Baking at home is worth while when gratifying results like this can be obtained at little cost of time and money, with

"Paisley Flour"
The SURE raising powder.

The method is to mix dry one part "Paisley Flour" with six to eight parts ordinary flour.

Home baking by this method can be successfully acquired with very little practice, and everything is so light and well-raised that it can be eaten new without fear of indigestion.

Paisley Flour is sold in 22c., 14c., and 5c. tins. The 5c. tin will raise one pound of flour; the 14c. tin 3 1/2 pounds.

Special to Fishery Suppliers!

MINAR'S LINIMENT CURES DIPHTHERIA.

I'm the Cream of the West Miller, and I'll tell you what I'll do—I'll guarantee your next batch of bread

I WILL guarantee it to rise away up out of the pans, and make as delicious bread as you ever tasted. The loaves will be the biggest and most wholesome you ever baked with the same amount of flour. I'll guarantee it or you get back the money you paid for the flour! Now see:

Go to your grocer and buy a barrel of Cream of the West Flour. Take it home and bake it up.

Give it a trial. Give it a couple of trials. Your oven or yeast might not be just right the first time.

Now when you give it a fair trial, if you honestly feel that you have not had splendid satisfaction with Cream of the West Flour, return the unused portion of barrel and get your money back.

Just tell the store man your bread didn't come out right and you want your money back as guaranteed.

It's not the grocery man who loses. It doesn't come out of his pocket. It is the Campbell Milling Company, Limited, of Toronto, who pay, and they are satisfied to pay if you'll be satisfied to try Cream of the West Flour.

Ask your store-keeper about this guarantee. He knows. He will tell you. Try a barrel.

Cream of the West Flour

The hard wheat flour that is guaranteed for bread

Guarantee

WE hereby affirm and declare that Cream of the West Flour is a superior bread flour, and as such is subject to our absolute guarantee of money back if not satisfactory after a fair trial. Any dealer is hereby authorized to return price paid by customer on return of unused portion of barrel if flour is not as represented.

WON AT LAST.

CHAPTER XVII.

I confess I was startled—a good deal startled. The presence of anyone there at all was so unexpected, the figure had appeared so suddenly, and the clutch upon my arm was so hard, that for a second my heart seemed to leap into my throat as I tried to distinguish the man's features. Then my eyes, keen always made out the heavy, handsome, sulky countenance of Phil Flood, the blacksmith, and I wrenched my arm from his grasp with scant ceremony.

"Why, what on earth are you up to, Flood, seizing hold of me like that? One would think you were cracked!"

"Mr. Ned!" In what was evident surprise he retreated a pace, staring at me, and then stood still. "I beg your pardon, sir," he muttered, in his usual sulky way, "didn't know it was you."

"I suppose not, or you wouldn't have half wrenched my arm out of the socket," I retorted. "What did you do it for?"

"It don't matter, sir."

"Yes it does, though. You'll be laying hold of the wrong person again one of these nights, and he may not take it quietly." My impression was that Flood had been taking more than was good for him at the Cap and Bells—I knew his visits there were becoming more frequent. "Whom did you take me for, pray?"

"Why, I thought it was him"—this with a jerk of his unkempt head toward the cottage.

I stared.

"Eh? Whom do you mean?"

"Why, him—I ain't so fond of his name, Mr. Ned, sir—Doctor Yorke."

"Doctor Yorke!" I echoed, thinking that the stupid fellow's account for being, if for nothing stronger, must indeed be a long one. "And what did you want to commit assault and battery upon him for? You would have got worse than you sent, you know; Doctor Yorke stands no nonsense. What did you want with him?"

"That's my business," he returned in the same sulky way, and yet with a sort of half-smothered fierceness "I was after giving my fine gentleman a bit o' my mind."

"And what about, pray?"

"Never you mind, sir; I'll trouble him to attend to it—that's all. He's got a tongue of his own, but he'll find mine can match it."

"I suppose the meaning of all this is that Doctor Yorke has been giving you a bit of his mind," I said, fancying that I began to see what all this meant, and knowing that Roger's tongue could be most uncommonly blunt and rasping when he chose.

"Well, you know, if he has been telling you that you are trying how fast you can go to the dogs, he's only about right."

"Ay, of course!" he muttered, turning half-away, with a shrug of his broad shoulders, and a stamp of his foot. "There's ne'er a man in Whittlesford who won't join him with you there, Mr. Ned."

"Well, and it is your own fault, if it is so," I returned. "There's a good deal of truth in it, after all. Look here, Flood—take a little advice. Turn over a new leaf, and keep out of that blessed Cap and Bells. It will only ruin you, you know, and it has got to Madam Chavasse's ears already. She as good as said the other day that unless you went on better she would let some one else have the Wayside Cot-

Hair Stops Falling, Dandruff Disappears 25c. "Danderine."

SAVE YOUR HAIR! BEAUTIFY IT! INVIGORATE YOUR SCALP DANDERINE GROWS HAIR AND WE CAN PROVE IT!

Try as you will, after an application of Danderine, you cannot find a single trace of dandruff or a loose or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most, will be after a few weeks' use, when you will actually see new hair, fine and downy and first—yes—but really new hair—growing all over the scalp.

A little Danderine now will immediately double the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The effect is immediate and amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy and have an appearance of abundance; an incomparable lustre, softness and luxuriance, the beauty and shimmer of true hair health.

Get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store, or toilet counter, and prove to yourself to-night—now—that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that's all.

I don't know what on earth has come to you lately, and that's a fact."

"It would be queer if you did, sir, when I don't know myself."

"Well, make a fresh start, anyhow," I said, thinking that the tone of his last reply was less brusque and sullen. "It's an awful pity to waste your money and your time as you've been doing lately, you know."

"You don't know that better than I do, sir."

"Of course not. By the way, why have you such a fancy for wandering about this forsaken patch of common?"

"Because I've a fancy for keeping my eyes open, sir," he returned, eyeing me in a way which the rising moon showed to be peculiar, but which also showed me that he was not intoxicated. "If a man thinks there's something going to be stolen from him, why he's a fool not to keep his eyes on the thief!"

"What on earth do you mean by that?" I demanded, thinking that if Flood were not tipsy he must at any rate have taken leave of his senses. Beyond that he had a stupid sort of spite against Yorke I could not make out what it all meant. But he shirked answering the question.

"It don't signify, Mr. Ned," he said, in his former sulky way, and then turned the subject with an awkward abruptness. "This is Gray Donald, ain't it, sir? You ain't been thrown, I hope?"

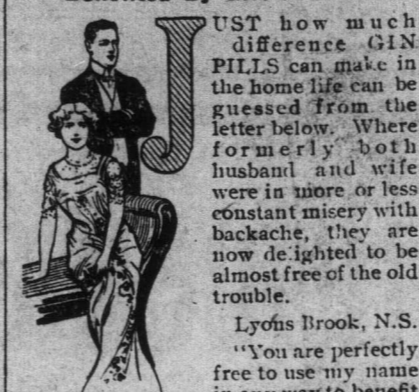

"No, but Miss Orme has been, unaccountably. She is in there now"—indicating the cottage—"but not much hurt, I am glad to say." A sudden thought struck me. "Look here, Flood—Miss Orme can't ride home—she's too shaken. I was just going to hunt up a messenger to ride to Chavasse for a carriage. I wish you would go—it would oblige me, for madame will be scared if she sees me alone. Take Gray Donald and lead me home. I'll give you a line saying how it is. Will you go?"

He assented, looking as pleased—as if at the prospect of the ride, I suppose—as it was possible for his gloomy face to look, and sprang at once into the saddle of the grey, taking the bridle of Nat's horse over his arm. He was a good rider, and I was not afraid to trust the animals with him. I gave him the note to madame which I had scribbled, and he rode off at a smart pace across the common.

I watched him out of sight, and when he turned to enter the cottage again, hesitated, and then fell to walking up and down before the little gate. To be conscientious is all very well, but here is such a thing as developing the virtue to an uncomfortable extent, and I always did hate feeling myself in the way. And, if anything did chance to take place between the couple inside while I strolled about and contemplated the heavens, why, I

A GRATEFUL COUPLE

Nova Scotia Man and Wife Both Benefited By GIN PILLS

JUST how much difference GIN PILLS can make in the home life can be guessed from the letter below. (Where formerly both husband and wife were in more or less constant misery with backache, they are now delighted to be almost free of the old trouble.)

Lyons Brook, N.S.

"You are perfectly free to use my name in any way to benefit GIN PILLS, for they deserve the highest praise. My back has never troubled me since taking GIN PILLS, and my wife feels much better after taking GIN PILLS for her back. She thinks GIN PILLS will make a complete cure."

JAMES L. NAUSS.

Why shouldn't you or any of your friends who may be suffering with Backache, Rheumatism, Lumbago, Sciatica, Weak or strained Kidneys, Burning or Scalding Urine, Painful Urination or frequent colds in the Kidneys and Bladder, get the same relief that so quickly came to the Nauss home when they started to use GIN PILLS?

clearly could not be by any means my fault.

"Well, I strolled up and down accordingly, and cold enough I got in the process, for a windy common at six o'clock in the evening late in December is not the pleasantest place for a walk. I might have stood it until the arrival of madame with the carriage, but that the faint watery moon dipped behind a bank of gray cloud presently, and then there began to come down a most dispiriting mixture of snow and rain. It was too much. I came to the conclusion that I had sacrificed quite enough in the cause of friendship for once, and beat a hasty retreat in-doors.

Little Lotty had disappeared, and the couple by the fire had the kitchen to themselves. Nat's curly head still lay back upon the patchwork cushion and the red cut was plainly visible upon her forehead, but altogether she looked as if being shot over her horse's head was rather a pleasant experience. I had never seen her little dark face so pretty; her gray eyes were shining like stars, and the curiousebb and flow of emotions color made her cheeks as bright as tints as the cardinal velvet ribbon round her neck. Yorke had his chair close by, and his elbow rested on the arm of hers as they talked. Whatever they were saying was too quiet and confidential for me to hear, and it was not until I had closed the door noisily that they became aware of my presence. I wondered whether I had stopped away a discreet length of time."

"Why, Ned, are you back already?" cried Nat, turning round with a start.

"Already? I like that."

"Have you sent any one to Chavasse?" asked Yorke.

"Oh, yes!"

"That's right. Is Dizarte in?"

"In where?"

"Redpots, of course."

"For all I know, I haven't been there."

"Why, you said you had sent" cried Nat.

"So I have, my dear; but I chanced to find a messenger before I got there. Outside the gate I stumbled over that stinky animal Phil Flood. I dispatched him."

Miss Orme made no reply, but sunk back against her cushion again. I strolled over to the fire.

"I say, Roger, what a sullen brute that is!"

"Who is?"

"Why, Flood."

"Is he? He is lazy enough, at any rate," said Roger, indifferently.

"You're right. By the way, have you been giving him a lecture lately?"

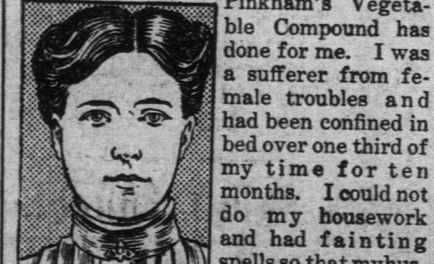

"I told him a month ago that he'd be done for in a year if he didn't draw in his horns. Why?"

"Oh, nothing!" I answered, thinking that just now was not exactly the time to speak of Flood's queer conduct and queerer talk, and recalling suddenly too a word or two which Yorke had let drop a long while previously to the effect that the scowling young blacksmith sometimes look-

SHE SUFFERED TEN MONTHS

Mrs. Blankenship Tells of Her Restoration to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Elliston, Va.—"I feel it my duty to express my thanks for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I was a sufferer from female troubles and had been confined in bed over one third of my time for ten months. I could not do my housework and had fainting spells so that my husband could not leave me alone for five minutes at a time.

"Now I have been restored to health and it has come from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Whenever I see a suffering woman I want to tell her what this medicine has done for me and I will always speak a good word for it."—Mrs. ROBERT BLANKENSHIP, Elliston, Va., Montgomery Co.

Was Helpless—Now Well.

Trenton, Mo.—"About two years ago I had female trouble and inflammation so bad that I was literally helpless and had to be tended like a baby. I could not move my body or lift my foot for such severe pains that I had to scream. I was very nervous and had a weakness."

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped me to such an extent that I think there is no medicine like it for female troubles. I am up and able to do my work again and I give you full permission to publish my letter for the sake of other suffering women."—Mrs. W. T. FURNELL, 320-10th St., Trenton, Mo.

ed fit to knock him on the head. He did not seem to be thinking of it now; his eyes were on Nat's face as she sat staring at the fire. "Flood used to be a steady enough fellow," I added. "It's an awful pity to see him going on in such a fashion."

"Yes, a great pity," Yorke answered. "It will be a bad thing for that poor little girl upstairs if she marries him, it strikes me."

"What a pretty girl she is!" Nat struck in, before I could reply. "I have never really seen her before to day. What was it that you called her, Doctor Yorke?"

"Lotty." Her name is 'Charlotte,' I suppose, but I never heard anybody call her so."

"I should think not. No one would ever think of calling such a pretty little rosy thing by such a big name as that; it doesn't sound natural somehow. Ned calls me 'Nat' on the same principle. Who is Phil Flood?"

"The blacksmith."

Some Interesting Letters.

By RUTH CAMERON.

The question as to whether it is better to spank or not to spank is still on the carpet. Anyone not interested will please read some other part of the paper.

"I have never been a spanker," says a correspondent who signs himself "A young bachelor," "but in my juvenile days was frequently a spanker. I do not believe in spanking, or other forms of corporal punishment, unless the child is afflicted with pure cussedness. In my opinion the parent who administers punishments which cause pain is long on muscular strength, and short on mental ability. He (or she) finds it easier to give the child a wallop than to logically explain to the child wherein it is wrong. It was a vigorous thrashing, given me by my father that impelled me to run away from home when I was fifteen years of age. (But I kept my mother posted as to my whereabouts.) It was corporal punishment that first made me feel the need of profanity in my vocabulary. My mother in all her life never did anything that could cause physical pain, and she was always gentle in her reproofs and admonitions. I know you will believe me when I say that it always pleased me to please her. You may be sure that with the normal child moral suasion is more effectual than the rod, the whip, the switch—or the spanking. Don't spank, or whip, or flog your children, unless you are willing to admit that they have inherited nasty tempers and vicious dispositions."

Here is the other side of the case, expressed by a woman:

"It seems to me that the modern method of bringing up children will be responsible for a national calamity. I believe in corporal punishment, a punishment which they understand, which is soon over, and always comes when promised, and of course suited to the age of a child. A little slap on the hand which persists in dropping toys, a smart tinging on the legs which run away, etc., are far less harmful than shutting up a child, depriving him of privileges, etc., which know so often lead to deceitfulness, or an attack of 'nerves.' I am also sure that six months is not too early for a child to mind when properly instructed."

And here is a valuable letter from a woman who not only tells us what not to do, but what to do:

"I can't understand how a mother can strike, or beat, a little tender morsel of her own flesh and blood. It would be an impossibility for me to do that. Yet do not think for a moment I underrate the necessity for discipline—my girl of twelve has been made to mind from the time, as you so aptly put it, she was old enough to throw her toys down for the pleasure of having them brought back to her. Hers was given back to her once. She learned. Indeed, I have not a friend who has not criticised me here owing to the uncompromising she is a child for whom one 'no' suffices, and all my friends are glad to have her visit them. She has never been spanked, not even had the little fingers slapped, yet I have required implicit obedience from babyhood. It has required a great deal of thought, much patience, unlimited love, but is that any more than their due? She is that no 'angel child,' she has a strong will, but I always determine that mine shall be a bit the stronger. I strive hard to impress upon her that the wrong does not consist in doing what I tell her not to do, but in doing the thing that is not right,—that I do not punish her because she has disobeyed me, but because she has done wrong, and she must obey only because of my superiority in age and experience that enables me to judge better than she what constitutes right. I try to have her reason those things for herself, to show her where every wrong act has an evil result."

"We have great discussions of these subjects. My friends say, 'Oh, it is in the child,' but I will claim the credit for my system, for she is only a normal, healthy, strong-willed, naturally obstinate girl, and I know her good behaviour is the direct result of the way her mind has been trained from birth."

Both in these letters and the others that I have received, the anti-spanker certainly has the day, in numbers at least.

NATURE'S LAWS.

Nature's laws are perfect if only we obey them, but disease follows disobedience. Go straight to Nature for the cure, to the forest; there are mysteries there, some of which we can fathom for you. Take the bark of the Wild-cherry tree, with mandrake root, Oregon grape root, stone root, queen's root, bloodroot and golden seal root, make a scientific, glyceric extract of them, with just the right proportions, and you have

DOCTOR PIERCE'S GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY.

It took Dr. Pierce, with the assistance of two learned chemists and pharmacists, many months of hard work experimenting to perfect this vegetable alterative and tonic extract of the greatest efficiency.

Mrs. C. W. PAWLEY, of Millville, Calif., writes: "I wish to tell you that I have used your 'Golden Medical Discovery' in my family for twenty years. We have had a doctor called in but once during that time. I have a family of ten children, all well and hearty, for which, to a great extent, we owe thanks to you and your 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Pellets,' which we use when sick."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Sugar-coated, tiny granules.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Jan. 31. All officers and men of the Turkish Army on furlough have been ordered to rejoin their regiments within 24 hours. The military Governor officially denies that dissensions exist among the Turkish troops on the Tchatalja lines.

BERLIN, Jan. 31. Pessimism regarding the Balkan situation is displayed in official circles here, owing to the uncompromising attitude of the Bulgarians. Germany, in conjunction with the other Powers, is doing all possible to effect a compromise, but a resumption of hostilities on Monday is highly probable. The German Government fears that if war should be resumed the Bulgarians may push matters beyond their own interests.

LONDONDERRY, Jan. 31. The Londonderry election resulted in the return of David C. Hogg, Nationalist, over Colonel Pakenham, by 2,699 to 2,642, a majority of 57. This gives the Home Rulers a majority of the Ulster seats. Extraordinary efforts were made by both parties, and out of 5,642 possible votes 5,341 were cast. Many sick and infirm inhabitants were taken to the polls in ambulances. Much fear was expressed, but few disturbances occurred. A large force of the Royal Irish Constabulary was in readiness. Both Candidates were Protestants.

FOOT BADLY FROZEN

After Escaping From Burning Home, Doctor Advised Amputation

Mrs. Jno. Marks, of Cameron, Ont., narrowly escaped losing her foot. She tells the story this way:

"I had my foot so badly frozen after escaping from a fire which destroyed our home that the doctor in attendance advised immediate amputation. Before consenting to the operation I was induced to try Douglas' Egyptian Liniment, and it produced a most remarkable result."

"After four or five applications the frozen flesh dropped off, and the foot began to show signs of improvement. It advanced wonderfully under the treatment, and was soon completely healed. 'Egyptian Liniment' certainly saved me from being horribly crippled."

Probably none of your family will ever get frozen so badly, but a nipped ear or nose or toe is a common and painful enough experience. Egyptian Liniment takes out every bit of the pain, soreness and swelling, and quickly restores the injured part.

and form an escort round Mr. Hogg and Col. Pakenham, while on the way to their hotels. Rival crowds came into contact at one point in the city. There was much stone-throwing, and the police were obliged to charge and disperse the people with clubs.

LONDON, Jan. 31. A despatch to a News agency from Constantinople, says that advices received there are to the effect that there was skirmishing on the Tchatalja lines to-day.

BIRMINGHAM, Jan. 31. Suffragettes destroyed the putting greens on the golf courses here to-day. In some instances the greens were torn up, and in others "votes for women" were burned into the grass with strong acids. All the greens must be re-turfed.

LONDON, Jan. 31. The latest weapon of the suffragette is the catapult, with leaden discs, on which "votes for women" are stamped, as bullets. So fat they cannot aim straight, and not much damage has been done. The doctors say that the discs are capable of killing a man. An actress called "Jacky" Melford, was fined $10 or a month's imprisonment for firing one from the top of an omnibus to-day. Her father paid the fine. Letter boxes are still set on fire.

LONDON, Jan. 31. Baron Ilkerton, a distinguished member of the Liberal Party, in the House of Lords, died to-day, at the age of 73.

NEW YORK, Jan. 31. During 1912, there were 2,712 persons killed in Manhattan by shooting, stabbing, assaults, self-inflicted wounds, injuries by falls, and other mishaps. This makes the average more than seven violent deaths daily.

NEW YORK, Jan. 31. Although officers of steamers docking to-day report the Atlantic Ocean as at last becoming docile, the French steamer Mexico, which sailed from here a week ago, is still helpless off Sabie Island after an encounter with an easterly gale, in which she lost her propeller. The Leyland Liner Devonian, which was within 200 miles when the wireless call for help reached her, is probably now with her. The French line steamers Norma and Carolina were also notified, and one of them will probably tow her into Halifax.

BOSTON, Jan. 31. The Devonian reached the Mexico and despite heavy sea and darkness, sent two steel hawsers aboard. Both steamers drifted to the Southward, but are making for Halifax, a distance of 400 miles. As the Mexico, with her cargo, is valued at more than $1,000,000, the crew of the Devonian will divide at least $50,000 salvage money, one of the richest prizes for many years. There are 14 passengers on board, and a heavy grain cargo.

LONDON, Jan. 31. The Trade Union Congress to-day adopted the eight-hour clause for men and women. This means practically all organized labor in the Kingdom. The miners already have the eight-hour day fixed by law, but outside London nearly all workmen have longer hours. This was the cause of the removal of ship building and other works to the north of England and Scotland, as southern contractors found it impossible to compete with the northern men. Notice is to be handed in March to the employers refusing the demand that all contracts with them will be terminated at the end of April when the men will walk out.

LONDON, Jan. 31. The Privy Council to-day, gave judgment in the celebrated Great Waterways case, allowing the appeal of the Royal Bank of Canada ordering the Province of Alberta to pay all costs. The Sifton Government passed a statute in 1911 confiscating the proceeds of bonds, amounting with interest, to $6,000,000, then standing in the Royal Bank. The Privy Council declares this statute ultra vires, and gives judgment on all points for the Bank.

CHAPTER VII.—THE IRISH EMIGRANT.

Our next encounter was that of a storm; and a storm at sea, in a small ship, with a crowd of people, is something never to be forgotten and only those who have endured it know the suspense of such an experience. On such a ship our quarters were small, and only lighted by the dim flicker of a candle; and while the sailors did not seem to mind the storm, it could not be otherwise than that the passengers who were landmen and greenhorns, and who knew little or nothing of the sea, were afraid and wondered what was coming next. The little brig laboured heavily in the sea, and it would sometimes seem that all hope was lost. Perhaps it sounded worse to the passengers than it really was, and might not have been as terrific as we imagined, but the ship seemed to be pitched about like a feather and it seemed as if we were ever sinking in the sea.

We could only wait and long for the storm to cease; and while we waited into the long hours of the night many a prayer was offered, and many a bead was counted; and when the morning light broke and some of us got on the deck, and found there was a chance of safety, we felt that our prayers were answered, and many a hearty "Thank God" was uttered. But we all felt the force of the storm, and we were all afraid. But amidst the moaning of the wind and the roaring of the sea, the sounds that seemed most dismal to us, and most pitiful, were those of the sailors' voices on deck during the night. There was a weirdness about it that seemed to make us lonely as they shouted to each other, and it was a sort of gurgling sorrow, as if they were singing their own requiem. The sight that met our gaze on looking around the deck the next day was very different to what we had been accustomed to, and we found that our little brig had sustained no little damage. Although sail had been shortened and everything made snug to outride the storm, and though the ship had out-riden it very well, she bore upon her the marks of Old Neptune and presented plain proof of her strength. The lower sails, which are commonly known as the courses, and which square-rigged ships like to under in times of storm, were split and torn. Here and there the bulwarks were carried away, and to us it looked like a wonderful piece of wreckage, but to the sailors it did not appear of such importance. They soon replaced the broken sails with others and managed to fix up in a temporary way her bulwarks, so that as the day wore on and the sea went down, and the wreckage was cleared away, we found that after all our ship was safe and sound, and that we had come out of the storm very much better than we had feared.

I have been in many storms since coming to Newfoundland in following her fisheries and her trade, and some of them have been greater than the one I endured on the passage from Ireland, but that seemed the worst of any I have ever experienced, although it is an old saying with sailors that the "last storm is the worst." Since having lived in Newfoundland for fifty years, and having learned of the sea, and of the fishery, and of their dangers, I do not mind storm; but still the memory of the storm on board the "Highland Lassie" will ever be fresh, but I suppose it is because it was the first. With fine weather and good breezes our ship began to draw towards the end of the voyage, and every heart was anxious to hear the cry "Land O" from the look-out. So the days passed on. We had our usual share of song and we had the best of health, and after some forty days we sighted land and felt that at last we had realised our hopes, and that the fortunes and opportunities which America and the New World offered were very soon to be within our reach.

We were now far from all we loved, and our highest hopes were to make the best of our advantages. We felt ourselves free. We felt we had a chance, and that as far as lay in our power we would make the best of whatever offered. Forty days was a long time to be bound up in a small rough cabin in a small ship, but still it was not long at that early date. Some of the emigrant ships got along in about half that time, and some were almost double that time. We did not expect to do it in much less than a month so that we were not disappointed as to the length of the voyage. Our experience was the common one of thousands of our fellow-countrymen who took the risk of coming out to America and to Newfoundland, and who seemed to be possessed with the one desire to make an honest living, and if possible help Ireland. Our destination was St. John's, and as we neared the land and ran along the shore our hearts were filled with hope and all the passengers were in the best of spirits.

For forty days we had endured the hardships and privations of an Atlantic voyage, and we had all suffered more or less, but now the end was in sight, and very soon our feet would again tread on dry land. We knew that a great many of our countrymen and women had come this way before us, and therefore we would not be exactly strangers; as there were some who would know our feelings and who would give to us the right hand of fellowship. And so we sailed on, and after a few days with tacking about and making the best of our chances our good captain hauled in past Cape Spear and ran her in the Bay, and soon the Narrows opened to view and we got within its heights. The Harbour soon opened up, and in a short time our anchor dropped and we laughed and hurraed a dozen times, and joked and jostled for we had reached our haven in safety, and had found our home in the West. We had seen the country for which we had left our own loved Ireland; and as our anchor dropped we all took to cheer, and got ready for the landing.

Last Nights Hockey Match.

VICTORIAS DEFEAT FEILDIAN'S IN WILD GAME.

Before a large gathering of onlookers, the Victorias and Feildian hockey clubs tried conclusions at the Prince's Rink, last night and resulted in a victory for the former by a score of six goals to three. Whilst the game was fast and exciting, yet it was the wildest exhibition seen thus far this season. Periodically there was an over-indulgence in roughness and too frequent unnecessary violent checking coupled with a scattered bit of tripping and slashing was the cause of almost every player on the ice sporting bruises and cuts. Even the goal nets were thrown out of kilter.

THE GAME.

At 7.30 the teams faced off. The Victorias started the attack. Their forwards combined well and were making good headway until stopped by White, who drove the puck to the opposite end of the rink. Here Morrison took possession of it and displayed clever individual play. Taking a zig-zag course, he made a splendid run, but when within shooting distance, stumbled and lost a fine opportunity. Continuing the attack Brien saw an opening and landed the puck behind Hunt, drawing first blood.

Victorias, 1.

This elicited much applause and made the game lively. The College boys 'bucked up' and tried every endeavor to equalize matters, but their rushes were frustrated by their opponents who were equally determined to add to their score. Ford next controlled the disc and going down the side of the ice at a rapid rate, passed to Lilly, who banged the rubber in the net.

Victorias, 2.

At any success attending the efforts, the Vics. worked with renewed vigor, but the Feildians were not in the least discouraged and defended well. The Vics. forward line combined and made some pretty dashes. Tobin and Brien, in turn, called upon Hunt to save which he did brilliantly. However, after bombarding the Feildian goal for a few minutes, Lilly succeeded in beating Hunt.

Victorias, 3.

This enraptured the College boys and on resuming play White captured the puck at mid-rink, and making the finest run for the evening, passed all opponents and notched up the first goal for his side.

Feildians, 1.

Play now became fast and furious. Spectators were wild with enthusiasm and judging from the exhibition the Feildians were putting up, it was thought the score would quickly be equalized. They had by far the best of the game and the Vics. appeared to have fallen to pieces, but before any honor was attained in the way of a goal, the gong sounded, announcing 'temon' time, and the teams crossed.

Victorias, 3; Feildians, 1.

SECOND HALF.

On resumption of play, the College boys meant business and got in some effective work. They confined play to their opponents' territory and the Vics. back division were kept busy to prevent scoring. Shortall got away on the left wing and passed the puck across the mouth of the Feildian goal. Lilly was on the spot and did the needful.

Victorias, 4.

When the puck was again put in motion, the Vics. showed some pretty combination, and off a pass from Brien, Lilly repeated the trick.

Victorias, 5.

The game then looked to be a walk over, and Feildian supporters had given up all hopes of their team. The Vics. made a regular onslaught and Brien sent a scorcher to Hunt which he failed to save.

Victorias, 6.

On resuming, the Vics. couldn't stand prosperity, and got tired. They became filled up with the idea they had enough and so took it easy. Their opponents, knowing that a match was never lost until 'twas won, worked with vim and determination and inside of five minutes had two more goals to their credit. After that, play became very rough and several of the players who were caught 'roughing it' were penalized. For the last ten minutes the exhibition was poor: The ice was soft and tripping and striking with sticks nearly created a burlesque. The sounding of the final whistle gave the Victorias the victory.

SOPER & MOORE

A Host of Different Centers

You like the spice of variety, therefore you'll enjoy Moir's Chocolates, with their hundred or more different centers.

Toothsome nuts, dainty jellies, luscious fruits, form some of the centers, while others are of unique creamy confections. All are hidden in that wonderfully thick coating of smooth, rich chocolate that's being talked about so much today.

Enjoy a new treat. Try Moir's Chocolates.

Another Consumption "Cure."

We hope, but incredulity is strong. Again and again, word has flashed across the seas, that science had found an answer to the deadly riddle, but always disappointment trampled upon our faith.
 The white plague does not surrender to its enemies.
 Our efforts must be spent upon prevention. Open windows, sunlight, sweet air, nutritious food, clean living, are forces with which phthisis cannot combat.
 So long as greed maintains foul temptations, so long as half-fed humans are sweated from dawn to dusk,

Electric Restorer for Men

As long as men insist upon crowding into the cities, so long as the unfit are permitted to marry and breed their infirmities into their children, so long as tubercular milk is sold broadcast, so long as bedroom windows are closed, and re-breathed throughout the night, the endeavours of doctors and the curiosity of microscopes will prove of no avail.
 When all is said and done, common sense is the best remedy for consumption.—Herbert Kaufman in Woman's World for February.

restores every nerve in the body and vitality. Premature decay and all sexual weakness, cured at once. Phosphorus will make you a new man. Price $1 a box, or two for $2. Mailed to any address. The Phosphorus Co., St. Catharines, Ont.

ADVENTIST—Next Sunday evening at the usual hour, 6.30 o'clock, Elder Wm. C. Young, will preach in the Cookstown Road Church, taking for his subject: "Why God did not destroy Satan at first," and thus cause sin and all its train of misery to cease, at the same time saving the experience of Calvary. All are invited; all seats are free.

GETTING BETTER—Mr. John Rice who was stricken with paralysis some weeks ago in the Parade Rink, is greatly improved and is now able to leave his room. It is hoped he will be able to get about town after another few weeks.

Stokers Meet.

The Firmen's Union held their nomination of officers last night as follows:
 President—F. Woods.
 Vice-Pres.—M. McAllister.
 1st Asst. V.P.—W. Whalen.
 2nd Asst. V.P.—W. Ammonson.
 Treasurers.—P. McGrath and E. Kavanagh.
 2nd Trans.—J. Haglan.
 Secretary.—A. King.
 Rec. Secy.—W. O'Toole.
 Grand Marshal—J. Saunders.
 Asst. Marshal—W. Squires.
 Some discussion then occurred over a grievance the Union have with a certain shipowner.

WHEN SHOPPING TO-DAY

Marshall Bros.

To-Day's News.

Special Evening Telegram.

LONDON, To-day.

The Balkan Allies and Turks are making active preparations to resume hostilities in Southern Europe. The delegates of the allies to the Peace Conference here are saying farewell, and packing baggage preparatory to departing from London. A News Agency dispatch received from Constantinople states the Turkish delegates have been ordered home, but the command has not yet been received here. It seems only the good offices of the Powers can avert further resort to arms but thus far these have apparently failed. Even at this hour, each side to the dispute is accusing the other of bluffing. The Turks declare that in their note to the Powers on Thursday, the Allies were given greater concessions as a basis for resuming peace negotiations than they had expected, which were made them at the commencement of the conference. The allies practically admit this, but they say what would have been acceptable even a fortnight ago, cannot now be entertained. That the Turkish game obviously is to lead them by the nose for months, counting on the allies' financial exhaustion and hoping complications will arise in favor of Turkey. Dr. Danell, head of the Bulgarian delegation, said, "The feeling of the Balkan people must be considered." Excitement among them, he declared, has reached the highest degree against their "fraudulent treatment" by a handful of Young Turk conspirators who had attempted to play with the decision of Europe and honor prestige and lives of Balkan peoples. A comparison between the Vatican and Mussulmans' Holy Scriptures at Adrianople, Dr. Danell said, was inadmissible. Danell repeated, nothing could stop the reopening of war except the unconditional surrender of Adrianople and the Aegean Islands. The Serbian delegates bade farewell to Sir Edward Grey. The head of the delegation Sir Edward considered the renewal of war inevitable, as Bulgarians would not be satisfied with anything short of surrender of Adrianople. He did not believe any interference with the allies was possible. "This time," he added, "the preliminary of peace together with a new armistice would be signed after the fall of Adrianople on a drum head in the battlefield." Conditions of peace will comprise not only the Thracian frontier lines, but contemporary surrender of Scutari and Jennings, to Montenegro and Greece, and also a war indemnity. Mr. Venizelos, Greek Premier, in bidding farewell to friends, said he hoped soon to return.

Nonagenarian dead.

One of the oldest residents of Toad's Cove in the person of Mr. Michael Colbert, died there during the week in his 92nd year. He died of senile decay and possessed all his faculties up to the last. Mr. Colbert was a man of splendid physique, was 6 feet tall and finely proportioned and gifted with almost abnormal strength and powers of endurance, until a couple of years ago he prosecuted the fishery alone each summer in his boat. His funeral took place on Wednesday and was largely attended.

It is not hard to keep the family in good humor if you have good wholesome things to eat. Just arrived a large shipment of the celebrated Banbury Cakes, English Plum Puddings, Scotch Shortbread; also Banana, Lemon, Orange and Pineapple Butter; also Horseradish Cream, as used with the Royal Baron of Beef at Osborne. Was pronounced very good. Also fresh Rhubarb. They are the nicest and best specialties of the season. BISHOP, SONS & CO., Ltd. Grocery Dept. Phone 679. jan27,tf

A Local Prophet.

There is a young man in the city who it is said on different occasions has foretold events that afterwards transpired, and who prophesies a dire happening for the next week. This is nothing less than a big fire in the West End which he declares will wipe out a large amount of property. All will hope that he will be mistaken in his prognostication.

Accident at Badger.

People who arrived here by the express to-day say that yesterday afternoon an accident occurred to a logging teamster there which came near being fatal. The man was driving along with his load when it struck a sliding place and fell over. The man fell with it but fortunately the load did not fall on his body but pinned his legs underneath. His legs and feet were badly crushed and it is thought one of his limbs was broken. He was attended to by Dr. Donohue, assisted by Vet. Donnelly, and was then sent to Grand Falls Hospital.

Coastal Boats.

The Bruce arrived at Port aux Basques at 4.35 p.m. yesterday with several passengers.

The Ethie arrived at Placentia at 2.40 p.m. yesterday and sailed west today.

The Glencoe arrived at Port aux Basques at 2 p.m. yesterday.

NEW YORK, To-Day.

A London cable to the Herald says it is rumored that Earl Beauchamp, one of the few Liberal Peers, will succeed the Duke of Connaught as Governor General of Canada.

MINARD'S LINIMENT CURES COLDS, Etc.

Great Meeting at New Perlican.

Special to Evening Telegram. NEW PERLICAN, To-Day. One of the greatest meetings ever held here was that of last night, when Mr. Coaker delivered a brilliant speech of two and a half hours to a crowded audience. William Hefford presided. There is no doubt about the feeling which prevails to-day concerning Mr. Coaker's address, for very few can be found who don't agree with all that he said. He spoke effectively and he was repeatedly applauded, and when he closed he was cheered. Great enthusiasm and most perfect order prevailed. Although Mr. Coaker was suffering from a raw throat he surprised all the fluency of his utterance. Incisive language and eye-opening explanation of what the F. P. U. is and what it is striving for. The F. P. U. candidates will receive good support here next fall. The President received a splendid send off this morning and will take this evening's train at Carbonear for St. John's, returning in a few days to hold other meetings along this shore.

WILLIAM HEFFORD, Chairman. E. WARREN, Secretary.

What Mr. Coaker Says.

Special to The Evening Telegram. NEW PERLICAN, Yesterday. The Hiring Committee demanded $16 for second meeting and I agreed to pay it. The money was handed over to the Council to pay. The Lodge by a majority vote decided to refund $16 and I have been so informed by the Council.

Trains Hung Up.

As a result of the accident to the rotary plow all the trains are now hung up across country. The train which left Port aux Basques on Wednesday is at Kitty's Brook, and that which left yesterday morning is at Humbermouth. The express which left here Thursday morning is at Millertown Junction. The express which arrived here with the local at noon today transferred her passengers to the west bound train at Millertown Junction.

White Enamel Bedsteads.

CHILDREN'S WHITE ENAMEL COTS. $6.00 & $10.00.

A few months ago we bought a large quantity of White Enamel Bedsteads, considerably below the usual price. These goods should have reached us at the beginning of the year, but owing to the weather conditions were delayed.

We are pushed for space to store these Bedsteads, so with the idea of getting them out in a hurry they are marked at ridiculously low prices. Now is the time to purchase a Bedstead for your spare room, or for your own room.

Remember, these Enamel Bedsteads are first-class goods, perfect in every respect, with the highest grade Enamel finish. In all sizes, price from $4.20 to $20.00.

Strong Wire Mattresses, Prices from $4.20 to 20.00. BOWRING BROS., Limited. $2.00, $2.50, $3.30.

At Leach's Brook

Passengers in by the express at noon to-day say that the water of Leach's Brook has now fallen from 3 1/2 feet to 1 1/2 feet at present. Some fifty men under Mr. Cobb are engaged at work there keeping the ice cut away as it forms in the Brook during frosty weather. The ice is piled up 6 feet high and forms a kind of dam or barricade, running along the track for over 3 miles and bringing the water away. Large pans of ice are cut away on the Brook and thrust under the bridge by the men and are carried away by the water. The men are camping nearby and night and day use the utmost vigilance to keep the temporary trestle from being damaged by ice or water.

McMurdo's Store News.

SATURDAY, Feb. 1, 1913. To remove grease spots and most other stains from clothing and other fabrics, McMurdo's Cleansing Fluid is the very thing. Spots and stains come away quite easily when this is used. The Fluid has more solvent and cleansing powers than benzine, and is not so objectionable in odor. Price 25c a bottle. Our Effervescent Saline or Fruit Salts, which we have just opened, will be found very grateful and refreshing, and work like magic in cases of heartburn and water-brash. It will be found very useful by those subject to sudden rashes of the skin, and as a reliable cooling medicine. A good large bottle for 50 cents.

Chronicle Co's. APOLOGY

To F. P. U. Trading Co.
Yesterday the Evening Herald published the appended apology to the Fishermen's Union Trading Co. It will be noted that the publication of the libel took place in the absence of the editor, Hon. P. T. McGrath. The apology sets forth that the defendant Co. has not now and never had any justification for an attack upon the method of business or financial standing of the F. P. U. Trading Company.

SUPREME COURT.
Between The Fishermen's Union Trading Company Limited, Plaintiff, and The Chronicle Publishing Company Limited, Defendant.

AN APOLOGY.
In the Evening Chronicle of the 13th day of September last past and during the absence from the Colony of its editor, Mr. McGrath, there appeared the following from an outport correspondent:

"NOTES FROM FOGO"
"The Coakerites have suffered a 'rude shock since it was learned that some of those who put their money in the Union Trading Company could not get it back and said stock would not command fifty per cent of its original value when placed in the market. We rather pity those who have invested their hard earnings in such a wild cat scheme."

On the 14th day of September last the Fishermen's Union Trading Company Limited commenced an action for libel against the Chronicle Publishing Company Limited in respect of the above publication, the plaintiff alleging that the words complained of were false and malicious and that it has suffered damage therefrom in its credit and reputation and in its trade and business.

With the defence which was filed a sum of money was paid into Court by the defendant in respect of the statement that "some of those who put their money in the Union Trading Company could not get it back" but with respect to the remainder of the words the defence was offered that they were true in substance and in fact and thereupon the defendant gave particulars of the facts upon which it depended to justify its assertion that this portion of the words was true.

As a result of the close enquiry which became necessary in an endeavor to clearly state and accurately define the facts upon which it relied to substantiate its defence the defendant has become convinced that the words published in the Chronicle were wholly unjustifiable and the defendant has therefore proposed and the plaintiff has agreed that the proceedings shall be terminated upon conditions that the defendant shall acknowledge that it never had a good reason for the publication of the defamatory words, shall express its regret for using same and unreservedly apologise therefor, shall cause this apology to be published in the editorial columns of the Evening Herald newspaper into which the Evening Chronicle has since been merged and shall pay the costs incurred by the plaintiff.

In pursuance of this agreement the defendant Company hereby apologises for the language complained of by the plaintiff and expresses its regret that it should have reflected in any manner or degree upon the conduct of the business of the Union Trading Company or upon the value of its stock or upon the bona fide character of the undertaking. It furthermore declares that it did not have and has not now any justification for an attack upon the method of business or financial standing of the plaintiff Company.

St. John's, the 29th day of January, A.D. 1913.

The publisher of the best Farmer's paper in the Maritime Provinces in writing to us states:

"I would say that I do not know of a medicine that has stood the test of time like MINARD'S LINIMENT. It has been an unfailing remedy in our household ever since I can remember, and has outlived dozens of would-be competitors and imitators."

Announcing an Engagement.

Valentine's Day is an ideal time to announce an engagement. Cut from white or red cards two hearts of the same size, decorate them in any appropriate way or simply print on them the names of the bride and groom to be. This may be done in red ink if the cards are white, or in gold. Tie the cards together with red ribbons or gold cord. Put in a suitable envelope and mail to your friends.—Woman's World for February.

Notes and Comments.

Morris Must Go!
The people have had enough of the Grabbal Government. They want Sir Robert Bond back.

Let Morris finish his work, say the Grabbals. No! It's too expensive for the country. The burden is too heavy already.

No more effective object lesson could be given of the fact that Ulster shows no majority against the question of Home Rule, than the London-derry Election afforded. An Anti-Home Ruler won the seat at the last election by a narrow majority. Yesterday, a Home Ruler won it by 2,699 votes to 2,642.

It is a somewhat significant coincidence that the Home Rule victory at Derry came close on the heels of the perfunctory rejection of the Home Rule Bill by the House of Lords. The power of the Lords to kill the measure is exhausting itself, and the strength of the opposition to Home Rule for Ireland is waning.

The Derry Election in Ulster we understand gives a majority of Ulster representatives to the Nationalists. In the other divisions, the preponderance of Nationalists is overwhelming. Home Rule is now practically certain and a new era of prosperity and good-will is now in sight. Responsible self government has worked wonders in favour of the solidarity of the Empire in the Colonies. It is bound to do the same in Ireland. These are the days of democracy and the majority must rule in every nation of the Empire.

In his manifesto of October, 1903, Sir Edward Morris adopted Cold Storage for the export of fishery products. He said: "The whole of our West Coast winter catch of codfish, herring and halibut should be exported fresh into Canada and the United States. The market is there, and good prices can be realized; and in addition, the foreign markets for salted cod will in this way be relieved by every quintal of codfish that is sold fresh."

That was talk. Cheap to the talker and as useless to the fishermen as the Solling boom has proved. Cooker has put more money into the pockets of the fishermen by ONE of his circulars of advice on fish prices, than Morris has done, with all his talk about new markets, steam subsidies, modern methods and cold storage.

What good has come of all this "booming" of the Solling process? In the fall of 1909, Morris was in a big hurry to work wonders. The matter was so urgent that he had to hurry up business by cable, at the expense of the Colony, of course. Here is how he did it. "Premier's Office, 22nd September, 1909. Sollingita, London. When is paper being shipped. If not shipped, ship immediately. Morris, Premier, Nfld." Our readers will note the tone of importunity and voice, peremptory. The matter was so momentous that the Premier could not leave it to the Fishery Department. The Minister of Fishery is good enough in his way. But the resources of the Premier's Office were requisitioned, and the energy, experience and gravity of the Premier were utilized to make a good job of buying the Solling paper.

This, however, by no means exhausted the Premier's energy. After pondering over the problem for a week, Sir Edward took another weighty step, and sent another cablegram. Here it is: "Premier's Office, 30th September, 1909. Sollingita, London. Can you come with paper. Expenses paid. Morris, Premier, Nfld." After a week, Sir Edward's anxiety was relieved for he received this reply: "London, October 6th. Morris, Premier, Newfoundland. Leaving for St. John's ex Carthaginian, ninth instant with paper from Liverpool. Sollingita."

But what good came of it all? We have heard little of any good result,

ORDER NOW!

Indeed, the Solling process and the Solling paper is not even whispered in Morris circles these days. But we do know something about the expenses. In answer to an enquiry from the Opposition a statement of certain expenses was tabled in the House of Assembly. This is a copy: Captain A. Solling, Passage from and to England, Bogard at the Crosbie Hotel, etc. $144.80 Charles Morgan & Co., as per statement (cost of paper, etc.) 433.21 $578.01

This statement by no means covers all expenses, for if we remember aright, there was a picnic on the s.s. Fiona, for Capt. Solling and Minister Piccott, and the latter had also a trip to Canada on the strength of a trip. But it all resulted in nothing. It was found that codfish could not be put in the cold storage plants of Montreal at a cost which would cover expenses and leave anything worth while for the fishermen. The whole boom proved a fizzle, and to-day we hear little or nothing of the Solling process.

The irony of the situation was the effort made by the Government to boom the process for preserving fresh codfish, while Capt. Solling himself advocates its use for halibut and salmon, and expresses doubt whether it will be useful for fish like cod of a watery and soft fibre. A perusal of the Bills of Parcels of Charles Morgan & Co., lends color to this aspect of the matter, for in it there is no mention of codfish as a trade name. They shipped paper denominated "Halibut," "Salmon" (Salmon), "Sunfish," "Black bags," and "Brown bags," but the word codfish is absent.

The Water Wagon.

BY H. L. RANN.

The water wagon is a high vehicle with sloping sides which is used as a low-priced substitute for the Keeley cure. Next to a stern, ham-fisted wife, who meets her husband at the front door with a rolling pin and a few well-chosen words, it is one of the best substitutes on the market. The sides of the water wagon are made sloping for the convenience of thirsty passengers who wish to get off on the spur of the moment and gallop to the nearest bar. The water wagon attains its greatest popularity on or about January 1st, when it is crowded with straphangers and other social pariahs. On New Year's day there isn't enough room on the average water wagon to allow anybody to stretch out without pushing somebody off in front of a saloon.

but by February 15th there will be nobody to respond to roll call except the driver and a handful of citizens with square jaws. If more people would fasten themselves to the water wagon when once aboard using 16-inch lag screws, if necessary, this would be a brighter and a better world.

Proper use of the water wagon has enabled many a man to get home without taking up the entire surface of a twelve-foot walk. It has also enabled him to have an occasional clean shirt, to pay the grocery bill and to spend his wages for something which does not sear the conscience and sting the stomach. After a man has been on the water wagon long enough to tell what water tastes like, he is not liable to fall off and get his foot caught in the undertow.

About the only thing that will hold a man to his seat on the water wagon is the human will. A man may resolve until his tongue trips faster than a gas meter, but if his will is made of candle-wicking he will slide off at the first crossing. The only way to get rid of the drunk habit is to keep away from the sources of supply. It is a great deal safer to toy with the trusty countenance of the rattlesnake or play around the business end of a corn shredder than it is to enter into an argument with whiskey.

The Origin of Gloves.

An article by M. Daresny has recently appeared in the "Revue Egyptienne," in which he traces the origin of gloves to the time of Amen of the twenty-first dynasty. Mittens are among the dress accessories found with the mummies of priestesses dating from that period. They were made of the same material as that of the upper garment. It is probable, however, that actual gloves were also worn to correspond with the foot covering of thin pink or red kid, which was more than a mere stocking, for it was so made as to separate the big toe from the others. This ensured the safety of the white leather sandal, which was fastened by two straps one of which passed between the first and second toe, the other going over the instep.

Hypnotised by 'Phone.

An extraordinary experiment in hypnotism over the telephone has been made in the State of Ohio. The hypnotic subjects were ordinary telephone operators, and the influence of the hypnotism reached them over the wires from a distance of some 100 miles. Six doctors checked the experiment. Fernando Lenzelheimer attempted to apply his hypnotic power in this manner from Pittsburg to Canton, and one of the operators, of whom it is tried to receive the influence, was entirely subjected. When the voice from Pittsburg stated categorically that his left arm was numb, the limb thus attached fell limp, and the doctors were able to insert pins in it without affecting the sensibility of the operator. "Lift your right leg," commanded the Pittsburg magician. The command was obeyed and the six doctors could not press the limb down. However, the dramatic moment arrived when the subjected operator was informed politely but assertively that he was a stone. He immediately rolled off his seat, and the six doctors, trying to compress his chest, were unable to overcome the resistant surface.

NUMBER 23, THE PROPRIETOR

Romantic Career of One of The Greatest Rogues in International History.

"The Most Perfect Scoundrel That Has Marked the World's History," According to Thomas Carlyle.—A Truly Remarkable Man, Who Turned His Great Talents the Wrong Way.

The quack of quacks, the most perfect scoundrel that in these latter ages has marked the world's history," is what Thomas Carlyle wrote of Count Cagliostro, a name assumed by Joseph Balsalmo, a famous impostor whose accomplishments have actually been immortalized. His swindling schemes extended over Italy, his native country, then into France, where he made Paris his headquarters, and subsequently throughout the continent. He was born in Palermo in 1742. The most celebrated victim of Cagliostro's art was Cardinal de Rohan in the great diamond necklace case that so scandalously involved Marie Antoinette, Louis XV., Madame du Barry, and other ladies and gentlemen of that glamorous and rotten period of the French court that set the morals of the people.

Early Traits.

As a boy this Joseph Balsalmo had very few, if any qualities that would have even indicated genius enough to become either knave or scoundrel. He was recorded as being "indolent and unruly." He was put into a monastery when he was fifteen, and after a few months, when expelled, began a criminal career and a dissolute life. He had, it is true, studied on branch of learning that afterwards stood him in good stead, but occasionally got others into trouble.

This was chemistry; it appealed to his spectacular nature as well as to his inventive genius in crime. It came theoretically to his aid in his incantation scenes, and in his offices of sorcery. He posed as an alchemist, a dealer of miracles and an inventor of an extraordinary elixir of life—forging testimony, and at the same time getting enough money to advance himself by forging his uncle's will.

Indeed, the list of his crimes, while yet in his teens, is so long and various that I might recite most anything here from my own imagination and go unchallenged. I daresay that a lot of very interesting history is made up in this way. But here I propose to stick to truths so long as I can find them.

His Journeys.

In Messina, Cagliostro made the acquaintance of a professor—Althotas, a man said to have had great learnings as a skillful occultist—and at once became his disciple. They went to Malta and induced the Grand Master of Knights to give them a laboratory, in which they could manufacture gold and fabricate valuable letters of introduction. Then they went to Rome, where Cagliostro forged a number of engravings.

He now began to announce himself a wonderworker, and made some startling innovations and improvements on the old game. While he so successfully hoodooed the people he almost began to believe in himself—thought that he could transmute metals and make himself invisible. He adopted the full name of Comte Alessandro Cagliostro, a nobility creation of his own.

A Profitable Marriage.

Up to this time he had employed a number of aliases that were well known, but not for a long time discovered as belonging to the same individual. Among his acquaintances in Rome was a beautiful girl by the name of Lorenza de Feliciani, the daughter of a lace-maker, to whom many young men were paying court. She has figured in various romances—one I think by Dumas, and in several biographical sketches of Cagliostro has appeared in as many different lights.

But the consensus of opinion is that in her personal character she was singularly well adapted to the companionship of just such a faker and impostor, as the man she chose. She had many seductive charms; she was strikingly graceful, clever in her conversation, lovely in every way, and so honestly convincing in manner that she had no difficulty in finding plenty of fish for her husband's expansive net. This remarkable compound of passionate feminine nature and general duplicity is represented as existing however in a faithful wife.

Looking up Fools!

After the marriage a purposeful wedding journey was made into several countries where it was thought their future schemes might be started among a peculiarly susceptible people. They went about it systematically to record all their private observations and special information regarding persons and things in public life.

Much of this same sort of thing is done to-day by stage magicians and mesmerists—and spiritualists. In the case of the noted young "mind-reader," Washington Irving, Bishop of some twenty-five years ago, which has come into my particular knowledge, it was not uncommon for him to have more than a hundred confederates in each city that he visited. Nearly every one of his "tricks" depended on these people, and on his positive intelligence secured in advance.

Managers, ushers and scene-shifters in theatres were in league to supply instruction concerning many people in the audience known to them, and where there was any possible doubt of the desired class attending, complimentary tickets were cunningly and cautiously distributed. Cagliostro went into the business even more industriously and with more serious purpose, for, in alliance with his public charlatanism, he was pursuing every possible form of swindle in obtaining other people's money, "Occultism" was the fashionable study an entertainment.

In this profession Cagliostro was a past master in every trick. He had gathered many valuable ideas in the East—much of his imagery from ancient Egyptian records. All this time very little was known about Egypt; it was not until a dozen years after that, before Dr. Young was able to translate hieroglyphic inscriptions. So in his lectures on the occult he was shrewd enough in making cabalistic signs to use mainly those from the Zodiac and entanglement. He was forty years old at this period, and was described by one who met him at the house of the Comtesse de la Motte in Paris, as being of medium height, fair olive-colored, with a bull-neck, round face, big protuberant eyes, and a "snub nose with open nostrils."

His appearance was thus further described: "He wore a coiffure new in France; his hair parted in several little cadenottes (queues) uniting the back of the head in the form known as a catagan (bunched) dress, French fashion, of iron-grey laced with gold, scarlet waistcoat broided with bold point de spain red breeches, a basket-billed sword and a hat with white plumes."

A Parisian Success.

Cagliostro met with tremendous success in Paris. The Frenchman is a susceptible to a wizard as he is to a pretty girl, and the gorgeous displays of Cagliostro's "properties" made up of able cloths with cabalistic embroidery, and other scarfs and hangings with scarlet decorations in religious symbols attracted them immediately. Standing conspicuously in his solemn displays was always an impressive gilt crucifix, and his performances were gan by an invocation on his knees, whom he declared to be as pure as a His "assistant" was a young girl newly-born angel, with marvellous sensibilities. Whilst this beautiful angel would keep her big blue eyes (perhaps they verged on mauve— who knows?) fastened on a crystal globe of water he would give his lecture made up of appalling statements of his own fictitious experiences, and absurd prophecies based on what Miss Smith (perhaps that was her name) was then seeing in the glass globe.

He also claimed most seriously that he had been living for centuries, had in fact been a contemporary of Christ's and had at that time predicted the Crucifixion. All these things with a lot of medical lore thrown in, led up to the subject in hand—selling his Elixir at 1,000 per cent. profit on the bottle. He next started in to found a new branch of Freemasonry with the sole purpose of defrauding the members, half of whom were women.

He was the "Cophte" and his wife was the "Grand Priestess." Out of the painfully susceptible followers he extracted by his incantations and Shamanism, a large amount of money which he quickly proceeded to spend in gratification of his numerous desires. Personally, he had no fear of moral degeneration, for was he not actually claiming that, among other mysterious ailments, his Elixir would restore lost innocence?

The Best of Them All.

There have been others engaged in Cagliostro's game, but never one with such magnificent gain, nor ever one who dealt his cards with prince, potentate, and savant as did he. The episode of the Queen's Necklace gave him his particular place in history. It associated his name with some of the most prominent people of Europe, and that has been dealt with in so much detail, and fictionalized to such an extent that as time goes by the glamour will be still further increased.

The Queen's Necklace.

The Queen was a martyr in an obscure plot by swindlers, who assailed not only her honor but her throne. It was claimed that the Cardinal Rohan purchased it for her, but he had been roped into the game by a Madame de la Motte. Cagliostro was a friend of this woman's husband; and not only forged the letter that was supposed to have come from the Queen commissioning the Cardinal to purchase the necklace, but was an active conspirator.

The Cardinal's position in the whole affair was a matter of opinion then, and is now. No one doubts the Queen's innocence. In the trial that followed the unveiling of this scandalous plot, the Comte de la Motte was banished for life; his wife was condemned to the carcan—to be branded on both shoulders with the letter V, to be whipped and then be imprisoned for life.

The Same Old Story.

Cagliostro was sent to the bastille, but after a few months managed to secure his liberation. He at once went into his wonder-working schemes, travelling with his strangely faithful wife over Europe. He again put a great dash in his displays of clothing and jewelry. His income was going on in the revenues from his established Egyptian lodges, and among the contributors was the Cardinal himself. At this time Goethe, whose name had become great came upon Cagliostro's family (the Balsalnos) in Palermo, and took a peculiar interest in them and learned much concerning him, their son and brother. He became impressed somehow as he said, "with this pious and quiet family."

After a sojourn in England, where he addressed startling letters to the people of France, Cagliostro, on account of the rows with which he became surrounded, fled in 1787 to Switzerland, first to Basle. Then he got back to Rome, like the proverbial moth was shortly after arrested as a Freemason, and sent to prison for life, while Donna Lorenza, his wife, was shut in the convent of St. Apollina. Cagliostro, the revolutionary alchemist, died in the Castle Leone, October 1, 1795.

Rotary Has Mishap.

The rotary snow plow which has been engaged all the week clearing the Topfalls of snow and which has had a hard fight to do so owing to incessant snow and drift, yesterday afternoon had one of its axles broken when about four miles from Kitty's Brook. The machine was thus put out of commission and the train which left here at 7 p.m. yesterday took out a new axle and wheels to be fitted to the damaged plow which was being "jacked" up by a gang of men last evening and night. When this is done she will be side tracked to enable trains to move. The work of putting the rotary in condition to resume operations will be rushed.

Ugh! Not Calomel, Castor Oil or Salts, But Delicious "Syrup of Figs" To-Night.

This wonderful fruit laxative acts as a liver and bowel cleanser—tonic—not as an irritant. Its action is natural and gentle—no griping. It is delicious—no dreeding. It is positive and prompt—no waiting.

If your stomach is sour and filled with vile gases, your head aches, or you are bilious, nervous, dizzy, half sick, your tongue coated, your thirty feet of bowels clogged with waste not properly carried off—don't wait. Surely take a teaspoonful of delicious Syrup of Figs to-night, and in the morning all constipated waste, sour bile, gases and poisons will move on end out of the system, gently but thoroughly—no griping—no nausea—no weakness. In the old days people let these matters run until they needed a large dose of physic, then they took something severe, like castor oil, salts or cathartics, that meant abuse to the bowels. These are the days of the gentle and natural—the days of Syrup of Figs. This way you are not drugging yourself. Syrup of Figs being composed entirely of luscious figs, senna and aromatics can not cause injury.

Ask your druggist for "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna," and look for the name, California Fig Syrup Company on the label. Any other so-called Fig Syrup is an imitation often meant to deceive you. Refuse such with contempt.

They soon cured his kidney troubles, and in six months there is no sign of their coming back.

St. Anne des Monts, Gaspé Co., Que., Jan. 31. (Special).—"It is six months since I was cured, and I have had no return of my trouble." In these words, Napoleon Vailloncourt, a well known resident of this place, gives evidence that Dodd's Kidney Pills not only give quick relief to sufferers from Kidney Disease, but clean that disease out, root and branch, and cure it permanently.

That Mr. Vailloncourt had Kidney Disease everyone here knows. That he is cured is also established beyond a doubt. Dodd's Kidney Pills did it. "My back bothered me," also my heart and my kidneys, and my limbs would cramp," Mr. Vailloncourt states in giving his experience. Now all that is gone and he is a sound healthy man. Do you wonder that he recommends Dodd's Kidney Pills? Dodd's Kidney Pills cure quickly and permanently because they go right to the root of the trouble. They act directly on the kidneys. They never fail to cure.

CADETS "AT HOME."—The C. C. C. are holding their annual "At Home" in the British Hall on Monday night next. The band of the Corps are preparing special dance selections. This will be the last dance to come off before the Lenten season.

MATCH POSTPONED.—The first Inter-Collegiate Hockey Match for the season was set down to take place to-day between teams from St. Bon's and Bishop Feild Colleges, but owing to the poor condition of the ice, the match has been postponed. It will likely come off on Friday next.

At the City Hall.

The weekly session of the Municipal Council was held last evening. The Secretary of Public Works wrote re the Council's objection to the extension and addition to the General Post Office on George Street. The matter will be placed before the Executive Government for consideration. The contractors will finish their work on the western side of the building first. Unless plans are approved Council cannot permit work to go on. The Reid Co. asked for permit to remove Angel Engineering Co.'s garage. Ordered.

The Reid Co. drew Council's attention to snow on Water Street impeding street cars. Will be attended to.

Commander Atlay, of H.M.S. Calypso, informed the Council that the use of city water for flushing decks was stopped.

S. J. Tucker wrote that he had not been wasting water as reported by the Inspector.

W. Hoiwell asked permission to install gasoline engine in building on Prescott Street. Referred to Engineer, as was also Howlett & Armstrong's request to install electric motor in building on Bannerman Street.

Engineer Ryan reported on the prevalence of people allowing their taps to run full flow in frosty weather, thus reducing the pressure in the mains and making it almost impossible to supply water to certain parts of the city. As mains and services are extended such conditions would grow worse in frosty periods, if some effective effort is not made to check such waste. The supply was ample—about 6,000,000 gallons daily—but the greater portion was wasted through the sewers and into the sea. With a low temperature and running taps the pressure goes down. Flaming cases of waste which had been discovered were stopped. Cases were cited by the Engineer to show the amount of waste going on. In one instance 9 gallons per minute had been measured from a running tap, and in another case a hose left on a wharf discharged water at the rate of 100 gallons a minute. It was a practice with many citizens in frosty weather to open their taps and to the pull of the cisterns thus wasting great quantities of water.

Councillor Martin spoke of the complaints of citizens in this respect, held that they had a right to know how matters stood and believed that something should be done to discover the exact cause of the water shortage this season, as many house holders had suffered thereby.

The whole question, at the suggestion of Mayor Ellis, will be enquired into by the Water Committee. Inspector Rooney reported that certain people on Water Street were wasting water on their premises. These will be prosecuted. When bills, pay rolls, etc., had been passed the meeting adjourned.

'Cascarets' for a Sick, Sour Stomach.

Gently but thoroughly cleanse and regulate your Stomach, Liver and Bowels while you sleep. The Lawful sourness, belching of acid and foul gases; that pain in the pit of the stomach, the heartburn, nervousness, nausea, bloating after eating, feeling of fullness, dizziness and sick headache, means a disordered stomach, which cannot be regulated until you remove the cause. It isn't your stomach's fault. Your stomach is as good as any. Try Cascarets; they immediately cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry off the constipated waste matter and poison from the intestines and bowels. Then your stomach trouble is ended. A Cascaret to-night will straighten you out by morning—a 10 cent box from any drug store will keep your stomach sweet; liver and bowels regular for months. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a good, gentle cleansing, too.

Killed at Badger Brook

Magistrate Fitzgerald had a wire yesterday evening from Badger Brook stating that a logger named Thomas Rowsell, of Glenwood, had been accidentally killed there. A second message apprised him that the unfortunate man was employed at Ball's Lumber Camps and that he was killed while teaming logs for the Anglo Newfoundland Development Co., this work being done by Ball. The man was coming down an incline when the weight of the load took it along quickly. One of the logs on the load collided with the stump of a tree protruding above the snow, which rebounding hit Rowsell on the head and killed him instantly. The father and sister of the deceased are at Badger and Magistrate Fitzgerald ordered a post mortem. An official enquiry into the cause of the accident will also be held. The victim was a young man of about 22 years.

Ladies

Please Take Particular Notice!

We have very few days left before Lent, and many of you will be attending parties, etc., before that time. We want to tell you of some worth $2.00 each, with three-quarter kimono-sleeve and very dainty fine Lace Yoke, that we are offering at $1.40 each.

These are rare value, Ladies, and are what you may feel proud of to wear on any occasion.

S. MILLEY.

The Good Sport

The birdman who is craving the higher atmosphere, among the planets warbling, who laughs when death is near; the sailor, a 11 undaunted, who sails the stormy seas, by grim disaster haunted—good sports, indeed, are these! The man who bears his burden and bravely plays the game, with little chance of surcease, and little hope of fame; the tortured men who suffer from sickness by the year, and use no language rougher than moralists' might hear; the men who smile when sizzling, who chortle when they freeze, kyoodle when it's drizzling—good sports, indeed are these! Good sports, my friends, are scattered, all over this sporty land; though by misfortune battered, till they can scarcely stand, and though they stagger lamely, each-captain of his soul, still struggles onward gamely, toward his chosen goal. Of high or low condition, on ship or cattle range, whatever his position, his grit will never change. He does no foolish whining, he wears no crape or shrouds; his sun is always shining, regardless of the clouds; he utters no reviling of fate or circumstance; the good sport confers up smiling, whenever he has a chance.
