RIVER CLEAN-UP MAY BE ORDERED

Combined Funeral Will Be Held For St. Thomas Victims

CITY'S OWN OFFICIALS MUST ACT

District Health Officer Making No Report On Thames to Dr. Godfrey.

ONUS ON DR. DOWNHAM

Order Compelling Construction of Springbank Dam a Possibility.

Sanitation of the river Thames awaits action in London. Provincial health authorities have passed the matter on to the city health department. Reports are expected, and if complaints are made the provincial department may step in and order a general clean-up with a mandatory order for the construction of a dam at Springbank.

The Hon. Dr. Forbes Godfrey, provincial minister of health, informed The Advertiser today that he is taking no action until he receives a report on the river from Dr. T. J. McNally, district provincial officer of health.

No Instructions.

"I am making no inspection of the river," Dr. McNally stated today. "I have had no instructions from the department to commence a survey and until such instructions come I will do nothing. Of course, I should be glad to co-operate with the city if an inspection is desired."

Dr. McNally is provincial medical officer of health for six counties, with the cities of Windsor and London excepted. He also acts as the institute of public health consultant for the city of London. He took the duties when Dean H. W. Hill left the institute last month.

Onus on City Officer.

Dr. Godfrey states he is waiting for a report from Dr. McNally, but the district officer is making no inspection, because he has no instructions to do so. Onus in the matter seems to be placed upon the city health authorities. Dr. Downham, city officer of health, is making no particular inspection of river conditions, though he has reports on a number of sewage problems.

According to Ald. L. H. Douglass, M.D., a member of the board of health, the present controversy over the sale of Thames street property and the erection of a Springbank dam, will open up the whle question of river sanitation, and a lengthy discussion on the matter is looked for at Monday's meeting of the board of health.

LOCATION OF PROPERTY IN DISPUTE.

This sketch shows the city property at the foot of Dundas street, which is being sought by private capital for the erection of a bath house. The utilities commission and others oppose sale of the land because it is the "key" to river docking facilities in the event of a dam being erected and the river made navigable. The piece of property (blocked out in sketch), has a sulphur-water spring with a daily capacity of a million gallons.

OUTRAGEOUS TO CONSIDER SALE OF SULPHUR SPRINGS PROPERTY, VINING DECLARES

LAND JUST BOUGHT

Astonishment was expressed this morning by Jared Vining, chairman of the public utilities commission, at the reported action of members of the city council in agreeing to dispose of the recently-acquired city property at the foot of Dundas street for $1,500.

Referring to the special meeting of the council to be held Friday afternoon, to which the public utilities commissioners are being invited, along with representatives of the chamber of commerce, Mr. Vining expressed himself vigorously regarding the announcement yesterday that certain of the aldermen had already signed a round robin agreeing to the sale of the property to private interests.

"It is an astounding thing to me that a special meeting should be called to decide a matter which apparently has already been decided by a majority of the aldermen," he stated. "I don't know any director-ate of any business concern the members of which would commit themselves to the sale of any of the firm's property without first talking the matter over at a board meeting. Quebec Feels Another Shock

Canadian Press Despatch.

Quebec, July 8.—Les Eboulements, Murray Bay, Kamouraska, Baie St. Paul, and other villages in that region, again experienced an earthquake shock on Monday of this week. Late in the afternoon a seismic shock of several seconds' duration shook the district, causing a number of people to leave their homes in fear of a recurrence of the shock of Feb. 28th. No damage has been reported, although the disturbance was strong enough to be felt sensibly in many of the houses of the district.

BOARD CUTS MILEAGE IN HURON CO.

Concession to County Council Is Made by Highways Department.

REASONS ARE CITED

Lack of Railways in Some Sections Proving Handicap For County.

Special to The Advertiser.

Goderich, July 8.—Huron county is to have only 62 miles of county roads to become township roads instead of 103 miles as at first arranged by the provincial highways department.

The change or concession was made here this morning at a consultation between the highway advisory board and the full county council. S. L. Squire, Toronto, deputy minister of highways, headed the representatives of the board who were present, and at the close of the meeting thanked the council for having dealt fairly with the board and meeting the department half way with regard to the road changes proposed.

Aside from the fine arguments submitted by different members of the council the main consideration which led the board to so materially reduce the county road mileage being cut off, was that of railroads; or rather entire lack of railroads, in a number of the townships in the county.

Prior to today's changes the total road mileage in the county was as follows: Provincial highway, 24 miles; county roads, 440 miles, and township roads, 1,658 miles.

Other members of the board present in addition to the deputy minister, were: Hon. Finlay G. MacDiarmid, M.L.A., West Elgin; A. M. Rankin, M.L.A., Frontenac; R. C. Muir, superintendent of county roads.

A motion proposed by F. J. McQuaid, McKillop and Wm. Sanders, Exeter, expressed the council's appreciation of the visit of the advisory board, and of the generous treatment accorded the county in reducing the county mileage, to be deleted to the extent that it was.

The board sat at Guliph yesterday for Wellington county, and left at noon for Sarnia, to interview the authorities there regarding the rearrangement to be made in Lambton county.

SHEEP KILLERS RANGE TOWNSHIP

Dogs Cause Concern When They Slaughter Many Valuable Animals.

Sheep-killing dogs are again on the rampage in London township and have slaughtered many valuable animals during the past few weeks on the farms of Charles Powell, I. H. Shoebottom and John Hudson.

London township council paid out $300 at the last council meeting to owners whose sheep have been destroyed and will have to pay out more money when the mmbers meet next month.

Last night the raiders visited the fields of John Hudson, near Bryanston and killed a number of sheep. They were back on the job this morning and killed several more, according to reports reaching the city this aftrnoon.

Tht farmers blame two dogs, a hound and an Airedale for all the trouble and although these dogs have been seen at a distance, no one has been able to get very close to them and they have yet to be caught in the sheep pens.

The farmers declare that these two dogs have the cunning and the speed of foxes. They sense the presence of man from afar and lose no time in getting under way.

Vigilance committees are being formed all over the township and the farmers will patrol the roads every night until the dogs responsible for the raids are seen and shot.

OFFICIALS ARE UNAWARE OF ANY SETTLEMENT

Special to The Advertiser.

Toronto, July 8.—The provincial government has no information as to a reported settlement of the Rouyn railway situation, whereby the Quebec government and the Canadian Pacific Railway had arranged terms, and the latter had negotiated with the Nipissing Central, a subsidiary of the Ontario government railway. Hon. George S. Henry, acting premier, said he had heard nothing about any such agreement, and Hon. Charles McCrea, minister of mines, also declared he had heard nothing. "If there was anything we would have likely known something about it here," declared Hon. Mr. McCrea.

SEEK $4,000,000

Tip Received That Rum Row's Worst Characters Planning Coup.

By BRADLEY KELLY
Special Correspondent of The Advertiser and the North American Newspaper Alliance.

Aboard Salvage Steamer Spray, by courier to Norfolk, Va., July 8.—Worthington Davis, the former Harvard football star, and a member of the syndicate of New York sportsmen, who are financing the salvage of the $4,000,000 treasure of the sunken Ward liner Merida, has arrived here with a launch-load of machine guns, small arms and ammunition. He will direct the defence forces of the expedition against any attempt by pirates or hi-jackers to seize the gold and silver brought up from the bottom of the Atlantic.

"We are expecting trouble," said Mr. Davis, "as information has reached us that some of the most desperate characters of Rum Row are planning a coup. We shall be ready for them, with plenty of ammunition and 35 men who know how to use it effectively.

"From the moment we begin hoisting the 30 tons of gold and silver from the hulk of the Merida, our picket boats will surround the scene of operations. No vessel will be permitted to approach us. The flag signals swinging from the mast of the Spray indicate in an international language, 'We are out of control; keep away.' Any craft which does not respect that warning will be greeted with gunfire."

The machine-gun battery is equipped with Vickers air-cooled guns, with a capacity of 400 rounds per minute. Davis, in command, was formerly captain of the 304th Field artillery of the 77th division in France.

The salvage expedition has now been at sea for nearly a month. More than three weeks were spent in the preliminary search for the Merida. During all that time, the two little salvage steamers, Foam and Spray,

Wedding Guests Attend Funeral

Associated Press Despatch

Rochester, N.Y., July 8.—Before the same altar where six months ago they knelt together and were pronounced man and wife, a youthful bridal couple returned again today and in their caskets placed side by side again received the blessing of their priest. The two were Paul Sapone and his bride, Carmel, who were killed Saturday afternoon in a grade crossing accident near Caughnawaga, Que.

At the funeral this morning were many of the guests who made merry at their wedding but a few months ago. The two were on their way to Montreal to visit relatives when their car was struck by a train.

URGES USE OF GAS ON REBEL TRIBES

French Royalist Leader Would Adopt This Means To Subdue Riffians.

Associated Press Despatch

Paris, July 8.—Charles Maurras, royalist leader, urges the French to use poison gas in the war with Abd-el-Krim's rebel tribesmen in Morocco. In l'Action Francaise, of which he is editor, he says the dropping of gas bombs on Abd-el-Krim would have him begging for mercy within a few weeks. M. Maurras alleges that fear of communist criticism causes Premier Painleve to be unwilling to gas the Riffians. He says another reason for the restraint is the French government's adherence to the recent Geneva arms conference anti-gas protocol, but asks whether this agreement should apply to Abd-el-Krim since he has not signed it.

As another reason for using gas in the Riffian warfare he declares that Abd-el-Krim has put out the eyes and cut out the tongues of some native tribesmen who refused to join him against the French.

GERMANY SIGNS.

Geneva, July 8.—A representative of the German government today signed the convention to limit traffic in arms, formulated by the recent arms conference here. Germany had previously signed the protocol against the use of poison gas in warfare.

Six To Four On Election

Ottawa Political Experts Expect Announcement of Dissolution After Holidays.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Ottawa, July 8.—Decision whether a general election is to be held this fall will not be reached till the cabinet resumes business after the holidays. But the more speculatively inclined are offering six to four in favor of dissolution. During the two or three weeks of respite there will be a sounding out of constituencies and a general survey of the country.

The heavy Liberal defeat in Nova Scotia for a time checked the talk of dissolution and should New Brunswick follow suit it is quite conceivable that there would be further delay in appealing to the polls. None the less, all parties have been organizing for some time past.

Prospects of a bountiful harvest, coupled with good prices, are further taken as favorable to dissolution.

Some ministerial changes are due and, should the government decide for a general election, there will be a cabinet reorganization with an appeal to the country on a new slate. A whole series of appointments remain to be filled.

RANSACKS HOUSE, GIVES AWAY LOOT

Youth Disappears After Robbing Hyde Park Home and Leaving Spoils at Neighbor's.

After spending yesterday leisurely gathering articles in a furnished house at Hyde Park, during the owner's absence in London, a fair-haired youth of about 19 walked down the road at about 6 o'clock with a big bundle of articles containing everything from bed clothes to a hunting knife and calmly requested a meal at the home of Mr. Chittem.

He apparently enjoyed his supper, for at its conclusion, he opened his pack and presented the daughter of the house with some materials for enlarging photographs. Included in the articles was an old cribbage board presented to the owner of the ransacked house a number of years ago. This aroused the suspicions of Mr. Chittem, who phoned for High Constable Wharton late in the evening.

The young thief was apparently tired of carrying his load for he left everything with the Chittems, stating that he had come from Toronto and was on his way to Sarnia. The high constable followed him as far as Poplar Hill where the trail was lost. The chief of the county police then returned to London after notifying the Sarnia police to be on the lookout for a youth of 19, about 5 feet 8 inches tall, weighing about 140 pounds and wearing a gray suit and gray hat.

Included in the articles brought to London by Mr. Wharton were blankets, towels, cribbage board, hunting knife, jewelery. The approximate value is $75.

B. Prenter, president of the brotherhood of locomotive engineers, now in session here.

Revenge Taken On Mailman With Needles In Potato

Countless are the methods of revenge. They range from the poison rings of the Bergias to the mild wiles of the swimming hole. One of London's 63,000 persons has devised a new retaliation scheme, but good fortune has saved the mail collector target from harm.

Making his rounds as usual yesterday, John Gardner opened the box at Dundas and Egerton streets, but instead of meeting mail, what seemed to be a hundred needles pierced his hand. The weapon proved to be a flat potato with 30 phonograph needles embedded firmly in it. A search revealed two more, less formidable, but similarly armored spuds.

As he did not grasp the potato firmly, Mr. Gardner escaped painful injuries. He declares that he knows of no reason why he should be the mark of an avenger's cunning. As far as he knows his mail collecting duties have not riled any citizen, young or old.

Police regard the affair as an attempt at injury, and will strive to uncover the inventor of the scheme. Discussing the armored potatoes this morning, Chief Birrell stated that it was one of the most cowardly deeds that had been brought to his notice. He was reluctant to lay the plan to the mind of a child.

W. J. May, district superintendent of postal service, is also conducting an investigation into the origin of the injury devices.

WHOLE CITY TO ATTEND FUNERAL

All St. Thomas Business Places Will Close As Tribute To Dead.

HOW EIGHT WERE SAVED

Special to The Advertiser.

St. Thomas, July 8.—A combined public funeral for all of the eight victims of Monday's picnic tragedy at Pinafore Park will be held here tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock from St. John's Anglican church. Arrangements to this end are being completed today by Rev. P. M. Harding, rector of the church, to which nearly all of the victims belonged.

Mayor Sloggett is making a request that all places of business in the city close during the funeral and all factories and industrial plants will be requested to observe a period of two minutes' complete silence while the service is in progress as a tribute of respect to the tiny tots who lost their lives. If the plan materializes, and there is every likelihood that it will, it will be the greatest demonstration of public sympathy that the city has ever witnessed and will stir the whole community to its depths.

Saved Eight From Death.

Commenting on the fatality, Miss Lillian Welfrod, who with her sister Queenie, Phyilis Stevenson and James Russell was instrumental in bringing eight of the little tots out of the water said: "They pleaded with us to be saved. Little Louise Popham begged me to come to her, saying 'Help me; I'm dying'. I assured her that she was all right and when I dragged her into the boat she clung to my sister and remarked 'Oh, thanks.'"

The party of four had been paddling on the lake some hundred feet from the boat, when they heard mingled cries of distress such as "Help!" and "We're drowning." Continuing, Miss Lillian said: "Jim and I were rowing and we headed straight for the boat, which at that time was sinking to its bow corner. The children were being catapulted from the boat, the children sinking fast, some of the boys swimming and others clinging to the upturned boat.

Lauded for Heroism.

"As they came to the surface, we grabbed them, my sister handling the boat." In connection with Miss Queenie oarsmanship, Rev. Mr. Hallowell states: "She handled the craft with great skill, and while others stared horrified at the sight, she directed the boat carefully while her sister and Russell assisted the victims on board. The girls deserve great credit for the calm and reassuring way in which they quieted the frightened children and assisted in the rescue work."

The girls are very modest concerning their share in the work but eyewitnesses do not hesitate in lauding their work. They are members of the St. Luke's corps of Girl Guides, Miss Queenie holding an office. Their home is on Mary street, Yarmouth Heights, the three of them being of junior high school age.

City Solicitor W. B. Doherty denies all reports that any official investigation is pending. "The papers have very little to do to commit themselves in that way" he stated. After the inquest is over it is probable that the city council will conduct some investigation but so far no mention of any inquiry has been made.

"I never want to see her again." Davis told hospital authorities, in asking that his wife be refused admittance to see him. He is suffering from a bullet wound in his shoulder and one in his head.

HOME BANK CASE ENDED AS FAR AS GOVERNMENT OF PROVINCE CONCERNED

Will Be No Further Prosecution in Criminal Court, Nickle Decides.

REVIEWS WHOLE CASE

Believes Appeal Court Interpreted Act in Way Never Intended.

SEES CHANGE IN LAW

Believes Federal Government Will Change Act To Cover Weak Spot.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, July 7.—There will be no more prosecutions in the criminal courts against directors of the defunct Home Bank, nor will the decision of the Ontario appeal court in reversing the convictions of the directors by County Judge Coatsworth be appealed to a higher court. The conspiracy charges against M. J. Haney, former president, and the directors will be dropped.

Hon. W. F. Nickle attorney general of Ontario, who has been studying the appeal court judgment for some days, issued a long statement tonight covering the whole case, in which he stated that all further proceedings would be dropped. The Home Bank case, as far as the criminal courts are concerned, is over.

Interpretation Differs.

The attorney-general states that the members of the banking committee of the House of Commons, who made the changes in the bank act in 1913, and also members of the House, would never had thought that the construction would be placed upon its clauses that the appeal court has placed upon them. The convictions which were quashed were under the bank act.

Mr. Nickle states that without doubt the federal parliament will change the act so that the duties of a director will be made distinct and clear.

In discussing the decision of the appeal court Mr. Nickle says that apparently "the less a director knows about the bank's business and the more careful he is to stay away from directors' meetings the less chance there is of his being found liable under Section 153 of the bank act. "Where ignorance is bliss 'tis folly to be wise," Mr. Nickle admits in his statement that no right of appeal from the appellate court judgment exists.

Reviews Case.

Mr. Nickle in his statement reviews the court proceedings against the directors, stating that every fact which contributed to the failure of the bank was brought out and all individual convictions of the directors with the bank's conduct were fully exposed. In the cases of R. P. Gough and S. Casey Wood, both had gone into the box and given evidence. Mr. Nickle reviews Judge Coatsworth's judgment in which he found each director guilty of one or more counts under the bank act. It had been shown that the annual and monthly returns were according to the books of the bank, although they did not show the actual financial condition. Because the statements were according to the books, the appeal court found that the directors had committed no offence in concurring in them as correct. The appeal court held, Mr. Nickle points out, that section 112 of the bank act does not require that the actual position of the bank be shown but only the position in accord with the books. It was shown that the statements were not false according to the books.

Such a finding relieves the directors of responsibility, as none of the accused signed the annual statement complained about, Mr. Nickle continues. He points out further that the appeal court holds that the directors were entitled to approve the annual statement when they had confidence in the general manager and had no suspicions of anything being wrong. The appeal court held that the directors would have to make the report themselves before there was any fraud on their parts.

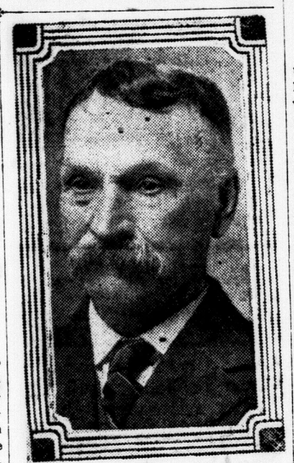

Mr. Haney's Case.

Mr. Nickle, speaking of the prosecution against Mr. Haney, former president, on a conspiracy charge, states that Mr. Haney did sign three or four annual reports. There was nothing to arouse his suspicions, and he had no reason to distrust the general manager, and we have no means of proving fraud or knowledge of fraud on his part, and therefore, on the findings of the appeal court we must fail in prosecution against him," says Mr. Nickle. "On the whole I think it would be a useless waste of time and public money to press this prosecution further."

Mr. Nickle declares that the conspiracy charge would be difficult to prove. Mr. Haney, he continues, struggled to help the bank, although the method of his efforts may not have been praiseworthy. Knowledge of fraud, during the term of presidency of H. J. Daly, Mr. Nickle states, is hard to prove because all the other directors blame Daly and Mason for the wreck of the bank and deliberate hiding from them of matters of importance.

LONDON FILM WILL HELP CENTENNIAL PUBLICITY

Mayor Wenige Lauds Advertiser Cinema Plan To Picturize City.

Wide publicity for London's centennial year celebration is expected to follow the city of London motion picture film, which is now in preparation, through joint action of The Advertiser and the Cinema Science Bureau. Manufacturers, merchants and others are combining to make the film a particularly complete and interesting representation of the city's beauty spots and business advantages.

"We should do all we can now to boost the reunion of next year," points out Mayor G. A. Wenige. "If we are enterprising enough and put the reunion across, it will be because of the thoroughness of our invitations and publicity work. I think a film could show many of London's interesting places, both historical and modern, and it would be very useful to the centennial year celebration for that reason."

TOWNSHIP SAVED HEAVY TAX LOAD

Westminster Citizens To Pay $26,000 Less Than Last Year.

The tax burden of Westminster township for 1925 will be $20,000 lighter than it was last year. This was decided by the township council yesterday afternoon in session at the county buildings. The general township rate was reduced from 16 mills to 13⅓.

Reeve J. S. Cousins pointed out to the council that James Johnston, road superintendent, had already saved the township $3,000, and would likely save the ratepayers more before the year ended. The reeve and the rest of the council estimated that one mill could be lopped off the rate as the result of Mr. Johnston's splendid work.

New pound-keepers, fence-viewers, etc., were appointed by the council. Appointments for the various offices were: First division, pound keepers, William Harper and Delbert Dale; sheep valuator, Duncan Black, who succeeds Councillor John McMillan.

Second division—Pound keepers, G. Carroll, Joseph Kernohan; fence viewer, William Ray.

Third division — Pound keepers, Morris Hooper, Robert Nixon and Neil Munro; fence viewers, John Merriam, Allan Norton, Frank Anderson.

David Irwin, Lambeth, was awarded the contract for reflooring the White Oak bridge at $300. This includes the painting. There were three tenders. The contract for the Highland park sidewalk will be let next Saturday.

LONDONER FINDS TRADE IN ENGLAND GROWING

D. G. Clark Returns After a Business Trip Through British Isles.

Quite optimistic about the future of the English trade, D. George Clark, advertising manager of McClary's; returned to the city yesterday following a six weeks' business trip to the British Isles.

Mr. Clark said that the people evidenced prosperity in England, and money was being spent freely.

Regarding the unemployment situation, Mr. Clark said that it was grave and the increasing amount had found the people of England much concerned.

Of the firm's business abroad, Mr. Clark had nothing to say. He was not prepared to state whether the export business was increasing or not. He had visited Wembley and other points in the interest of McClary's.

YOUNG TOURISTS HAVE CAR, BUT NO MARKERS

Curiosity of Court Is Aroused and Boys Are Remanded a Week.

Driving their newly acquired automobile without markers, Carl Monk, 19, and Harold Rollo, 18, both of Kingsville, excited the curiosity of a policeman on his beat last night. Deputy Magistrate Gladman's curiosity was also aroused in court this morning and he remanded the boys for a week until police search their histories.

In court, the pair did not seem to grasp the meaning of the auto license plan and they offered no explanation of why their car was not numbered. Stopping at Wardsville, they said they obtained their latest car in an even trade for their old one. When picked up, their pooled wealth amounted to 38 cents.

LOCAL UNIT FAVORS PLAN OF EARL HAIG

Backs All-Inclusive Body of War Veterans in Canada.

Almost to a man the local unit of the Army and Navy Veterans' associations are behind the proposal, originating with Earl Haig, that an all-inclusive body of war veterans be formed in Canada.

The problem was discussed from every angle last night and it was decided that such an action is the only logical step and offers the only solution to existing problems.

The keynote of the discussion was that the interests of the whole veteran body were above those of any particular society, and that those interests would be best served by an amalgamation of existing bodies.

Beyond endorsing the proposal, no definite action was taken. It was thought that action by local commands should await the decision of Dominion headquarters. Such action has been promised by the head command of the association in the near future.

At a meeting the previous night the G. W. V. A. endorsed the proposal, and the outlook for the near consummation of the Union is considered very bright.

The veterans also decided to go as a body to greet Earl Haig when he visits this city in the near future.

The driver of the car is not known, but it is belived he escaped unhurt. His machine struck a parked car as he rounded the bend in the street. The force of the impact hurled it across the thoroughfare, where it felled a hydro standard, rebounding across the street a second time before it halted near the curb.

GRAIN MARKETING FIRM EXPECTS TO MEET DEBTS

Associated Press Despatch

Chicago, July 8.—The early unscrambling of the $26,000,000 grain marketing company into the four grain companies from which it was formed a year ago has been announced to banking creditors here and at the same time denied by officials of the farmers' co-operative concern. While bankers who helped finance the merger said the grain marketing heads were preparing to return the properties, valued at $16,400,000, to the companies which entered the organization, Grey Silver, president of the concern, said these reports were untrue and it had until the end of the month to meet obligations to the creditors.

North Huron Progressives Again Choose John W. King

SPLIT IS AVOIDED

Candidate Sees Calamity If Tories Go Into Power—Lauds Crerar.

Special to The Advertiser by a Staff Reporter.

Wingham, July 7.—John Warwick King, Bluevale, was the unanimous choice of the North Huron Progressive convention held here this afternoon to contest the next federal election on behalf of the party.

The selection of Mr. King, who is a farmer and an ex-school teacher, was not unexpected, owing to the fact that he has been the sitting member since 1921, when he won out against George W. Spotton, Wingham, Conservative, and W. A. Fraser, Brussels, Liberal, by more than 1,200 votes.

Five other names, Mrs. George Lane, Lanesville; Roderick Young, Carlow; Sheldon Bricker, Fordwich; Murdock Matheson, Lochalsh, and J. Frank Johnston, Ashfield, were placed in nomination, but all withdrew and the party mantle again fell on Mr. King's shoulders without the necessity of a ballot being taken.

Discussion of the ticklish question of a strictly farmers group in parliament or of a broader Progressive party threatened to seriously divide the convention, but the predominating vote veered strongly in favor of a Progressive party.

Split Avoided.

Mr. Bricker, who was the unsuccessful U. F. O. candidate at the last provincial election, delivered a slashing attack against John Joynt, M.L.A., Lucknow, characterizing him as a "hypocrite" in voting for 4.4 beer after his proclamation throughout the riding that he was a temperance man. Mr. Bricker flatly asserted that Mr. Joynt had not given his constituents "a fair deal," and that "democracy had been stolen away and the franchise of the riding trampled on in the last O. T. A. election."

Mrs. Lane, recently appointed lady director for the riding, pleaded for more active organization, declaring that the farmers need to look after their affairs since "for one man producing there are three selling."

Mr. Young, veteran treasurer of Colborne township, affirmed the importance of securing "the best machinery possible for good government," and expressed the belief that that kind of government could come only from "the agriculturists."

Mr. Matheson was chosen to bring up the group vs. party government question at the convention. He explained at some length his idea of the farmers' standing as a group in parliament and not as a party, holding that as a party they are liable to be drawn aside from their main purpose.

Hits Group System.

Mrs. Richard McWhinney stated in plain terms her disapproval of group government, and asserted that "the man selected for parliament should represent the highest thought and best interests of the riding as a whole." The outgrowth of the U. F. O. government, she held, had been the idea of a Progressive party. Mrs. McWhinney commented favorably upon the Progressive endorsement of certain of the Liberal government policies.

Mr. Bricker was critical of the past Canadian governments in borrowing money from the people at the rate of 5.5 per cent, pointing to the "good business" practiced by the U. S. government in securing its funds on "the cheapest market" for 4 and 4½ per cent.

"The millionaire holds the Victory bonds today scot-free from taxation," said Mr. Bricker, "the poor people have had to sell theirs and the returned soldier is being pinched for his mortgages."

Voicing his admiration of Hon. T. A. Crerar as having "the best business grip" on Canada of all men in the dominion, Mr. King regretted that he is not still the leader of the Progressive party.

Mr. King stated 17 Progressives had supported the Liberal budget in order that the reductions made during the past four years might not be lost.

Would Mean Calamity.

"They knew," explained the member, "that if our high protectionist friends, the Conservatives, got into power, there would be increases in the tariff on manufactured goods, and also on agricultural products. The reduced prices on agricultural implements in 1924 was due solely to the cut in the tariff that year."

Crediting Sir Henry Thornton with bringing about better conditions on the C.N.R., Mr. King deplored the fact that "overlapping and duplication" of railway systems still existed to such an extent in the dominion. To sell the C. N. R. to the C. P. R. would be to give the latter "a monopoly," while the country could not afford to purchase the C. P. R. at its capitalization of "a billion of dollars."

Mr. King stated that the C. P. R. is feeling "the pinch of falling revenue," and the time is coming when the government will be able to do business with the C. P. R. and probably do so by offering the company three or four per cent on its investment, thereby alleviating the present "suicidal" situation.

"The time is coming when either the Senate or the House of Commons will have to be abolished," said Mr. King, touching on the Senate. "I wouldn't go into the Senate tomorrow if I had the chance, because I believe it is a travesty and a political farce on the dominion."

"Parties are not too bad as long as they don't become sectionalized," said Mr. King in affirming his preference for a Progressive party, rather than just a farmers' group. "We have a young and virile country, and to have a great country we must recognize all classes and all people.

"The debt which is weighing Canada down," said Mr. King, in concluding, "is not the Liberal government's doing. But the brightest spot of all is that we have the greatest country in the world, a country flowing with milk and honey, and a country, the natural resources of which constitute our great hope of paying off our national debt."

L. R. SHORT, late collector of customs at Tillsonburg, whose funeral was held on Monday. He was an ex-mayor, and for several years industrial commissioner of the town.

BENEFIT DANCE WINDS UP PICNIC

Women's Labor Party Arranges Enjoyable Outing At Springbank.

Winding up a very successful picnic last evening at Springbank Park was a benefit dance for the Nova Scotia miners and their families. The picnickers were the members of the London Women's Labor Party and their families and friends, and city representatives were among those in attendance at the dance.

The showers earlier in the day did not dampen the enthusiasm of the merry-makers, for the attendance was most gratifying. The afternoon was spent in games and races of a very jolly nature and generous prizes were received by many winners. All the prizes were donated by city business firms, and the ice cream, which was a part of the bountiful supper, was the gift of the Men's labor party, members of which were among the guests.

In charge of the picnic were two very capable committees. Arranging and running off the sports program were Mrs. C. Harvey(convener), Mrs. A. Crocker and Mrs. William Stinson, and under the convenership of Mrs. A. Davis, who was assisted by Mrs. A. Chisholm, Mrs. E. Ager and Mrs. J. J. Nott, the delicious supper was served. Mrs. F. Wells, the president, looked after the prizes.

CORONER'S JURY PLACES NO BLAME

Finds Death of Albert J. Pryce Was Purely Accidental.

A coroner's jury, sitting last night, attached no blame in the electrocution of Albert John Pryce, 38, 204 Grey street, on Saturday, June 27. Pryce, a cableman, who had been in the employ of the public utilities commission for 16 years, was working on a pole at Talbot and Horton street when the accident occurred. He fell thirty feet to the ground, fracturing his skull.

The verdict of the jury reads: "That Albert Pryce came to his death on Saturday afternoon, June 27, while employed as a hydro lineman on a job at Horton and Talbot streets in this city. Electrocution was the apparent cause of death, but the occurrence was purely accidental, and no blame is attached to anyone for the fatality."

According to Vernon McKillop, P.U.C. engineer, 285 Simcoe street, and E. V. Buchanan, P. U. C. general manager, Price likely received the charge of a 2300-volt overhead wire. He was an expert cableman, they said, and knew the location of the live wires. Mr. Buchanan believed that death was due to electrocution.

Dr. P. C. Banghart testified that the victim's skull injuries were so severe that they alone would have caused death.

The nine witnesses called were: W. J. Douglas, 552 Lovatt street, who was working with Price at the time; Bulah Watcher, Talbot and Horton streets; J. Cliff, 266 Thames street, Ben Morris, 222 Simcoe steet, P. Murdy, 193 Simcoe street, Calvin Coyle, 242 Talbot street, Mr. McKillop, Mr. Buchanan and Dr. Banghart.

STAR SALESMEN REACH LONDON ON LONG TRIP

Short Automobile Relays Bring Y.M.C.A. Torch-Bearers From New York.

Four boys, recently chosen as star salesmen in a national salesmanship contest of the Y. M. C. A. arrive here today by automobile relay from New York, bearing in the handle of a huge electric torch various official messages of greeting to persons in Chicago and Lake Geneva, Wis.

Edgar Frazer, 12 years old, of Lemoyne, Pa., the youngest of the four, is national champion by reason of his having sold in one week 102 subscriptions to "Association Men", the national Y. M. C. A. magazine.

The other boys are: Bertram Beeson, 13 years old, of Wilmington, Del.; William A. Robertson, 15, of Johnstown, Pa.; and Malcolm F. Hill, 16, also of Wilmington. Each of the boys is being backed by a prominent business man in his home community.

Preparations are being made to greet the boy salesmen on their arrival here, according to E. J. Jenkins.

The trip is being made by short automobile relays, an unusual means of locomotion. Each city at which the boys stop furnishes them with a car and driver to carry them to the next stopping point.

While here they will have supper at the university.

COUNTY JAIL TURNS INTO HEALTH RESORT

Every Prisoner Is in Perfect Condition, States Dr. James Wilson.

"If you want to be well, go to jail." This is the slogan that may be placed on a sign board in front of the Middlesex county jail within the next few days. There isn't one prisoner in the whole jail who even has a headache, Dr. James D. Wilsson, jail physician asserts.

"There isn't a delicate or sickly man in the whole lot," said Dr. Wilson. "Every prisoner is healthy and doing well. The meals are plain but substantial. The prisoners have clean quarters and they have regular hours. That's all they need to keep them healthy with the exercise they receive."

Veteran "Billy" Nicholls, 60 Years a Postal Worker, Is Living City Guide Book

Recalls Taverns and Livery Stables Where Service Stations and Office Buildings Stand.

KNOWS CITY HISTORY

This is a story of retrospect.

It is the result of an engaging hour spent in scanning the dim past toward the London of the Sixties.

If you remember when the market house was surrounded by a semi-circle of saloons; when a smithy stood on the site of the present city hall; when the Fair Grounds were on Talbot street north, and might be entered for the princely sum of five cents; if you remember all this, then the story is hardly worth perusing.

But supposing you were born sometime within the last half century, it is likely that the sign posts of memory do not take you back to the days of London's adolescence. In that case there are some rather informative, not to say startling, historical details that are yet to be learned. In the absence of any proper guide book to the city of London, such details can be obtained no more accurately nor more interestingly than from William Nicholls of 175 Wharncliffe road, north, who is a living baedeker of London's early days.

employed at postal work in London away back in the 'sixties. He is a living guide book to the city. He has been secretary of King Solomon Lodge, A. F. and A. M. for 38 years.

Knows His London.

Mr. Nicholls has a good memory. More than that, he has never been, in all his life, out of London for more than a couple of days at a time. Still more important, this venerable citizen spent half a century in an occupation which particularly fits him to tell of places and events of the long ago. For William Nicholls was one of the first mail carriers in London. His father was the first, and he was the second.

When free delivery was instituted on April 27, 1876, William Nicholls was one of the five men appointed as mail carriers. He helped the chief inspector, C. H. Dewey, from Ottawa, to arrange the free delivery system for the city, and then, upon taking an oath of office, without any examination such as required by the civil service of today, he began a long and faithful term as letter-carrier. It was an occupation which brought him in touch with the life of the city. He knew the people individually and he knew the business firms. He had known them for years. Before free delivery there had been pay-delivery. Citizens before that time might have their mail delivered at so much per letter and so much per paper, and William Nicholls and his father were the two postal employees with whom such citizens made their delivery contracts. William Nicholls was delivering letters throughout London at so much per letter even when he was a barefoot boy. And now he is a man over seventy.

Brick and Stone Ghosts.

When Mr. Nicholls goes a-walking, as he often does, he sees ghosts of other days. They are misty shapes of brick and stone. His eyes look through the walls of huge warehouses and stores and service-stations, and they see taverns and carriage factories and livery stables. It is only a matter of sixty years since they existed in reality, but they cannot be visualized by eyes which never looked upon them while they flourished.

Go with Mr. Nicholls along a few of the streets in London's downtown section, and more particularly those streets toward the river, west of Clarence, and north of the C. N. R. tracks, for this was the heart of London in the Sixties. If you were to use Mr. Nicholl's eyes, this is what you would see:

RIDOUT STREET, proceeding south from Blackfriars bridge—First of all, McDougall's tavern. Quite fitting to begin with a tavern, because they were many. Every corner, also, was a grocery, and grocery stores all sold beer. Then Eldon House, which is still Eldon House, the home of Ronald Harris. Across the road, Plummer and Paisley's wagon shop. Along a little farther, Leonard's foundry. On the west side again, Dr. Anderson's house, the present Brendan Hall, the home of the Christian Brothers. Upper Canada Bank, the first post office of London, Col. McKenzie's wholesale drygoods on the east side, and O'Callaghan's Terrace, the quarters of the 63rd Regiment in those days, all follow in quick succession before Dundas is reached. Then the court house, much as at prsent. Nearly opposite, the Glass Hotel, now a service station.

TALBOT STREET, proceeding north from York—The Balkwill House and the hotel of Charles Knapp, at the corner of King, loom up out of the shadows of the past. Then the market place. Ghosts of a dozen saloons which encircled the market house arise. They include Clark's Eating House, Charles Dunn's, Peter McCann's, that of Greenham Glass, Paul Phipps', Duke Wheeler's, John Scragg's, George Goodacre's and Drake's. And what of so many saloons? Were the proprietors good saloonkeepers or bad? Oh, the best. It was always, "What will you have, boys?" Nothing mean about them. Farther north, where the Middlesex Motors plant stands, was the Mechanics' Institute. Across the road, where the Greene-Swift building rises, stood Mrs. Kidner's millinery and Harvey Brothers' carpenter shop. Then came Pope's Terrace, at the corner of Fullarton. Then the residence of the mayor of those days, Francis Evans Cornish; then Peters Terrace, built by a land surveyor named Samuel Peters. Some distance along, the fair grounds, the first in London. (Admission 5 cents.)

RICHMOND STREET, south from Central—Here were the second fair grounds of the city. There were no C. P. R. tracks, of course. Through the trees of what is now Victoria park, glimpses could be caught in the old days of the military barracks—of stumps and cricket patches, where there are flower beds and motor drives (unused); farther through the trees might have been seen the woodyard of Mr. Morkin, who kept the Morkin hotel. Proceeding south, the McDonagh hotel and Andrews' brush factory were encountered; then at Albert street a hotel kept by Mr. Harley; then the McHugh hotel, where St. Peter's parish hall stands; opposite, Jarmain, the undertaker, a man of little stature, but a great man for business; then the Western hotel and stables, on the site of today's Grand opera house. Across the way, the English church, with a Sunday school building where the customs house rears its tower; Murray Anderson's foundry on the site now cleared for a million dollar hotel; at the corner of Dundas, G. G. Sutherland's drygoods store.

RICHMOND STREET, south of Dundas—Mountjoy's fruit store, below the city hall—Keene's second-hand store; C. Powell & Sons' marble works at the corner of King; J. D. Milton's Waterloo house, fifty feet back from the street line, where the London and Western Trusts building stands. (A son of Milton keeps hotel at Paris now); a frame opera house (Holman's), where the London Advertiser is today. Across the way, Perrin's first biscuit factory, a modest establishment; Martin O'Meara's hotel and livery stable, now replaced by the London Shoe Company. On the west side once more, the E. L. Thomas hotel, and finally a Tecumseh house, but not so large as the present hostelry.

YORK STREET, between Richmond and Clarence—On the south side, the Great Western station, but rather overshadowed by Belton's lumber yard. On the other side, Willis lumber yard and the inevitable hotel, John Howard's. Farther along, Jim Cousins' hotel and that of Bill Thornton, though McClary's office was also extant.

CLARENCE STREET, north from York to Dufferin—A string of stores to King street. Then J. H. Ryan's hotel, where Jerry McDonald now plays the role of Boniface. Jerry himself in those days was a bell-boy at the Tecumseh, along with George Primrose, who later made a million—not in the hotel game, but with burnt cork and a light pair of dancing feet. At the corner of Dundas, Bob Carter's saloon—four steps down from the street level, but far from being a low dive. North street church, where the Kingsmill terrace stands, opposite Cooper's photograph gallery, the first in London. Visible from the corner of Dundas and Clarence, the hotel of Mrs. O'Reilly, probably the famous "Mrs. O'Reilly who keeps the hotel." At any rate the hotel she kept was named the Rising Sun. Around the corner on Queen's, lived W. H. Abbott, the city clerk, and his two sons, who had a carriage factory on Dundas, opposite the wagon shop of H. H. Dart, the site of which is now rather clouded by the armories building. Abernethy's blacksmith shop was where the city hall rears its lordly architecture. And so on, and so on.

This is really only the first installment. There is an end to the story, and some time the story should be written to the end. For London some day will want a guide book. It might even be a best-seller if it could be published in time for the Centenary next year. And William Nicholls is the man to provide the material. For this is what William Nicholls sees in 40 minutes of looking backward: of looking backward to the days when he knew London of the sixties in a house-to-house way; when London was the home of little boys who nowadays themselves presume to reminisce.

All those who write local history should first serve a fifty years' apprenticeship as postman.

COL. W. M. GARTSHORE IMPROVES STEADILY

Lieut-Col. W. M. Gartshore, president of the McClary Manufacturing Company, who has been in Victoria Hospital for more than a month recovering from a stroke brought on by overwork, is showing steady progress, hospital officials said today. Col. Gartshore's condition, which was at first considered serious, is now vastly improved, and it is expected that he will be sufficiently rested to be able to leave the hospital in a few weeks. Dr. C. A. Harris is in attendance.

PASSPORT RUSH NOT FELT HERE

Waiting List of British-Born Bound For U. S. Already Top Heavy.

Applications from British-born residents of this U. S. consular district for entrance to the republic have already covered immigration allotments for the next seven years, according to figures supplied by G. R. Taggart, American consul here. Mr. Taggart said today that more than 700 natives of the British Isles are waiting for visas which will permit them to establish permanent homes in the U. S. This district, which embraces six and a half counties under the new law, is allowed to send 100-British-born persons each year to the U. S.

Starting July 1, 1924, American consuls were vested with the power of providing prospective immigrants with visas, thereby lessening congestion at border points. According to Mr. Taggart, the plan is working well.

"No matter how long they have lived in Canada, British-born persons are classed in the quota sections," the consul pointed out. "This is necessary to the uniformity of the immigration law. I know of one couple who have been residents of Canada for 50 years. Their applications have been filed from last year, and they are still waiting for visas. Applications are dealt with as they are received.

According to the provisions of the revised immigration laws, 34,077 citizens of Great Britain and Northern Ireland may enter the United States each year. The Irish Free State quota is 28,567.

Mr. Taggart advised all persons contemplating moving to the United States to request typewritten directions from the London consular office before making applications or taking action of any kind. This procedure will minimize delays, he asserts.

WEST INDIES TREATY GRATIFYING TO CITY

London Chamber of Commerce Urged Closer Trade Relationship.

The report from Ottwa of the signing of the Canada-West Indies treaty is received with satisfaction locally.

The chamber of commerce looks upon it as an aparetnly satisfactory arrangement and has continuously urged closer relationships between the two countries. It was due to the various chambers of commerce, including London's institutions, that Hance Logan, M.P., was sent to the West Indies to make a survey of the trade possibilities and this action led to the conference between representatives of the West Indies and the Canadian government.

Manufacturers of London interested in export trade should benefit by the treaty, in the opinion of W. H. Wood managing-secretary of the local chamber.

Labor Officials Hear New Plea On Behalf of Nova Scotia Workers.

Call for continuance of relief for starving families of miners in Nova Scotia was received today by local labor officials. President John Colbert and Secretary JJ. F. Thompson of the trades and labor council are seeking to further the drive for funds.

A wire received from Tom Moore, president of the dominion congress of the trades and labor unions, reads:

"Executive of district 26, united mine workers, advise that relief funds are yet urgently needed and we urge your continuance of every effort on their behalf until victory is won. Send donations direct to A. McKay, secretary, Glace Bay, N. S."

London officials have already sent over $1,000 to the stricken area, but they are not yet satisfied with the efforts made here. The city's grant of $200 has not yet been legalized through the passing of a bylaw and an attempt will be made to have such a procedure taken when the city council meets in special session on Friday night.

ITALIAN MINISTERS RESIGN.

Associated Press Despatch.

Rome, July 8.—Finance minister Alberto de Stefani and minister of national economy Cesare Nava presented their resignations to Premier Mussolini today and the latter referred them to the king. (During the recent sharp depreciation of the Italian lire, reports have been current in Rome that Signor de Stefani would resign and that Premier Mussolini might assume the finance portfolio.)

DEPOSITORS RAP NICKLE'S ACTION

Indignation Expressed Here As Case Against Bank Directors Is Dropped.

Indignation was registered here among Home Bank depositors upon receiving latest news of the Home Bank situation in despatches from Toronto.

That so much time, labor and money should be spent and so much litigation entered into for naught stirred the unlucky depositors to the point of exasperation.

Depositors were not satisfied with the statement made by Hon. W. F. Nickle, attorney general of Ontario, in which he said that further proceedings would be dropped as far as the bank case was concerned.

It seemed a pity, they said, that those who were responsible for their losses should get off while those who trusted them should suffer. It lessened their faith in banking institutions.

The attorney general's words that "The less a director knows about the bank's business and the more careful he is to stay away from the meetings, the less chance there is for him to be found liable under section 153 of thae bank act" was greeted with caustic comment from depositors.

All the depositors of the Home Bank have now been placed on the same level, in the opinion of U. A. Buchner. Speaking of the despatch from Ottawa this morning stating that the depositors large and small would be required to give a statement of their deposits not only in the Home Bank but in other institutions at the time of the crash, he said that this meant that the man with his life savings in the defunct bank would have the same chance as those who had their eggs in many baskets.

Copies of a draft affidavit will likely be sent to the depositors, thinks Mr. Buchner. They will have to be sworn before justice of the peace or commissioner and sent to the liquidators who will in turn submit the claims to Mr. Justice McLean, judge of the exchequer court.

BINDER BUSY IN LONDON DISTRICT

Wheat Being Cut Not Heavy, But Average Will Improve Later.

The song of the binder has risen to crescendo in London township where a great deal of fall wheat has been cut on light land.

J. F. Andrew of the department of agriculture who visited the district yesterday, states that the wheat is not as heavy as it will be on the heavier land in the township.

"Wheat on heavy land will be an average crop of about 21 bushels to the acre" said Mr. Andrew. "It will be much better on real heavy soil."

"The rain of yesterday and Monday night will put many hundreds of dollars in the pockets of the farmers. It was just what was needed for second growth alfalfa which now promises to be a good crop. It will also benefit oats, barley, and second growth of clover, to say nothing of the fruit.

OFFICIALS TO DISCUSS HOSPITAL EXPENSES

County Authorities To Talk New Agreement With City Institution.

A county council committee composed of Warden Allan McPherson, Reeves JJ. S. Cousin, A. C. Hodgins and County Clerk JJohn Stuart will meet at the county buildings tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock to discuss a new agreement with the city regarding the amount to be paid by Middlesex for county patients at Victoria hospital.

County Clerk Stuart states that the old agreement which terminated last year and has never been renewed, called for the payment of $1.50 per day for each county patient.

The amount cannot exceed $1.50 in any event, Mr. Stuart points out, as the hospital act provides for this as being the maximum amount. Later on, the committee will meet civic authorities to discuss the new agreement.

Rescuer's Watch Found In Grass

Special to The Advertiser.

St. Thomas, July 8.—Indignation was caused here yesterday by a story which gained circulation that Rev. C. M. C. Hallowell had his watch and chain stolen from his clothes while he was diving in Lake Pinafore in hopes of locating some of the bodies of victims of Monday's drowning tragedy. Arriving on the scene soon after the accident, Mr. Hallowell divested himself of part of his clothing before plunging into the water, and when he returned his watch and chain were missing.

The supposition was that they had been stolen, but yesterday he returned to the spot where he had undressed and discovered the missing watch and chain in the grass.

Small Depositors Most Numerous

London's Home Bank depositors will be interested in the table below, which shows the number of depositors who had less than $500 in the Home Bank up to those who had upwards of $25,000 on deposit when the crash came.

SENIOR PILGRIM ENDEAVOR.

The Senior Christian Endeavor society of the Pilgrim United church (Southern Congregational) met this week with Miss E. Perry in the chair. L. R. Anderson led the devotional exercises while Gordon Fonger read the scripture lesson. A paper on "What makes a nation great?" was given by Mrs. Sam Angles and was followed by an interesting discussion, each member responding with question and answer.

Dr. H. Taylor presided at the consecration meeting which followed. As the topic for the evening was a patriotic one, the room was decorated with flags. It was decided to hold the Christian Endeavor on Wednesday nights in conjunction with the regular prayer meeting, during the absence of the pastor.

PILGRIM ENDEAVOR.

The regular meeting of the Intermediate Christian Endeavor society of the Pilgrim United church (Southern Congregational) was held this week, with Eunice Hilton presiding. The scripture lesson was taken by Miss Beatrice Powell. The chief feature of the meeting was a paper on "What makes a nation great?" read by Jim Joyce, and followed by a lively discussion. A consecration meeting followed, when the members repeated the pledge and responded to the roll call by a verse of scripture. This was the closing meeting for the summer.

WEBSTER AUXILIARY.

A very interesting and enthusiastic meeting was held on Monday evening in Knollwood Park Presbyterian church, when the young ladies of the church met to organize a Y. W. auxiliary.

Miss Margrett, Y. W. secretary of the London presbyterial, in her bright and helpful way, told the girls of the great opportunities that are to be found in missionary work.

Miss Bertha Robb was the unanimous choice of the meeting for president. The other officers are: Vice-president, Miss Hazel McKeown; secretary, Miss Mabel Decker; treasurer, Miss Mary Robb; supply secretaries, Misses Hilda Benford and Evelyn Murray; welcome and welfare secretary, Miss Elsie Benford; pianist, Miss May Radford, and magazine secretary, Miss Edna Cunningham.

KNOLLWOOD PARK W. M. S.

The women of Knollwood Park Presbyterian church met on Monday evening, with Mrs. Kelly, president of the London presbyterial, in the chair, to organize a W. M. S. After singing a missionary hymn, Mrs. Smith led in prayer, after which Mrs. Kelly gave the ladies a very helpful and instructive talk and proceeded with the election of officers.

Knollwood Park, although still a young congregation, is in a flourishing condition, and is now desirous of entering into the great mission schemes of the church. The following officers have been elected: President, Miss McNaughton; secretary, Mrs. Smith; treasurer, Mrs. Webster, and supply secretary, Mrs. Benford.

WESLEY UNITED S. M. C.

The July meeting of the senior mission circle of the Wesley United church was held last night in the junior schoolroom. It was well attended by the regular members and their guests, the young women's society of the Knox United church. The president, Mrs. J. H. Childs, presided, and the Bible lesson took the form of a responsive reading by Miss Mabel Gregory and Miss Edna Lawson.

Reports from the watch tower and temperance conveners, Miss Winnifred Hardy and Miss Jean Hodgson, were received with much interest and both were comprehensive. An article on Christian Stewardship was read by Miss Edith Dunn. Miss Marion Peal and Miss Gertrude Rowntree contributed pleasing solos.

Mrs. James S. Barnard was the speaker of the evening, outlining very comprehensively the mission study book, China's Real Revolution, which is to be studied by the circle during the coming year. The meeting then closed with a prayer by Mrs. James Brown.

ABERDEEN M. C.

The committee in charge of the sports of the picnic the Aberdeen mothers' club is holding tomorrow held a meeting this week to draw up the events. They are to include several competitions for the men, and it is, therefore, hoped that many of the fathers will endeavor to be present as they have been extended a cordial invitation to enjoy an outing with their wives and families.

OUTRAGEOUS TO SELL THAMES ST. PROPERTY

doesn't seem to me that they have acted in a very businesslike manner."

An Absurd Price.

Mr. Vining characterized the reported price of $1,500 as "absurd." The Springbank dam will have to be built and the river made navigable sooner or later, he believes.

"But the whole proposal depends to a very large extent on the retention by the city of control of the docking privileges at this point. It is the only way in which we can exercise any control over the boating on the river and take measures to insure the safety of citizens using the boats. Out of the docking concessions and refreshment privileges in connection with such a dock, we can secure very considerable revenue, which would go a long way towards the payment of interest and sinking fund on the debentures required for the construction of the dam."

Mr. Vining recalled the action of the chamber of commerce two years ago in urging the purchase of the property with a view to its being held as a means of access to the river in the event of the dam being built. "If that was the purpose of buying the property, then does not the same reason exist today to as great an extent as when it was first bought?" Mr. Vining asks.

Well Is Needed.

Retention of the 1,200-foot well of sulphur water is another point which Mr. Vining thinks should not be lost sight of. This well produces a million gallons of water every 24 hours, and this could be used quite as well as city water for fire-fighting purposes in the event of an emergency, such as the breaking of the main between the city and Springbank. "There is also a possibility that the water may be made fit for drinking purposes. The public utilities commission has been conducting experiments along that line for some time. We have not succeeded yet, but that does not argue that we will not eventually succeed," remarked Mr. Vining.

"The whole policy of the waterworks board from the beginning has been to acquire land on both sides of the river from the city limits to Springbank to be used later in the construction of boulevards along both sides. Now the city council proposes to dispose of the keystone of the whole system. It seems outrageous to me," he concluded.

Reason for the Sale.

A $125,000 project to build an all-the-year-round swimming pool at the sulphur springs site is under way. According to promoters of the scheme they are ready to sink that much money in a venture which they assert will be a great asset to London.

They point out that the unkept grounds have been an eyesore for seventeen years, with no attempt made to improve the property or even keep it clean and tidy. Now they assert a "dog-in-the-manger" attitude has been taken by the utilities commission.

Capital already lined up for the project is reported to be in the neighborhood of $50,000. It is the intention to build a modern bath house, with complete conveniences, providing a swimming pool for every day of the year. There would be private mineral baths.

Promoters point out that people would be brought from all parts of the country to partake of the benefits of mineral baths. While backers of the scheme do not wish to discuss complete details of their plans, they assert that their project will do much to boost London and bring profit to the city.

"Round Robin" Scored.

Attitude of the city council on the matter is not at all unanimous, though a thorough discussion on the question will be enjoyed before final decision is made. There is much objection to special meetings during the summer, after decision was made to forego all sessions until the third week of July.

"I will not be there," declared Ald. L. H. Douglass, M.D., with much emphasis. "I had already arranged to go away for a few holidays when the meeting was called, and the mayor knew I'd be out of the city. There will be others absent, too, and I think it is a very inopportune time to bring up a matter which has such an important bearing on the whole river question. I'm opposed to these hurriedly called special meetings and 'round robins' on such important subjects.

"So far as the sale of the property is concerned, I'm wholly in favor of getting as much as we can for it, if the city really wants to dispose of it. If we are going to sell it at all to an outside party, we should certainly get the highest price possible."

A fixed assessment cannot legally be given to the promoters of the swimming bath project. According to City Clerk Samuel Baker, when asked for information, fixed assessments were abolished some years ago. Any arrangement which might be made for a low assessment on property could be overruled at any time by the court of revision or the county judge. Promoters of the bath house scheme are asking for a fixed assessment for a ten-year period.

Chamber Interested.

The chamber of commerce, which was instrumental in having the city purchase the property in question some two years ago, will be represented at the special council meeting, prepared to protest strongly against the disposal of any part of the property.

W. Gould, who for several years operated a sulphur bath on the site, came to the chamber of commerce, following a fire which destroyed his premises, and in which he suffered severe injuries, seeking help in disposing of the property. The chamber made numerous efforts to interest capital, both locally and from outside the city, in a proposal to erect a sanatorium or spa at the spring. The well was referred to as an unlimited supply of mineral water of unexcelled curative properties, and analysis by experts bore out this contention. They stated that it was admittedly the finest mineral water on the continent of America.

Owing to prevailing business conditions and shortage of available capital none of the proposals bore fruit, and in the meantime Mr. Gould had purchased a farm and decided upon the sale of the site merely as a piece of land. Penman's, Limited, whose factory adjoins the property to the south, desired to acquire part of it as a recreation ground, but felt they could not afford to purchase it all. At this juncture the chamber of commerce stepped in and arranged that the city purchase the whole tract at $7,500.

A large portion was later sold to Penman's for $6,000 and the small northerly section, on which the spring is located, was retained by the city, with the idea of using it for park purposes until such time as the new dam was built, when it would ensure the city's access to the river in the event of boating again becoming possible.

Hard To Understand.

"Only this spring we received instructions from the council to put this property in shape as a park," stated General Manager Buchanan this morning. "We spent considerable time and money in having it levelled up and put in shape and now the council proposes to sell it. I don't understand it, at all.

"I would certainly not be in favor of selling the sulphur spring. It produces a million gallons of water a day and would be of inestimable value for fire fighting purposes in the event of a break in the Springbank main. Besides, what the council really proposes to sell is the hole itself from which the water comes. It is 1,200 feet deep and it would cost, at a very conservative estimate, $3,000 to $5,000 to drill another similar well. Yet the aldermen propose to sell the whole property, spring and all, for $1,500."

Business men in discussing the desirability of having a mineral bath or spa located in the city do not see why it could not just as well be located to the north of the Dundas street bridge. This proposal Mr. Buchanan considers as entirely feasible. It would be an easy matter to pipe the water from the sulphur spring to this location and the city would obtain considerable revenue from the sale of the water to the parties operating the bath house.

KNOLLWOOD PARK HAS MISSION BAND

Children Organize—Mrs. Kelly Offers Life Membership Certificate.

Organization has been going ahead very strongly in the Knollwood Park Presbyterian church. This week three societies have been formed, among which is the mission band. With over 200 children in the Sunday school, a good foundation had been laid for the starting of this band, and though the circus was just across the way on Monday afternoon, about 17 children were at the church to meet Mrs. George Bryce, who is in charge of the organization work of mission bands in the city.

Mrs. Bryce presided for the organization and the following officers were elected: Superintendent, Mrs. Andrew Hare; assistant superintendent, Mrs. William Smith; president, Margaret Gow; first vice-president, Horace Benford; second vice-president, Margaret Scopes; secretary, Vera Robb; roll call, George Arnold; assistant roll call, Kenneth Balch; treasurer, Irene Benford; pianist, Alexina Macpherson.

Sunshine Spreaders.

The name of the little society is to be Sunshine Spreaders, and the merry and enthusiastic faces of the children at the meeting were promises of great work to be done. The meetings are to be held every second Monday shortly after 4 o'clock, and they are to be strictly divided. Opening with a social meeting next week, the following meeting will probably be of a religious nature, and the next meeting will be a work ssesion, or vice versa.

The children are to have "Brave Adventurers" for their study book, and at the work meeting they are to make their own mite boxes. It might be of interest to their mothers that these are to be made out of baking powder tins, so they must either keep an empty tin on hand or empty one in a hurry to avoid any difficulties on the day of that session.

Membership Contest.

Of interest to the children will be a competition for membership and regular attendance. Mrs. W. E. Kelly, the president of the London (Continuing) presbyterial, has offered a junior life membership certificate and pin, valued at $5, for the girl or boy obtaining the highest standing at the conclusion of the contest. A similar award was recently won by Miss Viola Phillips, a member of Mrs. Bryce's personal band at Chalmers Presbyterian church.

BERLIN BOURSE CLOSES AS OFFICIAL PROTEST

German Securities Abroad Are Expected To Be Adversely Affected.

Associated Press Despatch.

Berlin, July 8.—The bourse committee today decided to close the exchange as a protest against the decision of the revaluation committee of the reichstag to differentiate between old and new holders of paper marks state loans and to grant the latter revaluation of only 2½ per cent compared to five per cent for old subscribers to the loan. All other German exchanges have been closed. Bankers and financiers generally are of the opinion that it will be impossible to carry through differentiations and they expect German securities abroad will be adversely affected.

WOMEN and THE HOME

ENTERTAINMENT IS BEST SIMPLE

Large Houses and Elaborate Meals Are Not Necessary.

By JULIA HOYT.

The question of how soon it is permissible to extend an invitation to a new acquaintance depends entirely on whether or not you like the person enough to invite her or him to your house, and whether you feel that there is that certain spark of sympathy between you to warrant it. Naturally, people who have very large houses, and who entertain in a very general manner do not, I imagine, pay any particular attention to these two factors, but if one entertains in a small and consequently, rather intimate manner, they are important.

It is curious, that little spark of sympathy. There are people to whom you may say only two words and yet you instinctively know that you would like to invite them to your house, and that they would like to come. If that happens there is no need of worrying about needless formalities, and whether or not such slight acquaintance permits an invitation. Go right ahead and invite them to tea, lunch or dinner.

Some people hesitate to ask new acquaintances to a meal which is perforce informal because they live in a small way. They are foolish to feel so. There is nothing more charming than informal entertaining, provided the hostess is not attempting to make it formal, or is not attempting a form of entertainment beyond the capacity of her household. No one ever needs to feel apologetic for hospitality simply and unostentatiously offered; it is only those who attempt an ostentation which is false who have cause to be worried and who, I may say, are usually shown up as foolish people.

The average person today looks forward with dread to formal entertainment, and is invariably delighted to go to a home of the simplest kind. The garnishings and style are quite unimportant; the only important things necessary to make people glad to be invited are a host or hostess who have the faculty of making their home, if it is but one room, congenial in atmosphere, and the knowledge that if others are there they will be people we will be glad to see again or be interested in meeting.

PILLOW NOW PART OF HER COSTUME

Hostess Arranges Cushions To Tone In With Her Prettiest Frock.

Copyright.

New York, July 7.—"Pretty soft!" That is the only possible way to describe the latest costume necessaries of the season, which happen to be pillows. For pillows, sofa and otherwise, are being used not only to sit on, but to set off and accentuate nearly every costume at present. No thoughtful hostess greets her guests these days without at least one nook, jealously guarded and supplied with colorful pillows, which will bring out and individualize the points of her own costume.

No guest fails to take the precaution to avoid the nest of down which will not harmonize with the color scheme of her own frock. Invite a girl for a drive in a zippy open roadster on a bright day and you will find that she appears accompanied by a pillow which will remove the handicap of neutral upholstery and add the touch which will make her appearance complete.

Visitors to the great intercollegiate regattas are all prepared to carry with them pillows which will add to their comfort and appearance, whether they view the event from a train, or a yacht or a motor boat, and if spectators at the recent polo matches had so far forgotten themselves as to throw their cushions as some baseball crowds have been known to do, the referee would have been buried under a multi-colored shower of silk and feathers.

In fact, the custom of carrying a cushion has become as prevalent at the summer sports as the ubiquitous coonskin coat and the yellow oilskins at the autumn football games. Cushions, up until now, have been flowerful affairs with daintily appliqued colored blossoms predominating in their decorations. The newer cushions now carry a whole zoo, the list including every animal from dogs and cats to elephants and tigers.

A dainty kewpie in the centre of the table held rainbow streamers leading to the graduation cake and tiny horseshoes were caught to each serviette. WEDDINGS

ROE—DEWAR.

Stratford, July 7.—A quiet wedding was solemnized in the vestry of Knox church, when Miss Annie D. Dewar, of Wellesley, became the bride of Mr. Stephen T. Roe, of Atwood. Rev. A. G. McLachlin officiated.

After the ceremony the young couple motored to the bridegroom's farm in Elma, where they will be at home to their friends after the first of August.

DOUGLAS—HUNTER.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Hunter, Balmoral farm, near Petrolia, was a scene of an interesting event at 3 o'clock Wednesday, June 24, when their only daughter, Elsie Jean, was united in marriage to Mr. James Roy Douglas of Detroit, son of Mrs. J. Douglas, Petrolia.

The ceremony took place under an arch of evergreens, roses and orange blossoms.

The bride, who was given away by her father, looked charming in a lovely gown of pink silk crepe, trimmed with ecru lace and satin rosettes and carried a shower bouquet of Ophelia roses. She wore the groom's gift, a pearl necklace with diamond clasp. The bridesmaid, Miss Evelyn Lecocq, wore a gown of peach silk crepe, and carried a bouquet of pink and white carnations. The groom was attended by the bride's youngest brother, Mr. Roy S. Hunter. Little Joyce Kathan, dressed in white trimmed with blue, and little Hazel Jean, dressed in white with pink trimmings, pieces of the bride, made sweet little flower girls, carrying a basket of sweet peas, in which the ring was concealed.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. J. Monds, of whose church the bride was a member.

After the ceremony the guests sat down to a dainty dinner served by a few girl friends of the bride. On the bride's table a linen cloth was laid sent from Dunfermline, Scotland, centered by the bride's cake, and decorated with pink and white roses. The pink and white color scheme was carried on throughout the house.

The young couple left on the 5:25 train to visit Niagara Falls and other cities, the bride travelling in a dress of sand flat crepe, with touches of green and coat of brick shade poire twill, trimmed with fur, with hat and scarf in harmonizing colors.

The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was a barpin; to the flower girls, rings, and to the best man gold cuff links.

They will reside in Detroit.

Premature Old Age of Women

It is no secret that so many women suffer from ailments peculiar to their sex. Dark circles appear under the eyes, a pale, drawn, haggard expression to the countenance, and the weakness which accompanies such ailments is evidenced by the lagging step, headache, backache and nervous conditions. Every woman who is afflicted in this way should rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which for half a century has been overcoming some of the most stubborn ailments of women.—Advt.

MILLER'S WORM POWDERS

STARVED HEARTS

By MILDRED BARBOUR.

CONCERNING THE ACTION AND THE CHARACTERS

STEPHEN LANE, wealthy, middle-aged, despotic, who rules with a tyrant hand.

BARBARA, his young wife, who sold herself into a loveless marriage,—opposed his brother's marriage some twenty years before and now resents the guardianship of his beautiful orphaned niece.

MADELON, whose boy-and-girl affair with

DUANE FARLEY,, he has already broken up, with the result that Farley turns to Barbara for sympathy while

ANN ORDWAY, lifelong family friend befriends Madelon, and is approved by Ann.

CHAPTER IX.

A Woman's Courage.

She looked very slight and frail, despite her enveloping furs, in contrast with the great iron-studded door behind her. Farley's ready imagination caught at the suggestion of the lovely captive princess returning to the ogre's castle after a little space of freedom.

"You're quite sure you won't come in?"

Her voice was even, but her great purple-black eyes implored him.

"I—that is—I have an early dinner engagement at the club," stammered Farley.

He pitied her with all his heart. And he admired her and respected her as no man could help doing in the face of such pathetic loveliness, such gallant loyalty to a terrible bargain. He knew she was trying desperately to snatch a moment's happiness from youth and life, and he would have given it to her gladly; but he was wiser than she, despite his years, and he knew the dangers.

And deep in his heart, hidden by his laughing, tawny eyes, was his love for Madelon which had never died.

So he temporized, made excuses which he knew that she knew were only excuses

"I can give you tea," her voice was very low.

Its pathos smote him. He squared his shoulders, flung back his head.

He would go through with it today, but there must be no further meetings. It wouldn't be fair to her. Soon people would begin to talk about their innocent friendship, the friendship of two lonely hearts. He'd been a cad and a fool to let them both drift.

"You tempt me too far, fair lady," he laughed and sprang up the steps.

She gave him a faint smile and her eyes told him that she knew he came unwillingly. But she led the way silently into the drawing-room and rang for Masters.

Despite the actual physical warmth of the room, Farley could not repress a shudder. It seemed drearier than even the twilight warranted, and he made haste to switch on the lights under the sombre--shaded lamps. There was no fire on the hearth, but Barbara walked over to it and stood looking down at the empty grate. It was as though she sought to warm herself at a flame that had died—or had never been kindled.

When Masters brought in the tea-cart, she motioned Farley to a chair and began to strip the gloves from her slim, white hands.

"Would you rather have a high-ball?" she asked colorlessly.

"Thanks, no," his voice attempted a cheerful lightness. "Tea, as you brew it, is nectar enough for me."

She made no answer, silently preparing a cup which she handed. Then she leaned back in her chair, her hands folded in her lap.

He motioned toward the tea urn.

"Aren't you—imbibing—today?"

She shook her head.

"What is it—Barbara?" he asked gently. "Tired?"

"A little."

There was silence for a minute while he stirred his tea, miserably conscious that he should say something, and not daring. The atmosphere was too tense for persiflage, and yet the silence was unbearable.

He swallowed his tea hastily and rose.

"I've got to be off if I'm going to keep my appointment," he said with an effort of ease. "Awfully good of you to give me the cheering cup. See you tomorrow, maybe."

Barbara rose, too. Her pallor was startling even in the subdued light and her purple-black eyes seemed to fill her small, oval face.

"I asked you to come in today, Duane, because—I don't think I shall be seeing you again."

He locked at her intently, so intently that she averted her own eyes.

"Why?"

She made a little restless gesture.

"I think I shall be going away soon. Florida, perhaps, or California."

"I see," he answered slowly. Mercifully he hid the pity in his eyes. How proud she was! How courageous! He was very near to loving her at that moment. Worshipping her, rather, for there was some strange elusive quality about her that seemed to remove her from earthly passions. Perhaps it was the dignity of her renunciation.

He held out his hand and his eyes met hers frankly.

"If you ever need me, a word will bring me."

"Thank you," she said, her voice scarcely more than a whisper. "Goodbye."

When he had gone, she stood where he had left her, unmoving, but the hot tears rolled silently down her pale cheeks.

She had done the thing which he had not had the courage to do and it had cost her almost her life.

LONDON WOMEN ENJOY BOWLING

Enthusiastic Sports Women Enjoy Community Games at St. Mark's.

There is plenty of proof that London can boast many women sportsmen as well as the men, but the golfers are not the only persons who enjoy exercise out-of-doors. There are ladies' bowling clubs, and they are playing an important part in the community life of the city, with the St. Mark's club as an outstanding part of them.

For some years the community about St. Mark's Anglican church has enjoyed social games, and the men as well as the women have benefited by the community spirit the team work inspires. So popular are the clubs becoming that Dr. McGhie of Westminster hospital has instituted the game out there, and this afternoon the St. Mark's club has been invited to play a friendly game with the new team, which is, as yet, in its infancy.

The St. Mark's club is in a very flourishing condition, and the new members are fast enterng their names upon the roll. All are very enthusiastic and enjoy playing on the well-kept greens in Pottersburg at the rear of St. Mark's church.

Tomorrow there is to be an open draw in the evening, and all women interested in bowling are invited to enter. On July 30 there is to be a tournament and a cordial invitation has been extended to all surrounding greens to enter. Entries are to be sent to Mrs. George Arms, Hale street. It is expected that players will be present at this big event from Stratford, Brantford, Woodstock, All Saints', this city; St. Matthew's, this city, and Ailsa Craig. There will be about 20 rinks.

Meals, at this time, are being provided by the members of the ladies' aid of the Trinity (Hale Street) United church.

The car that put the War in Warren

JIM WARREN bought a car—the "Gingerbread Six."

Never heard of it before, but he happened to stumble into it, and during a lapse moment his foot slipped.

"Nifty boat," said the salesman.

"Not bad," said Jim, as paint and doo-dabs got in their hypnotic work.

"But why isn't it advertised?" asked Jim.

"Don't need to advertise a job like that," was the forearmed reply. Sounded logical. But—

Six months later Jim had a collection of bolts and grease-cups and broken springs and disjointed steering mechanism and a motor that almost ran.

"Never again!" said Jim. "The car that's little known and never advertised hasn't much responsibility; little to live up to. Before I buy another car—or another anything—I'm going to get the facts. I'm going to read the advertisements about automobiles—or whatever I'm buying."

Advertisements are an invaluable guide to intelligent buying. Read them regularly.

Lovely Wonderland Rings With Laughter of Children At W.C.T.U. Summer Camp

HUTS TRANSFERRED

Old Site Abandoned With Encroachment of Thames Valley Golfers.

Just around the bend at Wonderland as you travel by the Springbank car is a collection of airy huts and tents, known as the W. C. T. U. fresh air camp. Here among the trees along the bank of the Thames river, London children regain health and strength through outdoor life and exercise.

Until this year the camp was located at the point where golf enthusiasts tee off at the Thames Valley course. The proximity of the municipal links, however, made a move necessary, and now the camp flourishes as ever at Wonderland and enjoys the privileges of the municipal swimming pool there. This week saw the first days of camp, with nine girls, big and small, in residence.

The huts, carefully transported all the way from the old site, nestle in a picturesque grove of trees, while the river flows past like a silver streak in the sun. There is a large airy dormitory for the small children, accommodating about ten, and a similar spacious sleeping hut for the bigger girls who must take the car into the city every day to work. Each girl has her own cot and one of the first tasks of the morning is to tidy up the dormitories and make the beds.

Astir At 7:30.

Seven-thirty finds the whole camp astir, with the aroma of breakfast in the air and the pleasant face of the cook peering from the kitchen-house to see that everyone is ready for the first meal of the day. Dinner is just as popular a meal as breakfast, and supper cannot come too soon for the hungry little campers. Apparently soup is a favorite, and on the afternoon on which we visited the camp the cook was thrown many a beguiling compliment and hints that the same sort of soup might be offered again.

Meals are served in a large tent with open sides and raised platform. Here Mrs. Ida Harrison, the camp mother, presides over her interesting little company each day, assisted by Miss Verna Whitlock, leader of the first camp, which will continue through the coming two weeks.

The girls were delighted to see us when our car chugged into view down the hill to the riverside. Visitors are not any too frequent, and they had so much to show us. The swimming pool was the first exhibit and we were only sorry that bathing time was past and we could not watch them at fun in the water.

Over the Bridge.

Camp is separated from the swimming pool by a quaint rustic bridge which crosses one of the prettiest ravines in all Springbank. With small girls on either side, taking our hands lest we lose our way, we were piloted through the trees and dense undergrowth, across the bridge and through a gate to where the pool lay cool and inviting before us. It is really a spring, bubbling up in a natural hollow. All about, shrubs and trees cast their pretty shadows on the water, and behind them a high board fence acts as a protection to the pool. Bathing stalls line one side of the pool, and here the little campers change into swimming suits for the daily frolic in the water.

"See the springboard over there," "Watch me paddle," "Come and I'll show you our spring," "We've got real bathing suits." Remarks like these came fast from the lips of the little campers as they took us about.

"We should have tidied up had we known you were coming," came from one small lassie, and she looked as neat and sweet as a blossom just the way she was.

Little Japanese Girls.

Great excitement prevailed when we announced that we had a camera with us and would take their pictures. Two small Japanese girls, Alice and Helen Wong, from the Protestant orphans' home were shy about being "took," but finally consented to stand with the rest. These little girls add interest to the camp, which will shortly include a little Russian child and perhaps an Italian.

The first camp is always the smallest, but as the summer goes on all the dormitories will be filled. Although the small children get the greatest benefit from camp life, dwelling out of doors all day long for two whole weeks, the older girls regain strength rapidly, even though their time at camp is restricted to after-work hours and sleeping time. Each night the Springbank car takes them to Wonderland camp, and each morning early conveys them back to the city in time for work.

Many of the girls are enjoying the privileges of camp owing to the kind invitation of interested citizens or clubs. And there's not a more helpful institution in the community. It's worth while paying the camp a visit.

Should an Unengaged Girl Have Many Beaux or Should She Stick to One?—What to Do About Hubby.

Dear Miss Dix—Do you think that a girl who is not engaged, and with no present prospect of being engaged, should go with only one man? A few nights ago a young man brought me home from a party. My parents did not approve of this, and say that people will talk if I go out with different young men. What do you think? And what do you think of the good-night kiss?

MABEL.

Answer:

I think your parents are entirely wrong in the view they take of the matter. There is safety in numbers, and there is far less danger of a girl being gossiped about who has a number of beaux than there is if she is continually in the company of the same young man.

Every girl should try to know as many men as she can, because it gives her a wider range of selection when she comes to pick out a husband. It is only by having looked over the whole bunch, so to speak, and being able to contrast one with another, that she is able to tell which is the best of the lot and which one she really prefers.

Very often a young man who well. When a girl gets to know him better she finds him mean, or stingy, or bossy, or disagreeable, and hard to get along with. If she has given up all her other beaux for him, she is compelled to stick to him, or else sit at home and suck her thumb, instead of stepping out to places of amusement of an evening. But if she has kept a number of strings to her bow, she can swap him off for a more agreeable companion.

In my opinion, any girl is foolish who lets any man monopolize her until he has definitely proposed marriage and named the wedding day. Because if she narrows herself down to just one man it puts her completely in his power so far as having a good time and getting married are concerned. Such an arrangement binds the girl and leaves the man free. He drives all other men away, and she must depend upon his pleasure to take her about, but he is under no obligation to do so.

This puts a girl in a humiliating position. Instead of having half a dozen men seeking her favor, and fighting each other for the privilege of taking her to places and anxious to marry her, she has to sit on the anxious bench waiting for her Grand Pasha to throw the handkerchief to her, and condescend to invite her to places of amusement, and he can take his time in marrying her, if he marries her at all.

And if as often happens, the man gets tired of her and leaves her in the lurch, she has nobody to fall back upon because she has given up all other men for a trifler.

Competition is the life of trade, in love-making and matrimony as elsewhere. Nothing booms a girl's stock with a man so much as seeing that other men admire her. To her that hath beaux shall be added more beaux, but from her that hath not shall be taken away even the poor little steady that she has.

* * * *

Dear Miss Dix—I am a married woman with two children, aged 11 and 9. I enjoy going out with my husband and children, but my husband often refuses to go, telling me that if I want to go, to take the boys and go on. Of course, that leaves him free to go wherever he pleases. Do you think I should do as he says, take the children and go, or stay at home and brood over his absence until he returns?

A PUZZLED WIFE.

Answer:

Take the children and go and amuse yourself. No good purpose would be served by your staying at home shedding gobs of tears of self-pity, while you brooded over your husband's absence.

Purgatory itself has no greater torture than that which wives go through who sit at home of nights, wondering where their wandering husbands are, while their jealousy pictures their fat, bald-headed, middle-aged spouses taking part in scenes of wild revelry, filled with champagne bottles, and vamps in slinky clothes and long jade earrings. And it abates nothing of the sufferings of these poor ladies that these orgies are generally purely imaginary, and that nine times out of ten hubby has spent the evening playing pinochle with Gustammayer around the corner, or has been with a group of cronies in the back of a drug store, laying down the law about what ought to be done about the German reparation.

It would save wives a lot of unnecessary misery if they would only realize that ice is an expensive luxury for which most men lack the price, and that their husbands cannot get very gay out of what is left of their salaries after they have paid the butcher, the baker and the candlestick maker, and settled for the children's shoes and the doctor's bill. Therefore, when they wander forth of an evening away from their own firesides, it is generally for no such wickedness as their wives imagine, but for a mild game of pool, or a gossip with other men, and the only lurid night life they see is on the moving-picture screen.

STRATHROY UTILITIES SINK NEW TEST WELL

Aim To Secure Sufficient Water From Well System.

Special to The Advertiser

Strathroy, July 7. — The public utilities commission commenced today to sink a test well for water on Highland park, the commission's property, which has been used for a playground for the past two years. It is hoped this test hole on the Highland on the south side of the town will show a reliable source of supply so that the water system can be put on a paying basis and extended.

Ducklings Worry Mother Chicken

Special to The Advertiser.

Chatham, July 7. — A hen hatched out a brood of ducklings at Erieau, and now the residents of that popular summer resort are daily treated to a spectacle of a very much annoyed hen, wading in the shallow water of Rondeau Bay, vainly cackling to her foster children to come in out of the wet. Speculation is rife as to whether the hen will violate the laws of her species and attempt to swim after the ducklings.

PROBLEM OF INDIA STILL UNDECIDED

Britain Revealed As Uncertain As To Wisest Policy in East.

Associated Press Despatch

London, July 7.—Great Britain no longer talks of "holding the gorgeous East in fee, but asks India to march side by side with us in fruitful, harmonious partnership which might create the greatest and proudest days of Indian history," declared the Earl of Birkenhead, secretary of state for India, in an important debate in Hull today.

The session was expected to reveal the government's decision regarding the revision of the 1919 act for the government of India before 1929, the date stipulated in the act itself for the revision of the Indian constitution, but the long pronouncement made by Lord Birkenhead only showed that the British government has not yet formulated a policy for dealing with the problem that confronts it in India.

The viceroy of India, the Earl of Reading, has been in England for two months engaged in conferring with Lord Birkenhead and other members of the Baldwin cabinet on the difficult questions arising from serious friction in the working of the act of 1919, which gave partial self-government to India. The system of diarchy embodied in this act, giving the Indian provinces a large control of their own local affairs, has proved partly unworkable.

Serious Disorders.

There has been serious sedition disorders in Bengal and the act has been suspended in that province, while from all over India there have been demands by nationalists for the revision of the act before 1929.

Lord Birkenhead, in announcing that the cabinet had not yet arrived at a decision, said that before a decision could be reached the advice of the government of India must be formally invoked and the opinion of the Indian legislative assembly elicited.

The question of antedating the revision of the act, he emphasized, that the "door of acceleration was not open to menace, and still less could it be stormed by violence." He also insisted that communal differences dividing Moslem and Hindu would result in a struggle and outrages, even if the British withdrew from India tomorrow. Thus an immediate repudiation of British responsibilities in India would be at least as fatal to the interests of India herself as in any year since the British gained control there.

Await Evidence.

Arguing that the 1919 act had not failed but never had a chance because of the refusal of the Indians to co-operate with the British, Lord Birkenhead continued that the door of acceleration was open, but only when "we see everywhere among responsible leaders of Indian thought the evidence of sincere and genuine desire to co-operate with us in making the best of the existing constitution.

"We shall not be niggardly bargainers if we meet the generous friendship which is near and dear to our hearts," said the secretary for India. "We no longer talk of holding the gorgeous east in fee, but ask India to march side by side with us in fruitful harmonious partnership which might create the greatest and proudest days of Indian history."

There'll come a moment when your feet must be seen!

That moment is close at hand. No concealing stockings, no sandals even—just bare feet. . . . You will slip into your new bathing suit and step out onto the sand. All eyes will be upon you, will appraise your stockingless legs and feet—for it is no longer the fashion to cover the feet for bathing. Are your feet well-cared for, shapely, without disfiguring blemishes? If you have even one little corn it will be noted and remembered against you. . . . For no one need have corns. Nice people don't have them. At the first hint of one, they apply a Blue-jay plaster. It is now removing half the corns that grow. They're off because they're out. Dainty shoes may cause new corns, but a corn that Blue-jay removes is gone forever.

BRIG. M'AMMOND GETS PROMOTION

Chief of London Division of the Salvation Army Made Lieutenant-Colonel.

Following a colorful career which began with the Salvation Army in 1889, Brigadier McAmmond, chief of the London division, was today the recipient of the congratulations of the Salvationists upon his promotion to the rank of lieutenant-colonel.

Lieut.-Col. McAmmond entered the service in the old Lippincott training corps in Toronto 36 years ago as a cadet, and upon graduation was made a lieutenant. He has had several commissions in different parts of Canada and has taken part in practically every branch of the army work.

Two years after his commissioning as a lieutenant he was made a major and has steadily risen.

In Montreal, Lieut.-Col. McAmmond was arrested and jailed for preaching on the street corners. That was when he was an ensign. Not long afterward, in a test case, the army won the right to preach on the streets in Quebec.

In Toronto he was assistant social secretary, under the late Col. Reese. There he was promoted to the rank of major. Five years ago he was sent to North Bay, and two years ago he came to London, where the 28 corps in the division have flourished under his care.

Commandant Hurd, financial secretary for this district, said this morning that he had first met the lieutenant-colonel in Winnipeg 25 years ago. He was operating a detention home in the city and doing duty as a street songster. The commandant at that time was not connected with the army, but was a chef on a private car travelling in the west. They are now working together.

That the army has a host of friends is evidenced by the generous donations made this year. Upwards of $5,000 more than last year has been received to date, says Commandant Hurd, who gives the credit to Lieut.-Col. McAmmond. The young peoples work has also forged ahead in the last two years.

Two promotions were made in Toronto. Lieut.-Col. Adby becomes colonel. Lieut.-Col. John Noble has also been made a colonel.

TREASURE SHIP DIVERS GUARDED FROM ATTACK

have been the object of much curious attention from passing craft. For a long time, the government's anti-rum fleet was very suspicious of the expedition and gave it a good deal of annoying attention. This was undoubtedly due in part to the secrecy maintained by the crew during their weekly visits to Norfolk.

Leaving New York harbor on June 4, a government hydroplane circled the two boats several times, inspecting them carefully, and then alighting on the water near Fort Hamilton to make its report. That its report was not entirely satisfactory was indicated by the fact that off Barnegat a few hours later, a coast guard motor launch came out from shore and followed the expedition for several hours.

A week later, when the expedition put into Norfolk for fuel and water, after the first few days of sweeping the ocean bed, the prohibition forces were on the alert. An inspector from the government's shore forces came aboard, reinforced by two coastguard boats, whose officers made a thorough search of our ships from stem to stern. Their inspection was microscopic; they tapped several of the buoy barrels and looked over the mysterious caissons of helium gas.

Two hours later they left our ships, passing them as free of rum, and we have had no trouble with the prohibition navy since that time.

The search for the hulk of the Merida was no light task. It involved "sweeping" more than 750 square miles of the ocean bed. Infinite patience is required for this task. The "sweep" is a steel cable 13,000 feet long, stretched between the two boats and weighted so that one mile of its length lies flat on the ocean bed, which at this point has an average depth of 200 feet. The two boats move along at a uniform speed of two to three knots an hour. A motor launch follows the course of the drag, planting temporary cork-buoyed bamboo flagpoles with small weights as anchors, to define the edge of the sweep. On the succeeding sweep these are picked up and a new line a mile west is placed in position.

The 13,000-foot cable is equal to a 6,000-ton load for the two trawlers. It brings up all sorts of things from the ocean bed as it plows along—old timber, minute pieces of wire and great masses of vegetable matter. On the level sandy bottom, it will catch on anything, and with its 6,000-ton momentum it will cut like a knife through any stationary object which refuses to give way.

Romance and Adventure.

Romance is wedded to science in the modern treasure hunt. Elaborate mechanical equipment and all the complicated accoutrements of ocean-sweeping and deep-sea diving cannot entirely smother the atmosphere of old-time adventure, for which the scenery is provided by a vast empty stretch of sea, 50 miles from land; by the schools of porpoise which provide continuous acrobatic entertainment in the wake of the salvage ships, and by innumerable little colorful incidents to break the monotony of the day's routine.

On one occasion our motor launch went "aground" on the back of a floating turtle—truly a giant among turtles, for his back was as big as a small ferry-boat and covered with barnacles. The turtle, apparently fast asleep, paid no more attention to the burden of our launch on his back than as if we had been a fly. We spent 15 strenuous minutes with pike-poles working ourselves free from him.

The members of the crew are mostly Scandinavians with names that indicate Viking ancestors. Many of them are acquainted from actual experience with rum-runners and buccaneering in the West Indies. Some of them have been on two or three previous unsuccessful expeditions in search of the Merida's treasure. They have all the weird superstitions of the sea, one of the most persistent being that good luck for a deep-sea diving expedition can only be secured by the presence on board of a red-headed tom-cat. Such a mascot was finally secured in Norfolk only a few days before the Merida was located.

The crew will all receive substantial bonuses from any treasure which is brought up by the expedition. Most of their idle moments are spent in deciding what they will do with the money. Mike Olson will buy himself a little cottage on Long Island near the sea; "Sailor Gus" is going to give himself a year's vacation on the land; Pete Peterson will acquire a flivver and see some of the country.

Finding the Merida.

The "sweep" which resulted in locating the wreck of the Merida came at the end of the afternoon of June 21—the longest and probably the hottest day of the year. After our steel cable had been twice cut in two by the saw-edge of the Merida's prow, we at last caught a "hang" which held firm as an anchor. Slowly the two ends of the 13,000-foot cable were brought together, so as to pinch the "hang." Both ends were fastened to the winches of the Spray and hauled in until the cable was straight up-and-down in the water, indicating that the "find" was directly under the ship.

Diver Neilson went over the side at 6:45 p.m., dropping straight down a depth of 213 feet. On the last 50 feet he slacked his speed by means of his air valves and drifted slowly along the hull of a great steel ship. The weight of his descending line became caught in the ship's rigging and in the loop of the line he swung backwards and forwards along the hulk like a trapeze performer. Through his helmet window he could look through the portholes of the great ship.

Within a few minutes he had found enough identifying marks to telephone aloft to Crilley and O'Hagan, "She is certainly the Merida!"

Neilson stayed on the ocean bottom for 15 minutes, going clear around the wreck and climbing over her superstructure. His identification was now positive, and O'Hagan ordered him to ascend. The diver climbed slowly up the ladder, stopping now and then to relieve the air pressure of 105 pounds to the square inch which he had been under during his 15 minutes at the bottom. He was eight minutes coming up.

Now the marking buoys were secured by additional anchors, and O'Hagan ordered the expedition into Norfolk for the additional supplies and equipment necessary for the final stage of the salvage operations.

The location of the wreck, in latitude 37.24, longitude 74.32, is approximately that indicated by the reckonings which the expedition secured from the reports made by the officers of the colliding steamships 14 years ago.

HAILSTORM CAUSES BIG LOSS IN WEST

Thousands of Dollars Damage Done to Crops Near Weyburn, Sask.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Weyburn, Sask., July 8.—One of the worst and most devastating hail storms that has been experienced in Weyburn district struck close to the city yesterday taking a heavy toll in the crop of the district. The storm which came from the west, lasted only a few minutes. But in that short time thousands of dollars worth of damage was done. The crop before the storm was a real "hundred per cent crop", prospects being the best seen here for many years.

The storm, going south and east, played havoc in the territory it covered, being about a mile and a half wide and eight miles long. Another storm about the same time came from the north, hitting northeast of the city and travelling south, meeting with the one from the southwest. Quite a large number of the farmers in the area suffered a total loss while some suffered from 30 to 50 per cent.

PAINTERS' CONVENTION MAY MEET IN LONDON

Efforts are being made today by the chamebr of commerce to secure for London the next convention of the Canadian association of House Painters and Decorators. The convention is at present in session at Chatham, and there is hope that the members will respond to London's invitation to meet here in 1926.

HAIG BECOMES MEMBER OF GUARDS ASSOCIATION

Canadian Press Despatch.

Winnipeg, July 8.—Field Marshal Earl Haig became a life member of the Guards Association when he visited the headquarters of the association here yesterday.

Sergeant-Major J. Woods pinned the life membership badge on the earl's coat. The sergeant-major's mother, who had twelve sons in the army during the great war, watched the ceremony and was later introduced to the earl and Countess Haig.

Heat Wave Kills 9 In New York

Associated Press Despatch.

New York, July 8.—The second day of the heat wave which swept down upon the east from the west has caused nine deaths directly and indirectly and dozens of prostrations.

Violent thunderstorms in most sections yesterday brought only temporary relief. Scores of buildings were struck by lightning. In New York city a temperature of 90 degrees with high humidity killed one man and prostrated nine others.

There were two deaths in Washington when the mercury went up to 105.

CARTER PLEADS GUILTY ON HOMICIDE CHARGE

Goderich Man Will Be Sentenced Tomorrow by Detroit Judge.

Associated Press Despatch.

Detroit, Mich., July 8.—Benjamin Carter, of Goderich, Ont., 30 years of age, who last April shot and killed his neighbor George Cockfield, as a result of a quarrel among their children, pleaded guilty today of second degree homicide before Judge Harry B. Keidan, in recorders' court. He twice changed his plea. He will be sentenced tomorrow.

Carter appeared June 11 before Judge Thomas Cotter, and pleaded guilty of second degree homicide. The plea was accepted. When brought up for sentence Carter asked permission to withdraw his plea that he might stand trial, saying he was excited when he pleaded guilty. This request was granted. Today before Judge Keidan he requested that the plea be changed again, assuring the court that this time he was not excited.

C. P. R. LOSS $300,000 IN WAREHOUSE FIRE

27,000 Bales of Binder Twine For Western Harvest Destroyed at Fort William.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Fort William, July 8.—Fire which started in No. 3 freight shed of the Canadian Pacific railway yesterday afternoon, was brought under control at 4 o'clock, an hour and a half after the first alarm had been sounded. Fire doors prevented the spread of the flames.

Loss to the building is estimated at $50,000, while it is believed the contents of the shed, including 27,500 bales of binder twine, valued at $280,000, will be a total loss. Several box cars alongside of the structure were destroyed. The twine, shipped from Holland, was destined for the western harvest fields.

Spontaneous combustion, originating in the twine, is believed to have caused the fire. The shed was destroyed by fire two years ago and was rebuilt at a cost of $150,000.

GERMANS CELEBRATE FOUNDING OF SCHOOL

Associated Press Despatch.

Potsdam, Germany, July 8.—The 100th anniversary of the founding of the non-commissioned officers' school here was celebrated yesterday with military pomp and the unveiling of a monument to the war dead.

Former crown prince Frederick William and his youngest son appeared in uniforms of the Guards regiment and Prince Eitel Frederick in field gray. Divine services on the parade grounds of the former Guards began the ceremonies and the concluding feature was a parade before the representatives of the Hohenzollerns.

The fact that the former crown prince wore a uniform in public for the first time since his return to Germany occasioned much comment, as did the absence of the republican flag.

TREATY ADVANTAGEOUS TO ALL, SAYS WOOLFORD

Canadian Press Despatch.

Montreal, July 8.—"The treaty is signed and I can say that it is advantageous to all," declared Hon. E. G. Woolford, of British Guiana, discussing the Canadian-West Indies trade treaty here.

The question as far as the West Indies viewpoint was concerned lay, he said, in the matter of the establishment of a refrigeration transportation service necessary to the preservation of fruits coming north.

Mr. Woolford pointed out that there is a stipulation in the treaty making the preference cover only shipments that come direct to Canadian ports.

TOURIST CAMPS ARE INSPECTED

Dr. McNally, District Health Official, Completes Wide Survey.

Close attention to water supplies and sanitary conditions at summer resorts, tourist camps, roadside inns and refreshment stands is advocated by Dr. T. J. McNally, provincial health officer, who today completed a Western Ontario survey. Dr. McNally and his assistants have investigated such places in the counties of Middlesex, Elgin, Kent, Essex, Lambton and Oxford. They are reporting now to the provincial department of health.

The survey has lasted several weeks and has carried the health authorities into practically every summering place in Western Ontario. Dr. McNally's territory includes six counties, though they have only co-operating powers with the cities of Windsor and London.

"We went about our work quietly, but we were welcomed by people who operate these camps and resorts," Dr. McNally stated today. "We made recommendations to many of these people, and I think we will receive co-operation.

"There appears to have been little attention paid to sources of water supply in some cases, and sanitary conveniences were not of the best. There are no thorough regulations covering these things, but the object of the survey was to establish the nature of conditions and then report, with a view to having measures put through to govern the districts."

Dr. McNally is of the opinion that most of the summering places will attempt to improve conditions before government measures are put into force.

NEW STAR APPEARS IN CITY HALL TENNIS

Brings Much Honor on Himself and Lady Partner in Mixed Doubles.

A new star is shining in the firmament of city hall tennis. He is making great headway in the singles and has brought much honor upon himself and his lady partner in the mixed doubles. His work on the courts is being watched with much interest, and he is heralded as a player of championship caliber.

So far the expert dopesters in municipal tennis circles refuse to divulge the identity of this new favorite. They simply state that his name is identical to that of a famous buccaneer who was once governor of Trinidad. The key to that six-letter horizontal is withheld out of charity to the descendants of the aforementioned freebooter.

The city hall tennis club does not allow double bounces, three services, metal racquets, or are victors compelled to provide tea for the vanquished. But they have innovated a very sporting idea, that upon arrival at a five-game score a set is declared. It is far easier on the pulse and causes less strain on the courts and tennis balls.

So it is that the most existing doubles match in the tournament was played the other night between Morgan and Miss Etue against Young and Miss Drake. The former pair took the match, 4—5, 5—2, 5—3.

Last night, Cliff Morgan whitewashed Jack Moffatt in two straight sets. The coming singles match between Cliff Morgan and J. C. Young is expected to provide some splendid play.

HERTZOG GOVERNMENT IS DEFEATED ON BILL

General Smuts Bitterly Assails Policy of South African Administration.

Associated Press Despatch.

Cape Town, S. A., July 8.—The Hertzog government suffered an uncomfortable reverse today when the Senate rejected the mines works bill, legalizing the ban on the employment of Asiatics in certain capacities in the mines and thus putting up a definite color bar throughout the union.

The bill aroused much opposition because of its alleged injustice and the handle such a law might give to agitators in the country.

General Jan Christian Smuts, former premier of South Africa, who bitterly opposed the bill when it was before the legislative assembly, charged Premier Hertzog with bringing the hatred of the whole of Asia down on the government's head. The bill, he said, would embarrass rather than establish white civilization in South Africa.

The bill successfully weathered the storm in the legislative assembly, although the opposition to it was so warm that it was shelved twice to await the advent of better weather. However, the senatorial opposition to the measure, led by Hon. Nicolas J. DeWet, minister of justice in the former Smuts administration, senator for the Transvaal, refused to be placated in his opposition to it.

BARON KYLSANT PREDICTS BIG TRADE FOR BELFAST

Associated Press Despatch

London, July 8.—Better days for Belfast are coming, in the opinion of Baron Kylsant of Carmarthen, chairman of Harland and Wolff, Limited, in whose shipyard four large passenger liners are now under construction.

Arrangements have been made for the building of a fifth large vessel for the Atlantic trade, Baron Kylsant states, while the Union Castle Line, of which he is chairman, will make a contract shortly with the Workman, Clark Company, Belfast, for a passenger vessel.

CLOTHES HINTS NOT NEEDED BY WOMEN TEACHERS HERE

Administrator Wheable Comments on Neatness Which Beautifies Local Profession.

EXTREME IN U. S.

Good Taste Brings Plaudits From Principal Miller—Higher Pay Helps.

"The beauty a woman can bring into a home by artistic dress and surrounding should be a part of her contribution to education," was the statement of Dr. Payson Smith at a recent gathering in Indianapolis. London teachers should be a little prouder when they learn that those holding important positions of the board of education speak very highly of their idea of dress in the schoolroom.

The regulations of the Ontario board of education contain the information that, by precept, teachers should form habits of neatness and politeness among the children. In connection with the former item—neatness, Administrator G. A. Wheable stated that the teachers of London needed no prompting along this line as a rule, and that they did endeavor to please the children by their clothes as well as by their personality and method of teaching.

In the United States, of which Dr. Smith is a citizen, dress is extreme. However, in Canada there is not the danger that women teachers, especially, will wear clothing unsuitable to the classroom. The other extreme, the severe type, is vanishing fast in the annals of the teacher's wardrobe. She no longer wears the sombre and too austere costumes of a few years ago, but softens her personality with a dainty touch here and there in her toilette.

No Need to Worry.

Prinhipal E. A. Miller of the rentral collegiae staff, also emphatically stated that there was no need to worry about Canadian teachers, particularly in London, as they all show very good taste in dressing, and do not copy the extreme styles of their sister country for the classroom.

"Men's clothing have just as much effect on boys, as do women's clothes on girls," he said. "An attractively-dressed teacher of the male type, as well as the woman at the head of the class, will be noticed by the young people and are often copied."

It was noted that in the teaching profession in Canada the men and women were of a much finer type than in the United States at the type. That makes a great difference in the question of clothes and it has not, so far, been necesary to critize the teachers in Canadian schools along that line.

Better Pay Helps.

There was a time, a few years ago, Mrs. John Rose stated, when the teachers of Ontario were not well paid and they could not afford to dress attractively. At the present time, however, wages have gone up and she is sure that teachers take more pride in looking attractive.

"The keynote of being well dressed is being suitably dresstd," she stated, "and the teachers in the London schools are suitably dressed." At recent dinners given by the secondary school teachers, the members of the women's teachers' guild and the Froebel society, which Mrs. Rose attended she spoke highly of the beautiful way the teachers were dressed and of the fine quality of their looks as well.

LONDON-INGERSOLL SWIM RACE PLANNED

But It Will Take Place in the Thames Park Pool As Course Is Lacking.

A swimming marathon from London to Ingersoll is being arranged by Jerry Goodwin, chief supervisor of London's playgrounds. The long swim will occupy several days and there are said to be any number of local boys desiring to compete.

Owing to the lack of navigable water between the city and Ingersoll, the swimming race will be staged in the Thames park pool.

Arrangements are being made for the erection of a large map there displaying the course of the river between the two centers, on which the distances will be accurately calculated. Colored flags will record the distance which competitors swim each day in a given time. Supervisors will record the daily distances covered by competitors in the big tank, and the one who swims the greatest distance in the shortest time will be conceded to have reached Ingersoll. The scheme is expected greatly to promote interest in the art of swimming.

Fire In Oil Field Causes Big Loss

Damage At Cross Roads, Arkansas, To Exceed $750,000.

Associated Press Despatch

Eldorado, Ark., July 8.—Fire which caused $750,000 damage at Cross Roads, newest oil boom town, was under control today and no further loss was expected.

The giant gusher of the Natural Gas and Petroleum Company, which is running at the rate of 90,000,000 cubic feet a day, was barely saved from the flames, which originated 200 yards away in the treating plant of the Imperial Oil and Gas Products Company.

The fire swept four wells and six earthen storage pits. Removal of brush and timber, and the hurried digging of ditches saved wells and storage pits in the path of the fire.

COOL SNAP GREETED WITH CONSIDERABLE JOY

Barometer Is Rising and Sultry Air Is Gone For a Time.

After an absence of a few days, cool weather is back in town, and is more popular than ever. While the thermometer showed 81 at 2 o'clock this afternoon, three degrees up on Monday's high mark, friendly breezes replaced Tuesday's humidity, and helped fashion summer weather, well nigh ideal.

Further indications of exhilarating conditions are disclosed in the barometer, which has risen 15 points in 24 hours, and 2 points since this morning. Sultry, sticky air is gone for a spell, the weather bureau predicts.

SECOND CEREMONY MAY BE MADE AN OFFENCE

Legislation Along This Line May Be Passed At Next Ontario Session.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, July 8.—The Toronto Star says today:

"Legislation is likely to be introduced at the next session of the Ontario Legislature to make it an offence for a clergyman to perform a second marriage when the contracting parties are already married.

"This statement was made to the Star today at the parliament buildings by A. C. Lewis, M.L.A., who represents the Northeast Toronto riding. The promise of action by Mr. Lewis was the result of the attention drawn by Fred Williamson, marriage license issuer, to the fact that Roman Catholic priests are performing second marriages where the knot was first tied by a Protestant clergyman, and where one of the contracting parties is a Roman Catholic".

The Star adds: "A chorus of dissent from some of the leading Roman Catholic clergy of Toronto has been provoked by the statement that the provincial authorities are ready to proceed against priests who remarry couples, who have already contracted marriages not recognized by the church. They state that it has been a regular practice, when Protestant and Catholic have been married by a Protestant clergyman for the church of Rome to insist on a second rite under its own auspices, and further, that this practice will continue."

Associated Press Despatch

London, July 8.—Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, premier of Ontario, who has been visiting the battlefields on the continent, will return to London tomorrow to attend the annual meeting of the Mond Nickel Company, of which Sir Alfred Mond, Liberal M. P., minister of health in 1921 and 1922, is chairman.

Premier Ferguson will leave for Devonshire by motor car after the meeting of the Mond Nickel Company. On July 17 he will attend the Duke of York's garden party at St. James' palace. Later Mr. Ferguson will visit Scotland and probably Ireland also.

FORD DENIES ANY PART IN PRESS VIEW ON JEWS

Associated Press Despatch

New York, July 8.—A denial of personal responsibility for an attack on Jews in his paper is made by Henry Ford in an affidavit which he has unsuccessfully sought to file in connection with libel suits against him and the Dearborn Independent, by Herman Bernstein, editor of the Jewish Tribune.

Bernstein, who seeks $200,000 for libel, won a point yesterday when Federal Judge Knox refused to vacate an attachment which ties up $65,000 Ford money on deposit in New York banks.

BOARD TACKLES BUILDING TASK

Appointment of School Construction Supervision Committee To Be Made.

Appointment of a building committee to supervise the erection of the new East London collegiate will be the principal item of business at the regular monthly meeting of the board of education tomorrow afternoon at 4:30.

Discussion of the plans for the proposed building will be premature, in the opinion of Chairman F. S. Lawrason, and will not likely come up at the meeting, although he points out that it will not take very long to put plans already prepared into shape for the commencement of the building. In the case of the Empress avenue school the shape of the lot and the location of the building made necessary the alteration of plans, but this problem will not arise in the case of the East London collegiate as the site is at right angles to the street line.

Mr. Lawrason was unwilling to comment on a proposal attributed to him, to build both south and east collegiates at the same time as one job. Several other trustees have expressed the opinion that it would not be possible to build both schools with the money available since plans for the East London collegiate already tentatively drawn up call for an expenditure of about $200,000.

Funds available for the purpose total about $240,000, too small, they claim, to be divided between the two schools.

WOMAN IS RETURNED TO ESSEX RELATIVES

Gladys La France, Deported by U. S., Taken Back Home.

Gladys La France, who was deported from Michigan some six weeks ago by American authorities, was driven to the home of Essex relatives by Governor Byron Dawson of the county jail. The woman's mental condition was found to be quite satisfactory by Jail Physician Dr. James D. Wilson, who cannot understand why she was deported from the United States.

After delivering the woman to her relatives, Governor Dawson and his wife spent the week-end with relatives at Adrian, Mich., and also visited Governor Dawson's cousin, Dr. Nixon, Holliday, Mich.

WEDNESDAY JULY 8, 1925.

Based on Facts.

At a recent meeting of the Brantford city council a report was received from the relief commission that the employment situation in that city had so improved that the services of the commission were no longer required, and should therefore be dispensed with.

The only possible interpretation of such a recommendation is that Canada's basic manufacturing industry — agricultural implements — is rapidly responding to the generally improved conditions throughout the country.

The manufacturers at Brantford are not turning out implements without any prospect of selling them. They are getting under production because there is a market for their product—there is money in sight to pay for the goods they make.

In Saskatchewan for the half-year ending June 30 bankruptcy proceedings were less than half those registered during the first six months of 1924.

In the whole of northern Saskatchewan not one business failure was recorded during the month of June. This statement is made by J. C. Bell, clerk of bankruptcy district No. 2, comprising the districts of Kindersley, Kerrobert, Wilkie, Battleford, Prince Albert, Delft, Humboldt, Wynward, and Saskatoon. June is not considered a particularly good business month in the west, because it is some distance removed from the time when farmers get their grain money, yet this year there was not one concern in that great northern Saskatchewan district that had to close its doors during June. It is not exaggeration but plain fact that such a record indicates a healthy condition in business. There must be money in circulation, and buying and selling is being carried on on a larger scale.

* * * *

The wheat crop in Western Canada gives promise of being the best in ten years. The Canadian Pacific Railway has a very reliable system for forming its opinions, and that is its report. Warm weather and abundant moisture have provided ideal growing conditions.

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics presents the following figures of the three prairie provinces, comparing crop yields for 1924 and prospects for 1925:

	1924.	1925.
Manitoba	92%	102%
Saskatchewan	96%	100%
Alberta	96%	107%

That means a restoration of the buying power of Western Canada. During the last two seasons farm obligations have been decreased; loans have been met, and this year the proceeds will belong in a greater degree to the farmer. There are factories in Ontario with wide western connections, and they know what this means. There is a market out there for their produce; there are buyers who want their goods, but who have not had the money to pay for them. This year, with a good crop, with wheat pools in operation to secure the best price for the grower, and with a price that is certain to provide a profit, this condition is going to change, and it means that Ontario factories will get business.

* * * *

Right in our own district conditions have materially improved in the last month. Early in June there was excessive heat, dry winds and lack of rain. Growth was stunted, pastures brown, and prospects were not bright. In recent weeks there has been rain, cooler weather and a wonderful recovery all around.

These are only a few of the evidences that are before us today. We have not included anything that is speculative or suppositious, because no good purpose can be served by trying to create false optimism, but when plain, substantial evidence of better times is before us, why not have a good look at it?

The Grief of St. Thomas.

The heart of the district goes out to St. Thomas in the dull, unspeakable grief that has laid its hand hard upon that community. Words fail at a time like this to carry comfort to assuage sorrow, but they are the only channel, poor as that may be, to convey the sympathy that one section of the province feels for another.

A Sunday school picnic is above all else a time of joy, an occasion on which the buoyant spirit of childhood and youth is so much in evidence that even those more advanced in years cannot help catch up the enthusiasm of those tender years and give themselves over to the play instinct of the child.

It was into this atmosphere that tragedy elbowed its way at Pinafore park in St. Thomas on Monday evening. It was the last boat ride on the gay little lake—just a mere fifty yards from the shore. A mud-turtle rose to the surface. It's all very well to discuss the laws of balance and the effect of gravity, but youth as it finds expression in children of five and seven years is not versed in such matters. The one thought was to see that turtle. There was a rush to the side of the little craft, a lurch and then those waiting on the shore knew the worst had happened.

If there is one human emotion harder to bear than any other it is that of helplessness, the inability to offer assistance when it is so apparent that the dearest on earth need it and need it at once. That was the situation facing parents and friends who stood on the shore, fifty yards from where their own little ones were facing a struggle that was too great for them.

Heroism always rises to such an occasion in its finest form, and St. Thomas was no exception, and the fact that fifteen were rescued from the party of twenty-three is in itself a tribute to the self-sacrificing efforts of the rescuers.

It is perhaps too early, and it may be an intrusion on the grief-stricken heart of the community, to suggest that there must be thorough inquiry into the responsibility for the accident. It must at all times be the task of those to whom the lives of children are entrusted to be on the lookout for their safety. Age must think for the child; it must as far as possible anticipate hazard and guard against it. We realize that any findings of an inquiry or any recommendations it may make will be an empty and a broken recompense for the lives that have gone, but in justice to the future such a course must be pursued.

A Good Day's Work For London.

The reorganization of the Northern Life Assurance Company and the securing of control by a body of London citizens is a matter of congratulation to the company, the men interested and to the city of London.

Apart altogether from the standpoint of the company, the conclusion of the negotiations is a good demonstration of what can be accomplished in the way of retaining a good business institution for this city and making plans for its future development when a group of public-spirited citizens are willing to work together and pool their means and energy for the accomplishment of a common, worth-while purpose. When they signed the papers concluding the negotiations they completed a good day's work for London.

It is now definitely settled that the Northern Life will continue its home office in London, the financial and distributing center of Western Ontario. That in itself is good news, because there were other interests seeking control who would have removed it elsewhere. Having the company located here increases the prestige of London as an investment center, because the funds of the company will be available for re-investment for mortgage and loan purposes, and will in this way play their part in providing capital for the further development of this district.

The choice of C. R. Somerville as president is an ideal selection. A successful businessman himself, Mr. Somerville brings to his new position a degree of public confidence and trust that in itself is a very valuable asset. He is fortunate in being surrounded by a board of directors who have a keen, definite knowledge of well-conducted business methods.

More Shooting Not the Cure.

Chief of Police Armstrong of St. Thomas, speaking to the Times-Journal of that city about the bank robbery at Thorndale, says banks ought to take more steps for their own protection. His suggestion is that there should be two or three shotguns or rifles, and that certain employees who work in the back of the bank be trained to use them.

There's something about your suggestion, chief, that we don't like. It means staging a battle in a bank, with part of the troop holding up their hands at the front of the institution while the firing squad of the bank carries on operations from the back. Would it not take a very clever exponent of the art of correct shot-gunning to pick off exactly the proper person without having a few stray shots puncturing some of the friendly forces? Those at the wickets would be in between two fires, guns in front and guns in the rear, and they would probably be the ones to figure in the casualty list.

No, that business of shooting with shotguns and rifles is not attractive, nor does the city bank need such protection. It is the small branch bank that stands in need of a different system, and even there the shotgun idea is not the solution.

The Change in Golf.

There are no more old men's preserves. A few years ago golf was an old man's game, or something approaching it. It was considered a mild form of exercise for people who could lock up the office at three in the afternoon. Hours were spent at the game, and more hours were taken up by the old boys telling each other how remarkably well they played it.

And into this picture two youngsters shove their way, Sandy Somerville of London, 22, and Carrick of Toronto, 19, fighting for the amateur championship. All the old boys of the game could have entered and beat these intruders up—the way was open, but they couldn't do it. They couldn't get the distance in a drive, nor could they approach or putt as well as the younger generation. All that was left for them was to trail along and see better golf played than they could create.

There's nothing very exclusive about golf any more. A very conservative estimate says there are between 1,000 and 1,500 golfers in London now, and it's like everything else, the younger they start the better they play.

In the Coop

If they should start right in today to put the speeders down in hock, no doubt they'd put them sawin' wood or crackin' on a granite rock.

They're talkin' now of jailing them what speed upon the city street, and giving them just thirty days with bully beef and hay to eat. The cadi he's got tired, he has, of hearin' them talk through their hat, and pleadin' they was certain sure they wasn't goin' as fast as that.

So now he's going to change his pace, and when a speeder comes to him, he'll look the victim in the eye and talk hard justice with his chin.

The court will call the constibule and holler out to him and say "Hi, take this dude down to the coop and ticket him one month today. He's been here seven times before for puttin' two feet on the gas, for thinkin' that each hack ahead is one more flivver he must pass.

"I've listened to his pleas before about the reasons for his speed, one time he hurried into town to buy a quart of pumpkin seed.

"Another time he told us here he had a sick man six blocks down, another time he was afraid as how his brother he might drown, for he was swimmin' in a creek, he'd get his framework filled with damp, or else he'd go beyond his ears and then be knotted in a cramp.

"He goes at forty miles an hour, too reckless for a decent man, and turns the corners on two wheels and buckles up the red sedan. So I am done with him for good, for him no more I care a whoop, just put the halter on his neck and lock him in the village coop."

If other benches hear of this and reckon how the way be right, there be a lot of foolish men who won't be comin' home at night. For they can't go and strip the scads and pay a fine in court no more, nor have a lawyer come along and plead for them as heretofore.

And lonely women they will go a-lookin' down the village street, and listenin' hard to hear the sound of husband's homeward troddin' feet. And when the sun has sunk to rest they'll weep upon the backdoor stoop, and tell the kindly neighbors how John Henry's in the village coop.—ARK.

To the Editor

Broadcasting Sermons.

Reader Points Out That Old Country Preacher Scores the Habit of Listening to Sermons at Home.

Editor of The Advertiser:

Sir,—I wonder if you noticed the attack on radio sermons made by Rev. A. Cumming of Surrey. I was reading it today and the report in part says:

"There is no longer the packed church to which we have been accustomed during Lent, and the reason for this is the wireless.

"Anybody who thinks he can worship God by lolling back in an easy armchair and listening by radio to the beautiful singing of the choir at St. So-and-So's, or the oratorical effects of the 'Bishop of Kamchatka,' is simply living in a fool's paradise. True worship demands sacrifice. People who are too lazy to go upstairs and put their things on and come to the house of God on God's day are grossly neglecting their duty.

"We must face the fact that in wireless has been found another powerful recruit added to the phalanx of counter attractions which, in their various ways, continue to keep the people out of the churches."

The British Broadcasting Company, which controls most of the wireless entertainment in the London area, has recently declined to broadcast Sunday sermons, excepting on rare occasions, because of the objections of ministers that their congregations would be materially reduced if the practice was followed generally.

I haven't heard any views of that nature here, but apparently this English clergyman feels very strongly on the matter.

The King Likes a Good Joke

J. H. Thomas, British Labor Leader, Had One When He Appeared in Court in a Rented Suit.

By H. SOMERVILLE.

LONDON—All our prophets of industrial weather tell us to look out for squalls, and even storms, during the next few weeks. This means inevitably that J. H. Thomas will occupy the foreground. He rivals Lloyd George in his capacity to thrive on crises. Already he has made a dozen speeches this week telling railway workers and railway companies, miners and mine owners, that the position is very grave, that they must not be unmindful of their responsibilities, that strikes and lockouts do not solve industrial problems. Somehow or other Mr. Thomas can go on repeating the most excruciating platitudes and yet be regarded as an oracle. He also succeeds in being the most denounced of Labor leaders while remaining the most popular. He is forever giving scandal to the rigorists of the Labor movement.

Yes, Thomas Was There.

The Ascot race meeting is a great display of luxury and leisure, of fashion and frivolity. The Daily Herald, as a truly orthodox socialist paper, printed a scathing denunciation of Ascot extravagance and contrasted it with the pitiful penury of the great masses of the people. The sequel was that an earnest socialist wrote to the Herald: "On giving a friend, whom I am trying to convert to socialism, Saturday's Daily Herald, and drawing his attention to the article about Ascot, he retaliated by handing me this copy of a picture paper, with a picture marked in blue pencil."

The Herald printed the letter with a footnote stating that the picture inclosed was a portrait of J. H. Thomas, M.P., at Ascot. Mr. Thomas is constantly causing distress to the more serious-minded proletarians by consorting with the plutocrats. Yet he keeps his hold on the masses of workers. Perhaps the chief secret of his popularity is that he remains essentially a British workingman in his tastes and mentality despite all his experiences of high society. He is always at home with a crowd of the common people, while austere characters like Ramsay MacDonald and Philip Snowden seem to be awkwardly above them.

In a Rented Suit.

Mr. Thomas derives perpetual amusement from a feeling of his own incongruousness in high places. There is no one who can tell more good stories about himself. One of these stories, of absolute authenticity, relates to his first appearance at Buckingham palace in court dress. Nowadays, Mr. Thomas has his own court dress, but in those days he hadn't, and he did what many others do—he hired a dress from a clothes dealer at a fee of ten shillings and sixpence.

In these borrowed plumes Mr. Thomas was ushered into the throne room. The king is as fond of a joke as the next man, and with a twinkle in his eye he said to J. H. T.: "You do look magnificent in your new suit, Mr. Thomas."

"Yes, your majesty," said Mr. Thomas, "all for ten and a tanner in Leicester square."

DUMPING COSTS BRITAIN OVER MILLION POUNDS

Churchill Announces McKenna Duties Will Not Be Retroactive.

Associated Press Despatch

London, July 7.—The reimposed McKenna duties, which became effective July 1, levying, among other schedules, a 33 1-3 per cent import tax on automobiles, will not be retroactive, Right Hon. Winston Churchill announced in the House of Commons today.

Mr. Churchill told the House that the British government would lose £1,000,000 sterling by the "dumping" into England before the McKenna duties became operative, of goods dutiable under its schedules. Duties to that amount would have been collected had the law been in operation and would now be collected if

PORTUGUESE CABINET GET CONFIDENCE VOTE

Associated Press Despatch.

Lisbon, Portugal, July 7.—The new Portuguese cabinet headed by Premier Antonio da Silva, which was formed July 2, received a vote of confidence today by a majority of one vote, after an all-night sitting of the chamber of deputies.

WITH ONE ACCORD.

At a house of God I worshipped,
In our city yesterday;
There two London congregations
Met at morn and eve to pray:
Met to sing the songs of Zion,
From their hearts, with sweet accord;
Met to hear a gospel message,
From a servant of the Lord.

It was in a Baptist chapel
These two congregations met;
Presbyterians and Baptists,
Nor the sight shall I forget.
Spirit-led, they humbly worshipped
In one place with one accord;
Each retaining their loved viewpoint
But as one they praised our Lord.

Thus unitedly they gathered
Round a common mercy-seat,
Casting down their hearts' best treasures
At their Saviour's blessed feet.
When the Spirit has been wooing,
And our hearts by grace are won,
Then our Master's pray'r is answered,
For His people are made one.

Thus I saw two congregations
Yesterday twice gladly meet
To join hearts in songs of praises
That arise as incense sweet.
Mystically they were united,
Which seems God's appointed way;
And how beautiful their worship
On the Holy Sabbath Day.

Two Treaties of Washington Conference Supported by Record Vote.

Associated Press Despatch.

Paris, July 7.—The French chamber of deputies early tonight ratified, without a record vote, the two treaties of the Washington conference relating to China. U. S. COMMON GOES UP TO 117 HIGH

Wall Street Operators on Long Side Extend Their Operations.

Associated Press Despatch.

New York, July 8—Wall Street, 1:30 p.m.—Improvement in the statistical position of the industry as a result of the policy of curtailed production and the higher tendency of the metal on a larger foreign and domestic inquiry, caused the copper shares to rise briskly, while various other stocks were feeling the effect of extensive profit-taking. American Smelting advanced to 107⅞, the highest since 1917, when it touched 112¾. United Cigar Stores got over early heaviness and moved up to 91¾.

Associated Press Despatch

New York, July 8.—Taking advantage of the strong under-current of investment buying which was steadily reducing the floating supply of many high-grade stocks, and the further easing of money rates, operators on the long side extended their operations to a wide assortment of issues during the morning.

Standard industrials were again in good demand, United States Steel common touching 117 on buying influence by the reported improvement in the steel trade. The rapidity of the rise in some of the high-priced issues encouraged profit-taking by professional traders, Havana Electric and Mack Trucks falling back three points from their early highs and Woolworth four. Additional new 1925 highs were recorded by Utah Copper, Spicer Mfg. preferred and United States Hoffmann Machinery, while American Radiator, International Telephone, Stewart Warner and Kennecott Copper extended their gains two points or more before noon. Call money renewed at 4 per cent and then dropped to 3¾ per cent.

Grain Markets

WINNIPEG

Canadian Press Despatch.

Winnipeg, July 7.—Reports of black rust being discovered in some districts of Southern Manitoba, coupled with a stronger class of buying and meagre offerings, were responsible for a sharp advance in wheat prices here today: July closing 3½c higher at $1.58; October 3½c up at $1.34¾, and December 3¼c advance at $1.31⅞. Coarse grains followed the wheat trend and scored record gains following many days of dullness, advances ranging from 3 to 4⅜c, while flax registered a 7c jump for the July future. While trade volume was not particularly large, the wheat market continued to show remarkable resistance to selling pressure. Part of the buying today was against sales at seaboard. The export buying was in July, while the bullish speculative trade were buying October, and offerings were scattered. High Liverpool cables also helped the advance here.

CHICAGO

Associated Press Despatch

Chicago, July 8.—Although wheat prices took an upward slant at the outset today the market soon underwent a decline. Initial gains were ascribed to numerous reports of black rust, but no actual damage as yet was noted, and early advances in price failed to hold. The opening, unchanged to ⅞c higher, was followed by slight further gains, and then by a setback which carried September down to $1.43¾, and December to $1.45.

Corn and oats eased with wheat. After starting at ¼c off to ⅜c up, the corn market scored additional gains, but then receded to below yesterday's finish. Oats started unchanged to ¼c off. Later there was a general sag.

'PEG STARS OUT

Canadian Press Despatch.

Vancouver, July 7.—While there were few surprises in the second day's match of the Canadian lawn tennis championships played here on Tuesday, the brand of play showed a marked improvement over that of Monday. Most prominent in the category of surprises was the defeat of Gilbert Nunns, of Toronto, by Hadley McMaster, of this city, in a stiff three-set match, 6—4, 6—8 and 6—4.

McMaster is one of the rising young players on the coast.

Another big program of events was run off under playing conditions that could not have been bettered. W. W. Gyles, of Winnipeg, Manitoba champion this year, and G. S. Waugh were put out of the running for the title, the former going down to defeat before the beautiful side-line drives of Sidney Smith, of Tacoma, while Waugh met his Waterloo at the hands of Geoff Peers, of Vancouver, the locals' best bet for the Canadian Davis cup team.

Willard Crocker and Jack Wright, of Montreal, finished the day in impressive style, winding up in the fourth round. Crocker met Cardinall, of the first string Vancouver men, and won all but two games. Wright met Shields, of Vancouver, one of the younger generation, but a comer, winning 6—3 and 6—0.

Leroy Rennie, of Toronto, continued on his way toward the finals by beating Green, of the Vancouver club.

Howard Langlie, of Seattle, provided the feature of the morning events of the second day's program of the Canadian lawn tennis championships by beating E. A. Purkis, of Toronto, 6—4, 6—4. Langlie pulled off many of his spectacular passing shots, but he was given a battle all the way by the Toronto veteran.

Willard Crocker, of Montreal, was the first man to enter the fourth round, when he played rings around E. J. Cardinall, of Vancouver, who won only one game in each set. Arthur Ham, of Toronto, was much too good for Kakuta, a local Japanese, winning every game.

Rennie, also of Toronto, had a similar easy time with Harold, of Vancouver, losing only one game.

Miss H. Burridge, of Winnipeg, was extended to win the opening set from Mrs. McGiverin, of Victoria, in the ladies' singles, but in the second she displayed much improved form and won 6—1. The first set was 7—5.

In the ladies' singles, Miss Symonds, Halifax, won her second match this afternoon, defeating Mrs. Milne, Vancouver, 6—2, 4—6, 6—4.

Men's Doubles.

Walker and Brammall, Vancouver, beat McGiverin and Collison, Victoria, 6—4, 2—6, 6—1.

Men's Singles.

Wally Scott, Tacoma, beat Spalding, Vancouver, 6—4, 6—4.

England's Court Committee Hit

Wimbledon Officials Are Charged With Shortcomings.

Associated Press Despatch

London, July 7.—Sporting Life today charges the committee directing the Wimbledon lawn tennis tournament with shortcomings which, if not rectified, will lead to a decline of overseas entries and have other serious consequences.

Aside from having lost international supremacy at the game, it adds, England has "lost caste to a much greater extent than is generally supposed by those unacquainted with the lawn tennis affairs of other nations."

The committee is charged with imposing vexatious restrictions and not meeting the demands for uniformity of surface on the various Wimbledon courts.

"Each year," says the writer, "one hears complaints from visiting players of the difference in pact between the center court and the next best two courts."

The Westminster Gazette says the 1925 Wimbledon meeting set a record in gate receipts with "enormous profits, probably approaching £40,000, or about $194,000."

DELAWARE WINS.

Macs Will Play Ingersoll Today

Outcome of Crucial Game Means Leadership of League.

The McCormick intermediates will play in Ingersoll today, the game having been transferred from here. The game is an important one for both teams, as Ingersoll must win the series' honors, and McCormicks must carry away a victory to earn the right for a play-off with the Cheese Town. If the locals lose they will play off with Tillsonburg for second place.

The Macs are going down confident that they will be able to register a victory. The Cheese Town stalwarts took an easy win from the locals here last Saturday, but are promised a tighter battle today. Arscott, the lanky hurling star of the McCormick staff, will be back in the game after a short lay-off, and should be able to set Ingersoll back.

Since the opening of the season, the Mac outfit has been considerably revamped, and the new material has put new life into a team that was beginning to sink into the cellar. At present, McCormicks boast the smartest outfit in the league, and should they all be in form, the Ingersoll league leaders will find a hard job to set them back.

Hopes that softball would just melt away are apparently not to be realized.

For those who think that big tennis tournaments are free-for-all affairs, the news that $194,000 was taken in at Wimbledon will be surprising. But the fact that amateur authorities in Britain would overlook the disposal of this sum, and consider questioning Suzanne Lenglen's lecturing in a cinema a breach of amateurism, is quite like amateur government on this side of the water.

A SURPRISE PARTY.

London will be represented at Saturday's track meet, which is to determine the girls' track team which will represent Canada at the Stamford Bridge games in Eugland during August. And more by chance than by invitation.

These "trials" were sort of sprung as a surprise generally on the public. So far no place has been set to hold them. With a warning of a week and then only by close perusal of press reports, outside girls are naturally at a great disadvantage against the girls track teams in Toronto which have been practicing since early spring.

Varsity Stadium was suggested by the A. A. U. of C officials, but it was only a bare hint, and the dear girls who have been chosen to run this affair are to be allowed to do their own shopping for location. Meantime, Western Canada will not be represented and none of the Maritimes. Scattered entries from Ontario are to be expected, but if there are many cities where conditions are parallel to London's, the entries will be at a disadvantage. The team is being sent from here, not in the certainty that there is phenomenal track talent here, but because four or five girls have shown ability that entitled them to the opportunity, and Supervisor Goodman of the playgrounds acted on the knowledge that phenoms have been known to blossom out in even such a short time as a week.

The team which eventually goes will hardly be representative of Canada, and it is feared, not even of Ontario.

EUROPEAN MENACE.

It is in girls' sports especially that European countries are showing vast progress, and that is why the Stamford Bridge games have come to be a feminine Olympia.

Prior to the war, few European countries had anything like the general development in sport they have today. France typified the real European menace by this year winning five final events at the Wimbledon championships.

France is showing the way to all European countries in sport development. The French crowd to anything that has a sporting tint to it. Soccer is perhaps enjoying the greatest popularity in Europe, and higher development has been reached there in a general way in soccer than in any other sport. King George's recent cruise through the Mediterranean illustrated the spread of soccer. The royal yacht crew's team were able to encounter plenty of opposition at every port they touched, and in Spain soccer is bidding for equal popularity with the bullfight, and with "pelota," the national game of the Bacques and their descendants in former Spanish domains.

TEMPERAMENT.

When a horse so true and dependable as Sarazen has been, as indicated by his winning twenty out of twenty-four races up to the Metropolitan Handicap, turns cunning and shirks his responsibilities there is reason for regret. The son of High Time—Rush Box, the plow mare, has ever been gifted with rare instinct which bordered on human intelligence. A bundle of nerves, he has been the harder to train because of a seeming understanding of when he was going out for just a morning gallop or when he was going out to be breezed for a race in the afternoon. It did not take Max Hirsch, his astute trainer, long to discover that on work days he was quiet and relaxed in his stall, but that on race days, which he sensed by the plating and other necessary preparations, he was fretful to a point that made him tense and nervous. To offset this Max Hirsch for over a year has studied and planned to fool this high-strung thoroughbred by every practice and trick at his command. For a time he succeeded.

Well do I remember the early morning hours of that day last fall when Sarazen beat Epinard and others in the third International Special and ran the mile and a quarter in the amazing time of 2:00 4-5, which amounts to a world's record. In the small hours of the morning, the day Epinard was beaten, Max Hirsch was worried over how he might find Sarazen—tense and strained or relaxed. He found him more the former than the latter, and Max went about the task of making him believe that it was only a work day and not a race day. Instead of breezing him, as is customary on the morning of a race, he just let him gallop quietly about the track once. He had taken the precaution of having him plated the evening before, and on getting back to the stable after his gallop he even allowed him to go out and nibble some fresh grass, also an unusual procedure. In the afternoon he timed his arrival in the paddock to the exact minute necessary for reporting, and Sarazen went to the post with nerves unruffled and capable of running one of the greatest races in the history of the American turf.

MARTYRDOM.

The disbarment of Jack Kearns from even entering the Polo Grounds the night of the Italian hospital fund bouts has reacted against the New York boxing commission, who are taken to task by many leading writers and charged with permitting petty spite to obscure good judgment.

Kearns comes out of the affair, if not quite a martyr, at least an object for some sympathy, and that is something that few people have felt for the pilot of the world's champion. Kearns has given little sympathy, and naturally received little.

The banishment of Kearns recalls to W. O. McGeehan's mind the banishment of Charles Dryden, most noted of baseball writers and the man who gave whatever literary flair baseball writing has achieved its first impetus.

"The incident calls to mind another disbarment from the Polo Grounds some twenty years ago. It was when the late Andy Freedman owned the New York Giants. At the time, Charles Dryden, the greatest of all the baseball writers, was assigned to report the doings of the New York National league baseball team.

"Mr. Dryden treated the Giants and their owner with levity. Mr. Freedman became incensed and, calling Mr. Dryden aside, hissed the dreadful warning, 'Young man, you are standing on the brink of an abscess.' Mr. Dryden printed the warning, but was unimpressed. Then Mr. Freedman issued the decree prohibiting Charles Dryden from entering the Polo Grounds.

"Somehow, Charles Dryden seemed equal to the situation. Much to the surprise of the ingenuous Mr. Freedman, Dryden continued his whimsical accounts of the games at the Polo Grounds. He announced gravely that he had entered the park disguised as an apple woman. Mr. Freedman hired detectives to shadow all women customers under suspicion that they might have been Dryden in disguise.

"Dryden's stories of the Giants from exile made Dryden famous. He is remembered as the greatest of all the writers of baseball. Andy Freedman is remembered only as an eccentric gentleman, who thought that Christy Mathewson was a first baseman."

Associated Press Despatch

New York, July 7.—The Giants and Pirates, old enemies in baseball, today settled down to a rigorous five-game test, New York taking the first combat 7 to 6, and reducing the lead of the Pirates to one full game.

Successive homers by Moore and Cuyler in the first inning threatened a troublesome day for Young Kent Greenfield, McGraw's choice for mound duty, but he steadied and his mates delivered the victory with 13 base blows showered upon Aldridge, Sheehan and the veteran Babe Adams. Among them were a home run to the left field stands by Frisch and two doubles and a single by Young.

DIAMOND GLINTS

Lou Marsh writes:

The joke is on George Waller, the Oakmount slugger, who was promised $2 a hit and $5 a home run by his uncle, an enthusiastic Ossington field ball fan. Saturday morning young Waller presented his uncle with a bill for $18 for a flock of hits made in last Thursday's twilight game, and was promptly paid off in Chinese cash, German marks and Russian rubles. Everybody had a good laugh, and thought the incident closed, but Saturday Waller did not register a hit, and last night all he busted was the atmosphere. Is he getting even with uncle, or has he run out of his string of base knocks?

And just to make it a real joke, the Ontario athletic union officials fell for "Uncle" Waller's josh, and have young Waller slated to walk the carpet and explain his astounding breach of the amateur code.

If they want to "get" some of these "shamateurs," why do they not go after the players who demanded autos—and refused Fords—before they would sign up with a certain team? There are plenty of real abuses for the union to clear up without bothering with a boy whose relatives promise him rewards for boosting the family prestige. I know two fond "pops" who gave their young hopefuls $10 for every goal they scored last winter. What is wrong with that? The boys have to be supplied with pocket money anyway. If the clubs supplied the kail the union might well worry.

Use of rosin by pitchers was common practice in all professional baseball circles for many years. And in those years there was real pitching. In 1920, however, the baseball chiefs banned the use of all foreign substances. The edict became effective in April, 1921. Since then the pitching has been on the down grade. It cannot be blamed entirely because rosin is not used, because every now and then some pitcher turns in a beautifully pitched game. But there is no getting around the fact that rosin is most helpful.

It was not rosin that caused the ban. It was cheating in other ways that caused all substances to be swept away. Rosin was used mostly during the hot weather, when pitchers hands became moistened through excessive perspiration. It was then that a bag of rosin, carried in the hip pocket, was used much as women use powder puffs today. Or a pitcher would break up the rosin and merely apply his fingers to it. Thus he was able to get a better grip on the ball. Without the use of this, a pitcher was as apt to make a wild pitch and lose his ball game as he was to throw the ball through the heart of the plate.

Pitchers have been complaining of late that rosin should be allowed again. Practically every big league pitcher of the older school is asking his manager and the club owners to work for relief in this matter. They want rosin to become as much a part of their pitching equipment as their glove or their fingers. They claim that the lively ball would not be near as effective if rosin could be used as it is now. And they also assert that the practice of using new balls practically all the way through a game also has weakened good pitching. Even with the use of the new ball, these pitchers charge that an application of rosin would help them in control, because the powder on new balls makes them hard to handle.

Pitching is the crying need of the big league today, and the big leagues control baseball. If the magnates of the American and National leagues can get together on the subject, it is quite likely that something will be done for pitching. Either the lively ball will be made less lively, or the use of rosin will be permitted. Unless some such action is taken, there will be terrific hitting and poor pitching. But until some such step is approved, use of rosin will be taboo, and pitchers who try to get by with it will be known as cheaters.

A rare play featured a game between Toledo and Columbus in the former city recently when two men were tagged out at the home plate almost simultaneously. In the opening inning, Murray of Columbus doubled and Johnson walked. Russell then doubled to right center and Nicholson quickly relayed the ball to Maguire and he fired it to Catcher Gaston, who tagged Murray as he slid and Johnson, who was coming in right on the former's heels, was also an easy out for the catcher.

Hal Chase, conceded to be one of the greatest first basemen who ever wore a spiked shoe, no longer is playing in the Mexican baseball league, a circuit which was organized and developed for his own benefit. Whether the league is still flourishing is not definitely known. But the fact remains Chase has pulled stakes and come back into the states—half way, at least.

Chase always was that way. You couldn't depend on him for a minute. When he was a Yankee, Giant, Buffalo Fed and Cincinnati Red, Chase was considered an unbeatable player—when he wanted to be.

That he started the Mexican league was no surprise. The organization went for a while, but Chase, the leading luminary, dropped it like a hot tamale when the pesos failed to come in quickly.

With Tom Seaton, the former Phillie pitcher, Chase moved over to Douglas Ariz., and they claim he is fielding and hitting just as brilliantly as he did up in the big show. Maybe the square-shooting cowpunchers compel him to. Or maybe—

Well, no matter how square-shooting these Arizona cowpunchers are, they most always are obsessed with an alkaline thirst, especially after hollering all afternoon at the ball park, which makes it nice for Chase, who has a saloon just across the border in Sonora, Mexico. Seaton is official bartender after the games.

W.F.A.'s Senior Champions Are Suspended For Season

Drastic Punishment Handed Kitchener Rangers For Playing Ineligibles.

DATE PLAY-OFFS

Special to The Advertiser.

Kitchener, July 7.—The Kitchener Rangers, senior champions of the W. F. A. for the past two years, were suspended for the season tonight by the Western football association executive meeting here for playing an unsigned man under an assumed name in their game at Hespeler, and for playing a signed man under another man's name. The charges were admitted by the locals. This eliminates the Rangers, who would have entered the intermediate playoffs but for them. This gives the Guelph Rangers and the Kitchener Victorias a chance. It also eliminates the Rangers from the Ontario cup play.

It was also charged that Preston had likewise played a man under an assumed name, and an investigation is being held. If the charge is proven Preston will also be suspended.

A protest of the Seaforth club against St. Columban was sustained and the game will have to be replayed Friday night at St. Columban.

St. Martins moved up into a better position for the first series honors of the Holy Name league at Sunshine park last night by coming from behind in the final two innings to win from St. Peters 8 to 7.

Nopper did the hurling for the league-leaders, and was touched for eleven solid hits, three of which went for extra bases, and that, along with costly errors by his teammates, gave the south-enders a chance to carry off a victory after lagging behind for three innings.

E. Brennan started on the mound for St. Martins, but St. Peters got to him, and he was replaced by Barney Clark, who held the cathedral outfit scoreless for the last two innings, while his team was getting to Nopper.

PLAY IN RAIN

Canadian Press Despatch.

St. Catharines, July 7.—Rain, which fell heavily on the Queen's Royal bowling greens, Niagara-on-the-Lake at the noonhour today, and fell intermittently during the afternoon, did considerable to mar the day's sport for the competitors of the Ontario Bowling association annual tourney. In fact, rain which is an annual visitant for the tourney was being mentioned on the greens tonight as still another reason why the tourney would not be held again next year at Niagara. This prediction was almost unanimously made by the bowlers. President Fairburn, when interviewed, was inclined to favor that opinion, although he stated that the final decision would rest with the O. B. A. executive. The greens this year have been very bad, and this notwithstanding a large expenditure by the association. It is figured, however, that expenditure in the summer months is of little avail, that reconstruction must take place in the autumn. All these matters will be settled at the O. B. A. meeting, and it was strongly put forth today that St. Catharines having 14 greens available might be a competitor against Niagara's 17 greens, St. Catharines having the call because of the excellent condition of the lawns.

Bowling today was under very difficult conditions. Some rinks noted for a strong arm won, the ground was water-soaked. Other rinks, whose players use heavy bowls had an advantage.

The results:

Golf AS CHAMPIONS PLAY IT

If there is casual water on the green between the ball and the hole, what is the procedure?

BY WILLIE OGG,
New England Professional and Massachusetts Open Champion.

A player has a right to a clear putt without penalty. If casual water intervene between his ball and the hole on the putting green, his procedure is covered by Rule 23, Section 3. This rule states that "If a ball on the putting green lies in casual water, or if casual water intervene a ball lying on the putting green and the hole, the ball may be played where it lies, or may be lifted without penalty and placed by hand either within two club lengths directly behind the spot from which the ball was lifted or in the nearest position to that spot which is not nearer the hole and which affords a putt to the hole without casual water intervening."

JABS AND —JABBER—

Buffalonians are still somewhat stunned over what happened to the marvelous Mr. Slattery at the hands of Dave Shade during a charitable demonstration at the Polo Grounds last week. The Buffalo boys are just coming up for air with which to ventilate their grievances. Pro Bono Publico and Old Subscriber, both of whom are residents of long standing in Buffalo, have taken their pens in hand.

* * *

Old Subscriber, who does not wish his name used in connection with anything that might appear, declares that the marvelous Mr. Slattery took his work altogether too lightly. He rises to state that Slattery did his road work in cafes and sought to improve his footwork by treading the measure of the Charleston and other modern steps.

Of course, they say this about most of our rising gladiators. Young Sammy Mandell, the lightweight, who keeps strict curfew hours, got the reputation of being a "cabaret hound," nobody knows just how. If it is true that Slattery is frivoling away his ring future it is his own business, of course. But he should have learned something from Charlie Weinert, who was knocked horizontal in the same ring. There was a case where Weinert had everything that would have made him heavyweight champion of the world. He frivoled the chances away.

AN AMATEUR GIVES ADVICE.

A gentleman, who prefers to be known only as H. G. P. and who used to fight for the pure joy of it, characterizes the punch that laid the younger edition of James J. Corbett low, as being a lucky one. H. G. P. says that in the course of his happy career of giving and receiving punches for no gate receipts whatever he took many blows on the jaw without becoming horizontal.

But once, when an awkward boxer landed one of those "round arm" punches to his left temple, he sat down and meditated upon the folly of fighting with authority. The knockout of Slattery, he insists, comes under the head of unavoidable accidents, and he predicts that Slattery's career will not be cut short by it.

"When one is up against a 'head weaver' like Shade," concludes H. G. P., "the only thing to do is to smash his middle. This slows up the elusive head. Then you get the head." It sounds reasonable.

DEATH OF MINER STILL A MYSTERY

Witness at N. S. Inquest Fail To Throw Light On Shooting.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Sydney, July 7.—Half a dozen witnesses who testified this morning at a preliminary hearing ordered by the attorney-general did not throw any additional light on the death of William Davis, miner, on June 11, in a fight at New Waterford between miners and British Empire steel corporation police. The inquiry is being held before Magistrate J. J. Smith and adjourned at noon until next Friday.

John Sutherland, New Waterford, told of being near Davis when the latter was shot, and of seeing at the same time an unhorsed policeman rising to his feet and shooting. He did not know him. The policeman went into the woods.

Later he saw a man come out of the woods whom somebody said was named McLeod, but the witness did not know whether or not this was the policeman who had entered, as there was considerable confusion and many persons moving around.

The witnesses could not say definitely who fired the shots nor from what party they came except in an instance where John Sutherland said he had seen Murray Andrews, a policeman, shooting and also the unhorsed policeman in the vicinity of Davis.

TWO ESCAPE DROWNING AS CAR GOES OVER DOCK

Hamilton Man Made Wrong Turn at Wallaceburg—One Has Rib Broken.

Special to The Advertiser.

Wallaceburg, July 7.—David McNaughton and Albert Craig of Hamilton narrowly escaped drowning last night about 10 o'clock, when they drove off the dock into the Sydenham river. The men are unfamiliar with the town, and thought they were turning onto the central bridge. Craig saw the danger, but his brakes refused to work, and the car plunged over the end of the dock. As it did so the men jumped.

Two boys heard the men yell, and helped them cling to the side of the dock till aid arrived. Craig sustained a broken rib and minor cuts, while McNaughton was unhurt.

The car was fastened to the dock with ropes and raised this morning.

FAMOUS HALL AND CHURCH DESTROYED IN BIGGEST FIRE IN HISTORY OF GLASGOW CITY

Exhibition Buildings Covering Several Acres Also Prey To Flames.

SIX FIRES AT ONCE

Kelvin Grove Church, Quarter-Mile Away, Ignited by Sparks.

Associated Press Despatch

Glasgow, July 7.—One of the biggest fires in the history of Scotland tonight destroyed Kelvin hall and the corporation's exhibition buildings, covering several acres, while one of Glasgow's finest churches, the Kelvin Grove United Free church, was gutted.

The church, which is a reproduction in miniature of the famous Rheims cathedral, is a quarter of a mile distant from where the fire broke out, and was ignited by sparks. Two towers fronting on the street crashed to the ground and the whole roof caved in.

Flames from Kelvin Hall spread to Blantyre street, the tenants being obliged to flee for safety. At one time six separate fires were blazing.

Glasgow's art galleries, containing priceless treasures, are located opposite Kelvin Hall, and were saved only by the fact that the wind was blowing in the other direction.

So far as is known, there were no casualties.

Among those listed to start in the event is Chick Evans, who has held the title eight times.

STRATFORD GIRLS' LOOP IS STILL UNREALIZED

Special to The Advertiser.

Stratford, July 7.—Dspite the strenuous efforts of Ralph Smith, recently appointed sports promoter of the Stratford Amateur Athletic association, to form a ladies' softball league, nothing has been done. A meeting for the purpose of organizing such a league was held last evening, but none of the fair sex made an appearance. There are several Stratford girls who are desirous of playing softball, and Mr. Smith intends forming an All-Stratford team and a Perth County Softball league. All interested in such a league are invited to write to Mr. Smith.

LARGE RAILWAY ISSUE ON BOND MART TODAY

Demand For Utilities and Semi-Speculative Railroad Shares Feature.

Associated Press Despatch.

New York, July 7.—Rising prices and expanding activity marked today's bond trading, which was featured by a quick-end demand for public utilities and semi-speculative railroad issues. Buying was stimulated by the definite return of easier money conditions, which was reflected in the strength of United States government bonds.

One of the largest railroad bond issues of the year has been arranged for tomorrow, when Kuhn, Loeb & Company will offer $40,000,000 Central Pacific 25-year 5 per cent bonds at 98, to yield about 5¼ per cent. The bonds are a direct obligation of the Central Pacific Railway Company and will be guaranteed by the Southern Pacific Railway.

High yielding railroad liens commanded speculative favor in the day's trading, being influenced by a combination of favorable earnings and merger reports. Among the most active issues were "Katy" adjustment 5's, Frisco adjustment 5's, and Income 6's, Seaboard adjustment 5's and refunding 4's, Peoria and Eastern Income 4's and several of the junior St. Paul liens.

LENGLEN IN PERSON.

London, July 7.—Suzanne Lenglen, French lawn tennis star, went on the stage of the Tivoli here yesterday and made short addresses accompanying a film show of her play against Joan Fry and Kathleen McKane in the Wimbledon tournament. She was given much applause.

The Daily Herald today raises the question whether Mlle. Lenglen accepted a fee for her talks, claiming that if she did she forfeited her amateur status, according to both the British and United States rules.

FRANCE'S COUNTER ATTACK SUCCEEDS

Premier Painleve To Ask Big Appropriation To Carry On Operations.

Associated Press Despatch

Paris, July 8.—The French countermovement in the upper Leben valley of Morocco is making satisfactory progress, according to the latest reports from headquarters, increasing the hope that the Riffian menace against Taza may soon be removed. Meanwhile a full dress debate is set for this afternoon in the chamber of deputies, when Premier Painleve will ask for an appropriation of 300,000,000 francs with which to carry on the operations.

M. Painleve at the end of yesterday's session, in declaring immediate discussion of an interpellation on the appointment of General Naulin to supreme command of the forces in Morocco, promised to answer any questions the members desired to ask when the appropriation was before the house for consideration.

SEVEN WILL COMPETE FOR WAR MEMORIAL

Designers For Ottawa Monument Will Have Four Months To Prepare Models.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Ottawa, July 8.—Of the 116 designs submitted to the government for the proposed Canadian national war memorial to be erected on Connaught place here, the honorary committee of advisers have under the terms of the competition eliminated all but seven. These seven competitors will now be asked to prepare working models in place of the rough sketches previously submitted. They are to be given four months in which to do that work, and the design considered most suitable will be selected.

All of those who prepare models, however, will be paid for their work whether or not their design is selected. The memorial will be of monumental proportions and the appropriation for it passed by parliament amounts to $100,000.

The competition was open to all the allied countries in the war. Of the seven designs to be finally considered, two are from Canada, one each from Montreal and Toronto; three from England, one from Scotland, and one from the United States. The advisory committee that considered the designs consists of Dr. Sheppard, Montreal, and Messrs. Sproate and McNeill, New York.

HAIG SAYS UNION TO AVOID POLITICS

Field Marshal Warns Veterans' Organization Must Be Non-Sectarian Also.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Winnipeg, July 7.—The proposed united organization of returned veterans in Canada must be non-political and non-sectarian, Field Marshal Haig warned today in the course of a speech delivered at the banquet in his honor tendered by the Caledonian association. "It is only by cutting politics out of our organization that we can cling together. We must get the confidence of our fellow-citizens, as we have done in other parts of the empire," he added.

The field marshal largely repeated the plea for unity among veterans that he has sounded at every stage of his tour.

"It is very distressing to me, coming from the old country, and meeting delegates from overseas, to hear of millions of acres of land where there are no settlers at all, and to hear also that in some parts, instead of getting some of the good old stock they are bringing Teutons and some of the people from Central Europe," Earl Haig said; adding: "We are setting up a branch of the league (British Empire Service league) to deal with the subject of migration, not invent schemes, but to examine those already in use. It needs money, of course, to be successful, and I have no doubt that in due time it will ask the dominions for financial assistance, and not depend entirely upon the old country for its resources. The future of the British Empire depends on its own flesh and blood."

Associated Press Despatch

Paris, July 8.—A Moscow despatch to the Havas agency says the soviet government has granted the request of the German government for a suspension of the death sentences of two German students charged with plotting to kill Leon Trotzky and other soviet leaders. Badger Expounds Philosophy of Fear To Peter Rabbit From Experience

By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

Peter Rabbit shook his head. "I can't agree to that, Mr. Badger," said he. "It makes one feel so dreadfully uncomfortable."

"But it often keeps you out of real trouble," declared Digger. "The one who is most fearful is the one most difficult to catch. Just take my own case. I never was much of a hand to be afraid. Even from the time I was a little fellow I was a good fighter. I guess I was too good a fighter. Anyway, before I was half grown there was no one of whom I was afraid out there in the Far West with the exception of Howler the Wolf. I wasn't really afraid of him because I felt smart enough to keep out of his way. It was a bad state to be in. Yes, sir, it was so. Not being afraid I grew careless. I didn't keep watch. And so it happened that one day one of those two-legged creatures called men surprised me so far from my home that I couldn't get back."

"What did you do?" asked Peter breathlessly.

"What did you do?" asked Peter breathlessly.

"I started to dig in," replied Digger. "You should have seen the way I made the sand fly. But before I could get down out of reach that two-legged creature got me by the tail. I thought he would pull it out by the roots. Yes, sir, I certainly thought I was going to lose my tail. But I was perfectly willing to lose it if losing it would help me to escape. However, the roots of my tail held, and finally some water was brought and poured into the hole which I had dug, and then I had to let go and be pulled out. Something was thrown over my head and I was wrapped up in it and made helpless. Then I was carried away.

"I was put in a box lined with that stuff called wire, and then carried away on a long journey. When the journey ended I was in a place called a park where there were ever so many other people in fur, all kept prisoners."

Peter nodded. "I know," said he. "It was the same kind of place Old Man Coyote was kept in."

"It was," agreed Digger. "I must confess that I was very well treated. Never in my life did I have so much to eat, and I didn't have to work for it. They put me in a big cage with a stone floor and a perfectly comfortable little house in which to sleep and keep out of sight. But there wasn't any place to dig. Oh, how I did miss digging! I used to look at these claws of mine and wonder how it would feel to drive them into the ground and make the sand fly out behind me. I grew and grew until I was as big as I am now, and all the time I never once forgot that I was a prisoner. Neither did I forget that it was my own fault.

"Feeling the way I did, of course I was always watching for a chance to escape. That was all I thought about. That and my food. I didn't intend to miss any chance. I tried the wires of that cage every day. I tried the door to that cage every day. But for a long, long, long time nothing happened. Then one day when a two-legged creature was cleaning out my pen he didn't close the gate tight. I pushed against it with my nose and it swung open. You should have seen me get out of there. I may have short legs, but I tell you, Peter Rabbit, I made the most of them that time. Not far away was a little house with a hole under it. I was under there before he missed me, and I stayed under there until night. Every night I travelled until I was tired. So at last I reached the Green Meadows, and here I am."

Crooks Anticipating Jail With Comforts of Home

Chicago Plans Prison Modeled After Luxurious Modern Hotel.

MINIMUM OF BARS

Running Water and Small Library For Each Cell.

By OWEN L. SCOTT.
Special to The Advertiser.
Copyright, 1925.

Chicago, July 7.—Jail birds who've kicked vigorously for years against accommodations Chicago has afforded them can now look forward to a model home life. Investigators, after surveying the hoosegows of all the country, have decided that they are mediaeval, and now plan a department that assures a happy home for the law-breakers if only the Cook county commissioners agree.

Illinois went the rest of the country one better when it put up a state prison at Stateville that would make many a hotel ashamed of its accommodations. But now the county jail here has a shade over the state prison.

The whole object of the proposed new jail will be to make happy criminals. None of the old time steel bars, iron wall beds, crowded cells, or unsanitary accommodations are to be permitted. Even select company is to be provided the prisoners according to their classes.

One prisoner to each airy, well lighted cell is called for. A drinking fountain and book shelves, with books, is to be provided. Movable cots, suitable for the best resting will be there. Exercise rooms with lavatories and showers, a big yard with plenty of playground are all outlined.

There will be a minimum of steel bars, because the committee considers bars in prisons primitive. And the whole thing will be built on a "telephone pole," plan, with the pole a great corridor, leading back to transversal cell houses, each cell house devoted to a different class of prisoner.

GOVT. WILL BUILD HUGE COKE OVENS

Coke and Gas To Be Sold to Windsor Consumers at Cost.

Special to The Advertiser.

Windsor, July 7. — Huge government coke ovens are to be constructed in this district before winter, according to an announcement made today by Mayor Mitchell, following receipt of a communication from C. P. Hotchkiss, executive secretary of dominion fuel board, which recently made a survey of the fuel situation throughout the dominion.

"The announcement that these coke ovens will be located here should be a welcome one to all purchasers of fuel in the district," said Mayor Mitchell. "According to the communication, the government will manufacture coke, artificial gas, benzel and other by-products, which will be sold to the consumer at cost. This, of course, will bring about a sharp reduction in fuel prices.

"In the past citizens of this vicinity have had much trouble in obtaining fuel at any reasonable price, and many times anthracite could not be bought at any cost. The government plan insures an abundant fuel supply for Windsor at a moderate rate."

Government figures show, according to the mayor, that anthracite coal valued at more than $44,000,000 was imported from United States by Canada last year.

War On Evolution Theory Will Be Fought To Finish

Associated Press Despatch

Dayton, Tenn, July 7.—"The contest between evolution and Christianity is a duel to the death," William Jennings Bryan declared tonight in an address at a dinner given in his honor by the Progressive Dayton club in the dining-room of the Hotel Aqua.

"It has been in the past a death grapple in the dark," said Mr. Bryan, who arrived here today in preparation for the trial of John T. Scopes, charged with violating the Tennessee statute against teaching evolution in the public schools.

"From this time on it will be a death grapple in the light."

One issue of the coming trial, scheduled to begin next Friday, is whether the people shall rule in the United States, the speaker asserted. "The people are the only source of power and will in the end control."

Ready for Trial.

Upon stepping from the train, when he was met by a host of Daytonians and dozens of newspaper correspondents and photographers, Mr. Bryan told newspapermen he was prepared for the trial.

Referring to the size of Dayton, Mr. Bryan said that some of the city papers had spoken disparagingly of "the town, as if it was too small a place in which to hold so great a trial."

"Why should the size of the town be a matter of importance in the trial of a religious case?

"Christianity began in a small town, whether we date the beginning with the birth of Christ in Bethlehem or with the youth of Christ spent in Nazareth. Why should not this peaceful community furnish a fitting environment for the trial of a case that involves the two greatest subjects that interest mankind—education and religion?

"What is the secret of the world's interest in this little case?" he asked. "It is found in the fact that this trial uncovers an attack which for a generation has been made more or less secretly upon revealed religion, that is the Christian religion. We have no knowledge of it outside the Bible, which Christians regard as the revealed will of God. The Bible is our only standard of morality. It gives us our only conception of God, and our only knowledge of Christ, the only begotten Son of God.

Attack Religion.

"Anything that attacks the Bible attacks revealed religion. A successful attack would destroy the Bible, and with it revealed religion.

"The contest between evolution and christianity is a duel to the death. It has been in the past a death grapple in the dark; from this on it will be a death grapple in the light."

"For this trial is going to give information or be the means of bringing out information on which this controversy will be decided.

"If evolution wins, Christianity goes—not suddenly, of course, but gradually, for the two cannot stand together. They are as antagonistic as light and darkness; as antagonistic as good and evil. Heretofore evolution has been like 'the pestilence that walketh in darkness.' Hereafter it will be 'the destruction that wasteth at noonday'."

MAN FINDS WIFE DEAD KNEELING BESIDE BED

Young Belgian Becomes Temporarily Deranged Following Sad Discovery.

Special to The Advertiser.

Chatham, July 7.—Finding of his wife in a kneeling posture, dead, beside her bed shortly after she had retired for the night in apparent good health caused Julius Van Biesbrouck, a young Belgian, to become temporarily deranged. He became so violent that several strong men could not hold him, and county police found it necessary, for his own protection, to lock him in a cell overnight. The husband had recovered his composure today, and was released to the care of his friends. He is stricken with grief, however.

The Belgian and his wife had spent the evening with friends, and returned to their home on the River road, Raleigh, shortly after nine o'clock. The woman was in excellent health when she retired to her room, leaving her husband to do a few chores about the farmyard.

Twenty minutes later the husband found his wife dead. She was an expectant mother.

Van Biesbrouck came to this country about a year ago. His wife followed him last December, while two children are in Belgium, and were to follow at a convenient time.

Mrs. Biesbrouck was 23 years of age.

3 HURT AS PLANE DIVES INTO RIVER

Big Passenger Liner Falls Into St. Lawrence Near Brockville.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Brockville, July 7.—Three persons were seriously injured, and barely escaped drowning, yesterday, when a big all-metal seaplane used in carrying passengers over the Thousand Islands section, nose-dived into the water of the St. Lawrence river, directly in front of Imperial Island, owned by Gilbert Rafferty of New York.

The injured were: Mr. and Mrs. Charles Viley of East Orange, N.J., who had stopped at Alexandria Bay for the day, and Captain T. H. Y. Shebat, pilot of the seaplane, formerly of Syracuse. The big plane was returning to Alexandria Bay after making a half-hour cruise over the island section, when the accident occurred. The machine suddenly turned, nose-down, when about 30 feet above water and splashed quickly, almost entirely disappearing from sight.

The pilot smashed the windows of the cabin, from which the tourists were rescued by parties who put out in motorboats. They were conveyed to hospital in Watertown for medical treatment.

CONFERENCE SUGGESTED ON SUCCESSION DUTIES

Canadian Press Despatch.

Winnipeg, July 7.—An inter-provincial conference on the subject of succession duties has been suggested by Premier John Bracken, who has communicated with the governments of Ontario, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia. Such a conference would aid in drafting uniform legislation, and would solve many of the present problems common to all the provinces.

Mr. Bracken suggests the conference be held in August, either at Winnipeg, Regina or Edmonton.

CANADIANS FLEE MISSION IN CHINA

Methodist Workers and Children Leave Chungking Under Escort.

Associated Press Despatch.

Toronto, July 7.—The Methodist mission board here today received a cable from Chungking that 48 Canadians had left that place for Shanghai under escort, because of further trouble in West China. The cable was from Rev. Gordon Jones, formerly of Brantford. Three stations of the West China mission are affected. Mission workers seemed to have congregated at Chungking, following riots recently reported there. The party leaving Chungking should reach Shanghai in ten days, it is stated here by those acquainted with the country and methods of travel. The cable requested that any replies be sent to Rev. Dr. E. W. Wallace, who is a Canadian Methodist minister at Shanghai, and it is taken for granted from this that all the mission workers at Chungking have left.

The cable reads as follows:

"Following left here today: Mrs. Abrey and children, Mr. and Mrs. Annis and children, Mr. and Mrs. Anderson and children, Mr. and Mrs. Burwell and children, Miss Irene Harris, Mrs. Jones and children, Mrs. McNaughton, Mr. and Mrs. Morrison and children, Dr. Sheridan, Mr. and Mrs. M. P. Smith and children, Mrs. Sparling and two children, Miss Jack, Miss Shepley, Miss Elderkin and Miss Peters."

The last four women mentioned are Methodist W. M. S. workers, but this list is incorrect, as two of them are not on the field. It is assumed at Wesley buildings that all W. M. S. workers at Chengking, six in number, have left with the party now under escort. The six are Misses Innes, Darby, McNeil, Sparling, Peters and Jack.

The cable makes no reference to the Chengtu area, where by far the larger member of Canadian missionaries are located, and from which nothing but reassuring cables have come.

Chungking has evidently been the centre for several days past of an anti-foreign activity, which made it unwise for the families of missionaries to remain.

Of the persons leaving, 25 are missionaries' children, seven married male workers, eight wives of missionaries, and two single women employed by the general board of missions, Rev. E. W. Wallace, D.D., to whom replies are directed, is a Canadian Methodist missionary resident in Shanghai, so that Shanghai is taken to be the party's destination.

At least one of the 48 missionaries compelled to flee Chungking in a Londoner. Mrs. H. B. Burwell is a daughter of Mr. H. McPherson, 165 Wharncliffe road. She has been in the mission field for nine years, and until two years ago was stationed, along with her husband and family, in Chengtu. Three years ago Mrs. Burwell was a visitor with her parents in London while on furlough.

In a letter received by Mr. McPherson on Monday Mrs. Burwell mentioned the disturbances occasioned by the anti-foreign agitation, but gave no hint that the animosity to the missionaries was so great as to compel them to abandon their post. During the last few weeks, though, the degree of anti-foreign feeling has become so intensified in China as to include even the missionaries.

The Advertiser was informed last night that three other workers from Western Ontario are included in the party now on its way to Shanghai.

Flags Flying At Half-Mast As Whole City Sorrows Following Lake Tragedy

St. Thomas Mourns Death of Eight Picnickers at Pinafore Park.

TELL OF HEROISM

Bravery of Ministers and Two Girl Heroes Are Lauded.

Special to The Advertiser.

St. Thomas, July 7.—Flags flying at half-mast on schools and other public buildings all over the city gave visible expression today to the mourning of all citizens for the victim's of Monday night's tragedy at Pinafore park.

The paralysis and numbness caused by the first shock of the disaster having passed, people began to talk freely of the occurrence, and many tales of heroism and presence of mind on the part of rescuers and those in the boat were told.

Ministers Are Brave.

With characteristic modesty, Rev. Percy N. Harding, rector of St. John's church, which most of the victims attended, forbore to say anything about his part in the work of rescue, but commended highly the skill and bravery shown by his colleague, Rev. C. M. C. Hallowell, rector of St. Luke's, who went out in one of the rowboats and dived repeatedly in the hope of recovering bodies, and later lent skillful assistance in a vain attempt to resuscitate some of the victims. Eyewitnesses tell of the devotion shown by Mr. Harding, who is an ex-Londoner and a graduate of Huron college, as is also Mr. Hallowell.

He was not a witness of the tragedy, but was quickly on the scene afterwards. He was unable to swim, and so felt that his presence out on the water would not have been of particular use. He undertook the difficult task of calming the hysterical women who thronged about him on the bank, an undertaking demanding coolness and strong nerves. One of the rescued kiddies went home wrapped in his coat, and Mr. Harding remained at the scene until dawn in his shirt-sleeves. Before allowing himself any rest he visited every one of the bereaved homes.

Blame Underboat.

Several of the children who were saved are positive that all was not well with the boats underneath the raft before the upset. George Austin, aged 14, told The Advertiser that Norman Ward shouted to them to rush up to the front. The rear of the craft seemed to be settling even then, and the water rose very fast before there was any thought of the boat overturning, he maintains. He was positive that there was no mention made of any mud turtle, and his story is corroborated by his two brothers, Alfred, aged 12, and Harold, aged 9.

The former swam to some bathers who were making their way to the scene, and was assisted to shore in an exhausted condition by Pete Linder, and George held his brother Harold by the side of the upturned boat, and was picked up by the Wilfred sisters, Lillian and Queenie. These two girls rendered conspicuous service in the work of rescue. Both are Girl Guides, and their commander, Mrs. Wilson, spoke today of the pride their fellow-guides feel in the way they conducted themselves. They were in the water in a rowboat along with Phyliss Stevenson and James Russell. They were instrumental in rescuing eight in their boat.

Apparatus Lacking.

The complete lack of life-saving apparatus at the miniature lake was commented upon by Mr. Hallowell, in discussing the tragedy with The Advertiser. It was not until boat-hooks and grappling-irons had been brought from downtown that any serious effort could be made to locate the bodies. Diving was very difficult, as the water was from 12 to 15 feet deep, and a five-foot blanket of very cold water lay over the bottom, quickly causing cramps in those who went down into it. Mr. Hallowell thinks that if boat-hooks had been available at the pavilion many of the bodies would have been recovered much sooner, although it is doubtful if resuscitation methods would have availed to save additional lives.

COMBINED ACTION SOUGHT BY MINERS

Coal Mining Crisis Takes On New Aspect As Result of Conference.

Associated Press Despatch.

London, July 7.—The situation in the British coal mining industry continues to occupy chief notice in the press. The cabinet is considering the problem today, while an international aspect has been introduced through the meeting of the executive committee of the International Miners' Federation at which delegates from France, Belgium, Holland and Germany and Czecho-Slovakia were present.

While it is not believed combined action is contemplated in the present dispute between British mine owners and workers, Frank Hodges, secretary of the miners' federation, pointed out this morning there is a coal crisis in nearly every country, and he emphasized the importance of international organization and action.

While no official intervention is contemplated at the present stage of the dispute, it is known that every angle is being explored behind the scenes in order to bring the disputing international elements together. New developments are expected from the meeting of the mine owners' representatives tomorrow.

RHEUMATISM STYLED NOW OUT OF FASHION

Osteopathic Association Told Parasites Are Cause of Twinges.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, July 7.—Dr. H. R. Nichols of Boston told the American Osteopathic association in convention here today that rheumatism was no longer fashionable. The cause of the "rheumatic twinges" is a parasite that may lodge at the root of the teeth or in decayed tonsils, he said. Dr. Nichols also declared that such troubles as appendicitis, nephritis, etc., were the focusing of the same germs at certain points in the body.

Dr. Robert D. Emery of Los Angeles, in an address, sought to show that cancer was not a germ disease. He thought cancer was preventable in youth by proper food and exercise.

The president of the Osteopathic women's association, Dr. Jeanette M. Bolles, presided over a luncheon held for the association today.

TRADE PACT AIDS LONDON INDUSTRY

Canadian Shoes To Receive 2-3 Preference From W. Indies.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Ottawa, July 7.—The Canadian-West Indies trade agreement, details of which will be made public Thursday, prepares the way for greatly extended trade between the islands and the dominion. Trade will be extended by mutual preferential tariffs and by steamship subsidies, to which both parties will contribute.

Canada will benfit by increased market facilities in receiving tariff preferences on flour, lumber, boots, butter, cheese, meats, apples and cement. It is understood that lumber and boots will have a two-thirds preference; butter, $1.50 a hundred; meats, $1.50 a barrel; apples, 50c a barrel, and fish, 50c per hundred.

West Indian products entering Canada will receive approximately a 25 per cent preference, and in the case of bananas, already admitted free, the tariff against other countries will be increased. It is also notable that sugar will be under preference. Grape fruit, spices, coffee, raw cocoa and limes are on the free list. Rum has a two-thirds preference.

Speculations as to the amount of the steamship subsidy and the nature of the service vary. Some estimates of the amount to be contributed by the islands for the improved steamship service are as high as $200,000, others $125,000. In any event, it is understood that ships of a 5,000 or 6,000 ton capacity, with passengers and cold storage accommodation, will provide a fortnightly service all the year around. The agreement, which was signed last night, is subject to the ratification of parliament, and will come into effect on a date to be mutually agreed upon by the contracting parties. As signed, it provides for a ten year contract which can be terminated thereafter on a year's notice.

PROGRESSIVE SCORES PREMIER FERGUSON

Declares He Gave Ontario the Reverse of Desires On Temperance.

Special to The Advertiser.

Wingham, July 7.—The annual farmers' picnic in Steacy's Grove on Monday drew a fairly good crowd to participate in the sports and to hear the doctrine of farm politics enunciated. The club had hopes of having ex-Premier Drury as the chief speaker, but he was unable to get here and sent J. W. Warren, the secretary of the Ontario Progressive association.

He spoke of the impossibility of government being successfully carried on by any individual class of citizens. This had been found out by the farmers in their term of office at Toronto. Farmers could not isolate themselves, he said, but they must co-operate with the rest of the population if they would govern.

"Our old policy of splendid isolation attracted all others to coalesce against us, and made a sharp division between rural and urban interests," he said. "Let us take in all who sympathize with us."

He spoke of organization of city politicians, evidencing Toronto Toryism as the epitome of organization, and said the province was being run today by Toronto Tory ward politicians. He condemned the beer policy of the Ferguson government, and termed the premier as a traitor to responsible government in spending a half-million dollars of the people's money in taking a plebiscite to find out what they wanted in the way of temperance legislation in the province. They told him what they wanted but he gave them the reverse.

"Mr. Ferguson knows today he made a mistake, and from press reports is going to get out from under by appointing himself as Sir Adam Beck's successor, and let Hon. George P. Henry, as premier, take his chances of getting the Tory party back to power."

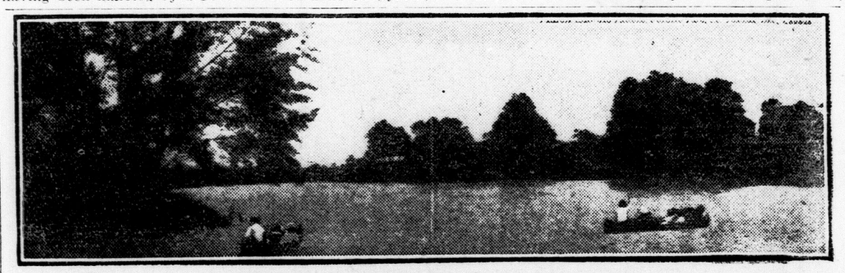

He urged the farmers to get ready for the next election by getting their man nominated and in the field. In closing, he spoke of the division within the ranks of the farmers, and severely criticized J. J. Morrison. He spoke of the scandals of the Drury regime as being the sin of one man, and it in no way reflected on the farmer party.

R. E. Steacy, the U. F. O. candidate in the last dominion elections, acted as chairman. After the speaking, the crowd enjoyed sports, consisting of races, tug-of-war and baseball games.

Repetition of Marriage Ceremony Is Illegal, Declares Official

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, July 7.—Fred Williamson, marriage license officer, of Toronto, stated today that reports had reached him frequently of couples who had gone through a form of marriage before a Roman Catholic priest after having been married by a Protestant minister. Such "double marriage" is illegal, he stated, adding that it would justify stern action if the facts were established. "It is surprising how many mixed couples come and express their intention of being married by both Protestant and Catholic clergymen," he said.

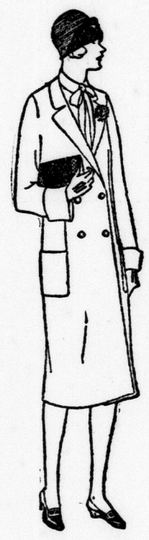

WHERE EIGHT PICNICKERS WENT TO DEATH.

The peaceful little artificial lake in Pinafore park, St. Thomas, is shown above, together with the pavilion built for the convenience of picnickers. The lake, which was formed by damming a creek and thus flooding a deep gully, is only a stone's throw across in places, but it winds along through the surrounding hills. Boats have for many years been rented to picnickers who desire to row on the lake, but swanboats were introduced only during the past few weeks. It was in an improvised type of one of these craft that seven children and one woman lost their lives Monday night. The scene of the tragedy is on the far side of the lake shown here.

To-day I saw

"Little Johnny sipping cider through a straw"—and I envied him, and as "He who hesitates is lost," so was I—for I went in and joined little Johnny, as he sipped at the Soda Fountain on the Main Floor.

Of course 'twas not cider the shoppers about me were sipping, but delicious, foamy sodas, in all the colors of the rainbow, and other cooling drinks, which were so quickly brought to them, and of which they were now leisurely sip, sip, sipping and as I looked I thought—

What a delight to the tired shopper, and the hurrying, scurrying businessman, those few minutes of rest and refreshment! And what a joy to the sports girl, and also but not least, to "Little Johnny."

And thus at the little white tables at the Soda Fountain, there is a place, and a soda for you!
