A Japanese Ruse. LONDON, Nov. 4 .- A dispatch to the Central News from Shanghai says that the report that the Japanese second army is on the eve of taking Port Arthur is regarded as a ruse on the part of the Japanese. It is thought probable that the Japanese second army intend forming a junction with the mair army and capturing the Chinese who are retreating from Chin Lien Cheng, after which the combined forces will proof Wales, who are on their way to Livadia, arrived here yesterday. They were in the deepest mourning. The Princess received a large bundle of dispatches among them one from the Czarina who said: "My husband's death was beautiful and saint-like. He enjoined upon me especially the duty of supporting our son in the path of peace and godliness." The Prince and Princess proceeded on an imperial yacht to Yalta. After they crossed the frontier they found every station in their route strongly guarded by troops. The frontier police are under orders to exercise the strictest vigilance and to scrutinize closely all passports. The Differing Doctors.

Bomb Explosion in London.

London, Nov. 4 .- A bomb exploded at midnight in front of No. 1 Tilney street, corner of Park lane, west London. Reginald Brett, son of Lord Esher, lives in the house at this number. The door was shattered and blown to pieces. The windows for a dozen numbers up the street were smashed, plaster was loosened from the ceilings and the occupants fled panic-stricken to the street. Nobody was hurt. The neighborhood is a fashionable one. At No. 5 is the house of Justice Hawkins, who sentenced the Walsall Anarchists, and more recently condemned Francis Polti and Giuseppe Farnaro, alias Emile Carnot. It is surmised that the bomb was set by Anarchists, who mistook Brett's house for that of Justice Hawkins.

Nicholas a Peace-Loving Potentate. LONDON, Nov. 4.-Persons who have been thrown into close contact with the Czar, Nicholas II., during his visits to England, say that he speaks English perfectly. His Majesty acquired his education from an English governess and tutors. When induced to talk freely he expressed liberal ideas, and seemed to care nothing for the rights of kings. He showed no disposition to militarism, and was almost nervously fond of retirement. Czar Nicholas during his stay in London preferred to spend his entire time quietly reading than in attendance at ceremonies. Solitary rambles through the streets seemed too to afford him much more amuse. ment and pleasure than theater and operagoing. He has openly professed a dislike for war, and his tendencies are in the direcfather published the first number of the tion of peace, and his tastes and pursuits

The Social Purity Movement. LONDON, Nov. 4 .- In an interview with Mrs. Ormiston Chant, that lady declares that victory will not be snatched from the purityites by legal red tape. Legislation, Mrs. Chant says, has already helped to cleanse London since the time when girls of 13, with painted faces, plied their calling upon the streets. The Purity League is about to try to close the sittings of the divorce courts to the public, and to procure the enactment of a law providing that all actions for separation or divorce shall be heard in camera. A crowded conference was held Friday evening in connection with the woman' movement, at which was considered the subject of "Woman's share in local government." Lord Meath presided, and among those present was Princess Christian, and many members of the aristocracy. Letters were read from Right Hon. A. J. Balfour, Archbishop of Canterbury, and Cardinal Vaughan. All present concurred in the opinion that women ought to be elected to the various local boards, and take a large share in the administration of local affairs.

Alix and Nicholas Exchange Rings. LIVADIA, Nov. 4 .- Princess Alix was received formally into the orthodox church on Friday. After the ceremony she exchanged rings with her betrothed, the Em. peror Nicholas II.

ST. The Scotland Yard authorities inform the Associated Press that they have evidence that the physical force party are planning an immediate campaign. This activity, it is claimed, is a consequence of the reply of John Morley to the deputation who called on him a few days ago in reference to the release of the Irish prisoners now serving terms of imprisonment in England under the treason-felony act. The deputation consisted of the lord mayor of Dublin, the sheriff and other members of the Dublin corporation. After listening to the deputation Mr. Morley said that he would inform his colleagues of the views of the corporation, but added that though he personally had every desire to make concessions, the current of popular sentiment in Ireland recognized that the imprisoned men had no claim to any special clemency. The Scotland Yard officials added that the physical force party are in active communication with their sympathizers in the United States. The officials are receiving reports concerning the operations of the party in America from Pinkerton's detective agency. The Eastern War.

LONDON, Nov. 4.-The Foreign Office has notified the Japanese Government that it must assume the responsibility for the sinking of the British steamer Kow Shing.

Metropolitan Palladius, assisted by the orthodox Greek clergy of the capital, conducted an impressive service today at St. Isaac's Cathedral in memory of Alexander III. The women were in white. Outside the reserved sections thousands were admitted freely, rich and poor, titled and untitled. Huge chandeliers lighted the nave, but only flickering candles shone from the side walls. and the marble pillars and gold ornaments were left in heavy relief. The service was painfully impressive. to the Czar's death, and several preached from the text, "Blessed are the peace makers."

The London Daily News has this dispatch from Livadia: Princess Alix, the Governor and the Mayor received the Prince and Princess of Wales upon their arrival today. The departure of the family with the body will probably take place on the 8th. The post mortem examination and embalming were performed today, and the body now lies in state in the imperial chapel.

Preparing for the Storm. LONDON, Nov. 4 .- Lord Salisbury's shirking of the task of formulating a scheme for the reform of the House of Lords, while admitting that a reconstruction of that body is advisable, is a theme of general regret on the part of the Conservative press. The explanation of the ex-Premier's reticence in Unionist circles is that his addresses, being made only 48 hours after that of Lord Rosebery, he did not have time to consult with his colleagues as to an alternative programme. Rt. Hon. Arthur J. Balfour has promised to address the Conservatives of Newcastle on Nov. 13 if his health will permit. The unanimity of the demand of the party that they be given some idea of their leaders policy with regard to the House of Lords is so complete and so well grounded that Mr. Balfour must be more explicit than was Lord Salisbury, or leave the country convinced that the Conservatives are prepared to fight to the end for all the privileges of the Peers. Among the Unionists several propositions are being debated, including one for the appointment of a select committee of the House of Lords to consider what changes can be made that would promote the efficiency of the Upper House. proposed by Lord Rosebery in 1888, but it was at the time rejected. In the present critical situation such action might serve project of Lord Dunraven for the restriction of the number of executive peers to 180, chosen by their order in a similar manrepresentative peers, with the bulk of the House composed of life peers has been revived and meets with considerable favor among the Unionists.

One thing is certain, and that is whatever plan the Conservative leaders decide on must be quickly put into operation. vail on Lord Salisbury to agree to some reform of the Government the coming general elections will sweep the Unionists out cf Parliament. Since Lord Rosebery's speech in Bradford all the political parties recognize the fact that the question of reform of the House of Lords dwarfs all others now before the country.

The McCarthyites, though chagrined at the prospect of the prolonged struggle over the House of Lords question postponing all consideration of home rule, generally acthe surest road by which to reach their goal. The clamor of the Redmondites that home rule must remain in front of all other issues is not supported by a single practical suggestion as to how this is to enable Ireland to attain the main object of the Nationalists. Mr. John Dillon, speaking at Mullinahone voiced the opinion of a majority of the Irish party when he said: "We would be madmen and traitors to the cause if we refused to give all the assistance in our power to help the Radicals of England break the power of the House of Lords, which throughout generations has been the bitterest enemy of the Irish people." The coming conference of the leaders of the McCarthyite faction of the Irish Parliamentary party will doubtless decide to support the Government, provided a resolution be submitted to the House of Commons sufficiently drastic in its opposition to the Upper House.

A DISGRACEFUL FIGHT

At a Football Match Between Yale and the Y. M. C. A.

NEW YORK, Nov. 6 .- A Sun special from Bridgeport, Conn., says the football game between the Y. M. C. A. eleven, of this city, and Yale "'92" at Seaside Park Saturday afternoon, ended in a most disgraceful fight between the players of the two teams and a portion of the 3,000 spectators. When only two minutes was left of playing time in the second half and neither side had scored, Wheeler, of the Y.M.C.A. went through the Yale line. Trowbridge of Yale, hit him in the face, knocking him to the ground. While on the ground Wheeler was kicked in the face several times. In a moment a fierce fight was in progress between the players. Many of the spectators crowded into the field and joined in. The police were powerless to stop the fight, and it was only when Howard Knept, Yale's famous player of years ago, and a few others who were on the field went into the thickest of the fight and took a hand, that order was restored. Several of the players on both sides were badly

St. James' Church Adopts the Individual Communion Cup.

Local Orangemen Attend Divine Service at Christ Church.

Rev. J. H. Moorehouse's Advice-Hunter and Crossley in Albany-Interesting Church Notes.

THE INDIVIDUAL COMMUNION CUP. The first church in Canada to adopt the 'individual" communion cup is St. James' Presbyterian Church, London. The cups are very small and are passed to communicants on trays that hold 30 cups each. The entire set was presented to Rev. M. P. Talling by a lady who favors the change. ORANGEMEN PARADE.

The stirring music of the fife and the beat of the drum were heard on Sunday afternoon when the Orangemen of London marched to divine service in Christ Church. The brethren assembled in the Orange Hall, corner of Dundas and Richmond streets and at three o'clock fell in line in the following order: Ahoghill Fife and Drum Band; Hackett L. O. L., No. 805, R. D. A. Hillier, master; Boyne, L. O. L., No. 298; Maurice Baldwin, master; Benefit L. O. L., No. 762, J. Holmes, master; Black Preceptory, No. 346, Wm. Fox, preceptor; Ahognill L.O.L., No. 230; Loyal True Blues, No. 11, C. Fitzwalters, master. The turnout was about 200 strong. The route taken was Dundas to Wellington street, and thence south to the church, and during the entire march the band struck up tamiliar lively airs. Rev. J. H. Moorehouse, the new rector of Christ Church, occupied the pulpit, and chose as the subject of his sermon I. Thessalonians, v., 21. From this text Mr. Moorehouse preached a sermon appropriate to the occasion. Among other things he disclaimed an intention of encouraging animosity to any religious body, and suggested that Orangemen should have the strongest sympathy for the Roman Catholic section of the community. While they, as well as every section, should maintain the principles in which they believed, bitterness of spirit was always to be condemned. Charity and love should be the predominating principles of everyone. The ollection was in aid of the Protestant Orphans' Home. THE MEN'S MASS MEETING. As usual a very large number of men turned out yesterday to the Y. M. C. A. mass meeting at 4:15 in the Grand Opera House. The music was excellent, Mr. W. L. Blakie favoring the audience with two solos, in addition to the selections rendered by the orchestra. The speaker, Mr. H. M. Ciarke, Michigan state secretary, Y. M. C. A., took for the subject of his remarks, the caption of "Backbone," the story of Daniel, and also the 11th chapter of Hebrews. Moral courage, he said, was an element of all true greatness. Some eximples of men of courage were Daniel, Moses, Peter, John, Savonarola, Luther and Lincoln. God had need of such men today. Rev. Anna Shaw will address the surdity of the clamor raised by meeting next Sunday.

HUNTER AND CROSSLEY IN ALBANY, are becoming so interesting that people are going an hour before time for the services to begin in order to get a good seat. This church, though one of the largest in the city, if the attendance grows as rapidly in two, will be far too small to hold all who wish to hear the evangelists, Hunter and Crossley. Messrs. Hunter and Crossley conduct their meetings in an entirely original way. Mr. Hunter seems to be the leader, and it would be hard to find a man better fitted for such work. The meetings never drag. There are no long, wearisome prayers or exhortations. Sometimes the solemn hush that comes over the audience is almost oppressive. At times one can almost hear the breathing of those near by. The outlook for a great revival is most encouraging.

NOTES. Miss Tillie Barnard, for some years alto soloist of the Queen's Avenue Methodist Church choir, has resigned, and Miss Bertie

Land has accepted the position. The new Baptist Mission Church, which is being erected on Hill street, near the Port Stanley Railway crossing, is progressing rapidly. It is expected the outside work will be completed in a couple of days. The call to Rev. Wm. Cooper, of Knox College, from Springfield and Aylmer will be presented at a meeting of the London

Presbytery in London on Nov. 13. Mr. Ezekiel Taminosian, the clever native Syrian (from Antioch), who has been spending some time in this city, spoke very acceptably at the London West Methodist Church Sunday morning and at the Colborne Street Church in the evening. Mr. Taminosian, who is highly educated, speaks the English language fluently, and the information he gives regarding the country that figures so prominently in

Bible history is of more than ordinary interest. The singing of Miss Maud Fowler was much admired Sunday evening. She is a credit to Mr. Fetherston, and the Queen's Avenue Methodist choir may well be proud of her as a soloist. The children of Dundas Street Center VETERINARY SURGEONS, Advertisements under this head a cent a word

Methodist Church Sunday school are being actively trained for an entertainment which will be given on the evening cf Thanksgiving Day. Rev. J. W. Annis, city, will preach the anniversary sermons of Park Street Methodist Church, Chatham, on Dec. 9. Mr. H. N. Clarke, of Detroit, preached Sunday evening in the Talbot Street Baptist Church.

Mr. Fred L. Hardey has again taken the position as leader and organist in the choir of the Centennial Methodist Church. His efforts on Sunday were very satisfactory.

Ezekiel Taminosian, the Syrian, addressed the children of the King Street Presbyterian school on Sunday afternoon. Mr. Taminosian has a pleasant menner in speaking to the little ones.

The morning and evening services in St. Andrew's Church Sunday were conducted by the Rev. J. G. Stuart, B.A., of St. Mark's Church, Toronto. Large congregations attended both. The reverend gentleman preached in the morning from the text: "Repent ye, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand," Matthew, iii., 2, and in the evening from the invitation, "Ho, every one that thirsteth, come, ye, to the waters, and he that hath no money, come ye, buy and eat; yea, come, buy wine and milk without money and without price," Isa., v., 11. Both discourses were exceedingly interesting and instructive. Next Sunday the pulpit will be occupied by Rev. Dr. Mungo Fraser, Hamilton.

Feeling reference was made at Knox Church, South London, Sunday morning to the death of Elder Alex. Gauld, who had been an office-bearer of the congregation since its institution. The "Dead March" was played by Prof. Greene and the choir joined in an appropriate hymn.

Army and navy veterans in Toronto attended St. Margaret's Church in a body on Sunday. Prof. Clark preached. After the service Sir Oliver Mowat, Prof. Clark and the reverend gentlemen connected with the church shook hands with all of the old soldiers and congratulated them on their good appearance.

Close of the Registration on Saturday Evening.

Large Gains for the Supporters of Mr. Hobbs.

Registration Has Proved a Bonanza

for Them.

The first registration in London under the act recently passed by the Ontario Legislature, necessitated by the holding of the bye-election on the 20th of this mouth, closed on Saturday. The registration was continued for four days and proved an eminent success. Hundreds of men by this arrangement will be able to vote at the election two weeks from to-mortow who without registration would have been nuable to go to the polls. This shows the wisdom and fairness of the law and the abthe opponents of Mr. Hobbs against registration. In all 2,505 persons regis-Albany Journal: The union revival tered. Careful oversight of the registration meetings at the First Methodist Church | in every ward leads to the conclusion that the supporters of Mr. Hobbs have made enormous gains. Of the 2,505 persons who registered it is claimed that at least 1,400 will support the candidate of the Government which was victorious in June last. the next two evenings as it has in the past | At the general election Mr. Hobbs friends discovered two obstacles to success that do nct operate against him in this election. At least 200 persons in this city then expressed their intention to support Mr. Meredith on purely personal grounds, or because he was the leader of the Opposition, and in the event of the defeat of of the Province. Those citizens now see no reason why they should not support Sir power for another four years. The former situation of affairs has been changed by the resignation of Mr. Meredith and his withdrawal from public life. The other disadvantage which operated against Mr. Hobbs in June last and is now remedied by the registration was the incomplete character of the voters' lists. It was found that many young men and newcomers in the city were unable to vote because their names were not on the lists under which the election took place. But with the complete list now provided and the enormous gains of the friends of Mr. Hobbs in the registration which closed on Saturday night his election seems to be assured beyond a doubt, if his friends are not over-confident. All that is needed now is that a full vote be polled on the 20th inst., and watci fulness that none of the exintending to vote for Mr. Hobbs are permitted on the 20th of November. THE REGISTRATION. during the four days in each of the six as well as a native could have done, and wards: No. 1 ward..... No. 3 ward..... No. 4 ward..... No. 5 ward..... No. 6 ward..... 227

A few minutes before 10 o'clock it was discovered by his friends that Mr. A. A con- Lippincott's. veyance was immediately procured. Picked Up $500. TORONTO, Nov. 4. - Archie Kerrigan, western traveler for Porter & Co., Montreal, picked up a purse containing nearly $500 on Front street, opposite the city hall yesterday morning. Mr. Kerrigan promptly made inquiries for the loser, finally discovering the owner, who warmly thanked Mr. Kerrigan for restoring her lost treasure. The lady, who declined to give her name, had driven down to St. Lawrence market in an open carriage, had evidently pulled her purse out of her pocket along with her handkerchief, and it had dropped into the roadway unnoticed by her.

179 DUNDAS STREET. AN EYE SEARCH LIGHT.

A REMARKABLE INVENTION NOW IN USE IN EYE HOSPITALS.

The Ophthalmometer Throws a Beam of Electric Light Into the Eye and Locates the Trouble-The Doctor Peeps Through a Telescope.

One of the most remarkable inventions which has lately come into practical use in the hospitals of the Dominion is the ophthalmometer. It is used for examining the eye when it is in a state of disease, and it illustrates how accurately modern science has come to deal with the ailments to which the flesh is apt to fall heir. The invention of this new instrument was found to be a necessity. It is an acknowledged fact among specialists in diseases of the eye that poor eyesight is on an alarming increase in Canada, especially among children. The number of school-children who wear eye-glasses continually in the cities is double or treble what it was several years ago. The very large increase of work which this has occasioned for the doctors in the eye hospitals rendered it extremely difficult for them to carry on their examinations as they had heretofore done.

The old method of examining the eve was to station the patient at some distance from a chart on which were printed letters of various sizes. If the person under examination was perfectly clear-minded, a more or less accurate result was obtained; but in the case of a child or a person dull of comprehension the result was not generally so good. The ophthalmometer does away with all this uncertainty, and by its use the veriest tyro fresh from the medical college can

THE OPHTHALMOMETER. the invention of Profs. Javal and Schiotz,

It is a combination of a telescope and a large painted disk, on which is projected an intense electric light. In front of the disk is a small wooden mask-like frame in which the patient places his face. On the disk are a series of divisions. The doctor looks through the telescope at the patient's eye. The effect of the intense light is to cause the numbers and show out clearly on the cornea or rear wall of the patient's eye. Connected with the disk is a sliding arrangement by means of which any desired point on the disk may be located, so that in a case of astigmatism. for instance, it is only necessary for the physician, after locating the source of the trouble, to make a record of its exact location on the disk. Since the reflection on the eye corresponds exactly with the disk itself, he has no trouble in doing so.

Of course, the different markings are meant to show the different degrees of affliction, and after the record is made it Sir Oliver, would be the Prime Minister is the easiest thing in the world for the doctor to prescribe the proper pair of glasses to be worn. And the best part of Oliver Mowat, who has been returned to it all is that this point is established beyond a doubt People need have no fear hereafter of making a mistake in the selection of their eveglasses, for that selection is made according to an absolute rule. and not, as in the old method, according to their sensations merely. Having the eyes examined by electricity, which is really what it amounts to by this method, is as yet something of a novelty, even among physicians. Some years ago the celebrated Dr. Helmholz devised an instrument much after the fashion of this one, but it was too complicated to be of Russian Hotel Rates.

The next time I had occasion to hire quarters in a hotel for a sojourn of any length I resorted to stratagem by way of giving myself an object lesson. I looked pedients adopted to spirit away electors at the rooms, haggled them down, on principle, to what seemed to me really the very lowest notch of price. I was utterly worn out by the time this was accomplished. I The following is the total registration even flattered myself that I had done nearly was satisfied. But I sternly carried out my experiment. I did not close the bar-experienced hand. Result: She secured 44! the best accommodations in the house for less than half the rate at which I had been so proud of obtaining inferior quarters. When we moved in, the landlord was surprised, but he grasped the point of the transaction, and seemed to regard it as a pleasant jest against him, and to respect us the more for having outwitted him. The Princess apologized for having made such bad terms for us-and meant it. I suspect that that was a very fair sample of the comparative terms obtained by natives and outsiders in all bargains. It is one of those things at which one smiles or fumes, according to the force of the instinct for justice with which he has been blessed-or cursed-by nature. Nothing, unless it be a healthy, athletic conscience, is so wofully destructive to all sense of justice.—Isabel F. Hapgood, in which the great lava lake in Kilauca has undergone this year appears in the Hawaiian Gazette. The lava steadily rose after the last great break-down of the floor of the crater in March, 1891, when an area of 2,500 feet long by 2,000 feet wide fell more than 500 feet in one night. Toward the and of last year the rising and over-flowing of the lake filled the pit thus produced. Since that time the activity of the lake has been intense, as many as twenty-three over-flows of liquid lava having taken place in a single day, and the walls surrounding the lake have been rapidly raised by continued overflows.

FASHIONABLE KISSES. The Old Time "Smack" Is Quite Out-of Date.

Kissing may be out of fashion in America, but it was never more popular in Paris than it is this dreary, chilly autumn. Bicycle girls wheel up to the curbstone, kiss, gable, kiss and roll off. Ladies kiss one another in the Champs Elysees, in the shops, in the tea rooms, in the flower markets, on the church porch, and before and after every social gathering. At the bathing establishments, where mothers and daughters go every Thursday, after school, to get steamed and scrubbed and pared and polished by the pedicures and manicures, one sees more kissing than soap. There is sweet caressing in every postal and telegraph station in fashion-able Paris, and at the "afternoons" where the grande dames play at intellectual pursuits the touching violet powdered cheeks causes delay that would be aggravating to the business-like blue. stockings of Sorosis. Kissing in French society is nearer and more attractive from a sanitary point of contact than among the Americans. Lips never meet. That would be too terrible. Even a mother does not kiss her baby's mouth. The caress is bestowed upon the delicate cheek and always nearer the ear than the chin. It used to he the practice for a woman to kiss her friend's or her daughter's cheek and then turn her own for the reciprocal caress. Now the mouth has no part in the salutation. It is all cheek, first the right and then the left. If the caress lacks sentiment, the exquisite thrill and all that sort of thing, it has the advantage of being "not dangerous," and with Dr. Roux's "croup cure" and the Figaro fund of 276,000 francs for its promotion on the tapis, this is im-

Got a Good Meal. New York, Nov. 4.-Two Siberian bloodhounds owned at Babylon, L. I., by Mrs. Sarah Wagstaff, mother of Col. Alfred Wagstaff, on Saturday tore two registered cows to pieces, sucked their blood and ate a part of their flesh. The cows were grazing in a field when attacked. The dogs were out walking with Helen R. Wagstaff, a granddaughter of the owner of the dogs. When they saw the cows they became unmanageable and rushed on them. They caught them by the throats and soon killed them. They could not be driven away until they had satisfied themselves. Miss Wagstaff tried to call them off, but they paid no attention to her. Others were afraid to venture near them. The dogs have been a terror to the neighborhood. They have frequently attacked people, but never did any serious harm before.

QUEBEC, Nov. 5 .- Local physicians are much gratified over the letter of Dr. A. G. McCormick, of Richmond, this Province, testifying to his cure of Bright's Disease by the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills. Since the introduction of the remedy in this city many physicians have not hesitated to prescribe the pills, and numerous cures have been the result. NOURISHMENT.

This Word Embraces More Than Ordinary Specifics.

Neurishment is the Corner Stone of Health-What Food is Intended to Do to Get Well.

The ordinary specific or secret nostrum affords only temporary relief. For instance, you may buy some ordinary specific to cure a cold and find temporary relief in the stimulant or tonic contained in the mixture, but the remedy does nothing to cure the weakness that allowed you to take cold. Consequently when you are subject to another attack you will succumb in the same way with more serious results.

This is what leads to consumption. The same illustration applies to hundreds of other complaints. If you are poorly nourished you will lose flesh, take cold easily, and gradually grow weaker until your health is seriously impaired. Nourishment means everything to health. Food is designed to nourish the body, over-come wasting and give to every part of the calfe, and Charles of Kerwood; Mrs. G. wonderful human machinery the right substance to keep it in working order. But we all know food frequently falls short of the mark. It may be that the digestive organs are out of order. There may be some in-creased demand upon nourishment made by some unnatural condition. The most learned physician is frequently puzzed to know the cause of a decline in health, but one of the first things he thinks of is to prescribe a nourishment that will counteract the wasting or other unnatural condition.

In all cases of wasting Scott's Emulsion is the most effective cure. It has many uses, because it is both concentrated food and medicine, but the word "wasting" signifies much that Scott's Emulsion is especially designed to overcome

All of the stages of decline of health even to the early stages of Consumption, are cured by Scott's Emulsion. Loss of flesh and strength are speedily overcome and as a cure for all affections of throat and lungs, like Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Weak Lungs and Bronchitis, Scott's Emulsion has no equal. Babies and children find in Scott's Emulsion the vital elements of food that make scund bones and healthy flesh. Rickets, marasmus, and all wasting tendencies in children are cured also. Babies and children thrive on Scott's Emulsion when all the rest of their food seems to go to waste. Scott's Emulsion is not a secret mixture. All of its elements can be traced by the chemist. It contains no worthless or harmful drugs. It has been prescribed by physicians for twenty years and has a clean record back of it.

Before Holden had an opportunity of writing to his wife after his capture he was taken ill with wife after his capture he was taken ill with a slow malarial fever. When captured. Holden had become separated from his company and his comrades thought he had SWEET CHOCOLATE been killed.

Mrs. Holden's first notice of the supposed death of her husband was contained in some resolutions passed by his company, a copy of which was forwarded to the family. Without making any investigation, Mrs. Holden mourned her husband as dead, while he was lingering between life and death in a northern prison. It was many months before he fully recovered from the effects of the terrible fever. Holden was not released until after the close of the war, and weak from his long illness, and penniless, he started to make his way to the little home in Georgia. He was compelled to seek employment severa! times to earn money to continue his journey, and it was late in the autumn of 1865 when Holden came in sight of his little home. He was a wreck of his former self, and tully realized that it would be difficult for his own wife to recognize him. Arriving at the home he had left more than two years before, Holden found it occupied by strangers. Without disclosing his identity he asked where Mrs. Holden was.

"Oh, she married Chris Jones and moved away last spring," was the answer received. Holden was prostrated by the shock of this startling intelligence, but, without giving his name he turned and walked slowly away from the little home where the happiest hours of his life had been passed. He made no effort to find his wife, but continued his journey to Clay county, Ala.

Holden worked a while as a farm laborer and finally saved enough money to purchase a small farm of his own. In time the old love was forgotten, and he married again.

Holden prospered, and ter a few years owned one of the best farms in the county. Several children were born and it was not long until his first marriage appeared like a dream. About four vears ago Mrs. Holden No. 2 died leaving five children. About a year after the death of his wife Mr. Holden sold a portion of his farm to a man named Jones from Georgia. Mr. Jones built a house and moved his family to Alabama. Soon the two became good friends, but Mr. Holden had never been to the house of his neighbor and had never seen his wife.

Less than a year ago Mr. Jones died, His neighbor, Mr. Holden, of course attended the funeral, and caused no little excitement by going off in a dead faint when introduced to the weeping widow of the dead man. That was not the time or place for explanations, and the next day after the funeral Mr. Holden called on his wife, and this time the recognition was mutual.

Mrs. Jones' period of mourning will expire in a few days, and then she will be quietly married again to the husband of her youth. She is still a beautiful woman, and has three children living, and Mr. Holden has five. Only a few of their most intimate friends know the secret of their former marriage.

The Manitoba Government will not introduce any prohibitory legislation with reference to liquor selling until the Supreme Court has decided the constitutional question. What would be the use? asks the Ottawa Free Press. No practical use whatsoever, and a great deal of harm might be done. While the question was before the Legislature, Mr. Marter attempted to have a law placed upon the statute book, calling for the abolition of the retail liquor traffic, but permitting the brewers, distillers, and wholesalers to continue the traffic. The best friends of temperance were, however, opposed to this attempted legislation chiefly on the ground that the right of the Province to so legislate was in question, and so long as that was the case it would be princess. folly to pass a law that would be taken to the courts, thus causing loss of time and money to all parties concerned, and demoralization all round. Sir Oliver Mowat and his supporters were thus warranted in voting down the proposition, and in first providing that the rights of the Province to pass prohibitory legislation should be fully established before further steps were taken to carry out the popular Marter jumped at, without absolute certainty, and the result has been disastrous to public interests, while causing much unattempted to pass local option laws under sponsibilities. The newspaper literature of the past two days in London, Paris, Berlin, Vienna and St. Petersburg adds absolutely nothing definite to the general knowledge or lack BE SURE YOU ARE RIGHT BEFORE of knowledge of the character of the autocrat of all the Russias who has just come into power. I have the statement from the lips of one of the greatest financial magnates of the world that his efforts to acquire this knowledge have been virtually truitless. His deduction is that the young and absolute potentate is of such unformed character that his future will be determined as one outside influence or another prevails

Stead Comes to the Front. W. T. Stead could not hide himself during a social purity crusade in the British metropolis. He held two meetings at Queen's Hall last Sunday to help unite all good citizens in "a federation whose object shall be to use all existing agencies for the purpose of making London in all its streets and alleys a place where we need not be America for a long time, perhaps for all ashamed to lodge the least of Christ's time. brethren." Apples Shipped to England.

The arrivals of apples in England during last week reached a total of 120,000 barrels, of which number 40,000 barrels came to London. All sold readily. Canadian consignments varied largely in price, owing to the condition of the fruit, some of the steamers carrying the shipments landing them in better shape than others. Prices ruled as follows: New York and Boston New Town pippins, 20s to 40s per barrel; Baldwins, 13s to 15s; greenings, 12s to 14s; between organized labor and the Patrons of Industry. Kill Cats for Their Skins. A middle-aged woman is prosecuting a novel mission in West London. Equipped with a large tin, she calls at dwellinghouses and asks after the welfare of the cats. If there be any whose lives are a burden to themselves or whom the mistress desires to dispose of, she requests an interview with the tabby, puts it under the tin and sits upon the tin until the animal is suffocated. Inside the tin there is a sponge saturated with laudanum to ease the last moments of her prey. The woman preaches a little sermon on Christian kindness and then takes her corpse and departs. Certain curious householders followed her to a furrier's establishment the other day and were indignant when they learned that she was selling the cat-

In Birmingham there are some thousands of houses utterly unfit for habitation. An elderly spinster recently converted one of the shanties into a barnyard. She put into one room 28 fowls, 9 ducks, 2 geese, 3 rabbits, 2 dogs and a parrot and started on a neighborhood. During her spree 8 fowls, 3 ducks and 1 rabbit died, and the magistrates fined her $25 for leaving them without any visible means of sustenance.

A good ghost story is being told at the expense of a prominent dignitary of the Church of England. Along with a brother parson he was entertained at an ancient vicarage church in the north. They were both shown to the same bedroom, which was supposed to be haunted. In the middle of the night strange noises were heard in the room. One of the parsons awoke, lighted a candle and searched the room, The noise continued, but, although he shivered a little, he mustered courage and says: "We want a Mowat just now at returned to bed and went to sleep. When Mr. Bent visited the Hadramut Valley in Southern Arabia a year ago he entered it almost at the western extremity. In other words they were up for indulging in belated Hallowe'en pranks. The magistrate lectured them roundly, and they both promised never to be naughty again. Master Bissett said that he was not allowed out at night any more and there would be no more misbehavior. The magistrate suspended sentence on his case and discharged Watts. The Instructions of Mrs. Hart as to Her Funeral.

Names of the Pall-bearers-Named Her Tembstone Inscription.

The late Mrs. Mary Anne Hart, whose death on Saturday at Mrs. Morgan's residence, No. 18 Bathurst street, has been already alluded to in the ADVERTISER, was well known in every section of London. Her many friends knew her to be at once charitable and eccentric. One thing Mrs. Hart never sought, and that was notoriety. She was an ever active friend of the various charitable institutions in the city, but her many donations were always labeled "From a Friend."

She made her will about fifteen years ago, at which time she taught a large class of boys in St. James' Sunday school, South London. In the document Mrs. Hart named the pallbearers who should act at her funeral. They were members of Victoria incident." The pluckiest thing he her Sunday school class, and great favorites with their teacher. Their names are Albert E. White, Joseph Grimshaw, William Hart, Cecil Howell, try, which at the time was swarming with Willie Janes and Johnny Janes. As time rolled on, however, the boys grew to manhood, and now only three are in the city. Joseph Grimshaw is studying in Woodstock College; Willie Janes met a sudden death in a railway accident, the whereabouts of Johnny Janes is unknown, thus leaving A. E. White, Wm. Hart and Cecil Howell the only ones remaining in the

Mrs. Hart left many instructions in her will regarding the funeral. She ordered that the lid of her coffin be closed as soon as her body was prepared for burial, and also that the service at the house consist only of a short prayer. The cortege was then to proceed to St. James' Church, where the English burial service was to be performed by Rev. Canon Davis, now archdeacon. Mrs. Hart also ordered that she be buried as soon after her death as possible, and that a very small stone be placed at the head of her grave. The inscription to be placed on the stone was also given. Deceased had no relatives in Canada, her husband and daughter having died in Chatham.

The funeral took place this afternoon, Rev. Canon Davis officiating. Her instructions were carried out as nearly as possible.

The Democratic managers declare themselves satisfied that Hill will be elected. Claims of a 10,000 to 20,000 plurality are made. The Democrats say they will hold their present number of representatives in Congress and gain the one in New York City, which was carried by Lemuel E. Quigg, Republican, last year. The Republicans claim they will gain three in this answer. city, three in Brooklyn and five up the state. The Republicans also expect to elect a Republican Legislature and to carry the constitutional amendments framed by the constitutional convention. In this city Tammany Hall has one of the hottest fights in its long history on its hands. The revelations of the Lexow investigating committee have been used by the Republicans, the committee of 70, and all the other anti-Tammany organizations to down the local machine. Col. W. L. Strong, the anti-Tammany nominee, has had the support of the ministers, the press, with only two or three exceptions, and the reformers.

Ex-Mayor Grant, the Tammany champion, says he is confident of winning by from 10,000 to 20,000, but the betting is in favor of Strong at odds.

Inkerman Remembered.

TORONTO, Nov. 4.- The army and navy veterans attended service at St. Margaret's Church this afternoon in commemoration of the 40th anniversary of the Battle of Inkerman. There were seven veterans of Inkerman present. The pulpit was draped with the Union Jack. Sir Oliver Mowat was among the audience. Prof. Stark doctor named Nuttall, formerly a professor at the Johns Hopkins University, at Baltimore, who for the last two years has been studying in this city, has advanced a claim to being the real discoverer of the diphtheria serum of which Dr. Behring is considered to be the discoverer. Dr. Nuttall asserts that he discovered the curative properties of the serum while studying in Dr. Behring's laboratory, and he asserts that in his graduating thesis at the university, before Dr. Benring made public his statements, he gave clearly and succintly the same facts that Dr. Behring subsequently gave to the medical congress at Buda-Pest in fuller form.

Broke the Barriers. LONDON, Nov. 4 .- The Empire Music Hall, which was closed after the London County Council refused to grant a license for its bars unless the promenade at the back of the auditorium, which it was claimed was a resort for immoral women, was closed, reopened Saturday night. The bar in the auditorium were closed and barriers had been erected in front of them by order of the county council. A large crowd was present, and the sight of the barriers caused great indignation among certain of the spectators. A crowd attacked the barriers which were soon torn down and broken into bits. Amid the uproar there could be heard cries and yells of "Down with Ormiston Chant," "Long live the Empire." Lady Ormiston Chant was the leader of the crusade against the establishment.

BERLIN, Nov. 4 .- The anxiety which prevailed here during the last stages of the illness of the Czar of Russia has been succeeded by a feeling of satisfaction at the tenor of the new Czar's proclamation. The terms in which this first official utterance of Nicholas II. were couched have produced the best impression. This is especially the case in regard to the assurance of the young Emperor that he would endeavor to promote the pacific development of the country he has been called upon to rule. The firm, almost buoyant tone, with which the Bourse, always sensitive to the least piece of unfavorable political news from Russia, received the announcement of the death of the Czar and the subsequent proclamation and accession of the new Czar, reflect the general feeling of security with which the German financial and commercial world regards the political outlook. The fact that the Czar personally telegraphed to Emperor William the news of his father's death has dispelled any doubts regarding the friendly personal re- | ship canal. The bills for the celebration. lations of the heads of the two great em- amounting to $50,000, are being now inpires. This is especially the case when vestigated. ST. JOHN, N. B., Nov. 4. - A heavy wind and rain storm, which raged in this section Saturday, caused a large sign on a fourstory building to be blown down. It broke the telephone and trolley wires, and while a livery rig was being driven through the street later on the live wire touched the horse and killed it instantly. It also touched the driver, but his life was saved by a rubber coat which he was wearing, and he escaped uninjured.

AT FORBACH, in Alsace-Lorraine, a portable Gallo-Roman sun dial was recently dug up. The mechanism consists of a flattened tube suspended by a small chain, with a conical opening to face the sun. Fastened to the bottom of this opening a movable hand or needle, which could be abjusted according to the season to correspond with the inclination of the solar rays. The instrument also marked the latitude. THE Manchester Canal is still far from being a financial or commercial success. Its earnings in September were only $29,315, a trifle more than in August, although the tonnage increased from 85,302 to 90,243 tons. Rates on "merchandise in seagoing vessels" dropped 171 per cent. At present figures the canal would have to carry over 4,000,000 tons a year to acquire sufficient revenue to meet debenture interest alone. SEVERAL interesting articles and geological formations have been found during work in the tunnel under the Thames from Greenwich to Blackwell. At a depth of 70 feet below the surface is a stratum of rocks composed entirely of sea shells and chalk. The presence of oyster shells at the same depth shows that the bed of the river was once 70 feet below its present level. On the south side, about 130 yards from the river, a few lignites and iron pyrites were found at the bottom of the clay strata. Elephants' tusks and human and animal bones have also been among the "finds." LAST May Queen Victoria visited Manchester for three hours to open the new The auditor reported that it looked as though something else had been opened besides the canal.

At Tel-loh, lately, after M. Sarzac, the French agent left, the Arabs employed by him came upon a large chamber filled with inscribed clay tablets, most of which they sold to Armenian, Syrian, and Jewish brokers, who succeeded in getting a part of the collection to London and Paris. The remainder was seized by the authorities at UHICAGO, Nov. 3.

A little boom in wheat took place today which, although showing no very great advance in prices, was held to be an evidence of changing sentiment and the beginning of the long looked for rally. Corn acted independently of wheat. Weakness was the tone all day, receiving emphasis from a prospective heavy movement next week, the large estimate for Monday being taken as a precursor.

in New York was exceptionally briliant.

"A young American pianiste, Miss Marie Louise Bailey, who has been studying with Leschetitzky, selected the difficult D minor Rubinstein concerto for her debut. It was a dangerous experiment, for we have heard all the great pianistes of the day interpret this composition, and a comparison became inevitable, and might have been expected by Miss Bailey when she made this selection. Although young and comparatively fresh from her studies, she acquitted herself with great credit, showing in the concerto that she had imagination, tone, touch, and an enormously developed technique, particularly in the last movement, which was taken at a pace that verged on the dangerous. But Miss Bailey acquitted herself with satisfaction to the public, who demanded an encore. Then she played Liezt's 'Erlkonig.'" A Hospital Addition,

THE JAPS WIN AGAIN.

Chinese Thrashed and a City Captured by the Victors-Quick Work. YOKOHAMA, Nov. 5 .- A dispatch from the front show that there has been heavy fighting in the country just north of Port Arthur. It appears that Field Marshal Oyama divided his forces. While one division landed on the east coast of the peninsula north of Talien Wan, another division was detached with orders to effect a landing near Kinchow and to proceed thence and join the main body of the army. This plan was a complete success. The Japanese encountered no Chinese warships, and the transports reached Kayenko and disembarked the troops, guns, horses and munitions in safety. Hinchow, which is a walled town and which was believed to be held by large garrison, was immediately attacked. The outer defenses were carried by the Japanese after a few hour's fighting. The Chinese made little further resistance and the Japanese were soon masters of the situation. In the meantime the Japanese fleet, which had convoyed the transports, opened a heavy fire on Talien Wan and Kayenko. The firing scarcely ceased for many hours. Aided by the fleet, the troops attacked Talien Wan and carried it in brilliant fashion.

"No," said Richard North. "I am very different from you, my men. You see work at your very hand, and will not do it. You look forward to the future with, as I must expose, easy apathy, giving neither care hor anxiety as to how you and your families are to live. I, on the contrary, am only anxious to work; at a reduced rate of profit, on a smaller scale if it must be; but, any way, to work. Night after night I lie awake, tormented with lively apprehen-sions for the future. What seemed, when you first turned out, to be a more temporary stoppage, that reason and good sense on both our sides could not fail to rectify, has assumed sigantic proportions and a per-manent aspect. After some time I gave way; offering to spit the difference, as to

"I could not do either," said Richard North firmly. "I offered all I was able. That is a thing of the past; let it go. I shall go over to Belgium and see if I cannot engage Belgian workmen to come here and take your

"Allow me to tell you, Thoms, to tell you all, that the Belgians will not ask your leave to come," spoke Richard, raising his head to its full height. "Would you act the part of dogs-in-the-manger? What are the honest Englishmen about to give them the opportunity?" retorted Richard. "Listen, my men," he continued, as he leaned forward and raised his hand impressively. "If you (I speak collectively) refuse to work, it can practically matter very little to you whether the work goes to Belgium or elsewhere to be done, or whether strangers come and do it here. It must end in one or the other."

"It shan't never end in them frogs o fereigners coming here," spoke Thoms again, vexed that his voice should have been recognized by Richard North. And this second interruption was hissed down by his more sensible comrades; who sharply hade him hold his tongue, and hear the master. Richard put up his hand again.

"We will take it, for the moment's argument, at what Thoms says—that strangers would not, or should not come here. In that case the other result must happen-the work of the country would pass away from it. It has already begun to pass; you know it, my men; and so do your rulers the Trades' Unions. How it affects their nerves don't pretend to say; but, when once the tides of desolation has fairly set in as a settled result, there will not be much need of hurts, disorders of the bowels, and affectheir agitation. As truly as that I live, and tions of the throat, to which the young are now stand here speaking to you, I believe this will come. In different parts of the country whole places are being dismantled the work has left it. Do you suppose North Inlet is the only spot where the provision shops may as well be closed because the men have no longer money to spend in them? Any newspaper you take up will tell you the contrary. Read about the ship-building in the East of London; how it has gone away, and the whole colonies of men are left behind starving. Gone to Scotland; men can be found to work. It is the same with other trades. Whose fault is this?

Why, the men's own."

Murmurs. "No. No."

"No! Why, here's a present illustration of it. Whose fault is this that my works are shut up, and you are living in rdleness -or, we'll say starving in idleness, if you like the word better? If I am unable to take this contract now offered, and it goes elsewhere, whose doings will it be, but yours? little hope of relief; and now, after using Don't talk nonsense, my men. It is all very well to say that the Trades' Unions don't are cured. Although now 79 years of age allow you to take the work. "The fact is, sir that we are not our own masters," said Ketler.

"Just so. And it seems that you cannot, or will not, emancipate yourselves from your new slavery and again become your own masters. However, I did not call you together to go over this old ground, but to lay before you the option of returning to work. You have the day to consider it. At six o'clock tomorrow the call-bell will ring —"

"Twon't be of no use ringing it, sir," interrupted Ketler, some sadness in his tone.
"At six o'clock tomorrow morning the call-bell here will ring," authoritatively re-peated Richard North. "You respond to it and I shall heartily welcome you back. If you do not, my refusal must go in, and the contract will lapse from me. If we part today it is our final parting, for I shall at once take measures to secure a fresh set of workpeople. Though I gather ten together at first, and the work I undertake be insignificant in proportion, I'll get them. It will be something like beginning life again; and you will have forced it on me."

"And of all pig-headed idiotics that mortal master ever had to deal with, sure you men are the worst!"

The undignified interruption came from Mrs. Gass. Richard looked round, in great surprise; perhaps all the greater when he also saw Miss Dallory. Mrs. Gass came forward; talking volubly; her bird-of-paradise nodding time to her words. As usual she told the men some home truths; none the less for cibly because her language was homely as their own.

"Is this true?" asked Miss Dallory in a low tone, as Richard went back to shake hands with her. "Shall you really re-open the works again with another set of men? "Yes-if these do not return. It will be better, however quietly I may have to begin, than going out to seek my fortune in the world. At least, I have lately been think-

It might seem like a bad omen. "And now you have given it me. It is also mine. They are blind to infatuation." "Not so much blind, I think, as that they are-I have just said so to them-in a state of slavery from which they dare not emancipate themselves."

"And who would do se-under the specious promises of the Trades' Unions? Don't blame them too much, Mr. Richard North. If some strong body came down on you or me with all sorts of agitation and golden promises for the future, we also might believe in them."

R chard shook his head. "Not if the strong body lived by agitation, and took our hard-earned money to keep themselves and their golden promises going. Mary Dallory laughed a little. "Shall you ring that great bell in the morning?"

"Yes; certainly."
"Ah, we'l—the men will only laugh at vou. But I dare say you can stand that. Ondear! What need there is that the next world should be great and good, when this is so foolish a one!"

By this time my trouble assumed the form of dropsy. FROM MACKENZIE RIVER.

A Frenchman Arrives from the Canadian North with a Good Story.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 3 .- Count V. E. Desainville, who spent five years near the mouth of the Mackenzie River has arrived here on the steam whaler Jeannette. The Count is a Parisian, 46 years of age. He left France in 1888 and went first to Ed. monton, Canada. There he collected a two-years' supply of provisions and built a boat. When spring came, with two Indians he started to the Mackenzie territory.

"I did not intend to stay any length cf time," said the Count today, "but when I got so far north and found that so little was known of the country I decided to turn explorer. I had the best maps with me, but I found many inaccuracies in them. These I corrected as I descended the great river of the north, and my notes will make material changes in the geographies.

"I expected to find the winters in the north long, dreary and weariscme, but I was mistaken. I liked them better than the summers. There is no more ideal place for a hunter than along the north coast of North America. I found plenty to do. Deer were plentiful, and while not hunting I was studying language.

"I discovered that Esquimau Lake i merely a chain of small lakes, beginning not far from the Mackenzie River, about a northeasterly direction, and emptying into the Arctic Ocean near Cape Bathurst, One summer I explored the delta at the mouth of the Mackenzie, and I found many inaccuracies in the maps and charts. The great river itself is some distance from the place assigned to it on the maps. New islands are being formed at the mouth. When Mackenzie discovered the river, about 100 years ago, he reported clear water north of Hoiket island. Now, he would have to pass many islands north of that island to find clear water.

"The river is a tremendous stream-one of the greatest in the world. The quantity of sediment it carries down is enormous. "The thermometer at the mouth of the Mackenzie at times registers 90 degrees in the shade and the heat is oppressive. The morquitoes are unbearable in summer. They swarm in millions. When the wind is from the south they blacken the air along the coast.

"One summer was spent exploring the country west of the Mackenzie. I started out as soon as the snow left the ground with two natives and ascended the Peel River as far as its source in the Rocky Mountains. This was the wildest country I saw. I ascended some mountains over 5,000 feet above the level of the sea and found little snow on them." On this expedition little game was met with and the Count ran out of provisions. The nearest cache was 90 miles away. For two days the Count and his native companions traveled without food. When they reached the cache they saw a large grizzly bear at the foot of the tree in which they had placed their provisions. The bear had traveled up the Rocky Mountains, and must have smelled the provisions. He was trying to shake them cut of the tree. Desainville got close enough to shoot the bear before the animal knew of its danger. Count Desainville recently sent to his relatives the first letters he had had the Scientists' Discoveries in Examining the Body of Gumbo.

Boston, Mass., Nov. 3 .- An autopsy was held held yesterday upon the body of Gumbo, the gorilla, which died on Tuesday. Prof. Franklin Dexter, of the Harvard Medical School, and Prof. Councilman, formerly of Johns Hopkins University, of Baltimore, now professor of pathology at Harvard, conducted the examination. Consumption was found to have been the cause of death. The doctors decided that Gumbo was about 40 years old, and that he had had the germs of tubercular consumption of the slow variety which is a disease the Simiadae are particularly subject to in this climate.

One discovery was that of a sort of pouch or bag in the chest, in front of the lungs, and connected by means of an independent valve with the trachea, or windpipe. This is undoubtedly the organ employed by the gorillas in making their peculiar roar.

The brain weighed seventeen ounces. In its structure it bears a striking resemblance to the human brain, being somewhat broader at the base and narrower at the top, and exhibiting a far less number of convolutions. The brain will later be subjected to a variety of delicate tests and a minute microscopic scrutiny.

The doctors found a lot of minor points to interest them, and it will be a fortnight before they get through. Prof. Dexter and his assistants intend to make an exhaustive comparison between the gorilla and a human being. In life Gumbo measured 5 feet 6 inches in height, and in health weighed 168 pounds. His arms were each four feet in length and his muscles of the texture of wire rope.

ALLEGED APPLE PEST.

Mr. Bosworth, assistant freight traffic manager of the C. P. R., received the following dispatch yesterday: "British Columbia Government fruit inspector is condemning apples shipped from Ontario on account of their being infected by a larvæ of codling moth, and he is insisting that a carload of apples now there shall be destroyed by fire. Unless shippers are careful in filling orders for the British Columbia market to see that fruit is free from any infection of this nature, serious loss will result." Inquiry among the Toronto fruit dealers failed to reveal any cause for such alarm as is suggested in the dispatch. There is no prevalence of the codling moth this year, and the shipment in question they think must have been of fruit poorly handled if it was not made up of windfalls. Some of those spoken to have shipped to British Columbia and have heard no complaint as to quality. Mr. C. C. James, the Deputy Minister of Agriculture, said he had heard nothing about any unusual prevalence of the pest. There is this year, he said, a good deal of rust among the apples, but that is all. He thinks the shipment spoken of in the dispatch must have been windfalls. Speaking of the English market, Mr. James said the latest reports were very favorable for the Canadian apples, and that better prices are being obtained.

I got so weak that I could not walk, and finally took to my bed." Mrs. Weir says: "All M. "The Lost Paradise."

Those who patronized "The Lost Paradise" at the Grand Saturday were, perhaps, agreebly surprised. The play was unknown here and the company heralded by no great flourish. Both proved to be unexpectedly excellent. "The Lost Paradise" treats the modern labor problem in a rational, entertaining and skillful manner, and strikes a sympathetic chord in the heart of the auditor. Its sentiments are pure and elevating. Its dramatic construction is good, the action being lively, the situations strong and the lines clever. Some bright touches of humor relieve its sembre coloring. Mr. William Morris is a young actor of fine appearance and undoubted ability. He has a deep, rich. though somewhat inflexible, voice. Miss Gaunt, his chief supporter, is a graceful woman and an accomplished actress. The company is well balanced, and little fault can be found with any of the roles.
