Epps's Cocoa

"¡By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided for our breakfast and supper a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly accurated frame."—Civil Service Gasette. It is expected that a vote will be taken in the House of Commons to-day, on Mr. Laurier's commend to our readers a careful perusal of it. The legal aspects of the case are lucidly presented and logically argued. This speech certains places the Minister of Justice in the front rank of Parliamentary debaters. Mr. Devlin. opposition member for Ottawa county, P. Q., who took such an active part in the canvas against Sir Charles Tupper, in Cape Breton, announced his intention of voting for the bill, and in the course of his speech severely scored the Greenway Government Mr. Martin and others of his fellow oppositionists who have exerted mselves to prevent the minority from recovering their rights. Another member of the opposition. who has intimated that he will support the bill, is Mr. Beausoliel. member for Berthier, P. Q., and bably show several other members of the opposition in line with the Government on this question.

The most valuable contribution to the debate was the splendid speech of Hon Mr. Foster, delivered on Friday afternoon last. Historically, logically and eloquently, unerring precision and irrefutable logic. He pointed out that this was a constitutional question that and a most valuable contribution is how Mr. Cornish, another supporter of the Provincial Government is reported. "He believed the old settlers and the French would make common cause if their rights were infringed upon; and he could assure them that when the Canadian (that is the English-speaking) party became the great majority it would not be found oppressive." The minority took these assurances in good faith, as is evident from the remarks of Mr. Royal, speaking in their behalf. He said: "But there was something else for himself, which had not been guaranteed by any act; he found it yes terday in the remarks of the Hon. Messrs. Davis and Norquay, in the applause given

The very disagreeable weather intention of toleration and compromist to compromise that spirit of toleration and compromise that spirit of toleration and compromise that spirit has been such an important factor in laying broad and deep the foundations of the powerful and world-wide British Empire. But here, in this small place, we find a bandful of persons, dominated by small ideas, conducting a small organ, for the purpose of inflicting their small notions on the public; by shouting that "this is a Protestant country," and endeavoring to convey the impression arising from negotiations or otherwise, which led parliament to deal specifically with it? The province took its constitution as it was offered to it by the Dominion parliament, and therefore, it could very well be presumed that there was some sort of arrangement at that time. An admitted difference between the wording of the Manitoba act and the B. N. A. act was that, under the former the future legislature was prevented from making the Catholics if these creatures were ever permitted to have things their own way!
