The Friendly Societies Join In Having a Pleasant Time.

Rain Fell, But the Big Crowd Had a Good Time Just the Same-Programme of Races-The Ball Game.

The friendly societies of Mount Brydges united in holding a picnic in Squire McGugan's grove yesterday afternoon, the lodges represented being b♦♦♦♦♦♦♦♦♦♦♦♦♦♦♦♦♦♦♦♦♦♦♦♦♦♦♦♦♦ St. John's Masonic Lodge, No. 81; Mount Brydges Lodge, No. 217, I. O. O. F.; Mount Brydges Lodge, No. 183, I. O. F.; Cherry Camp, No. 13, Woodmen of the World, and Mount Brydges Lodge, No. 230, C. O. C. F.

Every arrangement had been perfected by an energetic committee for a pleasant time, and provision was made to entertain the huge crowd that would have been present under favorable conditions. Rain was badly wanted in Caradoc, but it was unfortunate that a supply should be furnished just when those interested in the success of the outing had been almost praying for a bright day, coupled with moderate temperature. About noon the crowd commenced to arrive from all points, about the same time that rain commenced falling, and vithout a doubt hundreds who had arranged to join the crowd stayed at home lamenting. But despite the threatening weather, the boys came, bringing along their best girls, while the fathers and mothers invariably brought the other children, making the picnic a huge family affair that proved most enjoyable to all those who braved the elements to put in an appearance. In the absence of Mr. W. S. Calvert, M. P., Henry Hardy, ex-warden of the county, asked the people to stretch their imagination and consider him the representative of West Middlesex in the Dominion House, for it was desirable that the fun should go on. The people laughed, and after Mr. Hardy had completed a pleasant introductory speech, W. S. Calvert, who had been unavoidably detained, made his appear ance, thanked Mr. Hardy for his attempt at personation, put more good humor into the crowd in front of the platform by making one of his pleasant speeches, and then introduced the liowing performers, who rendered their respective parts to perfection: Bagpipe instrumental, George Angus; selection, Watford Military Silverine Band; speech, T. H. English; song, Harry Rich; speech, Dr. Wilson; Highland fling, Susie McGill; speech, Rev. Mr. Hurlburt; reading, Miss McCallum. Then came the races, which were in-terspersed with showers, but running to shelter only seemed to create more fun for the onlookers, who returned each time the rain ceased to resume the sports. The results were as follows: Boys under 8—1 Gordon Richardson, 2 Rodger Baxter, 3 Cecil Lipsit.

Boys under 12-1 Guy Wellman, 2 Carl Three Days Sale of Graniteware in Basement Taggart, 3 Bruce Hall.

of interest, for the weather had cleared by this time, and the boys scampering around the rain-soaked field furnished a lot of amusement. The teams comprised the following players:

Mount Brydges — Ed Steer, right field; T. Hall, catcher; M. Bignell, first base; George Steer, center field; A. Watts, pitcher; Alf Abray, left field; H. Bond, shortstop; B. Knowles, third base; A. Torrance, second base.

Poplar Hill—Isaac Gibson, pitcher;
S. Zavitz, third base; J. Ackland, shortstop; E. Cameron, center field; M. Bartlett, first base; C. Zavitz, left field; T. Webster, second base; John McTaggart, right field; D. Schooley, catcher. Umpire—Sandy Graham. The score resulted 15 to 10 in favor of Poplar Hill, the errors and base hits not being counted on eather side-both were too numerous to mention. umpire had his troubles, but manag-ed, with a good deal of diplomacy, to satisfy even the spectators. There were no casualties.

In the evening a big crowd attended the concert given in the town hall, at which W. S. Calvert, M. P., presided and in a happy speech introduced the following performers: Harry Rich, Geo. Angus, Susie McGill, Miss McCollum, T. West, G. D. Baxter and A. Walter Steer. The various numbers were well rendered, the selections by the local talent being especially enjoyed and applauded. Mrs. W. Steer acted as accompanist very acceptably.

T. C. West, G. D. Baxter and Dr. Wood were the men who arranged the musical and literary programme, and George Abray, George Bond, Wm. Smitherman and Alex. Humphrey arranged the sports, and they deserve credit for the way in which their duties were performed.

The brotherly feeling and unity of spirit among so many different lodges, all of whom are doing a good work, was commented upon by several visit-ors as showing the kind of Christian fellowship that should exist in every

IN GARDEN AND FIELD.

One of the most pressing questions before the farmer is that as to whether fall wheat should be sown this year or not. The low price within the last few years has shown at least that wheat is not a very profitable cereal. This year the ravages of the Hessian fly are making it plain that something should be done either in the matter of growing less wheat and going more extensively into some other branch of agriculture, or of devising some means of doing away with the Hessian fly. The Farmers' Advocate has opened its columns to correspondence on the subject of fall wheat, with the result that several instructive as well as interesting letters have been received.

After recounting a few of the reasons why wheat should not be grown, among which he mentions low prices, the work of the Hessian fly, and unfavorable climatic conditions, one correspondent goes on to discuss the other side. He says:

"In spite of all the drawbacks, however, wheat is a favorite crop, and not without reason. Work is better distributed throughout the year. While a great deal more work is given to preparing the land for wheat than for spring grain, it comes in a less busy time. The harvesting also comes in nicely between having and oat harvest. No other crop gives such an abundance of good straw for bedding, which is an important matter in these days of increased stock-raising. Also, though the price of wheat may be low, it is fairly steady, and if one is short of cash at any time, he can always get a supply by taking in a load of wheat. Lastly, and most important of all, a good catch of grass can be got more surely with fall wheat than with any other crop. "We thus see that good reasons can be urged on both sides of the question. Considering everything, however, we pelieve that it would be wise for Ontario farmers to largely discontinue the growing of fall wheat. Not that | may become firm, and the surface well wise to jump hastily out of one thing into another. When that is done the jump is generally made at the wrong time. Wheat is poor this year. Next year, reasoning from past experience, it will probably be good. But, having thought the whole matter over, and decided what to grow instead, farmers generally in our province would profit by letting other countries supply the world with wheat. We say, generally, because some have land more suitable than others or it suits their rotation better, or to get grass seed to grow with a crop they must have wheat. But, generally, we say, wheat-growing in Ontario should be abandoned, except where conditions are specially favorable.

"But what shall we grow instead? Some will say, sugar beets. Possibly, but here again the advice quoted above would be appropriate: 'Don't time; roll the ground, sow two barabove would be appropriate: 'Don't time; roll the ground, sow two bar-jump too quick.' In chatting with a rels of lime to the acre the last thing poultry, 9,599,736.

is the most profitable farm crop at the present time. Let us, instead of depending on wheat, plant more corn and keep more stock. Such advice coming from a practical Middlesex farmer should carry weight. About the most profitable product on the farm at present is pork. The raising of corn and hogs will guarantee at least a good income. Besides, a cessation in wheatgrowing will probably check the eyil work of the Hessian fly.

Another correspondent, from Peel county, advocates sowing less wheat and putting more work on the land. "This district, the southern part of Perth county," he says, "has escaped to harvest with comfort. The wheat the ravages of the Hessian fly to a was the old Scott variety." great degree this season, as compared with other near-by localities. has been a few fields affected, but on the whole the wheat has suffered very little from this cause, whatever may be in store for the coming year. Notwithstanding the promising condition of the plant in the early part of summer, there is general disappointment as to yield and quality, the heads were small and the kernel shrunken, the latter being caused, no doubt, by the hot winds which ripened the grain from a week to ten days too soon. "It is not customary to sow wheat here in August; in fact, the bulk is sown from about the 5th September to the 15th. This may be one reason for the non-appearance of the fly in many fields. It is my opinion that only land that is in first class condition, being naturally rich or having recently received a liberal supply of manure, should be sown to wheat, because at current prices only a full crop will pay for the use of land and labor expended. A smaller acreage than that now sown, under better treament would give better results. My observation and experience have taught that the best results are obtained from land which has been summer fallowed and manured (although the summer-fallow is not general here). Pasture or hay land plowed in July or early August, and then worked well till time of seeding or after; peas which have been sown on sod, either fall or spring plowing, and manure in any of these is effective every time. In the preparation it is essential that the land be plowed some time before sowing, so that it cultivated to produce moisture and give a good seed bed.

"The variety of fall wheat which invariably produces a fair crop is the Democrat. Though not such heavy yielder as some others, it is much surer. The Genesee Giant, Jones' Longberry, Golden Chaff, all are pretty successfully grown, and the Kansas Red also has given fairly good results this year."

To those who will continue the growing of fall wheat, Mr. W. Murdock, of the Asylum Farm, London, gives the following advice to aid in escaping the ravages of the Hessian fly:

"Plow clover sod, well manured at way wheat was yielding, he said he so as to partly cover the lime and had none. 'Plowed it all up and keep it from blowing. It will also planted corn.' He was sensible. Corn, give a roughness to the surface that the wheat requires. Sow any time between the 1st of September and the 25th, that you find the land has plenty of moisture to produce a rapid growth. About the 10th of May sow one barrel of fine salt to the acre in the morning while the dew is on or immediately after a rain. "Persons following the above structions on suitable fall wheat land, nine years out of ten will have an abundant crop, despite the Hessian fly or any other fly. I might state here that in 1883, or about that time, there was as great a cry about the Hessian fly as there is this year. I treated a field as here described, and threshed 60 bushels to the acre. My first sowing on the field was on the 2nd of September and the last was on The latest sowing was the Forcible Address by Hon. J. R. Stratton---What Liberal Principles Have Done For Ontario---Oppositions Futile Attacks.

The Liberal stalwarts of East Lamb- | 1898 this was changed to a Liberal vic on met in convention at Watford yesterday and nominated the present member in the Local Legislature, Mr. H. J. Pettypiece, of Forest, to uphold the Liberal interests of the riding in the forthcoming provincial election. Watford town hall was crowded to the exits by the delegates in attendance. The utmost harmony characterized the entire proceedings, and judging by the size and enthusiasm of the gathering, the riding of East Lambton will stand true to the principles of good government, and return Mr. Pettypiece with a handsome majority. The chief speakers of the afternoon were the candidate, Mr. Pettypiece, and Hon. J. R. Stratton. The latter spoke for over two hours, and his eloquent and interesting address was followed with the closest attention by his hear-tory by 40 votes, while in 1900 this was increased to 100 majority. Liberalism in East Lambton had thus been MAKING STEADY PROGRESS back to the proud position formerly oc cupied in the ranks of the party. Pettypiece believed that no candidate in the province ever received more loyal support than he himself had. He warned his hearers that earnest and vigilant work was needed to insure victory, and asked that they continue their hearty support of the past. Referring to his own criticism of the Hon. John Dryden, through the col-umns of the Forest Free Press, Mr. Pettypiece said he hoped that East Lambton did not expect him to be a tied-up, hide-bound representative, as that was not the kind of representative he meant to be. He was a hearty supporter of the government and its polcy, he said, but he believed conscieniously that Mr. Dryden's act of in-

den as a minister of agriculture had AN UNEQUALED RECORD, but in this matter he was open to criticism. Mr. Pettypiece did not believe that his criticism of Mr. Dryden would hurt the government, and he believed that Premier Ross and his colleagues would triumphantly carry the province. Mr. Pettypiece closed by an earnest appeal for the support of his fel-low-Libera's, as his return would mean an indorsement of the wise and efficient administration of the Ross Govern-

THE PROVINCIAL SECRETARY. The greeting accorded Hon. J. R. Stratton equaled that given their popular member by the delegates present After expressing his pleasure at meeting the Liberal electors of East Lamb-ton and referring to the enthusiasm of the preceding day's convention, in West Lambton, Mr. Stratton opened his discussion of provincial affairs by saypoint on the St. Lawrence to Rat Portage is about 2,000 miles, and from Point Pelee to James' Bay over 700 miles. In the administration of this large domain for nearly thirty years, the Liberal party had made a RECORD TO BE PROUD OF, and the speaker believed that the next quarter century would witness an eclipsing of that record.

The best argument on behalf of the Ross Government was the fact that the opposition had no policy to present and the added fact that the people are not clamoring for any special legislation nor for the repeal of any enactment already passed. The opposition had never devised a policy, had always appealed to the people on either sectional or

PICAYUNE CRIES. It had been by disgracing of the judiadverse majority was reduced to 184, in | ciary by Sir Oliver Mowat or the introduction of the "Ross Bible," or the encroachment of separate schools, or the calf with the cough, or the hog with the cholera, or other trivial is-

Mr. Stratton then called attention to the Liberal policy of taking the revenues of the province and so expending them as to LESSEN THE BURDENS of the people by making grants to institutions as are necessary to the province, and so saving the people from direct taxation. What better municipal and educational systems than those of Ontario could be desired? What better agricultural policy than that which has given $5,000,000 for the development of agriculture, and so helped to make Ontario the best agricultural district in the world?

WHAT BETTER POLICY for developing the newer portions of the province than that of building main roads and giving $9,000,000 in subsidies to new railroads? As to the labor policy of the Ontario Government, no workman can put his hand on the statute book of any country containing more enactments for the protection of labor's interests than that of Ontario.

The Conservatives ask where is the $3,800,000 left in the provincial treasury by John Sandfield McDonald's Government? They forget that before that administration went out of power, in 1872, it voted $4,000,000 to railways, and this more than

WIPED OUT THE SURPLUS left by them. The finances of the province have since been honestly, efficiently and capably administered. The revenues for the past 30 years have been, in round figures, $108,000,000, and the expenditure nearly $107,000,000, and the speaker defied anyone to prove that one dollar of it had been misapplied, misappropriated or squandered. Ontario today

COULD PAY EVERY DOLLAR t owes and yet have a balance of two and three-quarter millions. Mr. Stratton contrasted Quebec. under Conservative rule for years, with Ontario. Instead of having a surplus. the eastern province had a debt of $30,000,000. Quebec yearly pays out $1,-400,000 interest on indebtedness. Ontario yearly received $312,000 interest on money wisely invested. "Mr. Whitney will go up and down the province during the coming campaign and proclaim from the house tops the statement that the province is overburdened with debt and being bankrupted by unwise expenditure. said Mr. Stratton. "But Mr. Whitney

HAS NOT POKED HIS NOSE nside the public accounts committee the place for any member of the house to have investigated the finances and expenditures of the province.

The first thing done by Mr. Ross on assuming the premiership was to appoint a royal commission, composed of hree of Toronto's leading financiers, to examine into the financial position of the province. These gentlemen, after the closest scrutiny, reported that the accounts of the province were all found correct and that the surplus claimed, $1,300,000, was deposited in the banks to the credit of the people. "I wanted the premier last session to get it in gold and PUT IT ON THE TABLE matter than most people imagine. He so as to convince the Tories," said Mr. LINEN LASTS LONGER! then gave some interesting details, Stratton, "but he said, 'Oh, no, my LINEN LASTS LONGER!

(Laughter.) The opposition's claim that the expenditure had been increased was true, but the money had been wisely pended. Educational interests had absorbed $16,000,000, while $9,000,000 had gone for the administration of justice. In dealing with the $7,000,000 expended for public institutions, Mr. Stratton referred to the 6.000 or more unfortunates cared for in the asylums and reformatories of the province, and then dwelt at length on the industries

IN THE CENTRAL PRISON. among them being the manufacture of rope, binder twine, brooms, toys and games, for sale, and the making of blankets, clothes, boots and other wearing apparel for the inmates of jails and public institutions. In the expenditure of public money Mr. Stratton pointed out that Lamb ton county had received its share. either directly in money expended in the district, or in the maintenance of unfortunates or criminals sent from the county. Since 1872, Lambton had thus received $926,000. ALMOST A MILLION OF DOLLARS. Some of the items were: Asylums, $248,000; prisons, $28,000; administra-tion of justice, $203,000; public libraries, $25,000; railways, $70,000; schools, $25,- 000; agriculture, $42,000, etc. Mr. Whitney's only policy had been one of opposition and obstruction. He had supported the McCarthy act, which would have taken from the province its yearly revenue of $354,000 under the license act. He had opposed the succession duties tax on estates over $100,000, which in a few years had yielded $1,500,000 to the treasury He had also opposed the revenue bill two years ago, under which last year the government took from the corpor ations the sum of $229,000, thus making these bodies contribute of their profits for the benefit of the people. Mr. Whitney, too, opposed the government's policy for the development of New Ontario, but in this he

MET WITH A SURPRISE for Mr. Marter, an ex-leader of the opposition, and Mr. Whitney's lieutenant, said that he concurred in the government policy for New Ontario, and felt impelled to support them in it and vote against his leader.

In response to a gentleman in the gathering, who complained of the grants being made to encourage the iron industry, Mr. Stratton said that much more was being expended each year on agriculture than has been expended already on the iron bonuses. He pointed out the immense advantages that must accrue to the province from he encouragement of the iron industry and the development of mineral resources.

The speaker then dealt at length with the prospects of New Ontario. and spoke of the Algoma Central Railway, the Manitoulin Island Railway, the James Bay Railway, and other new enterprises. He also pointed out the growth of the pulp industry and the establishment of pulp nills at Sault Ste. Marie, Sturgeon Falls, Mattawa, Keewatin and Webb-The principle of the government's policy, he said, is Canada for Can-adians and Ontario's school books, thus demonstrating their evident superiority. In closing, Mr. Stratton asked his hearers to sink petty differences, if any had existed in the past, and fight for that party whose principles tended to serve the best interests of the province. From the broad platform of Canadianism, he appealed to every

Liberal who felt a PRIDE IN PREMIER ROSS, as one of Canada's foremost states-OFFICE men, to give him hearty support by re-electing Mr. H. J. Pettypiece. Hearty cheers for Mr. Pettypiece remiers Laurier and Ross and King Edward brought to a close a convention whose unanimity and enthusiasm

Our Coming Royal Visitors.

It need surprise no one to learn that the royal visitors soon to land on our shores view with some misgivings the of the journey of sight-seeing which they have set before them. Supposing they were merely to land at Quebec city, and proceed direct across the Dominion to Victoria, British Columbia, they would travel 6,000 miles before they again reached their port of departure on the Atlantic. And if they were to take all the side trips which loyal Canadians everywhere are ready to lay out for them, the Duke and would not get through with their trip in less than double the brief month which they have assigned to it. We in London, therefore, are specially favored in that their royal highnesses have seen fit to come to see us, and to receive here such loyal addresses from other parts of Western Ontario as residents may be pleased to indite and send to Major Maude.

Compared with the Canada that his father, the King, toured forty years ago, when Prince of Wales, the Dominion of today will be a revelation to the Duke of York. At that time, it was a comparatively easy task for the heir to the throne to see the Maritime Provinces and Upper and Lower Canada. Yet there are old settlers who remember the fact that it was deemed a condescension on the part of the Prince of Wales to go so far west as Sarnia, then regarded as the extreme western part of the country. In those days, what is now the great district of Algoma, was a terra incognita. New Ontario, with its splendid possibilities in agricultural and mineral resources was unknown. Manitoba was known only as a small settlement in a little known region, and the Northwest Territories, now studded with many prosperous farms and possessing dozens of prosperous towns, was as much a "No Man's Land" as the Yukon gold territory was prior to 1897. As for British Columbia, it was known as a gold territory, but it was as difficult of access to Canadians as it could well be. The Duke of York will find all this changed. Instead of Sarnia being the exa large extent for the fact that the treme western point of Canada, as it heavier plays are not the most popuwas deemed to be when his father visited this country, he will find that this country extends from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and that it is bound together, not only by the railway steel ban 1, but by the strongest interests as citizens of a common British country. It is a wonderful transformation, which we are sure the Prince is just as anxi-

We would deeply regret, in common with all Canadians, if through any cause the duchess were unable to accompany her husband on his coming tour. While we are all anxious to see and do honor to the heir to the throne, it goes without saying that not a little of the pleasure of welcoming him would be taken away were the populace not also able to do honor to his charming wife. For this reason it is to be hoped that the duchess will be able to accompany her husband, at least during his pilgrimage through Eastern Canada. We are certain that if it is necessary to curtail the more exacting social festivities in order not to overtax the strength of her royal highness, there are few, if any Canadians, who would not gladly urge that these should be cut down to the

No Hereditary Titles.

The report comes from Ottawa that ft is likely the Duke of York will be authorized, when in the Dominion, to bestow some royal honors on meritorious Canadians. We do not raise any objection, provided the recipients have done some work for the nation that warrants their being marked out for distinction, and provided, further, that any title conferred is not hereditary.

This is no country for conferring honors to be handed down from father to son, no matter how great a failure the last-named may be. We have half a dozen persons in Canada today who bear hereditary titles, and we require no more. These are more than enough. Just look at the foolishness of it all. The late Sir Frederick Robinson, who was a clerk in a public office, as his father before him was, had the honor of an hereditary title forced upon him, because his grandfather was a chief justice in the early days of Canada. Through his being drowned, the title goes to a relation who is living in New York, who also has done nothing to warrant its possession as a mark of distinction, and who possibly puts very little value on it. And so it goes in other cases, to the disgust of even those who believe in the conferring of

We trust that never again will an hereditary title be conferred on a Canadian. The atmosphere is not favorable to it; the people are almost to a man against it.

The Grand Opera House.

"To hold the mirror up to nature." London is now to be congratulated upon the possession of an Opera House equal to any in the land. The old pleted. The stage room was inadequate, and the entrance, by winding stairs, not so convenient or safe as the present one on the ground floor, with its ample exits. The present building and every other hall too small. The like refusing, but on second thought present hall will be exactly suitable hands him out a dollar, saying: "He for lectures, concerts and public meetings of all kinds.

As an Opera House, there is no play or opera on the road that London should not be able to get. The stage room is complete and quite adequate for the best. Sir Henry Irving, or Richard Mansfield, or Julia Arthur, with the largest stage requirements, can be accommodated. London has always patronized well a good opera or play, and crowded the house for a good minstrel performance, such as it always got from its favorite minstrel. George Primrose, and his able partner,

Lew Dockstader. The benefits to be derived from a good Opera House are many. We do not mean to deny there are some objectionable features to the theater; but there is nothing human that is perfect, and we may rest assured that the management of the Grand Opera House just completed in this city will do all in their power to maintain the high standard of the old Opera House. It will be remembered that the late Abraham Lincoln was shot in Ford's Theater at Washington, near the close of the civil war. He had, during the war, sometimes gone to a theater. Some objected that it was not proper during such times. Lincoln's answer was, "If I don't go to the theater, I'll go crazy." While it is quite true that it falls to the lot of few to have such heavy responsibilities cast upon them as he had, we know that most men often feel the weight almost too When mercy seasons justice." heavy; feel the pull a long one; and to such, recreation of any kind, or a good laugh at a good performance, comes as a welcome antidote. An opportunity to go where you do not have to think; to go to some place where care is forgotten, perhaps accounts to

The theater has always paid much attention to elocution. It would be well for many of our ministers if they paid more attention to elocution than they do. Not long ago, in one of our best pulpits, when being supplied by a stranger, a good sermon was spoiled because of the faulty pronunciation of many words. "Caught" was pronounced "cot"; "thought" was "thot"; and every similar word chopped short. All readers and speakers should study Hamlet's advice to the players. Hamlet says: "Speak the speech, I pray you, as I pronounced it to you, trippingly on the tongue; but if you mouth it, as many of you players do, I had as lief the town crier had spoke thy lines. Nor do not saw the air too much-your hand thus; but use all gently; for in the very torrent and (as I may say) the whirlwind of passion, you must acquire and beget a temperance that may give it smoothness. O, it offends me to the soul, to see a robustious periwig-pated fellow tear a passion to tatters, to very rags, who for the most part, are capable of nothing but inexplicable dumb shows and noise. I could have such a fellow whipped for o'erdoing termagant: it out-herods Herod; pray you avoid it.

"Be not too tame, neither, but let your own discretion be your tutor: suit the action to the word; the word guests of the nation shall be killed to the action; with this special observance that you overstep not the modesty of nature, for anything so overdone is from the purpose of playing, whose end, both at the first and now, was, and is, to hold, as it were, the mirror up to nature; to show virimage, and the very age and body of the time, his form and pressure. Now this, overdone, or come tardy off, though it make the unskillful laugh. cannot but make the judicious grieve; the censure of the which one, must, in your allowance, o'erweigh a whole theater of others. O, there be players, that I have seen play, and heard others praise, and that highly, not to speak it profanely, that neither having the accent of Christians, nor the gait of Christian, pagan, or man, have so strutted and bellowed that I have thought some of nature's journeymen > abominably.' Nor need all the instruction be given to the minister, the speaker, or the player. It must not be forgotten that the best elocutionist, the finest reader that ever appeared in London, was a minister, "the Rev. J. M. Bellew," a man of splendid personal appearance. It was a genuine treat to hear him. An incident occurred in the old "Spettigue Hall," now the Duffield Block. He was reading "The Glove and the ones from a moral standpoint. All the plays, for instance, played by Sol Smith Russell, "A Poor Relation," "A Pleasant Valley," or "The Old Homestead," played by Denham Thompson; or "Way Down East," with which the opera house is to be opened, are morally beneficial. The ideals they hold up are the very best. In "The Old Homestead" an incident occurs; the scene shown is Broadway, at Trinity Church, after midnight. tramp accosts for help a man who had himself reformed; at first he feels may be a fraud, but if you win once in a hundred times it's a good invest-

In all these plays the effect is the very best. Sol Smith Russell heads the list of actors of that class of play, and he is always pleasant.

Shakespeare, Lytton, Sheridan and others wrote plays of a different class, but much can be learned from them. The play can be made to teach the best principles. What could be better than the well-known lines of Portia:

time may be sojourners in our midst. The Potato Crop.

Such a scarcity is experienced in the potato supply this year as has not been felt in many years. The recent crop report issued by the Ontario Government states that "judging by potato bugs, the beetle must have done a lot of injury. This, coupled with the weather prevailing for some time past, has told greatly against the chances of the crop; and while some correspondents speak of a fair and even a good prospect, the bulk of those reporting describe the tubers as small in size and likely to be considerably below the average in yield.

The price of potatoes per bushel

here on the London market, ranges from 60 to 80 cents, according to quality. This is nearly double the price paid last year. It is said that there is a sufficient quantity to supply the local market, but none to ship away. The price, however, is likely to be higher when we take into consideration the inducements for shipping, especially to the United States markets. Potatoes have recently been selling in Chicago for $1 75 a bushel: a year ago they were 40 cents. In the State of Massachusetts they have been selling as high as $6, a barrel. Notwithstanding the demands of local markets there is a strong incentive to export. It needs only a scarcity like the present to indicate the extreme importance of the potato-growing industry. The potato is one of the most, if not the most important article of one's daily food. In fact it fills such a place in the daily bill of fare that the loss will be chiefly felt in the attempts to obtain a suitable substitute. As a substitute beans should not be overlooked. Beans at $2 a bushel are cheaper than potatoes at 50 cents, when it is considered that a bushel of beans will go farther than five or six bushels of potatoes. If the small wageearner, the class that will suffer most from the potato scarcity, would consider the change of diet, it would doubtless be a matter of saving to him in dollars and cents.

A leading resident of Hamilton writes to the Times that the water supthat there are good plays and better plied to that city is not only unfit for drinking purposes, but positively unfit to bathe in. This alarmist professes to have seen things-surely not snakes!in the liquid alleged to be water, and he says it is not safe to use except it be boiled, which declaration he makes on the assurance of medica men. The police magistrate will have to be exceedingly lenient with Hamilton drunks until such time as the incentive to fall from grace is removed. How thankful we in London ought to be these warm days, with our splendid supply of pure spring water for domestic purposes!

> "Singers too often forget what they are singing about. Forget that you have a voice, speak your words, and think of what you are singing, and the voice will come with the expression of the words." Gounod once gave this bit of advice to Pol Plancon, who is now one of the foremost singers on the stage. How often words are neglected so that it is almost impossible to catch the meaning of a song at all. The following suggestion from Plancon is worth the consideration of all musicians: "In studying a song I always begin with the words, getting the sense of them thoroughly fixed in my mind. The picture must be painted in imagination before you can paint it in tone. Then I sing the music over, and later both music and words thoughtfully working at each separate phrase until it is finished in a way that I feel I cannot improve upon."

Well Content.

[Victoria Times.] It is extremely probable that Canadians will prefer to trudge along the path which has already been mapped out. It has the advantage of being free from pitfalls and it promises to lead to even greater prosperity than we have experienced since we set forth upon it. Even now there is no country in the world in which the sum of human comfort is greater.

Bachelors, Get a Move On.

[Toronto World.] While we in Ontario grumble at Quebec outdoing us in gain of population, this very marriage question may be brought into notice in that connection. The French-Canadians marry more freely than the English-speaking peo ple, and more new homes are established. Try to rub it out as you may the fact is there, that a country's population depends largely on the homes built up, and a steady natural increas of home-born people is the surest and best indication of a thriving nation.

What Is the Duty For?

[New York Journal.] The American people were taxed a ent and a half a pound to establish a tin plate industry for the benefit of American labor. Then the manufacturers brought over Welsh workmen to make the tin plate, on the ground that American workmen did not know how. Now the Welsh workmen are out on strike, the mills are closed, and the trust, which has absorbed the tin plate trust, is importing plates from Wales to fill its orders. Is it not about time for that duty to come off?

Protection Partly to Blame.

[Ottawa Journal.] From 1871 to 1881, a period of low revenue tariff as compared with what followed the population grew at double the rate it does now. Years of commercial stagnation and distress, of bankruptcies and soup kitchens were included in that decade, leading the people to turn out of power a Liberal Government, and to substitute a government which offered a high tariff as a panacea for commercial and industrial ills. Yet during that partially distressed decade the rate of increase in Canada's population was 19 per cent, much larger than it has been since. In the following ten years the policy of protection being in force the increase in people was 12 per cent. Now for ten years, under the fuller fruition of protection, the rate drops to 101/2 per cent.

The Union.

[Goldwin Smith in Weekly Sun.] It is too true that there is matter for a grave indictment of the trade unions. Their guidance has too often fallen into the hands of the restless malevolent ambition thrives by industrial war. They have too often been swayed by the votes of the young, unmarried and less responsible members. They have too often had recourse to lawless and violent methods which would have destroyed the freedom of labor and against which the community has had to put the law in force, and sometimes to take up arms. On the loss and suffering caused by strikes to the community, and often in a special degree to industries wholly unconcerned in the quarrel, it is needless to But combination was necessary to protect the rights of the working man and enable him to make his bargain with capital on anything like equal terms. The employers were really, if not formally, combined. How ruthless a tyrant capital can be was shown with fearful vividness by the reports upon which the British factory and mining acts were founded. It can hardly be denied that the unions have raised the condition of The mayor of Winnipeg may adopt the working man. A notable case was an Indian blanket as his robe of office that of the farm laborers in England, who were raised from practical slavery, with an insufficiency of bare bread, by the unionist movement under Joseph Arch. Nor has anything which the unions have done been more odious or more subversive of commercial freedom than the means taken by some colossal trusts to kill the minor concerns. A better way, it is to be hoped, will in time be found than industrial war, or war of any may be expected every day of the week SON'S SOAP is not in regular daily kind; but in the meantime let justice Solomon in all his glory was not be done to the cause of the workinguse. CANADA'S TIME IS TO COME !

A Friendly Comment On the Census Returns by the Detroit News. The census of the Dominion of Canada, just completed, certainly makes a disap-pointing showing, with its total increase of population of only 500,000. But there are many facts which go to prove that it is more disappointing than discouraging. During seven years of the decade for which the record stands, the larger opportunities, the commercial and industrial activities have been in the United States. There have been in that time three principal streams of emigration emigration from the Dominion into this country. Probably the largest has been that of French-Canadians from Quebec and the ther eastern provinces into the New other eastern provinces into the New England states, where they have prac-tically overrun the factory towns and are now filling up the abandoned farms, of which so much has been heard since 880 or thereabouts.

The second has been drawn almost en irely from Ontario, and its strength is no secret to the people of Detroit, as their city forms one of the several mouths which compose its delta. Buffalo is another mouth, Port Huron a third, and Ohio lake cities constitute a fourth. The third stream carries a constant f agricultural settlers out of Manitoba and adjacent provinces into the north-western states of our own country, and ultimately drains into the booming Puget Sound territory.

Ontario furnishes not only practically all of the Canadian population that abounds in our lake ports, but a large proportion of those who cross the border to the west and drift to the Pacific states; and she has sent thousands of her sons and daughters to the Yukon district the discovery of rold there. Her since the discovery of gold there. Her low birth rate, which has been a subject of frequent comment of late, is not so much an additional explanation of her apparent lack of gain as it is a conse-quence of the steady outflow of her young men and women into the newer portion:

men and women into the newer portions of the Dominion, and into the promising fields of endeavor which the states hold constantly before their eyes.

But a change has already begun, and in another decade it will show remarkable results, both as to Ontario and Western Quebec. Across our own border, at Sault Ste. Marie, we have a striking example of a condition that is coming into a vistage. of a condition that is coming into existence at scores of points in Canada. There an immense group of industries is being built up by American capital, which has only recently begun to seek those immense natural resources of which the Dominion offers so many. The full de-Dominion offers so many. The full development of the manifold industries being extablished at that point means an mmense increase in the population of the surrounding territory, and a large part of it is sure to come from the states. At Collingwood the Cramps are about starting a steel plant expected to ultimately have thousands of men in its direct employ, and to require or furnish opportunity for accessory enterprises that will make a thriving city on the southern shore of Georgian Bay. On the five prinshore of Georgian Bay. On the five principal south-flowing tributaries of the St Lawrence in Ontario and Quebec. the uxtaposition of water powers and forests s resulting in the rapid development of oulp mills and other enterprises, largely pulp mills and other enterprises, largely backed by Yankee money, which will shortly bring in a strong tide of immigration, and will, also, provide such opportunities as will stay, in large measure, the departure of native workmen, which has been so constant in the past.

The utilization of the immense resources which lie between the Saguenay and Lake

Winnipeg has, practically speaking, begun within the past five years. It is going forward now at a surprising rate, and the evidences of it will be notably evident in the next decennial enumeration STORM WARNING .- A severe storm IT'S A LEADER.

THREE SEAMEN DROWNED. Washington, B. C., Aug. 30.-The navy department yesterday received a cablegram from Capt. Craig, of the Albany, dated at Aden, announcing that Frank Schilz and Timothy Mc-Carthy, while sleeping on the deck of the Albany on Sunday night slid overboard during an exceptionaly heavy roll of the vessel. The men were not again seen, and their bodies could not be recovered. On the fol owing Monday George Perkins went overboard, and was drowned. His body was recovered, and will be buried ashore at Aden. NINE ARE DEAD. Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 29.—It developed today that the result of the exolosion of the boiler on the steamer City of Trenton, while on her way up the Delaware River, from this city was more appalling than was at first supposed. Nine persons are known positively to be dead; at least 18 are missing, most of whom are believed to have been on the steamer and two of the injured still in the hospital will probably die. The identified dead are: William Nelson, aged 67 years, a vet eran of the civil war. Hampton, Va. James McCormick, 23 years, Wilmington, Del., fireman; Elizabeth Green, 21 years, Philadelphia; William Dunn 38 years, Philadelphia; Arthur R Lansing, 14 years, Trenton, N. J.; Wil liam H. Keen, Philadelphia. Jessie Stratton, Trenton, died this afternoon, In addition to these, there are two charred bodies, believed to be those of females, in the morgue. They are beyond recognition. POSSIBLY A MURDER.

Port William, Ont., Aug. 30.-Mys terious circumstances surround the death of one Harry Ford, which oc curred on June 17, at Kamanistiquia. It seems that Ford and an unknown man were bathing in the river at that place, and that soon after they had gone Ford's companion came back to the station house and said that Ford was drowned. He had come to give the alarm without even dressing, and when the crowd went to the river, he went into the water, and with some assistance recovered the body, which was afterwards brought down here for burial. The facts of the case were reported to Dr. Hamilton, who held no inquest. Subsequent actions, however, of the man who was with Ford aroused suspicions in the minds of many there might have been some foul play in connection with it. The man afterwards went over to the construction work of the Canadian Northern, and has since disappeared. Prior to his leaving a fellow-workman was heard to say in his presence that it looked suspicious, referring to the death of Ford. Since then the man who made that assertion has been found on top of a box car on the Canadian Northern, with his head nearly severed from BARRIE, Ont., Aug. 29.-The bears were his body. It was said that the man had committed suicide, and the body was buried. Men who are acquainted with both cases, state that the unknown man acted strangely and ill at ease while at work on the Northern. In the case of the death of both these men, the suspicions only became talk weeks after death. Ford is not known to have had any money on his per-son the day he went in bathing. He had money coming to him from the C. P. R., which has not been paid. Both Ford and the man now under suspicion were laborers on the C. P. R. extra section gang.

SUDDEN DEATH AT WOODSTCK. Woodstock, Aug. 30 .- W. S. Wilkinson, a well-known and highly respected citizen, who resided on Ingersoll avenue, was found dead in bed yesterday morning. Mr. Wilkinson was a well-to-do retired farmer, and had resided in the city for some years.

THE MISSING YEOMANRY. Not much importance is attached in official circles to the story which has been circulated of the disappearance of the Imperial Yeomanry company numbering 2 officers and 300 men. Dr. Coulter showed that under the constitution of the order Oronhyatekha, as supreme chief ranger, received a salary of $10,000 a year. St. James' Presbyterian Choir Honor Their Late Leader.

On Wednesday evening the choir of st. James' Presbyterian Church and a number of friends assembled at the nome of Mr. Gillean McLean to bid farewell to their late organist and choir leader, Mr. F. G. Simpson. During the evening very enjoyable solos were rendered by Miss McLeod and Messrs. Drewe, Stockwell and Froggitt, and some excellent recitations were given by Misses Gray and Burke After refreshments had been served Mr. Drewe read the following address: F. G. Simpson, Esq.:

Dear Mr. Simpson,-It was with extreme regret that we, the members of St. James' Presbyterian Church choir, heard of your decision to leave London, with the intention of studying for the medical profession.

During the year and a half you have been with us as organist and choin eader, we have learned to appreciate your many estimable qualities and to regard you with more than ordinary affection.

Your ability as an organist and mu-sician, but above all your Christianike and gentlemanly bearing, have made us realize the great loss the church and thoir will sustain by your resignation. We would, if it were in ur power, persuade you to stay, but ve know you are not taking this important step without first carefully considering it, and believing you have hosen wisely and well, it only remains for us to join in wishing you every success in your new venture.

We cannot, however, let you depart without adding to this expression of our regret the request that you will accept this parting gift from us, as, in a small measure, testifying to our appreciation of your sterling worth. May God's blessing go with you, and may he keep thee in all places wither thou goest.' Signed on behalf of the choir—Edith McLeod, Maggie Scott, John Drewe, A. T. Stockwell.

Misses McLeod and Scott then pre-sented Mr. Simpson with a valuable leather-lined suit case and silk umbrella. Mr. Baker voiced the regret of the Literary Society, and stated that they had always found Mr. Simpson a Christian gentleman; and Mr. Mc Lean bore witness to the fact that the congregation highly appreciated the ability and success with which he had managed the choir. All united in singing "Auld Lang Syne" and "God Be With You Till We Meet Again."

Fertile fields have been devastated.

ENGINEER MET DEATH AT GUELPH

Flying C. P. R. Freight Crashes Into Standing Train.

Engineer Jones Received Injuries From Which He Died.

Other Members of Train Crew Jumped and Were Uninjured- Five Cars Destroyed.

A bad rear-end collision occurred on the G. T. R. at Guelph Junction at 3:30 o'clock this morning, by which Engineer Wm. Jones, of Toronto, lost his life in a terrible manner,

Freight train No. 52, from London to Torento, was standing on the main track at Guelph Junction, when freight train No. 64, which was following, crashed into its rear. Engineer Jones, who stuck to his post, received frightful injuries. His feet were crushed to a pulp and he was badly scalded by escaping steam. He was conveyed to Toronto, where he died in the General Hospital at 9 o'clock this morning. The other members of the crew in charge of No. 64 jumped when they saw that a collision was inevitable and were not injured.

Immediately after the collision, the van of No. 52 took fire and was completely destroyed, together with the engine and four cars of No. 64. The cars were loaded with flour and feed, and the loss is estimated at about No. 64 was in charge of Conductor

Charles Dolittle, of London, and Engineer Jones, of Toronto. No. 52 was in charge of Conductor Fitzpatrick and Brakeman Emerson Woodruff, of Two stockmen were asleep in the van of No. 52 just before the collision, and both would have met a terrible death had it not been for the presence of mind of Conductor Fitzpatrick, who, when he realized that there must be a collision, rushed to the rear of the train and awakened them in time to save their lives.

How the accident occurred, local trainmen are at a loss to determine. The semaphore was up against No. 64, and the only plausible theory advanced is that Engineer Jones failed to see it owing to the blinding rain.

CANDIDATE FOR 'VARSITY SENATE.

Middlesex Alumini Association Selected Mr. J. M. McEvoy to Represent Them.

A thoroughly representative meeting of the graduates of the Provincial University was held yesterday afternoon in the county buildings, with Mr. Talbot Macbeth, K.C., president, in the chair.

The meeting was called for the purpose of nominating a candidate for the forthcoming elections to the senate of the university, to represent in some sense the graduates in this district. Mr. J. H. McEvoy, B.A., LL.B., was unanimously chosen as the candidate for the Middlesex Association. There was a general conviction expressed that the Middlesex graduates should be represented on the senate better candidate could be chosen than Mr. McEvoy, who was for some years connected with the university as a lecturer, and who has a keen appreciation of university methods and wants. The association hopes that all members of alumni associations in the various counties will support the nominee of the Middlesex Association, as it was agreed at the meeting that the members of the Middlesex Association should support nominees of other county associations.

THE STEEL STRIKE.

Milwaukee Delegation Confers With Strike Leaders at Pittsburg-Schwab Will Build Himself a Palace.

Pittsburg, Pa., Aug. 30. - The most important feature presented in the steel strike today was the conference of a committee of the Bay View Amalgamated Lodge of Milwaukee and the officials of the association at the headquarters. The meeting began early, and was continued several hours. Those taking part were J. D. Hickey, an exofficial of the Bay View Lodge, and J. F. Cooper, both of Milwaukee, and President Shaffer, Secretary Williams and Assistant Secretary Tighe, who has just returned from the west.

It is said that the Milwaukee com-mittee was sent here by direction of a secret meeting of the lodge to look into the situation and report at a meeting to be held upon their return home. There is no certainty as to what their report will be, but their mission, it is said, was to arrange, if possible, for their co-workers to resume work in the Bay View mills.

OLD GERMS DEADLY.

Two Children Catch Diphtheria From Child's Toys

Indianapolis, Aug. 30.—Irene Keck. daughter of Bert Keck, of Marion, is ill of diphtheria, and a playmate of the same age was taken with the disease at the same time and neither is expected to live. In the investigation which was made to discover in what manner the disease was contracted, it developed that the two children had made their way to an attic, and had there opened an old trunk and played with toys that belonged to a child who died of diphtheria fifteen years ago.

There was no other way in which the disease could have been contracted, and the local health authorities are convinced that the diphtheria germs have existed in the toys for fifteen years, and that the two children con-tracted the disease by playing with them.

The Railways.

It is learned that the Canadian Pacific Railway Company is to build a branch line from Carleton Place to Sharbot Lake, 40 miles, giving Ottawa

HISTORIC SPANKING.

Having Administered Punishment Redress Was Denied Him.

The law does not take account of trifles-deminimis non curat lex-but the spanking of a small boy nearly two centuries ago is mentioned in the court records of New Amsterdam, as New York was then known, and to that fact are we indebted for the telling of the story in that grave and gay legal magazine, the Green Bag. June 24, 1656, on a beautiful bright day, little Jacob Clasen and his playmates were dismissed early, for it was Saturday, and started school to Schreyer's hook, near Battery park, for a swim in the river. On their way, when in the pleasant rural vicinity-as it was then-of Maiden lane and Wall street, a pair of gray squirrels frisked across their path and the boys gave chase. Scurrying and scolding, the quarry fled toward a grove nearby and dashed into the intervening pea patch of a pepperytempered innkeeper, by name Jan Vinje, who was working in it at the time. Despite his shouts of warning the boys followed. They all got safely across at top speed and unrecognized, with the exception of Jacob, the smallest and least lucky, whom the wrathful Jan pounced upon and caught, and the and there hung over his knee and soundly spanked. When he was allowed to go, little Jacob no longer cared to go in bathing with the other boys at Schreyer's hook. He soberly picked up his fallen lunch basket and went home, where were revealed, and the family indignation was aroused on his behalf. The Clasens, doubtless, shared the partiality of the time for corporal punishment, but they strongly disapproved its infliction by casual outsiders. was no business of Jan Vinie's to spank their Jacob. Jan, however, had not yet cooled in his resentment, and presently instituted suit against Mr. Clasen for damages to the violated pea patch by Jacob and his companions. The wor-shipful court of burgomasters and scheppens met, considered, appointed an arbitrator, and adjourned for a fortnight. They then reassembled, and heard a condemnatory report, from which Mr. Clasen made a spirited appeal, "since the children have not taken or injured anything to the value of a pea's pod," and moreover, Jacob had been already spanked by Jan. The latter point was new to the court. They questions Jan, who admitted the spanking; whereupon they promptly decided that Jan Vinje, having taken illegal and forcible satisfaction at the time of the trespass, had thereby forfeited his right to further satisfaction under the law, and the case was dismissed .- Youth's Compan-

CEYLON TEA

The air braced up the nerves like a tonic—invigorating, life-giving, delightfully racy—eloquent of smooth skating on white, sparkling pond or chained up, frost-bound river. The sky was a lovely accuse that azure tint; sunset clouds were floating along, painted in the rosy, vermilion colors that belong more to summer time, or early autumn, than to "the drear December." Splendid cloudlets, fringed with gold, and pierced with fire; the western heaven glowed, blushed, burned with a fervid passionate intensity with a fervid, passionate intensity.

Elsie Carew, aged 18 years, leaned on a five-barred gate and "considered the heavens" as one who loves the beautiful, and delights in the mystic, considers them. Her eyes were filled with the ecstasy and wonder of this winter sunset; she seemed to read a story or a prophecy in the sky. Elsie was slender and graceful; she had wonderful eyes, whose color varied with her moods. Sometimes they seemed blue, sometimes brown; sometimes—and then they were at their leveliest—they were or appearat their loveliest—they were, or appeared to be, a dark, exquisite green. Long tashes shaded them. As she gazed up now into the heavens, those strange, haunting eyes of hers looked dark gray. Her face was pale, pensive, pretty; she was not one of those royal beauties among warmly the strains. ong womankind who subdue all men under their feet by the magic of a glittering smile or pair of dazzing eyes, a pink bloom on the cheeks, a mouth all rosy red and dewy sweet—a piquant, childish manner, half dashing, half petulant, like one who is made to be worshiped, and who knows it. Elsie was not one of those spoiled dar-lings; she had found this world neither a pleasure garden nor a paradise, but she was contented with it—she took it as she found it. Some things in it were marvelously lovely—this sunset, for in-stance. She watched it a long time, and then a sudden shrill piping of wind amid the bare tree-tops made her start. A cold, biting wind, northeast every shaft of it, piereing, penetrating, painful to enor it, piereing, penetrating, paintul to encounter. It came all at once—a master-ful spirit riding upon the wings of this northeastern blast, waking up all the echoes in the stripped woods. Elsie turned and hurried along the country lane; on one side fields, on the other a thick plantation of trees, part of the domain on one side helds, on the other a thick plantation of trees, part of the domain of the Hon. Richard Hammand, of Raby Mayor, an out-at-elbows squire of the neighborhood, who owned a huge, ruinous old mansion, a mortgaged estate, and three staiwart sons, all of whom knew Elsie by sight. She was afraid that she was some miles from home; she had been walking ever since two o'clock and now walking ever since two o'clock, and now the falling dusk told her it was nearly five. How brisk and gay the clear frosti-ness had made her feel three hours ago!

misgiving seized Elsie; she had passed along that lane earier in the afternoon on leaving the downs; but she was quite sure now that it had not been so long a lane as this one. No; nothing like it— she must have wandered by mischance into some other lane, and now she was walking heaven alone knew whither. "If it was not so cold," said Miss Carew to herself, "I would not so much care; but oh, for a great fur cape, which Aunt Johanna calls so mannish and odious; oh, for my muff, which I left on the chest of drawers in my room; and I wonder what time it is?" Out came a small, old-fashioned gold watch, held by a long slender gold chain. Elsie pushed a long, slender gold chain. Elsie pushed her mantle aside and tried to study her watch by moonlight—half-past five—no, a quarter past six! A sudden noise of stumbling footsteps in the shadowy woods to her left, and in another moment a man leaped over the fence into the lane; was at once followed by another man. Both of them looked ragged, rough, hairy and savage in the moonlight. Else covered her watch with her mantle-her heart gave a great thump-night, loneliness, a young girl, a gold watch, two tramps!

"It isn't at all nice," said Elsie, to herself. "I don't feel at all desirous of making the acquaintance of those gentlemen. However, they are perhaps harmless—all tramps are not thieves or mur-

But then, Elsie remembered, with a little shiver, that there was a new railway in course of construction a new raniway in course of construction at about two miles distant from the village of Allanbury, where she dwelt, and that fearful tales were whispered respecting the "navvies" and their wickedness. Suppose these were "navvies"?

On they tramped in a sullen silence, and slender Elsie brought up the rear. The great black wood at her left whispered. great black wood at her left whispered and wailed by turns. Now and anon there was a great stir throughout it, and I can't bear it any more," said Elsie to herself, "I will ask them the way to Allanbury."

She tried to nerve herself to speak, but a lump came into her throat and stopped her. Then she saw something white and tall gleaming in the moonlight like a ghost, with great outstretched arms.
"Great simpleton I am," she said. "It's a finger-post where four roads meet; but I know I did not pass that today. I am miles and miles from the Coome Hill House—perhaps I shall never see it again."

At that moment one of the tramps turned his head, and the next instant he stood stockstill ringht in the middle of the lane, obstructing the road. There was semething dangerous and defiant in his attitude. Elsie's heart stood still. "Now he is going to knock me on the head and kill me," she said to herself; "or perhaps if I give him my watch he will let me go."

"Would you mind giving a few coppers, miss, to a poor fellow out of work? I've a wife and five little ones down with the fever, and I ain't tasted a morsel of food since yesterday!"

Elsie had exactly eighteen pence in her little purse, a shilling and a sixpence. With trembling fingers she took it out of her pocket.

"I have only one shilling and sixpence."
she faltered. "but I will give it to you, and you will tell me the way to Allan-bury, please?"

"Allanbury, missie, why you're a good three mile this side on it."

The man spoke with a hateful, jeering accent; he put out his great hand to receive the one and sixpence, Elsie dropped the two coins into his palm.

"I have somehow lost my way in this lane." she said. "Where does Allanbury lie?" The man's fingers closed over the coins; he made a step nearer to Elsie. How horribly he smelt of tobacco and beer! She drew back, and the fellow laughed aloud.

"I'll come with you, missie, and show

ELSIE.

Elsie felt as if she would faint with fear. Somehow there is always something repelling in the sight of extreme raggedness; it suggests a desperate and daring character to most of us. Rightly or wrongly we are all of us judged at first sight very much by our apparel, and a tailor's measurement is often taken of our dispositions according to the length, breadth and costliness of our coats and cloaks.

This second tramp was shoeless, and his clothes hung on him like a bundle of tatters. He was bearded, hairy, and generally wolfish of aspect, so Elsie thought.

'Nigher seven," said the second tramp "and the young coman's stupid if she thinks on taking that walk."
"If I could only find the road I came by!" said Elsie, piteously, whereat the tramps chuckled.
"Now you just be sensible my dear." "Now, you just be sensible, my dear," said the terrible second tramp, "and

Ha! Thank Heaven—the sound of footsteps and voices—joyous male voices and the ring of laughter—gentlemen's refined

Round by the tall white finger-post came two figures in gray suits—young men with guns on their shoulders and bags of game slung across their backs.

They came along with swift strides towards Elsie and the tramps.
Elsie darted forward and addressed them in tones that trembled with excitement, entreaty, and joy—ministering angels they seemed, sent to her rescue.
"Oh! I beg your pardon," she began, but I have lost my way. I want to get to Allanbury, and I am afraid; the road is so lonely, and it is so late."
She knew quite well to whom she was speaking—to Mr. Owen Hammond the son of the squire, whose dark woods bordered the lane. She had seen Owen Hammond a hundred times; in church, at penny readings, at village concerts, at the flower show last summer, once at a garden party at the Rectory, when he a garden party at the Rectory, when he had asked to be introduced to her, and Miss Philipson had stiffly, primly, cruelly refused to allow it.

Owen Hammond put down his gun and took off his cap—his brother Charles did the like; the tramps had hardly made up their minds what line to pursue, but all at once the one whom we have called the first tramp began to beg in a whining pitful accent anty, far beyond his means. He tossed the man a couple of half-crowns.

"One a piece, for a Christmas box," he said, with a laugh. "Good night, that's the way to Farley," and he pointed towards the sign-post.

"Good night. Merry Christmas, and plenty of 'em, your honor," said the light tramp. iirst tramp.
"Scamps!" said Charlie Hammond, looking after them. "I would not have given them a penny; they'll be as drunk as They frightened me to death," said Elsie.

"What! How? The ruffians!" cried

"Miss Carew-you see I have the happiness to know your name—we are not exactly strangers, though I have never had the honor of speaking to you before, and I've got a way of saying things if they come into my head. It's pleasant to have"—he hesitated—"to have friends glad to see one, and I felt yexed to think glad to see one, and I feit vexed to think I lowed the gladness to those ruffians. Thank heaven, I came up in time!"
"Scoundreis!" said Charles Hammond, who was still looking down the dark road in the direction the tramps had taken. "I should like to send them to Wandswarth for six months: I know they taken. "I should like to send them to Wandsworth for six months; I know they leserve it!"

"Miss Carew," said Owen Hammond, 'you want to get back as quickly as you can to Allanbury. You have missed the lane by the Charn Woods."
"Oh, yes; I recollect now—a little narrow lane, with some poor people's cot-row lane, with some poor people's cottages on one side."

"Yes; but there is a shorter way across our park. Charlie, I will walk with Miss Carew to Allanbury, if she will accept of my escort, and you must take the game bag home."
"I am so sorry to give you so much trouble, Mr. Hammond; you need not come all the way, and —"
"Ah, but your house is in the lonellest part of the parish, and, with these brutes about. I could never leave you alone. No: about, I could never leave you alone. No; I will walk the whole way, and Charlie will take the game. Will you accept a pheasant, Miss Carew, of my own shoot-

"Oh, thank you; but I must decline You see, one is so hampered with the rules and regulations of propriety, and I suppose I should break them all if I accepted a pheasant; but I love roast pheasant!"

The little child is safe from ordinary dangers in the care of the faithful dog. But neither the dog's fidelity, nor the mother's love can guard a child from those invisible foes that lurk in air, water and food-the germs of disease Children need to be specially watched and cared for. When there is loss of appetite, lassitude and listlessness in a child, an attempt should be made to revive the appetite and rally the spirits. In Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery parents have found an invaluable medi-cine for children. Its purely vegetable cheracter and absolute freedom from alcohol and narcotics commend it to every thoughtful person. It is pleasant to the taste, unlike the foul oils and their emulsions offered for children's use. "Golden Medical Discovery" makes pure blood and sound flesh, and abso-intely eliminates from the system the poisons which feed disease. Mrs. Ella Gardner, of Waterview, Middlesex Co., Va., whose daughter suffered from malarial poisoning and catarrh, writes: "My little daughter is enjoying splendid health. I am glad I found a doctor who could cure my child. She took twelve bottles of the 'Golden Medical Discovery,' eight bottles of 'Pellets,' and one bottle of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, and she is well. We thank God for your medicines."

Captain Barker Indorses "Foot Elm.

Well beloved by the men who served under him in South Africa was Capt. Barker, ever solicitous for their welfare, always ready to ameliorate their trying lot. What he says of Foot Elm and the great boon it was to the soldiers is a wonderful tribute to that splendid foot remedy.
Toronto, Ont., April 8, 1901.

Messrs. Stott & Jury, Bowmanville,

Dear Sirs,-I am in receipt of your letter of April 6 inst., and am only too glad to give all my praises to the excellency of Foot Elm, which you donated to my late company in the Second Battalion, Royal Canadian Regiment, while serving in South Africa. We found it a great boon in helping to keep our pedal extremities in good shape during our long and try-ing marches, and I have to thank you for your kind remembrance of us while we were away from Canada. Yours very truly.

CAPT. BARKER, (Signed) Captain C Company, R.C.R.
The action of Foot Elm is truly marvelous in cooling hot, burning feet, soothing sore, blistered feet, curing sweaty and ill-smelling feet, and relieving all foot troubles. Price, 25c a box, at all druggists, or sent by mail. Stott & Jury, Bowmanville, Ont.

crossed the line and made a pretty sight as they beat out to windward on the first leg of the triangular course. The Skip, of Port Rowan, led from the start, and was never headed. The Patty finished second, but on account of the time allowance which she conceded the Edith, was put in third place. Dr. Hutchinson, of London, was judge, and had associated with him Col. Thompson and George Killmaster. The result of the series gives the championship to the Skip, with three clear wins. The regattas have been very successful, and will without doubt be repeated next year.

Entire Season's Crop of Mr. Pettit, Lot 5, Con. 10, Believed to Have Been Burned.

The rainstorm which visited London shortly before 12 o'clock last night appeared in a more severe form in outportions of the country. In Nissouri it was very disastrous, and it is expected that late reports will reveal much damage from lightning.

The barns on let 5, con. 10, East Nissouri, two miles north of Thamesford, owned by John Horseman and occupied by Mr. Pettit, were struck by light-ning about midnight and completely destroyed. It is believed that the entire season's crop, together with implements, was in the barn, the ruins of which were still burning this morning.

He was urging his horses forward, when he was suddenly dazed by a blinding flash of lightning, both horses went down in a heap. The animals were only stunned, however, and after Mr. Thompson had recovered his faculties, he succeeded in getting them on their feet, and proceeded to the city.
