The Shadow of the Future.

CHAPTER III.
THE SHADOW OF THE FUTURE.

And this is the other scene which, misty of detail, will haunt Sydney to the end of time.

A pretty hamlet at a little distance from Guyswick. A gray old church looming up across a rustic road, near by the fruit-trees of a cottage garden. A warm sunny afternoon, with a great humming of bees and scent of stocks and wall-flowers in the air. The constant sound of a busy hoe at work not far off, and the crooning of some minor-keyed ditty by an old figure dressed quaintly in dark-colored stuff, with snow-white cap and kerchief pinned in front, knitting diligently under the shade of a yellow laburnum.

This is "Taffy," or "Mrs. Taverner," affectionately abbreviated, the nurse whose last piece of official work was presiding over Sydney's very earliest days, and who now, with well-earned savings, takes the rest of threescore years and ten. Her home is with a daughter, once a servant at Sturats, whose husband married from his post of second gardener there to the dignity of a cottage and "Marketing" for Sillcote-Upton on his own account. He is clerk of the church close by; a thrifty, hard-working soul, plodding contentedly on from morn till night, putting his few pounds by year after year against a rainy day, or maybe for a legacy to his good "missus," or a fortune for the laeases who are now doing for themselves in honest service.

She is in the swing by Taffy's side now, as with arms upward clinging to

They are steady, sterling people all in their way, and the elder dame is a prodigious favorite with all her children, as she calls a goodly list, beginning with men long since out of their teens, ending with Sydney Alwyn. Her duties with the brood whose first cries she hushed have not finished with the nursery, as many of her grown-up babies testify, for hopes and fears, troubles and joys, loves and hates, find their way to Taffy's sympathetic confidence often before the household they belong to half suspect them, and rarely a week goes by without bringing a visitor out of her old working circle to Nurse's cottage.

There Sydney, to her unflinching delight, is sometimes allowed a sojourn.

When her mother takes Leonora to the sea, when any epidemic is reported at Guyswick, or if any far domestic lessons the establishment, for a time, the child is sent for a few days to Nurse. There her father comes round morning or evening to see her. There she revels in the freedom of her oldest frocks, and learns the letters and syllables, so difficult to attain in the school-room at home, quite easily off the tombstones in the churchyard under Taffy's spectacled instructions.

Naturally, they make much of the little lady at the cottage, for, over and above their genuine fondness for her, the visits of the rich man's child are pleasant little wind falls to these frugal folk. So they keep a tiny cup-board-like apartment, with a diamond-paned casement that tiger-lilies peep in at, and monthly roses are always blooming round, for her very own. They mostly find some infant chicks or downy rabbits for her playmates. They fix a swing for her in the big russet apple-tree, and pluck for her any flowers her fancy fixes on.

MOTHER naturally thinks of the possibilities of the fabric shrinking in the wash. It is therefore a relief to her to know that the fabric will not shrink or lose its charm if Lux is used for its cleansing.

Durability, charm of colour, quality of texture, the freshness of newness—these are preserved to all good fabrics washed with Lux. A packet of Lux—a bowl of warm water—and dainty hands can cleanse delightful fabrics in a delightfully easy manner.

The beautiful pure Lux flakes are whisked into a creamy, bubbly lather in an instant. Gently agitate this cleansing foam through and through the soiled texture—then rinse in clean water and hang to dry. Lux cannot harm a silken thread. It coaxes rather than forces the dirt from the clothes.

Packets (two sizes) may be obtained everywhere.

the ropes she sits slowly swaying backward and forward in the checkered light under the apple-boughs, and her old guardian, stopping the clicking of her bright pins to watch her, thinks this last of her foster-flock is the fairest of them all, and wonders what makes her chattering look so very grave.

Presently Sydney calls to her: "Taffy, when did I come here?" "On Tuesday, my pretty." "And what's to-day?" "Friday." "And papa hasn't been to see me!" "May be he's not back yet, missy." "No, per-haps not," says the child, slowly, "for," brightening, "he will be sure to come when he gets home." "Sure," repeats the old woman, contentedly, and then adds, "Was your mamma gone out too, Miss Sydney? Havens didn't say."

"And I—don't know," answers Sydney, her wits dropping, as it always does when she speaks of her mother, who never gives the younger-born more place in her pursuits than she does in her heart. Then, still swinging softly, she thinks profoundly a minute or two, and the outcome of her meditation is:

"I wish, Taffy, I always lived with you, if papa came every day to see me."

Which says more than she intends, for Nurse looks sorry as she answers: "Nay, my pretty, Mr. Alwyn couldn't afford that nowadays!"

"Not afford it! Do I cost so much to keep?"

Nurse is glad of something to laugh at. "Why, afford to spare you, Miss Sydney, I mean. Your cost ain't much! We wouldn't mind keeping you for nothing."

"Oh, then," says the child, "if I—"

but she breaks off abruptly, disturbed by the sound of an approaching step.

The little gate at the end of the garden-path is unlatched, and striding between sweet-williams and Canterbury-bells, up comes a tall, big-framed lad, with reddish brown curly hair, and eyes over which he draws his darker brown as if to keep the glare of sunshine off.

Sydney ceases swinging to watch, a trifle jealously, as Taffy gets up and joyfully greets this new-comer with:

"Why, Master Bertie, back again from school! Oh, I sark pardon, my old head can't keep up with such a lot of new names; anyhow, back and not grown too proud to come and see me, I declare!"

"Back?" repeats the youth, as he gives her welcoming hand a hearty shake. "Yes, and likely to keep back. But proud?" flinging himself on the end of the bench under the laburnum. "It's a little too late in the day for me to set up in that line, I promise you. For, oh, Taffy, do you know we are in a muddle and no mistake!"

Then he leans forward till he brings his face, with the square-cut chin resting in his large, nervous hand, close to Nurse Taverner's shoulder, and plunges into the story of whatever escapade or veritable trouble he has just hinted at.

Sydney hears nothing of it all, for when, assured that he is a stranger to her, or nearly so, she has just a glimmering notion she has seen him somewhere, in the town perhaps, and that nurse and he want to talk together, she intuitively turns her back upon the pair, and gives her undivided attention to a couple of black-caps chasing each other in and out among the apple-leaves. But presently a startled "Good shakes alive!" from the old woman attracts her attention, and she looks round while Taffy says something else, of her apparently, for most certainly it is at her the boy's deep-set eyes flash the wrathful glance she is just in time to catch, as he exclaims passionately:

"An imp of evil! I hate her!" "Oh, Master Bertie, do hush!" The child's senses, on the alert now, here her old friend plead, and then she jumps down from her swing, runs off past Mr. Lewis hoeing French beans in his shirt-sleeves, and hides herself and a babyish disposition to cry in a grove of currant-bushes at the farthest-most corner of the garden.

Somebody says he hates her, and she has never hurt that some one! Why does he hate her—her, when she does so love to be loved? He has called her a dreadful sort of name which he is positive she can't deserve. Will many people treat her like this as she grows older? A fright of the future overtakes her. A great quail of aggrieved injustice sets sobs rising and falling under her fading daisy chin, and her sensitive little soul, injured by now to cold neglect, frets sorely at the notion of active unmerited dislike.

In the midst of her distress the intruding origin of it, his conference with Taffy at an end, stalks homeward-bound along the lane outside, and Sydney, no coward howsoever soft-hearted, dries up her tears, peeps at him over the hedge, and arrests his steps before he has passed the bounds of Mr. Lewis' tiny plots.

He is not by any means a grown-up man, she thinks, manhood being identical, in her mind, with gray hairs such as her father has, so she has to choose a form of address for him as she climbs over a separating stile; which point settled, she confronts him and demands, with an odd mixture of the imperious and the willful:

"Boy, why do you hate me? Stop-and tell me, please"

FATIGUE.

When worn from toiling in the sun, from baling hay and cutting ice, the F. V. C. H. A. comes when day is done, is surely, surely worth the price. I labored hard and long this week. I sprung new curves in honest sleep. And I, fatigued by honest toll, found peace and comfort in repose; I'd left my trademark on the soil, out where the pallid pumpkin grows. Oh, I had done the best, I could to show a line of sterling worth; I felt I had achieved some good to vindicate my stay on earth. And that's a feeling most sublime for any man to entertain, to know he has not wasted time, or let a day get by in vain. And so a slight calm was mine, when to my couch night saw me creep; there I indulged in fifty-nine varieties of balmey sleep.

Dodging Responsibility.

We make no apology for thus setting upon the caption of an article appearing in the Daily Star of Thursday last, under which the learned editor of that journal discourses lengthily on "lawlessness and its cause" as applied to an editorial in the same day's News. The cause of lawlessness upon which the Star editor is obviously an authority, that same gentleman omits to mention. His dissertation, however, is based upon the attitude of Emanuel Pike of Channel, who openly and flagrantly defied the Customs authorities of that port, and violently took possession of a consignment of Flour upon which he had not paid the Customs duty required by law, contrary to the Act itself and in defiance of the same. No punishment has yet been meted to Mr. Pike, because, being a strong supporter of the Government, the authorities are afraid to proceed against him. The Star says, though not apposite to this case, that "any Government of gumption would have found such means of punishment long before this." We fully agree and echo Hear! Hear!! to the Star on this particular point. At the least the Star admits that the present Government is not one of "gumption," whatever that may mean in Star phraseology, otherwise they would have proceeded against a gross infraction of the Customs Act, and would not have ordered a fourteen days' stay of proceedings because the party guilty was an adherent of the Government. The small man gets it in the neck. The big man escapes because of his political value to the party.

It is about time that favoritism were quashed. Any man who transgresses the law is open to penalty, be he big or little. In the case under discussion both the spirit and letter of the Customs Act has been broken. And yet the Government hesitates to proceed. If there is one Statutory Law more than another that has long been held in respect, it is that governing the Customs, and to permit a gross and palpable violation of that Act to be glossed over, is a crime and the Acting Minister of Customs will brand himself as a criminal if he allows such a violation to go unpunished. To quote his own organ he has no "gumption" if he does not carry out the law. The Minister of Justice may be pardoned for unthinkingly stating that he would have done the same in Pike's case, but at the same time his position as the highest legal authority in the land, suffers because of this expression made in the House of Assembly. Either Pike is guilty or he is not. The question should be decided by the Courts and no political fealty should be used as a shield to protect any person from the consequences of an act, which if permitted to pass, might involve the whole country into Bolshevism or worse.

So far as Pike is concerned, he did not complete his entry or pay the duty demanded, and failing the completion of such entry and the payment of full duty the Collector of the port very properly refused to issue a warrant for the release of the goods, which, pending the full payment of duty, were in the custody of the Customs, and belonged to the Crown. The mere presentation of an incomplete entry to the Customs did not constitute or give the right to invade the area of the Customs, and by force remove the goods contained and enumerated in the incomplete bill of entry. The law has been most flagrantly broken in this case. It does not matter that people were in immediate need of the flour. Starving they might be, and the only relief to be had was this lot of flour. But that did not entitle the consignee to forcibly take possession of it. There was no excuse whatever. There is no excuse whatever. The law has been broken deliberately and as the offense is punishable, it is up to the Government to maintain the dignity of their position and hold sacred the Act. Dodging responsibility will not work in this specific instance.

The St. Bon's Old Boys Celebrate.

By reference to our advertising columns it will be seen that the students of St. Bonaventure's College under the Presidency of Sir M. P. Cahill, will celebrate on July 14. His Grace the Archbishop and suite will be present at the celebration, and the Benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament. The Venerable Dean Tierney will celebrate the Mass, and J. R. McDonald, M.H.A., will deliver the oration. This Association has a most enviable record for their reunions and similar celebrations, and this year's bids fair to eclipse all previous ones. The students of St. Bon's are noted for their loyalty to the Old School, as they deem it an honor as well as a pleasure to turn up in large numbers, and by their presence show the good Brothers that their grand work is duly appreciated. In the evening a grand Band Concert will be given, which will be open to the public. Judge Morris has charge of this end of the programme, and this is enough to ensure success. Mr. John A. Barron and an energetic Committee have charge of the morning ceremonies, and the ladies of the Presentation Convent Association are catering, so judging by past experience, the management will leave nothing to be desired.

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES.

PEACE DECLARED.

LONDON, July 8. A truce has been declared between Britain and Ireland. It will take effect on noon at Monday next. Preparations are already under way to end hostilities of the part of those actively engaged in the Irish cause, and Crown forces. Developments leading to this truce were divided between London and Dublin. In Dublin, Eamon De Valera, Irish Republican leader, and his Nationalist associates renewed their conference with Southern Unionists. Earl Middleton, who recently conferred with British Prime Minister, read a letter from Mr. Lloyd George to the effect that hostilities must cease if negotiations leading to peace were to succeed. Gen. Sir Neville MacCreedy, British military commander in Ireland, appeared at the De Valera conference, and it was not many hours later that the announcement was made at the Prime Minister's residence in London, that in accordance with the Prime Minister's offer and Mr. DeValera's reply, arrangements were going forward for a cessation of hostilities from Monday noon. The King has been the leading figure in developments up to the present, while General Smuts, South African Premier, has acted as the pivot on which peace has turned. There is hope in London and in Dublin too that peace might result out of the forces, which are now engaged in seeking a settlement.

PREMIERS' CONFERENCE CLOSED.

LONDON, July 8. Washington State Department's denial that a formal communication had been received from the British Government requesting the holding of a disarmament conference, is explained by the fact that the request was not made through an official note, but through an interview between Lord Curzon, British Foreign Secretary, the American and Japanese Ambassadors in London. The Prime Minister's Conference closed its weeks labors today with a double sitting.

THE EFFECTS OF THE STRIKE.

LONDON, July 9. The consequences of the coal strike are shown in a further huge decrease in British trade for June. Imports are down eighty-two million pounds sterling from June, 1920, and exports have decreased seventy-eight million pounds sterling. Cotton imports are less by eleven millions; wool by seven millions; flour and grain by four millions, and other foodstuffs and drink are down nine millions. Coal exports have decreased by eight million pounds sterling; iron and steel by eight and three quarters millions, and cotton manufactures by twenty-six million.

NOT LIKE PEACE.

DUBLIN, July 9. A passenger train, with soldiers on board, going from Dublin to Cork, was attacked yesterday at Clonsilla, outside Dublin, and several passengers were wounded. At Milltown, County Limerick, John Moloney, a former soldier, was taken from his home and shot dead. The body of Wm. Macpherson, an ex-soldier, kidnapped yesterday, was found yesterday labelled "spy."

ALL SETTLED.

MIAMI, Fla., July 9. A long controversy between the Government and the Western Union Telegraph Company over the landing of the Miami-Barbados cable here has been brought to an end with the granting of Federal permission for landings, according to word received by the local office of the Western Union.

Deputation Meets Company.

No definite information with respect to the labor dispute at Reid's could be obtained this morning, but we understand that a deputation from the employees met the heads of the Company at 11 a.m. and were with them for some time. The result of this meeting is not yet known.

Train Notes.

Thursday's outgoing express reached Port aux Basques at 9 p.m. yesterday. The incoming express with the Kyle's mail and passengers, arrived on time. The Carbonear and Trepassey locals arrived on time. The weather along the line this morning was calm and dull, the temperature ranging between 40 and 50 degrees. People have to travel many miles before reaching and playing at a Salmon Pool. You have only to go to Brookfield, near Bowring Park, next Wednesday afternoon, 13th of July, to "The Methodist College-Ayre Athletic Association Garden Party" and try your hand at the Salmon Pool, the first at any Garden Party. Will your catch be on exhibition the following day? The train leaves the station 2.45 p.m., and Busses run all the afternoon. Train returns at 8.30.—179,21,22

Longshoremen

Raid Wharves.

Scenes of an extraordinary nature occurred last night when a number of striking longshoremen raided various wharves and stopped all attempts to unload shipping in port. The first raid took place on the Furness Wharf premises, where several office hands and other officials of companies affected by the strike were preparing to discharge a vessel. The strikers, numbering nearly 100 men, rushed down on the wharf in a body and stopped all the voluntary labourers from working. Mr. Brian Dunfield, a director of John, and Mr. Hutchinson of John's rather badly treated, whilst all the others were forced to desert from work. Mr. J. Ellis of Bowring's office was frog-marched off the wharf earlier in the morning. Even two citizens who were on the wharf were ordered to clear out. Shortly before 1 p.m. the strikers heard that the crew of the Hasei Trahey were unloading molasses from the schooner at Baine Johnson's premises, and a rush was immediately made in that direction, while being called on the way so that a co-striker who had become lukewarm, could be persuaded to join in the invasion. The crowd then continued on their way and rushed down onto Baine-Johnson's wharf, where they boarded the schooner, and in a manner far from gentle, hauled out of the hold the men who were working there. Police Inspector Newhook later appeared on the scene, but was unable to quell the disturbance, unaided. Having accomplished their task at Baine Johnson's, the raiders gave three cheers for their "victory" and left the premises. The strikers also stopped the carmen who were carting coal from a schooner in Cliff's Cove, but the President of the Truckmen's Union was appealed to and he ruled that the Union had no authority to stop these men, so they continued with their work of hauling.

Police Court.

There was very little doing in police court last night, the only arrest made being a drunk who was later released. A truckman charged with driving on the wrong side of the street pleaded that there was no traffic at the time. He was fined $1 and costs.

Pyorrhoea is the most destructive, the most difficult to treat, yet one of the commonest of all the diseases of the teeth. It is present in the mouths of countless thousands of adults who fondly think their teeth are in perfect condition. It progresses slowly, and in its early stages, painlessly. The gums become soft and bleed easily, then they grow sore and become inflamed. Pus forms at the roots of the teeth and they loosen in their sockets. When the disease reaches this stage it affects the general health and usually extraction is the only remedy.

Last night's Star headlines Thursday's B.I.S.-Cubs game thusly:—"Small Gathering is Present at Poor Exhibition," and then goes on to say:—

"A LARGE gathering of fans at 'tended last evening's baseball game . . . A GOOD exhibition was given 'by BOTH teams, and as the season 'progresses enthusiasts are assured 'of some exciting ball . . . The batteries showed up well last night . . . The Cubs played well together, 'their outfielding and base-work being 'particularly good. The Irish 'made showed considerable improvement on their previous appearance . . ."

Now the facts are that the game must have been exciting considering the fact that the score stood 4 to 3 in the Cubs favor up to the final frames. It is therefore difficult to connect the Star's headline with the text of the write-up—except to say that the latter was the product of the brains of the Daily News reporter (who witnessed the game), which was reprinted verbatim by the Star with a change of headline by one who is evidently prejudiced against baseball. Such tactics when applied to amateur sports really spell death to endeavour. It is the gospel of the number. Let's cut it out and play the game! Ponder on this little verse. Mr. Headline Writer of the Star:—

"The Tree Toad croaks his false alarm. And utters warnings of rain and snow; His only cry is of impending harm. Not a cheery call does he seem to know."

A Topsy-Turvy Country.

A hurry call for cargoes of ice for Iceland, to prevent its winter herring crop from spoiling, was recently received in Norway, and promptly responded to.

This, to the world at large, seemed about as logical a thing to do as for Sydney, N.S., to send to Montreal for coal. Nevertheless, when it is understood what a "topsy-turvy land" climatically Iceland is, the wonder concerning the call for ice will cease. For, in January, the temperature of this northern country the neighbor to Greenland is milder than that of Milan, Italy; and, on the other hand, in summer it is much cooler than many points much farther north.

"The Land of Fire," says the National Geographic Society, would be a much more appropriate name for Iceland than the one it is known by. For the surface of no other country, perhaps, is so deeply marked by the withering blasts that well up from volcanoes. In no other country of equal area are to be found so many volcanic peaks and vents. Of the 40,000 square miles of the country's area, 5,000 are covered by lava flows.

Iceland is about 8,000 square miles larger than Ireland. It is only a short distance off the European coast of Greenland, and its northernmost cape just touches the Arctic circle. In spite of its position so near the North Pole, Iceland, thanks to the Gulf Stream, has a relatively mild winter climate. Reykjavik, the capital, is in the same latitude as Nome, Alaska, but has a January temperature milder than that of Milan, Italy.

Grain Cannot be Grown. Icelandic summers, however, are cool, due to the large fields of ice that float down from the north. Grain cannot be grown satisfactorily, and all breadstuffs must be imported. Hay, potatoes and turnips are the only agricultural products of any importance. Cattle, horses and sheep are raised in considerable numbers, and large quantities of fish—chiefly cod and herring—are taken from the neighboring waters.

Through Iceland has an extensive area, for all practical purposes it might just as well be only a seventh its actual size. Although Europeans emigrated to Ireland about seven hundred years before Old World colonies were established in the now famed North America, only the valleys and lowlands near the coast of the island have ever been developed. This is not because of a lack of energy on the part of the hardy Scandinavians who settled this island, but because the interior, comprising about seven-sevenths of the total area, is a waste of lava.

The island is approximately 300 miles wide and 300 miles long, but hardly a habitation can be found more than forty miles from salt water. There are no railroads and few carriage roads. The inhabitants depend almost entirely on water transportation along the coast and in the many fjords.

Iceland can be considered the halfway station between Europe and America. Nearly 700 years before Columbus sailed to the West Indies through the warm south Atlantic in his relatively large decked ships, daring Scandinavian sea rovers in their open boats passed from Norway to Iceland and from there to the coasts of Maine and Rhode Island.

MAN WHO HOAXED THE WORLD DIES IN LONDON HOSPITAL.

Known to fame as the man who hoaxed the world, Louis de Rougement, has died in a London hospital at the age of 85. Under the name of Louis Redmond, he had for some time been in a hospital at Kensington, as the result of a tube accident. Twenty-three years have passed since the wonderful "adventures" of Louis de Rougement attracted an extraordinary amount of attention. They appeared in a monthly magazine, and his narrative of 30 years' life among the aborigines of Australia led to his being described as the modern Robinson Crusoe. He read a paper before the British Association on the anthropology of the Australian aborigine, and learned men marvelled at the stories he told. Newspapers, however, became suspicious, and the end of a great controversy was a pronounced disbelief in his "adventures." The trouble arose through de Rougement writing about flocks of flying wombats, an achievement regarded as rather remarkable, in view of the fact that the wombat cannot fly. His explanations were not satisfactory, and doubt was cast on many other adventures that he chronicled. At the London Hippodrome, in 1906, however, he showed how to ride turtles in the water, as he had described in his story. Investigators claimed that de Rougement's real name was Henri Louis Grin. He was a Swiss who left home when 17 in order to act as a courier. About the age of 40, he went to Australia as a servant, and became a pearl fisher, subsequently prospecting for gold. Then he developed into a sailor and travelled extensively. Stories told by de Rougement of how he rode six-hundred-pound turtles and alligators, followed by his fall from grace, led to his being a topic of humorous discussion for many years. Innumerable songs and jokes were made about him, and, although the public lost sight of him for some years he remained an interesting memory.

UNPUBLISHED HISTORY.

Interesting Records of Royal N. F. Fencible Regiment.

The inscription on this monument, which stands in a small park in the older portion of the City of Toronto (York), is as follows:—

"This Monument is erected to the memory of the fallen members of the York Rangers, Glengarry Fencibles and Royal Newfoundland Regiment, who were killed while successfully repelling an American invasion of the town of York, in the month of August, 1812."

(To Mr. John Garland, formerly with Messrs. G. Knowling, Ltd., but now residing at Weston, Ontario, the Telegram is indebted for the photograph from which the above illustration was made. Mr. Garland notes our request in Telegram of February 12th, for a snap of the monument, very promptly and kindly acceded. He has our very best thanks, for nothing could be more appropriate to read the concluding installment of this series of interesting articles than the picture of the gallant men of the 1st Royal Newfoundland Regiment, who gave their lives, over one hundred years ago, in the same cause of freedom for which so many of their fellow countrymen fought and died in the years 1814-18.—Editor Telegram.)

ORDERED HOME.

Hullfax, June 2, 1815.

To Lt. General Sir Gordon Drummond, K.C.B.

Sir—As I have received orders to send to England the 2nd Battalion of the 93rd Regiment from St. John's, Newfoundland, which will leave that garrison very week, I beg you will be pleased to send either to Halifax or to St. John's, Newfoundland, direct that part of the Newfoundland Fencibles which is at present in Canada, as I wish the whole of that Regiment to be concentrated at St. John's as soon as possible.

I have the honor to be, Sir, Your humble and obedient servant, J. C. SHERRBROOKE, Lt.-General.

This ends the series of extracts from the originals showing the part played by the Royal Newfoundland Regiment during the war between Great Britain and the United States from June 19, 1812, to December 24, 1814. During this period several important battles were fought, both on land and sea, in which the Regiment played a conspicuous part. It will be enemy's batteries; that the conduct of your memorialist on this and other occasions, was so highly approved of by his commanding officer, that the late Sir George Frowde, then Commander-in-Chief of His Majesty's forces in Canada recommended him for an Ensigncy in the Royal Newfoundland Regiment, in which the first vacancy occurred; that in consequence of this recommendation he was appointed an Ensign in the said regiment and joined at Kingston. That in consequence of the regiment having lost a great number of men in the different actions in which it was engaged, in almost every part of Canada, it was ordered to Newfoundland to recruit a short time previous to the close of the war. That your memorialist remained with his regiment till it was ordered to Halifax to be reduced, and that for a considerable time previous to the reduction, which took place on the 24th of June, 1816, your memorialist was the Senior Ensign of the Regiment. That at the time of the reduction, and for some time previous to that event, there were three vacant Lieutenancies, to two of which your memorialist was by his Commanding officer recommended. That contrary to his expectations your memorialist was placed on half pay as an Ensign. That he has understood that Lieut. Bulger, the Senior Lieutenant of the Regiment, has since the reduction of the regiment, been appointed to a company, which was vacant at the time by the death of Captain Skinner, and that your memorialist trusts that Your Royal Highness will be graciously pleased to extend the same favorable consideration to him as the Senior Ensign. That your memorialist is unwilling to speak of his own conduct, and will only remark thereon that it was such as to procure him a recommendation, in the first place for his commission, and subsequently for a medal from the Loyal and Patriotic Society of Canada, and that he trusts that the Commanding Officers of his Regiment, Lieut.-Col. Heathcote and Major Pilpon, as well as all others under whom he served, will bear testimony in support of it if necessary. Your memorialist, therefore, prays that Your Royal Highness will be graciously pleased to take his case into your favorable consideration and grant him the rank of Lieutenant in the said Regiment from the time of the vacancy occurring, or from the reduction of the Regiment as to Your Royal Highness may seem proper, and as in duty bound he will ever pray.

THE KING'S BOUNTY.

Quartermaster General's Office, Quebec, July 1st, 1815.

Referring to the annexed letter from the Deputy Adjutant-General expressing His Excellency Sir Gordon Drummond's pleasure, that Captains Lelievre, Skinner and Surgeon Harris of the Royal Newfoundland Fencibles, should be allowed to provide themselves with a passage in some private vessel bound to Newfoundland, I beg leave to recommend that Captain Skinner and Surgeon Harris should receive twelve guineas each, to defray the expenses of their passage, Captain Lelievre not being prepared at this time to join his corps at Newfoundland.

SIDNEY BECKWITH, Major-General.

To His Honor Major-General Sheaffe, President of His Majesty's Council in the Province of Upper Canada and Commanding the Forces in the same.

The memorial of the undersigned officers serving and having served in His Majesty's vessels on Lake Ontario, respectfully sheweth:

That memorialists have laboured under many disadvantages in having been obliged to serve in a department they were totally unacquainted with, and having had their allowances of fuel and lodging money stopped during that period.

Memorialists most humbly pray that Your Honor will be graciously pleased to grant them the enclosing allowances to officers in fatigue or working parties, and memorialists will ever gratefully remember Your Honor's attention to their memorial.

PETITIONS FOR JUST PROMOTION.

To His Royal Highness Fredrick Duke of York and Albany, Field Marshal and Commander-in-Chief of His Majesty's Forces.

The memorial of Ensign Alexander McLean on the half pay of His Majesty's late Royal Newfoundland Regiment, humbly sheweth:

That on the declaration of the late war with the United States of America your memorialist was attached as Lieutenant to one of the flank Companies of the 1st Regiment of storming Militia in Upper Canada, which were called into His Majesty's service immediately on the commencement of hostilities, that while in the garrison of Prescott he was appointed to act as Adjutant of the different bodies of Militia there assembled, and in that capacity was present and assisting in the capture of the enemy's post at Ogdensburg, on which occasion he was severely wounded in the leg by a round shot from one of the

Mad Pilgrims Pray in Mountain.

QUEST FOR CITY THAT WAS TURNED INTO GOLD.

People in the region of the battlefield of Tannenberg in East Prussia have been struck by an amazing form of mass madness or hallucination, for a parallel to which it is necessary to go back to the Middle Ages. Beside the little village of Musesaken, thirty miles south of Allenstein, and close to the Polish frontier, stands a triple peaked height called Golden Mountain. The local sages say that the mountain stands on the site of a former city, 2,000 years ago. On account of the savagery of a single inhabitant the city was put under a spell by evil spirits, who turned the people into gold and threw the mountain over it.

Kisses for Repulsive Reptiles.

A hundred and ten years ago, says another legend, a shepherd lad fell into a chasm on the mountain. When the body was recovered it had been turned into gold. Exactly 100 years ago another boy, it is stated, was taken by a beautiful spirit into the mountain and shown a sleeping city of gold—houses, churches, palaces, people, the king on his throne, all solid gold. The boy was told that to release the city from its ancient spell he must kiss twelve repulsive reptiles. He failed at the twelfth, which was a two-headed toad. The city was, therefore, condemned to a further century of imprisonment in gold. A few weeks ago a blind old woodman of the neighbouring village of Jablonken was troubled by constant dreams in which three spirits charged him with the task of releasing the city from the spell, and threatened that he would become a complete cripple if he refused to do as he was told. He was to rouse the people of the neighbourhood to assemble constantly on the mountain, and sing and pray.

Saw Roundabouts in Paradise.

The threats became more terrible, till at last he went off to the mountain, eight miles away, by a difficult road, and reached the top without mishap. He repeated the formula given him by the spirits, and immediately heard singing inside the mountain. He told the people the story of his adventures, and they began to flock to the mountains. Then another man appeared on the scene, declaring he had visited the city, accompanied by a beautiful golden woman, who sat on his shoulders and spurred him on. He saw what the shepherd lad had seen, and impressed on the people that if the spell were broken the golden king would become king of all kings, with enough money to pay the indemnity, and to make everybody enormously rich. In a golden prison he had seen a golden prisoner, who caused the spell to be set on the city. He was also shown Paradise, he said, which was all music and roundabouts.

Spell of Hallucination.

A few nights ago a wealthy lady who owns an estate near by went out at night to dig for gold on the mountain. She heard something; fled in terror, and is now in a lunatic asylum. The story meantime spread, and people came from far and near to take part in the regular singing and praying meetings on the mountain, which are held every day from eight to four. Many people stay the night. Vehicles of all sorts bring pilgrims in thousands, and the railways are overburdened. People who endeavor to persuade the inhabitants that the whole thing is a delusion are cursed by the simple peasants of the region, who whole-heartedly believe in the story.

Indeed, a curious spell of hallucination, has been cast over the entire region, and the authorities are wondering what to do to bring the people back to their senses.

Order Should Be Kept.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir—I attended the concert given by the C.L.B.C. Band in Victoria Park last evening, hoping to enjoy the splendid programme which I heard they were rendering. I was greatly disappointed, like many others, owing to the noise that was kicked up by children and also by many young men and women old enough to have better sense. A favourite game of theirs is striking people across face, hands or legs with switches torn from the trees that ornament the park. The youngsters clung about the wire netting of the Bandstand, shut out all view of the bandmen and hampered them in their work by knocking off their caps. The Bandmaster must be a genius in conducting, as he was at times nearly pushed in over his men by the mob that kept crowding into the stand. How bandmen can work under such conditions gets me, and I hope matters will be remedied in the future by a policeman being stationed near the Bandstand on concert nights.

Thanking you for space.

I remain, MUSIC LOVER.

Hotwood, Badger Brook and Millertown, they could be given running powers over the Newfoundland Railway from Bishop's Falls to Millertown Junction. On the Bonavista Branch there would be a tri-weekly, instead of daily, service each way, and the same would apply to the Lewisporte Branch. No service would be run between Bishop's Falls and Humbermonth, but between Humbermonth and Port aux Basques a tri-weekly service would be operated. Communication could be kept up with the West Coast via Argentina.

Some such restrictions on the full schedule must be introduced if the Railway is expected to nearly balance receipts and expenditure in the winter months. Of course, it would entail timely warning to those who were likely to be isolated during the winter months so that they could lay in the necessary winter supplies. The advent of the Branch Railways altered the peoples' mode of living during the winter. Formerly, they laid in sufficient supplies in the fall to last to the opening of navigation, as is the practice still on such portions of the sea board as are ice bound during the winter months, but as soon as the Branch Railways were built they stopped taking them in and have become more and more dependent on the railway for daily and weekly supplies. Hence when a snow blockade takes place it becomes imperative upon the Railway Company to make every effort to keep the railway open in order to avoid distress and hunger. It is unfair to ask the railway operators to meet conditions like these that could be so readily avoided, and due notice should be given in October of each year that these branch railways will not be kept open after the snow appears. When it is considered that a snow fighting gang can easily cost between $200 and $300 per day for wages alone, not to mention about the same amount for fuel and food, it can readily be seen that it would take a heavy traffic of freight and passengers to offset the expenditure; but such volume of traffic is conspicuously absent in the winter months.

Where People Are Care Free.

In the little Kingdom of Siam, which is ruled by one of the most democratic autocrats in the world, the people are what many have called happy-go-lucky.

The watchword of the entire Siamese nation might as well be considered one word which seems always on their tongues. This word is "Myenary." It means "What does it matter?"

This national attitude is the reason the Siamese have been called the French of the Orient. They are a gay, music-loving, drama, adoring people, who are like the French only in these things. Some of the most competent observers declare it is rare indeed that an ambitious man or woman is found in all Siam.

When the average Siamese has done his day's work he sets about amusing himself, just as does every man of every other nation. And, it is interesting to note, a large number of the most prosperous Siamese find their entertainment in the very thing that delights so many persons of other nations—the motion picture.

There are several motion picture theatres in Bangkok. Each has a dais on which is set a special seat for the king. For each theatre owner hopes the king will come to his house and see his "show." Sometimes the king does attend the movies, arriving with full fanfare of trumpets, ringing of bells and blowing of whistles. Then the people turn their backs on the screen and watch his face—partly for etiquette, but more for curiosity about the royal ruler.

Railway Commission Report.

PHILOSOPHICAL DEDUCTIONS.

As you are aware the operations of the Railway were greatly interfered with by snow blockade during the first three months of this year, which, while involving heavy outlay for snow fighting, reduces receipts from the handling of passengers and freight. It would appear that the weather on each side of a line drawn through Millertown Junction and Howley was quite different. South of this line the snow falls were heavy and frequent, accompanied by high winds, which drifted up the railway cuts to an unprecedented extent; track which was situated close to the sea suffering more severely than at inland points. Thus the main line as far as Whitbourne, the Trepassey Branch and the Bay de Verde Branch were early blocked, and the two latter had after severe fighting to be abandoned until mild weather set in. On the North side of the line as far as can be judged from reports from the Northern Bays very little snow fell and there was an absence of wind. When the snow fighting gangs late in the season reached the Topsails there was not more than four feet of snow in any of the cuts and the most part of this region was cleared up in a couple of days with a push plow, while on the main line East of this point the two rotary plows were almost continuously employed. On account of the serious conditions the third rotary plow was rushed to completion in the shops, but it did not get to work until late in the season. It would inflate this report unnecessarily to give a detailed account of our difficulties under this head, but the experience gained leads us to make certain recommendations as regards the running schedule for next year with a view to economy in snow fighting and also in general train operation.

In the first place the Trepassey and Bay de Verde Branches should only be run until the snow prevents progress by pilot plow. This closure might begin about the middle of January and might continue into the second week of April. After the first blocking no further attempt should be made to keep them open. The people of the Southern Shore could be served during this period by one of the Government fleet of boats from St. John's about once per week, and points on the Bay de Verde Branch might also be reached in the same way. In this period there is no necessity, as was demonstrated last Winter, for more than one train each way between St. John's and Carbonear. While this restricted service was in force no complaints were received. The Heart's Content and Placentia schedules as at present could under conditions be maintained at one train per day each way as even last winter these roads presented no difficulty. The reason why they were not operated at times was that the snow blockaded the railway between St. John's and Whitbourne and isolated them. From Placentia Junction to Bishop's Falls might be operated by a passenger train three times a week and a freight train on alternate days. This service would stop at Bishop's Falls, but if the Anglo-Newfoundland Development Company wished to preserve a connection between their people at

A Victim of Tobacco.

Mr. John Grady, a native of Leith, a retired butcher, has just died in Glasgow at the advanced age of 102. He retained his faculties to the end, was extremely resistant and did not take part in any public affairs. He allowed himself few luxuries, but used an ounce of black tobacco per day. This unfortunate man was born in 1819. At the age of 21, he first fell a victim to this habit, and a grave man of his acquaintance loomed up and warned him against it, saying truthfully that tobacco drugs the brain, obfuscates the intellect, stupifies the intelligence, and is a vile and degenerate habit tending to shorten life. That was in 1840. By 1871 the grave man mentioned had taken to his bed and died, grieving with his last breath over the victim of tobacco who was smoking himself into an early grave. By 1901 the family had resigned themselves a little, although they would say now and again, "You mark my words, he'll go off sudden-like one of these days, the way he smoked." So the years rolled by, till the other day the victim died. And the granddaughter of the grave man, who had imbibed the family principle, said, "Well, there! What did grandfather say!" and the rest of the grave man's family nodded their heads and said it should be a warning to all who were addicted to the filthy habit.

League Football.

CADETS WIN IN FAIR GAME.
Last night's football game, in which the Cadets defeated the Saints by 3 goals to 0, was not at all a good one, and the winners had everything their own way throughout. The Saints were greatly handicapped by having several of their regular players absent, from various causes, and their attempts at attack and defence were rather feeble. The Cadets scored twice in the first half, Maddigan finding the net from a mix-up after 10 minutes play and Callahan shortly afterwards heading the ball between the posts from a pass by Caul. After this second goal had been scored play became most tiresome and uninteresting until the halftime whistle went. Some excellent chances were lost by the Saints in the second half, their shooting being very much on the wild side, whilst the Cadets also proved most erratic when "potting" at goal. The only goal scored for the half, which was a much livelier one than the first half, was obtained by Meaney.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

SOMETHING THAT TIRES MANY PEOPLE.

There are certain mental states that tear at one to a degree that many of us fall fully to realize.

One of these is impatience—both our own and other people's.

Here is the sort of thing I mean:

A little neighbor of mine came in the other afternoon and threw herself down in one of my verandah chairs with a gesture of utter weariness.

"Been working hard," I asked.

"Why no," she said, "I haven't been working at all. I've just been down town doing some shopping. Harry (himself) said he would run me down in the machine so that I could bring home my bundles."

"That was nice," I said.

"While Harry was waiting!"

"It would have been," she said, "if Harry hadn't been so impatient if I stopped a second longer than he thought I should anywhere. I had to go in and get some shoes that I was having fixed and the shoe man insisted on explaining something to me and he couldn't find one of the shoes, and he took forever wrapping them up—you know what he is! And then in the grocery store, there were four people in ahead of me and only two clerks. The woman that I had to wait for had a list with at least a dozen articles on it—and all things that had to be weighed and wrapped! Seven pounds of sugar and a half pound of tea and two pounds of coffee and some Indian meal. Harry had just blown me up for being so long in the shoe store and I thought I would scream if that woman asked for another thing that had to be weighed out and wrapped.

"Well, I must trot along. I've got to get supper started. Harry has a fit if it's five minutes late, although I never yet called him that he didn't have to go and wash his hands or something before he came. I declare I don't know what makes me so tired. I haven't done as much as usual to-day."

Can You Guess?

I can pretty well guess what made her so tired. Can't you?

I doubt if she would have been so weary if she had walked down and carried her own bundles home as she was from the nervous strain of feeling Harry's impatience.

One's own impatience has the same wearing effect. I have found myself all tensed up over a slow elevator or a trolley car that would insist on stopping to take on other passengers when I was in a hurry, and I know the strain of my own impatience helped wear me out.

Of course if one is late it is hard not to feel that impatience, but after all it does not hurry one forward any, and one might as well relax. And even better, one might well try to avoid putting oneself in positions where one will be stretched on the rack of impatience.

If Men Would Only Realize.

Then, too, people are often impatient just from the habit of 'hurry' when they really have no pressing need to get anywhere. From my knowledge of him, I suspect Harry's impatience was that kind.

This latter is more typically a masculine habit, and a careless rather than a deliberately selfish one. I wish men might realize how much strain and unhappiness it causes.

Regatta Committee Meeting.

The Regatta Committee met last night in the T.A. Armoury when matters in connection with the races were discussed. The full committee were present, and there was a large attendance of members. The meeting opened at 9 o'clock, when Secretary Noonan read the minutes, which being confirmed, the President, Mr. Arthur Hiscock, announced that a number of tenders for the motor boat for service on the Lake had been received. Mr. A. Snow's of Quidi Vidi, being accepted. The President reported that the special Committee had interviewed the Governor and he had consented to give his patronage to the sport, though it would not be likely that he could be present. His Excellency had kindly offered a set of gold medals to be awarded as the committee thought fit. The collection committee reported that the work of collecting had not started owing to the unrest along Water Street. The members, however, will start as soon as the opportunity presents itself. Mr. P. F. Collins suggested that the band stand be erected without delay, and also brought to the notice of the meeting the condition of the head of the pond which was dangerous to the practice boats owing to the number of hoops, bedsteads and pieces of pottery thrown in the water. The Pond Committee will take this matter up at once, and they will also see that a properly marked buoy is placed at the foot of the Lake. A suggestion was made that a member from each of the boat clubs be added to the Pond Committee but the meeting thought that the present members were sufficient. Tenders for making the medals were received from three firms of jewellers. The matter of an Old Comrades Race was discussed, but the proposition was not entertained. The employees of the General Post Office, through Mr. Wm. Campbell, wrote the Committee asking for a place in the Mer-cantile Race. It was decided they could row in either the Amateur or Army and Navy Race, as the proposed crew consisted of war veterans. Mr. F. McNamee brought the matter of distinctive signals for the boats before the committee. This produced a lengthy discussion, various suggestions being offered, and it was ultimately decided that the coxswains of each boat would wear a solid colored coat, the color decided upon to be the color of the boat for the day. This same color would be used for the boat on the signal pole instead of the usual house flag. A motion that the coats be paid for by the committee was defeated. The Bandstand Committee, consisting of Messrs. C. Ryan, J. P. Crotty and P. F. Collins, are arranging to have the bandstand erected next week so that the band concerts may be held on the evenings between now and Regatta Day. Messrs. P. F. Collins, N. Andrews and G. Hunt will report to Treasurer James, not later than Tuesday next, as to whether medals or money prizes be given various crews. The order of the races was deferred till the meeting on Friday night next, and adjournment was taken at 11 o'clock.

TRINITY.

Through the kind courtesy of Mr. Richard Ash, of St. John's, I have been given the privilege of looking over and reviewing some Masonic literature, that takes us back over a hundred years in the history of Trinity and gives us a glimpse of the internal life of some of the men of those years. The literature consists of an original manuscript-copy of the By-Laws of Union Lodge, A.F. and M., names of members, and a copy of a letter from the Secretary of the Grand Lodge of England, under the jurisdiction of which the local lodge did its work.

Although there was no Masonic lodge in Trinity when I was a small boy, yet I was familiar with the words "Free Mason." These words were always associated with mystery, and as some man would be pointed out to me as a Free Mason, I usually took the other side of the road, kept my eye on him, and made for home as fast as I could, with a consciousness that I had a narrow escape from something—I did not know just what. Whilst in later years the local doctor, the magistrate and other leading residents of Trinity were supposed to belong to the Order, the majority of the fraternity who came to us, were the sailors and the engineers of the sailing vessels and steamers, that sailed between Trinity and foreign ports.

remitted to the Grand Lodge of England in 1820, were Richard Ash, Thomas Powell, Thomas Bell, James Clemence, John Hall, John Lander, Joseph Tavernor, Thomas Gaylor, William Collins, John Skelton; and the occupation as given of eight of those men is "Mariner." Thomas Powell was the Sheriff, and Richard Ash is marked as "Dealer and Shopman"—though of course he was a "Master Mariner."

This list of members was made up at a meeting of Union Lodge, No. 698, held in the Court House at Trinity on the 27th of December (St. John's Day) 1819, and signed by Joseph Tavernor, Secretary. In a previous list of names, appended to the By-Laws made and passed in open Lodge, on August 6th, 1818, the names of George Pittman, Robert Slade, Jr., Philip Hammon, and John Clacher are given as members; and the date, April 20th, 1785 as given on a By-Law would indicate the existence of the Lodge at that date. Judging from the positions of the names of Richard Ash and Joseph Tavernor in those lists, the former, (the great grand-father of our present Richard Ash) was the first Secretary; and though the name of Rev. John Clinch does not appear in the list of members, he was a Free Mason, and probably was the Chaplain when he died in 1819.

The Lodge Room in which the meetings were held (after the first meeting in the Court House) was the upstairs of the house now occupied by Mr. George Bartlett as a dwelling house. The regular meetings were held during the evenings of the first and third Wednesdays "in every calendar month." Every member absent from either of those meetings was fined one shilling; the initiation fee was four pounds five shillings, and the annual fee was four shillings and sixpence. Section 7 of the By-Laws provides that "the annual Feast of this Lodge shall be held on the 24th of June, in commemoration of the Nativity of St. John the Baptist." The bill of fare, however, on his occasion is not given, but I presume it was more comprehensive than that of their patronal Saint.

Section 10 of the By-Laws corresponds with that in the By-Laws of the old Trinity Benefit Club of the same period, and exacts a fine of two shillings and sixpence, and to quit the Lodge, and for the second offence to be expelled in the case of a member coming to the Lodge meeting "in a state of intoxication, or for swearing or behaving in an indecent and unbecoming manner." Though, doubtless, this By-Law was necessary in those days, as years went by the times changed for the better, and it was eliminated. Running all through the twenty-one By-Laws as given in this manuscript, there is a thread of high moral requirement demanded of the members of the Order, such as make for that gentlemanly conduct which Masonry ever strives to produce; and Union Lodge, during its working years, must have had an influence for good, not only upon its members, but also upon the people of Trinity with whom they were associated.

The Jewels of this (Union) Lodge are now in a glass case in the Lodge Room of the Masonic Temple at St. John's, and, I presume, they would be handed over to a resuscitated Union Lodge in Trinity, if it ever were undertaken. There are at present, at least twelve members of the Order in Trinity and Trinity East. I have some notes on the life of old Richard Ash during the war with France, but I shall keep them for use next week.

Long years ago in the history of Trinity there was a battery of muzzled loading cannon on the top of Gun Hill, to assist in defending the town against the marauding Frenchmen of that day. After peace had been proclaimed and the Frenchmen, like gentlemen, had gone home, the guns were left to look after themselves. They did not, however, enjoy many peaceful years there, for the temptation to throw them over the hill was too strong for the boys and men who went up to see them, and the guns were soon dismounted, and reposing at the base of the hill. Then, later, they were taken up and mounted on Rider's Hill. Then some were taken to Cape-Mackerel. Then they were removed to different places, and one was thrown over the Government Government wharf. There it lay in the water under the slip till last week, when Mr. Bishop had it taken up, placed in position on the new wharf, embedded in concrete, and converted into a "grump-head."

does not follow that it is a substantial one, for it has reached that condition of disintegration that renders the material of which it is made, easy of detachment, and already the boys have begun to dig into it with their knives. I wish it had the power to talk to me of history and reminiscences. I would gladly give it a patient hearing, and then I would give my readers something deeply interesting. But, alas!

Sunday last—Memorial Day—was a day filled with hallowed associations and deeply interesting actions, in connection with St. Paul's congregation, Church of England. At 8 o'clock there was a celebration of the Holy Communion in the Mortuary Chapel. Before the service began, the Altar, Reredos, and Altar Cross—placed there by Mrs. Orlando Morris and her children—were offered to God, and dedicated to His honor and glory, and in loving memory of Orlando Jas. Morris, (husband and father) who was lost at sea. After the dedication, verse four of Rev. William Bullock's hymn was sung—"We love thee Altar Lord; O what on earth so dear? For there in faith adored, we find Thy presence near."

and around the Mortuary Chapel (which was filled to overflowing) for the service of the two beautiful widows, in memory of Charles Rowe and James E. Woolridge. Every window and tablet in the building was wreathed with evergreen. No name was forgotten, whilst the two windows to be dedicated were draped with the White and Red Ensigns and Union Jacks. Mr. William White (the Secretary of the Chapel and Cemetery Committee) represented the donors of Altar and Windows, and formally offered them for dedication, which was then done by the Priest in charge of the service. The whole service was a beautiful rendering of special hymns and prayers and psalms, and lessons, together with an address on the objects of the service, followed by the hymn "The Supreme Sacrifice," and ending with the Benediction. This little chapel, always open and frequented every day by those who have learnt to value it as a silent but the most powerful preacher of some of God's revealed truths, that the parish has ever had.

Festal Evensong at 6.30 in the Parish Church, with special hymns and lessons, and a Memorial sermon from the text: "The souls of the righteous are in the Hands of God" brought to a close a Sunday not soon to be forgotten, and fraught with blessings to souls on earth and in the Paradise of God.

S.S. Diana came in on Friday on her way to Labrador.

The water at "Barlow Beach," Glenoeye, is still cold for bathing.

The service of Holy Communion that followed was in every sense most beautiful, and such a service as can be rendered only in the quiet morning hour, and there in God's Acre, with the most sacred memories coming to us through a dozen different avenues. The names of loved ones on stone and tablet, on windows and Altar, not only reminds us of those "we loved and lost awhile," but as the words "We also bless Thy Holy Name for all Thy servants departed this life in Thy faith and fear" were uttered, we mentally spoke their names to God, with the assurance that, in that holy service they are always very near to us, and that they are the better for our prayers. Truly it was, and is always a Memorial Service!

At 11 o'clock, Morning Prayer was said, and Holy Communion was celebrated in the Parish Church. The Church was decorated with British flags, and a sermon on the lessons and duties of Memorial Day was preached by the rector.

Three o'clock found us all again in but in other respects it is very attractive just now.

Capt. Barbour is again in charge of the "Seneb" and will do duty in the mail and passenger service on Labrador.

Mrs. John House, of St. John's, is visiting friends at Trinity and Trinity East. Always glad to see her.

Mr. Azariah King, school teacher of Bonaventure, spent the week end and Sunday with his friend, Mr. Smith, at Trinity.

The Hon. D. A. Ryan was a passenger from St. John's by schooner on Sunday, and registered at Garland Hotel. Always glad to see him.

One of the little boys who came here with his parents (Mr. and Mrs. William House) from Grand Falls to spend a holiday, died of croup on Sunday last.

We are glad to see Miss Beeje Green (Nurse) at home again. She came from New York by Saturday's express, and will spend a quiet holiday with parents and friends.

Miss Marie Erikson and Miss Mollie White, of Bishop's Spencer College, St. John's, came home by Monday's express. We wish them the usual pleasant vacation, such as Trinity alone can supply.

Nurse Tibbs and her sister Miss Ruth, were passengers by the Prospero from St. John's, to spend their summer vacation at their old home in Trinity. Glad to see them.

Miss Somerton came by the Prospero from St. John's last week. She will spend the summer in Trinity, and then she will go to Toronto where she has accepted a position on the teaching staff of Bishop Bethune College.

Dr. and Mrs. Sinclair are enthusiastic golfers, and are doing their best to enjoy the game, on an apology for links, on the Neudie Point. It is a long time since any one golfed in Trinity, and though we do not understand the game we are glad to see the Doctor and Mrs. Sinclair enjoying it.

Some few weeks ago I referred to Rev. Mr. Crouch, who was Rev. Benjamin Smith's curate, and who taught a private school for Mr. Smith's children. Those who remember him and Mrs. Crouch, may be pleased to know that Mrs. Crouch is still living in England. She is over 80 years of age now, but " hale and hearty."
