Love in the Abbey

Lady Ethel's Rival

A NIGHT AT THE PLAY.

"REG! It's the most extraordinary smell I ever smelled!" It is Kitty who says this, sniffing the atmosphere—the well-known atmosphere of a circus and theatre combined! Who of us does not remember it? Sniffing in the dimness of the best private box in the house, and peering from behind the curtain into the sawdust ring beneath her with eyes eager with anticipating delight.

"Rum, isn't it?" acquiesces Lord Reginald.

"Take one ton of gunpowder," says Kitty, "two tons of damp sawdust, an explosion of gas, and ten cases of bad oranges, and you have it! But still it's delightful! Oh, Reg, do you think they'll be punctual? It's ten minutes to seven, and they haven't turned the gas up yet!" and she casts her eyes round the house and stares at the hunched and bedarded green attendant longingly.

"They are always half an hour behind their time at these provincial theatres," says Master Reg, with the air of a lounge about town. "They'll wait till the house is pretty nearly full; besides, it's policy: you're so sick of waiting that you're glad enough to get any rubbish. Look at that party of local swells just come into that box opposite! All the colors of the rainbow, and a few more invented for 'em! They're worth all the money!"

"I'm almost afraid to peep out!" says Kitty. "I wouldn't be seen for the world now we're here, after all the pains we took to get clear away without being caught! Oh, Reg!" turning up her eyes and clasping her hands, "what would they say at the Hall if they knew we were here, in a stuffy box at the Theatre Royal, Burlington!"

Reg laughs; then he looks up at her nervously. Both of them are unconscious of the sin they are committing against the higher conventionalities as a monkey would be when he steals nuts. They think only of the lesser sin of giving their people the slip, of escaping the tedium of the drawing-room. It has never occurred to Kitty that there is any severe breach of propriety in spending the evening alone with Cousin Reg, and—of all places in the world!—at the Theatre Royal, Burlington. At Burlington, where their faces are as well known as is the great clock in the Town Hall.

Such a sense of the grave step she has taken has never for a moment obtruded itself on her girlish, utterly un-questioning mind. She is here, that is the great thing! When the play is over, the next and only great question for her will be to get back into the Hall, with Reg, undetected and unsuspected. So she throws the shawl, which she has donned more for disguise than warmth, over the back of the stuffy chair, and hides behind the curtain, criticising the audience, the house, the members of the orchestra—ten in number—chattering under her breath like a young magpie, and supremely happy. As to compromising herself, Kitty doesn't understand that word, and if she did, why—

Up goes the gas, and the orchestra, that has been setting everybody's teeth on edge with the tuning, commences in fearful time and still more awful tune the overture to "Zampa." The manner in which they murder that innocent, long-suffering piece of music would inevitably have slain the composer had he been unfortunate enough to have been on the spot, but they wound up at last with a grand discordant finale, and then—to Kitty's inexpressible delight—the damned curtain, slowly and spasmodically, shrivels upward. There is, of course, a farce first—a farce in which a short, thickest young man, in a glaring crimson wig, shrieks, groans, shouts, and pitches chairs about in the orthodox style; in which two ladies, one fat, fat, and forty, and the other forty, fat, and fair, at times tirmen and console the young man in the red wig. It is called a screaming farce on the bills, and does its utmost to merit the adjective. It is all slender from beginning to end, and the drop scene descends upon audience and actors red and thirsty from excess of laughter, bewilderment, and confusion.

Kitty draws her breath. "It's almost as good as 'Punch and Judy,' Reg! Only you couldn't hear the whop, whop of Punch's stick on Judy's head, which one enjoys so much."

What next? Then follows "The Bandit of the Mountain," a stirring melodrama! Before which, of course, the orchestra play a would-be lively overture by way of variety, subsiding, however, to a series of threatening growls and dismal squeaks as a warning of what is to come. Then the first scene appears—a mountain glen with all the splendor of a rising (or setting) sun, grove of green trees and gamboge mountains. With a clatter of hoofs, and much shouting, the bandits appear, and, much to Kitty's joy, they are—with a courageous disregard of the secrecy which usually attends the movements of bandits in general—they are, one and all, superbly mounted. They are all in costumes glitteringly, not to say dazzlingly conspicuous, and in some strange way they appear to court rather than fear observation. There is much palaver; "Our chief" is heard a great many times on all sides, and presently, with a clatter sufficient to arouse all the polices in the mountainous district, "the chief" appears. Amusement and delight when the chief is found to be a woman—a woman in a scarlet habit—a nice, quiet costume in which to evade the police—and a hat overhanging by an enormous green feather. This dauntless young lady has much to say, and would, doubtless, have more but for the sudden appearance of the military, who have been sent to capture her, and who certainly cannot have remained in ignorance of her whereabouts unless they were deaf and blind.

There is, of course, a grand scrimmage, in which the horses join with exceeding heartiness; dust arising and mingling with the smoke of the exploded firearms, in sufficient quantities to render the descent of the drop scene almost unnecessary. There are three acts of this description—three short acts, in which the heroine, who never is parted for a moment from her scarlet habit and green feather, goes through a series of adventures as innumerable as they are gigantic. But at last, she marries the duke—of course there is a duke—all the bandits are pardoned, and amidst more dust and smoking pistols, which explode on every occasion, whether it be one of peace or conflict, the last act comes to an end.

"Glorious, isn't it!" gasps Kitty, red with a commingling of laughter and excitement. "It's the most fearful thing I ever imagined! Reg, I don't wonder they eat so many oranges," looking up at the crowded gallery and down at the circle round the ring. "I never could understand until to-night why people always sucked oranges when they grew excited. It is the only thing that keeps some of them from going out of their minds. Now for the 'scenes in the arena,' and 'Dick Turpin's Ride to York!' can we wait for that, Reg? Oh, I hope we can! I wouldn't miss it for all the world!"

"Glad you're enjoying yourself, Kitty," he says, looking up at her beautiful face, bright and sparkling with vivacity and enjoyment. "I think we might stop a little while longer, but I must go and get something to drink."

"Take care," says Kitty, calling to him in a warning whisper. "Mind no one sees you!"

"All right," he nods. "It doesn't matter about me, you know; you are the one to keep dark."

Kitty can't quite see the distinction, but is too happy to think, and drops into Reginald's chair to get a better view of the house.

As she does so, two gentlemen enter a box almost exactly opposite. The boxkeeper hurries officiously to the curtains, and is about to throw them open; the gentlemen are in evening dress, although they are muffled up to the neck in thin overcoats, and the boxkeeper is anxious to show them to the audience; but the thinnest and fairest of the two stops the officious hand by a touch of command. "No, do not open the curtains."

And he deounces him with a half crown. Then he turns to his companion, honest James—stout as ever, but pale, not red now—pale and dreadfully anxious.

"We shall soon see, Mr. Ainsley, if my conjecture is the right one," says Sydney Calthrop gravely, but with a reassuring smile. "I—I hope you are wrong," says James, wiping the perspiration from his forehead. "How dreadfully hot it is here! I hope you are wrong; indeed, I think you must be. Kitty—Miss Trevelyan, I mean—is rather thoughtless, and does things sometimes that—that other people wouldn't do; but I don't think she would come here alone."

"Not alone," remarks Sydney Calthrop; "no, no; not alone! With Lord Reginald, of course."

"Yes, yes; of course," assents James, staring at the closed curtains with winking, nervous eyes. "I know she wouldn't come alone—good Heaven!—but not with Lord Reginald even."

of course, I'm glad we came. I'd go anywhere to—to help her. But still I don't think you are right; I won't believe she is here"—emphatically—"until I see her with my own eyes."

Sydney Calthrop laughs queerly. "Well, now I come to think of it, neither do I. It was absurd to suspect such a thing, but—well, I did suspect it, and that must be my excuse for mentioning it to you. However, we can soon set the question at rest by looking round the house. Will you—"

James goes to the curtains and opens them half a foot, and looks cautiously round the house; then he turns to his companion with a smile and a sigh—a sigh of relief.

"I knew it," he says, wiping his brow; "of course, I was sure that she wouldn't do such—such a foolish thing. She is not here."

Sydney Calthrop looks rather surprised, then smiles and laughs with an assumption of relief to match his companion's.

"Of course not!" he says, "that is all right. Now shall we go back—you don't care to stay, of course?"

James glances at his black gloves. "My uncle—"

"Yes, yes, just so! I merely put the question out of politeness. Just one look at the ring and then—"

He goes to the curtain and peeps through, to draw back with a sudden gravity. "Who is in that box opposite?" he says, "the one with the curtains almost closed? Did you notice that?"

"Yes, yes," says James, "of course I did. But I know she is not in it; if Kitty—if Miss Trevelyan came here, she wouldn't hide behind a curtain." "She wouldn't be ashamed of what she had been indiscreet enough to do. She is not there, Mr. Calthrop."

Sydney Calthrop nods acquiescence. "You know her better than I do," he says; "come let us go, then. I must say," with an air of relief, "I am heartily glad that I am mistaken. If Miss Trevelyan had been thoughtless enough to accompany Lord Reginald—"

"But you don't know that he is here!" says James almost testily. (To be Continued.)

THE LABRADOR BOUNDARY.

MONTREAL, Dec. 5. A despatch to the Gazette from Ottawa says the task of determining the boundary line between Ungava, now a portion of the Province of Quebec, and that part of the Labrador coast belonging to Newfoundland, may be referred to the Judicial Committee of the Imperial Privy Council early next year. Since Ungava was added to Quebec in 1912 the Government of that Province has been anxious that the line between its territory and that of the Ancient Colony should be defined. For some years past there have been at intervals negotiations between the Dominion Government and the Quebec Government on the one hand, and the Newfoundland Government on the other looking to a reference of the case to the Privy Council. Quebec, however, is now pressing for settlement of the dispute, and it is held if a reply is not received within a reasonable time from Newfoundland, will join with the Dominion of Canada in submitting the whole question to the Privy Council.

TERRORIST REVOLUTION.

PARIS, Dec. 5. A terrorist revolution under the leadership of Dr. Liebknecht, the Berlin Socialist, will break out in Radical Friday evening, according to advices received by the Zurich correspondent of the Journal. Liebknecht, the report says, has 15,000 men well armed. The population of Berlin, according to reports, is at the mercy of gangs of assassins and there appears to be no authority.

RIOTING IN COLOGNE.

COPENHAGEN, Dec. 5. Machine guns were used in suppressing food riots in Cologne on Friday, according to reports received here. Several stores in different parts of the city were plundered and there were a number of casualties in the ranks of the demonstrations, several being killed. Other casualties occurred in conflicts between mobs and the police throughout the night.

NAVY'S GREAT WORK.

LONDON, Dec. 5. The work of the British navy during the war was lauded by Sir Eric Geddes, First Lord of the Admiralty, in an address opening the "sea-power" exhibition of pictures and relics in London. The sea-power of the British navy from the very outbreak of the war, he declared, held all the fleets of the world in a silent grip, crushed the sea out of the enemy countries and secured the freedom of the world. By his efforts from 1914 to 1917, Sir Eric added, the tenth cruiser squadron kept under guard a stretch of sea 10,000 miles long, from the Orkneys to Iceland, and had intercepted 15,000 tons of supplies to enemy countries. Although this work had been accomplished for the most part in the dead of night or in bad weather, night tempests and blizzards, less than one per cent. of vessels succeeded in using the lines of the blockade of the British navy. British sea-power, Sir Eric concluded, has been the pivot which the fate not only of the war of the world had turned.

NEGOTIATIONS RE WILHELM.

COPENHAGEN, Dec. 5. A despatch from the Berlin Soling and Workmen's Council has arrived at the Hague, a Berlin despatch reports. The message indicates that the German Government is anxious to do with negotiations concerning Emperor Wilhelm in progress. The German delegation in the Hague, of which it is not stated.

DUKE OF GRAFTON DEAD.

LONDON, Dec. 5. The Duke of Grafton, head of the Grafton family and a retired General in the British army, is dead. He was 82 years of age.

Quebec Pressing Settlement of Labrador Boundary.

REVOLUTION BY PROGRAMME.

Machine Guns Quell Riots in Cologne---Another Tribute to the Navy ---Complete Agreement Between Allies.

THE LABRADOR BOUNDARY.

The revolution of Berlin, according to reports, is at the mercy of gangs of anarchists and there appears to be no chance of its success.

NOTING IN COLOGNE.

CONCILIATIONS re WILHELM.
COPENHAGEN, Dec. 5. A message from the Berlin Socialist Workers' Council has arrived in the Hague, a Berlin despatch says. The message indicates that the council is in communication with the Netherlands capital and with negotiations concerning the Emperor William in progress. A German delegation in the Hague, of which is not stated.

DEATH OF GRAFTON DEAD.
LONDON, Dec. 5. The death of Grafton, head of the British army, and a retired General, is reported. He was 80 years of age.

EMPEROR'S CABINET.
MADRID, Dec. 5. The Emperor's cabinet, who has been chosen to form a new government, is reported to have met at the palace at midnight. The Emperor is reported to have been in the city of Madrid at noon. The cabinet has been chosen from among the supporters of the Emperor.

McADOO'S SUCCESSOR.
WASHINGTON, Dec. 5. Representative Carter Glass, of Virginia, was nominated today by President Wilson to be Secretary of the Treasury.

ELECTION ECHOES.
LONDON, Dec. 5. (Via Reuter's QUAWA, AZORES.) Ex-Premier H. H. Asquith's renunciation of office was not placed in nomination yesterday. Mrs. Hope's papers were informal, and were rejected. Horatio Bottomley, editor of John Bull, who yesterday secured his discharge from bankruptcy was nominated. Among those elected by acclamation were T. P. O'Connor, Spencer Leigh Hughes and Kennedy Jones.

STILL IN THE DARK.
LONDON, Dec. 5. Winston Spencer Churchill's announcement regarding the nationalization of the railroads, has stirred up the greatest interest here. No details of the Government's policy have yet been made. "I am still in the dark; I know no more than the newspapers have published," a prominent railway official told the Associated Press. What form the nationalization will take is the subject of considerable conjecture.

HUN BRUTE EXPOSED.
LONDON, Dec. 5. (British Wireless Service.)—The Commandant of the notorious German prison camps of the Hanover command, who subjected British officers to gross indignation and brutal treatment, has been exposed in the latest reports of Sir Robert Younger, Judge of the High Court of Justice, and his committee, which has been dealing with the treatment by the enemy of British prisoners of war. The Committee's report says: "It is not in the least events involving at least one case of homicide and which will receive special attention on some other occasion, that the true significance of the German horrors is to be found, but in the petty tyranny constantly exercised, the punishment of men for so-called offenses, of needless restrictions and the overbearing conduct of the German administration."

LOED ROBERT CECIL AND LEAGUE OF NATIONS.
LONDON, Dec. 5. Lord Robert Cecil, former Assistant Secretary for Foreign Affairs, has been asked by the Government, to take charge of the British section at the Peace Congress which is to deal with the question of a League of Nations. Lord Robert Cecil made this announcement to-night in a speech at Letchworth. "I very cordially accepted the invitation," said Lord Robert Cecil. "There is nothing I would more readily do for my country than to get up the British case and state it at this conference in favor of the greatest political and social reform it is possible to achieve in the interests of mankind."

A DAY OF RECKONING.
LONDON, Dec. 5. Sir Auckland Geddes, President of the Local Government Board and Minister of National Service, in a public address said that the line of policy advocated by the Coalition Government was a peace which, so far as the powers were concerned, should be based on stern justice, and so far as those men who planned and started the war were concerned, should be founded on justice of the nature meted out in the highest courts of the land. Such men as the former German Emperor, Enver Pasha and the former rulers of Bulgaria and Austria would be placed on trial and if found guilty their lives would be forfeited. Men guilty of unspeakable atrocities upon our prisoners and upon the civilian inhabitants of the invaded lands, he continued, must stand trial, and if they are condemned must suffer death. It had to be proved how far the commanders of submarines acted under orders which they had to carry out under pain of death or how far they acted on their own volition. But if the atrocities at sea were committed on the violation of individual commanders, he declared, that they must suffer the extreme penalty. Today is the day of reckoning for our enemies, said the minister, and they will have to pay the utmost farthing what it is possible to bring out of them.

EMPEROR'S PLEDGE TO RESPECT THE NEUTRALITY OF BELGIUM. Whenever his statements are put to the test they prove woefully at fault. I never desired war, he declared, in the interview with astonishing frankness, forgetting his famous pronouncement in favor of "A jolly old war." The presence of such a man, insignificant as he is intellectually and a soldier of Germany, is a standing plague to Europe and peace. The Daily Telegraph says the Emperor's story is one which the historian will regard with justifiable skepticism. Germany is probably not particularly proud of its former ruler and his son at the present moment. Their combined influence was the immediate cause of the present chaos and they can find nothing better to do than to shift all blame from their guilty shoulders at the cost of the perversion of all well established facts.

CLEMENCEAU REPORTS COMPLETE AGREEMENT.
PARIS, Dec. 5. (Havas.)—There is complete agreement between the Allies on all questions, particularly that concerning the former German Emperor, declared Premier Clemenceau on his return from London last night. He expressed deep satisfaction over the important results obtained at the Conference. The Premier said he had been deeply moved by the magnificent reception given him by the British.

LLOYD GEORGE RE-STATES POLICY.
LONDON, Dec. 5. Lloyd George, the British Prime Minister, to-night in the election campaign gave a re-statement of his policy. In it he declares that the men responsible for the war cannot escape because their heads were crowned, but that they must be tried by an international court. Mr. Lloyd George also declared himself in favor of the expulsion and exclusion of all enemy aliens.

NO MORE CONSCRIPTION.
DUNDEE, Dec. 5. The British representatives at the peace conference will demand general and absolute abolition of conscription throughout Europe. Winston Spencer Churchill made this announcement in a speech here to-night.

GOEBEN SETTLED AT LAST.
LONDON, Dec. 5. The entire Turkish fleet is now in the hands of the Allies, the Admiralty announced to-day. The warships, after surrendering, were interned in the Golden Horn at Constantinople. The former German cruiser Goeben was among the surrendered vessels.

Llewellyn Club.
A special program in celebration of the signing of the armistice, was carried out at last night's meeting of the Llewellyn Club, Rev. Dr. Jones presiding. This opened with an address by Hon. J. A. Clift, who spoke on the reasons for rejoicing that the struggle had been fought and won. A concert followed and was thoroughly enjoyed. Those taking part were Messrs. J. Fox, T. P. Halley, J. P. Crotty, A. Williams, C. Trappell, R. Somerville, Baldwin, P. F. Moore and W. B. Ayre. H. Lordship Bishop White then delivered a very interesting address, paying tribute to the army and navy, and to the genius of Marshal Foch. Concluding, he congratulated Rev. Dr. Jones on being made Rural Dean of Avalon in succession to the late Rev. Canon Colley. He also stated that before long he expected other honors to be bestowed on the rev. gentleman. Rev. Dr. Jones in reply expressed himself as pleased with the honor bestowed upon him, and spoke in fitting terms of the signing of the armistice. After all present went downstairs and partook of refreshments. Hon. Sir M. P. Cashin, Hon. Tasker Cook and others gave short addresses, and the evening closed with a vote of thanks to the ladies for their active assistance.

Wedding Bells.
O'LEARY-COOMBES.
A very pretty wedding was solemnized yesterday at the Parish Church, Trepassey, when Mr. John O'Leary led to the altar Miss Teresa Coombes. The bride was charmingly attired in brown silk trimmed with white crepe de chene and hat to match, was attended by her sister Miss Agnes Coombes and Miss Susie O'Leary sister of the groom. The groom was ably supported by his brother Mr. F. O'Leary and Mr. Patrick Coombes, brother of the bride. After the ceremony the bridal party drove to Portugal Cove their future home, where they were met with volleys of musketry by their friends. The bride was the recipient of many handsome presents including a number of cheques. We wish Mr. and Mrs. O'Leary many years of happiness.

West Coast Notes
(Western Star.)
Several deaths have resulted from influenza in the west end of St. George's.

R. Moulton, Ltd., are closing out their business at Lark Harbor. The tern schooner Riscover II. was at Lark Harbor last week taking the balance of their fish and shop goods.

Joseph Guy has resigned his position as superintendent of the machine shops, Humbermouth, and left yesterday for Catalina, where he intends opening a machine shop in company with his brother.

Parties from Lark Harbor last week told us that the influenza epidemic at that place was practically over, there being only one serious case there then. In all there were eleven deaths at Lark Harbor, and four at Brooms Bottom. They spoke very highly of the services rendered by Mr. and Mrs. Dave and Mr. and Miss Gear. Though the former visited many of the houses where people were infected and tended, on the sick, he did not contract the disease. Only six houses throughout the settlement escaped the malady.

Navy's Representative At To-Morrow's Celebrations

Members of Wilhelm's Staff Leave Holland for Germany--Serious Trouble in German Prison Camp--The Goeben Nailed At Last.

9.00 A.M.

RESOLUTION TURNED DOWN.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 5. By unanimous vote, the Senate Foreign Relations to-day disapproved the resolution of Senator Cummings, of Iowa, Republican, proposing to send a Senate Committee to Paris for the Peace Conference.

WILL MAINTAIN SERVICE.

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 5. Until the time arrives for laying up the vessels, which have been used by the Naval Department for patrol work, etc., it is unlikely that the demobilization of Canada's naval forces will take place. It is understood that the lines of demobilization, to be followed by the naval authorities, are similar to those laid down by the Militia Department.

SERIOUS INCIDENTS.

PARIS, Dec. 5. (Havas).—Incidents of serious gravity occurred within the past few days in a prison camp in Saxony, where Allied prisoners were confined, the Echo De Paris declares. The Allied Governments, it adds, are reported to have decided to act energetically in that connection.

TO TAKE PART.

BOSTON, Dec. 5. The British cruiser Devonshire, commanded by Capt. G. B. Fowell, arrived here to-day to participate in the British celebration on Saturday. She tied up at the navy yard.

WORK WATCHING.

LONDON, Dec. 5. A German physician, summoned from Berlin on Tuesday by the former German Emperor, arrived in Holland to-day on a special train, according to an Exchange Telegraph despatch from Amsterdam. Three members of the former Emperor's staff, the despatch adds, have left Amersfoort for Berlin. They are carrying many documents concerning the former Emperor's private property.

WAR COUNCIL DISCUSSION.

PARIS, Dec. 5. Colonel E. M. House, one of the members of the American Peace delegation, and who has been representing President Wilson in conferences here, is now fully conversant with the decision taken by the Supreme War Council at its meeting in London, which Colonel House was unable to attend, on account of illness. He had a long conference last evening, at his residence, with Baron Sonnino, the Italian foreign minister, who has just returned from London, and to-day conferred with the Earl of Derby, the British Ambassador in Paris, who also attended the London meeting. Naturally, the results of the conference in London have not been disclosed, but it is generally understood that the War Council discussed the disposition to be made of the former German Emperor, and the former Crown Prince, and the compensations from Germany for damages committed in various countries. No definite action was taken, in the absence of an American representative, and definite decisions will await the arrival of President Wilson. The question of the appointment of Herbert C. Hoover, as Director General of Allied Relief, was presented in Washington, but a number of details were not settled, and the entire question is held in abeyance. The appointment of an Inter-Allied Commission on economic finance and shipping tonnage, also, was discussed tentatively. Some objections have arisen to this plan, on the ground that the Commission would have great power on the control, and distribution of raw material would lead to the establishment of an International Committee, which would take the place of legislative control over exports and raw materials.

BIQ SUGAR LOSS.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 5. Two million pounds of sugar, destined for Europe, were destroyed to-day, when a big warehouse of the Franklin Sugar Refining Co., on the Delaware River, was burned. Ten workmen, compelled to jump for their lives, were injured. The loss is estimated at several hundred thousand dollars.

THE ELUSIVE GOEBEN.

LONDON, Dec. 5. (Hull.)—The entire Turkish fleet is now in the hands of the Allies, the Admiralty announced to-day. The warships, after surrendering, were interned in the Golden Horn at Constantinople. The former German cruiser Goeben was among the surrendered vessels.

WILHELM'S WISH.

LONDON, Dec. 5. "You English clamor to get Father and me away from Holland where we are a broken man. Isn't that enough punishment," the former Crown Prince said, in an interview, on the Island of Wieringen, where he is interned, with a correspondent of the Daily Mirror. Frederick William added that he always favored an agreement between Germany and Great Britain, and wished them to work together. A number of his best friends were in England, and he only wished he could live there as a private citizen. "I quarrelled with my Father in regard to Great Britain," he continued, "I told him the British would be against us. He never believed this, and would not take into account that possibility."

IF DANGEROUS, MUST MOVE.

HAGUE, Wednesday. During a debate in the Netherlands Upper Chamber to-day, Deputy Marchand expressed the opinion that should the presence of the former German Emperor in Holland, give rise to difficulties abroad, the Government must request him to return to Germany.

THE POPE'S ENCYCLICAL.

ROME, Wednesday, Dec. 5. Pope Benedict has addressed an Encyclical letter to the Catholic Episcopate, throughout the world, exhorting them to offer universal public prayers, so that providence may guide the members of the approaching Peace Conference, and give the world peace founded on true principles of Christian justice and love among men.

BELGIAN ROYALTY IN PARIS.

PARIS, Dec. 5. King Albert and Queen Elizabeth, of Belgium, and their eldest son, were given an enthusiastic welcome when they arrived in Paris to-day.

FISH PROTECTIONS.

BOSTON, Dec. 5. John C. Wheeler, of the Booth Fisheries Company of Chicago, which, he said, controlled 150 fishing vessels, entering twelve ports, gave evidence to-day at the Federal court trial of Boston fish dealers, charged with violation of the anti-trust laws. He testified that the rates of the New England fish exchange, requiring all fish to be sold on an exchange, was a discrimination against small dealers, who he said, were unable to bid in an entire cargo.

REDUCING ESTIMATES.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 5. More than a billion dollars has been cut from the Navy's estimates of expenditures for the fiscal year. Secretary Daniels disclosed to-day that the estimates sent to Congress Monday, were based on the war programme, and that the reduction process that already has eliminated over two fifths of the $2,600,000,000 total is continuing.

THE GERMAN SITUATION.

LONDON, Dec. 5. The political situation in Germany continues to be extraordinary obscure, says the Amsterdam correspondent of the Daily Express. Everybody seems to be quarrelling with everybody else, and every member of the Socialist Party is trying to outdo his comrades in the fever of his Republicanism. Two grave dangers, the correspondent declares, appear to be confronting the new German Republic one is the separatist movement, headed by Kurt Eisner, the Bavarian leader, who is issuing propaganda against the leadership of Berlin, and appears to be willing to create a South German Republic, including Bavaria, Wurttemberg, Saxony, and several other states. The other danger which the correspondent adds, is equally pressing, is that arising from the quarrel between the Berlin Military Soviet with its majority of extremists and Bolsheviks, and the Berlin executive committee. On the other hand the Government urges the Allies to bring about a preliminary Peace sometime in January, and before Germany has a real responsible Government. The whole German political situation is characterized by similar contradictions. The Germans want the Allies to treat them as an orderly Government, while they give every sign of an early shipwreck in anarchy.

NEWS RATIONING.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5. Published reports from Paris that limited cable space for many newspaper men, may compel "rationing" of news from the Peace Conference, were brought to the attention of the Senate to-day by Republican members. Senator Johnson, of California, read a statement that Edgar Sisson of the committee of public information will issue statements for the American delegation.

1.00 P. M.

TOTAL LOSSES OF MERCHANT TONNAGE.

LONDON, Dec. 5. The world's total losses of merchant tonnage from the beginning of the war to the end of October, 1918, by enemy action and marine risk, was 15,653,786 gross tons, according to an official announcement issued to-night. During the same period vessels totalling 10,495,527 tons were constructed and enemy tonnage totalling 2,392,675 was captured, making a net loss of tonnage during the war of 1,811,584.

TROPICAL HURRICANE.

HONOLULU, Dec. 4. (Delayed). The island of Oahu, on which Honolulu is situated, and adjacent islands are recovering to-day from the worst tropical hurricane that ever visited the Hawaiian group. The sugar cane crop on the island of Oahu, was said to have suffered $250,000 damages. Reports have not been received from neighboring islands, but it is believed the damage was proportionately heavy. The only loss of life reported was the drowning of a Japanese.

OFFICIAL RECOGNITION DENIED.

WITH THE AM. ARMY OF OCCUPATION, Dec. 5. (By the A.P.)—Official recognition by Major General Joseph T. Dickman, of the American Soldiers' and Workmen's Councils, has been denied. Every effort by the delegates, assigned to supervise the "fair" in the district, occupied by the American forces, or to have the Americans deal with them have failed. General Harry A. Smith, in charge of city affairs, adhering to the policy that he must treat with the de facto authorities.

DINED WITH THE KAISER.

TORONTO, Dec. 5. Peter Wright, Chairman of the Seaman's and Firemen's Union of Great Britain, delivered a stirring address before the Empire Club here to-day, and he was repeatedly cheered by a large gathering of citizens. "I have dined with the Kaiser," he said, "and I tell you I never came in contact with a beast that had such a diabolical face. He had iniquity written all over his dirty face. I have seen the text books of the German schools, and every little child has been brought up with the idea to conquer Great Britain and to beat her to the dust. The German population, as a whole, was behind the military machine; we know it from personal experience with the German leaders of labor. As seamen, we wanted fair play and justice in a fair fight. It is not in the make-up of the Hun to fight fair."

WANT TO COME UNDER BRITISH RULE.

LONDON, Dec. 5. Natives of Germany's colonies want to come under British rule, said Walter Hume Long, Secretary of State for the Colonies, speaking at Westminster to-night. Our representatives at the Peace Conference should see that the case for our retention of those colonies is put forward in full strength. It will be a gross injustice to our great dominions to tell them that those colonies, which in a large measure they conquered by their blood and valor, are to pass under the control of anybody but the Empire to which they belong.

PERSONALLY RESPONSIBLE.

LONDON, Dec. 4. "German officials guilty of acts which resulted in injury or danger to the British prisoners of war, should be held personally responsible," Lord Robert Cecil, former Assistant Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, says. This statement was made in a message relative to the attitude of the Government on the subject of prisoners, which has been generally discussed since the signing of the armistice.

QUITE AN ADDITION.

LONDON, Dec. 6. Prince Adalbert, third son of the former German Emperor, has joined the present Government, according to a Berlin despatch to the Express.

HERRING SCARCE.—Messages from Bonne Bay to the Minister of Marine and Fisheries report herring scarce and only about 200 barrels were taken yesterday.

LATEST!

WILL OCCUPY BERLIN.

COPENHAGEN, Dec. 5. Allied and American forces will temporarily occupy Berlin, as exercising a policy of supervision, according to a Berlin newspaper, which says that an American wireless despatch to this effect has been intercepted by the Germans. The newspaper says that Mannheim will be similarly occupied. The reason for this action on the part of the Allies, is said to be a "regrettable incident during which a superior of a prisoners' camp shot three Frenchmen."

RESTITUTION.

PARIS, Dec. 4. (Havas).—Alienation or mortgaging of railways, mines or other undertakings in which the German nation is interested, is forbidden by a decision announced by the mixed conference being held at Spa. Foreign stocks belonging to Germany, as well as the gold in the Reichsbank come under the provisions of the decision. It is also agreed that Germany will remit to the Allies the gold taken out of Russia, especially $9,000,000 francs received from the Soviet Government.

WANTS TO GET OUT.

LONDON, To-day. "Southern Sweden is seeking incorporation in Switzerland, according to Baden newspapers, says a Copenhagen despatch to the Daily Telegraph."

TERRIBLE SCENES IN PETROGRAD.

STOCKHOLM, Dec. 5. (By the A. P.)—Fugitives from Russia, who have reached here, say that life in Petrograd is terrible. The famine there they said, had the imagination. All middle class elements are excluded from public eating houses and are dying of starvation by thousands. Hundreds are buried each day, between six and nine o'clock in the morning, no funerals being permitted later. Of a normal population of two million, only half a million is left in Petrograd. Rumors of approaching Entente intervention have increased Bolshevik hatred and resulted in frenzied persecution of the middle class elements.

A NEW IDEA.

LONDON, To-day. The Germans are building an airplane with which they intend trying a trip across the Atlantic, and have a Zeppelin under construction with the same idea in view, according to the correspondent at Berlin to the Daily Express. The airplane has a wingspread of 138 feet, and engines of three thousand horsepower. The Zeppelin will be capable of carrying one hundred passengers. It has nine engines and eight propellers.

BRITISH SHIPPING.

LONDON, Dec. 5. British merchant tonnage losses were 9,301,828 gross tons from the beginning of the war to October 21, according to an official statement issued to-night. New construction in the United Kingdom in the same period was 4,342,200 gross tons, and 4,300,000 ton enemy tonnage captured was 716,520. The net loss was 3,443,012 tons. The statement says that in the last seven months output exceeded the world's losses by more than 1,000,000 tons. In the case of Great Britain, although the output of the last seven months of the war purchases abroad were taken into account the losses of the last five months were balanced by the gains.

The British On The Sea.

(From the New York Times.)

Speaking at the University Club in Brooklyn recently, Louis D'Arcy pointed out the absurdity of Germany's contention that she had to plot against Great Britain because Britain controlled the sea. Dutch, Swedish, and Norwegian ships, he said, had a tremendous trade by sea, and Holland—she might have added Belgium and Portugal—valuable colonies, but none of them had ever feared Britain's dominion of the sea. None had ever feared that she would deal unfairly with them, and none had had to form alliances and conspiracies against her. The difference between Great Britain's control of the sea and Germany's army on land is that nobody had any reason to be afraid of the former. The British fleet is for defensive purposes only. Great Britain is an island, and would have small chance of defence by an army if an enemy invaded her. She must have a great fleet as her only sure protection. She has one, but never has she used it, as Germany would have used it, to strangle the trade of other nations. The seas are as free to trade as if Great Britain's navy were the size of Venezuela's. This is why Germany's conception of the "freedom of the seas" in time of peace was always without a grain of foundation. As for war, Britain has used her fleet as fairly and legitimately as in time of peace. Her navy is unstained by any of the atrocities that made the world's blood run cold during the short life of the German Navy. Without it we could not have won this war, and despite the temptation to retaliate, the British Navy conducted its share of the war as impeccably as if it had been fighting an honorable foe. The British Fleet is a protection to the world's trade in time of peace, and a bulwark against assassins in time of war. It is a friend to the trader, but a terror to the pirate, as Germany now knows.

A short circular cable is oftentimes cut with the sleeves to form the back of a pretty coat.

Why Unions Are Needed.

The Dial: The personal employer-owner has virtually disappeared from the great industries. His place is now filled by a list of corporation officials and employees who exercise a limited discretion. The personal note is no longer to be had in the wage relation, except in those backward, obscure and subsidiary industries in which the mechanical organization of the new order has not taken effect. So even that contractual arrangement which defines the workman's relation to the establishment in which he is employed, and to the anonymous corporate ownership by which he is employed, now takes the shape of a statistical reckoning, in which virtually no trace of the relation of man to man is to be found. Yet the principle of the modern point of view regarding this contractual relation, in so far as it is defined by law and practice, are drawn by free bargaining between man and man, under conditions of work-are arranged by free bargaining between man and man on a footing of personal understanding and equal opportunity.

This Talk About
By RUTH CAMERON

"All this talk recorded about germs," I lived heard an elderly but don't care for babies. "makes me tired. If I had a baby, I'd let it die." And all this business of sterilizing bottles and what spoons and what not. And never taking a baby on the cars. Why, I've got a grandson who's never been brought to see me! And two years old." In the hundreds of nothing fore the non-ence. "I used to take my babies to my mother-in-law from the time they were a month old. She'd have something to say if I hadn't. All I could do was to say 'They'd be better off if they weren't fussed over so much. And another thing I haven't used for is all this antitoxin and vaccination and fresh-air business, and they're sick.'"

The Picture I Saw.

I listened to the above tirade, and a picture rose in my mind: I saw an old-fashioned burying-ground in a small New England town which I had just left.

Having a deep interest in r-ading history of a community from all documents I had stowed, and I had away the tall grasses from one of those little stones, read some of the inscriptions, and guessed at the stories behind them. And so pathetic of all the tales was that of the dead babies. "In one there were five small stones in a row. The dates on them are only a few years apart. The ages of the children range from a year 'o four to seven.

An Epidemic, Doubtless.

In another place there were four stones in one family in one month of children between the ages of one and seven years (very likely victims of small-pox or diphtheria) and the dates were within a few days before antitoxin and vaccination were introduced.

These are striking examples, but there were many families whose the of three or four children were a physrecorded. Doubtless the children who lived were as healthy as those to-day; but don't forget—you who laugh at the care we take to-day—the many, many babies who didn't live.

If Figures Can Tell the Truth.

And lest you think that statistics casually taken in a New England graveyard are not sufficiently reliable, let me offer other figures which certainly speak truth if figures ever can.

Doesn't that make "all this talk about germs" seem a little more than nonsense?

Milady's Boudoir

The greatest of all beautifiers to the Lightstrung girl of the day when she is preparing for a ball is rest. She must get at least eight hours sleep in every twenty-four and a short nap in the daytime. If she does not sleep well or can not get to sleep when she retires, then let her prepare a warm bath, not quite hot, but nearly so, in which there shall be some of her favorite toilet water. If she will rest in this for some ten minutes, then sponge or shower with tepid water, rubbing herself well afterward, I will guarantee that she will sink immediately into the most restful of slumbers, once she has got into bed, pulled up the soft covers and inhaled deeply of the fresh air, which she should always have in her bedroom.

Each day of the two weeks before the ball the girl who wants to look her best will drink plenty of water. This water should be taken between meals, not during the meals. It may be taken a glassful at a time. A large glass should always be taken before breakfast, than at hour intervals between the other meals. It will be found that the appetite will not be so large, but this will do no harm, but rather good for the purpose for which it is intended.

Some young women "inclined" to be stout, declare that a Turkish bath is an aid to beauty. This may be true where a Turkish bath agrees with the system and one is robust enough to withstand its somewhat heroic routine; but I never advise except with a physician's orders.

THE APPROACH OF CHRISTMAS.

There's a little chap at our house that is being mighty good. He keeps the front lawn looking tidy in the way we've said he should; Doesn't leave his little wagon, when he finishes with his play On the sidewalk as he used to (now he puts it right away).

He eats the food we give him without murmur or complaint. He sits up at the table like a cherub or a saint. He doesn't pinch his sister just to hear how loud she'll squeal. Doesn't ask us to excuse him in the middle of the meal. And at eight o'clock he's willing to be tucked away in bed. Christmas; nothing further need be said.

I chuckle every evening as I see that little elf. With the crooked part proclaiming that he brushed his hair himself. And I chuckle as I notice that his hands and face are clean. For in him a perfect copy of another boy is seen— A little boy at Christmas, who was also being good. Never guessing that his father and his mother understood.

There's a little boy at our house that is being mighty good. Doing everything that's proper, doing everything he should. But besides him there's a grown-up who has learned life's bitter truth. Who is gladly living over all the joys of vanished youth. And although he little knows it (for it's what I never knew), There's a mighty happy father sitting at the table, too.

Wool-backed satin is used for many of the new broadtail-trimmed coats. The old-fashioned quilting stitch is used in scalloping fine batiste blouses. A suit of blue velvets is lined with purple satin and tapers a bit at the feet.

A very pretty little sports hat is made entirely of black and white grosgrain ribbon.

Wave of Suicides

12 in 48 Hours in Philadelphia—Due to End of War.

Philadelphia, Nov. 21—A suicidal wave has been sweeping over Philadelphia. In the last forty-eight hours there have been twelve self-inflicted deaths. Physicians connected with the coroner's office declare that the suicides are a psychological result of the ending of the war.

It is explained by the physicians that a general nervous depression has followed the excitement due to the jubilation over the triumph of the Allies, and that the reaction has been most marked in persons of a morbid disposition. In such individuals, personal trouble have been exaggerated, leading to great despondency and in many cases of self-destruction.

Of the many strange suicides reported, none has proved more inexplicable than that of Angelo Jaccovelli, the largest ice cream manufacturer in the United States. Jaccovelli had amassed a fortune in the business. His health was good and he was engaged to be married. No reason has been discovered to explain why he shot himself.

The Brave Dead.

(From the Brookville Recorder).

In our rejoicing over the great victory achieved, it is but fitting that our hearts should turn in solemn contemplation to the brave dead. Had it not been for the glorious and valorous deeds of the soldiers, offered in sacrifice that victory of these days would not have been a reality. Of the brave dead half a century ago Abraham Lincoln paid a tribute that is perennial. His words of simple dignity and truth are as applicable to-day, only in a wider sense than they were on the memorable occasion when he uttered them. Said he at Gettysburg cemetery:

"The world will little note nor long remember what we say here, but it can never forget what we did here. It is for us, the living, rather to be dedicated to the unfinished work which they also fought here thus far so nobly advanced. It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us—that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion—that we here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain—that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom, and that government of the people by the people and for the people shall not perish from the earth."

Der Tag? (From the Toronto Star). The Germans were always toasting The Day—they toasted it, boasted it, waited and longed for it. They prepared for it for a generation, and expected great things of it. So many things have happened recently and so many days have been notable ones, that there is room for uncertainty as to which exact date should be singled out as Der Tag. Some think the day the Germans had in mind was August 4th, 1914, but as events have turned out it was not so much of a day after all. November 11th, 1918, was quite a day, too, for it witnessed the signing of the armistice by the representatives of Germany and the ending of hostilities. It was a great day, however, that witnessed the surrender of twenty miles of German warships. Nov. 11th, 1918, was such a day that we must insist upon ever regarding it as Der Tag itself.

Promoted. He was a postmaster, and the rats in his office were playing havoc with the envelopes of the registered letters. So he wrote to his chief, and chief wrote to his chief, and so on it went, until about thirty years later, when he was old and grey, he received official permission to keep a couple of cats.

For a month all went well, but then he was compelled to forward to headquarters this ominous message: "I have the honour to inform you that the senior cat is absent without leave. What shall I do?"

The rats were busy again, and would soon be eating the coin as well as the envelopes of the registered letters, and it was impossible to wait another thirty years for official directions. So he took the matter into his own hands, and a week later wrote: "Re-absent cat. I have promoted the junior cat and have taken into Government service a probationary cat on full rations."

And the high officials trembled at his audacity.

GREAT DAYS.

WALTON MASCOE

Things march so fast these fateful days, we are not jarred by any news; there's naught so strange it can't amaze, or make us tremble in our shoes. We push ourselves around the town, and hear the latest tidings there; some mighty king has lost his crown; we say, "Well, well," or "I declare!" We hear of thrones that are no more, of captains on their bended knees, and hasten to the grocer's store, to see just what he asks for cheese. An ancient monarchy expires; we hear the news, and say, "By Jingo!" And then we talk of rubber tires, and gasoline, and kindred things. We've heard so many wondrous tales of streams of gore and wholesale death, the most exciting rumour falls to make us draw a longer breath. Perhaps in coming successful years we'll get our old time pole again, and learn once more to sprinkle tears, and shudder at a tale of pain. We see the junkman haul away a load of sceptres, thrones and crowns, and beef because we have to pay high prices for our handmedowns. We've no perspective any more; we cannot grasp the news we read; we sit around the Blue Front store, and let our whiskers go to seed.

Colony or Dominion?

Newfoundland is to-day both a Colony and a Dominion, a rather anomalous mixture of degree, and one which should be settled definitely so that our exact status may be determined.

In the year 1610, a charter was issued by King James I. to Lord Bacon and others which was known as Guy's Newfoundland Colonisation Company.

Compare the definition of dominion with that of colony, and it will be found that the former term is but popularly taken as implying a higher political status than the latter.

Prohibition.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—Now that the results of Prohibition are daily before our eyes, it may be of interest to look back to the period when its supporters were agitating for the measure, and to see how the reality compares with their forecasts. This was during the summer and autumn of 1915—not long enough ago for the average man to have forgotten it, but long enough to make him hazy as to the actual details. I shall, therefore, with your permission, recall these incidents to your readers' minds.

No sooner was the Act providing for a Plebiscite on the Statute Book than an intense and energetic agitation was begun. Well-meaning and enthusiastic ladies left their homes and their children to look after themselves, and went about from pillar to post, covering the whole country in a spirited crusade against the Demon Rum. In the light of after-events, one cannot avoid the reflection that if all this energy had been directed in Red Cross, or other patriotic channels, or even in caring for their homes and families, it would have been vastly better for the country. Other ladies without pressing home duties were imported from the United States and Canada, and these were even more positive in their promises of the millennium to come when the measure was introduced. In fact, the less these people know about Newfoundland, the more certain they were that Prohibition would succeed here.

Of reasoned argument there was very little. Impassioned and sentimental appeals to "save" the children, the weaker brother, and various other people, with a display of more than dubious statistics to invest them with a specious appearance of reason, were the order of the day.

Certain medical cranks in the States had pronounced that alcohol was of no value as a medicine; ergo, that the deliberate opinion of the medical profession in America. Some bright genius discovered that sal amoniac is used as a stimulant, and the "substitute" idea was played for a great deal more than it was worth. When the Demons, Rum and Whiskey were driven out (not to speak of the Little Wine and Beer Demons, together with brandy, gin and all other hellish poisons), the jails, lunatic asylums, and police courts would be rendered obsolete; every man's wife would have a silk dress, and poverty, sickness, neglect, desertion, crime and a few other little things like that would be banished from the fair face of our Island (Home). Strange that the world should have borne all these ills so long when the remedy lay close at hand!

It would be absurd to regard all these fantastic claims as serious, but we may fairly say that they constituted a promise of improvement in the condition of the people, in trade, and in public morals; a large decrease in crime, pauperism and lunacy figures, improved health conditions, to be shown by a lower death rate, and so on. About their only reasoned contention was that the loss to the general revenue would be made up by increased importations in other branches of trade.

In subsequent letters I shall show how these forecasts have worked out. Thanking you for space,
I remain, Sir,
Yours truly,
P. L. C.

Horse Was Snow-Bound.

A Petty Harbor man, who arrived in the city yesterday afternoon, told a Telegram reporter of a perplexing predicament he had encountered on his way out. His horse was harnessed to a slide and suddenly plunged into a drift of snow on the road. This was so high that it went above the horse's belly, and struggle as he did, it could not free itself. The man dared not go within reach of the animal's hoofs, and quickly ran further out on the road, where he knew there was a house, the owner of which went back with him, taking shovels along. Between them they shovelled the horse out, and the team continued on its way. The driver informed us that the country roads are filled with drifts.

Herring Story.

Tales and tales have been told of the fishery, but this one of the herring fishery appears to us to cap all we have hitherto heard.

A correspondent says that two Bonne Bay fishermen went out to haul their nets. They did exceptionally well and were returning well pleased when their boat refused to go ahead. The engine was working well, and they did not know what to make of it. At last one of them looked overboard and said to his boatmate: "Look! See the herring," and they vouch that the herring there was swarming; and that they had to pull back fully fifty yards ere they got out of that school of fish. Some school undoubtedly, but that's what the fishermen said.

Let the Truth Be

The German naval critic, Captain Jellicoe, having told some of the details about the sea fight of Skagerrak, the whole truth should now be set out in England as well as in America. The High Seas Fleet has been the subject of most, if not all, of its attacks, and the German Admiralty, or what remains of it as an organization, might as well reveal its secrets in the battle. No longer will the controversy about Sir Jellicoe's failure to destroy the German Fleet should be ended, but the British Admiralty's discreditable statement from him answered his critics and explaining his failure.

Captain Jellicoe is reported as saying that the German losses in ships were enormous. Perhaps in the confusion this expression is too strong. But the High Seas Fleet would not come out again, except to be a target. Obviously the official report of losses was mendacious. On the original list were one old battleship, the Pommern; three small cruisers, the Wiesbaden, Elbing and Goben, and five destroyers. Later the Admiralty added the battleship Lutzow and the light cruiser Seydlitz, explaining that "for political reasons" the names had been withheld. Sir John Jellicoe insisted, upon original evidence, that the Germans had lost two dreadnought battleships and a battleship of the Deutschland class, a battle cruiser, five light cruisers, six destroyers, and one submarine. Further, he maintained that the dreadnought battleship, one battleship, and three destroyers were badly crippled that they could never have reached the German base.

Great Britain promptly announced losses, extending nothing; the battle cruisers, one of them of the most powerful type; three armoured cruisers, and eight destroyers. The loss of these vessels was a heavy blow. It has been calculated that the British Admiral's lowest estimate of the German losses would show a loss of 119,000 tons. This, if approximately correct, would prove that the German naval disparity of tonnage, she was much harder hit

Echoes of Jutland

Let the Truth Be Known.

German naval critic, Captain Persius, having told some of the details of the sea fight of Skagerrak from the German point of view, the whole truth should now be set in England as well as in America. The High Seas Fleet has been the subject of most, if not all, of its own ships, and the German Admiralty, or what remains of it as an institution, might as well reveal its secrets in the battle. No longer will the controversy about Sir Jellicoe's failure to destroy the High Seas Fleet should be ended, by the British Admiralty's disclaimer of its orders to the Admiral's critics and explaining his answer.

Captain Persius is reported as saying that the German losses in ships were enormous. Perhaps in this connection this expression is too strong. But the High Seas Fleet really came out again, except to receive obviously the official report of the Pommeren; three "small" ships, the Wiesbaden, Elbing and the six destroyers. Later the Admiralty added the battle of Lattow and the light cruiser, explaining that "for political reasons" the names had been withheld. Sir John Jellicoe insisted, upon evidence, that the Germans had two dreadnought battleships, a battle cruiser, five light cruisers, six destroyers, and one submarine. Further, he maintained that throughout the battle, one battleship, and three destroyers were crippled that they could never have reached the German base.

Britain promptly announced losses, extenuating nothing: three battleships, one of them of the powerful type; three armoured cruisers, and eight destroyers. It has been calculated that the German losses would show a total of 119,200. This, if approximately correct, would prove that the naval disparity of the High Seas Fleet was much harder hit than the British.

the British fleet during the night, and when the face of the sea could be surveyed, "visibility" was worse than on the preceding day; no German warship was in sight. Admiral Von Scheer had conducted a very clever fight—there is no other word for his evasions from disaster—and had made good his escape with his sound ships and his "lame ducks." During the night he had always been ready to attack with his light torpedo craft—that is to say, to fight rear-guard actions, which to a certain extent he did—but even his remaining destroyers were nowhere to be seen in the morning.

If Sir John Jellicoe obeyed orders—his friends say that his night tactics have never needed defense—his reputation should be cleared from the aspersion that he was too cautious when he had the Germans on the run and might have sent all their ships to the bottom. Of course, it will be said that the British Admiral was "opposed to use his discretion." "I am the torpedo," partisans will never forgive him for not going ahead, full steam, with every searchlight and gun in play. There can be no controversy about Sir David Beatty, however. In the spirit of Nelson, he brought on a general action with great risk to his battle cruiser fleet, and from beginning to end his tactics were sound and the execution of them admirable. Generously Admiral Jellicoe gave the great fighter high praise: "He once more showed his fine qualities of gallant leadership, firm determination, and correct strategic insight."—New York Times.

Effective Means.
Here is a good Beatty story, from the lips of an ex-Navy man, who was serving under Admiral Beatty—then captain—at the time the incident occurred.

He had under his command two very "hard cases" of men who were always being brought before him on one charge or another. One day he asked them what punishment they considered they deserved. "Shot at sunset, sir," replied one man cheekily, and the other concurred.

"Right!" said Beatty. "March them away!"

At sunset the prisoners were marched on deck and halted right in line with the turret guns. They were then blindfolded, and Beatty ordered one of the gun-crews to load and fire.

It is impossible to train any of a boat's guns on to its own deck, but the men forgot this in the excitement of the moment. The shock cured them, and they never troubled Beatty again.

Skippers Who Go to School.

Before the Convoy Starts.
"The convoy system to which we owe so much for our food supply," said a Naval Captain, "has now been brought to a great state of perfection, thanks largely to the intelligent and loyal co-operation of the captains of the convoy-ships, without which the escort vessels would be of small use."

It may seem to you a very easy matter for a fleet of merchant vessels to cross the seas with a naval escort for their protection, but it is by no means so simple as you might imagine. Without the most careful preparation and the most implicit obedience on the part of the merchant captains the danger of disaster from U-boats and mines would be very great.

In order to avoid this, before a convoy sets sail the skipper of each ship has to attend a conference to receive the fullest and most minute instructions for the coming voyage.

Let me try to picture to you one of these conferences. The scene is in a smallish room at the port of sailing, with whitewashed walls. Down its length runs a long table; seated at or standing around this are, perhaps, two scores of skippers of a wide range of nationality and types. Swedish sailors rub shoulders with Danes, British with French, Spaniards with Dutchmen. Some are little more than boys, others are grizzled old seadogs, in the sixties or seventies. Some are spick-and-span in well-fitting blue suits, others are workmanlike in "reach-me-downs" and muffers.

In a group in a corner of the room are the commanding officers of the escorting ships; and on a raised platform at one end the port-convoy officer, a naval captain, stands in front of a blackboard, illustrating his lecture by diagrams as he proceeds.

In the course of his lecture the officer explains in the clearest possible way everything relating to the coming voyage that is necessary for the skippers to know.

He shows on his blackboard the precise position each ship must maintain in the convoy; explains the various signals; impresses on them the ### Ideas Worth Knowing.

When Edison Pricked His Finger.
A soldier was once tramping along a country road on his way to rejoin his unit.

Hearing that his luck was rather down a casual friend put him up for a night at an inn, and on parting from him in the morning gave him some tobacco. To show his gratitude, the soldier parted with the only thing he had which he thought would be of service to his benefactor—a recipe for making boot-black.

Out of that simple recipe was born the great Day and Martin's polish firm.

"I was singing to the mouthpiece of a telephone," said Edison, "when the vibrations of my voice caused a fine steel point to pierce one of my fingers. That set me thinking. If I could record the motions of the point and send it over the same surface afterwards, I saw no reason why the thing should not talk. That's the whole story. It was only an idea, but out of that simple notion sprang the phonograph."

It was a passing idea which gave to the world the discovery of galvanic electricity, so useful in transmitting vocal or written language. Mme. Galvani simply happened to notice the contraction of the muscles of a skinned frog accidentally touched at the moment her husband took a spark from an electrical machine, and that was the whole thing!

So, never despise an idea that may occur to you. Think about it, work it out.

An Unknown Land.

The man-in-the-street is, perhaps more interested in Siberia to-day than ever before. It is an extraordinary land—one of the biggest, and certainly the loneliest, on the globe. It contains nearly five million square miles, being bigger than Europe, and about forty-five times bigger than the British Isles.

Although it is about seven thousand times bigger, yet the population of the whole of Siberia only exceeds by a million that of Greater London.

There are there are hundreds of thousands of square miles where a human being is never seen.

The railway which connects Siberia with Russia forms the greatest undertaking of its kind in the world. The total distance it covers from Petrograd to Vladivostok is 6,251 miles, and to Port Arthur, 5,913 miles.

At Yakutsk, one of the chief cities of Siberia, is one of the seven wonders of the world. It has a frozen well of which no one has been able to find the bottom. In 1829 a Russian merchant tried to find the depth of the frozen stratum, but thirty feet down he gave up the task. Then the Russian Academy of Sciences took up the digging but at 332 feet the earth was still frozen as hard as a rock. The scientists were puzzled. Natural cold, they urged, could never penetrate to such a depth. No explanation of Yakutsk's frozen well has yet been found.

Puzzles That Are Simple.

If five cats can kill five mice in five minutes, how many cats would be necessary to kill twenty mice in twenty minutes?

If a cow and a horse were reclining on the ground in a field twice as broad as it is long, what would be the difference in their manner of rising?

Which would you rather have, six dozen sovereigns, or half a dozen dozen?

These are the sort of questions the catch-head is constantly flinging at us. But it is astonishing how usually shrewd people are confused by them. Nine out of ten people will say "twenty" in reply to the cat question, and it takes them quite a long time to see that, given the extra fifteen minutes, the original five cats would have been equal to the job.

Sir Walter or Sir Francis? Sir Walter Raleigh, whose tercentenary was commemorated recently, is generally credited with having introduced both the potato and tobacco into England, and every schoolboy has read of how his Irish serving-man threw water over him on discovering him smoking in the garden of his house at Youghal.

At the City Hall.

The Municipal Board held its regular weekly session last evening. The Mayor presided and the full Board was in attendance. After reading of minutes, etc., the following matters were disposed of:

A letter was read from the Colonial Secretary acknowledging Council's application for a guarantee for money for Workmen's Homes, and that the matter would be taken up at next meeting of the Executive Government.

The City Engineer reported an estimated cost of $5,736.00 for the Venturi Meter installation, Windsor Lake. Consideration stood over.

The matter of a communication as to the plumbing work in the City which was published in one of the daily papers was raised by Councillor Mullaly on behalf of the Plumbers and Plumbing Inspector.

The Health Officer's and Plumbing Inspector's Reports were submitted. After disposing of some other routine business and passing the weekly pay roll and bills the meeting adjourned.

The herring fishery at Bay of Islands has been fairly brisk the past week. During all last week good catches were made in Humber Arm.

For lack of room the Salvation Army is unable to take care of preventative rescue work, and they have to turn away from the cries of unfortunate and wayward girls because they have not sufficient room to care for them.

A strong letter comes to-day from Rev. Gordon Dickie, M.A., of the Presbyterian Church.

The following, so far, have contributed to this worthy project. In addition to those already reported:

Flash Disinfectant. Recommended most highly by Doctors. Lay in a supply for the Spring. Will kill the germs and prevent you from getting influenza.

"Leeming" Lodge, L.O.A. The annual meeting of Leeming Lodge, No. 54, L.O.A., was held last night. The reports submitted showed substantial increases in membership and finance.

The Epidemic. One patient was admitted to Grenfell Hall Hospital yesterday, an engineer from the S. S. Sheba, and four were discharged.

S. U. F. Election. On Wednesday evening at the Odd-fellows' Hall, St. John's Lodge, No. 5, S.U.F. elected the following officers for the coming year:

Clark-Urban Co.

In "The little girl that God Forgot" the above company scored another triumph last night, the acting and delivery being far ahead of that of the previous night though there is still much room for improvement if the latter. The rapid and torrential flow of words from one or two of the players last night, detracted somewhat from the merits of their parts besides edging the criticism of the audience.
