Hurrah."

London, Sept. 8.—The 29th annual Trades Union Congress, of Great Britain, opened yesterday at Edinburgh. About 360 delegates were in attendance. The congress will close Saturday, Sept. 12. The power loom overlookers ask the congress to resid the famous collectivist resolution adopted at the British industries to nationalize the land, mines, minerals, royalty, rents and railways, and municipalize all water, artificial light and tramways undertakings within their several authorities, and that the parliamentary committee be instructed to promote and support legislation with the above

Councilor W. Thorne, of the gas workers, will ask the congress to declare "that the time has arrived when the hours of labor should be limited to eight per day, in all trades and occupations in the United Kingdom." Mr. E. Hartford, of the railway men, will bring up the question of employers' liability by a resolution calling upon the Government to so amend the existing act, "that, among other things, the responsibility upon the employer for the acts of his employes, or of those of any sub-contractor, and that irrespective of the acquiescence in knowledge of any defect or danger on the part of the persons killed or infured; that its provisions may apply to the workers in all industries, on land or sea, in private, state, or mur! cipal employment, and that contract-ing be made illegal." made a "test question at the general election." Employment of children in factories, which is injurious to the children, unjust to their parents and a crime against the human race. Municipalization of docks, wharves and warehouses, the release of all political prisoners, grievances of civilian musicians, hours of domestic servants which are not to be "more than 70 per week, including one and a half hours for meals per day." Fair wages, compensation for injuries, the hours of shop assistants, Government contracts, old age pensions, education and public money, and many other matters all have places on the programme.

CABLE NOTES. Sir Joseph Archer Crowe, the commercial attache of Great Britain at Paris, is dead. The Spanish Cabinet has decided to send two battalions of marines to the Philippine Islands. The British steamer Quiraing brings news of a serious earthquake which occured in Iceland on Aug. 27. At Toreiklavik two churches and a large umber of farm houses were destroyed, and many cattle were killed. Albert George Whitehead, the Irish-American dynamiter recently released from Portland prison with his mind shattered, who escaped from the home of his relatives at Skibbereen on the night of Aug. 24, has been found in Cork.

Execution of Peter Wheeler Digby, N. S.,

For the Murder of a Young Girl - Unusual Mode of Procedure

(Special to The Advertiser.) Halifax, N. S., Sept. 8 .- Peter Wheeler was hanged at Digby at 2:30 o'clock this morning by lamplight. The intended hour of execution had been given to the public as 8 o'clock. Immense crowds had gathered in town to see the execution. The first intention of erecting the gallows in the open jailyard was abandoned as risky. buy up a quantity of fruit and fowl Then on account of the feeling against for Li Hung Chang's consumption on the prisoner for the murder of 16-yearthe way to the coast. "Ducks" were old Annie Kempton, it was further deespecially mentioned in the message, cided to outwit the public, abbreviat-as Li is fonder of them than anything ing Wheeler's respite a few hours, and he was hanged in a room, eight by ten feet, on the second floor of the building. Capt. Allan, Salvation Army, had been with him all night, and the latter engaged with the prisoner in prolonged prayer. The hanging apparatus consisted of a rope running over a pulley in the room above the death chamber. Two ends descended through holes in the floor, six feet apart. On one end a 500-pound weight of lead hung, six feet from the floor and a small line held the weight in suspension. The noose in the other end of the rope was placed over Wheeler's neck. Wheeler said he was going to his doom. He said he murdered Annie Kempton at midnight, not in the evening as the crown had asserted. Wheeler's death was almost instantaneous, his neck being broken by the fall. The crowd outside the jail suspected that an early execution was intended, and were clamoring loudly for admittance at the time the pen-

ALLIRTS WIN TWICE. The Alerts demonstrated twice yeslerday that they could win-exhibi-Mon games. Such playing as they did would have won them the pennant when the season was half over. The sun is always more brilliant when it goes down, and so the Alerts' sun set in dazzling splendor. Both games were hard fought. The D.A.C. nine is a clever one, and a gentlemanly one, and nobody would have begrudged them at least one victory. Clark pitched both morning and afternoon, and deserves the greatest praise for his trying work.

MORNING GAME. No lover of baseball could complain of the play put up by both teams in yesterday's morning game between the Alerts and the Athletic Club of Detroit. It was neat, quick and clever. Brilliant plays abounded on many occasions. The pitchers were supported in a manner that encouraged them to keep up their speed and aided them in their ambition to put the batsmen to grief. The two errors made by the Alerts did not prove costly, while those of the D. A. C. helped the Alerts score the run in the fourth inning. To an observer the American club seemed the most confident on opening of the game. They have lots of life in their playing. One of the most noticeable features is the excellent manner in which they back up one another. Their coaching is good. In base-running they could do nothing. Snyder's clever made every baseman wilt in trying to steal second. Frank's quick eye also nailed a couple on first. As the game progressed and they made no head-way with Clark, they no doubt realized that the Alerts had improved wonderfully since the 24th of May, when the last game was played be-tween them, which the Alerts won. The Alerts jumped on the portly Guit-Clark had speed and good control, and up to the fifth not one foot had crushed the sawdust on a base past the first one. When the third player was retired in this inning, the third a single and a base on balls. It began and second bases were occupied, both to look as if the D. A. C. would tie men reaching these bases without & the score, but Kelsey opportunely and an error of Clark's was the cause. The crowd by this time was ver bolsterous. assists and one put out, pleased the crowd. Clark, Sippi and Wood had a double play in the ninth. Up to the fourth it looked as if the pitchers were trying to rival one another on base hits. Dr. Wood had secured the only hit. Delaney opened the fourth by driving a grounder at Chittenden. The shortstop's legs were wild throw to third he would have been put out. Sippl placed one at Buffalo..... Ducharme. Delaney scored, and Sippl got first on a fumble by the first baseman. Delaney's two-bagger and Sippi's single to left scored the second run in the sixth. With the score a tie in the eighth, Strowger made a threebagger to the right field track. Our usually clever base-runner could have reached the plate, as the ball was badly fielded to the third baseman. Two men were out at the time, and Strowger was left.

It was a restless audience when the placed a safe hit into center field. Not a spectator was quiet when Sippi stole second. On the go down Snyder bunted the ball safely along the third base line, and Sippi continued to the third bag. It was a beautiful judgment of base-running and eventually won the game, as Sippi scored on Mertsch's grounder to Chittenden, ending the same. Score: game. Score: ALERTS.

AFTERNOON GAME.

A larger audience saw another splendid exhibition in the afternoon. Clark pluckily went in again, and i he was hit somewhat harder than in the morning, his work, pitted against that of a fresh pitcher, was none the less commendable. He was plainly tired before the ninth inning, and relieved himself by throwing balls with his left hand at intervals. This rather surprised the grand stand. His left-handers are apparently as speedy and steady as his right. Hynd's work at center was a brilliant feature, but he most sensational play was a onehand catch by Dingwall, after spring into the air. He received an ovation. The audience was very generous, the visitors getting, if anyhard in the eighth, Strowger, Delaney, Snyder, Wood, Mertsch and Clark all making singles. Clark eased up in the ninth, and allowed two doubles.

THE LONDON TOURNAMENT.
The first annual tournament of the Western Ontario Bowling Association was begun yesterday morning on the was begun yesterday morning on the London club's grounds, across the river, before two hundred spectators, and was as successful as it was enthusiastic. No better weather could have been wished, and this did much to encourage the sport. The four rinks on the upper land were models of a bowling green, but the other eight rinks on the tennis plot were not so smooth, while most of them were a little heavy. This, however, disappeared as the day wore on, and each succeeding rink seemed to be disappeared as the day wore on, and each succeeding rink seemed to be against the local sports. Although not pleasant to be defeated, the proverbial good nature of the London club men prevailed, and whether ahead or behind, their beaming smiles evinced that no semblance of envy lurked about. It was a day enjoyed by everybody, especially as the ladies turned out in force to see the competition. The championship match was an interesting one, and fairly was an interesting one, and fairly well contested. "Ah, it's a beautiful one," didn't apply to the shots of the Londoners. For the most part it was the other way. Yesterday the preliminary, first, and part of the second ond round were played, and the first and second in the consolation. The championship match will be decided today. Following are the results:

McTaggart, Clinton; Gordon Smith, Paris; Thos. Blakeley, M. J. Kent, A. D. Huff, and

Col. Fisher, London.
The president, Lieut.-Col. Macbeth, called the meeting to order at 9:15. The minutes of the meeting held on May 25 last, for the purpose of organization, were read and approved. A lengthy discusison took place upon the question of affiliation fees, and as to whether it was advisable to change the fee, as only three clubs had paid. These were London, Chatham and Paris. It was decided to leave the fee at $3 and request the delinquents to pay up.

The following officers were elected

President, Lieut.-Col. Macbeth (re-el-ected); first vice-president, N. H. Stevens, Chatham; second vice-president, G. D. McTaggart, Clinton; secretarytreasurer, Ed Weld (re-elected); ora-tor, P. Mulkern; songster, W. Jack-son. These were elected amid applause, and unanimously so.

On motion of W. Brydone and F.

AT THE PARK. When the procession reached the park the crowd streamed into the new double-decked grand stand and the open stands as quickly as tickets could be purchased. In a short time about four thousand people were seated, and the proceedings were inaugurated by Mayor Little.

"Ladies and gentlemen," said he, "I desire to congratulate the various labor unions of the city on the grand display you have made and on the success of this demonstration. No of this demonstration. No doubt the bannerette was more or less an incentive, but it seems that each year shows a marked improvement over its predecessors, showing that you are increasing in influence and numbers and no doubt you will con-tinue to advance so long as your forces are managed with prudence and wisdom, avoiding violent extremes and keeping clear of charlatans and humbugs who would use you for their own purposes." The mayor then congrat-The mayor then congratulated the gathering on being the first to occupy the remodeled fair grounds, and referred to the hearty support the members of the various unions had given to the bylaw granting money for the erection of the new fair buildings. They had also supported the sewerage bylaw. "It is not surprising that the workingmen of the city would support it," he said, "because they are more interested in sanitary matters than any other class in the commun-ity. at Philadelphia, on Monday. Rowing championship of the world, won by Gaudaur at Putney, England, on Monday.

If there is any branch of athletic House, asking their lordships to bring sport in which Canadians have not shown that they are equal, or superfor, to any nationality in the world, vote of 25 to 44 against, and the latter let it be mentioned, and we doubt not by 33 for to 39 against. that representative sons of the Dominion will be ready for the fray.

North Oxford.

The seat in the Legislature vacated by Sir Oliver Mowat will be filled by an able man. Yesterday's bye-election resulted in the selection of Mr. Andrew Patullo, of Woodstock, as member for the riding. The Conservatives did not put up a man, but cast their influence generally with Dr. Adams, who ran as an Independent; but the electors indorsed the choice of the Liberal convention by an unusually large majority. Mr. Patullo has served the county in many important capacities. As a newspaper man he has interests in both town and country, and he can be relied on to make a model representative.

The Majority.

In an article on the recent session of the Imperial Parliament, in the September number of the North American Review. Justin McCarthy, the historian, says that in the ordinary course of affairs a British Minister thinks a steady majority of 30 a very satisfactory possession-a steady majority of 50 something to be proud of. That is in the British House of Commons, which has a total membership of 670 In the Dominion House of Commons, the total membership is 213, and interest naturally exists over the first test division in the new Parliament. There have been many wagers throughout the new country that the majority supporting Premier Laurier on the first vote of want of confidence would be less than 25, and many more that it would not be over 30. Those who have so supported their views with cash are, our Ottawa correspondent asserts, doomed to disappointment. In the division which takes place tonight on Mr. Foster's want of confidence motion, condemning the Government for obtaining the Governor-General's sanction to the expenditure of money to pay those employed by the country-necessitated by the bungling of the late Administration—it is now conceded that Premier Laurier will have a majority of at least 33, and possibly 35.

When the election courts have decreed bye-elections in a number of constituents now held by Opposition members, it is believed that the Gov- I ernment majority will be considerably

Mr. B. Hutchins of the firm of B. Hutchins & Co., real estate, financial and rental agents, Montreal, writes about Paine's Celery Compound, as Helen street, Montreal, for Book of Advice.

"About five years ago I wrote you letter acknowledging the wonderful effect your Paine's Celery Compound had upon me after I had given it a fair trial; that it had cured me tirely of neuralgia in the head, from which I had suffered most fearfully periodically for over 50 years, and for the bondholders. Hence my desire that of all my numerous friends and the public generally should know that there was really a cure for the painful and distressing diseases of rheumatism and neuralgia.

"Accordingly, I sent you, of my own accord, the only certificate I ever gave for a medicine, hoping many other sufferers might be induced to benefit by the use of Paine's Celery

"I have not had a return of my old complaint, and therefore have to confirm all the statements I have ever made respecting your Compound; and, moreover, I wish to say it possesses a merit which I think you have never claimed for it. Most ordinary headaches proceed from a disordered stomach, and in such cases a good dose of the Compound will relieve sufferer in a few moments, as it acts promptly on the stomach." In order to secure the grand results referred to by Mr. Hutchins the sick and suffering should make sure that they get from their dealers and drug-"Paine's," the kind that cures. Address Great Labor Day Demonstrations.

Mr. Laurier at Ottawa and Hon. Mr. Hardy at Toronto.

Touching Tribute to the Worth of Canada's Workingman Premier.

PREMIER LAURIER AT OTTAWA Ottawa, Sept. 8.-The First Minister addressed a large crowd at the labor demonstration here yesterday. The weather was bright and warm; it could not have been better. The parade in the forenoon was very successful in point of numbers, appearance and every other way. Large crowds lined the streets to witness it. At accompanied by Mr. A. Belcourt, M. P. for Ottawa. Mrs. Laurier, accompanied by Mrs. L. O. David and other panied by Mrs. L. O. David and other ladies, occupied prominent seats on the grand stand. The chair on the platform in front of the grand stand was occupied by Mr. Cleary, who introduced the Premier, who was received with loud cheers. He thanked the organizers of labor for the privilege of heing there to take his characteristics. the organizers of labor for the privilege of being there to take his share in the general joy. The bright scene which he saw, soft breezes, a balmy atmosphere, the games and the sweet faces before him, all these were a diversion from the routine of the House of Commons (Chaors). This was a constant of the control of the House of Commons (Chaors). This was a constant of the control of the House of Commons (Chaors). This was a constant of the House of Commons (Chaors). This was a constant of the Hamilton and the control of the c thought that Canada was a country, above all others, of which working-men especially ought to be proud. They had no privileged classes, no titles, no caste. Freedom and equality were their boon, and there was no position in the land not within the reach and ambition of every man among them. (Cheers.) When he entered Federal politics, now more than twenty years ago, it was his happiness

HON. ALEXANDER MCKENZIE -(loud cheers)-who commenced life as a simple mechanic. (Hear, hear.) He came to Canada as a young man apprenticed as a stonemason, earning his dollar a day. He had a brave heart and a noble mind, and not only worked with his hands but with his head as well. He had a fondness for books, and became a master meterwards an architect, and finally entered politics. As they all knew, he was able in a short time to take rank among the first in the land. For a young man to hold his own among statesmen like Sir John Macdonald and Hon. George Brown was no small credit, yet that honor was carried off by a man who commenced his career Lauried added: "You are brave, you Edinburgh, Sept. 8.—The congress of are, most of you, young; be true to yourselves, as Mr. Mackenzie was true to himself. He was true to his country. (Cheers.) Be as he was, frugal, active, temperate, honest, and all the fruits which he reaped may be yours." The Premier was loudly cheered on sitting down.

> PREMIER HARDY AT TORONTO. Toronto, Sept. 8.-Hon. A. S. Hardy, Premier of Ontario, was the principal speaker at the great labor demonstration on Island Park yesterday. The Premier said it would be unwise to speak on subjects connected with labor, Mr. Hardy went on, with such experts on the subject close by as Messrs. Jury, Glockling, Armstrong and many others. He had had an opportunity such as few men had enjoyed of coming into contact with leaders of labor, and he could tell his hearers that they had able leaders, fervent and honest leaders; there was no advance in labor which they did not seize upon and present to the Govern-

"What does it amount to?" called "What does it amount to?" returned the Premier; "it would take two or three hours to tell what it amounts to." Twenty years ago, Mr. Hardy assured his interrupter, they had made a beginning of systematic labor legislation, and there was now, owing to the initiative of the labor leaders, and the absorbing powers of the Govern-ment and the Legislature as fine a body of labor laws as in any State of country in the world. (Cheers.) Furthermore, steps were at that moment being taken to issue in a handy volume a sketch of what had been done in this respect. The labor leaders had found no opponents in the men gath ered around the council board: there had been the one thought to do all that could be done as far as conflicting interests would allow, and to carry out the wishes of organized labor. There were no opponents to legislation of this kind on either side of the House; both sides vied with each other to see what they could do to crystallize into laws what the country wished. It would not be difficult to point out what they had not done, but it was more interesting to point out what they had done. Mr. Hardy then spoke of the great question of legislation to raise the rate of wages and to shorten hours, and of legislation to protect workingmen from disease and accident Something had been done in this respect. Legislation must follow public sentiment in matters like these. Hardy reminded his hearers though it had not been possible to pass definite laws on these subjects, much had been done to advance public and an improvement was being effected, if slowly, at all events surely. No country could prosper where wages were low, he asserted; a high rate of wages was a proof of prosperity in a country, for a country's pros-perity depended largely on the wealth of its workingmen. Mr. Hardy then referred to the case of the unskilled laborers, saying that skilled artisans could look after themselves, but that the unskilled men needed more assistance and encouragement. An income of $270, $300, $400, was not enough, he declared, for a man to live upon, support a wife and family upon, send his children to school with, and present a decent appearance with. (Applause.) It was not by the Legisla-

ing his declaration in favor of better organization and higher wages.

ASYLUM VS. CONSERVATIVE CLUB The asylum cricketers on Saturday defeated the Conservative Club by 104 runs. The winners declared their inning when six wickets were down for 144 runs, after Flynn, England and Burnand had punished the Conservative trundlers to a considerable ex-tent. England played a pretty inning and privilege to serve under a man tent. England played a pretty inning who was Prime Minister of Canada, of 33, while Flynn carried his bat for a carefully compiled 30.

Burnand broke all the ground rapid scoring records by hitting up 63 in about 30 minutes. While at the wickets the big asylum cricketers scored no less than eleven fours and gave an exhibition of hard hitting powers seldom seen on this side of the water. K. Andras was the most successful of the Conservative bowlers.

For the losers, J. Andras was the only batsman who reached double figures, K. Andras and Dalton being the next best wielders of the willow. The Conservatives were only able to compile 40 runs against the asylum bowling, and when their last wicket fell were 104 runs behind their opponents. PREMIER LAURIER AT OTTAWA. Ottawa, Sept. 8.-The First Minister addressed a large crowd at the labor demonstration here yesterday. The weather was bright and warm; it could not have been better. The parade in the forenoon was very successful in point of numbers, appearance and every other way. Large crowds lined the streets to witness it. At Lansdowne Park sports and games were carried on. PREMIER HARDY AT TORONTO. Toronto, Sept. 8 .- Hon. A. S. Hardy, Premier of Ontario, was the principal speaker at the great labor demonstration on Island Park yesterday. The Premier said it would be unwise to speak on subjects connected with labor, Mr. Hardy went on, with such experts on the subject close by as Messrs. Jury, Glockling, Armstrong and many others. He had had an opportunity such as few men had enjoyed of coming into contact with leaders of labor, and he could tell his hearers that they had able leaders, fervent and honest leaders; there was no advance in labor which they did not seize upon and present to the Govern-

"What does it amount to?" called in the audience "What does it amount to?" returned the Premier; "it would take two or three hours to tell what it amounts Twenty years ago, Mr. Hardy assured his interrupter, they had made a beginning of systematic labor legislation, and there was now, owing to the initiative of the labor leaders, and the absorbing powers of the Government and the Legislature as fine a body of labor laws as in any State or country in the world. (Cheers.) Furhermore, steps were at that moment being taken to issue in a handy vol-ame a sketch of what had been done in this respect. The labor leaders had found no opponents in the men gathered around the council board; there had been the one thought to do all that could be done as far as conflict-ing interests would allow, and to carry out the wishes of organized labor. There were no opponents to legislation of this kind on either side of the House; both sides vied with each other to see what they could do to crystallize into laws what the country wished. It would not be difficult to point out what they had not done, but it was more interesting to point out what they had done. Mr. Hardy then spoke of the great question of legislation to raise the rate of wages and to shorten hours, and of legislation to protect workingmen from disease and accident. Something had been done in this respect. Legislation must follow publi sentiment in matters like these. Mr. Hardy reminded his hearers that, though it had not been possible to pass definite laws on these subjects, much had been done to advance public opinion, and an improvement was being effected, if slowly, at all events sure-ly. No country could prosper where wages were low, he asserted; a high rate of wages was a proof of prosperi-ty in a country, for a country's pros-perity depended largely on the wealth of its workingmen. Mr. Hardy then referred to the case of the unskilled laborers, saying that skilled artisans could look after themselves, but that the unskilled men needed more assistance and encouragement. An income of $270, $300, $400, was not enough, he declared, for a man to live upon, support a wife and family upon, send his children to school with, and present a decent appearance with present a decent appearance with. (Applause.) It was not by the Legisla-

ing his declaration in favor of better organization and higher wages.

Mr. John Ross Robertson, M.P., who also spoke, explained that he supported the new Government in taking a Governor-General's warrant to provide supplies till Parliament met, on the ground that such a course was necessary in order that the workmen might have their wages.

The Apple Trade.

London, Sept. 8 .- About 30,315 barrels of apples have arrived at Liver--4c, 205 pool this season, as against 802 last season. Only 2,600 barrels were Canadian, 1,100 barrels of which were offered on Friday. The others are New Yorks. Woodall reports the Canadians clear, but small and soft. They are sold as follows: Culverts, 8s 6d to 11s 6d; Jennetting, 9s to 10s; King Pippins, 13s to 14s; Cabershaw, 12s to 13s; Alexanders, 11s to 12s; sundries, 9s to 12s. Boxes Duchess bring from 3s to 4s. English apples dearer.

White & Co. report that any good fruit coming from Canada now will meet with good results, particularly bright-colored stock, valued here at from 12s to 16s per barrel. Montreal, Sept. 7.—Up to yesterday 22,133 barrels of Canadian apples have been shipped from this port to Liver-pool and Glasgow. For this season of the year this is well up to the stan-

He said he left it in front of the Ross Hotel on Dundas street, while he went in the hotel. He was only absent about three minutes, and when he returned it was gone. He says it was a Wilmott wheel, and japanned brown. Both forks are bent noticeably, and the right pedal slightly broken. He says the machine has only been in use about three months. ACCIDENT TO C. W. McCallum, of the British Association Committee, Toronto, brother of Dr. McCallum, of his city, who is now in England attending the Liverpool meeting of the association, has been interviewed by one of the London papers. He referred to the misconceptions of the Canadian climate Anderson & Nelles' drug store, ywt prevalent in the old country, and told this story as an illustration: "I went up Ben Nevis with some English friends the other day. It was bitterly friends the other day. It was ninterly cold on the top. I never felt such cold or anything like it in Canada. Yet my friends with one accord were quite surprised to find me unhappy. 'Why,' they said, 'this is your own Canadian climate.' They seemed to think that we wore furs for two-thirds of the year, and the idea has been fostered. year, and the idea has been fostered by those photographs in which Lord Lorne and our Governors-General are represented as smothered up to the ears in fur. Why, in Toronto it is almost a rare thing to see a fur overcoat. I have seen far more of them in Glasgow and Edinburgh in the last two weeks than I have seen for four or five years in Toronto."

Special to The Advertiser. Toronto, Sept. 8.-Complaints are loud in the dairy and honey sections of the Toronto Exposition. Owners of these come mostly from Western Ontario, and the Exhibition management have placed their building at the extreme east end of the grand stand, where few people walk and which many in search of these sections cannot find without considerable trouble. The surroundings are dark and altogether so unsatisfactory that honey and dairy men say they will hence-forth abandon the Toronto Industrial Western School of Art, this city, reand take their exhibits to London Fair. The building which they have heretofore occupied is now set apart for the bicycle exhibits, this change having been determined upon without consulting the previous occupants.

TIERNEY'S CLOSE CALL,

LORD RUSSELL'S visit to America reminds the London Chronicle of an ancient story. It says that during Lord Russell's previous tour in the country with Lord Coleridge he came in contact with many members of the bar, including Mr. Evarts. It was while walking with Mr. Evarts one day along the banks of a stream that (Wednesday), commencing at 2 o'clock. his attention was called to a point at which Washington, according to tradition, had thrown a dollar right across. The water was wide, and Lord Russell looked doubtful. "You know a dollar went further in those days than it does now," the American lawyer blandly insinuated. "Ah," said Lord Russell, puite equal to the ococcasion, and a big casion, "and it may have been easy enough to Washington; it is well known that he threw a sovereign across the Atlantic."

SLEEPLESSNESS is due to nervous excitement. The delicately con-stituted, the financier, the business man, and those whose occupation necessitates great mental strain or wor-ry, all suffer less or more from it. N. HUNT. 190 Dundas Street.

"Yes, yes; you have many ways to make profits, I hear. All do well, too."
"When God pleases, it rains with every wind, your Excellency." Then there was a little stir in the street—that peculiar sense of some-thing more than usual which can make itself felt in the busiest thoroughtare; and Colden went to the door and looked out. Joris Van Heemskirk was just passing, and his walk was something quicker than sir, what is to do at the wharf? I perceive the bustle comes thence.' 'At your service, Councilor Colden. At the wharf there is good news. The Great Christopher has come to an-chor. Capt. Batavius de Vries. So a good morrow, sir," and Joris lifted to Murray's wharf. Bram was already on board. His hands were clasped across the big right shoulder of Batavius, who stood at the mainmast, giving orders about his cargo. He was a large man, with the indisputable air of a sailor from strange seas, familiar with the idea of solitude and used to absolute authority. He loved Bram after his fashion, but his vocabulary of affectionate words was not a large Bram, however, understood him; he had been quite satisfied with his short and undemonstrative

"Thee, Bram? Good! How goes it?"
The advent of Joris added a little to the enthusiasm of the meeting. Joris thoroughly liked Batavius, and their hands slipped into each other's with a mighty grasp almost spontaneously. After some necessary delay, the three men left the ship to-gether. There was quite a crowd on the wharf. Some were attracted by curiosity, others by the hope of a good job on the cargo; others, again, not averse to a little private bargaining for any curious or valuable goods the captain of the Great Christopher had for sale. Cohen was among the latter, but he had too much intelligence to interfere with a family party, especially as he heard Joris say to the crowd with a polite authority, "Make way, friends, make way. When a man is off on a three years' cruise, for a trifle he should

Joanna had had a message from her lover, and she was watching for his arrival. There was no secrecy in her love affairs, and it was amid the joy and smiles of the whole household that she met her affianced husband. They were one of those loving sensible couples for whom it is natural to predict a placid and happy to see her the wife of Neil Semple did life, and the first words of Batavius

"My affairs have gone well, Joanna, they generally do, and now I shall build the house, and we shall be mar-

"All of them I have got. Much money, Batavius, they must have cost."
"Well, well, then! There is enough left. A man does not go to the African coast for nothing. Katryntje, myn Meisje (Katherine, my little one), what's the matter now that you never come once?" Katherine was standing at the open window apparently watching the honey bees among the locust blooms, but really perceiving something far beyond them-a boat on the river at the end of the garden. She could not have told how she knew it was there-but she saw it; saw it through the intervening space, barred and chaded by many trees. She felt the slow drift of, the resting cars, and the fascination of an eager, hand-some face lifted to the lilac bushes which hedged the bank. So the question of Batavius touched sary light. tion of Batavius touched very lightly her physical consciousness. A far sweeter, a far more peremptory voice, called her; but she answered, "There is nothing the matter, Batavius. I am well, I am happy. And now I will go into the garden to make me a fine

"For you also. To listen to Batawius is to learn something."
"Well, that is the truth. But to me all this talk is not very interesting. I will go into the garden," and she walked slowly out of the door, and stopped or stooped at every flower bed, while Joanna watched what will come of it?"

"No, it is Neil Semple. Tonight you will see. He comes in, talks of the Assembly and the Governor, and of many things of great moment. But it is Katherine for all that. A girl has not been in love four years for nothing. I can see, too, that my father looks sad, and my mother says neither yes nor no in the matter."
"The Semples are good business managers. They are also rich, and they approve of good morals and the true religion. Be content, Joanna, Many roads lead to happiness beside the road we take. Now, let us talk of our own affairs."

It was at this moment Katherine turned to observe if she were watch-ed. No; Batavius and Joanna had gone away, from the window, and for a little while she would not be missed. She ran rapidly to the end of the garden, and, parting the blac bushes, stood flushed and panting on the river known it would be. Captain Hyde's pretty craft shot into sight, and a few strokes put it at the landing stair. In a moment he was at her found to be terribly bruised and cut

He lifted it in his hands and kissed it again—kissed the rosy cheeks, and white dropped eyelids, and red, smiling mouth; vowed with if she listens and believes, when listening and believing mean to her perfect happiness? Not women who have ever stood, trembling with love to joy, close to the dear one's heart. If they be gray-haired, and on the very shoal of life, they must rememer still those moments of delight; the little lane, the firelit room, the drifting boat that is linked with them. If they be young and lovely, and have but to say, "It was yester-day," or "It was last week," still better they will understand the temp-tation that tation that was too great for Katherine to overcome. And as yet nothing definite had been said to her about Neil Semple, and the arrangement made for her future. Joris had intended every day to tell her, and every day his heart had failed him. He felt as if the entire acceptance of the position would be giving his litthe daughter away. As long as she was not formally betrothed she was all his own, and Neil could not use that objectionable word "my" in regard to her. Lysbet was still more averse to a decisive step. She had had "dreams" and "presentiments" of unusual honor for Katherine, which not seem to be any realization of her ambitious hopes. She had known Neil all his life, and she could not help illusions, and doomed to disappoint-Besides, with a natural contradiction, she was a little angry at Neil's behavior. He had been coming to their house constantly for a month at least; every opportunity of speaking to Katherine on his own behalf had been given him, and he had not done so. He was too indifferent or he was too confident; and either feeling she resented. But she judged Neil wrongly. He was an exceedingly cautious young man, and he felt what the mother could not perceive, a certain atmosphere about the charming girl which was a continual repression to him. In the end, he determined to win her-win her entirely, heart and hand; therefore he did not wish to embarrass his subsequent wooing by having to surmount at the outset the barrier of premature "No." And as yet his jealousy of Captain Hyde was superficial and intermitting; it had not entered his mind that an English officer could possibly be an actual rival to him. They were all of them notoriously light of love, and the colonial beauties treated their homage with as light a belief; only it angered and pained him that Katherine should suffer herself to be made the pastime of Hyde's idle hours. To be Continued.

Don't You Remember Long Ago? As the years roll on we more and more recall the events of the past. School days, with their tasks and chores come back again to us in memory, but with the glamour and en-chantment of distant views. The old school and church, the boys and girls we romped with, father's voice, mother's smile, the joy of the holiday —no pleasures of the present can compare with those enjoyed in the days now locked up in the eternity of the past. In a similar way we recall the old time tested friend of the past— Putnam's Painless Corn Extractorthat never failed us then and is just as sure to serve us now. The Prince of Naples, very short, very thin, very sickly, is going to marry the Princess of Montenegro, tail, athletic, robust, beautiful. By this combination the Italian royal family hopes, not without reason, to Mrs. Seleste Coon, Syracuse, N. Y., writes: "For years I could not eat many kinds of food without producing a burning, excruciating pain in my stomach. I took Parmelee's Pills according to directions under the head of 'Dyspepsia or Indigestion.' One box entirely cured me. I can now eat anything I choose without distressing me in the least." These pills do not cause pain or griping, and should be used when a cathartic is required. It was charged in France by the Op-position that the Government had spent 1,000,000 francs in entertaining Li Hung Chang, but the official figures show that the whole cost, counting hotel bills and all, was 80,000 francs, or about $16,000.

Mr. Carpenter had gone to the bottom of the well, and his non-appearance indicated to Chrysler that there was something wrong. He told Carpenter's little girl to run for help, and while she was away Chrysler went down in the well. The little girl went to Edwards. girl went to Edwards and told his son, who started for the woods to tell his father. Carpenter's girl went across the road to Doughty's, who went with his son right away, taking Moses Furlong. On arriving at the well they could see Campenter lying over a brace, which is about half-way down. Mr. Furlong went down to put a rope on him, when he was overcome gas, and Mr. Edwards, who had arrived, after having a rope tied around his own waist, went down for Furlong, and found him lying on top of Carpenter. The gas was so strong then, that Edwards had to be pulled twice to the top of the well to get air, but the third time he managed to take the rope off Carpented, which Furlong had put on and put it on Furlong, who was then drawn to the top, and he was just about done for. Both bodies were taken out, but it was too late.

A Story From Renfrew - A Clergyman's Mishap.

Renfrew, Sept. 8.-Rev. Mr. Webster, the Methodist minister, who has been at camp near Bonnechere Point, met with a curious experience, which might have been of a very serious nature. He was fishing in the lake, formed by the expansion of the Ottawa River, off Bonnechere Point. When baiting his hook with a worm, he has a habit of washing his fingers afterwards, by dangling them in the Ald. Pritchard Excels Even Himself as a Kicker.

In Opposition, First, Last and All the Time.

Wanted the Council Meeting Declared Illegal.

Says the Sewerage Bylaw Was Carried by "Miserable Brutes,"

And That Its Promoters Hired Pluggers Jumped on the City Clerk - Called the Mayor a Tyrant-A Little Business Done.

The City Council met last night. The council had become nicely setled, and the mayor had expressed his pleasure at seeing the members in session again after the holidays, when Ald. Pritchard arose.

"This is a statutory holiday, and we have no right to hold a meeting here tonight," he declared in a fierce voice. Ald. Carrothers-What's the law? The Mayor-The clerk informs me it is perfectly legal. "Is the clerk of the city going to rule this council?" shouted Ald. Pritchard. "He has no right to dictate to this council." "Your protest will be recorded," said the mayor, in a soothing tone, as he called on the council to proceed to Ald. Pritchard-That don't satisfy me. I don't think this meeting is legal. I would agree to adjourn until In reply to the mayor, the city clerk said he did not see why the council could not meet on a statutory holiday as legally as anyone could work. The city solicitor worked today on the sewerage bylaw for tonight's meeting," he said. "He knew the council would meet, and surely if it were illegal he would have mentioned it. Ald. Pritchard (pounding the table)

-I want you to rule, your worship. Ald. Parnell-Mr. Mayor-Ald. Pritchard-Hold on, I have the floor. I want the mayor to rule whether we can meet here tonight The Mayor-I took advice from a quarter in which I have confidence. and my information is that the meeting is legal.

Ald. Pritchard-Where is the quar-The Mayor-Mr. Kingston. Ald. Pritchard-I want to know whether Mr. Kingston is to rule whether we are right or wrong. Ald. Parnell and Ald. Cooper tried to switch the council on general business, but Ald. Pritchard would not down. "You are treading on danger-grounds," he said. "It is a legal holiday, and you can't do any business tonight."

"We are going to do it," said Ald. Armstrong. "Communications!" said the mayor sharply, as he began the next order

ANOTHER ONE. Ald. Pritchard here sprung his second kick. The city clerk usually gives the council an outline of each communication, and it is then referred to its proper committee. Ald. Pritchard contended that the communication, and it is then referred to its proper committee. Ald. Pritchard all the rope he wanted until now, and had tried to pacify him throughout. But his worship resolved tions should be read in full because the full council knew nothing about them. Ald. Parnell replied that there was no need of it. Committees were struck for that very purpose. Ald. Pritchard moved that the comnunications be read in full.

No one seconded. "Oh, very well," he said. "I know what this council is. It will never second anything I move." Ald. Taylor agreed to second the motion as an act of courtesy, and it was lost, Ald. Pritchard and Taylor only voting for it Ald. Pritchard demanded the yeas Ald. Dreaney-Oh say, is this the aldermen to the city clerk. "It's a matter of no importance," said the mayor to Ald. Pritchard. "I have something good to tell you. I have just sent a telephone message to the city solicitor, and he informs me the meeting is legal." But Ald. Pritchard's irate breast wasn't going to be soothed that way. That's got nothing to do with my question," he said, turning again on Mr. Kingston. "Did you say that it was illegal to record the yeas and Mr. Kingston said he did not say so, and Ald. Pritchard should be gentlemanly enough to accept the state-ment. He appealed to Ald. Carrothers, who backed him up. A THIRD KICK.

Under the head of inquiries, Ald. Pritchard asked if the street railway company adhered to the rules laid down in the bylaw. The Mayor-I don't know that they haven't. I will send for the bylaw. Ald. Pritchard said the company had no right to put advertisements in their cars. "If that isn't in the bylaw, then I don't know anything about he added.

The Mayor (dryly)-That may be so. "What's that?" snapped Ald. Prit-chard. "Did you say I didn't know anything about the bylaw." The Mayor-I said no such thing. Ald. Pritchard—I object to that insinuation. You said I didn't know anything about it.

The Mayor—No, I did not. I never insinuate anything; I say exactly what

THE CULMINATING KICK. After several other kicks of various kinds, including one at the Governor-General, the culminating kick came about 10 o'clock, just before adjournment. It arose over the third reading of the $150,000 sewerage bylaw which was adopted at the polls. Said Ald. Pritchard: "It's a strange thing, that in a bylaw of that description, the promoters should resort to the plugging that was done in that election. That these men, calling themselves respectable, should get miserable, contemptible brutes, that did not care a straw whether they perjured themselves or not, to vote the way they did—I say it is a disgrace to the city of London. My vote and the votes of honest, square men were wiped out by miserable brutes who voted five of six times over.' "There was none of that done in No. 3 ward," said Ald. Wm. Heaman, in-

"I can prove it was done all through the city," said the irrepressible Pritchard, "and I wish to God I could have a chance to prove it before a court of justice, but we can't get fair play out of this council."

The third reading of the bylaw was then moved.

Ald. Pritchard-I object to it being The vote stood 12 to 1, Ald. Pritchard being the 1. "Yeas and nays!" shouted Ald. Pritchard. A disgusted grunt went up from the aldermen. The mayor had given Ald.

to call a halt. He ignored Ald. Pritchard's demand and ordered the next bylaw to be read. "Are you going to smother me?" howled the kicking alderman. "Yes," replied the mayor, as looked calmly over his eye-glasses. "I Mrs. Sanders to Aged People's Home. have stood more than Job tonight, Referred to mayor and inspector with and I am going to stand no more."

The mayor ordered another bylaw o be read. Ald. Pritchard rose and walked in front of the mayor's chair. "I won't forget the way you have sat on me tonight," he said, shaking his finger No. 1. at his worship. Then he slid through the door, and the aldermen breathed more freely.

THE COMMITTEE REPORTS. In the brief periods between Ald. Pritchard's kicks the council managed to do a little business.

sured him that the work would be done as soon as possible. The third ward would have to be finished first. Miss Heay's application for damages, through the patrol wagon collision, was referred back to the committee by Ald. Parnell's request for fuller consideration. The assessment commissioner will inquire if the property owners on the Market Lane object to a brick pavement. If not, the work will be begun at once. Ald. Prit-chard kicked against the motion. Ald. Armstrong brought in the report of No. 1 committee. The petitions of Mrs. Moorehouse, John Mason, M. A. Brophy, Dela Cahill, M. F. Major, Catherine Bremner, Elizabeth Jones, J. Hartley et al., for remission of taxes, were filed. Mr. Thos. E. Taylor asked remission of the City Hall rent on the night of the colored ball, The petitions of Jane Lloyd, S. L.
