CASTION OF BRITAIN IN CASE OF WAR. I man letters of marque to seriously cripple

Ristron of Britain in Case of War.

In the event of a general European war, who will be our allies? What nations will assist us in the struggle? The Emperor Mapoleon once remarkeds !! Dwo powers, like France and England, with a good understanding between them, might govern the world." So they might in 1812 when the great Napoleon thus spoke, but not in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and fifty-three. Within the last forty-one years a wonderful change has taken place in the destinies of the human race, more especially with that portion known as the Anglo-Saxon quota of it. In 1812 that vast confederation of States, now known as the American Union, were but a feelile community struggling is war with the parent nation. In 1853 the American Republic, in population, tonnage, steam-power, and railway intercourse, nearly approximates to that of the British Islands.

Such being the case the aphorism of Na-mates to that of the British Islands.

Such being the case the aphorism of Napoleon would not now hold good. If the questation had read, "Three powers, like France, England, and America, might govern the world," there would be no question but that such would be the result of a combination of the mairitime resources of those nations if a war broke out, we will venture a prediction, his an American would express himself, "on our own hook." It is probable, for a time the United States will be a neutral power. During this neutrality Russia will issue, as has been before mooted in the public press, letters of marque to the privateers of any nation willing to accept the same, and sail under Russian colours.

What will the Americans do under such what will the Americans do under such tempting circumstances? How will that nation act? Refuse with indignation the luring offer of attacking the commerce of "Old England," as the intelligent of the Republic affectionately speak of our country, or willingly try their hand in the privateering line?

The respectable American journals are highly indignant at much a figuration.

The respectable American journals are highly indignant at such a suggestion, as appears from the following very creditable article taken from the New Fork Journal of Commerce:—

True, it has been said by the London Times, that in steeh an event our occun would swarm with Tankee privateers under Rassian letters of streyds. The Times does an singuistice, and forgets what was our position at the period of the Mexican was. Our commerce then, whitening, as it does now, every sea, was in precisely the position in which will be the extended commerce of England in the coming struggle And then, as now, destruction was threatened to the commerce in Berdon's Georgian was in precisely the position in which will be the extended commerce of England in the coming struggle And then, as now, destruction was threatened to the continuous of the commerce of Berdon's Georgian with a mation without commerce. Berdon's Georgian it to be understood that the privateer suppared soff found to be manned by other than Mexicans would be precisalised a private, and her crew treated accordingly Mexican blustered; but the people of MI instons vispected and declarations, and not a vessel twas found preying again our commerces under the faction of letters of marque granted by Mexican. And, in this manuer, if England becomes involved in war with Russia—as slie bertrially will, unless the Cast recedes from his position—with a American who is found 3th their and included American. Our Government will give, no consider a measure of the content of the proceeding, which, ander similar declarations, it contents the fact of a pirate.

The above is all yery well, says the

The above is all very well, says the Times, if emanating from a nation capable of restraining the bad passions of her citizens. But what credence should we place in such assertions, when it was only two years ago the American nation had, not the power to prevent the open organization of an armed body, recruited for the ostensible and avowed purpose of a piratical expedition upon Cuba. The same fate of a "pirate" upon Cuba. The same fate of a "pirate" stared the fillibusters in the face, yet that did not prevent the difficult, and hazardous venture. The Americans litted out as expedition under Lopez, with the certain knowledge of a powerful armed resistance from a disciplined body of troops the moment they handed. This, however, did not deter them. odses woul act in even a stronger nation, in the fitting out of privateers to watch the course of unarmed, peacable traders on the ocean, ready to posses upon their prey. There are plenty of havens on the American coast to shelter their buccaneers! No lack of friends and sympathieers to cheer them on. In fact, all new isers to cheer them on. In fact, all new countries must have a preponderance of an unsettled population, ripe for plundering expeditions. The intelligent American as such laments the knowledge of this, as any Englishman can.

Did the fear of a pirate's fate prevent Van Raussillier and his "patriot" army landing on Navy Island and invading Canada? Was not the American steamer Caroline openly chartered to carry succours from the United States territory to the invading hordes? Did not the town of Schlosser deliver up the contents of the armutry to equip the pirate band? With these reminiscences vividly brought to our mind, it is not to be wondered that people in England fear that, if a war broke out, availablessed Americans mould avail themselvest of Rus-

FEARFUL SHIPWARCK ON BARBA HEAD.

The Glasgow Hereld, of Saturday, gives a long account of the shipwreck of the Annie Jane, the store interesting portions of which wis subjoin to the store of a reof of rocks which jutted suntantly upon which the waves were breaking furiously, and where it was evident to all, that had the ship street, not a soul would have survived to tell the tale. Having rounded the reef, the ship got opposite or into Vateraish Bay, a large indentation with a unidy beach; and, according to the opinion of others, she was there vim saltore to escape the veef of rocks which formed the opposite entrance to the hay; and, according to the opinion of others, she was there vim saltore to escape the wars forced is by the fury of the gols. Certain it is that, within twenty minutes after clearing the reef, and between twelve and one o'clack on the morning of the 29th ult., the ship took the ground with a fearful concession. All the officers and even were, of course on deak a this fearful, conjuncture: but there were also on deek a large number of male passengers, who held on by the ropes and rigging, and with feelings of despair contemplated their fate, as indicated by the dull outline of the land, and the roating of the aurf on the beach. Meanwhile the great majority of the passengers, including all the women and children, were below in their beptas, but the striking of the ship gave them a fearful wakening. Many rushed on deek in a state of askedness; wives clung to their husbands, and children utering appalling screams, and eagerly shricking. Is there hope? In fact, the scene is described by the survivurasa the most againsing which it could eater into the heart of man to conceive. The poor creatures had not long to wait for the catastrophe. After the first shock was over the passengers rushed to the boats, three of which were placed between the miscemast and the policy in the water paralysis of the boats living in such a storm, even had the most of the boat living in such a storm, even had the most of at least, as far as this unhappy group was concerned.

The great majority of the women and children, as well as some of the male passengers, remained below, either paralyzed by terror or afraid that they would be washed away in the event of their coming upon deck. But their time also had come. The frightful thumping of the great ship, taken in connexion with her cargo of railway iron, must have immediately beaten the bottom out of her; and while her fabric was in this weakened and disrupted state, another dreadful sea broke on board and literally crushed that part of the deck situated between the mainmast and the mizenmast, down upon the herths below, which were occupied by terror-acticken women and sleeping children. They were killed rather than drowned, as was was fully evinced by the naked, motifated, and gashed bodies which were afterwards cast on shore. The main and mizenmasts went at the same moment. This second brameh of the catastrophe took place within a very few minutes after the passengers and part of the crew had been awept away from the deck along with the boats. The most of the remaining seamen and passengers now took refuge on the poop, which was a very high one, and each succeeding assault of the sea carried away its victim or victims. In short, within one hour after the Annie Jase struck the remaining stunps of her masts went by the board, and she books into three viccess. An additional high one, and each succeeding assault of the sea carried away its victim or victims. In short, within one hour after the Annie Jane atruck the remaining stumps of her masts went by the board, and she broke into three pieces. An additional number perished at this disruption: and all the survivors remained on the poop, with the exception of seven men, who had secured themselves on the topgallant forecastle. The poop fortunately floated well, and as it was about high water, the wrack was drifted inwards by the wind sad each heave of the sea, when it finally grounded about 4 o'clock a. m. The forecastle, with the seven men, came ashore, much about the same time. The wrack had been observed from the island almost as soon as the day broke; in the first instance, seven or eight of the Barra men (all who were in the neighbourhood at the time) came down to render such aid as might be in their power. The remains of the mizenment were still attached by the shrouds to the wreck of the poop, and by the help of the islanders it was placed so as to form a sort of bridge or ladder between the poop and the shallow water; and, as the tide had now felly obbed, all the survivors were found to number a total of 102, of whom one was a child, 12 were women, and 28 belonged to the craw, exclusive of the captain, who was also saved. When the poop was drifting absore he secured himself apon its skylight. But the depasted friends of the survivors were ashore before them, for the beach was literally lined by their dead bodies, as well as by innumerable fragments of the broken ship, and the light part of her cargo. None of the curvivors destinated the less of life at less than 350, and others consider it close upon 400 souls. The latter would be the case if 500 individuals including children, were on board, as is generally believed. Almost all the cuto if life at less than 350, and others consider it close upon 400 souls. Soon after reaching the shore the survivors repaired to a furnished the short the survivors repaired to a furnished the first that the state of houses, which was not far from the beach; and repaired their extratistated complete by real. The remain and officers, occupied the bouses, and the desires and units storage has a complete the bursts of the same and officers, occupied the bouses, and the bursts of the burst, byte, and stable. There was no exactly if provisions, for some bursels of burst and sort has been washed ashore, and the Burra scople supplied potators. Then came the burying the dead. Orientian appairitire was deemed impacticables, for the bursels was 10 miles distint, and there was eather expension to make coffine, nor proper timber to fashion them from, for the numerous bedies which lay above the ground. Capacious pits, were day close 10, the locally above, and the poor sufficers were deposited therein, exactly in the state in which they were cast from the wreek—a great minny, as we have said, being naked and mutilated. To this style of burial there were only two exceptions—vin., in the case of Mr. Bell, the first mate, and a Franch Canadian clergyman or priest, for whose remains roughly constructed coffice were made by the surviving carpenters from piaces of the wreck. In this way 260 badies had been interred up to Monday last, when our informants left the island; but a great many still remained unburied, and indeed every tide threw them up.

GENERAL INTELLIBRACE

THE PAIRY QUEEN. (From the Provincial Weslevan)

(From the Paurice Westeyan)

A name that has been, and a memory now, around which thoughts must linger sadly, and tears be wept, for the dearly loved, and early lost. O! how thrillingly inournful the scene, which again and again we have pictured, and which still falls for short of the dread reality. Night upon the waters—hushed and solemn,—and in the stillness glad hearts beat hopefully, turning to the future—and the vista of coming years seemed one golden gleam to many, who were speeding homeward.

But the Death-Angel was abroad on land and sea, sending here and there, from his fatal quiver, shafts too surely aimed—then speeding away, away, to hight other hopes, and set his icy seal upon other brows. Graves are opening everywhere—in the midst of life and health, we dare not "boast ourselves of to-morrow," for God only knoweth, if the spirit shall not be called from its earthly casket to where death cannot come?

How fearful the cry breaking the stillness, seeming the death-knell of earthly hope!—"Upon the rocks," and then all is hushed again. O Hope and Fear, how struggle ye for the mastery! Pale, stern, faces gather in the darkness. Prayers, such as the dying only breathe, were winged that night to the Father's throne. Came there not, from the courts above, a messenger of mercy, in answer to those supplications?

Death, was, perchance, short merciful.—We cannot tell.—We was not know until that day, when the Book shall be opened,—the workings of Providence, which seem to our earthly eyes to darkly mysterious.

The night wore on,—help came not,—and the boat went down—and down, far down be-when the Book shall be opened,—the workings of Providence, which seem to our carthly eyes so darkly mysterious.

The night wore on,—help came not,—and the boat went down—and down; far down beneath the waters, the living found a grave. He who had saved other lives in camp and hall, had no specific now,—the noble heart, has throbbed its last,—strong men, and fragile women perished together. The gentle spirits, who, through many a sorrow, had kept bright that holy gem—a sister's love—were not divided,—the same hour winged their flight heavenward, and the bridal wreath that earthly hands would have twined for each fair brow, is exchanged for a crown of more glorious beauty—a crown by Jesus given.

Alas! for the homes to which returning footsteps may not come, for the eyes that have watched, and the hearts that grew weatry in waiting. Joy! joy! to those who came as from the grave, restored, to linger yet all title honger in the master's service,—but them, with thanksgiving and rejoicing, go onward, living to Him who lath delivered them. But wee! woe! to him, whose heart was callous, whose conscience must have been seared, or whose wir fell, coldly, pleading voices—who, in the hoar of despair and death, could leave calmly to their fate fellow-mortals who had truited to him fate fellow-mortals who had truited to him.

must have been seared, or whose ear fell, coldly, pleading voices—who, in the hoar of despair and death, could leave calmly to their fate fellow-mortals who had trested to his guidance:—who could urra coldly, from his less women, caring only for himself.—Was there no memory of a mother's love, or sister's influence, to stay him in that hour! Had-all holy emotions died from out his heart? Was there no angel-whisper bidding him. return? It might have been, but none was heeded. Alas! for thee, O cold, and heartless! Methinks, better hadst thou gone down amid prayers, with those who aleep, than to tread life's path with such a memory about thee, and shadowy forms, with pale faces; reproachful eyes bent evet upon thee, telling of lives that thou mightest have saved, but woulds not! With God and His angels, man must leave thee, and by Him thou shalt be judged, for "Vangaance belongeth to the Lord, and He will repay".

Halfar, Oct. 20th., 1858.

The Expected Brever.—We are in a position to state, from the very best authority, that there is no present intention of issuing a general Brevet, and that before such promotion takes place, it is probable there will be a Committee of Inquiry called for in Parliament to consider the whole subject of Brevets and the position, rank, and emoluments of General Officers, for the purpose of suggesting such changes in the present system as will prove more beneficial to the officer promoted, and bring younger officers into the rank of Major Generals. A small local Brevet for Ireland is propable.

What Fills the Gaota?—Plain, sensetible, practical Mr. Clay, chaplain to the Preston House of Correction, one of the best conducted prisons in this country, has put forth a new report, full of deeply-interesting matter. Mr. Clay has no crot-chets. Unlike the chaplain of Reading, who thinks that the worst of felicines and forgers may be reclaimed by idleness and sermonising—unlike the chaplain of Bath, whose motto is, "Once in gool always in gool"—he takes a wise, liberal, and humane view of things, remarks that a criminal is a man, and that no man is ever quite lest. His reading of the great riddle of crime, is one to delight the illustrator of the, hotile. "Whether taken to beer-houses, gin-shops, lush shops, ale-houses, dancing-rooms, drink is still the great, destroyer, and drunkenness is still the national sin."—This testimony against drink is all the more valuable as coming from a revier evaluable as coming from a revier

THE Most BRAUTIFUL HAND .- Two char The Most Beautiful Hand.—Two charming women were discussing one day what it is which constitutes beauty in the hand. They differed in opinion as much as in the shape of the beautiful member whose merits they were discussing. A gentleman friend presented himself, and by common consent, the question was referred to him, It was a delicate matter. He thought of Paris and the three goddesses. Glancing from one to the other of the beautiful white hands presented to him, which, by the way, he had the cunning to hold for some time in his own, for purposes of examination, he replied at last: "I give it up; the question is too hard for me; but ask the poor, and they will tell you that, the most beautiful hand in the world is the hand that gives."

The boilets, machinery, stiller ropes, &co., should be minutely examined at least monthly. There should be two or three guns to boom forth tignals of distress in the moment of need—a bell to ring and going to best at night in foggy weather—and lights, in all weathers, holisted after two-down at the mass heads. And, for the regulation of these matters, a countities of the House of Assembly and a public officer—asy the principle officer of the Cataonia, or serving officer at such port, are the only safe agents. The Legislatures of the colonies, respectively, abould edept a code of regulations and restrictions, deptical and uniform in its provisions and requirements.

Sir.—The praise worthy manner in which you have conducted yourself and as, while sngaged as teacher and we as pupils, calls for some expression of feeling an gratitude, at the expiration of our term.

Bermit, us. Dear Sir, to tender you our sincere thinks for your past conduct while instructing us in the Radiments of Vocal Music, you have watched ever us with all that quickness of penetration which you are no capable of exercising.

We should feel indignant at those who would endeavour to imprint upon the public mind any feeling contrary to the tenor of this Address, being fully convinced that if the class has not arrived at that state of profesionery which some might have anticipated, the cassare or blame must (in accordance with strict propriety) rost with us, fully believing that your qualifications as a Teacher can be by few quantied, by none surpassed, in this our levely lale.

And now our much externed friend and tutor, we would take our leave of you with feelings of a mingled character, of regret that you are about to bid us farewell for a season, we hope not for eyer, and also of pleasure, when we reflect upon the hours passed in endeavouring to acquire a knowledge of that heart-cheering and spirit stirring science, Vocal Music.

We would now conclude by sincerely wishing you all the success possible in your present calling, and not only the blessings of the present tille upon yourself and Mrs. Ross, but also praying that beyond the bounds of time we may unite to strike the harps over tuned and sing the songs of the redeemed around the Threne on high.

A little log house grocery stod on the near bank, about fifteen steps from where the ferry flat lay, tied to a mag in the edge of the water. Several bear skins, deer skins, and coon skins, were nailed up to dry against the walls of the grocery, but the door was closed, and no bar-keeper, ferryman, or other person was in sight. And the good woman rowed the boat stately across the ugly stream; and handing her the ferriage-fee, I bade her good morning, beleave then, as I still do, that she was one of the happiest women and best wife I ever saw—perfectily contented with her lot, because she knew no better.

TOUCHING INCIDENT.—The Buffalo Republic says:—A little boy, poorly clad, standing in front of the Western Hotel, was accosted by a rude young man, with the question, "Does your mother know you're out?" ALEXANDER BANNEMAN, Knight.

CEORGE LORD, begs leave respectfully to intiT mate to his friends and the public in general, that he has resumed his practice in the Veterina at Line, under the patronage of His Excellency Sir Alexander as successful practice of 27 years—14 in England and 13 in America—in the course of which he has been directly instrumental, through his skill, in saving, for their owners, the lives of many valuable Hogses—and Cows; he hopes that, in now soliciting a renewal of Public Patronace, he may be permitted to say that he considers himself to be as well qualified to prescribe Medicines and preform Operations, in the capacity of a Honer and Cow Doctor, as any individual who has ever practised in that line in this Colony; and he, therefore, presumes that he may confidently look forward to a renewel of that line in this Colony; and he, therefore, presumes that he may confidently look forward to a renewel of that patronage which he formerly enjoyed in this Island.

Twelvetrees Brothers' Soap Powder

(an entirely new invention.)

S the cheapest, safest, best, and most effectual article for all waiting purposes, a packet of which is equal to ten Peimyworth of Soap!

The saxing of Time and Labour is so astonishingly great, that a W E E K S W A S. H can be accomplished BEFORE BREAKFAST—no rubbing being required.

This wonderful Article is MORE SERVICEA-BLE THAN SOAP, as it produces a better and much quicker lather, and is adapted for purposes, for which Soap cannot be safely or effectually used.

It will not injure the hands, or the most delicate material; but whilst it is incomparable for permanently whitening Linens, &c., after they have become discoloured by age, or injured by bad Washing, it is also unsurpassable for improving the colors of FLANNELS, BLANKETS, WOOLLENS, Colorko PRINTS, MUSLIN. and LACE GEO. HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT.

A CRIPPLE SETS ASIDE HIS CRUTCHES AFTER TEN YEARS SUFFERING.

Copy of a Letter from Mr. Thompson, Chemist, Liverpoof, dated August 20, 1852.

To Professor Holloway,

Dear Strill am enabled to furnish you with a most extraordinary cure effected by your invaluable Ointatent and Pills which has astonished every person acquainted with the sufferer. About 10 years ago, Mr. W. Cammine, of Saltney Street, in this lown, was thrown from his horse, whereby he received very serious injuries; he had the best medical advice at the time, and was afterwards an immate of different infurnaries, yet the grew worse, and at length a malignant running elect settled in his hip, which so completely crippled him, that he could not move without crutches for nearly 10 years; recently he began to use your Ointment and Pills, which have now healed the wound, strengthened his limb, and enabled him to dispense with his crutches, so that he can walk with the greatest case, and with renewed health and vigor. (Signed)

Copy of a Letter from Mr. Hird, Draper, of Keady, weer 'Gainstory', dated March 1st, 1852

To Professor Hob Lowax,
Sin.—Some time since, one of my children was afficted with dreadful gruptions over the body and limbs. I obtained the advice of several eminent Surgeons and Physicians, by all of whom the case was considered hopetess. At length I tried your Ointment and Fills, and sythest exaggeration, the effect was miracalous, for by persevering in their use, all the armstians quickly disappeared, and the child was restored to perfect, health.

I previously lost a child from a similar complaint, and I firmly believe, had I in her case adopted your medicines, she would have been saved also. I shall be happy to testify the truth of this to any enquirer.

CONSUMPTION.

Among the numerous discoveries Science has made in this generation to facilitate the business of life—increase its enjoyment, and even prolong the term of human existence, none can be named of more real value to mankind, than this contribution of Chemistry to the Healing Art. A vast trial of its virtues throughout this broad country, has proven beyond a denut, that no medicine or combination of medicines yet knows, can so surely control and cure the namerous varieties of pulmonary disease which have hitherto swept from our midst thousands and thousands every year. Indeed, there is now abundant reason to believe a Remedy has at length been found which can be relied on, to cure the most dangerous affections of the lungs. Our space here will not permit us to publish any proportion of the cares effected by its use, but we would present the following:—aud refer further enquiry to my American Almanac, which the agent below named, will always be pleased to furnish free, wherein are full particulars, and indisputable proof of these statements.

Rock Hill, (Somesset Co., ) N. J., July 21, 1852.
Dr. J. C. Ayra, — Since your medicine has become known here, it has a greater demand than any other cough remedy was hive ever sold. It is spaken of in terms of unmeasured praise by those who have used it, and I know of some cases where the best they can say of it, is not too much for the good it has done. I take pleasure in selling it, because I know that I am giving my customers the worth of their money, and I feel gratified in seeing the benefit it confers.

Please send me a further supply, and believe me Yours, with respect,
