

SUCCESS OF THE BOYS' BRIGADE MOVEMENT IN ST. JOHN

CHARLES THOMPSON, Quartermaster of the Scots Company.

THOMAS ARMOUR, Capt. of Portland Methodist Co.

GEORGE SMITH, Captain St. John Presbyterian Co.

COL. BUCHANAN, Commander of the Boys' Brigade.

JAMES SULLIVAN, Captain of St. Luke's Company.

RICHARD DOOE, Captain and Adjutant, St. Mary's Co.

CHAS. R. BARNHILL, Captain of the Fairville Company.

The first St. John company of the Boys' Brigade, organized a few years ago in connection with the Sunday school of St. John's Presbyterian church, is without dispute the pioneer company on this continent, in connection with the original boys' brigade.

The first St. John company has had a continuous existence since the date of enrollment, and the religious aim of the organization has been constantly kept in view. In one form or another there has always been a boys' Bible class and, as a rule, an address of five minutes closed every regular drill. Its parades are always opened with prayer and closed by repeating the Lord's Prayer in concert.

through the generosity of a gentleman of the city, were able to obtain a number of instruments and to organize a band in November last. Other instruments have been added since and the band now numbers about 22 players. Under the instruction of Prof. Williams the boys have made diversity in uniform, the dress of the Scots companies being especially neat and striking. Military attire is by no means an essential. With the members of the original brigade the wearing of cap and belt is considered a close enough approach to the military element. For it is only in organization that the boys' brigade is a guild, or religious society, and its object, according to the constitution, is the advancement of Christ's Kingdom amongst boys and the promotion of habits of reverence, discipline, self-respect, and all that tends toward a true Christian manliness.

1892 he joined the Highland Corps of the Boys' Brigade, it being the first of its kind in the province. The company rapidly grew until he had to make two corps of it. The other city churches becoming interested so much in his good work for the welfare of the boys, enlisted his service with the result that today St. John has a splendid regiment of nine companies numbering some 300 officers of companies and men. Colonel Buchanan is the possessor of two medals—the Penian Raid medal which people by declaring, in an article for Collier's of Sept. 17, his belief that Ireland is to be again a free and prosperous nation. Among other things he says: "The Irish people are especially qualified to enjoy life on their own soil if only they level the claims, and to bring out in fullness the intellectual as well as the material resources of the coming Ireland. There is a deep undercurrent of the poetic and the artistic in the Irish nature which the stranger can easily discover for himself, even among the Irish peasantry, if he enters freely into conversation with them and encourages them to talk of their memories and legends still haunting their lakes and streams. Such a people could indeed create for themselves a new Ireland, and there is no extravagance in the hope that the new Ireland would become, before very long, a model land of material comfort, of mental growth, and of tranquil and brotherly order."

A NEWSPAPER MAN'S VOYAGE ALONG THE SOUTH SHORE IN STEAMER SENLAC

lac observed the moon, and were greatly entertained by her changing aspect as she rose from the seaward horizon. The varied effects which attracted comment appeared to be produced with the aid of some very thin streamers of cloudy texture. At first a jaunty forage cap appeared to rest over the ear of the man in the moon. Next the orb resembled the head of a modest maid, with hair parted, and drawn low over her temples. Presently the face was partially masked, and then, as the airy finery was left behind, the face of the man appeared again, wearing a broad smile. The group standing by the pilot house assumed, of course, that the entertainment was for their benefit, and the captain and pilot agreed that the moon had never acted in that way before, to their knowledge, even when it was full.

There are several thousand people on Cape Island, and Clark's Harbor is a flourishing little town, largely interested in the fisheries. There are several boat-building establishments. There is telephone communication with the mainland, and regular communication by small steamers.

The lights of Clark's Harbor turned the conversation. This town is situated on Cape Sable Island, the home of the happiest of legislators. The gentleman in question is Moses H. Nickerson, M. P. He has the happy consciousness that a large portion of his constituents cannot get at him unless they hire a boat. But Mr. Nickerson is something higher and nobler than a mere member of the Nova Scotia legislature. He is a newspaperman, the publisher of the Coast Guard, and when his Yarmouth contemporaries assume an air of superiority he knows what to say to them. This Moses is a lawgiver to the fishermen. His paper champions their cause, and gives much interesting news relating to fish and fishermen. But only Mr. Nickerson's high reputation for veracity would persuade the people of the interior to accept the statement in the last issue of his paper, that a codfish recently caught there had "dropped out of its mouth a 'finch oak tholepin'."

far ahead. A black buoy will show white in the rays of the searchlight. The attention of the observers was presently attracted by an almost continuous stream of what seemed to be burning red sparks passing through the shaft of electric light. It was clear that electric rays passing through the air would not emit sparks and enigma was made as to the cause. It was explained that the air was full of small flies, and as each passed through the radius of the searchlight it became illuminated, and, when like a spark from a fire, it was susceptible to the presence of flies in the air around them, but the searchlight revealed great numbers of them in this manner. The entertainment given by the searchlight was even more interesting than that given by the man in the moon.

There was a group of persons together, and from their excited surroundings, and throw around them the glamor of moonlit sea, fringed by shadowy shores of mystery and they are not only more observant, but more susceptible to impressions. Even the young couple on the deck claim beside the forward cabin would have said as much.

At Barrington. The first glimpse of Barrington, whether by night or day, may be to some persons rather disappointing. The channel which leads in to the long pier, shown in the illustration, is narrow and tortuous. The shores are very rocky, but with boulders instead of cliffs, and in this respect the appearance of the place is quite remarkable. Loose stones, some of large size, are everywhere, and the underlying strata is also seen to crop out here and there. Farming at Barrington is carried on under the most favorable conditions. The soil between the rocks is evidently productive. The shores are generally low, bearing no comparison to the cliffs of the Bay of Fundy. There is no town of Barrington, but for miles there is an almost continuous village, with one main street. There are Barrington Head, Barrington Passage and West Barrington, stretching in a continuous line for more than a dozen miles along the irregular and much indented coast. Comparatively few houses are seen from the position of the place. But go ashore and in one direction to Barrington Head, or in the other to West Barrington, and an entirely different opinion is reached from that at first formed.

It is observed in the first place that if the soil is so rocky as to forbid extensive farming there is no sign of poverty anywhere. The houses are generally large and well painted, and there are pretty flower and vegetable gardens, and many handsome shade trees. It has been from the sea that Barrington has won most of its riches. There is, however, a carding mill and a woolen mill.

There were settlers in Barrington before the Loyalists came to St. John. An old, square, wooden church, with pitch roof and no tower or porch, looking for all the world like a spacious barn with windows in it, is still in use, and bears the date 1798. The frame was brought from the States by the early settlers. In a Barrington churchyard rest the ashes of Mrs. Israel Doane, the maternal grandmother of John Howard Payne. While there are churches of various denominations in Barrington, there is no Catholic church, and very few people of that faith.

In summer quite a number of Americans go to Barrington, and spend a portion of the season. There are no large hotels, but visitors can find accommodation at private houses. Many sailors and sea captains have gone out from Barrington, and a number of captains live there at present. The pilot and steward of the Senlac have their homes there. J. W. D. Stearns, a former editor of The Telegraph, but now of New York, has his family spent the summer there.

Trout and Moose. There is good trout fishing near Barrington, and wild fowl abound in their season. Before it stretches the sea, and behind it the wooded wilderness. The forest growth is rather scrubby, owing to the nature of the soil, and is not good for lumber operations. Good moose hunting may be enjoyed in this region.

Barrington Bay is a broad sheet of water separated from the harbor by a point of land. On its shores is a fine beach with remarkable sand hills, a popular place for picnic parties and bathers.

The Senlac lay all night at Barrington. The night was one of glorious moonlight, and most of the passengers during the evening strolled along the pier or through a part of the village. Quite a large number of people were at the pier when the steamer arrived, and many went on board to look over the vessel. It was well on toward midnight ere the echo of the last bell died away on the long pier.

Barrington now has railway connection with Yarmouth, and the little steamer La Tour also makes it a port of call. Several in fine weather may be seen the white sails of the fishing craft, so much in evidence everywhere along the south shore.

Phillips, of India, widow of the late Dr. Phillips. A most interesting feature of the meeting was the offer of Miss Dora Doucette, of Knowlesville, Carlton county, as a foreign missionary. She was gladly accepted and will stand the usual medical examination.

There is no salt for table use that can compare with WINDSOR SALT. It is absolutely pure, never cakes, and is always the same perfect quality.

THE EXHIBITION

Those who expressed the fear that the Chalmers celebration and the exhibition would be mutually injurious and would together prove too large an order for St. John in one year, will now be agreeably disappointed.

It will be well for St. John and the province to have the exhibition and the provided large receipts will enable the exhibition to be a financial success. At this season, with favorable weather, the number of visitors from outside points should be very great.

SIZING IS NOT STRENGTH

If Japan had been whipped in every engagement of this war, on sea and on land, it is easy to imagine what the general idea regarding the end of the conflict would be today.

PROGRESSIVE POLICY

Attorney-General Pugsley's announcement that the local government would guarantee four per cent. bonds up to $90,000 if the city took up the project of cold storage facilities at this port, was a most interesting feature of the speech making at the Exhibition opening on Saturday evening.

A GOOD SHOW

The Provincial Exhibition is going to break all New Brunswick records this year if the weather proves fair. Perhaps the opening ceremonies—interesting in themselves—prevented many who attended on Saturday evening from examining the various departments of the show in detail.

NOTE AND COMMENT

This week the aldermen are (no doubt) going to see that the streets are kept clean, and the Street Railway Company is going to provide an up-to-date service for the Exhibition crowds. Take notice.

the other countries named is seven times as great. In everything that contributes to the basis of lasting military strength there is the same disparity.

Russia has the men, but in ships, railroads, even horses, she is lamentably poor, and the nature of her territory makes this poverty all the more fatal.

A TROUBLED CONVENTION

The Republicans of New York, after a bitter fight which was carried to the state convention and which will be felt after it, have nominated for governor the present lieutenant-governor, Mr. Frank W. Higgins.

RENTS

There are in London 740 persons each of whom pays $5,000 or more a year for house rent, while ten years ago there were scarcely so many in all Great Britain who could afford that outlay for a house.

ANOTHER TRAGEDY

Violence is making a black record in New Brunswick this year. The inquiry into the tragedy at Havelock is only beginning, although the inquest is over, and the evidence so far forthcoming is somewhat contradictory as to the circumstances leading up to the death of McKnight.

DRIVING NORTHWARD

After the first Japanese army under Kuroki crossed the Yalu and moved on toward the railroad from Port Arthur to Mukden, and Oku shot off communication with that fortress by storming Nanshan, there was a prolonged period of quiet.

MR. BLAIR AND THE CONSERVATIVES

If the author of the story, that the Hon. A. G. Blair offered to run in the Conservative interests in St. John, does not find some means of apologizing, or making good his statements, he will be forced to defend a story which he knows himself to be absolutely incorrect.

WEDDINGS

Halifax, Sept. 17.—The marriage took place at 7 o'clock this morning in St. Luke's cathedral, of Rev. William Bernard Ssem, rector of St. Ann's (P. E. I.), and formerly assistant to the rector of St. Luke's, and Anne, eldest daughter of Rev. W. J. Ancient, diocesan secretary-treasurer, and one of the best known clergymen in the province.

approval. The solid progress and varied industries of New Brunswick are well represented, and a tour of the buildings is calculated to give the visitor a new and agreeable impression of the resources and development of New Brunswick.

AN APPEAL FROM JAPAN

The Telegraph has received from Tokyo, where it was mailed on August 19, a circular from "The Soldiers' Families' Relief Association," accompanied by this quaintly worded appeal:

"Dear Sir,—By the enclosed circular you will clearly understand the system and purpose of our Association. The emergency of the time has brought the organization so prominent as to attract national attention, though it is said the other cities visited by the Commission have presented such facts in detail. It is a matter in which St. John cannot afford to be careless.

The law marches with the British battalions. The British layonet has carried justice into many dark regions where justice was previously unknown. Chicago, Sept. 19.—Detectives have raided a Chinese gambling house and made 147 arrests. Six patrol wagons were filled with the prisoners. One apartment was used for opium smoking. For every day this week the programme is one to attract, instruct and amuse, and the Telegraph hopes that when the full story of the turnstile is made known a weak breeze the announcement will be read, the attendance has established a new record.

A LONDON VIEW OF US

The solemn London Times knows Canada and Canadians like a book. In an editorial commenting on the appointment of Earl Grey, "The Thunderer" remarks:—

"It may be added without indiscretion that no small part of Lord Minto's well-deserved popularity is due to his wife, Lord Grey's sister, who early won the hearts of the Canadians by her kindness and her admiration by the beauty of her skating. Whether the few government-entitled or the ladies of his family share this last accomplishment we cannot say; but it is easy to understand that a nation of skaters like the Canadians, think all the better of his chief for possessing it."

STEAMER ARCTIC OFF TO FAR NORTH

Montreal, Sept. 18.—(Special)—There were thousands of spectators on the King's wharf and on the DuRoi Terrace when the steamer Arctic left this afternoon for her three year cruise in the waters of Hudson Bay and Mackenzie River.

The minister of marine and fisheries went on board, and after having thoroughly inspected the steamer the minister addressed the crowd from the bridge of the vessel.

To Captain Bernier he said that he had the full command of the vessel and its crew, and that he was responsible for its safety. He wished to express his confidence in the crew and in the vessel.

OPENING OF THE GREAT FAIR A STIRRING SUCCESS

In Interest and Extent the Exhibitions Far Exceed Those of Former Years—Many New Features—The Opening Ceremonies Marked by the Attorney General's Announcement of Government Aid to Cold Storage Facilities—$60,000 Pledged.

What is going to be in every sense the most successful exhibition ever held in New Brunswick was formally opened on Saturday evening by His Honor Lieutenant Governor Snowball.

The opening ceremonies were marked by the announcement of Attorney General Pugsley that the federal government would contribute liberally toward the establishment of a system of cold storage warehouses, the principal one to be erected in St. John.

Interest in the opening proceedings was enhanced materially by the announcement of Attorney General Pugsley that the federal government would contribute liberally toward the establishment of a system of cold storage warehouses, the principal one to be erected in St. John.

The Attorney General. After a few pleasantries concerning the piano, and Mrs. Pugsley who had chosen a seat in the audience instead of on the platform, the attorney-general, who was loudly applauded, referred to a remark by Mr. Emerson.

The Governor. Lieutenant Governor Snowball, who wore his famous Windsor uniform, received a hearty welcome from the audience.

St. John and the Railway. There was another subject—the harbor and the great future in store for it if we receive fair play from the west of the Dominion.

At the opening of the fair, the Attorney-General was heard in his remarks, and great interest was manifested in his announcement of government aid to cold storage facilities.

Five Thousand People Present—What a Tour of the Exhibition Buildings and Grounds Reveals—The "Pike" is Livelier Than Usual This Year—Good Programme and Everything in Full Swing.

Two tame moose are a side show in a tent on the grounds. The sign "Beware of Pollock's," is in evidence all through the buildings. Denis, Branscombe, representing the Moncton Transcript, was a visitor in the press room Saturday night.

The poultry exhibits will be pretty nearly all in place this morning. Although in point of number there is a decrease from last exhibition, the quality of the entries is very much better, showing that poultry breeders are exercising more care in the selection of their stock.

There will be competitions in butter making in the agricultural building on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, which will be under the direction of L. C. Daigle and Dairy Superintendent Tilley.
