PROVINCES UNANIMOUS FOR LARGER SUBSIDIES

Quebec Resolutions of 1902 Are Reaffirmed With Slight Changes

Prince Edward Island Wants Per Capita Tax on Population at the Time of Confederation—New Brunswick and Nova Scotia Satisfied to Take Last Census as a Basis—One of the Requests is for Twenty Cents Per Head to Administer Criminal Law.

(Special to The Telegraph.) Ottawa, Oct. 8.—At the first session of the conference of the provincial and federal representatives this morning, over the question of provincial indemnity, Premier Gouin of Quebec presented the demand for the provinces in substantially the terms of the Quebec resolutions of two years ago, urging that increasing population and administrative expenses entitle the provincial governments to large capitalization allowances.

There was some doubt as to the position of Premier Whitney of Ontario and it was even suggested that he might oppose the demand for an increase on the ground that Ontario would have to bear the major part in finding the money. It is understood, however, that Mr. Whitney's position is that if there is any increase going, Ontario will accept its share.

POPE AND FOWLER LIKELY TO SETTLE PARTNERS' SUIT

(Special to The Telegraph.) Toronto, Oct. 8.—The dispute between A. A. Leffroy, M. P., W. H. Bennett, M. P., and Arthur C. Pechen, on one side, and the Great West Land Company, Limited, Rufus Pope and George W. Fowler, on the other, which was to have been commenced in the high court non-jury sessions today, has been placed at the bottom of the list, and it is believed a settlement will be arrived at. The terms, it was understood, have been practically arranged, but the sanction of Mr. Fowler is still to be obtained, and any settlement is as yet not public.

St. John's, Nfld., Oct. 8.—Popular anger against the modus vivendi arranged by the United States and British governments relating to the Newfoundland herring fisheries is growing. There is a general feeling that the compromise arrived at was a backdown on the part of the British ministry.

Some facts in relation to the Newfoundland government and the fisheries were stated in which it appears that the British government has been very much embarrassed during the negotiations on account of the demands of Newfoundland. The Newfoundland government is under the control of the merchant fishermen on the island, who buy and cure all the fishery products. They oppose any American fishing rights, including those granted by the treaty of 1818 and are dissatisfied with arrangements that the British government makes to carry out the terms of that treaty.

SHABBY TREATMENT OF LIPTON.

When Sir Thomas Lipton reached here the other day with the intention of trying to arrange for another race for the America Cup, the general opinion was that he would not be able to do it. It is well known by those familiar with yachting affairs that the policy of the New York Yacht Club does not wish to have anything more to do with Lipton.

Semi-Weekly Telegraph ST. JOHN, N. B., OCTOBER 10, 1906

A GREAT STEP FORWARD. There is a welcome intimation in our Ottawa despatches this morning to the effect that the Dominion government will give generous assistance to the cause of technical education.

SIGNS OF TROUBLE. The British and American governments have come to an agreement about the Newfoundland fishery question, the result being a modus vivendi to last this season and to be followed by a treaty which, it is promised, will remove all causes of friction.

THE KEY. There is one feature of the mail service problem which stands out very prominently, namely the importance of the freight and of this business in conjunction with passenger traffic.

STOP IT. There is too much foundation for the complaint made to the Globe by a Kings County resident concerning the illegal destruction of salmon at this time of year in the Kennebec.

DOUBT. Like a man to double business bound, I stand in passes where I shall first begin, And both neglect.

NOTE AND COMMENT. Havana, when the American troops landed "sat down and smoked a cigarette." Later on the cigarette will be attached to a fuse extending through the outlying provinces.

Militia Appointments. Ottawa, Oct. 5.—(Special).—The following militia appointments are gazetted:—62nd Regiment, St. John Fusiliers.—To 8th Prince Louise, New Brunswick Hussars.—Capt. J. H. Parks is transferred to the corps reserve.

NEW HEAD OF THE HIGH SCHOOL. W. J. S. Myles Appointed by School Board Monday Night. WOULD CUT OFF GRADE TWELVE. Chairman Thinks Enough Has Certainly Been Done Under Free System When Teaching of Eleven Grades is Given—Property Purchase—To Finish Manual Training School Within Estimate.

Canada and Uncle Sam. Canadians who write news and views for newspapers published in the United States, broadly speaking, may be divided into two classes: those who write the truth, and those who do not.

THE GAS QUESTION. The Telegraph on Saturday printed an interview with Mr. Swain, an expert employed by the local gas company to improve its plant.

Capt. McKinnon, of the strmr. La Tour, which is taking the place of the Grand Manan steamer Aurora while the latter is undergoing repairs, reports that about 10 o'clock yesterday morning, while on the way here, he passed the Boston barkentine Shawmut, Capt. Reicker, lying at anchor at the mouth of the Quoddy's, with a bad list to starboard and with deckload taken from the center and piled forward.

The Shawmut sailed from here a week ago yesterday with a cargo of laths shipped by J. E. Moore Co., and bound for Philadelphia.

Capt. McKinnon also reports passing off North Head, a sardine boat that reported that her tank had exploded, blowing out the whole top of the cabin.

With reference to the gasoline boat, Capt. McKinnon believes that there was no one hurt. Later the La Tour passed the cabin top of the gasoline boat.

With reference to the Shawmut John E. Moore, of J. E. Moore & Co., said last night that he had had no word from Capt. Reicker and consequently was inclined to the belief that there was nothing serious the matter with the bark.

The Nova Scotia schooner Nellie, Captain Barkhouse, left this port for Westport, N. S., on Saturday morning. While en route she met Sunday morning's storm and had a very serious time of it.

A Thrilling Novel of Mystery, Tragedy and a Stolen Fortune

By Eden Phillpotts and Arnold Bennett

CHAPTER VI The Verdict.

Philip's feelings to his own surprise, were profoundly stirred by the drama of the inquest. The vision of the sailor's corpse remained with him; he could not get rid of it. And then the sudden disclosure of the name of Gerald! And the bounds of justice, at fault yet, and yapping with eager, puzzled indecision; but sure ultimately to find the secret and to single out the murderer from six millions of his fellow men and mark him for doom! It was impossible that the murderer should escape! He existed! He existed! You no longer have the air of being penniless. In fact, I should say quite the reverse."

have been in blood—in the trench, and I put it in my bag. But the bag has been mislaid." "Mislaid?" "Yes." "Anything else?" And Philip produced the fragment of tortoise-shell which he had discovered behind the door of the cubicle. It was examined by the Coroner and the jury, and made a sensation. The reporters rejoiced in excellent copy and foresaw a cause celebre of the first order. "Now, Mr. Masters, you say that you were practically penniless on Tuesday night, and that you accepted the offer of a watchman on that account? You no longer have the air of being penniless. In fact, I should say quite the reverse."

"The day before the captain met his death?" "The day before the captain was murdered," said Mrs. Upttery, with terrible emphasis. And there was a silence. "I never thought of it," said the Coroner, "if you can assist this inquiry," said the Coroner, "I shall be glad to hear you, but I am not aware that your character has been assailed."

He Picked Up a Small Amber Colored Object.

At the same moment the electric light went out, the hour being midnight. He got into bed, and did not sleep till five in the morning, a distressing phenomenon conceivably due to the violent pain of Sir Anthony's pyjamas, a choice sample of which he was wearing, as his own little bag of necessities had been taken from the disappearance of the navy from the Corner House by Jiu Jitsu. He overheard himself, and had to interrupt his regime of economical thinking, and to the Coroner's court, and even then he was late. The court was packed; an extra table had been brought in for the reporters. The ganger in charge of the sewer-trench was being examined. "How long would it take to dig out the earth, but the Coroner was asking. "That depends!" grumbled the ganger. "On what?" "It depends whether him was digging it. It knoved one end of the spade from the other."

"Gentlemen," said the Coroner, facing the Jury, "You Have Heard the Evidence, Which is of a Sufficiently Contradictory Nature."

"I never thought of it," said the Coroner, "if you can assist this inquiry," said the Coroner, "I shall be glad to hear you, but I am not aware that your character has been assailed."

"The day before the captain met his death?" "The day before the captain was murdered," said Mrs. Upttery, with terrible emphasis. And there was a silence. "I never thought of it," said the Coroner, "if you can assist this inquiry," said the Coroner, "I shall be glad to hear you, but I am not aware that your character has been assailed."

Knowlton and Wathen and the Messrs. Knowlton, as chairman and speaker, spoke strongly in favor of parish school boards and compulsory education. John F. Doolittle spoke of the great influence of tea leaves in moulding character of pupils and criticized the English use of newspapers to teach people as concerning the teacher's influence. J. N. Wathen advocated more use of music in schools; condemned many of the teachers' books, especially the new readers, and held that the faithful teacher was far more important than a clergyman or judge. H. H. Stuart spoke of educational failures decreasing in country districts, where 400 miscellaneous schools have been closed for lack of teachers. The third session opened this morning. J. A. Edmonds, an expert in that line, gave a talk on arithmetic, discussing with the teachers every phase of difficulty in teaching arithmetic in all grades. Next came Miss Agnes Ferguson's paper on spelling. A general discussion followed, in which spelling reform was severely handled. Institute adjourned.
