CHAPTER XI
WINNING TRUE HEARTS.

ON the whole, Lillian had changed wonderfully; that low, musical laugh grew less rare and more heartfelt; and she talked more, much to Sir Talbot's delight. "I may be partial," he said one day to Harold, when Lillian had left them to their wine; "I may be partial, but I am inclined to believe that Lillian is a clever woman—not a half clever woman, mind. I hate, and always did, abominate that sort, because a half-clever woman is always trying to show her wit. A wholly clever woman restrains and represses it, giving you just a touch here and there, rapier-like, or, better still, like a rare cordial, a thimbleful at a time from a full bottle. I don't think I ever met a woman—a girl, by gad! she is no more!—who could say so many really clever things as Lillian has said to-night."

Harold nodded approval, but with a half-sad smile. Was not the star soaring still higher in the empyrean, still further beyond his reach? At times, as when she had first arrived, fits of profound silence and abstraction fell upon her. Sir Talbot and Harold could always tell when they were coming on by the straightening of the dark brows over the lowered lids, and the far-away and almost hard look which robbed the lovely eyes of half their beauty, while it lent them a tragic expression, worthy of Rachel. When she felt these fits were coming on, she generally took her hat and went down to the churchyard, which lay, like a picture of Birket Foster's, in a hollow behind the village.

And there no one followed her, except in spirit; Sir Talbot always shut himself up in his study until they told him, in a whisper, that Miss Lillian had returned.

Then he would go out and meet her, and look into her eyes, with an anxious, questioning look in his pale face, which look would instantly disappear if she smiled at him.

Still, though the old man's love for her increased daily, hourly, he felt, with untold mortification and remorse, that he was no nearer understanding her. Between them, at times, seemed to rise an impassible barrier, a veil which, strive how he would, he could not tear away. "Let me win her whole heart before I die," was his nightly prayer.

Talk of punishment being productive of remorse and true penitence! How bitter had been this man's punishment, and how small his real penitence and remorse, until love stepped in!

Love! Of all the gods, the most powerful, before there must all men bow, if but you come in their lives!

A Distinctive Style.

Many of these season's models are shown with side closings, and yoke effects are also very popular. The design here submitted combines both these features: the tiny revers on the front is an effective addition, the Gibson plait gives breadth to the figure, and the sleeve with deep pointed cuff is most stylish. The pattern is cut in 6 sizes—32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 inches bust measure, and requires 2 1/2 yards of 44 inch material for the 36 inch size.

So the days wore round to that toward which so many anxious eyes were turned, the day of the dramatic fete at the Towers. The duchess, with her usual good nature, had intended throwing open the banquet rooms and giving the guests a dinner.

"Something substantial," said the duke.

But Gerald emphatically opposed any such idea.

"What?" he said; "you don't go to dine at the theater?"

"Except at the Galety," murmured the duke.

"Let them come straight from their own places, and take their numbered seats as they would at a real theater. If you like to give them anything to eat while they are here—"

"Of course I must, my dear!" said her grace. "Do you want them fainting in the middle of the performance?"

"Then fit up some refreshment bars—"

"My dear Gerald!" repeated Gerald, unflinchingly; "in the anterooms, and let the men go and get it for the ladies!"

"That's it, your grace," said Harold, with his frank smile; "and let some of the prettiest of the maid-servants stand behind the bars, eh, Gerald?"

"I wonder you don't want me to send Flitters, the butler, and a couple of footmen, down the stairs with bottles of beer and lemonade and cakes!" said her grace, pathetically.

"But, as usual, Gerald had his way, and the anteroom was piled up with genuine refreshment bars, at which, however, there was something more than the stale buns, flinty pastry, dried-up chocolate and fearful liquors which make the name of 'refreshment' room at the theaters such a hideous mockery.

As early as half-past seven carriages began to arrive, eight o'clock being the time for the commencement of the performance.

The guests were shown into a saloon adjoining the theater, and received by the duchess and Lady Warner. None of the performers put in an appearance before the curtain.

Meanwhile, in a suit of rooms behind the large saloon or the theater, the actors were dressing.

There was no confusion.

"If they can manage to dress and prepare in the small spaces only which we know some of the best London theaters possess, surely we can do so without muddle and confusion, with nearly all the Grange at our disposal!" said Gerald. "Let us be systematic and punctual. If we can't act, we can keep time!"

Long before seven o'clock Laura Warner and some others of the most nervous ones were dressed, and at a quarter past there was an anxious query for Lillian, who had not arrived.

At half-past, however, the Woodleigh carriage drew quietly up to the side entrance, and Lillian, closely wrapped up, was almost lifted out by Sir Talbot.

He looked anxiously and lovingly at her as she leaned upon his arm on their way to the greenroom, followed by her maid.

"Are you sure you have everything you want, my darling? Is there anything I can—or Harold? I'd better wait and see," he said, opening the door of the room to which none but the performers were admitted. "This is so new to you; I'm afraid you may be overdone!"

She turned her face away slightly. "Do not be anxious on my account," she said; "I am very strong, and shall enjoy it all, and I am sure not to be overdone."

"Ah!" he said, only half convinced; "you don't know how great a sham those theatrical affairs are! And Juliet, too, such an exhausting character! I almost wish I had not consented to your acting, my darling!"

With a smile, she drew her arm from his.

"It will not exhaust me," she said; "then she bent slightly forward, to meet his kiss, and then went in."

The room was full, not to say crowded; all the characters for the first play were dressed and waiting. A buzz of conversation, half nervous, half excited, rose on all sides, and for a moment her entrance was unnoticed, as she glided forward, some one spoke her name, and Gerald came toward her with overbrimming eagerness.

His pale, spiritual face was all aglow; his artistic sense of delight reached that point when ecstasy becomes a mingled pleasure and pain.

For a full minute he stood gazing at her marvelous beauty, never so fully revealed and enshrined as in this delicate, creamy satin, with its antique lace and pearls, then his head drooped for a moment.

When he raised it again, the boyish face was white and quivering.

"Oh, Heaven!" he murmured, "bravely. I would give all that remains of my short life to be your Romeo, my Juliet!"

None heard the piteous heart-wail but she.

With a sudden, little movement, she bent and laid her white hand on his arm, her face white as his, her eyes alight with some subtle, mysterious emotion.

"And I," she said, in a low voice that thrilled him, "would give my life to prevent it!"

No further word was possible. They were surrounded by a crowd, full of amazed admiration and wonder—admiration for her loveliness and wonder at the easy grace with which she wore the strange costume, while theirs seemed to sit as consciously upon them as if they wore a coat of mail.

Presently a little lane was formed, and Laura Warner, dressed for Julia, stood opposite her, the two beauties confronting each other, too quick to be noticed, distorted Laura's face, and her thoughtful eyes beamed with reluctant admiration; then, as she glided up to her and kissed her, she said:

Dinners With Their Majesties

Table Etiquette the King Mayn't Forget.

Dinner has become a much more elaborate meal at Marlborough House than it used to be.

To start with, the number of servants who wait at table have been more than doubled, and each is arrayed in the full scarlet-and-white livery of the Court; each, of course, will wear whilst the Court is in mourning a black band on the left sleeve.

When his Majesty was Prince of Wales only three servants were on duty at dinner, but now the number has increased to eight, under the control of a Groom of Chambers, who does not wait himself, but directs the movements of his subordinates. The King is waited on by a special servant, who does not attend to anyone else at table. Their Majesties, as Prince and Princess of Wales, would often dine quite en famille; but now the Royal party at dinner seldom consists of less than a dozen.

Forty-Five Minute Meals.

Dinner is served in the large dining-room on the first floor at a quarter to nine. At half-past eight the members of the Royal Household who have been commanded to be present assemble in what is known as the equestrian drawing-room, through which the King and Queen enter.

A few minutes before dinner-hour the equerry in personal attendance announces that their Majesties are about to enter the room. Everyone present rises. The King and Queen bow when they come in, and then at once lead the way to the dining-room. The dining-table is oval shaped; the King sits at the centre on one side, and Queen Mary at the other, the chief members of the Household present sitting next to their Majesties on either side.

King George likes the late monarch, greatly dislikes a prolonged meal, and dinner at Marlborough House, except when guests are present, does not last more than three-quarters of an hour. On ordinary occasions the meal is a simple one consisting of rarely more than half a dozen courses. The dinner-service usually used at Marlborough House is made of the finest Dresden China, and in the centre of each plate is a gold crown. The dishes and dish covers are all silver. At State dinner-parties a massive silver dinner-service is used.

There is no music at dinner on ordinary occasions, but when there are guests the band specially attached to the Court, known as the King's Band, or a dozen members of one of the Guards' bands, play in the hall.

Household Receptions.

The King always rises from the table first when dinner is finished, and then the Queen; when his Majesty was Prince of Wales, the Princess of Wales rose first from the table. The King and Queen then lead the way to one of the reception-rooms, usually the Crimson drawing-room, followed by their suites. At eleven o'clock the members of the Household, with the exception of one lady-in-waiting and an equerry, are dismissed, and the King and Queen retire to their private apartments.

The King and Queen, since the death of King Edward, have, of course, had no guests at Marlborough House, except Royalties and State officials, but their Majesties on several occasions have held Household receptions after dinner.

The late monarch was responsible for inaugurating these Household receptions at Buckingham Palace, shortly after his accession, with a view to bringing together the members of the Royal establishment, many of whom were not well acquainted with each other. These receptions are quite informal, and afford the King and Queen an opportunity of discussing with the various members of their Household a variety of matters in connection with the future management of the Royal establishment which their Majesties would not have time to do during the day.

CHINA CUPS and Saucers, Plates, Dishes, etc. Glass Preserves, Dishes, Tumblers, Wine Glasses, Decanters, Vases, etc. We are always fully stocked with the above lines. At LARACYS, 345 and 347 Water Street, opposite the easy grace with which she wore the strange costume, while theirs seemed to sit as consciously upon them as if they wore a coat of mail.

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

But I don't spend very much for clothes. All I've had this spring is that suit and two or three new waists and a new hat for best and my old one done over for everyday. Oh, you know. Oh, yes, and that white dress. But that isn't much, no, I don't spend much of my money for clothes, responded one of my young girl friends when the question of where all her money went arose, and I suggested clothes as one important item.

"Just how much do you think you spend each week on clothes on an average?" I probed.

"Oh, maybe three dollars," she hazarded.

"That makes one hundred and fifty a year," I reckon. "My dear, I was talking to a girl the other day who has about half as many clothes as you do. She told me that she kept an exact account the last three years and that was about what she had spent. Now, I know you don't keep an expense account, but just for the fun of it let's try to set down just what you have spent for clothes this last year."

The plan suited, so we fetched paper and pencil. In five minutes we had passed the one hundred and fifty mark. In ten, we had reached three hundred, and, allowing a leeway of $25 for forgotten incidentals, we found that $325 would be a conservative estimate of her clothes expense for the year.

That's as close an estimate as one girl could make of the money she was spending for clothes.

How is it with you? Could you do any better?

If you are one of thosewise but rare folk who keep an accurate expense account, of course you have a very good idea. But if you are one of the big majority who don't, I fancy you couldn't come any nearer the truth on a rough estimate than my little friend did.

Why not take your pencil and pad and try to find out some day just what you really are spending on this item.

The result will interest you anyway and perhaps also amaze you.

Maybe you'll find you spend less than you thought—and then again maybe you won't.

It doesn't seem possible to me that there can be anyone among my good friends—the readers who would do it—and yet—you see there are so many "just thoughtless" people in the world.

"What is 'it'?" Why the crime of the summer, the going away and leaving one's pets unprovided for.

Already they have begun to appear in our back yard—those gaunt gosses of winter pets, roving hungrily around would the crumb bucket and snatching wolfishly at scraps that pigs would hardly touch.

I have a friend—an acquaintance I would say—who one day when she was out walking with me fainted because she happened to see a dog killed by an automobile.

"I am so sensitive to suffering," she explained to the vastly impressed group that had gathered about her in the drug store where we were bringing her to with salts, "I cannot bear to see even a fly or a worm killed."

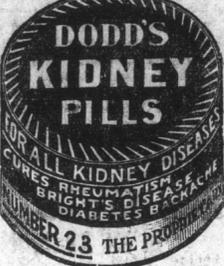

Yesterday I recognized her cat in our back yard horde—the thinnest most wolfish creature of them all.

If anybody had suggested to her that she have that cat painlessly killed before she went away she would probably have wept at the thought.

Maybe you can't afford to have your cat boarded while you are away by a friend or one of the animal boarding houses kept for the purpose.

But you can at least afford ten cents worth of chloroform, can't you?

For a breakfast fruit serve steamed figs occasionally. Cook them for hours in a double boiler, adding a heaping cupful of sugar and the juice of a lemon to a pound of the fruit. Add just enough water to cover the fruit in the cooking.

In making a salad dressing in which onion is used for seasoning, it is very satisfactory to pour vinegar or lemon juice over the onion and let it stand for a few hours; the flavour of the onion is more delicate than if added directly.

To make a simple paste, soak gum tragacanth in enough cold water to cover for twelve hours and scent with oil of cloves. A teaspoonful of the oil of cloves is sufficient for a quart of paste. If the paste becomes thick, thin with a little cold water.

A grater is well nigh indispensable in the kitchen. If there is not one at hand the deficiency may be made good by puncturing the top of a baking powder can with a nail. An improvised grater of this sort will be found satisfactory for grating coconut, potato or chocolate.

Kaiser's Crippled Arm.

The abscess—now rapidly disappearing—which has recently disabled the Kaiser's right hand, has brought into notice the wonderful quickness and dexterity with which he has cultivated his left arm, which from birth has been almost useless, by reason of its shortness and the stiffness of the muscles of the hand.

The expedients which the Kaiser employs to overcome such a defect—particularly troublesome to one who has to live so much in public—are many and ingenious. When he is on horseback, for example, his reins are passed through a slip of wood in such a way that they cannot slip forward out of his hand, so that the horse is always "kept up to the bridle."

For meals he uses special table instruments. His body-servant, who is in the closest personal attendance on the Kaiser wherever he goes, brings to the table a number of special silver forks in a leather case. When the Kaiser is dining out, his place is always left for his servant to lay with these implements himself. The forks are somewhat heavier than the ordinary kind, and their outside right-hand prong is stouter than the others, and has a flat edge so that it can be used as a knife. With the greatest dexterity the Kaiser first cuts up his meat and then conveys it to his mouth with this combined instrument, using only his right hand. So skillful is he with it that he can even eat lobster gracefully by its aid.

With his right hand the Kaiser is restlessly active. Even in the intervals of signing State documents he makes sketches on the blotting-pad or any other handy piece of paper. Almost invariably, as is only natural for the "Great War Lord," he chooses military subjects for this purpose. Often he draws a Roman warrior on a city wall; sometimes a soldier of later times. With the details of the uniforms of all periods of history he is wonderfully familiar, and in his hasty sketches he always seizes upon the essential characteristics of the figure he is portraying.

Honored by Women

When a woman speaks of her silent secret suffering she trusts you. Millions have bestowed this mark of confidence on Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y. Everywhere there are women who bear witness to the wonder-working, curing-power of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription—which saves the suffering sex from pain, and successfully grapples with woman's weaknesses and stubborn ills.

No woman's appeal was ever misdirected or her confidence misplaced when she wrote for advice, to the WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, Dr. R. V. Pierce, President, Buffalo, N. Y.

HOUSEHOLD NOTES.

The Irish crochet hat pins and neck pins are easily cleaned with the floral hat pins use gasoline; a nail brush and rich, white soap lather is better for the neck pins or the crochet buttons.

Vases, vinegar cruets and other bottles may be cleaned with a handful of raw rice in soapuds vigorously shaken. The rice is better than shot for this purpose and polishes as well as cleans.

A Spanish custom is to put a few pieces of crustless bread in the salad bowl when a French dressing is used. The bread absorbs the extra dressing, and is served, of course, with the salad.

A delicious salad may be made of celery root. Boil it until tender; then cut in dice-shaped pieces and mix with a little minced onion. Serve with French dressing on water cress or hearts of lettuce.

A great deal of time will be saved the home dressmaker if she writes the name on every part of a pattern. Then should the separate pieces become misplaced it is a simple matter to sort the patterns.

If one wishes to remove an oil paint spot from a woollen or cotton fabric, first cover with lard, to soften the paint. Then use turpentine to remove the paint. Use soap and water to remove the lard spot.

Keep a few marbles in the kitchen. When preserving or canning fruit or making jelly put them in the kettle. The boiling will keep the marbles moving and so prevent the contents of the kettle burning.

A very pretty garnish is made by cutting a boiled beet around and around, much as one would pare an apple. Then put the vegetable back into its original shape and shave it into tiny strips. The effect is unusual.

W. J. HERDER, - - Proprietor W. F. LLOYD, - - Editor.

Monday, July 18, 1910.

Mr. Mullaly's Motion.

We direct the attention of our readers to the letter of "Reform" on Mr. Mullaly's notice of motion. The terms of that notice are as follows: "I hereby give notice that I will, at the next regular meeting of the Council, move that a special audit be held into the financial affairs of the Council, same audit to extend over a period of the past four years."

A presumption might arise from this that no audit of the accounts of the Municipal Council had taken place.

This presumption, however, is negated by the facts of the case. We are informed that for years an audit of the accounts has been held monthly by Auditor General Bertram. This is in pursuance of clause 148 of the St. John's Municipal Act, 1902, which runs as follows:—

"The Comptroller and Auditor General, upon the order of the Governor in Council, shall have power from time to time to examine and audit the books of account of the Council, and for such purpose the Council, their clerks and servants, shall produce before him all such books, accounts, vouchers, correspondence, and other documents, and furnish all such information as he shall require for the purpose of such audit. The Comptroller and Auditor General shall make a report upon the said accounts up to the close of the next preceding fiscal year, which report shall be laid before the Legislature at the next session within fourteen days of the opening thereof. The amount of compensation to the said Auditor General shall be determined by the Governor in Council and be paid by the Council."

The terms of Mr. Mullaly's motion are thus inferentially an unfavourable reflection on the monthly audit of the Auditor General. We learn, however, that Mr. Mullaly disavows any intention of casting an unfavourable reflection on the Auditor General or any member of the late Council, but that he has distinct and definite objects in view.

The terms of his motion seem to us, therefore, not to be in accordance with his intention. He should make his objects clear, and if those objects are reasonable and proper, pursue them.

The Canadian Railway Dispute.

Special to Evening Telegram. MONTREAL, July 17. Apparently the critical stage in the dispute between the Grand Trunk Railway and its Trainmen, Yardmen and Conductors is now close at hand and it will depend up on the attitude to be taken by the Coy. whether there is an extensive strike on both the Grand Trunk and the Central Vermont Railroads.

Fatal Railway Collision

Special to the Evening Telegram. MELBOURNE, Eng., July 17. The Brighton express, bound for Melbourne, collided to-day at the Richmond station with a standing train, of which two carriages and the guards' van were wrecked, 8 persons were killed and 3 injured.

POLICE COURT NEWS.

There was a large docket before Judge Conroy to-day. A drunk and disorderly who fought on the street was fined $5 or 14 days but his opponent who was not in fault was released. A party who fought with a cabman was fined a similar sum the latter being discharged. A disorderly was discharged. A drunk was fined $1, or 5 days and another $2 or 7 days. Two ordinary drunks were discharged.

Critch vs. Lewis and John and Wm. Thorn of Torbay vs. Nathan Thorne. These were fishery cases in which plaintiffs contended that drifts, traps were set nearer to their than the 80 fathoms which the law allows. The cases in which Messrs. Gibbs and Higgins appeared as counsel occupied the attention of His Honour all the forenoon. An assault case was adjourned sine die.

Two Bankers Here.

The banker Huron, of New Pelican, Capt. W. Martin, arrived from the Grand Banks Saturday, with 100 qts. fish for one week's fishing on caplin bait. She has now 1,400 qts. fish for 9 dories and reports fish scarce. She came here for squid bait. The bank-er Blanche Forsay, Capt. W. Forsay of Grand Bank, also arrived Saturday evening with 200 qts. and she has now 1,500 qts. to her credit for 8 dories. She came in for a new fog horn and water. The crew say there is plenty of fish on the Banks if squid could be procured to catch it. The vessel sails for the banks to-morrow.

Terrible Accident.

D. A. Vail Fatally Injured While Charging a Soda Fountain.

On Wednesday evening shortly before eight o'clock, when the crowds were watching the movements of the 74th regiment, D. A. Vail, the well known merchant was terribly injured by the explosion of a soda water cylinder. Mr. Vail was as busy as a bee all day and started to recharge an empty cylinder. A few minutes later he lay an inert mass, with his abdomen terribly mangled and his skull fractured in three places. The explosion could be heard for some distance from the store and Mr. Vail was quickly surrounded by friends who did what they could for him until the arrival of Drs. McAllister and Ryan. Mr. Vail was found to be suffering intense pain and was immediately removed to his home where Dr. MacLaren was called into consultation and trepanning was commenced with the hope of saving the victim's life. Only a miracle, however, can enable the victim to recover from the effects of such a frightful experience.

The scene of the accident was a room at the back of the store. It was dark at the time and the blind was down. The retort in which the carbonic acid gas is generated stands against the wall and on top was the pressure gauge, which had not been working well. It was invisible to the operator, who sat on a bag and held the cylinder between his legs, after Mr. Vail had been working for some minutes, there was heard a terrible explosion and those who first reached the scene witnessed an awful sight. Blood covered the floor and laying across a bag was the victim of the accident. The lower part of his body had been torn by the solid steel of the cylinder, which was ripped apart like so much paper. A great hole in its side told the story. Mr. Vail's worst injuries were received as he fell forward. An iron lever, used to control the pressure, struck him full in the forehead, inflicting three gashes and smashed the skull in three places. Although every effort was made to give relief to the sufferer, the doctors in attendance were unable to offer any hope of recovery.

This morning at 10 o'clock Mr. Vail breathed his last, after a strong fight for life during the night, but despite strong constitution the victim was unable to overcome effects of his frightful injuries.—I. X. last Thursday.

Steamer Does Damage.

When the S. S. Susu arrived here Saturday, in being docked she hit the breast work of George Neal's wharf and her bow went through the shed standing there smashing off several beams and breaking up considerable of the woodwork. Four puncheons of molasses of a lot stowed there were badly smashed and the contents of them were lost.

Seven Met Death in an Avalanche.

Grindenwald, Switzerland, July 12.—Further details have been received here in regard to the avalanche which overwhelmed two parties of Alpinists near the Bergli hut. The avalanche occurred while the party was on the little Scheidegg, 350 feet above the Bergli hut. The first party included two women. The second consisted of porters, who were taking provisions to the Bergli and Concordia huts. The dead include two male tourists, both of whom are Germans, and five guides. The others in the two parties were injured.

Fishery Report.

To-day's reports show squid making its appearance in many places north and west. Hant's Hr.—2 to 3 qts. per trap. Western Bay—Traps there and in the vicinity 5 to 30 qts. Northern Bay—Traps 2 to 7 qts. Bonne Bay—Cod scarce many salmon being taken from cod traps and nets. Carbonar—Traps 1 to 3, squid plentiful. Tilt Cove—Good fishery at Shoe Cove, Saturday for traps and hook and line. Herring Neck—Boats 1 to 3 qts. Saturday. Fogo—Fishery Saturday here and at Barr'd Islands and Joe Batts arm good fishing with hooks and trawls; squid bait to-day in.

Sentenced to Strangling

How the Law's Greatest Penalty is Carried Out in Other Countries. Lieutenant Horfichter, the Austrian officer convicted of poisoning his superior officers in the attempt to win promotion, has been sentenced to be strangled.

Austria is the only country which employs this particular method of execution, but Spain's garrote is very similar. The original method of garrotting was, in fact, nothing but strangling. The criminal was seated on a chair fixed to a post, a loop of rope was placed incircling his neck and the post, and by means of a stick or cudgel (Spanish, "garrote") inserted between the post and the condemned man's neck, the cord was tightened until strangulation ensued. The modern garrote consists of a brass collar containing a sharp-pointed screw. The executioner turns the screw, and its point penetrates the spinal marrow, causing instant death.

Hanging in the Olden Days.

Every civilized country does its best nowadays to make the dreadful task of execution as rapid and painless as possible. Hanging as at present performed is a very different matter from what it used to be. Till nearly the end of the eighteenth century, the condemned man was made to stand in a cart with the rope round his neck, and the cart was then driven away from under him. In 1783 Parliament abolished this practice as being too barbarous, and a platform was substituted for the cart. In 1874 this method was improved by proportioning the length of the drop to the weight of the body. The drop is so nicely adjusted that the mere fall is on occasions ruptures the ligatures of the spine, and so causes death at least as certain and instantaneous as the electric method which has been adopted in America.

The State of New York inaugurated the electric chair twenty-one years ago, but its only advantage over our method is that the man who switches on the current is out of sight of the death chamber, and so escapes the gruesome title of public executioner. Formerly all criminals in this country died by the axe, and undoubtedly the axe in the hands of a skilful headsmen was as merciful an instrument of death as any which exists to-day. In Prussia decapitation by the axe is still the recognized method of execution, but the rest of Germany follows the example of France, and uses the guillotine.

The Frenchman's "Widow."

Execution had almost become obsolete in France until public sentiment was so roused by the ever increasing number of brutal murders that in January of last year "the Widow," as the French term the instrument, was dragged out of its retirement, and four miscreants were publicly executed at Bethune in the north of France. The guillotine was invented by a doctor named Guillotin more than a century ago, but it is not true that the inventor fell a victim to his own device. He died quietly in his bed. The guillotine consists of two upright posts grooved on the inside. An immensely heavy and sharp steel blade is fixed to slide in these grooves and the executioner has nothing to do but pull a rope, when the blade drops and decapitates the victim instantly.

A terribly peculiarity of French law is that in the case of parricide the sentence must be read aloud to the condemned man when he reaches the guillotine. This was actually done when Duchemin, who murdered his mother, was executed in September last. Persia last year suffered from a revolution. Four conspirators who were caught in the act of throwing a bomb in the crowded bazaar at Teheran were hanged and quartered in the same fashion that prevailed in this country up to the seventeenth century. The remains of the wretched men were hung at the city gates as a horrible warning.

Flogged to Death in Morocco.

Morocco is perhaps the most medieval country in existence. Flogging to death is still in vogue. No longer ago than May last Malal Hafid had the Shereef Kittain executed in this horrible fashion. The Amer of Afghanistan has peculiar methods of making the punishment fit the crime. A baker, for selling short weight, was roasted in his own oven, and a man who had started a scare that the Russians were advancing on Kabul was placed on a stool fastened on top of a tall pole, and kept there on sentry go till he died of sleeplessness and exhaustion. There are a few countries where capital punishment has been abolished, notably Switzerland. In Italy, also, there have been no executions for civil offences for many years past.

SCARLET FEVER AGAIN.

Three cases of scarlet fever were reported to the health authorities this morning. Two of the patients are young men, who will be nursed at home, and the third is a girl, aged 16, who will be treated at the hospital.

The Strange Disappearance of Mr. J. T. Sutton.

We made enquiries about J. T. Sutton from friends this morning, who knew him. His sister is living in New York, but his wife and children are residing here on McFarlane's St. Mrs. Sutton, whose name was Miss Caul before marriage, is now working in the sewing dept. at Jackman the Tailor's. Her friends said that she was not expecting her husband home. On enquiry at the Reid Nbd. luggage department this morning, Mr. Burke informed us that there was no luggage there marked for J. T. Sutton, but quite a good percentage comes with no name on it, the owner merely holding the check to secure possession on arrival at terminus. There is some luggage of this kind there at the present time. Mr. J. W. N. Johnston says that no enquiries from Sydney have been made at his department—general passenger office. The North Sydney Daily Post of the 16th reports that Diver Tuck would search the bottom at the terminus wharf, Friday evening last for Sutton's body. The Post article further says that Sutton was on his way home from the Alaska gold fields and was known to have a good deal of money with him when he purchased his ticket at the Reid Co's. office here. Shortly before the Bruce sailed on Thursday night of last week he was seen about the wharf by several persons who knew him, and being some what under the influence of liquor at the time, his friends here fear that he fell into the dock and was drowned. Sutton was a good swimmer. He was 35 years of age and was on his way home to his wife and family in St. John's when he disappeared. His baggage which he had checked here on the night of his arrival, has been forwarded to St. John's.

Damaged by Lightning.

In the storm that prevailed last Saturday morning at 3, a thunder bolt struck the residence of Capt. S. Bartlett while all the inmates were in bed. The chimney was split from the top right down to the floor of the second story. The mirrors and pictures on the walls of the rooms were broken and the drapery set on fire by the lightning, the fire spread to the paper on the walls of a bedroom occupied by Rev. Mr. Bartlett, Capt. Bartlett's son. He procured a bucket of water and put out the fire.

SOUTH SIDE FIRE.—At 3 o'clock this morning some old brin bags and refuse on Bowring's lower south side premises caught fire and the blaze was discovered by Watchman Rodgers, who called up some of the employees and with water from the harbor quenched the blaze. Not much damage was done.

One story, I believe unpublished, of King Edward's tact is (says a writer in The Sketch) a prettier example than most of his kind. The Shah of Persia was dining at Marlborough House; the dessert being reached he stretched his hand and took a large and very pulpy fruit from the centre of the table. After one or two mouthfuls he threw the remaining portion, with skin and stone, over his shoulder so that they hit the wall behind him with much squelching noise. One other fruit of the same store was on the dish, and there was a horrified pause in the talk; would the guest from afar repeat the operation before the rather fastidious eyes of the Prince of Wales, as he then was? Edward himself broke the suspense. Taking the fruit, he ate a mouthful. The rest he threw over his shoulder so that it bespattered the wall behind him.

At the Barber's.

"You are very bald, sir," said the barber to little Binks, as the latter took up his position in the chair.

"What's that you say?" asked Binks, pleasantly.

"I say you are very bald, sir," repeated the barber.

"Who is?" asked Binks.

"You, sir," said the barber.

"What paper did you see that in?" demanded Binks.

"What what, sir?" asked the barber.

"What newspaper?" repeated Binks. "I read 'Tit-Bits, Woman's Life, Country Life, and The Garden, but I didn't see any reference to this. Was it one of the early editions of the evening papers?"

"Was what, sir?" queried the puzzled barber.

"This thing you were just telling me," said Binks.

"Why, I don't remember telling you—" began the barber.

"About my being bald, you know," said Binks. "You said I was very bald, didn't you?"

"Yes," said the barber; "but I didn't mention the newspapers, sir. Why should it be in the newspapers, sir?"

"Why, because it's news, isn't it?" said Binks.

"It shouldn't say that, sir," said the barber.

"Well, if it isn't news, what in thunder did you tell me about it for?" demanded Binks. "I suppose you had read about it in one of the papers, and had reached the conclusion that I didn't know it. If you find a mole under my left ear while shaving me, break it to me gently, please, and you may omit all mention of the fact that my beard is getting grey. I am trying to stave off a realization of the

The Crippen Murder.

Special Evening Telegram. LONDON, July 17. The Hilldrop residence of Dr. Hawley Crippen, in the cellar of which the mutilated body of a woman was found early last week, was visited to-day by thousands of Londoners. All day long the house was the centre of attraction for great crowds curiously interested in the digging operations of the police, which has been renewed in the hope of finding some further clue to the crime. Friends of the doctor's wife, known under the stage name of Belle Elmore, are convinced that the body which is now awaiting the Coroner's inquest will prove to be that of the missing singer. The nature of the report of the doctors who have made an examination of the body has not been disclosed, but it is announced that they are convinced from examination of the dead woman's heart that she did not suffer from disease of that organ. English detectives have been sent to different places in the hope that they might find Dr. Crippen who, so far, has managed to cover up his movements completely.

When the excursion train reached Mount Pearl last night there was a rush of people to get into the cars and escape the rain which fell in torrents, as a result Mrs. H. Morey was thrown down and had one of her legs so badly hurt that she had to be lifted bodily into the train, and on arrival at the station here had to be taken on a truck to a carriage in waiting and driven home. For a while it was thought the limb was broken. A doctor was called to attend her.

Forty Dollars Stolen.

A lady who, with her daughter, arrived here from the United States last week on a visit to friends, reported to the police that about $40 had been stolen from her. She had the money distributed in three purses and a small calico bag, the whole contained in a satchel. She said she visited a house when she had the satchel, and on returning home she found the contents gone. The people of the house which she visited, who are respectable, well-to-do folk, indignantly deny that the money was lost in their residence.

London's Taxicabs.

They are increasing in Number and the Chauffeurs Don't Cheat. How rapidly the number of taxicabs is increasing is seen by the fact that on January 1, 1904, there was but one, the following year there were two, and then the figures for succeeding years were 19, 96, 733, 2,805 and 5,070. In the same period horse cabs showed a steady decline from 11,404 in 1904 to 5,714.

Londoners have the best of New Yorkers in the matter of taxicabs. In London the legal fare of taxicabs is 10 cents, for the first mile and for each succeeding mile. Waiting time is charged for at the rate of about 2 cents a minute.

Taxicabs have meant ruin to the hansom but a renewal of life to the four wheel cab. The figures now stand: Taxicabs, 5,070; four wheelers, 3,066; hansom, 2,648. Taxicabs are therefore nearly as numerous as hansom and four wheelers combined. The humble "growler" as London slang has nicknamed the four wheeler, has, thanks to its baggage carrying capacity, outnumbered the "gondola of London."

The newest taxicabs are as luxurious as the limousines of the rich. They are handsomely upholstered, are ventilated and lighted by electricity and there is a dial with a pointer that gives various signals to the chauffeur. There can be no disputes about the fares, for the fare register is plainly visible from the inside of the cab, and is lighted brightly at night by a tiny electric lamp. The figures on the register are also visible from the sidewalk.

The London police and police magistrates keep the chauffeur of the taxicab straight with a grip of iron. He cannot swindle his passengers, and he rarely tries to; even the tenderfoot American is exempt.

NOTE OF THANKS.—Father Coady desires to thank the lady table holders to whose efforts the success of the Manuel Garden Party was in a large measure due, also the many friends at St. John's and the South-east Shore who so kindly sent donations.

Evening at Killbride.

A large number of the parishioners of St. Patrick's Church assembled at Brien's Farm, Killbride, yesterday afternoon. The weather was beautiful and the surrounding scenery delightful. The gathering was purely an informal one, and the success that attended it is due in a large measure to Misses Nell and Belle Murphy, of Riverhead. Tea was served on the grounds, and if everybody who attended did not find the conditions up to their expectations they are asked to remember that the ladies who organized the affair did not in their most enthusiastic moments expect that there would be half as many people attend. The receipts amounted to $20, and will be given to St. Patrick's Church Fund.

MUNICIPAL MATTERS

A False Move at the Start.

Mr. Editor,—
I hasten to pay my respects to the new Municipal Council and to open an acquaintance with the members of that responsible body which may be of some duration, which I should wish to be cordial, but certainly shall be candid. It would have been very gratifying to me, who have criticised their predecessors with some sharpness, to have been able to fill my first letter to our new governors with words of congratulation, encouragement and kindly counsel, to have assured them of my willingness to think the best of them and to anticipate good results from their tenure of office. It is really painful to be compelled at the very outset to adopt towards them an attitude which must be critical, and which may be hostile. Perhaps that is stating the case too strongly, for nothing has yet occurred to lead us to believe that any single Councillor will follow the lead of Mr. Mullally. It is most devoutly to be hoped, for the honour and credit of the city, that none of them will. It was with something of a shock that I read the notice of motion which Mr. Mullally filed at the meeting of Council last night. This gentleman, who is not yet seated for twenty-four hours in office, is desirous of inaugurating the new regime by a wholesale attack upon the integrity of its predecessor. He wants the Council immediately to cause an audit to be made of the financial affairs of the Council during the whole period of the mayoralty of Mr. Gibbs. Such a motion as this, made at such a time, is happily unprecedented in our history. The demand for an audit can only be made with the expectation of discovering and exposing peculation and dishonesty. This audit can serve no other purpose than this. It cannot be urged that the finances of the city have not been looked into and reported upon regularly, for every year an official audit is made by the Auditor General and his report is annually laid upon the table of the Assembly. Matters must be technically right. It therefore follows that a new and independent audit will be to disclose matters of fraud or concealment which have misled the official auditor and will justify the city in incurring a large expense and much scandal, to unearth and expose. This is a very serious thing to do, and a very outrageous thing to do at this moment. Many members of this new Council are anxious gentlemen inaugurate their career by an act of scandalous injustice to wards those who preceded them in office. When once it is shown that there is good reason to believe that the late Council has been corrupt I shall be as ready as any man to call for an audit, and for a prosecution, if necessary. But I am not ready to recommend such a course until cause for it is shown. And I am sure that Mr. Mullally has not, within twenty-four hours of his entrance upon his office, made such discoveries as warrant the Council in recording their suspicion and reasonable certainty of the unfaithfulness of the late Council. Mr. Mullally may have some suspicions. If he has, let him use his time in verifying those suspicions, and when he has made out a case sufficient, strong to justify him in making a charge, let him make the charge and call for an investigation by auditors. Until he does this it becomes him to do nothing which may asperse the reputations of men whom the city thought worthy of trust. Public life would be quite unbearable if officials were to enter upon their duties with the certainty that their successor would seize the first opportunity of overhauling their whole conduct with a view to fasten upon them the imputation of dishonour. I believe with all my heart in full and dispassionate enquiry into every case where wrong doing can with a show of justice be charged against an official, but I do not believe in instituting enquiries for the mere purpose of verifying suspicions which may only be the product of diseased imagination. Such things as this it is which deter decent men from entering public life. A decent man does not like to begin a career where it will from the very first be assumed that he is a rogue. Let Mr. Mullally reconsider his position and withdraw this most obnoxious motion. I have no objection to his pushing his enquiries into the late Council's affairs as far as he can, or to his calling for an official enquiry in the event of his discovering any boodling on the part of Mr. Gibbs and the gentlemen who assisted him as Councillors. But ordinary decency requires that these gentlemen shall retain the character for probity which the city gave them when it elected them to office until good cause is shown for withdrawing from them the good opinion which was registered in the ballot box. I dare say that I know as much as Mr. Mullally about the financial management of the city during the last four years, and I hope to have some very pertinent criticisms of the way in which our city fathers dealt with our money matters. But I know nothing which can lead me to

Nutritive Hypophosphites

When a person feels "blue" "all tired out"—"doesn't feel like doing anything"—cannot concentrate his mind on his work—feels weak mentally and physically—doubts his powers—complains of poor appetite and sleeplessness—suffers from headaches—then his nervous system is run-down and demands a good up-building tonic. Nervous exhaustion is a modern disease, caused by too close attention to business, overwork, worry, devotion to trying family cares over-study, etc.

Nutritive Hypophosphites forms the best nerve and brain food known, and have restored thousands of sufferers to health. Large bottle, $1.00.

believe that there has been any personal want of integrity on the part of any Councillor, nor do I believe that Mr. Mullally knows anything. And until I know something of that sort I protest against the reputation of the city being dishonoured by any such enquiry as Mr. Mullally seeks.

Yours truly,

AT GOWER ST. CHURCH.—Rev. Mr. Hutcheson, of North Dakota, who is here on a visit, preached at Gower St. Methodist Church yesterday morning, delivering an excellent sermon. Those present who remembered the fire of 1892, which destroyed old Gower St. Church, were reminded that he had also occupied the pulpit on the Sunday morning preceding that great conflagration.

Badly Hurt In Thresher

Blood poison set in—Great suffering—Cure effected by DR. A. W. CHASE'S OINTMENT.
Mrs. C. Hopkins, St. George, Ont., writes:—"I feel like shouting the praises of Dr. Chase's Ointment. While threshing grain, my son got badly hurt. One of the men who was pitching sheaves, missed the sheaf and ran the prongs of the fork into my son's leg. He did not take much notice of it and in a day or two it got sore and very itchy and blood poison set in. We did everything for it but it would heal one place and break out at another and kept on this way for three months. Finally I thought of Dr. Chase's Ointment and in a week's time we noticed a wonderful change. By the use of three boxes he was completely cured and the wounds healed up. There has not been a sign of a spot on him since." Whenever there is itching or irritation of the skin or a sore that refuses to heal you can apply Dr. Chase's Ointment with every assurance that the results will be prompt and satisfactory. 60 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edman, Bait, & Co., Toronto. At Mount Carmel.

Yesterday's Mortuary Requiem Service—Thousands Throng the Grounds.

Long before the appointed hour for the ceremonies yesterday thousands had assembled at Mount Carmel Cemetery, and spent the intervening time in viewing the improvements to the grounds carried out faithfully by the committee under the direction of His Grace Archbishop Howley. The Cemetery is indeed an ideal spot, sloping as it does down the sunny incline and looking towards the beautiful lake of Quidi Vidi. The picture presented yesterday morning was not one soon to be forgotten. Thousands knelt at the grave plots of departed friends. The neatness of the walks, the newly trimmed graves ornamented with choice flowers, the rich foliage of the poplar, lilac, and flowering shrubs, all told of the care and attention for the beloved dead.

Rev. Dr. Kitchen and the acolytes arrived in a carriage at 10.15, and shortly afterwards the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass began. At the conclusion the Celebrant ascended the steps at the entrance of the Chapel and addressed the multitude in fervent and earnest words, taking as his text as follows:—"It is a holy and wholesome thought to pray for the dead, that they may be loosed from their sins." He spoke for over half an hour, and many eyes were bedimmed with tears. The doctrine of the Resurrection of the Body, as one of the fundamental truths of Christianity, was expatiated upon, and the consoling Catholic doctrine of the merit of prayers for the departed souls in Purgatory.

Great credit is due the sexton, Mr. Geo. Bassett, for the beautiful appearance of the walks, trees, etc.—Com.

After the transaction of some minor business, the meeting adjourned. The Finance and Building Committees will hold a special meeting on next Sunday, after Last Mass.

The Guy Celebration at Harbor Grace.

Preparations for the Ter-Centenary celebration are progressing satisfactorily. The "sluings of war" has attained the sum of over $1,700; and when the subscriptions are all in, ample for all purpose required will be provided. Citizens and outside friends need have no fear that their donations will not be needed or will be misspent. Good trustworthy men are at the head of affairs that will not permit squandering. All moneys not required for a worthy celebration of the occasion will be put into the Guy Hospital Fund. There is every likelihood that the negotiations now in progress will result in H.M.S. Brilliant being on the scene when the sham battle will take place. The programme will be an attractive one. An industrial exhibition at which native manufactured goods from St. John's and outports, including fish products, will be displayed during the three days of the celebration. It is not expected that any one hall in town will accommodate all that will be displayed. Besides Harbor Grace exhibitors a number of the leading manufacturers of St. John's and the outports have signified their intention to send exhibits. The Lakes, of Fortune, will be represented with wood and fishery products. Grand Falls will send an exhibit, the Reid Nfd. Co. and many others will, it is expected, do the same. Several have sent handsome donations.

Littledale Garden Party

New and Attractive Features.
As already announced, in the event of unfavourable weather on Wednesday of the present week, July 20th, the date set apart for the Littledale garden party, teas, refreshments, etc., will be served in the British Hall from 2.30 p.m., after which at 7.30 there will be a concert, in which several of our leading vocalists will lend their valuable aid. Following the concert a dance will begin at 9.30. Should the weather conditions prove favourable, the garden party will take place at the delightful and picturesque grounds of Littledale. The gates will open from 2 o'clock p.m., and the most fastidious will find that every possible arrangement has been made to cater for all. The ladies in charge have been working industriously and unceasingly, and have been remarkably successful, so that their various tables will be laden with good things, delicious and enticing. Tea tables, refreshment tables, ice cream, etc., will be galore. A skittle alley will be an attraction for many. A leading attraction will be the "Football Shooting Gallery." This will test the accuracy of our local footballers, and the Star sharpshooters as champions, and our other leading footballers, will find that their skill will be severely tested. In addition, there will be ring-boards, etc., to amuse others. Quite a pleasant and attractive feature will be vocal items, rendered by several of our best and leading vocalists, in the spacious and beautiful hall at Littledale. These vocal items will be interspersed periodically, and will extend over about ten minutes for each item, beginning at 1.30, 4.30 and 5.30. The names of the vocalists will appear later. Arrangements will also be made, by the courtesy of the Reid Nfd. Co., to have a special train run out to Waterford Bridge Station (2 minutes walk from Littledale grounds) at 4 o'clock, for a very trifling fare. This will also be definitely announced later. With fine weather success is assured, and this opportunity is available of to sincerely thank all who are in any way assisting in this deserving cause. The excellent band of the T. A. Society will be in attendance throughout the day.

Sidewalks a Disgrace and Annoyance.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—I have been waiting over three weeks of painful torture to see what steps the City Council intend taking to remedy the sidewalks around the city. One month ago there were two or three cart loads of crushed stone thrown on the sidewalk opposite my door, and in fact all along for several blocks. I fully expected to see it covered with gravel during the next few days, but no, the caravan still moves on dumping stone all along the different parts of the city. Is the Road Inspector in league with the shoemakers, of is he too stupid to see that each block should be gravelled after laying the stone? Surely, Mr. Editor, some of our new Councilors will have this nuisance remedied at once. Thanking you in advance for publication.
Yours truly,

Shannahan Reviews the Condition of the Workingman,

AND IS OF THE OPINION THAT IMPROVEMENT IS NECESSARY.

How is it that before a man strikes a good soft Government job he never requires a six months holiday, his health is good, and the native air agrees with him. When he was on the opposition side he could chew "hard knock" and wrestle with a jowl with any of his acquaintances; he could fog a good short T. D. pipe, and chew a stick of Mayo's every day he got up. His sight was a great deal better, too, for when he was "amongst the middlins" he could see his old chums and recognize them. But one muddly day in the fall people led astray by his preaching marked sufficient ballot papers to elect him, and immediately the poll is declared he's a top notch. His wife sighs for a trip on the continent, and he thinks 'twell add to his importance to take it, and one fine day in July they stand on the deck of an Allan liner and shape their course for the "other side." All the time he's away the Colony pays his expenses, and he returns home weighing a lot more than when he started. What I want to get at is, how is it that the poor workingman lives at all, at all, without any of this change of air business. He has to live, for if he doesn't live he can die and be hanged. Are Government positions dangerous to the health of the recipient? It looks like it, either that or they are working it good. They have the best of houses, they have automobiles and every kind of luxury but they are not satisfied. While the workingman is housed in a home of three or four rooms and afraid to leave his window up at night because his home is barricaded with night soil cans.

It's time for us to wake up in this country. High time for those in authority to come in, closer to the workingman and examine the conditions under which he exists. We have too much shilly-shallying; too many wild cat schemes, and too little attention paid to matters right under our nose. Let anyone take up the Revenue

At Last an English Chemist Has Discovered How to Grow Hair.

McMURDO & CO. HAVE IMPORTED IT.
In England the ladies have entirely abandoned wearing rats, which is due entirely to this new discovery. It has been proven that Henna leaves contain the ingredients which will positively grow hair. That they contain this long-looked-for article is proven every day. The Americans are now placing on the market a preparation containing the extract from Henna leaves, which is having a phenomenal sale. This preparation is called SALVIA, and is being sold with a guarantee to cure Dandruff and to grow hair in abundance. Being daintily perfumed, SALVIA makes a most pleasant hair dressing. McMurdo & Co., your druggist, is the first to import this preparation into St. John's, and a large, generous bottle can be purchased for 50c. For sale by dealers everywhere.

Book and look it over and you will be greatly surprised at the duty you are paying on the necessities of life. True, our flour, oil and molasses come in duty free, but that is only a blind, for we can't live on these items only, and we are paying enormous duties on all other articles of use and consumption. It's high time that we looked into the conditions of our workingmen. They are making better wages all right, but are they able to put away any money for the rainy day? The great majority of our workingmen are shrewd over a dollar. Take the outthorbar man who comes in here to live. He is no sooner here than he starts in building a home for himself. He'd hardly buy a stick of tobacco, so careful is he over his money. Work and drag, he and his family for years, and what has he for it? A square house, mortgaged, perhaps, and a broken down constitution. I have heard people say who have been in the States that if people up there worked as hard and lived on as little as some of our people down here, they'd be millionaires. This goes to prove that we are living under a rule that will have to be improved upon. Big revenues seem to be the boast of Governments around, but big revenues wrung from hand to mouth people is not an indication of prosperity. Truly, 'tis time to wake up. We are now living in a fool's paradise. Live horse and you'll get grass. The promise of good times is always held out to the working man, but it times do apparently get better the condition of the working man does not improve correspondingly. Why? Simply because if the rate of wages goes up the cost of living goes up also. 'Tis time for our politicians to take up this matter and see if something can't be done whereby sober, industrious men and women can get something more than an existence when so-called good times are the order of the day.

Strange Disappearance of a Young Newfoundland.

On His Way Home From Alaska, is Believed to Have Fallen Over Wharf into the Dock.
A week ago last night John T. Sutton, a young man belonging to St. John's, Nfd., arrived here on the early express, on his way home to his young wife and family, after an absence of eighteen months in Nome, Alaska. He purchased a ticket at the terminus shed, checked his baggage, which went on board the Bruce, and then spent some time in renewing acquaintances at the terminus, conversing with Mr. Arthur Shano, mail clerk, who was for years a personal friend at St. John's. At 10.40 Sutton was seen by Chief Steward Mulrooney, of the Bruce, walking toward the head of the wharf and returning. Shortly after, night watchman Barney eel saw the man near the mail clerk's office. That was the last seen of Sutton.

At eleven o'clock sharp the Bruce sailed for Port aux Basques, and among the baggage was the effects of Sutton. The officers of the Bruce made enquiries but nothing could be learned of Sutton and when the Bruce returned here Thursday morning the matter was discussed, when Mr. Shano says he reported the affair to the police. However, although eight days have elapsed not the slightest attempt by any one has been made to drag the dock or in any way ascertain the whereabouts of Sutton. Mr. Shano says that Sutton spoke of a friend living at Port Morien by the name of Paul Rutledge, but as the ferry steamers had made their last trip to Sydney, and as Sutton had purchased his ticket and put his baggage on board the Bruce, the theory that he remained over is improbable, as he told Mr. Shano he was anxious to rejoin his anxious wife at New Cower Street, St. John's. Although the missing man, who is a sailmaker by trade, had a considerable amount of money, which he acquired in distant Alaska, the robbery theory is forsaken, because any attempt would be noticed by those on the wharf at the time. The general belief is that Sutton either fell or walked over the wharf. Strange part of the whole thing is the fact that not the slightest attempt has been made to recover the body. When last seen Sutton wore a light suit, without a vest, and had a dark Derby hat. He was a man of about 180 pounds.—N. S. Herald, July 13.

Eczema's Tortures

All treatments failed for three long years—Cure complete with DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT.
Mrs. Link, 12 Walker St., Halifax, N. S., writes: "After three years of miserable torture and sleepless nights with terrible eczema, and after trying over a dozen remedies without obtaining anything but slight temporary relief, I have been perfectly and entirely cured by Dr. Chase's Ointment. After the third or fourth application of this grand ointment I obtained relief, and a few boxes were sufficient to make a thorough cure. It is six months since I was freed of this wretched skin disease, and as there has been no return of the trouble I consider the cure a permanent one." Such cures are not brought about by imitations and substitutes for Dr. Chase's Ointment. It is therefore necessary for you to be certain that the portrait and signature of A. W. Chase, M. D., the famous Receipt Book author, are on the box you buy. 60 cts. a box, at all dealers or Edmansson, Bates & Co., Toronto. Write for a free copy of Dr. Chase's Recipes.
