CHAPTER XXIV.
A Black Outlook.

"Why—why did he entice her away?" faltered Harman, not unreasonably.

He shook his head.

"There may have been reasons of which we know nothing," he answered. "We know nothing of Mr. Cyril Burne or his affairs, and cannot surmise his object in running off with her. He may have very good reasons for a secret marriage. For instance, he may be afraid of offending some relative from whom he has expectations."

"Marrying her!" echoed Harman, doubtfully, and yet with a gleam of hope.

"Yes," he said, with quiet confidence. "My belief is that Mr. Burne intends making your niece his wife."

Harman drew a long breath and looked agitatedly at Norah; but Norah avoided her eyes, and stared straight before her, vacantly as before.

"I have no doubt we shall find that they were married this morning."

A shudder ran through Norah's frame, and the hand that held the reins shook.

"Yes," he resumed, musingly, "the more I consider it, the stronger I am convinced that my theory is the right one. Why did Mr. Burne go off to London so suddenly, and why did he come back so secretly, so to speak. He must have gone up to make arrangements for their flight and marriage, and no doubt he came down, using the fete as a blind, to carry her off. Depend upon it, they are married by this time."

"Oh, if I could only think so, sir," murmured Harman, clasping her thin hands.

"I am sure of it," he said. "I can scarcely explain why I feel so convinced that I am right, but I am convinced. However, we can soon find out the truth."

Harman looked at him anxiously and expectantly.

"If you will allow me to help you, Mrs. Harman," he said, "I will undertake to trace them and discover what has really happened."

Harman could only look at him with unpeaking gratitude.

"Yes," he said, reflecting, "I know a person in London—a detective—who will have no difficulty in working out the whole matter, and I will telegraph to him at once."

"I—I don't know how to thank you, sir," faltered Harman.

"Don't you think that will be the best plan, Lady Norah?" he asked, speaking to her for the first time.

Norah forced herself to reply, "You are very good."

"Not at all," he said, with self-deprecation. "We must all help each other when and how we can, and I am only too glad to be of some slight service. Don't be anxious, Mrs."

Back Ache

Gin Pills banish backache, no matter how severe. The effect, understand, is not to numb the pain, but Gin Pills go right to the source of the trouble, the kidneys, restoring the natural functions of these organs, and with the blood purified, and inflammation allayed, the pains disappear permanently.

Gin Pills FOR THE KIDNEYS

Other indications that the kidneys are not purifying the blood stream properly are frequent headaches, deposits in the urine, touches of rheumatism—to name but a few symptoms—and every case calls for Gin Pills.

Hartian; all will come right."

But Harman's eyes filled with tears again.

"The scandal, sir!" she moaned; "we have always been so respectable."

"As to that," he said, thoughtfully, "I think we might prevent any gossip if we took proper steps."

Harman waited breathlessly. "Oh, sir, if we could!"

"It is easy enough," he said quietly.

"We have only got to say that we have heard satisfactory news at the station or elsewhere—"

He saw Norah's face suddenly flush, and he went on more cautiously: "You need say nothing, Mrs. Harman; in fact, the less you say the better. Leave it to me. I am afraid I must tell a white lie or two, but it is pardonable to suppress the truth sometimes. I shall say that Becca has gone to a situation in London, which she had procured without the knowledge of her friends. She was such a restless girl that the story will be readily believed."

Harman sighed.

"Yes, sir, she was always restless, poor girl!"

As she spoke a sudden pallor swept over Guildford Berton's face, for the vision of the motionless form rose before him, and the thought that she was restless no longer flashed upon him.

"I will go on with you to the village," he said, "and put this explanation into circulation, and then return to the station. I know the station-master very well, and I am sure I can show him good reasons for keeping the booking clerk silent, and he himself will understand that the affair is not to be talked about."

Harman faltered out her gratitude, and they drove on in silence.

"Will you put me down at the inn, Lady Norah?" he said.

Norah pulled up the ponies at The Chequers, and he got out.

"You are letting this matter trouble you, I am afraid," he said, leaning forward to her and speaking with the deepest respect and sympathy.

The color rose to Norah's pale face for a fleeting second.

"I—I liked Becca—once," she said, in a repressed tone.

"Yes, I understand," he murmured. "But do not let it worry you too much. I shall find her in a very short time, and I am sure it will turn out as I have said. She is Mrs. Cyril Burne by this time," and he smiled.

Norah drove off without another look at him or a word of good-by, and he went into The Chequers.

Mrs. Brown was still surrounded by a knot of idlers drinking her beer and discussing the event of the day, and Guildford Berton advanced to the tiny bar.

"Ah, Mrs. Brown," he said, in a cheerful voice, that was loud enough to be heard by the persons inside and outside the inn. "I thought you would like to hear the result of our inquiries. It's a very tame ending to the sensation, but we have discovered that Becca South has gone off to a situation she has got in London."

"There now!" exclaimed Mrs. Brown, throwing up her hands, and a murmur of surprise—and possibly disappointment—rose from the rest.

"Yes," said Guildford, laughing lightly. "It is a very prosaic finish, isn't it? But I am glad it's no worse."

"Ah, you may well say so, sir," said Mrs. Brown, tragically; "we was just talking of dragging the pond—"

He looked her straight in the face, but still smiling.

"Oh, nonsense; Becca was the last person, I should think, to commit suicide!"

"I shouldn't be surprised at anything Becca South did," said Mrs. Brown, pursing her lips, "and I'm glad it's no worse than it is. But there, it's just like her to go off like a flash o' lightning and without a word to any one. Why couldn't she tell her aunt and her grandfather, like an ordinary girl?"

"Because Becca isn't an ordinary girl," he retorted, pleasantly. "But, as you say, Mrs. Brown, we are all glad it isn't worse."

"And what about my Mr. Cyril?" demanded Mrs. Brown, in a tone that implied that his disappearance was of far greater importance.

"Oh, he went up to London by the market train," he said, carelessly. "Important business, I expect. There is nothing wonderful in that."

"Why, he and Becca must have travelled by the same train!" said some one, shyly.

Guildford Berton turned to the speaker leisurely.

"Very likely," he said, easily. "However, I am glad the matter is set at rest. Good-morning, Mrs. Brown; good-morning all," and, humming an air, he sauntered out, leaving them to discuss the termination of the sensation.

Outside on the bench the man Furlong was still lying, apparently asleep, and Guildford Berton scarcely noticed him.

He made his way back to the sta-

No Girl Need Have a Blotched Face

Whether it be in capturing the heart of man, or making her way through the world by the toll of her hands, a charming and pretty face gives any girl a big advantage. Poor complexion and rough, sallow skin are caused by blood disorders. The cure is simple. Just use Dr. Hamilton's Pills—a reliable family remedy that has for years been the foremost blood remedy in America. That soft glow will return to the cheeks; the eyes will brighten, appetite will improve, strength and endurance will come because sound health has been established. Get a 25c. box of Dr. Hamilton's Pills to-day. Sold everywhere.

See that baby's binders are not tight; they are often the cause of great discomfort, and sometimes actual pain.

Pale Weak Nervous Children

SCHOOL days are anxious days for parents as well as for children. At the most critical time in their lives girls, and boys, too, are subjected to the enormous nervous strain which examinations and excited ambition entail.

To many children this means nervous breakdown, with weakness of the digestive system, headaches, fainting spells, and a run-down condition, which makes them fit subjects for coughs, colds and contagious diseases.

The blood has become thin and watery, and the nerves are being starved, as is evidenced by weakness of the optic nerve, and the necessity of wearing glasses.

The rational treatment for this condition is Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. While gentle and natural in action, this food cure is wonderfully potent in restoring strength and vigor to the exhausted nervous system.

Experience with many thousands of cases has proven that this restorative treatment is just what pale, weak, nervous children need to build up their systems and to help them back to health and vigor.

"CHILDREN take better care of their teeth than when we were young," remarked a grandfather as he saw the little ones of the family brushing their teeth.

"That is true," said the grandmother, "and children don't have the trouble with teeth we had. Their teeth will be firm and white when they are older, because they visit the dentist twice-a-year and use a good dentifrice every night and morning."

Perfect cleanliness of the teeth is essential to good health as well as to good looks. A delightful way to insure absolute cleanliness is the twice-a-day use of Colgate's Ribbon Dental Cream, the dentifrice with the delicious flavor.

LONDON, Nov. 29, 1916.

QUEEN MOTHER AND THE WAR.

Queen Alexandra, who keeps her seventy-second birthday on the first of December, remains in wonderful health. She has accomplished much war work of real importance, but done it so unostentatiously that few people realize its full extent. I am told that she has a very clear grip of the military situation, which she studies assiduously with the help of excellent and especially prepared maps.

WOMEN DOCTORS IN THE ARMY.

I hear that all the women doctors who responded to the War Office appeal circulated some months ago, and who undertook to serve wherever they were sent and for the length of time required have been sent to Malta where they have set free men doctors urgently required at the front. They are serving on almost the same terms as the medical men called up under the Military Service Act—that is to say, they have entered with the status (though not the rank) and the pay of the first lieutenant, and have no doubt already in many cases been promoted. Like the women doctors working at the Endell Street, London, Military Hospital, they are regarded as attached to the Royal Army Medical Corps but, unlike them, they are distributed among hospitals partly staffed by men. They do not wear uniforms nor receive military titles, for though they work on the same terms as the men and take their share of surgical work it would require an Act of Parliament to give them commissions. The Endell Street experiment has, of course, been a complete success, and no doubt led to the demand for more women doctors, but it is surprising to hear that with so great a demand on them for civilian work at home eighty women have been sent to Malta since the end of July. These have come from all parts of Great Britain and Ireland; in some cases they have given up extensive private practices for the lieutenant's pay of 24s. a week. They were ready to work in any part of the war zone, but there were obvious advantages in sending them all to one medical district. The R.A.M.C. is now asking for fifty more women doctors for home service. One has so far heard very little about the work of the women doctors serving with the Allies, and this new venture has been made very inconspicuously; but there is no doubt that the war record of the profession has been a very brilliant one.

MRS. BOUCAULT DEAD.

There are old people still playgoers who remember the vogue of Mrs. Dion Boucault, the actress who has just died at the age of 84. In the sixties and seventies her beauty of face and figure won her the nickname of "Pocket Venus." Those were the days of her husband Dion Boucault's Irish dramas at the Adelphi Theatre—"The Shaughraun," "The Colleen Bawn," "Arrah-na-Pogue," and so on. For 365 nights in the sixties, an amazing run for the days, Mrs. Boucault played the Irish heroine in "The Colleen Bawn" to crowds of Londoners at the Adelphi. Later on she appeared in "Shaughraun" at Drury Lane. In that very old-fashioned melodrama,

"The Octoroon," too, Mrs. Boucault made a still remembered hit, conquering her audiences in this instance by her tragic acting in lieu of the tenderly wistful creations in which she had formerly excelled. Her stage career was one of the longest. Beginning in 1843 as a child of ten, she was still acting in 1896 at the age of sixty-three. As a girl she played with the Kembles and Macready. Her last performances were at the old Princess's in the intervals of Wilson Barrett's seasons there. Her son and daughter, Dion and Nina Boucault, carry on her name and her qualities.

A MANNESSMANN KILLED.

Germany has lost one of her great commercial men in Dr. Otto Mannesmann, killed in East Africa. Dr. Otto was the youngest of the six Mannesmann brothers, now reduced to four. Two of them, Max and Reinhard, became famous in the iron and steel world through their invention of the jointless tube process and also for their armour-plating. Dr. Otto's best achievement was the Mannesmann inverted, incandescent light, and it was under the Mannesmann license that most of these lamps were manufactured before the war. The inventive genius and business energy of the Mannesmann brothers made them one of the most formidable of enemy firms. Besides their enormous works at Dusseldorf the Mannesmanns had interests in all parts of the Kaiser's lost colonies, as well as in Morocco, in America, and until recently in Wales. The British Mannesmann Tube Company's works near Swansea were purchased by Baldwins, Ltd., a few months ago. The Mannesmann brothers schemed to corner the ironfields of Morocco, and it was for the mining concessions obtained by them that the Kaiser was willing to face a war and provoke the Agadir incident of 1911.

SPAIN AND GERMANY.

Spain, hitherto at least benevolently disposed towards the Central Powers, is now proving grossly restive. According to information which has reached an authoritative quarter here from Madrid, correspondence at present is proceeding between the Spanish and German Governments regarding the large and steadily larger number of German subjects residing in Spain, who, being nearly or altogether destitute, have to be maintained at the expense of either the authorities or charitable institutions. It being impossible to repatriate any of these people owing to Spain's geographical position—neither France nor Italy on the one hand, nor Portugal on the other being disposed to provide facilities, while travel by sea is out of the question—the Spanish Government contended that Germany ought to make a monetary contribution towards the cost of maintenance. Apparently Germany is not prepared as yet to do this, except under conditions specially favourable to the Central Powers, which Spain is not prepared to concede.

THE MAN-POWER REPORT.

There will be presented to the Government this week a second and, as we are officially told, "very important" report by the newly appointed Government Man-Power Board. The chief part of the programme has been well known, though not officially announced, for some weeks. The intention is undoubtedly to take every man up to a certain age, whatever his occupation, unless he is one of the small class of really skilled and really necessary men who cannot be spared if the factories are to go on. No excuse will be taken for an unskilled or half-skilled man in any trade or profession unless he is physically altogether unfit. The question is as to the age limit of the scheme. The men the army want, and want now, are men up to 31 (that is, men of 30 or under), but probably the Army and the Man-Power Board will take it up in two stages—first, the men up to 26, and then the men up to 31. Men of these age groups will probably be taken out of the hands of the tribunals. Generally speaking, there will be no exemptions permitted. As to the older men, the view of the army is that men from 31 to 35 are inferior military material, and men from 36 to 41 greatly inferior. This does not mean that these age classes are not to be used, but they will still be able to claim exemption on various grounds. But the immediate, urgent demand is not for men, and when they are used it will be at any rate at first for somewhat less arduous service than infantry work in the trenches.

NOVELS OF THE SEASON.

For a time of great war we have this autumn had a singularly large crop of new novels. Booksellers in London say, too, that there have scarcely been enough to go round, all all events of the novel of real quality. The reading of the hour is emphatically fiction, because it is light, because it distracts from the war. Most of the autumn novels are out, but one of quite exceptional interest remains to come, a story by the late

Theodore Watts Dunton. It is called "Vesper Towers" and, as might be guessed, it has something to do with the tradition of the luck of the Yesspers. Needless to recall Watts Dunton had one of the great successes in novel writing—"Aylin."

THE LUSITANIA'S TREASURE.

It is hoped, I hear, that when the war comes to an end many of the ships sunk during the past two years by German submarines will be raised; and several companies already have been formed with this object in view. Negotiations are in progress, indeed, between a salvage syndicate in the United States and the underwriters of the Lusitania's cargo, for the purpose of attempting to recover some, if not all, of the valuables on board that ill-fated vessel, which lies about 250 feet below the surface near the Old Head of Kinsale. This depth, it is believed, is not beyond the reach of the modern diver, though much depends on the position of the vessel. Some time ago it was hoped that it would have been possible to perfect her by means of the compressed air system, but so far no action in the matter has been taken.

BRITISH FILM PRODUCTION.

A good deal has recently been heard about the American grip of the film stock trade in this country. Exact statistics are not available, but probably the foreign interests represent something like 70 per cent of the requirements of the United Kingdom. It is satisfactory to know that home manufacturers are making a bold and enterprising attempt to secure a larger share in an industry which is growing daily, and has already assumed gigantic dimensions in other countries. Some time ago the British Film Stock Company established itself in competition with foreign firms, and equipped a factory at Ashstead, on the high grounds of Surrey. Results have led the company to build a great addition to the existing premises, so that the possible output will be about 3,000,000 feet or 500 miles of film, per week, while further extensions are in contemplation. It has been proved beyond doubt that British workmanship and British machinery of British invention and design can produce the very fine product that is required by those who supply the "picture" film in its final state to the cinema trade. At Ashstead several hundred skilled hands and a number of highly qualified chemists work day by day with elaborate appliances in almost complete darkness helping to create what eventually must be a very large and important "all British" industry.

A SIMPLE STYLE.

1555—Ladies' Dress, with Sleeve in either of Two Lengths. This model will make an excellent morning dress of percale, gingham, chambray, lawn, linen, or drill. It will also develop nicely in serge, crepe, voile, or wool poplin, cashmere and flannelette. The waist is made with a vest and the skirt has a panel to correspond. The "V" neck opening is neat and becoming, and is outlined by a smart collar. The sleeve wrist length has a straight cuff. In length a turnback cuff forms a neat finish. The pattern is cut in 6 sizes: 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. It requires 5 1/2 yards of 44-inch material for a 36-inch size. The skirt measures 3 yards at the lower edge. A pattern of this illustration mailed any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps.

PRACTICAL BUSINESS COSTUME

Waist—1893. Skirt—1892. Comprising Ladies' Shirt Waist Pattern 1893 and Ladies' Skirt 1892. Nicely suited, plaid or checked, poplin, serge, voile, corduroy or velveteen would serve for the skirt, while madras, madras, flannel or tartan is nice for the waist. The waist pattern is cut in 7 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. Skirt in 7 sizes: 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32 and 34 inches waist measure. It requires 2 1/2 yards of 36-inch material for the waist and 3 3/4 yards for the skirt for a medium size. The skirt measures about 3 yards at the foot. This illustration calls for TWO separate patterns, which will be mailed any address on receipt of 10 cents. EACH pattern in silver or stamps.

davian frontier and get in their rear or the Bulgarians and Germans can cross the Danube around Tchernavoda and outflank them. However, there has been little activity either on the Transylvanian or Moldavian front or in the Dobruja. The Germans have repulsed a Russian attack in the Trotius Valley and the Russians report checking an offensive movement in the Oltus Valley. Petrograd says that all has been calm in Dobruja and along the Danube. In rounding our forces off by their advance on Bucharest the troops of Von Mackensen have captured 18,000 prisoners and twenty-six guns. The Roumanian troops isolated in western Wallachia and numbering 8,000 have been taken as well as 10,000 forces operating around Predel and Atshanz Passes. Undeterred apparently by the checking of their offensive in the Carpathians the Russians have again taken the initiative there. Berlin states that the present Russian offensive in the Carpathians can be said to be a failure and declares that only local attacks occurred in that region. The repulse of a Russian attack on the Dvina front below Riga is also recorded by Berlin. Hill 304 in the Verdun region and the forest of Apremont south east of St. Mihiel have been the scenes of the only reported activity on the western front. Paris claims that the Germans were ejected from a section of the trenches on Hill 304 but Berlin asserts that the troops of the Crown Prince repulsed French attempts to retake the trenches of the Germans. Paris records that the Germans succeeded in gaining a foothold in the French trenches in the Forest of Apremont but later were ejected by a counter-attack. Heavy fighting around Stravina east of Monastir on the Macedonian front is recorded by Paris, which says the Serbs checked three attacks by the German-Bulgars troops. A Serb attack near Turvovo was repulsed. Berlin states that snow in the Trentino region and rain on the Carso are hampering infantry actions on the Austro-Italian front. The loss of the battleship Suffern with her complement of 718 is considered probable by the French Minister of Marine. The Suffern, which sailed from Lanot, Brittany on November 24th, has not been heard from since. The loss of two Norwegian, one Greek, and one Belgian steamer is announced in London. The sinking of the British steamer Calcedonia, 823 gross tons, is reported. The Calcedonia has been in the service of the British Government.

GREEK TREACHERY.

LONDON, To-day. The Chronicle has the following from George Romas, a Greek, who fled via the Island of Syria, December 5th: "I spent the greater part of the day in Athens and can only state that the situation is critical in the extreme. Royalist mobilization is proceeding rapidly, and strong forces are being sent north towards the border. Every possible war time preparation is being made under the personal supervision of General Demasmanis and it is extremely unlikely that peaceful counsels will prevail with the military clique, whose ardour is enflamed by German reports of Balkan victories and lavish impossible promises from Potsdam.

All Allied troops having been withdrawn, the Greek troops occupy all the points of vantage near Athens and Piragus. Trenches are being made everywhere and guns mounted on the surrounding heights; strenuous efforts are being made to place a strong army in the Larissis region with the object of falling on the Allied rear in conjunction with a German-Bulgarian attack from the north. The military party, so one of its prominent members declared in my hearing today, is full of determination and is convinced of success. I can state definitely that the party of treachery is still absolutely unrepentant and further deception and tragedy are sown in every hour that passes and every fact that struggles to the light, and I talked with numerous people who were eye-witnesses of Friday's events, and who are intimately acquainted with what led up to them. It brings into stronger relief the hideous treachery of which King Constantine and his pro-German clique were guilty. They were determined and used diabolical tricks to trap our small forces; of that there is not the slightest shadow of doubt.

The Christmas Emerald

Among the most attractive of the local Christmas publications is the Christmas Emerald. Appropriately, it is a war number containing articles that are varied and striking on the theme that is uppermost in all minds. The war itself is treated in an opening anonymous article, and "The War and Nid's part in it," by Sir Edward Morris; "Men! Men! Men!" by Dr. Lloyd; and "The Moral Aspect of the War" by Mr. H. A. Winter deal with the same subject. In addition there are contributions of great merit from the well-known pens of Messrs. H. W. LeMessurier, C.M.G., P. K. Devine and J. L. Slattery, J.F. The cover, depicting a winter scene "Christmas Eve," is most attractive. The number will be on sale next Monday, price 10 cents.

LIBERAL NEWSPAPERS DISSATISFIED.

LONDON, To-day. The chief Liberal weekly, the Nation, reprints a leading article on the Cabinet situation entitled "A Leap in the Dark." The war, says the article, which changed the world has brought about an innovation of Government which seems to have been designed from the practice of France under the early Jacobins. When one of these gentlemen desired the power of office, with which the State had permitted to himself for the position. To this French precedent Lloyd-George has added an English example. Last week he proposed to divide the Cabinet into two parts, the first and unimportant part to consist of the Prime Minister and his colleagues, the second and vital part to consist of himself and three inconspicuous civil associates, which was to be charged with the sole direction of the war. The article then adds: "Lloyd George's bristly vigor and adroitness have impressed themselves on the popular mind in contrast with Lord Northcliffe's hourly and daily presentation of his colleagues as a mass of senility and incompetence." Declaring that the new Ministry has no party behind it, the Nation continues: "The sensational Press, from which it draws its breath, will foster its child or disown it as interest indicates. Its chief possessors in a popular degree the confidence of men of all classes who talk about the war but do not figure in it."

Diminuendo.

New York Globe: The first news was that the American Government, in the name of humanity and international law, had protested against the enslavement of the Belgians. Then it was said that the communication was in the nature of a "remonstrance." Then it was described as a "suggestion." Now it appears that it was not a protest, or a remonstrance, or a suggestion, but merely an "inquiry," verbally and unofficially addressed to the German Foreign Office through our Charge d'Affaires at Berlin. What had the wholesome aspect of a robust declaration thus diminishes to less than a tap on the wrist. Washington, appealed to by the exiled Belgian Government, merely asks for information—does not appear in any way to have committed itself to giving judgment concerning a matter of prime moral importance. The champion of the general rights of mankind, which in the dim future would punish the nation invading common rights, in the present does not venture to uphold them even in a note.

THE FRONT HALL CLOSET.

The front Hall Closet is a place where people put things which other members of the family would give one year of life to locate.

Despite the great advance in architecture during the past century, this dark, humped-back dungeon is inserted into almost every home by architects who do not care what happens after the contract is let. And what is the result? We see it all about us in the hopeless, despairing look of husbands who after hunting through every room in the house for a pair of last spring's rubbers are obliged to carry to their daily work a pair of cold, moist feet and a nose which trips a sneeze every thirty seconds. How husbands maintain their temper and standing in the church, under such a handicap, is one of the unfathomable mysteries of life. The Front Hall Closet is always constructed about two feet wide and runs back to a neat peak under the stairway. The architect lines the interior with shelves and hooks, so that when a near-sighted husband goes to look for his fur cap he will run into them head on and back out thirsting for revenge. The Front Hall Closet is never lighted by anything but the kitchen window, which makes it a nasty place to crawl into on both knees and look for a pair of gloves which are good for another winter. Many a man has started to find something in one of these subterranean recesses and got so tangled up with rubber boots and sheet music and ball bats and raincoats that he had to be hauled out, feet first, by a reproachful wife.

If we had any laws in this country that were worth two whoops in a stiff breeze, the Front Hall Closet would be abolished and it would be a criminal offense to put any male wearing apparel out of sight. But so long as Congress continues to cringe before the woman's suffrage movement, husbands will have to keep on digging around for their clothes and going to the office in a loose negligee.

Mr. Beck pleaded for a united cry aroused to the need for democracy with other powers of the world... "Observe good faith and justice toward all nations; cultivate peace and good will with all." He called justly for positive affirmative force that involves active duties as well as passive rights, adding that between Britain and injustice this country could remain neutral. He asked for a platform that would hereafter "impeccable in all things, neutral in nothing," called on President Wilson in his administration to recognize the tocsin of the American people.

Only Hate to Be Won by a Peace Move Now.

Beck Says Allies Would Turn Against us as Teutons Have—Foresees America.

James M. Beck, recently returned from a study of conditions in Europe, speaking on the 23rd ult., at the annual dinner of the Fifth Avenue Association at the Waldorf, said that if this country tried to force a premature peace it would stand, at the end of the war, hated by the Allies with a hatred no less than that now held for us by the Central Powers. Moreover, he uttered a warning that the United States was in danger of having later to face, single-handed, groups of nations in titanic struggles, of which the present war in Europe might be only a beginning.

Mr. Beck pleaded for a united country aroused to the need for dealing with other powers of the world on the principle laid down by Washington: "Observe good faith and justice with all nations; cultivate peace and harmony with all." He called justice "the positive all-diffusive force" that "involves active duties as well as passive rights," adding that between justice and injustice this country could not remain neutral. He asked for a policy that would be hereafter "independent in all things, neutral in nothing." He called on President Wilson in his new administration to recognize this as the tocsin of the American people.

Says We Have Lost Respect.

"Few if any aspects of this world crisis should give the thoughtful American greater concern than the altered attitude of other nations in this country," said Mr. Beck. "To provincial Americans the judgment of the world may be a matter of indifference, but its more thoughtful citizens ignore the portentous possibilities involved in this changed attitude. No one who has travelled in Europe during this world crisis can question the fact that the United States no longer enjoys the respect and good-will of the world in the same measure as heretofore.

"Those who affect indifference in this matter may well be reminded that in the very foundation of the United States, its great founders who were assuredly men of vision, recognized in the very preamble of the Declaration of Independence that a decent respect to the opinions of mankind imposed upon this, as any nation, moral responsibilities and practical obligations.

"It would serve no useful purpose at this time to analyze the attitude of as there will be an increasing tendency in the future for nations to act, not as units, but in groups, and if this nation should, through any reason, become involved in a war with any leading power, that power is not likely to fight alone, while in the present attitude of the rest of the world towards neutral America, it would be only natural if this nation in such event were left to fight its own battles as best it could. In this connection our recent experience on the Mexican border should give us some food for reflection.

"To every thinking American the possibilities of this situation ought to fill him with apprehension, but our country, through its traditions of isolation, has been so influenced by the spirit of provincialism that only a minority in America pays any attention to the gathering clouds, which, though they be at the present moment no bigger than a man's hand, may yet some day overcast the heavens.

"The man who believes that this will be the last war is an incurable optimist. On the contrary, it is, in my judgment, only the beginning of a series of titanic conflicts. This war is not one that can be adjusted for at least a generation with mutual good-will. Over ravaged fields, newly-made graves, and desolated homes the belligerent powers are likely, for at least half a century, to gaze at each other with irreconcilable hatred.

"We know in our own country how many years were required to soften and extinguish the intense resentment of our civil war; and if it be difficult for brethren of a common race, who acknowledge loyalty to a common flag, to make peace with each other, it is infinitely more difficult for belligerent nations of different races, having no common allegiance, and between whom there is and has been for centuries inveterate hatreds, to forget the terrible wounds of this titanic war.

Wisdom from Wilson.

"In my judgment, therefore, the world is likely to be a seething cauldron of international hatred for some decades to come, and it will be difficult and perhaps impossible for the United States to escape in the future from the entanglements of this world crisis.

"In his many effective speeches, President Wilson made no more significant or remarkable statement than his prediction that this was the last great war in which the United States could remain neutral. Little attention was paid to this statement, although it involved an obvious abandonment of the persistent American traditions of isolation. While it seems to me that the statement was somewhat sweeping, yet I believe that thoughtful Americans will concur in the substantial meaning of the remark, which was that the world, whether the United States is willing or not, will compel it to bear its share of the burdens of a common civilization.

"In this portentous period to come, America will have need of the wisest statesmanship and the greatest unity of action. This is the time more than any other when the best men of America should go into politics. This is

Providence Journal Says.

There are two German submarines in the neighborhood of West Indies—That four left Kiel November, two of which were sunk and two others got away.

(N. Y. Times.)

Providence, R. I., Dec. 4.—The Providence Journal will say to-morrow morning: The wireless warnings recently issued to captains of merchant vessels in the Western Atlantic were put out by the order of the British Admiralty, with the full knowledge that there are now in the neighborhood of West Indian waters two large German submarines which have been here since the visit of the U-53, and also because of the knowledge of the British Admiralty that two other German type left Kiel for the coast of the United States on November 5 and were able to evade every effort that was made to capture or sink them before they got out of the North Sea.

The Journal is able to state authoritatively that the plan of dispatching four of the new German submarines from Kiel on November 5 was known in advance to the British authorities that all four submarines left Kiel on that date and at different hours, and that two of them were sunk during the same day by British destroyers the other two getting safely away.

The United States Government has been fully informed of this situation and President Wilson has made strenuous representations to Ambassador Von Bernstorff concerning it.

Your Boys and Girls.

One busy mother has solved to her satisfaction the problem of fresh air for her baby. She bundles him up in his fuzzy coat and peaked bonnet, put mittens on his hands, a hot water bottle at his feet and deposits him in the big clothes basket.

No matter how cold the day, the window is thrown wide open, the doors leading to the other rooms are closed to avoid drafts. Fresh air never kills, but drafts do. The air in the room is very soon as cold as it is outside, and little baby sitting in the sunshine, amuses himself by the hour watching the plants in the window, trying to reach the curtains, and laughing at the passing people who stare at the unusual sight.

25 cents Destroys Your Dandruff and Stops Falling Hair

Save your hair! Make it thick, wavy and beautiful—try this!

Thin, brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is mate evidence of a neglected scalp; of dandruff—that awful scrub! There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life; eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which if not remedied causes the hair roots to shrink loose—then the hair falls out fast. A Little Danderine to-night—now—any time—will surely save your hair.

Get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter, and after the first application your hair will take on that life, lustre and luxuriance which is so beautiful. It will become wavy and fluffy and have the appearance of abundance, an incomparable gloss and softness; but what will please you most will be after just a few weeks' use, when you will actually see a lot of fine, wavy hair—new hair—growing all over the scalp.

Everyday Etiquette.

"I have seen some envelopes with the address written in them on incidental lines and so that each line is started directly underneath each other. Which is correct?" asked Bertha.

"Both are used a great deal at present, the latter being the newer fashion," advised her sister.

Scientific Saving!

Life insurance constitutes a savings bank account with the additional feature of protection. If the life insurance depositor dies, instantly a sum equal to the savings of many years becomes available under his life insurance policy.

Whereas only the deposits themselves, with interest, would be available for the relatives of a depositor in a savings bank.

Banks are, of course, an absolute economic necessity, but they do not fulfil the double purpose that an insurance office accomplishes.

Patient saving of $50.00 per annum for 20 years would give a depositor $1,000, plus interest, but if he died during the first year his family would withdraw only $50.00.

Under a Mutual Life Endowment policy maturing at the end of 20 years a deposit of $50.00 would carry with it an indemnity of $1,000, payable to the beneficiary if the assured died in the first or any succeeding year—and the full amount with profits is payable to the assured if living at maturity.

Thus an Endowment policy in the Mutual combines SAVINGS, INVESTMENT and PROTECTION.

The Best Security one can hold is a Mutual Policy.

What a Horse Strike Would Mean.

Carl N. Kennedy, of the Oregon Agricultural College, presents this interesting subject in the Breeder's Gazette, Chicago, as follows:

The railroad difficulty now confronting the nation leads one to think of the effect that a strike would have upon the wheels of commerce. We might make a similar comparison of the result if the horse could use horse-sense and start a strike because of its wrongs and poor feed.

There are more than 24,000,000 horses in the United States, of which 3,000,000 are used in cities. Associated with these 3,000,000 city horses are about 1,500,000 teamsters and freight movers who would be made idle by the strike of the horses. The business of the stockyards, the transfer companies, railroads and the steamboats, with all manner of construction work, would be thrown into chaos. It is estimated by automobile men that from two to three per cent of the work is now being done by trucks. Therefore at least 95 per cent of the hauling would not be taken care of and 1,000,000 men would be put out of employment, either directly or indirectly by the absence of the horses.

On the farms the condition would be even worse. Of the 21,000,000 horses on farms probably 50 per cent are used for work and the other 50 per cent are idle or growing horses. What would be the result if the 10,000,000 or more horses which are working in the United States would stop work in the middle of our harvest? The wheat market would be affected to a greater extent than by the European war. If the animals which are at work with the hay or other crops would quit, millions of farmers would be thrown temporarily out of work. The result would be tremendous even as compared to what a probable railroad strike might mean. The horse strike would stop the productive end of the work and also the larger part of the movement of freight.

In addition to the horses, there are 4,000,000 mules in the United States. It can be imagined that these would strike in sympathy with the horses, as they are half horse. Then again our army in Mexico might have some trouble.

Where would the strike lead the horses and their sympathisers? No where in particular, except to make the people of the United States realize that they are still dependent upon the horse and that horses are doing most of the work. It might also put under the sod some of the prophets who are predicting a day when there will be no horses; the people would know that at least their idea was dead.—Our Dumb Animals.

METEOROLOGICAL

The weather seer predicts a freeze: "Tomorrow 'twill be snowing; a n d forty kinds of arctic breeze like blitzen will be blowing." Tomorrow I had planned to go to visit my sundry nieces, but this plunk prophecy of snow has knocked my plans to pieces. The day will probably be fine, and balmy and beguiling, soft winds will blow, the sun will shine, all nature will be smiling. I lack the nerve to laugh to scorn the government fore-caster; I will not set forth in the morn, for fear I meet disaster. Experience has shown me that the weather seer is hatty; he issues forecasts through his hat, and most of them are ratty. A canvas seer, with sawdust stuffed, would prophesy all round him, yet I confess he has me bluffed, with his old maps, confound him! So I stay home all day and mope—my headpiece being leather—because the tinhorn prophet's dope is threatening bad weather. A million men are baffled, just like the loosed writer; they venture not from their abode because of this old blighter, who threatens storms that do not start—why don't the peelers pinch him?—who springs his rusty map and chart, when we go up to lynch him.

PERSONAL.—Miss Marie Flood left by the Portia for St. Mary's to spend Christmas with her aunt, Mrs. Bowen. We wish her a pleasant time.

Bel-man Found Guilty.

Of Committing Assault on a Respectable Wife and Mother.

As mentioned yesterday in the Telegram, Capt. James Bellman, of the schr. Lizzie M. Stanley, was arraigned before the Supreme Court on a serious charge of assault committed on one Catherine Ryan, of Port Saunders on the night of August 30th, 1916. In the forenoon the jury listened to the evidence of Mrs. Catherine Ryan. In answer to questions asked by the counsel for the Crown, the complainant said that she had been married for four years and had two children, 3 years and 13 months. The prisoner at the bar, in company with Stephen Hickey (a member of the crew of the Lizzie M. Stanley), called at her home about dark on the evening the assault was committed. The accused asked if she had any eggs or milk to sell; her reply was "No, let me in." The woman became frightened and begged of the accused not to come in, but her pleadings were of no avail for the door was forced open, and like a wild beast the man with all sense of human nature cast aside violently and feloniously assaulted the helpless woman in the presence of her children. The sum of ten dollars was offered as the price of virtue, which the woman refused to accept. Immediately after the accused left her house, she took her two children in her arms and in her night attire fled to the home of her father-in-law, James Ryan, about 100 yards distant, and with tears streaming down her face related her story to her husband's parents. Mr. Ryan rose early the next morning and acquainted the local Justice of the Peace, Mr. Garland, of the happenings of the previous night, and forthwith the latter ordered the captain of the Lizzie M. Stanley on shore. The ship was then attempting to get out of the harbor. An enquiry was held by the J.P. which resulted in the following witnesses being sworn and since summoned to appear before the Supreme Court: Mrs. James Ryan, Messrs. James Ryan, James Drake, George Stone, Stephen Hickey and Albert Rose. The four last mentioned were members of the crew of the Lizzie M. Stanley. The chief witnesses in the case were Hickey and Stone. The latter in giving his evidence stated that he saw the captain, meaning Bellman, go through the doorway of Mrs. Ryan's house. It was further shown in the evidence that the captain and the four mentioned members of the crew were drinking rum at the house of a man named Rumbolt, the liquor being supplied by Bellman. At 6 o'clock the witnesses, including the prisoner, had given their evidence, when the court took recess for tea. At 7.40 Mr. L. E. Emerson, B.L. addressed the jury on behalf of his client and put up an able defence considering the evidence so strongly given against the accused. He was followed by Hon. M. P. Gibbs, K.C., representing the Crown, who reviewed the evidence given by the various witnesses. At 9.05 Chief Justice Horwood charged the jury. The jury retired at 9.20 and after fifteen minutes absence filed back into court and through their foreman Mr. Raymond Cram, announced to the court that they had found the prisoner guilty.

The prisoner was before court this morning for sentence. His Lordship spoke very appreciatively of Mr. Emerson's conduct of the case and congratulated him upon the able defence he had offered against overwhelming evidence. He then sentenced the prisoner to two years' imprisonment with hard labor, remarking that the serious nature and circumstances of the offence made a lighter punishment impossible.

Mr. Grace Notes.

The funeral of the late Mr. Evan Pugh takes place at Hear's Content this afternoon. The deceased, who was a telegraph repairer with the Anglo-American Telegraph Company for many years, was well known here. He leaves six sons and two daughters to mourn their loss.

The S. S. Port Saunders arrived from Bell Island on Monday and docked for cleaning up. She sailed again yesterday afternoon.

In the casualty list published yesterday appear two names well known here—Pte. Thomas J. Delaney, of Placentia, who worked in the whale factory here for four or five summers, and Pte. John Dullanty, of St. John's, who spent 10 days or so visiting Harbor Grace in company with Pte. John Price before they left for England. Pte. Dullanty made many friends while here, all of whom learned with deep regret of his death on the battle field.

Socrates Was Right!

This wise old man of science when treating on the daily diet, and speaking of an Ideal Race, athletically built and wholesome mentally, said:

"They will feed on barley and wheat, baking the wheat and kneading the flour, making noble puddings and loaves; * * * * * thus shall they be great of limb."

Today Grape-Nuts

is more and more becoming the favorite food of sturdy Canadians.

Made of whole wheat and malted barley this famous food supplies all the nourishment of the grains including their vital mineral salts—lacking in many foods—but all-important for keen mental activity and sturdy physical strength.

Every table should have its daily ration of Grape-Nuts—

Household Notes.

Mud stains should be soaked in kerosene.

A good cook is known by her clever use of left-overs.

Dried hydrangeas are very pretty for autumn decoration.

When making clear stock do not use any cooked or stale meat.

Small wool powder puffs should be cleaned by dipping in alcohol.

A leg of mutton is one of the most economical joints you can have.

A combination table and settee is always a convenience in the kitchen.

Babies are like other little animals—they should not be handled.

Baskets to gather flowers or vegetables in are always welcome gifts.

When a cake is done it should be turned out gently on a sieve or cloth.

New mattresses should be turned often, else they will wear unevenly.

Never leave brushes standing on their bristles. It is apt to rot them.

Newfoundland Herring

With supplies of Newfoundland herring of Scotch herring advanced, it is possible that there may be an advance in Newfoundland herring, but such is entirely contingent upon developments based upon the future supply from Scotland. The winter herring fishery in Newfoundland is said to have begun with bright prospects for a good catch, and operations in New York are taking a keen interest in developments. The competition is likely to be keener this year than it was last because of reports from St. John's to the effect that Scotch curing will be undertaken on a much smaller scale than in 1915 and the year preceding. It is known that factors in this city are sending representatives to Newfoundland to purchase supplies from the fishermen at the various producing centres. Several are already on the ground and it is understood that at least a portion of the early catch has been bought up at Bay Islands, Notre Dame and Bay Bulls, where one of the largest factors in the Newfoundland herring trade has located a gigantic plant for curing and storing herring.—Fishing Gazette, Nov. 18.
