Which Was The Heir?

CHAPTER XLIII.

YIELD her to me for a moment, Geoffrey,' he said. 'My dear young lady, the man you have promised to marry, the man you have known as Geoffrey Bell, is Geoffrey Bassington, clearly proved, subject to certain formalities, which no doubt Mr. Oldham will see to, to be the heir to my titles and estates. By a strange concatenation of circumstances, I am this day provided not only with an heir of whom I approve—he bowed to Geoffrey—but with a niece, whose beauty and grace I freely and frankly acknowledge. If any person of this group has cause to be satisfied, I humbly think it is myself. At any rate, I get rid of a certain humbug which has ridden rather heavily upon my shoulders—I allude to the person called Sidney Bassington, with whom Fate has been pleased to plague me for some time past. He was a terrible nightmare; I admit it. But we will dispose of him with a suitable allowance and honorarium. I have made several additions to the picture gallery lately, Miss Rasleigh. Will you honour me by inspecting them? These young people are best left alone.'

He extended his hand with courtly grace and led Eva out of the room. Geoffrey and Cottie fell into each other's arms.

CHAPTER XLIV.

THE best thing I can do is to blow my brains out or take a dose of prussic acid,' Sidney Bassington muttered to himself as he hurried to the station, his knees trembling under him, his slow forehead bedewed with a cold sweat. He was in as miserable a plight as could be well conceived, and his misery was increased with the reflection which nagged at him persistently, that if he had remembered and acted up to the old adage, "Honesty is the best of policy," he might at least have saved something from the ruin of his hopes, might have retained his position as a member of the great Starborough family, and—who knows?—perhaps have married Eva Rasleigh, for the earl had proved himself a liberal minded man, and out of compassion for Sidney Bassington's disappointment, would very probably have made him a large and suitable allowance.

But, like all villains, large or small, Sidney had smashed every egg in his basket, had cut the ground completely from under his feet, and sawn off the branch upon which he was sitting, at the wrong end.

He knew that the agreement that he had given Lane had been found in the pocket-book with the certificates, and that the agreement would reveal his villainy to the earl.

Then, again, most awful to contemplate! Rachel, whom he had deceived and betrayed, proved to be Lane's daughter. If Lane recovered, as he might do—for such a man had as

A BROKEN-DOWN SYSTEM.
This is a condition (for disease) to which doctors give many names, but which few of them really understand. It is simply weakness—a breakdown, a failure of the vital forces that sustain the system. No matter what may be its cause (for they are almost numberless), its symptoms are such as the more prominent being, sleeplessness, loss of appetite or weakness, depression of spirits and want of energy for all the ordinary duties of life. Now, what alone is absolutely essential to all such cases is increased vitality.

VITAL STRENGTH & ENERGY to throw off these morbid feelings, and experience proves that as night succeeds the day this may be more certainly secured by a course of the celebrated life-restoring tonic.

THERAPION No. 3
than by any other known combination. So surely as it is taken in accordance with the printed directions accompanying it, will the shattered health be restored.

THE EXPIRING LAMP OF LIFE LIGHTED UP AFRESH.
and a new system imparted in place of what had so far been a broken-down one, and a valuable. This wonderful remedy is purely vegetable and non-toxic, is agreeable to the taste, suitable for all constitutions and conditions, in either sex, and it is found to be a case of disease or debility, when its main features are those of vitality, that will not be cured by any other remedy, but by this tonic. It is a restorative essence, which is directed to cast into oblivion everything that had preceded it, for the depressed and ungenerous life of human ailments.

THERAPION
is sold by Chemists throughout the world. Price in England, 2/6 and 4/6. Purchasers should see that the word "THERAPION" appears on the label. It is also sold in every country by the name of "THERAPION'S" and is the only one that has the word "THERAPION" on the label. It is the only one that has the word "THERAPION" on the label.

THERAPION may now also be obtained in Dragee (Tasteless) form.

many lives as a cat—he would doubtless hunt Sidney down and compel him to marry Rachel.

He shuddered at the idea. Rather than marry Rachel, whom he had begun to hate, he would—well, there was scarcely anything he would not do.

When he had left Starborough a few days ago he had intended going down to her; but he had got us far from London, and had saved his conscience, and softened his conscience, and then to her by sending her a costly present of jewels.

He gnashed his teeth as he thought of those jewels; and as the train sped on its way he thought, with the regret of a mean soul, of many similar gifts he had bestowed upon her. Why, he must have given her many thousand pounds' worth of jewels! And then it suddenly flashed upon him that he himself had very little money left. Scarcely enough to take him out of the country; and there was nothing left for him to do but to take flight. Those jewels stuck in his throat, so to speak; and presently an idea began to form in his mind. Would it not be possible to get possession of them? There was no other way of getting money that he could see, and money he must have. But for that cursed agreement he could appeal to the earl; but with that agreement in existence, and with the earl fully acquainted with Sidney's villainy, he knew that no appeal would be of any use. Lord Starborough was just the man not only to cast him off, but to punish him. His lordship would not mind the scandal; would be utterly indifferent to it. And then there was Lane! Oh, yes, he must leave the country. But those jewels!

Where the carrion is there also are the vultures. He reached Brighton at nightfall and slunk towards his rooms, very much as Lane had slunk from the town some days previously. 'Yes, Mrs. Richards is at home, sir,' said the maid, eying him curiously—for Sidney had had no time to change his clothes or even wash himself, and he looked seedy and very different to the dapper and rather overdressed gentleman he had appeared when she had at last seen him. The rain that had swept down upon him had broken off the veneer, and he looked like a shabby and out-at-elbows adventurer. 'Madame is upstairs; she doesn't seem to be very well, and she's scarcely left the house since you've been away.' Sidney went upstairs slowly, thinking of what he should say, wondering what and how much Rachel knew of his position. She was lying on the sofa; a half-emptied bottle of champagne was on the table, and there was an odour of eau-de-cologne and one of the drugs to which woman are, nowadays, all too ready to fly when their nerves are overstrained or they are in trouble. She raised her head, and, seeing who it was, started to her feet. Her red hair was dishevelled, her face was pale and her eyelids swollen, and she looked half-dazed from the results of the champagne or the drug—perhaps both.

in a low but shrill voice, a voice all edge. 'You've come back at last. It's well you have, for I was just coming after you. Where have you been—and what have you been doing?' she added, regarding his haggard, and by no means too clean, face with suspicion and aversion.

'I've been to Starborough,' he said. 'There's trouble, Rachel—I am afraid my uncle has discovered our marriage. You are not looking well. Have you been ill?'

'Our marriage!' she echoed, ignoring his question. 'I want to speak to you about that. I want my marriage-certificate.'

'Your marriage-certificate?' he faltered, avoiding the steady, suspicious stare of her lack-lustre eyes. 'What do you want that for? You've got it, haven't you?'

'You know I haven't,' she retorted, with suppressed passion. 'You took it from me the day we were married.'

'Did I?' he said, with affected ease. 'Then I've got it somewhere about; I don't quite know where at this moment. What are you worrying about our marriage for? I tell you we are in trouble.'

'I don't care about your trouble,' she said, her hands working at her side, her eyes growing brighter with her gathering fury. 'I want you to tell me about our marriage, all about it. I want you to explain; and explain you shall! I've seen someone no matter who—and he said something, told me something that makes me think everything wasn't right, that there was something wrong about our marriage.' Sidney affected an air of surprise, raised his eyebrows, and shrugged his shoulders, and laughed with an assumption of easy banter.

'My dear girl, you are ill and fanciful,' he said. 'What should be wrong with our marriage? We were married by a clergyman in the proper way. You agreed with me that it was better that we shouldn't go to a registrar; in fact, you managed the whole matter as much as I did. If it wasn't for our marriage I shouldn't have got into this trouble. Who's been saying anything?' He eyed her sideways and keenly.

The Evening Chit-Chat
By RUTH CAMERON

"Will you kindly tell a girl who has never been entertained very much until recently, and who does not wish to display her ignorance by asking her friends, something about the etiquette of dining in a cafe?"

Of course, I will gladly tell her anything that I know about, and as the two specific questions that she propounds are very simple, I guess they come under that heading.

The first is, "In a party of two or more at a cafe or other public place, does each one give the waiter his order, or does the one who has invited the party order for all?"

Usually the person who has invited the party gives the order for all, after having consulted his guests as to their preferences.

Her second question is, "In ordering where dinner is served in courses, do you order one course at a time, or all at once?"

There is no hard and fast rule about that. Most persons order oysters and soup and perhaps the fish course, and then decide on the latter courses while these are being brought.

I don't often talk on the subject of etiquette, so while I'm on this topic I am going to make bold to offer one or two little etiquette reminders that may not come amiss.

"When is it etiquette for a man to take a woman's arm?" I heard asked the other day.

Never.

A man should never take a woman's arm. He should offer her his.

And it is not etiquette for him to do this in the daytime unless the woman be old or infirm. At night he may offer her his arm, although even then it is quite as good taste not to. As for the habit of perpetually guiding women about by the elbow, which so many men have, I think it is abominable, and any woman is justified in resenting it.

A good many men, I have noticed, step back and allow the woman to leave the car before them. That is very bad form. A man should always get out of the car first and then offer his hand to help his companion out.

That a man should not smoke when walking with a woman on the street is a rule that I suppose most men know, even if, knowing the right, they still occasionally pursue the wrong. But there is one rule of smoking etiquette that it seems to me cannot be fully understood, it is so generally disregarded, and that is the rule that it is extremely impolite for a man to talk to a woman with a cigar, pipe or cigarette in his mouth.

I stood in front of the finest hotel in this city the other day, and saw a man dressed in the extreme of fashion—tall silk hat and clothes of the very latest cut—hand a fine lady into a very magnificently appointed automobile, with a very gracious and lordly manner, and then climb in and sit beside her, chatting with her, while a cigar tilted from the corner of his mouth.

I fancy that man would have hooted at the bare idea of his needing any hints on etiquette. And yet—

If all these little reminders are entirely unnecessary, please just forget them.

If not, you are welcome.

Women's Secrets

There is one man in the United States who has perhaps heard more women's secrets than any other man or woman in the country. These secrets are not secrets of guilt or shame, but the secrets of suffering, and they have been confided to Dr. R. V. Pierce in the hope and expectation of advice and help. That few of these women have been disappointed in their expectations is proved by the fact that ninety-eight per cent. of all women treated by Dr. Pierce have been absolutely and altogether cured. Such a record would be remarkable if the cases treated were numbered by hundreds only. But when that record applies to the treatment of more than half-a-million women, in a practice of over 40 years, it is phenomenal, and entitles Dr. Pierce to the gratitude accorded him by women, as the first of specialists in the treatment of women's diseases.

Every sick woman may consult Dr. Pierce by letter, absolutely without charge. All replies are mailed, sealed in perfectly plain envelopes, without any printing or advertising whatever, upon them. Write without fear as without fee, to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, Pres., Buffalo, N. Y.

HOUSEHOLD NOTES.

A delicious salad dressing is made by combining mayonnaise to the boiled dressing, equal parts of each being used.

Brittle finger nails indicate a lack of oil: eat more olive oil and butter, and rub vaseline every night on the nails.

A good mixture to set color in cotton materials is one tablespoonful of turpentine, a handful of salt and a pail of cold water.

When glossy colored straw hats look dusty and off-color, brush them over with a solution of varnish of equal parts of shellac and alcohol.

When next cooking figs to use for dessert, add half a lemon and a small stick of cinnamon. The change in flavor will be found very tasty.

When hats have become grayish and shabby, they can be brightened by rubbing over them a flannel sprinkled with a few drops of kerosene.

If the enamel inside a rusty teakettle is not cracked, it may be thoroughly cleaned by putting in soda and cold water and bringing to boil.

When serving any of the rich cheeses like Brie Gorgonzola, or Rochefort, many hostesses now pass cream, cheese or some milder cheese with it.

Five cents worth of tartar emetic mixed with an equal amount of sugar, moistened and put in small dishes, where the ants are will drive them away.

Shrink and set color of children's garments before making up. They soil so easily that it is not worth while to run risks by waiting until afterwards.

Have you tried cheeseballs rolled in egg and bread crumbs and fried in boiled fat? They are delicious when served with lettuce hearts and Virginia ham.

Put a little borax in the water in which you will wash table covers, doilies, towels, etc., having red borders, as the borax keeps the red clear and bright.

The secret of boiling rice is to put the rice into water that is boiling, and to use an abundance of water. Then the result will be each grain standing separate.

Fur coats should be packed on their hangers; it is a mistake to put them back in their boxes. Don't use a wool padded hanger; a stout wire or wooden one is best.

When a sailor hat is cleaned with soap and water, it looks yellowish, but this effect is removed by a solution of oxalic acid brushed over it with an oil toothbrush.

For a bad case of sunburn, when the skin burns and smart, use a cream made of one ounce of benzoated oxide of zinc ointment and two drams of spirit of camphor.

To clean rusty curtain pins, drop them into a little water which has a generous addition of ammonia and leave for fifteen minutes. The change in appearance is most gratifying.

When blacking a stove that has been discolored by overheating try rubbing well with vinegar before blacking. The polish will remain brighter much longer than otherwise.

Tom Maher Doing Well

Mr. W. Sclater had a letter from T. A. Maher by last mail. Tom is residing at a place called Hawthorne, in Nevada, and when he wrote was out in the mountains with his brother camping. They had located a silver vein which they expected would turn out well. They have also a gold claim and a copper proposition in another part of Nevada. Tom spoke particularly about the comet which at the time of writing presented a splendid appearance over their camp every night.

Last night at 8.30 a man very much under the influence of drink passed under Barter's Hill, and speaking to several passers-by asked if he was not on the road for Blackhead where he said he had friends. He had a large flask of liquor in his pocket, and it was possibly well for him he had not taken the Blackhead Road or he might have fallen and succumbed to an overdose of alcohol.

Valuable Find of Silver.

Workmen Employed by Railway Contractors Made the Discovery. Port William, June 2.—A vein of silver samples which assay $1,500 to the ton has been discovered in a rock quarry property of Stewart and Hewitson, the Port Arthur contractors, about half way between that city and Port William. The discovery was made by workmen who called the firm's attention to the rich mineral formation in the diabase rock. The silver was found fifteen feet below the surface in pockets, and with a definite vein leading to a large tract of quarry belonging to the same firm.

The Magistrate's Court was crowded this morning to hear the trials of a resident of Thorburn Road, a hope beer case, and a resident of Duckworth Street for sheepstealing. England Grows Richer. People, Trade, Income, Ships, All Increased in Edward's Reign. The story of England's material progress during King Edward's brief reign is told in colossal figures. The imports of the Kingdom, which, at the close of last century stood at $2,600,000,000, last year totalled $3,100,000,000, or an increase of 20 per cent. Exports in the same time gained $430,000,000, or nearly 30 per cent, and the total foreign trade of the kingdom increased from $4,380,000,000 to $5,450,000,000, or twenty-five per cent. Comparing the April just passed with the April of ten years ago, that month this year shows a total trade of $530,000,000, compared with $350,000,000 in the same month of the last year of the last century, an increase of 50 per cent.

Despaired of ever getting relief until cure came 3 years ago with use of DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT. Uses For Lions.
African Farmers Claim They Destroy Noxious Herbivorous Animals.

According to some of the farmers of East Africa, the lion should be protected as a useful animal, notwithstanding the fact that once in a while he kills a man. The lion, they maintain, is a great destroyer of noxious herbivorous animals, such as the zebras and antelopes, which are a scourge to the fields. In one district they say no fewer than 346 lions have recently been killed by hunters, and they estimate that this represents the saving of 35,000 to 40,000 zebras and antelopes, which would otherwise have fallen a prey to the lions that have been destroyed. Of course, the hunters shot zebras and antelopes also, but this fact, they think, does not counterbalance the destruction of those animals that would have been effected by the slain lions.

THE BEST ROOFING EVER USED

Guelph, Ont., May 10, 1909.
The Standard Paint Co. of Canada, Ltd., Montreal, P.Q.
Gentlemen,—As regards your inquiry as to how we like your RUBEROID ROOFING, would say we have now had it on our factory for several years, during which time it has given absolute satisfaction in every respect. It has shown no sign of wear, of course, and despite the heavy snows of the winter, and other trying weather conditions, there has been no evident defect, but shows a perfect roofing, up to date. We really consider it the best roofing material which we have ever used, and can conscientiously and cheerfully recommend it to anyone desiring an absolutely first-class, dependable, permanent roofing.
Yours respectfully,
N. L. Stewart, Manager.

Gentlemen,—In reply to your enquiry of the 24th ult., might say that we covered the roof of our boiler shop with Ruberoïd five years ago and we have never had any trouble since that date. Previous to that we had never been able to get the roof perfectly tight. We have tried other roofings throughout our works, but none of these have given us the satisfaction of the Ruberoïd.

Helping the Outcasts.
The Salvation Army's Work Amongst London's Poor.

The London Embankment used to be a standing disgrace to the City of Empire. Every evening swarms of wretched, homeless beings, mere animal bundles of tattered rags, flocked to the riverside, and took up their places in all weathers on the cheerless benches or on the hard pavements, wherever a bridge or wall gave some little shelter, to rest their poor, aching limbs until dawn brought in another day of misery and hunger and ceaseless, weary wandering.

Now you may patrol the Embankment the live-long night and never an outcast shall you see after twelve o'clock. How has the change been effected? Be at the arch under Waterloo Bridge any evening between, say, half-past ten and a quarter to midnight and you shall see.

First you will notice, coming from all quarters, across the bridges and down the side streets, an ever-swelling stream of strange, limping, huddled-up creatures, shuffling along out of the glare of the curving line of lamps. They are all cruelly alike; they all move with the same curious, shambling gait; they are all footsore; they all limp painfully; they all are hunched up, with their heads bowed and their knees bent; they all either hug themselves in an effort to keep their buttonless coats about them or have their hands thrust deep in their trousers pockets.

They are strangely solitary, these sorry wrecks on the sea of life; they never seem to strike up acquaintance with one another; never seem to speak. So they shamble along singly, silently, each a separate unit in a legion hundreds strong that slowly converges on one point—the group of Salvation Army officers under the bridge. Each, as he comes up, makes a fruitive grab at the ticket held out for him and then shuffles off westward with anxious haste.

Every night 850 such tickets are given out at this one spot by the Salvation Army; at other points in London nearly 3,000 more are distributed; and, in addition, the Church Army deals with some hundreds of outcasts each evening.

The Salvation Army tickets given out on the Embankment admit the holder to the shelter in Westminster, a four-storied building at the corner of Great Peter Street and St. Ann St., a modern factory specially adapted to its new use.

The homeless line up in a double queue, and as each man is admitted his ticket is collected, and he is given an iron spoon, and passes on through a large entrance lobby into a long hall, down each side of which are trestle tables. At the tables a group of white-aproned attendants, helped by "shelterers," are busily ladling steaming-hot pea-soup into enamelled bowls, or cutting up enormous loaves of good bread.

Each of the poor wanderers as he passes along is given a generous plate of the soup—rich with meat and thick with wholesome vegetables of all kinds—and a quarter-pound hunk of bread, and then he makes his way to the night-rooms overhead.

On the ground floor, across the other side of the entrance lobby, is a large wash-house; in the centre, a huge open boiler, under which a fire is kept up all night; round three sides, shelves furnished with enamelled basins, and, on the fourth side, a row of towels. Soap is provided to each basin, and here the men may wash themselves or their clothes at any time.

All night long in the night-rooms there is a strange, restless unease, a shifting of positions, a coming and going, an unquiet moving about, until the general reveille at 5.30.

No task has to be performed. The bulk of the inmates are reduced to such a piteous plight that they are utterly unfit for work of even the lightest. And the aim of the Salvation Army is simply to do for one's fellowmen as much as the tender-hearted do for any poor starving cat or stray dog.

They purposely refrain from importing into the work and savor of proselytizing. From the moment the outcast gets his ticket of admission until he leaves again next morning he is interfered with by none, addressed by none unless he invites it. At the same time the official keeps an eye on their guests to give a helping hand to the man that is down, to stretch out a saving arm to the man that is sinking.

Pain a Sign of Inflammation.
When pain is slight, that is a proof of congestion; when it is acute, it shows dangerous inflammation. You can compare a congestive pain to a little fire. When congestion smoulders, pain comes and goes. Congestion grows into inflammation, but pain, now more intense, grows excruciating, and stays, too. There is an absolute antidote of pain—it is Nerviline. New to you perhaps is Nerviline, but known well in many lands as the most penetrating and pain-subduing pain remedy ever discovered. Not only nor ill-smelling but pleasant—it rubs in. Not temporary action but permanent in its control of pain. Not an ache or a pain anywhere that it cannot reach. No soreness or strain that it has not the power to relieve. Nerviline is the only remedy in the world sold under guarantee—if it does not relieve you get your money back. Proof enough that Nerviline is a remedy that will fulfill absolutely every requirement of a pain-reliever, both for internal and external use. For rheumatism, sciatica, lumbago, neuralgia, stiffness, sprain or strains, it is the only thing. Large bottles 50 cents, trial size, 25 cents; at druggists.

Romance of a Corean Prince.

Defied the Laws of His Country and Married a Chinese Maiden.
Yun Teh Ho, a prince in Corea by birth, who is in Chicago to speak before the Men's National Missionary Congress, became a centre of interest to the delegates when it became known that he has played a role in an international romance for which he was forbidden to enter the domains of the royal family of which he was a member, or his own country.

"While in the Chinese Empire shortly after his return from the United States, where he graduated from the Vanderbilt University, at Nashville, Tenn., and later on from a school in Georgia, where he went to study arithmetic, Prince Yun Teh Ho, or as he calls himself T. H. Yun, met and fell in love with a girl from a prominent Chinese family," said the Prince's friend. "He knew the law in Corea which forbids the marriage of a Corean and a Chinese, but his love for the woman was none the less ardent. Finally, in desperation, he wrote to a girl in Nashville with whom he had become acquainted while attending Vanderbilt, and asked her advice.

"Marry her and let things take their course," was the cabled response, and the prince followed his American friend's direction.

"Promptly he, and his bride as well, were forbidden entrance to the Corean realm. The prince then became a school missionary in China and performed such notable work that his government finally relented and both he and his wife were requested to take up their abode in the prince's homeland. He became a factor in governmental affairs, and was finally placed on an important commission to one of the neighboring countries. While a member of his ministerial party he became dissatisfied with the workings of the committee and he left abruptly.

"Then because of his failure to carry out the mission upon which he was sent, he was again barred from Corea. Again he became a school missionary, and after several years the attitude of his government changed, and he and his wife were once more reinstated in its good graces."

Do You Know Your Ailment?
Or is it a complication which can be reached only by DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS.

There is only one medicine that can prove thoroughly satisfactory in complicated ailments of the liver and kidneys, and that is Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

They begin by regulating the bowels and awakening the action of the liver, thereby effecting a thorough cleansing of the excretory system. By thus removing the poisons from the system they lighten the work of the kidneys and gradually restore them to health.

Nobody who once learns of the definite and certain action of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills in regulating and invigorating the kidneys, liver and bowels, is willing to take chances by experimenting with other medicines.

Such ailments as biliousness, constipation, chronic indigestion, liver complaint and kidney disease yield readily to this treatment.

Poster Campaign.

Advertising Methods to be Used to Combat Tuberculosis.

To prevent the spread of tuberculosis, a gigantic poster campaign of an educational nature is to be carried out in Canada. The poster space to be used will aggregate at least two million five hundred thousand square feet a month, making it the largest poster campaign ever carried out in Canada. The value of the space is about twenty-five thousand dollars.

The idea was approved at the tenth annual convention of the Canadian Billposters and Distributors, commenced in Chatham on Victoria Day and concluded recently.

Mr. J. S. Robertson, Secretary of the National Sanatorium of Canada, and the Muskoka Free Hospital, made an earnest plea to the convention for assistance for an all Dominion poster campaign of an educational nature, to prevent the increase of tuberculosis. Mr. Robertson stated that he had almost completed arrangements with the paper and ink makers and the lithographers to donate help in the work, and he would like to know if the billposters would assist.

The idea was approved and it was decided to give $25,000 worth of poster space.

The posting in each city will be done at the request of the local association, and where there is no local association, at the request of the medical men and the clergy in said places.

Buttonless Cutaway.

Latest Fad in Men's Dress in London Started by the King.

The latest fad in men's dress in London was originated by the King. To be in the fashion this spring in London men must wear only one button to their cutaway coat, or better still, none at all.

The buttonless cutaway is popular. It is worn by most of the men one sees in the fashionable restaurants. All the actors appearing in the society plays now wear the buttonless cutaway coat.

The sides of the coat are held in position by a link of braid about an inch and a half to two inches long. Thus the coat does not meet, and the link of braid, which acts as a kind of understudy to the button, hangs horizontally across the waistcoat.

The King has extended the principle of the buttonless morning coat to evening dress, but in the latter garment, sometimes worn by the King, the small connecting link between the flaps of the coat is finished on either side in a beautiful onyx button which is intended only for ornament.—New York Sun.

Esquimaux Candy.

Tallow is the Esquimaux's candy. It is put up in bright red packages made out of the feet of water fowl. The women cut off the red feet of this bird, which is called the dovekie, draw out the bones and blow up the skin so as to make pouches which they fill with the reindeer tallow for their little folk. None of the food that the Esquimaux eat seems very inviting to us, but they are extremely fond of it and are very apt to overeat. It is said by explorers who have gone into Greenland that it is no uncommon sight to see an Esquimaux man who has eaten an enormous meal of the raw, frozen flesh of the reindeer, seal or walrus, lying on his back and eating blubber until he cannot move.—From Fur News.

Cured Constipation Quickly.

Tells of a Remedy That is Safe for Young and Old, for All Bowel Troubles.

Writing from his home in Barcelona, Mr. Frederick G. Mayer states: "I think no one ever suffered as severely from constipation as I did for nearly six months. So many serious symptoms were developing as a consequence of this evil condition of the system that I realized I must find a remedy. The strong pills of various kinds I tried seemed after their first effects were over to make me far worse and I did not know which way to turn for relief. I saw Dr. Hamilton's Pills advertised, and the first box used satisfied me I found a true remedy. Instead of griping by undue activity, Dr. Hamilton's Pills acted as naturally as if a physic had not been taken. I never had to increase the dose, and indeed, within a month I reduced it and when the system finally acted of its own accord as a result of Dr. Hamilton's Pills, I took a dose twice a week only, just to make sure the old condition would not come back."

No other remedy cures constipation and biliousness so easily or safely as Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

A Lord Chief Justice as Gambler.

Sir Robert Anderson, in his extraordinary articles in Blackwood's Magazine, is very severe on gambling clubs. He makes this amazing revelation about an English Lord Chief Justice: "I determined to begin at the top, for, though the lower class clubs were far more the most mischievous, I was not going to incur the taunt of cheerying humble folk and leaving the 'toffs' alone. So I held my hand until I was ready to raid the most fashionable club of the kind in London—a house in Park Place, St. James's. The door of the gaming house does not stand open, and of course a stranger has no chance of admittance. And yet it was essential that the police should get in unobtruded, otherwise every outward sign of gaming would be cleared away, and evidence on which to base a charge would fail. But my inspector in the C Division was a man of exceptional fitness for such work, and on the appointed night he found himself in the middle of the gamblers before any one of them 'spied a stranger.'"

"The necessary evidence being thus obtained, every person present had to appear before a magistrate. And one of the disappointments of my official life was that, during the few minutes necessarily spent in preparing for the raid, two men passed out whose arrest would have added to the gaiety of London, for one of them had held office as His Majesty's Attorney-General, and was destined to become Lord Chief Justice of England."

Hi-Po Waterproof Dry Batteries.

PRACTICAL EXPERIENCE, during recent years, has demonstrated that dry batteries, if properly constructed and protected, are ideal for ignition purposes.

These two essential qualities are combined in the HI-PO waterproof dry cells.

It is a well known fact that the old-type zinc-cells are short-lived when exposed to moisture. Water and dampness have not the least effect on the HI-PO waterproof dry batteries, which can even be left standing in salt water without risk of short current.

Owing to the new patent process under which they are manufactured, the HI-PO waterproof dry cells are protected against all outside influences, each individual cell being built up and sealed in an insulated case.

The HI-PO waterproof dry batteries are used with absolute safety on land, on water and in aerial navigation; they are suitable for any work in any climate.

The HI-PO waterproof dry cells have a much longer life and give more service, size for size, than any other battery made.

This cut illustrates the most practical method of using HI-PO Waterproof Dry Batteries, namely, in double series, thus, by means of a switch one set is allowed to recuperate while the other set is in use. (Repair Dept.)

Industrial Exhibition.

The Manufacturers Association met yesterday and decided to have an industrial exhibition next fall about the end of October, synchronous with the Agricultural Exhibition. They will close down the factories on the day of opening and have a procession through the town accompanied by three brass bands. A regular programme of amusement will be carried out at the rink and grounds surrounding which will partake of several of the most popular features seen in London shows, including Punch and Judy and the Marionettes. A committee has been appointed to prepare the programme and great enthusiasm seems to prevail.

Mr. P. Paterson Dead.

His many friends in the city were grieved last evening to hear of the death of Mr. Patrick Patterson, which occurred at Grand Falls yesterday after a protracted illness. Deceased was a baker by trade and had been working in that capacity out there since the works opened. Deceased was a member of the T. A. & B. Wedding Bells.

A very pretty wedding took place at the R. C. Cathedral at 7.30 p.m. yesterday when Capt. H. W. Winsor led to the altar Miss Mary Clare Hurley, daughter of Mrs. Thomas Lannigan, of the Admiral House, this city. The ceremony was performed at St. Andrew's Altar. Rev. Monsignor Roche tying the nuptial knot. The bride was assisted by her sisters Miss Anastasia Hurley and Mrs. Haley, while the groom was attended by his brother, Mr. Peter Winsor, Jr., and his brother-in-law, Mr. Plus Haley. Mr. Peter Winsor, Sr., gave the bride away. The bride was attired in a handsome costume of white silk with veil and hat to match and carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley. The bridesmaids were dressed in blue silk. After the ceremony and as the bridal party came through the Cathedral it was brilliantly illuminated through the kindness of Sacristan Clancy, who turned on the electric current for the occasion. A reception was later held at the residence of the bride's mother at the Beach, many friends of the happy pair spending a very pleasant evening. The groom's present to the bride was a handsome gold bracelet, and to the bridesmaids a pretty golden cross on which the names of each were inscribed. The flower girl, Miss Edith Haley, received a handsome gold locket from the groom also. Many very valuable presents were received by the bride including cheques for $100 each from her mother and step-father, Mr. Lannigan, and $50 from her sister, Miss Hurley. The bride and groom drove to Topsail to spend the honeymoon. The Telegram wishes them every happiness and prosperity.

As Good as Irish Peat.

Messrs. Hughes and Burke, two of the party of peat cutters from Ireland, accompanied by Mr. P. Murphy, Road Inspector, visited the turf beds at the Crooked Pinch, Old Petty Harbor Road, yesterday. They spent several hours there and tested the quality of the peat and sounded for its depth. The Irishmen say that this is the best they have seen yet and excels in quality the peat on the Toboy Road. After going down to a depth of four or five feet and taking up a sample they declared that they had never cut better peat in Ireland.

Thrown Out of Carriage

Mr. Joseph Flynn and his wife were thrown out of their carriage last evening at 8.15 while driving near the Central Fire Hall. Mrs. Flynn was badly frightened but escaped with only a slight contusion. Her husband, however, was seriously hurt and lay unconscious from the effects of the fall. His head struck the ground when he fell. The truck who were returning from St. George's Field came to his assistance, revived him and put him and his wife into the carriage. The accident was caused by two or three boys climbing on to the back of the vehicle to steal a ride. Their suspended weight caused the back of the seat to give way suddenly and the occupants fell backwards on the road.

In the first innings St. Bon's made 40 runs and in the second 41, whilst their opponents made 18 and 69 in their first and second innings respectively. The individual scores were small in the first innings; but in the second Fenwick and Hayward each did "good work, making 15 and 16 respectively. The wicket keeping of J. Fox and the bowling of Kenally and Knight were favorably commented on by all the spectators, and afforded great delight to all the St. Bon's boys. The umpires were Rev. M. Fenwick and C. W. Ryan. Next Saturday the Feldians and Methodists will play.

Free Breakfast Table.

England May Abolish All Food Taxes. The London Express professes to believe that it is the intention of the Radicals to abolish all import duties on food. These taxes now produce about $50,000,000 a year, and the Express says the plan is to gradually do away with them, meeting the deficiency in the revenue by further imposts on land, and increases in excise, income tax and death duties. Tea is the principal contributor to the revenue among the necessaries of life, the duties on the favorite English breakfast beverage amounting to $30,000,000 annually, as compared with only $900,000 for coffee.

Theatrical People Here

By the shore train which arrived last night Manager Rosskan and the lady and gentlemen members of the Chicago Stock Co. arrived. Those people came down the shore from Channel on the S. S. Glencoe. Speaking to a Telegram representative on his arrival here last night Mr. Rosskan expressed the pleasure the trip afforded the members of the company. The weather which was calm and beautiful enabled all to be on deck and to take in the coast line scenery with which they were delighted. They also speak highly of the accommodation and attendance on the steamers Bruce and Glencoe. It was Mr. Philip Hanley who while in New York negotiated with Manager Rosskan for the bringing of this excellent theatrical combine to St. John's.

A Handsome Present.

Monday morning Conductor John Kelly, of the Reid Nfld. Co., was the recipient of a handsome solid gold watch chain and pendant from Mr. W. H. Taylor, who recently arrived from London. Conductor Kelly is very popular with all who travel over the railway, and Mr. Taylor's present was a reminder to the conductor for his geniality and kindness to the donor. Mr. Kelly is delighted with this handsome present.

Banking Schooner Lost

We learn from Mr. Lake, who arrived here by last night's train from Fortune Bay, that one of the bankers of Stone's Cove while running from that harbor a couple of days ago went ashore at Brunette Island and became a total wreck. She had 400 qts. of fish on board after coming off the Banks, and this will be likely lost also. We hear that the vessel is insured but the fish, of course, is not. The accident happened during a dense fog. The captain and crew saved all their effects.

Furious Driving.

It would be no harm if the police in the West End would watch some of the cabs who drive to the railway station. Last night one of them with several men on board, who sang to the top of their voices, drove down the Promenade at breakneck speed turned short and dashed for the railway station at a furious rate. Several narrowly escaped being run over and those in the cab should be prosecuted for furious driving.

Desperate Characters.

Mrs. Foley, of Mundy Pond, Sunday morning found that the little store she keeps there had been entered early that morning and all its contents, which included bread, cakes, tea, sugar, butter, etc., and the cash in the till had been cleaned out by some thief who entered by raising the window. The whole of the articles taken, including the cash, was valued for $10. The woman, a widow, slept in the front of the house and the shop is situated in the rear. Mrs. Foley heard a noise during the morning, a woman living in a house nearby, however, was aroused, and looking through her window saw a man's form about half way in through the window of Mr. Kennedy's residence near. She gave the alarm, which Mr. Kennedy heard, and the housebreaker left when he heard the man coming from his room. The marauder was joined by another who was also prowling about there. One of them held a large stone in his hand, and he threatened to brain Kennedy with it should he come out. A neighbor of Mrs. Foley's said she heard a noise about 3 a.m., and this must be the time when the burglary occurred. On the matter being reported to the police Detective Byrne took up the case. He had no proper description of the man except that one was short of stature and the other tall. Monday night a prisoner was brought to the station drunk, and Byrne suspecting something wrong about him went to his boarding house on Stephen Street, found that he was not at home Sunday morning and that later he had brought home some tea, &c., which was identified as Mrs. Foley's goods. Yesterday morning he also arrested on the South Side the pal of the thief, who also resides on Stephen Street. The first man arrested, we learn, has pleaded guilty. Two other men seen loitering about the place were suspected, but on enquiring about them the officer found that they had gone to sea, and this made the task of finding who the real thieves were all the more difficult. Byrne is proving himself a highly efficient and astute officer and is to be complimented on his work of late.

The Preliminaries.

A large gathering witnessed the final preliminaries of the Star-C.C.C. sports last evening at St. George's Field. The Stars won against the Collegians by two goals to one in the second round of the football contest, and the St. Bon's in the same contest by two to one and a corner against the B. I. S. This evening the final will be played by the two winning teams. The Stars also beat the Cadets in the tug of war. The laborers and fishermen who were to take part in this contest did not turn up. They will play off before the regular programme begins this afternoon and the winners will be sent against the Stars. The companies from the C. C. C. were present and practiced their drills and marches to the music of the band. Mr. C. O'N. Coaroy was Judge and Mr. S. Stranger referee.

Before the real hot weather sets in, it would be well to fortify yourself for it by taking a bottle or two of some good tonic—for instance, our Quinine and Iron. This will improve the general health, vitalize the nerves, and put the whole body in good order. By that means you will be able to stand the heat with much less exhaustion than usual, and be able to enjoy the warm weather instead of being prostrated by it, as so many are. The 9th of June.

To-morrow is the anniversary of the 9th of June, the day on which in the year 1846 the city of St. John's was wiped out by fire. The fire began in the shop of a cabinet maker, situated just west of Queen Street, and originated from the boiling over of a glue pot on a stove. A gale of westerly wind blew and the fire, which started shortly after 9 o'clock in the morning, soon had the whole city in its embrace. The destruction of the city was complete by an early hour that night. Two soldiers of the regiments then stationed here lost their lives while trying to blow up buildings on Water Street to create fire breaks. The city from Riverhead to Maggoty Cove was destroyed, and old residents of the city can give many thrilling reminiscences of that terrible time.

8720 A PRACTICAL APRON.

A serviceable work apron, such as the one here shown, not only protects the entire dress, but is very becoming as well. It may be made with very little difficulty, and the ease with which it may be slipped on and off is a feature that will recommend it at once to the busy housewife. The bib is cut circular and slips on easily over the head, requiring no pins or buttons to hold it in place. A generous size pocket is a useful addition that will be appreciated by the wearer. Such a garment as this could be successfully made from linen gingham, madras and percale. The medium size will require 3 3/4 yards of 36 inch material for the making. Sizes—Small, Medium and Large.

Thousands Again Pouring Into North in Search of Gold.
Seattle, Wash., June 1.—Officials of companies operating steamships to Alaska points on the Behring Sea estimate that 15,000 people will leave Seattle for Nome and St. Michael's on the early sailings, drawn to the far north by the reports of rich gold discoveries in the Iditarod gold fields. The first regular line to leave for Nome will sail from Seattle to-morrow, and every berth has been sold weeks in advance. Wealthy men have been compelled to take accommodations in the steerage, and there is a waiting list in the combined capacity of the northbound steamers. So great is the rush to the north that passenger and freight officials of Alaska steamship lines say the movement, which amounts to a stampede, has been equalled but once in the history of the north, and that

A Jockey Killed.

Gravesend, N.Y., June 2.—Jockey Fred Langan, mounted on Stalwort Lad, was instantly killed to-day when his mount fell on the home stretch turn in the closing race. Warwick, well up, stumbled and fell; Muff stumbled over Warwick, immediately following was Langan on Stalwort Lad. He turned a complete somersault over the prostrate forms of the two horses—his mount fell on top of him, killing him instantly.

OLD TERRA NOVA CRICKET CLUB.

Cricket in the Old Days.

LIVELY TIMES ON THE OLD PARADE GROUND.

(By AN OLD-TIMER.)

It is refreshing to find that after a long interval the invigorating and healthy game of cricket is again about to be revived in St. John's. This interesting and manly sport has been allowed to remain too long neglected. It is surprising to find that in a sporting city, such as St. John's is, that cricket has been for a space of ten years entirely neglected.

It is difficult to account for this, unless it be from the fact that the comparatively new game of football has taken such a firm hold on the younger generation. Anyone calmly and dispassionately comparing the two games and judging of their value as pleasure-giving sport, cannot fail to give the verdict in favor of cricket.

I admit the excitement attendant on football is greater than that of cricket, but here ends the interest in football. Now, cricket, which is not lacking in an element of excitement, is always intensely interesting from the fact that only the man who understands the science of the game can become successful at it. It is, therefore, in a high degree a scientific game.

JOHN L. SLATTERY, Shamrock Club.

had no equal. The late Hon. A. W. Harvey was a hard man from whom to take a wicket.

The first to introduce round-arm bowling in Newfoundland was the late William Warren, father of His Honor, the present Speaker of the Assembly. The man for whom Warren was bowling always had a tough proposition to hold his wickets.

These were two clubs in those days which may be said to be composed entirely of the leading commercial men of the city. They were the Terra Nova's and Metropolitans. Besides those the two leading educational institutions of the day had their crack teams. Those were the students of Bishop Field College and Old St. Bon's.

St. Bon's in those days possessed some splendid players. At that time a contingent of the 62nd Regiment, and later the Royal Canadian Rifles, with a battery of the Royal Artillery were stationed at St. John's. The officers of those regiments were, many of them, graduates of the great public schools of England, which in itself is

EDWARD H. DAVEY, Avalon Club.

As a health-producing and frame-developing sport it has no superior. While not demanding the strenuousness of football, it is calculated to develop muscle of the body.

The moral aspects of the game are healthful. It fosters a wholesome spirit of rivalry and a desire to excel. It is entirely devoid of the element of brutality, which it must be admitted is not always absent from football.

The present generation have no idea of the enthusiasm which a game of cricket excited in the middle sixties, when we had the Jobs, the Bowings, the Stabbs, the Winters, the Harveys and the Browns, all of whom were conspicuous for their expert batting and fielding.

The late Charles Bowring wielded a splendid bat, and as a field-off he as cricketers. Those officers were jealous of their reputation as cricketers, and many a hard fought game was played between them and the local teams on the old Parade Ground.

The garrison team was made up of commissioned officers with the exception of two privates, one of whom was named Luker, and the other, Maken. Ben Maken, as he was familiarly called, was one of the most expert wicket-keepers that ever played in St. John's; while Luker was a swift and active bowler.

I remember the names of some of the officers who were expert batters in those days. There were Lieut. Gilmore, Capt. Taylor, Drs. Richards and Paterson, all of whom were expert at the bat, and were hard to stump.

The most interesting games in those days were those played between Old St. Bon's and the Military. Some of the men who figured as expert cricketers in those days, and many of them have gone to the Great Beyond. I remember our fellow-citizen, Mr. John Cornack, who was the swiftest bowler in the city, and next to him came the Rev. Joseph Donnelly, now Parish Priest of Bay de Verde. Magistrate O'Donnell, of Bell Island, was considered one of the best fielders in the city. Mr. Thomas Parker (sur-named Stone-wall), who is still hale and hearty, wielded an invincible bat, and was rarely bowled out, his defeat always coming to him because of his want of swiftness in running. Mr. James Cornack, of the Customs, was a safe and cautious batter, as well as an all-round good felder. Messrs M. K. and D. J. Greene figured conspicuously as cricketers in those days.

Looking back to those years when cricket was in the zenith of its glory in Newfoundland, I can call up names of many who were prominent in the game. The two city clubs, as I before said, were composed of men in commercial pursuits in St. John's. Of course considering the time that has elapsed it will be impossible to remember all who were prominent at that time.

Here are some of the men who up hold the dignity of the city teams:—the late Charles Bowring, the late H. J. Stabb, the late A. O. Hayward, the late Thomas Brown, of Job Bros. firm the recently passed away A. D. Rankin, John Gibson, Sykes, Tom Walsh, John Rendell, Tom Clapp, Bill Davey, John Kelly, Neil McDougall, James Grieve, Mr. Geo. A. Hutchings (the latter gentleman being one of the best all round cricketers in the city) and many others.

In this article reference is made only to the old school of cricketers in the city—the men who transplanted it from the parent soil in Great Britain, and warmed it into life in Newfoundland.

I am well aware that in more recent years we have had some splendid cricketers in St. John's, such as the late Dr. Stabb, Dr. Rendell, Charli Ryan, Ned Davey, Jack Bennett, Jerr. Savage and many others, but these names come within the category of the modern cricketers who took up the work when the old school fell off, and splendidly maintained the records of those who preceded them.

Of this class I shall have something to say later on.

Thames and the Fleet.

What the Old River Has Produced For Britain.

The laying down of the keel of the new Dreadnought, the Thunderer, at the Thames Ironworks a few months ago will bring into existence the twelve hundred and twenty-seventh man-of-war built for the royal navy on the river during four centuries of warship building. In that total is counted every class of war craft of which there is a record; from sailing three-deckers of the olden time, and modern first-class battleships, to gunboats, sloops of war and corvettes of the days of spars and sails, and modern torpedo boats and destroyers.

Of the twelve hundred and twenty-six British warships launched on the Thames, which can be traced, considerably over half the number were ships carrying each fifty guns and more; "sixty-fours" and "seventy-fours," "eighties" and "ninety-eights," up to 110-gun ships—ships rated for the line of battle, as the old phrase went. Ten of Henry the Eighth's warlike—to go back to the earliest times from which there are records—were Thames-built; thirty of Queen Elizabeth's; ten of James the First's; seventy of Cromwell's; forty under Charles the Second; eighty under William the Third and Queen Anne; and some three hundred and twenty during the eighteenth century, between 1714, when George the First came to the Throne, and 1815, the close of the Great War with Napoleon, in addition to upwards of sixty from 1815 to the present time, including the battleships Duncan and Cornwallis, now serving at sea, the great modern pre-Dreadnought cruiser Black Prince, and the new Dreadnought battleship Thunderer, now being finished.

At Trafalgar, in fact, eleven of the twenty-seven ships that formed Nelson's line of battle were London or Thames built ships; four of them launched from the royal dockyards of Woolwich and Deptford, seven built for the navy in private shipyards—at Blackwall, Gravesend, Rotherhithe, and elsewhere on the river. Eleven out of Nelson's thirteen ships at the battle of the Nile had been sent afloat on the Thames; seven of them built at private yards, the other five at Deptford and Woolwich. Thirteen of Duncan's sixteen at Camperdown were Thames built man-of-war, nine of them in private yards.

Not a few of the Thames-built fleet were ships that made their mark in history, that won fame that will last as long as the British navy itself lasts. Grenville's immortal Revenge was a Thames-built ship; as was our first Victory, Hawkins' flagship in the battles with the Spanish Armadas and also our second Victory, one of Blake's hardest fighters, and also of Walter Raleigh's favorite, the first Warspite; the historic Sovereign of the Seas, Charles the First's "Wonder of the World"; Cromwell's Naseby, which Evelyn saw and made a caustic comment on just after he launched; the famous Loyal London built out of subscriptions in the City for Charles the Second, were built by Thames labor in Thames yards. Benbow's flagship the Breda, on board which he lost his life, was another famous Thames man-of-war; as were the first Shannon, on board which Collingwood began his sea life; the Royal George, which went down so tragically at Spithead with Kempenfelt on board and nine hundred people. The famous Brunswick, which fought so desperate a duel with the French Vengeance on the "Glorious First of June"; Nelson's flagships at St. Vincent, at the Nile and at Copenhagen (the Captain of the Vanguard and the Elephant), were all Thames ships. The heroic Colossus, a seventy-four in Collingwood's line at Trafalgar, was a Thames-built ship, and in the battle was manned, too, mostly

THE PRINCE OF WALES

Camped With the King.

Amongst others of our countrymen who have pleasant recollections of King George's visit here in the H. M. S. Canada in 1882, when as Prince George he was serving on board that ship, is Mr. M. K. Greene, Chief Accountant of the City Council. Mr. Greene had the distinction that year of camping out in the woods with his future King, and how it happened is modestly narrated thus by Mr. Greene: That summer a wreck occurred near Bonne Bay, and Mr. Greene with a fellow speculator and friend, the well known Peter Saunders, went to the scene. Whilst in the neighbourhood they made a sporting jaunt in the woods nearby with Mr. D. Stott, the telegraph man, and the late Mr. "Bob" McNelly. One evening just as they had returned to camp and were preparing to make things snug for the night three distinguished looking strangers who were gunning in the nearby woods, came into the camp and asked permission to remain for a while as a storm was gathering, and their own guides and camp were too far off to venture reaching there with safety in the ominous looking weather. Mr. Greene and his companions cheerfully welcomed the visitors and bade them make themselves as comfortable as the camp conveniences could afford. The "kettle was boiled" and with such other grub as was in the commissariat was shared around amongst all hands, and then after a smoke all round, a good long chat and the partaking of an occasional "toothful" to keep out the chill of the wet and blustery night all hands turned in and slept it out till daylight when the storm subsided, and the Prince and his two companions returned to their own quarters, but before going profusely thanked the camp owners who had made them so snug for the night.

Mr. Greene related this interesting story whilst in a reminiscent mood at the Club recently, and with characteristic modesty said he would prefer to keep it out of the papers, but the Telegram reporter who happened to hear it thought it too good to withhold from the public, so this is the reason we record it.
