JOHN RAY.

He polite; he agreeable. There is nothing that will bring you such quick returns as a little civility. A smile takes nothing away from your face, but it beautifies it. A good action is a good cause: a civil word to the lowly, a helping hand to the needy, kindness to the aged, and gentle words for all, will bring you more than anything else that I know of.

"I hate to see an everlasting grin on anybody's face," he said one day, when he and several of his young men, who did not believe that politeness paid.

"I am on the way there myself," said the youth with a troubled air. "I was going there to see the Thomas Brothers in their position. I thought to be there to-day—to-morrow may be too late—but but—you will shall go—I see, you shall go!"

"But you—his purse and emptied the contents in the hand of the old lady; just barely enough to pay one fare on the stage to O—"

"Oh, but how will you get there," asked she, "if you give me all your money?"

"I can walk," he answered cheerily. "Never mind me, I am used to walking."

"You are an honor to your mother," said the woman, with emotion. "A good mother, I'll be bound. And then, seeing the tears spring to his eyes, she surmised that he had recently lost that mother and continued, "Yes, I understand; and you couldn't bear to see an old lady in trouble without helping her for your own dear mother's sake. What is your name?"

"My name is John Ray," he said.

"All good-bye, John Ray," said the old lady, as he helped her into the coach. "I wish you success. I think you will get it. She nodded vigorously. "Yes, yes, I hope you will, John Ray. And with beaming eyes, she shook Ray's hand as vigorously as she nodded. "Oh, won't you Eli—what won't he do when I tell him?"

"Are you all ready?" cried out the driver. "Because if you ain't I want you to understand I ain't in any hurry; take your time. All ready, then? Off we go!"

And off they went, leaving John Ray to walk twenty miles. And the simple soul filling his place in the coach shed tears whenever he thought of him walking wearily alone over the road. But he was not to be so long in coming. He had seen those tears, John, the road would seem shorter. Could you know the gratitude that good heart, your limbs would be less weary.

They at length arrived at O—. Mr. Bentley registered his name, in a large hall, in the most aristocratic hotel in that city.

"Much depends," he soliloquized, "on appearances. Should I put up as a less pretentious house than this? It might be the means of my failing to get the position I mean after." Then he thought of John Ray, and the fragment of conversation he had heard behind his back. "What kind of a chance can a shabby fellow have against me? I am a well-to-do man, and I shall soon get a warm supper—while he is dragging himself along, hungry and tired, and without money to buy anything to eat, or a place in which to sleep."

He seemed to delight in these reflections. The contemplation of the deprivation and suffering of others seems to be a man's consolation. He had had quite a solacing effect on Mr. Bentley, for he was not rich. It must be admitted that his success depended on his being in this position with the Thomas Brothers.

It was so late in the evening when the stage reached O—that the business house "Thomas Brothers" was closed. But early the next morning Mr. Bentley waited on the brothers, and presented to them his recommendations. There were other applicants among whom was John Ray. Mr. Bentley would not recognize him. Truly, it depended on appearances. When he had finished reading Mr. Bentley's references, he said, "Splendid recommendations!" echoed the brother. "Best ones we have received yet. It is not so, William?"

"Peter laughed and nodded, and the brothers got closer to John Ray.

"The best reference in the world," cried Peter, with such an affectionate look at Bentley that William feared he meant to embrace him, and put his arm around to prevent it, for fear of spoiling the moment.

"John looked puzzled. They both laughed and repeated—

"Good recommendation! Mother!" they called, and in came the old lady of the Thomas Brothers, who was a young man do you recommend to us for a clerk?"

"I recommend by all means, my dear sons, the young man who was kind enough to aid a helpless blind man and old beggar to reach home; who loved the memory of his mother so well that he walked 20 miles to let your mother ride. Not for a reward, but because he was poor and helpless; and now if I used like that won't recommend John Ray more than all the recommendations I have written, indeed, then I don't know my dear boys."

And each of the brothers got John by the hand, while Mr. Bentley retired with a crestfallen air.

Let us hope that this little episode taught Mr. Bentley the lesson that kindness brings its own reward. That to be loved by our fellow-men is the highest earthly pleasure to be enjoyed. That to be kind and sociable to all is to win love. To be accommodating, sympathetic, helpful, is to retain that love when won. That no good action or kind word is lost, but is written with an indelible pen in the Recording Angel's book, and preserved in eternity.

TWO PLUCKY GIRLS.

THEY DISPOSE OF A DOZEN ALLIGATORS ON A FLORIDA CREEK.

A THRILLING BATTLE BETWEEN A BEAR AND A BAND OF SABLES—NARROW ESCAPE FROM AN AWFUL DEATH.

PENBERTON FERRY, Fla., July 5.

Wilda and Josie Bryan, the two twin daughters of G. H. Bryan, one of the oldest settlers in this section, who lives about two miles north of this station, are just now the heroines of this place.

These two girls, or young ladies rather, as they are just beyond "sweet sixteen," are lonesome, lonesome, and as well acquainted with the country as the best hunters in it. They, too, are excellent shots, and for hunting their record is something that Mr. Bryan often boasts of.

The girls take a quiet hunt very often, either on the river or in the high hummocks so numerous around here, and they put to shame many of the Minors or hunters by the fish and game that they bring in.

Just now the most exciting topic is a stirring adventure which the girls had the other day, and in which they came off victorious, displaying great pluck and bravery.

Friday last the two girls concluded to take a day's hunt in the Great Aurochs hummock, the upper edge of which touches the river some miles below here. Starting out early, they made good progress, and by nine o'clock were in the midst of the wild hummock. During the forenoon they had good luck—killing a deer, a wildcat, ten big gray squirrels and several enormous snakes. After taking a noonday lunch they decided to cross over Alligator Creek, a wide but shallow stream that crosses the hummock, emptying into the Willacochee.

A BATTLE WITH BRUIN.

Just before reaching the creek they had to pass through a dense canebrake for several rods. When about half way through one of their dogs, that had lingered behind, came rushing up, yelping lustily, while close on its heels was a big black bear, fierce and ugly as it could be. The path was so narrow that they had no chance to fight the animal, and, in fact, the bear and dog came in on them so suddenly that little time was allowed for reflection. Miss Josie slung her rifle around and fired at the bear, but the confusion only wounded him. The girls then ran ahead, intending to get out into the open bank by the water's edge, so as to get fair ground to lattle old Bruin. But the infuriated animal, aroused to madness by the rifle ball, pursued them so closely that only scientific dodging saved them from a close hug. Emerging from the path they noticed the dogout used to cross the creek lying right in front of them, and both girls, struck by the same idea, sprang into the boat, their impetus carrying it into the creek. The dog was unable to get into the boat, but he bit at Bruin's heels so sharply that the latter had to stop his pursuit of the girls and endeavor to punish his four-foot assailant. But the dog was too wary, and kept out of his reach; the girls called him, and plunging in he swam out to them.

Meanwhile the hungry denizens of the creek, whose numbers gave it its name, were awakened by the tumult, and began to show themselves. As the dog jumped in the splash attracted scores of the ugly reptiles from all directions, and the water was dotted by the black snouts of the hungry gators. The girls noticed this, and called encouragingly to their dog, who seemed to be fully aware of his danger. Several black snakes, already pointed in his direction, and he looked as if the gators might get a meal. But Wilda seized the pole lying in the bottom of the canoe, and by a skillful pull she helped him clamber over the side, almost upsetting the frail vessel. And it was just in time, too, for just as the dog's legs slipped out of the water a huge pair of jaws rose out of the depths with an ominous snap. With a sound the disappointed aurochs snarled.

While this was going on Bruin stood on the bank growling and snarling in impatient rage at the dog and girls thus escaping. Seeing the dog in the canoe seemed to render him still more furious, and the water began swimming toward the boat. Between the bears and the gators the girls began to think their hands would be full. Wilda picked up her gun and made a snap shot at the animal, but a movement of the dog disconcerted her aim, and the load of buckshot fell to one side, only a small number striking the bear. But they angered him the more

In India. The Major has a most pleasant voice, speaks with energy and uses very pure English, and was listened to with the closest attention. He alluded to the work done by missionaries in connection with the work of evangelizing the heathen and showed how it was that so little progress had been made in this direction. Civilization and education was by some thought to be sufficient, and the statement was made that it was impossible for a Hindu to be thoroughly saved. He then referred to the mode adopted by the Salvation Army in reaching the masses of the people in his country by adopting the clothing and habits of life of the lower classes, living as they did and begging their food of curry and rice as was done by the native priests of that country. In referring to his own life he said he was a native of Ceylon and in common, as he says, with the whole of his race, had long been intensely anxious to get near God and to get rid of his sin. Like the rest of his people he was not to be easily caught, and it was hard to cheat him in religious matters; arguments and declarations of faith were useless to convince him, and he was looking for results in the lives of religious professors, and in this he had been much disappointed, for he had seen so many that were different from what they should be. When he first met the Salvation Army in the City of Colombo, he used to sit in the front of the meetings, and his heart, and his object was merely critical, for he had heard many stories about the Salvationists, as to the noise they made, and their boldness in asserting that they were saved. His heart, however, was longing and searching for the truth, and when he saw them going about with bare feet in the native dress, and eating the poor food of the country people, he was convinced that they were genuine. For two weeks he watched closely, the Spirit of God striking with him all the time, and at last he acquired the way of Salvation, and sought and accepted the Saviour. He and others had found that the precious blood of Jesus Christ was amply sufficient to convert even the heathen Hindu. Bless the Lord. He had changed his heart and he stood before them to bear his testimony of what the Lord had done for him. In India there were two hundred millions of heathen ignorant of Christianity. He had heard the hearty and ready appeals of millions for Christ, and if those listening to him had the love of Christ in their hearts then they would hear the cry and feel for the heathen millions and ask O Lord what can I do. If they were loyal soldiers of Jesus Christ they would put the question to their own hearts and then answer the question. He had heard the words of the Christian of the nineteenth century would never convert the heathen of India but that it would be done by Mohammed, but he and his converted countrymen felt sure that the religion of Mohammed had not greater power than the religion of Jesus Christ. Oh how his heart burned! He thought of the self-sacrificing work of the Salvation Army. They had revolutionized old systems and now their work was trusted to native commanders, and he was second in command and had under him 110 white Christian officers in his noble work. But Jesus Christ was no respecter of persons. He knew no distinction of color or race, and the work was being blessed. Strip the heathen worship of its worship of devils, its gods of wood and stone and other eccentrics and there was quite a simple religion left, he believes there is a heaven and a hell, and a supreme head over all. The cry of the Hindu was who would show the way from sin. Of the vast population there were 50,000,000 Mohammedans and but 1,000,000 Christians, the rest of nearly one hundred years of labor in this direction, of whom 200,000 were Protestants and 800,000 Roman Catholics. It was four and a half years ago when he had been converted and brought to the knowledge of God, when he had found the City of the Valley and the first of ten thousand to his soul. He was now an officer of the Salvation Army and a soldier of Jesus Christ, and that was the sort of religion India wanted. Had the people here got this same Jesus Christ, if they had they would feel for the sin and degradation of the Hindu, and the promptings of the heart would be here. I am Lord, send me. It was not possible for all to devote themselves to this work, but he had come to the Dominion of Canada to ask for help in this great work and those who could not go could help from what the Lord had given them and by their prayers. Their work in India was not officers, and twenty volunteers had offered to go to the burning sands of India to tell the story of the Cross. Who will help to defray the expenses of their voyage which would cost $100 each. An officer's yearly allowance was $25, who would voluntarily to pay one officer's salary for one year at least. Would not five persons guarantee $500 each for this purpose. Several sums of $500 each were handed in, a general collection was then taken up which in all amounted to $4200.

The total catch during 13 days for all hands were 46 salmon, 4 grilse and 70 trout, the weight of last named 180 pounds. There are many files used here but the most popular are the Jack-Sock, Durham ringer and silver-doctor. The scenery is grand in the extreme. A veranda around the house enables one to take in every view of the surroundings, which is really picturesque. Natural springs of excellent water are in abundance. The air is exceedingly light and bracing, and after a few days one's appetite becomes ravenous, and is met by a well stocked larder.

Our party was a jolly one, Hon. M. Adams, a large hearted and generous man, superintending everything to its most perfect order. Tom Adams, a New York, a highly cultured gentleman, did much to interest us by his excellent readings. Jack Ferguson, better known in camp as the Refuge, a remarkably fine fisherman, can be found on the river at all hours of the day and night. Bob Armstrong, called by his friends the Irish Songster, did much to enliven the time; he has a sweet tenor voice, and does full justice to his large selection of favorite ballads; and last, but not least, our faithful guides, three in number, also our cook, all natives of the forest, men of splendid physique, honest and obliging to a fault. July 3 we hid the dear old campfire, arriving in New York Friday the 6th, with twelve smoked salmon and one on ice.

Since my return I have received a letter from Mr. Adams, under date of July 17, in which he says: "Mrs. Adams and myself returned from the camp on Saturday night, after spending eight days, and succeeding in doing good work. We made the record of the camp for twenty-three days fishing, sixty-one salmon, eighty-three grilse and seventy-five trout—not a bad season's work."

JOHN R. FRASER.

S. S. Convention. The Northumberland Sabbath School Convention met on Friday morning last in St. John's Church, Chatham. The attendance of Sabbath School superintendents and teachers was not as large as expected, some schools being entirely unrepresented and not even sending in statistical reports for their standing for the work they are doing. From what we can learn absentees missed a great treat in not hearing the address of the Provincial Sabbath School Association. Col. Cowden, who is described as a most interesting exponent of matters pertaining to the religious instruction of the young, in which the duties of teachers are prominently brought forward. His blackboard exercises are specially attractive, and his knowledge of the scriptures is such that he can give chapter and verse to very many texts and then proceed to draw out the principal points of each on the blackboard in the meantime calling upon the person to whom the text was given to read it out aloud. His memory is so retentive and his knowledge of the scriptures so extraordinary that he is looked upon as a walking encyclopedia of Sacred History and all that pertains to Sabbath School work, and yet he is stated to be of a modest and unassuming disposition.

A Bible reading was announced for Sunday morning and a mass meeting of S. S. scholars in the afternoon. We have not heard the names of the officers elect for the ensuing year excepting that Rev. Robt. Crisp has been elected President.

Dunbarton. The store of Mr. George Stables was broken into early on Sunday morning last. There was a broken pane of glass in one of the back windows in which a board was placed. The board was removed and an entrance effected. A cheap watch was taken and some trinkets, nothing else being disturbed. No clue so far to the thief, who was certainly most moderate in his appropriation of Mr. Stables' goods.

On the night of the 8th inst., the post office at Dalhousie was broken into; iron bars inside the window prevented the entry of the amateur burglar, but by reaching in his hand he secured four watches on a table. Deputy Sheriff Millar arrested the guilty party in County Bonaventure, P. Q. The prisoner's name is William Poirde. He was brought up Saturday before Justice Smith, admitted his guilt, and sent up for trial to this term of the supreme court.

The Close Season. Today is the last this season when net fishing for salmon is allowed. Take up your nets and pickets at once and give the salmon a chance.

Miramichi Salmon.

Editor Forest and Stream: Allow me through your valuable paper to give a brief account of a trip to the Miramichi river. I left New York June 23 and at Newcastle, N. B., I met two of my fishing friends. Two days were spent there visiting and sight seeing. I have done much travelling on this continent and in Europe, but never have received such hospitality as I experienced at Newcastle. Camp Adams was our objective point, situated seventy-five miles by water from the mouth of the Miramichi, called the north western branch, or thirty nine miles by backboard through the woods, which route we preferred. We started for our destination on June 26, six o'clock a.m. Twenty miles of our journey was over a first-class macadamized road, the balance was decidedly rough; but our long ride was not without pleasure, as the weather being the most of the day, coupled with the grand forest scenery, which we all enjoyed very much. We caught eight of Camp Adams at four o'clock p. m., a pretty Gothic cottage, painted white, with red trimmings. The kitchen, 15 feet from the house, is a log cabin with every appliance for cooking, the great feature being the stove, one of the best ever made for camp life, called the Forest Beauty. After looking around, we came to the conclusion that Mr. Adams had made a most judicious selection in placing his lodge in such a romantic and lovely spot. Within a radius of half a mile there are five pools, perhaps the finest in Canada.

The total catch during 13 days for all hands were 46 salmon, 4 grilse and 70 trout, the weight of last named 180 pounds. There are many files used here but the most popular are the Jack-Sock, Durham ringer and silver-doctor. The scenery is grand in the extreme. A veranda around the house enables one to take in every view of the surroundings, which is really picturesque. Natural springs of excellent water are in abundance. The air is exceedingly light and bracing, and after a few days one's appetite becomes ravenous, and is met by a well stocked larder.

Our party was a jolly one, Hon. M. Adams, a large hearted and generous man, superintending everything to its most perfect order. Tom Adams, a New York, a highly cultured gentleman, did much to interest us by his excellent readings. The Canada Temperance Act.

We have been requested to publish subsection 4 of section 99 of the above act, an amendment passed at the recent session of the Dominion Parliament. It refers to the issuing of certificates by medical men also to the yearly returns required to be made by vendors in each county to the collector of inland revenue. If the publishing of this amendment has the effect of putting a stop to the indiscriminate issuing of certificates to any who may apply therefor, and the knowledge that it is not at all improbable that the return made by the vendor to the collector of inland revenue may possibly be published so that it may be seen who issues so many unnecessary certificates and also who are the thirty souls who apply for the same may have some effect in curtailing such applications and hence good will be done. It has been a most difficult matter for the temperance committee to reach these violators of the law, as being armed with a doctor's certificate they have been enabled to get sometimes in as stated as much as two or three faces on a single certificate, and thus the law is set at defiance by the three parties interested—the issuer of the certificate, the vendor of the liquor, and the purchaser thereof. There is one clause in the amendment which states that the certificate shall be that of a medical man having no interest in the sale, hence it is certainly illegal for them to charge for such certificates as we have been informed they have been in the habit of doing. The following is the amendment:—

"Provided also, that the sale of intoxicating liquors shall be made only on a certificate for bona fide use in some art, trade or manufacture, may be made by such licensed druggists and vendors; but such sale, when for medicinal purposes, shall be in quantities of not less than one pint, to be removed from the premises, and accompanied by a certificate of a medical man having no interest in the sale, and such certificate shall be prescribed for the person to whom it is issued; and when such sale is for use in some art, trade or manufacture, the certificate shall be in the name of the purchaser and shall make an annual return of all such sales, on the thirty-first day of December, to the collector of inland revenue in the same return, whose revenue division the county or city is situated."

Campbellton Notes.

Col. Cowden addressed the Sunday Schools of Campbellton on Sunday last and a mass meeting in the evening in the Presbyterian Church.

More strangers are spending their holidays in Campbellton this summer than ever stayed there any previous season. They fish, drive around, and gaze on the pretty girls and the fine scenery.

The schools opened on Monday, teachers and pupils having enjoyed a good holiday.

Mr. Joseph LaBelle, clerk in J. O. Leary's store, and Miss Bessie Grogan, were married Monday morning, Rev. Father McDonald. They were accompanied to the train for Quebec by a large party of friends, and went off under a shower of rice and slippers.

Work on the Bay Chaleur Railway is progressing rapidly under energetic direction of Messrs. McKenzie & Sons.

Most of the Restigouche Salmon Club fishermen have returned to their homes. The catch has not been so good this year as last.

Dr. Baxter of Washington, owner of the Fraser House and pool on the New Brunswick side of the river, is still on the river, industriously whipping his waters with the tempting fly, and getting a good many fish. He is much pleased with his place, and proposes coming earlier and staying later next year.

Mr. Geo. A. Dye recently bought a horse of Mr. A. Vann, of Wolford, for $145, and has been developing his speed trials; he has a sweet tenor voice, and does full justice to his large selection of favorite ballads; and last, but not least, our faithful guides, three in number, also our cook, all natives of the forest, men of splendid physique, honest and obliging to a fault. July 3 we hid the dear old campfire, arriving in New York Friday the 6th, with twelve smoked salmon and one on ice.

A Great Concomitance. Négus pier is sufficiently advanced in construction to form a convenient landing-place for passengers and freight from the steamer Miramichi and other craft engaged in the traffic of that important section of the country. An outer block, somewhat smaller than the original one, has been floated and connected with the shore by a plank walk about seven feet wide, laid on bents, which will be taken ashore out of the way of the ice before winter sets in. We understand that Mr. Anthony Adams has carried out the work to the satisfaction of the Department and the representatives of the County, each of whom has used his influence to induce the Government to make a beginning in the construction of the public landing places required on the river. Next season we hope to be able to report the completion of this pier and the building of similar structures at Bay du Vin and Church Point. Before long the claims of the three counties and Prince Edward Island fishermen interested in the proposed Economic Breakwater will have to be recognized at Ottawa, when there will also be a suitable landing place there. Northumberland is a very large contributor to the provincial exchequer and, for a good while, has received much less consideration, in such matters as these, than she is entitled to. The Dominion Government has also treated us in a most regardful manner in comparison with other and less important counties. We may, therefore, hope that a change in this important regard is not very remote and that the arrangements will, in some measure, be made good to us before long—Advance.

The Crispack. For August is hand. It contains a large amount of varied information as to the relative distances of places, the best means of reaching such places as well as the fare, and other matters of particular interest to the travelling public. Published monthly by Knowles & Co., at $1.00 per year, or single numbers 10 cents. Sent for a single copy or buy one from your bookseller.

Much Needed. A new sidewalk has been much needed around the square for some time past, and there is now a prospect of it being put in good shape as planks have been hauled to lay a new one.

New Presbyterian Church.

The dedication of the new Presbyterian Church at Campbellton took place on Sunday morning last, Rev. Dr. McRae preaching the dedicatory sermon. Rev. O. Brown is the minister in charge of this congregation. The following description of the church was published in the ADVOCATE some time ago and we reproduce it. Size 65x25. The church is in the form of a cross, with four gables, the main entrance being in the base of the tower supporting the steeple and spire, and which is placed in the angle of the gables in front facing west and north. There is also a porch and entrance door at the opposite front corner. The ceiling is left open with the trusses and beams open to view, being diagonally arched from each corner. The church is lighted by large Gothic windows, 10x18 feet, there being one in each of the gable ends. A gallery extends across the west end about twelve feet in depth. The steeple and spire makes a very neat appearance in its well proportioned details and the whole building presents a handsome appearance. The foundation is of stone. Mr. John Andrew, of Campbellton was the contractor for the erection and completion of the building and we should judge from what we have seen of this specimen of church architecture that he has completed his contract in a most creditable and workmanlike manner.

Oddfellow's Meeting.

The annual session of the Grand Lodge of Oddfellows for the Maritime Provinces convened at Windsor, N. S., on Tuesday last, week August 7th, J. L. Stewart, Esq., Grand Master, presiding. There was a large attendance of delegates present. The reports of officers state that the Order is progressing in the lower provinces. Charlottetown was selected as the next place for holding the annual meeting of the Grand Lodge. The following were the officers elected and installed for the ensuing year:—

After some further routine business, the Grand Lodge adjourned, to meet at Charlottetown, P. E. I., on the second Wednesday in Aug., 1889.

Obituary.

Died at Dalhousie on the night of Saturday, August 11th, Rev. A. Russell, minister of the Presbyterian church of Canada, aged 70 years.

This brief notice records the passing away to his eternal rest of an aged clergyman who wore "The white flower of a blameless life," an example to his flock and to all men who can venerate righteousness of life. It is not within the duty of your correspondent to enter into the particulars of his work in this place but it can be said of him that he was truly Catholic in spirit, earnestly desirous of that union amongst protestant bodies which must in the near future be accomplished. He rests in peace. May all those who have listened to his pastoral appeals be well prepared for the end.

The Moncton Times gives the following information in reference to the Rev. Mr. Russell:— A year ago Mr. Russell was attacked by illness which confined him to the bed for several months, but his health was then so far restored as to enable him to resume his pastoral duties, and the news of his death will be a shock to many friends in Nova Scotia as well as to those in New Brunswick. Mr. Russell was a native of the town of Digby, and was engaged in very useful work as a school teacher in Middle Musquodoboit. During many years subsequently Mr. Russell was the agent of the British and Foreign Bible Society in the maritime provinces, and his labors in its behalf were indefatigable and successful. Ten or twelve years ago he was elected minister of the Presbyterian church, and the congregation of Dalhousie, N. B., then called him to be pastor, where he has since officiated with great acceptance and success.

Personal.

George Hadow, Esq., of Dalhousie, was in town on Saturday last on his way home to the county S. S. Convention held in Chatham. He returned home by the afternoon accommodation.

Mr. Parsons, of Carleton County was in town on Saturday. He has also been attending the convention having been appointed to accompany Col. Cowden, who is visiting the various conventions and simplifying the work necessary to be done in our Sabbath Schools. They left for Kent County on Monday.

Mr. Wm. Murray, of Boston, is here on a visit to his home and friends. He looks well.

The many friends of Miss Falconer, formerly a school teacher of this district but more recently of the Post Office Department at Ottawa were glad last week to again see her among them enjoying a short vacation.

Pay Up.

Subscribers to the UNION ADVOCATE, as well as other persons indebted to us for advertising or job work will confer a favor by remitting what they owe or a portion of it at least. It takes money to keep a printing office going, with hands to pay, bills for paper and other materials to meet and unless those payments be made we are prompt in our demands it is difficult to have business running smoothly and satisfactorily. The amount due by each individual may be a small matter to them, but when such amounts make a total of between two and three thousand dollars looked up by the careless or thoughtlessness of many of our patrons it is to us a serious matter at times to meet our business engagements with that promptness we should like. We know that times are hard and we have deferred calling those indebted to us on that account; but if each will do a little to lessen their indebtedness to this office we should be relieved from much embarrassment for want of the needful. Will each of our patrons be kind enough to perform their duty in this regard. U.

Coroner's Inquest.

At the coroner's inquest held before Dr. Smith, coroner, on the death of Simon Votau, the jury brought in the following verdict:— "We find that Simon Votau, by falling, came to his death by the falling of a hand-car about three miles from Newcastle on the track by a stone which had been carelessly left on the rail by one Peter Bouche, a stone he had been using to drive a wedge in his hammer-handle."

At the coroner's inquest held before Dr. Smith, coroner, on the death of Simon Votau, the jury brought in the following verdict:— "We find that Simon Votau, by falling, came to his death by the falling of a hand-car about three miles from Newcastle on the track by a stone which had been carelessly left on the rail by one Peter Bouche, a stone he had been using to drive a wedge in his hammer-handle."

The deceased, who was from Rogersville, was the father of seven children. He was killed by being thrown from a hand-car about three miles from Newcastle on the I. C. R. towards the bridges. Peter Bouche had been using a stone about an inch thick and four inches square to drive a wedge into the handle of a hammer. Being in a hurry he dropped the stone, which seems to have fallen on the rail. Votau's skull was fractured and he lived only about an hour after the accident but did not regain consciousness. The jury made no mention of Bouche's name in their first verdict, but the coroner, Dr. Smith, insisted on their bringing in such a verdict as the evidence warranted so as to make public the name of the party who was whose thoughtlessness a life had been destroyed and informed them that he would accept no other. He commented severely on Bouche's carelessness. The jury then reconsidered the matter and brought in a verdict as above.

Matrimonial. A quiet wedding was held at Cooke Cottage the residence of C. J. Cooke, Halifax, on Wednesday. The contracting parties were Miss Sarah D., daughter of C. J. Cooke and sister of Aid Cooke, and E. P. Kirkwood, traveller for Mills & Hutchinson, woolen merchants of Montreal. Rev. Mr. Dawson of Robie street church performed the ceremony. Miss Bertha Schwartz, a niece of the bride, was bridesmaid, and Charles, Jr., a brother of the bride was best man. After the ceremony the happy couple and a number of friends were entertained by the bride's parents, and they left on the Quebec express to spend their honeymoon in P. E. Island and New Brunswick. Mr. C. J. Cooke, the father of the bride, was a resident of Chatham, a connection of the late James A. Poirde, and worked in the old Glen office. He has for many years been a resident of Halifax being engaged in business there.

The Big Raft. The immense structures has been successfully towed to New York, arriving there on the forenoon of Saturday last. The following particulars of its arrival are given:— The Juggins raft, in tow of the Boston tug "Underwriter" and "Ocean King," passed under the East River Bridge this forenoon. Several thousand people were standing on the dock on both sides of the river, and on the bridge and cheered loudly. It is expected that the raft will be securely moored at its destination in the Erie Basin by 5 p. m. The owners are jubilant at the complete success of the undertaking.

The Weather. After a spell of some ten days of dull cloudy weather during which the sun hardly showed itself, on Friday and Saturday last we had bright breezy weather which enabled the farmers to hoe the bay out the last day of the fine weather. Sunday was dull most of the day but bright in the evening. Monday morning was fine with easterly wind and rain commenced to fall in the afternoon and continued falling heavily all night, it blowing freshly from the eastward. The rain continued at intervals most of yesterday.

Young Women's Guild of S. Andrew. We omitted last week mentioning the bazaar under the auspices of the ladies of S. Andrew's Church. The stalls were arranged outside the school house, refreshments, etc. being served inside. Some very choice pieces of fancy work were disposed of. Swings were erected on the grounds. The refreshments and tea were served at small tables and consisted of all the delicacies of the season, including strawberries and cream and ice cream. The total proceeds were $83.00.

The Artesian Well. A depth of a little over one hundred feet has been reached to the fountain on the square. Very slow progress has been made during the past week owing to the tenacity of the clay beds through which the pipe has had to be driven—yesterday a good flow of water was struck at a depth of about 110 feet. Mr. Brydges intends bringing a few feet deeper with the object of getting a greater flow. The water is remarkably clear.

Jumped From The Train.

When the N. & W. train was a few hundred yards from the Chatham station yesterday morning and had gained considerable headway a woman jumped from the forward end of the car and rolled down an embankment. The train was stopped and the woman picked up. She was found to be badly bruised about the head. The woman belonged to Chatham and had come to the train to see some friends off. She was chatting to the car and did not notice the train had moved until it was some distance from the station, when, being confused, she ran to the front of the car and sprang off.

A Society of Good Fellows.

The Supreme Deputy for this Province of the Royal Society of Good Fellows is in town endeavoring to organize a local lodge in connection with the society. The purpose of this association is similar to that of the Foresters. A meeting will be held to-night in the rooms over Mr. John Robinson's store with a view to the formation of a charter. H. A. Fish, M. D., has been appointed medical examiner.

Brick Trade in Green Pass.

Three hundred bushels of green peas have been brought to town and delivered at Hoeg's cannery factory since Monday night last. The factory is running at full blast now, canning green peas at the rate of between 75 and 100 bushels per day. The factory will be employed canning peas for the next three weeks, when they will take to canning berries.—Gleaner 9th.

Useful to Mariners.

The chart of the North Atlantic for August, issued by the United States Hydrographic office, will be seen at the office of R. H. Call. The chart contains an account of valuable information concerning probable winds and currents, the location of reefs and other dangers besides a kind of useful seafaring knowledge. Captains would do well to examine it before leaving the port.

Blueberries. Mr. Donald Morrison advertises for fifty tons of blueberries, which are for canning purposes. Since the advertisement appeared in last week's ADVOCATE, large quantities have been brought in and there is every probability of Mr. M. getting the full amount he advertises for.
