orcharding and cattle raising in the Maritimes. Co-operation between the Dominion immigration in the solution of the special immigration problems of the East was advocated. Turks Persecute Greek Inhabitants Of Anatolian Port

Protest Against Policy of Extermination of Christians Proves of Little Avail.

London, May 31.—Terrible reports of conditions in Asia Minor are confirmed by a statement which the Christian Science Monitor is able to publish exclusively from Constantinople.

The Greek hospital and the Greek schools have been closed. Women teachers are not allowed even to give private lessons. There are no longer any Greek men in business of any sort. A few shops are run by women who also work as porters and longshoremen.

The Mayor of Trebizond has no sympathy with the extermination policy and has done what he could to protect little boys. The Vali of the Vilayet of Trebizond is also opposed to the massacres and persecutions of Christians, but is powerless to stop what is going on.

This grave and authoritative statement, the Christian Science Monitor learns, has so impressed the authorities in Constantinople that it may not be impossible to circulate officially. It forecasts a report which the committee appointed by the allied governments must shortly make upon the subject of the situation in Trebizond.

THE OLD LAW OF SUPPLY AND DEMAND

Good Meeting At Loch Lomond

John Rusk, General Freight Foreman of C. N. R., Retires—Presentation from Associates.

After fifty years of service with the intercolonial section of the C. N. R., John Rusk, general freight foreman at this city, is retiring on pension and his associates, desiring to show in some tangible way their appreciation of the kindly and efficient manner in which he had carried out his duties, recently presented him with a fine solid leather valise, a smother's set and case of pipes.

Mr. Rusk entered the service of the C. N. R. in 1872, as a baggage porter at Shediac. At that time the railways did not run through Halifax or north of Moncton and the travel to P. E. Island was via Shediac. There was a local train running between Moncton and Amherst and the road was building from there to Truro.

After the fire in 1877, the mill pond was partly filled with debris from the burnt buildings and the balance with sand from the Rothesay sand pit. Then the present freight sheds and offices were built in Pond street and the old freight house torn down, and Mr. Rusk took charge of the new freight sheds in 1880 as general foreman.

THE OPPOSITION POLICY.

The Times appears to be somewhat aggrieved at the course taken by the Opposition in putting up a candidate to force a contest on the Government party. It complains that the Opposition leader has no policy to put before the electors.

When the President was sending mild notes of protest to Germany against the sinking of American ships and the murder of its citizens by the Junker submarines, he was merely biding his time against the redemption of a promise made in 1918 that Europe would not be compelled to fight alone against the Central powers!

Even as late as 1915, when Mr. Wilson in his campaign for re-election was causing the Continent to ring with his "He kept us out of the war," he knew in his heart of hearts, if the Ludendorff revelations are well founded, that he was bound by a gentlemen's agreement to get his country into war when the psychological moment should have arrived.

NEWSPAPERS AND TRADE.

The Montreal Gazette recently said: "The professional diplomat or politician may be reluctant and even a little jealous to acknowledge the fact that a journalist's function is at least equal in importance to that of their own."

LUENDORFF ON AMERICA.

From a perusal of an article which appeared in a recent issue of the Atlantic Monthly entitled "America's Effort," from the pen of the German general, Ludendorff, the reader is practically forced to the conclusion that this man could probably have saved his country, as well as his master, the Kaiser, a whole lot of trouble had he only known before the war some things which he says he has found out since.

U. S. RAILROAD LABOR.

The recent decision of the United States Railroad Labor Board regarding wage rates, which affects those classes of railroad labor which are closest to the border line of the living wage, may be received with less public sympathy than previous decisions relating to general wage scales or the working conditions under which wages of certain classes are computed.

WHAT OTHERS SAY

The Stamp Tax on Cheques. (Montreal Gazette.)

No feature of new taxation has aroused so much hostility as that relative to the stamp tax on cheques. More money the Finance Minister must have to preserve public credit, and no outcry is made when the sales tax is increased 50 per cent, for the purpose of raising the revenues of thirty millions or thereabout.

BY LEE PAPE We was eating supper today and all of a sudden pop got up and went down the cellar and came back with a bottle of the wine he made last night saying "The beauty of this particular home brew is that its life as it is to drink 24 hours after its made as it is in 24 days."

OAK HALL ANNOUNCE OPENING TODAY ST. JOHN'S FIRST AND ONLY Bargain Basement

When Oak Hall erected their new building, a few years ago, the Bargain Basement method of merchandising was just in its infancy, but the idea even then appealed so strongly to the Oak Hall management that in the design of the new building provision was made to inaugurate a Bargain Basement Department at some future date—and now the time has come.

To Help Keep Prices Low we must insist on the following:— NO APPROVAL. NO REFUNDS. NO CHARGE ACCOUNTS.

What is the idea behind a Bargain Basement? It is to sell quality merchandise at a low price. And this price is kept low; first, because operating expenses are much less than prevail in ordinary stores—by eliminating Appropriation Costs, Charge Accounts, Expensive Fittings, Big Rentals and other overhead expenses a big saving is made for our customers—Again by sending buyers direct to the largest manufacturing centres cutting out all middlemen and buying from the makers in large quantities for cash enormous savings are made on the purchase price, making another big direct saving for our customers.

Buyers have been busy for weeks scouring the New York, Montreal and other markets for real quality merchandise that could be sold at a low price. We feel confident that they have been successful and although this has not all arrived for the opening day, still those lines that have arrived are of such unusual value that we did not feel inclined to delay our opening longer.

Contractors have been busily engaged widening the stairway, whitening walls and ceiling, installing a new lighting system—in every way making the Bargain Basement Department as bright, as cheerful, and as airy as any one could wish.

To Help Keep Prices Low we must insist on the following:— NO APPROVAL. NO REFUNDS. NO CHARGE ACCOUNTS.

BOSS RULE OF PRESENT DAY COMPARED TO "CANNONISM"

United States Political Observer Believes "Return to Normalcy" Means Retirement for Many Old Guard Members.

Washington, May 29.—Many Republicans will be missing from the House of Representatives after the next election. The current Republican majority of 180 in numbers will be reduced materially. It is common gossip in the lobbies of the Capitol that 100 Republican members will be defeated and an equal number of Democrats take their seats. Many men who were swept into office by the Republican landslide of 1920 will be retired to private life by a "return to normalcy."

There are several reasons which make it improbable that the next House of Representatives will be Democratic or the Senate either. One is that the National Democratic organization practically is bankrupt, politically and financially. It is an open secret that the Democratic forces were shattered badly at the San Francisco convention. The breach between the several factions who contended for supremacy and the presidential nomination has not been bridged; no leader yet appeared with strength, persuasion or tact enough to weld the fragments together in a homogeneous whole. As for the financial condition, the writer states, on excellent authority, that the national committee is confronted with a mountain of debts and an empty treasury. Even the current running expenses of the headquarters in Washington are being paid out of private resources.

Majority Will Be Reduced Unless some new and unexpected condition arises, therefore, the next House in all probability will be Republican. The reduced Republican majority, however, together with the mandates of the voters which the new members will be under when they take their seats, will create a problem for the hereditary bosses. The tyranny of these bosses who inherited their power through the operation of the seniority rule is just as exacting as that which "Tarz" Cannon and his coterie imposed upon the members of 15 years ago. There is this difference, however, the Cannon "boss" was composed of men with keen and forceful intellects, whereas the present governance is carried on solely by force majeure under a philosophy of laissez faire.

The problem which the bosses of the new House will have to face is an almost certain revolt on the part of Progressive Republicans similar to that which resulted in the overthrow of Cannonism. The writer is informed by members of the House whose knowledge of affairs and ability to judge is not doubted, that the stage is set for a revolt and that it only awaits the arrival of an opportune moment. That moment will not come until after the next Congress convenes.

Repetition of Olden Days The spectacle which Congress presented to the public eye in the days which, broadly speaking, may be designated as the era of Cannonism, is being repeated almost exactly today. Then, as now, it was divided into three scenes. First, there was the rule, which forced the majority to adopt measures that came from hand-picked committees, practically without debate or even consideration. Then, as now, it was divided into three scenes. First, there was the rule, which forced the majority to adopt measures that came from hand-picked committees, practically without debate or even consideration.

That same process of suppressing every spark of independence on the part of the Republican members of the House is being copied zealously by the movers, who do not know what has happened to them since the days of Cannonism. The writer is informed by members of the House whose knowledge of affairs and ability to judge is not doubted, that the stage is set for a revolt and that it only awaits the arrival of an opportune moment. That moment will not come until after the next Congress convenes.

Favorable Time Awaited This enforced surrender of their independence in rankling in the hearts of many Republican members, but like most ordinary men they lack initiative to resist it. They have also lacked leadership for a revolt because those who are planning that, copy realize that it would be a practical impossibility to carry it through successfully so long as the Republicans have such a large majority. When that majority is cut down in the next House the independent leaders believe they can muster a sufficient force to join with the Democrats and cast out the hereditary bosses. Now are the bosses themselves entirely oblivious of the possibilities of an insurrection. Some of them see the handwriting on the wall very clearly, but they do not know how to take any other course than the one they are pursuing.

The next point of similarity between Cannonism and the present day is the fact that the Republican majority is being steadily reduced. The writer is informed by members of the House whose knowledge of affairs and ability to judge is not doubted, that the stage is set for a revolt and that it only awaits the arrival of an opportune moment. That moment will not come until after the next Congress convenes.

SAVED SAME GIRL TWICE FROM OCEAN

Rescue at Miami Duplicated at Coney Island Beach.

New York, May 30.—The sort of thing that couldn't be expected to happen twice, that might, indeed, be called as infrequent as the impact of a second bolt of lightning at the same spot, happened for the second time at Brighton Beach today. Circumstances in which it might have been repeated at Brighton are not inconceivable, but to happen once at Miami and a second time at Brighton, with the very same girl—well, Captain Otto Ahrens, who is the hero of this story, is revisiting his tables of probability. The girl was Miss Madge Merritt, 18 years old, of Brooklyn, a courageous girl and something of a swimmer, though not as much so as her sister Victoria. So when they ignored that wise advice against rocking the boat and tried to change seats in a canoe three-quarters of a mile off shore from the Brighton Baths, and both were pitched into the water, it was Victoria who went to the rescue.

A crowd along the beach watched them and thought at first they were just frolicking. But when the upset canoe drifted away and a slim white arm began flashing distress signals that were becoming obviously feeble, Ahrens and his mate, Stanley Klunney, both life-guards, set out. Victoria's hold on her sister loosened just as the two braves came abreast. Ahrens' arms went around Madge just as the girl started bot- toward.

Not until the two men with their burdens had reached shore and Victoria had a good look at the wet face while the work of resuscitation was under way did he exclaim: "Well! Same girl I pulled out at Miami last winter. Seems like a habit!"

POLICEWOMEN WILL AID THE BRITISH FORCE

Mrs. Van Winkle of Washington, Invited to Visit England by Lady Astor.

Washington, D. C., May 31.—Mrs. M. G. Van Winkle, president of the International Association of Policewomen, director of the Woman's Bureau and lieutenant of the Metropolitan Police Department of Washington, anticipates a visit to England next fall, at the urgent invitation of Lord and Lady Astor. Mrs. Van Winkle is most desirous of making the trip for several reasons: First, she wishes to aid in strengthening the British force of policewomen, which has been weakened considerably of late through opposition from the policemen; second, she realizes she would pick up some useful ideas in England and on the continent that might be applied locally; third, she counts on discovering considerable data to be used in a book on the work of policewomen, now being compiled by the Woman's Bureau.

Mrs. Van Winkle said: "I am especially desirous of going to England but whether I get away from my work here is not yet certain. There are certain reasons, however, which would like to make—in fact I did make them to Lady Astor—in regard to the English policewomen. The principal weakness in the English system is that the women are made to do the work of policemen in many cases. This inevitably sets up opposition from the men, who resent the women 'usurping' their powers. The thing to do is to make them so that the policewoman has a sphere of work all her own; that she is not taking over but rather supplementing the work of the policeman."

Policewoman Here to Stay Commenting on the work of Mrs. Van Winkle and other policewomen throughout the United States, August Volmer, chief of police of Berkeley, Cal., and president of the International Association of Chiefs of Police, said: "The policewoman has arrived. She is not a creature of tomorrow; she is here today and is as permanent a fixture in the police world as she is in any other position. The policewoman of the future will be the most potent agent for crime prevention and will do more in one day in that respect than the modern police department in a large city does in a year in this age. Who is better qualified to do preventative police work among children than the policewoman who is trained and supervised by the police? Our prejudices against policewomen must be set aside and we should welcome them into our ranks."

Algeria Resents Taxation TO EASE FRANCE'S WAR BURDEN Promised Benefits Fail to Appear, They Charge, as They Watch Actions of Si Khaled. Algiers, May 10.—(By Mail)—The best impartial opinion, separated from French utterances, official and otherwise, is found to be that, without exaggerating the case, and making a full discount from the words and actions of such a nationalist spokesman as Si Khaled, the French will do well to take much care and exercise the utmost tact in their management of Algeria in the immediate future. Native discontent upon half a dozen grounds, is now fanned by the religious fanaticism that spreads from the Musulman east.

ALGERIA RESENTS TAXATION TO EASE FRANCE'S WAR BURDEN

Promised Benefits Fail to Appear, They Charge, as They Watch Actions of Si Khaled.

Algiers, May 10.—(By Mail)—The best impartial opinion, separated from French utterances, official and otherwise, is found to be that, without exaggerating the case, and making a full discount from the words and actions of such a nationalist spokesman as Si Khaled, the French will do well to take much care and exercise the utmost tact in their management of Algeria in the immediate future. Native discontent upon half a dozen grounds, is now fanned by the religious fanaticism that spreads from the Musulman east.

The native problem has always and one might say inevitably been a great one with France in Algeria and for the last few years, the French government has represented to have been engaged in continual amelioration of the same. Large liberties have been granted to qualified natives, but it is argued against such grants that they are not such as could have been avoided, and that they have been for the benefit of France.

CENTRAL EUROPE SEVEN MILLION AUTOMOBILES IN USE IN UNITED STATES

Statistics Credit All of Europe With Million Cars and Demand Steadily Growing - Comment on Recent Handicap Placed on Cars by Gov't from Automobile Association.

St. John, N. S.
The Editor of The Standard.

Dear Sir:—Fifteen years ago the automobile was considered a luxury, and perhaps justly so; but well-to-do people today realize that the automobile is quite as much a utility as a telephone or bath-tub. Not only is it a utility, but in millions of instances it has become a necessity. It is surprising therefore to find our new government thinking along the lines of 15 years ago and picking on the automobile as a good source of revenue when all else fails.

The following is an extract from the Scientific American of December 1920, and the conditions of the future growth of the industry. It is estimated that if the car market were confined merely to replacements, over 1,000,000 new automobiles would be needed every year. There are in all Europe only about one million cars.

There are today in the United States some 7,000,000 motor vehicles, which assume a conservative yearly mileage of 2,000 miles per car, the total mileage must be 14,000,000,000 miles per year; and if we assume an average of three persons per car, we get 42,000,000,000 passenger miles of travel with the figures for 1919 as given out by the Association of Railway Executives, which claim a yearly passenger mileage of 100,000,000,000 miles.

Again, in 1919, automobiles, on a basis of 500 days in use and an average of only two cars per family, carried 4,350,000,000 passenger miles. Compare this with the latest Interstate Commerce Commission figures which show that in 1919, 1,124,000,000 passenger miles were carried in automobiles.

But you are comparing the automobile with the bicycle, which is a business thing; automobile riding for pleasure—mere junketing, whereas automobile travel is serious—a business thing. You are comparing the automobile with the bicycle, which is a business thing.

But the real significance of the automobile is not in its utility in industry and social life, but in its utility in industry and social life, but in its utility in industry and social life.

Now consider the fact that more than 3,000,000 families have been enabled to live in the suburbs or otherwise improve their home surroundings and that a working force equivalent to 1,000,000 laborers is being applied to farming, and we think it will be agreed that 30 per cent of the automobile is an instrument of utility that has woven itself so closely into the life of our modern society and industry that it has become beyond all question a permanent part of our civilization.

Furthermore, we must not forget that in bringing these material benefits to the individual, the automobile has been responsible for the creation of an industry whose growth has been so phenomenal today that it stands as easily the second largest in the country. Thus, the capital invested in the automobile industry for 1919 was $1,918,448,336, and in the same year the total motor vehicle production was 1,974,016.
