CHAPTER XX.

For some cause or other, Disbrow felt extremely anxious for the hour to come when he was to see Norma. Her manner, even more than her words, had implied that the interview portended something serious and unusual. She had been completely transformed since he had seen her last; changed more than he had thought it possible any one could be in so brief a time; and her manner to him had been something more than reserved—it was rigidly cold. What could be the cause? Was it possible that during his absence she had contracted another attachment, and was anxious to be rid of the old one? "Too good to be true," he thought, with a sigh, as he strove to account for her agitation and coldness in some other way.

The drawing, too, trivial as the matter was, puzzled him not a little. That any one could have sketched the whole scene so accurately from merely reading a random description, he could not believe; it must have been seen to be so faithfully depicted. Yet who was there to see it? Neither Emily Tremain nor Norma Macdonald had ever visited America, he felt certain; and who was there but himself to describe it to them? Altogether, he felt more completely mystified and puzzled than he had ever been about a small matter in all his life before.

At an early hour that evening, he presented himself at the Tremain House, and was shown by the aristocratic porter respectfully mentioned before, through a "marble hall" into the parlor, and left to his own devices, while the yellowish plush gentleman went to have Miss Macdonald apprised of her visitor.

He had not long to wait. The door presently opened, and Norma entered, paler even than she was in the morning, and looking as when he had seen her last, agitated and troubled.

She scarcely looked up as he advanced to meet her, and shrank away visibly when he led her to a sofa, and took a seat beside her. But she need not have been alarmed; had he been an archbishop, he could not have behaved with more gravity and decorum. There was very little of the ardent lover about Lord Earncliffe at that moment. His heart was far over the sea with Jacquetta in her lonely grave.

There was a brief and embarrassed silence, which the lady was the first to break.

"You were doubtless surprised, my lord," she began in a slightly tremulous voice, "by my somewhat strange request, and I beg—I beg—you will not be offended at what I am about to say."

This was a promising beginning. Disbrow looked at her wondering what in the world was to follow this preface.

"Nothing you can say, Norma, will offend me," he replied, scarcely knowing what he was expected to answer to this strange address.

"I wish I could think so. Gentlemen all have a large share of native vanity—have they not?" she said, looking up for the first time with a smile.

"Really, I can't take it upon myself to say positively."

"I have heard so; and if it is true, what I have to say may wound your vanity—and for that I beg pardon beforehand."

"It is granted. Pray go on, Miss Norma; what awful deathblow is my vanity destined to receive from your fair hands?"

She dropped her eyes, and a faint color arose to her cheek.

It is a serious matter, my lord. You remember—you cannot have forgotten what is—what was destined to take place next November?"

"Oh!" he was serious enough now; "no, I have not forgotten—how could I? But, Norma, what do you mean by saying 'was' to take place?"

"Because I hardly think it ever will do so now. Lord Earncliffe, I know you desire to be free, and I release you once and forever from your engagement!"

"Norma!" he half sprang from his seat at the first shock. Her beautiful face was as white as monumental marble, but she was also as firm and composed.

"Sit down, my lord. I am certain this does not take you unawares. I feel sure that after this morning you must have had a presentiment of what was coming; and further, you will do anything but grieve, now that you have heard it."

"Norma!"

"It was a bond not of our own making, and it would suit us both, my father and your brother were the cause of the step you took, and perhaps there were ten thousand reasons why you should not at the time decline it."

There was a touch of sarcasm in her tone, and the blood flushed scarlet for a moment to his face.

"I do not intend to reproach you, my lord, but this I will say—you did wrong! You should not have led me to believe you loved me, when you knew in your heart you never could or would care for me more than you did for any other of your dear five hundred friends. I was a silly, romantic girl, I know, who, perhaps, needed this lesson to bring her to her senses; but, my lord, I would rather any other hand than yours had struck the blow."

Her lip trembled in spite of herself and she put her hand for a moment to her face.

"Norma—Norma!" he cried out, passionately, "you wrong me! I did love you once!"

"Ah! you did," she said, turning her pale face toward him, and lifting her clear, dark, penetrating eyes to his face, "then you do so no longer? I knew it!"

He averted his face, and was silent.

"My lord, answer me," she said, laying her hand earnestly on his arm, "it is better for us both. Answer me on your honor as a gentleman—do you love me now?"

"Oh, Norma! forgive me! I never was worthy of your love!"

Her hand dropped. She sat as if turning to stone.

"Have I wronged you beyond reparation? Will you never forgive me, Norma?"

"I forgive you, my lord! I cancel the bond, and you are free!"

"Oh, Norma! farewell and best, you forgive me, but when will I be able to forgive myself?"

"Do not think of it—such things happen every day. It is only the way of the world."

There was an untold depth of bitterness and sorrow in her tone. He did not dare to look at her, but leaned his head on his head with a groan.

"You have acted as most would have done; and a wisdom is only bought by experience. I will be wiser for the future. Do you blame yourself too severely, my lord; it all does not rest on you. Others—the dead and the living—have alike erred, yet I suppose they thought they were acting for the best. Let us be thankful it is no worse—we have both cause!"

"Oh, Norma!"

"You have got a fortune and a title, and do not need to make a marriage de convenience; and I have discovered it all in time; so things are not so bad, my lord, as they might be."

"Oh, Norma! What a villain I must seem in your eyes!"

"A villain! Oh, not at all; it is a common thing enough, and habit redeems everything. Perhaps we may both live to be thankful things have ended as they have."

"But your father, Norma?"

"My father loves me well enough to sacrifice even his long-cherished plan at my wish. I have only to say I do not wish this engagement to be fulfilled, and he will leave me as free as air."

"Norma, did you ever love me?" he asked—his man's vanity, as she rightly judged, wounded by her apparent coldness; for when men, the generous creature, renounce the woman who has once told them she loved them, they like to think of her as pining away, and dying of a broken heart, and all that sort of thing, for their sake; and Lord Alfred Earncliffe, though an English peer, was just made of the same clay as his more plebeian brethren.

Took five bottles of Carnol, "Gained twenty-five Pounds."

"I feel better than I have felt for twenty years"

It is in cases of weakness and run down conditions of the system that Carnol seems to be most effective. Almost from the time you begin taking Carnol, you seem to gain health and strength. It builds up weakened, poorly nourished tissue, purifies the blood, strengthens the nerves, and in this way tones up all the organs of the system.

Read what Mrs. Dunn says about Carnol: "An attack of weakness, as a result of a run down condition of my system in the fall of 1919, caused my nerves to go up stairs. I took different kinds of medicines without getting any benefit, so I asked my druggist, Mr. Ross, of this town, he advised me to try a bottle of Carnol. Before finishing the first bottle, I found my strength coming back. I took five bottles and in eight months I gained twenty-five pounds. Today I feel better than I have felt for twenty-five years. I recommend Carnol to all suffering from weakness or run down condition. I always keep a bottle in the house. Carnol is wonderful for children, especially for colds when taken in hot water. I cannot speak too highly of this great medicine, as all my neighbors knew my condition. I trust that these words will be a help to all suffering from heart trouble. It affords me the greatest pleasure to recommend this medicine as a most powerful tonic and it has made me feel better than I ever did in my life."—Mrs. James F. BUYING OF FOREIGN COTTON.

LONDON, Oct. 17. (A.P.)—The governments of the cotton growing areas of the British Empire, with the aid of the British Board of Trade, will attempt to pass legislation during the winter months which, it is claimed, will result in more than doubling the cotton production of the empire. Most of the aid will be subsidies to the farmers and the establishment of better transportation conditions.

With this start the government will endeavor to make the empire self-sustaining in the production of cotton. Another factor in the scheme will be a greater control of cotton prices by English growers and buyers, and a sufficient supply of cotton, without foreign buying, to supply the great manufactures of North England.

To Kenya and Uganda, the largest cotton producing areas at the present time, a loan of more than $17,500,000 will be made to build railroads and clear land for the cotton growers.

Loans will be made also to Nigeria, Tanganyika and North Kavirondo. Plans to double the Australian cotton output are being undertaken and financed by the Australian government.

Zaghul's Visit to London

"We are very glad to know that Zaghul Pasha has decided after all to meet Mr. Macdonald," says the New Statesman.

"It is imperative that these negotiations—or, as the Egyptians prefer to call them, conversations—should take place. There is not the slightest probability of the British Prime Minister giving way on the sovereignty of the Sudan, and the chances of Zaghul abandoning the Egyptian pretensions, at this stage at any rate, seems very remote. Nevertheless, it is important that the air should be cleared by a full and amicable discussion between the principals."

POLITENESS.

It is seldom I'm molested, as I journey on the pike, but if I must be arrested, courtesy's thing I like. Without a moment or finching to the well known law I yield, if the cop who does the pinching is a gracious Chesterfield. If he seems apologetic when he stops me on the road, smiles—perhaps they are pathetic—are upon that cop bestowed. More and more the cops are learning that the pleasant front is best, and that language fierce and burning doesn't help with an arrest.

Fourteen Thousand Kinds of Roses

"The chateau of Bagatelle, which was built in the eighteenth century by the Comte d'Artois and later became the property of Sir Richard Wallace, is certainly the most distinguished building in the Bois de Boulogne, charming as all the shady and luxuriously rustic open-air restaurants can be," says the Paris correspondent of the Observer.

"Bagatelle is now the property of the City of Paris, and its conservator has gradually assembled in its gardens a collection of roses, which now includes as many as fourteen thousand varieties and is said to be the finest in the world. Even now it is not complete, for the varieties of roses are constantly increasing. There were only ten when Le Notre designed the gardens at Versailles for Louis XIV, and the Empress Josephine, more than a century later, could get together no more than a thousand in her still beautiful garden at Malmaison. No one who comes to Paris at this time of the year should miss the Bagatelle roses."

Reprieve at Last Hour For Two of Montreal Bank Bandits

Toronto Favours Government Control But Provincial Result Doubtful—True Bills Found Against Home Bank Directors—Britain Will Tolerate Evasions of the Lausanne Treaty.

RESULT UNCERTAIN.

TORONTO, Oct. 23. Citizens of Ontario voted to-day on the question of Prohibition vs. Government sale of liquors and apparently divided almost equally on the issue. The result may not be known until the last handful of ballots has been counted and this will not be until Friday morning. The larger cities and towns voted against the present Prohibition Legislation, the Ontario Temperance Act of 1916, a war measure which was confirmed at the provincial elections of 1919 by a majority of 407,000.

A private wire at 3:15 a.m. said returns at that hour showed 20,000 majority in favour of the Drys.)

EARLY RETURNS INDICATE SMALL DRY MAJORITY.

TORONTO, Oct. 23. Early indications of the result of the Plebiscite taken to-day to decide whether Ontario substitute Government control of liquor sales for the Ontario Temperance Act were that the wet's would lose only by a small majority, if they did not win out. Toronto gave a majority in favour of Government control of fifty thousand. Country districts and smaller towns are about evenly divided between wets and drys, according to early returns.

BRITAIN WILL STAND ON TERMS OF LAUSANNE TREATY.

LONDON, Oct. 23. The British government will be represented at the special meeting of the Council of the League of Nations at Brussels on Monday, when the difference between Great Britain and Turkey on the Iraq question will come up for consideration, by Lord Parmoor and Sir Cecil Hurst. Legal Adviser to the Foreign Office. Lord Parmoor, who was at the head of the British delegation at the Assembly of the League in September, was largely responsible for bringing the question before the League. It is understood he will stand firmly on the terms of the Lausanne Treaty.

REVISING SALARIES.

OTTAWA, Oct. 23. Lengthy negotiations covering a period of months have resulted in the upward revision of salary schedules of Dominion Customs and excise officers. The lower paid men receive an increase of $180 a year with diminishing increase as salaries move up to $2400, it was announced to-day.

SITUATION IN CHINA TAKES UNEXPECTED TURN.

TOKIO, Oct. 23. The defection of General Fong Yu Haiang, trusted lieutenant of Wu Pei Fu, changed the entire Chinese situation Thursday. Authentic reports showed that General Fong, with part of the army under his command, had taken charge of Peking, cut all telephone and telegraph wires and stopped the train service. Chinese reports asserted he had demanded the abdication of President Tsao Kuowho recently made Wu Pei Fu commander in chief of all China's National armies, and that he had insisted that the present warfare against Chang Tsoo Lin, military dictator of Manchuria, should cease. Reports failed to show whether Fong was acting in league with Manchuria or independently. Wu Pei Fu last was reported directing the fighting from a point near Shanghai, where a battle expected to prove decisive, was being fought. Fong Yu Haiang is known as the Christian General. His recent departure from Peking, when his army went forth to meet the Manchurians was signalized with the wholesale baptism of all his men and asking a blessing on the new weapons which had just been distributed to them.

INSURRECTION HALTED.

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 23. Following the Brazilian Government's official announcement that it had halted a new Revolutionary movement which was to have broken out in Rio Janeiro last Tuesday, advices recently indicate that the political situation has again assumed a serious aspect. One of the despatches received stated that the present situation is as serious in Rio Janeiro as in the rest of the country. A rigid censorship has been resumed as formerly and the sending of more ample news on the situation is difficult. A despatch from Rivera, Uruguay, which borders on the Brazilian state of Rio Grande Sul, declares that the border inhabitants are considerably alarmed over rumors of an insurrection movement.

PRESIDENT FLEES.

TOKIO, Oct. 23. Tsao Kuo, President of China, has fled from Peking, according to despatches to the Kokusai News Agency from Tientsin. His destination is not known.

REMOVED TO LAST RESTING PLACE.

ROME, Oct. 23. An evening fell yesterday in the closed Basilica, workmen of St. Peter's removed the body of Pope Leo XIII from its temporary niche to the center of the adjoining Chapel for its removal to its final resting place in the Basilica of St. John later, in the presence of Cardinals Gasparri, Merry Del Val, and De Azevedo, several Prelates and High Church dignitaries.

NO JURISDICTION.

OTTAWA, Oct. 23. The Supreme Court of Canada decided this morning that it had no jurisdiction to hear the appeal of Leo Davis, sixth Montreal bandit.

TRUE BILLS AGAINST BANK DIRECTORS.

TORONTO, Oct. 23. The Grand Jury in the Assizes to-day returned true bills on the new indictments against the Home Bank Directors. In the new indictment M. J. Haney, a former President of Home Bank, is also charged. There had been a request for a bench warrant for the arrest of Mr. Haney who said that Mr. Haney would appear with other Directors on Monday. Ocean Smith and Sidney Jones have already been convicted in the County Criminal Court on the one count of negligence in making out statements of affairs of the Bank. Neither has yet been sentenced. The new indictment is against M. J. Haney, R. G. Gough, Casey Wood, J. F. H. Stewart, R. J. Russell, all of Toronto; C. A. Barnard and C. F. Smith of Montreal.

BETHLEHEM STEEL'S DEFICIT.

NEW YORK, Oct. 23. The Bethlehem Steel Corporation reported a deficit of $972,962 from the third quarter's operations after deductions for fixed charges and preferred dividends. This contrasts with surplus of $292,157 for the preceding quarter and $1,047,655 for the corresponding period of 1923.

ANOTHER CROSSING TRAGEDY.

LORRAINE, Ohio, Oct. 23. Six children were killed and fifteen injured late this afternoon when a school bus was struck by an interurban train near Sheffield Lake, one mile east of here.

CREW OF L AND S RESCUED.

HALIFAX, Oct. 23. The American steamer Mount Clay, Captain Brown, en route to Halifax from Cheshbourg and Southampton, and due here on Saturday morning, has on board 27 members of the crew of the fishing schooner L and S, who were taken off their craft in Lat. 47 12 N., and Long. 50 32 W., according to advices received here this afternoon by local agents of the Mount Clay. It is thought the fishermen will be landed here; they were rescued about two hundred miles east of St. John's, Newfoundland.

VALENTINO AND DAVIS REPRIEVED.

OTTAWA, Oct. 23. Two of the bank bandits have escaped the scaffold. At an emergency meeting of the Cabinet this afternoon, the sentences of death passed on Mike Valentino and Leo Davis, were com-mutated to life imprisonment. The death sentences of Morel, Serafini, Frank and Gambino all stand. Valentino was to have been executed with them. The execution of Davis had been fixed for November 6th. It was stated at the conclusion of the meeting that the reason for the decision in regard to Valentino was that he had been a tool rather than a principal in the conspiracy and holdup. The actual holdup had been performed by Morel and Serafini, whereas Valentino was merely an assistant in protective work. The decision of the Cabinet was made as a result of representations which have been received by the Justice Department since the case was considered last Friday. All preparations for the carrying out of the death sentences on the doomed men were completed to-day. Executioner Ellis had already tested the scaffolds and found them operating properly. To-morrow he will be assisted by two helpers. This evening a powerful cordon of police was thrown about Bordeaux Jail, and the approach to the grim structure was made only through-line after line of armed men. These comprised eight members of the Mounted Police, two officers and fifteen men of the city force, and twelve provincial police. They were in addition to the customary strong prison guard. Supplementing those were police patrols on all the roads leading to the jail, while more policemen were available inside the prison to render aid to the interior guards should any of the murderers offer resistance. The actual hour of the execution was known only to the highest authorities, but orders demanded that all those officiating be at the jail at 11:30 p.m. while permits issued to those few who were allowed to witness the affair named the hour of midnight as the limit at which admission to the prison would be granted. From that hour the gates of the jail would be closed, nor would they re-open until all four of the condemned men had expired their crime. A touching scene was enacted this morning when the two daughters of Louis Morel paid their last visit to the ex-detective and athlete. They spent an hour with their father and were accompanied by Napoleon Seguin, Governor of Bordeaux Jail. According to La Patrie, French language newspaper of Montreal, Governor Seguin informed a representative of that journal that Morel displayed little emotion during the visit. He spoke earnestly to his children and counselled them with courage. Rev. Father Bard, of the Franciscan Order, assisted Morel in his last hour. The wives of Tony Frank, Gambino and Serafini, visited their husbands for the last time yesterday, while Monsignor Deschamps, Vicar General of the Diocese of Montreal, paid a visit to the jail. While Morel awaits death calmly, Tony Frank, who was one of the master minds of the underworld of Montreal, has fallen into an attitude of complete despair. Doubts were expressed whether he would be able to walk unaided to the gallows or whether he would have to be bound to a chair and carried to his doom. Serafini and Gambino continued to protest their innocence, but maintained an attitude of indifference.

TO DISCUSS DEFENSIVE ALLIANCE.

PARIS, Oct. 23. Premier Mussolini, of Italy, and the Jugo-Slav Foreign Minister, are to meet as soon as the Jugo-Slav ministerial crisis is settled, says Le Matin, for discussion of an Italo-Jugo Slavic defensive Alliance. The principal aim will be to guarantee the status quo in Central Europe and maintain order on the Adriatic. The paper's Belgrade correspondent reports that the Alliance will be signed when the Sovereigns of Jugo-Slavia make their visit to Rome.

825,000 FIRE.

BATAVIA, N.Y., Oct. 23. One woman was burned, perhaps fatally, Fire Chief D. B. Benadette overcame and stifled with a heart attack, and more than a score of persons narrowly escaped death when fire swept through downtown business buildings early to-day. The fire loss was estimated at $65,000.

St. Patrick's Sale Concludes

The vegetable sale at St. Patrick's Convent Schools concluded last night with an auction of the remaining vegetables, followed by a presentation of the operetta Pandora, in which the performers acquitted themselves very capably. The proceeds were up to expectations and the ladies of St. Patrick's Association are to be congratulated on their success.

Our Interest in the British Election

Many of the issues which have to be considered by the British electorate in the forthcoming contest do not directly concern us, but there are others in which we have an immediate interest.

Decisions which were arrived at by the Conference were, however, thrown into the discard when the Labour Party was returned to power as a result of the election which followed.

With the parties again in the field, the Leader of the Conservatives, Stanley Baldwin, has again embodied in his policy the same issues, and it is not unlikely that the electors, having become aware of the feeling which exists throughout the Empire...

Britain and the Empire stand or fall together, and it will be well with the Mother Country when the people of the British Isles realize this as fully as we do in her dependencies.

Remarkable Letters of the Opposition Leader

Two of the letters circulated by the Leader of the Opposition throughout the District of Bonavista are published elsewhere in this issue for all to read, mark and arrive at their own deductions thereon.

The first paragraph takes it for granted that the electors are ignorant of the procedure followed by the office holders in a government after their return in a general election, a matter with which every schoolboy is familiar.

The second epistle deals exclusively with the Liquor Bill, and some of the remarks are illuminating but most deceptive. It refers to the possibility of liquor being brought within the reach of young children...

but no mention is made of removal of the lid which made Prohibition a farce in order that money might pour into the public chest.

Mr. Hickman promises to modify the present law—modify, mark you, which would indicate that he is not such a warm supporter of the Prohibition Act as he would have his readers believe.

Mr. Hickman's pledge is perhaps more astonishing and unfortunate than any other part of these really remarkable letters. It is as follows: "I pledge myself as Leader of the Liberal Party to modify the present law and restrict the sale of Liquors to young people."

Interference of the Opposition Leader Regarded as an Insult

OPPOSITION LEADER'S LETTER TO THE VOTERS.

St. John's, Nfld., October 23, 1924. Dear Friend—There is some people who do not understand why there is an Election in Bonavista Bay this fall, and I feel it my duty as Leader of the Opposition to give a little explanation of things.

The Election is called by the Government to ask the people to vote whether Mr. Monroe and Capt. Winsor shall hold their jobs. We are putting Candidates in the field too, as we believe, the people will not vote for Monroe and Winsor.

It is not necessary for the Election, in the last Government the salary for Minister of Marine and Fisheries was three thousand two hundred and seventy-five dollars, and the salary for Prime Minister was the same.

This is contrary to the promise you had last Spring to reduce taxation by getting down government officials salaries.

To get this money to pay themselves the higher salaries, they put three dollars a barrel duty on Pork, two dollars and fifty cents a barrel duty on Beef, and eight cents a gallon on Molasses.

This is unfair to our Fishermen, the majority of the Country, and we protested strongly in the House of Assembly, but to no avail. It is now up to the people of Bonavista Bay to vote them out of office, and take away the increased salaries, which are given at your expense.

When you were promised a bonus on fish, there was nothing said about price. The promise should have been kept to make up for the bad years in the past. The Government is spending two million dollars for motor roads around St. John's for rich people who own motor cars, but can find no money to encourage the fisheries.

I will write you on other matters later. Yours truly, A. E. HICKMAN.

THE OTHER EPISTLE. St. John's, Nfld., Oct. 16th, 1924.

Dear Friend—You have heard that the present Government, led by Mr. Monroe, has repealed the Prohibition Act, and the sale of RUM is now wide open according to LAW.

The Law that has passed, and is now on the Statute Book, is far worse than any Liquor Law that has ever been in the country. Under the Liquor Law, the sale of rum was sold all over the country. There can be a liquor store for every member in Bonavista District who will have in his house a few rum bottles.

It is the duty of every man to protect the young people, and keep them away from temptation until they are grown up and can take care of themselves. You cannot as a good citizen vote for the open sale of RUM. It is better not to vote at all. If you vote for rum, you are helping to raise revenue. It is better to get it without the revenue than get it with the revenue of ruined homes and blighted lives.

The Liquor Bill has been introduced to raise revenue. It is better to get it without the revenue than get it with the revenue of ruined homes and blighted lives.

Supreme Court

The King vs. James Whiteford McNeely.

On Wednesday morning when the case of James Whiteford McNeely vs. the King was heard in the Supreme Court, Mr. Dunfield read an affidavit as follows:—

In the matter of an alleged indictment for larceny and falsification of accounts against James Whiteford McNeely, found the 14th day of October, 1924.

I am of Counsel for James Whiteford McNeely, the accused herein.

I am informed and verily believe that the following facts are true in relation to the alleged Grand Jury which has found the said alleged indictment.

The cards containing the names of the Grand Jurors were not compared with the revised list of Jurors by the Registrar of the Deputy Registrar of this Court.

The first twenty-three persons who were drawn from the box were not summoned to serve, nor did they serve on the said alleged Grand Jury.

Five persons, namely: George Baird, Archibald Forbes, J. Penney, Francis Cooper and William Chancy, who were among the twenty-three first drawn, were not summoned.

Two persons, namely: Terence Cooper and Wilbur Chancy, whose names are not upon the present revised list of Grand Jurors, have attended and taken part in the deliberations of the alleged Grand Jury and were parties to its finding of the alleged indictment.

The name of Joseph Perry has been struck out and the name of Edward Peary has been struck out and the name of Edward Perez substituted.

The name of Archibald S. Lewis has been struck out and the name of Archibald S. Lewis substituted.

Which said alterations are apparent upon the face of the revised list which I have seen.

E. Thomas Jones, one of the alleged Grand Jurors, who has attended and taken part in the deliberations of the Grand Jury and has concurred in the finding of the indictment, is not a member of the office of emolument under and at the will of the Crown, namely, Customs Officer, and therefore he is not a proper person to be a member of the Grand Jury in a prosecution by the Crown.

(Sgd.) BRIAN DUNFIELD. Sworn before me at St. John's aforesaid this 16th day of October, A.D. 1924.

(Sgd.) ROBERT ALCOCK, Clerk. The matter was not disposed of at recess hour and the further hearing was resumed in the afternoon when Mr. Dunfield called Sheriff Blandford and examined him concerning the drawing and summoning of Jurors.

He explained that the trial jurors are drawn from the list of Grand Jurors and that neither the cards bearing the name of the present Grand Jury nor those of the preceding two Grand Juries had been put back in the receptacle. Some six or eight Grand Jurors, he said, were drawn since the Spring and in each case the cards were returned to the box but they were not always returned.

After some questions had been put by Mr. Emerson the Chief Justice stated that "there is no objection to the drawing of the cards, but somebody has to go into the case, which is most important."

Mr. Emerson intimated that he and his associate, Mr. Winter, would advise the presentation of Mr. Dunfield's case before announcing what course they would adopt.

Sub-Sheriff Carroll was then called and examined by Mr. Dunfield as to the cards in the box and the further hearing was resumed in the afternoon when Mr. Dunfield called Sheriff Blandford and examined him concerning the drawing and summoning of Jurors.

In reference to the name of Perez he said he could not distinguish if it was written as Perry or Perez on the index book containing the names of those eligible to serve as Jurors.

HALIFAX COURSE WILL BE PATROLLED BY SCOUTS AND MOUNTED POLICE.

The officials in charge of the Halifax Herald modified marathon race have made arrangements to have the course patrolled by Scouts and Mounted Police. Previous years the course was crowded with motor cars and vehicles of all descriptions, which proved an annoyance to the runners. Mayor Murray, of Halifax, is the official starter, and after a brief address to the athletes, he will crack the pistol and send them off on their long hike.

The race starts at 2 p.m. to-morrow, which is 5 o'clock, St. John's time. Arrangements will be made with the Anglo Telegraph Company to keep the wires open and a flash message as to the winner of the race should be received by 4 p.m. The Newfoundland Amateur Athletic Association are also making arrangements with Halifax to send a message announcing the first four or five runners passing the Ship Yards, which is two miles from the start; also their positions at the 7th mile, after the deadly Arm Hill has been covered. The position of the runners in the later message will give the local fans a fair idea as to who will be the likely winner.

With Ron O'Toole, Newfoundland's champion, representing us in the race to-morrow, the citizens of St. John's and elsewhere will be awaiting news of his performance with interest.

We wish O'Toole, and his manager, John Bell, every good luck and hope they will bring home with them well earned honors.

The race is estimated to be witnessed by fully 50,000 people.

INTER COLLEGIATE FOOTBALL.

St. Bon's Suffer First Defeat. The Collegians and St. Bon's contested in the second game of the second round of the inter collegiate series, yesterday afternoon at St. George's Field. The result was a win for the Collegians by a score of two goals to nil. The Collegians, defending the western goal in the first half, confronted the play for the greater part of the period to St. Bon's territory, and were successful in scoring two goals from corner kicks. Johnson, who played a rattling good game, placed the ball nicely on each occasion. Despite the determined efforts of St. Bon's, they were unable to beat the M. C. backs, to land the ball in the desired spot. Upon changing over St. Bon's increased the pace and made several bold attempts to score, but their opponents played a good defensive game and frustrated all attempts. The game was attended by a large gathering of rooters from the various colleges. The game was well contested from beginning to end and it augurs well for future contests. To-morrow afternoon the Collegians and Feildians will try copulations. Should the Feildians win it will be a toss up as to which team will win the championship.

Mt. Cashel Band Concert To-Night

"ANNIVERSARY NIGHT." As will be seen by the advertisements in to-day's paper, the weekly Band Concert takes place in "The Gaiety" (formerly the C.C.C. Hall) to-night at 8.45 o'clock.

This will be a special night, as it is Mount Cashel Anniversary Night. Twenty-six years ago to-day this splendid institution was founded, and to-day they are carrying on the good work of looking after, schooling, feeding and clothing over 180 boys and preparing them for life's battles. Truly a wonderful work and the management of these weekly concerts have prepared a wonderful night. There will be elimination numbers for which special prizes will be awarded. (By the way, what friends of the institution will give prizes for these events?) Don't all ring up at once, please. And there will be other items of interest, and those who miss to-night's event will regret it. Admission will be the same—25c., but worth $1.00. Ask any of the 350 who attended the last concert what they thought of it.

"The Fair Cheat"

AT THE MAJESTIC.

Morgan Van Dam had millions of dollars. John Hamilton was a clerk in the employ of Van Dam who loved and was loved in return by Camilla. When they asked Van Dam's consent to their marriage he refused, but later agreed with Camilla that if she would support herself for a year and agree not to see Hamilton during that time that he would sanction the marriage.

She agrees, and Van Dam leaves for an extended trip on his boat. Before leaving he gives a farewell party to Camilla which is attended by Crittenden Scott Buckley whom Van Dam favors as a mate for Camilla. Van Dam before leaving makes emergency arrangements with his secretary, Rutledge Stone by providing him with signed blank checks, but instructs him that he is not to support his daughter in any claim she might make as a relation of his. Camilla takes a small apartment and succeeds in getting work in a New York chorus.

Hamilton through Buckley meets the chorus girl who resembles his sweetheart and promptly loses his heart to her and proposes. In the meantime word is received that Van Dam's ship has sunk in a storm and all on board are lost. Scott, the secretary, sees in this a chance to make away with the money that the signed checks will bring and almost succeeds but is frustrated by Hamilton and Camilla.

Van Dam turns up in time to rescue Hamilton and Camilla from an embarrassing position and to tell the plans of his secretary, Scott. He agrees that Camilla may marry Hamilton and Camilla reveals to Hamilton that she was Camilla all the time.

Last Night's Lecture

MR. LLEWELLYN COLLEY GIVES A SPLENDID ADDRESS.

Mr. Colley's address in the Cannon Wood Hall last night was attended by a large number of citizens, and their interest and appreciation were evidenced by the manner in which they followed the speaker and at the outbreak of applause at the close of his remarks. They were given a very comprehensive account of the objects of interest in New York and several other American cities, and by means of the excellent selection of slides, which were thrown on the curtain by Rev. H. L. Pike, were able to see for themselves the many places with which the lecturer was familiar.

Mr. Colley has a rare gift of observation to which not every visitor to a strange place can lay claim. What he sees, he remembers, and he possesses, besides, the ability to describe to others in a most graphic manner the knowledge that he has acquired. In fact one is led to conclude that he goes to very great trouble on his trips abroad in order that he may be able on his return, to have something of interest to tell those who have not had the opportunity to go and see for themselves.

The churches of the great city of the United States, its Universities and public buildings, its monuments, parks, and thoroughfares were each visited in turn and a great fund of information was contained in the historical sketches and the vivid descriptions. We trust that Mr. Colley will consent to repeat his lecture at a later date in order that others, who were unable to be present last night, might have an opportunity of hearing it.

His Lordship the Bishop very kindly presided. Solos were splendidly rendered by Miss Joffis and Mr. Ritchie to the accompaniment played by Mr. E. Fox, and the whole audience joined in a number of songs from the song sheets. A vote of thanks having been proposed by Mr. C. E. A. Jeffrey, seconded by the Hon. Mayor Tasker Cook, and carried by acclamation, the National Anthem brought to a very enjoyable evening to a close. The proceeds, which go towards the Feildian Campus Fund, were most gratifying.

Tremendous Picture Coming to the Nickel

IN WHICH PATRONS WILL SEE ALL THE STARS.
You don't have to go to Hollywood to see all your favorites—"Hollywood" is coming to you! The stars of a thousand pictures assembled in one superlative cast. Showing our amazing adventures of a screen-struck girl who tried to "get in." Produced by the man who made "The Old Homestead" and "The Covered Wagon." With the most fascinating background ever screened—Hollywood, the garden spot of pictures.
Here is what Jesse L. Lasky has to say about this wonderful film, which is to be shown at the Nickel Monday.
"The picture, 'Hollywood,' shows better than words can tell that marvelous spirit of friendship that binds together the great artists of our country. Without that spirit the task of making 'Hollywood,' the picture, would have been insurmountable. It is with a keen and deep appreciation of my debt to them that I wish to take this opportunity of thanking all those many great artists of the screen who appear in this photoplay and who, by their generous and untiring effort have enabled us to give to the world some insight as to what life in Hollywood really is."
JESSE L. LASKY.

It is doubtful if D. W. Griffith ever labored more diligently in his career on any work than he did in the case of his latest United Artists production, "The White Rose," which comes to the Star Theatre next Monday.

MINARD'S LINIMENT FOR RHEUMATISM.

A youth of high family and circumstance in a section of the South is preparing for the ministry, thus fulfilling a dying wish of his mother. To learn something of the world and broaden his outlook, he sets out on a walking trip and visits various cities. Meanwhile there emerges from an orphanage a slip of a girl who must make her way unaided in the world. She obtains employment in an orphanage by winter vacationists and here this youth of religious meekness meets her.
Their friendship ripens into something deeper and the divinity student fees from his charmer.
A slight of time finds the youth ordained and in high opinion as a preacher of exceptional powers. But in this time a baby comes to the world and she is cast about and shunned by reason of her violation of that terrible single code of morals which has held so long.
Despite his surrounding and his success in the pulpit, the minister is unable to forget the girl he knew so briefly in his travels. He is about to wed the maiden of his own circle when the wanderer with her child happens into his locality.
The denouement of this delicate story of unobscured love progresses in a most gripping manner and there comes a meeting between the pair in a lowly negro shanty which takes rank with any scene ever shown on the screen or across the footlights of a theatre.
Mac Marsh returns to the screen after a long absence to play the part of the orphan girl and registers the greatest success of her noteworthy career. The minister is played by Ivor Novello, the handsome young English actor, who has quickly won the favor of American audiences through his work in this instance. Other players are Carol Dempster, Nell Hamilton, Porter Strong, Lucille La Verne, Erville Alderson, Jane Thomas, Kate Bruce, Herbert Sutch, Charles Emmet Mack and a large number of carefully chosen supernumeraries.

Supreme Court.

(Before Chief Justice Horwood.)

In the matter of the King vs. Wm. F. O'Reilly the trial jury through their foreman, Herbert Chafe, after two hours consideration reported a verdict of "not guilty" of the charge of larceny, and a disagreement on the alternative of obtaining money under false pretences. The trial, which began at 10 a.m. yesterday morning before the Chief Justice, was resumed yesterday afternoon when Jas. A. Carmichael, Assistant Accountant at the Bank of Montreal, resumed his seat on the witness stand. He stated that money orders taken in are taken in cash and placed to the credit of the account of the depositor. The next morning all money orders are brought to the Post Office where a cheque is received for the total amount. There was no departure from this course in the case of Mr. O'Reilly.

Cross-examined by Mr. Howley.—The aggregate of collateral held on July 12th would be about $7,300. This security had been held by the Bank before it was held on June 1st. The advances to Mr. O'Reilly about this time were about $3800.00. These were all Mr. O'Reilly's own notes. He knew there were other notes drawn in favor of John Anderson and Edward Sinnott. If these notes were charged to Mr. O'Reilly they would be charged to his current account. If O'Reilly's account was overdrawn, the collateral would be held against any overdraft. (Mr. Emerson objects.) This concluded the Crown case.

William J. Woodford, sworn, examined by Mr. Howley. As Minister of Posts and Telegraphs he has control over that Department. He assumed office on the 9th of June last, and had no knowledge of a document issued in June last, when subpoenaed last night, he looked around the office and he saw two letters. (Mr. Emerson objects.) (Shown document.) Witness never saw it before.

Patrick J. Summers, sworn, examined by Mr. Howley, occupied position of Deputy Minister of Justice prior to September, 1923. Asked as to whether a document was drawn up on or about this month. (Mr. Emerson objected on the grounds that an endeavour was being made to introduce a document purporting to be a settlement between accused and the Department of Justice.) The document was handed to the Chief Justice. Mr. Howley asked to have the document submitted as material, in so far as it is evidence to prove that there was no intent on the part of the accused to deprive the Department of money, which is equivalent to larceny. One of the things that must be proven by the Crown is that there was an attempt to permanently deprive the Government of such money. Mr. Emerson stated the document was drawn up on September 14th, and the defence sought to prove the accused's state of mind after the offence had been committed. Mr. Emerson's objection was sustained. Mr. Summers, again examined said that the matter of outstanding moneys against Mr. O'Reilly came under his notice in August, 1923. Asked if to his knowledge whether Mr. O'Reilly had satisfied the department as to the matter. (Mr. Emerson objected.) At this stage Mr. Howley asked for a brief adjournment in order to enable him to call M. E. Hawco. This gentleman, however, was in court and was called to the stand.

Matthew E. Hawco, sworn. He occupied the position of Minister of Posts and Telegraphs in the summer of 1923. He took office at noon on the first day of August, and met his predecessor, Capt. Bonia. The Auditor General was in the office and Captain Bonia made witness aware of the transaction between the Department and Mr. O'Reilly. On the day that he assumed office, Captain Bonia wrote Mr. O'Reilly a letter in reference to the matter. When witness assumed office he took up the matter with Mr. O'Reilly, who admitted he owed the Department that amount. Pressed for payment he offered (Mr. Emerson objects.) Witness was familiar with the things that brought about the transaction through officials. Asked as to whether at the time of the conversation with Mr. O'Reilly if there was any discussion of Mr. O'Reilly's position at the time the offence was alleged to have been committed. (Mr. Emerson objects.) Witness interviewed the Justice Department after the conversation, and put the case in their hands, and shortly after he received a certain document (Mr. Emerson objects). During the time when he occupied the position he had correspondence with accused as to the matter (shown letter). This is a letter written to accused. (Mr. Emerson objects.)

Mr. Howley again asked for a short adjournment in order to bring Captain Bonia, who was Minister of Posts and Telegraphs at the time of the transactions. This was granted, and on Capt. Bonia's arrival he was examined.

Captain T. Bonia, sworn, examined by Mr. Howley. In the year 1923 he was Minister of Posts and Telegraphs. About two weeks before he left the Department a certain amount of money was put against Mr. O'Reilly through the Money Order Office, which he thought was going on for some time. He went out of office about the end of July. He was not certain as to whether the matter was brought to his notice in June. Prior to being brought to his notice the matter was in the hands of the Deputy Minister. There was a shortage in the Money Order Department, charged to Mr. O'Reilly.

Mr. O'Reilly never denied to witness that he ever owed the money. Witness could not remember where he ever admitted owing it. Mr. O'Reilly mentioned to witness something about bonds he had got, but witness could not remember details. There was talk of payment of securities, but witness could not remember details. Asked if arrangements were finalized. (Mr. Emerson objects.)

At 4.10 Mr. Howley began his address to the jury. The stealing, he said, such as is charged, consists of various ingredients and it is necessary that the Crown must prove all of these before the jury can bring in a verdict against the accused. The Crown must prove that the money was fraudulently taken and under this it must be proved that the money was taken with the intention of permanently depriving His Majesty the King of it. The payment of money during 1921-22-23 was proof that this was not so. In June O'Reilly gave an order for the payment of the money in July. This too was proof there was no intention to defraud. The transaction, Mr. Howley said, must have been subsequently cleaned up as Mr. Collins is still in his job and it is not conceivable that this would be the case if the transaction was still open. A verdict of obtaining money under false pretences may be brought in, if the money charge is not sustained, but this charge, must be proved beyond doubt, as was the other. He cited various points of law to sustain his case and concluded with a strong appeal for a verdict in favour of the accused.

Mr. Emerson followed and admitted that the Crown must prove its case. The money was the property of His Majesty, temporarily in the custody of Mr. Collins. There was no doubt that it had been obtained without the owner's consent, the fact of a misdemeanor having been committed was no proof against this fact.

Mr. O'Reilly had not paid for a single order. The transactions that were closed off were done so with other money obtained from the same source. The order on the Bank of Montreal was refused as there were no assets to meet it. Things of this sort must be judged by everyday circumstances, and if an employee takes away money from his employer's cash box, even if he has the best intentions of paying it back, he is guilty of larceny. No one can judge a man's mind as to whether he had any intention of paying back the money or not. The money was obtained under false pretences, as when O'Reilly got it there was no money in the Bank of Montreal or anywhere else to pay for it. He also cited the law and asked for a consideration, first of a charge of larceny and secondly of obtaining money under false pretences.

England May Lay Claim to Bones of St. Patrick

LONDON, Oct. 1 (A.P.)—The skeleton of St. Patrick is believed by some to have been found in Pembrokehire, far from the scenes of his reptilian labors. The search for the body of the saint was started several months ago in the churchyard of St. David's Cathedral, among the ruins of St. Patrick's Chapel, a part of an older church.

The chapel floor was found ten feet under the earth, and all the walls eventually uncovered. At the east end of the ruins was an altar, and in front of this was found a skeleton.

The excavators, believing the body that of the saint, sent for the Dean of the Chapter, who had it removed to a place of honor in the cathedral. Here it will remain pending the establishment of its identity.

The skeleton was in perfect state of preservation, except that some damage had been done to the skull, probably by a falling stone.

The discovery so far has produced no comment from the land of the saint's labors, but it is expected that efforts will be made to have the body taken there should the experts decide the remains are genuine.

Von Tirpitz May Disclose Details of Loss of Lusitania

BERLIN, Oct. 2 (A.P.)—Details hitherto unpublished concerning the inside facts leading up to the sinking of the Lusitania have been promised in a new book to be issued soon by Admiral von Tirpitz, the former navy head, who has been credited with having given the final order which resulted in the destruction of the steamer.

According to the announcement, Admiral von Tirpitz, now leader of the Nationalists in the Reichstag, has consented to the publication of all the secret archives in his possession, which cover some 20 years prior to 1914.

The first book of Admiral von Tirpitz appeared some years ago, and caused quite a stir despite its tone of reservation, but in the new volume the

CHILDREN ALONG LINES OF NATURAL BENT.

Character analysis and its practical application in child training, as demonstrated at Columbus Hall, by Edward Lee Hawk, noted character analyst, in the course of a lecture last night. How to correct your wrong bent in life.

Selecting several children from the audience, Mr. Hawk analyzed the character of each, drawing his conclusions from such evidence as the shape of the head, the outline of the features, the shade of the skin, facial and bodily conformations, and other things which are not evident to the casual eye.

He named the life work for which he was best fitted, and in an easy and unforced manner, with the approval of the parents, he suggested children whose character he had analyzed in various respects, which he had visited, and mentioned one boy, an inmate of the institution in Salt Lake City, whose bent was mechanical.

He said that the bent was mechanical, and was kept in created by the construction of the body. He said that it was not possible to obtain funds for the education of the child, and that he was taken to the institution, convicted, and sent to the institution.

He said that the character of the child is determined by the shape of the head, the outline of the features, the shade of the skin, facial and bodily conformations, and other things which are not evident to the casual eye.

The best traits in the character of the child may be developed early in life. He said that parents will make the most of character analysis. Toys should be chosen with scientific ideas in mind.

It may be that a child is of the artistic bent, he will play with paints and water figures; he may be mechanical; he will show a taste for puzzles; he may be of the inventive bent; he will use tools. If a parent knows how to classify types, the best, most natural and most productive results can be developed with surprising ease in childhood.

TRYING HIS HAND AT A NEW VENTURE.

Oh! but it did rain for two days. It came down in torrents. Umbrellas and rain coats, after the first day's deluge, were not proof against the heavy pelting of the heavens. But the first day's storm came rather quick and unexpectedly. Then a thought came to McGill Street merchant. Knowing that a large number of people who make their lunch downtown at the noon hour, and who were not provided with umbrellas, as the rain came down, he put out a sign reading, "Umbrellas rented here." This was a very enterprise that had not heretofore been touched. It was a gamble on the honesty of human nature.

Scenes of people took advantage of the offer and rented an umbrella to protect them from the elements. When the storm ceased, the merchant was very and glad, for nearly every one who had taken advantage of the offer, returned the umbrella, and the merchant had been a success.

Probably others may try their hand at this, and be rewarded accordingly.

RECORDED BROTHERS PARENTS FOR THEIR CHILDREN'S CONDUCT.

In certain sections of the city, the parents will meet the tough and hoodlum element. Very few who pass along these thoroughfares when the "gangs" are spread, do so unmolested. Even the hand of the law, in the shape of the policeman, gets it handed out to them. A young lad was arrested here lately, and Recorder J. N. Semple gave an unmerciful castigation to the parents who allow their children to go beyond their control.

The parents who are responsible for the class of toughs who hang around the section of the city bordering on Pultord and Cornhill Streets, are a pack of savages and a disgrace to their nationality. I have said it from this bench before and I repeat it now," said Recorder Semple in sentencing a young lad, sixteen years of age, to a fine of $20 and costs or one month in jail for interfering with a policeman and using obscene language on the public street. The lad was arrested and received a severe raping from the Recorder when he appeared in court.

"Ten times, I suppose, I have made this same speech from the bench," professed the Recorder. "People who live in that area of the city ought to be ashamed of themselves. Either they don't give their children any training or else they bring them up to follow in their own footsteps."

"You are the innocent one of the gang. Always it is an innocent person who gets into this court," said the Recorder in withering tones. "Butter wouldn't melt in your mouth. You started off for church or some other good place and either got there too late or too early, and were obliged to return home. On your way, you fell in with a lot of bad boys. It always happens that way. You are the innocent one that has to suffer for the gang. I say that you are a disgrace to your nationality, for always it appears that you people speak English," concluded the Recorder in levelling the fine on the much chastened lad.

IS IT WORKABLE IN ST. JOHN'S?

Every time I pass the Mountain Street market I think of the feasibility of establishing a public market place at St. John's. The Mountain Street Market is one of the smaller ones of the city, but its business has more than doubled of late years. On Saturday, it is a thrice of industry. The farmers' wagons, loaded with all kinds of produce, extend across Mountain and Aqueduct Streets, leaving just space enough for a wagon or auto to go up or down. And right out to the railway tracks on St. James Street, the wagons are lined up. The other market days, the place is comfortably filled, but Saturdays the overcrowding takes place. Then, in connection with the market, you have the different stores attached to it, the butchers on the top storey, and poultry, fruits, eggs, butter and fish supplies on the lower. The proprietors rent the stores from the City Council. Would it be possible for your City Fathers, to build a market of two stories, rent the stalls, and let the farmers sell their produce on the outside? I am of the opinion that a market place situated in a central part of the city, would be a step in the right direction.

THE WATER SUPPLY HAD AFTER THE HEAVY RAINS.

After the recent heavy rains, the water supply in certain sections of the city, notably the West End, became tainted. Its color is "A Dirty Yellow." A glass of water allowed to settle shows a sediment at the bottom. A large number of people have been attacked with dysentery since the water has been tainted. Montreal's water supply comes from the Ottawa which, since the rain started the first of the week, has been high and muddy. There may be something wrong with the filtration system, which is supposed to remove all foreign matter from the fluid. Or the condition may be due to tiny particles of mud and clay which pass through the filters. Dr. S. Boucher, City Health Superintendent could give no reason for the coloring of the water. Medical men advise the people to boil the water first before using it.

A CLEVER CAPTURE MADE BY ONE OF THE MOTOR SQUAD.

It was a stern chase between motor cycle policeman Tremblay and four youths in a stolen automobile. When the officer of the Provincial Police Squad was patrolling the Point Aux Trembles Road, he noticed the auto with the four youths and gave chase. At a part of the road, as the policeman drew up with the car, the driver sent the car near the edge of the roadside, and the officer had a narrow escape from being sent in the ditch. The car was started again at top speed, and then Tremblay showed his grit and courage. Guiding his motor cycle with one hand, he brought his revolver into play with the other and fired three shots at the car. Two of them punctured the tires, and the game was up. The policeman was on the quartet before they had time to escape from the car, and covering them with his revolver, summoned aid from the city and had them brought to Headquarters. The next day, Mrs. P. X. Beauvais, widow of the Postman who was robbed and murdered in his store at Yerdun on the night of Sept. 8th, picked out two of the youths from a bunch of twenty-five men awaiting trial, as the two who entered the shop the night of the murder. An automatic pistol, which was thrown away in the chase, was picked up and answers the description of the one used in the murder of the Postman. One of the accused said they could name him if they wanted he did not care a D—. The two bold and defiant prisoners are only 20 years of age. The four are awaiting trial.

Air Progress for Decades

LONDON, Oct. 21. (A.P.)—Fairly regular air transport services between England and the far-flung possessions of the British Empire ought to be accomplished within the next ten years without serious financial expenditure, in the opinion of Air vice-marshal Sir W. Setton Branner, director of civil aviation.

Addressing a conference of the Institute of Transport at Wembley, Sir Setton said that within a decade there certainly would be a bi-weekly airship service to India and Australia, the through journey being accomplished in eleven days.

Another airship service should be flying at least once a week to the Cape of Good Hope by way of West Africa in five and a half days. Airships should certainly be crossing the Atlantic regularly, and it was to be hoped that at least one British liner would be plying between Canada and England, taking two and one-half days.

WHEN PEOPLE GROW CRITICAL.

Death loves a shining man, they say. And so does envy. A friend of mine is very much puzzled at the coldness of a friend of hers. "It's the queerest thing," she says, "when she used to be poor she was always so kind and enthusiastic, and she used to love to come to our little house although hers was so much lovelier; but now when we are doing so much better and have a pretty house and some nice things ourselves it seems as if she were all ways criticizing and making little of what we have or do. It certainly is queer. She was so nice to us when we were having our hardest time and yet they say that people are more and more apt to like you when you are prosperous."

Is it so queer? Or is it an everyday phenomenon? She Doesn't Forget Her Old Friends. This friend of whom she has spoken married better than she did (in the sense in which "married better") is all too commonly used. She had a charming house and a maid and a car and plenty of pocket money. And she prided herself on being one of those who did not forget her old friends. Not at all. She loved to go and see them and have them admire her pretty clothes. She loved to take them about in her charming little coupe, or out to the theatre or the movies and be rewarded by their gratitude. And she was very gracious in her admiration of their humbler possessions. The only person of whom she ever spoke critically or disparagingly was one member of the crowd who "married better" than she did. She couldn't bear her. Didn't like the way she thought her husband was impossible except for his money, etc.

An Unconscious Bradstreet.

And now she is beginning to speak critically of our mutual friend and her possessions. Well, I should say that was about as good a testimonial to the tremendous financial improvement in the affairs of the latter's husband as a high rating in Bradstreet and Duns.

"It is the bright day," says Shakespeare, "that brings forth the adder and that craves wary walking."

It is much easier to approve those who have no reason to envy, whom on the contrary you may perhaps pity a little, than those who have reason to pity or look down on you.

There is a penetrating paragraph along these lines in that altogether delightful new life of Shelley.

We Like To "Poor Dear" People.

The author is speaking of two men who knew both Byron and Shelley and liked the latter much the better. Says he: "Thus spoke the chorus in unanimity, and did not perhaps perceive that their adoration for Shelley fed and grew on his misfortune. We are more inclined to love that which we can pity than that which we must admire. Man finds in the spectacle of unmerited failure, flustering arguments which explain his own ill luck. The blend of admiration and compassion is one of the surest recipes for love. It would have needed much humility of mind for Williams and Trelawny to have the same affection for the brilliant Byron that they had for poor, dear Shelley." I don't think that people have changed much since that day, do you?

The Disuse of the Gallows

Two youngsters of Chicago, Leopold and Loeb, decided not long ago that the Jewish Bible was all rot, and proceeded to crank the skull of a school-fellow, smaller than themselves, with hammer and chisel. It was suggested that his was an offence against the law, which the youths admitted by pleading guilty. The trial was thus abbreviated and only cost a million dollars, the prisoners being let off with imprisonment for life. They told the sheriff that they would like plenty of onion on their steak, with chocolate eclairs to follow, but it is possible that, in due course, this diet may be varied. Newspapers are now discussing when parole will be granted. It is so nice for children at school to have their skulls cracked with hammers and chisels and criminology is becoming more and more humanitarian.

Of course, the United States has virtually abolished capital punishment. "A murder a day—a hanging a year" has long been the slogan of penological reformers in Chicago. Some people call this arrangement psychoanalysis; others, and mental science; others, again, the Sermon of the Mount; and others, graft. Anyway, there are ten thousand murders per annum in the United States, or, it is said, fifty times as many as in Britain. Were capital punishment enforced, probably eight thousand of these murders would be prevented. There are now so many murderers surviving that to make capital punishment retrospective would mean an Armenian massacre. This shows once more that, whatever industry you legislate, whether slavery or liquor or betting, becomes a vested interest which must be respected.

Nor do I suggest that this nation is more criminal than Europe. As an American explained to me, one reason why there are more murderers here than there is in England is that the bad Englishman crosses the Atlantic while the good Englishman stays at home. What has happened here is that, instead of enforcing law, highbrows have indulged in a sloppy psychology which they believe to be a kindly alternative to British justice. To begin with, it helps them to evade the rather embarrassing obligations suggested by the Ten Commandments, and in the next place, it is something new. It substitutes Greek words like neurosis for English words like guilt. But with what result? The one person whose life is absolutely safe from violence is the person who has taken the life of somebody else. The State guarantees to him a green old age, and though, like Cain, he has a mark set on him, it is one which all must reverence. He has been claimed by the psychiatrists and has become one of their prize pets.—Truth.

Hunters Witness Big Battle

BETWEEN THREE MOOSE—BANGED THE LOT.

Writers of fiction who have gone with their timid guides across "those great open spaces where men are men," have told the tale of moose battling moose in this great season of the year called by the Red Man, the "Mad Moon Time."

Up in the Abitibi, where the season for big game has opened in all its glory, parties from all over the continent have penetrated the forests in search of the antlered monarch.

A party of seven New Yorkers who returned from the district recently, told the following story where they actually saw the struggle of moose against moose which authors romance about.

They stalked their game for two days, but fired no shots, for the beasts had kept away from the slant pools and had warmed themselves in the thick of the bush.

But on the fourth day, fresh tracks were found to lead through a low-lying second-growth, out into a brute and then across a patch of rotting balsam. Then this trail of fresh tracks crept over a mound and was foliated by another coming in from the right. Both sets, marked in the leaf-mould, dropped down into the bed of a deer meadow.

The seven new comers to the forest were startled at the sounds of heavy pounding. Two large beasts with well spanned antlers spread, moved rapidly across the meadow.

A third moose had come in to the meadow, and the three galloped to the centre of the patch.

With heads low, they charged their antlers, gashing their well covered heads. One of them was seen to weaken and sink away from the centre. Finding him weak the others charged more brutally.

Shots were fired from the sides of the seven men who watched the battle of the three kings who had fallen prey to the "Mad Moon Time." The shots found their mark and the bag was taken.

This is the story told by men of a party from Waverley, New York, who had arrived in Montreal with these three prizes and two others taken in the next day's shoot. The great heads of the monarchs were strapped to the sides of their forest-worn autos.

Largest Hen's Egg Weighs Eleven Ounces

What is believed to be the largest egg ever laid by a hen recently came into the possession of the Poultry Department of Oregon Agricultural College. The egg weighs 11 ounces and measures 8½ by 11 inches in circumference, five times the circumference of an ordinary egg. It is about ¼ inches long, or twice as long as the average hen's egg.

The hen that laid it is a singlecomb Rhode Island Red, and its proud owner is S. T. White of Corvallis, Ore.

Vikings of Old Times Show Great Skill

AS HARDY NAVIGATORS.

REYKJAVIK, Iceland—(A.P.)—American naval officers who last month visited Iceland in connection with the globe-circling flight of the American aviators, were greatly interested in the navigational methods of the old vikings who, more than 1,000 years ago, sailed their little vessels, without compasses or any other instruments, across the storm-beaten north Atlantic to Iceland, Greenland and even the shores of North America.

Even to-day the charts of these waters are largely based on observations and soundings made by whalers and the early explorers, scores of years ago, and a few large vessels that to-day visit these seas proceed with utmost caution. Sailing directions, the "Bible of the Sea," are carefully consulted, and when new soundings are made the results are sent to the different governments for incorporation in the charts. But when Lof Eriksson and the other adventurous old Norsemen of more than ten centuries ago set out on their adventurous voyages there were no charts, and the stars were the only directional guides. The observations they made were for centuries the only sailing directions, and were chanted, in the form of sagas, as the galleys swept over the rough seas. Some of these sagas exist to-day, and old pilots at Reykjavik are familiar with the lore they contain.

One of these, describing the journey from Norway, to Greenland, not only takes account of the physical features to be watched for, but advises the navigators to keep a lookout for the birds and whales that mark the approaches of the Iceland coast.

A naval officer who made a study of this route found it was almost a perfect great-circle, or shortest sailing route, worked out without scientific aids by navigators who probably could neither read nor write.

The Alternative

A physician, who was summoned to attend a miser's wife in her last illness, declined to continue his visits unless payment was guaranteed. After much pressure the miser drew up a document promising to pay Dr. So-and-so the sum of £—, "if he cures my wife."
The doctor declined to accept this. He could not promise to cure the lady, who was seriously ill, but he would do his best.
The promise was then altered to: "For assistance, kill or cure," and the physician received the paper. In spite of his efforts the patient died, and her husband repudiated the debt. The doctor sued him for the amount, and when the case came into court the miser requested to see the document, which he then read aloud with great deliberation.
"And did you cure my wife, sir?" he asked, glancing over his spectacles at the plaintiff.
"No; that was impossible."
"Did you kill her?"
Verdict for the defendant.
