VIEW OF MAYOR

Action of Utilities Commission on Swimming Pools Arouses Opposition.

Declaring that it is time for a change in the personnel of the public utilities commission. Dennis J. Tallant, treasurer of No. 1 branch of the London Labor Party, today announced his candidature for that board in December next.

To The Advertiser. Mr. Tallant made it clear and emphatic that his action is prompted by the failure of the utilities commissioners to act yesterday upon the recommendation from Mayor Wenige that the civic bathing pools be available for the people on Sundays, as requested by thousands of bona fide citizens whose names were on several petitions submitted by the mayor. "It is time that this high-handed business was stopped," Mr. Tallant declared, "and I am announcing to-day that I will be a canddiate next lection, when the people will have a real opportunity to give their answer to the present commissioners."

Two Go to People. Two members of the commission go to the electorate in December if they feel so disposed, Philip Pocock and Jared Vining, the present chairman. The commissioners are elected for two-year terms, and T. W. Mc-Farland and R. J. Webster were returned last December by acclamation.

Mr. Tallant's announcement today eliminates all chance of an acclama-tion next time, and as a matter of fact there are two or three other ci-tizens who are also contemplating entry into the arena. Brussels, July 21.—The conviction is growing stronger in the Belgian mind that the fate of the Entente is of the police department, and he stated this afternoon that he will again bring this to the attention of his colleagues and the police authorities next week.

Complaint was registered with his worship at noon today by one resident who claimed that he had been ordered to remove his car from the butchers' pavilion on the market square.

"Other cars were there," the man indicate the fate of the Entente is being decided quite as much in Brussels as in Paris and London. Premier Poincare of France can modify the view enough to keep in touch with Belgium, it is believed here. Because of his personal character, his strength of his position in the Ruhr make it difficulty. When a statesman has the support of the public at home, such as Poincare has in France, he often underestimates the value of public support abroad, the Belgians > Helps French Prestige. In reference to this country, however, the French premier cannot adopt a stubborn and suspicious atti-tude. They believe he knows Rel adopt a studborn and suspicious atti-tude. They believe he knows Bel-gium is disinterested in friendship for France, and realizes Belgium's pres-ence in the Ruhr area helps the prestige of France enormously abroad.

> If Belgium should withdraw from the French camp, as she is at liberty to do, Poincare would go down in history as the man who succeeded in to do, Poincare would go down in history as the man who succeeded in bringing about a complete isolation of his country in European politics. Consequently the Belgians think, he will be willing to go to considerable lengths to retain the support of Belgium and mollify the Belgian statesmen if they insist on concessions during their trip to Paris new Mon day.

Similar arguments apply to Engand also. Premier Baldwin is quite as much convinced as to the righteousness of his views as Poincare it is stated, but he understands, or the other hand, the importance of the key position occupied by Belgium and the desirability therefore of making concessions to her he might feel unable to make to France direct.

Isolate Poincare. He, as well as other British statesmen, is supposed to realize how advantageous it would be for them to isolate Poincare by winning Belgium to their side. In addition to these arguments, every observer knows the extent of the role played by the element of prestige in diplomacy. Because of Reason. It says: "Not because of sentiment, but because of reason, Belgium mus remain at the side of France. The interests of England in the reparations ispute are primarily commercial, and demand the restoration and reconstruc tion of Germany to act as an outlet for English exports. The interests of France are primarily political, and de-mand the maintenance of safeguards in the Rhineland and the Ruhr to protect against the danger of another German invasion in the future. It is not out fault if Belgium lies on the road from Berlin to Paris, and if Belgium through no offense of her own has become the enemy of Germany. "It is true that Belgium, like Eng-land, is an industrial and commercial nation. France, however, is more an agricultural than an industrial nation; hence she can afford to open her fron-tiers and those of her colonies to Belgian products without harming her own ndustry. France is one of the best ustomers we can find in post-war Europe, and new customers we must find to keep alive our over-industrial-

A. O. Jeffery Has Thirty Thousand Stamps The Result of a Lifetime's Collecting

Nine Huge Leather - Bound Volumes Contain Many Rare Specimens.

Up a very high step just off the turn in the stairway and into the tiniest and cheeriest of study rooms, and you have found the lair of the philatelist. Of course it is superfluous to mention that the house is a Ridout street house facing direct ly into the setting sun. Or that philatelist means stamp collector, and A. O. Jeffrey is "him," for probably there isn't another man in the disitrict who has such a fine collec-

Mr. Jeffrey is very modest about his hobby. He has seen the collection in the British museum and judges his own collection by too severe standards. London, Ontario, isn't Old London and 30,000 different stamps is a collection which would amaze most amateurs. Mr. Jeffrey refuses to put any valuation on them. refuses to put any valuation on them.

"I just get them," he says, "and then forget all about their money value. But I know this, I wouldn't sell them for anything." However, when it is taken into consideration that one stamp alone, a 12-penny Canadian stamp, is worth $600 dollars, one wonders what a collection of 30,000, including stamps from the state of the state practically every country in the world, would be worth! The valuable 12-penny stamp is missing from Mr. Jeffries' collection, much to his regret, but it is one of the few rare lones which do not appear there.

First Stamps Issued.

Among them are samples of the irst stamps ever issued. Applearing in the year 1840 from the presses of the British government, they are known as the Mulready Envelope. And they really are whole velope. And they really are whole envelopes. The face of the envelope is practically covered with an etching design, sometimes in blue and sometimes in black ink. Want to Keep Your Hair Perpetually Curly?

Perpetually wavy or curly hair is now within the means of every woman to possess. One need only get a few ounces of pain liquid slimerine from the druggist and apply a little of it occasionally with a brush before doing up the hair. When this dries the most beautiful natural looking waves and creases imaginable are in evidence. Wind and heat do not affect the curliness as where a heated iron has been used. Liquid slimerine is so pure and harmless there is not the slightest danger of spotting the scalp or streaking the hair, and it leaves no sticky or greasy trace. It keeps the hair soft silky and lustrous.—Advt. b

MISSION CIRCLE CONVENES AT DORCHESTER HOME

Special to The Advertiser. Dorchester, July 20 .- The monthly meeting of the Mission Circle of the Methodist Church was held on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Jack Pettit, the president, Mrs. C. Thompson, in the chair. The circle enjoyed an inspiring address by Miss Mary Long of London. "A Mite-Box Story" was an interesting reading given by Miss Gretta Gill, and a read-ing by Mrs. F. Neely was also enjoy-ed. The circle decided to hold their sale of home-made cooking on the and Saturday in August. A dainty lunch was served by the hostess. Next meeting will be at the home of the Misses Dundass.

BLAY-HOWE.

Dundas Center Church was the scene of a pretty wedding yesterday morning at 11:30 when Wilda Howe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew W. Howe, was married to Arthur B. Blay, son of Mr. and Mrs. Adam Blay, also of London. The ceremony, which took place at 11:30, was performed by Rev. J. Garbutt.
The bride who was given in marriage by her father, wore a graceful gown of gray chiffon, with tiny frills of net. Her hat was gray, trimmed with an ostrich plume, and her shoes and hose were also gray, and she carried a colonial bouquet of pansies and for-get-me-nots.

The wedding march was played by

I am afraid there won't be many eggs left in the little wagon when Tiny will have finished. It wouldn't surprise me, either, If Nicholas made Tiny go without his supper for killing the fly that had settled on his ear, I am quite' sure that the little lady Doo Dad in the upstairs window caught the flies that were feasting on the pie she had placed on the ledge to cool. She may have to bake another pie, though. Old Sleepy Sam is in luck! A wise spider saw a great opportunity and quickly spun its web. Soon it should have a good dinner. Roly has a new kind of a fly trap. I wonder what he will catch? Surely, not as many flies as the little fellow who has placed the piece of cheese on the lamp post. The little Doo Dad missed the fly that was scampering around on Old Man Grouch's

The Doo Dads-The Flies Invade Dooville By Arch Dale.

"Oh, Mercy, what a mess!" said Mrs. Malone, as she sweated over her cookie board in her hot, stuffy little kitchen. "Oh, dearie me! Oh, dearie me! Where do they all come from?" said a little Doo Dad mother, as she was rocking her little Doo Dad baby to sleep. And well she might wonder, for flies-big, black hungry flies-were everywhere, and from the East they continued to come in great swarms. Just a few days ago Doctor Sawbones had opened a new candy shop. It had nice shiny show cases, and they were fairly crowded with sweets. Just like an army, the flies came from over the hill, and headed straight for the candy store. Doctor Sawbones is almost distracted. In the front door he stands with a fly swatter in each hand, and all day long he is swatting at the horde of flies. He called Flannelfeet to help him, but Flannelfeet has nothing but a handkerchief and his billy, and the flies buzz and buzz, and bite his nose. Doe. had also given a swatter to a little Doo Dad. A fly lit on the big plate glass window of the candy shop, and-the little Doo swatted it. Poor Doctor Sawbones will have to buy a new window for his store. In the house across the street, the flies buzzed and buzzed and buzzed. There were a dozen or more of them on the window, and the little Doo Dad lady threw her flat iron at them. The Element of Danger Is There.

The River Thames got its second victim since the warm weather started, this time a young lad of promise, the only child of a widowed mother. Tragedy has ontered the life of this woman with unusual severity, taking the husband and father in May and the son in July. All manner of regrets, opinions or resolutions cannot bring back the two young lives that have been lost in the river this year.

The suggestion is put forward that it should be made illegal to swim or bathe in the river without a guard. That opens up a big question, for there is a long stretch of river around London.

There are supervised places for swimming in the river now, and these close at dark, or slightly before. That is quite right and in the interests of safety. The question has been raised on several occasions of having utilities commission take the ground, and we think John had many of the same qualities as Peter. John wisely, that to do so would attract children and keep them there at night when they should be at home and in

When the Mob Stopped.

Savannah had a mob the other day that set out for the purpose of lynching a Negro who was charged with assault. The mob had the intention and desire to kill, but it failed because it met with the same element that drove it along, viz., force.

Citizens tried to reason with the mob, but the mob was in no mood to listen to reason. That gentle method failing, the fire department turned on the hose, but the mob remained an ugly organization until a machine gun manned by the militia scattered the members and pre-

The same procedure would put an end to lynchings in any part of the United States.

Suppose a Farmer Did This.

A car carrying a farm family of six comes roaring at 3 per cent. along one of the residential streets of London on a Sunday afternoon, about four or five o'clock. They have been dusting along at a prety fair clip for some time-nothing on the road has passed them-no, sir, otherwise there would have been just one more tragedy be few stepping in to stop them.

The farmer pulls his car up beside a nice-looking home. "Well, this is a good-looking spot; guess we'll have our supper here. Come on, get the baskets and some of you youngsters hustle off and get a few bits of wood and we'll boil the kettle for some tea."

A fence between the front and back yard is noticed, so a couple of boards are taken off that, and pretty soon there is a neat little fire, the kettle boils, and the feast

"Well, we'll have to get along out of here," remarks the farmer, looking at his watch. "We've got to make 57 miles by 6.30 or know the reason why. Come on; never mind the ashes from that fire, they're good for the lawn. Forget those old newspapers and banana peelings; that old salmon can will be good for the family cat-come on, let's beat it."

Wonder how long this would go on before a cop on a motorcycle would be on the premises, inviting the party to come on down to the police station, where they could arrange surety for their appearance there next day on a charge of trespass and damage to property.

And yet that's just about what some city people do when they go about the country. A farmer's orchard is just the place for the stop for supper; the farmer is seldom consulted; if he has an attractive looking stream going through his property, that is apt to be the loca- interested pedestrian is solicited for money in support tion. He had done well, had traveled 1,925 miles, and was tearing through space at 170 miles an hour when a leak forced him to come down.

Everything was well staged for the attempt. laughan had a machine to his liking, the best that could be secured. At various points across the conwere stations waiting for him when he came down. Mechanics were on hand to replenish fuel and $7,000 from the sale.

oil supplies so that the flyer might be away again with the loss of only a few minutes of time.

Yet, with all this, he failed in his race with the sun. The sun makes that trip every day-at least it seems to-and there is not the least trouble about it. Even in the short days of winter, with a couple of hours taken off each end of the race, the course is still completed each day, and there is no preparation made for its coming or for its going; no mechanics or repair stations to see that all is going well, and no uncertainty at all as to the result.

How well all these heavenly bodies are regulated! How surely they run their course and swing their way through millions of miles of space, and all with unerring precision and masterful exactitude.

'Tis only when man undertakes to compete with the course of some of these great forces of the universe that we fully realize his weakness and appreciate his finite limitations.

John Learned His Lesson Well.

Why should fishermen make such great preachers these bathing places illuminated at night. The public and disciples? Peter left the nets; so did John. And was not the loving, reasonable man of his later years when first he came to the Master. RUDYARD KIPLING'S GREAT STORY OF THE WORLD WAR

A Quarter of a Million German Prisoners In One Month-Victory All Along the Line From Ypres South.

IX.-BEGINNING OF THE END FOR GERMANY.

Every battle has its peculior characteristic. St. Leger (Aug. 26, 1918) was one of heat, sunshine, sweat; the flavor of at least two gases tasted through respirators or in the raw; the wail of machine-gun bullets sweeping the crests of sunken roads: the sudden vision of wounded still-smoking shell holes or laid in still-smoking shell holes or laid out as for burial. The thing was a in the sides of a scarp; sharp whiffs booby-trap arranged to move our or new-spilled blood, and here and there a face upon which the sun stared without making any change. So the hours wore on, under a sense of space, heat and light; death always just over the edge of that space, and impudently busy in that into miles. Twice or thrice they light. • • • halted and began to dig in for fear of

By all reason there should have been a bitter fight on that ground, and full preparation for it was made. But the enemy, after St. Leger, saw unexpectedly out of all that area. For one bewildering dawn and day "the bottom fell out of the front," as far as the Guards Division was concerned. It is a curious story, even though it does not directly concern the battalion. Here is one detail of Dead Horses and Flies.

On Sept. 3 the Second Brigade toiled in from Monchy in full war-kit, and, tired with the long day's heat, formed up west of Lagnicourt before dawn, detailed to win, if they

The advance became a route march, a Sunday walk out, edged with tense suspicion. They saw a German cooker wrecked on the grass, and, beside it, the bodies of two clean, good-looking boys, pathetically laid people's pity. Some pitied and were blown to bits by the concealed mine. None made any comment. They were tired with carrying their kit in the sun among the maddening flics. The thousand yards stretched

But nothing overtook them a high-velocity gun between Sept. 4 and they installed themselves about and Sept. 6, and seventeen bombs side Boursies, four miles and more as the crow flies from Lagnicourt! midnight up came their rations and the punctual home letters across that enchanted desert which had spared them. They were told that their brigade artillery was in place behind the next rise, ready to deliver barrages on demand, and in due course the whole of our line on that sector flowed forward: * *, *

The Hindenburg Line.

Operations against the Hindenburg Line were to open on Sept. 27 (1918) with the attack of fourteen divisions of the First and Third armies on a twelve-mile front from opposite Gouzeaucourt in the south to oppo-site Souchy-Lestree, sister to Sau-chy-Cauchy, under the marshes of the Sensee River in the north. It would be heralded by two days' solid bombardment along the entire fronts the top" under a creeping barrage, one gun of which persistently fired short, and—found nothing whatever in front of them save a prodigious number of dead horses, some few corpses and an intolerable buzzing of flies.

there were a few moments of blessed shelter ere they scrambled out and re-formed on the far side. The shelling here was bad enough, but nothing to what they had survived. A veil of greasy smoke, patched with flame that did not glare, stood up behind them, and through the pall of it, in little knots, stumbled their supports, blinded, choking, gasping. In the direction of the attack, across a long stretch of broken rising ground, were more shells, but less thickly spaced, and craters of stinking earth and colored chalks where our barrage had ripped out nests of machine runs. Far off, to the left, creaming with vellow smoke in the morning light, rose the sullon head of Bourlon Wood, which the Canadians were faithfully paying the debt contracted by the Second Battalion of the Irish Guards in the cld days after Cambrai. At the crest of the ascent lay Saunders Koop, which marked the point where the Scots Guards would lie up and the Irish come through.

Enemy aeroplanes now swooped.

Back area rumors and official notifications were good, too. The Nineseemed no way of getting out artillery to attend to them and they pecked like vultures undisturbed. Then Battalion Headquarters came up in the midst of the firing from the left, established themselves in a dugout and were at once vigorously shelled, together with the neighboring aid-post and some German prisoners there, waiting to carry down wounded. The aid-post was in charge of a young American doctor, Rhys Davis by name, who had been attached to the battalion for some time. This was his first day of war and he was more tally manded of the post of twelve miles and from the left, stablished themselves in a dugout to far south of the Ypres-Zonebeke road; had retaken all the heights to the east of Ypres, and were in a fair way to clear out every German gain there of the past four years. Thaw a Succession of Thrillsthe Incident of the Family Doctor and Rentless Jerome.

I recall one murder trial from which no one big thing stands out because all the way through it was made up of climaxes and thrills, lapping one on the other. This was the first trial of Harry K. Thaw for the murder of Stanford White.

Editors and reporters are forever dreaming of the perfect murder story -which will be the story of a young and pretty woman, preferably an actress, accused of killing a rich man by poisoning him, with a lot of mystifying features and complications to go along with it.

Lacking such, the next best thing from a newspaper reporter's viewpoint was the case of this young mil-lionaire spendthrift, already known everywhere for his freaks of extrav-agance, killing a genius, on account of a rarely beautiful woman, upon the top of New York's most noted building, a building which was itself a creation of the victim, during the opening performance of a summer roof garden show—with an audience of Broadway first nighters for eye-

What About Your Promise, Dad?

REMEMBER your promise to your boy—that you'd buy him a Red Bird Bicycle if he passed his exams? You know how he studied, how he cut out a lot of his fun so he could get a pass mark in his final tests. He made the grade, was promoted, and the bicycle is "still coming." Did you ever think what he thinks about that? Your boy—"dad's boy"—he wouldn't say a thing, but he feels it keenly when he sees "the other fellows" having the time of their lives on their bicycles. You've often said you'd do anything in the world for your boy. Why not give him the greatest thing in the world, NOW! a Red Bird Bicycle.

The Red Bird Can be bought for as low as $35, and up to $55. · It is sold on the small payment down, and easy instalment plan. Make the first payment now and let your boy ride his Red Bird today.

The Right "Bike" Makes a Healthy, Happy Boy!

In London They All Want "Red Birds."

Red Bird Bicycles were designed by boys. Hundreds of tests were made, boys' opinions all over the country were brought to the designers, and the result is the new Red Bird, the finest bicycle made.

Come with your boy to the Bicycle & Motor Sales and look over the snappy, glistening new models. There is a new 14-inch model for the very young boys. A 16-inch model for larger boys. And the special Curved Bar 18 and 20 inch models that will fit equally well the lad of nine or the youth of twenty. The Curved Bar is the bicycle the boy won't outgrow.

There are also C. C. M. Joycycles for little folks too

Billings Instead of McPhee May Face Downs In Today's Great Clash Over At Tecumseh Park

Locals Want To Start Off Dangling Saint's Scalps

Coach Forgue May Switch Line To Conform With Nethercott's Pitching Selection.

On the eve of another meeting be tween the rivals. St. Thomas and Lonlon, it looked very much as if the local officials should have insured the fans against being trampled to death in the jam at Tecumseh Park this afternoon, rather than gambling against rain. This zame, which starts off the third series in the Southern Ontario League and neans much to both teams, has brought the two-year rivalry to its highest peak and the fans up to the boiling point of

The only surprise local fans can think if is Billings. If he goes like he did against Galt, he's just as formidable as McPhee. The locals are showing some improvement in batting, however, and the way they've been running bases, they don't need a margin of hits. they don't need a margin of hits.

Orients-Alerts Mix Is Tid-bit

Queen's Park Clash Today

Has Title At Stake. July one game is scheduled in the Inter-Club League today, but as this clash brings the Orients and Alertz together, with the title of the second series at stake, there'll be enough fireworks for any three ordinary tilts. Alerts can cop if they win today, and if they don't they'll have to play off with Orients for the title. The set-to takes place at Queen's Park. Ernie Dinsmore has been chosen to preside over the fracas, but last night both managers talked as if the government had put the ban on pitching selections, too. Both were reticent, but the tip came through that Oliver and Baker would be doing the mound work.

Chance was deaf in one ear, so Rollie wound seat himself beside the manager on the bench, taking care to get on Chance's deaf side. Every time Chance huried some caustic bit of advice at any player, Zeider would call Chance some name adding a remark like: "Oh, shut up! What do you know about this game?" He got away with it until one time when Chance happened to turn his head slightly in Rollo's direction. Being a lipreader, Chance could almost tell what had been said, even though he didn't hear it. REDS PLAY AT .800 CLIP AND GIANTS SLOW DOWN TO .500

BANCROFT IS MISSED

New York, N. Y., July 20.—The Cincinnati Reds have been playing at a percentage rating of .800 and better since the 1st of July, while the Giants in the same period have been going only at a .500 clip. The Reds are playing super-championship baseball, and super-championship baseball is the kind that wins pennants.

The Giants, ever since the loss of Bancroft at shortstop, have not. Nothing in the National League race has been of much significance and means so much as the bolt of the Cinnati's this month, and even eastern clubs seem to have overlooked it up to this time, the Giants stood so high and had been going so fast. If the Reds can keep it up—look out. Wear and tear can rub the gloss from champions in baseball exactly as wear and tear can dull polished brass, and the Giants are getting the aforesaid W. and T. these days.

Bancroft III. Bancroft played shortstop for the New York club in Boston on June 28, but since then he has been trying to recover from inciplent preumonia. He has been absent from the team, and in his place is Jackson, a youngster who gives promise of being far better than gives promise of being far better than he is at the moment, and who has been playing every bit as well as could be expected from a boy who lacks experience. His physical qualifications are good, but he is not Bancroft on an infield that needed Bancroft.

Beginning with the game in which Jackson first took part, the Giants have lost about one-half of their games. At this writing only a game or two separthis writing only a game or two separates the Reds from the lead, and the Giants, lacking defence, cannot cope with the remainder of their league since pitchers are not doing as well as of Cincinnati club.

A Sorry Showing.

After Bancroft was forced to inactivity the Glants won a game with Boston and lost one. Brooklyn defeated them in a single game. They won three from Philadelphia, but if the Phillies had not been in their usual comatose state the Giants today would be in second place. That's the most significant fact of all, for it shows on what dangerous ground the champions are treading. The Reds trimmed the Giants 2 to 1, but the New York club won the Pittsburg series 3 to 2, and repeated this with Chicago. The St. Louis series now holds the stage.

At the end of May the Giants were leading the league with over .700 percentage. The last of June saw them over .680, which is better than standard championship baseball. No one knows what they will be at the close of July, but mid-July is past and they are hovering around .625. And the Reds are liways progressing even though they neet occasional reverses.

For over two weeks, without Bancroft or guard the infield the Glants have A Sorry Showing.

neet occasional reverses.
For over two weeks, without Bancroft to guard the infield, the Glants have barely held their own in victories against defeats, and they are 167 points under championship form. Had Pittsburg attacked New York with the same effectiveness as did Cincinnati, the champions might be struggling for third place.

INGERSOLL PUTS STRONG ELEVEN IN COUNTY LOOP

Special to The Advertiser.

Ingersoll, July 20.—Indications point to a strong team representing this town in the Oxford County Soccer League. Plenty of players are available, and the announcement has been made that the majority of the players of two years ago will again be in action. Last season soccer was off the local sports program entirely. However, the present revival of interest is largely due to the enthusiasm of the Old Country players, who have taken the initiative in organizing for the league series. The first practice will be held tomorrownight.

the shorter distance of one mile and a furlong.

In making this change consideration has been given to the requests from owners and trainers that the present distance, one mile and a quarter, run, as it is, so early in the year results too frequently in jeopardizing a horse's chances for the future, owing to the rigorous training he must receive in getting him fit to run this distance so early in the season.

The gypsies came to Hopkinton and James Rogers had his palm read for a silver quarter. James was clerk for Simon Rangers, general storekeeper, and expected to be soon taken in as partner.

Also James was in love with Sarah Fellows and she with him. The "gypsy queen" delivered her usual patter. Seeing that James was a blonde, she told him he was going to marry a dark-haired girl and warned him against a light-haired girl and a dark-haired man. That night he told Sarah, laughingly, of his interview with the graph. his interview with the gypsy.

High Winds Wreck Buildings In Hudson and White River Areas.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Cobalt, Ont., July 20.-A heavy hunderstorm which swept over parts of this district last evening is responsible for the destruction of considerable property in Temiskaming. The recently-completed market building and curling rink at Haileybury, was blown down with loss of $2,500. Two houses in that town were struck by lightning.

In New Liskeard chimneys and trees were blown over, windows were smashed and gardens suffered in the worst storm in years. In the rural sections reports indicate that in the Milberta, Hudson and White River areas many buildings were wrecked and the crops suffered.

Wall Street, New York, July 21 .-Prices went somewhat lower on the stock exchange today under the lead the oil shares.

Stock Acted Badly.
Phillips Petroleum was the weakst, making a new low for the season. This stock has acted badly ever to effect under which the authorized capital was raised from a million to two million shares. A stock dividend of 50 per cent was declared, along with an extra cash dividend of a dollar a share. It has been felt that dollar a share. It has been left that this extra payment was extravagant according to all that was known about the past position of the company. Now with the fall in oil prices question has arisen whether the ordinary dividend at the rate of $2

IMPERIAL SOLIDARITY

Should Inter-Allied Crisis Arise Frankly British Plan May Be Adopted.

Associated Press Despatch. London, Eng., July 20 .- Discussing the draft of the British reply to Germany the London Daily Telegraph's diplomatic correspondent says that should an inter-allied crisis arise despite the conciliatory attitude the British have displayed, a question evolving a frankly British policy would then be brought to the forefront when, he understands, it would be considered not only by the British government, but by the governments of the dominions and of India. There would in effect be a consultation within the empire, a prelude to which was already embodied in the recent provincial grand principal of the Great Priory of Canada, Knights Templar, and a past potentate of Mocha Temple, A.A.O.N., M.S., London. "Indeed the weight of Dominion opinion has made itself very strongly felt on this occasion," adds the correspondent. "This new imperial soliderity is should not overlook." FINGERPRINTS ON TREES MAY CONVICT MURDERER

Brompton was an object of attention from the opening of the market, and was bid up to 39½, for a net gain of 1% points. The announcement that the directors had cleared off the dividend arrears on proferred and had declared a regular distribution for the current quarter provided the stimulus for the buying. The prospects of the common stock has been considered improved, and continuance of the present scale of profits would justify expectation of a resumption of the dividend on the junior security in succeeding months. Moreover, the ability of this company is to wipe out 12 per cent of arears, providing for two regular quarterly dividends, is an interesting reflection of favorable conditions prevailing in the pulp and paper industry. Toronto Railway was another feature, this, issue climbing from 78% to 81 and closing at 80%, for a net gain of 2% points. Special to The Advertiser.
Pittsburg, July 20.—Defiant on his hospital bed, near death from weakness, after having had both legs severed in a railroad yard, Patrick Coyne today denied he murdered his pretty girl wife in their honeymoon cottage. The man recovered sufficiently today to fight with considerable will power against accusing suggestions of detectives gathered at his bedside. He was questioned regarding the slaying of his bride, who was found dead Wednesday, a few hours after Coyne, a brakeman, had been run over by a freight train. Coyne admitted ownership of the evolver with which his wife was revolver with which his wife was revolver with which his wife was killed. He told detectives to "go to hell" when questioned further. He denied any knowledge of the crime, the officers insisted they had not mentioned it to him—that he seemed to know of the murder before he was questioned.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Winnipeg, July 20. — The general undertone to the wheat market here today was weak, and after an advance of about 1c early in the day, prices declined sharply, closing 1½c to 2½c bellow yesterday, with October showing the heaviest loss. The market was nervous throughout the day, and there was little disposifien to press sales. Trade volume was limited.

The coarse grains all displayed an easier tendency, and closed fractionally lower. There is a little business passing, but the trade is unimportant. The flax market was very steady, but trading was light. July closed ¾c higher and October 2c lower. There is an excellent inquiry for all grades of wheat, and a fair volume could be worked if stocks were a little larger and the tonnage situation more favorable. On account of light stocks, buyers have withdrawn from low grade wheat. Spreads were unchanged to ¾c higher. Only odd cars of cash coarse grains changed hands today.

Chicago, July 20.—Increased pressure to market newly-harvested grain tended to lower prices at the close today. The close was weak, at ½c to 1½ net decline; September 98½c to 985%c and December $1.01½ to $1.01%.
Corn finished ½c to ½c to ½c down, and oats varying from %c off to ½c gain. In provisions the outcome ranged from 2c setback to a like advance.
Wheat started at a decline, and then scored a moderate rise, but receded again during the late dealings.
Profit-taking in July wheat counted somewhat as a factor in bringing about at e setbacks, besides the discounting of rust reports, indicating that most wheat in Canada was aiready past the stage where it could be injured.
For the most part corn and oats fluctuated in line with wheat. At one time July corn equalled the season's nigh price record.

I recalled reading omewhere of a New York man who died recently leaving a paragraph in his will in which he warned his sons against the big colleges, and advised them to seek an education where conditions were more favorable to mental and moral growth. With this. in mind, I inquired: "Do you consider the big college or university a menace, Mr. Ford?"

"I see no menace in the big university as such," he said. "The big buildings, the big campus, the big equipment are necessary, and some music about the famed palace of day men big enough to run such institutions will come along and run them in a really big way. He is the recipient of unasked advice from representatives of both the great parties, but, so far as anybody knows, he has not accepted their advice, nor is he likely to do so. Mr. Ford did not tell me nor anyone about his place, but I have good reason to believe that the letters received daily at Dearborn from north, south, east and west calling on Mr. Ford to become the Moses of the masses are arriving by the five hundreds and the thousands. When Mr. Plain Citizen takes his pen in hand and earnestly requests some fellowcitizen to become a candidate for the presidency, that single event is not significant. But when it is multiplied by the thousands and the tens of thousands, it becomes impressively significant. While I tarried in Dearborn, musing upon this phase of Mr Ford's career, a sentence or two from the speech of Roscoe Conklin, nominating Grant for a third term, came trickling through my mind. Later, when I had opportunity, I looked up the speech and verified the lines. Here they are. Said Conklin, referring to the general: "He has no plans, no official power has been used for him. And when Labor has a majority and when Labor has by commonsense and moderation, that is, moderation in carrying out a program which aims at ultimately effecting great changes in the economic and social conditions of the country. The millions of electors who voted for Labor candidates at the last general election were not deterred from doing so by the fear of Bolshevism. The opponents of the Bolshevism. The opponents of the Labor party who think that they have a good stick with which to beat the party by using the cry of Bol-shevism make a great mistake. This may frighten off a few middle-class people who never came in contact with Labor propaganda; but in the constituencies where Labor propaganda is carried on unceasingly there is a better understanding of the real character and aims of the Labor party. If Labor gets a majority, it will be because the electors rightly believe that it will be the sane, commonsense, and moderate elements of policy. And this will be a conviction justified by the facts. If we get a Labor government in this country it will be a government which will pursue a constitutional course, acting always by the democratic authority of a popular mandate given by an electoral majority.

This Is An Automobile Age Six families out of ten in your neighborhood own automobiles-or is it eight out of ten? The exact number doesn't > automobile is fundamental to the prosperity and the pieasure of a large section of the population. There is significance in this fact for the Want advertiser. It means, for one thing, that for many people it is much more convenient to reply to Want Ads than it used to be-and growing more convenient all the time. The automobile has a lot to do with the fine results so many readers get from Want Ads. Accordingly, a good "urge to action" to put in your Want Ad may be such as this: "Come out in your car today—just 10 minutes from town." And, carrying the thought farther, if you are on a paved highway it is a good plan to say matter. The point is that this is an automobile age. The

as much, "Fine paved road all the way." One advertiser, living on the edge of town, always watches the weather. If it is sure to be pleasant the day a Want, Ad is published, he includes in it, "Fine day for an auto spin, come out." View the subject from a different angle-the car you your self own. You can make it help you in several ways, You give a 'phone number in your Want Ad. An inquirer calls up. You give information; the inquirer is much interested. When you state your address, though, the inquirer is disappointed. He doesn't happen to own a car. You are several miles from

"I'll come and get you in my car," you offer. Or, possibly, the article you advertise can readily be transported, in which case you say you will bring it to the inquirer's home for him

L. B. Suburban lives with his family on a tract, but works in the city. They keep several fine Jersey cows. Mrs. Suburban makes fine butter. The husband delivers it to Want Ad customers in his car, of course—just a matter of starting a few minutes earlier, that's all.

When you use the Want Ads, remember this is an automobile age!

HAS QUIET SESSION

Mayor and Members Refuse To Argue, and Salary Recommendations Passed.

The hot weather is starting to have its effect upon the aldermen in training for the civic classic.

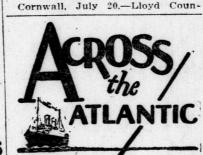

Mayor Wenige and two members of the finance committee staging a "minority" meeting yesterday afternoon positively refused to argue and even the mayor's salary recommendations were passed on to the council without a murmur.

The members obviously realized the futility of another debate at this time when the entire question must claim attention at a special session called for that purpose on Monday. Mayor Wenige and Fire Chief Aitwayor wenge and Fire Chief Arken both recommended the purchase of a Midwest motor for installation in the damaged truck at No. 2 station. The chief believed that this would set a saving of $2,000. A recommendation to this effect goes to the council. Thomas Terry will supply the motor.

of tender love to God and man.

John, like Peter, was a fisherman, and a native of Bethsaida. His father was Zebedee, his mother Salome, and his brother James, one of the leading apostles. John first became acquainted with Jesus through John the Baptist, who pointed to Jesus as "the Lamb of God which taketh away the sin of the world." John at once followed Jesus, being one of the first two desciples. Later he was called into the apostleship in the same manner as was Peter. Matt. 4:18-22.

John was the writer of the Fourth Gospel and of the three epistles which bear his name.

BIBLE SEARCHER STORY FOR CHILDREN, "THE LARGEST SHIP."

I expect you have all heard of the largest ship the Bible tells us about. Although it was built quite early in the history of mankind, it was quite as large as some of our modern ocean liners. It was about 500 feet long, 83 feet broad, and 50 feet high. It was constructed of gopher wood, and took 120 years to build. It was three stories high, and each story was divided into many cabins. One strange thing about this large ship was that it was not built anywhere near ocean or lake, so it was not a sea-going vessel. Neither was it built according to the shape of our modern ships with a sharp bow forward to cut the waves for a better speed, but was built with a flat bottom. It was not intended for navigation, but for safety and storage. God ordered it. Were they not foolish? You not to be built because He was going to the shape of our modern. I was appointed interpreter to the English officers. When the authorities visited them and inquired whether they had any complaint to make, I thoroughly enjoyed repeating what they said to me, word for word. by the chest and hands, not the stomach.

When the starter says, "Swimmers ready," have your feet about eight inches apart, be standing on your toes, with the toes clamped over the edge of the pool, hands swung in back of the body, and eyes watching the starter. When he fires the gun or says "Go"—you go, getting as much spring as you can and making a shallow dive. Just as soon as you leave the bank, start the legs moving, but coast for a few feet before starting the arm movement.

One of the best ways of developing yourself into a good racing swimmer, if you have a fair stroke, is to enter races. Enter them even if you know the other fellows are
