A Millionaire; — or — Countess Westerleigh.

"Oh! he didn't want me. He could not have taken me where he was going. I am rather surprised that I have not heard from him before this. I don't suppose there was any danger."

She raised herself, and the fan dropped from her hand.

"Danger? What do you mean?" she said; and the anxiety pierced through the disguise of her cold voice.

Senley Tyers crossed the room and picked up the fan, and was about to offer it to her; then he remembered her refusal to take the handkerchief from him, and with a sudden flush laid the fan on the table.

She stretched out her hand and took it, her eyes meeting his in haughty questioning.

"What do you mean by danger?" she asked.

"I raised his brows.

"He scarcely knew. He had to ride along the coast some distance, and the people who lent him the horse were full of warnings and forebodings."

She seemed actually about to rise; then sunk back and smiled.

"I think Mr. Tempest quite capable of taking care of himself," she said.

"Oh, yes!"—he laughed softly—"quite capable and strong enough. Still, I am rather surprised he has not written a line. When he comes back, I will do another sketch of him. This, as you say, is really bad."

He took it up and raised his palette-knife to dash it across the face of his eyes watching her sideways.

She sprang from the couch and caught his arm ere the knife could fall.

Her face was pale, her eyes flashing, her breath coming fast.

The two looked into each other's eyes in silence for an instant; then she said, with a catch in her voice proudly, haughtily:

"Do not destroy it, please. I—I will buy it!"

His face was as pale as hers, but sallow, and a sinister smile played over it as he flung the knife on the small table beside the easel.

"I will make you a present of it, if you will accept it, Lady Florence."

JOHN JACKSON, Resident Agent.

He said, "Stay," as she inclined her head and was about to sweep back to the couch. "Do not move!" He turned quickly, and caught up his brush and palette. She watched him as he worked with haughty displeasure and impatience, then a look of wonder and interest began to dawn in her eyes.

He was transforming the face on the canvas; it had been a dead, soulless mask. It was now becoming, under his rapid and skillful hand, the face of a woman, alive and breathing.

He turned to her with a smile of triumph that still had something sinister in it.

"You see," he said, "there is life and soul there now! You have given me what I wanted! And"—he paused and fixed his eyes, glittering now with the jealousy, the rage that was burning within him—"and you have given me your secret!"

She recoiled instinctively, as one recoils from the uplifted head, the forked tongue of a snake.

"My secret?" she panted, haughtily, yet with an undertone of vague dread.

"Yes," he said. He pointed to the sketch which she still held, white unconsciously she pressed to her heart. "Yes, I give you that portrait, Lady Florence; what will you say if I give you the original—the man himself?"

The scarlet rushed to her face, her eyes blazed; then they fell beneath his half-mocking, half-imperious gaze.

"I do not understand you," she faltered, almost inaudibly.

"I think you do," he said, slowly. "Hush! your maid is listening. Come to me for a sitting to-morrow, and I will show you that I make no idle boast when I say that I can gratify the one, the dearest wish of you."

She tried to laugh, to beat him down—this low-born, presumption-adventurer—with the scorn which flowed so readily from her eyes, her lips; but she could not. His eyes his dark, sallow face, seemed to blot her in thrall.

For the first time since their acquaintance, they had changed places. It was she who, metaphorically, was at his feet, instead of he at hers.

She drew a long breath, opened her lips, as if about to declare that she would not come again; then she turned away in silence.

A smile of triumph curled Senley Tyers' thin lips. He took up her cloak and her fan, and approached her.

"Permit me," he said.

Yesterday, an hour ago, she would have drawn back with a surprised stare at his venturing to touch her garments, excepting to arrange them for her pose. Even now she shrunk a little and lifted her superb eyes; but eventually she submitted—she who a week ago had refused to take a handkerchief from his hand.

head—the pure, oval face, the dark-gray eyes, the thick tresses of soft, silky black; the very tones of her voice rang in his ears.

The strangeness of the elder woman, the discovery that they were smugglers, the attack of the revenue men, all faded to insignificance in his mind beside the remembrance of that girlish face as it had been held up to his with glowing eyes and quivering lips.

"Poor little Nora," he muttered.

"What an existence, what a fate! Can't read or write, and shut up with a smuggling aunt. She's worthy of a better life than that. And she tried to break my neck. But she made up for it afterward. If I had been killed outright, I should have had to forgive her."

He put his hand under his waistcoat and smiled—a half-tender, half-pitying smile—to feel if the shilling was still there. It was there all right, and, somehow, the feel of the coin was pleasant to him.

"I wonder if something couldn't be done for her?" he asked himself, wistfully. "She'll fall off those con-founded cliffs, or come to grief with that smuggling business, as sure as fate. I wish I could do something—get her away, into a kind of Home or some kind."

But even as he formulated the wish in his mind, he felt how hopeless and futile it was. He had promised to say nothing of the existence of the two women; and even if he had not given such a promise, he felt that Nora was the sort of girl who would go mad or die if she were shut up in a Home of any sort.

But for miles he thought of her, recalled her, dwelt upon her, as surely he had never yet dwelt upon the remembrance of any other woman. But then he did not regard Nora Trevanion as a "woman"; she was just a half-wild child-girl to him, no more.

He rode fast and had no difficulty following the road, and presently saw a gate before him opening into a magnificent avenue of oaks.

As he opened the gate and rode up the avenue he was somewhat surprised to see that the drive was well kept, that the shrubs lining it were choice ones, and, like the trees, evidently well cared for; but his surprise was intensified as, at a sudden bend of the road, he came in sight of what without exaggeration may be called a stately mansion.

It had a long facade pierced by arched windows opening on the ground floor on to a stone terrace with wide steps leading to velvet lawns studded here and there with glowing autumn flowers.

It was so stately, so grand a place that Vane pulled up hesitatingly. He had expected to see—well, a fair, good building of the farm-house type with a garden roughly kept and in harmony with the wild scenery and inhabitants of the district.

This long, stretching pile, glowing white in the sunlight, "gave him pause," as Hamlet said.

"I suppose I've lost my way again," he said to himself; and he looked round for some one of whom he could make inquiries.

He saw no one for a minute or two, but presently a small, but old man dressed in fustian, and carrying a running hook in one hand, and a bunch of twigs in the other, came from among the trees and set to work on the hedge.

Vane rode up to him, and called him in his usual free-and-easy style.

"Hi! Is this Vale Hall?"

The old man turned his head without straightening his back, and looked up at him with a pair of keen, piercing eyes, which had in them, notwithstanding their keenness, that peculiar expression that grows into and sets hard in the eyes of the man who lives far from the madding crowd. Every laborer one meets on a country road has it.

The old man looked at the stalwart figure and handsome face half vacantly for a moment, as if he doubted the evidence of his eyes; then he said, quietly:

"What?"

Vane repeated the question.

"Yes; this is Vale Hall," said the old man; and swung his hook again, as if the question and questioner were done with, and had quite ceased to interest him.

"Thanks," said Vane. "Can you tell me if Mr. Vale is at home?"

The old fellow stopped his work and eyed him again.

"The squire's at home," he said, succinctly.

Vane laughed his light-hearted laugh.

"I beg pardon, I ought to have said 'the squire,'" he said. "Whereabouts are the stables, my man?"

"Back of the house," was the reply; and the hook went to work vigorously again.

"Look here," said Vane; "perhaps you'll come and show me the way and take my horse, will you?" and he rode up closer and held out half a crown.

The old man took it.

"Thank you; I'll show ye," he said; and he walked beside the horse with his hook crossed in true laborer fashion over his arm.

"After all," said Vane, "I don't know why I should trouble you. I expect I should find a groom there."

"Ay, like enough," said the man; "but you've paid me, and I'll come."

"Right," said Vane, cheerily; "I'm glad the squire is at home, for I've come all the way from London to see him. And nearly broken my neck on the journey," he had almost added.

The old man nodded, but did not appear to feel any particular interest in the statement.

"What a beautiful place you have here!" Vane went on. "I suppose you have lived here a long time?"

"Ay," was the reply; "a good many years, young sir."

did not expect her to live

Mr. ROBERT BORLEY, 123, Easley Road, Clapham Junction, S.W., writes: "I have enclosed photo of my daughter. When born, this child was very small and was wasting away; she was constantly crying, and we did not expect her to live long. Having heard of your food, we decided to give it a trial, and saw a great improvement in one week, so we continued to use it, and now you could not wish to see a finer child anywhere; she is very strong, and is present busy cutting her teeth, but we have no trouble with her and she does not even cry in fact, we have not had one bad night since using VIROL, and I am not so worried for the world; over her. I can not say what a fine child she is, and my wife tells me that it is only by feeding her on VIROL that she is so well. I should like you to see her, which at any time you are welcome to do; she stands on her legs as any child double her age, which is twelve months on the 8th of November, and I am sure there is not a child that has finer limbs for her age, and I can assure you that I would sooner be without my tobacco than she should her VIROL."

An Operation For Appendicitis

Was Ordered by His Doctor, But Complete Cure Was Effected by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Almost anyone who has suffered from appendicitis will assure you that this trouble developed only after months or years of derangements of the liver and bowels.

Appendicitis can almost invariably be prevented, and very frequently cured, by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. In the case described in this letter the doctors had ordered an operation, but a thorough cure was brought about by this great medicine.

Mrs. J. A. Ballantyne, Surgeon Falls, Ont., writes: "My husband was treated for appendicitis, and the doctors ordered an operation. But he would not consent to an operation and began the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Since going so he has had no need of an operation, or even of a doctor, as the trouble has completely left him. I cannot find words to speak our gratitude for his cure."

THE IMPERIAL OIL CO., LTD.
Gentlemen,—With reference to POLARINE OIL, we desire to say that we operated six Winton Six-Cylinder Cars on the Cariboo Road in 1912, and these Cars travelled 82,430 miles during the season. We used POLARINE OIL exclusively, and found it superior to any other oil which we had previously tested, and while the cars were operated under all sorts of climatic conditions, we were so well pleased with the results obtainable from the use of POLARINE OIL that we propose to use nothing else on the eight Winton Cars which we will operate this year.

BY RUTH CAMERON.

ness too highly to risk surfelting themselves with it—for you know it is possible to overeat of happiness as well as of material food. And by any two people, I don't necessarily mean husband and wife. It is foolish for any two, whatever their relationship—mother to daughter, husband to wife, friend to friend, sister to sister—to saturate themselves with each other's company.

If every mother of young children could take a good vacation from them at least once a year, I believe she would be better able to give herself to them the rest of the year.

I know three sisters who live together and are wonderfully happy in each other's companionship. And yet, when vacation times comes, each goes her separate way. I suspect that is one of the reasons why they enjoy each other so much the rest of the year.

A father of a family of five children tells me that he is sending each one to a separate college because he believes that will broaden their family life more than if they all went to the same college.

Of course, any two people who are happy together are bound to miss each other. But isn't the joy of reunion, which they could never have had if they hadn't parted, worth the pangs? Nathaniel Hawthorne, who was a most ardent lover husband, evidently found it so. "Every separation gives a taste of death," he wrote in a letter to his silent wife, "but every meeting gives a foretaste of the resurrection."

When any two people are happy together they ought to value that happiness more than if they all went to the same college.

Nervousness.

Nervousness is a jerky ailment which causes musicians, bridegrooms and after dinner speakers to wish they had not been invited to help out. It is caused by the nerves running up and down the spinal column, and paralyzing the hands, feet and tongue in one clammy crescendo.

Nervousness is often fatal to a singer who is appearing in public for the first time in a state of fright and a ratine evening gown, as it is liable to seize the best high B-flat she has in her collection and throttle it down to F-sharp, causing the music critics to dispose of her case the next morning in four lines of sour adjectives. Nervousness has ruined many a promising debut, and disappointed thousands of people who got it on a complimentary ticket by seizing the debuter in the middle of a cadenza and throwing her into the finale eighteen measures ahead of the orchestra. Whenever a new grand opera singer attempts to get away with the "Jewel Song" four tones below the accompaniment, it is a sure sign of nervousness of the throat.

The most painful spectacle in the world is that of an after dinner speaker who gets up in a breezy, debonaire manner and then becomes so nervous that he forgets the point of every story he comes to and finally wanders off into sickly soliloquy. Nervousness affects some after dinner speakers to such an extent that they forget anybody else is on the program and pass right by several good stopping places. They would be less nervous among entertainers of this class if they would write out their remarks and then learn how to pronounce most of the words.

The most rabid and virulent form of nervous attacks a bridegroom just as he is about to walk the plank in the rear of the officiating clergyman. This malady usually induces him to step on the thumb of the bride, kiss his mother-in-law on the left ear and perform numerous minor plesantries which his wife will remind him of far the next thirty years.

Household Notes

When seeding raisins, try soaking them in boiling water, letting them remain in it for two minutes. Pass the water off and open the raisins, and the seeds can be removed easily.

To have your clothes clean and beautiful, white, place a slice of lemon with the wind out off in the boiler. The result is surprising, and will not in any way hurt or injure the clothes.

A large, clean marble boiled in milk, porridge, custards, sauces or steams will automatically do the stirring whilst the liquid cooks. Any chance of burning is prevented, therefore the weariness of constant stirring is avoided and time is saved.

Time and labor are saved, if before preparing vegetables you first spread a piece of brown paper on the table. The refuse and dirt can be rolled up in the paper and burned, leaving the table as clean as it was before.

If the alarm-clock rings too loudly for the peace of the household, slip an elastic band around the bell to diminish the noise; the wider the band, the stronger the suppression, and a few experiments will demonstrate just what width is most desirable.

Dissolve one handful of salt in a pint of vinegar and wash the stove with this solution. Wipe dry with a flannel cloth and put a few drops of turpentine in the blacking with which you finish it off. This will put the rustiest stove in good condition.

Croustons for soup can be made easily in a corn-popper. They will crisp in a moment, and a quantity may be made at a time. Cut the bread into squares of the desired size, place in the long-handled popper and thrust into a glowing furnace.

To bleach clothes that have turned yellow from long use, or from wearing in the dust, put them to soak for about five days in buttermilk. Use a stone jar or a wooden bucket for this purpose. At the end of that time rinse thoroughly and boil in a light lye.

Before dyeing a garment mark each right-hand or left-hand piece, so there

SIR ROBERT BOND

The Statesman Who Saved the Savings Bank and Who is Maligned Now by McGrath; But the People Trust Him as They Did After the Crash.

On Saturday we dealt with two heinous charges: one that Sir Robert Bond had bought the Union and the other that under Sir Robert Bond the Government Savings Bank would be imperilled. We need hardly state that both charges are false, wicked and malicious. We go further and say that no sensible man in the community believes either of the charges, for the object with which they are circulated is plainly to foot the people into returning the Government of Sir Edward Morris. As to the co-operation of Liberal and Union forces under the leadership of Sir Robert Bond, the President of the Fishermen's Protective Union was empowered to make such an arrangement, should it be found feasible, by the Supreme Council at the annual session at Bonavista last session. The association of the Union with the Liberal Party can excite no surprise.

It is manifest that any arrangement must rest mainly on common policy, and when the policy of the Liberal Party and of the F.P.U. was examined it was found that for practical purposes they were largely identical. That, indeed, was the real basis which brought the two forces together and that common policy will be set forth authoritatively at the proper time and by the proper person, viz. Sir Robert Bond, the leader of the Liberal Party, in his Manifesto. As the principle which vivifies the policy common to both forces is the purity of public life, it would be absolutely impossible to find a leader more imbued with that spirit than the Right Honourable Sir Robert Bond. The whole community has

Implicit Faith
In his personal integrity, his high sense of honour, his determination to conserve the interests of the country, and his great strength of character in carrying out what he considers right and just. His strength and pertinacity were shown in his determination not to agree to any settlement of the French Shore question, which he considered was not compatible with the interests of his country. He withstood the British Government and his own leader until such a settlement came within the realms of practical politics, and he succeeded in carrying his points, and his course of conduct was abundantly justified by the settlement effected in the storious convention of 1904. His strength of dark cloud, or, at least, given it a silver lining. He had converted despair into hope, and waited that hope all over the land. In a word, Mr. Bond has cut the Gordian knot of our difficulties and Newfoundland is once more out of danger."

A Forlorn Hope.
In his reply, Sir Robert said in part as follows:—

"When I left here on the 11th May last, it was as the leader of a forlorn hope. The country had been brought to the verge of ruin by the self-seeking of some, and by the apathy of others, and by the deliberate planning of a knavish few. The credit of the Colony was gone, its finances were apparently hopelessly involved, and to many the only avenue of escape from utter ruin lay in the direction of Confederation or Crown Colony."

An Abominable Campaign
As to the difficulties Sir Robert had to encounter and which he fought manfully, here they are described in his own words:—

"They could only wish me good luck and hope for the best. My political opponents predicted failure. As subsequent events proved, with a pertinacity worthy of a holier cause, they dogged my footsteps and flushed their missiles to the money markets of the world. But they over-reached themselves. The very intensity of their attacks defeated their object. Day after day the newspapers of Canada, of the United States and England, contained the most abominable reflections upon the people, and the credit, and the capabilities of this Colony, that had been cabled to them by literary assassins residing in this city. I regret to say that there are in our midst a few individuals so lost to all sense of honesty or decency, so utterly abandoned that they are prepared not only to blast personal character, but to bring wreck and ruin upon the country that is affording them an asylum and a living. If only they may succeed in injuring those whose only crime is that they possess your confidence and respect."

Sir Robert Saved the Savings Bank.
To-day history is repeating itself and we find attacks are being made on the Savings Bank just as they were made by Sir Robert's political opponents eighteen years ago. His opponents stop at nothing, and there is nothing low enough to which they do not stoop in order to obtain political power for themselves. It is incredible but it is true that the Government Savings Bank, in which the people have deposited their money is being made a political football by the Herald to-day, just as it was in 1895, and the man who has done more than any man living or dead to safeguard that institution is attacked as one under whose care the institution would not be safe. Here is what Sir Robert Bond had to say as his efforts on the memorable occasion:—

"When my political opponents found that the loan was an accomplished fact, and that they had been foiled in their attempt to prevent it, they next turned their attention to the Savings Bank, and with all the earnestness of desperadoes, endeavoured to wreck it. They did not know, they do not know to this hour, that I have placed the Savings Bank beyond their power to harm it. I will tell them as a surprise here to-night that not only have I secured a loan for the Colony, but I have also obtained A MILLION OF MONEY FOR THE SAVINGS BANK which is available to meet any call of emergency. I have also arranged for the disposal of the whole of their securities at par. The Savings Bank has been placed in a position to withstand all the winds and storms of the future. If there are many in this multitude who have been frightened into withdrawing their money from the Savings Bank, I pledge you my word most solemnly to-night that what I have told you is true, and I would, as a friend, advise you to return to the Savings Bank and deposit again your savings of a lifetime beyond the reach of the thief or of the fire. There are hundreds in the city who to-night have all their savings hidden away in their homes, through fear created by writers in our local papers."

"I rise to extend a hearty welcome to our able, plucky and shrewd statesman."

Sir William Whiteley said:—
"The last ray of hope seemed to have died in our hearts, we dared not think of what the result would be, should Mr. Bond fail in his mission to get the financial aid required. I have been on missions myself and I know what difficulties I had to contend with; and Mr. Bond will tell you to-night how he was shadowed and belied at every step he took in the direction of raising the required loan."

As to the difficulties which Sir Robert had to face and overcome and that he surmounted them brilliantly, we have the testimony of Sir Edward Morris, on whose behalf McGrath in the Evening Herald is raising a scare against the very institution Sir Robert saved. Here is what Edward Morris said on the occasion we are referring to:—

"When Mr. Bond left here, two months ago, a dark cloud hung over Newfoundland, and few could be found to believe in the ultimate success of his mission; but to-night they knew that that mission had been crowned with success; that by the successful raising of a loan on advantageous terms for the Colony, he has removed that

Editor The Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—The one topic discussed Saturday evening and night in the clubs and halls was the political aspect, nine-tenths of those who did discuss it were ardent supporters of the good old Liberal Party. The carnival of abuse and vituperation inaugurated by the moribund Tories was condemned and the belief was expressed that this is gaining more votes for the coalition party than all that could be said against the Picnic Party. Rest assured, sir, this will be a record victory for Sir Robert Bond and will establish the fact that Toryism is not wanted in this country.
Yours truly,

How Morris to Wreck the Fishermen's Union His Money.

Why should the fisherman be the right to organize, to demand higher prices for his fish, to protect his supplies, his provisions and his property? Has he not the same right to sell his labor and the product of his labor in the dearest market as the cooper, the longshoreman, the artisan class. Every trade-union in this city is organized in the laboring classes. A combination was formed absolutely essential to secure fair play in living wage.

It was not until Coaker organized the fisherman into the great commercial and political organization which we now know as the Fishermen's Protective Union that any successful attempt was made to protect the fishermen of this country for their own interests; and it will be for the fisherman to ask himself, their Union has been treated harshly. It must be fresh in every memory that, when Morris first said the criticisms of his coming by the Union and the Fishermen's Advocate, McGrath made a few remarks on the President of the Union that worthy set apart a week in Chronicle, a paper which has met the fall awaiting the Morris' movement, and made a ferocious onslaught on Coaker, on the Union

FREE LIST BAIT.
Morris has failed absolutely to relieve the strain of taxation on the country. Cashin proposes this to take out of the people twice as much as the Bond Government ten years ago. True, last year Cashin placed certain articles in the Free List, but people regard as a baited election dodge and the bait state. In four successive budgets his Government made attempt to reduce taxation. He said in his Manifesto "It was enough to do this, but instead of doing it, he set to work to pile up a mass of debt on the people. Finance Minister in 1912 told the people that he didn't believe in a policy and there would be no tax on fish. However, he changed his mind and offered the bait in election and the people properly sprung their bait to catch the votes of who had been fooled for four years.

OUTPORT HOSPITALS.
Morris proposed to establish cottage hospitals at suitable outport centres. The only outport which has been told he established one was shack at Burn. We were a photograph of a shack which called by our correspondent as "Burn Hospital." The Government newspaper disclaimed this and declared that no Government had been spent on it. If that was what Morris does to carry the pledge he made five years ago, establishing small cottage hospitals at suitable outport centres?

A Reminder to the Fishermen

How Morris and McGrath Tried to Wreck the Concerns Where the Fisherman Had Invested His Money.

Why should the fisherman be denied the right to organize, to demand better prices for his fish, to procure his supplies, his provisions and his clothes cheaper? Has he not the same right to sell his labor and the produce of his labor in the dearest market as well as the cooper, the longshoreman and the artisan class. Every trade is organized in this city in addition to the laboring classes. Union combination was formed absolutely essential to secure fair play and a living wage.

It was not until Coaker organized the fishermen into the great social, commercial and political organization which we now know as the Fishermen's Protective Union that any successful attempt was made to combine the fishermen of this country for their own interests; and it will be useful for the fisherman to ask himself how their Union has been treated by Morris. It must be fresh in everyone's memory that when Morris failed to stop the criticisms of his corrupt policy by the Union and the Fishermen's Advocate, McGrath made a fierce attack on the President of the Union. That worthy set apart a week in the Chronicle, a paper which has early met the fall awaiting the Morris Government, and made a ferocious onslaught on Coaker, on the Union Trading Company, on the co-operative stores and the Union and its interests generally. Everyone knows the result. McGrath, the mud-slinger-in-chief of Morris, the man whose name stands for all that is vile, or as the Tory Plaindealer put it, all that is basest, meanest and lowest in our public life, received better than he sent. Coaker met him on his own ground and beat him ignominiously. And having done so he made the slanderer eat several dishes of crow for the libels published of the Union Trading Company.

There cannot be any serious doubt that McGrath acted for Sir Edward Morris in making these attacks. These men are in daily conference with each other. Morris made no attempt to stop the onslaught of slander and abuse hurled at the F. P. U., the Trading Company and its President by McGrath. He must then be held more accountable for this attempt to wreck the Union than McGrath. For if he was not directing the attack, or not in sympathy with it, he had only to order McGrath to cease. McGrath works for boodle, and the mere threat to advert the golden stream flowing from the Treasury to his pockets would be sufficient. It is clear no such orders were given, for McGrath did not cease his campaign until he was completely routed by Coaker.

We should like at this juncture, when the Morris candidates will be looking for the votes of Union and non-Union fishermen, to remind all of these potent facts. This was the first successful attempt of the fishermen to organize a union. The Union had borne fruits in various ways well known to all Union men. Yet it is no sooner successfully established and the money of the fishermen embarked in the enterprise than these vicious attacks, these attempts to wreck and destroy it are made by the Morris Government's party newspapers.

You haven't heard of any such attacks made on the Unions of St. John's. Ask yourselves, fishermen of all classes, Union and non-Union, why you were selected by Morris for this onslaught of McGrath? Why should your money be placed in jeopardy because President Coaker refused to cease from criticising the Morris Government in your paper, the Advocate? We need only remind you that if Coaker and the Union were prepared to give political support to Morris, the F. P. U., the Trading Company, the Advocate and other interests carrying your money would have received sympathetic support from Morris and his paid newspapers. But because Coaker refused to countenance the gross corruption everywhere shown in the actions of Morris's Government, this base and vile attempt was ordered to be made to wreck him and the F. P. U., a society which enabled the fisherman for the first time in this country to raise a united voice and demand his rights.

Morris's FAILURES

FREE LIST BAIT.

Morris has failed absolutely to relieve the strain of taxation on the country. Cashin proposes this year to take out of the people twice as much as the Bond Government did ten years ago. True, last session, Cashin placed certain articles on the Free List, but people regard that as a belated election dodge and call the bait stale. In four successive Budgets his Government made no attempt to reduce taxation. Morris said in his Manifesto it was easy enough to do this, but instead of doing it, he set to work to pile up burdens of debt on the people, and his Finance Minister in 1912 told the people that he didn't believe in the policy and there would be no reduction. However, he changed his mind and offered the bait in election year and the people properly spurned it as mere bait to catch the votes of those who had been fooled for four years.

OUTPORT HOSPITALS.

Morris proposed to establish small cottage hospitals at suitable outport centres. The only outport we have been told he established one was in a shack at Burin. We were sent a photograph of a shack which was called by our correspondent as "The Burin Hospital." The Government newspaper disclaimed this and declared that no Government money had been spent on it. If that is so, what has Morris done to carry out the pledge he made five years ago of establishing small cottage hospitals at suitable outport centres?

ELECTIVE ROAD BOARDS.

Morris also promised to pass through the Legislature a simple and inexpensive measure for the election of Outport Road Boards so that the people in outport settlements might enjoy a fuller share in the management of their own local affairs. Five sessions have been held and the Assembly which kept him in power is dissolved, but where is the measure he promised? To-day the Board of Works scandal is one of the worst of the many scandals which is overwhelming the Morris Government with unpopularity. Grants to individuals and families have earned the derisive name of Hush Grants and Family Grants, and people are expressing a wholesome detestation of the wholesale giving-out of public money, for which no adequate returns are made on the roads and other public works. Since May 1st over a quarter of a million dollars has been sent out by the Board of Works. This department needs a thorough overhauling. Officials have been pensioned who were well able to do their work and who objected strongly to be placed on the retired list, but out they had to go to give place to healers who wanted jobs. Salaries have been raised most erratically, not to use a stronger term, for anything but public service, and the service has become a scandal and a machine to raise political capital for the Government. The people are, however, aroused and they will insist on outport monies being managed for the best interests of the people and by the people themselves so far as local management can effect it.

Trenchant Pens.

Trenchant pens are working for the Liberal Party and Bond. Coaker had the offer of $250,000 to betray the men who were behind him, but he would not be bribed. Hundreds of thousands of dollars of public money are being thrown out in bribes, but the people won't swallow.

Who did they try to bribe last year? Who will they try to bribe this year?

Now, Patsy you'll cry more that you did after the Chicago Record Letter, when we get after you. Look out for squalls.

Statesmen, truly good men, must have a hand in this campaign. Sir Robert Bond is a gentleman, is a true man and a good man's son. If days of depression he saved the country, and the idea of the little Patsy being up against him. How ridiculous!

Would that the ballots were counted.

What an exemplary victory. Where are their men coming from?

Obituary.

PATRICK WALSH.

Suddenly and very unexpectedly death came to an estimable citizen Thursday when Mr. Patrick Walsh, of Water Street West, was called to the Great Beyond. Quiet and unostentatious Mr. Walsh, however, was a man of integrity and also of strong force of character and genial personality. He had many friends in the West End and had few if any enemies. He leaves a wife and several children and three sisters, viz., Mrs. P. Allan, Mrs. John Fitzgerald and Mrs. Louis Muldowney, of Witless Bay. To the bereaved family The Evening Telegram offers its sincere condolence.

MR. MARK FAGEUR.

Mr. Leonard Rose, Warden of H. M. S. Penitentiary, had a letter a couple of days ago advising him of the death of his brother-in-law Mr. Mark Faguer at 742 Franklin Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y. Mr. Faguer's death occurred on August 31st and was a man well known in Brooklyn, was a native of Lower Island Cove, and was 18 years out of the Colony, going at first to Pittsburgh, Pa., and later to Brooklyn. He married Miss Robin, of Bonavista, and died in the promise of life, being only 40 years at his death. Besides his wife he leaves a mother, one daughter, two sisters and a brother to whom The Evening Telegram extends its sympathy.

Rossley Opens Vaudeville Season.

To-night the A. B. Marcus Tabloid Co., known as the Musical Minstrel Maids, open their engagement. This is a first-class vaudeville combination, each and every member a qualified performer. Among the principals are several well known New York artists. There is an operatic singer, Western cow-boy rope spinner, human mechanical doll, acrobatic dancer, buck and wing dancer, baby queen, an infant prodigy; a Scotch and Irish dancer, and winner of 32 medals; a black face comedian, a Gypsy violinist, a Hebrew comedian, a musical director, a dancing director, an electrician, gorgeous costumes, novel electrical effects, splendid stage settings. Surely enough variety to please all, and each and every show is clean and they guarantee a laugh per minute. In fact a lollar show for twenty cents.

Nervous Dyspepsia, Gas or Indigestion

Each "Pape's Diapepsin" digests 3000 grains food, ending all stomach misery in five minutes.

Time! Pape's Diapepsin will digest anything you eat and overcome our gassy or out-of-order stomachs surely within five minutes.

If your meals don't fit comfortably or what you eat lies like a lump of lead in your stomach, or if you have heartburn, that is a sign of Indigestion.

Get from your Pharmacist a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin and take a dose just as soon as you can. There will be no more sour risings, no belching of undigested food mixed with acid, no stomach gas or heartburn, fullness or heavy feeling in the stomach, Nauseas, Debilitating Headaches, Dizziness or Intestinal griping. This will all go, and, besides, there will be no sour food left over in the stomach to poison your breath with nauseous odors.

Pape's Diapepsin is a certain cure for out-of-order stomachs, because it takes hold of your food and digests it just the same as if your stomach wasn't there.

Relief in five minutes from all stomach misery is waiting for you at any drug store.

These large 50-cent cases contain more than sufficient to thoroughly cure almost any case of Dyspepsia, Indigestion or any other stomach disorder.

Hr. Grace Notes.

Little Dorothy Gorman, who was so seriously scalded a few months ago, is fast recovering under the skillful treatment and constant attendance of Dr. Cron. Her parents are loud in their praises of the general doctor for his kindness and attention to their little one.

The s.s. Coban is expected here on Monday with a cargo of 1,200 tons of coal to the Harbor Grace Coal Co.

Mr. Dunphy, of St. John's and Mr. Rideout, of the West Coast, were in town during the week, and put up at the West End Hotel.

Head Constable Sheppard had a grocer before the court to-day for selling the well-known tonic Beef, Iron and Wine, and another party also for selling hop beer.

Maggie Martin, the youngest child of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Martin, Victoria Street, fell over the stairs at their home last night and broke her left arm. Dr. Cron was called and attended to the fractured limb.

The troutiers who were in the country on Wednesday last, had a very pleasant day and good sport. Some fine catches of splendid trout were secured. The season closes on Monday week.

Mrs. George Gordon and Mrs. Arch Gordon left by this morning's train for St. John's.

Mrs. George B. Coffin and three children returned to St. John's on Thursday morning after spending some time with her parents Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Parsons, of Bryant's Cove. Mrs. Coffin also spent a few days with friends here.

Mrs. W. Woods, and Mrs. J. Forsey, of Grand Bank, also left by Thursday morning's train for home. They had been on a visit to Mrs. Selby Parsons.

Mrs. William Hawkins, formerly of this town, but now of Sydney, is in Carboneau on a visit to her mother. She also stayed a few days here, the guest of Miss B. Hawkins.

War on Ragwort

Senecio Jacobaea.

The Halifax Agricultural Society has been engaged during the past few weeks in a laudable effort to rid the section of country from Bedford to Richmond of that most undesirable exotic popularly known as "Stinking Willie," which has cost the farmers of portions of Pictou and Antigonish Counties the loss of many hundreds of cattle, sheep and horses. Farm after farm has been abandoned because the presence of ragwort has made it impossible to keep stock. On some farms all that was left was a solitary pig. Animals once attacked by hepatic cirrhosis—the disease induced by the ingestion of ragwort-infected hay—never recover.

Men have been employed during the past fortnight to cut, pull and destroy the ragwort while in bloom, throughout the district above named. From a small patch at Bedford a few years ago ragwort has spread until it has become general along the western side of the Basin to Dutch Village, and unless systematic and continuous efforts are made to destroy the blooms the country will soon be overpread with this noxious plant from Hubbard's to Ecum Secum.

Ragwort is a biennial, coming up one year and flowering the next, and in consequence, it will take about three years to thoroughly subdue it in any infested district.

The plant was introduced into Halifax County chiefly through the importation of infested hay. The seed may be carried in the wool of sheep and is borne down the streams in time of flood. The Stewiacke River on the confines of Pictou County Senecio luxuriates in undisturbed vigor and thus the seed is carried down stream and passes by stages over the divide to the Valley of the Musquodobit.

The Halifax County Municipal Council recently placed posters and colored plates of Senecio in many public places throughout the County, so that everyone may be able to recognize the plant.—Halifax Record, Sept. 3.

Mother The Child is Costive, Bilious

Don't hesitate! A laxative is necessary if tongue is coated, breath bad or stomach sour.

Give "California Syrup of Figs" at once—a teaspoonful to-day often saves a sick child to-morrow.

If your little one is out-of-sorts, half-sick, isn't resting, eating and acting naturally—look, Mother! see if tongue is coated. This is a sure sign that it's little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with waste. When cross, irritable, feverish, stomach sour, breath bad or has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, sore throat, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the constipated poison, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of its little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again.

Mothers can rest easy after giving this harmless "fruit laxative," because it never fails to cleanse the little one's liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach and they dearly love its pleasant taste. Full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups printed on each bottle. Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs;" then see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Don't be fooled!

A Splendid Collection.

Yesterday the people of St. John's responded generously to the appeal made to them to help the orphan children of St. Michael's, Belvidere. The collection was a record one. In the Cathedral Parish the proceeds over $200 in advance of last year and St. Patrick's (including Kilbride and Littledale) gives an increase of $50.

This gives a collection of which the contributors should feel proud and which the good-nuns and their little charges will appreciate.

Cathedral	$1,428.99
St. Patrick's	506.97
Kilbride	22.85
Littledale	28.75
St. Joseph's	40.00
Logy Bay	11.00

"The Heart Bowed Down"

At The Nickel To-day.

Probably the greatest programme ever given at the Nickel Theatre will be presented to-day. There will be our full reels of excellent pictures, the new English comic singer will make his first appearance, and the great heroine, John W. Myers, will sing "The Heart Bowed Down" for which his friends have been waiting for the last couple of months. Everybody is anxious to hear him in this song, and no doubt there will be a record attendance.

Won't We Surprise Them.

Quietly in St. John's West youngsters formed up several committees to support the Liberal Party in November next. Young and old are more than interested in this movement and the intelligent views taken by these young men come as a surprise. Three Bond men, sure, for the West End. Morris knows that the West End is gone. He has quit any hope in that direction. He had to Bond and Coaker can't lose.

Your Duty.

Nothing to do with the Custom House, good friend. Its only reference just now is to yourself. Let us suppose that you are a man of family with sufficient of the world's goods to keep them in comfort. Very well. You did not reach this satisfactory state of affairs without care and labour—few men do. Suppose you are awakened some night with shouts of alarm ringing in your ears. Too late then to talk of prudence; too late then to say: "If I had only, etc., etc." That "If" means too much to many forgetful people. Is it not always the duty of a self-respecting citizen to protect his home and thus provide for those within it. Is it any more then his duty to those depending on him to protect them as far as possible? Can you call your property your own when it is not insured? The answer to this argument is to carry insurance with Percie Johnson's agency, the most popular office in Newfoundland and the least expensive.

Team Returned.

The baseball team and those with them returned from Grand Falls by the express yesterday. They had a most enjoyable trip.

LONDON, Sept. 7.
The unanimous protest of the press against holding the Board of Trade enquiry into the Aisgill disaster, behind closed doors, had effect, and the investigation yesterday re-opened in public session. The evidence was sensational, although it embraced only the statements from the men employed on the stationary express. Nicholson, the engine driver, told the Inspector that his locomotive had failed for want of steam, and that the failure was due to unsuitable coal. The locomotive was hauling 243 tons up the steep incline at Aisgill, although the usual limit was 230 tons. His request at Carlisle for an auxiliary engine had been refused. Metcalf, the fireman, said the coal, being so small, he could not keep up steam. He revealed how, by running back to the signal box after the collision, he had stopped a freight train, which was approaching from the south.

Shopping at Ottawa.

In Ottawa the credit system has become so completely the habit of shoppers and storekeepers alike, that it is said the dealers even object to taking cash. The story is told of the wife of a Toronto newspaper man, who became a member of the Press Gallery a few years ago, that when she offered to pay cash to her grocer, that worthy objected. She had asked him for a reduction in the price of her purchases, stating that she was willing to pay cash, and that as everyone else seemed to demand credit, and long credit, at that, she thought she ought to be given a discount.

"My dear madam," said he, "I could not allow you a discount of any kind. Moreover, I would prefer that you should go on the credit system like everyone else. The books are there, and you might as well use them. It would only be a nuisance to have one customer paying cash when everyone else goes on credit. What would be the use of me taking 50c. or 60c. cash up to the bank after a day's business?"

During Dr. Howlett's temporary absence from the city his practice will be conducted by Dr. M. S. Power.—sep6, di

Official Report
Baseball at Grand Falls

St. John's Wins R. G. Reid Cup.
After an uneventful trip, the city baseball team, accompanied by a number of rooters regaled Grand Falls on Friday at 10.30 a.m. where they were welcomed by Dr. Chamberlain, Manager of the Grand Falls team and most of the players. Through the courtesy of Mr. Jones, of the A.N.D. Co., the visitors were then shown through the paper mills, which proved very interesting. The magnitude of the plant was a revelation to many, and the efficient organization reflects great credit on those in charge. The team then adjourned to dinner, and at 3 o'clock, Umpire Judge declared "Play Ball." Lord Northcliffe, who is visiting Grand Falls on a business trip, delivering the first ball amid the cheers of a large crowd of spectators. The mills were closed at 3 o'clock to give everyone an opportunity of seeing the game.

St. John's went first to bat and had begun to bat Burg pretty freely, scoring one run and getting three men on base with none out, when Hiltz hit a liner to Hackett. Shortstop of the Grand Falls team, who pulled it down with one hand, doubling up the men on first and second base. This play seemed to affect the city team, and they did not play their usual steady game, with the result that the paper men scored seven runs in their first innings. At the end of the third innings, the score stood sixteen runs to three in favor of the Grand Falls team, and things began to look pretty blue for the city team. However, their fighting spirit had not all died, and they began to regain confidence, tying the score in the seventh inning after a great uphill fight. In the ninth and last inning, the city was leading by 26 to 25, but Brown who replaced Anderson in the sixth inning, was unable to hold this lead, the paper men scoring two runs and winning the game 27 runs to 26.

By winning the game, Grand Falls was now on an even footing with St.

John's, each team having defeated Bell Island, besides having a victory over each other. After a consultation amongst the officials, it was decided that Grand Falls and St. John's should play the deciding game of the series for the Championship on Saturday, since Bell Island had not put in an appearance for their second game, either in St. John's or Grand Falls, and therefore, forfeited their rights to compete for the trophy any more this season.

Precisely at nine o'clock Saturday morning, both teams lined up again, Burg and Anderson doing mound duty. St. John's, who batted first, scored five runs in the first inning against their opponents one. At the end of the third inning, Grand Falls was leading by ten runs to eight and both teams were playing very snappy ball. From the fourth inning on, however, the city team pulled steadily away from their opponents, winning the game by 29 runs to 15, which victory gives them the R. G. Reid trophy for this year.

Lord and Lady Northcliffe also attended the second game, together with Mr. and Mrs. M. Beeton and Capt. Beach, A.D.C., all of whom seemed to enjoy the game immensely. Friday evening, in honor of Lord and Lady Northcliffe, a reception and dance was given in the town hall, and an invitation having been extended to the St. John's visitors, they all attended in a body. The hall was very tastefully decorated and the electrical display was wonderful, the stage having been turned into a miniature fairground, with the aid of hundreds of colored lights. Lord Northcliffe in a brief speech thanked the hosts for the hearty welcome accorded him, and also expressed his appreciation of the manner in which the paper-men had so well adapted themselves to baseball.

The Grand Falls Athletic Club very kindly placed their club rooms at the disposal of the visitors, which was highly appreciated. In the sports, J. J. Strang, of St. John's, the only entrant from the city, captured second prize in the quarter mile run, winning a handsome trophy. During the afternoon, the sports were enjoyed by all, and the St. John's boys are unanimous in voting the Grand Falls crowd the best ever. Mr. Hawvermale is to be complimented on the able manner in which he conducted the trip, which we hope will become an annual fixture. Those who accompanied the players were J. O. A Weak Heart

"An interesting British report suggests that science has prolonged the lives of very young city folks, but not of the middle-aged. A series of tables compiled from reports of the Registrar-General and covering seventy years shows that for males between five and ten years of age the death-rate has declined sixty-four per cent, while for those between forty-five and fifty-five years of age it has declined only three per cent—and for the next decade there is an actual increase of mortality. For both men and women between the ages of forty-five and sixty-five there is no decrease in the death-rate. Doctor Newsholme finds that for both men and women in this period of middle life diseases of the heart and blood-vessels were registered as the causes of about one-third of the total deaths.

"Apparently, then, for those who reach middle life in fairly good physical condition the heart is the chief source of danger. Fortunately everybody knows that excessive use of intoxicants and tobacco and coffee weaken the heart.

"At this season, when New Year's vows are falling like leaves of autumn, we abstain from urging anybody to stop drinking or smoking or overindulgence in coffee. Go ahead—if you think your heart will stand it!"

"How Shall the Heathen be ed?" was the subject used by A. H. Macmillan, of New York, in his lecture at the British yesterday afternoon. He said part:—

"According to statistics furnished by the British and United States Governments, the heathen have increased from six hundred million twelve hundred millions during past century, and are now dying the rate of 90,000 every twenty hours in Christless despair. We consider this appalling condition after one hundred years of unrelenting Missionary efforts, the question naturally arise in our minds, the world ever be converted, where will this vast multitude human beings spend eternity?"

He then referred to the conditions in Christian lands quoting Church statistics in America to that the Church was not big enough to convert the heathen; that if it ever would be done we look to a higher power than we possess. At this point he read many texts from the Bible to that God has the power and does convert the world. He then asked the question: "In view of the fact that God so loved the world He gave His only begotten Son for the human race, and He is Almighty, why has He not cised this power in behalf of heathen to the end that they be enlightened?"

"The Bible," said he, "gives the only satisfactory answer to question, viz., the time for God carry out this feature of His plan for man's salvation has come. ### FATE OF NON-BELIEVERS.

"How Shall the Heathen be Saved?" was the subject used by Pastor A. H. MacMillan, of New York City, in his lecture at the British Hall, yesterday afternoon. He said in part:—

"According to statistics furnished by the British and United States Governments, the heathen have increased from six hundred millions to twelve hundred millions during the past century, and are now dying at the rate of 90,000 every twenty-four hours in Christless despair. When we consider this appalling condition after one hundred years of unparalleled Missionary efforts, the questions naturally arise in our minds, will the world ever be converted, and where will this vast multitude of human beings spend eternity?"

He then referred to the conditions in Christian lands quoting from Church statistics in America to show that the Church was not strong enough to convert the heathen, and that if it ever would be done we must look to a higher power than we now possess. At this point he quoted many texts from the Bible to prove that God has the power and desire to convert the world. He then introduced the question: "In view of the fact that God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son to die for the human race, and that He is Almighty, why has He not exercised this power in behalf of the heathen to the end that they might be enlightened?"

"The Bible," said he, "furnishes the only satisfactory answer to this question, viz., the time for God to carry out this feature of His great plan for man's salvation has not yet come. God is a God of order, and has a 'due time' for everything, and the Bible points out that the present age is devoted to the selection of the Church, a little flock in all, from all nations of the earth, and these when glorified with Christ will reign with Him 1,000 years, during which time the world will be converted. For Scriptural evidence on this point see the following texts: Acts 15:14-17; Luke 12:22; Rev. 20:6; Jer. 31:31-34; Hag. 2:14.

"During this 1,000 year reign of Christ and the Church, Satan will be bound and his present influence over the human race will be taken away

(Rev. 20:1-3). Then the work of destroying evil will go on without opposition. Then the knowledge of the Lord will fill the earth as the waters cover the sea, and all will know the Lord from the least to the greatest.

"Those saved during this reign of Christ will not die and go to Heaven, but will be restored to human perfection, as Adam was in the beginning, and will find their Heaven here on earth. St. Peter says that all the holy prophets of God referred to that time when they foretold the restoration of all things; see Acts 3:19-21. The whole earth will then be made like the Garden of Eden, and the countless millions of heathen who have died in ignorance, will be brought back from the sleep of death, as Ezekiel says in the 16th chapter and 5th verse, 'they will return to their former estate,' and then they will receive their first and only opportunity for salvation, which will consist of restoration to human perfection.

"At the end of this thousand-year reign of Christ, which accomplishes this restoration, Satan will be loosed out of his prison to test those restored ones. Some of them he will deceive and lead astray, as he did Adam and Eve. These, together with Satan will be destroyed in the 'lake of fire,' which is a symbol of the second death." See Rev. 20:15. Jesus will then deliver up the Kingdom to God, who will turn it over to Adam and his race, for whom it was originally intended as stated in Isaiah 45:17-18; Matt. 25:34; 1 Cor. 15:25-28. Then God's great plan in respect to this world will have been proven to be in harmony with His great attributes of Love, Justice, Wisdom and Power, and Christ's mission to earth a complete success, for, said He, I came to save THAT which was lost. (Matt. 18:11.)

STATEMENT MADE BY EDWIN BOWER HESSER.

Opera Impresario Announces Extra Opera Performance of "Il Trovatore" as Wednesday Matinee.

Edwin Bower Hesser, the opera impresario, arrived on Saturday, and is staying at Waterford Hall. He made the journey to Newfoundland from Boston expressly to attend the first grand operatic presentation in the history of the colony, which will start to-night at the Total Abstinence Hall (Casino Theatre). Mr. Hesser made the following statement to the Evening Telegram.

"Through a misunderstanding the general public has received the impression that the Grand Opera Festival would take place on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday nights, whereas I had planned that the festival be on Monday and Tuesday nights and Wednesday afternoon, the company to leave St. John's on the 6 o'clock train on Wednesday. But to keep faith with the expectations of the opera season subscribers I have cancelled the Friday night engagement in Sydney, and will play the three nights here. The opera "Don Pasquale" has been abandoned as far as this tour is concerned, and the much more wonderful "I Pagliacci" substituted. Thus "Cavalleria Rusticana" will be sung Monday night, "La Traviata" Tuesday night and "I Pagliacci" on Wednesday night.

Wednesday afternoon being a holiday, I have decided to give a gala performance of "Il Trovatore" on that day. "Il Trovatore" is one of the most glorious of all operas, and was the greatest success of the season in Halifax. The cast will be:

Mauricio . . . . . M. Umberto Sacchetti
Leonora . . . . . Mme. Maria de Gabbi
Conte de Luna . . . . . M. Pietro Vittone
Ferrando . . . . . M. Edgar Littleton
Inez . . . . . Mlle. Edith Sinclair
Ruiz . . . . . M. Romeo Lopardina
Musical Director, Maestro John Craig Kelley.

I am sure "Il Trovatore" will be a great treat to music lovers and as it is an extra performance I have made the seat prices range from 50c. to $2.00. The seats will be placed on sale at the Atlantic Bookstore on Tuesday morning, but reservations may be made on Monday.

"The entire regular series is practically sold out, and Mr. William H. Flower tells me that many seats subscribed for have not yet been called for at the Atlantic Bookstore. He urges that these seats be secured early on Monday, in fairness to others who would take the choice reserved seats if they had their opportunity.

"In Halifax and every other city visited the concert programme preceding the opera each night have made a great success. Such wonderful numbers as the two famous trios from "Faust," the quartette from "Rigoletto," and the sextette from "Lucia" will be sung to-night preceding "Cavalleria Rusticana" and the various stars will also be heard in numbers best suited to their varied abilities.

"I thoroughly feel that the season will be a success, and I shall plan to repeat it each year in the future."

Hydrant Juice.

I've tried a thousand fancy drinks to drive my large green thirst away, and some were mixed with twenty winks, and some required a half a day, I've taken drinks from Aspinwall to Broken Bow, and up to Nome; and some were served in flagons tall from which I blithely drew the foam; I've drunk were healing springs "bountiful" and swallowed stuff that made me jump; and nothing better have I found than water from the village pump. The soda fountain is a peach when man in summer starts to broil, when he's so dry his innards screech like whinnies that are needing oil; the fountain in the corner store was once my favorite haunt; and this I noticed o'er and o'er—the more I drank the more I'd want. My wife grew tired of washing dishes, to raise the money for my fizz, and said, "You'll drink some cheaper suds, as sure as my first name is Liz." Deprive them of the revenue which long had kept me from the dump, I shunned the soda font and drew my juice from the village pump. And now I'm boasting Adam's ale in seven languages and more; the only drink that costs no kale, and leaves you better than before. I argue strongly that the man who doesn't hit it is a chump, and as I talk I swig a can of water from the village pump.

Stephano's Passengers.

The Stephano sailed at 4 p.m. Saturday, for Halifax and New York. Here passengers were: Miss A. Dooley, Miss F. Pike, Mr. Skinner, W. A. Lingham, Miss A. Shonott, Miss Ryan, Miss M. Kennedy, F. C. Grant, T. Barron, Miss J. Rendell, Miss R. Sinnott, W. Whisor, E. Jewell, Dr. C. Howlett, R. O. Ruster, Mr. Landau, Mrs. R. Duff, Masters Duff (2), Miss Pike, Miss Power and several in steerage.

Minimise The Loss.

Practically farmers may easily minimise the loss, due to a backward and cold season, by the judicious use of Sulphate of Ammonia as a fertilizer.

Sulphate of Ammonia contains over 20 per cent of nitrogen, as against 15 per cent in Nitrate of Soda, and is therefore more than 25 per cent better than nitrate of soda as a means of quickening and increasing the growth of crops.

The use of Sulphate of Ammonia has increased enormously of late years and it is recognized to be the most valuable fertilizer obtainable. By its judicious use the production of root crops per acre may be doubled, and the growth of late crops stimulated.

We invite the attention of Farmers to our special pamphlet on the best methods of using Sulphate, copies of which will be forwarded free to any address on application.

The price of Sulphate is moderate and our terms are accommodating.

Come to the Holyrood Garden Party.

SEPTEMBER 10th.

Under the patronage of Rev. W. P. Finn, and in charge of the ladies of the Altar Society, assisted by an active and enthusiastic committee of gentlemen, and with the worthy object to procure sufficient funds to complete Holy Cross Church, the Garden Party will be held on Malheur's Field, Holyrood, Wednesday, the last general holiday. Rev. Father Finn a large-hearted and noble gentleman, bids you all a hearty welcome, and his zealous ladies' committee are making the fullest preparations to receive a large number of youths from the city and bay towns on that day. A large quantity of provisions and groceries, and luxuries and delicacies have been supplied and stored on the field and there dimer and refreshment tables will attractively cater to the wants of hungry travellers, tourists, holiday-spenders, pleasure seekers, and the most fastidious epicures. An amusing and very attractive programme of games will be presented by the Sports' Committee—some comic and interesting features of which will be "Aunt Sally" and her three valiant sons, "Obadiah," "Hezekiah" and "Dannuriah," and the Pony Race, in which some of the best ponies of the district will compete, and for which valuable prizes have been offered. The C. C. C. of Carbonear, will render the music on the field, and Mailman P. Hickey will discourse sweet music for the dance in the hall at night. Holyrood combines features for an enjoyable day's outing not found in any other town within easy reach of St. John's, its accessibility to the city, its picturesque though rugged and romantic scenery, its courteous and hospitable citizens, lend to the attraction of visitors, and to its unrivalled popularity for happy and pleasure-bent holiday-spenders. "Coming events cast their shadows before." The ladies' committee have already on hand a handsome sum donated by generous outside patrons, and when crowned with the ultimate success it deserves on next Wednesday, Father Finn's Garden Party will stand unrivalled as the biggest event in the history of Holyrood. So to all that want to help a worthy and catholic enterprise, to enjoy a pleasant holiday at a moderate cost where sea and country air combine for good cheer and good health, and last but not least, to all that want to participate in the big time in the Star Hall at night we say come to Holyrood on Wednesday next, Sept. 10th.—Com.

City of Sydney Sails.

The S. S. City of Sydney sailed on Saturday afternoon for Sydney and Montreal. Her passengers were W. F. Norman, E. D. Minnis, Miss H. Taylor, Miss J. W. Manning, John Manning, D. Tobin, Miss Kennedy, R. Bennett, Mr. Keating and child, M. L. Scott, J. Foley, W. Pearce, Miss F. Wilcox, J. S. Ashworth and five in steerage.

BAD FISHERY.

The s.s. Sagona, which arrived here from Fogo District yesterday brings a poor report of the fishery in that district down to Change Islands and the Wadhams. Bad weather and scarcity of bait are the principal drawbacks.

A Popular Plan
as results already show
Many letters are arriving from widely-scattered sections of Canada and Newfoundland asking for copies of our Partial Payment Plan booklet. These bear out our belief from the start that the new plan would prove popular.
Some orders have been entered, but of course it's too early to expect more, as it's only during the past ten days that we have been sending out the booklet.
It is the strong interest as manifested in these letters that is especially gratifying, containing, as they do, assurances that our Partial Payment Plan is something the public really wanted.
