Marconi Reveals Teuton Intrigue to Set Italy Against France in Early Days of War

Repeated Teuton Attacks Repulsed Last Night

ITALY WAS DECISIVE FACTOR

Prompt Refusal to Join Germany Enabled France to Stem Invasion

TREACHEROUS GAME Played by Huns Was to Have Italy Conceal Her Intentions

MARCONI SPEAKS OUT

By Courier Leased Wire. New York, June 23.—Senator William Marconi, a member of the Italian war mission to the United States, which is headed by the Prince of Udine, speaking last night at a dinner given by Mayor Mitchell, in honor of the mission, declared that his country's prompt refusal to join Germany in a war of aggression, was the decisive factor which enabled France to stem the tide of invasion.

"Germany did not expect us to join in a savage attack on the liberties of Europe," said Mr. Marconi. "She did not even care whether we eventually agreed to remain neutral. Her game was a much deeper and more treacherous one. She wanted us to leave France, our great Latin sister, in doubt as to our intentions."

"On the morning of July 30, 1914, the day before Germany declared war on Russia, the Marquis di San Girolamo, who was then our foreign minister, unofficially informed the French ambassador at Rome that Italy would never side with the Central Powers in a war of aggression. This information was immediately wired to Paris, but it was not sufficient to make France feel absolutely certain that Italy's attitude was favorable to her, because there was as yet no official declaration of neutrality on our part."

"On August 2, 1914, three days before England declared war against Germany, at a council of ministers held in Rome, Italy decided formally to declare her decision. News was immediately communicated through our Charge d'Affaires, in Paris, who went to see M. Viviani, the French foreign minister, in the middle of the night."

"M. Viviani on seeing him, grew pale and drew back, for he was almost convinced that nothing but Italy's decision to join Germany would have brought the Italian Charge d'Affaires there at that hour."

"The revelation of feeling when M. Viviani read the telegram was such that he could not hide his emotion. Within half an hour, orders had gone forth for the mobilization of the north of nearly 1,000,000 men, which France would have had to keep on her southern and eastern front to guard against a possible attack from Italy."

"That million men helped to stem the advancing tide of Germans, to win the battle of the Marne and to save France. Had there been the slightest wavering on the part of Italy, France would not have dared to withdraw a single man from the Italian front, and the history of the world might have been different."

"Gentlemen, is there any man who can think, in view of what I have just told you, that Italy's conduct was not a decisive factor in the war?"

FIGHT EXTRADITION Italian Fled From America After Slaying Ruth Cruger

By Courier Leased Wire. Bologna, June 23.—Alfredo Cocchoi, under arrest here, today confessed to the Italian authorities that he had murdered Ruth Cruger in New York. Cocchoi went to Bologna from New York in February, after the disappearance of Ruth Cruger, a girl 18 years old. When the girl's body was discovered in the basement of Cocchoi's motorcycle shop in New York, Police Commissioner Woods cabled to Italy asking for the man's arrest on a charge of murder. This was followed by a request to the same effect by the state department at Washington, and Cocchoi was arrested on June 20. He at first expressed his innocence and insisted that he had left America on account of trouble with his wife. The man's nerve broke down after he was placed in solitary confinement, although he retained a lawyer and announced his intention of fighting extradition.

Enemy Sought to Continue Offensive on Aisne Front, But at Terrible Cost and With no Success--Period of Comparative Quiet During Past Two Weeks on the Canadian Front

By Courier Leased Wire Paris, June 23.—Continuing their offensive on the Aisne front, the Germans last night made repeated attacks in the region of Vauxaillon, and southeast of Filain. They also multiplied their efforts against the French positions north of Froidmont, where they failed yesterday. Today's official statement says the Germans made considerable sacrifices without gaining the slightest advantage.

London, June 23.—The following communique is issued by the Canadian War Records Office:—During the past week no infantry actions of a large scale have taken place since the extensive raid during the night of June 8th and 9th. The enemy has shown little offensive activity. On the morning of the 12th of June a Canadian raiding party took possession of four enemy gunpits in the neighborhood of La Culette. In this enterprise our troops captured two light machine guns, together with a large supply of bombs. Later in the morning of the same day, a small party of Canadian infantry attacked and captured an enemy concrete strong point and machine gun position north of the hostile trench system. These trenches have now been consolidated in this affair. We captured sixteen prisoners belonging to the 118th regiment.

During the early part of the night of June 12th and 13th, the enemy attempted by a counter-attack to retake the positions captured from him. During the day our artillery at once opened up and the enemy's infantry who appeared half shaken by our barrage was completely driven back by the Lewis Gun and Rifle fire of our troops.

SUPPORT GROWING DAILY FOR RUSSIAN GOVERNMENT

Despite Disorders at Sebastopol and Anarchistic Demonstrations Through Various Parts of the Country, Provisional Government Gradually Gains Control and Authority—Nation Rapidly Reorganizing

By Courier Leased Wire. Petrograd, June 23.—In spite of the disorders at Sebastopol, and anarchist threats here, there are indications of a marked improvement in the situation with a growing support of the government and a growing animosity against the extremists and their disintegration in the army. The resolution passed on Thursday by the pan-Russian congress of councils of deputies, is regarded as a signal defeat for the extremists and Provisional government being passed by a majority of more than 4 to 1. A further significant resolution admitted that the transfer of all power to the democracy would weaken the revolution. This is the democracy's own admission that it needs the knowledge and experience of the educated classes. By declaring for the speedy attainment of "a general peace" and at the same time for "an increase in the fighting capacity of the army" the congress tacitly repudiated the programme of a separate peace. Equally important was the unanimous vote of the peasants congress, representing 130,000,000 people, approving the expulsion of the German pacifist agent Robert Grimm, and inviting volunteers to enter the army and strengthen it by their example. Speeches of similar tenor in the Cosack congress, were still more emphatic, so much so that the extremist anarchist organs to-day speak of "the resurrection of the Nagaika" the cosack whip, formerly used for suppressing disturbances. A representative of the Amur Cosacks declared that 8,000,000 Cosacks were ready to fight in support of the revolution. A representative of the Kuban Cosacks added: "We shall support the provisional government if necessary, with rifles and swords." A delegate from the Ukraine, formerly the location of the famous Sapozhko Cosacks declared that his countrymen would fight side by side with the Cosacks until Germany was beaten into dust. Stepping on the gangplank of a Japan-bound steamer, seventeen slackers were arrested at Seattle last week twenty got away.

OVERTURES TO RUSSIA Made Through Such Swiss Socialists as Grimm and Hoffman

Paris, June 23.—Dr. Hoffmann, the former Swiss Foreign Minister, according to the Geneva correspondent of the Petit Parisien, forwarded correspondence between Count Von Enlow, at Luzerne and Cerna in Italian anti-interventionist at Rome to the Swiss diplomatic pouch. According to the Matin, Dr. Hoffmann also negotiated for the return of Lenin and other Russian Socialist refugees to Russia through Germany.

The foreign affairs committee, of the Chamber of Deputies examined the detrimental situation caused by German intrigue in Switzerland. Premier Ribot and deputy Andre Lebey, communicated a series of documents relating to the Grimm-Hoffmann incident and respecting a person who, in agreement with the Berlin Government, directed from Berne and Zurich the anarchist peace campaign in Russia.

The papers were given dime novel details about the despatch of materials for arson in double bottomed jam pots and of cigarettes containing disease germs for infecting cattle, etc.

FRANCE TO INCREASE MARINES

Merchant Shipping to be Placed Under Control of One Department

LOSSES DURING WAR Total 560,000 Tons, But the Fleet is Larger Than Ever Before

ENEMY LOSSES HEAVY Half of Hun Shipping Has Been Destroyed During the War

Paris, June 23.—The resolution adopted by the Chamber of Deputies calling for the work of increasing the French merchant marine to be placed under the control of one department, was accepted by the government and voted by a show of hands. The resolution was signed by forty four members of the merchant marine committee and invited the government to centralize the work of building, buying and chartering merchant ships, a task which has been up to the present divided among several ministers.

Louis Nall under Secretary for the merchant marine answering criticisms said that the French merchant fleet was 2,500,000 tons at the beginning of the war and since that time had lost 560,000 tons, 460,000 by acts of war. During the same period 680,000 tons had been built or bought, and another 140,000 was on the stocks so that the fleet was actually greater now than before the war.

Secretary Nall then pointed out that Germany had lost 2,500,000 tons, fifty per cent. of its entire fleet and declared that reports that Germany was building hundreds of ships were mere bluff. Deputy Bouisson declared that the secretary was too optimistic, that the merchant fleet was in a dangerous situation and that it was due to the governments inertia. He said that ships must be built at once or France would not be able to feed her people. He declared that the question took precedence over all others even that of effectives and that England preferred to lend France ships and build for herself. He concluded by demanding that the government insist upon the allied powers giving France the help they owe her.

Premier Ribot then mounted the tribune. He said he recognized that the situation was not heavy, but he pointed out the difficulties in buying ships. Commissioner Tardieu had bought some in America and had asked the French ship owners to buy others but the Premier said he must admit that they were slow about it. The question of paying cash was another difficulty and while it would be better to build he declared that the nations activity must be concentrated on the manufacture of munitions. In addition raw materials were scarce and skilled labor insufficient.

Died in France. Paris, June 23.—Paul Deschanel, President of the Chamber of Deputies yesterday delivered a funeral discourse over the body of Jean de Dieu Reille Nout, Duke of Dalmatia, who was a member of the Chamber of Deputies for Terni.

The Duke who was 23 years of age, was killed by a German shell near St. Quentin. While commanding a section of an automobile battery he was wounded by the fragments of one shell. He continued to advance, however, until he received a mortal wound from another shell.

THE SITUATION.

Gen. Brusiloff, Russia's new Commander-in-Chief, issues a confident statement. He says the armies will soon be ready to strike again, that desultory fighting has ceased and the men are recovering from the stupor caused by the revolution. As if in proof of a better outlook, word comes from the Caucasus front, that Russian troops have driven the Turks from the Pamur Ridge at the point of the bayonet.

The Italians continue to report successes and in one instance, after the explosion of a mine, the Alpine troops performed the fine feat of climbing a sheer rock wall and carrying a summit five thousand feet high.

North of the Aisne, the Hun attacked the French front for a distance of one and a quarter miles, and after furious fighting, were repulsed, with the exception of one salient in the centre, which they penetrated and apparently still hold.

Venezolas has arrived at Athens to head a Government. A pro-ally demonstration took place when thousands cried, "Long live France, England and Russia"; "Long live Venezolas." More of Constantines tools have been reported.

Baron Rhonda, Britain's new food controller, said during an interview that the States and the Old Land, working together on the food supply question, could afford to smile at German attempts to starve England. He added that he was determined that all speculators must go and would cut down excess profits of middlemen.

Fifty American aviators have reached France. There is renewed fighting activity on the Galician front.

THE DELAY LAURIER SEEKS Without directly placing himself on record as to whether he favors, or is against conscription, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, by his proposed referendum on the subject, is deliberately seeking to delay the needed reinforcements for our men who are in the trenches.

The vote which he proposes should first be taken, would involve months before the casting of the ballots and their enumeration. Back of the anti-conscriptionist gang, there would be the rancorous utterings of the Bourassa and the Loring, the secret work of the pro-German foreign element, and a concentration of all the forces who utter the traitorous talk that Canada has already done enough for England, just as if they and their precursors counted for one moment alongside the great struggle for human liberty and freedom.

The division would be such as to fladden the heart of the Hun and to place an indelible stain upon the honor and the announced purpose of this Dominion. Those who have so bravely obeyed the call to arms, were told that they would have the backing of the country to the last man, and now forsooth, the Liberal leader comes along and in cold blood proposes that a vote shall be taken as to whether or not solemn pledge shall be made good. The very suggestion of the thing is calculated to arouse righteous resentment in the breasts of every true man and true woman. Yet Sir Wilfrid, after making it, seems well content apparently that he should have the plaudits of "my own province," which alone of all the rest, has hung back in the time of supreme need.

This is no period for delay. The necessities of the case must be met in an unflinching manner, and those who would obstruct the path of clear duty must be brushed aside. Their blarney and their sinister attempts to thwart the will of the great mass of the people cannot, and will not be tolerated.

KING STEPS IN. Copenhagen, June 23.—King Christian has declined to accept the resignation of M. Rothbor, representative of the Conservative party in the cabinet who was requested by the party executive to withdraw from the ministry after the Premier refused to dismiss M. Stauning, Socialist minister without portfolio, for his participation in the Socialist peace discussions at Stockholm.

The Jackson, Mich., prison plantation is after the wartime production record, using tractors, plowing at night with headlights.

UNWARRANTED ABUSE OF THE GOVERNMENT.

It has been the continual practice of many Liberal papers and Liberal speakers to continually criticize the Borden Government for alleged all round inefficiency in the conduct of the war.

Even the Laurierites in the House who have taken occasion to side with the Administration on the conscription issue, have sung the same song. For instance, Mr. Bardee, Liberal whip, during the address in which he stated that he could not follow his leader on this subject, said among other things:— "There has been lack of recruiting leadership. There has been lack of organization. There has been lethargy."

As a matter of fact, neither of these assertions is true. Recruiting, had Quebec not so notoriously and lamentably failed, would have been up to the needed mark, if the Province had done her proportionate share with the others. It is equally false to say that there has been lack of organization and lethargy. In reality, Canadian help up to date, has been most prompt and efficient.

We have raised some 400,000 men under the voluntary plan, and sent some 300,000 overseas.

For many months we have spent a million dollars a day for war purposes. Thirty million dollars have been contributed to the Patriotic fund, and many millions more to the Red Cross, the work of the Y. M. C. A. at the front, and other purposes. In addition, there has been a constant stream of widely distributed gifts for soldiers' comforts and helps.

We have manufactured and sent forward $510,000,000 worth of ammunition to date.

The whole record has been one which has challenged the admiration of the outside world, and "lethargy" talk is an arrant mistruth.

All citizens (outside of Quebec) worthy of the name, now fully realize that very much more must be done, but that is not to say that there has been hesitancy and all round blundering in the past.

Mr. Pardee, and other Liberals, who have broken away from Laurier on the conscription bill, must realize in their heart of hearts that had Sir Wilfrid been Premier, not one tithe of the things which have been accomplished would have been done.

Every move would have been more or less thwarted by a dominant Quebec, and the mere fact that Laurier has now balked in the matter of sending more men without a referendum, is sufficient evidence of what his course would have been in other directions.

It is to the fact of Borden being at the head of affairs, that we owe the splendid record of what has been done. He has not hesitated to do still further, even although by so doing he knew he would lose his Quebec following, whereas Sir Wilfrid has called a halt in order to stand in with the French-Canadian vote.

The contrast and the import of it must be plain to all thinking men.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

It seems to have hurt Hon. Mr. Graham a whole lot to declare that he would vote for a Conservative measure. Perhaps George will get over the shock with care.

It will be noticed that Mr. W. F. Cookshut is still sticking to his text of food and fuel control at Ottawa.

Now that Laurier has risked all for Quebec, Bourassa comes along and says that he is to be condemned for backing even a referendum. The white plumed Knight has apparently got himself in wrong all round.

The Huron Synod has decided to admit women to vestries. If there is anything the fair sex want these days, they don't even have to half ask for it.

Premier Borden and his colleagues say that the conscription bill must go through, and they are right.

There is a good deal of talk in despatches from the front regarding Terrain, and right here at home it is also a case of about to rain.

FOR SEMI-CENTENNIAL Toronto women are celebrating the semi-centennial by raising $50,000, $1,000 for each year of Confederation, which they hope to commemorate by giving a permanent club house, unencumbered, for the use of the returned soldiers. A cheque for $2,500 was given Miss Church by the Regent of the I. O. O. F. to start the ball rolling. Other sums totalling $4000 were also subscribed, and Sgt. Turley is asked to call for a cheque of $200. Monday morning begins a house to house canvass for the Great War Veterans' evening.

SOCIAL EVENING An excellent social evening of fraternal intercourse was enjoyed by the members of the Woodmen of the World, Brantford Camp No. 12 last evening, when Consul Commander Dr. Harrison of Toronto, and a number of Hamilton brethren paid them a visit, and Doctor Harrison delivered an excellent address on fraternal insurance, and referred to the standing of the order, which is in a flourishing condition. Consul Commander Patterson, Clerk Bowman and several other members of the Hamilton camp spoke briefly on matters of interest pertaining to the order. Consul Commander A. B. Lewis of the local camp, gave interesting and entertaining addresses. Refreshments were served, and a euchre tournament held, concluding in the early hours of this morning.

BUTTONS PRESENTED A pleasing event took place at the Cainsville Church on Thursday night, when a presentation of Farn Service Corps buttons was made to 42 boys of the "teen age who are working on farms in that section and doing their best to increase production. Sheriff J. W. Westbrook acted as chairman and appropriate addresses were given by Mr. Sidenius, zone supervisor and Mr. Schuyler, district representative of the Department of Agriculture. Solos were rendered by Grace and Alberta Williams and by Mr. Theodore Hamilton. Miss Davidson acted as accompanist. The pins were presented to the boys by Warden A. B. Rose who addressed a few congratulatory words to the recipients. An orchestra from Echo Place furnished music during the evening and was heartily appreciated. The committee in charge of the arrangements was composed of Messrs. Warden Rose, Rev. Pyley, McMillan, Reeve McCann and Yule.

KITH AND KIN. The meeting of the East Ward Kith and Kin took place on June 21st. The meeting, which was well attended, opened with the Lord's prayer. The business of the association was then discussed. Mrs. Renlis was elected on the committee in place of Mrs. Springnall, who has resigned. It was also arranged to send flowers to two members who are there were several visitors to entertain the members. Mrs. Donaldson and Miss McDonald ably presided at the piano. A song "Fencing Tonight" by Miss Cochran and Master Stopp was loudly applauded. Master Stopp also recited, "It's only an Old Bit of Bunting." Mrs. Gustafson "Half Mast." Light refreshments were then served and the meeting closed with the National Anthem. The thanks of the Committee are extended to the visitors who so kindly entertained the members of the association.

AUTO DAMAGED Messrs Hollinrake and Boddy have written city clerk H. F. Leonard notifying him that on the 20th of June some overhanging branches of a tree on Eagle Avenue caused damage to the extent of $15 to an automobile, the property of their client, Mr. John Nelson. The collectors claim that the accident was due to the negligence on the part of the city and wish the city to reimburse the owner to the extent of the costs of repair.

BAZAAR A most successful bazaar was held yesterday afternoon St. Paul's Anglican church, Toronto, in aid of the Red Cross. The sum of $100 being realized between noon and ten o'clock in the evening. A beautiful measure of success attended the sale of such articles as home made candy and cooking, while in the evening a most pleasing program was admirably rendered. Miss Mabel Croker and Mr. A. S. Mitchell favored with vocal numbers, while the work of the Junior Girls Guild in singing and recitations was also of a very creditable nature. A number of pleasing Victrola selections were rendered by Mr. J. Pollock.

FLYING CORPS Capt. Beatty of the Royal Flying Corps was in the city again yesterday looking for eligible men for the cadet wing of the R.F.C., and met with encouraging success. This branch of the service is becoming ever increasingly popular throughout the Dominion, as only from 6 to 8 months are consumed before young Canadians can be commissioned in the Imperial Army. Wedding Bells

DAWSON—POSTILL. A pretty but quiet home wedding took place Wednesday, June 20th, at the residence of Mrs. Louise Postill, Paris, when her eldest daughter, Margaret Pearl, became the bride of Alfred Sidney Dawson, of Brantford. Rev. J. H. Wells, officiating. The bride who was given away by her mother, looked very girlish in her bridal robes of white silk and carried a white bouquet of roses. After the ceremony a tasty supper was partaken of after which Mr. and Mrs. Dawson left for Toronto on their honeymoon amid showers of rice and confetti. The bride traveled in a tailored suit of navy blue with white picture hat. On their return they will reside in Brantford.

WHEALEN—READHEAD. A very interesting wedding was solemnized on Wednesday morning, June 20th, at His Majesty's Chapel of the Mohawks, Brantford, when Miss Anna, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Readhead, Eastwood, was united in marriage to Rev. J. H. Whealen, B.A., Brantford. The bride, who was prettily attired in a pale blue silk suit, with small Panama hat, and who carried a white prayer book, was given away by her brother-in-law, Mr. J. John Ferris, Toronto. The ceremony, which took place under a large bell at the chapel, was performed by Rev. Frank Whealen, Alisa Craig, father of the groom, Miss Thelma Reeves, St. Catharines, attended the bride, while Rev. C. W. Foreman, B.A., London, supported the groom. The wedding music was rendered by a chorus of girls from the Mohawk Institution, at which place the bride had been a teacher for some time. Mrs. Wilma Smith, a pupil of the Institution, and organist of the Chapel, played the wedding marches. The bride and groom were escorted to the church, which was very beautifully decorated. Immediately after the ceremony, the happy couple left for a short tour of the western provinces, and upon their return will reside in Brantford.

Obituary

F. J. MARX. A well known resident of Brantford, Frederick John Marx, aged 45 years, passed away at an early hour this morning after an illness extending over the past eight weeks. The deceased is survived by a widow, his mother and two sisters, Mary at home and Mrs. MacLaughlan, of Paris. The late Mr. Marx was the proprietor of a confectionery store in Eagle Place and prior to his illness was employed at the Kerr and Goodwin factory. He was also a member of the Canadian Order of Chosen Friends. The funeral will take place on Monday afternoon from his late residence, 80 Eagle Ave., to Mt Hope cemetery.

QUEBEC QUESTION. Montreal, June 23.—Major The Rev. C. A. Williams, stated in the House of Commons by Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux to be the Chief recruiting officer of Quebec, explains that he is only officer in charge of English Canadians in military district number four. Major Williams says attempts were made to get a priest to look after the French here, but without success. Military laymen undertook this work.

NEWS OF NORFOLK

Case of Automobile "Borrowing" Heard in Police Court Yesterday

OTHER SIMCOE NEWS Canvassing Work for I. O. D. E. Going on Throughout Simcoe

Simcoe, June 23.—From Our Own Correspondent—When Chas. Cunningham, Evans Cross and Wallace Burch, three youths who attended the Wilsonville Church Party on June 14th, took a car belonging to Mr. Robert C. Leaning, of Townsend, for a little spin up the road, they little dreamed of the sequel, which took place in Magistrate Guntton's court here yesterday afternoon.

The owned of the car, had laid a charge of theft, placing the value of the car at more than $500, but with the consent of the Crown reduced this to "taking with intent to use without the permission or consent of the owner."

Following a statement of the case by Mr. H. P. Innes, K. C., for the boys and a few observations from the Crown the lads pleaded guilty, and were fined $5 each and costs, ($5.70).

Mr. Innes dwelt upon the respectability of the boys' families, the fact that there was no collision, two were at first sitting in the car, which was only one of scores along the roadside. They took a spin and returning, the third boy, Burch, got in with thumping from the second trip they were caught in the act of looking for the spot from which the car was taken.

The taking of autos, Mr. Innes remarked, was not common in Norfolk; he could only remember the case of His Worship's car, which was quite different. It was taken from the garage while the owner was at church and found next morning by the roadside at the town limits.

The Crown asked for such sentence as would not leave an impression that there was no grounds for laying information. His Worship observed in passing sentence that he disagreed with the suggestion that cars should be locked, when left standing on the street and expressed his conviction that as a warning the boys should be fined.

Under the circumstance the more serious charge of running an auto on a public highway without a license was not pressed by the Crown and the three boys from up north got out from under very much satisfied that a long drawn out case was not set in motion, and doubtless with sufficient wing clip for the future.

Not Ready to Report. The meeting called for last evening to hear reports of the canvass for I. O. D. E. funds was called to order at 8.30 by his honour Judge Bole.

It was evident from the outset that the various ward teams had not completed the canvass and the captains were not ready to report. It was the consensus of opinion of those present that even a progress report should not be given, and the meeting adjourned after a few of the force had given some of their experiences.

So far as could be learned, there will be a fairly liberal subscription, but the workers fear that sickness and removals will cause a gradual shrinkage in the monthly returns. Unless newcomers are found to take the place of those leaving. These of small means appear willing to do something. Some of the force had met with an occasional rebuff from men of good circumstances.

This latter experience caused Mr. Wm. Sutton to remark that a two-mill rate, or more should be put on the whole town next year, to cover these characters, and he would do his best to help elect a council for 1918 that would spruce the increase of course he wanted other qualifications for men about the municipality board. In the midst of the harangue, and it was an eloquent one, Mayor Williamson interjected the query, "We take it for granted that no reflection on the present Council is intended?" and the speaker answered, "None." But Mr. Sutton is out after the money slackers.

Tuesday night was set for the final meeting to receive the reports from the wards and hear the results of the entire canvass, and it is understood that the work will then be disposed of in town.

Arrangements may be made to have monthly instalments payable at the gas office, as the most convenient place in town.

Though it was originally intended to canvass men only, some women unable to contribute by working, have expressed a desire to pay to the fund. No such offering will be refused.

BOARD OF TRADE

A lengthy session of the Board of Trade was held last evening, the greater part of the evening being given over to the reception and discussion of a report from the committee on National Service, dealing with after the war problems, and commending the appointment of a commission to deal with the important questions of employment and the reception of discharged soldiers into civil life.

Mr. Frank Cockshutt, chairman of the committee, in submitting the report, advocated the employment of returned soldiers upon various public works to be undertaken throughout the country at the close of the war.

A list of names recommended for membership by Mr. D. S. Large, was approved. The secretary was instructed to write the chairman of the local railway commission with regard to the establishment of street railway connections for the Elgin street district of the city. Considerable discussion was given to the question of having a committee for the purpose of approving all endeavors to raise funds for various patriotic purposes, in an effort to avoid overlapping of efforts in this regard. The matter was left in the hands of the commercial committee for consideration.

Rippling Rhymes by W. M. Mason. I slay the Prussian in his pride, wind up his ball of yarn; then from his form I take the hide, and wait it to the barn. 'Tis not because I thirst for gore, my heart as hard as bricks, that I slay Prussians by the score; and pile them on the ricks. Ah, no! I'm weeping while I slay, I hate the battle thud; I'd gladly put the sword away, and drain my boots of blood. I pity even while I kill, and send men to the tomb—men representing Kaiser Bill; that's why they meet their doom. For while the Kaiser has a throne, and slice them up with skill.

DISPASSIONATE talks of Gott and Me, security will not be known on either land or sea. And peace will be but empty talk. A joke forevermore, till he is perched on some bleak rock, remote from every shore. There is no vengeance in my heart, for freedom still I fight; our ships must sail to every mart, unquestioned, and of right. The starry flag, wherever it flies, must ever honored be, in German as in other eyes, to all eternity. And so my nerves to battle strung, I slaughter with a will; I catch my Prussians while they're young, and slice them up with skill.

LITTLE WORRIES IN THE HOME These Bring the Wrinkles and Paled Faces That Make Women Look Prematurely Old. Almost every woman at the head of a home meets daily many little worries in her household affairs. The care of her little ones, the work about the house all contribute to these worries. Most of them may be too small to notice at an hour, afterwards, but they constitute a constant strain that affects the blood and the nerves and makes women look prematurely old. The effect of these little worries may be noticed in sick, or nervous headaches, sickle appetite, tiredness after slight exertion, and the coming of wrinkles which every woman dreads. To those thus afflicted Dr. Williams' Pink Pills offer a speedy cure; a restoration of color to the cheeks, brightness to the eye, a hearty appetite and a sense of freedom from weariness. Among the many thousands of Canadian women who have found new health and strength through these pills is Mrs. G. Strasser, Acton, West Ont., who says: "I am the mother of three children, and after each birth I became terribly run down. I had weak, thin blood, always felt tired and unable to do my household work. After the birth of my third child I seemed to be worse, and was very badly run down. I found the greatest benefit from the Pills and soon gained my old-time strength. Indeed after taking them I felt as well as in my girlhood and could take pleasure in my work. I also used Baby's Own Tablets for my little ones and have found them a splendid medicine for childhood ailments."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all dealers in medicine, or you can procure them by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

THREE MORE LIBERALS IN FAVOR OF THE CONSCRIPTION BILL

Hon. Mr. Graham Will Vote for the Measure Although He Attacked the Government From Every Angle - Mr. W. F. Cockshutt, Member for Brantford Made a Vigorous Speech - Again Brings up the Matter of Food and Fuel Control

Ottawa, June 23.—For the first time since the debate started upon Sir Robert Borden's Compulsory Service Bill the opposition to conscription was yesterday voiceless. Three Liberals and two Conservatives took part in the day's discussion, and all declared in favor of the bill. Of the Liberal speakers only W. A. Buchanan came out wholeheartedly in support of the Government proposal. E. W. Nesbitt pledged his support on the second reading, but he made his further support conditional upon amendments to the Act during the committee stage of the bill, and concurrent legislation dealing with the mobilization of industry and wealth. Hon. George P. Graham attempted to make no terms, but except for his final statement that he would vote for the bill, his whole address might have been delivered by a pronounced anti-conscriptionist. He attacked the Government from every angle, and tried to load upon Sir Robert Borden and his colleagues the whole responsibility for Quebec's failure to furnish her quota of men.

As the debate proceeds it becomes more and more evident that the Liberal conscriptionists are trying hard not to break too sharply with Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his Quebec supporters. Of the three who supported the bill yesterday, two, Hon. Mr. Graham and Mr. Nesbitt, accepted the lead of F. F. Pardee in appealing to the Government to give the voluntary system another trial, the Oxford member suggesting a two weeks' campaign for recruits with the Commons and Senate united in a big drive.

Bill Must Be Passed.

The Government was represented in the debate by Sir Thomas White, who in an eloquent and temperate address justified the course taken by the Government. The Finance Minister told the opponents of the bill, quietly but firmly, that it would have to be passed by Parliament, and voiced the hope that once it was passed, both sides would get together to counsel the country to patriotically accept the bill as one that was absolutely necessary for the defence of Canada and the Empire.

Sir Thomas dealt at some length with the demand, raised in some quarters, for mobilization of the wealth of the Dominion and in doing so he left little doubt in the minds of his hearers that the Government proposed to bring down further taxation measures. That the new taxation will get at the big incomes that have not contributed generously to war work was equally apparent from his emphatic declaration, that if he could find a way to make them pay he would do it. The Finance Minister suggested as one method an excise tax corresponding to contributions made to the Red Cross or Patriotic funds.

Mobilization of Wealth.

The Minister devoted a good deal of attention to Hon. Mr. Graham's remarks about the mobilization of wealth, and preceded his discussion of the subject by a warning that the use of the term confiscation of wealth was not advisable. He showed the House that the Government had not been slow in taxing wealth, and described the business profits war tax as one of the most severe in the world. From special war taxes, up to the end of the present fiscal year the Government would have raised over $200,000,000. Sir Thomas again intimated that the Government had no intention of the end of its programme of taxation.

"We will continue to take the steps necessary to find the money needed to finance this war," he said. "This Government may be depended on to bring in such measures of taxation as would be necessary to accomplish duty taxes or taxes on real estate or anything that may be necessary to win the war. But when I say that, I want to qualify it by this statement, that taxation should not be imposed for the purpose of punishing anybody."

Sir Thomas pointed out that regret had to be paid to the fact that many wealthy men had given unsparingly to Red Cross and other patriotic organizations. But there were many who were rich and "close" who, the people felt, should be made to contribute.

"And I will say to this House that if I can make them contribute I will do so," said the Minister, amid applause.

Mr. Cockshutt Makes Vigorous Speech.

W. F. Cockshutt, Conservative member for Brantford, gave the bill whole-hearted support. He prefaced his address by giving the member for North Oxford an interesting five minutes. Mr. Cockshutt reminded him of the big meeting addressed by N. W. Rowell in Woodstock recently, when the crowd, which included Mr. Nesbitt, gave an almost unanimous vote for conscription. Having taken the stand, the member for North Oxford owed it to himself and to the House to tell more plainly his attitude and give a more whole-hearted support to the measure in the interests of the men at the front and the interests of the Empire as a whole.

Mr. Cockshutt declared that conscription was the first real war measure proposed, and he would be ready to criticize energetically if there was any sign of the Government turning back or giving anything but whole-hearted support to the measure taken for food and fuel control. The Brantford member expressed impatience with the repeated complaints that the Government had not handled recruiting properly in Quebec. Speaking of the French-Canadian members, few of whom were in the House at the time, he reviewed for them the vigorous patriotic campaign carried on in every part of Ontario to raise recruits. In that campaign, carried on in every constituency, the members of the House had given personal leadership and direction or co-operation to the efforts of the citizens' committees. The same method had been open to the Quebec members, and if there had not been the same energetic campaign for men in Quebec the responsibility primarily rested upon the French-Canadian members of the House.

Mr. Cockshutt did not like the suggestion that Canadian troops were not paid enough. They were paid more than the troops of any other country.

He added that if the Government did not mean business and delayed the operation of the bill, it would not get his support for very long. He would also criticize if there were any backing in regard to the problems of food and fuel control. These were real war measures, introduced at the request of the people, and they must be carried out without fear or favor.

And the significant statement of Mr. Cockshutt, in replying to the demand for the conscription of wealth, which had come from some pulpits as well as from laymen, was that conscription of wealth, if it comes, would take church incomes as well as those of individuals.

CASUALTIES IN THE CITY

(Victoria B. C. Daily Colonist) - Lieut. George Edward Ambrey, son of Mr. J. W. Ambrey, Rockland Avenue, is reported to have been wounded and missing since the fighting of June 2, according to a cable message received yesterday by his father.

Popular with all ranks and recognized as an able officer, Lieut. Ambrey joined the 88th Victoria Fusiliers on that unit's formation in 1913. During the coal strike and riots at Nanaimo in the summer of 1913 he served as a member of the Voluntary Aid Force. Shortly after war broke out he joined for overseas service, and was eventually transferred to the 50th Battalion of Calgary, going to England in October, 1915. He had been at the front for the past ten months or more.

A native of Hamilton, Ont., Lieut. Ambrey came to this city with his parents fifteen years ago. He is 24 years of age. He received his education at Trinity College, Port Hope, and at University School, Mount Tremble, representing the latter institution on its first football team, as well as being an officer in the Cadet Corps.

Well Known Here. Both Mr. and Mrs. Ambrey are well known in Brantford, where they have many friends who will extend sincere sympathy. Mrs. Ambrey, (formerly Miss Gussie Mason) has often been a guest of relatives in the city both before and since her marriage. Lt. Ambrey was their only child and it is to be sincerely hoped that word may yet be received from him.

Killed in Action. The Courier last evening contained a wire that Pte Fred Webb, of this city, had been killed at the front. His mother, who resides at 9 Elizabeth St., has received further word that he met a heroic death on June 9th. She has the deep sympathy of many friends in her great bereavement. Four other brothers are also in uniform.

Wounded. Mrs. Maria Mallord, 41 Walnut St., to-day received a telegram announcing that her husband, Private Henry Mallord, infantry, has been admitted to second Australian general hospital, Wimereux, June 14th, suffering from gunshot wound in the arm, slight. He enlisted with the 125th, and went with the first draft to France. At the time of his enlistment, he worked at the Massey-Harris Company.

CANADIAN SOLDIER'S LETTER

Says Dr. Cassell's Tablets Have Kept Him Fit Through Two Years

Sapper A. Hartley, of the A Company, Canadian Engineers, whose home address is 906, Trafalgar Street, London, Ontario, is one of many who have written in praise of Dr. Cassell's Tablets. He says: "As a constant user of Dr. Cassell's Tablets, I would like to add my testimony to their value. I used them when I was in the South African War, and, finding the benefit of them there, have taken them since whenever I felt rundown. I always recommend them, for I know that they do all that is claimed for them. In my opinion they are the best tonic anyone can take for loss of appetite, poorness of the blood, or general weakness of the system."

A free sample of Dr. Cassell's Tablets will be sent to you on receipt of 5 cents for mailing and packing. Address: Harold F. Ritchie & Co., Ltd., 10 McCall St., Toronto. Dr. Cassell's Tablets are the surest home remedy for Dyspepsia, Kidney Trouble, Sleeplessness, Anaemia, Nervous Affections, Nerve Paralysis, Palpitation and Weakness in children. Specially valuable for nursing mothers and during the critical periods of life. Sold by druggists and storekeepers throughout Canada. Prices: One tube, 50 cents; six tubes for the price of five. Beware of imitations said to contain hypophosphites. The composition of Dr. Cassell's Tablets is known only to the proprietors, and no imitation can ever be the same. County Council Closes Session

What was considered as the most important session of the county council for the year, was terminated yesterday afternoon when that body adjourned after receiving the reports of various committees.

A re-arrangement of the offices in the Court House was considered and it was decided to increase the yearly rental of the offices now occupied by the Brantford Township Council and the Brant Mutual Insurance Company to $150 per annum. The latter will also be requested to move from their present quarters and occupy the office immediately at the main entrance, opposite to that of the county school inspector.

The report of the Finance Committee as submitted by Deputy Reeve Eddy showed that the treasurer's report credited the county with a balance of $3041.08 on May the 31st from which sum should be deducted $1813.06, the amount of the debentures and the interest under the Glenmorris Bridge Bylaw, leaving a correct balance of $1228.02. The cash in the treasurer's hands, amounting to $159.60, brought the total balance up to $1387.62. Since the last meeting, two accounts amounting to $3.94 had been paid and the committee recommended the payment of a number of others.

A grant of $25 to Judge Hardy for his services in connection with the juvenile court, and one of $200 to the Children's Shelter were advised. The committee recommended that the clerk be instructed to write to the Department of Highways of the Provincial government in regard to the appointment of a secretary for the county roads system, and that upon receipt of a reply that the question of extra clerical work involved be considered.

Special Committee. Deputy Reeve I. Stewart, chairman of the council committee of the whole that visited the Brantford General Hospital, the Brant Sanitarium and the House of Refuge, read his report containing the opinion of the councillors as to the condition of these institutions. The council wished to express their approval and appreciation of the thorough and splendid manner in which the requirements of the city and county were being met by the hospital. The matrons and nurses are performing their duties in a whole-hearted manner and deserve commendation for their efforts. The building and equipment are in a satisfactory condition and repair. The council had no recommendations to be made to the Board of Governors except that as soon as possible the capacity of the contagious hospital be increased sufficiently to equal any demand that might be made upon it.

The manager and matron of the House of Refuge were to be complimented on their painstaking efforts in administering that institution and the council advised that the findings contained in the report of the Grand Jury of the Assizes should be

12 Good Reasons and True

- 1 Power almost unlimited. The Gray-Dort will carry you anywhere. Hills—mud—sand—hold no terror for her. Etienne Planche who evolved the Puget, has built his masterpiece in the Gray-Dort. Here is an efficient economical motor of great speed and great power.
- 2 Perfect Cooling—obtained by exceptionally large jackets around every cylinder individually and around every valve cage. Friction of moving parts is reduced to a minimum, giving extra power all the time.
- 3 Absence of Vibration—the bane of most light cars. An extra heavy crank shaft with long and large bearings and perfect balance and adjustment of all working parts makes this the smoothest, evenest motor at less than double the Gray-Dort price.
- 4 Quick Get-Away—She responds to the throttle at once. The light motor moves quickly—fires surely—and you are in high in a moment.
- 5 Absence of Back Pressure—The Gray-Dort has a dual exhaust—rare on four-cylinder cars. As a result all gases are carried away at once. The result is a cooler, more efficient motor—and more power.
- 6 Fool-Proof Carburetor—This important and delicate part of the motor is wonderfully efficient in the Gray-Dort. Adjust it as you will, the motor still runs sweetly and powerfully.
- 7 Accessibility—You can reach the "vitals" of the Gray-Dort easily. This makes cleaning and adjustments easy. Repairs can be made quickly. Time and money are saved.
- 8 Easy Driving—Irreversible worm and nut type steering gear which takes the jolts out of driving and gives added safety. Easy gear-shift, sure brakes, handy control.
- 9 Comfort—Long springs, full cantilever in the rear; deep upholstery; lots of seat room lots of leg room; absolute absence of fatigue.
- 10 Complete—You buy the Gray-Dort complete: Westinghouse starting and lighting, one-man top, speedometer, ammeter, dashlight, demountable rims, non-skid tires in rear, electric horn, tools, everything.
- 11 Long Life—Strength and honesty of construction have characterized every product for which this great manufacturing organization has stood sponsor during sixty years of practical experience. The Gray-Dort is our latest and finest effort.
- 12 Price—Only $945 for a completely equipped 5 passenger touring car or 3 passenger roadster of outstanding quality—value far in excess of the price asked.

MENTION TO MOTORISTS

Mammoth Car Production Will Fall Short of Demand

The one certainty of the automobile situation to-day is that not enough cars will be built in 1917 to fill the demand of the public. This fact is not due to lack of production facilities on the part of the factories but rather to retarded deliveries, due to the railway situation.

The manufacturers were prepared for a banner year—an even bigger year than the record-breaking 1916—but before the intended pace was even started the congestion of "eight in the east and the deficiency of equipment on most railways, changed the plans of many.

The advance in price will keep but few purchasers aloof—everyone knows that with leaping costs of nearly everything it was inevitable and the difference is not great enough to drive trade away. Every maker had to either put more money on or take a great deal of quality out.

Buyers should not their orders in early. While everything is being done to get cars through from the plants, the sales volume so heavy that those late in making a selection will undoubtedly have to wait longer than they wish before delivery can be made. All sales records have been broken—and the season is scarcely opened.

Sheet metal workers in Vancouver are paying an assessment of 25 cents per day to help members of the craft in Portland, Wash., who are out on strike for a higher rate of wages, which the employers refuse to pay.

Until recently, British Columbia herring was little used except as bait for halibut fishing. During the past season, after experiments, 22,000 cases of herring were packed in various ways, such as kippers and in tomato sauce and oil.

In July, 1914, the capacities for steel making in Canada were approximately 1,200,000 tons. The industry, however, is expanding so rapidly that by the close of the present year it will amount to 2,100,000, or close to a 100 per cent. increase.

As a result of negotiations carried on between representatives of the four big railroad brotherhoods and C. P. R. officials in Montreal, some two thousand men employed on the eastern division extending from Ft. William to Halifax, covering the main and branch lines, will receive an increase in wages of from 18 to 25 per cent.

In Jamestown, N.Y., union painters, plumbers, sheet metal workers, electrical workers, plasterers, and lathers have received wage advances and improved working rules without striking. They were fully organized and in a position to take the goods.

Union metal polishers in Cincinnati, Ohio, succeeded in signing a new agreement with the Berninghaus Barber Chair Company, reducing the hours of labor from nine hours a day to eight, without any reduction in wages, enabling the members there to earn $21.60 per week of forty-eight hours.

Three hundred unorganized laborers in San Mateo, Cal., who were working from ten to twelve hours a day for a wage rate of $2.25, came over in a body into the steel workers' union in San Francisco, and made a demand for an eight-hour day and an increase in wages to $2.75 per day. They got away with it, too. There's a reason why.

Reference to the International Typographical Journal demonstrates the fact that the only kind of unionism that counts is the international kind. In Toronto alone the International Union pays out four hundred dollars per month in old age pensions to members who have reached the age limit, and the amount so paid out steadily increases. Every local organization of the craft in Canada has members on this list, including the local union in this city, the organization paying out every month thousands of dollars, to its age-limit members in Canada. That's the kind of an organization worth while.

Local No. 348, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, Calgary, Alta., reports going strong at present, and everybody pulling to build up the organization, and a keen competition is on to see who can secure the most new members. At the last regular meeting one member by the name of Dyon hand-ed in the applications of some 24 members, accompanied by the required initiation fee. Now the rest of the boys figure out they've got to do some tall hustling to beat that record, but they are going to try to see if it cannot be done, or else to see who gets in second.

The mechanical crafts on the Canadian Northern, eastern division, which extends all the way from Fort Arthur to Quebec, have secured an increase in wages similar to that recently secured by the mechanical crafts on the eastern division of the C. P. R., namely an advance of six cents an hour. This includes machinists, blacksmiths and helpers, boiler-makers and helpers, steamfitters and car workers. It may be said that these crafts are well organized all over the system, and pool their issues and bargain collectively. That's what counts up, as results amply demonstrate.

In Johnson City, Tenn., Organized Labor has forced up wages and shortened the workday. Wages in all organized plants have been advanced. The condition of the unorganized workers, however, can only be classed as industrial slavery, as their wages are pitifully small and the length of the work-day about two hours longer than in organized callings.

Frank Duffy, Secretary of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters, reports that two hundred and seventy death benefits, totalling $47,432.04, were paid during last month, and six sick and disabled benefits, amounting to $2,400. One thousand eight hundred and fifty local unions are affiliated with the international, which has a combined membership of 233,000. This is an increase of 3,000 members over last report. Strikes are on at Bay City, Michigan, New York City (furniture workers), and Zanesville, Ohio, for increase in wages. The strike at Niagara Falls for increase in wages has been won. Employment is excellent and improving all the time.

Business Agent W. J. Lucas, of Hamilton, who has done such splendid work for his organization in the Province of Ontario, is greatly gratified at the way things have been going in the craft during the present war. He says the iron molders' international union of North America was never in such shape in any former period of its history. Nearly every local union in the province has succeeded in securing substantial advances in wages and in a number of cases reductions in work hours also. Working conditions also have been greatly improved and in a number of places the agitation carried on for proper sanitation of foundries and work shops is securing needed improvements. The membership is steadily increasing and the outlook altogether favorable. At present relations between employers and the union are, as a rule, more satisfactory than they have been for years and all because the organization is strong enough, numerically and financially, to safeguard the interests of the membership. Just another illustration of the fact that there is power back of the union duck-look!

Union men in the West are more than delighted at the news of the election of Alex. Ross, a straight working-class candidate, who succeeded in capturing one of the Calgary seats in the Alberta provincial election. The successful candidate is an ex-President of the Alberta Federation of Labor. The plumes he is wearing are those of a laborer, and he is being able to capture such a supposedly sure seat from the reactionary interest, Ross was elected by a substantial majority, and it is conceded that if Labor had been politically organized throughout the province it would probably have captured several seats. It's a good start-off, and will encourage the Labor forces to put forth renewed effort in the future.

In the election of Mrs. Crummy McKenny for the riding of Clareholme, in the Alberta elections, the women of Canada have succeeded in sending the first woman member to a Canadian provincial legislature. Mrs. McKenny is a real progressive, and received the support of laborites in her district. Her election is, therefore, satisfactory to the Liberal interests. The women generally whenever they have had the opportunity to demonstrate it, have shown that they lean strongly for the progressive measures advocated by the trades union advocates. That is one reason why it is realized that with sufficient time to organize Labor would have been able to nominate a number of candidates throughout the province who would have put up a strong fight. The progressiveness of the women voters in the recent election is a bright feature of the provincial campaign just ended, and should serve notice on the old line politicians that things are due for a change.

Twelve months ago, according to the B. C. Federationist, there were only about 160 members of the International Association of Machinists in the whole province. Conditions were bad, hours long and wages ridiculously low. The work hours ranged from nine to eleven per day, and in many cases overtime allowances were unknown. Wages ranged from 25c to 45c per hour, a greater number getting the 35c rate than were getting the 45c. An organizing campaign was started the end of the year, and in less than six months, what has taken place? They have approximately 500 members, secured the 44-hour week, a minimum rate of wages of 56 1-4 cents per hour, double time for all overtime and holidays, and recognition of the union, in all shops in Victoria, and five in Vancouver, and also in Nelson and Prince Rupert. Further, the shop who haven't so far signed the agreement or reduced the hours, have an established the minimum rate of wages quoted above. The above conditions were secured through the efforts of the organization, and it is indeed pleasing to note that the non-union machinists realize it, and are showing their appreciation by flocking into the organization in large numbers. Very soon the machinist who doesn't carry a card won't be required or wanted on the coast. Next month a general conference of representatives of machinists lodges in Victoria, Vancouver, and New Westminster will likely meet to discuss matters pertaining to the organization and prepare plans for the future. A special meeting of local No. 777 will be held to give the men working nights an opportunity of attending on Saturday afternoon, and giving some of the non-union men an opportunity of making application for membership, and becoming members.

STRIKE OVER By Courier Special Wire. Vancouver, B.C., June 23.—After eight days' strike by employees of the British Columbia electric street railway, cars are again running in Vancouver, Victoria and other lines of this district. The men demanded a war bonus of $300 a year in wages which the company granted yesterday. The company had intimated before the strike that the presence of fitnes as competitors, had made it impossible to grant an increase, but the latter was given yesterday on the understanding that the transport situation will be inquired into by an expert.

CONFESSES ROBBERY By Courier Special Wire. Chicago, June 23.—James Burgess, platform manager of the Adams Express Company, has admitted to the police that he committed the $25,000 robbery of an express car in the Burlington yards here Tuesday night. He named Peter Pelouquin, a switchman, and his brother, Joe Pelouquin, as accomplices. The Pelouquins have been arrested. The crime was traced to Burgess through the dial that was used in the premises now used by the money safe in the car.

QUEBEC POPULAR? By Courier Special Wire. Winnipeg, June 23.—Addressing the Winnipeg Trades and Labor Council last night, Controller Alney of Montreal, declared that Quebec was the most popular province in the Dominion on account of its anti-conscription sentiment.

AS SHERMAN SAID The residents around Klondike Park are trying to collect $45,000 from William Fox, since the latter staged a war scene in that neighborhood. They say that the battle was so noisy and so exciting, that after he the herves of the residents were simply stranded, and that their cows gave less milk! One more argument for the pacifists.

FINE NEW OFFICES OCCUPIED BY MR. HENDRY OF THE SUN LIFE

He Has Had a Remarkably Successful Career for Twenty One Years as an Insurance Broker—Over $5,000,000 of Life Insurance Written During That Period—Many Other Companies Also Represented

The newly fitted and commodious offices, 118 Dalhousie street, into which Mr. Thos. Hendry, District Manager of the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada, is now moving, give some indication of the manner in which Mr. Hendry's business is growing. These new offices are nearly the twenty-first milestone on his road of service to the insurance buying public of this city.

Some fifteen years ago a friend insisted on Hendry going into Fire Insurance as well as Life, with the result that after a beginning was made with one company, today twenty of the leading fire insurance companies made up his mind that Brantford of Canada, England and the United States are represented by the Hendry interest.

MR. THOS. HENDRY. States are represented by the Hendry interest. The growth in Mr. Hendry's business in the last 21 years, has obtained notice in the insurance world. The Hendry office is perhaps the only one in Western Ontario where life and fire insurance is combined to such a degree. The business has been built up in the face of the keenest competition, in the matter of fire insurance. This is so, to a certain extent because Hendry has made, and continues to make good with the outside broker. The outside broker is a friend of the Hendry office, because the Hendry office gives the service which the others have not got and cannot offer.

the Sun Life Company, and is considered by the whole insurance fraternity, one of the most practical, and one of the most successful men in the insurance business in Canada. All this has meant hard work, and a keen interest in his business at all times. The result shows that the service he has rendered the insurance dealing public is appreciated, and as nothing succeeds like success an even greater business in the near future is anticipated.

It has been the boast of Tom Hendry that his clients can always be certain of the most prompt, efficient and up-to-date service that can be given in Western Ontario, and the boast will still hold good at his new offices at 118 Dalhousie street.

NEWS OF ST. GEORGE

(From our own correspondent) Pte. J. Snodgrass, who left here with the 36th Battalion, returned on Monday evening from overseas, invalided home. The citizens decided to give him a proper reception and accordingly flags were displayed and a public demonstration arranged for. He was met at the station by the band and a long auto parade escorted him up town. Owing to the stormy weather, the meeting was held in the Baptist church, where speech-making was indulged in by Pte. Snodgrass, Henry Whyte, also a returned soldier, Dr. Reid, H. R. Nixon, and the resident ministers, Alderman Jas. Malcolm officiated as Chairman.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Brandon have returned to their home in Montreal, after holidaying at Mr. Brandon's home, the Methodist parsonage. Mrs. Lemery and Miss Helen Howie of Brantford, were the Sunday guests of Mrs. Herbert. Mr. M. Horning, who was operated on in Brantford hospital on Sunday is reported to be doing nicely now. Miss Blanche Little, of Brantford, spent the week end with her parents here.

Mr. Soderstrom of St. Thomas, spent the week-end as the guest of Miss Mildred Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. Rilett were the week end guests of friends in Toronto. Mr. E. Horning of Toronto, was the guest of his mother, a few days of this week.

Mrs. Stuart McKenzie of Lynden, is the guest of her sister, Mrs. Cryslar. Mrs. Judson Rosebush and daughter, Grace, were the week-end guests of relatives in Toronto.

THE MARKETS AT A GLANCE

With a sagging tendency in the wheat market during the week flour was in a weaker position. Demand for this commodity is light in the face of the fluctuating market. Some Ontario mills are shipping flour into the United States and this is keeping them fairly busy. Demand for millfeeds is lighter on account of the excellent grass pasture for stock at present. Sugar declined 15c per hundred. Local demand is still very light. Reports of the sinking of 40,000 tons of sugar in ten days by submarines, has put a measure of firmness in the market by reason of the fact that supplies have been decreased by that much. The rainy season has now set in on the Island of Cuba and production of raw sugar will diminish from this time forward.

Butter and eggs were in easier market, in the latter commodity considerable declines being recorded, due to the unexpected increase in production. Cheese held steady at recent prices, but there was a disposition on the part of dealers to pay slightly more to the factories for their output. Demand for poultry is light and prices on live hens and spring chickens have been easier in consequence. Condensed and evaporated milk have again been increased in price. Certain brands of baking powder have been moved upward and cut tobacco of various kinds quite generally are selling at higher quotations.

Business during the week has been slow, wholesalers attributing the slackness to the fact that retailers are carrying sufficient stocks to meet their needs for a time. Wholesalers are not anxious over the situation as they have been doing an excellent business ever since the beginning of the year until within the past three or four weeks. The situation has induced lower prices in rice, quotations being down in certain quarters. —Canadian Grocer.

THE APOLLO.
King mirth, attended by his commander in "Chief General Hilarity," reigns at the Apollo theatre for the present week-end, where two of the monarch's most illustrious servants render homage, in the persons of Charles Spencer Chaplin, Esq., and Roscoe Avoldrupois Arbuckle, cavorting in a brace of comedy classics from the Keystone studios. Gene Gauntier is featured in a powerful three reel drama, "A Daughter of Old Ireland," a story touching, thrilling, appealing. "Gold in the Rockies," another gripping drama in two parts, telling a stirring story of western life, completes a strong program.

"THE MARCELLINI MILLIONS"
George Beban, the famous character actor, will be seen at the Brant on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, in another one of his celebrated Italian characterizations, "The Marcellini Millions," produced by Morosco-Paramount from the story by Edith Kennedy, prepared for the screen by Mr. Beban and Miss Kennedy and produced under the direction of Donald Crisp.

As the Italian ice man in "His Sweetheart," George Beban endeared himself to the hearts of the public, and as old Duval, the French piano teacher in "The Bond Between," he displayed his wonderful versatility. In "The Marcellini Millions" he is seen in what he considers one of the best photodramas in which he has ever appeared.

The story is that of an Italian truck gardener who suddenly finds himself possessor of millions and that he live up to them. Many strange and wonderful things happen to them as the owners of Marcellini Hall. Finally he can stand it no longer, and when his wife sues for divorce, Guido returns to his little farm.

not the rightful possessor of the Marcellini estates, she is only too glad to go back to her old life where they were so perfectly happy and contented.

One of the most beautiful and elaborate sets ever made for a photodramatic production is the living room, dining room, hall and upstairs room of the Marcellini home. The entire stage was occupied for two weeks by this set and it was constructed like a complete home with the rooms upstairs as elaborately furnished as those below.

George Beban, by his wonderful Italian characterizations, is endearing himself to the hearts of the Italian colony in the vicinity of the Morocco studio, and every day is beset by an excited mob of Italians who offer him everything from their habits to their homes, dogs, horses, wagons, and even themselves for use in his pictures.

Mr. Beban is supported by a splendid cast including Helen Eddy, Pietro Sasso, Henry Woodward, Eugene Palette, Adele Farrington and others.

"A RECKLESS ROMEO"
It's a hard life for "Fatty" Arbuckle's valet. Perhaps you did not know he had one. Which shows conclusively how little the average film appreciates the complexities of a comedian's existence.

Ordinarily, the handsome hero of the parlor drama is supposed to monopolize all of the masculine sartorial successes of the stage and screen. His costumes are the latest thing from Paris or London. His haberdashery is above reproach and three or four tailors are continually busy keeping his wardrobe in order. But now Mr. Arbuckle is to be heard from on the subject of clothes. Audiences who have become familiar with the work of the genial comedian consider his costuming a minor consideration and pass his wardrobe by with the mental comment that it seems to have been built for comfort and not with an eye to fashionable cut. This is not borne out by fact, however.

The valet of the genial Mr. Arbuckle is sponsor for the statement that the jovial fun maker has the most complete and up-to-date "rube" wardrobe of any actor now in the public eye, and that he is unqualifiedly the Beau Brummel of slap-stick comedy. According to the same authority, Mr. Arbuckle in his provincial make-up has a keen eye for color. He would no more consider wearing a pale pink shirt with a pair of lavender socks than he would think of acting like a matinee idol in the role of the clerk of a country store.

Owing to the generosity of the Arbuckle dimensions and the vicissitudes of his screen career in which he is of necessity hard on his clothes it requires the greatest attention to detail to keep his wardrobe in working order. During the filming of "The Reckless Romeo" the comedy duo reeler scheduled to follow "The Butcher Boy" on May 21st, the valet was compelled to work far into the night repairing the damage done to the Arbuckle habiliments while "Fatty" was posing before the cameras in Palisades Park. Paramount will release this feature to all exhibitors.

Statistics prove that "Fatty" has eight trunks of new costumes in the roomy closet which adjoins his dressing room at the studios of the Comique Corporation, 318 E. 48th St. And he dares any prima donna or grand opera star to prove that she can better those figures. Part of this array will be revealed in "The Reckless Romeo" and the remainder will be seen in future productions to be made under the Arbuckle standard.

Roscoe will appear in "A Reckless Romeo" at the Brant the first of next week.

"THE FALL OF BAPAUME"
Censorship in England has been relaxed at last in so far as the fan-

ous tanks which have been operating with such success on the western front are concerned. In the new official motion pictures showing the British army operations leading up to the fall of Bapaume and the capture of Peronne, the loss of which two strategic points forced the German retreat of last March, the redoubtable tanks are shown in all their grotesque horror, and shown in the thick of the fighting. The last pictures issued by the British Government showed the tanks, but not in such thrilling situations as these. The censor has seen fit in his own good judgment to allow the world at last to see the tanks in actual battle, see them up close and plain, see them in No Man's Land, galloping over trenches and shell holes, see them really, see them as if we were really there.

Despatches have described the irresistible drollery of the tanks, their terror-inspiring qualities, their invincibility, their power of sailing over the land like ships and crawling up and down impossible places like gigantic and gargantuan sloths. Like antediluvian monsters of some reptilian species we have read how they crawled and crashed thru the barbed wire entanglements and frightened the terrified Germans in the trenches beyond into surrender. Mud-beetles, land ships, traveling forts, tanks—the censor let all the descriptive phrases pass, but he would not allow the world to see the tanks themselves. Only after one was known to have been captured by the Germans and the secret of their construction became thus common property, did he relent. The first pictures were not like these, however. The censor did not want to go too far all at once.

Tanks at Work.

In the "Fall of Bapaume" pictures which will be shown at the Rex the last of next week, we see the tanks really at work, and the photography is so good that one feels as if the tanks were at least creatures of reality and not the dream of some over-impressionable war correspondents. Where hitherto we have been limited to the view of tanks crawling over smooth, flat ground, the alluring written descriptions of the extraordinary feats of which they were said to be capable faded away.

Now, however, as the British press has pointed out, we have the tanks as the soldiers saw them, as the cartoonists and the black and white artists saw them, and as the correspondents saw them and tried so hard to describe them. We see a tank crawl up from a gap in the landscape up goes its nose, and it looks as though it ought to rear up and collapse, according to all known laws, but it doesn't. It just simply tilts to a steep slant, crawls to a level, goes down into a hole, crawls over the bottom and up the other side like a slug. There is no jerk or pause because of any irregularities on the path. It goes up and down like an insect does when it crawls in the grass or in the mud. And it goes over to No Man's Land through the machine gun bullets with a monstrous unconcern, spitting a more deadly venom of its own.

The film is a complete official story of a great battle—shelling, smoke screens, bombing, stokes gunfire, and all the varieties of fighting now in use—demonstrates the amazing energy called forth by modern "drum fire" on the part of the gunners. They shell for dear life, knowing that a gap in their barrage means death to soldiers of Britain. And the attack which drove the Germans out of their entrenched positions, the charge—"over" the top and "at them"—was photographed, too.

WHIDAH WANTED
Eddie Barry thought he had just about every kind of animal that could be needed in a motion picture, for among his zoological treasures are a goat, any number of dogs, several horses, rabbits and a parrot. He even had an elephant staked in the backyard, until the neighbors raised a fuss. Recently, though, one of the property men, as a joke, phoned down to him for a whidah-bird, and Eddie has been all broken up since because he wasn't able to furnish it.

SCREEN OVER STAGE
Emily Stevens, Metro star, says she believes an emotional actress has her greatest opportunities on the screen.

"Real dramatic art," said Miss

Stevens, "lies in the ability to transfer an emotion to the beholder merely by the facial expression. That was the art of the primitive man and woman, and it is the simplest, strongest and most difficult art of to-day. An actor or actress may give any sort of impression by speaking. That is an easy matter. But let the same actor or actress try to give the same impression by a gesture or facial expression, and then his or her ability is put to the crucial test. That is why the emotional actress has her greatest opportunities on the screen."

Emerald Lake and Vicinity

EMERALD Lake is a forest of Heaven, in the vicinity of Field. It is a bit of Paradise let down into the lap of Mt. Burgess and hedged around with tall, slender jack pines, separated from the green waters by a red-brown path running all around, and now and then a mountain flower. Surely here the most troubled soul might rest in peace. Here snuggled at the foot of the mountains and overlooking the beautiful lake the C. P. R. has planted one of its most popular chalets. The drive from Field Station to this real "emerald" is about nine miles through miles of pines. But a tourist's itinerary is an imperative thing and brooks no unpremeditated tarrying. There was the summit to be crossed and the Yoho Valley beyond with Takakkaw Falls, and trails permitting, the Waputek Ice fields. Field is a railway divisional point. It will go down in history as such, for every person who mentions it makes this statement. But Field has greater things to its credit. It is the getting-off and the starting-off point for the Yoho Valley and the Waputek Ice Fields. Mt. Stephen, ten thousand four hundred odd feet, stands guard behind the town; Kicking Horse River runs past its front door, and Mt. Burgess beyond. The expenditure made by the Government in building roads through the Rocky Mountains is enormous. One has to see them, to travel over them, to realize what a gigantic task this road construction is. One may ask: "Why build roads in the mountains at all?" These bits of mountain scenery made accessible by means of roads and trails are the means of bringing thousands and thousands of tourists, both native and foreign, to the Rockies every year, and in the same ratio as the tourist traffic increases, the mountains become more valuable as a national asset. It is to encourage this traffic that the Government builds and extends the mountain roads and trails each year. Many a tourist lingers, loath to leave till he has covered every carriage road, trail and footpath, none of which are there by accident, much as one would like to think that a few at least were relics of the savage men of yesterday. The Government or the railways have had a hand in making them all, and without their efforts, even the most ambitious traveller would be deprived of much pleasure now to be enjoyed on a trip through the Canadian Rockies.

THE MAELSTROM

By Frank Froest

Late Superintendent of the Criminal Investigation Department of New Scotland Yard. (Copyright)

(From Friday's Daily. Synopsis of Preceding Chapters. Jimmie Hallett, a young American is wandering in a London fog, when a girl running by suddenly thrusts a bundle of papers into his hand and, bidding him run, dashes off; a moment later a man rushes by in pursuit. The bundle proves to contain a number of cancelled checks, drawn by one J. E. Greve-Stratton. Hallett goes to the address given, where he is received by a man who says he is a doctor, but who, as soon as Jimmie enters, knows him senseless. When Hallett recovers, he finds himself alone with the body of a murdered man. Though weak, he gets to the phone and calls up 'Weir Menzies,' chief detective-inspector, of Scotland Yard, to whom he has an unprinted letter of introduction. Menzies finds that the dead man is Greve-Stratton himself, and that the bundle of checks has been stolen from Jimmie. He learns also that Greve-Stratton has a daughter who has lived always abroad, and a stepson, Dick Errol, a man of shady reputation, on whom suspicion falls. The next day, while at his office, the daughter, Peggy Greve-Stratton, calls on Menzies, but can or will give little information. Hallett, called in, recognizes her at once as the girl who gave him the package, but for a reason not clear to him, pretends she is a stranger to him. The trail now crosses that of a gang of notorious international crooks, led by a man named Ling and a clever woman criminal, Greemie Lynne. Menzies discovers a wedding certificate proving the marriage of Peggy Greve-Stratton to Stewart Reader Ling, Jimmie's faith in her is not shaken. She takes him to a lodging in the slums where her brother lies badly wounded, and explains that the marriage is one of form only, and part of a blackmail scheme. While they are talking the door suddenly opens and Ling appears.

CHAPTER XIX. Errol Plays a Part.

Hallett's hat had clinked and he was poised for a rush when restraining fingers on his sleeve recalled to him that he had not only himself to consider. There might be a satisfaction in thrashing Ling, but Errol might be too dearly paid for. For he might not be alone. He was leaning against the doorpost, with one hand in his jacket pocket. There was a cigar between his teeth and his lower jaw jutted out. His green eyes, alert and menacing, took in the little by-play that restrained Jimmie. He had evidently expected and been prepared for violence. Jimmie dropped his hands with a boyish laugh. "My name's Hallett," he said. "We have met before—Mr. Ling, isn't it?" This is rather unexpected, I thought some friends of yours had arranged an invitation for you?" Ling grinned. "They sure did, sonny boy. They held four aces, but scooped the pot with a straight flush. I wondered what your little game was. Now I know." He contrived to inflect a meaning into his words that made the blood surge in Jimmie's veins. "I thought you'd be the kind of fool that'd come right on here," he went on. "You see, Peggy was hardly likely to desert her darling brother, and you wouldn't leave her, eh? How's that for Sherlock Holmes? It won't do, though—it won't do. I'll have to be seeing a lawyer about this. Lucky I'm an indulgent husband, eh?"

"Peggy?" His voice changed. "You stand right where you are, Hallett. It won't be healthy for you if you take another step like that. I hate violence—especially before ladies." The other man remained stock still. He knew what the hand in Ling's pocket was gripping. His mind was actively seeking for a solution of the immediate problem. Ling held the doorway, and he recognized perfectly well that this man, whose friends had twice before made attempts to secure his silence was unlikely to let him go again. If he had not given the gun to Peggy he could have felt on more level terms.

"Sherlock Holmes would have carried it a bit further," he said. "Has it flashed across that limited intellect of yours that I'd take care not to put my head into the lion's jaws if I'd not taken precautions to keep them propped open? If this piece isn't surrounded now it will be in five minutes. Those friends you missed won't be put off a second time." Ling started. Then his features relaxed and he laughed. "Good bluff," he said. "You nearly had me started that time. But it's no go. You've sent out no message since you came in, and if you'd given it before the splits would have been here by now." He spat on the boarded floor. "Say, Mr. Hallett," he went on with the air of a man lying down a tentative business proposal. "I've got you now cold. Suppose we come to terms. I'm willing to overlook the compromising circumstances of your little jaunt with my wife to-night—"

"That's enough!" ordered Hallett coldly. "If you insult this lady again, gun or no gun, I'll smash your fongue down your throat!" "Tut, tut!" The green eyes gleamed amusedly on the young man. "I must be careful. I didn't mean to get your coat. We'll call off, then. What I'm aiming at is this: There's no sense in making things more uncomfortable than we've got to. If you put me to it, I've got to see that you keep out of mischief. Give me your word that you'll take the first boat back to New York and never say anything about what you may know, and I'll take it. That's fair, and it isn't every one who would do it."

"You want to get me out of the way?" "That's so. Stay out of England for a year and keep your mouth shut." Jimmie stroked his upper lip. "That's very obliging of you, Ling. I feel flattered at your supposition that I should keep my word. I seem to be an embarrassment—though I don't know why." "You bet you're right! You are an embarrassment." "Why?" repeated Jimmie artlessly.

He had one hand behind his back and was signaling to Peggy. He hoped fervently that she would understand what it meant and pass the pistol. Once he regained that, he could choose the conversation when he liked. "You see," he retorted Ling, "you don't need telling. I'm making you a fair offer. Will you take it or leave it?" Hallett's concealed hand waved frantically. Would she never understand?

"My dear young friend," he said airily, "can't you see I'm trying to make up my mind? I haven't the faculty of quick decision. My wits move so slowly. If you'd only tell me why. You'll forgive me, but I don't quite see where you come in. I could understand why some people should want to get away, but not why I should dislike your appearance and your ways, there's nothing I could do would hurt you. Why can't you live and let live?" Ling eyed him doubtfully. "This is

WHICH SEX IS MOST EXTRAVAGANT

Of all the absurd fallacies current about my sex the one I resent the most is that women are more extravagant than men. For every woman who spends more than her husband's income on her wardrobe, I'll wager there are five men who overpaid.

In the reader's column of a certain newspaper, one of the most familiar plights is that of the woman whose husband gives her some disproportionately tiny sum out of his income. For instance, twenty dollars out of twenty-five to run the house and dress herself and the baby, and keeps all the rest for himself.

Every Now And Then They Upset The Balance

Besides these unbelievably mean husbands, there are others who are in the main reasonable, but whose apportionment of the money but who have occasional spasms of extravagance when they completely upset the family equilibrium. And then there is the wife who has been anxiously keeping everything balanced, so much for clothes, so much for rent, so much for food and so much for savings, and all of a sudden she is contrived for a month or two to get things straight again. Perhaps the savings account is sacrificed. Or perhaps she decides she doesn't need a new spring suit after all.

He Comes Home Minus A Ten

"funny business, isn't it? I'm not going to stay here all night. I've sent for some people who won't be disposed to argue with you. You'd better hurry and make up your mind." It was evident that the girl would never understand the meaning of that signaling hand. Jimmie shrugged his shoulders and remained in an attitude of thoughtful silence. A nervous voice came from the outer room. "Peggy! Gone away again." The voice was like that of a plaintive child, except that an unchildlike oath slipped out. "And she said she was leaving me here like this—alone with the old man!" "I tell you I didn't—"

"I couldn't—"

"Peggy! Come and take him off those long fingers—long, lean, scraggy fingers. He'll strangle me. Blast it! Why don't you come and take him out of my sight. The high-pitched voice rang out in shrill alarm. Ling had taken a pace back into the other room, but was too cautious to take his eyes off Hallett.

"It's Errol," he laughed. "Give me a start for a minute. Make you feel as if some one's walking over your grave." "He's delirious," cried Peggy. "Must go and see him. He's raised her voice. 'All right, I'm coming,' said Ling. "He won't hurt for five minutes. I don't allow any one to be behind me. He's quick to get into his mind—not even you, Peggy."

The voice inside moaned and then burst into a series of insane chinks. "He's going now, but he won't be gone long. It's no good your hiding. I can see you. I'll get you this time."

Through the open door Jimmie could not see him. He had pulled the bed, and the lamp and lamp in hand, was advancing stealthily toward Ling, crouching as he moved and still chuckling.

Jimmie's hand fell calmly on the back of the chair in which he had been sitting. Things were coming his way. The changing shadows caused by the lamp-light told Ling, too, something of what was happening. His head shifted to look over his shoulder for the fraction of a second—just long enough for Jimmie to lift the chair and bring it down with crashing force. Ling crumpled limply and went down.

Before either of them could anticipate his purpose, he had swung the lamp downward on to the stunned man. There was a smashing of glass and a bolt of flame sprang forward. Peggy Greve-Stratton sprang forward with a horrified cry, but already Jimmie had his coat off and spread over the flames, which had begun to lick at Ling's legs. Luckily, the reservoir of the lamp was of metal, and little of the oil had escaped. In a few minutes he had got the flames under.

He stood up, breathing hard. The girl was coaxing her brother back to bed, and he was still weakly shouting in his delirium. Hallett went to her aid, but he found his help unnecessary. Errol was as weak as a kitten. He lay on his mattress, panting. "You had better go, Mr. Hallett. He said he had sent for help. Go—go quick!" "I don't know about that. It's impossible to leave you here alone now."

Errol, exhausted, had fallen asleep once more. She came over to Jimmie. "It's no worse for me now than it was before. Besides, what can you do? You will be sacrificing yourself for no reason at all." She literally pushed him toward the door. "Please, please," she entreated. "A little thrill of delight passed through him as he recognized that all her alarm was for him. There was reason in her persuasion, too. Any danger that she was in was not likely to be either increased by what had happened or diminished by his further presence. He would only be exposing himself to needless risk of being cut off by Ling's friends. "I suppose I'd better," he said reluctantly, "but first I'll have a look at Ling. I didn't hit him as hard as I might, but it would be as well to make sure." She permitted him to return to ex-

Good Night Stories

By Claude Seward

THE THREE SISTERS.

Once upon a time there lived an old woman who had three daughters. May and Bell were very beautiful and worked out by the day, while Ray, who was ugly, stayed at home to help her mother. May and Bell thought of nothing but fun and pretty clothes, while Ray was always thinking of some way to save her mother work.

One day the queen advertised for maids. May and Bell decided to apply, so they hurried around to pack their things. Ray helped them and chatted all the time. "I wish I could try my luck. I should love to wait on our beautiful queen," said Ray to her mother. Her sisters overheard her and laughed. "No queen would want an ugly girl like you to wait on her," laughed May.

Ray blinked to keep back the tears, but she had a good cry after the girls had gone. Living at court, May and Bell felt that they must dress nicely, so they spent all they made and sent very little back to their mother and Ray. Finally one day when the cupboard was almost empty and the money nearly gone, Ray begged her mother to let her take the lace they had been making to the market place to sell.

"I'm sure I can sell it all," said Ray as she kissed her mother good-bye. That afternoon the queen and Prince Alwin were passing through the market place and, seeing Ray, they stopped to look at her lace.

"What wonderful lace. Who makes it?" asked the queen, and Ray told her that her mother and she had made it. The queen bought all the lace Ray had and made her promise to come to the castle the next day to teach her how to make it. Ray went home and told her mother what had happened, and early next morning she stood before the queen.

Her sisters saw her, but turned up their noses and wouldn't recognize her. They didn't know what she came for, but when they found out the place Ray held in the castle they grew very angry and tried to frighten Ray from coming there.

The queen soon picked up all the stitches and Ray and she had jolly times together, for she had grown quite fond of Ray. Prince Alwin always stayed with his mother while Ray was there, and the queen soon guessed why for she saw Prince Alwin kiss the little maid as they went through the hall and when the prince returned and told his mother of his great love for Ray, the queen was very happy and sent for Ray and her mother.

After Ray and Prince Alwin were married the queen built them a lovely castle, near her own, and Ray's mother lived with them. May and Bell worked for the queen until she died, then they left the kingdom, for they couldn't bear to see Ray's good fortune. Their beauty soon faded.

Ray was not pretty, but she was so good and thoughtful of the comfort of others that she made a well-loved queen, and her husband, who was made king, was quite proud of her when she took his mother's place. And they both lived to a good old age loved by all their subjects.

Orange Ice One pint of orange juice, one pint of sugar, rind of 2 of the oranges, 1 quart of water, juice of 2 lemons. Put the sugar and the water on to boil, add the grated rind of 2 of the oranges, boil five minutes and set the liquid away to cool. When cold add the orange and lemon juice, mix well, strain through a cloth, turn the mixture into the freezer and freeze. Raspberry, strawberry and other ices are made in the same way.

Brown Bread Ice Cream One and one-half pints milk, scalded, 1-2 cup sugar, pinch of salt. When cool, add one pint of cream and 1-2 cup of dried and sifted bread crumbs (brown). Freeze.

Fruit Bombe Glace Make a quart of rich ice cream and flavor with vanilla or lemon. When frozen hard line the bottom and sides of freezer with the cream. Reserve 3-4 of it for a cover. Fill the centre with a mixture of candied fruit, all cut fine. Use cherries, apricots, plums and pineapple. Pack the fruit in closely, cover with the reserved cream and let the freezer remain in ice and salt half an hour. Dig quickly into warm water and turn out carefully.

Lemon Sherbet Juice of 3 lemons mixed with two cups of sugar, and add 1 quart of rich milk and freeze.

Recipe for Lemon Ice One quart water, 3-4 cup lemon juice, 2 cups sugar, grated rind of one lemon. Cook sugar and water together 10 minutes. Add lemon juice and rind. Strain, cool and freeze. The rind may be omitted. For orange ice use two cups orange juice, 1-4 cup lemon juice and the grated rind of 2 oranges. Prepare the syrup and proceed as directed for orange ice. For raspberry or strawberry ice, substitute 2 cups of the strained fruit juice for the lemon and orange juice, and omit 1-4 cup sugar from the syrup. Freeze according to directions.

Our Daily: Pattern Service

MISSES' AND SMALL WOMEN'S DRESS. By Anabel Worthington.

What girl can resist the appeal of this fetching little frock, with its simple but effective braiding? No. 8,299 is the latest word in fashions for the young miss, as the long waisted effect is considered quite the best thing that the season has brought forth. The loosely fitting waist in this case extends several inches below the regulation waist line and is given a trim appearance by the shallow plaits which hold the soft girldie in place. A one piece gathered or pleated skirt with straight lower edge is attached to the waist. A most attractive feature is the inset vest in shape, with a square collar attached. The sleeves are sewed to a side body which in turn is stitched to the large armhole. The style of sleeves to be used is left to the individual, long ones with gaitlet cuffs and short plain ones being included in the pattern.

The dress pattern No. 8,299 is cut in three sizes, 16, 18 and 20 years. As on the figure the 16 year size requires 4 1/2 yards 36 inch dark material, with 1 1/2 yards 36 inch light material. The back view requires 1 1/2 yards 36 inch material with 3/4 yards of 31 inch flouncing. To obtain this pattern send 10 cents to the office of this publication.

IT WAS SO SUDDEN. Helen Holmes' co-players in "A Lass of the Lumberlands," have "one on Helen"—something which doesn't happen often.

INFANT WELFARE.

Convulsions.

THESE ARE COMMONLY CAUSED BY indigestion or indeed any acute illness. Rarely are they due to brain disease.

Colds and Contagious Diseases.

Acute colds are very contagious. Children with colds or sore throat should be kept away from other children.

Skin Eruptions, Rashes.

If the baby has any skin rash, get a doctor; and if the disease is pronounced to be contagious notify the health officer and submit to the health regulations.

Whooping Cough.

Whooping cough doesn't begin with the "whoop." It begins like any other cough, and after several days the whooping sound ending like the "coo" of a pigeon marks the true condition.

Diarrhoea.

If the baby has too frequent movements it is always safe to give a teaspoonful of castor oil and cut down the food supply.

Constipation.

If the baby has not had a movement for 48 hours, give him a small enema of two or three ounces of warm soap-suds or a suppository of soap or glycerine.

Earsache.

Children often have earsache as the result of large tonsils and adenoids or with the course of a cold.

Eczema.

Eczema rashes are often due to bad digestion or improper food. No mother should try the cure of such a trouble. Have the doctor ferret out the cause and apply proper treatment.

pens that Susan has the wherewith to rock the old family boat and create a little excitement for herself; so hers is an ideal situation.

Dorothy Gish, the star in "Susan Rocks the Boat," deeply regrets that she began her career by making people cry. She played Little Willie in "East Lynne" at the age of four, 12 years ago; and as everyone is bound to recall, Little Willie acts strongly on the tear-ducts.

"However," says Miss Gish, in earnest self-defense, "if I was responsible for weeping audiences, I am sure that I was blissfully ignorant of the fact. And I even venture to say that crying that way does people good. It loosens up a heart-strings and makes them more susceptible to actors' appeals."

Max Linder, the distinguished French actor, in his third Essanay comedy, "Max in a Taxi," to be seen at the Brant the last half of next week, produces more fun from his experiences with the taxicab than the proverbial barrel of monkeys.

Blance Sweet will be seen at the Brant Mon., Tues., and Wed., in the Jesse L. Lasky production "The Silent Partner," a thrilling drama of business and social life by Edmund Goulding, prepared for the screen by George Du Bois Proctor.

SOME BATTLE STORIES FROM THE WEST FRONT

Behind the fighting line, Hindenburg's patent movable front that only moves one way, there are scenes of antlike activity, in what was a few days ago, No man's land. As each portion of the "flexible" line is driven back and held until the rebound is knocked out of it, the guns, the pioneers, the transport and all the auxiliary services pour over the redomed land in swarms, settling a gun here, repairing a road there, creating a dump at the place, tidying up and solidifying the ground, but always prepared for the next drive forward.

"I saw a tank that had been laid out," said a private in a Home Country regiment. "We were crossing over the old German ground, going up after a bit of a rest. It was funny to see the men swarming round the big thing getting it into repair. It reminded me of a picture we used to have in our reading book at school about Gulliver lying asleep and the Lilliputians tying him up with thread not about a tank, but the look of the thing was the same. It looked more like a great, big friendly toad than a machine. It gave you a queer sensation to see the men crowding round it—after seeing the way the Germans squeal and yell when one turns up near them.

"What with the noise and the tanks and the aeroplanes buzzing along quite low down, spraying out hand grenades and machine gun strings, we had plenty to watch. All we had to do was to work to a schedule and reach our objective in a given time. But one day we were out beyond the cover of our artillery and the machine guns held us up until a tank came along," said a sergeant.

"Some of the tanks were done in, it was awful going for them, and some were hit by shell-fire, but there are plenty to spare and more coming. Even if they do get put out after a bit of fighting, they are worth a couple of divisions, while they are there because of the lives they save. Fritz throws all his stuff at the tanks; he can't forget them; they give his gunners bad dreams at night. My advice is never to get near the tanks for they are fair magnets for shell and every kind of fire, but left to their own sweet way they are prime. The one we had with us was and wallowed and rolled about, and it went through a nasty bit of stuff for us like a dog nosing after a scent. It had lost. Fritz flattened out the place it did, and left a track like a cyclone."

"I saw one queer thing there," said a man of the Middlesex regiment. "We were a part of a clearing-up crowd and were the third wave of an attack. It's a grand job that you get good little scraps of trouble and more souvenirs than you can carry, and you could hardly see the line for shell-holes, when I saw a bayonet sticking through the earth and war-gling, about. 'Someone's buried here,' said the sergeant and gave the rifle a pull. We opened out the hole a bit and found it was the back door of a dugout, but the man had gone back down the hole when he heard us talk English. It was like rattling, but he wouldn't come out. The sergeant sent back for one of 'Hindenburg's Fourpenny Smokes'—that's the kind of smoke bomb we use for cleaning out dug-outs—and we dropped it in and stood ready.

The first man came out straight for me with his bayonet, but I put him out with my spade. We got eight out of that hole, one with a helmet too. Souvenirs are all very well if you can get away with them; as it was I stopped a bit of a bomb before I collected much.

A Canadian gave an interesting account of the flying and expressed the conviction that our airmen have got the Boches "stone cold."

"I've hardly seen a Fritz bird for weeks. If you do see one it's only for a minute and it's a before you've been able to see or do anything. With our airmen it's quite a different thing. They fly low over the German lines and let off the machine guns and drop bombs on the Fritz trenches. It doesn't matter what like the weather is; if it's blowing half a gale they're out just the same. If it's misty, they fly all the lower."

"I see that some guy or other has been talking about our air losses. If he could get up into the front line for a day or two he would be put wise in no time. Suppose you and me went out shooting each other's tame ducks and you had twenty running around and I had a couple, who would collar the most? I don't think we lose more than the Fritz, but with the everlasting flock of machines we have in the air over there, the wonder is we haven't a lot more. But our airmen can get the drop on the Fritz every time—if they go behind the Boche lines twenty times for every time the Holneys go over ours, they're bound to have a loss sometime."

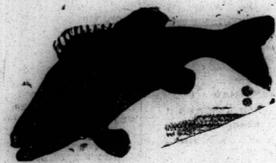

An Australian machine gunner who had taken part in an attack on three heavily fortified and strongly held villages, expressed his admiration of the work of the patrols of native Indian troops.

"They are fine fellows," he said, "as nothing daunt and they are as proud as can, to be in the hottest part of the fighting. We mostly know something about horses ourselves, and they are first rate in the saddle. They keep their mounts and equipment turned out and ready to start until they get at the Willies and have half a chance to use those long spears of theirs. I reckon you will hear a lot more of 'Merri, Cameradi!' from Lillie to Arras."

HORSE IS NOT AUTOMOBILE

Instructions For Care of Horses During Summer Issued by S. P. C. A.

The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals has issued the following instructions for the care of horses during the hot weather, asking owners to remember that these animals are not automobiles but are possessed of the same feelings as themselves;

Don't overload the wagon. Don't speed your horse. Use well fitting, light weight harness, loose fitting collars and open bridles.

On long hauls allow periods of rest in the shade. At the first sign of exhaustion stop and bathe the animal's head and neck with cold water. In case of complete exhaustion or sunstroke, endeavor to get animal in shade, remove all harness except bridle and apply ice packs to top of head and neck. Packs can be made by wrapping cracked ice in a piece of old blanket, feed bag or any material handy. If ice cannot be obtained, pour cold water slowly over head, neck and shoulders from pail or hose. Care should be taken not to get water in ears of animal. Endeavor to keep animal in prostrate position, head slightly elevated, with folded blanket or other soft material underneath to prevent injury by thrashing around or struggling and notify society and veterinary surgeon.

Allow a liberal quantity of clean water to drink, provided the horse be worked or exercised immediately after drinking.

Carry a pail and sponge to wash or swab the animal's nose, mouth, and face frequently. Give a warm grain mash on Wednesday nights in addition to the one given on Saturday nights.

Avoid upgrades whenever possible. Relieve harness pressure, from sores, a pinhead as large as a pinhead will soon develop into a large open area if not protected.

Collar and shoulder pads are advisable only when the collar is too large or in the case of a horse with a sore, when the pad is used to relieve pressure. Pads cause friction, create heat and become moist from perspiration. Therefore they should be removed from the harness every night, the pressure surface washed with warm water and soap and hung out in the sun to dry before being again placed upon the animal. Supply two sets of pads for use on alternate days. If this is done sore conditions will be entirely prevented.

Feed properly; do not overfeed or underfeed; study the individual horse and determine just how much non-ferrous iron it requires to keep it in good serviceable condition and health.

The man who underfeeds his horse or saves on bedding, blankets, shoeing, or employs incompetent help in order to save money practises a false economy which invariably results in weak, lame, sore and enfeebled animals.

Plenty of light, fresh air, good food, pure water and proper housing are as necessary to the horse as they are to the human being.

Lesson XIII.—Second Quarter, For June 24, 1917.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, John xxi, 15-25. Quarterly Review—Golden Text, John xx, 31—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

Lesson I.—Jesus gives sight to the blind, John ix, 1-38. Golden Text, John ix, 3, "I am the light of the world." We should all appreciate (all true believers) the mercy of the Christ who sent Him that sent Me, for we are sent by Him as He was sent by the Father, and all our works are prepared for us (John xvii, 18; xx, 21; Eph. ii, 10).

Lesson II.—Jesus raises Lazarus from the dead, John xi, 1-44. Golden Text, John xi, 25, "Jesus said unto her, I am the resurrection and the life." This sickness and death, like the blindness of last lesson, were for the glory of God, that the Son of God might be glorified thereby (verse 4). His delay in coming to the heartbroken sisters, His seeming neglect of them, the death and burial of Lazarus, were sore and severe testings, but resurrection made all right.

Lesson III.—Jesus the Good Shepherd, John x, 1-18. Golden Text, John x, 11, "I am the good shepherd; the good shepherd layeth down his life for the sheep." He was no hireling, never thought of pleasing Himself or of seeking anything for Himself, either in the way of His own will or His own glory.

Lesson IV.—Jesus anointed at Bethany, John xii, 1-8. Golden Text, Mark xiv, 8, "She hath done what she could." All is well in this home now, for Lazarus has come back, so it will be in the resurrection reunions, and we shall forget our miseries and remember them as waters that pass away (Job xi, 16). In Mary we see true, loving, believing, costly worship; in Martha restful service, in Lazarus resurrection life, and we look onward to His table in His kingdom.

Lesson V.—Jesus welcomed as king, John xii, 12-20. Golden Text, John xii, 13, "Blessed is He that cometh in the name of the Lord, even the king of Israel." That most sad day when He wept over the city because of the sufferings that would come upon it on account of their rejection of Him and His kingdom will yet give place to a glad day, when they shall say: "Lo, this is our God, whom we waited for, Him, and He will save us."

Lesson VI.—Jesus the servant of all, John xiii, 1-17. Golden Text, Mark x, 44, "Whoever would be first among you shall be servant of all." The events of that passover night which He so lovingly carried back to the great night in Egypt when the nation was born and on to the future fulfillment when they shall be born again.

Lesson VII.—Jesus the True Vine, John xv, 1-16. Golden Text, John xv, 5, "I am the Vine, ye are the branches." Not only is He the True Vine, the True and Righteous Israel, but He is the Righteous Branch always bearing fruit. The wonder is that He can bear fruit through such as we are, but He who ordains peace for us works all our works in us (Isa. xvi, 1; Phil. ii, 13; Eph. ii, 10). In redemption He does all for us fully and freely, and unless He does all in our daily life nothing counts.

Lesson VIII.—The importance of self control, Isa. xxviii, 1-13. Golden Text, I Cor. ix, 25, "Every man that striveth in all things." As in verse 16 of this chapter we have the only sure foundation for all deliverances from sin and self, so it is also in I Cor. iii, 11-15, where we learn that lack of self control or denial may lead to great loss on the part of saved people.

Lesson IX.—The Holy Spirit and His work, John xv, 26; xvi, 14. Golden Text, John xiv, 26, "He shall teach you all things." From first to last the Holy Spirit is the great and only worker and has been called the Spirit of the Father and the Holy Spirit. He loves to magnify the Father through the Son, guide us into all truth, take of the things of Christ and show them unto us and show us things to come.

Lesson X.—Jesus betrayed and denied, John xviii, 1-18. Golden Text, Isa. liii, 3, "He was despised and rejected of men. When we consider that one numbered with the twelve, though he never was really one of them, sold Him to His enemies, and another who was truly a disciple denied Him with oaths and curses, and all forsook Him and fled, we can only wonder at His faith in God under such adverse circumstances.

Lesson XI.—Jesus crucified, John xix, 16-30. Golden Text, I Cor. xv, 3, "Christ died for our sins." As we consider this most awful event in all sets of the past history of the world, we should continually ponder and prayerfully meditate upon such words as our Golden Text, along with Gal. iii, 13; I Pet. ii, 24; Heb. i, 3; ix, 12; x, 10, 12; Isa. liii, 5, 6, and then see Him before His enemies as an example for us, His followers.

Lesson XII.—The Risen Lord, John xx, 1-18. Golden Text, I Cor. xv, 20, "Now hath Christ been raised from the dead, the first fruits of them that are asleep." We should see ourselves as believers, crucified with Him, buried with Him, risen with Him, seated with Him and coming with Him in glory to set up His kingdom and reign with Him over the earth, and reign with Him over the earth.

Albert L. Iron, a popular resident of Windsor, died in Detroit at the age of 54.

Hurrah! How's This

Cincinnati authority says corns dry up and lift out with fingers.

Hospital records show that every time you cut a corn you invite lockjaw or blood poison, which is needless, says a Cincinnati authority, who tells you that a quarter ounce of a drug called freezone can be obtained at little cost from the drug store but is sufficient to rid one's feet of every hard or soft corn or callus.

You simply apply a few drops of freezone on a tender, aching corn and soreness is instantly relieved. Shortly the entire corn can be lifted out, root and all, without pain.

This drug is sticky but dries at once and is claimed to just shrivel up any corn without inflaming or even irritating the surrounding tissue or skin.

If your wife wears high heels she will be glad to know of this.

Stricken with apoplexy while on a fishing trip, Robt. H. Barker of Guelph, is in a hospital critically ill.

When You Market Consider Your Less Fortunate Neighbor.

"Every citizen who uses more in his household than his household actually needs is increasing the cost of living for those less fortunate, and he is hindering the prosecution of the war."

Sir Thomas White, Minister of Finance.

THE well-to-do woman who sits at her phone and orders provisions lavishly, regardless of price, is abusing the power of money as a bully abuses brute strength.

No longer can we help ourselves as we see fit from an unlimited food supply—we are either limiting our buying to our own real needs or "hogging" someone else's share.

Extravagant buying by those who can afford it, with waste in some kitchens, and excess at some tables, will inevitably bring still greater hardships to those who cannot afford the prices, and hunger to those who must live on less.

Buy for your household as carefully and economically as your husband buys for his factory, store or office. Study food values as well as prices—make it a point to know just what you are getting—eliminate waste—and you'll find that you can lead your family well on far less than you spend now.

Invest the saving in Canadian War Savings Certificates and you will be doubling your service to the nation.

War Savings Certificates are issued in denominations of $25, $50 and $100, to be repaid in three years at full face value. They cost $21.50, $43 and $86 respectively, at all Money Order Post Offices and Banks, thus yielding over 5% interest.

Horror Endured in an Open Boat

Harrowing Tale of Suffering Told by Survivors of Torpedoed Ship

Oddly enough there have been few stories of the war concerning the horrors endured by individuals or little groups and it is a curious psychological fact that a story recounting the sufferings of a family make a profounder appeal to the reader than a story written with similar power telling of the sufferings of a city. For instance the world was more deeply stirred by the story of Edith Cavell's murder than by the story of the Armenian massacre. On this account the narrative of Captain Benjamin Chave, master of the Alnwick Castle, which tells of his own sufferings and those of a crew of men who escaped from the vessel when she was torpedoed, is calculated to stir profoundly the feelings of all who read it. In the opinion of the New York Sun nothing that Defoe or Clark Russell ever wrote is more graphic and absorbing, and it is entitled to the name of literature. Like some of the best literature that has come out of the war, the Chave account was not intended for publication. It was simply the report of a ship captain to his owners.

Without Warning.

The Alnwick Castle was sunk about daylight, March 19, 1916, west of the Scilly Isles. She had on board at the moment a crew of 100 men, fourteen passengers and twenty-five of the crew of another vessel that had been submerged. Although it was known that submarines were in the neighborhood, the captain was taking his morning coffee in comfort, and twenty minutes later the Alnwick Castle was going down by the head and her boats were in the water. Captain Chave and a Marine corporal, who was last to leave, and they narrowly escaped the fate of the ship, which, it was noted at the time, gave a farewell blast of her whistle as the waters closed over her. The submarine stood by, but presently sighted another vessel four miles away and set sail for her. In a short time the men in the Alnwick Castle saw a great column of water on the horizon and knew that the U-boat had claimed another victim.

A Dreadful Night.

In the boat with Captain Chave were eighteen of his six third-class passengers and five sailors who had been rescued from the other vessel. The captain told the officers in the boat to steer east and east-north-east for the Channel, and then set himself to the task of navigating his own boat. The boats were in sight all day, but in the night were separated, and saw each other no more. The sea was very rough, and a bitter wind blew the spray aboard in sheets. The boat had to be furled and the next day the boat was manoeuvred with oars, while the captain lashed a couple of oars together and used a wooden chair as a rudder. The boat was washed away with the rudder in the night. The whole of the day was spent in trying to keep afloat. Every moment the men in the boat were drenched with the freezing spray, and pierced by a bitter wind. Theirs now became a torment. Water was served out twice a day, a dipper between two men, which made a portion "about equal to one-third of a condensed milk can."

A tin of milk had to do for four men. There was plenty of food, but the water supply was extremely limited, and it became a question how long the men could survive. They tried to eat, but the water was so near and the weaker men got an extra dose. Some of them now began to drink seawater, and Thursday most of them had become helpless and some were raving in delirium. One man died, and was thrown overboard. Soon after dark a great wave struck the boat and it seemed that she must surely go to the bottom, but urged by the captain the half-demented crew groped in the dark for dippers, and succeeded in bailing the water out.

Living and Dead Together.

On March 23 the captain, with a few of the men who were still able to move, hoisted a small sail. On the next day there was almost a mutiny and the captain had to give out another ration of water. Much of it was spilled among the cursing and snatching men. There remained only one more ration, but the captain kept it for himself. It was now dead, and other men were too far gone to swallow water. No one could take food any longer. "Our throats," says Captain Chave, "were as dry as our lips turned, our limbs numb, our hands white and bloodless." Four men died on the following day, but those remaining were not strong enough to throw the bodies overboard, so they remained where they were. It was early in the afternoon of this day that the boat was sighted by the French steamer, and the long horror was at an end. None of the men in the boat were strong enough to climb aboard the vessel. Five days later Captain Chave had not regained the use of his hands and feet. He is of opinion that another night in the boat would have finished everybody.

Five days later Captain Chave said he was the right man for this terrible adventure, his bravery having previously been rewarded by the Royal Humane Society.
