Williams and others vs. Adams and others. There was one criminal case, King vs. Ephraim Reuben, a junk dealer of Chatham, charged with having stolen goods in his possession knowing them to be stolen.

Ruddock of Chatham, chief of Police Coughlan of Chatham, Manager Stevens of the Dominion Pulp Co., and Israel Jacobson St. John, assistant manager McCabe and Mr. Elder of the Pulp Co., and the defendant gave evidence. Large quantities of lead and brass junk were shown to have been purchased by defendant from various parties one of whom who disappeared about the time of the purchase, in April last, having been an employee of the Dominion Pulp Co. From this man the defendant bought the bulk of the goods seized. Nothing sworn to showed that defendant knew any of the junk was stolen. LISTEN TO THIS!
SAYS CORNS LIFT

You reckless men and women who are pestered with corns and who have at least once a week invited an awful death from lockjaw or blood poison are now told by a Cincinnati authority to use a drug called frezone, which the moment a few drops are applied to any corn, the soreness is relieved and soon the entire corn, root and all, lifts out with the fingers.

It is a sticky ether compound which dries the moment it is applied and simply shrivels the corn without inflaming or even irritating the surrounding tissue or skin. It is claimed that a quarter of an ounce of frezone will cost very little at any of the drug stores, but is sufficient to rid one's feet of every hard or soft corn or callus.

You are further warned that cutting at a corn is a suicidal habit.

It's Cheaper to Paint than Repair

YOUR house—if it is four years old or older—is worth at least 50 per cent more today than when it was built. Lumber and cement are so high that it would cost half as much again to build this year as it did in 1914. So it is obvious that either a new house or an old one is today so valuable a property that its owner must conserve it unless he is committed to a policy of wilful waste. Keep your house—and all your buildings—protected. And let your paint-protection consist of an economical paint. Use the paint that goes farthest—lasts longest.

B-H "ENGLISH" PAINT
 70% Pure White Lead
 30% Pure White Zinc
 100% Pure Paint

The kind we guarantee to possess as its important base, the above correct formula. This formula, printed on every can over our President's signature, commits us to this standard. High in cost as white lead has become, we must use as much of it as before—to use less, would necessitate the removal of the guarantee from our cans and would injure the high reputation, which these paints have acquired by reason of their superior ingredients.

Other B-H Products of Sterling Worth

We carry and recommend the following B-H products:

Make Yourself Well and Strong

You can Improve Your Physical Condition by Keeping the Blood Pure

People with strong constitutions escape most of the minor ills that make life miserable for others. Have you ever made an earnest effort to strengthen your constitution to build up your system, to ward off discomfort and disease? Unless you have an organic disease it is generally possible to so improve your physical condition that perfect health will be yours. The first thing to be done is to build up your blood as poor blood is the source of physical weakness. To build up the blood Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is just the medicine you need. Every dose helps to make new blood which reaches every nerve and every part of the body, bringing color to the cheeks, brightness to the eyes, a steadiness to the hands, a good appetite and splendid energy. Thousands throughout the country whose condition once made them despair, owe their present good health to this medicine. If you are one of the weak and ailing give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial and note the daily gain in new health and abounding vitality. Among those who have proved the truth of these statements is Mrs. Fred Goslin, R. R. No 2 Ruthven, Ont., who says:—"A few years ago I underwent an operation for a fibroid tumor. I had been ailing so long that I did not gain as the doctors said I should. I was in such a rundown condition that they said it would take me a very long time to recover. But instead of gaining, I was growing weaker, and the doctor said I must go back to the hospital. I did not want to do this, and having often heard of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills as a strength builder I decided to try them. I was greatly surprised at the help I received from them. In three months I was able to go about, and our home doctor expressed his astonishment, as he had not expected me to recover. Believing pernicious anaemia had set in, it took me about a year to recover my full strength, but ever since I have been doing my own housework, and have to give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills the praise for my present state of good health."

You can get these pills through any medicine dealer or by mail post paid, at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

THURSDAY, MAY 30th 1918

SHOULD BE REPAIRED

The Old Bridge, at French Fort Cove, which has not been used very extensively since the new one was built, is rapidly falling into decay.

THE POWER QUESTION

One of the biggest questions before the Town Council this year will be that of providing power to run the Town water and Light systems, and the only solution of the matter is the installation of new machinery or the use of water power, if such is available.

The price of fuel has advanced so rapidly that the cost of fuel for operating the Town plant has increased from $6,178.49 in 1916, to $12,783.40 in 1917, which will, without doubt, be further increased during the present year.

That water power is available at a distance within reach of the Town is not to be doubted, and the matter should be investigated at once, with a view to having an up-to-date electric system installed at the earliest possible moment.

The Town Council should secure a competent engineer, and make a survey of the water powers of the vicinity, and prepare an estimate as to the cost of utilizing them for power purposes.

Not only would the introduction of such a system reduce the cost of electric light and water, but it would provide power for manufacturing purposes, and would be the means of attracting to the Miramichi industries which are now kept away by the high cost of power developed by use of coal or wood.

The necessity of increasing the price of electricity from 15c. to 20c. per kilowatt, with a possibility of further increase next year and also an increase in water rates, brings home the fact that immediate action is necessary, and it is trusted that the Town Council will not delay in the matter.

AN EXCELLENT PLAN

(St John Standard) Residents of St John and vicinity, who are interested in Greater Production, might well follow the example set by a number of Newcastle business men, who have decided to apply up-to-date methods to the business of producing more food.

scientific methods of crop production will be practised. Reports from Newcastle are to the effect that the majority of the stock has already been sold and the promoters anticipate no difficulty in disposing of all of it.

The Newcastle plan is a most practical one that could be followed to advantage by citizens of other communities. With food prices at the level they are likely to reach during the coming fall and winter the venture should be most profitable.

FAMOUS PAINTINGS.

There Are Three Undisputed Mantegnas in This Country.

Andrea Mantegna, the brilliant master of the Padua school (1431-1506) was distinguished among the Italian masters of the renaissance by a plastic style which made his figures on canvas not so much an expression of paint as of carved marble or molded bronze.

Of all the painters of his time he was generally regarded by critics as being most sensitive to the beauty of rounded form as distinct from outline. Mantegna died in Mantua in poverty, due not to lack of appreciation, but to his own extravagance.

The works painted by Mantegna, apart from his frescoes and the tempera pictures of the "Triumph of Caesar," now hanging in Hampton Court, are not generally authorities seem to agree that not more than thirty-five of the so-called Mantegnas now extant are to be accepted as authentic.

In America there are only three undisputed Mantegnas. One is the "Adoration of the Kings" belonging to the John S. Johnson collection in Philadelphia; another is the "Madonna and Child" of the Altman collection in the Metropolitan Museum of Art, and the third is the "Madonna and Child" of Mrs. Jack Gardner's collection in Boston.

INVESTING MONEY.

What One Bank Has to Say About Real Estate Mortgages.

The president of one of the numerous savings banks of New York city recently had occasion to resort to statistics to prove his contention that real estate mortgage investments made with intelligence, knowledge of conditions and conservatism were the safest form of investment.

Thus the bank has invested of depositary funds at the rate of $3,000,000 annually, receiving an average of 5 per cent, or $150,000, in interest and paying its depositors an average of 4 per cent, or $120,000, leaving a balance for the bank of $30,000 annually.

This record, significant of the not only safe but profitable business in mortgages, is that of one of the smaller banks in the savings group of New York city.

An Astronomical Mirror.

One of the most remarkable scientific instruments yet devised is that constructed by Professor R. W. Wood to aid the work of astronomers. This is an astronomical mirror, the reflecting surface of which is revolving mercury elaborately protected against vibrations, and it magnifies in proportion to the speed of its revolutions.

A metal dish containing mercury and turning on bearings on its edge a series of magnets, encircling, but not touching, the surface of the mercury, by means of which power this ring is made to revolve upon bearings separate from those of the mercury container, but its magnets, attracting those on the container's edge, cause the latter also to revolve.

Why the Owl is a Night Bird.

Birds are often credited with bringing down fire from heaven. In Polynesia it was said that the owl, in French folklore, the owl. The tale runs that all the other birds except the owl contributed a single feather apiece to replace the plumed of the wren, so as to keep it warm in the coming winter.

Reason for the Change.

"Your behavior is about as entertaining as the news to be." "Well," replied Senator Sorghum, "maybe I'm improving. People nowadays are getting so thoughtful that you can't expect 'em to vote for you simply because you can make 'em laugh."

On Persistence.

He that has patience to attend small profits will quickly grow to thrive and purchase. They are easier to accomplish and come thicker. So he that from everything collects something will in time get a treasure of wisdom.

Baron Shaughnessy on the C.P.R.

A Fascinating, Historical and Political Record

Lord Shaughnessy's report to shareholders at the annual meeting of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, embodied a review of the salient features of the company's financial policy and progress leading up to its present stable position.

The explanation of the company's extraordinary success in face of the above record, is to be found in the company's policy of keeping down the annual fixed charges, while extending its rails into new productive territory as opportunity offered.

Something About the Land Grant.

The company's Land Grant, which is a source of serious anxiety to financial doctrinaires who have only half studied the subject, is treated at considerable length in the review.

The history of capital expenditure is an interesting chapter, not only in the history of the C.P.R. but also in that of the Dominion itself. After 1892, so rapid was the traffic development, it was necessary to provide substantial additions to traffic facilities of every description.

The review goes on to describe the linking up of eastern Canada with the company's system which served thousands of miles of territory that was practically unhabitable.

The review also describes the eastern connection was imperative if the unremunerative territory was to be successfully developed.

The review also describes the linking up of eastern Canada with the company's system which served thousands of miles of territory that was practically unhabitable.

to satisfy the last 2,000,000 acres of its Grant. The company was compelled to accept lands along the line west of Medicine Hat, in the "semi-arid" district, where there was little or no water, which made the lands practically valueless.

The company has expended approximately $17,000,000 in the encouragement of immigration, and to forward the sale of such lands as it had received.

The "Ten Per Cent Clause."

In regard to the much discussed "Ten per cent clause," the review states that the suggestion made in some quarters that the spirit and intent of this Clause was to limit the company's dividend to ten per cent is entirely out of harmony with the clear, unquestionable language of the instrument.

The total capital of the C.P.R. is $623,000,000 which consists with the actual cost of the company of $687,000,000 exclusive of $31,000,000 of railway constructed by the Government and handed over to the Company.

Extraneous investments, including steamship lines, railway companies outside Canada, Government securities and loans, money set aside for investment, unheld lands, amounts payable on lands already sold, coal mining and other properties, are appraised at $252,000,000 which is substantially below the market value of these properties and other possessions of the company.

Fremont, O.—"I was passing through the critical period of life, being forty-six years of age and had all the symptoms incident to that change—heat flashes, nervousness, and was in a general run down condition, so it was hard for me to do my work. #### A Quick Relief for Headache

A headache is frequently caused by badly digested food; the gases and acids resulting therefrom are absorbed by the blood which in turn irritates the nerves and causes painful symptoms called headache, neuralgia, rheumatism, etc. 15 to 30 drops of Mother Seigel's Syrup will correct faulty digestion and afford relief.

RAISING CROPS ON RAILWAY PROPERTY

Canadian Government Railways Urging Employees to Cultivate on Right of Way.

Employees of the Canadian Government Railways located conveniently near sections of the "Right of Way" where the soil is suitable for cultivation, are being urged to apply for such land as they can cultivate, and do their utmost to boost along the "Greater Production Movement". In places where it is not feasible for employees to utilize arable land along the "Right of Way," the owners of property adjoining are urged to make proper use of it, now for the purpose of raising such crops as will materially add to the food supply.

The question of food is vital and pre-eminent. Next to munitions, the Allied countries need food. Every grain in the way of food that can be grown is an important contribution to the Empire's needs. Whatever is raised for home consumption releases as much more for export. If our people generally raise their own potatoes and garden truck, the farmers will raise more oats and grain and buckwheat. On comparatively small patches of land enough can be grown to feed several people, and if many individuals make even what might be considered a humble effort, the total result will be of vast importance.

In many sections there is excellent land along the right of way. It has been the practice in some localities for station agents and section men to utilize strips convenient to their neighborhood for garden patches, and for growing oats, hay and buckwheat or potatoes. Last year there was considerable gardening, but when the total average of land available is considered, the agricultural attempts were really insignificant. It is felt that many miles of this land could be brought under cultivation, and the railway is showing its earnestness in the matter by offering the use of whatever land is available along the right of way. Applications for railway land can be made to the Superintendent of the District Preference will be given first to employees and then to the property owners adjoining in cases where the right of way is through uncultivated land, any person who will guarantee a bona fide intention of raising crops may make application. All enquiries regarding land permits addressed to the Railway will be promptly answered and the fullest information given.

is because the flour is always the same. It is milled from blended wheat, Ontario fall wheat, strengthened with western spring wheat. Being blended in exact proportions, Beaver Flour is always the same in strength and quality; and always gives the same results, no matter what or when you bake. It will be a change for the better when you change from western wheat flour to Beaver Flour, milled from blended wheat.

Basic Facts About Belting

AND PARTICULARLY
Dunlop "Gibraltar RedSpecial" Frictioned-Surface Transmission Belting

A Worthy Product

Years of careful study of the high-power belt problem have enabled Dunlop Laboratory experts to create "Gibraltar RedSpecial" Belting, the original Red Face Rubber Belting of Canada—a product worthy of the Dunlop factories and of the quarter-century record of success back of them.

"Gibraltar RedSpecial" Virtues Are Real

Dunlop "Gibraltar RedSpecial" Belting is to-day widely used in a multitude of ways in the many varied industries in this country. It owes its success, not to any illogical deductions or fantastic analyses, but to the simplest causes—causes so simple that they are now, always have been, and always will be, in our opinion, the bedrock of success in belt-making—Power, Speed, Service—in actual use as well as in the test-room.

Permanent Elasticity Means "Life" in Belting

In producing this new, this original, this master, red belt, our object has been to have the friction cost of rubber between the plies such as will retain its life indefinitely, and to have a quality of rubber with long "fingers," and not a quality of rubber the elasticity of which has been sacrificed to obtain the so-called high-pulling test.

That "Friction Pull"

When you are informed that such-and-such a belt has a "friction-pull" of abnormal poundage, do not imagine that you are getting a quality friction. What you have to secure in a belt is a friction full of elasticity. There must be between the plies of duck only a certain class of rubber to give uniform strength and pliability.

Resilient Quality Must Not Be Sacrificed To Excess of Friction Strength

To obtain high figures, such as referred to above, in belt frictions you have to take away from the elasticity of the friction; hence, there is a happy medium, and this medium we have obtained through our laboratory experts. It ensures for you a belt, the friction of which will hold the plies together and will be sufficiently elastic in its properties to allow for the give and take necessary in rounding the pulleys.

Duck Finest Obtainable, Made to Highest Specifications

A highly important feature of "Gibraltar RedSpecial" is the duck which enters into its construction. Only the finest quality of specially-selected duck, having the proper tensile strength in the right direction, is used. And this, in combination with a superior rubber friction between the plies, ensures absolute uniformity of service.

Universal Recognition of "Gibraltar RedSpecial"

To cite the names of users of this famous, red frictioned-surface belt would necessitate the use of much space. We have on file recommendations from almost every type of industry requiring "Gibraltar RedSpecial" Belting in widths varying from 1 1/2" to 48". These testimonials are available for your perusal at any time.

The Original "Red"

"Gibraltar RedSpecial," as noted previously, is the Original Red Rubber Belt—and like most things that are original, its success is of the kind that endures.

"THE FIGHTING TRAIL"

"The sooner he's under lock and key the better!" Causley called back to the crowd, and a moment later the car turned a corner and was gone.

"Very odd, wasn't it?" said Gwyn. "You must have hypnotized him, Hogan. But I don't understand it yet!" As the words passed his lips he choked and started. Comprehension swept over his forehead like a flash of rain, a realization more acute than physical torture. Von Bleck had the deed! Causley had tricked him! The ownership of the mine and all it meant to the nation would pass into the hands of the enemy!

He fairly dragged Nan and Hogan to the auto, explaining as he went, look the wheel! It was a race for the greatest prize on earth. They swept down the road like a flying projectile, faster and faster, and faster yet, as they struck the down-grade and rushed on. Nan's ears hummed and rang, with the pressure of the wind. Gwyn shielded his face with his hands. Hogan, his eyes narrowed to mere slits, crouched tense and motionless over the wheel.

At the top of a rise they glimpsed the car of the sheriff only half a mile ahead. They were gaining. . . . And then occurred one of those tricks of fate that so often twist our hopes. A little thing it was—a wood-cutter felling a tree. But both cars were on the same stretch when the great oak began to fall across the road. It was a desperate chance, but Von Bleck was desperate enough to meet it.

"Drive on!" he commanded. "More speed!" And Causley's car shot out from the swiftly descending shadow as the tree crashed to the ground.

Hogan's brakes were grinding fire as he drew up with a jolt that almost threw the occupants from the car.

They had escaped death by the narrow fraction but danger meant nothing now. The heavy tree lay like a prostrate giant across the path. Sick with the sense of defeat, Gwyn watched the approach of the other cars that had followed from the wreck. Then came a horseman—two of them. They saw a fire came to at least. The riders had hardly dismounted before Nan and Gwyn were in the saddles, picking their way for and between the broken foliage, and then dashing on up the road. But the first glimpse they had of the commissioner's office was all too convincing that their race had been in vain. The sheriff's car, with Von Bleck grinning from

Nerves of the Stomach

Were Weak and Inactive as Result of Nervous Prostration—Lost Twenty Pounds—Had to Take Sleeping Powders to Get Any Rest.

Many people never realize that the movement and action of every organ of the human body is dependent on the energy supplied by the nervous system.

When the nervous system gets run down there is weakness throughout the entire body. You feel tired and languid and your stomach and other digestive organs are similarly affected. Appetite fails, digestion is poor, you do not get the good of what you eat and gradually grow weaker and weaker.

This process can only be stopped by such treatment as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, which goes directly to create new nerve force and thereby to invigorate the whole human body.

Mrs. Geo. S. Ellis, 46 Davidson street, St. Catharines, Ont., writes: "My husband had an attack of nervous prostration, and, although he doctored for some time and tried different other medicines, he could not get relief. He had to resort to sleeping powders given him by the doctor to make him sleep. The greater part of the trouble seemed to be with the nerves of his stomach. He began to lose weight, and kept on going down until he had lost twenty pounds. We had read advertisements in the newspapers for Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and noticed that it seemed to be doing a lot of good for people troubled with nervousness, so my husband decided to try it. He found benefit almost from the start, and continued this treatment until he had taken about twelve or thirteen boxes. The results were most satisfactory. He is now enjoying good health, sleeps well, and has gained back nearly all the weight he had lost. He also uses Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills occasionally, and thinks them an excellent remedy. I have also used this latter medicine for dizzy spells and liver trouble, and was completely cured of these complaints. We are a great deal of Dr. Chase's medicine, and cannot speak too highly of them."

the tonneau, was just rolling off down the street, and Causley himself stood in the doorway.

"I'm sorry," said the Commissioner, "but I can do nothing for you." The sheriff gave him a significant glance, and he went on. "You see, they have the title deeds and have staked out a claim. Possession it's nine points of the law."

He was an old man, the Commissioner, a cringing soul to whom the petty clerkship meant the very means of existence. He owed that job to Causley, and paid the debt by sacrificing his honest convictions when the sheriff said the word. Nevertheless a look of mingled discomfort and regret showed in his face as he watched Nan's plucky effort to restore her husband's courage.

Hogan drove up at the door as they emerged, the brave piece of bounding on the rear of his car still flapping in the wind. The placard above it read:

For Sheriff "SQUARE DEAL" HOGAN

It was Nan that saw the opportunity not Gwyn. She pointed eagerly. "Look, dear, look! Half the voters in Lost Mine were at the wreck today. They saw a good example then of the Causley brand of justice, and now is our chance to show the people that he really is a scoundrel. I'm going to make a speech!"

Standing in the back of the bright red machine, one hand above her head and hair flying in the wind, Nan made a picture that drew the sympathy of every man in the crowd. Swept away by the emotion of a great cause, eyes bright almost to tears, she told her story with dramatic effect. Even the Commissioner, listening behind his closed door, could sense the rising enthusiasm in it. He read a significant message for himself.

"Who will vote for Hogan?" she cried, and the call was greeted with a gusty chorus of approval. Hats waved wildly as she looked down toward the surging sea of faces about her impromptu platform.

"Good work, little girl!" called a big fellow over at the edge of the crowd. "Right! We're for you!" came the answering shout from another.

Nan raised her hand for silence, ready to continue her speech, but as the cheering subsided the distant rapping of rifle fire came to their ears. Mingled with this single shot came now and then what sounded like a sustained volley. The firing seemed to come from the direction of the mine.

When Von Bleck drove off he did so with a definite purpose. Now that he had the deed recorded he must also gain possession of the mine. With the double claim of title and possession he knew there would be no danger of his plans hanging fire. But he must have both to be safe. Straight to Brown's saloon he drove, and there in the rear room, gathered in a tense circle around the rolling dice, he found his hand whiffing away the time at their accustomed pursuits. They sprang up as he entered, eager at the prospect of another fight.

"Well," announced Von Bleck, "this afternoon we'll capture the mine. Get busy now; I want results this time. Have a drink on me and get to work! I will join you later." Five minutes afterwards the band was on its way to the attack, with Rawls in command. Von Bleck, Shoestring and "One-Lung" re-entered the car and drove to the station, where a long heavy box was taken aboard and carried off into the seclusion of the forest near the track.

Back at the mine Casey's men were preparing the midday meal. The two men who had been left as sentries came in from their posts, and everyone was settling down for a comfortable hour when Rawls first shot knocked the kettle from its hook. Taken completely by surprise, Casey's men were so demoralized that instead of defending the engine house they took shelter behind an ore train outside.

"Take the engine house," shouted Rawls in command, and half a dozen of the bandits dashed in through the door and took position to defend the entrance.

But Casey was not trying to take the engine house just now. He worked along the side of the train until he reached the engine, mounted the step and crouched behind the cab.

"Hold tight," he called. "Lie down behind the ore in the cars!" He and with this he grasped the throttle and started the train. Protected by the piles of ore, which served as a sort of entrenchment, Casey's men beat off all attacks as the train gained headway and moved faster and faster toward the incline.

But Rawls was alive to the situation. What he desired was not a retreat, with the possibility of a counter-attack, but a decisive victory, a stunning defeat of Casey's entire force. Another train, with its engine pointed in the opposite direction to that in which Casey was established, stood on a siding. His decision was instantaneous. Summoning his men, to climb aboard he backed the train on to the track and started in pursuit.

The race was even till they struck the grade, and then Rawls' train, with every car loaded, had a greater motive power than any engine—gravity. As the two trains slid down the mountain the distance between them lessened. Both sides were firing as rapidly as they could, the human fingers could load and press the triggers. Narrower and narrower grew the intervening space till, the trains seemed to couple and lock. And now back and forth over the swaying ore cars there waged a hand-to-hand battle. First one side would take the upper hand, then the other, in a desperate rush would carry the fighting back.

But this could not last. As Casey turned the bend leading down to the burned bridge he knew in his heart that defeat was very close. Out-numbered, his men would be virtually surrounded as soon as the train came to a stop. The only way out was across the bridge itself, trusting to a higher power than the charred supports and sleepers would bear their weight. Word was therefore passed along that all hands were to make for the bridge as soon as the engine halted. A moment later Casey closed the throttle, and calling his men to follow, leaped to the ground and started over the flimsy framework toward safety. It was a costly operation, but most of the men had made their way unharmed to the center of the bridge and were holding off their assailants with fair success when a new enemy appeared in the rear.

Von Bleck, Shoestring and "One-Lung" had mounted a rattling gun on the front of an engine and were bearing down on Casey from the other side of the bridge. The fire had been less severe on this side, and the engine crept over the sleepers with its deadly weapon pouring forth flying fusillade of bullets. It was only by swiveling their bodies underneath and hanging by the beams that the stout-hearted little band of defenders could save themselves.

Election Day dawned bright and clear, and Hogan, his red machine conspicuous with campaign banners, was greeted with cheers wherever he went. The events of the day before had turned the tide, and Causley's defeat was a foregone conclusion. But the candidate dropped his campaign smile for hearty laugh when he suddenly came upon Casey, twisting his hat with boyish embarrassment before a young lady's praise.

"Isn't he—I mean it—perfectly lovely?" she exclaimed with enthusiasm as Hogan drove up. "Do you know what Mr Casey did last night? Captured a brand new rattling gun. Von Bleck had shipped from the East isn't that simply magnificent!" She was beaming on the big Irishman with frank admiration clapping her hands and murmuring those girlish exclamations which prove so often fatal to any man's self-possession. Casey welcomed the newcomer as a providential diversion.

"The Von came too far, that's all," he explained. "We worked along the side of the engine, and the gat couldn't turn on such a wide angle. But they still have the mine, and a gang of men is working now re-building the bridge. Gwyn and I decided we were not disturbing them, so we are not disturbing them. And now tell me how the election is going."

"Fine," grinned Hogan. "Mrs Gwyn here is the best little politician I've seen in many a day. And by the way, old man Taylor, the poor old skeleton that keeps the deeds, told me this morning he had changed his mind about the title to the mine and corrected the records in her ladyship's favor. I shouldn't wonder if he were something of a politician himself, eh?"

By noon the ballot was almost complete, with Hogan leading by a safe majority.

"Well," he told Gwyn, "since your wife fought for me I'll repay the favor. The boys are having a holiday to-day, and I don't know any kind of celebration that'd please 'em better than a stiff little scrap. Let's drive those bandits out of the mine before supper time. What do you say?"

Hogan cupped his hands and gave a shrill signal. In a few moments every man on the block had gathered to know what it was all about.

"And I have to say is this," he told them. "Gwyn and Casey and I are going after the bandits at the mine. Anybody with a good gun who wants some excitement is invited. The line forms on the left."

Half an hour later the new sheriff and his first posse were on their way up the mountain.

"Mademoiselle without doubt is the daughter of monsieur the captain?"

"No," said Hozier rather curtly, turning to ascertain how Iris had disposed of herself in the interior of the cavern. It was his first experience of a South American dandy's pose toward women, or, to be exact, toward women who are young and pretty, and it seemed to him not the least marvelous except of an hour crammed with marvels that any man should endeavor to begin an active flirtation under such circumstances.

He saw that Iris was seated on a camp stool. Her face was buried in her hands. A wealth of brown hair had loosened her tresses, and the unavoidable rigors of the passage from ship to ledge had shaken out every hairpin. The tan-o-shanter cap she was wearing early in the day had appeared at some unknown stage of the adventure. Her attitude bespoke a mood of overwhelming dejection. Like the remainder of her companions she was endeavoring to avoid observation from the chief island of the group, the very nature of the apparently inaccessible crag in which he and his associates were hiding—each and all of these things spoke volumes.

Hozier did not attempt to disturb the girl until the dapper officer produced his silver snuffbox and a small quantity of wine into a tin cup. With a curious eagerness he anticipated the other's obvious intent.

"Pardon me, monsieur," he said, seizing the vessel, and his direct Anglo-Saxon manner quite robbed his French of its usual grace. The involuntary broke down, and he added more suavely in English: "I will persuade her to drink a little. She is rather hysterical, you know."

The Portuguese nodded as though he understood. Iris looked up when Hozier brought her the cup.

"Is there no water?" she asked plaintively.

"We have no water, mademoiselle," the officer said. Then he glanced at the group of bedraggled sailors. "And very little wine," he added.

"Be quick, please," put in the elderly Portuguese with a finge of impatience. "We have no second cup, and there are wounded men!"

"Give it to them," said Iris, lifting her face again for an instant. "I do not need it. I have told you that once already. I suppose you think I should not am sure our friend did not mean to be left to die. If that is the interpretation put on my remark, came the quiet answer. "But it was an act of the utmost folly to bring a delicate girl on such an errand. I cannot imagine what your captain was thinking of when he agreed to it."

"What's that, mister?" demanded Coke. Now that that finge of impatience passed the bulky skipper of the Andromeda was red faced and imperterritable as usual. The manifold perils he had passed through showed no more lasting effect on him than a shower of sleet on the thick hide of the animal he so closely resembled.

"Are you the captain?" said the other.

"Yes, sir. An' I'd like to 'ear 'er why my ship or 'er present trip wasn't fit for enny young leddy, let alone—"

"That is a matter for you to determine. I suppose you know best how to conduct your own business. My only concern is with the outcome of your rashness. Why did you deliberately sacrifice your ship in that manner?"

"'Vot are you a-drivin' at, mister?"

"Do you deny, then, that you acted like a madman? Do you say that you did not know quite well the risk you ran in bringing your vessel to the island in broad daylight?"

Then Coke found his breath.

"Risk?" he roared. "Risk in steamin' to an anchorage an' sendin' her ashore for water? There seems to be a lot of mad folk loose just now on Fernando Noronha, but I'm not one of 'em, an' that's as much as I can say for enny of you—damme if it ain't."

"Who are you, then? Who sends you here?"

"I'm Captain James Coke of the British ship Andromeda—that's 'oo I am—an' I was sent 'ere, or leastways to the river Plate, by David Verity & Co. of Liverpool."

It must not be forgotten that Coke shared with his employer a certain amount of freedom in the pronunciation of the ship's name. The fog "u" apparently puzzled the other man.

"Andromeda?" he muttered. "Spell it!"

"My godfather, this is an asylum for sure," grunted Coke, in a spasm of furious mirth. "A-n-d-r-o-m-e-d-a. Now you've got it."

"You are unlucky, Captain Coke, most unlucky," the other said. "I regret my natural mistake, which, it seems, was shared by the authorities of Fernando do Noronha. "The Eagles Eye" Chief Flynn's Wonderful, Timely Patriotic Story of German Plots and Spies in America

At the opening of the story, Harrison Grant, president of the Criminology Club, volunteers its services to the chief of the Secret Service as an aid in destroying the enemy spy system in this country The club is composed of men of means and leisure who have taken up the study of crime The club's offer having been accepted, Harrison Grant is soon actively engaged His path crosses that of Dixie Mason, and not knowing her to be a Secret Service operative he becomes suspicious of her

This situation increases in interest as the plot develops, because Grant and Dixie, though seemingly enemies, fall in love with each other In the dramatic action there are presented von Bernstorff, Dr Albert, Captains von Papen and Boy-Ed and Wolf von Igel among other conspirators, as a Lieut Robert Fay, convicted of a particularly despicable plot, calculated to destroy all shipping on the Seven Seas within six months

It shows the intensely dramatic movements which resulted in the capture of Dr Albert's portfolio, which contained secrets priceless to the Secret Service

In presenting these actual facts on the screen exact locations have been used in many instances, thus heightening the interest and the realistic effect Be sure and see the first episode at the Happy Hour Monday and Tuesday June 3rd and 4th
