regards Springbank, and of making it the favorite resort for women and children, and citizens generally, by absolutely excluding the sale of intoxicating liquors there. We understand that this view is heartily concurred in by the authorities of the proposed downriver electric railway, and, for that matter, also by the city license hold-

Three-fourths of the traffic-and it will be a large traffic-to and from our delightful Down-River Park will consist of women and children.

If there are any rapid youths of the thirsty variety who must have an outof-town resort to paint red, they will have to find some other place to spoil than Springbank.

THE ELECTRIC RAILWAY.

The text of the main portions of the proposed agreement for the electrification of the London Street Railway is now before the citizens, the feeling on the whole being that substantial progress has been made.

There is no lack of ability on either side, and we do not see why the remaining points of difference should not be satisfactorily adjusted. The City Council will be sustained in any reasonable effort to bring the matter to a conclusion, provided always that the interests of the citizens are fully conserved.

THE KAISER'S IDEAL DUTY. Berlin, May 7 .- The Emperor inspected the troops in the Templehof today. Von Pape, he said, had performed his entire duty as a soldier, which, he declared, were the laighest of the age.

Rome, May 7 .- While King Humbert and Queen Marghareta were journeying by rail from Iona to Rome last night the sleeping carriage which they occupied became derailed through some supposed defect in the running gear. TO FIGHT THE BLACK FLAGS. London, May 7 .- A dispatch from Flong Kong to the Pall Mall Gazette says the Chinese Government will transport 5,000 troops from Canton to Formosa to suppress the Black Flags, who are opposing Japanese occupation of the island. THE G. T. R. CHANGES. London, May 7.-The Times says that the new board of the Grand Trunk Railway of today has a heavy task before at, but it is strong enough for the work. It adds that almost the first test of the board's ability will be the reorganization of the staff

GERMAN ANTI-SOCIALIST BILL. Berlin, May 7 .- The many outdoor attractions afforded by the beautiful weather were not sufficient to prevent an enormous crowd from filling the strangers' gallery in the Reichstag today, when consideration of the question of the second reading of the Anti-Socialist Bill was to be resumed. The galleries and lobbies were scenes of excitement, but the House was quiet. Owing to the length of time consumed by minor business, consideration of the Anti-Socialist Bill today was only begun, and todays' proceedings were confined to reading the report of the committee when the House adjourned.

THE CALAMITY AT LAIBACH. Vienna, May 7.—Emperor Francis Joseph arrived at Laibach this morning. The object of his journey is to see personally what provisions have been made for the relief of the sufferers by the re-

Rev. Mr. Headlaw explains his becoming one of Wilde's bondsmen by saying that he did so because the public mind was prejudiced against him before the trial of his case began, and he wished to enable Wilde to stand his second trial in good health and spirits. Wilde was brought from Holloway jail to the Bow street police court at 2:30 p.m., when he was formally set at liberty. He entered a carriage and

VEXED THE POPE. Rome, May 7.-The Pope summoned Cardinal Hohenlohe to the Vatican, owing to his having toasted Premier Crispi on the occasion of a recent dinner at the residence of Baron Blanca, Minister of Foreign Affairs. The cardinal obeyed the summons at once. The Pope was brusque in his manner, and reproached the cardinal with having offered a toast to Signor Crispi. Cardinal Hohenlohe retorted that the triumph of the Church was always desirable, even with the assistance of Pre-mier Crispi. The Pope replied that the Church did not need Signor Crispi, and asked the cardinal to make a statement to efface the bad impression which his toast to the Italian Premier had created. Cardinal Hohenlohe refused to promise that he would make such a statement, and the audience ended with both his Holiness and the cardinal in an angry state of mind. THE ARMENIAN COMMISSION. Constantinople, May 7. The United Press representative here learns that the report of the Armenian commission is destined to be a mass of contradictory statements of the Turkish delegates versus the foreign delegates. The Porte, it is learned, will certainly adopt the statements of the former and refuse to accept the latter as a basis of reforms, hence the scheme of the Turkish committee on Armenian reforms recently submitted to and approved by the Sultan empowering Armenians with a share in the provincial government does not allude to Sassoun. There is a story abroad that the foreign scheme of Armenian reforms shortly to be presented to the Porte by Russia, England and France is based upon the ascertained fact that the Porte has made no improvements in the administration of affairs in Armenia in accordance with the terms of the treaty of Berlin. THE G. O. M. HEARD FROM.

London, May 7.-Two thousand persons attended the meeting which was held in St. James' Hall tonight to protest against the Turkish outrages in Armenia. The Duke of Argyll presided, and among the speakers were the Duke of Westminster, the Bishop of St. Asaph, the Bishop of Hereford and Lady Henry Somerset. Mr. Gladstone sent to the Duke of Argyll a letter ex-

In it he says: "It is with the sincerest grief that I view the infatuation of the Turkish Government, which is determined, it would seem, to do everything possible to produce its own ruin. The duty incumbent upon all Europe seems clear. I feel confident that England will not shrink from it, and I trust that France and Russia will firmly co-operate. I hope that by moral means, if possible, but by other means, rather than not at all, ample security will be taken against a fresh resort by the pressing sympathy with the movement.

THE EASTERN SITUATION. Paris, May 8 .- The Figaro says: The United States did not join Great Britain when the protestors intervened in the matter of the Chino-Japanese treaty of peace owing to that country's traditional policy of non-interference. The United States wished that Japan should not be deprived of her advantages and would not have objected if Japan had seized the Gulf of Pe Chi Li and the Pekin road, but they would not have sent a warship to support her. The inflexible attitude of the United States has cleared the horizon. The Matin says: Great Britain no longer lays down the law outside of Paris, May 7.—La Lanterne, in an article on the result of the protests against Japan's occupation of the Chinese mainland territory, says: Russia has duped France, unless she returns the service in Egypt which we rendered to her in the east.

THE GRAND TRUNK. Interview With General Manager Seargeant-Where the Receipts

Fall Short. Montreal, May 7.—"What do you think will be the effect of the change in the Grand Trunk board as regards the Canadian officials?" was the question put to Mr. L. J. Seargeant, the general manager, today. "That's a delicate question," he replied, "and one which I don't care to answer. Mr. Seargeant says the election of Messrs. Hubbard and Price and Sir Charles Rivers Wilson to the board will prove valuable, as they are all experts. The receipts of the company have slightly increased lately. "The general business of the country," added Mr. Seargeant, "as evidenced by the receipts of the Grand Trunk and affiliacent earthquakes. Lobo, we desire to say that the version the Quinney-Tuckey embroglio, which appeared in our issue of the 7th inst., was merely the complainant's account of the transaction. The case, as we stated, never went to trial, but the defendants were prepared to prove that the cause of the fracas was, we are informed, objectionable language used towards Wm. Tuckey by the complainant, Quinney, which Tuckey's son Walter resented, and in the fight which ensued young Tuckey gave Quinney a sound thrashing. We are assured that the elder Tuckey never touched the complainant, and the statement that he helped his son in the fight is untrue.

VICTORIA PARK. Within a day or two the fountains in Victoria Park will be playing, and within a few weeks the now empty flower beds will be attired in the variety of their foliage. The plants in the greenhouse of the park are at present not fewer than 3,000, and of many varieties. The beauty of the park ought to be sufficient to makes its pedestrians more careful not to disfigure its lawn with footpaths for "short cuts"-apart from the city bylaw. The caretaker, Mr. Grant, says he, would pay the reward himself for the prosecution of those who destroy and steal the shrubs and flowers of the park. Citizens could hardly wish for a more lovely display of verdancy than Victoria Park is rapidly becoming. A NARROW ESCAPE.

About 12 o'clock last night a fire which of Science, Toronto. The youths only had it not been discovered in the nick time would undoubtedly have cost numan lives, was located in the second story of the Robinson Hall Chambers, corner of Dundas and Ridout streets. As it was, Patrick McPhillips had a very narrow escape from serious injury by the flames. P. C. Campbell was on a west end beat, and his attention was attracted by a volume of smoke issuing from the windows of McPhillips' office, which is situated on the Ridout street side of the building upstairs. An arm was first turned in, and then Campbell forced an entrance to the room. There he found the flames burning fiercely around the window, and lying on a sofa near by was McPhillips in a sound sleep. Policeman Campbell and Sergeant Jenkins pulled McPhillips out of his dangerous quarters and the firemen extinguished the blaze. Mc-Phillips' library, which is recognized by legal men as one of the best in the city, was not damaged, but the furnishings of the room and the building were scorched to the extent of about $150. Mc-Evoy, Wilson & Pope (down stairs) sustained slight damage by water. The upsetting of a lamp is supposed to have started the blaze.

OIL TOUCHES BOTTOM. Pittsburg, Pa., May 8.—The Seep purchasing agencies of the Standard Oil Company made no further reduction in their price for crude oil for today. SAD DROWNING ACCIDENT. Montreal, May 7 .- A young girl named Georgina Bris, 16 years of age, was drowned in a brook at Chambly yesterday. She crossed the brook, which is about 30 feet wide, in a small boat, and in jumping out pushed the boat, which contained her little sister, back into the stream. She immediately started to wade out in the water to stop the boat, but had not gone far when she suddenly sank and did not come up again. The girl was drowned in three feet of water. It seems that she was subject to fits, and whenever she received any shock or surprise she would faint. BIG DAY FOR ORANGEMEN. Ottawa, May 8 .- This 12th of July Ottawa is to be the scene of an Orange celebration that will eclipse any ever held in the eastern part of the Province. To the district lodge it is reported that between 15,000 and 20,000 Orangemen will be in the city. They will come from Montreal, Quebec, the Eastern Townships, Brockville, Perth, Smith's Falls, and from Carleton, Russell, and Lanark counties. Leading Orangemen from various parts of Canada have been invited to take part. This 12th will be the centennial of the establishment of the order in Ireland, and Ottawa will be made the rallying point for the eastern part of the Province for the observance of the signal event in the history of the order.

The salary of Sir Charles Rivers Wilson will be $20,000 a year, and not $200,-000 as reported. Toronto Presbytery has decided to

THE ARMY IN LONDON. The Salvation Wood Yard as a Temporary Means of Support-In the Rescue Home. The War Cry this week contains a write-up of the Salvation Army operations in London, with photgraphs of the army wood yard, citadel, shelter eating and sleeping quarters and pictures of little children who find homes in the children's shelter. Concerning the wood yard it says: "One man, out of a job, sent his wife to her relations, worked around our yard until he found a situation, fetched her back, and now they are doing excellently. These are quite a different stamp of men to the tramp class, of whom we see a number.

"Another young fellow, who lost his post in Chatham, made for his home in London, but unable to find work here either, and unwilling to be a drain on his parents, also betook himself to our yard, and hewed wood for his keep, although well educated—a book-keeper by profession-and entirely unused to rough manual labor. At last he also found a good position with a leading town tailor Another young fellow had been secretary to the Y. M. C. A. in Chicago, but through various circumstances he lost his job, and leaving his wife, he set out in search of work. He reached London after many ups and downs, and stayed with us, as the place where his money would eke out the longest. He also secured a situation, and now he is a commercial traveler." Regarding the Rescue Home, Ensign Ward was asked: "Where do you get "Chiefly from the city. There is more evil here than anyone would think to look at the place. We find these girls are the hardest to deal with, it is so easy for them to slip back to the town and their old companions. The doors and windows are always kept wide open. We want them to feel that they are at perfect liberty to go if they do not sincerely wish to do right. There is no compulsion or constraint to stay. They understand they are trusted, and they appreciate it. I never have any truble at all about discipline-if they do not keep the rules they must go, and they never dispute what I tell them to do. Sometimes, of course, I don't mind explaining why I want a thing done as I say. There's not a murmur of grumbling."

'Have you seen any converted?" "Bless you, yes! Every girl in the home is saved now. I've not the least

Pills, pil's, pills:

When you are bilious To cure your ills! The poet is right; and he might have truthfully added, that of all pills Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are the safest and best. They are sugar-coated, small and easy to take, and produce no griping or nausea, but do their appointed work quietly, pleasantly and thoroughly. The only sure cure for habitual constipation.

"Hang that hat!" Eh? How? What was that? Oh, no, surely not! That guy in red across the way, perhaps, but my own little love of a golden straw, all covered with nodding roses and soft black chiffon. Could it be possible? But what horrid language!—and in a church, too. Really men have the wickedest ways; and how hard it is to turn one's head around in a public place and not appear gauche and inquisitive as a school girl. But there is Kitty (that invaluable girl), I can communicate with her. "Kitty, there seems to be a very rude, bold man somewhere behind us; see if you locate him." Kitty's eyes are two slits, long, narrow, Japanesy, and brown. She does not need to turn her head. One slight squint out of the extreme lowest corner of that farthest. half-closed slit, and the thing is done. Back comes the reply. "Dude-little fellow-trying to see through your neck." There, I knew it! One of creation's little short men, planted right behind me again. Really fate is unkind. I can scarcely stir out of doors without becoming an object of resentment and bitterness to some little man or other, which is very saddening, because short men have such a very much more lively sense of humon than the tall ones, who are too much, inclined to be struck on their dignity. But this time I do not think I was altogether to blame, for we were at St. Andrew's, Kitty and I, having come to see what the new pastor was like; and, you know, the floor doesn't slant in that otherwise pretty and comfortable church. Even my own view was somewhat obstructed, and I'm not often troubled in that way. Speaking of inclining floors-two handsome new churches are to go up this summer in London, and it is to be hoped that the trustees will see to it that the floors i cline well, even if it should mean a few ounces less of stucco and fancy red brick on the outside. Then everybody can see everything. "I begin to feel like my poems," sighed the poet to the cruel lady who had said nay to his gentle appeals. "In what respect, pray?"

"I have been rejected so often." Floral garnitures are much used on evening gowns. Something very chic is made of lilacs, arranged in braces over the shoulders and drooping bunches over the arms, which are caught with upstanding bows of lilac satin ribbon. Berthas of roses are worn around the neck, and bretelles of flowers are found very useful to the women who are over plump.

They saw their wedding presents With something of despair. They'd thought to sell and get some cash. But no duplicates were there. To those who have heard many performers, it is interesting to note the individuality of each. Liszt was the prophet of the piano-forte. He made manifest possibilities in it not thought of before this time, and used it to imitate orchestral effects. True, in his effort, he pushed it beyond its legitimate sphere, and his followers actually slaughtered the instrument in their fierce demands on it. Chopin, with his wonderful, etherial touch, was styled the poet of the piano. His best thoughts were expressed on it; he wrote for it with a view to what it could do. Thal, berg, with his full, light, energetic touch and marvelous legato, was called the king in his day. His playing was characterized by aristocratic elegance,

The writer of the story shall affix a pen name, initial or motto to his or her manuscript, and shall send with the manuscript a sealed envelope bearing on the outside the pen name, initial or motto attached to the story, and containing inside it the full name and ad-

These stories will then be published in pamphlet form, which pamphlets will be distributed throughout the Dominion, and each will contain a voting paper, upon which readers will be invited to express their preference. The story obtaining the highest number of votes will be awarded the first prize. The one obtaining the second highest number will be awarded second prize, and so on until the five prizes are awarded. Residents of the East End of Indon were startled about 6 o'clock lasivening by a single stroke of lightni, accompanied by a violent clap of thder. There was no rain, and the phenenal circumstance was entirely unoked for. The effect of the bolt was trible in the extreme. On a vacant t on Dorinda street three little boywere playing when the flash occurred. When the noise subsided men who were orking in a field close at hand miss the little fellows' laughter and prattland, on looking, they found all three setched out on the ground. One waslead,

THE SUN WAS SHINING The storm of the early mornin was accompanied by violent electrid effects, but by 9 o'clock the sky hadleared and the sun was shining brhtly again. During the afternoon here were scattered clouds in the skj and by 6 o'clock it looked as if aither storm was impending. The ouds gathered darkly in the east, whe in the west old Sol continued his sual occupation, with such good effecthat the majority of the citizens wer not looking for bad weather. Resents of the suburbs were busy garding, and children were at play. fter school little Fred Moss, who liveswith his parents on Dorinda street, tok a small wheelbarrow and shovel, and, along with Willis and Stephen litzgerald, sons of a next-door neighor, set out for the commons to dig hos in the sand. They were having

PLENTY OF SPORT, and had a large heap of sand gatered by 5:55. Fred Moss was standir on the sand heap when, without waning of any kind, what neighbors deribe as "two balls of fire" descended. here was a short, sharp, deafening cishand then stillness most intense.

Little Moss had been standing the north of the Fitzgeralds. Abot ten feet away Stephen Fitzgerald was standing, and still further away-probably two yards-was Willie Fitzgrald. Stephen was only stunned. Th bolt just passed by his head and hrt his eyes—so he said afterwards. Fre Moss and Willis Fitzgerald were BOTH APPARENTLY DED when Messrs, Stanfield and Drumond picked them, up and carried then both into Mrs. Fitzgerald's house, thiking they were her boys. A lad wet off post-haste for a doctor, and, althugh one was on the spot within a fewminutes, he pronounced Moss dead. By dint of a couple of hours' hard rork physician brought young Tillis sciousness, and it is believed likely hat ultimately he will not feel any ev effects.

ABOVE THE HEART. Fred Moss was 7 years old, ancone of a numerous family. His father Mr. George Moss, drayman, received vord of the affair while unloading his wgon at a warehouse down town, and left another man in charge while he-buried home. The body of the dead boy sowed visible marks of the course of the fluid. The boy's jacket and shirthad large holes burnt in them at the left shoulder, and just over the heartwas a large discoloration where the luid had entered.

SHOVEL ATTRACTED THE FIUID. The dead boy was working win the shovel, and this probably attractd the lightning, for there were no tres in the vicinity of the accident. Mos' hat was torn into shreds and his facebegan to turn blue. The body looked is if it had been struck on the head aid also over the heart.

The lightning, it appears, pased over Stephen Fitzgerald, who was nearest to Moss, and struck his brother Willis. The latter is still in a precarious condition. Willis Fitzgerald is beween 5 and 6 years old, and Stephen slightly older. Both are children of ex-Hireman James Fitzgerald, who was for a long time connected with No. 2 statim.

THE SENATE.

There are ten vacancies in the Senate. Why fill them? Why fill any future vacancies? Would this not be an easy and gentle method to rid the constitution of a useless encumbrance, the people of needless expense?

Most of the Senators are well up in years. Many of them are estimable old gentlemen. Perhaps some of them rely more or less on their official salaries. A few might, therefore, regard sudden abolition as extreme. A handful of reactionaries would call it a shock to the foundations of government. But the vast majority of the people would shed no tears over its grave.

Here, then, are smoother means to the same end. There would be no constitutional violence. There would be no hardship or disrespect to the living; no reflection on the dead.

The Senate is opposed to the spirit of modern democracy; it should have no part in responsibile government. It is only useful as a party annex, and then chiefly as a refuge for neglected politicians. It is a moldering branch that should be cut off. If the knife is withheld from sentimental reasons, let the branch molder until it drops from sheer dead weight. It is only sustained by party props. Why nurse it? If it is not to be killed, let it die a natural

In two decades, under this scheme of gradual dissolution, the Senate would be a memory, and who would lament it?

LORD SELBORNE.

The Earl of Selborne, better known as Sir Roundell Palmer, who died in England on Sunday, was a man of great ability; but perhaps he will be longest remembered as editor of the Book of Praise. This collection is one of the best that has ever been made, and in the 447 hymns composing it there is hardly one which does not possess distinguishing merit, "A good hymn," the editor noted in his preface, "should have simplicity, freshness and reality of feeling; a consistent elevation of tone, and a rythm easy and harmonious, but not jingling or trivial. Its language may be homely, but should not be slovenly or mean. Affectation or visible artifice is worse than excess of homeliness; a hymn is easily spoiled by a single falsetto note. Nor will the most exemplary soundness of doctrine atone for doggerel, or redeem from failure a prosaic didatic

Measured by these rules it may seem almost surprising that over 400 hymns should be found among the English writers of sacred hymns - for Sir Roundell Palmer's selection was limited to hymns in the English language, although a few are translations. There are not many collections used in the churches which uniformly maintain such a standard; the great majority with which we are acquainted fall far below it, for of editors and compilers it may be more truly said than of the writers themselves that there is far more clross than gold in their works.

Two of the most common practices of the compilers of hymns is to cut down the compositions of which they approve to such dimensions as meet their ideas of the time which ought to be occupied by congregational singing, and to tamper with the text. The Wesleys. Toplady, James Montgomery, Heber and others among the great English hymn writers have offended in the latter respect, and in American collections the thing has almost become a scandal. Into so great an abuse has this habit grown, Sir Roundell Palmer says, that to meet with any author's genuine text in a book of this kind is quite the exception. From this fault his own work is singularly free, and while he did not think it necessary to give the whole of a railway charter and get a mileage every composition, he aimed to adhere grant. strictly as far as it could possibly be ascertained to the genuine uncorrupted text of the authors themselves. We cannot but think that the Book of Praise will live long after the political work of Lord Selborne is forgotten.

A Chance for Litterateurs.

The Dr. Williams Medicine Company, of Brockville, which does nothing by halves, is out with a scheme which is not only praiseworthy in its inception, but which is liberal in its terms. In order to develop the latent literary ability of Canada, and at the same time afford ample encouragement to those who may successfully participate in the competition, the proprietors of the celebrated Pink Pills have decided to offer $300, divided into five prizes, for the best five original stories, of not more than 3,000 words. The amount is a liberal one, and will be divided into sums of $100, $75, $60, $40 and $25, according to the merit of the story. The competition will be open to all who have never won a prize in a competition of the kind, and the results will no doubt prove the

Some curious newspaper comments have been made on the course pursued by Sir Richard moving the adjournment of the House at a late hour on Friday night. They have not all been good-natured or fair. Several Conservative journals, for example, foolishly assert that Sir Richard did not complete his speech, because the deficit was only alleged by Mr. Foster to be $4,500,000, whereas they state Sir Richard looked for a colossal shortage of $6,000,000 to $8,000,-000. The fact is that Sir Richard pursued a very sensible plan, chiefly in response to the request of newspaper men, who wished to do him full justice in their reports, and who, with the sentatives at the capital, and the millions of readers that they indirectly represented, were delighted with the course pursued by Sir Richard, and the public can surely have no fault to find with his course in this matter. * * * *

There is considerable talk here today about Lieutenant-Governor Schultz's conduct in obtaining from Mr. Bourinot, clerk of the Commons, a private opinion on the Manitoba school case for his own use simply, and then handing it to Premier Bowell, who had it type-written and distributed for publication. The question is asked on all sides why should the Government of Manitoba? Mr. Foster rose to make confession that he had omitted several liabilities of the Dominion in his budget statement on Friday. First he told that on $1,200,000 borrowed by him last year he paid $332,000 for commissions, etc. Then he stated that the country was yet liable for $1,600,000 voted in 1891 to the Hudson Bay Railway Company; also for $250,680 for the Kingston and Smith's Falls Railway, and $750,000 for the fast Atlantic steamships, if an agreement can be reached. Mr. Foster refused to divulge what would be done with the new order-in-council grant of $2,500,-000 to the Hudson Bay Railway Company. That was for the future, he said, and the House laughed.

* * * * Sir Richard Cartwright made many excellent points in his speech on the budget debate. He charged that Mr. Foster had been compelled by stress of campaign troubles to hide away liabilities incurred, and to garble and distort facts with regard to the past commercial history of the country. Mr. Foster, he said, guessed with regard to the future. He trusts to a chapter of accidents. He fails to take into account the vast decrease in the collective income of the people. The Government has been tried, found guilty, and now awaits its doom. These men, added Sir Richard, promised to greatly enrich us by heaping up our taxes. They promised in return to fill the Northwest with hundreds of thousands of people to help pay these taxes. They have wrung $1,000,000,000 of taxation from people. driven 2,000,000 people from the country, and have given away to speculators lands equal in extent to about half a dozen European kingdoms. They promised to pay what the C. P. R. cost with the sale of lands, and to have exported before now 640,000,000 bushels of wheat; but they have not sold enough land to pay for the survey. They promised to drive the Yankees into granting reciprocity, and, most curious of all, to inaugurate an era of economy.

Sir Richard pointed out that the much-vaunted reduction of taxation last year only amounted to one-fortieth part of one per cent. Here is the record for the last six months under the old tariff and the new:

Dutiable Duty. cent. imports. 1893$32,835,000 $10,198,000 1894. 28,046,000 8,701,000 31.2 Sir Richard ridiculed Dr. Montague's campanign contention that it would take Canada 400 years to be as able as Britain to enjoy trade freedom. He read Dr. Montague's ideal of what Canadian protection should be from the statutes passed by Edward in 1463, when importations of goods and chattels were prohibited, but goods seized by pirates were duty free. "A Montague was chief adviser of the king then," said Sir Richard, amid laughter. Sir Richard proved that while $60,000,000 were taken from the people by the high tax policy, but $20,000,000 of it went to the treasury -the remainder went to favorites or into corruption funds. He asserted that a Canadian wage-earner pays twentyfold more taxes than a man in similar circumstances pays in England.

Sir Richard then proved the utter worthlessness of the census returns. They were stuffed to buttress up "protective" argument, but in spite of all their stuffing they proved that high taxation had prevented an increase in population. This fraudulent census cost the taxpayers $550,000. As to new taxes, the sugar duties this year will take 3,000,000 from the pockets of the people, but will only put $1,200,000 into the treasury. Sir Richard hinted that friends of the Government in the refining business had got a hint that raw sugar would be taxed and had imported largely, and thus profited in another way at the public expense.

Sir Richard maintained that the Liberals were the friends of every legitimate manufacturing industry, and that they would treat all alike. Was it fair, he asked, that cotton and woolen men should get raw material free while manufacturers of iron articles had to pay heavy taxes on raw material? He insisted that all taxes collected should go into the treasury. Ranging Patrons and Liberals on one side as utterly opposed to the "protective" policy, and taking the method of computation used by Mr. Marter, the Ontario Conservative leader, Sir Richard next showed that the actual Conservative party in Ontario is now only 30 per cent of the whole people. The time is come, he said, to get rid of this organized policy of folly, fraud and deceit which has held sway in Canada for the last six-

Mr Paterson (Brant) made one of his sledg-hammer speeches, strongly commening on the mismanagement of affairs by the men in power. In eleven year he said the Government had taken 40,520,000 in excessive taxation out of the people. Mr. Paterson ridiculed the tew of Conservatives that they are the ountry, and that all improvements in he magnificent land results from theiracts. Under a revenue tariff our population increased 19 per cent; under a protective tariff less than 12 per cent; and inthe last ten years the public debt had ben increased 36 per cent. The worker of the country, according to the census returns, had been betrayed. Men and wimen were there shown to earn from 5 ents to 35 cents a day. Has the N. P. made them rich? No Flag-Raising Demonstration to Be Held.

The School Board Give Way to the City Council.

Trustee Jeffrey Objects to Dirt Slinging-School Board to Ask for Debentures-Still Overcrowded.

The school children of London will not have a flag-raising demonstration on Dominion Day this year. The $500 item placed in the expenditures for that purpose was knocked out by the City Council, but in the face of this some members of the Board of Education expected to hold the demonstration. At a meeting of the board last night the question was settled, but before the end was reached there was a lively little "tiff," started by dirt slinging, as Trustee Jeffrey termed it, on the part of Trustee Logan. The question was raised by Mr. Logan moving that Messrs. Jeffrey, Griffin, Murphy, Anderson, Dr. Campbell and himself be a committee to confer with the Western Fair board about the use of the race track for demonstration purposes on Dominion Day. Trustee Greenlees followed the motion by calling attention to the council's action, and stating that though in love with the hoisting of the flag, he favored dropping it this year. It appeared to Trustee Murphy that the board had been out-generaled by the City Council, and had not been treated fairly. The board should be careful. The demonstration grant was not "for school purposes," and the council had tion on the kindergarten and substi-a thorough right to cut it off. If the tute staffs respectively, were referred oard of Education undertook a demonstration they would be liable to a law suit. Therefore, he did not feel inclined to take any active action in the

Trustee Logan-But if the board had known that the council was going to do such underhand work the other expenses would not have been cut so low. The council dealt very contemptibly with the board. I think the money for the demonstration could be taken out of the unforeseen expense account. Trustee Anderson favored dropping the demonstration for this year, and having one bigger and better than ever in 1896. The people could be just as loyal without hoisting the flag, without the great amount of work, and without the waste of time and money. Trustee Griffin did not believe in the board being "boycotted" by the council, and he let the members know it,

To bring the matter to a vote, Mr. Jeffrey moved an amendment that in view of the council's withdrawal of the $500 no demonstration be held this

THE DIRT SLINGING. It was at this juncture that the "dirt slinging" was indulged in. Trustee Logan arose and asked if the money had been cut off because another organization wanted the park for July 1. He Trustee Jeffrey became indignant and retorted that he did not think it fair that any member should throw dirt in the face of another. He had voted against the demonstration for the past two years, and he did so this year on the same grounds as before.

Trustee Craig-I don't believe in dirt throwing, either. The idea of one member coming up and calling certain things cliques, etc.

Trustee Anderson explained his cause for voting as he did, and Trustee Griffin gave notice of a motion to reconsider the matter at the next meeting, when Trustee Logan stated his reason for asking was because he had heard the council had pruned the $500 off simply because the park was wanted by another organization.

The organization referred to was supposed to be the Young Liberal Fleet. STILL CROWDED. Principal Merchant reported 636 pupils on the roll at the institute during an increase over April, 1894, of 38. The report of the inspector, Mr. Carson, drew attention to the opening of the room in Colborne Street Church, and two rooms in the South Waterloo mission school. The class relieved in Aberdeen school by the opening of the latter rooms had yet about 74 pupils, and would require a transition teacher. The lowest forms in Lorne avenue, Quebec and Rectory street schools, according to the regulations, required transition teachers, but the inspector stated that he had no persons qualified for the positions. A large number of children failed to gain admission to the Queen's avenue and Victoria kindergartens, and the rooms at present were so overcrowded that a recommendation was made to have afternoon classes opened for the remainder of this month and June. It was also necessary to appoint an examiner for the high school entrance exams.

The board decided to open the Queen's avenue and Victoria kindergartens, and the appointment of teachers was left with No. 1. Mrs. Gahan, of Talbot street school, was appointed examiner on condition that her regular dutles would not be interfered with.

After having gone fully into the ne-After having gone fully into the necessity of further school accommodation, No. 2 committee reported that it was thought necessary to secure property in the following wards, and the costs were placed thus: No. 2 ward, $1,200; No. 3, $1,100; No. 4, $850. The committee also reported that the cost of a two-room school would be $4,000, and a four-room school, $7,000, if the upper two rooms were not finished. upper two rooms were not finished.

The report was adopted. No. 1 committee recommended that the salary of Miss Bella Grieve, who took the place of Miss Sadie Vining at Lorne avenue school, be fixed at $325. On the opening of the two new rooms in Waterloo street the committee appointed Miss Cora McNaughton and Miss Gertrude Sutton from the transition staff to take charge. Miss Cullen had been appointed on the transition staff, and was in charge of Miss Pococke's class at Simcoe street school. In amendment to the committee's recommendation, Mr. Jeffrey moved that Miss Grieve's salary be fixed at $275. Carried. The balance of the report was adopted.

The audit committee reported their approval of the payment of accounts to the tune of $8,170 16-$1,817 33 of which was the Collegiate Institute pay sheet for March, and $5,117 05 for the public schools. The committee recommended that the readjustment of the salaries of city teachers in the public schools be referred to the committee for a report at an early date. The attention of the committee had been drawn to the item in the annual financial statement re "Settlement with Westminster township" ($1,461). The explanation of the entry was that the liability was caused by a debenture issued in connection with the Askin school previous to amalgamation, and of which the board had no knowledge.

Trustee Jeffrey moved, seconded by Trustee Johnston, that the City Council be requested to issue debentures for lot in No. 3 ward, $1,100; lot in No. 2 ward, $1,200; lot in No. 4 ward, $800; building on Richmond street north, $7,-000; building on or near Talbot and Oxford, $7,000; building near Oxford and William streets, $7,000; building in south end of No. 3 ward, $7,000; building on Wortley road, $3,000. Carried.

Trustee Griffin moved that a fee of $2 per month be paid by all pupils attending the upper school at the Collegiate Institute, to be enforced after the summer holidays.

In amendment, Mr. Jeffrey moved that the fee be $1 monthly, and in amendment to the amendment Mr. Murphy moved that the upper school be free as at present.

Trustee Buchner attacked the proposition to impose a fee on the ground that it would be a blow in favor of the classes as against the masses. Mr. Griffin, however, did not look at it in that light, as the vast majority of the pupils were able to pay their way. He wanted to see how the board stood in the matter. A trustee could not walk down the street without being asked why the high school was not selfsustaining.

The vote was finally taken, and Trustees Hunt, Anderson, Griffin and Johnston were the only supporters of the Mr. Murphy's amendment to the amendment was carried, and the board went into committee of the whole to discuss regulations.

Mr. Griffith read the annual report, which stated that notwithstanding the financial depression of the past year the school had been well attended, and the pupils tried hard to make themselves proficient in the various subjects. At the examinations, which closed on April 29, 162 entered into the 23 subjects, as against 97 for 1894. It was pointed out also that in 1893 and 1894 there were two teachers employed. The total number of pupils attending the winter classes was 131; individual lessons, 1,343. Including the summer classes the total number was 198, compared with 187 last year. In addition to the regular subjects taught during the year, a night class for advanced pupils was started, and it gave much satisfac-

It eferred to the usefulness of the institution, and to the fact that the pupils largely took up those branches of art appearaining to the groundwork required for professional purposes, rather than foramusement and recreation. This was a good indication. He pointed out that since the Government grant was educed the school had been mainly kep up by the untiring and patriotic efforts of the teachers, especially Mr. Grifith, of whom the president spoke very highly. In conclusion it was strongly recommended that suitable accommedation be procured for the school, quarter which would allow the citizens to become better acquainted with the school. The water commissioners yesterday afternoon took action on a report recently presented by Engineer Moore, recommending in view of the fact that additional demand will be made on the water supply this year, that steps be taken at once to provide for that demand.

Chairman Cowan said he was firmly convinced last year and the year before that there was not a sufficient supply, and he was still satisfied that it should be increased.

The mayor said there was a difference of opinion last year as to the necessity for a greater pumping ca-Commissioner Cowan referred to the steps which had to be taken last year to give the citizens lawn services. He thought every person in the city was prepared to pay for an increased water supply except a few cranks.

Mayor Little said there was a very general feeling outside of the people called cranks against any unnecessary expenditure, and he was opposed to increasing the supply until its need was demonstrated.

In reply to a question, Mr. Moore stated that the Colville springs, with a capacity of 350,000 gallons a day, trench be dug south of the Colville springs to catch the water in the basin said to be in that vicinity and carry it into the conduit; that the engineer report at the next meeting the cost of fitting up machinery to pump the water now running into the river north of the Colville springs; the quantity thus available, and the daily cost of pumping it, and that Chairman Cowan, Mayor Little and Engineer Moore ascertain what additional springs in the

The leasing of the cafe on the Springbank property was also brought up, and Ben Johnston, of Cartwright street, who conducted it last year, applied for the lease. He spoke in support of his claim, but frankly admitted having sold liquor there. It did not pay, however-he had been fined for the offense. Mayor Little was very decided in his view. He favored leasing the hotel to the street railway company, who had stated that they would not run down to the resort unless they had control of the hotel. The reason they did so was that if the place was in other hands liquor might be sold, and they would not care to carry children and ladies to such a place. Mr. Johnston unblushingly admitted having broken the law, and on that ground he (the mayor) could not support Johnston's applica-

Mr. Judd said that as for the railway company's talk about not building the line unless they got the hotel, he thought it was mere baby talk, and about the same bluff that had been made for four or five years. He was in favor of leasing the hotel to the highest bidder. Mr. Cowan took the same view, and tenders for the hotel lease will be called for.

The street railway company asked for permission to construct a terminal station on the waterworks property. The matter was laid over, and Manager Carr will be asked to attend the next board meeting and talk the subject

On 'Change. [Special to C. E. Turner, broker, Masonic Temple, from Kennett, Hopkins

Chicago, May 7.-The working of two cargoes of wheat here today for ship-ment to Toledo turned a weak maket into a strong one. Cash wheat in that market is about 4c over Chicago, and the freight rate not over 1 1-2c, so that the transaction leaves a good margin of profit. It is said that Toledo has sold about all its stock of wheat and is compelled to come to Chicago for supplies. A New York exporting house reports 175,000 bushels worked there today for Berlin. A renewal of the cash demand for wheat will probably start the market up again, and it may go higher than before. Bradstreet's report shows a decrease in the world's visible of more than 4,000,000 bushels last week. The Kansas crop report is very bad, and suggests a reduction of condition by the Government on the 10th. The demand for wheat today has narrowed the difference between May and July to 3-4c. It is said that a Montreal house has bought in Toledo double the amount of wheat in store there, and the wheat going there from here is to fill shorts. Corn and Oats - Corn weakened slightly at one time today, but has been strong most of the time, and at the close looked like going higher on the excellent shipping demand. Oats are sluggish, and would have sold off but for Provisions-Dull and featureless all day until near the close, when they firmed up in sympathy with grain. They were quite weak at one time, with the longs liquidating moderately, and little demand.

Hogs were in reduced supply, but this did not prevent prices from sliding off another 10c. At the decline trading was fairly active, city packers and shippers buying liberally. ORGANIZATION OF FARMERS

A FEATURE OF THE DAY.

James Rogers Speaks Earnestly. The development of Farmers' Institutes and other means of education on successful practical farming has proven beyond a doubt that the present-day farmer requires to be a student of his work. The most successful ones are not as a rule those who do the greatest amount of manual labor, but they are found ranking first as prize-winners on all agricultural products. James Rogers, a resident of Tilsonburg, Oxford county, Ont., for 45 years, has taken A successful, reliable man, his statement will be of interest to many: "I have suffered for seven or eight years with Itching Piles; the torture and agony I cannot here find words to describe. Night after night was kept awake with the painful itching. I tried all the physicians and every known remedy all to no account not even relief. In talking over my curious trouble with Mr. Charles Thomson, our wellknown druggist, he recommended Chase's Ointment. To my wonder and surprise I got relief from the second application. A Lost Gem

Stella was cut to the heart by one sentence. "I would not have taken this way if you had not driven me into it by trying to come between me and It was hard to make her responsible for Molly's willful rashness! What an accusation it was! She could not condemn or acquit herself exactly. She had erred in trusting the lovers too much; she had credited them with a sense of honor which it seemed they did not possess. But then, who would have thought that John Hannington, a man of good family if not of wealth, would have so far forgot the traditions of his race as to urge an inexperienced girl of 18 to elope with him! The thing was incredibly disgraceful in Stella's eyes; and she knew that it would be-if possible—even more so in the eyes of her husband. Must she show him this letter, in which that accusing sentence seemed to stand out with such terrible distinctness? She winced at the latter's words -"trying to come between me and What would Alan think of that? She dared not consider; she thrust the letter into her pocket, resolving to show it to him at once, without regard to consequences. But this she found to be impossible. He had locked himself into his study, and answered when she knocked with a request that he might be left alone. His tones were muffled and unnatural. As Stella lingered wistfully outside his door, she was almost certain that she heard the sound of those heart-rending sobs which are the last expression of a strong man's agony. Then she was summoned away by the announcement of the doctor's arrival, and found herself obliged to explain the state of affairs to him, and to conduct him to his patients. Kingscott's arm was seriously hurt, and he did not scruple to attribute his injury to Bertie's hand. His ingenuity did not desert him in the midst of all his pain. He was quite ready with an elaborate and highly colored version of his experiences, by which it was made to appear that he had been utterly surprised by the appearance of Hannington and Molly, that he believed Bertie to be helping them to elope, and that he had done his best to prevent the catastrophe that had followed. Even Stella did not know what to believe when she heard his plausible tale. It sounded rational and consistent. She could not imagine that Ralph Kingscott had any reason for wanting to see Molly married to John Hannington, and it did not seem likely to her that he would invent the story that he told. On the other hand, she could not make up her mind to believe that Bertie was so careless of his sister's fate, so weak indicated by Kingscott. She hoped that Alan would be able to solve the Bertie had been stunned by the blow on his head, and felt faint and languid when he recovered consciousness; otherwise he was not hurt. The doctor sought and obtained a few minutes' conversation with Mr. Moncrieff, who received him courteously, with no trace of past emotion, and listened to his report of the patients' condition with cold attention. "He's just like a stone," the doctor said to himself as he came away. It was only Stella who guessed the intensity of the torture from which Alan was suffering just then. She herself did not gain access to him until the afternoon, when, on passing the door, she saw that it was ajar, and heard him call her by name. He had known her footstep, and wanted to speak to her. She was shocked to see how gaunt and haggard and old he was looking all at once. He stood in the middle of the room, with one hand resting on the table; in the other he held a letter which he proffered her to read. "You can see it," he said, hoarsely;

"it is from her." "I have one too. I have brought it for you to see," said Stella. He took it from her hand, but did not read it immediately. He seemed to wish that she should first read his daughter's letter to himself. Stella was astonished at its tone. It was utterly different from the tone adopted in the epistle to herself. Three pages were filled with protestations of penitence and affection; there was a humble plea for her father's forgiveness which did not sound as if it came from Molly at all, and there was an intimation that letters would find her at a certain hotel in Glasgow, from which place, she said, "Jack" intended to go to the Trossachs for a time.

When Stella had put down the letternot knowing exactly what to say or think of it—Mr. Moncrieff began to read the note that Molly had written to her step-mother.

"Ah, that is genuine," he said, with "You don't think the other is?" "No. I suppose it was 'inspired' by Hannington. Molly was never so affectionate to me in her life."

There was a pause. "I wanted to tell you," Stella began, but her husband hastily interrupted her.
"Not just now. Tell me nothing at present. I have not heard Ralph's story yet, or Bertie's." "But mine ought to come first," said Stella, quietly.

He looked keenly at her. "Well," he said, wincing a little as if something hurt him in her aspect, "tell your story then-in as far as it refers to Molly only. If you have anything else to say, let it wait. I want to know about her affairs only for the present.

Stella would not let herself be wounded or dismayed. She began her story at once—the story of Lady Valencia's warning, of her expedition to Tomgarrow, and her interview with Hannington and Molly. Her voice faltered a little as she told of the week's respite that she had given the lovers—never dreaming that they would take advantage of her trust in them to cut the Cordina knot in this discreditable way. Gordian knot in this discreditable way. There was a moment's pause when she had finished.

"This is all you know?" said Alan, in the dry, hard voice which sounded so little like his own. "Yes.

"And it did not strike you that your first duty in the matter was to me? that I ought to have been told at once?" "I am very sorry," murmured Stella.
"You ought to be sorry," said her band bitterly. "With a little more judgment, a little more wisdom on your part, misery might have been avoided.

You must know that."

He checked himself, for, with all his anger, he could not bear to see the look of pain and grief which his ds brought to his wife's white face and quivering lips. He did not quite mean what he said. It was true, perhaps, that an older and more experienced woman might for a time have staved off an elopement, but he acknowledged to himself that where persons of Molly's unbridled temper and Hannington's lack of principle had been brought together no bonds could restrain them effectually. He would have told Stella so; he would have gathered her into his arms and comforted himself in comforting her, but for that secret root of evil—the suspicion of her truthfulness, which Kingscott had implanted in him. If she loved another man, why should he care to soften his tones or extenuate her womanly weakness? There was nothing so abhorrnet to him, he told himself, as deceit. He stood silent for a moment, conscious, without lifting his eyes, of the tears that were fast falling over poor Stella's pale cheeks. She wiped them away very quietly, as if she hoped that he would not remark them, and her silence half softened half irritated him. There was stern impatience in his tone when he spoke at last. "You have no more to say at present. I suppose? There are other things to be touched on later-just now Molly's affairs must come first. I have sent to ask Ralph if he can see me, and he is waiting for me, I believe. I have sent for Bertie, too. And I shall be glad if you will accompany me to Ralph's room. By a comparison of evidence we shall perhaps get at the truth of the Stella did not know exactly what he meant; but she followed his directions meekly, and went with him to Kingscott's rooms in the Tower. Ralph was in bed, evidently suffering much pain, but quite disposed to give his version of the story at any length that might be required. Bertie was also present. He looked white and distressed, and did not venture to sit down until his father curtly told him to take a chair. And then Ralph was requested to state what he knew. He gave his account much as he had given it before, but not without interruption. At one or two points Bertie burst forth indignantly. "I knew nothing; I was not in league with Molly. It was not I who fired the revolver." And last of all, "Then what were you doing in my father's study at 1 o'clock—just before Molly went away?"

Kingscott shook his head pityingly. 'It is a pity that you should try to affix blame on me, dear boy," he said "The only excuse I can make for you is, that you are suffering from delusions caused by an over-excited brain." "Pray, what were you doing, to be out of your room at that hour of the night?" said Moncrieff to his son. (To be Continued.)

LONDON WEST MATTERS. The London West Council met last evening with a full attendance, consisting of Reeve Macdonald, Deputy Reeve Murdock, Councillors Moore, Andrews and Hamilton and Clerk Simpson. A petition was received from a large number of ratepayers for an electric light to be placed on the corner of Oak and Pine streets. The proposition was fully discussed and carried, also the proposal to move the light at Blackfriars street across the way. Gibbons, McNab & Mulkern wrote to the council asking for $325 taxes due the separate school, as recommended by J. B. Laing, Government auditor. Councillor Moore said he had seen the lawyers and explained that only $300 was due, which would be paid shortly. A petition for watering Blackfriars street, cost to be paid by residents, was referred to the board of works, and in the meantime tenders will be called for. An account for snowplowing was passed. Another was received from W. T. Duff for auditing the village books. It was questioned whether his work was a correct audit or not. This was a sore point with some of the councillors, and much past history was raked up. The motion to pay the bill was lost. Mr. Gibson's account will not be paid. One or two other accounts were referred to the finance committee. The treasurer's report was adopted. Bylaw No. 298 was passed. It prohibits the throwing of carcasses into the river, carting night seil through the village and erecting slaughter houses within the limits. The board of works will examine the creek in the west end, which is in a foul condition. The dog tax question was also revived, 15 tags only having been sold. Beginning today all owners of tagless dogs will be summoned, and must pay for tags or lose their dogs. A complaint was made that the flow of sewage from Carling's creek was injurious to the health of the villagers, and a deputa-tion from the council will wait on Mayor Little in regard to this matter. "How about asking them about amalgamation?" asked one councillor. The chorus of "Noes" showed that it was not viewed very favorably. A man built his sidewalk a few inches higher than is lawful and will be notified by the board of works. The Council adjourned till the 17th. when a special meeting will be held.

AN ALARMING INCREASE.

The Prevalence of Female Complaints Found to Result Largely from the Kidneys.

Saginaw, Mich., May 8 .- Doctors are beginning to turn their attention more exclusively to the causes for the great increase of what are known as female complaints during the past ten years, and to the remedies for the same. Many cases have been investigated, and among others that of Mrs. Reany, of Ashland, Wis., who was cured of this form of trouble by the use of a kidney medicine known as Dodd's Kidney Pills, which originated in Canada, but has now become widely known and used throughout the Western States. This and other similar cases go to show that these troubles are largely due to the kidneys and that the above-mentioned remedy is likely to have a great effect in lessening the number of victims to this form of complaint,
