An Indispensible Favorite OR Wealth and Beauty at Stake!

CHAPTER III.

"She's in the care of her French governess, Silas," his sister says, reprovingly. "Such a nice young lady, Lady Glynne! Such a nice maid!"—for so the worthy old lady pronounced the word, with an impressive drawl. "She and Lollie have gone up to the old part of the town to study the lights and shadows of the moonlight—so mamaselle says. She's so fond of my niece, Lady Glynne, and takes such pains with her education!"

"I dare say," Lady Nora responds, with a smile of contempt. "A toady!" she says to herself, with fine discernment. Then she asks aloud, "Where did you get her, Miss Dormer? I fancy I have seen her before."

As indeed Lady Nora has—as the lady's mind of an acquaintance of hers some years ago.

But, before the question can be answered, the door opens, and a tall girl in a plain clinging black gown of 'nun's veiling,' and a dashing-looking young lady in a fashionable black broche silk came in together.

"Yoande, my dear, we've been waiting prayer for you and mamaselle," Miss Dormer says, setting her spectacles low on her nose and looking over them, and elevating her chin and her honest commonplace old face.

"It's too late for young gels to be out o' doors," remarks Mr. Dormer, shaking his head.

"I was afraid I should have to go without seeing you, dear," Lady Nora interposes, with a lustrous melting smile and a fond pressure of the girl's thin hand. "Your dear auntie will tell you what a nice little project we have been planning together this evening!"

"What a long, lanky creature it is!" her ladyship thinks. "And what an expression for a girl of her age—a solemn stare like a virgin martyr in an old picture! Those horrid Methodistical people have ruined her. She will be always an outie, uncomfortable sort of girl. She has no more manner now than figure, and that is saying a good deal! Poor Dallas! And he is wonderfully fastidious about girls for so young a man."

"It was so exquisite a night madam," the governess says, with a little gasp of affected rapture, speaking in English, and English without a French accent, too, "the silver-white lights and the dense black shadows were so beautiful, we forgot the time, mademoiselle and I."

But the governess is visibly uneasy in the presence of Lady Nora, and tries to keep out of the range of her keen eyes, which scrutinize poor "mamaselle," as her employers always respectfully term her, with all the acumen of her worldly knowledge and savoir faire.

"Yes, yes," Miss Dormer says, with a rebuking smile, taking up one of the good books; "but we're going to talk of something better than moonlight or sunlight either now, mamaselle."

In a moment "mamaselle," looks meek as a chidden child, and ceases her mundane remarks, with an inquisitive sidelong glance at Lady Nora.

Mothers Advise Their Daughters to Rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to Keep Them in Health

A Mother's Advice Restores Mrs. Hall to Health

Lindsay, Ontario.—"I had very poor blood and was bothered with pains in my side and back. I took kidney medicine for a while without success. I got pale, weak and nervous. My mother, who has used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for a number of years with very good results, advised me to take it and I did. It did me worlds of good. I have gained twenty pounds and have not felt so well for a long time. You may use this letter as a testimonial to help others if you think it worth it."—Mrs. MARY E. HALL, R. R. 5, Lindsay, Ontario.

A Sickly Child

Mahoningtown, Pa.—"I would like to say a few words about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. About a year ago I thought it would be necessary for me to take my daughter out of school. She was losing weight, was nervous, and when she would come home from school she would drop into a chair and cry, and say, 'Mamma, I don't believe I can go to school another day!'" gave her Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and now she is a healthy, happy, hearty, strong girl and weighs 120 pounds. She has no difficulty in doing her 'gram' work, and she works at home every night and morning, too. I am a mother who can certainly read your medicine, and if it will be of any benefit to you may use this letter as a reference."—Mrs. GEORGE E. WHITACKS, 221 W. Madison Avenue, Mahoningtown, Pa.

Every girl wants to be healthy and strong, and every mother wants her daughter to do well in school and to enjoy herself at all times. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a splendid medicine for young girls just entering womanhood. Mothers may depend upon it. Remember it is prepared from roots and herbs, contains nothing that can injure, and tends to tone up and strengthen the organs concerned, so that they will work in a healthy and normal manner.

For nearly fifty years it has been used by women of all ages, and these women know its great value. Let it help your daughter and yourself.

who is looking at her steadfastly.

"Will you read the hymn, brother?" Miss Dormer asks politely, but nevertheless holding the hymn book tightly in her own hands.

"No, no, Keren; you read it tonight; my eyes are not very well," Mr. Dormer replies, declining the duty.

For the good man, honest and brave in other respects, can neither overcome his inborn British awe of a titled person nor the dreadful uncertainty that possesses him regarding the pronunciation of certain words of his mother tongue.

So Miss Dormer leads off with decorous fluency through hymn, chapter and prayer.

And then Lady Nora bids them all good-night most sweetly.

"An revoir until to-morrow afternoon, dear," she says, with a light caressing touch of her jeweled fingers on Yolande's soft rose-pale cheek, and a merry, radiant smile at the girl's puzzled, solemn eyes. "Three o'clock, Miss Dormer, at the Pont de Neque, is it not? It will be a charming afternoon!"

The governess hurries to get out of the room the instant prayers are over; but Lady Nora, by a quick movement, intercepts her; and the other has to draw back. And, while she bids Miss Dormer and her brother and niece good-night, Lady Nora is scrutinizing the governess in the bright gaslight with deliberate, smiling, patrician insolence.

"Mademoiselle Bella Glover, I believe," she says, coolly, as she passes her, with a gracious little nod, and speaking in perfect Parisian French, with a very different accent from "mamaselle's." "I am pleased to see you so well placed. So much nicer for you than your post with Mrs. Vavasor!"

"I don't understand you, madam!" the governess stammers, flushing crimson, and tears of wrath and terror welling up into her eyes. "My name is Gantier. You mistake, madam!"

"Gantier, and not Glover?" Lady Nora questions, showing her teeth in a malicious little smile. "You keep as close to the truth as ever, I see, mademoiselle. Chut!" for mademoiselle's visage is purple, and puckering up hysterically. "I have no wish to injure you; you shall tell me all about your good fortune, Mademoiselle—Gantier, by and by."

"Well, there maman," Dallas says, coming into his mother's room an hour later, and finding Lady Nora restoring exhausted nature with a dainty supper and one of Zola's novels, "have you spent a pleasant evening with your friend? She has the merit of novelty in every respect I should say. It must have been delightful!"

"Don't be absurd, Dallas!" Lady Nora responds a little crossly. "I am tired to death! Of course I went to spend the evening with those people for your sake."

"Best of mothers!" murmurs Dallas, helping himself to oysters and Chablis. "Was virtue its own reward, and did you enjoy the feast of reason and the flow of soul with that good lady in the lilac-and-white shawl? I see you did, for you are yawning so."

"I am tired to death," repeats Lady Nora, with a smile which is very like a grin. "However, you shall profit by my experience, Dallas. Miss Dormer is an excellent person, for a cook." Lady Nora goes on deliberately. "She is a worthy, honest, deferential sort of woman, who knows a great deal about housekeeping and marketing. Her name is Keren-happuch—called 'Keren'—Aunt Keren. Don't forget, Dallas."

The young fellow's dark chestnut eyebrows draw together with deep, angry curves between, and his smooth-cropped head droops sullenly.

"And Mr. Dormer—Uncle Silas," purrises Lady Nora saily—"is the very personification of the 'worthy old soul' of comedy-drama, without a scrap of polite education of savoir faire, but full of sterling worth— isn't that the phrase?—most charmingly snobbish toward what he calls the 'aristocracy,' and with a flourishing business in London and Yarmouth. He is a dyslexist. Why do they say 'dry,' Dallas. Who ever heard of wet salt being used?"

"Well!" Dallas says, curty, ignoring Lady Nora's question.

Is Usually Due to Constipation

When you are constipated, not enough of Nature's lubricating liquid is produced in the bowel to keep the food waste soft and moving. Doctors prescribe Nujol because it acts like this natural lubricant and thus secures regular bowel movements by Nature's own method—lubrication.

Nujol is a lubricant—not a medicine or laxative—so cannot gripe. Try it today.

The Speed of Thought.

Until recently it was generally considered that a thought occurred with the speed of lightning. But modern methods of measurement have shown that the speed of thought is not by any means exceptional.

The time taken for a nervous impulse to travel from the elbow to the brain and thence to the wrist proved that it did so at about 180 ft. a second.

Similarly a frog thinks at the rate of about 90 ft. a second, and it takes two seconds for a whale 150 ft. long to realize that he has been harpooned in the tail to lash out with it.

In some peculiar way, however, the speed of thought seems to depend upon the temperature of the body. If a man's body is warm he is able to think quicker than if he is cold; and if his nerves are frozen they will not conduct impulses at all.

Nerves Never too Tired.

A frog at seventeen degrees will think only half as quickly as another at thirty-five, while if the frog be warmed to the temperature of a man the animal will think equally as quickly.

A cold-blooded creature like the fresh-water mussel thinks only at about two and a half inches a second. One of the cuttlefishes thinks at the rate of three feet a second in winter, and the octopus in summer three to five times as quickly.

Many drugs, as well as cold, will decrease the speed of thought—chloroform obviously, and ether and alcohol less obviously.

The ability to think quickly seems to vary, too, with temperament. A melancholic or lethargic man thinks more slowly than a choleric individual. In all cases, however, it is practically impossible to tire out the nerves. They will always think even though the brain, which receives the impulses, may be too tired to deal with them.

Fads and Fashions.

Simple sports clothes are not only more practical, but are in better taste and fashion than fancy ones.

Printed fabrics are used as contrast and trimming quite indiscriminately on frocks of silk and cotton.

Both the sweater and the sports overblouse have in a measure been superseded by the sports jackets. Embroidered crepe and voile are charmingly combined in a straight-line frock trimmed with pleatings. A charming hat to wear, with a sheer dress would be one with a broad brim of lace falling in a veil. Heather flowers adorn a large hat of granite straw turned up in the back and faced with heather chiffon. With a short box coat of brown plaid silk crepe bound in yellow is worn a plaided skirt of yellow crepe. Around the edge of the brim of a hat may be tacked a band of tulle that shades the eyes in a becoming way. The correctly smart overnight bag may be of suede or morocco with tortoise-shell or metal mountings. A house of white crepe de chine is worn with a traveling suit of yellow wool fabric with a box-plated skirt. Embroidered crepe trims the short little jacket and fashions the draped skirt of a costume of black satin. As that very necessary neutral shade which fashion always demands, gray seems to be replacing beige and camel. Two shades of rose crepe de chine are used in a frock with a long, overblouse, which has almost the effect of a tunic. The large and small hats are at present not rivals for fashion's favor—they supplement each other in the summer wardrobe. The crepe de chine scarf which matches or harmonizes with the costume seems to have replaced the tulle scarf and fur choker. The chiffon veil which is worn across the lower part of the face is a fashion that is charming and invaluable for motoring. The most practical cape is reversible, one side being a color suitable for daytime wear, the other a lighter shade for evening. A frock of black crepe satin is draped in tulle effect with a little cape falling from the shoulders and a huge rose at the corsage. A plaided apron and collar and cuffs of organdie are the appropriately simple features of a traveling dress of crepe de chine. If you wish your veil merely to protect your neck from burning, drop it under the chin, catching it up at the back of the crown of your hat, and allowing it to fall behind. IT MATTERS MUCH.

Whether I live an honest man and hold my integrity firm in my clutch, or whether I am a scoundrel, as you, brother, as plan as I can, it matters much!

When two youths stood in the dock charged with theft, "it didn't matter" very much to them. They were going down grade, and with respect for their parents' love for home, a desire to work and better their conditions in life were all cast aside, and a bold, defiant and "don't care" spirit took possession of them. When the judge read the charges against them he said: "You are two young toughs."

They were two young brothers, aged 17 and 18 years, charged with the theft of $2 from their mother. The mother was heart-broken with them. The two youths, looking at their mother with hardened faces, replied to the judge that if they had stolen two dollars, it was because their mother owed them $1.25, and, "anyway, she had no business to throw us out."

The mother, with tears in her voice, told the judge that her husband was an invalid, and that she could not make the two young "roughnecks" listen to reason. They walked into the house at two o'clock in the morning and abused their younger sister, who is only four years of age. When the little tot tried to get her older brothers they pushed her roughly away.

And, moreover, the mother said, the two dollars was not the first money taken. They had stolen from their sick father as much as $15, $10 and $5 at a time. She had found jobs for them, but they had lost them all, and the younger one had spent three years in the reformatory. She had forgiven them every time on the promise that they would not do it again, but now they would not hold their promises any more.

The judge after remanding them for a few days, gave them a severe lecture on their conduct and sent them to jail.

"There are too many robberies and holdups with violence and these must cease," said Chief Justice Decarie in sentencing a man found guilty of robbery with violence. "You will spend two years in the penitentiary and receive twenty lashes with the cat of nine tails." The prisoner was a young man of 23 years, who tried to steal a woman's purse after dragging her some distance, throwing her on her head and kicking her in the side. In spite of the treatment she still clung to her purse, which contained seven dollars. Two citizens grabbed the would-be robber, two policemen arrested him, and Judge Decarie gave him a good dose of the law which will keep him quiet for a time.

DEATHS AND ACCIDENTS FROM MANY SOURCES.

"Have I not seen the Hand of Death, As rapidly as I have told, Take from the powerful man the breath— Lay low the youthful and the bold, As tho' they were but weak and old? Have I not seen them round me fall? And yet am I surviving all?"

Danger is everywhere on the land as well as on the water. While the danger has increased fully seventy-five per cent. on land, owing to the rapid transit of street cars, autos, auto trucks, wagons, motor cycles and other vehicles, especially on busy streets, the danger on water has also increased twenty per cent. in recent years all over Canada. Montreal being the largest and most populous city in the Dominion, its death rate accidents on land and water each year stands first, the number of deaths being appalling and forms a very sad chapter in the annals of the city.

The holidays had scarcely begun when two schoolboys met death in a similar manner, by hanging on auto trucks, and losing their hold were thrown under the rear wheels and killed almost immediately. The first took place near Cote St. Paul, when a 12-year-old boy returning from school was killed. The second a 7-year-old boy who was warned time and again by his teacher to keep away from such danger as running after rigs on the street, but disobedience brought its punishment. At the inquest at the Morgue the evidence showed that the boy had been told by the driver, Edouard Duhamel, to leave the truck, but that he had remained seated on the running board at the rear without As the truck was moving westward at a moderate speed, the boy wanted to get off, but he miscalculated his move, fell and the rear wheel passed over the body. The Coroner considered that in the circumstances, the chauffeur could not be held responsible for the boy's death.

A canoe containing four persons was upset at Lachine, and one of the occupants drowned. Owing to the quick action of a man, who rowed from the shore, the other three were saved. The victim of the accident was a strong swimmer, but sank immediately. Two more were drowned Dominion Day, a man and a boy. Accidental death was the verdict returned by Coroner McMahon in the case of Brother Barthelemy, a teacher at Mount St. Louis College, who was drowned while bathing in the Jesus River, near Ste. Rose. The evidence showed that the victim was bathing with five other Brothers of the Christian Schools opposite Langlois Island, situated at the western extremity of the parish of Ste. Rose.

Although a good swimmer, he was suddenly seen to sink when about 15 feet from shore, and despite aid from a comrade, was soon lost from sight. Previously, he had been going through a series of races with his companions and the theory was advanced that, being exhausted by his efforts, he suffered a sudden and fatal seizure of heart disease. The body was recovered by Brother Albert a short distance from the scene of the drowning.

Brother Barthelemy, who was born in Louisville, Que., 27 years ago, had been at the Mount St. Louis College, on Sherbrooke street east, for the past two years and was teaching the third class in the Intermediate course. In the past 3 years the Christian Brothers have lost four of their numbers by drowning.

An old man of 82 years was killed by a street car in front of Bonaventure Depot. Another schoolboy had both his legs broken by being run over by a motor cycle. A captain's son was drowned off a barge. Rev. Bro. William, a noted educationalist of the Christian Brothers, died suddenly at Three Rivers. After dinner he was walking in the Academy grounds, when he was seized with an attack of acute indigestion and died a few minutes afterwards. Brother William was a well known figure in this city, as he was Director of St. Ann's School for four years, and a member of the Order for over 45 years.

A shoemaker was found dead in bed in the rear of his shop by the police from the Ontario Street Police station. The officers broke in the door and found the body. The man had been dead four days.

A boy of ten fell in the Lachine Canal and was drowned. He was missing from his home for several days. A Park Avenue car killed an old man of 75 years, as he was attempting to cross the street. Another man was found dead in the rear of a shed. And so the accidental wheel revolves rapidly in Montreal.

Hugh Doherty, president of the contracting company that bears his name, and vice-president of the Canada and Gulf Terminal Railway, died at the General Hospital after an illness of two weeks.

Suffering from pleurisy, Mr. Doherty was brought to his home, 702 Sherbrooke street west, and underwent an operation at the hospital last Tuesday, from which he failed to recover. He was born in Montreal fifty-nine years ago, and entered the contracting field in 1884 in constructing the main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway along the north shore of Lake Superior.

Railway construction has made up the greater part of Mr. Doherty's life's work, the Sault Ste. Marie canal, the New Hampshire Railway, the Quebec Central Railroad, the Ontario Government line and the transcontinental railway being among the great contracts on which he has worked.

The funeral took place to St. Anthony's Church, and was largely attended. Interment took place at Cote des Neiges Cemetery.

MEN WHO MATTER.

"Youth sell yourself, but not for gold, Or treasures which your hands can hold. The highest price for which man spends His days of life, is love of friends. Go forth into the markets here And carry kindly words of cheer. Be gentle, honest, staunch and true, And men shall give their love to you."

If the above lines were only put in practice many of the troubles and difficulties found not only in big cities, but the world over, could be to a great extent remedied. But, alas! there's too much selfishness, too much keeping aloof when co-operation in many good causes are needed, too much of the grasping spirit of the mighty dollar with the favorite expression, "How much is in it?" especially persons have to secure a position even for the deserving. This does not only apply to politics, but to other walks in life. If we have so much prostitution, bootlegging, narcotics and dishonesty, here in Montreal it is because "the filthy lucre" of money in the shape of bribes, allows those evils to grow and flourish. When a man here lately wanted to open a certain line of business, he was told he could get it if he "put up," so much to pay the man who could obtain it for him. He offered to give a check for the amount, some $250, but was told to get the cold cash which he did. The money was paid not to a poor man, but to a man who was blessed with a good amount of the world's goods. Money talks and money walks also, and is justly styled, "the root of all evils."

Reading over an item in a journal, headed "Men Who Matter," it would be well for persons, especially the young men, to shape his career from the following:—

- Men who cannot be bought.
- Men whose word is their bond.
- Men who put character above wealth.
- Men who will not lose their individuality in a crowd.
- Men who will not think anything profitable that is dishonest.
- Men who will be honest in small things as well as in great things.
- Men who will make no compromise with questionable things.
- Men whose ambitions are not confined to their own selfish desires.
- Men who are willing to sacrifice private interests for the public good.
- Men who are not afraid to take chances; men who are not afraid of failure.
- Men of courage, who are not cowards in any part of their nature.
- Men who will not have one brand of honesty for business purposes and another for private life.

ENJOYMENT AT THE SUMMER CAMPS.

"It's up in the cool mountains, Romping around all the day; Enjoying life to the fullest, At the summer camps they say."

Hundreds of boys from ten to sixteen years old were extremely glad and happy when July 2nd arrived, for it brought delight to their young hearts, the thought of being in camp. Camp life has a wonderful fascination for them. Free from the hustle and bustle, together with the many dangers in the city, they romp around the green fields, indulge in swimming, boating, playing all kinds of games, and enjoying themselves to their heart's delight. And talk about your appetites! The invigorating mountain air seems to give them a desire to eat at least six times a day. As I had charge of such camps on more than one occasion I can speak from experience. They seem to be always hungry, especially when they are not fed properly at the regular meals. The cry of not being properly fed seems to be the missing link at a great number of the camps. When boys pay $7 a week for camp, its something more for supper than two pieces of bread and jam with a cup of tea they expect. This shows poor management and keeps a large number of other boys, when the stories travel among boys about the niggardly way of feeding them, away from camp life. There are no less than nine or ten camps in the Laurentian Mountains, and I'm greatly mistaken, if you don't hear complaints from them all, either about the quality or the quantity of food given them. Such complaints make the camps decidedly unpopular, and while some of them have about 200 boys or girls for the season, with better management, the number could be easily doubled. Camps Tamara-conta. Y.M.C.A. Alverna, Killarney and others are situated at different points in the Laurentines with fine lakes around. Camp Tamaraconta, (Scout camp) is fully equipped with canoes, row-boats, and dinghies. No boy is permitted to use a boat unless he has passed the camp swimming test, and drastic is the punishment meted out to the one who breaks this regulation! He leaves camp by the next train. As a result of this rule, no drowning fatality has yet occurred in the history of the camp.

THE LAZY INDIVIDUAL FOUND EVERYWHERE.

"Shame on the man with his mind so craven, Of means he seeks to employ; By shirking his duty to earn a living For his manhood he's seeking to destroy."

Going through certain streets of the city and passing the parks, one cannot fail to notice the large number of lazy, good-for-nothing individuals loafing around. The different employment agencies have large demands for labor of all kinds, the many new buildings being erected, the activities at the waterfront, where so many ships are loading and unloading the different street repairs, and lots of other avenues of labor, but still, "the loafer" shirks them all. He prefers to hang around the saloons begging a drink from some one, or to beg for a few cents from passing individuals, thus throwing shame, honor, honesty and character to the winds. Sloth seems to be his guiding star. And what makes their case worse than all is, that many of them are fathers of families. A local paper says:—A Pottstown, Pa., undertaker has kept a body in his establishment for 12 years. Reports say the corpse is in an excellent state of preservation. That's nothing. There are people walking about the streets of Montreal who have been "dead to the world" for a long time.

THE CALL OF SPRING.

When spring is overhead again With tulips flashing red again, When sunbeams come a-dancing through The window panes once more, When birds begin to sing again And every living thing again Begins to tell the patient world That winter's reign is o'er, Then like the sap which floods the tree The joy of life awakes in me.

When crocuses come peeping out And tendrils green are creeping out, When trees that have been gaunt and bare Put on their garments new, Like plant and vine and solemn tree I feel a thrill of ecstasy, And from the dead leaves of the past I try to struggle, too: From all the woes of hurt and pain I bring my faith to bloom again.

When all the grass grows green again And life seems fresh and clean again When fields that have been desolate Are shining in the sun, Across the years of my belief, Made bleak and desolate by grief, I see the sparkling brooks of hope, And faith begins to run; And something deep inside of me Whispers of man's divinity.

Home Hints.

Change the water in the flower bowl daily. At night place the bowl in an empty pail and cover with a damp cloth.

Mix a little ammonia with the bees-wax and turpentine used for floor-polishing. The wax will then dissolve quickly.

Always pour boiling water over currants and raisins before adding them to cakes or puddings, this makes them go farther.

A piece of sponge dipped in warm water should be used for cleaning valuable china. No soda should be added if there is gilt ornamentation.

Plain and painted picture-frames should be washed with warm water and soap. When dry rub linseed oil over them and polish with a soft rag.

Blacklead brushes should be washed occasionally in warm, soapy water, to which soda has been added. Swill them around, renewing the water as it becomes dirty.

Half the usual quantity of sugar used in preparing rhubarb will be sufficient if a pinch of bicarbonate is added to the fruit a short time before serving.

When light-colored suede shoes become dirty, clean them with turpentine. Put the shoes on trees, and rub with a clean rag. Afterwards clean in the usual way.

Wet sand often proves a good substitute for water in flower vases. It has an additional advantage of making the vase more stable and less liable to topple over.

In addition to washing metal skewers and cleaning with bathbrick or other polishing material, they should be put in boiling water, or have boiling water poured over them.

Towels with coloured stripes should not be washed until they have first been soaked overnight in salt and cold water. Wash in hot, soapy water mixed with a cupful of vinegar.

Scorched flannel can be restored to its original state by rubbing the stain with tendon and leaving the pulp on it; place in the sun for a couple of hours, and wash in the usual way.

Our Civil Service and Promotion.

The announcement was made in the House of Assembly on Monday that upon the passing of the Amendment to the Audit Act, the Hon. Alex W. Mews was to be appointed Deputy Auditor General.

Our Civil Service has been time and again subject to criticism for one reason or another, rightly or wrongly. It cannot, however, be too strongly emphasized that the greatest incentive to efficiency is encouragement. The best kind of encouragement is promotion, and until this practice in the Civil Service is adopted as a hard and fast principle, so long will efficiency be delayed.

As a case in point the Auditor General's Department may be mentioned. Here we have Mr. W. L. Donnelly occupying the position of Assistant Auditor General. He has given excellent service for years, and his earlier training in the Union Bank prepared him for that particular kind of work. It is but natural to conclude that when the work of the Department necessitated the appointment of a Deputy, that he would be promoted to that position.

Let it be clearly understood that in offering this criticism of the suggested appointment of the Hon. Mr. Mews, that we are not questioning his qualification for the position or for any similar position, but we do take issue against all such appointments that deprive a capable and efficient Civil Servant of his just reward.

Vandalism.

In our news columns of yesterday mention was made of the reprehensible conduct of some individual or individuals who deliberately destroyed flowers and plants placed by loving hands on a grave in the General Protestant Cemetery.

We should hesitate to call attention to such an incident editorially were it an unusual occurrence. Unfortunately it is not. Private individuals who give their time and energy to the beautifying of their property, thereby doing a public service by improving the appearance of the city generally, have complained again and again of similar acts of vandalism.

This is not a matter that can be prevented by greater vigilance on the part of the police. They are already doing all that is humanely possible. Another remedy has to be found, and the remedy is perhaps in a great measure in the hands of the press and of the schools, and of the pulpit.

Recently Mrs. William Brown Melorey conducted through the pages of the Delineator a campaign for Better Homes in America with remarkable results. A similar campaign to stimulate interest in matters pertaining to the beautifying of our city, and a greater respect for public well as private property, should be conducted.

could not but have beneficial results.

The hooligan is generally supposed to be the irrepressible boy. Unfortunately that is not the case. Property has been destroyed in the vicinity of Long Pond, vacant houses in the city have been pillaged, and most of these outrages have been the work of persons who at least were old enough to know better. Dr. Blackall recently in addressing one of the city schools drew a striking contrast between the conditions which exist in St. John's and those which obtain in towns of much less importance in Canada. There the citizens, old and young alike, take a pride in making and keeping their streets attractive. Trees and flowers are grown in front of the houses without even a rail to protect them from the public. The public in fact are their protectors, and why should it be not so with us?

Proceeds of Sale Stolen.

Yesterday morning a daring burglary was committed at the residence of a man named Hollihan of Carew Street. Hollihan, who is a widower with five small children, left here several months ago for Montreal, leaving his children in care of a housekeeper. Last week he sent word to the woman to sell off the household goods and proceed to him with the children. Accordingly the goods were sold and the proceeds placed in a trunk. Yesterday the woman discovered that the money had been stolen. The police were informed and it is probable an arrest will be made to-day.

Installation of W. Bro. John Robert Bennett.

The unique ceremony which took place in the Methodist College Hall last night will never be forgotten by those who were privileged to attend, not alone because it was conducted by the distinguished visitors from the Mother Lodge, but also because of the solemnity of the occasion and because the large gathering was representative of English, Scottish, Canadian Lodges as well as every Masonic Lodge in Nfld.

Long before the ceremony began, the spacious hall which had been tastefully decorated with emblems of the craft was filled to its utmost capacity. Sharp upon the hour arranged, the M. W. Pro Grand Master, the Rt. Hon. Lord Amptihill, G.C.S.I., G.C.I.E., accompanied by W. Wor. Bro. Sir John Ferguson, K.B.E., Wor. Bro. A. E. Carlyle, P.A.G.D.G. of C., Wor. Bro. Lieut. Col. H. Hamilton Wedderburn, O.B.E., P.D.G.D. of C., was received by the officers of the District Grand Lodge and a Guard of Honor, consisting of officers and men of the Royal Nfld. Regiment, under the command of Lt.-Col. W. F. Rendell, O.B.E. The Guard of Honour inspected, the Right Hon. Lord Amptihill addressed them and highly complimented the Regiment of which they had formed a part on the excellent service which it had rendered in cause of the Empire.

The method of procedure having been clearly explained to the Brethren, amid a burst of acclamation such as has seldom been heard within the walls of a Lodge, the distinguished visitors entered. In his opening address the M. W. Pro Grand Master, expressed his appreciation of the reception which had been given him and those associated with him in the ceremony. He referred in fitting terms to the irreplaceable loss which the Lodge had sustained in the passing of the late District Grand Master, and highly complimented W. Bro. J. R. Bennett upon his election for the vacant office. He explained that the unusual procedure of the Grand Lodge of England in sending their officers to the outlying parts of the Empire to officiate at an installation was in a measure to emphasize the position which Nfld. hold as the oldest colony, and also to pay a tribute to the part she had played in the Great War. The installation conducted, the Pro Grand Master delivered a message from the Grand Lodge of England to the District Grand Lodge of Nfld., and also one from the Grand Master, His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught which reads as follows:—

"I ask you to give my fraternal greetings and hearty good wishes to all Brethren under my jurisdiction whom you may meet in Canada and Newfoundland, and also to all Brethren of Canadian Grand Lodges who receive you. I know many of them when I was in Canada and I retain a very pleasant memory of their acquaintance. Tell them all that I hope they are getting on as well as we are in England."

MOTOR CAR COLLIDES WITH POLE

A serious motor accident was narrowly averted at the corner of Parkworth and Ordnance Streets about 4.30 yesterday afternoon, when a motor car driven by Mr. Lionel Munn, going east, had a miraculous escape from crashing into a car coming in the opposite direction and driven by Dr. Donahue, of Torbay. At the time a spirited horse, recently imported, was being led by two young men named Summers, and took fright at a street car which was coming down Ordnance Street. In the melee the two motor cars which were approaching each other made an endeavor to avoid the beast, with the result that Dr. Donahue carried on. Fearing a collision was inevitable with Munn's car the doctor turned his machine into the sidewalk, and in doing so collided with a telephone pole. The impact was so great that the pole was broken off at the base. The bonnet of the car was badly smashed and inflicted several cuts on another occupant of the car, young Jimmy Donovan, whose face was badly cut. Had it not been for the promptitude of Mr. Walter Chate, a passenger in the car, the little fellow might have received more serious injury, because just as the car struck the pole Mr. Chate pulled him into the rear seat. Munn's car escaped uninjured.

Last Chance to See Great Film.

"TURN TO THE RIGHT" AT THE NICKEL TO-DAY.

One of the greatest screen achievements ever seen in St. John's is "Turn to the Right," which finishes its engagement at the Nickel with to-night's performance. For real comedy, genuine pathos, and all round entertainment this picture is hard to beat.

Dame Nature always plays a role in Motion Pictures, but she is not always reliable, as Rex Ingram found during the filming of "Turn to the Right." The story centres about peach jam and the peach orchard. On top of the difficulty of locating a peach orchard in California, where oranges and lemons seem to have monopolized the fields, Ingram was confronted with the problem of photographing the trees both in blossom and bearing the matured fruit. It became a question of patience and waiting. Nature refused to hurry. For two months after the rest of the picture had been completed, the Company was forced to wait upon the ripening of the fruit for the harvest scenes. This explains the accuracy of the making of this production. To-night is the last chance to see a production that is really worth while.

The Nickel announces the showing of Ernest Shipman's great Ralph Connor Story "Cameron of the Royal Mounted," featuring Gaston Glass "The Ideal Leading Man." Shipman never makes a cheap story, so you can depend on another worth while attraction in this production. Watch the Telegram for further particulars.

And so on down the line. Day by day in every way, the cost is becoming greater and greater.

Mrs. F. Gordon Bradley will be "At Home" at 34 Victoria St., on Thursday and Friday next, the 12th and 13th inst., from 3 to 5.30 p.m.—July 11st

In Passing.

It is with a source of gratification we applaud the action of the Municipal Council in once again permitting motor cars the right to enter Bowring Park.

At a recent meeting one of the members urged that motorists should not be permitted to drive their machines inside the gates of the Park, a ruling which was, from every aspect one might view it, ludicrous.

The Telegram lost no time in pointing out the unfairness of such a regulation which not only affected the wealthy car owners but the large number of taxi drivers and thousands of others who visit the resort periodically in motor cars every season and who would thus be compelled to stop at the entrance or go elsewhere.

As already stated the Council through the Telegram was made acquainted with "Public Opinion," with the result the order was countermanded and the keeper was instructed to continue conditions in this respect as heretofore.

The members of the Legislative both branches met yesterday at 12.30 p.m. when the address in reply to the speech from the throne was received by His Excellency the Governor.

In the Lower House the business on the order paper was deferred and the adjournment until 3.15 p.m. Thursday was moved.

The attention of the authorities is drawn to the unseasonable conduct of a number of individuals who are in the habit of prowling around the parks and other popular picnic resorts making their presence very obnoxious to the children and pleasure seekers.

Complaints from many quarters are general. Last summer many people were deprived from spending evenings at Long Pond, Ross's Valley, and other bathing places by the unwarranted interference of these able bodied prowlers who seem to take a special delight in causing unwarranted annoyance particularly to women and children.

The occasional visit of a plain dressed police officer might have the desired effect in ridding the places mentioned of these undesirable, and a lesson that could be taught them by a severe sentence in the Magistrate's Court would no doubt have its beneficial results.

"A man can board himself for 50c. per day at Bishop's Falls" is the assertion of Mr. Goodyear, the well-known Government Contractor, who, in giving evidence at the Magistrate's Court yesterday, made it quite plain to the court and officials that contrary to the opinion of the public, the cost of living has been considerably reduced during the past five or six months.

The proceedings at the Court were due to warrants being issued against a number of men who were charged with obtaining passages on the train without tickets or money to pay for same. Mr. C. E. Hunt, who acted for the defendants, was also surprised with the statement of Mr. Goodyear, particularly when the latter, in recording some of the prevailing prices for foodstuffs, stated that Fresh Bread was sold for 15 and 20c. per loaf; Salt Fish, 10 to 12c. per lb., and Sugar, 12 to 13c. per lb.

These prices are somewhat higher than they are in the city, and few, if any, will contend it easy to make any kind of a show on $3.50 per week.

A perusal of the Public Accounts as shown elsewhere, should be food for thought to an already overtaxed people, whose money is used in a serious attempt to go over the top on an expenditure rampage.

To-day's list is only a continuation of the "Price" exacted for support and influence.

It is a fact that Dr. Modestell's 5,000 facts cost the Government nearly one dollar each. The genial Doctor's next publication should go 5000 and insert this expenditure.

Mr. Cramm, who also published a book, was awarded $1,750.00 of the Colony's finances.

Mr. Hibbs, who greatly appreciates the Chairman of Committee in the Assembly, is down for $2,642.00.

Hon. Dr. Campbell, who has a strong tendency for Government money, was paid $3,820.00 for his professional services.

And so on down the line. Day by day in every way, the cost is becoming greater and greater.

According to a report furnished the Board of Trade by the sub-Collector at Carboned only 45 qtrs. of fish had been landed between Carbonear and Crocker's Cove up to July 7th. Caplin bait is plentiful in the district.

BURGOE AND LA POILE. The West Coast fishery in the district of Burgoe and La Poile from Connare to Red Island shows slight improvement. Up to the end of June 1600 qtrs. had been landed. There are 8 traps in the water and about 60 boats are operating. Trawls and codnets are doing better than the traps.

PORTUNE BAY. In Fortune Bay from Belleoram to Rencontre up to June 30th, 1750 qtrs. codfish had been landed. The prospects, according to the report of sub-Collector Curnew, are not very encouraging.

Was it the "Herbert Warren"?

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir—Have our local authorities made any effort to ascertain at Halifax whether the derelict destroyed by the Canadian patrol off the Newfoundland coast last week and which though indistinguishable they thought was named the "H. W. Lunnar," could have been the "Herbert Warren" now so long overdue that she has been given up as lost? The fact that a body was taken off last night furnish a clue if a description of the clothing of the unfortunate victim could be ascertained. Relations of the crew of the "Warren" could then be relieved from the uncertainty of the vessel's loss.

Yours truly, NAUTILUS.

Pictou Miners Out--Death of Duke of York's Cousin--Lord Byng's Faith in Canadian Unity--The Vauhan Refloated.

TROOPS OCCUPY MINES.
SYDNEY, N.S., July 10. About five hundred troops and Provincial police occupied No. 2 mine and Sterling at Glace Bay this morning. There were no disorders. The infantry went from Sydney in flat cars of the Sydney and Louisbourg Railway, and the mounted troops and provincial troops went out by road. The first troops to leave the city were the cavalry, the Royal Canadian Rifles. These were followed by the infantry. Later nine flat cars left as steel plant for number two. The steel company announced this morning that an additional one hundred and twenty-one men had been employed at the steel plant. Colonel Eric McDonald, Commissioner of Provincial Police, following his return to Sydney after the occupation of the two Glace Bay centres, made the following statement: "The Provincial Police are stationed at Glace Bay to prevent pickets from interfering with the men going on the plant. Whether they are officials, workers or strikers, every man has a right to go anywhere he pleases so long as he is not trespassing, and any pickets attempting to interfere will be arrested. The same applies to the movement of coal trains. Barb wire was being struck today around the number two colliery area."

PRESENT ADDRESS OF WELCOME AND PURSE OF GOLD TO REV. DR. GREENE, P.P.

On last Sunday afternoon, every resident of the settlement of Witless Bay assembled in the school house for the purpose of greeting the new Parish Priest, Rev. Dr. Greene. Mr. Louis Mallowney, the Chairman, presided. The proceedings opened with a very appropriate concert given by the children under the direction of the Nuns of the Parish. The concert was thoroughly enjoyed and each item on the well prepared program attracted the plaudits of all present. Following the concert, Mr. Louis Mallowney, a well known business man of the settlement, on behalf of the residents of Witless Bay, greeted Rev. Dr. Greene and echoed the sentiments of all in reading the following ADDRESS

To Rev. Dr. J. J. Greene, P.P., from the Parishioners of Witless Bay. On behalf of the people of the Parish of Witless Bay, we desire to welcome you to our midst and to express our pleasure at your appointment by His Grace the Archbishop to this, one of the oldest and most historic parishes in the Island.

Witless Bay Parish, we are proud to relate, has had a long and distinguished record of devotion to the Church, and we can pledge to you the same co-operation and obedience that have existed for upwards of one hundred years between the people and your predecessors. We appreciate the honor conferred on us by His Grace the Archbishop in restoring to us a resident Parish Priest, and can assure you as his representative that Witless Bay Parish will not be untrue to the traditions of the past in its obedience, reverence and honor to the head of the Church in Newfoundland.

We are fully conscious of the honor conferred on us by your appointment, and your scholarly attainments have won for you high scholastic honors during the course of your study at the Eternal City, while your work among the poor of St. John's and particularly in connection with your Spiritual Directorship of the Star of the Sea Society, and your establishment of Night Schools in conjunction with the St. Vincent de Paul Society, have, not alone endeared you to the Catholics of the metropolis, but earned for you the respect and esteem of those who are not of our religion. As the successor of the Rev. Dean Roche and of our former respected and energetic Parish Priest, the Rev. Father O'Brien, P.P., we feel assured that the Church in our midst will flourish both spiritually and temporally, and that the record of the illustrious priests who have preceded you will be faithfully exemplified and lived up to by their successor.

In conclusion, we desire to reiterate the sentiments which we have already extended to you both personally and as the representative of the Church in our midst, and to promise you the same co-operation and loyalty which the people of this historic parish have ever extended to the Sogarth Aroon since the date of its inception. We trust and pray that you may long be spared to us, and that your stay may be fruitful in all that tends to the greater glory and advancement of Our Holy Mother the Church.

We desire you to accept this address and the accompanying purse as a small token of our esteem and good wishes. Dated at Witless Bay, this eighth day of July, 1923. Signed on behalf of the people of the Parish of Witless Bay: Louis Mallowney, Chairman; Christopher Walsh, Secretary; John T. Mallowney, Treasurer; William Keely, John Dinn, Michael F. Carew, Patrick Dinn, Lawrence Tobin, Michael Butler, Thomas Mallowney, Anthony Howlett, Wilfred Mallowney, James Greene.

CHILDREN'S ADDRESS.
The children of the Convent School also availed of the occasion to present the popular priest with an address and present as a token of their hearty welcome. Their address reads as follows: Rev. and Dear Father, Rev. and Dear Mother, the little ones of your flock

JR. CADETS DEFEAT JR. B.L.S.
A large number of fans saw the Irish kids go down to defeat by the Cadet Tr. last evening by a score of 2 to 1 after a closely contested game. The Cadets secured their goals in the first half, and only the clever goalkeeping of Collins saved a larger score. On crossing over the Irish had the wind in their favor and as the result of continued pressure they found the net. Despite their best endeavors, however, the Cadets cleared all the remaining dangerous attacks and no further scoring resulted. We understand that it is not unlikely that a protest will be entered through the Cadets playing Paddy Hayes who, it is claimed, is over the age limit.

REV. DR. GREENE REPLIES.
Rev. Dr. Greene in a very appropriate address replied thanking all for the whole-hearted reception he had received. The warm enthusiasm of the people touched him deeply. He expressed his pleasure at being appointed to the ancient and historic Parish of Witless Bay, noted for its staunch Catholic traditions and loyalty to Holy Church.

The assurance he had received of the continued loyalty, unity and co-operation of the people was a source of encouragement and satisfaction to him. He promised on his part to do all in his power for the good people of Witless Bay, and that he would strive to be a father and a friend to each and all. He praised the talent and ability of the Convent children, shown by their most enjoyable performance; he thanked them also for their affectionate address, and asked them for their prayers for his success. To Mr. Mallowney and his energetic Committee the success of the presentation is responsible, and the action of the people in extending such a right royal welcome to their future pastor is commendable. Rev. Dr. Greene's many friends in the city will be pleased to learn of the cordial reception tendered to him at the beginning of his priestly duties in Witless Bay and wish him continued success in his mission.

REGATTA SWEEP.
To defray the expenses of running their boat house, the C. L. B. Boat Club have inaugurated a sweep. The highest tickets run only a little over 11 seconds, so that everyone has a good chance for his money. There is a prize of $100 for each race. With this and another scheme which will be finalized later the Boat Club hopes to realize enough to build a new boat to replace the "Petra".

SKIRVING AGREEABLE TO HANDICAP.
It is characteristic of Harvey Skirving to accept the suggestion made in this column that he be handicapped 60 yards against the field in the mile race this afternoon at the G. W. V. A. Sports. This will not only spur the little speedy mile champion to greater efforts but will give greater encouragement to others, particularly the beginners, to pit their stamina against his. Here's hoping Harry hangs up a new record this afternoon.

G. W. V. A. SPORTS.
Elaborate preparations have been made by the Veterans to eclipse all their former successful efforts, and Chairman Long and Secretary MacLeod have left nothing undone in this respect. The captain of the field will be Mr. Higgins, whose presence alone precludes the possibility of the usual length and tedious waits between events. The official A. A. A. timekeeper, Mr. Claude Hall, with Mr. A. McNamara, will clock the competitors. His Excellency the Governor and party and also Baron Amphilith will be present at the sports this afternoon. We are asked to state that there will be no postponement unless a downpour should occur between 2.30 and 3 o'clock.

JR. LEAGUE PROTEST SUSTAINED.
Wesley-Cadet game which was played last week and won by the former 1 to 0 was protested by the Cadets owing to Wesley playing Albert Rooney, who had appeared on the field last year with the Guards. The Junior League rules do not permit of anyone who has played senior football participating in their League series. At Saturday evening's meeting the Cadet protest was upheld, and under the constitution the game was awarded to them, but they very sport-ly declined to take it, and as a result the game will now be re-played at the end of the season.

SUZANNE AGAIN CHAMPION.
WIMBLEDON, July 6.—Suzanne Lenglen still is supreme among all women tennis players of the world. With ease and certainty the French star defeated Miss Kathleen McKane, the best of Britain's tennis playing women, recently, by the score of 6-2; 6-2; and so won for the fifth successive season the title of world's champion. It was the fifth meeting between this pair of stars and, with one exception, it was the worst beating Suzanne had administered to the lively British girl.

Miss Lenglen had the battle in hand from start to finish. Both players started carefully, seemingly with the intention of finding out what the tactics of the other would be and the first game went to deuce three times. Suzanne soon found out that Miss McKane preferred the safer course of staying in the back court and trusting to deep returns. So the French girl, who can play well in any part of the court, adjusted herself to this style of battle, and with her greater accuracy and swiftness in stroking had no difficulty in winning.

ALREADY DONE.
With reference to the item in this morning's "News" with regard to the motor boat stationed at the bottom of the Lake following up practice boats. When called to his attention last night Capt. Ed. English immediately issued instructions to the boatmen that this be done. A new crew is in charge of the boat this year and apparently they were not entirely acquainted with the nature of their duties or what they were supposed to do.

HAVE A HEART!
The football reporter of the "Mail" was rather severe in his criticism of a young player of the C.L.B.C. team on Monday night. Had he but made allowance for his youth and inexperience he would perhaps have treated him more gently.

FORMAL OPENING OF TENNIS COURTS.
The formal opening of the Old Collegian Tennis Club for the season, took place at the Athletic grounds last evening. At 6.30, a number of members of the Tennis Club enjoyed a delicious buffet tea which was served in the house which is doing temporary duty as a dressing room. At 7 o'clock the gathering repaired to the tennis court where Mr. C. P. Ayre served the first ball, and after announcing the presentation of a silver cup by Mr. H. J. Wyatt for competition in tennis tournaments, referring to the great interest taken in tennis by the members, and hinting at the possibility of a professional coach coming here during the season, formally declared the grounds open. Mr. H. J. Wyatt thanked Mr. Ayre on behalf of the College and the Club for making the courts a possibility, and assured him of their appreciation. A tennis tournament was then played by drawn teams consisting of Mr. G. Peters and Miss S. Moore vs. Mr. W. Pippy and Miss M. Fenwick. After closely contested games victory went to Mr. Peters and Miss Moore by 8 games to 6. The grounds are now in excellent condition and contain a splendid athletic field, turf and cinder tracks, four excellent gravel tennis courts, a club-house and a dressing house. For the junior college pupils swings see-saws and a sand pile are in evidence. Plans are now completed for the erection of a large pavilion which will be a most valuable addition to the grounds and a credit to the College and a lasting monument to the donors. The officers of the Tennis Club are as follows:

INTER-TOWN CRICKET LIKELY.
Mr. Harold Hayward has been in communication with Ronald Phillip, the captain of the Grand Falls' team, relative to a St. John's team going out there the last week of the present month to do battle for the Hayward trophy. A meeting of enthusiasts was held last week and every hope is held out that the trip will materialize. A return series will be played at St. John's. Lovers of the grand old game (and they are legion) will be pleased to know this, and we express the hope that soon we shall see the wielders of the willow in action again.

FIRPO VS. WILLARD.
To-morrow afternoon at the new huge New York Stadium Luigi Firpo, the Cuban, will do battle with Jess Willard, one-time champion of the world—the man who defeated Jack Johnson and subsequently lost the title to Jack Dempsey, the present holder, on what was regarded as a lucky punch. The fight will be 15 rounds and the winner will face Dempsey in the Fall. The medical commission which examined Willard last week declare him to be the most physically perfect man in the world.

"GUARD" HANDED OVER.
Despite the threatening weather there was a large attendance at the Lakeside last evening to witness the formal handing over by the Cadet Boat Club of the racer "Guard" to the C.L.B. President Collins in a brief speech made the presentation to President Ern Chafe who suitably responded. As the crew pulled off by Tommy Noseworthily stroked to take her across the pond to her new home the C.L.B. Band played the "Banks of Newfoundland" and "Should Auld Acquaintance Be Forgot." Aubrey Wight is assembling her amateur crew and will make a bold bid for first place.

The fifteen laborers summoned into court at the instance of Mr. H. J. Russell, Acting Manager of the Railway, concluded in the Magistrate's Court yesterday afternoon. Each of the accused were convicted of a breach of Section 3 of Chapter 30, that is, forcibly boarding a train without the sanction of the conductor in charge. The men not having previously bought their tickets before entering. A fine of $6.00 each was imposed.

Train Notes.
Tuesday's West bound express arrived at Halifax Falls on time. The incoming express with the Glencoe's mails and passengers left Port aux Basques at 9.45 a.m. The passenger list was not available up to press hour. The local Carbonar train was due to arrive on time.

Local Traps do Well.
Traps on the local grounds did fairly well yesterday and boats at the Battery came in loaded yesterday evening. There are some 12 or 15 small stationary schooners fishing out of this port, and so far they have done fairly well.

Send the kiddies to the picnic at Mount CasHEL grounds. Lots of fun assured.

Laying Underground Cables.
In order to take care of an ever increasing number of subscribers the Avalon Telephone Company are now placing a number of underground cables in the eastern portion of the city. Yesterday the company's workmen were engaged laying a steel armor cable near Rawlin's Cross. This cable, which contains 300 telephone wire sets, will connect with the man-hole at the foot of Prescott Street. Another steel armored cable containing 400 sets will be laid from Gower Street to Duckworth Street. Two lead covered lines, one containing 400 sets and the other 600 sets, are being laid from Cathedral and Prescott Streets to the main office. The steel armored cable is practically indestructible. Around the core of wires is first a lead covering, then a steel armor, which is in turn covered by a special material somewhat resembling marlin.

Comedy of the Patagonian Skull.

Anthropologists will not be surprised at the decision arrived at by the committee of experts which has submitted the "million-year-old human skull" discovered in Patagonia to a critical examination, writes the Scientific Correspondent of the London "Observer." The result of the inquiry is the definite declaration that the "skull" is only a "curiously shaped stone," entirely devoid of any scientific interest.

This alleged skull was found by a settler a few miles from Santa Cruz in 1916, and was submitted last February to a Dr. Wolf, a German geologist, who had no hesitation in describing as the skull of a human being contemporary with the tertiary age, and at least a millions years old. It was, he asserted, "exceptionally long in proportion to its width, had well-marked frontal eminences, and was most probably the skull of a female."

Had the German been correct in his deductions, Patagonia would have provided evidences of the existence of man 500,000 years earlier than the oldest human remains previously discovered in any part of the world. But though some of the papers printed long descriptions of this million-year-old skull, accompanied by imaginary pictures of what its owner was like, those qualified to form an opinion presented an open mind; for though Patagonia has deposits old enough to contain fossils of the most ancient human beings, none of the many discoveries reported from that part of the world have stood the test of expert examination. Those definitely human have proved to be of comparatively recent date, and in the case of a few of proved antiquity they have turned out not to be human.

Now that the Patagonian skull turns out to be a piece of stone, Pithecanthropus erectus, found in Java some forty years ago, the age of which has been estimated at 500,000 years, keeps its place as the oldest fossil remains yet discovered with any resemblance to man. But though Haeckel accepted the Java fossil as the long-sought missing link, the verdict of most anthropologists and naturalists is that the skull and thigh-bone—the only portions of Pithecanthropus erectus discovered—are those of an advanced species of ape.

So far the skull excavated nine years ago at Piltdown, Sussex, is probably the most ancient remains of definitely human origin yet unearthed. Its period has been placed as between 100,000 and 200,000 years ago, it is clearly human, and measurement shows that its brain capacity is nearly 70 per cent. that of the average living man and quite equal to that of the modern uncivilized savage. Next comes the Neanderthal man, whose bones were dug up near Düsseldorf in 1856, whose family roamed over Europe from 20,000 to 50,000 years ago, so advanced in civilization that the females fastened their clothes together with bone pins. But our earliest ancestor has yet to be found. Anthropologists expect to find him, not in America or Europe, but in Central Asia, where fossil remains of large-brained apes, probably his predecessors, have been discovered, and where an expedition of American experts is searching for him at the present time.

Where the King Can't Go

There is one place in the King's dominions from which the King is forever barred—the House of Commons.

The meanness of his subjects may, on complying with certain conditions, sit in the public gallery and listen to the debates. But the Sovereign, once he has ascended the throne, can do so no longer; although as Prince of Wales he can, and frequently does, come down to the House and accept a seat in the Distinguished Strangers' Gallery.

Queen Victoria, however, being little more than a girl when she ascended the throne, could only imagine what the interior of her own House of Commons looked like when in session, for during her long reign of sixty years she never once set foot inside it.

To appreciate the reason for this hard and fast rule we must go back in imagination some hundreds of years, when kings possessed far more power than they do at present.

In those days it is quite understandable that the presence of the Sovereign might exercise a certain restraint upon the members, preventing them from speaking their minds with the necessary freedom.

So jealous are the Commons of this right that it is against the rules for the King's name to be even mentioned in debate.

Once and only once, within historical times, has the reigning sovereign set foot within the British House of Commons, and then the act cost him both his crown and his life. This was when Charles I. forced his way into the Chamber and demanded the arrest of five members who had offended him, only to be informed by the Speaker that he was officially "unable to see" the persons whom the King pointed out.

Folly of Being Ill.

MAN OUGHT TO LIVE TO 140—KICKING OVER THE TRACES.

Dr. Leonard Williams, of Harley Street, London, speaking at the Aldwych Club recently on "Physiological Efficiency," said that if people got a disease it was for the most part their own fault, and they ought not to be pitied as victims, but condemned as fools. The man who talked about being a martyr to gout or rheumatism was talking arrant nonsense, and he might just as well talk about being a martyr to delirium tremens.

When a man arrived at maturity it was up to him to maintain the state of maturity as long as he could, instead of impairing his efficiency as quickly as possible by sending out S. O. S. calls to every microbe to come and take up residence in his body.

Man's average weight at 24 was 121, while at 50 it was 128. 4lb. That was absurd, as the real normal in the latter case would be less rather than more than the young man's weight.

A man should live 120 or 140 years. Without vitamins no one could live, and these were found in raw foods and were relatively absent from cooked foods. The cooking stove was certainly not the invention of a Higher Power. The question of physiological efficiency went back to the question of diet, and they should partake of meagre fare, fresh air and all kinds of raw foods, dairy produce and salads. If they must kick over the traces, then he warned them that they must attend to the repairing clauses of their lease.

SOME STARTLING FIGURES.

Can you stand up under having your pride hurt? If you can't, don't read this. It may have that effect.

Most people have an idea that America is the most progressive country in the world. We have a pleasant nation of ourselves as inaugurating most of the reforms for human advancement and improvement, while the slow old countries across the water follow in our footsteps many a year behind.

But when you get down to facts, figures, and cases, is this true? Let's look at a few figures.

Take matters relating to health, for instance.

The expectation of life means (in case you are not versed in such technical terms) the age to which one has a chance by the law of averages of living when one is born. One would expect our country to have the highest expectation of life. It does not. The highest is possessed by New Zealand. The birth expectation there for females is 61.8-10 years. Whereas the total life expectancy for either sex in the United States is 55 years. I don't happen to have the figures for males in New Zealand, but it would be slightly less than for females, that you know holding true everywhere. (You know the old answer to the statement that married men live longer than bachelors—they don't really live longer, it only seems so. Well, you can apply the same to these figures about males and females, if you like.)

Not the Healthiest Country.

To take the thing from a slightly different angle, the average death rate in the United States is 14 to the thousand; in New Zealand it is between nine and ten.

Surely with all our talk about care of babies we must lead the world in the prevention of infant mortality. We do not. The three countries which lead the world are New Zealand, Norway, and Australia.

Perhaps you had realized that the United States was more care about human life than it needed to be, but I doubt if you knew that we injure two or three times many employees annually in mines and railroads as are killed in the advanced countries of Europe.

Far From the Vanguard.

We think of America as the radical of all countries. Was it first to grant women the suffrage? Not by a good deal. Suffrage granted women either wholly or in part in New Zealand, Norway, Australia, Finland, Denmark, Sweden and Iceland long before the United States had it.

But surely in this land of the public school and the night school and public library we are the best-educated people in the world.

Well, here are a few figures on that score. We have the shortest school term, the shortest school day of any of civilized countries. And, in spite of our compulsory education laws, have 105 illiterates per thousand, against 53 in England, and in Sweden, Norway, one. Of course this is partly laid to our immigration, but our illiterates 28 per cent. are natives. Even if you do not blame the 72 per cent. of foreign-borne illiterates, we still stack up poorly against the Scandinavians.

Fewer at College.

As to college attendance, we have 20 students out of every 10,000 population in England has 55, France and Switzerland, 178.

Most of these were surprised figures to me when I came across them.

I thought they might be new to you. And I thought perhaps they might give you the feeling that they meant that we need to get rid of feeling that America will always be the most prosperous and the best country in the world to live in. We do our own part to make it so.

About "Blue" Water.

Even experienced "home launders" appear to find difficulty in securing exactly the right shade of "blue" water.

This should be the tint of fairly deep sky-blue when the water is lifted in the hand. Do not put too many garments in the blue water at one time, as each must be well turned in order that it may be evenly blued all over. Fresh blue must be added to the water if many garments are to be rinsed, as the material absorbs the blue.

Travel Feats by Bees and Butterflies.

By trapping bluebottles, colouring them with red powder, and then turning them loose, it has been discovered that a fly will travel six miles in one day.

A honey bee will travel eight miles from its hive in search of honey, but the wasp rarely flies more than a mile or two from its nest.

Butterflies are great travellers, for flights of them have been seen far out at sea. They travel with the breeze, and at times get caught in a strong wind and may be carried a hundred miles or more.

A flight of locusts will rise to a great height and cover forty and fifty miles in a day. But once the locust swarm comes to the ground, there it remains, devouring every green thing and never again using its wings.

Arms of Ants.

Moths fly long distances. It has been proved that a female moth caged will attract males from a copious two miles away.

The ordinary ant never travels more than a couple of hundred feet from its nest, but African driver ants migrate in great armies, marching for miles through the forest, and destroying all life in their path. If they pass a house nothing is left. Not only beetles and insects, but mice, rats, and snakes are devoured.

Of non-flying insects the gossamer spider holds the record as a traveller. Letting out a long light line which is caught by the wind, it rises to a great height, and is carried for many miles across country.

Age-Old Customs That Still Survive.

Old customs die hard, and in almost every part of the country one may find ceremonies which, linked to the days of long ago, have been handed down from generation to generation.

One of the most ancient of these survivals is the Court of Hustings at the Guildhall, which dates back to Anglo-Saxon and Scandinavian times, and which is the oldest court that still sits in England.

The date on the occasion of the sittings of the court is sprinkled with aromatic herbs, a ceremony which recalls the time when this was done to prevent infection from prisoners suffering from jail fever.

This custom is similar to one observed by Masters and Wardens of the various City Companies who, in official processions, carry sweet-smelling bouquets. This was done originally to ward off the smells from the streets!

Unwritten Laws in Parliament.

Many other ancient customs that still survive are mentioned by Dr. George C. Williamson in "Curious Survivals" (Herbert Jenkins).

What we call "spring-cleaning" is said to go back to the Passover. From that time there has been a custom whereby everything in a house should be cleaned in the early part of the year.

The custom was common among the Jews, especially those who settled in Holland, and gradually the whole of the Dutch nation became impregnated with this idea. From the Netherlands the custom spread to this country.

Farmers' Cry for Sunshine.

AND SO DO WE.

The effect of the unseasonable cold winds and sunless days on agriculture is being felt in Kent, where all plant-growth is laggard.

The critical month of May spoiled the outlook for many a fine breadth of wheat and oats, and both these cereals are now very patchy.

Where they have escaped the marring touch of the weather their promise is abundant, which shows how good a Kentish harvest there would have been under normal climatic conditions.

Long days of warm sunshine needed immediately to fulfil the promise of the hay harvest, which especially fine in the case of clovers and mixed seeds, a class hay of which there is little left in Kent and therefore all the more needed.

"A Joyous Pageant of the British Empire."

Objects of the Coming Great Exhibition at Wembley.

(By LT-GEN. SIR TRAVERS CLAR KE, K.C.B., K.C.M.G.)

The aim of the British Empire Exhibition is, in the first place, of course, to be entertaining; to be a really interesting, joyous pageant of the British Empire. It must be entertaining or it will fail in its purpose. A sermon in an empty church may be a good sermon, but it is largely a wasted sermon. We want to fill our great Exhibition day by day, in the hope that those who come in the first instance merely curious will come the next time interested, and finally come as Empire enthusiasts.

In a sentence, our aim is to be a popular illustrated supplement of the Imperial Economic Conference. At that Conference this Autumn the Statesmen of our Empire will assemble to discuss what are perhaps the most important problems that have ever faced an Imperial Conference. They will have to consider whether it is possible to develop our Empire on principles of economic unity; whether our races, and the races associated with us under our flag, can show in peace the same magnificent singleness of purpose that they displayed in war. The Economic Conference will necessarily hold its sessions in private, but I hope that as much information as is possible will be communicated to the Press and that the latter in its turn will keep the Nation informed as to the deliberations of the Conference and that there will be no unnecessary secrecy. Still there cannot be full publicity, and even after the public of the Empire have disposed all the reports of that Conference, there will still be a great task waiting to be done in the way of popular education as to the capacity for production of the Empire, and the weak and strong links in our Empire Economic chain. That task of popular education we hope to carry through at Wembley Park in 1924 with the British Empire Exhibition.

RESPONSE OF THE DOMINIONS.

It is very cheerful to note the manner in which the Dominions and the Colonies have responded to the invitation to this our Great Family Party and Great Fair of the Empire. They all seem to be "on their toes" in a spirit of friendly emulation to out-do one another. Every Dominion wants to show that it is an important pillar of the Empire, and the Colonies have the same spirit of friendly rivalry. The result of this spirit of emulation is that the demand for space threatens to become greater than we can supply, though I believe our task later to point out to applicants for space that there must be adequate room left for visitors, and that we cannot cover our hundreds of acres completely with pavilions and exhibits.

I am hoping that by the time the British Empire Exhibition has closed its gates we shall have conveyed its lessons to the millions of guests whom we expect—and for whom, by the way, we shall cater comfortably—it will have brought a living conviction to the minds of the British people, and of all the peoples throughout the Empire, that whatever difficulties and troubles the world has to face in the future, the British Empire, if it chooses to do so, can organize its economic life so as to provide reasonable comfort, and even some degree of luxury, for all the citizens of our race and of those races who are associated with us under the Union Jack.

I should like to go into chapter and verse as to the subjects on which we hope to teach useful lessons. But the range of our Imperial industries is so extensive that it is impossible to cover it completely. I must take refuge in the generalization that the Exhibition will strive to show those industries which are well-balanced impartially and which are fairly self-contained within our Empire, and those which could be better balanced by the production of a greater proportion of the raw material in our Overseas Empire.

NAPOLEON AND SUGAR PRODUCTION.

To quote one example: We were greatly helped during the Napoleonic period of view during the Napoleonic wars by the fact that the sugar production of the world was so largely in our hands; our West Indian Colonies then were flourishing on the heels of being the sugar fields of our Empire. A monument of the early prosperity of that West Indies industry is All Souls Library, Oxford University. It was, I think, that fact that the British Empire held such a strong position in the world's sugar production that suggested to Napoleon the idea of setting scientists to work to find an alternative to sugar cane for sugar production. Ultimately this was found in the sugar beet, which became a very serious rival to sugar cane and our Imperial candidates went largely back to jungle. From an imperial point of view, though perhaps not from the point of view of United Kingdom manufacture, we lost by letting the sugar cane growing industry slip out of our hands. The West Indies lost their prosperity, and there was a check to the development of sugar growing in our Pacific possessions. Sugar growing began in Northern Australia as early as 1862, and undoubtedly if encouraged would have grown to a much greater industry than it is to-day. Even with its present development to the point of nearly meeting local Australian demands, it helped that part of the Empire greatly during the war. Sugar in Australia remained at 3d. a lb. for a long time, increased in price to 3½d. in 1916, and only rose to 6d. in 1920. That was better than our home position.

We have also Pacific Island possessions eminently suitable for the growth of the sugar cane, but to-day they are instances of partly arrested development. Note the difference in the development of the Hawaiian Islands and the Fiji Islands. The Hawaiian Islands, under the American flag and aided by the United States, who aim to organize the possessions under their flag as an economic unit, have an enormously prosperous sugar industry. The Fiji Islands, with no such encouragement, are not in so prosperous a state.

But I do not want to appear to argue for any particular policy; rather to point out that the British Empire Exhibition will enable the public of the Empire to take a survey of the position in this matter of sugar production as in other matters of Empire production. The West Indies, our Pacific Islands, the Dominions of South Africa and Australia will be able to put their case as growers and refiners. The home country manufacturers, who are large users of sugar, will also have their arguments to present against anything that will be likely to raise the price of sugar.

EMPIRE PATRIOTISM.

Are the two cases, that of the Empire grower and that of the Empire user, conflicting? I dare to think not; to believe that with proper organization Empire production need not be dear production. With the British Empire Exhibition open at Wembley there will be a complete set of illustrations to guide the people of the Empire in regard to this question.

It is hardly necessary, I suppose, to refer to the value the Exhibition will have in helping Empire patriotism. Pride in the Empire will be strengthened enormously by this display of all that the Empire can do. That is an additional reason why all British citizens should do their utmost to make the Exhibition a success.

So there are three good reasons of the first importance to justify the very patriotic help the Press has given to this Exhibition: the first that it will be the most interesting Exhibition ever held from the point of view of the manly curiosity; the second that it is going to be a great demonstration to the peoples of the Empire of the possibilities of Empire production; the third that it will be a stimulus to Imperial patriotism.

ILLICIT DRINKS.

Come a hither, festive Peterkin, and hear me preach a while; you bought a flask of bootleg gin, and drank it with a smile; you thereby split the sacred law you wrecked, and broke the weary, aching heart of Volstead, I expect. You think you are a worthy man, you would not rob a train, you would not steal your neighbor's van—such crimes give you a pain. And yet you class yourself with those whose souls are on the blink; you train with order's direct foes whenever you take a drink. The law forbids the use of booze and when you take a horn your place with the elect you lose, your town you don't adorn. I know you have a priceless thirst that calls for Mountain Dew; but you'll meet dozens, every vest, who are as dry as you. But they respect the anti law, since it is on the books, and each one wets his sizzling craw with water from the brooks. "Oh, no for us," these martyrs cry, as they pursue their way, "the hrimming cup of gin or rye—the statutes we'll obey. We will not train with outlawed gents, we'll curb our thirst or bust; we would not feel like twenty cents, as lawless drinkers must."

Chintz or cretonne covers and draperies may be dry-cleaned with bran, powdered chalk, and salt mixed together in equal proportions, and rubbed over the material with a piece of flannel.
