NEWS ABOUT HOME.

TOWN TOPICS.
If you want a first-class cooking stove, call on G. N. Davis variety. Also American and Canadian oil for family use. Having an experienced workman any house work will be done in the most satisfactory manner. Saunders has a fine stock of cooking stoves, he is sole agent for the "Forest King" heating stove. The only stove which gives universal satisfaction. Also sole agent for the "Osawa" stoves, the finest cook stoves in the world. "The cheapest house under the sun."
Mrs. Reynolds is visiting at Toronto.
Mr. W. Lasham has gone to reside at Bay City.
Mrs. Armstrong has been visiting at Cincinnati.
Miss John McDougall has gone to visit friends in Cornwall.
Miss A. Smith, of Clinton, has been visiting friends here during the week.
Mrs. Nolan has returned from a visit to her son-in-law, Capt. W. McGregor of Milwaukee.
The billing and cooing on the front door step will soon be a thing of the past.
A young lady coaxing a dog to follow her was one of the sights on the Square on Saturday last.
Mrs. A. B. McWilliams and her little daughter Edith are the guests of Mr. James Doyle, expressman.
Miss Rennet, niece of Mrs. Capt. Edwards, has returned, after a pleasant visit to New York and Brooklyn.
Mr. A. H. Manning of Clinton, is expected to occupy the pulpit of the Canada Methodist Church next Sabbath.
Mr. Henry Seemiller and family who have resided in Michigan for the last three years, have returned to Canada.
There must be some pharmaceutical attraction on Newgate St. all our drug-gists, save one, parade that street every day.
Mr. Chas. Noble, of Kingsbridge, visited our sanctuary on Monday, and complimented us on the goodheartedness of Mrs. Stora.
Mr. Alex. Kirkbride has bought from the C. C. Cameron, Esq., the lot on the facing on Kingston and Stanley streets, and is about opening a blacksmith shop thereon.
William Raines Oakley, poet and inventor, is in town. He has an original poem on Goderich, in which the imaginative and the practical are strikingly blended.
The powerful odor of a skunk assailed the nostrils of our citizens on Monday evening. A number of these beautiful animals still exist in this section. Few see them, but many smell them.
Mr. J. G. Ball returned from the Far West on Friday last, looking hale and hearty. His intentions are to dispose of his business here, and return to his new home. He is now advertising cheap furniture, etc., with that intent.
Rev. D. Allan and wife returned from the east on Saturday, where they have been spending the past few months. They were the greater part of the time at the seaside. Mr. Allan, though well up in years, still enjoys a good swim in the briny deep.
The services in connection with the Jubilee in the R. C. Church here, will commence on the third Sunday of October, and will be conducted by two Carmelite monks from Jersey City. Other clergymen from the different parishes will also assist.
Three fair maidens, over sweet thirty, perched on the business part of a fence on West street attracted attention from passers-by one day last week. They claimed that they were "resting" after the fashion of the young men around the Square.
A SAD RECORD.—The prop. Argyle is commanded by a son of Capt. Malcolmson, of the fondered prop. Columbia, the latter a cousin of our Mr. S. Malcolmson, barrister. He received the news of his father's fate on his arrival at Detroit. Capt. Malcolmson says that the drowning of his father and two brothers makes thirteen of the Malcolmson family who have perished in the waters of the great lakes in the last fifteen years.
RECEPTION SOCIAL.—A reception social will be held in the North St. Methodist church on the arrival of Dr. Williams from Europe. It is expected to be held on the evening of Thursday, Oct. 15th., at 7:30 o'clock. A reception address will be read, after which fruit, etc., will be served. An interesting programme, consisting of short addresses from the ministers and others of the town, and interspersed with music, will be presented. An enjoyable time is expected. Admission, adults, 15c, children 10c.
A GOOD OPERATOR.—We are pleased to learn that Mr. Charles Noble, who a few years ago was message boy with Mr. Harry Armstrong in the Montreal Telegraph Co., is now occupying an important position in the Western Union Telegraph Company's Office, in New York. About a year ago, while taking a difficult press report in Montreal, the manager of the company stood behind him unobserved, looking over his shoulder. The young operator took it in without a break, and the manager astonished and embarrassed him by exclaiming: "Well done; you're all right, my boy." Since then the more important position in New York has been given him. Mr. Armstrong says that there is a bright future before Charlie, as he is a first class operator, and a decent fellow.

THE FIERY TRIAL.
The Michigan Disaster Heavier Than is Generally Supposed.
Great Devotion, Notwithstanding Noble Responses From Many Generous Hearts.
"When I left there on Thursday last it looked worse than it did when I first entered the district just after the fire."
The speaker was a little man, with a light colored chin whisker. His eyes were blood-shot, and he looked like a man who had been "roughing it" for a few weeks.
It was Mr. E. M. Cady, of Port Huron, relief agent to the Michigan sufferers, who spoke in reply to a question asked by the writer as to how the burnt district looked when he left it.
"It's a mighty sight worse than people imagine," he continued, as he seized himself in the sanctum chair. "Twenty one townships are pretty cleanly swept. Here and there a house has escaped, but the destruction has been terrible."
Mr. Cady, who was introduced to the writer by Hon. John Hibbard, had been sent by the Relief Committee with supplies after the fire, and had traversed the entire region devastated by the flames in his good work. He spoke freely and with terrible earnestness, of the sad sights he had witnessed, and the stories of sorrow which had been told him. We have room only for some of the more striking things told us by the narrator, whose appearance gave evidence that he must have spent many weary days in the noble work of relief.
"The fire made a pretty clean sweep for about 65 miles north and south, and 30 to 35 miles east and west. There were small fires burning at various points in the district, but a tornado came along and swept the entire range in about two hours. Many houses and trees, I observed as I travelled through the desolated region, gave evidence of having been blown down before the fire touched them. The air in some places was full of roofs of houses, planks, etc., which were lifted up and borne for a considerable distance, sometimes all ablaze."
"It travelled very fast, didn't it, Cady?" asked the Hon. Mr. Hibbard.
"It went awfully quick," was the response. "You know Jenks, of Sand Beach?"
"Well, he was in Bad Axe, and there was no sign of fire very near; thirty minutes after he left the whole place was in a blaze and only the Court House escaped. Twenty minutes after he left Verona that place was all destroyed, save the big hotel, in which over seventy people assembled, almost scared out of their life. That mill owner at Verona and his wife had a narrow escape. They were lifted off their feet and planted in a corn field. Although midway, it was as dark as night. He had been through the fire of 1871, and crept back for a blanket and a pair of water. He and the hired man covered his wife and her sister with the blanket, and wet it by sprinkling water over it every little while. The men took turns in caring for the women, and rested by placing their faces to the ground and inhaling the fresh air. He lost all his lumber, houses, sawmill and seventeen horses."
"Were there many lives lost?" asked the writer.
"Some 273, I saw where twenty were buried in one day. Many persons were bearing the marks of the burns yet, and there are a number still in Minden Hospital."
At this juncture Mr. Samuel Pollock, who was in Bad Axe during the conflagration, put in an appearance, and confirmed Mr. Cady's description of the desolated tract.
"There has been about 2,000 farms destroyed," said Mr. Cady "and perhaps 6,000 buildings. The timber has been utterly ruined, and lumber is scarce. People are living almost anywhere now, and I tell you there were some fine farms and splendid houses there. Now there is not even a bit of green timber growing; not one fruit tree in a hundred, certainly, gives evidence of life. There has been a pretty clean wipe out. In three weeks I didn't see in the burnt region a chair, a table or any article of household furniture except one cupboard. We sent in a stove, plow, harrows and harness to every farmer, and are giving seed wheat to each one. The area of fall wheat sown there is larger than ever."
"Are all the people in houses yet?"
"No, but as fast as shanties can be built and lumber supplied they are getting under their own roof again. In one school house 104 people were huddled together for days, and they hadn't a dish amongst them. The number had dwindled down to 30 when I left. It was a splendid timber country, but I don't think there's much stuff for lumber left in it."
Mr. Cady is at present purchasing hay and other fodder for the sufferers. The hay will be packed, and forwarded in bales. He says that the people are still badly in need of bedding, blankets, etc., and that much suffering still exists. He says that many of the settlers are Canadians who have gone to Michigan since the fire of 1871.

SCHOOL BOARD.
Met on Monday evening last. Present, Messrs. Crabb, Passmore, Ferguson, Buchanan, Megaw, Swanson.
Report of Principal Miller was read showing attendance for the last month of about 405 boys and 381 were girls. Average attendance 967, per cent 75.
Continuing committee was authorized to have chimneys etc., in schools cleaned.
Sachet, Miss Ada Harris, was allowed to furnish substitute during her attendance at Normal School.
S. R. McDougall was allowed $5.25 for carrying water for central school.
John Sproule's account of $8.00 for plastering repairs on ward schools was ordered to be paid.
John Emerson was ordered to be paid $3.75 for plastering repairs on central school.
Account of S. R. McDougall, of $10.50 for cleaning schools and wells was referred to finance committee.
Account of M. C. Swanson for labor repairing roofs, bell tower, doors, steps and outhouses $24.57. Painting ward school roof, central school roof, and repairing flat roof, $22.50, total for labor, $76.22; for lumber, hardware, etc., $59.23; total for labor and material $135.45. This account was ordered to be paid. It was explained that the painting of the roofs cost 47 cents per square of 16 feet.
All the teachers excepting the Misses Sligh, Jamieson and Cassidy were ordered to be re-engaged.
A large Dominion map 4ft. 6in. x 9 ft., was ordered from Mr. George Shepard at $5.00.

That Lass o' Lowrie's,

A STORY OF THE LANCASHIRE COAL MINES.

By FRANCES HODGSON BURNETT.

CHAPTER VI.

"LOVE ME LOVE MY DOG."

Mr. Barholm had fallen into the habit of turning to Anice for it, when he required information concerning people and things. In her desultory pilgrimages, Anice saw all that he missed, and heard much that he was deaf to. The rough, hard-faced men and boisterous girls who passed to and from their work at the mine, drew her to the window whenever they made their appearance. She longed to know something definite of them—to get a little nearer to their unprepossessing life. Sometimes the men and women, passing, caught glimpses of her, and, asking each other who she was, decided upon her relationship to the family.

"Hoo's th' owd parson's lass," somebody said. "Hoo's noan so had lookin' neyther, if hoo was na sich a bit o' a thing."

It was so astonishing a thing that any outsider should think of interfering, and there was something so decided in the girlish voice addressing them, that almost at the moment the combatants fell back, panting heavily, breathing vengeance in true boy fashion, and evidently resenting the unexpected intrusion.

"What is it all about?" demanded the girl. "Tell me."

The crowd gathered close around her to stare, the terrier sat down breathless, his red tongue hanging out, his tail beating the ground. One of the boys was his master, it was plain at a glance, and, as a natural consequence, the dog had felt it his duty to assist to the full extent of his powers. But the other boy was the first to speak.

black currant eyes, resting unsteadily against the window-pane, a sore temptation to the juvenile populace.

It was in one of these side streets that Anice met with her first adventure.

Turning the corner, she heard the sharp yelp of a dog among a group of children, followed almost immediately by a ringing of loud, angry, boyish voices, a sound of blows and cries, and a violent scuffle. Anice paused for a few seconds, looking over the heads of the excited little crowd, and then made her way to it, and in a minute was in the heart of it. The two boys who were the principal figures, were fighting frantically, scuffling, kicking, biting, and laying on vigorous blows, with not unscientific fasts! Now and then a fierce, red, boyish face was to be seen, and then the rough head ducked and the fight waxed fiercer and hotter, while the dog—a small, shrewd, sharp-nosed terrier—barked at the combatants' heels, snapping at one pair, but not at the other, and plainly enjoying the excitement.

"Boys!" cried Anice. "What's the matter?"

"They're feighten," remarked a philosophical young bystander, with placid interest—"an' Jud Bates 'll win."

It was so astonishing a thing that any outsider should think of interfering, and there was something so decided in the girlish voice addressing them, that almost at the moment the combatants fell back, panting heavily, breathing vengeance in true boy fashion, and evidently resenting the unexpected intrusion.

"What is it all about?" demanded the girl. "Tell me."

"Wait a minute," said Anice, holding up her little gloved hand. "Who is Nib?"

"Nib's my dog," surlily. "An' them as punses him, hes gotten to punse me."

Anice bent down and patted the small animal.

"He seems a very nice dog," she said. "What did you kick him for?"

Nib's master was somewhat mollified. A person who could appreciate the virtues of "th' best terrier" Riggan, could not be regarded with contempt, or even indifference.

"He kicked him fur nowt," he answered. "He's allus at uther him or me. He bust my kite, an' he cribbed my marvles, didn't he?" appealing to the bystanders.

"Aye, he did, I seed him crib th' marvles mysen. He wur mad case Jud wur wimmen, and then kicked Nib."

Jud bent down to pat Nib himself, not without a touch of pride in his manifold injuries, and the readiness with which they were attested.

"Aye," he said, "an' I did na set on him at first neyther. I niver set on him till he punsed Nib. He may bust my kite, an' steal my marvles, an' he may ca' me ill names, but he shanna kick Nib. So there!"

Owd Sammy burst into a fresh chuckle rubbing his knees with both hands.

"Why," said he, "I'll warrant tha could na guess i' tha tried, but I'll gie thee a try. Who dost tha think wur out i' th' street just now i' th' thick of a feight among th' lads? I know thou'st niver guess."

"Nay, happen I canna, an' I dunnot know as I care so much, neyther," testily.

"Why," slapping his knee, "th' owd parson's lass. A little wench not much higher nor thy waist, an' wi' a bit o' a face loike skin-milk, but steady and full o' pluck as any owd un."

"Nay now, tha dost na say so? What wur she doin an' how did she come there? Tha mun ha' been dreamin'!"

"Nowt o' th' soart. I seed her as I see thee, an' heerd ivery word she said. Tha shouldst ha' seen her! Hoo med as if hoo'd lived wi' lads aw her days. Jud Bates and that young marplot o' Thorne's wur feightin' about Nib—at it tooth and nail—an' th' lass sees 'em, an' marches into th' thick, an' sets 'em to reets. Yo' should ha' seen her! an' hoo tells Jud as he's a good lad to tak' care o' his dog, an' hoo does na know but what hoo'd a fowt hersen i' his place, and hoo ca's Jack Thorne a coward, an' turns her back on him, an' ends up wi' tellin' Jud to bring th' terrier to th' Rectory to see her."

"Well," exclaimed Mrs. Craddock, "did yo' ivver hear th' loike?"

"I wish th' owd parson had seed her," chuckled her spouse irreverently. "That is na i' his loine. He'd a waved his stick as if he'd been king and council i' one, an' rated 'em fro' th' top round o' th' ladder. He canna get down fro' his herch. Th' owd lad'll stick their till he gets a bit too heavy, an' then he'll coom down wi' a crash, ladder an' aw—but th' lass is a different mak'."

negative form—and open enmity was rendered unnecessary, and even impolitic. A faint interest began to be awakened. When Anice passed through the streets, the slatternly, baby-laden women looked at her curiously, and in a manner not absolutely unfriendly. She might not be so bad after all, if she did have "Lunnon ways," and was smiled upon by Fortune. At any rate, she differed from the parson himself, which was in her favour.

CHAPTER V.

OUTSIDE THE HEDGE.

Deeply as Anice was interested in Joan, she left her to herself. She did not go to see her, and still more wisely she managed to hush in her father any awakening tendency towards parohial visits. But from Grace and Fergus Derrick she heard much of her, and through Grace she contrived to convey work and help to Liz, and encouragement to her protectress. From what source the assistance came, Joan did not know, and she was not prone to ask questions.

"If she asks, tell her it is from a girl like herself," Anice had said, and Joan had accepted the explanation.

In a very short time from the date of their first acquaintance, Fergus Derrick's position in the Barholm household had become established. He was the man to make friends and keep them. Mrs. Barholm grew fond of him; the rector regarded him as an acquisition to their circle, and Anice was his firm friend. So, being free to come and go, he came and went, and found his unceremonious visits pleasant enough. On his arrival at Riggan, he had not anticipated meeting with any such opportunities of enjoyment. As he had come to do hard work and had expected a hard life, softened by a few social graces. The work of opening the new mines was a heavy one, and was rendered additionally heavy and dangerous by unforeseen circumstances. A load of responsibility responsibility rested upon his shoulders, to which at times he felt himself barely equal, and which men of less tough fibre would have been glad to shift upon others. Naturally, his daily cares made his hours of relaxation all the more pleasant.

Mrs. Barholm's influence upon him was a gentle and soothing one, and in Anice he found a subtle inspiration. She seemed to understand his trials by instinct, and even the minutiae of his work made themselves curiously clear to her. As to the people who were under his control, she was never tired of hearing of them, and of studying their quaint, rough ways. To please her he stored up many a characteristic incident, and it was through him that she heard most frequently of Joan. She did not even see Joan for fully two months after her arrival in Riggan, and then it was Joan who came to her.

As the weather became more spring-like she was oftener out in the garden. She found a great deal to do among the flower beds and shrubbery, and as this had always been considered her department, she took the management of affairs wholly into her hands. The old place, which had been rather neglected in the time of the previous inhabitant, began to bloom out into fragrant luxuriance, and passing Rigganites regarding it with admiring eyes. The colliers who had noticed her at the window in the colder weather, seeing her so frequently from a nearer point of view, felt themselves on more familiar terms. Some of them even took a sort of liking to her, and gave her an uncouth greeting as they went by; and, more than once, one or another of them had paused to ask for a flower or two, and had received them with a curious bashful awe, when they had been passed over the holly hedge.

Having gone out one evening after dinner to gather flowers for the house, Anice, standing before a high lilac bush, and pulling its pale purple tassels, became suddenly conscious that some one was watching her—some one standing upon the roadside beyond the holly hedge. She did not know that as she stopped here and there to fill her basket, she had been singing to herself in a low tone. Her voice had attracted the passer-by.

This passer-by—a tall pit girl with a handsome, resolute face—stood behind the dark green hedge, and watched her. Perhaps to this girl, weary with her day's labour, begrimed with coal-dust, it was not unlike standing outside Paradise. Early in the year as it was, there were flowers enough in the beds, and among the shrubs, to make the spring air fresh with a faint, sweet odour. But here too was Anice in her soft white merino dress with her basket of flowers, with the blue bells at her belt, and her half audible song. She struck Joan Lowrie with a new sense of beauty and purity. As she watched her, she grew discontented—restless—sore at heart. She could not have told why, but she felt a certain anger against herself. She had had a hard day. Things had gone wrong at the pit's mouth: things had gone wrong at home. It was hard for her strong nature to bear with Liz's weakness. Her path was never smooth, but to-day it had been at its roughest. The little song fell upon her ear with strong pathos.

"She's ins to herself in theer's th' d loike the h she'd been b theer's no y than theer's. Then it wa and saw her singularly on was that ths cription mo her decision across the g ready smile. "She c that she That Joan L him as sh the fact life, he l advance self loof self aloof ing, and was all t as he w and he c Now an her a go he never such thi unlikely Usually

"She's inside o' th' hedge," she said to herself in a dull voice. "I'm outside, their's th' difference. It a'most looke like the hedge went aw' round an' she'd been born among th' flowers, and there's no way out for her—no more than there's a way in for me."

Then it was that Anice turned round and saw her. Their eyes met, and, singularly enough, Anice's first thought was that this was Joan. Derrick's description made her sure. There was not two such women in Eiggan. She made her decision in a moment. She stepped across the grass to the hedge with a ready smile.

"You were looking at my flowers, she said. Will you have some?" Joan hesitated.

"I often give them to people," said Anice, taking a handful from the basket and offering them to her across the holly. "When the men come home from the mines they often ask me for two or three and I think they like them even better than I do—though that is saying a great deal."

Joan held out her hand, and took the flowers, holding them awkwardly but with tenderness.

"Oh, thank yo'," she said. "It's kind o' yo' to gi' em away."

"It's a pleasure to me," said Anice, picking out a delicate pink hyacinth. "Here's a hyacinth." Then as Joan took it their eyes met. "Are you Joan Lowrie?" asked the girl.

Joan lifted her head.

"Aye," she answered, "I'm Joan Lowrie."

"Ah," said Anice, "then I am very glad."

They stood on the same level from that moment. Something as 'ndescribable as all else in her manner, had done for Anice just what she had simply and seriously desired to do. Proud and stubborn as her nature was, Joan was subdued. The girl's air and speech were like her song. She stood inside the hedge still, in her white dress among the flowers, looking just as much as if she had been born there as ever, but some fine part of her had crossed the boundary.

"Ah! then I am glad of that," she said.

"Yo' are very good to say as much," she answered; "but I dunnot know as I understand—"

Anice drew a little nearer.

"Mr. Grace has told me about you," she said. "And Mr. Derrick."

Joan's brown throat raised itself a trifle, and Anice thought colour showed itself on her cheek.

"Both on 'em's been good to me," she said, "but I did not think as—"

Anice stopped her with a little gesture. "It was you who were so kind to Liz when she had no friend," she began.

Joan interrupted her with sudden eagerness.

"It wur yo' as sent th' work and things for th' choild," she said.

"Yes, it was I," answered Anice.

"But I hardly knew what to send. I hope I sent th' right things, did I?"

"Yes, miss; thank yo'." And then in a lower voice, "They wur a power o' help to Liz an' me. Liz wur hard beset then, an' she's only a young thing as canna bear sora trouble. Seemed like that th' thowt that some un had helped her wur a comfort to her."

Anice took courage.

"Perhaps I might come and see her," she said. "May I come? I should like to see the baby. I am very fond of little children."

There was a moment's pause, and then Joan spoke awkwardly.

"Do yo' know—happen yo' dunnot—what Liz's trouble is? Bein' as yo're so young yo'ren, happen they did na tell yo all. Most o' toime folk is apt to be fond o' such loike as this little un o' hers."

"I heard all the story."

"Then come if yo' loike,—an' if they'll let yo', some ud think there wur harm i' th' choild's toech. I'm glad yo' dunna."

She did not linger much longer. Anice watched her till she was out of sight. An imposing figure she was—moving down the road in her rough masculine garb—the massive perfection of her form clearly outlined against the light. It seemed impossible that such a flower as this could blossom, and decay, and die out in such a life, without any higher fruition.

Joan hesitated.

"I often give them to people," said Anice, taking a handful from the basket and offering them to her across the holly.

When the men come home from the mines they often ask me for two or three and I think they like them even better than I do—though that is saying a great deal.

THE HURON SIGNAL

Published every Friday Morning, by Mc-GILLICUDDY BROS., at their Office, North St. (at the Square)

GODERICH, ONTARIO.

And is distributed in all parts of the surrounding country by the earliest mails and trains.

By general admission it has a larger circulation than any other newspaper in this part of the country, and is one of the most useful and most reliable journals in Ontario.

TERMS.—Eight cents per copy for first insertion; three cents per line for each subsequent insertion.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 7, 1881.

THE REFORM MEETINGS.

As stated in THE SIGNAL last week, a series of meetings will be held in this section by prominent members of the Reform party during the coming week.

The member for Centre Huron will arrive in Goderich on Saturday, October 8th, and be the guest of M. C. Cameron, Esq., M. P. for South Huron.

GODERICH TO LONDON.

The idea of a railway from London to Goderich has taken a firm hold of the London papers. The Free Press is particularly taken up with the scheme, and is advocating it in a vigorous and, we trust, effective manner.

By Thursday's mail we received a communication on the railway question from a prominent outside railway agitator, which we reproduce in another column.

There are hills beyond Pentland, And friths beyond Forth.

ANOTHER RAILWAY.

A Live Letter from an Old Campaigner.

And yet Another Line Heard From—The Credit Valley from Elora to Goderich.

DEAR SIR,—I have noticed in your last two issues of THE SIGNAL, reference to the necessity for additional railway facilities at Goderich.

The reason of this lack of interest may be accounted for, to a great extent, from the fact that no definite scheme has been laid before the people.

There is a scheme such as indicated, that I believe only requires taking hold of in the proper spirit to have it carried through to Goderich, within a very short time.

The Credit Valley charter does not at present extend farther than Elora, but it would be an easy matter for them to get it extended to Goderich at the first session of the Ontario Legislature.

The writer has been in correspondence with the C.V.R. officials for some time, and also with influential parties on the eastern part of the line indicated.

THE Clinton New Era has a crank. Week in and week out it pounds at Goderich. The people in the county town are, in the opinion of the New Era, a slow set.

THE Town Council, at the meeting on Friday evening, decided to submit a By-law to raise $50,000 for the construction of Water-works.

WEST HURON FALL SHOW.

Queen's Weather Prevailed—The Indoor Exhibit a Good One—A Run Through the Agricultural Hall—The Outside Show.

On Wednesday and Thursday last the fall exhibition, under the auspices of the West Riding of Huron Agricultural Society and the Goderich Horticultural Society, was held on the grounds of the latter, Victoria Street, and was eminently successful.

ON WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON the judging in the inside department was proceeded with, and it is not necessary to add that the decisions arrived at were subjected to the usual criticisms at the hands of the exhibitors and the general public.

There were some excellent thorough-breds shown, Mr. Snell bearing the palm in this class. He appears to have learnt the art of feeding to perfection, all his animals being as fat as could be desired.

VEGETABLES AND ROOTS. In this department there was an excellent display, and the appearance of the articles shown did not look as if much shrivelling had been their portion on account of the drought.

FLOWERS AND PLANTS. The annuals were more scarce than on previous occasions, but geraniums and foliage plants were in profusion. There was also a good show of cut flowers, principally from the gardens of John Stewart, E. Bingham, A. Watson, M. C. Cameron and W. McLean.

FRUIT. There was a splendid exhibit of apples, and fine varieties were shown by Messrs John Stewart, Jas Stewart, Jas. Torrance, John Hunter, Geo. Thompson, A. McD. Allan and others.

Quinces were shown by Mr. D. McIlwain and Col. A. M. Ross, and were among the best we have ever seen.

Indoor grapes were also shown by M. C. Cameron and A. M. Ross.

While there have been larger displays in this department, there has never been better work exhibited. The quality of many of the articles shown proved that fancy work is not a lost art with our ladies.

There was considerable competition in this department, the exhibitors being Morton & Cressman, T. & J. Story, Dunganon Carriage Works, and Brunsdon of Lonesboro'.

C. L. Reeve exhibited specimens of scroll work in the form of a centre table, a flower stand and mirror frame.

There was a very large one, which will appear in our next issue.

Mr. E. Dugming had on exhibition a large collection of boots and shoes.

He was successful in taking the three first prizes in his class, an award which secured to give general satisfaction.

There was a keen competition in grain, some splendid samples of the cereals being shown. The wheat exhibited was of splendid quality, and the whole exhibit reflected credit upon West Huron as a grain growing district.

The number of horses shown was very large, and the judges had hard work in making their decisions. The competition was close in the team class, the judges being almost bewildered by the entries.

There was a good show of fowl, as indeed there always is at this exhibition. One thing brought out by Thursday's show was the need of a larger ground. The sooner the directors face the question the better. The present ground is too small for a satisfactory exhibition.

THE PRIZE LIST, which is a very large one, will appear in our next issue.

THE Toronto Telegram says:—Mr. Blake is said to have retired from active practice, and has handed all his briefs over to his brother. This is a great sacrifice for a man in his position to make.

Two children, sons of Mr. Robert Trend, of Bangor, had a narrow escape from being killed by bears. The little fellows had gone into the woods in search of some stray cattle, when they came upon a cub eating beech-nuts and it immediately faced them.

TOUCHING TRIBUTE.

To the Character of the Late President Garfield.

Rev. Dr. Dr.'s Striking Discourse on Sunday Evening.

On Sunday evening last, in Knox Church, Rev. Dr. Dr., in the course of his sermon, paid a glowing tribute to the late President Garfield.

The text was Genesis xii. 1. The subject temptation by God—temptation not in the sense of solicitation to sin, but in that of trial or probation.

The circumstances connected with his death formed a severe trial to his own faith, but the trial was not his only. His death, together with his sinister cause and melancholy incidents, was peculiarly fitted to test the faith of all.

There was a good show of fowl, as indeed there always is at this exhibition. One thing brought out by Thursday's show was the need of a larger ground. The sooner the directors face the question the better. The present ground is too small for a satisfactory exhibition.

High prices have made the market lively, and heavy deliveries have been made at our quotations. Last week Goderich led by a couple of cents every other market.

STAND PROM UNDER. Currie's third annual sale of Horses, Cattle, Sheep, Farm Implements, &c., will be held at the Agricultural Show Grounds, opposite Bailey's Hotel in the Town of Goderich, on SATURDAY, 15th OCTOBER, 1881.

IN THE COUNTY COURT OF THE COUNTY OF HURON, in the matter of SUNDERCOCK VS. BRUNSDEN Pursuant to an order of the Judge of this court made in this cause, bearing date the 5th day of October A.D. 1881, and in pursuance of a subpoena issued by me in this behalf, I hereby notify all parties having any liens, charges or encumbrances on the whole or any part of the number, to be and to appear before me at the court house in the town of Goderich, on the 31st day of October, A.D. 1881, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any, why the said charges and encumbrances, together with satisfactory evidence of the same, should not be discharged. Dated at Goderich, in the County of Huron, this 5th day of October, A.D. 1881. D. McJONALD, C. C. H.

Portrait of Garfield, Size of Sheet, 10x24. With his Autograph, acknowledged by himself to be the best likeness in existence. $7.00 per hundred. Single copies, 35 cents. Copy of Autograph Letter given with each picture. Address, Shober & Corqueville Litho. Co., 119 Monroe St., Chicago.

Public school opened on Tuesday morning.

The school opened on Tuesday morning, and the children were very happy to see their teachers.

PRESENTATION.—A short time ago the pupils of the Sunday School class taught by Mrs. Robt. Armstrong, presented her with some splendidly bound books, and a handsome photograph of the class. Mrs. Armstrong we understand, was very popular with her class,
and is a devoted Sunday school worker.

Benmiller.
PUBLIC SCHOOL OPENING.—The new school at Benmiller will be formally opened on Saturday, Oct. 8th. An entertainment will be held in the building in the evening, beginning at 7.30 sharp, when addresses will be delivered by gentlemen from Goderich, and others from the section. Music will enliven the proceedings. There will be no admittance fee, and the ratepayers of the section and the public generally are cordially invited.

Etal.
Revival services were commenced last week in the Methodist Church by Revs.
Harris and Jamieson.
The trustees have engaged the services of John W. Shaw, of Brussels, as their teacher for 1882. Mr. Shaw bears the name of being an excellent teacher, and will no doubt succeed well as Mr. Leishman's successor.
John Ober has returned from Michigan where he went to ascertain how his brother and family had fared during the large fire. Mr. Ober found his relatives alive and well although suffering the loss of all their earthly goods. He says in some places heaps of bones mark the place where droves of cattle crowded together and perished in the flames.

McKillop.
FARM SOLD.—Mr. Thomas Ryan, of lot 15, con. 3, McKillop, sold his farm containing fifty acres to Timothy Ryan for the sum of $2,400.
FARM PURCHASED.—Mr. Hugh Mowbray has purchased the farm of Mr. W.
J. Skimming, on the 8th concession of McKillop, for the sum of $2,900 cash.
The farm contains 50 acres and adjoins
Mr. Mowbray's present farm. This will make one of the best 100 acre farms in this section of McKillop.
ACCIDENT.—On Thursday of last week
Mrs. Brown, mother of Mr. John S.
Brown, of McKillop, met with a very severe and painful accident. She slipped and fell at the foot of the stairs in her son's house, with whom she resides, and fractured her thigh bone. She is a lady of about 55 years of age, and the unfortunate accident will be all the more severe on her on account of her age.

Belfast.
RETURNED.—Mr. Joseph Phillips, who for the past few months has been in the county of Grey, returned on Saturday last.
REMOVED.—Mrs. Clifton removed from here last week, and has taken up her abode in Wawanosh, about three miles east of Lucknow.
SCHOLASTIC.—We have had a change of teachers in our school lately. Mr. R.
D. Cameron has taken the place of Mr.
John Elliot, who has taught here during the last three years, giving general satisfaction.
CRUELTY.—On Monday evening two young men were driving along the gravel road south of Belfast in a buggy, and not being satisfied with the speed of the animal, one of them got out on the road and applied the whip vigorously, while the other remained in the buggy holding the reins. After amusing themselves in this way for some time they drove off, leaving in the minds of the spectators of the scene a much lessened opinion of them.

THE BEST REMEDY
FOR
Diseases of the Throat and Lungs.
AYER'S
CHERRY
PECTORAL.
In diseases of the
pulmonary organs,
a safe and reliable
remedy is invaluable. AYER'S
CHERRY PECTORAL
is such a remedy.
It is a scientific combination of the medicinal principles and curative
virtues of the finest drugs, chemically
united, of such power as to insure
the greatest possible efficiency, and uniformity of results. It strikes at the foundation of all
pulmonary diseases,
affording prompt relief and rapid cures,
and is adapted to patients of any age or either sex. Being very palatable, the youngest children take it readily. In ordinary Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Bronchitis, Influenza, Clergymen's Sore Throat, Asthma, Croup, and Catarrh, the effects of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL are magical, and multitudes are annually preserved from serious illness by its timely and faithful use. It should be kept at hand in every household for the protection it affords in sudden attacks. In Whooping-cough and Consumption there is no other remedy
so efficacious, soothing, and helpful.
Low prices are inducements to try some of the many mixtures or syrups, made of cheap and ineffective ingredients, now offered, which, as they contain no curative qualities, can afford only temporary relief, and are sure to disappoint the patient. Diseases of the throat and lungs demand active and effective treatment; and it is dangerous experimenting with unknown and cheap medicines, from the great liability that these diseases may, while so trifled with, become deeply seated or incurable. Use AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and you may confidently expect the best results.
It is of acknowledged curative power,
and is as cheap as its careful preparation and fine ingredients will allow. Emulment physicians, knowing its composition, prescribe it. The test of half a century has proven its certainty to cure all pulmonary complaints not already beyond the reach of human aid.

The Fashions.

Silver gray is revived as a fashionable dress color. Plainly made dresses are again worn by a select few. Boots now take the place of shoes for promenade wear.

As usual, this county has many prize winners at the Provincial Exhibition.

Help for the Michigan Seafarers.

The following appeal from Mayor Carleton, of Port Huron, shows the condition of affairs at present: PORT HURON, Mich., Sept. 27. To the People of the Province of Canada. We are glad to announce that we have all the clothing we need. Bedding, underwear, provisions, grass and clover seed, linens, table ware and money are imperatively needed. Our cash receipts up to noon to-day are $121,000. The donations have been generous and timely, but the needs are great.

Household Hints.

APPLES IN JELLY.—Pare and core small-sized apples without cutting open; then put them, with some lemons, in water to cover, let boil slowly, until tender, and take out carefully, without breaking; make a syrup of half a pound white sugar to a pound of apples; cut lemons in slices and put them and the apples into syrup; boil very slowly until the apples are clear, take them out in a deep glass dish; put to the syrup an ounce of isinglass dissolved, let it boil up, lay a slice of lemon on each apple, and strain the syrup over them.

Those Big Words.

Talking about medical terms, a reputed editor of a Chatham paper displays a wonderful knowledge in the following: "Medical anxiety, as to the President, had culminated in the fear, in which we own we shared, that puerile symptoms might be followed by Puerilethymia, so often a concomitant of diseases of the glandular system."

Fun and Fanny.

The editor of a local paper was asked by a stranger if it was possible the little town kept up three newspapers. And the reply was, "No; it takes three newspapers to keep up the town."

An old man who had been badly hurt in a railroad collision, being advised to sue the company for damages, said, "Well, no, not for damages, I've had enough of them; but I'll sue 'em for repairs."

A Bradford girl cleared the space around thirteen ears of green corn at one meal, the other day, and picking her teeth with a hairpin, observed, "If ever I get well enough again to eat much, I think I could live on corn."

A lady at a watering place was trying to attract a great deal of attention at the table, and her manner was none of the finest. An old-fashioned gentleman quietly remarked, "Some people give it all away. Now, I can tell by the way that woman eats asparagus that she used to hold clothes' pins in her mouth when she was hanging out her week's washing."

A quick answer is like the sharp cut of whip. "You are no gentleman, sir," said an irate individual to the person next to him. "Are you a gentleman yourself?" was the sneering inquiry. "I am, sir," was the reply, in a tone which implied a duel if any doubt was expressed. "Then you are quite right in saying that I am not one," retorted the party of the second part, "neither do I wish to become one."

Words of Wisdom.

To understand the world is wiser than to condemn it; to study the world is better than to shun it; to use the world is nobler than to abuse it; to make the world better, lovelier, and happier is the highest work of man.

It is easy to tell when others are flattered, but not when we ourselves are, and every man and woman will lend firm belief to the soft nothings of the very man they believe to be an arrant flatterer, when others are in the case.

Never did any soul do good but it came readier to do the same thing again, with more enjoyment. Never was love or gratitude or bounty practised, but with increasing joy, which made the practicer still more in love with the fair act.

SWEARING.—We are sorry to know that many young men and boys in town have learned the abominable habit of intermixing their conversation with oaths. Some of the heads-ached among them do not doubt think it is mainly to swear. They feel themselves an inch taller and more important after firing off a round of oaths.

2. Devote eight hours out of the twenty-four to sleep. If a mother is robbed of sleep by a wakeful baby, she must take a nap some time during the day. Even ten minutes of repose strengthens and does one good like "a medicine." Children should be allowed to sleep until they awake of their own free will.

3. Never go out to work in early morning in any locality subject to damps, fogs, and miasms, with an empty stomach. If there is not time to wait for a cup of coffee, pour two-thirds of a cup of boiling water on two tablespoonfuls of cream or a beaten egg. Season it with salt and pepper and drink it while hot before going out. This will stimulate and comfort the stomach, and aid the system in resisting a poisonous and debilitating atmosphere.

4. Avoid over-eating. To rise from the table able to eat a little more is a proverbially good rule for every one. There is nothing more idiotic than forcing down a few mouthfuls, because they happen to remain on one's plate after hunger is satisfied and because they may be "wasted" if left! It is the most serious waste to over-tax the stomach with even half an ounce more than it can take care of.

RAILWAY COLLISION

Between an Excursion and Freight Train—The Penalty of Going Against Orders.

ATYMER, Ont., Sept. 29.—The 9:25 a. m. excursion train from here to the Exhibition at London collided with a freight train at Orwell, 24 miles from here. There is so much excitement and so many conflicting rumors are flying that it is impossible to get full particulars. The following appear to be the facts:

The excursion train had orders to meet the freight here, but being ten minutes ahead of time the conductor went on, intending to meet the freight at Orwell. The collision occurred on a straight piece of road where the view is uninterrupted for two or three miles. The driver of the freight appears to have seen the other train and was nearly stopped, but the driver of the excursion train did not see the freight and kept on at full speed. The passenger train consisted of nine coaches and five of them were completely wrecked. Five persons are known to be killed and several others are missing, who are thought to be buried in the wreck. About twenty are severely wounded and a great many slightly.

THE DEAD are Willie Cook, of Aylmer, W. Ainsley and his son, the driver and fireman of the excursion train, of St. Thomas, and two young men, names as yet unknown, from Aylmer. Ainsley and his son are still under the wreck of the engines. The dead will be brought here this afternoon, and an inquest will be held. The driver of the freight jumped from the engine and alighted all right, but was severely wounded by the flying debris. Frank Morrison and Enoch Stanley, of this place, were severely wounded. Detective Clayton, Wm. Warnock, J. Glover, Geo. Harrison and W. Carron, of this place, were slightly injured.

Wheat Harvesting.

Wheat cut early avoids waste from shelling and makes whiter flour, but the flour from early cut wheat contains more starch in proportion to the gluten than the flour from wheat cut after it is fully ripe. The microscope shows that the starch and gluten are not formed in the grain at precisely the same period; the starch cells in the interior of the kernel are filled with starch granules some days before the gluten cells, next the bran, are quite full. Hence, wheat allowed to get as ripe as possible to avoid waste, makes not whiter, but better, because more glutinous flour than that from wheat cut early. The rather common practice of allowing wheat to stand in the shock until time to thrash, has perhaps the advantage of saving once handling, but if it remains in the field until one kernel in a hundred gets sprouted, irreparable mischief is done to the flour. Wheat taken from the field and stored in the barn, or well-made stack, as soon as it is dry, will pass through a process called "sweating in the straw," which leaves the grain sweeter and much freer from mustiness, than if it passes through this sweating process in the granary.—American Agriculturist for October.

A series of recent assaults by a man named John Berry, 55 years of age, of Guelph, upon four girls, whose ages range from 12 to 15 years, has just come to light. The names of the victims are Annie Fisher, aged 14; Alice Large, aged 12 and Lizzie Griffin, aged 12 years, of Guelph; and Sophia McBride, aged 15, of Galt. So thoroughly had the sounder frightened his victims, that for two months or more these vile practices have been going on, and the knowledge of the facts was at last gained through an outside party.

Dr. Carson never claimed for his Stomach and Constipation Bitters any MIRACULOUS POWER OF HEALING, but with the quiet consciousness of the medicinal virtues he prescribes them to all those who suffer from any derangement of the Stomach, Bowels, Liver and Kidneys. In large 8 oz. bottles at 50 cents. George Rhynas special agent for Goderich.

ARE YOU? Are you a Dyspeptic? Have you Indigestion? Is your Liver sluggish? Does your food trouble you? Does sleep fail to refresh you? Is your appetite and energy gone? ZEPERA (from Brazil) will cure you, tone you up, and invigorate your whole system. It is a gentle purgative, acts as a wonder upon, and gives strength and energy to the Digestive apparatus. It is strongly antibilious, carries off all surplus bile, tones the Liver, gives sound Digestion and speedy health to the Dyspeptic and the Bilious. Try a 10 cent sample at least.

General Stamped.

Never was there such a rush for Drug Stores as is now at ours for a Trial Bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. All persons afflicted with Asthma, Bronchitis, Hoarseness, Severe Coughs, or any affection of the Throat and Lungs, can get a trial bottle of this great remedy free, by calling at your drug store.

Nature, after all, is the great physician. She hides all the secrets of health within her broad, generous bosom, and man needs but to go to her intelligently for his every need. The discovery of the great Cough Remedy, GRAY'S SWEET or KIDNEY PILLS, is an apt illustration of this. As a cure for Coughs, Colds, Loss of Voice and Hoarseness it stands unrivalled, while its low price and readiness of access places it within the reach of all. Try it and be convinced. All chemists keep it in 25 and 50-cent bottles.—ad

EPPE'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of Digestion and Nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Eppe has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctor's bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.—Sold only in Packets labelled—"EPPE'S COCOA."—Also makers of Eppe's Chocolate Essence for afternoon use. 1761

Major-General Jarvis, of the British Army, who, it is stated, will be successor to Major-General Luard as Commander of the Volunteer force of Canada, is of a well-known Toronto family. According to Har's Army List for 1881, Samuel Peters Jarvis received his commission the 14th June, 1846; promoted Lieutenant 15 January, 1847; captain, 21st September, 1852; major, 26th April, 1859; lieutenant-colonel, 4th June, 1875; colonel, 7th June, 1875. The date of his promotion to Major-General is not given. Major-General Jarvis served with the 82 Regiment throughout the Indian campaign in '57-'59; was in temporary command of three companies during the relief of Lucknow by Lord Clyde; was present at the defeat of the Gwalior contingent at Cawnpore; was in the action of Khodagungee, and at the occupation of Futteghur; was present at the capture of Baselli, relief of Shahjehpore jail, and took part in the action of Khanpur. In 1870 he commanded a battalion of Canadian riflemen in the Red River Expedition.

Should some fanatic or fool take the life of General Arthur, or should he die by any means, the Government of the United States would be without a head. The constitutional temporary succession would devolve upon the presiding officer of the Senate and then upon the Speaker of the House of Representatives, both of which officers are now vacant.

As a Family Medicine Dr. Carson's Stomach and Constipation Bitters are rapidly taking the place of pills, they are equally effectual, do not gripe, weaken, or produce nausea and are purely vegetable. In large 8 oz. bottles at 50 cents. George Rhynas special agent for Goderich.

NEWSPAPER LAWS. We call the special attention of postmasters and subscribers to the following synopsis of the newspaper laws: 1. A postmaster is required to give notice by letter (returning a paper does not answer the law) when a subscriber does not take his paper out of the office, and state the reasons for its not being taken. Any neglect to do so makes the postmaster responsible to the publishers for payment. 2. If any person orders his paper discontinued, he must pay all arrears, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made, and collect the whole amount, whether it be taken from the office or not. There can be no legal discontinuance until the payment is made. 3. Any person who takes a paper from the post-office, whether directed to his name or another, or whether he has subscribed or not, is responsible for the paper.

4. If a subscriber orders his paper to be stopped at a certain time, and the publisher continues to send, the subscriber is bound to pay for it if he takes it out of the post-office. This proceeds upon the ground that a man must pay for what he uses. 5. The courts have decided that refusing to take a newspaper and periodicals from the post-office, or removing and leaving them uncalled for, is prima facie evidence of intentional fraud.
