The portrait of Lady Eden was painted in 1894, and was exhibited in the salon of the Champ de Mars. A dispute arose between Mr. Whistler and Sir William Eden as to the price of the picture. Vienna, Dec. 3.-A report is current, though unconfirmed, that a mob at Prague attacked the soldiers, and a sanguinary encounter ensued. According to this rumor the troops fired the first volley, killing 25 rioters outright and wounding many. Well-dressed men, it is aid, rode on bicycles through the city and the suburbs, making lists of the German places for attack. Goldsmiths' and jewelers' show cases were emptied in a few minutes. Women carried baskets to take home the contents of grocery and provision stores, while the portfolios in the new cabinet has furniture and other articles too heavy to carry were wantonly destroyed. If the troops had not used their swords and bayonets freely Prague might have been burned from end to end. In several cases Jewish shopkeepers escaped crucifix in the shop window. The pillaging was so systematic that in one street alone fifteen Jewish shops were ransacked. An ambulance corps was attacked savagely because the doctors were recognized as German.

The Orr Murder.

Continuation of James Allison's Trial at Berlin.

Evidence as to the Time the Tragedy Took Place-Trevellyan on the Stand.

[Western Press Special to Advertiser.] Berlin, Ont., Dec. 3.-Good progress was made in the Orr murder case to-The crown has fixed the time day. when Allison must have left the Orr's to go to Barrie's farm with the cows at 8:45 or 9 o'clock, and his return at 10, just a few minutes previous to the return of the husband of the murdered woman.

It is shown that Allison told conflicting stories about the gun found hidden in the Orr barn. R. Trevellyan, the so-called "medical student" from Montreal, swore that Mrs. Orr had one time previous to her death loaded the gun for Allison. In the Galt lockup Allison told Trevellyan of having shown Mrs. Orr how to handle the gun on the morning of the murder. Asked about his contradictory stories, Allison replied "I had to say something.' Stalker, the mysterious red-headed stranger whom Allison led people to believe had committed the murder, proved a complete alibi. Arthur Kinsman, Allison's companion, swore the prisoner said that on the Sunday previous to the murder Allison told him that everybody was intimate with Mrs. Orr, and he would assault her on the first opportunity. Kinsman was committed to jail on Sept. 13; witness spoke to Allison through a hole in the cell wall; Allison denied murdering Mrs. Orr when Kinsman asked if he did it; when reminded of his threat to criminally assault Mrs. Orr, Allison said: "Hush! don't tell This concluded the crown's

The defense moved that no case had been made against the prisoner. The judge ruled differently and the defense proceeded. Their evidence was to show that Allison was not on the Orr farm between 7:30 and 8:30 o'clock, when the murder was done.

THE DEATH CHAIR!

Martin Thorn to be Electrocuted During the Second Week in January. New York, Dec. 3.-At 10:30 o'clock, Justice Maddox sentenced Martin Thorn to death by electricity Sing Prison, during the week beginning Jan. 10, 1898.

New York, Dec. 3 .- Judge Maddox, in sentencing Martin Thorn, said: "It is needless for me to state anything touching the facts in this case, more than to say that the evidence justifies the verdict. The judgment of the court is that you shall be taken hence from whence you came, and thence to the state prison at Sing Sing within the reasonable time; that there you shall be executed in the form prescribed by law in the week beginning Jan. 10, Thorn listened to the ominous words without moving a muscle. The prisoner, through his lawyer, then handed up an affidavit to the court applying for an appeal, and stating that he was without funds to employ counsel. In the paper he asked that Mr. Howe be assigned to look after his interests. Justice Maddox took the affidavit and will pass on it later. Thorn was then led to the jail below.

In the aftermath of the trial the details of jury charges contribute a curious element to the costs of this trial. The Garden City Hotel yesterday presented a bill for $2,049. Of this amount $816 is for accommodation accorded the first jury, which served until appendicitis forced one of the twelve men to retire. The succeeding jury rolled up an account of $1,233. Two packs of playing cards are mentioned in the itemized bill, and Queen's county is asked to pay for them. One juror was hard pressed in the game. He borrowed a quarter from the hall boy and forgot to pay it back. The hall boy did not forget it. The quarter is charged in the hotel bill. Of equally absorbing interest is the item of night-shirts. When the jurors entered upon their duties the hotel manager lent shirts to them. There is also an item of $30 for shaves and hair-cuts. The board of supervisors of Queen's county expect that, with all court expenses, the total cost of the Thorn trial and Mrs. Nack's coming trial will be about $15,000.

EASTERN LEAGUE.

New York, Dec. 3.-The meeting of the Eastern League of professional baseball clubs was continued here yesterday. The make-up of the circuit and the charges against Manager Irwin, of the Toronto club, were discussed. Representatives of the Worcester, New Haven and Rochester clubs were out in force. All three of these cities are looking for an Eastern League franchise. In the case of the withdrawal of either Wilkesbarre or Scranton from the circuit, one of these cities will be admitted, and the chances are said to be in favor of Worcester. Mr. Powers said this matter would not be decided by the league until its spring meeting.

A number of the most important questions which came up for discussion went over without any action having been taken thereon. One of these was the question of next year's make-up of the league, which now will not be settled until spring, probably. It is believed that Scranton will not be included in the new schedule of games, as the matter of retaining its place in the league has been left over to the management of the club itself.

The question as to the ownership of the Steinert cup was settled. Toronto gets it. Provisions governing the cup series provided that seven games should be played. Only five were played, owing to the bad weather. Of these Toronto won three, Syracuse won one, and the fifth resulted in a tie. Therefore the ownership of the cup had remained until the present unsettled. Arthur Irwin, of the Toronto club, also scored another win, inasmuch as the threatened charges against him relative to his club being nothing more than a farm for the Washington club, in the National League, failed to materialize. He was before the board, however, and questioned in regard to this matter, but he denied the truth of such reports.

The drafting question was also gone into, but no special action was taken. A telegram from President Ben Johnsen, of the Western League, asked that the delegates sent to Buffalo by the Eastern League to attend the joint conference of the Eastern and Western organizations be empowered to vote upon the drafting question. This was an indication of co-operation which was received with satisfaction by the representatives. President Powers will appoint the delegates later.

Berlin, Ont., Dec. 3.-At the trial of James Allison, charged with the murder of Mrs. Anthony Ort, on Monday, Aug. 9, Anthony Orr, husband of the murdered woman, was called. He said he left home on the fatal morning about Wizard's highest run was 51, while 7 o'clock for his cousin's, Andrew Orr, Sutton played his high mark at 38, having instructed prisoner Allison to making more than 30, however, on take two cows to George Barrie's several occasions. Slosson won the night fast and was ready to start milking, which would take her half an hour, or less. On his arrival home shortly after 10, his little child met him on the veranda and informed him that his wife was missing, after which he saw pris-oner Allison standing grinning, with a hayfork in his hand. He asked him what he was grinning for, and told him to look him straight in the face. Witness then went into the house to see if the sins were there. He found Allison's gun, with one cartridge missing. Allison told him he knew nothing about it. A short time after Harry Blair, of Galt, arrived, and a search was instituted. He went to Galt to see if Trevellyan, who frequently visited his home, was at home. The next morning (Thursday) the searching party found a grave in the swamp, not filled. A gun, shovel and spade were produced and identified by witness as the ones found at this place. Mrs. Orr's body was found on the following Sunday morning, in a shallow grave near the house in a corn patch. Prisoner, according to witness, looked very uncomfortable when called to see the

J. R. Blake, counsel for the defense, then cross-examined the witness, and endeavored to show that it would have been impossible for Allison to have committed the murder. Witness contradicted himself as to the time it would have taken Mrs. Orr to milk the cows. At the preliminary examination he swore that it would have taken her fifteen to twenty minutes. Yesterday he gave the time as 25 to 30 minutes. When he heard of his wife's disappearance his first thought was that she had committed suicide, and then that she might have eloped.

Maggie Orr and Norman Orr testified to seeing Mrs. Orr alive on that morning about 7 o'clock. Robert Barrie, a neighbor, said he saw Anthony Orr pass shortly after that morning; also saw prisoner James Allison, with two cows, pass about 8:30. At the preliminary examination this witness said he saw Allison about 8. He said it would take about 45 minutes to go with the cows on the mission young Allison was sent on that morning. He (Barrie) tested the journey. He swore that Allison told him Mrs. Orr was gone.

Alex. Cowan saw Anthony Orr pass his place about 7:15 a.m. Jane King and Andrew Orr both testified to seeing Anthony Orr on the testified to seeing Anthony Orr on the morning of Aug. 7 at the farm of Andrew Orr, a cousin, about 8 o'clock, respectively overpowered, Carr begged the jail officers to choke him to death. HAMMMOND'S TRIAL. Bracebridge, Ont., Dec. 3.-Up to the present time the evidence against the prisoner is materially stronger than it was at the same stage of the former trial. The admissions made by the prisoner at the coroner's inquest, which are now in evidence, are most damaging. On the night Miss Tough was found in the snow he denied that he was married to her or that he had been with her that evening. At the inquest, however, he admitted that he Tom Sayers' grave in England is de- was married to her, and that he had been with her on the evening of her death, about 8 o'clock; that he saw her again about ten minutes afterwards, and talked with her for about half an hour, when she went into his father's house with him, where they both stayed for fifteen or twenty minutes. The meeting at the house was by arrangement. The evidence of Pake also new. Dropped in the Pews - Many Worship. ers Critically Ill and One of Them Will Probably Die.

Kingston, New York, Dec. 3.-There are many persons residing in Palenville, a small settlement in the Catskill Mountains, who are ill as a result of having inhaled coal gas. Several of them are still in a critical condition, and one, Mrs. Anna B. Hill, an aged lady, will probably die.

The entire population of the Gloria Dei Church was nearly asphyxiated by coal gas at the Sunday afternoon ser vice. Even the minister was badly affected, and finally called to his congregation to leave the church. There was a defective flue in the furnace, and from it there escaped into the tightly closed church a considerable volume of coal gas.

The smell of gas was strong, but as in all country churches the smell of coal gas is not unusual, none of the congregation thought the fumes any stronger than they had been on former occasions. The rector of the church, the Rev. Mr. Hance, was pained to see numerous members of his congregation with closed eyes, their heads nodding to and fro as if they were just about to

To awaken them the rector raised his voice, but with no effect. Finally, to his amazement, he discovered he himself was feeling drowsy. It was with difficulty that he was able to follow his notes. As quickly as possible he finished his sermon, and then with heads bowed low the congregation knelt for the last long prayer. Long before the prayer had ceased pretty Miss Lucy Gemp tumbled over on the floor. Miss Alice Lamboreau, a young woman sitting in the choir, next also fell to the floor. Several members of the congregation went to the assistance of the young women, but as they walked down the aisle all of them reeled like drunken persons.

The rector, too, reeled dizzily as he paused in his prayer, surprised at the actions of the congregation. Gradually he realized the drowsiness of himself and church members must be caused by inhaling fumes of the deadly gas. "Get outside," he called. "You will die if you stay here." And those who were able to tottered out of the church door to the open air, where some of them revived. There were many persons so nearly overcome by the gas that they had to be carried out of the church:

KEELY'S FLYING MACHINE

Weighs Only Two Tons, but "Sympathetic Outreach" Keeps

It Up. Philadelphia, Dec. 3.-John W. Keely, of motor fame, has invented a flying machine. It is a huge affair, weighing considerably more than two tons, and occupies a commanding position in one of the three upper rooms of his laboratory, on North Twentieth street. The base and shaft-bearing portions of the flyer are of cast iron, while the shafts and the major portions of the large, curiously constructed wheels are of highly polished steel. The wheelsthere are two large ones-have their inner rims filled with a series of vitaiized discs, the component parts of which are as yet a secret, upon which power is generated by a sympathetic vibratory machine. Keeley said to-

"By this aerial engine of mine, properly mounted in a position suitable for traveling through the air, I will be able to go anywhere and at any reasonable speed. How can I get such a heavy thing to go up and maintain its aerial position? We all know that in the forces of nature there are two properties, like in electricity, for instance. In that we have the positive and negative. In what we have been taught is gravitation by Sir Isaac Newton and other illustrious physicists-I find the opposite ce, levitation.

"In other words, this machine will be capable of making a sympathetic outreach for a distance great enough about itself to not only neutralize the effects of gravitation, but to permit the engine and its equipment, no matter how heavy or heavily burdened, to keep up. The force can be lessened to any degree, and the engine permitted to descend as slowly, as gracefully and as safely as a bird alighting."

Their discovery startled the medical profession the world over, and revolutionized the t. atment of kidney diseases.

No imitator has ever succeeded in constructing a name possessing the peculiarity of DODD, though they nearly all adopt names as similar as possible in sound and construction to this. Their foolishness prevents them realizing that attempts made to imitate increase the fame of Dodd's Kid-

FOUNDER AND MANAGER, John Cameron

London, Friday, Dec. 3, 1897. Municipal Management in London and Ottawa Contrasted. A few days ago, an Ottawa "indeendent" paper took to lecturing the eldermen and people of London on deplorable condition, because there had not, as it had apparently informed by mischief-makers here, sufficient "independence" in the management of civic affairs in London. As a people, it was argued, we had in the near past reached a most shocking condition because of this failure to be "independent." The "ideal" condition of civic management we were led the honorable gentleman, and about a to infer from our Ottawa contemporary, was to be found in that city. If not, how could our far-away journalistic mentor have the temerity to become a missionary to the citizens of London? Mr. German, who moved the address in reply to the speech from the throne in the Ontario Legislature, very properly brought the Opposition leaders face to face with many of the untrue and exaggerated statements made by them when on the stump, and when they believed that another session of the Assembly would not be held. The Knight of the Piggery, Mr. St. John, was given an exceedingly unpleasant ten minutes, as Mr. German unfolded his extraordinary yarns. This Opposition leader started out in St. Thomas to criticise the Government for one piece of extravagant expenditure, and mentioned a magnificent piggery, on which the Government had spent $35,-000. On the next day at Windsor he dropped $5,000, and claimed the Government kept one pig in an establishment that cost $30,000, but of course $5,000 did not count for much with Individual Communion Cups. There has been a great deal of discussion in England, as elsewhere, on the subject of individual communion cups. The following letter, from a Christian physician, which appears in the London (England) Christian World, is particularly interesting, in that it suggests a practicable and unobjectionable method of meeting the difficulty:

"Sir,-In a recent issue of your widely-circulating paper a corre-spondent deals with the above subject, which calls for the thoughtful consideration of the churches, and determination of all members thereof for prompt and thorough reform with regard to a custom fraught with so much risk or danger to individual health, and that under religious practices physical well-being shall not be endangered.

"Eminent physicians and devout Christians referred to as condemning or evading the usual practice at the 'Communion' are not alone in their views thereon, and the following aspects arise in the present writer's mind:

"1. The custom is uncleanly, unwholesome and injudicious that a common cup should pass from one to a number of persons and be so used. The diseased cannot help it or have the condition removed. The profession of religion does not always insure cleanness or purity. The risk of contagion may be great, and specific conditions so affecting the breath, mouth or throat too peculiar and varied to be entered upon here.

2. Multiplication of cups for the service as adopted by some churches seems to savor of the aroma and style of 'the tap-room' rather than for a Christian Church; must entail unnecessary trouble and expense, and may possibly not be altogether free from risk in re-use. "3. There seems a simple and inexpensive solution of the subject, capable of being carried out in a manner satisfactory to all proper feeling, avoiding all risk or danger to health, and free of all unpleasantness or offense to communicants, and fully in harmony with the sanctity of the service. "Their fragile biscuits could be used or broken into small portions and placed on a plate or small dish, thus preserving the institution of breaking the bread.' A little wine could be poured into another small dish or cup; then, on being used, each communicant could take or break a piece of the biscuit, and slightly dip the end of it in the wine and so partake of both together. Such practice would economize the use and expense of wine in the service, would fully carry out the most sacred of memorial rites,

avoid all risk of disease therein, and, I believe, would be appreciated bread and wine, and would also enlarge the number of communi-

THE VOCALIST'S TRIUMPH. The youth sang out with might and ing, secretly endure suffering that would drive the average man to a mad-house. In almost every instance these sufferings are due to disorders of the distinctly feminine or-ganism. They rob a woman of her health, her beauty, her amiability, her usefulness as a housekeeper, her capability as a mother, and her charm and power in the social and religious world.

There is a safe, sure, speedy and permanent remedy for these troubles. It is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It acts di-rectly on the delicate and important feminine organs that bear the brunt of maternnine organs that bear the brunt of maternity. It endows them with health, strength, vigor and elasticity. It allays inflammation, heals ulceration, soothes pain and stops exhausting drains. It banishes the maladies of the expectant months, and makes baby's advent easy and almost painless. It insures the little new-comer's health and an ample supply of nourish. health and an ample supply of nourishment. It fits for wifehood and motherhood. Thousands of women who were almost hopeless invalids have testified to their recovery under this wonderful medi-cine. Medicine dealers sell it. Accept no cine. Premier Hardy and the Opposition Leader Speak.

Provincial Timber Limits the Principal Topic.

Mr. Whitney's Stump Speeches Still Plaguing Him.

Toronto, Dec. 3.-In the Ontario Legislature yesterday, Mr. Whitney resumed the debate on the address. The opposition leader met the assault made on him by Mr. German and Mr. Farwell by saying that he did not intend stand. He made a marked departure from the custom by refusing to compliment the mover and seconder on their speeches. He said these speeches were feeble because defense of the government was difficult. He criticised the settlement of the pass question, but did not say how he would have disposed of that matter. Dealing with the Engledue matter, Mr. Whitney ignored the fact that he had stopped Mr. German in a statement that the opposition leader had declared last session that the members of the syndicae well knew the richness of the lands covered by their concession. Though he objected to that imputation when made by Mr. German, he announced his intention of standing by everything he had said on the subject, and did not think it worth while to say what portion of Mr. German's statement he had challenged. Then he made two contradictory statements (1) that men who owned mines adjacent to the conceded lands were members of the company and knew all about the property, and (2) that it was a "foreign syndicate" all the way from South Africa. Mr. Whitney said he was in favor of restricting the limit holders to sawing their logs in the province. The assertion in the opposition press that the session was brought on for the purpose of calling in Mr. Whitney from the mission field was indorsed by the gentleman himself, and the government benches were unkind enough to laugh at the suggestion.

Premier Hardy banteringly accepted

Mr. Whitney's explanation of the calling of the session, namely, that it was to bring him in from the stump. "Yes," he said, "We have called him in here where he can make his accusations to our face and in the face of the country." Mr. Hardy pressed home the logical consequences of the statements of Mr. Whitney and his colleagues. If they were sincere in their criticisms, they, if charged with the administration of the affairs of the administration of the affairs of the statements of the provincial treasurer was altogether too modest in his estimate. In moneys and resources the province has many millions of a surplus.

Dr. Willoughby moved the adjournthe province, would cease using the ment of the debate. the province, cease collecting the re- SANDBAGGED cession duties. From these sources tion of it, however, was that it would be tract of timber land belonging to the ber limits in private hands, which had never had an axe laid on them, remained potential sources of revenue. The bonus was only a portion of the receipts which flowed from them into the provincial treasury. He gave a list of owners who, having bought their limits many years ago, still retained vast tracts from which the province would collect dues as soon as their owners determined to begin cutting Of the lands which were still in the hands New York, Dec. 2.—Beeves-Receipts, of the province, Mr. Hardy described Calves-Receipts, 368 head; 512 river and runs most of it south of the height of land to Lake Superior. The summer traversing for 60 miles a tract | plaints. of timber-bearing land of which nothing was formerly known, which was in no respect inferior to the best timber lands in the older part of the province. Beyond the height of land their officers had reported great forests of large-sized spruce, a timber that was rapidly approaching the white pine in value. The premier made a most effective comparison of the quantity of timber lands that had been disposed of during the 25 years of Sir Oliver Mowat's administration with the 25 years that preceded Confederation.
The sales of that administration in that time had been 4.200 square miles, not one-third of the sales of the earlier period. He asked what had been the policy of the Ottawa friends of the opposition when they had become possessed of some timber lands in the northwest, and by aggressions in Ontario. They had sold a greater mileage in fourteen months than had been sold in Ontario in 25 years, and at $5 an acre. Mr. Hardy quoted Mr. Pardee's estimate, namely, that at that time there was enough timber in sight to last 100 years under the careful methods of protection from fire and wasteful cutting that were now the rule. Mr. Hardy said that anyone listening to Mr. Whitney's talk about the Michiganders in our timber country would imagine that their possessions there were of vast extent. The fact was that about 215 miles of limits had been purchased by Americans from the government. What other berths they owned had been purchased from private owners. While dealing with this branch of the question

This is the first fatality —The lecture on "The recorded in the city, and even this first victim was not killed by being struck by the car. In the city there are over sixteen miles of track, over which cars pass every few minutes. From the advent of the electric road in London, the management have from time to time emphasized warnings to their motormen and conductors and that only one fatality has occurred in two years, the company assert, speaks volumes for the care exercised by its employes. Several narrow escapes have been recorded from time to time, and fatalities have only been averted by the carefulness and presence of mind of the men in charge of the cars. In Toronto, the first year of the electric railway, seventeen persons were killed, and the death rate in other centers is large. As an instance, in New York the average death rate is

95 per year. Montreal and other Canadian cities have many fatal accidents attributed to the trolley, but in London this is the only one recorded in two years. The carefulness of the company may be better understood by the citizens who know the crowded condition of the streets at times and the thousands of citizens and vehicles that pass the corner of Dundas and Richmond streets to the four cardinal points, when it is stated that every day 850 cars cross over this crowded section, and yet not one accident in any degree serious has happened at this quarter. Sir John Carling, who a short time ago was riding in a rig which was accidentally struck by the trolley on Richmond street, near Carling, rewarded the motorman, who, by timely presence of mind, prevented a serious accident, by sending him $10, and complimenting him and the company for their great care. Moore & Henry have prepared a plan of the road, showing minutely where the accident occurred. It is alleged that Mr. Spice, while endeavoring to avoid a mud-hole in the road, got on

At each stop during the night word had been flashed to Canton of his progress, and at each stop a telegram told him that his mother still lived. soon as Pittsburg was reached. Judge Day accepted the offer of the railroad company, and a special engine was attached to the car. The president at that time was asleep. All trains were sidetracked, and the last 101 miles was covered in two hours. At 8:55 the president reached Canton. Upon his arrival at the home of his mother, Pre-sident McKinley entered the sick-room and knelt by the bedside. She was unconscious. All that now remained was to wait for death, and to hope before it came that the mother would be able once more to recognize her children.

Sometimes, receiving this bright answer, Mrs. Payte caught herself smiling into this girl's earnest eyes—but only sometimes. The answer generally met with a grunt of skeptical surprise, and, but that Honore looked for no thanks, her eart might have grown idle or rebellious in this task, But it never did: and when a month was gone, and October was drawing to its close, Honore was still fulfilling this one duty, her soft voice and step untiring, and her gentle hands unfailing, in their prompt and loving ser-

Miss Trent had made her duty call as brief as possible, and now was relieved to feel that the ten minutes were over, and she might depart.

"I am very sorry to hear that Mrs. Disbrowe is so ill; I hope we shall soon have better tidings of her.' So she was saying in her languid tones, when Honore entered the room; and the cold wish, so impossible of fulfillment, made the girl's heart feel hot and angry when she heard it.
"I hope so," rejoined Mrs. Payte, curtly. "She's a good deal of trouble to me, as you may imagine."

The words stopped Miss Trent.
"Oh, no," she said, from a lofty height of superior knowledge; "he has been away and has returned.' "Oh, that's it, is it? I thought he was going again; but old women are not reliable authorities; the absurdity of their tales is proverbial. I don't wonder he came back, the shooting here is so good; I don't wonder he goes away again, the air is so vile. Mr. Haughton ought to invite him to the Larches, Honore; he would like that." On this quizzical speech fell Miss Trent's slow, cold question as she looked from one to the other.

"How do you mean? Is Honore unwomanly enough to try to attract Mr. Keith to the Larches?' "Unwomanly," smiled Mrs. Payte; "is Honore unwomanly, you ask? I have not known her so long as you have; please to answer your own question. I said I only thought Mr.

"What a curious thing," said Honore, laughing. "What was it, Theodora?" "He said"—the words were uttered with but little compunction-"that you were not a girl on whom any man could bestow a strong affection. The faintest possible smile of contempt stirred Miss Trent's lips. Could any invalid be lost without this chat-tering and restless little worry? she thought. But she only said aloud. "It is very awkward for you. Why is not the medicine sent?"

"She wishes for a bottle of medicine she used to take. Sick women are so fanciful! She thinks a dose of that would give her a good night." Honore looked up brightly at the "I will go, Mrs. Payte," she said;

It was an unnecessary speech, because she could plainly see that Royden had not only waited, but was coming toward her. He had a smile of pleasure on his face when they met, but, before that, it had worn the sorrow of thorough disappointment. Every few days since his dog had saved the life of that child who lived in the solitary cottage among the green lanes, Royden had paid the mother a. visit. But those visits-though his voice was good to hear, and his face good to see in her gloomy home, and Keith would be very glad to visit at though his thoughtful gifts were luxuries, and his tenderness to the little child was now the little fellow's one idea of happiness-brought a growing gloom instead of brightness to the mother's face. And this very day he had found the cottage locked and empty, though on his last visit no mention had been made of the probable departure. Royden mused deeply over the circumstance, recalling how, on that last visit, he had once again talked of Margaret Territ, and had noticed with what eager, petulant haste the mo ther had turned aside the subject, hurrying to say, as she had said before, that she had no neighbor Margaret-no neighbor at all-and that she wanted none. Yet on the day afterward she had left, and had taken her child no one knew whither. How could Royden help musing upon this, and feeling that the one clue which he had for a moment held within his hand, was lost again? Still the smile broke in his eyes as Honore camevery lingeringly-up to meet him. (To be Continued.)

178...... Job Department FOOD IN THE KLONDIKE. At the Askin Street Methodist ley on "British Columbia and the Klondike." The lecturer is thoroughly familiar with these gold regions, and his descriptions were supplemented by lime-light views. Regarding Rossland, he said the prospects of mines in that district were excellent. Many which are not now on a paying basis could, he thought, be made profitable if sunk to a depth of 400 feet. His advice to prospectors going to Klondike was to take an all-Canadian route, for greater protection. The idea that people at Dawson City would starve during the winter was erroneous, he said, as they could get plenty of fish by simply boring through the ice. The abandoned territory in the Klondike would all be taken up again, he believed. Prospectors there now would not look at a claim unless they could make $40 a day on it. The lecturer thought the government should do all possible for the development of the country, and see that the smelting be done in Canada by Canadians.

Contractor A J. Brown Makes Some Serious Errors.

His Tender for Sections of the New Sewer Should Have Been $3,828 Higher.

Would Carry on the Work Under Certain Conditions - South Street Ratepayers Do Not Want a Sewer.

Contractor A. J. Brown, of Toronto, who recently put in a tender for the sections of the sewer last let $7,000 less than the next lowest tenderer, has found certain mistakes, and they were point-! ed out in a letter last night to the special sewer committee. His price was $39,060-nearly one-half of one of the ing with Dr. Wishart, of London, left other tenders. A reply was received, asking to be allowed to retire from the contract. Two Church last night an interesting lec-ture was delivered by Mr. H. C. Cooks-says, which total $3,828. One was a clerical error made on the item for pumping and getting rid of water from the trench, charged at $200, instead of $2,000. The other error arose through ignorance of the specifications. When figuring, Mr. Brown failed to notice that lumber would have to be placed under the brick and pipe sewer, estimated to cost $2,028. The letter states another error arose through not understanding having to go under the steam railroad tracks, but he did not place an estimate on the cost of this. If the committee would not allow him to withdraw, he asked that they allow him to supplement his tender by adding either the item for water or for bottoming, and that he be given eight months for each section to complete the work. A'so that he be paid fortnightly 90 per cent for the work done. It is not likely the sewer committee will consent to these modifications in the specifications. Mr. Brown is expected to come to the city immediately to talk over the matter, and on motion of Ald. Carrothers, the sub-committee was instructed to carry out the
