the Stewart will be more thoroughly prospected this season than ever before.
Quite a number of rafts of logs are being constructed on the Stewart for transportation to Dawson.

Two carriage horses and a saddle animal,
the private property of Superintendent of Public Works Tache, were

"AMERICA"

My country, 'tis of thee, sweet land of liberty, of thee I sing;
Land where my fathers died, land of the pilgrim's pride,
From every mountain side—let freedom ring—
My native country thee, land of the noble free, thy name I love—
I love thy rocks and rills, thy woods and templed hills,
My heart with rapture thrills, like that above.

Let music swell the breeze, and ring from all the trees, sweet freedom's song;
Let mortal tongues awake, let all that breathe partake, While rocks their silence break, the song prolong.
Our father's God, to Thee, author of liberty, to Thee we sing Long may our land be bright, with freedom's holy light;
Protect us by thy might—Great God—our King.

Wall From Sitka.

Sitka, Alaska, June 17.—The long existing feud between Juneau and this city over the question of the location of the capital has broken out again with increased animosity. By reason of progressive haste, Juneau stole a march on Sitka and had the location of the United States court changed from Sitka to that city. Every effort has been made by Juneau citizens to have the capital changed and, failing in that, an appeal has been made to move the United States land office for this district to Juneau. The matter has been taken up by the land department at Washington, and while no decision has been made, it can be safely predicted that the land office will remain where it is for the present, and that when a change of location is made it will be undoubtedly to the westward rather than to the eastward.

The correspondence between headquarters and Sitka has been voluminous. On a suggestion from the main office, the local office submitted recommendations relative to the location of the land office for this district. The recommendations consist of many sheets of closely type written matter containing the opinions of representative men of Skagway, Juneau, Sitka, Valdez and other places. All except those from Juneau and Skagway including Special Agent C. C. Georgeson, of the agricultural department, and Messrs. Dudley and Apperson, of the land office, concur in recommending a point to the westward when a change is to be made.

Prof. Georgeson does not hesitate to recommend Valdez, although he says the office should stay in its present location for the time being, and adds that the mining and railroad interests at that place point to Valdez as the capital of Alaska in the not distant future.

Roll Bros., of this city, who have large interests in the country to the westward, strongly advocate that the office remain in Sitka, as this city is the natural distributing port for mails to all parts of Alaska.

Mr. Apperson, receiver of the land office, was outspoken in his opinion that the office should remain where it is for the present and should never be removed to the eastward. He says the business of the office shows that more mineral surveys are made west of Sitka than east of it. Nearly all the agricultural land lies west of here. In addition there has been so material increase in the business from the eastward during the past year, while the west has shown tremendous gains.

To Hunt for Treasure.
Those having an aptitude for searching for lost treasure are likely to have their attention directed shortly to a new field of investigation. The failure of the Cocos Island expedition a few years ago is not going to deter other Victorians from conducting operations of a similar character, and next week will see at least one if not two parties away for the north on missions of this kind. And all hinges on the dying confession of a man in Seattle a year or two ago, which was republished in the local papers from the Seattle Post-Int-elligencer.

According to this story the man shortly after his arrival in Seattle took violently ill and when on his death bed told of having fallen into possession of the wealth which is exciting the minds of those now about to set out in search of it. There is $160,000 of the money, and it is buried on an islet no larger than a few newspapers spread out are square. It is situated on the northern coast of British Columbia, and as it does not appear on the chart and as entire ignorance appears to have prevailed heretofore regarding its location or identity, the man's story could never be verified.

It appears to have been quite forgotten until a few weeks ago, when a couple of mariners became interested and began consulting some of the local authorities on nautical affairs. But they have never found definitely the location of the island, and according to the statements of a Vancouver gentleman to a Times representative they are a long way off the proper scent. This party, who is the manager of a Fraser river cannery, says that he knows the island well and since his attention has been drawn to the matter he has determined to make a personal search for the money.

He is going north any way next week, having business of a different nature to transact in connection with the same trip. On the way he will drop off at the island and with pick and shovel examine the earth or rock where the treasure is supposed to be hidden.

His name he does not wish to have divulged at present, for he does not know what amount of credence can be placed on the dying testimony of the man who claims to have secreted the treasure.—

GLORIOUS FOURTH

Day Began at Midnight With Mighty Din From Small Artillery.

STREETS WERE CROWDED ALL NIGHT

With a Jostling, Good Natured Crowd From the Creeks.

DAY IS MOST PERFECT ONE.

City Appropriately and Handsomely Decorated for Occasion—My Country, 'Tis of Thee.

Strictly in accordance with time honored custom, America's greatest holiday, the glorious Fourth of July, celebrating today the 125th anniversary of the severance of the ties from the mother country, was ushered, in last night at midnight with a fusillade of fire arms, big and little. All night long the streets were filled with a good natured, elbowing, jostling crowd of humanity, a great many of whom have come in from the creeks to enjoy the sports and celebrate the day. The theaters and other public places of amusement were taxed to the utmost.
This morning the sun rose upon as perfect a day as could be wished for;
warm and pleasant yet not swelter-ingly hot as is so often the case this time of the year in less favored climes.
The last detail necessary in the arrangements was completed yesterday evening and nothing remains wanting to make the day one long to be remembered.
Until late in the evening workmen were engaged in the construction of the grandstand adjoining the Yukon dock from which all the sports can be seen.
The only event transpiring in the forenoon was the ball game played on the barracks grounds. The Dawson Military band under the direction of Edwin Bates Lyons discoursed music throughout the day.

His Raft Departed.
Wm. J. Onstett who is running a chicken ranch in the Indian river district recently cut a large raft of wood on the bank of the river intending to take the logs to his ranch for the purpose of making chicken coops and other necessary improvements on his ranch with them. He had the raft all nicely tied together ready for towing to his ranch to which he returned for assistance.

As he had cut the logs several miles below his ranch the trip occupied three or four days and when he returned to the place on the 21st of May where he left the raft he found nothing but a piece of the rope which had held it to the tree to which it had been tied.

He was very much surprised to discover the absence of the raft and thinking that perhaps it had met with foul play he immediately commenced a search and found it securely buoyed in the slough above Dawson. He demanded its return from the party who had possession but the demand was refused and yesterday he issued a complaint against C. Henness charging him with stealing the raft and taking possession of his raft and refusing to give same back to rightful owner. The case will be heard before the magistrate in the police court tomorrow.

THURSDAY, JULY 4, 1901.

TODAY WE CELEBRATE.

Today is the 125th anniversary of American independence and during that time the nation has grown to be one of the most powerful on the face of the globe. Today all America and her friends indulge in a grand birthday party and in all her confines will be heard the joyful and patriotic refrain, "My country 'tis of thee, sweet land of liberty."

Those of us who are in the Yukon may congratulate ourselves on the fact that, while we are not on American soil, we are among friendly neighbors who not only countenance, but join with us in celebrating the natal day of our republic, a day from which dates the beginning of a history of which no American need feel ashamed.

Regarding the American government the Encyclopedia Britannica say: "The American government is a pure representative democracy in which the people are recognized as the fountain of all power; and the sole object of its mechanism is to give effect to their deliberate opinions. The federal government and the governments of the separate states are constituted on the same plan. The legislature consists in every case of two bodies, a house of representatives chosen for one or two years, and a senate for a period varying from two to six—all chosen by popular election, except in the case of the federal senate, which is elected by the legislatures of the forty-five states. The president holds his office for four years, but is occasionally re-elected for four years more."

"The characteristic facts in the condition of America are the non-existence of titles, of privileged classes, of corporations in a European sense, of a landed aristocracy, of mendacity except to a very limited extent, and of an endowed church; the cheapness and efficiency of its government, the universality of education, the omnipresence of its periodical press, the high feeling of self respect which exists in the very humblest classes, and the boundless spirit of enterprise which pervades all classes of society. The social customs and individual manners of the American may be rendered brusque by business habits, but the American people, taken collectively, are at least as well educated and have as much intelligence and manliness as any other nation in the world."

As citizens of the country and representatives of the government described above, Americans not only in the Yukon but all over the civilized and uncivilized world may feel proud of that nationality not alone today but at all times.

THE RED RACE. That the Indians are born actors there is no denying. Even the Moosehides will dance until they drop of sheer exhaustion, taking their pay in applause, red calico and tobacco, rather than perform manual labor at a fair price. The zeal of Chief Silas to have members of his tribe enter the foot races today is but an outcropping of the desire of the sons of the forest to act on the stage of life. In speaking of this trait on the part of the Indians the Skagway Alaskan says:

The noble red man of the forest has at last struck his gait and taken to the stage. At Chitilwek they have organized a dramatic club, and five hundred of these unburdened sons of leisure have joined the aggregation and enthusiastically gave the "Passion Play," to untold admiration. For years the governments of the United States and Canada have tried to teach the Indian how to plow, farm and take care of himself, and after expending millions of money they gradually drifted back to pow-wows and war dances, where their element appeared to be reached. Now they have found the mecca it is to be hoped they will settle down to business and paint every town from the Pacific to the Atlantic a bright carmine, and convince the people that they know whereof they act.

If Mr. Lou Miller has any milk of human kindness flowing through his arteries he will accept the apology tendered by the News of yesterday and withdraw that $25,000 libel suit. The News took it all back—at a humble price, so to speak, in a manner that would have caused Trilby Collins to look to his laurels even in the days when he wore the championship pie-eating belt in Seattle years ago. The News did the proper thing. It became convinced, after the suit for libel was filed, that it had been over-fresh, and it got down from the perch and made obeisance to Mr. Miller in true Chesterfieldian style. Now he is a good fellow, Lou, and "let'er drop." The amende honorable has been made.

My country 'tis of thee.

Whoop 'em up.

Mr. Dooley on Yachting.

"In th' ol' times when I was a yachtsman—" began Mr. Dooley. "Scowman," said Mr. Hennessy. "Yachtsman," said Mr. Dooley. "When I was a yachtsman, all a man needed to race was a flat-bottomed boat, an umbrella an' a long drink. In them days 'twas 'Up with th' mainsail an' out with th' jib an' Cap'n' 'Jawn first to th' Lake View pumpin' station f'r th' seegers.' Now, 'tis 'Ho, f'r a yacht race. Lave us go an' see our lawyers.' 'Tis 'Hant away on th' i wrist iv ne exeat, an' 'et go th' peak capias.' 'Tis 'Pipe all hands to th' supreme court.' 'Tis 'A life on th' boundin' docket an' a home on th' rowlin' calendar.' Before we die, Sir Lipton'll come over here f'r that cup again an' we'll bate him be gettin' out an over-night injunction. What's th' use iv buildin' a boat that's liable to tip an' spill us all into th' wet? Turn th' matter over to th' firm iv Wiggins, Shulz, O'Mally, Eckstein, Wopapski, Billotti, Gomez, Olson and McPherson, an' lave us have th' law on him."

"I don't suppose, Hinnessy, I ought to be gettin' off me little jokes on a seeryous atther like this. What's it all about, says ye? Well, ye see, 'tis this way. Wanst befor th' war some la ad f'r this country took a boat across th' Atlantic an' runs it again an English boat an' iv course, he won, not bein' tied to th' dock, an' they give him a cup. I don't know why they give him a cup, but they give him a cup. He brought it back here an' handed it to a yacht club which is an association, Hinnessy, iv mimbres iv th' bar. He says: 'Ye keep that cup on yer mantelpiece an' if e'er an Englishman wants it, dont ye give it to him.' Aftther a while, an Englishman that owned a boat come aftther th' cup, an' t'was lave go altogether an' th' las' man to th' line knows what he is. He's an Englishman, iv course. That was all r-right, too. But th' time come when th' legal pro-fession took a hand in th' game. 'Look here, says they, 'Ye've violated nearly all th' statutes iv th' state of Noo Jarsey already, they says, an' if ye sin't careful, ye'll be hauled up f'r contempt iv court,' they says. So they took th' maker in hand an' d'rove up th' r-right papers. 'State iv Noo York, county iv Cook, s. s.: Know all men by here prisints, To all magistrates an' polls officers, greetin'. In re Sir Lipton again th' Cup. 'Ordered that if Sir Lipton again shall secure said cup f'r'm aforesaid (which he won't), he must build a boat as follows: Wun hundred an' twinty phest, fifty-four waist, hip an' side pockets, carryin' three hundred an' sixty-three thousan' cubic feet iv canvas; th' basement iv th' boat to be papered in green with yellow flowered dado, open piumbin', steam heat throughout, th' tinant to pay f'r all repairs. Be means iv this infernal machine if onable to kill off th' r-right family, he will attempt to cross th' stormy Atlantic an' if successful, w'll arrive at th' residence iv th' party of th' first part said John Doe. Wanst there, he will consult with mimbres iv th' Noo York Bar Association, who will lead him to a firm iv competent expert accountants, who will give him his time which is two minyits measured be th' inverse ratio iv th' distance f'r'm th' binnacle to th' cookstove, an' f'r'm th' cookstove east be north to th' bowsprit. He will thin take his foolish boat down th' bay, an' if he keeps his health, he can rayturn to th' grocery business, f'r he's a jolly good fellow which nobody can deny."

"Ye can see this, Hinnessy, that yachtin' has become wan iv th' learned professions. 'Tis that that got th' la ad f'r'm Boston into it. They'a a jolly Jack Tar f'r ye. In d'rawin' up a lase or fram'in' a bond, no more g'alt sailor rides th' waves thin hearty Jack Larsen iv th' Amalgamated Copper Yacht Club. 'What he' says he, 'f' we're goin' to have a race,' he says, 'shiver me timbers if I don't look up th' law,' he says. So he become a yachtsman. 'But,' says th' Noo York la-ads, thin that has th' Cup on their mantelpiece, 'Ye can race on'y on two conditions. 'What a-are they?' says Larsen. 'Th' fist is that ye become a mimbri iv our club.' 'With pleasure,' says he. 'Ye can't says they. 'An' havin' complied with this first condition ye must give us yer boat,' says they. 'We don't want it,' they says. 'Th' terms suit me entirely, says Cap. Larsen. 'I'm a simple sailor man an' I'll give ye me bog under the followin' conditions,' he says. 'First, that ye won't take it; second, that ye'll point me name on th' side iv it in fed letters, three feet high; third, that ye'll intharfoce meet to the Prince iv Wales; fourth, that I'll sail it meself. Nawthin', he says, 'wad give me gr-reater pleasure thin to have me handsome an' expisive raft in th' hands iv men who I wud consider it an honor to know,' he says. 'An' so,' he says, 'I'll on'y ask ye to sign a bond an' lave a small security, say about five hundred thousan' dollar, in me hands in case anny paint shud be knocked off th' boat,' he says, 'an' in daling with gentleness,' he says, 'ye can't be too careful,' he says."

"What's Sir Lipton doin' all this time?" asked Mr. Hennessy. "He's preparin' his bond, makin' his will, an' goin' through th' other legal preliminaries iv th' race. He's built a boat, too. Th' king iv England was aboard iv her, an' he was near killed, be havin' a mast fall on him. Th' Lord knows how he escaped. A mass iv steel weighin' a hundreded thousan' ton fell on his majesty an' bounced off. He didn't mind losin' a mast or two, but he didn't want anny wan to know he had th' king aboard. 'T'wad hurt business. 'Boys,' says he to th' rayporters, 'the kings on me yacht. D'ye hear me? Th' king's on me yacht. But don't say anything about it. I don't want to have it known. Don't print it unless ye have to, an' thin put it in an inconspicuous place, like th' first page. He's here sure enough, boys. Th' mast just fell on his majesty. It nearly killt him. I'm not sure sure it didn't kill him. He remained perfectly cool throughout. So did I. I was almost cold. So did both iv us. But, mind ye, not a wurrd iv this in th' papers.' I don't know how the rayporters got hold iv it. But they're a pryin' lot."

"How did th' mast come to fall?" asked Mr. Hennessy, eagerly. D'ye suppose Sir Lipton is wan iv us?" "S-sh," said Mr. Dooley, adding softly, "He was bor in Limerick."

Church's Bloody Deed.

Louisville, Ky., June 23.—The death of H. S. Church early this morning was the second act of a bloody tragedy that began in Louisville three days ago with the murder of Emily Stuart, but which did not come to light until late last night, when the police found the horribly mutilated body of the woman hidden in a closet in the same house as the man dying from wounds self-inflicted with pistol and razor. Several pistol shots near Twelfth and Market streets caused two policemen to enter the small frame building at 222 West Market street, occupied by H. S. Church as a grocery store and residence. The living rooms being just back of the store. The policemen saw through a window clouds of smoke from a pistol. They forced an entrance and found Church propped up in a chair, bleeding from a wound made in his left breast with a .45-calibre revolver and from a slash across his left wrist. On the floor was an empty bottle labeled laudanum. Church died early this morning without making a statement. In the closet the police found the dead body of a woman. There was a big wound on the right side of her face, and a gingham apron was tied tightly around her neck. "She was choked to death," said the coroner. A physician said the woman had been dead 48 hours. The wound on her face, the policeman thought, had been made by the stamp of a shoe heel. The woman was identified as Mrs. Emily Stuart. Mrs. Stuart had saved some money and had recently bought a half interest in Church's store. She came to this city from Frankfort, Ky., and was 50 years old. Church was 55 years old, and came to Louisville from Frankfort four months ago.

THE FOUTER FROM ARKANSAS

Walked All the Way to Lick Zeb White of Tennessee

But Failed to Take His Right Ear Back as Evidence of Victory — Zeb's New Took a Hand.

"Soon after the war," said the old possum hunter of Tennessee, as we sat before his cabin fire, "some fellers come along here with a drove of mews, and one of the critters fell sick, and they gin him to me. He was about the meanest lookin' mawl I ever did see, but I kinder hoped he'd make up fur it in bein' good."

"He didn't, however. Doggone his hide, but when he got well he was meaner'n skunks. He'd bite and kick at anybody who come within 10 feet of him and if I hitched him to the cart he wouldn't pull a pound. I was keepin' him around in the hopes to trade him off when along comes a stranger one day from Arkansas. The old woman was gone to a nuybur's, and I was sittin' on the doorstep, when this stranger halted and said:

"Kin I everlastingly and eternally flatter myself that I am addressing the celebrated and notorious Zeb White?"

"That's me," said I.

"The critter who has killed 9000 possums, 3000 woodchucks, 420 coons and 50 b'ars?"

"Them's about the figgers, stranger."

"The man who crowded a circus elephant into the ditch, flung a bull over the fence and licked three wild-cats bare handed?"

"That's mostly me."

"The man who has outrun, out-jumped, outtraveled and outfitted every critter in Tennessee who would tackle him?"

"Kinder that."

"Waal, now," goes on the man as we shakes hands, "yo' seem to be some pumpkins, and I hope yo' are, fur I've walked over from Arkansas to gin yo' a trial. I'm going to do my best, Zeb White, to lick yo' outen yo'r butes."

"What fur?" said I.

"Jest to take yo' down a peg and let yo' know that thar is two or three other folks on earth. Yes, I'm either gwine to make yo' holler or else live on roots all the rest of my days."

"I don't want to quarrel with anybody," said Zeb, "but I soon discovered that the critter from Arkansas was bound to hev a loss. He bragged and crowed and had so much to say that I had no other way but to tackle him. We peeled off coats and jackets out thar on that level spot and I noticed the old mawl standin' with his hindquarters out of that shed doah.

"I'll tell yo' what I'm gwine to do," said the stranger as we made ready. "I'm gwine to bite off yo'r right ear and carry it back to Arkansas with me as a sort of certificate, and I hope yo'll write the date on it with pen and ink before I leave."

"Then he crowed and flapped his arms and jumped up and knocked his heels together. I hadn't got skeart of him, however. I reckoned it might be a tough foot but I was bound to win it. What made it better fur me was that me an' the old woman had had a jaw that day, and I was feelin' onery and mean and anxious to whop somebody. Waal, we finally got to work, and I soon found that critter all I could manage. He was peart in his feelin's, and a hard hitter, and as he danced around he said:

"Yo' might as well begin to holler right now, Zeb White, fur I've got yo' licks. I reckoned a heap of this talk about yo' was all wind."

"Jest about that time I fetched him a swat that keeled him head over heels and broke my thumb. He got up as peart as yo' please, and seein' my thumb was broke and my right hand useless, he put on mo' steam. It did seem to me that fur the first time in my life I was gwine to be licked, and I had a feeling of goneeness clear down to my butes.

"Broken bones don't count in a foot down in this kentry, yo' know. The man who comes out on top gits the credit, and the other feller hasn't a word to say. Yes, sah, I jest dun reckon I was hev'in' a powerful clus shave of it when Providence interfered. I was bein' banged all around when I happened to see my old mawl backin up on us from the shed."

"He'd heard that row and wanted a hand in. T'other feller's back was to'ard the mawl, and I played to keep it thar. He never had no warnin' of what was comin'. The first thing he knew the mawl backed up to within kickin' distance and then let go both feet, and old Arkansas went rollin' most down to that bresh fence. His breath was gone when he stopped and I was also sittin' on his stomach. In three or four minits he opened his eyes and looked around and said:

"Are I back in Arkansas ag'in?"

"Not akassly," said I.

"Was I hev'in' a fout with a critter named Zeb White?"

"Yo' wis."

"And did I whop him and make him holler?"

"Yo' didn't. Yo' kin look upon yo' self as a licked man."

"And I didn't get his right ear to take back to Arkansas with me?"

"Nary a car."

"With that he began to cry, and I let him up. He went over and sot down on that stump and cried like a boy, and after he had wept away his tears he said to me:

"Zeh, I acknowledge to bein' a licked man, but I'd like the consolation of knowin' how 'twas done."

"It was a fa' fout."

"I reckon it was, but I was gittin' the best of it when yo' fastened a couple of hos-shoes to yo'r hands and reached over my shoulders and hit me in the back and sent me tumblin'."

"Was that what licked me?"

"Reckon it was."

"And was it allowable under fouter's rules?"

"'Altitus has bin."

"Then I hain't got nothin' mo' to say," said he. "I cum, I saw, and I got licked, and I'm going back to Arkansas to tell 'em you are the rooster of the flock. Shake hands, Zeb White, and bid me goodby."

"And he shouldered his bundle and went off whistlin', and to this day he don't know why that fout went ag'in him. I heard that he went to Arkansas and tried to fight with his hos-shoes tied to his hands, but the other critter evened up by shootin' fo' bullets into him."—C. B. Lewis in Weekly Telegraph.

less than 1 per cent in Arkansas. In Colorado and Connecticut 98 per cent of the population is white; California almost 95 per cent, the rest being mostly Chinese; in Arizona, the colored, who are principally Indians, constitute not quite one-fourth of the total population; while the colored element in Arkansas, being almost wholly persons of negro descent, constitute 28 per cent of the population.

A Rush Job.

Yesterday evening work was commenced on the erection of the grandstand before which the races and sports of the day will take place. The contract was let to the same parties who had charge of the stand for the 24th of May celebration and a large amount of the material used on the former occasion which was left over was used in the erection of this one.

The same space has been used, the grand stand occupying the ground from the Lancaster & Calderhead dock to the entrance of the W. P. & Y. dock, with the exception of enough space in front of the doors of the warehouses which has been left open so that traffic will not be blocked.

The grandstand will seat a large number of people and is a splendid point of vantage from which to witness the sports.

Census Bulletin.

Washington, June 22.—The census bureau gave out the first of a series of eleven bulletins giving the population by sex, generation, nativity and color by groups of states and territories. The group announced today comprises Alabama, Alaska, Arizona, Arkansas, California, Colorado and Connecticut. In all these states constitute the larger percentage of the total population. In Alaska, which shows the largest proportion of the sexes, the males are nearly three-quarters or 72.1 per cent of the population. Arizona, 58.1 in California, 55.3; in Colorado, 54.7. There is only a slight excess of males in Alabama and Arkansas, while in Connecticut the population is about evenly divided, the difference in favor of the males being only 168 in a total population in 1900 of 908,420.

The foreign born element constitutes about one-fourth of the population of California and Connecticut; not quite one-fifth in Alaska and Arizona, and a little more than one-sixth of Colorado's population. They constitute, however,

KANGAROOS' SOCIAL SESSION LAST NIGHT

The Slavin-Perkins Meet Was Hot Go From Beginning of First to End of Tenth Round.

The go last night was a disappointment to a large number of people as a majority of the people present had it that the warhorse (Slavin) would go down beneath the blows of the coming man, Perkins. They reckoned without the old sport, however, for he hammered his man to a standstill and, in fact fairly beat Perkins if a decision was given on actual work done. The go lasted, however, the full ten rounds and was justly decided a draw, both men having agreed upon that decision should both be able to stand at the end of the tenth. The rounds all through were slow, neither man showing quickness of arms or feet. Slavin's favorite blows were left swings and right hooks with right body blow for in-fighting. The latter worked effectively and at the end of the tenth had Perkins practically at his mercy, the call of time saving him from possible defeat. Perkins, however, put up a game fight and it is said broke his right thumb in the second round disabling his arm from effective work. One of his front teeth was lookers yelling "foul" a mixup followed, both landing. Slavin then landed a heavy left swing on jaw which brought cheers; clinch followed. Time. Round 3—Slavin rushed from his corner at call of time and clinch followed. Perkins drove left straight on his opponent's nose; mixup followed, both landing heavy in swings, clinch. Slavin lands left and right strong, followed by a straight left on Slavin's nose. He swung then clinched. Perkins again drove in left jab on jaw followed by left swing and right hook both landing. Slavin rushed, landing left, then clinch. At end of the round it looked bad for Slavin, his blows going wild and he acting slow. Round 4—Slavin led missing a right swing and grunting in disappointment he quickly followed lead with a straight left on jaw, then right on chin, a clinch following. Again men clinched after wild swings, then Slavin landed straight left jab followed by a terrific upper cut which landed on Perkins also broken in the early part of the contest. Taken altogether the match was an exciting and interesting spectacle and one which will live in the memory of the onlookers for many a day. Ed O'Donnell acted as referee, Walter Lyons official timekeeper. Slavin was seconded by Aedham, Al Smith and Sam Matthews. Perkins had behind him Vincent White, Morrison and Murphy. Young Al Smith challenged any lightweight in the country to meet him in a ten round go weighing in at time of contest from 115 to 122 pounds. It is said Eddie O'Brien will accept the challenge.

Perkins entered the ring first followed by his seconds. Upon his appearance he was greeted with loud applause. He was immediately followed by Slavin chewing the inevitable gob of gum. The house yelled with delight upon his appearance. Preliminaries were quickly arranged. Tommy McDonald held the watch for Perkins, Joe Boyle for Slavin. It was agreed that the men should break away at call of referee and work under Marquis of Queensbury rules. In clinches, the men were allowed to strike when both arms were free. O'Donnell announced that he was competent to tell when a foul was committed and requested the onlookers to refrain from shouting foul as he intended disqualifying either of the contestants who seriously fouled his opponent.

heavy; clinch. Perkins landed right on ribs, followed by Slavin with right and left on jaw; again Slavin led left landing an upper which jerked Perkins' head towards the ceiling. At this point Slavin had Perkins, but lacked steam, Perkins groggy. Yells of "put him out" all over the house. Time.

Round 4—Both fiddled for opening. Perkins lands left on nose drawing blood. Slavin returns the blow follows with another left on jaw then right hook and swing on ribs, then driving in strong three times over heart bringing Perkins together in a bunch. Loud yells from onlookers, "Put him out, Slavin." Perkins stopped rush with straight left on face. Time.

Round 6—Slavin led with left on jaw, Perkins getting in right on ribs. Mixup followed. Both land left on jaw and mixup followed. Slavin getting in left at break away from clinch. Perkins lands left on jaw. Slavin lands right on body and gets in a wicked upper-cut which staggers his man. Perkins groggy, Slavin slow.

Both Slavin and Perkins were cheered by the crowd who filed out thoroughly satisfied with the evening's sport.

STANDARD'S NEW PLAY

For Next Week an English Drama "The Middleman"

The Standard theater is playing to packed houses these days and this in the summer season when in any other country dark houses prevail. Of course in a measure the reason is due to the craving for pleasure which is emphasized more strongly in the being of the Dawsonite than in the outsider who is surfeited with enjoyment of all descriptions. But that desire alone cannot pack a theater here. The true reason of the popularity of the Standard lies in the first-class entertainments which that house is presenting to the public. "An American Citizen," now running this week is to be followed commencing next Monday by an English drama from the pen of E. S. Willard the title of which is "The Middleman." This is a four-act drama and has had a phenomenal run in the East. Special scenery for the production as well as mechanical effects have been painted and arranged by Staff Artist A. R. Thorne. The cast is as follows:

PICOTTE GAMBLED

But Made a Mistake in Not Leaving His Tab With Dealer.

Some time ago before the order went into effect which closed the gambling houses of Dawson, Mr. Picotte of 17 Eldorado went into the Dominion gambling house, which was run by Mr. Sparks, and lost the sum of $5000 at the faro table. Not having the money with him he gave the dealer his tabs for the amount. Then in company with a couple of men he went into the Dominion saloon and during the conversation asked Mr. Moe the proprietor to advance him the $5000 to take up his tabs in the gambling house. Mr. Moe complied with his request and gave his check to Sparks for the amount. Mr. Moe afterwards paying the $5000 to Sparks in cash instead of having it presented at the bank. Mr. Moe then presented the account to Picotte for settlement and received one payment of $3000, but was afterwards refused the remaining $2000, Picotte claiming that it being a gambling debt he was not compelled to pay.

The scene was a frightful one that met the gaze of the police officers who made the first investigation. There was blood and torn clothing strewn all over the floor from one end of the little room to the other. One Chinaman was quite dead, and from their wounds, surgeons believe that not one of the other three men can recover. The details as given are related by the fifth man, who is in the hospital.

Little is known so far of the cause of the murders. There appears to have been a standing grievance between the murderer and the five men he sought to kill, the trouble having occurred over a Chinese woman who recently arrived there.

The murderer recovered early today from the wound that prevented him from killing the fifth Chinaman, and this evening was being brought up to New Westminster to jail. He maintained a stolid indifference to the results of his crime. Other Chinese in Ladner say he has manifested crazy fits for several days.

Committed Four Murders. Vancouver, B. C., June 25.—An atrocious series of murders occurred today at Ladner, a village at the mouth of the Fraser river, opposite Stevenson, about 20 miles from Vancouver. All the details that could be learned tonight were that a Chinaman had entered a shack in which five other Chinamen were lying asleep. It appears that, without making any noise to awaken the sleeping men, the murderer attacked first one and then another with an ax.

The first Chinaman was killed before the others awakened. The cries of the second one the bloodthirsty Chink had attacked awakened two others, and in the darkness they attempted to rescue him. These three men were cut by the ax wielder in all parts of the body and so badly injured that they will all die. The fifth succeeded in stopping the murderer before further damage had been done, although the fifth man himself was seriously injured. He finally laid out the murder-crazed Chinaman by hitting him on the head with a board. Then the fifth man himself collapsed and the whole six were found lying in pools of their own blood early this morning by other Chinamen who happened to pass that way.
