WHY EXPERIMENT?

Food scientists claim that the leavener largely responsible for the flavor, texture and wholesomeness of your home baking. That on no other one ingredient does so much depend. It is important, therefore, to use a baking powder that you know possesses the necessary leavening qualities.

MAGIC BAKING POWDER
Contains No Alum

and is the only strictly high class baking powder in Canada selling at a moderate price. Its reputation is built on purity and highest quality.

The only well known medium priced baking powder made in Canada that does not contain alum and that has all its ingredients plainly stated on the label.

CHAPTER VII.
A RARE DIAMOND.

"Do you want me to take that as a compliment?" she said. "Am I the big nugget—the rare diamond which you discovered?"

He finished more deeply, and looked at her pleadingly.

"I am such an idiot that I can't express myself," he said, apologetically. "I meant that the whole thing—your kindness and goodness to me was so precious that I didn't want a lot of people talking about it. I wanted to keep it to myself, as something especially belonging to me, something too precious to discuss with others. I'm afraid I can't make you understand."

"You do yourself an injustice," she said. "You express yourself very well!"

"Now you are laughing at me," he said.

"As you would laugh at me, Lord Neville, if I looked what you said!" she retorted, not sharply, but with a sweet gravity that was indescribable.

"I said I would tell you the truth, and I've told nothing but the truth," he said, earnestly. "I daresay it seems strange to you that I should have this feeling about our meeting yesterday. I daresay you forgot all about it half an hour afterwards."

Why should you remember it, you have so much to think of?"

Doris turned her face away, lest her eyes should betray her, and tell him how much, how constantly she had thought of him.

"You," he went on, "who are so clever and gifted, a great actress, with no end of people round you—"

She looked at him with a passive smile.

"But you are wrong," she said. "I am not a great actress. Last night was my first success, if success it was—"

"There is no 'if' about it!" he said, with fervent enthusiasm. "It was a tremendous success. Why, I heard people declare that there had been nothing like it since Kate Terry's Juliet. And I—though I'm not of much account—I was never so much carried out of myself. Why, to tell you how great and grand you were, I actually forgot that you were the young lady who was so good to me yesterday, and only thought of you as Shakespeare's Juliet; and I felt quite ashamed that I had ever given so much trouble to so great a personage."

His warm, ardent praise touched her, and her lips quivered.

"Juliet was only a simple girl, after all," she said. "If she had chanced to have been placed in my position yesterday, she would have done the same."

"I don't know about that," he said. "I'm not clever, like you," and he pushed his hair off his brows with a deprecatory gesture. "But I know you must have something else to think of than the fellow who was such an idiot as to jump a hedge before he saw what was on the other side; and, of course, you must have no end of people round you."

"But I have not. You are quite wrong," she said, with her sweet, thoughtful smile. "I live with an old friend, who has been a father to me. I haven't any father or mother, and I see no one except at the theatre, and then only in the way of business," and she laughed.

He listened as if every word she dropped from her sweetly-curved lips were a pearl.

"How strange it sounds! You so clever and beau— So great an actress."

"Yes," she said, dreamily, "I suppose it does sound strange. Everybody thinks that an actress must be the gayest of the gay; surrounded by light-hearted people, turning night into day, and living on champagne and roast chicken." She smiled. "Jeffrey and I know scarcely any one, and I do not think I have tasted champagne, excepting once, when one of the managers had a benefit; and we go straight to bed directly we get home from the theatre; and oh! it is quite different to what people imagine."

He drew forward a little, so that the hand upon which he leant touched the edge of her cotton dress.

"And—and you didn't quite forget our strange meeting?"

"I am not in the habit of seeing gentlemen flung from their horses at my feet, Lord Neville," she said; and I tried not to because—"

"Because?" she said. "Pray go on," and she smiled.

"Well," he said, modestly, "because it seemed like presumption. And then I went to the theatre, and—" He stopped. "For a moment or two I couldn't believe that it was really you on the stage there. And when the people in the theatre began to shout out your name it woke me from a kind of dream."

She smiled in silence; then she made a movement threatening her departure.

"Ah, wait a little while!" he pleaded. "It is delightful here in the sunshine. Don't go for a minute or two. I wish—"

He stopped.

"What is it you wish?" she asked, regarding him with smiling eyes that drooped under his ardent ones.

"Well," he said, "I wish that you would let me go home with you and see Mr. Jeffrey—"

"Jeffrey Flint!" she said. She shook her head. "He sees no one, makes no acquaintances. He—he is very reserved."

Speaking of him reminded her of the fact that he would strongly disapprove of her interview with this strange young gentleman. She rose.

"I must go now," she said. "I have not asked whether you were hurt by your fall, Lord Neville; but I hope you were not."

"Must you go?" he said, ignoring the rest of her sentence as of no account. "We seem to have been talking only a few minutes. And there was such a lot that I wanted to say. I wanted to tell you all that I thought when I saw you last night; but I couldn't if I had the chance, because I am a perfect idiot when it comes to expressing myself. But I do think it was wonderful. Are you to play to-night? But of course you are."

"Yes," she said, absently. "I play to-night. I play every night."

"I shall be there," he said, as if it were a matter of course.

She looked at him thoughtfully.

"Of course I shall," he said. "Why, last night I seemed to have a kind of interest in it which the other people

The Man Who Banished Corns

Blue-jay was invented by a scientist of distinction. By a man whose lifetime has been spent in the study of surgical dressings.

This is a master's method—correct, complete and efficient. And the millions of people who know it, never think of enduring a corn.

All in One

The first step is to stop the pain. This is done by removing all pressure—by the soft protecting ring marked A.

The next step is to gently cause the corn to disappear.

This is done by the remarkable B & B Wax, which no corn can resist.

This bit of wax—marked B—is centered on the corn. It cannot spread. So, unlike old-time methods, it acts on the corn alone.

C is rubber-coated adhesive. This snugly wraps the application, protecting everything.

You apply this Blue-jay in a jiffy. The corn pain stops at once. The wrapping is comfortable and you forget it.

In two days you remove it and the corn can be lifted out. Only rare corns need a second application.

This is the scientific way, the easy, sure and right way to end corns. You will never return to any wrong method when you try a Blue-jay once.

Try it tonight!

in the theatre hadn't. Yes. As if—as if—I knew you intimately, you know. Of course I shall, be there. And I shall bring a big bouquet. What flowers do you like best?"

She almost started, as if she had been listening to him. As a matter of fact, she had been listening to the deep, measured voice rather than the words.

"Flowers? Oh—violets," she said, unthinkingly.

"Why!" he exclaimed, "that is what I threw you last night! Of course you didn't know. You can't see beyond the footlights, can you? I've heard you can't. Violets, I'll get some. I shall take a seat in the stall to-night. I shall see and hear you better there."

"I should have thought you had seen and heard me enough already," she said, with a smile.

"No, but I haven't," he responded, eagerly. "I couldn't see you or hear you too much if I looked at you and listened to you all day."

Her face grew crimson, but she turned her head towards him with a smile on her face.

"For flattery, pure and simple, I don't think you could surpass that Lord Neville."

"Flattery!" he exclaimed, as if hurt. "It is no flattery, it is the honest truth. And, Miss Marlowe, I do not ask you to believe—"

He saw her start and lift her head as if listening, and looking up to ascertain the cause, saw that her eyes were fixed upon some spot behind him, and he heard the sound of footsteps.

"I must go," she said, as if suddenly awakened to a sense of the situation.

"Ah, no," he breathed. Then he leant towards her with half-timid eagerness. "Will you come to-morrow?"

The footsteps came nearer.

"I promise—nothing," said Doris, her brows coming together, and with a half-glance at his earnest face she glided away from him.

Lord Neville rose and looked after her with the expression which encompassed the desire to follow her; but in that moment a hand fell lightly upon his shoulder, and a voice exclaimed:

"What, Classy!"

Lord Neville swung round.

"Hallo, Spencer!" he said. "Why, what on earth brought you here?"

CHAPTER VIII.
SPENCER CHURCHILL.

The new-comer was a man apparently of middle age. I say apparently, because opinions on that subject were extremely conflicting. Some persons regarded Spencer Churchill as quite a young man, others declared that he had reached the meridian of life, and there were some who were inclined to think that he was, if anything, on the verge of an old age. His appearance was singular. He was of medium height, with a figure that was either naturally youthful or admirably preserved. He was frail almost to effeminacy, and he wore his hair long and brushed back from his face; and he was close shaven. But it was not the length of the hair that lent him his singularity, but the expression of his face and his manner.

If he was not the most amiable of men, his countenance belied him. There was always a smile, soft and bland and good-tempered in his eyes, on his lips, and, as the Irishman said, "all over him." The smile, in conjunction with the fair face and long hair, gave him so confiding and benevolent an expression that the world had long come to the conclusion that Spencer Churchill was the epitome of all the virtues.

Most women were fond of confiding in him; most men—not all—trusted him; he was regarded by crossing-sweepers, waiters, and beggars generally as their natural prey, and so effective was his smile, that even when he did not bestow his alms, he always received a blessing from the disappointed ones.

SPENCER CHURCHILL.

The new-comer was a man apparently of middle age. I say apparently, because opinions on that subject were extremely conflicting. Some persons regarded Spencer Churchill as quite a young man, others declared that he had reached the meridian of life, and there were some who were inclined to think that he was, if anything, on the verge of an old age. His appearance was singular. He was of medium height, with a figure that was either naturally youthful or admirably preserved. He was frail almost to effeminacy, and he wore his hair long and brushed back from his face; and he was close shaven. But it was not the length of the hair that lent him his singularity, but the expression of his face and his manner.

If he was not the most amiable of men, his countenance belied him. There was always a smile, soft and bland and good-tempered in his eyes, on his lips, and, as the Irishman said, "all over him." The smile, in conjunction with the fair face and long hair, gave him so confiding and benevolent an expression that the world had long come to the conclusion that Spencer Churchill was the epitome of all the virtues.

Most women were fond of confiding in him; most men—not all—trusted him; he was regarded by crossing-sweepers, waiters, and beggars generally as their natural prey, and so effective was his smile, that even when he did not bestow his alms, he always received a blessing from the disappointed ones.

Russia Asks for the Dardanelles.

U. S. Senate Applauds Wilson --- Unlawful Associations Proclamation --- Coal Miners Hold Government Responsible --- Holland Curtly Replies to Five Council.

ATTACHES BLAME TO GOVERNMENT.

LONDON, July 10. (Reuter's.)—In an official statement of the miners' position regarding Sir Eric Geddes' announcement of July 9, the miners deny that any justification has been shown for an increase of six shillings per ton. In any case, they contend that the Government which had absolute control of the miners and dictated to both owners and miners the settlement of disputes regarding wages and conditions is responsible for the result. The miners deprecate the raising of prejudice against nationalism and urge that if the high price of coal proves anything, it is the failure of private ownership plus government control.

WANTS MANDATE FOR DARDANELLES.

PARIS, July 10. Prince Lvoff representative of the Russian government of Admiral Kolchak has written to Premier Clemenceau as president of the Peace Conference calling attention to the Russian interests in the Turkish Empire and asking that Russia be given a mandate for the Dardanelles.

WILSON PRESENTS TREATY TO SENATE.

WASHINGTON, July 10. Pres. Wilson was given an ovation when he entered the Senate Chamber today and when he concluded the reading of his address, but he was not interrupted during the reading, senators, diplomats and crowded galleries following him closely. After concluding his address the President formally presented the treaty to the Senate and the official copy was immediately referred to the Foreign Relations Committee and rushed to the printer in order that it might be in the Senators' hands in the shortest possible time. Fifty thousand copies of the treaty and the President's address were ordered printed by the Senate. After concluding his address the President went to his room near the Senate Chamber where he remained nearly an hour receiving senators and representatives and discussing the treaty with many of them. Reasons actuating the Peace Conference on many important subjects were said to have been disclosed by the President. While the President was thus engaged Republican leaders conferred in the Republican cloak room. Those attending included Senators Lodge, Borah, Brandegee, Fall and McCormick. Nearly every Democrat senator visited the President. Senator Kenyon was the only Republican senator to call and he merely exchanged greetings.

FRENCH GOVERNMENT CRITICIZED.

PARIS, July 10. In the chamber yesterday several deputies criticized the government for the vagueness of its financial policy and for its delay in imposing additional taxes. The peace delegation was also criticized by Raoul Peret, former Minister of Commerce and chairman of the Budget Committee for failing to insist upon the necessity of pooling the war expenditures among the Allies.

THINKS IT ONE-SIDED.

SIMLA, India, July 10. (Reuter's.)—A letter from the Amir, dated July 19, has been received in which he enters into a long dissertation on the one-sidedness of the armistice terms and the impossibilities of their literal observance. He requests reciprocity in the matter of the withdrawal of troops and the foregoing of the free movement of airplanes over Afghanistan, as the Afghans inevitably fire upon them despite strict prohibition. He concludes with an invitation to the Viceroy to fix a date for the arrival of the Afghan delegate. The Viceroy replying, says the Amir seems to forget that the Afghan government began the war and is now suing for peace. The Amir does not realize that His Majesty's government was deeply affected by what has occurred and that the British people are indignant at the fact that they were wantonly attacked. Therefore the government could not permit of any modification of the armistice terms. He invited the Amir to direct his delegates to present themselves by July 22 at the British lines whence they would be conducted to Rawal. The British delegates include two Indian notables.

RECEIVED QUIETLY.

DUBLIN, July 10. The County of Tipperary and Ireland have received the proclamation of the Government on Monday declaring all Sinn Fein organizations and Irish volunteers in County Tipperary unlawful associations. The proclamation places all local activities in Tipperary under control of the military and prevents all persons from entering the district without a permit, thus restricting business.

A PRACTICAL NECESSITY.

WASHINGTON, July 10. Wilson in presenting the Peace Treaty with Germany to the Senate today declared that "a league of free nations had become a practical necessity to which framers of the treaty felt obliged to turn as an indispensable instrumentality for maintenance of the new order it has been their purpose to set up in the world."

LITTLE WILLIE STILL INTERNED.

PARIS, July 10. The Council of Five received today a reply from Holland in answer to the council's note regarding the reported escape from the island of Weiringen of the former German Crown Prince. The Dutch note in what were said to be rather curt terms pointed out that the rumor of the escape was unfounded and expressed surprise at the warning given by the council. The Dutch Govt., the reply added, is conscious of its internal obligations and must be left free to exercise sovereignty as they see fit.

CANADIAN GOVERNMENT BUILDING OPERATIONS.

MONTREAL, July 10. Official announcement, it is learned will be forthcoming to-morrow from Hon. C. C. Ballantyne, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, as to the details of the understanding on which the Dominion Steel Corporation is to proceed with a 250,000 ton ship plate contract for account of the Dominion Government. Directors and officials of the company who have been in negotiation for the past few days with the minister at Ottawa, returned to Montreal today. While refusing to discuss the result of the several contracts pending the official declaration by the Minister of Marine, it was learned that the negotiations had resulted in a satisfactory agreement having been arrived at and that building operations on the big plate mill at Sydney would be resumed forthwith.

TO REPORT ON FEDERALISM.

LONDON, July 10. The Government has decided to appoint a parliamentary body to report on some measures for legislative evolution along the lines of Federalism. This was announced today in the House of Commons by Andrew Bonar Law, Govt. leader.

JOFFRE TO LEAD.

PARIS, July 10. Marshal Joffre, it was announced today in the lobby of the Chamber of Deputies, will lead the troops during the first part of their triumphant march here on Bastille Day, July 14, but at arrival at the Presidential statue to salute President Poincare, he will leave the procession and will be invited to take his seat behind the President.

EQUALITY STATUS.

LONDON, July 10. (Via Reuter's.)—Proposing "Overseas Dominions," at a luncheon of the Commercial Committee of the Commons, Viscount Milner said the only possibility of the continuance of the British Empire was on basis of absolute equality of partnership between the United Kingdom and the Dominions (cheers). Undoubtedly the working out in practice thereof would be one of the most complicated tasks of companionship, but there was no other line upon which a solution could be found. It was quite certain that the Dominions in future would be independently represented in international affairs. Foreign countries must accept the position. The Dominions might be members of the League of Nations, side by side with the United Kingdom, but at the same time they were entitled and intended to be members of the British league of Nations within the Empire. Every Saturday evening after 7 o'clock, Choice Ends of Beef, Mutton, Lamb, Pork will be sold at cost. ELLIS & CO., LTD., 203 Water Street.—nov29. KEEP MINARD'S LINIMENT IN THE HOUSE.

Why He Was Leaving. A prosperous grocer had occasion to engage a new errand-boy. Trade was very brisk, and the lad had a great deal of work to do in delivering parcels in different parts of the town. "Well, Johnnie, how did you get on Saturday?" asked the grocer on Monday morning.

"Oh, fine," replied Johnnie, "but I'll be leaving at the end of the week." "Why, Johnnie, what's up now?" queried his master. "Are the wages not high enough?" "I'm not finding any fault with the pay," replied the boy, "but the fact is, I'm doin' a good 'orse out of a job 'ere."

Minard's Liniment Cures Diphtheria.

On Pyorrhoea.

(By DR. A. B. LEHR.)

The following facts are thoroughly familiar to the dental and medical Professions. They are based upon the results of many years study and research by the leading scientists in the two fields of endeavour.

Cause—Effect.

Pyorrhoea is a local disease. It is an inflammation of the tissues surrounding the teeth. In most cases the inflammation is caused by tartar deposits forming on the teeth at the gum margin. The constant irritation to the gums, due to the accumulating tartar, sets up an inflammation of the gum tissues and the bony structure of the root sockets are destroyed; thus pockets are formed about the roots of the teeth, creating a base for the collection and retention of filth, and a breeding ground for pus producing and other disease producing bacteria. The teeth become loose and eventually fall out.

In the advanced stage of Pyorrhoea, as a result of deposits on the teeth, considerable gum tissue has been destroyed, exposing the roots of the affected teeth. The gums are much swollen and have a purplish colour. There has been a breaking down of the walls of the tooth sockets, causing the teeth to become loose. The teeth are tender on mastication. Considerable pus oozes from around the affected teeth and are responsible for many diseases.

We know that nearly all disease is due to the lack of, or breaking down in, the normal resistance of the body. To maintain unclean chemical changes proceeding continually in living cells at its proper balance the functions of the digestive organism must be uninterrupted. Otherwise, the red blood cells diminish in number and decrease in activity. In Pyorrhoea, we have a twofold source of danger in this respect: 1st, in providing a place of incubation for disease-breeding germs that find their way to the digestive tract; 2nd, through deficient mastication, the stomach receives food difficult or impossible of digestion; hence there is a lack of proper material for renewing and energizing the red blood corpuscles, at a time when every possible resistance is needed to meet a threatened or actual attack of disease.

It can be stated as a rule that while Pyorrhoea is often responsible for systematic disturbance, few cases admit the premise that the pyorrhoea is due to constitutional derangement. Of course, at times, a lower vitality affecting also the tissues of the mouth, increases the susceptibility to Pyorrhoea, and again, where both Pyorrhoea and systemic disturbance exist, it will be found that each unfavourably influences the other, but strictly speaking, true Pyorrhoea is of local origin.

A study of the situation has convinced the best medical practitioners that Pyorrhoea alveolaris is one of the most frequent causes of a large number of diseases whose origin has hitherto been more or less of a mystery.

At the Majestic.

The Majestic Theatre has a treat in store for its patrons to-night when "The Accidental Honeymoon," featuring Robert Warrick and Elaine Hammerstein, will be screened. This is the picture that resembles "Up the Road with Sallie," the one that was such a success when shown at this popular picture house. Those who saw "Up the Road with Sallie" will want to see to-night's show, as it is even better than the above. Laurence D'Auber despairing of his success as an artist, is about to commit suicide by jumping in front of a train, when Kitty Gray asks him to start her stalled machine. Kitty has left home because her father has insisted that she marry a man of his choice. Starting the engine Laurence drives off with her. The car breaks down again, this time many miles from the village, and they are obliged to spend the night in a farmer's house together. From this point until the end the picture is jammed with thrilling, exciting and withal laughable situations and incidents, all eventually working out for the interest of the couple, who become man and wife. This is a picture that every woman from sixteen to sixty should see.

Newfoundland Remembered.

It is pleasing to note that, when Capt. Alcock and Lieut. Brown were being presented with the Daily Mail Prize of $50,000 the background of the Chairman's table was decorated with the flag of Newfoundland. The Union Jack being in the centre, while the green ensign of Ireland, and the blue of this country were on either side of the Jack. This shows that Newfoundland was not forgotten.

City's Health.

During the week only 2 cases of diphtheria were reported in the city; two residences were disinfected and released from quarantine. At present in hospital are 3 typhoid, 1 typhus and 1 smallpox patients, while 1 with smallpox is being treated at home.

PLAGIARISED AND OTHERWISE.

The inclement weather and the sodden condition of the diamond, forced Umpire Chesman to postpone last night's much heralded clash between the Cubs and Red Lions.

The game will now be played at 6.30 on Tuesday evening.

We never were known as a hasty crew. We are generally meek and mild. It is seldom or never we start a fuss. And it's rarely they get us riled. But we're on the trail of a certain guy; there's a simp we are out to trim, and when we have finished, his folks will buy a kinnoo of wood for him.

We will smite him even as Samson smote; we will leave him among the slain. Just show that fathead to us who wrote

"How beautiful is the rain!" Both teams however welcome the postponement as it will enable them to get in better batting form. The Cubs are reported to be paying particular attention to their hitting as their work in the field cannot be improved upon very materially.

The same applies to the Lions as the delay gives the "vets" a chance to tune up their batting eye.

To everyone lucky enough to sweat out home-runs, Vice-President Hawthorne is presenting 500 "Gems" Brett is the only one to date enjoying his.

"Twill soon be time for Old Man Jinx to settle on the shoulders of the Lions. He usually makes his appearance about this time every year.

From the newspaper accounts from Grand Falls we judge that the "papermen" are out to capture the Reid Trophy this year. When it is considered that Charlie Quick who was always sure of his place on the St. John's team is rather dubious about making the Grand Falls' (where he now resides) it's a pretty good indication of what will come in here to face the home-team in August.

And at that, we don't relish Major Montgomerie when he comes to pick the city's pets.

EXCITED FAN asks:—"Would you rather have Hall or Ellis on your team?"

"Well, you see it's this way: If the other rummy had three on base we'd prefer to have Claude—in the box. Whereas if our guys were decorating the bags, we'd rather have "Nuts"—a' bat.

One of the sweetest follies of the season, and one that's being repeated day after day:—The Pitchout Foolishness. Runner gets on first; he puts his head down, emits a loud bray, and kicks up a little of the soil. Pitcher immediately throws the ball about seven feet wide of the batsman; catcher hooks it in, lifts his arm for a mighty peg, stares through the mask, grunts, and goes back to work. Runner hoofs up some more sod with the other foot, but has no more idea of stealing second than a cow's ear. Pitcher, with a convulsive jerk, again slashes the ball away wide, and the catcher repeats his watchful exhibiting. Two balls called and no strikes. Pitcher is now compelled to try for the centre of the plate; just as he lets the ball go the runner wiggles his shoulder. The ball either flies wide again, or comes over like a lane duck,—whereupon the rejoicing batsman pines in half a mile.

All the pitchers fall for this stuff evening after evening—fall for it even when the baserunner is a heavy-footed catcher or a fastidious pitcher, neither of whom has the slightest idea of stealing anything. As a rule, the pitcher can out-think and out-scheme the batsman, but the pitchout folly is the one soft spot in almost every pitcher's armor.

I'm keeping straight and sober, I'm saving all my dubs, And I'll see you Tuesday evening, When the Lions play the Cubs.

Baird's New Store.

A MARVEL OF EFFICIENCY.

St. John's is slowly but surely shedding its old-fashioned methods of doing things, and the proverbial American progressiveness is coming to be recognized as the best paying of systems. Water Street took a step forward within the last few days, when Baird's new men's and youths' furnishing department was opened to the public for its patronage and benefit. This store, which adjoins the general dry-goods store, has been entirely reconstructed after the style of the Grand Rapids Show Case Co., of Grand Rapids, Mich., and a visit of inspection, which a Telegram reporter enjoyed this morning, will well repay the trouble. The first impression on entering, is the general brightness and up-to-dateness of the place. The cramped space, stuffiness and darkness, so characteristic of many stores, are here absent, and one may move about without fear of running into something and tipping it over. All the goods, consisting of men's and youths' suits, overcoats and raincoats, caps and hats, collars and ties, underclothing and everything connected with masculine attire, are kept, and may be seen at a glance without the slightest trouble. The coats and suits, for example, are hung on a very efficient and time-saving arrangement, which is fitted with disappearing glass doors, sliding on ball bearings. Thus, when a customer is to be shown the goods, the glass doors are slid back of the case. The hanging arrangement, containing from 120 to 130 coats, is placed ready for revolving, and the prospective buyer may view the variety of patterns and styles at pleasure. He does not soil or wrinkle them in handling, and they go back to the case exactly as they come out. The time and space saving thus made is easily imagined. The collars and ties, hats and caps, underwear, etc., are kept in glass-covered cabinets, and can be seen at all times, and the very minimum of time in making a selection is reached. Needless to say, the cases are all dust-proof. The boot and shoe department is in the rear of the store, every facility and convenience being there provided. The fitting booth, which secures privacy and comfort, is furnished with large full size mirrors which enable the customer to see his figure from all angles. The lighting system, to be installed within a very few days, deserves a word of praise. This system, which is the first of its kind to be installed in the country, is so arranged that the globes are not seen. Instead, they are placed in boxes, arranged around the walls, with reflecting mirrors within them. The light is thereby reflected to the ceiling, being reflected from that, in turn, to the shop below. There is consequently no glare and the light, which is very bright, is yet soft and soothing to the eyes. The entire department, to be brief, is after the very latest Fifth Avenue styles of New York, with birch wood cabinets of mahogany finish, disappearing glass doors, sliding shelves, tipping trays and innumerable ingenious and time and space saving devices that secure the very minimum of time in serving the prospective customer. The stock, in addition to being the latest in style and fashion, is first class and the purchaser is always sure of being well and faithfully served.

To-day's Messages.

DEVALERA SPEAKS.

NEW YORK, July 11. Twelve thousand people heard Devalera, President of the Irish Republic, at a meeting here last night, under the auspices of the Friends of Irish Freedom. He said there were more Irish Nationalists in Belfast than in Cork. The Irish want their freedom, he said, freedom from the rule of baton and bayonet, from rifles, from machine guns, from invasion of their homes without writ or warrant; freedom from murder by British Government agents, freedom from invented crimes and imprisonment without trial. Resolutions were adopted denouncing the League of Nations as "a device to stifle the conscience of Christendom by prohibiting any nation from taking action to end atrocities perpetrated on people held in subjection against their will by an alien government," and demanding formal recognition of Irish republic by United States.

IN TOUCH WITH CLIFDEN.

LONDON, July 11. The R-34 was in direct touch with wireless, with Clifden Station at four o'clock this morning. Greenwich time. Her position was then forty-three, forty north latitude; forty-six west longitude; speed 45 knots.

ORDER RESTORED.

ROME, July 11. Precautionary military measures still continue in force here, but order has been virtually restored. Many shops are still closed.

BRITISH ARMY ABROAD.

LONDON, July 10. (Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency.)—Reuter learns in regard to British forces Overseas, that the army on the Rhine numbers 206,000, and the army in France and Flanders 214,900, the latter mainly for salvage work and also to supply the line of communication for the Rhine Army, of which it is to act as a reserve in the event of further hostilities. There are 11,000 British troops in Italy, including troops for clearing up purposes, and also a battalion forming part of the Imperial expedition of Eritrea. There are in India 44,000 British troops, besides Indian troops, including 22,000 in the Caucasus, with the object of keeping order, pending the establishment of peace conditions. The recent troubles in Egypt and the unsettled situation in Asia Minor necessitate the presence of 69,000 men, including 10,000 Anzacs in Egypt and Palestine.

ANOTHER HITCH.

PARIS, July 11. Ratification of the treaty of peace by German National Assembly at Weimar may be held not to be sufficient, according to Petit Parisien, as the new German Constitution provides that in cases where territory is ceded, ratification of treaties by states which lost territory is necessary in addition to approval by the Central Government, consequently independent action by Bavaria for the Sarre basin, and Prussia, for territory restored to Poland may be required.

"RENOUW" FOR PRINCE.

LONDON, July 10. (Reuter's Ottawa Agency.)—Reuter learns that the warship "Renown", escorted by two cruisers, will probably take the Prince of Wales to Canada.

OTTAWA WAGGED.

LONDON, July 10. (Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency.)—In the House of Commons to-day, Major O'Neill asked the date of the special Imperial Conference to consider the future political inter-relationship of the Empire. Rt. Hon. A. Bonar Law in reply said many informal discussions which had occurred had been valuable.

The desirability of holding the conferences at the earliest possible time is recognized by all parties but it is impossible to fix a date. Archibald Hurd asked whether the Govt. had considered a proposal to hold the conference in Ottawa. Mr. Bonar Law said this had not been suggested at any conference at which he had been present, but he would look into it. Mr. Hurd—"It has been suggested by these in authority." Mr. Bonar Law—"I am aware of that."

Obituary.

On yesterday after a truly remarkable life, death came to that distinguished and venerated gentleman, the late Mr. Andrew McDonald of Kilbride. What a privilege it was for those who had the pleasure of his acquaintance, the big and the small of our land who knew him felt that in his company they were near a man who had so many of the noble characteristics that always, a charming ease was felt by being near him.

As a storyteller and descriptive writer he had no peer. Often one marvelled at his wonderful memory. Many a one on hearing him felt that he was one of that class who, if opportunity offered, would have adorned a sphere of great importance in world affairs, but, being otherwise, he played his part and played it well, setting an example to all by his industrious habits. Though silent now his example lives after him. All the kind deeds and magnificent acts of his beautiful life stand out prominently, serving as an everlasting tribute to his memory. He walked in God's path, his life's work was a continuous prayer, his speech ever and always invoked the great Creator and thanked Him for His blessings.

We bid adieu to you now, old friend, we honor your memory and offer a prayer for the eternal repose of your soul. He leaves a widow, a son John, and a daughter, Mrs. LeFleur, also two grand-daughters and two grand-sons to whom we extend our sincerest sympathies.—Com.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

HAVE YOU ANY ACQUIRED CHARACTERISTICS.

RUTH CAMERON

Sometime ago I ran up against the interesting statement that when one acquired a characteristic by deliberate effort, this characteristic in the end would be stronger than those which one had by nature. The authority for the statement said that was why women are more accurate than men in business. By nature they are inaccurate, but when they entered the business world they found they must overcome this weakness and they went about it so painstakingly and so thoroughly that they have actually made themselves more accurate than men who are accurate by nature.

At first, I did not believe this theory at all. But gradually I have come to give it more credence because I have seen illustrations of the strength of acquired qualities. He Used to Say "Never Do To-day What You Can Put Off Till To-morrow."

I have a friend who used to be a newspaper man. If you know anything about the newspaper fraternity, you know that their natural instinct is to be easy-going to a fault. They never answer letters promptly; it is as much as your life is worth to get them to be business-like; and their favorite motto for everything except news-gathering is, "Never do to-day what you can put off until to-morrow."

This is, of course, a conception of the typical newspaper man, not of every individual. But it fitted this particular man. When he left the Binard's Liniment Co., Limited, Gents—I cured a valuable hanting dog of mange with BINARD'S LINIMENT after several veterinarians had treated him without doing him any permanent good.

Yours, &c.,
WILFRED GAGNE.

newspaper world and went into business, he gradually became the most systematic rapid-fire, clean-desk business man I ever met. He answers letters the day he gets them. He is punctilious about acknowledgment of every sort. In fact, he sometimes goes to an extreme of promptness, and wears himself out unnecessarily in his effort to be ultra-prompt and business-like.

She Found Fault With Me for a Characteristic I Once Lacked.

Again I had a great surprise the other day when a new friend found fault with me because I never did anything on impulse. "You always stop to think before you say anything," she said. "Aren't you ever impulsive?" If that is true, it is certainly a marvelous example of the acquired characteristic, for impulse used to be my middle name. All through my childhood I was constantly getting into trouble because I spoke and acted on impulse. I had been trying to overcome this, but I hardly realized I had succeeded to such an objectionable extent until I had this startling testimony.

One Makes Up And Goes Ahead.

Doubtless we get acquired characteristics so strongly because the realization of an obstacle to overcome is the greatest stimulus one can have. I never in all my four years of college did so well as during the one term when I had lost several weeks through illness. I studied so hard to make up, that I not only made up but went ahead.

So perhaps the author is right, after all, and it is with characteristics as it is with children's diseases—if you catch them after you are grown up, you have them harder.

Only whereas the diseases really catch you, it is you who must catch the characteristics.

WISH I WAS A MILLIONAIRE.

Wish I was a millionaire! many a time I've said it. Ownin' stocks an' bonds an' lands an' gold an' endless credit. Wish I was a millionaire! Then I chance to see one he was her brother. An' I change my wish again. I don't want to be one.

Got one cornered yesterday, Lord, but he was funny! Acted like he was afraid I was after money. Talked a little 'bout the kids, romping round us gladome. Then he sighed an' looked away an' said he wished he had some.

Showed him round the yard a bit, with the roses growin'. Said he wished that now and then he could work at hoisin'. "Hired men do this for me, an' they do it badly!" Seemed to me with all his wealth he was talking sadly.

Then I took him in the house to get a look at mother. Bowed to her an' shook her hand like he was her brother. "Let me hold the baby now," tried, but couldn't stop him. Mother almost scared to death he was goin' to drop him.

Wish I was a millionaire! Never more I'll say it; There's a price men pay for wealth, an' I'll never pay it; Can't do things like common folks, have no kids to race with. Poor am I, but I don't know a rich man I'd change place with.

Girl Stowaway Attired As a Man.

Dressed as a man, a young woman appeared before the Liverpool stipendiary. Accused, Elsie Williams, 21, was charged with having stowed away on an American transport. She was clad in a suit of workman's overalls, and had her hair closely cropped, and was discovered concealed in one of the holds of the vessel before it left Liverpool for America. She was then wearing men's attire. The stipendiary said that, according to a report which had reached him, the girl had already tried to stow away on a steamer in January last. Defendant's father, who belongs to Birkenhead, said the girl left home about two years ago. He occasionally heard from her by letter, and was now anxious to have her back. Her one object had been to get to America. The girl told the magistrate that she was willing to go home. The stipendiary, to the girl: "Are you going to stop all this nonsense?" The girl: "Yes, sir." "Very well, then, remarked the Stipendiary, "I will give you a chance. You are placed on probation for 12 months."

Household Notes.

Whenever clams are prepared for deviling the juice should be saved for clam broth.
In boiling potatoes add a little cold water now and then to check the boiling.
A housewife should never let herself get to tired or a rest will do her no good.
Put a few marbles into the kettle when cooking catsup. They prevent burning.
Olive oil, or a substitute, applied with a fannel will preserve black leather shoes.
Place a small piece of gum arabic in the water used to dampen pleats, when pressing.
Whole wheat bread and butter, and a good salad forms a most wholesome luncheon.
Use cheese cloth for the pantry windows. It is more desirable than wire screening.
Quick tapioca and junket tablets should always be included on the emergency shelf.

ANGER.

The blood was boiling in my veins, my lawn was spoiled by Johnson's starch; I felt a stinging in my brain, and smoke was coming from my ears. That day my little nephew Pete, was taking snap shots 'round the place; and, in his gutless way and sweet, he made a picture of my face. He held the picture on my knee, when it was printed and complete; I glanced at it, and cried, "Oh, cheer! That's not my map, so help me Pete!" But when I looked again I saw it was my mug, deformed by ire; the foam was flecked upon my jaw, my eyes were like a house afire. My fangs were bared, as though to bite, my hair like bristles stood on end; I saw myself a holy fright, a wild beast built to tear and rend. "Oh, Pete," I said, "you bet your hat, I ne'er again shall yield to rage; the fact that I have looked like that, will keep me humble till old age. I never knew that anger made man's face a thing to spoil one's little sleep; so now we'll take your little spade, and plant that picture cubits deep." And now I keep my rage in check when dire misfortunes are the rule; I tie the cracked ice upon my neck, and fan myself, and thus keep cool.

Traditional Coolness

Despite all the modern inventions and appliances for the detection of danger with which modern ships are fitted, and which reduce the possibilities of accident to a minimum, there has been, so far, nothing produced which will pierce fog and enable sailors to see clearly danger ahead in the shape of ice or other obstructions in the course of safe navigation. There are many and curiously complicated instruments amongst the equipment of ships of recent construction by means of which the officers in charge are warned of certain dangers, such as the proximity of land, nearness of other vessels, presence of ice, but it yet needs some scientist to devise something that will render it safe to run at average speed through a fog bank with a clear view for any distance sufficient to avoid the chance of collision with another ship or an iceberg. In such cases there is nothing to be relied upon save the keenness of vision of the lookout and the intuitive instinct of the mariner who can anticipate and avert danger when near at hand.

The accident to the Grampian on Wednesday evening, is an illustration of this. Here was a ship of up-to-date construction and equipment, splendidly officered and manned, every man of the crew from the captain downwards animated by the one desire—that of cautious and careful navigation. But notwithstanding that every faculty was on the alert, every precaution that could be thought of taken, the big ship crashed on an island of ice, with disastrous results to her hull, but fortunately, with the exception of the two ill-fated stewards, who were asleep in their bunks at the time of the striking, and who quite possibly never knew what killed them, without any serious injury to the seven hundred passengers, and three hundred of the ship's company.

The making of another Titanic tragedy was here at our very doors, but by a merciful Providence repetition of that April disaster of seven years ago, was averted and Captain Turnbull was able to bring his battered ship to a haven of safety, while among the thousands and souls on board there was not the least sign of panic, another exemplification of the traditional coolness, in time of danger, of Britons the world over. Danger was present in its most hideous form, but the heroic passengers, backed by heroic officers and men, took it calmly and their courage, though sorely tried, never faltered for a moment. Everyone obeyed orders and remained in their places until it was ascertained that the ship was undamaged below the water line, when a feeling of sure relief was manifested, the nearness of the port of St. John's being also a source of comfort.

But the spirit of courage was great. "The passengers behaved splendidly," said the captain, and that one short phrase is most expressive and conveys to the world once more the character of the Anglo-Saxon, who in the presence of danger remains undaunted and firm. Nobly have the passengers and crew of the Grampian maintained the ideals of the British mercantile marine, and our hands go up to the salute in their honor.

A NEW PLEA.

The Advocate is "jealous" for the good name of Newfoundland. Wonderful! Has it forgotten those threats of the "Wordy" President made thro' its columns not so many years ago, when the Herald office was to be cleaned out by armed fishermen, and further when the same W. P. threatened that the streets of St. John's would run red with blood if Capt. Abram Kean were allowed to proceed to the sealfishery in any steamer owned by Messrs. Bowring Brothers. Where was the good name of Newfoundland then, brother Advocate, that you profess to be so profoundly "jealous" of now? Yes, there will surely be many things to write about, when the Flat Island case is settled, and they won't be all on one side, either.

Premier Speaks R-34.

According to wireless messages from the R-34 to Hon. Sir M. P. Cashin, the giant dirigible at 2 p.m. yesterday was 130 miles S.S.W. of Sable Island, all well. At 10 o'clock last night she was 270 miles south of Cape Race, all well. This morning at five o'clock the Admiralty Wireless Station at Mount Pearl was in touch with her, but she did not then give her position, presumably as she was waiting for the sun to rise. By now it is thought she should be well past the Azores, the third stopping place of the American seaplanes.

A Reasonable Theory.

The presence of so much ice on the Bonavista, Notre Dame and White Bay shores has served to make the fish there very scarce. There has been an unusual amount of ice this year, which the many inshore winds have driven in on the coast. Several theories explaining the cause for the abnormal amount of ice are held, the most reasonable of them being that the winter in Greenland, being so mild, caused the ice to break off the glaciers in larger and more plentiful proportions, the current bringing them to our shores. Once before, in 1832, the ice was in on the coast of Green Bay until July 6th, this year beating that by four days. The strong off-shore wind of last night should serve to clear the northern bays.

Noised Abroad.

Not everybody in Newfoundland, if one accepts the authenticity of a letter written to the editor of a St. John's paper, is equally delighted to have that country chosen as the starting point for flights across the Atlantic. The aeroplane, writes the disapproving Newfoundlanders, frightens his hens by the noise of their engines and the hum of their propellers, and now the hens are not laying anything like the number of eggs they laid before the aviators brought their machines into the neighborhood. The thing was an outrage, he declared emphatically, and should be stopped at once. Perhaps the letter was genuine; perhaps the signature "Pro Bono Publico" signed a humorously intended hoax. Nevertheless, it may as well be admitted that the aeroplane, when it comes into more general use, seems certain to add noise to an already over-noisy world.—Christian Science Monitor.

REGATTA COMMITTEE.

The Regatta Committee will meet to-night in the T. A. Armoury, when matters in connection with the coming regatta will be finalized.

Will Give Organ Recital.

Dr. Herbert Saunders, F.R.C.O., London, a passenger by the liner Grampian, who is organist and choir-master in Dominion Methodist Church, Ottawa, will give a recital on the Cochrane St. Church Organ, provided that the Grampian's passengers are in town, at 3.30 this afternoon. All who care to may attend. Dr. Saunders is without peer as an organist and a musician and those who are present this afternoon will be well repaid.

For Labrador.

The following schooners have sailed the last few days for the Straits and Labrador:—

From King's Cove—The Valkyrie, Ellen F., Weaver Bell, M.C.L., Mary D. Fenestral, Etna, J. C. Furlong, Agnes Jane and J. M. Prince.

From Brigus—The Sarah, Eclipse, Violet, Catalina and Sunshine.

Fish Plentiful.

A gentleman who recently returned from Southern Shore, informs us that the fish is plentiful at Toad's Cove, Mobile and adjacent places, and if a very large size, but the weather has been such as to prevent the fishermen from going on the grounds. It is feared that considerable damage has been done to the twine, but we shall have full report in a day or so.

Sports To-Morrow.

WIDOWS' and ORPHANS' BENEFIT.

On to-morrow afternoon (weather permitting) a programme has been arranged by the passengers of the Grampian to take place at St. George's Field, the proceeds of the event to be in aid of the widows' and orphans' benefit. The programme will be a 3-mile exhibition English Marathon runner. A football game between H. M. S. Cornwall and Grampian; also a one mile, 100 yds, and ¼ mile distance races. It is hoped that the weather will be fine, and we bespeak a large attendance for this worthy cause.

Sachem's Passengers.

The SS. Sachem left here at 11 o'clock this morning for Halifax taking the following passengers:—Miss Southcott, Miss Tester, Mrs. Wm. Noseworthy, Elizabeth Noseworthy, Willie Noseworthy, Mrs. Menzies, Mrs. Pack, K. G. Menzies, Mrs. Schiff, Mr. McIsaac, Mr. Parsons, Mr. and Mrs. Curtis, Mr. and Mrs. Dixon and child, C. E. Brooks, W. To Honor Our Heroic Dead.

For some time past it has been apparent to the military authorities here that if the graves of our heroic dead were to receive the care and attention that was worthy of the sacred ashes that repose in them, a change in the present system of looking after them had to come. The Hon. A. E. Hickman, Minister of Militia, took the matter up some time ago and gave it the consideration that such an important subject warranted. He could only come to one conclusion and that was, he must have a representative sent over who thoroughly knew the places where our heroes were buried. He therefore arranged with the Government that Rev. Capt. Nangle should be sent over to locate and mark the graves. Capt. Nangle has kindly consented to undertake the task and will be accompanied by Stretcher-bearer Snow. As the Rev. Capt. Nangle has been a member of the men, and Private Snow in his capacity as stretcher-bearer was also present at the burials, no better selection could be made. Suitable monuments will be erected to commemorate the resting place in each case. In some places a number of our heroes are buried in one large grave, and in these cases monuments suitable to the size of the grave and the number of bodies contained therein will be erected. These steps taken by the Minister of Militia are in the right direction and will, we feel sure, be endorsed by the public of Newfoundland, as they are keenly interested in the way the graves of our boys who fought and died are kept. The monuments that are to be erected will be of one design for officers and men alike. It is the intention of the Grave Commission to have all of our men placed in one cemetery, and judging by the plans shown to a reporter of this paper this morning the whole affair will reflect credit upon the Militia Department who have so actively taken the matter up.

Trans-Atlantic Mail.

TO ENGLAND BY AIR AND BACK BY STEAMER.
The Plaindealer was the first newspaper in the world to cross the Atlantic Ocean by air mail. The paper, which was sent to Lord Morris, was accompanied by a letter. The first paragraph of this read: "This letter will mark the historic event when the first air vessel, the Vickers, to sail from Newfoundland made a non-stop flight across the Atlantic to land mails from the New World to the Old World in sixteen hours. With your very truly,
Yours very truly,
MORRIS.
The envelope that bore the letter to Lord Morris, which he has returned to the editor of the Plaindealer at his request so that it may be photographed, is a long one, specially printed beforehand and bearing the Trans-Atlantic stamp and postage marks. It is a very interesting souvenir of the great feat and will no doubt be treasured by its owner.

GRAND FOOTBALL MATCH: Passengers versus Crew.

Alfred Shrub, world's record holder, will give an exhibition 4 miles run, paced by J. Atkins, Divisional 10 miles Champion in France.

TUG OF WAR. 100 YARDS OPEN RACE.

(Entries on ground previous to 3 p.m.) Admission to Ground 25c. EVERYBODY CORDIALLY INVITED.

Noted Athlete on Grampian.

Mr. Alfred Shrub, the famous English marathon runner, is a passenger on the Grampian, being en route to England. Since retiring from professional running in 1914, Mr. Shrub has taken up farming in Bowmanville, Ontario, where he has been managing his own farm. In 1910 Mr. Shrub visited the United States and met all the best men Uncle Sam could produce.

Mr. Shrub is returning to England to compete against John McRae, a well known Scotch long-distance man, who claims the championship of Great Britain. A program is also being prepared in England, and Mr. Shrub expects to do some running in different parts of the Old Country and also Paris.

Although Mr. Shrub has done no racing since 1913 he trusts as that he is feeling fit and hopes to give a good account of himself. The following are some of the records held by Mr. Shrub:
1 1/2 miles—6 min., 47 2/5 seconds.
2 miles—9 min., 9 3/5 secs.
3 miles—14 min., 17 3/5 secs.
4 miles—19 min., 23 3/7 secs.
5 miles—24 min., 33 secs.
6 miles—29 mins., 56 2/5 secs.
7 miles—35 mins., 2 secs.
8 miles—40 mins., 16 secs.
9 miles—45 mins., 56 secs.
10 miles—50 mins., 40 secs.
11 miles—55 mins., 42 secs.
11 miles, 1137 yards—1 hour.

A Chapter of Accidents.

Yesterday and the preceding night were notable for the number of accidents that occurred. On Wednesday night the Grampian struck an iceberg 45 miles off this port, and the automobile of Mr. Finlay, nephew of Hon. R. K. Bishop, was struck by the shore train on the Southside Road. Yesterday there were no less than three motor accidents. The wheel of a motor truck was smashed opposite the Bank of Montreal. The wheel of another automobile came off opposite the Bank of Nova Scotia, and the wheel of a motor cycle with side car was broken off while coming down a hill. Mr. Finlay's car was brought into town yesterday afternoon.

Personal Mention.

Magistrate Moffin, who was in town in connection with the Flat Island affair, left by the express yesterday for his home in Greenspond.

Channel Notes.

Fish buyers are paying two cents per pound for fresh cod, three cents, or six dollars and seventy-two cents per quintal of 224 pounds for salt bulk, and dry is being shipped off at $12.50 per quintal for No. 1 merchantable.

Fishing operations have been considerably hampered through lack of bait, caplin not having struck so far, and no sign of squid yet. Salmon, too, are scarce, no big takes having been made by net fishermen.

Mr. Philip Jackman, late chief officer on s.s. Kyle, has been succeeded by Capt. D. Brinton.

The war regulations with regard to passenger traffic, are still in force at Port aux Basques, and passengers coming and going by the Reid boats are being subjected to much inconvenience. The present regulations are and were a farce and the sooner they are abolished by the Minister of Finance the better it will be for all concerned.

Farquhar's steamer Scotsburn is making regular trips from Halifax to the North West ports, and is capturing a big lot of freight traffic.

With the Rod.

(Western Star, July 9.)

Crabbes River—Two salmon were landed from Crabbes River last Wednesday by C. Gosse. The fish weighed 15 to 16 lbs. respectively.

Harry's River—Last week R. G. Vannane, of New Haven, Conn. with John Lucass of Stephenville Crossing as guide, landed three salmon from lower Harry's river. The fish weighed 6, 7, and 9 lbs. respectively.

Mr. Faunce, who is fishing on upper Harry's River, is finding salmon very plentiful, and is reported to have landed over twenty fish to date.

Alfred E. Silver, of Halifax, had a successful week at lower Harry's river the past week, and landed eight fish, one 18½, one 18, one 8, and three 3 lbs. each. Wm. Webb of Stephenville Crossing is guide with Mr. Silver.

Walter G. Jones, of Canning, N. S., with Albert Dovell of Stephenville Crossing as guide, caught six salmon last week from Harry's river. The heaviest weighed 16½ lbs., another was just half a pound lighter, the others weighed respectively 11½, 11, 10, and 9 lbs.

One hundred and 87 pounds of salmon were taken from the lower pools of Harry's river the past week.

Humber—Dr. Parker and party proceeded to Upper Humber on Saturday.

The season is considered early yet for fishing on Lower Humber.

Codroy—During the month of June forty-six salmon were landed from the pools of the Codroy river, the largest weighed 22 lbs.

At Forks Pool on Saturday week Mr. Campbell landed a 12 pounder.

Ten salmon were landed at Little River last week. The river is in good fishing condition.

There is very good fishing at South Branch. From Fork's Pool 12 fish were landed last week.

Fox Island River—F. and Z. Dumont and W. Metcalfe secured six salmon at Fox Island river. They moved to North Brook, on Harry's river, last week.

Mr. Bristol and party are going to Hawkes River and will spend some few weeks fishing Torrent river. They arrived at Curling by Wednesday's No. 2 express expecting to connect with the Ethie that day, but found the ship had sailed the day previous.

Littledale Garden Party.

The final meeting of the lady table holders of the Littledale Garden Party was held in the C.C.C. Hall yesterday afternoon. The ladies feel sure of the success of the fête which is to be held next Wednesday. They are leaving nothing undone in providing entertainment for the patrons. Besides ice cream, candy, and tea tables there will also be a fancy work table. At 7 p.m. there will be a concert in the Students' Hall on the College grounds, where some of our best local talent will be heard. Provided the weather be fine no more delightful spot could be selected to spend an afternoon than on the beautiful grounds of the college. Apart from the fact that those present will be assured of an afternoon's enjoyment, they will also be helping the good Sisters who are doing so much for the girls of Newfoundland.

Now the Long Guard Begins.

(From the Washington Star.)

The work of the Allies is not finished with the signing of the treaty at Versailles. They must remain on guard against treachery and non-fulfillment. The tracing of the signatures of Mueller and Bell has not fully guaranteed the peace for which the world has sacrificed so much.

The Winnipeg Strike.

There was one phase of the Winnipeg strike that is of special interest to the local governing bodies, namely, the attempt made by the strikers to practically take over the administration of the city. This is Sovietism pure and simple. Naturally the attempt failed, and rightly so, and we congratulate Mayor Gray on the firm stand that he took on behalf of the citizens. What would have happened had the Mayor been a spineless leader can easily be imagined. Chaos would have reigned. When the strike committee attempted to determine the conditions under which food, water, gasoline and oil should be distributed it was trying to usurp the functions of the City Council, which alone can determine, and that only under special conditions, the distribution of food, etc. Such usurpation cannot be tolerated for a moment in a democracy like Canada, and the sooner this fact is realized by labour, whether it be organized or not, the better it will be for itself as a unit, and for its members as private citizens. The municipal council being elected by the people, must carry out its mandates, and no pressure from any self constituted body is strong enough to divert the powers entrusted to the Council. If organized labour wants to take an active part in local administration, it must be by constitutional means, that is, through the polls.

Another phase of the strike that is also of interest to municipal administration was the attitude of the police. There is no doubt that their attitude was that of passive resistance so far as putting into practice their duty as guardians of law and order, and as such they were undependable. This phase brings up the very delicate question of the right of the police to form unions of their own, particularly bearing in mind that the principal weapon of organized labor is the strike. No one doubts for a moment the right of the police to organize for their own protection, but one does doubt their moral right, considering the conditions of their employment, to look sympathetically on the strikes of others to the extent of being undependable in their duty to the citizens who employ them for their protection.—Canadian Municipal Journal.

No Foregatherings.

(From the New York Herald.)
It is all very fine to talk of good manners, diplomatic usage, the "rules of the game," and so on, but there are exceptions. A lot of Americans were openly incensed when they read in some of the foreign despatches that, once the treaty of Versailles had been signed, Allies and Teutons would foregather as if nothing had ever happened. It was not so. Peace descended upon a world torn by five years of agony when the representatives of the German Republic signed—and so surrendered. But the other high contracting parties kept their seats in solemn and ominous silence as the representatives of barbarism left the Hall of Mirrors at Versailles. "Does that well to be angry?" said the Lord of Jonah the Prophet. He replied—"I do well to be angry, even unto death." The future of civilization will lie in our continuing to be angry with Germany. Let us cut out out can't and humbug and act as men.

Alexandre Millerand.

Many of the characteristics of Georges Clemenceau are said to enter into the "human equation" of Alexandre Millerand, the former Minister of War whom the French Government has put at the head of affairs in Alsace and Lorraine. Like Clemenceau he is a man of combined newspaper and political experience, with quite strong convictions as to the first duty of a war minister being to prepare for war. A promise made by his predecessor to restore Col. Paty du Clam to the army, and kept by Millerand, because he held himself compelled to respect it whatever might be the popular disapproval, led to his resignation from the War Ministry, to which he returned after Germany has begun her invasion. To his new position in Alsace-Lorraine, Millerand takes also the experience of a man who has served France as Minister of Commerce and Minister of Public Works, and a restored friendship with Clemenceau himself. The two were old friends who had become antagonized, and the attempt to assassinate Clemenceau happily reconciled them.

Church Lads' Brigade.

Last night, owing to the rain storm, the usual number of "fine weather soldiers" were conspicuous by their absence when the roll was called. The officers and lads, "regulars," were on hand as usual in good strength, some 150 being on parade. Lieut.-Col. R. F. Goodridge was present with his Adjt., Capt. J. A. Winter, and Chaplain, Rev. Arthur Stirling, the new Rector of St. Mary's. Rev. and Capt. H. L. Pike, Battalion Paymaster Ash, Capt. H. Outerbridge, Recruiting Officer, Lieut. Reeves and Major Raley with Lieut. P. Rendell and others.

The officers held a mess meeting at 9 p.m. to discuss pressing business—the principal topic being the "1919 Peace Camp." Arrangements were made to start for Topsail July 30, and hold the Peace Celebrations of the Brigade in Topsail. It is hoped that a special officer will be detailed to make up special programme of events. Major Raley will go to camp, as well as, likely, Capt. Pike, Avalon Goodridge, Lieut. Miles and Lieut. Reeves and Phil Rendell. The veteran cooks, Sergt. Roberts and Cpl. Harry Butler, have reported for camp duty, and were arranging with Quartermaster Williams last night for the usual camp supplies. Tents are now being overhauled, and a new cook house is being constructed at Topsail, under the superintendence of bandsman Sergt. T. Pottles and assistants, which will fill a much-needed want, as the old one—the landmark of old camps—has done its duty and is now taken down, being unfit for use. A big contingent of the Brigade had ordered a special well as some 40 lads likely from C. Co., of Bishop Field College, and Lieut.-Col. Goodridge is making careful arrangements for everybody's comfort. A new hut has been purchased for the Officers' use, so that the tent formerly used by them may be handed over for Brigade purposes.

A big field day has been arranged for to take place next Wednesday afternoon at Oxen Pond, all lads parading with Brass Band and Bursell's Bugle Band at 2 p.m. sharp for a skitish in the woods on the "Three Pond Barrens." Every man must bring his mug.

The N.C.O.'s had a meeting last night and arranged for a big dance on July 22nd, so lads and friends will please note the date.

The Old Comrades held their regular meeting in the room specially set apart by the Brigade Colonel for their future use. President Rowland Williams was in the chair. Routine business was gone through, and it was arranged that President Williams will take charge of the Peace Camp Canteen at the big C.L.B. Camp at Topsail end of July, the proceeds being devoted to the Camp expenses. On Monday week—their next meeting night—the President will ascertain the number of Old Comrades who wish to go to camp with the boys, which will revive old memories of days that are gone, and they will tell stories of "Old Comrades" who slept on the old camp ground in days of long ago and who now are far away in distant climes, whilst others sleep in Flanders' fields.

Next week Lieut. A. S. Lewis is Orderly Officer and Rev. and Lieut. Arthur Stirling will be the Chaplain on duty, with Bugler Snow and the Guard from A Co. Section 1, under Cpl. Adams.

The Brigade has ordered a special Silver Cup from Headquarters, London, with gold medals, for the football five to be won at the Orphanage Garden Party Sports, second week in August, and the lucky winners will have prizes to be proud of, besides helping on the morale of Lieut.-Col. Goodridge, Officer Commanding, in preparing a fine programme of sports, music and special drill, including an ambulance exhibition, showing how this department can do any work in their line. The Brigade is full of activity at present in every department.—"Q."

Wise Men Say—

That we are making to-day the memory of to-morrow.
That it is easier to live within one's income than without it.
That there is no lesson so hard that one cannot learn it in time.
That one's laughs at one's own expense are rarely melodious.
That nothing is so valuable in experience as the consciousness of one's errors.
That every duty which is bidden to wait returns with fresh duties at its back.
That debt has the peculiar knack of growing bigger the more you contract it.
That in the game of life many people think the other fellow has squandered the umpire.
That being good is something, but still more creditable is being good for something.
That a certain cure for swelled head is to pause and think how many people there are in the world who have never heard of you.
That the pleasantest things in the world are pleasant thoughts, and the great art in life is to have as many of them as possible.

(Daily Telegraph.)
Newfoundland, the oldest Colony of Britain and by far the smallest of the Dominions, has been represented at the front by a single regiment—the Royal Newfoundland Regiment. But it has a record surpassed by none.
By a happy stroke of genius the Newfoundlanders were included in the ever-glorious Twenty-Ninth Division, when it was sent to France after the evacuation of Gallipoli. They went into action for the first time at the Battle of the Somme, in July, 1916, faced with the impossible task of forcing the lines of Beaumont Hamel. If human valour could have availed, the impossible would have been achieved that day. The Newfoundlanders attacked regardless of loss, moving forward in extended order, wave behind wave. General Hunter Weston visited the survivors the next day, and they cheered him as though their ranks had still been full, though in fact the regiment had been reduced to a skeleton, and practically all its officers were down. Newfoundland took the news with a pride which overcame sorrow, and her fishermen and lumbermen sent a never-failing supply of men to refit the battalion again and again for the Third Battle of Ypres, the First Battle of Cambrai, and other desperate struggles, where they were always found where the fighting was hottest.

In Rotten Row.

Mr. Mark Sullivan, the famous New York journalist, commenting to his countrymen on the warmth of his reception during the recent visit to his country, said that he was glad he had gone to see for himself what the British had really done in the way of war sacrifice.
"It has astonished me," confessed Mr. Sullivan. "England is altogether too modest about it. Really at times I felt like the Chicago girl who, during her first visit to London, remarked, while riding in Rotten Row: 'You Britishers seem to take delight in running down your own things. Really, I don't see anything rotten about this row!'"

At the City Hall.

The Municipal Council held its regular weekly session last evening. The Mayor presided, and Councilors Morris, Tait, Brownrigg, Ayre and Vintcombe were present. After the reading of minutes, etc., the following business was gone through:

It was ordered to publish the following copy of a letter sent during the week to Colonial Secretary Bennett:

Hon. J. R. Bennett,
Colonial Secretary.

Dear Sir,—I am directed by the Municipal Council to ask His Excellency the Governor-in-Council what portion of the recent Special Grant of $500,000.00 will be allocated to the City of St. John's.

I am to remind the Government that out of previous Special Grants amounting to $500,000.00, or approximately $2.00 per head of the population, the City of St. John's received $7,000, instead of the $70,000 to which it was entitled.

The Municipal Council begs to submit that the people of St. John's undoubtedly contribute more to the revenue, per head, than any other portion of the Dominion, and in common justice are entitled to their per capita share of any Special Grants voted by the Legislature.

Further, the Municipal Council begs to point out that the City is greatly in need of several important public works, of which the following are the principal:

- 1—Long Bridge, estimated cost $25,000.00
- 2—Hamilton St. Bridge, estimated cost 6,000.00
- 3—Sanitary Stables, estimated cost 20,000.00

4—South Side Road, East, estimated cost 9,000.00
5—South Side Road, West, estimated cost 15,000.00
6—12 inch Water Main, Hutchings Street, to South Side, estimated cost 9,000.00
7—12 inch Water Main, Springdale to Hutchings Streets, estimated cost 6,000.00
Total $90,000.00

In reference to No. 5 item of the above, the Council contends that the Government is, in any case, responsible, as when the road was shifted for the purpose of bringing the railway into the West End of the City, the work was not properly done, the road being supported by wooden piles which are now rotten, when it was obviously necessary to build a stone or concrete retaining wall in order to make the road secure.

The Municipal Council will be glad to receive an early answer so that arrangements can be made as soon as possible to commence some portion of the above necessary works.

Very truly Yours,
(Sgd.) JOHN L. SLATTERY,
Secretary-Treasurer.

An acknowledgment of the foregoing was received from the Colonial Secretary, in which he stated he would bring the matter to the attention of the Executive Government at its next meeting.

J. M. Darcy, Secretary C.C.C. Band, requested permission to hold a band concert each week in Bannerman and Victoria Parks. Granted.

The caretaker Bannerman Park asked that a policeman be appointed to keep order in the park during the summer season. This was referred to the Secretary for report.

Mrs. Ed. Cooper, South Side, requested attention to the road there. The Engineer is to see the place and report.

Mich. Hickey, Flower Hill, complained of the condition of his backyard, caused by draining of surface water. The Sanitary Supervisor will be asked to see this place.

E. G. Cousins wrote to know when the Council proposed to extend the sewer Waterford Bridge Road, as he wished to commence building operations. The Engineer will report on this matter.

The Secretary Public Works Dept., called attention to the bad condition of the hill at the end of Monkstown Road. This will be given attention.

H. J. Vasey wrote re annoyance caused him by the storage of motor cars in the basement of a house next door to him on King's Road. The Council could take no action on this.

M. Fleming was given permission to repair 11 Boggan Street, provided water and sewerage are installed.

E. J. Horwood's plan of garage passed.

Application of T. Martin to repair house, Portugal Cove Road, was approved.

A. Payne, Coronation St., complained of the bad conditions prevailing in that locality. The City Engineer will give attention to this as soon as possible.

M. Walsh, Barter's Hill, called attention to the dangerous state of the sidewalk near there. Attention will be given it.

M. Pike, Belvidere St., applied for sewerage under Small Homes' Act. The Secretary will report on this application.

W. & G. Rendell sent a report from the Board of Fire Underwriters under date 1909, regarding Brantford Roofing. They will again be written on this matter.

W. D. McCarter, on behalf of the Dominion Co-operative Building Association submitted plans for fifteen houses to be built on Merrymeeting Road. Plans passed subject to discussion with the Engineer by the Architect as to specification, etc.

Plan of repairs submitted by Bishop, Sons & Co., passed.

Application to repair houses on Patrick Street, could not be granted, as the place is within the fire limit.

T. Murphy was given permission to erect shed off Leslie St., provided place is used for storage only.

Plan of house for Joseph Dredge, Gear Street, was approved.

W. & R. English submitted plan of garage, LeMarchant Road. Passed.

The City Engineer reported on water and sewerage work, Venturi meter construction, water services laid and repaired, and work at moving fences Rocky Lane, etc.

After reading the Health Officer's and other reports, passing pay rolls and bills, and disposing of other routine business, the meeting adjourned.

Last Big Mine Sweep.

THE NORTH SEA CLEARED.

Mine-sweepers of the British Navy and the American Navy are now engaged in making a final grand sweep of the North Sea. The work is being shared equally between the two fleets, and the "All clear" may be expected some time about the end of November. But this signal will, of course, apply only to the removal of moored mines, and not to a few elusive "strays." There are over 400 British mine-sweepers in the North Sea at the present time, and their business is to gather up what are left of the 100,000 mines that were laid down during the war. British moored mines still exist off the Belgian, Danish, Dutch, German, and Norwegian coasts. The American mine-sweepers, which have just got to work, are stationed up by the Orkneys. The Americans laid the large minefield belt which practically stretches from the Orkneys to the coast of Norway, and the removal of this lengthy chain of death now falls to their share. The British mine-sweepers service is composed entirely of volunteers, and consists of some 600 officers and 14,000 men.—News of the World.

Destructiveness.

Russia is providing another example of that destruction and dispersal of ancient and priceless historical archives which one might have thought belonged entirely to the past and its dark ways. The treasures of Petrograd and Moscow have been scattered to the four winds, chiefly through the activities of Markoff, Trotzky's assistant, at the time of the publication of the secret treaties. The authentic letters of Catherine the Great have disappeared completely from the former Ministry of the Interior in Petrograd. Some of the documents were traced to a shopkeeper in Moscow, who had been making use of them to wrap up his parcels.—Christian Science Monitor.

Ancient Folklore.

(From the London Daily News.)
The end of the No Treating Order reminds me of a good story which just before the war-time restrictions on drink, had its origin in Manchester. Two men were exchanging memories of a deal pal. Said one: "Now, he was the kind of a chap I like; he was a Watter, not a Minger." Asked to explain these unfamiliar terms, he replied, "Why, he always said, 'What'll you have?' not like some chaps, 'Mine's beer!'"

The Origin of Phrases.

Many of the phrases which are in common use to-day date back many hundreds of years.

Take, for instance, "There's many a slip 'twixt cup and lip." This dates back to an ancient king of the island of Samos, in the Grecian Archipelago. The king had planted a vineyard, but one of his slaves, whom he had ill-treated, predicted that he would not live to drink any of the wine. When the vintage came, the king, with a cup of the wine in his hand, asked his menial what had become of his prophecy. The other replied: "I think there's many a slip 'twixt cup and lip."

At that moment word was brought that a wild boar had broken into the vineyard, and was doing great damage. The king hastily put down his untouched cup, seized his weapons, and went out. But in the chase he was killed, and the prophecy of the slave was fulfilled.

"Done to a turn" is said to have originated from the martyrdom of St. Lawrence. He was sentenced to be roasted alive on a gridiron. The story goes that during his torture he calmly requested the attendants to turn him over, as he was thoroughly roasted on one side.

Hence the phrase "Done to a turn."

Reindeer.

The highly successful experiment made by the United States Government when it provided the Alaskan Eskimos with imported Siberian reindeer may have results more far-reaching than the most hopeful supporters of the scheme anticipated. It provides a potent argument which Mr. Stefansson is using to back his suggestion, now being considered by the Canadian Minister of the Interior, that the Dominion Government do the same thing on a larger scale in the Canadian north. Here, says Mr. Stefansson, are from 1,000,000 to 2,000,000 square miles of land available for raising reindeer and musk-ox, a food industry capable of becoming a great source of wealth to the producers, as well as a great benefit to the world. At first one was inclined to regard the idea of Arctic stock farms as probably no more than the dream of an explorer, but it is beginning to seem almost certain that the north may be thus usefully developed.—Christian Science Monitor.

What Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Did For Ohio Woman.

Portsmouth, Ohio.—"I suffered from irregularities, pains in my side and was so weak at times I could hardly get around to do my work, and as I had four in my family and three boarders it made it very hard for me. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended to me. I took it and it has restored my health. It is certainly the best medicine for woman's ailments I ever saw."—Mrs. SARA SHAW, R. No. 1, Portsmouth, Ohio.

Mrs. Shaw proved the merit of this medicine and wrote this letter in order that other suffering women may find relief as she did.

Women who are suffering as she was should not drag along from day to day without giving this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a trial. For special advice in regard to such ailments write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. The result of its forty years experience is at your service.

The Future of Aviation

(By Glenn H. Curtiss in the Christian Science Monitor.)

The flight of an American seaplane from continent to continent represents more than a marvellous display of skill and efficiency by our navy. It has a significance for aviation in general.

The trans-Atlantic flight sets the seal on aircraft efficiency. It is the final big test of a number of tests that have been successfully carried out. What, indeed, has not been done with the aeroplane? Men have been carried safely and swiftly in parties of from one to fifty-one. Aerial mail has been passing between New York and Washington on regular schedule. Everything from pianos to washing machines has been sent by aerial express. Valuable and accurate maps, once impossible, have been made by aeroplane. Timber surveys, aerial policing, advertising, coast patrol, and ambulance service have all become aerial activities. The Atlantic has been crossed. It only remains to fly around the world to complete all the tests possible with the earth or ocean as a starting point.

Ready for Business.
In short, the aeroplane is ready for business. The pertinent question in aviation is now become, is business ready for it?

For it is true that, despite the constant aerial demonstrations being made, the aeroplane is waiting on the public. Aerial advertising, aerial mail, aerial express, and a certain amount of passenger carrying by aeroplane have been established as regular practices. The seaplane, because it can have a landing field wherever there is a body of water, seems to have entered on a steady and extensive development. Nevertheless, the facts are these—the machine is ready, but the stations, auxiliary services, and equipment which are necessary to flying have not been forthcoming in the desired quantity or quality.

The aeroplane is to a large extent an automobile without a road, a ship without a harbor. It needs landing fields (or over-the-land machines), meteorological reports from a series of stations covering the entire country, better radio and telephonic apparatus and legislation to govern flights.

A Government on the Job.
There are two sources of help. One is the government. It must be stated that the government, if at first slow to appreciate the peace situation of the aeroplane, is now alert and active. The navy has made possible the trans-Atlantic flight. The division of military aeronautics has mapped 50,000 miles of aerial roads, and appointed 32 cities as official aerial termini.

Congress has established a meteorological bureau for aviation, and the post office has completed a successful year of aerial mail carrying. Under government direction, the wireless telephone is being improved.

Landing Fields the Necessity.
The important work which the division of military aeronautics initiated with respect to landing fields should be pushed vigorously. Landing fields are the rails and stations of an aerial transportation service. Thirty-two is a beginning, but only a beginning. Every municipality of respectable size should have a field.

A landing field is not expensive to establish or to maintain. The United States Government recommendation calls for a "600-yard runway in every direction with no obstacles." "L-shaped" fields could not be used, however, with each arm of the "L" 300 yards wide and 600 yards long. This field should be levelled carefully, and should be given a surface which will be as good as possible for landing under all weather conditions. Supplies of oil, gas, etc., should be available at a field hangar. A wireless apparatus should be installed. Arrows, lighted at night, should indicate wind direction. The name of the station should be displayed, readable from a 10,000-foot altitude.

Fields like this every 25 miles would do away forever with accidents due to forced landings. Compare the cost of a chain of these stations with that of an asphalt road or a railroad bed, and one can see what an easy problem aerial highways present. As the government offers to furnish a hangar to every municipality which it accepts as a landing field city, the burden of the communities will not be heavy.

For seaplanes less will be required in the way of landing facilities than for overland machines, but cleared spaces in harbors and hangars for the supplying and housing of flying boats and "hydros" are absolutely vital to progress.

The Support of the Public.
In connection with landing fields especially, and with aerial progress in general, the support of the public is important. The public is the second great source of help. It can quicken governmental action by its interest and enthusiasm. It can make possible a purely commercial development outside the sphere of governmental encouragement. Through it the aeroplane can work toward the large sphere of usefulness which it will undoubtedly have. This sphere will include every type of transportation service. It will mean the superimposing of an entirely new carrying system upon our present one. The automobile, locomotive, motor boat, motor truck, ocean liner, yacht, barge, dray—all will have their aerial counterparts.

Seaplanes at Once.
The immediate development of aviation will be twofold. Seaplane service should occupy the largest place for the next few years, over-the-water craft requiring few facilities for landing. Passenger, express, and sporting seaplanes will be produced and used in large numbers. The northeastern United States is a nest of lakes, rivers, and bays, ideal for the introduction of the flying boat in its many forms. The Atlantic will have its aerial liners in several years. Designers are already planning with regard to the experience of the Navy-Curtiss boats.

Mail, Taxi, and Advertising Service.
Over land three types promise to be dominant in the near future. Mail planes will become important as the United States rapidly extends her aerial postal system. The aerial taxi will be even more frequently seen, a three or four-passenger runabout which can carry business men to distant appointments, enable cattle and lumber and oil kings to cover large properties, and solve the problem of commutation for many who do not desire to live in or near a large city. A third type especially adapted to the delivery of goods, the distribution of advertising matter, etc., promises to find favor as a purely trade proposition. These, however, will merely form an entering wedge for the aeroplane, which has the establishment of a new transportation system as its definite future work, a system entailing eventually millions of aircraft representing hundreds of specialized types.

Making Lips Kissable.

Some Almost Forgotten Beauty Hints
Modern mothers and modern men condemn the art of powdering and rougeing which even the young girl of to-day flaunts in the face of her elders (and upon her own) as if it were a custom newly grown.

The fact that daughters even of sixteen years, cannot be controlled by their mothers is a new one, though rougeing is a century-old practice. Beauties of mediaeval days, when their lords returned from the wars, heated red sandalwood with vinegar and honey, and used this to conceal the ravages of anxiety. Instead of powdering, they bleached their skins with a decoction of parsley and rain water.

Another old rouge was a decoction of rose petals beaten in fine vinegar, and many stage beauties rely on this mixture to-day for their beauty-coloring.

Beetroot Juice for the Skin.
Vermilion and some carmines are poisons to the skin, so that the component parts of rouge should be known before it is applied.

The homely cochineal, again, mixed with borax, alum, and this time isinglass and water, is therefore used by many women who fear the made-up brands.

To their sorrow, many women on using a new face powder, find, after they have been walking about in daylight for a little while, beautified by it, that their faces assume a blue or even deep grey hue.

This happens because the powder contains either bismuth or lead.

The seventeenth century court beauty of France believed firmly in the juice of carrots and of beetroots mixed with corn-starch as a skin beautifier. Many women swear by the virtues of horse-radish mixed with sour milk to remove brown stains and sunburn from white skins.

These simple beauty hints are well worth a trial.

Dawn of Hope.

A golden sun has risen to-day,
Across a world just now bestilled,
From mighty turmoil and dispute;
A sun blazes forth in lurid glow,
Midst which is set a rainbow bright,
That stretches wide from pole to pole.

Seen by all on Earth to-day,
As promise of a peace to come,
When man and man no more shall war,
And lands that God hath given us,
Shall not reap again, a storm of hell;
When children born to love and live,
Shall go not forth to wars and death;
A time when we can live in light and love,
With no aching sorrows and distress,
No partings—with a chance to meet no more.

With some dear one that we have thought our own,
It is the promise of a long sought dawn,
When wars shall cease to be—an ever dread;
When homes and hearts inviolate shall be,
From desolation, sorrow and remorse
A golden sun has come to-day,
That rises, spans, and sets, in radiant hue,
Across a world of gladness, bought of pain.

To which has come this day, a Peace of Joy,
A Peace of Glory, a Peace of Lasting Hope.

ROUGHING IT IN A "CARLINGTON."

Roughing it, where the roughing it is roughest—tracking round the lakes—up the mountains—on a long hike—anywhere you go, the CARLINGTON will prove a goodfellow pal worth taking along—an un-wettable barrier between you and the weather.

When you tighten the belt around your CARLINGTON before you get after your dinner—hunting it—fishing it, you just don't care what kind of weather comes, because you know the CARLINGTON will never back down from our Guarantee. The oiled silk lining in this Master Trench Coat just keeps the rain sliding off the duck's back—and that's where you fool the rain. And the thickness of the wool cloth that goes into every CARLINGTON, and the fine lining close to your backbone, gives you the nice, warm feeling that you get inside your winter coat—and thought you couldn't get inside of anything else.

It feels so good to be inside this Prince of Rain Repellers while the weather man is working overtime outside—and you with your belt tight and your big reefer collar tickling your ears, you act like a kid with a new toy.

Guess you won't worry much about roughing it on vacation once you hitch up with a CARLINGTON.

For any old job—motoring, camping, fishing, for any old weather, rain, hail, snow—the CARLINGTON will so fit into your scheme of things that you'll find it as handy as a medicine chest—and you'll bring it around with you wherever you go, just because you feel safe having it with you—a pal you can depend on when the whole blamed world seems to go crooked on your week-end!

We'll have a private showing of the CARLINGTON for you—BUT, DO IT NOW!

Regular in Attendance.

Referring to a much-married, and also very well-known American actor, Mr. Erlanger, who, in conjunction with his partner, Mr. Klaw, controls the greater part of the theatrical business in America, tells a typical American story.

It appears that the actor in question, being temporarily in need of pecuniary assistance, had recourse to a certain New York money-lender, giving as a reference the name of a pastor of a fashionable church off Fifth Avenue.

The clergyman, however, when applied to, was distinctly non-committal. "I am sorry," he said, "but I can give you no guarantee, my good sir; I have merely a desultory acquaintance with the gentleman, as he is not a member of our church. Indeed I've very rarely seen him."

"Why, that's very strange," said the money-lender, perplexedly; "he told me that he came here regularly."

"He does," returned the pastor, with a reminiscent smile; "he always gets me to marry him."

THE REAL INVENTOR.

Although The Savannah (Georgia) News may have unsettled a previous conviction among its readers by its assertion that Francis R. Goulding, a Georgian, made and operated the first sewing machine, the argument will not very generally topple Elias Howe from his position as inventor of that useful apparatus. Mr. Goulding is said to have invented a sewing machine for his wife before the Howe invention was patented. Even if this were the case, nobody but Mrs. Goulding sewed on it, and the idea seems pretty soundly established by practice that the man who deserves recognition is the man who gives to the world the use of it. For that matter, it is a commonplace of invention that the position of the generally credited inventor is almost invariably questioned by a few critics who hold that somebody else preceded him.—Christian Science Monitor.

Montenegro.

(Christian Science Monitor.) The world has had far too much to think about, during the past few months, to give a great deal of attention to Montenegro, the little Balkan kingdom which, in less strenuous times, was wont so often, and that with the utmost picturesqueness, to monopolize the center of the stage in European affairs. The world has known, of course, that great changes were in progress there as elsewhere, but Montenegro has had to do what it had to do very much without its accustomed audience. It seems, however, to have done it pretty well. The report emanating from Belgrade, about two months ago to the effect that the Grand National Assembly of Montenegro had proclaimed the union of that country with Serbia and, consequently, with the new kingdom of Serbs, Croats, and Slovenes, would appear to have represented the facts of the case, in spite of repeated denials by the representatives of the former King Nicholas.

There appears, moreover, according to a statement recently issued by Mr. Y. Spassoyevitch, a member of the Montenegrin National Assembly, to be no truth whatever in the sedulously circulated report that the union was forced upon Montenegro by the Serbian Army. Mr. Spassoyevitch, indeed, throws a welcome light on the whole situation, and from his statement it would appear that one of the first acts of the Montenegrins, last November, when, for the first time for almost three years, they regained liberty of action, was to depose King Nicholas, and proclaim the union with Serbia. The Great National Assembly, he declares, met on November 11, and on November 13 unanimously proclaimed the fall of the King and his dynasty, and the union of Montenegro with Serbia, under the Karaogorjevitch dynasty. There was not, he insists, a voice raised for the former King, although there was in the Skupstina a considerable number of his former partisans.

The Skupstina thus voted for complete freedom, nor was it swayed, Mr. Spassoyevitch declares, by any pressure, either from the Serbs or from the Serbian Army, or from any outside influence whatever. Indeed, the Serbian Army, it appears, excepting a company of Jugo-Slavs at Podgoritza, one at Cetinje, and one at Bar, was not in Montenegro at the time.

The whole story, of course, has yet to be told, or rather pieced together, but every fresh item of information goes to confirm the suspicion that the sudden collapse of Montenegro in 1915, before the second great onrush of Austria, was not altogether a "feat of Austrian" arms. The famous Mt. Lovchen, dominating the Austrian harbor of Cattaro, was generally acclaimed impregnable, and although this world lost its meaning, very largely, during the war, still the fall of this tremendous natural fortress, after little or no resistance, came as a tremendous surprise to the Allies. Little was said about it at the time, and King Nicholas was everywhere received with respect and cordiality when he "went into exile." Yet many people had an uneasy recollection of the famous "arrangement" with Essad Pasha about Scutari, two or three years before, and consequently were rather inclined to suspend judgment. Mr. Spassoyevitch does not hesitate to describe the collapse of 1915 as something very like a betrayal, and he quite evidently regards it as the procuring cause of King Nicholas' deposition. The Montenegrin dynasty, he declares, has always kept its personal interest in sight, and has always sacrificed the most vital interests of the State to its own personal advantage. The best proof of this assertion is, he insists, Montenegro's shameful capitulation in 1915, which was effected "without the complicity or even the slightest knowledge of even the Montenegrins."

However this may be, Montenegro is surely well rid of its somewhat make-believe King and court, and all the undignified indulgence which went with it.
