FIFTH YEAR.

MR. STRATHY DEPOSED AND MR. INGRAM HIS SUCCESSOR.

ank reached a crisis yesterday when Mr. Strathy was deposed from the manage-ment and W. J. Ingram, manager of the Montreal branch, was put in his place. It seems that a meeting of the board was held in the forenoon, and the directors put it to Mr. Strathy that he ought to resign; he replied that if it was in the interest of the bank, he was prepared to do so, and did do so, and Mr. Ingram accordingly was given charge. Due new manager is a Scotchman, trained in London, New York and in Canadian banks, and who was assistant-general manager of the Mer-chants' bank at Montreal under George Hague; since h's resignation there he has been in charge of the Federal's Montreal business. Whether or not he is the man for the position remains to be seen; whether it the position remains to be seen; whether it was a wire act to depose Mr. Strathy also remains to be seen. It appears that the thange has been very bluntly brought about, and the new manager has been making some very blunt statements since he came into power. making some very blunt statements since he came into power.

Mr. Ingram called into The World office last night and said that he was just about to take the train for Montreal; that he was going down there to protect the bank's interests in that city, and to see some of its leading bankers. He said that he had assurances from prominent banks, from the Commerce, from Montreal, from Merchants' and from British North America that they would assist him as much as lay in their power to put things in good shape. What the real situation was he was not prepared to say. He would first make a thorough investigation, and when he made it he would take the public into his confidence. In the meantime he must take active steps to protect the interests of the concern. He said further that he did not think: the condition of the Federal was anything like as serious as Merchants' was when it was overhauled some time ago.

Merehants' was when it was overhauled some time ago.

Besides the losses of the bank there is the losses of individuals and corporations. The loss that the shareholders have sustained by the shrinkage in the value of the shares is large, but it only effects individuals; the losses of the loan companies that were carrying this stock on margin is more serious. They are bound to lose extensively, and will be forced to take over the stock, as the parties for whom they were stock, as the parties for whom they were carrying it are, as a general thing, cleaned out. If it teathes, them to keep out of this business the lesson will not be in vain. These loan companies that are scorched were in a great state of excitement yesterday, and may be still more bothered today. It is their place, however, to keep quiet and take their losses without making a noise, and to help their clients where they can. They don't want to do any "soueezing."

"squeezing."

A number of brokers and others held a meeting last night after the stock board to see what could be done in the way of holding up the bank. Mr. Taylor of the newlyorganized bank of London seemed to take an active part in the conference. Just what decision was arrived at could not be learned; indeed, it would appear likely that no definite conclusion was reached last parned; indeed; it would appear likely that no definite conclusion was reached last night, but that one will be reached this morning seems certain. What course they will decide upon will greatly depend upon the telegrams they receive from Mr. Ingram at Montreal.

To the Editor of The World. SIR: The harvest so long anticipated by The World has ripened. Yesterday Federal stock touched 82. I trace the decline from its true source, not to the immediate cause, namely, lambs and older sheep failing to put up additional margins; but rather to the public lack of respect for and confidence in the president and general manager of the bank. These two gentlemen, contrary to a l law and morality, have fostered under their wing a stock gambling brood, to the prejudice of the bank's good name. The eyes of the public are now open wide, thanks to the pungent odor from disgraceful lawsuits and the remarks of a critical press.

Syndicates may bolster up the stock and Syndicates may bolster up the stock and chosen examiners declare little weaknesses which are already known and discounted. Such actions will not influence the wary investor to approach.

Nothing short of Mr. Strathy's retirement and the bank's divorce from the speculative faction now connected with it, will restore public respect now alienated. It is absurd to suppose that the statement of the examiners will attract investors. What investors want is a reliable, honest management, and they will hold aloof until the present stock-gambling one is deposed. But who would succeed Mr. Strathy, you ask. Not W. J. Ingram. The stock-jobbing which has gone on at the Montreal branch has only been surpassed by that carried on here. The right man for the position is Mr. Plummer of the Merchants' bank. His acceptance of the general position is Mr. Plummer of the Merchants', bank. His acceptance of the general managership of the Federal bank would restore confidence. The bank has a splendid country business, and if the directorate determine to risk losing the cream of this fine connection rather than lose stockgambling managers, they will only be keeping the same perilous course they have pursued since the beginning. I trust, however, they will wisely follow public opinion.

NOTHER BOGUS LOTTERY SCHEME

H. A. L. White's Little Game New You See Your Money, and Then You

Ben't.

Sr. Mary's, June 26.—When the Guelph lottery swindle was fully exposed by the respectable portion of the Canadian press, but few people thought that Canada contained a set of men who would at such an early day concoct and endeavor to carry outso vile and barefaced a swindle as was the Guelph concern, but this classic town, which by the way is one of the prettiest which by the way is one of the prettiest river Thames, has produced a second John Lawrence Murphy in the person of H.A.L. White. Up to the time of reading the prospectus of the new swindle The World had thought that Mr. Murphy had entirely filled the bill in the lottery busings ness, but Mr. White seems to have taken a leaf out of Murphy's spelling book, and judging from the words of the prospectus evidently desires the threadbare mantle of the great lottery swindler to fall apon him-the great lottery swindler to fall apon himself.

"This is no lottery," says the precious four page document, "but a straight business enterprise," but in another paragraph it says it is merely "a division of surplus property by lot." If that is not a lottery, pray what is? The swindle is set affoat under cover of the St. Mary's carriage manufacturing company, which for all that is known may be a respectable concern, but it certainly does not reflect to its credit to allow its name to be used in connection with so palpable a steal as H. A. L. White advertises. "Now is your chance to win a fortune," says Mr. White.

Ask any of the dupes who purchased tickets in the Guelph steal what return they got for their money? Why, none at all. It nearly all went into the pockets of Murphy and his unsavory colleagues. And a good deal of it is in Murphy's bocket yet—away down deep, where not even those who stood in with him can reach it. That was their experience then, and it is doubtful if H. A. L. White ean play a second Heathen Chinee game in Canada.

A TORONTO QUACK'S FATAL WORK. He Kills a Child at London while Treating it for Deafness.

London, Ont., June 26 .- A Grand Trunk fireman named Bredin, who lives on Simcoe street, had a little boy about 3 years of age who two years ago lost his hearing. Lately the parents were induced to engage the services of a doctor named George On Monday the alleged doctor undertook the case. He proposed to split the child's ongue in order to give it power of speech. out began operations by injecting some colored decoction behind the child's ears to relieve the deafness.

The operation occupied an hour, and soon afterwards the child began to sink and gradually grew worse. The mother sent for Dr. C. S. Moore, who came to the house immediately. When the quack was informed that Dr. Moore had been sent for he refused to let him see the child or come into the room which he extra the child or come ne retused to let him see the child or come into the room while he was there, and the mother, relying upon the repeated assertions of Hall that there was no danger, told Dr. Moore so, and agreed to send for him br. Moore so, and agreed to send for him again if the child grew worse. The little one however never rallied, but died at 10 a.m. to day. Hall was at once arrested, charged with manslaughter, or, more definitely, with using such negligent and harsh treatment as to cause the death of the child, and was held to await the result of the inquest.

The prisoner is about 55 or 60 years of age, six feet in height, and has black whiskers. He claims to be from Toronto, where he lived twelve years, and practised not as a physician, but as a specialist.

Full of Electricity. St. CATHABINES, June 26.—George Pet tigrew, engineer on the steamer Algoma, had a queer experience with electricity short time ago. The ship is lighted by electricity, generated by two powerful dynamo machines. He undertook to use an iron wrench to screw up a bolt, and in order to do this had to go near one of the dynamo machines. The result was that he became charged with the electric fluid, the stream running up his right hand and going out at the tan of his head. His hair going out at the top of his head. His hair stood on end, and blue flames cropped out all over his head and face, setting him literally on fire without consuming him. The motion of the machine had to be stopped before he could be released.

ST. CATHARINES, June 26,-The outlook or peaches in this locality is very poornot this season alone, but from old trees, for the future. H.S. Strathy steps down and out from the Federal bank, and as he passes of pluck, of nerve, of daring. If Mr. Strathy was made for a banker, he was still more cut out for a speculator and his on that institution as it has on Queen's, dethronement is due to the speculator being stronger in him than the banker. He should have confined himself to speculation and that on his own account; when he turned the Federal bank, the property of others, into an engine for speculation and used the bank and all its resources to that end, he took a wrong step, and here it was that his critics make their point of departure. Money put into a bank, whether as stock, as deposits, or in exchange for hills of the bank, ought to be received as a trust, ought to be administered as a tnust and ought to be employed in the recognized channels of banking. Of all things it ought not to be used for speculation, v Mr. Strathy's sin was speculation, Time the profit had the deal turned out well-would have been the profit of his

As to his record as a banker, that has yet to be passed upon. It will be some time before the examination of the accounts of the bank is completed, and till of the burden. One wing of the anglican that is the case the public must withhold

As for sympathy, Mr. Strathy is too strongheaded a man to care much for that; he will however find plenty of it, seeing that his board turned against him so suddenly yesterday. But the board cannot make the late manager the scapegoat; they were consenting parties to all his transactions, and they deserve to be hoisted out just as summarily as they removed Mr. Strathy.

We wish to direct the attention of those who control the ferries running to Hanlan's point to the want of system in their service For instance, on Wednesday forenoon a number of gentlemen who are resident on the Island had to wait from 9.15 to 11.15 before a boat came to take them to the city. It would appear that there are plenty of boats to accommodate every one, but there is lack of system. We have no particular objection to the owners of the several boats plying between Hanlan's and the city pooling the business. In fact such a pooling is likely to give the public better service than if opposition boats are running; but when a powers ought to be further circumscribed. pool is gone into it should be so formed that instead of boats running at the same times they should be distributed one after the other so as to give frequent service. If the boat owners do not see their way to systematizing the service and giving the greatest possible accommodation they will find the residents of the island establishing a co-operative service of their own. Having advertized half-hour service in the busy parts of the day they ought to carry

The Presbyterian College Question. The discussion which took place in the last general assembly on the college question has roused a feeling in the presbyte rian church which will not be stilled until the question is settled. The six-college system is doomed, and it only remains to devise something else in its place.

What that something else should be, in the opinion of Rev. Principal Grant of Queen's college, was made apparent during the brief debate in the assembly. He would like to have Queen's college-which at present, in so far as its arts faculty is and the presbyterian have a disgraceful side, and one, too, which

With a view to preventing future misconceptions we propose just here to call the other treatment. That nation has an Inattention of Dr. Grant and all who think dian policy which many of its inhabitants with him to some obstacles in their way which they will beyond question find quite insuperable. In the first place, as already remarked, the arts faculty of Queen's college is not now under the control of the presbyterian church, and that Queen's college is not now under the control of the presbyterian church, and that church is not responsible for either its maintenance or its management. If Dr. Grant thinks he can induce the general assembly to assume that responsibility he will find himself in a fool's paradise. The church is carrying more financial loads now than it can bear, and if it assumes others the new burden will not be in the form of a secular university and college.

Moreover, it has long been the settled policy of the bulk of the presbyterian body to allow the state to provide the machinery for secular education and confine the church's efforts as far as possible to giving its clergy a good theological training. On this principle Knox colleges in Toronto, and the presbyterian colleges in Toronto, and Halifax have long been formed as the church's and Halifax have long been formed as the control of the presbyterian colleges.

Montreal and Halifax have long been friendly country; throughout its wide territories are demagogues whose sole occupation seems to be to excite, in the most blood and thunder style, the people against England. It abounds with gentle men whose business it is to collect money and pay hired dynamiters, and yet we are asked to believe that a people whose sensitiveness will allow of such acts not being constrained will not stretch forth and take us in, especially when we have been instructed as to the east with which such an act could be prevented—at little more cost than at present; in fact we have been inspired with courage by being told that we could alarm a people whom Provincial dilates upon as being most numerous, and capable of in a few days annihilating us. Our fears may be proved groundless by referring to the Swiss, a pation who inhabit rol of the presbyterian church, and that giving its clergy a good theological training. On this principle Knox colleges in Toronto, and the presbyterian colleges in Montreal and Halifax have long been conducted, the advantages offered by Toronto University college, McGill college and Dalhousie college being utilized to the benefit of the denomination. Is it reasonable to suppose that this wise policy will be lightly abandoned? In no other way can the church educate its ministry so cheaply, for neither Queen's nor any other secular university worthy of the name can be self-sustaining. If the fees are raised the students will go elsewhere.

It is necessary to remind Dr. Grant that inasmuch as the great majority of the students of University college are presbyterian the church has quite as strong a hold on that institution as it has on Queen's, over which it can exercise no direct control in any way whatever. Shall the detrol in any way whatever. Shall the denomination abandon its position in relation to the provincial university and college for the purpose of having a less efficient one of its own? Once more we assure Dr. Grant and his triends that if they are calculating on this they will find themselves offifth larger. They keep up an army of 25,000 men, I believe, and also a navy is which much money is yearly sunk. Shall we get along with a smaller army? Brazil,

The Herald says the question whether there shall be only one university in Ontario has been practically settled in the negative. Some time ago this assertion might have been allowed to pass unquestioned, but recent events and discussions have reopened the question and indicated a different tendency. The two methodist universities have been consolidated into universities have been consolidated into one in this province, and a great party has arisen within the methodist church which larger population, keeps an army of arisen within the methodist church which larger population, keeps an army of 48,000 men, I think, and so on. Now how anarenoiders; the deal naving turned out is earnestly desirous of confining denominate the loss is theirs, the dishonor ational effort as much as possible to the such as is mentioned, to do it on the presal training of the clergy. Soone or later this party will undoubtedly pre-vail, and the church will then make use of the provincial institution and relieve itself such a scheme. denomination has already done this, and it is not improbable that the other may follow its example. The Herald is therefore clearly mistaken in its estimate of the educational tendencies of the time, and it is equally astray in its foreshadowing of

> A Ratch of Holidays. It is only a trivial complaint, perhaps, but it is just one thing that shows what the colonial status is, namely, that a governor-general sent out to administer this colony and knowing nothing about our customs or practices undertakes to proclaim June 28 as a holiday to be observed as the anniversary of the queen. Notwithstanding that May 24 has already been celebrated. Consequently the banks, the postoffice, the custom house, all the courts, etc., will be closed on Saturday. Tuesday following will be Dominion day, thus giving us three days of idleness out of four. The governor-general, it would appear, can act in the solution of the presbyterian college ica.

The party papers as a rule despise their independent contemporaries but do not scruple to quote from them when it suits their purpose. Just at present The World is freely clipped, by different papers, being quoted both as an independent liberal organ and as independent with conservative leanings, according as it is necessary to emphasize the point under discussion. A writer in Notes and Queries says: "In The Newcomes, chapter 49 (1879) Thackery speaks of 'the Regent, Brummel, Lord Steyne, Fea Green Payne, and so forth.' The last name should be Hayne, but I find the error still uncorrected in the standard edition just published. In 1824 Mr. Hayne uncorrected in the standard ention just published. In 1824 Mr. Hayne nicknamed 'Pea Green,' was sued for breach of promise of marriage by the celebrated actress, Miss Foote, who gained her cause, with £3000 damages," Miss Foote subsequently married the earl of Harrington. Her only daughter is the Dowager Marchioness of Conyngham. Public sentiment went entirely with Miss Foote.

The invited guest appeared on time, but no host was forthcoming, and the guest, as he paid his bill, vowed to abstain for all time from favors toward Teutonic dealers in horse-flesh. one argument has been adduced which appeals to humanity—that is that our becoming independent will probably put an end to any chance of war between England and the United States. To a certain extent it might, but I think the cause will have an end put to it before the consequence. This cause, so ably described by Provincial, is the socialistic class in America. What makes me think so is that the of buyers to wisit the city during next week. The export trade continues dull.

The Local Market.

The Farmers' Market.—The receipts of grain on the street during the week were small and prices easy. In that time about 2400 bushels of wheat were received, 1000 bushels of oaks, one load of barley, 75 loads of hay, a. d 18 loads of straw. To-day the market was exceedingly quiet owing to the rain. Wheat is quoted at $1.03 to $1.10 for fall, $1.08 to $1.12 for spring and 75c to 87c for goose. Oats will bring 43c to 41c, and peas 73c to 75c. Barley and rye purely nominal. "But uncle." I was desperate, and in my misery sought to take my life. My good uncle took me to Clermont, stayed there two months, and did all in his power to distract my thoughts from Naomi, declaring she never could have really cared for me." evoked, as if by enchantment, a whole even now, when old age has left me barely energy enough to play at tric-trac, the remembrance of my youthful love fills

Over forty years ago, just after I had left college, my father, without consulting me, sought to obtain a post for me in a certain regiment quartered in the little town of X——, for which place I received orders to depart at once. This was distressing news for more than one reason; I had no special love for the army, though that objection was no great one, as at that time of my life the mere sight of a gay uniform, or the sound of martial music, sufficed to fire my ambition into becoming a Cæsar or an Achilles. But, worst or all, I was in love, and dared not tell my father; whose answer, I knew, would have been an order hastening my departure. Fortunately I had an uncle—and what an uncle! At that time he was as old as I am now, though still retaining all the vigor uncle lo. At that time he was as old s I am now, though still retaining all the vigor and freshness of youth. He was the confidant of our follies, loves, debts and aspirations. I went to him:

"Uncle, I am most unhappy."

"Ah, uncle, do not jest—besides you would lose your bet."

"If I lose, I pay. Perhaps that might help to console you."

"No; money has nothing to do with my wretchedness." Father has just accepted a lieutenancy for me in the — Regiment."

"Yes; just as you are a N "Yes; just as you are a N "Yes; just as you are not, the Edmont do

"No; money has nothing to do with my wretchedness." Father has just accepted a lieutenancy for me in the — Regiment."

"A misfortune, indeed! The uniformis most becoming, and all the officers are gentlemen."

"But, uncle, I do not wish to be a soldier."

"No; money has nothing to do with my wretchedness." "Yes; just as you are, or rather, as you are not, the Edmont d'Altheim of my youth."

"To think we should meet one day as strangers!"

"Yes, and then only play at tric-trac."

her?"
"Naomi."
"Hum.h!! Naomi may be enough for you; but I would like to know to what family this angel belongs."
"She is a Miss Amelot."

"She is a Miss Amelot."

"Indeed! Then she is truly an angel.
A tall, graceful brunette, with dark eyes, soft as velvet. I approve of your choice."

"And if you but knew her—"

"I do know her. Does she love you?"

"I'do not know."

"What! not know! You are unworthy of me. At her house every evening, and yet not know if she loves you!"
"She does not even know of my love."

"Pshaw! little you know about it. She knew you loved her at least fifteen minutes before you knew it yourself." "What I do know, at all events, is that I will die it she be not mine!' I will die it she be not mine!"
"On, no! Softly, my boy. There are many reasons why she should not be yours Your father is far richer than hers, and would never consent to the match."

"In that case, uncle, I know what I will "Nonsense! Do nothing silly. Listen rickety click, rickety click. to me. You cannot marry at twenty."

"Peace, or I shall say four! If she is willing, then, to wait three years, you will join your regiment."

"Oh, uncle!"

"But not this one. I will have you exchanged into one quartered within a few miles, and you may come home for three months every year until the term of probation is over."

"Well, it it must be—But how shall I know that she loves me?"

"Well, then, oby your father, and pack off at once."

"Well, then, oby your father, and pack off at once."

"Ah, uncle, youdo not know Naomi. A hundred times have I tried to declare my passion; I have wen composed speeches and learned them by heart; but at the moment of speaking ny courage wanes and each word chokes ne. Her expression is so sweet, but yit so grave. The man worthy of her is pt born! Writing was useless. When my effusions were penned and ready to be suft, their utter foolishness struck mes forcibly that I was at pains to tear my notes into small pieces."

"Nevertheless, you must make up your mind to speal at once. Your father has not told yould, he sends you to Clermont because his fend the colonel's daughter is destined to become your bride. It would indeed be sood match, but—no protestations—all the is as nothing, if you are really in low with Naomi. Love is folly—but it is skind of folly I should regret never havig been guilty of. Old people may call i non-sense, but perchance, the nonsenses theirs. If the airl loves you, you mursacrifice all for her—'tis stupid, maybe, out right. We must first ascertain if ae loves you, and now is the time, for the seek to marry her. Ah. ha! that for the remedicines and the wertised cures never record a cure at all. to take possession of an adjoining property, left him by a distant relative on condition that he would change his name to that of Descoudraies. I was quite jealous of the intimacy that soon had sprung up between him and my dear old friend.

On the evening in question they were busy over a game of "tric-trac." I entered of that note. After declaring my passion, I besought Naumi to love me a tittle in return, and to wait three years for me. If she consected I asked her as a sign to wear one of my rose that evening. Then would I dare to speak of my—of our—future plans.

"Ah! you hid that note in the bonquet?" interrupted Madame Lorgerel.
"Yes, madame."
"And then?"
"Well, Naomi wore no flower that even-

"Women seek the love of all men, but care for very few."

At length I succeded in banishing Naomi's image from my heart. I married the colonel's daughter, who, eight years later, left me a childless widower; my dear undle has been long dead, and I am now alone in the world. Would you believe it, my friends, I often to this day think of Naomi, and she is still to me, though now quite an old hady, the Naomi of my story—my first love—a tall, graceful girl, with auburn hair, and, so my uncle used to say, black velvet eyes?

"You know not what become of her?"

"You know not what become of her?"
"No, madame." "Then your name is not Descoudaries?"
"No; that is the name of my uncle's estate; mine is D'Altheim."
"I knew it?"

"Why?—how?"
"I will tell you what became of Naomi -she loved you."
"But the note—the roses?" "She never found your note. Your sud-den departure cost her many bitter tears, and then she married Monsieur de Lor-

Joy comes and goes, hope ebbs and flows, Like the wave. Change doth unknit the tranquil strength Love lends life a little grace,
A few sad smiles, and then
Both are laid in one cold place
In the grave.

Dreams dawn and fly, friends smile and die
Like spring flowers;
Our vaunted life is one long funeral.
Men dig graves with bitter tears
For their dead hopes; and all
Mazed with doubts and sick with fears
Count the hours.

We count the hours. These dreams of ours
False and hollow;
Do we go hence and find they are not dead!
Joys we dimly apprehend.
Faces that smiled and fied;
Hopes born here and born to end.
Shall we follow?
