POETRY.

The Light at Eventide.

The day had been lonely and dreary,
And my spirit partook of its gloom,
And restless, and sad, and unquiet,
I wandered from room-to-room.

For the mists in the early dawning
Had risen, and heavily lay
Like a shroud on the face of the pallid sun
And darkened each straggling ray.

And the clouds grew darker and darker,
And the sun shone from the falling rain,
Came home like a leech by the wailing wind
Or the sob of a soul in pain.

And vainly I watched and waited,
As the hours dragged wearily by,
Not a rift in the sombre darkness,
That hung like a pall o'er the sky;

Till just as the day kissed the evening,
Ere he sank on her bosom to rest,
A flood of such wonderful glory
Illumed and lightened the west.

That, breathless I gazed at its beauty,
As broader and brighter it grew,
And it seemed like the gateway of heaven,
With the glory of God shining through.

And the beautiful vision thrilled me
As I gazed, for I seemed to see
How God in that scene was revealing
His way and his dealings with me.

For over my heart came rushing
Their meaning all glorified,
The words of the beautiful promise,
Of the "light at the eventide."

And peace such as passeth all knowledge
Just flooded my tired heart then,
Till it seemed that I never could intrude
Or rejoice at my lot again.

What though the mist and the shadows,
Lay dark o'er the room of my day,
And I've struggled through storm and
Each sorrowful step of my way?

I shall rest at the nightfall, and o'er me,
From the gates by an angel swung wide,
Will burst with a glory eternal
The "light at the eventide."

STORY.

ALICE'S PACKAGE.

"Good morning!" said the new station agent.

"Good morning!" said Alice.

They had parted at 11 o'clock last night, having strolled home from the concert together, and they had found enough to talk about then. But here under the bantering gaze of the station agent, who haunted the scene of his former labors previous to his departure for Iowa, they were tongue-tied.

"Is there a package for me?" said Alice, formally.

"I'll see," said Cary Loomis, exploring with alacrity.

But Mr. Stark dived into a corner before him, bringing forth a large square bundle.

"This it?" said he. "There was a twinkle in his eye. 'Miss Alice Lyman,' said, too. But, see here, now—'Pittsburgh!' Who's sending you presents from Pittsburgh, Ally? His twinkle was luminous.

"It's not a present," Alice retorted.

But the agent was not satisfied. "Pittsburgh," he mused. "Send me that surveyor fellow hailed from Pittsburgh, didn't he, Ally?"

"Shall I sign here?" said Alice to Cary Loomis over the entry book.

"And boarding next door, too," said Mr. Stark, "xy, yes—it's natural—natural!"

"Oh, no, it isn't heavy, thank you! Why, lift it," Alice was saying to Cary, with as laughing trown for her tormentor.

"Good-looking fellow too," said Mr. Stark. "Wal, Ally, you've got my consent for one."

"Thank you!" Alice laughed, but vexedly.

She had meant to say something to Cary Loomis over and beyond the conversation about the package—for had not the pleasant young new station agent seemed already quite attentive to her?—but now she could not summon a word or a syllable. If Mr. Stark were at the bottom of the sea!

"I don't know how Pittsburgh'll suit you, Ally," Mr. Stark persisted, mercifully. "They say it's snaky. But I s'pose smoke won't interfere."

Alice was gone, and Cary closed the ledger with a bang.

"Were you joking Stark?" he demanded, "or is that so?"

Stark eyed him. He had a strong sense of humor, and he read the new agent's secret.

Without absolute statements, he convinced his young successor that

Alice Lyman had flitted outrageously with the Pittsburgh surveyor; that he had been most devoted; that they were undoubtedly engaged, and that the big package from Pittsburgh was proof of it.

Cary had grown a little pale during the process, but so strong was Mr. Stark's humorous sense that he strolled away finally with a widened grin.

Cary found his dinner saved warm for him when he returned to his boardinghouse somewhat late, and Mrs. Davis, large and cheerful, waiting to serve it to him.

But to-day neither his dinner nor Mrs. Davis cheered him. He ate one and responded to the other glumly.

"Well, now; maybe you ain't feeling just smart. I've known change of air and water to make folks real sick," she hazarded in concern.

"Oh, I'm all right," said Cary, sardonically smiling.

"Maybe you need living up. You've been to the socials and concerts, to be sure; but maybe something livelier—Well, there," she broke off with motherly interest, "there's the music in the park to-night. I guess you'd like to hear that. You better step over to-night," said his landlady inspiringly.

He had no intention of going. He decided, with a certain inconclusive satisfaction, that he would spend the evening in his room, and without a light, that would be the fitting situation for him and his dejection. She would be in the park, and perhaps the Pittsburgh surveyor would follow his package, and be there with her.

All the same, for such is the power of pretty eyes and red lips, eight o'clock found him at the park. He would not go near Alice Lyman. He strolled about gloomily. All the town appeared to have assembled. The band was on by and by, moaning to the hand stand.

"Oh, Mr. Loomis!" somebody exclaimed with a pretty laugh, "I had almost run over to you!"

It was Alice—Alice with a loose knot of young men and maidens, not yet paired off, but well connected.

He joined them, or course; there was no other way.

And a few minutes later, when they had paired off, and the band had struck up, he found himself on a bench beside her—they two alone.

"Home, Sweet Home!" said Alice.

"Dear me, Mr. Loomis, couldn't they have found something a little newer?"

"It seems not," said Cary, unsmilingly.

"But how they fit!" cried Alice, clasping her arms. "And that second horn is a bar behind."

She was in a good mood. Her derisive words were mirthful.

"And they've been practising all the spring. Well, I could do better with a comb and some tissue paper."

A whiff from the strings she wore was wafted to him.

Her face, in the dusky light, was bright and yet soft.

She was thinking about her surveyor, probably, and laughing in her sleeve at him. Well, let her.

Poor Cary felt suddenly weary of his anger. He was in love with a pretty girl who did not love him—that was all. She could not be blamed—he would not blame her. He could hate the man she did care for, but he could not hate her.

So, while the band labored unsmilingly on, he bent toward and talked to her gently.

He told her of the really fine open air concerts he had heard at Brighton Beach. He described the odd, varying scene—the mass of people who thronged the walks; the long, crowded hotel piazzas; the circular pavilion from which the music poured forth, and which he found it all, the great still water.

He found Alice looking up at him, as he ended, with a keenness in her eyes and a softer smile.

"I have never been anywhere," she said, almost in a whisper. "I don't know anything. I wonder, Mr. Loomis—I've wondered more than once—that you care to talk to me! I—"

But she said more than she meant to. He knew that her cheeks were hot and her eyes confusedly lowered.

His heart throbbled hard. He got up abruptly.

"That remarkable march they're murdering is driving everybody away," he remarked. "Shall we follow, Miss Lyman?"

"I think so," said Alice.

Her fingers pressed his offered arm. A man, who had been listening to his halted buggy, wheeled about as they stepped into the road.

He was driving a colt, and a frisky one.

Was it the marvelously bad music which made his horse jump as he turned?

Alice was on the point of asserting it, but he swerved so close that she sprang back with a scream.

Somewhat the whirling buggy struck her. It flew down the road the next instant, but Alice lay in a prone heap in the dusty road.

Cary Loomis groaned as he bent over her.

"Alice!" he cried. "Alice, darling, are you hurt?"

He raised her to her feet, his arms about her.

"No, no!" she protested. "That back wheel struck me as it flew around—that's all; it didn't even bruise me. Only I'm dusty enough," she added, laughing.

"I am so sorry!" he murmured. "You sprang away from me so quickly that I could not save you. You must be hurt."

"I haven't a scratch," she retorted. "I—I think I will take your arm, Mr. Loomis."

In a bewildered way he withdrew and offered it. Then—

"I owe you an apology, Miss Lyman," he said, stiffly, as they went. "I—I called you something—I was so startled that I called you, perhaps you did not hear me?"

"Yes, I did," she murmured, with head averted.

"Well, he burst forth, desperately: 'an apology, did I say? Well, I apologize, Miss Lyman. But I only said what was in my heart—I said what I couldn't help, Miss Lyman. Try not to blame me! You will have a right to tell the man you are promised to, if you choose, and he will have the right to horse-whip me—but I couldn't help it! I try to forget it!'

"I don't understand you," said Alice, turning toward him at last and squarely.

"What can you mean, Mr. Loomis? The man I'm promised to? I'm promised to nobody!"

But she was promised to somebody soon and in short order.

"Stark," said Cary—he was too happy to be sharply discerning and he regarded Mr. Stark with bland eyes—"Stark, you know, and he will inform you about Miss Lyman and that surveyor from Pittsburgh who boarded next door to her. She is not engaged to him. She never was, and never will be."

"She, now?" Mr. Stark's long countenance beamed forth an almost infantile blankness.

"Wal, I'm beat!"

"He was fifty or so, Stark, and Alice hardly exchanged a dozen words with him."

"Now pah!" said Mr. Stark, with a wide gaze of incredulity.

"No, sir, not a dozen words! And that package—he was going to Pittsburgh, you know, and he heard her telling the lady he boarded with that she wanted a lot of worsted, and some she couldn't get here, and he offered to get them for her when he got home. And he did. That's what that package was, Stark."

"Wal," said Mr. Stark, stroking his stubby chin, "how I got it into my noodle I dunno—don't for the life of me! I haven't been so took back, I dunno when!"

But he coughed queerly as he walked away.

Mr. Stark's sense of humor was abnormally developed.—Saturday Night.

What a Woman Can Do.

A student of the sex exalts woman and covers man with contempt thus:—

She can come to a conclusion with out the slightest trouble of reasoning on it, and no man can do that.

Six of them can talk at once and get along first-rate, and no two men can do that.

She can safely stick fifty pins in her dress while he is getting one under his thumb nail.

She is cool as a cucumber in half a dozen tight dresses and skirts, while a man will sweat and fume and growl in one loose shirt.

She can talk as sweet as peaches and cream to a woman she hates, while two men would be punching each other's head before they had exchanged ten words.

She can throw a stone with a curve that would be a fortune to a baseball pitcher.

She can say "no" in such a low voice that it means "yes."

She can sharpen a lead pencil if you give her plenty of time and plenty of pencils.

She can dance all night in a pair of shoes two sizes too small for her and enjoy every minute of the time.

She can appreciate a kiss from her husband 75 years after the marriage ceremony is performed.

She can go to church and afterward tell you what every woman in the congregation had on, and, in some rare instances, can give you some faint idea of what the text was. She can walk half the night with a colicky baby in her arms without once expressing the desire of murdering the infant.

She can—but what's the use? A woman can do anything, and do it well.

She can do more in a minute than a man can in half an hour, and do it better.

She can drive a man crazy for 24 hours, and then bring him to paradise in two seconds by simply kicking him under the chin, and there does not live that mortal son of Adam's misery who can do it.

Mr. Stackhouse at Springhill.

Rev. Mr. Stackhouse, who has temporarily filled the pulpit of the Baptist church during the summer vacation, preached his farewell sermon Sunday evening. The pews were all filled and a few chairs placed in the aisles to accommodate the large congregation. The service began with the singing of hymns number 3 and 703. Prayer was offered by Rev. Mr. Rowe, of Berwick. After reading the 24th Psalm, Mr. Stackhouse preached from the words of the 17th verse—"Depart from evil and do good"—an eloquent discourse. To depart from evil, implied a consciousness of evil or guilt, and a knowledge of that which was good. He pointed to Christ as the true and living way. To depart from evil, involved on the part of the individual persecution in this world, in fact crucifixion to the world, because Paul had said "he was crucified to the world." He spoke feelingly of his departure. Although his stay in Springhill had been pleasant yet he felt a burden of responsibility resting upon him. The work done did not seem fruitful. He spoke of the growing evil of the town—the drinking and vice so apparent, and called upon his hearers to crush it out, for the sake of their children. At the conclusion of the sermon, the choir sang most appropriately "Shall we gather at the river."

Mr. Stackhouse is a young man of promise. He made many warm friends during his brief stay here, who deeply regret his departure. He returns to Acadia College, Wolfville, to pursue his studies. In the opinion of many a bright future awaits him.—Springhill News.

A Quaker Printer's Proverbs.

Never send an article for publication without giving thy name, for thy name often secures publication of a worth less article.

Never inquire of the editor the news, for hehold it is his business to give it to thee at the appointed time without asking for it.

It is not right that thou shouldst ask him who is the author of an article, for it is his duty to keep such things unto himself.

When thou dost enter his office take heed unto thyself that thou dost not look at what may concern thee not, for that is in the sight of good breeding.

"Used Up,"

"Tired Out," "No Energy," and similar expressions, whenever heard, indicate a lack of vital force, which, if not remedied in time, may lead to complete physical and nervous prostration. Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the best medicine to vitalize the blood, build up the tissues, and make the weak strong.

WOLFVILLE, N. S., OCT. 4, 1889.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The prices of sugar, which have for the past few months been ruling excessively high, are likely to come down within the next few months to a correspondingly low figure.

Hon. Sir John Thompson, Minister of Justice, and Hon. Chas. H. Tupper, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, are paying a visit to our Province and will address meetings in some of the leading towns.

The death of Wilkie Collins recalls his visit to America in 1873, when he gave, as Dickens had done before him, a series of readings from his own works.

We must again refer to the need of some kind of lighting on our streets. Other towns of no greater size or importance are well lighted and there is no reason why a like state of things should not exist in Wolfville.

While we down by the sea are interested in the low price of flour, the producers in the West both in Canada and the United States are more so in the high price of this indispensable commodity.

The sneerer at "loyalty" is abroad in the land. He delights to propagate the notion that respect for the sovereignty of the Empire and obedience to the law of the land is a loyalty synonymous with slavish submission and abject flunkeyism.

The Ideal Manufacturing Co.

A MANUFACTORY GROWING UP IN OUR TOWN—THE IDEAL WASHING MACHINE AND CHURN—HOW THEY ARE MADE.

Since the removal of the machinery and plant of the Ideal Manufacturing Co. to Wolfville their washing machines have been growing in popular favor, until they are now considered a household necessity wherever they have been introduced.

On entering the lower flat of this building by the east entrance the first thing to attract one's attention is a machine on which the staves for the different articles manufactured here are planed hollow on the one side in strips of from eight to twelve feet or more, according to the stock used, and one edge jointed and grooved at the same time.

WASHING MACHINE. A sufficient number of these staves, of suitable length, are taken and set up on a press hoop and firmly driven together. The hoop with the rough form is then taken to a tub lathe, a machine designed and made for this special purpose, and placed therein bottom end down.

WASHING MACHINE. The whole is then made to revolve rapidly in a vertical direction by means of belts and suitable gearing. The outside of the tub is here finished with a plane held in the hands of an operator, who passes it up and down the sides until all irregularities have been planed off, and it then scooped with sandpaper until sufficiently smooth.

SPECIAL MACHINES. The pin disks are made of thoroughly seasoned hard wood in two pieces of about one half an inch in thickness put firmly together with galvanized nails, in such a manner that the grain of one piece runs across the grain of the other. They are then passed to a machine where they are turned perfectly smooth and true and the holes bored for the pins. These are turned out of green hard wood in a special machine which turns them as they pass through from end to end in various lengths of from four to six feet or more.

LEAST POSSIBLE FRICTION. It is allowable while the clothes are being washed which is a great advantage this machine has over others of its class. After the internal fixtures have been put in position and the legs fitted, they go to the paint shop, where they are painted, ornamented and varnished, ready for the adjusting of the outside gearing which is placed on them in the packing room, where they are also erected and made ready for shipment.

THE IDEAL CHURNS. The manufacture of which they have recently engaged in, is made precisely similar to that of the washing machine, but in three different sizes, of the capacity of 5, 7 and 10 gallons. The dashers are worked by the same kind of gearing, which is neat and easily worked, and finished in Berlin bronze. They are handsomely painted and ornamented, each bearing the inscription, "The Ideal Manufacturing Company, Wolfville." This Company are now engaged in making PICKLING TUBS for the pickling establishments at Gasperau, making a very neat and tasty article. They are so arranged that they can be opened and closed to receive or empty out their contents at pleasure.

The popularity of this company's goods has grown beyond the most sanguine expectations of the promoters, who are sending them now to Quebec, Ontario and even as far west as British Columbia. H. A. Nelson & Co. are their agents for the provinces of Ontario and Quebec, who find the demand for them gaining rapidly wherever introduced.

150 WASHING MACHINES EACH DAY, besides churns, pickling tubs and wash tubs. They have on hand about 150,000 feet of dry pine and have on the way from Scotland 10 tons of hoop iron. This company employ from seventeen to twenty men.

Selfishness.

Oh, no; it is not always those that have hoarded possessions that are selfish. It is not always the monopolists and those that wade in riches. Riches, it is true, make people worldly and selfish, but I've seen people that were not worth more than five cents and a bill for sixteen dollars from a grocery store that resembled them very closely in that respect.

Kind Words. We are constantly receiving kind letters from our readers in the United States as well as in our own Province, and they are very pleasing to us. Below we append a fair sample. I will sell balance of my Spring Stock AT COST FOR CASH down, by the yard or made up. Now is your chance for bargains. This sale to continue only 29 DAYS. No trouble to show goods.

WALLACE, THE TAILOR. Wolfville, June 2d, 1889.

School Meeting.

The regular annual school meeting was held in the schoolhouse of the section on Monday evening of this week. Prof. A. E. Caldwell was elected chairman, and Mr. Everett Sawyer secretary of the meeting.

Upon motion the hearty thanks of the section was tendered Mr. Franklin for the efficient manner in which he had performed the duties of trustee for the past three years. The reports of the auditors, secretary and trustees were then read. The report of the trustees was taken up, clause by clause, and afterwards adopted. The sum of $1,000 was voted for school purposes for the ensuing year, being $100 more than was asked for by the trustees.

WOLFVILLE, N. S., OCT. 4, 1889.

Local and Provincial.

MISSION ROOM, GRAND PRAE.—No service for first three Sundays in October.

CURIOUS.—Mr Jerry Morine handed us a curiosity the other day in the shape of six ears of corn growing together from one stalk.

DEGRADED.—Mr J. M. Shaw is having his new rooms very neatly painted and decorated by Mr Blankhorn, and they will present a fine appearance when done.

BASKETBALL.—A picked nine of Wolfville and Windsor have challenged the Wanderers of Halifax to a match to be played on the Association grounds, at Windsor on Thursday next week.

THE ASSESSMENT.—The assessment for the Wolfville Water Tax, has been posted this week and has created quite an interest. It has been closely studied and freely discussed for the past few days.

PREBTERIAN.—Rev. Mr Ross left on Wednesday evening to attend the meeting of the Synod at Pictou. He will not return till after Sabbath. His pulpit at this place and at Horton will be supplied.

FAREWELL ADDRESS.—Rev. Walter V. Higgins will preach his farewell address previous to his departure for the mission work in the Baptist church on Sunday evening next, when it is likely there will be a large attendance.

OVENS AGAIN.—Kaye's meat market, which has been closed during the past few months on account of his supply of ice giving out, has opened again this week. We understand he intends keeping all kinds of meat and fish in stock.

NEW HOUSE.—Mr George Patriquin is busy making excavations on his property on Chapel Street for a cellar on which he intends building a residence this fall. The building will be 23 x 30 feet and something of the same style as the one just completed by Mr L. W. Sleep.

PROPERTY SOLD IN BERWICK.—The property belonging to the estate of the late Thomas Mergeson has been purchased by Mr Chas. Beaudry. Mr Beaudry is a native of Burlington, in this county, but has for some years resided in Cambridge, Mass. where he has been engaged in business as a painter.

RAY OF FURY STEAMSHIP COMPANY.—Commencing October 1st, the steamer City of Montreal will make but three trips each week between St John, Digby and Annapolis, leaving St John every Monday, Wednesday and Saturday mornings, at 7:45, returning leaves Annapolis and Digby same afternoon.

Go to Fay's for Dentistry.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT.—Mr Williams, of the Ideal Factory, met with a serious accident on Tuesday by which he lost part of the third finger of the left hand. He was working a piece of machinery which had just been put in at the time of the accident. Dr Bowles dressed the injured hand and it is now doing as well as could be expected.

JOURNALISTIC.—The Saguins Herald, published at Chatham, Mass., by our old friend, Mr J. A. Halliday, comes to us this week greatly improved. The Herald begins its third volume double its former size, having eight six-column pages and all well filled. We congratulate friend Halliday on his apparent success and prosperity.

Minard's Liniment Cures Dandruff.

FIRST PRIZE.—Mr C. A. Patriquin, of this place, took first prize at the late exhibition for county collection of apples 15 cents, thus placing King's county in the front rank among the apple growing counties of the Province. Mr Patriquin has had his collection exhibited in his shop window during the past week and it has been greatly admired.

PEANUTS.—Mr John E. Strong, of Brooklyn St., left at our office on Thursday last a bunch of peanuts just as pulled from the ground. They were grown in Mr Strong's garden from seed obtained from the South. The plant had a vigorous healthy appearance and the size of the roots is quite up to the average.

APPLE BLOSSOM.—Master Bertie Davison showed us a full-blown apple blossom on the first of this month, which he had just taken from the tree.

POSTAL CHANGE.—The following postal change is announced: On the 1st of September, Tremont post office, Aylesford, Kings Co., was reopened, with Mrs Lavinia Baker as post master.

CORRECTION.—Major Cusack wishes us to correct the statement in a late number that he had sold his place to Mr R. M. Rand. The report, though current, was without foundation.

A BREAK.—In the orchard of Dr Payzant, at Wolfville, this season, a squash vine made love to a pear tree, and a few days ago a large squash was seen snugly resting among the upper branches, says the Hants Journal.

TEMPERANCE ALLIANCE.—The annual meeting of the Kings County Temperance Alliance is to be held in Lovett's Hall, Kentville, on Tuesday next, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. A mass public meeting will be held in the evening.

RAIN.—One of the most violent storms of rain and wind that has visited us for years occurred on Tuesday night. Though not very pleasant for those who were out in it it was needed to supply the wells and brooks which were getting very low.

GRAPES.—Mr Thomas Foster handed us a bunch of grapes the other day which we have not seen surpassed. The variety was the Isabella, and the bunch, which was only 2 1/2 inches in length, contained 47 large luscious grapes. We saw nothing like it at the exhibition.

A full line of Brushes of all kinds at WALTER BROWN'S.

SOME BLUEBERRIES.—The blueberry business in Yarmouth is becoming quite an item in our exports. During the past season the blueberries sent to Boston by the steamer Yarmouth amounted to 6,204 crates, or 99 tons, 528 lbs., valued at $9,144, or including freight $11,144.—Times.

A MISTAKE.—Fish plates and bolts for use in track laying on the C. V. R. arrived last week. By some mistake the bolts are a size larger than the holes in the plates. This is much to be regretted as the work, which has been progressing rapidly, will be delayed perhaps—for some time.—Western Chronicle.

PERSONAL.—Rev. Mr Kempton, of Colwall, preached in the Baptist church on Sunday evening. The many old friends of Mrs K., nee Seaman, here were glad to see her. She finds quite a change in her old home—"the brick house," now overshadowed by the Bank of Nova Scotia's fine stone building in front.—Amherst Record.

LOST IN THE WOODS.—A small child of Mr Fielding, who lives near Newport Station, strayed away from his home last Sunday. After considerable searching it was found in a cradle hill playing with dead leaves, on Wednesday morning. The little thing had spent three days and nights in the woods.—Windsor Tribune.

ST JOHN'S CHURCH, WOLFVILLE.—Sunday, October 6th, Matins and Celebration of the Holy Communion at eleven. Subject of sermon: "These Holy Mysteries." Evensong at seven: Subject of sermon: "Is Baptism by Immersion the only valid mode of administering the Sacrament of Holy Baptism? What saith the Scripture? What saith the Christ? What saith early Christian Art?"

Wire Fencing, plain and barbed, and posts at WALTER BROWN'S.

NOVA SCOTIA CENTRAL.—The Nova Scotia Central work is progressing all rapidly. The road bed is now about all ready for track, of which only six miles remain to be laid. The prospect is that in two weeks or less the two ends will be connected. The road from Middleton is connected. The road from the bridge is now out to the end of the track in order, as ballast, and now in running order, is also the portion from Bridgewater to Springfield. The iron bridges of the being put in. The location of the stations in several instances is or at least has been a vexed question, particularly in regard to that at Middleton. However as every one cannot be suited, it is hoped the company will look to the general convenience of the community at large, and decide accordingly.

Berwick.

At the annual school meeting Mr L. D. Robinson was chosen trustee in place of Mr S. C. Parker, resigned, and Mr I. Shaw in place of retiring trustee. The Board of trustees submitted the following report:—

"We find the school in a fine state of efficiency and work done in all departments during the year of a high order, so much so that we claim for Berwick section a model school. While highly pleased with all departments, the marked character of the primary department is deserving of special mention. At the end of the winter term Mr Robinson, through ill health, was forced to resign and Mr E. A. Read was secured for the summer term. Under Mr Read's principalship the school has maintained its wonted standard. We would just here refer to the marked success that has followed Mr Robinson's connection with the school and would desire here to record our appreciation of his success. The attendance has been large, the school registering about 160 pupils, and punctuality fair. The school land fund, of which so much has been said, has taken practical shape in a grant of $25, with prospect of more."

Mr H. S. Shaw has been engaged to take the principalship of the school for the coming year. Miss Parker and Mrs Chute are to continue to teach in the intermediate and primary departments with increased salaries. $825 was voted for school purposes for the coming year.

Greenfield.

Orchards may flourish here, as the following testifies: Mr Watson Davidson shows a small sized tree that this year bore 7 barrels of Gravensteins. Mr D. also furnishes proof of the fruitfulness of the soil in about 20 bushels of buckwheat from one bucketful of seed. The crop of grain and hay has been fair this season. As it is elsewhere, the potato yield is light.

Mr George Davidson and wife have returned from the United States, and propose remaining. We are always glad to see our people returning, better pleased with their native land.

Gasperon.

Mr Russell Kenne has sold his farm to Mr Stephen Atwell.

SEVERE LOSS.—Mr John G. Morrison, of Springfield, in this county, met with a severe loss a day or two ago by the drowning of a horse valued at $150. The horse was forced into Lake Pleasant, to which the driver, one Patrick Dooley, of St John's, Nfld., had gone to fill a cask with water. He urged the horse so far into the water as to make him lose bottom when he was overcome by the weight of the vehicle to which he was attached, and was drowned before help could be obtained. The driver, it is said, became near being drowned himself.—Bridgetown Monitor.

Larger consignments of rice are being shipped from China to Quebec by the Canadian Pacific and the lake steamer.

A careful estimate of the population of Boston made under direction of the mayor, shows the city to have 414,000 inhabitants.

Two young men residing near Papineauville were out hunting near the Ottawa River, when the elder of the two was accidentally shot by the other, dying almost instantly.

It is reported that a stone cutter of St Paul, Minn., has discovered a combination of chemicals by the use of which the hardest stones can be dissolved and cut into any desired shape, the casting being as hard as flint, translucent and capable of taking on a brilliant lustre.

The late Dr Barnard, of Columbia College, has willed all his estate, excepting the income which goes to Mrs Barnard, to Columbia College. The value of the gift is estimated at about $80,000, and includes a valuable collection of rare books and manuscripts got together by the dead scholar.
