regulated product for market, prescribing the fees therefor and providing for cancellation or suspension of licences;
>
> (d) prohibiting persons from engaging in the marketing of any dairy product, or any class, variety or grade thereof, in whole or in part except under the authority of a licence.

In the Province of Ontario we have hotel licences, and we have licences for other businesses that are being carried on, but according to my interpretation of this bill it means that every farmer who has a dairy herd must be licensed, and any person who sells ice-cream must be licensed, and any person who sells or deals in any of these products which I have enumerated, and which cover everything from milk production down, must be licensed by this commission under this bill.

The bill provides that the commission may appoint inspectors, and that the inspectors may go around and look into the books of any particular licensed individual, whether he be a farmer or an ice-cream seller, and such farmer or ice-cream seller must keep books. Section 18 provides:

> The Commission may appoint or designate any person as an inspector for the purposes of this Act.

And section 19 reads:

> (1) An inspector may at any reasonable time enter any place in which he reasonably believes there is any regulated product and may require any person to produce for inspection or for the purpose of obtaining copies thereof or extracts therefrom, any books, records or documents relating to that product.

That means that farmers, ice-cream sellers, or any one dealing in these products, must be licensed and must keep books. The farmers will not have time to milk the cows if they are required to keep books and have an inspector coming around and looking at them. Any honourable senator who was born and raised on a farm, as I was, before I went to university, knows that the farmer and the farmer's wife have no time to keep books such as that. They would have to employ a man to do it, and anybody who knows anything about farming knows that it is all a farmer can do to get a hired man, quite aside from getting a man to keep books for him.

Section 21 provides:

> (1) Every person who, or whose employee or agent, contravenes or fails to comply with any provision of this Act or any regulation made thereunder is guilty of an offence and liable
>
> (a) on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding five hundred dollars or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months or to both such fine and imprisonment.

Then subsection 2—and this made my blood run cold—provides:

> In a prosecution for an offence under this section it is sufficient proof of the offence to establish that it was committed by an employee or agent of the accused whether or not the employee or agent is identified.

That certainly refutes the common law that a man is not to be convicted until he is proven guilty, and that he should not be proven guilty on the evidence of somebody who is no longer in his employ or who cannot be identified. But that is what this bill says. However, in all fairness, it does go on to say:

> Where it is established in any prosecution for an offence under this section that the offence was committed by an employee or agent of the accused, it is a defence to the accused that he exercised all due diligence to prevent the commission of the offence.

That alleviates it somewhat, but in my opinion it is of very little help.

Hon. Mr. McCutcheon: It still puts it backwards.

Hon. Mr. Willis: It certainly puts it backwards. It puts the responsibility upon the accused, and my lawyer friends here know that it is the law of this country that a man is not guilty until he is proven to be guilty in a court of law. On my interpretation of this bill, all that has to be done by the inspector, or whoever it is this commission sends out to a farm or to an ice-cream establishment, or to those places that sell sherbet or powdered milk and such products, is to ask that the books be produced, and look them over, and if he sees some irregularity in them he can whistle the man into court. I would say that this section will not provide that man with a fair trial. That is why I oppose this bill strenuously.

Perhaps the principle of the bill is in the right direction. It is intended to help farmers, because they need help. However, this is the way the bill has been drawn. I am not suggesting that the Minister of Agriculture, because of his legal training, inserted these sections, but I think he has listened to some of his legal advisers in the department. It is my opinion that this act does not achieve what it is intended to achieve.

Hon. T. D'Arcy Leonard: Honourable senators, in the light of the remarks of the sponsor of the bill (Hon. Mr. McDonald) and Senator Willis, I would like to make a suggestion to the house.

Honourable senators will recall that when we were dealing with Supplementary Estimates (A) the other day Senator Brooks called attention to some items in those Estimates, one of which was for some $3,700,000 under "Agriculture", by way of payments to farmers with respect to drought losses last year. As a result of his calling attention to that item, I have been in touch with the office of the Minister of Agriculture and asked him to be present at the meeting of the Finance Committee, or to have a senior officer of his department present, if he cannot be available himself. That meeting will take place tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock.

Therefore, I make the suggestion that if this Dairy Commission bill is to be referred to a committee, it might be convenient to send it to the Finance Committee, which will meet tomorrow, at which time the minister, or a senior official, could deal with both items in the Supplementary Estimates.

Hon. Mr. Willis: Honourable senators, I realize that we do not know what will take place at the Finance Committee meeting tomorrow, I would like to be present, but unfortunately I cannot be there. Perhaps the committee will get along better without me, but I want to make it clear that I cannot be present.

Hon. Mr. Leonard: Am I to understand from what the honourable senator has said that he will not be available at all tomorrow?

Hon. Mr. Willis: I shall not be available at all. I shall be attending a directors' meeting in Toronto.

Hon. A. J. Brooks: Honourable senators, I had intended to make fairly extensive remarks on this bill, but I do not plan to do so now.

I wish to congratulate the honourable Senator McElman on his presentation of the Atlantic Provinces bill. It was his first speech in the Senate, and he certainly conducted himself very well indeed. At the same time I wish to thank him for the kind remarks he made regarding myself. I do not think they were altogether deserved, but we all like to hear such remarks whether they are deserved or not.

Hon. Mr. Hugessen: They were well deserved.

Hon. Mr. Brooks: I congratulate Senator McDonald, the sponsor of the bill. He is a very busy man in the Senate. He has sponsored many bills. This of course, indicates that quite a few agricultural matters are receiving attention, which is all to the good and as it should be.

I also congratulate the honourable Senator Willis for his careful analysis of a rather difficult bill. That is one reason I shall have only a few remarks to make on the bill. The honourable senator deserves credit. He is a good lawyer. I do not know whether or not he considers himself to be a good farmer.

I had been looking around to find a dairy farmer to make remarks on this bill, and the only one I could find was my good friend Senator Willis. I was a little discouraged, though, when he mentioned the fact that the dairy stock that he had auctioned off did not bring a very good price, and that he had to pay a much higher price for new stock. Probably he is not quite as good a farmer as he is a lawyer. This is a subject of great importance. One has only to read the press, listen to the radio, or watch television nowadays, to realize that this matter of the dairy farm is a serious one. I express the same hope as Senator Willis did, that this act will be of some benefit to the dairy farmers of Canada.

My chief reason for rising to speak is not that I know much about dairying, but that I come from and represented for quite a number of years one of the finest dairy sections in Canada. My town of Sussex and the surrounding country is called the dairy centre of the Maritimes. My constituency is a dairy-producing region and supplies the City of Saint John with most of its milk. In Sussex we have two large cheese and butter factories, and the whole economy of that part of New Brunswick is more or less bound up with the dairy industry. Our people are worried about the dairy industry and are sincere in making their demands at this time.

Listening to the radio this morning, I heard a farmer's wife complain that farmers are not getting the $4 increase for milk that they were promised. The gentleman who replied to her explained that the $4 is not paid for the milk that is sold and distributed to the consumers here in Ottawa, but is paid for milk used in the making of cheese, butter, powdered milk and so on, and that there is a higher price for the milk which the consumer buys. The dairies, which had previously paid $5.25, raised that amount to $5.75. I believe that is correct.

Hon. Mr. Burchill: That is correct.

Hon. Mr. Brooks: But as this lady also pointed out, while the dairy pays only $5 per hundredweight for milk, the charge to the consumer is $14. Of course, as my good friend Senator Willis pointed out, there is considerable expense in connection with the delivery of milk, transportation and so on. These are all expenses which must be borne. However, in my opinion, the farmer is not getting his fair share of the production of this essential commodity.

We also heard this morning that the cost of living is going up two points. The lady to whom I referred also complained that the farmer was being blamed for the increase in the cost of living, which is most unfair, because again I point out that while the farmer receives a small amount of the increases in these farm commodities and the subsidies paid for them, the producers and others get their share, and sometimes very little of it gets back to the farmer.

I would like to quote to honourable senators a few remarks made by some of the dairy farmers in the Maritime provinces. These comments are taken from the Halifax Chronicle:

> According to briefs presented by the United Milk Producers Association dairy farmers in the Maritimes are paid less than workers in other parts of the economy—

Of course that is a fact which is all too well known.

> —receive a negligible amount of Government aid and come in for much adverse publicity . . .
>
> These views were expressed by the president of one of the milk and cream producers' associations at a meeting held in the Maritimes.
>
> This brief reported that while the incomes of wage and salary workers had increased by 94 per cent since 1949, dairy farmers had experienced only a 54 per cent increase. If measured in constant 1949 dollars and an allowance for a return on capital was deducted from farmers' incomes, there has actually been a 10 per cent decrease.

Again, it was pointed out in regard to the federal Government's subsidy program, "Federal subsidies are handed out in such small amounts to the average dairyman that after the surplus milk is considered, there is no subsidy left".

It was considered at this meeting that the one and a half cent per quart increase dairy farmers received last year adds up to nothing in the long run.

And this is a quotation from the Chairman:

Our take home pay has not increased because we have more surplus now.

The honourable Senator McDonald spoke about the increases not only to workers but other branches of the farming industry.

We know that in the past few years the wheat farmers of the West have become wealthy, or at least have been making a lot of money. I am sure my good friend Senator Aseltine will confirm that statement.

I also know that the potato producers, for instance, in my own province have been making money, as have many of the producers of various fruits in different parts of Canada. But the dairy farmer is the one farmer who has not been on the list of those making money or prospering.

I very seldom mention personal experiences, but may I say that when I was home last week I met quite a number of farmers. One old gentleman of over 80 years of age came to see me—not particularly about dairying, although he is a dairy farmer. He told me how he and his son were making out. He said there was no money in dairying now. I quote his words: "When I was running the farm I used horses and there was very little expense; my son is operating the farm now and he has all the modern machinery, which he has had to purchase, leaving him very much in debt, and we are not making a success at all." He added that to supplement his work on the farm his son got a job in my town, Sussex, which is 15 miles from his farm. He gets up at 5 o'clock in the morning, and he and his wife and one other of his family milk 17 head of cattle. At 8 o'clock he has to be in Sussex for his work, and he is there until 5 o'clock in the evening when he comes home and helps to milk the 17 head of cattle.

Hon. Mr. Aseltine: By machinery?

Hon. Mr. Brooks: Yes. That is what I say—he has had to buy machinery, and he is trying by this method to pay for it.

I know the situation very well, as I know many of the farmers around Sussex. They are all having difficulties, in the same way as all farmers across Canada.

I welcome this legislation. I do not know whether it will be a success or not. I sincerely hope it will, because I do not know of any farming assistance more needed in Canada today than this legislation to help the dairy farmer.

Hon. Mr. Power: Who wants to drink milk?

Hon. Mr. Brooks: Babies do. Senator Roebuck and I agree that we must look after the babies—as he told us earlier this afternoon. Therefore, we must encourage the dairy farmer. I think that is a logical conclusion to reach.

I hope that this legislation will increase the income of the dairy farmer and result in putting more people on the farm. That is something it may help to bring about. For some years more and more farms are being deserted. I hope the dairy farm will become the great milk-producing factor. I believe 14,000 left the farms last year in Canada, and more are leaving all the time. I am keen that this legislation should be a success, that it should improve the lot of the dairy farmer and keep more men in the dairy business and more farmers on the farm.

Hon. Mr. Roebuck: Honourable senators perhaps I will be pardoned for a discordant note.

Hon. Mr. Hugessen: Another farmer?

Hon. Mr. Roebuck: Yes. I am a farmer all right, but I am not speaking as a farmer now, though I might do so equally with my friends across the way.

Hon. Mr. Brooks: You do not have to make your living on the farm.

Hon. Mr. Roebuck: That is true. I do not know but that I might have made a better living on the farm than I have made in the city. The actual fact is that I represented for some years a constituency in one of the great cities of Canada and I know something about the need in the cities for milk. I know what it means to the children, to the coming generation, to have a proper supply of milk at a price that the parents can afford. I have been somewhat amazed as I listened to some of the eloquent remarks which have been made. I congratulate Senator McDonald on the wonderful explanation he gave of this bill, and also those who followed him.

It strikes me as remarkable that, with all those eloquent addresses we have heard in the interests of the dairy industry, we have not heard one person yet suggest anything about the consumer. I have some sympathy for the dairyman and the farmer and I know something about their difficulty. I passed my boyhood on the farm and in those days we did not milk cows by machinery. I milked my share of the cows, both morning and night—by hand.

Hon. Mr. Brooks: So did I.

Hon. Mr. Roebuck: I know something about farming and all the rest of it, but I know an immense amount about the needs of consumers in our cities.

The very purpose of this bill is to set aside competition, which is the regulatory principle of our civilization, and to fix prices in the interests of the dairy industry; and I see nothing in it that suggests any protection for the consumer.

Hon. Mr. Brooks: Might I ask the honourable senator a question at this point? I can see what he is leading up to. If the farmer is receiving $3 to $4 a hundredweight for his milk, and if the consumer is paying $14, where are you going to make the deduction?

Hon. Mr. Roebuck: I see nothing in the bill which answers that question. The middleman may be making an exorbitant profit. I do not know. The farmer may be getting less than his due. But we regulate that in all other industry by competition.

When the price is higher than the services rendered justify, then others come in and compete. Equally, when the price is too low, some drop out. So you have natural forces regulating industry and commerce and protecting the consumer. There is nothing in this bill that in any way suggests that the rights and the interests of the consumers will be protected in relation to these particular products.

Milk, cheese and all other products of her majesty the cow are subject to this bill. I am a little worried about it. I am not quite satisfied that the interests of the consumer and his family—the coming generation—are at least thought about in this matter. I hope this bill will go to a committee.

Honourable senators, now I am going to speak, not as a farmer but as a lawyer. I am not so sure that this bill is well drawn. For instance, on page 2, it says:

> Property acquired by the Commission is the property of Her Majesty and title thereto may be vested in the name of Her Majesty or in the name of the Commission.

Of course, you do not vest a title: you vest the property. It is the property that is vested—and not in the name of Her Majesty. If it is to be vested, it is vested in Her Majesty or in the Commission.

I do not know what they are talking about when they speak like that, whether they are talking about the vesting of the property acquired by the Commission or about the registration of the title. The title is not vested in anyone. You might talk about the title to a piece of land being vested in someone, but that is not correct English. What you say is that the property, the land, is vested in the individual and the title accordingly is registered in his name.

The lawyers who drew this particular clause should reconsider it.

Hon. Cyrille Vaillancourt: Will the honourable senator permit a remark? Every province has a provincial council or board, and every provincial board fixes the price from the producer to the consumer. It cannot be regulated by this law; the provincial law regulates the provincial price.

Hon. Mr. McDonald: Honourable senators—

The Hon. the Speaker: I must warn honourable senators that if Senator McDonald speaks now it will have the effect of closing the debate.

Hon. Mr. McDonald: Honourable senators, first I wish to refer to the question raised by honourable Senator Roebuck and to his statement that there is no protection in this bill for the consuming public. I suggest that is not quite true.

As I tried to point out in my opening remarks, one of the greatest problems in agriculture today, whether it be the dairy or other industry, is the instability of supply and demand. Prices go sky high, and many new producers get into production of milk and other commodities, and those already in production expand their facilities and you get overproduction and falling prices. I suggest that neither of these conditions is good for either the producer or the consumer. If this commission works as I think it will, it will mean we will have a price for dairy products in Canada that will encourage production to meet the demand, but will not encourage a surplus or a deficit of the product. If we have sufficient dairy products to meet the demand in Canada, we will have stable and fair prices.

The honourable senator also mentioned the fact that competition often regulated the price of a product. To my knowledge there is no competition in the sale of whole milk in Canada today. The sale of whole milk is administered by the milk control boards in the provinces.

Hon. Mr. McCutcheon: It is not as it is between Ontario and Quebec.

Hon. Mr. McDonald: In the provinces themselves they are controlled by milk control boards, which set the prices paid by the consumer and charged by the producer.

Hon. Mr. McCutcheon: That is where the product is produced and sold in the same province.

Hon. Mr. McDonald: This applies where the product is produced and sold in the same province, that is right. There is a special situation in the border areas of Ontario and Quebec.

Hon. Mr. McCutcheon: This is going to affect interprovincial marketing.

Hon. Mr. McDonald: We now have a situation where many areas are deficient in production which were not deficient before. It seems to me that this commission is going to be good for Canada. If a certain area of the country is more suitable for the production of milk than others, why should it not be produced there and moved into areas where the supply does not meet the demand? I believe this legislation will help to encourage the movement of milk and dairy products from areas where there is a surplus to areas where there is a deficiency.

Hon. Mr. McCutcheon: I agree with much of what my honourable friend said, but it does not answer the point raised by Senator Roebuck—it underlines it.

Hon. Mr. Brooks: In Newfoundland they do not have a surplus of milk, but I read the other day that we are reducing the tariff on margarine coming in.

Motion agreed to and bill read second time.

REFERRED TO COMMITTEE

On motion of Hon. Mr. McDonald, bill referred to the Standing Committee on Finance.

BUSINESS OF THE SENATE

Hon. John J. Connolly: Honourable senators, I have an announcement to make. I am informed that in the other place they have foregone the private members' hour between five and six, and they propose to sit until 11 o'clock this evening. Perhaps they are making some progress.

I think at this stage and in view of the next item on the Order Paper, it would be convenient for all if the Senate now took recess, to reassemble at the call of the bell at approximately eight o'clock.

Hon. Arthur W. Roebuck: Honourable senators, before we adjourn may I deal with a matter of some little importance at this stage.

Honourable senators will remember that I suggested not long ago that in the notices of meetings of committees there should be included some information as to what it was proposed to discuss at the meetings.

I have in my hand four notices that have come to me while we have been sitting. One is with reference to the Standing Committee on Finance, which I see is to consider supplementary Estimates. The second is with reference to the Standing Committee on Banking and Commerce, which is to consider the automotive agreement. But I have two others, one relating to Miscellaneous Private Bills and the other on Transport and Communications, and no mention is made on either notice of what is to be discussed at these meetings.

We are all busy people and I do not see why we should not have the names of the bills as well as the numbers included on these notices. If this were done, it would not be necessary for each one of us to look up the number to ascertain whether the bill is one in which we are particularly interested.

May I ask our Leader to use his good offices to have the officials put the name of the bill as well as the number on the notice.

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): Would it be satisfactory if there were some reference to the bill? Some of the titles are rather long.

Hon. Mr. Roebuck: As long as the substance of the bill is mentioned, it will be satisfactory.

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): I will see about having that done.

The Senate adjourned during pleasure.

At 8 p.m. the sitting was resumed.

HEALTH RESOURCES FUND BILL

SECOND READING

Hon. Daniel A. Lang moved the second reading of Bill C-199, to provide for the establishment of a Health Resources Fund to assist provinces in the acquisition, construction and renovation of health training facilities and research institutions.

He said: Honourable senators, it gives me great pleasure this evening to address the Senate in connection with Bill C-199, because I know that it contains objectives which will commend themselves to all senators, and I feel sure that in principle this bill will meet with a most responsive reception in this chamber.

Briefly, by way of background, I think this bill might be looked at as a joint effort between the federal Government and the provinces and in an area which requires immediate attention.

Honourable senators will remember that last July the Prime Minister made a public announcement to the effect that it was the intention of the Government to set up a health resources fund. Subsequent thereto an ad hoc committee was established of federal and provincial officials to look into the needs and the extent of those needs in this area, and it made certain recommendations. These recommendations were considered at a federal-provincial meeting of health ministers held last September, and out of those deliberations has come the legislation we have before us tonight.

In essence, briefly the bill establishes a fund within the Consolidated Revenue Fund of $500 million known as the Health Resources Fund, and the bill provides that this fund will be expended over the next 15 years, including this year and ending in 1980. The $500 million is divided and dealt with somewhat differently as to the various parts thereof. Firstly, and most important, $300 million is to be divided among the provinces on a per capita basis. Secondly, $175 million is to be divided according to the dictates of the situations from time to time arising, and is to be primarily directed towards areas that are of a national as opposed to a peculiarly provincial concern. The remaining $25 million is set aside for the benefit of the Atlantic provinces, to be used by them jointly and really in recognition that they are working with a less advantageous fiscal base, to compensate for this factor and to give them some degree of equality with the rest of the country herein.

Honourable senators, if I might direct your attention to the bill itself for a few moments, you will see it is, in essence, quite simple and straightforward. I think it is worth while underlining the preamble, to remind honourable senators that this bill is primarily to assist the provinces. Indeed, it is envisaged under the terms of the bill itself that the funds expended will not be $500 million but double that amount, or $1,000 million.

Hon. Mr. McCutcheon: Where is that in the bill?

Hon. Mr. Lang: I presume, honourable senators, this is the carrot and that the provinces will respond to the opportunity to participate. I might say from what reading I have done on the background of this, that in many ways the provinces themselves understand the needs in this area as well as or even better, in some cases, than has been the appreciation at the federal level.

I think it is important to look at the interpretation section of this bill, where is defined the meaning of "health training facility," because those three words appear throughout the bill. It is towards the development of these facilities that the fund is to be directed.

Clause 2(c) reads:

> "health training facility" means a school, hospital or other institution, or any portion thereof,
>
> (i) for the training of persons in the health professions or in occupations associated with the health professions—

"The health professions," I assume, would mean the medical, dental and nursing professions, and the associated occupations would include those such as radiology and physiotherapy.

The three words "health training facility" also mean an institution, school or hospital for the conducting of research in the health fields.

Turning now to clause 3 of the bill, honourable senators will notice that there the fund itself is established within the Consolidated Revenue Fund as a special account and it is to be appropriated from time to time up to a total of $500 million, as required.

Subclause 4 of that clause provides for the expenditure of these moneys in respect of any costs incurred for a health training facility subsequent to January 1 of this year and up until December 31, 1980.

The next clause, 4, makes provision for the contributions to be paid out of the fund, and paragraph (a) provides for 50 per cent of the reasonable cost of the planning or designing of any health training facility, and paragraph (b) 50 per cent of the reasonable cost of acquiring, constructing or renovating any building for use as a health training facility.

As I mentioned previously, the fund is divided into three parts. Under section 4(2) $300 million is set aside on the per capita basis, while subsection 3 provides that $175 million be allocated from time to time in any province by the Governor in Council. This leaves the $25 million to which I referred earlier which is to be allocated specifically for the benefit of the Atlantic provinces. This is provided for in section 5 of the bill. This amount of $25 million may be used jointly by the Atlantic provinces to supplement what grants they may otherwise receive under the per capita provisions in the previous section.

Section 6 makes certain exclusions in connection with the computation of the capital cost of these health training facilities. It excludes such items as the cost of land, interest payable, any amounts paid out of the Consolidated Revenue Fund, and amounts payable by a province towards the cost of acquiring, constructing or renovating the facilities. These costs are already coming out of governmental pockets—either federally or provincially—and their inclusion in a formula for computing the cost would obviously cause inequities.

In the next clause certain conditions are attached to these moneys, and these are primarily for the purpose of assuring an orderly development of the program according to pre-arranged plans.

Honourable senators will note that section 7 of the bill provides that an application for payment out must be submitted to the Minister by the government of a province under a program approved by the Advisory Committee, to which I shall refer later, and for the development of health training facilities in the province for the next five years. This section goes on to provide that the health training facility in respect of which the contribution has been requested has to be included within the overall provincial plan.

The next important section of the bill is section 8 which sets up an Advisory Committee to the Minister, and upon which, it is to be presumed, the Minister will rely for advice in respect to specific projects put forward. The committee will consist of 11 members—one to represent each of the ten provinces, and the other being the federal Deputy Minister of National Health who will serve as chairman of the committee. The powers of this committee, in terms of internal regulation, are thereafter set out. Clause 11 delineates its duties, namely, that of advising the Minister on any program for the development of health training facilities submitted to him by the government of a province—from which, I might add, all proposals must come forward—and advising the Minister, at his request or on its own initiative, on matters relating to a health training facility in respect of which a province has requested a contribution under this bill.

I feel singularly ill-equipped to deal adequately with the problem this bill is designed to alleviate. It is a problem that is known and one with which all honourable senators are familiar. However, we must remind ourselves time and again of its significance in terms of the future of our population. Many of us know that we in Canada have a great tradition in the medical field—a tradition that is probably second to none in the world. To every layman there comes to mind names like Banting, Best, Penfield, Farquharson, Gallie, Graham, and countless others. There is a large number of Canadians who have contributed greatly to medical science, not only here but abroad, and whose contributions have been recognized on a world-wide basis.

Honourable senators should be reminded, I think, that some of our great traditions in the field of medicine developed in a day when private initiative was displayed by men of outstanding ability, and when the science was being developed by men of tremendous personal dedication. I would submit that today many of the conditions which made these outstanding contributions possible do not exist, but are now overwhelmed by the massive expansion of medical knowledge, the tremendous increase of and diversity in skills, and the high degree of specialization that has accompanied these developments. Accordingly, we are faced with a challenge of the first magnitude in this field, and it is a challenge that we cannot fail to meet. I need only remind honourable senators of the recommendations of the Hall Commission, and of how extensive and far-reaching they were. Among those recommendations was the target objective of doubling our student enrolment in our medical schools by 1970. The task presented by such an objective staggers the imagination of any man familiar with the interstices of developing medical schools.

While we may be aiming at a target of that magnitude it would be advisable to remind ourselves that since the last war, in the age group of from 20 to 24, the percentage of medical students has dropped from 3.5 to 3.2, while within that same age group university enrollment has risen from 7.1 per cent to 8.9 per cent. I do not need to underline the consequences to the country if this trend should continue. Why are we not enrolling into our schools a sufficient number of our young people, or why, having enrolled them into our schools, do we lose them abroad as we are doing by the thousands every year?

I would suggest that possibly we have failed to recognize rapidly enough the changing times and conditions surrounding this high calling, and I hope, and I know that all senators will share with me a hope, that this bill will be a first step in the right direction.

I know the late Dr. Ray Farquharson with whom many of you were familiar, time and again in his reports as head of the Medical Research Council raised the warning cry. Dr. Farquharson was a man of many great attributes, and he ranks among those who have lent high colour to our Canadian tradition in medicine. If I may make a personal observation, I had an experience after the death of Dr. Farquharson which revealed to me that he was a man who not only spoke about things but did them.

Recently I was confined in a unit in the Toronto General Hospital, known as the Ray Farquharson Clinical Investigation Unit, which unit was established through Dr. Farquharson's own individual efforts and with what private support from philanthropic persons he could muster. Within this small unit, which consists of twelve beds only, some remarkable developments are taking place, and the research provided in this small unit is going to have far-reaching effects, that are going to be possible only because of one man and his perseverance and dedication.

Men like Dr. Farquharson must be given all the support that our country can lend to them while they seek to provide the atmosphere of challenge for our young people in these fields, and which challenge we seem to be singularly failing to provide today, particularly in the one area of research.

Mr. Charles Gundy of Toronto is a man with tremendous philanthropic motivation, and I know he is familiar to most of you. Recently he chaired a large committee consisting of some of the finest brains in medicine and science and in the academic field in Canada. Last December that committee published a book on medical research in Canada. I commend the reading of it to every senator here, because only in so doing can full recognition of the opportunities and challenges and the dangers that lie ahead of us be understood.

That report points out that it takes from eight to ten years to plan, build and staff a new medical school. It takes another eight to ten years beyond that period when those who have graduated from that school will be scientists and teachers capable of playing a role in another such school.

I anticipate that some honourable senators will say, recognizing the extent of this problem, that $500 million provided by the federal Government if matched by an equal amount of money in every province still will not touch the heart of the problem. However, I suggest that in this field money, and money alone, will not do it. We must have people. But money is where we must start, and to the extent that money can do it we must provide it to help attract the best brains of our counry in this vital area.

I think all we can say about the quantum here is that it was determined upon the advice of the most knowledgeable people in Canada on the subject and represents primarily a sum of money which can properly be utilized at this time in the development of health training facilities at as rapid a rate as possible, considering the personnel and technical problems accompanying it.

Honourable senators, I commend not only this bill but the purpose behind it to your favourable consideration, and stress particularly that unless environmental conditions can be produced today in Canada which will train and retain for us the bright young minds that should be prepared to enter the medical field, then very shortly we shall be suffering a disadvantage which could cumulatively from year to year become greater and eventually get beyond our control. We have the opportunity, we have the challenge now, and I am sure that this piece of legislation is just the first of our responses to it.

Hon. M. Wallace McCutcheon: Honourable senators, I have listened with a great deal of interest to Senator Lang's introduction of this bill. I would of course be very interested to know who these advisers were who suggested that this amount was the right amount, yet I do not think even Senator Lang, as a director of the University of Toronto, can agree on that.

The history of the thing is very simple. We have the Hall Report, which made certain recommendations and has been in the hands of the Government for two years. The Government in its normal fashion has ignored some of the fundamentals of the report and has seized on what it thought were the flashy things that could gain votes.

May I say that I was a member of the commission which brought in the Hall Report, as honourable members know, but I had no part in writing the report or the recommendations. I have publicly criticized some parts of the report. There are other parts with which I am in complete agreement.

The Hall Report set out certain priorities. They wanted to have a conference within six months of the date of the report. Of course everybody knows here that there was no such conference held. And they said that pending that conference there should be the designation of wards in mental hospitals in which patients are receiving active or convalescent care, and tuberculosis hospitals, as facilities under the Hospital and Diagnostic Services Act.

That was something that certainly the majority of the provinces wanted, but it has not happened. We heard nothing of the Hall Report until the election. Then, on September 23 Mr. Pearson announced that the Government was prepared to spend $500 million over the next 15 years to provide medical, dental and other professional research and training facilities. He said in a press release that the Government would be prepared to spend $33 million a year. I ask Senator Lang how much the University of Toronto is going to spend for 15 years to build and equip facilities for a health research and training centre. I do not know what Mr. Pearson means by health research, because there is nothing about research in this bill. I shall come to that presently.

The then Minister of Health, Miss LaMarsh, said later that only $12 million to $15 million might be spent the first year, that $33 million would not be the upper limit. She said it should be regarded as a pool of funds that would reach half a billion dollars.

Whether you accept the upper limit of $500 million over a 15-year period or the lower limits, the program is totally inadequate to meet the real needs. Five hundred million dollars over a period of 15 years works out at just over $33 million a year, and this program is an absurdity when it is measured against the need. The figure of $500 million was pulled out of the air during an election campaign in order to impress people. Of course $500 million sounds like a lot of money—

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): It is.

Hon. Mr. McCutcheon: —but it has no relation to what the Hall Commission said and no relation to what the Bladen Commission said. It is just a figure pulled out of the air for election purposes. In the Province of Ontario alone—and the Prime Minister of Ontario has stated this publicly—the province is committed to $500 million in this field over the next 10 years.

Then we turn to the bill and we start to wonder. The bill, in the typical fashion of a government which is now getting very sensitive about federal-provincial relations, says that the $500 million shall be spent in this way:

> that proportion of three hundred million dollars that the population of that province, according to the census taken in the year 1966, is of the population of Canada—

So there is the absolute right of the provinces.

I take the Province of Ontario merely as an example because I know more about that province than I know about the others, and I take a rough figure of 6 million people in Ontario and 20 million people in Canada, so I say that is $90 million. But our requirement is $500 million. There is $175 million left free, and I add that to our $90 million, and I say we are still not doing very well.

Then—and I agree with this completely—there is $25 million available for the Atlantic provinces. But this is typical of the legislative façade that we are up against from this Government which picks out what it thinks would be the flashy thing to do. It hoped to win an election on it. It does not even start to solve the problem.

There are a number of things I want to know when this bill goes to committee. I want to know whether there is $33 million available annually for 15 years or whether the Province of Ontario can get $100 million next year if it demonstrates it must spend the money. There is nothing in the bill to indicate that.

The real weakness in the bill—aside from its complete inadequacy, which anyone who has read the whole report would realize—is that all it is doing is providing bricks and mortar, and bricks and mortar are not enough in this field.

Mr. Justice Hall, speaking in Ottawa in December last, said:

> To maintain the 1961 physician-population ratio means the number of physicians in active practice in Canada must go up by a minimum of 466 each year.

That is not enough to keep up the ratio that he thinks is necessary if his recommendations are implemented, and if medicare, as predicted by various statements of ministers of the Crown, comes in; this is just to keep up the present situation. He continued:

> So it will be recognized that the extra 466 required each year is not going to be due in any way to the proposal for a national health service.

Then he goes on to say:

> This same reasoning applies to dentists, nurses and all other health personnel who labour in the health service fields.

Well, I could talk for some hours on this, but I think I can make the point without talking too long.

What did the Hall Commission recommend? They said there were 12 medical schools in Canada, all of which had to be expanded, and their advisers, who, generally speaking, were on the staff of those medical schools, said they thought that within their physical limitations they could be expanded by 15 per cent, and then they said there must be five new schools. You can build as many buildings as you want in this country, and you can call them medical schools, but they will not work unless you have the personnel to staff them. That is the thing that is completely ignored by the Government—completely ignored!

The Hall Commission says that they will need 770 new faculty posts. I see around me here a number of members of boards of governors of universities, and I ask them how easy is it going to be to get 770 new faculty posts in medical schools in the next six years. That is what the Hall Commission says we need. My friends who are in the medical profession tell me that we need 1,000, but let us settle for 770. The fact is that we can build all the buildings we want, we can put up the bricks and mortar, but honourable senators, there are hospitals in this country that have their wards closed because there are no nurses. The federal Government put up this miserable $2,000 per bed, but the wards are closed. Let us get down to fundamentals. The fundamental thing is manpower. Bricks and mortar are important, but manpower is far more important. Manpower means education, it means on-coming grants to education, and it means provision for research.

Let me just refer to the Province of New Brunswick. My Leader (Hon. Mr. Brooks) knows something about that. Here is an article about the Province of New Brunswick published in the Globe and Mail of June 11. I think it is accurate. The average ratio of medical men to population in Canada is about 1 to every 870; it has not improved for some time, and unless we have a lot more medical schools it is going to deteriorate. We need 466 net additions to our medical population—and I mean net additions. There are the people who die, the people who retire—

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): And there are those who emigrate.

Hon. Mr. McCutcheon: According to the Hall Commission this requirement is just to keep the level. This is the situation in New Brunswick. There are only a few more than 500 practising in the province—one for every 1,230. The average age is approaching 45 years, and is rising. I will not read this.

Hon. Mr. Brooks: Every other province steals them from us.

Hon. Mr. McCutcheon: No, my honourable friend is wrong. Let me quote from this:

> Of the 90 applicants from New Brunswick—

You see, honourable senators, medical schools are not like schools of the social sciences and the humanities. You can put 150 or 200, or even 400, people into a lecture room in a school of social sciences or the humanities. They will get a mighty poor education, but they will get something. That cannot be done in a medical school.

This refers to the situation in New Brunswick, and remember that New Brunswick has no medical school. New Brunswick contributes to Dalhousie which runs the medical school for the Atlantic provinces.

> Of the 90 applicants from New Brunswick for medical training next fall, Dalhousie has accepted 10 and medical schools elsewhere have accepted four.

A study has been set up to consider this in the Province of New Brunswick—I cite this because it is typical—and it estimates that it will take ten years and more than $30 million from the time the go ahead is given to graduate the first class of doctors.

Hon. Mr. Brooks: There is no dearth of students.

Hon. Mr. McCutcheon: No, there is no dearth of students. But this idea that we are solving any problem by building monuments without any teachers in them is just ridiculous.

The Leader of the Government, no doubt, knows more about this than I do, but a brief was presented to the Government recently on this very matter. It was presented not by people without knowledge of it, because the chairman of the committee was Mr. C. L. Gundy, the President of Wood, Gundy and Company and the Chairman of the Board of the Hospital for Sick Children in Toronto, which is a world renowned institution. Among other people associated with him was Dr. McCreary the Dean of the Faculty of Medicine of the University of British Columbia, who was also one of the chief consultants for the Hall Commission. What did they do? They urged the Government to provide $150 million in capital grants for research facilities by 1970. Of this about $93 million would pay for research space in the new and expanded medical schools already planned, and about $57 million would equip that space. They advocated an increase in the operating grants for medical research from the current $14 million to $80 million per year by 1970.

We cannot find the teachers to staff the new medical schools that are proposed unless we increase the research grants. Nineteen per cent of the physicians and surgeons of this country have come here since the last war as immigrants. That source is drying up. They are the practitioners, after all; they are not the teachers. We are looking for teachers, and I might say in passing that the situation I am describing is not exclusively one in the medical field. It applies in other fields also, but I am talking at the moment about the medical field. We cannot obtain the thousand new teachers that we need in this field—the Hall Commission says we need 770, but my friends in the field tell me we need a thousand so I shall use that figure—unless we provide proper research facilities for them, and those research facilities are going to be very expensive. That is why this brief says that operating grants for medical research must be increased from the current $14 million to $80 million per year by 1970.

There is nothing about that in this bill. We are just going to build bricks and mortar. The tragedy of it is that this is a field in which all ten provinces are quite prepared to have the federal Government intervene with matching grants and no question of opting out. Research is one field in which all ten provinces are prepared to take grants.

This brief goes on to say:

> Unless support to medical research is provided at the suggested levels as rapidly as possible, a deterioration in the standards of Canadian medical schools and in the quality of health care provided to the Canadian people is in prospect.

I should have started this by saying what my friends in the medical profession have been telling me for several years, but which I have seen in print only in the last few days, and that is that three or four of Canada's twelve medical schools would have great difficulty in passing the United States standards of accreditation. If that is the situation we want in this country then I point out it is the situation we are rapidly approaching. We, of course, compare ourselves to the United States. We buy Cadillac cars and high-powered Buicks, and so on. The United States federal funds for medical research approximate $1.3 billion per year. What is the Medical Research Council grant in Canada? It may be something a little over $15 million this year. I think it has passed the $15 million mark by a few dollars. We hear a great deal about maintaining our sovereignty and so on. Well, you do that only with a certain amount of sacrifice, and by doing only the things that are necessary.

I happen to be the chairman of an institute which brings people back from the United States, and which receives large grants from the United States at a time when the United States is closing down on its grants to Canada. We are able to do this because we have excellence and perfection. I suggest that that is the sort of thing we need.

Honourable senators, I am going to vote for this bill. Somebody said to me earlier today that half a loaf was better than nothing. I have decided that a sixth of a loaf is better than nothing. But let us see what the bill provides.

It provides that Ontario has an absolute right—I am sure the other provinces could make out a similar case, but I am talking about Ontario because I know it—to its proportion of $300 million. For easy figuring I am assuming that the population of Ontario is six-twentieths of the total population, although I may be a little low in that, so Ontario gets $90 million over 15 years. But these things are not cheap, and Ontario is already committed to $500 million over the next ten years. Is the federal Government going to pick up its proportion of the bill? The basic health sciences building alone that we are building at the University of Toronto is going to cost over $35 million. Senator Bourget understands these things. This is, as I say, a sixth of a loaf. We will vote for it, but it is a facade. It does not demonstrate any awareness on the part of this Government of the seriousness of the problem that faces it.

I would add this, that their failure to realize it will affect many other provinces more adversely than it will affect the Province of Ontario. I am not speaking for Ontario, I am using Ontario as an example. I think the federal Government should be prepared to explain itself. Perhaps the minister will explain himself in committee and tell us whether this money will come annually. After all we do not want it annually; we want it when we need it, because we have to make plans for financing. Perhaps he will tell us what he is going to do about these other matters that I have talked about, such as research, and so on. I could quote the Hall Commission Report which says that every student of medicine should be paid $2,000, and in a graduate school be paid more. I agree with that. There are many things I did not agree with, but I do agree with those things because I think first things should be done first, and these are the first things that should be done first.

I am getting tired of this business of picking a figure out of the air and flaunting it around as an election program, because the man on the street does not know what $500 million means. Even I do not know what it means, but I know it is not adequate.

Honourable senators, all I say is that I shall vote for this crumb that we are now being offered.

Hon. L. P. Beaubien: Honourable senators, I have listened to our learned friend with a great deal of interest, and I agree with everything he has said. I am for this bill; I am not against it in any way.

It seems to me, however, that we are looking at this problem, and so many other problems with which we are confronted, from the wrong angle. This afternoon we talked about the bill for the establishment of a dairy commission for Canada, and I believe we were asked to spend $100 million. There are endless problems, and there are countless bills in which we are asked to vote amounts of money. I am sure that all these measures do a tremendous amount of good. If we spend $100 million here and another $100 million there, a lot of good to the country is bound to result; it cannot help but do good. The only difficulty is that we have to find the $100 million first.

To my mind, we should be trying to concentrate on finding something to feed the goose that lays the golden egg, but we do not seem to think of that.

I recall that at the beginning of World War II one of my closest friends became president of Dominion Textiles, following his father's death. That was in 1939. In taking over this large empire he was a little worried and he said to me, "Louis, the corporation tax has been raised to 16 per cent. It is going to break us."

Hon. Mr. McCutcheon: Sixteen per cent; that is dreadful.

Hon. Mr. Beaubien (Bedford): Of course, the corporation tax is now 53 per cent.

Honourable senators, to my mind Canada is in very close competition with the United States of America. We have a border, for better or worse, of 3,000 miles. We speak the same language and we have exactly the same way of doing things as they have on the other side of the border. In the United States of America they have cut the corporation tax to 48 per cent, while ours is 53 per cent. I have not checked these figures—and you can make figures look like one thing or another—but roughly speaking our taxation on income is about the same as in the United States except that an American can, if he wishes, divide his income with that of his wife. If you are earning $25,000 you both put in an income tax return for $12,500. I do not have to tell you that it makes quite a difference.

We have been endowed in Canada with vast natural resources, and that is the only reason we have been able to spend money like drunken sailors—and for good purposes. I am not at all against people spending money. I do not feel that when it is suggested that money be spent for good causes, members either here or in the other place are trying to get votes. I am not thinking of that at all. But I do say that if you take note of how our budgets have gone up over the past 25 years, you are staggered. The per capita spending is enormous. We have only been able to do that because of our vast natural resources. We own almost everything, and we have the greatest market in the world right at our doorstep. We produce iron ore, copper, nickel, and a multitude of other commodities, and are able to sell them to anybody who can pay us in hard cash.

If we could only make the climate in Canada a little more favourable for those who want to come here and go out and battle, and work to produce something, we could entice people from all ranks of life to Canada. You know that if we have to fight a war we can raise two or three billion dollars somehow. If we could raise two or three billion dollars by cutting our taxes, and get people to come here and work and produce, it would be a good thing for Canada.

Sure, it is wonderful to do something for the old, the sick, and others, but they are not going to bring dividends to Canada. However, if we could cut our taxes and thereby have money to spend, making it profitable for people to come to Canada to work, to build factories and do other things—and we can do it—that is all to the good. We can never do that if we keep on saying we have got to spend $200 million for instance, for medicare. We can pay for all these things if we bring down our taxes. Then Canada will be the place it should be, the best place to make a living.

It does not make sense to keep our taxes higher than the richest country in the world and at the same time try to do more than any other country by way of giving benefits to everybody. If our people get all the benefits in the world it just means that our dollar will go down in value.

I feel that we are going in the wrong diection, and no one suggests that we cut taxes. When our doctors, scientists, and other trained persons leave us and go to the United States, they do so in order to get higher salaries. If the United States can take a few of our skilled people it is a paltry number in relation to its large population. Why can we not attract Americans to Canada? They have a population close to the 200 million mark; surely we can attract five million of them a year. To do so would put this country on the map. I really think that it is something we should try to do.

Hon. Orville H. Phillips: Honourable senators, after listening to Senator McCutcheon's remarks, I should like to speak briefly. I enjoyed his remarks very much and basically I am in agreement with him. This bill is too late and another bill reached the resolution stage in the other place too early. We are not prepared in Canada to institute medicare, simply because we have not the necessary trained people to undertake it.

I am not going to enter into any argument with Senator McCutcheon. I must say that I am glad he does not agree with all the recommendations of the Hall Commission. I do not agree with all of them. He emphasized that we needed to spend more money on research in order to get medical teachers.

Probably one point was missed, and I would like to take a moment to elaborate. The people in the medical and health professions are like anyone else, they like to get a return on their investment. It may sound strange, but a specialist, particularly in medicine has a tremendous investment in cost of training. I should like to illustrate my point by a particular instance.

A young doctor doing post-graduate training at the Neurological Institute in Montreal pointed out to me the number of years it was going to take him to become fully qualified in neurosurgery: eight years in public school, four years in high school, four years for his Bachelor of Science, for years in medical school, plus one year of internship. Then in this case, in the particular course that he was following, it would take him nine years' post-graduate study, plus the fact he would have to spend five years in practice to be fully recognized in his field. In other words, this young man would spend 35 years of his life preparing for his profession. Then he would have 15 or probably 18 years in which to earn a full lifetime's earnings and to recover his investment in his education.

I think this is the great difficulty in getting teachers in medical schools today. We must help them not only through the post-graduate training—and a medical teacher must have the best of post-graduate training—he has to have an average medical salary while he is training. Then when he accepts a teaching position he has to be a dedicated individual and be interested in training more people in his particular field, because he accepts a lower salary than he would make in general practice. I feel we have not only to help him through his post-graduate studies but also assist the university in paying him at least the average income for his particular post-graduate field.

If we do that, then we have hope of obtaining the thousand teachers that are needed. I agree with Senator McCutcheon that we do need a thousand medical teachers in Canada, and I see no hope of attaining that goal unless we move in the direction that I have suggested. This is just my opinion. I think it is a practical one, and I hope the Government will give consideration to doing it.

Hon. G. Percival Burchill: Honourable senators, I rise to congratulate Senator Beaubien (Bedford) on the wonderful speech he made. I think it was excellent, that it was sound common sense. It is a pity that more speeches like that cannot be made across Canada.

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): We do not sit often enough at night.

Hon. Mr. Burchill: Senator Beaubien ought to make more speeches in this chamber.

Hon. Senators: Hear, hear.

Hon. Mr. Burchill: We do not hear from him enough. What he said tonight, to my mind, is absolute common sense, and I am sure it would be good for the whole Canadian thinking climate if more speeches like that were made across this nation.

May I add that I had expected my friend Senator Gershaw, the dean of medicine in this chamber, to say something on this bill. I was waiting for him to speak, but he shook his head and indicated that he was not going to say anything.

Senator McCutcheon spoke of conditions across Canada, as did the sponsor of the bill, Senator Lang, both speaking no doubt from the standpoint of Ontario. Senator McCutcheon spoke too of the scarcity of doctors in New Brunswick. I endorse everything he said.

Conditions in New Brunswick are very bad as far as the medical profession is concerned, particularly in my section of the province. I have been charged on this trip to Ottawa to secure a general practitioner for the Town of Chatham. Those of us in this chamber who know Chatham realize it is a thriving town and the site of a very large R.C.A.F. station, and it has a population of about 5,000. It always had many excellent doctors, but three young medical practitioners that I can think of as I speak tonight have left that town to train in specialized medicines. So the town is now scarce of doctors, and I have been charged, as I say, with the responsibility of trying to persuade the air force to release one of their doctors who was stationed in Chatham and who indicated while he was in Chatham that he might be persuaded to practise in the town.

I have a letter in my briefcase from Hotel Dieu, the large hospital in Chatham, and they are very much concerned about the medical situation in that town. Senator Brooks, Senator Fournier (Madawaska-Restigouche) and Senator Fergusson are all very familiar with this situation. From Chatham across to Fredericton, a distance of 108 miles through the Miramichi Valley, there is not one medical practitioner, with the exception of Dr. Hamilton of Doaktown who is semi-retired and is not too active. That is a very serious situation, and I am speaking now particularly of the rural sections of this country. There is a great dearth of medical practitioners.

I am not going to say tonight how we should proceed to increase the number. I have read a lot about the problem. In fact, I saw something the other day to the effect that annually 200 Canadian doctors were leaving for the United States where they receive better salaries and living conditions and other benefits. In any case, I go along with Senator McCutcheon that something certainly should be done to build up the number of our medical practitioners because I feel there is a great shortage, not only of medical practitioners but of nurses and all others connected with the ministry of healing.

We hear and anticipate that medicare will be introduced in a very short time, and if it is introduced I wonder where we are going to obtain qualified people to staff it. That seems to me to be the problem.

However, I want to put on the record the fact that there is a great shortage of general medical practitioners today in rural sections of this country, and that whatever is to be done should be done quickly.

Hon. Mr. McCutcheon: Honourable senators, if you will allow me to be out of order for a moment, I am delighted to have heard what Senator Burchill has said and, in particular, the warning flag that he raised about medicare. I will say no more; I will just say that he raised the warning flag.

What I did want to say, and I am sorry I did not say earlier, was that had Senator Sullivan been able to be here this evening he would have taken my place in this debate and would have performed much more ably than I have.

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): You did all right.

Hon. Mr. McCutcheon: Unfortunately, he was ill, and thus was unable to be here.

Motion agreed to and bill read second time.

REFERRED TO COMMITTEE

On motion of Hon. Mr. Lang, bill referred to the Standing Committee on Banking and Commerce.

PUBLIC UTILITIES INCOME TAX TRANSFER BILL

SECOND READING

Hon. Earl W. Urquhart moved the second reading of Bill C-211, to authorize the Minister of Finance to transfer to the Provinces a proportion of the income tax payable by certain public utility companies.

He said: Honourable senators, Bill C-211 seeks permission for the Government of Canada to provide for the payment to the provinces of 95 per cent of the income tax paid to the federal Government by certain public utility corporations on that part of their income arising from their public utility operations.

This bill will enable the federal Government to carry out an undertaking given to the provinces in July 1965. Some years ago an arrangement was made whereby 50 per cent of the federal tax was transferred to the provinces of Canada. It might be well for the information of honourable senators if I were to outline briefly the history of this tax transfer arrangement between the federal and the provincial governments.

In 1947, as an integral part of the Dominion-Provincial Tax Rental Agreements Act, the federal Government agreed to transfer to the provinces a portion of the federal income tax paid by electrical, gas and steam utilities. Under that agreement the federal Government undertook to pay one-half of the federal income tax paid by these utilities, subject, of course, to certain conditions. Under the Tax Rental Agreements Act of 1952 this sharing arrangement was continued for an additional five years, and when that agreement was concluded in 1957 the federal Government undertook on each subsequent five-year revision of the fiscal arrangements to continue the 50 per cent share. It is well to note that in addition to providing in 1947 for the payment to the provinces of one-half of the income tax paid by certain privately owned public utilities, the Government of Canada provided in the following year for a tax concession to these corporations.

In the year 1948, when the general tax rate was 50 per cent of taxable income, the rate on the taxable income of these public utilities was reduced to 43 per cent. While the 7 per cent rate advantage has been reduced over the years, these corporations remain subject to a corporate income tax rate that remains 2 per cent less than the general 47 per cent corporate tax. This provision is contained in Section 85 of the Income Tax Act, and I bring this to the attention of honourable senators because many of the provisions of this bill are modelled on that section.

The federal Government's decision to increase this transfer to the provinces from 50 per cent to 95 per cent of the federal tax was based on the constant and unremitting representations from several provinces of Canada. Many provinces argued that privately-owned gas and electrical utilities were at a competitive disadvantage as compared with publicly owned utilities, and accordingly this disadvantage was a deterrent to private companies in developing new power sites and sources. It was further argued that this disadvantage was most evident in those provinces which depended largely on private companies for the generation or distribution of electrical energy and gas, and that if this disadvantage were continued the provinces might be obliged to consider the nationalization of these utilities. Both British Columbia and Quebec will serve as illustrations on this point. After very careful consideration, the Government of Canada accepted the power of the provincial arguments as to the effect upon the consumers of electrical energy and gas of the differential treatment of utilities.

I presume that honourable senators now are wondering why the Government did not undertake to transfer 100 per cent of the federal tax to the provinces. The answer to that is very simple. The reason is that the federal Government needs to retain some five per cent of the federal tax revenue to compensate it for the dividend tax credit it continues to give to shareholders of these Canadian corporations.

Honourable senators may also wonder why the Government did not meet the request of some of the provinces by abolishing the federal income tax on such corporations. Some argued that if it is desirable to give these corporations tax relief, it would seem simpler to do so by exempting them from taxation rather than transferring the federal tax to the provinces who might in turn pass it back to the corporations.

This approach was considered and rejected for several reasons. First, the federal Government would have to continue to assess these corporations for their liability under the Old Age Security Tax. Second, the federal Government was obligated under the Tax Collection Agreements with eight provinces to assess and collect the provincial corporation income tax on these corporations. Third, many of the larger public utilities earned income from sources other than their public utility operations, and it would be impossible to exempt this income without jeopardizing the corporation income tax structure. Fourth, while certain provinces wished to pass the tax saving on to the consumers by a reduction in utility rates, other provinces did not wish to lose the revenue they were presently sharing, or the additional revenue that they would receive under the new sharing arrangements. Some provinces preferred to use the additional revenue for other purposes such as the construction of rural transmission lines. Fifth, if the federal income tax were abolished, the shareholders in these corporations would cease to be eligible for the dividend tax credit.

As it was evident that Canada would have to continue to assess these corporations for taxes, and in order to allow the provinces the freedom to adopt the policy most acceptable to each of them, it was decided to continue to subject these corporations to federal taxation and remit the federal revenue to the provinces in the expectation that the provinces would employ the funds in the best interests of their consumers.

Having clarified those points, there is another point that must be clearly understood. The public utility corporations to which this legislation applies are those whose main business is the distribution and sale to the public of electrical energy, gas and steam, or the generation and sale for distribution to the public of electrical energy and steam. It is the federal income tax paid by these corporations that this legislation proposes to transfer to the provinces of Canada.

I think it would be helpful if I were to refer to the relevant provisions of the Income Tax Act. Section 85 of Part I of the Income Tax Act, to ensure that the 45 per cent rate applies only to corporations that are genuinely in the public utility field and does not extend to corporations that may, incidental to their main activity, generate or sell electrical energy, gas or steam, requires that a corporation to be eligible for the lower rate must receive more than one-half of its total gross revenue from such distribution and sale, or generation and sale. Likewise, Part I of the Income Tax Act, to ensure that the lower rate of taxation does not apply to corporations that are merely providing electrical energy, gas or steam, mainly for subsidiaries or parent company, and are not serving the public, requires that a corporation to be eligible for the preferred tax rate must receive more than one-half of its gross revenues from sales to persons with whom it deals at arm's length.

Bill C-211 incorporates conditions analogous to the above provisions in Part I of the Income Tax Act.

It must be clearly understood that where a corporation qualifies under the Income Tax Act for the preferred rate, that rate applies only to that portion of the corporation's income which arises from its distribution and sale or generation and sale to the public. It is 95 per cent of this portion of the qualifying corporations' federal tax that will be paid to the provinces. When the 95 per cent share of the federal tax is determined, that amount will be paid to the province or provinces in which the distribution and sale or generation and sale is made to the public.

This bill proposes that the 95 per cent sharing arrangement shall apply to the income tax paid by the eligible corporations on income earned only after December 31, 1965. But it is the intention of the Government to continue to apply the present 50 per cent sharing arrangements to the tax paid on income earned up to and including December 31, 1965, and provisions are made in the Estimates to cover the taxation year ending in 1964 and further authority would be requested to cover the 1965 calendar year.

It will be immediately apparent to honourable senators that there is a delay of two years between the taxation year in which the profits are earned and the year the 50 per cent share is paid to the province. Apart from the time lag allowed all corporations in the filing of the tax returns, additional delay is necessitated by the need to segregate those corporations in respect of which the 50 per cent sharing arrangement applies and then to re-process their income tax returns to determine the tax revenues to be shared and the province or provinces to whom payment is to be made.

I am sure that this bill will meet with the approval of all honourable senators. I have personally held the view for some time that this legislation was not only desirable but completely justified if we are desirous of preserving the continuation of privately-owned public utilities.

Hon. Edgar Fournier: Honourable senators, I can assure you that at this late hour my remarks will be brief.

I am not rising in protest or to be unduly critical of Bill C-211. However, I wish first to congratulate Senator Urquhart who gave us very comprehensive information on the matter. His vast parliamentary experience was easily noticeable, and I am sure was well appreciated by all.

It is not my intention to elaborate on what was said. I prefer rather to limit myself to what was not said, by pointing out what seems to me to be a matter of embarrassment, and to ask a few questions.

First, the amendment seems to have a particular significance to Brinco, a Newfoundland corporation, which for the last 13 years has explored all aspects and possibilities of developing the Hamilton Falls—today called the Churchill Falls; and I will say a few words about that project in a few minutes.

The amendment seems to open wide a field of potential headaches for the federal Government, since the bill is confined to generation and distribution of electrical energy by steam or gas, and to industries in the sales of gas to the public.

This bill, as was said by my honourable colleague, opens the door to the federal Government to reimburse, or transfer, if you wish, to the province some 95 per cent of the 52 per cent paid by some public utilities for corporation income tax.

The title of the bill is well named "Public Utilities." Having said that the bill had potential headaches for the federal Government, the term "Public Utilities" could very easily spread to a very wide field, such as the production or distribution of gasoline, telephone services, which are usually listed as public utilities, transportation services, such as metros, subways, buses and even taxis. Many more could be listed.

In an article in the Financial Post of May 7, 1966, under the title, "Tax Rebate Plan would lower cost of electricity," some presidents other than those mentioned in this bill were somewhat critical of the bill. One president stated, "One more example of taxation discrimination in the field of energy." However, if this bill is going to be beneficial to the consumers and not so much to the profit of the utilities, the bill has some merit.

I would like to know if the reimbursement or transfer of revenue made from the federal treasury is to be done direct to provincial treasuries carte blanche without any specified assignment, or if the payments will be made direct to the utilities concerned. According to the bill, payments have to be made to the provinces. If this is so, what assurance have we that the funds will reach the right or deserving utilities and that the fund in the end will serve the purpose for which it is intended?

My second question is: Who will benefit from the bill? Does it include all utilities in the sales of gas to the public and all utilities in the production of electricity by steam or gas? I happen to know some utilities that are in very good standing and need no assistance. Will they be entitled to the reimbursement also by the province? Where will the Government draw the line between who qualifies and who does not?

My third question is: Will there be a time limit on those refunds to the provinces? Will they be renewed year after year automatically without any deserving consideration? It will be interesting to note next year how much of those refunds reached the consumer's pocket.

This brings me to another question. What benefit will my Province of New Brunswick derive from this bill, since the New Brunswick Electric Power Commission is operated by the province? To my knowledge, today only the City of Fredericton derives electrical service from a public utility. New Brunswick has no gas service, except a small company in the Moncton area. Under the circumstances, this measure will certainly not be beneficial to New Brunswick, except to a very small degree, while the richer provinces, which have the privilege of natural gas services from several utilities, will benefit on a much larger scale.

Honourable senators, if this money is paid to the provinces carte blanche, I fail to see how it will assist the Brinco project in any way, unless by special arrangement not included in the bill.

It is true that the bill itself does not mention Brinco, but several news media have mentioned Brinco as a major gainer—and I hope they were right.

I may be out of order, but if this bill is to have the effect of bringing forward the construction of this vast project, I am all for it, for I am a strong believer in Brinco. During my time as chairman of the New Brunswick Electric Power Commission I used to follow the progress of Brinco very closely. I had the opportunity to visit the site as a guest of Brinco. I did that in the interests of the people of my province, because Brinco would bring assistance not only to our power problem but would resolve the question for many years to come.

In New Brunswick, due to our location, we must be sure that the transmission lines are not to be too far away. From such a transmission line to our system the New Brunswick Electric Power Commission could tap on to our New Brunswick and Nova Scotia grid system, and with the Prince Edward Island causeway extend the grid system as planned. So, to me, Brinco is a must.

I am somewhat worried about the delays, for many reasons. Nuclear power is at our doorstep. However, with the potential of Churchill Falls the available market for power and the latest method of energy transportation—by which the line loss has been reduced from 9 or 10 per cent to less than 2 per cent by converting alternating current to direct current and using converters at the other end of the line, at distribution centres, to reconvert it to the standard alternating current—this has solved many of the financial problems of the company. I hope to see some day a national grid across the nation. With the potential hydro of British Columbia, the coal and gas of the prairie provinces, the nuclear power facilities of Ontario, the tremendous hydro potential of Quebec, and the resources we have in the Maritimes, no doubt this could be one of the world's greatest power grid systems.

I will certainly support this bill. I hope those who will have the responsibility of carrying it to its successful conclusion will make sure that these payments will reach the right people and that the money will be used for the purpose for which it is intended.

Hon. J. Harper Prowse: Honourable senators, I would like to make just one comment, so there will be no misunderstanding about this bill.

It is that this bill does not bestow special privileges on anyone. What it does is to remove the unequal imposition of a tax on people, which has the effect of penalizing those people who still retain confidence in the capacity of private enterprise to provide a public service.

In the Province of Alberta practically all the natural gas systems—and the exceptions would be the City of Medicine Hat, the town of Lac-la-Biche and the town of Coleman—are provided by private enterprise. A great deal of the electricity and all the rural electricity is provided by private enterprise.

Under the present system those companies have to be taxed and it means that in the Province of Alberta the consumers of those utilities pay a tax, whereas if they lived in provinces where the utility was publicly owned and publicly administered they would not pay a tax.

Purely on the matter of principle that it seems improper and unfair in this country to penalize people for continuing to give practical effect to their belief in free enterprise, I submit, honourable senators, that this bill deserves your support.

Motion agreed to and bill read second time.

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this bill be read the third time?

On motion of Hon. Mr. Urquhart, bill placed on the Orders of the Day for third reading at the next sitting of the Senate.

STATUTE LAW (SUPERANNUATION) AMENDMENT BILL, 1966

SECOND READING—DEBATE ADJOURNED

Hon. Maurice Bourget moved the second reading of Bill C-193, to amend the Public Service Superannuation Act, the Canadian Forces Superannuation Act, the Defence Services Pension Continuation Act, the Royal Canadian Mounted Police Superannuation Act, the Diplomatic Service (Special) Superannuation Act, the Intercolonial and Prince Edward Island Railways Employees' Provi-dent Fund Act and the Canadian Corporation for the 1967 World Exhibition Act.

He said: Honourable senators, the main purpose of Bill C-193 is to provide for co-ordination between the Canada Pension Plan and a number of acts dealing with the superannuation of members of the Public Service. While this objective is readily understandable in principle, I can assure you it is very complex in detail. Its complexity stems from the fact that many statutes govern the superannuation position of employees of the Public Service. In fact, this bill now before us amends no fewer than seven acts, and they are: the Public Service Superannuation Act, the Canadian Forces Superannuation Act, the Defence Services Pension Continuation Act, the Royal Canadian Mounted Police Superannuation Act, the Diplomatic Service (Special) Superannuation Act, the Intercolonial and Prince Edward Island Railways Employees' Provident Fund Act and the Canadian Corporation for the 1967 World Exhibition Act. I should add here that the amendments to the Defence Services Pension Continuation Act and the Canadian Corporation for the 1967 World Exhibition Act are for purposes other than correlation with the Canada Pension Plan, and I will speak to those in detail at a later stage in my remarks.

I fear that this grouping puts this bill in that class of bills that has been described as omnibus. However, I am sure honourable senators will agree that it is not only highly desirable that the amendments to the various acts to which I have referred should come into effect at the same time, but that they should be considered collectively as they relate to and deal with the superannuation position of the very large grouping known as the Public Service.

Turning to the bill itself, may I deal first with the amendments that are proposed to integrate the Public Service Superannuation Act. This act is perhaps the one that is best known to us. It covers nearly all civil servants, or 70 per cent of the Public Service, broadly defined. In developing the amendments proposed to integrate the Public Service Superannuation Act with the Canada Pension Plan, the Government was guided by a desire to translate into a law as faithfully as possible two principles. The first principle is that the total contribution paid by the employee and by the Government on the salaries on which contributions are now being paid should not be increased. In order to accomplish this, a portion of the contribution is to be diverted away from the Public Service Superannuation Fund to the Canada Pension Plan Fund or the Quebec Pension Plan Fund, as the case may be.

Perhaps I can best illustrate this by an example. For a male contributor to the Public Service Superannuation Fund the reduction will be from 6.5 per cent to 4.7 per cent—the difference of 1.8 per cent will be contributed to the Canada Pension Plan—of that portion of salary from $600 to $5,000 per year, the range that is subject to Canada Pension Plan contributions. For female contributors, the result of the diversion to the Canada Pension Plan Fund will be a reduction from 5 per cent to 3.2 per cent in respect of contributions in the same $600 to $5,000 per year salary range.

These reductions in the rate of contributions payable to the Public Service Superannuation Fund means that the benefits payable out of this fund will likewise have to be reduced. I should note here that this reduction in benefits from the fund will be in respect of service beginning January 1, 1966, which, of course, is the date on which the Canada Pension Plan came into effect. In providing for this reduction of benefits payable from the Superannuation Fund, the second principle comes into play, namely, that the combination of benefits under the Public Service Superannuation Act and the Canada Pension Plan should not be less than the benefits which would have been payable under the formula for the Public Service Superannuation Fund prior to these amendments in respect of contributors as of December 31, 1965 and who remain continuously employed until they retire on immediate annuities.

The second principle, therefore, envisages that such a person who withdraws from employment after January 1, 1966, shall be entitled to a pension which will be at least equal to that to which he would have been entitled under the Public Service Superannuation Act, if there had been no adjustment made to it as a result of this integration with the Canada Pension Plan. I should point out here, of course, that no person who retired prior to January 1, 1966—that is to say, prior to the coming into force of the Canada Pension Plan—is in any way affected by the proposed integration measures of this bill.

Honourable senators, translating this second principle into law has given rise to certain paradoxical situations in respect of a limited number of cases, and I will be speaking about this fact a little further on in my remarks.

Before leaving the discussion of the procedure by which the Public Service Superannuation Act is to be integrated with the Canada Pension Plan, it might be useful to give some information as to the source of the two principles which guided the integration.

It was not long after the Canada Pension Plan was announced that requests for the adoption of the two principles I have mentioned were made to the Government. These requests came from the staff associations themselves. In response to these requests, the Minister of Finance referred to his advisory committee on the Public Service Superannuation Act the question of developing a formula which would meet these requirements in so far as that act was concerned. The advisory committee which is made up of equal representation from the official and staff sides of the Public Service of Canada, prepared and recommended to the minister the formula which is incorporated in this bill. The minister then informed the National Joint Council of the Public Service of Canada of these proposals before deciding to recommend them to the Government. Only after the National Joint Council endorsed the advisory committee's proposals did the Government decide to accept them and to recommend them to Parliament, as has been done in this bill. I mention this to emphasize the degree to which the representations of the Civil Service staff organizations were involved in the consideration and development of these proposals before they were approved by the Government.

Before turning to the procedures describing how the four other pension funds this bill proposes are to be integrated with the Canada Pension Plan, may I first observe that in no other case was it possible to use exactly the same approach as that developed for the Public Service Superannuation Act. A number of features account for this, foremost of which are the low average age, and consequently high cost of pensions payable to members of the armed forces and the R.C.M.P., and the general circumstances of contribution and benefits of the other two, and more minor pension funds affected by this bill.

The procedures whereby the Canadian Forces Superannuation Act and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police Superannuation Act are to be integrated with the Canada Pension plan can be considered together, as the features of both plans are quite similar. On the contributions side, the arrangement is simple enough. The amount of the Canada Pension Plan contribution will be deducted from the 6 per cent contribution rate now being paid by contributors to the Canadian Forces Superannuation Account and the R.C.M.P. Superannuation Account on earnings between $600 and $5,000. On the first $600 of earnings and on earnings in excess of $5,000, the 6 per cent rate will continue as formerly.

On the benefit side, there will likewise be complete integration of benefits so that in the case of normal retirement, benefits now payable under the existing superannuation laws would continue to be payable as a charge against the existing superannuation account until age 65. But, from age 65 on, when the Canada Pension Plan benefit becomes payable, the Canada Pension Plan benefit will be offset by a corresponding reduction in the amount of benefit continuing to be paid after age 65 from the armed forces or R.C.M.P. Superannuation account.

The effect of these proposals is to integrate the pension contributions and benefits of more than 95 per cent of the members of the regular forces and more than 80 per cent of the members of the R.C.M.P. with the Canada Pension Plan. This result should be gratifying to those senators who were members of the Joint Committee on the Canada Pension Plan two sessions ago. They will recall that the committee urged, and the Government agreed, to leave the door open for members of the armed forces and the R.C.M.P. to be brought into the Canada Pension Plan. In the result, nearly all made it through that door.

Perhaps I should mention that the superannuation benefits of the remaining 5 per cent of the regular armed forces and the remaining 20 per cent of the R.C.M.P. are governed by the Defence Services Pension Continuation Act, and the R.C.M.P. Pension Continuation Act, respectively. These acts cover persons who enrolled in the armed forces prior to World War II and persons who became members of the R.C.M.P. prior to 1949. Both continuation acts feature more generous benefits than those provided under the Canadian Forces Superannuation Act and the R.C.M.P. Superannuation Act. The relevant cost factors are such that it has not proved possible to devise an equitable formula to bring persons subject to these continuation acts under the Canada Pension Plan.

Honourable senators, I do not propose to go into the detail of the formula by which the Diplomatic Services (Special) Superannuation

Act and the Intercolonial and Prince Edward Island Railways Employees' Provident Fund Act are being integrated with the Canada Pension Plan. Suffice it to say that they are each unique because of the special conditions of contributions and benefits that obtain for these two funds. May I simply say that those with an actuarial bent will find the details of the integration formulas proposed for these two acts in clauses 78(3) and 90 respectively.

Honourable senators, this completes the very general remarks I had intended making in respect of the integration proposals contained in the bill.

In addition, the measure now before us proposes certain other changes to the various acts being amended, and I would like to draw your attention briefly to some of the more significant ones.

Perhaps the most important of these are the changes proposed in the Public Service Superannuation Act to introduce a degree of "portability" of benefits. Clause 18 of Bill C-193 extends the power of the minister to enter into reciprocal pension transfer agreements with any employer with an approved pension plan. This, in practice, means a type of plan which is registered for income tax deduction purposes. A further change extends the provision in the existing law under which actuarial equivalent benefits may be payable prior to the age of 60 under the Public Service Superannuation Act, while other clauses would compel a locking-in of contributions made after a date to be proclaimed by the Governor in Council, in the case of a person retiring after the age of 45, with at least ten years of pensionable service.

I might also say that it is the introduction of this concept of portability of pensions which is responsible for many of the amendments in the Diplomatic Service (Special) Superannuation Act where, as a result, benefits will henceforth become payable as a matter of right instead of being subject to a grant by the Governor in Council.

Honourable senators, the bill also provides for the removal of the present ceiling of $5,000 on the death benefit. In its place will be a provision setting the amount of death benefit at the multiple of $250 equal to or next above the salary of the employee. Actuarial advice indicates that this feature can be added to the plan for civil servants without jeopardizing its fiscal soundness.

Members of the regular forces have also been included under this plan and will be eligible for the larger amounts of benefit. This will be done by adding a new Part 3 to the Canadian Forces Superannuation Act.

One further proposed change that I would like to single out is that which relates to the limitation which now exists on the amount of pension a former officer of our armed forces may receive if he is subsequently employed in the Public Service of Canada. The bill contains a provision which will make this control more flexible. It will give the Governor in Council power to determine the extent of any adjustments to be made.

Honourable senators, in closing may I be permitted to observe that in a certain sense the bill before us is no stranger to the Senate. Its central provisions were foreshadowed in our consideration of the Canada Pension Plan at which time, it will be recalled, the Government set out its views of how public service pension plans could be integrated in the pension plan. Additionally, Bill C-193 has itself been the subject of examination in the Joint Committee on the Public Service which was set up early this session, and I would like briefly to speak of the examination it received in that forum.

The study of the bill in the joint committee started Thursday, June 16, and was completed on June 22. All Civil Service associations or federations who had an interest in the bill were notified to appear and the following organizations presented briefs: Association of Canadian Forces Annuitants, The Civil Service Federation of Canada, The Civil Service Commission, and The Canadian Unions of Postal Workers.

It was my privilege to serve as one of the co-chairmen on the joint committee, and discussions on the bill and the briefs were most informative, even if somewhat difficult for informed laymen—and I don't pretend to be one of them—to follow. However, I am sure I speak for all members of the joint committee when I say how grateful we are for the expert guidance provided us by two outstanding officials of our Public Service. I refer, of course, to Dr. George Davidson, Secretary of the Treasury Board, and Mr. Hart Clark, Director of the Pensions and Social Insurance Division of the Department of Finance.

Honourable senators, the proceedings of the joint committee have been printed and have been available for several days now, so may I simply observe that much of the discussion centred on the effects of the "lock-in" provisions of the bill. It was argued that the locking in of contributions of persons who retire after age 45 and after ten years of service is, in fact, a loss of privilege from what obtained previously. But it should be noted that the lock-in clause itself serves, if I might put it this way, a wider goal in that it ties in with the measures for portability which this bill contains.

Another anomalous situation was discussed in committee. This relates to the position of two persons who retire and who have service after January 1, 1966. Their entitlement to benefits rests on their pension position in the Public Service Superannuation fund and for the Canada Pension Plan. It was pointed out that if one decides to take employment again, he would get benefits only from the Public Service Superannuation fund, while the other who remains retired would get benefits from the Canada Pension Plan as well.

The situation appears to be this: Both will receive identical treatment in respect of their benefits from the Public Service Superannuation fund but the person who takes another employment will be affected by the conditions governing payment of pension under the Canada Pension Plan. Depending on the level of his earnings, payments of benefit under the Canada Pension Plan may be suspended until such time as he retires from his known nongovernmental employment, at which point he would be reinstated at what would then presumably be a somewhat higher level than the Canada Pension Plan.

The committee also considered the question of decisions being made by the Minister of Finance or the Minister of National Defence without appeal to the Treasury Board. The Minister of National Revenue before the joint committee indicated the Government was prepared to re-examine its position here. And it is gratifying to note that amendments were introduced in committee in the other place to provide for appeal to the Treasury Board from the decisions of the ministers to whom I have referred.

Honourable senators, as I said at the outset, this is a very complex bill, and I do not pretend to know or to have understood everything about it, even when it was explained in committee. I think that some honourable senators who were also members of the committee will agree with me on that. I have attempted to give a straightforward explanation, and I hope my remarks have clarified and not confused the issue in your minds. The bill has received very careful consideration at the hearings of the joint committee, and I am confident that the details of the bill translate faithfully into law its principles, and I urge the Senate to give it its favourable consideration.

On motion of Hon. Mr. Macdonald (Cape Breton), for Hon. Mr. O'Leary (Antigonish-Guysborough), debate adjourned.

The Senate adjourned until tomorrow at 3 p.m.

THE SENATE

Thursday, June 30, 1966

The Senate met at 3 p.m., Hon. Maurice Bourget, P.C., Acting Speaker, in the Chair.

Prayers.

DOCUMENTS TABLED

Hon. John J. Connolly tabled:

Supplementary Estimates (B) for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1967. (English and French texts).

Report of Canadian Patents and Development Limited for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1966, certified by the Auditor General, pursuant to sections 85(3) and 87(3) of the Financial Administration Act, chapter 116, R.S.C., 1952. (English and French texts).

Report of Crown Assets Disposal Corporation, including its Accounts and Financial Statements certified by the Auditor General, for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1966, pursuant to section 14 of the Surplus Crown Assets Act, chapter 260, and sections 85(3) and 87(3) of the Financial Administration Act, chapter 116, R.S.C., 1952. (English and French texts).

Report of the Canadian Commercial Corporation, including its Accounts and Financial Statements certified by the Auditor General, for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1966, pursuant to sections 85(3) and 87(3) of the Financial Administration Act, chapter 116, R.S.C., 1952. (English and French texts).

Report on the Administration of the Canada Labour (Standards) Code for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1966, pursuant to section 49 of the said Code, chapter 38, Statutes of Canada, 1964-65. (English and French texts).

Report on the Operations of the Municipal Development and Loan Board, including its Accounts and Financial Statements certified by the Auditor General, for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1966, pursuant to section 20 of the Municipal Development and Loan Act. chapter 13, Statutes of Canada, 1963. (English and French texts).

News Release issued by the Treasury Board concerning increases in rates of pay for certain classifications of civil servants, together with extract from the minutes of a meeting of the Treasury Board held at Ottawa, June 29, 1966. (English and French texts).

He said: Honourable senators will note that I have tabled Supplementary Estimates (B). Normally, I make a motion at this time to refer such supplementary Estimates to the Standing Committee on Finance. However, on this occasion they are very short and deal with only two loan items. Therefore, I think there is no need to refer them to the committee. They can be explained when they arise in the normal course under the Appropriation Bill.

PRIVATE BILLS

LUTHERAN CHURCH IN AMERICA—CANADA SECTION—REPORT OF COMMITTEE

Hon. A. K. Hugessen, for Hon. Mr. Bourget, Chairman of the Standing Committee on Miscellaneous Private Bills, reported that the committee had considered Bill S-39, to incorporate Lutheran Church in America—Canada Section, and had directed that the bill be reported without amendment.

THIRD READING

The Hon. the Acting Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this bill be read the third time?

Hon. Mr. Hugessen: Honourable senators, as this is an uncontested church bill, I suggest we might consider giving it third reading now. With leave, I move third reading.

Motion agreed to and bill read third time and passed.

THE EVANGELICAL COVENANT CHURCH OF CANADA—REPORT OF COMMITEE ADOPTED

Hon. Mr. Hugessen, for Hon. Mr. Bourget, Chairman of the Standing Committee on Miscellaneous Private Bills, reported that the committee had considered Bill S-38, to incorporate The Evangelical Covenant Church of Canada, and had directed that the bill be reported with the following amendment:

Page 6: Delete clause 18.

The Hon. the Acting Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this report be taken into consideration?

Hon. Mr. Hugessen: Honourable senators, with leave of the Senate, I move that this report be adopted now, although, inasmuch as there is an amendment to the bill, I will not suggest that it be given third reading today. Perhaps I should explain to the house the amendment proposed by the committee.

This amendment deletes clause 18 from the bill, which is to incorporate an ecclesiastical body known as The Evangelical Covenant Church of Canada. Clause 18 is rather peculiar; indeed, in my experience I have not seen a similar clause. It would allow the corporation to change its name if it wished by deleting the word "Evangelical", or by substituting another word for "Evangelical". This is a very unusual power that the corporation sought. However, after discussion, they reached the conclusion that it would be difficult to get Parliament to agree to such a power.

I have in my hand a letter from the counsel for the promoters of the bill in which they explain that they have agreed to the deletion of clause 18. With the concurrence of the house, I will read this letter:

> When the above-mentioned Bill was being orginally drafted, the Church expressed to us the desire to be given the power to change its name from time to time as it might decide. As a result of our own advice, corroborated by Senate Councel and others, we advised the Church that Parliament would find the granting of such latitude unacceptable.
>
> The underlying thought behind the Church's desire for the broadest powers with respect to its name was that in the years to come a change or changes might be desirable in order to accommodate the opinions and practices of other similar congregations in Canada which might wish to join the Evangelical Covenant Church of Canada.
>
> Clause 18 as it appeared in the bill was drafted as a compromise. However, the Church on further consideration came to feel that the true purpose, in asking for the flexibility of name might not be understood by the members of its several congregations. Specifically it came to be feared that Clause 18 might be interpreted as evidencing a particular theological attitude relating either to the emphasis or de-emphasis of the evangelical aspect of the Church's doctrine.

So they withdrew section 18 for reasons I think we all agree are good. That is the explanation of the amendment.

Report adopted.

The Hon. the Acting Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this bill be read the third time?

Hon. Mr. Hugessen moved that the bill be placed on the Orders of the Day for third reading at the next sitting.

CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAY BILL

CONSTRUCTION OF BRANCH LINE NEAR STALL LAKE, MANITOBA AND OF BRANCH LINE NEAR WATROUS, SASKATCHEWAN—AUTHORITY TO PRINT COMMITTEE PROCEEDINGS

Hon. A. K. Hugessen, Chairman of the Standing Committee on Transport and Communications, presented the following report of the committee on Bill C-210, respecting the construction by Canadian National Railway Company of a line of railway in the Province of Manitoba from the vicinity of Stall Lake on the Chisel Lake Subdivision of Canadian National Railways in a northeasterly direction for a distance of approximately 12 miles to a point in the vicinity of Osborne Lake in The Pas Mining District of that Province, and of a line of railway in the Province of Saskatchewan from the vicinity of Watrous on the Watrous Subdivision of the said Railways in a northeasterly direction for a distance of approximately 18 miles to a point in the vicinity of Guernsey in the Regina Mining District of that Province:

> Your committee recommends that authority be granted for the printing of 800 copies in English and 300 copies in French of its proceedings on the said bill.

The Hon. the Acting Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this report be taken into consideration?

Hon. Mr. Hugessen: I move, with leave of the Senate, that the report be adopted now.

Report adopted.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE

Hon. Mr. Hugessen, Chairman of the Standing Committee on Transportation and Communications reported that the committee had considered Bill C-210, respecting the construction by Canadian National Railway Company of a line of railway in the Province of Manitoba from the vicinity of Stall Lake on the Chisel Lake Subdivision of Canadian National Railways in a northeasterly direction for a distance of approximately 12 miles to a point in the vicinity of Osborne Lake in The Pas Mining District of that Province, and of a line of railway in the Province of Saskatchewan from the vicinity of Watrous on the Watrous Subdivision of the said Railways in a northeasterly direction for a distance of approximately 18 miles to a point in the vicinity of Guernsey in the Regina Mining District of that Province, and had directed that the blll be reported without amendment.

The Hon. the Acting Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this bill be read the third time?

Hon. Mr. McDonald moved that the bill be placed on the Orders of the Day for third reading at the next sitting.

CANADA LABOUR (SAFETY) CODE BILL

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ADOPTED

Hon. A. K. Hugessen, Chairman of the Standing Committee on Transport and Communications, reported that the committee had considered Bill S-35, respecting the prevention of employment injury in federal works, undertakings and business, and had directed that the bill be reported with the following amendments:

1. Page 3, line 37: After "equipment," insert "vehicles,".

2. Page 4, line 20: After "use" insert "and disposal".

3. Page 4, line 35: After "on" insert "or to be carried on".

4. Page 4: Immediately after paragraph (i) insert the following as new paragraph (j).

"(j) prescribing mechanical standards for vehicles and equipment;".

5. Pages 4 and 5: Reletter present paragraphs (j) to (p) as paragraphs (k) to (q) respectively.

The Hon. the Acting Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this report be taken into consideration?

Hon. Mr. Hugessen, with leave of the Senate, moved that the report be taken into consideration now.

He said: Honourable senators, I wish to explain briefly the amendments which have been read. They are quite minor amendments, mostly verbiage, to clear up certain points.

After considerable discussion and debate in committee, they were accepted by the Minister of Labour and his officials, who agreed they improved the text of the bill. We had the benefit of having the minister present at two long sittings of the committee. We went into the bill quite thoroughly. We had one or two representations from labour organizations, and I think they were satisfied with respect to the particular matters which interested them.

On the whole, we were satisfied that this is a good bill regarding Canadian labour safety regulations and that its application will be sufficient to fill up any gaps which exist in those regulations.

Honourable senators, as this is a Senate bill, it has to go to the House of Commons. It has been on the tapis for quite a long time. We have given it our best consideration. I would be happy to see it go to the House of Commons as quickly as possible, so that they may deal with it and have it become the law of the land. If that meets with the approval of the Senate, I would move concurrence in these amendments and, following that, but only with the unanimous consent of this house, that the bill be read the third time right away.

Hon. Jacques Flynn: Would the honourable senator explain one amendment, which I did not grasp, in reference to motor vehicles?

Hon. Mr. Hugessen: I believe my honourable friend is referring to section 7, on page 4 of the bill, dealing generally with the regulations which the Governor in Council could make.

As the honourable senator will recall, there are many such paragraphs, ranging from (a) to (p). One of the regulations inserted in this amendment would allow the Governor in Council to prescribe mechanical standards for vehicles and equipment. It was suggested in that form, I believe, by the counsel for the trucking employees. It was considered by the Government officials, who thought it would be well to insert that as one of the things about which the Governor in Council could make regulations in connection with safety matters.

Hon. Mr. Flynn: Would the honourable senator explain exactly what would be the field of application to motor vehicles? Would this enable the Government to deal, for instance, with the general problem, which is outside the scope of the bill, of the safety devices for all motor vehicles? If this is the purpose, it is certainly outside the scope of the bill.

Hon. Mr. Hugessen: The bill, constitutionally, can deal only with matters which come under the federal power. Under the Winner case, as the honourable senator knows, the Privy Council decided that interprovincial trucking was a matter of federal power, falling within the competence of Parliament. I can quite understand that in connection with interprovincial trucking or international trucking to the United States it would be valuable to allow the Governor in Council to issue regulations prescribing mechanical standards for vehicles and equipment.

Hon. Mr. Flynn: As long as the honourable senator can assure the house that we are not enlarging the scope of the bill which is simply enabling legislation for the Government in the labour field which is its own, I do not see any problem. But I think we would be enlarging the scope and dealing with something which is completely outside the scope envisaged by the bill when it was introduced, if we were to deal with all problems concerning motor vehicles.

Hon. Mr. Hugessen: I quite agree, but I do not think that this wording, concerned with one of the many subjects on which the Governor in Council could make regulations, adds very much to it. It is all within the scope of the general requirements of the act which is specifically limited by section 3 to works subject to the jurisdiction of the Parliament of Canada.

Hon. Arthur W. Roebuck: Honourable senators, I wish to make a short comment in connection with this measure.

Honourable senators will probably remember that when it was before the house in the first instance I said that it was an exceedingly valuable bill, so valuable in fact that I took a rather strenuous objection to section 3, subsection 3, which exempted its application to the operation of railroads, aircraft and ships. I was especially interested in its impact on railroads, and I was able to say at that time how long a period had elapsed in which the railroad men had demanded some safety measure such as this. I illustrated my point by citing the fact that on the Canadian Pacific Railway from one side of Canada to the other, men on the diesels were obliged to drink from a tin pail and out of a common tin cup. This is highly unsanitary and out of date.

This matter came before the committee, and at this stage I want to compliment the chairman on his diplomacy and courtesy and on the effective way in which he operated as chairman of that committee. We had three representatives who were high officials of various railway unions who took the same line as I have taken and who told us, from their personal knowledge, of what was taking place, and about the buck passing from one department to another ad nauseam as to responsibility.

The minister appeared before us and gave us much of his time and a great deal of thought. Generally speaking, he said that while the railroad men were excluded at the moment from the immediate application of the bill, power was reserved in the bill for the Governor in Council to apply it in the future in whole or in part as occasion might require.

At the last meeting we had a message from the Chairman of the Board of Transport Commissioners in which he intimated that if the railroad unions made an application, which he rather suggested had not been effectively made in the past, full consideration would be given to this matter. In consequence of the assurance of the minister that these matters will not be allowed to drift, and that should the railroad commission find themselves without jurisdiction or if nothing was done, his department would then take it in hand. With that assurance and with the emphasis that has been laid upon the evils of the present situation as they now exist, the representatives of the railway unions were satisfied that we should pass the measure. Of course they and I would have liked to have this measure applied to railroads just as it applies to all other organizations within our control. I think it should do so. The power of the Board of Transport Commissioners, for instance, to appoint inspectors to see that sanitary arrangements are properly applied does not exist. They have no such authority. They may pass an order directing certain things to be done—and no doubt they have certain means of investigation—but they have no powers so full or so effective as the powers provided in the bill itself.

While I would like to have seen the bill applied to all railroads for the protection of the men in a sanitary way, the representatives were fairly well satisfied, and I felt I was quite prepared to vote for the bill then as I am now.

Once again I congratulate the committee and particularly its chairman for the effective way in which they have dealt with this matter. We sent the labour men away satisfied; we sent the minister away satisfied; and even I was pretty well satisfied.

Report adopted.

THIRD READING

The Hon. the Acting Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this bill be read the third time?

Hon. Mr. Hugessen: With leave of the Senate, I move that the bill be read the third time now.

Motion agreed to and bill read third time and passed.

INTERPRETATION ACT

BILL TO REVISE—REPORT OF COMMITTEE ADOPTED

Hon. Salter A. Hayden, Chairman of the Standing Committee on Banking and Commerce, reported that the committee had considered Bill S-9, to revise and consolidate the Interpretation Act and amendments thereto, and to effect certain consequential amendments to the Canada Evidence Act and the Bills of Exchange Act, and had directed that the bill be reported with the following amendments:

1. Page 10: Strike out lines 1 and 2 and substitute the following:

"(6) Words importing male persons include female persons and corporations."

2. Page 12: Strike out line 38 and substitute the following:

"(a) in the Province of Quebec, for so long as such days are non-juridical days by virtue of an Act of the legislature of that Province, the Epiphany; the"

3. Page 22: Add to the Schedule the name "Guyana".

The Hon. the Acting Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this report be taken into consideration?

Hon. Mr. Hayden, with leave of the Senate, moved that the report be taken into consideration now.

He said: Honourable senators, may I say a brief word of explanation. We are not really making any biological changes in the first amendment proposed to the bill. In the bill it is provided that words importing one gender shall include all other genders. We found that too difficult to absorb, and we did not exercise any judgment in the matter that was new or unusual.

We decided that what was in the present act was much better phraseology and, therefore, we restored what is in the present act:

> Words importing male persons include female persons and corporations.

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): There is no definition of "corporation"?

Hon. Mr. Hayden: No, there is no definition of "corporations".

The second amendment had to do with the meaning of the word "holiday" when it occurs in any statute. The bill provides, among other things, that in the Province of Quebec when the word "holiday" occurs and there is any application to Quebec it means the Epiphany, Ascension Day, All Saints Day and Conception Day. We had been advised that by a statute of the Province of Quebec, which comes into force later this year, these named days cease to be non-juridical days and, therefore, we thought that, instead of striking out its application to the Province of Quebec in interpreting "holiday" in these particular instances, we should leave it in, but we would provide that it had application only so long as such days were non-juridical days. Hence, the amendment reads:

> (a) in the Province of Quebec, for so long as such days are non-juridical days by virtue of an Act of the legislature of that Province,—

Even before we started our consideration of this bill another country was added to the list of Commonwealth countries, and therefore we have added Guyana. It was suggested that maybe before this bill becomes law there will be more, but there is provision in the bill, when it becomes law, to accomplish that by proclamation.

Report adopted.

THIRD READING

The Hon. the Acting Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this bill be read the third time?

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): Honourable senators, this bill originated in the Senate. At this stage of the proceedings I think it would be wise to give it third reading now. If there is unanimous consent, I move third reading of the bill.

Motion agreed to and bill, as amended, read third time and passed.

AUTOMOTIVE PRODUCTS

CANADA-UNITED STATES AGREEMENT—REPORT OF COMMITTEE ADOPTED

Hon. Salter A. Hayden, Chairman of the Standing Committee on Banking and Commerce, reported that the committee had examined the Agreement concerning Automotive Products between the Government of Canada and the Government of the United States of America, signed on January 16, 1965, and had recommended that the Senate do approve the Agreement.

The Hon. the Acting Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this report be taken into consideration?

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): I move, with leave of the Senate, that the report be adopted now.

Report adopted.

HEALTH RESOURCES FUND BILL

REPORT OF COMMITTEE

Hon. Salter A. Hayden, Chairman of the Standing Committee on Banking and Commerce, reported that the committee had considered Bill C-199, to provide for the establishment of a Health Resources Fund to assist provinces in the acquisition, construction and renovation of health training facilities and research institutions, and had directed that the bill be reported without amendment.

The Hon. the Acting Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this bill be read the third time?

Hon. Mr. Lang moved that the bill be placed on the Orders of the Day for third reading at the next sitting.

Motion agreed to.

PENITENTIARIES

FIRST REPORT OF JOINT COMMITTEE ADOPTED

Hon. W. M. Benidickson, Joint Chairman of the Special Joint Committee of the Senate and House of Commons on Penitentiaries, presented the first report of the committee:

> Your committee recommends that its quorum be fixed at ten (10) members, provided that both Houses are represented.

The Hon. the Acting Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this report be taken into consideration?

Hon. Mr. Benidickson: Honourable senators, I move, with leave of the Senate, that the report be adopted now.

Report adopted.

CANADIAN DAIRY COMMISSION BILL

AUTHORITY TO PRINT COMMITTEE PROCEEDINGS

Hon. T. D'Arcy Leonard, Chairman of the Standing Committee on Finance, presented the following report of the committee on Bill C-205, to provide for the establishment of a Dairy Commission for Canada:

> Your committee recommends that authority be granted for the printing of 800 copies in English and 300 copies in French of its proceedings on the said bill.

The Hon. the Acting Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this report be taken into consideration?

Hon. Mr. Leonard: I move, with leave of the Senate, that the report be adopted now.

Report adopted.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE

Hon. Mr. Leonard, Chairman of the Standing Committee on Finance, reported that the committee had considered Bill C-205, to provide for the establishment of a Dairy Commission for Canada, and had directed that the bill be reported without amendment.

The Hon. the Acting Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this bill be read the third time?

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West) moved that the bill be placed on the Orders of the Day for third reading at the next sitting.

Motion agreed to.

THE ESTIMATES

SUPPLEMENTARIES (A)—AUTHORITY TO PRINT PROCEEDINGS

Hon. T. D'Arcy Leonard, Chairman of the Standing Committee on Finance, presented the following report of the committee, to which was referred the Supplementary Estimates (A) laid before Parliament for the fiscal year ending March 31st,1967:

> Your committee recommends that authority be granted for the printing of 800 copies in English and 300 copies in French of its proceedings on the said Supplementary Estimates (A).

The Hon. The Acting Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this report be taken into consideration?

Hon. Mr. Leonard: I move, with leave of the Senate, that the report be adopted now.

Report adopted.

DOMINION DAY

NOTICE OF INQUIRY

Hon. Keith Davey: Honourable senators, I wish to give notice of an inquiry I shall make of the Government on Tuesday next. Perhaps at this time I may give a short explanation.

I have observed with considerable interest, some concern and a great deal of disappointment that most supermarket chains as well as many other businesses, at least in the Toronto and Ottawa areas, are remaining open for business tomorrow, July 1, Canada's 99th birthday.

In my opinion this unpatriotic practice is diametrically opposed to the concept of Canadian nationhood. It is perhaps a classic example of placing materialistic considerations ahead of the national interest. It certainly is not the way to foster a sense of pride in Canada. It is my view that these firms should not be open for business tomorrow.

While this cannot, perhaps, be accomplished by legislation, I am convinced that public opinion could be mobilized to demonstrate rather dramatically that the overwhelming majority of Canadians think that Canada's national holiday should be observed by all but essential services.

Some companies are apparently going to close on Monday, July 4, to provide their employees with a long weekend. This, of course, is the American and not the Canadian national holiday. It seems to me that it would have been a more sensible arrangement for these companies to have closed on both Friday, July 1 and Saturday, July 2.

I therefore give notice that on Tuesday next I propose to inquire what steps the Government and/or the Centennial Commission will take to prevent non-essential business establishments from doing business on July 1, 1967, the Centenary of Confederation.

EXCHEQUER COURT ACT

BILL TO AMEND—THIRD READING

Hon. A. K. Hugessen moved the third reading of Bill C-201, to amend the Exchequer Court Act.

Motion agreed to and bill read third time and passed.

ATLANTIC DEVELOPMENT BOARD ACT

BILL TO AMEND—THIRD READING

Hon. John J. Connolly, for Hon. Charles McElman, moved the third reading of Bill C-213, to amend the Atlantic Development Board Act.

Motion agreed to and bill read third time and passed.

PUBLIC UTILITIES INCOME TAX TRANSFER BILL

THIRD READING

Hon. Earl W. Urquhart moved the third reading of Bill C-211, to authorize the Minister of Finance to transfer to the Provinces a proportion of the income tax payable by certain public utility companies.

Motion agreed to and bill read third time and passed.

COMPANY OF YOUNG CANADIANS BILL

SECOND READING

Hon. Keith Davey moved the second reading of Bill C-174, to provide for the establishment of The Company of Young Canadians.

He said: Honourable senators, although I have been on my feet in this chamber several times previously, I choose to regard these remarks as my formal beginning. My first words must be of appreciation to all honourable senators who have made me feel so very much at home here. I am most grateful to His Honour the Speaker who has shown me considerable kindness. I should like to thank also the officers and members of the Senate staff for their unfailing courtesy and co-operation.

Honourable senators, a better politician on an occasion like this would not single out particular senators but, frankly, I am most anxious to do so. With your indulgence I should like to mention one or two senators personally. The honourable Leader of the Government in the Senate, Senator John Connolly, of course has been my personal leader for a long time. Indeed, for four or five years when I was the national organizer of the Liberal party the honourable Leader of the Government in the Senate was the president of the Liberal party, and we were in virtual daily communication. From personal experience I can attest that behind the Irish charm and Ottawa Valley wit there is toughness of mind, a sense of purpose, and a fierce dedication to Canada.

The other senators I would like to mention are, like myself, from Ontario. One who seems to me to personify the very best traditions of Ontario is Senator Ross Macdonald. I shall be always grateful to recall that it was this outstanding gentleman who sponsored me on the occasion of my introduction here.

There will be those, of course, who contend that Toronto is simply not Ontario but Toronto it seems to me has played a significant role in the history of my province, and of our country. Incidentally, it was in this spirit that I chose as my own designation the old and historic Toronto name of York. I have been impressed by the contribution made here by all Toronto senators on both sides of the house, and perhaps I may be allowed to mention the names of two Toronto senators who have been of great personal assistance to me since my arrival, namely, Senator Lang and Senator Aird, both of whom are personal friends and political colleagues of long standing.

Many of those who have been most friendly to me since I came here are members of the Opposition. I am thinking particularly of the honourable Leader of the Opposition, Senator Brooks, whose distinguished parliamentary career stretches back to 1935, the year when Senator Ross Macdonald entered the House of Commons. Perhaps the senators on the Opposition side of this chamber will allow me to mention just one of their number as a tribute to them all. Senator Grosart and I have locked horns on more occasions than one. He was, in my opinion, a brilliant organizer, and he remains, in my opinion, a master political strategist. I am privileged and proud to be his colleague.

It would be presumptuous, I think, for a new member of the Senate to make any profound observations about the institution itself, so on this occasion I shall content myself with just one. The Senate, it seems to me, is infinitely—and I have chosen the word "infinitely" with care—more effective than its public image. The people of Canada have practically no understanding of how much work is actually done here. Our productivity is all but obscured by our own chronic inability to do an adequate job of public relations for ourselves. However, honourable senators, perhaps that is a speech for another occasion.

In turning to Bill C-174, I would like to refer to what I consider to be two generally accepted by-products of life in today's affluent society. The first is the fact of grinding poverty side by side with plenty, both abroad and most certainly at home in Canada. Needless to say, such poverty, with its degradation, inequality and disease makes a mockery of democracy both at home and abroad.

The second fact of the affluent society is that it has produced a most remarkable generation of young people, remarkable for several reasons, the first of which is its size. By 1970, fifty-one per cent of all Canadians will be under 25 years of age. By 1970 there will be five million Canadians between the ages of 13 and 25.

Another remarkable aspect of this young generation is its attitude. At best it is inquiring, experimental and impatient. At worst, it is uncertain. Press coverage of this generation tends to be unbalanced towards sensation. There are of course exceptions to prove every rule, but the overwhelming majority of our young people are vitally concerned about real issues. However, they simply will not accept platitudes about a better world tomorrow or forecasts of inevitable gloom and doom.

It seems to me that it is in the potential interaction of these two ideas, poverty side by side with plenty, and a remarkable young generation, that the Company of Young Canadians has, if not its genesis, at least its inspiration. One of the Company's interim publications puts it rather well in this way:

> Better worlds don't just happen, they're made. The Company of Young Canadians wants to do something about this world. Members are going to places where they have been asked to help—perhaps in an outport community among some Eskimo families, or in slum areas where people sometimes live eight to a room.
>
> Members of the Company do things with people, instead of for them. They help people work out their own problems, so that in solving its troubles a community builds a strength of its own for the future.

Honourable senators, I am particularly pleased to sponsor this legislation for several reasons; primarily, of course, because the legislation itself has much merit, but also because its sponsor in the other place was the Prime Minister.

For a number of years before coming to the Senate I was in close personal association with Mr. Pearson. From the bottom of my heart I can honestly say I never again expect to meet such a truly great Canadian. In a sense, it seems to me that this kind of legislation is of the kind which one naturally tends to associate with someone like Mr. Pearson.

In a moment I propose to deal with the bill itself, but first I wish to say a word or two about its background and history. There has been one criticism, that it owes its inspiration and is indeed modelled after the United States Peace Corps; but in fact the idea of volunteer youth service to help others was developed about the same time early in the sixties in various countries throughout the free world, including Canada.

The Canadian University Service Overseas is usually referred to by the initials CUSO. Since 1961 CUSO has sent some 538 volunteers abroad. In the first two years of its operation CUSO was financed by private donations and by subscriptions from countries who were anxious that the work be done. Gradually, however, there was a greater participation by Government, until today the Government supplies around 80 per cent of CUSO's $1 million-plus budget.

In a moment or so I shall say a word or two more about CUSO, but first I propose to speak about The Company of Young Canadians itself.

The Company was first referred in the Speech from the Throne on April 5, 1965, in which it was stated:

> You will be asked to approve the establishment of a Company of Young Canadians, through which the energies and talents of youth can be enlisted in projects for economic and social development both in Canada and abroad.

Ten days later the Government appointed an organizing committee under the distinguished chairmanship of Dr. J. F. Leddy, who is now the President of the University of Windsor. Dr. Leddy was a former chairman of CUSO.

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): I think he was the founder of CUSO.

Hon. Mr. Davey: The founder.

This committee under Dr. Leddy's leadership sought opinions across Canada. It talked to federal departments, provincial governments, universities, various volunteer agencies across the country, as well as to private individuals. It prepared an excellent report, which was ready in November 1965. I understand that all honourable senators received a copy of this report, and it is certainly worth while reading. I shall not summarize the report here and now, but I should like to point out one recurring theme of the report, that is, that The Company of Young Canadians must be provided with the maximum degree of flexibility and the maximum degree of political independence.

Then pending preliminary consideration, the Government took several interim actions. I propose to discuss those interim actions, but first of all I wish to examine one or two of the pertinent clauses of the bill. It is my understanding that I should confine my remarks to the broad principles of the bill; therefore, I would draw the attention of honourable senators to several clauses.

Clause 14 sets forth the objects of the Company:

> The objects of the Company are to support, encourage and develop programs for social, economic and community development in Canada or abroad through voluntary service.

Clause 15 of the bill deals with the powers of the company. The clause sets forth the kind of activities in which it is envisaged the Company will engage. There are ten subclauses, and I will not refer to them all. However, the type of work which the Company is expected to participate in is work with school dropouts, people who are culturally deprived, career counselling, recreational programs, public health programs, home economics programs, community development programs and other activities.

All of these various suggested types of activity are set forth in this particular clause. Subclause (j), in particular, gives the Company the broadest possible scope:

> generally do at home or abroad all such things as are incidental or ancillary to any of the powers of the Company or that would tend to further the objects of the Company.

That is a provision which I think is intended to provide the kind of flexibility I had in mind.

Clause 4 should be referred to, because it deals with the administration of the Company. It proposes to set up a council of 15 members. These 15 members need not be volunteers. They will serve for a period of three years and will be entitled to serve for two terms only. Ten of the fifteen will be elected by the volunteer members of the Company themselves; five will be appointed by the Government. The significance of course is that the volunteer members will be able to control the destiny of the Company. Therefore, we shall not only have a Company of Young Canadians, but in essence a Company for Young Canadians.

Clause 10 refers to the appointment of an executive director. An interesting amendment was moved by the Opposition in the other place, and accepted by the Government and passed in connection with this particular clause, adding to the words, "appoint an executive director of the Company who shall hold office during pleasure," the amending words "with the concurrence of the Council." Again, that is an attempt to give the Company as much autonomy and flexibility as possible in its development.

Clause 22, another provision which I would draw to the attention of honourable senators, says:

> The Company shall be deemed to be a charitable organization in Canada
>
> (a) as described in paragraph (e) of subsection (1) of section 62 of the Income Tax Act, for the purposes of that Act; and
>
> (b) as described in subparagraph (i) of paragraph (d) of subsection (1) of section 7 of the Estate Tax Act, for the purposes of that Act.

There are several ground rules which have been established. First of all, suggestions for the Company will come from below, that is, the people of Canada will be asked to suggest projects. The Company will respond to requests, rather than press its own ideas on projects across the country. Secondly, all programs and projects will proceed only in co-operation with various existing agencies. Thirdly, during the first year, the Company's operations will be exclusively in Canada. Thus, the overseas field will be left to CUSO.

CUSO, of course, is understandably anxious to maintain a degree of independence. CUSO now relies on the Government for 80 per cent of its $1 million budget, and obviously there must be a greater degree of Government involvement in the work of CUSO. The Company of Young Canadians will wish after the first year of operation to go overseas. I am confident that CUSO and The Company of Young Canadians will be able to co-operate fully. Indeed, I understand that discussions on these lines are already under way.

The fourth ground rule is that the Company, in its domestic activity, will have its volunteer members occupy only positions which will not disemploy existing members of the labour force. In other words, the volunteer members of the Company will not exist as cheap labour.

There will be retraining from time to volunteers is that their selection will be on the basis of their personal qualities, of their experience in dealing with people, and of their experience of working in the particular project the Company has in mind.

There will be a five- to eight-week orientation or training period. During this training period, the accent will be upon human resources and on the particular project in which this particular volunteer will be involved.

There will be re-training from time to time. Volunteers will serve for a basic term of two years. The salary arrangement for a volunteer is as follows. They will receive an allowance for food, accommodation and personal expenses, and on completion of their term of service they will receive some honorarium. Thus, the Company hopes to establish a balance between a volunteer and others, as it could conceivably happen otherwise that only people with some money could afford to volunteer.

As I said a moment ago, some interim activities have been undertaken by the Company pending parliamentary approval. Reference to some of those activities will explain some of the ground rules, as well as the bill itself, and some additional points.

An interim director has been appointed, Mr. William McWhinney, was one of the first volunteer members of CUSO to go overseas. In 1961 he spent a considerable amount of time in Ceylon, shortly after graduation from the University of Toronto. He returned from Ceylon and became the first full-time secretary of CUSO. He left that post in January to become interim director of the C.Y.C.

An interim staff has been at work dealing with projects and applications. The list of projects and applications which has been suggested is most revealing. Some 60 projects have been submitted and 35 of these have been approved.

Some of the projects which have been approved include work with high school dropouts, Indian councils—work with youth programs, community development programs and work in rural and depressed areas, career counselling, home economic instruction, language classes for new Canadians and development of recreational programs.

There are four volunteer members of the C.Y.C. who are in the field today. Two of those are at Alert Bay, British Columbia, one is at Halifax, and one is at the Eskasoni Reserve, Nova Scotia. All of those four are involved in interim development work, and the reason they are in the field so quickly was the urgency denoted by the people asking for assistance.

Some 2,500 people inquired about membership in C.Y. C. About 85 per cent of these are in the age bracket 18 to 25; 40 per cent of the applicants have been women. The educational background is rather interesting. About 30 per cent are graduates of a university; 45 per cent are graduates of high school; and the balance are of other varying degrees of education.

Hon. Mr. Aseltine: Is there any age limit?

Hon. Mr. Davey: There really is not an age limit. While it is really a company of young Canadians, it is my understanding that if there are older Canadians who wish to involve themselves in the activities of the Company they will indeed be welcome. There are some people who are beyond the age of 25, an age limit which is not set arbitrarily, who have already applied.

In May 1966 the Government appointed an interim advisory committee. The chairman was Mr. Douglas Ward, President of the Canadian Union of Students, which as honourable senators will appreciate is a nationwide student organization, and the vice-chairman is Mr. Marc Lalonde, a young attorney from the City of Montreal.

In conclusion, honourable senators, I have just one or two observations to make. The first year of the Company's operations will understandably be highly experimental. It is only after the first year, it seems to me, that the Company will be able to assess and plan with any degree of intelligence or accuracy its future course. Clearly, much good and valuable work will be accomplished, and it seems to me there will be twin beneficiaries: First, the people with whom and the places where projects undertaken by The Company of Young Canadians are carried out; and the second beneficiary will be the Young Canadians themselves who actually participate in this work. Indeed, such a respected statesman as U Thant looks forward to the day when a period of such volunteer service will be a part of everyone's education.

I think it is significant that the Company has taken as its symbol the maple key. This symbol will signify the seed of Canada's future. The Company of Young Canadians will point the way towards as well as light up that future by providing young Canadians here and now with opportunities for the kind of service which often culminates in enlightened leadership.

Honourable senators, I believe it is intended to send this legislation to a committee where I am sure it can be examined in great detail.

Hon. Paul Yuzyk: Honourable senators, this measure deserves wholehearted support and I am sure it is welcomed not only by legislators but also by Canadians throughout the country. Realizing the very broad scope of the objects of The Company of Young Canadians "to support, encourage and develop programs for social, economic and community development in Canada or abroad through voluntary service," we congratulate the sponsor of the bill in this chamber, Senator Keith Davey, on his ability to explain in brief terms the need, significance, work, mechanics and operation of this new corporation. It was a fine, thoughtful maiden speech. We wish the new senator well in this chamber.

This piece of legislation deserves a full debate, discussing all aspects of the work of the C.Y.C. The time at our disposal regrettably is very limited, and it will therefore be necessary to confine oneself to a few pertinent remarks.

The principle of this legislation is of the highest order of human aspirations and consequently it is a pleasure to give it enthusiastic approval. A noteworthy feature of this legislation is the provision for a majority—two-thirds—of the governing body of The Company of Young Canadians to be elected by the volunteers themselves. Although established and for the most part financed by the Government, the organization is independent, as it is operated by young people of various ages. This should dispel the notion that it is a government agency. Free from political interference, it will make the work of this body much more acceptable and effective at home as well as abroad.

The Government is to be congratulated for having appointed over a year ago an organizing committee for this purpose, headed by Dr. Francis Leddy whom I know well, formerly Dean of Arts and Science at the University of Saskatchewan and now President of the University of Windsor. His leadership in the Canadian University Service Overseas and the World University Service of Canada brought a wealth of knowledge and experience to the organizing committee. After consultations and discussions with representatives of the federal and provincial governments, universities, youth organizations, voluntary agencies and private citizens, the committee presented its report on November 15, 1965, which is the basis for this legislation. It is a thorough report, which inspires confidence in the whole project and assures us that it will go ahead successfully.

As a matter of fact, the Government has already launched a pilot program of voluntary service to Canada, which was a wise step, in view of the fact that the legislation took so long to prepare. It is gratifying to learn that some 60 projects have been proposed to the interim organization of the C.Y.C., of which 35 have been approved for implementation just as soon as this bill receives Royal Assent.

It is most interesting to note the enthusiastic response of our Canadian youth in the 18 to 25 age group, as well as of many in the middle-age group, who feel young in spirit and wish to serve their country. This is a concrete indication that there is need for such a company and that our youth is desirous of giving unselfish service to their fellow-citizens, their country and their fellowman in various parts of the world where there exists the need to combat poverty, disease, ignorance, injustice, intolerance, oppression and inequality, and to help raise the level of human dignity, freedom, health, living conditions, education and general progress in various fields of life.

I would like to pay tribute to the Canadian University Service Overseas for the excellent and highly dedicated work that has already been performed by Canadian students during the past five years in assisting in the economic and social development of some of the emerging nations in Africa, Asia, Latin America and the Caribbean. Canadians can look with some pride upon the fact that CUSO volunteers left for overseas postings in 1961 several weeks earlier than their Peace Corps counterparts of the United States. CUSO is therefore a precursor of The Company of Young Canadians, which has drawn and will continue to draw upon the experience of that body. The Government has brought support to the work of CUSO and I understand will continue this support. We are pleased to learn that there will be full co-operation between The Company of Young Canadians and CUSO as programs will be worked out to provide wider and more intensive service in Canada and abroad, and to include also youth and those youthful in spirit who are not students.

In the past, Canadian governments were more concerned with the development of natural resources and it is only in recent years, since the last war, that increasing attention has been paid to the development of our human resources. The Company of Young Canadians has a tremendous and unlimited potential in mobilizing our human resources for the betterment of humanity. It presents to our young people a challenging avenue of service, which has already caught their imagination, and will inspire them to devote their energies and abilities in the promotion and fulfilment of a greater cause than themselves. By learning to help others who are in need, they in turn will learn to help themselves and thus become more useful citizens of Canada and the world.

A gigantic task faces the Council of the C.Y.C. Section 15 of the bill outlines the powers of the Company in a very general way.

In some of these fields of human endeavour, I fail to see how a six weeks' orientation program preceding the assignments of volunteers will prepare them adequately to cope with some of the situations, particularly when such a volunteer goes to an entirely different environment with a vastly different historical, social, cultural and linguistic background. Means will have to be found to convey the necessary knowledge and experience gained by historians, sociologists, psychologists and social workers to the volunteer, so that he will not become discouraged and disillusioned. It is imperative that programs should be well thought out and prepared before they are launched, even though they are in response to requests from communities and groups which may not always have clear ideas themselves. Good leadership will always be necessary.

In carrying out some of the projects whole communities will be involved and will benefit. Provision should be made to receive financial support—and that has been done—also from the private sector, such as industrial and commercial firms as well as community organizations.

I hope that The Company of Young Canadians will put forth an effort to make our communities and our people more conscious of the importance and functions of municipal, provincial and federal levels of government, and of our parliamentary institutions as well as of the United Nations. I would like to see the Company take an immediate interest in the Centennial Youth Parliament to be convened next year. I hope that many of the volunteers, after they have returned from service in different parts of Canada or other parts of the world, will offer themselves for election and continue to serve Canada as aldermen, reeves, mayors, parliamentarians and cabinet ministers. Their rich experience in the C.Y.C. will stand them, and Canada, in good stead.

The youth of today is living in an affluent society and an increasingly complex world, more dangerous than the world of the previous generation. This is the cause of a great deal of confusion. The Company of Young Canadians will help some of the young men and women to face the grave problems confronting them and will help them to find a place and role in our society. But how about the millions of other youths? They will need to be inspired to service for Canada and humanity; they will need direction and guidance in solving their problems. I believe that in the best interests of our Canadian nation and in the best interests of our young men and women the time has come to give serious thought to the establishment of a department of youth within the federal Government.

Hon. Josie D. Quart: Honourable senators, first may I congratulate Senator Davey on his excellent explanation of this bill. It seems quite appropriate to have a young senator, and a sport, sponsor this bill. Maybe we will be hearing further from Senator Davey, who will probably carry the ball in the Senate for sport.

After Senator Yuzyk's explanation, there is not very much left to be said, but I shall try to say something a little different.

Since the presentation of Bill C-174 in the House of Commons, a strong breeze of optimism is beginning to clear away the clouds of doubt and misunderstanding as to the structure and future of the C.Y.C.

It is a fact that nobody expected any dramatic enlisting of young people, and a great many persons, young and old, were skeptical of what it was intended to be and what to expect in the way of results. To be just, one must admit that criticism, even constructive criticism, is one of the most persistent problems such an organization has to face. This new venture is not a matter that can be completely evaluated at the present time by the minister in charge, nor by the directors of The Company of Young Canadians. Many hurdles have to be overcome, and the C.Y.C. would be well advised to profit by the suggestions and experience of the various national youth organizations and to enlist this support for the various projects. And here, apart from CUSO I am thinking of the Boy Scouts, Girl Guides, YMCA, YWCA, sports organizations and others.

Since reading some background material on the role and potentialities of the C.Y.C., I can appreciate the enormous problems involved, and the results of this experiment and new methods used in this imaginative venture should be followed with great interest and concern not only by those working within the framework of the C.Y.C., but by the entire country.

As Senator Davey has said—and I shall have to cut out some of my remarks here in order to avoid repetition—it was on April 15, 1965, ten days after the Speech from the Throne, that the Prime Minister appointed the organization committee. Senator Davey mentioned the chairman, Dr. J. Francis Leddy. Perhaps it would be of interest to mention some other members of the committee at this time: Reverend David Bauer, C.S.B., Mr. George Cram, Mlle Bernadette Dionne, Mr. Michel Forand, Miss Valerie Forbes, Monsieur Claude Frenette, Monsieur Jacques Gerin, Dr. J. Roby Kidd, Monsieur Jean Lagass, Mr. Maurice Strong and Mr. Lloyd R. Shaw.

Dr. Roby Kidd resigned when he went to India to lecture there on Adult Education, and Mlle Dionne resigned when her work with La Jeunesse Ouvrière Catholique took her to Algeria. Mr. J. D. Edmonds, Executive Assistant to the Secretary of State for External Affairs, was appointed Secretary to the Organizing Committee, with Mr. Stewart Goodings as Assistant Secretary.

The Organizing Committee held its first meeting on May 15, 1965, and it is to their credit that they believed it was essential to communicate with a large number of voluntary agencies and youth organizations. Then followed individual meetings with over a hundred of such groups from coast to coast.

The first echo I heard of these meetings was when I attended a meeting of the National Executive of the Canadian Girl Guide Association and heard a report of a meeting in Kingston on April 23, 1966 of the Girl Guides' officers with Mr. Stewart Goodings who by that time had been appointed interim Associate Director of The Company of Young Canadians.

These are some excerpts from the report of that meeting. Mr. Goodings said, "The opinions of ordinary people, not those of government or civil servants, will decide what the policy of the C.Y.C. shall be." "We thought," he continued, "it was better to ask the people what the C.Y.C. should do, not what was decided in some back room in Ottawa".

"In this way," he said, "the volunteers would know how to help the people themselves. The volunteers will be able to develop the self-confidence of the people in the community—so they can do something without relying on outside help."

"Working in Canada is important," Mr. Goodings said, "for poverty still exists in this affluent country and there are still minorities discriminated against." He warned the Girl Guides officers "that the work of the C.Y.C. will not be easy—the living allowance is low and the frustrations high." He said, "There are no educational barriers and the only age requirement stipulates that a volunteer be over 18 years, and there is no maximum age."

May I here be permitted to say that I received a note from our Speaker of the day that he was told that I was going to enlist in The Company of Young Canadians. That I would love to do, believe me, but at my age I still believe I like the Senate better.

Some weeks ago I participated in a Girl Guide discussion group, and when the C.Y.C. came up for discussion most of the Guides expressed a burning desire to volunteer for it, believing that it would be a great adventure, together with the satisfaction that they would be helping to build a better Canada by assisting in the war on poverty and aiding the more unfortunate people in our society.

About a month ago The Company of Young Canadians started three social assistance projects in Canada, and just last weekend 60 volunteers began a training course of six weeks in Antigonish, Nova Scotia, in preparation for domestic assignments this year. Only after projects have been tested in Canada will the C.Y.C. operations be expanded overseas, and even then only in co-operation with private groups such as the Canadian University Service Overseas.

Bill C-174 setting up The Company of Young Canadians was passed on June 28 last by the other place, and has not as yet been passed by the Senate. Therefore, although the C.Y.C. is commendable, is it not an unusual procedure to have it start its work before it has been formally approved by both Houses of Parliament? At this point I should like to quote a paragraph from an article in last month's Canada Month. Incidentally, it is a very interesting article, and one that is complimentary to the C.Y.C. However, this paragraph struck me as being rather strange, and it probably accounts for the delay in the passage of the bill through the other place. The title of the article is "Running tomorrow's World", and one paragraph reads:

> It (the C.Y.C.) is not yet officially an organization, because Parliament has been so busy with the company old Canadians keep that it hasn't had time to pass the law creating it.

So much has been said during the last few weeks in the other place and in the press, and today in this chamber, about The Company of Young Canadians that any further remarks I might add would be repetitious. I wish, therefore, to heartily endorse this bill which has had such broad-based support from all parties in the other place and the public in general. Being an optimist by nature, I firmly believe that the C.Y.C., given time and opportunity, will prove its worth.

Hon. John J. Connolly: It is not my intention to detain the house for any length of time at this late stage of the afternoon, but I think all honourable senators would expect and want me to say that the maiden speech of Senator Davey today, and that of Senator McElman yesterday, have impressed all of us. I am sure we all feel that the performances of these two honourable gentlemen augur very well indeed for the future of their careers in the Senate.

Hon. Mr. Roebuck: There are others whose names you might mention before you leave that topic. I am thinking of, for instance, Senator Aird and Senator Urquhart.

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): Yes. I think we have been assiduous in commending the speeches of the new senators in this chamber. The Senate has certainly been strengthened both physically and intellectually by their presence here.

To my mind, this is a very imaginative and far-seeing measure. By it much can be accomplished at home, and when The Company of Young Canadians steps into the field abroad it will do much there. It must not be thought, however, that The Company of Young Canadians will be the first in the field, either at home or abroad. I am thinking of organizations at home like the Frontier College, that has been in existence for many years and which did great work in the earlier days of this country by helping people who could not afford to use the regular channels of education at various levels.

I am thinking too of the various social service agencies in the country, not only those run by the provinces and municipalities but those run by private organizations which are now mostly, but not entirely, under the sponsorship of the various Red Feather campaigns throughout the country.

These organizations do a great deal of work in the field of social service in areas where it might be thought the work of this organization will be making for some duplication. I mention this in respect of the work at home because it is my hope that those who conduct the affairs of The Company of Young Canadians in Canada—and there is a great scope for this work—will pay special attention to the work that is done by organizations of a similar character in the same fields.

There is one body that we in this house must not forget, and that is the church in its various denominations. I am not referring now to its theological or religious side so much as I am its social service side. A great deal of work has been done, and much knowledge and experience amassed, by the clergymen of all denominations in this country, particularly with respect to the problems of poverty. That experience will be relied upon, I hope, by the people who direct the efforts at home of The Company of Young Canadians.

Hon. Mr. Brooks: Do not forget the Salvation Army.

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): It was my thought that when I mentioned churches of all denominations I was including the Salvation Army. But, since the honourable Leader of the Opposition has referred to the Salvation Army particularly, I am very pleased indeed to include it by name.

This work is done not only in the settled urban centres, but elsewhere. The work of the missionaries of many denominations carries them into the furthermost reaches of the Arctic areas of this country. This work, I am sure, was embarked upon originally with great concern and trepidation, but it has meant much to the people who inhabit those areas and to the many others who have since learned to live there.

I should like to speak for a moment about the proposal that this rather historically named Company should work in the field abroad. It will not be the first Canadian organization to undertake that kind of work, and here I refer to organizations such as International Living, Crossroads Africa, MUNDO, CUSO—which has already been mentioned many times this afternoon—the Friends of Canada, and the people who are working under the Colombo Plan.

I have said before in this chamber, but I repeat it today because of Senator Aseltine's remark made during one of the speeches this afternoon, that I met 25 or 30 Canadians working in Singapore in various centres and training establishments under the aegis of the Colombo Plan. I wish that I had had the time to go to Ceylon to see what is being done there, because there are many Canadians in that country working under the Colombo Plan in the field of education. These were not young people. In some cases they were married couples whose families had grown up, and who felt they would like to devote some years of their lives, when they could afford the time and indeed the money, to doing something abroad for a segment of humanity, and at the same time do something for the image of Canada in the country in which they happen to be working. I am sure honourable senators who have attended international conferences where this kind of work is done always feel a great sense of pride in the achievements of these Canadians who are giving so much of themselves on behalf of others.

I had intended to say a good deal about CUSO. However, I do not need to do so by reason of the fact that in its first year of operation it had only 17 members abroad. This year it has 343. By the end of the year there will be 535 members. This organization, which is not more than six or seven years old, has had to subsist for the most part on funds privately secured, although I believe it received some Government assistance originally in the field of transportation.

Honourable senators, I will conclude by making an announcement. At the meeting of the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association, to be held here next September, the agency will include a workshop or a committee session to deal with the field of foreign aid in respect of education. There, papers will be presented on behalf of donor Commonwealth countries and some on behalf of donee Commonwealth countries. The purposes of this project is to try to let backbench members of legislatures throughout the Commonwealth know what programs the donor countries are providing, and indeed perhaps what their future programs might be, and also to let the donor countries know—and I think this is important—how effective are these foreign aid programs in the field of education in the undeveloped parts of the Commonwealth.

It seems to me that will be a most useful exercise in this field. It may give parliamentarians a better insight into the aims and objectives of these programs. Perhaps the Company of Young Canadians and CUSO will benefit somewhat by following these debates.

As President of the General Council of the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association, I have been greatly encouraged in the kind of co-operation that has been offered by the various countries to provide information for the proposed debate I have mentioned.

I have gone one step further and asked the President of the Canadian Branch of the Council of Churches, the Reverend Dr. Bennett of Ottawa, and the General Secretary of the Canadian Catholic Council in Ottawa, Father George, whether it might not be possible for some material to be available for the debate on the work that has been done by the missionary organizations of the various denominations from Canada in these Commonwealth countries. Some of those organizations have been there for a century or more. They do their religious and evangelistic work but, more than that, they run clinics, teach schools, conduct trade schools and do social service work of a vital nature. It is all part of the Canadian contribution in the field of assisting the underdeveloped parts of the Commonwealth. We should not forget them. We should give them credit for it, and should draw it to the attention of not only the people of the countries where this work is done but also of our own people.

Honourable senators, I will conclude by saying that I join with Senator Davey and others who followed him in commending the value of this particular measure to the Senate. I think we have a wonderful young generation in this country. They are able and avid in their desire to take advantage of Canadian educational opportunities. Like most Canadians, this young generation is generous, and if its generosity can be expended both at home and abroad in work of the character described in this bill, it will not only pay dividends for the country, but for the people who participate.

Motion agreed to and bill read second time.

The Hon. the Acting Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this bill be read the third time?

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): Honourable senators, I was wondering whether there is any desire on the part of any honourable senator that this bill be considered by a committee. There is no objection to it. If honourable senators feel the bill has had adequate discussion here this afternoon, I would take the concensus to be that the bills should receive third reading at the next sitting.

Hon. Mr. Connolly moved that the bill be placed on the Orders of the Day for third reading at the next sitting.

Motion agreed to.

DIVORCE

RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED

The Senate proceeded to consideration of Resolutions numbered 697 to 737, inclusive which were presented yesterday.

Hon. Arthur W. Roebuck Chairman of the Standing Committee on Divorce, moved the adoption of the following resolutions:

Resolution 697, for the relief of Karin Monika Witzke Koehn.

Resolution 698, for the relief of Carol Ann Fleming Chalupka.

Resolution 699, for the relief of Arthur Edward Joseph Levasseur.

Resolution 700, for the relief of Edward Wearne Prinn.

Resolution 701, for the relief of Kjell Andresen.

Resolution 702, for the relief of Vera Margaret Allerton Eden.

Resolution 703, for the relief of Patricia Yurkowski Rondeau.

Resolution 704, for the relief of Irene Cashian Polson.

Resolution 705, for the relief of Mary Evangeline Snow Hazelhurst.

Resolution 706, for the relief of Louise Elizabeth Schmid Whitaker.

Resolution 707, for the relief of George Edward Parsons.

Resolution 708, for the relief of Mary Howard Hunter.

Resolution 709, for the relief of Winifred (Winnifred) Jean Willis Dodds.

Resolution 710, for the relief of Irene Cecilia MacKelman Chyzenski.

Resolution 711, for the relief of Norah Jane Gouett Pearson.

Resolution 712, for the relief of Samuel Herbert Greisman, otherwise known as Peter Barry.

Resolution 713, for the relief of Sophie (Sophia Manteli) Mantelis Katselis.

Resolution 714, for the relief of Joan Edna Furmager Trussler.

Resolution 715, for the relief of Alberte Jacqueline Maury Pechdo.

Resolution 716, for the relief of Sandra Susan Claudia O'Reilly Dillon.

Resolution 717, for the relief of Frank Noble Thompson.

Resolution 718, for the relief of Bessie Margaret McCluskey Kerr.

Resolution 719, for the relief of Anna Staczek Wojcik.

Resolution 720, for the relief of Jean Graham Moir Morrison Crossman.

Resolution 721, for the relief of Denise Florine Van Daele DeGeer.

Resolution 722, for the relief of Fred John Smith.

Resolution 723, for the relief of Ernest Auguste Andre Rouffort.

Resolution 724, for the relief of Sharon Anne Miller White.

Resolution 725, for the relief of Joan Ann Pringle Harland.

Resolution 726, for the relief of Olive Kowalchuk Prengel.

Resolution 727, for the relief of Susan Kathleen Goldman Nowicki.

Resolution 728, for the relief of Gail Margaret Hislop Derocher.

Resolution 729, for the relief of Ciobotaru Rivka Leibovici.

Resolution 730, for the relief of Joseph Antonia Mattia.

Resolution 731, for the relief of Kenneth Edward Major.

Resolution 732, for the relief of Elsie Maud Florence Ann Garner Hodges.

Resolution 733, for the relief of David Padro.

Resolution 734, for the relief of Renee Benesch Freitag.

Resolution 735, for the relief of Marie Claudette Jeannine Patricia White Fay.

Resolution 736, for the relief of John Matuzewiski.

Resolution 737, for the relief of Patricia Mary Collom Whiteside.

Resolutions adopted, on division.

CANADIAN CORPORATION WORLD EXHIBITION ACT

BILL TO AMEND—FIRST READING

Hon. John J. Connolly presented Bill S-42, to amend the Canadian Corporation for the 1967 World Exhibition Act.

Bill read the first time.

The Hon. the Acting Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this bill be read the second time?

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West) moved that the bill be placed on the Orders of the Day for second reading on Tuesday next.

ADJOURNMENT

Leave having been given to revert to notices of motion:

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): Honourable senators, I move that when the Senate adjourns today it do stand adjourned until Tuesday next, July 5, 1966 at 8 p.m.

Hon. Mr. Brooks: Could the honourable leader give us any information as to the business we might have next week?

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): I should like to be able to say to the honourable Leader of the Opposition that whatever we get next week will finish the work for this part of the session. I imagine this would include, apart from what we have on our Order Paper now, the Canada Assistance Act, a bill to amend the Income Tax Act, Interim Supply for a period—

Hon. Mr. Brooks: Feed grain?

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): I am not sure that the feed grain bill will be available. There will be a bill to implement the agreement which was made between the unions and the ship owners in respect of the labour dispute in St. Lawrence ports.

At the moment I am not prepared to say for certain that there will be any other measures, but I think that those I have mentioned will come to us.

Hon. Mr. Aseltine: Is there a possibility that we will adjourn for the summer recess by July 15?

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): I hope we are all much more optimistic than Senator Aseltine's question would imply.

Motion agreed to.

DIVORCE

NOTICE OF MEETING OF JOINT COMMITTEE

Hon. Mr. Roebuck: Honourable senators, I have just received a notice of a meeting of the Special Joint Committee of the Senate and House of Commons on Divorce, which will take place on Tuesday next at 3.30 in the afternoon. I specially request all members of that committee to be present, and I extend an invitation to all members of this house, who find it convenient to do so, to attend.

I am sure Senator Aseltine will agree with me, as will all others who were present at the first meeting, that the attendance was very encouraging. Our own Parliamentary Counsel, Mr. Hopkins, addressed us in a most interesting and informative way. Similarly, Commissioner Walsh addressed us and offered many suggestions from his background of considerable experience. I am sure that we all gained knowledge and understanding from those two magnificent addresses.

On Tuesday at 3.30 p.m., the meeting will be addressed by Dr. Ollivier, the legal counsel in the other place. I am confident that his presentation will be worth hearing. I invite you to come irrespective of whether you are a member of that committee.

The Senate adjourned until Tuesday, July 5, 1966, at 8 p.m.

THE SENATE

Tuesday, July 5, 1966

The Senate met at 8 p.m., the Speaker in the Chair.

Prayers.

PUBLIC SERVICE

JOINT COMMITTEE—CHANGE IN COMMONS MEMBERSHIP

The Hon. the Speaker informed the Senate that a message had been received from the House of Commons stating that the name of Mr. Émard has been substituted for that of Mr. Langlois (Chicoutimi) on the Joint Committee on the Public Service.

DOCUMENTS TABLED

Hon. John J. Connolly tabled:

Report of the Farm Credit Corporation, including its Accounts and Financial Statement certified by the Auditor General, for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1966, pursuant to sections 85(3) and 87(3) of the Financial Administration Act, chapter 116, R.S.C., 1952. (English and French texts).

Report of the Atlantic Development Board for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1966, including its Accounts and Financial Statements certified by the Auditor General pursuant to section 19 of the Atlantic Development Board Act, chapter 10, Statutes of Canada, 1962-63. (English text).

Statement by the Department of National Defence of Moneys received and disbursed in the Special Account (Replacement of Materiel), for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1966, pursuant to section 11(4) of the National Defence Act, chapter 184, R.S.C., 1952. (English and French texts).

Report of Defence Construction (1951) Limited, including its accounts and Financial Statements certified by the Auditor General, for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1966, pursuant to sections 85(3) and 87(3) of the Financial Administration Act, Chapter 116, R.S.C., 1952. (English and French texts).

Report on the Administration of the Canadian Forces Superannuation Account for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1966, pursuant to section 26 of the Canadian Forces Superannuation Act, chapter 21, Statutes of Canada, 1959. (English and French texts).

Report of Atomic Energy of Canada Limited, including its Accounts and Financial Statements certified by the Auditor General, for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1966, pursuant to sections 85(3) and 87(3) of the Financial Administration Act, chapter 116, R.S.C., 1952. (English and French texts).

Report on the Operations of the Veterans' Business and Professional Loans Act for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1966, pursuant to section 13 of the said Act, chapter 278, R.S.C., 1952. (English and French texts).

Agreement between the Government of Canada and the Government of the People's Republic of Bulgaria relating to the Settlement of Financial Matters, together with an exchange of notes with reference to certain matters affecting the two countries. Done at Ottawa June 30, 1966. (English and French texts).

Report of the Board of Broadcast Governors for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1966, pursuant to section 19 of the Broadcasting Act, chapter 22, Statutes of Canada, 1958. (English and French texts).

Report of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, including its Accounts and Financial Statements certified by the Auditor General, for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1966, pursuant to section 36 of the Broadcasting Act, chapter 22, Statutes of Canada, 1958, and sections 85(3) and 87(3) of the Financial Administration Act, chapter 116, R.S.C., 1952. (English and French texts).

Report of the Atomic Energy Control Board of Canada for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1966, pursuant to section 21(1) of the Atomic Energy Control Act, chapter 11, R.S.C., 1952. (English and French texts).

Copy of a Report to the Minister of Labour, concerning a dispute affecting the Shipping Federation of Canada, Inc., and the International Longshoremen's Association, pursuant to the Industrial Relations and Disputes Investigation Act, chapter 152, R.S.C., 1952. (English and French texts).

LABOUR RELATIONS

REPORT OF MEDIATOR IN DISPUTE BETWEEN THE SHIPPING FEDERATION OF CANADA, INC., AND THE INTERNATIONAL LONGSHOREMEN'S ASSOCIATION—PRINTED AS APPENDIX

Hon. John J. Connolly: Honourable senators, I move, with leave of the Senate:

> That the copy of a report to the Minister of Labour, concerning a dispute affecting the Shipping Federation of Canada, Inc., and the International Longshoremen's Association, pursuant to the Industrial Relations and Disputes Investigation Act, tabled today, be printed as an appendix to the Debates of the Senate of this day.

Hon. Mr. Roebuck: Explain.

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): Honourable senators, before the motion is adopted, perhaps I should say that a bill was introduced last week in the other place with reference to the settlement of the dispute between the Shipping Federation of Canada and the workers at the St. Lawrence River ports.

The report which has been tabled this evening is of course available to honourable senators. However, it contains the Terms of Settlement under which the strike was settled and the workers returned to work. The report, particularly the Terms of Settlement, is very germane to the bill which, I hope, will shortly come before us.

I thought it would be a convenience to honourable senators if this report, and the Terms of Settlement, dated at Ottawa, June 14, which forms part of it, were included in the Debates of the Senate so that when the bill comes before us for explanation honourable senators will readily see what the position is.

Hon. A. J. Brooks: Honourable senators I think it would be a good idea to include this report in the Debates of the Senate, but may I ask the honourable leader if it has been reviewed by all parties concerned and if they are agreeable to this bill which is to come before us? Are they aware of what is contained in the bill?

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): The bill came before the House of Commons and became public property last week. The Terms of Settlement were agreed to by the various locals. There were six altogether involved, three in Montreal, two in Quebec City and one in Trois-Rivières. These terms have been approved, and as a result of the approval of the settlement and the men going back to work, the further step which was required pursuant to the terms has now been taken. That step involved the introduction of legislation. It would be improper for me to review the terms of that legislation at this stage because the bill is not before us. Certainly, the vote of the locals would indicate that the terms of settlement were satisfactory enough to allow the men to return to work.

Hon. Mr. Brooks: The procedure is not considered irregular?

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): No. I think I am quite right in saying that, as far as the procedural aspect is concerned, there are no irregularities.

Hon. Jean-François Pouliot: Honourable senators, I compliment the Minister of Labour on having worked like a trojan to bring about a settlement of this dispute. It took a true diplomat to bring the strike to a settlement.

One should not forget that minor causes produce major effects. What was at the beginning of this strike? It was a parking ticket. It started because the longshoremen had no facilities to park their cars. Besides that, they complained that, to use the least offensive language, some elementary plumbing facilities were denied them.

The National Harbours Board incurred a heavy responsibility in this matter, and it was most enterprising of the Minister of Labour to succeed in bringing the strike to such a satisfactory settlement.

Motion agreed to.

(For text of report see Appendix, pp. 871-7).

NOTICE OF INQUIRIES

On the Notice of Inquiries of Hon. Mr. Pouliot:

POPULATION OF CONSTITUENCIES

> No. 1. What is the population of each of the constituencies of Canada, as described in Part II of the Canada Gazette of June 20, 1966?

LEGAL FEES

> No. 2. Who were the solicitors, lawyers, counsel and notaries public who received fees or payments for travelling expenses from the Government of Canada or its agencies during the three years ending

June 30, 1966, and how much was paid to each one?

He said: Honourable senators, I ask that these two notices stand until the fall, but I want the answers then.

PRIVATE BILL

THE EVANGELICAL COVENANT CHURCH OF CANADA—THIRD READING

Hon. Maurice Bourget moved the third reading of Bill S-38, to incorporate The Evangelical Covenant Church of Canada.

Motion agreed to and bill read third time and passed.

CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAY BILL

CONSTRUCTION OF BRANCH LINE NEAR STALL LAKE, MANITOBA AND OF BRANCH LINE NEAR WATROUS, SASKATCHEWAN—THIRD READING

Hon. A. Hamilton McDonald moved the third reading of Bill C-120, respecting the construction by Canadian National Railway Company of a line of railway in the Province of Manitoba from the vicinity of Stall Lake on the Chisel Lake Subdivision of Canadian National Railways in a northeasterly direction for a distance of approximately 12 miles to a point in the vicinity of Osborne Lake in The Pas Mining District of that Province, and of a line of railway in the Province of Saskatchewan from the vicinity of Watrous on the Watrous Subdivision of the said Railways in a northeasterly direction for a distance of approximately 18 miles to a point in the vicinity of Guernsey in the Regina Mining District of that Province.

Motion agreed to and bill read third time and passed.

HEALTH RESOURCES FUND BILL

THIRD READING

Hon. Daniel A. Lang moved the third reading of Bill C-199, to provide for the establishment of a Health Resources Fund to assist provinces in the acquisition, construction and renovation of health training facilities and research institutions.

Motion agreed to and bill read third time and passed.

CANADIAN DAIRY COMMISSION BILL

THIRD READING

Hon. John J. Connolly moved the third reading of Bill C-205, to provide for the establishment of a Dairy Commission for Canada.

Motion agreed to and bill read third time and passed.

COMPANY OF YOUNG CANADIANS BILL

THIRD READING

Hon. Keith Davey moved the third reading of Bill C-174, to provide for the establishment of The Company of Young Canadians.

Motion agreed to and bill read third time and passed.

STATUTE LAW (SUPERANNUATION) AMENDMENT BILL, 1966

SECOND READING

The Senate resumed from Wednesday, June 29, the adjourned debate on the motion of Hon. Mr. Bourget for the second reading of Bill C-193, to amend the Public Service Superannuation Act, the Canadian Forces Superannuation Act, the Defence Services Pension Continuation Act, the Royal Canadian Mounted Police Superannuation Act, the Diplomatic Service (Special) Superannuation Act, the Intercolonial and Prince Edward Island Railways Employees' Provident Fund Act and the Canadian Corporation for the 1967 World Exhibition Act.

Hon. Clement A. O'Leary: Honourable senators, I note that Bill C-193, now before us, was given third reading and passed in the other place on June 28 with four amendments introduced on behalf of the Minister of National Revenue. These amendments, as the sponsor (Hon. Mr. Bourget) pointed out, resulted from discussions and recommendations made in the joint committee, with the honourable sponsor as co-chairman of that committee, and assurances were received there that these amendments would be introduced —as they were.

The amendments affected clauses 19, 20, 51 and 58. An amendment to delete clause 9 was proposed but rejected. This amendment was again attempted in the other chamber and again was rejected. I shall refer to it later in my remarks.

May I say that the sponsor did a masterful job of explaining this bill on Wednesday last, as well as outlining very comprehensively the work of the joint committee which considered it. He referred to the bill as being "very complex in detail." As a member of the committee I heartily agree, yet I must say that the sponsor very delightfully removed all the complexity and instead gave this chamber a thorough, concise and enlightened explanation which we warmly appreciated, and I commend him.

I concur with him in his words of appreciation for the services of Dr. Davidson and Mr. Hart Clark, whom we all recognize for their invaluable contributions not only to our Public Service in their respective roles but also to the work of so many committees of both houses.

I believe I should say too that the briefs presented and witnesses heard on behalf of the interested organizations were of excellent calibre, with one exception, particularly when we realize that they received very short notification of the committee's hearings which extended over a period of four days only, which I must say were slightly crowded.

Honourable senators, when one goes back in memory to the work of the joint committee which studied the Canada Pension Plan—and although I was not a member of that committee I studied its minutes very carefully—one realizes that some of the unanswered questions concerning methods of integration or stacking were very pertinent. As a matter of fact, I cannot quite see how the Canada Pension Plan could be operating properly and efficiently since January 1, 1966 when this amending legislation is before us only now. And, of course, I am speaking of the contributory aspect only, and also only of the Government groups covered by this amending bill. If this is a criticism of the method of proceeding with the legislation of that time, it has even greater application in the private sector. We are all aware, for example, of the demands of employers for a device whereby their yearly several millions of dollars of contributions will be returned to them. And again, even in some of the government staff associations, we heard in committee that individual members wished to make their own personal choice whether to integrate or stack. As it now stands, no member of the Public Service or any association thereof, has any choice. This bill says, "You integrate, and that is that." Undoubtedly such a system makes for much easier administration, but it leaves no freedom of choice for the individual or group.

The sponsor very fairly outlined some of the anomalies arising as a result of this amending bill. The more serious ones were not corrected—for example, the case of the public servant who takes employment elsewhere between ages 60 and 70 and has his superannuation benefits reduced by the amount of his C.P.P. benefits at the age of 65. We were told, of course, that no contributions were being made to the superannuation fund during that period, therefore there was no source from which to draw benefits in proportion. It could be countered that such benefits could or should be supplied from the Consolidated Revenue Fund, but I think that would perhaps not be too responsible a suggestion.

Some of the witnesses were asked if they were aware of the effects of certain clauses of this bill on the rights and privileges of the members of the organizations they represented. I recall one witness replying that although he was a member of the advisory committee on the Public Service Superannuation Act, he was unable to be present at a certain meeting which considered one such clause. I do not know how valid an excuse that would be.

Another witness referred to the fact that these meetings were held some time previous and he was unable to recall his views at that time, or perhaps did not give the matter adequate consideration.

The Minister of National Revenue, who was the minister concerned, and his advisers were always able to refer to the work of and the consultations held in this advisory committee. We know its makeup was very representative, and it is, of course, very convenient —and I accept it—for the Administration to answer in this democratic fashion when a thorny question or problem arises.

Strong pleas were made in most of the briefs for an increase in widows' benefits from 50 per cent to 60 per cent of what the employees' benefits would be. No action was taken in this regard.

The honourable sponsor of this bill referred at some length to the subject of portability, which I think all honourable senators will agree is a most desirable feature of any pension plan. It is to be hoped that in the near future there will be a decided increase in the number of those employers presently participating in reciprocal transfer agreements.

The provisions of this amending bill are a "must," and I am sure all honourable senators wish to see the bill passed as quickly as possible. As a matter of fact, I understand that if there is no undue delay at this time one very desirable and long-past-due factor applicable to wartime service can affect a large number of Second World War veterans this year. The recognition of this service time alone is a sufficient ground for our speedy passage of this bill.

Motion agreed to and bill read second time.

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this bill be read the third time?

Hon. Mr. Bourget moved that the bill be placed on the Orders of the Day for third reading at the next sitting.

Motion agreed to.

PRIVATE BILL

BANK OF WESTERN CANADA—FIRST READING

The Hon. the Speaker informed the Senate that a message had been received from the House of Commons with Bill C-111, to incorporate Bank of Western Canada.

Bill read first time.

Hon. Arthur L. Beaubien, for Hon. Mr. Leonard, moved, with leave of the Senate, that the bill be placed on the Orders of the Day for second reading at the next sitting.

Motion agreed to.

The Senate adjourned until tomorrow at 3 p.m.

APPENDIX

(See p. 867.)

LABOUR RELATIONS

REPORT OF MEDIATOR IN DISPUTE BETWEEN THE SHIPPING FEDERATION OF CANADA, INC., AND THE INTERNATIONAL LONGSHOREMEN'S ASSOCIATION

To the Honourable John R. Nicholson, Q.C.
Minister of Labour,
Parliament Buildings,
Ottawa, Ont.

In the matter of the Industrial Relations and Disputes Investigation Act and a dispute affecting The Shipping Federation of Canada, Inc., and the International Longshoremen's Association (Locals 375, 1657, 1552, Montreal; Local 1846, Trois-Rivières; and Locals 1739 and 1605, Quebec City)

Dear Sir,

On the 18th day of May 1966, I was appointed an Industrial Enquiry Commission under the above mentioned statute. The instrument of appointment reads as follows:—

"WHEREAS Subsection 2 of Section 56 of the Industrial Relations and Disputes Investigation Act provides that where in any industry a dispute or difference between employers and employees exists or is apprehended the Minister of Labour may refer the matters involved to a Commission, to be designated as an Industrial Inquiry Commission, for investigation thereof, as the Minister deems expedient, and for report thereon; and

WHEREAS the Minister of Labour has been advised that a dispute exists between the Shipping Federation of Canada, Inc., and the International Longshoremen's Association (Locals 375, 1657, 1552, Montreal; Local 1846, Trois-Rivières; and Locals 1739 and 1605, Quebec City); and

WHEREAS the Minister of Labour on May 10, 1966, established a Board of Conciliation and Investigation to endeavour to effect agreement between the said parties, which Board was unable to effect agreement in regard to the matters referred to it; and

WHEREAS the Minister of Labour is of opinion that the aforesaid situation should be investigated by an Industrial Inquiry Commission under the provisions of Section 56 of the Industrial Relations and Disputes Investigation Act;

NOW, THEREFORE, the undersigned the Minister of Labour for Canada, pursuant to the provisions of Section 56 of the Industrial Relations and Disputes Investigation Act, hereby appoints His Honour Judge René Lippé of the City of Montreal in the Province of Quebec, as an Industrial Inquiry Commission to confer with the said parties and to endeavour to mediate the issues in dispute between them, and to make a report thereon to him within fourteen days or such extension thereof as the Minister may from time to time grant."

Immediately upon my appointment, I conferred with the parties and endeavoured to mediate the issues in dispute between them.

The appointment was made on a Wednesday and, on the same day, at 2.30 in the afternoon, the parties appeared before me in my office at 685 Cathcart Street, Montreal. In accordance with the terms of my appointment, the purpose of this general conference was to determine the issues in dispute between the parties.

Basically, the request of the Association was:—

(A) A 50 cents hourly increase retroactive to January 1st 1966;

(B) A further hourly increase of 50 cents for the year 1967;

(C) No modification of the work load until at the earliest January 1st 1968.

In addition, there was presented by the Association a long list of further requests which, for the purpose of brevity I will qualify as Fringe Benefits, although this expression is not perfect in this instance. These requests were both of a monetary and of a non monetary nature.

On the other hand, the stand of the Federation was that they are engaged in a competitive business and that any labour contract must take into consideration the economics of the business. In that light, the Federation stated that they were not in a position to make an offer as to the hourly wages and other benefits unless and until the question of the work load had been determined. Reference was made at that time by the Federation to the contract entered into in Halifax between the I.L.A. Longshoremen local and the Federation.

It was easy to determine on that first day that the parties were really too far apart to reach an agreement. I, therefore, decided to meet with the parties separately in an effort to mediate the issues for the immediate future, leaving for further negotiations a long term contract which would expire in 1968, if not 1969.

These meetings of the Commissioner with each of the parties took place daily until Saturday the 21st inclusive, at which time I submitted to the parties the following recommendations:—

SUBJECT: DISPUTE BETWEEN:

THE SHIPPING FEDERATION OF CANADA, INC.

and

THE INTERNATIONAL LONGSHOREMEN'S ASSOCIATION (Locals 375, 1657, 1552, Montreal; Local 1846, Trois-Rivières; and Locals 1739 and 1605, Quebec City).

The undersigned, appointed as an Industrial Inquiry Commission by an Order-in-Council dated May 18, 1966, to endeavour to mediate the issues between the above named parties in order to end a stoppage of work which has national and international repercussions, submits the following proposition of settlement.

A—RECOMMENDATIONS APPLICABLE TO ALL LOCALS

1. Duration of Agreement: one year from January 1, 1966.
2. Wages:
   (i) An increase of twenty-five cents (.25) per hour, from the date of return to work, out of which ten cents (.10) will be retroactive to January 1, 1966;
   (ii) An additional increase of fifteen cents (.15) per hour, from September 1, 1966;

   Particular Adjustments:
   (i) Local 1657: an additional three cents (.03) per hour to be paid to these employees as of date of return to work, in order to reduce the difference between the wages of the employees of this local and that of the longshoremen of Montreal.
   (ii) Local of Trois-Rivières: an additional three cents (.03) per hour to be paid to these employees as of date of return to work, in order to reduce the difference between the wages of the employees of this local and that of the longshoremen of Montreal.
   (iii) Quebec Locals: an additional three cents (.03) per hour to be paid to these employees as of date of return to work, in order to reduce the difference between the wages of the employees of these locals and that of the longshoremen of Montreal.

B—FRINGE BENEFITS

1. Applicable to all locals.
   (i) Installation of drinking facilities with paper cups.
   (ii) Minimum penalty of two (2) hours to be paid by the Company in cases of violation by the Company of the collective agreement for a period of time less than two hours.

(iii) Use of flat beams.

(iv) Use of cargo hooks.

2. Applicable to Quebec and Montreal locals.
A minimum of four (4) hours to be paid by the Company for each recall to work during the same day; the other clauses of the agreement remaining unchanged.

3. Applicable to local 1552 in Montreal.
In the future the longshoremen will not use buck-saws.

4. Applicable to local 1657.
The painting and marking of cargoes will be performed by coopers.

Owing to the urgency of the situation, it has been impossible for the undersigned to give proper consideration to the question of reduction of crews. However, because of the importance of this issue, the undersigned recommends as soon as possible the appointment by the Minister of Labour of the Government of Canada of an Industrial Inquiry Commission to study this problem.

Without criticizing the past conduct of either party, the undersigned, pursuant to discussions with said parties, is of the opinion that it would be desirable that negotiations relative to the next collective agreement be initiated immediately.

The Industrial Inquiry Commission who will study the problem of reduction in crews could also deal with this problem of negotiations.

The undersigned requests the representatives of all Union locals to convene a mass membership meeting of its members on or before May 23, 1966 to submit these recommendations to a secret ballot under the supervision of the Department of Labour of the Government of Canada.

The undersigned has also given much consideration to the question of parking which was one of the occasions of the present impasse. However, because on the one hand of the urgency and on the other hand of the complexity of the problem, the undersigned recommends that this issue be placed at the top of the agenda of the Industrial Inquiry Commission appointed to negotiate the next collective agreement.

In conclusion, the undersigned wishes to thank the parties for their co-operation.

The Whole respectfully submitted.

Montreal, May 21, 1966.

These recommendations were submitted to a mass meeting of the Association on Tuesday, the 24th, in each of the three cities and were rejected by the members of the Association by a show of hands.

These recommendations were accepted by the Federation.

On Wednesday, the 25th, the parties were requested by telegram to meet with the Commissioner at his office and further efforts were made to mediate the issues. Faced with the same impasse, I invited the President of the International Longshoremen Association, Mr. T. W. Gleason, to come to Montreal and meet with me. The matter was reviewed in Mr. Gleason's presence at a joint meeting of the parties held at the Commissioner's office. The discussion centered on the reduction of crews, although other matters were mentioned.

Following a caucus of the Federation in the midst of this conference, the following offer was made by the Federation and transmitted by the Commissioner to the Association:—

1. Two-year Contract

Wages-First Year

(A) Ten cents retroactive to January 1, 1966.

(B) Fifteen cents on date of return to work.

(C) Fifteen cents on September 1, 1966.

—Second Year

Forty cents effective January 1, 1967.

The offer on wages is conditional upon the reduction of crews as per draft of contract submitted by the Federation.

2. Sanitary Drinking Facilities to be provided.
3. Request for hooks and beams to be accepted.
4. Painting and marking of cargoes to be by coopers.

FEDERATION'S DEMANDS

1. Strapping of cargo to be done by I.L.A. members.
2. Sections 10 and 11 of draft contract submitted by the Federation concerning grievance procedure to be accepted.
3. Section 13, paragraph B, page 19 of draft contract submitted by the Federation concerning automation on new ships to be accepted.

This offer was refused. However, as a result of this meeting, the Association presented the following text as constituting its minimum demands:—

1. Retroactive to January 1st 1966, an increase of .40¢ an hour;
   From the date of return to work an additional .02¢ per hour for fringe benefits.
   From the date of return to work an additional .10¢ per hour to close the gap in wages paid in Three Rivers and the same for Quebec.
   For checkers and coopers an additional .03¢ to close the gap and retroactive to January 1st 1966.
2. From January 1st 1967 an additional .40¢ an hour;
   For Three-Rivers an additional .13¢ an hour to close the gap completely.
   An additional .03¢ per hour from January 1st 1967 for checkers and coopers.
   An additional .02¢ per hour as a fringe benefit for check off.
3. Vacation pay to be based on 6% of earnings retroactive to January 1st 1966.
4. No reduction in gangs.
5. Drinking water to be made available in an hygienic manner including individual cups.
6. Recall guarantee of 4 hours.
7. Call in on Saturday before 1:00 p.m. for gangs to report on Monday morning.
8. Status quo on all other items for the duration of the 2-year contract.

It should be pointed out here that these minimum demands are for an hourly increase of 40 cents an hour for each of the years 1966 and 1967, refer to a number of other points, but refuse to consider the reduction of the work load.

These minimum demands were submitted to the Federation on the 26th during the evening. The Federation requested time to consider the matter and, on the 27th informed the Commissioner that it was not possible for them to accept these minimum demands as formulated by the Association.

The Commissioner, thereupon, invited both parties to his office and suggested that they meet with the Honourable John R. Nicholson, Minister of Labour. Having received the latter's acceptance, the parties and the Commissioner travelled to Ottawa that same day, where they met with the Minister, two of his colleagues, Hon. Guy Favreau, President of the Privy Council and Hon. C. M. Drury, Minister of Industry, Dr. George V. Haythorne, Deputy Minister of Labour, and other senior departmental officials. Early Saturday morning, the 28th, this joint meeting of the parties was adjourned to Montreal, where it was resumed on Sunday, the 29th in the afternoon. At this second meeting with the Minister of Labour, the Minister of Industry was again present, and Mr. Bryce Mackasey, Parliamentary Secretary to the Minister of Labour. This meeting lasted until the early hours of Monday, the 30th. Unfortunately, the matter remained unresolved.

On Tuesday, the 31st of May, the parties were again invited to meet with the Commissioner separately. Conversations continued for two days and, finally, on June 2nd, the Commissioner submitted to the parties a text prepared in close co-operation with officials of the Department of Labour, which if accepted in principle, might go a long way toward solving the impasse. This text had to do with the establishment of a Commission of Inquiry to investigate the structure of gangs, sling loads, use of equipment and related matters with a view to achieving improvements in productivity and providing for job security. The text was acceptable to the Federation but not to the Association. Negotiations were at a standstill until June 7, 1966 on which date the parties appeared again before the Commissioner. Further discussions took place during the next few days until a final impasse was reached on Friday, June 10, 1966. The Commissioner then duly reported the situation to the Minister of Labour who convened the parties to his office in Ottawa on Saturday, June 11, 1966. Negotiations at which the Honourable Ministers Pickersgill, MacEachen, Favreau, and Dr. Haythorne, Deputy Minister of Labour and the Commissioner also attended, lasted from 11:00 a.m. Saturday, June 11, 1966 until 5:30 a.m. on Sunday, June 12, 1966.

No settlement having then developed, the parties were asked, following a request from the Association, to come back to Ottawa on Monday, June 13, 1966 where finally a solution presented by the Prime Minister was accepted by the parties in the early hours of Tuesday, June 14, 1966.

The following terms of settlement for a two-year collective agreement between the parties were signed in Ottawa on June 14, 1966:

TERMS OF SETTLEMENT FOR TWO-YEAR COLLECTIVE AGREEMENT between

THE INTERNATIONAL LONGSHOREMEN'S ASSOCIATION LOCALS IN MONTREAL, TROIS-RIVIÈRES AND QUEBEC

and

THE SHIPPING FEDERATION OF CANADA

1. Each employee will receive 40¢ for every hour worked as of January 1, 1966, made up as follows:—

   20¢ increase per man-hour worked retroactive to January 1, 1966, and effective up to but not including the day work resumes; and 20¢ per man-hour worked retroactive to January 1, 1966, effective up to but not including the day work resumes in compensation for improvements in productivity.

   From date of resumption of work the above increases shall be applied on overtime as well.

2. An additional 15¢ per hour increase in wages to be effective January 1, 1967; and a further 25¢ per hour increase in wages to be effective on May 1, 1967 also in compensation for improvements in productivity.

   These increases shall be applied on overtime as well.

3. Call up of Montreal gangs for Monday morning to be before Saturday at 1:00 P.M. for ships in port except for gangs working on Saturday afternoon, Saturday night and/or Sunday.

   For vessels arriving after 1:00 P.M. Saturday orders for gangs to be given between 3:00 P.M. and 5:00 P.M. on Sunday.

   The companies will co-operate with the Union Local 375 in the establishment of a mutually acceptable system to handle the reception of such calls with the installation and rental charges to be paid by the Union to the communication company. The companies and the Union agree to meet with Judge Lippé as soon as practical to work out the details of such system.

4. Paper cups to be provided for use with drinking water containers.

5. All cargo hooks to be fitted with tongues.

6. When closing hatches, all hatch beams, including the centre beams, to be in place.

7. When men are ordered out on any vessel it is recognized that the work of opening and closing hatches, other than mechanical type hatches, is to be performed by members of the Union. In the event that the mechanical type hatches are opened by ship personnel it is agreed that the hatches shall not be opened before the commencement of the period. When closing mechanical type hatches with ship personnel men shall leave the hatch fifteen minutes before the end of the period. In the event that any hatches are opened by ship personnel prior to the commencement of a period the gang concerned shall be entitled to fifteen minutes pay

8. An additional 3¢ per hour to be paid to checkers and coopers in Montreal as of date of return to work plus a further 3¢ per hour on January 1, 1967.
9. An additional 5¢ per hour to longshoremen and checkers in Quebec as of date of return to work plus a further 5¢ per hour on January 1, 1967.
10. An additional 5¢ per hour to longshoremen in Trois-Rivières as of date of return to work plus a further 5¢ per hour on January 1, 1967.
11. Vacation pay to be increased from 4% to 5% on earnings as of date of return to work.
12. A four hour guarantee for each recall to be introduced as of date of return to work to be provided in agreements of Montreal Locals 375 and 1552, and Quebec Locals 1605 and 1739.

The agreements terminating on December 31, 1965, shall be amended by incorporating therein the terms of settlement set out above and these amended agreements shall remain in effect until December 31, 1967, unless amended by negotiations or otherwise. The parties agree to attend a meeting convened and presided by Judge Lippé for the purpose of signing the new agreements in accordance with the above. It is understood that all of the above is subject to ratification by the membership of the respective I.L.A. Locals and of the membership of the Shipping Federation of Canada.

SIGNED on behalf of the International Longshoremen's Association, Atlantic Coast District by Vice-President.

Gerard Tremblay.

SIGNED on behalf of the following International Longshoremen's Association Locals:—

Local 375 (Montreal)	Paul Asselin, President. Jean-Marc St. Onge, Business Agent.
Local 1552 (Montreal)	Romeo Jobin, President. Marcel Cardinal, Business Agent.
Local 1657 (Montreal)	Justin McCarthy, President.
Local 1846 (Trois-Rivières)	Gerard Tremblay, Atlantic Coast District, Vice-President, on behalf of Norman Quigley, President, and Marcel Thibeault, Business Agent.
Local 1605 (Quebec City)	Philippe Duguay, Director Gerard Tremblay, Atlantic Coast District, Vice-President.
Local 1739 (Quebec City)	Roland Frigault, Business Agent
Legal Counsel for I.L.A.	Ph. Cutler

SIGNED on behalf of the Shipping Federation of Canada:

Alexander C. Pathy, Member, Executive Council

In the presence of:

Hon. John R. Nicholson, Minister of Labour
Judge René Lippé, Mediator
George V. Haythorne, Deputy Minister of Labour

Ottawa, June 14, 1966.

A few days after these terms of settlement were ratified by the membership of the different locals of the Union and work resumed in the Port of Montreal, Trois-Rivières, and Quebec on Thursday, June 15, 1966.

In view of the basic problem at the root of these negotiations, namely the money package offered by the Federation on the one hand and the increase of productivity on the other hand, the Commissioner believes that it is his duty to complete his report by making the following recommendations:—

1. That an Industrial Inquiry Commission be established to investigate possible technological and other changes having a bearing on productivity, the size and structure of gangs, calls and recalls of men, job security, safety standards, working and employment conditions of longshoremen and related trades.
   Under the terms of reference of this Commission, I.L.A. members in good standing on June 1, 1966, who qualify for welfare benefits in the calendar year 1966 and who earn their livelihood wholly or mainly in the longshoring operations at the Ports of Montreal, Trois-Rivières, and Quebec, will be given protection in employment during the 1967 shipping season on a basis to be determined by the Commission.

   The conclusions of this Commission should be implemented by legislative enactment at the earliest possible date.
2. Furthermore, in view of personal knowledge of the situation and after discussion with interested parties and corporate bodies, a separate Industrial Inquiry Commission be established to inquire into labour unrest in the Ports of Montreal, Trois-Rivières, and Quebec.

The whole respectfully submitted.

Ottawa, Ontario,
June 23, 1966.

René Lippé
Mediator.

THE SENATE

Wednesday, July 6, 1966

The Senate met at 3 p.m., the Speaker in the Chair.

Prayers.

DOCUMENTS TABLED

Hon. John J. Connolly tabled:

Report of Canadian Arsenals Limited, including its Accounts and Financial Statements certified by the Auditor General, for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1966, pursuant to sections 85(3) and 87(3) of the Financial Administration Act, chapter 116, R.S.C., 1952. (English and French texts).

Report on the Administration of Allowances for Disabled Persons in Canada for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1965, pursuant to section 12 of the Disabled Persons Act, chapter 55, Statutes of Canada, 1953-54. (English and French texts).

Report on the Administration of Allowances for Blind Persons in Canada for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1965, pursuant to section 12 of the Blind Persons Act, chapter 17, R.S.C., 1952. (English and French texts).

Report on the Administration of Old Age Assistance in Canada for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1965, pursuant to section 12 of the Old Age Assistance Act, chapter 199, R.S.C., 1952. (English and French texts).

HON. W. ROSS MACDONALD, P.C.

FELICITATIONS ON ELECTION TO HONORARY PRESIDENCY OF JUNIOR CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Hon. John J. Connolly: Honourable senators, I regret the fact that Senator W. Ross Macdonald, P.C., a former Leader of the Government in the Senate, is not in the chamber at this moment, but I am sure we are all pleased to learn that at the annual meeting of the Canadian Junior Chamber of Commerce in Edmonton he was made Honorary President of that organization. We extend to him our congratulations.

PRIVATE BILLS

BAPTIST GENERAL CONFERENCE OF CANADA —FIRST READING

Hon. J. Campbell Haig presented Bill S-43, to incorporate Baptist General Conference of Canada.

Bill read first time.

Hon. Mr. Haig moved that the bill be placed on the Orders of the Day for second reading on Friday next.

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): Honourable senators, if Senator Haig wishes to have the bill placed on the Order Paper for tomorrow instead of Friday next—although that might not help its progress, being a private bill—I would have no objection and I am sure no one else would object.

Hon. Mr. Haig: Honourable senators, I would accept that suggestion, and move, with leave, that this bill be placed on the Orders of the Day for second reading at the next sitting.

Motion agreed to.

LA SOCIÉTÉ DES ARTISANS—AUTHORITY TO PRINT COMMITTEE PROCEEDINGS

Hon. Salter A. Hayden, Chairman of the Standing Committee on Banking and Commerce, presented the following report of the committee on Bill S-41, respecting La Société des Artisans:

> Your committee recommends that authority be granted for the printing of 800 copies in English and 300 copies in French of its proceedings on the said bill.

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this report be taken into consideration?

Hon. Mr. Hayden: I move, with leave of the Senate, that the report be adopted now.

Report adopted.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE

Hon. Mr. Hayden, Chairman of the Standing Committee on Banking and Commerce, reported that the committee had considered Bill S-41, respecting La Société des Artisans, and had directed that the bill be reported without amendment.

THIRD READING

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this bill be read the third time?

Hon. Jean-Paul Deschatelets: Honourable senators, in expectation of an adjournment, I move, with leave of the Senate, that this bill be given third reading now.

Motion agreed to and bill read third time and passed.

PENITENTIARIES

JOINT COMMITTEE—CHANGE IN SENATE MEMBERSHIP

Hon. Arthur L. Beaubien, with leave of the Senate, moved:

> That the name of the Honourable Senator Deschatelets be substituted for that of the Honourable Senator Gouin on the list of senators appointed to serve on the Special Joint Committee of the Senate and the House of Commons on Penitentiaries; and
>
> That a message be sent to the House of Commons accordingly.

Motion agreed to.

STATUTE LAW (SUPERANNUATION) AMENDMENT BILL, 1966

BILL TO AMEND—THIRD READING

Hon. John J. Connolly moved the third reading of Bill C-193, to amend the Public Service Superannuation Act, the Canadian Forces Superannuation Act, the Defence Services Pension Continuation Act, the Royal Canadian Mounted Police Superannuation Act, the Diplomatic Service (Special) Superannuation Act, the Intercolonial and Prince Edward Island Railways Employees' Provident Fund Act and the Canadian Corporation for the 1967 World Exhibition Act.

Hon. Jean-François Pouliot: Honourable senators, before this bill is read for the third time, I have a word of comment to make concerning other superannuations. I wish to make a comparison between the superannuation of judges and the superannuation of senators, and the pensions for judges' widows and the pensions for senators' widows.

For one reason or another the legislation concerning superannuation for senators was a half-baked measure and passed quite easily. I cannot understand why judges should have non-contributory superannuation benefits which are much higher than those for senators, and the pension for judges' widows is much higher than that for senators' widows. We sacrifice ourselves on the altar of the country at times and we are afraid to complain of the unfairness of such legislation, which will have to be revised, because there is no justification for having one treatment for judges and another, which is far from being comparable, for senators.

Honourable senators will recall that from the time of Confederation until, I think, 1953, senators had precedence over judges of the Superior Court. That is changed, too; why, I do not know. At the present time in the Order of Precedence the senators pass after the judges of the Superior Court, and there is no reason for that. Why do we honour the Fathers of Confederation when we try to change everything they have done under the pretence that the judges are "in the wind" or on the new wave, or something like that, and that the senators do not deserve the same consideration, which is pure nonsense?

This is not a criticism; it is a warning that in time to come, and it may be soon, the matter will have to be taken up and the legislation will have to be changed to give fair treatment to senators. Senators will have to receive the same treatment as judges, and senators' widows will have to receive the same treatment as judges' widows.

Recently, because the request had not been made in time, the widow of one of our former colleagues—a Privy Councillor, if you please—could not obtain a pension because she had not followed certain formalities to get it. There should be an item in the Estimates to provide for her support until the law is changed to make it fair.

Hon. Maurice Bourget: Honourable senators, in amendment, I move, seconded by the honourable Senator Vaillancourt:

> That the bill be not now read the third time, but that it be amended as follows:
>
> In the French version of the bill, strike out the words "fonction publique" and substitute therefor the words "service public" in the title and wherever they appear in the said French version of the bill.

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, it is moved by the honourable Senator Connolly (Ottawa West), seconded by the honourable Senator Roebuck, that this bill be now read the third time.

In amendment, it is moved by the honourable Senator Bourget, seconded by the honourable Senator Vaillancourt that the bill be not now read the third time, but that it be amended as follows:

> In the French version of the bill, strike out the words "fonction publique" and substitute therefor the words "service public" in the title and wherever they appear in the said French version of the bill.

Honourable senators, is it your pleasure to adopt the motion in amendment?

[Translation]

Hon. Mr. Bourget: Honourable senators, the reasons for this amendment, supplied by our legal adviser, are as follows:

The joint committee which was instructed to deal with Bill No. C-193 recommended substituting in the French version the words "fonction publique" for the words "service public" in the title and in every clause of the said bill. The house approved the committee's proposal and the bill as amended was read the third time.

The thing is now to move an amendment designed to replace the words "fonction publique" by the words "service public", so as to restore the bill to its original form. Here are the reasons for this change:

In the first place, the first act as amended by Bill No. C-193 is entitled "loi sur la pension du service public, (chapter 47, Statutes of 1952-1953)". The title of this act has never been amended by a subsequent act. Therefore, the act can only be quoted under its official title, namely "loi sur la pension du service public".

In other words, until an amending act containing a specific provision changes the title, Chapter 47 of 1952-1953 can only be cited under its present title. The Statutes of Canada now contain no act entitled "Loi sur la pension de la fonction publique".

In the second place, chapter 47 of 1952-1953 gives the definition of certain terms including "service public". How then, can an amending act change such interpretation without amending the definition clause, more precisely clause 2, paragraph (j) as follows:

> "Public Service" means the several positions in or under any department or portion of the executive government of Canada, and, for the purpose of this Act, of the Senate and the House of Commons of Canada, the Library of Parliament and any board, commission, corporation or portion of the public service of Canada, specified in Schedule A;

In the third place, in view of the fact that Bill C-193 amends only some sections of the Public Service Superannuation Act, and that the other sections remain unchanged, we will have, following the amendment proposed by the committee, two different expressions "service public" and "fonction pubique" to say exactly the same thing; extreme confusion will follow.

Hon. Mr. Choquette: But how did the error happen? Is it a matter of translation? Someone must be responsible for the error.

Hon. Mr. Bourget: This is what happened honourable senators. At the last sitting of the Joint Committee on Public Service, on Thursday, June 22, it was pointed out to us that the words "fonction publique" were better French, and you will probably agree with me on that, but in view of the fact that Bill C-193 amended another act, it would have been necessary then to change everything in the bill we were amending; since the bill we were amending did not bear as a title "fonction publique", we could not amend that act which in fact did not exist. That is the reason why, to correct the amendment proposed by the committee and passed by the house, we now move this amendment in order to come back to the original text of the bill, in the French version.

Hon. Mr. Pouliot: Honourable senators, the sponsor of this bill is one of my personal friends and so is the legal adviser to the House of Commons. However, must we agree on everything? This time, I agree with him about the proposal he has made but I say that in the bill there are certain expressions used in the same acts.

However, that brings us back to the problem of translation which is not an ordinary problem. I remember being taken to task in this very chamber—bawled out as you say in English—because I had complained about the translators who brought pressure to bear on one of my colleagues to insult me. I was complaining about errors in translation. Moreover, they lobbied to scare me.

I have some sympathy for the translators and this reminds me of a story about a merchant named Florian Rioux, of St. Jean de Dieu, who had bought 50 barrels of molasses. The farmers went to his store but after tasting it refused to buy it saying that it was sour. Florian asked his supplier to cancel the sale. The latter refused. They went to court. The court appointed an arbitrator and molasses tasters. Each one of them ate a tablespoonful of molasses to ascertain whether it was sweet or sour. The work of the translators reminds me somewhat of Florian Rioux' molasses. The work is difficult but, under the pretext that there are not enough translators, any one at all is hired.

I shall give you a fairly recent example; the incident occurred during this session. I said, in English: "I play the game with the Government"; in French that means, "Je joue franc jeu." The translator wrote: "Je joue le jeu du gouvernement". It is not the same thing at all. I did not speak about it, at the time, but now that the occasion arises, I take advantage of it.

I hope translations will be checked very closely, that they will be corrected in the same way proofs are corrected at the Printing Bureau. Proofreading at the Printing Bureau has now improved considerably compared to what it was in the past.

That is one suggestion I want to make; first of all, I want to warn the government against appointing incompetent translators. It is much better to have no translation at all than to have a poor one.

I speak in English more often than in French, because I have had very little satisfaction when I spoke French. Today, I am taking a risk, taking a chance. I am replying in French to a speech which was made in my own tongue. When speaking English I make a sacrifice, in the hope that all my colleagues will understand me and that I shall be better served than if I spoke French.

That is all I have to say for the time being, until such time as I have the opportunity of discussing it again in due course, should the need arise.

[Text]

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, it is moved by the honourable Senator Connolly, seconded by honourable Senator Roebuck, that Bill C-193, intituled: "An Act to amend the Public Service Superannuation Act"—

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): Dispense.

The Hon. the Speaker: In amendment, it is moved by honourable Senator Bourget, seconded by honourable Senator Vaillancourt—

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): Dispense.

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, is it your pleasure to adopt the motion in amendment?

Motion in amendment agreed to.

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this bill as amended be read the third time?

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West: I move that the bill be read the third time now.

Motion agreed to, and bill as amended read third time and passed.

PRIVATE BILL

BANK OF WESTERN CANADA—SECOND READING

Hon. T. D'Arcy Leonard moved the second reading of Bill C-111, to incorporate Bank of Western Canada.

He said: Honourable senators, I think it would be helpful if I reviewed the history over the last two years of the application for incorporation by the Bank of Western Canada.

On February 27, 1964 Bill S-6, to incorporate Bank of Western Canada, was presented and read the first time in the Senate. It was the first application for a bank charter since 1953. That bill received second reading on March 12, 1964 and was referred to the Standing Committee on Banking and Commerce.

Subsequently, two other bills for the incorporation of banks were presented to this house: one to incorporate Laurentide Bank of Canada and the other to incorporate Bank of British Columbia. In the meantime, with the consent of the sponsors, it had been agreed that the bill to incorporate Bank of Western Canada would be held up pending the tabling of the report of the Royal Commission on Banking and Finance.

That report was released to the public on April 24, 1964, and it contained nothing that in any way derogated or interfered with the applications for bank charters. On the contrary, the whole tenor of the report of the Royal Commission on Banking and Finance was favourable to more competition in the banking field.

A considerable amount of evidence was heard and discussion took place in committee. The committee was not unanimous—different points of view were expressed—but on July 27, 1964, the committee reported the bill to incorporate Bank of Western Canada to the Senate without amendment. On the same day the bill to incorporate Laurentide Bank of Canada was reported, with two amendments dealing with its capital. On July 25, 1965, both these bills received third reading in the Senate, on division.

In the meantime, the committee, in dealing with the Bank of British Columbia, reported that the preamble had not been approved, for reasons which I need not now elaborate. Suffice it to say that these reasons were concerned with the ownership of the block of shares of the bank held by the Government of British Columbia.

The other two bank bills went to the House of Commons. They were debated during the hours allotted to private members' business, but never received second reading. Therefore, when that session of Parliament ended on April 3, 1965, those two bills died on the Order Paper.

The next session of Parliament commenced two days later, on April 5, 1965. Bill C-99, to incorporate the Bank of Western Canada was introduced, this time in the House of Commons, on April 25, 1965. Similarly, on April 12, 1965, Bill C-95, to incorporate the Laurentide Bank was also introduced in the House of Commons. Both bills received second reading in the House of Commons during that session and were referred to the Commons Committee on Finance, Trade and Economic Affairs on June 22, 1965. A petition to incorporate the Bank of British Columbia had been tabled in the Commons on June 4, 1965, but no bill was introduced.

That session of Parliament ended on June 30, 1965, just eight days after the two bills, namely, the Laurentide Bank and the Bank of Western Canada, had been referred to the committee, and those two bills died by reason of the dissolution of that Parliament.

We come now to the present session of Parliament, which commenced last January. The Bank of Western Canada again petitioned in the House of Commons, and Bill C-111, the bill before us, was introduced in that chamber, received second reading, was referred to the Committee on Finance, Trade and Economic Affairs, and was amended in that committee.

Here I should go back and say that previously a new Bank Act bill had been introduced in the House of Commons and received first reading. That bill contained clauses dealing with the matter of government ownership of shares of a bank dealing also with non-resident ownership of shares of a bank, and also the amount of shares that any one shareholder could own in the bank.

The amendments to the Bank of Western Canada bill that were made by the Committee on Finance, Trade and Economic Affairs of the House of Commons were amendments that inserted provisions that had been in the Bank Act bill which had received first reading. They were substantially the same, the only changes being of a purely verbal nature.

No bill to incorporate the Laurentide Bank has been introduced this session, and so far as I know, and so far as one may gather from public reports, it would appear that no bill is proposed.

In the meantime, however, a bill to incorporate the Bank of British Columbia was introduced in this chamber, received second reading, went to the Committee on Banking and Commerce, and our committee amended that bill to put in exactly the same sections that were put in the Bank of Western Canada bill by the committee of the House of Commons. That having been done, the report of the Banking and Commerce Committee on the Bank of British Columbia was adopted by this chamber, the bill received third reading here and went to the House of Commons.

That is the history of the past two years dealing with these two bank bills. Therefore, the situation at the present time is that last evening Bill C-111, to incorporate the Bank of Western Canada, received third reading in the House of Commons, was passed, and is now before us.

In the meantime, the House of Commons has given second reading to the Bank of British Columbia bill and referred it to the same committee of that house that dealt with the Bank of Western Canada bill.

Coming to the bill itself, the present Bill C-111 is substantially the same as Bill S-6 which passed the Senate in 1964, subject to the changes to which I have referred. The incorporators are James Elliott Coyne, Sinclair McKnight Stevens, Maxwell Bruce, Edward Rex Plewman Nesbitt, and John Leslie Bodie. These are the same original directors as appeared in the 1964 bill, except that the earlier bill also contained the names of some 100 or more other petitioners. They were dropped for purely administrative reasons, their support is still there, but it was not thought necessary, as it was in the first instance, to repeat their names in this application for incorporation.

The capital stock is set out in section 3 of the bill at $25 million. In the original bill it was $10 million; but in the meantime, some two years ago, in order to be ready for the commencement of business should the charter be granted, the sum of approximately $13 million was raised for investment in the shares of this bank. All of that $13 million is still available. Most of it has been invested in trustee securities and held in trust during the past two years against the time when the charter might be granted. There is a time limit on that trust.

By section 4 the head office shall be at the City of Winnipeg, in the Province of Manitoba.

Section 5 is new, and incorporates the provisions of the Bank Act as it was introduced previously in the House of Commons, and, as I understand, is proposed again in the resolution which the Minister of Finance presented yesterday.

I think it is sufficient for me to say that sections 5, 6, 7, 8, 9 and 10 limit the amount of shares that might be held by non-residents to some 10 per cent. They limit the power of any government to invest in the shares of the bank, and not more than 10 per cent of the shares of the bank may be held by one shareholder or persons associated with him directly or indirectly.

There are other provisions with respect to non-voting and other matters, which are designed to make effective those restrictions I have mentioned.

Section 11 amends the Bank Act to provide for an insertion of the name of this bank in Schedule A of the Bank Act.

Section 12 reads:

> Except as provided in the Bank Act and in this Act, the Bank shall have all the powers, privileges and immunities subject to all the liabilities and provisions set forth in the Bank Act.

Now, even if this bill passes, the bank will still be governed by the Bank Act in the same way as all other banks.

The present bank charters expire this year, and so will the charter of this bank, if this bill is passed, but it also will be subject to any extension of the charters given through the Bank Act. This Bank of Western Canada will be subject to inspection by the Inspector General of Banks, and subject to all the rules and regulations imposed with respect to loans and investments.

The Bank of Western Canada is prepared to conform with whatever changes are made in the Bank Act pursuant to the resolution of the Minister of Finance dealing with such matters as, for example, the insurance of deposits and any other regulations which are made respecting the inspection and supervision of banks which might be ancillary to the question of the insurance of deposits.

Before the bank can commence business, it must receive a certificate from the Treasury Board, and it has a year in which that certificate may be issued.

In the light of the length of time since the first application was made, the sponsors of this bill are entitled now to have it dealt with as speedily as possible. We passed their application two years ago. The only real change since then is to add these provisions dealing with ownership by non-residents, by one shareholder, and by governments.

The applicants for this bank were prepared to accept these, and as soon as the occasion arose whereby they could have those amendments made, they were made, and the bill now comes before us with those amendments. We in turn passed upon similar amendments when we dealt with the bill regarding the Bank of British Columbia a couple of months ago.

The Minister of Finance yesterday expressed the view that more competition is desirable in the banking field. This is really the theme of the changes in the Bank Act, as suggested in the resolution moved in the other place.

The money waiting to be invested in these shares is subject to a time limit which expires early in 1967. For this bank to get started, to organize, to get its certificate from the Treasury Board, to issue its shares and to receive the money that is waiting for it now, it is desirable that the bill should not be held up when we are on the eve of this summer vacation.

Therefore, my suggestion is that if the bill receives second reading today we refer it to the Standing Committee on Banking and Commerce. I understand that Senator Hayden, chairman of that committee, is prepared to sit tomorrow morning. This would require an amendment of our standing rules, which normally would require 24 hours' notice of intention to bring this bill before the committee.

Therefore, if the bill receives favourable approval on second reading, I shall propose that it be referred to the Standing Committee on Banking and Commerce and that, notwithstanding the rule in question, the committee may deal with it tomorrow morning.

Hon. A. J. Brooks: Honourable senators, I am not rising to analyse this bill or the discussions we have had for nearly two years on this measure and on the bill regarding the Bank of British Columbia.

The honourable sponsor of the bill explained it very well, as usual, and has given us a complete review of its history. It was my understanding, although I may be wrong, that we were waiting for the revision of the Bank Act before going on with these bank bills. That revision is being discussed now, so I cannot altogether agree with my honourable friend that there is need for great haste in putting this bill through. I hope the bill regarding the Bank of British Columbia will go through at the same time as this one. I take it from what the honourable sponsor of the bill has said, that there is some intention—I do not say some agreement, because that sort of thing is not supposed to be done—to see that the Bank of British Columbia bill is passed at the same time as the Bank of Western Canada bill.

I am a little surprised at the urgency which the honourable senator has expressed. He also told us we will have to renew the charter of this bank. We are asked to give a charter to the bank now and in a few months we will be asked to renew that charter.

Personally, I do not see why we could not wait a few months instead. However, I am not a banker and possibly I do not understand these things as well as I should. The strongest argument against the granting of a charter to the Bank of Western Canada was that we had enough banks. We all realize that in this large and growing country that argument may not be correct; but we also know that there is hardly a small village in Canada where banks are not competing to set up branches at the present time.

The honourable sponsor said we need more competition. I wonder whether that statement also is correct. The banks are complaining that they have too much competition, not from other banks but from the near banks, the trust companies and other institutions which are more or less doing banking business. They are hoping for a revision of the Bank Act, to give less, not more, competition in banking. I am not sure that this argument of more competition among the banks is altogether correct. I doubt it.

If this bank is set up, it is to be a western bank. Let me say that all banks are Canadian banks. They have subscribers and shareholders in every part of the country. I understand the directors of this western bank will be mainly from the City of Toronto. Of course, we have nothing against the City of Toronto.

Honourable senators, I am not rising to object to this bill. It was passed in the other place without objection. I do not see that it is absolutely necessary that the bill should be rushed through here, but I am not going to oppose it.

Hon. Gunnar S. Thorvaldson: Honourable senators, I do not wish to delay the passage of this bill, but I would like to make some remarks, particularly in view of those made by my colleague Senator Brooks.

This bill has had a checkered career, having been introduced here two years ago. It was thoroughly debated then and approved by the Standing Committee on Banking and Commerce. Consequently, I would support the argument that, from a practical point of view, it should not be necessary even to send it to committee again.

On the other hand, I hope all senators will support the waiver of the rules, so that it can go before that committee tomorrow morning and be approved again without undue delay.

My main reason, however, for speaking now is that the name of this bank is to be the Bank of Western Canada. I disagree with the suggestion by my honourable friend that we do not need more competition in banking. I believe we need more competition in banking and in every other kind of business.

I take this opportunity to reiterate what has been said so often by some of my colleagues from western Canada, that that part of Canada is going through a stage of growth now that is unparalleled except in the very early days of our history when the country was new and developing very rapidly. I agree that to have a bank located in western Canada is a matter of pride for us westerners, and also we are convinced that such a bank will be a useful institution and a useful instrument in the expansion of our economy.

In expressing these views I also hope that there will be unanimous agreement in regard to the bill going before the Standing Committee on Banking and Commerce tomorrow morning.

Hon. Arthur W. Roebuck: Honourable senators, I have just a short comment to make. My colleagues will no doubt remember to some extent the position which I took in regard to this matter on previous occasions, and I do not intend to repeat now what was said at that time. However, I do wish to comment briefly and not destructively at all on what Senator Brooks has said with regard to competition.

I am not so sure whether I am in a position to decide whether we need more or less competition in banking in this country, but I am quite confident in my view that it is not for us to build a wall around the existing banks and to say to others that they shall not compete. In my view that is a matter of economics, and if somebody wishes to compete, it is not for us to stand between the established banks and the newcomer and say, "This is a closed business; we have made a monopoly in the banking industry, and you are out." I do not think it is necessary for us to decide whether more competition is necessary or desirable. In my view the question turns on the fact that this is a free country, that banking is not very different from any other industry, and that the determining factor is whether somebody else wishes to enter the industry and is ready to do so in a regular and proper fashion, as this bank seems ready to do.

So, honourable senators, I am, as I was before, strongly in favour of the incorporation of this bank. I join with my friend Senator Thorvaldson in wishing that it be done quickly. "If it were done, when 'tis done, then 'twere well it were done quickly."

Motion agreed to and bill read second time.

REFERRED TO COMMITTEE

On motion of Hon. Mr. Leonard, bill referred to the Standing Committee on Banking and Commerce.

SUSPENSION OF RULE 119

Leave having been given to revert to Notices of Motions:

Hon. Mr. Leonard, with leave of the Senate, moved:

> That Rule 119 be suspended with respect to the Bill C-111, intituled: "An Act to incorporate Bank of Western Canada."

He said: With leave of the Senate, I move that Rule 119 be suspended with respect to Bill C-111, intituled an Act to incorporate Bank of Western Canada. This rule requires that a bill such as the one now before us, which has passed the House of Commons, shall be posted for 24 hours before it may be considered by a committee of the Senate. That would mean that the present bill could not be considered in committee until after the Senate rises tomorrow or on Friday morning. I think honourable senators would all agree it would be preferable to have it considered by the committee tomorrow morning. I have spoken with Senator Hayden and I understand he is agreeable to that course.

Hon. Mr. Choquette: Is it not the rule that a committee of the Senate cannot consider such a bill until after one week's notice of the sitting of such committee has been posted up in the lobby, and in the case of such bill originating in the House of Commons, until after 24 hours' like notice?

Hon. Mr. Leonard: That is quite right. If this rule is now suspended it will be possible to have this bill before the Standing Committee on Banking and Commerce tomorrow morning.

Motion agreed to.

CANADIAN CORPORATION WORLD EXHIBITION ACT

BILL TO AMEND—SECOND READING

Hon. Daniel A. Lang moved the second reading of Bill S-42, to amend the Canadian Corporation for the 1967 World Exhibition Act.

He said: Honourable senators, this is a bill to amend the Canadian Corporation for the 1967 World Exhibition Act. As honourable senators will recall, that act was originally passed in December 1962 and had the effect of establishing the corporation itself. In December 1963 that act was amended and into it was inserted a section 18A dealing with marks and symbols and the copyright therein pertaining to the exposition itself. In that amendment recognition was first given to the fact that these symbols and marks were important in the conduct of the exhibition and in the development of the Expo itself, and in the quality control of the various activities in which the exposition was to engage.

The bill we have before us this afternoon further amends that new section inserted in 1963. Behind the amendment there are basically three purposes: first, to strengthen the copyright position of Expo: second, to add new copyright rights, if I may use that expression, in Expo where they do not now exist under the Copyright Act; and, third, to make all copyrights of the exposition more easily and more expeditiously enforceable by the corporation.

If honourable senators would care to address themselves to the bill, I shall very briefly outline the effect of these proposed amendments.

First, clause 1, paragraph (a) of subsection 3 of the old section 18A, is amended to extend the copyright created originally in these marks but restricted to where the marks were applied to goods, to where they are also applied to advertising in connection with the goods. The necessity for this arises out of the fact that in the act as it now stands it is uncertain as to whether a person who does not in fact put the Expo mark on his goods but displays his goods with advertising around them or in conjunction with them and using the word "Expo"—for example, "Get your Expo '67 sunglasses here"—whether that is actually in contravention of the act. This section is amended to include words to bring that sort of activity clearly within the activities prohibited to unlicensed persons.

I should say, of course, that the preamble to this section in the original says that these marks, symbols, etc. can be used only by persons who are licensed to do so by the corporation and in specific ways.

The next amendment, which adds to the old subclause 4, creates an exception in connection with the use of Expo wordings or symbols which are used in a bona fide fashion by a person, without the intention of identifying with Expo itself, through inadvertance or otherwise. I can conceive an example of that being where someone might advertise a fair and say, "Come to the Guelph Expo, 1967 cattle, sheep and swine prize giving." There would be no question of any real intention there to identify it with the Expo. These cases were provided for under the original section. The effect of this amendment is to shift the burden of proving the bona fides of the use of such words on to the person using them rather than leaving the burden of such proof on the Expo Corporation, as that burden would have been and remained under the original section.

Hon. Mr. Choquette: If they proceed with their local Expo, are you going to deal with them when it is all over?

Hon. Mr. Lang: I will come to that shortly. You will see there are provisions which retain these rights beyond the period of Expo.

The next amendment, at the top of page 2 of the bill, is in much the same vein. This amendment is included to make it unnecessary for the Expo Corporation, when applying for an injunction restraining some unlicensed persons from using symbols, marks and words of identification, to prove specific, immediate and irreparable injury to the corporation. As honourable senators who are members of the legal profession know, proof of that is necessary, among other things, to obtain an injunction of the nature we are contemplating. This does not mean that in applying for an injunction the corporation does not have the burden of proving other things, but it does make it unnecessary for the corporation to prove immediate and irreparable injury, which in itself might be somewhat difficult of proof, or somewhat intangible, in connection with representations being made under those circumstances to a judge or to a court.

Clause 2 of the bill enacts a new section 18B. The necessity for it arises out of the fact that under the Copyright Act there is no copyright in a statue or a painting, engraving, photograph, or anything of that nature which is permanently on display in a public place; nor is there copyright in an architectural work on display in a public place. I mean by that that there is no protection given to the creator of such "artistic works" against any member of the public photographing those works at any time, thereby acquiring a copyright in the photograph and selling reproductions of it for commercial purposes. When honourable senators realize that, it becomes self-evident that the exclusive licensing of official photographers or creators of postcards, brochures, folders, and things of that nature, would be quite meaningless unless some protection could be afforded them through a section such as we now have before us. This section now creates in Expo itself a very limited form of copyright in the reproduction of these various objects, by the making of models, paintings, drawings, engravings or photographs. These rights are created for the first time and are restricted to Expo itself which, in turn, can license them to various people.

Behind this is the overall basic concern of the corporation to maintain a very high quality of reproductions of all kinds which will identify with the exposition in the mind of the public.

It is the concern of the corporation to avoid the tawdry, the poorly artistic, the lacking in taste—to prevent these forms of reproduction becoming widespread, and to attain a high quality of artistry and skill in all these ancillary fields. Exclusive licensing by the corporation is intended to accomplish this end.

This clause further provides that this limited copyright vesting in the corporation only subsists until October 28, 1967; and that any action or other legal proceedings which commences before that date with respect to these matters is not affected by the lapse of the copyright on that date.

Hon. Mr. Choquette: Could I ask my honourable friend a question? You realize, of course, that on the grounds of the Expo there will be thousands of gadgets on sale every five or ten feet, and people will say, "Go back home with a souvenir of Canada's Expo 1967." Will they have to apply for a licence? Surely, they can use the word "Expo" without getting a licence? How will this act prevent any little salesman from selling gadgets on the grounds?

Hon. Mr. Lang: I understand that all vendors on the grounds will be licensed by Expo; they will be concessionaires. All objects bearing Expo insignia or reproductions of buildings will be manufactured and sold by persons licensed by Expo. For instance, it would be impossible under this provision for an unlicensed photographer to go to Expo and take photographs throughout the grounds, make them into postcards and take them out and sell them.

Hon. Mr. Choquette: Supposing an individual takes a photograph of a mounted policeman and says, "This is a nice souvenir of Expo to take home to your country. Here is a good-looking mounted policeman." How do you prevent that being done?

Hon. Mr. Lang: Anybody can take photographs. It is the unlicensed taking of photographs for reproduction and sale for commercial purposes that this provision is aimed at. The object is to restrict that right to licensees of the corporation.

Finally, subclause 4, like the new subsection (5a) of section 18A at the top of the page, gives the corporation considerable power in respect to the enforcement of its rights. Firstly, it creates a presumption of immediate and irreparable injury in connection with the activities of unlicensed users, and thereby avoids the necessity of the corporation's proving that fact in an action for an injunction. This is an important subclause in that it also creates a presumption of infringement by such unlicensed persons, which would hold unless that presumption was rebutted by such persons.

I would say that these powers of enforcement constitute a considerable departure from the ordinary rules of law governing copyright, but I am sure all honourable senators will agree with me that in view of the limited time during which they will be in force, and the rapidity of the build-up of Expo and, indeed, the unforeseeable combinations and permutations of situations that can arise, these measures are fully justified.

Honourable senators, behind this bill there is, of course, the overriding consideration of the importance of making Expo '67 not only quantitively but qualitatively an outstanding success.

Hon. A. J. Brooks: Honourable senators, we are indebted to Senator Lang for his explanation of this bill. I should like to say also that in my opinion this bill is very well drawn from a legal standpoint. Its explanatory notes are much better than those found in most bills. If any honourable senator wants a supplementation of what has been said by Senator Lang, then he or she needs only to read the explanatory notes.

I recall that there was a long discussion in connection with the Canadian World Exhibition Act of 1962 and the amendments of 1963, and the questions asked by my seatmate, Senator Choquette, are quite in point. I should like to ask the honourable sponsor of the bill if the Government is aware of any person or company who has used the official symbol of the exhibition for business purposes. Has there been to date any infringement? The exhibition is not at this time in progress, but the corporation does have a symbol and the word "Expo".

Approximately 60 nations will be represented at this exhibition, and I would suppose that every one of them will want to advertise as much as it can not only in Canada but within its own borders. I should like to know whether they will be allowed to take photographs of their buildings, for instance, to show the architecture and other aspects. Will they be allowed to sell souvenirs from those buildings, or will Expo have absolute control over all the buildings and all exhibits from those different countries?

I agree entirely with the relief provided by this bill in cases of copyright infringement. The obtaining of an injunction is a very convenient and quick way of dealing with such wrongdoing.

May I ask the honourable sponsor also if I am correct in my understanding that all exhibits over which Expo has control can be returned to the person or persons who would, except for the exhibition, be entitled to them? I understand that after October 1967, these exhibits can be returned to the various individuals and companies.

Those are the only questions I have to ask at the present time in connection with this bill.

Hon. Mr. Croll: Honourable senators, it just occurs to me, as Senator Lang has said, that the subclause at the top of page 2 constitutes a considerable extension of a legal principle that is found in the Copyright Act. Is there a precedent for this sort of thing? Has it ever been done before? Does the honourable sponsor know of any precedent for it?

Hon. Mr. Lang: I do not know of any personally. I have been advised by the departmental authorities that this follows very closely some of the procedures adopted in connection with the recent New York World's Fair. In that case it was found necessary to create such a situation as this by legislation in order to protect that exposition. I know of no other precedent.

Honourable senators, in reply to Senator Brooks' questions, I might say that I have no knowledge of any infringement to date, although a problem arose in connection with the use of the word "Expo". An application was made to the Registrar of Trade Marks for the use of the words "Expo Cleaners". At the request of the corporation, the Registrar refused this trade mark, because the corporation said that at that time they did not know whether they would be employing cleaners on the grounds who might want to use that designation in their capacity as official cleaners.

Mr. Brooks: They might want to do their own cleaning when they get the customers there.

Hon. Mr. Lang: Yes, I imagine so. And again, I cannot speak from first-hand knowledge, but with respect to the activities of foreign countries at Expo I think the attitude of the corporation must of necessity be that of a good host.

It is my intention, if this bill receives second reading, to move that it be referred to the Standing Committee on Banking and Commerce, and as to these questions and any others that honourable senators have, I would suggest that they be asked of the officers appearing before that committee.

Hon. Arthur W. Roebuck: Honourable senators, before this bill is read the second time I should like to point out that it is an extraordinary measure in that it gives most unusual powers to the corporation, and they are, I think, open to serious question. I notice, for instance, that if a painting by some private person is on exhibition, then the Corporation has the copyright in it.

I should think that the more publicity there is the better, but this bill seems to be aimed at stopping reproductions and other kinds of publicity which I think are desirable. From a cursory look at the bill it seems to me that it constitutes a very questionable infringement of private rights, and I hope the matter will be further discussed in committee.

Motion agreed to and bill read second time.

REFERRED TO COMMITTEE

On motion of Hon. Mr. Lang, bill referred to the Standing Committee on Banking and Commerce.

The Senate adjourned until tomorrow at 3 p.m.

THE SENATE

Thursday, July 7, 1966

The Senate met at 3 p.m., the Speaker in the Chair.

Prayers.

DISTINGUISHED VISITOR IN SENATE GALLERY

WIFE OF PREMIER OF THE BAHAMAS

Hon. John J. Connolly: Honourable senators, not often do we call attention to visitors in the Senate Gallery, but today we are honoured with the presence of the wife of the Premier of the Bahamas, Lady Symonette. I mention this not only because of her distinguished husband, not only because she happens to be a very beautiful young lady, but because of the fact that she is a Canadian by birth.

Hon. Senators: Hear, hear.

DOCUMENTS TABLED

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West) tabled:

Report of the Army Benevolent Fund Board for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1966, pursuant to section 13 of the Army Benevolent Fund Act, chapter 10, R.S.C., 1952, including its Accounts and Financial Statements certified by the Auditor General. (English and French texts).

Report of the Department of Forestry for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1965, pursuant to section 12 of the Department of Forestry Act, chapter 41, Statutes of Canada, 1960. (French text).

Report on the Operations of the Fisheries Improvement Loans Act for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1966, pursuant to section 12(2) of the said Act, chapter 46, Statutes of Canada, 1955. (English and French texts).

PRIVATE BILL

BANK OF WESTERN CANADA—AUTHORITY TO PRINT COMMITTEE PROCEEDINGS

Hon. Arthur L. Beaubien, for Hon. Mr Hayden, Chairman of the Standing Committee on Banking and Commerce, presented the following report of the committee on Bill C-111, to incorporate Bank of Western Canada:

Your committee recommends that authority be granted for the printing of 800 copies in English and 300 copies in French of its proceedings on the said bill.

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this report be taken into consideration.

Hon. Mr. Beaubien (Provencher): I move, with leave of the Senate, that the report be adopted now.

Report adopted.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE

Hon. Mr. Beaubien (Provencher) for Hon. Mr. Hayden, Chairman of the Standing Committee on Banking and Commerce, reported that the committee had considered Bill C-111, to incorporate Bank of Western Canada, and had directed that the bill be reported without amendment.

THIRD READING

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this bill be read the third time?

Hon. Mr. Leonard: Honourable senators, with leave, I move that the bill be read the third time now.

Motion agreed to and bill read third time and passed.

CANADIAN CORPORATION WORLD EXHIBITION ACT

BILL TO AMEND—AUTHORITY TO PRINT COMMITTEE PROCEEDINGS

Hon. Arthur L. Beaubien, for Hon. Mr. Hayden, Chairman of the Standing Committee on Banking and Commerce, presented the following report of the committee on Bill S-42, to amend the Canadian Corporation for the 1967 World Exhibition Act:

Your committee recommends that authority be granted for the printing of 800 copies in English and 300 copies in French of its proceedings on the said bill.

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this report be taken into consideration?

Hon. Mr. Beaubien (Provencher): I move, with leave of the Senate, that the report be adopted now.

Report adopted.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE

Hon. Mr. Beaubien (Provencher) for Hon. Mr. Hayden, Chairman of the Standing Committee on Banking and Commerce, reported that the committee had considered Bill S-42, to amend the Canadian Corporation for the 1967 World Exhibition Act, and had directed that the bill be reported without amendment.

THIRD READING

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this bill be read the third time?

Hon. Daniel A. Lang: Honourable senators, with leave of the Senate, I move third reading now.

Hon. Arthur W. Roebuck: Honourable senators, before the motion is adopted, I want to make some comments with regard to this bill.

When we considered the bill in committee, I pointed out that it would create a monopoly. It gives to Expo a monopoly of the reproduction of any pictures which are made of the exhibition or of such things as exhibits of art; it takes away the common right of those who make photographic reproductions, to the extent that they are not allowed to use them for commercial purposes.

The idea behind the measure is to give to Expo management such revenue as they may obtain by the sale of these rights which they are taking away from the individual. I raised this objection in Committee. This bill is for the express purpose of creating a monopoly, which is the same type of monopoly which the British Parliament legislated against in the time of Queen Elizabeth I. The Queen wanted to be able to grant monopolies in order to gain the revenues that would arise therefrom. Parliament objected, and one of the grand acts of that Queen was her surrender to Parliament in that connection. She did it in the early part of her reign, and one of the bases upon which her popularity rested for the rest of her reign was that monopolies were abolished.

I realize there are reasons for this bill—of course, there are always reasons. As Mark Anthony said on one occasion:

> They . . . will . . . with reasons answer you.

I appreciate there is money in this, and we are interested in the revenue. At the same time I do not like special privileges, whether they are granted to ourselves or to someone else, so I am opposed to this measure, and I think it is proper that I should express disapproval. So far as I am concerned, this bill shall not be considered at some future time as a precedent for other measures of a similar nature.

That is all I wish to say about it. I appreciate you are going to pass the bill, but you are not going to give anyone the idea that I like it. I therefore express the view that I do not like this kind of legislation. I am not going to vote for it and, so far as I am concerned, it is not to be regarded as a precedent for similar legislation on a future occasion.

Hon. John J. Connolly: Honourable senators, on behalf of the Government I should say a word about the point that our learned friend Senator Roebuck raises.

In the first place, I doubt whether the new Elizabethans, as perhaps I might describe ourselves, are any different from the old Elizabethans, to whom he has referred, in respect of the problems that are created for an economy by certain types of monopolistic practices. Nonetheless, I think the position that is sought to be established by the passage of this bill is a very simple and appropriate one.

Expo '67 is a very large and expensive undertaking, nearly all the cost of which is being met out of the public purse. Exclusive franchises have been granted by Expo to certain people on a commercial basis, and it is important that these people who have entered into what must be assumed to be valuable contracts should have all the protection in respect of copyright and other matters that emanate from this bill. There is no intention of perpetuating a monopolistic practice in respect of the matters covered by this bill, because they are not of the far-reaching kind objected to in general by Senator Roebuck. There is a distinction. These provisions are for a limited period of time only because they are in respect of an operation that has a limited existence.

If it is in the commercial interests of the country to make the kind of contracts that have been made in respect of Expo, and to endeavour to assure the quality of the works that are to be reproduced, then this bill is a provident one and is in the interests of the public. I commend it to the support of all honourable senators.

Hon. A. K. Hugessen: Honourable senators, I am extremely glad that my honourable friend to my left (Hon. Mr. Roebuck) has raised this point. He is quite right of course, in saying, that in certain of the provisions of this bill there are infringements of the ordinary rights of the citizen. We all realize that it is one of the functions of this chamber particularly to make sure that any such infringements are carefully guarded against, and if we allow them at all, they should be supported by conclusive evidence.

My honourable friend, in my opinion, was quite right in raising this objection, although I must say I disagree as to the practical effect of it. After all, Expo '67 is a most unusual circumstance. It is to be in existence for a limited time. The expenses of it are to be paid largely by the federal and provincial governments, and the effect of it in the way of an appreciation of Canada by the hundreds of thousands of people who are expected to visit Expo will be very important indeed. The basic effect of this amendment is that the public image of Expo will be left in the hands of Expo itself. In other words, Expo will have a monopoly of all photographic and other reproductions that may be made and sold to the public.

As my honourable friend said, that may be a limitation upon the rights of an individual to make his own photographs or reproductions, and to sell them to the public. But, on the other hand, it has to be borne in mind that this provision will protect the hundreds of thousands of people who, when they visit Expo, will be invited to buy photographic reproductions, in that they will know that they have been properly designed and passed by Expo itself. This is an important consideration quite apart from any question of the revenue that may be derived therefrom.

I hope I do not take second place to anyone in this chamber in a regard for and attempt to protect the rights of the individual, but I do think that under these particular circumstances and in this particular case the proponents of the bill have made their argument and that this is a bill which should receive the mature judgment of the Senate.

Hon. Lionel Choquette: May I ask the honourable senator a question? When we deal with the first part of the bill, there is an explanatory note concerning subclause (3) of clause 1. The note says:

> The purpose of this amendment is to assist the Corporation to obtain expeditious relief against the unauthorized use of its marks and symbol by way of injunction without having to adduce evidence of the matters presumed.

Then, there is a follow-up clause in the bill which reads:

> In any action or suit in which an injunction is sought pursuant to subsection (5), it shall be presumed that any contravention of this section will occasion immediate and irreparable injury to the Corporation.

Is that not placing the onus on the offender, which is contrary to any principles of law that I have known up to this date?

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): The onus is certainly a very heavy one, there is no doubt about that.

Hon. Mr. Choquette: Yes; and it is put on the offender.

Hon. Daniel A. Lang: Honourable senators, perhaps I may reply to my honourable friend.

It certainly does place the onus on the offender with regard to the principle of irreparable loss and damage. However, that is only one element in the motion for an injunction. The Exposition itself will still have to carry the burden of proving the other elements necessary to enable it to obtain an injunction, i.e., infringement of copyright, the unlicensed use of Exposition material—these burdens remain with the Exposition, while it is only that one element of irreparable loss and damage that is affected by the shift of onus.

I think the reason for that is basically that it may be very difficult for Expo to prove irreparable loss and damage. It is a somewhat intangible thing in an enterprise of such magnitude.

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): There is a lot of good, free legal advice being given this afternoon.

Hon. Mr. Roebuck: May I say I have no objection to Expo protecting its trademark and such other marks as it has registered. I join with my friend, however, in objecting to the methods taken to give the protection instead of relying upon the general law that is well established in this country.

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, with leave of the Senate, it has been moved by honourable Senator Lang, seconded by honourable Senator Cook, that this bill be read the third time now. Is it your pleasure, honourable senators, to adopt the motion?

Hon. Mr. Roebuck: On division

Motion agreed to and bill read third time and passed, on division.

LEGAL FEES

NOTICE OF INQUIRY AMENDED

On the Notice of Inquiry of Hon. Mr. Pouliot that he will inquire of the Government:

> Who were the solicitors, lawyers, counsel and notaries public who received fees or payments for travelling expenses from the Government of Canada or its agencies during the three years ending June 30, 1966, and how much was paid to each one.

He said: Honourable senators, with leave of the Senate, I would like to amend the notice of inquiry as to legal fees paid to solicitors, lawyers, counsel and notaries public, by adding the words "of the Province of Quebec only". It will restrict the scope of this inquiry.

QUESTION OF PRIVILEGE

NEWSPAPER ARTICLE

On the Orders of the Day:

Hon. Walter M. Aseltine: Honourable senators, before the Orders of the Day are called, I wish to bring a matter to your attention.

Usually I do not complain about any article which appears in the press with regard to the Senate, whether its effect is derogatory or otherwise; however, yesterday I was disturbed when I read an article in the Ottawa Citizen at page 52. It is by the Canadian Press, and on that account it will appear not only in the local newspapers but also in newspapers throughout Canada.

It may not have been intended to print anything of a derogatory nature, but when I have read the article to honourable senators they will appreciate my objection. It is entitled, "Five Bills approved by the Senate," and reads as follows:

> The Senate passed five bills in quick succession without debate Tuesday night, gave second reading to another, and then adjourned until this afternoon to await further legislation from the House of Commons.
>
> Among the bills passed were those establishing the Company of Young Canadians, the Canadian Dairy Commission, and the Health Resources Fund.
>
> They also passed a bill to incorporate the Evangelical Covenant Church of Canada and another authorizing the Canadian National Railways to construct branch lines in Manitoba.

My objection is to the statement that these bills were passed by the Senate without debate. That is not the fact at all, for the Senate spent most of last week, four days or more, on those bills.

Four of the bills came to the Senate from the House of Commons. Bill C-210, respecting a Canadian National Railway line, received first reading in the Senate, and was fully debated on second reading. Important speeches were delivered by four honourable senators. The bill was then referred to the Standing Committee on Transport and Communications, where it was fully considered, and representatives of the Canadian National Railways and of the Government were present to answer questions.

Another bill referred to in the newspaper article is Bill C-199, an act to provide for the establishment of a Health Resources Fund. The expenditure of some $500 million is involved in that measure, and we certainly did not pass it in the Senate without debate. Six speeches were delivered on second reading, after which it was referred to the Standing Committee on Banking and Commerce, where it was fully considered before being reported back to the Senate.

The article also mentions Bill C-205, dealing with the establishment of the Dairy Commission of Canada, an important matter. After that bill had received first reading, it came up the next day, I believe, for second reading. There was a long debate on second reading, in which six very important speeches were made. Then it was referred to the Standing Committee on Finance, where it was examined most fully and where the Minister of Agriculture appeared, with officials of the department. No one can say that that bill was passed without debate.

Another bill mentioned is Bill C-174, to provide for the establishment of the Company of Young Canadians. On Wednesday of last week that bill received first reading and on the following day it was debated fully on second reading, when four speeches were made. It was placed then on the Orders of the Day for third reading on Tuesday of this week.

The other bill was a private bill, to incorporate the Evangelical Covenant Church of Canada. It also was debated in the Senate and then referred to the Committee on Miscellaneous Private Bills, where it was considered further.

Honourable senators, it is for these reasons that I object to this article, which will be misinterpreted by the people who read it and who do not understand just how Parliament works.

Hon. Mr. Brooks: Like the man who wrote it.

Hon. Mr. Aseltine: I do not know who wrote it, but it will be taken to mean that all these important bills were considered by the Senate and passed without any debate.

As I said before, I do not usually make any objection to newspaper articles, but as this one concerns and disturbs me considerably I thought I should bring it to the attention of the Senate and to the attention of the Press.

Hon. Arthur W. Roebuck: Honourable senators, I wonder if something cannot be done about a report of this kind. I do not mean something by way of reprisal. Whoever wrote the article is a representative of Canadian Press. Canadian Press is a very reputable institution. I do not think that even the writer, much less the management, wishes to disseminate false information.

Hon. Mr. Aseltine: I did not say it was intentionally misleading.

Hon. Mr. Roebuck: No, but it hurts just the same. If someone representing the Senate could take it up personally with these gentlemen, something might be accomplished. If we leave it at a protest made here, it dies in the air. Is there not something practical we can do about it?

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): Honourable senators, I do not wish to protract the point made by honourable Senator Aseltine and honourable Senator Roebuck into a debate. I thank Senator Aseltine, who has a long experience in the chamber, for bringing this matter to the attention of the chamber and of the public.

As I listened to the quotation from the article, it seemed to me that the defect in it was that the fact the bills were passed on third reading was not mentioned. In this chamber—and indeed in the other place—debate very seldom occurs on third reading. The main debate takes place on second reading. The public may not understand this. I sometimes have public groups ask how much debate takes place on first reading. When I speak about the Senate, outside Parliament, people ask me what is done on first reading. I have to answer that on first reading nothing is done but read the bill.

What is important is that the impression gets abroad, when the words "on third reading" are omitted, that the Senate may not be doing its duty. I would venture the opinion that even if those words were used, the statement that there was no debate on third reading would also be misinterpreted.

I am afraid this is something we must live with. But honourable senators can help, when the Senate is not sitting, by addressing public bodies and talking about the kind of work that is done here. I am sure that the newly appointed senators have had their eyes opened widely as to the kind of work this chamber does. Those who have been here a little longer, and others who have been here a long time, are already conscious of this fact.

There is another aspect of our work to which the public never pays any attention and the importance of which is not realized, except when members of the public are brought before us. I refer to the work done by our committees. It is not reported in Hansard, and yet the committee is often the place where the substantial debate takes place, where more information is secured and where the most effective contribution to Parliament is made by the Senate.

Some of the draftsmanship which has gone out through our committees has been of an extraordinarily high character. This has been true through the years.

I do not wish to be critical and I am sure neither Senator Aseltine nor Senator Roebuck wish to be unduly critical of the article in question. However, it is unfortunate that the impression gets abroad that there was no debate, when in fact four of these five bills mentioned were not only debated in this house to the extent that Senator Aseltine indicates but were also debated in committee.

Hon. Jean-François Pouliot: Honourable senators, I know the journalists are open-minded and fair, but sometimes they give too much importance to appearances. If one takes up a copy of Hansard one will not see anything about the work done at earlier sittings or in committee.

When the new senators were appointed, two new incumbents were mentioned as good men, but the other ten or eleven appointees were considered men of less importance. It was unfair. In fact, editors of several newspapers did not know much about those colleagues who came from their part of the country, and who are an asset to the Senate. I took the trouble to write to them, and they seemed to change their minds.

Honourable senators, what has been said by our colleagues today, by Senator Aseltine, by the Leader and by Senator Roebuck, will be fruitful. I am sure that the Canadian Press, which is a fair agency, will put a due correction on the wires or, if it is possible, the further circulation of the dispatch will be stopped.

I can only praise my colleagues who come to the defence of the Senate in explaining the facts to the people of Canada. I hope that what has been said today will have the same publicity as what was written and complained of a moment ago.

Hon. Harry A. Willis: Honourable senators, I have a comment to make on this matter.

Let me say at the outset that I agree with the honourable the senior senator in what he has said, but every senator knows that in a situation like this it is not always the reporter who is at fault. Reports are sent in to the head office of the newspaper and are dealt with there.

I happen to know the charming lady in the gallery who reports for Canadian Press, and in all the time I have known her I have been confident that she would never try to misrepresent anything that has happened. If there is to be criticism, it should be levelled at the Canadian Press and not at the pretty girl who sits in the gallery each day listening sometimes to monotonous speeches, as perhaps mine is today. I think the blame should be directed towards the head office of the press which she represents.

Hon. Allister Grosart: Honourable senators, a question has been raised as to where the blame might lie in this matter. I wonder if we might not apply to ourselves the old adage which says that when we run into difficulties of this sort, before blaming anybody else we should look to see if some of the blame lies with ourselves.

I have often wondered if we as an institution do anything to help the press to report our proceedings more fully and more to our advantage than they do. As a former newspaperman, I am aware of some of the problems. The honourable Leader of the Government (Hon. Mr. Connolly, Ottawa West) has mentioned the work done in committees. I know it is a physical impossibility for Canadian Press to have a reporter available to report every one of our committees. It is a fact of life that the quality of the reporting is related to a great extent to what any institution does to assist the press.

The largest corporation in Canada with the biggest news story for the press goes to considerable trouble to alert the press and very often provides it with advance information. It endeavours to assist the press in many ways. While we are concerned with this, as we have been with many other similar situations, I wonder if those who have the conduct of this house in their charge might not consider whether there are steps we can take to assist those of the press who, I am convinced, would like to be fair. Indeed, from my talks with some members of the press, I believe they would be as happy as we would be to see our proceedings reported in a more favourable light than they often are. I suggest to the Leader of the Government and to others concerned that perhaps we should ask ourselves if we as an institution are doing all we can are to improve our image.

PRIVATE BILL

BAPTIST GENERAL CONFERENCE OF CANADA—SECOND READING

Hon. J. Campbell Haig moved the second reading of Bill S-43, to incorporate Baptist General Conference of Canada.

He said: Honourable senators, I can understand now why the Leader of the Governemt asked me to move second reading of this bill today.

Hon. Mr. Smith (Queens-Shelburne): Does that mean you expect to get better press coverage?

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): Do not impute any motives now.

Hon. Mr. Haig: If I may proceed, I would like to read a statement given to me by Reverend David L. Clink, Executive Secretary of the Central Canada Baptist Conference, when he asked me to prepare and present this bill. At that time I asked him who he was and what he did and what his church organization did. He gave me this statement:

> Our churches were started by missionaries from the Baptist General Conference of America working among Scandinavian people in Canada.

He also told me the services were conducted at first in the Swedish language.

> We are now expanding across western and central Canada and feel that we should develop along Canadian lines, even though remaining in fraternal relationships with the American body.
>
> We have churches in three provinces; Saskatchewan, Manitoba, and Ontario...
>
> Sister churches incorporated in the Province of Alberta as The Baptist General Conference of Alberta have expressed interest in uniting with us after we have been incorporated federally.
>
> Sister churches in British Columbia, and a Bible School which is supported by our larger fellowship, are interested in becoming a part of a larger Canadian association.
>
> We are concerned about establishing churches in the areas of Canada east of Ontario, and in the far north.
>
> We believe that our churches have a conservative theological emphasis, coupled with a spirit of community service and of Biblical evangelism, that is needed in Canada today....

Turning to the bill itself, clause 1 deals with the incorporators, and clause 3 deals with the head office. Clause 4 deals with the objects of the corporation which are summarised as follows in paragraph (g):

> to promote generally the spiritual welfare of all the members, churches, mission fields and enterprises of the Corporation as a religious denomination.

Then we go on to clause 10 which gives the power of acquisition and disposition of certain real and personal property.

Actually, what this association does is to establish a mission field in a small town or in a specific area in a larger city. When that new church becomes sufficiently strong numerically and financially it becomes a congregation.

The bill is in much the same form as others dealing with religious denominations.

I would respectfully request second reading, and if it meets with the approval of honourable senators I shall move that the bill be referred to the Standing Committee on Miscellaneous Private Bills for consideration at the fall sitting. The incorporators would not wish to come to Ottawa during July or August.

Motion agreed to and bill read second time.

REFERRED TO COMMITTEE

On motion of Hon. Mr. Haig, bill referred to the Standing Committee on Miscellaneous Private Bills.

BUSINESS OF THE SENATE

Hon. John J. Connolly: Honourable senators, I suggest that the Senate do now rise to reassemble at the call of the bell at approximately 5.45 this evening. I make this suggestion because I am uncertain, as indeed I think most honourable senators and perhaps most members of Parliament are uncertain, as to just what progress will be made in the other place before the weekend. It might be possible by six o'clock to determine the prospects of further legislation reaching us before tomorrow. If at that time the prospects of receiving legislation from the other place are not good, then I would move that the Senate adjourn until Monday afternoon. Therefore, I now move that the Senate do adjourn during pleasure, to reassemble at the call of the bell.

The Senate adjourned during pleasure.

At 5.45 p.m. the sitting was resumed.

Hon. John J. Connolly: Honourable senators, in the first place I am very pleased that there are so many senators in attendance; again, I am most indebted to all of you for your co-operation.

I learn that consideration of the Income Tax Act has been started in the other place but has been adjourned for a technical reason, and that now they are considering the Crop Insurance Bill. I have no assurance there will be any legislation for us to consider tomorrow. My motion, therefore, is that we adjourn, with leave—subject to recall, of course—until Monday afternoon next, at 3 o'clock.

Honourable senators, I want to couple with my motion this statement: tomorrow I might learn that there is a possibility of the other place sitting on Saturday and of the adjournment of Parliament for the summer recess by Saturday evening. I can give no undertaking as to what legislation will be before us, but I think we all must assume that there would not be an unreasonable amount of legislation for us to deal with in a situation of that kind.

I particularly want to emphasize that, upon making this motion for the adjournment now I do not want the other house or the public to be under the impression that the Senate is adjourning simply for the sake of adjourning. I hope it will be generally understood that the Senate will be ready to reconvene before the end of this week if it is judged necessary in the interests of completing the business of Parliament.

On that understanding, honourable senators, I move, with leave, that the Senate do now adjourn, to reassemble at 3 o'clock in the afternoon of Monday next.

Hon. Mr. Choquette: Subject to recall.

Hon. Mr. Lefrançois: If we sit on Monday afternoon will we sit on Monday evening?

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): If we sit on Monday afternoon we will sit on Monday evening also, because I believe there will be enough legislation to occupy us. Of course, it is possible that the notice for reassembly might be for Saturday morning. When the Senate is subject to recall, it can be recalled at any time fixed by His Honour the Speaker, on proper advice—and presumably the advice would come from myself. So I cannot give any guarantee as to just what the hour of recall will be.

Motion agreed to.

The Senate adjourned until Monday, July 11, at 3 p.m.

THE SENATE

Monday, July 11, 1966

The Senate met at 3 p.m., the Speaker in the Chair.

Prayers.

CANADA ASSISTANCE PLAN BILL

FIRST READING

The Hon. the Speaker informed the Senate that a message had been received from the House of Commons with Bill C-207, to authorize the making of contributions by Canada towards the cost of programs for the provision of assistance and welfare services to and in respect of persons in need.

Bill read first time.

SECOND READING

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this bill be read the second time?

Hon. John J. Connolly, with leave of the Senate, moved the second reading of the bill.

He said: Honourable senators, this measure, which is known as the Canada Assistance Plan and which has received much attention from the press in recent days, was debated at length in the other place. This is an enabling bill which permits agreements to be made between the federal Government and provincial governments in the field of social welfare. It contemplates co-operative planning in this field between the federal and provincial governments. It also contemplates co-operative cost sharing for the purposes set out in the bill. It is an attempt to co-ordinate public assistance for programs in Canada in respect, I think I can say generally, of the basic requirements of the Canadian people.

With reference to basic requirements, I would refer honourable senators to section 2, subsection (a), where it will be seen that this term includes such items as food, clothing and shelter. It includes health care in the home and in institutions. Health care in turn includes medical care, the cost of drugs, dental and optical care. In certain cases it would include expenses incidental to the death of a needy person.

The bill also proposes to deal with those welfare services that are provided through the various social service agencies of Canada for the aged, the disabled and the blind, for the child, the youth and for the indigent mother. It covers rehabilitation services, including the provision of both physiotherapy and occupational therapy. It covers counselling and homemaking services, and problems associated with adoption. It deals with research projects in the field of social service, and has to do with welfare institutions such as homes for the infirm, for the aged and the sick.

Honourable senators, basically the work which is contemplated will be done under the authority of the act falls within the provincial jurisdiction. The provinces have been involved in this work for many years at great expense, and continue to be deeply involved in it. But it is not only the provinces that do this work. We know there are private agencies which play their part in the field of social service and which are financed directly through the Red Feather campaigns and other appeals to the public. They do their work on the basis of what is required in the interests of charity and assistance in the field of social service in a given community.

The history of the joint efforts of the federal and provincial authorities begins in the twenties. The federal Government, because of financial pressure and increasing needs, has been sharing with the provinces in four special categories, in what are called the categorical programs. Honourable senators are familiar with them. They are the program for the aged, the program for the blind, the program for the disabled, all of which are conducted on the basis of a means test, and the unemployment assistance program in which the federal Government shares not on the basis of a means test but of a needs test as it has been worked out.

The co-ordination of this work has been studied for years at various federal-provincial meetings. Latterly there have been three conferences which have specifically dealt with the proposals contained in this bill. These proposals carry the general approval and endorsation of the Canadian Welfare Council and have been recommended by the Canadian Labour Congress. They have the approval of the Auditor General who represents the Members of Parliament in his audit of the books of the various departments of Government. This approach was recommended also by the Public Accounts Committee of the other place in 1964, and there have been committees of the Senate, particularly the Special Committee on Aging of which Senator Croll was chairman, which have worked on certain aspects of this field of social services. The legislation is designed to seek a better co-ordination or a better form of integration between federal and provincial efforts in this field.

I am informed that of our population of approximately 20 million, nearly one million people stand to be helped in one way or another by this bill. This number includes some 85,000 of our older people who are entitled to old age assistance, 8,000 blind persons, 55,000 persons who are disabled to a lesser or greater degree, 200,000 needy mothers, 600,000 who qualify for unemployment assistance under the various provincial programs, and 50,000 children who are now in the care of welfare authorities. The federal and provincial costs together in this vast area of assistance total $500 million. The additional costs to the federal treasury under this bill in the year 1966-67, because of certain special features to which I shall refer later, are likely to be of the order of $95 million.

The basic plan for the co-ordination of this effort, as the bill proposes, is to be worked out by agreements between the federal and provincial governments. In the case of the federal Government, the Minister of National Health and Welfare will be the designated minister. The designated minister for each of the provincial governments, as far as I can determine, will be the provincial minister of health.

I have said that under some of the categorical programs the test for assistance is the means test. In this act it is proposed that the test be not the means test but the needs test. Some people have said there is very little difference between them. Actually, I think there is a good deal of difference. I would like to refer specifically to section 2(g), appearing on page 3 of the bill, which defines "person in need" as follows:

> (i) a person who, by reason of inability to obtain employment, loss of the principal family provider, illness, disability, age or other cause of any kind acceptable to the provincial authority, is found to be unable...

If I may, I will omit the bracketed portion.

> ...to provide adequately for himself, or for himself and his dependants or any of them, or (ii) a person under the age of twenty-one years who is in the care or custody or under the control or supervision of a child welfare authority, or a person who is a foster child as defined by regulation.

I shall not read the rest of the section because it is not germane to the point I desire to make at this moment.

Now I revert to the bracketed portion:

> (on the basis of a test established by the provincial authority that takes into account that person's budgetary requirements and the income and resources available to him to meet such requirements)...

That is the definition of "person in need" and a description of what the bill means when it discusses the needs test.

Perhaps I should also refer to section 9(c), on page 10 of the bill dealing with the regulations, which defines the expressions "personal requirements", "budgetary requirements", "community development services", and the like. Many of these definitions, and indeed many of the administrative practices which are expected to grow up in respect of this bill, will be worked out and the regulations formulated in consultation with the provinces.

Perhaps it would be of assistance at this point if I were to give a breakdown as it is forecast—and it is an approximation only—of how the $95 million additional burden upon the federal treasury arises. For mothers' allowances, there is about $27.2 million; for health care, $22 million; for staff and welfare services, $4 million; for child welfare, $16 million; for work activities, $0.5 million; for improvements and expenses, $15 million. That makes a total of $84.7 million.

Recently, in the Province of Prince Edward Island an arrangement was made by the government whereby an additional $25 a month would be paid to persons entitled to old age assistance. It may be that all of that money or a portion of it would be payable under the definition of a needs test. Therefore, an additional sum of approximately $10 million might be payable out of the federal treasury in the present year, depending upon the result of the assessment of that step taken there.

Honourable senators, there are five Parts to this bill, after the general definition section to which I have referred probably in sufficient detail for the purposes of second reading.

Hon. Mr. Brooks: Would not the same provision as that made by Prince Edward Island be made by any other province, and would we not be responsible to the same extent?

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): Yes, provided the means test is met. If the old age pensioner requires that additional assistance, based upon the means test for it, the federal Government would pay its appropriate share, which in this case would be 50 per cent.

Hon. Mrs. Inman: May I ask a question? Was a means test mentioned with regard to the $25 a month?

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): No. I understand this was an additional payment. When the federal Government and the authorities in Prince Edward Island get together to work out the agreement, it may be that not all of this $25 payment will come under the Canada Assistance Plan. On the other hand, there may be needy people who would qualify for more than $25 on the basis proposed for sharing between the federal and provincial governments.

Hon. Mrs. Inman: From what I have heard, I understand that the $25 will be paid in full to every old age pensioner.

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): That is an undertaking of the province. If they make that arrangement under their legislation, it is completely within their authority to do so. If they do that, unquestionably the people to whom the legislation applies will get the money. However, it may be that not all of the $25 payment will qualify for sharing under the Canada Assistance Act, or it may be that, on application of the means test, a person receiving even that $25 from the Government of Prince Edward Island, in addition to the Old Age Security payment, may qualify for more than $25.

Hon. Mr. Brooks: If this bill is not passed, that arrangement will not apply?

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): That is so. I am talking on the basis of this bill being in force. I think this is the position which would obtain if this legislation were in effect now.

Honourable senators, I have dealt with the general provisions. May I come now to the specific Parts. Part I, headed "general assistance and welfare services," begins on page 4. It provides for agreement between the federal Government and the appropriate provincial government for payment for social services, the costs of which are incurred by the provinces, on the basis of a 50 per cent sharing. In other words, the federal Government will pay 50 per cent of the cost of the work undertaken in the fields contemplated by this legislation. This provision is subject to the exclusion of certain costs, particularly certain types of capital costs, into which I need not go at this time. If honourable senators would like details of them, they can be found in section 5. If it is the wish of the house that this bill go to committee, honourable senators who want further information can get it from the officials who attend that committee.

The sharing is also subject to the inclusion of certain costs under the Old Age Assistance Act, the Blind Persons Act, the Disabled Persons Act and the Old Age Security Act. The terms of the agreement are also provided for. This Part also deals with the provincial undertakings and the federal undertakings and the arrangements which must be made by the provinces who make agreements with the federal Government for the payment of the federal Government's share. These are particularly dealt with in section 7.

The sections also deal with the question of the duration of the agreement, the amendment of the agreements and indeed their termination, if required. Under section 8, a province, on appropriate notice, is entitled to terminate at any time an agreement which it has made with the federal Government. Canada—that is, the federal Government—must continue until March 31, 1969, before it can give notice of termination of a given agreement. This means that the federal Government is bound by its agreements until March 31, 1970.

There are provisions in this part for regulations. I have referred already to one of the sections which dealt with regulations.

Paragraph II deals with another aspect of social service work, in that it includes the problem of the welfare of Indians. It contemplates the extension of the provincial welfare programs to Indians who are living on reserves, on Crown lands, and in unorganized territories. There is a special sharing formula to help the provinces with the extra expenses they incur in this respect.

The extra expenses over and above those incurred by the provinces, on the average for citizens other than Indians, will be borne by the federal Government. May I put it this way. The responsibility for Indian welfare rests now with the federal Government. It may not be adequate, and to encourage Indians to be integrated into the assistance program under a province, and to encourage the integration of Indians with the rest of the population, the provisions of this bill will apply to assistance paid to Indians by a province over and above the amounts that Indians receive now from the federal treasury.

In this respect I shall read section 11 (1):

> The minister and the minister charged with the administration of the Indian Act may, with the approval of the Governor in Council, enter into an agreement with a province with respect to the extension of provincial welfare programs to Indians to whom this Part applies and for the payment by Canada to the province of any portion of the cost to the province of extending provincial welfare programs to such Indians.

That gives in more precise language what I said in a rather extended way a moment ago. In all cases the consent of the Indian Band will be required before an agreement is reached under this section.

I come now to Part III which deals with work activity projects, and the clauses of which are numbered 14 to 17. This part provides for agreements between the federal and provincial governments for projects designed to rehabilitate certain types of workers who are handicapped either physically or mentally. It will include those who are undertrained, those who are retarded, and generally those who are unable to use the normal training programs available under other federal and provincial legislation. There is to be no denial of the welfare services to these handicapped people if they are in need, even, as I read the legislation, in the case of those who may refuse to join a work activity project. This is dealt with in clause 15 (3). On reading this I felt it came close to legislating for the loafer and the freeloader, unless properly supervised. I had a discussion about this aspect of the matter with officials, and they agreed that every one of these projects will involve a heavy onus being cast upon officials of the provincial as well as the federal government.

There are other provisions in this bill to which I referred at the outset which deal with the problem person—a person with a problem of the mind. I am informed that very often the reason why a person will neither look for a job nor take one if offered, and will not even train himself or herself for a job, may lie in the fact that such a person requires some special assistance which a social service agency or a social worker cannot provide but which may be provided by a physician, a psychologist or a psychiatrist.

Hon. Mr. Walker: May I ask a question? This seems to be quite specific; it does not make any qualification. It says:

> (3) Every agreement made pursuant to this section shall
>
> (a) provide that no person shall be denied assistance because he refuses or has refused to take part in a work activity project;

That means a perfectly normal able-bodied man or woman can still get assistance if he or she refuses to take on any work which may be allocated.

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): This is the way I read it. The language is perfectly clear, and I think the interpretation which Senator Walker has given to it is correct.

Hon. Mr. Walker: Is that a good thing? How far are we going?

Hon. Mr. Choquette: We include everybody.

Hon. Mr. Walker: "Freddie the Freeloader" would do well in our society.

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): This is one of the problems with which the welfare worker is constantly faced. That is why in all honesty I said that it would seem to be legislation for the freeloader and the loafer, unless the program were properly supervised. I am told that while there are always risks in this field, and there are certain people who take advantage of programs of this kind, nevertheless, with proper administrative care the incidence of this abuse is becoming less and less as time goes by. In any event, this is a matter which honourable senators might very well discuss in committee with officials who will have a background of experience to guide them in explaining this section.

Hon. Mr. Isnor: But this is mainly designed to help those who are in need.

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): Senator Isnor refers to the fact that this measure is designed and is primarily intended to help persons in need. That need may not merely be financial; it may very well be a mental or psychological need, or a need to develop a different approach to the problem of life and living. Perhaps with this kind of physical or mental therapy available we will have fewer dealings with Freddy the Freeloader.

I draw your attention, honourable senators, to Part IV of the bill which deals with mothers' allowances. Heretofore, needy mothers were not included in the unemployment assistance program. Now, for the first time, some 200,000 mothers with dependent children will qualify for assistance. This will cost about $27 million in the first year. That is the sum estimated necessary to provide for this additional assistance. It puts the needy mother in the same position as anyone else so far as the unemployment assistance program is concerned.

Hon. Mr. Brooks: She need not be a widowed mother, I take it?

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): As long as she is a person in need under section 2 (g), she will qualify.

Hon. Mr. Walker: Married or unmarried?

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): Married or unmarried.

Section 19 deals with the Established Programs (Interim Arrangements) Act. This section allows a province, if it so desires, to contract out of the provisions of the Canada Assistance Plan. I do not know whether or not the date is significant, but on April 1, 1965, at page 1499 of our Hansard, I undertook to explain to the Senate the consequences of contracting out and the meaning of equalization payments and tax abatements. I can still remember Senator Walker saying that it must have been a labour of love that induced me to do that. Certainly it did not make for a very interesting speech. However, the technical arrangements about contracting out under clause 19 of this bill are such that they fall within the purview of the Established Programs (Interim Arrangements) Act, and as to the problems arising out of equalization payments and tax abatements, I do not intend, on a hot afternoon like this, to burden honourable senators by explaining them again.

Part V deals with amendments to other acts. These are to be found in clauses 21 to 26, and here the reference is to the categorical acts—the Old Age Assistance program, the Blind Persons Act, and the Disabled Persons Act.

Honourable senators will remember that under the Old Age Assistance Act the cost sharing as between federal and provincial authorities is on a 50 per cent basis. Under the Blind Persons Act it is on a 75-25 per cent basis; that is, 75 per cent federal contribution and 25 per cent provincial. And under the Disabled Persons Act, it is 50 per cent federal and 50 per cent provincial. Under this legislation the provinces may discontinue these programs in whole or in part. If they so choose, they can use the Canada Assistance Plan to get the equivalent and other benefits provided under the existing legislation.

Honourable senators, without going into a clause-by-clause detailed explanation, I have given you what I hope is a clear purview of this act and the general areas covered by it. I realize that this kind of explanation is a dull exercise.

I should add that many provinces already have legislation which complements this measure. Its purposes are, of course, real and not fanciful. It is designed to help the citizen in the community—the poor, the needy, the aged, the disabled, the unfortunate. It can be described as humanitarian legislation, as indeed it is. It is a recognition on the part of Canadians and the Canadian Parliament of the need to help every citizen live at least in a minimum of comfort and dignity.

Undoubtedly, abuses will creep into the work that is done under this legislation, but I feel that these abuses will be heavily outweighed by the good that will be done. The measure may not be the optimum; it may not give to all in need everything that is required. A good many specialists working in these fields, particularly in the provinces and in agencies, think it a step in the right direction. At least, it is an attempt to co-ordinate the work and to share the costs as between the federal and the provincial authorities. It may be that some will say we should do more. It seems to me, in the light of the discussion that has gone on in the country, we can do no less.

Hon. Gunnar S. Thorvaldson: Honourable senators, I am sure we are all indebted to the honourable Leader of the Government for the comprehensive explanation he has made of this bill. Among other things, he has said of it that it is humanitarian in character; and of course I must agree that that is the case—indeed, practically all welfare legislation is of that nature. As a result of the lengthy and at times frustrating debate on this bill in the other place, one might be led to the belief that the proposed act is a milestone in the history of social and welfare legislation in Canada. However, when one realizes that the total expenditure of all governments in Canada—federal, provincial and municipal—on health and welfare amounts to somewhere in the neighbourhood of $5 billion per year, it places this legislation in a more modest perspective.

As honourable senators are aware, it has been stated that the first year's expenditure under this bill would be approximately $85 million, and now I observe that the honourable leader suggested that for certain reasons it might be as high as $95 million in the first year.

The bill has been controversial in some aspects, especially in the other place, but I suggest that the main reason for such controversy has arisen because of the extravagant promises made to the Canadian people by the governing party during last year's election campaign, which promises have not been fulfilled in this legislation. Indeed, if I may say so, the most deplorable feature of our present-day democracy is that election times have become a game of auctioneering, wherein the taxpayer's money is auctioned off for support at the polls.

Hon. Mr. Prowse: You should know!

Hon. Mr. Thorvaldson: However, this is not a criticism of this bill; rather it is a statement of a well-known fact of political life both in this country and elsewhere.

A more valid criticism of this type of legislation is that it continues the process, begun long ago, of federal funds being directed to other governments to spend. The weaknesses of this process became painfully apparent a year ago when at least one of the provinces demanded federal legislation enabling it to opt out of some federal programs that impinge on provincial jurisdiction.

To my mind the more the federal Government continues to pour the taxpayers' money into provincial jurisdictional fields, the more there will continue to be disagreement and back-biting between the provinces and the federal authority.

You might ask what alternative there is to the present process. The alternative is very clear. It is what was intended by the Constitution, namely, that the federal Government refrain from gobbling up the main sources of revenue of this country, but instead leave enough for the provinces to carry out their responsibilities as provided in our Constitution. Clearly one of those responsibilities is the field of social and welfare problems of the people. However, these are personal views stated in a very general way.

I should now like to say a few words regarding the bill itself. Perhaps by virtue of the extended debate in the other place—very little of which constituted a debate on the bill itself but, rather, an excursion into a collateral field as to whether or not the present old age pension should be raised to $100 or some other figure—one might get the notion that this bill is the be-all and end-all in the field of welfare legislation. This would be an exaggeration. As I mentioned a moment ago, it has been said that the program will cost about $85 million in the first year. In order to put this cost into perspective with the total cost of national health and welfare, I give these figures showing the enormous escalation of federal Government expenditures during recent years:

Fiscal Year	Amount
1957-58	$ 525,500,000
1963-64	1,205,000,000
1965-66	1,393,000,000

These figures do not, of course, include the cost of the Old Age Security pension.

In regard to all government expenditures on health and welfare in Canada, there must be added to these figures the hundreds of millions of dollars that are spent by provinces and municipalities for these purposes. Also, to place in closer perspective the contribution to be made to the provinces under this act, I estimate that on a population basis my province, Manitoba, will receive about $4 million a year, as against its own present expenditure on health and welfare of $100 million. This payment to Manitoba—and I think the percentages will be similar in the other provinces—will amount to about $4 per capita, and 4 per cent of its health and welfare costs.

The point of these remarks is merely to emphasize that this bill does not enter any new field of social welfare. It merely supplements present provincial welfare programs, with one exception to which I shall refer later. This is exactly what the title of the bill says. It is an act to authorize the making of contributions by Canada towards the cost of programs for the provision of assistance and welfare services to and in respect of persons in need. It has been referred to as a tidying-up or a gap-closing measure. Indeed, the content of the bill as well as the resolution presented in the other place confirms this designation of it. The resolution, if I may paraphrase it, says that it is a measure to establish a program of sharing with the provinces in the cost of assistance, including health care and welfare services, provided to or in respect of persons in need, including mothers and children, older persons, disabled persons and unemployed persons who are in need. The resolution continues to itemize the various other categories of welfare projects generally carried on by all provinces.

My point is that the money to be received by the provinces under this legislation will no doubt be helpful, both to fill in gaps and to strengthen weaknesses in the provincial welfare programs, but I fail to see why this could not have been done just as well by outright per capita grants to the provinces which would have the condition attached to them that the funds so received be used for the purpose of improving and expanding provincial welfare programs. Instead of that the federal Government now proposes to make itself a partner in all provincial welfare programs as a result of a comparatively trivial contribution to provincial welfare needs. This is a good example of how to continue the erosion of our Constitution by federal encroachment in the smallest detail of provincial jurisdiction as set out in the British North America Act.

Honourable senators, before terminating my remarks I should like to comment briefly on Part II of the bill which is entitled "Indian Welfare". I claim to be no expert in this field, and my knowledge has been derived only from an observation of the plight of the Indian population in some parts of Canada. I am laying the blame nowhere, but I believe that for years the federal Government has been particularly inept in its duty to make first-class citizens of our native population. I have often wondered if the reason for this failure was the intrinsic inability of the far away Ottawa headquarters to develop the knowledgeable and sympathetic welfare workers that are produced in the provinces and municipalities of this country.

Consequently, I am much intrigued by clause 11(1) of this bill. The honourable Leader of the Government has read it, and, if I may, I shall read it again:

> The minister and the minister charged with the administration of the Indian Act may, with the approval of the Governor in Council, enter into an agreement with a province with respect to the extension of provincial welfare programs to Indians to whom this Part applies and for the payment by Canada to the province of any portion of the cost to the province of extending provincial welfare programs to such Indians.

In my opinion, the extension of provincial welfare programs to the Indian population will be a very worthwhile experiment. From my knowledge of Indian bands in my Province of Manitoba, and some knowledge of the type of welfare workers that we have there, I am most optimistic about this experiment. I sincerely hope it will succeed in creating a much needed improvement in the life of these people. Indeed, I would urge that costs be not counted in our effort to bring the health, welfare and economic standards of the Indian population of this country up to those of the average Canadian.

By and large, despite any minor criticisms of this bill, I believe the Minister of National Health and Welfare should be commended on the obvious dedication he has shown to the improvement of health and welfare standards in Canada.

Hon. G. Percival Burchill: Honourable senators, I should like to say something in connection with this bill, and I want to begin by congratulating the honourable Leader of the Government (Hon. Mr. Connolly, Ottawa West) on the very able way in which he introduced it. Today he demonstrated again his skill in explaining such measures to this house.

Senator Thorvaldson, of course, whether or not we agree with him, is always a delightful speaker.

I am interested in this legislation because I have concerned myself in a very worthy cause, and I am looking at this legislation to see just how it is going to help. Senator Thorvaldson talked about people in need. I know there are different types of people in need, but blind people in need have a very soft spot in my heart. The particular case to which I refer is that of a blind widow with a son of 14 years whom she has to support. This lady is not elderly. She was stricken suddenly in her youth with total blindness. She lived on a property which adjoined an airport, and which was assessed at a very low rental value. The Blind Persons Act, as honourable senators know, imposes a ceiling of $1,960, within which amount an applicant under that act must live. This blind widow received the sum of $67.20 per month, on which she was able to get along.

Later on the Government bought her house because of its proximity to the airport, and with the proceeds from the sale she built a small home. She built it as cheaply as she could, and it was adequate for her own particular purposes. Being blind, she knew all the ins and outs of her previous home and was able to do her own housework, cooking, and so on, but when she entered her new home it was completely strange to her. However, she was very distressed to discover that her new house is assessed at a rental value of $440 a year, so that under the regulations her pension has been reduced from $67.20 to somewhere around $40 per month, and this is a heartbreak to her.

The provincial officials administering the act were most anxious to do everything they possibly could to help, but there was no way under the present Blind Persons Act by which her present situation might be relieved.

I followed the progress of the Canada Assistance Bill in the other place, and it is my hope that the case I have cited is one in which need will be substituted for means. From my understanding of this bill I take that to be the case. The officials, after the passage of this bill, will be able to assess this widow's needs and grant her a pension accordingly.

I have told of that case this afternoon, with the indulgence of the Senate, because I thought that by so doing honourable senators will be able to appreciate what the minister and his officials are aiming at in introducing this legislation.

I hope that my Province of New Brunswick will find it possible to take advantage of this legislation, and that the assessment board, or whoever is charged with assessing needs, will treat cases such as I have mentioned in a generous fashion.

Hon. M. Grattan O'Leary: Honourable senators, the Government Leader (Hon. Mr. Connolly) has explained this bill to us with the earnestness and clarity and I am sure with the sincerity which he always brings to the introduction of bills of this kind.

I shall try to treat the bill from perhaps a different standpoint than that taken by Senator Thorvaldson and Senator Burchill.

First of all, I would like to try to make clear that I yield to no person in support of humanitarian legislation. A bill of this kind dealing with human suffering, or attempting to deal with human suffering, has nothing to do with liberalism, with conservatism, or indeed with socialism.

There were Poor Laws in England in the days of Elizabeth, and all down through history since man has achieved a measure of civilization the poor and the underprivileged have been given a measure of care—perhaps more so in recent years.

We are told that this is a tidying-up bill of measures of relief or assistance already in force in the provinces or in the dominion. But in reading this bill I feel there are three questions we are compelled to ask ourselves about it.

The heart of this bill is in section 2. The bill provides for assistance in all manner of things, and the money will be spent by provinces or by municipalities, or by agencies of the provinces. Surely we have a right to ask ourselves just how it will be spent, with what degree of fairness, with what degree of efficiency, with what degree of non-partisanship, and with what degree of true social consciousness and integrity.

I know that the Leader of the Government in the Senate surely believes that there will be due inspection of its operations. He concluded his remarks by saying that he thought the good would outweigh the bad. That may be true, but I must confess I was not impressed by the exchange between Senator Connolly and Senator Walker, which brought from the Government leader the admission that in fact a person who did not wish to work, let us say on a public works project, might still claim something under the provisions of this bill and get it.

This seems to me to be an evil thing. In fact, when you look at all the areas covered by this bill you immediately ask yourself, how on earth can this spending be policed? How can you get superintendence that will be effective?

Those honourable senators who have had much longer experience in administration than I have know perfectly well that when money of this kind comes to be spent by governments or municipalities which do not have to raise the money by taxes of their own, the danger is not so much of extravagance as it is of things that are worse than extravagance.

Hon. Mr. Croll: But the provinces pay 50 per cent.

Hon. Mr. O'Leary (Carleton): That is true, they pay 50 per cent, but we are concerned with the other 50 per cent. As a matter of fact, as citizen of a province, I am not greatly concerned with whether or not 50 per cent is raised by the federal government. I pay taxes to both governments. The idea that we can hand federal money over to a province and then not be unduly concerned with what the province does with it, does not add up to sense. It is all our money—money of the Canadian taxpayer, whether he lives in Ontario, Quebec, or one of the Atlantic provinces. There is no sense in saying 50 per cent of it is not ours. In the long run it is all ours.

Now I go to my second point. I do not wish to stand here and cry havoc, but I am sure it must occur to all honourable senators at some time to ask just how far are we going with all of this spending. Just how much can we afford? Are we in fact putting distribution away ahead of production? Are we in fact building superstructures without foundations?

When I came to the Parliamentary Press Gallery 54 years ago—I have often mentioned this in my speeches here—the net public debt of Canada stood at $350 million. Today, according to a statement made by Premier Robarts last week, the budget of Ontario alone stands at $2 million. Why, $350 million would not pay more than one-third of the interest on the public debt at the present time.

I know what the answer is. The answer was given to me only last year by Senator Croll, when he said, in effect, you are taking no account of the vast growth of what is now called the gross national product. But the truth is that we are more than keeping up with the gross national product. The witness to that is the fact that year after year over the past decade we have had considerable deficits. We had one last year, we had one the year before, and we are going to have another this year. So the gross national product is not in fact taking care of our expenditures. More than that, in the context or our troubled world, and because of world conditions over which we have no control whatsoever, if the time should ever come when we find ourselves with diminished income, what then about our outgo and the vast overhead we are building up which will remain with us?

Honourable senators, there is another aspect of this bill with which I would like to deal briefly. What is all this expenditure doing to the morale of our people? What is it doing to the old spirit of self reliance? What is it doing to human dignity, to human worth?

I think of the old Village of Gaspé in which I was reared. We never heard of the Government, let alone government assistance. Yet every person there, their fathers shipwrecked on those rocky shores, wrested a little farm from those stern hills, and on that farm raised everything that he and his family needed. Those farmers grew their own vegetables, raised their own cattle, produced their own butter and eggs. I myself sold butter at 15 cents a pound and eggs at 10 cents a dozen. The farmers produced sheep, sheared them in the spring, spread the wool on the snowy hillsides, bleached it there, spun it, took it to a loom and there wove the homespun which we wore. They took the skins from sheep and cattle to a tannery and obtained the leather from which the local shoemaker made their shoes. They took their wheat, oats and barley to the local miller and had it ground into flour for their families.

What do I find now when I return to the same village? Rows and rows of once neat little farms are now ugly with weeds and switch grass; the buildings are tumbling down and the farms are being deserted. In the summer the young men of today work on the railways, or become tourist caterers in some capacity; and in the winter they go on government relief of some kind.

Honourable senators, I know that sort of thing is occurring, not only in my own County of Gaspé but in other parts of Quebec and also in parts of the Atlantic provinces. This evil is being fed and encouraged, I fear, by legislation of the kind now before us.

Honourable senators, I was brought up to believe that the unadventured life, like the unexamined life, was unfit to be lived. As I have grown older and find that life is a hard campaign with some lost battles, I have become more and more convinced in that belief.

In all the years I have spent in public life the keenest intelligence I have ever known was Arthur Meighen, who was a great presence in this house for many years. I listened often to his powerful and vivid attacks on the evils of the welfare state. When I mentioned this to a very able senator the other day, he made a rather wise remark. He said: "I think Meighen was right; but the trouble with his argument is that we are not all born Arthur Meighens, we are not all born with his mentality and his physical capacity, with his stamina, and not all of us get the upbringing that was his."

That is true. Yet, if you read the speeches of Arthur Meighen on the welfare state, if you read what he said about the human spirit being destroyed by too much paternalism, you will find that that was true yesterday, is true today, and will be true to the last syllable of time.

Arthur Meighen was never a reactionary. He had a sharp and shining faith in the value of human achievement. But he knew what every senator here today knows, that the path could not be a beaten path for sheep but a hard and stony road challenging the best in the human spirit.

Honourable senators, for those reasons, while I could not in detail criticize this bill, nor could I reject its objectives, I must say that I accept it with a great deal of misgiving.

Hon. John M. Macdonald: Honourable senators, my philosophy in regard to human welfare appears to be somewhat different from that of some honourable senators on this side of the house who have spoken this afternoon. I believe that this bill fulfills a gap in our social legislation. It may not bring about all the benefits which some of its proponents believe it will ensure. I hope it will do so, but we must realize that in all cases the onus is on the provinces to say what will be done.

Generally speaking, the bill provides for a federal money contribution towards the welfare services set up by the provinces.

I am not impressed by arguments that our expenditures on welfare form too high a proportion of our gross national product. It may well be that in days gone by too low a proportion of our gross national product was expended on welfare measures.

I should like to see payments made in deserving cases, regardless of where the money comes from. If there is a danger in this bill it is that, in its administration by the provinces, there may be too narrow a concept of what welfare actually means. An interesting case was put forward by Senator Burchill, similar to an experience I had in my own province. I found, especially in relation to disability pensions—wherein lies my main experience, though it extends somewhat in regard to old age assistance also—the difficulty was that the provincial administration said, "We must have a rigid standard, because it is the federal auditors who will determine how much money will be contributed by the federal Government." I have seen many cases where persons getting old age assistance had to repay certain amounts, because the federal auditors said that the federal Government would not contribute, as the standard was not rigidly applied.

This bill is a good one, in that it will share the cost of, for example, mothers' allowances programs. In Nova Scotia, where we are paying $90 a month in mother's allowance and where the welfare people are anxious to do the best they can, one of our difficulties is that the financial situation has been such that we thought we could not go any higher. As a result, a widow supporting one child would get $90 a month, and a widow with five or six to support would also get $90 a month. Under this bill, no matter what the province determines is the need, I believe the federal Government will share it on a 50-50 basis.

I am not disturbed by the argument that some able-bodied men will not work but will go on welfare. I believe that very few of them will do that. The welfare authorities always seem to be too strict, and they usually find some way to ensure that if work is available the able-bodied will have to do it.

I listened with interest to Senator O'Leary's account of the days which are gone, days when people were self reliant, when we had a farm economy. Those days are gone and, from all I have been able to read or hear about them, they were very hard days for those who lived then. Indeed, only the strong survived those days; and perhaps that is why those who did survive those days were such great people.

Honourable senators, if you would like my reasons for supporting this legislation I can give them quickly by referring you to a Preliminary Report of Rural Poverty in Four Selected Areas. It is the highlight of a study prepared for ARDA by the Canadian Welfare Council. Four areas were selected. This report makes most distressful reading. One of those areas was in the Province of Nova Scotia, one in the Province of Quebec, one in the Province of Ontario, and another in the Province of Manitoba.

I was interested in their definition of poverty. They did not try to set up any standard. They went to the community leaders in rural areas and asked about the poor people in the area. In that way they got a very practical answer.

They said one thing which I think bears repeating—

> The average income per person for the families in Inverness—

That is a county in Nova Scotia.

> —was about $28 per month. In Lanark it was somewhat higher but 95 per cent of the families had an income of less than $4,000 per year. The average per capita income in the Interlake area was $36.

Another point they made in the report was that only the poor know the poor. They said:

> The confidentiality that is so sacred in the middle class, in regard to earnings and family troubles, was not found to be characteristic of the families interviewed. They knew one another's troubles and had discussed their financial problems. Lack of money was a unanimous reason for a family seeing another family as poor. Receipt of municipal welfare payments was regarded by the family as an absolute indication of poverty.

This is an attitude which we should try to change and which I trust this act will do something towards changing.

I wish to read another quotation from page 38 of this report where it discusses welfare. It reads:

> Inadequate welfare allotments may tend to contribute to maintaining poverty rather than relieving it. The Inverness study suggested that the longer a family is on welfare, the poorer they become; furniture, for instance, wears out and cannot be replaced, housing repair and maintenance is put off, etc.

It is for that reason I believe that if this needs test is applied, as it could be applied, by provincial authorities to the end that those receiving welfare will benefit and that they are taken out of that rut in which they will always be poor, and that enough will be spent on them to enable them to better themselves, then I think this bill will go a long way towards solving that problem. I know this problem will not be solved in a day, a year or ten years, but if we persevere, if we can get the co-operation of the provinces to a great degree, and if it is used properly, much can be done. I think it is a very worthy work and I trust it will be successful.

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): Honourable senators—

The Hon. the Speaker: I must warn honourable senators that if Senator Connolly speaks now it will have the effect of closing the debate.

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): Honourable senators, may I first thank all honourable senators who have contributed to this very interesting discussion. So far it has not been indicated whether or not it is considered necessary to send this bill to committee. I have only a few remarks to make at this stage, and if it is the intention to send the bill to committee, perhaps some indication could be given now and suitable arrangements will be made.

Hon. Mr. Thorvaldson: I see no purpose in sending it to committee.

Hon. Mr. Brooks: Did I understand the honourable leader to say that it was not necessary to send this bill to committee?

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): No. I said there was no indication so far as to whether or not it was considered necessary to send it to committee. If it is considered desirable, I shall make the necessary arrangements.

Hon. Mr. Brooks: I think it is such an important bill that it should be studied in committee.

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): I shall be happy to meet the wishes of the Senate.

The contributions this afternoon have been very helpful and I thank all honourable senators who participated in the debate, whether for or against the measure. They have shown a thorough awareness of its implications.

Senator Thorvaldson said—and I do not say this in any attempt to be political—that perhaps there was an element of unfulfilled election promises in this bill. Personally, I had the impression, in so far as election promises were concerned—certainly in so far as I have anything to do with them—that it was the promise to introduce this bill which hurt the party to which I belong more than any other single factor. Perhaps I could express it better in reverse, and say that it was the fact that the party to which I belong did not promise to add $25 per month to the old age security program that produced more adverse political effects than any other factor. I say this because I had something to do with it. I also felt that in this country—and I think members on both sides of the house will agree—that this business of auctioneering the elections should come to an end. In my view this bill provides an opportunity for people in need to get additional money. I am not making a political speech; I hope I am making the kind of responsible speech that a senator should make in respect of matters of this nature.

Senator Thorvaldson further complains—and I hope I will not be regarded as too critical when I say this—that this business of the federal Government interfering in provincial programs under provincial jurisdiction is not a good thing. I can go a long way with him on that road. But the fact of the matter is that very often we are invited, and pushed, indeed heavily pushed, into it. This is not the first time this has happened.

I want to make it clear that we are not taking over a provincial program or series of programs for a payment which in the first year may amount to $95 million. I would remind honourable senators that under the Old Age Assistance program the federal Government pays 50 per cent of the cost, under the Blind Persons Act the federal Government pays 75 per cent, and under the Disabled Persons Act we pay 50 per cent. We also pay 50 per cent of the costs of the Unemployment Assistance Fund.

The federal Government and its finances are deeply involved in social security problems. We are deeply involved in trying to solve some of the needs. Senator Thorvaldson calls it a rather trivial contribution. Senator O'Leary (Carleton), on the other hand, says it is too much. I cannot help but recall the other evening when Senator Lang was explaining the $500 million proposed to be spent on health grants, and Senator McCutcheon said in the light of the undertakings the provinces have made in that field for hospitals, for training and medical schools, that the $500 million was a façade and a niggardly contribution. Now, we cannot have it both ways. In my view this is a good start.

I agree with Senator Thorvaldson, as I am sure all honourable senators will agree with him, in what he said about the attempt to integrate the Indian population into the provincial population. If we are to continue to raise the level of the underdeveloped peoples in Africa and Southeast Asia, it behooves us to start at home. If we have native population in an underdeveloped condition, it is our duty to do everything we can to help that group of people.

The example Senator Burchill gave of a blind person is one in respect of which a change will be made as a result of applying the needs test rather than the means test. I think that blind lady will be in an infinitely better position as a result of the passage of this legislation, after an agreement has been made with his province, than would be the case if the means test were being applied and the rules that she and the province have had to abide by continued to exist.

Senator O'Leary (Carleton), who always speaks with such force and clarity, asked three questions. The first was: How will this money be spent? Will "Freddie the Freeloader," as Senator Walker aptly refers to him, be able to put it all over the provincial and federal authorities? I suppose that up to now "Freddie" has had ample opportunity to do this under the Unemployment Assistance Act, because that act is one that applies not the means test but the needs test. It is one to which the federal and provincial governments have been contributing at an equal rate of 50 per cent. I do not think we will ever eliminate such people, human nature being what it is, but experience has been gained in administering the provisions of the Unemployment Assistance Act, particularly when unemployment was at a high rate a few years ago. Fortunately the economy has changed to the extent that unemployment except in certain areas is not the serious problem it was a few years ago. But the great body of experience built up at that time under this act will be helpful, and we should not be too concerned about the prospect of "Freddie the Freeloader" continuing to enjoy himself and live at the expense of the responsible people in the community.

I am sure we all agree with Senator O'Leary about the danger of sapping the initiative of our people by providing too much of the benefits of the welfare state. There are examples—and you can multiply them—of where this has happened and damage has been done to large segments of the community; but between the time when the senator was a boy and today conditions in our society and indeed in modern society generally, have changed vastly.

I have just been reading the life of Daniel O'Connell and of the serious trouble in Ireland then because the capital, which was the land, was owned by the absentee landlord, and the worker as the peasant who paid the tithes and the rents. Today I think the capital of the worker is his job. It is no longer land; it is his skill, his capacity to work, his power to produce as a result of training and skill the modern product that is sold both nationally and internationally. But this mechanized form of production, this urbanized society that has been developed, has created social problems that are vastly different from the situation that obtained when a man could provide for his family from the fruits of the soil or sea. These are the problems of modern society that a bill such as this attempts to meet in a way that is going to involve co-operation between the federal and provincial authorities. This is a very special problem because we live in a federal and not a unitary state. However, in some respects it is also a national problem, and for that reason, though it may not confer jurisdiction, the national parliament and the national parliamentarian must have as acute an understanding of this problem as any provincial legislator, even though the jurisdiction may primarily lie with the provinces.

Honourable senators, these are ideas and views, and I certainly do not propose to have this debate take a political turn. I do not think it has this afternoon, because the views that have been expressed on both sides have differed as individuals spoke. Senator Macdonald (Cape Breton) said the measure might not go far enough. This I admit. Others have said that it might go too far, for certain reasons given by Senator O'Leary, who knows. How shall we ever know, with society changing as rapidly as it does?

However, I think it is a step in the right direction, and I hope it commends itself to the Senate. If honourable senators desire further explanation in committee, they need only indicate that view and I shall move that the bill be referred to committee.

Hon. Mr. Thorvaldson: Honourable senators, may I ask the honourable Leader of the Government a question relating to the original remarks he made in his closing speech? Is it not a fact that we may expect the Minister of National Health and Welfare momentarily to make an announcement in regard to increasing the old age pension and perhaps accepting the recommendation in this regard of the Senate Committee on Aging?

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): I am afraid I cannot answer that question. It is up to the minister. The honourable senator will have to wait until the Minister of National Health and Welfare decides.

Hon. Mr. Croll: And I do not think the honourable senator is going to be disappointed.

Hon. Mr. Brooks: Is this bill being referred to committee?

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): It is up to you.

Hon. Mr. Brooks: Some honourable senators, who unfortunately could not be present but intended to speak on this bill, indicated by telephone that they would make their remarks in committee. After all, it is a very important bill—

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): I agree.

Hon. Mr. Brooks: —and I do not think we should even give the impression of rushing it through. It is too important a bill for that.

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): I agree.

Motion agreed to and bill read second time.

REFERRED TO COMMITTEE

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this bill be read the third time?

On motion of Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West), bill referred to the Standing Committee on Banking and Commerce.

CROP INSURANCE ACT

BILL TO AMEND—FIRST READING

The Hon. the Acting Speaker (Hon. Mr. Bourget, P.C.) informed the Senate that a message had been received from the House of Commons with Bill C-208, to amend the Crop Insurance Act.

Bill read first time.

SECOND READING—DEBATE ADJOURNED

The Hon. the Acting Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this bill be read the second time?

Hon. Earl A. Hastings, with leave of the Senate, moved the second reading of the bill.

He said: Honourable senators, my moving the second reading of this bill marks the first opportunity I have had of publicly and formally addressing myself to honourable senators and to the business of the Senate. May I digress, therefore, a few moments in order to thank all those in this chamber and elsewhere who have made my arrival here the highlight of my life.

I extend my appreciation to His Honour the Speaker for his gracious welcome and kind words of encouragement. I hope that my contribution to the work of this chamber will be a credit to it.

I should like also to express my unbounded respect and admiration for the honourable Leader of the Government in the Senate, the Honourable John J. Connolly. I have known the honourable senator from Ottawa West for several years, and I have worked at his side in the interests of our party in the Province of Alberta. We are both of sterling Irish stock, so it is understandable that there is between us a deep friendship and loyalty. I need not remind this house of Senator Connolly's dedication to the public life of Canada and to the Senate, and I simply pay this inadequate yet sincere tribute to him.

To the honourable Leader of the Opposition (Hon. Mr. Brooks) and all honourable senators, I am grateful for your very generous welcome and kind words of counsel and goodwill.

At this point I should like to mention the Prime Minister of Canada, the Right Honourable Lester B. Pearson. I am one of those Canadians who deeply respect and admire Mr. Pearson for the work he has done and the dedication he has shown to this country in the past and at the present time. This is a time in our history when all Canadians are called upon to examine the very foundation of the nation, to reflect on the past, to be cognizant of the present, and to chart the future. I suggest that Mr. Pearson's talents of patience, compromise, diplomacy and, over and above all else, sincerity of purpose, are talents that are needed in the leading of our nation today. Because Mr. Pearson is here and occupies the position he does, I am unafraid of the future and eager to embark on the second hundred years of Confederation, or to "reach for the stars," as we were counselled by Senator Crerar in his farewell address to this chamber.

Honourable senators, I have chosen as my designation "Palliser-Foothills". I was born and raised in the City of Regina on the plains of Saskatchewan, and I spent most of my adult years in south Alberta. I therefore chose "Palliser-Foothills" as descriptive of that area where I believe my roots are deep. I took "Palliser" from Captain John Palliser who in 1857 explored the area of southern Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, and "Foothills" from that area where the plains of Saskatchewan and Alberta rise to meet the mountains. Honourable senators, on the occasion of my maiden speech in this chamber I dedicate myself especially to the people of that area of Canada, whom I feel I know well enough to represent in this chamber.

It is fitting that my first duty in the Senate of Canada is to commend to your attention a bill that will be of direct benefit not only to the farmers of Canada generally, but certainly to those farmers who reside in the Palliser-Foothills area of the Prairie provinces.

Farming is a risky enterprise. Ever since the original settlers planted the first crop in Annapolis Royal, we have learned at great expense how our farmers are always at the mercy of weather and disease, pests and insects. These are severe hazards over which the individual farmer has no control, and which from time to time cause him extreme hardship if not bankruptcy. In fact, the very existence of our farmers depends upon favourable conditions in which to produce crops, and thereby provide the amenities of life.

Stability of income is a very important factor in the modern-day agricultural economy. It is here that crop insurance can provide protection to the individual farmer by covering him financially against all natural hazards, and by filling a long-recognized need of assuring him a basic level of income for a year's work on his investment. Crop insurance cannot solve the financial problems of all farmers, but it does go a long way toward protecting them against a complete loss of their investment in any particular crop year.

Honourable senators, under the Crop Insurance Act of 1959 authority was given to the Minister of Agriculture, with the approval of the Governor in Council, to enter into crop insurance schemes, and to make a contribution in respect of the operation of those schemes to those provinces which undertook to operate them. Under that act the minister has authority to make contributions to the administration costs, and to pay 20 per cent of the premiums payable by the farmers in order to make the scheme self-sustaining. I might say that after extensive study and research into crop insurance it is now an accepted fact that it cannot operate without the assistance and leadership of senior governments. Without assistance, premiums would be completely unreasonable, uneconomic and impractical.

Under the act of 1959 a policy could be issued covering up to 60 per cent of the long-term average crop yield of the area insured. Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Prince Edward Island availed themselves of this legislation, and entered into the first agreements.

In 1964 the act was further amended to provide that Canada would reinsure 75 per cent of the amount by which indemnities exceeded premiums paid in that year, plus reserves and 2½ per cent of premiums in effect that particular year. With this additional backing of reinsurance by the Government of Canada, the provinces were able to accelerate and expand their respective programs.

Thereafter, my Province of Alberta came into the scheme during 1965.

Honourable senators may be interested to know that under the 1965 program, 13,361 farmers availed themselves of crop insurance in the four provinces mentioned, covering face value insurance of $26,919,147.

The program is continuing to accelerate, and in 1966 it will practically double, with 25,000 farmers availing themselves of crop insurance in the four provinces. The face value will be $50 million, again doubling the face value over 1965.

The cost to Canada in 1965 was $650,000. It is estimated that the cost for 1966 will be $1,212,000. If the amendments we are proposing are adopted and the scheme continues to accelerate, the cost for 1967 is estimated at $10 million.

I would point out that while our expenditures are increasing, crop insurance is replacing other measures which Canada would have to be making and probably did make under emergency schemes programs. These payments have been a constant drain on the treasury ahd have never been adequate compensation under the circumstances.

I would refer honourable senators to the recent program of financial aid to Ottawa Valley farmers and the farmers of Ontario and Quebec, costing $20 million. Crop insurance as it grows and accelerates should relieve the Government of expenditures on such programs.

As a result of continued extensive studies of the problems involved by farm organizations, agriculture officials and a federal-provincial agricultural conference, and in the light of experience since the inception of the program in 1959, it is now desired to make crop insurance more attractive, useful and practical to farmers and more widely applicable, and certainly with a desire to induce more provinces to take advantage of it and to enter into agreements with the federal Government.

Honourable senators, you therefore have before you Bill C-208, asking you to amend the Crop Insurance Act of 1959. The bill is asking for five amendments.

The first amendment asks that the maximum insurance coverage be raised from the existing 60 per cent to 80 per cent, because it is felt that yields rarely drop to 60 per cent and that to become attractive to mixed farmers of Ontario and Quebec it should be raised to 80 per cent. Sixty per cent of the long-term yield as it exists now does not cover a farmer's investment for one year, taking into consideration modern-day methods of farming and the present-day yield through advanced technology.

The act is also being amended to permit the calculation of the average yield on an individual farm basis rather than on an area basis. This is designed to provide protection commensurate with each farmer's needs and his farming ability.

The ideal situation with regard to crop insurance would be where an individual farmer would be insured on his individual record. Unfortunately, up to the present time records have not been kept whereby that can be done. However, records are being kept and have been kept on the county and township basis, and that is the present basis of calculating the yield. The ideal objective of insuring an individual farmer on his individual record is being kept in mind, and you are asked to amend the act on that basis.

The federal contribution to premiums paid to farmers will be increased from 20 per cent to 25 per cent. At the present time the Government of Canada pays 20 per cent of the farmer's insurance premium. By the amendment of this bill you are asked to raise the federal contribution to 25 per cent. This added contribution is made necessary by the fact that the farmer's insurance is being raised from 60 per cent to 80 per cent.

The additional coverage in some cases will double or even triple the premium. You are therefore asked to amend the act by an increased contribution of 5 per cent. Coverage at present is limited to crops as designated in the regulations. Production units such as apple trees or perennial forage crops are not covered, and a loss of these crops represents not one but several years' loss. The bill will amend the act to provide extended coverage for these losses.

Coverage will also be provided by an amendment for costs incurred in preparing summerfallow which cannot be seeded due to excessive moisture conditions. He may take a package deal which covers not only his crop this year, but his summerfallow, should he not be able to seed next year due to moisture conditions.

The fourth amendment is that the deductible amount, which is payable by a province under the reinsurance premium, is reduced by the amount of any reinsurance premium paid in that year.

Under the present scheme the federal Government pays 75 per cent of the amount of the loss in that year, less the premiums, less the reserve built up, and less 2½ per cent of the face value of the insurance in force that year. You are asked under this clause to raise the deductible by the reinsurance premium which the province paid in that year.

Finally, the fifth amendment. The act is amended to provide that policyholders shall be informed as to benefits accruing to them as a result of the participation of the federal and provincial governments involved. In any insurance policy, the policyholder is entitled to know in clear and concise terms the conditions and benefits of his insurance policy. It is therefore thought desirable that in a crop insurance policy the purchaser should be well aware of the participation in that scheme by the federal Government.

Honourable senators, this is one measure I believe to be long overdue with respect to federal-provincial arrangements and agreements. I believe that the ordinary person is not aware of the contribution that the federal Government makes to those various projects, and in particular the provincial vocational schools to which the federal Government contributes 75 per cent of the cost. This amendment will make it quite clear that the federal Government is participating in that particular crop insurance program of the province.

Honourable senators, I do not for a moment believe that the crop insurance program or the Crop Insurance Act which it is proposed to amend will be the ultimate in providing income stability to farmers. Anyone with agricultural experience will appreciate that such a measure will take time to implement owing to the varied and diverse farming methods in Canada from province to province, and even within a province. I suggest to you that the amendments proposed in this bill are workable and feasible, that they will be a distinct advantage to the farmers of Canada, that they will result in another step forward in offering adequate protection to provide a form of self help to cushion the farm enterprise against the ever-present threat of crop failure and resultant financial hardship and disaster.

The five amendments which you are asked to make are, first, to raise the maximum coverage from 60 per cent to 80 per cent and that the calculation of yield may be made on an individual farm basis; secondly, to raise Canada's share of the premium paid by a farmer from 20 per cent to 25 per cent; thirdly, to include in the Crop Insurance Act extended coverage on production units, such as orchards and forage crops; fourthly, that the deductible amount payable by a province be reduced by the amount of premium that the province makes to Canada; and fifthly, that policyholders be informed as to the federal-provincial arrangement for participation in that particular crop insurance scheme.

Honourable senators, I take great pleasure in commending this bill to you for your consideration and approval.

Hon. Edgar Fournier: Honourable senators, may I compliment the honourable senator on his explanation of the bill and on his maiden speech in the house. Although I do not share all of the first part of his comments, I share the second part.

I should like to ask a few questions. I am glad to see that apples are now being covered in this bill. I come not from an apple-growing area but from a potato-growing area. Potatoes are a very peculiar crop, often entailing several losses. There is a loss even before the crop is out of the ground, through frost or storm. There is a loss after it is out of the ground, because it is perishable. At times, the loss can be 60 per cent from the time the crop is out of the ground until it is prepared to go on the market between February and March. One of the big losses which potato growers suffer is the loss in market value. It is estimated that is costs approximately $2 to produce a barrel of potatoes, yet on many occasions the market value is but $1 or less. Will that be covered by the insurance and will it be possible to insure against it?

In the case of an agreement between the federal Government and my province of New Brunswick, I hope this item is being included, bcause otherwise these new measures will be of no value. I hope that our province will have this provision included in its agreement. I also hope to receive an answer to the questions I have asked.

On motion of Hon. Mr. Pearson, debate adjourned until later this day.

APPROPRIATION BILL NO. 6, 1966

FIRST READING

The Hon. the Acting Speaker informed the Senate that a message had been received from the House of Commons with Bill C-224, for granting to Her Majesty certain sums of money for the public service for the financial year ending the 31st March 1967.

Bill read first time.

The Hon. the Acting Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this bill be read the second time?

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): With leave of the Senate, I move that this bill be placed on the Orders of the Day for second reading later this day.

Motion agreed to.

DOCUMENTS TABLED

Hon. John J. Connolly tabled:

Report of a Loan made out of the Consolidated Revenue Fund to The St. Lawrence Seaway Authority on June 13, 1966, under authority of Order in Council P.C. 1966-416, dated March 10, 1966, pursuant to section 26(4) of the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority Act, (Chapter 242, R.S.C., 1952. (English and French texts).

Answer to Inquiry of the Honourable Senator Fergusson of July 5, 1966, respecting—

(1) Appointment of permanent Superintendent for the Women's Prison in Kingston, and

(2) appointment of a Deputy Commissioner of Pentitentiaries in charge of of female inmates in all correctional institutions under Federal Jurisdiction. (English test).

Capital Budget of The St. Lawrence Seaway authority for the year ending December 31, 1966, pursuant to section 80(2) of the Financial Administration Act, chapter 116, R.S.C., 1952, together with a copy of Order in Council P.C. 1966-135, dated January 25, 1966, approving same. (English text).

Revised Capital Budget of The St. Lawrence Seaway Authority for the year ending December 31, 1966, pursuant to section 80(2) of the Financial Administration Act, chapter 116, R.S.C., 1952, together with a copy of Order in Council P.C. 1966-1194, dated June 23, 1966, approving same. (English text).

Final Communiqué issued following the Commonwealth Caribbean-Canada Conference, held at Ottawa July 6-8, 1966. (English and French texts).

Copy of Air Transport Agreement between the Government of Canada and the Government of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, together with Notes exchanged. Done at Ottawa July 11, 1966. (English and French texts).

DIVORCE

REPORTS OF COMMITTEE ADOPTED

Hon. David A. Croll for Hon. Mr. Roebuck, Chairman of the Standing Committee on Divorce, presented the committee's reports Nos. 753 to 816, inclusive.

The Hon. the Acting Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall these reports be taken into consideration?

Hon. Mr. Croll: I move, with leave, that these reports be considered now.

Motion agreed to and reports adopted.

RESOLUTIONS PRESENTED

Leave having been given to revert to presentation of petitions:

Hon. David A. Croll, for Hon. Mr. Roebuck, Chairman of the Standing Committee on Divorce, presented the following resolutions:

Resolution 738, for the relief of Alexander Biega.

Resolution 739, for the relief of Henry John Fredrick Haigh Waterhouse.

Resolution 740, for the relief of Frances Jean White Fraser.

Resolution 741, for the relief of Elizabeth Wendy Farris Teichman, otherwise known as Elizabeth Wendy Farris Teichmann.

Resolution 742, for the relief of Marie Jeannine Harpin Connick.

Resolution 743, for the relief of Louis Philippe Hachez.

Resolution 744, for the relief of Pauline Gertrude Gagnon Cooper.

Resolution 745, for the relief of Marie Agnes Florentine dite Florence Gouin Willmann, otherwise known as Marie Agnes Florentine dite Florence Gouin Willman.

Resolution 746, for the relief of Norman Raymond McArthur.

Resolution 747, for the relief of Katina Kollia Lazaris, otherwise known as Catherine Kollias Lazaris.

Resolution 748, for the relief of Victor James George.

Resolution 749, for the relief of Claude Landry.

Resolution 750, for the relief of Huguette Jodoin Courtemanche.

Resolution 751, for the relief of Doris Campeau.

Resolution 752, for the relief of Joseph Alphonse Reynald Cullen.

Resolution 753, for the relief of Hazel Florence Gumbley Johnston.

Resolution 754, for the relief of Elizabeth Ruthven Nelson Slater.

Resolution 755, for the relief of Frances Viola Lawson Place.

Resolution 756, for the relief of Louise Dunn Gilmour.

Resolution 757, for the relief of Murielle Marie Latreille Lemieux.

Resolution 758, for the relief of Marguerite Georgette Francoise Belanger Payette.

Resolution 759, for the relief of George Austin Line.

Resolution 760, for the relief of Doris Dales Lavallee.

Resolution 761, for the relief of Lucie Siegel Schussler McDerby, otherwise known as Luzi Siegel Schussler MacDerby.

Resolution 762, for the relief of Dorothy Currie Stork.

Resolution 763, for the relief of Raezelle Zinman Grossman Grosser.

Resolution 764, for the relief of Carol Elizabeth Price Shackell.

Resolution 765, for the relief of Christine Elizabeth Wasilewska Stenger.

Resolution 766, for the relief of Barbara Allen Deslauriers Turgeon.

Resolution 767, for the relief of Hanna (Hannah) Fay Beraznik Burko.

Resolution 768, for the relief of Leonard Sherman.

Resolution 769, for the relief of Brenda Karen McClintock Elman.

Resolution 770, for the relief of Rita Proulx Nadon.

Resolution 771, for the relief of Tadeusz Bala.

Resolution 772, for the relief of Anton Klefas.

Resolution 773, for the relief of Rosalyn Isaacs White.

Resolution 774, for the relief of Margaret Ross Stevenson Reilley, otherwise known as Margaret Ross Stevenson Reilly.

Resolution 775, for the relief of Luc Duhamel.

Resolution 776, for the relief of Ann Mainer Black Cornellier.

Resolution 777, for the relief of Linda Beverley Diana Hollenbeck Foster.

Resolution 778, for the relief of Ann (Annie) Bloom Cohen.

Resolution 779, for the relief of Dorothy Jean (Gina) Pratt Maurice.

Resolution 780, for the relief of Gilles Dupuis.

Resolution 781, for the relief of Ernestine Maria Hruby Charland.

Resolution 782, for the relief of Gertrude Weitzner Craimer.

Resolution 783, for the relief of Rebecca Eichenbaum Rock.

Resolution 784, for the relief of Marian Ruth Hamilton King.

Resolution 785, for the relief of Rita Kelson Wolff.

Resolution 786, for the relief of Joan Margaret Logan Waterhouse.

Resolution 787, for the relief of Marielle Chaput Legault.

Resolution 788, for the relief of Rene François Raemdonck.

Resolution 789, for the relief of Geoffrey Cyrille Giovanni Porri.

Resolution 790, for the relief of Nita Evelyn Meadus Wood.

Resolution 791, for the relief of Ann (Annie) Frances O'Connor Smith.

Resolution 792, for the relief of Marjorie Anne Howse Maxwell.

Resolution 793, for the relief of Shirley Elizabeth Douglas Nicholson.

Resolution 794, for the relief of Shirley Marie Barkley Sisty.

Resolution 795, for the relief of Doreen Janet Hubscher Hermann.

Resolution 796, for the relief of Richard Garry Loroway.

Resolution 797, for the relief of Paul Edward Snyder.

Resolution 798, for the relief of Ruth Eleanor Young Lajoie.

Resolution 799, for the relief of Madeleine Lorrain Kehoe.

Resolution 800, for the relief of Sharro-Lynn (Lynne) Brooks Morris.

RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED

The Hon. the Acting Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall these resolutions be taken into consideration?

Hon. Mr. Croll: Honourable senators, with leave of the Senate, I move that these resolutions be adopted now.

Resolutions adopted, on division.

PRISON ADMINISTRATION

FEMALE INMATES—INQUIRY ANSWERED

Hon. Muriel McQ. Fergusson inquired of the Government, pursuant to notice:

1. What steps have been and are being taken to secure the appointment of a permanent superintendent for the Women's Prison in Kingston?

2. Is consideration being given to a brief presented to the Solicitor General asking for the appointment of a Deputy Commissioner of Penitentiaries in charge of female inmates in all correctional institutions under federal jurisdiction?

Hon. John J. Connolly: The answer to the honourable senator's inquiry is as follows:

1. An extensive advertising campaign was conducted across Canada to obtain the services of a female superintendent. Some nine applications were received but none of the candidates qualified for this position. It is intended to appoint a permanent female superintendent as soon as a suitable candidate is found.

In the meantime, Mr. D. Clark, an experienced penitentiary classification officer and assistant deputy warden at the Joyceville Institution, has been appointed acting superintendent.

2. The proposal to appoint a deputy commissioner of penitentiaries for female inmates has been taken into consideration, and this matter is still under study. The Solicitor General recently visited the prison for women and this matter is receiving his personal consideration.

IMMIGRATION

APPLICATION FOR LANDED IMMIGRANT STATUS

On the Orders of the Day:

Hon. David A. Croll: Honourable senators, before the Orders of the Day are proceeded with, I wish to draw to the attention of the Senate a statement on immigration which was made in the Commons on Friday last by the Minister of Citizenship and Immigration.

The minister indicated that there were in Canada a large number of people, presumed to be about 20,000, who have not applied for landed immigrant status but who undoubtedly hope to be allowed to stay in Canada. Their position is anomalous. The minister has announced the policy of giving them a break, in that if by July 25, 1966, they apply for permission to stay, their applications will be approved under certain stated conditions, even though they may have, on entry, concealed their true intention of remaining here.

Honourable senators, one reason why I raise the matter now is that the time is very short, and the Senate always has had a special interest in the problems of minorities. My second reason is that these people, whose presence in Canada has not yet been regularized, are in need of assurance that the Government's intentions are bona fide and that there are no tricks or gimmicks involved.

They may still be distrustful not only of their home government, but of governments in general. For that reason I thought I should take this opportunity to give them some reassurance, so far as it lies within my capacity to do so.

Therefore, I as a senator and as a former immigrant with cause to be gratified for his reception in Canada, and whose status has, I trust, been regularized, desire to assure them that the present offer is bona fide, that there are no tricks or gimmicks involved, and that the Government is just as anxious as they are to regularize their status. Such offers are not and cannot be made every day or even every year. and I urge these people in good faith to avail themselves of this opportunity before the date indicated, July 25.

May I add that I hope that the maximum publicity will be given to this matter, so that the people in question may be reached. I doubt whether any of them are subscribers either to Hansard or to the Canada Gazette. For that reason I would stress the use of the daily and weekly newspapers and more particularly the ethnic newspapers which I feel will be very useful at this time. Certainly an offer that is not known cannot be acted upon.

Hon. Mr. Cameron: On this particular issue, and knowing how slow communications are, I would hope that if there is a substantial percentage of these people who have not made their applications by July 25, then some consideration might be given to extending the date. It is already July 11, and there is not too much time left. I hope if the matter comes up again, this suggestion will be kept in mind.

Hon. Mr. Croll: We must stress the fact that this is the most important piece of business these people have to do; and the moment it is brought to their attention they should drop everything else and set about doing it.

Hon. Mr. Brooks: This matter has been mentioned in the press. I have read it myself. I cannot see why immigrants should doubt the bona fides of the Government. When the honourable senator rose on this matter I expected he was going to draw attention to the date and ask for an extension of time. I am sure these people will not doubt the bona fides of the Government, but they may need more time.

Hon. Mr. Croll: May I draw the attention of the honourable senator to the very bona fide offer made by the Government, of which he was a member, to the Chinese some years ago and the results that followed. Was that accepted in the spirit in which it was made?

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): I doubt that there is any need to bring this afternoon's discussion to the attention of the Minister of Citizenship and Immigration. However, as a result of this I feel his attention will be drawn to it and particularly to the question of a further extension of the date.

I move that the Senate do now take recess to reassemble at the call of the bell at approximately 8 o'clock this evening.

The Senate adjourned during pleasure.

At 8 p.m. the sitting was resumed.

APPROPRIATION BILL NO. 6, 1966

SECOND READING

Hon. John J. Connolly, with leave of the Senate, moved the second reading of Bill C-224, for granting to Her Majesty certain sums of money for the public service for the financial year ending the 31st March 1967.

He said: Honourable senators, this is a somewhat unusual bill, in that we have not considered its like since 1957—which was a very unusual year, if I may say so.

Appropriation Bill No. 6 purports to grant full supply for the main Estimates of ten departments, the details of which have been approved by the Committee of Supply in the other place during this session.

The ten departments are as follows: Citizenship and Immigration, Defence Production, Forestry, Governor General and Lieutenant Governors, Industry, Legislation, National Revenue, Post Office, Privy Council, and Veterans Affairs.

The bill is in the usual form in which full supply is granted, except that it is restricted to these ten departments and only to the main Estimates in respect of each of them.

Honourable senators, first of all I want to give the undertaking that this does not deal with any items in any of these departments under supplementary Estimates which have already been filed; nor, indeed, will it affect the supplementary Estimates of these same departments which may yet come before Parliament. Those items automatically would be open by their introduction in any supplementary Estimates for these departments.

Secondly, having discussed the matter with the Chairman of the Standing Committee on Finance, Senator Leonard, we have agreed—and he has authorized me to speak on his behalf, and I do so on my own behalf—that if there are any items in these main Estimates upon which any member of the Committee on Finance, or indeed, any other senator, wishes to attend the committee to raise questions, no technical objection will be taken. In other words, for practical purposes, while the Senate may pass this bill this evening, it will still be open to any honourable senator to ask any question with respect to the items that are contained in this bill for which full supply is being granted.

These are the general introductory remarks I desire to make. Also, I have caused to be circulated two sheets of mimeographed information indicating the effect of this bill and which, I think, will make abundantly clear exactly what is happening, without an examination of the details of the schedules to the bill because the schedules are the reproduction of the item in the main Estimates.

The effect of this bill, excluding the statutory items and the supply granted for these departments by the two interim supply bills already passed amounting to $303,283,583.33, is that it completes the main Estimates of the departments involved and grants an additional $825,462,241.67, making a total of $1,128,745,825, which is the amount of the main Estimates of these ten departments.

I should also say that the total of the main Estimates to be voted as of this moment is $4,907,982,911, and the amount already appropriated, plus the amount to be appropriated by this bill, from the main Estimates, totals $2,146,682,000.68. This means there is still left to be voted from the main Estimates the sum of $2,761,300,910.32.

Honourable senators, I think that sets the general perspective in which this bill is to be considered. I would ask honourable senators that this prepared statement before you be incorporated in Hansard of today. It provides a very clear presentation for anyone who wishes to know the position.

The Hon. the Acting Speaker: Honourable senators, is it agreed that this document be printed in the Debates of the Senate?

Hon. Senators: Agreed.

23031—71½

(The statement follows)

EFFECT OF THIS BILL

A. On the Estimates of the ten Departments: (excluding statutory items) Supply granted for these Departments by the two interim supply bills passed to date		$ 303,283,583.33
Amount proposed by this bill		825,462,241.67
Amount of Main Estimates for these Departments		$1,128,745,825.00
B. On total of the Main Estimates: Total to be voted, Main Estimates		$4,907,982,911.00
Already appropriated	$1,321,219,759.01
This bill	825,462,241.67	2,146,682,000.68
Still to be voted, Main Estimates		$2,761,300,910.32

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): Honourable senators, I think it will be helpful if I now go through the second sheet of the statement which shows the position with reference to supply voted and to be voted tonight by the passage of Appropriation Bill No. 6. I would ask permission of the Senate to have the second portion of the statement printed in Hansard because it clarifies the position in which we find ourselves at this moment in respect of supply.

The Hon. the Acting Speaker: Honourable senators, is it agreed that this statement be printed in the Debates of the Senate?

Hon. Senators: Agreed.

(The statement follows)

ESTIMATES, 1966-67

(including Budgetary Expenditures and Loans, excluding Old Age Security Payments)

	Total	Of which Statutory	To be voted
Main Estimates	$ 8,283,224,878	$ 3,375,241,967,	$ 4,907,982,911
Supplementary Estimates (A)	332,441,791		332,441,791
Supplementary Estimates (B)	177,027,000		177,027,000
	$ 8,792,693,669	$ 3,375,241,967	$ 5,417,451,702
(Payments from Old Age Security Fund	1,035,000,000
	$ 9,827,693,669)

SUPPLY, 1966-67

Appropriation Act No. 3, 1966:
Two-twelfths generally of the Main Estimates plus additional proportions of 24 special items to provide for expenditures to May 31.	$ 870,275,281.00
Appropriation Act No. 5*, 1966:
One-twelfth generally of the Main Estimates except for the one vote for which 11/12ths has already been granted plus additional proportions of 11 special items to provide for expenditures to June 30.	450,944,478.01
This Bill (Appropriation Act No. 6, 1966)
The balance of the Main Estimates for 10 Departments	825,462,241.67
	2,146,682,000.68
Balance yet to be voted	3,270,769,701.32
Total to be voted	$ 5,417,451,702.00

*Appropriation Act No. 4 covered the final Supplementary Estimates for 1965-66.

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): Honourable senators, the total of the main Estimates is $8,283,224,878. Of this the statutory amount paid under the authority of various statutes is $3,375,241,967. The amount to be voted from the main Estimates is $4,907,982,-911.

Supplementary Estimates (A) amount to $332,441,791, no part of which has yet been voted. Supplementary Estimates (B), which are loan items, amount to $177,027,000, and no part of that amount has been voted.

The total amount to be voted in the main and the two supplementary Estimates is $5,-417,451,702.

I think I need make no reference to payments from the Old Age Security Fund. Honourable senators are fully aware of the source of that money and the reasons for its disbursement.

May I deal now with our position in respect of supply at this moment. Appropriation Act No. 3 of 1966 granted two months' supply in the amount of $870,275,281. That was the first interim supply bill of this financial year. Appropriation Act No. 5 granted another month's supply to June 30, in the amount of $450,944,478.01. To this bill, if approved, will be added the balance of the amount of the main Estimates for the ten departments I mentioned in opening namely, $825,462,- 241.67. So, if this bill is passed we shall have voted $2,146,682,000.68 and shall have left unvoted $3,270,769,701.32.

Hon. Mr. McCutcheon: Does that last figure represent the saving the Government is going to make?

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): I would like the answer to be yes. I should say that Appropriation Act No. 4 covered the final supplementary Estimates for 1965-66 which were voted after the beginning of this present fiscal year.

Honourable senators, I think that with the prepared statements that have been distributed and incorporated in Hansard, there is little more that I can say. Perhaps I should add this one idea that I think it is not a bad procedure. When the committee of supply in the other place has completed its study of certain departments, there should be a final appropriation bill in respect of departments, when there are enough to deal with, of which I think this bill provides an example.

No matter how much we try to explain the amount of work that is done in various committees in both houses, or the amount of debate that goes on, when the final supply bill is brought in, and it is in the amount of $5 billion or $6 billion, and it goes through quickly, inevitably it is said that only three or four minutes time have been spent on the measure. A good deal of work has gone into the consideration of the Estimates of these departments, and if there is a desire on the part of honourable senators to obtain further information with respect to any of these items the opportunity will be available when the Finance Committee convenes.

Hon. Mr. Walker: Will that be tomorrow?

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): No. I doubt if the Finance Committee will sit tomorrow. The undertaking I have given will apply during the entire session.

Hon. A. J. Brooks: Honourable senators, I rise in order to make a clearer statement than has been made by the honourable Leader of the Government. When one starts to discuss millions and billions of dollars and analyzes them, I do not think they become clear to anybody until they have been studied very carefully.

As the honourable Leader of the Government has said, the total budgetary expenses after the passing of this bill, including payments from the Old Age Security Fund, amounts to $9,827,693,669. I think that is a record.

May I point out to honourable senators that until the year is concluded we cannot fully appreciate how much money will be spent. We have had two supplementary Estimates already, and I have no doubt that there will be more, judging from the bills which have been passed in the other place and those in anticipation of being passed. I made a calculation, and I do not think I shall be far wrong, that it will be necessary to raise between $11 billion and $12 billion before the end of next year.

I realize the futility of trying to find out here the reasons for each item. That is not possible. The honourable leader has told us that the amounts for ten departments have already been passed. I understand that the total of those ten departments amounts to a little over one-tenth of the total amount of money we have to raise.

We have also been assured by the honourable leader that, although they will have been passed, if there are any items at any time that any honourable senator wishes to question, or on which he desires more information, he can get it. Is that correct?

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): Yes.

Hon. Mr. Brooks: I also understood that, in consideration of the interim supply bills from now on, these ten departments will not be included. I believe this too is something new. I understood the honourable leader to say that in 1957 a similar bill was passed. Is that correct?

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): That is correct.

Hon. Mr. Brooks: And there has been none since then?

Hon. Mr Connolly (Ottawa West): I believe not.

Hon. Mr. Brooks: And very few before that?

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): I do not know the history.

Hon. Mr. Brooks: I understood the minister to say that. So we are really dealing with something new.

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): I should like to say to the Leader of the Opposition that none of the items from the general Estimates that are in this bill will appear in interim supply measures again, because these are the final Estimates for those ten departments.

Hon. Mr. Brooks: That is the statement I have just made. These items will not appear again?

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): In interim supply.

Hon. Mr. Brooks: And, as far as the House of Commons is concerned they will have no right to question the expenditures of any of these departments, unless there are items in future supply Estimates. Is that not correct?

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): Yes, unless they have supply motions left. I am not sure. For the sake of argument, in the case of Forestry, if there are any supply motions left for the fall, they might conceivably deal with the matter in that department.

Hon. Mr. Brooks: We in the Senate then will have a privilege which members of the House of Commons will not have. That is, your statement was that we would have the right to question any of these items?

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): Yes.

Hon. Mr. Brooks: These ten departments have been thoroughly analysed by the Public Accounts Committee in the House of Commons. Consequently, they have very little reason for wishing to review them. In the Senate it is different, of course. We send our Estimates to the Finance Committee and while there is an opportunity there to question all items, unfortunately it is not taken advantage of as often as it should be. We do not get too much information from that committee. The committee is willing to give information, I am sure, but we do not get it. So it is well that we may have other opportunities of questioning these items.

While the honourable leader did not go through the schedule or explain any of the items, I may say that this is quite a bill. There are certain items about which I should like to ask some questions.

On page 3, for instance, under the National Employment Service, item 25 speaks of manpower and mobility, and grants, in accordance with regulations approved by the Governor in Council, to move persons from one place to another in Canada for employment. The amount voted is $3,500,000. Has this to do with the unemployment fund, or the amount granted to the municipalities of the different provinces last year by which the Atlantic provinces, for instance, where the unemployment was the greatest in any part of Canada, received the least help? Is any provision being made to correct that situation, or has this amount anything to do with it?

On page 4, item 30, I notice that $18,233,800 is being granted to assist immigrants. This is for the payment of transoceanic and inland transportation and other assistance to immigrants and settlers. My question is this: Are the immigrants asked to reimburse the Government for any of these payments? The Government is spending $18,233,800 for the bringing in of immigrants and paying their transportation and other expenses. Is this sum to be collected later from the immigrants?

Then on page 5 at item 10, I notice there is a sum of $19,200,000 in connection with the Freight Assistance Act on western grain. This of course is of interest to the farmers of western and also of eastern Canada. We also know there is a further bill in prospect; I think the resolution has been before the other place. Is this sum intended to cover the payment of costs arising out of the proposed bill, or is it intended to cover costs arising out of the present legislation? I would judge there would be a considerable difference in the items if this sum is in anticipation of the costs under the proposed bill.

I am and always have been interested in veterans' affairs, and I see that the items in connection with the Department of Veterans Affairs have been passed on the other side. A few days ago I read in the press that Sunnybrook Hospital, one of the largest of the veterans' hospitals in Canada, was being purchased by the University of Toronto for $1.

Hon. Mr. Walker: It is to train doctors who are badly needed.

Hon. Mr. Brooks: That is a very fine idea and I have no objection to it. The veterans' hospitals, I know, would not be used to their capacity if they were used only for veterans. This is true of Sunnybrook, and I am sure it is true of every other veterans' hospital in the country. I see no reason why they should not be taken over by such organizations as the University of Toronto or cities or municipalities in other parts of Canada.

Hon. Mr. Macdonald (Cape Breton): Provided the rights of the veterans are protected.

Hon. Mr. Brooks: I am sure there will be no question about that because the Department of Veterans Affairs and indeed the Government would never permit otherwise. However, I now want to ask, is there any policy on the part of the Government in connection with the taking over of these veterans' hospitals if and when they are not needed? I do not have any further questions to ask at this time.

I know that in committee on supply in the other place members are able to ask whatever questions they wish and get the answers they require, but here we have to ask the questions at this time to get the information we seek. I hope we may be able to get information on these matters.

Hon. Donald Cameron: I also have one or two questions to ask.

I refer first to page 3, items 10 and 15, having to do with the Technical and Vocational Training Assistance Act. It mentions the amount of money being set aside for training and research. Would it be possible to find out how many technical and vocational schools have been established since this act came into force in 1961, and could this information be broken down by provinces? Secondly, what research projects are being carried out under this act at the present time and where are they located?

Then, turning to page 6, item 25, the Library of Parliament, I would like to take this opportunity of saying how much the additional services provided by the research department of the library mean to those who have occasion to seek material for speeches, papers and so on. The money that is being spent for that particular activity is a most justifiable expenditure. I am delighted with the service being given.

That is the only comment I have to make on this matter.

Hon. John J. Connolly: Honourable senators—

The Hon. the Acting Speaker: I must inform honourable senators that if the honourable Senator Connolly speaks now it will have the effect of closing the debate.

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): Honourable senators, I think it would be less than fair if I attempted to give an offhand answer even to some of the questions that have been asked by the honourable Leader of the Opposition and by the senator from Banff. These are serious questions and deserve more attention than I could give them here this evening. I could give some partial answers, but I would prefer to make inquiries of the appropriate officials in the appropriate department. When I receive the answers I shall place them on Hansard.

In the meantime, I remind all honourable senators that if there are other questions on these schedules upon which they desire further information after perusing the bill further, that information will be available in the Finance Committee. I hope that is a satisfactory manner of dealing with the matter.

Hon. Mr. Brooks: Yes, that is satisfactory.

Motion agreed to and bill read second time.

THIRD READING

The Hon. the Acting Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this bill be read the third time?

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): Honourable senators, it may be that interim supply will be available for our consideration a little later this evening. With that in prospect, and the prospect even of Royal Assent for these two money bills, I would ask favourable consideration of the proposal that this bill be read the third time now, and I so move.

Motion agreed to and bill read third time and passed.

CROP INSURANCE ACT

BILL TO AMEND—SECOND READING

The Senate resumed from earlier this day the adjourned debate on the motion of Hon. Mr. Hastings for the second reading of Bill C-208, to amend the Crop Insurance Act.

Hon. Arthur M. Pearson: Honourable senators, I rise to speak on this bill because I too come from Saskatchewan—my honourable colleague on the other side (Hon. Mr. Hastings) said that he originally came from Regina. I wish to congratulate him on the fine speech he made in explanation of this measure to amend the original Crop Insurance Act, and commend him for his clarity. Having heard Senator Hastings, I am sure all honourable senators feel they know a little more about crop insurance than they did before he spoke.

Bill C-208 is an amendment to the original act passed of 1959. The Act was amended in 1964, and this bill further amends it by extending its principles and making it more palatable to the farmers of western and eastern Canada.

Honourable senators, the part of the bill that merits most attention is the new section 5A, "Extended Coverage," which appears on page 2. The extended coverage from 60 per cent to 80 per cent of the loss on a crop will be a great inducement to many farmers to take advantage of this insurance.

Having said that, I add that I am a little concerned about this crop insurance plan. I remember that in my speech in the debate on the motion for an address in reply to the Speech from the Throne I suggested it would be a good thing if we went somewhat slowly in developing this program in eastern Canada. I am still of that view, especially when I hear Senator Fournier (Madawaska-Restigouche) asking a question about potatoes. There is quite a problem there, and there may be other problems in respect of other crops in the east.

However, this program of crop insurance is going a little too slowly so far as western Canada is concerned. I have here some figures I extracted from the report of the minister for the year 1964-65, and some other figures that I managed to dig up for the year 1965-66. The table is as follows:

CROP INSURANCE 1964-65

Province	Number of Farmers Insured	Total Coverage	Total Premiums	Total Indemnity
Manitoba	6,141	$13,600,000	$1,177,000	$277,000
Saskatchewan	2,356	4,087,000	343,691	137,747
Prince Edward Island	128	125,884	5,061	14,874

CROP INSURANCE 1965-66

Manitoba	8,610	$18,680,730	$1,608,612	$380,000
Saskatchewan	3,132	4,565,700	369,091	120,583
Alberta	1,312	3,231,858	290,723	480,080
Prince Edward Island	267	440,859	16,762	45,593

I would point out that Alberta entered the Crop Insurance scheme in 1965, whereas Manitoba entered it in 1960, and Saskatchewan and Prince Edward Island in 1962.

In looking further at the figures I have I note that in 1961 there were 43,306 farmers in Manitoba, 93,924 in Saskatchewan, 73,212 in Alberta, and 7,335 in Prince Edward Island, making a total of 217,777, while in 1956 the total was 241,448.

In 1965-66 the total number of farmers in those provinces insured under this scheme was 13,321. At the present rate of progress it will take a long time before the farmers of Canada are covered by insurance.

It seems to me that there must be some other means to induce farmers to come forward and take part in this scheme of insurance. It may be that the provinces are a little nervous about extending the scheme beyond certain areas in which it seems certain there will be a good crop and not much paid out in the way of indemnity.

On the other hand, I read in the Star Phoenix of Saskatoon that 80,000 farmers out of a total of 93,924 farmers in Saskatchewan have signed up for hail insurance. If a farmer's crop gets hailed out he can depend on some compensation by way of insurance, depending on the premium he pays. It seems to me that this crop insurance scheme is not widely enough advertised. The farmers are not well enough informed about it.

I remember that in 1913 when the municipal hail insurance scheme was introduced in Saskatchewan by the United Grain Growers —that is the United Farmers—they stipulated that at least 25 municipalities must join the scheme before they would consider embarking upon it, for it was largely a co-operative plan. However, after the bill was passed in the legislature 115 municipalities decided to participate in the scheme. The plan was widely advertised. It was a grass-roots affair. The administrators of the hail insurance scheme were neighbouring farmers. It seems to me that if the present Government with the assistance of the provinces were to spend a little time in advertising this scheme and in sending out pamphlets throughout the country it might get a larger clientele of farmers to take part.

I think the crop insurance plan is a well considered one. I offer as a suggestion that it might be advisable to draw up package policies.

In Saskatchewan hail is one of the big problems in the south but not so much in the north. The problem is that the premium rate in the northern part is 3 per cent, whereas where I live it is about 13 per cent and in some parts it can go as high as 16 per cent. There may be certain things that the farmers in the north find more damaging than hail, such as frost or overabundance of moisture. More farmers would take advantage of the scheme if they were able to insure for part of it rather than the whole scheme. For instance, more farmers in the south might insure their crops just against hail and perhaps grasshopper plague or something like that which could affect them more than frost.

Hon. Mr. Aseltine: What about rust?

Hon. Mr. Pearson: Yes, and rust. That is another point. It might be better to divide this up into package policies for different areas of the provinces.

I approve of the bill. I am pleased to see the amendments included and I hope that more farmers will be able to participate in this scheme.

Motion agreed to and bill read second time.

THIRD READING

The Hon. the Acting Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this bill be read the third time?

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): Honourable senators, is there any desire on the part of anyone to have the bill go to a committee? If so, I have no objection whatsoever.

Hon. Mr. Brooks: No.

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): I move with leave, that the bill be read the third time now.

Motion agreed to and bill read third time and passed.

BUSINESS OF THE SENATE

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): Honourable senators, once again the importance of the crystal ball comes into focus. I understand that interim supply is about to be concluded in the other place. There is a possibility of our getting it before 9.30. There is also a possibility we could have royal assent tonight, in order not to delay the payment of various accounts that are due.

I suggest that we adjourn during pleasure now and reassemble at the call of the bell at 9.20. If we do not have the bill at that time, we will adjourn until tomorrow.

Hon. Mr. Brooks: If the honourable leader's crystal ball does not work this time, he had better dispose of it altogether.

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): I will get a new one.

The Senate adjourned during pleasure.

At 9.20 p.m. the sitting was resumed.

APPROPRIATION BILL NO. 7, 1966

FIRST READING

The Hon. the Acting Speaker informed the Senate that a message had been received from the House of Commons with Bill C-226, for granting to Her Majesty certain sums of money for the public service for the financial year ending the 31st March 1967.

Bill read first time.

SECOND READING

Hon. John J. Connolly, with leave of the Senate, moved the second reading of the bill.

He said: Honourable senators, this is a bill for interim supply. Generally speaking, it provided four-twelfths of the main Estimates, or four months' supply which will carry us to October 31, 1966.

Hon. Mr. McCutcheon: Does that mean we will not resume sitting until October?

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): I hope so. I am batting off announcements as they occur to me, but I hope that is so.

We had supplementary Estimates before us earlier, and in respect of the Main Estimates we have already received three months' interim supply in two stages.

Now it is proposed that we will have, in respect of the main Estimates, a total of seven months' interim supply. In respect of the supplementary Estimates, this bill will request seven-twelfths of Supplementary Estimates (A) and seven-twelfths of Supplementary Estimates (B). This would put both the main and the supplementary Estimates on the same footing, with the exception of those ten departments provided for in Appropriation Bill No. 6 which we dealt with earlier this evening.

As has been my custom in the past on interim supply, I have circulated two sheets of paper which I think will make perfectly clear our situation at this moment with respect to supply. I do not think it necessary to go into the detail I went into on Appropriation Bill No. 6 within the past hour. I would only remind honourable senators that the amount to be voted in the main Estimates is $4,907,982,911: the amount to be voted in Supplementary Estimates (A) is $332,441,791: and the amount to be voted in Supplementary Estimates (B) is $177,027,000, making a total of $5,417,451,702. I make no reference at this time to payments out of the Old Age Security fund. That is the general background, the requirements for voting for Parliament for Estimates, both main and supplementary.

May I deal now with the supply position at this time. Appropriation Act No. 3 granted two-twelfths generally of the main Estimates, plus certain additional amounts of others for expenditures to May 31, in the total amount of $870,275,281.

Appropriation Act No. 5—the second of the supplementary Estimates bills we considered—granted supply for one-twelfth generally of the main Estimates, plus certain percentages of other items, to provide for expenditures to June 30 in the amount of $450,944,478.01.

Earlier this evening we dealt with Appropriation Act No. 6, which granted full supply for the main Estimates for ten departments in the amount of $825,462,241.67.

The bill before us now, Appropriation Bill No. 7, as I said earlier, grants generally four months' supply for the main Estimates, with the exception of certain items; seven-twelfths generally of the Supplementary Estimates (A), plus certain additional proportions of ten special items; seven-twelfths generally of the Supplementary Estimates (B), plus a certain additional proportion of one special item—this in all to provide for expenditures to October 31, 1966, and the amount to be authorized by this bill is $1,662,982,791.92. The amount to be voted after this bill has passed will be $1,607,786,909.40.

Honourable senators, if I have consent, I shall be glad to place these two schedules upon Hansard, to clarify the position of supply up to this time.

The Hon. the Acting Speaker: Honourable senators, is it agreed?

Hon. Senators: Agreed.

(The statements follow)

ESTIMATES, 1966-67

(including Budgetary Expenditures and Loans, excluding Old Age Security Payments)

		Of which
	Total	Statutory	To be voted
Main Estimates	$ 8,283,224,878	$ 3,375,241,967	$ 4,907,982,911
Supplementary Estimates (A)	332,441,791		332,441,791
Supplementary Estimates (B)	177,027,000		177,027,000
	$ 8,792,693,669	$ 3,375,241,967	$ 5,417,451,702
(Payments from Old Age Security Fund	1,035,000,000
	$ 9,827,693,669)

SUPPLY, 1966-67

Appropriation Act No. 3, 1966:
Two-twelfths generally of the Main Estimates plus additional proportions of 24 special items to provide for expenditures to May 31.	$ 870,275,281.00
Appropriation Act No. 5*, 1966:
One-twelfth generally of the Main Estimates except for the one vote for which 11/12ths has already been granted plus additional proportions of 11 special items to provide for expenditures to June 30.	450,944,478.01
Appropriation Act No. 6, 1966:
This bill granted full supply for the Main Estimates for 10 departments	825,462,241.67
This Bill (Appropriation Act No. 7, 1966):
Four-twelfths generally of the balance of the Main Estimates except Finance Vote 15 for which a 3/12 proportion is hereby granted; and two votes for which no supply is granted plus additional proportions of 26 special items.
Seven-twelfths generally of the Supplementary Estimates (A) plus additional proportions of 10 special items.
Seven-twelfths generally of the Supplementary Estimates (B) plus additional proportion of 1 special item.
To provide for expenditures to October 31	$ 1,662,982,791.92
	3,809,664,792.60
Balance of tabled Estimates yet to be voted	1,607,786,909.40
Total to be voted, 1966-67	$ 5,417,451,702.00

*Appropriation Act No. 4 covered the final Supps for 1965-66.

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): Honourable senators, may I draw your attention to the schedules to the bill you have before you—and I hope each of you has a copy, because we have made a special effort to make a copy available to each honourable senator.

Schedule A, based on the main Estimates, proposes to grant the amount of $4,299,333.33, which is four-twelfths of the total of the amounts of the items mentioned in the schedule in question.

Under the Dominion Bureau of Statistics a certain additional proportion is required to cover the cost of taking the census, which was to be completed by June 1, 1966.

Under the Department of Mines and Technical Surveys, in the geological research department, the completion of the Calgary Regional Building required certain extra payments to be made. It is anticipated that the building will be finished in October of this year, and that is why a small additional amount is required there.

There are certain advances to be made under the Department of Transport to the Nanaimo Harbour Commission for the extension of the boat harbour at Commercial Inlet, Nanaimo. This additional proportion is required to meet the terms of the agreement with the port authority.

Also there is a new general cargo marine terminal in Toronto harbour, and additional proportions are required to cover payments to the commissioners, as stipulated in the agreement with that authority. That is the explanation I have with respect to Schedule A.

Schedule B is based on the main Estimates and is in the amount of $1,902,250.00, which is three-twelfths of the total of the several items in the schedule. There is an extra amount required to pay for a subsidy on eastern coal to enable Maritime thermal power plants to obtain coal at the same price as that paid by thermal power plants in central Canada. The additional proportions are required now due to a larger than normal carry-over of accounts for payment from 1965 to 1966.

Certain extra moneys are required for research and investigation on water resources under Vote 70 in the Estimates of the same department because of the activities which are concentrated in the summer months. The same applies to Vote 55 in Schedule C with respect to field activities in the summer months, and also to Vote 75 in respect of research and investigation on water resources and the construction and acquisition of buildings. Certain field parties are more active in the summer months than at other times, and that is why the additional amount is required over and above the four-twelfths generally asked for in this bill.

There is an extra amount asked for in connection with the Centennial Commission to provide for various Centennial programs of an historical, cultural or ceremonial character.

Hon. Mr. Isnor: What item is that?

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): Vote 40 in Schedule C. The total amount is $9,519,500.

Under the heading of "Loans, Investments and Advances" there is an item for the purchase of certain securities issued by the Canadian Corporation for the 1967 World Exhibition. This vote provides for the financing of the Canadian Government's share of the cost of the Exhibition through the purchase of the Corporation's bonds. The purchase of larger amounts of securities must be made in order to cover construction costs which happen to be particularly heavy at this time of the year.

An additional amount is required by the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority in connection with the twinning of the Welland Canal. The extra money is required to cover the amount outstanding for the purchase of additional lands in connection with this project.

Hon. Mr. Isnor: Will that be charged to the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority?

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): Yes. It is a loan granted to the Authority by the federal financial authority.

I come now, honourable senators, to Schedule D, the total amount of which is $16,293,229.17, which is one-twelfth of the total of the amounts of the several items in the schedule. The two items under the Department of Agriculture deal particularly with peak activities on research projects, land rehabilitation, irrigation and water storage projects during the summer months. It is at this time of the year that greater than normal bills are accumulated, and for this reason the extra amount is requested.

In the Department of Fisheries an additional amount is required for a capital project, namely, the completion of a large fisheries patrol vessel, as well as various construction projects on the east coast of Canada.

In the Department of Justice the additional amount is required for the administration of the office of the Superintendent of Bankruptcy, the Supreme Court of Canada, the Statute Revision Commission, and the Exchequer Court of Canada, and more especially to pay recoverable advances in connection with the administration of justice in the Yukon and the Northwest Territories.

In Schedule D, in the Department of Mines and Technical Surveys, there are five items, Votes 20, 25, 35, 45 and 60, which deal with surveys and research, and mining and metallurgical investigations and research, which work is more intense during the summertime because of the climatic conditions under which the field parties have to operate.

These five votes provide for non-capital expenditures. As I have stated, they deal mainly with the costs involved having to do with field parties at work during the summer.

Item 80 of Schedule D deals with the construction of dams and other works to assist in the conservation and control of water resources. The extra amount is required for certain provincial projects, namely, river channel improvements in the Upper Thames River in Ontario, the metro-Toronto region system of dams, reservoirs and channels, the greater Winnipeg floodway, and the north and west Vancouver flood control program.

Next, there are two items under Mines and Technical Surveys, one dealing with the polar continental shelf project, the other with the National Film Board, which projects again are more intensive in the summer months than at other times of the year and for that reason extra amounts are requested.

Hon. Mr. Hugessen: What is the polar continental shelf?

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): It is the continental shelf to the north of Canada beyond the mainland, and perhaps even beyond the islands there.

Under the Department of Northern Affairs and National Resources, again the maintenance and operation of the parks and historic sites, the wild life service, National Battlefields Commission—that work is more intensive during the summer months, and for that reason a slightly larger proportion than four-twelfths is required.

In the Department of Transport, likewise, an additional proportion is required due to the concentration of northern operations in the summer months in connection with the St. Lawrence and Saguenay Rivers ship channels and coastguard work. Again, as also in operations in the far north, these operations are intensified during the summer months and therefore extra percentages are required.

In Schedule E the amount involved is $5,709,522.67, and this is four-twelfths of the total amount of the items in the schedule.

In the agricultural lime assistance program under item 35a of the Department of Agriculture, payments are made to the provinces or to the farmers directly, and the bulk of this vote is for crop losses during the year ending March 31 last. I am informed that almost all of the claims have been filed and the extra percentage would be necessary to settle.

In the Department of Defence Production there is an extra amount requested in connection with the Emergency Measures Organization for the carrying out of a survey of large buildings for fallout protection in the event of atomic explosions. I understand that this work is done more intensively during the summer months.

May I draw to the attention of honourable senators the items under the Department of National Defence for contribution to the Government of Manitoba in connection with the costs relating to the flooding of the Red River in 1966. Here again there is a cost-sharing arrangement to be determined by Canada in consultation with Manitoba. The bulk of this vote will be required before October 31 next.

For the Department of Mines and Technical Surveys there is an additional amount required for the construction of a western regional office building in Calgary. It is expected that the building will be completed in October.

Under the Department of Transport the Saskatchewan wheat elevator was relocated, and $250,000 was granted for this purpose and will be required shortly because the relocation has been completed and all of the claims received.

Again, under the Department of Transport there are certain moneys required for widening McKay Pier and filling and grading the Expo parking lot, and other projects. This work is expected to be completed within a month, and that extra percentage would be required before October 31 next.

Schedule F deals with Supplementary Estimates A which are before the Finance Committee and would authorize additional proportions in the amount of $8,459,333.33. This amount is two-twelfths of the items in the schedule. The first of these, under the Department of Finance, arises from the fact that there have been revisions in several classes of the Public Service since the main Estimates were prepared: group A, interim and final; group D, interim; and group B, interim. Group B final revisions will be dealt with during the period for which supply is being asked now and therefore the extra amount will be required.

In the Department of Mines and Technical Surveys there are research and investigation on water resource matters which will require additional payments to be made before October 31. One of these votes provides for the purchase of capital items for the Water Research Branch as well as the construction or reconstruction of gauge stations and the planning and procurements of sites for several new buildings for research.

Under the consolidation of the National Research Council there are items for scholarships for research at Canadian universities. Most of these payments are required to be made early in the academic year, before October 31, and for that reason the additional amount is asked.

May I direct the Senate's attention now to Schedule G in the amount of $966,666.67 which is one-twelfth of the items in the schedule. These are loans, investments and advances in the Department of Mines and Technical Surveys to provide assistance on a loan basis to the Atlantic provinces for the production of power for industrial purposes. This assistance, which will be repaid over a 30- or 40-year period, is for thermal power projects, electrical transmission lines or thermal stations. There has been a carryover of accounts for the previous year.

Hon. Mr. Isnor: Is that to be charged up to publicly-owned utilities in those provinces?

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): Yes. The last of the schedules is Schedule H, which grants $50 million, being four-twelfths of the amount of the items. It would permit the Minister of Finance to acquire securities issued by the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development and would allow the Government also to have some flexibility in connection with the loan requirements over the next four months.

Honourable senators, may I direct your attention respectfully to the bill itself. I need not go into detail on section 2, as I have given already the particulars of all of the schedules referred to. The amount authorized by the act to be paid in respect of any item may be paid or applied only in respect of the matters specified in this item. Where a commitment is to be entered into, that commitment may be entered into only in accordance with the terms of the item, if the Comptroller of the Treasury certifies that it does not exceed the total amount of the commitment authorized in the item.

Under section 5, the Governor in Council is authorized to raise loans up to $750 million. Authority has been granted so far to raise loans in the amount of $1 billion. This addition of $750 million will bring the borrowing authority into line with the level of borrowing authority in the years 1964-65 and 1965-66, and it is lower than any of the other years back to 1960-61, when it was $1,500,000,000.

Honourable senators, this is a bill of interim supply. The items are open. Any one of them may be discussed in the Committee on Finance. Since it is generally supplying four months requirements up to October 31, 1966, I commend it to the Senate for approval.

Hon. M. Wallace McCutcheon: Honourable senators, I am sure we are all very grateful to the Leader of the Senate (Hon. Mr. Connolly Ottawa West) for the detailed explanation which he has given to us with respect to Bill C-226. As he said, this is a bill for interim supply and it is in the usual form.

I think, generally speaking, all honourable senators would agree that with our Finance Committee operating as it is, and with senators free to call for any matters which they wish to be brought before that committee, it would be a work of supererogation to attempt to go through the Estimates item by item this evening or even to ask questions about them. With all due respect to the leader, I suspect we might get better or quicker answers in the Standing Committee on Finance.

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): Both better and quicker.

Hon. Mr. McCutcheon: Let us say quicker—I will settle for quicker.

As all honourable senators know, an occasion like this is an opportunity to make a speech on any matter at all. As I left Toronto this afternoon I had two speeches in my pocket, and at one time I thought I might deliver both. I thought I might make a speech about foreign affairs, particularly about events in Southeast Asia, and discuss the position of a government which has no position, of a government which takes no posture but which repeatedly congratulates itself on the contribution it is making to world peace, although some of us whose vision may not be that of the Secretary of State for External Affairs are unable to see just what that contribution is. However, I decided there would be another occasion on which I could make that speech, and I am not going to burden honourable senators with it this evening.

I was very interested to see that by and large we are being asked to pass four months' interim supply. The Leader of the Government in the Senate, in answer to my interjection, stated he hoped that when we recess—if and when we do—we would not be returning until October. Then I thought about the other speech I had ready to deliver, and I must confess I am not quite as optimistic as the Leader of the Government. I say this because this other speech—and I may get a chance to deliver it during discussion of a bill which we expect to receive before the end of this week—refers to labour matters and the general ineptness of this Government in the field of management-labour relations. It deals with the failure of the Government to distinguish between collective bargaining and capitulation, and to its taking a position which has resulted in the termination of negotiations with the railway unions at a point when they were about to be settled on a basis satisfactory both to labour and to the company. I greatly fear, unless of course the Government capitulates completely and sacrifices the economy of the country even more, that we shall probably be back here in August or early September to deal with this question.

However, you will be delighted to know that I merely mention these speeches to indicate that I intend to deal with these matters at greater length on what may be a more appropriate occasion than at a quarter to ten this evening.

With those words I indicate that we have no objection to this bill being passed.

Motion agreed to and bill read second time.

THIRD READING

The Hon. the Acting Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this bill be read the third time?

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): Honourable senators, with leave of the Senate, I move that the bill be read the third time now.

Motion agreed to and bill read third time and passed.

ROYAL ASSENT

NOTICE

The Hon. the Acting Speaker informed the Senate that he had received the following communication:

GOVERNMENT HOUSE
Ottawa

11th July, 1966.

Sir,

I have the honour to inform you that the Hon. Emmett M. Hall, Puisne Judge of the Supreme Court of Canada, acting as Deputy to His Excellency the Governor General, will proceed to the Senate Chamber today, the 11th July, at 9.45 p.m., for the purpose of giving Royal Assent to certain bills.

I have the honour to be,
Sir,
Your obedient servant,
Esmond Butler
Secretary to the Governor General.

The Honourable
The Speaker of the Senate.

STATUTE LAW (SUPERANNUATION) AMENDMENT BILL, 1966

BILL TO AMEND—CONCURRENCE BY COMMONS IN SENATE AMENDMENT

The Hon. the Acting Speaker informed the Senate that a message had been received from the House of Commons acquainting the Senate that they had agreed to the amendment made by the Senate to Bill C-193, to amend the Public Service Superannuation Act, the Canadian Forces Superannuation Act, the Defence Services Pension Continuation Act, the Royal Canadian Mounted Police Superannuation Act, the Diplomatic Service (Special) Superannuation Act, the Intercolonial and Prince Edward Island Railways Employees' Provident Fund Act and the Canadian Corporation for the 1967 World Exhibition Act, without any amendment.

The Senate adjourned during pleasure.

ROYAL ASSENT

The Honourable Emmett M. Hall, Deputy of His Excellency the Governor General, having come and being seated at the foot of the Throne, and the House of Commons having been summoned and being come with their Speaker, the Honourable the Deputy of His Excellency the Governor General was pleased to give Royal Assent to the following bills:

An Act respecting Canadian Pacific Railway Company.

An Act respecting Canadian Pacific Railway Company.

An Act to amend the Canada Student Loans Act.

An Act to amend the Excise Tax Act.

An Act to amend the Customs Tariff.

An Act to ament the Bankruptcy Act.

An Act to provide for the establishment of a fund for the economic and social development of special rural development areas.

An Act to provide for the establishment of The Company of Young Canadians.

An Act to provide for the establishment of a Dairy Commission for Canada.

An Act to provide for the establishment of a Health Resources Fund to assist provinces in the acquisition, construction and renovation of health training facilities and research institutions.

An Act to amend the Atlantic Development Board Act.

An Act respecting the construction by Canadian National Railway Company of a line of railway in the Province of Manitoba from the vicinity of Stall Lake on the Chisel Lake Subdivision of Canadian National Railways in a northeasterly direction for a distance of approximately 12 miles to a point in the vicinity of Osborne Lake in The Pas Mining District of that Province, and of a line of railway in the Province of Saskatchewan from the vicinity of Watrous on the Watrous Subdivision of the said Railways in a northeasterly direction for a distance of approximately 18 miles to a point in the vicinity of Guernsey in the Regina Mining District of that Province.

An Act to authorize the Minister of Finance to transfer to the Provinces a proportion of the income tax payable by certain public utility companies.

An Act to amend the Exchequer Court Act.

An Act to incorporate Canadian Board of Missions of the Church of God (General Offices: Anderson, Indiana).

An Act to incorporate The International Society of Endocrinology.

An Act to incorporate Mennonite Central Committee (Canada).

An Act respecting United Baptist Woman's Missionary Union of the Maritime Provinces.

An Act to incorporate Lutheran Church in America—Canada Section.

An Act to amend the Crop Insurance Act.

An Act to amend the Public Service Superannuation Act, the Canadian Forces Superannuation Act, the Defence Services Pension Continuation Act, the Royal Canadian Mounted Police Superannuation Act, the Diplomatic Service (Special) Superannuation Act, the Intercolonial and Prince Edward Island Railways Employees' Provident Fund Act and the Canadian Corporation for the 1967 World Exhibition Act.

The Honourable Lucien Lamoureux, Speaker of the House of Commons, then addressed the Honourable the Deputy of His Excellency the Governor General as follows:

May it please Your Honour:

The Commons of Canada have voted certain supplies required to enable the Government to defray the expenses of the public service.

In the name of the Commons, I present to Your Honour the following bills:

An Act for granting to Her Majesty certain sums of money for the public service for the financial year ending the 31st March, 1967.

An Act for granting to Her Majesty certain sums of money for the public service for the financial year ending the 31st March, 1967.

To which bills I humbly request Your Honour's assent.

The Honourable the Deputy of His Excellency the Governor General was pleased to give the Royal Assent to the said bills.

The House of Commons withdrew.

The Honourable the Deputy of His Excellency the Governor General was pleased to retire.

The sitting of the Senate was resumed.

The Senate adjourned until tomorrow at 3 p.m.

THE SENATE

Tuesday, July 12, 1966

The Senate met at 3 p.m., the Speaker in the Chair.

Prayers.

NEW SENATOR

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, I have the honour to inform the Senate that the Clerk has received a certificate from the Secretary of State of Canada showing that

J. G. Leopold Langlois, Esquire has been summoned to the Senate.

NEW SENATOR INTRODUCED

The Hon. the Speaker having informed the Senate that there was a senator without, waiting to be introduced:

The following honourable senator was introduced; presented Her Majesty's writ of summons, which was read by the Clerk Assistant; took the legally prescribed oath, which was administered by the Clerk, and was seated:

Hon. J. G. Leopold Langlois, of Quebec City, Quebec, introduced between Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West) and Hon. Mr. Bourget.

The Hon. the Speaker informed the Senate that the honourable senator named above had made and subscribed the declaration of qualification required by the British North America Act, 1867, in the presence of the Clerk of the Senate, the Commissioner appointed to receive and witness the said declaration.

DOCUMENTS TABLED

Hon. John J. Connolly tabled:

White Paper on Broadcasting, 1966. (English and French texts).

Report of Canadian Overseas Telecommunication Corporation, including its Accounts and Financial Statements certified by the Auditor General, for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1966, pursuant to sections 22 and 23(1) of the Canadian Overseas Telecommunication Act, chapter 42, and sections 85(3) and 87(3) of the Financial Administration Act, chapter 116, R.S.C., 1952. (English and French texts).

CANADA ASSISTANCE PLAN BILL

AUTHORITY TO PRINT COMMITTEE PROCEEDINGS

Hon. Salter A. Hayden, Chairman of the Standing Committee on Banking and Commerce, presented the following report of the committee on Bill C-207, to authorize the making of contributions by Canada towards the cost of programs for the provision of assistance and welfare services to and in respect of persons in need:

> Your committee recommends that authority be granted for the printing of 800 copies in English and 300 copies in French of its proceedings on the said bill.

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this report be taken into consideration?

Hon. Mr. Hayden: I move, with leave of the Senate, that the report be adopted now.

Report adopted.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE

Hon. Mr. Hayden, Chairman of the Standing Committee on Banking and Commerce, reported that the committee had considered Bill C-207, to authorize the making of contributions by Canada towards the cost of programs for the provision of assistance and welfare services to and in respect of persons in need, and had directed that the bill be reported without amendment.

THIRD READING

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this bill be read the third time?

Hon. John J. Connolly: Honourable senators, with leave of the Senate, I move that this bill be read the third time now.

Hon. David A. Croll: Honourable senators, before this bill receives third reading I should like to make a few observations with respect to it and to indicate that in my opinion it is a long step forward. I consider it a welcome bill indeed. For the first time we shall have a single comprehensive system of public assistance. To one who has been associated with public assistance since the days of the depth of the depression in the middle thirties, such a bill as this is what dreams are made of.

This bill helps people to help themselves, and will prevent another generation from going through what previous generations have suffered. I have seen four generations on public welfare in this country, and that is four generations too many. This bill has the possibilities of correcting that condition.

The measure recognizes a vitally important fact, namely, that money is not the complete answer to all our economic and social problems, that there is a need for education, for mental health facilities, job training, economic counselling, and other matters that have been discussed here and in committee. Moreover, the approach is such that I think it will help to break the sense of isolation, the demoralization and the feeling of hopelessness and strangulation that has plagued welfare recipients for so many days.

One of the things that troubles all of us is the means test, the needs test and the income test that came from the Senate Aging Committee.

Hon. Mr. McCutcheon: Which of course still continue under the bill.

Hon. Mr. Croll: The means test, as Senator O'Leary said, is a hangover from the Elizabethan era, but we have lived with it far too long. Now we have a needs test instead. It is an improvement; it has something about it that is really worth while, because for the first time in the history of this country we look at the totality of the family and what are its needs and how we are to meet those needs. In that respect it has much to commend it.

Of course the bill could have gone a step further and accepted the easy, handy, efficient and less costly income test, as was recommended by the Senate Committee on Aging. I presume that will come a little later after the Government has had an opportunity to weigh the wisdom of the Senate of Canada. This measure does provide a sound basis for a progressive approach to public assistance, and for the first time it gives leadership in the social welfare field which has been too long neglected. It is bold in this respect, that it guarantees to Canadians in need, as of right, a modest but adequate income. This is being done for the first time as a matter of right by virtue of the fact that the person affected is a member of a Canadian community. In addition to that, it accepts responsibility for all needs.

Hon. Mr. McCutcheon: If the provinces decide to do that.

Hon. Mr. Croll: I am sure that the various provinces are as anxious to enter into an agreement as is the federal Government itself. As a matter of fact, three provinces have a plan like this one, or at least have been working on it for some time. The Province of Alberta, to my knowledge, has had it in effect for a period of two or three years. Manitoba is nibbling at it, and Saskatchewan has had a piece of it here and there. All of the provinces have been trying to meet the needs of the people. To that extent they have had some valuable experience.

In addition, the plan has flexibility. It is able to deal with many things that cannot now be foreseen. Of course the plan has some disadvantages too, and we might as well face up to them because it will give us an opportunity to correct them in the days ahead. In cases where a provincial government is stingy or has not the funds, the recipient can be worse off because in these matching grants the have-not government is at a great disadvantage. There is a lack of uniformity. Under the Old Age Security everybody in Canada received a fixed number of dollars. Under the family allowances they received a fixed number of dollars. That seems to be the fair way to handle the situation. However, under this measure there may be a disparity between welfare benefits in the "have" province as against welfare benefits in the "have-not" province. This condition may grow, and it is something we will have to examine from time to time.

I am not going to argue the means test, although there is a little of it still available under the categorical projects. The objection has always been that a man resents the fact that he has to prove he is a pauper. It is tough enough to be poor without having to prove it. We should be thankful that we have finally got away from it, at least in the concept in which it began. It will disappear before long and we will evolve a new scheme to meet the needs.

I said there were disparities between the "have" provinces and the "have-not" provinces. This matter should concern the Senate very much.

You will remember when we were discussing winter works that money was available on a matching basis, and Ontario and Quebec walked away with the lion's share, as they could match whatever the dominion would make available.

You will remember also the retraining bill we had before us. If you take note of the figures placed on record in committee, you will see that there too Ontario and Quebec walked off with the lion's share of the money. They could take advantage of the scheme, while some of the other provinces, whose need was great, could not do so as they did not have the money.

On the other hand, in the Health Resources Bill, you will have noted that for the Atlantic provinces a special grant of $25 million was set aside over and above what would come to them normally. That seems to me to be meeting the situation, at least in some respects.

I had hoped that the basis of contribution would be on a per capita basis, plus the previous experience of four or five years, that is, plus the amount they traditionally spend for public welfare, and that the federal Government would come in and contribute whatever else was necessary to keep an equal standard or at least keep the base across the country.

One of the shortcomings of the bill is the lack of an adequate minimum standard, the failure to say that a certain amount must be provided. We had a thorough discussion about the needs test with Alberta when we were in the Committee on Aging. I think what they were paying out averaged roughly $90 or $95 per person. The cost of housing made a great deal of difference in the province; it was a great variable. I do not wish to be taken as saying that this bill is in any way inadequate, because I started off by saying it was a long step forward.

Hon. Mr. Choquette: There is no danger of your ever doing that.

Hon. Mr. Croll: I am delighted that my friend recognizes that.

Hon. Mr. Choquette: But you put the finishing touch to it. It is always a better bill when you are through with it.

Hon. Mr. Croll: I have taken a fair look at this bill, thinking about it, looking at its good points and its bad points.

Hon. Mr. Fournier (De Lanaudière): What was the question? I did not get the question.

Hon. Mr. Choquette: I did not ask one.

Hon. Mr. Croll: He said I was a loyal Liberal.

Hon. Mr. Fournier (De Lanaudière): That is what I am, too.

Hon. Mr. Walker: When it comes to voting it never fails.

Hon. Mr. Croll: I think you are right.

Much has been said on the bill, and many contributions were made yesterday. We went over the bill this morning in committee and it was adequately explained by the minister, who seemed to have an answer for each question and a complete grasp of the situation.

I am not going to deal with some of the matters raised yesterday in connection with the cost of welfare. Although it is interesting to note that we do not lead the world in percentages of expenditure for welfare services, we are in the top six. I must say I am very proud of that record. I tried to get confirmation of the population of Canada about the turn of the century. As most of us know, it was then about five million. In 1931 it was about 10 million, and our gross national product at that time was $27 billion. The latest figures I have indicate that it is now $54 billion and our population is nearly 20 million. That is a considerable change for the good.

It is of interest to note that government expenditures on health and social welfare as a percentage of the gross national product in 1962-63 for various countries was as follows:

New Zealand	12.1
United Kingdom	10.5
Canada	9.4
Australia	8.2
United States	7.00

Hon. Mr. Grosart: Is that for the federal Government only or for all governments in Canada?

Hon. Mr. Croll: I think it is the federal Government only, but I am not certain.

Hon. Mr. Grosart: If that is so Canada will be away ahead of everybody else because the levels for the provincial governments are also very high.

Hon. Mr. Croll: The others would probably have the same situation.

Hon. Mr. Walker: Not England and not New Zealand.

Hon. Mr. Croll: It may be all governments. It says here "Government Expenditure on Health and Social Welfare as Per Cent of Gross National Product at Market Prices, Selected Countries, 1958-59 to 1962-63." The comparison was made between various countries, so I would imagine that all governments must have been included.

Hon. Mr. Fournier (De Lanaudière): What is the source of the information?

Hon. Mr. Croll: The Canadian Department of National Health and Welfare, Social Security Expenses, January 1965. That is the source of my figures. They come from the Department of National Health and Welfare.

Hon. Mr. Fournier (De Lanaudière): I suppose that is for Canada.

Hon. Mr. Croll: In comparison with other countries.

Hon. Mr. Prowse: What was the gross figure for Canada for the last year?

Hon. Mr. Croll: In 1963 it was 9.4 per cent of the gross national product.

I have some other figures here which are also interesting. The percentage of social security expenditures for old age benefits and survival benefits in five selected countries, including Canada, are as follows:

United States	36.1
United Kingdom	35.1
New Zealand	31.1
Australia	29.1
Canada	22.00

As honourable senators will see, the United States is the highest, the United Kingdom is second and New Zealand is third.

On family allowances New Zealand is first with the following percentages:

New Zealand	21.5
Canada	13.7
Australia	10.5
United Kingdom	5.00

In unemployment benefits we are at the top of the list with the following percentages:

Canada	14.9
United States	8.5
United Kingdom	3.4
Australia	1.7
New Zealand	00.1

For disability benefits the percentage table is as follows:

United Kingdom	6.9
United States	5.5
Australia	4.9
New Zealand	2.2
Canada	1.2

Hon. Mr. Brooks: Might I ask the honourable senator whether in the instance in which Canada is leading, the figure indicates that we had more unemployment in this country than in other countries?

Hon. Mr. Croll: No. It indicates we have paid better benefits.

Hon. Mr. Brooks: If you had no unemployment you would not be paying benefits.

Hon. Mr. Croll: We on this side of the house are very proud, as is everybody I am sure, that we have the lowest unemployment figure in this country for almost a generation. It is down to 2.9 per cent, or perhaps 3 per cent, which is considered full employment for all practical purposes. In fact we are having trouble living with this situation. For years we have been accustomed to struggling with the problem of unemployment, and now that we have that problem solved we find ourselves faced with other difficulties as a result.

Hon. Mr. Brooks: The comparison is with other countries.

Hon. Mr. Croll: Yes. But when I spoke of unemployement benefits you suggested we would not have to pay them if we did not have unemployment. I am saying now that we have minimal unemployment at the present time. However, comparisons are not always good. I thought those figures would be useful.

Hon. Mr. Fournier (De Lanaudière): I could not follow the honourable senator in all his figures. May I ask him to repeat the figures he gave, with a word of explanation so that we will understand them.

Hon. Mr. Croll: Senator, you will forgive me if I take your question under advisement for the moment. Let me say that this legislation is what those of us who are aware of the situation and have been connected with the social welfare field refer to as foot-in-the-door legislation. From now on the only thing that can happen to this legislation is that it will be improved upon from year to year to the point where we will be able to deal with people such as the disabled, the chronically ill, the blind, the unemployable on a basis of a modest but adequate income, by way of guaranteed annual income, and thus relieve their families of the responsibility for their support, and they in turn can go out and try to make their own way in the world. In this way we are not in the position of perpetuating "reliefism."

This bill has great possibilities, and for that reason I was anxious to discuss it further and associate myself with it.

Motion agreed to and bill read third time and passed.

CONSERVATION OF WATER RESOURCES

DEBATE CONTINUED

The Senate resumed from Tuesday, June 14, the adjourned debate on the inquiry of the honourable Senator Gershaw, calling the attention of the Senate to the need for conserving Canada's water resources.

Hon. Donald Cameron: Honourable senators, when my colleague Senator Gershaw introduced this subject some few weeks ago I hoped we might have a full debate on it. Then when my colleague from Saskatchewan continued to debate the subject I thought we were well on the way to having such a discussion. However, as the session progressed there seemed to be a feeling that we might hold this over until the fall and then continue a full-fledged debate.

I went out to my western office last week and took with me some of the notes I intended to use, because we were in the process of organizing a western regional conference on water resources. Consequently, when the Leader of the Government came to me this afternoon and said it would be helpful if I would resume the debate today I had not realized some notes I was looking for were now safely ensconced in Banff, which is a very pleasant place to be—I understand that it is 56 degrees there today instead of the 90 degrees we are experiencing here. I turned in this morning some reference material I had had from the library, and I rushed down to see if I could get it back, only to find that my colleague Senator O'Leary (Carleton) had just got it, and I would not think of trying to extract it from him on very short notice. However, I think it important we spend some time discussing this very important topic.

I want to emphasize that this is probably the largest and most costly economic problem that Canada must face in the next ten to 20 years. It is a complex problem because it involves all levels of Government, federal, provincial and municipal. It involves constitutional aspects which are at once difficult and complicated, and will call for a great deal of co-operation and understanding between governments. It involves industry in a very large and costly way, and decisions must be made soon as to how the costs of pollution control are to be apportioned.

I am sure you are all aware that the National Council of Resources Ministers will be meeting in Montreal at the end of October and will be discussing this very problem, so a start has been made on studying the matter. It involves health and recreation on an enormous scale, and that this can be a highly charged emotional issue we have seen illustrated by the appalling lengths of distortion and misrepresentation to which certain wildlife associations, the Audubon Societies and other self-appointed groups went last winter in defeating Canada's bid for the 1972 Olympic Games to be held in Banff, on the flimsy excuse that the clearing out of a few ski runs would indefinitely damage water conservation, the prospects of the national parks, the wildlife potential of the national parks, and so on. They even went so far as to cable our representatives on the International Olympic Committee meeting in Rome. I simply cite this as an illustration of how excited and emotional people can become over this particular issue. It involves people on a massive scale, because in the age of electronics and shorter hours, leisure-time recreation will call for a massive re-organization of our whole concept of education for leisure.

The foregoing are just a few of the issues on which we will have to arrive at some major decisions in the very near future.

Above all, we should understand that we must have a national water policy, and I suggest that the Parliament of Canada should at the earliest opportunity take the necessary steps, in co-operation with the provinces, to set up a federal-provincial water resources board. Such a board would involve enabling legislation by both federal and provincial governments. It should be a board of experts representing every phase of the life of the nation—agriculture, business and industry, health and education, and government. It should be set up after the pattern of the Economic Council with the same resources of expertise and study. The National Council of Resource Ministers, to which I referred a moment ago, marks a beginning in this area, but we need to go much further than they are able to go.

In digging into this subject I was reminded that in the late twenties, when I was a student taking geology at the University of Alberta under a very distinguished geologist, Dr. Ralph Rutherford, he said at that time, which was 37 years ago, that water conservation was the single most serious problem Canada would have to face in the years to come. He referred to the very serious lowering of the water table from one end of the country to the other. As evidence of that he referred specifically to the Peace River country at that time; but now every time we have a dry spell in Ontario the wells in the Ottawa Valley go dry. It is just one more piece of evidence of the fact that the water table is going down literally before our eyes.

To the westerner, who has seen the tumbleweed and wild mustard in Alberta, Saskatchewan and British Columbia, three inches of rain is the biggest fact of life, and what we do with that moisture, how we conserve it, is the most important issue in that country, because three inches of rain spells the difference between 40 bushels of wheat to the acre and 5 or 6 bushels. It spells the difference between fat cattle on the range lands and thin, scrawny cattle getting a bare living on Russian thistle. So, we in the west are particularly concerned with the matter of water conservation.

As evidence of what water conservation and control can do I would refer to the Lethbridge Northern Irrigation District as one of the pioneer schemes. This whole area of southern Alberta between Lethbridge and Medicine Hat in the twenties was almost a desert, and we had an exodus of people which was one of the saddest sights in this country. When that irrigation district was put on a sound economic basis the country began to prosper and develop. One can go around the area of Raymond, Taber and Lethbridge in the fall and see that it is literally a land of milk and honey, a very productive land, with many healthy and prosperous communities.

Also one can go down, as some honourable senators may have done, to the Grande Coulee Dam. I remember that in the thirties we used to drive across a desert from Spokane to Seattle, and we had to take extra water for the car because if the radiator boiled dry there was no place at which to get water. That whole area of the Grande Coulee in Washington was literally a desert. After the dam was built irrigation was started and the whole country blossomed like a rose, and it is now one of the most productive agricultural areas of the United States. That area has gone from a desert to a garden in ten years.

I spent some time in Arizona in the winter of 1954-55, and I was interested to find that that small state of some three and a half million people had spent $36 million in making concrete runways for their irrigation canals, and putting concrete covers over the canals so that they would not lose as much water by evaporation. Those who have heard the story of the wetbacks crossing the Rio Grande to get into the United States find it rather amusing to see the Rio Grande today. When I was there, there was not enough water at El Paso to wet your feet, let alone wet your back. What rivers there are in that part of the country are empty. The water is in the irrigation canals and is being radically conserved.

If honourable senators were to drive from Calgary to New Orleans, a distance of 2,700 miles, as I have done on more than one occasion, they will find that 2,200 of those 2,700 miles is mostly desert land. A tremendous proportion of the American country is dry.

There was some criticism a few years ago when the Government of the day initiated the South Saskatchewan Dam project. I was one of those who supported it from the very beginning. While it is a costly project, it is something that will pay for itself ten times over in the years to come. It will completely convert the life of that country from an unstable, one-shot economy to a healthy diversified and prosperous economy. If you go into my own Province of Alberta and visit the Milk River Dam you will see the same results.

People are concerned today about the proper use and conservation of this resource, and it is high time. Programs like the P.F.R.A. in modest form have changed the basic livelihood of dry area communities. The Special Areas Board, which operated in some areas of Alberta south of Hanna in the twenties, made a start with these first dams. People dammed up coulees and runways in order to grow feed. That was the start of the P.F.R.A. program, although it had no such name at that time. That modest experiment through the drought of 1925 changed the stability of that country, and gave some prosperity to the people who lived there.

We have also in the west the Eastern Rockies Water Conservation Board which is designed to protect these sources of the great rivers of the western plains.

Again, if honourable senators look over the international scene they will observe that many international quarrels are over water and water conservation. In India and Pakistan the tension started or was aggravated by the control of the Indus River. I have flown over that country from the source of the Indus to see what has happened. This river literally disappears into the sands of the desert as it goes along. The India-Pakistan conflict, while embracing other issues, is one illustration of tension over the use of water. All honourable senators are familiar with the battles between Israel and Egypt over the Nile River and the irrigation of the Negev Desert. There is the same situation between Sudan and her neighbours.

Wherever you go today you will find tremendous water conservation projects, and tremendous tree planting projects to prevent runoff and soil erosion. I was in China a few weeks ago and I travelled 2,100 miles from the Chinese border to away beyond Peking, and I saw the most massive reforestation program I have ever seen anywhere in the world. People were carrying water up the mountains by hand to feed the shrubs because they have not our system of mobile pumping stations which make it possible to irrigate above the dams. In other words, water is one of the greatest and most controversial resources we have to deal with in the world today.

In the last few years we have been hearing of one of the most spectacular programs in the way of expenditure of public funds that has ever been heard of. I refer to The North American Water and Power Alliance, a scheme which if implemented will call for an expenditure of $150 billion, and one that is mainly concerned with our water. This is something that we have to keep in mind, and I intend to say more about it at another time.

We were all rather sad to learn yesterday that a man who has had a tremendous amount to do with conserving Canada's water supplies, the late General A. G. L. McNaughton, died. He was a man who made a tremendous contribution in the conservation of Canada's rights, particularly in the field of water resources. Just one month ago at the Learned Societies' meetings in Sherbrooke, General McNaughton and Senator Moss from Idaho read papers on this project. If time permitted I would have liked to quote something from those papers, but I do not propose to do so this afternoon. Great interest was shown in the two sides of this issue of what to do with Canada's resources, and how they might be developed. The fear that Canadian resources might be exploited with disastrous results for Canada was discussed in some detail by these two men at that particular conference.

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa): If the honourable senator does not mind an interruption at this point, I wonder if he would indicate whether those papers are published, and if so where they can be found.

Hon. Mr. Cameron: They will be published in the proceedings of the Learned Societies. Fairly good summaries of them appeared in the Financial Post of June 18, and a preview of them appeared in the Montreal Star of June 8. As I say, I should like to leave a more detailed discussion of this tremendous project to a later time, because it has great implications not only for western Canada but for all of Canada. Many Americans today are talking very seriously about this tremendously imaginative project that will cost $150 billion and which would completely change not only the economy of the American west and southwest but even the situation in the Great Lakes, and have a tremendous effect on our Canadian Rocky Mountain Trench area as well.

A friend of mine, who is the President of the Alberta Society of Professional Engineers, wrote a letter to the Prime Minister and some other people not long ago, from which I should like to quote in part. It is a letter written by John F. McDougall of Edmonton, and it reads in part:

> This country of ours is richly endowed with natural resources such as petroleum, natural gas, coal, metallic minerals, forests, fisheries and fertile soil; but the most abundant and valuable resource of all is water. Water is the one ingredient common and essential to every industry and every manufacturing process.
>
> In spite of water shortages in localized areas there are many persons to whom

> Canada appears to have an inexhaustable supply or even an overabundance of this all important gift of nature. But we need only look at our great neighbour to the south to see how quickly a water deficiency can be created through extravagance, waste and pollution.
>
> And now the United States is casting covetous eyes on Canada's water supply as the easiest and cheapest way of making up the water shortage it faces because of mismanagement and inadequate planning in the use of its own waters. Powerful forces in the United States have embarked upon a campaign aimed at bamboozling Canada out of its water resources and are issuing misleading and erroneous statements to the effect that Canada has a surplus of water in its northern territories, because the full potential of these waters is not being used at the present time.

Remember, I am reading from this engineer's letter—these are not my words.

> Would-be plunderers blatantly refer to water as a continental resource and dream up grandiose schemes such as the so-called North American Water and Power Alliance, commonly known as NAWAPA. Both inside and outside Canada much credence is given to the fact that water is a self-renewing resource and that the world stock is constant. The truth of the matter is that through man's own abuses and neglect the world supply of clean, sweet water is dwindling at an alarming pace.
>
> False analogies are drawn between the export of water and the export of other resources. With the sole exception of water, science has produced or can produce substitutes. For water there is no substitute; but for dirty water there is a cure.
>
> The following comments are taken from an article appearing in the May 1966 issue of The Atlantic under the title "Death of the Sweet Waters", the author being Donald E. Carr, a veteran research chemist in the United States.
>
> "...NAWAPA is by far the biggest public works project ever considered. However, it contains internal defects that should oblige us to reflect on our whole continental philosophy of water. NAWAPA would double our irrigation water supply, but do we want more irrigated land? It would create a 'Northwest Passage', but what good is that? It would give Mexico the equivalent of an Aswan Dam, but are we in the business of growing Mexican cotton? It would make the Great Lakes deeper, but is that a good way to solve the sickening pollution of Lake Erie and Lake Michigan?
>
> In a sense, NAWAPA is an agricultural pork barrel for the farmers of three countries. It is based on the erroneous premise that we have a basic water shortage in most of North America. In fact, we have a shortage only of clean water.

Honourable senators will mark this part, because many engineers concerned with water conservation are beginning to challenge the concept of big dams, because big dams fill up. To continue:

> Building a big dam and a reservoir for flushing purposes is one way to try to clean up a river. But it is a very inefficient and very expensive way to cope with pollution. It would not solve, for example, one of the most critical poison-water dilemmas—how to remove trace quantities of dangerous organic chemical wastes. There is another defect in this method of getting more clean water; storage dams represent essentially an irreversible action committed upon a river. The river is tied in chains. If you decide later you must treat the river water instead of diluting it, you have already built your monument of concrete and must pay the interest on it. Acreage has been inundated.
>
> In New York Governor Rockefeller's $1.7 billion program for abatement of water pollution, if coupled with reduction of losses and installation of full water metering (New York City loses twice as much water in its transmission system—400 million gallons a day—as the city of Boston uses), would go further to relieve the local famine than such airily conceived notions as diverting water from Canada.
>
> What must somehow be pounded into the heads of the people who govern us is that as far as the eye can see into the future, our big problem in water is pollution. The problem of water shortages is a problem of treating dirty water, whether the dirt is in the form of municipal sewage, industrial waste, salt, or silt."

Canada is fortunate in that so many of its rivers rise and terminate within its own boundaries. Its control of these waters is absolute and will remain so unless it surrenders its sovereignty. Unfortunately, Canada's history, especially before it gained complete mastery of its own household, is full of give-aways, sell-outs and surrenders to the United States by spineless, incompetent or indifferent politicians.

The unilateral enunciation of a continental concept on water resources smacks of the Hitler tactics before Munich and if Canada capitulates on this vital issue it will become and henceforth remain a vassal of the United States. Water cannot be loaned. Once it is diverted across an international boundary it may never be repossessed.

It is therefore imperative that the federal and provincial governments jointly develop and steadfastly adhere to a water resources policy embracing the whole sphere of water conservation and utilization which will guarantee in perpetuity that all storage reservoirs created, and all stream diversions undertaken, be so designed and managed as to bring the maximum long-range social and economic benefits to Canada; that they will be used to attract industry to Canada, and not for the purpose of bolstering industries in a foreign country to the detriment of this country's growth and development, as the proposed North American Water and Power Alliance or similar schemes are intended to do. Shortsighted squandering of this priceless asset for political prestige or the quick buck must not be tolerated.

I am not anti-American but I am pro-Canadian. Nor am I dogmatically opposed to water export per se. But dazzlingly colossal projects such as the proposed North American Water and Power Alliance are an insult to Canada's sovereignty and it should be stated emphatically and unequivocally that Canada's interpretation of NAWAPA is—"Not All Waters are Providentially American."

That is the end of Mr. McDougall's letter. The other night I was travelling by plane, and a man sitting next to me, an engineer, said that he was on his way to Edmonton, Alberta, to meet with the water resources board in that province. He said that the following day he was going to speak in Denver, Colorado, on the diversion of water from the Hudson Bay area to the Great Lakes. That is by way of background.

I would like now to come to a few of the points in connection with the need for a national water conservation policy, and I shall deal with the arguments in favour of it.

Land and water are basic resources for a productive agriculture, just as minerals and energy are fundamental to developing industry. Water was described by one authority to be "at least our second greatest asset, next to soil; and as the years go by may even exceed the value of our soil."

This importance of water derives from the fact that it is more interrelated with the various facets of the total environment than any other natural resource. Significant variations in water supply can affect many areas of our environment. Furthermore, an entire river is part of its geographical setting throughout which operates a system of cause and effect involving water, land, vegetation and animal life, and human activity. Changes in these other facets can in turn affect water supply or quality. Piecemeal development usually creates more problems than it solves. Accordingly, the best development of any one resource is dependent upon planned, integrated development of all interrelated resources. This principle is recognized in the widely accepted concept of whole basin development which provides a framework for the coordinated development of an entire drainage basin, and the efficient and economic utilization of all resources for the benefit of the people of the region.

During the past year or so, there has been an increasing concern about water in Canada. Our concern has been prompted by the growing concern of American authorities towards the availability of fresh water. President Johnson stated recently that every major river system in the United States is polluted.

In Canada, the problem of availability of water might appear insignifiant at first glance for Canada has about 25 per cent of the world's total volume of fresh water. About 7.6 per cent of the country's total area is fresh water and Canada's fresh water flowage is about six per cent of the world's total.

Recent suggestions by Americans that surplus Canadian water be exported to the United States has focused Canadian attention on the need for a national water policy. It is doubtful if the federal Government in Ottawa is constitutionally in a position to dictate a national water policy. However, even if it cannot dictate a policy, it is in a position to initiate such a policy by co-ordination and consultation with the provinces. There are many arguments advanced in favour of such a policy:

(a) water is a commodity that is just now in transition from a free to a scarce good. A national water policy was not needed in the past because water has been a cheap resource and sufficiently plentiful that serious conflicts for its use had not arisen. But this is no longer the case.

(b) Just as the need for a national manpower policy has been recognized, so a national water policy will be needed to co-ordinate and weight the alternative uses of water against each other: municipal and industrial uses, irrigation, recreation, fishing, aesthetic, etc.

(c) Water will be allocated to its best use or combination of uses only if there is some clearing house in which competing demands can be systematically weighted against each other. It is obvious that this cannot be done by the existence of eleven varying, uncoordinated and often conflicting policies.

(d) A national policy would not deal only with the alternative end use of water, for example between its use for agricultural irrigation or recreation, but it would also deal with the problem of alternative supply: desalinization, re-routing of northern rivers such as proposed by the United States Department of the Interior in the Rampart project for the Yukon River or by Mr. T.W. Kierans and Major O.K.H. Kierans in the GRAND project (Great Replenishment and Northern Development Canal) to divert water from the Harricanaw River and tributaries to the Great Lakes, and North American Water and Power Alliance (NAWAPA).

(e) A national water policy would also be a prerequisite for establishing an equitable and adequate pollution preventive policy. If a national policy is not adopted, provinces will compete with each other by offering the least stringent pollution controls so as to attract industry. Some members of the New Brunswick Water Authority have said that its work and that of similar agencies would be assisted by federal-provincial co-operation in the development of standards for pollution control. We have no such thing in this country at present.

(f) Someone must represent the public. Industry and agriculture have powerful voices that make known their needs for water in its alternative application. A national water board, or some similar agency established to co-ordinate the policies of a national water policy, would represent the interest of the public in the present and for future generations.

These are some of the basic principles with which we must be concerned if we are to evolve a national water policy.

There are people in the federal field particularly who say that in these days the provinces would look upon the establishment of a national water policy or the taking of the initiative for a national water policy as an intrusion into provincial rights because water is a provincial resource. It is true that water is a provincial resource but many of our rivers are interprovincial and some are international. The only way we can evolve a rational, logical and sound program is to get these agencies together. I suggest that the Senate is the body which can initiate such action.

I want to conclude with the summary and conclusions of a conference held recently on developing Saskatchewan's water resources. It says:

> The evidence with respect to the demand and supply of water in Saskatchewan has been reviewed in a very general way. The review of this evidence as well as consultation with knowledgeable persons in Saskatchewan suggests:
>
> 1. A continued increase in the demand for water. In the future the major demands will be for domestic and industrial water supply, pollution abatement and recreation and wildlife. Water will also be used to an increasing extent for irrigation and power.
>
> 2. This increased demand can be satisfied through:
>
> (a) better use of existing water supplies now in the Saskatchewan-Nelson drainage area, and
>
> (b) diversions from adjoining rivers such as the Peace, Mackenzie or Churchill.

3. The better use of existing water supplies will require investigation and planning on a multi-purpose basis to achieve optimum use of the available water supply for all uses.

4. The diversions from adjoining river systems will require a high degree of co-operation between the three Prairie provinces and the Government of Canada.

5. The review of the B.N.A. Act by competent authorities suggests there is nothing in the Constitution which should prevent the investigation, planning and development of an interprovincial system on an integrated, multi-purpose basis.

6. A review of the legislative authority of the Department of Northern Affairs and National Resources suggests there is legislative authority to permit the Government of Canada to play an active role in the investigation and planning of resource developments on a multi-purpose basis.

7. A review of existing administrative machinery on both the federal and provincial level suggests the need for modifications in the existing framework.

8. There is a need to create through federal legislation a regional development agency competent to investigate and plan the development of the water resources of the Saskatchewan-Nelson Basin on an integrated, multi-purpose basis. This could be achieved by establishing a Prairie Provinces Water Commission with federal and provincial representation, or it could be achieved through a suitable federal agency that would carry on along lines previously approved by the province or provinces concerned.

9. The three Prairie provinces might consider establishment of provincial commissions comparable to the South Saskatchewan River Development Commission with authority over water development programs on a province-wide basis.

Honourable senators, this is probably a good place in which to leave the matter. I would propose that when this discussion is renewed in the fall, we examine first the constitutional limitations of a federal-provincial and national agency; secondly, that we examine in some detail the seriousness and the cost of water pollution; thirdly, that we try to establish, if we can, how the cost of taking care of this water pollution problem should be met. It cannot all be met from industry, although industry may be one of the major sources of pollution. It is a national problem, a municipal problem, and it has to be met on a total and collective basis.

Finally, I would like to analyse in detail this tremendous, spectacular, North American water power alliance project, because it has tremendous implications, not only for western Canada but for the whole of Canada. Imagine that Northwest Passage through to the Pacific coast. This is one of the spectacular schemes of this NAWAPA. Imagine filling the great Rocky Mountain trench. My friend Mr. Herridge from the Kootenay is worried about filling up his little part of the Kootenay, that this would be the squandering of land on a tremendous scale. If the decision should be at a later time to conserve water supplies and to put up a big dam in the Rocky Mountain trench, our first responsibility is to pump that water over the Rockies to irrigate the western prairies and take care of the millions of new Canadians who we hope will come to this country in the years to come.

On motion of Hon. Mr. Beaubien (Provencher), debate adjourned.

BUSINESS OF THE SENATE

Hon. John J. Connolly: Honourable senators, I am informed that the debate on the resolution stage of the Medicare bill has begun in the other place. That debate may not be as long as was expected originally. Also, there is a possibility that the Income Tax bill can be disposed of in the other place later today. For this reason, it might be prudent for us to adjourn now until 8 p.m., when we will have some idea of the position. Even then, I may have to inform the house there is no prospect of receiving that legislation.

I therefore move that the Senate take recess now to reassemble at the call of the bell at approximately 8 o'clock this evening.

The Senate adjourned during pleasure.

At 9 p.m. the sitting was resumed.

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): Honourable senators, my information is that the debate on he Medicare resolution, is continuing in the other place. The prospects are that it will continue until 10 o'clock this evening, and there is no indication that the house will sit beyond that hour. Therefore it seems unlikely that we shall have any legislation to deal with this evening. As the other place will resume sitting tomorrow at 2.30 p.m., the prospect of receiving legislation in time for our own sitting at three o'clock is remote.

Therefore I now move, with leave, that when the Senate adjourns today it do stand adjourned until tomorrow evening at eight o'clock.

Motion agreed to.

The Senate adjourned until tomorrow at 8 p.m.

THE SENATE

Wednesday, July 13, 1966

The Senate met at 8 p.m., the Speaker in the Chair.

Prayers.

INCOME TAX ACT

BILL TO AMEND—FIRST READING

The Hon. the Speaker informed the Senate that a message had been received from the House of Commons with Bill C-216, to amend the Income Tax Act.

Bill read first time.

SECOND READING

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this bill be read the second time?

Hon. Salter A. Hayden, with leave of the Senate, moved the second reading of the bill.

He said: Honourable senators, some changes have occurred in and some mutilation has been made to this bill, C-216, even since it was introduced in the Commons.

The title of this bill now is, "An Act to amend the Income Tax Act", because, as honourable senators will notice in the copies of the bill as passed by the House of Commons, certain clauses which would transfer sections now in the Canadian Vessel Construction Assistance Act to the Income Tax Act have been dropped. The reason for this, I understand, is that the industry wishes to make further representations, although I should add that any change which would have occurred by the transfer of those sections from the one statute to the other is of relatively minor importance. In any event, the industry will have its opportunity to make its representations, and in the meantime those clauses are eliminated from the bill.

The parts stricken out of the original bill are, clause 1, subclause 1 of clause 2, subclauses 3, 4, 5 and 6 of clause 3, and clause 20. Honourable senators will find clause 3 runs from pages 3 to 7 inclusive, clause 20 is on page 24, and clauses 1 and 2 are where one would expect to find them, at the beginning of the bill.

I should like to make a preliminary remark to the effect that after having read and digested this bill I do not think there is anything of very serious moment left in it, with one or two exceptions that I shall mention later. It would seem that this is a year for looking on the shelf to see what things have been tucked away for a day when certain amendments for tidying-up could be made.

In order to illustrate what I mean, let us take the question of tuition fees. I refer to clause 1(1) on page 2 of the bill. Under the law as it stands, a student may deduct tuition fees paid from what would otherwise be his income, and such a student in order to deduct such payment is not required to pay such fees himself. A practice has developed under which you have a category of student-employee and the employer pays the tuition. I am now addressing myself to the student in full-time attendance at a university outside of Canada on a course of not less than 13 weeks. When the employer pays the tuition of his student-employee he deducts it as wages or salary. Under the law as it stood, if the student availed himself of it he would also deduct from his income the tuition fee paid by the employer and not reflect in his income the amount of the payment.

All this amendment does is to say, both in relation to full-time attendance at a university outside of Canada and those in attendance at educational institutions in Canada, that where the tuition fee is more than $25, to the extent that the employer pays and deducts, then the student-employee may deduct if he includes the amount as well in his income for that year.

This is really just a tidying-up operation. I would have thought that this might have been the case and should have happened in any event.

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): You cannot have it both ways.

Hon. Mr. Hayden: No. There was a double deduction as a result of this apparent poor, perhaps thoughtless, draftsmanship.

Next, I wish to remind honorable senators that last year we had a little bird of reasonably gay plumage, nice feathers, flying around and chirping notes announcing an income tax deduction of the lesser of 10 per cent or $600. The Income Tax Act this year, under section 5 on page 9 of the bill, shoots down that bird, and the poor little thing is now mutilated and has no feathers, because all that is left for a full year is that the reduction will be the lesser of 20 per cent or $20. The only area in which any benefit would come from that would be in the area below $1,600-odd of taxable income.

Having said that, I should point out to you that the reduction, in what I call the Gordon formula of last year—that is, the lesser of 10 per cent or $600—lessened the revenues of the Crown by about $325 million if applied to a full year. It is estimated that when this new formula is applied to a full year the revenues will be lessened by about $210 million. Of course, there is a special formula for the year 1966-67. You will see it in the bill and as it is very simple to follow I will not spend any time on it.

I want to talk for a moment about the provision for a "no withholding tax" on certain classifications of bonds, effective since April 15 of this year. This will be found on pages 19 and 20. There you will see the classification of bonds and securities in regard to which, on and after April 15, 1966, there will be no withholding tax leviable against payments of interest to non-residents.

The situation that results from this is that you have a whole series of securities comprising different categories. Prior to December 20, 1960, there was no withholding tax on federal bonds when they were held by non-residents. On provincial bonds the tax was 5 per cent, and on municipal bonds it was 15 per cent. In the period starting December 20, 1960, the levy was made a straight 15 per cent on all these categories of bonds.

Now you come to another period and you have three categories: pre-December 20, 1960; pre-April 15, 1966; and after April 15, 1966. Of course, whatever taxes were payable in relation to bonds, municipal and provincial, prior to December 20, 1960, carries on. As to whatever withholding tax was payable on these bonds when issued to non-residents, in the period December 20, 1960, to April 15, 1966, that carries on. It is in the area on and after April 15, 1966, that the benefit arises of what you might call "tax-free interest," although more properly it should be described as "no withholding tax" because it is only the non-residents who get the benefit of it.

I should like to speak for a moment about stock options.

Hon. Mr. McCutcheon: Hear, hear.

Hon. Mr. Hayden: You will find stock options dealt with in clause 9 on page 12 of the bill. It amends to some extent section 85A of the Income Tax Act. May I tell you what the present formula is and then tell you what has been changed. The present formula is this: If a company grants a stock option on some of its shares to an employee, and it is for a period of time, and as and when the employee exercises that stock option the market price of the shares is higher than the price at which he may exercise the option, in those circumstances the difference is called "a benefit" and in the Income Tax Act presently there is a special way of taxing that benefit. They do it by taking the aggregate of the income taxes payable by that employee for the three years immediately preceding the taxation year in which he achieved his benefit. Then they take the aggregate of his income in those years—and note I say advisedly, "the aggregate of his income", not "taxable income." From that they arrive at an average rate of tax.

If we assume that is 25 per cent, then under the law as it presently stands you might deduct 20 per cent of that. So, that man's special taxes would be in the order of 5 per cent in those circumstances.

I have worked out an example, which I might give to you. Under the present law, for instance, if the benefit were $10,000 and the average rate was 25 per cent, the tax would be $2,500.

Hon. Mr. McCutcheon: On what amount?

Hon. Mr. Hayden: On $10,000. But then I am entitled to deduct 20 per cent which is $2,000, and I end up with a tax of $500 on the illustration I have given.

If I apply the same illustration to the law in this bill, we start with a benefit of $10,000, and then we have an average rate of tax at 25 per cent. That would produce tax at $2,500, but instead of being able to deduct 20 per cent, under the new bill we are entitled to deduct the lesser of 20 per cent or $200. If we deduct $200 under the new law, the person with the benefit of $10,000 would pay tax of $2,300. Under the law at the present time the tax would be $500. So, financially there is a considerable difference.

I think this is something we should inquire into in committee so that we may find out the circumstances that led to the change. I say this because the design of the stock option was to enable employees who are depreciating themselves in their application to work as a result of which they improve their benefits and become more valuable to the company. In that way their rate of income goes up but their rate of tax goes up also. This stock option was concerned with the idea of enabling an employer to give an employee the opportunity on merit of building a little estate for himself. The only gamble he would take would be that he exercise the option when the price is up.

What are the circumstances that brought about this drastic curtailment? Is it the need for revenue, or have there been abuses? Frankly I do not pretend to know all the things that go on, but in the area in which I move I know of no abuses of this benefit.

Now I should direct your attention at this time to the Tax Appeal Board. There is a change. Under the Income Tax Act the age limit of members presently is 65, and the tenure of office is for any period up to ten years. But having reached 65 a member cannot be reappointed, and some of the senior members of the board who are experienced, serious and capable judges of the Tax Appeal Board would not, unless there is some change in the age limit, be eligible for reappointment when their term expires. This proposed amendment provides for an age limit of 75 years which is in line with that for judges of the superior courts, judges of the Supreme Court of Canada, and—

Hon. Mr. McCutcheon: And senators.

Hon. Mr. Hayden: And senators, yes. I should have started a new sentence when I was going to talk about the Senate.

It does not necessarily mean that any or all of these people will be reappointed; that is a matter for the judgment of those charged with the administration. But my own feeling is that it is a good step, and I think Canada has an investment in these men. They have served for quite a number of years, and if you look at their record of performance you will see that it is very good. If you study appeals and the results of appeals you may ask why should we deprive ourselves of the benefit of persons who perform such service. I commend that to your attention.

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): The Senate should have a very special interest in that board, because I think the original idea for the board came as a result of recommendations from a Senate committee.

Hon. Mr. Hayden: As a result of studies we made back in the forties—

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): Before my day.

Hon. Mr. Hayden: Yes, before your day. This was one of the recommendations we made, that a Tax Appeal Board should be set up to take appeals out of the department.

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): The Senate must have been quite a place in those days.

Hon. Mr. McCutcheon: We are not going to discuss all the effects of that tonight, are we?

Hon. Mr. Hayden: If you agree, I agree. There is an armistice.

Now we come to another portion to which I should draw your attention. If you look at page 11, clause 8, dealing with the mining of potash, you will find the words "sylvite deposit"—that is potash. What they are providing for in the definition of a mine is that the exemption section of the Income Tax Act shall include an operation of this kind. But if that operation has commenced prior to March 29, the tax holiday period of three years will run from the commencement of operations, so there would only be the balance of the period from March 29 to the expiration of the three-year period.

Hon. Mr. McCutcheon: This was what was described in another place as, "a section in relief of Ross Thatcher."

Hon. Mr. Thorvaldson: This remedy is three years overdue; it should have been here in 1963.

Hon. Mr. Hayden: Anything that you say is "overdue," if it is beneficial to the taxpayer, I agree with you. But I am happy to get it sometime because I have been here long enough to know that all life in the Senate and House of Commons in this area is a matter of compromise. You never stand on principle—if you do, you are very silly—for every last ounce. You get as much as you can, and you can come back; there is always another day. Even storm clouds have a way of disappearing and the sunshine returns. A thing that is not fashionable at one time is fashionable at another time.

Hon. Mr. McCutcheon: We will remember that statement of not standing on principle. I have suspected it for a long time, but now we have it on the record.

Hon. Mr. Hayden: Speaking off the record—or, I might say, putting it on the record and letting you deny it—you have been a pretty good practitioner in that art.

There is one other point, while I am giving an explanation of these tidying-up provisions. Under the definition in the Income Tax Act of "new manufacturing or processing business," for the purpose of those benefits administered in the Department of Industry, for businesses located in designated areas the time limit within which they had to commence business to get the benefit was April 1, 1967. They have now provided circumstances, as you will see by looking at page 11, clause 8 of the bill, under which if you satisfy those conditions and come into operation before April 1, 1968, you are in time for the tax holiday.

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): May I draw the honourable senator's attention to the fact that that is now clause 7. I refer to that for the benefit of Hansard.

Hon. Mr. Hayden: This copy only came to my attention after I entered the chamber, and there was a lot of conspiracy to prevent me getting in here tonight. I think they decided at take-off time they needed a new converter in the electrical system of the plane—I do not know why they could not have discovered that half an hour earlier. However, I was half an hour late arriving, so I did not have a chance to look at this.

There is a clause dealing with charitable organizations at page 8.

Hon. Mr. McCutcheon: Page 12, is it not?

Hon. Mr. Hayden: It is now part of section 3 on pages 7 and 8.

What this does in effect—and it takes a couple of pages to do it—is define a registered Canadian charitable organization. I should direct your attention to what is included in it, which you will find on page 8 of the bill, in paragraph (3b) and in (b) of that paragraph. Included within that definition is:

> a branch, section, parish, congregation or other division of an organization described in paragraph (a) that receives donations on its own behalf.

Then there is a requirement that these organizations must maintain records and they must be available for inspection. The penalty for not keeping records and not having them available for inspection is likely to be the revocation of your registration. Whether this in some particulars works any hardship, I am not aware at the moment, but it seems to me that where an exemption from taxation in relation to charitable organizations is granted the Government should have a method which will disclose to it, by the maintenance of records, that the operation has been carried on within the requirements to qualify for that kind of an organization.

I come now to the communication of information. When we were considering the Estate Tax Act some years ago we put in it what was regarded at that time, back in 1958, as an up-to-date provision. This is section 53 of the Estate Tax Act dealing with the matter of communication of information by employees. Here it would be employees in the Income Tax division. The present provision is a very skimpy one, and there was the question of how extensive it would be.

You may recall some years ago that a particular departmental officer was subpoenaed and appeared in court and refused to give evidence. As a result, he was committed to jail for contempt of court, and it took a few days to get him out.

Hon. Mr. McCutcheon: What are you complaining about?

Hon. Mr. Hayden: I am not complaining.

Hon. Mr. McCutcheon: Good.

Hon. Mr. Hayden: I will leave that to you.

Hon. Mr. McCutcheon: I am not complaining.

Hon. Mr. Hayden: Neither am I. What I am saying is that this is a more detailed section dealing with the prohibitions on the communication of information.

There is one thing in it I would like to reflect on a bit before I express full approval. It provides for the exchange of information as between a province and the federal authority. I do not know, but they say that if two people know something, the whole world knows it. I am not sure that the situation is such that if a provincial government will make these tax records available on a reciprocal basis to the federal authority, the federal authority should make that information available to the provincial government. I am willing to be convinced, but—

Hon. Mr. McCutcheon: If the federal authority is bound to turn over part of the taxes to the provincial authority, surely the federal authority must make the records available.

Hon. Mr. Hayden: I do not know what records they are talking about.

Hon. Mr. McCutcheon: I do not know, but if I were the provinces I would want to know whether the federal authority had collected the proper amount of money.

Hon. Mr. Hayden: And if you were the federal authority you might have a little different idea, or if you were the taxpayer you might have a different idea.

I should call your attention to the fact that on page 24 there is a new definition of "in Canada". You would not think that would present many problems, but the reason for this is to make sure that in the offshore areas for exploration for oil and gas taking place, there is a clear assumption in law that such expenses are deductible under section 83A of the Income Tax Act. The reason for that is that in the section of the Income Tax Act they refer to drilling and exploration expenses that are incurred in connection with such operations, drilling or exploring for petroleum or natural gas in Canada. So, to remove it beyond doubt, they say this is what it means.

There are one or two other matters I would like to bring to your attention. For once I was not a voice crying in the wilderness. I refer to the section at the bottom of page 10. In our Income Tax Act for many years we have had, under section 70, a kind of company called a non-resident-owned investment corporation. It had to meet special tests, such as, I think, 95 per cent of the shares had to be held by non-residents, and there were certain conditions or certain sources of income. If there was a certain source of income you could not have in excess of a certain percentage. One of the things you were permitted to do, without limitation, was to deal in and trade in securities, et cetera. The special rate of tax for such companies is 15 per cent under the act, and when the dividends are dispersed there is no withholding tax. But the test for the determination of what is proper in the case of a particular company is a higher, a different and a tougher one in the way of allowances you do not get than in the case of an ordinary corporation. This is carried on for years. The minister has announced that effective March 29, if an n.r.o. company trades or deals in securities on or after that date, it shall be subject to the full corporate rate.

The way in which the resolution was drawn, I think, would have left the situation that if the fiscal year of such a company ended on April 15, and it had operated for all of previous period of its fiscal year under the law as it was, conforming to all the requirements of the law, and then carried on its operations during the next 15 or 17 days according to the way the amendment in this bill was drawn, then those operations would have contaminated all the operations of the fiscal period and made them all subject to the full corporate rate. That would have been retroactive taxation of the worst order.

When I was discussing this with the department I was quite bold about saying that I would misinterpret the attitude of the Senate if I thought it was going to allow retroactive legislation increasing taxes. I told them that I thought the Senate would agree to a retroactive measure decreasing taxes, but not increasing them. Accordingly, you will find an amendment at the bottom of page 10 which corrects what I call that inequity. Clause 6 (3) reads:

> Subsection (1) is applicable to dividends and interest received after March 29, 1966, and subsection (2) is applicable to taxation years ending after that day but for the purpose of determining whether the principal business of a corporation for the whole of the taxation year of the corporation that includes March 30, 1966 was trading or dealing in bonds, shares or debentures or any interest therein, the whole of such taxation year shall be deemed to be that portion of the taxation year that is after March 29, 1966.

So it corrects the situation, and we do not have to worry about that when we get to committee.

There are a few provisions in the bill that deal with special situations which can be clarified in committee. They occur so rarely that I am not going to take up the time of the Senate in explaining them. However, I do want to call attention to the 5 per cent refundable tax to which Part IID is devoted. This Part starts at page 12 and goes through to page 17.

Hon. Mr. McCutcheon: A normal amendment—six pages.

Hon. Mr. Hayden: Well, of course I prefer to make my own comment and my honourable friend can make his.

The purpose of this 5 per cent refundable tax, as the minister said, is to temporarily immobilize and divert a portion of the flow of funds that are the chief source of financing increasing capital expenditures of business. I think this amendment will be a success in curtailing inflationary pressures, but only if certain conditions are followed, namely, that the taxes so collected are not all spent by the Government—and judging by the bills that have come here during this session we are doing a very good job at spending—and that the corporations do not borrow on the security of the tax to be refunded. There is a formula in the bill providing for a corporate tax base and also for a trust tax base. It makes very interesting reading. The only thing in it to which I want to call the attention of this house is that the corporate tax base is designed to approach closely the cash flow of the company and not the taxable income.

Hon. Mr. McCutcheon: That is right.

Hon. Mr. Hayden: That is because certain things are added back for the purpose of arriving at the corporate tax base. One is the capital cost allowance which is added back to the amount of 50 per cent of the gross income.

I should call attention to the fact that the minister also announced amendments to the Income Tax Regulations dealing with capital cost allowance. In various of those classes he reduced the capital cost rate for the period that this refundable tax is in force, namely, 18 months. Originally, on budget night, that included automotive equipment and automobiles, but there was an amending order in council issued the other day which restores the original rates of depreciation to those assets.

Now, when do you get the money back? Well, a corporation has to pay this tax on a monthly basis. An estimate will have to be made monthly as to this 5 per cent, and then the actual amount has to be caught up with at the end of the year. That is, at the end of the year it can be ascertained what additional amounts are payable or what amount has been overpaid. But the minimum period before repayment will start is 18 months and the maximum period is 36 months. So, if you figure your eighteenth month as the last month in which you deduct the 5 per cent, you will have to wait 18 months or 36 months, as the case may be, before you get your money back. Of course, you will be receiving 5 per cent interest in the meantime.

Hon. Mr. McCutcheon: Which is taxable.

Hon. Mr. Hayden: Of course.

Honourable senators, I think I have dealt with what I regard as the important clauses of this bill. If there are any questions honourable senators have to ask, I am prepared to try to answer them.

Hon. M. Wallace McCutcheon: Honourable senators, as I have done for four years, I have listened again to Senator Hayden describe the effect and intent of a bill to amend the Income Tax Act. The bill before us tonight is of course much simpler than some of the others he has described to us. Part of our difficulty in this house is that we do not debate the resolutions before the bills. We do not debate the budget speech. We receive a bill which purports to do certain things.

While I intend to talk specifically about this bill, I should like to make one or two general remarks. The first one is that this is an unusual bill in that it does not implement the budget resolutions. Budget Resolutions 11, 12 and 13 are not reflected in this bill at all. We are told that they present difficulties, but what that really means is that they were ill-considered and not thought through. When certain people started to think them through they realized it was going to be a little difficult to reproduce them in legislation. So we have a bill before us that really does not reflect what was in the budget.

Then, we have a confession of the minister. I suppose it is open to every member of the public to sit in the gallery of the House of Commons, as I did this afternoon, and if other honourable senators were there they heard a confession from the minister that the only really urgent clause of this bill is the one Senator Hayden referred to dealing with the withholding tax on federal, provincial and municipal bonds. I am fully in accord with this clause. The minister said it must be put through because, as he put it, the financial communities in other countries have not the same faith in the implementation of budget resolutions that we in Canada have.

Having said that, I point out that we are now faced with a truncated bill—a bill which, in my opinion, does not accomplish what the minister suggested would be accomplished in his budget speech. The minister talked about inhibiting inflation. I do not think any one here will quarrel with that great objective. But how does the minister inhibit it? First, he inhibits it by amending the personal income tax with regard to the concessions and the reductions granted by his predecessor. I agree that his predecessor did not properly recognize the economic climate. There was no necessity at that time, except that of an election, to stimulate the economic growth of the country. However, the present minister has decided to reverse that situation and he did it by giving tax increases in the lower income brackets where the money is bound to be spent.

We are assuming, and I am quoting the minister, that he is concerned about inflation.

He also reverses the situation by decreasing the tax benefits in the higher brackets or the tax deductions in the higher brackets, where the money will not be spent, where it will be put into savings, where it will do what the minister and his predecessor and his colleagues want—it will go into savings in Canada. It might even buy back Canada. I do not go that far, but at least it will be available.

That is the minister's contribution to counter inflation so far as personal income tax is concerned.

An amount of $580 more in tax paid by the man in the $40,000 or the $25,000 income bracket is not going to affect his spending habits. It is merely going to affect his savings habits. The sooner our governors realize that the better, because they cannot, on the one hand, say, "We want more savings," and, on the other hand say, "We are going to take more money from the very people who will make the savings."

Then we come to this great omnibus clause referred to by Senator Hayden. I will not attempt to go through it. I refer to the new Part IID, the special refundable tax. This is supposed to be an anti-inflationary measure.

Honourable senators, this was announced on March 29 last. I have had some slight experience in business. The plans of large companies are not made on March 28 to be cancelled on March 29. They are made a year or two years before, to be carried out over a period of two or three years.

Is there any honourable senator in this house who believes that the effect of that tax will affect MacMillan Bloedel from spending $125 million to which they were committed in Powell River? Does anyone in this house believe that this tax will in any way affect the spending plans of the Steel Company of Canada?

One of the companies with which I was formerly associated, Domtar Limited, has scores of millions of dollars committed. I could name a number of others, but I do not want to name specific companies.

The fact is that this is just a façade. The Government is going to obtain and enforce payment of a 5 per cent loan. As Senator Hayden said, it is not 5 per cent on taxes, but 5 per cent on cash flow. The Government is going to have to repay it with 5 per cent interest.

Let us suppose that the XYZ company, one of the type of companies I have already named, is itself a little short of cash. Well, it will go to the market. Today it would probably pay 5¾ per cent or 6 per cent. Therefore, its costs would increase and it would be less competitive. Of course, the Government is urging us to be more competitive. Who will be put out of the money market? It will be the small business man, for whom the Government has such great concern.

Honourable senators, I am getting a little tired of all these shams which say, "We will hit big business, because of course this five per cent doesn't hit small business. We will hit big business—we will take care of inflation." Well, they will not take care of inflation in that way.

As a matter of fact, the best way to take care of inflation is to have more productive facilities, produce more goods and have more goods on the market; not to say, "Don't build another paper mill, don't build another pulp mill, don't build another chemical plant." But that is what is being said in this budget.

Somebody described this budget as a kind of a milquetoast piece of business. Compared to the budgets presented by the former Minister of Finance, I agree with that. There is nothing particularly wrong with it; it does not mean too much. However, it is just irritating here and there, and with these resolutions numbers 11, 12 and 13 hanging over the heads of people who do not know what is going to happen to them, it is a most unsatisfactory situation.

If I had a substantial interest in a deferred profit-sharing plan I would be very much concerned, and I would wonder what the Government was going to do. I would wonder, in the light of the statements made on March 29, why we did not have some resolutions on those statements, but of course we have not, and we are told that even the Department of Justice is having a little trouble writing down the rules.

The real fact is that in both the deferred profit-sharing plan and the stock options, to which I am going to refer shortly, a few abuses were found. A few abuses will be found under any system you can mention.

I am greatly disappointed, and I do not feel that it does justice to the present Minister of Finance, using a sledge hammer to hit a fly. Let him close the gaps, but do not let him destroy the basis of the whole thing.

Honourable senators, I have given my views about the ineffectiveness of the budget for the reasons that the minister gave for his refundable tax and his change in the personal income tax, because in terms of dollars and cents they are not going to affect anybody seriously.

Now I want to come to this new clause 9, numbered clause 10 in the original bill, respecting stock options. What the minister has done here, in effect, is to say, "If you are deemed to have taken a benefit you are deemed to have received a benefit"—I hope Senator Hayden will correct me if I do not describe it properly—"and as a result of a stock option from your employer you may now elect to have that benefit taxed at the average effective rate of tax that you have paid over the past three years against your income; but the added benefit which was provided in the former act, of the deduction of 20 per cent, shall now be reduced to $200." May I ask Senator Hayden, have I described the situation correctly?

Hon. Mr. Hayden: Yes.

Hon. Mr. McCutcheon: That does not destroy the value of the stock options in this country but it very seriously inhibits them. In the United States you hold a stock option, you hold it over the prescribed period, you have a flat rate of 25 per cent, no matter what the tax is. I have enough experience to know that we will obtain the quality of management personnel that we have to hire in this country from time to time from the United States, only by providing them with stock options. I also know that the only way we will cut down on the brain drain is to have this sort of incentive for top management people in Canada.

Honourable senators, I do not understand this thing at all. There is no loss to the treasury. As a matter of fact, let us take a company that is giving Jack Jones an option on its stock.

Hon. Mr. Hayden: Yes; if he were not an employee there would not be money in the till.

Hon. Mr. McCutcheon: I was going to say that they can give me an option on the stock. I know several ways of getting around this, but I do not like getting around things. I just object to it. The treasury is losing nothing. I do not understand this at all, except as a reflection of a bureaucracy which resents people in business making money—and we will suffer from it.

Honourable senators, we are complaining about the brain drain. You need only go to the Parliamentary Library and ask for the literature on deferred executive compensation dealing with this principle and you will find many volumes in the United States. But what are we doing at the same time we are complaining about the brain drain? If you were 30 years old and were comparing jobs, would you stay in Canada under that situation?

Honourable senators, you will notice that I have not dealt with the details of the bill. I am hoping we will have the opportunity to talk to the minister about them tomorrow.

As far as any n.r.o. companies are concerned, I have a few points that I am sure Senator Hayden will not agree with. I am wondering why we should give them special exemptions at all. We are obviously closing in on them and it may be that the time has come to do away with them.

Hon. Mr. Hayden: But they are not doing away with them.

Hon. Mr. McCutcheon: I am saying that I think the time is coming when we should do away with them.

I regret that the Minister of Finance, in his budget speech, failed to repeal the sales tax on production machinery. I admit that he is going to do it over a period. The time to have done it was on March 29 if he is serious about preventing inflation and about keeping our costs competitive in world markets and against imports.

Of course I now come to my perennial regret, that the minister has not announced that he is going to take the federal Government out of the estate tax field, a field which produces practically no revenue, minimal revenue, to the federal Government. Every article that one reads says that the existence of that tax is one of the principal reasons for the disappearance of small businesses. That is bad enough, but for small businesses to be taken over by foreign holders for the sake of $30 million a year to the federal treasury, that is worse. What did we spend the other afternoon?

Hon. Mr. Hayden: We spent $500 million, which you thought was a crumb.

Hon. Mr. McCutcheon: I thought it was a crumb in that particular area, but we spent $500 million. So I am saying, what is $30 million to avoid the winding up of small businesses, their sale and disappearance to foreigners. I understand the Government policy is that they do not want these businesses sold to foreigners.

Honourable senators, I have rambled but I have rambled deliberately, because I think we should have an opportunity in this place to discuss the principles behind a bill of this nature rather than simply to discuss its technical aspects.

Hon. Gunnar S. Thorvaldson: Honourable senators, some years ago it was my great pleasure, when sitting on the other side, to have the privilege each year for some years of introducing and explaining the Income Tax Act. Recently, however, that has become the honour of my good friend honourable Senator Hayden, who has done it every year in very distinguished fashion. In fact, I do not know of anyone in this house, if I may say so, who has a greater and keener knowledge of income tax law and taxation problems in general than has Senator Hayden. It is always a pleasure to listen to him explain the annual Income Tax bill.

I wish to say one thing, however, which may not be accurate and he may deny it. I believe that on no occasion in the last three or four years has the honourable senator had less pleasure in introducing and explaining the annual Income Tax bill than he has had tonight. There are good reasons for that.

Most of the reasons have been suggested and indicated by my friend Senator McCutcheon. I hope to discuss and emphasize some of the things Senator McCutcheon spoke of.

The content of Bill C-216, to amend the Income Tax Act, is nothing but bad news for the Canadian taxpayer. It is a drab, dreary and unimaginative document. With one or two exceptions, every item in it increases the tax burden on Canadians or takes away from them benefits which they previously enjoyed.

The only benefit to taxpayers is a slight broadening of the base in regard to gifts to charitable institutions, but at the same time there is a more stringent requirement regarding registration of such organizations with the Department of National Revenue. That, of course, is quite proper and I do not object to it.

The only other benefit in the bill to the Canadian taxpayer is the improvement of the tax position of mining companies relating especially to the potash mines, whose operations previously did not give them the three-year tax exemption enjoyed by other mineral operations. As we all know, the present Premier of Saskatchewan has been pleading and begging for this amendment for three or four years. It should have been enacted quite some time ago but only this year is this reform consummated. It is, as I said a moment ago, three years overdue.

Now the worst thing about the whole budget speech, apart from the income tax, is that there is no effort on the part of the Government to cut expenditures in any sphere. On the other hand, there is a consistent and constant escalation of cost of government in every conceivable direction. As to how long that sort of thing can go on, no one can indulge in anything but conjecture. At least it seems to be a good bet that the present Government will just spend, spend, spend.

Hon. Mr. McCutcheon: And tax, tax, tax.

Hon. Mr. Thorvaldson: That is right, tax, tax, tax—without any relief being in sight at any time for the Canadian taxpayer. Certainly the worst feature of the bill is that the modest tax cut on personal incomes introduced last year has been virtually withdrawn. It amounts now to an almost complete cutting of the tax cut. In fact the tax cut which occurred a year ago might just as well have been withdrawn entirely because so little remains for the benefit of the taxpayer.

Hon. Mr. McCutcheon: There is $20.

Hon. Mr. Thorvaldson: There is so little remaining you cannot put it in your eye. It is practically nothing. You need a magnifying glass to see it.

I said that was the worst feature. Having said that, I want to say this: In my opinion the most vicious of the income tax amendments is the one which compels businesses, indeed forces them, to make a loan to the Government of 5 per cent of their cash profits. This is dictatorial in the extreme. Think of it! Loans by business enforced by the Government. People in this country have always recognized the right and privilege and power of governments to tax, but I suggest it is something entirely new and unheard of that in peacetime the Government of this country should compel companies and businesses to lend it money. I would add much more to what I have just said in this regard were it not for the fact that Senator McCutcheon has already indicated the purposelessness and the uselessness of a thing of this kind.

Honourable senators, this is just a gimmick. One wonders who can have thought of it. Certainly those who thought of it must have been people without any business experience whatsoever. Let us look at the facts.

Look, honourable senators, at the great array of gentlemen we have had, experienced businessmen, lawyers, economists and others who have been finance ministers of this country over the years. I suppose we will have to excuse gimmicks of this kind when you consider that the second last Minister of Finance of this country was born with a silver spoon in his mouth, and the present minister, regardless of the high regard that I have for him personally, has never had to meet a payroll. I suggest to honourable senators, and many of you know this, that unless you have had to meet a payroll you do not know very much about the basic principles that govern business. These principles govern business and also the growth of a nation.

Hon. Mr. Isnor: I wonder if the honourable senator would be good enough to give us the names of any of the businessmen he refers to who have been finance ministers during the past 15 or 20 years.

Hon. Mr. Thorvaldson: I shall be glad to. There was Mr. Charles Dunning, who was one of the ablest finance ministers this country ever had.

Hon. Mr. Isnor: He was a Liberal.

Hon. Mr. Thorvaldson: At the age of about 29 or 30 he was president of one of the greatest grain companies in this country, the Saskatchewan Elevator Company, which developed eventually into the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool. Then there was Mr. Ilsley. I admit he was not a businessman; he was a lawyer, but to my mind he was one of the great finance ministers of this country.

Hon. Mr. Hugessen: He never had to meet a payroll.

Hon. Mr. Thorvaldson: I think he did. He was a lawyer, and except for those who have a one-man practice, those of us in the legal profession, employing as we do many people in our offices and therefore having to meet a payroll, know something about business. I do not have to mention Sir Alexander Galt. As all honourable senators know, he was an extremely capable businessman, and this nation's first Minister of Finance.

Hon. Mr. Isnor: One businessman in the last 20 years.

Hon. Mr. Brooks: What about Edgar N. Rhodes?

Hon. Mr. Thorvaldson: Yes, what about Edgar N. Rhodes?

An Hon. Senator: Do not be diverted by this.

Hon. Mr. Thorvaldson: I do not intend to be diverted by sidelines of this kind. I made certain statements and I stand by them. I think it is important for a country such as ours to have a businessman, or a man who has had previous business experience, as Minister of Finance. It is my belief that this 5 per cent enforced loan gimmick was initiated either by amateur tax experts or by amateur politicians. It is a most unfair form of compulsion against the people of this country. I repeat that for a democracy in peacetime it is unprincipled and vicious.

I turn now to the amendment to section 85A in respect of employee stock options. I suggest that this is a most retrograde step and in my view it will be most harmful to business in the long run. Senator McCutcheon has had much to say on this point already, and consequently I do not intend to deal with it in great detail. But in my view good management is the basis of all profitable business operations, and it has to a large extent been through stock option plans that Canadian companies have been able to attract and hold good managerial material to work for them and to remain in Canada instead of going to the United States.

Hon. Mr. McCutcheon: And to bring them from the United States.

Hon. Mr. Thorvaldson: I am coming to that.

In my own personal experience and from association with companies, I am aware of the results of the previous legislation concerning stock options. It has in the past been possible for Canadian companies on many, many occasions to bring very eminent managerial material to Canada. Why were they able to attract this material? Not because of high salaries which are highly taxed, but by virtue of stock options granted to those people. Can anyone think, for instance, of a Canadian company getting a man like Mr. McNamara to come to Canada for a salary only? On the other hand, if at some time he might be available, he could be attracted only by stock options whereby he could benefit by the growth of the business that he entered, a growth which he had created and from which he would be entitled to benefit, and which at the same time would be of great benefit to Canada.

Hon. Mr. McCutcheon: Provided there was a growth and he had contributed to it.

Hon. Mr. Thorvaldson: I am most serious in referring to these two items as being pieces of legislation that are most harmful to this country—both this stock option legislation and the legislation in regard to the 5 per cent enforced loan.

I come now to another feature, to which I shall refer very briefly. That is the amendment in regard to capital cost allowances. In my judgment, this is a retrograde step and is something that should not have been done at the present time. I cannot understand what inexperience would dictate interference with the capital cost allowances which prevailed in the former act. What abuses are there which are being remedied? Those are some of the things to which we need answers, and if we do not get them here I hope we shall get them in committee tomorrow.

Again, I repeat that perchance some of the retrograde features of the Income Tax amendments may have been acceptable to the business community and the average taxpayer if these amendments had been accompanied by an indication from Government that it was intending to pull in its spending horns rather than indulge in the fantastic extravagances which have been such a notable feature of the past two or three years.

Honourable senators, I repeat what I said at the beginning, that I think this is one of the worst Income Tax bills that has ever come before this house—one of the worst for the taxpayer and for the people of Canada; and, above all, a retrograde step in respect to the economy of this country.

Hon. Mr. Hayden: Honourable senators, just a word or two—

The Hon. the Speaker: I must remind honourable senators that if the honourable Senator Hayden speaks at this time, it will have the effect of closing the debate.

Hon. Mr. Hayden: Honourable senators, I wish my friend Senator Thorvaldson could indicate in what fashion imagination could be worked into the Income Tax Act. It is a factual demonstration of what taxes you have to pay for all the different situations that the mind of man might conceive. Frankly, if he looks to the Income Tax Act for imagination, I would suggest that there are many areas where he is missing a much better opportunity to exercise real imagination.

My friend talked about capital cost allowances. The capital cost allowances in various classes are generous. The reductions of one-third and one-quarter, in some cases, are for a period of 18 months, to coincide with the 5 per cent refundable, and I am sure that my friend, with his great business experience, knows there are many companies that for corporate purposes do not deduct the full rates. In other words, they are prepared to attribute a greater life. I just cannot get excited at the suggestion that 18 months at these lower rates is going to mean the difference between success and failure in Canada.

I was interested in my friend's description of the 5 per cent refundable as being a gimmick. I wonder if he would take the first step with me, that there is the problem of inflation at the present time. Once he takes that step, if he says the method imposed in the Income Tax amendment is a gimmick and not a real method, what does he suggest as a replacement? Senator McCutcheon suggested more production. That is easier to say than do, because in the present state of the labour market inflation may just become more so when you have additional businesses scrambling for additional materials or workers which may be in short supply.

Hon. Mr. McCutcheon: It is a better solution though.

Hon. Mr. Hayden: I do not like a levy of this kind. We had something of the same kind in the war years, and money was repaid, but they are special circumstances. I am more concerned about what the Government does with the money than about how they gather it in. It may not produce the full results in the first six months or the first year, but at some stage, unless the cash flow of this country increases tremendously and the supply of money increases, it is going to have an effect in levelling out certain operations; but, of course, if the Government takes the money and spends it, the benefit of that is gone. To describe the 5 per cent refundable as a gimmick does not add anything either to the stature of the senator or the argument, because we are reasonable people, and if you make that kind of statement you should rationalize it and say, given inflation, how many solutions are practical and how many are not.

Hon. Mr. Thorvaldson: I think Senator McCutcheon did rationalize it, and I did not want to repeat his argument.

Hon. Mr. Hayden: If my friend had been listening, he would know I had acknowledged Senator McCutcheon said that instead of the 5 per cent refundable tax you should increase production. My friend has called it a gimmick without going into the rationalization—

Hon. Mr. McCutcheon: I think the record will show that I said there was no substantial company in Canada that had a capital program ahead of them—and I named two or three of them—that would be in any way inhibited by this 5 per cent refundable levy. In other words, what I was trying to say—and if I did not make it clear, I hope I do now—was that it is completely ineffective to combat whatever inflation in that field the Minister of Finance says there is.

Hon. Mr. Hayden: I understood that was what my friend was saying. It is a daring statement to make when there is only a short period of 18 months in which to find out whether it is correct or not.

Hon. Mr. McCutcheon: That is right.

Hon. Mr. Hayden: If Providence is kind to both of us, I may be able to show you were not much of an oracle.

Hon. Mr. McCutcheon: Or vice versa.

Motion agreed to and bill read second time.

REFERRED TO COMMITTEE

On motion of Hon. Mr. Hayden, bill referred to the Standing Committee on Banking and Commerce.

NATIONAL ARTS CENTRE BILL

FIRST READING

The Hon. the Speaker informed the Senate that a message had been received from the House of Commons with Bill C-194, to establish a corporation for the administration of the National Arts Centre.

Bill read first time.

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West) moved, with leave of the Senate, that the bill be placed on the Order of the Day for second reading at the next sitting.

Motion agreed to.

DOCUMENTS TABLED

Hon. John J. Connolly tabled:

Report on Technical and Vocational Training for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1966, pursuant to section 13 of the Technical and Vocational Training Assistance Act, chapter 6, Statutes of Canada, 1960-61. (English and French texts).

Statutory Orders and Regulations published in the Canada Gazette, Part II, of Wednesday, July 13, 1966, pursuant to section 7 of the Regulations Act, chapter 235, R.S.C., 1952. (English and French texts).

Report of the Centennial Commission, including its Accounts and Financial Statements certified by the Auditor General, for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1966, pursuant to section 16 of the Centennial of Canadian Confederation Act, chapter 36, Statutes of Canada, 1963. (English and French texts).

Report of the National Librarian for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1966, pursuant to section 13 of the National Library Act, chapter 330, R.S.C., 1952. (English and French texts).

The Senate adjourned until tomorrow at 3 p.m.

23031—74

THE SENATE

Thursday, July 14, 1966

The Senate met at 3 p.m., the Speaker in the Chair.

Prayers.

INCOME TAX ACT

BILL TO AMEND—AUTHORITY TO PRINT COMMITTEE PROCEEDINGS

Hon. Arthur L. Beaubien, for Hon. Mr. Hayden, Chairman of the Standing Committee on Banking and Commerce, presented the following report of the committee on Bill C-216, to amend the Income Tax Act:

> Your committee recommends that authority be granted for the printing of 800 copies in English and 300 copies in French of its proceedings on the said bill.

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this report be taken into consideration?

Hon. Mr. Beaubien (Provencher): I move, with leave of the Senate, that the report be adopted now.

Report adopted.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE

Hon. Mr. Beaubien (Provencher), for Hon. Mr. Hayden, Chairman of the Standing Committee on Banking and Commerce, reported that the committee had considered Bill C-216, to amend the Income Tax Act, and had directed that the bill be reported without amendment.

THIRD READING

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this bill be read the third time?

Hon. John J. Connolly: Honourable senators, with leave of the Senate, I move that this bill be read the third time now.

Hon. M. Wallace McCutcheon: Honourable senators, before this bill is read the third time, I propose to move an amendment. The effect of that amendment, which I shall read shortly, if adopted, will be to strike out clause 9 of the bill, which is the clause dealing with stock options.

I touched on this matter when I addressed myself to the bill last evening. I want to add to what I said about this particular section and to bring some authorities to my assistance. Under the law as it stands at present, when an employee receives a stock option from his employer, on any benefit being realized—and of course there may be no benefit—he is taxed at a rate which is calculated as the average effective rate paid by him on his taxable income over the previous three years, less 20 per cent. Therefore, if he has an average effective rate of 50 per cent, he pays tax at the rate of 30 per cent; if his average rate is lower, his tax rate is lower; if his average is higher, his tax is higher.

When this was discussed in committee this morning, it was interesting to note that neither the minister, nor the deputy minister or any official could estimate what the effect of the proposed change would be on the revenue. As a matter of fact, they could not even tell us what they had collected in tax on these benefits in any recent typical year.

There was no suggestion that there had been any protest from the public about the way in which these benefits have been dealt with since 1951. No representations were made that this should be changed.

What is more significant is that the minister admitted in committee—because I was afraid I might have missed something—that in his budget speech and in the press release which he issued on the evening of March 29 when he delivered the budget, there was no reference to this provision, to this change in taxation, at all. The only place you will find it on Hansard—until people started to protest—is in the small print of the resolutions which, at the end of his budget speech, the minister, by consent, tabled.

Honourable senators, the only conclusion I can come to is that, for some reason, departmental officials have decided that junior, intermediate and senior executives are obtaining benefits that they themselves cannot obtain and they persuade the minister that this had better be cut down. As a matter of fact, the minister said this morning that he had not realized how extensive this practice was.

I know one large retailing organization where stock options are available down to the level of store managers.

This is a legitimate and useful incentive. After all, that executive gets no benefit unless the company prospers, and that, after all, is what the shareholders want. It is a useful and legitimate incentive which is very firmly bound into the economy of the United States. I suggest today, as I did yesterday, that any honourable senator who suspects me of exaggeration, should merely call the research branch of the library and obtain the United States literature on this type of compensation, which has gradually become recognized in Canada. I am satisfied that when the present section was incorporated in the act in 1953 it was incorporated because the Minister of Finance had given the matter some consideration and had decided that this was appropriate.

The minister said to us in committee, "Well, it is inequitable. Lots of people cannot get stock options." That is quite true; I never had any. I would have liked to have had some, but it just happened I was never associated with a company which granted stock options.

The minister says, "We are wiping out an inequity." Well, if I could take a couple of months off I could speak for five hours to honourable senators and tell them about inequities in tax law which the minister is not attempting to wipe out. Why is he striking at this? Why is he upsetting the applecart? There is no demand for it. Many honourable senators must have received a barrage of objections against this amendment, as I did, particularly from companies that are competing for management in the international field. This proposal, of course, affects their competitiveness in attracting executives and top management. There are enough disabilities affecting top management in this country as compared to some other countries that we do not have to add one more to them. That is what we are doing.

Mr. John Meyer, managing editor of the Montreal Gazette, is, in my opinion, one of the ablest financial critics in Canada. I have an article of his before me now, the date of which I cannot give you, in which he says:

> The stock option is one of the most useful incentives to senior executives within the power of a corporation to grant. It directly equates return with ability, something which can no longer be done, with the steeply escalating rates on personal income now in effect, by simply raising salaries.

Why would any person making $75,000 a year take on more responsibilities and risk an earlier heart attack for $100,000 a year? That is a subject with which I shall deal again, but that is the situation faced by management in this country.

> It has been a powerful inducement, too, to the entrepreneur by giving him the promise of a return more commensurate with the risks he might take in establishing new enterprises or reviving old ones.

I do not intend to read the whole article to you, but with reference to the position the minister has taken, he has this to say:

> It is inconsistent too, with the now common acceptance of the inadequacies of much of the country's managerial force.

I think the Economic Council of Canada had something to say about it in its last report.

> The extent to which high rates of personal taxation have driven competent managers into the more rewarding American economy can only be guessed. It ought to be recognized that competency will never be achieved unless the rewards are attractive enough. Anything which diminishes those remarks—and that is precisely what the new rate on benefits from stock options does—reduces the chances of achieving competency.

I adopt Mr. Meyer's views as my own; he has expressed them somewhat more succinctly and better than I could.

The minister said this morning, "Well, of course the banks are in competition for top people and they cannot grant stock options." Well, the minister has a bill before Parliament now in which he could arrange for banks to grant stock options, if he wanted to. On the other hand, I suspect that if the minister looked into the perquisites of all kinds—including pensions, which leave the Civil Service pensions far behind those employed by senior bank executives—he would not be too concerned about their competition in top management. As a matter of fact, I do not think he really advanced the matter seriously.

Honourable senators, there seems to be a feeling in this building today that proceedings should not be too prolonged, so I shall say nothing further. I now move, seconded by the honourable Senator Macdonald (Cape Breton), in amendment to the motion that the bill be not now read the third time, but that it be amended as follows:

Strike out clause 9.

The Hon. the Speaker: With leave of the Senate, it is moved by the honourable Senator Connolly (Ottawa West), seconded by the honourable Senator Leonard, that this bill be now read the third time.

In amendment, it is moved by the honourable Senator McCutcheon, seconded by the honourable Senator Macdonald (Cape Breton), that this bill be not now read the third time, but that it be amended as follows:

Strike out clause 9.

Honourable senators, is it your pleasure to adopt the motion in amendment?

Some Hon. Senators: Agreed.

Hon. A. K. Hugessen: Honourable senators, I listened with a great deal of interest to my honourable friend Senator McCutcheon yesterday evening, and again this afternoon, on this question of stock options. I hope he will forgive me for saying that I think he has not got to the basic principle of the matter in any way, shape or form.

What is a stock option? It is a right which a company gives to its senior executives to acquire, within a certain period, a certain number of shares at a favourable price.

Say a man gets an option to acquire a thousand shares of his company at a price of $20 per share within five years. On the same assumption, let us say the company does well, that the stock market is favourable and that at a certain period within those five years the stock is selling at $50 a share. Then it obviously becomes in the interests of the holder of the stock option to exercise his option and to acquire for $20 a share what is selling in the public market at $50. In other words, he gets $30,000.

Hon. Mr. McCutcheon: What is the vice in that, senator?

Hon. Mr. Hugessen: I did not interrupt my honourable friend.

Hon. Mr. McCutcheon: Sorry.

Hon. Mr. Hugessen: That, to my mind, is just as much of a wage or compensation for the man's activities as an officer of the company as any other kind of salary. For myself, I see no reason in the world why that benefit should not be taxed as salary—as, indeed, all other benefits are.

My honourable friend talked about inequity. Well, where is the inequity? Here you have hundreds of thousands of people earning salaries throughout the country, paying full income tax on their salary, and one man, who happens to have the advantage of a stock option and makes a profit on it, paying much less than that on the profit that he has made as a result of exercising his stock option.

That, I think, is unfair. The effect of this bill is to reduce to some extent, although by no manner of means entirely, the advantage that the man with the stock option has, as a result of his holding the stock option. That, to my mind, is the basis of the thing. This is part of that man's salary, and as part of his salary it should be taxed.

I am not interested in people who say they want to get important American associates to come up here to manage Canadian companies, and they cannot do that without offering them inducements of this kind. In my opinion, if a man earns a salary as a senior officer of a company, then he should pay his proper proportion of the taxes due by him and which are used for the carrying on of the business of the country.

That, to my mind, is the basic principle behind this thing. I support it in every way, and I certainly intend to oppose my honourable friend's amendment.

Hon. T. D'Arcy Leonard: Honourable senators, I should like to say a word or two in support of what Senator Hugessen has said. I listened to the minister this morning, and I am satisfied, after hearing him, that this provision dealing with stock options in the Income Tax Act is fair.

I should like to point out something that has not been mentioned before, namely, that existing stock options are not affected. This new legislation will apply to stock option agreements that were entered into after the budget announcement was made. The only change in so far as previous stock option agreements are concerned is that the option must be exercised by January 1, 1968.

The reason given by the minister, and emphasized by Senator Hugessen, was that the previous treatment of stock option agreements was too generous. While Senator McCutcheon indicated that there had been no public representations in this regard, the minister did say that people had called to his attention the fact that there was a discrimination in treatment beween the manager, executive or senior employee of a company that did not have a stock option plan and those employees of companies that did have stock option plans. That, in the minister's view, was discrimination. He said also there was a case for treating the different kinds of employees on an equitable basis. In addition, he said that this was a matter that had been called to the attention of the Government by the Canadian Institute of Chartered Accountants which is an independent body. Chartered accountants are not directly concerned with it, but in their examination of accounts, they see that these stock option agreements do exist in some cases and not in others.

Hon. Mr. McCutcheon: By and large, they are not eligible for them. That is jealousy.

Hon. Mr. Leonard: That is true, but I do not think you can say they were selfish in the representations they made.

Senator McCutcheon made something of the fact that this was not referred to in the budget speech. The minister answered that very frankly indeed when he said that this particular resolution was not introduced because of any fiscal situation. It was not introduced to increase the amount of money that the Government might take as a result of the change. It was introduced solely for the purpose of removing a discrimination in taxation, and the minister did not think it was of such importance that it needed special mention. He did not realize it extended as widely as he found out afterwards it did; and said that had he realized that, having regard to the events that took place after the budget speech, he would have explained it on budget night. That is, I think, a very satisfactory explanation.

Up to now Canada's treatment of stock options from the tax standpoint, on the whole, has been more favourable and more generous than that of the United States. I presume that had we adopted exactly the same tax as is imposed in the United States we would still have heard a great many complaints because we would, in fact, be increasing taxes in Canada. We have put it on a much more equitable basis by treating it as income and gauging it against the taxable income over a three-year period. The United States, on the other hand, has treated it more as a capital gain.

Honourable senators, after listening to the minister I am quite convinced that the legislation under which we have been operating up to now gave too generous a treatment to the kind of deferred remuneration which an employee was able to get under a stock option plan, when compared to the treatment of the remuneration that the ordinary salaried employee receives. I propose to vote against the amendment.

Hon. M. Wallace McCutcheon: Honourable senators—

An Hon. Senator: Question.

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, with leave of the Senate, it is moved by the honourable Senator Connolly, (Ottawa West), seconded by the honourable Senator Leonard, that this bill be now read the third time.

In amendment, it is moved by the honourable Senator McCutcheon, seconded by the honourable Senator Macdonald (Cape Breton), that this bill be not now read the third time, but that it be amended as follows:

Strike out clause 9.

Is it your pleasure, honourable senators, to adopt the motion in amendment?

Hon. Mr. Choquette: Honourable senators, I think there would be unanimous consent to allowing Senator McCutcheon to speak.

Hon. Senators: Agreed.

Hon. Mr. McCutcheon: Honourable senators, I am not going to presume on your generosity. I want merely to make one or two comments. One is that this plea of inequity leaves me completely cold. There are employees who have their entire medical services and hospital insurance and other benefits paid for by their employers. They are not taxed on the value of those benefits. There are other employees whose employers provide none of those benefits, and if those employees desire them they pay for them themselves.

Nobody who has ever looked at the Income Tax Act—and I do not have a copy here, otherwise I would hold it up—has suggested that it is equitable. It contains the most complete set of inequities from the first page to the last that there is in any legislation in Canada.

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): It has been there a long time.

Hon. Mr. McCutcheon: Yes, since 1947. I hope that the Carter Commission—and I do not think it could be a centennial project—

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): It would be a very worthwhile one.

Hon. Mr. McCutcheon: Yes.

I do not accept that argument at all. Nor do I think that Senator Hugessen was being fair when by implication he suggested I was concerned about bringing American executives up here. I am, and I think it is a worthy objective. I am very much more concerned about our doing nothing to discourage the limited amount of top management we have in Canada from going down to the United States. That is the position into which we are rapidly getting ourselves.

While on the subject of equity I will mention that the minister talked about the banks. There is a provision in the Bank Act—and I apologize for not having it in front of me—which specifies the price at which banks can issue treasury shares. The result is, of course, that a bank issues treasury shares by means of rights. That is an option. It is a piece of paper a shareholder receives that says, "You may, within a certain time, buy these shares at a certain price." I have heard no suggestion that that formula is going to be changed in the new Bank Act. That price should be $30 a share less than the market price. Is that taxed? Is that an inequity? That never happens in a commercial or industrial company.

Hon. Mr. Hugessen: Oh, yes.

Hon. Mr. McCutcheon: No, not that far below the market, senator; or, if it does the stock exchanges would take a very dull view of it. It is the law of the country that produces that, and yet you talk of inequities. What I am trying to say is that we should not, in relation to manpower, make ourselves any less competitive than we are.

This is not a fiscal measure, as Senator Leonard said and as the minister said. Somebody remarked, "Oh, but I do not have a stock option. Let us change this. This is far too generous." I do not have a Cadillac paid for by a company either, and I could complain about that. My plea is that we do not change today a device—I have not Mr. Meyer's quotation with me at the moment, but I read it before—which has been most effective in producing efficiency in management. By management I do not necessarily mean top management, but management going right down, let us say, to the retail store level, because many companies carry it through to that level.

This morning the minister said he did not realize how widespread this was. It just happens that because it is easy to amend section 85A he put the amendment through. I do not think he realized how widespread deferred profit-sharing plans are, which have a great similarity in their net result to stock options. But is there any legislation based on the resolution about deferred profit-sharing plans in this bill? None at all, because the minister became aware of the fact that this was a much more complicated business than he thought.

There has been no demand for this type of legislation; it has no fiscal effect, and it should not go through.

Hon. John J. Connolly: Honourable senators, I did not intend to take part in this discussion, but apart altogether from the reasons behind the bill and including the reasons given by the honourable Senators Hugessen and Leonard, I think I would have to oppose the motion for other reasons that are obvious. Of course honourable senators will understand that as a member of the Government I would have to take this stand.

This discussion this afternoon has been most interesting. I would hope that this amendment did not succeed. However, I think an area has been opened here which is important for consideration in respect of the economy of this country, in view of the fact that it is becoming more and more industrialized as time goes on.

As leader on this side I simply make as a suggestion, for what it is worth, that this matter of stock options, as well as some of the other inducements which business proposes from time to time in respect of the development of executive capacity, might be a worthy study for one of our committees. Obviously we have people here in quantity and of quality who could make a good contribution to a study of this kind. If a study were undertaken by a committee it need not be lengthy but could be informative. It would be a useful thing to do in the interests of the public, of the business community and of the economy.

Apart altogether from those considerations, I think the discussion this afternoon has been salutary. If there is merit in what Senator McCutcheon says, and certainly it is not without merit, it is on the record. However, we have a bill before us which arises out of the budget resolutions, and in the circumstances I must take the stand that I oppose the amendment and I would hope the Senate would support the main motion.

The Hon. the Speaker: Is it your pleasure, honourable senators, to adopt the motion in amendment?

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): No.

The Hon. the Speaker: Those in favour of the motion in amendment will please say "Content."

Some Hon. Senators: Content.

The Hon. the Speaker: Those against the motion in amendment will please say "Non-content."

Some Hon. Senators: Non-content.

The Hon. the Speaker: In my opinion, the non-contents have it.

And five honourable senators having risen:

The Hon. the Speaker: Call in the senators.

Amendment of Hon. Mr. McCutcheon negatived on the following division:

CONTENTS

Aseltine	Haig
Blois	Irvine
Brooks	Macdonald (Cape Breton)
Choquette	McCutcheon
Fournier (Madawaska-Restigouche)	Phillips
Grosart	Quart
	Yuzyk—13

NON-CONTENTS

Baird	Hugessen
Basha	Inman
Beaubien (Provencher)	Isnor
Boucher	Kinley
Bourget	Lang
Bourque	Langlois
Burchill	Leonard
Cameron	Macdonald (Brantford)
Connolly (Ottawa West)	MacKenzie
Davey	McDonald
Denis	McElman
Deschatelets	McGrand
Dessureault	McLean
Dupuis	Nichol
Fournier (De Lanaudière)	Prowse
Gouin	Rattenbury
	Vaillancourt—33

The Hon. the Speaker: I declare the amendment lost.

It is moved by the honourable Senator Connolly (Ottawa West), seconded by the honourable Senator Leonard, that this bill be now read the third time. Is it your pleasure, honourable senators, to adopt the motion?

Some Hon. Senators: Carried.

Hon. Mr. McCutcheon: On division.

Motion agreed to and bill read third time and passed, on division.

NATIONAL ARTS CENTRE BILL

SECOND READING

Hon. Norman A. MacKenzie moved the second reading of Bill C-194, to establish a corporation for the administration of the National Arts Centre.

He said: Honourable senators, I am pleased that I have the privilege of speaking briefly about Bill C-194, an act to establish a corporation for the administration of the National Arts Centre. I was a member of the Royal Commission, under the chairmanship of the Right Honourable Vincent Massey, which reported on the National Development of the Arts, Letters and Sciences in Canada soon after World War II. I was one of the original members of the Canada Council and served on that council for the full six years that were legally permissible.

During the period since World War II, I have watched with surprise and great satisfaction the way in which all of the fine arts have blossomed and grown and developed across and throughout Canada. The most impressive evidences of this are naturally in our centres of population, Montreal, Toronto Winnipeg and Vancouver, but other centres, too, Halifax, Fredericton, Quebec, London, Regina, Saskatoon, Edmonton, Calgary, Victoria, Saint John and St. John's, are all in their own ways doing exciting things in this whole field.

Even little Charlottetown in the smallest of our provinces has, with the co-operation and support of the federal Government and all of the provincial governments, established, as a permanent and living memorial to the Fathers of Confederation, a remarkable Centre for the Fine Arts, and each year provides for the hundreds of thousands of visitors, most of them Canadians, who go there as tourists, a most exciting and colourful summer Festival of the Fine Arts.

Our peoples have lived in what is now Canada since 1583 when Sir Humphrey Gilbert took possession of Newfoundland for the then sovereign of England, the first Queen Elizabeth, but throughout nearly four centuries they and we have been so concerned with developing the physical aspects of Canada and providing for our physical needs that we have had little time, energy or interest for or in the fine arts, and we have overlooked or forgotten that these same fine arts have made the older nations of the Western World, from which we have taken our culture and our civilization, famous and distinguished.

Those of you who have travelled in Europe will remember the glories of Greece and of Rome—the glories of their unique cultures, their architecture, sculpture, literature, including drama, painting and music. In every great city of Europe there are galleries, theatres and buildings which are the homes of orchestras, operas, ballets and the like. Who can picture Paris without the Louvre, the Tuileries, and Versailles, and the Opera and the Comédie Francaise?

Within the past few years, we in Canada have established in Montreal a Centre for the Fine Arts, La Place des Arts; in Toronto, the O'Keefe Centre; in Vancouver, the Queen Elizabeth Theatre; in Calgary and Edmonton, magnificent auditoria. Winnipeg is adding to its already substantial cultural assets a Centre for the Performing Arts as a centennial project which, I believe, will cost something of the order of $21 million. Regina and Saskatoon, too, are going ahead with their centres for the arts as centennial projects.

In Halifax a dedicated group of men and women a few years ago created the Neptune Theatre and have maintained it in operation despite formidable difficulties. Fredericton, thanks to the generosity of the late Lord Beaverbrook and of the Sir James Dunn Foundation, has a delightful playhouse. Perhaps the most important and exciting of all these developments is Expo 67, which will bring to Canada the great art of the whole world.

So, honourable senators, I feel it more than fitting and appropriate that here in the capital of our country there should be a home and a centre for the performing arts. One of the truest statements ever made was to the effect that "man does not live by bread alone," and more generally that the physical in life, while of major importance, is only half, and in some respects the lesser half, of life.

In the complicated and mechanized society which we have created and live in, a society which sees more and more of its citizens thronging together in great centres of population, it is of the utmost importance that our people have not only "bread and meat" and shelter, but that they should have the opportunities for emotional, spiritual and intellectual satisfaction, relaxation and recreation.

I give it to you that, if we are to remain sane in this fantastic society which we have developed and are changing so rapidly, we must find ways and means not only for the use of leisure time, but for release from the tensions as well as the frequent drabness of urban and industrial life.

I suggest, in fact I claim, that one of the ways in which we can meet these problems is through the growth and development of the fine arts and similar areas of human activities. These, I hope, will provide opportunity for the actual and personal involvement of tens of thousands of citizens, as well as recreation, entertainment and amusement of hundreds of thousands. All this, too, will provide evidence that we as a country and as a people are in fact coming of age and achieving a maturity which is the hallmark of a modern and developed nation. This will cost money but we, in typical Canadian fashion, forget that we are actually one of the great and most advanced nations in wealth, in industrial production and in commerce.

It is against this background that I present to you briefly Bill C-194. It is, as far as I can judge, a very simple bill providing as it does for the establishment of a corporation to administer the National Arts Centre now under construction here in Ottawa. Its objectives, or more accurately the objectives of the corporation, are, first, to operate and maintain the centre; second, to assist in the development of all of the performing arts in the national capital region, and, finally, to assist the Canada Council, and I am sure other organizations and bodies, in the development of the performing arts throughout the whole of Canada. These objectives and powers are contained in clause 9 of the bill, to which I shall return in a moment.

The bill itself provides for a board of trustees; that the centre be located in Ottawa; that the minister responsible will be designated by the Governor in Council; that performing arts includes the arts of the theatre and concert hall, the creating, staging and performing of drama, music and the dance.

Clause 3 provides for a chairman and a vice-chairman who will be appointed for periods not exceeding four years and will be eligible for reappointment for a further four-year period. The board, in addition to the chairman and vice-chairman, will be made up of the Mayor of Ottawa, the Mayor of Hull, the Director of the Canada Council, the President of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, the Government Film Commissioner—all ex officio—and nine other members. The appointed members are to serve for three-year periods and may be reappointed for a further three-year period. The first appointments are staggered over two-year, three-year and four-year periods to provide a measure of continuity.

Provision is made for a Director, who is to be a full-time, salaried official and whose term of office is five years, but who is eligible for reappointment. The Director is to be the chief executive officer of the corporation with supervision over the direction of the work and staff of the corporation.

Clause 8 provides for the employment of other officers and employees as necessary.

Clause 9 I will give you in full in a moment for it is in a sense the heart of the bill.

Clauses 10, 11 and following are the usual formal clauses. Clause 10 provides for acquisition of property, capacity to accept gifts, to operate restaurants, lounges, parking facilities, etc., and to expend moneys appropriated by Parliament or received from its own operations.

Clause 11 provides for by-laws and for the establishment of committees, mainly advisory, and for the payment of travelling expenses and remuneration, on what I would imagine would be a per diem basis, for the members of the board who are not government officials but who serve in a voluntary capacity.

The corporation is not to be an agent of Her Majesty, save as set out in clause 13. That is to the effect that the Director, officers and employees are deemed to be employed in the Public Service for the purposes of the Public Service Superannuation Act and for the purposes of the Government Employees Compensation Act and any regulation made pursuant to section 5 of the Aeronautics Act, which I have learned on inquiry provides for protection for the individuals, officers or others, connected with the corporation when travelling on airplanes on matters of business affecting or growing out of the work of the corporation.

The corporation is to be recognized as a charitable organization. Its accounts and financial transactions are to be audited annually by the Auditor General, who will report to the chairman of the board. The chairman of the board, in turn, is to submit a report within three months of the termination of each fiscal year to the appropriate minister and include in his report the financial statement of the corporation and the report of the Auditor General thereon. The minister, in turn, shall cause the report to be laid before Parliament within 15 days of the receipt thereof, or, if Parliament is not sitting, within the 15 days next thereafter that Parliament is sitting.

I said a moment ago that section 9, which gives the objects and powers of the corporation, is important, and I would like to read it to you.

> (1) The objects of the Corporation are to operate and maintain the Centre, to develop the performing arts in the National Capital region and to assist the Canada Council in the development of the performing arts elsewhere in Canada.
>
> (2) In furtherance of its objects, but without limiting the generality of subsection (1), the Corporation may
>
> (a) arrange for and sponsor performing arts activities at the Centre;
>
> (b) encourage and assist in the development of performing arts companies resident at the Centre;
>
> (c) arrange for or sponsor radio and television broadcasts from the Centre and the showing of films in the Centre;
>
> (d) provide accommodation at the Centre, on such terms and conditions as the Corporation may fix, for national and local organizations whose objects include the development and encouragement of the performing arts in Canada; and
>
> (e) at the request of the Government of Canada or the Canada Council, arrange for performances elsewhere in Canada by performing arts companies, whether resident or non-resident in Canada, and arrange for performances outside Canada by performing arts companies resident in Canada.

These, honourable senators are the principal purposes of this bill, and what I have said is a brief statement on and explanation of the bill itself. On this basis, I would propose and so move, seconded by Senator Davey, that the bill be now read the second time.

Hon. Donald Cameron: Honourable senators, first of all I would like to compliment my colleague Senator MacKenzie on his complete and excellent exposition of this bill. I merely wish to make a few remarks pertaining particularly to sections 6 and 7.

As one who has had a good deal to do with the arts and artists over the last 30 years, I must confess that all too frequently few of them are gifted with the kind of managerial skills that would make them, except in rare and exceptional cases, the kind of people who would operate a $36-million or $40-million centre. As I see it, the weakness of this bill is that section 6 does not make provision for the separation of the director of operations and the artistic director.

Section 6 reads:

> (1) There shall be a Director of the Centre to be appointed by the Board to hold office for a term not exceeding five years.
>
> (2) A person appointed as Director is eligible for reappointment.

That is satisfactory. The point I want to make is that this person is to run a big corporation, and, first and foremost, he should be a businessman and, particularly, a businessman who has a sensitivity towards and an appreciation of the arts. I think this would have been a stronger bill had it made provision for dividing the position of the business officer and the artistic director, but that can probably be done later.

Section 7 (1) provides that:

> The Director is the chief executive officer of the Corporation, and has supervision over and direction of the work and the staff of the Corporation.

I am only emphasizing this, that in selecting the person who will be the director of this corporation under the board, it will have to be recognized that he is running a big and very complicated business, a business that calls for a sensitivity towards and an appreciation not only of the place of the artist in the community and in this corporation, but also of the box office appeal, if you like, because this could be a regular sink-hole for money—and we have made a fairly good start in spending a lot of money already. I would like to write the job specification for this director, because I think that it a vitally important. However, there will be competent people on this board who, I am sure, will do that. I do want to underline that this person, in addition to having an appreciation of the arts and their place in the community, must be a first-class businessman.

The second observation I make is that the building of a magnificent centre, no matter how many millions of dollars we pour into it, is not the most important thing—the most important thing is what we do in that centre. Again, unless we have the proper kind of businessman at the head of this corporation, the organization of tours, the sponsoring of companies, and so on, could be a squandering of untold millions of dollars. It would be a good thing for Canada to spend substantial sums on the arts because she has been backward in this area in comparison with other countries; but once we build a magnificent centre in Ottawa—and let me say I am delighted it is going to be here—let us not become complacent and think that is the end. That is only the beginning. It is the quality and diversity of programs we put on, not only in the centre, but which we send out on the highways and byways of Canada, that is important.

I simply underline these as two very important principles that have to be kept in mind in consideration of this bill.

Hon. Allister Grosart: Honourable senators, we have had a very full and excellent explanation of the bill from Senator MacKenzie. I need hardly say that he has anticipated almost everything I had intended to say. I am not surprised at that, because he was doing that to me 40 years ago when I was a student of his at the University of Toronto.

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): He pretty well trained the Senate, I would think, before he ever got here.

Hon. Mr. Grosart: I thank the Leader of the Government for saying "well trained," because I understand Senator MacKenzie has some other views on that subject.

Forty years ago this summer I was celebrating my first escape from his class. Next year I would have thought I would be celebrating my final escape, but here I find myself, years later, in the position of listening to him make an exposition and then being required to make a statement of my own with him listening critically. All I would ask of him is that he show the mellowness which has overtaken him over the years, and give me better marks than he did the last time.

Like Senator MacKenzie and Senator Cameron, I have followed the developments of the last few years that have led up to this bill. I welcome it because I welcome the great national arts centre that it will make possible. I agree with Senator Cameron that the real difficulties will come when the director and the trustees are faced with the great problems of maintaining this very expensive centre. However, one has to admit that it does fill a long-neglected need in Canada.

To many of us it has simply not made sense over the years that Canada is probably the only remaining civilized country that does not have a national arts centre in its capital city, or indeed any other kind of adequate performing arts centre. Given our place among the nations, and given our quite remarkable affluence when compared to other nations, this decision to build here a national arts centre could not, I think, have been very long postponed.

In older countries, of course, the development of great arts centres in national capitals has gone on over a long period of years. The sponsors sometimes have been wealthy hereditary princes, sometimes merchant princes, sometimes, and increasingly so in the last 100 years, the state itself. In Canada we have had a little of that experience. Eighty-five years ago Lord Lorne was responsible for the creation in Ottawa of the Royal Canadian Academy. The enterprise of the merchants and municipal officials of Stratford, Ontario, not very long ago created a remarkable enterprise in the field of the performing arts. To take an even more modern example, the long-gone Mr. O'Keefe, wherever he may be now—and I would hope he is not where the holy citizens of Toronto or muddy York said he might wind up—would, I am sure, be rather surprised to learn that his name is every bit as much associated with the flourishing arts as it is with his famous foaming ale.

By and large, however, as we look across the civilized countries of the world we see that a trend has definitely developed towards a recognition of the responsibility for the support of the arts, and particularly in buildings for the performing arts as a primary responsibility of the state. This bill, therefore, does no more than bring Canada into line with that trend. As Senator Cameron said, we do not have to be very much worried about state support of the arts in Canada being in any way excessive when we compare what is happening here with what has happened in other countries, many of which have much less in the way of material wealth to support them.

In speaking to this bill I should like to pay a tribute to the present Government, not merely for this measure but for the fact that in other ways it has brought encouragement to the Canadian cultural community. I hasten to say that that is a large community. It is a growing community. It is a community which embraces today Canadians of all walks of life. It is an important community because most honourable senators will agree, I think, that it is this part of our national community more than any other that is bringing about a desirable rapprochement and mutual understanding between those of various cultural backgrounds in Canada as we look forward to celebrating them next year.

In saying that, honourable senators, I refer not only to the two founding cultures, but to those who came later, because it is a fact that the cultural explosion in Canada—and that is a fair description of it—in the last 20 years has been due to a great extent to the climate created by the post World War II immigrants from many countries.

The present Secretary of State, the Honourable Judy LaMarsh, has made a magnificent contribution. She would be the first to agree, I think, that she has followed fairly closely in the steps of her predecessor, the Honourable Maurice Lamontagne. Each of them has given the cultural community in Canada a minister with which that community could identify itself, and that is something that has been wanting in many periods of our history.

I need hardly say that this cultural explosion of the last 20 years is closely tied to our national affluence. The poet Cowper said many years ago:

> Art thrives most
>
> Where commerce has enriched a busy coast.

I imagine there are those who have serious reservations about the role of the state in the development of the arts. The tradition of the struggling poet and painter in the garret dies hard. To those who have those reservations I would say that this kind of rounding out of our national cultural posture is also a part of our entire national development. As the experience of other countries has made abundantly plain, it will not be without its material returns.

It was Emerson, I think, who said that classic art was the art of necessity. By that he meant that the art of the traditional classical world—Greece and Rome, particularly—grew out of the necessity of the people of those countries to give expression to their nationality. In many ways we Canadians are in very much the same state of national development as were the peoples of Greece and Rome when they created their great artistic masterpieces. It is not surprising, of course, that many of the masterpieces that have survived are great buildings.

There is, of course, a danger here. As Senator MacKenzie has pointed out, the building of performing arts edifices has been going on in Canada for some time. He drew attention to the magnificent start made in Alberta with the building of the great auditoria in Calgary and in Edmonton. Some wit recently put that danger in these words: "We may be nationally in danger of developing an edifice complex." There is some possibility of that, but as Senator Cameron has pointed out, the edifices alone are not enough.

We have, on the other hand, the Canada Council, which has been doing an excellent job for many years and has developed some of the culture that we can expect to put into these cultural palaces. It might well be—and I think most people interested in the arts will agree—that this building would be premature had it not been for the development of artistic performing groups in Canada, which development occurred largely through the sponsorship and assistance of the Canada Council.

I see no reason to view this very expensive plunge into support of the arts, and this granting of a huge subsidy for the building of an art centre here, with greater alarm than the participation by the state in developing the interests of Canadians in other sociological and economic fields.

I would be the first to admit that this is by no means a national priority, and perhaps it had to wait until we had reached our present stage of affluence when we could say with some justification that we can now afford it.

Honourable senators, the bill itself is a good one. It has been well designed to meet its objectives realistically. I think this is partly, if not wholly, due to the fact that the concept was worked out in great detail by people who were personally involved in the problem, that is to say, some 65 organizations here in Otttawa, as I remember, who banded themselves together into what was called the National Capital Arts Alliance. The alliance raised the money to commission a feasibility study which it presented to the Prime Minister. Mr. Hamilton Southam, the distinguished co-ordinator of the centre, told us that the Prime Minister said, "Yes, this should be it." The go ahead was given by the Government in December 1963, one month after the presentation of that feasibility study—which is some kind of record for promptness in Government decision.

Unfortunately, Government action to follow up the decision was not as decisive. There have been delays of one sort and another, and the Government of Canada's centennial project, which was designated by the Government as its major centennial project in the City of Ottawa, will not open its doors, we are told, until the spring of 1969 instead of 1967. We can only look at this as another sorry example of administrative inertia and red tape.

I am sure many honourable senators who have been in Ottawa much longer than I will regard as amazing the fact that the City of Ottawa, the national capital of Canada, has been without any kind of adequate theatre since the old Russell Theatre, on Queen and Elgin Streets was demolished after the fire of 1928. Until then Ottawa did have some fine performing arts centres which if not national were at least a source of local pride.

Senator Connolly (Ottawa West) will be interested to recall that 112 years ago Her Majesty's Theatre was built on Wellington Street on the site of the Norlite Building, which now houses his Commonwealth Parliamentary Association staff. The theatre cost $7,500 and seated 1,000 people—quite a contrast to the $30 million or more which our newest art centre is going to cost.

There were other theatres. The next was the Grand Opera House, which I do not remember. It was built 80 years ago at a cost of $40,000 and seated 1,000 people. That theatre was superseded by the Russell Theatre which at one time was managed by that mysterious and exciting figure in Canadian history, Mr. Ambrose Small.

The centre therefore has a tradition in Ottawa. It is not something entirely new, it is something that fills a long vacant gap.

I am glad to see that this bill goes a long way toward making the management of the centre independent. As I read the bill I think there is in it a studied avoidance of what Shakespeare, drawing from his own experience with the Puritan element 350 years ago in London, referred to as "Art made tongue-tied by authority." There is evidence in the wording of the bill that the hand of authority will not be excessively heavy in the management of the theatre. On the other hand, I would hope that this wide freedom will not be interpreted by the management as a mandate for licence. I think most honourable senators will agree that in recent years there has been enough of that in connection with the performing arts on the part of private entrepreneurs, by films, paperbacks, radio and television, and at times, from our own C.B.C.

It is a major problem in the performing arts to balance freedom of expression against licence of action. It is my own view that whatever standards may be applicable in the private sector, there are other standards which should be applied where the public is paying the bill. In my view, the public has a right not only to scrutinize the bill, as it will do through Parliament, in respect of the expenditures of this centre, but a right to insist that the bill of fare be reasonably related to its own general good taste.

That is not an easy balance to achieve. In my opinion the present troubles of the C.B.C. are almost entirely due to its failure to achieve that balance. Perhaps a good motto for the new centre would be, "Liberty to express but not licence to offend."

I am also pleased to note that the bill places heavy emphasis on the national character that the centre is to attain. That also will not be easy to achieve, yet somehow it must be accomplished. The whole project will be a failure if it becomes just one more government institution in Ottawa.

I am sure that in time it will succeed. The management will have the fine example of Stratford, which has sent its good works across Canada almost since its inception. Another example is the National Art Gallery, which I believe has 40 exhibitions on tour in Canada. The National Museum is moving encouragingly in the same direction. Even the National Library in its short existence has placed the same kind of emphasis on its service to the whole country.

The bill has been carefully designed to place a specific statutory obligation on the trustees and management of this centre to make it something that will benefit all Canada. I say that this is not going to be an easy task, but I suggest to honourable senators that it is one of the most important obligations the bill places on management. I hope that this obligation to make the National Arts Centre a truly national institution will always be in the minds of those who have its responsibility in their charge.

Hon. John J. Connolly: Honourable senators, first of all I wish to thank Senator MacKenzie for assuming the responsibility of sponsoring this bill and for the comprehensive and able way in which he did so. I also thank Senator Cameron for the suggestions he made, which will be brought to the attention of the Government. We are indeed grateful to Senator Grosart for the trouble he has taken to put his views upon record; they also will be of help.

Without wishing to be contentious, Senator Grosart said it was a matter of inertia and red tape that prevented the completion of the centre in Ottawa in the centennial year.

This was a deliberate but regrettable decision which had to be taken as a result of the work being done in other places for the centennial year. I refer particularly to the demand for supplies and for labour in connection with the international exposition in Montreal. This and many other public works in this area had to be cut back, because supplies, both of labour and of materials, created a serious problem. In fact, it would have added even more to inflationary pressures if these steps had not been taken. It was with regret that this step had to be taken, but it was felt that in the national interest it must be.

Honourable senators, I claim no special credit to the Government for moving this project forward as quickly as it could be done, or for bringing it on at this time. It is one of those steps in the progress of national development that every government in office would want to take. I am very pleased indeed that this step has been taken.

As an old Ottawa resident, I might argue about the location chosen. However, having heard from people who apparently know about the proper use of land in Ottawa, in the end I believe this will be a good place for it. I doubted this before and I am not thoroughly convinced yet. However, perhaps wiser minds than mine have prevailed.

There is a good deal here in Ottawa now, as Senator Grosart has indicated, which reflects the national desire and the national aspiration to emphasize the spiritual, intellectual, and cultural sides of national activity. The National Gallery, the National Museum, the National Library, the National Archives, all are monuments to this. I believe in monuments. I believe in the voices of silence, which is a good way to express it, of a people. The voices of silence of the ancient people have told us so much in their works on stone, in the way in which they conceived their architecture, their buildings, about the state of intellectual development which they had achieved. In some cases we have not really caught up with what they did many centuries ago.

The monuments themselves are not the things that make the people great: it is what is done with the monuments. I never was much of a television fan until an enforced illness last winter kept me in bed a great deal. I cannot say that I have become by any means a television addict, but I did watch it a good deal, because I could not concentrate and I could not read. I was deeply impressed by the variety of talent which has been developed among our young people, a talent which never would have found adequate expression if it had not been for that vehicle. Television has aided considerably the development of the arts we talked about this afternoon. There is a deep reservoir, a capacity in our people, that we will never plumb. We must give them the incentive and the opportunity to take advantage of what we can do in this country.

I say the same thing about the National Library. It is fine to have all the books in the world, but books are not made to be put on library shelves: books are made to be used, to be read, to be digested. It is likewise in regard to museums and the archives.

Long before the Massey Commission, of which our colleague Senator MacKenzie was a member, made the point about the importance of the arts and sciences in Canada, Canadians themselves, privately and in public, groups like the Little Theatre movement and many other organizations, realized that there was a potential that should be used to the national advantage and the development of the individual. All these things have made great contributions.

I agree, too, with Senator Grosart that the problem of distinguishing between the right to do these things and the undue exercise of licence can lead to problems and trouble. I remember that in the old textbook on rhetoric, which Senator Choquette and I at least used—I think Genung was the author—he gave an example of what was meant by antithesis in a speech; the example used was the puritans opposed bear baiting, not because it gave pain to the bear but because it gave pleasure to the spectators. We have come a long way since that kind of puritanism or that kind of thinking has prevailed almost anywhere in the world.

I am pleased, too, to hear talk about the contribution that has been made and is continuing to be made in an increasing volume by the various ethnic groups in this country. Those of us who have been in some foreign countries and have observed the local customs in Britain, in Scotland, in Ireland, in the Mediterranean countries, even in the Far East—and we have representatives of almost all of these people here—know that in an institution of this kind there an opportunity is provided for them to add to our own cultural enrichment.

I am going to say something that may be rather practical. On June 24 last I was at my camp in the evening and I turned on the television. There was a western program on one of the English channels and there was a play that did not look very interesting to me on another channel. But on the French channel they were photographing the St. Jean Baptiste parade in Montreal. I have watched the Tournament of Roses parade on New Year's Day, which is televised live from California; I have seen the Grey Cup parade, which is televised live from wherever it may happen to be held; but I challenge anyone to say that the St. Jean Baptiste parade program, which I watched for perhaps an hour or more, failed to equal and indeed surpass either of the other two programs I mentioned.

What I regretted was that our own national television network did not carry that program with English commentators, to show what was going on in Montreal, one of our great metropolitan centres. It was a very impressive performance. It had not only all the best features of a good parade, but it had the very imaginative features of pointing up many of the historical things which have happened in the Province of Quebec, which was celebrating its national day.

By way of local reference, may I say I was particularly impressed by one float, at the head of which was a banner bearing the name of one of the former leaders of this house, the honourable Senator Dandurand, portraying his distinguished career, not only in public life in this country but as President of the League of Nations and in other international spheres. To me the showing of a program like that in English Canada would have given a lift to everybody who saw it. Now there are opportunities for this with other ethnic groups. To bring the Calgary Stampede to Ottawa on television and to bring the mountains of Vancouver to Toronto might do those cities a lot of good.

Honourable senators, I am most grateful to the honourable senators who have participated in this debate and I hope that this project will measure up to the high expectations we all have for it.

Motion agreed to and bill read second time.

THIRD READING

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this bill be read the third time?

Hon. Mr. MacKenzie: With leave of the Senate, I move that the bill be read the third time now.

Motion agreed to and bill read third time and passed.

BUSINESS OF THE SENATE

Hon. John J. Connolly: Honourable senators, it is now five o'clock and debate has started in the other place on the bill which we expect to receive later. Although I cannot say what progress is being made there, I understand that there are not to be many speeches. There is, however, the possibility that members there may not forego private members' hour; it is difficult therefore at this stage to make an accurate forecast.

I think that our best course would be to adjourn now to reassemble at the call of the bell at approximately eight o'clock.

Hon. Mr. Brooks: Is the honourable leader anticipating Royal Assent tonight?

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): Let me say I am certainly hopeful. When we reassemble at eight o'clock I hope to be able to give some further information. As I understand the situation, the bill being discussed in the other place is the only outstanding piece of legislation which we may expect.

The Senate adjourned during pleasure.

At 11.10 p.m. the sitting was resumed.

ST. LAWRENCE PORTS WORKING CONDITIONS BILL

FIRST READING

The Hon. the Speaker informed the Senate that a message had been received from the House of Commons with Bill C-215, respecting certain conditions of employment of dock workers at the Ports of Montreal, Trois-Rivières and Quebec.

Bill read first time.

SECOND READING

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this bill be read the second time?

Hon. John J. Connolly, with leave of the Senate, moved the second reading of the bill.

He said: Honourable senators, Bill C-215, which enacts the St. Lawrence Ports Working Conditions Act, deals with certain disputes and attempts to bring them to finality.

The first party to the disputes is the International Longshoremen's Association. This is composed of three locals in Montreal, two in Quebec, and one in Trois-Rivières. It involves some 4,500 longshoremen and also certain related trades. The second party to the proceedings is the Shipping Federation of Canada. This involves the wharf operators in these ports, the stevedoring companies in these ports and the shipowners and their agents who are located in these various localities.

Perhaps I should take a few moments to review some of the proceedings that led to the legislation which is before us at this moment.

The previous agreement between the parties expired on December 31, 1965. Notice of revision was served by the union upon the Shipping Federation on October 18, 1965, and they began their talks leading to a new agreement. These negotiations broke down, and on April 4, 1965, a conciliation officer was appointed by the Department of Labour. He worked for the purpose of trying to get the parties to come to an agreement. On April 15, after finding that he could not succeed, he recommended the appointment of a conciliation board. Each of the parties chose their representatives and, finally, on May 10 this year Mr. Justice Prevost was chosen to be the chairman of that board. On May 17 that board reported to the minister that there could be no settlement as a result of their deliberations and activity. On May 18 a general strike started in the three ports.

I should tell you too that on that same day, May 18, Judge René Lippé was appointed mediator under section 56 of the Industrial Relations and Disputes Investigation Act for the purpose of trying further to get these parties to reach an agreement. I need not remind honourable senators that Judge Lippé has had a long and fruitful career in dealing with industrial disputes, and his sense of fairness and responsibility are of the highest order. He is a magistrate in Montreal and a trustee of the Maritime Transportation Unions there.

Finally, on June 14, after a great deal of work on the part of many people, terms of settlement were reached. Honourable senators will recall that I filed and incorporated in the Debates of the Senate on July 5 the report made by Judge Lippé, dated June 23. I did this for the convenience of honourable senators, and so that they would know well in advance of this moment the history of this situation.

I should say at this point that prior to the strike, which began on May 18, there had been a stoppage of work on April 19 over a parking problem in the Port of Montreal. This lasted but two days, and through the good offices of a conciliating officer from the Department of Labour the walkout was ended on April 21.

Judge Lippé, as I said earlier, began his work on May 18. On May 25, or about a week later, he invited the international president of the union to come from New York to see himself and senior officers of the department, and he did what he could with the president in an endeavour to work out an arrangement.

I should also tell the house that on May 28 the Minister of Industry and the Minister of Labour were at Montreal working with both parties. This discussion continued on May 29. I am not sure whether they were all in Montreal or in Ottawa on that day, but I do know that they sat together until 2 o'clock in the morning of Sunday, May 29, hoping to achieve a settlement.

Finally, on June 11 the parties met with four ministers, including the Acting Prime Minister, but still they were not able to work out a settlement. However, a settlement was reached late at night on June 14, and the negotiation of it involved the Prime Minister of this country. The terms of that settlement are to be found at page 875 of our Hansard.

May I summarize the terms. First, it was provided that the contract will be in force as between these parties for two years from the date of the expiry of the old contract. The terms also involve certain wage increases. In the year 1966 there is an increase of 20 cents an hour, and this is an outright increase dating from January 1, 1966. In addition there is another award of 20 cents an hour in compensation for improvement in productivity. In other words, the second 20 cents is not an unconditional wage increase, but is in compensation for better productivity activities on the waterfront.

Dating from January 1, 1967, there is another outright increase in the wage rates of these longshoremen of 15 cents an hour, plus another 25 cents an hour, dating from May 15, 1967, to the end of the contract, in compensation for increased productivity.

In addition to that there are special small rate increases of three cents, four cents or five cents an hour for the various ports. Whether the increase is three cents, four cents or five cents depends upon conditions in those ports. This is all spelled out in clauses 8, 9 and 10 of the minutes of settlement of June 14.

There is another provision in the settlement relating to the call-up of gangs, particularly in Montreal, and the amount of notice that is to be given. In clauses 5 and 6 arrangements are made for the handling of cargoes, as to whether or not hooks should be used in certain cases. There is a provision as to what should be done with reference to the opening and closing of hatches. These are all details. There is a provision in clause 11 for vacation pay, to which the parties have agreed. There is a minimum hourly guarantee in clause 12. There is a special clause that has no number and which, for the purposes of my statement, I think I should read to the house. It will be found at page 876 of Hansard of July 5, and reads as follows:

> The agreements terminating on December 31, 1965, shall be amended by incorporating therein the terms of settlement—

That is, the terms of settlement that I have just described and which are in this document dated June 14.

> —set out above and these amended agreements shall remain in effect until December 31, 1967—

That is the provision for the two year agreement.

> —unless amended by negotiations or otherwise.

That word "otherwise" is put there as a result of the discussions which took place between the parties and the people who were attempting the conciliation.

I want to say why the Shipping Federation said at that time they would accept legislation in the form in which it had been passed and is now before us. The unions, I must say, did not ask for this, and they made no comment about it other than to say that if the legislation were produced they would obey the law. I think that is a very important point. To continue:

> The parties agree to attend a meeting convened and presided by Judge Lippe for the purpose of signing the new agreements in accordance with the above. It is understood that all of the above is subject to ratification by the membership of the respective I.L.A. Locals and of the membership of the Shipping Federation of Canada.

I wish to say at this point that this strike is over. The parties have accepted these terms, the ports are open and the workers are back at work.

Another point is that these terms, although they may appear to be indefinite, and particularly by the use of the words "by negotiation or otherwise," there was an understanding at that time and, if there had not been, so far as the unions were concerned I think it fair to say that they could have said, "We will not sign the terms as they have been stated." Therefore, I think we can feel assured that at that time there was agreement as to what was to be expected.

The Lippé Report, which was dated June 23, recommended the appointment of an industrial inquiry commission under the Industrial Relations and Disputes Investigation Act; and I have read the sentence from the clause which refers to it.

The commissioner for that inquiry was appointed on June 23. He is Mr. Laurin Picard, an engineer, of Montreal.

Now I come to the act itself, which can best be described as the terms of reference of the commissioner. Under sections 3 and 4 of the act his findings are to form part of the terms of settlement of June 14, 1966.

To clarify that point may I simply read a few extracts from the preamble to the act?

> ...in the report of the mediator appointed to mediate the issues then in dispute, it was recommended that an Industrial Inquiry Commission be appointed under the Industrial Relations and Disputes Investigation Act to inquire into certain matters on which agreement was not reached—

Then the next clause, which I will not read in its entirety:

> And Whereas an Industrial Inquiry Commission to inquire into those certain matters has been appointed under the said act,...

I have already indicated who was appointed as commissioner.

> ...and it is in the national interest that the conclusions of the said Commission with respect thereto be carried into effect without delay following receipt of the report of the said Commission, by the incorporation of those conclusions in the terms of settlement that were entered into following the settlement of the other issues...

May I read now the opening paragraph of clause 3, which is as follows:

> Forthwith upon the receipt by the Minister of Labour of the report of the Commission—

I have already defined the commission, and it is defined again:

> —the Minister of Labour shall cause copies of the report to be furnished to the Federation and to the Union, and thereupon each collective agreement to which this act applies shall be deemed to be amended by the incorporation therein of the conclusions of the Commission, as set forth in the report—

Let me say now what items are still open. First of all, under section 3(a) of the bill the commission is to inquire into and report upon the size of the work gangs, the sling loads, the use of equipment which is to come into play in the handling of freight in these ports. All of these items of course will affect productivity and go to the question of the increases in wages that were granted in return for certain improvements in productivity. In this matter of improving productivity, the commission—and it is provided in the bill—is to have regard for the health and the safety of the workers.

The further protection of the workers is considered in clause 3(b), which provides that the commission shall look into the question of the call up and the recalling of men.

The commission will also consider the question of job security—which is a very important issue when you are talking about increased productivity—for the union members in good standing on June 1, 1966, and who qualify for the welfare benefits under the plan they have.

The commission is also required, under the terms of reference imposed by this legislation, to have regard to special cases, as determined by the commission.

You may note that by clause 5, even with the findings of the commission, the parties may agree to vary the agreement; and the total agreement will be the terms of reference of June 14, 1966, as they vary the agreement that existed and which expired on 31 December, 1965, and as added to by the findings of the commission. But the parties may still agree to vary that agreement composed of those three elements.

Hon. Mr. Macdonald (Cape Breton): May I ask the honourable Leader a question at this point? On section 5, when you say they could agree to vary it, could the parties also agree that the findings of the commission would not apply to their collective bargaining agreement, in other words, that it be a nullity?

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): I think not. In other words, it is fair to describe the result that would flow from the passing of this bill as compulsory arbitration. I say they have agreed to it and that they agreed to it on June 14, with the rider that they can vary the terms. It is not compulsory arbitration in the sense that once the commissioner makes his findings and these findings are put in a form that can be inserted into a collective agreement that they are fully binding. The parties can still, by agreement between themselves, vary those items. I assume, however, that if they do not agree, then the findings of the commission are final.

Hon. Mr. Haig: That is compulsory arbitration.

Hon. Mr. Rattenbury: But if they do agree, it is not compulsory arbitration.

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): We are talking about this as a matter of semantics at the moment. This is compulsory arbitration, certainly, and I think they all agreed they could accept it.

Hon. Mr. Haig: They agreed to do it before they started the arbitration.

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): Yes, they did, because the commission cannot start to work before the act is passed. This bill contains the commissioner's terms of reference. There is the rider that even after having heard the findings of the commission they can still, by agreement, vary those terms. But they must agree, and if they do not, then I would assume that the findings of the commission are binding on both parties.

Honourable senators, we have been looking for this legislation for a long time, but the parties have been looking for it since June 14. I think the proposal is a reasonable and fair one, and I commend it to the Senate.

Work has been resumed, the ports have been re-opened. This is a very important consideration at this time, particularly in the St. Lawrence area from where so much of the grain being exported under the huge wheat contracts we have is shipped, and where so much importation is going on in connection with the development of Expo '67. All these elements make this a highly important measure, even though it may be a difficult problem to deal with.

I think I have said as much as I need say in introducing the measure. If honourable senators have any questions they wish to ask I shall do my best to answer them.

Hon. John M. Macdonald: Honourable senators, I do not propose at this hour of the evening or at this stage of the session to take up much of your time in discussing this bill, important though it undoubtedly is. For that reason I do not propose to deal with any of the details of the bill itself.

I object to the bill, and my objection is to the principle of the bill. In many ways this is a very remarkable bill. By this I do not mean that the bill itself or any of the terms are complicated; they are not. But the story behind the events leading up to it gives it an interesting and indeed a fascinating history. The purpose of the bill is to incorporate into a collective bargaining agreement already signed the conclusions to be reached by an industrial inquiry commission, and this to my mind is a most unusual and uncommon procedure. As has been stated, the collective bargaining agreement has been signed since June 14 last between the Shipping Federation of Canada and six locals of the International Longshoremen's Association.

Now, in order to understand this bill some reference must be made to the conference which took place between the Shipping Federation and the representatives of the International Longshoremen's Association aided, assisted, mediated, and perhaps confused by, I suppose, the most distinguished group of volunteer mediators in the history of industrial arbitration in Canada. We had the Prime Minister, the Minister of Labour, and four other cabinet ministers along with the Deputy Minister of Labour, his senior officials, and at least one parliamentary secretary. These all assisted in the mediation of this industrial dispute. Now whether or not this V.I.P. intervention helped or only added some confusion to an already difficult situation, I do not know. Just what was agreed upon or indeed stated at these conferences is difficult to determine. Misunderstandings have arisen; recollections of what took place differ. However, one thing would seem clear: it was understood that the Government would appoint an industrial inquiry commission. That much is clear, but that is about all that is clear.

From that point on a controversy has arisen as to what actually took place. This is unfortunate, since I think it would be helpful if we knew whether this bill just seeks to implement an understanding or agreement which was arrived at between the parties, or if the Government took the initiative to impose compulsory arbitration. I do not understand why precautions were not taken to prevent such misunderstandings, as it is obvious from the correspondence which has been tabled that the union representatives were somewhat suspicious of the Government representatives.

If you look at page 7442 of the House of Commons Hansard of July 8 you will see in the telegram to the Prime Minister that the union representatives said, in part:

> When I.L.A. St. Lawrence river ports locals delegation left Montreal for Ottawa it was determined that no member of delegation would meet alone or without witnesses in seeing any minister or any representative of federal Government.
>
> While such an attitude may appear hostile it was the unanimous decision of the 18 delegates who having met with Government representatives on two previous occasions in same dispute refused to go to Ottawa unless that rule be observed.

So it is obvious certainly there was not that trust in the Government representatives which one would like to see.

The Minister of Labour, in his correspondence, leaves no doubt that he feels the union representatives were fully informed as to the intentions of the Government to introduce this legislation. In his letter of June 27, he quotes from the terms of settlement to prove this. You will find it on page 7438 of the Commons Hansard of July 8. As was mentioned by the Leader of the Government—and this does not simply confirm it, because this is in the letter of June 27 from the minister—he says this:

> The terms of settlement signed on June 14 include the following statement: "The agreements terminating on December 31, 1965, shall be amended by incorporating therein the terms of settlement set out above and these amended agreements shall remain in effect until December 31, 1967, unless amended by negotiations or otherwise."

Honourable senators, this may seem crystal clear to the Minister of Labour. According to him the words "or otherwise" were put there to signify compulsory arbitration, although care was taken never to use that expression. What I do not understand is this: Why the secrecy? Why the attempt to disguise the matter, if the minister is correct on the hidden understanding? If it was known to both sides that legislation such as this was to become part and parcel of the terms of settlement, then why was not that clearly stated and set out in the terms of settlement?

The longshoremen, the members of those six locals, had a vote on those terms of settlement. I do not imagine that they read the fine print or, if they did, that it was crystal clear to them that the words "or otherwise" meant compulsory arbitration in their dispute with the Shipping Federation of Canada.

As far as I can learn, the minister has given no reasonable explanation for his strange action in keeping secret what he had in mind. Certainly, if honourable senators look at the statement he made announcing the settlement on June 14 they will find not one syllable to signify there was to be compulsory arbitration. Again I ask: Why the secrecy?

As I mentioned, if there was an agreement between the two parties that the conclusion of the commission would be part of their agreement, then this legislation is simply a matter which concerns those two parties to that industrial dispute. It would be a strange method of adding some clauses to their contract, but if they wanted it that way I suppose no strong objection could be made.

However, honourable senators, I do not think it could be seriously contended that there was such agreement. But it has been stated that the representatives of the longshoremen were informed and they fully understood that this legislation would be introduced, and that their consent was implied, if not expressed. If this be so, or if they had no such knowledge, then the matter of compulsory arbitration is no longer a matter concerning only the two parties to the dispute. It has become a matter which concerns the whole labour movement in Canada.

The bill itself, I suppose, is the best evidence we have as to why it was introduced. The second paragraph of the preamble is very clear and definite. It is:

> And Whereas an Industrial Inquiry Commission to inquire into those certain matters has been appointed under the said Act, and it is in the national interest that the conclusions of the said Commission with respect thereto be carried into effect without delay following receipt of the report of the said Commission, by the incorporation of those conclusions in the terms of settlement that were entered into following the settlement of the other issues involved in the dispute and in any collective agreements entered into pursuant to those terms of settlement;—

This is compulsory legislation. It so states in the preamble. It is so admitted by the honourable Leader of the Government in this house. Yet, there was no word up to the time the bill was introduced to the effect that the Government contemplated compulsory arbitration of this dispute. Again I ask: Why the secrecy?

It is of passing interest that the first paragraph of the preamble which was mentioned by my honourable friend the leader reads:

...in the report of the mediator appointed to mediate the issues then in dispute, it was recommended that an Industrial Inquiry Commission be appointed...

On June 23 the mediator made his report, in which he recommended this compulsory arbitration. If it was agreed upon by the parties on June 14, if it was known to the longshoremen on that date that there was to be compulsory arbitration, why was not the mediator informed of this? Because it is obvious that if he recommended it he had no knowledge that it had already been agreed upon.

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): I understand that the mediator was present at the discussions.

Hon. Mr. Macdonald (Cape Breton): I can well believe that if he was present he did not understand there was to be compulsory arbitration, because apparently there were present 18 representatives of the longshoremen's union, I do not know how many from the Shipping Federation, and I suppose a dozen or more Government representatives, and everyone of them seemed to have a different recollection of what took place at those meetings. So I daresay the mediator also had a different recollection.

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): In all fairness, if you do not mind, may I say that in a matter of this kind Judge Lippé, who has had a great deal of experience, would certainly know what the consensus was.

Hon. Mr. Macdonald (Cape Breton): If he knew, then why was he cluttering up his report with the recommendation that there be this type of legislation?

Honourable senators, at this time I shall not go into the question of whether or not there should be compulsory arbitration in cases of this kind. I will say this, that traditionally, and with very good reason, organized labour has been opposed, and bitterly opposed, to having settlement of labour disputes imposed upon them rather than being allowed to negotiate.

I know there are people who will contend that there should be compulsory settlements of industrial disputes where the public interest is heavily involved. Indeed, whenever we are in a period of labour unrest—and we are in such a period now—there are renewed demands for imposing a settlement on the parties to these disputes, rather than have the public interest suffer.

Honourable senators, I can appreciate that there may be times when some type of compulsory settlement may be necessary, but generally speaking it should be remembered that the collective bargaining procedure is the best method yet devised to allow labour and management to get along together and to settle any disputes that may arise between them. It may be that the time has come to take a new look at all our labour legislation, to see if it is as effective and as beneficial as it might be, to see if improvements could be made.

I think it would also be as well to investigate and to learn the causes of so much labour unrest at the present time. Some people believe, as I do, that the main reason is the ever-increasing cost of living. Others believe it is the threat to job security caused by automation, new procedures, and the like. In any event, whatever the cause, if we knew it we might be able to take preventive action.

I do not know how many honourable senators read an editorial which appeared this morning in the Montreal Gazette. If they have not, I commend it to them. I shall not quote it, but it deals with the situation of the Province of Quebec at the present time. With equal effect, it could have applied to the whole of Canada.

Honourable senators, with regard to the bill itself, I do not think it should be passed at this time. It is an amazing thing that an industrial inquiry commission has been appointed but, before a report can be brought down, that report is to be incorporated into a collective bargaining agreement. At least, could we not have waited until the report was received and made public? I realize that there is a great deal of dispute, a great deal of controversy, as to the attitude of the parties, as to whether or not there was an agreement, whether or not there was acquiescence in the passing of this legislation.

I have here some quotations—which I am not going to read, because I presume others have seen them also—where the labour leaders deny there is such knowledge and such information.

Honourable senators, I would like to see this bill given a hoist, so that we could send it to a committee, where all parties interested could come and be heard. Every time we pass legislation containing compulsory arbitration in an industrial dispute, we are weakening the whole fabric of our collective bargaining as we know it.

Honourable senators, from my words you may take it that I am opposed to this measure and that I shall vote against it.

Hon. John J. Connolly: Honourable senators, I shall not detain the house for any length of time—

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators realize that if honourable Senator Connolly (Ottawa West) speaks now, it has the effect of closing the debate.

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): There are some things that I should say in reply to my honourable friend the senator from Cape Breton.

It is important to try to project our minds back to the night of the June 14. These parties had then been negotiating, disputing, probably with some heat, for some eight months. The ports had been closed from May 18—almost a month. It was realized that this situation was creating a condition which was dangerous to the Canadian economy in many ways.

The parties came very close to a final conclusion. There was very little separating the federation from the union in their respective positions. We must give both of them credit for desiring to get those ports open again. This was a commendable attitude for them to have and they took it. There were many, even minor points of difference between them. For example, 20 cents of the 40 cents increase for the first year was to be in return for certain improvements in productivity; in the second year, 25 cents out of 40 cents was to be granted for increased productivity.

Now, they might have been able to go on bargaining. How many more days, how many more weeks, how many more months might have had to elapse before they came to a final conclusion about these relatively minor points, when they were so close to a final agreement is not known. What they did in effect was this. They said, "Let us get the ports open, let us get the men back to work, let us get these cargoes moving, let us appoint an arbitrator who will examine these outstanding points of difference."

This arbitrator is not going to go into these hearings with a preconceived idea of what should be done; neither is he going to take dictation from anybody at these hearings. The union representatives and the representatives of the federation will present their cases, not only in respect of productivity but in respect of certain protection and advantages that are to accrue to the workers themselves. I do not think we should prejudge what this commission will find.

There is another aspect to be considered, honourable senators. The negotiating team from the union in this atmosphere was anxious for its union to agree that they should return to work, and I could understand they would hesitate to see put down in writing the precise terms of the legislation. That, I think, more than anything else, was the reason why the wording was as indefinite as it was. I think that at that moment of time they felt they could rely upon the fairness of the arbitrator and of the commission that would be appointed to deal with these outstanding points of difference. These productivity factors had to be measured. There was going to be payment for them, but they felt that this could be done in a way that would be fair to both parties and that would recognize the seniority and the position in the union of the various workers.

The words "compulsory arbitration" may have a bad connotation, and perhaps it is unfair to apply it to this particular legislation. I do not mind applying it because I think there is certainly an element of compulsion in it. But I think there is an element of fairness about it that will result from the incorporation into these agreements of the findings of a fair investigator, and that is the kind of man the Government has appointed to do this.

I commend the bill to the Senate.

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, it is moved by the honourable Senator Connolly (Ottawa West), seconded by the honourable Senator Beaubien (Provencher) that this bill be now read a second time. Is it your pleasure, honourable senators, to adopt the motion?

Hon. Mr. Macdonald (Cape Breton): On division.

Motion agreed to and bill read second time, on division.

THIRD READING

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this bill be read the third time?

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): With leave of the Senate, I move that the bill be read the third time now.

Hon. Mr. Macdonald (Cape Breton): On divison.

Motion agreed to and bill read third time and passed, on division.

PENITENTIARIES

JOINT COMMITTEE—CHANGE IN COMMONS MEMBERSHIP

The Hon. the Speaker informed the Senate that a message had been received from the House of Commons to acquaint the Senate that the name of Mr. Winch has been substituted for that of Mrs. MacInnis on the list of members appointed to serve on the Joint Committee on Penitentiaries.

ROYAL ASSENT

NOTICE

GOVERNMENT HOUSE

Ottawa

14th July 1966

Sir,

I have the honour to inform you that the Hon. Emmett M. Hall, Puisne Judge of the Supreme Court of Canada, acting as Deputy to His Excellency the Governor General, will proceed to the Senate Chamber today, the 14th July, at 11.30 p.m., for the purpose of giving Royal Assent to certain Bills.

I have the honour to be,

Sir,

Your obedient servant,

A. G. Cherrier

Assistant Secretary

to the Governor General.

The Honourable

The Speaker of the Senate.

ADJOURNMENT

Leave having been given to revert to motions:

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): Honourable senators, I move, with leave of the Senate, that when the Senate adjourns today it do stand adjourned until Tuesday, October 18, 1966, at 8 o'clock in the evening.

I must couple this motion with these remarks. I understand that the House of Commons will be reassembling on October 5. There is always the possibility that, in circumstances somewhat similar to the ones in which we find ourselves tonight, they might reassemble earlier, but we all hope this will not happen. It may be that the Senate will be required to reconvene before October 18. So, while I make the motion in this form now, I do so in the expectation and hope that if we reassemble at that time there will be work from the other place for us to do, or legislation for us to introduce here.

On the other hand, if work is available earlier and our presence is required, the Senate can be recalled by His Honour the Speaker on appropriate advice. So, while the adjournment is to October 18, it is subject to recall earlier. I need not emphasize it to honourable senators because they understand —but I want it to be very clear to the press and to the public.

Motion agreed to.

The Senate adjourned during pleasure.

ROYAL ASSENT

The Honourable Emmett M. Hall, Deputy of His Excellency the Governor General, having come and being seated at the foot of the Throne, and the House of Commons having been summoned and being come with their Speaker, the Honourable the Deputy of His Excellency the Governor General was pleased to give Royal Assent to the following bills:

An Act to authorize the making of contributions by Canada towards the cost of programs for the provision of assistance and welfare services to and in respect of persons in need.

An Act to amend the Canadian Corporation for the 1967 World Exhibition Act.

An Act to amend the Income Tax Act.

An Act to establish a corporation for the administration of the National Arts Centre.

An Act to incorporate Bank of Western Canada.

An Act respecting certain conditions of employment of dock workers at the Ports of Montreal, Trois-Rivières and Quebec.

The House of Commons withdrew.

The Honourable the Deputy of His Excellency the Governor General was pleased to retire.

The sitting of the Senate was resumed.

The Senate adjourned until Tuesday, October 18, at 8 p.m.

THE SENATE

Monday, August 29, 1966

The Senate met at 8 p.m., the Speaker in the Chair.

Prayers.

NEW SENATORS

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, I have the honour to inform the Senate that the Clerk has received certificates from the Secretary of State of Canada showing that the following persons, respectively, have been summoned to the Senate:

Hon. Alan Aylesworth Macnaughton, P.C.
Paul Desruisseaux, Esquire
James Duggan, Esquire
Thomas Joseph Kickham, Esquire.

NEW SENATORS INTRODUCED

The Hon. the Speaker having informed the Senate that there were senators without, waiting to be introduced:

The following honourable senators were introduced; presented Her Majesty's writs of summons, which were read by the Clerk; took the legally prescribed oath, which was administered by the Clerk, and were seated.

Hon. Alan Aylesworth Macnaughton, P.C., of Westmount, Quebec, introduced between Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West) and Hon. Mr. Hugessen.

Hon. Paul Desruisseaux, of Sherbrooke, Quebec, introduced between Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West) and Hon. Mr. Vaillancourt.

Hon. James Duggan, of St. John's, Newfoundland, introduced between Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West) and Hon. Mr. Basha.

Hon. Thomas Joseph Kickham, of Souris, Prince Edward Island, introduced between Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West) and Hon. Mrs. Inman.

The Hon. the Speaker informed the Senate that each of the honourable senators named above had made and subscribed the declaration of qualification required by the British North America Act, 1867, in the presence of the Clerk of the Senate, the Commissioner appointed to receive and witness the said declaration.

EMERGENCY SITTINGS

Hon. John J. Connolly: Honourable senators, it is most gratifying but not surprising that there should be so many honourable senators present this evening. I think we can take judicial, if not senatorial, notice of the fact that there is in this country a serious national emergency; and I would expect nothing less than a general as well as a generous response from the members of the Senate in this emergency.

While it would be quite improper to anticipate any legislation, I should inform honourable senators that an effort has been made to provide them with the legislation which is being considered in the other place. Each senator entering the chamber this evening was given a copy of a piece of legislation which may reach us at any time. In any event, copies are available here this evening.

Tomorrow morning, honourable senators will receive in their boxes not only copies of the legislation to which I obviously refer but also another piece of legislation which was introduced in the other place. It may not come to us at a very early date; nonetheless, it will be of interest to honourable senators.

I make this announcement so that honourable senators will be aware of the fact that this material is available now.

DOCUMENTS TABLED

Hon. John J. Connolly tabled:

Report of the number and amount of Loans to Indians made under section 69(1) of the Indian Act for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1966, pursuant to section 69(6) of the said Act, chapter 149, R.S.C., 1952. (English and French texts).

Revised Capital Budget of the Farm Credit Corporation for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1967, pursuant to section 80(2) of the Financial Administration Act, chapter 116, R.S.C., 1952, and a copy of Order in Council P.C. 1966-1297, dated July 12, 1966, approving same. (English and French texts).

Report on the Administration of the Small Businesses Loans Act for the year ended December 31, 1965, pursuant to section 11 of the said Act, chapter 5, Statutes of Canada, 1960-61. (English and French texts).

Report of a Loan made August 4, 1966, out of the Consolidated Revenue Fund to The St. Lawrence Seaway Authority, pursuant to section 26(4) of the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority Act, chapter 242, R.S.C., 1952. (English and French texts).

Report of the Minister of Finance on the state of the Unemployment Insurance Fund as of March 31, 1966, and of the transactions under section 86 of the Unemployment Insurance Act for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1966, pursuant to section 87 of the said Act, chapter 50, Statutes of Canada, 1955. (English and French texts).

Statutory Orders and Regulations published in the Canada Gazette, Part II, of Wednesday, July 27, August 10 and August 24, 1966, pursuant to section 7 of the Regulations Act, chapter 235, R.S.C., 1952. (English and French texts).

Report of operations under the Coal Production Assistance Act for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1966, pursuant to section 9 of the said Act, chapter 173, R.S.C., 1952, as amended. (English and French texts).

Report of the Unemployment Insurance Advisory Committee for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1966, pursuant to section 90(2) of the Unemployment Insurance Act, chapter 50, Statutes of Canada, 1955. (English text).

Statement of Receipts and Expenditures under Part V of the Canada Shipping Act (Sick Mariners) for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1966, pursuant to section 321 of the said Act, chapter 29, R.S.C., 1952. (English and French texts).

Report of the Department of Transport for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1965, pursuant to section 34 of the Department of Transport Act, chapter 79, R.S.C., 1952. (English and French texts).

Report of the Department of Transport containing a Statement of Wharf Revenue Receipts and a Statement of Harbour Dues for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1966, pursuant to section 14 of the Government Harbours and Piers Act, chapter 135, R.S.C., 1952. (English text).

Copies of telegram, dated August 22, 1966, from the Prime Minister to:

1. The President and Chairman C.N.R. (Donald Gordon)

2. The President and Chairman C.P.R. (Ian Sinclair)

3. The Chairman, Negotiating Committee, Associated Non-operating Unions. (R.C. Smith)

4. The President and Secretary-Treasurer, division No. 4, Railway Employees Department, (T. W. Read)

5. The National President, Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers, (W. J. Smith)

6. The Chairman, Employees Negotiating Committee, Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, (G. C. Gale), and replies by telegram, dated August 23rd, 1966, to the Prime Minister from:

1. The President and Chairman C.N.R.

2. The President and Chairman C.P.R.

3. The Chairman, Negotiating Committee, Associated International Non-Operating Railway Unions

4. The President, division No. 4, Rail-Railway Strike called August 22nd, 1966. way Employees Department concerning Railway Strike called August 22nd, 1966.

RICHELIEU BRIDGE COMPANY ACT

BILL TO AMEND—FIRST READING

Hon. John J. Connolly presented Bill S-44, to amend an act to incorporate the Richelieu Bridge Company.

Bill read first time.

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West) moved, with leave of the Senate, that the bill be placed on the Orders of the Day for second reading at the next sitting.

Motion agreed to.

MANITOBA-SASKATCHEWAN BOUNDARY BILL

FIRST READING

Hon. John J. Connolly presented Bill S-45, respecting the Boundary between the Provinces of Manitoba and Saskatchewan.

Bill read first time.

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West) moved, with leave of the Senate, that the bill be placed on the Orders of the Day for second reading at the next sitting.

Motion agreed to.

SASKATCHEWAN-NORTHWEST TERRITORIES BOUNDARY BILL

FIRST READING

Hon. John J. Connolly presented Bill S-46, respecting the Boundary between the Province of Saskatchewan and the Northwest Territories.

Bill read first time.

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West) moved, with leave of the Senate, that the bill be placed on the Orders of the Day for second reading at the next sitting.

Motion agreed to.

MANITOBA-NORTHWEST TERRITORIES BOUNDARY BILL

FIRST READING

Hon. John J. Connolly presented Bill S-47, respecting the Boundary between the Province of Manitoba and the Northwest Territories.

Bill read first time.

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West) moved that the bill be placed on the Orders of the Day for second reading at the next sitting.

Motion agreed to.

CANADA LANDS SURVEYS ACT

BILL TO AMEND—FIRST READING

Hon. John J. Connolly presented Bill S-48, to amend the Canada Lands Surveys Act.

Bill read first time.

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West) moved, with leave of the Senate, that the bill be placed on the Orders of the Day for second reading at the next sitting.

He said: Honourable senators, although we do not make a practice of giving explanations on first reading, I should like to say something not about the measure itself but about the procedures of the Senate in respect of the measure.

As honourable senators are aware, as a general rule private bills are by custom introduced in the Senate. There are exceptions. We receive here for introduction in the first instance private bills to incorporate various types of companies and organizations: insurance companies, trust and loan companies, pipe line companies and banks; we receive bills to establish religious, cultural and philanthropic organizations: organizations like the Medical Council of Canada, the Canadian Dental Association and Red Cross. I think I need not give examples of the other type of private bills that we have here.

The bills that I have introduced here this evening, and there have been five of them, are not in the category of private bills. They are government bills. I draw honourable senators' attention to the fact that government bills which are purely financial in character, which appropriate a part of the public revenue, which impose a tax, are not properly introducible in the Senate.

The reason for that lies in sections 53 and 55 of the British North America Act which, for the purposes of the record, I shall read. Section 53 provides that:

> Bills for appropriating any Part of the Public Revenue, or for imposing any Tax or Impost, shall originate in the House of Commons.

And Section 54:

> It shall not be lawful for the House of Commons to adopt or pass any Vote, Resolution, Address, or Bill for the Appropriation of any Part of the Public Revenue, or of any Tax or Impost, to any Purpose that has not been first recommended to that House by Message of the Governor General in the Session in which such Vote, Resolution, Address, or Bill is proposed.

In other words, bills which are purely financial, appropriation bills, require a resolution for introduction in the other house, and a message from the Governor General must recommend such bills. Clearly, such bills are not introducible here.

However, there are other government bills in which Parliament is interested and with which Parliament deals at times, and in such a category are bills which have no financial implications. There is no prohibition against the introduction of such bills in the Senate. Indeed, many such bills have been introduced here: for example, an act to amend the Criminal Code, acts to amend the Bankruptcy Act, acts to deal with admiralty matters, the Shipping Act of 1935, and bills affecting trademarks.

Generally speaking, these are measures which have no financial implication, and for that reason were brought before this house in the first instance, although this is primarily a chamber of review.

It is conceivable, of course, that some bills or resolutions of importance to the Government may be of such major concern to the appropriate minister or to the Government itself, or be matters of major Government policy, that everyone would consider it reasonable that the ministers or the government of the day should feel it more appropriate to introduce them in the other place, and that the ministers should speak to them in their own house. In this session, for example, there has been introduced in the other place a number of such measures which, technically speaking, could have been introduced here. For example, the bill to amend the Bank Act—the decennial revision of the Bank Act—was introduced in the other place. It could have been introduced here, and some honourable senators with very good reason have suggested that it would have been a good thing had it been introduced here.

Hon. Mr. McCutcheon: Was not that a money bill?

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): No, it was not.

Hon. Mr. McCutcheon: It was introduced by resolution.

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): I think not. Perhaps that bears checking. If it falls within the other category then I stand corrected. I will have it looked up. But the bill to extend the time for consideration of objections pursuant to section 20 of the Electoral Boundaries Readjustment Act was certainly not a money bill in the strict sense of the word. It was introduced in the other place. The bill to amend the Combines Investigation Act and the Criminal Code was not a money bill, but it was introduced in the other place because it was thought to be important enough for the minister concerned to deal with it there.

The bill to amend the Financial Administration Act, which was dealt with here earlier, was introduced in the other place, and it did not have implicit financial implications. I might say that there are cases in which the dividing line between strictly money bills and those which are not is sometimes hard to find.

I desire to draw the attention of this house to the fact that Senator Farris on an earlier occasion this session dealt particularly with Rule 18A of the Senate which permits ministers who are members of the House of Commons to come here, if they so desire, to introduce a measure. This device has been used on five different occasions. The Honourable Lionel Chevrier did it twice, and the Honourable Brooke Claxton, the Honourable Stuart Garson and the late Honourable Gordon Bradley each did it once. This may be a useful device on occasion, but I am sure all honourable senators like to think that the practice that has grown up here whereby members of the Senate, regardless of the political persuasion of the government in office, take the responsibility of sponsoring public legislation introduced here, is a good practice. If I may say so, this work has been done particularly well by members of this chamber who have assumed that responsibility. I would like to go further, honourable senators, and say that during this session a number of new senators have demonstrated their willingness to take that responsibility, a responsibility that they discharged with honour to themselves and to the Senate.

I should like to point out also that while we may not take advantage of Rule 18A often, it does happen in many cases that when a bill is sponsored by either myself as the Leader of the Government in the Senate or on my behalf and on behalf of the Government by an honourable senator, that bill goes to a committee where we have an opportunity of hearing directly from the minister. My honourable friend Senator Hayden, the Chairman of the Standing Committee on Banking and Commerce, has presided over many sittings of his committee at which ministers have been present to explain bills in which they were involved.

The onus of starting government bills in this chamber is primarily one that is upon the shoulders of the Government, but I think, in a certain sense, it is an onus that falls also upon the Leader of the Government in the Senate, particularly when he is a member of the Cabinet. He does this because of his membership in the legislation committee of the Cabinet as well as his membership in the Cabinet itself. For the record, and for the information not only of the new senators but of all of us, it is interesting to note that in my 13 years here—and when I was appointed to the Senate the Honourable W. Ross Macdonald was the Leader of the Government—there have been 110 public bills introduced in this chamber.

There is another category of bill which qualifies for introduction here because of a Canadian practice and a background of Canadian precedent. These are bills which have incidental monetary aspects. As so many of us have done, I have consulted with the Clerk of the Senate in this matter. Indeed, as so many of us have done, I have sat at his feet for instruction in this respect. He has provided me, first of all, with a quotation from Bourinot's Parliamentary Procedure, Fourth Edition, page 493, part of which reads as follows:

> It is frequently found convenient to introduce bills involving public expenditure in the Senate, and in such a case, the money clauses are embodied in the bill as presented, in order to make it more intelligible. When the Senate goes into Committee on the bill, these clauses are ordered to be left out. They are printed in red ink or italics in the engrossed bill sent up to the Commons, and are technically supposed to be blanks.

Perhaps the practice now is slightly different because I do not think red ink is used; perhaps it could be. I do not think italics are used; perhaps they could be.

There was another precedent established in 1947. In that year Senator J. J. Donnelly presented to the Senate a report of the Standing Committee on Natural Resources concerning Bill M-9, respecting certain National Parks and to amend the National Parks Act. Senator Donnelly, as reported at page 431 of the Debates of the Senate of 1947 said:

> Honourable senators, the committee have, in obedience to the order of reference of June 5, 1947, examined this bill, and now beg leave to report the same with two amendments. These amendments are not contentious. They were both either suggested or approved by the Law Clerk of the Senate or representatives of the department. The first amendment deletes paragraph (p) of clause 9. That paragraph purports to grant certain powers to tax; but the power to tax must originate in the House of Commons. It is therefore proposed that the paragraph should be deleted, in the expectation that it will be inserted by the other house and returned for our consideration.

That report was adopted and the bill was given third reading. This is reported in the Debates of the Senate, 1947, at pages 458 to 462.

When it reached the House of Commons the bill was amended as follows:

> Page 2, line 26: Insert the following paragraph between paragraph (o) and (q):
>
> (p) levying taxes upon the residents of a Park in order to defray the cost of health and welfare services supplied to such residents by a province pursuant to an agreement made under paragraph (o) of this subsection or supplied to such residents by the Government of Canada.

The amendment was concurred in by the Senate, as reported in the Debates of the Senate, 1947 at pages 556 and 557.

The third Canadian precedent occurred in 1949 when the National Defence Bill was introduced and explained in the Senate by the then minister, the Honourable Brooke Claxton. This bill involved expenditures of public moneys. Senator Hayden in reporting the bill from the Standing Committee on Banking and Commerce, as reported in the Debates of the Senate, 1949, second session, at page 39, said:

> I should call the attention of the house to the closing paragraph of the report of the committee.
>
> There were a number of sections in the bill which dealt with the expenditure of money—what we ordinarily call "money clauses"—and as the Senate cannot initiate bills dealing with money matters—and this bill originated in the Senate—the committee deleted from the bill the clauses set out in the last paragraph of the report. Those clauses will of course be restored when the bill is considered in the other place.

Honourable senators, when I was in London late in May, I had a discussion about this general matter with Mr. Charles Gordon, the Fourth Clerk at the Table in the House of Lords. He gave me a copy of the Criminal Procedure (Insanity) Bill, which was introduced in the House of Lords in 1964.

For some reason, which I cannot explain, nor could he, clause 6 of this bill was considered to have an incidental monetary aspect. I shall read clause 6, which is very short.

> 6. In section 3(2) of the Costs in Criminal Cases Act 1952, any reference to an appeal against conviction which is allowed shall include a reference to an appeal which is allowed against a special verdict or a finding that the accused is under disability.

The House of Lords treated this clause much as the Senate treated the two bills which I have mentioned, in 1947 and 1949. I understand that the section was struck out on third reading after the committee stage, but when it went to the House of Commons the blank was filled in and the clause was restored. Again the bill was returned to the Lords and they accepted the amendment.

Honourable senators, the procedure which I have outlined so far reflects one side of the coin; but the House of Lords has also at times adopted a procedure which reflects the other side of the coin. I have here a copy of the bill passed in 1966 by the British Parliament, called the Commonwealth Secretariat Bill. This was introduced in the House of Lords. The bill dealt with the establishment of a Commonwealth Secretariat, and followed a decision which was made at the meeting of the prime ministers just prior to the time the bill was introduced in the British Parliament. It made the Secretariat a body corporate, it conferred certain privileges on the Secretariat and its staff, and it provided that the bill should have retrospective effect to July 1, 1965.

As honourable senators know, the head of the Secretariat is Mr. Arnold Smith, who was a former public servant in Canada.

While in the bill there is no reference, even incidental, to a monetary aspect, it is quite clear, of course, that the establishment of the Secretariat would involve the expenditure of money, which would have to be provided for in the Estimates.

Recognizing the Lords' incapacity to deal with a matter which would make a charge upon the Treasury, and indeed, too, as a gesture of recognition of this limitation, the Lords inserted subsection (3) of section 2, as follows:

> Nothing in this Act shall impose any charge on the people or on public funds, or vary the amount of incidence or otherwise alter any such charge in any manner, or affect the assessment, levying, administration or application of any money raised by any such Charge.

It is quite clear that, despite the wording of the inserted subsection, a charge would be imposed on the people or on public funds. Nonetheless, the addition was made and the reason for the addition was clear, even though with it the bill would be ineffective to carry out the purposes for which it was intended.

When the bill reached the House of Commons, this clause was struck out. The bill as amended was returned to the Lords and they concurred.

In the short memorandum that I received from Mr. Gordon, he says this:

> The methods by which financial provisions are inserted in Bills originating in the Lords (described on pp. 506 and 555 of the 17th Edition of Erskine May) are governed entirely by practice and are not referred to in the Standing Orders of either House.
>
> Although no Money Bill (in the technical sense) can originate in the Lords, Bills from that House containing financial provisions are not uncommon. In the last complete Session of normal length (1964-65), thirty Bills were sent down from the Lords to the Commons. Of these, fourteen were Consolidation Bills, which of their very nature imposed no charge. Of the remaining sixteen, ten contained no financial provisions; five contained a "privilege insertion" later struck out by the Commons (May, p. 506); and the remaining one had a provision left blank for the Commons to fill.

Honourable senators, I conclude only by saying this, that the bill before us now, to amend the Canada Lands Surveys Act, has some minor incidental monetary provisions. It is not a contentious bill and can be considered as being more in the nature of a housekeeping bill. I have taken advantage of its introduction here this evening to point out the possibilities of the Senate getting more such bills, more work, more such legislation, even though there may be monetary clauses in them which otherwise might make it desirable that they be initiated in the other place.

I hope honourable senators will express their opinions about this matter when we reach the second reading stage of this bill; and I hope that some of these proposals will commend themselves to their approval.

Hon. Jacques Flynn: Honourable senators, may I put a question to the honourable Leader of the Government. I am very much interested in the suggestions he has made whereby this house may deal with bills having money implications. I wonder if the honourable leader would suggest any device whereby this house could amend some money clauses in bills introduced in the other place.

As the honourable leader knows, it has been ruled out of order for us to amend a money clause if it imposes a burden on the Treasury. Perhaps there could be a device along the lines of that which he has suggested, whereby we could do this. It might help the other place in some circumstances.

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): It might very well. So far as an increase in the impost is concerned, there has been a firm opinion given to the Senate. I think the understanding always has been that in no circumstances can the Senate increase the impost. That opinion was given many years ago, in conformity with sections 53 and 54 of the British North America Act, by very prominent leaders of the legal profession—Eugene Lafleur, Aimé Geoffrion and W. N. Tilley.

Hon. Mr. McCutcheon: But the Senate can decrease it.

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): On the question of decreasing it, since I became a senator, sitting either on this side of the house or on the other side, I have seen and heard leaders stand and say that even a decrease—because of the effect it would have upon ways and means—would be resisted by the other place and resisted by the Government.

Hon. Mr. McCutcheon: But they were wrong.

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): They have said this repeatedly. Many honourable senators will remember that we made certain amendments when the Estate Tax Act was brought before us here. One of them was a minor amendment—what we suggested was done later through the Income Tax Act—but because there was a possibility of an increase in the revenue, even a very minute one, the amendment was resisted. Honourable Senator Macdonald (Brantford) will remember this particular case.

Hon. Mr. Macdonald (Brantford): You resisted it.

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): No. We were in opposition at the time.

Hon. Mr. Macdonald (Brantford): I did not press it.

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): In any event, the amendment was resisted and the Senate then did not insist upon it.

The suggestion made by honourable Senator Flynn certainly deserves consideration. However, it is not to that point that I have been speaking; I have been referring more particularly to bills which have an incidental monetary consideration in them. For the most part such bills are non-contentious. I would hope that we could deal with more of them. So far we have dealt with quite a number. I intend to refer in a few minutes to the work which has been done thus far by the Senate this session. I think we are doing fairly well in having new legislation introduced here first. If I may say so without appearing boastful, the legislation which is initiated here benefits as a result of the work done by the Senate and particularly by its committees.

Hon. W. Ross Macdonald: May I say a word in answer to the inquiry made by Senator Flynn? I would remind him and other honourable senators that there have been times when the other place has refused to accept an amendment to a financial measure, a taxation measure, although the amendment made in this chamber had no bearing whatever on the financial aspects of the measures. It was an amendment with respect to the administration of the act. However, the other place would not accept it; they took the attitude that it was a financial measure and the Senate could not amend it.

Hon. Mr. McCutcheon: We should not have agreed to it.

Hon. Mr. Macdonald (Brantford): I might say we did not, and the result is that the bill died on the Order Paper.

Hon. Mr. Choquette: The result would be that we could never make an amendment to such a bill in those circumstances.

Hon. Mr. Flynn: It was a matter of policy in the other place to refuse an amendment made here. What we are discussing this evening is the question of our own rules.

Hon. Mr. Macdonald (Brantford): The reason they gave on that occasion was that the bill was a financial bill.

Hon. A. J. Brooks: Honourable senators, I do not intend debating this matter tonight. As a matter of fact I doubt if I could debate it at any time to any extent. We all agree, I am sure, that if there is any possible way in which our honourable leader can increase the work of the Senate, we would be all in favour of it. As we know, while we have dealt with a large number of bills in the Senate, we are capable of dealing with a far greater number. We have not only the time to do so, but so far as our members are concerned we also have the ability to do so.

With reference to what the honourable leader has said, may I ask this question: Is this bill which he is introducing intended to be what I might call a test bill or a "guinea pig" bill? If it is found that this method of introducing legislation is sound, will we have any greater number of bills before the Senate in addition to the one which he hopes to bring in at this time? If this were the case the main justification for a bill of this kind would be that it is going to increase the work of the Senate. We are very anxious to increase our work. There is no reason why these bills should not be presented here, except that under our present rules it appears this cannot be done. If we can circumvent the rules and have more business, that is all to the good. If we cannot do it that way, perhaps some amendment could be made. In my view the Senate should have more work to do, and I congratulate the Leader of the Senate on his efforts to provide more work.

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): My friend asks if this is what he calls a "guinea pig" bill—

Hon. Mr. Brooks: Let us say a test bill.

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): —or a test bill. In view of the precedents in 1947 and 1949, it is obvious that the Canadian Senate has already adopted the practice that is probably applicable here. I took advantage of the opportunity this evening to speak about another practice that has grown up in the House of Lords which might very well be a useful device for this body to use, and which might have the effect also of permitting more legislation to be introduced here. I refer to what has been called the "privileged insertion."

Hon. Mr. Brooks: Were these bills you mention, the two in the Senate of Canada and the two in the House of Lords, questioned at all? Was there any objection made to them or any debate as to whether they were constitutional or not?

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): I think it was quite clear in the two Canadian precedents that the committee refused to consider the bills with the financial clause and struck them out knowing what the result would be.

So far as the action of the House of Lords on the Commonwealth Secretariat bill is concerned, they knew there were financial implications, but it was a good bill, and the House of Commons at that time was loaded down with legislation after the Prime Ministers' Conference. This was the device they used, and it was a useful one. The important point to keep in mind, however, is that it was not a matter of the rules of either house which enabled it to be done. It has been done a number of times and as a result a practice has developed. I suggest that practice is sound.

Coming now to this particular bill, I simply regard it as an opportunity for introducing another piece of legislation in the Senate. I was happy to have four pieces to introduce to the Senate when it returned this evening. I felt there was a likelihood that when the Senate met here this evening it would simply be for the purpose of adjourning, and I do not think that is as it should be. I would fail in my duty as a member of the Senate, having a seat in the cabinet and being on the legislation committee of the cabinet, if I did not do all I could to get every new piece of legislation possible for introduction in the Senate in the first instance.

Hon. Jean-François Pouliot: Honourable senators, there is nothing I enjoy more than free discussion between the two leaders of this house. The Leader of the Government (Hon. Mr. Connolly, Ottawa West) has opened the window and a gust of fresh air has come in to blow off the dust that covers the rules which we call the Standing Orders. I think it is high time to simplify the rules of both houses. There are some who have been posing as experts. One of the experts in the House of Commons published big books which were made with scissors, Pepper and glue—the scissors to cut quotations from other books; Pepper was the messenger who used the scissors, and the glue was used to paste the clippings onto galleys which were sent to the printer who in turn published a big, thick book.

While our rules do not date back exactly to the Magna Carta, they originated shortly afterwards when there was a quarrel between the bigger and smaller barons. It is from that time that we have two separate Houses of Parliament. Everybody knows this; I am not telling you anything that is highly technical. I am trying to bring you back to the establishment of two houses. However, there is no quarrel now between the Senate and the House of Commons.

I hope honourable senators will excuse me if I use the phrase "House of Commons" instead of "the other place". "The other place" could mean a store on Sparks Street or a hotel in town. I find it ridiculous that we still use the sanctimonious expression "the other place" because of a quarrel between the bigger and smaller barons in England 700 years ago, at the time of the foundation of the House of Commons. I find it ridiculous to say "the other place" for the House of Commons when we are in the Senate and for the House of Commons to use the same expression for the Senate. Why not use the language of the Constitution, the British North America Act, and use the word "Senate" for this chamber and the "House of Commons" for the other chamber?

There are some friends of mine who read the Hansard of both houses, and they ask me what is the other place. You may laugh, honourable senators, but that is true. This reminds me of an occasion when I posted a letter in my home town and it was addressed to Mr. So-and-so, "City". I was told there was no post office of that name. Then here in Ottawa I sent a letter to Mr. So-and-so, "En ville", it too came back to me, and I was told there was no post office of that name.

Let us be serious; let us appreciate what has been said by the Leader of the Government that there should be some kind of reform so that more bills can be introduced in the Senate even when they contain money provisions. That is my first point.

The second point is that we do not need more work in the Senate because we do a lot of work already, but we are always ready to co-operate with the House of Commons, and in spite of the work we have to do we are ready to share their work and try to help them in dealing with legislation.

Now I come to my main point: What is the use of introducing some legislation with many provisions in the Senate or in the House of Commons when we do not understand the legislation that is sent to us by the big brains of the Department of Justice?

You remember the Bankruptcy Act, which was discussed seriously for several sittings here in the Senate and in committee. Finally I had the satisfaction of asking the Minister of Justice, who was there in committee, who had drafted that bill. He presumed that it was the officers of the Department of Justice, and I had the further satisfaction of telling him, before my colleagues, that it was just as clear as mud.

The main point is not whether bills are introduced in the Senate or in the House of Commons. The time has come when we should have legislation that is simple and easy to understand, and that will not be the cause of useless litigation.

I convey my appreciation to the Leader of the Government for doing his best to try to override the present system which is obsolete, not only for the Senate but also for the House of Commons.

All the rules have to be changed. They should be drafted in a different spirit. The members have been working on it in the House of Commons in order to improve the debate. But what has happened? I heard an expert on the rules say that he regretted that under the new system all the members were attending committees and nobody could sit in the house to discuss the legislation before the house. They said, "Well, we will try to do something again."

Let them simplify all those matters. Let them make a bonfire with all the copies of Beauchesne's books and then there will be great improvement. One of the superior aspects of the Senate rules is that Beauchesne's book is not mentioned in the foreword. That is to the credit of the Senate.

I do not believe in routine. Routine should not be confounded with tradition. They are very different matters. The main guideline of the British parliamentary practice is freedom of speech, freedom of discussion, and this is one of the main reasons why the barons met King John to get the Magna Carta.

That being said, I hope that the legislation will be simplified, and we will no longer have three and a half-page sentences or phrases in any bill. I hope that the bills will be drafted with more skill and by people who are competent to write them.

For me it was a scandal to hear that the revision of the statute books will be made by the bureaucrats of the Department of Justice. How could it be done? I will ask questions in due course in order to know where they have worked, what kind of work they have done, how many hours they have spent, and if they have neglected their other work in the Department of Justice to do the revision of the statutes which contain all the laws that apply to every man, woman and child in this country. It was really irresponsible to give that work to the bureaucrats, the incompetent bureaucrats of the Department of Justice.

The main thing that we have to do is see to it absolutely that more legislation is given to the Senate. I have no objection to that, as I have said. I am ready to co-operate with the House of Commons to a limit, but there should be a better drafting of legislation, and it is time to see to it now. It will be the greatest service that can be rendered to the Canadian people.

I remember the Ministers of Justice that were in the House of Commons in my time. I remember Mr. Guthrie, Mr. Lapointe, Mr. St. Laurent, and I remember others too. What did they say? They said that this is the law. The Minister of Justice was speaking, as he had to do, and then the Department of Justice was more respected and it was a very good thing. The people of Canada felt that they had real protection from the Department of Justice.

That being said, I will wait until a further occasion to continue.

The Hon. the Speaker: With leave of the Senate, it is moved by Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West), seconded by Hon. Mr. Hayden, that this bill be placed on the Orders of the Day for second reading at the next sitting. Is it the pleasure of the Senate to adopt the motion?

Motion agreed to.

REFUND OF FEES

UNITED BAPTIST WOMAN'S MISSIONARY UNION OF THE MARITIME PROVINCES

Hon. A. J. Brooks, with leave of the Senate, moved:

That the parliamentary fees paid upon Bill S-33, intituled "An Act respecting United Baptist Woman's Missionary Union of the Maritime Provinces" be refunded to the petitioners, less printing and translation costs.

Motion agreed to.

BUSINESS OF THE SENATE

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): Honourable senators, in view of the emergency under which we meet, and the hour being 9.30, it might be desirable for the Senate to adjourn during pleasure to resume at the call of the bell about 10 o'clock. The purpose of this recess would be to learn what progress is being made in the other place and at what hour they intend to sit tomorrow. It could help us in making a decision as to what hour we should assemble tomorrow.

If that is agreeable, I would suggest that we rise now and re-assemble at the call of the bell at approximately 10 o'clock.

The Senate adjourned during pleasure.

At 10.10 p.m. the sitting was resumed.

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): Honourable senators, the progress in the other place is such that we cannot expect an early decision. The House of Commons will resume tomorrow at its usual hour. In the circumstances, I move that the Senate do now adjourn.

Motion agreed to.

The Senate adjourned until tomorrow at 3 p.m.

23031—76

THE SENATE

Tuesday, August 30, 1966

The Senate met at 3 p.m., the Speaker in the Chair.

Prayers.

DOCUMENTS TABLED

Hon. John J. Connolly tabled:

Report of The Canada Council, including its Accounts and Financial Statements certified by the Auditor General, for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1966, pursuant to section 23 of the Canada Council Act, chapter 3, Statutes of Canada, 1957. (English and French texts).

Report of the National Gallery of Canada, including its Accounts and Financial Statements certified by the Auditor General, for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1965, pursuant to section 10 of the National Gallery Act, chapter 186, R.S.C., 1952. (English and French texts).

Answer to question asked July 11, 1966, in the Senate, by the Honourable Alfred J. Brooks, Leader of the Opposition, re Assistance to Immigrants. (English text).

Answer to question asked July 11, 1966, in the Senate, by the Honourable Alfred J. Brooks, Leader of the Opposition, re Manpower Mobility Program. (English text).

Answer to question asked July 11, 1966, in the Senate, by the Honourable Alfred J. Brooks, Leader of the Opposition, re Freight Assistance Payments. (English text).

Answer to question asked July 11, 1966, in the Senate, by the Honourable Alfred J. Brooks, Leader of the Opposition, re Administration of Veterans Hospitals. (English text).

Answer to question asked July 11, 1966, in the Senate, by the Honourable Donald Cameron, re operation of the Technical and Vocational Training Assistance Act. (English text).

WELCOME TO NEW SENATORS

Hon. John J. Connolly: Honourable senators, I wish to make amends for an unpardonable omission yesterday evening. My sole excuse is that I got more exercise than I normally get at the beginning of a sitting.

I am sure that all honourable senators would wish that, in addition to the applause with which they greeted our new members yesterday, I should say to Senator Macnaughton, Senator Desruisseaux, Senator Duggan and Senator Kickham, that we welcome all of them to the Senate. We hope that their days here will be long and fruitful, and be profitable to them as well as to us.

Hon. Lionel Choquette: Honourable senators, may I take this opportunity to welcome the new senators on this side of the house. We are always pleased to see our number increase, and we now have almost a full house even though some are absent today.

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): They are pretty good looking too.

Hon. Mr. Choquette: Yes. I think they are going to have a good example as far as attendance is concerned, although today is not a good example. I would not want the Leader of the Opposition to reprimand these men, for the only fault I can find with those placed on our side of the chamber is that they do not seem to know how to vote. They have the bad habit of sitting down when we stand up and vice versa. However, I am sure the leader will not be too harsh with them.

APPROPRIATION BILL NO. 6, 1966

ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS ASKED IN DEBATE ON SECOND READING JULY 11, 1966, PRINTED AS APPENDIX

Hon. John J. Connolly: I move, with leave of the Senate:

That the answers to the questions asked on July 11, 1966, by the Honourable Senator Brooks, P.C., and the Honourable Senator Cameron respectively, and tabled in the Senate today, be printed as an appendix to the Debates of the Senate of this day.

This is in conformity with the undertaking I have given.

For text of answers see Appendix pp. 1000-2.

Motion agreed to.

MANITOBA-SASKATCHEWAN BOUNDARY BILL

SECOND READING

Hon. A. Hamilton McDonald moved the second reading of Bill S-45, respecting the Boundary between the provinces of Manitoba and Saskatchewan.

He said: Honourable senators, at this time I should like to point out that there is great similarity between this bill and the bills S-46 and S-47 in that they relate in the first instance to the northerly portion of the boundary line between the provinces of Manitoba and Saskatchewan. Bill S-45 refers to the northern portion of the boundary between the Province of Saskatchewan and the Province of Manitoba. Bill S-46 refers to the boundary line between the Province of Saskatchewan and the Northwest Territories, and Bill S-47 refers to the boundary line between the Province of Manitoba and the Northwest Territories. Of course these boundary lines all meet at one particular point at the northern extremities of the provinces of Saskatchewan and Manitoba.

I think it would be wise to introduce the bills simultaneously. I would be most pleased if honourable senators would take my remarks at this time as applying to all three bills, and when Bill S-46 is called I will simply move second reading without further explanation. The same procedure will be followed with Bill S-47. Of course I will be prepared to answer any questions, if questions arise at that time. With your permission, honourable senators, I will proceed with the introduction of Bill S-45, with the understanding that this explanation applies to all three bills.

Firstly, to explain the reason for the presentation of this bill and the other two bills, it is necessary to refer to the Saskatchewan Act, the Manitoba Boundaries Extension Act, 1912, and the Northwest Territories Act. These acts declared the northern boundary of the provinces of Manitoba and Saskatchewan and the southern boundary of the Northwest Territories to be the parallel of the sixtieth degree of the north latitude, and the northerly portion of the boundary between Manitoba and Saskatchewan to be the second meridian in the system of Dominion Land Surveys.

It is obvious that, although the common boundaries between the provinces and the Territories are clearly described in these acts, the boundaries cannot be seen or recognized by a person walking on the ground or by anyone flying in an aircraft over this area, because there are no marks on the ground to be distinguished either from the air or from the ground itself. It is also obvious that, at some stage during the development of the particular region about which I am talking, there would be a need for prospectors, miners, hunters and other persons wishing to acquire or develop land or other resources to know precisely where they were, whether in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or the Northwest Territories. It would be equally or more important for the governments charged with the responsibility of administering affairs at both the provincial and federal levels to know the precise point on the ground at which their responsibilities began and where they ended.

Due to the marked trend northward in the exploration and development of mineral resources, including oil and gas, in the northern portions of the western provinces and extending across the sixtieth parallel of latitude into the Northwest Territories, and also the extension of railroads in this area—the one good example being the railroad to Lynn Lake in northern Manitoba, and commercial fishing on Reindeer Lake, which is on the boundary of Manitoba and Saskatchewan—the responsible ministers, both federal and provincial, agreed for their respective governments that a survey should be made of this area and that a definite line should be marked on the ground, as boundary lines are marked in other areas of Canada.

Accordingly, the Privy Council, with the concurrence of the provinces of Manitoba and Saskatchewan, established the following commissions, charged with the responsibility to survey the boundaries and to report those surveys to the Parliament of Canada and to the governments of the provinces of Saskatchewan and Manitoba.

The first commission that was set up was the Saskatchewan-Northwest Territories Boundary Commission, consisting of the Surveyor General of Canada and Controller of Surveys for the Province of Saskatchewan. The second commission was the Manitoba-Northwest Territories Boundary Commission, consisting of the Surveyor General of Canada and the Director of Surveys for the Province of Manitoba. The third commission was the Manitoba-Saskatchewan Boundary Commission, consisting of the Surveyor General of Canada, the Director of Surveys for Manitoba, and the Controller of Surveys of the Province of Saskatchewan. The commissions thus established have now completed their tasks.

The Saskatchewan-Northwest Territories Boundary Survey was begun in 1953 and completed in 1962. Following completion of the survey, the commission prepared its report, dated May 9, 1963, which includes an atlas showing the position of the surveyed boundary and the monuments which have been placed on the ground to mark it.

The Maintoba-Northwest Territories Boundary Survey was begun in 1957 and completed in 1962. Following completion of the survey, the commission prepared its report, dated August 2, 1965. It also includes an atlas showing the position of the surveyed boundary and the monuments which have been placed on the ground to mark it. This document was tabled in the Senate on February 3, 1966.

The Manitoba-Saskatchewan Boundary Survey surveyed a portion of the boundary north of Township 84. It was begun in 1961 and completed in 1962. Following completion of the survey, the commission prepared a report, dated August 2, 1965. This document also included an atlas which shows the monuments on this boundary. This document was tabled in the Senate on February 22 last.

The problem now facing us is that of declaring finally and definitely that the survey monuments placed by the three commissions on the ground to mark the boundaries shall henceforth in fact mark those boundaries. To clarify this, it is necessary to point out that a survey can never be perfect, regardless of the technical skills that are available to surveyors in this day and age. While the imperfections are small, they might in future lead to uncertainty or dispute as to the true position of the boundary, unless some definite step were taken to forestall such a possibility.

The British North America Act, 1871 enabled this to be done neatly. It provides that the Parliament of Canada may, from time to time, with the consent of the legislatures of any province, increase or diminish or otherwise alter the limits of such provinces, upon such terms and conditions as may be agreed to by the said legislatures.

By exercising this provision, as we propose now, we can in effect substitute the line of monuments which have been established on the ground for the words "parallel of the sixtieth degree of north latitude" and "the Second Meridian in the system of Dominion lands surveys" contained in the Saskatchewan act and the Manitoba Boundaries Extension Act, 1912.

Towards this end and following the procedure established in the cases of the boundary between Ontario and Manitoba, between Alberta and British Columbia, and between Alberta and the Northwest Territories, it is now considered necessary and proper that this legislation should be introduced into Parliament to confirm the boundaries between Saskatchewan and the Northwest Territories, between Manitoba and the Northwest Territories, and between Manitoba and Saskatchewan, as surveyed and marked on the ground by the means that I have already referred to.

The following bills have been passed by the respective legislatures, namely, the Province of Saskatchewan and the Province of Manitoba, and duly assented to.

Bill 15 passed by the Province of Saskatchewan and given Royal Assent on February 25, 1966 is an act of consent with respect to the adoption of the Manitoba-Saskatchewan boundary as surveyed by the Manitoba-Saskatchewan Boundary Commission during the years 1961 and 1962.

Bill 16 passed by the Saskatchewan Legislature and given Royal Assent on February 25, 1966 is an act of consent with respect to the adoption of the Saskatchewan-Northwest Territories boundary as surveyed by the Saskatchewan-Northwest Territories Boundary Commission during the years 1953 to 1962.

Bill 49, which received Royal Assent in the Legislature of Manitoba on March 29, 1966 is an act respecting the boundary between the Province of Manitoba and the Northwest Territories.

Bill 48, which was given Royal Assent in the Legislature of Manitoba on March 29, 1966, is an act respecting the boundary between the Provinces of Manitoba and Saskatchewan.

The conditions imposed by the British North America Act have, therefore, been amply met and I have great pleasure in moving second reading of Bill S-45, an act respecting the boundaries between the Provinces of Manitoba and Saskatchewan.

Hon. W. M. Benidickson: Honourable senators, I may be the only member of this chamber who has actually flown over the boundaries referred to in these three bills. I support my colleague in the introduction of these three bills for second reading.

I had a most interesting trip with the ministers from Saskatchewan and Manitoba and, as federal minister, I did see a very definite cut-through that could be seen from the air, defining those boundaries.

While the sponsor of this legislation suggests that there might be some slight adjustments technically necessary, I want to say that I have great faith in the surveyors who did this magnificent job, and I personally had an opportunity, I think in 1963, to see the culmination of this excellent work at the location where Manitoba joins Saskatchewan and the Northwest Territories. There we placed a scroll from the Prime Minister which we thought might be looked at from its cairn a hundred years hence. There was also some wheat from Saskatchewan. There was placed there, even behind our backs, a copy of Playboy magazine!

Honourable senators, I have confidence that the surveyors of this boundary did a magnificent job over those years and that we can all take pride in it and appreciate the beneficial results.

Hon. A. J. Brooks: Honourable senators, coming as I do from the Maritimes, I have not as much knowledge of this location as have the two honourable gentlemen who have spoken. However, I wish to say that I am pleased indeed with these three bills.

Before making any further remarks I would like to join with the Leader of the Government and with my deskmate in welcoming the honourable senators who were introduced to the Senate yesterday. I had the pleasure of sitting in the House of Commons with three of the new members; and, as regards the member from Newfoundland, I have heard of him and know him by reputation. I am sure that their appointment to the Senate will be of great benefit to us and that they will enjoy their work here.

With reference to the Honourable Paul Desruisseaux, I understand from my bilingual friends that "ruisseaux" means brooks. It certainly is a welcome addition to the Senate to have another "Brooks" here, even though his name is spelled differently.

With reference to the bills now before us, yesterday we were all pleased to hear the Leader of the Government make the statement that he was getting more work for the Senate. Bills of this type do not involve much work in themselves, but they are along the right lines and are something which we can approve. I hope we shall get many more.

Honourable senators, Canada has changed a lot since I was a boy at school. I remember the map of those days. Alberta and Saskatchewan had not been heard of as provinces. Manitoba was, as it were, a little box down in the centre of the dominion. Ontario and Quebec have had their boundaries greatly extended since that time. Ontario, was at that time not much more than the Niagara Peninsula. Quebec has extended its boundaries away to the north. That indicates the extensive growth of our country during the last 50 to 75 years.

As to the explanation given by the sponsor of the bill as to why these boundaries were chosen, as I understand it, British Columbia was first given the parallel of 60 degrees for its northern boundary. My understanding also was that Alberta and Saskatchewan, when they were made provinces, were given the same parallel of 60 degrees. I think it was in 1912, after the proclamation of the boundaries of those provinces to the 60-degree parallel, that Ontario and Quebec asked for more territory and received it.

Honourable senators, the boundaries in the maritimes could not be extended, as we were surrounded by water. New Brunswick and Nova Scotia became provinces of Canada at Confederation, and later, Prince Edward Island, but we had no extension of boundaries subsequently. As to all this land in the northern part of Canada which is full of minerals and oils and provides untold riches for Alberta, Saskatchewan, British Columbia, Ontario and Quebec, we in the Maritime provinces did not share in that. I am not going to repeat any of the requests from these provinces for increases in subsidies and benefits on account of the fact that they did not receive public domain, but I point out that to show that the Atlantic provinces have not had the opportunity to increase their acreage or their land as have the other provinces.

There is a question I would like to ask in this connection, and it is with respect to the marking of the boundaries of the different provinces. Is the boundary between Ontario and Quebec marked in the same way? In particular I would like to know if the boundary between the Province of Quebec and the Province of Newfoundland in Labrador has been properly designated in the same manner as that between Manitoba and Saskatchewan. If not, I hope it will be done and done without too much trouble. I have read in the paper certain threats and certain unkind remarks made by people in Quebec and by people in Newfoundland, and I hope this matter will be settled amicably. I would like to know from the Government what steps if any they intend to take to settle this very important matter.

Hon. A. K. Hugessen: Honourable senators, we are all greatly indebted to Senator McDonald for his clear explanation of this bill. I wonder, however, if he could assist me in a difficulty which I have discovered in the language of section 2 of the bill. This section says:

> The boundary line . . . is hereby declared to be the boundary between the Provinces of Manitoba and Saskatchewan, and in so far as the boundary so described increases, diminishes or otherwise alters the limits of the Province of Manitoba or the Province of Saskatchewan, their limits are increased, diminished or otherwise altered accordingly.

I can understand how one can increase the limits of a province and how one can decrease the limits of a province, but my question refers to the phrase "otherwise alters". How else can one alter the limits of a province? That phrase "otherwise alters" may have some esoteric meaning which is not clear to me, but otherwise it would appear to be superfluous.

Hon. Arthur W. Roebuck: Honourable senators, I wish to join in complimenting the sponsor of the bill on his clear explanation. I also wish to join in the welcome that has been extended to the new members. This is the first opportunity we have had of saying how welcome they are and how glad we are to receive them here, and how ready we are to accept them in the family. Somebody said recently that this was a very lovely organization, but to me it is more than that; I think the Senate of Canada is something of a family organization, where party lines do not mean anything other than politics. They really do not mean very much to us as we meet and discuss public questions.

Hon. Mr. Choquette: Except when there is a vote.

Hon. Mr. Roebuck: I said except as we think out the public problems, and we do think them out in this chamber. When we divide, we divide on principle. And we do not do so fatuously. There is no animus in our debates; we can disagree without being unfriendly; we can take a view without misunderstanding or misinterpreting the views of others who disagree with us, and generally we devote ourselves in a kindly and nonpartisan way to revising acts and to studying public questions and generally contributing to the welfare of our country. I am sure the new members of the Senate will enjoy the service they can render as much as I have enjoyed the last twenty years or more that I have had the honour to be a member of this house. I wish them joy in their work and satisfaction in what they may accomplish.

At this stage I would like some further explanation from the sponsor of the bill. He says that the bill conforms—these are not perhaps his exact words but they are correct in substance—to the British North America Act. Now if that act in any way settled the boundary between these two provinces, what power have we to declare what is the boundary? The bill before us says "a newly fixed line is hereby declared to be the boundary between the Provinces of Manitoba and Saskatchewan." Would the honourable senator give me the sections? I have been looking through the act but it is very difficult and very complicated to spot the relevant section quickly. What sections of the British North America Act now refer to the boundary between these two provinces, and if they do make a reference to the boundary, what power have we to declare what the boundary shall be?

Hon. Mr. McDonald: Honourable senators, the British North America Act states that the sixtieth degree north latitude shall be the boundary between the provinces of Saskatchewan and Manitoba and the Northwest Territories. However, if one were walking across this terrain or if one were flying across it how would one know where the boundary lies? Furthermore, if you are walking in an easterly or westerly direction how would one know where the second meridian was? The whole purpose of the cutting of the trees and the erecting of the mounds at this point is so that persons flying in an aircraft over the territory or persons walking over the terrain will know which province they are in. The purpose is to place the mounds on the sixtieth parallel and on the second meridian so that people going on foot through that area will know where the boundary lies. No attempt is being made to alter the boundary lines which shall remain the sixtieth degree and the second meridian respectively. The act simply says that where the mounds are placed shall be the boundary line. We hope that the surveyors are right in their calculations, and I have every confidence that they have placed the mounds on the second meridian and on the sixtieth degree.

Senator Hugessen asked a question about the words "or otherwise alters". I am no lawyer, and all I can say is that the lawyers placed these words in here. In my experience the wording of legislation is frequently picked from other acts or is inserted at the insistence of some lawyer, and generally there are other lawyers who question the wording. I have no idea why these words have been placed here, but in my view it does not create any difficulty and does not change anything. It may be that some words are used that are not strictly necessary.

Hon. Salter A. Hayden: Honourable senators, possibly these words "otherwise alters" may be intended to cover a situation where the boundaries now being established create at some point a bulge that did not formerly exist in one place, and maybe an indentation in another, and while it would not be increasing or diminishing in area, it might be altering a boundary as it existed at the time these surveys were made.

Hon. Mr. Roebuck: May I ask a supplementary question? The bill itself intimates that there may be a difference between the mounds set up by the surveyors and the parallel as laid down in the British North America Act. In that case, let us suppose a mine is discovered at or near these boundaries, and there is a dispute as to where the boundary lies, what would the position be?

Hon. Mr. Benidickson: Take Flin Flon, for example.

Hon. Mr. Roebuck: Supposing there is an argument as to which boundary is right, the one declared by us which is marked on the ground by mounds, or the parallel laid down by the British North America Act which may be superior to any declaration we can make. Where will the boundary be? Will it be the parallel in question or will it be the mounds named in our declaration? I think this is a serious matter. Is the sponsor ready to assure us that the boundary we declare will be the boundary and will be so held by the courts as against the boundary set up by the British North America Act? If not, we should give the matter more serious consideration.

Hon. Mr. McDonald: It is my understanding that the boundary line between Manitoba and Ontario is marked in the exact same fashion as that referred to in this legislation. In other words, as I said earlier, by exercising this provision as is now proposed we can, in effect, substitute the line of monuments which have been established on the ground for the words "parallel of the sixtieth degree of north latitude" and "the Second Meridian in the system of Dominion Lands surveys" contained in the Saskatchewan Act and the Manitoba Extension Act, 1912. In other words, the mounds, in my interpretation, are the official boundaries between the provinces and between the provinces and the territories, and as they are designated to be they are the boundaries between Ontario and Manitoba, between Alberta and British Columbia and between British Columbia and the Northwest Territories. That is the information I have been given.

Hon. Mr. Roebuck: Am I correct in my understanding of what you are saying, namely, that the boundary is not set by the British North America Act but by the Saskatchewan Act and the Manitoba Boundaries Extension Act, 1912? Are they acts of this Parliament or are they acts of the Imperial Parliament? Pardon my not being sure of this, but this is an important question.

Hon. Mr. McDonald: Honourable senators, I am not sure. I am prepared to move, if this bill receives second reading, that it be sent to a committee, before which all the information I am unable to supply can be given.

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): Honourable senators, perhaps I should intervene. First of all, I should like to commend the honourable sponsor of this bill not only for the very able way in which he has presented it but also for the very able way in which he has answered questions despite the fact that, on his own admission, he is not a lawyer. Perhaps that is an advantage. I do not think I need mention the questions and answers dealt with by Senator Hugessen and Senator Hayden. I am pleased to know that this bill is going to a committee not only for this but for other reasons.

Coming to the point raised by Senator Roebuck, which is a serious one, the situation is that heretofore these boundaries have existed on official paper. They have been defined in an official way in official language, but until these surveys were made and these monuments were established they were never so marked upon the ground. So far as human means can be precise what has been done in these surveys, and in the establishment of these monuments, is that the boundaries on the ground conform to what has existed on paper for a long time. This is all that has been attempted. Perhaps the former minister, Senator Benidickson, will confirm what I am saying.

However, I would suggest that the point raised by Senator Roebuck as to the constitutionality of our asking Parliament to make this declaration, and, indeed, the constitutional position of the provinces in making a similar declaration, could be considered by the law officers of the Crown who I hope will appear before the committee. I hope too that the Surveyor General about whom Senator Benidickson spoke, or someone on his behalf, will be present to discuss the actual exercise that was carried out. I know we are all very pleased to have Senator Benidickson put a little of the human element into what otherwise might have been a very dry measuring bill, including the fact that a copy of Playboy is in the monument!

Motion agreed to and bill read second time.

REFERRED TO COMMITTEE

On motion of Honourable Mr. McDonald, bill referred to the Standing Committee on Banking and Commerce.

SASKATCHEWAN-NORTHWEST TERRITORIES BOUNDARY BILL

SECOND READING

Hon. A. Hamilton McDonald moved the second reading of Bill S-46, respecting the Boundary between the Province of Saskatchewan and the Northwest Territories.

He said: Honourable senators, you will recall that in introducing Bill S-45 I said that my remarks would apply to all three of these bills. I do not think it is necessary for me to say anything further at this time.

Motion agreed to and bill read second time.

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this bill be read the third time?

Hon. Mr. Roebuck: I should like to point out that my objection applies to these two other bills just as much as it does to the first one. I mention that so that the law officers of the Crown will be prepared to answer my questions completely with respect to all these bills.

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): Yes.

Hon. Mr. Walker: I should like to ask a question which might prove of assistance to us and the committee. Will the honourable senator see to it that the person who prepared his remarks is present also?

Hon. Mr. Smith (Queens-Shelburne): Oh, no.

Hon. Mr. Walker: Did the honourable senator write this speech himself? If not, does he know who did? I ask this because some very broad statements have been made.

Hon. Mr. McDonald: I know from where I received the information.

Hon. Mr. Walker: Did my honourable friend put his remarks together himself?

Hon. Mr. Smith (Queens-Shelburne): Wait a minute.

Hon. Mr. Roebuck: I think the question is out of order.

Hon. Mr. McDonald: The information that I have attempted to give the Senate at this time was received by me from another person, and I make no apologies for that. I have no personal knowledge of this particular legislation. Whatever information I have given I received, of course, from other persons. I am perfectly prepared to ask the persons responsible for this information to be present at the meeting of the committee.

Hon. Mr. Walker: Thank you very much.

Hon. Mr. Roebuck: Will the honourable senator supply us with the references to the various statutes? I realize that he may not be able to do that at this moment, but before the meeting of the committee would he be good enough to have his source of information provide us with the references to the British North America Act and to any provincial statutes that apply, so that we will not be put to the trouble of searching for them ourselves.

Mr. McDonald: I am afraid that the page-boy has just taken away my notes.

Hon. Mr. Hayden: They have gone out to Hansard.

Hon. Mr. McDonald: Honourable senators, I will retrieve my notes and supply that information later.

Hon. Mr. Roebuck: Thank you.

REFERRED TO COMMITTEE

On motion of Hon. Mr. McDonald, bill referred to the Standing Committee on Banking and Commerce.

MANITOBA-NORTHWEST TERRITORIES BOUNDARY BILL

SECOND READING

Hon. A. Hamilton McDonald moved the second reading of Bill S-47, respecting the Boundary between the Province of Manitoba and the Northwest Territories.

Hon. James Gladstone: Honourable senators, I should like to suggest to the honourable Leader of the Government in this chamber that when our Senate committee sits in connection with the boundaries between provinces and the Northwest Territories, there should be wide representation there and witnesses should be brought before the committee to deal with the aspects which affect the native people of the areas involved.

The Canadian Indians are in a very peculiar position. While the various ethnic groups in Canada have representation in the House of Commons, up to now my people have not attained the objective of having one of our people elected so that he could speak for us in the House of Commons. I hope that the time is not too far distant when we will have proper representation in the House of Commons to speak for my people.

We have members here in this chamber representing the minority groups, the ethnic groups. I do not know whether we could consider ourselves as ethnic but we are at least on the border of being called ethnic.

Therefore, I would not like the Government to make a mistake similar to the one which was made in turning over the natural resources to the provinces in the thirties, when the authorities did not adequately consider the plight of the native people at that time. Let us not make the same mistake at this time.

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): In regard to the remarks which have been made by Senator Gladstone, may I say to him it is the intention, first of all, to have the Commissioner of the Northwest Territories at the committee sittings, for the purpose of putting the position of the people of the Territories at that time. If further representations are to be made, that will be for the committee to decide. I am sure the committee will listen with great respect to any views which are put forward.

Hon. Mr. McDonald: May I have the indulgence of the house for one moment to answer a question raised earlier by Senator Roebuck. The Clerk has been good enough to find for me the applicable section in the British North Ameria Act. I quote from the British North America Act, 1871, 34-35 Victoria, Chapter 28. Section 3 of that act is as follows:

> 3. The Parliament of Canada may from time to time, with the consent of the Legislature of any Province of the said Dominion, increase, diminish, or otherwise alter the limits of such Province, upon such terms and conditions as may be agreed to by the said Legislature, and may, with the like consent, make provision respecting the effect and opration of any such increase or diminution or alteration of territory in relation to any Province affected thereby.

I think this answers Senator Roebuck's question, and I want to thank both him and the Clerk for providing me with this section of the act.

Hon. Mr. Hugessen: I might say it also answers my question as to where he got the words "increase, diminish or otherwise alter".

Hon. Mr. McDonald: It also shows, as I mentioned earlier, that they took some of the wording from another act.

Hon. Mr. Roebuck: May I say that the section in question was called to my attention by the Clerk, and I in turn called it to the attention of Senator McDonald. It seems to answer my question completely; it also justifies my asking the question. Evidently the Imperial Legislature had also anticipated the very problem I adduced in fixing the boundaries aside from the theoretical limitations contained in the original act. I think it would be very wise indeed to have the officers of the department present when this legislation is considered in committee, and I may say that in my view they were rather negligent in not giving my friend Senator McDonald the information necessary to answer the very obvious question which I raised.

Motion agreed to and bill read second time.

REFERRED TO COMMITTEE

On motion of Hon. Mr. McDonald, bill referred to the Standing Committee on Banking and Commerce.

CANADA LANDS SURVEYS ACT

BILL TO AMEND—SECOND READING

Hon. John J. Connolly moved the second reading of Bill S-48, to amend the Canada Lands Surveys Act.

He said: Honourable senators, we may not be dealing with earth-moving legislation this afternoon, but certainly we are dealing with earth-measuring legislation. The bill now before us is no exception, because it is to amend the Canada Lands Surveys Act which is chapter 26 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952. While the title of this act is the Canada Lands Surveys Act, it is a general act. It gives various definitions of the terms that are used in the act, including the term Dominion Land Surveyor and the term Dominion Topographical Surveyor.

I would like at this time to draw the attention of the Senate to section 61 of the basic legislation which is being amended here. This is contained in Part IV of the mother act, and it deals with the general powers to survey.

I think it might be a convenience to honourable senators if I read the section into the record. It is a short section.

Section 61(1) reads:

> Subject to this Act, the Minister may, if in his opinion a survey thereof under the management of the Surveyor General is required, cause a survey to be made of any lands belonging to Her Majesty in right of Canada or of which the Government of Canada has power to dispose, but where surveys of such lands affect or are likely to affect the rights of landowners of adjoining lands, the surveys shall be made by a surveyor who holds a valid and subsisting certificate, diploma, commission or other document entitling him to survey lands in the province in which such surveys are made.
>
> (2) The provisions of this Act relating to surveys apply, mutatis mutandis, to surveys made under subsection (1).

Now, the mother act also contains general provisions for the administration of the office of the Surveyor General of Canada. Part I of the basic act deals with examinations and the powers and duties of dominion land surveyors, not only those who are in actual office but those who are qualifying, or who desire to qualify, to become dominion land surveyors. It touches the matter of examinations, the articling of pupils, as they are called in the act, the issuing of commissions to people as dominion land surveyors—this is section 20—and it deals, too, in section 22, with certificates for topographical surveyors.

Part II of the mother act deals with public lands in the territories, in the Yukon, in the national parks and in surrendered lands and reserves.

Part III deals with special surveys of territorial lands in the Yukon and in the Northwest Territories.

Part IV deals with general powers to survey, and with questions of the evidentiary value of the material that is provided by surveyors as a result of their work, and, indeed, with offences that may be committed.

That is a general survey—if I may be pardoned the pun—of the act that is to be amended by this bill. This bill is primarily a housekeeping bill. Among other things, it authorizes the preparation of examination papers and the marking of these papers by people who are qualified. Heretofore this work has been done, I am informed, by a group of two or three civil servants.

It is thought that there should be wider discretion in the choice of examiners, and it is proposed to be able to use such persons as university professors and other qualified people in the universities who are able to do this work and who will relieve the civil servant of the need to depart from his normal functions to look after this work.

Section 3 of the act provides for the payment of fees to examiners who may be appointed to do the work to which I have just referred.

I need not refer to the fact that this is the financial clause about which I spoke at such inordinate length last evening. Honourable senators will see that the amount of finances involved is very slight indeed. It changes the amount of $1 to $10 in the case of an application for preliminary examination, of $2 to $10 in the case of an application for a certificate for a commission, and if it is enacted in the provision that an application for a supplementary examination will have a fee of $5.

Clause 5 deals with articled pupils, and it provides that they can only become such if they have passed certain prescribed preliminary examinations.

Section 18 of the mother bill is repealed. This had reference to the fact that a person qualified under the Dominion Land Surveys Act, which was the antecedent to the Canada Lands Surveys Act, would be qualified under the Canada Lands Surveys Act. This is no longer necessary because everyone who was qualified under the former act, I am informed, is long since dead. So the section is spent.

Clause 7 may be a clause of some interest to honourable senators. Heretofore it has been required that the actual measurement of a survey done pursuant to the provisions of this act be done by a steel tape. It is now proposed that much more modern and efficient means be authorized to make these measurements.

I am informed that they include the measurement of distances by electronic means and by what are described as photogrammetric means. The latter type of measurement has particular reference to the measurement of distances from aerial photography. The former involves the use of electronic impulses, and a determination of the time lapse required for that impulse to return from a given object to the instrument which issued the impulse. In this way the distance between the source of the impulse and the distant object can be calculated by electronic means. I understand that this instrument is called a tellurometer.

Hon. Mr. Farris: Is there any provision that the finding as recorded by that machine is binding and final?

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): Yes. I think the legislation, since it validates this type of exercise and this type of measurement, would for all practical purposes be a measurement satisfying the requirements of the act.

Now, there is, I am told, another instrument which serves the same type of purpose, measuring distances in terms of the time lapse of a light wave. This instrument is called a goedimeter.

This is the application of modern electronic equipment to the field of land surveying, and, in a country where distances can be so great, I think it only appropriate that this type of equipment should be available and that the work that is done with this type of equipment should be validated by the legislation.

Perhaps that answers the question that the honourable Senator Farris asked. It has to be done, of course, to the satisfaction of the Surveyor General, and this is provided in the legislation.

Clause 8 of the act authorizes the minister to establish an area within which all measurements shall be co-ordinated with a series of monuments established pursuant to the provisions of the act. In other words, these monuments will be reference points, and the measurements which are carried out in that area shall be required to be co-ordinated with these monuments. It provides, therefore, for a grid of reference points through these monuments within an area and provides further that all future surveys within the area shall be related to these monuments so established.

There is another provision in the act. Formerly it was required to show any surveyed land by an area designation. This was not particularly appropriate for the identification of small lots within a larger area. Section 9 provides now that a metes and bounds description will suffice for the identification which was formerly required to be made by way of area. Obviously, in the case of housing developments, for example, on Indian lands or other lands owned by the federal authority, the more precise type of description is much to be desired.

There is another provision of the bill, the last section, which proposes to enact that, in addition to providing for resurveys simply for the purpose of correcting errors, which is the provision in the mother act, it will also be possible now for a resurvey of the area to be made at the request of any minister for the purpose of acquiring new information theretofore not available, with the idea of improving the layout. I think that this is the kind of authority which should be granted.

As I said at the beginning, this is purely a housekeeping bill and the amendments are, relatively speaking, minor amendments. If the bill is given second reading by the Senate, I would propose, not only for the reasons that I have given here this afternoon but more particularly for those that I outlined last evening, that the bill be referred to the Standing Committee on Banking and Commerce.

Hon. Salter A. Hayden: Honourable senators, I should like to make one point in connection with this bill. This measure relates to the financial aspect and the position of the Senate in relation to dealing with a matter which may involve money.

Section 3 of the bill provides for payment to be made to examiners for work they do in the preparation of papers and also in the marking of papers. These amounts are to be paid by the Treasury Board and I would think that would very definitely be the payment of money—which in the first instance would be within the authority of the House of Commons, to be preceded, it may be, by a resolution; certainly, it is not within the authority of the Senate.

Section 4, I feel, has no reference to that sort of thing. It simply provides for an examination fee which any applicant, who is making an application to be entitled to sit for the examinations, must pay, by enclosing $10 or $5 with his application, as the case may be. I do not regard the payment of such a fee, an examination fee accompanying an application, as being of the order of a tax or a levy on the public or on the public treasury and therefore I feel that it might very well be within the authority of the Senate to enact section 4.

Hon. Mr. Hugessen: Is it not a question of where the fee would go? If the fee goes to the treasury, that might mean a change?

Hon. Mr. Hayden: No, I think the question is as to whether the legislation which is proposed, as we have it before us, is imposing a tax. We are simply making provision for paying for a service.

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): I think Senator Hugessen's question related to the fact that, if the money goes into the Consolidated Revenue Fund, there may be a change in the fund, which may make a difference. I do not want to put the words in his mouth.

Hon. Mr. Hayden: The bill does not disclose that, and the legislation might very well provide that the money so collected shall be used for purposes in connection with the examination.

Hon. Mr. Hugessen: The present section says that each candidate shall pay the following fees to the secretary. Is that the way the secretary is remunerated?

Hon. Mr. Hayden: I do not know. He may have a fund.

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): There may be an answer to that in the main legislation. Perhaps we will have to get it in committee. If I find something before we reach the discussion, I will give it in committee.

Hon. Mr. Molson: Honourable senators, might I ask the honourable Leader one question in connection with the bill? I noticed that there was a change to make this the Canada Surveys Act, and I see the term "Dominion Land Surveyor" survives through the bill. I wonder if, in tidying it up, the term "Dominion" should not be changed.

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): Honourable senators, I propose to deal with these as questions, without closing the debate.

As to the point dealt with by way of question and answer between my right and my left, between Senator Hugessen and Senator Hayden, section 14 of the mother act provides that candidates and pupils shall pay the following fees to the secretary—and it lists five or six.

Subsection (2) of that section reads as follows:

> Fees payable under this section shall be transmitted by the Secretary to the Receiver General of Canada and shall form part of the Consolidated Revenue Fund of Canada.

Having said that, honourable senators, I hastily duck, because if there is to be further debate between my right bower and my left bower on that point, I do not wish to be caught in the middle. I would rather it be done in committee. I know that Senator Hayden, of old, used to be a pretty good swinger when it came to handling people who tried to come through a defence.

With reference to Senator Molson's point, I understand he wonders whether the titles "Dominion Land Surveyor" and "Dominion Topographical Survey" should not be changed to "Canada" or "Canadian".

I do not know if there is any policy on that point. I would certainly ask that the honourable senator take that up in the committee and perhaps, if it is appropriate, an amendment can be made to that effect.

Hon. Mr. Hayden: The bill has "Canada Lands Surveys".

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): I think this was probably another of those omissions at the time the act was passed. The title of the act was changed from "Dominion Lands Surveys" to "Canada Lands Surveys". The change should seep through in the same way. The point is a good one for committee.

Motion agreed to and bill read second time.

REFERRED TO COMMITTEE

On motion of Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West), bill referred to the Standing Committee on Banking and Commerce.

BUSINESS OF THE SENATE

Hon. John J. Connolly: Honourable senators, the latest word I have from the other place is that the debate is proceeding there on the legislation which we are expecting. I think it would serve no useful purpose to attempt to forecast precisely what the outcome is likely to be today. I would therefore suggest that we adjourn at this time to reassemble at the call of the bell at nine o'clock this evening. If the bell does not ring precisely at that time I am sure honourable senators will understand that we are trying to determine what the situation might be at ten o'clock.

The Senate adjourned during pleasure.

At 9.15 p.m. the sitting was resumed.

Hon. John J. Connolly: Honourable senators, I have been in the other place to see what progress is being made in respect of the legislation we are expecting. My assessment is that that house will not pass the bill this evening. If it does, it will be at an extremely late hour. In the circumstances I think it appropriate that the Senate do now adjourn until tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Hon. Mr. Haig: Honourable senators, I regret having to disagree with the honourable leader of the Government. I suggest that he move that this house adjourns until 10.30 or 11 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): That would be a practical suggestion on one condition only, namely, that the bill is passed by the other place tonight. If we adjourn until 10.30 tomorrow morning we may very well assemble only for the purpose of adjourning. The other place will not sit until tomorrow afternoon at 2.30, unless they unanimously resolve otherwise. We have to look at the practicalities of the situation. Without unanimous consent the other place cannot sit beyond 10 o'clock tonight or before 2.30 tomorrow afternoon.

Hon. Mr. McCutcheon: And there will not be unanimous consent.

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): That is my estimation.

Hon. Mr. McCutcheon: That is my information.

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): I do not want to try to forecast what may happen tomorrow afternoon at 6 o'clock, but there is very little chance that this bill will be passed by the other place within the next three-quarters of an hour, because there would have to be a vote on second reading, and also the proceedings in committee of the whole and third reading. We have to be practical, and I think that the feeling is that we should adjourn.

I understand Senator Haig's proposal. There might be some pressure put on the members of the other place for the termination of the emergency that exists, and that consequently we should sit tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

Hon. Mr. Haig: I suggested 11 o'clock.

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): I beg your pardon. However, I think it would be a futile gesture. The honourable senator may prove to be a prophet without honour. If he is, then we will honour him.

The Senate adjourned until tomorrow at 3 p.m.

APPENDIX

(See p. 988.)

APPROPRIATION BILL No. 6, 1966

ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS ASKED IN DEBATE ON MOTION FOR SECOND READING, JULY 11, 1966

ASSISTANCE TO IMMIGRANTS

Answer to question asked by the Honourable Alfred J. Brooks, Leader of the Opposition.

The primary purpose of the vote of the Department of Citizenship and Immigration in the amount of $18,233,800 is not assistance to immigrants, but rather the entire operation and administration of the Immigration Branch, including salaries of Immigration officers, rental and maintenance of buildings, etc. Included in the total is the sum of $915,000 to cover emergency assistance to immigrants. Emergency assistance includes inland transportation for immigrants who have found no work at their original destination and need financial help to move to available employment in another area, assistance in acquiring the tools of their trade, and emergency subsistence, welfare and medical care in the period while they are en route to their destination or awaiting placement in employment.

Inlands transportation assistance in amounts of $40 or more is repayable, as are sums of $25 or more advanced for the purpose of buying special items such as tools of trade. Medical, welfare and subsistence grants are not repayable.

Transoceanic transportation for immigrants is not included in this vote. This form of assistance is covered by a revolving fund known as the Assisted Passage Loan Fund. Assisted Passage loans made to immigrants are repayable. The transoceanic transportation mentioned above in Vote 30 is for settlers, who are defined as returning Canadian citizens. This assistance to Canadians is repayable.

MANPOWER MOBILITY PROGRAM

Answer to question asked by the Honourable Alfred J. Brooks, Leader of the Opposition.

The answer to this question is in the negative; there is no relation between this amount of $3,500,000 which is for moving workers from one area to another, and the unemployment (insurance) fund or the winter works programs which assist unemployed workers who are not being moved.

FREIGHT ASSISTANCE PAYMENTS

Answer to question asked by the Honourable Alfred J. Brooks, Leader of the Opposition,

The projected expenditures of $192 million under Item 10 of the Estimates of the Department of Forestry only cover the assistance amounts to be paid out under the actual freight and storage assistance programs. Administrative expenditures owing to these two programs are provided under Item 1 of Forestry while the payment of any extra administrative expenditures that may arise out of the proposed bill has not been covered in the 1966-67 Estimates.

ADMINISTRATION OF VETERANS' HOSPITALS

Answer to question asked by the Honourable Alfred J. Brooks, Leader of the Opposition.

Government policy with respect to the future administration of veterans' hospitals was fully outlined by the Honourable Roger Teillet, Minister of Veterans Affairs, in the House of Commons on March 16, 1964. Subsequently, that same year, the policy was again publicly stated by the Minister during the course of the Royal Canadian Legion's biennial convention held at Winnipeg. The elaboration of this policy was brought about by the inescapable fact that, as our veteran population grows older, the need for chronic and domiciliary care gradually increases while the need for active treatment correspondingly decreases. The Department of Veterans Affairs accordingly finds it more and more difficult to maintain the excellence of its standards in the various institutions it operates across the country. Understandably, greater difficulty is being experienced in retaining the first-rate medical, surgical and nursing staffs since the workload in DVA hospitals is gradually becoming less professionally interesting.

In the circumstances, the Government has announced that it is prepared to consider the transfer of the administration of its hospitals to jurisdictions other than federal, provided three essential conditions are met. These conditions are, first, that treatment of service-connected disabilities amongst veterans must be immediately available at all times; second, that treatment facilities of acceptable standards must be available for other classes of veterans; and third, that satisfactory arrangements must be made for the continued employment of professional and other staffs now serving in DVA institutions.

I am happy to be able to say that, in the specific instance of Sunnybrook Hospital, all these conditions have been more than satisfactorily met in the transfer agreement recently signed by the Minister of Veterans Affairs on behalf of Canada, by the Chairman of the Board of Governors of the University of Toronto, and by the Chairman of the Board of Trustees of the newly established Sunnybrook Hospital Corporation.

OPERATION OF TECHNICAL AND VOCATIONAL TRAINING ASSISTANCE ACT

Answer to question asked by the Honourable Donald Cameron.

From April 1961 to May 1966 inclusive, new schools were established as follows:

	Tech. & Voc. High Schools	Institutes of Tech. (Post High School)
Newfoundland	–	–
Prince Edward Island	1	–
Nova Scotia	5	–
New Brunswick	–	–
Quebec	86	2
Ontario	286	2
Manitoba	1	–
Saskatchewan	9	–
Alberta	47	1
British Columbia	35	1
Yukon and NWT	–	–
CANADA	470	6

From April 1961 to May 1966 inclusive, major additions and alterations were made to existing schools as follows:

	Tech. & Voc. High Schools	Institutes of Tech. (Post High School)
Newfoundland	–	–
Prince Edward Island	–	–
Nova Scotia	1	–
New Brunswick	1	–
Quebec	–	4
Ontario	55	5
Manitoba	10	–
Saskatchewan	5	–
Alberta	10	–
British Columbia	33	–
Yukon and NWT	1	–
CANADA	116	9

Research projects receiving support under the Technical and Vocational Training Assistance Act are as follows:

Project No. 1 entitled "Vocational Plans of Alberta Youth" is a study of vocational plans of children presently enrolled in the upper grades of the high schools of Alberta, and is currently being carried out by Professor Fair of the University of Alberta, Edmonton.

Project No. 2 a study on Manpower Training Requirements for Nova Scotia 1970-75 is being completed at the present time. It was undertaken by Professor Judek of the University of Ottawa on behalf of the Nova Scotia Provincial Department of Labour.

Project No. 3 covers Manpower Resources and Skill Requirements in the Construction Industry in Nova Scotia and was undertaken by Professor Comeau of Nova Scotia.

Project No. 4 on the Current Status of British Columbia Manpower and the needs of the future was undertaken by Professor Montague of the University of British Columbia on behalf of the British Columbia Department of Labour.

Project No. 5 is a Survey of Training in Industry. It is being conducted on behalf of the Quebec Department of Education by the Adult Education Association of Quebec.

Project No. 6 covers Student Plans for the Future. This survey is being undertaken by the Quebec Department of Education and is very closely related to the Federal Government research project entitled "Career Decisions of Canadian Youth."

Project No. 7 deals with "The Effectiveness of Vocational and Technical Training Programs as Preparation for Employment in Ontario." It is being undertaken on behalf of the Ontario Department of Education by the Ontario Institute for Studies in Education under the direction of Professor R. W. B. Jackson.

Project No. 8 is a survey on Success in Employment as Related to School Programs, Guidance Services and Job Experience in Ontario. It was undertaken by Professor R. W. B. Jackson on behalf of the Ontario Department of Education.

Project No. 9 deals with Vocational Guidance in Ontario Schools; its Status, Effectiveness and Future. This was also undertaken by Professor Jackson on behalf of the Ontario Department of Education.

THE SENATE

Wednesday, August 31, 1966

The Senate met at 3 p.m., the Speaker in the Chair.

Prayers.

DOCUMENTS TABLED

Hon. John J. Connolly tabled:

Order in Council P.C. 1965-2262, dated December 22, 1965, approving the Capital Budget of the Export Credits Insurance Corporation for the year ending December 31, 1966, pursuant to section 80(2) of the Financial Administration Act, chapter 116, R.S.C., 1952. (English text).

Order in Council P.C. 1966-1410, dated July 26, 1966, authorizing under section 21 of the Export Credits Insurance Act, contracts of insurance by the Export Credits Insurance Corporation for the sale of 300,000 metric tons of wheat to the Polish People's Republic, pursuant to section 21B of the said Act, chapter 105, R.S.C., 1952, as amended 1960-61. (English text).

Order in Council P.C. 1966-1564, dated August 17, 1966, authorizing under section 21 of the Export Credits Insurance Act, contracts of insurance by the Export Credits Insurance Corporation for the sale of 100,000 metric tons of wheat to the People's Republic of Bulgaria, pursuant to section 21B of the said Act, chapter 105, R.S.C., 1952, as amended 1960-61. (English text).

Order in Council P.C. 1966-1570, dated August 17, 1966, amending Order in Council P.C. 1963-1763, dated November 28, 1963, which authorized, under section 21 of the Export Credits Insurance Act, long-term financing by the Export Credits Insurance Corporation for the sale by Canadian suppliers of capital equipment for a Nuclear Power Station to the President of India, pursuant to Section 21B of the said Act, chapter 105, R.S.C., 1952, as amended 1960-61. (English text).

DIVORCE

PETITION PRESENTED

Hon. Arthur W. Roebuck, Chairman of the Standing Committee on Divorce, presented the following petition:

Of Joyce Regina Nagine Biega, of the Village of Vaudreuil, in the Province of Quebec; praying for the passing of an Act to annul Senate Resolution No. 738, dissolving her marriage to Alexander Biega.

He said: Honourable senators will be interested in knowing that this is the first appeal, if I may call it that, from the judgment of the Senate Commissioner in the matter of divorce. This is the first action of this kind—it is in the nature of an appeal, although perhaps technically it is not an appeal—that has been taken since the passing of the Dissolution and Annulment of Marriages Act, which was assented to on August 2, 1963.

There are some points that I think I should try to make clear, although probably they were thoroughly understood by honourable senators at the time the act was passed approximately three years ago. I should like to refer, first of all, to section 2 of chapter 10 of 12 Elizabeth II, subsection (1) of which reads:

> The Senate of Canada may, on the petition of either party to a marriage, by resolution declare that the marriage is dissolved or annulled, as the case may be, and subject to the provisions of subsections (2) and (3), immediately on the expiration of thirty days from the date of the adoption of the resolution the marriage is dissolved or annulled, as the case may be, and shall be null and void, and thereafter either party thereto may marry any person whom he or she might lawfully marry if the said marriage had not been solemnized.

That is the authority which the Senate possesses to pass a resolution annulling a marriage.

Then, subsection (2) of section 2 provides:

> If, before the expiration of the thirty days referred to in subsection (1), a petition to the Parliament of Canada by either party to a marriage in respect of which a resolution for its dissolution or annulment has been adopted by the Senate, together with a draft bill based thereon and the required fee, is filed with the Clerk of the Parliaments praying for the passage of an Act annulling or modifying such resolution, the operation of the resolution shall be suspended until an Act based upon the petition has received Royal Assent, whereupon the resolution shall have no force or effect or shall have such other force and effect as may be prescribed in that Act.

Honourable senators will realize that the former procedure still remains, of a qualified private act, on request by either party to a marriage, for a private bill dissolving the marriage. The old rules upon which we have acted over so many years are still in force, and the resolution procedure is auxiliary to it and certainly not part of it.

Now, for the first time, someone dissatisfied with a judgment of a Senate Commissioner has acted in accordance with the Dissolution and Annulment of Mariages Act and has filed a petition for the annulment of the judgment, or rather of the Senate resolution consequent upon that judgment.

May I also refer to the rules now in effect that are relevant. Rule 133 says:

> All petitions for divorce and all matters arising out of petitions for, or bills of, divorce, shall be referred to the Standing Committee on Divorce, and no reference to any Committee other than that Committee shall be necessary with respect to such petitions, bills and matters.

This request of today arises out of a resolution for divorce and is certainly a matter connected therewith. Therefore, according to the rules, it will be referred automatically, without any action on our part, to the Standing Committee on Divorce.

I remember rather vividly that when we were discussing the new bill for the dissolution or annulment of marriages, someone—I forget who it was—questioned whether the members of the committee were the proper persons to hear such an appeal, if that is the right word to call it. Without going into the general question, I would like it clearly understood that there is no possibility of prejudice on the part of the committee in this case, and this case is all that we have before us at the moment.

Hon. Mr. Choquette: May I ask my honourable friend a question?

Hon. Mr. Roebuck: I would like to finish this first, if I may.

Hon. Mr. Choquette: Yes.

Hon. Mr. Roebuck: In this instance—and after all, it is only with this instance that we are concerned—the only person who knows anything about this matter in its detail is myself. The report came to me, in connection with a great many other reports from the commissioner who heard the evidence, recommending that a divorce resolution be adopted by the Senate. I read it. No one else on that committee read it but me, and I recommended the adoption of the commissioner's report.

It was adopted on my recommendation, and shortly after its adoption in committee the woman respondent appealed to me, claiming that there was certain evidence that should have been heard and which was not heard by the commissioner because inadvertently it was not presented at the hearing. I dealt with her complaint on my own responsibility by asking the judge in question to hear a motion by her lawyers for re-opening the case.

The judge complied with my request; the lawyers involved moved for such a motion. It was heard by the judge and was dismissed on the ground that there was no real basis for such a re-opening.

It is not for us now to go into the rights and wrongs of the parties or the officials in the hearing of the matter. All we are asked to do now is to decide whether or not this applicant for a divorce is entitled to it. Never mind what took place in the past.

On the refusal of the judge to hear further evidence, I presented the resolution to this house. It was passed and became law, and within the 30 days after the adoption of that resolution this petition was filed in the Senate in accordance with the act. So we are now back to the old procedure where, ipso facto, a petition of this kind is referred to the Senate committee.

Lest anyone imagine that there is any prejudice on the part of the committee who will hear the case, may I point out once again that I am the only one on the committee familiar with all this detail, that all actions that were taken were at my instance and nobody else's, beyond the fact that the committee accepted my recommendation and passed the Commissioner's recommendation in a routine way, following which I moved the resolution in the house.

I think I could be perfectly impartial in hearing the evidence, but, honourable senators, one must preserve the appearance of impartiality as well as impartiality itself, and so I may assure the house that I will not be a member of the subcommittee which will hear this case. If my recommendations are accepted by the committee—and in the past the committee has allowed me to nominate the members of the subcommittees—that subcommittee will be the strongest that we have, and not one of its members will know anything about this matter more than what I have described now, which does not go into the merits in any way.

So honourable senators may be assured of a complete impartiality in the hearing of this petition by the subcommittee. They will report to the general committee which in turn will report to the house in accordance with the ancient, established rules and customs of the Senate of Canada.

Hon. Mr. Choquette: May I ask a question? This is the question I was going to ask a short while ago.

Hon. Mr. Roebuck: Yes.

Hon. Mr. Choquette: I think the procedure as explained by Senator Roebuck in the past two or three years was to the effect that the committee, as a rule, reads the evidence, that some of the members of the committee read different types of cases, and that this might be divided into two or three groups who either accept the recommendation of the commissioner or reject it. In this case it was anticipated that there probably would be an appeal.

Hon. Mr. Roebuck: No.

Hon. Mr. Choquette: My question is: In view of the fact that Senator Roebuck says he was the only one to pass on this, will that be a precedent in future in cases where an appeal might be anticipated? I would think that if the members of the committee read the evidence they would more probably do so in the case where an appeal is anticipated, and I am wondering why this procedure was followed in this case.

Hon. Mr. Roebuck: There was nothing unusual in the fact of one person reading the report. My friend is unfortunately in error when he suggests that a group of senators read the evidence. That would be utterly impossible. Just think for a moment: During the last recess 400 cases were tried. I read them all, and the committee, I am rather honoured to say, have had confidence in my judgment in the matter and accepted my recommendations and passed them. Now for us to read the evidence in 400 cases during the recess is just impracticable; while it could, I suppose, be done, it would not be reasonable to expect it to be done. When we are in session I divide up the cases to be read and give a dozen to one senator and a dozen to another, and they make a recommendation to the committee which may or may not be adopted by the committee. I can assure you it usually is accepted. Then I move it in the house. In the past we used to transcribe the evidence. When the new rules were adopted, and against my recommendation, we struck out the provision for the transcribing of the evidence. It is transcribed only when the chairman or the committee itself feels that they require the evidence. In this instance I am fairly sure it was not transcribed.

Hon. Mr. Choquette: Should it not have been? It was the first time in three years you had an inkling that there was going to be a dispute, and I would think in that case the whole committee could have been called to read the transcript of evidence.

Hon. Mr. Roebuck: There was no intimation that an action such as is now being taken would be taken. I received knowledge of this petition the day before yesterday. We have contested cases one after the other. They have been heard during this recess, a half-dozen of them, and one might anticipate in every instance an appeal such as this might be lodged. There was no intimation that such action would be taken in connection with this particular case any more than in any other of the hundreds of disputed cases of this kind which have been heard during the past three years.

Hon. Mr. Macdonald (Brantford): May I ask Senator Choquette to whom or to what body would the applicant appeal if all members of the committee had read the evidence and had made up their minds?

Hon. Mr. Choquette: That is the very question I put to Senator Roebuck. Will it be a precedent in future where we anticipate there is going to be an appeal that we will make sure the evidence shall not be read by other members of the committee?

Hon. Mr. Macdonald (Brantford): I understood Senator Roebuck to say it is not the custom for all members of the committee to read the evidence, and I think that is right.

Hon. David Walker: Honourable senators, there is no question about Senator Roebuck's ability as chairman of this committee or, indeed, about his impartiality. We all take cognizance of that, and agree with it. But he made a very sound and sage observation when he said that not only must we be impartial but we must preserve the appearance of impartiality, and I respectfully suggest that this whole system should be revised. I appeal to the Leader of the Senate (Hon. Mr. Connolly, Ottawa West) to bring this matter before the Department of Justice or the Cabinet to bring about such a revision.

From what Senator Roebuck has told us, it is clear that the Commissioner makes a report to the Standing Committee on Divorce, where it is considered and either adopted or refused. If it is adopted and one of the parties appeals, then the appeal lies to the same body which originally made the decision on the matter, the Standing Committee on Divorce. Now, it does not matter whether there is one person, two persons or three persons involved; they are all of the same committee.

Did you ever hear in British jurisprudence or Canadian jurisprudence, or even in American jurisprudence for that matter, of an appeal, not a trial de novo, to the same body which made a decision in the matter in the first instance? It is something that is completely foreign to all our jurisprudence. I must apologize for not having taken cognizance sooner of the fact that this was our law, and that in an appeal, the poor appellant, whoever he might be, had to bring his appeal to the same body who, in the first instance, made a decision on the matter. It is contrary to all principles of justice.

Hon. Mr. Roebuck: Will the honourable senator allow me—

Hon. Mr. Walker: I would like to finish what I have to say first, and then if the honourable senator wishes to ask any questions I would be delighted to answer them.

Regardless of the protests of my friend that in this instance complete impartiality is assured because he will see to it that different people of the standing committee hear the appeal, I would point out that that is not the principle at stake at all. The situation is that the same body sits on the appeal as decided the issue originally. This is foreign to our system of justice, and should be changed. I respectfully suggest that this appeal should be held up until it is changed.

Hon. Mr. Roebuck: We cannot do that. This case was commenced on September 25, 1964. Further delay would certainly be not only an appearance of injustice but an injustice in itself. I was only going to interpose a remark when my friend asked did anyone ever hear of an appeal to the same tribunal that had passed on the question originally—did he ever hear the quib, if I might call it that, of an appeal from the chancellor drunk to the chancellor sober.

Hon. Mr. Walker: I do not see any analogy here, knowing my friend's habits.

Hon. Mr. Roebuck: Anyway, there is no suspicion of partiality in this case.

Hon. Mr. Walker: I accept my friend's view on that, but there is a principle at stake and regardless of what my friend says, we cannot do it. That is why it is brought before the Senate. We must give approval to or refuse it. I think it should stand over until the law officers and my friend the Leader of the Government in the Senate have an opportunity to look into this. We are not unreasonable, but why establish a precedent contrary to all the principles we know and have accepted for many generations?

Hon. John J. Connolly: First of all, I should like to say that in this case de facto we are in a rather fortunate position. Senator Roebuck has explained that he alone has gone into this case and knows the facts. It does seem to me that he has said to us that he has not, in fact, read the evidence. In any event, he has given us an undertaking that he himself will not sit. The result is that while formally the committee is fixed with the responsibility of already having decided this, the committee has, in fact, only done so in a formal way, and it may very well be that the right of appeal to the foot of the Throne, which is the right of any citizen, should be preserved in this case.

Having said that, I think that what Senator Walker has said deserves more attention than simply the passing reference he has made to it and the passing consideration we are giving to it this afternoon. It has been suggested to me that one way out of the difficulty would be for a section of the Divorce Committee to be established for the purpose only of considering appeals. Perhaps this is an answer. There may be other solutions that fertile minds among the law officers of the Crown, to say nothing of fertile minds within the Senate itself, could devise. It is my opinion that we should give thorough consideration to all of these facts.

This is the first occasion upon which there has been a departure from the new practice that was established a few years ago. As I said at the beginning, perhaps we are fortunate in that the set of facts which confronts us today makes it easy for us to consider with favour the reception of this petition. I point out that the petition is only being presented today. At the next sitting it will be read. That is the normal practice. Perhaps at that time—and I do not know when the next sitting will be—there will be more light thrown upon it. An injustice might be done if we do not proceed with this petition. I certainly say, not only to Senator Walker but to all honourable senators, that I will see to it that this matter and this discussion is placed before the appropriate law officers of the Crown for consideration and advice.

Hon. Mr. Choquette: May I make a simple suggestion? The Commissioner and his assistant have been made judges of the Exchequer Court, and the judges of the Exchequer Court, according to our rules, may be called upon at any time to hear divorce cases in the Senate. If we are going to amend the rules, then why do we not make the appeal returnable before the Exchequer Court? They are all ex officio judges of divorce actions in the Senate. That would be a simple matter.

Hon. Mr. Flynn: Let us get rid of divorce cases altogether.

Hon. Mr. Smith (Queens-Shelburne): Send them all to the Exchequer Court.

Hon. Mr. Roebuck: May I say that I have no objection at all to any one of the suggestions that have been made. I do not object to having a group of senators appointed to the committee to constitute what could be considered a court of appeal. That would be all right, and it could easily be done. It could be done almost at once. I have no objection whatsoever to the making of the Exchequer Court the court to which an appeal is taken.

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): That may require legislation.

Hon. Mr. Roebuck: Yes, it would require legislation; the other suggestion would not. I would be happy to have that carried out. If the committee agrees with me—and I think it will—we will carry it out forthwith. However, I do object very strongly to any delay in the handling of this matter. There is no impartiality here—

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): There is no partiality.

Hon. Mr. Walker: It is my friend who is impartial.

Hon. Mr. Roebuck: Very well, there is no partiality in this matter. I call to the attention of honourable senators the ancient saying: Justice delayed is justice denied. We should proceed with this matter as the rules now stand, and in accordance with the reliance of the litigants on the rules as they now stand, and there should not be any inordinate delay.

MANITOBA-SASKATCHEWAN BOUNDARY BILL

AUTHORITY TO PRINT COMMITTEE PROCEEDINGS

Hon. Salter A. Hayden, Chairman of the Standing Committee on Banking and Commerce, presented the following report of the committee on Bill S-45, respecting the Boundary between the Provinces of Manitoba and Saskatchewan:

> Your committee recommends that authority be granted for the printing of 800 copies in English and 300 copies in French of its proceedings on the said bill.

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this report be taken into consideration?

Hon. Mr. Hayden: I move, with leave of the Senate, that the report be adopted now.

Report adopted.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE

Hon. Mr. Hayden, Chairman of the Standing Committee on Banking and Commerce, reported that the committee had considered Bill S-45, respecting the Boundary between the Provinces of Manitoba and Saskatchewan, and had directed that the bill be reported without amendment.

THIRD READING

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this bill be read the third time?

Hon. Mr. McDonald: With leave, I move that the bill be read the third time now.

Motion agreed to and bill read third time and passed.

SASKATCHEWAN-NORTHWEST TERRITORIES BOUNDARY BILL

AUTHORITY TO PRINT COMMITTEE PROCEEDINGS

Hon. Salter A. Hayden, Chairman of the Standing Committee on Banking and Commerce, presented the following report of the committee on Bill S-46, respecting the Boundary between the Province of Saskatchewan and the Northwest Territories:

> Your committee recommends that authority be granted for the printing of 800 copies in English and 300 copies in French of its proceedings on the said bill.

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this report be taken into consideration.

Hon. Mr. Hayden: I move, with leave of the Senate, that the report be adopted now.

Hon. Mr. Flynn: Honourable senators, am I correct in assuming that there will be other reports in respect of Bills S-47 and S-48?

Hon. Mr. Hayden: Yes.

Hon. Mr. Flynn: It occurs to me that consideration should be given to amending the rules of the Senate to empower committees, when they are dealing with public bills, to arrange for the printing of their proceedings without having to ask the permission of the Senate on every occasion. This power could be limited to some degree, but it does seem to me that it is repetitious and useless to have these reports continually presented to this house.

Hon. Mr. Hayden: My suggestion in that regard is that at the time the bill is referred by the Senate to committee there be incorporated in the order of reference a direction as to whether the proceedings be printed.

Hon. Mr. Flynn: The proceedings on all public bills should be printed.

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): If I may speak now not as the Leader of the Government in the Senate but as a senator, I suggest that the rule be that the proceedings of committees be printed in every case, unless the printing is dispensed with by a special motion. In well over 90 per cent of the cases there is a motion to print.

Hon. Mr. Flynn: On public bills?

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): Yes. I think that that suggestion should be considered.

Hon. Mr. Macdonald (Brantford): That is, with respect to all public bills originating in the Senate?

Hon. Mr. Flynn: Yes, or even if they originate in the other place. It is the same thing.

Hon. Mr. Macdonald (Brantford): It is not as necessary with respect to bills that have been debated in the other place, but I do feel that when a bill originates in the Senate the committee's proceedings on it should be taken down and transcribed, because then everything that is said on a bill can be read by the members of the House of Commons. If the purpose of introducing public bills in the Senate is to accelerate the work of Parliament, then there should be a full report of all that takes place in the Senate on such bills.

Hon. Mr. Hayden: If there is a rule that we must print the proceedings in committee on all public bills unless there is a specific resolution dispensing, then the simple reference will suffice and the only time there will be a printing resolution is when there is a resolution to dispense with the printing.

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): We can look into this and amend the rules at a later time.

Report adopted.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE

Hon. Mr. Hayden, Chairman of the Standing Committee on Banking and Commerce, reported that the committee had considered Bill S-46, respecting the Boundary between the Province of Saskatchewan and the Northwest Territories, and had directed that the bill be reported without amendment.

THIRD READING

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this bill be read the third time?

Hon. A. Hamilton McDonald: Honourable senators, with leave of the Senate, I move that this bill be read the third time now.

Motion agreed to and bill read third time and passed.

MANITOBA-NORTHWEST TERRITORIES BOUNDARY BILL

AUTHORITY TO PRINT COMMITTEE PROCEEDINGS

Hon. Salter A. Hayden, Chairman of the Standing Committee on Banking and Commerce, presented the following report of the committee on Bill S-47, respecting the Boundary between the Province of Manitoba and the Northwest Territories:

> Your committee recommends that authority be granted for the printing of 800 copies in English and 300 copies in French of its proceedings on the said bill.

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this report be taken into consideration?

Hon. Mr. Hayden: I move, with leave of the Senate, that the report be adopted now.

Report adopted.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE

Hon. Mr. Hayden, Chairman of the Standing Committee on Banking and Commerce, reported that the committee had considered Bill S-47, respecting the Boundary between the Province of Manitoba and the Northwest Territories, and had directed that the bill be reported without amendment.

THIRD READING

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this bill be read the third time?

Hon. A. Hamilton McDonald: Honourable senators, with leave of the Senate, I move that this bill be read the third time now.

Motion agreed to and bill read third time and passed.

CANADA LANDS SURVEYS ACT

BILL TO AMEND—AUTHORITY TO PRINT COMMITTEE PROCEEDINGS

Hon. Salter A. Hayden, Chairman of the Standing Committee on Banking and Commerce, presented the following report of the committee on Bill S-48, to amend the Canada Lands Surveys Act:

> Your committee recommends that authority be granted for the printing of 800 copies in English and 300 copies in French of its proceedings on the said bill.

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this report be taken into consideration?

Hon. Mr. Hayden: I move, with leave of the Senate, that the report be adopted now.

Report adopted.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE

Hon. Mr. Hayden, Chairman of the Standing Committee on Banking and Commerce, reported that the committee had considered Bill S-48, to amend the Canada Lands Surveys Act, and had directed that the bill be reported without amendment.

THIRD READING

The Hon. the Speaker: Honourable senators, when shall this bill be read the third time?

Hon. John. J. Connolly: Honourable senators, I move, with leave of the Senate, that this bill be read the third time now.

Before this motion is adopted, I should like to thank the committee for the consideration it gave to the financial implications which were in this bill. I am somewhat disappointed that the bill was not more troublesome to the committee! I say this in all seriousness because, in view of the remarks I made the other evening about bills which might have financial implications, I was rather hopeful that a little more light on this problem might be shed as a result of the deliberations of the committee. However, the conclusions will be helpful. The committee came to the conclusion that it was completely within the power of the Senate to deal with this particular bill.

Honourable senators, in my attendances at the Legislation Committee of the Cabinet, I intend to do everything I can to find a bill that will create more difficulty, in the hope that even the question of the "privileged insertion," to which I referred the other evening, or the idea of striking out the clause or leaving a blank to be filled in in the House of Commons, might have to be adopted.

Nonetheless, the exercise in respect of the monetary aspects of this bill and the discussion which took place in committee will be most helpful for the future. I thank particularly the chairman of the committee for the way in which he handled this matter, and I thank the committee members for the way in which they supported him.

Hon. Mr. Brooks: Would the honourable leader consider that this has established a precedent to assist him in the future?

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): I am afraid not. The committee simply said that for a bill of this kind the Senate is completely within its authority in doing what it has done. I want to get one in which there may be some question.

Motion agreed to and bill read third time and passed.

BUSINESS OF THE SENATE

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): Honourable senators, I am informed that in the other place there has been unanimous consent to sit until six o'clock this evening, adjourn for one hour and resume at seven. During that time the house will be considering the bill to end the current railway strike.

In view of the importance of the matter and the number of people involved, and in view of the fact that the bill has not yet been given second reading, I am led to the conclusion that the Senate should consider adjourning now during pleasure until nine o'clock this evening. The bell may ring a little later than that, so that we may assess what the situation is at that time. To rise until 8 o'clock would not be particularly useful. I suggest 9 o'clock.

Hon. Mr. Brooks: What steps would have to be taken? I understand that there is an amendment before the house, and, if the bill passes second reading, then it will have to be discussed clause by clause in the committee of the whole, which would certainly take considerable time. I think the leader's suggestion of meeting at 9 o'clock is a very good one.

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): I do not like to bring honourable senators back unnecessarily this evening, but I think we should be available in case we are needed.

The Senate adjourned during pleasure.

At 9.30 p.m. the sitting was resumed.

Hon. John J. Connolly: Honourable senators, as you are aware there is a vote to be taken shortly on second reading in the other place. It is then expected that they will go into committee to consider the bill clause by clause. At this time it is a little early for me to take out my now famous crystal ball. Therefore I suggest, with your concurrence, that we rise until 11 o'clock tonight. If then there is no prospect of our receiving the expected legislation perhaps we should adjourn until tomorrow morning, but let us decide that at 11 o'clock.

I therefore move that the Senate do now take recess until 11 o'clock this evening.

The Senate adjourned during pleasure.

At 11.00 p.m. the sitting was resumed.

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): Honourable senators, the best intelligence I have is that the progress in the committee stage in the other place is very slow. It may speed up, but even if it did, we would receive the bill at a very late hour. We are assembled now but it is impossible for us to proceed. On the off-chance that the bill passes the House of Commons tonight, or that chamber sits early tomorrow, I suggest that we reassemble at 11 o'clock in the morning in the hope of being able to proceed at that time.

I can give no guarantee that we will be able to consider the bill at that hour. If we cannot, we can decide then when we should return.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Mr. Connolly (Ottawa West): Honourable senators, I move with leave of the Senate, that when the Senate adjourns today it do stand adjourned until Thursday, September 1, at 11 o'clock in the morning.

Motion agreed to.

The Senate adjourned until tomorrow at 11 a.m.

END OF VOLUME I

INDEX

Abbreviations

1r, 2r, 3r	= First, second, third reading
amdts	= amendments
com	= committee
div	= division
m	= motion
neg	= negatived
ref	= referred
rep	= report
r.a.	= royal assent

Acts passed during the Session:

PUBLIC ACTS

Assented to February 8, 1966

Chap.		Bill No.
1.	Appropriation Act No. 1, 1966	C-116

Assented to February 23, 1966

2.	Electoral Boundaries Readjustment Act, An Act to extend time for consideration of objections	C-126

Assented to March 9, 1966

3.	Appropriation Act No. 2, 1966 (Main Supply 1965-66)	C-140

PUBLIC ACTS – Continued

Assented to March 31, 1966

Chap.		Bill No.
4.	Admiralty Act, An Act to amend the	C-161
5.	Appropriation Act No. 3, 1966	C-157
6.	Appropriation Act No. 4, 1966	C-159
7.	Bank Act and the Quebec Savings Banks Act, An Act to amend the	C-3
8.	Judges Act, An Act to amend the	C-160
9.	Milltown Bridge Act	S-15

Assented to May 12, 1966

10.	Aeronautics Act, An Act to amend the	C-153
11.	Agricultural Rehabilitation and Development Act, An Act to amend the	C-152
12.	Bills of Exchange Act, An Act to amend the	S-14
13.	Bretton Woods Agreements Act, An Act to amend the	C-144
14.	Canada – United Kingdom, Canada – Sweden, Income Tax Agreement Act, 1966	C-154
15.	Canadian National Railway Branch Line – Amesdale	C-165
16.	Export and Import Permits Act, An Act to amend the	S-23
17.	Farm Credit Act, An Act to amend the	C-171
18.	Fisheries Development Act	C-145
19.	Science Council of Canada Act	C-149

Assented to June 2, 1966

20.	Appropriation Act No. 5, 1966	C-189
21.	Newfoundland Additional Financial Assistance Act, 1966	C-185
22.	Northwest Territories Act, An Act to amend the	C-146

Assented to June 16, 1966

23.	Combines Investigation Act and the Criminal Code, An Act to amend, An Act to amend the	C-169
24.	Fair Wages and Hours of Labour Act, An Act to amend the	C-2
25.	Government Organization Act, 1966	C-178
26.	Research Council Act, An Act to amend the	C-150
27.	Training Allowance Act, 1966	C-186
28.	Yukon Act, An Act to amend the	C-147

PUBLIC ACTS – Continued

Assented to July 11, 1966

Chap.		Bill No.
29.	Appropriation Act No. 6, 1966	C-224
30.	Appropriation Act No. 7, 1966	C-226
31.	Atlantic Development Board Act, An Act to amend the	C-213
32.	Bankruptcy Act, An Act to amend the	S-17
33.	Canada Student Loans Act, An Act to amend the	C-197
34.	Canadian Dairy Commission Act	C-205
35.	Canadian National Railway Branch Lines, Osborne Lake, Manitoba and Guernsey, Saskatchewan	C-210
36.	Company of Young Canadians Act	C-174
37.	Crop Insurance Act, An Act to amend the	C-208
38.	Customs Tariff Act, An Act to amend the	C-200
39.	Exchequer Court Act, An Act to amend the	C-201
40.	Excise Tax Act, An Act to amend the	C-198
41.	Fund for Rural Economic Development Act	C-151
42.	Health Resources Fund Act	C-199
43.	Public Utilities Income Tax Transfer Act	C-211
44.	Statute Law (Superannuation) Amendment Act, 1966	C-193

Assented to July 15, 1966

45.	Canada Assistance Plan	C-207
46.	Canadian Corporation for the 1967 World Exhibition Act, An Act to amend the	S-42
47.	Income Tax Act, An Act to amend the	C-216
48.	National Arts Centre Act	C-194
49.	St. Lawrence Ports Working Conditions Act	C-215

Assented to September 1, 1966

50.	Maintenance of Railway Operation Act, 1966	C-230

Assented to November 17, 1966

51.	Appropriation Act No. 8, 1966	C-245
52.	Livestock Feed Assistance Act	C-218

Assented to November 22, 1966

53.	National Housing Act, 1954, An Act to amend the	C-241

Assented to November 28, 1966

54.	Bank Act and the Quebec Savings Banks Act, An Act to amend the	S-53

PUBLIC ACTS – Continued

Assented to November 30, 1966

Chap.		Bill No.
55.	Appropriation Act No. 9, 1966 (Main Supply)	C-248

Assented to December 14, 1966

56.	Appropriation Act No. 10, 1966	C-254
57.	Boundary between the Provinces of Manitoba and Saskatchewan, An Act respecting the	S-45
58.	Boundary between the Province of Saskatchewan and the Northwest Territories, An Act respecting the	S-46
59.	Canada Labour (Standards) Code, An Act to amend the	S-54
60.	Canada Lands Surveys Act, An Act to amend the	S-48

Assented to December 21, 1966

61.	Boundary between the Province of Manitoba and the Northwest Territories, An Act respecting the	S-47
62.	Canada Labour (Safety) Code	S-35
63.	Export Credits Insurance Act, An Act to amend the	C-253
64.	Medical Care Act	C-227
65.	Old Age Security Act, An Act to amend the	C-251

Assented to February 9, 1967

66.	Canada Corporations Act, An Act to amend	S-51
67.	Canadian National Railways Financing and Guarantee Act, 1965-66	C-229
68.	Judges Act, An Act to amend the	C-262
69.	National Transportation Act	C-231

Assented to February 17, 1967

70.	Canada Deposit Insurance Corporation Act	C-261

Assented to February 23, 1967

71.	Public Service Employment Act	C-181
72.	Public Service Staff Relations Act	C-170

PUBLIC ACTS – Concluded

Assented to March 1, 1967

Chap.		Bill No.
73.	Appropriation Act No. 1, 1967	C-271
74.	Financial Administration Act, An Act to amend the	C-182
75.	Income Tax Convention Act	S-56
76.	Judges Act, An Act to amend the	C-267
77.	Postal Services Interruption Relief Act	S-55

Assented to March 10, 1967

78.	Canadian Film Development Corporation Act	C-204
79.	Excise Tax Act and the Old Age Security Act, An Act to amend the	C-268
80.	Fund for Rural Economic Development Act, An Act to amend the	C-274
81.	Governor General's Retiring Annuity Act	C-265
82.	Industrial Research and Development Incentives Act	C-252
83.	Small Businesses Loans Act, An Act to amend the	C-270
84.	Statutory Salaries Revision Act, 1967	C-266

Assented to March 23, 1967

85.	Appropriation Act No. 2, 1967	C-282
86.	Appropriation Act No. 3, 1967	C-283
87.	Bank Act	C-222
88.	Bank of Canada Act, An Act to amend the	C-190
89.	Federal-Provincial Fiscal Arrangements Act, 1967	C-277
90.	Immigration Appeal Board Act	C-220
91.	Income Tax Act, An Act to amend the, and to repeal the Canadian Vessel Construction Assistance Act	C-259
92.	Pension Benefits Standards Act	C-221
93.	Quebec Savings Banks Act	C-223

Assented to May 8, 1967

94.	Adult Occupational Training Act	C-278
95.	Appropriation Act No. 4, 1967	C-293
96.	Canadian Forces Reorganization Act	C-243
97.	Income Tax Act, An Act to amend the	C-280

LOCAL AND PRIVATE ACTS

Assented to Mar. 31, May 12, June 2, July 11, 15, Nov. 17, Dec. 14, 21, 1966; Feb. 9, Mar. 10, May 8, 1967

Chap.		Bill No.
	Banks
98.	Bank of British Columbia, An Act to incorporate	S-16
99.	Bank of Western Canada, An Act to incorporate	C-111
	Insurance Companies
100.	Anniversary Life Insurance Company, An Act to incorporate	S-28
101.	Canada Health and Accident Assurance Corporation, An Act respecting	S-13
102.	Income Disability and Reinsurance Company of Canada, An Act to incorporate	S-12
103.	Income Life Insurance Company of Canada, An Act to incorporate	S-11
104.	Laurier Life Insurance Company, An Act to incorporate	S-27
105.	North West Life Assurance Company of Canada, An Act to incorporate The	S-25
106.	Pacific Coast Fire Insurance Company, An Act respecting The	S-6
107.	Société des Artisans, An Act respecting La	S-41
	Pipe Lines
108.	Interprovincial Pipe Line Company, An Act respecting	S-10
	Railways
109.	Canadian Pacific Railway Company, An Act respecting	S-32
110.	Canadian Pacific Railway Company, An Act respecting	S-34
	Religious Organizations
111.	Canadian Board of Missions of the Church of God, An Act to incorporate (General Offices: Anderson, Indiana)	S-18
112.	Evangelical Covenant Church of Canada, An Act to incorporate The	S-38
113.	Evangelistic Tabernacle Incorporated, An Act to incorporate	S-7
114.	Lutheran Church in America – Canada Section, An Act to incorporate	S-39
115.	Mennonite Central Committee (Canada), An Act to incorporate	S-37
116.	Presbyterian Church in Canada, An Act respecting The Trustee Board of The	S-20
117.	United Baptist Woman's Missionary Union of the Maritime Provinces, An Act respecting	S-33

LOCAL AND PRIVATE ACTS – Concluded

Chap.		Bill No.
	Trust and Loan Companies
118.	General Mortgage Service Corporation of Canada, An Act respecting	S-8
119.	League Savings and Mortgage Company, An Act to incorporate	S-30
	Miscellaneous
120.	International Society of Endocrinology, An Act to incorporate The	S-29
121.	United Grain Growers Limited, An Act respecting	S-5

Address in reply to Speech from the Throne at opening of Session
Motion for, Hon. A. Hamilton McDonald, 29-35; seconded, Hon. L.M. Gouin, 35-37
Ordered that Address be presented to the Governor General, 735
Speakers: Honourable Senators

Aird, John B., 227-31
Argue, Hazen, 729-35
Baird, A.B., 99
Belisle, Rheal, 103-7
Bouffard, Paul H., 50-55
Bourque, Romuald, 666-71
Brooks, A.J., 40-48
Crerar, T.A., 564-71, 576
Denis, Azellus, 409-12
Fournier, Edgar E., 57-64
Fournier, Sarto, 541-7
Gershaw, F.W., 80-82
Gouin, L.M., 35-37
Hollett, Malcolm, 93-99
Inman, F. Elsie, 100-3
Irvine, Olive L., 322-7
McDonald, A. Hamilton, 29-35
O'Leary, Clement A., 220-3
Pearson, Arthur M., 307-12
Pouliot, Jean-François, 193-7, 201-4
Quart, Josie D., 253-5
Rattenbury, Nelson, 279-82
Roebuck, Arthur W., 126-9
Vaillancourt, Cyrille, 526-30

Adenauer, Konrad, former Chancellor of the Federal Republic of Germany, the late, 1787-8

Adjournments
Emergency sittings, authority to convene Senate, 24
March 31, 397
May 12, 547
July 14, 977
September 1, 1037
September 13, 1051
December 21, 1340
February 9, 1435

Administration of Justice, Special Joint Committee (re Mr. Justice Landreville), appointment, 1176, 1231-2; agreed to, 1232
Members
Commons, 1292, 1347, 1433, 1443, 1473, 1495
Report, 1360

Admiralty bill C-161. 1r, 386; 2r, 386-7; 3r, 387; r.a., 397

Adult occupational training
Age limit, 1908
Allowances, 1900-1
Buildings and equipment, provincial loans for, 1912
Commonwealth training program, 1907
Counselling officers, 1913
Drop-outs, 1898
Federal-provincial agreements, 1899, 1903, 1912-13
Nova Scotia problems, 1910-11
Technical and vocational training schools, 1905-6
Transitional agreements, 1901
Unemployment insurance benefits, 1901
Weekly earnings in provinces, 1899
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Burchill, G. Percival, 1911
Cameron, Donald, 1897-1901, 1911-14
Connolly, John J., 1904
Fournier, Edgar, 1905-9
Grosart, Allister, 1901-4, 1912
Kinley, John J., 1909-11

Adult Occupational Training bill C-278. 1r, 1885; 2r, 1897-1914; 3r, 1914; r.a., 1925

Aeronautics
Accidents, 512-13
Air Transport Board, 452, 512
Fees and charges, levying of, 451
Obstruction of investigations, 513
Offences against air regulations, 452

Aeronautics – Concluded
Preservation and protection of civil aircraft, 452
Rockets, moored balloons and kites, 452
Working conditions, regulations re, 451
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Deschatelets, Jean-Paul, 451-2
Haig, J. Campbell, 512-13

Aeronautics bill C-153. 1r, 401; 2r, 451-2, 512-13; ref to com, 513; authority to print com proceedings, 525; rep of com without amdt, 525; 3r, 541; r.a., 547

Aetna Casualty Company of Canada bill S-4. Hon. Mr. Cook. 1r, 29; 2r-ref to com, 64; rep of com with amdt, 166; fee paid last session, 168; 3r, 187

Aging
Canadian Conference on Aging, Toronto, 130
Community neglect of older people, 140
Social Workers Assoc. brief on, 140
Danish National Institute on Social Research, 79
Davis, Dr. R.E.G., consultant, 129
Health problems, nursing and homemaker facilities, 75-76
Housing, 76-77
Income for Canadians at 65 yrs., 70, 72-73, 113, 116, 130
Means test, 114
Recommendations, 73
Income tax returns, 114
Jewish Home for the Aged, Toronto, 176
National Commission on Aging, 115
New Brunswick homes for the aged, 141-2, 188
Organizations in other countries, 130, 131
Press comments on Senate Special Committee, 174
Report of Senate Special Committee, 89 et seq
Retirement preparations, discussions and program of United Automobile Workers, 139-40
Segregation of elderly people, 188-9
Senior Citizens day at Expo67, suggestion, 175-6
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Burchill, G. Percival, 140-2
Croll, David A., 69-80 (See Appendix p. 89)
Fergusson, Muriel McQ., 129-31
Grosart, Allister, 112-14
Haig, J. Campbell, 139-40
McGrand, Fred A., 187-9
Quart, Josie D., 173-6
Roebuck, Arthur W., 114-17

Aging, Senate Special Committee
Appointment, 23
Members, 23
Report, discussion on, 69-80, 112-17, 139-42, 173-6, 187-9
See Appendix p. 89 et seq for complete report

Agreements, conventions, treaties
Automotive products, Canada-United States agreement, 616-25, 735-42, 747-57, 779-87, 809, 853
Income tax, Canada and Trinidad and Tobago, and certain other countries, and convention between Canada and the United States, 1350, 1369-77, 1418-19, 1424
Income tax, Canada-United Kingdom, 401-2, 438-46, 497, 530, 547

Agricultural and Rural Development bill C-152. 1r, 401; 2r, 414-16, 449-51; ref to com, 451; authority to print com proceedings, 496; rep of com without amdt; 496; 3r, 350; r.a., 547
See also ARDA

Agriculture
Agricultural program of Liberal party, excerpts from pamphlet on, 732
ARDA, 221-2, 308, 309, 310, 414-16, 449-50, 549, 672-3
Crop insurance, 310-11
Education related to local livelihood, 308-10
Enlargement of farms through government assistance, 671
Exodus from farms, 664-5, 671-2
Farm land utilized by railway line, 537
Farm machinery costs, 311
Farm problems and subsidies, 221-3
ARDA, 221, 222
Marginal or submarginal farmers, 221
Nova Scotia milk surplus, 222
Uneconomic farm units, 221, 223
Income of farmers, 549-50
Northwest Territories, 589-90
Rural poverty, 308-10
Soil utilization in foreign countries, 529-30
Weed control, research on, 484-5
See ARDA,
Water resources.

Air Canada
Interim financing requirements, 1410
Machinists strike, 1124-5, 1149
Temporary loans to, 1410
See Labour conditions

Aird, Hon. John B.
Address in reply to Speech from the Throne, 227-31
Automotive products, Canada-United States agreement, 616-22
Adjustment Assistance Board, 619
Balance of payments problem, 619, 620
Duty-free vehicles and parts, 618
Economic Council Review, 620
Employment, 618
Exports of automotive products, 618, 619
Industrial structure, improvement in, 617-18

Aird, Hon. John B. – Concluded
Automotive products –Concluded
Kennedy Round, 620, 621
Motor vehicle production, 618
Prices and wages, 621
Royal Commission on Automotive Industry, 617
Tax policies, 621-2
Economic development and Government responsibility, 228-31
Canada Development Corporation, 230-1
"Creative federalism", 229-30
Excerpt from Fortune, 230
Criteria and discipline in government administration, 229-30
Economic Council of Canada, 228
Educational requirements, 229, 230
Pressure on economy through rapid expansion, 228
Productive potential, 228
NATO Parliamentarians, 12th annual conference at Paris, France, 1283-7
Britain and the European Common Market, 1283-6
Financial Post editorial, 1286
Canadian delegation, 1286-7
Economic problems, 1284-5
European unity, 1284
GATT negotiations, 1284
International liquidity and reserve currency, 1284
New York Times article by C.L. Sulzberger, 1284
NATO and Canada, 1284
Peacekeeping force, 1287

Alberta
Alberta Medical Plan, 80
Petroleum industry, Rainbow Lake, 1091–2
Sulphur production by Shell (Canada) Ltd., 610-11
Water resources, 936, 937-9

Anniversary Life Insurance, see York Life Insurance Company

Anthem, see National and Royal Anthems

Appendixes
Aging, Senate Special Committee report, 89
Appropriation bill No. 5, answers to questions on lamprey control and research, fisheries 12-mile limit, Atlantic provinces power development, 801–7
Appropriation bill No. 6, answers to questions on immigrants, manpower mobility program, freight assistance, veterans hospitals, technical and vocational training, 1000-2
Appropriation bill No. 9, answers to questions on Oromocto, Marville and other Canadian stations, National Gallery, Centennial Commission, 1352-4
Bank of British Columbia bill S-16, rep of com, 381-4, Commons amdts, 1242
Bankruptcy bill S-17, rep of com, 596-8; Commons amdts, 777
Centennial of Confederation, congratulatory resolutions in U.S. Senate and House of Representatives, 1805-7

Appendixes – Concluded

Centennial Performing Arts, allocation of grants, inquiry, Hon. Mr. Cameron, 1069–71
Commissions, name, nature, personnel, and date, inquiry, Hon. Mr. Pouliot, 1073-4
Constituencies of Canada, inquiry, Hon. Mr. Pouliot, 1093-5
Consumer Credit and Cost of Living, Special Joint Committee
Report (interim) 1307-13
Report, final, see Appendix to Feb. 16
Report presented at end of Session, 1928-49
Dominion Day, conduct of non-essential business on July 1, 1967, inquiry, Hon. Mr. Davey, 1072
Electoral redistribution, newspaper articles by Hon. Jean-François Pouliot, 179-84
Estimates for fiscal year ending Mar. 31/66, report of Finance Committee, 297-9
Estimates, main and supplementary (A) and (C) for fiscal year ending Mar. 31/66, report of Finance Committee, 1588-90
Governor General of Canada, installation of the Right Honourable Roland Michener, address by Prime Minister and reply by Governor General, 1783-5
Interparliamentary Group, Canada-United States, report of eighth meeting, 163-5
Labour Relations, report of dispute between Shipping Federation of Canada and International Longshoremen's Assoc., 871-7
National Research Council bill C-150, rep of com with amdts, 581
Penitentiaries, report of Joint Committee, 1863-8
Selection Committee report, 25

Appropriation bill No. 1, 1966 C-116. 1r, 107; 2r, 107-12, 118-25; 3r, 125; r.a., 131

Appropriation bill No. 2, 1966 C-140. 1r, 283; 2r, 283-9; 3r, 289-90; r.a., 291

Appropriation bill No. 3, 1966 C-157. 1r, 340; 2r, 347-52, 371-3; 3r, 394; r.a., 396

Appropriation bill No. 4, 1966 C-159. 1r, 360; 2r, 370-1; 3r, 394; r.a., 397

Appropriation bill No. 5, 1966 C-189. 1r, 600; 2r, 626-31; 3r, 636-8; r.a., 648 (Answers to questions, 801-7)

Appropriation bill No. 6, 1966 C-224. 1r, 913; 2r, 916-21; 3r, 921; r.a., 930 (Answers to questions, 1000-2).

Appropriation bill No. 7, 1966 C-226. 1r, 923; 2r, 923-9; 3r, 929; r.a., 930

Appropriation bill No. 8, 1966 C-245. 1r, 1169; 2r, 1169-74; 3r, 1174; r.a., 1175

Appropriation bill No. 9, 1966 C-248. 1r, 1197; 2r, 1212-23; 3r, 1226; r.a., 1232 (Answers to questions, 1352-4).

Appropriation bill No. 10, 1966 C-254. 1r, 1234; 2r, 1244-9; 3r, 1249; r.a., 1263

Appropriation bill No. 1, 1967 C-271. 1r, 1524; 2r, 1527-33; 3r, 1533; r.a., 1541

Appropriation bill No. 2, 1967 C-282. 1r, 1758; 2r, 1758-61; 3r, 1761; r.a., 1768

Appropriation bill No. 3, 1967 C-283. 1r, 1761; 2r, 1761-8; 3r, 1768; r.a., 1768

Appropriation bill No. 4, 1967 C-293. 1r, 1885; 2r, 1915-20; 3r, 1920; r.a., 1925

ARDA, 221-2, 308, 309, 414-16, 449-50, 549, 672-3
- Advisory committee, 415-16
- Fringe areas to benefit from program, 415
- Nova Scotia, 449-50
  - Dyking, drainage and other projects, 449-50
  - Electric power research, 449
  - Market-garden farm units, 449-50
  - Tourist development, 450
- Speakers: Honourable Senators
  - Blois, Fred M., 448-50
  - McDonald, A. Hamilton, 414-16
- See Rural economic development

Argue, Hon. Hazen
- Address in reply to Speech from the Throne, 729-35
- Farm Credit bill C-171, 519-22
  - Cost-price squeeze, 520
  - Credit advice for farmers, need for, 521
  - Family farms, 519-20
  - Land prices, excerpt from report of Farm Credit Corp., 520-1
  - Loan statistics, 521
- Introduction to the Senate, 199
- Livestock Feed Assistance bill C-218, 1129-33
  - Board, functions of, 1130
  - Co-operatives and free enterprise, 1129-30
  - Expenditures of Canadian Wheat Board, payment of by western producers, 1131-2
  - Farm machinery costs, 1133
  - Storage facilities, accelerated depreciation for, 1132
  - Transportation subsidy, 1130-1
  - Variations in prices and grain qualities, 1129
- National Transportation bill C-231, 1398-1401
  - Branch Lines, abandonment of, 1398-1400
  - Crowsnest Pass Agreement, 1398
  - Freight rates, 1398
  - Legal counsel for producers, 1400-1
  - MacPherson, M.A., Chairman of Royal Commission on Transportation, 1398
- Old Age Security bill C-251, 1331-3
  - Alberta legislation, 1332
  - Needs test, 1332
  - Productivity of nation, increase stressed to alleviate taxation, 1333
- Pearson, Right Hon. Lester B., Prime Minister, 730

Argue, Hon. Hazen – Concluded
Producers in western Canada, 730-5
Agricultural program of Liberal party, excerpts from pamphlet on, 732
Cattle produce, 732
Crop exports, 732
Prices and costs, 733-4
Saskatoon prairie conference, 734-5
Two-price system, 734
Rural Economic Development Fund bill C-274, 1578-9
PFRA, 1578-9
Water resources, development in western Canada, 1579

Armed forces, see Canadian Forces Reorganization, Visiting Forces.

Arts Centre, see National Arts Centre

Aseltine, Hon. Walter M., P.C.
Appropriation bill No. 1 C-116, 121-3
Appropriation bill No. 8 C-245, 1172
Canadian National Railways Financing and Guarantee bill C-229, 1411-13
Capital expenditures, 1412
Gordon, Donald, accomplishments as president of CNR, 1413
Criminal Code (Hate Propaganda), Special Joint Committee, 1167
Davies, Hon. W. Rupert, the late, 1615-16
Divorce (Extension of Grounds) bill S-19, 238, 258-63
Court, definition, 260-1
Divorce and Matrimonial Causes bill B (McMeans bill), 259-61
Explanatory notes, 260
Provincial courts, 260
Divorce and Matrimonial Causes bill 0-6, 262
Press comment on divorce reform, 262
Estimates, 121-3, 1247
Dollar items, 123
External aid, 1247
Governor General's warrants, 121-2
Farm Credit bill C-171, 517-19
Capital increase, 517-18
Cost-price squeeze, 518-19
Interest rates, 519
Machinery costs, 518
Mortgage loans, 517
Income Tax bill C-259, 1657-9
Income tax returns, delay in receipt of and complications in form, 1657-9
Succession duties and estate tax, 1659
India, Hindu Kush River dam being built by Canadians, 1247
Judges bill C-267, 1518-19
Capacities forbidden to judge unless by special appointment, 1518
Divorce action, 1519
Salary revisions, 1518-19
McLean, Hon. A. Neil, the late, 1615

Aseltine, Hon. Walter M., P.C. – Concluded
Northwest Territories bill C-146, 591, 607-10
Carrothers Commission, 609, 610
Newspaper article re report, 609
Excerpt from speech of 1953 advocating extension of provinces to include NWT, 608-9
Mileage and population, 608
Revenue and expenditures, 591, 610
Power, Hon. C.G., honorary degree of Doctor of Laws, University of Saskatchewan, 607
Privilege, question of, Ottawa Citizen article on Senate passage of bills, 892-3
Statutory Salaries Revision bill C-266, 1545-6
Authority of Governor in Council, 1546
Grain Commissioner, 1546
Retroactive clause, 1545

Assistance plan
Abuses, possibility of, 900, 901, 904, 908
Acts amended by bill C-207, 901
Allocations for services, 898-9
"Assistance", definitions of, 897
Blind persons, 903-4, 908
Co-ordination between governments, 898, 932
Duration of Agreement, 899
Established programs (interim arrangements), 901
"Evils" of the welfare state, 904-6
General assistance and welfare services, 899
"Have" and "have-not" provinces, 932
Health and welfare expenditures, 902, 905
Comparisons of selected countries, 933-4
As percentage of gross national product, 933
Disability benefits, 934
Family allowances, 934
Old age benefits and survival benefits, 934
Unemployment benefits, 934
Indian welfare, 899-900, 903, 908
Jurisdiction, federal-provincial, 902-3, 908, 909
Mother's allowance, 901
Needs test, 898
Old age assistance, 901
Persons eligible for assistance, 898
Rural poverty, preliminary report on selected areas, 906-7
Standards, difficulty in establishing of, 906, 933
Work activity projects, 900
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Burchill, G. Percival, 903-4
Connolly, John J., 897-901, 907-9
Croll, David A., 931-5
Macdonald, John M., 906-7
O'Leary, M. Grattan, 904-6
Thorvaldson, Gunnar S., 901-3, 909
Walker, David, 900

Assistance Plan bill C-207. 1r, 897; 2r, 897-909; ref to com, 909; authority to print com proceedings, 931; rep of com without amdt, 931; 3r, 931-5; r.a., 976

Atlantic Development Board
Anti-pollution campaign, 1691-2
Cape Breton Island, 1694
Economic surveys, 819-20
Electrical energy projects, 817-18, 1690
Fish plants, 1691
Fundy Trail, costs of development, 820
Health Resources Fund, 1694
Highway construction, 1691
Incomes in Atlantic provinces, 817, 819
Industrial developments, 817-18, 1691
Information re establishment of, 819
Mactaquac dam, 818
P.E.I. causeway, 820
Projects for which commitments have been made, 817
Research, 1691
Rural Economic Development Fund, 1693-4
Ship-building, 820
Stipulations for approval of projects, 817
Trans-Canada Highway, 1692-3
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Fournier, Edgar, 820
McElman, Charles, 815-19
Phillips, Orville H., 819-20
Smith, Donald, 1689-93

Atlantic Development Board bill C-213. 1r, 799; 2r, 815-20; 3r, 854; r.a., 929

Atlantic provinces
Atlantic Provinces Power Development Act, inquiry, Hon. Mr. Burchill, 630, 725, 801-7
Economic prospects, 280-2
Fishing industry, development programs, 280-1
Hydro power development, 278-80
Livestock feed grain assistance, 1076, 1083-90, 1096-9, 1104-7, 1116-19, 1129-33, 1137-8, 1158-60, 1168-9, 1175
New Brunswick, 280-2
Northumberland Strait construction, 771-2, 773
Passenger rail service, 1416, 1423
Transportation problems, 1361-5, 1378-80, 1401, 1403-5, 1416, 1423
Winter works program, 318-19, 332-4, 494-5
See also individual names of provinces

Automotive products
Adjustment Assistance Board, 619
Amendment to agreement, reported on in U.S. Code Congressional (And Administrative) News, 752-3, 782-3

Automotive products – Concluded
Authority for implementation of treaties or agreements, 622-4, 736, 747-50, 753-6
Constitutional Law, excerpt from, 736
International Waterways Agreement, Sir Robert Borden quoted, 737
Oppenheim's International Law, excerpt from, 754
Trade agreements by Order in Council, 785
U.S. law, 737-8
Benefits to Canadian Industry, 617-18, 750, 780-5
Date agreement enters into force, 739-40
Duty-free imports, clauses dealing with, 738-9
Duty-free vehicles and parts, 618
Economic Council review, 620
Employment, 618, 622, 756, 780-2
Exports of automotive products, 618, 619
Financial Post article on "Life Under the Auto Pact", 781-2
Ford Motor Co. expenditures in Canada, 780
Imbalance of payments, 619, 620, 622, 750-2, 756, 785-6
Industrial structure, improvement in, 617-18
Jigs, dies, et cetera, 787
Kennedy Round, 620, 621
Letters of commitment, 752-3, 783-4
Motor vehicle production, 618
Prices and wages, 621
Reciprocal concessions, 784-5
Reduction of import duties "for concessions granted", 747-8
Royal Commission on Automotive Industry, 617
Tariff concession to U.S. manufacturers, 622-3
Tax policies, 621-2, 624
Trade agreements by order in council, 785
Trade deficit in automotive exports, 619, 620, 622, 750-2, 756
Globe and Mail report on, 751-2
U.S. domination of automobile industry, 624
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Aird, John B., 616-22
Grosart, Allister, 747-57
Hayden, Salter A., 779-87
Hugessen, A.K., 735-42
Roebuck, Arthur W., 741-2
Walker, David, 622-3, 786
Willis, Harry A., 623-5

Automotive products, Canada-United States Agreement, motion for approval, 616-25, 735-42, 747-57, 779-87; ref to com, 787; authority to print com proceedings, 809; rep of com recommending approval of Agreement, adopted, 853

Baird, Hon. A.B.
Address in reply to Speech from the Throne, 99
Bradley, Hon. F. Gordon, the late, 361
Divorce (Extension of Grounds) bill S-19, 335-6
"Baird's Law", 336
Collusion, 335-6
Newfoundland, 335, 336-7
Quebec, question of opting out, 336

Baird, Hon. A.B. – Concluded
Military Committee of NATO Parliamentarians' conference, 99
Newfoundland Additional Financial Assistance bill C-185, 551
Woodrow, Hon. Allan L., the late, 362

Bank bill C-222. 1r, 1728; 2r, 1728-45; ref to com, 1745; authority to print proceedings, 1750; rep of com without amdt, 1750, m for 3r, 1750 m in amdt, 1753-6, neg, 1756, 3r, 1756; r.a., 1768

Bank bill and Quebec Savings Banks bill C-3. 1r, 300; 2r, 314-15; 3r, 315; r.a., 397

Bank bill and Quebec Savings Banks bill S-53. 1r, 1188; 2r, 1188; 3r, 1189; r.a., 1209

Banking and Commerce Committee
Members, 25, 258, 715, 1360
Reports
Aetna Casualty Company of Canada bill S-4. Rep of com with amdt, 166
Agricultural and Rural Development bill C-152. Authority to print com proceedings, 496; rep of com without amdt, 496
Assistance Plan bill C-207. Authority to print com proceedings, 931; rep of com without amdt, 931
Automotive Products, Canada-U.S. Agreement. Authority to print com proceedings, 809, rep of com recommending approval of Agreement, 853
Bank bill C-222. Authority to print com proceedings, 1750; rep of com without amdt, 1750
Bank of British Columbia bill S-16. Authority to print com proceedings, 330; rep of com with amdts, 367, 381-4
Bank of Canada bill C-190. Authority to print com proceedings, 1701; rep of com without amdt, 1701
Bank of Western Canada bill C-111. Authority to print com proceedings, 889; rep of com without amdt, 889
Bankruptcy bill S-17. Authority to print com proceedings, 314; rep of com with amdts, 577-80, 596-8; Commons amdts ref to com, 759-61; authority to print com proceedings, 809; rep of com, Commons amdts concurred in, 809-10
Bills of Exchange bill S-14. Authority to print com proceedings, 268; rep of com with amdts, 268-9
Bretton Woods Agreements bill C-144. Authority to print com proceedings, 540; rep of com without amdt, 540
Canada Deposit Insurance Corporation bill C-261. Authority to print com proceedings, 1462; rep of com without amdt, 1462
Canada Health and Accident Assurance Corporation bill S-13. Rep of com without amdt, 167-8
Canada-United Kingdom Income Tax Agreement bill 1966 C-154. Rep of com without amdt, 497
Citizenship bill S-59. Authority to print com proceedings, 1808; rep of com with amdt, 1808-11
Combines Investigation and Criminal Code bill C-169. Authority to print com proceedings, 563; rep of com with amdt, 564, 593-4
Corporations bill S-51. Authority to print com proceedings, 1143; rep of com without amdt, 1143
Excelsior Life Insurance bill S-26. Rep of com without amdt, 496

Banking and Commerce Committee – Continued
Reports – Continued
Export and Import Permits bill S-23. Authority to print com proceedings, 363. Rep of com without amdt, 363
Farm Credit bill C-171. Rep of com without amdt, 525
Federal-Provincial Fiscal Arrangements bill C-277. Authority to print com proceedings, 1660; rep of com without amdt, 1660
Film Development Corporation bill C-204. Authority to print com proceedings, 1543; rep of com without amdt, 1544
Fisheries Development bill C-145. Authority to print com proceedings, 524-5; rep of com without amdt, 525
Food and Drugs bill S-60. Authority to print com proceedings, 1833; rep of com with amdts, 1845-7
General Mortgage Service Corporation of Canada bill S-8. Rep of com without amdt, 167
Government Organization bill C-178. Authority to print com proceedings, 714; rep of com without amdt, 714
Health Resources Fund bill C-199. Rep of com without amdt, 853
Income Disability and Reinsurance Company of Canada bill S-12. Rep of com without amdt, 167
Income Life Insurance Company of Canada bill S-11. Rep of com without amdt, 167
Income Tax bill C-216. Authority to print com proceedings, 956; rep of com without amdt, 956
Industrial Research and Development Incentives bill C-252. Rep of com without amdt, 1591
Interpretation bill S-9. Authority to print com proceedings, 211; rep of com with amdts, 852
Labour (Standards) Code bill S-54. Authority to print com proceedings, 1195; rep of com without amdt, 1195
Lands Surveys bill S-48. Authority to print com proceedings, 1009; rep of com without amdt, 1009
La Société des Artisans bill S-41. Authority to print com proceedings, 878; rep of com without amdt, 878
Laurier Life Insurance Company bill S-27. Rep of com without amdt, 563
League Savings and Mortgage Company bill S-30. Rep of com without amdt, 563
Livestock Feed Assistance bill C-218. Authority to print com proceedings, 1168-9; rep of com without amdt, 1169
Manitoba-Northwest Territories Boundary bill S-47. Authority to print com proceedings, 1008; rep of com without amdt, 1009
Manitoba-Saskatchewan Boundary bill S-45. Authority to print com proceedings, 1007; rep of com without amdt, 1007
Medical Care bill C-227. Authority to print com proceedings, 1282; rep of com without amdt, 1282
National Museums bill S-57. Authority to print com proceedings, 1700; rep of com without amdt, 1700
Newfoundland Additional Financial Assistance bill 1966 C-185. Authority to print com proceedings, 614; rep of com without amdt, 614
North West Life Assurance Company of Canada bill S-25. Rep of com without amdt, 413
Pacific Coast Fire Insurance Company bill S-6. Rep of com with amdt, 167
Postal Services Interruption Relief bill S-55. Authority to print com proceedings, 1300; rep of com without amdt, 1300
Quebec Savings Banks bill C-223. Authority to print com proceedings, 1750; rep of com without amdt, 1750

Banking and Commerce Committee – Concluded
Reports – Concluded
Rural Economic Development Fund bill C-151. Authority to print com proceedings-rep of com with amdt, 714
Saskatchewan-Northwest Territories bill S-46. Authority to print com proceedings, 1007; rep of com without amdt, 1008
Seaboard Finance Company of Canada bill S-21. Rep of com without amdt, 413
Statuory Salaries Revision bill C-266. Rep of com without amdt, 1591
Training Allowance bill C-186. Authority to print com proceedings, 725-6; rep of com without amdt, 726
United Grain Growers Limited bill S-5. Rep of com without amdt, 166
United Investment Life Assurance Company bill S-40. Authority to print com proceedings, 808; rep of com without amdt, 808
Visiting Forces bill S-50. Authority to print com proceedings, 1169; rep of com with amdts, 1224
World Exhibition, Canadian Corporation, bill S-42. Authority to print com proceedings, 889; rep of com without amdt, 890
York Life Insurance bill S-28. Rep of com with amdts, 496

Bank of British Columbia bill S-16. Hon. Mr. Farris. 1r, 133; 2r, 144-6; ref to com, 146; authority to print com proceedings, 330; rep of com with amdts, 367, see appendix 381-4; 3r, 367; Commons amdts, 1233, 1242, 1243-4; r.a., 1263

Bank of Canada
Cash and secondary reserves, 1675-6
Consultation between governor and government, 1675, 1677-9
Director, executive committee, pensions, 1676-7
Gold reserves, 1676
Monetary policy, responsibility for, 1677-8
"Payable to bearer on demand", 1676, 1679
Speakers: Honourable Senators
McDonald, A. Hamilton, 1674-7, 1679
Roebuck, Arthur W., 1679
Thorvaldson, Gunnar S., 1677-9

Bank of Canada bill C-190. 1r, 1646; 2r, 1674-80; ref to com, 1680; authority to print com proceedings, 1701; rep of com without amdt, 1701; 3r, 1719

Bank of Western Canada
Capital stock, 883
Incorporators, 882-3
Shares to be held by non-residents, 883
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Brooks, A.J., 884
Leonard, T. D'Arcy, 881-4, 885
Roebuck, Arthur W., 885
Thorvaldson, Gunnar S., 884-5

Bank of Western Canada bill C-111. Hon. Mr. Leonard. 1r, 870; 2r, 881-5; ref to com, 885; authority to print com proceedings, 889; rep of com without amdt, 889; 3r, 889; r.a., 976

Bankruptcy
Abuse of bankruptcy laws, 247-9, 274-5
Briefs presented re administration of act, 248
Canadian Institute of Chartered Accountants, 248
Collusion between debtor and creditor, 225
Credit Grantors Association brief, 277
Creditor's lack of interest when bankruptcy declared, 264-5, 277
Deficiencies in bankruptcy act, 274-5
Discharge from bankruptcy, 216-17, 579
Fraud squad, 275
Gifts to trustees, 226
Information to be furnished by trustee, 217, 579
Judicial administration, Bankruptcy Court of Montreal, 251
Jurisdiction of federal Government, 277
Limitation on debt accumulation, 213
Mercier Commission, 248-52, 276, 277-8
Orderly payment of debts, 213
Preference as to debtor, 215-16
Press reports, 248, 252
Proposal, 215, 263, 579
Quebec bankruptcy rings, 248-50, 251, 252
Rec-Stone Co., 252
Reviewable transaction, 226
Solicitor-client privilege, 578, 759-60
Statistics on, 249
Summary administration, 212-13, 278
Superintendent of Bankruptcy, authority of, 213-14, 218, 226, 250, 577-8, 760
Transactions made at 'arm's length', 225, 226
Transfers of property prior to bankruptcy, 226
Trustees and inspectors, suspect activities and screening of, 250-1, 278
Trustees' obligations, 226
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Burchill, G. Percival, 276-7, 761
Croll, David A., 274-6, 761
Flynn, Jacques, 263-5
Hayden, Salter A., 212-18, 277-9, 577-80, 759-60, 761
O'Leary, M. Grattan, 761
Thorvaldson, Gunnar S., 247-52
Walker, David J., 225-7, 760-1

Bankruptcy bill S-17. 1r, 159; 2r, 212-18, 225-7, 247-52, 263-5, 274-9; ref to com, 279; authority to print com proceedings, 314; rep of com with amdts 577-80; (see Appendix, 596-8); 3r, 580; Commons amdts (see Appendix, 777), ref to com, 759-61; authority to print com proceedings, 809; rep of com, Commons amdts concurred in, 809-10; r.a., 929

23031—143½

Banks and banking
Amdt to Bill C-222, Hon. Mr. McCutcheon, 1753, 1755, neg, 1756
Borrowing cost, 1733
Capital stock and shares, 1729-30, 1731, 1733
Cash reserves, 1729, 1731
Debentures, 1732
Directors, 1730-1, 1737-8, 1741, 1743-4
Interest rates, 1729, 1732, 1736-7
Mortgage loans, 1729, 1731-2
Non-resident shareholders, 1729, 1733-4, 1742
Shares in loan or trust company, 1732, 1741, 1744
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Connolly, John J., 1753-5
Hayden, Salter A., 1740-3
Lang, Daniel A., 1728-35, 1744-5
Leonard, T. D'Arcy, 1743-4
McCutcheon, M. Wallace, 1735-40, 1750-3, 1755, 1756
See also names of individual banks

Baptist General Conference of Canada bill S-43. Hon. Mr. Haig. 1r, 878; 2r, 894-5; ref to com, 895

Beaubien, Hon. Arthur L.
Consumer Credit Joint Committee, 344
Divorce Committee, 22
Divorce Joint Committee, 343-4
Excelsior Insurance Company bill S-26, 393
Internal Economy Committee, 22
Penitentiaries Joint Committee, 344
Quebec North Shore and Labrador Railway bill S-31, 453
Standing Committees, 23, 25-26, 258

Beaubien, Hon. L.P.
Canada Deposit Insurance Corporation bill C-261, 1459
Classification of institutions to be insured, 1459
Premiums, 1459
Canadian Forces Reorganization bill C-243, 1871-2
Economic wealth and per capita spending, 838
Health Resources Fund bill C-199, 837-8
Inflationary tendencies, 838
Public Service Staff Relations bill C-170, 1489
Economic factors of strikes, 1489
Taxation, 837, 838
World Exhibition, 1532
Highway safety and bilingual signs, 1532

Beaulieu, Madame Jeanne-Pauline, Mother of the Year, award of Florists Transworld Delivery Assoc., 399

Belisle, Hon. Rheal
Address in reply to Speech from the Throne, 103-7
Canadian Forces Reorganization bill C-243, 1853-7
Peacekeeping commitments, 1855
Press comment, 1854
Criminal Code (Hate Propaganda) bill S-49, 1277-8
Hate literature and propaganda, 1277-8
National unity, 103-4
Rural Economic Development Fund bill C-151, 673-6
Cost-price squeeze, 674
Farm Leadership Awards, 675
Sudbury Star article on Northern Ontario economy, 674-5
United Nations, 104-7
Communist China, question of admission to, 105
Pope Paul VI, His Holiness, visit to UN, 104-7

Benidickson, Hon. W. M., P.C.
Appropriation bill No. 9, 1966 C-248, 1216-17
Appropriation bill No. 2, 1967 C-282, 1761
Appropriation bill No. 3, 1967 C-283, 1765-6
Canadian National Railway bill C-165 (Bruce Lake), 416-17
Bruce Lake Iron Mine Co., sponsoring of by Steel Co. of Canada, 416
Costs of line, 416
Iron pellets development, guaranteed tonnage and penalty clause, 416-17
Canadian National Railways Financing and Guarantee bill C-229, 1409-11
Air Canada, interim financing requirements, 1410
Auditors, 1410, 1411
Capital expenditures, 1409
Deficit, 1410-11
Interest on government loan, 1410
Preferred stock purchases by Finance Minister, 1409-10
Temporary loans to CNR and to Air Canada, 1410
Estimates, 1761
Dollar items, 1761
World Exhibition, 1765-6
Export and Import Permits bill S-23, 344-6, 347
Area control, 345
Authority of Governor in Council, 345
Export controls, 345-6
Permits, 345
Rhodesia, restrictions on trade with, 345
Income Tax bill C-259, 1719, 1720
Introduction to the Senate, 1
Livestock Feed Assistance bill C-218, 1098
Territorial definitions, 1098
Manitoba-Saskatchewan Boundary bill S-45, 990-1
National Housing bill C-241, 1183-4
Low-cost homes, lack of loans for, 1184
Penitentiaries, report of Joint Committee, 1833, 1863-8, 1885

Bills, Numerically, Commons

See also individual titles

C-2 Fair Wages and Hours of Labour
C-3 Bank and Quebec Savings Banks
C-111 Bank of Western Canada
C-116 Appropriation No. 1, 1966
C-126 Redistribution
C-140 Appropriation No. 2, 1966
C-144 Bretton Woods Agreements
C-145 Fisheries Development
C-146 Northwest Territories
C-147 Yukon
C-149 Science Council of Canada
C-150 National Research Council
C-151 Rural Economic Development Fund
C-152 Agricultural and Rural Development
C-153 Aeronautics
C-154 Canada-United Kingdom Income Tax Agreement
C-157 Appropriation No. 3, 1966
C-159 Appropriation No. 4, 1966
C-160 Judges
C-161 Admiralty
C-165 Canadian National Railway (Amesdale to Bruce Lake)
C-169 Combines Investigation and Criminal Code
C-170 Public Service Staff Relations
C-171 Farm Credit
C-174 Company of Young Canadians
C-178 Government Organization
C-181 Public Service Employment
C-182 Financial Administration
C-185 Newfoundland Additional Financial Assistance
C-186 Training Allowance
C-189 Appropriation No. 5, 1966
C-190 Bank of Canada
C-193 Statute Law (Superannuation) Amendment
C-194 National Arts Centre
C-197 Student Loans
C-198 Excise Tax
C-199 Health Resources Fund
C-200 Customs Tariff
C-201 Exchequer Court
C-204 Film Development Corporation
C-205 Dairy Commission
C-207 Assistance Plan
C-208 Crop Insurance
C-210 Canadian National Railway (Stall Lake-Watrous)
C-211 Public Utilities Income Tax Transfer
C-213 Atlantic Development Board
C-215 St. Lawrence Ports Working Conditions
C-216 Income Tax
C-218 Livestock Feed Assistance
C-220 Immigration Appeal Board
C-221 Pension Benefits Standards
C-222 Bank
C-223 Quebec Savings Banks

Bills, Numerically, Commons – Concluded
C-224 Appropriation No. 6, 1966
C-226 Appropriation No. 7, 1966
C-227 Medical Care
C-229 Canadian National Railways
C-230 Maintenance of Railway Operation
C-231 National Transportation
C-241 National Housing
C-243 Canadian Forces Reorganization
C-245 Appropriation No. 8, 1966
C-248 Appropriation No. 9, 1966
C-251 Old Age Security
C-252 Industrial Research and Development Incentives
C-253 Export Credits Insurance
C-254 Appropriation No. 10, 1966
C-259 Income Tax
C-261 Canada Deposit Insurance Corporation
C-262 Judges
C-265 Governor General's Retiring Annuity
C-266 Statutory Salaries Revision
C-267 Judges (Salaries)
C-268 Excise Tax and Old Age Security
C-270 Small Businesses Loans
C-271 Appropriation No. 1, 1967
C-274 Rural Economic Development Fund
C-277 Federal-Provincial Fiscal Arrangements
C-278 Adult Occupational Training
C-280 Income Tax
C-282 Appropriation No. 2, 1967
C-283 Appropriation No. 3, 1967
C-293 Appropriation No. 4, 1967

Bills, Numerically, Senate
See also individual titles
S-1 Railways (pro forma)
S-2 Ottawa Terminal Railway
S-3 Finance Charges (Disclosure)
S-4 Aetna Casualty Company of Canada
S-5 United Grain Growers Limited
S-6 Pacific Coast Fire Insurance Company
S-7 Evangelistic Tabernacle Incorporated
S-8 General Mortgage Service Corporation
S-9 Interpretation
S-10 Interprovincial Pipe Line Company
S-11 Income Life Insurance Company of Canada
S-12 Income Disability and Reinsurance Company of Canada
S-13 Canada Health and Accident Assurance Corporation
S-14 Bills of Exchange
S-15 Milltown Bridge
S-16 Bank of British Columbia
S-17 Bankruptcy
S-18 Canadian Board of Missions of the Church of God (General Offices: Anderson, Indiana)
S-19 Divorce (Extension of Grounds)

Bills, Numerically, Senate – Concluded
S-20 Presbyterian Church in Canada, Trustee Board of
S-21 Seaboard Finance Company of Canada
S-22 Electoral Boundaries Readjustment
S-23 Export and Import Permits
S-24 Guides Catholiques du Canada (secteur français)
S-25 North West Life Assurance Company of Canada
S-26 Excelsior Life Insurance Company
S-27 Laurier Life Insurance Company
S-28 York (Anniversary) Life Insurance Company
S-29 Endocrinology, International Society of
S-30 League Savings and Mortgage Company
S-31 Quebec North Shore and Labrador Railway
S-32 Canadian Pacific Railway (Saskatchewan)
S-33 United Baptist Woman's Missionary Union of the Maritime Provinces
S-34 Canadian Pacific Railway (Alberta)
S-35 Labour (Safety) Code
S-36 Commercial Solids Pipe Line Company
S-37 Mennonite Central Committee (Canada)
S-38 Evangelical Convenant Church of God
S-39 Lutheran Church in America – Canada Section
S-40 United Investment Life Assurance Company
S-41 La Société des Artisans
S-42 World Exhibition, Canadian Corporation
S-43 Baptist General Conference of Canada
S-44 Richelieu Bridge Company
S-45 Manitoba-Saskatchewan Boundary
S-46 Saskatchewan-Northwest Territories Boundary
S-47 Manitoba-Northwest Territories Boundary
S-48 Lands Surveys
S-49 Criminal Code (Hate propaganda)
S-50 Visiting Forces
S-51 Corporations
S-52 Rainbow Pipe Line Company Limited
S-53 Bank and Quebec Savings Banks
S-54 Labour (Standards) Code
S-55 Postal Services Interruption Relief
S-56 Income Tax Agreements
S-57 National Museums
S-58 Teleferry
S-59 Citizenship
S-60 Food and Drugs

Bills of Exchange
Cheques marked 'For deposit', Commons amdt, 400
Compliance with Canada Labour (Standards) Code re holidays, 209, 223
Non-juridical days added or deleted, 209-10, 223
Payment of bills of exchange on Saturday or non-juridical day, 209, 223
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Cook, Eric, 209-10, 400
Hayden, Salter A., 268-9
Thorvaldson, Gunnar S., 223

Bills of Exchange bill S-14. 1r, 132; 2r, 209-10, 223; ref to com, 223; authority to print com proceedings, 268; rep of com with amdts, 268-9; 3r, 296; Commons amdt, 400; r.a., 547

Bills, Private

See also individual titles

Aetna Casualty Company of Canada S-4. Hon. Mr. Cook. 1r, 29; 2r-ref to com, 64; rep of com with amdt, 166; fee paid last session, 168; 3r, 187

Bank of British Columbia S-16. Hon. Mr. Farris. 1r, 133; 2r, 144-6; ref to com, 146; authority to print com proceedings, 330; rep of com with amdts, 367, see appendix 381-4; 3r, 367; Commons amdts, 1233, 1242-4; r.a., 1263

Bank of Western Canada C-111. Hon. Mr. Leonard. 1r, 870; 2r, 881-5; ref to com, 885; authority to print com proceedings, 889; rep of com without amdt, 889; 3r, 889; r.a., 976

Baptist General Conference of Canada S-43. Hon. Mr. Haig. 1r, 878; 2r, 894-5; ref to com, 895

Canada Health and Accident Assurance Corporation S-13. Hon. Mr. Cook. 1r, 100; 2r, 142-3; ref to com, 143; rep of com without amdt, 167; 3r, 187; r.a., 1263

Canadian Board of Missions of the Church of God S-18. (General Offices: Anderson, Indiana). Hon. Mr. Cameron. 1r, 166; 2r, 190-1; ref to com, 191; rep of com with amdts, 580-1; 3r, 607; r.a., 930

Canadian Pacific Railway (Alberta) S-34. Hon. Mr. Prowse. 1r, 471; 2r, 535-7; ref to com, 537; authority to print com proceedings, 632-3; rep of com without amdt, 633; 3r, 658; r.a., 929

Canadian Pacific Railway (Saskatchewan) S-32. Hon. Mr. McDonald. 1r, 471; 2r, 534-5; ref to com, 535; authority to print com proceedings, 632; rep of com without amdt, 632; 3r, 658; r.a., 929

Commercial Solids Pipe Line Company S-36. Hon. Mr. McDonald. 1r, 563; 2r, 610-11; ref to com, 611; authority to print com proceedings, 743; rep of com with amdt, 743-4; 3r, 744

Endocrinology, International Society of, S-29. Hon. Mr. Molson. 1r, 413; 2r, 513-15; ref to com, 515; rep of com without amdt, 688; 3r, 688; r.a., 930

Evangelical Convenant Church of Canada S-38. Hon. Mr. Hnatyshyn. 1r, 650; 2r, 704; ref to com, 704; rep of com with amdt, 848-9; 3r, 868; r.a., 1442

Evangelistic Tabernacle Incorporated S-7. Hon. Mr. Thorvaldson. 1r, 39; 2r, 67-68; ref to com, 68; rep of com without amdt, fee paid last session, 134; 3r, 134; r.a., 397; refund of fees, 1241

Excelsior Life Insurance Company S-26. Hon. Arthur L. Beaubien. 1r, 393; 2r, 406-8; ref to com, 408; rep of com without amdt, 496; 3r, 496

Bills, Private – Continued

General Mortgage Service Corporation S-8. Hon. Mr. Leonard. 1r, 39; 2r-ref to com, 68; rep of com without amdt, 167; fee paid last session, 168; 3r, 187; Commons amdt, 1233; r.a., 1263

Guides Catholiques du Canada (secteur français) S-24. Hon. Mrs. Jodoin. 1r, 343

Income Disability and Reinsurance Company of Canada S-12. Hon. Mr. McDonald. 1r, 91; 2r, 144; ref to com, 144; rep of com without amdt, 167; 3r, 187; r.a., 1263

Income Life Insurance Company of Canada S-11. Hon. Mr. McDonald. 1r, 91; 2r, 143-4; ref to com, 144; rep of com without amdt, 167; 3r, 187; r.a., 1263

Interprovincial Pipe Line Company S-10. Hon. Mr. Molson. 1r, 57; 2r, 82-84; ref to com, 84; rep of com without amdt, 133; fee paid last session, 133; 3r, 134; Commons amdts, 1832; r.a., 1925

La Société des Artisans S-41. Hon. Mr. Deschatelets. 1r, 770; 2r, 811-12; ref to com, 812; authority to print com proceedings, 878; rep of com without amdt, 878; 3r, 879; r.a., 1925

Laurier Life Insurance Company S-27. Hon. Mr. Flynn. 1r, 404; 2r, 493-4; ref to com, 493; rep of com without amdt, 563; 3r, 586; r.a., 1925

League Savings and Mortgage Company S-30. Hon. Harold Connolly. 1r, 413; 2r, 455-6; ref to com, 456; rep of com without amdt, 563; 3r, 586; r.a., 1339

Lutheran Church in America, Canada Section, S-39. Hon. W. Ross Macdonald. 1r, 650; 2r, 712-13; ref to com, 713; rep of com without amdt, 848; 3r, 848; r.a., 930

Mennonite Central Committee (Canada), S-37. Hon. Mr. Thorvaldson. 1r, 604; 2r, 638-9; ref to com, 639; rep of com without amdt, 688; 3r, 688; r.a., 930

North West Life Assurance Company of Canada bill S-25. Hon. Mr. Croll. 1r, 363; 3r, 395-6; ref to com, 396; rep of com without amdt, 413; 3r, 413; r.a., 1611

Pacific Coast Fire Insurance Company S-6. Hon. Mr. Thorvaldson. 1r, 39; 2r-ref to com, 67; rep of com with amdt, 167; 3r, 187; r.a., 1175

Presbyterian Church in Canada, Trustee Board of, S-20. Hon. Mr. Kinley. 1r, 211; 2r, 265; ref to com, 265; rep of com without amdt, 367; 3r, 367; r.a., 648

Quebec North Shore and Labrador Railway Company S-31. Hon. Mr. Bourget. 1r, 453; 2r, 586-8; ref to com, 588; rep of com without amdt, 632; 3r, 658

Rainbow Pipe Line Company Limited S-52. Hon. Mr. Hastings. 1r, 1077; 2r, 1091-2; ref to com, 1092; rep of com with amdts, 1164; 3r, 1196

Seaboard Finance Company of Canada S-21. Hon. Mr. McDonald. 1r, 293; 2r, 317-18; ref to com, 318; rep of com without amdt, 413; 3r, 446

United Baptist Woman's Missionary Union of the Maritime Provinces S-33. Hon. Mr. Brooks. 1r, 471; 2r, 509; ref to com, 509; rep of com without amdt, 580; 3r, 580; r.a., 930. Refund of fees, 987

Bills, Private – Concluded

United Grain Growers Limited S-5. Hon. Mr. Thorvaldson. 1r, 39; 2r, 64-67; ref to com, 67; rep of com without amdt, 166; 3r, 187; r.a., 547

United Investment Life Assurance Co. S-40. Hon. Mr. Leonard. 1r, 666; 2r, 717-18; ref to com, 718; authority to print proceedings, 808; rep of com without amdt, 808; 3r, 808-9

York Life Insurance Company S-28. Hon. Mr. Walker. 1r, 413; 2r, 454; ref to com, 454; rep of com with amdts, 496; 3r, 530; r.a., 1925

Bills, Public

Government bills initiated in the Commons

Admiralty C-161. 1r, 386; 2r, 386-7; 3r, 387; r.a., 397

Adult Occupational Training C-278. 1r, 1885; 2r, 1897-1914; 3r, 1914; r.a., 1925

Aeronautics C-153. 1r, 401; 2r, 451-2, 512-13; ref to com, 513; authority to print com proceedings, 525; rep of com without amdt, 525; 3r, 541; r.a., 547

Agricultural and Rural Development C-152. 1r, 401; 2r, 414-16, 449-51; ref to com, 451; authority to print com proceedings, 496; rep of com without amdt; 496; 3r, 350; r.a., 547

Appropriation No. 1, 1966 C-116. 1r, 107; 2r, 107-12, 118-25; 3r, 125; r.a., 131

Appropriation No. 2, 1966 C-140. 1r, 283; 2r, 283-9; 3r, 289-90; r.a., 291

Appropriation No. 3, 1966 C-157. 1r, 340; 2r, 347-52, 371-3; 3r, 394; r.a., 396

Appropriation No. 4, 1966 C-159. 1r, 360; 2r, 370-1; 3r, 394; r.a., 397

Appropriation No. 5, 1966 C-189. 1r, 600; 2r, 626-31; 3r, 636-8; r.a., 648 (Answers to questions, 801-7)

Appropriation No. 6, 1966 C-224. 1r, 913; 2r, 916-21; 3r, 921; r.a., 930. (Answers to questions, 1000-2).

Appropriation No. 7, 1966 C-226. 1r, 923; 2r, 923-9; 3r, 929; r.a., 930

Appropriation No. 8, 1966 C-245. 1r, 1169; 2r, 1169-74; 3r, 1174; r.a., 1175

Appropriation No. 9, 1966 C-248. 1r, 1197; 2r, 1212-23, 3r, 1226; r.a., 1232. (Answers to questions 1352-4).

Appropriation No. 10, 1966 C-254. 1r, 1234; 2r, 1244-9; 3r, 1249; r.a., 1263

Appropriation No. 1, 1967 C-271. 1r, 1524; 2r, 1527-33; 3r, 1533; r.a., 1541

Appropriation No. 2, 1967 C-282. 1r, 1758; 2r, 1758-61, 3r, 1761; r.a., 1768

Appropriation No. 3, 1967 C-283. 1r, 1761; 2r, 1761-8; 3r, 1768; r.a., 1768

Bills, Public – Continued

Government bills initiated in the Commons

Appropriation No. 4, 1967 C-293. 1r, 1885; 2r, 1915-20; 3r, 1920; r.a., 1925

Arts Centre, see National Arts Centre

Assistance Plan C-207. 1r, 897; 2r, 897-909; ref to com, 909; authority to print com proceedings, 931; rep of com without amdt, 931; 3r, 931-5; r.a., 976

Atlantic Development Board C-213. 1r, 799; 2r, 815-20; 3r, 854; r.a., 929

Bank C-222. 1r, 1728; 2r, 1728-45; ref to com, 1745; authority to print proceedings, 1750; rep of com without amdt, 1750; m for 3r, 1750, m for amdt, 1753-6, neg, 1756, 3r, 1756; r.a., 1768

Bank and Quebec Savings Banks C-3. 1r, 300; 2r, 314-15; 3r, 315; r.a., 397

Bank of Canada C-190. 1r, 1646; 2r, 1674-80; ref to com, 1680; authority to print com proceedings, 1701; rep of com without amdt, 1701; 3r, 1719

Bretton Woods Agreements C-144. 1r, 470; 2r, 506-9; ref to com, 534; authority to print com proceedings, 540; rep of com without amdt, 540; 3r, 540; r.a., 547

Canada Assistance Plan, see Assistance Plan

Canada Deposit Insurance Corporation C-261. 1r, 1443; 2r, 1447-60; ref to com, 1460; authority to print com proceedings, 1462; rep of com without amdt, 1462; 3r, 1462; r.a., 1467

Canada Student Loans, see Student Loans

Canada-United Kingdom Income Tax Agreement C-154. 1r, 401-2; 2r, 438-46; ref to com, 446; rep of com without amdt, 497; 3r, 530; r.a., 547

Canadian Forces Reorganization C-243. 1r, 1820; 2r, 1834-45, 1848-62, 1886-97; 3r, 1897; r.a., 1925

Canadian National Railway (Bruce Lake) C-165. 1r, 401; 2r, 416-19; ref to com, 419; authority to print com proceedings, 453; rep of com without amdt, 453-4; 3r, 476-7; r.a. 547

Canadian National Railway (Stall Lake-Watrous) C-210. 1r, 770; 2r, 787-90; ref to com, 790; authority to print com proceedings, 849; rep of com without amdt, 849-50; 3r, 868; r.a., 929

Canadian National Railways Financing and Guarantee C-229. 1r, 1348; 2r, 1409-16; ref to com, 1416; authority to print com proceedings, 1433; rep of com without amdt, 1434; 3r, 1434-6; r.a., 1442

Combines Investigation and Criminal Code C-169. 1r, 452; 2r, 457-62; ref to com, 462; authority to print com proceedings, 563; rep of com with amdt, 563-4, 593-4; 3r, 594; r.a., 758

Company of Young Canadians C-174. 1r, 808; 2r, 854-6; 3r, 868; r.a., 929

Bills, Public – Continued
Government bills initiated in the Commons

Crop Insurance C-208. 1r, 909; 2r, 909-13, 921-3; 3r, 923; r.a., 930

Customs Tariff C-200. 1r, 762; 2r, 762-5, 791-2; 3r, 811; r.a., 929

Dairy Commission C-205. 1r, 769; 2r, 821-30; ref to com, 830; authority to print com proceedings, 853; rep of com without amdt, 853; 3r, 868; r.a., 929

Exchequer Court C-201. 1r, 790; 2r, 814-15; 3r, 854; r.a., 930

Excise Tax C-198. 1r, 769; 2r, 797-9; 3r, 811; r.a., 929

Excise Tax and Old Age Security C-268. 1r, 1554; 2r, 1584-6, 1596-1604; ref to com, 1604; authority to print com proceedings, 1604; rep of com without amdt, 1604-5; 3r, 1605; r.a., 1611

Export Credits Insurance C-253. 1r, 1314; 2r, 1314-17; 3r, 1317; r.a., 1339

Fair Wages and Hours of Labour C-2. 1r, 649; 2r, 685-7, 696-704; ref to com, 704; authority to print com proceedings, 744; rep of com without amdt, 744; 3r, 744; r.a., 758

Farm Credit C-171. 1r, 401; 2r, 515-22; ref to com, 522; rep of com without amdt, 525; 3r, 541; r.a., 547

Federal-Provincial Fiscal Arrangements C-277. 1r, 1604; 2r, 1620-31, 1633-43; ref to com, 1643; authority to print com proceedings, 1660; rep of com without amdt, 1660; 3r, 1670; r.a., 1768

Film Development Corporation C-204. 1r, 1408; 2r, 1424-32; ref to com, 1432; authority to print com proceedings, 1543; rep of com without amdt, 1544; 3r, 1556-9; r.a., 1611

Financial Administration C-182. 1r, 1480; 2r, 1491-3, 1498-9, 1510-15; 3r, 1526; r.a., 1541

Fisheries Development C-145. 1r, 401; 2r, 463-70, 477-82; ref to com, 483; authority to print com proceedings, 524-5; rep of com, 525; 3r, 541; r.a., 547

Government Organization 1966 C-178. 1r, 649; 2r, 677-85, 689-96; ref to com, 696; authority to print com proceedings, 714; rep of com without amdt, 715; 3r, 727-9; r.a., 758

Governor General's Retiring Annuity bill C-265. 1r, 1495; 2r, 1495-7, 1548-9; 3r, 1559; r.a., 1611

Health Resources Fund C-199. 1r, 778; 2r, 831-40; ref to com, 840; rep of com without amdt, 853; 3r, 868; r.a., 929

Immigration Appeal Board C-220. 1r, 1542; 2r, 1567-70, 1580-4; ref to com, 1584; authority to print com proceedings, 1660; rep of com without amdt, 1660; 3r, 1670-1; r.a., 1768

Bills, Public – Continued

Government bills initiated in the Commons

Income Tax C-216. 1r, 943; 2r, 943-54; ref to com, 954; authority to print com proceedings, 956; rep of com without amdt, 956; m for 3r, 958, m in amdt, 956-61, defeated, 961; 3r, 961; r.a., 976

Income Tax C-259. 1r, 1647; 2r, 1647-60; ref to com, 1660; authority to print com proceedings, 1701; rep of com without amdt, 1701; 3r, 1719-20; r.a., 1768

Income Tax C-280. 1r, 1885; 2r, 1914-15; 3r, 1915; r.a., 1925

Industrial Research and Development Incentives C-252. 1r, 1524; 2r, 1533-7, 1549-51, 1559-63; ref to com, 1563; rep of com without amdt, 1591; 3r, 1591; r.a., 1611

Judges C-160. 1r, 387; 2r, 387-93; 3r, 393; r.a., 397

Judges C-262. 1r, 1348; 2r, 1367-8; 3r, 1368; r.a., 1442

Judges C-267. 1r, 1516; 2r, 1516-24; 3r, 1526; r.a., 1541

Livestock Feed Assistance C-218. 1r, 1076; 2r, 1083-90, 1096-9, 1104-7, 1116-19, 1129-33, 1137-8, 1158-60; ref to com, 1160; authority to print com proceedings, 1168-9; rep of com without amdt, 1169; 3r, 1169; r.a., 1175

Maintenance of Railway Operation C-230. 1r, 1013; 2r, 1013-37; 3r, 1037; r.a., 1037

Medical Care C-227. 1r, 1234; 2r, 1234-8, 1249-60, 1264-73; ref to com, 1273-4; authority to print com proceedings, 1282; rep of com without amdt, 1282; 3r, 1282-3; r.a., 1339

National Arts Centre C-194. 1r, 954; 2r, 961-8; 3r, 969; r.a., 976

National Defence, see Canadian Forces Reorganization

National Housing C-241. 1r, 1177; 2r, 1177-87; 3r, 1187; r.a., 1194

National Research Council C-150. 1r, 453; 2r, 483-5; ref to com, 485; authority to print com proceedings, 540-1; rep of com with amdts, 591, 599, 611-12; 3r, 612; r.a., 758

National Transportation C-231. 1r, 1341; 2r, 1341-7, 1377-82, 1384-1405; ref to com, 1405; authority to print com proceedings, 1417; rep of com without amdt, 1420; 3r, 1420-3; r.a., 1442

Newfoundland Additional Financial Assistance C-185. 1r, 551; 2r, 551-61, 581-6; ref to com, 586; authority to print com proceedings, 614; rep of com without amdt, 614; 3r, 634-6; r.a., 648

Northwest Territories C-146. 1r, 561; 2r, 588-92, 607-10, 645-8; 3r, 648; r.a., 648

Old Age Security bill C-251. 1r, 1317; 2r, 1317-38; 3r, 1338; r.a., 1339

Pension Benefits Standards C-221. 1r, 1610-11; 2r, 1643-6, 1671-4; 3r, 1702; r.a., 1768

Bills, Public – Continued
Government bills initiated in the Commons

Public Service Employment C-181. 1r, 1477; 2r, 1477-80, 1500-9; 3r, 1509; r.a., 1509

Public Service Staff Relations. 1r, 1473; 2r, 1473-7, 1481-91; 3r, 1498; r.a., 1509

Public Utilities Income Tax Transfer C-211. 1r, 790; 2r, 840-3; 3r, 854; r.a., 930

Quebec Savings Banks C-223. 1r, 1745; 2r, 1745-7; ref to com, 1745; authority to print proceedings, 1750; rep of com without amdt, 1750; 3r, 1750; r.a., 1768

Redistribution C-126. 1r, 158; 2r, 168-70; 3r, 170; r.a., 178

Research Council, see National Research Council

Rural Economic Development Fund C-151. 1r, 548-9; 2r, 549-51, 662-6, 671-7; ref to com, 677; authority to print com proceedings, 714; rep of com with amdt, 714; 3r, 726-7; r.a., 929

Rural Economic Development Fund C-274. 1r, 1524; 2r, 1551-3, 1564-7; 3r, 1578-80, 1591-6; r.a., 1611

St. Lawrence Ports Working Conditions C-215. 1r, 969; 2r, 969-76; 3r, 976; r.a., 977

Science Council of Canada C-149. 1r, 401; 2r, 419-26, 446-8; ref to com, 448; authority to print com proceedings, 541; rep of com without amdt, 541; 3r, 541; r.a., 547

Small Businesses Loans C-270. 1r, 1524; 2r, 1537-40, 1551; 3r, 1559; r.a., 1611

Statute Law (Superannuation) Amendment 1966 C-193. 1r, 808; 2r, 843-7, 868-70; m for 3r, 879, m in amdt, 879-80, agreed to, 881; 3r, 881; concurrence by Commons in Senate amdt, 929; r.a., 930

Statutory Salaries Revision C-266. 1r, 1524; 2r, 1544-8, 1563-4; ref to com, 1564; rep of com without amdt, 1591; 3r, 1591; r.a., 1611

Student Loans C-197. 1r, 765; 2r, 765-9, 792-6; 3r, 811; r.a., 929

Training Allowance C-186. 1r, 707; 2r, 718-23; ref to com, 723; authority to print com proceedings, 725-6; rep of com without amdt, 726; 3r, 747; r.a., 758

Yukon C-147. 1r, 649; 2r, 704-6, 710-12; 3r, 715; r.a., 758

Government bills initiated in the Senate

Bank and Quebec Savings Banks S-53. 1r, 1188; 2r, 1188; 3r, 1189; r.a., 1209

Bankruptcy S-17. 1r, 159; 2r, 212-18, 225-7, 247-52, 263-5, 274-9; ref to com, 279; authority to print com proceedings, 314; rep of com with amdts, 577-80 (see appendix 596-8); 3r, 580; Commons amdts ref to com, 579-61 (see appendix 777); authority to print com proceedings, 809; rep of com, Commons amdts concurred in, 809-10; r.a., 929

Bills, Public – Continued
Government bills initiated in the Senate

Bills of Exchange S-14. 1r, 132; 2r, 209-10, 223; ref to com, 223; authority to print com proceedings, 268; rep of com with amdts, 268-9; 3r, 296; Commons amdt, 400; r.a., 547

Canada Corporations, see Corporations

Canada Labour
See Labour (Safety) Code,
Labour (Standards) Code.

Canada Lands Surveys, see Lands Surveys

Canadian Citizenship, see Citizenship

Canadian Corporation for the 1967 World Exhibition, see World Exhibition

Citizenship S-59. 1r, 1715; 2r, 1773-8, 1788-91; ref to com, 1791; authority to print com proceedings, 1808; rep of com with amdt, 1808-11; 3r, 1821

Corporations S-51. 1r, 1077; 2r, 1099-1100, 1107-9; ref to com, 1109; authority to print com proceedings, 1143; rep of com without amdt, 1143; 3r, 1143; r.a., 1442

Criminal Code (Hate propaganda) S-49. 1r, 1077; 2r, 1109-14, 1119-21, 1126-9, 1135-6, 1198-1205, 1210-12, 1227-31, 1366-7, 1702-9; ref to com, 1709-10

Divorce (Extension of Grounds) S-19. Hon. Mr. Roebuck. 1r, 185-6; 2r, 233-42, 243-7, 258-63, 273-4, 377-80, 394-5, 487-93; amdt that bill be ref to Special Joint Committee on Divorce, 497-506; agreed to 506

Electoral Boundaries Readjustment S-22. Hon. Mr. Pouliot. 1r, 305; 2r, 337-8, 352-7, 408-9; bill withdrawn, 409

Export and Import Permits S-23. 1r, 313; 2r, 344-7; ref to com, 347; authority to print com proceedings, 363; m for 3r, 363-7; 3r, 393-4; r.a., 547

Finance Charges (Disclosure) S-3. Hon. Mr. Croll. 1r, 28-29; m for 2r, 359; m in amdt to ref bill to joint committee, agreed to, 359

Food and Drugs S-60. 1r, 1772; 2r, 1792-1802, 1812-19, 1821-30; ref to com, 1830; authority to print com proceedings, 1833; rep of com with amdts, 1848

Income Tax Agreements S-56. 1r, 1350; 2r, 1369-77, 1418-19; 3r, 1424; r.a., 1541

Interpretation S-9. 1r, 57; 2r, 109-12, 204-6; ref to com, 206; authority to print com proceedings, 211; rep of com with amdts, 852; 3r, 852

Labour (Safety) Code S-35. 1r, 561-2; 2r, 604-7, 640-5, 658-61; ref to com, 661; auth- to print com proceedings, 725; rep of com with amdts, 850-2; 3r, 852; r.a., 1340

Bills, Public – Concluded
Government bills initiated in the Senate

Labour (Standards) Code S-54. 1r, 1189; 2r, 1189-94; ref to com, 1194; authority to print com proceedings, 1195; rep of com without amdt, 1195; 3r, 1195; r.a., 1263

Lands Surveys S-48. 1r, 980-7; 2r, 996-8; ref to com, 999; authority to print proceedings, 1009; rep of com without amdt, 1009; 3r, 1009; r.a., 1263

Manitoba-Northwest Territories Boundary S-47. 1r, 980; 2r, 995; ref to com, 995; authority to print com proceedings, 1008; rep of com without amdt, 1009; 3r, 1009; r.a., 1263

Manitoba-Saskatchewan Boundary S-45. 1r, 979; 2r, 988-94; ref to com, 994; authority to print com proceedings, 1007; rep of com without amdt, 1007; 3r, 1007; r.a., 1339

Milltown Bridge S-15. 1r, 132-3; 2r, 177-8; ref to com, 178; authority to print com proceedings, 224; rep of com without amdt, 224; 3r, 247; r.a., 397

National Museums S-57. 1r, 1577; 2r, 1617-20, 1680-3; ref to com, 1683; authority to print com proceedings, 1700; rep of com without amdt, 1700; 3r, 1700-1

Ottawa Terminal Railway S-2. 1r, 22; 2r, 84-87; ref to com, 87; authority to print com proceedings-rep of com without amdt, 186; 3r, 201

Postal Services Interruption Relief S-55. 1r, 1264; 2r, 1293-8; ref to com, 1298; authority to print com proceedings, 1300; rep of com without amdt, 1300; 3r, 1300; Commons amdt, 1516, 1527; r.a., 1541

Railways (pro forma) S-1. 1r, 6

Richelieu Bridge Company S-44. 1r, 979; 2r, 1100-2; ref to com, 1102; authority to print com proceedings, 1243

Saskatchewan-Northwest Territories Boundary S-46. 1r, 980; 2r, 994; ref to com, 994; authority to print proceedings, 1007; rep of com without amdt, 1008; 3r, 1008; r.a., 1263

Teleferry S-58. 1r, 1668; 2r, 1710-13; 3r, 1720

Visiting Forces S-50. 1r, 1077; 2r, 1122-3, 1161-3; ref to com, 1163; authority to print com proceedings, 1169; rep of com with amdts, 1224; 3r, 1224

World Exhibition, Canadian Corporation, S-42. 1r, 864; 2r, 885-8; ref to com, 888; authority to print com proceedings, 889; rep of com without amdt, 889; 3r, 890-2; r.a., 976

Bishop, Hon. Charles L.
Deceased September 28, 1966
Tributes, 1053-5

Blois, Hon. Fred M.
Agricultural and Rural Development bill C-152, 448-50
Federal-provincial agreement, 449
Nova Scotia, 449-50
Dyking, drainage and other projects, 449-50
Electric power research, 449
Market-garden farm unit, 449-50
Tourist development, 450
Comeau, Hon. Joseph Willie, the late, 14
Financial Administration bill C-182, 1498-9
Responsibilities of Treasury Board, 1498-9
Livestock Feed Assistance bill C-218, 1104-7
Cattle breeding, decrease in, 1105
Cultivation in Maritimes for grain production, 1105-6
Transportation costs, 1105
Youth interest in farming through 4-H clubs, 1106

Bouffard, Hon. Paul H.
Deceased February 20, 1966
Tributes, 147-58
Address in reply to Speech from the Throne, 48-55
Aging, Special Committee, appointment and members, 23
Bicultural co-operation, 55
Buchanan, Hon. John A., retired, 19
Comeau, Hon. Joseph Willie, the late, 12
Connolly, Hon. John J., recovery from illness, 138-9
Crerar, Hon. T.A., 60th wedding anniversary, 100
Deputy Leader of the Government in the Senate, appointment as, 8-11
Divorce Committee, appointment, 23-24
Economic prosperity, 51-52
Gross national product, 51
Manpower and national resources, effective use of, 52
Unemployment decrease, 51
Emergency sittings, authority to convene Senate during adjournment, 24
Estimates, motion to ref to Finance Com, 39-40
Evangelistic Tabernacle Incorporated bill S-7, 134
Grant, Hon. Thomas V., retired, 19
Internal Economy Committee appointment, 23
Lambert, Hon. Norman P., the late, 11
Library of Parliament, 37-38, 132
Medicare, 54
Pension Plan, 53-54
Posthumous honour of Privy Councillor, suggestion by Hon. Mr. Pouliot, 473
Printing of Parliament, 38, 132
Property qualification of Senators, 132
Restaurant of Parliament, 38
Retirement of Senators, 50-51
Robertson, Hon. Wishart McL., retired, 18
Senate committees, work of, 49-50
Standing Committees, 37
Tremblay, Hon. Leonard D.S., retired, 18-19
Universities, scholarships and bursaries, 52-53
Wood, Hon. Thomas H., the late, 11-12

Boundaries, provincial
Lands Surveys bill S-48, 980-7, 996-9, 1009
Manitoba-Northwest Territories Boundary bill S-47. 980, 995, 1008-9
Manitoba-Saskatchewan Boundary bill S-45, 979, 988-94, 1007
Saskatchewan-Northwest Territories Boundary bill S-46, 980, 994, 1007-8

Bourget, Hon. Maurice., P.C.
Bouffard, Hon. Paul H., the late, 157
Comtois, Hon. Paul, the late, 158
National and Royal Anthems, 1778
Privy Council appointment, 162
Public Service Joint Committee, 744, 770-1
Report, 1923-4
Public Service Staff Relations bill C-170, 1473-7
Collective bargaining rights, 1474-5
Employee grievances, 1475-6
Grievance procedures, 1476
Public Service Staff Relations Board, 1474
Retroactivity to pay review date, 1476
Safety and security of the public, 1475
Quebec North Shore and Labrador Railway Company bill S-31, 453, 586-8
Iron Ore Co. developments in northern Quebec, 587-8
U.S. investments, 587
Time extension to complete railway, 586-7
Speaker, acting, 432, 453, 496, 523, 540, 1038
Statute Law (Superannuation) Amendment bill C-193, 843-7, 879, 880
Appeals to Treasury Board, 847
Armed forces pensioner re-employed in Public Service, 846
Death benefit, 846
Diplomatic services, 845-6
Employment after retirement, 847
Intercolonial and PEI Railways employees, 845-6
Portability of benefits, 846
Public Service, 844
RCMP and armed forces, 845
Superannuation or pension acts amended under bill C-193, 844

Bourque, Hon. Romuald
Address in reply to Speech from the Throne, 666-71
Canada's potential, suggested Senate study of, 670-1
Minority groups, unrest and dissension created by, 667-9
Quebec Savings Banks bill C-223, 1745-7
Cash reserve, 1746
Directors, 1746
Interest and charges, 1746
Lending and investment powers, 1746-7
Queen Elizabeth II, tribute in Montreal newspaper, 666-7

Bowden, Lord, guest and speaker in Senate Chamber, 1716-18

Bradley, Hon. F. Gordon, P.C.
Deceased March 31, 1966
Tributes, 360-3

Bretton Woods Agreements
Canadian borrowings, 532
Group of Ten, 532
International Bank for Reconstruction and Development, 506-9, 531
International Monetary Fund, 506-9, 531
Quotas and contributions, 533-4
Report of Finance Minister, amdt to effect submission on calendar year basis, 506
Reserve asset, 532-4
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Brooks, A.J., 530-4
Leonard, T. D'Arcy, 506-9

Bretton Woods Agreements bill C-144. 1r, 470; 2r, 506-9, 530-4; ref to com, 534; authority to print com proceedings, 540; rep of com without amdt, 540; 3r, 540; r.a., 547

British Columbia
Fishermen and packers, agreement re prices, 458-62, 563-4, 593-4
Fishing monopoly, 469
Indian fishermen, brief re encroachment by foreign fishermen, 481

British North America Act, 126-9
Boundaries of provinces, provisions re, 995
Provisions re money bills, 980-7
Bourinot's Parliamentary Procedure, excerpt from, 982
House of Commons amdt to Senate bill M-9 re National Parks (1947), and other precedents, 982-3
House of Lords procedures, 982-3
See Constitution of Canada

Broadcasting, 253-5, 287-8
See Canadian Broadcasting Corporation

Brooks, Hon. A.J., P.C., Leader of the Opposition in the Senate
Address in reply to Speech from the Throne, 40-48
Appropriation bill No. 1 C-116, 118-21
Appropriation bill No. 5 C-189, 628-30, 631
Appropriation bill No. 6 C-224, 919, 920
Appropriation bill No. 9 C-248, 1214-15
Bank of Western Canada bill C-111, 884
Bishop, Hon. Charles L., the late, 1054
Bouffard, Hon. Paul H., appt. as deputy leader, 8-9
Bouffard, Hon. Paul H., the late, 149
Bowden, Lord, guest in Senate Chamber, 1718
Bradley, Hon. F. Gordon, the late, 361

Brooks, Hon. A.J., P.C., – Continued
Bretton Woods Agreements bill C-144, 530-4
Canadian borrowings, 531
Group of Ten, 532
International Bank, 531
International Monetary Fund, 531
Quotas and contributions, 533-4
Reserve asset, 532-3
Canadian Forces Reorganization bill C-243, 1851, 1886-92
Defence of Canada, 1888-9, 1890, 1892
Peacekeeping commitments, 1888-9
Uniforms, 1890-1
Canadian National Railway bill C-165 (Bruce Lake), 418-19
Elimination of branch lines, 418
Employment, 418-19
Citizenship bill S-59, 1809
Comeau, Hon. Joseph Willie, the late, 12
Comtois, Hon. Paul, the late, 149-50
Connolly, Hon. John J., return after illness, 304-5
Crerar, Hon. T.A., retired, 572-3
Crerar, Hon. T.A., sixtieth wedding anniversary, 100
Dairy Commission bill C-205, 826-8, 829, 830
Halifax Chronicle, article on briefs presented by United Milk Producers Assoc., 827-8
Income of dairy farmers, 828
Prices, 827
Davies, Hon. W. Rupert, the late, 1613-14
Deschatelets, Hon. Jean-Paul, Deputy Leader of the Government in the Senate, 1052
Deutsch report, 42-43, 44
Divorce, Joint Committee, 316
Dutch Elm disease, 295
Estimates, 118-21, 331-2, 334, 370, 628-30, 771-2, 919, 920, 1215, 1245-7, 1354
Administrative and financial errors of Government, 119
Auditor General's report, 119
Capital outflow of Canadian funds, 120
Centennial Commission, 1215, 1354
Colombo Plan and wheat sales to India, 771
Dollar items, 771-2
External affairs, 629
External aid, India and Pakistan, 1245-7
Feed assistance to provinces, 771
Fisheries, lamprey control and research, inquiry, 629, 725, 801-2
Freight assistance, 920, 1000
Glassco Commission recommendations, implementation of, 119
Government expenditures, 1214
Immigrants, assistance to, 920, 1000
Inflationary tendencies, 120-1
National Defence, 1214-15
Accommodation overseas, 1215
Mutual aid, 1214-15
Oromocto, 1214
National Employment Service, 920, 1000
National Gallery, 1215, 1352-4
Northern affairs and national resources, 629-30
Northumberland Strait construction, 771-2

Brooks, Hon. A.J., P.C., – Continued
Estimates – Concluded
Undertaking by Leader of Government that passage of bill will not preclude further discussion, 919, 920
University grants, 1215
U.S. investment guidelines, effect on Canadian economy, 119-20
Veterans affairs, 920-1, 1000-1, 1215
Export and Import Permits bill S-23, 346-7
Rhodesia, restrictions on trade with, 345-6
Export Credits Insurance bill C-253, 1315-16
Finance Committee study of Estimates, 771-2
Foreign aid, Canada's contribution, 47
Freight assistance payments, inquiry, 920, 1000
Governor General's Retiring Annuity bill C-265, 1496, 1548-9
Heath Mines, New Brunswick, 419
Immigrants, assistance to, inquiry, 920, 1000
Immigration Appeal Board bill C-220, 1584, 1670
India and Pakistan, drought and hunger conditions, 1245-6
Oxfam of Canada, 1246
Interpretation bill S-9, 110-12
Commission for revision of Statutes, 111
Definitions of land and broadcasting, 111
Standard time, 111-12
Interprovincial Pipe Line Company bill S-10, 83, 84
Eligibility of employees to purchase shares, 83
Jodoin, Hon. Mariana B., retired, 654
Lambert, Hon. Norman P., the late, 12
Lamprey control, inquiry, 629, 801-2
Lands Surveys bill S-48, 984-5
Manitoba-Saskatchewan Boundary bill S-45, 991
Manpower and mobility, inquiry, 920, 1000
McKeen, Hon. Stanley S., the late, 1239-40
McLean, Hon. A. Neil, the late, 1613-14
Milltown Bridge bill S-15, 177
Mining employment in Atlantic provinces, 418-19
Ministers' participation in Senate debates, 476
National Museums bill S-57, 1680-3
Financing of, 1683
Museums with educational programs and extension services, 1581
Objectives, 1682
Personnel, 1682
National Transportation bill C-231, 1360-6
Canadian Transport Commission, 1362-3
Corridor road, 1364
Freight rates, 1364
MacPherson Commission recommendations, 1364
Maritime problems, 1361-5
Pipeline competition, 1362
Press comment, 1364-5
Water transportation, 1363
NATO Parliamentarians' meeting at Paris, France, 1290, 1470-2
Canadian delegates, briefing of, 1471-2
Jurisdiction of NATO, 1471
Military Committee, 1290

Brooks, Hon. A.J., P.C., – Concluded
Old Age Security bill C-251, 1327-8, 1336-7
War Veterans Allowance, 1328
O'Leary, Hon. M. Grattan, retirement from presidency of Ottawa Journal, 341-2
Organization of American States, 47
Peacekeeping activities, 46
Postal Services Interruption Relief bill S-55, 1294-5
Press comments, 1294-5
Specific delays, 1295
Strikes and consequences of, 1294-5
Poverty, alleviation by training and regional development, 43-44
Power, C.G., 49th anniversary in Parliament, 1292
Redistribution bill C-126, 168-9
Retirement of Senators, 41-42
Rules of the Senate re money bills, 984-5
Taylor, Hon. William H., retired, 654
Teleferry bill S-58, 1711-12
Chattels, transporting of, 1712
Trade deficit, 630
United Baptist Woman's Missionary Union of the Maritime Provinces bill S-33, 471, 509
Universities, scholarships and bursaries, 44-45
Vanier, General Georges Philias, the late, 1573-4
Veniot, Hon. Clarence J., retired, 654
Veterans hospitals, administration of, 920-1, 1000-1
Water resources, 45-46
Wood, Hon. Thomas H., the late, 12-13
Woodrow, Hon. Allan L., the late, 361
World Exhibition, 1529-32
Assets, disposal of on termination of Exhibition, 1531
Deficit, 1530-1
Highway safety and bilingual traffic signs, 1531-2
Loan from Government, 1527-9
World Exhibition, Canadian Corporation, bill S-42, 887-8

Buchanan, Hon. John A.
Retired October 2, 1965
Tribute, 19

Budget Speech, accommodation for Senators in Commons gallery, 340, 1292

Buildings and Grounds Committee
Members, 26, 269

Burchill, Hon. G. Percival
Adult Occupational Training bill C-278, 1911
Aging, report of Senate Special Committee, 140-2
Nursing homes, 141-2
New Brunswick, 141-2
Appropriation bill No. 5, C-189, 630

Burchill, Hon. G. Percival – Concluded
Assistance Plan C-207, 903-4
Blind persons, 903-4
Widow's case cited, 903-4
Atlantic Provinces Power Development Act, inquiry, 630, 725, 802-7
Bankruptcy bill S-17, 276-7, 761
Business failure in N.B., 276-7
Protection of creditors, 276-7, 761
Canada Labour (Safety) Code bill S-35, 606-7
Canadian National Railway bill C-165 (Bruce Lake), 419
Canadian National Railways Financing and Guarantee bill C-229, 1415-16
Maritime transportation problems, 1416
Dairy Commission bill C-205, 822
Davies, Hon. W. Rupert, the late, 1616-17
Divorce (Extension of Grounds) bill S-19, 394-5
Excise Tax bill C-198, 799
Building materials, 799
Government Organization bill C-178, 684
Health Resources Fund bill C-199, 839
Medical profession, lack in New Brunswick, 839
Medicare, 839
Heath Mines, New Brunswick, 419
Judges bill C-267, 1522-3
Salary for extra-judicial services, 1523
Lambert, Hon. Norman P., the late, 16
Livestock Feed Assistance bill C-218, 1137-8
Administration of assistance, difficulties of, 1137-8
Cattle breeding, 1137, 1138
McLean, Hon. A. Neil, the late, 1616
National Transportation bill C-231, 1401-2
Corridor road, 1402
MacPherson, M.A., chairman of Royal Commission on Transportation, 1401
Maritime problems, 1401
Marketing, 1402
Newfoundland Additional Financial Assistance bill C-185, 586
Taylor, Hon. William H., retired, 656
University finances, 1436-9
University of New Brunswick, 1436-7
Enrolment explosion, 1438
Exchange of students from other provinces, 1439
Financial crisis, 1437-8
Veniot, Hon. Clarence J., retired, 656

Caisses Populaires du Quebec, 1417-18

Cameron, Hon. Donald
Adult Occupational Training bill C-278, 1897-1901, 1911-14
Allowances, 1900-1
Buildings and equipment, provincial loans for, 1912
Counselling officers, 1913
Drop-outs, 1898
Federal-provincial agreements, 1899, 1912-13
Transitional agreements, 1901

Cameron, Hon. Donald – Continued
Adult Occupational Training – Concluded
Unemployment insurance benefits, 1901
Weekly earnings in provinces, 1899
Appropriation bill No. 6 C-224, 921
Bradley, Hon. F. Gordon, the late, 362
Canadian Board of Missions of the Church of God (General Offices: Anderson, Indiana) bill S-18, 166, 190-1
Canadian Pacific Railway (Alberta) S-34, 537
Farm land utilized by railway, 537
Centennial Performing Arts, allocation of grants, inquiry, 1066-7, 1069-71
Davey, Hon. Keith, appointment as Commissioner of Canadian Football League, 774-5
Estimates, 921
Library of Parliament, 921
Technical and vocational training, 921, 1001-2
Film Development Corporation bill C-204, 1430-2
Awards, 1431
Distribution of films, 1431
Film Commissioner as member of board, 1430-1
Films and film makers of Canada, 1430
Financial arrangements, 1432
Outside control, danger of, 1432
Immigration, landed immigrant status, 916
Labour conditions, Air Canada machinists strike and Postal workers threatened strike, inquiry, 1124-5
Labour conditions, strikes affecting the public welfare, 1147-52
Air machinists strike, 1149
Areas of public service where strikes should be prohibited, 1151
Disruption in national life, 1147
Fair Employment Practices Act, coverage of organized labour suggested, 1151
Montpetit Report, 1124, 1148, 1150-1
National referee or council to deal with labour problems, 1151
Overtime demands of construction workers, 1147-8
Personnel administration deficiencies, 1150
Senate responsibility, 1151-2
National Arts Centre bill C-194, 963-4
Director, responsibilities of, 964
Programming, 964
Olympic Games, misrepresentations by certain groups re effect on water resources, 935
Public Service Staff Relations bill C-170, 1485-7
Inefficiency in government administration, 1486
Responsibility in strike action, 1486
Strikes obstructing government business, 1486-7
Student Loans bill C-197, 766-9
Bursaries and scholarships, 766
Interest-free status, 769
Loan statistics for June and July 1965, 767, 768
Provincial allocations, 769
University students in other countries, statistics, 766
Vocational training assistance, 766
Technical and vocational training, 766, 921
Schools and research, inquiry, 921, 1001-2
Water resources, conservation of, 935-41
Alberta Society of Professional Engineers, letter to Prime Minister from president of, 937-9

Cameron, Hon. Donald – Concluded
Water resources – Concluded
Grande Coulee dam, 936
Lethbridge Northern Irrigation District, 936
McNaughton, General A.G.L., contribution in conservation of water resources, 937
National water policy, arguments in favour of, 939-40
North American Water and Power Alliance (NAWAPA), conference on, 937
PFRA, 936-7
Projects in western Canada, 936-7
Saskatchewan conference on development of water resources, summary of, 940-1
South Saskatchewan River dam, 936
Water resources board, federal-provincial, suggestion for, 935-6
Woodrow, Hon. Allan L., the late, 362

Canada Assistance Plan, see Assistance Plan

Canada Corporations, see Corporations

Canada Deposit Insurance Corporation
Board of directors, 1447
Caisses populaires, 1448, 1453
Classification of institutions to be insured, 1459
Conflict with provincial act, 1457-8
Creditor remedies available, 1453-4
Definitions, 1448-9
Deposits, 1449, 1457, 1459-60
Effective date of insurance, 1450, 1455-6
Failure of financial institutions, 1455
Failure of member institution, 1456, 1460
Financial Post article by president of Guaranty Trust Co., 1458-9
Inspections, 1451, 1454
Objects, powers and duties, 1447, 1449
Premiums, 1450-1, 1459
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Beaubien, L.P., 1459
Connolly, John J., 1447-53, 1455-6, 1459-60
Grosart, Allister, 1353-5, 1456-9

Canada Deposit Insurance Corporation bill C-261. 1r, 1443; 2r, 1447-60; ref to com, 1460; authority to print com proceedings, 1462; rep of com without amdt, 1462; 3r, 1462; r.a., 1467

Canada Health and Accident Assurance Corporation bill S-13. Hon. Mr. Cook. 1r, 100; 2r, 142-3; ref to com, 143; rep of com without amdt, 167; 3r, 187; r.a., 1263

Canada Labour
See Labour (Safety) Code,
Labour (Standards) Code.

Canada Lands Surveys, see Lands Surveys

Canada student loans, see Student loans

Canada-United Kingdom Income Tax Agreement
Canadian Tax Journal review of agreement, 443-4
Copyright royalties, 442
Exchange of information, 439-40
Pensions and annuities, 441-2, 444-5
Profits from industrial or commercial operation, 440
Profits from ships or aircraft, 441
Protest against form of bill, Hon. Mr. Roebuck, 445, 446
Residence requirements, 443
Supplementary agreement with Sweden, 438
Withholding tax, 438-9, 440, 444
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Farris, J.W. de B., 445-6
Hayden, Salter A., 438-43, 446
Roebuck, Arthur W., 445, 446
Thorvaldson, Gunnar S., 443-5

Canada-United Kingdom Income Tax Agreement bill C-154. 1r, 401-2; 2r, 438-46; ref to com, 446; rep of com without amdt, 497; 3r, 530; r.a., 547

Canada-United States Automotive Products Agreement, see Automotive Products

Canada-United States Interparliamentary Group, see Interparliamentary Group

Canadian Board of Missions of the Church of God S-18. (General Offices: Anderson, Indiana). Hon. Mr. Cameron. 1r, 166; 2r, 190-1; ref to com, 191; rep of com with amdts, 580-1; 3r, 607; r.a., 930

Canadian Broadcasting Corporation
Abuse of authority, 374-5
Censorship of media of communication, 1203-5
Content of programs approved, 1222-3
Control of expenditures and programming, 1216, 1218-23, 1665, 1685-6
Coverage unfavourable to prominent persons, 255
Declaration of Women, brief presented to government officials, 254-5, 1221-3
Expenditures, 374-5, 376, 569-70
Overseas special interview, 375
Highway safety education, "It could happen to you", Hon. Edgar E. Fournier, 64
Loans and advances to, 287-8
Penfield, Dr. Wilder, criticism of CBC, 255
Tape-recording in House of Commons by student in gallery, 1204
TV program "Sunday", 1202-5, 1216-23, 1665, 1685
Use of TV and radio facilities criticized, 253-5, 1202-5, 1217-23

Canadian Citizenship, see Citizenship

Canadian Corporation for the 1967 World Exhibition, see World Exhibition

Canadian Dairy Commission, see Dairy Commission bill, Dairy industry

Canadian Film Development Corporation, see Film Development Corporation

Canadian Football League, Hon. Keith Davey appointed Commissioner, 774-5

Canadian Forces Reorganization
Anti-ballistic missiles, 1874
Civil control, 1872
Competition between armed forces, 1857
Defence of Canada, 1870-1, 1888-9, 1890, 1892
Expenditures for defence, 1837, 1838, 1849, 1875, 1879, 1895-6
Morale, 1880, 1894
Officer designations, 1835, 1882, 1894
Pay and allowances, 1836
Peacekeeping commitments, 1841-2, 1849, 1855, 1858-9, 1878-9, 1888-9, 1894
Press comments, briefs, etc., 1843-4, 1854, 1872-3, 1875, 1881, 1883
Recruitment and training, 1882
Seconding of forces to other countries, 1836, 1884-5
Uniforms and insignia, 1844, 1894
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Beaubien, L.P., 1871-2
Belisle, Rheal, 1853-7
Brooks, A.J., 1851, 1886-92
Connolly, John J., 1834-40, 1893-7
Croll, David A., 1848-53
Farris, J.W. deB., 1857
Hollett, Malcolm, 1884-5
O'Leary, M. Grattan, 1872-4
Pearson, Arthur M., 1869-71
Phillips, Orville H., 1877-84
Pouliot, Jean-François, 1892-3
Prowse, J. Harper, 1857-62
Welch, Frank C., 1874-6
White, George S., 1840-5

Canadian Forces Reorganization bill C-243. 1r, 1820; 2r, 1834-45, 1848-62, 1886-97; 3r, 1897; r.a., 1925

Canadian National Railway (Bruce Lake)
Bruce Lake Iron Mine Co., sponsoring of by Steel Co. of Canada, 416
Costs of line, 416
Elimination of branch lines, 418
Employment, 418-19
Iron pellets development, guaranteed tonnage and penalty clause, 416-18
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Benidickson, W.M., 416-17
Brooks, A.J., 418-19
Burchill, G. Percival, 419
Crerar, T.A., 417-18

Canadian National Railway (Bruce Lake) bill C-165. 1r, 401; 2r, 416-19; ref to com, 419; authority to print com proceedings, 453; rep of com without amdt, 453-4; 3r, 476-7; r.a. 547

Canadian National Railway (Stall Lake-Watrous)
Alwinsal Potash of Canada Ltd., 788-9
Blairmore Sands, 788
Employment, 789
Potash production and revenue, 788-9
Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting Co., 788
Employment, 788
Ore reserves, 788
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Hnatyshyn, John, 789-90
McDonald, A. Hamilton, 787-9

Canadian National Railway (Stall Lake-Watrous) bill C-210. 1r, 770; 2r, 787-90; ref to com, 790; authority to print com proceedings, 849; rep of com without amdt, 849-50; 3r, 868; r.a., 929

Canadian National Railways financing
Air Canada, interim financing requirements, 1410
Auditors, 1410, 1411
Capital expenditures, 1409, 1412
Centennial Gazette, article on history of Canadian railways, 1414
Deficit, 1410-11, 1414
Gordon, Donald, accomplishments as president of railway, 1413, 1415
Maritime transportation problems, 1416
Moratorium on interest on government loan, 1410
Preferred stock purchases by Finance Minister, 1409-10
Temporary loans to CNR and to Air Canada, 1410
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Aseltine, Walter M., 1411-13
Benidickson, W.M., 1409-11
Burchill, G. Percival, 1415-16
Connolly, John J., 1414-15

Canadian National Railways Financing and Guarantee bill C-229. 1r, 1348; 2r, 1409-16; ref to com, 1416; authority to print com proceedings, 1433; rep of com without amdt, 1434; 3r, 1434-6; r.a., 1442

Canadian Pacific Railway (Alberta) bill S-34. Hon. Mr. Prowse. 1r, 471; 2r, 535-7; ref to com, 537; authority to print com proceedings, 632-3; rep of com without amdt, 633; 3r, 658; r.a., 929

Canadian Pacific Railway (Saskatchewan) bill S-32. Hon. Mr. McDonald. 1r, 471; 2r, 534-5; ref to com, 535; authority to print com proceedings, 632; rep of com without amdt, 632; 3r, 658; r.a., 929

Canadian Trade Relations Committee
Members, 26, 269

Canadian University Service Overseas, 856, 857, 859
Leddy, Dr. Francis, 859
Volunteers, 856, 862-3

Canadian vessel construction assistance
Depreciation, 1653
Relief from recapture, 1653
See Income Tax bill C-259

Capital punishment, 59, 410, 728-9
Propaganda re, 410

Carrothers, Dean A.W.R., Chairman of Commission of Inquiry on the Northwest Territories, 590-1, 609, 610

Carter, Hon. Chesley W.
Introduction to the Senate, 1038

Cartwright, Hon. J.R., M.C., Royal Assent, 1541

Centenary of Confederation
Centennial Performing Arts, allocation of grants, inquiry, Hon. Mr. Cameron, 1066-7, 1069-71
Conduct of non-essential business on July 1, 1967, inquiry, Hon. Mr. Davey, 1067, 1072
Congratulations to Canada, extracts from Congressional Record, 1805-7

Choquette, Hon. Lionel
Admiralty bill C-161, 387
Appropriation bill No. 2, 1967 C-282, 1758
Bishop, Hon. Charles L., the late, 1054-5
Canadian Broadcasting Corporation TV program "Sunday", objection to, 1202-3
Criminal Code (Hate Propaganda) bill S-49, 1198-1203
"A Jew in Germany" article by Irving Layton, 1203
C.B.C. TV program "Sunday", 1202-3
Defence proviso on conviction, 1201
Duplessis "padlock law", 1200-1
Nazism, 1199, 1200
Obscene literature, 1202
Press comments on "hate" legislation, 1199-1200
Religion, non-inclusion in identifiable group, 1200
Rex vs Palmer case, sale of contraceptives, 1202
Saumur vs City of Quebec, freedom of religion, 1202
Customs Tariff bill C-200, 791
Kennedy Round of Tariff negotiations, 791
Divorce
Appeals, 1005, 1007
Biega, Joyce Regina Nagine, appeal against judgment, 1005, 1007
Committee duties in relation to evidence heard by Commissioner, 134-5
Divorce (Extension of Grounds) bill S-19, 238, 239, 243-4, 245, 336, 337
Export and Import Permits bill S-23, 394
Rhodesia, restriction on trade with, 394
Fisheries Development bill C-145, 467
Government Organization bill C-178, 685-92
Labour, 690-1
Manpower and Immigration, 680-1, 685
Precedent in omnibus bill, 689-92
Labour (Safety) Code bill S-35, 605, 606
Library of Parliament, 357-8
Newfoundland Additional Financial Assistance bill C-185- 555-6, 585, 634-5
McNair Commission recommendations, 555-6
Ottawa Terminal Railway bill S-2, 86-87
Greber Plan, 86-87
Station relocation, 87
Pension Benefits Standards bill C-221, 1671-2
Inflation, effect on pensions, 1671-2
Public Service Staff Relations bill C-170, 1481-3
Press comment, 1482-3
Public sector, right to strike questioned, 1481-2
Smith, Mrs. Sydney J., the late, 1104
Statutory Salaries Revision bill C-266, 1563-4
Executive powers of discrimination, 1564
Vanier, General Georges Philias, the late, 1575
World Exhibition, Canadian Corporation, bill S-42, 887, 891

Citizen of the Year
Macdonald, Hon. W. Ross, Junior Chamber of Commerce (Brantford) award, 187

Citizenship
Citizenship Appeal Court, 1774-6, 1790
Citizens other than natural-born, 1774
Deserted infant or foundling, 1777-8, 1789-90
Domicile, 1773-4, 1808-9
Hospitality to immigrants, 1788-9, 1791
Language requirement, 1774
Nationality, Commonwealth citizenship, subjects of the Queen, 1810-11
Offences, 1775
Newfoundland, inclusion of, 1777
Screening of immigrants, 1811
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Brooks, A.J., 1809
Connolly, John J., 1790-1, 1809-10
Davey, Keith, 1773-5
Hayden, Salter A., 1789-90, 1808-9, 1810
Hollett, Malcolm, 1776-8
Pearson, Arthur M., 1788-9
Pouliot, Jean-François, 1810-11
Willis, Harry A., 1775-6

Citizenship bill S-59. 1r, 1715; 2r, 1773-8, 1788-91; ref to com, 1791; authority to print com proceedings, 1808; rep of com with amdt, 1808-11; 3r, 1821

Civil Service Administration Committee
Members, 26

Combines Investigation and Criminal Code
(B.C. fishermen and packers)
Application of terms to select group, question of, 459-62
Criminal Code provisions, 458
Delegation of powers to Commons, 458-9
Extension of date of moratorium, 458
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Connolly, John J., 457-60, 462-3, 593
Crerar, T.A., 461-2
Farris, J.W. de B., 461
Hollett, Malcolm, 459, 460
Macdonald, John M., 460
Roebuck, Arthur W., 460-1

Combines Investigation and Criminal Code bill C-169. 1r, 452; 2r, 457-62; ref to com, 462; authority to print com proceedings, 563; rep of com with amdt, 563-4, 593-4; 3r, 594; r.a., 758

Comeau, Hon. J. Willie
Deceased January 11, 1966
Tributes, 11-18

Commercial Solids Pipe Line Company bill S-36. Hon. Mr. McDonald. 1r, 563; 2r, 610-11; ref to com, 611; authority to print com proceedings, 743; rep of com with amdt, 743-4; 3r, 744

Commission of appointment
Speaker of the Senate, Hon. Sydney J. Smith, 1

Commissions
Automotive Industry (1960), chairman Dean Vincent Wheeler Bladen, 617
Bankruptcies, Liquidations, Proposals and Voluntary Assignments, chairman Colonel Lucien Mercier, 248-52, 276, 277-8
Electoral Boundaries Commission for Quebec, chairman Mr. Justice Paul Langlois, 169-70, 179-84, 193-7
Government Organization, chairman J. Grant Glassco, 119, 123, 297
Health Services, chairman Honourable Emmett M. Hall, 833, 834, 835, 1073
Industrial Inquiry, Laurin Picard, 971
Manitoba-Northwest Territories Boundary Commission, chairman R. Thistlethwaite, 989-90
Manitoba-Saskatchewan Boundary Commission, chairman R. Thistlethwaite, 989-90
Northwest Territories, chairman Dean A.W.R. Carrothers, 590-1, 609, 610
Saskatchewan-Northwest Territories Boundary Commission, Chairman R. Thistlethwaite, 989-90
Transportation, chairman M.A. MacPherson, 1342-3, 1347, 1364, 1384-91, 1392, 1398, 1401

Commissions, inquiry, Hon. Mr. Pouliot
Name, nature, personnel and date, 1067-8, 1073-4

Committee of Selection, 7, 22, 23, 25-26, 37
See Selection Committee

Committees
See also individual names
Special Joint
Administration of Justice
Consumer Credit (Cost of Living)
Criminal Code (Hate Propaganda)
Divorce
Immigration
National and Royal Anthems
Penitentiaries
Public Service
Special, Senate
Aging
Standing
Banking and Commerce
Canadian Trade Relations
Civil Service Administration
Debates and Reporting
Divorce

Committees – Concluded
Standing – Concluded
External Relations
Finance
Immigration and Labour
Internal Economy and Contingent Accounts
Miscellaneous Private Bills
Natural Resources
Orders and Customs
Public Buildings and Grounds
Public Health and Welfare
Standing Orders
Tourist Traffic
Transport and Communications
Standing Joint
Library of Parliament
Printing of Parliament
Restaurant of Parliament

Committees, general data
Meetings, conflict with Senate and Commons sittings, 1077-9
Subject matter of meetings, indication on notices requested, 830-1

Commons amendments to Senate bills
Bank of British Columbia bill S-16, 1233, 1242
General Mortgage Service Corporation of Canada bill S-8, 1233
Interprovincial Pipe Line Company bill S-10, 1832
Postal Services Interruption Relief bill S-55, 1527
Senate bill M-9 re National Parks (1947) and other precedents, 982-3

Commonwealth
Crises in Commonwealth, 271
Definition of, 205-6
External Relations Committee empowered to make inquiry into Commonwealth relations, 270-2
Authority to print proceedings, 432
Nations acknowledging allegiance to, 270
Parliamentary Association, 348, 432-8, 509-12
Rhodesia, restrictions on trade with, 345-6

Commonwealth Parliamentary Association, New Zealand Conference, 348, 432-8, 509-12
Agenda, 511
Aid to underdeveloped countries, 512
Canadian delegation, 432-3, 509-10
Chairman of General Council, 438
Economic growth in Commonwealth, 434
Between Niger and Nile by Arthur Toynbee, 435
Bryant, Sir Arthur, letter to New Statesman, 435-6
Future of Association, 437-8

Commonwealth Parliamentary Association – Concluded
New Zealand, 510-11
Politics, 510-11
Trade, 511
Unemployment, non-existence of, 511
Parliamentary government, discussions on, 436
Poverty and resultant problems, 434
Proceedings at Parliament Bldgs., Wellington, 433
Rhodesian question, 433
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Connolly, John J., 348, 432-8
Welch, Frank C., 509-12

Commonwealth Parliamentary Association, Ottawa Conference, inquiry, Hon. Mr. Haig, 600-3
Agenda of 12th meeting, 601-2
Commonwealth of the World, 601
Commonwealth self-help, 601-2
Intra-Commonwealth aid, 602
Parliamentary government in the modern world, 602

Commonwealth Parliamentary Association, Ottawa conference, (Sept. 28-Oct. 4/66), report on, 1056-64, 1080-3
Discussions on
Kashmir, 1059
Rhodesia, 1059
South Africa, 1059
Viet Nam, 1060-1
Faith and Freedom, by Barbara Ward, excerpt from, 1063
Meetings of committees, 1057, 1058-9, 1060
Missionary work in underdeveloped countries, 1062
Concensus of committee, 1062
Parliamentary institutions, various countries, 1061, 1064
Concensus of committee, 1061
Representatives, 1057
Self-help, 1060
Commodity price stabilization, 1060
Trade and foreign aid, 1081-2
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Connolly, John J., 1056-64
Grosart, Allister, 1080-3

Company of Young Canadians
Administration, 857
Advisory committee, 858
Age limit, 858
Aspirations of Young Canadians, excerpt from Company's publication, 855
Background of Company, 856
Canadian University Service Overseas, 856, 857, 859, 862-3
Charitable organization, 857
Director, 857
Educational programs in Commonwealth, 863

Company of Young Canadians – Concluded
Excerpts from report of Stewart Goodings, 861
Ground rules, 857
Leddy, Dr. Francis, chairman of Organizing Committee, 859
Membership, inquiries re, 858
Missionary organizations, 863
Objects and powers, 856
Organizing Committee, 859-60
Poverty and affluent society, 855, 861
Projects approved, 858, 860
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Connolly, John J., 861-3
Davey, Keith, 854-8
Quart, Josie D., 860-1
Yuzyk, Paul, 858-60

Company of Young Canadians bill C-174. 1r, 808; 2r, 854-6; 3r, 868; r.a., 929

Comtois, Hon. Paul, Lieutenant Governor of Quebec
Deceased February 21, 1966
Tributes, 147-58

Confederation, see Centenary of Confederation

Conferences
Commonwealth Parliamentary Association
New Zealand, 348, 432-8, 509-12
Ottawa, 600-3, 1056-64, 1080-3
Federal-Provincial meetings, documents deposited in Clerk's office, 1198
NATO Parliamentarians' Conference, 99, 1283-90, 1439-42, 1463-7, 1468-73
Prairie conference, Saskatoon, 734-5

Connolly, Hon. Harold
League Savings and Mortgage Company bill S-30, 413, 455-6
Credit unions in Nova Scotia, 455-6

Connolly, Hon. John J., P.C., Leader of the Government in the Senate
Adenauer, Konrad, the late, 1787-8
Admiralty bill C-161, 387
Adult Occupational Training bill C-278, 1904
Appropriation bill No. 3 C-157, 347-52, 372-3
Appropriation bill No. 4 C-159, 370-1
Appropriation bill No. 5 C-189, 626-8, 629, 630, 631
Appropriation bill No. 6 C-224, 916-20, 921
Appropriation bill No. 7 C-226, 923-8
Appropriation bill No. 8 C-245, 1173-4
Appropriation bill No. 9 C-248, 1217-19

Connolly, Hon. John J., P.C. —Continued
Assistance Plan bill C-207, 897-901, 907-9
Abuses, possibility of, 900, 901, 908
Acts amended by bill C-207, 901
Allocations for services, 898-9
"Assistance", definitions of, 897
Blind persons, 908
Co-ordination between governments, 898
Duration of agreement, 899
Established programs (interim arrangements), 901
General assistance and welfare services, 899
Indian welfare, 899-900, 908
Jurisdiction, federal-provincial, 908, 909
Mother's allowance, 901
Needs test, 898
Work activity projects, 900
Atlantic Provinces Power Development Act, inquiry, Hon. Mr. Burchill, 801-7
Bank bill C-222, 1753-5
Bank bill and Quebec Savings Banks bill S-53, 1188
Bishop, Hon. Charles L., the late, 1053-4
Bowden, Lord, guest in Senate Chamber, 1716-17
Bradley, Hon. F. Gordon, the late, 360
British North America Act, provisions re money bills, 980-3
Precedents of money bills dealt with in Senate, 982
Procedures in House of Lords, 982-3, 985
Business of the Senate, resumé, 523-4
Canada Deposit Insurance Corporation bill C-261, 1447-53, 1455-6, 1459-60
Board of directors, 1447
Caisses populaires, 1448
Definitions, 1448-9
Deposits, 1449, 1459-60
Effective date of insurance, 1450, 1455-6
Financial aspects, 1448
Inspection, 1451
Member institutions in difficulty, 1460
Objects, powers and duties, 1447, 1449
Premiums, 1450-1
Canadian Broadcasting Corporation
Censorship of media of communication, 1203-4
Control of expenditures and programming, 1218-19
Question of privilege, 1203-4
Tape-recording in House of Commons by student in gallery, 1204
TV program "Sunday", objection to, 1203-4
Canadian Corporation of the World Exhibition, see World Exhibition
Canadian Forces Reorganization bill C-243, 1834-40, 1893-7
Achievements of Canadian forces, 1837-8
Expenditures for defence, 1837, 1838, 1895-6
Morale, 1894
Officer designations, 1835, 1894
Pay and allowances, 1836
Peacekeeping commitments, 1894
Seconding to other countries, 1836, 1885
Uniforms, 1894

Connolly, Hon. John J., P.C. — Continued
Canadian National Railways Financing and Guarantee bill C-229, 1414-15
Centennial Gazette, article on history of Canadian railways, 1414
Deficit, 1414
Gordon, Donald, past president, 1415
Cape Breton, 723
Centennial of Confederation, congratulations to Canada, extracts from Congressional Record, 1786-7
Churchill Falls, inquiry, Hon. Mr. Hollett, 707
Citizenship bill S-59, 1790-1, 1809-10
Citizenship Appeal Court, 1790
Deserted infant or foundling, 1790
Hospitality to immigrants, 1791
Combines Investigation and Criminal Code bill C-169, 457-60, 462-3
(B.C. fishermen and packers)
Criminal Code provisions, 458
Extension of date of moratorium, 458
Application to select group, question of, 459, 462
Delegation of powers to Commons, 458-9
Committee meetings, conflict with Senate and Commons sittings, 1079
Commonwealth Parliamentary Association, New Zealand Conference, 348, 432-8
Canadian delegation, 432-3
Chairman of General Council of C.P.A., 438
Economic growth in Commonwealth, 434
Between Niger and Nile by Arthur Toynbee, 435
Bryant, Sir Arthur, letter to New Statesman, 435-6
Future of Association, 437-8
Parliamentary government, discussions on, 436
Poverty and resultant problems, 434
Proceedings at Parliament Bldgs., Wellington, 433
Rhodesian question, 433
Commonwealth Parliamentary Association, Ottawa Conference, inquiry, Hon. Mr. Haig, 600-3
Agenda of 12th meeting, 601-2
Commonwealth of the World, 601
Commonwealth self-help, 601-2
Intra-Commonwealth aid, 602
Parliamentary government in the modern world, 602
Commonwealth Parliamentary Association, Ottawa Conference (Sept. 28-Oct. 4/66), report on, 1056-63
Discussions on
Kashmir, 1059
Rhodesia, 1059
South Africa, 1059
Viet Nam, 1060-1
Faith and Freedom by Barbara Ward, excerpt from, 1063
Meetings of committees, 1057, 1058-69, 1060
Missionary work in underdeveloped countries, 1062
Concensus of committee, 1062
Parliamentary institutions, various countries, 1061
Concensus of committee, 1061
Representatives, 1057
Self-help, 1060
Commodity price stabilization, 1060

Connolly, Hon. John J., P.C. – Continued
Company of Young Canadians bill C-174, 861-3
Canadian University Service Overseas, 862-3
Educational programs in Commonwealth, 863
Missionary organizations, 863
Volunteer work of Canadians at home and abroad, 862
Constituencies of Canada, inquiry, Hon. Mr. Pouliot, 1079-80, 1093-5
Consumer Credit, Joint Committee, appointment, 317
Comment on committee work, 1446-7
Terms of reference, enlargement of, 1039-42, 1048-50
Crerar, Hon. T.A., retired, 571-2
Criminal Code (Hate Propaganda) Special Joint Committee, motion for appointment of, 1144, 1146-7, 1167, 1661-2
Customs Tariff bill C-200, 773-4, 791-2
Kennedy Round of tariff negotiations, 791, 792
Rates of duty printed in Minutes of Proceedings of Senate, 773-4
Davey, Hon. Keith, Commissioner of Canadian Football League, 774
Davies, Hon. W. Rupert, the late, 1612
Deschatelets, Hon. Jean-Paul, appointment as Deputy Leader of the Government in the Senate, 1052
Divorce appeals, 1006-7
Biega, Joyce Regina Nagine, appeal against judgment, 1006-7
Divorce, Joint Committee, appointment, 315-16
Dutch Elm disease, 404-5, 413-14
Electoral Boundaries Readjustment bill S-22, 408-9
Estimates, 347-52, 626-31, 772, 801-7, 916-20, 921, 923-8, 1000-2, 1217-19, 1244-5, 1246, 1247, 1248, 1249, 1352-4
Agriculture department, 349, 926, 927
Atlantic Provinces Power Development Act, 630
Atomic Energy Control Board, 349
Borrowing authority, 351-2, 928
Centennial Commission, 1354
Commitment according to terms of item, 371, 928
Commonwealth Parliamentary Association, 628
Estimates (1966-67) including budgetary expenditures and loans, excluding old age security, table printed in Debates, 918, 924
External Affairs, 350, 627, 629
External aid, India and Pakistan, 1244-9
Finance Department, 349, 627
Fisheries Department, 628, 926
Forestry Department, 628
Health and Welfare, 350-1
House of Commons, 350
International Bank for Reconstruction and Development, 928
Justice department, 350, 926
Loans, investments and advances, 926, 927-8
Maritime Commission, 349, 351
Mines and Technical Surveys, 350, 627, 926, 927
National Defence, 1352
National Gallery, 1352-4
National Harbours Board, 349-50
National Research Council, scholarships and grants, 349, 927
Northern Affairs, 351, 926
Payments after end of fiscal year, 371
Penitentiaries, 351

Connolly, Hon. John J., P.C. – Continued
Estimates – Concluded
Senate expenses, 628
Statement on effect of Appropriation bill No. 6, 917
Supply (1966-67), table printed in Debates, 925
Transport department, 349, 351, 926
Undertaking that passage of bill will not preclude further discussion, 916, 919, 920
Veterans Affairs, 351
Water resources, 926
World Exhibition, Canadian Corporation, 926
Expo events commemorating Canada's Centennial Year, 1554-6
Expo travel arrangements for Senators, 1812
Export and Import Permits bill S-23, 366-7
Rhodesia, restrictions on trade with, 366-7, 393-4
Federal-Provincial Fiscal Arrangements bill C-277, 1620-31, 1633-4, 1641-3
Contracting out, 1625
Education costs, fiscal allocations, 1622-5
Universities qualified for grants, 1633-4
General equalization payments, 1626-30
Exceptions, 1630
Prince Edward Island, 1633
Provincial entitlements, 1627-8
Principles decided at conference, 1620
Provincial revenue stabilization payments, 1625
Succession duties, 1626
Federal-Provincial meetings, documents deposited in Clerk's office, 1198
Finance Committee study of Estimates, 772
Financial Administration bill C-182, 1515
Fisheries, 12-mile limit, inquiry, Hon. Mr. Hollett, 802
Food and Drugs bill S-60, 1847
Government Organization bill C-178, 677-85
Crown lands, 682-3
Energy, Mines and Resources, 682
Glassco Commission recommendations, 678, 682
Forestry and Rural Development, 682
Indian Affairs and Northern Development, 681
Labour, 681
Manpower and Immigration, 680-1, 685, 695
Registrar General, 680
Secretary of State, 683, 684
Solicitor General, 679
Access to files of RCMP, 679-80
Treasury Board President, 683, 684, 695
Governor General's Retiring Annuity bill C-265, 1495-7
Annuity amount, 1496
Entertainment allowance, 1496
Former Governors General, 1495, 1496
Salary, 1495
Widows, 1495
Grant, Hon. Thomas V., the late, 1351
Grey Cup, National Football Playoff in Vancouver, 1197
Hugessen, Hon. A.K., retired, 1355-8
Immigration, Special Joint Committee, 1065-6
Income Tax Agreements bill S-56, 1376-7

Connolly, Hon. John J., P.C. – Continued
Income Tax bill C-216, 960
Stock options, 960
Income Tax bill C-280, 1914
Business profits, tax period on, 1914
India and Pakistan, 1244-5, 1247-8, 1249
Delegation to Commonwealth Parliamentary Association meeting in Ottawa, 1245
Drought and hunger conditions, 1244-5
Canadian contributions for relief of, 1248
Costs of shipping wheat, 1248
Distribution of food and money, methods of, 1247-8, 1249
Letter from Prime Minister of India, 1244-5
Inflation
Finance Committee conclusions summarized in 1959 report, 1040
Government proposals to counteract, 1040-1, 1049-50
Jodoin, Hon. Mariana B., retired, 653-7
Judges bill C-267, 1521-2
Capacities forbidden to judge unless by special appointment, 1522
Salary for extra-judicial services, 1521
Judicial appointments, inquiry, Hon. Mr. Pouliot, 305-6, 391
Labour conditions, 1152-3, 1154
Rights of workers in public service, 1153
Task force to deal with industrial disputes, 1152-3
Labour conditions, Air Canada machinists and Postal workers, inquiry, Hon. Mr. Cameron, 1124-5
Labour (Standards) Code bill S-54, 1189-92, 1194
Holidays and annual vacations, 1189-90
Apportioning of responsibility for, 1190-1
Longshoremen, 1189-90
Multi-employer employment, 1189-90
Labour Relations, report of dispute between Shipping Federation of Canada and International Longshoremen's Assoc., 867, 871-7
Lamprey control and research, inquiry, Hon. Mr. Brooks, 801-2
Lands Surveys bill S-48, 980-3, 984, 985, 996-7, 998
Erection of monuments, 997
Examination fees, 998
Examiners, 996
Resurveys, 997
Survey measurements, 997
Surveyor General of Canada, administration of office, 996
Legal services, fees paid by Government to members of Quebec Bar, inquiry, Hon. Mr. Pouliot, 1147
Livestock Feed Assistance bill C-218, 1083-90, 1096, 1098, 1159-60
Board, establishment of and duties, 1088-90
Advisory Committee, 1088-9
Exports, 1086-7
Food shortages, 1087-8
Maritime feed production problem, 1087
Price variations, 1084-5, 1086
Statistics re livestock feed assistance, 1084-6
Territorial definitions, 1098
Transportation subsidy, 1085, 1086
Macdonald, Hon. W. Ross, Honorary President of Junior Chamber of Commerce, 878
MacKenzie, Hon. Norman A., national president of Association of Canadian Clubs, 689

Connolly, Hon. John J., P.C. – Continued
Maintenance of Railway Operation bill C-230, 1013-21, 1036-7
Cameron, Mr. Justice, report and recommendations, 1016-17, 1020
Collective bargaining procedures, 1018
Conciliation boards and chairmen, 1014-15
Events leading up to strike action, 1013-15
Freedman, Mr. Justice, report of, 1017-18
MacPherson, Mr. Murdock, report of, 1020
Mediator, appointment of, 1021
Munro, Mr. Justice, 1014; report and recommendations, 1015-16, 1020
St. Lawrence Seaway workers, increase of 30%, 1036
Union issues in dispute, 1013-14
Manitoba-Northwest Territories Boundary bill S-47, 995
Manitoba-Saskatchewan Boundary bill S-45, 993-4
McKeen, Hon. Stanley S., the late, 1239
McLean, Hon. A. Neil, the late, 1612-13
Medical Care bill C-227, 1270
Michener, the Right Honourable Roland, Governor General of Canada, addresses at installation of, 1772, 1783-5
Ministers' participation in Senate debates, 474-6
National and Royal Anthems, Special Joint Committee, 1384
National Arts Centre bill C-194, 967-8
Television and development of the Arts, 968
National Housing bill C-241, 1177-81, 1185
Aggregate maximum of loans insurable under NHA, 1179
Co-operatives, 1185
Economic development in building industry, 1177-8
Housing demands, 1177, 1181
Housing starts, statistics on, 1178
Interest-free loans, question of, 1186
Low-rent housing, 1178-9
British Columbia, 1179
Inuvik, 1179
Ontario Housing Corp., 1178-9
Operating losses, 1179
Ottawa, 1186
Sales tax, 1185
Sewage treatment projects, 1180
Student housing projects, 1180
National Museums bill S-57, 1683
National Transportation bill C-231, 1379, 1380
Maritime problems, 1379, 1380
NATO Parliamentarians, 12th annual conference at Paris, France, 1076, 1287-90, 1468-70
Britain and the European Common Market, 1289
Economic problems, 1290
Nationalism in Europe, 1289
Peacekeeping force, 1288
Problems of NATO, 1288
Question of privilege, re statement on Canadian delegates, 1468-70
The Proud Tower, by Barbara Tuchman, 1288-9
USSR, 1288, 1289
Northumberland Causeway, inquiry, Hon. Mr. Phillips, 1811

Connolly, Hon. John J., P.C. – Continued
Old Age Security bill C-251, 1317-21, 1336-8
Absence from country, 1320
Appeals, 1321
Authority of Parliament to legislate in pension matters, 1317-18, 1336
Cost to government, 1319, 1337-8
Deductions because of other income, 1320
Guaranteed income supplement, 1319
Information concerning income, 1321
Interim payments, 1321
Married applicants, 1320
Needs test, 1320
O'Leary, Hon. M. Grattan, election to Canadian News Hall of Fame, 1787
O'Leary, Hon. M. Grattan, retirement from presidency of Ottawa Journal, 340-1
Pan-American Games 1967 in Winnipeg, 746-7
Penitentiaries, Joint Committee, appointment, 316-17
Pension Benefits Standards bill C-221, 1672-3
Postal Services Interruption Relief bill S-55, 1297-8
Strikes and consequences of, 1297-8
Power, Hon. C.G., 49th anniversary in Parliament, 1292
Power, Hon. C.G., publication of memoirs, 1125-6
Press report on Senate passage of bills, 893
Prison administration, female inmates, inquiry, Hon. Mrs. Fergusson, 915
Public Service Employment bill C-181, 1503
Merit system, 1503
Public Service Commission powers, 1503
Public Service, reports of Committee tabled, 1383
Return after illness, 302-4
Richelieu Bridge Company bill S-44, 979
Roebuck, Hon. Arthur W., 89th birthday, 1515-16
Rules of the Senate, 18A, re ministers' participation in Senate Debates, 981
Rural Economic Development Fund bill C-274, 1592
PFRA, 1592
St. Jean Baptiste parade, 968
Dandurand, Hon. Raoul, the late, honoured by parade float, 968
St. Lawrence Ports Working Conditions bill C-215, 969-72, 974-5
Compulsory arbitration, 972, 975
Industrial Inquiry Commission, 970
Mediator, Judge René Lippé, 969-70
Negotiations re new agreement, breakdown of, 969
Protection of workers and job security, 971
Saving provision to vary agreement, 971
Terms for settlement of strike, 970-1
St. Patrick's Day, 1697-8
Sangster, Sir Donald, the late, 1780-2
Smith, Mrs. Sydney J., the late, 1104
Snedker, Hon. J.E., Speaker of Legislative Assembly of Saskatchewan, visitor to Senate, 1886
Spellman, Howard Hilton, visitor to Senate, 1510
Stanley Cup, congratulations to Hon. Mr. Molson on success of Canadiens, 497
Statutory Salaries Revision bill C-266, 1546-7
Auditor General, 1547
Grain Commissioner, 1546
Retroactive clause, 1546

Connolly, Hon. John J., P.C. – Concluded
Symonette, Lady, wife of Premier of Bahamas, visitor in Senate Gallery, 889
Taylor, Hon. William H., retired, 653
Teleferry bill S-58, 1710-13
Chattels, transporting of, 1712
Inspection of construction, 1711
Interprovincial or international boundaries, 1710
Licences, 1711
Tolls, 1711
Training Allowance bill C-186, 723
Uganda Minister of Public Works, visitor to Senate, 1038
Ukrainian Canadians: Their Place and role in Canadian Life, by Hon. Mr. Yuzyk, 1820
Vanier, General Georges Philias, the late, 1572-3
Veniot, Hon. Clarence J., retired, 653
Wabana Mines, inquiry, Hon. Mr. Hollett, 707
White, Hon. George S., return after illness, 1055
Woodrow, Hon. Allan L., the late, 360-1
World Exhibition, 1527-9, 1532-3
Assets, disposal of on termination of Exhibition 1528-9
Loan from Government, 1527-9
Borrowings to date, 1528
Grants, 1528
Revenue forecast, 1528-9
Removal of foreign pavilions, 1529
World Exhibition, Canadian Corporation, bill S-42, 890

Conservation of water resources, see Water resources

Constituencies, population of, inquiry, Hon. Mr. Pouliot, 810, 867, 1079-80, 1093-5

Constitution of Canada, 126-9
Amendment of the Canadian Constitution, by Hon. Guy Favreau, 126-7
B.N.A. Act amdts, control of, 126-8
Fulton-Favreau formula, 126-7

Consumer credit
Captive sales financing, 1445
Cooling-off period on credit purchases, 1446
Counselling for consumers, 1446
Interest rates, disclosure of, 1444-5
Low-cost consumer loans through banks, 1445
Used car sales, 1446
See also Appendix to Feb. 16 for Report of Special Joint Committee on Consumer Credit and Cost of Living.

Consumer Credit and Cost of Living, Special Joint Committee
Appointment, 317
Bills ref to joint com, 328, 359
Economic Council of Canada, Annual Review, ref to com, 1195-6
Members
Commons, 328-9, 400, 1050, 1052, 1075, 1076, 1347, 1443, 1473, 1516
Senate, 344, 1050, 1065
Message from Commons, 301, 1038-50
Reports, 1307-13, 1444-7, and Appendix to Feb. 16
Adjournment from place to place, 1300
Quorum, 393
Recommendations of committee, 1301-2, 1444-6
Report, presented at end of Session, 1928-49
Terms of reference, 317, 1038-50

Cook, Hon. Eric
Aetna Casualty Company of Canada bill S-4, 29
Bills of Exchange bill S-14, 209-10, 400
Cheques marked 'For deposit', Commons amdt re, 400
Compliance with Canada Labour (Standards) Code re holidays, 209
Non-juridical days added or deleted, 209-10
Payment of bills of exchange on Saturday or non-juridical day, 209
Canada Health and Accident Assurance Corporation bill S-13, 100, 142-3
Criminal Code (Hate propaganda) bill S-49, 1135-6
Defining of offence, 1136
Excise Tax bill C-198, 797-8
Articles progressively exempted, 797
Furs, 797, 798
Machinery and equipment, 797
Margarine, 798
Tire retreads, 797
Two or more articles in one package, 797
Judges bill C-262, 1367-8
Newfoundland Additional Financial Assistance bill C-185, 581-3
Historical sketch of Newfoundland, 581-2
McNair Commission recommendations, 582-3
Statutory Salaries Revision bill C-266, 1544-5, 1547-8
Authority of Governor in Council, 1544-5
Officials affected by revision, 1544

Corporations
Amdt of charters by application to Registrar General, 1100
Company formations without parliamentary legislation, 1108
Corporations without share capital, 1107
Legislative authority of Parliament, extension of, 1107
"National" organizations, 1109
Religious organizations, 1099, 1108
Supplementary letters patent, 1107, 1108
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Flynn, Jacques, 1107
Hayden, Salter A., 1108-9
Hugessen, A.K., 1107-8
Macdonald, W. Ross, 1099-1100

Corporations bill S-51. 1r, 1077; 2r, 1099-1100, 1107-9; ref to com, 1109; authority to print com proceedings-rep of com without amdt-3r, 1143; r.a., 1442

Cost of living, see Consumer Credit and Cost of Living

Crerar, Hon. T.A., P.C.
Retired May 31, 1966
Tributes, 571-6
Address in reply to Speech from the Throne, 564-71, 576
Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, 374-5, 376, 569-70
Abuse of authority, 374-5
Spending on overseas interview, 375
Canadian National Railway bill C-165 (Bruce Lake), 417-18
Iron pellets development, guaranteed tonnage and penalty clause, 417-18
Civil Service Commission, method of filling positions, 568
Estimates, 373-7
Fisheries Development bill C-145, 468
Socialism, question of, 468
Franking privileges, 375
Government extravagances, 374-6, 567-71
Inflationary tendencies, 566
Labour unions and strike settlement, 567
Loans, investments and advances, 375-6
National Democratic Party, 468
O'Leary, Hon. M. Grattan, retirement as President of Ottawa Journal, 342
Parliamentary secretaries, 375
Party leaders, change advocated, 565, 571
Prestige of Parliament, 565, 571
Provincial affairs, infringement by federal government, 565-6
Sixtieth wedding anniversary, 100
Tributes to deceased senators, 373-4
Welfare and social security legislation, 376

Crime
Bankruptcy, criminal elements and murders, 247-8
LSD, illegal sale and use of, 1792-1802, 1812-19, 1821-30
Morality breakdown of young people, 527-8
TV and radio programs, 253-5, 527-8

Criminal Code
See Combines Investigation and Criminal Code, Criminal Code (Hate Propaganda).

Criminal Code (Hate propaganda)
Abuse of freedom, 1156
"A Jew in Germany", article by Irving Layton, 1203
Anti-discrimination legislation, Ontario, 1156
Appeals, 1113
Bill of Rights, 1155, 1279
British Race Relations bill, 1157, 1227
Cartoonists, 1114

Criminal Code (Hate propaganda) – Concluded
CBC television program "Sunday", 1202-3
Committee study, chairman Dean Maxwell Cohen, 1111, 1157-8, 1201
Defence provisos on conviction, 1201
Defining of offence, 1136
Duplessis "padlock law", 1200-1
Flag burning on Parliament Hill, 1114
Forfeiture of pamphlets, newspapers, arms, etc., 1113, 1709
Freedom of Speech, 1704
Freedom, preservation of, 1119-20, 1129, 1136, 1280
Genocide, 1111, 1127, 1227-8, 1279, 1706
"Group" or "identifiable group", 1112-13, 1120, 1127-8, 1279-80
Hate literature and propaganda, 1230, 1277-8, 1280, 1281
Human rights and fundamental freedoms, 1228-9
Interpretation of offence, 1211-12
Nazism, 1199, 1200, 1703-4, 1709
Beattie Case, 1703-4, 1709
Obscene literature, 1202
Offence in other than a public place, 1120
Onus of proof of offence, 1211
Penalties, 1112, 1113, 1367
Potential for harm from purveyors of hate, 1109-10, 1156
Press comments, 1127, 1200, 1704-5, 1707
Racial riots and mass murders, 1227, 1231
Radio and TV regulations, 1110
Religious groups, 1200, 1708
Rex vs Palmer case, sale of contraceptives, 1202
Saumur vs City of Quebec, freedom of religion, 1202
UK Race Relations Act, 1706-7
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Belisle, Rheal, 1277-8
Choquette, Lionel, 1198-1203
Connolly, John J., 1203-4, 1661-2
Cook, Eric, 1135-6
Croll, David A., 1154-7
Everett, Douglas D., 1279-81
Flynn, Jacques, 1366-7, 1661
Fournier, Edgar, 1114
Grosart, Allister, 1204-5
Hayden, Salter A., 1227-31
Hollett, Malcolm, 1157
Lang, Daniel A., 1119-21
MacKenzie, Norman A., 1136
Phillips, Orville H., 1167-8
Pouliot, Jean-François, 1157-8
Roebuck, Arthur W., 1109-14, 1702-9
Walker, David, 1126-9
White, George S., 1210-12

Criminal Code (Hate propaganda) bill S-49. 1r, 1077; 2r, 1109-14, 1119-21, 1126-9, 1135-6, 1198-1205, 1210-12, 1227-31, 1277-81, 1336-7, 1702-9, ref to com, 1709-10

Criminal Code (Hate Propaganda) Special Joint Committee
Appointment, motion for, 1144-7, 1166-7; agreed to, 1167
Commons concurrence, 1516
Members
Commons, 1632, 1719
Senate, 1166

Croll, Hon. David A.
Aging, Senate Special Committee, résumé of final report, 69-80, 89 et seq
Attitude of aging adult, 71
Employment, 73-74
Government grants for social research, 77-78
Danish National Institute on Social Research, 78
Recommendations, 78
Health problems, nursing and homemaker facilities, 75-76
Housing, 76-77
Income, 70, 72-73
Recommendations, 73
National Commission on Aging, 78-79
See p. 89 et seq for complete report
Assistance Plan C-207, 931-5
Federal-provincial co-ordination, 932
"Have" and "have-not" provinces, 932
Health and welfare expenditures, comparisons of selected countries, 933-4
As percentage of gross national product, 933
Disability benefits, 934
Family allowances, 934
Old age benefits and survival benefits, 934
Unemployment benefits, 934
Standards, establishing of, 933
Bankruptcy bill S-17, 274-6, 761
Deficiencies in bankruptcy act, 274-5
Fraud squad, 275
Mercier report, 276
Canadian Forces Reorganization bill C-243, 1848-53
Economics in defence, 1852
Military history, 1860
Peacekeeping commitments, 1849
White Paper, 1850-1
Consumer credit
Captive sales financing, 1445
Cooling-off period on credit purchases, 1446
Counselling for consumers, 1446
Interest rates, disclosure of, 1444-5
Low-cost consumer loans through banks, 1445
Used car sales, 1446
Consumer Credit and Cost of Living, Special Joint Committee
Authorization to adjourn from place to place, 1300
Recommendations of committee, 1301, 1444-7
Report, 1307-13, and Appendix to Feb. 16, 1967
Report presented at end of Session, 1928-49
Terms of reference, 1047-8

Croll, Hon. David A. – Concluded
Criminal Code (Hate propaganda) bill S-49, 1154-7
Abuse of freedom, 1156
Anti-discrimination legislation, Ontario, 1156
Bill of Rights, 1155
British Race Relations bill, 1157
Hatemongers, effect on society, 1156
Estimates, 494-5
Winter works program, 494-5
Finance Charges (Disclosure) bill S-3, 28-29, 359
Bill ref to joint com, 359
Food and Drugs bill S-60, 1798-1802
LSD, 1799-1802
Article by Director of Adolescent Service, McGill University, 1801-2
Clinical uses and reactions, 1799
Dangers of, press comments, 1799-1802
Death of Toronto student, 1801
Toronto Star report on LSD party, 1800-1
Vancouver Sun, report on Vancouver School Board message to students and parents, 1799-80
Immigration, landed immigrant status, application for, 915-16
Labour (Safety) Code bill S-35, 604-7, 660-1
Accident statistics, 605, 606
Glassco Commission recommendations, 604-5
Ships, trains or aircraft, 660-1
Water supplies and sanitary facilities, 661
Maintenance of Railway Operation bill C-230, 1023-7
Compulsory arbitration, 1025
Montreal Gazette editorial on defying of Parliament by labour, 1027
Right of employees to strike, 1023-4
Ministers' participation in Senate debates, 474
North West Life Assurance Company of Canada bill S-25, 363, 395-6
Old Age Security bill C-251, 1325-8
Groups disregarded under bill, 1325
Income requirement form, 1327
Recommendations of Senate Special Committee on Aging, 1326-7
Welfare programs, inadequacy of, 1328
Training Allowance bill C-186, 722
Winter works program, inability of Atlantic provinces to participate, 494-5
World Exhibition, Canadian Corporation, bill S-42, 888

Crop insurance
Calculation on individual record, 911
Costs of insurance, 911
Deductible, raising of, 912
Federal contribution, 911
Hail insurance, 922-3
Information to policyholders as to benefits, 912
Maximum coverage, 911, 922
Statistics (1964-66), 622
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Fournier, Edgar E., 912-13
Hastings, Earl A., 909-12
Pearson, Arthur M., 921-3

Crop Insurance bill C-208. 1r, 909; 2r, 909-13, 921-3; 3r, 923; r.a., 930

Crowsnest Pass, 1346, 1386-91, 1398
Historical review, 1390
See National transportation

Customs tariff
Balloons, logging equipment, 763
Carnations, 762-3
Drawback, 764
GATT, 764, 791, 792
Extension of time for rates of duty, 762
Kennedy Round of Tariff Negotiations and Arrangements, 764
Liquorice, 763
Litharge, 763
Oriental rugs or carpets, 762
Potash and rock salt equipment, 763
Rates of duties, table printed in Minutes of Proceedings of Senate, 773-4
Settlers' effects, 763-4
Well equipment, 762
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Choquette, Lionel, 791
Connolly, John J., 791-2
Hayden, Salter A., 762-5

Customs Tariff bill C-200. 1r, 762; 2r, 762-5, 791-2; 3r, 811; r.a., 929

Dairy Commission bill C-205. 1r, 769; 2r, 821-30; ref to com, 830; authority to print com proceedings, 853; rep of com without amdt, 853; 3r, 868; r.a., 929

Dairy industry
Commission and consultative committee, 824-5
Consumer protection, 829-30
Financing of commission, 822
Fluctuation in volume and price, 821
Income of dairy farmers, 828
Jurisdiction, federal and provincial, 821, 822, 823-4, 830
BNA Act cited, 824
Licences, 825-6
Milk surplus in N.S., 222
Penalties for offences, 826
Prices, 827
Regulations made by Governor in Council, 825
United Milk Producers, article in Halifax Chronicle, 827-8
Vesting of property, 829
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Brooks, A.J., 826-8, 829, 830
McDonald, A. Hamilton, 821-2, 829-30
Roebuck, Arthur W., 828-9
Willis, Harry A., 822-6

Davey, Hon. Keith
Canadian Football League, appointment as Commissioner, 774-5
Citizenship bill S-59, 1773-5
Citizenship Appeal Court, 1774-5
Citizens other than natural-born, 1774
Language requirement, 1774
Offences, 1775
Residence requirements, 1773-4
Company of Young Canadians bill C-174, 854-8
Administration, 857
Advisory committee, 858
Age limit, 858
Aspirations of Young Canadians, excerpt from Company's publication, 855
Background of Company, 856
Canadian University Service Overseas, 856, 857
Charitable organization, 857
Director, 857
Ground rules, 857
Membership, inquiries re, 858
Objects and powers, 856
Poverty and affluent society, 855
Projects approved, 858
Dominion Day, conduct of non-essential business on July 1, 1967, inquiry, 854, 1067, 1072
Introduction to the Senate, 199

Davies, Hon. W. Rupert
Deceased March 11, 1967
Tributes, 1612-17

Debates and Reporting Committee
Members, 26

Declaration of Women
Brief to Government officials re CBC programming, 254-5, 1221-3

Denis, Hon. Azellus, P.C.
Address in reply to Speech from the Throne, 409-12
Capital punishment, 410
Propaganda re, 410
Film Development Corporation bill C-204, 1558, 1559
Personnel, 1559
Highway accidents, 411-12
Police force, 411-12
Armed forces for police duty, 411-12
Cadets, 411
Quebec, 411
Postal Services Interruption Relief bill S-55, 1293-4, 1298
Functions and powers of judge, 1293-4
Industrial Property, Paris Convention for protection of, 1293
Patent agents, protection for, 1293
Press comments, 1294

Deputy Leader of the Government in the Senate
Bouffard, Hon. Paul H., 8-11
Deschatelets, Hon. Jean-Paul, appointment as Deputy Leader, 1052-3
Hugessen, Hon. A.K., 147

Deschatelets, Hon. Jean-Paul, P.C.
Aeronautics bill C-153, 451-2
Air Transport Board, 452
Fees and charges, levying of, 451
Offences against air regulations, 452
Preservation and protection of civil aircraft, 452
Regulations re working conditions, 451
Rockets, moored balloons and kites, 452
Appropriation bill No. 8, 1966 C-245, 1169-72
Appropriation bill No. 9, 1966 C-248, 1212-14, 1223
Appropriation bill No. 2, 1967 C-282, 1758-9
Appropriation bill No. 3, 1967 C-283, 1762-4
Appropriation bill No. 4, 1967 C-293, 1915-18, 1920
Deputy Leader of the Government in the Senate, appointment as, 1052-3
Divorce (Extension of Grounds) bill S-19, 237
Estimates, 1169-72, 1212-14, 1223, 1758-9, 1762-4, 1915-18
Authority to supplement other votes to provide for unforeseen expenses, 1172
Centennial Commission, 1171, 1918
Commercial and fishing vessels, 1763, 1916
Contingencies, 1213
Dominion Coal Board, 1213
Energy, Mines and Resources, 1763, 1916-17
Expo, 1171, 1918
Fisheries research, 1917
Foreign aid, 1171, 1763, 1916
Forestry and rural development, 1917
Freight rates and branch lines, 1213
House of Commons staff, 1763
Justice department, 1917
Kejimkujik national park, 1171
Manpower and immigration, 1213
Maritime transmission lines, etc., 1172
National Capital Plan, 1170
National Gallery, 1917
Payroll payment before interim supply passed, 1172
Privy Council, 1916
Public Service Commission, 1916
Research satellite program, 1171
Road construction, 1763
Salaries, 1171
Senate, 1917
Supplementary (G), 1758-9
Travel Bureau, 1918
University research, 1763
Veterans affairs, 1214
World Exhibition, 1762-3, 1918

Deschatelets, Hon. Jean-Paul, P.C. – Concluded
Film Development Corporation bill C-204, 1424-8, 1557-9
Agreement with other countries as to national films, 1426
Dubbing of film, 1427
Finances, handling of, 1558-9
Guarding against "bad investment", 1426
Members, 1425
Objects and powers of corporation, 1425
Introduction to the Senate, 199
La Société des Artisans bill S-41, 770, 811-12
National Transportation bill C-231, 1341-7, 1405
Bridges, 1345
Canadian Transport Commission, 1343-4
Crowsnest Pass rates, 1346
Extra-provincial motor vehicle transport, 1345
Freight rates, 1343-6
Jurisdiction of provinces, 1341-2
MacPherson Commission, 1342-3, 1347
Money-losing services, 1345
Railways, telephones and telegraphs, 1345
Transitional subsidy, 1346
Public Service Staff Relations bill C-170, 1483, 1489, 1491
Safety and security of the public, 1483
Richelieu Bridge Company bill S-44, 1100-2

Desruisseaux, Hon. Paul
Industrial Research and Development Incentives bill C-252, 1533-7, 1562-3
Bonus on capital expenditures, 1536
Scientific activity in Canada as compared with other countries, 1536-7, 1562-3
Introduction to the Senate, 978

Dessureault, Hon. Jean-Marie
Bouffard, Hon. Paul H., the late, 150
Comtois, Hon. Paul, the late, 150
Jodoin, Hon. Mariana B., retired, 656-7

Divorce
Alimony, 449
Appeals, 1003-7
"Baird's Law", 336
Biega, Joyce Regina Nagine, appeal against judgment of Senate Commissioner, 1003-7
Committee appointed to hear appeal, 1011-12, 1125, 1424; report adopted, 1820
Children involved in, 136-8, 239-40, 375, 492-3
Federal jurisdiction of, 492
Collusion, 273-4, 335-6, 500-3
Committee duties in relation to evidence heard by Commissioners, 135-8
Common law marriages, 235
Court, definition, 260-1, 428
Cruelty, 240-1, 430
Desertion, 429, 499-500

Divorce—Concluded
Divorce and Matrimonial Causes bill B (McMeans bill), 234, 259-61
Explanatory notes, 260
Provincial courts, 260
Divorce and Matrimonial Causes bill 0-6, 234, 262
Domicile, 499
English act cited, 240, 241-2
Grounds for divorce, extension, 234, 240-1
Illegal divorces, prevention of, 321-2
Judicial separation, 499
Jurisdiction in marriage and divorce, 492
Law and Practice of Divorce in Canada, 236
Le Devoir, article by Claude Ryan, 488-9
Missing spouse declared dead, 499
Mueller, Lutz, withdrawal of petition because of death of respondent, 1540
Newfoundland law, 236-40, 335-7, 377-8
Non-consummation of marriage, 499
Pregnancy for which husband not responsible, 499
Press comment on divorce reform, 262
Quebec and Newfoundland, 236-40, 335-7, 488, 489
Rape, 498-9
Regina vs Pichette and Santerre, 502-3
Resolutions, approval by Senate without knowledge of facts, 490-3
Rules, suggested change re appeals, 1005-7
Senate Divorce Committee, 238-9, 379-80, 490-3
Sodomy, 499
Statistics, 134, 138, 1369
United Church of Canada, book on Marriage Breakdown, excerpt from, 235
United Church of Canada General Council resolution, 321, 379
Unsound mind, 241, 242, 274, 321-2, 430, 499
Whiteside report, 810
See Journals of the Senate for names of individuals
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Aseltine, Walter M., 258-63
Choquette, Lionel, 238, 239, 243-4, 245
Gershaw, F.W., 273-4
Grosart, Allister, 427-31
Haig, J. Campbell, 321-2
Hnatyshyn, John, 378-80
Inman, F. Elsie, 377-8
Roebuck, Arthur W., 185-6, 233-42, 244-7, 497-506

Divorce Committee
Appointment, 23-24
Leave to sit during adjournments and sittings of Senate, 92, 109
Members, 22
Reports, 92, 109
Special committee to hear Biega appeal, 1011-12, 1125, 1424
Report, 1820
Subcommittees, 92, 109, 1011-12

Divorce Committee, Special Joint
Appointment, 315-16
Bills ref to joint com, 328, 497-506
Members
Commons, 328, 649
Senate, 343-4, 778
Message from Commons, 300
Reports, 650, 687, 1077-9

Divorce (Extension of Grounds) bill S-19. Hon. Mr. Roebuck. 1r, 185-6; 2r, 233-42, 243-7, 258-63, 273-4, 377-80, 394-5, 487-93; amdt that bill be ref to Special Joint Committee on Divorce, 497-506; agreed to, 506

Divorce Reports
Nos. 2-113 : 134-8
114-169 : 167, 191
170-226 : 186, 206
227-282 : 201, 218
283-337 : 211, 231
338-400 : 293, 306
401-448 : 314, 358
449-498 : 404, 426
499-579 : 454, 485
580-635 : 564, 594
636-670 : 604, 639
671-710 : 744, 775
711-751 : 770, 799
752 : 810
753-816 : 913
817-847 : 1096
848-909 : 1124
910-1041 : 1241, 1260
1042-1098 : 1369, 1406
1099-1146 : 1480, 1493
1147-1211 : 1525, 1541 (No. 1179 withdrawn, 1577)
1212-1251 : 1632, 1662
1252-1290 : 1702, 1720
1291-1333 : 1772, 1803

Divorce Resolutions
Nos. 1-112 : 159-62, 171-3
113-168 : 191-2, 208-9
169-225 : 207-8, 232-3
226-281 : 218-19, 256-7
282-336 : 231-2, 265-7
337-390 : 306-7, 338-9
391-437 : 358-9, 396-7
438-487 : 426-7, 458-7
488-568 : 485-7, 568
569-621 : 594-5, 612-13
622-656 : 639-40, 661-2
657-696 : 775-6, 812-13

Divorce Resolutions – Concluded
697-737 : 813-14, 863-4
738-800 : 914-15
801-830 : 1133-4
831-890 : 1160-1, 1205-6
891-1021 : 1260-3, 1274-6
1022-1074 : 1406-7, 1408-9
1075-1122 : 1493-4, 1499
1123-1184 : 1542-3, 1570-1
1185-1224 : 1662-3, 1696-7
1225-1263 : 1720-1, 1748-9
1264-1304 : 1803, 1819

Documents tabled, see Journals of the Senate

Dominion Day, inquiry, Hon. Mr. Davey, re establishments conducting business on July 1, 854, 1067, 1072

Drugs, see Food and drugs

Duggan, Hon. James
Introduction to the Senate, 978

Dutch Elm Disease, 294-6, 404-5, 413-14

Economic Council of Canada, 228
Annual Review ref to Special Joint Committee on Consumer Credit (Cost of Living), 1195-6
Precedent as to passage of 1936 bill, 357

Economic prospects
Atlantic provinces, 816-20
Canada Development Corporation, 230-1
"Creative federalism", 229-30
Excerpt from Fortune, 230
Criteria and discipline in government administration, 229-30
Economic Council of Canada, 228
Economic development of Canada and Government responsibility, 228-31
Economic wealth and per capita spending, 838
Educational requirements, 229, 230
Foreign investments in Saskatchewan industry, 32
Gold and uranium potential, 543-7
Gross national product, 51, 298
Incomes, Atlantic provinces, 817, 819
Inflationary tendencies, 120-1, 124, 543, 838, 949, 954, 1040-4, 1049-50, 1214, 1217
Manpower and national resources, effective use of, 52
New Brunswick, 57-58, 280-2
Northwest Territories, 588-92, 607-10, 645-8

Economic prospects – Concluded
Pressure on economy through rapid expansion, 228
Productive potential, 228
Unemployment decrease, 51
U.S. control of gold price, 543-4
U.S. investment guidelines, effect on Canadian economy, 119-20, 123-4
Yukon Territory, 710-11

Education
Adult occupational training, 1885, 1897-1914
Education vs economy, Family Herald report, 310
Federal-provincial fiscal arrangements, 1620-31, 1633-43
France, child instruction, 309-10
Jurisdiction in educational matters, 793-6
Medical profession, training years, 838-9
New Brunswick, 281
Newfoundland, 98
Ontario capital costs, 1637, 1642
Provincial jurisdiction, 1635, 1639-41
Requirements in economic development of nation, 229, 230
Rural education in relation to local livelihood, 308-10
Scholarships and bursaries, 44-45, 766
Skill training vs true education, 425
Student loans, 765-9, 792-6, 811, 929
Technical and vocational training, 74, 425, 766, 921, 1001-2, 1905-6
University degrees, question as to necessity of, 308
University grants and loan statistics, 308, 767, 768, 1663-4
See Adult occupational training,
Student loans,
Technical and vocational training,
Universities.

Electoral boundaries
Commissions' reports, inquiry, Hon. Mr. Pouliot, 93
Gaspé County, 355
Judicial appointments to commission of inquiry, 353-4
Langlois Commission, 354
Maps, inquiry, Hon. Mr. Pouliot, 726
Maps on redistribution, procedure in redrawing of, 352, 354-5
Newspaper articles by Hon. Mr. Pouliot, 354
Objections by Members of Parliament, 337-8, 353-6
Precedent as to passage of 1936 bill, 357
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Connolly, John J., 408-9
Pouliot, Jean-François, 305, 337-8, 352-7, 409
See also Redistribution

Electoral Boundaries Readjustment bill S-22. Hon. Mr. Pouliot. 1r, 305; 2r, 337-8, 352-7, 408-9; bill withdrawn, 409

Electricity
Atlantic provinces, 57-58, 279-80, 842, 843
Brinco corporation, Nfld., 842, 843
New Brunswick, 57-58, 842-3
Private enterprise, Alberta, 843
Public Utilities income tax transfer to provinces, 840-3
Western Canada, 322-4, 843

Emergency sittings
Authority to convene Senate during adjournments, 25
Parliament recalled from recess to deal with maintenance of railways, 978

Employment
Alwinsal Potash of Canada Ltd., 789
Automotive industry, 618, 622, 756, 780-2
Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting Co., 788
Indians, The Pas, 324
Senior citizens, 73-74
Technical and vocational training programs, 74
Vocational trainees, employment status of, 722
See Labour

Endocrinology, International Society of, bill S-29. Hon. Mr. Molson. 1r, 413; 2r, 513-15; ref to com, 515; rep of com without amdt, 688; 3r, 688; r.a., 930

Estimates
Agriculture department, 349, 926, 927
Amending of legislation without parliamentary procedure, 286-7
Atlantic Provinces Power Development Act, 630
Atomic Energy Control Board, 349
Auditor General's report, 119
Authority to supplement other votes to provide for unforeseen expenses, 1172
Borrowing powers, 284-5, 351-2, 928
Borrowing statistics, 285
Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, 287-8, 1216, 1665, 1722
Capital outflow of Canadian funds, 120
Centennial Commission, 1171, 1354, 1918
Colombo Plan and wheat sales to India, 771
Commercial and fishing vessels, 1763, 1916
Commitment according to terms of item, 371, 928
Commonwealth Parliamentary Association, 628
Contingencies, 1213
Defence goods and services, 1724
Dollar items, 123, 125, 286, 288, 289, 771-2, 773, 1760-1
Dominion Coal Board, 1213
Economic Council, 1665-7
Effect of Appropriation bill No. 6, statistical table, 917
Energy, Mines and Resources, 1763, 1916-17
Estimates (1966-67) including budgetary expenditures and loans excluding old age security payments, table printed in Debates, 918, 924
Expo67, 1171, 1667

Estimates – Continued
External Affairs, 283-4, 350, 627, 629
External aid, India and Pakistan, 1244-9, 1916
Feed assistance to provinces, 771
Finance Department, 349, 627
Fisheries, 629, 631, 725, 801-2, 926, 1763, 1917
Foreign aid, 1171, 1244-9, 1763, 1916
Forestry and rural development, 628, 1917
Freight assistance and maintenance of branch lines, 920, 1000, 1213
Glassco Commission recommendations, implementation of, 119, 123, 297, 1664-5
Government expenditures, 108-09, 298-299, 1214
Statistics, 299
Governor General's warrants, 108, 121-2, 124-5
Gross National Product, 51, 298, 1722-5
Health and Welfare, 350-1
House of Commons, 350, 1763
Immigrants, assistance to, 920, 1000
Indians, loans and advances, 287, 288, 289
Inflationary tendencies, 120-1, 124, 1214, 1217
International Bank for Reconstruction and Development, 928
Justice Department, 350, 926, 1917
Library of Parliament, 921
Loans and advances
Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, 287-8
External Affairs, 283-4
Indians, 287, 288, 289
Mines and Technical Surveys, 927-8
St. Lawrence Seaway Authority, 926
World Exhibition, Canadian Corporation, 926
Manpower and immigration, 318-19, 1213
Maritime Commission, 349, 351
Maritime transmission lines, etc., 1172
Mines and Technical Surveys, 350, 627, 926, 927
Moneys allocated to specific vote, transfer of, 1665
National Capital Plan, 1170
National Defence, 1214-15
Accommodation overseas, 1215, 1352
Mutual aid, 1214-15, 1352
Oromocto, 1214, 1352
National Employment Service, 920, 1000
National Gallery, 1215, 1352-4, 1917
National Harbours Board, 349-50
National parks, 318, 1171
National Research Council, scholarships and grants, 349, 927
Northern Affairs and National Resources, 351, 629-30, 926
Northumberland Strait construction, 771-2, 773
Old Age Security fund, 285, 298, 1766-7
Payments within one month from end of fiscal year, 371
Payroll payment before interim supply passed, 1172
Privy Council, 1916
"Public expenditure, spending and control", U.K. White Paper, 319, 1666-7
Public Service, 1764-5, 1916
Research satellite program, 1171
Road construction, 1763
St. Lawrence Seaway Authority, 926

Estimates—Concluded
Salaries, 1171
Senate, 1917
Solicitor General, penitentiaries, 351
Supplementary (A), 771-3, 853-4, 1557, 1588-90, 1663-7
Supplementary (B) tabled, 848
Supplementary (C), 1174-5, 1588-90, 1663-7
Supplementary (E), 330-1, 367-70, 385
Supplementary (F), 1664
Supplementary (G), 1664
Supply (1966-67), table printed in Debates, 925
Technical and vocational training, 921, 1001-2
Transport department, 349, 351, 926
Travel Bureau, 1918
Undertaking by Leader of Government that passage of bill will not preclude further discussion, 916, 919-20
University grants and research, 1215, 1763
U.S. investment guidelines, effect on Canadian economy, 119-20, 123-4
Veterans Affairs, 351, 920-1, 1000-1, 1214, 1215
Water resources, 926
Winter works, 297-8, 318-19, 334-5, 494-5
Quebec, Atlantic provinces and Ontario, 297-8, 318-19, 332-5, 494-5
Terms of program, 333
Unemployed absorbed in, 333-4
World Exhibition, Canadian Corporation, 926, 1527-33, 1762-3, 1765-6, 1918

Estimates, referred to Finance Committee
Fiscal year ending Mar. 31/66, m agreed to, 39-40
Authority to print proceedings, 69
Report, 293, 297-9, 318-20, 331-5, 373-7, 494-5
Supplementary (E), 330-1
Authority to print proceedings, 367
Report, 367-70, 385
Fiscal year ending Mar. 31/67, m agreed to, 331
Authority to print proceedings, 432
Supplementary (A), 771-3
Authority to print proceedings, 853-4
Report, 1577, 1588-90, 1663-7, 1721-6
Supplementary (B) tabled (not ref to Com), 848
Supplementary (C), 1174-5
Report, 1577, 1588-90, 1663-7, 1721-6
Fiscal year ending Mar. 31, 1968, m agreed to, 1833-4

Evangelical Convenant Church of Canada bill S-38. Hon. Mr. Hnatyshyn. 1r, 650; 2r, 704; ref to com 704; rep of com with amdt, 848-9; 3r, 868; r.a., 1442

Evangelistic Tabernacle Incorporated bill S-7. Hon. Mr. Thorvaldson. 1r, 39; 2r; 67-68; ref to com, 68; rep of com without amdt, fee paid last session, 134; 3r, 134; r.a., 397; refund of fees, 1241

Everett, Hon. Douglas D.
Criminal Code (Hate Propaganda) bill S-49, 1279-81
Bill of Rights, 1279
Freedom of speech, 1280
Genocide, 1279
Group or identifiable group, 1279-80
Hate Propaganda, Committee on, 1280, 1281
Introduction to the Senate, 1135
National Museums bill S-57, 1617-20
Board of Trustees, and powers, 1618-19
Objectives, 1619-20
NATO Parliamentarians conference at Paris, 1779-80
Military commitment and peacekeeping responsibility of Canada, 1779-80

Excelsior Life Insurance Company bill S-26. Hon. Arthur L. Beaubien. 1r, 393; 2r, 406-8; ref to com, 408; rep of com without amdt, 496; 3r, 496

Exchange bill, see Bills of Exchange

Exchequer Court
Deputy registrars, appt. of, 814, 815
Fees, 814, 815
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Hugessen, A.K., 814
Macdonald, John M., 814-15

Exchequer Court bill C-201. 1r, 790; 2r, 814-15; 3r, 854; r.a., 930

Excise tax
Articles progressively exempted, 797
Building materials, 799
Furs, 797, 798-9
Machinery and equipment, 797, 798-9
Margarine, 798, 830
Services, precedent in tax on, 798, 799
Tire retreads, 797, 798, 799
Two or more products in one package, 797
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Burchill, G. Percival, 799
Cook, Eric, 797-8
Macdonald, John M., 798

Excise tax and old age security fund
Building materials, 1585
Carter Commission report, 1601
Committee on Aging, findings, 1599-1600, 1602
Tax increase and progressive exemptions, 1585
Tax increase in relation to Old age Security fund, 1599-1601
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Grosart, Allister, 1596-1602
Hayden, Salter A., 1584-6, 1602-4

Excise tax bill C-198. 1r, 769; 2r, 797-9; 3r, 811; r.a., 929

Excise Tax bill and old Age Security bill C-268. 1r, 1554; 2r, 1584-6, 1596-1604; ref to com, 1604; authority to print com proceedings, 1604; rep of com without amdt, 1604-5; 3r, 1605; r.a., 1611

Expo67
Events commemorating Canada's Centennial Year, 1554-6
Travel arrangements for Senators, 1812
See World Exhibition

Export and import permits
Area control, 345
Authority of Governor in Council, 345
Export controls, 345-6
Intergovernmental arrangement, 364-6
Permits, 345
Rhodesia, restrictions on trade with, 345, 364-6
Legality of, 364-6, 393-4
Strategic materials, 345-6, 365
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Benidickson, W.M., 344-6, 347
Brooks, A.J., 346-7
Choquette, Lionel, 394
Connolly, John J., 366-7, 393-4
Thorvaldson, Gunnar S., 363-6

Export and Import Permits bill S-23. 1r, 313; 2r, 344-7; ref to com, 347; authority to print com proceedings, 363; m for 3r, 363-7; 3r, 393-4; r.a., 547

Export credits insurance
Contracts approved by Governor in Council, 1316-17
Contracts with an exporter, 1314, 1316
Liability under contracts outstanding, 1314-15
Power to accept note, etc., of foreign government and reschedule debts, 1315
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Brooks, A.J., 1315-16
Leonard, T. D'Arcy, 1314-15, 1316-17

Export Credits Insurance bill C-253. 1r, 1314; 2r, 1314-17; 3r, 1317; r.a., 1339

External aid
Food and money distribution methods, 1247-9
Hindu Kush River dam being built by Canadians, 1247
India and Pakistan, drought and hunger conditions, 1244-9
Italy, flood distress, 1248-9
Letter from Prime Minister of India, 1244-5
Oxfam of Canada, 1246
Transportation costs, 1248

External Relations Committee
Commonwealth, motion by Hon. Mr. Thorvaldson that Committee make inquiry into, 270-2
Authority to print proceedings, 432
Members, 25, 314

Fair wages and hours of labour
Fringe benefits, 697
Jurisdiction over wages and hours of labour, 702
Labour-management representations, 697
Minimum wage in Nova Scotia, 698, 702
Overtime, 686
Penalties, 686
Powers of Governor in Council and minister, 700-1
Standard rate of pay, 686
Statement by Vice-President of CLC, 702
Working hours, 686
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Grosart, Allister, 700-2
Hnatyshyn, John, 696-7
Macdonald, John M., 698-700, 702
Roebuck, Arthur W., 702
Smith, Donald, 685-7, 703-4

Fair Wages and Hours of Labour bill C-2. 1r, 649; 2r, 685-7, 696-704; ref to com, 704; authority to print com proceedings, 744; rep of com without amdt, 744; 3r, 744; r.a., 758

Farm credit
Capital increase, 516-18
Cost-price squeeze, 518-19, 520
Family farms, 519-20
Interest rates, 519
Land prices, 520-1
Loan losses, 517
Loan statistics, 517, 521
Machinery costs, 518
Mortgage loans, 517
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Argue, Hazen, 519-22
Aseltine, Walter M., 517-19
Hays, Harry, 515-17

Farm Credit bill C-171. 1r, 401; 2r, 515-22; ref to com, 522; rep of com without amdt, 525; 3r, 541; r.a., 547

Farming
Agricultural program of Liberal party, excerpts from pamphlet on, 732
Cattle produce, 732
Cost-price squeeze, 674

Farming – Concluded
Crop exports, 732
Farm Leadership Awards, 675
Income, farm families, 549-50
Income, rural non-farm families, 549-50
Livestock feed assistance, 1076, 1083-90, 1096-9, 1104-7, 1116-19, 1129-33, 1137-8, 1158-60, 1168-9, 1175
Loss in farm population, 582-3, 664-5
Producers in western Canada, 730-5
Production costs and sales prices, 733-4
Rural economic development, 548-51, 662-6, 671-7, 714, 726-7, 929, 1551-3, 1564-7
Rural poverty, 308-10, 549, 551, 672, 906-7
Saskatoon Prairie Conference, 734-5
Two-price system, 734
Unemployed settlers and farmers, inquiry by Labour Dept., 663
Youth interest in 4-H clubs, 1106
See Agriculture,
Livestock feed assistance,
Rural economic development.

Farris, Hon. J.W. de B.
Bank of British Columbia bill S-16, 133, 144-5
Canada-United Kingdom Income Tax Agreement bill C-154, 445-6
Canadian Forces Reorganization bill C-243, 1857
Combines Investigation and Criminal Code bill C-169, 461
Ministers' participation in Senate debates, Rule No. 18A, 471-3

Fauteux, Hon. Gerald, Puisne Judge of the Supreme Court
Royal assent, 291

Favreau, Hon. Guy, President of the Queen's Privy Council
Author of Amendment of the Canadian Constitution, 126-7

Federal-Provincial Fiscal Arrangements
Contracting out, 1625
Education, post-secondary, 1622-5, 1635-8, 1642-3
Bladen Commission, 1636, 1637-8
Newsletter from Dept. of Manpower and Immigration, 1635-6
Ontario capital costs, 1637, 1642
Operating costs, 1636
Provincial jurisdiction, 1635, 1641
Universities qualified for grants, 1633-4
Equalization, principle of, 1634-5
General equalization payments, 1626-30, 1638
Exceptions, 1630
Provincial entitlements, 1627-8
Jurisdiction in tax fields, 1639-41
Prince Edward Island, 1633
Principles decided on at conference in Oct/66, 1620
Provincial revenue stabilization payments, 1625
Succession duties, 1626
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Connolly, John J., 1620-31, 1633-4, 1641-3
McCutcheon, M. Wallace, 1634-41, 1642

Federal-Provincial Fiscal Arrangements bill C-277. 1r, 1604; 2r, 1620-31, 1633-43; ref to com, 1643; authority to print com proceedings, 1660; rep of com without amdt, 1660; 3r, 1670; r.a., 1768

Fees, parliamentary
Baptist General Conference of Canada bill S-43, refund, 1480
Evangelistic Tabernacle Inc., fee paid last session, 134
United Baptist Woman's Missionary Union of the Maritime Provinces, refund, 987

Felicitations
Bourget, Hon. Maurice, Privy Council appointment, 162
Crerar, Hon. T.A., 60th wedding anniversary, 100
Davey, Hon. Keith, appointment as Commissioner of Canadian Football League, 774-5
Macdonald, Hon. W. Ross, Citizen of the Year award from Brantford Junior Chamber of Commerce, 187
Macdonald, Hon. W. Ross, Honorary President of Junior Chamber of Commerce, 878
MacKenzie, Hon. Norman A., National President of Association of Canadian Clubs, 688-9
Power, Hon. C.G., honorary degree of Doctor of Laws, 607
Roebuck, Hon. Arthur W., 89th birthday, 1515-16

Fergusson, Hon. Muriel McQ.
Aging, Senate Special Committee, 129-31
Canadian Conference on Aging, Toronto, 130
Davis, Dr. R.E.G., consultant, 129
Income for older persons, 130
Organizations in other countries, 130, 131
Financial Administration bill C-182, 1491-3
Responsibilities of Treasury Board, 1492-3
Prison administration, female inmates, inquiry, 915

Film Development Corporation
Agreement with other countries as to national films, 1426
Awards, 1429, 1431
Distribution of films, 1431
Dubbing, 1427
Film Commissioner as member of Board, 1429, 1430-1
Films and film makers of Canada, 1430
Financial arrangements, 1428-9, 1432, 1556, 1558-9
Members, 1425, 1557, 1559
Objects and powers of corporation, 1425
Outside control, danger of, 1429, 1432
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Cameron, Donald, 1430-2
Denis, Azellus, 1558, 1559
Deschatelets, Jean-Paul, 1424-8, 1557-9
O'Leary, M. Grattan, 1428-30
Thorvaldson, Gunnar S., 1556-7

Film Development Corporation bill C-204. 1r, 1408; 2r, 1424-32; ref to com, 1432; authority to print com proceedings, 1543; rep of com without amdt, 1544; 3r, 1556-9; r.a., 1611

Finance Charges (Disclosure) bill S-3. Hon. Mr. Croll. 1r, 28-29; m for 2r, 359; m in amdt to ref bill to joint committee, agreed to, 359

Finance Committee
Members, 26, 269, 314
Reports
Dairy Commission bill C-205. Authority to print proceedings, 853; rep without amdt, 853
Estimates, fiscal year ending Mar. 31/66, 293, 297-9, 318-20, 331-5, 373-7, 494-5
Authority to print proceedings, 69
Supplementary (E), 367-70, 385
Authority to print proceedings, 367
Estimates, fiscal year ending Mar. 31/67, 331, 1577, 1588-90
Authority to print proceedings, 432
Supplementary (A), 771-3, 1577, 1588-90, 1663-7, 1721-6
Supplementary (B), not ref to com, 848
Supplementary (C), 1174-5, 1577, 1588-90, 1663-7, 1721-6
National Research Council bill C-150. Authority to print proceedings, 540-1; rep with amdts, 581, 599, 611-12
Science Council of Canada bill C-149. Authority to print proceedings, 541; rep without amdt, 541

Financial administration
Governor General's warrants, 1511-12
Treasury Board responsibilities and powers, 1492-3, 1498-9, 1510-14
Delegation of, 1511
Glassco Commission recommendations re, 1513, 1514
President, 1513, 1515
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Blois, Fred M., 1498-9
Connolly, John J., 1515
Fergusson, Muriel McQ., 1491-3
McCutcheon, M. Wallace, 1510-15

Financial Administration bill C-182. 1r, 1480; 2r, 1491-3, 1498-9, 1510-15; 3r, 1526; r.a., 1541

Fisheries
Arctic char, monopoly by federal Government, 467
Atlantic provinces, development programs, 280-1
Steel trawlers and wooden vessels, 280
Training of fishermen, officers and crew, 280
B.C. fishermen and packers, agreement re prices, 458-62
B.C. Indian fishermen, 482-3
Encroachment by foreign fishermen, 482

Fisheries – Concluded
Federal Government assistance to industry, 463-6
Inspection regulations, 465-6, 479
Instruction and research, 480-1
Lamprey control and research, inquiry, Hon. Mr. Brooks, 629, 725, 801-2
Newfoundland inshore fishermen, 95-96
Nova Scotia, 377-80
First place in dollar volume of landed fish, 477-8
Inshore fishermen, 479-80
Loans for new construction, 479
Subsidies, 95-96, 364-70
Socialism, question of, 467-9
Twelve-mile limit, 631, 725, 802
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Choquette, Lionel, 467
Crerar, T.A., 468
Gladstone, James, 481-2
Hollett, Malcolm, 468-9
O'Leary, Clement A., 477-80
Phillips, Orville H., 480-1
Roebuck, Arthur W., 468, 469
Smith, Donald, 463-8, 482-3

Fisheries Development bill C-145. 1r, 401; 2r, 463-70, 477-82; ref to com, 483; authority to print com proceedings, 524-5; rep of com, 525; 3r, 541; r.a., 547

Flag, national
Burning of Flag by students on Parliament Hill, 1114

Flynn, Hon. Jacques, P.C.
Appropriation bill No. 3 C-157, 371-2
Bank bill and Quebec Savings Banks bill C-3, 315
Bankruptcy bill S-17, 263-5, 809-10
Creditor's lack of interest when bankruptcy declared, 264-5
Proposals, 263
Solicitor-Client privilege, 809-10
Superintendent's authority, 263
Bouffard, Hon. Paul H., the late, 152-3
Comtois, Hon. Paul, the late, 152
Corporations bill S-51, 1107
Corporations without share capital, 1107
Legislative authority of Parliament, extension of, 1107
Supplementary letters patent, 1107
Criminal Code (Hate Propaganda) bill S-49, 1366-7, 1661
Penalty, 1367
Divorce (Extension of Grounds) bill S-19, 487-9
Le Devoir, editorial by Claude Ryan, 488-9
Quebec and Newfoundland, exclusion from provisions, 488, 489
Income Life Insurance Company bill S-11, 143-4

23031—147½

Flynn, Hon. Jacques, P.C. – Concluded
Judges bill C-267, 1519-22
Admiralty districts, 1520
Capacities forbidden to judge unless by special appointment, 1520
Salary for extra-judicial services, 1520
Labour (Safety) Code bill S-35, 658-60, 850-1
Motor vehicles, authority of Governor in Council re, 850, 851
Restrictions in application of code, 659-60
Water supplies and sanitary facilities, 659, 660
Lands surveys bill S-48, 983
Laurier Life Insurance Company bill S-27, 404, 493-4
Livestock Feed Assistance bill C-218, 1096-8
Board, functions of, 1097-8
Price variations, 1097
National Museums bill S-57, 1700-1
Public Service Staff Relations bill C-170, 1487-9
Arbitration boards, 1489
Public sector, right to strike, 1487-8
Quebec Savings Banks bill C-223, 1747
Rural Economic Development Fund bill C-151, 726

Food and drugs (LSD)
Clinical use, 1795-7, 1799
Dangerous effects and reactions, 1793, 1797-1802, 1813-14
Death of student John Stern attributed to LSD, 1797, 1801, 1813
Glamorizing of LSD through news media, 1801-2, 1813, 1821, 1828, 1830
Leary, Timothy, head of psychedelic cult, 1797, 1799, 1801, 1813
Conviction and sentence, 1813
Legal distribution, 1795
Medical care for addicts, 1818, 1846-7
Originators of, 1795, 1796
Penalties, 1845-8
Press comments, 1799-1802, 1821
Study by UN Narcotics Commission, 1783
Toronto Star report on LSD party, 1800-1
University of Toronto weekend "Perception 67" on drug experience, 1801
Unwin, J. Robertson, McGill University, article on glamorizing of LSD through news media, 1801-2
Vancouver School Board publication re dangers of LSD, 1799-1800
Mental health statistics, 1822, 1826-7
News media, glamorizing of drugs, 1821-2, 1828, 1830
Onus of proof, 1830
Penalties, 1823, 1829-30
Youth protests, 1825-6
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Connolly, John J., 1847
Croll, David A., 1798-1802
Gershaw, F.W., 1795-6
Hollett, Malcolm, 1818-19, 1846, 1847, 1848
Macdonald, John M., 1817-18
McDonald, A. Hamilton, 1792-5, 1817-18, 1829-30, 1846-7
McGrand, Fred A., 1825-7
Molson, Hartland de M., 1845-6

Food and drugs (LSD) – Concluded
Speakers: Honourable Senators – Concluded
Phillips, Orville H., 1823-5
Prowse, J. Harper, 1827-9
Sullivan, Joseph A., 1796-8
Thorvaldson, Gunnar S., 1821-2
Walker, David, 1812-17

Food and Drugs bill S-60. 1r, 1772; 2r, 1792-1802, 1812-19, 1821-30; ref to com, 1830; authority to print com proceedings, 1833; rep of com with amdts, 1845-8

Forestry
Dutch Elm disease, 294-6, 404-5, 413-14
Woodlot implements, tariff on, 671

Fournier, Hon. Edgar
Address in reply to Speech from the Throne, 57-64
Adult Occupational Training bill C-278, 1905-9
Age limit, 1908
Commonwealth training program, 1907
Technical and vocational training schools, 1905-6
Atlantic Development Board bill C-213, 820
Ship-building industry, 820
Capital punishment, 59
Criminal Code (Hate propaganda) bill S-49, 1114
Cartoonists, 1114
Flag burning on Parliament Hill, 1114
Crop Insurance bill C-208, 912-13
Immigration Appeal Board bill C-220, 1580-1
Lack of communication with immigrants, 1581
White Paper on Immigration, 1581
Industries, assistance advocated, 57
New Brunswick hydro developments, 57-58
Saint John River, Dickey Dam, 57-58
Old Age Security bill C-251, 1328-31
Income requirement form, 1329-30
Social security without responsibility, 1330
Public Utilities Income Tax Transfer bill C-211, 842-3
Beneficiaries of transfer, 842
Brinco Corporation, Newfoundland, 842, 843
New Brunswick, question of benefits, 842-3
Refund limits, 842
Taxi service from Ottawa railway station, 1580
Traffic accidents, 60-64, 1331
Emotions contributing to accidents, 60-61
"Hospitality on the Highway", safety program of Highway Safety Council, 1331
"It could happen to you", TV program for highway safety education, 64
Suggestions for government co-operation in prevention of, 62-63
United Nations, twenty-first session of General Assembly, 1165-6

Fournier, Hon. Sarto
Address in reply to Speech from the Throne, 541-7
Divorce, children involved in, 136, 137-8
Economic development, 542-6
Gold, 543-4
Subsidies, 543
U.S. control of price, 543-4
Inflationary tendencies, 543
International Nuclear Energy Commission, NATO resolution re, 545-6
Uranium, 544-7
France, international relations with respect to sale of uranium, 546-7
Negotiations with USSR, 546
Potential, 544-6

France
Jet purchases from, 312
Uranium sales, potential for, 544-7
Withdrawal from military alliance, 1441

Freight assistance, inquiry, Hon. Mr. Brooks, 920, 1000

French-Canadian liberalism, question of privilege, Hon. Mr. Pouliot, 272-3

Gelinas, Hon. Louis P.
Bank bill and Quebec Savings Banks bill C-3, 314-15

General Mortgage Service Corporation bill S-8. Hon. Mr. Leonard. 1r, 39; 2r-ref to com, 68; rep of com without amdt, 167; fee paid last session, 168; 3r, 187; Commons amdt, 1233; r.a., 1263

Gershaw, Hon. F.W.
Address in reply to Speech from the Throne, 80-82
Divorce (Extension of Grounds) bill S-19, 273-4
Collusion, 273-4
Unsound mind, five year period questioned, 274
Food and Drugs bill S-60, 1795-6
LSD, adverse effects from uncontrolled use of, 1795
Clinical uses, 1795-6
Indians, status in Centennial Year, 1609-10
Health services, 1610
Pioneers of Canada, 1609-10
Treaties and land rights, 1610
Livestock Feed Assistance bill C-218, 1158-9
Community pastures, 1159
Cost-price squeeze for food producers, 1159
Transportage, shortage of box cars, 1158

Gershaw, Hon. F.W. – Concluded
Medical Care bill C-227, 1259-60
Alberta plan, 1260
Costs to individuals and to Government, 1259, 1260
Difficulties experienced in other countries, 1259
Hall report, 1259
Medicare, 80-82
Alberta Medical Plan, 80
Areas of special concern, 81
Costs, 80-81
Medical profession, lack of trained personnel, 81
Opinions expressed by Canadian Medical Assoc. and other groups, 80-81
Research needs, 81
Water resources, conservation of, 614-16
Flood and drought control, 615, 616
Irrigation projects, 616
Pollution of waters, 615

Gladstone, Hon. James
Appropriation bill No. 2 C-140, 289
Fisheries Development bill C-145, 481-2
B.C. Indians, 481-2
Encroachment by foreign fishermen, 482
Indians, 289, 995, 1605-8
Alcoholism on Indian reserves, background of, 1606
Centennial grants and projects, 1605
Cold Lake Reserve centennial committee, 1605
Education, 1607-8
Industrial schools, closing of, 1607-8
Elective system of government on reserves, 1608
Health services, 1607
Lack of representation in House of Commons, 995
Loans and advances to, 289
Reserves and Indian culture, preservation of, 1606
Status in Centennial Year, 1605-8
Treaties and land agreements, 1606-8
Livestock Feed Assistance bill C-218, 1098
Territorial definitions, 1098
Manitoba-Northwest Territories Boundary bill S-47, 995

Glassco, J. Grant, chairman of Royal Commission on Government Organization, 119, 123, 297, 420, 423-4, 682
See Government Organization

Gold, 543-4
Subsidies, 543
U.S. control of price, 543-4

Gouin, Hon. L.M.
Address in reply to Speech from the Throne, 35-37
Bilingualism and biculturalism, Canadian unity in development of, 36-37
Bouffard, Hon. Paul H., the late, 155-6
Comtois, Hon. Paul, the late, 156
Federal-provincial relations, 36
Flag and national anthem, 36
Jodoin, Hon. Mariana B., retired, 656
Peacekeeping activities, 35-36

Government
Criticisms of Government in railway dispute, 1021-3, 1028-30, 1032-6
Leadership of major parties, 565, 571
Monetary policy, 1045-7
Prestige of Parliament, 565, 571
Provincial affairs, infringement by federal government, 565-6

Government expenditures, 374-6, 567-71, 1656, 1685-8
Authority to supplement other votes to provide for unforeseen expenses (Payroll deduction), 1172
Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, 374-5, 376, 569-70, 1216, 1685-6
Centennial Performing Arts, 1066-7, 1069-71
Employees in government, increase in, 1687
Franking privileges, 375
Glassco recommendations, 119, 123, 297, 420, 423-4, 682, 1686-7
Gross National Product, decline in, 1686-8
Health and welfare programs, 902, 905
Inflationary trends, 1040-4, 1049-50, 1214, 1217
Loans, investments and advances, 375-6
Parliamentary secretaries, 375
See Estimates

Government organization
Chief Electoral Officer, 728
Crown lands, 682-3
Energy, Mines and Resources, 682
Financial authority of departments, and management of resources, 297
Firms hired by Government to ascertain feasibility of Glassco recommendations, 123
Forestry and Rural Development, 123, 297, 420, 423-4, 682
Glassco Commission recommendations, 119, 123, 297, 420, 423-4, 682, 1686-7
Indian Affairs and Northern Development, 681
Industry, 694
Justice Department, 727
Labour, 681, 690-1
Manpower and Immigration, 680-1, 685, 695
National Revenue and Finance, 694
Public Works, 694
Registrar General, 680
Reduction of votes in estimates, 1664-5
Secretary of State, 683, 684
Scientific policies, 420, 423-4

Government organization – Concluded
Solicitor General, 679
Access to files of RCMP, 679-80
Statistics on implementation of Glassco recommendations, 119
Treasury Board President, 683, 684, 695
Water resources, recommendation re, 682
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Choquette, Lionel, 685-92
Connolly, John J., 677-85
McCutcheon, M. Wallace, 692-5
Pouliot, Jean-François, 727-9

Government Organization bill 1966 C-178. 1r, 649; 2r, 677-85, 689-96; ref to com, 696; authority to print com proceedings, 714; rep of com without amdt, 715; 3r, 727-9; r.a., 758

Governor General
Deputy
Cartwright, Hon. J.R., 1541
Fauteux, Hon. Gerald, 291, 1924-5
Hall, Hon. Emmett M., 929-30, 976-7, 1339-40
Taschereau, Hon. Robert, 2, 131, 178, 397, 547, 647, 757-8, 1037, 1175, 1194, 1197, 1209, 1232, 1263, 1442, 1509
Opening of Parliament, 1-6
Speech from the Throne, 3-6
Prorogation of Parliament, 1924-7
Speech from the Throne, 1925-7

Governor General Georges Philias Vanier
Deceased March 5, 1967
Tributes, 1572-8

Governor General Roland Michener, installation of, 1772, 1783-5

Governor General's Retiring Annuity
Annuity amount, 1496
Entertainment allowance, 1496
Former Governors General, 1495, 1496
Salary, 1495, 1549
Widows, 1495
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Brooks, A.J., 1496-7, 1548-9
Connolly, John J., 1495-7, 1549

Governor General's Retiring Annuity bill C-265. 1r, 1495; 2r, 1495-7, 1548-9; 3r, 1559; r.a., 1611

Grain
Exports, 732
Feed assistance to provinces, 771
Producers in western Canada, 730-5
Production costs and sales prices, 733-4
Wheat for relief of drought and hunger conditions in India and Pakistan, 1244-9
Wheat sales to India, 771
See Livestock Feed Grain Assistance

Grant, Hon. Thomas V.
Retired August 19, 1965
Tributes, 19
Deceased December 24, 1966
Tributes, 1351

Grey Cup, see Sports

Grosart, Hon. Allister
Adult Occupational Training bill C-278, 1901-4, 1912
Costs to government, 1904
Federal-provincial agreements, 1903
Aging, report of Senate Special Committee, 112-14
Income tax returns, 114
Means test, 114
Mental patients, treatment of, 113-14
Minimum income for Canadians at 65 years, 113
Appropriation bill No. 9 1966, C-248, 1216
Appropriation bill No. 2, 1967 C-282, 1759-61
Appropriation bill No. 3, 1967 C-283, 1766-8
Appropriation bill No. 4, 1967 C-293, 1919
Automotive products, Canada-U.S. agreement, 747-57
Effect on Canadian industry, 750
Employment of skilled and unskilled workers, 756
Letters of Commitment, 752-3
Amendment proceedings as reported in U.S. Code Congressional News, 752-3
Procedure on implementation of treaties and agreements, 747-50, 753-5
Oppenheim's International Law, 754
Parliamentary approval, lack of, 753-5
Reduction of duties 'for concessions granted', 747-8
Trade deficit in automotive exports, 750-2, 756
Globe and Mail report on, 751-2
Canada Deposit Insurance Corporation bill C-261, 1353-5, 1456-9
Caisses populaires, 1453
Conflict with provincial act, 1457-8
Creditor remedies available, 1453-4
Deposit, definition of, 1457
Effective date of insurance, 1455-6
Failure of financial institutions, 1455
Failure of member institution, 1456
Financial Post article by president of Guaranty Trust Co., 1458-9
Inspections, 1454
Canadian Broadcasting Corporation TV program "Sunday", 1204-5

Grosart, Hon. Allister—Concluded
Commonwealth Parliamentary Association, Ottawa conference, 1065
Report on, 1080-3
Criminal Code (Hate Propaganda) bill S-49, 1204-5
Davey, Hon. Keith, appointment as Commissioner of Canadian Football League, 774
Divorce (Extension of Grounds) bill S-19, 239, 240, 427-31
Clarification of grounds, 429
Senate, inclusion as divorce court, 428
Estimates, 1759-1, 1766-7
Dollar items, 1760
Old Age Security Fund, 1766-7
Excise Tax bill and Old Age Security bill C-268, 1596-1602
Carter Commission report, 1601
Committee on Aging, findings, 1599-1600
Tax increase, in relation to Old Age Security fund, 1599-1601
External aid, transportation costs, 1248
Fair Wages and Hours of Labour bill C-2, 700-2
Labour-management representations, 697
Powers of Governor in Council and minister, 700-1
Statement by Vice-President of CLC and IBEW, 702
Interpretation bill S-9, 204-6
Broadcasting, radio, communication, 205
Commonwealth, 205-6
National Arts Centre bill C-194, 964-7
"Edifice complex", 966
National Capital Arts Alliance, 966
Ottawa arts centres of former years, 966
Secretary of State, contribution to the Arts, 965
NATO Parliamentarians, Canadian delegates, 1473
Northwest Territories bill C-146, 646-8
Self-government, 647-8
Old Age Security bill C-251, 1321-5
Groups disregarded under bill, 1322-3
Provincial pension plans, effect on, 1323
Recommendation of Senate Special Committee on Aging, 1322, 1324-5
Press report on passage of bills by Senate, 894
Public Service Employment bill C-181, 1500-7, 1508
Merit system, 1501, 1502
Parliamentary staff, 1502, 1506
Political activity, 1502, 1504-6, 1508
C.S. Commission memorandum re, 1505
Public Service Commission powers, 1502-4
Treasury Board responsibilities, 1501-2
Trade and foreign aid, 1081-2

Guides Catholiques du Canada (secteur français) bill S-24. Hon. Mrs. Jodoin. 1r, 343

Haig, Hon. J. Campbell
Aeronautics bill C-153, 512-13
Accidents, 512-13
Obstruction of investigation of accidents, 513
Powers of Board, 512

Haig, Hon. J. Campbell – Concluded
Aging, report of Special Senate Committee, 139-40
Community neglect of older people, 140
Social Workers Assoc. brief on, 140
Retirement preparations, discussions and program of United Automobile Workers, 139-40
Baptist General Conference of Canada bill S-43, 878, 894-5
Bill withdrawn and fees refunded, 1480
Commonwealth Parliamentary Assoc., Ottawa conference, inquiry, 600-3
Divorce (Extension of Grounds) bill S-19, 321-2
Illegal divorces, prevention of, 321-2
United Church General Council resolution, 321
Estimates, 1695-6
Mennonite Central Committee (Canada) bill S-37, 638-9
NATO Parliamentarians, 1473
Pan-American Games 1967 in Winnipeg, 745-6
Small Businesses Loans bill C-270, 1551

Hall, Hon. Emmett M., Puisne Judge of the Supreme Court of Canada
Royal Assent, 929-30, 976-7, 1339-40

Hastings, Hon. Earl A.
Crop Insurance bill C-208, 909-12
Calculation on individual record, 911
Costs of insurance, 911
Deductible, raising of, 912
Federal contribution, 911
Information to policyholders re benefits, 912
Maximum coverage, 911
Immigration Appeal Board bill C-320, 1567-70, 1583-4, 1670
Deportations, 1584
Immigrant census in industrial and scientific field, 1567
Immigration offices in communist countries, 1583
Non-immigrant arrival and departure cards, 1583
Officers and members of board, 1568-9
Permanent resident or landed immigrant, 1569
Security or criminal intelligence reports, 1570
Sponsorship, 1569
White Paper on Immigration, 1568
Introduction to the Senate, 199
Rainbow Pipe Line Company Limited bill S-52, 1077, 1091-2

Hate propaganda, see Criminal Code (Hate Propaganda)

Hayden, Hon. Salter A.
Automotive products, Canada-U.S. agreement, 779-87
Amdt to agreement, 782-3
Benefits to Canadian industry, 780-5
Employment, 780-2
Financial Post article on "Life Under the Auto Pact", 781-2
Ford Motor Co. expenditures in Canada, 780

Hayden, Hon. Salter A. – Continued
Automotive products – Concluded
Imbalance of payments, 785-6
Jigs, dies, et cetera, 787
Letter of Agreement, non-approval of extension, 783-4
Reciprocal concessions, 784-5
Trade agreements by order in council, 785
Bank bill C-222, 1740-3
Directors, 1741, 1743
Non-resident shareholders, 1742
Shares in loan or trust company, 1741
Bankruptcy bill S-17, 212-18, 277-9, 577-80, 759-60, 761, 809
Credit Grantors' Association brief, 277
Creditors' lack of interest to investigate, 277
Discharge from bankruptcy, 216-17, 579
Information to be furnished from trustee, 217, 579
Jurisdiction of federal Government, 277
Limitation on debt accumulation, 213
Mercier report, 277-8
Orderly payment of debts, 213
Preference as to debtor, 215-16
Proposal, 215, 579
Solicitor-client privilege, 578, 759-60
Summary administration, 212-13, 278
Superintendent of Bankruptcy, authority of, 213-14, 218, 577-8, 760
Trustees, screening of, 278
Bills of Exchange bill S-14, 268-9
Bouffard, Hon. Paul H., the late, 154
Canada-United Kingdom Income Tax Agreement bill C-154, 438-43, 446
Copyright royalties, 442
Exchange of information, 439-40
Pensions and annuities, 441-2
Profits from industrial or commercial operation, 440
Profits from ships or aircraft, 441
Residence requirements, 443
Supplementary agreement with Sweden, 438
Withholding tax, 438-9, 440
Citizenship bill S-59, 1789-90, 1808-9, 1810
Deserted infant or foundling, 1789-90
Domicile, 1808-9
Corporations bill S-51, 1108-9
"National" organizations, 1109
Criminal Code (Hate Propaganda) bill S-49, 1227-31
British Race Relations bill, 1227
Genocide, definition in UN Charter and responsibility of contracting nations, 1227-8
Hate literature, 1230
Human rights and fundamental freedoms, 1228-9
Racial riots and mass murders, 1227, 1231
Customs Tariff bill C-200, 762-5
Balloons, logging equipment, 763
Carnations, 762-3
Drawback, 764
GATT, 764
Extension of time for rates of duty, 762

Hayden, Hon. Salter A. – Continued
Customs Tariff bill – Concluded
Kennedy Round of Tariff Negotiations and Arrangements, 764
Liquorice, 763
Litharge, 763
Oriental rugs or carpets, 762
Potash and rock salt equipment, 763
Settlers' effects, 763-4
Well drilling equipment, 762
Excise Tax bill and Old Age Security bill C-268, 1584-6, 1602-4
Building materials, 1585
Committee on Aging, findings, 1602
Sales tax increase and progressive exemptions, 1585
Hugessen, Hon. A.K., retired, 1358-9
Income Tax Agreements bill S-56, 1369-76
Alimony and maintenance payments, 1373
Capital gains, 1374
Dividends and interest, 1372-3, 1375
Dual residence, 1375
Entertainers, 1374
Funnel Company, 1376
Insurance companies, 1375, 1376
Ireland, 1375-6
Movable property, 1374
Nonresident status of companies incorporated in Canada, 1371
Norway, 1376
Pension or annuity, 1374
Professional services, 1373
Royalties, 1373
Salaries, wages, etc., 1373
Teachers and students, 1373, 1376
Termination of U.S. agreement on six months' notice, 1370
Trinidad and Tobago, 1370
United Kingdom, 1370-5
Income Tax bill C-216, 943-8, 953-4
Capital cost allowance, 948
Charitable organization, 946
Communication of information, 946-7
Manufacturing or processing business, 946
Nonresident-owned investment corporation, 947
Oil and gas explorations "in Canada", 947
Potash mining, 945
Refundable tax, 947-8
Stock options, 944-5
Tax Appeal Board, extension of age limit for members, 945
Tuition fees, 943-4
Withholding tax, 944
Income Tax bill C-259, 1647-54, 1719-20
Canadian Vessel Construction Assistance Act, repeal of, 1652-3
Deferred profit sharing plan, 1647-51
Abuses, 1647-8
Forfeitures, 1649, 1651
Initial base of trust, 1649-50
Life insurance, 1651
Penalties, 1649
Vesting, 1648-50

Hayden, Hon. Salter A.—Concluded
Income Tax bill C-259 – Concluded
Dental expenditures, 1653
Scientific research, 1653-4
Supplementary unemployment benefit plans, 1652
Interpretation bill S-9, 852
Lands Surveys bill S-48, 997-8
Examination fees, 998
Payments to examiners, 997-8
Manitoba-Saskatchewan Boundary bill S-45, 993
National Museums bill S-57, 1701

Hays, Hon. Harry, P.C.
Farm Credit bill C-171, 515-17
Capital increase, 516
Loan losses, 517
Loan statistics, 517
Introduction to the Senate, 258

Health and Welfare
Aging, report of Senate Special Committee, 89
See also Aging
Assistance plan, 897-909, 931-5, 976
Health resources fund, 778, 831-40, 853, 868, 929
LSD, 1792-1802, 1812-19
Medicare, 80-82
See Food and Drugs,
Medical Care.

Health resources fund
Advisory Committee, 832
Allocations of fund, 831, 832, 834
Atlantic provinces, 831, 834
Calculation of costs, 832
Conditions of payment, 832
Gundy, C.L., and committee, 833, 836
Hall Commission on Health Services, 833, 834, 835
Health training facility, 831, 832
Medical profession, 833, 839
New Brunswick, 839
Research in Canada, 833, 836
Schools, lack of teaching personnel, 835-6
Training years, 838-9
Medicare, 839-40
Provincial requirements, 834-7
Ray Farquharson Clinical Investigation Unit, 833
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Beaubien, L.P., 837-8
Burchill, G. Percival, 839
Lang, Daniel A., 831-3
McCutcheon, M. Wallace, 834-7, 839-40
Phillips, Orville H., 838-9

Health Resources Fund bill C-199. 1r, 778; 2r, 831-40; ref to com, 840; rep of com without amdt, 853; 3r, 868; r.a., 929

Highway accidents, see Traffic accidents

Hnatyshyn, Hon. John
Deceased May 2, 1967
Canadian National Railway bill C-210 (Stall Lake-Watrous), 789-90
Potash potential in Saskatchewan, 789
Divorce (Extension of Grounds) bill S-19, 378-80
Senate Committee, 379-80
United Church General Council resolution, 379
Evangelical Convenant Church of Canada bill S-38, 650, 704
Fair Wages and Hours of Labour bill C-2, 696-7
Fringe benefits, 697
Labour-management representations, 697
Northwest Territories bill C-146, 645-6
Mineral production, 645
Pine Point Railway, 645
Self-government, 646
Yukon bill C-147, 710-11, 712
Finances, 712
Self-government, 711, 712

Hollett, Hon. Malcolm
Address in reply to Speech from the Throne, 93-99
Appropriation bill No. 5 C-189, 631
Churchill Falls, inquiry re development of, 707
Canadian Forces Reorganization bill C-243, 1884-5
Seconding to other countries, 1884
Citizenship bill S-59, 1776-8
Deserted infants or foundlings, 1777-8
Newfoundland, inclusion of, 1777
Combines Investigation and Criminal Code bill C-169 (B.C. fishermen and packers), 459, 460
Committee meetings, conflict with Senate and Commons sittings, 1078
Criminal Code (Hate propaganda) bill S-49, 1157
Divorce (Extension of Grounds) bill S-19, 240, 245
Fisheries Development bill C-145, 468-9
Fisheries, twelve-mile limit, inquiry, 631, 725, 802
Food and Drugs bill S-60, 1818-19, 1846, 1847, 1848
Medical care for addicts, 1818, 1846
Penalties, 1846
Government expenditures, 1656
Income Tax bill C-259, 1654-7
Subsidies for construction of small vessels in Atlantic provinces, 1655-7
Judges bill C-160, 392
National Transportation bill C-231, 1405
Newfoundland, 1405

Hollett, Hon. Malcolm – Concluded
Newfoundland
Inshore fishermen, federal Government subsidy to, 95-96
"Labrador takeover" by Quebec, suggestion by St. Jean Baptiste Society, 97-99
Judgment of British Privy Council re Newfoundland boundaries, 97-98, 553-4
Student aid, 98
Transportation, 1405
Newfoundland Additional Financial Assistance bill C-185, 552-5, 556, 557-8, 559
Boundaries, 553-4
Grants from federal Government, 554-5, 556, 557
McNair Commission recommendations, 552
National debt, 553
Perpetuity of agreement, 555, 556
Revenues and expenditures, 557
Trans-Canada Highway, 557
Public Service Staff Relations bill C-170, 1489-90
Results of strikes in certain sectors, 1490
Right to strike questioned, 1490
Small Businesses Loans bill C-270, 1539-40
Loans and losses, 1540
Monopolies, 1540
Newfoundland loans, 1540
Subsidies to fishermen and farmers, 95-96
Survey of Contemporary Indians in Canada, Hawthorn-Tremblay report, question of privilege, 1748
Wabana mines, inquiry re closing, 707

Housing, see National Housing

Hugessen, Hon. A.K.
Retired January 1, 1967
Tributes, 1355-60
Acting Leader of the Government in the Senate, 147
Appropriation bill No. 2 C-140, 283-5
Automotive products, Canada-United States agreement, 735-42
Date agreement enters into force, 739-40
Duty-free imports, clauses dealing with, 738-9
Procedure on treaties and agreements, 736
Constitutional Law, excerpt from, 736
International Waterways agreement, Sir Robert Borden quoted, 737
U.S. law, 737-8
Bouffard, Hon. Paul H., the late, 147-8
Bourget, Hon. Maurice, Privy Council appointment, 162
Commercial Solids Pipe Line Company bill S-36, 743-4
Commonwealth Parliamentary Association, Ottawa conference, 1063-4
Comtois, Hon. Paul, the late, 148-9
Corporations bill S-51, 1107-8
Company formations without parliamentary legislation, 1108
Religious organizations, 1108
Supplementary letters patent, 1107
Estimates, 283-5
Borrowing powers and statistics, 284-5
Loans, investments and advances, External Affairs, 283-4

Hugessen, Hon. A.K. – Concluded
Evangelical Convenant Church of Canada bill S-38, 848-9
Excelsior Life Insurance Company bill S-26, 407
Exchequer Court bill C-201, 814
Deputy registrars, appt. of, 814
Fees, 814
Income Tax bill C-216, 958
Stock options, 958
Interprovincial Pipe Line Company bill S-10, 133-4
Labour Safety (Code) bill S-35, 850, 851
Mechanical standards for vehicles and equipment, authority of Governor in Council re, 850
Lambert, Hon. Norman P., the late, 16
Manitoba-Saskatchewan Boundary bill S-45, 993
National Research Council bill C-150, 483-4
Name change of Research Council, 483
Science library, 484
Securities or money acquired by gift, bequest, or otherwise, 483-4
Ottawa Terminal Railway bill S-2, 84-86
Company powers, 85
Employees of railway unions, 85
Postal Services Interruption Relief bill S-55, 1295-6
Limitations under bill, 1295
Patent agents, protection for, 1295
Rainbow Pipe Line Co. Ltd. bill S-52, 1164
Redistribution bill C-126, 168, 170
Science Council of Canada bill C-149, 419-22
Council duties, 420
Expenses, 421
Glassco Commission recommendation re, 420
MacKenzie, Dr. J.C., recommendations submitted to Prime Minister, 420-1
Members, 419-20
Science organizations in other countries, 422
World Exhibition, Canadian Corporation, bill S-42, 891

Immigration
Assistance to immigrants, inquiry, Hon. Mr. Brooks, 920, 1000
Landed immigrant status, application for, 915-16
See Immigration Appeal Board

Immigration and Labour Committee
Members, 26, 269, 715, 1617
Report
Fair wages and Hours of Labour bill C-2. Authority to print com proceedings, 744; rep of com without amdt, 744

Immigration Appeal Board
Appeal Board powers, 1582, 1583
Deportations, 1582, 1584
Immigrant census in industrial and scientific field, 1567
Lack of communication with immigrants, 1581
Non-immigrant arrival and departure cards, 1583

Immigration Appeal Board – Concluded
Officers and members of board, 1568-9
Permanent resident or landed immigrant, 1569
Security or criminal intelligence reports, 1570
Screening of immigrants, 1811
Skills and education, restrictive emphasis on, 1582
Sponsorship, 1569
White Paper on Immigration, 1568, 1581, 1583
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Brooks, A.J. 1584, 1670
Fournier, Edgar, 1580-1
Hastings, Earl A., 1567-80, 1583-4
Pearson, Arthur M., 1581-3
See Citizenship

Immigration Appeal Board bill C-220. 1r, 1542; 2r, 1567-70, 1580-4; ref to com, 1584; authority to print com proceedings, 1660; rep of com without amdt, 1660; 3r, 1670-1; r.a., 1768

Immigration, Special Joint Committee
Appointment, 1065-66
Members
Commons, 1075, 1143, 1164, 1176
Senate, 1065
Message from Commons, 1075
Reports
Authority to sit in Toronto and Montreal, 1360
Immigration Appeal Board bill C-220. Authority to print com proceedings, 1660; rep of com without amdt, 1660-1
Third report re White Paper, meetings and witnesses, reconstitution of committee, 1922-3

Imports
Rhodesia, restrictions on trade with, 345-6
See Import and Export Permits bill S-23, Trade.

Income Disability and Reinsurance Company of Canada bill S-12. Hon. Mr. McDonald. 1r, 91; 2r, 144; ref to com, 144; rep of com without amdt, 167; 3r, 187; r.a., 1263

Income Life Insurance Company of Canada bill S-11. Hon. Mr. McDonald. 1r, 91; 2r, 143-4; ref to com, 144; rep of com without amdt, 167; 3r, 187; r.a., 1263

Income tax agreements
Alimony and maintenance payments, 1373
Capital gains, 1374
Dividends and interest, 1372-3, 1375, 1418-19
Dual residence, 1375
Entertainers, 1374
Funnel company, 1376
Insurance companies, 1375, 1376
Ireland, 1375-6
Movable property, 1374
Nonresident status of companies incorporated in Canada, 1371
Norway, 1376
Pension or annuity, 1374
Professional services, 1373
Royalties, 1373
Salaries, wages, etc., 1373
Teachers and students, 1373, 1376
Termination of U.S. agreement on six months' notice, 1370
Trinidad and Tobago, 1370
United Kingdom, 1370-5
Withholding tax, 1372-3, 1375, 1418-19
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Connolly, John J., 1376-7
Hayden, Salter A., 1369-76
Roebuck, Arthur W., 1377
Thorvaldson, Gunnar S., 1418-19

Income Tax Agreements bill S-56. 1r, 1350; 2r, 1369-77, 1418-19; 3r, 1424; r.a., 1541

Income Tax, bill C-216
Capital cost allowance, 948
Charitable organization, 946
Communication of information, 946-7
Manufacturing or processing business, 946
Nonresident-owned investment corporation, 947
Oil and gas explorations "in Canada", 947
Potash mining, 945, 951
Public utilities income tax transfer to provinces, 840-3
Refundable tax, 947-8, 949, 952
Stock options, 944-5, 950, 952-3, 956-60
Tax Appeal Board, extension of age limit for members, 945
Tuition fees, 943-4
Witholding tax, 944
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Connolly, John J., 960
Hayden, Salter A., 943-8, 953-4
Hugessen, A.K., 958
Leonard, T. D'Arcy, 958-9
McCutcheon, M. Wallace, 948-51, 954, 956-7, 958-9
Thorvaldson, Gunnar S., 951-3

Income Tax bill C-216. 1r, 943; 2r, 943-54; ref to com, 954; authority to print com proceedings, 956; rep of com without amdt, 956; m for 3r, 958, m in amdt, 956-61, defeated, 961; 3r, 961; r.a., 976

Income Tax, bill C-259
Canadian Vessel Construction Assistance Act, repeal of, 1652-3
Depreciation, 1653
Relief from recapture, 1653
Deferred profit sharing plan, 1647-51
Abuses, 1647-8
Forfeitures, 1649, 1650, 1651
Initial base of trust, 1649-50
Life insurance, 1651
Penalties, 1649
Vesting, 1648-50
Dental expenditures, 1653
Income tax returns, delay in receipt of and complications in form of, 1657-9
Scientific research, 1653-4
Subsidies for construction of small vessels in Atlantic provinces, 1655-7
Succession duties and estate tax, 1659
Supplementary unemployment benefit plans, 1652
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Aseltine, Walter M., 1657-9
Hayden, Salter A., 1647-54
Hollett, Malcolm, 1654-7
Roebuck, Arthur W., 1659-60

Income Tax bill C-259. 1r, 1647; 2r, 1647-60; ref to com, 1660; authority to print com proceedings, 1701; rep of com without amdt, 1701; 3r, 1719-20; r.a., 1768

Income Tax, bill C-280
Business profits, tax period on, 1914
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Connolly, John J., 1914
Thorvaldson, Gunnar S., 1914-15

Income Tax bill C-280. 1r, 1885; 2r, 1914-15; 3r, 1915; r.a., 1925

India and Pakistan
External aid to, 1244-9
Drought and hunger conditions, 1244-9
Food and money distribution methods, 1247-8, 1249
Hundu Kush River dam being built by Canadians, 1247
Oxfam of Canada, 1246
Shipping costs, 1248

Indians
Alcoholism on Indian reserves, 1606
Assistance Plan, extension of provisions to Indians, 899-900, 903, 908
B.C. fishermen, 481-2
Beothuk Indians, Newfoundland, 582
Centennial grants and projects, 1605
Contemporary Indians in Canada, A Survey of, Hawthorn-Tremblay report, 1713-15, 1748
Question of privilege, Hon. Mr. Hollett, 1748
Cold Lake Reserve centennial committee, 1605
Economic development, 1714
Education, 1607-8
Industrial schools, closing of, 1607-8
Elective system of government on reserves, 1608
Employment, The Pas, 324
Health services, 1607, 1610
Lack of representation in House of Commons, 995
Loans and advances to, 287, 288, 289
Northwest Territories, 588-9
Pioneers of Canada, 1609-10
Reserves and Indian culture, preservation of, 1606
Treaties and land agreements, 1606-7, 1610, 1714-15
The King v Syliboy, 1715
Status in Centennial Year, 1605-10, 1713-15
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Gershaw, F.W., 1609-10
Gladstone, James, 1605-8
Hollett, Malcolm, 1748
Macdonald, John M., 1713-15

Industrial research and development incentives
Authority of Governor in Council, 1562
Capital expenditures, 1536, 1561
Costs of government research, 1580
Engineering Institute of Canada, brief and recommendations to Government, 1550
Monopolies, 1562
"Prosecution" of scientific research, 1560
Questions on provisions of bill, 1550-1
Scientific activity in Canada as compared with other countries, 1536-7, 1550, 1562-3
Subsidiary firms, 1562
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Desruisseaux, Paul, 1533-7, 1562-3
Phillips, Orville H., 1559-62
Yuzyk, Paul, 1549-51

Industrial Research and Development Incentives bill C-252. 1r, 1524; 2r, 1533-7, 1549-51, 1559-63; ref to com, 1563; rep of com without amdt, 1591; 3r, 1591; r.a., 1611

Industry
Alwinsal Potash of Canada Ltd., 788-9
Atlantic provinces, 278-82, 816-20
Automotive products, Canada-U.S. agreement, 616-25, 735-42, 747-57, 779-87, 809, 853

Industry – Concluded
Fisheries, 280-1
Forestry, western provinces, 322, 323-4
Monoca A.G. company, 323
Gold mining, 543-4
Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting Co., 788
Hydro power, Nelson River, 322-3
Mining, western provinces, 325
Potash, Saskatchewan, 322, 325-6
Sulphur production by Shell (Canada) Ltd., 610-11
Uranium potential, 544-6

Inflation, 120-1, 124, 543, 838, 949, 954, 1040-4, 1049-50, 1214, 1217, 1671-4
Estimates, inflationary tendencies, 1214, 1217
Finance Committee conclusions summarized in 1959 report, 1040
Government proposals to counteract, 1040-4, 1049-50
Pensions, effect on, 1671-4

Inman, Hon. F. Elsie
Address in reply to Speech from the Throne, 100-3
Divorce (Extension of Grounds) bill S-19, 377-8
Children involved in divorce, 375
Newfoundland law, 377-8
National Transportation bill C-231, 1423
Passenger rail service to P.E.I., 1423
Problems of Maritimes, 1423
Tourist industry, 101-3
New Brunswick, 101, 103
Mactaquac Dam, 103
Newfoundland, 101-2
Nova Scotia, 103
Transcontinental tours for parliamentarians, 103

Inquiries
Atlantic Provinces Power Development Act, Hon. Mr. Burchill, 630, 725, 802-7
Centennial Performing Arts, allocation of grants, inquiry, Hon. Mr. Cameron, 1066-7, 1069-71
Churchill Falls, Hon. Mr. Hollett, 707
Commissions, name, nature, personnel and date of each, Hon. Mr. Pouliot, 1067-8, 1073-4
Commonwealth Parliamentary Assoc., Ottawa conference, Hon. Mr. Haig, 600-3
Constituencies of Canada, Hon. Mr. Pouliot, 810, 867, 1079-80, 1093-5
Dominion Day, inquiry, Hon. Mr. Davey, re establishments conducting business on July 1, 854, 1067, 1072
Dutch Elm disease, Hon. Mr. Roebuck, 294-6, 404-5, 413-14
Electoral Boundaries Commissions' reports, Hon. Mr. Pouliot, 93
Electoral boundaries, maps, Hon. Mr. Pouliot, 726
Fisheries, 12-mile limit, Hon. Mr. Hollett, 631, 725, 802
Freight assistance, Hon. Mr. Brooks, 920, 1000
Immigrants, assistance to, Hon. Mr. Brooks, 920, 1000
Judges, appointment as Commissioners, Hon. Mr. Pouliot, 93, 305-6, 391

Inquiries – Concluded
Labour conditions, Air Canada machinists and Postal workers, Hon. Mr. Cameron, 1124-5
Lamprey control and research, Hon. Mr. Brooks, 629, 725, 801-2
Legal fees and travelling expenses received by solicitors, lawyers, counsel and notaries public, Hon. Mr. Pouliot, 810, 867, 1147
Legal services, fees paid by Government to members of Quebec Bar, Hon. Mr. Pouliot, 604, 634, 650-3, 778-9
Manpower and mobility, inquiry, Hon. Mr. Brooks, 920, 1000
Northumberland Causeway, Hon. Mr. Phillips, 1811
Population of constituencies, Hon. Mr. Pouliot, 810, 867
Precedence and Protocol, Hon. Mr. Pouliot, 1834
Prison administration, female inmates, Hon. Mrs. Fergusson, 915
Redistribution, objections filed with Speaker of House of Commons, 224-5, 313-14
Senate chamber and reading room, lighting, Hon. Mr. Pouliot, 40
Senators, title after retirement, Hon. Mr. Lefrançois, 414
Technical and vocational training schools and research, Hon. Mr. Cameron, 921, 1001-2
Veterans hospitals, administration, inquiry, Hon. Mr. Brooks, 920-1, 1000-1
Wabana mines, Newfoundland, Hon. Mr. Hollett, 707

Internal Economy Committee
Appointment, 23
Members, 23
Report
Telephone service privileges for Senators, 92

International conferences
Canadian delegates, briefing and continuity of, 1463-4, 1467
NATO Parliamentarians, Canadian delegation, question of privilege, 1468-73

International Society of Endocrinology, see Endocrinology

Interparliamentary Group, Canada-United States
Report of Eighth Meeting, 163-5
Committees, Trade and Defence, 163-4
Delegates, 163, 165
Ottawa and Montreal programs, 164

Interpretation bill
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Brooks, A.J., 110-12
Grosart, Allister, 204-6
Hayden, Salter A., 852
Macdonald, W. Ross, 109-12, 206
Roebuck, Arthur W., 112, 197-8

Interpretation bill S-9. 1r, 57; 2r, 109-12, 204-6; ref to com, 206; authority to print com proceedings, 211; rep of com with amdts, 852; 3r, 852

Interprovincial Pipe Line Company bill S-10. Hon. Mr. Molson. 1r, 57; 2r, 82-84; ref to com, 84; rep of com without amdt, 133; fee paid last session, 133; 3r, 134; Commons amdts, 1832; r.a., 1925

Irvine, Hon. Olive L.
Address in reply to Speech from the Throne, 322-7
Manitoba, economic development, 322-5
Forestry, 322, 323-4
Monoca A.G. Co., 323
Nelson River, federal and provincial agreement, 322-3
Kettle Rapids, 323
Road construction, 325
The Pas, 323-4
Frontier Collegiate, 324-5
Indian employment opportunities, 324
Technical training school, 324
Rural Economic Development Fund bill C-151, 592-3
Fishing resources, 593
Interlake area, Manitoba, 592-3
Farm population, loss in, 592
Saskatchewan, economic development, 322, 325-6
Potash, 322, 325-6; Esterhazy, 326

Isnor, Hon. Gordon B.
Appropriation bill No. 9 C-248, 1222-3
Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, good content of programs, 1222-3
National Housing bill C-241, 1184-5
Labour done by owner, 1185
Rural districts, 1185
National Transportation bill C-231, 1402-5
Equalization of port shipping, 1404
Freight rates, 1403-4
Halifax harbour, 1403-4
Maritime problems, 1403-4
Pipeline transportation, 1403
St. Lawrence Seaway tolls, 1404

Jodoin, Hon. Mariana B.
Retired June 1, 1966
Tributes, 653-7
Guides Catholiques du Canada (secteur français) bill S-24, 343

Joint Committees, Special
Administration of Justice
Consumer Credit and Cost of Living
Criminal Code (Hate Propaganda)
Divorce
Immigration
National and Royal Anthems
Penitentiaries
Public Service
See also individual names

Joint Committees, Standing
Library of Parliament
Printing of Parliament
Restaurant of Parliament
See also individual names

Judges
Admiralty Court, 386-7
Appointed to commissions, inquiry, Hon. Mr. Pouliot, 93, 305-6, 391
Further inquiry, 1067-8, 1073-4
Capacities forbidden to judge unless by special appointment, 1517, 1520, 1522
Divorce action, 1518, 1519
Retirement pay, 1517, 1523
Salary for extra-judicial services, 1517, 1520-21, 1523
Salary revisions, 1516-20
Superannuation for judges and senators, 879
Travelling allowance, 1517
Widow's pension, 879, 1523
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Aseltine, Walter M., 1518-19
Burchill, G. Percival, 1522-3
Connolly, John J., 1521-2
Cook, Eric, 1367-8
Flynn, Jacques, 1519-22
Macdonald, W. Ross, 388, 1516-18, 1520-1, 1523-4
Pouliot, Jean-François, 389-92, 1067-8, 1073-4
Walker, David, 388-9, 1368
See also Legal profession

Judges bill C-160 (Salaries for additional judges). 1r, 387; 2r, 387-93; 3r, 393; r.a., 397

Judges bill C-262 (Salaries for additional judges). 1r, 1348; 2r, 1367-8; 3r, 1368; r.a., 1442

Judges bill C-267 (Salary revisions etc.). 1r, 1516; 2r, 1516-24; 3r, 1526; r.a., 1541

Justice, Administration of, Special Joint Committee, 1176, 1231-2, 1292, 1347

Juvenile delinquency, 253-5, 527-8
LSD, use of by students, 1797-8, 1800-2
See also Crime

Kickham, Hon. Thomas J.
Introduction to the Senate, 978

Kinley, Hon. John J.
Adult Occupational Training bill C-278, 1909-11
Nova Scotia problems, 1910-11
Bishop, Hon. Charles L., the late, 1055
Bouffard, Hon. Paul H., the late, 154-5
Bradley, Hon. F. Gordon, the late, 362
Comeau, Hon. Joseph Willie, the late, 13-14
Fisheries Development bill C-145, 468, 469
Lambert, Hon. Norman P., the late, 13
McKeen, Hon. Stanley S., the late, 1240-1
Trustee Board of Presbyterian Church in Canada S-20, 211, 265
Woodrow, Hon. Allan L., the late, 362-3

Kinnear, Hon. Mary Elizabeth
Introduction to the Senate, 1770

Labour
Accident statistics, 605, 606
Air Canada machinists strike, 1124-5, 1149
Automotive Transport Assoc., 643-4, 658
Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, 86
Canadian labour force, Deutsch report, 44
Dispute between Shipping Federation and International Longshoremen's Assoc., report of mediator, 867, 871-7
Factories under federal jurisdiction, 641
Fair Wages and Hours of Labour, 649, 685-7, 696-704, 744, 758
Labour (Safety) Code, 604-7, 640-5, 658-61, 725, 850-2
Labour (Standards) Code, 1189-94, 1195, 1263
Maintenance of Railway Operation bill C-230, 1013-37
Postal Services Interruption Relief, 1264, 1293-8, 1300, 1527, 1541
Postal workers threatened strike, 1124-5
St. Lawrence Seaway workers, wage increase of 30%, 1036
Terms of settlement for two-year collective agreement between Longshoremen's Assoc. and Shipping Federation, 975-6
Unskilled young people, 1302-3
Vocational training and regional development programs, 43-44
See Labour (Safety) Code,
Labour (Standards) Code,
Maintenance of Railway Operation,
St. Lawrence Ports Working conditions.

Labour conditions, strikes affecting the public welfare
Air machinists strike, 1149
Areas of public service where strikes should be prohibited, 1151
Disruption in national life, 1147
Fair Employment Practices Act, coverage of organized labour suggested, 1151
Montpetit Report, 1124, 1148, 1150-1
National referee or council to deal with labour problems, 1151
Overtime demands of construction workers, 1147-8
Personnel administration deficiencies, 1150
Senate responsibility, 1151-2, 1153, 1154
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Cameron, Donald, 1147-52
Connolly, John J., 1152-3, 1154
MacKenzie, Norman A., 1153-4

Labour (Safety) Code
Glassco Commission recommendations, 604-5
Health and Welfare recommendations re construction camps and eating establishments, 642
Mechanical standards for vehicles and equipment, authority of Governor in Council re, 850-1
Penalties for violation of regulations, 640
Transport Commissioners' decision, 642-3, 657-8
Unions and strike settlements, public interest in, 567
Water supplies and sanitary facilities, 641-2, 659, 660, 661, 851-2
CPR diesel locomotives, 641
Locomotive engineers, negotiations re, 644
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Burchill, G. Percival, 606-7
Choquette, Lionel, 605, 606
Croll, David A., 604-7, 660-1
Flynn, Jacques, 658-60, 850-1
Hugessen, A.K., 850, 851
Roebuck, Arthur W., 640-5, 657-8, 851-2

Labour (Safety) Code bill S-35. 1r, 561-2; 2r, 604-7, 640-5, 658-61; ref to com, 661; authority to print com proceedings, 725; rep of com with amdts, 850-2; 3r, 852; r.a., 1340

Labour (Standards) Code
Holidays and annual vacations, 1189-94
Apportioning of responsibility for, 1190-2
Longshoremen, 1189-90, 1193
Multi-employer employment, 1189-90, 1193
Quebec strikes, 1193
Union leaders, 1193-4
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Connolly, John J., 1189-92, 1194
Pouliot, Jean-François, 1192-4

Labour (Standards) Code bill S-54. 1r, 1189; 2r, 1189-94; ref to com, 1194; authority to print proceedings, 1195; rep without amdt, 1195; 3r, 1195; r.a., 1263

Labrador
Hamilton Falls, question of privilege, Hon. Mr. Hollett, 1748
Newfoundland-Labrador boundaries, 97-99, 553-4, 558-60
Takeover by Quebec, suggestion of St. Jean Baptiste Society, 97-99

La Fédération des Caisses Populaires du Québec, 1417-18

Laird, Hon. Keith
Introduction to the Senate, 1770

Lambert, Hon. Norman P.
Deceased November 4, 1965
Tributes, 11-18

Lamontagne, Hon. Maurice, P.C.
Introduction to the Senate, 1770

Lamoureux, Hon. Lucien, Speaker of the House of Commons
Appointment, 2-3

Landreville, Mr. Justice, Special Joint Committee on Administration of Justice to consider removal of, 1176, 1231-2, 1292, 1347, 1433, 1443

Lands surveys
Erection of monuments, 997
Examination fees, 998
Examiners, 996
Payments to, 997-8
Resurveys, 997
Survey measurements, 997
Surveyor General of Canada, administration of office, 996
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Brooks, A.J., 984-5
Connolly, John J., 980-3, 984, 985, 996-7, 998
Flynn, Jacques, 983
Hayden, Salter A., 997-8
Macdonald, W. Ross, 984
Pouliot, Jean-François, 985-7

Lands Surveys bill S-48. 1r, 980-7; 2r, 996-8; ref to com, 999; authority to print proceedings, 1009; rep without amdt, 1009; 3r, 1009; r.a., 1263

Lang, Hon. Daniel A.
Bank bill C-222, 1728-35, 1744-5
Borrowing cost, 1733
Capital stock and shares, 1729-30, 1731, 1733
Cash reserves, 1729, 1731
Debentures, 1732
Directors, 1730-1
Interest rates, 1729, 1732
Mortgage loans, 1729, 1731-2
Non-resident shareholders, 1729, 1733-4
Shares in loan or trust company, 1732
Bank of British Columbia bill S-16, Commons amdts, 1243-4
Criminal Code (Hate propaganda) bill S-49, 1119-21
"Group" or "identifiable group", 1120
Offence in other than a public place, 1120
Restriction on freedom, 1119-20
Government Organization bill C-178, 682, 683

Lang, Hon. Daniel A. – Concluded
Health Resources Fund bill C-199, 831-3
Advisory Committee, 832
Allocations of fund, 831, 832
Calculation of costs, 832
Conditions of payment, 832
Health training facility, 831, 832
Medical profession needs, 833
Medical research in Canada, 833
C.L. Gundy and committee, 833
Ray Farquharson Clinical Investigation Unit, 833
United Investment Life Assurance Company bill S-40, 717-18
World Exhibition, Canadian Corporation, bill S-42, 885-7, 888, 891
Copyright or trademark protection, 885-8
Exception, 886
Infringement action or other legal proceeding, 887, 891
Presumption of injury, 886, 888
Copyright vested in corporation, 886-7
Licensing of vendors, 887

Langlois, Hon. J.G. Leopold
Immigration, report of Joint Committee, 1822-3
Introduction to the Senate, 931
Visiting Forces bill S-50, 1122-3
Disciplinary jurisdiction, 1122
NATO references, deletion of, 1122
Personal injuries and property damage, 1123
Police function, 1123

Langlois, Mr. Justice Paul, chairman of Electoral Boundaries Commission for Quebec, 169-70, 179-84, 193-7

La Société des Artisans bill S-41. Hon. Mr. Deschatelets. 1r, 770; 2r, 811-12; ref to com, 812; authority to print com proceedings, 878; rep of com without amdt, 878; 3r, 879; r.a., 1925

Laurier Life Insurance Company bill S-27. Hon. Mr. Flynn. 1r, 404; 2r, 493-4; ref to com, 493; rep of com without amdt, 563; 3r, 586; r.a., 1925

Leader of the Government in the Senate
Connolly, Hon. John J., P.C.
Deputy
Bouffard, Hon. Paul H., 8-11
Deschatelets, Hon. Jean Paul, 1052-3
Hugessen, Hon. A.K., 147

Leader of the Opposition in the Senate
Brooks, Hon. A.J., P.C.

League Savings and Mortgage Company bill S-30. Hon. Harold Connolly. 1r, 413; 2r, 455-6; ref to com, 456; rep of com without amdt, 563; 3r, 586; r.a., 1339

Lefrançois, Hon. J. Eugene
NATO Parliamentarians, 12th annual conference at Paris, France, 1440-2
Bilingualism for overseas bases, 1440
Canadian delegation, 1440
Economic problems, 1441
France, withdrawal from military alliance, 1441
Germany, foreign policy, 1441-2
USSR power, 1441
Senators, title after retirement, 414

Legal profession
Legal fees and travelling expenses received by solicitors, lawyers, counsel and notaries public, inquiry, Hon. Mr. Pouliot, 810, 867, 1147
Legal fees paid by Government to members of Quebec Bar, inquiry, Hon. Mr. Pouliot, 604, 634, 650-3, 729, 778-9
See also Judges

Leonard, Hon. T. D'Arcy
Appropriation bill No. 1 C-116, 107-9, 123-5
Appropriation bill No. 2 C-140, 288-9
Appropriation bill No. 8 C-245, 1173
Bank bill C-222, 1743-4
Directors, 1743-4
Shares in loan or trust company, 1744
Bank of Western Canada bill C-111, 881-4, 885
Bretton Woods Agreements bill C-144, 506-9
International Bank, 506-9
International Monetary Fund, 506-9
Report of Finance Minister, amdt to effect submission on calendar year basis, 506
Reserve asset, 534
Estimates, 108-9, 123-5, 188-9, 285, 293, 297-9, 318-20, 330-1, 367-70, 385, 773, 1663-7, 1721-6
Borrowings of government, 284-5
Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, 1665, 1722
Defence goods and services, 1724
Dollar items, 125, 288, 289, 773
Economic Council, 1665-7
Expo67, 1667
Glassco Commission recommendations, 123, 1664-5
Government expenditures, 1722-6
Governor General's warrants, 108, 124-5
Gross National Product, 1722-5
Indians, loans and advances to, 288
Inflationary tendencies, 124
Manpower department, 318-19
Moneys allocated to specific vote, transfer of, 1665

Leonard, Hon. T. D'Arcy – Concluded
Estimates – Concluded
National parks, 318
Northumberland Strait, 773
Old Age Security fund, 285
"Public expenditure, spending and control", U.K. White Paper, 319, 1666-7
U.S. investment guidelines, 123-4
Winter works program and provincial subsidies, 318-19
Quebec, Atlantic Provinces and Ontario, 318-19
Estimates ref to Finance Committee
Fiscal year ending Mar. 31/66, 331
Authority to print proceedings, 69, 432
Report, 293, 297-9
Supplementary (E), 330
Report, 367-70, 385
Fiscal year ending Mar. 31/67, 331
Authority to print proceedings, 432
Supplementary (A), 771-3
Authority to print proceedings, 853-4
Report, 1577, 1588-90, 1663-7
Supplementary (B) tabled (not ref to com), 848
Supplementary (C), 1174-5
Report, 1577, 1588-90, 1663-7
Excelsior Life Insurance Company bill S-26, 406-7
Export Credits Insurance bill C-253, 1314-15, 1316-17
Contracts approved by Governor in Council, 1315
Contracts with an exporter, 1314, 1316
Liability under contracts outstanding, 1314-15
Power to accept note, etc., of foreign government and to reschedule debts, 1315
General Mortgage Service Corporation bill S-8, 39, 68
Commons amdts, 1233
Income Tax bill C-216, 958-9
Stock options, 958-9
National Research Council bill C-150, 611-12
Orders and Customs Committee, appointment, 7
Rules of the Senate, No. 119, suspension of, 885
Selection Committee, appointment, 7
Small Businesses Loans bill C-270, 1537-9
Classification of small business, 1538
Guarantee on loans, 1539
Interest rate, 1538, 1539
Loans and losses, 1538
Operation of legislation extended, 1538
Purposes for which loan may be used, 1538
United Investment Life Assurance Company bill S-40, 666
University finances, 1302-6
Bladen Commission, 1304
Comparison of graduates, Canada-United States, 1303
Federal-provincial policies, 1304-6
Church-related institutions, 1305-6
Labour force needs, Economic Council report on, 1303
Student population, 1304
Unskilled young people, 1302-3
York University, 1303

Library of Parliament, Joint Committee
Librarian's report tabled, 6
Members
Commons, 132, 329, 340, 548
Senate, 25; message to Commons, 37-38
Report
Salary revisions, reclassifications, 357-8, 1178, 1223

Lippé, Judge René, mediator in labour dispute
Report re Shipping Federation of Canada and International Longshoremen's Assoc., 871-7

Livestock feed assistance
Board, establishment of, and duties, 1088-90, 1097-8, 1130
Advisory Committee, 1088-9
Cattle breeding, 1105, 1137, 1138
Community pastures, 1117, 1119, 1159
Co-operatives and free enterprise, 1129-30
Cost-price squeeze, 1159
Cultivation for production of grain in Maritimes, 1105-6
Expenditures of Canadian Wheat Board, payment of by western producers, 1131-2
Exports, 1087-6
Farm machinery costs, 1133
Food shortages, 1087-8
Loans for livestock, haybalers, buildings, 1117-18
Maritime feed production problem, 1087
Meat shortage, 1117
Price variations, 1084-5, 1086, 1097, 1129, 1131
Storage facilities, provision of accelerated depreciation for, 1132
Territorial definitions, 1098
Transportation costs and subsidy, 1085, 1086, 1105, 1130-1, 1158
Box car shortage, 1158
Youth interest in farming through 4-H Clubs, 1106
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Argue, Hazen, 1129-33
Benidickson, W.M., 1098
Blois, Fred M., 1104-7
Burchill, G. Percival, 1137-8
Connolly, John J., 1083-90, 1096, 1098, 1159-60
Flynn, Jacques, 1096-8
Gershaw, F.W., 1158-9
Gladstone, James, 1098
Pearson, Arthur M., 1116-19

Livestock Feed Assistance bill C-218. 1r, 1076; 2r, 1083-90, 1096-99, 1104-7, 1116-19, 1129-33, 1137-8, 1158-60; ref to com, 1160; authority to print com proceedings, 1168-9; rep of com without amdt, 1169; 3r, 1169; r.a., 1175

Longshoremen, terms of two-year collective agreement with Shipping Federation, 975-6

LSD, see Food and Drugs

Lutheran Church in America, Canada Section, bill S-39. Hon. W. Ross Macdonald. 1r, 650; 2r, 712-13; ref to com, 713; rep of com without amdt, 848; 3r, 848; r.a., 930

Macdonald, Hon. John M., Chief Opposition Whip in the Senate
Assistance Plan C-207, 906-7
Rural poverty, preliminary report on selected areas, 906-7
Inverness, average income, 907
Standards, difficulty in establishing, 906
Combines Investigation and Criminal Code bill C-169 (B.C. fishermen and packers), 460
Exchequer Court bill C-201, 814-15
Excise Tax bill C-198, 798-9
Furs, 799
Machinery, 798-9
Services, precedent in tax on, 798, 799
Fair Wages and Hours of Labour bill C-2, 698-700, 702
Minimum wage, Nova Scotia, 698, 702
Food and Drugs bill S-60, 1817-18
Convictions and penalties, 1817-18
Indians, status in Centennial Year, 1713-15
Contemporary Indians in Canada, A Survey of, Hawthorn-Tremblay report, 1713-15
Economic development, 1714
Treaty rights, 1714-15
The King v. Syliboy, 1715
National Housing bill C-241, 1181-2
Nova Scotia Housing Commission, loans to co-operatives, 1181
Older homes, 1181
Senior citizens, 1182
Student housing projects, 1182
Public Service Staff Relations bill C-170, 1485
Parliamentary staff, 1485
St. Lawrence Ports Working Conditions bill C-215, 972-5
Compulsory arbitration, 974
Conference between labour and Government representatives, 972-3
Terms of settlement, amendment by negotiations or "otherwise", 973
Training Allowance bill C-186, 720-2
Basic allowance, federal-provincial agreement re, 721-2
Unemployment insurance, amdt re vocational trainee, 721

Macdonald, Hon. W. Ross, P.C.
Bouffard, Hon. Paul H., appt. as deputy leader, 9
Citizen of the Year, award of Brantford Junior Chamber of Commerce, 187
Comeau, Hon. Joseph Willie, the late, 17
Corporations bill S-51, 1099-1100
Amdt of charters by application to Registrar General, 1100
Religious denominations, 1099
Davies, Hon. W. Rupert, the late, 1614-15
Divorce appeals, 1005
Hugessen, Hon. A.K., retired, 1359-60

Macdonald, Hon. W. Ross, P.C. – Concluded
Interpretation bill S-9, 109-10, 206
Changes and definitions, 110
Commission for revision of Statutes, 206
Jodoin, Hon. Mariana B., retired, 656
Judges bill C-160, 388
Judges bill C-267, 1516-18, 1520-1, 1523-4
Capacities forbidden to judge unless by special appointment, 1517
Divorce action, 1518
Retirement pay, 1517, 1523
Salary for extra-judicial services, 1517, 1523
Salary revisions, 1516-17, 1520
Travelling allowance, 1517
Widow's pension, 1523
Junior Chamber of Commerce, Honorary President, 878
Lambert, Hon. Norman P., the late, 17-18
Lands Surveys bill S-48, 984
Lutheran Church in America, Canada Section, bill S-39, 650, 712-13
McLean, Hon. A. Neil, the late, 1615
Rules of the Senate re money bills, 984
Taylor, Hon. William H., retired, 655

MacKenzie, Hon. Norman A.
Criminal Code (Hate propaganda) bill S-49, 1136
Freedom, preservation of, 1136
Introduction to the Senate, 300
Labour conditions, 1153-4
National Arts Centre bill C-194, 961-3
Accounts and financial transactions, auditing of and reporting on, 963
Arts centres in Canadian cities, 962
Board of Trustees, 962-3
Director, 963
Objects and powers of corporation, 963
National President of Association of Canadian Clubs, 688-9
NATO, 1466, 1472
Canadian delegates, 1472
Effectiveness questioned, 1466
Public Service Employment bill C-181, 1477-80, 1507-8
Appeals, 1478
Languages to be used for examinations, 1478
Leader of the Opposition in the Senate, 1508
Merit system, 1477-8
Political activity, 1478-80, 1507, 1508
Public Service Commission powers, 1507
Reports to Parliament, 1507
University finances, 1138-42
Freedom in university financing, 1141
Medical profession, excerpt from report of Dr. J.F. McCreary, 1141
National concern for universities, provincial lack in, 1140
Non-provision for universities in BNA Act, 1138-9
Operating expenditures, forecast of, 1140

MacKenzie, Hon. Norman A. – Concluded
Water resources, conservation of, 1205-9
Export of hydro-electric power, 1207-8
Harmon Doctrine re U.S. ownership and control of waters, 1208
Letter from Economics Dept. of U.B.C., 1209
Press comments, 1208-9
Water and air pollution, 1207
Yukon bill C-147, 704-6
Bank accounts, establishment of, 705
Council and advisory committee, remuneration of, 705
Jails, 705
Mentally-ill persons, 706
Tax sale of lands, 705
Territorial accounts, 706

Macnaughton, Hon. Alan A., P.C.
Introduction to the Senate, 978
Medical Care bill C-227, 1234-7, 1272-3, 1283
Administrative agents, provincial, 1235
Contributions, federal, and costs, 1235, 1236, 1283
Health Resources Fund, 1273
Health Services, Royal Commission, 1236, 1272
Medical profession needs, 1273
Other health services, 1236
Physicians services, 1235, 1236
Portability, 1236
Public administration, 1273
Universal coverage, 1236

MacPherson, M.A., chairman of Royal Commission on Transportation, 1342-3, 1347, 1364, 1384-91, 1392, 1398, 1401

Maintenance of railway operation
Collective bargaining procedures, 1018
Compulsory arbitration, 1025
Conciliation boards and chairmen, 1014-15
Mediator, appointment of, 1021
Montreal Gazette editorial on defying of Parliament by labour, 1027
Reports by
Cameron, Mr. Justice, 1016-17, 1020
Freedman, Mr. Justice, 1017-18, 1020
MacPherson, Mr. Murdock, 1020
Munroe, Mr. Justice, 1014, 1015-16, 1020
Right of employees to strike, 1023-4, 1035
Union issues in dispute, 1013-14
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Connolly, John J., 1013-21, 1036-7
Croll, David A., 1023-7
McCutcheon, M. Wallace, 1014, 1032-6
O'Leary M. Grattan, 1027-30
Roebuck, Arthur W., 1030-2
Walker, David, 1021-3
See also Labour, Railways

Maintenance of Railway Operation bill C-230. 1r, 1013; 2r, 1013-37; 3r, 1037; r.a., 1037

Manitoba
Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting Co., ore reserves, 788
Industrial development, 322-5
Forestry, 322, 323-4
Nelson River, 322-3
The Pas, 323-4
Interlake area, loss in farm population, 582
Rural economic development, 1553
Winnipeg, 1967 Pan-American Games, 745-7

Manitoba-Northwest Territories boundary
BNA provisions re boundaries of provinces, 995
See also Manitoba-Saskatchewan Boundary bill
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Connolly, John J., 995
Gladstone, James, 995
Roebuck, Arthur W., 995

Manitoba-Northwest Territories Boundary bill S-47. 1r, 980; 2r, 995; ref to com, 995; authority to print proceedings, 1008; rep without amdt, 1009; 3r, 1009; r.a., 1339

Manitoba-Saskatchewan boundary
B.N.A. Act provisions re boundaries, 990, 992
Commissions set up to deal with boundaries survey, 989
Manitoba-NWT survey, 990
Manitoba-Saskatchewan survey, 990
Saskatchewan-NWT survey, 990
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Benidickson, W.M., 990-1
Brooks, A.J., 991
Connolly, John J., 993-4
Hayden, Salter A., 993
Hugessen, A.K., 992
McDonald, A. Hamilton, 988-90, 992-3
Roebuck Arthur W., 992, 993

Manitoba-Saskatchewan Boundary bill S-45. 1r, 979; 2r, 998-94; ref to com, 994; authority to print proceedings, 1007; rep without amdt, 1007; 3r, 1007; r.a., 1263

Manpower and mobility, National Employment Service, inquiry, Hon. Mr. Brooks, 920, 1000

Maritimes, see Atlantic provinces and names of individual provinces

McCutcheon, Hon. M. Wallace, P.C.
Appropriation bill No. 2, 1966 C-140, 285-8
Appropriation bill No. 7, 1966 C-226, 928-9
Appropriation bill No. 3, 1967 C-283, 1764-5
Bank bill C-222, 1735-40, 1750-3, 1755, 1756
Amdt proposed, 1753, 1755, neg, 1756
Bank of Western Canada, 1738
Directors, 1737-8
Foreign banks, lack of provision to operate in Canada, 1739-40
Interest rates, 1736-7
Mercantile Bank, 1738-9
Consumer Credit, Joint Committee, terms of reference, 1042-4
Dairy Commission bill C-205, 830
Estimates, 285-8, 1764-5
Amending of legislation without parliamentary procedure, 286-7
Dollar items, 286
Loans and advances, 287-8
Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, 287-8
Indians, 287
Public Service employees, 1764-5
Excelsior Life Insurance Company bill S-26, 407-8
Federal-Provincial Fiscal Arrangements bill C-277, 1634-41, 1642
Education, post-secondary, 1635-41
Bladen Commission, 1636, 1637-8
Newsletter from Department of Manpower and Immigration, 1635-6
Ontario capital costs, 1637, 1642
Operating costs, 1636
Provincial jurisdiction, 1635
Equalization, principle of, 1634-5
General equalization payments, 1638
Jurisdiction in tax fields, 1635, 1639-41
Financial Administration bill C-182, 1510-15
Governor General's warrants, 1511-12
Staff of government, increase over year, 1514
Treasury Board responsibilities and powers, 1510-13
Delegation of, 1511
Glassco Commission recommendations re, 1513, 1514
Government Organization bill C-178, 692-5
Industry Dept., 694
National Revenue and Finance, 694
Public Works, 694
Health Resources Fund bill C-199, 834-7, 839-40
Hall Commission on Health Services, 834, 835
Medical schools, lack of teaching personnel, 835-6
New Brunswick, 835
Medicare, 839-40
Provincial requirements, 834-7
Research facilities urged by C.L. Gundy and committee, 836
Income Tax bill C-216, 948-51, 954, 956-7, 959-60
Nonresident-owned investment corporations, 950-1
Refundable tax, 949
Stock options, 950, 956-7, 959-60
Inflation, Government proposals to counteract, 949, 954, 1042-4

McCutcheon, Hon. M. Wallace, P.C. – Concluded
Maintenance of Railway Operation bill C-230, 1014, 1032-6
Criticism of Government procedure, 1032-6
Right of Government employees to strike, 1035
McKeen, Hon. Stanley S., the late, 1240
Medical Care bill C-227, 1237-8
Health Services Royal Commission, 1237
Responsibility of provinces, 1238-9
Socialism, 1238

McDonald, Hon. A. Hamilton
Address in reply to Speech from the Throne, 29-35
Aetna Casualty Company of Canada bill S-4, 64
Agricultural and Rural Development bill C-152, 414-16
Advisory committee, 415-16
Fringe areas to benefit from program, 415
Bank of Canada bill C-190, 1674-7, 1679
Cash and secondary reserves, 1675-6
Consultation between governor and government, 1675
Director, executive committee, pensions, 1676-7
Gold reserves, 1676
"Payable to bearer on demand", 1676
Boundaries of provinces, BNA provisions re, 995
Canadian National Railway (Stall Lake-Watrous) bill C-210, 787-9
Alwinsal Potash of Canada Ltd., 788-9
Blairmore Sands, 788
Employment, 789
Potash production and revenue, 788-9
Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting Co., 788
Employment, 788
Ore reserves, 788
Canadian Pacific Railway (Saskatchewan) bill S-32, 471, 534-5
Sodium sulphate, Ingebright Lake, 535
Centennial celebrations, 30
Commercial Solids Pipe Line Company bill S-36, 563, 610-11
Sulphur production by Shell (Canada) Ltd., 610-11
Investments, 610, 611
Company of Young Canadians, 34-35
Dairy Commission bill C-205, 821-2, 829-30
Consumer protection, 829-30
Financing of commission, 822
Fluctuation in volume and price, 821
Jurisdiction, federal and provincial, 821, 822, 830
Deputy Whip, 1355
Economic prosperity, 31, 32
Foreign investments in Saskatchewan industry, 32
Expo67, 30-31
Federal-provincial fiscal arrangements, 31-32
Food and Drugs bill S-60, 1792-5, 1829-30, 1846-7
LSD, 1792-5, 1829-30
Dangers of, 1793
Legal distribution and originators of, 1795
Study by UN Narcotics Commission, 1783
Penalties, 1829-30

McDonald, Hon. A. Hamilton—Concluded
Food and Drugs – Concluded
Onus of proof, 1830
News media, responsibility to general public, 1830
Restricted drugs, control of, 1794
Sale and conditions of sale of drugs, 1794
Grain marketing and cash advances for unthrashed grain, 34
Income Disability and Reinsurance Company of Canada bill S-12, 91, 144
Income Life Insurance Company of Canada bill S-11, 91, 143
Introduction to the Senate, 1
Manitoba-Saskatchewan Boundary bill S-45, 988-90, 992-3
B.N.A. Act provisions re boundaries, 990, 992
Commissions set up to deal with survey of boundaries, 989
Manitoba-NWT survey, 990
Manitoba-Saskatchewan survey, 990
Saskatchewan-NWT survey, 990
National Transportation bill C-231, 1392-7
Branch lines, 1393-4
Grain handling facilities, 1395-7
Land and mineral rights, 1392
MacPherson, M.A., chairman of Royal Commission on Transportation, 1392
Peacekeeping activities, 31
Poverty, 32-34
Farm income and failures, 33
Railways, abandonment of, 34
Rural Economic Development Fund bill C-151, 549-51, 676-7
ARDA, 549
Income, farm families, 549-50
Income, rural non-farm families, 549-50
Poverty in rural areas, 549, 551, 676
Provincial responsibility in implementing programs, 676
Rural Economic Development Fund bill C-274, 1551-3, 1566, 1594-5
Interlake area, 1594-5
Progress in New Brunswick and Manitoba, 1552-3
Provincial-federal agreements, 1566
Saskatchewan, 31-34
Diamond Jubilee, 31
Farm income, 33-34
Oil industry, 32
Potash industry, 32
Pulp mill, Prince Albert, 32
Saskatchewan-Northwest Territories Boundary bill S-46, 994
Seaboard Finance Company of Canada bill S-21, 293, 317-18
Wood, Hon. Thomas H., the late, 18

McElman, Hon. Charles
Atlantic Development Board bill C-213, 815-19
Electrical energy projects, 817-18
Incomes in Atlantic provinces, 817
Industrial developments, 817-18
Mactaquac dam, 818
Projects for which commitments have been made, 817
Stipulations for approval of projects, 817
Introduction to the Senate, 258

McGrand, Hon. Fred A.
Aging, Senate Special Committee, 187-9
New Brunswick homes for the aged, 188
Segregation of elderly people, 188-9
Food and Drugs bill S-60, 1825-7
Mental health statistics, 1826-7
Youth protests, 1825-6

McKeen, Hon. Stanley S.
Deceased December 1, 1966
Tributes, 1239-41
Bouffard, Hon. Paul H., the late, 152

McLean, Hon. A. Neil
Deceased March 12, 1967
Tributes, 1612-16
Milltown Bridge bill S-15, 177-8

Medical care
Administrative agents, provincial, 1235
Alberta plan, 80, 1260
Areas of special concern, 80
Associated professions, 1267-8
British National Health Service, 1253
Calculation of contributions, 1236
Costs to individuals and to Government, 80-81, 1235-6, 1259, 1260, 1283
Dental clinics, mobile, 1269
Difficulties experienced in other countries, 1251, 1259, 1282-3
Doctors' right to "opt" out of plan, 1257
Health Resources Fund, 1273
Health Services Royal Commission, 1236, 1237, 1259, 1272
Liberal Party platform re medicare and other welfare matters, 1270-1
Medical profession needs, 81, 1255-6, 1266, 1273
Opinions expressed by Canadian Medical Assoc. and other groups, 80-81
Other health services, 1236
Paper work, forms, etc., 1267
Penfield, Dr. Wilder, comments on free medical services, 1250
Physicians services, 1235, 1236
Political implications, 1250, 1252, 1265-6
Portability, 1236
Press comments, 1256
Program for Government, suggestion, 1254
Public administration, 1273
Research needs, 81
Socialism, 1238, 1251, 1252-3, 1266
Sigerist, Prof. Henry, "On the Sociology of Medicine", 1257-8
Tubercular and mental patients, 1266
Universal coverage, 1236

Medical care—Concluded
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Connolly, John J., 1270
Gershaw, Fred W., 80-82, 1259-60
Macnaughton, Alan A., 1234-7, 1272-3
McCutcheon, M. Wallace, 1237-8
Phillips, Orville H., 1264-70
Roebuck, Arthur W., 1270-1
Sullivan, Joseph A., 1249-58

Medical Care bill C-227. 1r, 1234; 2r, 1234-8, 1249-60, 1264-73; ref to com, 1273-4; authority to print com proceedings, 1282; rep of com without amdt, 1282; 3r, 1282-3; r.a., 1339

Mennonite Central Committee (Canada) bill S-37. Hon. Mr. Thorvaldson. S-37. 1r, 604; 2r, 638-9; ref to com, 639; rep of com without amdt, 688; 3r, 688; r.a., 930

Mercier, Col. Lucien, Commission of Inquiry into Bankruptcies, Liquidations, Proposals and Voluntary Assignments, 248-52, 276, 277-8
See Bankruptcy

Méthot, Hon. Léon
Bouffard, Hon. Paul H., the late, 154
Comtois, Hon. Paul, the late, 154

Michener, Right Honourable Roland, P.C., Q.C., Governor General of Canada, 1772
Address by the Prime Minister, 1783
Reply by the Governor General, 1784-5

Milltown Bridge bill S-15. 1r, 132-3; 2r, 177-8; ref to com, 178; authority to print com proceedings-rep of com without amdt, 224; 3r, 247; r.a., 397

Mining
Alwinsal Potash of Canada Ltd., 788-9
Bruce Lake Iron Mine Company, 416-19
Gold, 543-4
Subsidies, 543
U.S. control of price, 543-4
Heath Mines, New Brunswick, 418-19
Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting Co., 788
Iron Ore Co. developments in northern Quebec, 587-8
U.S. investments, 587
Northwest Territories, 589-90
Potash, Saskatchewan, 322, 325-6
Sodium sulphate, Ingebright Lake, 535
Uranium, 544-7
Potential for sale to France, 544-7

Ministry, The, according to precedence, iii

Miscellaneous Private Bills Committee
Members, 25, 258
Reports
Canadian Board of Missions of the Church of God (General Offices: Anderson, Indiana), bill S-18. Rep of com with amdts, 580-1
Endocrinology, International Society of, bill S-29. Rep of com without amdt, 688
Evangelical Convenant Church of Canada bill S-38. Rep of com with amdt, 848-9
Evangelistic Tabernacle Incorporated bill S-7. Rep of com without amdt, fee paid last session, 134
Lutheran Church in America bill S-39. Rep of com without amdt, 848
Mennonite Central Committee (Canada) bill S-37. Rep of com without amdt, 688
Trustee Board of Presbyterian Church bill S-20. Rep of com without amdt, 367
United Baptist Woman's Missionary Union of the Maritime Provinces bill S-33. Rep of com without amdt, 580

Molson, Hon. Hartland de M.
Endocrinology, International Society of, bill S-29, 413, 513-15
Food and Drugs bill S-60, 1845-6
Government Organization bill C-178, 684
Interprovincial Pipe Line Company bill S-10, 57, 82-84, 1832
Eligibility of employees to purchase shares, 84
Share subdivision and market value, 82-84
Stanley Cup, congratulations on success of Canadiens, 497

Mother of the Year, Madame Jeanne-Pauline Beaulieu, award of Florists Transworld Delivery Assoc., 399

Museums, see National Museums

National and Royal Anthems, Special Joint Committee
Appointment, 1383
Authority to call for persons, papers, records, and witnesses, etc., 1770
Members
Commons, 1443, 1516, 1542, 1617
Senate, 1384
Message from Commons, 1348, 1632
Reports, 1778, 1791-2
Quorum, 1444
Recommendations of Committee, 1632

National Arts Centre
Accounts and financial transactions, auditing of and reporting on, 963
Arts centres in Canadian cities, 962
Board of trustees, 962-3
Director, responsibilities of, 963, 964
"Edifice complex", 966
National Capital Arts Alliance, 966

National Arts Centre – Concluded
Objects and powers of corporation, 963
Ottawa arts centres of former years, 966
Programming, 964
Secretary of State, contribution to the Arts, 965
Television and development of the Arts, 968
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Cameron, Donald, 963-4
Connolly, John J., 967-8
Grosart, Allister, 964-7
MacKenzie, Norman A., 961-3

National Arts Centre bill C-194. 1r, 954; 2r, 961-8; 3r, 969; r.a., 976

National Defence, see Canadian Forces Reorganization

National Housing
Aggregate maximum of loans insurable under NHA, 1179
Co-operatives, 1181, 1185
Economic development in building industry, 1177-8
Housing demands, 1177, 1181
Housing starts, statistics, 1178
Interest-free loans, question of, 1185, 1186
Labour done by owner, 1184, 1185
Low-rent housing, 1178-9, 1184
British Columbia, 1179
Inuvik, 1179
Ontario Housing Corp., 1178-9
Operating losses, 1179
Ottawa, 1186
Nova Scotia Housing Commission, loans to co-operatives, 1181
Older homes, 1181
Rural districts, 1185
Sales tax, 1185
Senior citizens, 1182
Sewage treatment projects, 1180
Student housing projects, 1180, 1182
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Benidickson, W.M., 1183-4
Connolly, John J., 1177-81, 1185
Isnor, Gordon B., 1184-5
Macdonald, John M., 1181-2
Pouliot, Jean-François, 1185

National Housing bill C-241. 1r, 1177; 2r, 1177-87; 3r, 1187; r.a., 1194

National Museums
Board of Trustees, and powers, 1618-19, 1682
Financing of, 1683
Objectives of corporation, 1619-20, 1682
Museums with educational programs and extension services, 1581
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Brooks, A.J., 1680-3
Connolly, John J., 1683
Everett, Douglas D., 1617-20
Flynn, Jacques, 1700-1
Hayden, Salter A., 1701

National Museums bill S-57. 1r, 1577; 2r, 1617-20, 1680-3; ref to com, 1683; authority to print com proceedings, 1700; rep of com without amdt, 1700; 3r, 1700-1

National Research Council
Name change of Research Council, 483
Research projects of NRC, 484-5
Science library, 484
Securities or money acquired by gift, bequest, or otherwise, 483-4
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Hugessen, A.K., 483-4
Roebuck, Arthur W., 485
Yuzyk, Paul, 484-5

National Research Council bill C-150. 1r, 453; 2r, 483-5; ref to com, 485; authority to print com proceedings, 540-1; rep of com with amdts, 591, 599, 611-12; 3r, 612; r.a., 758

National transportation
Branch lines, 1393-4, 1398-1400
Bridges, safety and construction of, 1345
Canadian Transportation Commission, 1343-4, 1362-3, 1378
Cominco, 1391
Corridor Road, 1364, 1378
Crowsnest Pass Agreement, 1346, 1386-91, 1398
Historical review, 1390
Extra-provincial motor vehicle transport, 1345
Freight rates, 1343-6, 1364, 1379-80, 1385-91, 1398, 1403-4
Grain handling facilities, 1395-7
History of railway operation in Canada, 1397-8
Ice-breaking on St. Lawrence Seaway, 1363
Jurisdiction of provinces, 1341-2
Land and mineral resources, 1388, 1392
Legal counsel for producers, 1400-1
MacPherson Commission, 1342-3, 1347, 1364, 1384-91, 1392, 1398, 1401
Maritime problems, 1361-5, 1378-80, 1401, 1403-5
Money-losing services, 1345
Northumberland Strait causeway, 1381, 1422-3
Objectives of Government and CPR, summarized by V.C. Fowke, 1390
Passenger rail service to P.E.I., 1423

National transportation—Concluded
Pipeline competition, 1362, 1403
Press comment, 1364-5
Railways, telegraphs and telephones, 1345
Research division, 1378
"Reservations on Grain", by A.R. Gobeil, 1390-1
Tolls, St. Lawrence Seaway, 1404
Transitional subsidy, 1346
Transportation costs to central Canada, 1380
Water transportation, 1363
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Argue, Hazen, 1398-1401
Brooks, A.J., 1360-6
Burchill, G. Percival, 1401-2
Connolly, John J., 1379, 1380
Deschatelets, Jean-Paul, 1341-7, 1405
Hollett, Malcolm, 1405
Isnor, Gordon B., 1402-5
McDonald, A. Hamilton, 1392-7
Paterson, Norman McL., 1397-8
Phillips, Orville H., 1377-82
Roebuck, Arthur W., 1387, 1388, 1389, 1390, 1393
Thorvaldson, Gunnar S., 1384-92

National Transportation bill C-231. 1r, 1341; 2r, 1341-7, 1377-82, 1384-1405; ref to com, 1405; authority to print com proceedings, 1417; rep of com without amdt, 1420; 3r, 1420-3; r.a., 1442

NATO, see North Atlantic Treaty Organization

Natural Resources Committee
Members, 26, 269

New Brunswick
Atlantic Provinces Power Development Act, projects to 13 June 1966, 804-5
Economic prospects, 280-2
Electrical energy, 57-58, 817-18, 842-3
Dickey Dam, 57-58
Fundy Trail, costs of development, 820
Heath Mines, employment, 418-19
Homes for the aged, 141-2, 188
Labour safety association, 606-7
Milltown Bridge, 132-3, 177-8
Municipal, educational and taxation structure, reconstruction in, 280-2
Education, 281
Press comment, 281
Royal Commission on, 281
War on poverty, 281
Racial and religious tensions, 279, 282
Rural economic development, 1552-3
Robichaud, Hon. Louis Joseph, Premier, 280, 281, 282
University of New Brunswick, 1436-7
Financial crisis, 1437

Newfoundland
Atlantic Provinces Power Development Act, projects to 31 Mar. 1966, 805
Bay d'Espoir, electrical energy development at, 818
Boundaries, Privy Council judgment re, 96-99, 553-4, 558-60
Churchill Falls, development of, 707, 842
Divorce laws, 237-40, 377-8
Hamilton Falls, question of privilege, Hon. Mr. Hollett, 1748
Historical sketch, 581-2
"Labrador takeover" by Quebec, suggestion of St. Jean Baptiste Society, 97-99
McNair Commission recommendations, 552, 555-6, 582-5
National debt, 553
Revenues and expenditures, 557
Student aid, 98
Subsidies to fishermen, 95-96
Trans-Canada Highway, 557
Wabana mines, closing of, 707

Newfoundland additional financial assistance
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Baird, A.B., 551
Choquette, Lionel, 555-6, 585, 635-6
Cook, Eric, 581-3
Hollett, Malcolm, 552-5, 556, 557-8, 559
Pouliot, Jean-François, 558-9, 585-6, 634-5
Thorvaldson, Gunnar S., 583-5
Vien, Thomas, 552, 554, 555, 559-61

Newfoundland Additional Financial Assistance bill 1966 C-185. 1r, 551; 2r, 551-61, 581-6; ref to com, 586; authority to print com proceedings, 614; rep of com without amdt, 614; 3r, 634-6; r.a., 648

Nichol, Hon. John L.
Introduction to the Senate, 199

North Atlantic Treaty Organization, 99, 346, 365, 366, 1283-90, 1439-42, 1446, 1463-7, 1779-80
Bilingualism for overseas bases, 1440
Britain and the European Common Market, 1283-6, 1289
Canadian delegates, 1076, 1286-7, 1440
Economic problems, 1284-5, 1290, 1441
European unity, 1284-5
Export and import controls, 346, 365-6
Foreign policy and obligation of Canada, questioned, 1464-7
GATT negotiations, 1284
Integration of North American and European forces, 1464
International Energy Commission, resolution re, 545-6
International liquidity and reserve currency, 1284
Military commitment and peacekeeping responsibility of Canada, 1779-80
Military Committee, 99, 1290
Nationalism in Europe, 1289
NATO and Canada, 1284, 1464-7

North Atlantic Treaty Organization—Concluded
New York meeting, 99
New York Times article by C.L. Sulzberger, 1284
Paris meeting, 1076
Peacekeeping force, 1287, 1288, 1465-6
Prestige of Canada, 1464
Problems of NATO, 1288
Robertson, Hon. Wishart McL., honorary life president of NATO Parliamentary Assoc., 18-19
Soviet Union, 1288, 1289, 1441
The Proud Tower, by Barbara Tuchman, 1288-9
Twelfth annual conference held at Paris, France, 1283-90, 1439-42, 1463-7, 1468-73
Canadian delegation, 1076, 1286-7, 1440
Briefing and continuity of, 1463-4
Question of privilege, 1468-73
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Aird, John B., 1283-7
Baird, Hon. A.B., 99
Brooks, A.J., 346, 1290, 1439
Connolly, John J., 1287-90
Everett, Douglas D., 1779-80
Lefrançois, J. Eugene, 1440-2
MacKenzie, Norman A., 1446
O'Leary, M. Grattan, 1463-6
Roebuck, Arthur W., 1466-7
Thorvaldson, Gunnar S., 365-6

Northumberland Causeway, inquiry re new report, Hon. Mr. Phillips, 1811

North West Life Assurance Company of Canada bill S-25. Hon. David A. Croll.1r, 363; 2r, 395-6; ref to com, 396; rep of com without amdt, 413; 3r, 413; 3r, 413; r.a., 1611

Northwest Territories
Carrothers Commission, 590-1, 609, 610
Elected members of Council, 588
Indemnity, 588
Extension of provinces to include NWT, excerpt from 1953 speech of Hon. Mr. Aseltine re, 608-9
Government of, 589, 646-8
Manitoba-Northwest Territories Boundary bill S-47, 980, 995, 1008-9
Mileage and population, 588-9, 608
Mineral explorations, 589-90, 645
Pine Point Railway, 645
Revenues and expenditures, 591, 610
Saskatchewan-Northwest Territories Boundary bill S-46, 980, 994
Self-government, 646-8
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Aseltine, Walter M., 591, 607-10
Grosart, Allister, 646-8
Hnatyshyn, John, 645-6
Prowse, J. Harper, 588-92

Northwest Territories bill C-146. 1r, 561; 2r, 588-92, 607-10, 645-8; 3r, 648; r.a., 648

Nova Scotia
ARDA projects, 449-50
Dyking, drainage, etc., 449
Electric power research, 449
Market-garden farm units, 449-50
Tourist development, 450
Atlantic Provinces Power Development Act, projects to 13 June 1966, 806-7
Credit unions, 455-6
Fisheries, 477-80
Inshore fishermen, 479-80
Landed fish, first place in dollar volume of, 477-8
Loans for new construction, 479
Inverness, average income, 907
Milk surplus, 222
Rural poverty, preliminary report on, 906-7
Thermal generating station, Trenton, 818

Officers and Chiefs of branches of the Senate, xix

Oil and gas industry
Rainbow Lake, Alberta, 1091-2
Sulphur, Alberta, 610-11

Old age security
Absence from country, 1320
Alberta legislation, 1332
Appeals, 1321
Authority of Parliament to legislate in pension matters, 1317-18, 1336
Cost to government, 1319, 1337-8
Deductions because of other income, 1320
Guaranteed income supplement, 1319
Groups disregarded under bill, 1322-3, 1325
Information concerning income, 1321, 1327, 1329-30
Interim payments, 1321
Marginal cases, 1335
Married applicants, 1320
Needs test, 1320, 1332, 1335
Provincial pension plans, effect on, 1323
Recommendations of Senate Special Committee on Aging, 1322, 1324-7
Violation of income tax law, 1335
War veterans allowance, PEI deduction on account of, 1328, 1334
Welfare programs, inadequacy of, 1328
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Argue, Hazen, 1331-3
Brooks, A.J., 1327-8, 1336-7
Connolly, John J., 1317-21, 1336-8

Old age security – Concluded
Speakers: Honourable Senators–Concluded
Croll, David A., 1325-8
Fournier, Edgar, 1328-31
Grosart, Allister, 1321-5
Phillips, Orville H., 1333-4
Thorvaldson, Gunnar S., 1334-5
See also Excise Tax and Old Age Security

Old Age Security bill C-251. 1r, 1317; 2r, 1317-38; 3r, 1338; r.a., 1339

O'Leary, Hon. Clement A.
Address in reply to Speech from the Throne, 220-3
Estimates, 494
Farm problems and need for subsidies, 221-3
Applications for assistance, lack of information on, 221-2
ARDA, 221, 222
Marginal or submarginal farmers, 221
Nova Scotia milk surplus, 222
Uneconomic farm units, 221, 223
Fisheries Development bill C-145, 477-80
Inspection regulations, 479
Nova Scotia fisheries, 477-80
Fisheries Loan Board, new construction loans, 479
Inshore fishermen, 479-80
Landed fish, first place in dollar volume, 477-8
Progress of fishing industry in other countries, 478
Nova Scotia winter works program, 494
St. Patrick's Day, 1669-70
Statute Law (Superannuation) Amendment bill C-193, 868-70
Employment after retirement, 869
Portability, 869

O'Leary, Hon. M. Grattan
Assistance Plan C-207, 904-6
Abuses, danger of, 904
"Evils" of the welfare state, 904-6
Welfare expenditures, 905
Bankruptcy bill S-17, 761
Canadian Forces Reorganization bill C-243, 1872-4
Anti-ballistic missiles, 1874
Civil control, 1872
Statements of prominent military men, 1872-3
Canadian News Hall of Fame, election to, 1787
Estimates, 1684-9
Film Development Corporation bill C-204, 1428-30
Awards, 1429
Film commissioner as member of board, 1429
Management of finances and distribution of films, 1428-9
Outside control, danger of, 1429

O'Leary, Hon. M. Grattan – Concluded
Government expenditures, 1685-8
Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, 1685-6
Employees, increase in, 1687
Glassco recommendations, 1686-7
Gross National Product, decline in, 1686-8
Taxation, burden on poorer classes, 1687-8
Hugessen, Hon. A.K., retired, 1357-8
Lambert, Hon. Norman P., the late, 15-16
Maintenance of Railway Operation bill C-230, 1027-30
Criticism of Government procedures, 1028-30
Times comment, 1029
NATO Parliamentarians, 12th annual conference at Paris, France, 1463-6
Canadian delegates, briefing and continuity of, 1463-4
Cyprus peacekeeping force, 1465-6
Foreign policy questioned, 1464-6
Integration of North American and European forces, 1464
Obligations to NATO, 1465
Prestige of Canada, 1464
Retirement from presidency of Ottawa Journal, 340-3
Science Council of Canada bill C-149, 422-6
Glassco Commission recommendations re, 423-4
MacKenzie, Dr. J.C., recommendations to Prime Minister, 423-4
Ministry of Science, Senator as head of, 425
Personnel, choosing of, 424-5
Scientific revolution, warning of Sir Winston Churchill, 423
Skill training vs true education, 425

Opening of Parliament, 1-6
Speech from the Throne, 3-6
See Address in reply

Orders and Customs Committee
Appointment, 7

Orders in Council, documents, reports, etc., see Journals of the Senate

Ottawa Journal President, Hon. M. Grattan O'Leary, retirement, 340-3

Ottawa Terminal Railway Company
Company powers, 85
Employees of railway unions, 85-86
Greber Plan, 86-87
Station relocation, 87
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Choquette, Lionel, 86-87
Hugessen, A. K., 84-86
Roebuck, Arthur W., 86

Ottawa Terminal Railway bill S-2. 1r, 22; 2r, 84-87; ref to com, 87; authority to print com proceedings 186; rep of com without amdt, 186; 3r, 201

Pacific Coast Fire Insurance Company bill S-6. Hon. Mr. Thorvaldson. 1r, 39; 2r, 67; ref to com, 67; rep of com with amdt, 167; 3r, 187; r.a., 1175

Pakistan, hunger and drought conditions, external aid for, 1244-9
See India and Pakistan

Pan-American Games 1967 in Winnipeg, 745-7
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Connolly, John J., 746-7
Haig, J. Campbell, 745-6

Parliamentary Association, see Commonwealth Parliamentary Association

Parliamentary Secretaries, iv

Paterson, Hon. Norman McL.
Divorce statistics, 138
National Transportation bill C-231, 1397-8, 1420-2
Historical sketch of western railways, 1420-2

Pearson, Hon. Arthur M.
Address in reply to Speech from the Throne, 307-12
Canadian Forces Reorganization bill C-243, 1869-71
Defence of Canada, 1870-1
Traditions, preservation of, 1869-70
White Paper, 1870
Citizenship bill S-59, 1788-9
Hospitality to immigrants, 1788-9
Crop Insurance bill C-208, 921-3
Extended coverage, 922
Hail insurance, 922-3
Saskatchewan, 923
Statistics (1964-66), 622
Education, 308-10
Child instruction, France, 309-10
Degrees, question as to necessity of, 308
Education vs economy, 310
Reports by Canadian Welfare Council, 308, 309; Family Herald, 310; Modern France, 309-10
Rural education related to local livelihood, 308-10
University grants, 308
Farm machinery costs, 311
Grey Cup, National Football Playoff in Vancouver, 1197

Pearson, Hon. Arthur M. – Concluded
Immigration Appeal Board bill C-220, 1581-3
Appeal Board powers, 1582, 1583
Deportations, 1582
Skills and education, restrictive emphasis on, 1582
White Paper on Immigration, 1583
Livestock Feed Assistance bill C-218, 1116-19
Community pastures, 1117, 1119
Loans for livestock, haybalers, buildings, 1117-18
Meat shortage, 1117
Rural Economic Development Fund bill C-151, 671-3
ARDA, 672-3
Enlargement of farms through government assistance, 671
Exodus from farms during drought, 671-2
Interlake area, Manitoba, 672
Rural poverty, 672
Woodlot implements, tariff on, 671
World hunger, 672
Rural Economic Development Fund bill C-274, 1564-7
Manitoba program proposals, 1565
New Brunswick allocation of funds to special projects, 1565
Under-estimating of programs, 1564-5
Rural poverty, 308-10, 672
ARDA, 308, 309, 310, 672-3
Welfare Council report re, 308, 309
Taxation, inquiry by Land Use Committee, suggested, 311
Trade, 311-12
Jet purchases from France and effect on international relationships, 312
Saskatchewan Government pressure for purchase of British goods, 312
Water resources, conservation of, 708-10
ARDA report on, 709
Irrigation projects, 708-9
PFRA, 708, 709
Methods of conservation, 708-9
Pollution, 708

Pearson, Hon. Lester B., Prime Minister of Canada
Address at installation of the Right Honourable Roland Michener, as Governor General of Canada, 1783

Penfield, Dr. Wilder, criticism of CBC program, 255

Penitentiaries, Special Joint Committee
Appointment, 316-17
Members
Commons, 328, 496, 759, 1075, 1348
Senate, 344, 878
Message from Commons, 300-1
Report
Quorum, 853
Services required for purpose of inquiry, 1351
Third report printed as appendix, 1833, 1863-8, 1885

Pension benefits standards
Coverage for employees under federal jurisdiction but outside the Government, 1643-4
Federal-provincial agreements, 1645
Inflation, effect on pensions, 1671-4
Investment of pension moneys, 1645
Locking-in requirement, 1644-5
Portability, 1645
Provincial acts, 1644
Standards for registration of pension plans, 1644
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Choquette, Lionel, 1671-2
Roebuck, Arthur W., 1673-4
Connolly, John J., 1672-3
Urquhart, Earl W., 1643-6

Pension Benefits Standards bill C-221. 1r, 1610-11; 2r, 1643-6, 1671-4; 3r, 1702; r.a., 1768

Petitions
Divorce, Joyce Regina Nagine Biega, appeal from judgment of Senate Commissioner, 1003-7, 1011-12, 1125
Extension of time for filing, 330, 525

Phillips, Hon. Orville H.
Atlantic Development Board bill C-213, 819-20
Economic surveys, 819-20
Fundy Trail, costs of development, 820
Incomes in Atlantic provinces, 819
Industry, information re establishment of, 819
P.E.I. causeway, 820
Canadian Forces Reorganization bill C-243, 1877-84
Expenditures for defence, 1879
Morale, effect on, 1880
Officer designation, 1882
Peacekeeping activities, 1878-9
Recruitment and training, 1882
Criminal Code (Hate Propaganda) bill S-49, 1167-8
Fisheries Development bill C-145, 480-1
Instruction and research, 480-1
Food and Drugs bill S-60, 1823-5
LSD use by students and professional persons, 1824-5
Educational programming re, 1825
Research needs, 1824
Health Resources Fund bill C-199, 838-9
Medical profession, training years, 838-9
Industrial Research and Development Incentives bill C-252, 1559-62
Authority of Governor in Council, 1561
Capital expenditures and five year base period, 1561
Costs of government research, 1560
Monopoly by large firms, 1562
"Prosecution" of scientific research, 1560
Subsidiary firms, 1562

Phillips, Hon. Orville H. – Concluded
Medical Care bill C-227, 1264-70
Associated professions, 1267-8
Dental clinics, mobile, 1269
Liberal Party platform in 1919 re medicare, 1265
Medical profession needs for personnel, 1266
Paper work, forms, etc., 1267
Percentages of federal-provincial contributions, 1269
Political implications, 1265-6
Socialism and effects, 1266
Tubercular and mental patients, 1266
National Transportation bill C-231, 1377-82, 1422-3
Canadian Transport Commission, 1378
Captive shipper, 1380, 1381
Corridor road, 1378
Costs of capital, 1380-1
Freight rates, 1379-80
Maritime problems, 1378-80
Northumberland Strait Causeway, 1381, 1422-3
Potatoes, costs of transportation to central Canada, 1380
Research division, 1378
Northumberland Causeway, inquiry, 1811
Old Age Security bill C-251, 1333-4
PEI deduction from war veterans allowance, 1334

Picard, Laurin, chairman of Industrial Inquiry Commission, 971

Police force
Armed forces for police duty, 411-12
Cadets, 411
Newspaper comments, 411
Quebec, 411

Population of constituencies, inquiry, Hon. Mr. Pouliot, 810

Postal services interruption relief
Functions and powers of judge, 1293-4
Industrial Property, Paris Convention for protection of, 1293
Limitations under bill, 1295-6
Patent agents, protection for, 1293, 1295
Press comments, 1294-5
Strikes and consequences of, 1296-8
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Brooks, A.J., 1294-5
Connolly, John J., 1297-8
Denis, Azellus, 1293-4, 1298
Hugessen, A.K., 1295-6
Thorvaldson, Gunnar S., 1296-7

Postal Services Interruption Relief bill S-55. 1r, 1264; 2r, 1293-8; ref to com, 1298; authority to print com proceedings, 1300; rep of com without amdt, 1300; 3r, 1300; Commons amdt, 1516, 1527; r.a., 1541

Postal workers, threat of strike, 1096
Inquiry, Hon. Mr. Cameron, 1124-5

Pouliot, Hon. Jean-François
Address in reply to Speech from the Throne, 193-7, 201-4
Appropriation bill No. 2 C-140, 289-90
Appropriation bill No. 9 C-248, 1219-21, 1226
Bouffard, Hon. Paul H., the late, 156
Suggestion for posthumous honour of Privy Councillor, 473
Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, control of programming, 1219-21
Canadian Forces Reorganization bill C-243, 1892-3
Capital punishment, 728-9
Chief Electoral Officer, 195, 728
Citizenship bill S-59, 1810-11
Nationality, Commonwealth citizenship, subjects of the Queen, 1810-11
Screening of immigrants, 1811
Commissions, name, nature, personnel and date of each, inquiry, 1067-8, 1073-4
Committee meetings, conflict with sittings of Senate and Commons, 1077-8
Comtois, Hon. Paul, the late, 156-7
Constituencies, population of, inquiry, 810, 1079-80, 1093-5
Criminal Code (Hate Propaganda) bill S-49, 1157-8
Nuremberg trials, 1158
Special Committee on Hate Propaganda in Canada, 1157-8
Criminal Code (Hate Propaganda) Special Joint Committee, 1145-6
Divorce (Extension of Grounds) bill S-19, 489-93
Children, federal jurisdiction of, 492
Senate Committee disregard of, 492-3
Divorce resolutions, approval without knowledge of facts, 490-3
Marriage and divorce jurisdiction, 492
Electoral boundaries
Commissions' reports, inquiry, 93
Maps, inquiry, 726
Redistribution, objections by Members of Parliament, inquiry, 224-5
Electoral Boundaries Readjustment bill S-22, 305, 337-8, 352-7
Gaspé County, 355
Judges appointed to commissions, 353-4
Langlois Commission, 354
Maps on redistribution, redrawing of, 352, 354-5
Newspaper articles by Hon. Mr. Pouliot, 354
Objections by Members of Parliament, 337-8, 353-4
Opinions quoted, 355-6
Precedent as to passage of 1936 bill, 356
Estimates, 289-90, 334-5, 495, 1219-21, 1226, 1248-9
B and B Commission, expenses of, 1249
Curtailment of non-useful expenditures, 1249
External aid, 1248-9
Food and money distribution, 1248-9
Interest free loans, 1185

Pouliot, Hon. Jean-François – Continued
Estimates – Concluded
Italy, flood distress, 1248-9
Lack of opportunity for discussion of, 289-90
Winter works, Quebec, 334-5, 495
French-Canadian liberalism, spokesman for, question of privilege, 272-3
Government Organization bill C-178, 727-9
Chief Electoral Officer, 728
Justice Department, 727-8
Liberty, freedom and responsibility, 729
Hugessen, Hon. A.K., retired, (letter read), 1360
Jodoin, Hon. Mariana B., retired, 657
Judges bill C-160, 389-92
Judicial appointments to commissions, 93, 170, 194-5, 305-6, 353-4, 391; reply to inquiry tabled, 413
Justice Department, 727
Drafting of legislation, 986-7
Labour (Standards) Code bill S-54, 1192-4
Multi-employer employment, 1193
Quebec strikes, 1193
Union leaders, 1193-4
Lands Surveys bill S-48, 985-7
Legal fees and travelling expenses received from the Government by solicitors, lawyers, counsel and notaries public in Quebec, inquiry, 810, 892, 1147 (reply tabled, 1143).
Legal services, fees paid by Government to members of Quebec Bar, inquiry, 604, 634, 650-3, 729, 778-9
Liberty, freedom and human rights, and related responsibility, 637-8, 729, 1220
Ministers' participation in Senate debates, Rule No. 18A, 473-4
National Art Gallery, proposed purchase of $6 million painting, 638
National Housing bill C-241, 1185
Interest-free loans, question of, 1185
Newfoundland Additional Financial Assistance bill C-185, 558-9, 585-6, 634-5
Boundaries, 558-9
Protest against bill, 634-5
O'Leary, Hon. M. Grattan, retirement from Ottawa Journal presidency, 342
Postal strike, threat of, 1096
Precedence and Protocol, inquiry, 1834
Press report on Senate passage of bills, 893-4
Privy Council appointments, suggestions, 29, 473
Quebec constitutional rights, 795-6
Redistribution bill C-126, 169-70, 179-84. See also 193-7
Judges appointed to commissions, 170, 194-5
Langlois Commission, 169-70, 179-84
Newspaper articles re 'bungling' in electoral distribution, 179-84
Quebec historic names, elimination in redistribution, 169, 179-84, 195-6
Senate special committee to study, suggestion, 194, 196-7
Redistribution, objections filed with Speaker of House of Commons, 224-5, 313-14, 337-8, 352-7
Rules of Senate and House of Commons re introduction of bills, 985-7
Rural Economic Development Fund bill C-151, 662-5, 726-7
La Patrie article on home life, 664
Rural and urban population, 726
Unemployed settlers and farmers, inquiry by Labour Dept., 663
War effects on rural population, 664-5

Pouliot, Hon. Jean-François—Concluded
Senate, 40, 193-4, 196-7, 356
Chamber and reading room, lighting, 40
Duty in analyzing legislation, 193-4, 196-7, 356
Globe and Mail comment, 356
Senators of prominence in business, professional and political fields, 201-4
Statute books, revision of, 637
Statute Law (Superannuation) Amendment bill C-193, 879, 880-1
Student Loans bill C-197, 765, 793-6
Provincial jurisdiction in educational matters, 793-6
Quebec, 795-6
Questions presented by Hon. Mr. Pouliot on Bill C-110 (1964) in committee, 793-4
Superannuation for judges and senators, and pensions for widows, 879
Table of Precedence for Canada, suggested amdt., 1820-1
Taylor, Hon. William H., retired, 657
"The other place", 985-6
Translation problems, 880-1
Treasury Board regulations, appointments, and quorum, 1226
Veniot, Hon. Clarence J., retired, 657
Water resources, conservation of, 715-17
NAWAPA diversion scheme, Globe and Mail article, 716-17
Pollution, resolution by Mayors' Group to do research on, 717

Poverty
Company of Young Canadians, aspirations in relation to poverty and plenty, 855-6
Farm income and failures, 33
Nova Scotia, average income in Inverness, 907
Poverty and affluent society, 855
Rural poverty, 308-10, 549, 551, 672
Welfare Council report re, 308, 309
Training and regional development programs, 43-44
War on poverty in New Brunswick, 281
World hunger, 528-30

Power, Hon C. G., P.C.
Crerar, Hon. T.A., retired, 574-5
Doctor of Laws, honorary degree from University of Saskatchewan, 607
Felicitations on 49th anniversary in Parliament, 1292-3
Lambert, Hon. Norman P., the late, 18
Memoirs, publication of, 1125-6
Vanier, General Georges Philias, the late, 1574-5

Precedence and Protocol, inquiry, Hon. Mr. Pouliot, 1834

Presbyterian Church in Canada, Trustee Board of, bill S-20. Hon. Mr. Kinley. 1r, 211; 2r, 265; ref to com, 265; rep of com without amdt, 367; 3r, 367; r.a., 648

Press and periodicals, etc.
Amendment of the Canadian Constitution, by Hon. Guy Favreau, 126-7
Between Niger and Nile, by Sir Arthur Toynbee, 435
Brandon Sun
Hate propaganda legislation, 1199
Brantford Expositor
Divorce reform, 262
Centennial Gazette, article on history of Canadian railways, 1414
Christian Science Monitor
World hunger, assistance from wealthy countries, 672
Faith and Freedom, by Barbara Ward, excerpt from, 1063
Family Herald
Education vs economy, 310
Financial Post
Canada Deposit Insurance Corporation, article by president of Guaranty Trust Co., 1458-9
Life Under the Auto Pact, 781-2
Fortune
Creative federalism, 230
Gazette
Bankruptcy investigation by Government, 252
Bankruptcy, Rec-Stone Co., 252
Globe and Mail
Bankruptcies, brief of Canadian Institute of Chartered Accountants, 248
Hate propaganda legislation, 1199
NAWAPA diversion scheme, 716-17
Pollution of water, 717
Senate performance of duties, 356
Trade deficit in automotive exports, 750-2
Halifax Chronicle
United Milk Producers Assoc., 827-8
Jewish Voice
Hate propaganda legislation, article by Rev. Ernest Marshall, 1199-1200
Le Devoir
Marriage and divorce, article by Claude Ryan, 488-9
Le Saint-Laurent
1965 Redistribution – Quebec disfigured by the Langlois Commission, 181-4
1965 Redistribution – The madness of a new wave, 179-81
London Free Press
Hate propaganda legislation, 1199
Memoirs of Chubby Power, A Party Politician, 1125-6
Modern France
Child instruction, 309-10
Montreal Gazette
Editorial on defying of Parliament by Labour, 1027
New Statesman, letter on economic growth, by Sir Arthur Bryant, 435-6
Ottawa Citizen
Passage of bills by Senate, 892-4
"The Senators show us how", 174
Ottawa Journal
Deutsch report, 44
"Labrador takeover" by Quebec, 97-99
Senate Special Committee on Aging, article on work of, 174
St. John's Evening Telegram
Subsidies from Government to fishermen and farmers, comparisons, 95

Press and periodicals—Concluded
Sudbury Star
Northern Ontario Economy, 674-5
Survey of the Contemporary Indians of Canada, Hawthorn-Tremblay report, 1713-15, 1748
Times
Railway dispute, comment on Government procedure in, 1028-30
Toronto Daily Star
Divorce, 236
Hate propaganda legislation, 1199
LSD party, 1800-1
University of Toronto weekend "Perception 67" on drug experience, 1801
Toronto Telegram
Death of student John Stern attributed to LSD, 1801
Hate propaganda legislation, 1200
Ukrainian Canadians: Their place and Role in Canadian Life, by Hon. Paul Yuzyk, 1820
Unwin, J. Robertson, McGill University
LSD, effects and glamorizing of drug through news media, 1801-2
U.S. Code Congressional (and Administrative) News
Automotive Products Agreement, amdt proceedings re Letters of Commitment, 752-3
Vancouver Sun
Publication of Vancouver School Board re dangers of LSD, 1799-1800
Welfare Council report on rural poverty, 308
Winnipeg Free Press
Food shortages, 1087-8
Winnipeg Tribune
Electoral distribution, Senator Pouliot charges "bungling" in, 179

Prince Edward Island
Tourist literature, 344
Winter works program, 332-4
See also Atlantic provinces

Printing of Parliament, Joint Committee
Members
Commons, 132
Senate, 25; message to Commons, 38, 329

Prison administration, female inmates, inquiry, Hon. Mrs. Fergusson, 915

Private bills, see Bills, private

Privilege, question of Canadian Broadcasting Corporation TV program "Sunday", Hon. John J. Connolly, 1203-4
Food and Drugs bill S-60, newspaper report of remark by Dr. Morton Shulman, 1812
French-Canadian liberalism, spokesman for, Hon. Mr. Pouliot, 272-3

Privilege, question of – Concluded
NATO Parliamentarians, Canadian delegates, 1468-73
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Brooks, A.J., 1470-2
Connolly, John J., 1468-70
Grosart, Allister, 1472
Haig, J. Campbell, 1473
MacKenzie, Hon. Norman A., 1472
O'Leary, M. Grattan, 1463-6
Ottawa Citizen article on Senate passage of bills, Hon. Mr. Aseltine, 892-4
Survey of Contemporary Indians in Canada, Hon. Mr. Hollett, 1748

Privy Council, iv
Appointments, suggestions by Hon. Mr. Pouliot, 29, 473

Pro forma bill
Railways bill S-1. 1r, 6

Property qualification of Senators, 1, 199, 258, 300
Return presented, with motion for supplementary return, 132
Supplementary return presented, 386

Prorogation of Parliament
Notice of, 1924
Speech from the Throne, 1925-7

Prowse, Hon. J. Harper
Canadian Forces Reorganization bill C-243, 1857
Competition between armed forces, 1857
Peacekeeping commitments, 1858-9
Canadian Pacific Railway (Alberta) S-34, 471, 535-6
Gas and sulphur production, 536
Food and Drugs bill S-60, 1827-9
Glamorizing of LSD, 1828
RCMP control of narcotics, 1828-9
Introduction to the Senate, 199
Northwest Territories bill C-146, 588-92
Carrothers Commission, 590-1
Elected members of Council, 588
Indemnity, 588
Government of Territories, 589
Mileage and population, 588-9
Revenues and expenditures, 591
Public Utilities Income Tax Transfer bill C-211, 843
Free enterprise, Alberta, 843

Public bills, see Bills, public

Public Buildings and Grounds Committee
Members, 26, 269

Public Health and Welfare Committee
Members, 26, 269

Public Service Employment
Appeals, 1478
Languages to be used for examinations, 1478
Leader of the Opposition in the Senate, 1508
Merit system, 1477-8, 1501-3
Political activity, 1478-80, 1502, 1504-8
C.S. Commission memorandum re, 1505
Public Service Commission powers, 1502-4, 1507
Reports to Parliament, 1507
Treasury Board responsibilities, 1501-2
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Connolly, John J., 1503
Grosart, Allister, 1500-7, 1508
MacKenzie, Norman A., 1477-80, 1507-8

Public Service Employment bill C-181. 1r, 1477; 2r, 1477-80, 1500-9; 3r, 1509; r.a., 1509

Public Service, Special Joint Committee
Bills ref to joint com, 649, 725
Members
Commons, 688, 707, 759, 1053, 1075, 1124, 1143
Senate, 470, 757, 866, 1065, 1197
Message from Commons re appointment, 402
Motion to print reports in Minutes, 1383
Reports
Employer and employee relations, 1383
Employment in the Public Service, 1383
Financial Administration Act amendment, 1383
Meetings, witnesses, recommendations, 1923-4
Quorum, 744, 771
Statute Law (Superannuation) Amendment bill C-193, amdt to French version, 771
Terms of reference, 1348, 1366, 1526

Public Service Staff Relations
Appeal to Parliament, 1484
Arbitration boards, 1489
Collective bargaining rights, 1474-5, 1481-2, 1487-8, 1490
Economic factors of strikes, 1489
Employee grievances, 1475-6
Grievance procedures, 1476
Parliamentary staff, 1485
Press comment, 1482-3
Public Service Staff Relations Board, 1474
Responsibility in strike action, 1486

Public Service Staff Relations—Concluded
Retroactivity to pay review date, 1476
Safety and security of the public, 1475, 1483, 1490
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Beaubien, L.P., 1489
Bourget, Maurice, 1473-7
Cameron, Donald, 1485-7
Choquette, Lionel, 1481-3
Deschatelets, Jean-Paul, 1483, 1489, 1491
Flynn, Jacques, 1487-9
Hollett, Malcolm, 1489-90
Macdonald, John M., 1485
Roebuck, Arthur W., 1483-5, 1488

Public Service Staff Relations bill C-170. 1r, 1473; 2r, 1473-77, 1481-91; 3r, 1498; r.a., 1509

Public utilities income tax transfer
Beneficiaries of transfer, 842
Brinco Corp., Nfld., 842, 843
Free enterprise, Alberta, 843
New Brunswick, question of benefits, 842-3
Refund limits, 842
Taxing of utility corps., in relation to income tax structure, 841
Time lag in transfer, 841-2
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Fournier, Edgar E., 842-3
Prowse, J. Harper, 843
Urquhart, Earl W., 840-2

Public Utilities Income Tax Transfer bill C-211. 1r, 790; 2r, 840-3; 3r, 854; r.a., 930

Quart, Hon. Josie D.
Address in reply to Speech from the Throne, 253-5
Aging, Senate Special Committee, 173-6
Jewish Home for the Aged, Toronto, 176
Press comment on Senate Committee, 174
Senior Citizens' day at Expo67, suggestion, 175-6
Appropriation bill No. 9 C-248, 1221-2
Beaulieu, Madame Jeanne-Pauline, Mother of the Year, 399
Bouffard, Hon. Paul H., the late, 153
Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, 253-5, 1221-3
Corrupt use of TV and radio facilities, 253-5
Coverage unfavourable to prominent persons, 255
Declaration of Women, brief presented to Government officials, 254-5, 1221-3
Penfield, Dr. Wilder, criticism of CBC, 255
Company of Young Canadians bill C-174, 860-1
Excerpts from report by Stewart Goodings, 861
Members of organizing committee, 860
Projects in Canada, 861
Comtois, Hon. Paul, the late, 153

Quebec
Bankruptcies, 248-52
Bankruptcy Court of Montreal, 251
Bankruptcy rings, 248-50, 251, 252
Criminal elements and murders, 247-8
Rec-Stone Co., 252
Commissions, name, nature, personnel and date, inquiry, Hon. Mr. Pouliot, 1067-8, 1073-4
Comtois, Hon. Paul, Lieutenant Governor, the late, 147-58
Divorce laws, 237-40
Judges appointed to commissions, inquiry, Hon. Mr. Pouliot, 93, 305-6, 391
Legal fees and travelling expenses received from Government by solicitors, lawyers, counsel and notaries public, inquiry, Hon. Mr. Pouliot, 810, 892, 1147, (reply tabled, 1143)
Legal services, fees paid by Government to members of Quebec Bar, 604, 634, 650-3, 729, 778-9
Redistribution of electoral boundaries, 169-70, 179-84, 305, 337-8, 352-7
St. Jean Baptiste Society brief re "Labrador takeover", 97
Winter works program, 318-19, 332-5
See also Judges,
Legal Profession.

Quebec North Shore and Labrador Railway Company bill S-31. Hon. Mr. Bourget. 1r, 453; 2r, 586-8; ref to com, 588; rep of com without amdt, 632; 3r, 658

Quebec Savings Banks
Cash reserve, 1746
Directors, 1746
Interest and charges, 1746
Lending and investment powers, 1746-7
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Bourque, Romuald, 1745-7
Flynn, Jacques, 1747

Quebec Savings Banks bill C-223. 1r, 1745; 2r, 1745-7; ref to com, 1745; authority to print proceedings, 1750; rep of com without amdt, 1750; 3r, 1750; r.a., 1768

Queen Elizabeth II, tribute in Montreal newspaper, 666-7

Question of Privilege, see Privilege, question of Questions, see Inquiries

Railways
Abandonment of, 34
Canadian National Railway (Bruce Lake) bill C-165, 401, 416-19, 453-4, 476-7, 547
Canadian National Railway (Stall Lake-Watrous) bill C-210, 770, 787-90, 849-50, 868, 929
Canadian Pacific Railway (Alberta) bill S-34, 471, 535-7, 632-3, 658, 929
Canadian Pacific Railway (Saskatchewan) bill S-32, 471, 534-5, 632, 658, 929
History of Canadian railways, 1397-8, 1385, 1420-2, 1414
Maintenance of Railway Operation bill C-230, 1013-37
National Transportation bill C-231, 1341-7, 1377-82, 1384-1405, 1417, 1420-3, 1442
Ottawa Terminal Railway bill S-2, 22, 84-87, 186, 201
Parliament recalled from recess to deal with strike negotiations, 978
STELCO, government subsidy to build railway, 468-9
Taxi service from Ottawa railway station, 1580
Water supplies and sanitary facilities, 641-2

Railways bill (pro forma) S-1. 1r, 6

Railways, maintenance of
Cameron, Mr. Justice, report and recommendations, 1016-17, 1020
Collective bargaining procedures, 1018
Compulsory arbitration, 1025
Conciliation boards and chairmen, 1014-15
Criticism of Government procedure, 1021-3, 1028-30, 1032-6
Times comment, 1029
Events leading up to strike action, 1013-15
Freedman report, implementation of, 1017-18
MacPherson report, implementation of, 1020
Mediator, appointment of, 1021
Munroe, Mr. Justice, report and recommendations of, 1015-16, 1020
Rate structures, controlling of, 1018-19
Right of employees to strike, 1023-4, 1035
St. Lawrence Seaway workers, increase of 30%, 1036
Union issues in dispute, 1013-14
See also Maintenance of Railways bill C-230

Rainbow Pipe Line Company Limited bill S-52. Hon. Mr. Hastings. 1r, 1077; 2r, 1091-2; ref to com, 1092; rep with amdts, 1164; 3r, 1196

Rattenbury, Hon. Nelson
Address in reply to Speech from the Throne, 279-82
Admiralty bill C-161, 386-7
Deputy judges, 386
Sheriff's jurisdiction, 386-7
Atlantic provinces, 279-82
Atlantic Development Board, commendation, 279-80
Fishing industry, development programs, 280-1
Steel trawlers and wooden vessels, 280
Training of fishermen, officers and crew, 280
Hydro power developments, 279-80
Milltown Bridge bill S-15, 176-7

Rattenbury, Hon. Nelson – Concluded
New Brunswick, 280-2
Economic prospects, 280-2
Educational improvements, 281
Racial and religious tensions, 279, 282
Reconstruction in municipal, educational and taxation structure, 280-2
Press comment, 281
Royal Commission on, 281
Robichaud, Hon. Louis Joseph, Premier, 280, 281, 282
War on poverty, 281

Redistribution
Judicial appointments to commissions, 93, 170, 194-5, 305-6, 353-4, 391, reply to inquiry tabled, 413
Langlois Commission, 169-70, 179-84
Newspaper articles re 'bungling', 179-84
Objections filed with Speaker of House of Commons, inquiry, Hon. Mr. Pouliot, 224-5, 313-14
Quebec historic names eliminated in redistribution, 169, 179-84, 195-6
Senate special committee to study, suggestion, 196-7
See also Electoral boundaries
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Brooks, A. J., 168, 170
Hugessen, A. K., 168, 170
Pouliot, Jean-François, 169-170, 179-84
(See also 193-7)

Redistribution bill C-126. 1r, 158; 2r, 168-70; 3r, 170; r.a., 178

Research Council, 453, 483-5, 540-1, 591, 599, 611-12, 758
See National Research Council

Restaurant of Parliament, Joint Committee
Accounts and financial transactions, report on, 400
Members
Commons, 301-2, 329, 471
Senate, 25; message to Commons, 38

Retirement of Senators, 41-42, 50-51
Title of retired Senators, inquiry, Hon. Mr. Lefrançois, 414

Retirements from the Senate, see Senators, retired

Rhodesia
Discussions at meeting of Commonwealth Parliamentary Association, 433
Trade restrictions, 345-6

Richelieu Bridge Company bill S-44. 1r, 979; 2r, 1100-02; ref to com, 1102; authority to print com proceedings, 1243

Robertson, Hon. Wishart McL., P.C.
Retired December 24, 1965
Tributes, 18, 19

Roebuck, Hon. Arthur W.
Address in reply to Speech from the Throne, 126-9
Admiralty bill C-161, 387
Aging, report of Senate Special Committee, 114-15
Co-ordination of organizations, 115
Minimum income, 116
National Commission on Aging, 115
Automotive products, Canada-United States agreement, 741-2
Bank of Canada bill C-190, 1679
"Payable to bearer on demand", 1679
Bank of Western Canada bill C-111, 885
Birthday felicitations, 1515-16
Bradley, Hon. F. Gordon, the late, 362
Canada-United Kingdom Income Tax Agreement bill C-154, 445, 446
Protest against form of bill, 445, 446
Canadian National Railways Financing and Guarantee bill C-229, 1411, 1415
Combines Investigation and Criminal Code bill C-169 (B.C. fishermen and packers), 460-1
Application of terms to select group, question of, 460-1
Delegation of powers to Commons, 461
Constitution of Canada, 126-9
Amendment of the Canadian Constitution, by Hon. Guy Favreau, 126-7
B.N.A. Act amdts., control of, 126-8
Fulton-Favreau formula, 126-7
Consumer Credit, Joint Committee, terms of reference, 1040-7
Crerar, Hon. T.A., retired, 575-6
Criminal Code (Hate Propaganda) bill S-49, 1109-14, 1702-9
Appeals, 1113
Committee study under chairmanship of Dean Maxwell Cohen, 1111
Forfeiture of pamphlets, newspapers, arms., etc., 1113, 1709
Freedom of speech, 1704
Genocide, definitions of offences under, 1111, 1706
Identifiable group, 1112-13
Nazism, Beattie case cited, 1703-4, 1709
Penalties, 1112, 1113
Police persecution, 1113-14
Potential for harm from purveyors of hate, 1109-10
Press comments, 1704-5, 1707
Religious groups, 1708
Radio and TV regulations, 1110
UK Race Relations Act, 1706-7
Dairy Commission bill C-205, 828-9
Consumer protection, 829
Vesting of property, 829

Roebuck, Hon. Arthur W.—Continued
Divorce, 185-6, 233-42, 244-7, 497-506, 1003-7, 1011-12, 1125
Alimony, 499
Biega, Joyce Regina Nagine, appeal against judgment of Senate Commissioner, 1003-7
Subcommittee to hear appeal, 1011-12, 1125
Children involved in divorce, 239-40
Collusion, 500-3
Common law marriages, 235
Cruelty, 240-1
Desertion, 499-500
Divorce and Matrimonial Causes bill, 234, 498-500
Domicile, 499
English act cited, 240, 241-2
Grounds for divorce, extension, 234, 240-1
Judicial separation, 499
Law and Practice of Divorce in Canada, 236
Missing spouse declared dead, 499
Mueller, Lutz, withdrawal of petition because of death of respondent, 1540
Non-consummation of marriage, 499
Pregnancy for which husband not responsible, 499
Provincial acts, 236-7
Quebec and Newfoundland, 237-8, 239, 240
Rule 113 re reference of petitions to Committee, 1004
Rape, 498-9
Regina vs Pichette and Santerre, 502-3
Senate Divorce Committee and Commissioner, status of, 238-9, 501-5
Sodomy, 499
Statistics, 134, 138, 1369
United Church of Canada, book on, Marriage Breakdown, excerpt from, 235
Unsound mind, 241, 242, 499
Whiteside report, 810
Divorce Committee
Appointment, 23-24; subcommittees, 92, 109
Leave to sit during adjournments and sittings of Senate, 92, 109
Members, 22
Divorce Committee, Joint, 316, 650, 687
Reports, 650, 687, 1077-9
Divorce (Extension of Grounds) bill S-19, 185-6, 233-42, 244-7, 497-506
Divorce Reports
Nos. 2-113 : 134-8
114-169 : 167, 191
170-226 : 186, 206
227-282 : 201, 218
283-337 : 211, 231
338-400 : 293, 306
401-448 : 314, 358
449-498 : 404, 426
499-579 : 454, 485
580-635 : 564, 594
636-670 : 604, 639
671-710 : 744, 775
711-751 : 770, 799
752 : 810
753-816 : 913

Roebuck, Hon. Arthur W.—Continued
Divorce Reports – Concluded
817-847 : 1096, 1121
848-909 : 1124
910-1041 : 1241, 1260
1042-1098 : 1369, 1406
1099-1146 : 1480, 1493
1147-1211 : 1525, 1541 (No. 1179 withdrawn, 1577)
1212-1251 : 1632, 1662
1252-1290 : 1702, 1720
1291-1333 : 1772, 1803
Divorce Resolutions
Nos. 1-112 : 159-62, 171-3
113-168 : 191-2, 208-9
169-225 : 207-8, 232-3
226-281 : 218-19, 256-7
282-336 : 231-2, 265-7
337-390 : 306-7, 338-9
391-437 : 358-9, 396-7
438-487 : 426-7, 458-7
488-568 : 485-7, 568
569-621 : 594-5, 612-13
622-656 : 636-40, 661-2
657-696 : 775-6, 812-13
697-737 : 813-14, 863-4
738-800 : 914-15
801-830 : 1133-4
831-890 : 1160-1, 1205-06
891-1021 : 1260-3, 1274-6
1022-1074 : 1406-7, 1408-9
1075-1122 : 1493-4, 1499
1123-1184 : 1542-3, 1570-1
1185-1224 : 1662-3, 1696-7
1225-1263 : 1720-1, 1748-9
1264-1304 : 1803, 1819
Dutch Elm disease, 294-6, 404-5, 413-14
External aid, food distribution, 1247
Fair Wages and Hours of Labour bill C-2, 702
Jurisdiction over wages and hours of labour, 702
Fisheries Development bill C-145, 467, 469
B.C. fishing monopoly, 469
Socialism, question of, 467, 469
Government Organization bill C-178, 684
Hydro power transmission over long distances, 326-7
Income Tax Agreements bill S-56, 1377
Income Tax bill C-259, 1659-60
Deferred profit sharing plan, 1660
Inflation, 1040-7, 1673-4
Canadian currency in circulation, 1046-7, 1674
Monetary policy of Government, 1045-7, 1673-4
Interpretation bill S-9, 112, 197-8
Definition of time and land, 112
Demise of the Crown Act, 197
Judges bill C-160, 392

Roebuck, Hon. Arthur W.—Concluded
Labour (Safety) Code bill S-35, 640-5, 657-8, 851-2
Automotive Transport Assoc., 643-4, 658
Factories under federal jurisdiction, 641
Health and Welfare recommendations re construction camps and eating establishments, 642
Penalties, 640
Transport Commissioners' decision, 642-3, 657-8
Water supplies and sanitary facilities, 641-2, 851
CPR diesel locomotives, 641
Locomotive engineers, negotiations re, 644
Lambert, Hon. Norman P., the late, 17
Maintenance of Railway Operation bill C-230, 1030-2
Manitoba-Northwest Territories Boundary bill S-47, 995
Manitoba-Saskatchewan Boundary bill S-45, 992, 993
Medical Care bill C-227, 1270-1
Liberal Party, instigation of unemployment insurance and other welfare matters, 1270-1
National Research Council bill C-150, 485
Research projects of NRC, 485
National Transportation bill C-231, 1387, 1388, 1389, 1390, 1393
NATO Parliamentarians, 12th annual conference at Paris, France, 1466-7
Canadian delegates, continuity and briefing of, 1467
Foreign policy and obligation of Canada, questioned, 1466-7
Ottawa Terminal Railway bill S-2, 86, 87
Employees of railway unions, 86
Pension Benefits Standards bill C-221, 1673-4
Press report on passage of bills by Senate, 893
Public Service Staff Relations bill C-170, 1483-5, 1488
Appeal to Parliament, 1484
Freedom to strike, 1484
Tolpuddle Martyrs, 1484
Saskatchewan-Northwest Territories Boundary bill S-46, 994
Science Council of Canada bill C-149, 422
Cold firecrackers, 422
Training Allowance bill C-186, 722-3
Woodrow, Hon. Allan L., the late, 362
World Exhibition, Canadian Corporation, bill S-42, 888, 890, 891
Yukon bill C-147, 711-12

Royal Anthem, see National and Royal Anthems

Royal assent, 125, 131, 170, 178, 291, 386, 397, 540, 547, 632, 648, 743, 757-8, 929-30, 976-7, 1037, 1174, 1175, 1187, 1194, 1197, 1209, 1232, 1243, 1263, 1338, 1339-40, 1433, 1442, 1526, 1541, 1604, 1611, 1924-5
Cartwright, Hon. J.R., M.C., 1541, 1611
Fauteux, Hon. Gerald, Puisne Judge of the Supreme Court of Canada, 291, 1924
Hall, Hon. Emmett M. Puisne Judge of the Supreme Court of Canada, 929-30, 976-7, 1339-40
Taschereau, Hon. Robert, P.C., Chief Justice of Canada, 131, 178, 397, 547, 648, 757-8, 1037, 1175, 1194, 1197, 1209, 1232, 1263, 1442, 1509

Rules of the Senate
Bourinot's Parliamentary Procedure, excerpt re introduction of money bills in Senate, 982
No. 18A, ministers' participation in Senate Debates, 471-6, 981
No. 113, re divorce petitions, 1004
No. 119, suspension of, 454-5, 885

Rural economic development
ARDA, 549, 592, 1565, 1567
Farm Leadership Awards, 675
Federal-provincial agreements, 1566
Fishing resources, 593
Implementation of programs, responsibility for, 675, 676
Income, farm and rural non-farm families, 549-50
Interlake area and other western towns, Manitoba, 582-3, 1553, 1565, 1592-5
New Brunswick, 1552-3, 1565
PFRA, 1578-9, 1592
Poverty in rural areas, 549, 551, 676
Rural and urban populations, 726
Sudbury Star article on Northern Ontario Economy, 674-5
Under-estimating of programs, 1564-5
Water resources, development in western Canada, 1579
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Argue, Hazen, 1578-9
Belisle, Rheal, 673-6
Flynn, Jacques, 726
Irvine, Olive L., 592-3
McDonald, A. Hamilton, 549-51, 676-7, 1551-3, 1566
Pearson, Hon. Arthur M., 671-3, 1564-7
Pouliot, Hon. Jean-François, 662-5, 726-7

Rural Economic Development Fund bill C-151. 1r, 548-9; 2r, 549-51, 662-6, 671-7; ref to com, 677; authority to print com proceedings, 714; rep of com with amdt, 714; 3r, 726-7; r.a., 929

Rural Economic Development Fund bill C-274. 1r, 1524; 2r, 1551-3, 1564-7; 3r, 1578-80, 1591-6; r.a., 1611

St. Jean Baptiste Society of Montreal, suggestion that Quebec take possession of Labrador, 97-99, see also 553-4, 558-60

St. Lawrence Ports working conditions
Compulsory arbitration, 972, 974, 975
Conference between labour and Government representatives, 972-3
Industrial Inquiry Commission, 970
Mediator, Judge René Lippé, 969-70
Protection of workers and job security, 971
Saving provision to vary agreement, 971
Terms for settlement of strike, 970
Amendment by negotiations or "otherwise", 970-1, 973
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Connolly, John J., 969-72, 974-5
Macdonald, John M., 972-5

23031—152½

St. Lawrence Ports Working Conditions bill C-215. 1r, 969; 2r, 969-76; 3r, 976; r.a., 977

St. Patrick's Day, 1669-70, 1697-8

Sangster, Sir Donald, the late, 1780-2

Saskatchewan
Alwinsal Potash of Canada Ltd., 788-9
Crop insurance, 923
Diamond Jubilee, 34
Farm income and failures, 33-34
Industrial development, 322, 325-6
Potash, 32, 322, 325-6, 788-9
Manitoba-Saskatchewan Boundary bill S-45, 979, 988-94
Oil industry, 32
Pulp mill, Prince Albert, 32
Sodium sulphate, Ingebright Lake, 535
Water resources, 936, 940-1

Saskatchewan-Northwest Territories boundary
Speakers: Honourable Senators
McDonald, A. Hamilton, 994
Roebuck, Arthur W., 994
See also Manitoba-Saskatchewan Boundary

Saskatchewan-Northwest Territories Boundary bill S-46. 1r, 980; 2r, 994; ref to com, 994; authority to print proceedings, 1007; rep without amdt, 1008; 3r, 1008; r.a., 1263

Savoie, Hon. Calixte F.
Comeau, Hon. Joseph Willie, the late, 14-15

Science Council
Expenses, 421
Glassco Commission recommendations re scientific policy, 420, 423-4
MacKenzie, Dr. J.C., recommendations to Prime Minister, 420-1, 423-4, 447, 448
Medical research, 447
Ministry of Science, Senator suggested as head of, 425
Personnel, 419-20, 424-5, 447-8
Science organizations in other countries, 422
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Hugessen, A.K., 419-22
O'Leary, M. Grattan, 422-6
Roebuck, Arthur W., 422
Sullivan, Joseph A., 446-8

Science Council of Canada bill C-149. 1r, 401; 2r, 419-26, 446-8; ref to com, 448; authority to print com proceedings, 541; rep of com without amdt, 541; 3r, 541; r.a., 547

Seaboard Finance Company of Canada bill S-21. Hon. Mr. McDonald. 1r, 293; 2r, 317-18; ref to com, 318; rep of com without amdt, 413; 3r, 446

Selection Committee
Appointment, 7
Reports
Divorce Committee members, 22
Internal Economy Committee members, 22
Standing Committees members, 23, 25-26; appointment, 37

Senate
Adjournments
March 31, 398
May 12, 547
July 14, 977
September 1, 1037
September 13, 1051
December 21, 1340
February 9, 1435
Emergency sittings, authority to convene Senate during adjournment, 24
Parliament recalled from recess to deal with railway legislation, 978
Globe and Mail comment on Senate performance of duties, 356
Lighting in chamber and reading room, 41
Officers and Chiefs of principal branches, xix
Rules of the Senate
Bourinot's Parliamentary Procedure, excerpt re introduction of money bills in Senate, 982
No. 18A, Ministers' participation in Senate debates, 471-6, 981
No. 113, re divorce petitions, 1004
No. 119 suspension of, 454-5, 885
Speaker of the Senate, Hon. Sydney J. Smith, Commission of Appointment, 1

Senators
According to seniority, alphabetically and by provinces, v-xvii
Prominence in business, professional and political fields, 201-4
Property qualification, 1, 132, 199, 258, 300, 931, 978
Retirement of, 41-42, 50-51, 414
See Senators, retired
Telephone privileges, 92
Title after retirement, 414

Senators, deceased
Bishop, Hon. Charles L., 1053-5
September 28, 1966
Bouffard, Hon. Paul H., 147-58
February 20, 1966

Senators, deceased – Concluded
Bradley, Hon. F. Gordon, P.C., 360-3
March 30, 1966
Comeau, Hon. Joseph Willie, 11-18
January 11, 1966
Davies, Hon. W. Rupert, 1612-17
March 11, 1967
Grant, Hon. Thomas V., 1351
December 24, 1966
Hnatyshyn, Hon. John –
May 2, 1967
Lambert, Hon. Norman P., 11-18
November 4, 1965
McKeen, Hon. Stanley S. –
December 1, 1966
McLean, Hon. A. Neil, 1612-16
March 12, 1967
Wood, Hon. Thomas H., 11-18
November 26, 1965
Woodrow, Hon. Allan L., 360-3
March 30, 1966

Senators, new
Argue, Hon. Hazen Robert, 199
Benidickson, Hon. William Moore, 1
Davey, Hon. Douglas Keith, 199
Deschatelets, Hon. Jean-Paul, 199
Desruisseaux, Hon. Paul, 978
Duggan, Hon. James, 978
Everett, Hon. Douglas Donald, 1135
Hastings, Hon. Earl Adam, 199
Hays, Hon. Harry William, 258
Kickham, Hon. Thomas Joseph, 978
Kinnear, Hon. Mary Elizabeth, 1770
Laird, Hon. Keith, 1770
Lamontagne, Hon. Maurice, 1770
Langlois, Hon. J.G. Leopold, 931
MacKenzie, Hon. Norman Archibald MacRae, 300
Macnaughton, Hon. Alan Aylesworth, 978
McDonald, Hon. Alexander Hamilton, 1
McElman, Hon. Charles Robert, 258
Nichol, Hon. John Lang, 199
Prowse, Hon. James Harper, 199
Thompson, Hon. Andrew Ernest, 1770
Urquhart, Hon. Earl Wallace, 199

Senators, retired
Bishop, Hon. Charles L. –
September 23, 1966
Buchanan, Hon. John A., 19
October 2, 1965
Crerar, Hon. T.A., 571-6
May 31, 1966

Senators, retired – Concluded
Grant, Hon. Thomas V., 19
August 19, 1965
Hugessen, Hon. A.K., 1355-60
January 1, 1967
Jodoin, Hon. Mariana B., 653-7
June 1, 1966
Robertson, Hon. Wishart McL., 18-19
December 24, 1965
Taylor, Hon. William H., 653-7
June 1, 1966
Tremblay, Hon. Leonard D.S., 18-19
September 2, 1965
Veniot, Hon. Clarence J., 653-7
June 1, 1966
Woodrow, Hon. Allan L. –
March 14, 1966

Senior citizens, see Report of Special Committee on Aging, p. 89 et seq

Shipping Federation
Report re dispute between Shipping Federation of Canada, Inc., and International Longshoremen's Assoc., 871-7
Terms of settlement for two-year collective agreement, 875-6

Small Businesses loans
Classification of small business, 1538
Guarantee on loans, 1539
Interest rate, 1538, 1539
Loans and losses, 1538, 1540
Monopolies, 1540
Newfoundland loans, 1540
Operation of legislation extended, 1538
Purposes for which loan may be used, 1538
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Leonard, T. D'Arcy, 1537-9
Haig, J. Campbell, 1551
Hollett, Malcolm, 1539-40

Small Businesses Loans bill C-270. 1r, 1524; 2r, 1537-40, 1551; 3r, 1559; r.a., 1611

Smith, Hon. Donald
Atlantic Develcpment Board, 1689-93
Anti-pollution campaign, 1691-2
Cape Breton Island, 1694
Fish plants, 1691
Health Resources Fund, 1694
Highway construction, 1691
Industrial development, 1691
Power development and transmission, 1690

Smith, Hon. Donald—Concluded
Atlantic Development Board – Concluded
Research buildings and equipment, 1691
Rural Economic Development Fund, 1693-4
Trans-Canada Highway, 1692-3
Estimates, 332-4, 1689-95
Fair Wages and Hours of Labour bill C-2, 685-7, 703-4
Overtime, 686
Penalties, 686
Standard rate of pay, 686
Working hours, 686
Fisheries Development bill C-145, 463-8, 482-3
Arctic char, 467-8
Fish-processing plants, 464
Inspection regulations, 465-6
Long-liner vessels, 463-4
Payments for construction, etc., 464
Precedents in promotion of high quality food, 466
Telephone privileges for Senators, 92
Winter works, 332-4
Prince Edward Island, 332-3
Quebec and Atlantic provinces, 332-3
Terms of program, 333
Unemployed absorbed in, 333-4

Smith, Hon. Sydney J., Speaker of the Senate
Appointment as Speaker, 1
Budget speech, accommodation for Senators in Commons gallery, 340, 1292
Centennial of Confederation, congratulations to Canada, extracts from Congressional Record, 1786, 1805-7
Consumer Credit and Cost of Living, Joint Committee, 301, 328-9, 1038-50
Death of Mrs. Sydney J. Smith, expressions of sympathy to Speaker, 1104
Divorce Committee, 300, 328
Library of Parliament Committee, 329
National and Royal Anthems Committee, 1348
Penitentiaries Committee, 300-1, 328
Printing of Parliament Committee, 329
Property qualification of Senators, supplementary return, 386
Public Service Committee, 402, 1348
Restaurant of Parliament Committee, 301-2, 329
Senators, new, introduction to the Senate, 1, 199, 258, 300, 931, 978, 1135

Speaker of the House of Commons
Lamoureux, Hon. Lucien, statements re appointment, 2-3

Speaker of the Senate
Reading of Commission appointing Hon. Sydney J. Smith, 1

Speaker of the Senate, Acting
Bourget, Hon. Maurice, 432, 453, 496, 523, 540, 1038

Special Committee, Senate, see Aging

Special Committees, Joint
Administration of Justice
Consumer Credit and Cost of Living
Criminal Code (Hate Propaganda)
Divorce
Immigration
National and Royal Anthems
Penitentiaries
Public Service
See also individual names

Speech from the Throne
Opening of Parliament, 3-6
See Address in reply to Speech from the Throne
Prorogation of Parliament, 1925-7

Spellman, John Howard, Chairman of Special Committee on Matrimonial Law, Bar Assoc., New York State, 1510

Sports
Canadian Football League, Hon. Keith Davey appointed Commissioner, 774-5
Grey Cup, National Football Playoff in Vancouver, 1197
Olympic Games, misrepresentations by certain groups, 935
Pan-American Games 1967 in Winnipeg, 745-7
Stanley Cup, congratulations to Hon. Mr. Molson on success of Canadiens, 497

Standing Committees
Members, 25-26
See Committees, Standing, also individual names

Standing Committees, Joint
Library of Parliament,
Printing of Parliament,
Restaurant of Parliament.
See also individual names

Standing Orders
Members, 25
Report
Petitions for private bills, extension of time for filing, 330, 525

Stanley Cup, congratulations to Hon. Mr. Molson on success of Canadiens, 497

Statistics
Automotive industry, 618-19
Bankruptcies (1956-64), 249
Capital outflow of Canadian funds, 120
Common law marriages, 235
Constituencies of Canada, population, 810, 1093-5
Crop insurance (1964-66), 622
Currency in circulation, 1046-7
Farm population, loss in, 582-3
Gold mining, 543
Government borrowings, 285
Government expenditures, 299
Health and welfare expenditures (1957-66), 902
Income, farm and rural non-farm families, 550
Livestock feed assistance, 1084-6
Population, 1046-7
Rural poverty, 550
Student loans, 767, 768
University students in other countries, 766
Uranium production, 544-5

Statute Law (Superannuation) amendment
Appeals to Treasury Board, 847
Armed forces pensioner re-employed in Public Service, 846
Death benefit, 846
Diplomatic services, 845-6
Employment after retirement, 847, 869
Intercolonial and PEI Railways employees, 845-6
Portability of benefits, 846, 869
Public Service, 844, 846
RCMP and armed forces, 845-6
Superannuation or pension acts amended under bill C-193, 844
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Bourget, Maurice, 843-7, 879, 880
O'Leary, Clement A., 868-70
Pouliot, Jean-François, 879, 880-1

Statute Law (Superannuation) Amendment bill 1966 C-193. 1r, 808; 2r, 843-7, 868-70; m for 3r, 879, m in amdt, 879-80, agreed to, 881; 3r, 881; concurrence by Commons in Senate amdt, 929; r.a., 930

Statutory salaries revision
Auditor General, 1547-8
Authority of Governor in Council, 1544-6
Executive powers of discrimination, 1564
Grain Commissioner, 1546
Officials affected by revision, 1544
Retroactive clause, 1545-6
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Aseltine, Walter M., 1545-6
Choquette, Lionel, 1563-4
Connolly, John J., 1546-7
Cook, Eric, 1544-5, 1547-8

Statutory Salaries Revision bill C-266. 1r, 1524; 2r, 1544-8, 1563-4; ref to com, 1564; rep of com without amdt, 1591; 3r, 1591; r.a., 1611

Strikes, see Labour

Student loans
Bursaries and scholarships, 766
Disadvantages of student loans, 792-3
Interest-free status, 769
Jurisdiction in educational matters, 793-6
Northwest Territories, 793
Provincial allocations, 769
Questions presented by Hon. Mr. Pouliot on Bill C-110 in committee, 793-4
Statistics for June and July 1965, 767, 768
University students in other countries, statistics, 766
Vocational training assistance, 766
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Cameron, Donald, 766-9
Connolly, John J., 765
Pouliot, Jean-François, 765, 793-6
Vaillancourt, Cyrille, 796
Yuzyk, Paul, 792-3

Student Loans bill C-197. 1r, 765; 2r, 765-9, 792-6; 3r, 811; r.a., 929

Sullivan, Hon. Joseph A.
Dutch Elm disease, 295
Endocrinology, International Society of, 515
Food and Drugs bill S-60, 1796-8
LSD, 1796-8
Clinical uses, 1796-7
Dangerous effects and reactions, 1797
Distribution and control of, 1797-8
Excerpt from book by W.A. Frosch of Bellevue Psychiatric Hospital, N.Y., 1798
Originators of, 1796
Medical Care bill C-227, 1249-58, 1282-3
British National Health Service, 1253
Difficulties in other countries, 1282-3
Doctors' right to "opt" out of plan, 1257
Gladston, Dr. Iago, "Medicine in Transition", 1255, 1257
Medical profession needs for personnel, 1255-6
Penfield, Dr. Wilder, comments on free medical services, 1250
Press comments, 1256
Program for Government, suggestion, 1254
Sigerist, Prof. Henry, "On the Sociology of Medicine", 1257-8
Socialistic implications, 1251, 1252-3
Question of privilege re newspaper report of remark by Dr. Morton Shulman on Food and Drugs bill S-60, 1812
Science Council of Canada bill C-149, 446-8
Medical research, 447
Terms of reference and personnel, 447-8

Superannuation, see Statute Law (Superannuation)

Supply bills
See Appropriation bills,
Estimates.

Table of Precedence for Canada, suggested amdt., Hon. Mr. Pouliot, 1820-1

Taschereau, Hon. Robert, P.C., Chief Justice of Canada, Deputy of Governor General
Opening of Parliament, 2
Royal assent, 131, 178, 397, 547, 648, 757-8, 1037, 1175, 1194, 1197, 1209, 1232, 1263, 1442, 1509

Taxation
Corporation tax, 837, 838
Customs tariff bill, 762-5, 791-2, 811, 929
Excise tax bill, 769, 797-9, 811, 929
Farm machinery costs, 311
Income Tax Agreement, Canada and United Kingdom, 401-2
Income Tax bill C-216, 943-54, 956, 958, 956-61, 976
Income Tax bill C-259, 1647-60, 1701, 1719-20, 1768
Income Tax bill C-280, 1885, 1914-15, 1925
Public Utilities Income Tax Transfer bill, 790, 840-3, 854, 930

Taylor, Hon. William H.
Retired June 1, 1966
Tributes, 653-7

Technical and vocational training
Schools and research, inquiry, Hon. Mr. Cameron, 921, 1001-2
Senior citizens, 74
Skill training vs true education, 425
Technical schools built since 1961, 766
See Adult occupational training

Teleferries
Chattels, transporting of, 1712
Inspection of construction, 1711
Interprovincial or international boundaries, 1710
Licences, 1711
Tolls, 1711
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Brooks, A.J., 1711-12
Connolly, John J., 1710-13

Teleferry bill S-58. 1r, 1668; 2r, 1710-13; 3r, 1720

Thompson, Hon. Andrew, P.C.
Introduction to the Senate, 1770

Thorvaldson, Hon. Gunnar S.
Assistance Plan bill C-207, 901-3, 909
Health and welfare expenditures (1957-66), 902
Indian welfare, 903
Jurisdiction in social and welfare services, 902-3
Bank of Canada bill C-190, 1677-9
Consultation between governor and government, 1677-9
Monetary policy, responsibility for, 1677-8
Bank of Western Canada bill C-111, 884-5
Bankruptcy bill S-17, 247-52
Abuse of bankruptcy laws, 247-9
Criminal elements, 247-8
Bankruptcies (1956-64), 249
Briefs presented re administration of act, 248
Canadian Institute of Chartered Accountants, 248
Judicial administration, Bankruptcy Court of Montreal, 251
Mercier Commission of Inquiry into Bankruptcies, etc., 248-52
Press reports, 248, 252
Quebec bankruptcy rings, 248-50, 251, 252
Rec-Stone Co., 252
Superintendent's jurisdiction, 250
Trustees and inspectors, suspect activities, 250-1
Bills of Exchange bill S-14, 223
Compliance with Canada Labour (Standards) Code re holidays, 223
Non-juridical days added or deleted, 223
Payment of bills of exchange on Saturday or non-juridical day, 223
Canada-United Kingdom Income Tax Agreement bill C-154, 443-5
Canadian Tax Journal review of agreement, 443-4
Pensions and annuities, 444-5
Withholding tax, 444
Commonwealth, 270-2
Crises in Commonwealth, 271
Motion that External Relations Committee make inquiry into Commonwealth relations, 270-2
Nations acknowledging allegiance to, 270
Ottawa conference in 1965, 272
Estimates, 1247
Evangelistic Tabernacle Incorporated bill S-7, 39, 67-68
Export and Import Permits bill S-23, 363-6
Rhodesia, restrictions on trade with, illegality of, 364-6
Intergovernmental arrangement, 364-6
Strategic materials, 365
External aid, India and Pakistan, 1247
External Relations Committee, authority to print proceedings, 432
Film Development Corporation bill C-204, 1556-7
Advisory Group, 1557
Finances, handling of, 1556
Food and Drugs bill S-60, 1821-2
Glamorizing of LSD through news media, 1821
Mental illness statistics, 1822
Penalties, 1823

Thorvaldson, Hon. Gunnar S.—Concluded
Income Tax Agreements bill S-56, 1418-19
Withholding tax on interest and dividends, 1419
Income Tax bill C-216, 951-3
Potash mining, 951
Refundable tax, 952
Stock options, 952-3
Income Tax bill C-280, 1914-15
Business profits, tax period on, 1915
Mennonite Central Committee (Canada) bill S-37, 604
National Transportation bill C-231, 1384-92
Cominco, 1391
Crowsnest Pass Agreement, 1386-91
Historical review, 1390
Freight rates, 1385-91
History of railway operation in Canada, 1385
Land and mineral resources, 1388
MacPherson Commission, 1384-91
Objectives of Government and CPR, summarized by V.C. Fowke, 1390
"Reservations on Grain", by A.R. Gobeil, 1390-1
Newfoundland Additional Financial Assistance bill C-185, 583-5
McNair Commission recommendations, 582-3
Time element in terms of bill, 584
Old Age Security bill C-251, 1334-5
Marginal cases, 1335
Needs test, 1335
Violation of income tax law, 1335
Pacific Coast Fire Insurance Company bill S-6, 39, 67
Postal Services Interruption Relief bill S-55, 1296-7
Limitations under bill, 1296
Potential for disaster from strikes, 1296-7
Rural Economic Development Fund bill C-274, 1592-4, 1596
Interlake area and other western towns, 1592
United Grain Growers Limited bill S-5, 39, 64-67
Capital, increase in, 65
Shareholders, 65, 66
Taxation, 65-66

Tourist industry
New Brunswick, 101, 103
Newfoundland, 101-2
Nova Scotia, 103
Prince Edward Island, literature on, 344
Transcontinental tours for parliamentarians, 103

Tourist Traffic Committee
Members, 26, 269

Trade
Area control, 345
Authority of Governor in Council, 345
Automotive Products Agreement, Canada and U.S., 616-25, 735-42, 747-57, 779-87, 809, 853

Trade–Concluded
Commodity price stabilization, 1060
Customs tariff, 762-5, 791-2
Export and Import Permits bill S-23, 344-7, 363-7, 393-4, 547
Export and import controls, 345-6
Imbalance of trade in automotive products, 619, 620, 622, 750-2, 756
Jet purchases from France and effect on international relationships, 312
Kennedy Round of Tariff Negotiations and Arrangements, 764, 791, 792
Permits, 345
Rhodesia, restrictions on trade with, 345-6
Saskatchewan Government pressure for purchase of British goods, 312
Trade and foreign aid, 1081-2
Uranium, potential for sale to France, 544-7

Trade Relations Committee
See Canadian Trade Relations Committee

Traffic Accidents
Armed forces for police duty, 411-12
Emotions contributing to accidents, 60-61
"Hospitality on the Highway", safety program of Highway Safety Council, 1331
"It could happen to you", TV program for highway safety education, 64
Suggestions for government co-operation in prevention of, 62-63

Training Allowance
Basic allowance, federal-provincial agreement re, 720, 721-3
Employment status of trainees, 722
Unemployment insurance, amdt re vocational trainee, 719-21
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Connolly, John J., 723
Croll, David A., 722
Macdonald, John M., 721-2
Roebuck, Arthur W., 722-3
Urquhart, Earl W., 718-20

Training allowance bill 1966 C-186. 1r, 707; 2r, 718-23; ref to com, 723; authority to print com proceedings, 725-6; rep of com without amdt, 726; 3r, 747; r.a., 758

Transport and Communications Committee
Members, 25, 269, 1360
Leave to meet during Senate sittings, 811
Reports
Aeronautics bill C-153. Authority to print com proceedings, 525; rep of com without amdt, 525
Canadian National Railway (Bruce Lake) bill C-165. Authority to print com proceedings, 453; rep of com without amdt, 453-4
Canadian National Railway (Stall Lake-Watrous) bill C-210. Authority to print com proceedings, 849; rep of com without amdt, 849-50
Canadian National Railways Financing and Guarantee bill C-229. Authority to print com proceedings, 1433; rep of com without amdt, 1434

Transport and Communications Committee—Concluded
Reports – Concluded
Canadian Pacific Railway (Alberta) bill S-34. Authority to print com proceedings, 632-3; rep of com without amdt, 633
Canadian Pacific Railway (Saskatchewan) bill S-32. Authority to print com proceedings, 632; rep of com without amdt, 632
Commercial Solids Pipe Line Company bill S-36. Authority to print com proceedings, 743; rep of com with amdt, 743-4
Interprovincial Pipe Line Company bill S-10. Rep of com without amdt, fee paid last session, 133-4
Labour (Safety) Code bill S-35. Authority to print com proceedings, 725; rep of com with amdts, 850-2
Milltown Bridge bill S-15. Authority to print com proceedings, 224; rep of com without amdt, 224
National Transportation bill C-231. Authority to print com proceedings, 1417; rep of com without amdt, 1420
Ottawa Terminal Railway bill S-2. Authority to print com proceedings, 186; rep of com without amdt, 186
Quebec North Shore and Labrador Railway bill S-31. Rep of com without amdt, 632
Rainbow Pipe Line Co. Ltd. bill S-52. Rep of com with amdts, 1164
Richelieu Bridge Company bill S-44. Authority to print com proceedings, 1243

Transportation, see National Transportation

Treasury Board
Regulations, appointments, quorum, 1226
Responsibilities in respect to Public Service, 1501-2

Tremblay, Hon. Leonard D.S.
Retired September 2, 1965
Tributes, 18-19

Tributes
Adenauer, Konrad, the late, 1787-8
Comtois, Hon. Paul, the late, 147-58
O'Leary, Hon. M. Grattan, retirement from presidency of Ottawa Journal, 340-3
Sangster, Sir Donald, the late, 1780-2
Vanier, General Georges Philias, Governor General of Canada, the late, 1572-8
See Felicitations,
Senators, deceased,
Senators, retired.

Uganda Minister of Public Works, visitor to Senate, 1038

Unemployment
Adult occupational training, 1897-1914
Training Allowance bill C-186, 707, 718-23, 725-6, 747, 758
Winter works program, 333-4

Union of Soviet Socialist Republics
Negotiations with France re uranium, 546
Power of Russia, 1288-9, 1441

United Baptist Woman's Missionary Union of the Maritime Provinces bill S-33. Hon. Mr. Brooks. 1r, 471; 2r, 509; ref to com, 509; rep of com without amdt, 580; 3r, 580; r.a., 930; refund of fees, 987

United Grain Growers Limited bill S-5. Hon. Mr. Thorvaldson. 1r, 39; 2r, 64-67; ref to com, 67; rep of com without amdt, 166; 3r, 187; r.a., 547

United Investment Life Assurance Company bill S-40. Hon. Mr. Leonard. 1r, 666; 2r, 717-18; ref to com, 718; authority to print proceedings, 808; rep of com without amdt, 808; 3r, 808-9

United Kingdom
Canada-United Kingdom Income Tax Agreement, 401-2, 438-46, 497, 530, 547
"Public expenditure, spending and control", U.K. White Paper, 319

United Nations, 104-7
Communist China, question of admission to, 105
Pope Paul VI, His Holiness, visit to UN, 104-7
Twenty-first session of General Assembly, reported on by Hon. Edgar Fournier, 1165-6

United States
Automotive products, Canada-United States agreement, 616-25, 635-42, 747-57, 779-87, 809, 853
Congratulations to Canada on Centennial of Confederation, extracts from Congressional Record, 1786-7, 1805-7
Gold, control of price, 543-4
Interparliamentary Group, Canada-United States, 162, 163-5
Investment guidelines, effect on Canadian economy, 119-20, 123-4
Investments in northern Quebec mining, 587
North American Water and Power Alliance, 937

Universities
Degrees, question of necessity of, 308
Grants, increase in, 308
Loan statistics, 767, 768
LSD, use of by students, 1797-8, 1800-2
Newfoundland student aid, 98
Northwest Territories student grants, 793
Scholarships and bursaries, 44-45, 52-53, 766
Students in other countries, statistics, 766
University of Toronto weekend "Perception 67" on drug experience, 1801
See Student loans

University finances, 1138-42, 1302-6, 1436-9
Comparison of graduates, Canada-United States, 1303
Bladen Commission, 1304
Federal-provincial policies, 1304-6
Freedom in university financing, 1141
Labour force needs, Economic Council report on, 1303
Medical profession, excerpt from report of Dr. J.F. McCreary, 1141
National concern for universities, provincial lack in, 1140
Non- provision for universities in BNA Act, 1138-9
Operating expenditures, forecast of, 1140, 1304
Student population, 1304
University of New Brunswick, 1436-7
Unskilled young people, 1302-3
York University, 1303
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Burchill, G. Percival, 1436-9
Leonard, T. D'Arcy, 1302-6
MacKenzie, Norman A., 1138-42

Uranium, 544-7
Negotiations with France re, 544-7
Potential, 544-6

Urquhart, Hon. Earl W.
Introduction to the Senate, 199
Pension Benefits Standards bill C-221, 1643-6
Coverage for employees under federal jurisdiction but outside Government, 1643-4
Federal-provincial agreements, 1645
Investment of pension moneys, 1645
Locking-in requirement, 1644-5
Portability, 1645
Provincial acts, 1644
Standards for registration of pension plans, 1644
Public Utilities Income Tax Transfer bill C-211, 840-2
Electrical energy, gas and steam, corporation income tax transfer to provinces, 840-1
Taxing of utility corporations in relation to income tax structure, 841
Time lag in transfer, 841-2
Training Allowance bill C-186, 718-20
Basic allowance, federal- provincial agreement re, 720
Unemployment insurance, amdt re vocational trainee, 719-20

Vaillancourt, Hon. Cyrille
Address in reply to Speech from the Throne, 526-30
Bouffard, Hon. Paul H., appointment as deputy leader, 8
Bouffard, Hon. Paul H., the late, 151-2
Comtois, Hon. Paul, the late, 150-1
Jodoin, Hon. Mariana B., retired, 657
Morality breakdown of young people, 527-8
Freedom of wrongdoers, 528
TV, radio and newspaper propaganda, 527-8
La Fédération des Caisses Populaires du Québec, 1417-18

Vaillancourt, Hon. Cyrille – Concluded
Student Loans bill C-197, 796
Jurisdiction in educational matters, 796
Vanier, General Georges Philias, the late, 1575-6
World hunger, 528-30
Soil utilization in foreign countries, 529-30
Denmark, 529-30
Taiwan, 529

Vanier, General Georges Philias, Governor General of Canada
Deceased March 5, 1967
Tributes, 1572-8

Veniot, Hon. Clarence J.
Retired June 1, 1966
Tributes, 653-7

Veterans' hospitals, administration of, inquiry, Hon. Mr. Brooks, 920-1, 1000-1

Vien, Hon. Thomas, P.C.
Crerar, Hon. T.A., retired, 573-4
Newfoundland Additional Financial Assistance bill C-185, 552, 554, 555, 559-61
Boundaries, 554, 559-60
Grant from federal Government, 554
Perpetuity of agreement, 560

Visiting forces
Damage from activities outside scope of duties or employment, 1162-3
Disciplinary jurisdiction, 1122
Motor vehicles, ownership of and responsibility for, 1162
NATO references, 1122
Personal injuries and property damage, 1123
Police functions, 1123
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Langlois, J.G. Leopold, 1122-3
White, George S., 1161-3

Visiting Forces bill S-50. 1r, 1077; 2r, 1122-3, 1161-3; ref to com, 1163; authority to print com proceedings, 1169; rep of com with amdts, 1124; 3r, 1224

Visitors
Beaulieu, Madame Jeanne-Pauline, Canadian Mother of the Year, 399
Bowden, Lord, guest and speaker in Senate Chamber, 1716-18
Kalema, William Wilberforce, Minister of Public Works, Uganda, 1038
Snedker, Hon. J.E., Speaker of Legislative Assembly of Saskatchewan, 1886
Spellman, Howard Hilton, Chairman of Special Committee on Matrimonial Law, Bar Assoc. of New York State, 1510
Symonette, Lady, wife of Premier of Bahamas, 889

Vote
Bank bill C-222, 3r, m in admt neg, 1756
Income Tax bill C-216, 3r, m in amdt neg, 961

Walker, Hon. David, P.C.
Appropriation bill No. 9 C-248, 1217
Assistance Plan bill C-207, 900
Automotive products, Canada-United States agreement, 622-3, 786
Balance of payments and automobile trade deficit, 622
Employment, 622
Parliamentary approval, lack of, 622-3
Tariff concession to U.S. manufacturers, 622-3
Bankruptcy bill S-17, 225-7, 760-1
Collusion between debtor and creditor, 225
Gifts from debtor, 226
Reviewable transaction, 226
Solicitor-client privilege, 760
Superintendent's powers, 226
Transactions made at 'arm's length', 225, 226
Transfers of property prior to bankruptcy, 226
Trustee's powers and report to Supt., 226
Criminal Code (Hate propaganda) bill S-49, 1126-9
Freedom of Speech, 1129
Genocide, 1127
Group protection, 1127
Identifiable group, 1128
Press comments on bill, 1127
Divorce appeal against decision of Commissioner (Biega), 1005-6
Food and Drugs bill S-60, 1812-19
Convictions and penalties, 1814-17
Death of Toronto student, 1813
Glamorizing of LSD through news media, 1813
Hallucinatory effects, 1813-14
Leary, Timothy, head of psychedelic cult, conviction and sentence, 1813
University of Toronto weekend "Perception 67" on drug experience, 1813, 1817
Government expenditures, 1217
Judges bill C-160, 388-9
MacKenzie, Hon. Norman A., national president of Association of Canadian Clubs, 688
Maintenance of Railway Operation bill C-230, 1021-3
Criticism of Government procedures, 1021-3
Rules of the Senate
Revision suggested re divorce appeals, 1005-6
Suspension of No. 119, 454-5
York Life Insurance Company bill S-28, 413, 454-5

War on poverty, 32-34, 43-44, 281
New Brunswick, 281
See Poverty

Water resources, conservation of (Hon. Mr. Gershaw), 614-16, 708-10, 715-17, 935-41, 1206-9
Alberta Society of Professional Engineers, letter to Prime Minister from President of, 937-9
ARDA report on, 709
Export of hydro-electric power, 1207-8
Flood and drought control, 615, 616
Grande Coulee dam, 936
Harmon Doctrine re U.S. ownership and control of waters, 1208
Irrigation projects, 616, 708-9, 936-7
PFRA, 708, 709, 936-7
North American Water and Power Alliance (NAWAPA), 716-17, 937
Pollution of waters, 615, 708, 717, 939
Press comments, 1208-9
Saskatchewan conference on development of water resources, summary of, 940-1
Water and air pollution, 1207
Water resources board, federal-provincial, suggestion for, 935-6
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Cameron, Donald, 935-41
Gershaw, F.W., 614-16
MacKenzie, Norman A., 1207-9
Pearson, Arthur M., 708-10
Pouliot, Jean-François, 715-17

Welch, Hon. Frank C.
Canadian Forces Reorganization bill C-243, 1874-6
Expenditures for defence, 1875
Nova Scotia economy, effect on, 1874
Press comment, 1875
Commonwealth Parliamentary Association, New Zealand conference, 509-12
Agenda, 511
Aid to underdeveloped countries, 512
Canadian delegation, 509-10
New Zealand, 510-11
Politics, 510-11
Trade, 511
Unemployment, non-existence of, 511

Welfare, see Health and Welfare

Whips
Chief Government Whip in the Senate
Beaubien, Hon. Arthur L.
Deputy
McDonald, Hon. A. Hamilton
Chief Opposition Whip in the Senate
Macdonald, Hon. John M.

White, Hon. George S., P.C.
Canadian Forces Reorganization bill C-243, 1840-5
Abolishment of 'Royal', distinctive uniforms, insignia, etc., 1844
Future role of forces, question of, 1841
Peacekeeping commitments, 1841-2
Press comments, briefs, etc., 1943-4
Criminal Code (Hate Propaganda) bill S-49, 1210-12
Interpretation of offence, 1211-12
Onus of proof of offence, 1211
Hugessen, Hon. A.K., retired, 1359
Return after illness, 1055
Visiting Forces bill S-50, 1161-3
Damage from activities outside scope of duties or employment, 1162-3
Motor vehicles, ownership of and responsibility for, 1162

Willis, Hon. Harry A.
Automotive products, Canada-United States agreement, 623-5
Parliamentary approval, lack of, 623-4
Tax policy, 624
U.S. domination of automobile industry, 624
Citizenship bill S-59, 1775-6
Citizenship Appeal Court, 1776
Dairy Commission bill C-205, 822-6
Commission and consultative committee, 824-5
Jurisdiction in price control, 823-4
BNA Act cited, 824
Licences, 825-6
Penalties, 826
Regulations made by Governor in Council, 825
Press report on passage of bills by Senate, 894

Winter works
Provincial subsidies, 318-19, 332-4, 494-5
Quebec, Atlantic Provinces and Ontario, 318-19, 494-5

Women, Declaration of, brief re TV programs, presented to Government officials, 254-5, 1221-3

Wood, Hon. Thomas H.
Deceased November 26, 1965
Tributes, 11-18

Woodrow, Hon. Allan L.
Deceased March 30, 1966
Tributes, 360-3

World Exhibition, Canadian Corporation
Accommodation rates, 1765-6
Assets, disposal of on termination of exhibition, 1529, 1531
Copyright or trademark protection, 885-8
Exception, 886
Infringement action or other legal proceeding, 887, 891
Presumption of injury, 886, 888
Copyright vested in corporation, 886-7
Deficit, 1530-1
Highway safety and bilingual signs, 1531-2
Licensing of vendors, 887
Loan from Government, 1527-33
Borrowings to date, 1528
Grants, 1528
Revenue forecast, 1528-9
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Beaubien, L.P., 1532
Brooks, A.J., 887-8, 1529-32
Choquette, Lionel, 887, 891
Connolly, John J., 890, 1527-9, 1532-3
Croll, David A., 888
Hugessen, A.K., 891
Lang, Daniel A., 885-7, 888, 891
Roebuck, Arthur W., 888, 890, 891

World Exhibition, Canadian Corporation, bill S-42. 1r, 864; 2r, 885-8; ref to com, 888; authority to print com proceedings, 889; rep of com without amdt, 889; 3r, 890-2; r.a., 976

World hunger, 528-30, 672
Soil utilization in foreign countries, 529-30
Denmark, 529-30
Taiwan, 529

York Life Insurance Company bill S-28. Hon. Mr. Walker. 1r, 413; 2r, 454; ref to com, 454; rep of com with amdts, 496; 3r, 530; r.a., 1925

Yukon
Bank accounts, establishment of, 705
Council and advisory committee, remuneration of, 705
Finances, 712
Jails, 705
Mentally-ill persons, 706
Self-government, 711, 712
Tax sale of lands, 705
Territorial accounts, 706
Speakers: Honourable Senators
Hnatyshyn, John, 710-11, 712
MacKenzie, Norman A., 704-6
Roebuck, Arthur W., 711-12

Yukon bill C-147. 1r, 649; 2r, 704-6, 710-12; 3r, 715; r.a., 758

Yuzyk, Hon. Paul
Company of Young Canadians bill C-174, 858-60
Canadian University Service Overseas, 859
Leddy, Dr. Francis, chairman of organizing committee, 859
Orientation program, 859-60
Industrial Research and Development Incentives bill C-252, 1549-51
Engineering Institute of Canada, brief and recommendations to Government, 1550
Questions on provisions of bill, 1550-1
Research comparisons, 1550
National and Royal Anthems, 1791-2
National Research Council bill C-150, 484-5
Research projects of NRC, 484-5
Student Loans bill C-197, 792-3
Disadvantages of student loans, 792
Northwest Territories, grants to graduates remaining in NWT, 793
Ukrainian Canadians: Their Place and Role in Canadian Life, by Hon. Mr. Yuzyk, 1820
Weed control, research on, 484-5