

IMAGE EVALUATION TEST TARGET (MT-3)

Photographic Sciences Corporation

23 WEST MAIN STREET WEBSTER, N.Y. 14580 (716) 872-4503

SIM SERVER ON THE SERVER ON THE SERVER ON THE SERVER OF TH

C!HM/ICMH Microfiche Series. CIHM/ICMH Collection de microfiches.

Canadian Institute for Historical Microreproductions / Institut canadian de microreproductions historiques

(C) 1985

10X		144				X
This ite	commentaire	mments:/ is supplémentai  at the reductio ilmé au taux de	n ratio checke	d below/ qué ci-des	sous. 22X		26X		30X
B and hall look	La re liure serrée peut causer de l'ombre ou de la distortion le long de la marge intérieure  Blank leaves added during restoration may appear within the text. Whenever possible, these have been omitted from filming/ Il se peut que certaines pages blanches ajoutées lors d'une restauration apparaissent dans le texte, mais, lorsque cela était possible, ces pages n'ont pas été filmées.  Additional comments:/		these utées s texte,	Pages wholly or partially obscured by errat slips, tissues, etc., have been refilmed to ensure the best possible image/ Les pages totalement ou partiellement obscurcies par un feuillet d'errata, une pelu etc., ont été filmées à nouveau de façon à obtenir la meilleure image possible.
L_ al	long interior	may cause shad margin/ de peut causer				Only editi Seule édi	on availab tion dispoi	ole/ nible
	Bound with other material/ Relié avec d'autres documents				Includes supplementary material/ Comprend du matériel supplémentaire
Co	oloured plate lanches et/o	es and/or illustr u illustrations e	ations/ n couleur			Quality of Qualité in	print vari égale de l'	es/ 'impressio	on
Co Er	Coloured ink (i.e. other than blue or black)/ Encre de couleur (i.e. autre que bleue ou noire)			ire)	X	' Showthro Transpare
Ca	oloured map: artes géogra	s/ phiques en coul	eur			Pages det Pages dét		·
∑ re	over title mis titre de cou	sing/ verture manque	9			Pages disc Pages déc	coloured, s colorées, ta	stained or achetées (	foxed/ ou piquée:	S
Co	overs restore ouverture res	d and/or lamina staurée et/ou pe	ated/ elliculée			Pages rest	tored and/ taurées et/	ou pellici	ulées overs damage ouverture end					Pages dan Pages end	naged/ lommagée	s
1 1	oloured cover ouverture de					Coloured p Pages de d
original copy wh which m reproduc	ne Institute has attempted to obtain the best iginal copy available for filming. Features of this upy which may be bibliographically unique, hich may alter any of the images in the production, or which may significantly change e usual method of filming, are checked below.				L'Institut a microfilmé le meilleur exemplaire qu'il lui a été possible de se procurer. Les détails de cet exemplaire qui sont peut-être uniques du point de vue bibliographique, qui peuvent modifiel une image reproduite, ou qui peuvent exiger une modification dans la méthode normale de filmage sont indiqués ci-dessous.

cemplaire er. Les détails e uniques du euvent modifier ent exiger une eale de filmage ted/ ılées

foxed/ ou piquées

rial/ mentaire

n

cured by errata refilmed to ge/ ciellement rrata, une pelure, au de façon à essible.

30X 32X The copy filmed here has been reproduced thanks to the generosity of:

Library of Congress
Photoduplication Service

The images appearing here are the best quality possible considering the condition and legibility of the original copy and in keeping with the filming contract specifications.

Original copies in printed paper covers are filmed beginning with the front cover and ending on the last page with a printed or illustrated impression, or the back cover when appropriate. All other original copies are filmed beginning on the first page with a printed or illustrated impression, and ending on the last page with a printed or illustrated impression.

The last recorded frame on each microfiche shall contain the symbol → (meaning "CONTINUED"), or the symbol ▼ (meaning "END"), whichever applies.

Maps, plates, charts, etc., may be filmed at different reduction ratios. Those too large to be entirely included in one exposure are filmed beginning in the upper left hand corner, left to right and top to bottom, as many frames as required. The following diagrams illustrate the method:

L'exemplaire filmé fut reproduit grâce à la générosité de:

Library of Congress
Photoduplication Service

Les images suivantes ont été reproduites avec le plus grand soin, compte tenu de la condition et de la netteté de l'exemplaire filmé, et en conformité avec les conditions du contrat de filmage.

Les exemplaires originaux dont la couverture en papier est imprimée sont filmés en commençant par le premier plat et en terminant soit par la dernière page qui comporte une empreinte d'impression ou d'illustration, soit par le second plat, selon le cas. Tous les autres exemplaires originaux sont filmés en commençant par la première page qui comporte une empreinte d'impression ou d'illustration et en terminant par la dernière page qui comporte une telle empreinte.

Un des symboles suivants apparaîtra sur la dernière image de chaque microfiche, selon le cas: le symbole → signifie "A SUIVRE", le symbole ▼ signifie "FIN".

Les cartes, planches, tableaux, etc., peuvent être filmés à des taux de réduction différents.
Lorsque le document est trop grand pour être reproduit en un seul cliché, il est filmé à partir de l'angle supérieur gauche, de gauche à droite, et de haut en bas, en prenant le nombre d'images nécessaire. Les diagrammes suivants illustrent la méthode.

1	2	3

1
2
3

1	2	3
4	5	6

T H E

LETTERS

o F

Governor HUTCHINSON,

AND

Lieut. Governor OLIVER, &c.

[ Price Two Shillings, ]

Israel Mauduit, ed

LETTERS

O F

Governor HUTCHINSON,

AND

Lieut. Governor OLIVER, &c.

Printed at BOSTON.

AND REMARKS THEREON.

WITH

THE ASSEMBLY'S ADDRESS,

AND THE

PROCEEDINGS

OF THE

LORDS COMMITTEE OF COUNCIL.

Together with

THE SUBSTANCE OF MR. WEDDERBURN'S SPEECH

RELATING TO THOSE LETTERS.

LONDON:

Printed for J. WILKIE, at Number 71, in St. Paul's Church-yard. MDCCLXXIV.

E211 M445 Office

3 Ja 1907 WO.

•

- 1

LETTERS, &c.

SIR, Boston, June 18, 1768.

A S you allow me the honour of your correspondence, I may not omit acquainting you with so remarkable an event as the withdraw of the Commissioners of the Customs, and most of the other officers under them, from the town on board the Romney, with an intent to remove from thence to the Castle.

In the evening of the 10th, a floop belonging to Mr. Hancock, a Representative for Boston, and a wealthy merchant of great influence over the populace, was seized by the Collector and Comptroller for a very notorious breach of the acts of trade, and, after seizure, taken into custody by the officer of the Romney man of war, and removed under command of her guns. It is pretended that the removal, and not the seizure, incensed the people. It seems not very material which it was.—A mob was immediately raised, the officers insulted, bruised, and much hurt, and the windows of some of their houses broke; a boat belonging to the Collector burnt in triumph, and many threats uttered against the

- 1

the Commissioners and their officers: no notice being taken of their extravagance in the time of it, nor any endeavours by any authority, except the governor, the next day, to discover and punish the offenders; and there being a rumour of a higher mob intended Monday (the 13th) in the evening, the Commissioners, four of them, thought themselves altogether unsafe, being destitute of protection, and removed with their families to the Romney, and there remain and hold their board, and next week intend to do the fame, and also open the Custom-house at the Castle. The Governor pressed the council to assist him with their advice, but they declined and evaded, calling it a brush, or small disturbance by boys and negroes, not confidering how much it must be resented in England that the officers of the Crown should think themselves obliged to quit the place of their residence, and go on board a King's ship for safety, and all the internal authority of the province take no notice of it. The town of Boston have had repeated meetings, and by their votes declared the Commifsioners and their officers a great grievance, and yesterday instructed their Representatives to endeavour, that enquiry should be made by the Affembly whether any person by writing or in any other way, had encouraged the fending troops here, there being some alarming reports that troops are expected, but have not taken any measures to discountenance the promoters of the late proceedings; but, on the contrary, appointed one or more of the actors or abettors on a committee appointed to wait on the Governor, and to desire him to order the man of war out of the harbour.

Ignorant as they be, yet the heads of a Boston town-meeting influence all public measures.

It is not possible this anarchy should last always. Mr. Hallowell, who will be the bearer of this, tells me he has the honour of being personally known to you. I beg leave to refer you to him for a more full account.

> I am, with great efteem, Sir, Your most humble and obedient fervant, THO. HUTCHINSON.

SIR, Boston, August 1768. IT is very necessary other information should be had in England of the present state of the commissioners of the customs than what common same will bring to you, or what you will receive from most of the letters which go from hence, people in general being prejudiced by many salse reports and missepresentations concerning them. Seven eighths of the people of the country suppose the board itself to be unconstitutional, and cannot

B 2

the time of ority, except er and punish umour of a 13th) in the bem, thought destitute of r families to d hold their lo the fame, the Castle. to affift him and evaded, nce by boys nuch it must icers of the liged to quit on board a internal auice of it. peated meethe Commifevance, and tives to ennade by the riting or in the fending

ning reports

: no notice

cannot be undeceived and brought to believe that a board has existed in England all this century, and that the board established here has no new powers given to it. Our incendiaries know it, but they industriously and very wickedly publish the contrary. As much pains has been taken to prejudice the country against the perfons of the Commissioners, and their characters have been missepresented and cruelly treated, especially since their consinement at the Castle, where they are not so likely to hear what is said of them, and are not so able to consute it.

It is now pretended they need not to have withdrawn, that Mr. Williams had stood his ground without any injury, although the mob beset his house, &c. There never was that spirit raised against the under officers as against the Commissioners, I mean four of them. They thad a public affront offered them by the town of Boston, who refused to give the use of their hall for a public dinner, unless it was stipulated that the Commissioners should not be invited. An affront of the same nature at the motion of Mr. Hancock was offered by a company of cadets. Soon after a vessel of Mr. Hancock's being feized, the officers were mobb'd, and the Commissioners were informed they were threatned. I own I was in pain for them. I do not believe if the mob had feized them, there was any authority able and willing to have rescued them. After they had withdrawn, the town signified to the Governor by a message that it was expected or desired they should not return. It was then the general voice that it would not be safe for them to return. After all this, the sons of liberty say they deserted or abdicated.

The other officers of the customs in general either did not leave the town, or foon returned to it. Some of them feem to be discontented with the Commissioners. Great pains have been taken to increase the discontent. Their office by these means is rendered extremely burdensome. Every thing they do is found fault with, and yet no particular illegality or even irregularity mentioned. There is too much hauteur, fome of their officers fay, in the treatment they receive. They fay, they treat their officers as the Commissioners treat their officers in England, and require no greater deference. After all, it is not the persons, but the office of the Commissioners which has raifed this spirit, and the distinction made between the Commissioners, is because it has been given out that four of them were in favour of the new establishment, and the fifth was not. If Mr. Hallowell arrived safe, he can inform you many circumstances relative to this distinction, which I very willingly excuse myself from mentioning.

I know

diaries know ickedly pubns has been inft the perir characters ielly treated, the Caftle, what is faid t to believe

all this cen-

here has no

fute it. not to have ad stood his gh the mob er was that ers as against them. They the town of of their hall tipulated that invited. An otion of Mr. ny of cadets. cock's being nd the Comthreatned. I not believe if as any authority

I know of no burden brought upon the fair trader by the new establishment. The illicit trader finds the rifque greater than it used to be, especially in the port where the board is constantly held. Another circumstance which increases the prejudice is this; the new duties happened to take place just about the time the Commissioners arrived. People have absurdly connected the duties and Board of Commissioners, and fur pose we should have had no additional duties, if there had been no Board to have the charge of collecting them. With all the aid you can give to the officers of the crown, they will have enough to do to maintain the authority of government, and to carry the laws into execution. If they are discountenanced, neglected, or fail of support from you, they must submit to every thing the present opposers of government think fit to require of them.

There is no office under greater discouragements than that of the Commissioners. Some of my friends recommended me to the ministry. I think myself very happy that I am not one. Indeed it would have been incompatible with my post as chief justice, and I must have declined it, and I should do it although no greater salary had been affixed to the chief justice's place, than the small pittance allowed by the province.

From

[7]

upon the fair

The illicit

it used to be.

board is con-

ce which ine new duties

t the time the

ave abfurdly

ommissioners,

no additional

to have the crown, they

the authority

ws into exe-

d, neglected,

ust submit to government discourages. Some of ministry, I ot one. In-ole with my ave declined

greater falary

place, than

From

vince.

From my acquaintance with the Commissioners I have conceived a personal esteem for them, but my chief inducement to make this representation to you is a regard to the public interest, which I am sure will suffer if the opposition carry their point against them.

I am, with very great effeem,
Sir, your most obedient humble fervant,
THO. HUTCHINSON.

August 10. Yesterday at a meeting of the merchants, it was agreed by all present to give no more orders forgoods from England, nor receive any on commission until the late acts are repealed. And it is said all except fixteen in the town have subscribed an engagement of that tenor. I hope the subscription will be printed; that I may transmit it to you.

DEAR SIR, Boston, October 4, 1763.

I WAS absent upon one of our circuits when Mr. Byles arrived. Since my return, I have received from him your obliging letter of 31st July. I never dared to think what the resentment of the nation would be upon Hallowell's arrival. It is not strange that measures should be immediately taken to reduce the colonies to their former state of government and order, but that the national funds should be affected by it, is to me a little mysterious and surprizing. Principles of government abfurd enough spread thro all the colonies; but I cannot think that in any colony, people of any confideration have ever been so mad as to think of a revolt. Many of the common people have been in a frenzy, and talked of dying in defence of their liberties, and have spoke and printed what is highly criminal, and too many of rank above the vulgar, and some in public posts have countenanced and encouraged them, until they increased so much in their numbers, and in their opinion of their importance, as to submit to government no further than they thought proper. The legislative powers have been influenced by them, and the executive powers intirely lost their force. There has been continual danger of mobs and infurrections, but they would have fpent all their force within ourselves, the officers of the Crown, and some of the few friends who dared to stand by them, possibly might have been knock'd on the head, and some such fatal event would probably have brought the people to their fenses. For four or five weeks past the distemper has been growing, and I confess I have not been without some apprehensions for myself, but my friends have had more for me; and I have had repeated and frequent notices from them from different quarters, one of the lost I will inclose to you *. In this state of things, there was no security, but quitting my posts, which nothing but the last extremity would justify. As Chief Justice, for two years after our first disorders, I kept the grand juries tolerably well to their duty. The last spring, there had been several riots, and a most infamous libel had been published in one of the papers, which I enlarged upon, and the grand jury had determined to make presentments, but the Attorney-General not attending them the first day, Otis and his creatures, who were alarmed and frightned, exerted themselves the next day, and prevailed upon so many of the jury to change their voices, that there was not a fufficient number left to find a bill. They have been ever fince more enraged against me than ever. At the defire of the Governor I committed to writing the charge while it lay in my memory, and as I have no further use for it I will inclose it, as it may give you some idea of our judicatories.

Whilst we were in this state, news came of two regiments being ordered from Halifax, and soon after two more from Ireland. The minds of people were more and more agitated, broad hints were given, that the troops should never land, a barrel of tar was placed upon the beacon,

·C

in

I will inclose to you.

izing. Prin-fpread thro'

that in any

n have ever

t. Many of frenzy, and

iberties, and

hly criminal,

vulgar, and iced and end fo much in

of their imnent no fur-he legislative em, and the force. There

os and infur-

ent all their

of the Crown, dared to stand n knockid on nt would pro-

their fenfes. diftemper has ave not been

yself, but my

d I have had

m them from

· See the following Letter.

in the night to be fired, to bring in the country when the troops appeared, and all the authority of the government was not strong enough to remove it. The town of Boston met and passed a number of weak, but very criminal votes; and as the Governor declined calling an Affembly, they fent circular letters to all the towns and districts to fend a person each that there might be a general confultation at fo extraordinary a crifis. They met and fpent a week, made themselves ridiculous, and then diffolv'd themselves, after a message or two to the Governor, which he refused to receive; a petition to the King, which I dare say their agent will never be allowed to present, and a result which they have published ill-natured and impotent.

In this confusion the troops from Halifax arrived. I never was much afraid of the people's taking arms, but I was apprehensive of violence from the mob, it being their last chance before the troops could land. As the prospect of revenge became more certain, their courage abated in proportion. Two regiments are landed, but a new grievance is now rais'd. The troops are by act of parliament to be quartered no where else but in the barracks, until they are full. There are barracks enough at the Castle to hold both regiments. It is therefore against the act to bring any of them into the town. This was started

country

uthority

h to re-

passed a s; and ffembly,

vns and night be a crisis.

emfelves

es, after

h he re-

, which

low'd to ublished

lifax ar-

people's violence

e before

t of re-

e abated

ed, but

oops are

o where

re full.

to hold

the act

his was started

started by the Council in their answer to the Governor, which, to make themselves popular, they in an unprecedented way published and have alarmed all the province; for although none but the most contracted minds could put such a construction upon the act, yet after this declaration of the Council nine tenths of the people suppose it just. I wish the act had been better express'd, but it is abfurd to suppose the parliament intended to take from the King the direction of his forces, by confining them to a place where any of the colonies might think fit to build barracks. It is besides ungrateful, for it is known to many that this provision was brought into the bill after it had been framed without it, from meer favour to the colonies. I hear the Commander in Chief has provided barracks or quarters, but a doubt still remains with some of the Council, whether they are to furnish the articles required, unless the men are in the province barracks, and they are to determine upon it to-day.

The government has been so long in the hands of the populace, that it must come out of them by degrees, at least it will be a work of time to bring the people back to just notions of the nature of government.

Mr. Pepperrell, a young gentleman of good character, and grandfon and principal heir to the late Sir William Pepperrell, being bound to London, I shall deliver this letter to him, as it will be too bulky for postage, and desire him to wait upon you with it.

C 2

[ 12 ]

I am, with very great esteem,
Sir, your most humble and most obedient servant,
THO. HUTCHINSON.

SIR,

HE great effect I have for you in every point of light, perhaps renders my fears and doubts for the fafety of your person greater than they ought to be; however if that is an error, it certainly refults from true friendship, naturally jealous. Last night I was informed by a gentleman of my acquaintance, who had his information from one intimate with and knowing to the infernal purpoles of the fons of liberty, as they falfely stile themselves, that he verily believ'd, from the terrible threats and menaces by those Catilines against you, that your life is greatly in danger. This informant, I know, is under obligations to you, and is a man of veracity. He express'd himself with concern for you, and the gentleman acquainting me with this horrid circumstance, affured me he was very uneafy till you had notice. I should have done myself the honour of waiting on you, but am necessarily necessas a society put y this given pene will into

T

I in a agree liam Mr. who veri to f

who ord wro [ 13 ]

necessarily prevented. The duty I owed to you as a friend, and to the public as a member of fociety, would not fuffer me to rest till I had put your honour upon your guard; for though this may be a false alarm, nothing would have given me greater pain, if any accident had happened, and I had been filent. If possible, I will fee you to-morrow, and let you know further into this black affair. And am, with the sincerest friendship and respect, your Honour's

Most obedient, and most humble fervant, ROB. AUCHMUTY.

To the bon'ble Thomas Hutchinson, Sept. 14, 1768.

Boston, Dec. 10, 1768. I AM just now informed that a number of the Council perhaps sink the Council, perhaps eight or ten, who live in and near this town, have met together and agreed upon a long address or petition to Parliament, and that it will be fent by this ship to Mr. Bollan to be presented. Mr. Danforth, who is Prefident of the Council, told the Governor, upon enquiry, that it was fent to him to fign, and he supposed the rest of the Council who had met together, would fign after him in order; but he had fince found that they had wrote over his name, by order of Council, which makes 2 to Lon-

s it will

n to wait

t fervant,

NSON.

in every ny fears

n greater hat is an iendship, rmed by

o had his id know-

f liberty,

erily benaces by

ır life is know, is man of concern

me with

was very ave done

but am

eceffarily

[ 14 ]

Di

proce

you t fervio

day c gove

ment

foon

acts i miffic

the c

with that repre

vince

name

abro

ing t thori

ill d grou

upor fons, be p

makes it appear to be an act of Council. This may be a low piece of cunning in him, but be it as it may, it is proper it should be known, that the whole is no more than the doings of a part of the Council only; although even that is not very material, fince, if they had all been present, without the Governor's summons, the meeting would have been irregular and unconftitutional, and ought to be discountenanced and censured. I suppose there is no instance of the Privy Council's meeting and doing business without the King's presence or special direction, except in committees upon such business as by his Majesty's order has been referred to them by an act of Council; and I have known no instance here without the Governor, until within three or four months past.

I thought it very necessary the circumstances of this proceeding should be known, though if there be no necessity for it, I think it would be best it should not be known that the intelligence comes from me. I am, with very great regard,

Sir, your most humble, and most obedient servant, THO. HUTCHINSON.

1.

[ 15 ]

DEAR SIR, Boston, Jan. 20, 1769. 70U have laid me under very great obligations by the very clear and full account of proceedings in Parliament, which I received from you by Capt. Scott. You have also done much fervice to the people of the province. For a day or two after the ship arrived, the enemies of government gave out that their friends in Parliament were increasing, and all things would be foon on the old footing; in other words, that all acts imposing duties would be repealed, the Commissioners board dissolved, the customs put on the old footing, and illicit trade be carried on with little or no hazard. It was very fortunate that I had it in my power to prevent such a false representation from spreading through the province. I have been very cautious of using your name, but I have been very free in publishing abroad the substance of your letter, and declaring that I had my intelligence from the best authority, and have in a great measure defeated the ill defign in raising and attempting to spread so groundless a report. What marks of resentment the Parliament will show, whether they will be upon the province in general, or particular perfons, is extremely uncertain, but that they will be placed somewhere is most certain, and I add, because I think it ought to be so, that those who have uncil. This im, but be be known, doings of a n even that ad all been nmons, the ar and unnuntenanced inftance of ng bufiness

al direction, finess as by

cumftances, though if t would be intelligence reat regard, to them by own no in-antil within

int servant, INSON

have been most steady in preserving the constitution and opposing the licentiousness of such as call themselves Sons of Liberty, will certainly meet with favour and encouragement.

This is most certainly a criss. I really wish that there may not have been the least degree of severity beyond what is absolutely necessary to maintain, I think I may say to you the dependance which a colony ought to have upon the parent state; but if no measures shall have been taken to secure this dependance, or nothing more than some declaratory acts or resolves, it is all over with us. The friends of government will be utterly disheartened, and the friends of anarchy will be afraid of nothing, be it ever so extravagant.

The last vessel from London had a quick passage. We expect to be in suspence for the three or four next weeks, and then to hear our fate. I never think of the measures necessary for the peace and good order of the colonies without pain. There must be an abridgment of what are called English liberties. I relieve myself by considering that in a remove from the state of nature to the most perfect state of government, there must be a great restraint of natural liberty. I doubt whether it is possible to project a system of government in which a colony 2000 miles distant from the parent state shall enjoy all the liberty erving the constiousness of such as ety, will certainly gement.

fis. I really wish the least degree of utely necessary to to you the depensave upon the pass shall have been or nothing more resolves, it is all government will estriends of anarbe it ever so ex-

had a quick pafence for the three to hear our fate. In the colonies without idgment of what relieve myself by from the state of of government, for natural liberty. Project a system only 2000 miles all enjoy all the liberty liberty of the parent state. I am certain I have never yet seen the projection. I wish the good of the colony when I wish to see some further restraint of liberty, rather than the connexion with the parent state should be broken; for I am sure such a breach must prove the ruin of the colony. Pardon me this excursion, it really proceeds from the state of mind into which our perplexed affairs often throws me.

I have the honour to be, with very great efteem, Sir, your most humble and most obedient servant,

THO. HUTCHINSON.

DEAR SIR, Boston, October 26, 1769.

THANK you for your last favor of July 18th. I fancy in my last to you, about two months ago, I have answered the greatest part of it.

My opinion upon the combination of the merchants, I gave you very fully. How long they will be able to continue them if Parliament should not interpose, is uncertain. In most articles they may another year, and you run the risque of their substituting, when they are put to their shifts, something of their own in the place of what they used to have from you, and which they will never return to you for. But it is not possible that provision for dissolving these combinations, and subjecting all who do not renounce them to penalties adequate to the offence, should not be made the first week the parliament meets. Certainly all parties will unite in so extraordinary a case, if they never do in any other. So much has been said upon the repeal of the duties laid by the last act, that it will render it very difficult to keep people's minds quiet, if that should be refused them. They deserve punishment, you will say; but laying or continuing taxes upon all cannot be thought equal, seeing many will be punished who are not offenders. Penalties of another kind seem better adapted.

poffible

I have been tolerably treated fince the Governor's departure, no other charge being made against me in our scandalous news-papers, except my bad principles in matters of government; and this charge has had little effect, and a great many friends promise me support.

I must beg the favour of you to keep secret every thing I write, until we are in a more settled state, for the party here, either by their agent, or by some of their emissaries in London, have sent them every report or rumour of the contents of letters wrote from hence. I hope we shall see better times both here and in England. I am, with great esteem, Sir, your most obedient servant, THO. HUTCHENSON.

g these comnot renounce fience, should iament meetsextraordinary er. So much the duties laid very difficult that should be inflament, you taxes upon all ince the Goge being made vs-papers, exrs of governtle effect, and apport.

many will be Penalties of to keep secret a a more setther by their is in London, amour of the ence. I hope e and in Eng-dient servant,

I A M indebted to you for the obliging manner in which you received my recommendation of my good friend Mr. Paxton, as well as for the account you are pleased to send me of the situation of affairs in the mother country.

I am very forry that the colonies give you fo much employment, and it is impossible to fay how long it will be before things fettle into quiet among us. We have some here who have been so busy in fomenting the late disturbances, that they may now think it needful for their own fecurity to keep up the spirit. They have plumed themselves much upon the victory they have gained, and the support they have since met with; nor could any thing better shew what they would still be at, than the manner in which, by their own account published in the news-papers last August, they celebrated the 14th of that month, as the first anniversary commemoration of what they had done at the tree of liberty on that day the year before. Here a number of respectable gentlemen, as they inform us, now met, and among other toafts drank General Paoli, and the spark of liberty kindled in Spain. I am now speaking of a few individuals only, the body of the people are well disposed; yet when you come to see the journal of the House of Representatives the last fession, I fear you will

D 2

thin

[ 20 ]

think that the same spirit has seized our public counsels. I can, however, fairly fay thus much in behalf of the government, that the last house was packed by means of a public profcription just before the election, of the greatest part of those who had appeared in the preceding session in the support of government: their names were publiched in an inflammatory news-paper, and their constituents made to believe they were about to fell them for flaves. Writs are now out for a new Affembly, but I cannot answer for the choice: I hope, however, that the people in general are in a better temper; yet the moderate men have been fo brow-beaten in the House, and found themselves so infignificant there the last year, that some of them will voluntarily decline coming again. I think this looks too much like a despair of the common-wealth, and cannot be justified on patriotic principles.

The election of Counsellors was carried the last year as might have been expected from such an house. The officers of the crown, and the judges of the superior court were excluded. And I hear that it is the design of some, who expect to be returned members of the house this year, to make sure work at the ensuing election of Counsellors, by excluding, if they can, the gentlemen of the council (who by charter remain such 'till others are chosen in their room)

room) from any share in the choice, though they have always had their voice in it hitherto from the first arrival of the charter. If the house do this, they will have it in their power to model the Council as they please, and throw all the powers of government into the hands of the people, unless the Governor should again exert his negative as he did the last year.

You have doubtless seen some of the curious messages from the late house to the Governor, and can't but have observed with how little decency they have attacked both the Governor and the Lieutenant Governor. They have also in effect forced the Council to declare themfelves parties in the quarrel they had against the latter in a matter of mere indifference. In their message to the Governor of the 31st of January, they have explicitly charged the Lieutenant Governor (a gentleman to whom they are more indebted than to any one man in the government) with "ambition and lust of power," merely for paying a compliment to the Governor agreeable to ancient usage, by attending him to court, and being present in the council-chamber when he made his speech at the opening of the seffion; at which time they go on to fay, " none but the general court and their fervants are intended to be present," still holding out to the people the fervants of the crown as objects of infignificance, ranking

zed our public fay thus much at the last house dic proscription reatest part of receding session neir names were ews-paper, and eve they were Writs are now cannot answer that the peomper; yet the

v-beaten in the

lo insignificant

em will volun-

ink this looks

ommon-wealth, or principles. as carried the fitted from fuch crown, and the were excluded, of fome, who of the house at the ensuing ading, if they noil (who by chosen in their room)

ranking the Secretary with their door-keeper, as fervants of the Assembly; for the Secretary with his clerks and the door-keeper are the only persons present with the Assembly on these occasions.

I he officers of the crown being thus lessen'd in the eyes of the people, takes off their weight and influence, and the balance will of course turn in favour of the people, and what makes them still more infignificant is their dependance on the people for a necessary support: If something were left to the goodwill of the people, yet nature should be sure of a support. The Governor's falary has for about thirty-five years past been pretty well understood to be f. 1000 a year sterling. When this sum was first agreed to, it was very well; but an increase of wealth fince has brought along with it an increase of luxury, fo that what was sufficient to keep up a proper distinction and support the dignity of a Governor then, may well be supposed to be insufficient for the purpose now. The Lieutenant Governor has no appointments as fuch: the Captaincy of Castle-William, which may be worth f. 120 sterling a year, is looked upon indeed as an appendage to his commission, and the late Lieutenant Governor enjoyed no other appointment: he lived a retired life upon his own estate in the country, and was easy. The present door-keeper, as r the Secretary per are the only embly on these ng thus lessen'd off their weight will of course nd what makes heir dependance port: If fomeof the people, fupport. The thirty-five years to be £. 1000 was first agreed rease of wealth t an increase of nt to keep up he dignity of a upposed to be The Lieutents as fuch: the

which may be

s looked upon

ommission, and

oyed no other

life upon his

as easy. The present

present Lieutenant Governor indeed has other appointments, but the people are quarrelling with him for it, and will not suffer him to be easy unless he will retire also.

The Secretary may have something more than £. 200 a year sterling, but has for the two last years been allowed £. 60 lawful money a year less than had been usual for divers years preceding, though he had convinced the house by their Committee, that without this deduction he would have had no more than £. 250 sterling per annum in sees, perquisites and salary altogether, which is not the one half of his annual expence.

The crown did by charter referve to itself the appointment of a Governor, Lieutenant Governor and Secretary: the design of this was without doubt to maintain some kind of balance between the powers of the crown and of the people; but, if officers are not in some measure independent of the people (for it is difficult to serve two masters) they will sometimes have a hard struggle between duty to the crown and a regard to self, which must be a very disagreeable situation to them, as well as a weakening to the authority of government. The officers of the crown are very sew, and are therefore the more easily provided for without burdening the people:

2

and

and such provision I look upon as necessary to the restoration and support of the King's authority.

But it may be faid, How can any new measures be taken without raising new disturbances? The manufacturers in England will rife again and defeat the measures of government. This game, 'tis true, has been played once and fucceeded, and it has been afferted here, that it is in the power of the colonies at any time to raife a rebellion in England, by refuling to fend for their manufactures. For my own part, I do not believe this. The merchants in England, and I don't know but those in London and Bristol only, might always govern in this matter and quiet the manufacturer. The merchant's view is always to his own interest. As the trade is now managed, the dealer here fends to the merchant in England for his goods, upon these goods the English merchant puts a profit of 10 or more, probably 15 per cent. when he fends them to his employer in America. The merchant is so jealous of foregoing this profit, that an American trader cannot well purchase the goods he wants of the manufacturer; for should the merchant know that the manufacturer had fupplied an American, he would take off no more of his wares. The merchants therefore having this profit in view will by one means or other secure it. They know the goods which the American necessary to the authority. y new measures rbances? The rise again and . This game, ind succeeded, it it is in the e to raife a refend for their I do not bengland, and I n and Bristol is matter and erchant's view the trade is ds to the meron these goods ofit of 10 or he fends them e merchant is that an Amethe goods he r should the urer had fupoff no more refore having leans or other ls which the American

American market demands, and may therefore fafely take them off from the manufacturer, tho they should have no orders for shipping them this year or perhaps the next; and I dare fay, it would not be longer before the Americans would clamour for a fupply of goods from England, for it is vain to think they can supply themselves. The merchant might then put an advanced price upon his goods, and possibly be able to make his own terms; or if it should be thought the goods would not bear an advanced price to indemnify him, it might be worth while for the government to agree with the merchants before hand to allow them a premium equivalent to the advance of their stock, and then the game would be over.

I have wrote with freedom, in confidence of my name's not being used on the occasion. For though I have wrote nothing but what in my conscience I think an American may upon just principles advance, and what a servant of the Crown ought upon all proper occasions to suggest, yet the many prejudices I have to combat with, may render it unfit it should be made public.

I communicated to Governor Bernard what you mentioned concerning him, who defires me to present you his compliments, and let you know

know that he is obliged to you for the exprefsions of your regard for his injured character.

I am, with great respect, Sir,

Your most obedient and most humble servant, ANDREW OLIVER.

I ask your acceptance of a journal of the last session which is put up in a box directed to the Secretary of the Board of trade.

SIR, Boston, May 11, 1768. AM this moment favoured with your very obliging letter by Capt. Jarvis, of the 2d March, which I have but just time to acknowledge, as this is the day given out for the ship to fail. I wrote you the 23d of February in reply to your letter of the 28th December; that of the 12th February which you refer to in this of the 2d of March is not yet come to hand, You lay me, Sir, under the greatest obligations, as well for the interesting account of public affairs, which you are from time to time pleafed to transmit me, as for your steady attention to my private concerns. I shall always have the most grateful sense of Mr. Grenville's intentions of favour alfo, whether I ever reap any benefit from them or not. Without a proper support afforded to the king's officers, the respect due to government will of course fail; yet I cannot say for the exprefd character.

wmble fervant, VOLIVER. journal of the up in a box of the Board

Tay 11, 1768. ith your very is, of the 2d ne to acknowat for the ship February in cember; that efer to in this ome to hand. st obligations, nt of public o time pleased y attention to vays have the le's intentions p any benefit oper support respect due to t I cannot fay whether whether under the prefent circumstances, and confidering the temper the people are now in, an additional provision for me would be of real benefit to me personally or not. It has been given out, that no person, who receives a stipend from the government at home, shall live in the country. Government here wants some effectual support: No sooner was it known, that the Lieutenant Governor had a provision of f. 200 a year made for him out of the revenue, than he was advised in the Boston Gazette to resign all pretenfions to a feat in council, either with or without a voice. The temper of the people may be furely learnt from that infamous paper; it is the very thing that forms their temper; for if they are not in the temper of the writer at the time of the publication, yet it is looked upon as the ORACLE, and they foon bring their temper to it. Some of the latest of them are very expressive; I will not trouble you with sending them, as I imagine they some how or other find their way to you: But I cannot but apprehend from these papers and from hints that are thrown out, that if the petition of the House to his Majesty, and their letters to divers noble Lords should fail of success, some people will be mad enough to go to extremities. The commissioners of the customs have already been openly affronted, the Governor's company of Cadets have come to a resolution not to wait on him (as usual) on the day of General Election, the 25th instant, if those gentlemen are of the company. And the Town of Boston have passed a Vote that Faneuil-Hall (in which the Governor and his company usually dine on that day) shall not be opened to him, if the Commissioners are invited to dine with him. A lift of Counfellors has within a few days past been printed and dispersed by way of fneer on Lord Shelburne's letter, made up of King's officers; which lift, the writer fays, if adopted at the next general election, may take away all grounds of complaint, and may possibly prove a healing and very falutary measure. The Lieutenant Governor is at the head of this lift, they have done me the honour to put me next; the Commissioners of the Customs are all in the list except Mr. Temple, and to compleat the lift, they have added some of the waiters. I never thought 'till very lately that they acted upon any settled plan, nor do I now think they have 'till of late; a few, a very few, among us have planned the present measures, and the government has been too weak to fubdue their turbulent spirits. Our situation is not rightly known: but it is a matter worthy of the most serious attention.

[ 27 ]

E 2

come

I am, with the greatest respect, Sir, Your most obedient and most humble servant, ANDREW OLIVER, [ 29 ]

him (as usual)

ne 25th instant.

mpany. And

l a Vote that vernor and his shall not be ers are invited

counsellors has

and dispersed

ourne's letter,

hich lift, the

neral election,

omplaint, and very falutary

rnor is at the

ne the honour

oners of the

t Mr. Temple,

e added fome till very lately lan, nor do I

a few, a very lent meafures,

eak to fubdue

lation is not worthy of the

mble servant,

OLIVER,

, Sir,

I shall take proper care to forward your Letter to Mr. Ingersol. He had received your last.

SIR, Boston, February 13, 1769. HAVE your very obliging favour of the 4th of October. I find myself constrained as well by this letter as by my fon and daughter Spooner's letters fince, to render you my most fincere thanks for the very polite notice you have taken of them; and I pray my most respectful compliments to the good lady your mother, whose friendly reception of them at Nonfuch has, I find, engaged their warmest esteem and respect-He hath wrote us that he had a prospect of succeeding in the business he went upon; but the last letter we had was from her of the 23d of November, acquainting us that he had been very ill, but was getting better. She writes as a person overcome with a sense of the kindness they had met with, in a place where they were strangers, on this trying occasion.

You have heard of the arrival of the King's troops; the quiet reception they met with among us was not at all furprifing to me.—I am forry there was any occasion for fending them.—From the address of the Gentlemen of the Council to General Gage, it might be supposed there was none.

none. I have seen a letter from our friend Ingersoll with this paraphrase upon it—" We hope that your Excellency observing with your own eyes now the troops are among us, our peaceable and quiet behavour, will be convinced that that wicked G——— r B——— d told a fib in saying, We were not so before they came."

I have given you the fense of a stranger on a fingle paragraph of this address, because I suspected my own opinion of it, 'till I found it thus confirm'd-If you have the news-papers containing the address, your own good sense will lead you to make some other remarks upon it, as well as to trace the influence under which sa feems to have been penned. The disturbers of our peace take great advantage of fuch aids, from people in office and power-The Lieutenant Governor has communicated to me your letter containing an account of the debates in parliament, on the first day of the session: We foon expect their decision on An rican affairs, fome I doubt not with fear and trembling-Yet I have very lately had occasion to know, that be the determination of parliament what it will, it is the determination of some to agree to no terms, that shall remove us from our old foundation. This confirms me in an opinion, that I have taken up a long time fince, that if there be no way to take off the original incendiaries, they they will continue to instill their poison into the minds of the people, through the vehicle of the BOSTON GAZETTE.

In your letter to the Lieutenant Governor, you observe upon two defects in our constitution, the popular election of the Council, and the return of Juries by the Towns. The first of these arises from the Charter itself; the latter from our provincial Laws. The method of appointing our Grand Juries lies open to management. Whoever pleases, nominates them at our town-meetings; by this means one who was fuppos'd to be a principal in the Riots of the 10th of June last, was upon that Jury, whose business it was to inquire into them: But the provincial legislature hath made sufficient provision for the return of Petit Juries by their act of 23d Geo. 2d, which requires the feveral towns to take lists of all persons liable by law to serve, and forming them into two classes, put their names written on separate papers into two different boxes, one for the fuperior court, and the other for the inferior: And when venires are iffued, the number therein required are to be drawnout in open town-meeting, no person to serve oftener than once in three years.—The method of appointing Grand Juries appears indeed defective; but if the other is not, it may be imputed to the times rather than to the defect of; the

they

our friend In-vith your own

our peaceable

inced that that

fib in faying,

i stranger on a because I sufll I found it

e news-papers

good sense will

narks upon it,

nder which 😓

disturbers of

of fuch aids,

-The Lieute-

to me your

he debates in

fession: We rican affairs,

mbling-Yet

now, that be

hat it will, it

agree to no

our old foun-

opinion, that

that if there incendiaries, the laws—that neither the Grand Juries nor the Petit Juries have of late answered the expectations of government.

As to the appointment of the Council, I am of opinion that neither the popular elections in this province, nor their appointment in what are called the royal governments by the King's mandamus, are free from exceptions, especially if the Council as a legislative body is intended to answer the idea of the House of Lords in the British legislature. There they are suppos'd to be a free and independent body, and on their being fuch, the strength and firmness of the constitution does very much depend: whereas the election or appointment of the Councils in the manner before mentioned renders them altogether dependent on their constituents. The King is the fountain of honour, and as fuch the peers of the realm derive their honours from him; but then they hold them by a furer tenure than the provincial Counsellors, who are appointed by mandamus. On the other hand, our popular elections very often expose them to contempt; for nothing is more common, than for the reprefentatives, when they find the Council a little untractable at the close of the year, to remind them that May is at hand.

It may be accounted by the colonies as dangerous to admit of any alterations in their charters, Juries nor the Council, I am lar elections in ent in what are ie King's manespecially if the nded to answer in the British pos'd to be a on their being he constitution the election or ne manner begether depen-King is the the peers of m him; but nure than the appointed by our popular to contempt; for the repreuncil a little lonies as danions in their charters, ar, to remind

[ 33 ]

charters, as it is by the Governors in the church to make any in the establishment; yet to make the resemblance as near as may be to the British parliament, some alteration is necessary.

It is not requifite, that I know of, that a Counsellor should be a Freeholder; his residence according to the charter is a fufficient qualification; for that provides only, that he be an inhabitant of or proprietor of lands within the district for which he is chosen: whereas the Peers of the realm fit in the House of Lords, as I take it, in virtue of their baronies. If there should be a reform of any of the colony charters, with a view to keep up the resemblance of the three estates in England, the legislative Council should consist of men of landed estates; but as our landed estates here are small at present, the yearly value of f. 100 sterling per annum, might in some of them at least be a sufficient qualification. As our estates are partable after the decease of the proprietor, the honour could not be continued in families as in England: It might however be continued in the appointee quam diu bene se gesserit, and proof be required of some mal-practice before a suspension or removal. Bankruptcy also might be another ground for removal. A small legislative Council might answer the purposes of government; but it might tend to weaken that levelling principle, which is cherish'd by the present popular constitution, to have an honorary order establish'd, out of which the Council shou'd be appointed. There is no way now to put a man of fortune above the common level, and exempt him from being chosen by the people into the lower offices, but his being appointed a Justice of the Peace; this is frequently done, when there is no kind of expectation of his undertaking the trust, and has its inconveniences. For remedy hereof it might be expedient to have an order of Patricians or Esquires instituted, to be all men of fortune or good landed estates, and appointed by the Governor with the advice of Council, and enroll'd in the Secretary's office, who shou'd be exempted from the lower offices in government, as the justices now are; and to have the legislative Council (which in the first instance might be nominated by the Crown) from time to time fill'd up, as vacancies happen, out of this order of men, who, if the order confifted only of men of landed estates, might elect, as the Scottish Peers do, only referving to the King's Governor, a negative on fuch choice. The King in this case wou'd be still acknowledged as the fountain of honour, as having, in the first instance, the appointment of the persons enroll'd, out of whom the Council are to be chosen, and finally having a negative on the choice. Or, the King might

nt popular conrder establish'd, d be appointed.
man of fortune empt him from ne lower offices,
e of the Peace;
re is no kind of the trust, and nedy hereof it
order of Patribe all men of i appointed by Council, and who shou'd be n government, we the legisla-

Council, and who shou'd be a government, we the legislatance might be to time fill'd this order of only of men the Scottish g's Governor, first instance, roll'd, out of i, and finally Or, the King

King in this as the foun-

might

might have the immediate appointment by manitlamus, as at present in the royal governments. As the gentlemen of the Council would rank above the body from which they are taken, they might bear a title one degree above that of esquire. Besides this legislative Council, a privy Council might be established, to consist of some or all of those persons who constitute the legislative Council, and of other persons members of the House of Representatives, or otherwise of note or distinction; which wou'd extend the honours of government, and afford opportunity of distinguishing men of character and reputation, the expectation of which wou'd make government more respectable.

I wou'd not trouble you with these reveries of mine, were I not affured of your readiness to forgive the communication, although you could apply it to no good purpose.

Mr. Spooner fent me a pamphlet under a blank cover, intituled, "the flate of the nation." I run over it by myfelf before I had heard any one mention it, and tho't I cou'd evidently mark the fentiments of some of my friends. By what I have since heard and seen, it looks as if I was not mistaken. Your right honourable friend I trust will not be offended if I call him mine—I am sure you will not when I term you such—I have settled it for a long time in my own mind, that without a representation in the supreme legislature, there cannot be that union between the head and the members as to produce a healthful constitution of the whole body. I have doubted whether this union could be perfected by the first experiment. The plan here exhibited fcems to be formed in generous and moderate principles, and bids the fairest of any I have yet feen to be adopted. Such a great defign may, as in painting, require frequent touching before it becomes a piece highly finish'd; and after all, may require the meliorating hand of time to make it please universally. Thus the British constitution, consider'd as without the colonics, attain'd it's glory. The book I had fent me is in fuch request, that I have not been able to keep it long enough by me, to confider it in all its parts. I wish to hear how it is receiv'd in the House of Commons. I find by the publications, both of Governor Pownall and Mr. Bollan, that they each of them adopt the idea of an union and representation, and I think it must more and more prevail. The argument against it from local inconveniency, must, as it appears to me, be more than balanc'd by greater inconveniences on the other fide the question: the great difficulty will be in the terms of union.-I add no more, as I fear I have already trefpass'd much on your time and patience, but that I am, Sir, Your obliged and most obedient humble fervant, ANDREW OLIVER.

F 2 own

[ 37 ]

ntation in the e that union

ers as to pro-

whole body.

on could be The plan d in generous the fairest of

Such a great

ire frequent

ghly finish'd;

iorating hand

. Thus the without the book I had

ive not been

, to confider

ar how it is

s. I find by

Pownall and n adopt the

tion, and I revail. The conveniency,

han balanc'd

her side the

in the terms

fear I have already

SIR, New-York, August 12, 1769.

I HAVE been in this city for some time past, executing (with others) his Majesty's commission for settling the boundary between this province and that of New-Jersey. I lest Boston the 11th July, since which, my advices from London have come to me very impersect; but as my friend Mr. Thompson writes me, that he had drawn up my case, and with your approbation laid it before the D. of Graston, I think it needful once more to mention this business to you.

There was a time when I thought the authority of government might have been easily reflored; but while it's friends and the officers of the crown are left to an abject dependance on those very people who are undermining it's authority; and while these are suffered not only to go unpunished, but on the contrary, meet with all kind of support and encouragement, it cannot be expected that you will ever again recover that respect, which the colonies had been wont to pay to the parent state. Government at home will deceive itself, if it imagines that the taking off the duty on glass, paper and painter's colours will work a reconciliation, and nothing more than this, as I can learn, is proposed in Ld. H's late circular letter. It is the principle that is now disputed; the combination against importation extends to tea, although it comes cheaper than ever, as well as to the other forementioned articles. In Virginia it is extended lately to wines; and I have heard one of the first leaders in these measures in Boston say, that we should never be upon a proper footing 'till all the revenue acts from the 15th Charles II. were repealed. Our Assembly in the Massachusetts may have been more illiberal than others in their public messages and resolves; yet we have some people among us still who dare to speak in favour of government: But here I do not find fo much as one, unless it be some of the King's fervants; and yet my business here leads me to affociate with the best. They universally approve of the combination against importing of goods from Great-Britain, unless the revenue acts are repealed, which appears to me little less than affuming a negative on all acts of parliament which they do not like! They fay exprefly, we are bound by none made fince our emigration, but fuch as for our own convenience we choose nment at home hat the taking ainter's colours nothing more posed in Ld. principle that against imporcomes cheaper forementioned ided lately to the first leaders that we should 'till all the rees II. were re-Massachusetts others in their we have fome speak in favour o not find fo of the King's ere leads me to iniversally apt importing of is the revenue o me little less acts of parliaey fay exprefly, our emigration,

ence we choose

to

to submit to; such, for instance, as that for establishing a post-office. The Bill of Rights and the Habeas Corpus Acts, they say, are only declaratory of common law which we brought with us.

Under such circumstances as these, why should I wish to expose myself to popular resentment? Were I to receive any thing out of the revenue, I must expect to be abused for it. Nor do I find that our Chief Justice has received the £. 200 granted him for that service; and yet the Assembly have this year withheld his usual grant, most probably because he has such a warrant from the crown.

With regard to my negociations with Mr. Rogers, I did in conformity to your opinion make an apology to Mr. Secretary Pownall for mentioning it, and there submitted it. I hear it has been since talk'd of; but unless I could be affured in one shape or other of £. 300 per annum, with the other office, I would not chuse to quit what I have. I have no ambition to be distinguished, if I am only to be held up as a mark of popular envy or resentment. I was in hopes before now, through the intervention of your good offices, to have received some mark of favour from your good friend; but the time is not yet come to expect it through that channel! I will however rely on your friendship, whenever you can with propriety appear in forwarding my interest, or preventing any thing that may prove injurious to it.

If Mr. R. has interest enough to obtain the Secretary's place, I shall upon receiving proper security think myself in honour bound to second his views, though I have none at present from him but a conditional note he formerly wrote me. If he is not like to succeed, and my son Daniel could have my place, I would be content, unless affairs take a different turn, to resign in his favour, whether administration should think proper to make any further provision for me or not. And yet I never thought of withdrawing myself from the service, while there appeared to me any prospect of my being able to promote it.

If I have wrote with freedom, I confider I am writing to a friend, and that I am perfectly fate in opening myself to you.

I am, with great respect, Sir,
Your most obedient, humble servant,
ANDREW OLIVER.

ear in forwardany thing that n to obtain the ecciving proper cound to fecond at prefent from formerly wrote ed, and my fon would be cont turn, to refignification should be provision for cought of withce, while there my being able

m, I confider I at I am perfectly t, Sir, humble fervant, W OLIVER. THE Commissioners of the Customs have met with every insult since their arrival at Boston, and at last have been obliged to seek protection on board his Majesty's ship Romney:

—Mr. Hallowell, the Comptroller of the customs, who will have the honour to deliver you this Letter, will inform you of many particulars; he is sent by the Board with their letters to government. Unless we have immediately two or three regiments, 'tis the opinion of all the friends to government, that Boston will be in open rebellion.

I have the honour to be, with the greatest respect and warmest regard,

Dear Sir,

Your most faithful and obliged servant, CHARLES PAXTON.

On board his Majesty's Ship Romney, Boston Harbour, June 20, 1768.

My DEAR SIR, Boston, Dec. 12, 1768.

I Wrote you a few days ago, and did not then think of troubling you upon any private affair of mine, at least not so suddenly; but within this day or two, I have had a conversation with Mr. Oliver, Secretary of the province, the design of which, was my succeeding to the post he holds from the crown, upon the idea, that provision would be made for Governor Bernard, and the Lieutenant Governor would fucceed to the chair, then the Secretary is defirous of being Lieutenant Governor, and if in any way three hundred pounds a year could be annexed to the appointment. You are tensible the appointment is in one department, and the grant in another; now the present Lieutenant Governor has an affignment of £. 200 a year upon the customs here; he has not received any thing from it as yet, and is doubtful if he shall; he has no doubt of its lapse to the crown, if he has the chair; if then by any interest, that fum could be assigned to Mr. Oliver as Lieutenant Governor, and if he should be allowed (as has been usual for all Lieutenant Governors) to hold the command of the castle, that would be another f. 100. This would compleat the Secretary's views; and he thinks his public fervices, the injuries he has received in that fervice, and the favourable fentiments entertained of him by government, may lead him to these views, and he hopes for the interest of his friends. The place of Secretary is worth £. 300 a year, but is a provincial grant at prefent, fo that it will not allow to be quartered on: And as I had view upon the place when I was in England, and went so far as to converse with feveral ide for Gont Governor the Secretary overnor, and unds a year nt. You are department, present Lieunt of f. 200 he has not and is doubtof its lapfe to f then by any gned to Mr. d if he should all Lieutenant of the castle, This would and he thinks has received ole fentiments nt, may lead for the interest retary is worth I grant at prequartered on: ce when I was converse with feveral

L 43 ]

n, upon the feveral men of interest upon it, though I never had an opportunity to mention it to you after I recovered my illness-I hope you will allow me your influence, and by extending it at the treasury, to facilitate the assignment of the £. 200 a year; it will be ferving the Secretary, and it will very much oblige me. _____The Secretary is advanced in life, though much more fo in health, which has been much impaired by the injuries he received, and he wishes to quit the more active fcenes; he confiders this as a kind of otium cum dignitate, and from merits one may think he has a claim to ir. I will mention to you the gentlemen, who are acquainted with my views, and whose favourable approbation I have had. Governor Pownall, Mr. John Pownall, and Dr. Franklin.-My Lord Hillfborough is not unacquainted with it-I have, fince I have been here, wrote Mr. Jackfon upon the subject, and have by this vessel wrote Mr. Mauduit. I think my character fiands fair-I have not been without application to public affairs, and have acquired some know, ledge of our provincial affairs, and notwithstanding our many free conversations in England, I am confidered here as on government fide, for which I have been often traduced both publicly and privately, and very lately have had two or three flaps. The Governor and Lieutenant G 2 tenant Governor are fully acquainted with the negociation, and I meet their approbation; all is upon the idea the Governor is provided for, and there shall by any means be a vacancy of the Lieutenant Governor's place. I have gone fo far, as to fay to some of my friends, that rather than not fucceed I would agree to pay the Secretary f. 100 a year out of the office, to make up f. 300, provided he could obtain only the affignment of f. 200-but the other propofal would, to be fure, be most eligible. I scarce know any apology to make for troubling you upon the subject; the friendship you shewed me in London, and the favourable expressions you made use of to the Lieutenant Governor in my behalf, encourage me, besides a fort of egotism, which inclines men to think what they wish to be real. I submit myself to the enquiries of any of my countrymen in England, but I should wish the matter may be fecret, 'till it is effected.

I am, with very great respect and regard, my dear Sir,

Your most obedient, and most humble servant, NATH. ROGERS,

REMARKS

UPON THE ABOVE

LETTERS.

Affembly have artfully been induced to pass their censures, and have founded an Address to remove his Majesty's Governor and Lieutenant Governor. Unable to point out a single action of the Governor's during his four years administration, they find themselves under a necessity of recurring to letters, written before the time, when either of these Gentlemen were possessed of the offices which they now enjoy.

Upon the revifal of them, I fee strong proofs of Mr. Hutchinson's judgment and understanding, of his just notions of the interest of that country and of this, and of his sidelity and steady regard to the welfare of both: but am ed with the ation; all is led for, and ancy of the ave gone fo, that rather y the Secreto make up only the after propofal e. I fearce oubling you is thewed me orefficient you. Governor in a fort of k what they the enquiries gland, but I et, 'till it is regard, my

nble servant, ROGERS,

at a loss to find what there is in them, which can be a ground of blame; and much less warrant the very extraordinary censures, which have been passed on them. They are his private correspondence with the late Mr. Thomas Whately, a private Gentleman in London: a Member of Parliament indeed, and one who had been Secretary to the Treasury: but who was then out of place; and far from being connected with Government, during the whole time while these letters were writing, was voting in opposition. Being neither of them in trade, their letters did not contain bills or invoices, but they turned upon subjects which Gentlemen naturally write about to each other: the occurrences of the time, and the feveral public matters, which were transacting in the places where each of them refided. The intelligences they contain may have come to hand fomething earlier than those by the common conveyance. But the facts themselves were, soon after, all known to every man in this country as well as that.

They give an account of a riot at Boston, upon the seizure of a smuggling vessel belonging to Mr. Hancock, a principal supporter of the party, and one of the Committee appointed to the management of the censure passed upon these letters; but of this riot we all of us in them, which

d much less

fures, which are his pri-Mr. Thomas

London: a

ind one who

ry: but who m being conne whole time as voting in

em in trade,

invoices, but ntlemen natu-

e occurrences

iblic matters, es where each es they con-nething earlier eyance. But er, all known

iot at Boston, vessel belong-

l supporter of

tee appointed

e passed upon

all of us in due ll as that.

due time from our feveral correspondents knew full as much as Mr. Whately did from his *.

The letters mention the combinations at Bofton against taking our goods: but is it a crime to write as news, what they wished to have told to all the world? and printed in their newspapers for that very purpose, in order to bully our Ministers, and frighten our Merchants and Manufacturers.—They mention, that upon the Governor's not judging it proper to call an Affembly at the will of the party leaders at Boston, these townsmen took upon themselves to write circular letters to all the towns and diftricts, to send one person each to Boston-And do we not all know that they did fend fuch fummons? and that this Mock Assembly did meet? and did they not defire that the world should know it, and publish their resolves for that purpose?

These letters mention the need there is of the government's supporting and encouraging the

In this riot, Mr. Harrison, the Collector, an old Gentleman of an irreproachable character, and very respectable appearance, received a contusion in his breast by a brick-bat, which was thrown at him; under the ill effects of which he languished for more than twelve months, and probably might have been trampled to death, if his son and others had not rescued him. This is what they called a Brush, or small disturbance with boys and negroes.

the officers of the crown in the faithful discharge of their duty—And had not the House of Commons long before this determined the very same thing? and did they not address his Majesty, that he weuld so support and countenance them? They mention the common people's having been worked up into a frenzy, and talked of dying in defence of their liberties—And have they not been perpetually publishing threatenings of the same fort? and in all their papers sounding the trumpet of mutiny and sediction?

The letters fay that many of rank above the vulgar, and fome in public posts, had encouraged this frenzy. And do these censurers pretend to fay they were not in fuch a state of confusion? Far from denying the truth of this account, the Committee of Council themselves acknowledge that "the state of things at this " time was greatly difordered, but the great-" ness of this disorder they say arose from " other causes;" which they there enumerate. Whether they or Mr. Hutchinson were right in their judgment about the causes of these disorders is immaterial to the prefent argument. Both acknowledge that there were diforders. And had not Mr. Hutchinson as good a right to give his opinion about the causes of them to a private correspondent, as these Gentlemen have openly openly to traduce the British Government, and to say that they were owing to them?

With the relation of these facts, the letters mention the writer's fentiments upon Government, and fuch other fubjects as occur: fentiments which, as Mr. Hutchinson justly observes, contain nothing respecting the constitution of the colonies, more than what is contained in his public speeches to the Assembly. But whether they did or did not, will these sons of liberty, as they affect to call themselves, avow the position, that a Gentleman of Boston ought not to write his opinions to his friend in London, unless those opinions do exactly coincide with theirs? I fay nothing of the moderation and good temper which appears in all these letters; for if they could have been still more temperate, yet, while Mr. Hutchinson stands in the way of the leaders of a faction, who can live by nothing but confusion, they would have equally condemned them. They wanted nothing more than to get fome letters under the Governor's hand; and whatever they were they would have condemned them in the fame manner as they do these, and have found that the defign of them was to overthrow the Constitution, and to introduce arbitrary power into the province. Thus they have treated their former Governors; thus they have treated this; and, if Mr. Hutchinson were to die, H

House of Comd the very same is his Majesty, ntenance them? le's having been talked of dying And have they threatenings of papers sounding ion?

iithful discharge

rank above the ofts, had encoufe censurers prefuch a state of ne truth of this incil themselves of things at this but the greatfay arose from here enumerate. n were right in es of these disefent argument. were disorders. as good a right ises of them to a

Gentlemen have openly

die, in three months time they would treat his fuccessor in the same manner.

I might justly rest the matter here; and appeal to every impartial reader, whether if his own private correspondence should, by any act of fraud or perfidy, happen to be betrayed, he would not feel himself happy to find, that his letters contained as many things, as these do. for his friends to commend, and fo very few for the malice of his enemies to earp at. But as these men affect a mighty concern lest Mr. Whately should have shewed his letters to the King; and they might interrupt and "alienate "the affections of our most gracious Sovereign "King George the Third, from his loyal and 45 affectionate province; and destroy the har-" mony and good will between Great Britain " and that colony, which every friend to either " would wish to establish:" and as the generality of people here, misled by false representations and feigned letters in news-papers, are but too apt to believe them, this makes it necessary to take off the mark of hypocrify, and to exhibit them in their own proper features. When the reader will himself see, that all these tearful apprehensions of his Majesty's displeasure, and all these professed desires of harmony between Great Britain and the Colony, are mere mockery

ld treat his

e; and apther if his by any act etrayed, he id, that his s these do, ery few for it. But as ı lest Mr. ters to the l " alienate s Sovereign loyal and y the hareat Britain nd to either the genele represenpapers, are makes it ocrify, and er features. nat all these difpleafure, ny between re mockery

and

and infult; and that they really mean the direct contrary.

See, reader, the true standard of their loyalty, extracted from the Journals of the last House of Representatives. The party had it not in their power to make a declaratory AET of Assembly, because they knew that the Governor would not pass it: but they passed the following declaratory refolutions.

" Mercurii, 3 die Martii, A. D. 1773.

"The House, according to order, entered into the confideration of the report of the Committee appointed to confider his Excellency's message relative to the salaries of the Justices of the Superior Court; and thereupon the following refolves were passed:

"Whereas by an act of the British Parlia-"ment, made and passed in the sixth year of " his present Majesty's reign, it is declared, "That the King, Lords and Commons in "Parliament affembled have, ever had, and

" of right ought to have, full power and " authority to make laws and statutes of suf" ficient force and validity, to bind the colonies

" and people of America, subjects of the Crown

" of Great Bitain, in all cases whatever; and

" afterwards the fame Parliament made and

" passed an act for levying duties in America,

" with the express purpose of raising a revenue,

II 2 " and

and to enable his Majesty to appropriate the se same for the necessary charges of the admini-" stration of justice, and the support of civil " government in fuch colonies where it shall " be judged necessary, and towards further " defraying the expences of defending, pro-" tecting and fecuring faid dominions: And " his Majesty has been pleased, by virtue of 44 the same last mentioned act, to appropriate " a part of the revenue thus raifed against the " consent of the people, in providing for the fupport of the Governor of the province; "and from his Excellency's message of the "4th of February we cannot but conclude, " that provision is made for the support of "the Judges of the Superior Court of Judise cature, independent of the grants and acts of the General Assembly, contrary to the inva-" riable usage of this province:" Therefore,

" RESOLVED, That the admitting any authority to make laws binding on the people of this province in all cases whatsoever, saving the General Court or Assembly, is inconsistent with the spirit of our free constitution, and is repugnant to one of the most essential clauses in our charter, whereby the inhabitants are entitled to all the liberties of free and natural born subjects, to all intents, constructions and purposes whatfoever, as if they had been born within the realm realm of England. It reduces the people to the absolute will and disposal of a Legislature, in which they can have no voice, and who may make it their interest to oppress and enslave them.

[ 53 ]

"RESOLVED, That by the Royal Charter aforesaid, 'the General Court or Assembly hath full power and authority to impofe and levy · proportionable and reasonable affestiments, rates, and taxes, upon the eftates and persons of all and every the proprietors and inhabitants of the province, to be iffued and disposed of by warrant, under the hand of the Governor, with the advice and confent of the Council, for his Majesty's service in the necessary defence and fupport of the government of the province, and the protection and preservation of the inhabitants there, according to fuch acts as are or shall be in force within the province.' And the making provision for the support of the Governor and the Judges otherwise than by the grants and acts of the General Court or Assembly, is a violent breach of the aforefaid most important clause in the charter: the support of government, in which their support is included, being one of the principal purposes for which the clause was inserted.

"Whereas the independence as well as the uprightness of the Judges of the land is essential oropriate the the adminiort of civil here it shall ards further nding, pronions: And by virtue of appropriate against the ding for the e province;

fupport of urt of Judints and acts to the inva-Therefore, admitting any the people of ffage of the onfiftent with and is repuglaufes in our re entitled to porn fubjects, rpofes what-

r, faving the n within the realm

to the impartial administration of justice, and one of the best securities of the rights, liberties, and properties of the people,

"RESOLVED, therefore, That the making the Judges of the land independent of the grants of the people, and altogether dependent on the crown, as they will be, if while they thus hold their commissions during pleasure, they accept of salaries from the crown, is unconstitutional and destructive of that security, which every good member of civil society has a just right to be assured of, under the due execution of the laws; and is directly the reverse of the constitution and appointment of the Judges in Great Britain.

"RESOLVED, That the dependence of the Judges of the land on the crown for their support, tends at all times, especially while they hold their commissions during pleasure, to the subversion of justice and equity, and to introduce oppression and despotic power.

"RESOLVED, as the opinion of this House, That while the Justices of the Superior Court hold their commissions during pleasure, any one of them who shall accept of, and depend upon the pleasure of the crown for his support, independent of the grants and acts of the General Assembly, will discover to the world, that he has not a due sense of the importance of an

f impartial

ar in:

fa

no

go

of u fa

di

de

aŗ

CC

fe.

fu

af

of justice, and ghts, liberties, tof the grants endent on the hey thus hold to they accept nconstitutional which every a just right to ecution of the of the constiadges in Great dependence of frown for their ally while they eafure, to the and to intror.

on inion of this of the Superior g pleafure, any d depend upon fupport, indefer the General corld, that he cortance of an impartial

[ 55 ]

- 4 impartial administration of justice, that he is
- an enemy to the constitution, and has it in his
- heart to promote the establishment of an arbitrary government in the province.

Reader,

After the perusal of these resolutions, what are all the things faid of these men in Mr. Hutchinfon's letters, compared with what they here fay of themselves? Or what is there in his mentioning some particular instances of their not paying a due obedience to the authority of government, compared with this open disavowal of the whole? Yet the Committee, which drew up these resolutions, consisted chiefly of the fame individual men, with the Committee, which drew up the censure on these letters: And indeed they are the same set of men, whose names appear in all Committees of this fort. These are the men, who, in order to give a plaufible colour to their censures, can transform themfelves into the appearance of the most meek and fubmissive of all his Majesty's subjects, and affect to be greatly alarmed at these private letters, and to believe that 'they had a natural e and efficacious tendency to interrupt and · alienate the affections of our Most Gracious Sovereign, King George the Third, from this his loyal and affectionate province: to destroy that harmony and good-will between

· Great-

- · Great-Britain and this colony, which every
- friend to either would wish to establish; and
- to excite the resentment of the British Admi-
- ' nistration against this province, &c.'

At that very time, when they knew that they had been flying in the face of his Majesty, setting acts of parliament at defiance, and passing the most sedicious resolutions against the dignity of the British nation, and the supreme authority of the empire; at that very time these tender-minded loyalists are most piteously concerned about some private letters, less they should interrupt and alienate the affections of their Most Gracious Sovereign King George the Third: Letters which set them in a light of Innocence, compared with the mutinous and insolent portrait, which they have here drawn of themselves.

After having in their public votes spurned at the King's orders, assumed to themselves the control of his Courts of Justice, and proscribed the King's Judges as enemies to the constitution, and promoters of arbitrary government, if they obey the King's order, founded on an act of parliament, and receive the King's salaries, they then call themselves his most loyal and affectionate subjects.

They openly recite a folemn act of the British legislature, and make a counter declaration of their which every establish; and British Admi-&c.'

knew that they is Majesty, settee, and passing the dignity in the dignity in the tenpiteously conters, lest they are affections of ting George the in a light of mutinous and the tere drawn themselves the and proscribed the constitution, ment, if they d on an act of 3's falaries, they oval and affecct of the British r declaration of their their own in direct opposition to it; and then pretend to be mightily afraid, lest these letters to Mr. Whately should destroy the harmony and good will between Great-Britain and the colony.

But not content with professing their great concern to preserve the good will of the British nation, and to appear to his Majesty as his most affectionate subjects, they are anxious even about the good opinion of his Ministers; and are grievously concerned, lest these letters should excite the resentment of the British Administration. Reader, these very men, Adams, Hancock, &c. who, in the form of a Committee of Correspondence for the town of Boston, have been inflaming all the towns in the province against the King's government; who, in the form of a Committee of Assembly, drew up these resolutions, and these censures; these very men, in a message to the Governor, 12th February, 1773, express themselves in the following terms: We are more and more convinced, that it has been the defign of Administration, totally to fubvert the constitution, and to introduce arbitrary government into this province.' Doubtless the King's servants ought, every man of them, to join in advising his Majesty to dismis his Governor and Lieutenant-Governor, who could fuppose any thing ill of men who stood so much in awe of their refentment?

There

There is one remark more, which cannot have escaped the Reader. One of the chief passages objected to by these censurers, is that where Mr. Hutchinson says: 'If no measures shall have been taken to secure this dependance, or nothing more than some declaratory acts or resolves, it is all over with us.' Can there possibly be required a stronger proof of the truth of this observation about the inessicacy of our declaratory act, than the counter declaration which we have now seen? yet, after having themselves verified the prediction, they would have his Majesty turn out his Governor for having foretold it.

Reader, there are but too many men to be found, who, after doing a bad thing, will be false enough to charge it upon others. There are also other instances of men, who having done a wrong thing, will affect to consider as the highest affront, the being told that they have done it. But for men first to do a thing, then to avow it, and publish to the world that they have done it; and after all this to censure it as a crime in their Governor to suppose them capable of doing it. This is a degree of effrontery suited only to the complexion of a Boston Committee-man.

cannot have chief passages at where Mr. es shall have ce, or nothing or resolves, e posibly be truth of this our declaraion which we g. themfelves uld have his having fore-

y men to be ing, will be s. There are aving done a as the highest nave done it. en to avow it, have done it; crime in their of doing it > ed only to the -man. THERE are a few other remarks which it may be of use to make upon these letters.

The only exceptionable expression in Mr. Hutchinson's letters, is that in which he fays: there must be an abridgment of what are called English Liberties. And this appears so, only from our not being apprized of the meaning. of it. An English reader naturally concludes, that by English Liberties, is meant our being governed, not by arbitrary will, but only by Acts of Parliament. In the Boston new dialect the import of this phrase is just the contrary; and what they call English Liberties, is the not being governed by Acts of Parliament. The reader need only look into their votes and public proceedings, to be convinced that this is the true and avowed fense in which they understand it. In the Charter of the Massachuset's colony, King William, in the words of their old Charter, fays: 'And farther our will and pleasure is, and we do hereby for us, our heirs, and fuccessors, grant, establish, and ordain, That all and every of the subjects of us, our heirs, and fucceffors, which shall go to and inhabit within cour faid province and territory, and every of f their children, which shall happen to be born there,

I 2

' there, or on the seas in going thither, or returning from thence, shall have and enjoy all · liberties and immunities of free and natural · subjects, within any of the dominions of us, our · beirs, and fuccesfors, to all intents, constructions, and purposes whatsoever, as if they and · every of them were born within this our realm of England.' From King William's reign to this, no one ever had the least doubt about the meaning of this clause; and the New-Englanders have ever enjoyed the full benefit of it, by their being treated in all parts of the King's dominions, wherever they came, not as aliens, but as denisons, and enjoying all the liberties and immunities of free and natural born subjects. This I fay has invariably hitherto been understood to be the meaning of this paragraph. But within these few years, the leaders of the faction at Boston have been instructed to put a quite new interpretation upon these words, and to say: The people of England have a right to chuse Representatives for themselves, and are governed only by Acts of Parliament; the charter fays, that we shall enjoy all liberties and immunities of free and natural subjects within any of the King's dominions; therefore we too have as good a right, as the people of England have, to choose our own Representatives, and to be governed only by the laws made by our own Affembly; Assembly; and the Parliament of England have nothing to do with us. We, as well as the inhabitants of England, by our charter are entitled to English liberties, and therefore we will make laws for ourselves; and no legislature of Great-Britain has any right to controll us.

A subordinate power of legislation, for the well ordering the feveral provinces and corporations, and for the making laws for their own good government among themselves, that is a power which we can well understand; and accordingly in the Maffachusetts Charter, as well as in most other Charters, there is an express clause, giving them this legislative power, and limiting the extent of it; that its laws shall not be repugnant or contrary to the laws of the realm, or as the next paragraph fays, repugnant to the laws and statutes of this our realm. But these Bostoners passing over this, and all the other clauses in their Charter, which provide for their welfare and good government, while they continue in the province, have most unfortunately chosen to build their high claim of independence upon that fingle clause which grants them nothing while they are in the province, but only provides for their good reception in all parts of the King's dominions, when they go out of it.

In

and enjoy all and natural ons of us, our nes, constructs if they and his our realm am's reign to ubt about the w-Englanders of it, by their King's domialiens, but as rties and imubjects. This understood to . But within the faction at to chuse Reare governed e charter says, a quite new and immunities in any of the too have as gland have, to s, and to be e by our own Affembly;

In opposition to this wild and futile claim of independence, Mr. Hutchinson insists, 4 that

- from King William's days to these, the oldest
- man living never heard of this interpretation.
- · That never before these days was a doubt made
- of the supreme authority of Parliament over
- every part of the empire. That in every go-
- vernment there must be somewhere a supreme
- ' uncontroulable power, an absolute authority to
- decide and determine. That two fuch powers
- cannot co-exist, but necessarily will make two
- . distinct states."

Whether it be right or not, that the empire should be split into a number of separate and independent governments, which shall each of them be at liberty to take their own course, and make laws according to their own liking, without being subject to any controul from that supreme legislature, which has hitherto been thought to have the care of the whole, and whose duty it is to see that no part of the empire fuffer any detriment, that is an argument which I leave to the determination of a superior authority.

Whether it be a justifiable procedure to foster and encourage this froward humour in the Colonists, and to support them in these pretensions of independence, till we have nursed up their discontents

I futile claim of infifts, ' that these, the oldest interpretation. as a doubt made Parliament over that in every gowhere a supreme lute authority to two such powers that the empire of separate and h shall each of own course, and on liking, withtroul from that is hitherto been he whole, and rt of the empire argument which will make two

ocedure to foster our in the Colothese pretensions nursed up their discontents cliscontents into mutiny and rebellion: whether, I say, it be a justifiable thing to do this, for the single purpose of distressing or oversetting a ministry, that I leave to the discretion of our party leaders.

All that I have to observe is this: That if by English liberties and immunities be meant a right given to a set of subjects, wherever they go, to erect a legislature of their own; and then to say that they will be governed by that only, and that the Parliament has nothing to do with them; if, immediately after King James had been expelled for attempting to suspend a very few Acts of Parliament, it can be supposed, that King William meant to assume a power to suspend them all; we may then allow, that the people of Boston have a right to vote these to be English liberties.

But if the British empire be but one empire, and we do not wish to see it crumble to pieces, and break it into as many separate governments, as are the provinces, counties, and corporations contained in it: we must then be convinced, that a grant of English liberties and immunities does not mean a right given to every province or corporation of the empire, to separate itself from the rest of the British dominions, and to form to itself a legislature of its own, which shall be uncontroulable by Parliament:

Or,

[ 64 ]
Or, if the people of Massachusetts Bay will persist in the use of this phrase, and will say, that this ought to be called English liberties; we must then say, as Mr. Hutchinson does, that the British empire is but one, and that to preserve that unity, there must be an abridgment of what are (thus abfurdly) called English liberties.

afetts Bay will and will fay, glish liberties; tchinson does, one, and that be an abridgcalled English To the Right Hon. the Earl of DARTMOUTH.
(Copy)

My Lord, London, August 21, 1773.

HAVE just received from the House of Representatives of the Massachusett's Bay, their Address to the King, which I now enclose, and send to your Lordship with my humble request in their behalf, that you would be pleased to present it to his Majesty the first convenient opportunity.

I have the pleasure of hearing from that province by my late letters, that a sincere disposition prevails in the people there to be on good terms with the Mother Country; that the Assembly have declared their desire only to be put into the situation they were in before the stamp act; they aim at no novelties. And it is faid, that having lately discovered, as they think, the authors of their grievances to be some of their own people, their resentment against Britain is thence much abated.

This good disposition of their's (will your Lordship permit me to say) may be cultivated by a favourable answer to this Address, which I therefore hope your goodness will endeavour to obtain. With the greatest respect,

I have the Honour to be, my Lord, &c.
B. FRANKLIN,

Agent for the House of Representatives.

K

To

To the Clerk of the Council in waiting, (COPY)

Whitehall, Dec. 3, 1773. SIR, HE Agent for the House of Representatives of the Province of the Massachusett's Bay, having delivered to Lord Dartmouth an Address of that House to the King, figned by their Speaker, complaining of the conduct of the Governor and Lieutenant Governor of that province, in respect to certain private letters written by them to their correspondents in England, and praying that they may be removed from their posts in that government; His Lordship hath presented the faid Address to his Majesty; and his Majesty having fignified his pleasure, that the faid Address should be laid before his Majesty in his Privy Council, I am directed by Lord Dartmouth to transmit the same accordingly, together with a copy of the Agent's letter to his Lordship accompanying the said Address.

I am, Sir,
Your most obedient humble servant,
(Signed)
J. POV/NALL,

n waiting.

Dec. 3, 1773. epresentatives chusett's Bay, h an Address ned by their iduct of the r of that proetters written in England, emoved from His Lordship his Majesty; his pleasure, id before his am directed the same acf the Agent's imble fervant,

ing the said

DWNALL.

To the KING's Most Excellent Majesty.

Most Gracious Sovereign,

E your Majesty's loyal subjects, the Representatives of your ancient Colony of the Massachusets Bay, in General Court legally assembled, by virtue of your Majesty's writ under the hand and seal of the Governor, beg leave to lay this our humble Petition before your Majesty.

Nothing but the sense of the duty we owe to our Sovereign, and the obligation we are under to consult the peace and safety of the Province, could induce us to remonstrate to your Majesty the Mal-Conduct of persons who have heretofore had the considence and esteem of this people, and whom your Majesty has been pleased, from the purest motives of rendering your subjects happy, to advance to the highest places of trust and authority in the Province.

Your Majesty's humble petitioners, with the deepest concern and anxiety, have seen the discords and animosities which have too long substited between your subjects of the Parent State and those of the American Colonies. And we have trembled with apprehensions that the consequences naturally arising therefrom, would at length prove stall to both Countries.

K 2

PERMIT

PERMIT us humbly to fuggest to your Majesty, that your subjects here have been inclined to believe, that the Grievances which they have suffered, and still continue to suffer, have been occasioned by your Majesty's Ministers and Principal Servants being, unfortunately for us, misinformed in certain facts of very interesting importance to us. It is for this reason that former Assemblies have from time to time prepared a true state of Facts to be laid before your Majesty, but their humble Remonstrances and Petitions, it is presumed, have by some means been prevented from reaching your Royal hand.

Your Majesty's Petitioners have very lately had before them certain papers from which they humbly conceive, it is most reasonable to suppose, that there has long been a conspiracy of evil men in this province, who have contemplated measures and formed a plan to advance themselves to power and raise their own fortunes by means destructive of the charter of the province, at the expense of the quiet of the nation, and to the annihilating of the rights and liberties of the American colonies.

And we do with all due fubmission to your, Majesty beg leave particularly to complain of the conduct of his Excellency Thomas Hutchinfon Esquire Governor, and the Honourable Andrew Oliver Esquire Lieutenant Governor

y

been inclined ch they have r, have been ers and Prinfor us, mifesting importhat former e prepared a re your Maices and Petie means been al hand. very lately n which they able to supconspiracy of ave contemto your Ma-

Mon to your complain of has Hutchin-Honourable nt Governor to advance

own fortunes

of the pro-

ts and liber-,

of this your Majesty's province, as having a natural and efficacious tendency to interrupt and alienate the affections of your Majesty our Rightful Sovereign from this your Loyal Province, to deftroy that harmony and good-will between Great-Britain and this Colony, which every honest subject would strive to establish, to excite the refentment of the British Administration against this province, to defeat the endeavours of our Agents and friends to ferve us by a fair representation of our state of facts, to prevent our humble and repeated petitions from reaching the ear of Your Majesty, or having their desired effect. And finally that the said Thomas Hutchinson and Andrew Oliver have been among the chief instruments in introducing a fleet and an army into this province, to establish and perpetuate their plans, whereby they have been not only greatly instrumental of disturbing the peace and harmony of the government, and caufing unnatural and hateful discords and animosities between the several parts of your Majesty's extensive dominions, but are justly chargeable with all that corruption of morals and all that confusion, misery, and bloodshed, which have been the natural effects of posting an army in a populous town.

WHEREFORE we most humbly pray that your Majesty would be pleased to remove from their

OF

[ 70 ]

their posts in this government the said Thomas Hutchinson Esquire and Andrew Oliver Esquire, who have by their above-mentioned conduct and otherwise rendered themselves justly obnoxious to your loving subjects, and intirely lost their confidence: And place such good and faithful men in their stead as your Majesty in your great wisdom shall think sit.

In the name and by order of the House of Representatives,

THO. CUSHING, Speaker.

[ 71 ]

TO THE

LORDS COMMITTEE

O F

HIS MAJESTY'S PRIVY COUNCIL, FOR PLANTATION AFFAIRS.

The PETITION of ISRAEL MAUDUIT,

Humbly sheweth unto your Lordships,

THAT having been informed that an Address in the name of the House of Representatives of His Majesty's Colony of Massachusett's Bay, has been presented to His Majesty, by Benjamin Franklin, Esq. praying the removal of His Majesty's Governor and Lieutenant Governor, which is appointed to be taken into consideration on Tuesday next: Your Petitioner, on the behalf of the said Governor and Lieutenant Governor, humbly prays, that he may be heard by counsel in relation to the same, before your Lordships shall make any report on the said Address.

ISRAEL MAUDUIT.

Clemens Lane, Jan. 3, 1774.

2

TO.

e faid Thomas

Oliver Esquire, ioned conduct s justly obnox-

d intirely lost good and faith-

Majesty in your

f the House of

CUSHING,

Speaker.

To the PRINTER of the PUBLIC ADVERTISER.

SIR,

FINDING that two gentlemen have been unfortunately engaged in a duel, about a transaction and its circumstances, of which both of them are totally ignorant and innocent, I think it incumbent on me to declare (for the prevention of farther mischief, as far as such a declaration may contribute to prevent it) that I alone am the person who obtained and transmitted to Boston the letters in question.-Mr. W. could not communicate them, because they were never in his possession; and for the same reason, they could not be taken from him by Mr. T .- They were not of the nature of " private letters between friends:" They were written by public officers to persons in public station, on public affairs, and intended to procure public measures; they were therefore handed to other public persons who might be influenced by them to produce those measures: Their tendency men have been duel, about a of which both and innocent, I declare (for the
as far as fuch a event it) that I inch and tranf-

duel, about a of which both nd innocent, I leclare (for the as far as fuch a event it) that I ned and transquestion.-Mr. m, because they d for the fame n from him by nature of " pri-They were writn public station, ed to procure nerefore handed ht be influenced res : Their tendency

dency was to incense the mother country against her colonies, and, by the steps recommended, to widen the breach, which they effected. The chief caution expressed with regard to privacy, was, to keep their contents from the Colony Agents, who the writers apprehended might return them, or copies of them, to America. That apprehension was, it seems, well founded; for the first Agent who laid his hands on them, thought it his duty to transmit them to his Constituents.

B. FRANKLIN,
Agent for the House of Representatives of the Massachusetts-Bay.

Craven-street, Dec. 25, 1773.

L

PROCEEDINGS

ON THE

ADDRESS

OF THE

ASSEMBLY

o F

MASSACHUSETTS BAY,

TO REMOVE

HIS MAJESTY'S GOVERNOR

AND

LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR.

[ *77. ]

At the COUNCIL CHAMBER, Jan. 4; 1774.

PRESENT, Lord President, the Secretaries of State, and many other Lords.

Dr. Franklin and Mr. Bollan, Mr. Mauduit and Mr. Wedderburn.

Dr. Franklin's Letter, and the Address, Mr. Pownal's Letter, and Mr. Mauduit's Petition, were read.

Mr. Wedderburn.

The Address mentions certain papers. I would wish to be informed what are those papers.

Dr. Franklin.

They are the Letters of Mr. Hutchinson and Mr. Oliver.

Court.

Have you brought them?

Dr. Franklin.

No, but here are attested copies.

[ *L]

Court.

Court.

Do you not mean to found a charge upon them? if you do, you must produce the letters.

Dr. Franklin.

These copies are attested by several Gentlemen at Boston, and a Notary Public.

Mr. Wedderburn.

My Lords, we shall not take advantage of any impersection in the proof. We admit that the letters are Mr. Hutchinson's and Mr. Oliver's hand writing: reserving to ourselves the right of inquiring how they were obtained.

Dr. Franklin.

I did not expect that Council would have been employed on this occasion.

Court.

Had you not notice fent you of Mr. Mauduit's having petitioned to be heard by Council on behalf of the Governor and Lieutenant Governor?

Dr. Franklin.

I did receive such notice, but I thought that this had been a matter of politics and not of law*, and have not brought any Council.

Court.

a ri

as t lin'

my

he app

of

ha

fho

ha

ac

th cil

C

* See an Answer to this, pages 109, 110.

[ * 79 ]

Court.

Where a charge is brought, the parties have a right to be heard by Council or not, as they chuse.

Mr. Mauduit.

My Lords, I am not a native of that country, as these Gentlemen are. I well know Dr. Franklin's great abilities, and wish to put the defence of my friends more upon a parity with the attack; he will not therefore wonder that I chuse to appear before your Lordships with the assistance of Council. My friends, in their letters to me, have defired (if any proceedings, as they fay, should be had upon this Address) that they may have a hearing in their own justification, that their innocence may be fully cleared, and their honour vindicated; and have made provision accordingly. I do not think myself at liberty therefore to give up the affiftance of my Council, in defending them against this unjust accufation.

Court.

Dr. Franklin may have the affistance of Council, or go on without it, as he shall chuse.

Dr. Franklin.

I defire to have Council.

Court.

charge upon te the letters.

several Gen-Public.

advantage of e admit that and Mr. Oliourselves the obtained.

would have

of Mr. Maurd by Council ieutenant Go-thought that is and not of Council.

110.

Court.

[ *80 ]

Court.

What time shall you want?

Dr. Franklin.

Three weeks.

Ordered, That the further proceedings be on Saturday 29th instant.

At the Council Chamber, Saturday, Jan. 29, 1774. PRESENT, Lord President and 35 Lords.

Mr. WEDDERBURN.

ecdings be on

AMBER, 1774. and 35 Lords.

JRN.

The Substance of that Part of Mr. W ED-DERBURN's SPEECH, which related to the obtaining and fending away Mr. WHATELY's LETTERS.

COUNSEL for the ASSEMBLY,

Mr. DUNNING,

Mr. JOHN LEE.

COUNSEL for the GOVERNOR and LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR,

Mr. WEDDERBURN.

L 2

The Substance of that Part of Mr. WED-DERBURN'S SPEECH, which related to the obtaining and fending away Mr. WHATELY'S LETTERS.

MY LORDS,

THE case, which now comes before your Lordships, is justly entitled to all that attention, which, from the presence of so great a number of Lords, and of so large an audience, it appears to have excited. It is a question of no less magnitude, than whether the Crown shall ever have it in its power to employ a faithful and steady servant in the administration of a Colony.

In the appointment of Mr. Hutchinson, his Majesty's choice followed the wishes of his people; and no other man could have been named, in whom so many favourable circumstances all concurred to recommend him.

A native of the country, whose ancestors were among its first settlers. A Gentleman, who had for many years presided in their Law Courts; of tried integrity; of confessed abilities; and who had long employed those abilities, in the study of their history and original constitution.

My

[ 78 ]

My Lords, if such a man, without their attempting to alledge one single act of misconduct, during the four years, in which he has been Governor, is to be born down by the mere surmises of this Address, it must then become a case of still greater magnitude, and ever be a matter of doubt, whether the Colony shall henceforward pay respect to any authority derived from this country.

A charge of fome fort however is now preferred against these Gentlemen by this Address; and the prayer of it is, that his Majesty would punish them by a disgraceful removal.

If they shall appear to have either betrayed the rights of the Crown, or to have invaded the rights of the People, your Lordships doubtless will then advise his Majesty no longer to trust his authority with those, who have abused it.

But if no crime is objected to them, no act of misconduct proved, your Lordships will then do the justice to their characters, which every innocent man has a right to expect; and grant them that protection and encouragement, which is due to officers in their station.

My Lords, this is not the place to give any opinion about our public transactions relating to the Colonies, and I shall carefully avoid it. But the whole foundation of this Address rests upon

[ *79 ]

upon events of five and fix years standing; and this makes it necessary to take up the history of them from their first original.

In the beginning of the year 1764, *

My Lords, After having gone through the history of this people, for the last ten years, and shewn what has been the behaviour of Mr. Hutchinson in all these occurrences, and the very laudable and friendly part he acted on every occasion for the good of the colony; I now come to consider the argument upon that footing, on which my learned friends have chosen to place it.

They have read to your Lordships the Assembly's address; they have read the letters; and they have read the censures passed on them: and, after praying the removal of his Majesty's Governor and Lieutenant-Governor, they now tell your Lordships: There is no cause to try—There is no charge—There are no accusers—There are no proofs.—They say that the Governor and Lieutenant-Governor are disliked by the Assembly, and they ought to be dismissed, because they have lost the considence of these who complain against them.

 $M_{\rm Y}$

f misconduct, he has been the mere furen become a and ever be a by shall hencecority derived hout their at-

is now preby this Adis, that his a difgraceful ither betrayed re invaded the pips doubtless onger to trust a abused it. them, no act hips will then which every ct; and grant ement, which ce to give any fiions relating fully avoid it. Address rests upon

[ *80 ]

My Lords, This is so very extraordinary a proceeding, that I know of no precedent, except one: but that, I confess, according to the Roman poet's report, is a case in point.

Nunquam, si quid mihi credis, amavi
Hunc hominem.—Sed quo cecidit sub crimine?—Quisnam Delator—Quibus Indicibus?—Quo Teste probavit—Nil horum—Verbosa & grandis epistola venit
A Capreis—Bene habet: nil plus interrogo.

My Lords, The only purport of this important address is, that the Governor and Lieutenant-Governor have lost the confidence of the people; upon account of fome papers, which they have voted to be unfriendly to them, and that they have been amongst the chief instruments in introducing a fleet and army into the province. -Your Lordships have heard the letters read, and are the best judges of their tendency. I can appeal to your Lordships, that it was not these letters, but their own ill conduct, which made it necessary to order the four regiments. In point of time it was impossible: for in Mr. Hutchinson's very first letter, it appears, that they had an expectation of troops. And they arrived in three months after. I could appeal too to their own knowledge: for the printed collection of Sir Francis Bernard's and General Gage's, &c. letters were before them, which indisputably shew the direct contrary.

But

tÌ

C

16

[ 79 ]

But as my learned friends have not attempted to point out the demerits of these letters, I need not enter into the defence of them. To call them only innocent letters, would be greatly to depreciate them. They contain the strongest proofs of Mr. Hutchinson's good sense, his great moderation, and his sincere regard to the welfare of that his native province. Yet, for these it is, that they tell us he has lost the considence of the people.

My Lords, There cannot be a more striking instance of the force of truth, than what the Committee, who drew up these papers, exemplify in their conduct. In their fecond resolution, they acknowledge the high character, in which Mr. Hutchinson stands upon account of his eminent abilities. In the very outset of their address, they acknowledge the good use which he had made of those abilities: for he could not have enjoyed their confidence, as they fay he heretofore did, if he had made a bad one. They acknowledge that this confidence fublished, at least till the time of his being made Governor. Else they could not express their thankfulness to his Majesty as they do, and applaud the appointment of him, as proceeding from the purest motives of rendering his subjetts happy.

In the heighth of their ill will therefore to Mr. Hutchinson, truth looks his enemies ful

nine?—Quifnam probavit nit

ıvi traordinary a edent, except

to the Ros

of this imporand Lieuteidence of the papers, which to them, and instruments in be province. ters read, and lency. I can was not thefe which made regiments. In : for in Mr. appears, that os. And they could appeal or the printed l's and General

But

them, which

ary.

full in the face, and extorts from them a confession of his merit, even in the very act of accusing him.

But, whatever be the censures, which the Assembly may have been induced to pass on him, I will now give your Lordships a proof of his enjoying the people's confidence, to the very time of the arrival of these letters.

Every one knows that there are few subjects, in which the people of the colonies have more eagerly interested themselves, than in settling the boundary lines between the feveral provinces. Some of your Lordships may remember the long hearings which have been held at this Board upon these disputes. Of late, they have taken upon themselves to fix the limits of the King's charters. An agreement was made between the two Assemblies of New York and Massachusett's Bay, that they should each appoint their Commissaries, to meet and settle the boundary line between the two provinces. Both of them no doubt looked out for the best men they had for that purpose. But the people of Massachufett's Bay, after they had chosen their commissaries, still thought that they could more securely trust their interests in their hands, if Mr. Hutchinfon would go along with them. To him they had been used to look, as the man, who best knew the history of their first settlements; him they considered as the ablest defender of the province's rights:

them a cone very act of res, which the to pass on him, a proof of his to the very re few subjects, ics have more n in fettling the eral provinces. remember the ld at this Board hey have taken of the King's ide between the l Massachusett's oint their Comboundary line th of them no en they had for of Maffachutheir commissad more fecurely if Mr. Hutch-To him they , who best knew ents; him they of the province's rights:

IMAGE EVALUATION TEST TARGET (MT-3)

Photographic Sciences Corporation

23 WEST MAIN STREET WEBSTER, N.Y. 14580 (716) 872-4503

TO THE STATE OF THE PARTY OF TH

CIHM/ICMH Microfiche Series. CIHM/ICMH Collection de microfiches.

Canadian Institute for Historical Microreproductions / Institut canadian de microreproductions historiques

(C) 1985

rights: and had ever found in him the most zealous affection for their welfare. The party leaders perhaps might have been content to lose to the province any number of acres or a few townships, rather than owe to Mr. Hutchinson the preservation of them. But they did not dare to set their faces against the general sense of the people. The Governor was therefore requested to go with the Commissaries. He did so, and settled for them a much better line, than they had ever expected. And the New York and their own Commissaries both of them acknowledged, that the advantage gained to the province, was chiefly owing to the superior knowledge and abilities of Mr. Hutchinson.

Thus far then the Governor's character stands fair and unimpeached. Whatever therefore be the foundation of this Address for his removal, it must be something done by him, or known of him, since his return from this service just before the arrival of these letters. Your Lordships will observe, that his enemies don't attempt to point out a single action, during the four years, in which he has been Governor, as a subject of complaint. The whole of this Address rests upon the foundation of these letters, written before the time, when either of these Gentlemen were possessed of the offices, from which the Assembly now ask their removal. They owe therefore all the ill will which has been raised against them, and the loss of that confidence, which the Assembly themselves acknowledge they had heretofore injoyed, to Dr. Franklin's good office in sending back these letters to Boston. Dr. Franklin therefore stands in the light of the first mover and prime conductor of this whole contrivance against his Majesty's two Governors; and having by the help of his own special considents and party leaders, first made the Assembly bis Agents in carrying on his own secret designs, he now appears before your Lordships to give the finishing stroke to the work of his own hands.

How these letters came into the possession of any one but the right owners, is still a mystery for Dr. Franklin to explain .- They who know the affectionate regard which the Whatelys had for each other, and the tender concern they felt for the honour of their brother's memory, as well as their own, can witness the distresses which this occasioned. My Lords, the late Mr. Whately was most ferupulously cautious about his letters. We lived for many years in the strictest intimacy; and in all those years I never law a fingle letter written to him. These letters I believe were in his custody at his death. And I as firmly believe, that without fraud, they could not have been got out of the custody of the person whose hands they fell into. His brothers little wanted this additional aggravation [ 83 ] to the loss of him. Called upon by their correspondents at Boston; anxious for vindicating their brother's honour and their own, they enquired; gave to the parties aggrieved all the information in their power; but never accused.

Your Lordships know the train of mischiefs which followed. — But wherein had my late worthy friend or his family offended Dr. Franklin, that he should first do so great an injury to the memory of the dead brother, by secreting and sending away his letters: and then, conscious of what he had done, should keep himself concealed, till he had nearly, very nearly occasioned the murder of the other.

After the mischiefs of this concealment had been left for five months to have their full operation, at length comes out a letter, which it is impossible to read without horror; expressive of the coolest and most deliberate malevolence.—My Lords, what poetic fiction only had penned for the breast of a cruel African, Dr. Franklin has realized, and transcribed from his own. His too is the language of a Zanga:

- "Know then 'twas --- I.
- " I forg'd the letter-I dispos'd the picture-
- " I hated, I despis'd, and I destroy."

What are the motives he assigns for this conduct, I shall now more deliberately consider.

M 2

My

to e loss of that hemselves ac-

oyed, to Dr.

g back these

herefore stands

id prime cone against his

aving by the

nts and party

bis Agents in is, he now ap-

e the finishing

e possession of

still a mystery

ey who know

Whatelys had

ncern they felt

's memory; as the distresses

ords, the late

oufly cautious

many years in those years I him. These ly at his death.

without fraud,

of the custody

fell into. His

nds.

My Lords, if there be any thing held facred in the intercourse of mankind, it is their private letters of friendship-If there can be any such private letters, those which passed between the late Mr. Whately and Mr. Oliver are fuch-The friendship between the two families is of thirty years standing-during all that time there has been kept up an intercourse of letters; first with Mr. Whately, the father, and then with the late Mr. Thomas Whately, the fon-In the course of this friendship, a variety of good offices have passed between the two families: one of these fell within the period of these letters-Upon Mr. Oliver's daughter's coming to England with her husband upon business, they were received at Nonfuch by Mrs. Whately and her fons, as the fon and daughter of their old friend and correspondent -And accordingly your Lordships will find, that one part of these letters is to return thanks for the civilities shewn to Mr. and Mrs. Spooner at Nonfuch.

These are the letters which Dr. Franklin treats as public letters, and has thought proper to secrete them for his own private purpose. How he got at them, or in whose hands they were at the time of Mr. Whately's death, the Doctor has not yet thought proper to tell us. Till he do, he wittingly leaves the world at liberty

ing held facred is their private an be any fuch d between the are fuch-The lies is of thirty time there has ters; first with en with the late -In the course ood offices have : one of these letters-Upon o England with were received her fons, as the friend and coryour Lordships ters is to return o Mr. and Mrs.

n Dr. Franklin thought proper private purpose. nose hands they sely's death, the roper to tell us: the world at liberty liberty to conjecture about them as they please, and to reason upon those conjectures .- But let the letters have been lodged where they may, from the hour of Mr. Thomas Whately's death, they became the property of his brother and of the Whately family. Dr. Franklin could not but know this, and that no one had a right to dispose of them but they only --- Other receivers of goods dishonourably come by, may plead as a pretence for keeping them, that they don't know who are the proprietors: In this case there was not the common excuse of ignorance; the Doctor knew whose they were, and yet did not restore them to the right owner -This property is as facred and as precious to Gentlemen of integrity, as their family plate or jewels are. And no man who knows the Whately's, will doubt, but that they would much fooner have chosen, that any person should have taken their plate, and fent it to Holland for his avarice, than that he should have secreted the letters of their friends, their brother's friend, and their father's friend, and fent them away to Bost to gratify an enemy's malice.

The reasons assigned for this, are as extraordinary as the transaction itself is: They are public letters, to public persons, on public assairs, and intended to produce public measures. This, my Lords, is the first; and the nex

next reason assigned for publishing them is, because the writers desire that the contents of them should be kept secret.

If these are public letters, I know not what can be reckoned private. If a letter whose first business is to return thanks to an old Lady of feventy, for her civilities at Nonfuch, be not a private letter, it will be necessary that every man should be particularly careful of his papers: for, after this, there never can be wanting a pretence for making them public*.

But says the Doctor, "They were written by " public officers."-Can then a man in a public station have no private friends? and write no private letters? Will Dr. Franklin avow the principle, that he has a right to make all private letters of your Lordships his own, and to apply them to fuch uses as will best answer the purposes of party malevolence? Whatever may have been the confidence heretofore placed in him, fuch a declaration will not furely contribute to increase it.

But they were written to persons in public stations. Just the contrary to this appears to have been the case: Dr. Franklin is too well acquainted

• The reader will be pleased to observe, that the question here is not whether they be good letters or bad ones, but whether they are public letters or private.

them is, be-

now not what ter whose first old Lady of onsuch, be not try that every of his papers: wanting a pre-

were written by an in a public and write no klin avow the take all private, and to apply inswer the pur-Whatever may ofore placed in furely contrierfons in public this appears to in is too well acquainted

e, that the question s or bad ones, but [ 87 ]

acquainted with our history, not to know, that Mr. Whately, during both these years, and for two years before and after, was only a private Member of Parliament; and, as Mr. Oliver justly observes in a letter of his, They at Boston could not be supposed to apply to him as baving an interest with the Ministers, when they knew that he was all that time voting in opposition to them.

Does then the Doctor mean, that his being a Member of Parliament placed him in a public station?—And will he then avow, that a Gentleman's being in Parliament is ground sufficient for bim to make his letters lawful plunder, and to send them to his enemies?

But they were written on public affairs. A very grievous offence! But it is a crime, of which probably we all of us have been guilty, and ought not, furely, for that only, to forfeit the common rights of humanity.

But they were intended to procure public meafures. And does not every man, who writes in confidence to his friend upon political subjects, lament any thing which he thinks to be wrong, and wish to have it amended? And is this the crime of so heinous a nature, as to put Mr. Whately's friends out of the common protection? and to give to Dr. Franklin a right to hang them up to party rage, and to expose them, for what he knew, to the danger of having their houses houses a second time pull'd down by popular fury.

[ 88 ]

But the writers of them defired secrecy.—True, they did so. And what man is there, who, when he is writing in confidence, does not wish for the same thing? Does not every man say things to a friend, which he would not chuse to have published to other people, and much less to his enemies? Would letters of friendship be letters of friendship, if they contained nothing but such indifferent things as might be said to all the world?

If this is the case at all times with the confidential intercourse of friends, in times of partyviolence, there must be a thousand things said in letters, which, though innocent in themselves, either by rival malice or party prejudice, may be turned to a very different construction. These letters themselves have been distorted in this manner; and some expressions in them cannot possibly be understood, without knowing the correspondent letters, to which they refer. And when a factious party had got possession of the Town meetings, and led the Assembly into what resolutions they pleased, and were watching for any pretence to abuse and insult their Governors, is it at all to be wondered, that they did not wish to have the contents of their letters told to their enemies?

When we read in these letters such passages as these: " If there be no necessity for it, I think fecrecy .- True, ere, who, when ot wish for the fay things to a e to have pubch less to his hip be letters of ng but fuch inall the world? with the confiimes of partynd things faid t in themselves, prejudice, may ruction. These istorted in this them cannot knowing the ney refer. And ossession of the Affembly into d were watchnd infult their

[ 89 ]

in by popular

s fuch paffages y for it, I think vondered, that ntents of their

it would be best it should not be known that " this intelligence comes from me." Or this: 46. I have wrote with freedom, in confidence of " my name's not being used on the occasion. "For though I have wrote nothing but what, " in my consciences: I think an American may, " upon just principles, advance, and what a is fervant of the crown ought, upon all proper " occasions, to suggest; yet the many prejudices "I have to combat with, may render it unfit " it should be made public." Or this of Mr. Hutchinson's: "I must beg the favour of you to keep fearet every thing I write, until we are in a more fettled state, for the party here, either by their Agent, or by some of their emissaries in London, have sent them every report or rumour of the contents; of letters " wrote from hence. I hope we shall see better "times both here and in England." Or this again of Mr. Oliver's : " I have wrote with free-45 dom; I consider I am writing to a friend; and "that I am perfectly fafe in opening myself to you." Upon reading these passages, which are all there are of this kind, a man, whose heart was cast in the common mould of humanity, would have been apt to fay: These are letters irregularly obtained: The writers defire that every thing they write should be kept secret: they belong to Mr. Whately, who never injured me: I will therefore return them to the right owner. Dr. Franklin's reasoning is of a very different cast. After having just before told us: These are public letters, sent to public persons, designed for public purposes, and therefore I have a right to betray them; he now says, these are letters which the writers desire may be kept secret, and therefore I will send them to their enemies. Prepared on both sides for his rival's overthrow, he makes that an argument for doing him hurt, which any other man would consider as a principal aggravation of the injustice of it.

But, if the defiring fecrecy be the proof, and the measure of guilt, what then are we to think of Dr. Franklin's case? whose whole conduct in this affair has been fecret and mysterious? and who, through the whole course of it, has discovered the utmost solicitude to keep it so? My Lords, My accounts fay, that when these letters were fent over to Boston, so very desirous was Dr. Franklin of fecrecy, that he did not chuse to fet his name to the letter which accompanied them. This anonymous letter expressly ordered, that it should be shewn to none but to a junto of fix persons. If the Doctor chuse it, I will name the fix. The direction of every letter was erased, and strict orders were given, that they should be carefully returned again to London. The manner in which they were brought into the Assemvery different us: These are as, designed for have a right to re letters which ret, and therenies. Prepared row, he makes aurt, which any orincipal aggra-

the proof, and are we to think ole conduct in ysterious? and f it, has discoep it so? My hen these letters lesirous was Dr. not chuse to h accompanied pressly ordered, ut to a junto of it, I will name tter was erased, they should be lon. The maninto the Assembly, all shewed the most earnest desire of concealment. Under these mysterious circumstances have the Assembly passed their censures; and voted this Address to his Majesty against Mr. Hutchinson and Mr. Oliver, upon account of a parcel of letters directed to some-body, they know not whom; and sent from some-body, they know not where. And Dr. Franklin now appears before your Lordships, wrapt up in impenetrable secrecy, to support a charge against his Majesty's Governor and Lieutenant Governor; and expects that your Lordships should advise the punishing them, upon account of certain letters, which he will not produce, and which he dares not tell how he obtained.

But the Doctor fays, be transmitted them to his constituents.

That Dr. Franklin sent these letters to such persons as he thought would in some way or other bring them into the Assembly, may be true. and accordingly, after an alarm of some dreadful discovery, these letters were produced by one single person, pretending to be under an injunction to observe the strictest secrecy, and to suffer no copies to be taken of them.—After allowing two or three days for Fame to amplify, and for Party-malice to exaggerate; and after having thereby raised a general prejudice against the Governor; at length another Member tells the Assembly, that he had received from an unknown hand a copy of the letters; and wished to have that copy compared and authenticated with the originals. After this, when they had brought the Council into their measures, they then found their powers enlarged; and that they were at liberty to shew them to any one, provided they did not suffer them to go out of their hands; and the King's Governor and Lieutenant-Governor were permitted to look upon them only in this opprobrious manner, in order to render the indignity so much the more offensive.

J 2

bly,

This Dr. Franklin may call transmitting the letters to his constituents; and upon those who know nothing of the course of these proceedings, may easily impose the belief of it: But your Lordships will readily see, and every man who has been an agent very well knows, that this is not what is meant by transmitting to his constituents. My Lords, when an agent means to write to the Assembly, he addresses his letter to the Speaker, to be communicated to the House. And the Doctor knows, that there are many articles in the Journals of this tenor; "A letter from Dr. Franklin to the Speaker, was read."

But the course taken with these letters was just the reverse of this. The letter which came with them was anonymous; though the hand was well known; ed from an una, and wished and authentihis, when they their measures, arged; and that m to any one, n to go out of Governor and nitted to look ous manner, in much the more ransmitting the upon those who ele proceedings, f it: But your every man who ows, that this is ing to his conagent means to esses his letter to ed to the House. there are many enor; "A letter aker, was read." le letters was just which came with he hand was well known; known: too well perhaps known to the selected few, who only were to be allowed the fight of it .- Since therefore the Doctor has told us that he transmitted these letters to his constituents, we know now who they are. His constituents, by his own account, must be this particular junto: for to them, and them only, were the letters communicated. Dr. Franklin did not communicate them, as their agent, to the Assembly: For whatever may have been the whispers of this junto, the Affembly, as an Affembly, does not to this day know by whom the letters were fent. And fo little do these innocent well-meaning farmers, which compose the bulk of the Assembly, know what they are about, that by the arts of these leaders, they have been brought to vote an Address to his Majesty to dismiss his Governor and Lieutenant-Governor, founded upon certain papers, which they have not named; fent to them from fome-body, they know not whom; and originally directed to some-body, they cannot tell where: for, my Lords, my accounts fay, that it did not appear to the House that these letters had ever been in London.

I have pointed out to your Lordships, the manner in which this conspiracy against the Governor was conducted, with all its circumstances, as the letters from Boston relate them. And from this account your Lordships will not wonder tha

that I consider Dr. Franklin not so much in the light of an agent for the Assembly's purpose, as in that of a first mover and prime conductor of it for his own; not as the Assembly's agent for avenging this dreadful conspiracy of Mr. Hutchinson against his native country; but as the actor and fecret spring, by which all the Assembly's motions were directed: the inventor and first planner of the whole contrivance. He it was that received and fent away Mr. Whately's letters. By what means he laid his hands on them, he does not fay; till he do, he leaves us at liberty to suppose the worst; I would wish to fuggest the best. One case only must be excepted; Dr. Franklin will not add another injury, and fay to the representative * of the Whately family, that they were any of them consenting to the perfidy. And yet, my Lords, nothing but that confent could put him honourably in posfession of them, and much less give him a right to apply them to so unwarrantable a purpose.

My Lords, there is no end of this mischief. I have now in my hand an expostulatory letter from a Mr. Roome, not a native of America, but sent from London to Rhode Island, to collect in and sue for large outstanding debts there.

This

Mr. Whately intended, if he had been well enough, to have been at the Council.

This poor man, in a familiar letter to a friend in the same province, expresses a just indignation at the difficulties he met with in executing his trust, from the iniquitous tendency of their laws, and of the proceedings of their courts, to defraud their English creditors; and then gives him an invitation to come and fpend some time with him at his country house, and catch perch and be of their fishing party. For this letter, the Assembly brought him under examination, and committed him to prison, because he would not answer to his printed name at the end of one of the letters in this book. " Upon this occasion he writes a letter to one of his imployers, with whom he had served his clerkship here in London, expostulating on the cruelty and injustice of the executors suffering their dead brother's papers to be applied to fuch a purpose. For he, my Lords, had no conception that any one else could have made this use of letters which did not belong to him. Mr. Roome had heard that the Boston letters had all been sent back again to London; and knew that their Speaker was directed to procure his original letter, in order to their proceeding against him still more severely. The Merchant here came much in the oly's purpose, me conductor embly's agent racy of Mr.

which all the the inventor rivance. He Mr. Whateaid his hands do, he leaves I would wish must be ex-nother injury, the Whately consenting to nothing but rably in pofhim a right a purpose. this mischief. ulatory letter of America, fland, to colg debts there. This en well enough,

• The Book of Letters, printed at Boston, then in his hand.

with this letter to a friend of Mr. Whately's defiring that he would go with him to Mr. Whately, and join in intreating him, not to fend back the letter to their Speaker, which would oblige him, he writes, either to fly the Province, or elfe to fuffer a long imprisonment. My Lords, Mr. Whately's friend had feen too much of the anguish of mind under which he had been fuffering for the five months fince this discovery. He knew that it would be giving him another shab to suffer a stranger abruptly to put this letter into his hands; he informed the merchant of the state of the affair, and prevented his going to him.

But what had this poor man done to Dre Franklin, that bis letter should be fent back too? Mr. Hutchinson and Mr. Oliver were public persons, and their letters, according to the Doctor's new code of morality, may be lawful prize: But Mr. Roome's is a name we had never heard of Was be too a man in a public station? His friend to whom he sent this invitation to come a fishing with him, was be a public person? Could Mr. Roome, when he was writing to New London, imagine that he was writing a letter to be shewn to the King? and to alienate his affections from that loyal people? Did the failing of the four Regiments to Boston depend upon the intelligence of a man a man at Narragansett? The writer of this letter could not have a thought of its producing public measures—Surely then the returning of this letter might have been omitted; and this poor man at least might have been spared. But all men, be they in public stations or in private, be they great or small, all are prey that unfortunately fall into Dr. Franklin's hands: He wantonly and indiscriminately sends back the letters of all; unfeeling of the reslection, which must arise in every other breast, that what is sport to him, may be imprisonment and death to them.

But under all this weight of suspicion, in the full view of all the mischievous train of consequences which have followed from this treachery (for fuch there must be somewhere, though Dr. Franklin does not chuse to let us know where to fix it) with a whole province fet in a flame; with an honest innocent man thrown into jail, and calling on Mr. Whately not to furnish the means of fixing him there; with a worthy family distressed, in the reflections cast on their own character, and in the sufferings brought upon their friends and correspondents; with the memory of one brother greatly injured, and the life of another greatly indangered; with all this weight of suspicion, and with all this train of mischiefs before his eyes, Dr. Franklin's apathy fets him quite at ease, and he would have us think, that he has done nothing more intelligence of

r. Whately's, him to Mr.

, not to fend

which would the Provinces

t. My Lords,

much of the

had been fuf-

his discovery. g'him anothén

put this letter

merchant: of ted his going

il all a dias

done to Dre

lent back too?

rewere public

rding to the

is a name we whom he fent

with him, was

Roome, when imagine that shewn to the

ions from that the four Regi-

than what any other Colony Agent would have done. He happened only to be the first Colony Agent who laid his hands on them, and he thought it his duty to transmit them to his constituents.

My Lords, I have the pleasure of knowing several very respectable Gentlemen, who have been Colony Agents, and cannot but seel a little concern at seeing this strange imputation cast on that character. I have heard the sentiments of some of them. Upon being asked, whether, if they had laid their hands upon another Gentleman's letters, they would have thought it their duty to make a like use of them: My Lords, they received the proposal with horror. One of them said, it was profaning the word Duty to apply it to such a purpose; another, that if he had been their Agent, he would sooner have cut off his right hand than have done such a thing.

My Lords, Dr. Franklin's mind may have been so possessed with the idea of a Great American Republic, that he may easily slide into the language of the minister of a foreign independent state*. A foreign Ambassador when residing here, just before the breaking out of a war, or upon particular occasions, may bribe a villain to steal or betray any state papers; he is under the

. See also his letter to Lord Dartmouth.

the first Cothem, and he them to his e of knowing n, who have ut feel a little itation cast on fentiments of d, whether, if other Gentlelought it their My Lords, rror. One of word Duty to ner, that if he oner have cut uch a thing. nd may have a Great Ameflide into the reign indepenwhen reliding of a war, or ibe a villain to ne is under the

th.

com-

command of another state, and is not amenable to the laws of the country where he resides; and the secure exemption from punishment may induce a laxer morality.

But Dr. Franklin, whatever he may teach the people at Boston, while he is bere at least is a subject; and if a subject injure a subject, he is answerable to the law. And the Court of Chancery will not much attend to his new self-rereated importance.

But, my Lords, the rank in which Dr. Franklin. appears, is not even that of a Province Agent: he moves in a very inferior orbit. An Agent for a province, your Lordships know, is a person chosen by the joint act of the Governor, Council, and Affembly; after which, a commission is issued by the Secretary, under the province feal, appointing him to that office. Such a real Colony Agent, being made by the joint concurrence of all the three branches of the Government, will think it his duty to confult the joint service of all the three; and to contribute all he can to the peace, harmony, and orderly government of the whole; as well as to the general welfare and prosperity of the province. This at least is what I learn from the copy books of two Gentlemen, who at different periods were Agents for this very Colony. But Dr. Franklin's appointment feems to have been made in direct oppofition to all these. Upon a message from the Council to the Assembly, desiring that they would join in the choice of an Agent for the Colony, they came to a resolution, that they will not join with the Honourable Board in the choice of such an Agent; but resolve that they will choose an Agent of their own; and then, that Dr. Franklin should be that Agent. My Lords, the party by whom the Assembly is now directed, did not want a man who should think himself bound in duty to consult for the peace and harmony of the whole government; they had their own private separate views, and they wanted an agent of their own, who should be a willing instrument and instructor in the accomplishing their own separate purposes. Dr. Franklin therefore, your Lordships see, not only moves in a different orbit from that of other Colony Agents, but he gravitates also to a very different center. His great point appears to be to serve the interest of his party; and privately to supply the leaders of it with the necessary intelligence. Wherefoever and howfoever he can lay his hands on them, he thinks it his duty to furnish materials for diffentions; to set at variance the different branches of the Legislature; and to irritate and incense the minds of the King's subjects against the King's Governor,

O 2 fit

But,

[ 101 ]

But, fays the Doctor, the tendency of these letters was to incense the mother country against her colonies.

There is a certain steadiness which is singularly remarkable in this case. These men are perpetually offering every kind of infult to the English nation. Setting the King's authority at defiance; treating the parliament as usurpers of an authority not belonging to them, and flatly denying the Supreme Jurisdiction of the British empire: And have been publishing their votes and resolutions for this purpose; and yet now pretend a great concern about these letters, as having a tendency to incense the parent state against the colony. Not content with bidding defiance to our authority, they now offer infult to our understanding: And at the very time while they are flying in the King's face, would have him turn out his Governor, because he has in the mildest terms intimated his opinion, that they do not pay the reverence, they used to do, to the British authority.

My Lords, we are perpetually told of men's incenting the mother country against the colonies, of which I have never known a single instance: But we hear nothing of the vast variety of arts, which have been made use of to incense the colonies against the mother country. And in all these arts no one I fear has been a more successful proficient, than the very man, who now stands forth

But,

age from the

ng that they

gent for the

on, that they

Board in the

lve that they n; and then,

Agent. My

lembly is now

should think

for the peace

rnment; they ews, and they

o should be a

in the accom-

s. Dr. Frank-

not only moves

other Colony

very different

to be to ferve

ivately to sup-

ecessary intelli-

ever he can lay

his duty to fur-

fet at variance

islature; and to the King's fub-

forth as Mr. Hutchinson's accuser. My Lords, as he has been pleased in his own letter to avow this accusation, I shall now return the charge, and shew to your Lordships, who it is that is the true incendiary, and who is the great abetter of that saction at Boston, which, in form of a Committee of Correspondence, have been inflaming the whole province against his Majesty's government.

My Lords, the language of Dr. Franklin's peculiar correspondents is very well known. For years past they have been boasting of the countenance, which he receives in England, and the encouragement, which he sends over to them at Boston. One of their last boasted advices was: Go on, abstain from violence, but go on; for you have nothing to sear from the government here.

My Lords, from the excess of their zeal, these men are apt sometimes to let out a little too much. In the Boston Gazette of the 20th of September last is a letter, understood at Boston to have been written by Mr. Adams, one of Dr. Franklin's six constituents *, which ends with the following passage.—" The late Agens "Mr.

This Gentleman was the manager of the discovery of Mr. Hutchinson's letters in the Assembly; as Mr. Bowdoin, another of the Six, was in the Council.

My Lords, etter to avow the charge, is that is the great abetter in form of a ave been inhis Majesty's

r. Franklin's known. For of the counand, and the er to them at advices was:
go on; for government

f their zeal, t out a little f the 20th of od at Boston dams, one of which ends he late Agent "Mr.

the discovery of ; as Mr. Bowcil. [ 103 ]

" Mr. De Bert in one of his letters wrote, that "Lord Hillsborough professed a great regard " for the interest of America; and he thought " the only thing that could be done to ferve us, " was to keep the matter of right out of fight. The " professed design of that minister it seems was to " ferve us. But America has not yet thought it " wife to agree to his Lordship's political plan, " to wink their liberties out of fight, for the " fake of a temporary accommodation." 'Dr. Franklin, who is perhaps as penetrating a geinius as his Lordship, extended his views a 6 little farther. I hope, fays he, in a letter dated in 1771, the colony Assemblies will flow by repeated refolves, that they know their e rights, and do not lose fight of them. Our growing importance will ere long compel an e acknowledgment of them, and establish and ' fecure them to our posterity." And he adds, I purpose to draw up a memorial stating our rights and grievances, and in the name and behalf of the province, protesting particularly against the late innovations-Whether speedy redress is or is not the consequence, I imagine it may be of good use to keep alive our claims, and show that we have not given up the cone tested points." "It seems to have been the " judgment of this great man, that a state of " rights should accompany a complaint of griewances; and that decent and manly protests " against against particular innovations, have the surest tendency to an effectual, if not a speedy removal of them

Your Lordships will be pleased to observe the time of Dr. Franklin's announcing his intention of drawing up for them fuch a memorial, was in 1771. At the proper season in the next year, there was produced a great work, under these very heads of a State of Rights, and a State of Grievances, and Protests against the new Innovations: But not from the press in London; that would not have answered the purpose. It was to be a memorial in the name and behalf of the province; and therefore was first to be sent thither, and receive the stamp of their authorities. A town meeting therefore was called, and a Committee of Correspondence chosen, to draw up a state of their rights and grievances, and from the form of the resolution it is pretty manifest, that the leaders knew already what the work was to be. After an adjournment the Committee met, and produced this great twelve. penny book, under the very heads of a State of their Rights, and containing a list of their Grievances, with remonstrances sufficiently strong against what they call Innovations. The work was received with the utmost applause, and instantly converted into votes and resolutions of the town of Boston. And doubtless it well deferved . This Gazette was misplaced during the speech.

have the furest to a speedy re to observe the sights intention memorial, was the next year, k, under these and a State of the new Innosis in London; he purpose. It see and behalf of se and behalf of first to be sent heir authorities. called, and a chosen, to draw grievances, and is pretty manipulate what the work ment the Comparate twelve. Its of a State of a list of their afficiently strong ons. The work oplause, and ind resolutions of otless it well deferyed

ng the speech.

ferved it: It is a fet of ready drawn heads of a declaration for any one colony in America, or any one distant county in the kingdom, which shall chuse to revolt from the British empire, and fay that they will not be governed by the King and Parliament at Westminster. They therefore voted that this report of their Committee of Correspondence should be printed in a pamphlet, and that fix hundred copies of them should be disposed of to the select men of the towns of the province, with an inflammatory letter, founding an alarm of a plan of despotism, with which the Administration (and the Parliament) intended to enflave them; and threatened them with certain and inevitable destruction : And defiring that they would call town-meetings, and fend their votes and resolutions upon this book." In 60 or 70 villages or townships such meetings had been held: And all express the highest approbation of this excellent performance. And well they might; for it told them a hundred rights, of which they never had heard before, and a hundred grievances which they never before had felt. Your Lordships see the votes and instructions of these several townships, in the Boston gazettes here before me. They are full of the most extravagant absurdities. Such as the enthusiastic rants of the wildest of my countrymen in Charles the 2d's days cannot equal.

[ 106']

It is impossible to read them to your Lordships: Those of Pembrok and of Marble-head are particularly curious: but I shall take those of the town of Petersham.

"Refolved, That the Parliament of GreatBritain, usurping and exercising a legislative authority over, and extorting an unrighteous revenue from these colonies, is against all divine and human laws. The late appointment of salaries to be paid to our Superior Court Judges, whose creation, pay, and commission, depend on mere will and pleasure, complete a system of bondage equal to any ever before fabricated by the combined efforts of the ingenuity, malice, fraud, and wickedness of man.

"Therefore, Resolved, That it is the first and highest social duty of this people, to consider of, and seek ways and means for a speedy redress of these mighty grievances and intolerable wrongs; and that for the obtainment of this end, this people are warranted, by the laws of God and nature, in the use of every rightful art, and energy of Policy, Stratagem, and Force.

"Therefore, it is our earnest desire, and we here direct you, to use your utmost influence (as one of the legislative body) to convince the nation of Great-Britain, that the mea-ur Lordships: rble-head are take those of ent of Greatg a legislative in unrighteous is against all late appointour Superior pay, and comand pleasure, equal to any mbined efforts id, and wick-it is the first is people, to l means for a grievances and for the obtainare warranted, re, in the use ergy of Policy, ft defire, and ir utmost influbody) to conitain, that the " mea-

" measures that they have meted out to us, " will have a direct tendency to destroy both "them and us; and petition the King and Par-" liament of Great-Britain, in the most pathe-" tic and striking manner, to relieve us from " our aggravated grievances; but if all this " should fail, we recommend it to your consi-" deration, and direct you to move it to the " confideration of the honourable Court, " whether it would not be best to call in the aid " of some Protestant Power or Powers, request-" ing that they would use their kind and Christian " influence, with our mother country, that fo " we may be relieved, and that brotherly love " and harmony may again take place."

These are the lessons taught in Dr. Franklin's school of Politics. My Lords, I do not fay that Dr. Franklin is the original author of this book. But your Lordships will give me leave to observe, in the first place, that it is not very likely, that any of the Doctor's scholars at Boston, should attempt to draw up fuch a state of rights and grievances, when the great man, their master, had given them notice that he should himself set about such a work: and, in the next place, that if the Doctor should not chuse now to filiate the child, yet the time has been when he was not ashamed of it; for, after it had had its operation in America, the P 2

Doctor

Doctor reprinted it here, with a preface of his own, and prefented it to his friends.

My Lords, I have faid, that fixty or feventy of the townships had already voted their approbation of the book. The evil was carching from town to town (and if the greater part could have been engaged, they would have forced the rest) when the Governor thought it his duty to interpose. He therefore called upon the Assembly to disown these undutiful proceedings. Had he only mentioned the difloyalty and evil tendency of them, they would probably have passed a few resolutions, and have fuffered the evil to go on. He was well aware, that the Assembly could easily vote themselves as many privileges as they pleafed, but that it was not so easy to prove their right to them. He, therefore, difarmed them of their strength in voting, and put them under the necessity of proving; and there he knew they would fail. By opening the fession with that very mosterly speech in defence of the British American constitution, he, for a time, stunned the faction, and gave a check to the progress of their. Town-Meetings. And though the same men were in the Assembly. created a Committee of Correspondence, to write to the Assemblies of the other provinces, yet the spirit of the design languished, and but little more was then done in it. This,

This, my Lords, is the great and principal ground of their quarrel with Mr. Hutchinson. They want a Governor, who shall know less than themselves, whereas he makes them feel that he knows more. He stopped the train which Dr. Franklin's constituents had laid, to blow up the province into a slame, which from thence was to have been spread over the other provinces. This was the real provocation: and for this they have been feeking for some ground of accusation against him.

After sitting his whole conduct for the four years in which he has been Governor, they

After fifting his whole conduct for the four years, in which he has been Governor, they are not able to point out a fingle action to find fault with. Their only recourse is to their own furmises of what were the sentiments of his heart five or fix years ago. He was, they say, among the instruments in introducing a sleet and army into the province.—Have they attempted any proof of this? No. But they fancy it from some letters of his, which do not say a single word of that fort. Is it possible to conceive of a more groundless accusation, or not to see their intent in it?

My Lords, They mean nothing more by this Address, than to fix a sligma on the Governor, by the accusation. Their charge, founded upon a pretence of knowing fix years ago, what were Mr. Hutchinion's thoughts, is not really defigned

This,

preface of his

ixty or feventy

d their appro-

was carching

greater part

would have

nor thought it

re called upon

utiful proceed-

the difloyalty

ey would pro-

ions, and have vas well aware,

te themselves as

but that it was to them. He,

strength in vot-

fity of proving;

il. By opening

ly speech in de-

constitution, he,

on, and gave a

Fown-Meetings.

in the Affembly.

respondence, to other provinces,

uished, and but

figned for his Majesty in Council. They know that your Lordships will not take an accusation for a proof; nor condemn without evidence. They never defired to be brought to a hearing: and therefore the first instant when your Lordships call for their proofs, they fly off, and fay they do not mean this as a charge, or a trial before your Lordships; and they say truly: they meant to bring it before the multitude, and to address the popular prejudices. The mob, they know, need only hear their Governors accused, and they will be sure to condemn. My Lords, they boast at Boston, that they have found this method succeed against their last Governor, and they hope to make it do against this; and by a fecond precedent to establish their power, and make all future Governors bow to their authority. They wish to erect themselves into a tyranny greater than the Roman: To be able, fitting in their own fecret cabal, to dictate for the Assembly, and send away their verbosa et grandis epistola, and get even a virtuous Governor dragged from his feat, and made the sport of a Boston mob.

Having turned out all other Governors, they may at length hope to get one of their own. The letters from Boston, for two years past, have intimated that Dr. Franklin was aiming at Mr. Hutchinson's government. It was not easy before

They know an accufation out evidence. ht to a hearent when your ey fly off, and arge, or a trial by truly: they titude, and to

The mob, eir Governors condemn. My nat they have inft their last it do against establish their ernors bow to rect themselves oman: To be abal, to dictate their verbosa a virtuous Goand made the overnors, they of their own. wo years past, was aiming at It was not easy before

before this to give credit to such surmises: But nothing surely but a too eager, attention to an ambition of this sort, could have betrayed a wise man into such a conduct as we have now seen. Whether these surmises are true or not, your Lordships are much the best judges. If they should be true, I hope that Mr. Hutchinson will not meet with the less countenance from your Lordships, for his Rival's being his accuser. Nor will your Lordships, I trust, from what you have heard, advise the having Mr. Hutchinson displaced, in order to make room for Dr. Franklin as a successor.

With regard to his conflituents, the factious leaders at Boston, who make this complaint against their Governor; if the relating of their evil doings be criminal, and tending to alienate his Majesty's affections, must not the doing of them be much more so? Yet now they ask that his Majesty will gratify and reward them for doing these things; and that he will punish their Governor for relating them, because they are so very bad that it cannot but offend his Majesty to hear of them.

My Lords, if the account, given in these letters, of their proceedings, five years ago, tended to alienate his Majesty's affections, has their conduct ever since been in any respect more conciliating? Was it to consute or prevent the pernicious effect of these letters, that the good men of Boston have lately held their meetings, appointed their Committees, and with their utual moderation destroyed the cargo of three British ships? If an English Consul, in any part of France or Spain, or rather Algiers or Tripoli, (for European Powers respect the law of nations) had not called this an outrage on his country, he would have deserved punishment. But if a Governor at Boston should presume to whilper to a friend, that he thinks it somewhat more than a moderate exertion of English liberty, to destroy the ships of England, to attack her officers, to plunder their goods, to pull down their houses, or even to burn the King's ships of war, he ought to be removed; because such a conduct in him bas a natural and efficacious tendency to interrupt the harmony between Great-Britain and the colony, which these good subjects are striving by such means to establish. Angiate.

per-

On the part of Mr. Hutchinson and Mr. Oliver, I am instructed to affure your Lordships, that they feel no spark of resentment, even at the individuals who have done them this injustice. Their private letters breathe nothing but moderation. They are convinced that the people, though misled, are innocent. If the conduct of a few should provoke a just indignation, they would be the most forward, and, I trust, that the good their meetings, ind with their cargo of three ful, in any part giers or Tripoli, the law of naoutrage lon his ed punishment. ould prefume to nks it somewhat English liberty, i, to attack her to pull down : King's ships of because such a d efficacious tenween Great-Brie good subjects hinfon and Mr.

your Lordships, ntment, even at them this injusthe nothing but ed that the peoit. If the conjust indignation, the and, I trust,
the

the most efficacious solicitors to avert its effects, and to excuse the men. They love the soil, the constitution, the people of New-England; they look with reverence to this country, and with affection to that. For the sake of the people they wish some faults corrected, anarchy abolished, and government re-established: But these salutary ends they wish to promote by the gentlest means; and the abridging of no liberties, which a people can possibly use to its own advantage. A restraint from self-destruction is the only restraint they desire to be imposed upon New-England.

My Lords, I have faid that the letter, which accompanied these in question, was anonymous, and that it was directed to be shown to six perfons only.

I am prepared to enter into the proof of this.—I call upon Dr. Franklin, for my witness. And I am ready to examine him.

N. B. Dr. Franklin being present, remained filent. But declared by his counsel, that he did not chuse to be examined.

Q

The

The following Letter having been mentioned in Mr. WEDDERBURN's Speech, it is printed for the Reader's Satisfaction, and to complete the Collection.

Tho. Hutchinson, Andrew Oliver, &c.

From ENGLAND.

Narraganset, Dec. 22, 1767. SIR, T AM now withdrawn to my little country villa, where, tho' I am more retired from the bufy world, yet I am still enveloped with uneasy resections for a turbulent, degenerate, ungrateful continent, and the opposition I have met with in my indefatigable endeayours to secure our property in this colony, but hitherto without fuccess .- The times are so corrupted, and the conflict of parties so predominant, that faction is blind, or shuts her eyes to the most evident truths that cross her designs, and believes in any absurdities that affifts to accomplish her purposes under the prostitution and proftration of an infatuated government.-Judge then, my dear Sir, in what a critical fituation the fortunes of we poor Europeans must be among them.

We have not been able to recover our property for years past, how great soever our exigencies may have been, unless we soothed them into a compliance:

We are unwilling to enter into a litis-contestation with them, because the perversion of their iniquitous courts of justice are so great, that experience has convinced us we had better lose half, to obtain the other quietly, than pursue compulsary measures:

We are also assaid to apply to a British parliament for Q 2

r. lief, as none can be effectually administred without a change of government, and a better administration of justice introduced; and was it known here that we made such application home, not only our fortunes would be in greater jeopardy, but our lives endangered by it before any salutary regulations could take place.—We are sensible of the goodness of the King and Parliament, but how far, or in what space of time our grievance, as a few individuals, might weigh against the influence of a charter government, we are at a loss to determine.

In 1761, I arrived in America, which circumstance you probably remember well.—With great industry, caution and circumspection, I have not only reduced our demands, and regulated our connections in some measure, but kept my hear out of a HALTER which you had the honour to grace. (Pray Doctor how did it feel? The subject is stale, but I must be a little funny with you on the occasion.) Much still remains to be done, and after all my best endeavours, my constituents, from a moderate calculation, cannot lose less than 50,000 st. sterling, by the baneful constitution of this colony, and corruption of their courts of juncture. It is really a very affecting and melancholy consideration.

Under a deep fense of the infirmities of their conflitution; the innovations which they have gradually interwoven among themselves; and stimulated by every act of sorbearance, lenity and patience, we have indulged our correspondents until deluges of bankruptcies have ensued, insolvent acts liberated them from our just demands, and finally, had our inistred without a diministration of an here that we only our forut our lives engulations could goodness of the far, or in what ew individuals, charter govern-ch circumstance great industry, not only reduced ections in some HALTER which Doctor how did must be a little uch still remains endeavours, my ulation, cannot be baneful couption of their very affesting and es of their cony have gradually ftimulated by d patience, we intil deluges of t acts liberated ally, had our indisputable accounts refused admission for our proportion of the small remains, until colony creditors were first paid, and the whole absorbed. We have had vessels made over to us for the satisfaction of debts, and after bills of sales were executed, carried off in open violence and force by Capt. Snip-snap of Mr. Nobody's appointment, and when we fued him for damages, recovered a loufe. We have in our turn been fued in our absence, and condemned ex parte in large fums for imaginary damages, for which we can neither obtain a trial, nor redress. They refuse us an, appeal to the king in council; the money must be paid when their executions become returnable; and were we to carry it home by way of complaint, it would cost us two or three hundred pounds sterling to profecute, and after all, when his Majesty's decrees come over in our favour, and refunding the money can no longer be evaded, I expect their effects will be secreted, their bodies released by the insolvent act, and our money, both principal, interest and expences irrecoverably gone. - Is not our case grievous? - We. have in actions founded upon notes of hand, been cast in their courts of judicature. - We have appealed to his Majesty in council for redress, got their verdicts reversed, and obtained the king's decrees for our money, but that is all; for altho' I have had them by me above twelve months, and employed two eminent lawyers to enforce them into execution, conformable to the colony law, yet we have not been able to recover a fingle shilling, though we have danced after their courts and affemblies above THIRTY DAYS, in vain to accomplish that purpose only: Consider, my dear Sir, what expence, vexation and loss of time this must dif-

be to us, and whether we have not just cause of complaint.

We have also in vain waited with great impatience for years past, in hopes his Majesty would have nominated his judges, and other executive officers in every colony in America, which would in a great measure have removed the cause of our complaint .-- Nothing can be more necessary than a speedy regulation in this, and constituting it a regal government; and nothing is of fuch important use to a nation, as that men who excel in wifdom and virtue should be encouraged to undertake the business of government : But the iniquitous course of their courts of justice in this colony, deter such men from serving the public, or if they do so, unless patronized at home, their wisdom and virtue are turned against them with such malignity, that it is more fafe to be infamous than renowned .-The principal exception I have met with here, is James Helmes, Esq. who was chosen chief justice by the general affembly at last election.-He accepted his appointment, distinguishes himself by capacity and application, and feems neither afraid nor ashamed to administer impartial justice to all, even to the native and refiding creditors of the mother country.-I have known him grant them temporary relief by writs of error, &c. when both he and they were over-ruled by the partiality of the court; and in vain, though with great candour and force, plead with the rest of the bench, that for the honour of the colony, and their own reputation, they ought never to pay less regard to the decrees of his Majesty in council, because the property was determined in Great Britain, than to their just cause of eat impatience uld have nomi-

officers in every great meafure .-- Nothing can on in this, and d nothing is of that men who encouraged to But the iniquiin this colony, , or if they do ir wildom and fuch malignity, an renowned.t with here, is chief justice by He accepted his y capacity and nor ashamed to en to the native ountry.-I have elief by writs of were over-ruled in vain, though with the rest of colony, and their pay less regard to icil, because the

Britain, than to their

their own. I have also heard him with resolution and firmness, when he discovered the court to be immoderately partial, order his name to be inrolled, as diffenting from the verdict-For fuch honesty and candour, I am persuaded he will be deposed at next election, unless they should be still in hopes of making a convert of him.

I wish it was in my power to prevent every American from suffering for the cause of integrity, and their mother country; he, in an especial manner, should not only be protected and supported, but appear among the first promotions .- Is there no gentleman of public spirit at home, that would be pleased to be an instrument of elevating a man of his principles and probity? or is it become fashionable for vice to be countenanced with impunity, and every trace of virtue passed over unnoticed! God forbid.

The colonies have originally been wrong founded. They ought all to have been regal governments, and every executive officer appointed by the king. Until that is effected, and they are properly regulated, they will never be beneficial to themselves, nor good subjects to Great Britain .- You see with what contempt they already treat the acts of parliament for regulating their trade, and enter into the most public, illegal and affronting combinations to obtain a repeal, by again imposing upon the British merchants and manufacturers, and all under the cloak of retrenching their expences by avoiding every unnecessary superfluity. Were that really the case, I am sure I would, and also every other British subject, esteem them for it; but the fact is, they obtained a repeal of the stamp act by mercantile influence, and they are now endeavouring by the same artifice and finesse to repeal the acts of trade, and obtain a total exemption from all taxation.-Were it otherways, and they fincerely disposed to stop the importation of every unnecessary superfluity, without affronting the British legislation, by their public, general and illegal combinations, they might accomplish their purposes with much more decency, and suppress it more effectually by the acts of their own legislation, imposing such duties upon their importation here *, as might either occasion a total prohibition, or confine the confumption of them to particular individuals that can afford to buy, by which measures they would also raise a considerable colony REVENUE, and ease the poorer inhabitants in the tax they now pay: -But the temper of the country is exceedingly factious, and prone to fedition; they are growing more imperious, haughty, nay insolent every day, and in a fhort space, unless wholesome regulations take place, the spirit they have inkindled, and the conceptions of government they have imbibed will be more grievous to the mother country than ever the ostracism was to the Athenians.

A bridle at present, may accomplish more than a rod hereaster; for the malignant poisen of the times, like a general pestilence, spreads beyond conception; and if the British parliament are too late in their regulations, neglect measures seven years, which are essentially necessary now, should they then be able to stiff their commotions, it will only be a temporary extinction • I mean foreign growth, or fabrications; but if on British, it would be more pardonable than their present system.

acts of trade.

ill taxation.-

lisposed to stop

y fuperfluity,

tion, by their

is, they might

more decency,

acts of their

pon their im-

on a total proof them to buy, by which

lerable colony

nts in the tax

the country is ion; they are

infolent every olesome regu-

nkindled, and

e imbibed will

than ever the ore than a rod

he times, like

ception; and n their regu-

ich are essen-

able to stifle

emporary ex-

s; but if on their present tinction,

tinction, consequently, every hour's indulgence will sniwer no other purpose than enable them in a more effectual manner to sow seeds of diffension to be rekindled whenever they are in a capacity to oppose the mother country and render themselves independent of her.

Have they not already in the most public manner shewn their opposition to the measures of parliament in the affair of the late stamp act? Do not they now with equal violence and audacity, in both public papers and conversation, declare the parliamentary regulations in their acts of trade to be illegal and a mere nullity?-What further proofs do we wait for, of either their good or bad disposition? Did you ever hear of any colonies, in their infant state, teach the science of tyranny, reduced into rules *, over every subject that discountenanced their measures in oppofition to the mother country, in a more imperious manner than they have done thefe four years past? Have they not made use of every stroke of policy (in their way) to avail themselves of the dark purposes of their independence, and fuffered no reftraint of conscience, or fear, not even the guilt of threatening to excite a civil war, and revolt, if not indulged with an unlimited trade, without restraint; and British protection, without expence? for that is the engine of it .- Is this their true, or mistaken portrait? SAY .-If it is their true one, ought not fuch pernicious maxims of policy? fuch wicked discipline? fuch ingratitude? fuch diffimulation? fuch perfidy? fuch violent

The Committee to the Sons of Liberty, &c.

violent, ruthless and fanguinary councils, where a Cleon bears rule, and an Aristides cannot be endured, to be crushed in embryo? If not, the alterhative cannot avoid producing such a government, as will ere long throw the whole kingdom into the utmost confusion, endanger the life, liberty and property of every good subject, and again expose them to the merciless affaffination of a rabble.

I am sensible that in all political disputes, especially in America, a man may fee fome things to blame on both fides, and fo much to fear, which ever faction should conquer, as to be justified in not intermeddling with either; but in matters of fuch vast importance as the present, wherein we have suffered so much,-fill deeply interested, and by which the peace and tranquility of the nation is at stake; it is difficult to conceal one's emotions from a friend, and remain a tranquil spectator on a theatre of such chicanery and collusion, as will inevitably (if not checked, and may fooner happen than is imagined by many) chill the blood of many a true Briton.

It may be true policy, in some eases, to tame the hercest spirit of popular liberty, not by blows, or by chains, but by foothing her into a willing obedience, and making her kifs the very hand that restrains her; but fuch policy would be a very unfuitable potion to cure the malady of the present times. They are too much corrupted; and already fo intoxicated with their own importance, as to make a wrong use of lenient measures .- They construe them into their own natural rights, and a timidity in the mother country. They consider themselves a little bigger than the frog in the fable, and that G. Britain can ils, where a mot be ent, the altergovernment, dom into the erty and proexpose them nutes, especine things to fear, which e justified in atters of such

we have sufand by which is at stake;
from a friend,
neatre of such itably (if not s imagined by riton.

by blows, or willing obedithat restrains ery unsuitable times. They so intoxicated e a wrong use hem into their n the mother a little bigger G. Britain can never never long grapple with their huge territory of 1300 miles frontier, already populous, and increasing with fuch celerity, as to double their numbers once in twenty-five years .- This is not perfectly confonant with my idea of the matter, though such calculation has been made; and admitting it to be erroneous, yet as they believe it, it has the same evil effect, and possesses the imaginations of the people with such a degree of infanity and enthusiasm; as there is hardly any thing more common than to hear them boast of particular colonies that can raise on a short notice an hundred thousand fighting men, to oppose the force of Great-Britain; certain it is, that they increase in num bers by emigration, &c. very fast, and are become fucl a body of people, with fuch extensive territory as require every bud of their genius and disposition to be narrowly watched, and pruned with great judgment, otherwise they may become not only troublesome to Great Britain, but enemies to themselves. -Now is the critical feafon .- They are still like fome raw giddy youth just emerging into the world in a corrupt degenerate age. A parent, or a guardian, is therefore still necessary; and if well managed; they will foon arrive at fuch maturity as to become obedient, dutiful children; but if neglected long, the rod of chaftisement will be so much longer nevelfary as to become too burthensome, and must be dropt with the colonies .- They almost consider themselves as a separate people from Great Britain already.

Last month, while I was attending the General Assembly, the Governor sent a written message to the lower house, importing his intentions of a resignation at the next election, assigning for reasons, the fumes in the colony and party spirit were so high, and that bribery and corruption were fo predominant, that neither life, liberty, nor property were fafe, &c. &c. &c. Now, Sir, whether the Governor's intentions as exhibited in this open, public declaration, was real, or feigned to answer political purposes; it still evinces their decrepid state; the prostitution of government; and melancholy fituation of every good subject: For it cannot be supposed, by any candid inquisitor, that a declaration of that nature, and form, would, if not true, been delivered by a Governor to a whole legislative body, in order to emancipate himself. If this truth is granted, and this allowed to be their unhappy fituation, how much is it the duty of every good man, and what language is sufficient to paint, in an effectual manner, this internal imbecillity of an English colony (in many other respects favourably situated for trade and commerce, one of the fafest, largest, and most commodious harbours in all America, or perhaps in all Europe, accessible at all seasons, situated in a fine climate, and abounding with fertile foil)-to the maternal bowels of compassion, in order that she may feafonably, if the thinks it necessary to interpose, regulate, and wipe away their pernicious CHAR-TER, rendered obnoxious by the abuse of it.

. 2

I am afraid I have tired your patience with a subject that must give pain to every impartial friend to Great Britain and her colonies.—When I took up my pen,—I only intended to have communicated the out-lines of such of my perplexities (without dipping to far into political matter) as I thought would atone for.

for, or excule my long filence, and excite your com-

Our friend Robinson is gone to Boston to join the commissioners. My compliments to Col. Stuart .-May I ask the favour of you both to come and cat a Xmas dinner with me at Batchelor's hall, and celebrate the festivity of the season with me in Narraganset woods. A covy of partridges, or bevy of quails, will be entertainment for the Colonel and me, while the pike and pearch ponds amuse you.-Should business or pre-ingagement prevent me that pleasure, permit me to ask the favour of your earliest intelligence of the proceedings of parliament; and of your opinion whether our case is not so grievous as to excite their compassion and interposition were it known. This narration, together with your own knowledge of many of the facts, and the disposition of the colonies in general, will refresh your memory, and enable you to form a judgment. Relief from home feems fo tedious, especially to us who have fuffered fo much, like to fuffer more, and unacquainted with their reasons of delay, that I am quite impatient.

Above twelve months ago, I received from three Gentlemen in London (in trust for several others) exemplified accounts for a balance of above twenty-fix thousand pounds sterling, mostly due from this colony, not £. 50 of which shall I ever be able to recover without compulsive measures, and what is still worse, my lawyer advises me from all thoughts of prosecution, unless a change of government ensues. I am therefore obliged to send them his opinion (in justi-

.

rere fb high,

lo predomily were safe,

Governor's

olic declara-

al purpofes;

oftitution of every good

y any candid

nature, and

by a Goer to eman-

d, and this

how much is hat language

manner, this ny (in many de and com-

nost commo-

rhaps in all

ed in a fine

foil)—to the

that the may to interpole,

us CHAR-

with a fub-

tial friend to n I took up

nunicated the

thout dipping

would atone

of it.

justification of my own conduct) in lieu of money ten years due. Poor fatisfaction I Our confelation must be in a British parliament. Every other avenue is rendered impregnable by their subtlety, and degeaneracy, and we can no longer depend upon a people who are so unthankful for our indulgences, and the lenity of their mother country. I wish you the compliments of the approaching scason, and a succession of many happy new years.

Lam, Sir, with much regard, I confied

Your most humble Servane, the contract of the Above swine menta non I is could be present of an appearance of an appearance of the second of an appearance of the second of a second of an appearance of the second of a sec lieu of money Our confedation ry other avenue lety, and degeupon a people gences, and the with you the fort, and a fucquality will be gard, and and a humble Servant, G. ROME. 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 d cárt as silv ca ent en ble yas beme hams to in a Charlin di din Ward up i guitagai with stock Tai nemitar () my timestart to the strict a police thing are

